Soviets warn world they'd shoot again

By AUDREY C. WOODS
Associated Press Writer

The Soviets warned on Friday that they will shoot again if their air space is violated by spy planes, and Secretary of State George P. Shultz said that attitude endangers other nations.

Japanese authorities said debris from the Korean Air Lines plane the Soviets shot down Sept. 1 had washed ashore in northern Japan, and that fishermen had found the mutilated body of a child who might have been one of the 269 people who perished in the crash.

For nine days the Soviets resisted the international clamor for a full description of the catastrophe and an explanation of their actions, releasing only undetailed and evasive statements.

But on Friday, Soviet chief of staff Marshal Nikolai V. Ogarkov and two senior Kremlin officials held a rare news conference, broadcast live to the United States — but not in the Soviet Union — to answer reporters' questions.

Ogarkov claimed the airliner was on a carefully coordinated spy mission with a U.S. reconnaissance plane that flew alongside the KAL plane for 10 minutes. The United States has acknowledged the American spy plane was in the area — but never closer than 75 miles to the plane — but said it was on the ground in Alaska for an hour before the airliner was shot down with an air-to-air missile.

Ogarkov, said the decision to bring down the jumbo took 2½ hours during which 10 interceptors gave chase and 120 warning shots were fired.

■ Reagan rejects complaints — Page 4A

■ Americans still angry, related story — Page 7C

He insisted the fighter crew and ground command had acted properly and legally, and warned, "In the future, if need be, they will also perform their combat tasks."

Ogarkov said after the jumbo rendezvoused with a U.S. RC-135 spy plane it deliberately entered Soviet airspace then defied four Soviet interceptors over Kamchatka and six over Sakhalin and tried to flee.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said "The Soviet event today did not provide us and the rest of the world with answers to questions we all have about the Soviet actions in this case. The Soviet Union still owes the world answers and assurances that civil aviation will not be targeted in the future."

Asked about the Soviet allegation that the Korean plane was on a spy mission, and in contact with the reconnnaissance plane, Speakes said it was "absurd."

President Reagan attended a memorial service in Washington Cathedral for the 269 victims and declared Sunday a national day of mourning. He sat with his wife Nancy as Episcopal Bishop John T. Walker described the Soviet Union as "an outlaw in the family of nations" and said "the very earth has wept over this violation of live."

The U.N. Security Council postponed until at least Monday a vote on a U.S.-sponsored resolution that deplores the destruction of the plane, but does not explicitly condemn the Soviet Union for shooting it down. Some council members said they had not yet received instructions on how to vote.

In Madrid, Shultz called the Sept. 1 attack on the aircraft "shocking to the conscience of mankind" and denounced it as part of a pattern of Soviet violations of the Helsinki agreements on human rights.

Shultz has denounced as "preposterous" the Soviet charge that the plane was on a spy mission, and in his speech Friday at the 35-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, said the downing of the plane is a reminder that "the Soviet Union defines its security in a way so absolute, self-centered and cynical that is poses a danger to all other countries."

Delegates attending a private meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels, Belgium, said 12 of the 16 NATO members agreed to impose a two-week ban on flights to and from the Soviet Union beginning Sept. 15. They said France, Greece and Spain declined to go along with the action and will allow Soviet Aeroflot planes to land in their countries because of contract commitments. They reported Turkey cited "technical" reservations for not agreeing to the ban.

In addition to the NATO countries, other nations are being invited to join in the ban. Air pilots' associations in some NATO nations have announced a 60-day boycott of flights to Moscow.

Japan has banned charter flights by Aeroflot "for the time being."

Hospital battle, but perhaps not war, over

Don Davis

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

After more than a year and a half of fighting Parkview Hospital's application for additional beds, Midland Memorial Hospital officials now won't oppose its opposition's amended request — but the fight may not be over.

With a unanimous vote during a special meeting Friday, both MMH boards — directors and trustees — agreed that "our attorneys be directed to file as a party to the 100-bed application that is currently before the THFC. The district recognized the need for quality medical care in the community and would not oppose a replacement facility for Parkview."

According to MMH President Ray Branson, the motion will allow MMH to participate if they choose to go another round.

"This just means we have the option of opposing — if that's the decision," Branson said. "It just allows us to participate in the hearing if that's the decision."

Opposition to the hearing, scheduled for Oct. 11 in Austin at the Texas Health Facilities Commission, must be filed 30 days prior to the hearing. This means MMH officials had to make their decision to file Friday.

■ MMH awards renovation contract — Page 4A

If they do decide to participate in the hearing on Parkview's request, it would not be the first time the two hospitals testified on behalf of their bed needs — and against each other's. The first hearing in Austin on the certificate of need (CON) applications was in November 1982. Local hearings were held two months earlier.

THE THFC HEARS requests for services, equipment and expansions costing more than $600,000. Approval is given on the basis of community need and eliminates duplication of services in an area.

At that time, MMH's application was for a $15 million 77-bed expansion. Parkview applied for a $17.5 million 110-bed hospital, to be named Doctor's Hospital of the Permian Basin.

Last March, the THFC approved MMH's application but denied Parkview's project. A second CON was filed by Parkview July 1. The amended request is for a $17 million 100-bed, three-story building to be located at the intersection of Preston Drive and Loop 250. Maternity beds and emergency room facilities were eliminated from the first certificate of need.

By filing as a party to the recent application, MMH can participate in cross-examinations, testimony and questioning the need for the extra 40 beds proposed by Parkview. Although MMH officials say Parkview's present 60-bed facility is in poor shape and a replacement facility is needed, they do not agree on the additional beds.

Druse gunners fire on Marine zone

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Druse gunners fired mortar barrages near the U.S. Marine zone south of Beirut Friday, and Druse militiamen maintained their mountain offensive by overrunning a Christian stronghold and surrounding another.

A dozen 81mm mortar rounds fired by Druse gunners slammed into Beirut's international airport in a 35-minute barrage, Associated Press photographer William Foley reported. It was the third shelling of the airport area that includes the Marine perimeter in less than 24 hours.

The shells struck the airport terminal and parking lot. None landed inside the Marine compound, Foley reported from the scene.

The Marine zone was rocketed twice overnight, sending the 1,200 Marines into bunkers and foxholes on each occasion.

Marine spokesmen said there were no casualties or retaliations in any of the three attacks, which occurred one day after President Reagan pledged "whatever support it takes" to shield Marine positions.

Four Marines have been killed and 28 wounded since late last month.

One non-commissioned French officer suffered a slight shrapnel injury in a shell barrage around the mid-city headquarters of the French contingent to the international peacekeeping force, French spokesman Maj. Alain de Lestrade reported.

The British Defense Ministry sent six Buccaneer warplanes to Cyprus, 150 miles west of the Lebanese coast, to provide air support for the 100 British soldiers in the peacekeeping force "if the need should arise." Troops from the United States, France, Italy and Britain form the 5,400-member peacekeeping force.

U.S. Marines view the hills overlooking their positions near Beirut airport Friday as shelling of the area continues.

The new shelling of Beirut came on the sixth day of fierce fighting between leftist Druse and rightist Christians that has claimed 448 Lebanese lives, according to official police counts.

In Washington, the State Department called for an immediate cease-fire in Lebanon, saying that further bloodshed can in no way serve the cause of peace.

This "senseless loss of life can only serve to aggravate the bitterness and hatred that already exists," said deputy spokesman Alan Romberg.

A statement from Druse leader Walid Jumblatt's Progressive Socialist Party said its forces captured the Chouf town of Beit-Eddin and laid siege to neighboring Deir Al-Kamar, the largest Christian town in the region.

Fadi Hayek, spokesman for the "Lebanese Forces" militia of the Christian Phalange Party, conceded the fall of Beit-Eddin and said Deir Al-Kamar was surrounded by Druse attackers.

"The situation in Deir Al-Kamar is much more critical because of the civilian population," Hayek said, estimating the town's population had risen from 3,000 to 40,000 because of the massive influx of Christian families fleeing Druse-conquered areas.

The Lebanese government said Druse militiamen stopped for a second day an International Red Cross convoy trying to deliver medical and food supplies to Deir Al-Kamar.

Jumblatt said in an interview broadcast by Paris-based Radio Monte Carlo: "I give the Christian population of Deir Al-Kamar and the refugees to that town my word that they will not be harmed....I have ordered my forces not to storm the town or harm its people."

He also accused the four nations contributing to the peacekeeping force of "bold-faced intervention in Lebanon's internal affairs" and said the opposition National Liberation Front "will demand their departure from the country unles their policies are changed."

In Bhamdoun, captured by Druse militias Wednesday, militiamen were stocking ammunition and supplies in boxes with Russian markings and carried in on Syrian army trucks, AP reporter Terry Anderson reported. The town was the former front line between Israeli and Syrian forces.

Trying to "hang ten" in a drainage ditch makes for an interesting afternoon in Corpus Christi. Raymond Nunez, 14, takes advantage Friday of the five inches of rain that fell late Thursday and Friday.

Residents split on hurricane ruling

BAYTOWN, Texas (AP) — Residents of a low-lying subdivision are sharply divided over an ordinance which has forced about 300 people to abandon their homes because the area is so vulnerable to hurricanes and flooding.

The ordinance, adopted Thursday night, said the extreme measure was necessary because virtually all homes as well as water and sewer systems in the Brownwood subdivision were destroyed by Hurricane Alicia Aug. 18.

A third of the homes in the area, which lies on a peninsula that fronts two bays, were reduced to slabs. Most of the rest are little more than studs and roofs.

The ordinance noted the water and sewer systems would cost about $4 million to repair.

"Our attachment to our sticks and stones is not realistic. Brownwood is gone. It is no more," Gene Shepherd, president of the Brownwood Civic Association, said before the council voted Thursday night.

Brownwood homeowners can sell their land to the federal government, which has $1.5 million available to buy the property. Under the ordinance, the federal government will give the land to the city of Baytown to keep as an "open green space."

The ordinance was drafted after federal officials told city council members that houses in the subdivision could lose their U.S. government flood insurance unless they are placed on 16-foot stilts.

Homeowners who choose to keep their land may do so, city officials said, but no fences or buildings may be put there.

Brownwood residents' reaction to the eviction was mixed and emotional.

"I've never heard such impassioned debate in my life of covering some 300 disasters in 10 years," said William Hansbury, an official with the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Dorothy Edmundson, who has lived in the subdivision since 1954, said she would be glad to get out.

"It's been a wonderful place and a horrible place to live," she said. "I lived through hurricane Carla and spent a cold winter with plywood on the walls.

"Many young people don't realize that this kind of thing is going to happen again and Brownwood won't be a better place, but a worse place," Ms. Edmundson said.

But several homeowners said they would not give up their waterfront property.

"I'll keep my house there until hell freezes over," said Billy Higginbotham, 38, a garage owner. "Brownwood may be a past tense to somebody but it's not to me," he said.

The ban was effective immediately after passage. Anyone violating the eviction order can be fined up to $200.

Laborers still awaiting payment for Houston clean-up efforts

HOUSTON (AP) — Employees of a formerly unemployed construction worker who was awarded seven contracts to clean up debris deposited by Hurricane Alicia were still waiting for their paychecks Friday afternoon.

About two dozen workers walked off their jobs with James Scott, Thursday after Scott failed to pay them for their first week of work. They would have ended their second week on the job Friday.

Scott, 32, promised to meet workers in state Rep. Al Edwards' office at 6 p.m. Friday. His employees said he broke three appointments to meet them Thursday.

"We just want a straight answer, that's all," laborer Betty Thomas said.

She said Scott's brother Charles had talked to the workers, but had little optimistic to tell them.

"His hands are really tied," she said.

James Scott had no employees, no office and little equipment when he won seven of the 10 clean-up contracts Houston's City Council originally awarded after the Aug. 18 storm. One of those contracts was revoked last week after City Council members discovered no work had been done in the area it covered.

Declaration of educational goals suggested

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education heard Friday a suggestion that Texas public school students should decide after the sixth grade if they want to aim for a college education or for a job.

The board is not expected to act on the suggestion of its staff until some time in 1984.

The staff, in a report boldly labeled "for discussion only," also suggested the powerful elective board administering the 1,125 public school districts in the state might want:

—To encourage schools to schedule a seven-period day with 45-minute classes or a six-period day with 55-minute classes.

—To say if high school graduates should complete 20 units of study instead of the 18 units required now.

—To require a "computer literacy course" of all students at some stage of their education to equip them for either new college or business techniques.

—To decide if students should be allowed to miss classes in order to participate in "co-curricular" activities such as drill teams, cheerleading, marching band, ROTC and athletics.

The state school board heard the report given by Tom Anderson, deputy commissoner of the Texas Education Agency, but took no action on it.

The report resulted from a bill passed by the 1981 Legislature directing the state board to establish a state basic curriculum by designating the essential elements for each of 12 subjects comprising a well-balanced curriculum.

Anderson said the TEA had received oral and written testimony from 5,352 people and 2,225 organizations before preparing the report.

One staff suggestion said the state board might want to require that students in Grades 7 and 8 divide themselves into those who want to pursue either an "academic" or "general-vocational" education.

Airline fires, sues 10 workers

DALLAS (AP) — American Airlines has fired and sued 10 employees, including the president of the Transport Workers Union local, for accusing the carrier of compromising passenger safety, the company says.

American said Thursday the 10 TWU members stood outside American's terminal in Atlanta and distributed "false, misleading and defamatory" handbills and wore signs accusing American of eliminating aircraft inspections by mechanics.

A libel lawsuit was filed Tuesday against the union members, said American spokesman Lowell C. Duncan.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The National Baptist Convention of America has elected Rev. James Carl Sams as its president for the 17th consecutive year.

Sams was re-elected by acclamation at the annual meeting of the 3.5 million member denomination Thursday. About 11,000 delegates are meeting in Fort Worth through Sunday.

Shuttle stops in Wichita Falls

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Space shuttle Challenger spent just over three hours in Texas Friday on a refueling stop from California to Florida.

The shuttle, riding atop a Boeing 747, landed at Sheppard Air Force Base at 11:30 a.m. and left for Cape Canaveral at 2:40 p.m.

Bad weather forced the shuttle to go to Wichita Falls, near the Texas-Oklahoma border, instead of Kelly Air Force Base at San Antonio 340 miles to the south.

Stassen again announces he's presidential candidate

Harold Stassen

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Surprise. Harold Stassen announced on Friday that he is running for president again. For the seventh time. Or is it the eighth? The ninth?

"I do not have a personal count," says Republican Stassen, who is 76. "There are many different ways of counting campaigns. I've never objected to anyone's calculation."

Whatever the count, he is adding a 1984 candidacy because he believes the policies of Ronald Reagan's administration "on the conservative extreme" and of Walter Mondale's organization "on the liberal extreme" are wrong for the American people and for world peace.

Stassen told a packed news conference that the shooting down of the Korean airliner firmed up his decision to make another try. He says he has no organization, has collected no money and has no illusions about his chances.

And so, he says cheerfully, "I'll be in the primaries all the way from Iowa to California."

The record shows that Stassen was a candidate in 1948, 1952, 1964, 1968, 1976 and 1980. But, he says, one might also count a drumbeat for him in 1944 when he was in the Navy in the Pacific.

"In fact," adds Stassen, "when I was the keynoter and chairman of the (Wendell) Willkie nomination in 1940, there was some talk then, except of course I was then constitutionally too young."

A pause. "That question won't arise now," he says.

The question that did arise was "why again?"

"This is not a matter of office holding," says Stassen — who last held elected office in 1945, the end of his three 2-year terms as Minnesota's governor. "This is a matter of deep concern, which is literally lifelong as to what happens to the peace of the world and what happens to the economic systems of the world and the way in which people live on this one Earth. And that is the basic motivation I had and have had through the years."

Doesn't he worry that people might think he is foolish?

"They're entitled to think that," he answered. "It's a free country."

Stassen was critical of both the United States and the Soviet Union in the South Korean airliner downing. Both sides knew, for 2½ hours, that the plane was off course, said Stassen, "and yet neither side talked to the other side; neither side communicated with the plane."

Stassen is for full employment, balanced budgets and no inflation. That, he says, can be accomplished by lowering interest rates to 6 or 8 percent through restraining excessive speculations, giant mergers and foreign lending. He thinks that America has carried the defense burden for the free world for 30 years and ought to impose "an import tax adequate to assist in our necessary world defense budget."

And he would seek a nationwide sales tax.

Stassen said he is prepared to spend some of his own money, even though, "I'm not a man of great wealth."

Strikers defy back-to-work order

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Thousands of teachers staging the biggest of the nation's current school strikes defied a federal judge's order to return to class and stayed on picket lines Friday.

About 2,700 teachers and 1,100 other employees set up picket lines at city schools on Wednesday, the first day of school for 56,000 city students and several hundred St. Louis County students attending specialized schools as part of a new desegregation program.

