Greek Advance Cuts Farther Into Albania

Italy On Defense; Drive On Islands Said In Making

LONDON, Nov. 25 (AP) — The capture of 8,000 more Italian troops by the Greeks was announced in Athens today, according to a dispatch from the Greek capital to Exchange Telegraph (British news agency).

(By The Associated Press)

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 25. — Dispatches from the battlefront said today that Greek advance units had entered the outskirts of Argirocastro, main Italian military base in southern Albania, and that the city was expected to fall before evening.

Heavy fighting also was reported southwest of Argirocastro, where the Greeks were threatening to push to the Adriatic coast, isolating a large number of Italians.

Part Of Counter-Drive

These thrusts were part of a counter-drive against the thwarted Italian invasion which was described by military sources as a "full-fledged offensive" intended to wrest Albania from Italian control and possibly keyed to a plan for Greek-British seizure of Italy's strategic Dodecanese islands.

While the drive on Argirocastro continued, additional Greek columns to the east threatened Premeti.

In the central sector, the Italians were reported to have abandoned their fortified positions on Mount Ostrovitza. Another Italian retreat continued in the Pogradetz area, north of the surrendered city of Koritza, where even Greek cavalry was unable to engage the main body of the fleeing Italians.

Casualties Are Small

Greek sources said that casualties of both armies have been comparatively small and attributed this to alleged failure of the Italians to offer stubborn resistance to Greek attacks.

A neutral military source estimated that the Greeks have taken

Minor Thefts Are Reported

Two burglaries—nothing was taken in one and only $4 and a purse in the other—and several thefts were reported over the weekend by city police.

Bill Mabray, assistant chief of police, said Lloyd Burris had reported an abortive attempt to find anything in Blue Bonnet laundry, at 1212 Avenue E, after entry had been made through a side door.

Purse Is Missing

G. S. Allen of 2209 Sixteenth street said a purse containing keys, tickets to a lecture, and $4 in money had been taken in the other burglary.

Loss from parked automobiles was heavy, however. A $10 jacket taken from W. M. Gaston of 508 Avenue D; E. R. Hoover of 1902 Broadway said $27 in clothing had been removed from his car; a coat was taken from Frank Schnel's car when the Plainview man parked near Broadway and Avenue M.

Police fined a drunk $10 after a chase in an automobile, they reported.

Lubbock Man Held

A 31-year-old Lubbock man was held for the state highway patrol and transferred to county authorities for possible filing of charges.

Uncle Sam May Set New High In Christmas Spending For Presents Made In America

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 — Santa Claus, whose incredible job of spanning the nation in a night, will be completed a month from today, will stuff dad's sock to overflowing this Christmas—with the largest toy bill in years, probably the biggest in history.

A survey of the country's toy merchants disclosed today that the 1940 parental appropriation for childhood Yuletide joy was estimated at $330,000,000, which is approximately 10 per cent more than the nation's top bill last Christmas.

This Christmas will be the nearest to an "All-American" the nation ever has had, dealers reported, because of the war which has taken the Christmas spirit out of Europe and has shut off the flow of fancy toys and trinkets from old world artisans.

A survey of exhibitors at the merchandise mart, a focal point for retailers' purchasing the past few months in preparation for the holiday trade, indicated toy expenditures this year

New Route Sought By Braniff Line

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25— Braniff Airlines, Inc., one of four airline companies seeking to serve Texas cities, and other western areas, began presentation of its case today before a civil aeronautics board examiner.

Charles Beard, vice-president in charge of operations, testified that there was a sufficient amount of business and potential passenger and mail traffic to warrant establishment of air service between Denver, Colo., and Laredo, Tex., via Amarillo, Lubbock and San Antonio and from San Antonio to El Paso, routes sought by Braniff.

Other Routes Proposed

Continental airlines has filed application to fly from Pueblo, a point on its present route via Trinidad, Colo., to Amarillo, and from Hobbs, N. M., to San Antonio.

Transcontinental Western airlines proposes to fly from Amarillo to Houston via Austin and from Dallas to Abilene.

Essair, Inc., desires to start service from Houston to Garden City, Kas., via Austin with another route from Austin to Albuquerque.

Beard said his company proposed to fly from Denver to San Antonio, Houston and Laredo with one airplane without transfers to other planes.

Studies of existing transportation facilities showed that "such through service" would develop more business than a connecting service from one line to another, Beard said.

Wouldn't Split Traffic

He declared Denver, an important wholesale and retail center, was without adequate through service to important cities of Texas and that existing "circuitous" service was inconvenient because of necessary transfers.

Paralleling by Braniff of a Continental airlines route between Pueblo and Denver would not cause sufficient loss of traffic to Continental to offset public convenience that would result from a through route, Beard claimed. He said diversion of traffic from American airlines would be small.

Lubbock-Plainview Tickets On Market

Reserved seat tickets for the Lubbock High-Plainview High football game at Tech Stadium Thursday afternoon were placed on sale in the Hilton hotel lobby this morning.

The ducats, selling for 75 cents for reserved seats, $1 for boxes, are being handled by the high school athletic department.

More than 1,500 reserved seats and 750 student tickets have been sent to Plainview, where tentative plans are under way to run a special train. The game will be the last regularly scheduled grid game of the year for the city.

Pastor's Prophecy Fulfilled In Death

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 25 (AP) — Sixteen candles were lighted during memorial services in St. Peter's Lutheran church for 16 members of the congregation who died in the last year.

Another candle was left unlighted because, said the Rev. Carl F. Knoll, "we never know who will be next."

Dr. Knoll was next. He died today of a heart attack.

Death Claims Mrs. Michie

Mrs. J. N. Michie, 53, wife of the head professor of mathematics at Texas Technological college, died at 12:15 o'clock this morning in the residence at 2215 Sixteenth street.

Mrs. Michie had been in failing health about three years. Her death was attributed to high blood pressure and cerebral hemorrhage.

Came Here 15 Years Ago

She was born in Norfolk, Va. The family came to Lubbock 15 years ago from Austin. Professor Michie has been head of the mathematics department since Texas Tech opened in 1925.

Funeral services likely will be conducted Wednesday afternoon, but definite arrangements were pending information concerning time of arrival of a son and daughter. Services are to be held in the residence, with Rev. J. A. Winslow, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church, officiating. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery in Austin.

Survivors include one son, R. E. Lee Michie of Moffett Field, Calif.; two daughters, Mrs. Victor Harris of Chicago, the former Miss Sarah Michie, and Mrs. James B. Johnson of Pampa, the former Miss Sue Michie, and three brothers, Robert C. Jacob of Chicago, Judge Clyde Jacob of Norfolk, Va., and George R. Jacob of Talbotten, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are here.

First Day Is "Rip Snorter" For Texas National Guard

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Nov. 25. — Mother's little lamb and that tough boy from across the tracks shouldered arms today and took it on the chin.

Their first battle was with the weather. It snowed, sleeted, flooded and hailed.

Right off they found the life of a soldier is no bed of roses. Tents were chilly, mess was gritty, parade grounds boggy and the sergeants bawled orders until they were hoarse.

Medical officers thumped chests and stuck needles in raw recruits. Non-coms had a field day parading rookies and veterans.

The troopers took it and smiled. They had to or else.

The day was dark and stormy. Rivers and creeks were on rampages. Ice coated Panhandle equipment and quarters, roads were impassable in some sections.

Married men were lucky. They could go home tonight.

Bachelors slept in tents, barracks and bivouaced on the cold,

Lower Prices, Higher Farm Income Seen

Monopolistic Price Fixing Suspected; Charges Denied

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25. —The justice department made the nation's food supply a subject of investigation today, with the objective of establishing whether present prices were fair to both consumer and producer.

Evidence existed, the department said, that "the food industries function badly for both consumers and farmers." If such is proven to be the case, lower food costs to consumer and increased farmer income should result.

Welcome Investigation

The avowed purpose of the investigation, announced yesterday, was to eliminate any illegal monopolistic practices which might tend to control prices to consumers.

Paul S. Willis, president of the Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America, said at New York last night that he was confident that "monopolistic practices" would be found "non-existent among the representative members of our industry."

He asserted that "on behalf of the food manufacturing industry, we welcome an impartial investigation of the operations of our member manufacturers."

Profits Much Higher

The nationwide food inquiry, launched within a few months of the start of investigations of home-building costs, will concentrate attention on the prices of bread, milk, meat, fish, cheese, fruits and vegetables, both fresh and canned, the justice department said.

Food processors and distributors,

Group Starts Greek War Fund In City

Endeavoring to "do their bit" in the national movement for a Greek War fund in the United States, several Lubbock citizens met in the Tech cafe Sunday afternoon and started a local voluntary campaign for funds. A total of $188.50 was contributed in the brief meeting and additional donations will be accepted by a committee headed by George Zarafonetis, public relations manager, at the Hilton hotel.

No solicitations for funds will be made but all those wishing to contribute may contact Zarafonetis, James Dunias at Chili King cafe, Gust Kallas at the Tip Top cafe, John Zournas at the Tech cafe, or A. D. Pratas at the Chocolate shop. Headquarters of the Greek War fund will be at the Hilton. Those in charge requested that all checks to the fund be made out to the 'Greek War Fund.'

Contributors in Sunday's meeting were: John and George Zournas, $75; Gust Kallas, $50; James Dunias, $25; T. J. Vallas, $20; Bob Walker, $5; George Zarafonetis, $7.50; a friend, $5 and another friend $1.

16,000 MILES ON HORSEBACK —Gaucho Marcelino Soule, an eight-goal polo player from the Argentine, will probably want to stand up for a year after he gets off his mount, Argentina. On July 27, 1938 he started a 16,000-mile ride from his home to present his horse to the President in Washington. Now in Texas, where he's pictured above, he hopes to be in the capital by March, 1941.

Mahon Paying Visit To City

Congressman George Mahon, who has been unable to return to his district this fall because of the crisis which has kept Congress in session, arrived in Lubbock this morning.

He is "on call," prepared to return to Washington immediately should he be needed, but during the present inactivity in the House he hopes to see as many of his constituents as possible.

Representative Mahon will office in the federal building during his stay in Lubbock.

Permitted To Return

The House defeated the move to adjourn Congress last week, voting to remain in session because of the present foreign crisis. Measures of controversial nature will be carried forward to the new session opening in January, however, and at present the House is meeting and adjourning every three days.

"Members were privileged to go to their districts, subject to call by the Speaker of the House", said Mahon.

Foresees Dark Days

The representative said he was "pleased with the cooperation the people are giving in connection with national defense.

"My opinion," he said, "is that the people are united in a very remarkable way for national preparedness.

"I think we have a lot of dark

Fort Worth Baseball Club Ready To Fold

FORT WORTH, Nov. 25. (U.P.)—Business Manager Walter Morris of the Fort Worth Texas league baseball team resigned today and Stanley Thompson, club president, indicated that no team will be sponsored here next season unless some major league tie-up can be arranged.

Fort Worth finished last in the Texas league this season, but won the Shaughnessy play-off and Dixie series in 1939.

Morris' resignation was accepted by directors today. Thompson pointed out that the manager, who came from Shreveport a year ago, wished to accept an offer to become president of the East Texas league in view of the uncertain future of the Fort Worth team.

Old Man Winter Batters Wide Section Of State

(By The Associated Press)

New flood threats sent hundreds of South Texas families hurrying to safety today as rain glutted streams left their banks, while meager short wave radio messages from Amarillo reported that Panhandle city still held fast in a black sheath of ice.

Swollen by cloudbursts upstream, the Guadalupe river surged into low-lying residential sections at Victoria and Cuero. Many homes, mostly those of humble workingmen, were inundated and the Red Cross was feeding and housing the refugees.

No Reports Of Direct Loss Of Life

There were no reports of direct loss of life in the amazing storm which dumped as much as 16 inches of rain into many communities in a 48-hour period, and which coated three Panhandle cities, Amarillo, Borger and Pampa, in a brittle mantle of ice. Communication lines were shattered and highway traffic virtually was at a standstill.

The Amarillo Globe-News told the Associated Press by short wave radio that the chief danger in the Panhandle city was water shortage which would limit any supply for fire-fighting to 15 minutes. Partial power was expected to be restored later today, the short wave radio message said. Hospitals were without power, but there had been no serious injuries and there was "no trouble," the newspaper said.

No immediate relief from the ice was in sight. Rain began falling at Amarillo shortly before noon, the Southwestern Bell Telephone company learned by short wave radio, but the ice that coated wires, poles, trees and houses was not thawing.

George Becker, operator of amateur short wave station W5EVI at Dallas was informed by the operator of station W5ECL at Amarillo that there was no power and no water in the Panhandle city of more than 50,000 population at 11 a. m.

Only Hint Of Full Picture Is Given

Only a hint of the full picture at Amarillo trickled out by short wave reports. One call was for hundreds of pairs of overshoes and for kerosene lanterns. Amateur operators had great difficulty maintaining communication as signals faded. Braniff Airways wheeled a large air liner from one hangar at the Amarillo airport, and started its motors roaring to charge a weakening battery when radio signals to and from the company's Dallas station dimmed.

Southwestern Bell Telephone company concentrated repair crews from as far as 600 miles to begin untangling the twisted mass of poles and wire that cluttered the ice storm area. Wires became icicles three to five inches in diameter and poles collapsed under their weight.

At least five major Texas rivers were at flood stages. They were the Sabine, along the Texas-Louisiana line, the Brazos, the Trinity, the Colorado and the Guadalupe.

Are In No Danger

Principal residential areas in Cuero and Victoria, large towns on the lower Guadalupe, apparently were in no danger of inundation, but thousands of acres of rich farmlands were under water. The water was falling at Cuero, rising at Victoria after going to 28 and one-half feet, seven and one-half feet over flood stage.

Wharton, on the lower Colorado river, expected 38 feet of water by tomorrow, several feet over flood stage. Families were fleeing from lowlands in and near the town as the water crept up.

Meanwhile, torrential rains ranging up to 8 inches were reported from Southeast Texas coastal points, and water was running into store buildings in Galveston, where several feet of water stood on downtown streets.

There was no immediate serious flood threat to any large cities or towns along the middle course of the Sabine, Neches, Brazos and Colorado rivers, but thousands of acres of rich farm lands were inundated and there was heavy damage to highways, small bridges and lateral roads. No official estimate of this damage was available.

Weather observers feared the present heavy rains in South Texas might fill bayous and low spots along the rivers and possibly bring damaging floods when crests originating in East and Central Texas poured into flat coastal lands.

No temperature change was forecast for West Texas, the Dallas weather bureau announcing this indicated no immediate relaxation of the ice conditions in the Panhandle. Forecast for East Texas called for rain and cooler.

