Record aid bill

WASHINGTON — The House rapidly stamped its approval Friday on a record-setting $11.1 billion aid package for states smashed by Hurricanes Andrew and Iniki and for typhoon-battered Guam. On a voice vote, lawmakers rushed the compromise bundle of loans, grants and other payments to the Senate, which planned to hurry the measure to President Bush for his expected signature./1C

OPEC holds line

GENEVA — OPEC struck a deal Thursday to hold production around current levels through the end of the year, but Iran rejected the pact, claiming it won't push oil prices high enough this fall. The pact gave oil markets just what they had asked for — a realistic production rate of at least 24.2 million barrels a day without causing a slugfest over individual quotas between Saudi Arabia and Iran./6A

Currency crisis

LONDON — The strong aftershocks of Europe's currency crisis abated somewhat Friday, but Britain injected more uncertainty into the financial markets by saying it is in no hurry to rejoin the European exchange rate system or to support a unified Europe. Prime Minister John Major said in a television interview the pound won't return to the exchange rate mechanism until the system is run "in the interest of all the countries of Europe and not veered towards national interest in any individual country."/10A

Secret revealed

WASHINGTON — For 32 years it didn't officially exist, its name a whispered shadow, its budget a black hole. When necessary, officials referred to it as "the entity" or "the office." On Friday, bowing to relentless congressional pressure, the Pentagon revealed the existence of the super-secret agency that buys and operates the nation's spy satellites and its other airborne espionage systems./3C

Sides trade jabs

No one was blinking in the great debate debate Friday. Democrat Bill Clinton assailed President Bush for passing up a face-off next week in Michigan, while the White House said the stumbling block to debates was Clinton's refusal to negotiate. "I've listened to all their macho talk, but when it comes time to go man to man, plan to plan, where is he?" Clinton demanded at a rally at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque./1C

Perot says he may enter race again to buy TV time

■ Arizona is 50th state to put businessman on ballot.

By Richard L. Berke
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Ross Perot took to his favorite forum Friday, talk television, with a new twist to his on-again, off-again designs on the White House.

The Texas businessman said he might want to run for president, but not because he actually wants to be president. Instead, he said, re-entering the race would make it easier to buy television time from the

Richards stands firm in support of Guerrero

By Kaye Northcott
N.Y. Times News Service

AUSTIN — Gov. Ann Richards on Friday continued to stand by Railroad Commission chairwoman Lena Guerrero, saying she thinks her protege is a good public servant despite inaccuracies in her resume.

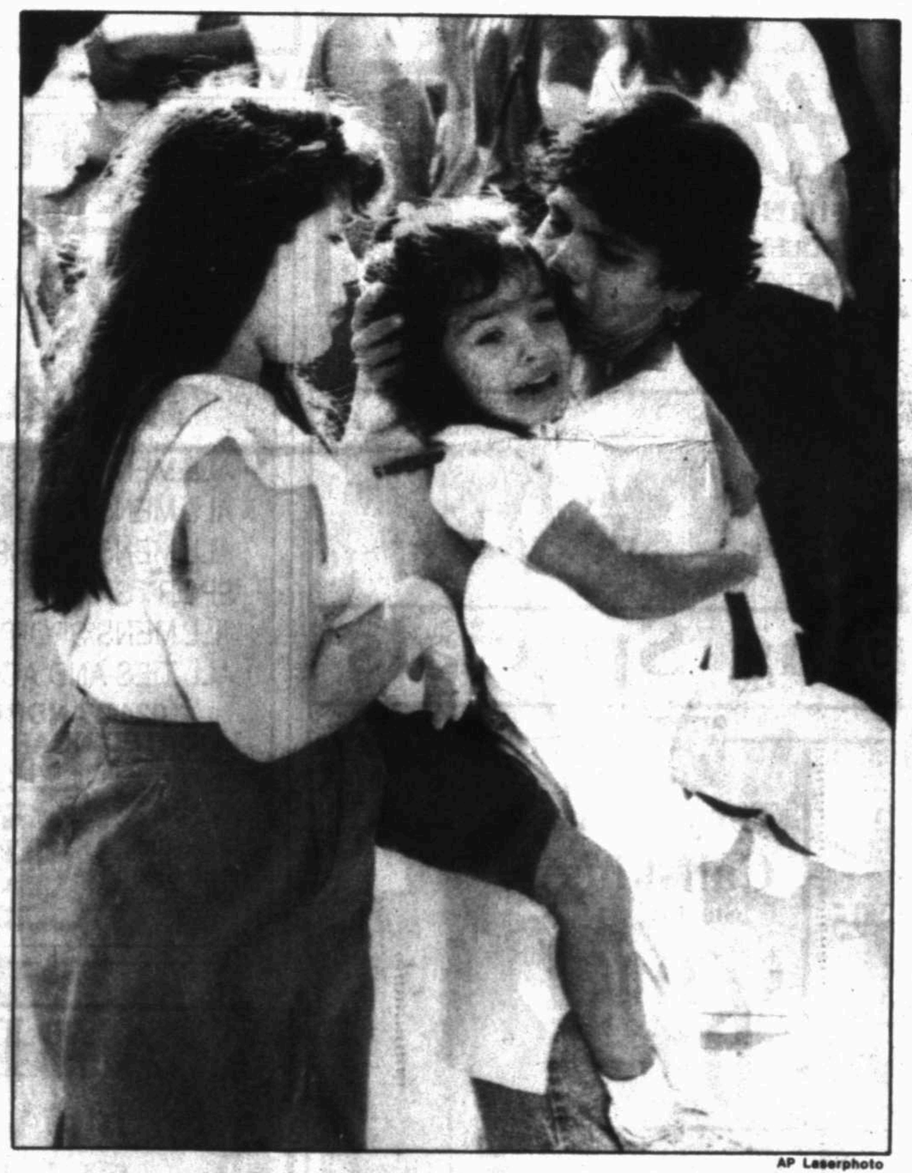

"Lena Guerrero has been recognized by the media, by newspapers, by magazines as an outstanding public servant. Nothing that you have seen has changed her service in public office," Richards said Friday before a speech at the LBJ Library.

However, Texas Republican Party chairman Fred Meyer charged that Richards' continued support of Guerrero "raises serious questions about the governor's own credibility."

■ Chaos erupts at elementary school, but no students were hurt in second school shooting in Texas in a week.

By Laura Tolley
Associated Press writer

HOUSTON — A heavily armed man apparently distraught over his son's failing grades opened fire at an elementary school Friday, wounding two officers before surrendering to police.

It was the second school shooting in Texas in a week.

Chaos erupted as terrified children hid in classrooms at Piney Point Elementary School and others fled the campus, but no students were hurt.

The two wounded officers were recovering at a local hospital, and the gunman, Calvin Charles Bell, was in Harris County Jail late Friday.

Armed with two semiautomatic guns, four ammunition clips, a combat-style hunting knife and a can of Mace and dressed entirely in black, Bell, a Vietnam veteran, walked into the administration office just before classes began Friday morning, police spokesman John Leggio said.

Bell, 44, described by one school district official as a supportive parent, exchanged words with a secretary and then allegedly fired a shot into a wall. He left the office and then shot Houston Police Officer Lowell Neinast, 29, who happened to be at the school to participate in a drug education program.

Police said Bell proceeded down another hallway, firing shots as frightened children and teachers scrambled for safety. He left the main building and made his way to an outdoor classroom.

"The man came out the door with a gun," said 9-year-old Ramon Boza, a fourth-grader at the southwest Houston school. "The man started shooting. We started running. We ran real far away to a store."

Officer David E. Dungan, 36, who was among officers called to the scene, was shot as he was searching for the gunman. Police said Bell saw swarms of officers move around the portable classrooms and he peered out of one long enough to shoot Dungan, who was wearing a bulletproof vest.

Leggio said police surrounded the outdoor building, and Bell threw out his weapons and surrendered. A third policeman, Leon Martinez III, 34, sprained his ankle when he jumped a school fence.

Bell was charged with two counts of attempted capital murder of a police officer, two counts aggravated assault on a police officer and three counts of aggravated assault. He was being held in lieu of $150,000 in bonds, police spokesman Robert Hurst said.

Neighbors and family members described Bell as a peaceful man who suffered from depression. Bell, an unemployed artist with no prior police record, recently quit taking medication that cost him about $80 a month, his sister, Evelyn, told KRTK-TV.

"What happened is not the true person he really is," said Evelyn, who would not give her last name. "All of this started because he has not been taking his medication. He's a sick man and he has not slept in maybe a week. He's one of the nicest persons who would do anything for anybody. He was out there this morning because he was sick."

Hurst said Bell "was taken over to Ben Taub Hospital" after complaining of some illness. Hurst said Bell was checked by physicians and returned to custody, but he did not know if Bell was given any medication.

GOP senate candidate decries tax

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff writer

Texas business owners are paying a state income tax in the guise of a corporate franchise tax, according to state senate candidate Rep. Troy Fraser.

Stopping in Midland late Friday afternoon, the fifth city in a five-city tour — which included Abilene, Lubbock, Wichita Falls and San Angelo — Fraser announced that a bill passed May 15 included a one-line change that levies "4.5 percent of taxable earned surplus."

"May 15 was a dark day in Texas. The legislature passed the first state income tax," Fraser said. "There is no lasting advantage of a corporate tax. . . . We should be offering incentives to businesses, not roadblocks. This tax is a roadblock."

Ernest Angelo of Midland, Republican National Committeeman, agreed. "Democratic officeholders have some sort of trouble telling the truth," Angelo said, referring to Texas Railroad Commissioner Lena Guerrero. Ms. Guerrero recently admitted she never graduated from the University of Texas at Austin and never was a member of the Phi Beta Kappa honor society, despite published biographical information to the contrary.

"We don't have to be Phi Beta Kappas to see that a tax on income is an income tax," Angelo said.

"Taxing businesses of the state is costing us a lot of jobs," Fraser said. "And some of the smaller businesses will be forced to pass this tax onto the consumer, all because the state will not live within its means.

"The state grew at a rate of 11 percent," he added. "We had sufficient money to not have a tax increase."

Larry Hay, a small business owner from Odessa, said he owns two companies in Odessa and one in New Mexico. "My main company is a truck franchise and leasing," he said. "I paid a coporate franchise tax

Fans, gossip mongers show for Woody Allen film debut

By Larry McShane
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — You've read the tabloids — now see the movie.

Film fans and gossip mongers turned out Friday for the opening of Woody Allen's "Husbands and Wives," where the on-screen Woodman chases a 21-year-old and splits up with Mia.

"I wonder what his psychiatrist thinks? I thought you were supposed to work through your fantasies," said Fran Turner, who showed up an hour before the first showing of the film in Allen's East Side neighborhood. "I think he needs a new psychiatrist."

Maybe not. Allen's angst is poured out on screen in this bit of cinema sort-of verite. "Do you ever hide things from me?" Farrow's character asks Allen early on, eliciting giggles from the crowd. "Do you think we'd ever break up?" she wonders later.

As you might guess, the flick cuts a bit close to the bone.

"What's harder to understand than why Woody has made his private life so public is why it took so long for Mia to figure it out. It's all there in the script," wrote critic Jami Bernard in the New York Post.

A quick synopsis of the movie: Allen and Farrow are married. Another couple, their close friends, separate; Woody and Mia begin to reassess their marriage. Woody almost gets involved with a 21-year-old college student. The friends get back together; Woody and Mia split.

A quick synopsis of real life: Allen and Farrow are longtime lovers. When Mia finds out Woody is sleeping with a 21-year-old college student — her adopted daughter, Soon-Yi — they split up.

The juxtaposition of the twin stories drew some folks to the Beekman theater in Manhattan to see if art imitates life.

"This is the first time I've done this," confessed Hope

FILM: 'Husbands and Wives' debuts

(From 1A)

Orsini, waiting to get inside. "I've read everything about the film — the Times, the Post, People, Newsweek — and I wanted to be the first one to see it."

A spot check of the early Manhattan showings found heavy but not sellout business. The Beekman theater on the Upper East Side was nearly full for the 11 a.m. showing, and the press turned out as well. How many reporters were there for the film's debut? At one point, a reporter from The New York Times tried to interview a reporter for The Associated Press.

In Midland, the movie opened Friday at General Cinema's Midland Park Mall Theater. "The matinees were not terribly busy and attendance remained pretty light at the first evening show," according to manager Nick Guinan. He characterized the audience as a mature-type crowd, for the art film. Show times are 2:45, 5, 7:20 and 9:35 p.m.

The guaranteed taken-from-Woody's-life laugh-getter: Allen and Juliette Lewis, playing the student infatuated with Woody, visit a man who has found a manuscript belonging to Allen in a cab.

The man is with his family; Allen brings Lewis into their house.

"If you don't mind my saying, you've got a beautiful daughter yourself," the man tells Allen. The crowd goes nuts.

Best line in the movie: As Lewis comes on to Allen at her birthday party, he deadpans, "Why do I hear $50,000 worth of psychotherapy dialing 911?"

There's also a scene where Lewis' older lover takes her to a New York Knicks game — now where have you heard THAT before?

"It's quite a movie. You feel so much for him," was the review from Joan Liebowitz, who passed up a weekend on Long Island to catch this showing. "It's all there."

WEATHER SUMMARY

Mercury to peak in low 80s

Staff report

Today's forecast is partly cloudy with a high in the lower 80s and east winds 5-10 mph, becoming southeast 5-15 mph by noon, according to the National Weather Service, at Midland International Airport.

Tonight is expected to be partly cloudy, not as cool, and a low in the mid-60s.

Sunday's forecast is mostly cloudy and warmer, with a high in the upper 80s, the NWS said.

Yesterday's high was 93, compared to the record high of 98, set in 1945. The record low for today's date is 42, set in 1991.

STATE

The first autumnlike cold front of the year moved into Texas Friday, bringing cooler temperatures and the chance for scattered storms throughout the state this weekend.

The front, drifting slowly southeast, stretched from southern Oklahoma into North Texas and across the south plains late Friday. Winds up to 25 mph were shifting to the north behind the front.

Afternoon temperatures ahead of the air mass were in the 90s, with readings in the 70s just behind the front and in the 60s across the central and northern Panhandle. Skies in the Panhandle were mostly cloudy.

In south Texas, skies were partly cloudy except for a few showers near Houston and mostly cloudy skies in the lower Rio Grande Valley. Temperatures were in the 80s and 90s.

The forecast for south Texas calls for partly to mostly cloudy skies through today with widely scattered showers and thunderstorms, especially along the coast. Temperatures were expected to be in the 60s and 70s at night and the 80s and 90s during the day.

North Texas expected conditions to turn windy and cooler today with lows in the 50s and 60s and highs in the 80s. Thunderstorms are likely tonight.

NATION

Thunderstorms scattered rain across the central portion of nation Friday. High winds swept parts of the Plains and the Northeast. Dry weather prevailed elsewhere.

Meanwhile, a new hurricane formed Friday in the Atlantic. Bonnie, the second named storm of the Atlantic hurricane season, was hundreds of miles northeast of Bermuda and posed no immediate threat to land. Its top sustained winds barely exceeded the hurricane threshold of 74 mph.

By afternoon, showers and thunderstorms were scattered from the central Gulf Coast to the lower Great Lakes; along the southern Atlantic Coast; and across Arkansas, Kansas and Iowa.

Thunderstorms developed in warm, moist air ahead of a cold front crossing the nation's midsection.

Heavier rainfall for the six hours ending at 1 p.m. CDT included more than two inches in Pensacola, Fla.; 1.75 inch at London, Ky.; and 1.26 inch at Melbourne, Fla.

High winds swept across parts of Kentucky to the Great Lakes and New England.

Skies were dry across the rest of the nation and hazy in the Northeast.

Temperatures were in the upper 80s and lower 90s across much of the Southeast. Readings were in the 80s into New England.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Buffalo Bill Cody's last grandchild dies

CODY, Wyo. (AP) — Bill Cody, the last surviving grandchild of famed frontiersman Buffalo Bill Cody, died Friday at his home. He was 79.

Cody, who had his name legally changed from Bill Garlow, had suffered from cancer but the cause of death wasn't immediately known, said Tim Powers of Ballards Funeral Home.

Flags were at half staff at the Buffalo Bill Historic Center in Cody, a northwestern Wyoming town of about 6,700 people.

"It's the end of an era," said Paul Fees, senior curator. "Bill Cody was the last of the family that knew their patriarch."

Cody changed his name in the 1960s while doing nationwide promotions as Buffalo Bill, including wearing the mustache, goatee and buckskins that were his grandfather's trademarks.

Buffalo Bill Cody was known mainly in the late 1800s for his part in the Indian wars, Pony Express and his Wild West Show, which traveled the globe to reenact settlement of the West.

SCHOOL: Shooting wounds two officers

(From 1A)

years, was shot in the left shoulder and right thigh and was in stable condition at Ben Taub Hospital following surgery police spokesman Rick Hartley said. Dungan, who has been on the force 13 years, was in good condition. Martinez, also a 13-year veteran, was treated and released from Hermann Hospital.

Houston Independent School District spokeswoman Sarah Smith said Bell apparently was upset over his son's grades. His son is a second-grader at Piney Point and was at home with his mother during the shooting. Police said both his son and wife were found safe at the family's apartment.

"It's been alleged he was not pleased with his son's grade reports," Ms. Smith said.

But the shootings still puzzled school officials.