U.S. District Judge Stephen N. Limbaugh continued his temporary restraining order at a hearing Friday afternoon but made no effort to have it enforced.

Bruce Feldacker, attorney for the American Federation of Teachers, Local 420, which is striking over wages and class sizes, attacked the order as a "unique usurpation of federal power in what is a local matter."

"We don't believe there's a shade of federal jurisdiction in this case, not a shade," Feldacker told the judge.

But Ed Weakley, an attorney for the school board, argued that the federal court did have jurisdiction because the strike had a direct effect on a voluntary desegregation program approved by another federal judge.

Because of the strike, Weakley said, only 294 of the expected 550 suburban students had transferred into predominantly black city schools.

Limbaugh had cited the disruption of voluntary desegregation between the city and its predominantly white suburbs Thursday when he ordered the teachers to "return to their classrooms and resume their teaching duties forthwith."

The schools remained open with a skeleton staff of teachers, substitutes, administrators and volunteers.

Only about 21,000 students went to school on Thursday, but officials said figures for attendance Friday were not immediately available because of a bomb threat that forced evacuation of the board of education's 300 workers from their downtown office building.

Board spokeswoman Marge Polcyn said the threat was made by an anonymous caller at about 8:45 a.m. A search of the building by police turned up nothing and the employees returned to work shortly after 10 a.m.

Authorities said they did not know whether the threat was relted to the strike.

Friday morning, the third day of the strike, teachers on picket lines said they had not been served with the back-to-work order and would continue to stay away from the 127 city schools until told otherwise by their union.

Principals at the schools handed copies of the temporary restraining order to pickets.

"The principal served us this morning," said Betty Williams at Sigel Elementary School on the city's south side. "But I didn't read it. So I'm not too worried. Right now I feel very comfortable about what I'm doing."

"We've been served with the temporary restraining order, but I didn't read mine so I still don't know what's going on," said Gloria Smith, a teacher at Cleveland High. "Right now, we're just leaving it in the capable hands of our union."

School officials announced Thursday that special measures would be implemented for returning teachers due to "numerous calls."

Teacher in six states still out

By The Associated Press

Four districts in Michigan and New Jersey reached contract agreements with striking teachers, but more than 10,000 remained off the job Friday in walkouts in six states.

The largest strike was in St. Louis, where 2,700 teachers and more than 1,000 other workers walked picket lines for a third day despite a federal judge's back-to-work order. Skeleton crews kept classes open for the city's 56,000 students.

The strike came as St. Louis schools were implementing their part of a voluntary desegregation plan between the city and its predominantly white suburbs.

Nationwide, 205,043 students have been affected by the strikes.

In Michigan, settlements were reached Friday in two districts, bringing the number of strikes statewide to 19, involving 82,000 students and 3,730 teachers.

Teachers in the Dowogiac School District, along with their colleagues in East Detroit and the Brooklyn Columbia Center district in Jackson County, face dismissal next week unless they return to classrooms.

In Warwick, R.I., the teachers union said Friday it would open daycare centers for working parents whose school-age children are staying home.

Tower backs Reagan

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Sen. John Tower said Friday he felt President Reagan's response to the Soviet downing of a Korean airliner was correct.

The Texas Republican made his comments at a news conference and during a question and answer session of the Western States Republican Conference.

Delegates from 11 western states, including Alaska, are represented at the conference, which is aimed at strengthening party strategy for the 1984 elections.

School closes doors

NEWPORT, Ore. (AP) — The 5,000 students in Lincoln County began a forced vacation Friday, three days into the school year, after the district ran out of money and residents refused to vote for more funds.

Three hundred teachers were laid off, high school seniors fretted about their chances of getting into college, and parents flooded the state Department of Education office with calls asking what to do next.

"We're telling them to hang in there until the next vote," said Jan Ryan, an assistant state superintendent of public instruction.

If the levy request fails when it is put to voters again on Sept. 20, "We're telling them they should seriously think about putting their children in private schools or other alternatives."

Task force questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — A public advocacy group threatened Friday to take President Reagan to court over his appointment of what it called a "peculiarly constructed" task force charged with finding ways to end hunger in America.

"It's a funny bunch of people to put together for this purpose," said Nancy Amidei, director of the Washington-based Food Research and Action Council.

Of the 13 people Reagan named to his Task Force on Food Assistance, Ms. Amidei said only two had direct understanding of the nutrition and hunger problems across the nation.

Aside from Betsy Rollins, who runs a North Carolina soup kitchen, and former Phoenix Mayor John Driggs, head of a food donation agency, Ms. Amidei said the members are not experts in federal food programs. And, she said, those who know about the programs are hostile to them.

Smoking discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Airline passengers who want to smoke on short flights may soon be told to douse their cigarettes as the Civil Aeronautics Board proposes to ban smoking on flights lasting less than one, or possibly two, hours.

The CAB made the proposal this week, but a final rule will not be issued until after interested parties are given a chance to comment.

Flood watch affects coast

By The Associated Press

A flood watch was in effect Friday night for much of the South Texas coast as showers and thunderstorms continued to dump large amounts of rain in the area and caused street flooding in northeast San Benito.

The National Weather Service in San Antonio said the ground in coastal areas is soaked from rains during the week and additional rainfall will be slow to drain. Flash floods were possible in many areas, the weather service said.

Heavy rains in the Harlingen area Friday afternoon caused widespread street flooding in northeast San Benito, officials reported.

Showers and thunderstorms were widely scattered over much of East, South and South Central Texas, with isolated thunderstorms in West Texas.

Ransom frees woman; Suspects captured by FBI

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — The wife of a food store manager was kidnapped Friday and released unharmed after a $10,000 ransom was paid, the FBI said, and two people were arrested in connection with the case.

Thomas C. Kelley, special agent in charge of the FBI in Dallas, said a 40-year-old man and 20-year-old woman were arrested on a state highway north of San Angelo.

A jailer at the San Angelo city jail said the two would be arraigned Saturday morning on kidnapping and extortion charges.

Kelly said William Haley, manager of M-Systems Food Stores in San Angelo, delivered $10,000 to a man at a convenience store on the west side of San Angelo after he received a telephone call indicating that his wife, Loy, had been kidnapped.

Haley was driven to a secluded area, where his wife was being held. He and his wife were released unharmed near Twin Buttes Reservoir after the ransom was paid, Kelly said.

Haley called police after he received the call about his wife, San Angelo Police Chief Travis Johnson said, and was told to hold off making contact as long as possible.

Several units of law enforcement officers were dispatched to the vicinity of the convenience store where Haley was told to take the money, Johnson said, and other officers were in a helicopter and a single-engine airplane.

The ransom money was recovered, the FBI said.

A man with a gun forced Haley to drive to the reservoir west of San Angelo, Johnson said. Authorities followed a car from the site, and the man and woman were arrested later about seven miles north of Bronte.

Johnson quoted Mrs. Haley as saying that she was abducted at gunpoint after the couple came to the family home about 9 a.m. and knocked on the door.

Haley was told in his first telephone call to bring the ransom money to the convenience store. "When Haley got to the store, he was called on the telephone by a man who told him to go home. When he got home he got a second call from the same man telling him to go back to the store," Johnson said.

He was met at the store by a man who got into his car, a red Volkswagon, and ordered him to drive west to a remote part of Twin Buttes Reservoir, west of San Angelo, where they were met by a woman and Mrs. Haley, Johnson said.

The suspects left the area in a white car after taking the Haleys into a remote section of the lake, the police chief said. Mrs. Haley's hands were bound behind her back with a set of police-type handcuffs, Johnson said.

PEMEX official 'safe' in Mexico

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — A high-ranking union official of Mexico's oil monopoly was "safe" in the custody of federal authorities in Mexico Friday following his abduction at gunpoint Thursday, a McAllen police official said.

Hector Garcia Hernandez, 48, was kidnapped from his posh McAllen home Thursday afternoon by two gunmen, who held three people hostage while awaiting Garcia Hernandez's arrival.

Garcia Hernandez, secretary of education and social services for the PEMEX oil union, was taken away in a dark blue car.

Police Sgt. Jesse Colbath said Friday he received word from Mexican federal authorities that Garcia Hernandez and his two abductors were safe in Tampico, about 300 miles south of the Texas border on the Gulf of Mexico..

Felipe Flores, a spokesman for the attorney general's office in Mexico City, said Garcia Hernandez was being tranported Friday to Mexico City for questioning involving a complaint against him.

His abductors, identified by Flores as Ramon Vazquez and Gilberto Galvan, were arrested in Tampico on a charge of deprivation of liberty, Flores said.

He said the two men claimed to work for Pemex.

Although no motive has been officially stated for the kidnapping, Colbath said Garcia Hernandez has been involved in a highly publicized feud with another Pemex union official.

Enrique Hubbard, Mexican consul to Brownsville, said Friday that Garcia Hernandez's abductors turned him over to federal authorities in Tampico because they wanted the complaint against him investigated.

FLorez said Garcia Hernandez had not been arrested.

Salvador Barragan Camacho, secretary general of the Mexican Oil Workers Union, filed a complaint with the Mexican attorney general's office in August, accusing Garcia Hernandez and his private secretary of defrauding the union of $6.6 million.

Barragan Camacho claims that in 1980 and 1981, Garcia Hernandez took 2 percent on payments Pemex contractors make to the union as part of their labor agreements. It was not clear whether he allegedly took 2 percent out of the payments or charged the contractors an extra 2 percent.

Garcia Hernandez was in charge of numerous lucrative contracts, including most of those for work on a port project that later was canceled, the magazine Proceso said in its Aug. 15 issue.

The union had labor contracts for 40 percent of the government oil monopoly's projects, the magazine said.

Victim was on way to hearing

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A high-ranking official of the Oil Workers Union snatched from his home in McAllen, Texas, was enroute to Mexico City Friday to appear before federal authorities in connection with a $6.6 million fraud case, the Attorney General's office said.

Hector Garcia Hernandez, 48, the union's education and social services secretary, will be questioned in connection with a complaint filed in August by union secretary general Salvador Barragan Camacho, accusing him of defrauding the union, said Felipe Flores, the attorney general spokesman.

Barragan Camacho accused Garcia Hernandez of taking a 2 percent cut on payments contractors doing work for PEMEX, the government oil monopoly, made to the union in 1980 and 1981.

Flores declined to say Garcia Hernandez was under arrest and said he was not detained by Mexican police. But he said he was being brought to Mexico City and would be presented to officials in the Attorney General's office Friday.

MMH gives contract to Area Builders

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

Midland Memorial Hospital trustees and directors approved giving a contract for renovation of 2,707 square feet to Area Builders instead of advertising the project for bids during a special meeting Friday.

The area must be renovated to accommodate a new CT Scanner, a sophisticated machine which provides cross-sections X-ray images of the inner human anatomy.

According to MMH attorney Ted Kerr, a section in the bidding law allows for the exclusion of putting a project out for bids "to protect or preserve the public health."

MMH officials claim the nearness of the area to be re-constructed to the intensive care unit and critical care unit requires workers who are familiar with the hospital. Area Builders constructed the area to be renovated.

Board of Directors President Tevis Herd said the original project cost was $125,000, within guidelines set by trustees. However, further studies indicated the project would be more complex and "we knew the project was going to exceed the $200,000 authority," Herd said.

Both boards approved giving the project to Area Builders on a cost-plus basis with a maximum cost of $237,201.

Also approved was authorization to issue $2 million in junior lien revenue bonds for financing a CT Scanner, renovating the space to accommodate it and constructing a parking gargage on the east parking lot.

Director Pat Estes voted against the authorization, later explaining, "I do not feel at this point that I can stand any type of bond money for a parking building. I personally can't spend tax money for anything not directly related to patient care."

According to MMH's bond counsel Pete Tart, of McCall, Parkhurst & Horton, the $2 million must be used to acquire the CT Scanner, prepare the site and to acquire and construct the parking garage. If funds are available after the projects are completed, the money can be used elsewhere.

"If you're thinking about abandoning it (the proposed parking garage), you better stop right now," Tart said.

The hospital district has outstanding $19.8 million revenue bonds which were approved last spring to finance a 77-bed expansion. Those bonds have priority over the junior lien revenue bonds.

However, the district retained the right to issue additional junior lien revenue bonds for future projects if net revenues for the last completed fiscal year or for any 12 consecutive calendar month period ending not more than 90 days prior to issuing the new bonds is at least 1¼ times the average annual principal and interest requirements for all other bonds.

Also, if the hospital chooses to refinance the $19.8 million revenue bonds or the junior lien revenue bonds, owners of the junior lien revenue bonds have MMH's promise they will be paid off or elevated to the standard of the $17.8 million revenue bonds.

Battle ends, but hospital war may not be over

Consultants hired by MMH told both boards Friday that updated projections on the need for more beds indicate there will be sufficient beds available in the area without Parkview's additions.

"Indeed, there will be a slight excess through 1988," said Don Davis of TriBrook management consultants.

According to Davis, revised projections show more conservative figures and a smaller population growth. Including MMH's approved addition of 77 beds, there are 332 existing beds available to patients in Midland County.

TRIBROOK'S ORIGINAL projections indicated there would be a need for 321 beds in 1986 and 332 in 1987. Revised projections show a need for only 314 beds in 1986 and 326 beds in 1987, Davis said.

IF PARKVIEW RECEIVES approval for its 100-bed request and continues having an occupancy rate of 40 percent, MMH would lose $546,000 per year, said Randy Kurtz of MMH's auditors, Arthur Anderson.

MMH would have to raise revenues by 2 percent or taxes by 20 percent to make up for the loss, Kurtz said.

If Parkview received approval for the request and had a 60 percent occupancy rate, MMH would lose $1,233,000 and would have to raise revenues by 4 percent or taxes by 46 percent, Kurtz said.

"If Parkview's census increases, MMH's must decrease and vice versa," Kurtz said. "If you have enough beds, you will just be shifting patients from one institution to another."

According to Davis, roughly 71 percent of the adults in Midland County who are hospitalized go to MMH or Parkview. The others seek health care outside of the area.

MMH has a 59 percent share in the adult patient market, Davis said.

If a fight for that share of the market continues, MMH officials still won't be able to compute how much the "battle of the beds" has cost Midland County taxpayers.

According to Branson, because the two requests for CON were filed at the same time, the THFC joined them for the commission's convenience.

"You can't say this is the cost we spent on our application as opposed to the cost we spent fighting their application," Branson said. "When a project is approved and awarded a certificate of need, many of those costs carry forward."

Those costs, excluding transportation expenses, include architectural fees, equipment, planning costs and attorney and planning consultant fees.

Reagan rejects criticism of actions

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, rejecting critics' complaints that he has not been tough enough with the Soviet Union for shooting down a Korean airliner, asked Friday: "Short of going to war, what would they have us do?"

"I know that some of our critics have sounded off that somewhow we haven't exacted enough vengeance," Reagan said. "Well, vengeance isn't the name of the game. Short of going to war, what would they have us do?"

The president spoke on a closed-circuit television hookup with Western Republican leaders, meeting in Scottsdale, Ariz., after he joined relatives of the victims of Korean Air Lines Flight 007 at a memorial service at Washington Cathedral.

He also declared a national day of mourning Sunday for the 269 people killed when the jumbo jet was shot down Sept. 1 by a missile fired by a Soviet jet interceptor.

In his TV remarks to the GOP officials in Arizona, Reagan spoke of retaliatory steps open to the United States. "The idea is to make it plain to the world, as we have, that this is the Soviet Union against the world, not just the United States," he said.

The president said citizens of 13 nations in addition to the United States were aboard the Korean airliner. He said the most important thing is to "get the 13 countries together and take our case to the international organizations, for restitution to the families of the victims of that terrible tragedy, that massacre.

"We are also trying ... every way we can to see if we cannot get an end to the lying, an end to the defiance that the Soviet Union is presently voicing and seeing if we cannot eliminate the possibility of this ever taking place again," he said.

Bill Bentley swigs water in a domed chamber of Comanche Springs Cave to combat high humidity and heat. Bentley and other Midland cavers have assisted in exploration of the Fort Stockton site.

Dangling legs, tensed muscles, vocalized pain — it's all part of squeezing through Mary's Misery in Comanche Springs Cave, Richard Galle discovers.

Conquering a cavern

FORT STOCKTON — It lies in the very heart of the springs where Comanches watered stolen stock on the war trail from Mexico and westward-bound emigrants filled their kegs after crossing more than 100 miles of desert.

Comanche Springs Cave. A maze of water-hewn channels, domes, pits and squeezes, lying directly beneath the city of Fort Stockton and its fabled Comanche Springs.

For centuries that intertwined network of springs gushed forth enormous quantities of water — 65 million gallons a day during the early part of the 20th century. It fed wildlife and cowboys and freighters, generated an army outpost, gave birth to a city of 9,000 on the fringes of the Chihuahuan Desert.

