LET US NOT FORGET

Memorial service planned

VFW Post 9178 and its Ladies Auxiliary will have a memorial service at the Mitchell County Court House lawn, where members will place a wreath on the veterans' monument.

The ceremony begins at 8:30 a.m. on Monday, May 27, Memorial Day, at the Court House and concludes with a flag raising at the Post Home at 9 a.m.

Filter system seminar held

A crowd of more than forty interested people, including Colorado City and Mitchell County officials, attended a presentation by Robert C. Kyle on Thursday at the C.C. Thompson Room about microbial rock reed filter systems.

Attendees from Big Spring, Sweetwater, Garden City, Abilene, Jayton and Temple as well were present to learn about what some have called the ideal solution to sewage treatment problems in small communities.

Colorado City Mayor Jim Baum served as Master of Ceremonies for the program, and provided a little bit of relevant history. According to Baum, the first city ordinance passed in Colorado City, in May of 1882, concerned sanitation; and the first public funds were spent on a privy!

Jimmy Apel spoke to the group next, about the Big Country Resource Conservation and Development Area, co-sponsors of the seminar along with the Mitchell County Soil and Water Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service.

Apel, the area RC&D coordinator, explained that since many communities within the Big Country area are experiencing difficulties with sewage disposal, the RC&D board of directors, upon learning of the microbial rock reed system, felt the information should be passed on to members of those communities.

He introduced Kyle, whose engineering firm, Kyle Engineering of Dallas, deals with waste treatment facilities, water and sewage systems, complete street and drainage systems, solid waste disposal sites, and municipal oriented projects.

Kyle's firm, Apel said, also has expertise in applying for and receiving funding from the Texas Water Development Board and the Environmental Protection Agency for various municipalities.

Apel noted in the introduction that Kyle has had experience as project engineer with the Dallas firm of B.L. Nelson and Associates; that he has served as the Dallas area engineer for the EPA; and as a hydrological engineer with the Army Corps of Engineers.

He said Kyle has both a bachelor of science and a master of science degree in civil engineering; and that he is a member of the American Society of Professional Engineers, the Texas Society of Professional Engineers, and the Texas Society of Professional Engineers.

MC Appraisal Board meets, appoints Hemphill to fill term

The Mitchell County Appraisal District Board of Directors met on Thursday night and, among other items of business, voted on an appointment to fill the unexpired term, on the Appraisal Review Board, of Rex McKenney, who passed away in April.

Mike Hemphill, general manager of Mitchell County Utilities, was the choice of the board to fill the vacancy on the Appraisal Review Board.

Board members voted to present McKenney's widow, Wilma Jean, with a plaque of honor and appreciation for McKenney's service on the board.

The presentation of that plaque will take place at the next regularly scheduled meeting in September.

In other business, Board Attorney Tom Rees informed members that a long-pending litigation, involving a tax dispute with Valero Transmissions, a company which owns a 36 inch pipeline which transverse a southern portion of county property, is expected to be settled within a short period of time.

For a period of approximately 12 years the company has protested the appraised value, and consequent tax rate, of the location of that pipe line.

Members also discussed recent tax appraisals, which were placed at 1990 value levels for agricultural use property, and were decreased by 5% for residential properties, by the Appraisal Review Board in its February meeting.

The board agreed on the proposed 1992 budget, and will now submit it to the taxing entities for their budgetary review.

Swimming pool to open June 1

City Manager Buddy Foster has announced that the swimming pool at Ruddick Park will not open this year until Saturday, June 1.

According to Foster, the bottom of the pool is "spalding," or flaking off, and will have to be sanded and patched in order to last through the season.

In the fall, he explained, more extensive repairs will be made on the pool.

City pool life guards will be making the temporary repairs on the pool over the next few days.

Lightening hit this tree in the front yard of the Lindy Moore home in the 17 hundred block of Chestnut during Thursday night and Friday morning's thunderstorm. Both Moore, right, and his neighbor Porter Richardson, heard the noise, heard their windows rattle, and felt their houses shake at approximately 1:20 a.m. Friday. Here Moore lifts a strip of bark which was torn from the tree. Other pieces of bark were blown several feet away, and were found lying in the yard on Friday morning.

ETTIE WALKER

Walker resigns Chamber

Ettie Walker, executive vice-president of the Colorado City Chamber of Commerce since December, 1988, has tendered her resignation, effective June 1.

