STATE AID REQUESTS SWAMP HIGHWAY BOARD

REVOLUTION ONLY CASE OF INS AND OUTS

Religious Trouble Had Nothing to Do With Plot Against Mexico

SEVERAL ARRESTED

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 16.—(AP)—About 50 persons have been arrested in the federal district in connection with what police say they believe was an abortive plot for widespread uprisings Sunday against the religious regulations.

It was suggested in official quarters tonight that the concentrations of men and arms and ammunition by General Enrique Estrada near the Mexican border in California may have been connected with the alleged plot and as part of a general revolutionary movement.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 16.—(AP)—General Enrique Estrada, former secretary of war for Mexico, originated and engineered the plan to overthrow the government of lower California, foiled by American authorities late yesterday when 174 men, several trucks and a large amount of rifles, machine guns and ammunition were seized at Dulzura, 35 miles east of here and three miles from the Mexican border, A. A. Hopkins, department of justice agent, said here today.

"General Estrada, from all the information we have been able to gather, was the sponsor for the movement against the lower California government," said Hopkins today. "I do not think that the Mexican religious troubles had anything to do with the movement or that anyone but Estrada was behind it. I believe it was simply an attempt of the outs to get in."

Several Under Arrest.

General Estrada and more than a score of others, including J. T. Degman, a Calver City contractor, and Earl C. Parker, president of the Parker Hardware Co., of San Diego, as well as Aurello Seupiveda, well known Mexican army officer who has been living in Los Angeles for the past two years, are lodged in the county jail here, while the remainder of the prisoners are quartered at Fort Rosecrans, under guard of the United States marines. General Estrada and the members of his staff refused to make any statement for publication. The few "soldiers" who would talk declared that they had been hired as laborers.

Estrada and several of his intimates left Los Angeles several days ago. Saturday morning, the main detachment started from Los Angeles in several trucks including an armored car. Hopkins stated that department of justice cars followed those occupied by the Mexicans.

The chase led through Santa Ana, where the party spent Saturday night, and then to Oceanside and inland to Escondido, from where the Mexicans followed a comparatively little used roadway to Dulzura.

Scheduled for Sunday.

The hour for the expedition was set for between 7 and 8 o'clock Sunday night at Dulzura at that time department of justice agents, immigration inspectors, San Diego county deputy sheriffs and San Diego police with Captain Tom O'Brien of the Los Angeles police force, were waiting. Most of the prisoners were captured at Dulzura, but later a number of others were caught at Lamesa, while headed for Dulzura.

Nicholas Rodriguez, a well known border character, was captured late last night and is being held on suspicion of being connected with the movement.

Ferguson with her opening address in the second democratic primary campaign at her old home town, Temple. This was made known Monday when former Gov. James E. The itinerary for a six-day campaign the former governor will conduct, in interest of his wife, will be announced probably Tuesday. It is expected to include Galveston and other big cities such as San Antonio, Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth.

Monday many of long standing Ferguson friends and supporters called at the executive offices and held conferences. Among them were State Senators Archie Pharr of Benavides, A. J. Wirtz of Seguin, Pierce B. Ward of Cleburne and Gus Russek of Schulenberg.

Governor Ferguson said she would go with the former governor to Temple but was not disposed to divulge further plans, neither would she discuss the recent turn of events in which she said she would withdraw from the second primary and later resign, and then entered the second primary.

HATCHER FIRES ON FERGUSONS

SHERMAN, Aug. 16.—(AP)—A charge that former Gov. James E. Ferguson is against the best interests of the public schools was made in an address here Monday evening by W. Gregory Hatcher, state treasurer.

"Ferguson showed that he was against the best interest of the school system when he forced the tax rate cut of 12 cents," the speaker declared. "The result of that action was clearly brought out last Saturday when the board of education was forced, on account of that tax cut, to make the ridiculously inadequate apportionment of $11.50 a student."

Mr. Hatcher charged Ferguson with "juggling" figures in making the cut and proposing to raise the gasoline tax to three cents a gallon, "all of which was for the putpose of getting votes."

SLUGGED MAN GOING HOME

Missing For 13 Days, Is Seen Trudging Along Near Sherman

SHERMAN, Tex., Aug. 16.—(AP)—L. B. Ogilvie, 25, of Houston, who has been missing for 13 days, was seen a few miles south of Van Alstyne, this county, about 6 o'clock Sunday evening by Ross Clark, Sherman man who knew Ogilvie in Houston during 10 years connection with the Y. M. C. A. there.

Apparently uinjured, Ogilvie told Clark that he remembered nothing after picking up two men in his motor car near Mexia, until he awoke in a south bound box car in northern Oklahoma. Bruised, but with no wounds on his head, Ogilvie said he believed he had been gassed.

Ogilvie gave no further explanation of the intervening period. He was walking along the highways and accepting rides in an effort to get home. He had not communicated with his father, a Houston policeman, he said.

After refusing an offer by Clark to bring him to Sherman and put him on the interurban southbound, Ogilvie continued walking down the highway, promising to get into touch with his father when he arrived in Dallas. Clark attempted to wire the boy's father Sunday night, but the telegraph office was closed.

Clark, a native of Sherman, is now connected with the Y. M. C. A. at Youngstown, Ohio, and is here visiting his mother.

Ogilvie disappeared two days after his appointment as chief engineer at Mexia of the Pure Oil company. He had left his wife and child at his home in Wortham to go to Mexia, when he disappeared. His motor car, with a crushed hat in it, was found at Mexia.

HUSBAND ALSO HELD

GREENVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Robert Tipton, charged with murder, and her husband, held as a material witness, are in jail here tonight as the result of finding the almost decapitated body of Leola Winkle, 13, in a sub-cellar of the Tipton home here today.

The girl, daughter of John Winkle, a neighbor of the Tiptons, had been their guest for about three weeks. Since last Thursday she had been missing and Mrs. Tipton is said to have stated on that day the child had gone back to her home. A search was started and armed with a search warrant the party again reached the Tipton home today.

Mrs. Tipton was accused by an officer as the slayer of the missing girl and is said to have admitted the killing and led the searching party to the body over which they had passed innumerable times since Saturday.

The child's body gave evidence of having been dead for three or four days. The face had been beaten almost to a pulp and there were two huge gashes in the throat.

A preliminary hearing for Mrs. Tipton and her husband is set for Wednesday.

British Nation Victimized In Kitchener "Recovery"

BONDON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The British nation today found itself the victim of a hoax of a particularly unpleasant character, when the investigation of the home office revealed today that the coffin brought from Norway to the accompaniment of much newspaper publicity and purporting to contain the body of the late British field marshal, Lord Kitchener was empty.

Frank Power, a British newspaper man, was responsible for the story that he had found Kitchner's body in Norway, which he brought to London and delivered at the Waterloo station. Officials from the home office and Coroner Oddie were present when the case was opened this morning with great secrecy, and shortly afterwards the home office issued the following statement:

"The packing case, alleged to contain a coffin and human body which on Saturday night was removed by the police from an undertaker's on Waterloo road to the Lambeth coroner's court, was this morning opened in the presence of Coroner Ingleby Oddie and Sir Bernard Spilsbury (noted pathologist). The packing case was found to contain an empty coffin. The coffin was new and obviously had not contained a human body."

The government recently made public a detailed statement which had convinced a majority of the people of the groundlessness of many of the published Kitchener myths. But such myths die hard, and many persons still entertained doubts respecting the fate of the national hero. These doubts should finally be set at rest after today's revelations.

In the meantime the police are looking for Frank Power, originator of the hoax, who seems, for the time being at any rate, to have disappeared. Power's real name is declared to be Arthur Vectis Freeman, and he is said to have been a student of criminology. He has already admitted in his last press statement made yesterday, that although he began his investigation in a bonifide spirit, into the sinking of H. M. S. Hempshire, on which Kitchener was voyaging when he perished, he later had accepted an offer from a moving picture promoter, with a view to recouping himself for the heavy expenses of his investigation.

The Daily Mail declared "it is a ghoulish act thus to exploit the fame of one of the greatest of England's soldiers," and the Morning Post said:

"It is repugnant to decent feeling that the disinterred coffined remains should be carried about here and there at a private person's caprice and without any sanction of authority. If the dead were without note the offense would be rank."

Apparently nobody dreamed of the contingency that the coffin would, as the home office states, be absolutely empty.

WATER SPOUT FATAL FOR 2

Others Missing, Damage Is Great in Long Island Tornado

GLENCOVE, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A water spout, sweeping in from Long Island Sound, about 9 o'clock tonight caused extensive property damage for a distance of about half a mile along the creek road. Two men were killed, another was said to be missing and two men were injured.

The spout traveled at terrific speed, uprooting trees, demolishing cottages on the road, which fronts on the Long Island Sound, and breaking telephone poles.

The estates of J. P. Morgan and other wealthy New Yorkers are nearby, but it was reported they were untouched.

The high wind that accompanied the spout assumed the characteristics of a tornado when it reached land. The spout struck about two miles from Glencove and one mile from Sea Cliff, Long Island.

The house of Glynn Hammond, the actor, was lifted from its foundation, carried 40 feet away and demolished. Mr. Hammond and his mother were in it, but escaped injury.

An unidentified man, said to have been repairing his car in a garage, is missing and his car and the garage are said to have disappeared completely.

Movie "Sheik" In Critical Condition

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Rudolph Valentino, movie actor, lies seriously ill in the Politecnic Hospital tonight, waging a fight that is far different from any he has ever fought in his sheik roles on the movie screen.

The enemy in his present fight is not a cutlash-wielding bad man of the Arabian desert, but thousands of tiny, invisible germs that caused complications, including peritionitis, following a double operation yesterday for gastric ulcer and appendicitis. An official statement from the hospital late today said, however, that the patient's condition showed improvement and could be described as "favorable." His temperature had returned to normal and his pulse had grown stronger.

The crisis, however, will not be passed for three days, it was explained.