"He is known to the staff here as an active, supportive parent. So we don't know what sparked this incident," said Jaime E. de la Isla, an associate superintendent. "To our knowledge, he seems to be a well-respected parent at this point."

Worried parents rushed to the school to get their children, many of whom were crying as they left the campus. About 650 children attend the school for students in kindergarten through fifth grade, but all of them had gone home by early Friday afternoon, Ms. Smith said.

Fifth-grader Salvador Chavez, 11, arrived just before the shooting began shortly before 8 a.m.

"I saw the man in the office; he showed his gun," Chavez said tearfully. He heard another shot as he was running to a classroom where he stayed with a teacher and several other students.

"We stayed in there hiding. We couldn't lock the doors, but we put some cabinets in front of the door," he said.

Marissa Crespo said the gunman was sitting in a car as she was walked into the school. She said she and a friend rushed to a classroom when she saw the man raise a gun out the car's window.

"We stayed there for about an hour. I was really scared," the 10-year-old fifth-grader said. She said about 11 children were in the room, but there was no teacher.

"We locked the room. We covered the windows with plastic and paper. Everybody was screaming and crying," she said. "We had to calm ourselves down. We wanted to be quiet, but we were really nervous. We're just little kids. Everybody thought we were going to get shot."

But Ms. Smith, who inspected the school after the ordeal, said she was thankful no one else was injured.

"I think we need to get down on our knees," she said. "It really could have been worse."

Classes were to resume as scheduled Monday, but she said counselors will be back at the school for students and teachers.

Friday's shooting comes one week after a 17-year-old Amarillo student opened fire in a crowded hallway after a pep rally. Six students were shot and another trampled in that shooting at Palo Duro High School.

Randy Earl Matthews was charged Monday with six counts of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. That first-degree felony is punishable by up to 99 years in prison or life, and a fine of $10,000.

Matthews also was charged with one count of carrying a weapon on school campus, a third-degree felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

GOP: Senate candidate opposes corporate tax of $2,400 last year and (due to the passage of the bill in May) am looking at 8 times that much for this year.

(From 1A)

"A coporate tax means a tax paid by corporations of Texas — the people who furnish jobs," Hay said. "Without corporations, there are no jobs. When corporations go out of state (to avoid taxes), jobs go with them and taxes go out the door, too."

Hay called on citizens to "vote out any politician who voted for this tax."

Fraser said the corporate tax garnered $800 million last year and is expected to amount to more than $1.1 billion this year. "That's dollars not being put back into businesses — equipment or jobs," he said.

The state senate candidate also noted that 30,000 new state employees were added last year. "Those jobs were created in Austin, none showed up in Midland, Texas," he said.

Fraser said, if elected, he would repeal the bill that instated the corporate franchise tax. He, and other Republicans in attendance at the Friday news conference, called for repealing the tax and denounced the Democrats "who enacted it."

Public Utility Commissioner Marta Greytok also attended the news conference at Cutter Beechcraft.

PEROT: Texan could throw twist into campaign networks for commercials pushing his prescription for the ailing economy.

(From 1A)

"Interestingly enough, I'm trapped," Perot said on the NBC News "Today" program. "They won't sell it to me unless I declare as a candidate. So I may be the first guy in history that had to declare he was a candidate so he could buy TV time."

On July 16, Perot abruptly dropped out of the race, and nothing he said Friday contradicted that earlier announcement. But Perot has continued to tease interviewers and the public about his intentions, and he kept up this familiar routine Friday morning and evening on the "MacNeil/Lehrer Newshour" on PBS and on ABC's "Nightline."

At the same time, Arizona became the 50th state to submit his name for the November ballot, a development that coupled with his continued respectable showing in recent polls, could make Perot more of a factor in the campaign.

He could demand, for instance, that he be included in presidential debates because he appears to meet the threshold of the bipartisan Commission on Presidential Debates: that a candidate's name be on the ballot in a majority of states and have a substantial standing in the polls.

Perot said his decision to revive a full-fledged campaign would depend on whether President Bush or Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton present an economic plan he deems responsible. But he put the burden on his supporters to "make that decision eventually" about whether he should run.

While it is, as usual, not clear what Perot will eventually do, neither is it clear what a Perot candidacy would mean for either major party.

Fourteen percent of voters say they would cast their ballot for Perot if his name appears in their state, according to a New York Times/CBS News Poll taken last week. The poll found that Perot would draw equally from both parties, with 10 percent of Bush's supporters saying they would vote for Perot, and about 12 percent of Clinton's. The margin of sampling error for the poll was plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Stephen J. Wayne, a professor of government at Georgetown University, referred to Perot's well-known dislike for Bush as he summed up the Texan's options: "Here's a guy with a big ego who wants to show that people still love him. How do you get in and show that people love you without looking foolish and without resulting in the re-election of President Bush?"

Wayne echoed many academics and strategists who believe an active campaign by Perot could tip the balance to Bush or to Clinton in battleground states like Texas and California.

But a looming question is whether Perot left his many original supporters with such a feeling of betrayal that they might not vote in November for him or anyone else.

In a Times/CBS News Poll taken last June after the California primary, Perot's popularity was at its peak. He was virtually tied with Bush, with the backing of 30 percent of the voters to Bush's 33 percent, while Clinton had 24 percent.

In the current poll, however, Perot has something he did not have then: negative ratings about twice as high as his positive ones. Twenty-one percent of voters have a favorable view of Perot but 39 percent have an unfavorable view.

After Perot dropped out of the race, more than half of his supporters said he had walked away from what he had set out to do without accomplishing very much. A Times/CBS News Poll conducted July 16-17, also found 41 percent of Perot's supporters bearing some anger toward him, saying they felt deserted, while 50 percent did not feel that way.

Yet there still seem to be many Perot loyalists around the country. "In July, we lost half of our volunteers," Catherine Boley, a volunteer in the Phoenix office of Perot's political organization, United We Stand, America, said Friday in a telephone interview.

"But we started the petition drive just 10 days ago, and we've just been amazed at how many people are crawling out of the woodwork everywhere," she said. "We can't even believe it ourselves."

Perot said his lawyers are figuring out whether he has to formally declare his candidacy to buy television time. Kathleen Hall Jamieson, dean of the Annenberg School for Communication at the University of Pennsylvania, said buying television time is a legitimate issue.

She said, for instance, that the networks might be reluctant to allow Perot to buy a five-minute block because it could "wreak havoc with their scheduling." But if Perot were an actual candidate, the networks would be required to sell him the time because the Bush campaign bought a five-minute block last week.

Report ranks Sen. Bivins in top 10 senators

By John Powers
Reporter-Telegram Austin bureau

AUSTIN — A report by the Free Market Political Action Committee rates Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, among the top 10 in a conservative ranking of the state's 31 senators.

Under the redistricting plan that will be used for state elections Nov. 3, Bivins, who is unopposed, will pick up Midland County as part of his district.

In the House, Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, scored the seventh highest conservative score by the PAC.

Based on 70 issues in the Senate during the 1991 regular and special sessions, the PAC said Bivins voted for the conservative position 26 percent of the time. That was down from a rating of 72 percent after the 1989 session.

Traditionally, Bivins has ranked near the top of most conservative lists. Even at 26 percent, he was tied with Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, for ninth place on the conservative scale.

Sims, the current incumbent representing Midland, is opposed for re-election in the new Senate District 25 by Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring. The PAC rated Fraser as voting with its position 72 percent of the time.

The ratings by the Free Market PAC generally were very low. Only two senators ranked above 50 percent. John Leedom, R-Dallas, was tops at 69 percent, and Buster Brown, R-Lake Jackson, scored 57 percent.

In the House, Fraser had a 72 percent rating, Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, scored in the middle at 50 percent, and Rep. Gary Watkins, D-Odessa, had a 20 percent conservative voting record.

Rep. Talmadge Heflin, R-Houston, was the most conservative House member, with a 95 percent rating.

Because of the large number of votes used to determine the rating, a ranking in the high 80s or above would be the equivalent of 100 percent on most conservative rankings, and a rating in the mid-teens or lower would be equal to zero, the report said.

The Free Market PAC supports free enterprise, limited government, private property rights, limited taxation and traditional values, the report said.

Among Senate votes, the Free Market PAC position included opposition to the general appropriations bill, reform of the corporate franchise tax, tax increases to meet the budget, public school financing and a bill to allow parents who leave their jobs to care for a sick child to receive unemployment benefits.

Also, the PAC opposed bonds for student loans, automatic payroll dues deductions for state employees and teachers for memberships in professional organizations, guidance and counseling programs in elementary schools, the state lottery and cruise ship gambling.

In the House, the PAC also favored a constitutional amendment to require voter approval before imposing a state income tax, and opposed bills to create stiffer penalties for hate crimes and allow casino gambling in Port Arthur.

GOVERNOR: Richards continues to support Guerrero

(From 1A)

"Ann Richards made a promise to the people of Texas to support ethics in her administration. Instead, she is condoning lies by failing to take any action to chastise Lena Guerrero," Meyer said in a press release.

Richards, who forced the resignations of several top Republican state employees for alleged ethics violations, shrugged off Meyer's criticism. "I cannot think of one single time since I've been governor that Fred Meyer has had anything positive to say about my performance," she said.

There was speculation in political circles here that Richards would ask Guerrero to resign, but Richards did not waver in her support of Guerrero, who was her first appointee as governor. Guerrero, the first woman and first Hispanic to serve on the Texas Railroad Commission, is now running for a full six-year term on the commission.

Meyer said, "It is now sadly clear that Lena Guerrero is continuing to lie on a daily basis."

The Democratic railroad commissioner has been forced to backtrack on a series of erroneous statements since she admitted a week ago that she did not have a college degree from the University of Texas at Austin.

Meyer and Guerrero's Republican opponent, Barry Williamson of Dallas, have called for Guerrero's resignation.

Guerrero, who has said she will not resign, canceled a scheduled meeting with the Fort Worth Star-Telegram editorial board on Thursday. She also canceled appearances for the weekend. "It's been a tough week. She needed some time to herself," said a campaign aide, Chuck McDonald.

Richards was at the hairdresser last Friday when her press secretary Bill Cryer delivered the message from Guerrero that she did not have the college degree she has claimed to have for the past 12 years.

While some report she was privately angry, Richards has been unwavering in her public support. "She's basically told Lena it's your life and you have to do what's right for Lena Guerrero," McDonald said.

While Meyer and other Republicans have said that Guerrero's embarrassing revelations will rub off on Richards and the Democratic ticket this fall, Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party, said they will not.

"I don't think it (the Guerrero situation) has any effect on the ticket. This is a very candidate-specific issue and we haven't see how it will play out in that race. But these are very personal in nature," he said.

"It is clear she made some mistakes," Martin said. "But there still is the question if Barry Williamson is qualified to serve on the commission."

While Richards said she advised Guerrero to answer all questions from the press truthfully, Guerrero was slow with some of her admissions.

When Guerrero confirmed last week that she did not have a degree, she implied that she was within four hours of fulfilling its requirements.

On Sunday she confirmed that she was not a member of Phi Beta Kappa as many of her official biographies stated. She said she had never made the claim herself.

On Wednesday she released her college transcripts, which indicated she was at least 19 hours short of a degree and had amassed six Fs. She twice failed "Introduction to Image and Sound," which was a prerequisite to a broadcasting degree from the School of Communications.

On Thursday, several Texas television stations aired a portion of a commencement speech she delivered at Texas A&M University in August. In it she said, "I remember well my own commencement." She referred again to her college graduation when addressing graduates of Southwest Texas State University on Aug. 17, 1991.

Check finds Fort Worth mayor didn't receive journalism degree

FORT WORTH (AP) — Mayor Kay Granger did not receive a degree in journalism from the University of Texas-Arlington as her resume indicates, making her the second prominent state official in weeks to be dogged by questions about their academic record.

In a random check of various state officials' resumes by KXAS-TV, the television station found that Granger failed to earn a journalism degree from UTA in 1975 as her resume states. She did, as the resume states, graduate magna cum laude in English from Texas Wesleyan University in 1965.

A school official confirmed Friday that Ms. Granger had taken only three journalism courses at the Arlington school.

The mayor said she did not know how the mistake occurred, but she promised to correct it immediately.

"It's a mistake. I'm horribly embarrassed by it," Granger said.

OPEC holds line on production

Hearst News Service

GENEVA — OPEC struck a deal Thursday to hold production around current levels through the end of the year, but Iran rejected the pact, claiming it won't push oil prices high enough this fall.

The pact gave oil markets just what they had asked for — a realistic production rate of at least 24.2 million barrels a day without causing a slugfest over individual quotas between Saudi Arabia and Iran.

Also Thursday, Ecuador — OPEC's second-smallest member — became the first nation to leave the oil cartel, citing the expense of membership fees and OPEC's refusal to raise the nation's production quota.

Despite the generally upbeat outcome on the production accord, U.S. oil prices dropped 9 cents to $22.30 a barrel Thursday on disparaging remarks by Iranian Minister Gholamreza Aghazadeh.

Aghazadeh called the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' newest pact "political," and charged that OPEC "is not serious" about the price increase the majority of countries need to shore up their struggling economies.

"Until Aghazadeh spoke, it was very bullish," said Vahan Zanoyan, senior director of Washington-based Petroleum Finance Co., a consulting company. Zanoyan said he believes the initial cold shower effect will soon wear off, however, and prices will start gaining strength as colder weather kicks in.

OPEC resorted to offbeat semantics in the wording of this agreement; sources say it was a clever way of avoiding any mention of country-by-country quotas.

Instead of calling its 24.2 million-barrel-a-day output target a production ceiling, the group called it a market share in what was described as an eleventh-hour compromise. The agreement included no quotas for the members, which were expected to hold fairly close to their current output.

Recent estimates of OPEC output is near the limit set by the group.

Setting a production ceiling "would have entailed a new quota, and we wanted to avoid getting embroiled in the discussion of a new quota," according to one minister.

Although the formal figure penned Thursday by OPEC pegs fourth-quarter production at 24.2 million, industry experts believe the actual figure will probably be more like 24.4 million to 24.7 million barrels.

The agreement allows for gradual production increases by Kuwait. Kuwait hopes to raise its capacity by 300,000 barrels a day by the end of the year to its pre-invasion quota of 1.5 million.

Oil analysts also expect demand to be brisk enough this fall to absorb a little extra oil from the other members as well.

"It is positive — it's what the market is expecting us to do," Indonesian Minister Ginandjar Kartasasmita said. Ginandjar said that like Aghazadeh, he had hoped for an agreement that would rein in output more and boost prices higher. But he acknowledged that Thursday's outcome was probably more realistic and will be viewed with more credibility by oil traders.

Ginandjar said he expects OPEC to achieve its target of $21 a barrel for OPEC crude by year's end and predicts prices will average at least $20 a barrel or more during the last three months of the year. OPEC crude sells for $2 to $2.50 a barrel less than the U.S. benchmark West Texas Intermediate.

Aghazadeh said he hopes the pact can produce those prices, but he's angry the organization didn't do more to achieve its 2-year-old price goal.

OPEC so far this year has received an average of only about $18.25 a barrel for its crude.

150 children protest slave labor

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Holding placards almost the size of their bodies, about 150 children marched to the Labor Minister's office Friday to protest employers who use young children to weave carpets.

The children, most of them aged 4 to 7, demanded the government implement laws that ban anyone under age 14 from working in factories. The child protesters were recently freed from sweat shops in the northern state of Uttar Pradesh.

The South Asian Coalition on Child Servitude, a group of volunteers from India, Pakistan, Nepal and Bangladesh, organized the rally as part of the Carpet Children Day to highlight the inhuman conditions of child workers.

'My master used to make me bend down and hold my feet if I made a mistake. He would then begin beating me on the back with a stick.'

—Ram Narain

"We are children, not slaves!" the marchers shouted as police stood by.

More than 1 million children under 14 work up to 18 hours a day in Asian carpet factories. Volunteers, who urged a boycott of carpets made by children, say many youngsters are kidnapped or lured with promises of high wages.

"My master used to make me bend down and hold my feet if I made a mistake. He would then begin beating me on the back with a stick," said Ram Narain, a 7-year-old boy rescued from a carpet factory in Mirzapur in Uttar Pradesh.

Nicaragua builds new cathedral

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (NYT) — Some Nicaraguans complain that it looks like a mosque, others say a giant egg carton, but its defenders say it will be a cathedral for the 21st century, something to help this deeply wounded nation begin to recover both spiritually and physically.

The new Roman Catholic sanctuary, rising on 26 acres several miles south of what used to be downtown Managua, will be by far the most impressive building in a country regularly devastated by earthquakes, hurricanes and war.

It is also a monument to the savvy style of the archbishop, Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, a priest of humble rural origins who opposed the leftist Sandinista government for more than a decade.

He has shown equal savvy in hooking up with a wealthy American businessman who is paying two-thirds of the $3 million cost and who has also hired an internationally acclaimed architect to design it.

Msgr. Eddy Montenegro, the cardinal's chief aide as chancellor of the archdiocese, said church leaders had hoped that the construction of the cathedral would go parallel with the building of democracy in Nicaragua. But he said it was turning out to be "easier to build a temple than change the heart of man."

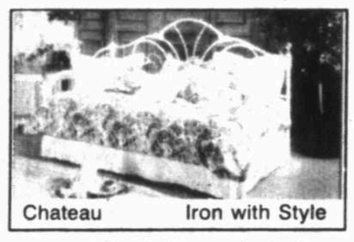

Managua has been without a cathedral since December 1972, when a great earthquake wiped out most of the city's center.