Heavy Snow Falls

Trinidad, Colo., measured 18 inches of snow after a 48-hour fall in southern Colorado, the heaviest November fall in eight years. Rock Springs, Wyo., reported temperature of 17 below zero this morning. It was at the center of a small cold area covering south-central Wyoming. Temperatures were below freezing throughout Colorado and Montana.

One of the worst November snowstorms ever to plague northeastern New Mexico isolated communities off main highways and disrupted communications. Wires and poles shattered under their icy burden, but utility and transportation companies reported some progress in untangling the snarls. The drizzle of rain and sleet ceased in that area, and temperatures were moderating.

Families in the Brazos river bottoms in Central Texas in vicinity of Hearne were moving out as flood

Lubbock Joins In Giving Aid To Amarillo

BY R. C. HANKINS
Journal Staff Writer

Lubbock armed itself with electric equipment and skilled electrical workmen Sunday and today sent all aid possible to a stricken Amarillo.

Tons of wire, poles for stringing the wire and other equipment had been sent by utilities companies and by merchants.

Radio Operators Busy

Lubbock amateur radio operators continued in the face of paralyzed communications at Amarillo to relay messages sent by emergency battery low-wave stations from the Panhandle city—messages that went all directions asking for help.

One crew of Texas-New Mexico Utilities Co. linemen went to Amarillo from Plainview Sunday, another from Lubbock this morning to help string wires, officials here said.

Crews from Western Union and Postal Telegraph also had been sent into the ice-shrouded section.

Officials of the two telegraph companies said communication over their wires was paralyzed over a 100-mile radius from Amarillo.

Wires Are Snapped

Railroads also could not contact Amarillo telegraphers—had not been able to do so since Sunday.

"As a matter of fact, wires were coated with ice four inches in diameter and snapped like banjo strings," said Bo Sexton of Lubbock's Western Union office. "Those that did not break sagged under such weight that they snapped poles like they were match stems."

The Santa Fe railroad office here said the last train that had run from Amarillo was No. 93, a regular passenger, at 5:47 o'clock Sunday afternoon—"and that was a shade late." It was due at 3:55 o'clock.

Freight Does Not Run

The 6 o'clock freight train, No. 943, did not run this morning from Amarillo. It was at Happy at 9:30 and was not expected in Lubbock before 5 or 6 o'clock this afternoon.

In the meantime, calls were heard in Lubbock about the need of drinking water in Amarillo, a report attributed to the regular broadcast station there saying surface water had been exhausted at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. A woman from Levelland telephoned Avalanche-Journal publications saying that the station was asking that "someone please help by shipping water in." She said the message said a bottling company in Amarillo had offered to turn over its last water to officials of a welfare organization "to be used strictly for the sick."

Buses Are Running

Bus lines were running without trouble, however, and there was mystery here as to how news could not be sent out of Amarillo to press services, despite crippled telegraph and telephone systems.

"It wasn't much trouble to keep on schedule," said an official of Union Bus terminal. "Sleet on the high-

"Everybody Shivers Up North But Those Red-Hot Sandies"

BY MARY MARGARET TUNNELL

Ice clipped the tops of power poles like giant snippers.

Wires and pole tops and trees blocked roads as though a tornado had passed the city.

Shrubs were splintered.

It looked in other places like axes had been wielded over the city.

There was no light—no power.

Telephone wires were tied into what looked like bow-knots.

That was Amarillo at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon when Betty Shryock, my roommate at Texas Technological college, and I reached there from Pampa en route to Lubbock.

They knew how to take it, though. Everywhere you were likely to hear someone saying:

"The only thing hot here is the Sandies!"

Wags and punsters were as thick as the debris on streets.

"Turn the Sandies loose and let them thaw out the old burg," you'd hear.

Cars trying to detour around blasted vegetation and broken

Amarillo Reporter Braves Icy Highways To Bring Out Story Of Marooned City's Plight

EDITOR'S NOTE: Bill Wilson, of the Amarillo Globe-News staff, telephoned the following first hand account of the Amarillo ice storm to the Associated Press from Plainview, after an 80-mile drive over icy highways from the Texas Panhandle city.

BY BILL WILSON
Written For The Associated Press

AMARILLO, Nov. 25 — (By Telephone From Plainview)—We are ice bound for at least 50 miles in all directions.

We have been without electricity since 10 o'clock Sunday morning. We slip and slide on ice-coated sidewalks and steps, but life goes on at an amazingly normal pace despite the peculiar weather quirk that has cloaked us in a frozen sheath.

Water Great Need

The city has been without water since 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon. There are 10,000,000 gallons of water in underground tanks, but this can not be pumped into the main because there is no electricity.

There is only water enough for 15 minutes in case of a normal fire. The fire department answered at least 20 minor fire calls Sunday. A new power line is being laid directly from the plant to the city's water plant.

Mayor Ross D. Rogers said everything else was being made secondary to getting the water started.

Delay Is Certain

"I don't see how we can get either water or electricity before late today," Mayor Rogers said. "It probably will be 24 hours, maybe two days, before full electrical service is restored. It may be several days before telephone communication is restored."

Hundreds of electric and telephone poles have been snapped by the ice coating. Miles and miles of wire are down. There was no school today and probably will not be any tomorrow.

Damage done will run into millions. Virtually all trees except small ones were shattered. The destruction staggers the imagination.

Relief Project Asked

City officials in cooperation with A. A. Meredith, regional director for the WPA, are filing request for a WPA diaster relief project, asking for 200 men and 50 trucks to clear the debris cluttering the streets of this city.

Line crews from scores of Texas cities, with Amarillo men, have battled the ice menace continuously

Women Like Cosmetics For Christmas Gifts, More Luxurious The Better

Makeup Kits Desirable

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer

The average woman on your Christmas shopping list, whether she is 9 or 90 or somewhere in between, wants generous quantities of things that men pretend to consider really too silly and, in general, just plain out-and-out luxuries.

In other words, she wants creams and lotions and perfume and makeup. Even though you think beauty items are silly and, too, too luxurious, give them to her anyway. That is, unless you'd rather please yourself than the recipient.

While you're about it, you might as well know that she prefers one fat lipstick in a beautiful case to a pint-sized kit containing tiny dabs of two or three preparations. (We'll come to kits later. There are kits and then again there are kits, you know).

She'd like a small flacon of exquisite perfume better than a huge jug of junk. Unless you know what her favorite cleansing and night creams are, better give her some wonderful bath oil or a couple of huge cakes of good bath soap or some sumptuous, foamy bath powder rather than creams you think she might like.

Gift Order Of Facials

However, if you do know what creams she uses, you can't go wrong on a large jar of each. In fact, you can't do better, except by playing Giant Santa and giving her a gift order for a course of facials at her favorite beauty salon.

Little girls will like the smart manicure kits in cases which can be used for handbags; soap in animal, vegetable and fruit shapes; imaginative dresser sets with the combs, brushes and mirrors scaled down in size to fit small, childish hands, and lightly scented bath powder, packed with soap suitable for a child's skin.

Their slightly older sisters want makeup kits of preparations designed especially for young skins; lightly scented cologne — particularly if the bottle is strapped to a whimsical, miniature horse with pink plumes in his bridle. They'd be intrigued by a "crate" of soap oranges; a key ring from which dangles a lip-stick wardrobe—three small lipsticks in different shades; a Santa Claus whose face and whiskers conceal a box of fine dusting powder.

Sure To Please

Brand new and sure to make the sophisticate happy are: a red and white striped candy stick which holds a box of dusting powder and a lipstick; a wheel of fortune, containing bath preparations and makeup (the top may be used as a roulette wheel); a gold compact with a show horse in enamel on the top; a glittering Christmas tree bauble which holds a flacon of perfume.

If you give a fitted weekend case, make sure that the preparations can be securely anchored to the case. Nothing is more demoralizing than to open a bag and find creams, lotions, bottles and toothpaste in a veritable knot with nightgowns, slippers and handkerchiefs.

Football-shaped bath soap, top, bowling pins and balls, also of soap, center, and soap dumbbells, bottom, are Christmas gifts that will please the men in the family, from father to little brother.

Anniversary Is Observed

In observation of their 20th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Farris entertained with a reception in their home, 1312 Eighth street, Sunday afternoon between 3 and 6 o'clock.

Their sons, Dewey and Paul, presided at the register.

Mrs. C. J. Farris and daughters, Edith and Ethylene, served coffee and cake to the following guests: Messrs. and Mesdames Arthur Patterson, C. J. Farris and daughters, R. G. O'Rear, James O'Rear, all of Lorenzo; W. C. Barnett, W. B. Sides, B. B. Rogers and daughter, Peggy Jane, F. P. Smith, Mrs. W. Thomas, Morris Scoggin, of Lubbock and J. D. Rankin of Levelland.

The house was decorated with autumn leaves and potted plants.

The couple was married in Abernathy Nov. 25, 1920 at the home of the bride with her father, Rev. J. M. Rankin, officiating. Miss Mary Rankin, a sister, was maid of honor and M. E. Hawes, later to become her brother-in-law, was best man.

Discussion Planned On Alaskan Highway

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (U.P.)—The joint Canadian-American Defense Board has been asked while it considers West Coast defense problems, to devote a major part of its time to discussion of the proposed Alaskan International highway.

Rep. Warren G. Magnuson, D., Wash., chairman of the Alaskan International Highway Commission, conferred recently with Mayor F. H. La Guardia of New York, member of the defense board. Magnuson advocates American aid to Canada in financing the almost 2,000 miles of the highway which would run through the Dominion.

Depends Upon U. S.

Canada, engaged in financing her war effort, is in no position to undertake the burden of construction, he said. Thus, completion of the project, a vital link in west coast defenses, hinges upon the aid the United States will give.

Blocking financial assistance to Canada is the Johnson Act, which prohibits extension of public or private loans to nations in default on their World War debts. Magnuson reportedly urged La Guardia to explore the possibilities of a deal of the "destroyers-for-bases" type which would allow this country to assist Canada.

Is Vital Link

The Alaska Highway is seen by officials interested in its development as a vital link in the defense of the North American West Coast since it would provide the only overland source of supplies for air bases at Anchorage and Fairbanks, Alaska.

These bases are now dependent upon sea-borne commerce. Experts point out that treacherous passages, fogs, rough weather and the necessity for constant protective air patrols in the event of war made the sea routes that link Alaska and the United States impractical as military supply lines.

Canadian Navy Minister Angus L. MacDonald has said that defense of the Canadian Pacific coast would be studied by the board during its west coast tour.

FOR "NEW ORDER"—In Paris today, women whose servants once did all the household buying now do their own marketing, carrying roomy market-bags—for there is no delivery service. Another example of chic born of practicality, this woman's bag matches lining of her Lanvin coat.

CHRISTMAS GREENS—FLOWERS

Santa Claus with a sleigh full of fresh flowers makes a gala centerpiece for a Christmas table. White carnations, yellow pompoms, red roses, snapdragons and African daisies are a festive choice; and a "roadway" of holly or fragrant evergreens down the center of the table will add to the Yuletide spirit. Even if you can't get home for the holiday at the last minute, you can wire the family's favorite flowers and plants so that they may enjoy them during the Christmas season. Silvered angels, streamlined reindeer, white holly leaves and brightly colored cones are just a few of the novelties designed to add a gay touch to Christmas centerpieces.

Spiced honey and apricot jam make a fine waffle topper. Mix equal portions of honey and jam and spice with cinnamon, clove and nutmeg—as much clove and nutmeg together as cinnamon.

Wednesday Needle Club To Meet This Week

Mesdames Jack M. Lewis and J. B. Maxey will entertain for the Wednesday Needle club at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the home of the former, 1310 Avenue N.

CLUB MEETING

Busy Bee club members were the guests of Mrs. Carl Wheeler Friday afternoon. Gifts were exchanged, sewing was enjoyed and a Christmas party was planned. The club will meet Dec. 6 at the home of Mrs. Victor Billington on the Tahoka highway.

Refreshments were served to eight members and two guests.

CLASS TO MEET

Alathean class of the First Baptist church will attend a business session Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Sue Jenness, 908 Avenue M.

QUILTED ENSEMBLE

The newest recipe for boudoir glamour is to have your housecoat and dressing table skirt made of the same luxuriously quilted material. And you can have it quite inexpensively, too. Cotton-backed satin is a good choice for this purpose. Underneath each piece of cotton satin, or whatever material you select, place a piece of thin cotton padding cut in the same size. Then use the quilter attachment on your sewing machine to stitch through both thicknesses. Use a simple diamond-shaped motif or, if you like, a more elaborate scroll design. You will be delighted at the quickness and ease of achieving this flattering touch and if you want to carry the idea still further, bedspread and draperies could be treated in the same way.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels with herb laxative, combined with syrup pepsin to make it agreeable and easy to take
When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste and bad breath, your stomach is probably "crying the blues" because your bowels don't move. It calls for Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels, combined with good old Syrup Pepsin to make your laxative more agreeable and easier to take. For years many Doctors have used pepsin compounds, as agreeable carriers to make other medicines more palatable when your "taster" feels easily upset. So be sure your laxative contains Syrup Pepsin. Insist on Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna, combined with Syrup Pepsin. See how wonderfully its herb Laxative Senna wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your intestines, to bring welcome relief from constipation. And see how its Syrup Pepsin makes Dr. Caldwell's medicine so smooth and agreeable to a touchy gullet. Even finicky children love the taste of this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Senna at your druggist's today. Try one laxative that won't bring on violent distaste, even when you take it after a full meal.

Reich Offsets Lack Of Labor With Machines, Longer Work Hours

Women Take Over Duties

(By The United Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 — With from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 fewer workers Germany has maintained peace-time industrial production since outbreak of the war by lengthening hours and mechanizing production methods, reports to official government agencies reveal.

Full statistics are not available but the reports said that an improvement in monthly production was expected, since a large number of war prisoners and civilian laborers, now engaged in harvesting agricultural crops, soon will be available for industrial pursuits.

Approximately 1,000,000 industrial workers were drawn from the oldest and youngest age groups, and several hundred thousand war prisoners were used in agriculture. Despite this there were between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 fewer industrial workers than the peace time total. The latest peace time figure was 21,840,000 workers and wage earners on June 30, 1939.

Working Hours Longer

This, reports showed, was offset by longer hours and rationalization which included particularly mechanization of many production processes, permitting use of unskilled labor and releasing skilled labor for other purposes.

Production programs have been shifted to harmonize with the present phase of the war, with military operations in the air and on the sea succeeding land operations. The change in the type of warfare enabled dismissal of some but not very large categories of soldiers.

Of greater importance was the dismissal of an unknown number of building workers formerly constructing land fortifications. This permitted resumption on a moderate scale of private construction, particularly of residence, and work was resumed on some buildings in Berlin and other large cities.