Mrs. Walker and her husband Don have announced their plans to relocate in the Dallas area to pursue a business of their own.

The couple has lived in Colorado City since July of 1986.

She wishes to thank her friends here, as well as those who have worked with her through the years, for all of their support.

PATRICK PARKER

Parker named manager

Patrick C. Parker has been named manager of the Lone Star Gas Company office in Colorado City effective June 1. He replaces Gary Parker who was transferred to Eastland.

Patrick has served as a service representative for Lone Star in Albany for the past year. He has been with Lone Star nearly 5 years.

He was active in civic affairs in Albany with the Chamber of Commerce and the Lions Club.

Lone Star serves over 2,000 customers in the Colorado City area.

Stenholms travel to Mexico

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Congressman and Mrs. Charles Stenholm (D-TX) travelled to Mexico on May 10-12, to participate in the 31st Mexico-United States Interparliamentary Conference.

The Congressman is one of 12 Members of the House of Representatives selected by House Speaker Tom Foley to attend the conference.

"Over $11 billion of Texas exports are sold to Mexico each year," said Stenholm. "I hope our visit and efforts will contribute to greater economic growth for our state and our country, as well as Mexico. It is an honor to be so closely involved in these negotiations."

The conference agenda has set aside one day for discussion of the proposed North American Free Trade Agreement (Mexico-United States-Canada).

The remainder of the conference will include discussion about migrant workers; legal affairs; drug traffic; environmental protection; human rights; tourism; communication; transportation; cultural exchange; and financial cooperation.

U.S. participation in the annual parliamentary conference with Mexico was authorized by a joint resolution, approved on April 9, 1960. It provided for the appointment of 12 House Members and 12 Senate Members to meet each year with representatives of the Chamber of Deputies and Chamber of Senators of the Mexican Congress for discussion of common problems in the interest of relations between the United States and Mexico. The first meeting was held in Mexico in 1961. Subsequent meetings have been held in the United States on even-numbered years and in Mexico on odd-numbered years.

Pelegrinis visit Colorado City

Pat and Larry Pelegrini came to Colorado City on Wednesday, intending to stay just long enough to distribute some books and pamphlets, and then head on west, on their continuous travels around the country.

Larry brought some of the books into the Record office, however, and he had "interesting story" written all over his face, (figuratively speaking), so the Pelegrinis were persuaded to stay in town for an extra hour or so, which enabled us to learn a little bit about this fascinating couple.

The Pelegrinis have taken on the full-time job of the wide-spread distribution of a book entitled "America in Prophecy," which was originally published in 1888 under the title "The Great Controversy."

The book, which was written by E.G. White, is a fascinating study of the Book of Revelations as it relates to history from AD 70 through the present.

Anyone who reads the book, the Pelegrinis believe, will be drawn naturally into further study of the Bible and biblical history, so they feel that they have a ministry to travel the country, providing each town where they travel with enough copies of the book so that anyone who wishes to read it will have that opportunity.

On this particular leg of their cross-country trip they have allotted 7,200 copies for distribution throughout Texas.

They left several dozen copies around Colorado City, including an English version and a Spanish version at the Mitchell County Library, which will be added to the shelves.

The books are provided by the publisher, Charles Wheeling, who is a personal friend of the couple.

The Pelegrinis' travels are sponsored by Countdown Ministries of Jemison, Alabama. That organization, like the couple themselves, they explain, is not affiliated with any single established religion.

The couple have been living the on-the-road lifestyle since January of 1983. They have a daughter, Tricia, 18, who opts to stay in one place. She makes her home in Georgia.

They invited me into the old school bus which they have converted into a home - a home which was supposed to be temporary, but which, according to Larry, comes in handy during their "400 days per year on the road."

It is complete with curtains, food, and fully-stocked bookshelves which contain, among other things, the complete works of E.G. White, who is one of the couple's favorite authors.

The Pelegrinis have another vehicle which travels with them. It is a battered, literally beaten, pickup truck. Purchased new by a friend, the truck was donated to the couple after its exterior suffered some vandalism. The pickup truck comes in handy as the couple's transportation within city limits.

In addition to distributing "America in Prophecy," the couple distributes other books by White, who was a prolific religious writer of her time.

They also distribute a newsletter, which they publish themselves, dealing with religious concerns of the day such as prophecy, the mark of the beast, and the sanctity of the first amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which the couple feels is under siege and suffering from mis-interpretation.

