It's 3-Way Race For GOP Prize

By RAYMOND LAHR
MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—The down to the wire contest for the Republican presidential nomination was openly converted into a three-way race today by the appearance of a functioning campaign organization for Gov. Ronald Reagan of California. For the first time since 1952, the outcome may be in doubt until the balloting on the third day of the GOP National Convention, which opens Monday.

The creation of a Reagan organization to challenge Richard M. Nixon and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York surprised no one. Still Reagan persists in calling himself only a favorite son candidate until his name goes before the convention Wednesday.

Reagan, Rockefeller Alliance Reagan supporters scoffed at polls and delegate counts showing him a weak third behind the two more active candidates. But they were working in an uneasy alliance with Rockefeller campaigners to block a first or second ballot nomination for Nixon.

F. Clifton White, one of the key men in Barry M. Goldwater's successful pre-convention drive in 1964 nomination, announced Thursday that he had been asked by the California delegation to coordinate convention activity for Reagan. He demurred, however, at being called Reagan's campaign manager.

White was hired by the delegation as an adviser and to collect information—as he put it—about "the mood of delegates" to the convention. He told a news conference that he had reported six weeks ago that Reagan's undeclared candidacy was attracting "considerable support and interest throughout the country."

Claim Delegates Switch Rockefeller managers, in their effort to stop Nixon on the first and second ballots, have imputed to Reagan more strength than even Reagan's own backers claim. The Rockefeller organization says Reagan has picked up more than 40 delegates from Nixon in the past few days. A key Reagan backer said 15 to 20 might have switched.

The latest UPI tally shows 679 delegates now committed to or 50-50 chance for the presidential (See GOP, Page 3)

Band Gets 5th Place In State Contest

The Pampa High School Harvester Band was named to fifth place in the state recently in judging at San Antonio, according to Harris Brinson, band director.

To be eligible to enter the state competition, a band must have won first place in its region. Pampa was named first in region one in May and was one of 15 regional winners in the state contest.

This is the sixth year the PHS band has placed among the top five bands in Texas. The 4A bands compete only every two years to allow 3A bands to compete for the title in their division, Brinson said.

In the state 4A event, McAllen High School was first; Richardson High School, second; Alice High School third; Hurst-Bell, fourth and Pampa, fifth.

McAllen band will perform in February in the Texas Music Educators Convention in San Antonio.

The PHS band will start its pre-school rehearsals Aug. 15, Brinson said.

Costa Rica Lost 68 To Volcano

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI)—Costa Rica marked its national patron saint holiday today in mourning for 68 persons dead in the eruptions of Mt. Arenal, dormant for 600 years until Monday.

The 5,092-foot volcano erupted gas and ash again late Thursday but did no damage. Rescue workers turned up seven more bodies burned by the shock wave of gas that swept from the mountain Monday.

Hazlewood Hits Back At Demos

Democratic State Senator Grady Hazlewood has told Potter County Democrats, who asked him to resign because he endorsed a Republican for President, "how the cow ate the cabbage."

In a lengthy statement addressed to the Potter County Democratic Executive Committee and Miss Claudia Brummett, 31st District committeewoman, the senator reiterated his refusal of their request in no uncertain terms yesterday. The statement said in part:

"Should I ever resign, I assure you it will be because I have failed my constituents because of a lack of guts and courage to stand up for my convictions, and it darn sure won't be because people like you requested it. My answer to you and your group is a resounding No."

In effect, Hazlewood told his Democratic critics he was "not their kind of Democrat."

The fust began July 19 when Senator Hazlewood appeared at a GOP fund-raising event in Amarillo at which California Gov. Ronald Reagan was the principal speaker.

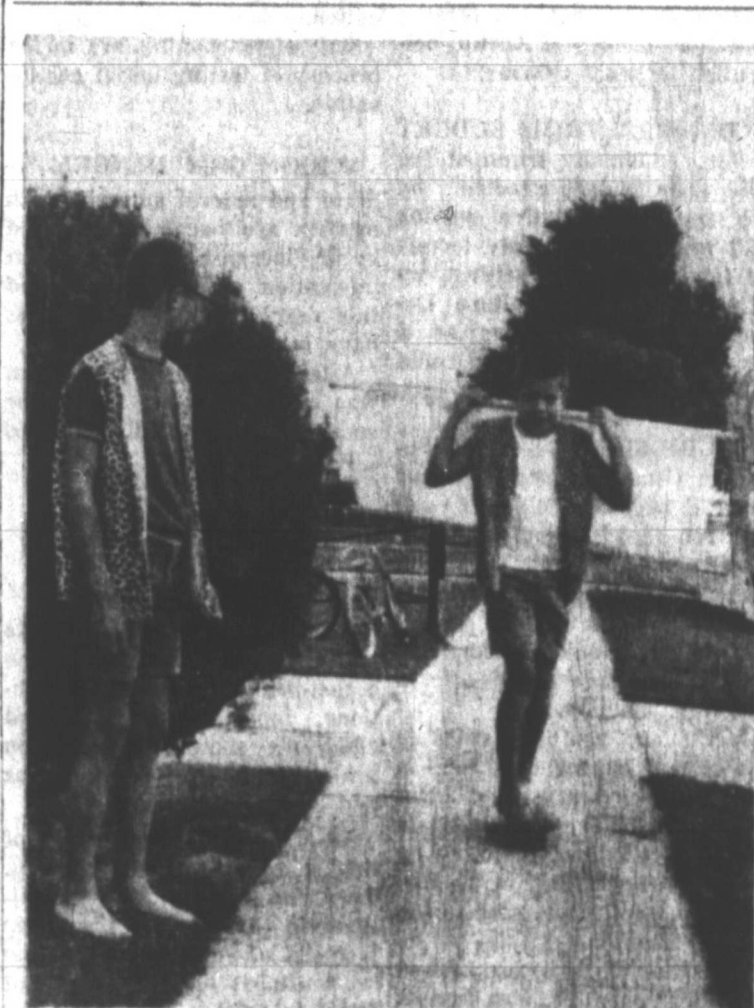

Hazlewood attended the dinner and during a speech that night endorsed Reagan for President. This turned out to be a bomb tossed into local Democratic ranks and last Tuesday the Potter County Democratic Executive Committee came up with official action requesting Hazlewood's resignation from the Democratic Party. Miss Brummett, the district committeewoman and a member of the committee, joined in public denunciation of Hazlewood's endorsement of Reagan.

"It's going to take a man of courage to get us out of the mess," Hazlewood said in his statement on television last night. "That's why I am for the man rather than the party at this point."

Hazlewood also turned to Miss Brummett's castigation of his support for Reagan.

In this connection, the senator said, addressing both the Potter County Democratic Executive Committee and Miss Brummett:

"I am not your kind of Democrat, or I would resign tomorrow. Claudia, you haven't had any use for me since a number of delegates from my area started to 'kick' you out as Democratic committeewoman. You even had intermediaries try to arrange a meeting between the two of us so we could get better acquainted. You know, or you should know, that I did not and have never endorsed any person as congressman for that district, as you (See HAZLEWOOD, Page 3)

Some School Zones Changed

New Use For Carver School Is Announced

By WANDA MAE HUFF
Pampa News Staff Writer
Pampa School trustees voted Monday to change Carver Elementary School from its status of a one-room school and to use the facilities for an educational services center for the school district.

The 122 pupils at Carver will be bused daily from the Carver campus to Baker and Lamar Elementary Schools beginning Sept. 3, the first day of classes. The board approved the changes unanimously Thursday night after a two-hour action session in which they also selected Sterling Gibson, of Portales, N. M., as Pampa High School basketball coach.

Dr. James F. Malone, school superintendent, suggested the change in use for the Carver school building and submitted new zone lines for Carver, Baker, Lamar, Wilson and Austin Elementary Schools.

The board approved all zone changes. The zone line for Lamar and Baker Elementary Schools will start on West Street and extend south to Ford Street; east on Ford Street; to Octavious Street; South on Octavious Street to Crawford Street and south on Crawford Street to Clark Street and south on Road.

All elementary students west of the line would go to Baker School and those east to Lamar School. This change would put 60 more students in Baker School and 62 in Lamar School and prevent having an overload of students in either school, trustees said.

The zone change for Wilson Elementary School was recommended to prevent future overloading of Austin Elementary School, Dr. Malone said.

The Wilson Elementary School attendance area will run along Red Deer Creek to Harvester Street; east on Harvester Street to Evergreen St. north on Evergreen Street on 16th Street to Pampa Country Club property.

Personnel at Carver School are to be absorbed into other schools in the district besides Lamar and Baker Schools, J.C.

Randall, Carver campus principal, was named as director of the educational services center with a salary equal to his present principals salary. As director, Randall will coordinate use of the center's facilities and serve as visiting principal to Baker and Lamar Schools, Dr. Malone said. The Carver facilities will be used as offices for the elementary coordinator, PESO (Panhandle Educational Services Organization) coordinator, (See ZONES, Page 3)

Carver School Had 38 Enrolled 1st Year

By WANDA HUFF
Pampa News Staff Writer
According to information published in 1938 in the "History of Education in Gray County," Pampa's first school for Negro children was authorized Aug. 18, 1930, near the present site of Carver Elementary School.

"The History of Education in Gray County" was the subject for a master's thesis by Mrs. J. R. Holloway, the former Zenobia McFarlin. The thesis was written in 1939 for a masters in education at the graduate school of the University of Texas.

Excerpts from the thesis, which included a personal interview with J. A. Meek, principal of the school, on May 24, 1938, explained the status of education of the school's personnel, the building's structure and facilities and the number of scholars enrolled.

The first of its kind in Gray County, the school had 38 pupils its first year, but at the end of the first term, 13 were on the roll, Meek said.

The school was named for its first teacher, Sam A. Hayden, who was also principal from 1930 until May, 1938. Hayden had three years' college work in Prairie View Normal and had a first class elementary certificate. The re-

Five-Story Apartment House Is Collapsed

By ARNOLD DIBBLE
MANILLA (UPI)—Pre-dawn earthquakes struck this city of 3 million today, smashing five large buildings, cracking thousands more and jamming hospitals with casualties. Mayor Antonio Villages said he counted seven dead but Police Lt. Santos Capistrano said the Filipino capital's worst quakes in "several decades" killed at least 200 persons. A year old, five story apartment house, the Ruby Tower housing 600 to 1,000 persons, collapsed as if a "big hand pressed it down," said witness George Yu, 28. Street lights blacked out. Yu said he could see nothing but could hear the screaming of victims caught among the 14-inch thick slabs of broken concrete.

Hospitals Overflow Hundreds of injured persons overflowed hospital wards. They filled the hallways. No Americans were reported the casualties.

In a hotel, nurse Genelle Mantz of Evanston, Ill., "got my flashlight, my passport and my money" when she saw the tiles peeling off the bathroom wall.

"We went out into the park because we didn't know if the next quake would bring down the building. There were two very elderly ladies who you would have thought would panic but they took it all calmly. I think the men were more nervous than the women," nurse Mantz said.

The first shock hit at 4:22 a.m. knocking down part of City Jail. Twenty minutes later a lesser but still wall-cracking shock struck. Weather officials measured the big shock at six on the Rossi-Forel scale of 10 and said, hopefully, they saw no sign of a tidal wave coming.

The Manila Weather Bureau said the quakes centered 175 miles northeast of here, rumbling up along Luzon Island's mountains. But government officials said damage centered in Manila. The worst came in Doroteo Jose Street where the Ruby Tower fell.