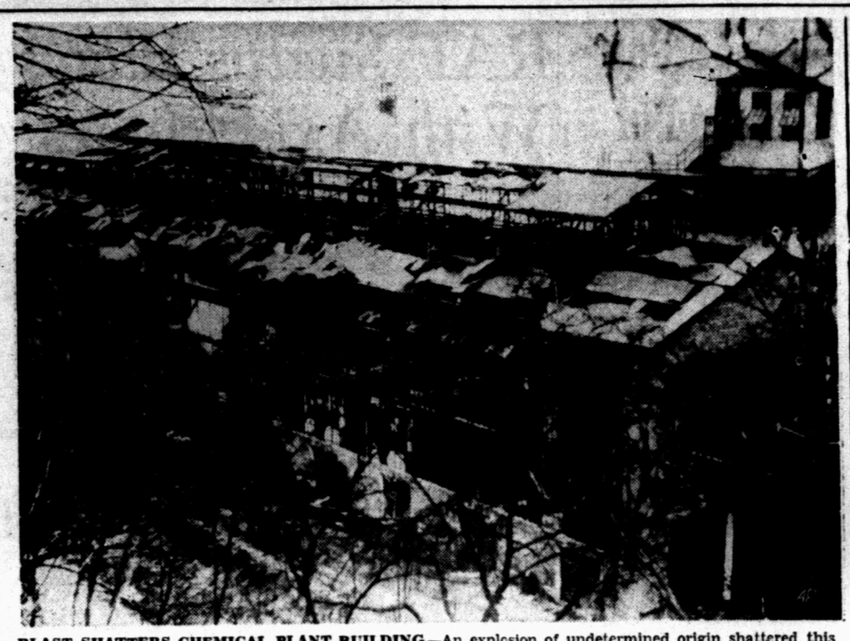

Women Put To Work

Conscription of a small number of women workers continued during the summer, these recruits being used mostly in aviation industries.

Building trades were expected to receive the labor of 175,000 war prisoners in the fall to augment the 1,000,000 employed during the summer. This figure was believed to be the maximum the trade could obtain, even with conscription.

French and other prisoners of war were put to work during September on Germany's super-automobile highway construction, and observers reported that in general war prisoners, and workers from occupied territory are a most important factor in war economy.

On June 30, 1939, there were 21,840,000 workers and wage earners in the Reich.

Five Ways For Newlyweds To Keep Secret Their Secret Told In Four-Year Study

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 25 (U.P.)—Miss Daisy M. Thompson, who works at the Francis Marion hotel, has some advice for honeymooning couples, especially men who make a vain effort to disguise the newness of their status.

After a four-year study of the public behavior of honeymooners, she is convinced all the newlyweds attempt to pass as veteran married people.

Without exception, they fail in that attempt, she says, and offers the following advice to them (or rather to the men), if they want to avoid the notice usually given the newlyweds.

1. Put on some old clothes so you'll look as though neither you nor your wife care how you look.

2. Plaster your new baggage with old college stickers, or tell the bellman to take the luggage through the basement entrance.

3. When you go to the hotel desk to register, either take her with you or gently push her down in a chair in the lobby. But if you take her to the desk, contradict everything she says.

4. Don't be polite to her when you reach the elevator. Just put your hand in the small of her back and sort of shove her in.

5. Adopt an expression depicting that the whole thing is just another pain in the neck to you.

Scars Of Civil War Healed By Welcome

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 25 (U.P.)—The state of Alabama has extended an official welcome to a Northern regiment with which it once engaged in bitter conflict.

Gov. Frank M. Dixon wired Alabama's "warmest welcome" to New York's 27th National Guard division, which is training at Ft. McClellan, Ala. A unit of the 27th is the 165th Infantry, which fought Alabama's Old 4th in the Civil war.

Beacon Stops Frost Damage Is Belief

DAYTON, O., Nov. 25 (U.P.)—A rotating beacon light has changed the climate of the surrounding countryside, according to farmers living near the city of Dayton. They said there has not been an early frost since a rotating airplane beacon was installed several years ago.

Harley Pack, dahlia grower and formerly a duPont chemist, is inclined to believe the absence of early frosts is "just another of those weather freaks."

"But if frosts continue to stay away, say for 10 or 15 years longer, I shall perhaps be willing to give the light beams credit for changing the weather for this neighborhood," he added.

"Before the beacon was installed, the frosts were earlier and had more killing power than they do now, and one can observe that although killing frosts have occurred in most sections, my dahlias are in bloom as if it were mid-season."

Cat Mascots "Fall" For Those Pigeons

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 25 (U.P.)—History repeated itself when the cat mascot of the San Francisco Commercial club, sunning itself on a window ledge, jumped at a pigeon and fell to a glass rotunda 14 stories below.

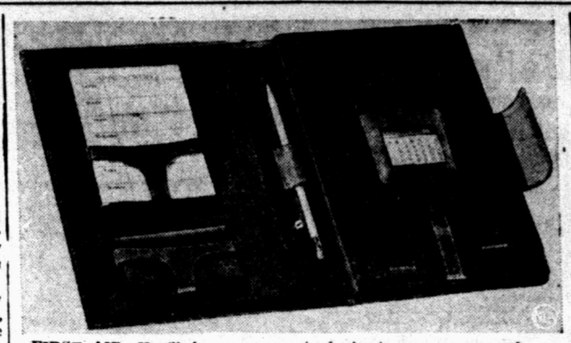

A year ago, the immediate predecessor of the present mascot did the same stunt. Neither cat appeared injured after the fall.

Court Ruling Given On "Vicious Dog"

LANSING, Mich., Nov. 25 (U.P.)—The Michigan Supreme Court has overruled a previous decision of long standing that a dog may not be considered vicious unless it has bitten a person.

In a four to three decision, the court reversed the Wayne county circuit court and declared a jury was correct in awarding Mattie Massengile, Detroit laundress, damages for injuries suffered when she was bitten by a dog owned by her employers.

Judge Lewis C. Crampton, sitting in the Wayne circuit court, had over-ruled the verdict on the ground that the dog could not have been considered vicious before biting the laundress, because it had never bitten anyone before.

Investigation Of Bomb Threat At Boston Navy Yard Under Way

Police Search All Employes

(By The United Press)

BOSTON, Nov. 25—A man whose name was withheld told Boston navy yard authorities that a ship at the yard would be blown up by a time bomb at 1:30 p. m. (CST) today.

A navy yard spokesman disclosed this information after 4,800 workmen reporting for the day shift had been searched at the entrance gates in a futile effort to intercept "a time bomb or dynamite" which reportedly was to have been smuggled into the yard.

Police Surround Yard

The spokesman said naval officials were inclined to "make light" of the tip that some vessel was to be blown up but added that "all necessary precautions have been and are being taken as a matter of routine."

Two hundreds marines under naval supervision searched the workmen's clothing, lunchboxes and automobiles while a special detail of 100 Boston policemen virtually cordoned the yard.

Informant Is Held

The spokesman described the tipster as a trusted employe of the yard. The informant was seized in a store early today as he completed a telephone call during which he gave the tip to navy yard officials.

The informant said he had learned of the purported scheme while drinking with a fellow workman in a cafe. He said he had left his companion as soon as possible and hurried to the store to make the call.

Captain Bernard Graham, night police superintendent of Boston, quoting a navy yard official, said:

"Information has been received from a most authoritative source that an attempt at 7 a. m. would be made by a navy yard workman to bring in a time bomb or a quantity of dynamite when he went to work."

Military police, wearing big pistols, kept them in line.

Mobilization day—the day 12,400 Texas National guardsmen of the 36th division stepped out of civilian life into the ever busy life of a regular army soldier—was a ripsnorter.

Rookies—and there were many to replace resigned troopers—pulled all the boners a rookie is supposed to pull. They halted when they should have marched, marched when they should have halted, turned wrong, slapped veterans with gun barrels and generally made life miserable for the oldtimers.

Even tough sergeants suppressed smiles at the antics of the newcomers.

For the next few days the boys will hang around their home towns. They will line up and parade, sit down and rest, eat three squares a day, bathe regularly and do just as the sergeant says—for after all he's the fellow to humor.

Then they'll head for Camp Bowie at Brownwood on December 4 if the roads are passable and the trains are still running.

Otherwise they may walk.

Sunny Texas' boys are in the army now.

Kerosene lamps were being used in hospitals. All available lamps and candles have been sopped up by light-hungry Amarillo residents. The gas was still on and the pressure was high this morning.

Another grave danger is that of loose power lines. Parents have been urged to keep their children inside.

SLIGHT RALLY SEEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—Efforts to instill a little rallying rim in today's stock market were partially successful.

Dealings reverted to sluggishness after a fair amount of opening activity and transfers were around 500,000 shares, smallest turnover for a full session in about a month.

The ability of steel production to hold at a record rate was one of the encouraging influences. Mill operations this week were estimated unchanged at 94 6 per cent of capacity following eight consecutive weekly upturns.

Stocks well in front the greater portion of the day—some eventually gave ground—included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Great Northern, Goodyear Montgomery Ward, United Aircraft, Texas Corp., International Paper preferred Savage Arms, American Can, Eastman Kodak and Kennecott.

Backward were Dow Chemical, J. I. Case, American Telephone, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, Western Union, Consolidated Edison and North American.

A tinge of pessimism was seen in the announcement of a stock exchange membership sale for $34,000, off $6,000 at a new low since 1914 when the price was duplicated.

Bonds were narrow and commodities

Axis Abruptly Halts Lineup

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, Nov. 25 — Informed sources made the surprising assertion today that the Hungarian, Rumanian and Slovak signatures to the three-power pact ended the present series of acquisitions to the Axis.

They said nothing was known as yet about Bulgarian leaders coming to Berlin. Bulgaria previously had been viewed as most likely to become the seventh member of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance.

Warning Is Sounded

This development came a short time after Germany sounded her first warning to Greece since the Italian invasion in a statement in the semi-official Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, calling Greek Premier General John Metaxas "a tool of the British policy of spreading war."

This statement, the nearest yet to any German suggestion that Greece is fighting not only against Italy but against German interests in the Balkans, followed by only a few hours yesterday the signing of tiny Slovakia as the sixth member of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance.

No Turkish Developments

Authorized sources in Berlin said the fact Bulgaria was not expected to affiliate with the Axis at the present time had nothing to do with developments in Turkey.

They said the second round of signatures had been completed, the first having been the original three-power pact and the second the adherence of three additional nations. These sources asserted that all reports of an early Bulgarian state visit had been of foreign, not German origin.

days ahead of us, but it is my hope and belief that the United States should stay out of the European war."

Congress has been in session all or part of each month, with one exception, since January, 1939. The exception was December of last year.

To Attend Ceremony

Should Mahon remain here until opening of the new session, his wife and daughter will join him before Christmas. The daughter is in school at present. George Witten, secretary, also is to come here later.

Mahon will speak at a ceremony in observance of laying of the cornerstone of Littlefield postoffice Dec. 5, if he has not been called to return to Washington before that time.

Congressman Speaks To Lubbock Jaycees

Citing huge appropriations for national defense and declaring that "I wouldn't have voted for them if I didn't think it was the thing to do and I hadn't thought the people wanted them," Congressman George Mahon told members of the Lubbock Junior Chamber of Commerce in their luncheon today noon at the Hilton hotel that the defense program was "going to entail a tremendous sacrifice on the part of the American People."

"There's a lot of glamour about national defense," Mahon said, "but the task of paying the bill won't be a glamorous one . . . From the time of George Washington up until the time Woodrow Wilson was running for the presidency, the total cost of government in the United States was about $24,000,000,000 . . . and that's just a little more than we appropriated for national defense in the present session of Congress.

Almost Inconceivable

"The program is a big one, an almost inconceivable one . . . But it must be paid for, we hope, not in the blood of American citizens but by their sweat . . . We're going to have a chance to earn the liberty that has been handed down to us.

"When we complete this program we're going to have a real two-ocean navy—and none too soon at that," he declared . . . "The Panama canal is the keystone of our defense and certainly we must have a strong navy to protect that . . .

Wants To Keep Out

"I think we ought to stay out of the European war—in a real military sense, of course," Mahon declared and was applauded by the Jaycees as he made this remark . . . "Of course if it becomes necessary to fight, we'll fight, but let us hope that by a real program of preparedness that we may better serve the world by preserving our democracy."

Mahon made his remarks in an informal manner and was speaking in regards to defense appropriations as a member of the appropriations committee and the war department sub-committee. He returned to Lubbock today from Washington where he has been in almost continuous service for 23 months. Mahon was introduced by George Reinhardt, program chairman.

In a directors' meeting at the close of the luncheon, the Jaycees voted to underwrite a special train to Albuquerque Friday for the Texas Tech-New Mexico grid game there Saturday.

The "special" will be a combination club and baggage car, dining car and two special cars attached to the regular Santa Fe train leaving here Friday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock and will arrive in Albuquerque at 9:30 o'clock Friday night. Return trip will be made with the special train sponsored by the college leaving Albuquerque at 1 a. m. Sunday.

Round trip fare is $7.35. Reservations for the train must be made by Wednesday afternoon at 6 o'clock.

Reservations may be made through Bob Walker at the Hilton hotel or Ralph Trolinger at the Santa Fe offices. Other members of the arrangements committee are: Hugh Dunlap, Joe H. Bryant, Bruce Collier, George Dale and Porter Parris.

News Briefs

Legion To Meet — Semi-monthly meeting of Allen Bros. post of the American Legion will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the home, 910 Texas avenue, according to J. Louis Murfee, post commander.

Pair Married—J. T. Inmon, justice of peace, married T. O. Lesly and Miss Vernetta Comer, both of Lubbock, Saturday night at his residence, he said today.

Back From Holidays—Mrs. Dane Shearer, deputy sheriff, was back at her desk this morning after Thanksgiving holidays spent with friends in Fort Worth. It rained incessantly since Thursday afternoon, she said—from Fort Worth almost to Lubbock. Her son Bill accompanied her.

Still Critical—An attending physician described condition of Mrs. Bradford Knapp of 2508 Twentieth street as still critical, although slightly improved, early this afternoon at West Texas hospital. Mrs. Knapp, suffering a heart ailment, has been in grave condition several days.

Transfers Funds — The county commissioners' court approved transfer of $3,000 from the general fund to the City-County Welfare association, to be used along with $1,500 from the city, at a session today in the courthouse, said Judge J. J. Dillard, who presided. The court also approved several bills. Present were P. B. Penney, Ben Mansker, T. L. Holt and V. J. Farris, besides Judge Dillard. The commissioners went into session again this afternoon.