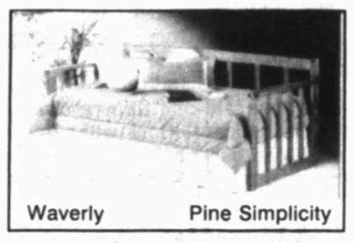

Only scattered and rudimentary reconstruction of the city had taken place before growing dissatisfaction with four decades of Somoza family rule broke out into a popular insurrection, led by the Sandinista Front, that toppled Anastasio Somoza Debayle in 1979.

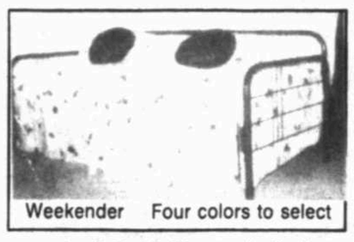

Over the next few years, reconstruction received little more than lip service as political instability worsened, eventually plunging into the civil war pitting the Sandinista government against the U.S.-backed contras.

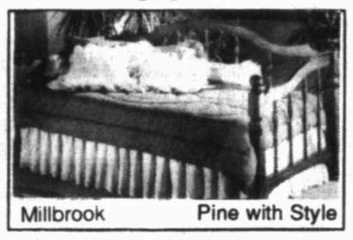

The church was in the middle of the ideological turmoil, with some politically involved priests joining the Sandinista government and advocating a union between Christianity and Marxism. But Obando's firm hand made most of the church a bastion of anti-Sandinista thinking.

Fighting rages as Geneva talks get off to difficult start

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Heavy fighting raged for a second day Friday in the western suburbs of Bosnia's besieged capital, and peace talks in Geneva appeared to stumble at the starting line.

The intense shelling closed the perilous road connecting the airport with downtown Sarajevo. Bosnian government forces said 30 soldiers were killed while repelling a Serb attack on Stup, a suburb near the airport and U.N. headquarters.

The heavy fighting was viewed as an effort to strengthen bargaining positions in the Geneva negotiations.

If Serbs capture the center of Stup, they will isolate a pocket of government defenders to the southwest and dominate the road to the airport. If government forces expand their hold, they are closer to breaking the Serb siege by linking up with other troops in Sarajevo's hinterland.

The Bosnian government said 34 people were killed and 290 wounded in the republic over the previous 24 hours, including 25 killed and 185 wounded in Sarajevo. The figures did not include military casualties.

Meanwhile, Bosnian military headquarters said it had received reports of a large number of bodies — as many as 200 — floating down the Drina River toward Gorazde, the besieged Muslim-held town east of Sarajevo.

Hunger plagues rebel-besieged town of Sudan

JUBA, Sudan (AP) — Nafissa Wani, a 19-year-old mother of two, can find no milk or food for her children. Helplessly, she watches their eyes becoming more sunken, their bellies more bloated.

"They are getting dry and gray every day because we can't buy them milk," said Nafissa. "They have to drink marissa to keep their bellies warm." Marissa is a locally made non-nutritious beer brewed from sorghum.

Nafissa and her children are among 400,000 people living in Juba, capital of the southern Equatoria region of Sudan, besieged by the rebel Sudan People's Liberation Army for years.

The city survives totally on airlifted relief food, but the airlifts are sporadic because of the lack of security around Juba, 750 miles south of the capital, Khartoum.

Rebel gunners claim to have shot down several military and civilian airplanes during the nine years of rebellion in the war-torn south. They justify such attacks with the argument that the government has used relief planes, specifically C-130s with United Nations markings, to reinforce and resupply Juba's besieged garrison.

The civil war has roots in traditional animosity between Sudan's Islamic Arab-based government and southern Christians and animists of black African descent. Rebel leader John Garang took up arms in 1983 to press for southern autonomy and a better share for the south of Sudan's economic and developmental resources.

Both government and rebels have used food as a weapon in the war. As a result, hundreds of thousands of civilians have died in war-caused famine.

"Flights control prices here. They suspend the flights for three days, and it will triple the prices," Nafissa said. "But then even with the arrival of flights, not many people can afford to buy a kilo of sugar at the price of $2, let alone a sack of sorghum at $80."

Nafissa and most of the 280,000 displaced people in Juba fled their homes because of fighting. In the relative security of Juba, she lived in a shantytown at the outskirts called Attia Baraa — Arabic for "Get Out," a sign of how unwelcome the refugees were.

Because of intensified rebel shelling of Juba, which has killed scores of civilians, the displaced as well as the original inhabitants have been cramped in crowded, unsanitary conditions for nine months.

Some outside human rights monitors charge that soldiers of the Muslim fundamentalist military government forcibly keep people inside the city and routinely maltreat, even torture, suspected rebel sympathizers.

The military governor of Equatoria, Maj. Gen. Sterlino Arika, said his 82,500-square-mile region is the worst affected of the three southern regions. Its population has dwindled from 1.5 million when the rebellion began in 1983 to 500,000, mostly in Juba.

The hunger and misery of the displaced people in Juba contrasts sharply with conditions for the original inhabitants. They appear healthy, are smartly dressed in African and European clothes and lead an almost normal life.

They must cope with high prices, but many have money. In Juba's African-style market, people haggle over prices of goods and vegetables displayed on the ground. The price of a 110-pound bag of sorghum is $80, two months' salary of a mid-career government official.

"We're fed up. We want peace, and we want our schools opened," said 16-year-old Joseph James. "For nine months, we've been unable to go to the schools, which are now occupied by those people you see around."

He meant the refugees. Nafissa and her children live in a school compound.

But James and his companions stressed that the situation is much better than it was three months ago. Then, he said, people lay on the streets without food or shelter.

Russians to disclose 'tragic information' on Americans

By Wendy Sloane
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW — A Russian investigator said Friday that his government will disclose "tragic information" next week about American soldiers who died in the Soviet Union, including pilots shot down during the Cold War.

Vladimir Kozlov, deputy chairman of the Russian-American Bilateral Commission on POWs, said the revelations will be made at a weeklong conference that opens Monday in Moscow.

"There's evidence and new tragic information about the fates of several people who were here at different times, especially during World War II," Kozlov said in an interview with The Associated Press.

He added that some of the documents concern U.S. pilots who were shot down or taken prisoner during the Cold War. Information about two Americans executed in Soviet prison camps during World War II also will be given to U.S. officials, Kozlov said. He refused to provide further details in advance.

Gen. Dmitri Volkogonov, a reformist military historian who co-chairs the commission, said in an interview published Friday that the two executed Americans had been serving prison sentences for espionage.

Volkogonov told The Moscow Times, an English-language newspaper, that Russia would release telegrams between Josef Stalin and Mao Tse-tung about exchanges of American prisoners during the Korean War.

Volkogonov had previously disclosed that 59 Americans, mostly pilots, were downed by the North Korean and Soviet air forces during the Korean War and were kept in North Korean camps. He said authorities found records of KGB interrogations of the pilots, which consisted mostly of technical questions about their planes and equipment.

The commission was founded last spring by President Bush and Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin. The other chairman is Malcolm Toon, a former American ambassador to Moscow.

So far the commission has produced little concrete information about the status of POWs, although it published the names of several dozen American civilians who came to the former Soviet Union after being caught in Eastern Europe at the beginning of World War II.

Kozlov said the commission also would be able to provide the last names of a group of Americans it earlier reported had disappeared on Soviet territory during World War II.

Kozlov said no missing Americans were still alive in the former Soviet Union, except for some Ukrainians and other Slavs who were born in the United States but came to the former Soviet Union at an early age, or who immigrated to America and later returned to their homeland.

Crowds gather in large protest against Collor

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — More than 700,000 people ignored heavy rain Friday to join the biggest rally to date demanding the impeachment of President Fernando Collor de Mello.

The festive crowd, amid a sea of Brazilian flags and protest banners that stretched for dozens of blocks, danced and sang, "Impeachment When? Now!"

As Collor, accused of taking at least $6.5 million in illegal payments from an aide, prepared his impeachment defense, new charges surfaced linking the aide to drug smugglers.

In Rio de Janeiro, protesters jeered and threw money at Collor when he arrived Thursday night at a clinic to visit his mother, who was hospitalized after suffering a severe heart attack.

Collor's brother Pedro — who sparked the scandal in May by charging his brother with corruption — also was at the hospital. The two avoided each other, according to Collor's aides.

Federal police said Friday that an Argentine drug trafficker had testified he smuggled cocaine for Paulo Cesar Farias, Collor's 1989 campaign treasurer, who also faces charges of corruption, tax evasion, influence peddling and money laundering.

Federal police interrogated Nunez for seven hours last Saturday, police spokesman Paulo Marra said in Brasilia, the capital.

Nunez told the magazine Isto E that he flew hundreds of pounds of cocaine and raw coca paste into Brazil in early 1990.

According to excerpts published Friday in major newspapers, Nunez said he worked for Farias, his brother Luiz Romero Farias, and Jorge Bandeira de Mello.

Pharmacy blast kills at least 15, wounds many

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — An explosion toppled a three-story building on a downtown corner packed with merchants and shoppers at midday Friday. Officials said at least 15 people were killed and hundreds hurt.

Clouds of black smoke billowed from the wreckage as rescuers frantically pulled victims from the ruins.

An army communique said chemicals exploded in a pharmaceutical laboratory in the building.

The military sought to cut off speculation of a political cause. Tensions are high in Haiti nearly a year after the coup that toppled popularly elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

Witnesses counted 10 bodies lined up on the sidewalk by police, who quickly cordoned off the area. Mayor Gerard Salomon told The Associated Press that at least 15 people were killed.

Total casualties numbered "in the hundreds," said Dr. William Fougere, president of the Haitian Red Cross. He appealed to Haitians to donate bandages and other medical supplies to Red Cross first-aid teams at the scene.

Ambulances took several survivors to the city's General Hospital. A source at the hospital, speaking on condition of anonymity, said 150 people were treated, 31 of them admitted for surgery or observation.

The concrete building, on bustling Jean-Jacques Dessalines Boulevard, the city's main street, housed a drugstore on the first floor, with a pharmaceutical laboratory and warehouse above it.

Merchants' small wooden stalls, filled with second-hand clothing and other goods, lined the sidewalk outside. Many were crushed by the blast, which also trapped five tap-taps, the colorful trucks used as buses in Haiti.

"The building is a heap of rubble," said a witness, Marie-Gerald Theodore, 23. "I saw a woman lifted into an ambulance to be taken to the hospital. Her body was torn to ribbons."

Lighthouse saluting Columbus becomes misguided monument

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The Columbus Lighthouse was to have been a national showcase, attracting millions of tourists to the site of the first permanent Spanish settlement in the Americas.

Instead, some critics are calling the half-mile-long, 10-story-high cross-shaped structure a multimillion-dollar monument to the misguided spending priorities of President Joaquin Balaguer.

"This is a gigantic cross planted on the back of the Dominican people," said historian Frank Moya Pons. "This is a clear example of the lack of social priorities."

The project also runs counter to the evolving historical view of Columbus, which credits his discoveries but also makes note of his support of slavery, subjugation and extermination of Indians.

The lighthouse — known in Spanish as the Faro a Colon — opens next month, and was to have been the centerpiece of a grand quincentennial celebration. Columbus was the first Spanish governor of the island of Hispaniola, which the Dominican Republic shares with Haiti.

Dominican officials had talked of having President Bush, Pope John Paul, Spain's King Juan Carlos and Latin American leaders at a first official lighting of the monument, with Bob Hope possibly hosting a show marking the opening.

Now the government is busy playing down the Oct. 12 opening, saying July's Ibero-American summit in Madrid took away much of the need for a high-level get-together, and most of the invited leaders have begged off.

Balaguer, in a recent news conference, said his opponents have used the monument "to direct strong attacks against the government" by portraying the project as "a lavish work" for a poor country to undertake.

But he defended the project, calling the lighthouse one of the nation's most important monuments. The government has not said how much the lighthouse cost, but Balaguer said it was money well spent.

Columbus expressed the desire to be buried in Santo Domingo, and the monument will contain a lead coffin said to be his, although Spain contends it holds the explorer's remains.

Government officials have said the concrete-and-stone monument would attract millions of tourists. But critics note that the government uprooted thousands of squatters from the site, and that a 10-foot wall blocks slums from the view of tourists.

On recent nights the government has been testing the monument's 140 beams of light, illustrating a cross that promoters say can be seen as far away as Puerto Rico, 150 miles to the east. Critics fear the lighthouse will sap a fragile power grid that already convulses the capital in daily outages.

Of hemispheric leaders, only Argentina's Carlos Menem and El Salvador's Alfredo Cristiani are tentatively scheduled to attend the lighthouse's opening.

ANC leaders denounce government at funeral

KING WILLIAM'S TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Looting and violence broke out in Ciskei on Friday hours after angry ANC mourners buried the 28 victims of a massacre by troops of the black homeland.

A hotel was looted by youths and buildings were burned, according to news reports. A Ciskei policeman, who refused to give his name, said some looters had been shot by homeland forces.

A hospital in Mdantsane, Ciskei, said one man was killed and two others wounded after the funeral in King William's Town, South Africa, just across the border from Ciskei, which is one of 10 nominally independent homelands created by the white South African government.

Pretoria's Deputy Defense Minister W. Breytenbach blamed the South African Communist Party and the African National Congress for the violence.

At the service for the victims of the Sept. 7 massacre, ANC leaders blamed President F.W. de Klerk's government for the killings. In Cape Town, demonstrators planted 28 white crosses in the ground near de Klerk's residence.

Despite the funeral's militant mood, the white minority government and the ANC are moving toward resuming formal talks on political reform after months of poor relations chilled by chronic violence.

Talks have started on a possible summit between de Klerk and ANC President Nelson Mandela, which would be the first formal meeting between the two sides since the ANC broke off political negotiations in June.

De Klerk said Friday that progress was being made on getting the ANC to return to talks on a new constitution. He also proposed legislation that would allow blacks to join the Cabinet for the first time, a step he proposed earlier this week as a prelude to elections for a multiracial government.

Mandela has said he would meet with de Klerk on ways to resume negotiations if the government meets some conditions on ending violence.

In a packed sports stadium near the border with Ciskei, about 40,000 mourners saw 28 coffins draped in the green, black and gold colors of the ANC.

Armored police vehicles and policemen and soldiers, some carrying automatic rifles and others in riot gear, patrolled outside the stadium.

■ Gunmen kill judge in charge of Escobar's case

BOGOTA, Colombia — Gunmen on Friday shot and killed a judge who had been investigating a murder charge against fugitive druglord Pablo Escobar, the Caracol radio network reported.

Miriam Rocio Velez, 38, was one of Colombia's so-called "faceless" judges, whose identities are supposedly kept secret to protect them from the terrorists and drug traffickers they are investigating.

Three of Velez's bodyguards were killed in the attack near the judge's home in a southern suburb of Medellin, 150 miles northwest of the capital.

Caracol said Velez had been investigating the 1986 murder of Guillermo Cano, publisher of Bogota's El Espectador newspaper. Escobar is charged with ordering Cano's killing.

Velez had received numerous death threats since beginning work on the case, which Caracol said was the most concrete the government has going against Escobar, who is also blamed for killing such prominent Colombians as Attorney General Carlos Mauro, Justice Minister Rodrigo Lara and Liberal Party presidential candidate Luis Carlos Galan.

■ Masked gunmen kill Kurdish politicians in Berlin

BONN, Germany — Masked gunmen burst into a Berlin restaurant late Thursday night and killed four men, including a leading Kurdish politician from Iran.

Among the victims was Sadegh Sharafkandi, 54, secretary general of the Iranian Democratic Party of Kurdistan. He took over the leadership of the party after his predecessor was slain in Vienna in 1989.

Kurdish exile leaders blamed the Iranian secret service for the attack. The police later said they also believed that Iranians were involved.

In a statement late on Friday, the Iranian Embassy in Bonn rejected charges that Tehran had sponsored the killers. "We do not know who these people are or for what purpose they came to Berlin," the embassy said.

The world's 20 million Kurds are natives of various countries, none of which grant them full rights. About half live in Turkey, where some of their villages are now under military attack. Some 4.5 million live in Iraq, 2.5 million in Iran, and smaller numbers in Syria or former Soviet republics.

Because most Kurdish groups favor either creation of an independent Kurdistan or autonomy within existing nations, they are considered hostile by governments that rule over them.

■ Patients flee mental hospital, harass pedestrians

LAGOS, Nigeria — Psychiatric patients took advantage of a nurses' strike to flee a mental hospital, rushing into the streets of Benin to rob and harass pedestrians, hospital sources and witnesses said.

Traffic was disrupted in the town 200 miles east of Lagos on Thursday as the patients, some naked, converged on a market and ransacked shops.

Five members of the National Civil Defense Corps were injured while trying to return the patients to the hospital.

Families of many of the patients rushed to the scene to bring their relatives home.

The nurses and other hospital staff went on strike to demand hazardous duty pay.

Currency crisis shows no signs of ending

LONDON (AP) — The strong aftershocks of Europe's currency crisis abated somewhat Friday, but Britain injected more uncertainty into the financial markets by saying it is in no hurry to rejoin the European exchange rate system or to support a unified Europe.

Prime Minister John Major said in a television interview the pound won't return to the exchange rate mechanism until the system is run "in the interest of all the countries of Europe and not veered towards national interest in any individual country."

