Five Reasons Cited For Seeking Industry

BY DICK ROBERTS

Five reasons why every individual should be interested in industrial development were given to the near-capacity crowd at the Chamber of Commerce annual banquet last night.

Speaking to the group was Harry W. Clark, executive director of the Texas Industrial Commission. Clark said that the industrial production of the United States was the factor that had won our wars, and that war with competing ideologies would come only when our enemy thought it had more industrial strength. Each new industrial plant and each new worker is a soldier in the cold war, the speaker said.

Secondly, said Clark, the economic well-being of the individual and his city is dependent upon the ability to change with the times. The period between 1950 and 1975 will see as much industrial growth as the 40 years before 1950, Clark said. Also, by 1980, 80 per cent of the population will live in just 80 urban areas. Individuals and cities must recognize these changes and become a part of the new system to survive, he said.

Third was the third motivating force for industrial development presented by the speaker. Since 1957 Texas' growth rate has fallen behind that of the U. S. and her neighbor states, he said. Also, two-thirds of Texas' industry is located in the Dallas and Houston areas. Diversification and decentralization are needed in Texas, Clark said. "We should make as part of a team," he said, "to bring about these needed changes, and always be pride in ourselves, our city, and our state."

In the fourth place, the speaker said, we should love our community. If we do, he said, we will see that it takes its place in the changing dynamic pattern of the future. Some towns will dry up, he said, but those whose citizens love their town, will survive the changes.

Last, and in Clark's opinion, most important, he said, we should recognize that we are on this earth to give of our best energies and efforts for the betterment of mankind. If we apply these Christian principles to our community, we cannot help but continue to have a better place on which to live, he concluded.

Clark was introduced by J. Mark McLaughlin, the president of the Scurry County Industrial Development Corporation. McLaughlin also acted as master of ceremonies at the banquet.

Outgoing Chamber of Commerce president Harold Lack was presented a plaque and a piece of luggage in appreciation of his past year's service to the chamber by incoming president R. C. Patton. In accepting the presidency for the coming year, Patton said that he felt Snyder had a bright future. "It's our job to develop that future," he said.

As evidence of this future, Patton pointed to the diversified income of our area; to the fact that bank deposits were at an all-time high; to our outstanding schools and churches; and to the fact that Snyder had continued to grow even through the period when the oil companies were forced to cut their staffs and operations.

The coming year will be a good year, Patton said, not because of his efforts, but because of the fine directors on the chamber's board, and the manager, Chamber manager Woody Forrester was presented a gift certificate in appreciation of his work during the past year.

Entertainment at the banquet featured the Snyder High School choir, under direction of Roger Gee. Dinner music was provided by Wayne Pinner, organist.

Out-of-town guests were present from Abilene, Big Spring, Colorado City, Stamford, Lubbock and New York City.

Winter's Coldest Blast Knives Deep Into Texas

Tennessee Town Raked By Tornado

By BOB GILBERT

SPRING HILL, Tenn. (AP)—A freakish winter tornado hit this Middle-Tennessee town early today, wrecked much of the business district, dozens of homes and destroyed two Negro churches. The twister, which was on a path where no children slept, injured, clear debris and guard against looting.

At least eight commercial buildings, including a bank, were smashed and half the Spring Hill High School was demolished. A unit of the Tennessee National Guard was called out to help law enforcement officers search for injured, clear debris and guard against looting.

Rushed to this town of 650 were units of the Tennessee Highway Patrol, civil defense, the State Highway Department and linemen from telephone and power companies.

The only damage reported at the Tennessee Orphanage Home, a Church of Christ institution, was a tin roof blown from a barn, and uprooted trees. The orphanage is only 2,000 yards from the smashed business district.

Mayor R. B. Thome said he understood all the orphans slept through the violent storm.

U. S. 31, running through the center of town, was closed to traffic for several hours after the twister hit. It was later reopened.

Jesse Easter, 21, a private in the National Guard, said he was driving home when the twister hit. He said the violent wind turned his car around twice on the highway, but the vehicle was not damaged.

Easter said he saw a section of the tin roof blown off a building at the Tennessee Orphanage home. The orphanage, a Church of Christ institution, is on the edge of town. The Tennessee Highway Patrol said none of the 180 children sleeping there was reported injured.

Spring Hill is about 30 miles south of Nashville.

