WEALTH AND POWER MEAN NOTHING-WHAT WE GIVE COUNTS-NEFF

We Pass Through Life But Once, Do Something That Will Live After You've Gone, Governor Tells Packed House Here Sunday

"If the bone and sinew of the land would exert their power for righteousness, our laws, our government and our civilization would be but the life of the golden rule.

"Carve your name high above the shifting sands of life—build your pyramids skyward—do something for your fellowman, for all you can hold in your cold dead hands is what you have given away.

"Let us live by the side of the road and be a friend to man, for 'whatsoever is true, and whatsoever is honest, and whatsoever is pure, and whatsoever is lovely, and whatsoever is of good report, think on these things,' and if we do that, as we go through this life but one time, then when the hour comes to stand below the golden glow of life's setting sun, we can each of us say life's deed's well done, life's race well run."

1500 Hear Governor.

Thus spoke Pat M. Neff, governor of Texas, in his initial address Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Wichita theater of a series of non-political speeches which he will make throughout the Panhandle. A crowd estimated at between 1,500 and 1,800 persons, which overflowed the seating capacity of the theater and occupied all the standing room of the building responded to his version of "Man, the Masterpiece, Passes Through This World But Once" with repeated encoring.

Met at the train by 250 persons, Governor Neff went direct to the home of Charles Crowell, 1110 Monroe, whose wife is the chief executive's niece.

As he walked on the stage of the theater, the crowd arose until Governor Neff had been seated.

Called Best Governor.

Introduced by Judge J. T. Montgomery, who said that "Governor

Simonds Is Wrong—
Alice's Way—
The Cotton Crop—

By H. N. F.

FRANK H. SIMONDS, FAmous war correspondent and writer of war history, does not appear to know it all. Before the Genoa conference had been organized he predicted that it would be the end for Lloyd George. After the conference had been organized and the news had been announced that Germany and Russia had formed an economic pact Mr. Simonds declared that it was the finish of Lloyd George but the little Welshman lives on, ever an opportunist and ever doing his best to advance the fortunes of the British empire. There is a Waterloo coming some day to the prime minister but he appears to have more political lives than a cat has had narrow escapes. He is never discouraged, never at loss for an excuse, ever resourceful and ever smiling. More than this he is the sole survivor in power of the Titans who were in control of affairs in all the years of the world war.

CONGRESSLADY ALICE ROBertson of Oklahoma has defied the woman's organization known as the Independent Voters' league. This league is very much like the Mexican army in days of old—many officers and few privates. Miss Alice says the generals of the league attempted to dictate to her and attempted to tell her just how she should vote. Being a Christian and a political martyr instead of telling them to go to the hot place she told them to get out of her sight and go hence. Of course a rose under any other name would have smelled just as strongly of fire and brimstone.

SHOULD GET FAIR PRICE.

According to the Washington Correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger at least 600 million dollars will be realized by planters of the Southeastern states from the 1922 cotton crop. This, he says, is a minimum estimate. The survey shows that if raw cotton prices advance in the next six months in the same proportion since last fall the return to farmers of the south may run up to nearly one billion dollars. Mankind is consuming cotton at the rate of 19 million bales a year of which about one-third is used in the United States. This is an advance of about 26 per cent over a year ago. Demand for raw cotton is increasing steadily in Germany, France, Italy, Japan, China and throughout central Europe. Since July first exports of raw cotton totaled more than 4 million bales. Japan has increased 350 per cent her purchases of American cotton. Germany bought at

CARLOCK HEADS PRESS

By Associated Press.

AMARILLO, Texas, April 23.—E. A. Carlock of the Paducah Post was today elected president of the Panhandle Press association at the closing session of a two day convention. L. P. Loomis of the Candian Record was elected vice-president and Frank R. Jamison, secretary-treasurer. The convention invited the 1924 session of the Texas Press association to meet in Amarillo, which is the permanent meeting place of Panhandle editors.