Strickland Injured — Friends of Norris C. Strickland of 2124 Sixteenth street were informed this morning he was satisfactory in condition in Hendrick Memorial hospital in Abilene. Strickland was injured Saturday when his car hit a soft shoulder at side of the highway 10 miles east of Abilene and overturned. Strickland, representative of an athletic supply company, was returning from Fort Worth, where he attended the Texas State Teachers association convention.

Condition Satisfactory — Morrison Hynd, 23, of Seminole, Okla., whose left leg was amputated following explosion of a gas meter last Wednesday, was satisfactory in condition, a physician at Lubbock sanitarium said this morning. Hynd was working in the compressor station a mile west of Tahoka when the explosion occurred. He suffered compound fracture of the right leg.

Returns From Funeral — Mrs. Jo Berndt has returned from Caldwell, where she attended the funeral of her husband, Edward Berndt, who died Wednesday in a Lubbock hospital. Burial Friday in Caldwell Masonic cemetery followed a military service.

Several Highways In State Impassable

AUSTIN, Nov. 25 (U.P.)—The state highway department today announced that routes into both Houston and Cuero are now available through the reopening of U. S. highway 290 at Hempstead and the opening of U. S. highway 87 south of Cuero to light traffic.

State highway 29 was out of service at Hochetm because of high water stage on the Guadalupe river.

Other roads out of use included: U. S. 59 north of Houston and south of Livingston; U. S. 90 between Waelder and Flatonia (San Antonio-Houston road); state highway 36 between Bellville and Sealy; state highway seven between Tenaha and Logansport; state highway 6 north of Hempstead; state 7 northeast of Center; state 21 east and west of Nacogdoches; state 63 south of Zavalla; state 71 between La Grange and Columbus; state 87 south of Shelby; state 95 south of Temple on Little River and south of Taylor on Brushy creek; state 110 between Tyler and Troup; state 147 south of San Augustine, and state 159 at Bellville.

Most of the trouble was due to flooding creeks, the department said.

Haynes, Daughter Said Recovering

S. B. Haynes, Lubbock architect, and his daughter, Betty May, 13, are making progress toward recovery from injuries received in an automobile accident at Woodville Thursday in which Mrs. Haynes was killed.

This was the report brought this morning from Woodville by W. T. Strange, jr., who is associated with Haynes in an architectural firm here.

Haynes' right leg was broken and it probably will be three months before he can return to work, Strange said.

The daughter's most serious injury was a fractured nose. Both probably will remain in Woodville until Haynes' condition will permit his return to Lubbock, Strange said.

Lectureship Under Way In Hale Center

HALE CENTER, Nov. 25 (Special)—Ministers of Churches of Christ all over the Texas Panhandle and parts of New Mexico have parts on a four-day lectureship service which begins here Monday night. Lectures by the ministers will be heard in the morning, afternoon and night Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. A. M. Lemmons is the host pastor. He estimated more than 100 visitors from out of town would attend the program.

Wide Section Is Ice-Bound

ways melted beneath traffic."

Persons who traveled by automobile from Amarillo were quoted as saying trees were broken down, telephone and power poles lay around blocking streets and that, in general, there was much confusion over the city.

Poles Are Breaking

Sexton, late this morning, said latest reports to his office indicated communications had been paralyzed since Sunday noon; that the wires were still coated with ice from Canyon to Amarillo; that poles continued to break under the tugging of cold-taut wires, but that from Lubbock to Plainview communication was satisfactory.

The Santa Fe reported this afternoon that communication had been restored with Clovis, N. M., today. Railroad lines there had been out part of Sunday and Sunday night.

Rains Over Plains

Rains over the week-end on the South Plains, ranging from one and a quarter to as much as two and a half inches, will insure subsoil moisture to last through March and April, it was indicated this morning by Don L. Jones, superintendent of the state experiment sub-station here, in reporting rainfall at the station was 1.25 inches.

Sub-soil moisture for the area, he said, had become almost exhausted as a result of drouth conditions that had prevailed since August. Moisture percentage was "very small," he added.

Wires Are Down

Telegraph wires were down between Lubbock and Amarillo and it was impossible to get reports on conditions north of Plainview. Telegraph companies and railroads had wire troubles Sunday.

Sunday's maximum and minimum temperature was 36 degrees. Minimum this morning was 34 degrees.

November rainfall so far was 2.4 inches, according to the experiment station; normal for November is .82 of an inch.

Up to Nov. 1 the 1940 annual rainfall was approximately six inches below normal, according to Jones.

Moisture received so far, he explained, should penetrate from 15 to 24 inches. While the top soil will become dry between now and March, unless additional moisture is received, the sub-soil moisture will be sufficient to carry through until that time.

Practically all of the 1,100,000 acres alloted for wheat in the Lubbock area by the Agricultural Adjustment administration had been planted before the middle of the month, much of it "dry planted," county farm agents indicated. Showers early in November, widely scattered, were sufficient to start germination. The heavier rainfall will bring it up, start growth and furnish moisture for root growth.

Good Falls Reported

Fort Worth and Denver City dispatchers reported good rains between Childress and Lubbock. Petersburg reporting two and a half inches and Plainview as much. No report had come from northwest of Plainview. Quitaque reported two inches and Silverton an inch and a half. The Childress operator was quoted as saying it had rained four successive days and nights. No wires were open north of Childress, it was reported.

The Santa Fe said wires were open north of Plainview to Tulia and that a freight train, due in Lubbock at 6 o'clock this morning, was reported leaving Happy at 9 o'clock.

Report Is Given

John Shewmake, local manager of the Texas-New Mexico Utilities Co., said this afternoon the load dispatcher at Tuco power station had been in no direct communication with Amarillo or with any point north of Happy and Muleshoe, but had the following report:

Lines were down around Canyon, Hereford, Happy, Friona, Dimmitt and other places, but the extent was not known, since there had been no communication with ground crews at work.

One crew between Happy and Canyon had been working since Sunday morning and still was on the job. Another was working between Canyon and Hereford. A third crew was held in Lubbock until this morning, to insure keeping this section free of trouble, then sent to work between Hereford and Olton.

Ice Is Forming

Ice was forming early this afternoon three inches in diameter on lines south of Amarillo, he said.

A Santa Fe railroad conductor was quoted as saying 1,200 telephone-telegraph poles were down between Amarillo and Lubbock.

All rural telephone and telegraph lines were down in the Amarillo section, it was reported.

The railroad had no wires from Parwell, Texas, to Amarillo, but this afternoon Lubbock was getting through to Clovis, by way of Farwell.

Shewmake said at 2 o'clock this afternoon a call had been received from A. R. Watson of Plainview, president of his company, asking that all 22,000-volt insulators, cross arms and other equipment be rushed to Lubbock crews at Canyon and Hereford.

It was reported here that the president of the Southwestern Associated Telephone company had to drive 150 miles north of Amarillo to report damage to his company's lines and other equipment in the immediate Amarillo section.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harding were delayed in Raton, N. M., Sunday night, when returning from a visit with Harding's sister in Pueblo, Colo., because of condition of roads. Harding is an instructor in economics and business administration and Mrs. Harding is secretary to the dean of men at Texas Technological college.

RAF Swaps Blows With Axis Planes

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Nov. 25—British bombers capped a weekend of smashing blows at the Axis by raiding Hamburg last night while the Germans were concentrating a 100-plane attack on a town in western England, official reports said today.

The RAF carried its offensive anew to the German port, biggest in Europe, by dumping bombs on its water front and vast oil refineries, the air ministry announced. Other British raiders were said to have splashed bombs along the Nazi-held French coast, including the Boulogne area, which was blasted for more than an hour.

Another "Coventry" Raid

The attack on the town in western England was said to have been carried out by German bombers coming virtually in continuous relays. A home for the aged, two churches, two theaters and several shops were among the buildings reported hit.

(The German high command declared hundreds of its planes subjected Bristol, major British west coast port, to another "Coventry" raid last night. Hundreds of thousands of pounds of explosives and fire-bombs were said to have started 45 major fires there.)

British guns along the English channel burst into action at 9 a. m., firing at targets across the channel along the German-held French coast.

A bright sun shone and visibility extended between three and four miles. The sea was smooth under a southwesterly wind.

London had one of its quietest week ends since the air siege began but a communique today said one section in the west of England was attacked heavily with damage to buildings and some residents killed and injured, from dusk to midnight last night.

Many Cities Attacked

British fliers who carried the air war into Germany and Italy Saturday night and Sunday morning brought back accounts of flaming destruction at Berlin, Essen, Leipzig and Duisberg-Ruhrort in Germany, at Boulogne, Brest and Lorient in France, and at Turin, where the Italian royal arsenal and the big Fiat works were reported attacked.

The air ministry said it had no statement to make on reports from Vichy that British planes bombed Marseille Saturday night, killing four women and wounding five other persons.

Ice Locks Amarillo As Floods Swirl Over South Texas Areas

water crept up on their homes.

W. M. Baxter, jr., manager of the midwest area of the Red Cross at St. Louis, announced a corps of five trained disaster workers left St. Louis for the Texas flood area.

A Dallas mail order house received a rush order for hundreds of pairs of overshoes and for kerosene lanterns from Amarillo. The order was received by short wave radio, relayed by way of a Abilene station. This report said there had been no moderation of the ice conditions.

Southeast and South Central Texas appeared to be in the path of floods, the extent of which could not yet be estimated since damage thus far has been confined to farmlands.

Livestock Is Moved

Planters in the lower Little river bottoms in Bell and Milam counties waited for the flooded Little river to reach its crest after moving all cattle and other livestock to high ground. The Leon river near Temple had dropped two feet since daylight. The Little river at the town of Little River dropped six inches from last night's high, but the picture downstream, below the point of confluence of the Brazos and the Little river was not clear since the amount of water coming from the north and east was not fully known.

Thousands of dollars worth of corn and other feeds was swept away and some unpicked cotton was lost. Cowboys took to motor boats to rescue stranded cattle.

Hearne, on the Brazos, reported a total of nine inches of rain since Sunday morning. Highways 69 and 36 were closed to Cameron, but all other roads were open.

Major Highways Open

Corsicana reported all major highways in that area open. The five-day total of rain there was 8.24, still showering and overcast. Creeks were falling, however. There was little interruption of highway traffic in that area, but the rain continued and more was predicted.

Water crept over the floors of some stores in Galveston, where the 24-hour total ending at 6:30 a. m. was 8.75 inches at the city weather bureau office and 10.28 at the airport. Hundreds of automobiles were stalled and bus service was limited.

At Liberty, the Trinity rose 17.3 feet, within .2 of a foot of flood stage, with upstream crests yet to come. There was no immediate danger to the town however.

Heavy Loss Reported

There was heavy loss of livestock at Carthage and southward along the Sabine. Highway travel north and south was stopped, but eastward it was open. Highway Engineer Walter Otrolani there said he expected an all-time high water mark was expected for the Sabine in this county when the crest is reached.

An appeal for small boats was sent out to the highway patrol in an effort to remove farmers from the Brazos bottoms between Brookshire and Sealy.

A number of negroes was marooned in trees near Chapel Hill as the Brazos water rose, Capt. Glen Rose of the highway patrol said at Austin. He said efforts were being made to remove them by boats.

Highway 36 was blocked between Wallis and Sealy; the dams on two lakes in Montgomery county broke, sending flood waters over highway 75 between Houston and Conroe; highway 59 was blocked between Cleveland and Livingstone; the Old Spanish Trail was under water between Eagle Lake and Columbus.

River Out Of Banks

The San Jacinto river was out of its banks at Conroe. Three men marooned there last night waded to safety. One of them, 70 years old, was carried to safety by a friend across a 200-foot wide stream, four feet deep in spots.

A new flood threat developed at Victoria on the Guadalupe, but apparently the principal part of the town, built on high ground, was in no danger.

The Guadalupe, fed by heavy rains at Victoria and upstream, rose to 28 and one-half feet, seven and one-half above flood stage, and continued to climb. Hundreds of families were being evacuated from low lying sections along the river banks. Most were from homes of working men. The river was falling slowly at Cuero, upstream from Victoria. Rainfall there Sunday was 6.71 inches, and the precipitation continued.

More than 200 families were temporarily evacuated from their homes in Cuero and they were being cared for by local Red Cross units. All highways into Cuero were open, but rail service was cut with three washouts reported on the Southern Pacific.

At Nacogdoches, in East Texas where the first heavy precipitation in the unprecedented storm was reported Saturday, the rainfall finally stopped at noon after 50 hours. The total was 14 inches. The Angelina river was on a rampage, pouring its waters into the already-swollen Neches. Many small communities were comparatively cut off by swollen creeks.

Lufkin's weekend rainfall total was 16 inches, greatest in 10 years. Highway and rail and bus traffic was snarled in that area.

Snow Covers New Mexico

(By The United Press)

EL PASO, Nov. 25 — Eastern New Mexico dug out of its first heavy snow of the season, brought by storms from the Rockies, but additional falls were forecast today by the U. S. weather bureau.

Highway and air traffic was tied up, while railroad dispatchers reported that trains were creeping through the area at a snail's pace. North of Clovis, N. M., communications were reported virtually disrupted.

Snow Plow Used

The Southern Pacific dispatcher in El Paso reported that a snow plow, powered by two locomotives, had been sent from Tucumcari, N. M., out on its Dawson spur. Dawson is a New Mexico mining camp high in the mountains, and the office here reported at least 12 inches of snow in the area between there and Tucumcari.

The railroad reported it had heard from the Rock Island system, which connects with the Southern Pacific at Tucumcari, that 65 miles of telegraph and telephone wire were down east of Tucumcari, beyond Amarillo, Tex.

Fall Is General

Snow fell generally along a line north of Alamogordo in New Mexico. The fall was reported heavy and continuing in that state from Ancho east to the Texas line. Heavy falls were reported in the Organ mountains and Soledad canyon. A snowy blanket covered the Hueco range, east of El Paso. Some snow was visible Sunday on both sides of the northern end of the Franklin range, just north of here.

Highways leading into Las Vegas had been blocked with 15 to 20 inches of snow since early Sunday. Traffic between Raton, N. M., and Amarillo, Texas, was at a standstill.

Secondary Roads Blocked

All secondary roads in eastern New Mexico were blocked by the storm which was said to be the worst in 20 years.

Telephone communications north from Clovis, N. M., a few miles west of the Texas border, were out. In El Paso, officials of the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company reported they had been able to route calls to Clovis from the south today.

Minor Thefts

The complaint will be violation of the law of the road, officials said.

A 6-foot 4-inch man weighing 260 pounds "was about to clean house in a drugstore," police reported. They arrested him and put him in jail on a drunkenness complaint.

The usual bunch of drunks were doing time after weekend arrests.