Power lines to the area were down, and streets in the main section of Spring Hill were littered with debris, uprooted trees and damaged cars.

Katanga Chief Free Except For Curfew

ELISABETHVILLE, Katanga (AP)—President Mpiise Tshombe of Katanga was freed Thursday to go to his home in Katanga, but he must observe a curfew.

But he insisted at a news conference that every movement by U.N. troops in a new direction in his province must be negotiated, byhand. The British consulate in Elisabethville said Tshombe had given a guarantee only for the movement of U.N. troops to Katanga, where the railroad crosses the Rhodesian border 200 miles southeast of Elisabethville.

The U.N. command still was apprehensive about the situation in Katanga, the major industrial center 150 miles northwest of Elisabethville, where he had reportedly been in the copper and cobalt mines and a power dam, if the U.N. tried to move in.

Tshombe told newsmen in Mo-kambo, on the border of Northern Rhodesia, that he made his trip Thursday to go to his home and prove his good intentions.

Thermometer Dips Rapidly

By The Associated Press

The coldest weather of the winter knifed deep into Texas Friday, with snow and freezing rain in some places. Readings as low as 10 below zero faced portions of the state for Saturday.

The severe weather sniped at least one death by noon—a result of heavy rains on the coast set off by the approaching cold front. Instead of rising with daylight hours, temperatures dropped. Amarillo reported 1 above zero at 4:30 a.m. and 1 below zero at 9 a.m.

Dallas readings dropped steadily during the morning. At Amarillo, light, dry snow fell and the wind whipped it along. But the Weather Bureau said conditions did not approach a blizzard.

The Stratford school district in the Panhandle closed schools. All Panhandle roads remained open, but police discouraged travel.

In the cold-sensitive Lower Rio Grande Valley, where massive cold caused millions of dollars damage to citrus trees just a year ago, the severe weather was not expected to cause trouble. A cloud cover was expected to protect the trees and the vegetable fields.

The cold weather came almost a year to the day after Texas suffered some of the most harmful weather in many years since 1949.

Forecasters said the cold front would reach all but extreme southern areas of the state during the day.

The Weather Bureau issued warnings of hazardous driving conditions wherever the freezing rain fell.

Dalhousie had 2 inches of snow on the ground, and forecasts called for one to 3 inches of new snow to fall in that section.

At Nederland on the Gulf of Mexico coast, the forecaster of the cold line set off very heavy rains, although the temperature at the time was a balmy 63 degrees.

The cold front indirectly caused one death before noon, July 1951, in the case of a man who was killed in a traffic accident blamed on heavy rains at Beaumont set off by the approaching cold front.

Minimum temperatures expected by Saturday morning included: Northwest: 10 below to 16 above. North-Central: 10 to 28. Northeast: 15 to 28. Extreme Southeast: 12 to 30. South-Central: 24 to 40. Southwest: 26 to 34. The Brownsville Weather Bureau lifted its freeze forecast for the Lower Rio Grande Valley for Friday night.

The forecast called for night temperatures in the middle and lower sections of the state to be in the 20s and 30s which were forecast Thursday.

A cloud cover is expected to keep the freeze—which is to blanket the rest of the state from the Valley. Fog and drizzle are still in the forecast, however.

Hospital Board Chief First Witness In Pecos Hearing

By FINIS MATHERHEAD

PECOS (AP)—The board president of the Pecos County Hospital was the first to testify today in court that Dr. John Paul Dunn was dropped as a staff member because of harassment of hospital personnel.

The president, Harold Beauchamp, was "dead-end" witness in an injunction hearing in which Dr. Dunn is fighting to preserve his professional career in Pecos. Should he be permanently barred from the hospital, he could not treat patients in the hospital.

Dunn is a loc. of B.M.I.E. 801, the one and only medical millionaire promoter now under prison sentence and bankrupt.

Dunn claims to have been the first to tip the FBI to Estes' illegal activities.

Dunn's lawyers asked Beauchamp, "What was the general nature of this alleged misconduct by Dr. Dunn?"

"General harassment of hospital personnel—nurses and technicians," said Beauchamp.

Beauchamp said the board took statements from nine nurses and technicians before telling Dunn he could no longer treat patients in the hospital.

Lawyers for Dunn sought to draw from the witness an acknowledgment that the board acted in violation of state law.