COAL SUPPLY IS NOW SUFFICIENT

Strikebreakers Fill All Demands

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Lack of demand, rather than strike conditions, continues to hold down bituminous coal production, according to the latest figures assembled by the United States Geological survey. Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, however, the output jumped to above 11,000 cars per day, against 7,971 cars Monday, the low point registered by the effect of Easter holidays. For the week ending April 15 the bituminous output of the country was placed at 9,675,000 tons and the survey report observed that "More coal could be produced if the demand should increase," since the full capacity of non-union field has not yet been brought out.

From the union standpoint, "The strike is running along in a normal fashion," the United Mine Workers declared in a statement today. Efforts to get non-union miners to join their organized craft, fell, but otherwise they were asserted to be progressing more satisfactorily with approximately 80,000 of them out now, "and good reason for the prediction that coming week will add 25,000 more."

Legion Discusses Finances and Work For Service Men

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 23.—Discussion of the financial conditions of the organization the unemployment work and the taking of a service census occupied the time of the executive committee and post commandants and adjutants of the American legion today concluding a two day meeting at Camp Mabry.

No definite action was taken by the legionnaires but ideas exchanged and suggestions made as to operation of the agencies of the local posts.

The finances of the legion were discussed thoroughly and it was decided to leave it up to the finance committee to work out a plan for strengthening the organization's financial footing.

The purpose of the meeting was accomplished, according to opinion of the legionnaires, that being for the exchange of ideas and to "get together."

RED RIVER CASE TO KEEP SUPREME COURT BUSY DURING WEEK

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The legality of the statutory gas rate in New York during 1920, 1921 and to date in 1922, the marking of the boundary between Texas and Oklahoma and the questioning of title to valuable oil properties in the Red river promise to monopolize a large part of the time of the supreme court during the coming week, and probably will close such argument during the present session.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., April 23.—James Dicke, 75, pioneer shipbuilder of San Francisco, died here late yesterday after an illness of several months.

BAR KLANSMEN FROM OKLAHOMA NATIONAL GUARD

Order Points Out Possibilities of Future

By Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., April 23.—A general order directed specifically against the Ku Klux Klan and declaring that there is no room in the Oklahoma National Guard for any officer or man who owes an allegiance to any power, secret organization or society that might become arrayed against the United States or the state of Oklahoma and its laws was issued here yesterday by Governor J. B. A. Robertson and made public today.

Proof Furnished

The order sets out that what purports to be proof has been furnished the governor and adjutant general that a number of officers of the guard hold memberships in the Ku Klux Klan and declares that no member of the national guard "can afford to stultify himself or bring the service under suspicion by swearing allegiance to any society that at any time may come under the ban of the law, and which the national guard may be called to suppress.

"There can be no compromise in the matter and if there are officers or men in the Oklahoma National guard who have become involved by membership in any organization whose purpose and principles might conflict with their duty to the state and nation, then he must immediately foreswear the organization or get out of guard."

The order was characterized by Governor Robertson as a "warning" for officers and enlisted men rather than an outgrowth of any "particular condition."

One Officer is Member

Adjutant General Charles F. Barrett said today that thus far only one officer has been directly involved in alleged Ku Klux Klan activities. This officer has been relieved from duty and ordered to report to the adjutant general's office at the capitol, he said. Action in the case, Barrett added, would depend upon the officer himself and this principle will be followed in dealing with any similar cases. Should the officer exhibit hostility at the governor's order and refuse to retire from the guard he will be tried by court martial, the adjutant general said.

Summary discharge from the guard of members who refuse to renounce Ku Klux Klan affiliation is the only alternative, Barrett said.

"We have no quarrel with the Ku Klux Klan, but we demand that our men be loyal and this cannot be if they are oath-bound to an order demanding their separate allegiance."

STRIKE TO GRIP IRELAND TODAY

Militarism Will Be Denounced

By Associated Press.

DUBLIN, April 23.—Advices received from the country regions indicate that there will be universal observance throughout southern Ireland of the one-day general strike called for tomorrow Trains from the north are not expected to pass over the boundary, and the sailing of cross channel vessels will be suspended.