Now — decades after irrigation west of town caused it to cease flowing — it is stirring the lifeblood of those who live in its proximity, thanks to three brothers who persevered five years to gain permission to enter its bowels.

Pausing on the way down a manmade entrance to Comanche Springs Cavern is Bill Bentley.

Dennis, Glenn and Haley Haynes grew up roaming the hills of Sanderson and hearing tales of Comanche Springs. They eventually found in spelunking a quality that captured their imagination and propelled them into years of exploring the state's subterranean features. When Dennis and Glenn moved to Fort Stockton and heard tales weaved by water well drillers (bits plummeting through cavities) and homeowners (wells being pumped dry one day and then gushing again the next), they put it all together and decided an intricate labyrinth of aqueous and dry channels must lie below.

Five years ago, they sneaked beneath the supports of Comanche Springs swimming pool, stared down at a dark grotto 20 feet within the water-filled crack of the "Chief" spring and swallowed hard.

"We could tell it was the tunnel entrance," recalled Dennis. "We figured it was just rainwater that had created a sump, like in a sink. But we didn't think we'd get permission to pump it out."

It took several years — until last February in fact — but with the help of the editor of The Fort Stockton Pioneer and County Commissioner M.R. Gonzales, the three brothers finally were granted the go-ahead to pump out the passageway.

It took two weeks. At one point, the brothers almost were overcome by carbon monoxide poisoning as the fumes from the gasoline engine hugged the head-high bottom of the pool. When the pump finally breathed only air, the brothers fought mud for 138 feet of squeezeway before coming up into a small chamber with a comparitively dry passageway threading through the earth.

All about them sparkled millions of fossilized seashells imbedded in limestone as they had been for 130 million years.

For Dennis, it was an incredible culmination of years of anticipation and wonder.

"The main thing we search for in caving," he said, "is virgin caves. To me, it was like being the first man to cross West Texas in the frontier days, or being the first to set foot on the moon. Most people don't understand it, because most people haven't been where no one's been before. It was exciting, not knowing what was around the next curve. You never knew what you were going to find. Comanche Springs is one of the biggest in West Texas, and we knew it had to be big inside."

As they endured 100 percent humidity and temperatures in the upper 70s in exploring the maze along with Annie Riggs Museum curator Mary Kay Shannon, they discovered a half-mile of domes and crawlways and pristine pools which glowed bluish-green before their headlamps. But a problem began to arise — the natural entrance had begun to fill with water again.

With compass, tape measure and their wits, the spelunkers decided upon a point in the ceiling of a squeezeway and began to dig their way out. They dug for eight hours, shoveling the dirt back down the doghouse-sized passage. After they stopped for the night, Glenn was poking around with a crowbar in a small hole in the bed of Government Spring — which they believed lay directly above their subterranean dig — when the ground suddenly collapsed.

With placement of six 55-gallon drums welded end-on-end into the cavity, a man-made entrance was created as rising water finally flooded the natural one.

Now, six months later, waters again have stymied exploration. Within the crystal-clear purities of a pool dubbed Stephan's Well lies that which has raised Dennis imagination to a fever pitch: a submerged passageway immense enough to drive a car through.

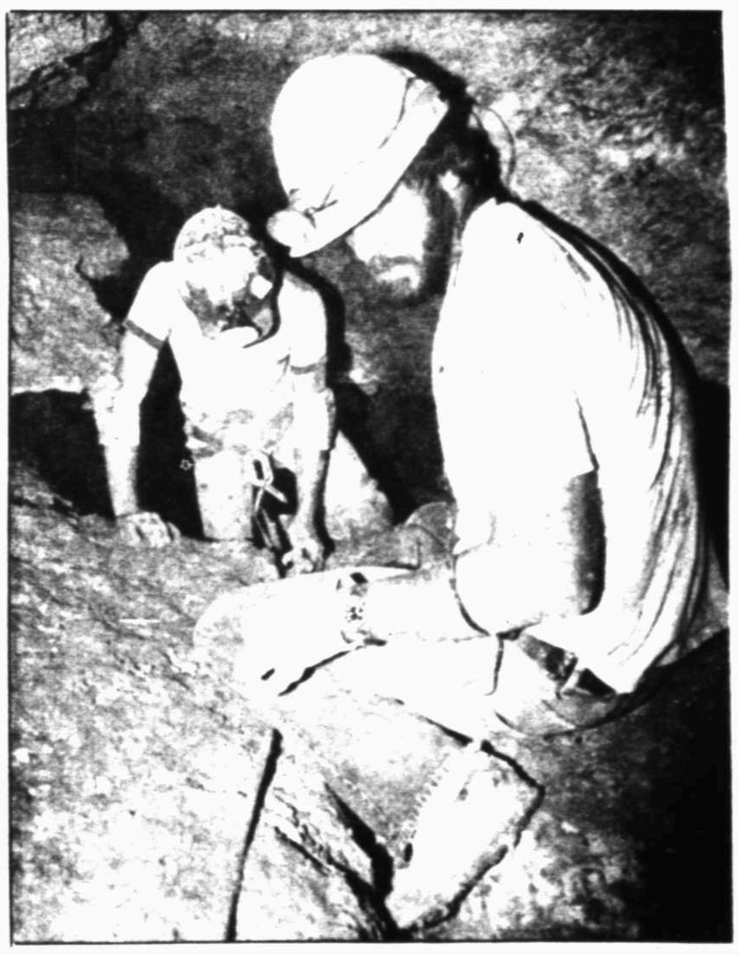
"I think," said Dennis, "the cave goes down those wells and comes up to dry space. We think those are big sumps, maybe a quarter mile long. West of town in Belding they started irrigating in the 1950s and they pumped this spring dry. So we know if the water was coming all the way to Belton, there's probably 10 miles of cave if there's just one tunnel. If it is possible to get into it, we think there's probably 100 miles of cave in all. We don't think there's any big rooms in it until you get to Belding, where we've had drillers tell us there's 90 and 100 foot cavities."

It is even conceivable, said Dennis, that the entire system might equal the 230 miles of cavern which includes Mammoth Cave on Flint Ridge in Kentucky.

In order to determine what lies beneath the watery world of Stephan's Pool, the Haynes have arranged with National Park Service scuba divers to explore the site in October. Then, perhaps, Dennis Haynes' dream of a vast cavern — and townspeople's hopes for a commercial venture — may become reality.

"To us," said Dennis, speaking in behalf of his brothers, "this half-mile of cave or so is pretty great, but we're disappointed we didn't go further. But we think we will. It may take us another year or two, but we think eventually we'll get into the main system."

If so, then a new page in the history of Comanche Springs may have to be added.



Richard Galle of Midland checks Bill Bentley's rope as the latter rappels to the pool of Stephan's well.

Man, son uninjured when pipe bomb lifts automobile

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A pipe bomb exploded when Don Patterson started his car to drive his 4-year-old son to school, but the computer repairman says he has "no idea" why someone planted the device.

The explosion lifted the rear of the small station wagon several feet off the ground and blew fragments of the bomb more than 100 feet.

Miraculously, police said, no one was injured.

"It must be a case of mistaken identity," Patterson said. "I'm a nice guy. I have no idea why this happened."

The blast occurred about 8 a.m. Thursday, right after Patterson and his son, Michael, climbed in the car.

Investigators found no similarities between Thursday's bombing and two car bombings in the area in May, said Robert Ellis of the San Antonio police department's bomb squad.

"There weren't any (similarities)," Ellis said. "We never recovered any part of those devices because the gas tanks went up."

Arson investigator Larry Foraker said the device apparently was triggered when the car moved slightly.

"We have decided it was not attached to the car," he said.

Odessan files suit agains FNB

Odessa businessman James C. Nix has accused Midland's First National Bank of fraud and breaching an oral agreement in a $1 million lawsuit filed Thursday's in 142nd State District Court.

Joining Nix in the suit are Linda L. Nix and L.J.E. Co. Inc.

Nix claims that FNB officer Ned Fogerty made misrepresentations on airplane and automobile loans to him in January 1983, "destroyed" Nix's "outstanding source of financing" for Health Care by "unilaterally" telephoning Texas American Bank and informing that bank that FNB would handle Nix's business, and "wrongfully dishonored" a $5,000 check drawn on Nix's account.

In his suit, Nix is seeking $1 million in punitive damages.

Colleges turning to computer for choosing students

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — Picture this: an admissions officer feeds tens of thousands of college applications into a gigantic computer. Printers chatter, tape drives whir, and out it pops: the class of '87.

At a growing number of colleges — mostly large state schools that count standardized test scores and high school records above all else in considering prospective students — that scene is no longer imaginary.

The computer may be the ideal way to pick college students, some admissions officers believe. They argue that computerized admissions makes life simpler for colleges as well as students, who can more accurately assess their odds of getting into a particular school.

"I'd say that any institution with an enrollment of over 10,000 is using the computer as a tool in the admissions process," says Bruce Shutt, associate vice president for student affairs and registrar at the University of Georgia in Athens.

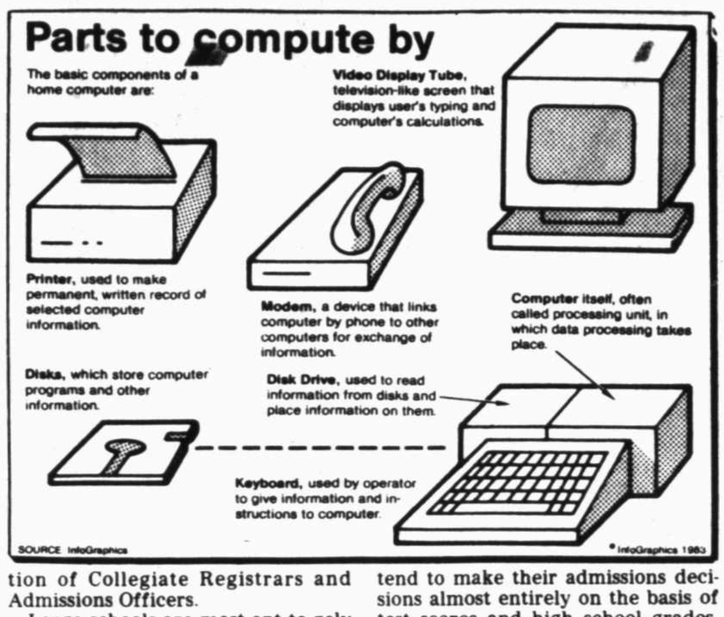
But others fear the machines may pass over "diamonds in the rough," applicants whose high school grades or college entrance exam scores are low but who still have good potential.

"It really isn't fair to the student to use some kind of formula and computer system to make a decision," says Beverly Morse, an assistant director of admissions for Oberlin College in Ohio who also is an expert in computers and admissions processes.

Ms. Morse and others agree the computer may be a good tool for sifting through the mountains of applications. But final decisions on who attends college are best left to humans, they say.

"This especially is pertinent to minority students" who often score below average on standardized college entrance exams, she said. In 1982, reported The College Board, the average combined math and verbal SAT scores by black test takers was 707, as against a national average of 893.

Use of computers to help narrow applicant pools is increasing, though less than 50 percent of the nation's 3,200 colleges currently use them, says Douglas Conner, executive director of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers.



Large schools are most apt to rely heavily on computers, since they tend to make their admissions decisions almost entirely on the basis of test scores and high school grades, said Charles Marshall, the executive director of the National Association of College Admissions Counselors.

Some object that computers can't take everything into account — like differences among high schools, difficulty of high school courses, minority group status, or how eager and enthusiastic a student is.

Computer enthusiasts counter that they've solved much of that problem. At the University of Georgia, for instance, Shutt says they've developed a system of awarding "brownie points" to students who go to tough high schools with solid academic requirements

And the school's admissions computer awards a "differential" to minority students to make up for their often disadvantaged backgrounds.

Automation enthusiasm in admissions offices is a spinoff over the general rush toward computers, Marshall said.

"Right now the computer industry has high visiblity," he said. "I would think as the pendulum swings that people in 10 years or so may say we've lost a humanized touch and want to go back."

The issue was debated recently at Wesleyan University in Middletown, Conn., at a gathering sponsored by the New England Association of College Admissions Counselors.

Said James Rogers, director of admissions for Brown University in Providence, R.I.: "It is just possible that a highly selective college could admit the ideal class by computer programming but it is not practical in the least."

Ivy League colleges, for instance, which painstakingly pick students, would have to computerize enormous amounts of information as well as search for ways to deal with special cases and considerations, he said.

Alumni would also resist total admissions automation at many colleges, especially at schools such as Yale or Harvard attended by generations of the same family, Marshall said.

"I think they would be overly upset about it if final decisions were left up to a computer," he said. And of course, most schools try not to upset their alumni, an important source of contributions.

West expected to show population gain by 2000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The West will climb from being the nation's least populous region to second largest by the turn of the century if current trends continue, the Census Bureau projects.

And it estimates that New York, second since being eclipsed by California in 1970, could drop to fourth most populous state if projected increases in Texas and Florida come to pass.

Continuing the population trends of the last decade, the West and South would see heavy growth in the 1980s and 1990s, the bureau predicted, with only small increases in the North Central states and a decline in the Northeast.

The bureau said California, with an expected 30.6 million people in the year 2000, will remain No. 1. That compares to a 1980 population of 23.7 million.

Moving from third place into second would be Texas, growing from 14.2 million to 20.7 million.

But the big jump would be Florida's climb from seventh to third place with an expected 17.4 million people, up from 9.7 million in the 1980 census.

That would put the Empire State fourth with 14.9 million people, down 2.6 million. And Pennsylvania would be fifth, declining from 11.8 million to 11.2 million.

The projections are based on trends of the 1970s: movement from the north to the Sunbelt, slight increases in births, slight decreases in the death rate.

While those trends are likely to show the general direction of population change, Signe I. Wetrogan of the Census Bureau pointed out that the amount of change may be less than the estimates indicate.

Such trends tend to moderate over time, she said, and so the final outcome may be less than current projections indicate. "I would not think that the magnitude we are projecting is going to appear," she said.

Indeed, there already have been indications of some change in trends. For example, American Demographics magazine reports in its current issue that between 1980 and 1982 New England gained 37,000 people, reversing a trend toward a population loss. Conversely, there was a slight drop in the East-South Central states, which had been gainers.

It remains to be seen whether these changes will continue or turn out to be nothing more than temporary local shifts.

The new projections show the West, sparsely populated throughout most of the nation's history, growing by 22 percent in this decade and 18 percent between 1990 and 2000. That would make it the second most populous region at the turn of the century, with 62.5 million people.

The South is expected to remain the most populous region, growing to 37 percent of the nation by the year 2000, with 98.8 million people.

The North Central states are expected to grow slightly to 59.7 million people by 2000, while the Northeast is expected to decline slightly to 46.4 million.

Florida jumps adopts school reforms, merit pay

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Education reform isn't a fuzzy concept to Ronald Raymer. Returning to high school this year, he found himself on the cutting edge of America's attempt to make schools better.

Instead of attending six class periods, like last year, Raymer has a seven-period schedule at Venice High School so he can earn enough credits to satisfy new state graduation standards.

A junior, Raymer once thought he'd take a light load in his senior year and work full time, but those plans are in doubt because as a senior he must take even more classes.

"In the beginning, I was really mad," says the 16-year-old student, recalling his reaction in the first days back at school. "But I accept it more now."

Across the country, educators are pondering reform as the result of national studies lamenting lax school standards and mediocrity, especially in math and science.

Florida has become a national leader by embracing sweeping changes that will shake up its public schools for the rest of the decade, including:

—UPGRADED CURRICULUM. High school juniors — the class of 1985 — must have 22 credits to graduate, including three years of math and science. Some students have dropped electives such as art or typing to take more math and science.

Florida high school students who want to play sports next spring must earn 1.5 grade-point averages this fall.

—LONGER DAYS. To meet new graduation requirements adopted by the 1983 Florida Legislature, more high school students have seven-period schedules instead of six.

—MERIT PAY. Florida was the first state to approve teacher merit pay after it was recommended by the National Commission on Excellence in Education in April.

A 15-member state council will suggest how to implement merit pay in the 1984-85 school year.

This summer, the state Legislature earmarked $80 million for merit pay and continued funding for extended school days in 1984-85.

—ACADEMIC COMPETITION. It's an old trick in the sales world — divide territory into regions and pit one against the other to inspire better results.

That's exactly what state Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington is trying to do by carving Florida into five school regions. He says scholars should compete like athletes do, and win recognition for success.

—TESTING. Florida's high school literacy test was upheld in federal court in May, paving the way for educators to withhold diplomas from students who cannot pass the exam.

Since 1980, Florida has required would-be teachers to pass a four-part licensing test. Starting next year, college sophomores must pass a new standardized test to qualify for associate degrees.

Education-minded Gov. Bob Graham, who persuaded the 1983 Legislature to raise $233 million in new taxes to help pay for education reforms, hails the changes as "a new era of school accountability."