BRITISHERS STILL JEALOUS

LONDON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Continuing the discussion of Gertrude Ederle's famous channel swim, The Westminster Gazette publishes a statement from an unnamed member of the royal Cinque Ports Yach' club of Dover, to the effect that Miss Ederle's success was due to an accident of the weather.

He explains that when Miss Ederle entered the water, the ebb tide was on the wane and within 45 minutes had died altogether. Then followed seven hours of flood tide, during which the drift was all in her favor, and far from any counter-effect of wind, a strong southwest wind blew all day, assisting her still further.

When the ebb tide set in again the southwest wind increased in force to such an extent as to take all the strength out of the tide.

All of the men were short term convicts. None were armed as they left the barracks and the 12 were taken without resistance.

Camp number 2 was the Pat Neff Honor farm during the administration of Governor Neff.

Mexico's Boycott Depression Worse

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 16.—(AP)—While the religious situation continues apparently without change, the depression caused by the economic boycott appears to be increasing. Some continue to cling to what seems a forlorn hope that congress, which convenes September 1, may enact milder religious regulations. But, congress is impotent unless President Calles approves its acts.

Congress is expected to do as the president desires; hence, unless Senor Calles himself yields in his religious stand, or loses political power, neither of which is indicated at present, congressional relief can hardly be looked for.

Dry Chief to Wage War on Still Sellers

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Concerns selling home brewing supplies and unassembled parts for stills, within directions for the manufacture of "home brew" are to be the targets for conspiracy indictments sworn to by E. C. Yellowly, prohibition director, and Edwin A. Olson, district attorney, it was learned today. Reports of an investigation into the activities of the concerns will be turned over to the grand jury.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The story of Mrs. Jane Gibson, woman pig raiser, that she was in Deurssey's Lane the night the Reverend Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills were murdered was corroborated in part today by a state witness not questioned in other investigations.

She also pointed out Henry De La Bruyere Carpender and Willie Stevens, cousin and brother of Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain rector, as men she had seen at the spot where the state contends the murder was committed.

NEW DISTRICT ROADS ASKED FOR OIL FIELD

Governor May Ask Formation Of New District At Special Session

CANYON SEEKS ROAD

AUSTIN, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Shortening of the overland route from El Paso to Fort Worth and Dallas would follow the granting by the highway commission of the request made to it Monday by a number of counties to designate a road between Sonora in Sutton county and Brady in McCulloch, thereby joining highways 27 and 10.

The commisison was swamped with applications for state aid aggregating $2,366,250, and for many important designations.

Carson county asked $1,500,000 to hard surface highway 33, between Panhandle and Spearman in Hansford county. This road serves the thriving panhandle oil field in Carson and Hutchinson counties.

To expedite the hard surfacing of 16 miles of highway 83 between Canyon and Amarillo, Governor Miriam A. Ferguson will be asked to recommend to the special session of the legislature, meeting here September 13, the creation of two road districts, Dr. J. A. Hill, president of the West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon, said Monday.

One road district would lie in Randall county, and the other in Randall and Potter counties. President Hill said he was assured by C. A. Wheeler, assistant attorney general, that this scheme would be legal.

"Randall of which Canyon is the county seat, begins just outside the city limits of Amarillo," President Hill said. "Potter, of which Amarillo is the county seat, is entirely willing to bear its share of surfacing the road, but the trouble in the past has been finding a legal way. Naturally, Randall county did not desire to pay all the cost of building a splendid road to Amarillo's doorstep.

"In creating the two road districts, decision will be reached as to just how far toward Canyon the Potter and the Randall county district should build the road. I do not anticipate any trouble reaching inequitable agreement."

May Compromise B Hall Argument

AUSTIN, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Regents of the University of Texas at their meeting here August 30 will probably consider the compromise offered by former residents of B Hall in the fight against conversion of the historic man's dormitory into a building of class rooms, it was learned Monday.

Terms of a compromise by which the regents can end litigation by giving $40,000 for a new dormitory and a plat of ground for the building have already been discussed with university officials, according to H. Grady Woodruff, manager of the hall for 1925-26 session. The sum which is the inventory value of the present B Hall would be used by former residents of the hall as a nucles of a fund of probably $150,000 or more to be raised by subscription and used for erection of a new dormitory for men.

Jim Reaps Political Profit At School Child's Cost, Says Dan

GREENVILLE, Tex., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Unqualified support in behalf of the public schools so that "every Texas boy and girl may have a high school education" was pledged by Attorney General Dan Moody here Monday evening as he formally opened his run-off campaign for governor.

Charging that Ferguson had sought a reduction in taxes by putting appropriations for public education, Moody declared that the schools must be supported.

"Mr. Ferguson has cut appropriations for education in order to make possible a cut in the tax rate, and now the school apportionment must be made lower," he said. "No man has a right to thus profit politically at the expense of the boys and girls of Texas."

"When elected governor I shall do everything which the power of the office permits to see that the schools are properly financed, and it shall be my purpose and object to see that a high school education is brought within the reach of the thousands of boys and girls in this state who are now practically denied a high school education because of the remoteness of their homes from high schools."

DALLAS, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Sawnie Aldredge, Moody campaign manager for north and northeast Texas, Monday announced further plans for Dan Moody's second primary campaign. Speakers for the rallies will be furnished by the Dallas headquarters upon request, Aldredge said.

No permanent headquarters will be established. Bill McGintie will assist in the campaign management for the region allotted to Dallas.

MERRY LOCKE, pretty and gay as her nickname, falls in love with ANTHONY GAINES, a young lawyer. To fall in love is nothing new to Merry. Men have been making love to her since she was 16; and the first time she is alone with Tony Gaines, she lets him kiss her.

But Tony is serious. He really is in love with Merry and wants to marry her. But Merry refuses because she has always been fickle, and isn't sure that she cares deeply for Tony Gaines. They finally decide to marry at the end of six months, and as the time goes on Merry finds out that she loves Tony. She begs him to marry her at once, but he insists upon waiting.

In the meantime Merry's father dies, and she takes a job in LILLIE DALE'S beauty shop, having failed in her stenography course to the great disgust of MOMS, her widowed mother. HELEN, the oldest sister, marries. JINNY, the youngest stays at home to help with the housework. CASSIE, the second oldest, secretary to MORLEY KAUFMAN, a broker with whom she's in love, is the mainstay of the family.

One night Tony breaks an engagement with Merry. Hurt and angry she lets DERRICK JONES, who lives next door, make love to her. Later she tells Tony about it, and then one night she goes out with BILL ERSKINE, a friend of Morley Kaufman. She never sees Tony after that, for he closes his law office and goes out to Montana to live. He sends Merry a letter, but it is lost before she has a chance to read it.

Merry hardens her heart against Tony, returns his ring to his mother, and when Bill Erskine comes to town again, she makes up her mind to go with him and have a good time. He comes to take her to dinner in a hired car. When Merry gets into it, there is a florist's box on the seat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTED XXIII

Inside the box was a big bunch of white violets that fluttered like butterflies' wings, as Merry lifted them out.

"Oh, but aren't they scrumptous" she cried, putting her little upturned nose down into their wet sweetness. "Why, no one's given me flowers since I-don't- know-when!"

Somehow they made her think of a wedding—of a white slender bride, of sunlight streaming through stained-glass windows, of an altar banked with white bridal flowers like these.

And then all at once they made her think of a June day she had spent in the woods with Tony Gaines. He had found some violets growing near the stone slab where they had their lunch, and had pinned them on her dress. She still had them, pressed and dried, under the paper that lined her top dresser drawer at home.

"Aren't you going to put 'em on?" Bill Erskine asked, touching the flowers that lay on her lap.

In the twilight he was looking at her closely, his thick mouth smiling good naturedly.

"Where's your ring tonight, Little Sister?" he asked suddenly. "Did you forget to wear it?"

Merry shook her head, and her dimples flashed in and out as she smiled back at him.

"No. I gave it back to the man who gave it to me," she said lightly, "After I met you I just couldn't stay engaged to him, could I?"

They laughed and Bill patted her hand.

"You still are engaged, aren't you?" he asked after a moment.

"No, of course, I'm not," Merry answered. "I really did give back the ring. I got to thinking things over, and I decided I didn't want to get married."

"Wise kid!" said Bill approvingly. "There are better things for a girl than getting married. Plenty of 'em, too! Especially when she's pretty and young like you, Little Sister! You ought to have the world at your feet for the next five years!"

Merry looked down at her little feet and said nothing.

"I don't know a single couple that's happily married," Bill went on, his cigar glowing rosily against the dusk. "All the ones I know fight like Kilkenny cats! Say"—he laughed suddenly—"say, I'll bet that bird of yours went crazy when you sent back his ring, didn't he?"

Merry frowned. She didn't like to hear the man beside her call Tony Gaines "that bird." Her affairs were none of his business either.

"Where are we going tonight?" she asked coldly.

"Let's go to the Blue Admiral Inn again," said Bill. "I've been thinking of that fried chicken ever since that Sunday when Morley took us out there for dinner.

Merry gave his huge bulk a glance that he did not see.

The Blue Admiral Inn was packed, when they got there. People sat with their faces close together over the little tables, chattering and laughing.

Here and there a match flared white against the mellow gold light that came from the lamps on the walls. A pale blue cloud of cigaret smoke hung like a chiffon veil over the seated crowd. The room smelled of perfume, of powdered flesh, of food and tobacco.

The music throbbed in it like the beating of great wings, and one by one, the couples drifted out onto the gleaming yellow floor.

"Want to dance, Little Sister?" Bill Erskine asked when they had found their own little corner table.

Merry looked at him and shook her head with its deep waves of molten gold hair. She didn't want to dance. Not with him, at any rate. He was too fat.

"I'll bet he bounces like a rubber ball," she said to herself, looking at him with eyes that were bright and happy again. Music and a crowd went to her head like wine, always. Excitement was the breath of life to her. She loved it.

"Have a drink?" asked Bill.