Britain withdrew the pound from the exchange system Wednesday night after trying in vain to support the currency against the powerful German mark. Britain blamed high German interest rates for pressuring the pound, and accused Germany's central bank, the Bundesbank, of helping to drive sterling out of the exchange grid, which is designed to maintain stability among European currencies.

The Bundesbank lowered two key rates a fraction of a percentage point on Monday. But the drop was smaller than hoped, prompting disappointed investors to sell off the pound and other European currencies.

The high interest rates make investments in the German mark more attractive. Conversely, the pound and other currencies are less able to compete if they are backed by lower rates.

Currency fluctuations lessened Friday as markets awaited the outcome of a weekend meeting of finance ministers of the seven richest industrial nations in Washington and the results of Sunday's vote in France on the Maastricht treaty.

The treaty, agreed upon by European Community nations in February, would establish a single currency, foreign policy, and tight political cooperation by the end of this decade.

Major said Friday he would not ask the House of Commons to ratify the treaty unless France votes "yes" and Denmark decides how it will resolve its "no" vote earlier this year. The treaty envisions a Europe without economic borders and with a single currency.

Central banks maintained order during Friday's trading. But the French franc, the Irish pound and the Danish krone came under renewed attack by traders selling those currencies in favor of the mark. Britain's pound tumbled to a new low of 2.6050 marks.

Still, market analysts were counting their blessings Friday after a week that also saw Italy remove the lira from the exchange rate mechanism, Spain devalue the peseta and Sweden raise interest rates to an astounding 500 percent.

"At least we've got through the French vote without any more currencies pulled out," said Adrian James, an economist at County NatWest Treasury and Capital Markets. "That's a measure of the situation at the moment."

The withdrawal of Britain and Italy from the rate system stunned Europe's financial community and worried American and Asian investors who had put enormous sums of money into Europe during five previous years of relative stability. In Asia on Friday, traders were reluctant to buy any type of European currency, taking haven in the U.S. dollar.

The exchange mechanism was installed in 1979 to keep a predictable level of variation among Europe's currencies.

It is designed to make trade easier and to inspire confidence in plans to create a single currency. It also is an important psychological symbol of European cooperation.

This week's sharp fluctuations may have no immediate effect on most prices, but they could undermine confidence in the future of European economic organization.

The medicine needed to restore order to the currency markets can be bitter. Some countries have been forced to defend their sinking currencies by raising interest rates.

Blast kills 9 in gold mine

YELLOWKNIFE, Northwest Territories (AP) — Nine miners were killed when an underground explosion ripped through the Giant Yellowknife gold mine Friday morning, and police suspected foul play.

"It's our feeling that there was criminal activity," said Inspector Dennis Clark of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in Yellowknife.

He said a criminal investigation had been launched, but would not say whether he believed the blast was related to a bitter labor dispute at the mine, 600 miles north of Edmonton, Alberta.

There have been several explosions at the mine since miners went on strike May 23.

The blast Friday struck at 8:45 a.m. in a tunnel more than 660 feet deep, used to transport miners, said the mine's owner, Royal Oak Inc.

An industry spokesman said he suspected explosives were involved.

NAME: Diana Boykin
OCCUPATION: Teacher, De Zavala Elementary
VOLUNTEER POSITION: Committee Member, Midland Introspective

Diana Boykin says volunteering puts her in contact with outstanding citizens of the community--people she would never meet otherwise.

"Each occupation has its own jargon, and I love hearing it. It gives me something to give to the kids," she said. Diana is serious about giving to the kids.

In the De Zavala College, which won state and national recognition for its approach to accelerated learning for first and second graders, she was the solo teacher the first year. The concept was begun by Dr. Delores Medrano who observed Diana's teaching ideas and approached her to apply them to the college project. The kids were enthusiastic and didn't mind spending their summer going to the college for the seven week session. The pilot program that Diana designed has been expanded and is still in use today. Last September she was Teacher of the Month.

"Without the United Way, I don't know how we would have done it (De Zavala College). They supported us in so many ways, with so many people." Diana says the United Way support goes far beyond money. "There are some very giving professional people here. I feel they gave a tremendous boost to the kids of the college. If a professional thinks it's important to come all the way down to the school from their office, that makes the kids feel important."

Midland Lee rumbles to 3-0 with dominating win over Palo Duro

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Amarillo Palo Duro runners were able to find little daylight against Midland Lee Friday night as Todd Barnes (10) gets buried by a host of Rebels.

By Terry Williamson
Sports editor

If the Midland Lee defense wanted to make a key statement before District 4-5A play begins next week, the Rebel fortress did a pretty good job of it at Memorial Stadium Friday night with a 41-0 shutout over Amarillo Palo Duro.

The Dons came into the game averaging just over 409 yards per contest, but could never penetrate Lee's 40-yard line, gaining only 101 yards rushing and two yards passing.

In fact, the Lee defense was so rugged that the Dons had only 11 total yards at the half. The only reason Palo Duro managed 101 yards was the fact that Lee coach Earl Miller used a lot of players in the second half.

Palo Duro's 250-pound fullback Gary Brown was held to 71 yards rushing, but he had only 25 at the half.

Miller was just about as surprised with the shutout as anyone among the Homecoming crowd.

"I'm not sure how we did it," Miller said. "If I was smart enough to know, I would bottle it, bring it back and use it again. I never dreamed we would get a shutout against a team that was averaging over 400 yards per game. This is a team that scored 34 points against Odessa High, a team in our district."

The Lee defenders, led by Tony Olivas, Bernard Oldham, Brian Henderson, Cory Haynes and Chris Connally to just name a few, swarmed Don runners time after time at the line of scrimmage. Palo Duro just never got a serious drive going.

"We heard about the big fullback all week," said defensive lineman Olivas. "We got hyped up for him (Brown)."

Meanwhile, the Lee offense was churning out 364 rushing yards to keep any pressure off the Lee defense. The Rebs scored from 40 yards out on a three-play drive the first time they touched the ball. Halfback Sherman Dedrick gained all 40 yards. However, Dedrick was injured in the second quarter and ended the game with 56 yards rushing.

Halfback Marlon Henry took up the slack with 128 yards rushing on 20 carries and two first half touchdowns. It was Henry's first 100-yard night as a Rebel. Henry's 11-yard TD run in the second period, was the longest TD jaunt of the night for the ground gobbling Maroon Machine. All of the other TDs were on runs of five yards or less.

Backup halfback Phillip Sims added 94 yards rushing and another touchdown while quarterback Courtney Turner had a first half touchdown. Lee led 27-0 at the half and the only thing left to decide was the Homecoming Queen. Chiwon Song got that honor in the only drama of the night.

But if the Lee offense is looking for praise, they may not find it coming from Miller this next week.

"We're glad to get a 41-0 victory over anybody, but our offensive team got sloppy in the second half. We were

Mustangs flatten 'Dogs; MHS losing streak at 12

ANDREWS — It was a symbol of just how Midland High's football season has gone so far.

Just when the Bulldogs think they see a bright spot, disaster pounces.

Jeremy Hernandez booted his best punt of the night, a 51-yarder with the hang time of Michael Jordan. The only trouble was, he out-kicked his coverage, as Andrews' Josh Lujan ran the kick back 76 yards for a touchdown with 6:09 left in the first half.

That TD pushed the Mustang lead to 28-0 and essentially was the end for MHS, which saw its school-record losing streak move to 12 games in a 47-7 thrashing here Friday night at the Mustang Bowl.

"As soon as I saw the ball I saw that everybody was 40 yards away from me. I just turned it on and wound up in the end zone," Lujan said of his return.

But as the game was anything but a catharsis for 0-3 MHS, it was a wake-up call for Andrews' opponents in District 3-4A.

The Mustangs pushed their record to 3-0 by amassing 403 total yards offensively, and that was with the Bulldogs constantly giving Andrews the ball on the MHS end of the field (the 'Dogs lost four of seven fumbles and threw three interceptions).

Add the return yardage from Lujan's gem, as well as his other returns, and we're looking at more than 500 yards covered by Andrews backs, receivers and returners.

Senior Heath McBeth finished the game as its leading rusher, as the 5-9, 156-pounder gained 97 yards on just seven carries, including a 56-yard touchdown.

"We got some breaks early and the defense did a great job early (the Bulldogs were held to 51 first-half yards and 187 for the game). And we've been needing one of those returns for a long time," said Andrews head coach W.T. Stapler.

In the first half, McBeth rushed for 84 yards on just five carries, including his 56-yard scoring dash on a dive play to the left. His run produced Andrews' second score of the game, and came 5:26 after the 'Stangs got their first touchdown.

"I just went up the middle and the next thing I knew I went to the outside and just outran their secondary. It was just a base play and it was surprising to look up and just see green in front of me," McBeth said.

Andrews began by scoring on 12-yard sweep to the right by Xavy Emiliano, the first play after Andrews picked off MHS quarterback Brad Heidelberg on the game's third play from scrimmage.

On their next possession after McBeth's long run, the Mustangs got a

Greenwood falls in home opener

By Joe Wyatt

GREENWOOD — The Greenwood Rangers knew all along that they would have to limit the big plays of the Denver City Mustangs if they were going to win their home opener here Friday night.

And the Rangers were pretty much able to accomplish that task in the game's first half, playing the Mustangs to an even 7-7 score.

But those big plays reared their ugly heads in the third quarter and Denver City — behind two huge turnovers and three Fabian Flores-to-Manual Tovar touchdown passes — beat the Rangers 26-13.

Flores, who completed just four passes on the night, found Tovar from 30, 29 and 17 yards out as the Mustangs upped their season record to 3-0 while Greenwood fell to 1-2 in the early going.

Steers roll over winless Westerners

By Jeff Wilson
MRT Correspondent

BIG SPRING — All Big Spring coach Dwight Butler wanted Friday night was to see his Big Spring Steers rebound from last week's 25-6 loss to Lubbock Estacado. Unfortunetly for Lubbock High, Big Spring did just that.

Tim Pearson scored three times and accounted for 192 of the Steers 482 yards of offense to lead Big Spring to an easy 49-14 victory. The Westerners have now lost 20 games in a row.

The only consolation for the Westerners was the score could have been worse.

"We just wanted to come back from last week's affair," Butler said. "(The loss) was tough on us emotionally. We had our chances to win that game but we couldn't pull it out. We thought we had the plan (to win the game). We just didn't know if it would work or not."

Butler's plan worked to perfection as the Steers rolled out to a 20-0 lead in the first quarter behind Butler's balanced offense. Big Spring rushed for 239 yards, led by Pearson, while quarterbacks Wes Hughes and Clay Klatt combined for 243 yards in the air.

Only Big Spring's own turnovers kept the score from becoming truly a joke.

"If we can cut down on the turnovers, there's no telling what we can do," Pearson said.

The Steers lost all four of their fumbles while Hughes was intercepted once. Big Spring has turned the ball over 10 times in its last two games.

"It's just something that's happening to us right now," Pearson said. "We're carrying the ball out away from our bodies and when we get hit, the ball comes loose."

throwing the ball on the ground all night and I've never seen that before. We've got to go ahead and take the loss and come back the next play. We can't just throw the ball around."

Lee did lose three fumbles and had a couple of other bad pitches, but they did move at will against the Dons. Lee scored on five of 10 possessions, two of them coming at the Lee 12 and three-yard lines of the Dons. In other words, the score could have climbed much higher.

The Lee win leaves the Rebels with the distinction of being the only undefeated team in 4-5A through the first three weeks of the season. Lee is now 3-0 while Palo Duro fell to 2-1.

Lee passed only five times, completing one for 18 yards, but the passing game just wasn't needed as Henry, Sims and fullback Scott McLeod (66 rushing yards) were plenty.

Now Lee puts the tests behind and will start playing for real next week when they meet crosstown rival Midland High. Tickets for that game will go on sale Wednesday at the Memorial Stadium ticket office.

gift from the Bulldogs as Chase Gore recovered a Roland Chambers fumble at the MHS 13. Two plays later, Mustang quarterback Bryan Lepard found McBeth in the left flat for a 13-yard TD pass.

That was a prelude to Lujan's return, and Lepard provided the first half postscript with a 10-yard TD run on the option 2:49 before the half.

In the second half, Andrews let up on the gas a little, but scored on a 7- and 38-yard runs by Jonathan McDonald.

MHS' lone score came inside the five-minute mark of the game, as Marcus Anderson plunged over from two yards out.

"There were some bright spots. We did a couple of things pretty decent, but we fumbled the ball and made a lot of mistakes. We self-destructed, though we did get beat by a good football team," said first-year MHS coach Ronnie Reeger.

"But I'll tell you what, if we don't like getting beat 47-7 we have got to play better and coach better, and not necessarily in that order."

Clipped steer happy and safe from Sherrill

Associated Press

STARKVILLE, Miss. — A bull that was castrated as a "motivational" exercise for the Mississippi State football team has a new home, and its new owners say the animal will be spared any further indignities.

Army recruiter Frank Truitt and insurance salesman Billy Walker, both of Greenwood, bought Wild Willie sight unseen on Thursday for $4,000. A similar steer normally would bring about $350 from a slaughterhouse, said Jim Quinn of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Services.

"He will not be killed. He will be loved," Truitt said. "Our intentions are to love him and treat him like he should be and make him a hero."

The 525-pound bull was castrated Sept. 3 on the Mississippi State football practice field in front of the team. Two days later, the Bulldogs beat Texas — whose mascot is a longhorn steer — 28-10.

Football coach Jackie Sherrill and Mississippi State President Donald Zacharias later apologized for the castration, which came to light after a complaint was filed with the Mississippi Animal Rescue League.

Truitt and Walker bought the steer from Dud Hughes, a 1975 MSU graduate who says he doesn't understand what the uproar was about. A steer, by definition, is a castrated male of the cattle family. Wild Willie has healed well, Hughes said.

Walker said he and Truitt are not publicity seekers.

"We don't have any big plans for him," Truitt said.

"We might show him places or let a kid take a picture with him," Walker said.

The two do not have enough land to keep the steer, which will be kept at a veterinarian's for the time being.

"I promise the animal rights people, nobody cares about animals more than I do." Walker said.

Trade may be best, Rison says

ATLANTA (AP) — Wide receiver Andre Rison, who missed the Atlanta Falcons' training camp in a contract dispute, skipped a morning practice Friday and later said he wants to be traded.

Rison said he walked out of a meeting and skipped the workout because he was told by receivers coach Jimmy Robinson that he will not start Sunday against New Orleans.

Rison took part in the afternoon walk-through after a meeting with coach Jerry Glanville.

"I love the fans here and I love my teammates," Rison said. "They've treated me great."

A little something for everyone today

College Football

Did Notre Dame-Michigan leave you fit to be tied? Maybe a dose of Florida State-North Carolina State or Florida-Tennessee will help.

Not yet ready for the annual conference rivalries to dominate? There's Nebraska-Washington and Ohio State-Syracuse to look forward to.

Wondering how long Ray Perkins' Arkansas State team can remain scoreless? A game against Northern Illinois may provide an answer.

There's something for just about everyone this weekend as college football moves further into the full-blown championship chase, but still offers a few expected laughers, conference rivalry renewals and other games of note.

One game of note will be at Jonesboro, Ark., where Perkins is fast learning that away from big-time college football, the best way to get noticed is to get beaten badly.

After two games, the opener against Toledo (49-0) and last week against Oklahoma (61-0), Perkins' team has been outscored 110-0. This week, Northern Illinois will help Arkansas State open its home season, and Perkins is hopeful.

"We have a chance to win this game," he said. "We match up better with Northern than we did last week. That's not meant to be degrading of Northern Illinois. It's just that they don't have the size and speed of Oklahoma."

While Perkins' team would just like to score, some top 25 teams face being dismissed from the title picture if they lose.

No. 12 Nebraska, for example, carries a reputation of losing big games into Seattle against the second-ranked Huskies. It's a game both teams need to win.

"Maybe if we can win this one, it will change some minds about what type of team we have," said tailback Derek Brown, who leads a Cornhuskers' ground game that's leading the nation — by 111 yards — with a 444.5 per game average.

The Huskies own a 16-game winning streak, including a 36-21 victory at Lincoln, Neb., last season. But they've struggled this year, allowing 182.5 rushing yards per game in victories over Arizona State and Wisconsin.

"You can't beat Nebraska kicking field goals," Huskies wide receiver Joe Kralik said. "We're going to have to put some points on the board."

In the Atlantic Coast Conference, No. 3 Florida State is at No. 16 North Carolina State and No. 20 Virginia entertains No. 22 Georgia Tech.

In the Southeastern Conference, No. 4 Florida is at No. 14 Tennessee hoping to avenge a 45-3 humiliation suffered there two seasons ago.

Elsewhere in the Top 25 Saturday, Florida A&M is at No. 1 Miami, No. 5 Texas A&M at Missouri, Oklahoma State at No. 6 Michigan, No. 7 Notre Dame at Michigan State, No. 9 Alabama at Arkansas, Eastern Michigan at No. 10 Penn State, No. 11 Colorado at Minnesota, Southern California at No. 13 Oklahoma, No. 15 UCLA at Brigham Young, Northwestern at No. 18 Stanford, Cal-State Fullerton at No. 19 Georgia, No. 24 Mississippi State at Memphis State; and No. 25 Mississippi at Vanderbilt.