Not everybody is quite so upbeat.

When Venice High re-opened in late August, young Raymer said he "went to see my counselor the first three days to tell her I didn't like the idea of going to school the extra time."

A small group of parents in Venice asked the American Civil Liberties Union to challenge Florida's new high school graduation requirements.

"The state changed the rules in the middle of the game," protested Venice parent Rosanna Miller, whose son is a high school junior. The ACLU is reviewing the parents' complaints but has not decided whether to pursue the matter.

Drug cash corrupts officials

Public officials at all levels are being corrupted by drug money, says Attorney General William French Smith, adding, "We have reports of rural sheriffs and police officers accepting payments of $50,000 or more just to 'look the other way' while traffickers make a single landing at a makeshift airport.

"The dollar amounts are so great that bribery threatens the very foundations of law and law enforcement."

Book points out pitfalls

NEW YORK (AP) — She's pretty sure it was a joke, but Diane Ravitch this summer found her name in a column by political pundit George F. Will in which he nominated a hypothetical cabinet for the next Democratic president.

She was "named" Education Secretary.

Whether or not she ever lands that job, Mrs. Ravitch, an education historian on the faculty of Columbia Teachers College, has ably tackled a task almost as challenging as a cabinet post: writing a post-war history of American education.

In "The Troubled Crusade: American Education, 1945-1980" (Basic Books, $19.95), to be published next month, Mrs. Ravitch casts a historian's eye on some of the political, social and academic forces that have buffeted the classroom: the loyalty investigations of the early 1950s, the race question, campus radicalism.

But most meaningful — and ominous, in the context of the current debate on educational quality — are her chapters on past reform efforts. In that respect, this history of modern American education makes for depressing reading.

Waves of reform, the book shows, come and go. Today's classroom dogma becomes tomorrow's heresy.

What saddened Mrs. Ravitch most in writing her book, she said in a recent interview, is "a strain of anti-intellectualism" dominating U.S. educational theories.

So-called "progressive education," for instance, took hold in the 1940s through mid-50s, and sought to replace the rigid authority of the typical school with a curriculum that meshed more with student needs and interests. Learning had to be "useful" to be relevant, so that doctrine went.

Lost somewhere along the way was the idea that schools existed primarily to teach "basics" like algebra and history.

Teachers either agreed with the progressive doctrine or they lost their jobs — ironic, observes Mrs. Ravitch, since progressivism was hailed by its backers as open and democratic.

Tire dealers to provide form

A new law requires independent tire dealers to provide each customer with a form containing the identification number of a tire. The customer must then complete the form with his name and address and mail it back to the manufacturer to be sure the tire is registered, in case of recall.

Airline industry still struggling

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the economy is on a sharp rebound, the nation's airlines still are struggling to end three years of record losses, and disappointing results so far have prompted renewed talk of fare wars after the summer travel season.

"In the face of a rather strong economic recovery, the airline industry is not participating," said Wall Street analyst Julius Maldutis, who watches the industry for Salomon Brothers.

The airlines historically have been among the first to prosper when the economy rebounds, but that was the rule before the government stopped regulating fares and air routes, opening the way for stiff competition among carriers.

During the first six months of the year the 11 largest airlines recorded operating losses of nearly $500 million, and some industry analysts say that with traffic not rebounding as strongly as had been expected in the third quarter, the carriers might have trouble breaking even for the year.

The industry had been banking on a solid second quarter followed by a prosperous summer travel season to help them end three years of losses. But on both counts there has been disappointment.

Although a few airlines showed suprising strength in the second quarter, the major carriers earned only $68 million from operations during the three-month period, half the amount in the same quarter in 1982 — a year in which the industry ended up losing $750 million.

The quarter was not without its winners and some startling surprises.

American Airlines, for example, led the pack with an operating profit of $57 million, substantially better than a year earlier. And Pan American World Airways, which has been on the endangered list for more than a year, shocked the industry by parlaying a cost-cutting campaign into a $49.7 million operating profit.

But those performances were more than offset by a $51 million operating loss at Delta Airlines, traditionally one of the most savvy and profitable carriers; a $27.5 million operating loss at struggling Republic Airlines; a $20 million operating deficit at Western Airlines, and worse than expected performances at a number of other carriers.

And in recent weeks industry experts have pulled back their expectations for the current third quarter as travelers appeared to be flying less than anticipated, costs began to edge upward and competition prevented airlines from scrapping discount fares as much as they had wanted. More than 80 percent of all travelers continue to fly on discount tickets, the industry estimates.

"It was thought that this (the third quarter) was the quarter that would show the first evidence of a solid recovery," said Alfred Norling, an airline industry analyst at Kidder, Peabody & Co. "(But) every day it appears that is not going to be true."

The airlines' performance this year has been especially significant because it provides the first evidence of the industry's response to prosperous economic conditions since deregulation.

"This is a new experience for us," said Georges James, vice president and chief economist of the Air Transport Association, the industry trade group.

But while the airlines have been struggling, Wall Street analysts and airline executives say the carriers have turned the corner toward profitiability.

"The industry is showing a recovery, but unfortunately it's not going to be as strong or as robust as was expected generally," said Maldutis.

Robert Joedike, who keeps tabs of the airlines for Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb, sees a "measured turnaround" in progress, but one that could still leave the industry with a $200 million operating loss for the year.

"I'm satisfied we're in a cyclical upturn. It's just not taking off as fast as some people expected," he continued.

James said the ATA is still sticking to its prediction that the airlines would end the year with operating profits of $200 million to $800 million.

But, he added in a recent interview, "The fourth quarter is going to be the one that we have to watch closely to see if we're going to be at the lower or upper end of that range."

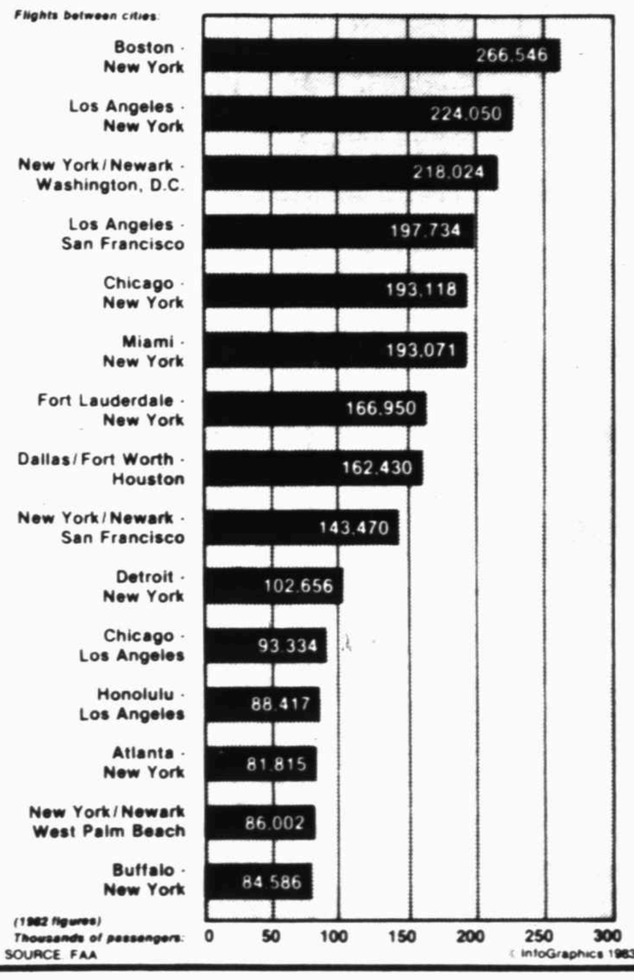
At the same time if fare wars again erupt — as some analysts believe they could — any hope of an industry-wide profit may be wiped out.

"I think the airline managements have their fingers crossed on what will happen (in fare discounts) after Labor Day," said Norling.

Mike Derchin, an airline industry expert at First Boston Corp., said some early signals of a renewal of fare wars already can be found, including recent cuts in Florida fares and Pam Am's lower trans-Atlantic fares.

Busy airline routes

The busiest commercial airline route in the United States -- measured in number of passengers -- is between New York and Boston. More than a quarter million passengers fly between those cities in 12 months. These top 15 routes account for 12.7 percent of the nation's domestic airline passengers.



Junkyard closes

SPANISH FORT, Ala. (AP) — It's more than a home. It's a junkyard with a home in the middle of it: Floyd Peacock's Place.

Peacock died in his sleep last spring. He was 68 years old, and for years had collected antiques and junk purchased at flea markets around the South.

"We did everything together," said Peacock's wife, Effie Peacock, 56. "We built this house. He bought the stuff and I sold it."

They lived by a motto: "What's not on sale, don't buy it."

Between them, they raised eight children. "Four were his, three were mine, and we had one together," she said.

The junk grew up around the house, "where we could watch everything," Mrs. Peacock said.

But now that her husband is dead, she's planning to sell out.

"In November, I'm going to lock it up and write the revenue people and let them know it'll be sold," she said, sitting on the office chair at the showroom entrance.

Peacock's Place was what people called it for lack of an official name. The one-acre holdings include a two-bedroom house, two house trailers, the showroom stacked to the ceiling with "stuff," nearly encircled with outbuildings filled with junk, a pond, a junkyard dog, four junkyard geese and three junkyard cats.

Watchdog apparatus needs to be updated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some officials are concerned that the present government system for keeping watch over banks and similar institutions can not keep pace with the broad upheaval that is reshaping the face of the financial services industry.

As savings and loans and securities firms offer services once in the sole province of banks, critics argue that the watchdog apparatus is too complex and cumbersome to deal effectively with today's problems.

"The regulatory system is badly out of date. It's not working very well," contends William Isaac, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which insures deposits in about 14,800 banks.

Isaac and a dozen other government officials, under the direction of Vice President Bush, are reviewing the regulatory system to see how it can be streamlined. Their recommendations are expected to be completed in October. Congress would have to approve any changes.

Critics cite the large number of federal agencies that now regulate financial institutions — three for banks, and eight that have something to do with the securities markets.

In asking Bush to set up the review panel, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said the way responsibility is divided among the agencies "is highly complex, evoking characterizations such as 'crazy quilt' and 'labyrinth' by critics."

Richard Breeden, the panel's staff director, said the existing apparatus, put together in the 1930s after the collapse of the banking system, has been "spectacularly sucessful." But in a recent interview he ticked off recent changes in the industry, including legislation that lets savings and loans operate more like commercial banks, and added, "Government at some point has to try to catch up."

To try to solve part of the maze, Breeden has come up with one model that would set up two main agencies to monitor banks and savings and loans.

Three offices — the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Treasury's comptroller of the currency — now keep tabs on banks.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board watches over savings and loans, and its arm, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., backs up savers' deposits in S&Ls.

The model — which Breeden emphasized is still on the drawing board and has yet to be accepted by the panel's members — would bring institutions that operate similarly under the same supervisory umbrella.

The bank commission would regulate banks and those savings and loans that have decided to operate a lot like banks.

The community bank board would supervise S&Ls that stay predominantly in the housing finance business. Community banks, generally smaller ones that don't offer such services as international lending or trading in foreign currency, could decide to switch to the bank board.

The panel's staff also is looking at proposals that would create a separate insuring agency into which the two insurance funds for banks and S&Ls would be merged over time.

The National Credit Union Administration still would take care of credit unions.

Other proposals under discussion would shift securities activities the bank and S&L agencies handle to the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Park grows from dream

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario (AP) — From a bluff overlooking Marineland's modern aquariums, spacious animal habitats and the world's longest steel roller coaster, owner John Holer recalls the days 22 years ago when all he had were two water tanks and three seals.

"I trained the first seals. I got in the tank with them," said Holer, whose domain has since grown to 1,000 acres and become the area's main attraction after the famous waterfalls.

Marineland, long known as a game farm with deer, bears and camels to go with performing elephants, porpoises and killer whales, has begun a $120 million expansion into a theme park — a medieval Central European village complete with castle.

Kiddie rides were introduced last year along with a deer park enclosed by a gate tower. Adult rides open this year.

"We spent so far $25 million last year and this year," said Holer, driving his all-terrain vehicle past excavations for a man-made lake, a stadium and the roller coaster, set to open soon.

"When the park is complete, it will be like a little country with the king living in the castle, the tradesmen in the village, the farmers in the fields," he said.

All this is a far cry from the vista that confronted Holer, 46, when he immigrated from Yugoslavia in 1957 and found the job he was promised as a wine chemist had been filled.

Holer worked as a farm laborer, a welder, a hospital orderly and a machinist, learning English along the way. He got his start in show business when he and a fellow worker saw a submarine up close and built a scale model as a ride.

They sold the design and Holer used part of his $7,000 share to lease a small plot of land, on which he built the two water tanks. Thus was born Marineland in 1961.

Holer has personally directed Marineland's expansion.

Sidekicks offer TV new twist

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — Since the earliest days of television, when the Lone Ranger had Tonto and Hopalong Cassidy had Gabby Hayes, male leads have enjoyed the support and companionship of sidekicks — pals with whom they could chew, spit and chase bad guys.

If the networks granted a dramatic series to a woman, such as an Angie Dickinson on "Police Woman," she also was given a male confidante (in that case, Earl Holliman) who offered physical protection and ratings security.

The thinking, then, was that male viewers wouldn't watch women doing "man's work" on their own.

One of the first breakthroughs was "Charlie's Angels," a show that proved popular with men, so long as the women wore bikinis with their holsters. The next major advancement was "Cagney & Lacey," which was about two detectives who shared their cases and their problems.

On Sunday night, HBO takes another small step for womankind with "Between Friends," an original film about two divorced, middle-age women whose camaraderie is unique to the youth-crazy TV world. Give HBO credit for courage, and for the dynamic casting of Elizabeth Taylor and Carol Burnett.

This melancholy film will be seen on HBO seven more times this month. According to executive producer Marian Rees, the three major networks turned down "Between Friends," even with the casting of Miss Taylor and Miss Burnett, claiming the film would not appeal to younger viewers.

The fact is that "Between Friends" will appeal to anybody looking for a thoughtful film about loneliness and the sacrifices and compromises two women make to avoid it. These characters, although not as interesting as Jill Clayburgh's Erica in "An Unmarried Woman," are believable and identifiable in their dilemmas, methods of coping and gradual acceptance of themselves.

Miss Burnett plays Mary Catherine Castelli, who's running away from middle age and running to a number of married men. Known for her comedy roles, Ms. Burnett heats up the screen with a cool sexuality.

Miss Taylor, on the other hand, plays the more matronly Deborah Shapiro, a self-proclaimed Jewish princess and boozer, who hates her empty home, her emptier life and her humiliating relationship with a boorish suitor. Her goal is to meet "an attractive man who's sown his wild oats."

The odd-couple relationship of Miss Burnett and Miss Taylor works, and so does "Between Friends."

Friday, ABC went for the more typical buddy-buddy arrangement in "Lottery." This new series stars Ben Murphy, as the man who dispenses million-dollar checks to international sweepstakes winners, and Marshall Colt, as the IRS agent who arranges for Uncle Sam's fair share.

It's like ABC's other dream shows ("Love Boat" and "Fantasy Island"), with three different fantasy stories unraveling together. While those shows are pure puff, "Lottery" shows signs of being entertaining.

The charm of "Lottery" is that of Murphy playing devilish bon vivant Patrick Flaherty, who sports a bowler on his head and an Irish brogue in his throat. Colt, as Eric Rush, merely stands around and shows his teeth a lot.

Coming at a time when millions of Americans hitch their dreams to paper-thin chances in state lotteries, ABC hopes "Lottery" will be effective counterprogramming against CBS' high-rated "Dallas."

The get-rich-quick theme has been done before on TV. In the 1950s, CBS cashed in on "The Millionaire." In 1979, NBC had the soon-forgotten "Sweepstakes," which also was on Friday nights, and, according to NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff, "made 'Dallas' what it is today."

Jackson subs for Rhode Island as new name for new submarine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The newest nuclear-powered Trident submarine to join the U.S. Navy will be named the USS Henry M. Jackson, in memory of the Democratic senator from Washington who died Sept. 1, the White House announced Friday.

The submarine, the fifth of the Ohio class, will be launched at Groton, Conn., on Oct. 15, and will join the Pacific Fleet in 1985, with home port at Bangor, Wash.

"During his unique career of national leadership," Reagan said of Jackson in a statement, "he was a bipartisan champion of personal freedoms and of a strong national defense. One of his many legislative accomplishments was serving as principal congressional advocate and sponsor of the Trident submarine program."

The submarine, 560 feet long and displacing 18,700 tons when submerged, willl carry 24 Trident I ballistic missiles.

The ship originally was designated the USS Rhode Island. The Navy now intends to name another submarine, of the Los Angelese class, the USS Providence in honor of Rhode Island's capital.