Federal Court Term Opened

Calling of the civil docket for the November term of United States district court for the northern district of Texas was completed by Judge T. Whitfield Davidson, presiding, late this morning and it was followed by hearing of pleas in criminal cases.

Naturalization cases were scheduled for the afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock and H. B. Read, examiner from El Paso, said he expected 14 persons to become American citizens. He was questioning applicants and their witnesses during the noon hour.

Jury Reports Tuesday

Judge Davidson announced that jury cases would be heard the first three days this week and the first three days next week. The jury is to report Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

More than 30 civil cases were called, several orders of dismissal were ordered prepared for signature, and preliminary hearings and motions set for this week, next week and the second week in December.

Bankruptcy cases were also called and Judge Davidson said he would hear them Dec. 12.

Civil cases this week and next, for which a jury was not asked, were set, subject to jury matters.

Attorneys Admitted

George Parker, district clerk, and Miss Jeffie B. Maddox, a deputy; Grover C. Leigh, chief deputy marshal of Fort Worth and William Lampe of Amarillo, a deputy; William P. Fonville, assistant district attorney in criminal matters and William P. Walker, assistant in civil matters and John Alderman, Fort Worth, probation officer, were court attaches here. Ralph Martin, deputy marshal acted as court bailiff. Mrs. Madie Hoppee, of Dallas, secretary to Judge Davidson and Mrs. Lorraine Feagan, secretary to Clyde O. Eastus, district attorney, also were here.

Four attorneys were admitted to practice before the court: Edgar E. Payne of Levelland; Robert Kirk of Olton; Lloyd Croslin and C. R. Carpenter of Lubbock. An interested spectator was Congressman George Mahon, for whom Croslin was private secretary in Washington while attending law school.

down property of utilities mired axle-deep in the mud here and there.

One such automobile had brought up 200 feet in a field just outside Amarillo.

Word Picture Given By Charles Lowe

Parts of Amarillo were without electricity in the homes from Saturday through Sunday afternoon, up to the time he left, Charles Lowe, who accompanied William Lampe, deputy U. S. marshal, said this morning.

"We were completely without lights," Lowe said. "I never saw anything like the sleet. I saw huge trees bent over with sleet until it was almost impossible to drive an automobile between them.

"A 4-strand wire fence, near where I live, was almost a solid sheet of ice and sleet. The sleet formed a sheet from the top wire down to the second and so on, to the ground.

"Trees in Ellwood park are broken down. Trees all over town were destroyed. There will be almost no trees in Amarillo this year. I have lived in the Panhandle 27 years and this is the worst sleet storm I have ever seen."

Lowe said that the sleet extended south as far as Tulia. He said he saw section after section of telegraph and telephone wires, with five and six and more poles, flat on the ground, at a time.

Radio Operators Here Busy With Messages

News that supplies for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. were on the way, reached Amarillo Sunday a few minutes before the power went off. It was relayed from Lubbock via short wave by W5IIB, Frank Mitchell, to W3CBT in Parkesburg, Pennsylvania to W5WX in Amarillo.

Jerry Moorehouse, W5GDH and Jim Yarborough of Lubbock handled messages over W5HVZ until 3:30 Monday morning. Messages were handled from W5CYX of Amarillo, operating from the Amarillo News-Globe by Tex Smith, via Lubbock to W5DAM of Dallas. Messages were handled throughout the night with direct contact with Amarillo. Other messages were taken from W5PUA Clayton, New Mexico, and W5FSM of Wheeler, Texas.

West Texas Gas Co. gas pressure gauges were relayed this morning to the main station north of Amarillo by W5IZJ with W5DV of Lubbock to W5PAM of Fort Worth then direct to Amarillo. The pressure of each sub-station located in Plainview, Lubbock, Seminole and Tahoka was given to the main line station in Amarillo assuring these towns of correct gas pressure.

Other minor messages were handled throughout the day by Lubbock amateurs.

MODELS FORM AGENCY

MIAMI, Fla. (U.P.)—Miami's models—the girls who pose in bathing suits and otherwise to advertise the charms of this resort area—have organized their own agency — the Miami Fashion Club—and will operate it on a non-profit basis. They claim it is the only club of its kind in the nation.

England's Position Said To Be Improved During Past Two Weeks

Reds Refusing To Show Hand

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Europe's tragedy has produced numerous stirring events during my fortnight's absence from this column on vacation, but despite Herr Hitler's much advertised political "successes" and the terrific walloping administered to Signor Mussolini's legions by the Greco-British forces, I can't see that the general position has altered greatly.

I should say that on the face of it Britain's position has rather improved.

Attitude Still Indefinite

That smashing Italian defeat matters considerably, both morally and materially, and should raise England's stock in southeastern Europe. The adherence of Hungary, Rumania and Slovakia to the Axis adds little new, but merely confirms Hitler's previous success with the big stick. He already dominated these countries and they had to submit.

However, my estimate is made without being able to know what is in the undoubtedly worried mind of Muscovite leader Stalin—and that's important.

It is worthy of note that Turkey, which must be guided largely by Moscow, has warned ambitious Bulgaria not to join the Axis and not to attack Yugoslavia or Greece.

Interview Excites Interest

In considering the situation as a whole I have been much interested in the hotly debated interview attributed by a reporter of the Boston Globe to Ambassador Joseph Kennedy, who is home from his post as American envoy to London. Mr. Kennedy was quoted as saying that "Democracy is finished in England" and that National Socialism will be the result. Also it's "the bunk" that Britain is "fighting for Democracy" since "she's fighting for self-preservation just as we will if it comes to us."

His excellency took exception to this interview. He said that he thought the conversation was based on "an off the record discussion" and that many of the statements quoted "were inaccurate."

Kennedy Is Frank

It's my observation that one of friend Kennedy's pleasing characteristics is the habit of looking you squarely in the eye and saying exactly what he thinks—with adjectives. That sometimes leads to complications, but he is mighty smart and learns fast. Next time I see him I'm going to tell him about a remark made by Uncle Joe, grey-thatched patriarch among the negroes who work about the tobacco and cotton on Mr. Horne's estate. Uncle Joe, who is by way of being a lay preacher and philosopher, observed the other day:

"Ah believe a man should always try to improve. Yes suh, always improve—never disprove, never disprove."

Fighting For Preservation

But about the disputed interview—I didn't suppose there was anybody so naive as to believe England was fighting for Democracy, excepting indirectly. Primarily she's fighting for life and home and hearth—for the preservation of her empire.

It's true that if she loses we shall see cherished institutions disappear from Britain, and maybe other countries, but the fundamental basis of the Anglo-Hitlerian argument isn't a clash between Democracy and totalitarianism, in my view.

Will national socialism come to England? We need a definition of "national socialism" before getting very far with that question. A benevolent socialism already has produced a government in England since the world war, for the labor party calls itself socialist.

In Melting Pot

Anyway, we should be blind if we didn't recognize that in England, as in many other countries, the social and economic structures are changing. England is in the melting-pot, and never will see pre-war days again. The life and death struggle which has brought all classes of society together in the bomb-shelters is going to send them forth a new nation.

That doesn't mean there's going to be a different form of government or that Democracy will be dead. Personally I should say it means that Democracy is thriving and showing itself capable of adapting itself to new conditions.

3700 STRIKERS HALT WARPLANE OUTPUT—CIO aircraft workers are shown picketing the Vultee Aircraft plant at Downey, Calif., after 3700 of them staged a walkout strike which threatens the national defense program. The union members are seeking a minimum hourly wage increase from 50 to 65 cents. A federal conciliator failed to halt the strike.

Navajo Youths Are Restoring Ruins

GALLUP, N. M., Nov. 25 (U.P.)—A group of Navajo CCC enrollees, whose ancestors were traditional enemies of the Pueblo Indians, are patching up the ruins of Pueblo Bonito, famous prehistoric apartment house of their ancient rivals.

The preservation work under supervision of national park service archaeologists, consists of drainage, capping and supporting the walls of the pueblo, which was constructed more than 1,000 years ago.

The Navajo unit, unique in CCC organization, is composed of 20 youths who live in family groups in the same manner as on the reservation.

The boys have done a great deal of preservation work, but this is perhaps their biggest assignment. Part of Pueblo Bonito, in the Chaco Canyon National Monument, is five stories and is estimated to have housed as many as 1,200 persons.

A model recently was installed in the Brooklyn, N. Y., Museum, showing the building and the surrounding village as it is believed to have appeared 10 centuries ago.

Shortage of workers has forced New Zealand post offices to have a weekly half-holiday.

Midget School Has Own Defense Unit

LAS VEGAS, N. M., Nov. 25 (U.P.)—New Mexico Normal University, one of the smallest colleges in the United States, nevertheless is national defense conscious.

J. Edward Connor, Normal extension representative and a reserve officer in the army, and Edward Eyringe, president of the school, have established a voluntary military training unit.

Exposition To Break Record

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Entry statistics proved today that the 41st International Livestock Exposition Nov. 30 to Dec. 7 would continue the big farm show's virtually annual custom of breaking its own records.

Manager B. H. Heide said the exposition would have its broadest geographical spread this year, entries for the stock show and the 22nd grain and hay show combined having come from 36 states and five Canadian provinces, Alberta, British Columbia, Ontario, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

War Increases Entries

The war had a reverse effect on Canadian participation, he said. Instead of fewer Canadian entries and exhibitors there will be at least as many and perhaps more than usual. There were no important Canadian shows this year because of the war, so dominion stockmen and grain growers apparently were determined to show in at least one big agricultural exposition, the International.

The biggest single judging assignment went to Canada, too, this year when J. Charles Yule of Carstairs, Alta., was selected to judge steers, finishing only when he awards the purple ribbon for the grand champion steer, considered the choicest award of the show.

Accent Is On Youth

A week ahead of the opening, exposition officials encountered trouble finding room in the huge amphitheater for all the animals entered. Heide said there would be at least 13,00 cattle, horses, sheep and swine even though two breeds of cattle were eliminated this year. In 1939 there were 13,332 head.

Accent on youth is much more than an idle phrase at the International, what with the junior feeding and judging contests and the 19th 4-H club Congress which brings representatives of 1,300,000 boys and girls from most of the states.

Exposition exhibitors will take away $100,000 in prizes and realize about $1,000,000 from sales of animals. The public will see, besides the animal blue bloods and prize crops, 12 horse shows, sheep herding exhibitions, a national championship sheep shearing contest and displays of how to buy, cook, sarve and serve all manner of meat.

MUSEUM ACQUIRES UNUSUAL FLAG—The battered, bullet-riddled American flag that flew over the Mexican city of Tampico during the war between that nation and the United States nearly a century ago is included in a valuable display of the belongings of Mrs. Ann Chase that became a permanent part of the exhibit at the Texas Hall of State. Dr. Herbert Gambrell, museum director of the Dallas Historical Society, is shown inspecting the flag.

Golden Sandies Top The List---

Schoolboy Squads Set For Playoff

BY HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

Six teams — all tested by the hardest of schedules — stood out along the last lap in the Texas schoolboy gridiron trail today.

Amarillo's Sandies, Paris' Wildcats, Masonic Home's Mighty Mites, Port Arthur's Yellow Jackets, Jeff Davis' Panthers and Corpus Christi's Buccaneers were looked upon as carrying the balance of power in a championship campaign unsurpassed in sterling play — or upsets.

Two Clinch Titles

All were undefeated except Port Arthur, which made a magnificent comeback from an early season beating to become the year's high-scoring machine.

Jeff Davis was the state's only Class AA team with goal line uncrossed, but the Panthers were not untied, being held to a scoreless deadlock in the mud last week by Austin (Houston).

Strangely, only two of these six top-ranked teams held a district championship, they being Masonic Home and Jeff Davis. But the others were looked upon as only needing to play out the schedule to attain that honor.

Coyotes Are Tough

More teams twinkled in the hectic campaign, reaching its end this week except for 16 schools that go into the state play-off.

Stephenville, the Oil Belt power, was undefeated and untied and Longview, an early season favorite that lost unexpectedly to Kilgore, has climbed back into the race in East Texas.

Then, there are the two "comeback" teams of the yeard: Wichita Falls' Coyotes and Temple's Wildcats.

Wichita Falls, picked as the outstanding outfit of the state before the season opened, dropped two games and has been battling back ever since. Today, the Coyotes look about as touch as they come.

Triple Tie Seen

Temple lost its first four and seemed headed nowhere. Then, the Wildcats pulled themselves together to crush through in Central Texas. They, too, are to be strongly reckoned with in the struggle for the state title.

Which ever team comes through in the San Antonio district will be hard to take in the state race. There is the possibility of a triple tie down there now that Laredo has forfeited its victory over Kerrville due to having an ineligible player.

Six district championships already have been determined and ten more will go on the line this week.

Other Leaders Named

El Paso High in District 4, Masonic Home in District 7, Stephenville in District 9 and Temple in District 10 were crowned last week. Previously, Greenville had clinched honors in District 6 and Jeff Davis in District 13.

Generally picked to take pennants in the finish up of the schedule are Amarillo in District 1, Wichita Falls in District 2, Big Spring in District 3, Paris in District 5, Woodrow Wilson in District 8, Port Arthur in District 14 and Corpus Christi in District 16.

There were prospects of a real mix-up in District 12 where three teams — Jacksonville, Lufkin and Mexia — are tied for the lead and are expected to finish that way.

Scrambles Seen

Longview and Tyler are due to end up in a deadlock for the top in District 11, and then there is the potential scramble in District 15.

Strangely, Austin got back into the race when Laredo forfeited to Kerrville. The way things stood Brackenridge (San Antonio) was leading. Austin could win the title for Brackenridge by beating Kerrville, thus eliminating the latter team, but Austin already was out of things because Brackenridge defeated Austin and lost but one game and had finished out its schedule. Under the district rule if two teams finish in a tie for the lead the one that defeated the other in conference play gets the title.

Kerrville could win the title by beating Austin because Kerrville held a victory over Brackenridge.

Woodrow Wilson Vs. Sunset

But that's all changed now. Kerrville is in first place without defeat. Should Austin defeat Kerrville it would create a three-way tie and under the rule the team scoring the most points against the other two clubs would get the championship. At the present time Brackenridge shows 26 points and Austin and Kerrville 12 and 13 respectively.

The issue is clear in District 16 where Corpus Christi, winner of the North zone title, plays Harlingen, winner of the South zone.

Starting of the week's play, Woodrow Wilson meets Sunset for the Dallas district diadem tomorrow night.

TAAF Cagers Meet Tonight

Tentative organization of a sectional TAAF basketball league will be attempted tonight when team representatives meet at the Powers Sporting goods store here at 8:15 o'clock.