Family Of Castro Backers Attacked

HAVANA (AP)—A small band of insurgents has attacked the home of a family of ardent supporters of Fidel Castro's revolution and burned down a government store in central Cuba, the newspaper El Mundo reported today.

It said one family member was killed and two were wounded.

The newspaper story did not say when the attack occurred. It reported one of the attackers was arrested.

The attack was in the quiet colonial town of Trinidad on the south coast of the province of Las Villas, about 200 miles from Havana. Las Villas has been the scene of previous counter-revolutionary activities.

Coinciding with disclosure of the attack, the government announced that Soviet-built MIG jets of the Cuban Air Force flying over central and western Cuba during the day would break the sound barrier. It warned the population not to be frightened by such reports.

El Mundo identified the leaders of the insurgent band as Pedro Gonzalez-Sanchez and Jose Tapia. It did not identify the one member of the band who was arrested.

The paper said the insurgents entered the home of Maria Yaldin, whose brothers and sons were members of the revolutionary militia.

It said one of the family members was wounded in the leg at the outbreak of the raid. One of his brothers was killed and another wounded when they came to his aid.

what the U.N. command plans to do about Katanga. A report from Katanga, just across the border in Northern Rhodesia, said Katanga Interior Minister Godofredo Munguile told Mpiise Tshombe for Katanga after conferring with Tshombe.

Secretary-General U. Thant had ordered Tshombe put under house arrest Tuesday after the fiery president threatened to denounce the installations at Katanga if U.N. forces advanced on the town. The order was lifted after Tshombe offered to cooperate, and he set out on his peace pilgrimage.

Tshombe drove to the border in a black sedan, escorted by remnants of his troops not to fire on a U.N. column trying to open a road and rail supply lines after conferring with Tshombe.

Tshombe told ragged soldiers who accompanied him that he did not want the people to be massacred.

Tshombe made the 174-mile journey to the border town of Munkoma, without a shot being fired. A lone U.N. jeep escorted the presidential limousine as it moved slowly several miles ahead of the U.N. column.

The U.N. column camped for the night in Munkoma and planned to push on today to Sakania.

The British meanwhile pressed the Congo central government in Leopoldville to rescind its expulsion order against the British consul in Katanga.

The Leopoldville regime told both the British and Belgian consuls to get out of Elisabethville because of their "political" positions. It apparently referred to their efforts to mediate between Katanga and the U.N.

Even with this lengthy stalemate, Washington policy makers have said there still seems to be a glimmer of hope that an accord can be reached. The Soviets are still indicating interest in the subject.

It said one of the family members was wounded in the leg at the outbreak of the raid. One of his brothers was killed and another wounded when they came to his aid.

Disarmament has apparently been the major item which Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov has discussed during his current Washington visit.

"President Khrushchev and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev agreed during their Cuban crisis exchanges that negotiations looking toward an atomic test ban should be pursued," said the Washington Post said today.

The United States and the Soviet Union are privately exploring new approaches to a test ban agreement.

Barbecued Spareribs, Chinese Style

BY CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Once in a while a cook book author, knowledgeable about a foreign cuisine, takes endless pains to help Americans duplicate the delectable dishes of another land. Using her experience in teaching Chinese cuisine to New Yorkers, Grace Chu, author of the recently published "The Pleasures of Chinese Cooking" (Simon & Schuster) has done just that in her book.

As a pupil in one of Mrs. Chu's classes, I can testify to her talent for preparing and presenting Chinese dishes and her sympathetic attitude to cooks who are interested in learning new skills.

"The Pleasures of Chinese Cooking" has a delightful format and its contents are refreshingly arranged. There are recipes for dishes popular in Chinese-American restaurants, a group of recipes and recipes using ingredients from American markets and another group using those from Chinese food stores, and a section on Chinese hors d'oeuvre. Also given is a list of stores in some of our large cities from which Chinese foods may be bought (including those shops that mail-order).

Here, with the author's kind permission, is her delicious recipe for barbecued spareribs. Before Grace Chu had a gas range with a vertical broiler, she perfected an ingenious way of using an oven for this dish, and her directions are included with her recipe.