There was a flash of silver, as he took a flask from his pocket and hid it under the edge of the table cloth. He beamed at Merry in his cheerful, smooth way.

She shook her head at him.

"I never drink," she said.

He stared at her for a minute and then winked solemnly.

"Don't try to pull the Miss Innocense stuff on me, Little Sister," he warned her amiably, "I wasn't born yesterday. Pass your glass."

But Merry shook her head again.

"No. I really mean what I say," she told him, "I never take a drink."

She knew that he did not believe what she said.

Nine times out of ten, the girl who will let a man kiss her the first time she meets him is the girl who will take a drink, too. And Merry had certainly let Bill Erskine kiss her that first Sunday when she met him.

"Well, I'll say this for you—you look fresh as a daisy," he said to her at last, "but I spent all day on a dusty Pullman, and I'm dead tired. Nothing wears you out like riding on a train."

Merry thought over her own day. Up at seven. Breakfast at eight. Lillie Dale's beauty shop from eight-thirty until six, answering the telephone every 10 minutes.

"I ought to be tired," she murmured. "I work hard all day, too."

Bill chuckled and looked down at her hands that were crossed on the table.

"Not with those fingers," he said, touching the nails that were like pin coral. "Those aren't working hands."

Merry flushed. "I work in a beauty shop," she said. "Don't you remember that I told you so the other time I saw you,"

He looked blank. He didn't remember.

"Come on, be a sport! Have a drink," he insisted, picking up the glass beside her plate.

"Don't make me drink alone—that's no fun," he added.

But for the third time Merry shook her head. Smiling straight into his eyes she took the glass out of his hand and set it down.

"I'm sorry," she said.

Bill swallowed his liquor at one gulp, and began to sing a little song under his breath. As he sang he looked around the room, his eyes pausing on the faces of the women near them. He smiled at one or two of them.

"Just a little drink," he sang softly.
"Just a little drink
"Or two.
"Any little drink,
"Any little drink,
"Any little drink,
"Will do."

He stopped suddenly, and jerked his glance back to Merry.

"Little Sister," he said shortly, "you're a bum sport. Come on, let's go! I'm sick of this!"

Without a word Merry got up and followed him out of the crowded, smoke-filled room. She laughed at him as he stood in the cloak room waiting for the hat he had checked. He was scowling darkly.

"You're a crab!" she told him blithely. "No wonder you're a bachelor! No girl would marry you, you old sorehead!"

When they were halfway home he surprised her by sliding over the seat towards her, and taking her in his big arms.

"Little Sister," he said, "I apologize to you! You're a darned nice little kid and I shouldn't have urged you to take a drink!"

He kissed her.

"I'm going away tomorrow, but I'll be back soon," his heavy voice went on in the warm darkness. "I'll write to you, too. And would you like it if I sent you some more flowers?"

"Flowers" asked Merry. Her voice dragged on the word.

"I guess you'd rather have candy," Bill said quickly.

She shuddered daintily. "Never give a girl candy, Bill," she said, "it makes us fat. Don't you know that?"

She stopped for an instant. "There is one thing that I really would like," she began, and then stopped again.

"Oh, but I mustn't tell you what it is," she said shyly.

"Perfume?" asked Bill. "Silk stockings? Gloves? Books?"

"Books, oh, you make me laugh," trilled Merry, "I don't have any time to read. I'll tell you what it is that I want. I broke my string of pearl beads the other day, all over the sidewalk. I feel so bare without them," her hand stroked the whiteness of her neck. "If you really want to give me something, give me pearls."

"If he can afford white violets in August, he ought to send me a pretty respectable string of pearls," she thought, when she had left him and was going up to the house alone. "One with a platinum clasp, I should think."

There was a light in the lower hall.

"Is that you, Jinny?" Mom's voice called anxiously from upstairs as Merry unlocked the door.

"No, Moms," she called, "It's Merry." She went out into the kitchen for a drink of water, still thinking about Bill Erskine.

The violets were a little wilted bunch on her breast now. She unpinned them and tossed them into the waste basket under the sink.

When she came back, Moms was standing in the hall. The light above her head cast queer shadows on her face, and she looked tired and worried.

"Twelve!" she exclaimed, glancing over her shoulder at the old clock that stood on the stair landing. "Now where do you suppose Jinny can be, at this hour?" she asked, with a little quaver in her voice.

"Where did she go?"

"Out with Derrick Jones," Moms replied. "They started for the picture show about half past eight." She parted the dotted Swiss curtains that was stretched over the window in the door, and peered out.

"Here they come now!" she said, and Merry heard the crunching of wheels on the driveway outside.

Three or four minutes went by.

Moms, with a warning finger on her lips, was still peering out into the night, when Jinny came running along the porch.

She flung open the door and faced her.

"So this is how you go to the movies!" she said in a terrible voice. "I saw you, letting that softy from next door kiss you! After all my talk and lecturing! After all my care! Haven't I told you and told you and told you to keep yourself to yourself. Haven't I? "

She seized the luckless Jinny by her slim shoulders, and began to shake her as if she were six years old instead of 16.

Jinny threw back her red head and giggled wildly.

"I'll lock you up my lady if you don't behave yourself!" Moms' voice rose higher and higher. "I'll see whether you'll stay out 'till midnight with that boy, or not!"

Jinny, crying and laughing at once by this time, jerked herself away from her mother, picked up her fallen hat, and rushed upstairs.

"I'll do as I please!" she sobbed loudly as she went. "I'll do just as I please, and it'll take more than you to stop me, too! You mix up in my business and see what happens. You leave me alone!"

The slamming of her bedroom door deadened the sound of her voice.

Merry followed her up the stairs.

What is Jinny's reaction? What is Cassie's surprise? How did they secure the money, and—read Chapter 24 of "The Petter."

"I'LL LOCK YOU UP, MY LADY!" MOMS THREATENED.

FRANCIS RECOVERS IN JAIL

Jealousy Causes One Death and Injury to Irate Husband.

WHITSTABLE, County Kent, England, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Alphonse Francis Austin Smith, grand son of the late Hugh Ryan of Canadian railroad building fame, was recovering in the Maidstone jail today from injuries he sustained Friday night in a fight from which John Thomas Derham emerged with a bullet wound which caused his death several hours later.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Jackie Strong is seven years old. He'd have you know he is no baby like those four and five-year-old kids. His mother, Mrs. H. W. Strong, read to him the story of Tarzan. Jackie thought it was a good idea, this living out with the wild animals n'everything. So he left his home, Gresham, Ore., and walked to Mount Hood.

For three days and three nights Jackie was missing. Worry grew until posses and searching parties from nearby towns started out to find him. They fired shots and shouted "hello" all through the valley and canyons for two days. Yesterday, perched on a rock 1,000 feet above one of the searching parties the boy heard them shooting and shouted at them. They heard him and today he is home again feeling fine.

The boy refused medical aid and walked the two and a half miles to Clear Fork ranger station.

Asked how he managed to eat, Jackie said:

"Oh, I ate three raw fish and a lot of huckleberries."

"Naw, I wasn't scared," he said.

Jackie's dad says "he always was a tough little nut."

PROBE BALKED BY POLITICIANS

So Says Investigator Who Involves Canton Cop In Murder

CANTON, Ohio, Aug. 16.—(AP)—While Joseph R. Roach, Chicago criminal lawyer was at work today preparing his discoveries in the Mellett murder case for the consideration of the Stark county grand jury next week, employment of special aid in the prosecution was being considered.

Roach, following his announcement that while investigating an alleged liquor conspiracy in Canton he uncovered evidence in the murder case which should convict several men decided to prepare to accept the invitation of Prosecutor C. B. McClintock that all persons having knowledge of the crime present it to the grand jury.

The criminal lawyer had said that political pressure and the influence of various forces were being brought to bear to block the murder investigation and that the case should be considered by the grand jury at once. McClintock forthwith announced a change in his plans and said the case would go to the grand jury which opens its session for the consideration of other cases tomorrow.

Roach's investigation of the liquor conspiracy has been conducted with the idea of placing the case before a grand jury early in September.

Roach declares evidence in his hands involves several members of the Canton police force in a liquor conspiracy and that at least one police officer is involved in the murder.

Compromise Over B Hall Suggested

AUSTIN, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Texas University regents can end litigation centering around the abandonment of B hall by giving $40,000 for the building and a plat of ground for a new dormitory, H. Grady Woodruff, manager of the hall for the 1925-26 season said Monday.

He said these terms of a compromise had been discussed with university officials and expressed hope the regents would see fit to accept them.

Mr. Woodruff, who is a member of the legislature from Paradise, said that $40,000 was the inventory value of the three-story brick dormitory, and that this sum would be used by former students of B hall as the "nest egg" of a large fund to build a model dormitory.

"We would be willing for the regents to hedge the $40,000 with the provision we must raise by subscription some reasonable amount—$150,000 or $200,000—before the $40,000 might be applied to a new dormitory," Woodruff said.

Little was left of the dead except the larger bones, but the boots and leather belts of the victims are said to be perfectly preserved.

DUGGAN FOR EQUALIZATION

PRES. ARTHUR P. DUGGAN of the the West Texas chamber of commerce is on the road appealing to the people to instruct their lawmakers to vote for legislation which will compel tax equalization in Texas. He is making many startling revelations of any qualities in state taxation. He charges that the reports of the state tax commissioner and comptroller show that in Texas, taxes are not equal and uniform as the constitution directs.

He shows there are 254 counties with a board of equalization in each, entirely free and independent of all others. He shows that every commissioner's court places its own valuation for taxes, bearing in mind its local needs only, and entirely disregarding the state as a whole. He charges that the result is the assessments vary from 15 to 40 per cent of the real value of property while the state rate on the $100 valuation prevail alike in all counties.