Alvin R. Eggling, district director of the Texas Amateur Athletic federation of the Lubbock district, has appointed a committee consisting of Fred Rich, Clarence Fox and Lewis Spears to work out a plan for an independent or amateur basketball league and submit it to prospective team members.

Winner To State

The league will be operated on the same basis as last summer's TAAF baseball league and tournament, which was more or less successful. Teams entering the league will play a regular schedule, at the end of which the top eight teams will enter a tournament, winner of which will compete in the state preliminaries.

Sponsors and managers of independent basketball teams of Lubbock and the South Plains are invited to attend the meeting tonight, or have delegates present, or to communicate as quickly as possible with Eggling here, or with Fred Rich, Cooper High school, Woodrow, Texas.

Vitt Named Manager Of Portland Club

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 25 (AP) — Oscar Vitt, released as manager of the Cleveland Indians, is back on the baseball warpath again, this time as pilot of the Portland club in the Pacific Coast league.

Club President E. J. Schefter announced last night that the man who piloted Cleveland to second place in the American league last year and then was fired had signed a one-year contract shortly after arriving here from his Oakland, Calif., home.

Tech Invades Albuquerque Saturday

Barring one of the most stunning upsets in Texas Interscholastic league history, schoolboy football takes its curtain call in Lubbock Thursday afternoon when the Lubbock High Westerners and the Plainview High Bulldogs tangle in Tech Stadium in the final scheduled game of the year for both teams.

The contest also marks the wind-up of the regularly scheduled football season for Lubbock.

Texas Tech's Red Raiders have two more games, but both are away from home. The first will be Saturday afternoon in Albuquerque against the New Mexico university Loboes, the second a week later in San Francisco against the San Francisco university Dons.

Decides Second Place

Nothing will be at stake as far as district championships are concerned, when the Westerners and the Bulldogs get together Thursday. That is, nothing will be at stake unless Pampa should happen to beat Amarillo in the other game of the pair that cleans up the District One conference race. That the Sandies will win from Pampa is conceded to be as certain as anything can be in football. However, that is where the possibility of a startling upset lies.

The game will decide runnerup honors in the district, nothing to be sneered at in a circuit that includes Amarillo. Neither team has lost a game except to the Sandies and both are anxious to hold that record.

New Mexico, Saturday opponent for the Red Raiders, has an even-steven record so far this season, four victories and four defeats. Latest triumph for the Loboes was a 13-12 upset they handed Arizona Saturday night.

Seeking Ninth Triumph

The Raiders will be seeking their ninth victory of an undefeated campaign and trying to redeem themselves for the shadow-thin victory over oft-beaten St. Louis university.

Other games of interest to Lubbock fans this week are the Pampa-Amarillo game at Amarillo Thursday and the Wichita Falls-Burkburnett contest at Wichita Falls Friday. The Pampa-Amarillo setto, of course, will decide whether the District One race will be a clear victory for the Sandies or a tie between Amarillo and the winner of the Lubbock-Plainview battle. Wichita Falls has only to beat Burkburnett to gain a clear claim to the District Two crown and the right to play the District One winner in bi-district play.

Redskins And Bears Lead

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Everything points toward the Washington Redskins and the Chicago Bears emerging as divisional champions in the National football league and meeting for the world's football title at Washington Dec. 8 but there's still a ray of hope left for the two runners-up, the Brooklyn Dodgers and Green Bay Packers.

With their poorest performance of the season, the Redskins succumbed to the New York Giants Sunday at the Polo Grounds before 46,439 persons—largest crowd to see a pro game in the east this year—and left the Dodgers with a mathematical chance to tie for the eastern title. The Giants, scoring two quick touchdowns in the first period, hung on to beat the Redskins, 21-7.

The Redskins still hold a one-game lead over the Dodgers, who came from behind to beat the Chicago Cardinals yesterday, 14-9, but must defeat the Philadelphia Eagles at Washington next Sunday in order to clinch the eastern division crown.

That shouldn't be too tough a task for the Redskins since they shellacked the Eagles, 34-17, in October at Philadelphia. However, the Redskins were none too sharp against the Giants and will have to regain their former magic touch to keep the Eagles' game from being close.

Games Rescheduled

Dan Topping, owner of the Brooklyn club, hasn't given up hope although his club would have to beat the red-hot Giants and the Eagles claw the Redskins in order to give the Dodgers a tie.

When the Philadelphia-Pittsburgh game was cancelled yesterday because of rain and rescheduled for Thursday (Thanksgiving Day in Penna.), Topping called Carl Storck, league president, in Dayton, O. via long distance and protested an arrangement which would cause the Eagles to have to play two games in four days. Storck then ordered the postponed Pittsburgh game to be played after the Eagles have met the Redskins.

Kimbrough Leading Southwest Scoring

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. (AP)—When Jackie Hunt of Marshall College ran for four touchdowns on Turkey day against West Virginia Wesleyan he did more than set an all-time college scoring record of 27 touchdowns in a season.

He also ran his total of points to 162 and put himself far beyond reach of his closest rival for individual scoring honors in the season drawing to a close. Like Tommy Harmon of Michigan, the runner-up with 117 points, Hunt has played his final game.

In the Southwest conference John Kimbrough of A. and M. led with 42 points, while John Martin of Oklahoma led the Big Six with 48.

Surgery On Foot Is Endured To Enlist

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25 (UP) — Vincent F. Catroppa, 24, rejected by the Army because of flat feet, underwent a painful operation to have his feet arched so as to be eligible for military service.

"A man in the army can't march on flat feet any better than an army truck can carry supplies on flat tires," officials told Catroppa.

Catroppa went to Hahnemann hospital specialists, who operated. Registered for conscription while lying in a hospital bed, his feet in casts, Catroppa said:

"Isn't it worth it? Sure it is. Where could a man find a better job than in the U. S. Army?"

Raiders Considered As Bowl Possibility

'Quarterbacks' To Gather For Weekly Huddle

The Touchdown Club will meet in weekly session tonight, 8 o'clock i. the time, the Lubbock hotel is the place.

Coaches Pete Cawthon and Russell T. Smith of the Texas Tech Red Raiders will be present, ready to explain the whys and wherefores of the triumph over St. Louis and the forthcoming contest with New Mexico university.

Also present will be the Lubbock High coaches, Goober Keyes and Walker Nichols, who will give their slant on the final game of the year for the Westerners, Thursday's clash with the Plainview Bulldogs, and perhaps go over a few details of the Amarillo triumph here last week.

Class A Chase Nears Climax

(By The Associated Press)

Thirty-two district champions of Class A schoolboy football had been determined today with eight others going on the line in play-off games this week.

Some familiar faces stuck out along the way, such as Hull-Daisetta, which set the state record for consecutive victories only to fall unexpectedly last year.

But Hull-Daisetta got revenge this season, beating Humble, the team that toppled them, for the district crown this season. It was their fourth title in five years.

Wink Comes Through

Wink, always a power in West Texas, came through again. This team has made one of the outstanding records of the state in the past four or five seasons, winning the regional title twice but being disqualified last year after an unbeaten district campaign.

Class A football goes only to regional championships. Here's the picture by regions:

District 1, Hereford vs. District 2, Phillips; District 3, Clarendon-McLean winner vs. District 4, Paducah.

Brownfield Vs. Colorado City

District 5, Brownfield vs. District 6, Colorado City; District 7, Wink vs. District 8, Ballinger.

District 9, Chillicothe vs. District 10, Hamlin; District 11, Bowie vs. District 12, Weatherford.

District 13, Handley vs. District 14, Buckner Home (Dallas); District 15, Clifton-Mart winner vs. District 16, Teague.

District 17, Plano vs. District 18, Commerce-Honey Grove winner; District 19, Mount Pleasant vs. District 20, Grand Saline.

District 21, Linden vs. District 22, Center; District 23, Union Grove (Gladewater) vs. District 24, Gaston (Joinerville.)

District 25, Huntsville vs. District 26, Jasper; District 27, Hull-Daisetta vs. District 28, French (Geaumont).

District 29, Aldine-Pasadena winner, District 30 vs. Boling-Wharton winner; District 31, Smithville vs. District 32, Navasota.

District 33, Belton-Taylor winner vs. District 34, Fredericksburg; District 35, San Marcos vs. District 36, Sidney Lanier (San Antonio).

District 37, Hondo-Pearsall winner vs. District 38, Kenedy-Victoria winner; District 39, Alice vs. District 40, Houston.

Perfect Slate Held By Five Major Teams

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—This week the football season gets down to what might be called the semi-final or "you pick 'em" stage. That's the time when the main interest is in trying to guess what teams will be chosen to play in the various bowl games Jan. 1.

The leading Rose and Sugar Bowl candidates are the five "major" teams that still are undefeated and untied—Boston College, Tennessee, Texas A. and M., Stanford and Minnesota. Unbeaten Lafayette got all steamed up last night over an Orange Bowl invitation only to hear it was just a "feeler" and that Fordham, Penn State, Boston College and other eastern teams are under consideration with Alabama and Mississippi State among the possible southern entries.

H-SU Also Mentioned

Mississippi State is one of the tied but unbeaten teams. The other, Texas Tech, and undefeated-untied Hardin-Simmons may also be in line for a bowl bid.

The prospects for a Big Ten-Pacific Coast meeting between Stanford and Minnesota are looking brighter while Tennessee vs. Boston College looks like the most likely Sugar Bowl lineup.

Minnesota finished its western conference sweep by whipping Wisconsin 22-13 after spotting the Badgers the first 13 points. The Gophers' chances of going to Pasadena depend upon favorable action by the conference faculty members at their meetings Dec. 6-7.

The Texas Aggies also have to go through the formality of clinching their second straight Southwest conference championship and completing an unbeaten season when they meet Texas Thursday. They were idle last week.

Hardin-Simmons, which plays little Howard Payne Friday night, beat San Francisco university 28-18; Mississippi State helped clear Tennessee's path to the Southeastern conference title by beating Mississippi 19-0 to put the Rebels out of the running. Texas Tech had a week off in preparation for Saturday's clash with New Mexico, 13-12 conqueror of Arizona.

Nebraska In Running

Nebraska, which has virtually clinched the Big Six title although it had a slight scare before it beat Iowa State 21-12, may be another bowl candidate. The Huskers, beaten only by Minnesota, are showing some interest in Sugar Bowl feelers and this may increase if they're successful against Kansas State Saturday. Oklahoma, 9-6 winner over Temple, plays Santa Clara, 26-0 winner over Loyola of Los Angeles yesterday, in a final game at San Francisco while Kansas, beaten by Missouri one Thanksgiving, plays Colorado State on the other.

Tulsa, which won the Missouri title for the fourth time by beating Oklahoma A. and M. 19-6, meets Arkansas Thursday.

Better Than 'Galloping Ghost'---

'Finis' Written To Harmon's Gridiron Career At Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 25. (U.P.)—The book was closed on Number 98 today, and Equipment Manager Henry Hatch of Michigan university put it reverently away in a musty trunk beside Number 47.

Tom Harmon wore Jersey 98. Benny Oosterbaan, famous end of 15 years ago, wore 47. No one in the University of Michigan will ever wear these numerals again.

Harmon finished his college career in true story-book fashion, shattering the touchdown record of Red Grange, the old "Galloping Ghost" of Illinois. Harmon scored three touchdowns Saturday as Michigan routed Ohio State, 40-0, to shoot his total for three seasons to 33. Grange scored 31 in four less games.

However, Harmon's 237 points for three seasons far surpass Grange's figures because the Michigan star booted the points after touchdowns, a duty left to Grange teammates. In addition Harmon threw 16 touchdown passes.

Harmon's three year history compares with the other great records written into the gridiron annals by Thorpe, Gipp, Nevers and the rest. The 193-pound Gary, Ind., halfback carried the ball 399 times for a total of 2,151 yards or a 5.4 average. He completed 101 of 233 passes for 1,396 yards, with 20 interceptions, and his punting, something new for 1940, averaged about 38 yards per kick. He scored 33 touchdowns, 33 place-kick conversions and two field goals.

Harmon says he intends to be a radio sports commentator and already has had several offers. He probably will be offered an attractive contract to turn pro and teammates believe he will accept if the offer is tempting enough.

Mighty Aggies To Challenge Jinx Thursday

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 25—Three times since 1894—back in 1902, '09 and '22—the Texas Aggies have been able to win a football game against University of Texas on an Austin gridiron.

Now, only four days before they face the jinx again with such rich rewards as a second straight Southwest conference title and unbeaten season, a twentieth straight triumph and a possible beckon to the Rose Bowl lying around, they are in trouble.

Has "Charley Horse"

Quarterback Marion Pugh, the Aggies' leading runner and passer and signal caller, is ailing.

The rangy Fort Worth boy has a very stubborn "charley horse" that developed a few hours after the Rice institute game on Nov. 16 and he can't shake it. Pugh spent the weekend in a Houston hospital receiving treatment.

Advices from College Station said that he had practiced only briefly the past week "but probably will be able to start the Texas game." Brains of the Aggie attack, Pugh also rates as one of the country's top forward passers with 49 completions out of 84 attempts for 651 yards.

Says He Will Be Ready

Pugh declares he will be ready. "The only way they'll keep me out of the lineup is to have me on crutches," he says.

Rugged Marland Jeffrey, the boy who almost completed a 60-yard pass in the Rice game and a great pitcher himself, will be ready if Pugh falls out of the Texas game.

Both teams planned scrimmage for the last time today on muddy practice fields.

Texas had no major injuries and Cowboy Jack Crain, their feared broken fielder, was back in top form after wrestling a bothersome hurt for three weeks.

Aggies Top Statistics

On form, the Aggies rate a win, regardless of all jinxes and traditions.

Statistics through eight games prove it. Here they are:

	Aggies	Texas
First downs	94	88
Net gains rushing	1256	1178
Net gains running and passing	2225	2108
Net gains passing	969	930
Passes attempted	140	156
Passes completed	71	75
Percentage completed	.507	.481
Punting average	37	37

Most important, what with Texas developing a swell running game of late, is the defensive record. The Aggie line, rated the best in the nation against rushing, has yielded only 296 yards in eight games. The Texas wall has 875.

Not listed in the statistics is that jinx—and Texas has a gaudy advantage there.

ber of the West Texas-New Mexico league in the 1941 campaign.

That's the first good news for the old park that lost its luster with the removal of the Texas league club in

Remember The Spudders?

By Collier Parris

THE DUCK STAMP business ought to be on the upswing, huh? Johnny Powers has a few over at his store, in case the post office runs short, which it probably will if this weather continues. Lots of water right now, and ducks too.

And speaking of game, we're expecting a hunk of venison any day now from L. H. Redwine, John B. Carpenter and or H. B. Bryan. Also from that O'Donnell party, the Middleton boys, J. D. Balch and Jeff Loe. Except in their case it'll be elk!