GRACE CHU'S BARBECUED SPARERIBS

- 1 pounds baby pork ribs
- 2 scallions cut in 2-inch pieces
- 2 cloves garlic, slightly crushed
- 1 tablespoon chili sauce
- 1 tablespoon tomato ketchup
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry
- 1 tablespoon corn syrup
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon honey

Preparation: Marinate the ribs in a flat pan with the remaining ingredients except the honey for about 2 hours. After an hour, baste and turn over. Brush the ribs on both sides with honey.

Cooking Procedure: Broil the ribs to the cross - bars of the shelves in your oven and roast for 30 minutes at 275 degrees, for another 30 minutes at 300 degrees and finally for 10 minutes at 400 degrees. Serve hot or cold and cut for appetizer or hors d'oeuvre.

Tips: Spareribs may be made the day before and heated before serving, unless they are to be served cold.

Make hooks from wire coat hangers by cutting wire into pieces 3 inches long and bending at both ends. Hook one end onto the crossbar and the other end onto the ribs. Each rack of ribs should have 2 hooks attached to the thick ends. Set a large pan with water in the oven to catch the drippings and also to give out moisture to keep the ribs from becoming too dry.

Quick brunch bread: make a one-egg cake and turn into pan; sprinkle with a little sugar mixed with cinnamon. Cut into squares or bars in pan, remove with spatula and serve hot.

Try Pompons For Party Decorations

Are you looking for a new decoration idea for your next big party? Here's one that will add color and warmth to your party room.

Make pompons of facial tissues in large, medium and small sizes. Pompons are easy to make. Here's how: take six tissues of the color you wish. Fold the tissues in half and fringe with scissors, making cuts one - fourth inch apart up to one inch from the top. Shake the fringe out and wrap around the end of a thin dowel stick. Fasten with heavy thread or fine wire, and you'll have a giant tissue pompon.

For a gay dance, use all white tissues to make pompons that look like snowballs. Or you might try a combination of pink, yellow and aqua tissues. Hang the pompons from the ceiling and tie in clusters for corner decorations. Besides decorating your room and being wonderful conversation - starters, they make ideal favors for each guest when the party's over.

$2964 is the kind of price most people associate with a smaller car. They seldom expect to find it on a full-size, precision-engineered Chrysler Newport 4-door sedan.

After all, look at all the value a Chrysler offers. Features like torsion-bar suspension; all-welded, one-piece body; carpeting; trip odometer; and the Newport engine that performs like a champ on regular gasoline.

Then, there's the way a Chrysler is put together. Quality all the way. So well made, in fact, that your Chrysler dealer provides you with America's longest and best new

Some Things May Be Changed And Still Remain The Same

BY INEZ ROBB

Until yesterday I felt that there was one segment of the national life that was immune to gracious living — one area of our lives that would forever resist glamorizing. But I reckoned without the all-pervading power of the interior decorator to gussy up even the most unlikely corner.

Only yesterday I was carried kicking and screaming to my dentist for a quarterly check up. The dentist is not a tranquil man to stand still for any of this twice-a-year nonsense while tartar accumulates and teeth decay.

As I sat in his waiting room, while the leg chairs shook, it was plain to this coward that the anteroom to the rack had been redecorated in recent weeks. The room did not aim to startle with its decor but rather to soothe, so that even the Picasso reproduction was of the blue period.

Definitely, no more waiting here, although my personal feeling is that a dental waiting room could best be decorated in the manner of Scarpio's reception or drawing room wherein Toots listens in anguish to the moans of her lover in the torture chamber next door.

So I was certainly not prepared for the grandeur that confronted me when I came my turn to occupy the faneum. Before my startled eyes there unfolded a veritable vision of baby-blue and pale-cream decor, more suitable to a nursery or an ice-cream parlor than a dental business precinct.

In place of the time-honored dental chair, that was a sort of elephant-hide gray, stood a resplendent piece of furniture, half chaise longue and half electric chair, in the most delicate shade of baby or Alice-blue. Up to that very moment I had always thought there must be a Federal law prohibiting the manufacture of dental chairs in any shade save elephant-hide gray.

"Beautiful, isn't it?" asked my dentist, and seeing me stricken silent, added, "kind of takes your breath away, doesn't it?"

"What hath God wrought?" murmured, as my eyes swept beyond the pale-blue French Provincial dental chair to the other equipment.

The working instrument to the left of the patient, which I had thought to be as timeless as the pyramids, had been streamlined. It still strongly resembled a gas-line pump, but with more oomph. And it, too, was a soft blue to match the dental chair. It also carried a faint hint of the popular French Provincial.