Search for Victims UPI Correspondent Robert Ibrahim said young men clawed at the wreckage, tossing aside broken television sets and naked dolls in search of victims. Later (See QUAKE, Page 3)

Highlights and Sidelights From Your State Capitol

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association
AUSTIN — Campaigns will be shaping up soon on 14 more amendments to the state constitution. All 14 of the proposed changes in the state's basic laws will be voted on at the general election Nov. 5. Some are far-reaching, others routine.

Here are the amendments in the order in which they will appear on the Nov. 5 ballot:

1. Revising provisions for management and administration of the state employee's retirement system and permitting investment in securities other than government bonds.
2. Raising the state's welfare spending ceiling from $60 million to $75 million.
3. Permitting investment of the Permanent University Fund by UT regents in certain types of securities, within the "prudent man rule."
4. Allowing Dallas County to issue road bonds on vote of property taxpayers.
5. Authorizing a raise in state legislators' salary from $4,800 to $6,400 a year and extending the per diem expense allowance of legislators ($12 a day) to 140 days of a regular lawmaking session. (Present limit is 120 days.)

6. Allowing the legislature to exempt from property taxes equipment installed by industrialists to control air or water pollution.

7. Phasing out the state property tax after Dec. 31, 1976, beginning next year, except that portion for higher education institutions.

8. Eliminating the requirement that the governor, secretary of state and comptroller approve contracts for printing and paper.

9. Providing for contributions to the teacher retirement system on the basis of full salaries. (Contributions are now limited to $504 a year.)

10. Allowing the legislature to provide for refund of state tax on cigars and tobacco products sold at retail in Texas.

11. Authorizing the legislature to permit consolidation of offices and governmental functions in El Paso and Tarrant Counties.

12. Giving the legislature power to authorize cities and counties to issue revenue bonds for industrial development purposes and permit private concerns to operate plants thus financed.

13. Exempting from property tax certain property temporarily stored in public warehouses.

14. Spelling out that legislators will not be ineligible for other offices because their terms extend a few days into January.

DEMOCRATS PREPARING — Democrats are getting ready for their own big pow-wow in Chicago starting Aug. 26.

Gov. John Connally, Texas delegation chairman and favorite son-candidate for the presidency, announced these appointments to convention posts:

Secretary of State Roy Barrena of San Antonio, delegation secretary; Cecil Burney of Corpus Christi and Mrs. Roland Boyd of McKinney, resolutions and platform committee; Will D.

Davis of Austin and Miss Claudia Brummett of Amarillo, credentials committee; Tom Gordon of Abilene and Miss Julian Cowden of Alvarado, rules and order of business; Mrs. Horace Botsford of Corpus Christi and M. J. Anderson of Austin, committee on permanent convention organization.

Also, Rhea Howard, Wichita Falls, committee to notify the presidential candidate of nomination; Mrs. Hilda B. Weinert of Seguin, committee to notify vice-presidential nominee; J. C. Leoney of Edinburg, honorary convention vice-president; J. C. Martin of Laredo, honorary assistant vice-president; Ralph McCullough of Houston, honorary secretary; Hunter McLean of Ft. Worth, honorary assistant secretary; and John Mobley of Austin, delegation sergeant-at-arms.

CONNALLY TRIMS BUDGET

Gov. Connally trimmed the 1969 state budget enacted by the special legislative session $1.3 million and sternly lectured lawmakers for setting up $1.4 million in Agriculture Department appropriations as a lump sum item which he could not veto selectively.

COURT SPEAKS — State Supreme Court refused to hear John Robert McClelland's suit to force Harris County GOP Chairman Mrs. W. M. Palm and State GOP Chairman Peter O'Donnell to certify him as the Republican candidate for the House of Representatives in the Nov. election.

McClelland got 6,859 votes to his closest opponent's 2,992 in the GOP primary race. But the county chairman refused to certify McClelland, claiming he would not have lived in the district for a full year prior to the Nov. 5 election.

A Dallas golfer who injured his back when he was thrown from a golf cart at Dallas' Riverlake Country Club has won a new trial in his damage suit for $134,000 against the club. High Court approved the move for George A. McRay after a Dallas court had ruled in favor of the club. McRay claims the club was negligent in allowing high grass to obscure a stump off the fairway on the 18th hole. Cart McRay was riding hit this stump and McRay was thrown out.

ACTION SPARKED — Faced with the Jan. 1 deadline for a regulation prohibiting intrastate shipments of cattle from counties having no certification for brucellosis control, several counties are hurrying into action to secure certification.

Animal Health Department reports three counties — Hemphill, Orange and Starr — qualified for certification during June. Cameron and Hidalgo Counties qualified for recertification.

Sixty-eight counties are in the process of testing initial certification.

SCREWORM DANGER — State and federal animal health experts are becoming worried at the increase in screwworm infestation cases being filed this year. To date 1,125 cases have been reported in 1968. After the sterile fly program was inaugurated in 1962, the screwworm count fell below 300 cases by 1964.

The rapid increase in cases this year is blamed on extremely wet weather in South and West Texas which has made a climate especially suited for the worms and their parent screwworm flies.

Ranchers are warned to perform surgical operations (dehorning and castration) only if maximum safety precautions are taken to prevent fly infestation.

NEW AIR ROUTES — Texas Aeronautics Commission has approved two new airlines for flights into Dallas.

Miller Aircraft won approval for flights between Waco and Dallas and Fleetway Airlines was approved for flights between Tyler and Dallas. Fleetway also won approval for flights between Texarkana and Longview.

Short Snorts

Gov. Connally called a special election in Dallas' Third District for Aug. 24 to fill the unexpired term of the late Congressman Joe Pool.

Citizens State Bank of Refugio seeks a charter from the State Banking Department.

House Speaker Ben Barnes named a special commission of legislators and laymen to look into the economic problems of employers and employees in Texas, including the merits and demerits of minimum wage legislation.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Despite all the fancy talk and the breast-beating self-recriminations, most of the so-called children's shows on television are going to stay every bit as bad as they are now.

Most of these shows are of the moronic cartoon variety. They get good ratings, especially those that play to the baser instincts of youngsters. And the reason most of them are not about to reform is that, in the ice cold world of ratings, the statistics are more important than the children themselves. They are, after all, merely an audience of potential consumers.

Here and there, however, a children's show indicates a sign of change. Over at NBC-TV, there are claims that the new Saturday morning series, "The Banana Bunch Adventure Hour," will be much more civilized and gentle in its approach than some of its competing video monstrosities.

Two innovations And this week, CBS-TV and ABC-TV offered announcements about a children's show that warrants attention.

CBS-TV's announcement referred to one of the few really responsible children's series on the network air, "Captain Kangaroo." The series, said the network, "is collaborating with the leading professional institution for early childhood education, the Bank Street College of Education in New York City, in a major television effort to broaden the horizons of children's attitudes and knowledge."

The network added: "Beginning in October, a carefully formulated broadcast curriculum designed to help children understand their world, providing deliberately sequenced educational information within the entertainment, will be presented daily on 'Captain Kangaroo.'"

The Bank Street College, 51 years old, provides graduate courses for more than 1,000 working teachers and for candidates for Master's degrees. Its program is built around discovering how youngsters learn, and how best to teach them and their teachers. In a joint statement, Bob Keeshan, creator and portrayer of 'Captain Kangaroo,' and John Niemeyer, president of the Bank Street College, said:

"(We) are planning a curriculum in which every segment is designed to encourage the child to become an active participant in the viewing process, with an ongoing feeling of discovery through enjoyable learning."

Distribute Material "The techniques, lessons sequences and approaches used by 'Captain Kangaroo' will be available for the guidance of local workshops and of teachers and others working with preschool children and young school children as well."

ABC-TV, meanwhile, announced that starting in September of next year, Smokey the Bear, "the chief animal ranger for the United States," will be featured in a half-hour Saturday cartoon series that will promote conservation. The announcement was made jointly by Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman and ABC-TV President Elton Rile.

Said ABC-TV: "Although each program will consist of three individual, self-contained stories styled for wholesome comedy-adventure, the series will also serve as a means to project the conservation message—the importance of preserving our forests and natural resources—to the young segment of the American public."

Advertising is a serious investment... art, engraving, typography and copy are costly. All are planned carefully to attract readers who are prospects for the merchandise or service. No business can afford to waste any part of this investment in any medium that cannot guarantee definite circulation and readership. "Waste basket circulation" in post offices, and so called throw-aways that usually travel to the incinerator are of little or no value to the advertiser.

BUYING ON THIS BASIS IS SOUND!

Careful studies made regularly by an independent organization—the Audit Bureau of Circulations—shows advertisers exactly what they get in circulation and readership for their advertising investment.

For most subscribers the PAMPA NEWS is the family shopping guide, for it carries the advertising of practically all progressive Pampa stores, markets and services.

It is the ABC's of advertising

the Audit Bureau of Circulation (ABC) is a co-operative, non-profit organization of advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers for the verification of circulation of newspaper members in the United States and Canada.

THE LIGHTER SIDE The Conventions

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Much as I dislike being a bearer of bad news, I must report that I will be on vacation during the Republican National Convention next week.

Therefore, I will be unable to bring you any penetrating analyses to help you understand what is happening on the convention floor and in the smoke-filled cabanas of Miami Beach.

I do not wish to leave my readers completely in the dark, however, so I have prepared an advance tip on what to expect at the crucial stage of the convention.

If you clip this out and paste it on your television set, preferable in the center of the screen, you will be able to refer to it at the proper time.

The most crucial point of every convention comes after the delegates have chosen their candidates and committees are appointed to notify the voters of their nominations.

Watching this over television, you may get the impression that the notifications are mere formalities. Don't you believe it.

Everything hinges on the notification committees being able to find the candidates, particularly the vice presidential candidate. Which means they must act quickly.

If a vice presidential candidate gets wind of his nomination from other sources, he is likely to go into hiding. He may put on a disguise, assume a false name and try to sneak out of town.

It is up to the notification committee to ferret him out and give him the official word while it can still take advantage of the element of surprise. In that sense, the notification committee acts as a sort of process server.

You won't be seeing this on television, but I can give you some idea of what will take place after the vice presidential notification committee is appointed.

The members will hastily assemble behind the rastrum and the chairman will say, "Does anybody have any idea where we can find this guy?" "He was last seen at the airline ticket counter inquiring about the schedule to Madrid," someone will reply.

Whereupon the members will rush to the airport, take off their shoes, tippy-toe up behind the candidate and grab him before he gets away.

Obituaries

W. C. McCLELLAN

W. C. McClellan, 68, brother of Mrs. O.E. Tidwell, 1037 S. Schneider, died Thursday at his home in Los Angeles, Calif. Funeral services will be directed in Greenville by Gray-Sorells Funeral Home. Time of services is pending. Burial will be in Oddfellows Cemetery at Cado Mills.

He is survived by one sister, Mrs. M. F. Reynolds of Dallas.

J. C. LINE

J. C. Line, 54, Albuquerque, N. M., died this morning at his home in Albuquerque. He was the son of Mrs. Lucy Line of Pampa.

He is survived by his wife, Winifred of the home; mother Mrs. Lucy Line, Pampa; sister, Mrs. Fred Brook, Pampa, and brother, J. E. Line, Hereford.

Burial will be Saturday in Albuquerque.

He graduated from Panhandle schools, taught school there and had lived in Albuquerque about 15 years.