We're mighty grateful to J. C. (Texas Floral) Davis, D. (Drug-store) Jarrett, E. K. (GMC) Hufstedler and Joe (Midway) Bryant for some luscious appetizers. It was swell going, for a fact. Anyone else wishing this kind of verbal flowers may leave their surplus game at the pantry of Mr. Hilton's boarding house.

Even if you don't leave any evidence, we'd appreciate telephone calls or visits from any and all successful hunters, telling us where you've been and what you got. Doesn't cost a cent, unless you call from a pay station or use a parking meter. We have no official Hunting and Fishing or Rod and Gun dept. in this department, and nobody in it knows the difference between a soft-nosed hollow-point and a fly rod, but the general sports department and the paper are anxious to get the hunting and fishing news, and we have to depend on you individual nimrods and Waltons to provide it.

PERSONAL NOTE to Mrs. Laura Jackson, the other Westerner Mothers and the Westerners themselves: Thanks very much for the invitation to the dinner the other night, and please accept our regrets for not being able to attend. Excuse: The dinner hour—anybody's normal dinner hour—conflicts with the heaviest working hours of us writin' guys. And Frank Tolbert asks that we ditto the above for him. It would have been a pleasure to have been there.

Another note, and not so personal, to the Westerners:

The season isn't over yet. The schedule shows that the Plainview Bulldogs, a very peppy and durable bunch of footballers, who haven't lost any more games this season than you have, will be here this week.

Plainview has been rating near the top of the state high school ladder all season, for several weeks holding a higher rating than the Westerners themselves. They looked good—until they met Amarillo. (The same goes for every team Amarillo has met since and will meet from now on).

So don't take this week's closing game too lightly, boys. It means the runner-up position in District 1, which compares with the runner-up position of the Texas Interscholastic league football campaign, to whom ever wins it. And that's something.

Speaking of football, there's supposed to be a championship game out at Texas Tech field this afternoon. It's six-man football, the fastest growing sport in these U. S., and on the South Plains we have some very nifty teams. The clubs of New Home and McAdoo have forged to the finals in this sector, and were to meet Saturday afternoon here for the district championship.

Unfavorable weather caused postponement of the game Saturday, and it was re-set for today. Chances are it'll be postponed again, because the field will be in a wet condition, even if it quits raining, or doesn't snow, or something.

COLD ENOUGH NOW to turn to a little Hot Stove League chatter, and it's provided here, for the remainder of this column, by Howard Brickey, sports editor of the Wichita Falls Daily Times. Brickey and Wichita Falls are pretty hot and bothered over the prospective return of professional baseball to that village. We asked Brickey for a yarn on the situation, and he comes through with the following:

November Selective Service Trainees Receive First Check Soon

Army Explains Money Angles

BY SANDOR S. KLEIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—The first contingent of selective service trainees inducted into the army this month will have a pay day before Christmas, officials said today.

Army finance officers are arranging for a pay day—the first for the initial group of trainees—probably in the first week of December. They will be paid only for the days they served in November. It won't amount to much, what with pay only $21 a month at the outset. But it will provide pocket money for cigarettes, and maybe chewing gum.

Pays Post Obligations

After four months' service, the trainees will receive $30 a month, it will seem like nothing at all to the boys who have just come in from factories and offices, but after a while they'll begin to think they're millionaires on pay day. That's what old-timers in the army say.

What does a soldier do with his pay? Well, that varies with the soldier. The first thing he must do, however, is to pay his debts to various post concessions such as the barber and tailor. If he has subscribed for government insurance, the premium is deducted from his monthly pay. If he has arranged for an allotment of part of his pay to any member of his family, that, too, is deducted. With what's left he may spend for toilet articles such as toothpaste and shaving cream, or take a girl to a movie on a night out. He also must pay for the cleaning and pressing of his own clothes.

Around Last Of Month

Sometimes, if luck isn't just right, he may have to settle financial problems arising from a clandestine game of "African golf." If he is thrifty, he may bank a part of his pay.

Pay day generally falls on the last day of the month although it may come a day or two later. When the "eagle flies," a bugle call summons the soldiers before the paymasters, generally the post and division finance officers.

Paid In Cash

The soldiers must line up and before receiving their monthly stipend they must sign the payroll. They are paid in cash. Officers are paid later by check.

Estimates vary, but experience indicates that the "must" expenditures of the average private for necessities ranges between $5 and $7 a month. On that basis, the new citizen soldiers will have between $14 and $16 left for spending money.

Will Allot Money

In most of the army camps, soldiers may establish a credit with the post exchange. But on pay day, there must be a settlement. That is an army regulation. Wise soldiers, officers say, will allot a part of their pay for the things they expect to buy on the post during the month.

Until recently, enlisted men were given approximately $24 a year as a clothing maintenance allowance.

If a soldier, by careful attention to his clothes, managed to save any portion of this, he received the amount saved upon his discharge from the army. That system, however, has been discontinued.

Boys Town Dog Gets Role In Hollywood

BOYS TOWN, Neb., Nov. 25 (U.P.)—Boots, 3-year-old part poodle dog and "parts of something else," is probably wondering why Marianna Greco, 17, is being such a nice mistress these days.

Boots has been selected to double for a Hollywood canine in the picture "Men of Boys Town," sequel to the film which made Father Flanagan's home for boys at Omaha known all over the world.

Japan has decreed that every car owner buying a new motor tire must return an old one, and the same applies to inner tubes.

DISLIKES NAZIS—Actress Carol Kane really dislikes the Nazis—$50,000 worth. That amount, part of the proceeds of a 10-year movie career, is waiting for her any time she'll go to Germany to collect it. But Miss Kane, pictured above in Los Angeles as she recently arrived from Europe, says she wouldn't go back for many times that sum.

Rearming Will Have Several Handicaps

AMES, Ia., Nov. 25 (U.P.)—The United States temporarily can rearm and maintain its high standard of living at the same time, in the opinion of E. D. Allen, Iowa State College economist.

"We have large supplies of unused labor and resources that we can draw upon to produce airplanes, tanks and shells before we need to subtract from consumer goods production. Increasing payrolls for defense industries will increase the demand for consumer goods and create a whole new production chain," he explained.

Expense To Mount

Allen warned, however, "when we do reach the full use of our unemployed labor and resources, we shall have to squeeze consumption in order to expand arms.

"It appears now that the United States government will spend more than $36,000,000,000 for national defense in the six-year period which started last July 1. Within two years we may be spending eight to ten billion dollars a year.

"For the next two or three years at least it appears that the government will obtain most of the money for the defense program by borrowing, as it did in the depression, and by increased taxes falling largely on savings and not on consumption."

Build Up Reserve

He predicted that because the country does not now have large numbers of unemployed laborers and because of its ability to increase facilities to produce consumer goods, both armaments and consumer goods will be available for some time.

"But although we can do this for a while, the huge increase in spending is not going to be invested in plant equipment to turn out consumer goods at a later date, as is usually the case in an industrial boom."

The old park, known in the fabulous days of 1926 to 1929 as "the golden diamond" when a batter could collect a ten gallon hat full of silver dollars for a home run, suffered many a humiliation in the years after its decline.

The grounds were used for medicine shows, chautauquas, revivals, dog racing, midget autos and—of all things—girls' softball.

Camels, elephants, lions and tigers stalked the diamond when Ringling Brothers-Barnum Bailey circus pitched its big top smack on home plate and out into the outfield.

The hardest blow of all came during fire prevention week in October, 1938. It was the third fire in the history of the park, and, as on the previous occasions, the grandstand burned to the ground. Left standing in the blackened ruins was the concrete section of box seats, a tangle of twisted iron rails.

Today a small grandstand, built by semi-pro clubs, stands on the ruins of the old.

The diamond has been kept up through the years by the same caretaker who was there during the prosperous Texas league days. The dugouts are in perfect condition. The rusted remains of a batting cage still stand.

Buried beneath an inch coating of dust, the clubhouse is intact and in fair repair. Sections of the fence—those rebuilt to support advertisements by the semi-pros—are in good shape. About half of the wall is propped up precariously and must be rebuilt.

It will be a great day when carpenters go to work in restoring the once proud park. Around Spudder Park is wrapped some of the city's brightest chapters of sports history.

The park is the shrine that saw the march of Ziggy Sears, Clarence Craft, Homer Peel, Wild Bill Hallahan, Dizzy Dean, Harland Clift, Debs Garms, Danny Clark, Ping Bodie, Tex Carleton, Pete Turgeon, Milt Steengrafe, Joe Pate and a horde of others.

Spudder Park belongs to baseball.

The PLAINSMAN Says:

That Girl on Broadway says a Communist is a failure who wants to share another's success.

We always thought the Laughter Funeral Home, of Abilene, had the world's most incongruous name. But that was before we saw advertised in the Casper, Wyo., Tribune-Herald the Gay Mortuary, of that city!

BACK in 1896, in connection with the Democratic National convention in Chicago, an almost unknown young congressman from Lincoln, Neb., delivered himself of one of the greatest political orations of all time. The speech, later—and still—famous as "The Cross of Gold" oration, gave the young man the Democratic nomination for the presidency in that year; put him in a position to receive his party's nominations again in 1900 and in 1908. It made the young man, first called "The Boy Orator of the Platte," a reputation as one of the greatest speakers in the history of the world and launched him upon a national political career of a kind unparalleled anywhere.

The young man's name was William Jennings Bryan, and although he never became President of the United States, he frequently exerted more influence upon his countrymen than have some men who won the high office.

All his life, The Plainsman has heard of "The Cross of Gold" speech, and, although as a boy he twice heard the great Bryan speak, the writer had never seen or heard a transcript of the famous address until just the other day.

We ran across it in an "I Give You Texas" column, by Boyce House, of Fort Worth and Austin, and a perusal of it found The Plainsman not only interested, but astounded.

For in Mr. Bryan's "The Cross of Gold" address were outlined many of the reforms which have come about under the Roosevelt administrations and a theory of government almost exactly like that of the present New Deal theory.

In fact, a close study of the Bryan speech of 1906 shows that the present administration's program was suggested long before anyone connected with it was a public figure.

For the benefit of those who always heard of, but never read, the Bryan address, we give you its principal part, here and now.

SPEAKING for the benefit of his Republican opponents and certain forces in his own Democratic party who did not see his way, the great Bryan—44 years ago and 36 years before what now is known as the New Deal was ever heard of—orated as follows:

"We say to you that you have made the definition of a business man too limited in its application. The man who is employed for wages is as much a business man as his employer; the attorney in a country town is as much a business man as the corporation counsel in a great metropolis; the merchant at the cross-roads store is as much a business man as the merchant of New York; the farmer who goes forth in the morning and toils all day, who begins in spring and toils all summer, and who by the application of brain and muscle to the natural resources of the country creates wealth, is as much a business man as the man who goes upon the Board of Trade and bets upon the price of grain; the miners who go down a thousand feet into the earth or climb two thousand feet upon the cliffs and bring forth their hiding places the precious metals to be poured into the channels of trade are as much business men as the few financial magnates who, in a back room, corner the money of the world.

"There are two ideas of government. There are those who believe that, if you will only legislate to make the well-to-do prosperous, their prosperity will leak through on those below. The Democratic idea, however, has been that if you legislate to make the masses prosperous, their prosperity will find its way up through every class which rests upon them.

"Burn down your cities and leave our farms, and your cities will spring up again as if by magic; but destroy our farms and the grass will grow in the streets of every city in the country.

"Having behind us the producing masses of this nation and the world, supported by the commercial interests, the laboring interests and the toilers everywhere, we will answer their demand for a gold standard by saying to them: You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns; you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold."

Forgetting only the reference to free silver in the speech, today's reader can plainly see the almost carbon copy similarity between the Bryan theory of government and that embraced in Washington today.

And although Mr. Bryan was made the butt of many a crude joke; although he was hated in high places in his own as well as in the opposition party; although he was damned as a crackpot, his principal mistake seems to have been that he was thinking ahead of his day.

He was born and attained prominence too soon for his own good. He simply ran too far ahead of the crowd.

BILL COLVERT, who met a lot of folks here and about while ramrodding publicity for the Coronado Entrada at the Panhandle-South Plains fair, has been on a busman's holiday to Central American points.

Formerly on the staff of the Carlsbad, N. M., Current-Argus, and more recently publisher of the Hobbs Post-Courier, Bill is using his vacation as a springboard for writing a series of articles on Hemispheric defense as it applies to Central America and on the results of Uncle Sam's "good neighbor" policy down there to date.

One of Mr. Colvert's visits took him to the Canal Zone in the Republic of Panama and in a letter to The Plainsman he expresses profound surprise and no little agitation over the fact that this nation's lifeline, the Panama Canal, looks like it's a long, long way from being well fortified, particularly against a possible attack by air.

Bill admits that he probably didn't see everything in the way of Uncle Sam's canal defenses.

He reports that the harbors are mined, that there may be—and probably are—many hidden defenses.

But even so, he says, a child can see that the entire canal project is wide open to an aerial attack.

IN case of an aerial attack, he says, "the Army and Navy air forces no doubt would be on the job. But it would take a minimum of 5,000 planes to protect the place in a good fight. And from all available sources here, I am sure American planes on runways and in hangars fall far short of that total.

"Many of the business men of the Canal Zone," he continues, "talk all the time about the number of 'fifth columnists' they have among them and they cannot understand why Uncle Sam's intelligence department doesn't clean them out. These business men are shaky over their defense measures and say the Canal Zone is going to be a hot spot when America goes into the war. They all believe, too, that it's just a question of time until we are in the war."

Also worrisome to Mr. Colvert is the apparent fact that under current conditions, any 'fifth columnist' who wishes can come right into the Canal Zone and find a 'welcome sign' on the door mat.

Pointing out that the ship he was on was filled to the gunwales with defense materials, he says:

"When we docked in Panama, we passengers went right ashore without anyone searching us even one little bit. If I had been a 'fifth columnist,' I could have taken important papers ashore, a bomb, or other damaging things, and gotten away with it 100 per cent.

"Frankly, I believe I should have been searched, my baggage gone through and my movements watched every minute. In fact, I believe every passenger on the boat should have received the same sort of treatment, and that everyone now entering the Canal Zone should be watched. The Canal Zone is most vital to our national security, especially when our navy is part in the Atlantic and part in the Pacific. Uncle Sam should get 'tough' and guard more closely against saboteurs and espionage agents."

OF course, the Army and Navy chiefs in the Canal Zone, and their superiors in Washington, are not a bunch of blithering idiots and probably they know, better than Mr. Colvert, or anyone else, what is going on in the vicinity of the Big Ditch.