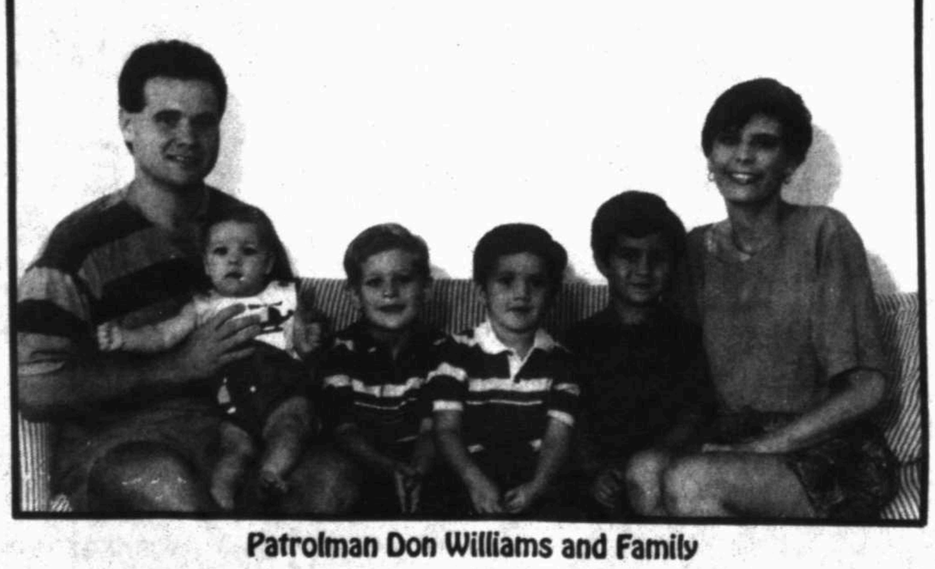

Colorado will be without injured Kordell Stewart, the nation's second-ranked quarterback, against Minnesota. He will be replaced by Duke Tobin in the Buffaloes' new pass-oriented offense.

Michigan also will be without its No. 1 quarterback, Elvis Grbac, against Oklahoma State. Grbac, injured in the Wolverines' 17-17 tie with Notre Dame last week, will be replaced by Todd Collins, a sophomore.

Against Alabama, Arkansas will be looking to make it two wins in a row under interim coach Joe Kines, who replaced Jack Crowe following the Razorbacks' 10-3 loss to The Citadel. In Kines' first game, Arkansas routed South Carolina 45-7.

Mavs, Warriors, Bulls work three-way trade

Associated Press

DALLAS — The Dallas Mavericks traded veteran forward Rodney McCray to the NBA champion Chicago Bulls on Friday in a three-team trade also involving the Golden State Warriors.

The Mavericks got three draft choices in the deal, including Golden State's first pick in 1993, provided the Warriors don't qualify for the draft lottery. If Golden State is a lottery team, Dallas would get the Warriors' No. 1 selection in the first subsequent year that Golden State makes the playoffs.

The Bulls sent Dallas two conditional second-round choices in the deal and sent Byron Houston, chosen 27th in the June draft, to Golden State.

"We are looking to either add young players or draft choices," said Rick Sund, the Mavericks vice president for basketball operations. "We looked to see if this made sense for our club three or four years down the line."

Earlier in the offseason, the Mavericks traded guard Rolando Blackman to the New York Knicks for a first-round draft choice.

McCray, 31, averaged 9 points and 6 rebounds in just over 28 minutes for Dallas last season. He is eligible to become an unrestricted free agent after the 1993 season, which will be his 10th in the NBA.

The Mavericks acquired McCray and two second-round draft picks in a 1990 trade from Sacramento that sent center Bill Wennington and two first-round picks to the Kings.

Golden State coach Don Nelson said Houston "has the ability to play inside and rebound which are qualities we are always looking for."

"Going into the 1992 draft, we felt we would be fortunate, given our position in the draft order, if we had a chance to choose a Latrell Sprewell or a Byron Houston," Nelson said.

Sprewell was the Warriors' top pick, 24th overall, in the 1992 draft.

"Having a chance to add both players to our lineup is something we have been working on since the night of the draft," Nelson said.

Houston, a 6-foot-5 forward, averaged 20.2 points and 8.6 rebounds for Oklahoma State last season and was named Big Eight Conference player of the year. Houston set school records with 2,379 career points and 1,190 rebounds.

Rankin handles McCamey, 33-7

MCCAMEY — JoJo Guerra threw three touchdown passes and ran for two more to lead the Rankin Red Devils to a 33-7 win over McCamey in non-district football action Friday night.

Rankin raised its record to 2-1. The Red Devils play host to Water Valley next week. McCamey falls to 1-2 after losing the first Upton County championship played since 1983.

Jeff Jones caught two of Guerra's scoring tosses as the Red Devils survived heavy rains to take a 19-7 lead at the half.

Reagan County pounds Lamesa

BIG LAKE — Nunu Rivero's 93-yard touchdown run in the third quarter highlighted Reagan County's 35-7 win over previously unbeaten Lamesa in non-district football Friday night.

Class 3A Reagan County, 3-0, has limited opponents to 14 points this season while scoring 119. Lamesa, a District 2-4A school, suffered its first loss in three games.

Game called when fight begins

OAKWOOD (AP) — A non-district Class A high school football game between the Calvert Trojans and the Oakwood Panthers was called seconds before the first half ended after a fight broke out in the stands Friday night.

With 32 seconds to go before the half, Calvert superintendent George Valch called the Trojans off the field because of a scuffle that had broken out on the Calvert side of the field, The Bryan-College Station Eagle reported. Oakwood was leading, 22-6.

Valch, who was sitting in the stands on the Calvert side, said three Oakwood fans came over to the Calvert side of the field and started harassing the Calvert fans.

"I stopped the game in the best interest of the Calvert students, players and fans," Valch said.

Valch said that he will launch an investigation with the University Interscholastic League and he expected the Oakwood superintendent to do the same.

Valch said there was security at the game, but only on the Oakwood side.

RANGERS: Big plays hurt Greenwood in 26-13 loss

(From 1B)

Denver City stormed to back-to-back touchdowns in the third quarter, recovering a muffed kickoff return after the first TD, which set up the drive for the second.

And when the Rangers' only offensive series of the third quarter ended in a fumble at the Denver City 47-yard line, the Mustangs used that miscue to rattle off eight plays for the TD that put them up 26-6 just 2:12 into the final frame.

"We made some mistakes that were critical in the second half," Greenwood head coach Bob Purser said. "I think not fielding the kick hurt us especially. We shouldn't fumble things that we work on all the time.

"But Denver City's got great tradition and they make big plays. They know how to win and they're hard to beat."

Still, Greenwood played the Mustangs even in the first half as Michael S. Smith rolled up 99 of his game-best 139 rushing yards and fullback Donny Strickland's three-yard TD plunge offset Flores' first scoring strike for a 7-7 tie.

But Denver City, which was outgained 163 to 109 yards in the first half, put together a 12-play drive to begin the third quarter. Flores engineered it, then capped it with a rollout pass that Tovar gathered in at the Greenwood 10-yard line and hauled into the end zone for a 13-7 lead.

When Greenwood failed to pick up the short kickoff that followed, Denver City's Travis Smith alertly fell on it to set up another TD drive. That one ended in Tovar's third TD reception, a 17-yard floater from Flores into the left corner of the end zone.

"They (Rangers) didn't make hardly any mistakes in the first half," Denver City head coach Steve Taylor said. "But they made a few that cost them in the third quarter. The fumble on the kickoff hurt them and really helped us."

The win was Denver City's fifth in five tries against Greenwood. The Mustangs defeated the Rangers in the playoffs in both 1988 and 1989.

Greenwood refused to give up in this one, however, even after falling behind 26-7 with just 9:48 left in the game. The Rangers put together an 11-play scoring drive that covered 80 yards and ended when Smith scored a one-yard TD to bring Greenwood to within 26-13 and 5:50 showing on the game clock.

And the Rangers' final drive did not end until quarterback Jeff Dunn found Ted Flowers with a 24-yard strike that left Greenwood sitting on the Denver City three-yard line as time expired.

Strickland finished the game with 93 yards on 20 carries, while Smith — whose evening included runs of 37, 21 and 30 yards — got his 139 on 14 totes.

Alfonso Hurtado was the leading ground gainer for Denver City, racking up 115 yards on 21 tries.

Flores hit 4-of-12 passes for a total of 86 yards.

Jarrod Lawson and Sylvester Galindo each recovered fumbles for the Rangers

The Rangers get another game at home, next Friday, when Alpine comes to call.

BIG SPRING: Steers play host to Snyder next week

(From 1B)

Pearson rushed for 109 yards while catching three passes for another 83 yards and almost scored two other times.

Pearson caught a 58-yard pass from Hughes late in the game but was caught from behind at the Lubbock 5-yard line. Pearson later intercepted a pass but was pushed out of bounds at the Westerners' 1-yard line.

"I was just too tired on that pass and the guy caught me," Pearson said. "I wanted that one pretty bad.

"We had a really good week of practice and it showed tonight. It was real important that we came out and played hard tonight. Their passing game was the only thing that really bothered us."

Lubbock threw for 186 yards on 11 completions while rushing for just 74 yards.

It seemed that Lubbock wouldn't have much of a chance as Big Spring jumped out to a quick 20-0 lead.

Big Spring needed just five plays to take a lead it would never lose. Pearson scored his first touchdown on a 49-yard wing-back reverse just one minute, 43 seconds into the game.

Lubbock fumbled the ball to the Steers on it's second play from scrimmage but got the ball right back one play later when Lonnie Jackson fumbled after being hit.

The Westerners drove down to the Steers' 14-yard line but a holding penalty killed the drive and Tim Louden's 52-yard field goal try was long enough but sailed wide left.

Big Spring needed just two plays to take a 14-0 lead when Hughes found a wide-open Oscar Cervantez for a 60-yard touchdown. Pearson scored his second touchdown minutes later when Hughes found him for a 9-yard score.

The game looked to be already out of hand at that point but Lubbock climbed back into it with a pair of scores late in the second quarter.

Westerner quarterback Darren Murphy completed 3 of 4 passes on a 4-play drive to put Lubbock on the board. Keith Tillman hauled in a 13-yarder with 4:23 in the half to cut Big Spring's lead to 20-7.

Lubbock got the ball back a minute later on a Stacey Martin fumble but the drive ended when tailback Lester Lawrence's pass was intercepted in the endzone by Pat Martinez.

But Big Spring's third fumble of the half turned into Lubbock's second score, albeit a questionable one.

Murphy tossed a 22-yard TD pass to Dana Hopkins, who had to dive for the ball. Hopkins hit the ground which caused the ball to fly loose but the officals ruled it a catch and the Westerners trailed 20-14.

Big Spring drove 64 yards in 66 seconds and scored with :45 seconds remaining in the half when Mike Oliva caught a 20-yard pass from Klatt.

Big Spring put the game away with two third-quater scores, one on a 1-yard run by Lonnie Jackson, the other coming on a 15-yard run by Pearson. Klatt scored from 5-yards out in the fourth period.

Big Spring, 2-1 on the year, plays host to Snyder Friday night.

Cowboys look to land safety, keep receiver

N.Y. Times News Service

IRVING — In two unrelated trade matters, the Dallas Cowboys hope to satisfy a safety who wanted out of Pittsburgh, and hope to pacify a receiver who thought he wanted out of Dallas.

Thomas Everett, a six-year starter with the Pittsburgh Steelers who had been unsigned, is expected to agree to a three-year contract with the Cowboys after the Steelers agreed to part with him for a mid-round draft pick.

Meanwhile, Alexander Wright, in part because he has no catches with the Cowboys, is thinking about catching on someplace else.

Agent Pat Dye Jr. said Friday that his client's "career is on hold in Dallas" and has therefore asked the Cowboys for permission to seek a trade.

"If Dallas wants me, I'll be happy playing whatever role the coaches have for me," Wright said. "If they don't want me, I'll try my luck somewhere else."

Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson let it be known that a trade is out of the question because Wright is indeed "wanted."

"I said no," Johnson said. "No way. I like him."

Dye said the request has nothing to do with any dissatisfaction Wright might have with his relatively minor role.

"It's not at all that he's gotten a raw deal in Dallas," Dye said. "Ideally, he'd like to stay with the Cowboys. But it's frustrating that because the Cowboys have so much depth at his position, that much talent has to stay on the bench."

Wright, recent winner of the "NFL's Fastest Man" competition, has been limited to contributing mostly as a kick returner. Wright returned a kickoff for a touchdown in each of his first two seasons, but he has no receptions this season and only 21 in his three-year career.

"If my future here is as a kick returner, I'll try to be the best returner in the league," Wright said. "But after not playing much, the idea popped into our heads, wondering about a trade."

Wright was the Cowboys' second-round pick in 1990, and after a rookie season marred by a contract dispute, he was temporarily elevated to the starting lineup a year ago.

Aggies can't get 'all giggly' just yet

By Michael A. Lutz
AP Sports Writer

Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum doesn't think the Aggies can merely shine their No. 5 ranking in the faces of the Missouri Tigers and send them reeling.

"If you look around the country, teams like Missouri beat teams like Texas A&M every week," Slocum said.

It's true the Aggies are 3-0 and trying to become 4-0 for the first time since 1978 and the Tigers are 0-1 after losing to Illinois last week.

Slocum also knows another truth about not looking too far ahead.

"I'm glad there are a number of people all around the country who think we're that good," Slocum said. "But with a 12-game schedule and three games played, it's not smart for us to get all giggly about being No. 5.

"Let's get down to November and then starting thinking about the implications."

The Houston Cougars are returning after a week's layoff after their season opening loss to Tulsa to face Illinois in the Astrodome. Coach John Jenkins will have his same quarterback rotation of Jimmy Klingler and Donald Douglas.

Douglas started the 28-25 loss to Tulsa but it was Klingler who did the most damage to the Hurricane defense, completing 30 of 51 passes for 327 yards and two touchdowns.

In the other games Saturday-,Texas Tech plays at Oregon; Rice plays at Duke; Southern Methodist is at New Mexico and Baylor hosts Utah State. Texas and Texas Christian have open dates.

The Aggies are 16-point favorites over Missouri. Texas Tech and Oregon are rated a tossup, Rice has a one-point edge over Duke and New Mexico is a five-point favorite over SMU.

Jimmy Klingler attended Houston games when David was a reserve sophomore and watched David Dacus and Andre Ware playing a dual-quarterback role. He never expected to be in the same situation.

"I'd have probably said 'no way,'" Klingler said.

er two weeks ago at Air Force and hope to get Trevor Cobb untracked against Duke, ranked 102 among the 106 teams in NCAA Division I-A in scoring defense.

They given up an average of 45 points in losses to Florida State and Vanderbilt.

Coach Pat Sullivan, in his first year at TCU, is still trying to get oft-injured quarterback Leon Clay on track. Clay has hit 44 percent of his passes in the Horned Frogs' first two games.

"He's been very inconsistent, we've had some people open and just haven't gotten the ball to them," Sullivan said.

Baylor is 0-2 in Grant Teaff's final year as head coach before taking over as Baylor athletic director.

"We're anxious to get the Aggies in and try to win our first ballgame this year and try to win at home," Teaff said. "We do like to play at home even though we have not fared as well as we'd like to. We'll keep trying."

The Red Raiders hope to have fun against Oregon just like Lloyd Hill had fun with 12 catches for 222 yards in last seek's 49-32 victory over Wyoming that followed a 34-9 loss to Oklahoma.

"Against Oklahoma we were too tight because of the hype and the national television," Hill said. "This week, we just relaxed and had fun and things started working the way we thought they would against Oklahoma."

SMU coach Tom Rossley has his own kind of quarterback shuffle because he can't keep any of them healthy.

Brown squashed in bid to win 20th

Associated Press

TORONTO — Dave Winfield hit a three-run homer and Jimmy Key pitched seven shutout innings, leading the Toronto Blue Jays over the Texas Rangers 13-0.