The walls of the room had been painted the same shade of blue and the dental assistant's smock, no longer surgical white, was the same cerulean tint. The rest of the equipment — desk, cabinet, waste receptacle and superonic, stereophonic drill — was pale cream.

"It's lovely," I said, wondering what a blue - and - cream decor might have done for the victims of the Inquisition. "Honestly, doctor, it's lovely. Whom did you call in— Dorothy Draper or Melanie Ka-hane?"

"You can get this equipment in other pastels," he said, lovingly stroking the superonic drill. "And it's been tested. Psychologically, women patients find pastel pink very soothing. But where the clientele or practice is heterosexual, or mixed, this shade of blue is more satisfactory. Men are more apt to associate pink with a boodler."

"A man would certainly have to

War Reporter Didn't Learn End Of Story

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the frustrations of war reporting is that often you never learn the end of a story—how things finally come out for individuals—poor

An incident I have in mind is the strange case of a soldier whose arm felt guilty.

It happened 20 years ago this month. I was quartered with several other correspondents—in these days we hitchhiked about the battlefront—in an abandoned French home in a small town in Tunisia in North Africa.

One morning I went to an American field hospital in the town. The sky was bright, the day was clear, and the war seemed far away. It did, that is, until I entered the hospital and saw the souvenirs war always leaves—men wearing white bandages stained red.

I talked to a doctor briefly about the wounded. He pointed to a bed in the corner and said, "He's our most interesting patient at the moment."

The bed held a thin young dark-eyed Jewish private. He had a sensitive face, and looked more like a student violinist than a soldier. He wore no bandage that I could see, but there was an air of immeasurable listlessness about him.

After a short chat, he began to tell me his story. As I recall it now, he had been on a patrol, and the patrol was surprised by Nazi troops.

The other members of the American patrol scattered or were killed in hand to hand combat.

Suddenly the young Jewish soldier found himself alone facing two of the enemy closing in on him fast. You hear a lot about bayonet fighting in war. Actually it is extremely rare. Probably less than one frontline soldier in a thousand ever employs a bayonet for its designed purpose.

This young soldier, who had never met an enemy before, had no time to aim and fire.

Instinctively, he lunged forward with his bayonet and killed one of the Nazis instantly.

He whirled. The second Nazi thrust the bayonet forward again with all his might. He felt it go to the hilt through soft flesh.

"I'll never forget his face," said the young American. "His gun dropped from his hand, and he looked surprised, as if he couldn't believe this had happened to him. When I pulled out the bayonet, he fell to the ground. And he lay there in the mud, crying in German for his mother, until he died."

The re-living of his ordeal had excited the young soldier. He lay back on his bed, exhausted.

"Were you wounded?" I asked. "No, I'm all right," he replied listlessly. "It's just my arm. My right arm. It won't work."

Puzzled, I went back to the doctor.

"The boy is suffering from hysterical paralysis," he explained. "He had a strong religious upbringing, and he's violated one of his own strictest injunctions—Thou shalt not kill."

Junior Editors Quiz on FISH

Q. What is the name of the fish that is a member of the horse family?

A. Seahorse. This is true in one way, but not in another. It's true that the seahorse carries the tiny sea horse eggs for ten days or so inside of a pouch and then ejects them, after which they are on their own never returning to the pouch again.

But the seahorse doesn't lay the eggs in the beginning. As with other forms of life, this is the job of the mother. So the answer to the question is "Yes—and again, no." Sea horses are remarkable in other ways beside breeding habits. Their appearance is so odd that it stirred the imagination of our artist, who insisted on drawing an imaginary King Neptune in a sea shell chariot, driving a team of sea horses over foaming waves. Sea horses are a kind of fish. What look like ears are actually delicate fins which vibrate rapidly when swimming. Sea horses swim upright and like to coil their flexible tails around seaweeds. In B. we contrast a sea horse with a real one. Little Hippocampus (the Latin name) is found throughout the warmer seas, many being caught off the Florida coast. They are mostly brown or grey, but may be orange, yellow, green, or bright scarlet.

Q. YOU TO DO: You can color this picture, making one sea horse orange and the other brilliant red. The sky behind can be turquoise blue with touches of green in the turning-over part of water. Neptune can be green and the shell pink. Leave the foam white.