LONDON (AP) — A divorce court judge ordered rock star Robin Gibb of the Bee Gees jailed Friday for talking to reporters about his former wife, but an appeals court later released him and fined him $7,500 instead.

Gibb, 36, was sentenced to two weeks in jail on a charge of contempt of court stemming from a court order forbidding him to tell newspapers about his failed marriage.

Gibb had argued in divorce court that an article about his marriage published in the Scottish Daily Express in May was based on an "emotional outburst" by him.

Gibb's lawyer, Andrew Kirkwood, told the appeals court the case was one of urgency.

"Quite apart from the distress and anxiety Mr. Gibb is feeling at the moment, he has a commitment...to perform a show with his brothers in Verona, Italy, tomorrow," Kirkwood said.

Gibb's ex-wife, Molly, 36, who had brought the action, burst into tears when the jail term was imposed. "I didn't want that," she told reporters.

Gibb and two brothers, Maurice and Barry, formed the Bee Gees in Australia before moving to Britain. They have another brother, Andy, who is not part of the group.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Rock star Ted Nugent is familiar to millions as wielder of a screaming guitar, but in his off time he's more likely to be armed with a fishing rod or a shotgun.

Nugent, who says his greatest thrills are found in duck marshes or fishing for largemouth bass, is honorary state chairman of National Hunting and Fishing Day, to be observed Sept. 24.

"Hunting and fishing are hobbies I not only want my son and daughter to enjoy as much as I do, but they're part of my life I'm proud of," says Nugent, who lives on a farm near Jackson, in southern Michigan.

He is involved with several conservation groups, including Ducks Unlimited, the National Wildlife Federation and Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Actress Celeste Holm has been selected chairwoman of the New Jersey Motion Picture and Television Commission, according to a published report.

Ms. Holm, one of 11 unpaid members of the commission, owns a vacation home in Washington Township, Warren County.

Her appointment as chairwoman is to be announced Sept. 19, when a special "show train" will bring celebrities from New York City to Newark for a reception, The Star-Ledger of Newark reported Friday.

Her movie credits include "Gentlemen's Agreement," starring Gregory Peck; "Snake Pit," starring Olivia deHavilland; "All About Eve," starring Bette Davis and "High Society," starring Bing Crosby, Grace Kelly and Frank Sinatra.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — About 500 screaming fans turned out to welcome the cast of "Happy Days" to Milwaukee, the setting of the series, for a celebration of the show's 10th season.

Al Molinaro, who plays Al; Marion Ross, whose character is Marion Cunningham; Anson Williams, who plays Potsie, and Ted McGinley, who portrays Coach Phillips, were greeted at the airport Thursday night.

GREENVALE, N.Y. (AP) — A bus driver's uniform worn by Jackie Gleason in the 1950s TV series "The Honeymooners" has arrived at C.W. Post College here for display by a fan club headed by a college employee.

Peter Crescenti, co-president of RALPH — the Royal Association for the Longevity and Preservation of the Honeymooners — said Friday that the club paid $650 at auction earlier this year for a uniform worn by Gleason's character, Ralph Kramden.

But the uniform never was turned over and the club sued.

When Gleason heard about the problem, he sent another of the uniforms he wore during the long-running comedy series.

Crescenti said the uniform, a zipper jacket and trousers with a 51-inch waist, will be exhibited around Long Island and next March will be the centerpiece of the first Honeymooner's Convention on the Post campus.

British author takes on Texas-style thriller for size

DALLAS (AP) — Ken Follett topped the best-seller lists with his riveting British spy novel "Eye of the Needle." Now he is well on his way up the non-fiction list with a Texas-style thriller he says even he couldn't have dreamed up.

This real-life story sprung from the mind of Dallas computer multi-millionaire H. Ross Perot, who decided in 1978 to finance a commando raid into revolution-torn Iran to spring two of his employees from Ghasr prison, a jail fortress in the center of Tehran. The mission succeeded, thanks to a well-timed riot that freed 11,000 prisoners.

At a press conference Thursday, Follett told reporters in his clipped British accent the plot of "On Wings of Eagles." As he introduced the characters in the story, he brought their real-life counterparts on stage — the two "$13 million jailbirds," Perot and the employees of his Electronic Data Systems who trained for and helped conduct the secret mission.

"I couldn't have dreamed this up," said Follett, who began the book two years ago at Perot's request.

Perot said he wanted the book written "as a permanent record for the men who did the job."

A major character in the book was not present at the news conference, though his portrait loomed on an easel beside the stage — Lt. Col. Arthur "Bull" Simons died three months after leading Perot's employees safely out of Iran.

Simons, who led a well-executed but ill-timed mission to an empty North Vietnamese POW camp in 1970, was deeply depressed over his wife's death and seized the offer by Perot to lead the secret Iran mission, Follett said.

Follett said he received no guidance from Perot, but said, "We had an agreement that if he felt Simons was portrayed in a wildly inaccurate way, the book would not be published."

"These men sitting here owe their lives to him," Perot said of Simons.

Perot said neither he nor EDS would profit from the book.

The book begins in 1978, but the story began in 1976 when Perot sent William Gaylord and Paul Chiapparone to Iran to oversee a $20 million contract to computerize the country's social security programs.

After the 1978 revolution, the new Iranian government began to allege fraud in the awarding of the contract. The Health Ministry fell $5 million behind on payments. EDS had 131 employees in Iran.

When EDS cancelled the contract and began to take its people out, Gaylord and Chiapparone were arrested and jailed. Their "bail" was $13 million.

The two were "completely innocent," Follett said. "They and the corporation behaved impeccably."

Perot was willing to bail the two out, but because the banking system in Iran had collapsed, it was impossible to get the money into the country, said Follett.

Waving to a crowd of supporters in downtown Santiago on Friday are Gen. Augusto Pinochet, president of Chile, and his wife, Lucia. Celebrations marking the tenth anniversary of Pinochet's rule began Friday and will continue through Sunday.

Alliance breaks its talks with Pinochet

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The political alliance seeking a return to democratic rule in Chile broke off talks with President Augusto Pinochet's military government Friday, one day after a huge anti-regime protest was crushed by waves of police.

Four people were killed, 91 were wounded by gunfire and 1,200 were arrested in Thursday's "National Day of Protest."

Gabriel Valdes, president of the five-party Democratic Alliance, announced Friday that the two-week-old talks with Interior Minister Sergio Onofre Jarpa were being suspended.

"The dialogue is suspended until the government shows it is ready to present a clear agenda and calendar for discussion," Valdes said.

He spoke to reporters as the government mobilized supporters for a downtown rally to counter a series of opposition-led demonstrations that have attracted hundreds of thousands of Chileans.

The pro-government demonstration marked the start of celebrations of Pinochet's 10th anniversary in power Sunday. His government is trying to show there is popular support for a limited transition to civilian rule, one that would keep Pinochet, who seized power in a 1973 coup, in office until at least 1989.

It was the first major pro-government rally attempted in downtown Santiago since 1975. Some government workers were given the day off and bused into town for the demonstration, and slum children were offered free shoes to join the pro-Pinochet parade.

In another development, a judge acting on a government complaint sent labor leader Roldolfo Seguel to jail Friday pending trial on charges of slandering Pinochet. Seguel, in a newspaper interview published here, had called the president "an absurd, blind and fanatic dictator."

Alliance leaders who called Thursday's demonstrations claimed they were stronger than ever. After dark Thursday, the banging of empty pots and other metal appliances — a common expression of protest here — could be heard in every corner of this city of 4 million people.

The opposition had warned it would suspend the talks with Jarpa because of police brutality.

Aquino procession turns into protest

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A glittering candlelight procession in honor of slain opposition leader Benigno Aquino turned into a massive demonstration Friday, with protesters calling for President Ferdinand E. Marcos to resign.

But Marcos, rejecting the demands, indicated he may even seek reelection in 1987.

Holding lighted candles, about 15,000 mourners including Aquino's widow Corazon, marched through the dusk in a peaceful, two-hour procession from the suburban Aquino home to the Roman Catholic Church a mile away, where a Mass was held for Marcos' assassinated rival.

The procession and Mass climaxed nine days of church rites for Aquino who was buried Aug. 31. An estimated 1 million people took part in the funeral procession, which turned into the largest show of anti-Marcos sentiment ever seen on the island nation.

Friday's Mass became an anti-government rally as the marchers unfurled brilliant yellow streamers reading "Marcos resign" and church speakers openly accused the Marcos government of liquidating Aquino.

"I've been telling you for a long time, let's bring him (Marcos) down," Jesuit priest Rev. Antonio Olaguer said in a sermon that brought roars of applause from the thousands packed inside the church.

Olaguer added that if he has one gift to give Marcos on his 66th birthday Sept. 11, it will be to give Marcos "the truth ... that the people are tired of him and want to get rid of him."

But in a taped television interview broadcast Friday, Marcos rejected calls that he resign and hand his powers over to a caretaker government, which would call special elections within a year.

"What do they think the government is, a chicken-house they can change anytime?" Marcos said. Marcos, in power since 1966, said he doesn't want to run for reelection in 1987, but his ruling New Society party insists he do so.

"If healthy, and the party needs me, I will run in 1987, but I would prefer not to," he said.

As the Mass for Aquino ended, a white dove was released and a priest called the gesture a symbol of the country's hope for freedom. The audience cheered as the dove flew over them.

Mrs. Aquino thanked the crowd for the "magnificent tribute" given her husband. Hundreds of fists were raised as the service ended with a song comparing the Philippines to a caged bird.

About six miles away, dozens of riot police were deployed near a bridge leading to the presidential palace as a precaution against student demonstrations. One student was shot dead during a protest near the bridge the day of Aquino's funeral.

Aquino was slain while under military guard as he arrived at the Manila airport Aug. 21 from six years exile in the United States. Soldiers immediately killed his alleged assassin, prompting opposition charges of military complicity in the Aquino slaying. Marcos has denied the charge.

Supreme Court Chief Justice Enrique Fernando, head of a presidential commission investigating the assassination, confirmed Friday he was "temporarily" staying away from the public hearings.

Fernando's decision followed the filing of three petitions in the Supreme Court questioning the impartiality of the commission and of Fernando, whom critics have called a Marcos ally.

Chinese, Soviet leaders talk

PEKING (AP) — Deputy Foreign Minister Mikhail S. Kapitsa of the Soviet Union met Friday with Deputy Foreign Minister Qian Qichen in talks considered a breakthrough in the Soviet-Chinese dialogue.

It was the first time China invited a high-ranking Soviet official since the Chinese-Soviet split 20 years ago. Foreign diplomatic analysts said Kapitsa's visit represents a new channel for exchanging views on international subjects.

There was no report on the meeting and both sides agreed to keep the talks confidential.

Navy battle group departs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A five-ship Navy battle group led by the aircraft carrier Coral Sea ended 25 days of training and operations off the east coast of Central America on Friday and left for the Western Atlantic, the Pentagon announced.

The 62,000-ton carrier, which is the launching platform for more than 70 warplanes, had been on station in the Caribbean Sea since Aug. 16 in the second phase of naval maneuvers intended to demonstrate U.S. support for Central American countries under pressure from leftist guerrillas.

Nicaraguan oil tanks rocketed

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Two small planes flown by rebel exiles rocketed oil tanks at the Pacific port of Corinto Friday, 24 hours after a bomb raid on Managua airport, the Nicaraguan military said.

The army spokesman, Commander Roberto Sanchez, said there was slight damage to oil storage tanks in Corinto, and that the planes tried to destroy a key bridge but were driven away by anti-aircraft fire. There was no report of casualties.

He said the planes were propeller-driven T-28s and that the attacks were mounted by rebel exiles, based either in Honduras or Costa Rica.

Yugoslavia signs credit pact

NEW YORK (AP) — Yugoslav government officials on Friday signed a package of credit agreements with a group of international banks providing $600 million in new credits and the rescheduling of $1.2 billion in debt that was to have fallen due this year.

"This brings us to a better basis for improvement in the Yugoslav economy," said Janko Smole, a member of the Yugoslav federal executive council.

The agreements, involving about 600 financial institutions, were signed at the New York headquarters of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., which heads the creditor group.

Under terms of the agreement, the banks will extend about $600 million in new loans, maturing in six years, to allow Yugoslav companies to purchase raw materials and semifinished goods needed to make products sold for hard currency.

Andrews Mustangs defeat Midland High, 25-20

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

ANDREWS — For the third time in four years, the pesky Class 4A Andrews Mustangs proved to be a thorn in the side of the Midland High Bulldogs as they drove another spike in the 'Dogs' side, 25-20, here Friday night.

It just seems like Andrews never runs out of high powered running quarterbacks. This time is was Bill Morrison who did in the Bulldogs with 113 yards rushing on 20 carries, including three touchdowns.

Running quarterbacks are the vogue in Andrews and Midland High has paid the price while remembering back when Keith Brooks did his thing against the Purple Pack.

The MHS defense went into the game unscored upon, but the eight-man front could do little to stop a ground gobbling Andrews' offense, which was headed by Morrison's patented end sweeps. If he wasn't enough trouble, Mike Harmon added 74 yards and Jeff Tidwell another 71 as the Bulldog eight-man front wilted at the onslaught.

However, this was an exciting game with the verdict much in doubt throughout. The loss by MHS is a blemish on the otherwise outstanding night by MHS quarterback James Welborn, who completed 17 of 34 passes for an amazing 331 yards. The rushing offense, however, contributed only 35 yards.

Andrews ground out the yardage while MHS used its hit quick attack in this game that left a large crowd limp.

"I'm just estatic over the outcome of this game," said David Visentine, Andrews' first-year head coach. "I think turnovers was the difference. Midland had five and we had none. We told the kids that we could beat this team if we could make them turnover the ball on the passing game and we did when we needed it. Still, Midland High played a great game. I'll bet it was a great game to watch if you weren't coaching."

Andrews stunned the Bulldogs with 10 quick first quarter points, scoring the first two times they held the ball. Danny Neighbors toed a 22-yard field goal after a drive from the MHS 48 to the five before officials took away a Morrison touchdown when they declared a dead ball.

Andrews came right back with a 55-yard march in three plays with Morrison getting the final 48 on a break through the right side of a disbelieving MHS defense.

But Welborn showed he too could play big play offense by dialing Allan Foret with a 66-yard pass that set up a two-yard TD by Randall Collins. That left the matter at 10-6, a score that held until halftime.

MHS came out at the half and looked like they might walk away with the win. The Bulldogs marched 62 yards in 11 plays to tak a 13-10 lead. Welborn hit Foret on a 25-yarder and dialed Todd Shiplet twice for 21 yards before hitting Foret for the 11-yard payoff. Foret caught eight passes for 183 yards and Shiplet had four for 90 in an awesome aerial circus.

But Andrews wouldn't lay down. Morrison dialed Chris McWilliams for a 53-yard pass and then covered the final six himself to put Andrews back in front, 16-13.

Andrews' Zandy Willems then picked off a Welborn pass to set up a 35-yard field goal by Richard Ruiz and Collins fumbled a completed pass with Destry Simpson jumping on the ball at the MHS 18 to set up Morrison's two-yard TD run for a 25-13 lead. It was in between those scores when MHS got to the Andrews 18 before Willems sacked Welborn for a 10-yard loss on second down to quiet the Bulldogs in an effort to regain the lead.

Midland High did show some spunk by marching 50 yards with 2:24 still left in the game. Welborn hit Shiplet with a nine-yard passing score for the final margin, but Andrews put the game away with two first downs to run out the clock.

Andrews is now 2-0 on the year while MHS is 1-1. The Bulldogs seem to play better against 5A powers than the 4A powers and the bad news is that MHS hosts 4A power Lubbock Estacado Thursday at Memorial Stadium, a team they lost to 27-0 last year. District play and Odessa Permian may be a break for the Bulldogs.

Rebs strike early, often to romp, 31-0

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Isaac Garnett rushed for 134 yards and one touchdown Friday night as the Midland Lee Rebels dominated their non-district ball game against Monahans at Memorial Stadium for a 31-0 victory and a 2-0 season record.

The Rebels struck quickly when Nicky Tomlin recovered a Monahans opening kickoff fumble on the Loboes 16-yard line. Three plays later Walter Jones scored and Craig Kamradt kicked the extra point to give Lee all the points it would need against District 2-4A Monahans. Only 1:39 had expired from the clock.

Lee pounded out yardage all night, both short and long to completely overwelm the Loboe defense. After Kamradt kicked a 39-yard field goal at the end of the first quarter to give Lee a 10-0 lead, Garnett broke free up the middle for a 72 yard touchdown in the second quarter; John Abbott scored with 5:23 left in the fourth on a fiveyard run; Randy Ellis, on his only carry of the game, busted a second long-gainer that covered 60 yards for the final TD. Kamradt was perfect on the extra point kicks.

On those two long runs, which accounted for more than half of Lee's 238 yards rushing, Coach Spike Dykes gave credit to both the runners and blockers.