The postmaster general desired to maintain a limited telephone and telegraph service for official hospital purposes but the postal union has objected to this.

A mass meeting of the labor party will be held at noon tomorrow in O'Connell street. Addresses in denunciation of militarism in Ireland will be delivered from three platforms.

At six o'clock in the evening Eamon De Valera, is due to address a meeting at Boland Mills, on the occasion aof the anniversary of the battle there in Eastern week, 1916. De Valera commanded a division during this battle and was the last man to surrender.

ARBUCKLE SAYS HE'LL PROVE HE'S ENTITLED RETURN TO MOVIES

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—Roscoe C. (Fatty) Arbuckle proposes to prove by his conduct that he is entitled to return to motion picture work, according to a statement he issued here late today. Arbuckle said this was to be his only comment on the cancellation of contracts for the showing of his films, at the request of Will H. Hays, head of the Motion Picture Producers association.

STATESMEN OUTSIDE ROYAL PALACE OUTSIDE GENOA MEET

Here is one of the first photographs received from Italy since the opening of the Genoa conference. It was made outside the royal palace where the sessions are being held. In the group are Premier Lloyd George, Sir Worthington-Evans, Sir Robert Horne, Signor Facta, the Italian premier, and Signor Schanzer, the Italian Foreign Minister.

BLANTON SHOWS BOOZE FLASK HERE TONIGHT

Fiery Solon Hits City Talking About His Graft Charge

Tonight Wichitans will have their first glimpse of the now nationally-famed whiskey flask which Congressman Thomas L. Blanton recently exhibited as an example of petty graft by congressmen, and as a sample of what may be purchased as stationery by a congressman, whereby bringing down the wrath of his combined colleagues upon his head.

Armed with the flask, and with his other exhibits, the Abilene congressman arrived Sunday night and announced that he would speak at the Wichita county court house at 8 o'clock tonight.

Here To Clear Name.

"Please don't connect this visit with my sister's campaign," were among his first words to newspaper reperesentatives. "I am making these speeches to clear by name of charges which have been brought against it, and I am trying to show the people the truth of the fight I am making. I just want my sister to be able to make her campaign without any connection with my fight."

The presence of the whiskey flask with the exhibits which he brought here was acknowledged in answer to a question. "I have brought some other exhibits with me," he replied noncommittantly in answer to queries as to what else he might have.

"I am fighting a fight which makes a man unpopular—a fight to stop waste and extravagance in petty graft along with the big graft," he said. "There's $800,000,000 in the shipping board. Every well posted congressman knows that.

"But how are we going to stop it when we have the little petty graft among ourselves?"

He praised President Harding's "clean up" of the Bureau of Engraving & Printing, a "clean up" for which he said he had been striving for five years. He attributed the

HOW'S YOUR HEART?

EMPORIA, Kan., April 23.—"It's often said of a man: 'His heart's in the right place.'"

It's true of L. C. Ellis og Clay Center, for when he recently walked into a doctor's office for an examination the physician found that his heart was on the right side. Not only that but the positions of all his vital organs were reversed.

FLAGSHIP TO BE TROD BY CURIOUS

(By International News Service.)

LONDON, April 23.—H. M. S. Victory, Nelson's flagship at Trafalgar, has made its last voyage.

The Victory has been ordered into drydock, and in the future her decks will be trod by curious sightseers and not by the men of the British navy.

ARTIST CANNOT BOSS AND ALSO BATTLE FOR SPOTLIGHT MARY FINDS

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Mary Garden announced tonight, her retirement as director general of the Chicago Opera company, a position which she has held for the last year.

"I am an artist and I have decided that my place is with the artists, not over them," she declared in a statement which was taken as an indication that she would remain with the organization as a singer.

"When Mr. Harold McCormick bestowed the honor on me, naming me director general of the Chicago Opera company," the statement continued, "it was understood that I would hold the position for a year which meant the end of the reign of Mr. and Mrs. as heads of the company.