MARY ELDRED TERRY

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Eldred Terry, 47, who died of gunshot wounds Thursday morning in Highland General Hospital, will be held at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at Immanuel Temple with Rev. Bill Hobson, former pastor in Pampa, and now pastor in Meade, Kans., officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery directed by Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

Justice of the Peace Ed Anderson ruled cause of death as a self-inflicted gunshot. She was born Feb. 23, 1921 in Oklahoma and was married to Orville Terry at Sayre, Okla. Dec. 17, 1945. She had lived here 20 years and was employed with Marie Foundations.

Survivors include her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Keith, Erick, Okla.; her husband, a brother, two daughters, two step-sons, two step-daughters and 17 grandchildren.

Palbearers will be W. O. Terry, Roy Sanders, Hershel Terry, Johnny Bailey, Gene Leigh and Harold Terry.

George Wallace—The third party candidate told a news conference in Shreveport, La., that he would carry Louisiana despite Gov. John McKeithen's support of Humphrey. He also said he would be on the ballot in 49 states and planned to file a suit to challenge Ohio laws which so far have blocked his candidacy. Supporters in Washington announced steps have been taken to put his name on the District of Columbia ballot.

Murder Charge Filed Against Man Wanted Here After Oklahoma Crash

Marvin Gibson, charged by the FBI with violation of the Dyer Act (interstate transportation of a stolen vehicle) in connection with the theft of a Pampa woman's auto, escaped serious injury in an auto accident Tuesday that claimed the lives of two Oklahoma law enforcement officers and injured another prisoner.

The accident occurred near Stillwater as the two officers were transporting Gibson and another prisoner to a Stillwater jail.

Charges of murder have been filed against Gibson by the sheriff's office in Stillwater. They allege that Gibson grabbed the wheel of the car, causing it to swerve into the path of the oncoming auto.

Sturgeon Is Speaker For Service Club

"A large number of the American people are not only being taught to misbehave, but are being permitted to get away with it," Ben Sturgeon, local Pampa attorney, told the members of the Evening Lions Club at their regular meeting last night in Furr's Cafeteria.

Sturgeon continued his appeal for return to law and order. "The riots, arson, looting, vandalism, and disturbances in Cleveland, Dayton, Chicago, and scores of other cities which are normally punishable under the laws of our Country, have been glossed over as permissible under a so-called Constitutional right of free speech."

"If destroying an individual's private property is a legitimate excuse of free speech, then these people are not reading the same Constitution I read," Sturgeon declared as he urged all citizens to become actively involved in support of all law enforcement agencies.

"Citizen protection is a primary concern of yours and mine, and we must act now to insure it," he added.

Death Ruled Self-Inflicted

Death by self-inflicted gunshot wound was ruled as official cause of the death of Mrs. Orville Terry, 47, of 1213 E. Francis, who died early yesterday in Highland General Hospital.

Her husband told police that his wife had been despondent and that she had shot herself around 2 a.m. yesterday. He said he and his wife were in the bedroom of their home when she got up, left and returned a short time later. He said she then picked up a pistol near the bed and shot herself with the .22 caliber weapon.

Her husband was found tending her wounds when police arrived.

The woman was taken by ambulance to Highland General Hospital, where she was pronounced dead at 4 a.m.

cords were kept by Joe Shelton, bus superintendent about 40 years, Meek said.

"The second teacher, a Mrs. Lola Lee Titus Harris came in 1939. She had two years' college work at Prairie View Normal, and a high school certificate. Her salary was $60 a month, and Hayden's $100 a month," he said.

Mrs. Harris taught the first three grades in a church near the school while Hayden taught four grades in the school building. In 1937-38, 49 students attended and in 1938-39 when the thesis was written, 51 were enrolled.

"Reading, writing and arithmetic were stressed especially. The building is a frame structure in good condition. The equipment is of good quality. The only modern conveniences are gas for heating purposes and electric lights," Meek concluded.

The first structure located near the Marcus Sanders Swimming Pool, remained in use until the present brick plant was built in 1950. Average daily attendance in 1950 was about 100 students.

The present brick structure, located at 321 W. Albert, was named in 1950 after George Washington Carver, the Negro scientist, J. C. Randall, current principal, said.

When the original plant, four classrooms, a gymnasium, home economics, lab, wood-work shop and principal's office, was built the total cost was $188,085.34. This included $143,589 for general contract, $16,300 electrical contracts, $17,550 plumbing contracts and $10,646.34 architect's fee, according to Homer Craig, school business manager.

In 1958, four classrooms were added for $48,448.36, which was the last bond issue for the Pampa School district. Average daily attendance in 1958 was about 175 students, Craig said.

J. C. Randall, principal of the school, taught his first year here in 1948, and has been principal since then. Other principals have been John Turner, Meek, who was also principal of Baker Elementary school, and Hayden.

He left behind word that in 1963 and 1964, the first year Pampa High School was integrated, the district had a total of 238 Negro students. This past year, 1967-68, it had 219.

A breakdown by grades in 1963-64 included 7 in 12th grade; 14; 11th; 24; 10th; 13; 19th; 18; 8th; 21; 7th; 22; 6th; 23; 5th; 26; 4th; 19; 3rd; 27; 2nd and 24 in 1st.

In 1967-68 the 219 total included 9 in 12th 12; 11th; 20; 10th; 14; 9th; 25; 8th; 22; 7th; 19; 6th; 20; 5th; 19; 4th; 18; 3rd; 17; 2nd and 24; 1st. Students in 1st through 6th grades attended Carver school.

While Nixon and Rockefeller campaigners argued about the meaning of public opinion polls, White commented that "you take your choice and pick the one you like." He said current polls cannot be taken as an indication of the election result Nov. 5.

White said he thought the polls did show that a large segment of the electorate is "desperately searching for a strong leader."

Declining Religious Influence Affects College Sexual Codes

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International
The declining influence of religious teachings and the crumbling of other traditional restraints have led to a substantial increase in premarital sexual activity among U.S. college girls.
However, there is no foundation for claims that "anything goes" has become the sexual code of young Americans. Fifty-seven per cent of all college girls still keep their virginity.
These are the findings of a painstaking survey conducted by the University of Connecticut in collaboration with a research group organized by author Vance Packard.
The results are reported in Packard's forthcoming book, "The Sexual Wilderess." Excerpts from the book are published in the current issue of McCall's.

Compare With Kinsey
The Kinsey Report of the 1940s showed that about 27 per cent of college-educated U.S. women had experienced coitus by age 21.
The new survey indicates the proportion of college girls with coital experience has risen to 43 per cent, an increase of 60 per cent over a span of two decades.
"Despite the significant increase in sexual activity they report, compared with women in past studies, it should be noted that a solid majority (57 per cent) of our total sample of junior and senior college women reported they were still virgins," Packard says.

Presbyterians Slate Communion Services

The sacrament of Holy Communion will be observed at both the 8:30 and 11 a.m. worship services Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church. Rev. Martin Hager and elders will take Communion to shut-ins Sunday afternoon.

"Abounding in Hope" will be the sermon topic of Rev. Hager, with text from the book of Romans. Ruling Elders will assist in the serving of Holy Communion at both services.

At the 11 a.m. service, the special music, "God Is Ever Beside Me" by Peter de Rose, will be presented by Miss Joanne Hill, guest soloist. Miss Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stanley Hill, recently returned to Pampa from northern Germany, where she spent a year studying under a Fulbright scholarship.

Mrs. Fidella Yoder, church organist, will present "Communion in E. Minor" by Gullman as the offertory.
Preparations are being made for the annual Summer School of Faith to be held Aug. 11-14. Guest speaker will be Dr. John Fredrick Jensen, professor of New Testament at Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary and author of several published works.

Now You Know
Bleeding Heart is the common name given for certain species of dicentra, low or stemless perennial herbs of the fumitory family, because of the shape of the flower.

"There is no indication that copulation has become rampant among college women in general (or males, either)."

The new study shows that 57 per cent of college men have experienced coitus by age 21, compared to 51 per cent in the Kinsey Report. It would appear, Packard comments, that there has been "no radical sexual revolution among college men in the past 20 years."

Students at 21 colleges in all parts of the country were included in the survey.

Church Schools Lower
Two of the colleges were church-related. Their students, both male and female, reported the lowest incidence of premarital intercourse of any of the institutions.

Sexual activity was most prevalent among girls at Eastern colleges, and least prevalent at Midwestern schools.

The survey was conducted through "double-blind" questionnaires so that there was no possibility of a researcher identifying the answers of a particular student.

Of the girls who reported premarital sex experience, 53 per cent had slept with more than one man, and nearly 33 per cent acknowledged intercourse with "many" partners. However, only 3 per cent had had "one night affairs" with men they never dated again.

The survey registered a sharp decline in the number of college men who patronize prostitutes. The figure was 22 per cent in the Kinsey Report, only 4 per cent in the new study.

In view of the fact that college men now are most likely to have their sexual experiences with girls of their own background rather than prostitutes, it is interesting to note that 70 per cent of them said they would be "troubled" if they found that their own brides weren't virgins.

This seems to indicate there is still considerable validity to the time-honored mothers' warning to daughters: "They'll sleep with you if they can, and marry you if they can't."

Protections Disappear
Packard says it is hardly surprising that there has been an increase in sexual activity among college girls. They have been deprived of many protections which used to reinforce their dedication to virtue.

"Chaperonage of daughters has virtually disappeared," he observes, and parental controls over the social activities of girls are often timid and confused.

New techniques of birth control have drastically reduced the inhibiting force once exerted by fear of pregnancy. College authorities are rapidly abandoning any attempt to serve as substitute parents or chaperones of girls away from home.

And "religious doctrine has become a diminished force in the everyday life of citizens and thus exerts less control over the sexual behavior of young people than it did in the past."

Instead of muttering about "wild" youth, perhaps the older generation should give a rousing cheer for the 57 per cent of America's girls who go through four years of college without yielding to the false but seductive argument that "everybody's doing it."

Quite obviously, everybody ain't—even now.

Catholics Disagree Over Pope's Encyclical Ban on Birth Control

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ninety Roman Catholic theologians have declared Catholic couples have the right to disobey Pope Paul's ban on the use of artificial birth control methods.

The Roman Catholic teachers from around the nation said in a statement the papal encyclical issued Monday was insufficient, inadequate, insensitive to the needs of Catholic couples.

"As Roman Catholic theologians, conscious of our duty and limitations, we conclude that spouses may responsibly decide according to their conscience that artificial contraception in some circumstances is permissible and indeed necessary to preserve and foster the values and sacredness of marriage," the statement said.

The sponsors of the statement, most of them priests, represent faculty members from all the major Roman Catholic theological institutions in the United States. It was read to newsmen by the Rev. Charles E. Curran, a Catholic University theologian.

Other priests counsel differently. "I don't think there would be any doubt in the average Catholic couple's minds that they are committing a serious sin when they use artificial means of birth control," said the Rev. Patrick Durkin, pastor of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church in Washington.

"It cuts them off from the spiritual life of the church and prevents them from receiving the sacraments," he added. "All Catholics recognize the Holy Father as the vicar of Christ and the authoritative voice of the church."

Father Durkin, a parish priest for the past 11 years, said he had received more than 200 telephone calls from worried parishioners as a result of the encyclical and the controversy it has stirred.

Since party conventions attract the faithful, (the professional, and the loyal worker) their devotion and affection for the cause has an intensity and fervor equal to that of religion. Instead of a profession of faith, the convention delegate "pledges" himself to a candidate and publicly announces his allegiance. Like a churchman, he often comes under pressure, emerges as a backslider or for good reasons switches to another, more exciting and winning candidate.