"They (Garnett and Ellis) really had nice holes," said Dykes. "Those were well blocked plays with good down-field blocking. Both of them did a real fine job of running, also."

Though Kamradt was perfect on the PAT kicks and made one of two field goals, Dykes felt his team's kicking game could still use some improvement.

"We fumbled a punt. We can't afford to do that," said Dykes. "Certainly that's on the negative side. We played some areas of the kicking game pretty good though. We recovered a fumble on a kickoff that set up our first touchdown and Craig did a good job of kicking off."

Several of Kamradt's kickoffs went into the end zone to take away any chance Monahans had of running back the ball.

"They've just got an outstanding football team," said Monahans coach Gary Gains. "They won the kicking game, no question. That was a big part of the first half — field position and the kicking game."

Offensively, Dykes would like to see some improvement.

"Well, we were pleased in some areas," he said. "We certainly were inconsistent in some areas offensively. We really have to work on developing some degree of consistency."

DEFENSIVELY, THE Rebels were all over the Loboes from the word go. Monahans managed only 34 yards rushing in the first half on 18 carries (35-of-92 for the game) and 30 yards passing in a 2-of-7 (one interception) first half by quarterback Ryan Roark. He finished the game 5-of-14 with two interceptions and only 53 yards.

Andre Mayfield and Nicky Tomlin were two keys for the Rebels. Mayfield intercepted one of Roark's passes and fell on a fourth quarter fumble while Tomlin recovered two fumbles. Tracy Sherman also picked up a fumble and Michael Wallace snagged an interception.

"I thought we played a good defensive ball game, I sure did," said Dykes. "We were very consistent and really had great pursuit."

And about the shutout the Rebel D scored: "That's the only goal we have, keep them from scoring."

"Them", as in anybody unlucky enough to be on the other side of the ball.

Next week, "them" will be the El Paso Eastwood Troopers, a team which Monahans defeated last week, 16-12.

"We've got El Paso Eastwood next week and we need to get after them now," said Dykes. "We have to start improving in the areas where we were a little inconsistant."

TCU's Wacker gets baptism in Division I

By Associated Press

Jim Wacker gets his baptism into NCAA Division I football Saturday night when his Texas Christian Horned Frogs open their 1983 season with Kansas in Fort Worth.

Wacker won back-to-back Division II national championships at Southwest Texas State before going to TCU, but the Frogs haven't had a winning season in 12 years.

In Southwest Conference games Saturday afternoon, Texas Tech visits Air Force on regional television and Tulsa is at Arkansas. Saturday night, Minnesota is at Rice, Southern Methodist plays Grambling in Shreveport, La., Houston hosts Miami, Fla., and Baylor hosts Brigham Young.

Kansas Coach Mike Gottfried had his debut with the Jayhawks ruined last week by Northern Illinois, which won 37-34 with a late field goal.

Kansas' offense is led by quarterback Frank Seurer, who went 17-for-31 for 172 yards passing last week.

Wacker has reworked the Frog offense around quarterback Anthony Gulley and running backs Kenneth Davis and Egypt Allen.

No. 15 SMU, which defeated Grambling 59-27 two years ago, opened its season last week with a 24-6 victory over Louisville to extend the nation's longest unbeaten streak to 17 games.

SMU running backs Reggie Dupard and Gary Hashaway rushed for 171 yards against Louisville.

Tiger Coach Eddie Robinson begins his 40th year at Grambling with a record of 305-101-13.

Tech is trying to win its first opener since 1980. The Red Raiders beat Air Force last year 31-30.

The Raiders are returning quarterback Jim Hart and tailback Robert Lewis from last year's 40-7 team that lost heartbreakers to Washington and SMU, which were ranked No. 1 and No. 2 in the country at the time.

The Falcons, 8-5 last year including upsets over Brigham Young and Notre Dame and a Hall of Fame Bowl victory over Vanderbilt, kicked off their season with a 34-13 romp over Colorado State.

Tulsa's only loss last year was to Arkansas, 38-0. The Hurricane, which is coming off a 34-9 victory over San Diego State, is led by freshman quarterback Steve Gage, who ran 40 yards for one touchdown and passed for another, and senior Michael Gunter, who ran for 100 yards and two touchdowns.

The Razorbacks lost the heart of the 1982 team that defeated Florida 28-24 in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Rice is coming off a lopsided 45-14 loss to Houston Sept. 1. Minnesota won its first three starts last year, but failed to win again.

Houston led the SWC in four of six team categories after the first week.

Donald Jordan leads the SWC in rushing with 138 yards and 9.9-yard-per-carry average, following touchdown runs of 47 and 45 yards against Rice.

Miami opened last week with a 28-3 loss to Florida.

Baylor opens its season against a team with an offense that is traditionally one of the best in the nation. Baylor has rupning back Alfred Anderson back, but sophomore Tom Muecke and freshman Cody Carlson were still battling at quarterback.

Stanton loses a toughie

STANTON — The Stanton Battlin' Buffaloes lost their home opener to Coahoma in a tough game, 13-11.

Stanton drew first blood with a 27 yard field goal from Bobby Almager late in the first quarter. Coahoma, 1-1, retaliated in the second quarter with a touchdown drive capped by Todd Engels scoring run of two yards.

Coahoma, 8-0 losers to Kermit last week in their debut, spread the margin to ten with another score. The score came when fullback Richard Seals burst over from 5 yards out. Roger Sanders' point after was no good.

Stanton's Rocky Barnes put the game within reach after scoring late in the fourth quarter. Barnes, a halfback in the Stanton wishbone, scored from seven yards out with 2:31 remaining in the game. The Buffs couldn't get the ball back and their record dropped to 1-1.

Stanton totaled 155 yards rushing and added another 94 passing to completely dominate the statistics. Coahoma managed a measly 107 yards on the ground and 47 passing. Stanton also outgained the Bulldogs in first downs, 16-9.

Stanton travels to Crane next week for a date with the unbeaten Golden Cranes.

Dodge out with injury

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas quarterback Todd Dodge suffered a shoulder separation in a scrimmage Friday and is "pretty likely" to miss the Longhorns' opening game Sept. 17 against Auburn, coach Fred Akers said.

"It will be a matter of when he can stand the pain," said Akers. "It depends on the individual and how quickly he mends."

The injury was to the right-handed Dodge's left shoulder. He was sent to the University of Texas Health Center Friday night.

While Akers had not yet named a starting quarterback for the 1983 season, sources said Dodge was expected to get the job. The Port Arthur junior started the Longhorns' Sun Bowl game last year after starter Robert Brewer was injured.

Akers also was considering veteran Rick McIvor and junior Rob Moerschell.

Chris, Martina meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd figured all the pressure in the United States Open Tennis women's championship match rested on the shoulders of Martina Navratilova.

"I've won the Open six times," reasoned Lloyd. "Martina's never won it. Nerves might enter into it."

Navratilova and Lloyd set up today's dream match of the No. 1 and No. 2 seeds for the Open title with convincing straight-set victories Friday. Navratilova defeated her close friend and doubles partner, Pam Shriver, 6-2, 6-1 and Lloyd eliminated Jo Durie of Britain 6-4, 6-4.

In today's men's semifinals, defending champion and third-seeded Jimmy Connors, seeking a landmark 100th career singles title, faced No. 16 Bill Scanlon, and No. 2 Ivan Lendl, who had not dropped a single set in the tournament, went against No. 9 Jimmy Arias.

Navratilova, beaten only once this year, continued her systematic destruction of opponents. She needed just 55 minutes to finish Shriver, continuing her string of straight-set victories and matches that lasted less than one hour.

LLOYD HAD a tougher path to the championship match than Navratilova. Although she, too, had not lost a set, she experienced more difficulty with opponents than Martina. Against Durie, she was up 6-4, 5-1 and then dropped three straight games before finishing off the match.

"It's harder every year mentally," Lloyd said. "The girls are playing a lot better. I don't have a lot of love matches to the finals like I used to."

Going into today's confrontation, Lloyd held a 30-23 career edge over Navratilova, but much of that margin was established early in Martina's career when she was less of a force in women's tennis. Navratilova had won their last five meetings, eight of the last nine and 11 of the last 14 since 1981.

Their rivalry has built since their first meeting in 1973 when Navratilova was a 17-year-old just beginning her pro career and Lloyd was emerging as the top woman's player on the circuit. Despite all the matches she's played since then, Martina remembers that first one, right down to the scores.

"It was in Akron, Ohio, on the USTA circuit. I played her in the first round and I lost 7-6, 6-3. It was 5-4 in the tiebreaker.

"From the first match on, I knew that I could beat her. I just wasn't good enough back then yet. I'm sure she didn't expect a tough match. I always thought it was a matter of time, that eventually, I would win."

By 1975, Navratilova had advanced her game to the point where she reached the semifinals of the Open. There, waiting for her, was Lloyd, en route to the first of her six championships in this tournament.

"I lost it on clay," said Martina. "It was 3 and 4 (actually 4 and 4). She just beat me. She ran me down. I couldn't keep up with her on clay. I was about 30 pounds heavier. She played a better match."

Estacado tops Steers

LUBBOCK—Lubbock Estacado decked Big Spring, now 1-1, with a 15-point final period to beat the 4-5A Steers, 21-14, in a non-district football game. Big Spring struck on a 19-yard pass from Mark Johnson to Jay Pirkle with 4:11 left in the game to make it close, but Estacado recovered the ensuing onsides kick and ran out the clock.

Terry Upshaw's two TDs and 173 yards rushing led Estacado, but Wally Owens' recovery of a blocked punt provided the winning touchdown with 7:52 left.

Yanks top Birds, 5-3

From wire reports

NEW YORK — Graig Nettles belted a tie-breaking two-run homer in the eighth inning as the New York Yankees beat Baltimore 5-23.

Nettles, who also had two doubles, drilled a 2-2 pitch from Scott McGregor into the right-field seats for his 19th home run. McGregor, 17-6, took a 13-0 record in road games this season into the matchup.

The loss, before 47,221 fans, came in the opener of a four-game series and trimmed Baltimore's lead in the American League East to four games over the second-place Yankees. Baltimore had won 13 of its last 15 games.

Ron Guidry, 18-8, allowed seven hits while striking out five and walking two in his 17th complete game of the season.

The Orioles tied it in the eighth inning on Gary Roenicke's two-run homer, his 17th, with two outs.

White Sox 11, Angels 0

CHICAGO — Britt Burns hurled a one-hitter and Carlton Fisk, Tom Paciorek and Greg Luzinski hit successive homers to lead the rampaging Chicago White Sox to an 11-0 victory over California.

Burns, 9-9, retired the first 20 batters before Mike Brown singled with two out in the seventh as Chicago won its fifth straight.

Fisk hit his 25th homer off loser Tommy John, 10-12 in the first. Paciorek hit the next pitch into the center-field bullpen for his eighth homer and Luzinski followed suit with his 29th homer on a 1-2 pitch.

Red Sox 6, Indians 4

CLEVELAND — Dave Stapleton drove in four runs with a homer and single, and Dwight Evans homered and scored three runs as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians 6-4 Friday night.

Bob Stanley blanked the Indians on three hits over the final three innings for his 28th save.

Boston jumped to a 4-0 lead in the third against loser Neal Heaton, 10-5, as Stapleton hit his ninth homer.

Mike Fischlin hit his first major-league home run into the left field seats leading off the Indians fifth. Franco then slapped a two-out single before Thornton followed with his 16th homer, cutting the Red Sox lead to 5-4.

Evans, who had four hits, gave Boston an insurance run in the seventh against reliever Ernie Camacho with his 21st homer.

A's 7, Blue Jays 5

TORONTO — Mike Heath's RBI single capped a three-run Oakland rally in the eighth inning as the A's beat Toronto, 7-5.

Losing 5-4, the A's tied the game in the eighth on Dan Meyer's RBI double. One out later, Heath singled to score the tie-breaking run and chase Jim Clancy, 9-15.

Steve McCatty, 6-7, was the winner.

Twins 7, Royals 6

MINNEAPOLIS — Kent Hrbek led off the 10th inning with his second home run of the game to give the Minnesota Twins a 7-6 win over the Kansas City Royals.

Hrbek's two-run homer with two out in the third gave the Twins a 5-4 lead and Minnesota boosted its advantage to two runs in the sixth inning on Lenny Faedo's sacrifice fly.

Seaver, Orosco muffle Montreal

MONTREAL — Tom Seaver and Jesse Orosco combined on a six-hitter and Keith Hernandez's seventh-inning single drove home Mookie Wilson with the tie-breaking run as New York beat Montreal, 5-4, halting the Expos' four-game win streak.

Keith Hernandez singled to break a 3-3 tie and George Foster's rbi singled drove in an insurance run in the ninth.

But Seaver, 8-13, walked Gary Carter to open the ninth, ending a streak of 12 in a row. With one out, consecutive singles by Terry Francona and pinch-hitter Brad Mills scored Carter, bringing in Orosco, who struck out Jim Wohlford and Tim Raines to record his 16th save.

Phillies 4, Pirates 3

PITTSBURGH — Joe Lefebvre's two-out single in the top of the 13th scored winning pitcher Willie Hernandez with the winning run as Philadelphia edged Pittsburgh 4-3 to take over first place in the National League East.

The Phillies' victory lead by a half game over the Expos.

Hernandez, 6-4, held the Pirates hitless over the final three innings and started the Phillies' 13th-inning rally with an infield single off the glove of loser Jim Bibby, 4-12. Bibby then walked Mike Schmidt on a 3-2 pitch and wild-pitched Hernandez to third before Lefebvre lined a single into left field.

The Pirates, losing for the fifth time in their last six games, had gained a 3-3 tie in the eighth on solo home runs by Dave Parker and Tony Pena, the 11th for each, to deny starter Steve Carlton his 298th career victory. Carlton has failed to win in his last five starts, including four losses.

Padres 8, Reds 2

SAN DIEGO — Tony Gwynn extended his hitting streak to 19 games with a two-run single and Andy Hawkins pitched a four-hitter as the San Diego Padres defeated the Cincinnati Reds 8-2 Friday night.

Hawkins, 4-6, won for the first time since being recalled from Las Vegas of the Pacific Coast League August 27. The loser was Charlie Puleo, 5-10, a last-minute replacement when Joe Price's shoulder stiffened while he warmed up.

Dann Bilardello gave the Reds a 1-0 lead when he clubbed his second home run leading off the top of the fifth.

But in the bottom of the inning, Gwynn singled with the bases loaded to put the Padres on top and Kevin McReyn...lds' sacrifice fly made it 3-1.

San Diego put the game away with a four-run sixth inning highlighted by Bobby Brown's three-run homer off reliever Bill Scherrer. McReynolds doubled in the other run of the inning.

Dodgers 3, Braves 2

LOS ANGELES — Alejandro Pena limited Atlanta to three hits over the first seven innings and put Los Angeles ahead to stay with a two-out, two-run single in the second inning Friday night as the Dodgers topped the Braves 3-2, surviving a hectic top of the ninth.

The victory in the opener of an important three-game series extended the first-place Dodgers' lead over the Braves to three games in the National League West. Pena, 11-6, walked two and struck out six.

Wink defeats Rangers, 26-6

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

GREENWOOD— The Wink Wildcats lost a lot of believers after last week's 12-7 squeaker past Van Horn.

Wink has been rated as high as number one in Texas Class A football. Friday they played up to the lofty ranking by blasting Greenwood, 26-6.

The Wildcats won by 20 points, but the game was much closer. Greenwood's Rangers, 0-2, seemed to put things together offensively late in the first half after driving 43 yards and scoring on a fourth and goal situation from the Wink six. Greenwood got the tally when sophomore quarterback Chad Longley hit david Skinner in the left corner. Skinner's diving catch cut the Wink lead to 13-6. A penalty on the point after made Scott Goff miss a second try from about 35 yards.

Greenwood carried that momentum out on the field in the second half. After taking the ball on the 20, Ranger fullback Roger Smith took charge.

Smith gained 42 yards on four carries to put Greenwood in business at the Wildcat 40. Then Longley overthrew Skinner at the 20, and Wink's Shashi Quiroz intercepted.

The Wildcats quickly took advantage of the error. Wink drove 61 yards to score, the key play coming on a 44-yard bomb from Wink quarterback Travis Price to Don Jacobsen. Price barely escaped heavy pressure from Randall Morgan to get the pass off, and Jacobsen got the jump deep on Keith Dove.

It was so close a play, the kind that number one ranked teams get and the type Greenwood almost made. The Rangers came that close on many occasions, but could not get the big one.

"We didn't make our big play," explained Ranger coach Joe Longley. "But by playing good teams we'll get confidence. They know they're getting better."

Smith was superb. A move-in from Ballinger, he did a workhorse job Friday, carrying 32 times for 165 yards. 120 of those came in the second half, but Greenwood could not break the goal line.