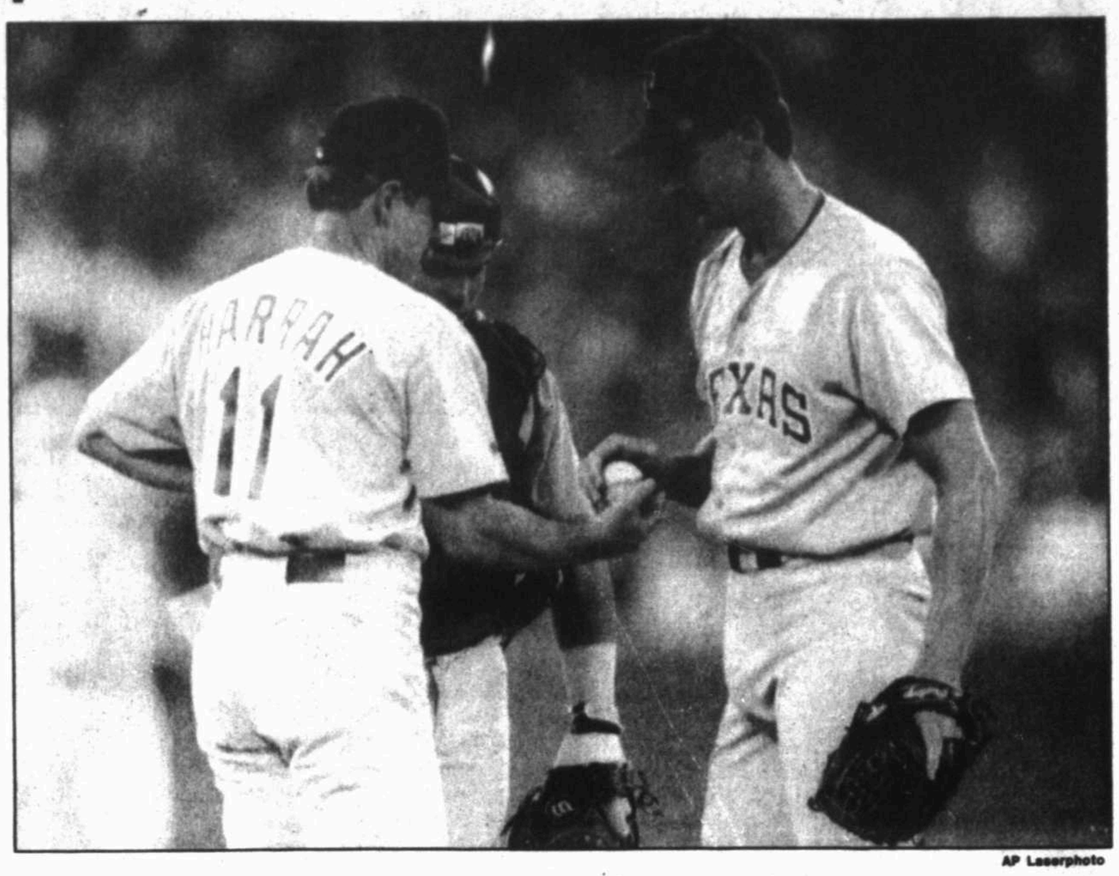

Devon White hit a two-run homer and a two-run double for the Blue Jays, who began the night with a 3½-game lead over Baltimore in the AL East. Winfield hit his 431st career homer and increased his RBI total to 1,700, both tops among active players.

Key (11-13) allowed six hits, struck out seven and walked none as he won his third consecutive start. Mark Eichhorn and David Wells finished, giving the Blue Jays their fifth victory in seven games and their 13th shutout this season. Toronto, which has led the division since June 14, has won 14 of 19.

Kevin Brown (19-10) gave up eight runs — four earned — and seven hits in 3 2-3 innings, his shortest outing since Sept. 29, 1991. It was only the third time in 32 starts — and the first in 19 — that Brown didn't pitch at least seven innings.

Pat Borders' two-run single and Winfield's 25th homer of the season put the Blue Jays ahead 5-0 in the second. White doubled in two runs in the fourth, and Brian Bohanon walked John Olerud with the bases loaded for an 8-0 lead.

White hit his 16th homer in the fifth. Eddie Zosky hit a sacrifice fly in the eighth and Domingo Martinez hit a two-run homer off Mike Jeffcoat. Martinez singled in the sixth in his first big league at-bat.

Kevin Brown, right, fell short again of winning his 20th game Friday, allowing eight runs in just three innings. Manager Toby Harrah, left, and catcher Ivan Rodriguez are also pictured.

Tigers 10, Red Sox 3

DETROIT — Lou Whitaker tied his career high with five RBIs and Cecil Fielder hit a two-run homer as the Detroit Tigers beat Boston, sending the Red Sox to their eighth loss in 10 games.

Whitaker hit a three-run homer in the second and added a two-run double in the eighth. It was the fifth five-RBI game of his career, his first since July 3, 1990, when he did it against the Chicago White Sox.

John Doherty (6-4) allowed three runs and six hits in 6 2-3 innings, struck out four and walked three. He is 4-2 as a starter.

Kevin Seitzer drove in four runs for the Brewers, who remained five games behind division-leading Toronto with 15 games left. Greg Vaughn hit a three-run homer in the first off Rick Sutcliffe (16-13) and Seitzer hit a three-run double in the third.

Astros down Braves; Olson lost

Associated Press

NL Roundup

ATLANTA — Scott Servais and Craig Biggio each drove in two runs during a five-run third inning as the Houston Astros routed the Atlanta Braves for their fourth victory in a row.

It was Atlanta's second straight loss — and worst defeat this season — and cut the Braves' NL West lead over Cincinnati to 8½ games. The Reds beat San Diego 4-2.

The Braves also lost catcher Greg Olson for the rest of the season and the post-season. Olson sustained a fractured right ankle in a jarring home plate collision with Ken Caminiti in the fourth inning.

The Astros pounded Braves starter Charlie Leibrandt (12-7) for eight hits and six runs in 2 1-3 innings.

The Astros batted around in the third, scoring five times on five hits. Pete Incaviglia had a run-scoring single, Servais hit a two-run double and Biggio added a two-run single.

Houston also scored in the first on an RBI single by Jeff Bagwell, who had four hits and extended his hitting streak to six games.

The Astros added an unearned run in the seventh on Bagwell's double, an error by first baseman Sid Bream and Casey Candaele's RBI grounder. They put the game away with five more runs in the eighth on Bagwell's run-scoring single, Gerald Young's bases-loaded walk, Candaele's two-run double and another bases-loaded walk to Mike Simms.

Ed Taubensee added an RBI single in the ninth.

Biggio and Caminiti each had three hits for the Astros, who matched their season high with had 18 hits off five Atlanta pitchers.

The Braves scored in the second on Ron Gant's 15th homer of the season off Pete Harnisch (8-10) and added two runs in the third on an RBI double by Terry Pendleton and David Justice's run-scoring grounder.

Harnisch went 5 1-3 innings, allowing four hits, walking five and striking out two.

Cubs 9, Cardinals 7

CHICAGO — Andre Dawson, Ryne Sandberg and Derrick May homered Friday as the Chicago Cubs beat the St. Louis Cardinals after wasting a five-run lead.

Chicago, which led 6-1, fell behind 7-6 when the Cardinals scored four runs in the seventh off Chuck McElroy. But Dawson tied the score in the bottom of the inning off Bryn Smith (1-1) with his 21st homer. Steve Buechele then singled, Bob McClure relieved and May hit his eighth homer on the first pitch.

Jeff Robinson (4-3) allowed one hit in three shutout innings as Chicago won its third straight. The Cubs had 14 hits, including three each by Sandberg and May.

Reds 4, Padres 2

CINCINNATI — Barry Larkin had a pair of RBI triples to help the Cincinnati Reds take a tighter hold on second place in the NL West with a victory over San Diego.

The Reds opened a 2½-game lead over the third-place Padres by virtue of another solid start by rookie Tim Pugh (3-1), who has won his last three games. The right-hander allowed two runs and six hits over 6 1-3 innings of his fourth major-league start.

Reliever Steve Foster got Kurt Stillwell to hit into a double play to end a seventh-inning threat.

Rob Dibble pitched the ninth for his 21st save. Dibble, who was involved in a clubhouse scuffle with manager Lou Piniella on Thursday night, was booed when he was introduced to start the inning.

Cincinnati went ahead to stay with two runs in the third off Bruce Hurst (14-9), who gave up three runs and six hits over six innings and retired the last 11 batters he faced.

Expos 10, Mets 4

NEW YORK — Dwight Gooden was guaranteed the first losing record in his nine-year big-league career as the Montreal Expos beat the New York Mets to remain on the heels of division-leading Pittsburgh in the NL East.

Gooden (8-13), who is scheduled to make just three more starts for the remainder of the season, gave up four runs on nine hits in seven innings. The 27-year-old right-hander, pitching after undergoing major shoulder surgery last year, struck out five and walked none. He had never finished less than five games over .500.

The Expos entered the game trailing Pittsburgh by four games. The Pirates hosted Philadelphia.

The loss was the third in a row for the Mets, who've lost eight of their last 11.

Pirates 5, Phillies 2

PITTSBURGH — Barry Bonds joined father Bobby as a multi-time member of baseball's 30-30 club by hitting his 30th homer and the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies in a rain-shortened 5½-inning game.

Rookie knuckleballer Tim Wakefield (6-1) survived five walks and a two-run Phillies' fourth inning to remain unbeaten at home in five decisions. The Pirates retained their four-game lead in the NL East over Montreal, a 10-4 winner in New York.

Adults' greed, selfishness cost Filipino kids

Associated Press

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. — The story of Little League's first scandal isn't about the lost innocence of youth. It's about greed, selfishness and glory for the adults involved in the game.

"The kids today are the same as the kids 50 years ago," Steve Weller, a former Little League official, said. "What has changed are the adults."

Eight Philippine players whose own teams had lost in their country's Little League tournament were stacked on the team that won. That created a national team that won the World Series championship last month.

Little League directors voted Thursday to strip the Philippines of the title. Little League awarded the championship to Long Beach, Calif. The administrator of the Philippine Little League resigned.

"It's a very unfortunate and regrettable situation, but necessary to maintain the integrity of the program," Little League vice president Steve Keener said. "The goal of Little League is to instill the values of fair play, sportsmanship and teamwork."

Every August, eight teams from around the world play a week of games at Williamsport. This year, there were 111 11- and 12-year-olds in the cabin complex overlooking Lamade Stadium.

"The kids, no matter with the pressure of playing in a World Series, when they're done they shake hands and go up the hill to the cabins together," Weller said. "Five minutes after the game, they're all in the pool or playing ping-pong or running around.

"It's the adults who sit there at the white picket fence and cry."

Little League was founded in 1939 by Carl Stotz, who created the six-inning game on shorter fields to open the game to younger players. It was he who imposed geographic recruiting limits violated by the Philippines.

"The traditional role was developmental," said Thomas Brouse Jr., an assistant professor of exercise and sport science at Penn State's Altoona campus. "It was supposed to be a mechanism for teaching the basic skills."

But adults got involved in the game and changed the goals. Many pitchers have mastered off-speed stuff to fool batters, but can't rely on a fast ball when they need one because they didn't first develop strength, he said.

"It all goes back to win, win, win, win," Brouse said.

Little League depends on 750,000 volunteers to coach its teams, groom the fields, run the concession stands and verify the eligibility of 2.5 million players in 61 countries.

"I'd say 730,000 are fine. The other 20,000 — that's why you hear about coaches attacking an umpire or cheating on an all-star team," Weller said.

"The problem wasn't with the eight kids, it was with the person who decided that he had to cheat to win."

Weller said that while Little League's clean image has been tarnished, it's not something that will change the game much.

Reds slide turns ugly

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Reds haven't given up the fight — they've merely moved it to their clubhouse.

Manager Lou Piniella wrestled Rob Dibble in the clubhouse Thursday night after the reliever suggested Piniella had misled reporters about the condition of his pitching shoulder.

The two met with controlling partner Marge Schott and general manager Bob Quinn for a half-hour Friday to repair the rift. There will be no suspension for Dibble, who apologized to Piniella for his remarks.

The tussle developed after Dibble told reporters, "Lou's full of (it)," using an expletive.

"I might have said that," Dibble said Friday. "It was wrong on my part. I'm apologizing for that and I apologized to Lou."

Piniella wasn't apologetic when he met with reporters Friday.

"I sort of lost my cool," he said. "It's just that simple. It happened. When my integrity gets questioned, it's not that easy of a situation to deal with."

He said there would be no repercussions for the temperamental reliever.

Gretzky still hospitalized

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Wayne Gretzky of the Los Angeles Kings remained hospitalized today with a back injury and a team spokesman said it was uncertain as to when the NHL's all-time leading scorer would be released.

"There is no change from yesterday," said Scott Carmichael, vice president of public relations for the Kings. "It's an upper back strain. He's still in the hospital, his status is day-to-day. They're doing further testing on his back."

Congress nears approval of relief bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House rapidly stamped its approval Friday on a record-setting $11.1 billion aid package for states smashed by Hurricanes Andrew and Iniki and for typhoon-battered Guam.

On a voice vote, lawmakers rushed the compromise bundle of loans, grants and other payments to the Senate, which planned to hurry the measure to President Bush for his expected signature.

It will pay for everything from rebuilding wrecked schools to lending money to owners of destroyed homes, but contains only a small fraction of the funds Bush wanted to rebuild the ruined Homestead Air Force Base in Florida.

"This federal relief bill will at least give one ray of hope to an otherwise dismal human tragedy," said Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, R-Fla., who lives near the swath of South Florida ravaged Aug. 24 by Hurricane Andrew.

With images of the storms' devastation still nightly staples on television news, Congress completed the bill from start to finish in an unusually swift nine work days.

Indeed, weary aides from the House, Senate and the White House's Office of Management and Budget stayed up all night Thursday to craft the final measure so it could be enacted before week's end.

The lightning action came amid a political campaign in which each party has accused the other of causing the gridlock that has bogged down much legislation.

It was just a week ago that Iniki flattened parts of Hawaii, and less than a month since Andrew hit Florida and Louisiana and Typhoon Omar throttled Guam. The storms killed at least 58 people, left more than a quarter-million Americans homeless from the mid-Pacific to the Atlantic and caused well more than $20 billion worth of damage.

The bill is easily the costliest aid package ever for a U.S. natural disaster, surpassing the $2.9 billion shipped to California in 1990 after the Loma Prieta earthquake. When its funds are spent, it will add billions to the government's record budget deficits.

The package contains $6.3 billion in spending, and authority for the government to make or back $4.8 billion worth of loans for the storms' victims.

Most of the funds will be up for grabs by the afflicted states. But officials from Florida — where most of the losses occurred — said they expected to get $9 billion, and Hawaii lawmakers predicted they would reap $1.2 billion.

Included is $92 million for the Homestead air base, which Bush visited shortly after it was destroyed and made a campaign-season promise to rebuild.

Bush sought $481 million to begin resurrecting the base, which was a major local employer in a state Bush believes is key to his re-election.

The $92 million is not enough to restore the facilities that were used by a fighter wing that had been stationed at Homestead. Instead, the tower and some buildings will be rebuilt to let the U.S. Customs Service and other agencies use the base on a limited basis.

The package contains nearly $3 billion for the Federal Emergency Management Agency to provide aid to renters, jobless people and local governments that want to repair public buildings. The government will insure up to $2.4 billion worth of loans to rebuild homes, and lend $1.6 billion for small business owners and home owners to dig out.

The measure also has $482 million for farmers who lost crops and $400 million for food stamps.

In some instances, lawmakers from other states won provisions that will provide money for their own constituents. For example, electrical cooperatives in Kansas damaged by a June storm will qualify for some of the $75 million the bill provides in economic development grants, thanks to efforts by Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

Police force stalkers to wear ankle-alarms

■ Authorities make known offenders wear electronic device to warn victim.

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — With domestic violence increasing, authorities are experimenting with an electronic system that sets off an alarm when a stalker approaches his victim.

Under a three-month program adopted by Arapahoe County, a known offender wears an electronic ankle bracelet that triggers an alarm if he goes near the person he is accused of harassing.

The alarm sounds on a receiver near the victim and a simultaneous signal goes to a communication center, which alerts police. The victim has a "panic button" on the receiver if the abuser disconnects the bracelet before coming near her.

The first offender was fitted with a bracelet this week, said District Attorney Robert Gallagher.

"We are in the midst of a revolution, and the revolution is rapid intervention," said Michael Lindsey, co-founder of Third Path, a program for male batterers.

The county is the first jurisdiction to try such a device, according to the manufacturer, Bodyguard Technologies of Boulder. Eventually, dozens of abusers may wear the bracelets.

The program is limited to domestic violence situations. Offenders are given the option both at pretrial hearings and upon conviction of wearing the bracelet, going to jail or posting bond.

An increase in stalking incidents, with often tragic consequences, has spurred authorities to try new approaches.

Similar bracelets have been widely used for monitoring convicts sentenced to home detention, but never as warning devices for potential victims, Arapahoe County officials said.

Campaigns swap debate-dodging charges

Associated Press

No one was blinking in the great debate debate Friday. Democrat Bill Clinton assailed President Bush for passing up a face-off next week in Michigan, while the White House said the stumbling block to debates was Clinton's refusal to negotiate.

"I've listened to all their macho talk, but when it comes time to go man to man, plan to plan, where is he?" Clinton demanded at a rally at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque.

The Arkansas governor accused Bush of "hiding from an honest discussion ... of a record he'd like to hide from." He said Bush was "good at one thing. He's a great vetoer. He vetoed the first presidential debate."

Clinton's double-barrelled assault included a radio ad that started running Friday across Michigan, an important battleground state that would have hosted a Sept. 22 debate proposed by a bipartisan commission.

"The American people have a lot of questions. Bill Clinton is ready to answer them. So why won't George Bush debate? He says he doesn't like the rules," the ad said.

Bush strategist Charles Black said the president wasn't backing out of anything. "There's nothing to cancel when there never was one," Black said of the East Lansing event. "That was simply a proposal."

Despite the apparent impasse, top advisers to Republican Bush and Democrat Clinton insisted Friday that the two candidates were virtually certain to debate.

Asked the likelihood on NBC's "Today" program, Black and Clinton communications director George Stephanopoulos gave the same answer: 100 percent.

"We're going to be in East Lansing on the 22nd, ready to debate. If the president's ready, he can show up," said Stephanopoulos.

Supporters of Ross Perot, meanwhile, still hoping to make it a three-man race, submitted petitions to put his name on the ballot in Arizona. That made 50 states for the non-candidate, who draws enough support in polls to make him a possible spoiler in states where the Bush-Clinton race is close this November.

The build-up for the Michigan debate began during the primary season, when the commission recommended East Lansing as the first of three debate sites. Clinton agreed to the plan in June when it was clear he'd be the Democratic nominee.