He forecasts that legislative investigation will reveal the fact that some of the black lands in Texas worth $150 per acre are assessed at but $10 per acre and that a county with lands worth $150 per acre and an assessment of only $10 per acre actually receives the bonus from the state. In his address at Marfa this West Texas champion of tax equalization asserted that a group of 12 counties in Texas, "some of the best black land counties of the state" received for the years 1924 and 1925 the sum of $899,125 more for school purposes than they paid for all purposes.

Furthermore, he said during the five-year period, 1920-24, this same group of counties took out of the state treasury for textbooks and rural aid $2,867,186 more than they paid in for all purposes. This is his comment on the above, "in other words, Texas would now be nearly $3,000,000 richer had those counties belonged to Oklahoma or some other state during the last five years."

This is not all. He alleged that this same, group of counties has reduced its assessment $25,573,062 from the 1920 valuation. As for the west and its people and its values, he made this challenge, "If there is a county in West Texas that has not had to raise its assessments during the same time, I do not know of it." President Duggan has the figures as well as the facts. He submitted the following:

"Lets take an actual case. El Paso county for 1925 assessed its land at an average value of $13.29 per acre. The same year Hunt county lands had an average of $19.52 per acre. For the five-year period, 1920-24, El Paso county paid into the state treasury $807,386 more than they received through the apportionment of textbook and rural aid. During the same period Hunt county received from the state treasury $273,750 more than they paid in. El Paso's excess of $807,386 covers the amounts received for books and rural aid more than paid in for the counties of Hunt, Collins, Fannin, and Rockwall. These four counties received $816,116 more than they paid in. El Paso county therefore is paying for the textbooks and rural aid for those four black land counties. It is true that El Paso has a city within its border, but it is also true that it has thousands of acres of grass land only, entirely unhabited while all of the other four counties mentioned are in the richest priced and most densely settled parts of the state."

President Duggan in his drive did not close the cause with the showing made by El Paso and the four rich black land counties. He hammered away as follows:

"Her is another case, Brewster county during the five-year period paid into the state treasury $175,814 more than it received. During the same period Kaufman county dre wout of the state treasury $145,806 and Rockwall county $24,866 more for textbooks and rural aid than they paid in for everything. Those two rich thickly settled central Texas counties reach away out here in Brewster county and take its tax money to pay for the textbooks and rural education of their children. Authorative figures presented to me show that there are 177 southern and western counties in the high percentage class, the most of which are in the regional territory of the West Texas chamber of commerce whose average assessment is on a basis of 33 1-3 per cent of their actual value. This is equal to $384,392,000 over the average of the state, which when made subject to the state rate of 77 cents makes the sum of $2,950,816 annually paid in excess of their proportionate part. It is a fact that these southern and western counties, with the addition of the counties containing a large city are paying practically the entire cost of the state government and in addition paying about $1,000,000 every year for school books and rural aid for some of the richest counties in Texas."

Duggan's drive for tax equalization should interest the lawmakers of Texas, the politicians of Texas, the people of Texas, particularly the people who pay the freight.

SHOULD HUSBAND SHOOT WIFE

IF from the numerous accounts of the shooting of husbands by jealous wives in the United States it is indicative of an open season on husbands, in Texas the season on wives at least has been definitely closed. In the recent decisions of Billings vs. the state, by Judge Berry, commissioner of the court of criminal appeals and Jimenez vs. the state, by Judge Berry and Presiding Judge Morrow of the court of criminal appeals of Texas abandoned a doctrine of law which has long been recognized in the state and held that the Texas statute does not justify a husband in killing his wife founbd in adultery; his right to kill being limited to her paramour. In so doing the court of criminal appeals expressly overruled two prior decisions of the court by the late Presiding Judge Davidson, Williams vs. the state and Cook vs. the state.

The court of criminal appeals and able jurists therein are to be congratulated in the adoption of so humane a construction of our criminal statute on justifiable homicied. The right to kill save in the defense of one's self and property should exist only in exceptional circumstances. Clearly the legislature which constitues homicide a crime alone has the power to make exceptions and to provide under what circumstances a person is justified in taking the life of a fellow man.

The doctrine of law heretofore held that a man had the right to kill his wife when found in the act of adultery was rather an innovation in criminal jurisprudence. In cases of this kind it is customary after the acquital of the defendant by a jury of peers, for the wise ones to shrug their shoulders and say. "He plead the 'common law' defense." It is rather extraordinary to note than that no such law for homicide existed as common law, either as to the killing of the wife or paramour. Such a defense can exist only by a statute or in a sentimental appeal to minds of a jury, who in most cases are ordinary men and consequently acquit.

The problem has always been a vexing one and it constitutes the theme of the great English epic. We find the text in the first volume of Browning's, "The Ring and the Book"—

Wherein, it is disputed and when,
Husbands may kill adulterous wives,
yet 'scape
The customary forfeit.

That it was a very serious question is shown by the fact that "Half Rome" felt that the husband was justified. While the "Other Half" sympathized with the gay Pompilia whose escapade lent so much to the gaiety of nations. We cannot help but feel that the decision of His Holiness Pope Innocent XII in condemning the husband to death was highly just.

It was provided in the ancient law (Lev. 20-10) that "the adulterer and adulteress shall surely be put to death." Perhaps it is because the punishment of the law has become less rigorous in these days for the adultress and instead of being put to death, she is usually given a movie contract, that the doctrine arose permitting the husband to administer justice.

But the recent decision of the court of criminal appeals is clearly a humane interpretation of the law, and is, of course a correct adjudication of the statute.

ANOTHER MA-MOODY PRIMARY

(From the New York World.)

IN spite of his long lead over Governor "Ma" Ferguson in the Texas primary Attorney General Dan Moody failed to obtain a clear majority. In the circumstances, under the Texas law, a second primary is required with all but the two leading candidates eliminated. In the present case this might seem superfluous; it has the merit, however, of making certain that final returns shall always be decisive.

Since Moody ran so far ahead in the recent primary, all indications point to his winning the nomination in the second trial. The governor had accepted defeat and fixed a date for resigning, according to agreement, from her present office. She now has a fine excuse for changing her mind and contesting the second primary but there is little reason for believing that Texas voters will make that an occasion for changing their minds in her favor.

CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE.

"We were told we might find you here," said Des Plaines, and the girls couldn't resist exchanging a glance. He went on: "I leave for Hollywood on Saturday. I am working on a picture now. This one is all set. But I want a competent art director to go right to work on the next one. Will you consider it, Miss Dibble?"

Bee would have gasped if Lou's pleasantly firm face hadn't steadied her. Bee, after all, was quick enough.

"I should have to think about that," said Lou.

The other, Mr. Kapek, spoke: "In the picture business the cat jumps pretty quickly. If it's a matter of salary, there'll be no difficulty."

Bee wondered, rather frantically, if Lou would know how much to ask. It wouldn't be sound tactics to put the figure low. Not with these picture people. They wouldn't respect her.

"I'm afraid I should have to give all that a little thought," said Lou again. "There's something of a future pretty well assured where I am now. And I've enjoyed the work."

"Would three hundred a week interest you?" asked Mr. Kapek, with an engaging smile.

Bee's eyes hung on her friend's face. Did she understand this business? But trust Lou! She wouldn't fumble a business opportunity.

"Of course," said she, with a smile quite as engaging. "I appreciate this proposal. Naturally, I'm greatly pleased that Mr. Des Plaines likes my work and thinks I could help him. But to cut loose from all I've been building up—" She pursed her lips.

"Suppose you give us your figure?" put in Kapek, still smiling.

"You want an immediate answer?"

"I'm afraid we'd have to—" began Kapek, but Des Plaines cut in with a rather bored: "Yes, oh, yes!"

"You see," said Kapek, Mr. Des Plaines would want you to work with him on the train."

"Hmm!" mused Lou. She turned to the secretly admiring Bee. "I suppose you could just as well make the trip you were planning Saturday, Bee. I could simply go along with you. And I suppose I could fix it up somehow at the store I'd have to be fair with them."

"We could get them to release you." Kapek was more eager. "Buy them off if necessary."

"Well—" Lou thought only a moment longer. "I'd do it for five hundred a week and all traveling expenses But only, you understand, subject to a real agreement at the store. And a contract to run not longer than a year."

Kapek glanced at the great director—who, in his turn, merely looked out toward the sidewalk, sighed, and said languidly: "All right."

So it was settled. When the two men had taken their leave, and Lola Green, one of the proprietors of the restaurant, was locking the cash drawer for the night, Lou slowly, thoughtfully got to her feet, came around the table to the stunned Bee, dragged her by main strength to her feet, and whirled her about the room in an exultant dance. Chairs were overturned in that ecstacy, and more than one little table sent careering. When a sugar-bowl crashed on the floor, Lou, calm old Lou, shouted with delight. Breathless explanations drove Lola Green to the pantry for a guarded bottle of chartreuse. And she wouldn't let Lou even pay for the sugar-bowl—carried her reaistance, indeed, to the point of comic physical combat: "On," cried Bee, flopping exhausted into a chair, "I could laugh and cry and scream. I can't believe it. The grand old god Coincidence is right on the job. Lord!"

"Coincidence is always just around the corner," asserted the sometimes florid Lola. "It's the active principle of life, Coincidence. When I write my novel, I'm going to put that title on it. Just 'Coincidence.' For that's Life. It's Life!"

Very early in the morning—this was Thursday—the excitedly wide-awake Bee rode all the way uptown to a hotel for railway folders with glowing color prints of California, and they exulted over these with their breakfast. They were to have a compartment to themselves all the way across the continent. Mr. Kapek was arranging that. Luxury! Luxury, and above all, freedom! A new life in a bright new land! Lou went uptown in high mood to battle it out with Mr. Hargrove at the store.

Bee, then, with aggressive energy in her bare arms and an impudent French song on her lips, set at the task of cleaning up the rooms. There seemed to be a million little things to do. But she didn't mind. She swarmed at them. It was glorious fun. "Freedom," she cried aloud as she fairly jerked a picture from the wall, "with a great big capital 'F'! We've struck it. We've been sports. And now, by thunder, we're going away from here! We win!"