Church members know all about this, too. They move from denomination to denomination to denomination, struggle with church splits, argue over loyalty to the National Council of Churches. Just as political conventions have religious favor, so churches develop party spirit and personality cults.

Party conventions have sermons, anthems and prayers of confession. The prayers of confession are called the party platform. Here the group admits that it has fallen short and proposes steps to improve the party and the country. The sin of segregation, poverty and war may be mentioned by more devout politicians.

Normally, the errors confessed belong to the opposition and this is repeated with constant support and "amens" from the delegates. In a political convention, like the church, evil is the failure of other human beings. Forgiveness and right living means following the newly adopted platform.

Anthems are sung throughout the program. The praise may be sung to a person ("Hello, Lyndon") or to a state ("California, Here I Come") or to a bygone era ("Battle Hymn of the Republic"). Hymns of encouragement ("Dixie") are sung to lost causes and rising blocs sing to their future ("We Shall Overcome.") Although collections are known to exist, a public offering has never been received at a political convention. Money and contributions are discreetly handled in private.

The sermon is delivered toward the close of the convention. Although many speeches are made, the major address is given by the party's presidential candidate. Like the preacher, he urges his members to settle their differences, close ranks and support the party (or church). Sometimes there is sort of an altar call at the close, with defeated rivals standing around in a smiling embrace.

The victor forgives the losers; the losers pledge eternal loyalty and the convention watchers wait another four years for the next episode.

Like church, the political conventions always have another meeting, a budget to raise and candidates to support. And remember, political parties like the logical powers, have their heretics. Henry Wallace in 1948 and George Wallace in 1968 are good examples. Whereas the church, in bygone days, would have settled this problem with the rack and the stake, the conventions have been much wiser. They use the ballot box.

Don Lardie, of the North Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses in Amarillo, will speak "What the Bible Has to Say About God, Christ and the Devil" at the 10 a.m. lecture Sunday at Kingdom Hall, 17th and Coffee Sts.

Lardie says, "We know God exists because of the evidence he gives of his being and activity. The chief of all Jehovah's creation is His son Jesus, and Christians can gain life by growing in knowledge of Jesus. And the Bible clearly testifies to existence of the devil and his demons."

The public is invited to attend this lecture and the weekly Watchtower study at 11 a.m. Members of the Pampa congregation returned home this week from the "Good News for All Nations" district convention in Albuquerque, N.M.

The convention ended Sunday. It attracted 7,281 Jehovah's Witnesses from 28 states.

Angelo A. Catanzaro of New York spoke on "Man's Role About to Give Way to God's Rule" at the concluding session.

Catanzaro, convention manager, told the audience, "From sheer necessity of man's present extremity, the time has come when God simply has to take over the rule of this earth for the saving of the human race. It is positively certain, therefore, that Almighty God has purposed to let man's rule continue in the earth for only a limited time."

Charles Regal, presiding minister of the local congregation, said, "The program of Bible talks and dramatizations highlighted the Bible as an indispensable guide to the modern-day Christian. We feel strongly fortified for the coming tests of our faith."

Regal said a printed copy of the public address can be obtained from any one of Jehovah's Witnesses.

Political Conventions Resemble Religious Convocation, Services

By DAVID POLING

As our two great political parties gather for their national conventions, let us consider their startling similarity to religious convocations and, at times, worship services. (Convention watching is more of endurance than education, but so are so many church conferences.)

Since party conventions attract the faithful, (the professional, and the loyal worker) their devotion and affection for the cause has an intensity and fervor equal to that of religion.

Instead of a profession of faith, the convention delegate "pledges" himself to a candidate and publicly announces his allegiance. Like a churchman, he often comes under pressure, emerges as a backslider or for good reasons switches to another, more exciting and winning candidate.

Church members know all about this, too. They move from denomination to denomination to denomination, struggle

Barrett Baptist Church To Observe Fifth Anniversary

Barrett Baptist Church, 903 E. Beryl, will observe its fifth anniversary as a church with special services at 2 p.m. Sunday.

The Rev. A. E. Burns of Watonga, "kila," pastor of Barrett when it became a church, will deliver the main message.

Rev. Dan Cameron, First Baptist Church pastor, will give a history of the church, including its beginning as a mission of First Baptist.

Special music will be provided by Terry Scoggins, church music director, and by Roy Karmegay, First Baptist educational director.

The Rev. Derrel Lewis, pastor of Barrett, urges and invites all members, former members and those who have had a part in Barrett's becoming a church to attend the services.

A dinner will be held in the Fellowship Hall of the church immediately following the regular Sunday morning services and preceding the special program.

Civil Rights, Religion Not Always Related
SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — The relationship between the Negro and civil rights movement and religion is an ambivalent one, according to Dr. Robert Michaelson, professor of religious studies at the University of California in Santa Barbara.

Although religion has been a chief force in the movement's dynamics — as evidenced by the Montgomery bus boycott and subsequent crusades led by the late Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. — there are also elements of strong protest against religion, Michaelson says.

This protest is aimed most often at religion as an institution, but in some cases it strikes at religion as an idea.

Michaelson says this ambivalence also characterizes the relationship between the Negro's religious experiences and those of the majority white culture.

These experiences, expressed historically in such forms as the spiritual, the revival sermon, the healing cult and the black protest or nationalist movement, represent "the expression of a disinherited people," Michaelson says.

Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love.

These verses from I John are part of the lesson-sermon titled "Love" to be read at the 11 a.m. service Sunday at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, 901 N. Frost.

Selected passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, includes, "When we realize that there is one Mind, the divine law of loving our neighbor as ourselves is unfolded; whereas a belief in many ruling minds hinders man's normal drift towards the one Mind, one God, and leads human thought into opposite channels where selfishness reigns."

Rich Man's Surprise
Topic of Rev. Doke
The Rev. J. W. Doke will speak on "The Rich Man's Surprise," taken from Luke 16:19-31, at the 9 a.m. worship Sunday at the First Christian Church.

Miss Joanne Hill will present a special selection in song. Church School follows the morning worship at 10:15 a.m. Snack Supper will begin at 5:30 p.m., and youth groups at 6 p.m.

Dallas Church Celebrates 100th Birthday in Service

DALLAS (UPI) — The First Baptist Church of Dallas celebrated its 100th birthday Sunday, burned all its mortgage notes on a chrome-plated shovel and immediately launched a massive development program for the next century.

Dr. W. A. Criswell, pastor of the church and recently elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention, read off the amounts and committed the paid up notes, worth about $3.5 million, to the flames.

Makes New Debt
The debt-free status lasted less than an hour and Criswell, immediately after the late morning worship service, presided at a ground breaking ceremony for a building program expected to reach $4 million before conclusion.

The actual 100th year ended Tuesday, but the year of celebration commemorating the first century of history concluded Sunday, only two days shy. First Baptist is the largest Southern Baptist church in the nation.

It was on July 30, 1868, that the first group of Baptists, three men and eight women, met in the first story of a Masonic Lodge to organize the church.

Today, Criswell said, the membership stands at more than 15,000 and some officials of the church are predicting that number will be 25,000 before Criswell's pastorate ends.

Had 10 Pastors
In its history, the church has had only 10 pastors. One, evangelist George W. Truitt, was pastor for 47 years, something almost unheard of in Baptist annals. Criswell himself has led the church for 24 years.

Criswell said he has great expectations of the church in the future. And he did not think its location in downtown Dallas would slow its building and expansion.

The physical plant is going out and up, he said.

'Is Ecstasy'
Criswell said Sunday he could not believe that God had given him "so happy and so blessed a ministry."

"It like being in ecstasy every day of my life," he said.

The church, which boasts among its members evangelist Billy Graham, is deeply intertwined with the Baptist movement in Texas and in Dallas.

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

REV. MAX BROWNING
St. Paul United Methodist Church

W. E. Hocking, one of the great philosophers of our day, once said: "Everyone today knows, not by rumor but by introspection, that modern man is tired of himself." The call of Jesus to discipleship offers to deliver us from this self-disgust into real life.

A young boy told his father that for his birthday, he had decided he wanted a horse. Now the father couldn't afford a horse in the first place, and furthermore, he felt that a five year old boy had no business with a horse. The father drew a picture of a horse and on the boy's birthday, presented it to him. The boy threw it down and said that wasn't what he wanted.

The father bought him a small toy horse and brought it home. Again the boy rejected it. Then the father brought a papier-mache horse that had some real leather on it and brought it home only to have his son reject his gift a third time.

In complete exasperation the father asked, "Well now, what's the matter with this horse?"

"Oh Daddy!" the boy replied, "I just want a horse that is made out of horse."

That is a fair request, is it not? The boy wanted reality. And is this not what each of us really wanted? Modern man is sick of the artificial, the imaginary, the imitations, the cheap substitutes. He has become tired and disgusted with the emptiness and meaninglessness of his life. Where can modern man find Spiritual Reality?

"Follow Me!" Jesus says, "For I am come that ye might have been life and that ye might have it more abundantly." Here we find reality. Here lies God's answer to the searching heart.

The call to discipleship is the call to at-one with God. It is a call let the restlessness of our lives be calmed in His presence. Is this not what we are seeking? Why should we seek any longer?

"Come into my heart Lord Jesus
Come in today, come in to stay
Come into my heart Lord Jesus."

DEAR ABBY: Why do parents tell their daughters they don't want them to have anything to do with a man in uniform unless he's an officer?

Enlisted men are just as good as officers (and some are a lot better) but they seem to be treated like dirt. Funny, but a guy who's not in service at all has the edge on all servicemen.

I have dressed in civvies and lied to a girl's parents just so I could call for her at her house like a gentleman and meet her folks. I'm the same man in a uniform, but if I wore it, they would run me off the property. What do people have against enlisted men anyway?

B&PW Members Attend 'Texas'

Pampa Business and Professional Women's Club and their guests attended the performance of "Texas" in the Pioneer Amphitheater at Palo Duro Canyon State Park today.

Two busloads of Pampanos left here at 6 p.m. in a special delegation to attend the performance. The trip, a special service project for area residents, is sponsored annually by the club. Mrs. M. E. Powers, Mrs. Earl Eaton and Mrs. L. B. Robertson made trip arrangements this year.

"Texas" is a light and sound spectacular, a musical dramatization of early life on the plains. A 600-foot canyon wall serves as a theater backdrop and sounding board, Mrs. Powers said.

2 WMU Circles Have Bible Study

SKELLYTOWN (Sp) — Sylvia Freeman and Keszia Mae Circles met jointly recently at Skellytown at the Skellytown First Baptist Church Fellowship Hall for Bible study directed by Mrs. John Kenney. The lesson was presented from the book, "Missionary Witness to Rulers and Nations."

Prayer calendar was read by Mrs. Irvin Brown and special prayer was led by Mrs. Murle Rogers.

In 1792 director of the mint, David Rittenhouse, laid the cornerstone of a building in Philadelphia for the mint—the first structure of the U. S. government.

net make any distinction between an enlisted man and an officer. They simply rule out all men in uniform because they're skeptical of a man who is here today and could be gone tomorrow. The cream of any nation's crop wears the enlisted man's uniform (for a time, at least) and I would remind parents that they could be passing up gold because it does not look as good as polished brass.

DEAR ABBY: One of the girls who works in our office (I will call her Zelda) is being married next Saturday. Three weeks ago all the girls in my department received engraved invitations to her wedding, but I was left out. I was invited to a bridal shower given for Zelda by the office girls, but because of illness I was unable to attend. I sent a nice gift, however.