We talked long and hard about these opinions, and the couple tried in the short time we had to give me an understanding of their interpretation of the Book of Revelations.

Larry's Bible was filled with notes and marginalia on the subject, and it was easy to tell he was passionate about it.

The couple had no idea when they might be coming back to these parts. Their itinerary calls for them to head west, then north, and then east, eventually covering the entire country.

When they do return, however, they have expressed a hope that they might meet with interested groups or individuals to discuss varied or similar beliefs in an open-minded manner.

The last I saw of the Pelegrinis, they were heading off into the sunset, (or what would have been a sunset if I could have delayed them a little longer), one driving the bus, and one driving the battered truck.

I look forward to the day they find their way back to Colorado City. This time, maybe they'll be able to stay a little longer.

We still have a lot of interesting topics to discuss.

Robert C. Kyle

Engineers, and the Texas Board of Land Surveyors.

Kyle explained the workings of the microbial rock reed filter system, and showed slides of existing ones which point up the fact that they contribute to the beauty of the area where they are installed.

He showed diagrams of the system he is installing in Whitney, a town of 2,000 just south of Fort Worth. That system uses a system of three separate ponds and individual filter basins.

Kyle said there are almost no disadvantages to the systems - they cost less, they are maintenance free, they require no fuel or power, they do not make use of chemicals, and they are beautiful. Their only drawback, if it can be perceived as such, is that they require a larger site of operations than machine-run plants.

Through experience, he said, communities which are using these systems have learned to plant bullrushes rather than hyacinths, for example, to serve as the "reed" portion of the system, and to allow other plants to spring up naturally, if they will.

The bullrushes are well suited for the filtering task, although they sometimes grow too thick, he said, due to the extensive nutrients in the water, and must be cut back every four or five years.

This is practically the only form of maintenance which is normally needed.

After Kyle's presentation, those present heard from Charles Hart, loan specialist from the Temple offices of FmHA.

Hart outlined the system by which his organization grants loans for such improvements as the microbial rock reed filter system. He called the systems "state of the art," and said his organization advocates them and will finance them.

Loans to municipalities, he explained, are based on such variables as the median household income, and whether the present system being replaced is out of compliance with required standards.

Lyme disease cases increase in hot weather

Public Health Nurse Pam Butler of the Colorado City offices of the Texas Department of Health, has provided the Colorado City Record with some information about Lyme Disease, or Lyme Borreliosis.

This disease can cause skin, joint, heart, and nervous system problems. It can affect people of all ages, and it can continue for months or years if not adequately treated.

First described in 1976 in Lyme, Connecticut, the town after which it was named, the disease was found to be present in Texas in 1984, and is now the most frequently diagnosed tick or insect-borne disease in the country.

Lyme Disease usually begins in the spring or summer, and the spirochete which causes it is usually transmitted by the bite of a tick or flea, although other insects which feed on animal blood may be involved.

Illness is typically divided into three different stages, often with apparent recovery between stages. However, the stages may overlap.

The stages of Lyme Disease illness are as follows: (note: not all those infected experience the stages or the symptoms mentioned)

Stage one: Skin lesions and associated flu-like symptoms.

This stage may begin as few as three or as many as 28 days after exposure.

The small red area around the insect bite begins to expand to a generally circular area which may be as large as 14 inches, or smaller than one inch.

The lesion may become lighter colored in the center, leaving a red ring on the outside, and may be confused with ringworm. Sometimes the center remains intensely red and hard, occasionally even forming blisters which later burst and form a heavy dark scab.

This type of lesion can be mistaken for a spider bite.

Sometimes the lesion does not expand at all, but fails to heal and repeatedly scabs and drains for several weeks.

A secondary rash may appear at the same time as a primary skin lesion or may appear later. Often these rashes recur periodically. The character of the rash may vary from one time to another, and may change in appearance rather quickly.

It may resemble hives, poison ivy, chicken pox, or insect bites. It may even appear as splotchy areas, circular areas or irregular areas of redness.

Flu-like symptoms are also associated with Stage one. These include fatigue and lethargy, which are frequently constant and debilitating; headache; high and low fever; chills; stiff neck; muscle aches; severe cramping; joint pain; backache; sore throat; enlarged lymph nodes; abdominal pain; nausea; vomiting; dizziness; and non-productive cough.