"The new civic organization, through its president, elected me again as general director, which honor I now decline, my fighting spirit telling me to stay, but my reason bids me to go."

MILLION DOLLAR RAIN IN TEXAS

Stamford Folk Smile Over Showers

Rain began falling in Wichita Falls shortly after midnight Saturday and continued until daylight, with intermittent showers during the afternoon.

The precipitation is reported to have been general throughout this section. The rain was continuous for several hours.

RAINFALL VALUED AT MILLION DOLLARS.

Special to the Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, April 23.—Two and three-one hundredths inches of rain fell here during the early hours of the morning.

With the weather unsettled, the rain extended over a wide territory and is regarded as general. However, reports indicate that it did go west as far as Spur, but general in other directions. The rain came in good time here as the farmers were about through with their planting and were beginning to need rain.

The slowness of the rain made it more helpful, in fact, it was one of those made-to-order affairs and will be worth millions to this section of the state.

THOMAS' DAUGHTER ORGANIZES WORKERS

Special to the Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 23.—Miss Margaret Thomas, daughter of Cullen F. Thomas, candidate for the United States senate and O. O. Touchstone, Thomas campaign manager, Saturday met with a group of about 20 leading Austin Thomas supporters, and outlined the plan of the campaign. A Travis County Thomas club was then organized by the local committee.

An innovation in the senatorial race has been Miss Thomas' active and responsible part in her father's campaign. Several of the candidates have women campaign workers, but it remained for Miss Thomas, who is credited with being one of the best informed young women of Texas on political and government affairs, to take a leading part in the organization of a statewide campaign, not as a political worker, but simply to advance her father's race.

NEW ORLEANS, April 23.—A break in the Mississippi river levees at Myrtle Grove, thirty miles south of New Orleans, today flooded more than six thousand acres of sugar cane plantations with an estimated damage of $1,000,000.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 23.—Many plantations back of Reel Foot levee, south of Hickman, Ky., are deserted tonight following additional caving of the river bank outside the levee.

CAIRO, Ills., April 23.—A day and night shift of about 70 men each, has been required to control the levee south of Maunie.

MAN PLUNGES TO DEATH IN OCEAN

Murder Theory Fails To Stand Up

By Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23.—The death of George L. Davis, well known railroad organizer of the northwest, whose body was found on the ocean beach near Muscle Rock, south of here, yesterday, may not have been a murder, as was supposed at first, but may have been either an accident or suicide, according to evidence adduced today by authorities.

The wounds on the body could have been caused by either a deliberate or accidental plung from the cliff under which it was found, in the opinion of Mrs. E. W. Laswell, coroner at Colma, to where the body was taken. There was little or nothing to indicate murder, she said, except that Davis' fists were clenched, indicating the possibility of a struggle. His coat was missing.

The inquest has been set for Tuesday.

KNIGHT TEMPLARS MEET IN ORLEANS

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, April 23.—All regular incoming trains, augmented by many special trains from all parts of the country, continued today to bring Knight Templars to the Crescent City for the Thirty-fifth Triennial conclave which opens here tomorrow. At least 35,000 are expected.

According to the older residents, never in the history of New Orleans not even for the gayest Mardi Gras festival, has so elaborate decoration been achieved as has been prepared for the Templars.

Miss Philips takes an interest in girls' athletics and represented her class on the basketball team during the class tournament.

Miss Phillips is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Philips of 1663 Lucile street, Wichita Falls. She received her preparatory school training in the Wichita Falls high school, entering Baylor University at the opening of the present school year to begin her studies leading to a Bachelor of Arts degree. She is taking her major work in the department of education.

TWO SHOT DOWN BY MOB OF 100 IN HOOCH RAID

Girls Forced to Dress Before Them Says Woman

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—One man is dead and two others wounded, one possibly fatally, as the result of a raid in Inglewood, a suburb, early today of the house of an alleged bootlegger by a band of masked men estimated to have numbered more than 100. The dead and wounded are said by county officials to have been both peace officers and members of the masked band.