This morning Zelda stopped by my desk and gave me an invitation "by mouth." I had already made plans for next Saturday and cannot attend her wedding. Must I give her a wedding gift?

BECKY

DEAR BECKY: Why don't you don't give her a gift "by mouth"? (Say, "Best wishes.")

DEAR ABBY: Since I graduated from grammar school two years ago I have gone steady with three boys, all of whom I gave in to. I was lucky. I didn't get pregnant.

Now all my friends are just starting to date and here I am. I have already done just about everything, so there is nothing to look forward to. I could blame my mother for allowing me to date so early, but that would not be fair because I begged her and told her that she could "trust" me.

I am not writing for advice. It is too late for that. Now I have to live down a bad reputation. (Boys talk afterwards. I found that out.)

Please print this for mothers who let their daughters start to date and go steady when they are too young. Once they do, the trouble begins. No matter how "mature" a girl thinks she is at 13, she is only a child.

Pretty coils are now possible for every woman, whatever the weather, wherever she goes. It's all because of the steadfast curl control in the first hair texturizer ever produced. Natural protein fortifiers give hairdos remarkable staying power and added body. Just shampoo, rinse thoroughly, towel dry, measure the texturizer to the indicator line in the overcap which tops the unbreakable bottle and pour into the hair. Comb the liquid throughout the hair for even distribution. Pretty summer swirl hairdo (inset) will hold up no matter how hectic your outdoor life when your hair has the body this new texturizer can supply.

Consultants Offer Economical Ideas for Cosmetic Use

HIALEAH, Fla. (Sp) —Any woman who efficiently plans a household budget can also practice economy with her cosmetics.

First rule is to read directions. If the directions for a make-up foundation say, "use sparingly," do just that. The same holds true for shampoo. Usually a palmful of shampoo will effectively cleanse the hair and scalp; using more may look lovely frothing over the edge of the lavatory but will serve no purpose at all, a cosmetic consultant advised.

Make your skin fresher go further by sprinkling it only on a water-moistened cotton pad. This procedure was recently tested by a beauty consultant who reported her favorite lemon skin fresher lasted three times longer than it did when sprinkled directly on a dry cotton pad.

Another of her experiments proved that nail polish will remain liquid for months if kept in the refrigerator. This is a particular boon during hot summer weather.

Women seem to be irredeemable hoarders when it comes to face creams and lotions. They will stock up on any product that appeals to them through direct advertising or even as they browse around the cosmetic counters of their favorite department stores.

The fact is, basically your skin needs only three essentials: a tropical moist oil for nourishing and protecting the skin by day, a rich vitalizing night cream for concentrated nourishment and massage at night, and a dissolving-type cleansing milk that will lift ordinary impurities and stale make-up right off the skin surface.

Lipstick will last twice as long if you take care to keep it symmetrical as you stroke your lip brush over it. Once you've worn deep grooves into the side of a lipstick it will inevitably break off.

Add Paris Chic With Fall Scarf

By JOAN DEPA

PARIS (UPI)—The most valuable accessory for any woman who wants a touch of Paris chic this fall is a scarf.

Paris designers, who steered clear of expensive jewelry and elaborate fur trimmings, concocted a whole hatful of scarf tricks to perk up dark suits, dresses and coats.

Dior came up with the most useful one: take a long scarf with fringed ends, fold it double, then with the folded end in the left hand and the fringed one in the right, lift it over the head and across the back of the neck and bring the two ends forward. Slip the fringed ends through the loop formed by the folded end and pull it like a lasso. Tuck the fringed ends under the belt of the suit or coat.

It was particularly attractive with Dior's strict little suits with buttoned-up cardigan necklines.

St. Laurent had several that were even simpler. He tied a scarf through the epaulet of a trench coat with one outfit and another on the long handle of a shoulder bag. Both scarves were left hanging down the back.

The tall, lanky designer showed a neat version of one scarf trick that he wears himself and it was already being adopted by several

For Lack of Television, Families Resort to Lost Art of Conversation

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI)—There you are, nice little family. All settled for prime time television, then, the set goes blotto. You must do an unaccustomed thing—talk at length to one another. You know. Converse.

A good time and maybe some arguments can be had by all if you try to come up with a list of the 10 most important events of the last 200 years.

Encyclopaedia Britannica, marking its two century birthday, asked its editors, a batch of eggheads and tycoons from elsewhere, and selected school teachers to do just that.

Nearly 300 events were cited and 30 of these consistently appeared. But those sifting the lists couldn't come up with a top 10. There was that much disagreement.

High Rated Events
Events consistently recorded and reflecting a degree of unanimity of opinion included: —American Revolution and resulting Declaration of Independence, steam engine, small-pox vaccine, telephone, French Revolution, first auto, introduction of motion pictures, first plane flight, television first demonstrated, discovery of penicillin, the two world wars.

First nuclear explosion, electronic computers, first available commercially, development of oral contraceptives, first thermonuclear explosion, first artificial earth satellite.

Science teachers selected scientific advances, history teachers tended to favor historical events. Throughout, it was to each his own career interest.

To everyman, the most important event of the last 200 years is obvious. John Mack Carter, editor of the "Ladies Home Journal," didn't put it on his list but he reminded the pollsters of the fact.

And that is, of course, the matter of being born. It was the most important event in your lifetime, wasn't it?

Farmers Had Better Serve Notice

This is a real busy time of year for the farmer. In some areas, one can see tractors in the fields around the clock. The elements put pressure on the farmer, but they are as nothing compared with the government's pressure of inflation. For years now the farmer has found it impossible to get more for what he raises, and he has worked harder to compensate for the low prices by being more efficient, by increasing production.

But for many farmers it has been a losing battle. Everything that the farmer has to buy has gone up in price: farm help, equipment, repair parts and replacement, doctors, lawyers and processed foods. And prices and farm produce haven't kept pace with upward costs.

No business in the country has been hurt as badly by inflation as the farm operator. In the past six years the prices farmers have to pay have gone up 14 per cent. The prices they get have gone up something like 5 per cent, and commodities have not done that well.

A manufacturer can sometimes add increased costs to his product and the buyer pays more. Labor unions have negotiated contracts tied to the "cost of living" and pay scales escalate when the cost of living rises. Not so the farmer. Taxes and interest rates have inflated skyward in recent years along with the cost of living and the cost of farming. The toll that inflation has taken on the farms across the country is perhaps best evidenced by the fact farmers have gone nearly $20 billion deeper in debt in the past six years.

It seems to us the most important thing any farmer can do today is take half an hour before going to the fields to write his local newspaper to editorially insist that the federal government stop the spending spree, and stop printing paper money, and recognize that inflation is destroying the agricultural economy of the country.

Only a few weeks ago the House passed a bill providing that the executive branch may issue $5 billion in Treasury notes and "sell" them to the Federal Reserve. This is nothing more than printing press money.

It may be that some businesses and workers involved in "cost of living" union contracts, can survive more inflation. But America's farmers can't, and they had better serve notice on the bureaucratic inflationists in no uncertain terms between now and November.

Let's Keep Our Nose Out of This One

The situation in Czechoslovakia of the people, what is happening in Czechoslovakia is a palace reformation within the party, not against it. Yet Russia's vital interests are also at stake. Should "democratization" get out of hand, should it begin leading to real democracy with the creation of a multiparty system, should Czechoslovakia begin turning its face toward the West, Russia would be left with a gaping hole in the string of buffer states protecting its western boundary—a hole through which not only troops but ideas could march.

Not only that, but the breach would undoubtedly widen to include Romania, which is restive in its own right and is giving moral support to the Czechs, and go on from there. Nothing is more certain than that self-determination and democracy will one day come to the nations of Eastern Europe. Time and the tide of human affairs are on the side of those who love freedom.

The United States can do two things to hasten that day—keep its nose out of the Czechoslovakian squabble, and continue pursuing every avenue that can lead to detente with Russia.

Czechoslovakia, 1968, is not Hungary, 1956. The Hungarian Revolution was a popular uprising not only against Russian overlordship but against communism itself. So far, though it has the enthusiastic support

John Wells was sentenced to three years' confinement at hard labor. Additionally, he is to receive a dishonorable discharge from the Army. Wells is the young man, held in solitary confinement in the Presidio Stockade at San Francisco, who was arrested last April for refusing to attend an Army summer training session. Wells was an honorably separated veteran of the Army, having served more than two years in Germany, and had already been mustered out of the armed forces.

Wells' case is now undergoing review by Lt. Gen. Ben Harrell, Commanding General of the Sixth Army at the Presidio in San Francisco. Gen. Harrell may reduce the sentence and change the designation of the discharge from dishonorable to honorable, if he sees fit. He may not increase the sentence. The General's review of the case may be announced shortly.

Attorneys for Wells have been basing most of their defense on the grounds that the Army has no jurisdiction over a man who has already been honorably discharged from the military service. This question of jurisdiction is up for review. Meanwhile, the convicted student and would-be teacher is being held in solitary confinement at the Presidio.

At his trial, young Wells read a prepared statement which contains some lines of thought all too frequently overlooked in this over-governed nation of ours. Let me quote from this statement:

"... My fundamental objection to (formal) Conscientious Objector application (procedure) involves a reluctance to submit my convictions, religious or otherwise, to the judgment of another man. I am willing to explain my beliefs to the curious or the interested, and even to the indifferent or the hostile, so long as they and I agree that they are my peers, not my judges. But as a man and as an American, I absolutely refuse to permit my beliefs to be the subject of an investigation."

"If I were to express my convictions in the hope that they would be 'approved' or 'accepted' and that I would thereby avoid harsh treatment, I would betray the very principles of liberty which American military men claim to be defending, and in defense of which so many brave human beings have died. I therefore will NEVER answer, as part of an 'application,' questions invading the sanctity of my personal convictions. As for those questions seeking to establish my sincerity (or lack of it): I will let my actions testify to my sincerity. I need no references."

"Modern conscription, and the degrading status of enlisted men, are sufficient evidence that the Army is a slave society. Court decisions notwithstanding, 'involuntary servitude' means, as far as I'm concerned, just what it says, and fits the present situation precisely. When the government convinces me by reasoned argument, devoid of coercion, that my service is necessary for the common good, then I may volunteer it. But, as a man and as an American, I absolutely refuse to be a slave."

"If compulsion were not an issue, though, and I were asked to serve voluntarily, I would refuse because of my basic disagreement with the Army's aims and methods. Most people would agree that war, and preparation for war, is harmful to human happiness. Unlike most, I claim that it is also unnecessary. While isolated individual violence is probably a permanent characteristic of human society, the promotion of violence by the military to an organized way of life is another matter altogether. Historically, each major war has increased insecurity, not decreased it. The present U.S. war in Vietnam is crushing any hope that country ever had of being free and prosperous."

As a human being, I absolutely refuse to associate with an organization whose primary business is murder.

"Despite the absolute nature of these resolutions... it is not the case that I desire to corner you, so that you have no choice but to punish me. If I were in a position to make requests, I would ask only one thing of the Army: that I be left alone... left in peace so that I may enjoy my life, complete my studies... and become a teacher."

"To the principles and resolutions set down here, I now pledge my life, my fortune and my sacred honor."

WASHINGTON:

College Structure Flaws Spawn Student Rebellions

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — The student riots have been more successful than they otherwise might have been because of major weaknesses within the universities themselves.