These symptoms can last for months, and can alternate, with one symptom or set of symptoms predominating for a while, only to change to another very different manifestation.

Stage two: Nervous system and heart involvement.

Early Lyme Disease is often manifested by excruciating attacks of headache and neck pain or stiffness sometimes lasting for hours. About 15% of infected people develop more severe neurological problems such as sleep disturbances, difficulty in concentrating, poor memory, emotional instability, irritability, double vision, numbness or weakness in the extremities or the face, eye pain, and ear pain.

Approximately 10% of those infected will have heart involvement which is usually temporary, from one to six weeks, and rarely recurs.

Most commonly this involves episodes of an unusually forcible, rapid, or irregular heart beat.

Stage three: Joint and nervous system involvement.

Approximately 60% of those infected will develop arthritis evident as intermittent joint pain, usually involving larger joints.

The onset of these symptoms may be weeks or months, and rarely as much as two years, after infection. Attacks last for a few days, sometimes recurring a few weeks later, and in approximately 10%, the arthritis becomes chronic.

Some patients may develop neurologic symptoms such as chronic fatigue, psychiatric problems, or a multiple sclerosis-like illness.

If you suspect that you might have Lyme Disease, see your doctor at once. Treatment is more successful when initiated early.

To prevent infection, keep your pets free of fleas and ticks; avoid stray animals, or rats and mice; and take protective measures when engaged in outdoor activities.

Those measures include wearing light-colored clothing so ticks can be easily seen; tucking pants legs into boots; using an approved insect repellent; and checking yourself and your animals frequently for ticks. Prompt removal of attached ticks may help prevent disease transmission.

Remove attached ticks with tweezers, or with a tissue, grasping them at the surface of the victim's skin. (Exposure to the tick's bodily fluids can lead to infection.) Pull tick straight out with a steady motion.

For more information about ticks and Lyme Disease, call the Colorado City branch office of the Texas Department of Health at 728-5796, or the Texas Department of Health Zoonosis Control Office at 512-458-7228.

Opinion Editorial

Extension of Fast Track Authority

by Charles Stenholm

The potential benefit of an international trade agreement, whether with Canada and Mexico or with the entire free world, is spectacular--particularly for U.S. agriculture. Unfortunately, negotiations broke down prior to the deadline back in December--eliminating hopes of working out an agreement that might reduce trade distortions and unfair practices, improve health and safety standards, and increase our ability to compete in the international marketplace.

Recently, however, signs of improved willingness among some countries to move forward has prompted President Bush to authorize an extension of this deadline--giving our negotiators the same bargaining power already possessed by our foreign counterparts: the ability to assure that the deal they strike at the bargaining table will be the deal that is voted on by Congress. Otherwise, foreign governments will not make tough concessions and give their "bottom line" knowing that the bargain could be reopened.

This so-called "fast track" authority reflects an understanding that the participants in a trade negotiation often have different priorities. Results in one area are generally linked to results in others. Consequently, trade agreements are particularly vulnerable to even small changes that can unravel an entire negotiation. Fast track does not take power away from Congress nor obligate Congress to approve a final agreement; but rather, prevents the possible unraveling of a negotiated package by not allowing all 535 members of Congress to offer amendments and make changes in the final deal.

Our Constitution vests the President with the power to negotiate with foreign governments and the Congress with the power to regulate international commerce. Fast track assures that these two powers work in harmony by ensuring heavy congressional input before, during, and after the negotiations.

My vote in favor of extending fast track authority was not a vote on the merits of an international trade agreement; but rather, a vote on the "means" for possibly achieving one in the future. The "means" are neutral; they can produce and "end" which is good or bad--and we will have an opportunity to vote accordingly. But let us not confuse the "means" with the "end".

The House Agriculture Committee has held hearings surrounding this issue and I have met with U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills and Secretary of Agriculture Ed Madigan, and have been assured that we in Congress and in the industry will have considerable input throughout this process--just as we have had since 1974 when Congress created fast track. This authority has governed every major trade negotiation since that time.

Prior to these meetings, however, I joined many of my colleagues in expressing extreme concern surrounding the attitudes and previous comments made by some Administrative officials; which have lead many in the agriculture industry to question the value of any agreement. These officials have incorrectly indicated that an agreement would somehow eliminate our right to determine domestic agriculture policy. This understandably puts fear in the hearts of those who conjure up images of massive import surges that will drive our domestic producers out of business. If these types of surges occur, Section 406 of the Trade Act of 1974 provides authority to restrict imports solely on products from a Communist country or countries from which such imports have caused or threatened to cause market disruption.