The dead man is Constable M. B. Mosher of Inglewood and the wounded are his son, Walter Mosher, his deputy, and Leonard Ruig, a special deputy sheriff.

Shot By Marshal.

They were shot by Frank Woerner, night marshal at Inglewood, when he went to the aid of the alleged bootlegger and his family.

The force of the district attorneys, the sheriff and the conorers officers have been combined to investigate the entire affair and fix the responsibility.

According to officials, the raid was on the home of Mathias Elduayen, who with his brother, Fidel, was gaged and bound. Then they were dragged from their home, and taken six miles away, where they were left tied.

Next, it is charged, Bernardo and Mary Elduayen, 13 and 15, respectively, daughters of Fidel Elduayen, were compelled to stand nude before the raiders.

In addition a neighboring family, including six children, one of whom was believed to be dying of pneumonia, were forced to flee from their home and hide hours in a field.

All inmates of the Elduayen home were asleep when the raiders arrived. Violen hammerings at the front and back doors aroused them. Some of the raiders tore open the front screen door and forced an entrance.

"In answering the knocking at the back door," Mrs. Fidel Elduayen, told the investigating officers today, "several masked men, wearing hoods which covered all of their faces except their eyes, were there."

"They accused me of ruining a still," said Fidel Elduayen, "They demanded to know where it was. Before we knew what it was all about he grabbed me and my brother, and bound us. Then they ransacked the house. They tore up everything. They overturned the mattresses. They even went into my daughter's bedroom.

Girls Dressed Before Men.

"The two girls were in their night gowns. The masked men yelled to them to dress at once. The girls closed the door, but the men threw it open again, they made the girls take off their night clothes and dress in front of them with the door open."

"After the men had torn up everything," Fidel continued, "they dragged us out. Just as we got outside and were lined up by the front porch the shooting started.

100 Masked Men.

"A little fellow, wearing a short overcoat and white mask, acted as leader. He cried out: 'One, two, three, four.'

"That seemed to be a signal, everybody rushed together.

"When we were taken outside, we saw probably 100 masked men, in addition to those who had entered.

"The leader yelled 'A motorcycle cop and some fools are coming.'

"We were held by some of the men while the shooting was going on. I looked at the automobile parked along the road, but the license plates were all covered. My captors saw what I was doing and made me look in another direction.

"Mathias and I were put in a large black touring car with some men who were not masked.

Posed As Officers.

"They took us to the Inglewood police station and tried to make the officer there take us as prisoners, but he refused. The men told him they were federal officers and had raided some bootleggers.

"Next, we were taken to the Redondo Beach police station. The men tried to make the officers there take us as prisoners, but they refused."

Officers said they had obtained important clues to the identification of some members of the band of raiders.

OIL KINGS HOLD UP DETAILS ON MEXICAN TRIP

Refuse to Comment On Rumor of Big Merger

By Associated Press

MEXICO CITY, April 23.—A special train bringing the heads of five United States oil companies to Mexico for a conference with Mexican officials, arrived here this morning, after a record run of three and a half days from New York.

The party was made up of Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey; Harry F. Sinclair, president of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil company; Edward L. Doheny, president of the Mexican Petroleum company; E. C. Lufkin, chairman of the board of directors of the Texas Oil company, and J. W. Vandyke, president of the Atlantic Refining company. With the party came a clerical force. The oil men will be quartered in Mr. Sinclair's private car during their visit.

Disclose Details.

"We can say nothing at present," said Mr. Teagle in reply to questions concerning the purpose of the visit. "All information regarding our conference must come from Senor De La Huerta, the secretary of the Mexican treasury. We are here to discuss the Mexican oil situation in general, but the specific points I am not at liberty to disclose."

Mr. Teagle declined to comment on the rumored merger of the large oil companies for development purposes. His only comment on the statement of President Obregon Saturday that the Mexican government would support such a pool was "that is very interesting." Other members of the party were equally reticent.