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE.

LEO

Today's planetary aspects are of such a nature as to encourage optimism and fearlessness, and the signs denote ultimate success for all those who take advantage of the favorable conditions in order to launch any new undertaking or engage in any fresh enterprise. Risky and speculative operations should be eschewed, as, these are doomed to failure. Towards the latter part of the afternoon, there will be sensed some influences not conducive to harmony and, at this time, it would be wise to seek relaxation from concentrated effort and to centre your attention more on reviewing what has been done than on actual accomplishment. It is a propitious occasion for travel.

Children born today will, during infancy, enjoy normal health, and their physical development will, in no way, be affected by the few minor ailments from which they may suffer. During the adolescent stage, however, they will experience a serious illness that will demand much care and attention. The signs denote that they will attain a healthy adulthood. In disposition, they will be vivacious, alert and full of "pep." They will show a marked preference for outdoor sports and pastimes and will always chafe under restraint. They will learn more by observation than by study. In order to get the best out of these children, it would be advisable to allow them to steer clear of any work of a sedentary nature.

If today is your birthday, you are extremely modest and retiring—too much so, in fact, for your material welfare. You object to all that is blatant or ostentatious, and quite wisly, so, too. If, on the other hand, you were more self-assertive, and not so content "to hide your light under a busbel," you could easily achieve a greater degree of success than that which has, up to the present, attended your efforts. Your temperament is a judicial one and, unlike most people, you can always appreciate the fact that everything has two sides to it—even though the other side may be violently contrary to your own opinion. You are charitable and kind and always willing to concede to an offender the benefit of the doubt.

You lack concentration, and are rather disposed to leave a task unfinished, in order to tackle another one. You are reserved and cautious, and do not have many congenial friends as your inherent timidity repels rather than attracts. You are very affectionate, but undemonstrative.

Successful people born this date are:

Sidney Edgerton, congressman and governor.

George W. Warren, organist-composer.

Peter Collier, scientist.

Michael A. Corrigan, acbbishop of New York.

Laura de F. Gordon, lawyer and journalist.

Julia Marlowe (Tager), actress.

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Shall the College Student Become Engaged Now or Give the Girl a Chance to Make a Better Match?

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man in college, very much in love with a girl who, I feel sure, returns my affection. Shall we become engaged? I am afraid to have her wait for me for fear that when I have finished my college career, which will take several years more, my fancy will be turned to a younger girl and that I will have lost my love for her. I do not wish to be unfair to the girl, for she is now at the age when she could make the best match. What advice do you give? J. N. R.

Answer:
Spoken like a gentleman.

It is not often that the man in love considers the woman's side of the case and the injustice that he may be doing her by asking her to stake her whole life's happiness on the gamble of what he may or may not feel three or four years hence. Yet it is a vital matter to the girl, because her youth is the brief day of sunshine in which a woman must make her matrimonial hay and provide herself with a home and a husband if she is to have them at all.

From 18 to 25 is the time when a maiden is most attractive to men. Between those two milestones almost every girl can find a husband, but after that she strikes the trail where eligible men are few and far between. It is, therefore, a cruelly selfish thing for a man to prevent a girl from marrying while the marrying is good in order to wait for him on the supposition that he may still want her somewhere in the indefinite future.

Very often he doesn't want her when the time comes for him to make good, and he either throws her over, a jilted old maid whose romance days are over, or else he marries her from a sense of duty, and she finds herself that most forlorn of all creatures, an unloved and unwanted wife.

It is particularly foolish for a young man who is just starting on a college course to tie himself up in a long engagement, because he is so very sure to repent of it. The very thing he goes to college for is to enlarge his vision, cultivate his taste, give him a broader point of view. Part of his education is his association with the clever young women students he meets in college circles.

His new environment molds him into a different man, and when he goes back home the odds are tremendously against his looking at the girl he left behind him with the same eyes with which he beheld her when he was starting off to college.

If it does a chap any good to get his sentiments off his chest by telling a girl he loves her, well and good. Let him do so. And it is always a pleasure and a comfort to a girl to lend an ear to any man who yearns to tell her how he adores her. But unless there is the certainty of the wedding bells ringing in the near future the matter should drop with merè soft talk.

It is better for the man to go unfettered on his way and it is a million times better for the girl not to be bound. And if they really have for each other the love that will stand separation and absence, then when they finally plight their troth it is with the assurance that they are going to marry each other because they want to and not because they are fulfilling an old contract of which one or the other is weary.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

SOME GOOD TO SAY

If one can only say a word to make the face of sadness smile.
If someone else has only heard our singing for a little while,
We need not say when day is done that all the day was lived in vain,
I think the day that paid me best was not the day I made the most,
Though those were days I thought
were blest and those the things
I like to boast.
And yet the dollar that I made another morning I shall spend—
I know that I was better paid some quiet day I made a friend.

We cannot always win the race, we cannot always fortune find,
But I have never seen a place that had no chances to be kind.
Whatever shadows may have crossed my path along life's troubled way,
I shall not think the day is lost if
I have found some good to say.

WILLIE WILLIS

"The reason we had chicken for dinner was because papa said he bet I couldn't take a rock an' bean the old hen that was scratchin' in the garden."

I'M THE GINK

I'm the gink who tells everything in "confidence." I never hold an ordinary conversation. Everything is in confidence. Of course, the joke of it is that I go about telling everyone the same thing, but all "in confidence." I am quite a pest and annoy people a lot. They don't want to listen to my silly confidences, but I make them. I pull them aside and hold an arm while I deal in confidences, cheap gossip and the like. I feel that I am quite important with such knowledge that must be told in confidence. That's why I tell everyone.

CANADIANS PINCH AMERICANS

Aviators Land Across Border Without Telling Authorities.

EMERSON, Manitoba, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Two Americans who landed in Canada with an airplane were arrested by the Royal Canadian Mounted police, fined and their plane seized when they failed to report to immigration authorities.

James A. Kilbane, St. Paul, was fined $200 and costs, and Fred Wiltmore, Minneapolis, $10 and costs. They were charged with entering Canada by stealth.

The plane was seized near Lancaster, Manitoba, after a tip was received from United States customs officers.

Preparations were being made to land a cargo of liquor.

BOLSHEVIK IDEAL FALLS

Kameneff Replaced as Commissar of Trade By Mere Youth.

MOSCOW, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Another Bolshevik ideal has fallen. Leon B. Kameneff commisar of trade, once member of the so-called Triumvirate which rules Russia and one of the principals of the communist world has been replaced by a mere youth, M. Mikoian of Tiflis, a friend of M. Stalin, head of the communist party.

Even old time communists were startled to hear that the young Georgian, relatively unknown, had been given such a vital position in soviet national economy. But Stalin, a shrewd Georgian apparently is determined to place his own trusted lieutenants in important positions in the government.

UNALASKA, Alaska, Aug. 14.—More than 100 years ago a small white flower, declared to grow only on this island of the Aleutian group, was found near here. The bloom was first reported by a Frenchman who accompanied a party known as the Kotzebue expedition to this island in 1815-19. Five other parties came to hunt for it and left empty handed.

DEATH MOTIVE UNSOLVED YET

Mangled San Antonio Man Identified, Other Clues Blank

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Identification of the body of a young man found near Lyttle with his throat, wrists, and ankles cut, was made here Monday as that of Edward Quigley, 32, who had been missing from his home in San Antonio since Saturday morning.

While deputy sheriffs here looked for two men seen with Quigley in a cafe in Lyttle late Saturday officers there headed by Justice of the Peace H. L. Riley were trying to unravel other baffling angles of the case.

Though no motive why Quigley should have been slain has been found, Riley said Monday, unless Quigley had been purposely killed, he could find no other explanation for the fact the body was found face down, 30 feet from the place where Quigley evidently bled to death.

No blood stains on the ground between the two places, Riley said, indicated the man could not have rolled or crawled after his throat had been cut.

On the ground around the scene, Mr. Riley said, there were also signs of a struggle.

The body was found by Manuel Carillo a few yards off of the Erio City road within the corporate limits of Lyttle, Mr. Riley said, and circumstances indicate, he must have gone direct to the scene of his death from the Lyttle restaurant.

Robbery could not have been a motive for his murder, since, according to officers, $15 was found in the dead man's clothing.

Woman's Blood To Save Long-Termer

DALLAS, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The blood of a Dallas woman is to send an escaped prisoner, Clarence (Red) Whalen, back to 70 years in the state penitentiarly at Huntsville.

The woman, a stranger to Whalen, today gave 500 centimeters of her blood to the man, who Saturday night accidentally shot himself in the leg with a shot gun as he was about to surrender after being at large since last November.

Whalen's leg was amputated yesterday. Today he faced death or a blood transfusion. When Whalen's lawyer, Judge W. L. Crawford, who defended him at his trial for robbing a grocery store for which he was sentenced to 70 years imprisonment, came this time to save his life even though that meant the prison from which he failed to save him before.

He located the woman who was willing to submit to a blood transfusion. The operation was performed this morning and doctors say Whalen will live. He will be taken back to Huntsville as soon as he recovers.

THE service that you have to offer should be advertised here. There are many readers who are probably seeking a good man or reliable firm to do some work for them—Classified phone 4121.

ATTRACTIVE WOMEN
If You Would Be Attractive You Must Be Healthy

A beautiful woman is always admired. There are many types of beauty. But no woman can be truly beautiful unless she is healthy. Radiant vitality is always attractive however plain a woman's features may be.
Many a woman has found her health improved through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Weakness, loss of weight, and a pale complexion were a few things of which Mrs. J. C. Taylor of Box 211, Tallahassee, Florida, complained before she started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. "I could not even sit down and talk to a friend for any length of time," she states. "I would forget what I was talking about and felt so blue." Mrs. Taylor is so pleased with the work of the Vegetable Compound that she keeps a bottle of it in the house at all times—and when it is empty, her husband makes sure that she has a new bottle. "I have regained my strength," Mrs. Taylor writes, "I can do all my housework now and I feel just fine."