Our commodity loan program for peanuts, for example, exists to assist the orderly marketing of peanuts during the entire year. Peanut producers are protected from short-term price fluctuations, particularly at harvest time. I have written assurance from our negotiators who "...expect this program to continue even under substantial reform in a GATT agreement. In addition, newly created tariffs and transitional arrangements for import surges would provide protection for the peanut industry."

That's not to say that some of our more protectionist programs may not have to make some adjustments (e.g. some "negotiated" imports) in exchange for some export opportunities and fairer trade--assuming an agreement is reached. But without fast track authority, the United States is not even a player at the negotiating table and we will lose the opportunity to judge the merits of any final agreement that could emerge. This would put our agricultural sector, and our nation, at a serious disadvantage. By not opposing this "procedure" we have the clear understanding that every effort will be made to ensure that the concerns of U.S. agriculture are fully addressed.

I have strongly expressed many problem areas to our negotiators, among which include their talk of completely eliminating Section 22 protection for peanuts, cotton, dairy and sugar--leaving these industries vulnerable to unnecessary imports. The U.S. Trade Representative's office has come a long way in addressing these concerns.

As farmers, we are facing considerable adjustments in internal farm subsidies as a result of the 1985 and 1990 Farm Acts and budget legislation. As a producer, I have to look toward the international marketplace as an opportunity to enhance farm income in the future. Without a "successful" GATT agreement this opportunity doesn't exist. A "successful" agreement means that our competitors could no longer stimulate their production with sky-high price supports (sometimes double our levels), close their borders to imports, use unjustified health regulations to keep out the competition, pile up surpluses and then dump it on world markets with big export subsidies, etc. Much of the cost of our farm programs is simply to offset the heavy farm support and unfair practices of other countries.

The purpose of these talks, which have been taking place in one form or another since the 1930's, is to expand market opportunities and work toward fairer trade. Destroying, or even adversely affecting, those programs that have consistently provided this country with the best quantity, the best quality and the safest food supply at the lowest relative cost of any other country in the world would certainly not be a part of this endeavor.

THE GOLDEN HOUR

(in memory of Linette (Fox) Sawyer)

The Golden hour was not used,
As Linette lay dying in her own blood,
And the drunk driver gave no excuse,
But left her on the roadside without a touch of love.

He left her alone, without a backward glance,
Running away from the thing he had done,
She did not have a fighting chance,
As she called for help that did not come.

Oh, I wish I'd been there, at that golden hour,
My love could have kept her alive, I know,
Or if the Lord had given me the power
To know He'd called, and she had to go.

Dear Lord, I commit her into Your care,
and she will dwell with You above.
For soon, I'll be called, and I'll be there -
"I'll meet you in the morning Little Love" - on Heaven's golden stair.

Annual Cub Scout Cookout held at Scout Hut, May 17 & 18

The annual Cub Scout Cookout was held on Friday and Saturday, May 17 and 18 in Ruddick Park at the Scout Hut, and fun was shared by all.

Friday evening the event began with the pitching of tents and settling in for the lucky scouts who spent the night.

After dark, the group gathered around a roaring campfire to roast marshmallows, sing a song or two, and share some chilling ghost stories.

There are rumors that some of the adults present mischievously jumped out of the bushes at opportune moments to elicit screams.

Could those rumors be true? Saturday morning began with a breakfast of donuts and Kool-Aid, and then the group was off on a nature hike, which lasted just over a half-hour.

After cooling off back at camp, the scouts participated in a fishing derby, with prizes to be awarded for the largest catch, the smallest, and the most unusual.

Cade Pharis won the prize for the most unusual catch, Cade Carlock for the smallest, and Brian Browning for the largest.

The awards ceremony was held on Saturday afternoon, with recognition for all scouts who had earned badges, and certificates of participation for those present.

Den One Scouts Chad Ritchey, Chase Ratliff, Johnny Lopez, Mario Quintero, and Nuno Selvera won their Wolf Badges. Jeremy Little won his Bobcat Badge.

Den Two Webelos Scouts winning awards were Bubba Limones, Engineer and Geologist Activity Badges; Brian Arocha, Engineer, Communicator, Handyman, and Geologist Activity Badges; and Larry Garrett, Webelos Badge.