In recent closed meetings of educators, the vice president of one major university has not hesitated to say bluntly, "The internal (university) problems we have are... confusion, disorganization, self-interest rampant, a general malaise in which the cardinal principle of conduct is 'every man for himself.'"

Burton R. Clark, professor of sociology at Yale University, says that along with student discontent there is faculty discontent, "administrator discontent and trustee discontent. The full-time researchers in the campus laboratories are... displeased with their position on campus... Graduate students who double as teachers are increasingly sure they are a dispossessed proletariat."

Arthur H. Scouton, graduate chairman of English at the University of Pennsylvania, complains that "teachers join students in mass protests, they break up deliberations at faculty meetings, they go on picket lines and they are prepared (in some places)... to engage in concerted strikes."

Says Richard Axen, professor of higher education at San Francisco State College, "We all know that much of our lower division required curriculum is the sterile product of graduate school research and training and has little relevance to the modern world, yet we refuse to change. We all know that much college financing and energies are siphoned off into research pursuits at the expense of teaching and student learning, yet we gladly tolerate this state of affairs."

The executive vice president of Fordham University, John J. Meng, says that many professors "become expert in the science of grantsmanship and allow their teaching aptitudes to decay. For far too many of them the pinnacle of success becomes a day when, with the title of full professor, equipped with a private laboratory, a computer and a battery of teaching assistants, they can be freed from direct contacts with students."

Lewis B. Mayhew, professor of education at Stanford University, predicts that by 1990 "some institutions will not only condone educational or cohabitational living, as they now do, but actually provide university facilities, in the form of apartment style residence halls to facilitate it."

But the major complaint is that too many of the universities and their faculties have become so impersonal the student is lost. The professors privately admit to "canned knowledge," "packaged formulae" and "learning by fiat."

This is why the campus bully boys attract numbers of students who otherwise would be appalled by their strong-arm methods.

With Some Reservation
Mebbe there is a light in the tunnel somewhere. At least there is a little bit of light shining thru in Chicago.

That is because of a couple of fellers who have got spirit and sense enough to see that leading the young kids down the road to riot is a losin, worthless battle.

These two guys are Ezzard Charles and Gayle Sayers. Charles was the boxing champion and had a good job in California, but he gave it up and went to Chicago. Instead of forming up a gang of Tigers or Panthers, he is workin with kids and tryin to show them the way to good citizenship.

Not only is he doing this with an open heart but he is doing it with a leg that has gone into paralysis so that he has to wear a brace.

Sayers is a football player in the pros. He goes down to the sandlots a couple of times a week and shows the kids how to pass the ball and get into the football stance and teaches them that in order to play football you also have to learn other things.

Considerin the times and the way Chicago and other cities are today, it takes a lot of courage to do this. Being Negroes, I am sure they are open to a lot of ridicule from their own people, and probably from some white people too, for that matter.

But if there is ever going to be any progress in human relations in this country it is menble rousers or agitators.

PAUL HARVEY NEWS

Why Not Soak the Rich?

By PAUL HARVEY
Abraham Lincoln said it: "You don't make the small man tall by cutting off the giant's legs."

Our present President, however, is going to try it. The Treasury Department insists that too many wealthy persons are evading paying income taxes. Chairman Russell Long of the Senate Finance Committee seconds the motion. He demands that everybody be required to pay taxes.

The Internal Revenue Service reports 22 persons with an income of $1 million each in 1965 paid no taxes at all! Treasury Undersecretary Joseph Barr cites one individual who made $23 million in one year and paid no taxes. This, he called, "an evasion which I personally dislike more than any other."

That was a careless misuse of words. "Evasion" implies illegality. Hopefully, Mr. Barr meant to say "avoidance," which is entirely legal.

It's not easy to rouse compassion for the rich. Most assume that people of such means don't need sympathy, even if they deserve it. And since the very rich represent so very few votes, elected officials are unlikely to waste much oratory in their behalf.

But before we chop off their legs, let's be sure the weight they're bearing isn't not going to fall on us.

Wealthy people are accused of avoiding taxes by giving to charity, by investing in tax-exempt municipal bonds and by drilling for oil.

It's true that many wealthy people contribute generously to charities. Such contributions, directly or indirectly, benefit us all.

If, instead, their contributions were outlawed, our taxes would have to be raised proportionately to take up the slack by increasing government-administered welfare.

When government handles charity, the handling charges are astronomical.

When a rich person invests his money in tax exempt municipal bonds he is in fact loaning to local governments money with which to dig sewers and pave streets. If those loans are outlawed, again your taxes must be increased to dig sewers and pave streets.

About drilling for oil. Eight wildcats in nine are dry. To encourage private investors to take this long shot risk government has offered a depletion allowance—reduced taxes on oil income.

Without that incentive, nobody could afford to gamble with odds of 9 to 1 against. Government would have to dig those holes. Again—with your money. Tax reformers, if they really want to consider worthwhile tax reform, should re-examine the multimillion-dollar foundations which millionaires have used as a taxfree front for a multiplicity of activities not always in the best interests of our country.

Details of the Treasury's plan which President Johnson is expected to incorporate in his tax reform recommendations are unavailable but believed to assess the minimum 10 percent on all income over $100,000.

If all incomes over $100,000 were taxed at the rate of 10 percent, the maximum revenue gain would be less than enough to run our federal government for half a day.

And worse, thus to turn off our nation's biggest "generators" would turn out a lot of lights.

Wit and Whimsy

A legislator trying to belittle an associate interrupted his speech to ask:

Mr. Bass — Is it true you are a horse doctor?

To which the speaker answered:

Mr. Brown — Yes, are you ill?

Wife — What excuse have you got for coming home at this hour?

Husband — Well, I was playing golf with some friends and...

Wife — What! at 2 a.m.?

Husband — Sure, we were using night clubs.

main in power for 24 hours without Russia's backing, Stalinist Poland and backward little Bulgaria.

The Czechoslovaks had the active support of Yugoslavia, Romania and the sympathy of Hungary and most major Communist parties of Europe. If it was Brezhnev's hope to maintain the stability of the Soviet military bloc in East Europe, the threat of military intervention in Czechoslovakia has already had the opposite effect. It also seriously compromised the anti-Chinese conference scheduled to meet in Moscow in November.

Moscow's war of nerves will, of course, continue. But for the immediate future Prague has a breathing spell.

Soviet Split Is Bared By Czech Crisis

By LEON DENNEN
Foreign News Analyst
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — (NEA) — It takes a Communist to outwit his fellow Communists in the dangerous game of military brinkmanship. Alexander Dubcek, Czechoslovakia's reformist leader, is obviously as skilled in the game of Red bluff as his Soviet mentors.

He was trained as a Communist in Russia, where he acquired firsthand knowledge of the tortuous twists and turns of the Kremlin's foreign policies. He knew what was generally ignored by Western "experts": Soviet leaders were themselves divided on how to cope with Prague's "liberals."

Thus, when the Russians hinted that they might invade Czechoslovakia, Dubcek remained calm and refused to bow to Moscow's blackmail. This goes a long way to explain why the mighty Russians finally agreed to meet Dubcek on his own terms and on Czechoslovakian soil.

According to East European diplomats, a feud has been brewing between Premier Aleksei Kosygin and Communist party boss Leonid Brezhnev since June, 1967, when Israel defeated Moscow's Arab clients in the Middle East.

Friction between the Soviet government's bureaucracy and the politicians of the Communist party's machine is not unusual in Russia. But in the past such conflicts were veiled in secrecy. The crucial events in Czechoslovakia have brought the new struggle for power into the open.

As specialists on communism see it, Premier Kosygin represents the moderate wing of the Kremlin.

Let there be no mistake about it: Kosygin is hardly a liberal or reformer. But he is primarily a technocrat and not a politician. He plainly wants to chart a new course for Soviet foreign policy. He would like to continue the dialogue with the United States on how to slow down the arms race and negotiate a peace settlement in Vietnam and the Middle East.

In the Czechoslovakian crisis, it is clear, Kosygin was anxious to avoid even the threat of a military showdown. But his "revisionism" was challenged by Leonid Brezhnev who has emerged as the leader of neo-Stalinist conservative and military factions in the Kremlin. These factions want to reimpose Russia's dominant position in world communism. They oppose any curtailment of Russia's armed might.

Brezhnev, it seems, insisted that Kosygin's policy might endanger not only the survival of the regimes in Poland and East Germany but the national security of Russia itself. By openly repudiating Kosygin's efforts to come to terms with the Czechoslovakian reformists, Brezhnev pulled the rug from under the collective leadership in the Kremlin. He destroyed the delicate balance of power between Soviet "hawks" and "doves," precariously maintained since the ouster of Nikita Khrushchev in 1964.

It is still too early to predict the outcome of the Kosygin-Brezhnev conflict. Moscow's zigzag policies in Czechoslovakia and in relations with the United States are some indications that the acrimonious debate in the Kremlin continues.

However, even by threatening to intervene in the internal affairs of a Communist state, the Russians have damaged their own cause almost beyond belief.

At the critical moment, Brezhnev's brinkmanship received the blessing only of the East Germans, who could not re-

Surgery is Best Bet In Bronchiectasis Cure

Q—I recently had a lobe of my lung removed because of bronchiectasis. Why is surgery the only way it can be treated? What is the normal recovery period following lung surgery? How long should the discomfort from all those cut nerves last? What is the best treatment for this?

A — In bronchiectasis, the small terminal bronchi or air passages become dilated. This is always associated with chronic bronchial infection. Although some of the infectious matter can be removed by gravity (postural drainage), what stays behind keeps the infection going. Antibiotics will not cure it, so surgery is your best bet.

If all goes well, recovery should be complete in four to six weeks after the operation. Pain in the incision usually disappears even sooner. When it doesn't, the surgeon should try to discover the reason.

Q—My doctor says I have emphysema. Will a drink of whisky before supper every night make it any worse?

A—Whisky in moderation would have no direct effect on your disease.

Q—My doctor says I have erosive lichen planus in my mouth. What causes it? Is there any cure? Will it become cancerous?

A—Although a virus has been suspected as the cause of this disease, there is no proof of this and the cause is still unknown. Lichen planus is primarily a skin disease. The erosive form affects the mucous membranes. There is no specific cure for it but X-ray treatments and injections of bismuth subacetylate may help to clear it up. It does not become cancerous.

Q—I had lichen planus all over my arms and legs 10 years ago. About 10 months ago it returned. How long does it take to clear up? What can I do to stop the itching? Is it catching?

A—This disease is not contagious. Recurrence is common. The chronic form may last for years. Calamine lotion with phenol should control the itching.

Q—What causes lichen sclerosis et atrophicus? Is it curable?

A—This skin disease is more closely related to scleroderma than to lichen planus. The cause is unknown. Although it may last for several years, it eventually clears up and does not recur. There are no complications and the only treatment is to relieve the symptoms with soothing lotions or salves and antihistamines.

Marichal Wins 20th By Blanking Dodgers

By JOE GERGEN
UPI Sports Writer

There's no relief in sight for Juan Marichal, who is conducting a one-man demonstration in the bullpen.

Marichal, the tenacious right-hander of the San Francisco Giants, became the National League's first 20-game winner Thursday night when he mowed down the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-0 on three hits.

But, even more significantly, this era of the relief specialist, the Dominican star pitched his 16th consecutive complete game and moved to within seven of a league mark just after the turn of the century in 1904.

John W. Taylor of St. Louis set the modern NL record of 23 consecutive complete games in that innocent year, the same one in which Bill Dinneen of Boston established the major league standard of 37.