IN PERMANENT STORAGE

Once upon a time, in the middle part of the state of Georgia, there lived a banker who was known far and wide as the Human Safety Clutch. In his day he was accused of many things, but nobody ever charged him with being a spendthrift. His home was on a plantation a mile from town. One Sunday he remembered that he had left some important papers on his desk and he gave an aged negro servitor on the place his keys and sent him for the documents.

It was a hot day and the road was dusty, but in an hour the old darky had returned with the papers intact. The owner felt in all his pockets, one after the other.

"That's too bad, Uncle Jim," he said, finally; "I thought I had a nickel here that I was going to give you."

"Cap'n Henry," said Uncle Jim, "you look again. Ef ever you had a nickel you got it yit."

Dynamite Tom Cops Run Getters' Prize, P. Lapan Wins Runner-Up Award

WELDON PRESENTS GIFTS THIS AFTERNOON AT SPUDDER-BUFF GAME, KIEFER DUE TO TAKE MOUND

Following an off-day Monday which was an "off" day in more ways than one for several of the noble athletes who went fishing and got caught in the rain, the Spudders resume diamond activities with the Houston Buffs this afternoon on the Gardner greensward. Game starts at 4 o'clock.

Harlem Joe Kiefer stacks up as Manager Williams' probable pitching pick.

Shortly before game time Judge Finley Weldon will rule over prize-presentation ceremonies held for the Spudders who drove in the most runs the past 30 days closing with Sunday's double header here with Beaumont.

A handsome strap watch offered by Zale Jewelry company will be awarded the athlete who was responsible for the most runs, taking it on a game for game average. A cash prize of $30 made up by Lee Wilson, Fred Brainard and Prez Alvin Gardner wil be given the runner-up.

Judge Weldon, of course, is expected to make a flowery presentation discourse.

Dynamite Tom Jenkins cops the time piece, but only by a slim margin over peppery Peter Lapan, socking Spudder backstop. Figuring the runs scored on the basis of an average per game, Jenkins knocked .966 runs each contest. Tom participated in 50 games over the 30-day span, batting in 29 runs. Lapan, playing in 17 games in four of which he batted but once, serving as a pinch hitter, drove in 16 runs for a .941 average.

Benton and Lamb came third, each playing 30 games and each knocking in 21 runs. Their average per game is seventh-tenths runs. The third placers will not be awarded.

Runs batted in over the 30-day span were:

Jenkins 29, Lamb 21, Benton 21; Turgeon 17, Lapan 16, Metzler 15; LaFayette 13, DeFate 9, Query 5; Fitzgerald 4, Williams 3, Roberts 3, Kiefer 2, Estell 1, Hodge 1, Ross 1.

CARDS WIN IN FINAL FRAME

Bottomley Singles Across Run That Breaks 4-4 Tie

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Bottomley's single in the ninth inning with the bases filled and two out broke a tie and enabled the Cardinals to win the final game of the series from the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 4 here today. Wilson, Cub centerfielder, tied the score in the eighth by poling out his second home run of the game scoring Heathcote ahead of him. The Cubs tried hard but failed to score in the ninth. Heathcote got a home run in the third.

Bud Beats Bud In Red Sox 7-1 Win

BOSTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Reaching his brother Milton, for a triple in the second inning with three on base, Alex Gaston, Red Sox catcher, started Boston on the road toward a 7 to 1 victory over the St. Louis Browns. Haney cleaned the bases with another triple in the third. The game was called in the seventh because of rain. By bunching their hits in the late innings of the first game, the Browns won, 6 to 1. The fielding of Regan was brilliant in both contests. Score:

License Denied Jack Dempsey

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey's application for a license to fight Gene Tunney here September 16 today was denied by the state license committee until he has complied with the state Athletic commission's order that he meet the negro, Harry Wills, first.

The resolution of the license board recited that Dempsey must present articles for a bout with Wills to take place before he meets any other man in order to receive recognition in this state.

This decision followed receipt of an opinion from Attorney General Ottinger in Albany stating that the license body was not within its power in refusing a license to the heavyweight champion after he had been declared eligible by the state athletic commission.

Rickard said tonight that the Tunney-Dempsey fight will take place in New York and that he will not present the matter of the champion's license to the courts, but that the athletic commission undoubtedly will take that action.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP)—Gene Tunney, heavyweight challenger of Jack Dempsey, took a brief respite from his ring at his training quarters here today in order to get in a few hours of road work.

Not until Wednesday will the challenger climb back into the ring, when, it was indicated, additional sparring partners may be on hand. Tunney is now down to 191 pounds.

Visitors to the training camp today found that Tunney's black eye, which caused considerable comment among the thousands of persons here yesterday, had disappeared. Tunney was said to have received it in a collision with Bud Gorman, one of his sparring partners.

Mantell, Mean As Ever; Would Pick On Humble Sports Ed As Referee

Dutch Mantell, Matty Matsuda's more than ample annoyance and a rough and tumble person who has served as a source of agitation for a multitude of clean-sport loving wrestling fans nearly two decades, has shoved his presence on the Wichita Falls populace again.

The Amarillo ape-man blew into the city Sunday, popping off promiscously and bellowing deep basso peeves apparently at the world in general. The reaction from the first unpleasant shock received upon seeing the burly midget trudging down an Indiana street sidewalk steaming at the gills was to take no notice of him and to say still less.

The sports editor of The Record News endeavored to overlook Mantell's arrival, hence carried no comment in his Monday morning columns. But the wild and woof-woof one is a persistent and very insistent sort of person.

After listening to numerous threats against the mat fraternity at large and local favorites in particular; after hearing the boisterous Dutch boast that he was not afraid of anything that could stand up and bark; that he is here to "shut up these birds who're running off the mouth about me scared to meet this Romonoff or this Gorman," the writer capitulated out of self defense and in order to put the damper on further vocal disturbance for the time being, at least, in his office.

So Dutch is here. Just as loud and mean as ever! In fact, he seems worse than on his last excursion this way a couple or so months back.

He's come to wrestle Billy Romonoff, the aerialist, admits Bill is "a tough cookie," but says his favorite old submarine sock should more than even conditions. Dutch is getting rough even before the match begins.

They tangle Thursday night in the Eleventh and Ohio arena and Dutch is particular who the referee is. Declares he isn't running any risk of letting the local matchmaker "frame me." Dropped gentle things about drafting a certain sports writer as third man in the ring, but was not clever enough in the manner he put his hint. There isn't any doubt but that he would delight in coercing one certain sports writer in between the same ropes with him. That's obvious.

50 PLAY FOR HELEN'S TITLE

Mary Browne Wins From Veteran Wallach In Straight Sets

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 16.—(AP)—More than 50 players today drew their racquets in quest of the national women's tennis crown relinquished by Helen Wills, with six seeded stars scoring decisive straight set triumphs.

s Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, and Miss Mary K. Browne, veterans of more than a decade's competitions, swept into the second round with other favorites by impressive triumphs, the youthful champion of 1925 sped westward to her home in California after an unsuccessful attempt to regain her stride.

Until Saturday, the three-time titleholder, whose battle against Suzanne Lenglen last winter attracted world wide interest held forth hopes that she would be able to defend her laurels. But the task of recovering within two months from an operation in Europe proved too much to ask from even so fine a physique as that of Miss Wills, and the colorful touch which her appearances in former years had supplied was missing from the event today.

Elizabeth Ryan, the 35-year-old chop stroke star who vanquished Miss Wills in straight sets at Seabright, N. J., more than a week ago, was not called upon to play today. But Mrs. Malory, whose victory over Miss Wills last Friday established her as Miss Ryan's outstanding rival for the crown, defeated Mrs. F. H. Godfrey of Boston, 6-0, 6-1.

Miss Browne yielded only two games to the Newport, R. I., veteran, Mrs. Maude Barger Wallach, sta 6-0, 6-2.

Eleanor Goss of New York, Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., Mrs. A. H. Chapin of Springfield, Mass., and Miss Penelope Anderson, of Richmond, Va., were other seeded stars to advance without being pressed.

Rain Balks Civic Club Ball Teams

Rains, four or five of 'em during the afternoon, or maybe it was just one of 'em falling intermittently, thwarted Lions and Optimists in their sworn purpose to get at each other's throats on the baseball field of battle Monday at Spudder park.

But that's no surmountable hindrance. The warring aggregations intend tangling up anyhow, sooner or later. It was announced last night they will meet at Spudder orchard Thursday, August 26.

—how do you explain it?

Natural tobacco taste that's the answer!

It's a difference hard to put into words—but it takes no expert to taste it. Character; natural tobacco character, natural good taste—get that in a cigarette and you get everything!

RAIN BREAKS WARM SPELL

Local Shower Half Inch Or More, Electra Has Deluge

The intense heat wave which has hovered over this section for several weeks was definitely broken Monday afternoon by the visitation of a heavy shower beginning early Monday morning and developing into a regular rain about 3 p. m.. The rain storm was accompanied by some lightning of which damage was reported, but was for the most part a gentle summer shower. The total rainfall for the 24-hour period up to 5 p. m. was .48 of an inch, but enough more rain had fallen later to make well over half an inch for this section.

CLOUDBURST AT ALTUS

ALTUS, Okla., Aug. 16.—Rain of cloudburst proportions visited this section late Monday afternoon and did much damage to crops and some damage to buildings and sheds. Within the space of an hour or so 2.06 inches of rain fell, swelling streams and drainage ditches to overflowing and making the streets of this city running streams.

The extent of the damage to crops cannot be estimated, but most of the cotton in this section is insured against storm damage.

HALF INCH AT ELECTRA

ELECTRA, Aug. 16.—A 15-minute cloudburst accompanied by heavy wind brought a total of more than a half an inch of rain to this section Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock, and took a heavy toll of damage in the oil fields in the wrecking of several derricks.