Den Five Scouts Adam Myers, Brodie Harris, Cade Pharis, Clay Eades, Glen Girvin, Michael Howell, Mikey Gonzales, Richie Culpepper, Robbie Atkins and Jamie Alvarez won Ready Man and Athlete Badges.

Den Seven Scout Brian Browning earned his Bobcat Badge, and Brian Limones earned his Bear Badge with one gold and one silver arrowpoint. Cade Carlock, Leon Molina and Chris Castro earned their "God and Family" Religious Emblems.

Special recognition was given to the leaders who have worked so hard with the Cub Scouts. Those leaders are Julie Atkins, Rayanna McGaha, Brenda Eades, Shirley Limones, John Molina, Linda Smith, Yolanda Espinoza, Debby Carlock, and their assistants.

Special thanks went to Scott Gassiot and Shirley Limones for preparing the Scout Hut for the campout, and a very special thanks went to the Jaycees, the Tumbleweed Lioness Club, and all the parents who did so much to repair the Scout Hut for use again.

Overnight Hosts

On Friday, July 19, a bus load of approximately 50 foreign exchange students will be stopping in Colorado City for one night's stay. They will be back on the road bright and early on Saturday morning.

Colorado City Rotary Club members are trying to help find lodging for those students.

The students will be in the middle of a three-week road trip, and will have several suitcases each, will probably need the services of a good, sturdy washing machine, and would appreciate a homecooked meal.

In exchange, the students will bring into your home, for one night, a window on the world.

If you would like to offer lodging to one of these bright, friendly youngsters, or two, or three, or four, please call Robert Ramage at 728-2160.

Donations for Parade

Donations are being accepted from individuals, groups, or merchants for the Mitchell County Salute to Veterans' Parade scheduled for the Fourth of July.

Obituaries

Morris Bert Bagwell

Morris Bert Bagwell, 74, of Colorado City, died on Thursday, May 23, 1991 at Mitchell County Hospital.

Graveside services were held on Saturday, May 25 at Oakwood Cemetery in Wewoka, Oklahoma, with the Reverend Scott Beard officiating.

Bagwell was born on Monday, November 6, 1916 in Arkansas to Woodrow and Jane Bagwell, both now deceased. A widower, he was married to Violet Bagwell, also now deceased.

A former oil field worker, Bagwell was a member of First Christian Church of Wewoka.

He is survived by one daughter, Jolene Blankenship of Colorado City; three sisters, Mag Lollis of Holdenville, Oklahoma; Doris Nowlin; and Dorothy Smith of Shawnee, Oklahoma; two grandchildren; and four great grandchildren.

Preliminary funeral arrangements were made by Kiker-Seale Funeral Home.

Richard M. Hardison

Richard M. Hardison, 72, of Big Spring, formerly of Colorado City, died on Tuesday, May 21, 1991 in Lubbock Methodist Hospital.

Services were held on Friday, May 24 at 10:30 a.m. in Rosewood Chapel, with Royce Clay officiating, under the direction of Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home.

Graveside services followed at 3 p.m. in Colorado City Cemetery. Hardison was born in Tulsa, Oklahoma on October 19, 1918. He was the beloved son of Ulna Grady "Judge" and Sadie Hardison.

He spent his early years in Colorado City, where he met Anna Don Snively. They were married on January 31, 1942 in Sweetwater.

He earned his bachelor of arts degree from Texas A&M University in 1941, where he was cited as a Distinguished Student.

Called to active duty on graduation day as a commissioned officer in the U.S. Army, he actively served his country in the European Theatre until 1946 when he was honorably discharged with the rank of Major.

He returned from Europe and received his masters degree in landscape architecture from Texas A&M University in 1947.

The family moved to Houston in 1948, where Hardison owned and operated the R.M. Hardison Company for 35 years.

Upon retirement, he moved to Big Spring in 1987.

Hardison was highly recognized as a gifted and talented landscape architect, and was widely known in his field.

He was a member of the First Christian Church, a member of the Big Spring Kiwanis Club, a past president of the Memorial Drive Country Club, and active with the Memorial Area Boy Scouts of America.

His literary accomplishments include "Caissons Across Europe," published in 1990, based on his experiences during World War II.

Hardison was a man of integrity and loyalty, and possessed a sharp sense of humor. A sensitive man, who loved his home and family, he will be dearly missed.