Meet Huerta Today.

The Americans will meet Senor De La Huerta tomorrow for the first conference. The length of their stay in Mexico depends on the progress made in adjusting affairs which were only tentatively settled last fall.

Senor De La Huerta preceeded the oil men into the capitol by two hours, traveling from Sonora by way of Nogales. At his request a conference that was to have been held this afternoon was postponed until tomorrow morning.

NEFF'S—

Neff comes for no political cause," and that "he is the best governor the state has ever had," the governor said:

"Of all created things, man is the masterpiece. He had his origin not in the Darwinian theory, but in the council chambers of the skies, when the Master said 'let us make man.' That man was fashioned after the image of the Master, that his brain was put on top and that he was endowed with an immortal soul was true, Governor Neff said, and "if the Bible is true, then this world was not made and swung into being by accident."

"Man has his mission here," he said, "and he was given dominion over all things in the earth," he continued, indicating that even the elephant with his great weight, the fly with his vivid eye, the eagle with his strong wings, the lion with his roaring voice and the mouse with his sensitive ear were all subdued to the will of man, "who is indeed the masterpiece of the Creative Hand."

Life would be different if time in its flight could but turn back and permit man to weave again the web of life, Governor Neff said, "but man, the masterpiece, passes through this world but once."

Indicating that his theme for the afternoon would be "the old, old story of the life worth while," Governor Neff declared that "most any able-bodied man can make a suit of clothes and three meals a day, but few of us have time, as we go through life to make it worth while.

"It isn't how much education a man has that is the main thing; it isn't the power that one possesses; it isn't the fame; it isn't chasing the butterflies of pleasure—if you and I could retrace our steps after we run the three score years and ten, I daresay we wouldn't confine our energies to these things.

"Every man has duties that he must meet with courage," he continued, pointing out the duty to the Master, to self and to the government. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's was God's way of telling man he had a duty to perform for his country. We owe a duty to our government and our country; you can always count on the immoral man and woman and the curbstone crooks to take a part in the things against their government, but if the bone and sinew of the land would exert their power for righteousness, our laws, our government and our civilization would be but the life of the golden rule."

No respect for the sidewalk orator who says he has no use and no interest in his government was expressed by Governor Neff, who said that this is not a perfect government and never will be "as long as it is run by human hands."

The governor declared that there ought to be a law to disfranchise every citizen for ten years who wouldn't go to the polls and vote, asserting that 'the thugs all go." Pointing to an election held two years ago when certain issues were submitted to the citizenship of Texas, he said 250,000 citizens "with poll tax receipts at home did not go to the polls."

"Man ought to make his government a little better because he has passed this way," he said, declaring that "if we went through life just a second time we would get the honey from the thistle as well as the rose, and we ought to do that the first time."

Governor Neff declared that a character assassin is more murderous than a midnight marauder, and said that "we should turn the clouds inside out and find the silver lining, for "there's so much good in the worst of us, and so much bad in the best of us, that none of us have any right to talk about the rest of us."

"And as we go through life just once, we ought to connect ourselves with some kind of an institution, some kind of a thought, some kind of an ideal that will live after we are gone—that will travel through the world at least a second time.

It's What We Give

"If sound moves on forever, if matter is indestructable, how much more beautiful is the thought that kind words and kind deeds live on when men are gone? Then why not you and I in some little way connect ourselves with something that will move on a second time through life, when you and I are gone?

"Do something somewhere that does not all die when you and I quit the busy walks of men, for it isn't what we gain, but what we give that counts in this life," Governor Neff said, urging his audience to carve their names high above the shifting sands of life, and not look entirely to the tallest pyramids, for, he said, "I would rather put a brick in a church house building to brighten the world in the years to come, than to have had a part in building the pyramids, because they have never had a part in helping the generations.