The deluge started about 5 o'clock and so ominous looked the clouds that many people took refuge in their storm cellars. Torrents of water driven by a high wind swamped the oil fields and drove everybody to cover. The Texas company and the Magnolia company lost several derricks in the storm and several more were blown down at Rock Crossing.

Extent of the damage could not be estimated late tonight.

ONLY LIGHT SHOWER

OLNEY, Texas, Aug. 16.—A brief shower which visited this section Monday afternoon gave temporary relief from the heat wave which had become somewhat severe in this section.

SANDI FIGHTS DRAW

DALLAS, Aug. 16.—Sandi Esquivel, former University of Texas Athlete, fighting his fourth professional fight here tonight, was held to a draw by Pug Humphries of Oklahoma City. Esquivel opened a deep cut over Humphries' eye in the fifth round. Both men are welterweights.

Jack Matlock of Dallas, 162 pounds, knocked out Andy Martin of Wichita Falls, 183 pounds in the seventh round of their bout. Matlock had the edge in every round up to the time of the final punch.

In the other battle Dummy Mahan of San Antonio, 141 pounds, decisively outpointed Sailor Murphy, 143 pound champion of the Atlantic fleet. Mahan had Murphy down for a short count in the first round.

Berlin Calls British Scribes Bad Sports

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The Zeitung Ammittag today describes as unsportsmanlike the columns of criticisms belittling Gertrude Ederle's feat in swimming the English channel printed in the Westminster Gazette.

"These unsportsmanlike claims omit one small point—it was only Miss Ederle who was able to observe her time schedule as she is a much faster swimmer than all previous channel swimmers," says the Zeitung Ammittag.

The criticism printed in the Westminster Gazette came from the local newspapers of Dover and Boulogne and consisted of comment by local experts suggesting that Miss Ederle was able to accomplish her channel swim in record time only through the aid and shelter of accompanying tugs.

SUICIDE USE OF DYNAMITE

Blast Rocks Entire Business Section of Arkansas Town

BENTONVILLE, Ark., Aug. 16.—(AP)—A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroners jury today into the death of E. B. Blackaby, 48, clerk of a hardware company, whose body was blown to atoms Sunday morning in an explosion that rocked the business district here.

Ill health was advanced as a probable motive for the act. The explosion occurred in a warehouse in the rear of the hardware company, tearing off sections of the roof and ripping large holes in the floor. Bits of the body were found widely scattered.

Testimony showed that Blackaby entered the warehouse 15 minutes before the blast. A box of dynamite caps was found opened, but several removed.

Stock Prices Open At Higher Levels

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Stock prices opened the new week at generally higher levels, with initial dealings featured by a rise in Chesapeake and Ohio to a new high record near 150. Other representative rail shares were in demand but profit taking caused mild recessions in General Motors, U. S. Steel and other industrial leaders.

The uniformly favorable character of recent domestic trade news was considered responsible for an accumulation of buying orders over the week end which carried a number of specialties to new top prices. Among these were Allied Chemical, General Asphalt, United Cigar Stores and Electric Storage Battery. Trading continued extremely quiet through the early dealings. Railroad issues were firm but failed to make much headway despite the outlook for larger earnings, while oil shares marked time pending the outcome of the Standard Oil of New Jersey meeting today. Profit taking held some of the most popular issues, including General Electric in check. Foreign exchanges opened slightly lower, with sterling, French and Belgian francs all easing off.

STANDARD DECLARES DIVIDENDS

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Directors of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey to the surprise of Wall street today declared the usual quarterly dividends of 25 cents on the common shares and $1.75 on the preferred stock. It had been expected that action would be taken toward the retirement of the preferred stock through the issuance of additional common shares, or that a more liberal dividend policy would be adopted for the common.

Officials attributed the decline to the fact that most of the July rubber was imported at spot prices while imports for June consisted mainly of rubber contracted for months in advance when prices were much higher.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Establishment of a new high record for all time by United States Steel common at 159½ and the revival of activity and strength in the railroad shares, several of which attained their highest prices in a year or longer, featured today's stock market. The general industrial list disclosed considerable irregularity, due to rather extensive profit-taking in recent strong spots and a resumption of Bear attacks.

Wall street was surprised, as well as disappointed, at the failure of the directors of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey to take any action today toward the retirement of the preferred stock. Reports have been current for several weeks that the preferred would be called at 115, the funds to be derived from the sale of a large block of common stock at prices which would give present stockholders valuable subscription rights, and that, in addition, the dividend on the common would be increased.

Only the regular dividend was declared. Standard Oil of New Jersey common yielded only fractionally to 43¾, but several of the other oils, whih had been accumulated recently on the theory that the retirement of Standard Oil of New Jersey preferred would signal the beginning of an "oil market" fell back a point or more.

Dupont registered a loss of 18 points more than half of which was later recovered following the announcement that the directors had increased the quarterly dividend from 2½ to 3½ per cent, and had called a stockholders' meeting to approve a plan for changing the capitalization of the company.

Although the next regular quarterly meeting of the United States Steel directors is still more than two months away, Wall street professed to have information that a 40 or 50 per cent dividend would be declared, which probably explained the demand for that issue. It closed at 158½ up 2¾ net.

Call money held steady at 3½ per cent, banks called about $20,000,000 in loans, but the supply of funds was plentiful all day. Time money and commercial paper held firm.

Active wheat futures dropped 1½ to nearly 3 cents a bushel on selling inspired by the unusually large increase in the visible supply in this country. Cotton rallied 35 to 38 points on reports of widespread insect damage. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee prices held firm.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.85⅓, and French francs ruled just above 2.70 cents.

Grain

FORT WORTH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Contract wheat on the Fort Worth market touched the lowest price in a month during transactions Monday. This new low record was attributed to large receipts over Sunday, little milling demand and large exportations.

Oats and corn were also lower than closing quotations for Saturday, the early bull movement, based upon crop damage reports later proved to be unifounded.

Wheat, No. 1 hard Galveston export 1.41¼; No. 1 dark hard milling 1.43@1.45; No. 1 ordinary hard milling 1.43@1.44; No. 2 red milling 1.47@1.50; No. 1, 75 per cent red milling 1.45@1.47.

Corn, No. 2 white 1.00@1.02; No. 3 white 99@1.01; No. 2 mixed 99@1.01.

Oats, No. 3 red prompt shipment 43½@45; No. 3 red 42½@44. No. 3 barley 62@69; No. 3 milo 1.25@1.30; No. 3 kaffir 1.21@1.25.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Announcement of an unexpectedly big increase of the United States wheat visible supply total did much to pull wheat values downward today, according to Chicago board of trade figures the increase was 10,976,000 bushels over last week's total. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1¼ cents net lower. Corn closed with corn ⅛ to 1⅛ off, oats quarter to three-quarters down and provisions showing seven cents to 55 cents decline.

The main force accelerating the market downgrade was the surprising new enlargement of the domestic visible supply, especially as coming in immediately succession after a similar big increase a week ago.

Something of a rally toward the last in the wheat market resulted from disclosure that 595,000 bushels of wheat had been disposed of here to exporters since Saturday's close.

Corn prices receded owing chiefly to additional rains over the corn belt, and on account of reports indicating that old corn in the hands of Illinois and Indiana farmers was of liberal amount. Oats declined with corn.

Provisions reflected a material downturn in hog values.

HOT DINNER TO PARIS.

Pink Boll Worm Rumor Spiked

Old Cotton Pest Still Here, But Defense Resource Slumps

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 16.—(AP) Texas cotton growers need not fear for the pink boll worm, San Antonio chamber of commerce agricultural officials and A. and M. college entomologists Monday denied reports of the appearance of the cotton pest.

The agricultural and entomologist experts examined specimens said to be infested by the pink boll worm and found the cotton bolls hollow, indicating the pest to be the old boll worm and not the deadly pink boll worm which cuts smooth holes toward the seed.

The supply of calicum arsenate, paris-green and lead arsenate as recommended by the extension service of the A. and M. college, is apparently exhausted, and farmers are in need of another poison for the control of the leaf worm," R. R. Reppert, entomologist, announced.

"As a last resort we are divulging a solution to fight the cotton pest. However, in handling these mixtures the danger to the cotton foliage, as well as to the men and animals, is so great that we decline to accept any responsibility for any injurious results," Reppert said.

"We are giving the necessary information to all county agents, also plans for sprayers in the event of a likely shortage of machinery. Reports from Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee of the appearance of thousands of cotton leaf worms, have compelled us to take this action," Reppert said.

Farmers are being advised to lay a sufficient supply of poison for future use, approximately six pounds to the acre, because eastern factories are unable to supply a tremendous demand on short notice, according to the entomologist.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 16.—(AP)—The cotton market was very active and buoyant today and prices advanced sharply owing to a veritable crop scare due to alarming reports of the spread of insect pests and the damage wrought by them.

These reports were especially numerous from Texas and declared that there was an urgent demand for poisons from every available source of supply. Another stimulating influence was the map showing of general rains over the cotton belt since Saturday and reports received during the day claiming that it was still raining at many points.

As Liverpool was about as dull and early advices showed numerous rains over Sunday the market opened 9 to 15 points higher and although there were some minor reactions during the day the tendency was consistently upward and all active months reached their highest levels in the final trading showing advances over Saturday's close of 57 to 59 points.

The close was near the top, showing net gains for the day of 55 to 57 points.

The market opened 9 to 15 points up but eased off a couple of points right after the call to 16.62 for October and 16.52 for December and 16.50 for January. These prices proved to be the lows of the day. The market soon advanced and on the upgrade all day except for the slight reaction at mid-session. Prices crossed the 17 cent line in the late trading for October and December with the former at 17.10 and the latter at 17.03, or 57 to 59 points above Saturday's close. January came within a point of reaching the 17 cent line at 16.99, or 57 points over the previous close. The market closed virtually at the top.

A private authority estimated the condition at 68.5 and the indicated yield at 15,787,000 bales.