Survivors include his wife, Anna Don Hardison of Big Spring; one daughter, Ann Dashiell Soric of Houston; one son, Richard William Hardison of Austin; one sister, Ruth Glover of Houston; one grandson, Mark Dashiell of Houston; three granddaughters, Elizabeth and Amy Dashiell, and Jacquelyn Soric, all of Houston; one niece; and three nephews.

Off-season workouts have been good

With the 1990-91 school year coming to a close at Colorado High, the Wolves have been hard at work during the off-season in hopes of making a trip to the Class AAA state play-offs.

As the off-season program began, the outlook was not too bright as only two athletes were running the forty yard dash under 5.0 seconds and only ten athletes were bench pressing over 200 lbs., but with determination and discipline, the Wolves have now set a new school mark with thirty young men pumping 200+ lbs. and have sixteen running 4.9 or better. "It (off-season) went real good," said head coach Tom Ramsey. "Thirty guys benching over two hundred is the most we've ever had. The team has a lot of unity, and they work well together."

The main strength for the Pack will definitely be their quickness as the offense will be molded around returning all-district RB Kevin Green. The offense will be more or less the same type of attack with multiple formations with a couple of new faces in Jesse Gonzalez, who was unable to play last season due to a severe knee injury, and Eddie Rodriguez, a move-in from Snyder.

The defense is shaping up to be a big plus for the Wolves as Rick Robinson, the Wolf defensive coordinator, has eight veterans returning: Frank Brisen, Johnny Martinez, Jaime Rivera, Cade Proctor, Mark Smith, Marcus Monroe, Greg Parker, and Green. Although small in physical size, Coach Robinson has one simple thought on the defense of '91, "They're tougher than a 'wood-holler.'" What that means, no one is really sure.

The one concern that does worry Coach Ramsey is enrollment. In recent years, the enrollment of CHS has declined steadily, and Coach Ramsey is not sure if there will be a three team schedule (Freshman, Junior Varsity, and Varsity) next season.

"At this time last year, we had about 345 students and we're down to 307," he said. If drop continues, Coach Ramsey feels that C-City may have to drop into the Class AA ranks in a couple of years.

An overall look at the Wolves, Coach Ramsey feels that Green is going to have to make it happen next season for the offense while the team has a unique mystique about them, "The kids aren't very big, but they have always found way to win. They're a bunch of competitors."

Those athletes that are in the 200+ bench pressing club are Mike Dossey, 300; Justin Sullivan, 260; Cade Proctor, 250; Cody Parker, 250; Joe Luera, 250; Joe Luera, 250; Robert Sadler, 240; Jaime Rivera, 240; Sam Luera, 240; Jesse Gonzalez, 240; Eddie Rodriguez, 240; Billy Robinette, 230; Coby Strain, 230; Marcus Monroe, 230; Mark Smith, 230; Sonny Diaz, 230; Mike Vasquez, 230; Marcus Aguilar, 230; Tracy Lentz, 220; Coy Sanders, 220; Rudy Melendez, 220; Ashley Walthall, 220; Gene Rogers, 220; Chris Williams, 220; Green, 210; Jason Blasingame, 210; Ryan Galey, 210; Johnny Martinez, 210; Frank Brisen, 210; Frank Perez, 210; and Doug Conner, 200.

Athletes running forty yards in 4.9 seconds or better are Green, 4.5; Monroe, 4.7; Proctor, 4.7; M. Martinez, 4.8; Strain, 4.8; Aguilar, 4.8; Rodriguez, 4.8; Greg Parker, 4.8; Williams, 4.8; Rivera, 4.9; Lentz, 4.9; David Castillo, 4.9; Adrian Martinez, 4.8; Perez, 4.9; Walthall, 4.9; and Sullivan, 4.9.

Lawson named to first team All-District squad

Senior Jason Lawson was recently selected to the 7-AAA 1st team All-District squad with four other athletes making the Honorable Mention list for the Colorado City Wolves.

Lawson was the Wolves' ace pitcher as he recorded a 3-5 mark in which he pitched completed games in all three victories against Early, Sweetwater, and Snyder.

Those Honorable Mentions were George Ramsey, center field; Robbie Smith, pitcher and first base; Elias Gutierrez, right field, and Avan Ceballos, third base.

The Wolves went 3-15-1 in their debut season since the late '60s.