(Joseph Polier of St. Catherine's, Ont., wins $10 for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, and you may win $10 or the weekly grand prize of a set of Scholastic Junior Encyclopedia.)

Salt Cathedral Is Used In Colombia

By JAMES DEWEY
 BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Thousands of Colombians attend Mass in one of the most unusual churches in the world — a cathedral built out of salt.
 The salt cathedral is located about 36 miles from Bogota at Zipaquirá. It measures about 13 times the length of a football field. Its arches soar 74 feet. It holds 8,000 persons and it takes a circle of 20 persons to encompass each of its six mammoth pillars.
 The area where the cathedral is located has the richest supply of ocean water, Marine fossils are found in the mine.
 Work on the cathedral was started in 1950 and was completed four years later.
 The mine has four levels. The cathedral was built on the second level. Builders had to blast out the two-story church.
 The cathedral consists of four naves. The principal one terminates at the high altar behind which there is a depiction of Calvary with an enormous 2-foot wood cross towering over the altar.
 Morning Prayer is the order of worship for the 10:30 a.m. service. Rev. Fletcher will be the reader of worship at 6 p.m. Alan Phillips and Pat Alexander will serve as acolytes, and James E. Green will serve as usher.

Library Ban Remains On 'Socializing'
 YORK, Pa. (AP) — Scholarly, gray-haired Katherine Shorey, bolstered by a vote of confidence from the York Library Board, remained firm today in her battle against teen-agers socializing at the town library.
 "The ban stays," Miss Shorey, the chief librarian said in an interview. She related to her edict placing library reading rooms off-limits to junior and senior high school students.
 Miss Shorey contends that the library had come to rival the corner drug store as an after-school hangout for teen-age romancing—much of it in the semi-dark basements, where old periodicals are kept.
 The board met Thursday and wound up expressing general support for Miss Shorey. Another decision is scheduled for next day with city and county school officials.
 George H. Whiteley Jr., the board chairman, said after the meeting that the board supported the librarian because she was in "a desperate situation."
 Though refusing to budge, Miss Shorey expressed confidence the dispute would be resolved by the teen-agers.
 The student problem is one of behavior, she said, which can best be solved by the students, both individually and through student organizations.
 "When these matters are taken care of, the problem will be solved," she said. "Until then the ban remains."
 The ban, in effect since Jan. 2, touched off a wave of controversy that included a flurry of student picketing and a threat by the state to cut off some $72,000 in state aid unless a solution is found.

Americanism

Liberty, as proclaimed by law and constitutions, can never have full meaning without the added ingredients of Fraternity and Brotherhood, without the spirit of friendliness and unselfishness... love for one's fellows. Those powerful qualifying attributes help spell out what Americanism is.

When one sees a family unit, parents and children, with Bibles in hand, attending church to worship as they please... then one is witnessing Liberty in its finest and most fullsome forms. For that, too, is American. Freedom of religious worship is equally important, along with economic freedom and freedom from oppression, in America. Then worship God as you please but be sure to worship... that is Americanism.

So They May See

Psalm 91

So They May Hear

HE THAT DWELLETH in the secret place, of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.

2. I will say of the Lord, He is my refuge and my fortress: my God; in him will I trust.

3. Surely he shall deliver thee from the snare of the fowler, and from the noisome pestilence.

4. He shall cover thee with his feathers, and under his wings shalt thou trust: his truth shall be thy shield and buckler.

5. Thou shalt not be afraid for the terror by night; nor for the arrow that flieth by day;

6. Nor for the pestilence that walketh in darkness; nor for the destruction that wasteth at noonday.

7. A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee.

8. Only with thine eyes shalt thou behold and see the reward of the wicked.

BECAUSE THOU hast made the Lord, which is my refuge, even the most High, thy habitation;

10. There shall no evil befall thee, neither shall any plague come nigh thy dwelling.

11. For he shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways.

12. They shall bear thee up in their hands, lest thou dash thy foot against a stone.

13. Thou shalt tread upon the lion and adder: the young lion and the dragon shalt thou trample under feet.

14. Because he hath set his love upon me, therefore will I deliver him: I will set him on high, because he hath known my name.

15. He shall call upon me, and I will answer him: I will be with him in trouble; I will deliver him, and honour him.

16. With long life will I satisfy him, and shew him my salvation.