Nation in brief

■ Father of duchess' friend asks to seal records

PITTSBURGH — The father of a man linked romantically with the duchess of York asked a judge Friday to seal records of his divorce to prevent "intrusive and offensive" inquiries by reporters.

The judge delayed making a decision on the request for 10 days, asking Anthony J.A. Bryan's attorney to supply more information.

Photographs of Bryan's son, John, and the topless former Sarah Ferguson recently were splashed across the covers of tabloid newspapers around the world. The two also were shown cuddling at a villa in the French Riviera.

The elder Bryan, 69, a former chairman of Copperweld Corp. and was a director of companies including Chrysler Corp. and Federal Express Corp., said he wanted the records of his 1988 divorce sealed because reporters were investigating him.

Judge R. Stanton Wettick Jr. of Allegheny County Common Pleas Court held a brief hearing on the request. The files will be closed until Wettick rules.

Bryan's former wife, Pamela Z. Bryan, opposed the request because closing the records would make it seem as if she had something to hide, said her attorney, Frederick N. Frank. "She's entitled to have her reputation protected," Frank said.

■ Astronauts get long-distance call from Tokyo

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Endeavour's astronauts tested an intravenous system intended to provide hospital-quality care in space and got an extra-long-distance call from Tokyo on Friday.

Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa called to congratulate the seven-member crew as the Japanese-sponsored Spacelab mission neared its end. The crew includes Mamoru Mohri, Japan's first professional astronaut.

"May I send the greetings of all Japanese people to you ... and may I send appreciation (of) the Japanese people for your full contributions to Spacelab-J mission, which so far has turned out to be a great success," Miyazawa said.

"I certainly wish you continued success and, of course, a safe return," Miyazawa said.

Endeavour is scheduled to land at Kennedy Space Center at 7:19 a.m. Sunday after eight days in space. Scientists from around the world are gathered at the spaceport, eagerly awaiting the shuttle's return so they can see how their animals fared in weightlessness.

■ Man sentenced to death is freed from prison

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A school principal once sentenced to death for the 1979 slayings of a teacher and her two children was freed from prison Friday after the state Supreme Court said prosecutors badly mishandled the case.

In a 5-0 decision ordering Jay C. Smith freed, the court said the prosecution hid crucial evidence that could have helped his defense against the murder charges. He was convicted in 1986, and his death sentence was later reduced to a life sentence.

"Sure I'm bitter. I'm angry," Smith said after walking out of state prison Friday night in Huntingdon, about 100 miles west of Harrisburg. "I don't think I can be happy anymore. What is there to be happy about? You can see what kind of justice system you have."

Smith said his time in prison was "worse than a nightmare."

■ Newspapers apologize for running circular

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Two newspapers have apologized for running an anti-abortion circular containing graphic photographs of aborted human fetuses and a third canceled plans to run the advertisement after viewing it Friday.

"We found it much too graphic for our readers," Robert D. Utter, editor of The Westerly Sun, said after pulling the eight-page supplement.

"It's really assaulting and not really informational," Utter said.

The supplement, which ran in The Narragansett Times and Cranston Herald, was paid for by Catholics for Life, a Rhode Island anti-abortion group.

Executives at the newspapers, which ran front-page apologies Wednesday and Thursday, said they had not seen the ad until after it was published last week, and would not have accepted it had they been aware of the photographs.

Four other newspapers, including the weekly newspaper of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Providence, wouldn't accept the circular.

Clinton acknowledges discussing draft

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark (NYT) — Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton's campaign organization acknowledged Friday that the Democratic presidential nominee discussed options to the draft with Sen. J.W. Fulbright's office in 1969, when Clinton was seeking a spot in the University of Arkansas Reserve Officers Training Corps to avoid being drafted.

Asked whether Clinton had gone to Fulbright for help entering the ROTC, Dee Dee Myers, Clinton's spokeswoman, acknowledged in a statement that Clinton had "talked to the Fulbright people about what his options were and asked them to help him ascertain those options, but he didn't ask anyone to influence anyone on his behalf."

"This is what Senatorial offices do," she added. "That's what taxpayers pay them to do."

This statement seems to run counter to Clinton's previous statement that he received no "unusual or favorable treatment," and apparently contradicts an earlier claim by the campaign that "he never asked anyone for help" as he sought to avoid serving in Vietnam.

A document in Fulbright archives at the University of Arkansas shows how Fulbright's office provided that help. The single sheet of handwritten notes is sketchy but suggests that in July 1969, Fulbright's top aide discussed Clinton's request to join the training program with Army officials and was familiar with the details of the arrangement Clinton was seeking. A discussion of the memo this week with Fulbright's aide, Lee Williams, supports this interpretation of the document.

At the time senators, other politicians and their staffs often exercised their influence to help young men find alternative forms of military service when faced with the draft, and the Fulbright archives show that the senator was providing assistance to a number of others at the same time.

Clinton had worked in Fulbright's office a year earlier, while he was a student at Georgetown University.

These matters have become an issue in the presidential campaign not so much because of the events 23 years ago but because of Clinton's difficulty this year in giving a full account of them.

Williams' notes and Ms. Myers' statement suggest that Clinton has been forced once again to add to his explanation of how he avoided the draft — though he has now said several times that there is nothing more to tell. The changes in his position have become one of the Clinton campaign's largest vulnerabilities, one the Bush campaign continues to exploit.

But Clinton's explanations of another disputed area of his draft story may be supported by the document in the Fulbright archives.

It shows that in July 1969, Fulbright's office was discussing the terms of an arrangement with the Army training program in just the way Clinton has described them this year.

Col. Eugene Holmes, who commanded the university's ROTC program at the time, issued an angry statement Wednesday night charging that Clinton had "defrauded the military" and "purposely deceived me."

In the statement and in a previous interview, Holmes asserted that he had been led to believe that Clinton would enter the program right away and then did not do it.

Pentagon declassifies existence of office

WASHINGTON (AP) — For 32 years it didn't officially exist, its name a whispered shadow, its budget a black hole. When necessary, officials referred to it as "the entity" or "the office."

On Friday, bowing to relentless congressional pressure, the Pentagon revealed the existence of the super-secret agency that buys and operates the nation's spy satellites and its other airborne espionage systems.

"Don Atwood, Deputy Secretary of Defense, today announced the declassification of the existence of the National Reconnaissance Office, as recommended by the Director of Central Intelligence," said a laconic, four-paragraph statement.

The NRO's mission is "to ensure that the U.S. has the technology and spaceborne and airborne assets needed to acquire intelligence worldwide ...," the statement said.

It named the agency director — Martin C. Faga — and its two deputy directors, and provided a coded Pentagon address and a telephone number.

All other information about the agency is still a secret, the statement said.

Is it?

The NRO's existence was one of the worst kept secrets in Washington. In 1973, a Senate report first revealed the name in a public list — too late for government censors to delete.

The name has since appeared in numerous books and articles. The secrecy has only challenged outside experts to explore its mysteries.

One of these experts is Steven Aftergood of the Federation of American Scientists, who estimates the NRO's budget at $5 billion a year. He said the agency was established in 1960 and is located in room 4C958 of the Pentagon.

Rep. George E. Brown Jr., a California Democrat, resigned his seat on the House Intelligence Committee in 1987 after publicly naming the NRO on the House floor and causing a furor.

"I'm a troublemaker," he conceded in an interview. Nonetheless, he said, the declassification was "inevitable and long overdue."

Brown noted that the Soviet Union — the country most targeted by the satellites — knew full well about the NRO's existence many years ago. In fact, the only people in the dark were the American taxpayers who footed the bill, he added.

Although the declassification doesn't go far enough, Brown said, it is likely to open the door to other information, such as the agency's budget.

Advocates of the declassificaiton have long argued that keeping the agency a secret considerably limited scrutiny of its budget and operations — at a time when budgets need to be cut and operations streamlined. The NRO's budget is believed to be the single largest component in the estimated $30 billion annual intelligence budget — bigger than the CIA's.

The House and Senate committees that oversee U.S. intelligence agencies have for months been pressing for the declassification of the NRO's existence.

Administration sends proposed free trade pact to Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush on Friday formally notified Congress that he intends to sign the free trade agreement just negotiated with Mexico and Canada, starting the clock ticking for congressional consideration of the pact.

The administration sent to Capitol Hill the 2,000-plus pages of the North American Free Trade Agreement, along with reports compiled by the 38 private sector advisory groups that were consulted during the 14-month negotiations.

The trade treaty, concluded Aug. 12, would eliminate over 15 years any tariffs and other barriers to the flow of goods, services and investment between the three nations. Critics say the treaty will drive jobs south of the border and lead to a decline in the environment.

"I continue to believe that the agreement is a historic agreement — one that would serve the interests of all Americans, all states and lead to the growth of Mexico, which will have a big payback for the United States both in terms of making Mexico a better customer and also in making it a more stable neighbor," U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills told reporters Friday.

With congressional notification, Bush now must wait at least 90 calendar days before he can sign the treaty — provided he's reelected. The 90-day clock would elapse Dec. 17, more than a month after the Nov. 3 election.

Democratic candidate Bill Clinton told reporters while on a campaign swing Friday in New Mexico that he still has not made up his mind whether to support the pact. Aides had said earlier that Clinton would announce a decision this week.

"I'm soliciting a wide range of opinions," Clinton said. "We're working very hard. It's a big agreement. I want to make a very careful analysis and a very clear statement."

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Church observes Heifer Sunday

First United Methodist Church will host a cow and a live milker Sunday. The church will give curb-side demonstrations of how milk is produced.

The animal will be furnished by the Southwest Dairy Museum, Sulfur Springs.

The cow's visit is intended to remind church members of "Heifer Sunday," the day on which gifts are made to Heifer Project International, a non-profit group which donates farm animals to poor families overseas and in the U.S. Many Protestant churches as well as the Catholic Rural Life Conference support HPI.

Last year, according to George Moore, who heads the Methodist's volunteer missions group, the local congregation gave more than $1,550 to the Heifer Project.

While the fund-raising effort is serious, Moore said, "Its slogan is not. Don't be cowed! Get in the Giving moo-d!"

■ Faught to leave for mission

David Allan Faught, 19, son of Needa Faught and John Faught, will leave his home and family here Wednesday to serve a two-year mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Guayaquil, Equador.

Faught

A graduate of Lee High School, Faught was a member of the National Honor Society and received an academic letter for two years. He also was a member of the Lee High School Orchestra, was voted Outstanding Student in Orchestra and was in the All-Region Orchestra for three years. He is an Eagle Scout.

Faught has been attending Midland College, where he was on the President's List his first semester and on the Dean's List the second semester. He is a member of Phi Theta Kappa, which is an international honor society.

A member of the Midland First Ward of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Faught has been a Sunday School teacher and a counselor in the Sunday School presidency. He attended early morning seminary during his high school years and LDS Institute during college.

Faught has been a counselor at the Village School for two years. Following his mission, Faught plans to return to college to major in literature.

A special missionary farewell will be held at 2:55 p.m. Sunday in the chapel, 4805 Gateway.

The Unitarian Universalist Church will begin its Program of Religious Education for Youth and Children Sunday.

Smith

Kay Smith, director of religious education for the church, is a certified social worker with more than 13 years of experience in youth and children's education.

"The program curriculum is age specific, geared toward helping youth and children develop a moral framework appropriate to the issues they face at each stage of life," said a release from the church.

"In addition to studying the great religious questions, students will learn the stories of the great world religions," the release said.

For more information call Ms. Smith, 694-4308, or the church, 697-8738.

Noel McInnis, author of several books and the co-founder of the National Science of Mind Center in Washington, D.C., will lead a series of workshops in Midland this week that focus on the subject of commitment "to oneself, to one's career and to managing personal objectives so that they don't become compromised by others."

McInnis will give the 11 a.m. Sunday service at Permian Church of Religious Science, 2311 Elizabeth St. The service is open to the public.

He will lead the workshop "Commitment in the Workplace" at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at PCRS. The workshop is open to the public free of charge.

"The workshop will allow people to look at how to get away from the things that are in the way of being productive," McInnis said. "Basically, the secret of life is getting out of the way of what we would like to have happen."

McInnis will also conduct the seminar "The Power of Commitment" 7:30 p.m. Wednesday night at PCRS. It is also open to the public free of charge. Donations will be accepted. For more information call 684-4230.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Let your romantic partner step down from that pedestal and your relationship will become much more meaningful. A part-time job you take in November or December could lead to a new career. Your finances get a big boost early in 1993. You learn a valuable lesson in February. Although a partnership fails, you will emerge stronger than ever by next April. Look for new outlets for your organizational skills in May.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: TV host Joan Lunden, actor Jeremy Irons, novelist William Golding, basketball coach Larry Brown.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Vague doubts could be hampering progress. Your ideas are original and quite practical as well. Tonight, steer the love boat into tranquil waters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Missing a connection could take the wind out of your sails temporarily. Do not despair! An interlude with a fascinating companion could make your day really special.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Have fun today, but try not to overdo it. An out-of-town trip to pursue a favorite sport or pastime could be tops on your busy schedule. A new romance is slowly blossoming.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Routine matters could turn complicated. Try to keep your cool if someone you counted on lets you down. There is no use crying over spilled milk or a missed opportunity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may not be aware of a backstage drama until you hear about it through confidential sources. Resist an urge to get involved. A financial goal moves within closer reach.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Go ahead and try some new activities. So long as you keep your head out of the clouds, you will do just fine. Others expect you to keep your word. Avoid disappointing them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A past indiscretion may come back to haunt you, just when you are eager to wipe the slate clean. An old flame may be involved. Do not try to avoid paying your dues.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Someone may be moody. Do not invade his privacy. What you do not know will not hurt you. Think about making long-overdue changes in your living arrangements.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You get the go-ahead for a project involving writing or teaching. You score big by being in the right place at the right time. Keep your head where romance is concerned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Uphold your end of a bargain. Being adamant about a situation you cannot change is pointless. Learn to go with the flow. Slow and steady wins the race.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not let an important matter slide. You need to stay with a project until its completion. Even if you feel impatient, things will work out.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Handle a troubled personal relationship with kid gloves. Pressures you are not aware of have been building. Be willing to change your stance on a family matter.

TODAY'S CHILDREN: Caring and curious, these service-oriented youngsters are always asking questions. Wise parents will remember that their eager-to-please offspring may respond better to praise than to sweet reason. These Virgos pride themselves on moving with the times and like to dress in the latest styles. Nobody loves a bargain or business venture better than these thrifty children. Although these Virgos enjoy accumulating wealth, they can also be surprisingly generous.

Two bandits debate robbing singer's dad in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS — Two bandits realized they'd picked the wrong victim when he identified himself as District Attorney Harry Connick.

Connick

The thieves tossed a purse taken from Connick's companion back into the car and fled Thursday night after he told them "I'm the district attorney. I don't think you want to do this," Connick said later.

But not before the robbers got into a lively debate about whether to go through with the stickup, said Connick, father of singer Harry Connick Jr.

Connick quoted one of the robbers as telling the other, "No, man, that's the district attorney."

Connick was on his way to a political fund-raiser and had just parked his car on Canal Street near the French Quarter when one of the robbers put a gun to his companion's head and ordered her to toss out her purse.

After the pair fled, Connick spotted a police officer and they chased down one of the suspects in Connick's car. Two other officers nabbed the second.

Police booked Terrell J. Perkins, 17, and a 14-year-old boy who was not identified because of his age on charges of armed robbery.

LINCOLN, Neb. — Dr. Steve Allen Jr., son of the comedian, didn't let the sense of humor he inherited go to waste when he became a doctor.

Allen, a family practitioner in Ithaca, N.Y., travels the country telling other health professionals to lighten up and play a little.

Allen, 48, in Lincoln on Thursday to address a conference of 750 doctors, nurses and other health professionals, said his message for doctors is: "Make yourself laugh and to make laughter a corporate policy in your office. You have to be willing to see yourself as a cartoon occasionally."

Allen, whose grandmother was in the circus and whose grandfather performed in vaudeville, said humor was how his family coped with life. He carried that into his profession.

Allen said he chose medicine because it was one of three things his father was not good at. The others: salad chef and airline pilot.

MINNEAPOLIS — British composer Andrew Lloyd Webber describes the revival of his musical "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" as a production for children.

The show is making its U.S. premiere at the Historic State Theatre in Minneapolis, with Donny Osmond in the starring role.

"I feel it's important to introduce children to the theater and it's a joy to see children in the theater," said Lloyd Webber, who was in Minneapolis for Thursday night's debut. "That's why there are children in the production."

Lloyd Webber said he saw his first musical, "My Fair Lady," at age 10.

Scores of local children will perform during the musical's 12-week run.

The show began as a 15-minute cantata for grade-school children in 1968 and has become a two-hour, $4 million spectacle.

MUNCIE, Ind. — Director Paul Verhoeven, whose films include "RoboCop," "Total Recall" and "Basic Instinct," says one of his new projects reflects his own search for God.

Verhoeven

Verhoeven, attending convocation at Ball State University, said Thursday he is three or four years away from making "Christ the Man."

"It will be a provocative movie by putting Jesus in a completely Jewish, political-military context," Verhoeven said.

"We're talking about an occupied nation here that is terrorized by the Romans. You have a situation like the Germans occupying Europe or the Japanese doing the same ... in the Far East."

Christine Shea, an associate professor of classics at Ball State, has helped research "Christ the Man."

Although he doesn't belong to a religious denomination, religion is part of his life, said Verhoeven, whose films incorporate scenes of graphic violence and sex.