Wink overcame the slow start and gradually wore down the smaller Rangers. In all, Wildact ballcarriers had 220 yards on 34 tries. Leading the way was the tandem of Jacobsen and Price. Jacobsen had 10 carries for 64 yards, and caught four Price passes good for 72 yards. Jacobsen scored on a 32-yard burst up the middle in the second quarter. Price had 83 yards on nine carries, scored twice, and hit six of 16 passes for 93 yards.

"We weren't ready last week," said Wink's Jacobsen. "We didn't have the killer instinct. We knew Greenwood was tough.

"Our line put it together."

The Wink line did not allow a sack of Price all night.

Wildcat coach Robin Byrd noticed the change and felt the real Wink stood up Friday. "After last week's game I think we embarrassed ourselves. The kids did an excellent job getting ready. Greenwood is a real good opponent."

The first series of the third quarter for each team proved critical, and Byrd emphasized the importance of the start of the second half to his team. After Greenwood's intercepted pass on their first drive, wink scored with the turnover.

"We felt like, to win, we'd have to get the ball back as quickly as we could and then score," said Byrd of his halftime strategy. It worked. After Wink went up 19-6, Greenwood ran only three plays and punted. Wink sewed the game up by going 55 yards for the clincher, with Price scoring on a fourth and three sweep from the 15.

Smith summed up the Wildcats' team in two words: "They're good."

Wink visits Jal, N.M. next Friday, and Greenwood visits another heavyweight, Iraan.

Most of Top 20 see first action today

By Associated Press

Most of the nation's Top Twenty teams and traditional powers will be in action today, but Saturday marks the start of a new era in college football.

The winningest coach ever, the late Paul "Bear" Bryant, has bequeathed Alabama's tradition of excellence to 41-year-old Ray Perkins, who gets his first taste of what it's like to follow a legend when the 14th-ranked Crimson Tide meets Georgia Tech at Birmingham's Legion Field.

"I guess I'm holding up all right," says Perkins. "It's only the biggest game of my life."

Six members of the Associated Press Top Ten — runner-up Oklahoma, No. 4 Auburn, fifth-ranked Notre Dame, No. 6 Michigan, seventh-rated Ohio State and No. 9 Southern California — make their 1983 debuts, while top-ranked Nebraska, a 44-6 winner over Penn State in the inaugural Kickoff Classic almost two weeks ago, plays host to Wyoming.

Meanwhile, Oklahoma visits Stanford, Auburn entertains Southern Mississippi, Notre Dame is at Purdue, Michigan hosts Washington State, Ohio State entertains Oregon and Southern Cal is at home against No. 18 Florida. The only other pairing of Top Twenty teams finds No. 12 Florida State at No. 13 LSU.

Elsewhere, eighth-ranked North Carolina entertains Memphis State, Utah is at No. 11 Arizona for a night game, No. 15 Southern Methodist meets Grambling under the lights in Shreveport, No. 16 Iowa is at Iowa State, No. 17 Maryland at Vanderbilt, No. 19 Washington at Northwestern and Cincinnati at No. 20 Penn State. Third-ranked Texas and No. 10 Georgia are not scheduled.

Perkins' debut as Bryant's successor finds him coaching against an old Baltimore Colt teammate and close friend, Bill Curry.

"All of that will not matter once we line up for the kickoff," says Curry. "We'll both be trying to win the game as hard as we can. But it will be good to see Ray again. He's been a good friend for a long time.

"There will be a great deal of extra attention on this game because of Ray replacing Coach Bryant. Our objective will be to concentrate on the game itself and not the hoopla surrounding it."

Alabama is an 18-point favorite, but Perkins, sounding pessimistic in the best Bryant tradition, says he expects a tough game.

Oklahoma is opening on the road for the first time since 1978 when the Sooners beat Stanford 35-29. However, three years ago, Oklahoma visited Stanford, led by John Elway, and was upset 31-14.

Elway is gone, but Oklahoma is leery of any Stanford quarterback. In fact, the Sooners have displayed a propensity for letting opposing passers enjoy big games.

"It's doubtful we could have picked a tougher team to open against," says Coach Barry Switzer. "We have had trouble in the past with teams that throw the ball as well as Stanford does. I hope we remember what happened a year ago when West Virginia riddled us so badly. We certainly cannot afford to make a lot of mistakes and still win. John Elway may be gone, but Stanford always has excellent, skilled athletes and we fully expect them to have quality in their passing game."

At the controls will be 5-foot-10 senior Steve Cottrell, who threw only nine passes last season. Cottrell's main claim to fame was pitching Stanford to its lone victory in the College Baseball World Series last June against James Madison.

Gators injured in bus accident

From wire reports

WELSH, La. — A chartered bus carrying the Texas League Beaumont Gators to a game in Jackson, Miss., crashed into a truck Friday, killing the bus driver and injuring five people, state police said.

The bus struck the rear of the truck on Interstate 10 near here.

"The bus was just going faster than the truck," a state trooper said. "We have no idea what the speed of either vehicle was."

Hebert identified the dead bus driver as Edward W. Sheppard, 44, of Huffman, Texas.

The injured were truck driver Joseph LeBlanc of Lake Arthur, La., Steven Garcia of Pleasantine, Calif., Willie Hardwick of Berkeley, Calif., and Walt Vanderbush of Beaumont.

The owner of the Jackson Mets, Mississippi state Sen. Con Maloney, said he had been aboard the team bus shortly before it left Jackson. He said the team was chartering a new bus because its old one was no longer in good shape.

Jan's 68 sets pace

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Jan Stephenson fired a 4-under-par 68 to take a one-shot lead after Friday's opening round of the $150,000 Portland Ping LPGA golf tournament.

Stephenson, trying to become the first player on the tour to win her fourth tournament of the year, pulled into the lead with three consecutive long birdie putts midway through her round.

She wound up with six birdies and two bogeys on the par-72, 6,233-yard course at the Columbia-Edgewater Country Club.

Catherine Duggan of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Leann Cassaday of Long Beach, Calif., were one shot back at 3-under-par 69. Neither has won on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

The Australian-born Stephenson, who lives in Ft. Worth, Texas, played the back nine holes first. She sank a 25-foot birdie putt on the par-4 372-yard 18th hole after an earlier birdie on the 11th hole.

The 31-year-old U.S. Open champ followed with 15-foot birdie putts on the first and second holes, and added birdies on the par-5 fifth and seventh holes. She recorded bogeys on the 17th and fourth, both par-4 holes.

"I've been complaining about my putting for three months," Stephenson said, "but I putted very well today."

She doesn't anticipate any spectacular rounds in the 54-hole tournament, which continues through Sunday.

"The course is too tough," she said. "There's no way the winning score will be way under par."

Stephenson is fourth on the 1983 LPGA earnings list with $178,000. First prize in this tournament is worth $22,500.

Mahaffey retains lead in Boston

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — John Mahaffey surrendered the lead while waiting to tee off and then regained it with an afternoon charge Friday in the second round of the $350,000 Bank of Boston Golf Classic.

Mahaffey, who shared the first-round lead at 65 with J.C. Snead, added a 2-under par 69 for a 36-hole total of 134 and a one-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the 72-hole event at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

While Snead faltered with a 2-over par-73 for 138, Leonard Thompson and Fuzzy Zoeller moved into a tie for second. Thompson added a 65 to his opening 70 for 135, while Zoeller fired a 68 to go with a 67.

Unheralded Sammy Rachels, who has undergone three operations for disc problems in his lower back since 1978, and Wayne Levi were tied at 136, one stroke ahead of Mark McCumber rookie John McComish.

Rachels posted his second consecutive 68, while Levi, the 1980 winner here, slipped to a 70 after an opening 66.

Zoeller took the lead among early second-round finishers, going 7-under-par despite bogeys on the 11th and 12th holes when "I fell asleep."

Thompson pulled into a tie, but Mahaffey carded birdies on three of his last five holes to shoot past his chief rivals.

"It was a very shaky 69," said Mahaffey, the 1978 PGA champion and winner here now looking for his first victory in two years.

"I three-putted for a bogey on my first hole and that didn't help," he said. "I might have been pressing at the start, but I finally settled down and just played."

Fannin Terrace Baptist Church sponsoring Swindoll film series

The first in a 6-part film series by Charles Swindoll will be shown Sunday at 7 p.m. at Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, 2800 Mogford St.

Based on his book, "Strengthening your Grip," the series speaks to all Christians about making the right choices, enjoying leisure without guilt, overcoming negative thinking, living adventurously as the years advance, taking godliness seriously and establishing a biblical attitude toward authority.

This Sunday's film, "Attention Workaholics (and Churchaholics)," is a look at the book of Genesis for insight into God's view of work and pleasure. The film is 50 minutes long.

Swindoll shows that leisure is not only biblically justified, but required for the growth of the whole person. For the compulsive "churchaholic" he offers advice on how and when to say no.

Five films will be shown Sundays at 7 p.m. through Oct. 16.

The public is invited to attend. A nursery will be provided.

HAVE YOU EVER PLAYED "HIDE AND SEEK?"

When children play, they like to find a good hiding place. But they are not happy until they are found. If you're still hiding from God, how about opening yourself to the light of His Word and the warmth of His happiness at Northwestern Baptist Church?

First Day at State

Going to college has been part of their plans and their families' for a long time. So this is a time of realization . . . the fulfillment of a cherished hope.

Yet there are moments of wondering what the future holds. Are they ready for the immediate challenges . . . and for those further down the future.

Preparation for secular education should begin with religious education. It should begin early. It should continue faithfully every week.

Our churches and synagogues provide the spiritual and moral training our youth need as they get ready for their opportunities and responsibilities in tomorrow's world.

religion in brief

Unitarians back on regular schedule

The Unitarian Universalist Church, 3301 Neely St., returns to its regular Sunday schedule this month.

Religious education classes and Adult Forum will begin at 10 a.m. The church provides religious education classes for all ages. The Adult Forum presents issues of local, social and religious concern, followed by general discussion. This Sunday, the subject of Adult Forum will be religious education in the UU Church.

Worship begins at 11 a.m. Nursery and Second Hour activities are available for children. This Sunday, however, is a Family Sunday with children joining their parents for the service. The sermon topic is "Spiritual Renewal and Deep Sea Tuna Fishing."

The church's minister, the Rev. Daniel Budd, invites those interested to attend.

Midlander to be ordained in Hurst

Robin Shaffer Heckathorne, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Heckathorne of Midland, will be ordained as a minister in the Presbyterian Church, USA, during services at St. Philip Presbyterian Church, Hurst, Sunday at 11 a.m. The Rev. Matthew Lynn, formerly minister at First Presbyterian, Midland, is the special speaker for the service.

He will serve as associate pastor at St. Philip.

A 1973 graduate of Midland High School, Heckathorne received his undergraduate degree from Austin College, Sherman, and his masters of divinity degree from Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Austin, this May.

He served as intern pastor at St. Luke's Presbyterian Church in Houston and at New England Memorial Hospital, Boston, Mass.

Kelview Heights to study issues

"Issues for the Eighties," biblical principles concerning abortion, ERA, pornography and homosexuality, as well as other issues, will be the basis of study for all the adult Sunday School classes at Kelview Heights Baptist Church, 407 W. Alta Ave.

Sunday School is held at 10 a.m.

Graded "Childrens Choirs" will begin Sunday at 5:45 p.m. Choir members will learn about music theory and how to read music. The choirs will begin work on a Christmas program with the Junior Choir presenting the Christmas musical, "A Certain Small Shepherd."

The church's pastor, the Rev. Frank Johnson, invites interested parties to participate in these programs this fall.

'On Track' debuts on KKKK-FM

A new radio program of contemporary Christian music, "On Track," debuts on KKKK-FM today at 10:06 p.m.

The 30-minute show, produced and distributed by the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission, combines an interview and short religious message with the music of top performers of religious rock.

"Contemporary Christian music is fast gaining popularity across the country," states Jack Norris, who produces this show for RTVC. "Several secular recording companies recently have started gospel music labels. Statistics show that gospel and country have gained more in record sales than any other types of music."

Fannin Terrace dedicates wing

A church-wide celebration dedicating the new education wing at Fannin Terrace Baptist Church will be held today beginning at 2 p.m.

Recreation on the church grounds, 2800 Mogford St., is planned from 2 to 3:30 p.m. with relay races and other contests scheduled between 3:30 and 6 p.m.

The church will provide meat and drinks for the convered dish dinner at 5 p.m. Those attending are asked to bring a vegetable, salad or dessert dish.

Following the meal, a skit, "2001: A Church Oddity," will be presented by members of the church.

The public is invited to attend. A nursery will be provided.

Foursquare Church to show movie

The Midland Foursquare Church, 415 W. Alta Ave., is showing a motion picture release of International Prison Ministry, "Changed Lives in San Quentin," Sunday at 7 p.m.

Actually filmed inside the prison, this documentary features the stories of four criminals, Jerry Graham, James Williams, George Meyer and Jack Burbridge. Interviews by Art Linkletter and the director of IPM, Chaplain Ray, focus on rehabilitation as a result of conversion to Christianity.

The public is invited to attend this free showing.

Free Methodist gets new minister

The Rev. Carlton P. Scarborough became pastor at the Free Methodist Church of Midland, 4712 Shadylane, this August.

The Scarboroughs come to Midland from Florida, where they have served in several churches over the past 25 years.

St. Ann Spiritual sets revival

St. Ann Spiritual Church, 1800 E. Illinois Ave., is holding a revival Monday through Sept. 18.

Special speaker will be the Rev. C.A. Noll of Fort Worth. The public is invited to attend.

St. Nicholas to hold Teaching Mission

St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton St., will hold its annual Teaching Mission Sunday and Monday from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Parish Hall.

The Rev. James P. Haney, rector at St. Christopher's Episcopal Church, Lubbock, and his wife, Pat Garren Haney, will be the speakers. They will explore the topic, "Christian Life as Pilgrimage," from their personal experiences and perspectives.

A former petroleum engineer, Haney began his ministry in 1965 as vicar of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Coleman. He later served as a chaplain in the U.S. Navy. This service included a year in Vietnam.

He has also served as associate rector of St. John's and St. Barnabas' Episcopal Church, Odessa. Before accepting his post in Lubbock, Haney served as Episcopal chaplain for United Campus Ministry, West Texas State University, Canyon.

His church activities in the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas include those of conflict management consultant, administrator and teacher of the Diocesan School of Ministry and member of the Standing Committee and Commission of Ministry and Mission.

Haney received a bachelor of science, cum laude, in petroleum engineering from the University of Pittsburgh, a master of divinity at Episcopal Theological Seminary, Cambridge, Mass., and a master of arts from West Texas State University.

Mrs. Haney, a native of Abilene, graduated from Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, with a bachelor of arts in English. After college she taught English and speech in Midland and San Antonio.

She has spoken to women's groups, such as the Episcopal Church Women of St. Nicholas and the Midland Christian Woman's Club. She taught adult Bible study at Heavenly Rest and St. Mark's churches, Abilene, where she also served on the Pastoral Care and Counseling Board. At Good Shepherd Church, San Angelo, she served as adult Bible teacher and lay reader.

A professional artist, Mrs. Haney has exhibited her work at Theatre Midland and in Abilene, where she serves on the Fine Arts Museum Board. She has also worked as public information officer for the Abilene Fine Arts Museum.

The public is invited to attend. A nursery for small children and movies for older children will be provided.

Church bids goodbye to pastor

A farewell party was given recently at the Seventh Day Adventist Church for the pastor, Elder Rex Frost, his wife, Donna, and their children, David, Shelly, Holly and Melanie.

After serving three years in Midland and the Permian Basin, the Frosts have been called by the Texico Conference of Seventh Day Adventists to pastor the Central Seventh Day Adventist Church in El Paso.

Along with pastoring, the Frosts were active in community service and outreach programs, including holding the class "Five Day Plans to Stop Smoking."

Elder Jerry Oster of Abilene will be assuming pastoral duties here.

A goodbye friendship program was presented in honor of the Frosts' service along with a friendship quilt.

Local temple to conduct holy services

The Jewish high holy days of Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur are being observed in early September this year.

Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year, was observed Sept. 7 and 8. Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, will be observed from sundown Friday through sundown Sept. 17. For the second year, high holy day services will be conducted at Temple Beth-El, Odessa, by Houston Rabbi Moshe Cahana.

Rosh Hashana begins the new Jewish year. It also begins a 10-day period when Jews reflect on their sins of the past year and their lives during the coming year. The period culminates on Yom Kippur, a day of prayer, fasting and atonement.

The two holidays are the most sacred of the year, and all vestments and ritual objects in the synagogue are white during those days.

Cahana, originally from Israel, served as a rabbi with a Houston synagogue for 14 years. Now retired, he still conducts services in West Texas at least once a month and on all holidays.

Temple Beth El serves all West Texas.