But with sabotage and espionage having been developed to history's highest degree, reports like that of Mr. Colvert are, to say the least, a little upsetting.

We hope there's a good deal more defense to the canal than was visible to Mr. Colvert's naked eye—and there probably is.

YESTERDAY: Bill's efforts to arouse the "voice of the people" is successful; Buck gets a chance to show his movies to the Board members. He explained that the team has ability, lacks confidence and spirit. Three board members are impressed. Peskin counters: "How can you inspire boys when your son is constantly in trouble?"

CHAPTER X

Back at Peskin's drug store, Helen and Drowsy waited eagerly for news. Drowsy fidgeted behind the counter; Helen played with the cracked ice in her coke. As Bill came slowly through the door they rushed at him.

"What's the news, kid?" Drowsy demanded.

"Oh, Bill, is it good?' Helen asked.

"You'd better go up and ring their doorbell, dear—I don't think honking does any good!"

KANSAS' "HORRIBLE EXAMPLE"

The State of Kansas offers something pretty close to a horrible example in how not to conduct an election.

There, absentee ballots mailed at any time up to and including election day are counted. Counting of some does not even start until 10 days after election and, apparently, the officials then take their leisurely time. This year, nearly three weeks elapsed before that job was finished.

As result, the entire state has been disturbed. Several court fights already have been filed and others are threatened. Efficiency of governmental machinery undoubtedly has suffered because of officials and employes whose jobs hinged on the outcome of the camp. Furthermore, this or any other kind of delay in an election increases opportunities for corruption. The problem may have been worse than usual this year because of the extraordinarily close contests. But Kansas is sufficiently in the "normally Republican, but doubtful" class to expect close elections at any time.

The Texas election system unquestionably has its faults. But certainly it is far ahead of Kansas in its requirements that absentee votes must be in before election day if they are to be counted.

ed.

"I dont know," Bill said gloomily. "But I'm afraid not." He told them about the meeting. Mr. Skelton wasn't so bad, but old Peskin's still sore as a boiled owl. Gosh, I wish I'd left Bullethead knock the tar out of me!"

Drowsy said shrewdly, "You've got one thing on your side, Bill. Both Peskin and Skelton are tight-fisted. They'll have to pay Landis for the rest of the season. If they can skimp somewhere else they may do it. They can hire Buck for less money than an out-of-town coach."

Helen looked at the clock. It was nearly 10. "I'm awfully nervous, Bill."

"Just the same, I'm glad you're here," Bill said. "I'll mix up some cokes." Drowsy moved to let him behind the fountain.

They sat in silence, sipping their drinks. Each time the door opened they jumped. In a daze, Bill waited on customers. He made the wrong change twice and put cherry syrup in a chocolate soda.

At 10:30 Helen said, "I think it's a good sign, Bill—Mr. Peskin's staying so long. At least they haven't made a decision."

Bill didn't know what to think. "They may have had other business."

But he didn't believe that. Perhaps Jim Bansen was putting up a fight for Buck. He'd seemed pleased by the movies . . . But when you came right down to it, Skelton and Peskin would make the final decision. They always did.

A loud, familiar voice broke in on Bill's thoughts. Bullethead Peskin swaggered into the store with Dot Skelton. She froze Bill and his friends with a haughty glance.

Bullethead hammered on the table and made himself generally obnoxious. But tonight Bill could not be baited. He waited on them quietly, making no retort to their jibes.

Helen's eyes blazed. "They ought to be ashamed to treat Bill like that!"

Drowsy said, "Look, Helen, here comes Peskin now! J. Conrad is with him."

The two men strode importantly into the store, joining Dot and Bullethead at their table. Julius Peskin's dour face was as close to a smile as it ever came. He jerked his finger at Bill.

"Two chocolate sodas," he ordered, turning a magnanimous smile on Skelton. "This is my treat."

"Thank you," J. Conrad Skelton said pompously. "All that talking has made my throat dry."

"Why don't they say something?" Drowsy whispered. "Why do they want to make Bill suffer?"

The four talked in low tones, drank leisurely. Several times Bullethead smirked in Bill's direction.

It was the toughest 15 minutes Bill ever had spent. He was pretty sure they had decided against Buck, but until they spoke there was still a chance. He moved about the fountain his mouth cotton-dry, his hands shaking a little.

Presently Skelton cleared his throat. "Mentor, will you step over here, please?"

The distance seemed like a mile. Bill was conscious of the tense faces of Helen and Drowsy, of the ill-concealed triumph in Bullethead's grin. He knew what was coming; he stood erect, bracing himself for it.

"My boy," Sekiton said, "you and your father gave a good show. We on the board appreciate the effort expended."

Skelton continued: "Several members were favorably impressed. I myself feel that your father is capable. However, in view of certain past actions of your own, opposition to the appointment was encountered."

"But that's not fair, sir," Bill said grimly. "What I did wasn't Buck's fault."

"Oh, yes, it was!" Peskin shrilled. "He raised you, Mentor. If his influence makes you a bully, how can we trust him to handle our sons?"

Drowsy Peters emitted a snort. Bill's jaw went hard as he asked, "Does that mean, Mr. Skelton, that Buck won't be hired?"

"I'm afraid, Mentor, it—"

His words dropped into a meaningless quaver of sound. Bill followed his gaze. A man stood in the dorway. Big and bulky, his face hidden by a burlap sack with holes cut in it. He held a pistol.

"Reach high," he commanded harshly. "This is a stick-up."

Bill's first thought was of Helen, but the sack bandit's attention was fixed on the adults. Speachless, the two pillars of the board raised their hands. Dot's face was creamy with fright.

"You!" The man jerked his gun at Bill. "Empty the till."

"M-my money," Julius Peskin wailed.

"Shut up! Hurry, kid."

Bill moved toward the cash register. There was nearly a hundred dollars in the drawer. He tried to think of something to do, but his mind was blank. He fumbled with the money.

"Quit stalling, kid," the bandit growled, "or someone's liable to get hurt."

There was an instant's silence in which Bill could hear the bandit's heavy breathing. Then the silence was broken by a strange sound. It was like the sobbing note of a harmonica.

Bill shot a glance over his shoulder. He saw Dot Skelton jump to her feet, her mouth open in terror. The bandit whirled on her with a snarl. His trigger finger tightened.

Bill crouched, the money in his hand raining to the floor. Then he drove forward in a flying tackle. The bandit turned too late. Bill caught him hard and low. The gun,

Tax Structure Is Due For General Overhauling This Winter

Stiffer Income, Excess Profits Levies On Way

BY BRUCE CATTON
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A general overhauling of the federal tax structure is almost inevitable this winter, and stiffer income and excess profits tax levies are in the cards.

Catton

The administration has not yet formulated the tax program it will set before Congress, but one thing is perfectly obvious: the government has got to have more money.

A record deficit is being created in this fiscal year. Tax revenues from all sources will run to about $6,300,000,000, while expenditures will go above $12,000,000,000. Next year's expenditures will almost certainly be as high as that, if not higher.

As the national income rises the present tax set-up will give a bigger yield. How much bigger, no one knows. Treasury opinion is that the increase wouldn't be nearly enough and that higher levies are imperative.

Deflationary Steps Opposed

There is no thought of seeking to put the government on a pay-as-you-go basis. Secretary Morgenthau, like most other administration high-ups, opposes any really deflationary step just as full recovery seems to be taking hold. Right now Treasury experts are inclined to feel that about a billion is all that could be added to the "take."

Probably the first item on the administration's program will be a strengthening of the excess profits tax. The President is highly dissatisfied with the tax that was hurried through Congress this summer. He'd asked for a steeply-graduated bill to prevent the creation of war millionaires; what he got was a set of fairly mild rates, plus an alternative method of computing the taxes which — in the Treasury's opinion — gives a prodigious advantage to corporations which happened to make good profits in the last few years.

Hence the administration will ask that the rates be stiffened, and that computation of the tax be permitted only on the basis of invested capital.

May Face Fight

Higher income taxes are also in the cards: Present talk in the Treasury suggests a boost in the normal rate — possibly from the present 4 per cent to 5 or 6 per cent. Personal exemptions and credits may be reduced, although the administration opposes too much broadening of the tax base for fear of cutting consumer purchasing power.

It's quite possible the administration won't get its way on the income tax boost without a hard fight in Congress. There's considerable feeling there in favor of boosting the special 10 per cent defense-tax levy on income taxes in place of hiking the normal rates — the idea being that the defense tax is clearly temporary, but that once a normal rate is raised it tends to stay raised.

Nuisance taxes on gasoline, cigarets, theater tickets, etc., are due to be kept. New sources of tax revenue will be sought. One current suggestion would put a special tax on soft drinks. Such a tax during the World war brought in $50,000,000, and the theory is that with greatly increased consumption nowadays it'd be good for twice that much.

There is also some sentiment in the new deal for trying to put into the tax bill various related financial features desired by the administration. These would include, in addition to the specific increases, the raising of the debt limit to $60,000,000,000 or more and the elimination of tax exemption on securities. The latter item will probably kick up such a fight though, that it may get put in a bill by itself.

Goal To Go

jarred from his hand, went clattering across the floor.

Steel fingers closed around Bill's throat. Gasping, the boy rammed his fist into the bandit's stomach, but his fingers pressed relentlessly. As the room began to swim before his eyes, Bill heard a bony thud. The fingers relaxed.

Bill shook his head to clear it. He saw Drowsy Peters, still clutching the jagged neck of a broken bottle, looking down at the bandit, who lay senseless in a pool of rubbing alcohol.

"D-did I kill him?" Drowsy asked weakly.

Bill hugged his friend. "You were swell, Drowsy," he choked. "That guy almost had me."

With a grin of admiration, both boys turned toward the rear of the store. Helen Welch was at the telephone calling the police. "That's keeping your head," Bill called to her.

A squad car arrived promptly. Julius Peskin sulkily refused to answer questions, but J. Conrad Skelton surprised Bill with his statement to the police:

"These boys deserve credit. They were just as frightened as we were, but, unlike ourselves, acted in spite of their fear."

When the police had gone, Bill began to sweep up the broken glass. Skelton and Peskin were in a huddle at the rear of the store. Finally Bill heard Skelton say emphatically:

"I must go against you, Julius. Young Mentor saved my daughter's life. You can't tell me that a boy who acts that bravely is a bully. I don't propose to insult him by offering money. There is but one way to repay the boy, and I intend to take it!"

Skelton crossed the store with brisk steps. His pomposity had vanished for the moment. He took Bill's arm.

"You're a brave lad," he said kindly. "You can forget what I said before that bandit entered. I'll drop in and have a talk with your father tomorrow morning."

Army Looks To Its Kitchens To Put Ruggedness In Ranks

The army asks that its meals be judged on results. Gone is the kitchen police duty of World war days. The army hires outsiders for the traditional K. P. work.

"I'M FINE . . . AND SAFE"—For brief minutes modern science reunited a group of British refugee children in New York with their people in England when the youngsters talked to their parents by short wave. One of the most eager was Anne Khuner, of Greenwich, England, who just celebrated her fifth birthday. She's pictured at the microphone greeting her father, who is in the British army.

This is the fourth of six articles describing the army camp life draftees will lead.

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 — The cooks have already qualified for most of the medals in the draft army.

The army asks only to be judged on results, not special meals or recipes. If you're a whiz at pumpkin pie, Mother, they won't even try to compete. They say theirs is good. That's all. But they'll stack their day-in-day-out menus against you.

In the end the army thinks it'll produce healthier men. For army men suspect mothers encourage their boys in indigestible directions and unbalanced diets. (They can't prove it, though).

In the draft army it'll be breakfast, dinner and supper, with the accent on dinner in the middle of the day. Choice of coffee, tea, or milk every meal. Cafeteria style, mostly.

On four days a year, the army really stuffs, Christmas, Thanksgiving, New Year's and Organization day. That last is the anniversary of the date a particular regiment was organized. On those days there'll be two kinds of meat, four vegetables, two kinds of desserts, candy, fruit, nuts, and all the trimmings, except hard liquor.

Here's a sample menu for the ordinary day:

Breakfast — Fruit, toast, cereal, bacon and eggs, coffee, tea or milk.

Dinner — Soup, meat, mashed potatoes and gravy, string beans, peas, pie, coffee, tea or milk.

Supper — Salad, cold meat cuts, stewed prunes, cookies, coffee, tea or milk.

In the field, the men'll get the equivalent in cans, with accent on slum gullion of one kind or another.

And, Mom, P. S.: If you're from New England, the army says please try to be lenient. Don't ask 'em to serve pie and baked beans for breakfast. Nobody but New Englanders will eat that chow at 7 a. m.

Tomorrow: There'll be plenty of hard work.

TELLER IS PERPLEXED

WALDEN, N. Y. (U.P.) — Teller Harold Janville was taken aback when a woman came into the Walden Savings Bank to cash a strange bill for "20 dubloons." After inspecting it he patiently explained the nate was valueless—it was children's play money.

Oldsters In Many Sections Still Going Strong To Prove The Theory That You Are Only As Old As You Might Feel

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 — If the only-as-old-as-you-feel club will kindly come to order, we'll cite some recent remarkable occurrences bearing out the theory that the first hundred years are the hardest, it's a great life if you don't weaken, and that you're O.A.O.A.Y.F.

A 60-year-old Pottsville, Pa., man got his airplane pilots license the other day . . . And a 73-year-old Gainesville, Fla., man entered law school, as a freshman.

A 73-year-old Burlington, Vt., woman began learning to ski . . . A 75-year-old Claremont, Calif., man started writing his first novel . . . And a 76-year-old Clinton, Mass., man offered to lead an expedition to kidnap Hitler.

An 80-year-old Calgary, Alberta, woman started cutting her third set of teeth . . . An 81-year-old Chester, S. C., woman began a college course in astronomy . . . And an 81-year-old San Diego, Calif., man made a solo flight in an airplane.

A Westminster, Calif., youngster celebrated his 115th birthday by chipping wood . . . And a 100-year-old Ada, Okla., man filed suit for divorce—and said he planned to marry again.

How do they do it? Well, there are a lot of answers:

An 80-year-old French doctor said the recipe for longevity is: "Don't drink any water and take as little exercise as possible" . . . A 100-year-old Philadelphia man attributed his long life to eating hasty pudding . . . And a 100-year-old Reading, Pa., woman said:

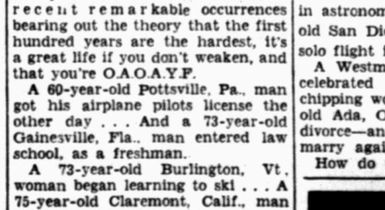

"Late to bed and late to rise keeps the twinkle in my eyes."