Cards Top Phillies

Elsewhere, the St. Louis Cardinals continued to roll merrily toward the pennant, beating Philadelphia 2-1 in a rain-abbreviated contest. Pittsburgh whipped Cincinnati 6-1, Atlanta defeated New York 4-2, and Chicago topped Houston 4-1.

Washington humbled Detroit 3-0, Baltimore stunned Cleveland 5-1, New York shaded Boston 1-0 and Minnesota owned Chicago 4-1 in American League games.

Marichal, who achieved his 20th complete game, appears almost a sure bet to top his previous high of 25 victories and rates a strong chance to reach 30.

Marichal received all the batting support he needed from Dick Dietz, who singled and scored the Giants' first run in the fourth and hit a 410-foot homer in the sixth off loser Don Drysdale, Now 12-9.

Roger Maris collected three hits and Steve Carlton set down the Phillies on two hits in pitching the Cards to their fourth straight victory in a game halted by rain in the top of the eighth inning. Maris singled across the Cards' first run in the third and his single set up the decisive run in the sixth.

Reds Drop Back

The Pirates dropped the Reds into third place, 15½ games off the pace, as Willie Stargell blasted a three-run homer and Elroy Face choked off a ninth-inning rally. Face preserved Tommie Sisk's fifth triumph in eight decisions by retiring Tony Perez and Tommy Helms on infield grounders with two on and one out in the ninth.

Cecil Upshaw replaced Jim Britton with none out in the first inning and pitched four-hit ball over nine innings as the Braves moved back into second place, 15 games out. Upshaw entered the game after Britton yielded two runs and failed to retire a Met batter.

Ron Santo delivered a pair of run-scoring singles and Don Kessinger had three hits and scored twice as the Cubs posted their 20th victory in the last 27 games. Joe Niekro, 11-6, got the win.

Rookie's Single Leads Orioles Win

By PETE ALFANO
UPI Sports Writer

Earl Weaver didn't turn too many heads during spring training when he tabbed unknown Ellie Hendricks as a potential major leaguer and it took nearly two-thirds of the season, but, the Cleveland Indians are finally taking notice.

Hendricks, a 27-year-old rookie who beat the Indians Wednesday night with a two-run homer, came through with a two-run single in the ninth inning Thursday night off 17-game winner Luis Tiant to lead Baltimore to a 5-1 victory and move the Orioles to within six games of front-running Detroit.

Hendricks, a native of the Virgin Islands, slammed 41 homers in the Mexican League last season and then added 15 more for the Puerto Rican winter league club managed by his present skipper, Weaver.

During the spring, Weaver, when a coach with the Orioles, said of Hendricks: "I think he's of major league caliber, he's strong and he'll hit them out."

Little Action

Hendricks has played only briefly this season, going 17-for-68 for a .250 batting average, including seven homers.

His single followed a walk to Frank Robinson and a double by Boog Powell off Tiant, now 17-7.

Bob Allison drove in a pair of Hendricks scored on Brooks Robinson's double and Robinson eventually came across on winning pitcher Dave McNally's sacrifice fly.

McNally scattered six hits while posting his 14th win of the season against eight losses.

In other American League action, New York edged Boston 1-0, Washington slugged Detroit 9-3 and Minnesota defeated Chicago 4-1 in the only other games scheduled.

In the National League, Atlanta topped New York 4-2, Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati 6-1, St. Louis edged Philadelphia 2-1 in a game shortened after 7½ innings because of rain, Chicago tripped Houston 4-1 and San Francisco blanked Los Angeles 2-0.

Bahsen Wins It

Rookie Stan Bahsen hurled five perfect innings and yielded only three hits and Bill Robinson, subbing for Roy White, drove in the only run with a seventh inning single as the Yankees edged Boston and Dave Morehead.

Ron Hansen, a strikeout victim in six previous official at-bats, connected for a grand slam homer and Mike Epstein and Bernie Allen hit two-run homers as the Senators blasted Detroit behind the eight-hit pitching of Joe Coleman.

Traded Player Leads Oilers Over Redskins

By STU CAMEN
UPI Sports Writer

The Houston Oilers have found a new home, but may have lost what little excitement their often sputtering offense created.

Oilers' quarterback Pete Beathard, known on occasion last season to employ the old sandlot maneuver of drawing a play in the first with his finger, resorted to the traditional method of calling plays in his team's 9-3 exhibition victory over the Washington Redskins.

Beathard, a mid-season acquisition from the Kansas City Chiefs, was unfamiliar with the Oilers' play-calling routine in 1967, necessitating his drawings to explain what play he wanted.

The Astrodome, with its plastic, carpetlike surface, figures to hinder Beathard's artistic talents, but from Thursday night's performance, certainly not his playing ability.

Scores on Passing

The former University of Southern California star hit on 15 of 25 pass attempts for 154 yards, including a nine-yard scoring strike to rookie flanker Mac Haik, as the American Football League drew first blood of 1968 against the older National Football League.

The Oilers' defense appeared in mid-season form, dropping Redskins quarterbacks five times, forcing two interceptions and blocking two field goal tries.

The Los Angeles Rams opened their pre-season schedule on a winning note, using the passing of Roman Gabriel to overcome the New Orleans Saints 21-17.

The Rams, on the short end of a 17-7 score midway through the third quarter, rallied behind Gabriel's touchdown passes to Billy Truax and Bernie Casey. Gabriel also scored the Rams' first touchdown on a one-yard sneak.

The Saints tallied on scoring passes from Billy Kilmer to Dan Abramowicz and Monty Stickles and a 36-yard field goal by Charlie Durkee.

All-Stars, Packers Tangle

The exhibition campaign continues tonight at Chicago's Soldier Field where a crowd of over 70,000 was expected to watch the Green Bay Packers tackle the College All-Stars.

The Packers appearing in their third straight All-Star game and their fifth in the last seven years, were three touchdowns away from tying the record for the 24th loss against nine wins and two ties in this series.

Heisman Trophy winner Gary Beban of UCLA and Greg Landry of Massachusetts were chosen by Coach Norm Van Brocklin to handle the quarterbacking chores for the All-Stars while the Packers figured to rely heavily on the passing of Bart Starr and the running of Travis Williams, Donny Anderson and Jim Grabowski.

The Detroit Lions' hopes for 1968 received a jolting setback Thursday when All-Pro offensive guard John Gordy suffered torn ligaments in his left knee during a scrimmage. Gordy was to undergo surgery this morning and doctors said he would miss half the regular season.

Basketball Coach Hired For Season

Sterling Gibson, who four times took his Portales, N. Mex. team to the state basketball tournament, has been hired under a one-year contract as head cage coach at Pampa High School.

Gibson twice coached his Portales squad to state championships in two consecutive years in 1965 and 1966.

Gibson replaced Terry Culley, veteran coach who resigned recently to take the basketball coaching position at Grand Prairie.

The new Harvester coach was head cage coach mentor at Portales from 1963 to the present time.

An assistant basketball and football coach at Portales from 1958 to 1962, Gibson is 37 years old.

A native of Henderson, Ky., Gibson attended Western Kentucky College and played under Ed Diddle in 1948 and 1949.

He enrolled in Texas Tech in 1955 after serving five years in the U.S. Air Force during the Korean conflict. He played at Tech under Polk Robison during the 1955-56 season.

Gibson and his wife, Jo Ann, have two sons, Doug 10 and Don 13. Mrs. Gibson will teach elementary school in the Pampa school system.

Portales High School is a Class A High School in New Mexico and would be a Class AA school if it were in Texas.

In high school, the new coach played basketball, football and track.

In 1957, he coached the freshman team at Texas Tech as an assistant to Gene Gibson, freshman coach at that time.

He served four years as an assistant coach at Portales New Mexico, where he coached football and basketball.

Mildren Runs, Passes North Over South

By MICHAEL RABUN

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Jack Mildren has begun his final series of friendly appearances in Texas and he is determined to give the home folks something to remember him by.

Mildren, a product of the West Texas football breadbasket who decided to cast his collegiate lot with the University of Oklahoma, used a series of masterful takes, runs and passes Thursday night to send the North coasting to a 17-9 victory over the South in the annual Texas Coaches All-Star football game.

The Abilene Cooper graduate was the unanimous selection as outstanding back of the game in his next-to-last appearance on the football field before becoming the property of Oklahoma.

Mildren will quarterback the Texas team later this month in the Oil Bowl against a team of Oklahoma all-stars.

Mildren brewed up 204 total yards Thursday night—63 rushing and 121 passing—and accounted for the North's only two touchdowns.

Continuous Threat

He had the North in almost continuous threatening position during the first half, but could build up only a seven point lead after the first two quarters.

"We just couldn't seem to score when we should have earlier," he said. "I was pretty satisfied with my timing, but not with my passing. Mike Lowry made a great catch on that first touchdown."

But these are mere quibblers. The people up in Cooperstown, N.Y., say they've got everything ready for Ron Hansen.

"His place already is available," says Ken Smith, the popular little director of the Hall of Fame. "It's on the second floor among what we call our up-to-date displays. We've got the bat there with which Hank Aaron hit his 500th home run; the cap Catfish Hunter wore pitching his perfect game, and some of the baseballs Don Drysdale used in his record shutout string. Now we're waiting on George Culver's cap and on Ron Hansen for his glove and ball."

Ron Hansen is keeping a close eye to the glove and ball which figured in only the eighth unassisted triple play in major league history against Cleveland on Tuesday night. He has both with him in Milwaukee where the Senators play the White Sox tonight.

"I'll send them to the people in Cooperstown as soon as we get back home next week," he promises.

No Illusions

Hansen, who has been with the Orioles and White Sox before this and is putting in his 11th season in the majors, never had any illusions about the Hall of Fame. Not with this .226 lifetime batting average he didn't, and certainly not with his present one of .183.

But suddenly, in about the same time it takes to clap your hands three times, he made it in Cleveland last Tuesday night when he grabbed Joe Azcue's liner, stepped on second to double Dave Nelson and then tagged Russ Snyder coming down the line from first base for the majors' first unassisted triple play in 41 years.

Today, only three days after his one-in-a-million grab-and-tag, Hansen is beginning to sense some of the implications of that play he made Tuesday night and what it could mean to him in the years to come.

"Every ballplayer plays for some moments in his career that he can look back on and really remember," says the rangy, 30-year-old Senator shortstop who has never had a minute's trouble with anybody.

Neither did Azcue, the Cleveland catcher: who hit the first-inning liner to start the play. Hansen came up to bat an inning later and Azcue was less than two feet away but the two men never exchanged a single word.

Nicklaus Roms Into First Place In Golf Tourney

CHICAGO (UPI)—Long hitting Jack Nicklaus turned the old into the new Thursday and promptly romped into the lead in the $130,000 Western Open on Olympia Field's north course.

Nicklaus matched the 28-year-old course record of 65 to grab a two-stroke lead, and he credited his performance not only to his best putting of the year but also his best overall round of the season.

To pull his game together, he went back to a semi-blade putter which he used in his first four years on the pro golf tour and abandoned after it helped him to victory in the 1966 British Open.

"I put it away," he said, "because I wasn't putting well, and I said to myself 'I'll never use it again.'"

But his attitude changed this year when his putting aches and pains continued. He got out the old club, "fooled around with it," and went back to his "old putting stance, a crouch looking down the line of the putt." Then he put the new club and the new style into competition in search of his first tournament win since he captured the Western Open last year.