"I'm following the path, looking, searching. It's a search for myself, for God — or is there a God? I do hope so, if it's a good God. But normally, I don't think so," he said.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Singer Jeannie Seely prepared for her 25th anniversary on the Grand Ole Opry radio and television country music show by going shopping.

"I went through my wardrobe, and nothing was good enough," she said earlier this week as she anticipated her silver anniversary on the country music show. "I went out and splurged and bought a new dress."

Seely, 52, said the 25 years passed quickly.

"I'm proud of being able to stick with it that long, as well as just happy that they've stuck with me," she said.

Seely won a Grammy Award in 1966 for "Don't Touch Me."

Former chairman refuses to testify

McDuff's parole and the role of parole consultants in trying to win release of client-inmates has prompted investigations into parole practices and calls for tougher guidelines, and regulations on parole consultants.

AUSTIN (AP) — Former state parole board chairman James Granberry refused to answer questions from a Senate committee Friday about his role in the release of violent criminals from prison, including Kenneth Allen McDuff.

McDuff, put on death row for a 1966 triple slaying, faces new capital murder charges in connection with the deaths of two Central Texas women following his parole.

Granberry, appointed to the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles by former Gov. Bill Clements, voted to release McDuff after having abstained in an earlier vote on the inmate.

After resigning from the board in 1991, Granberry began representing inmates who were seeking parole, according to state records.

McDuff's parole and the role of parole consultants in trying to win release of client-inmates has prompted investigations into parole practices and calls for tougher guidelines, and regulations on parole consultants.

Granberry, subpoenaed by the Senate Criminal Justice Committee, appeared before the panel Friday, but cited his constitutional right against self-incrimination in refusing to answer questions.

Committee Chairman Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, asked Granberry about his friendship with McDuff's attorney, his role in the convicted killer's release, and his attempts to solicit business with prisoners when he became a parole consultant.

Granberry refused to answer all the questions.

One of his two attorneys, Herman Gotcher of Austin said, "Dr. Granberry will not cooperate in this circus and will not assist this committee in its fishing expedition."

Granberry, the Republican nominee for governor in 1974 and former mayor of Lubbock, was being made by Democrats the scapegoat for McDuff's release, Gotcher said.

Lyon said Granberry's assertion "is a joke."

"He voted to let that man (McDuff) out and he never should have done it. If he's the scapegoat, he's the scapegoat because he created this situation," Lyon said.

Lyon read a form letter issued in Granberry's name that sought business from inmates. The letter reads in part, "I resigned from the Chairmanship and the Parole Board on May 31, 1991. Since that time I have opened an office in Austin as a Parole Consultant. A mutual friend of ours told me that you might desire representation in securing your parole."

Granberry refused to answer questions about the letter.

In 1990, McDuff was sent back to prison on allegations that he made terroristic threats, according to state records.

But his parole was reinstated by parole board counsel, Betty Wells.

Ms. Wells told the committee that McDuff asserted his constitutional right to confront his accuser. The witness did not show up at the hearing, Ms. Wells said.

Despite his background, Ms. Wells said that McDuff matched the qualifications for a person that was entitled to be paroled.

In addition to the new capital murder charges, authorities say McDuff is a suspect or wanted for questioning in the disappearances of several other women.

Couple found shot to death at home; son is arrested

FORT WORTH (AP) — A Fort Worth man has been accused of firing shotgun blasts Friday that killed his parents and wounded an older brother, police said.

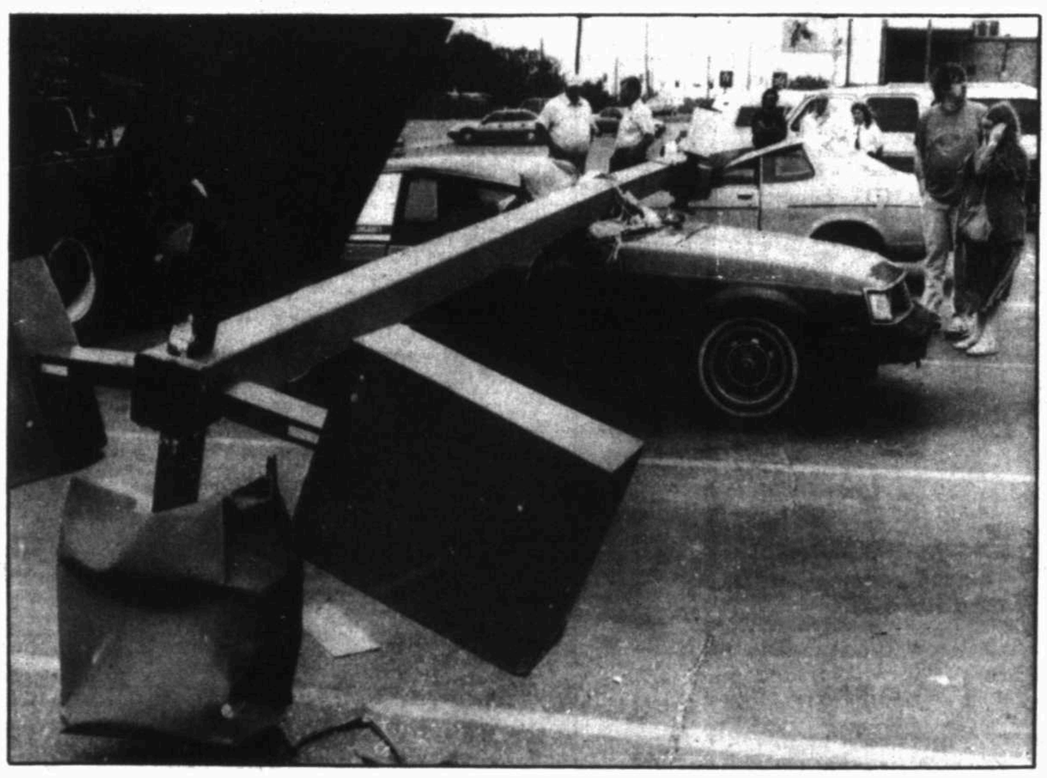

The dead were identified as James E. Person Sr., 52, and his wife, Lucy, 62. Officials said Person died from a shotgun blast to the head and Mrs. Person from a blast to the abdomen.

Neighbors in the southeast Fort Worth neighborhood told police they heard shots at the residence before 10 a.m. Friday. When a son, James E. Person Jr., 35, arrived to check on his parents, he was shot in the buttocks as he tried to flee, witnesses said.

"Officers responded and found two people dead inside the house," Lt. Ralph Swearingen said.

A younger son was arrested a short time later, in the nearby vicinity of Lake Arlington, Swearingen said. He was taken to police headquarters for questioning.

A shotgun believed to have been used in the shooting was found inside the house, Swearingen said.

House rebuffs GOP request for ethics probe of chairman

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Friday rebuffed an attempt by Republicans to initiate an ethics investigation of Democratic Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez for revealing classified information on the Bush administration's prewar dealings with Iraq.

But Rep. Larry Combest, who spearheaded the effort, said the vote would not end attempts to rein in Gonzalez, chairman of the House Banking Committee.

"There will be other efforts made to try to ensure that there are no more leaks," the Lubbock lawmaker said. "Those options are being reviewed."

The House, on a straight party line vote of 216-150, tabled Combest's resolution to request an ethics committee investigation of Gonzalez, who is from San Antonio.

Combest, who is a member of the House Select Intelligence Committee, said he wasn't surprised by the outcome. "I've been here long enough to read the handwriting on the wall," he said.

Since last March, Gonzalez has frequently disclosed information on the House floor on U.S. dealings with Iraq before the Persian Gulf War. He has maintained that much of what he has talked about is taken from public sources, although conceding some documents inserted in the Congressional Record were classified.

Gonzalez, who didn't immediately return telephone calls Friday from The Associated Press, previously has defended releasing the secret documents under the speech and debate clause of the Constitution.

He contends the Reagan and Bush administrations tolerated Iraq's efforts to build nuclear and chemical weapons and propped up the Iraqi economy with U.S.-taxpayer-subsidized loans.

Administration officials have admitted their prewar policy toward Iraq was a failure, but have denied any wrongdoing.

In a statement released Thursday night, Gonzalez blasted Republican leaders for attempting to sandbag his probe.

"They tried to stop the Iraq investigation before it started. When that didn't work, they tried to hide the evidence. Then they tried to intimidate me. And now, most desperate of all they are trying to make telling the truth an ethical crime," Gonzalez said.

"The Republicans are desperate to hide the truth about how George Bush supported Saddam Hussein right up to the beginning of the Gulf War. Telling the truth is no crime."

Republicans claim that failure to restrain Gonzalez could hurt intelligence operations, jeopardize allies' security and justify withholding of information to Congress by the executive branch.

When Gonzalez first began his investigation, he was essentially alone.

Day care rules spark controversy

AUSTIN (AP) — Child care operators disagree over a proposal for tougher state standards on day care that would require lower staff-child ratios.

Proponents say fewer children per staff member dramatically improves care. Opponents warn that the change could make care unaffordable and harder to find.

"It's a very emotionally charged issue," said Virginia Best, child-care licensing supervisor with the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services.

"It could possibly involve increased costs, and that's a big consideration. We're trying to be sensitive to the needs of parents and also looking at what's best for kids. Nothing has been decided," she said.

There are two other proposed changes: Requiring more training for child-care workers, including eight hours before the care-giver starts work, and banning corporal punishment.

Those two recommendations, made to state licensing officials by an ad hoc committee, apparently have strong support.

In an initial round of town meetings held statewide earlier this year, 88 percent of those present agreed with the corporal punishment ban and 5 percent disagreed. On the issue of more training, 73 percent agreed and 20 percent disagreed.

Participants were divided on the child-staff ratio issue: 44 percent agreed with the proposal; 30 percent disagreed; 26 percent were undecided.

Under the proposal, for 2-year-olds, for instance, the minimum standard would be one caregiver for nine children. It is now 1-to-11 or 1-to-13 if some children in the group are older. If adopted, it would be the first upgrade in ratios since 1979.

Different ratios will be developed for group day-care homes, licensed facilities that provide care for seven to 12 children under 14 years of age. The smallest type of day care, family day-care homes, are required to register with the state but are not licensed, which means they are subject to considerably less regulation.

Minimum standards for licensed day-care centers come under review every six years in Texas. Those now under discussion would take effect in 1994.

In the last review, lowering the ratio by one or two children was considered but rejected, Ms. Best said. Officials opted instead to increase training and qualifications for day-care center directors and employees.

Doreen Bohrer, executive director at Bethany Lutheran Child Care Center in Austin, said any center that has attained voluntary accreditation by the National Association for the Education of Young Children would provide low ratios. Her center, for instance, has a 1-6 ratio for 2-year-olds.

"Everyone probably can't make those drastic cuts because of financial aspects," she said. "Even with nonprofits, it's hard."

Costs under the lower staff-child ratio would rise dramatically, warned Fort Worth's Dorothy Dunn, president of the Texas Licensed Child Care Association, which represents 1,000 day-care center proprietors.

Governor Richards checks out 'Bob Roberts'

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards, already the state's First Fan when it comes to movies, is trying her hand as a film critic.

She penned a review giving two and one-half stars to the political satire "Bob Roberts," which she said sometimes comes close to real life.

The film "works hard to capture the superficiality, the manipulation and the sheer absurdity that, I must concede, are part of the political process," Richards wrote.

The governor's comments were published Friday in the "Everybody's a Critic" feature where the Austin American-Statesman newspaper encourages readers to submit brief reviews of recent movies.

"They asked her to do it," said Margaret Justus, spokeswoman for Richards. "She saw a sneak preview of the movie last week."

"Bob Roberts," starring and directed by Tim Robbins, tells the story of a right-wing millionaire-folk singer who runs a U.S. Senate campaign against a veteran Democratic windbag played by Gore Vidal.

In her review, the Democratic governor hints that she found the movie maybe a touch too authentic.

She credited the filmmaker with "brilliantly mimicking the jumpy, hand-held camera technique of a political documentary."

And she said that despite some "heavy-handed philosophizing toward the end, Robbins scores several direct hits along the way. Some of them are wickedly funny."

Her recommendation? Buy a ticket.

"All in all, 'Bob Roberts' is a movie worth seeing, although viewers in this weird political season might wonder where the satire ends and reality begins," Richards wrote.

The governor is a longtime, big-time film fan. Last year, she signed the state budget bill after seeing "Fried Green Tomatoes," aides recalled.

Despite a heavy workload, Ms. Justus said, the governor tries to see a film about once a week.

"If she has an opportunity to go out with a friend, or her family, she may see one a week. It's her one opportunity to get away from telephones and people and eat popcorn, which is one of her favorite things to eat," Ms. she said.

Man killed while examining pistols

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A San Antonio-area family has been stricken with tragedy for the second time in six weeks.

On Aug. 10, Alonzo Zepeda, 63, and three granddaughters were killed when the pickup truck he was driving was hit by a train at a crossing near their home in southwest Bexar County.

Thursday, Sergio Zepeda, 30, was killed when a .25-caliber handgun discharged as he and his brothers, Pedro Zepeda and Rudy Zepeda, all of Milwaukee, Wis., were looking at the pistol and other possessions of their father, family members said.

"Everybody was just barely getting out of a bad tragedy," said Abel Zepeda, brother of Alonzo Zepeda and uncle of the three brothers. "Things happen. There's nothing we can do about it. This is an accident just like the other one."

Abel said Pedro was showing Sergio how to use the automatic pistol when it discharged.

"They're all from the city," the uncle said. "They don't know much about guns. He forgot that the safety wasn't on and a bullet was in the chamber."

Sergio was struck in front of other family members in the kitchen, where they just had finished breakfast together.

About 40 members of the family and close friends from Wisconsin, South Texas and California had gathered Thursday at the Zepeda home.

"Every 57 hours, a law enforcement officer is killed in the line of duty."

Perry, Hall at odds over water regulation

AUSTIN (AP) — State Water Commission Chairman John Hall on Friday accused Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry of being dishonest and playing partisan politics over managing of the Edwards Aquifer.

Hall's comments were in response to Perry's allegation that Hall had conspired with federal officials to takeover the aquifer, which is the primary water source for about 1.5 million people, including the city of San Antonio.

"The final resolution of this important matter would be greatly improved if we saw leadership from Mr. Perry and help getting agricultural interests to the table in a meaningful way," Hall said.

Hall is a Democrat appointee of Gov. Ann Richards, while Perry is a Republican.

Perry denied Hall's charges. "To suggest that Commissioner Perry is not being cooperative is completely untrue," said his spokeswoman Rossanna Salazar.

The fight over the Edwards Aquifer has been before the Water Commission, in federal court, and promises to be a hotly contested issue in the regular session of the Legislature that starts in January.

The Sierra Club filed a lawsuit seeking protection of the fountain darter under the Endangered Species Act. State and local officials say that if Texas fails to enact an aquifer management plan that preserves spring flows for the darter, the federal government will seize control.

Earlier this month, the Water Commission adopted a measure to limit pumping from the aquifer. But a state district judge rejected that plan, saying that the panel did not have the authority to limit groundwater usage.

Perry has opposed the Water Commission's plan and accused Hall earlier this week of suggesting to federal U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service that it threaten taking over the aquifer. This was used as a "hammer," Perry said, to support the Water Commission's plan.

Hall said Perry's allegation is "irresponsible and dishonest."

The Water Commission has been working to prevent Fish and Wildlife from taking over the aquifer, Hall said.

He said originally Fish and Wildlife demanded a continuous flow of water at the springs, but that through negotiations, the Water Commission was able to persuade the federal agency to reduce that demand.

"The TWC has tried to prevent federal intervention in the management of a Texas resource. The TWC became involved in the Edwards matter reluctantly and has demonstrated repeatedly a willingness to support any fair, reasonable, and effective plan brought forward by anyone," Hall said.

Judge orders contractor to jail for ignoring court order

EL PASO (AP) — A state judge sentenced a farm labor contractor to jail for six months Friday for ignoring her order to pay thousands of dollars to migrant workers whom a federal judge ordered him to pay six years ago.

Judge Mary Anne Bramblett ordered Juan Cigarroa of El Paso to begin serving his sentence immediately.

Farm worker advocates said the ruling was historic and would send a message to other contractors who violate laws protecting migrant workers. They also said the ruling should encourage workers, many who are Mexicans with work permits or legal residency, to stand up for their rights.

"I think the word will be out on the bridge tonight," said Mark Schneider, the Texas Rural Legal Aid Inc. attorney who represented the workers. He was referring to a downtown bridge where workers regularly gather before dawn to await buses to take them to New Mexico fields.

"I think this will really empower workers. They will be a little less afraid of retaliation and realize these guys are not above the law," Schneider said.

Six years ago, Cigarroa was ordered to pay more than $30,000 to workers he recruited for work in Colorado. The workers sued him for misleading them about work conditions.

He never paid the money. In a hearing earlier this year, Bramblett ruled Cigarroa could afford to pay $17,160 and $60 a day to pay off the judgement. But Cigarroa again failed to pay, prompting the judge to rule he was in criminal contempt of court.

"Mr. Cigarroa you have had two able attorneys represent you on this case. They have done their best to help you ... You have ignored their advice and the orders of two judges ... Now you'll have time in jail to think of the things you should have done," Bramblett said.

Bramblett told Cigarroa he would be released if he paid the judgment or attorneys negotiate a settlement, but the attorneys could not come up with a settlement immediately after the sentencing.