Exports for the day totalled 20,862 bales.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed steady at net advance of 35 to 38 points.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—(AP)—An advance of approximately $2.00 a bale occurred in the cotton market today on increasing apprehensions of crop deterioration as a result of insect activities in the south. December contracts, which had sold off to 16.08 last Friday, advanced to 16.93 today, or 43 points above Saturday's closing quotations and closed at a net advance of 35 to 38 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 2 to 11 points in response to higher Liverpool cables and reports of showery weather in the south over Sunday. After showing net gains of 16 to 2 realizing and there was a little forenoon selling on the first of the private midmonth crop reports.

This placed the condition as of August 9 to 69.5 compared with 68.7 two weeks previously and the indicated crop at 15,787,000 bales, compared with the end-July indications of 14,842,000.

Comparatively small offerings were soon absorbed and the market showed increasing strength and activity after publication of the daily weather details showing showers at many points in the south. The showery weather was considered likely to stimulate insect activities further and the fear of damage from pests of one kind or another probably was promoted by claims that supplies of poison available were hardly sufficient to meet the urgent demand.

October sold up to 16.94 and January to 16.97 with active months generally net advances of 38 to 42 points in late trading and closing within 4 or 5 points of the best.

Private cables reported trade calling and Manchester buying in Liverpool.

Exports today 20,862, making 131,024 so far this season. Port receipts 15,971; U. S. port stocks 633,077.

DALLAS SPOTS

DALLAS, Aug. 16.—Spot cotton steady 40 up; middling 17.50; sales 3,313 bales.

HOUSTON, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Spot cotton 40 up; middling 17.45; sales 1317 bales.

QUITE SHOCKING

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Aug. 16.—The police are to order girls in knickers to go home and put on skirts. Some of the residents have been shocked by fair New York visitors to the Berkshires rolling 'em up and down so as to reveal the knees.

HALE CASE IS NEAR THE END

Defendant Is One of Last Witnesses to Face The Court

GUTHRIE, Okla., Aug. 16.—(AP)—The end of the long-drawn trial in federal court here of William K. Hale, ranchman, and John Ramsey, cowboy-former, for the murder of an Osage Indian, Henry Roan, tonight seemed to be in sight.

With the exception of witnesses whose testimony will be brief, the defense rested its case late today.

Hale, his wife and a Dr. Prentiss of Fairfax, were the last witnesses. Their testimony was given with an intent to impeach that of Ernest Burkhart, Hale's nephew, who has been a star witness.

Burkhart is under life sentence in the state penitentiary for his confessed connection with another crime in which he charged Hale of being the principal—the dynamiting of the home of W. E. Smith in Fairfax, in which three persons were killed.

TAX CHARGE GROUNDLESS

FORT WORTH, Aug. 16.—(AP)—Tax payers who brought suit to oust the city manager and city council are "howling before they are hit." City Manager O. E. Carr declared in a statement issued Monday. Alleged unreasonable tax assessments were given as a cause of action in the suit.

"These complainants could not possibly know what their taxes are going to be because the tax rate has not yet been set and the city budget for the coming fiscal year has not been prepared," Carr said. "Their charges are therefore groundless."

Yeggs' Night's Work Not Vain After All

Yeggs, operating in the city Saturday night and Sunday morning were not so unsuccessful as at first thought, it developed Monday morning when the strong box of the Sanitary market on Seventh street was finally opened and revealed that the thieves had been there first, taking with them more than $300 in cash and a gold watch. After knocking the knob off the safe and gaining entrance to its interior the yegas had slammed the door and locked it, without knob and combination to reopen it when finally locksmiths were procured.

It was feared at first that this had happened also at the Williams dry goods store, but when the safe there, minus knob and combination, was finaly opened, it revealed contents of more than $5,000 cash and checks intact.

Rally Planned For Thursday Night

Plans are being completed for a Moody rally to be held here Thursday night at Bellevue park, according to statement by officials of the Moody-for-Governor club here Monday. A number of local speakers will be procured for the event, which is in line with similar rallies held in other parts of the state in furtherance of the attorney general's run-off campaign against Mrs. Ferguson.

A program will be announced later, it was stated.

Seek Passport To Go To Venezuela

An application for a passport from Mrs. Ruby Edward Parker of Petrolia was received Monday by the United States district clerk. Mrs. Parker will leave New York city about September 1, to join her husband in Venezuela, the application states. She will be accompanied by her two children, Marjorie and Margaret.

Ten Matrimonial Aspirants Monday

There were five marriage licenses issued Monday at the county clerk's office, these going to E. L. Montgomery and Clara Mae Caldwell; Everett Cooner and Bessie Sanders; Fred C. Lester and Effie Parkhurst; N. D. Cooper, San Antonio, and Florence Lee Bass; C. H. Whirlow and Mrs. Clara Seay.

A Big Parade, Barbncue and Boxing Match Scheduled For Labor Day In Wichita Falls

Three big attractions are planned for the Labor Day festivities in Wichita Falls, September 6, by the local leaders on organized labor, any one of which will amply repay anyone for traveling miles to see. A huge Industrial Parade and Labor Day Pageant is the outstanding feature, but following closely in point of popularity will be the big barbecue picnic at the Fair grounds; and last but not least a sporting event for the evening, when, if plans carry out, the famous ring idol of France, Georges Carpenteir, will battle a ten round bout with the best available boxer to be had for the event.

In the big parade there will be a myriad display of industrial exhibitions on floats and a pageant of the ideals of organized labor. More than 100 floats will be ready for the big show, and practically every concern employing organized labor will have a float in the parade.

A carload of beef will be done brown" for the labor members and their friends in the afternoon and this picnic will be followed with a clever Indian costume and tribal dance.

The sporting event is not definitely settled, but favorable responses have been received by inquiries of Georges Carpentier and it is believed that the Frnch Ace will be here to show his skill in the ring against a regular American boxer. Just who will be matched against the Frenchman is as yet problemental, but the best available man will be procured for the event.

Hubby Seeks Divorce, Says "Wife Bobbed Her Hair"

His wife's bobbed hair is made a cause of action for a divorce suit in a petition filed in the 78th district court Monday by an irate husband who alleges that his wife, in an attempt to annoy and harass him, and in direct opposition to his wishes "bobbed her hair." The action constitutes harsh and cruel treatment, he avers and lists it as one reason why the matrimonial bonds between them should be severed.

Among the other instances of "harsh and cruel treatment" cited in the petition is the refusal of his wife to let him kiss their two children good-bye upon their departure on a long visit. The wife is also alleged to have blotted out with ink her likeness in a number of group pictures on the walls of their residence.

The answer of the wife was filed with the suit, a transfer from Archer county, Monday, also. A general denial to the allegations of the plaintiff's petition is entered, and it is asked that the divorce be not granted. As an alternative, however, care and custody of the two minor children and $100 a month alimony is asked.

SCHOOL HOUSES SOON COMPLETE

Bryant Says Three New Bricks Ready For Use By October

Wichita county will have three new brick rural school houses ready for either the start of this school term or for use immediately thereafter, it was stated Monday by Burl Bryant, county superintendent of instruction. The $25,000 building at Cashion should be finished within a few weeks, and ready for the opening of the school term he stated. Two others, a $40,000 building at Valley View and a $10,000 building at Pleasant Valley, should be completed by October 1. The bonds on a fourth, a $20,000 issue voted for City View are in litigation and construction there is being held up acoerdingly.

The buildings are all being so constducted that additions can be made from time to time as attendance warrant them, Mr. Bryant says. The rural school construction program being carried out in Wichita county this year, he stated, is the equal of that of any county in the state.

YOUTHS' JUNK SALES CURBED

New Ordinance Makes Parental Approval Necessary to Deal

Youngsters' trading of "junk" for pennies—coin of the realm for all their modesty—must bear the sanction of parents henceforth, according to the wording of the city's new "junk" ordinance as passed on its first reading at the city council meeting Monday night.

The ordinance requires a written certificate of permission for the sale of every article accepted by a junk dealer from anyone under 21 years of age, such certificate to be kept on file for six months. It must be signed by either of the parents of the minor, the ordinance states.

Junk dealers are divided into two classes by the ordinance, classes "A" and "B," the first class being those maintaining a permanent place of business and the second including itinerents. A license of $50 is required for the first class and $12 for the second.

A written record of all articles sold and purchased must be maintained and opened to police inspection at all times, according to the ordinance.

There was no opposition to its first passage Monday night. It is understood that it will be taken up again next Monday night and then for the third time on the Monday after that.

Mrs. Sherman's Bond Is Set at $1,000

Mrs. P. J. Sherman of Corpus Christi waived preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace O. L. Gibbs Monday morning on the charge of assault with attempt to murder in connection with the shooting of Mrs. Mary George last week. Mrs. Sherman's bond was set at $1,000; this she had not completed Monday night, her attorney stating that no effort would be made to perfect it pending word from her father-in-law, father of her husband, in Colorado.

Sherman, her husband, in company with Mrs. George at the time of the shooting, arranged a bond for himself of $500 Saturday on the misdemeanor charge on which he was being held.

Mrs. George, it was reported at the General hospital, Monday, is constantly improving and is past danger. She was shot four times, all the bullets entering her abdomen and legs.

Mayor Thinks Ordinance May Solve Business Encroachment

An idea, which according to Mayor R. E. Shepherd may solve the city's problems of the encroachment of business buildings in purely residential sections of the city, was broached by that official at the Monday night meeting of the city coucil and may bear fruit, it developed, within in the next week or so, in a proposed ordinance for that body's consideration.

Mr. Shepherd stated that a number of cities of the state and other states had ordinances prohibiting the building for residences or other buildings within twenty or thirty feet of the side-walk in residential sections. Such an ordinance here he stated, would probably have the first effect of discouraging business building in the purely residential sections, and in the other event would tend to make their construction in harmony with surrounding residences.

Round-table descussion that followed presentation of the idea was favorable to the plan, and the city attorney, W. E. George, was instructed to investigate its possibilities.