He took only 30 putts on the par 71, 6,749-yard-long course with six one-putt greens to equal the record 65 set May 23, 1940, by the late Lawson Little in qualifying for the Nation Open which he won that year.

"It was my best putting round this year," Nicklaus said. "I hit the ball solidly and some putts that didn't drop had a chance to go in."

His closest challengers getting into the second round were Terry Dill and Miller Barber with 67s, and Larry Hinson with a 68. The tournament will pay the winner $26,000.

Foreign News Commentary

By WELLINGTON LONG
VIENNA (UPI)—The people of Czechoslovakia have declared their overwhelming support of the new regime of reform Communists in a form of plebiscite.

No one knows how many have signed the open letter of support drafted by playwright Pavel Kohout, or put their names to other resolutions prepared in factories, stores, restaurants, and other enterprises the length of the country from its frontier with Germany in the west to the Ukraine in the east.

But the wave of support is spontaneous. It has swamped all opposition to the government and the Communist party.

Even those most persecuted by the Communist regimes of old have joined their voices to the chorus. Bishop Frantisek Tomasek, administrator of the Catholic Church in Prague archdiocese, has said he is praying for Communist Party First Secretary Alexander Dubcek.

Dubcek and his deputies say their enormous popularity justifies the reform course they have taken. He says they have saved Czechoslovakia for communism. That is the line against the Soviet Politburo, which has accused him of opening the country to anti-Communist counter-revolution.

In that sense, the informal plebiscite has strengthened Dubcek's hand.

In another sense, however, by permitting the wave to crest, Dubcek has reduced his freedom of movement. Any major concessions to the Russians now will be viewed by the people as a betrayal, and could cost him and the party all of the newly-won support.

Such a development, in turn, could destroy his attempts to shake the people out of their lethargy and get the economy

BERRY'S WORLD

Washington Window

By ROY MCGHEE
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Eight years ago in the midst of moving again.

Dubcek managed to delay his meeting with the Soviet Union in order to let the wave of support build. He may not only have been trying to impress the Russians, but also the faint hearts or conservatives on his own party presidium or in the central committee.

Certainly, many of the old Stalinists remain in office. In particular, Josef Smrkovsky, president of parliament and the most radical of the reform-minded members of the presidium, objected to purging them as the Stalinists had purged their opponents. He said the new regime had to be liberal all the way.

another presidential campaign, the Senate found itself in a partisan fight over Supreme Court appointments—a fight echoing today around the controversial nomination of Abe Fortas as chief justice.

The fight in 1960 was over recess, or interim, appointments. These are appointments made between the time the Senate adjourns for one year and convenes for the next.

The fight today is over so-called "lame duck" nominations. This phrase is used to describe appointments made by a President who has been defeated for re-election or who has announced he will not seek another term.

From mail arriving at the Senate on the subject, there seems to be some confusion about the difference. A factor in the confusion may well be the role in the two fights of Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

In 1960, Congress returned to work after a July recess for the political conventions.

President Eisenhower had only six months to serve. There were no vacancies, or impending vacancies, on the Supreme Court. But three times since 1953, Eisenhower had made Supreme Court appointments while the Senate was in recess.

Each time, the nominees, including Chief Justice Earl Warren, had taken their seats and ruled on cases before they were eventually confirmed by the Senate.

And in the case of William J. Brennan Jr., the appointment on Oct. 16, 1956 was not only made while the Senate was in recess but while Eisenhower was standing for re-election.

Hart thought this was bad business. He wrote a "sense of the Senate" resolution which said presidents should not make recess Supreme Court appointments except in unusual circumstances. And even then, the nominees should not take their seats until confirmed.

The reasoning behind the resolution, on the record at least, was that sitting justices could not fairly be asked about their judicial and legal philosophy because answers might reflect their thinking on pending cases.

Republicans suspected baser motives—that the resolution sought to embarrass Eisenhower or his recess nominees.

George Washington made the first recess appointment to the Supreme Court when he nominated John Rutledge on Aug. 12, 1795. After the Senate reconvened, it refused to confirm the appointment and Rutledge stepped down on Dec. 15, 1795.

President Millard Fillmore had better luck. He nominated Benjamin Robbins Curtis while the Senate was in recess in 1851. Curtis was subsequently confirmed.

During the next 100 years, there were a dozen or more recess appointments. But Hart said during debate on his resolution that not one of them took his seat until confirmed by the Senate. The first to do so, he said, was Warren.

TRAFFIC WOES
ROME (UPI) — Motorists grumbled and shopkeepers feared loss of business but city fathers went ahead today with the latest plan to try to solve Rome's downtown traffic problems. The city prohibited parking on 422 streets and forbade even stopping along many principal thoroughfares.

Frank Phillips College Observing Its Twentieth Birthday This Year

By LARRY HOLLIS
Pampa News Staff Writer
Frank Phillips College, a two-year junior college in Borger, observes its 20th birthday this year. For the past few years it has been growing in "leaps and bounds," according to one of its spokesmen.

Seven buildings are built on a campus that has been expanded to 60 acres. The build-

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Winslow, Cohn & Stetson pins the blame for the recent market downturn on the Wednesday stock market closings, saying they dampen speculative enthusiasm by inserting "two Mondays" in every week.

The firm says the Czech crisis, the steel settlement, the tax increase, and "the marvelous weather at seaside resorts" have done their bit to make the "perennial irresolute" investor stand pat, leaving the field clear for the professional speculator, "who always speaks cautiously while he is accumulating his position."

The professional, the firm says, should complete his investment program "before the awful speculative truth becomes obvious to everyone that there are simply not enough attractive stocks available at reasonable prices to satisfy one tenth the present, and growing institutional speculators."

Capital Gains Research Bureau, Inc. finds a combination of low cash reserves and high redemptions "is severely curtailing the buying power of the $46.4 billion fund industry. Lifeblood of the funds is new money, represented by the excess of sales of fund shares over redemptions. In June, this came to only $161 million—enough to buy 3.1 million shares at $50 per share.

This would have been considerable buying power in days gone by, but with today's high volume and Big Board listings alone totaling over 12 billion shares, it's only a drop in the bucket, the firm says.

Goodbody & Co. believes the prospective business slowdown is not likely to exceed the 1960-61 experience, "our most recent official recession."

The firm says there has been not so much a change in the investment background in recent weeks as in simply the markets reaction to the fundamentals.

ings, the oldest of which is only 12 years old, are modern, air-conditioned and well kept, the spokesman said.

The administration building was built in 1955-56. The Fine Arts building, with an auditorium and student center, was finished in 1961. The gymnasium was constructed in 1956 and enlarged in 1961. The college maintenance building was constructed in 1962.

The new James W. Dillard Library was finished in April, 1967. With its carpeted floors, walnut furniture and 20,000 volumes, it holds a place of eminence among colleges and universities of the region, the spokesman said.

Last year two completely air-conditioned dormitories were constructed on the campus. Maxine Goin Hall has capacity for 80 college women, and W. G. Stephens Hall houses 120 college men.

The dormitories, with adequate parking space, are situated on the western slope of the campus and are accessible to the other buildings, including the student center where the college cafeteria is located. Reservations are now being taken for rooms in the dorms.

Graduates of Frank Phillips have made outstanding scholastic records in senior colleges and universities where they have transferred to finish their degrees, the spokesman said.

Pre-work is available in professional and liberal arts fields. Two years work can be completed on most degrees. In addition, technical and vocational courses are available.

A work program, a scholarship program and a loan are available to qualifying applicants to aid deserving students financially. Applications for assistance can be secured from the Financial Aid Office by writing to Business Office, Frank Phillips College, Box 111, Borger, Texas, 79007, or by telephoning 274-5311, extension 204, Borger.

The college staff provides guidance and counseling service for all students who plan to enroll. Students in the area can get personal attention at their homes during the summer by requesting a counselor from the college to call in their community, the spokesman said.

Frank Phillips also has programs of extra-curricular activities to provide students an opportunity for development of leadership and initiative.

Frank Phillips was established by the people of the High Plains of Texas. It is run by these same people and geared to their environment, the spokesman said. It ranks high in the higher education field of Texas and the nation.

Church Brought From England To Commemorate Churchill Statement

FULTON, Mo. (UPI) Lights shine again in the 291-year-old church of St. Mary Aldermanbury, for the first time in nearly three decades.

In the west window of the belfry of the church, moved from London and rebuilt on the campus of Westminster College, a chandelier illuminates a bust of Winston Churchill, who made his famous "Iron Curtain" speech at Westminster in 1946.

The electric chandelier, along with others which have been installed in the restore Christopher Wren Church, were made in Cleveland after the pattern of candelabra still used in similar 17th century churches in England. They were turned on for the first time earlier this week.

The register at the Churchill Memorial Church showed on the last day of July that visitors had come from 12 foreign countries, Puerto Rico, and all but two of the United States in the first 10 weeks the memorial was open.

The church was hauled across the Atlantic stone by stone and re-erected on the quiet college campus in this mid-Missouri town.

Restoration of the bomb-shattered church, on a knoll amid oaks overlooking the city of Fulton, still is not complete.

BIG MISTAKE

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI)—Cynthia J. Green is suing a drugstore for $15,000, charging that its pharmacist filled a prescription with birth control pills different from those specified by her doctor.

Mrs. Green gave birth to a child July 1.

RETURN REQUESTED

HOUSTON (UPI)—Patrolman J. C. Doyal had no difficulty in determining that a car abandoned on his beat was stolen. A note on the front seat read: "This car belongs to Low R. Williams in New Orleans. It is stole. Please see that he gets it."

Robb Is Respected As Marine Officer

By TED BELL
OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (UPI)—India Company, under the command of Marine Capt. Charles Robb, was conveying supplies to an artillery emplacement atop Hill 65, nine miles southwest of Da Nang, when the Viet Cong struck from ambush. The Marines fought them off but the Viet Cong returned—again and again. Each time the Leathernecks beat back the attack and ultimately supplies got through to the men on Hill 65, including Capt. Richard Cavagnol of Overland Park.

The story of India Company was forgotten, if ever it was told, until Cavagnol recounted it today, more than two months later.

Cavagnol described Robb, President Johnsons son-in-law, as "a real fine officer."

"He doesn't try to be anything special...just tries to do his job like the rest of us. A real sharp individual."

Cavagnol returned recently from Vietnam where he had served more than 27 months, the last three of them with Robb. A short, muscular man, Cavagnol was the commanding officer of the artillery battery positioned on Hill 65.

India Company, Third Battalion, Seventh Marines, commanded by Robb, provided security for both the hill and supply convoys to the fire support station.

Lynda Bird Johnson while he was assigned to White House duty, "leads a tactically proficient company."

"They did a good job of protecting the perimeter and performed well in action," Cavagnol said. "I've heard his men have high regard for him."

When asked whether the men on Hill 65 often talked about their famous fellow-tenant, Cavagnol said, "you never hear talk about a Marine officer unless he's exceptionally good or exceptionally bad. I think his men respected him and there was no talk about his being Johnson's son-in-law."

ACTRESS CRITIC
ANTICOLI CORRADO, Italy (UPI)—One of Italy's top actresses recently criticized Pope Paul VI's ban on artificial birth control. "To let so many families have more children than they can rear seems...less human than limiting births to the number it is possible to provide for completely," said Anna Magnani.

WRONG MEDICINE
SHEFFIELD, England (UPI)—Mandy Leary, 4, on her release recently from the hospital where she was treated after swallowing 18 of her mother's birth control pills, said "I like them. They taste just like candy."