Charismatics find acceptance

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Major denominations show increasing acceptance of the charismatic renewal movement, but still don't fully understand it and consider it only marginal, a leader in it says.

Francis MacNutt, a Roman Catholic and former priest, told a United Methodist gathering that mainline churches have begun to say charismatics "aren't as bad as we thought" or the experience "helps."

Aeroflot guarded like Soviet secrets

By STEVEN R. HURST
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW — Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, is nothing if not big — flying more than 330,000 people a day to places as far-flung as Brazzaville and Kuala Lumpur.

But except for schedules and fares, other information about the carrier, an important hard-currency earner for the Soviets, is guarded like a state secret.

Little wonder. Its estimated 1,500 planes are believed to sit ready for military duty in case of war. In the United States, approximately 300 commercial aircraft, under the Civil Reserve Air Fleet, are available for the same contingency.

And all of Aeroflot's pilots are said to be air force reservists. Its head, 60-year-old Boris P. Bugayev, is an air marshal who runs the ministry of civil aviation.

The West is looking for sanctions it can impose on the Soviets following the downing Sept. 1 of an unarmed South Korean airliner by a Soviet fighter, killing 269 people.

The United States had already canceled Aeroflot landing rights two years ago to protest the imposition of martial law in Poland.

Canada told Aeroflot officials Monday that the airliner's flight to Montreal couldn't land there for 60 days and that its refueling privileges at Gander, Newfoundland, were restricted. Aeroflot regularly stopped there en route to Havana. Now the carrier will have to ask permission for each Cuba-bound flight.

There has been speculation that airport workers at some of the 90 other foreign cities served by Aeroflot might protest the shooting down of the KAL Boeing 747 by refusing to service Aeroflot planes.

The International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations has authorized its member pilots to stage a 60-day boycott of flights to Moscow, but a final decision has been left to the individual associations.

The United States flag carrier, Pan Am, stopped flying to Moscow in 1978, saying the route wasn't profitable.

Aeroflot, the Soviet Union's only air carrier, claims to be the world's largest airline.

As the most visible Soviet representative abroad, Aeroflot and its offices have been easy targets for people angry at the Soviet Union.

Minority groups protesting Kremlin treatment of their countrymen inside the Soviet Union have frequently bombed, burned or broken the windows in Aeroflot buildings abroad.

Its offices in Washington and New York have been hit frequently and so have those in most European captials and Japan.

In November 1981, the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board suspended Aeroflot flights for one week after the carrier overflew unauthorized areas. State Department officials called the violations "deliberate."

The Soviets blamed the incident on Canadian and U.S. air traffic controllers. Under a U.S.-Soviet agreement, Aeroflot was required to fly along an ocean route between New York City and southern Maine. Instead, two flights on Nov. 8 flew over New England, an area that included military facilities.

Aeroflot's safety record also stands in question. The most spectacular Aeroflot crash came in 1975 at the Paris Air Show when a prototype of the sleek, needle-nosed TU-144 supersonic liner crashed into a nearby neighborhood. The plane was taken out of regular service in mid-1978 after less than a year of regular service.

The airline can't avoid publicity when its planes crash abroad, but the majority of crashes inside Soviet borders usually go unreported. One was reported within the last week.

Flying the carrier within the Soviet Union can be a trying experience. Delays of hours — sometimes days — occur and passengers are seldom told why, let alone put up at hotels or fed at the airline's expense.

Said one Western airline representative in Moscow: "If I can't get there by train, I don't go."

The airline has had some publicized rows with its passengers.

Russians, too, stash away for a rainy day

By BERNARD D. KAPLAN
European Correspondent, The Hearst Newspapers

ZURICH — Do the Yuri Andropovs, like other comfortably off families of the international elite, stash away part of their wealth in a Swiss bank account in case of a rainy day?

It is more than likely that they do, according to Laurent Ziegler, a writer specializing in that most mysterious and glamorous of all financial subjects, the coded Swiss bank account and who possesses one.

If the Soviet president and his nearest-and-dearest have a nest egg tucked in a vault in Zurich or Geneva, they are only following a practice which appears to be increasingly frequent among luminaries in Russia and other communist bloc countries.

Swiss secrecy laws governing coded accounts make even approximate figures impossible to establish. But Swiss-born Ziegler said that years of "informal" talks with banker friends have led him to put a minimum figure of a billion dollars on the personal funds held by communist bigwigs in banks here.

Such deposits, while perfectly legal as far as the Swiss authorities are concerned, are, of course, against the law in Soviet bloc countries. Theoretically, anyone in Russia found to have secret funds abroad would be guilty of "economic crimes against the state," an offense punishable before a firing squad.

"Naturally, it's a privilege reserved for the top people," Ziegler explained. "Not just the party leaders, but also the cultural elite."

U.S. increases Soviet broadcasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Voice of America is jacking up the volume of its broadcasts to the Soviet Union in the wake of the downing of a South Korean jetliner that killed 61 Americans and 208 other people.

The plane incident "has been the lead story in all 42 languages on Voice of America," said Joe O'Connell, of the United States Information Agency, parent agency of VOA.

Not only that, but the number of transmitters aimed at the Soviet Union has been doubled — to as many as 24 at peak times — and the Russian language daily broadcasting schedule has gone from 16 to 17 hours, said VOA spokeswoman Rogene Waite.

The Soviet Union has admitted shooting down the plane, but said its pilots thought it was a spy plane flying over Soviet territory.

Steven Monblatt, of USIA's television division, said, "Rather than just reporting or commenting on an event, this was one of the few times we have been a integral part of an event."

He referred to last weekend when his agency and State Department translators put together a video tape on the incident, including recordings of the voices of Soviet pilots.

The tape was used in the United Nations.

"We felt it was important that people see and judge for themselves what happened ... (it) put the lie to the Soviet case," Monblatt said.

One of the television sets was installed directly behind the Soviet delegation.

Defense tour comes at very tense time

By ISAAC A. LEVI
Associated Press Writer

An Analysis

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger is inspecting key U.S. military bases in Central America this week at a time when tension in the region is rising and diplomatic initiatives have stalled.

After a lull of three months, the civil war in El Salvador has entered another, possibly bloodier phase with both government officials and rebel leaders virtually discarding further attempts at peace talks.

While U.S. naval and land forces continue deploying for maneuvers in the area, diplomatic efforts launched in June by President Reagan's special envoy Richard Stone have been inconclusive.

The visit by Weinberger, accompanied by Assistant Secretary of State Langhorne Motley, to U.S. military installations in Panama, El Salvador and Honduras this week is a sign the Reagan administration maintains its hard line toward what it calls leftist subversion in Central America.

After several tries, Stone succeeded in meeting July 31 in Colombia with Ruben Zamora, a leader of the leftist coalition fighting for power in El Salvador.

Further breaking the ice, Stone met twice again with the rebel representatives last week in Costa Rica. Members of a Salvadoran government peace commission held a similar but separate meeting in Colombia.

But the flurry of diplomatic activity failed to budge the rebels in their resolve not to take part in elections planned for next spring.

Instead, they continued insisting on negotiations to share power in a coalition government, something that both Reagan and Salvadoran President Alvaro Magana have said is out of the question.

Many Central American leaders were quietly hoping Stone's initiative could set the stage for Salvadoran peace talks, isolating a simmering dispute between Nicaragua and Honduras.

Last Saturday, the Salvadoran guerrillas shattered a three-month lull in fighting by unleashing an intense artillery attack on San Miguel, El Salvador's third largest city. Rebel leaders described the attack as "a new phase" in the four-year-old civil war. The Salvadoran government said at least 33 people were killed and 48 wounded in the attack.

Francisco Quinones, head of the Salvadoran peace commission that met with the guerrillas, said the attack was an act of bad faith, adding that further talks with the guerrillas may be useless.

Other Salvadoran leaders agreed.

"I think this is absurd. How can you talk about dialogue while the guerrillas are talking with bullets?" said Public Works Minister Pio Arnulfo Ayala.

Meanwhile, Panamanian President Ricardo de la Espriella is balking at the use of U.S. bases in his country for reconnaissance flights over Central American trouble spots. He said the bases should be used only for defending the Panama Canal.

U.S. Air Force AC-130 planes have been making these survey flights since January out of Howard Air Force Base, mostly over Nicaragua. The Reagan administration claims Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government has been receiving large quantities of Soviet and Cuban weapons.

Relations with Nicaragua continue to be strained. Motley skipped a stop there after top Sandinista leaders canceled talks with him.

The Sandinistas continue calling the U.S. military deployment in the area a "provocation." But since the exercises began the Sandinistas have visibly toned down war threats against Honduras.

Sandinista leaders have threatened war if attacks by Honduras-based rebel exiles to overthrow the leftist Nicaraguan government do not cease. The exiles have been receiving covert help from the CIA.

Reagan administration officials accuse the Sandinistas of threatening peace in Central American by smuggling weapons to the Salvadoran guerrillas and establishing close military ties with Cuba and the Soviet Union.

According to Pentagon officials, one aim of the military exercises is to make such weapons smuggling more difficult and, hopefully, halt it altogether.

As many as 5,000 American and 6,000 Honduran troops will participate in the land exercises, which will last at least through March.

A U.S. Navy task force is on maneuvers in the Caribbean, while the aircraft carrier Coral Sea, escorted by four warships, is off Central America's east coast. The battleship New Jersey and five escort ships arrived on station off the Pacific Coast this week.

First lady may resign posts

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines — First Lady Imelda R. Marcos says she had nothing to gain from the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino and is considering resigning from her government posts next year.

"Please don't think the worst of me. I'm basically a nice person. I'm very human," Mrs. Marcos said in an interview with The Associated Press and visiting editors of major Japanese newspapers.

ABOUT speculation in opposition circles that she and military officers might be behind Aquino's Aug. 21 assassination as he returned from U.S. exile, Mrs. Marcos said, "It's unfair. And how will I be benefited by it, to have somebody killed?"

The first lady, wife of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, is a member of Parliament, Minister of Human Settlements, governor of metropolitan Manila and a member of the committee set up to run the country in the event Marcos is incapacitated before his term ends in 1987.

She is widely considered Marcos' most likely successor, although she denies any such ambition, and was expected to head the government party's ticket in next May's parliamentary election.

"I am considering not running next year for any elected position," Mrs. Marcos said. She said she wants to give up all government posts to work with the "private sector" backing Marcos' government.

MRS. MARCOS said she and the president wanted to attend the funeral of Aquino, Marcos' chief rival, "if we were only allowed to go into crowds and mobs like those."

Aquino family members had said the Marcoses were not welcome at mourning ceremonies, in which more than 2 million people participated.

Mrs. Marcos said she did not understand why people suspect her or the military in Aquino's death. She used as an analogy the attempt made on President Reagan's life in 1981, and pointed out that suspicion had not fallen on Reagan's political opponents.

"When it is us, it's a different kind of justice," she said. "It's the logic of a simpleton. It's so unfair. This is why sometimes I feel it was a frame-up."

SHE MAINTAINED there were "thousands of questions" to be asked about why Aquino came back against government wishes.

Mrs. Marcos showed a scar on her wrist where she was attacked with a knife by a would-be assassin in 1972. The man was immediately killed by soldiers.

"I have these wounds. I know what it is to be a victim and that would be the last thing I would wish for any human being," she said.

Americans still expressing anger

By The Associated Press

Barflies said "nyet" to Russian vodka in scattered places from California to Maine on Friday as Americans continued to express their anger at the Soviet Union for shooting down a Korean Air Lines airliner with 269 people on board.

While a boycott of Stolichnaya vodka is largely symbolic, a Florida senator proposed taking more tangible action.

The United States should expel Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin to protest the attack, Sen. Lawton Chiles, a Democrat, told a hometown crowd in Lakeland, Fla.

"If, as the president has said, Russians behaved as barbarians, I do not think it is our obligation to extend to them the benefits of American hospitality," Chiles said in a speech at the civic center.

And in Los Angeles, longshoremen continued to boycott work on a Soviet freighter as protestors picketed the harbor.

The ship's agent initially was told the freighter had to depart by 5 p.m. Saturday when its landing permit expired. But that permit was extended Friday and a ship scheduled to dock at the berth was diverted to nearby Long Beach.

Demonstrators blockaded the entrance to Berth 178 again Friday. Harbor Department spokesman Mike Levitt said his reports indicated there were about 40 people taking part, although demonstrators said there were more than 150.

Elsewhere in Southern California, several bars in Orange County are refusing to serve Russian vodka and in Augusta, Maine, a tavern owner Friday dumped a few bottles of the stuff on the statehouse steps.

After pouring out about a dozen bottles, Geddy Mitchell of Bar Harbor, Maine, said he refused to profit "from dealing with people who executed 269 civilians."

State-operated liquor stores are no longer buying Stolichnaya in Montana, Virginia, Mississippi, Alabama, Iowa, New Hampshire, Ohio and West Virginia. In Connecticut, where the liquor industry is unregulated, the Connecticut Package Stores Association was also participating in the boycott. And Montgomery County in Maryland banned the sale of Soviet-made vodka.

A coalition of political, labor and community leaders planned a rally in Westwood, Calif., on Saturday to push the growing boycott of Russian vodka.

According to Valdis Pavlovskis, president of the Los Angeles-based American Freedom League, the United States imported about $229 million in Soviet goods last year, including $29 million in Stolichnaya.

"We just poured all of ours down the drain," Gary Parkinson, general manager of The Catch bar in Anaheim, Calif., said Thursday.

Parkinson said he dumped 30 bottles of Stolichnaya vodka because, "I don't want to be known as someone who will sell Russian vodka now."

Jack Feather, owner of The Cape Restaurant in Santa Ana, Calif., hung out a red, white and blue sign informing passers-by that his business will not serve Russian vodka.

"You don't have to be an Archie Bunker and buy a gun to support this," said Rod Larson, bartender at The Cape. "Every American should support this darn thing."

Most of the customers in the bar Thursday afternoon agreed.

"Stoli is a great vodka, a very distinct taste, but I'm not going to drink it anymore," customer Dave Rinker said. "I don't have any other way to protest what they did."

Meanwhile, six officials of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency received final Soviet approval Friday for a long-planned exchange trip to the Soviet Union.

"Our mission is strictly environmental," said Valdus V. Adamkus, the Midwest regional director of the EPA. "We will try to keep this on that level."

NATO lands won't join ban

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Twelve of NATO's 16 members will announce two-week bans on flights to and from the Soviet Union effective Sept. 15 to protest the downing of a South Korean passenger jetliner, alliance sources reported Friday.

They said France, Spain, Turkey and Greece declined to join the action that was agreed upon at a private meeting here of North Atlantic Treaty Organization delegates.

The French, Spanish and Greek representatives said their countries would continue to accept Soviet Aeroflot flights because they were obliged to fulfill existing contracts, the sources said.

Turkey cited a "technical" reservation for not joining the action, they added, but gave no details.

NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns told a news conference the representatives agreed at their two-hour meeting to let individual governments, rather than the alliance as a whole, announce responses to the Sept. 1 Soviet attack on the jumbo jet that had entered Soviet air space north of Japan.

"All members agreed this is not an East-West problem — it covers the whole community of nations," Luns said. "NATO does not take these decisions. It's for governments to announce them."

A U.S. State Department official, who asked that he not be named, said, "We are not seeking a NATO-Warsaw Pact confrontation over this issue." He said several NATO members thought it would be "inappropriate" for the alliance to take joint action because "when it (such action) becomes identified with a military alliance you scare people off."

The goal is to get more than just the NATO nations to go along with the flight ban, he said.

ROGERS FORD

Simplicity is automatic.

All 1983 Honda Civic Hatchbacks are designed to be simple.

But with the Civic 1500 DX, your driving can be made even simpler. Because a 3-speed automatic transmission is also available. This is the only Civic Hatchback to offer it.

It also offers five-passenger seating.

Naturally, this car has all the other features you've come to expect from a Honda. Like front-wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, a handsome interior and a very simple price.

When it comes to value, it's no wonder Honda automatically comes to mind.

"It's good to have a place where you really like to live."

Debbie Allen talks about living at The Clusters:

"There's a lot of activity around here. Like this aerobics class.

"I can swim, play tennis, aerobics, jog. I can stay in good physical shape just living at my own house.

"I've lived here 8 months and I've been an apartment dweller for several years. I looked at several other complexes, but they were all the same...just four walls, a bathroom and a kitchen. This one is quite different. It has all the other luxuries."

No other Midland apartment community combines a multitude of activities with truly luxurious living. Featuring your choice of decorator wall coverings, side-by-side icemaker refrigerators, built-in micro-waves, ceiling fans, dishwashers, washers and dryers, trash compactors, mini-blinds and French doors to patios/balconies.

Come and visit and you'll see why Debbie Allen says, "I would really hate to move from here...I love it."

The Clusters. Midland's finest adult community. Special pricing now available.