"When we come to the final analysis in this life, the only thing that counts isn't the wealth, power or fame that we have accomplished, but when they sit within the shadow of your tomb and mine, and take an inventory of our deeds, the sacrificial service we have rendered to mankind is all that counts.

"The question 'am I my brother's keeper' is as true today as in the beginning," the executive said. "Every man is his brother's keeper, and no man has a right to live to himself. Let the cotton crop of Texas be swept away and the spindles around the world stop work; let a rat run down the gang plank of a ship anchor in Galveston Bay and a deadly plague breaks out; let a cow in Austin, Texas, possess a diptheria germ, and 200 citizens in the capitol city have diptheria—we are our brother's keeper; we all owe a duty to others to look after the welfare of our neighbors, and no man has a right to segregate himself from the throbbing tide of life around him."

Governor Neff declared that "I'm not a minister, I wasn't called for the ministry," but that he loved to support the ministry in the "cause for the Master because I'm just going through this life once."

In conclusion, the speaker praised the man who served his fellow man, and placed that man who has a high respect of honor, truthfulness and of his service to his countryman as being more of a hero than one who fell on the gory battle fields. He praised the humble mother who has been true to her loved ones and true to herself as being the greatest of heroines, and declared that the greatest of all men and women are those "who have been true to the duties and responsibilities of life."

A committee headed by C. P. Engelking of Electra citizens escorted Governor Neff overland to Electra, where the state executive addressed a large assemblage of persons gathered there at 5 o'clock.

3,000 PEOPLE HEAR NEFF AT VERNON

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, April 23.—Governor Pat M. Neff delivered his famous "American Flag" address here tonight before 3,000 people who crowded into and around the Baptist tabernacle. He was interduced by W. N. Stokes. The address was nonpolitical, the governor speaking of the great demand for service today. He was greeted with a warm reception. He goes from here to Chillicothe, where he speaks at 11 a. m. Monday and from there to Quanah.

GERMANS—

arose through M. Barthou's written charge that the Germans had made untruthful statements.

Premier Facta, and Foreign Minister Schanzer of the Italian delegation are believed to have been responsible for this peaceful settlement of what threatened to be a hopeless barrier to real progress in the conferences on economic and financial work.

Germans Remain Silent.

A member of the German delegation said that the allies had their "fan fare" in today's note to satisfy the French, and that the Germans had decided they would not encourage a battle of notes but would remain silent and let the conference proceed, in the hope that the economic situation in Europe might be bettered.

Sunday has been rather a bad day for the Genoa conference. Easter Sunday brought the signing of the Russo-German treaty, which created much disruption, and today came the note from the big and little ententes and Portugal to Germany, which for the moment re-opened the old wound that had partly healed.

The note was written to satisfy the French demands for the more definite exclusion of Germany from the discussion relating to Russian problems. It also asserts specifically that it had never been suggested that the London proposals afforded no basis for discussion in the conference or that the German delegation was about to conclude a separate treaty with Russia. After making the reservation with respect to the Russo-German treaty, it declared:

"The incident may now be regarded as closed."

Both Germany and Russia were very unwilling to concede the right of the powers signatory to the Versailles treaty to limit the treaty making powers of Russia and Germany, and for a time Premier Lloyd George and the presiding officer of the conference, Signor Facta, were confronted by a serious situation.

The note aparently was acceptable to the ten powers, which insisted in its preparation. The ten powers also considered the French refusal to sit with the Russian experts, until an explanation was offered of the Russian reply to the London experts report on Russian recognition, which seemingly was in conflict with M. Chicicherin's note stating to the conference what the Russians would be willing to accept as a basis for further negotiations.

JUDGE GLASGOW CALLED BY DEATH

Seymour Man Came To Texas in '79

Special to the Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, April 23.—Judge J. H. Jack Glasgow, retired lawyer and pioneer citizen of this city, died at Mangum, Okla., Saturday of paralysis. He was 70 years of age and has been a resident of Seymour since 1879.

Possibly no man in this section has been a more important factor in the early affairs of West Texas. He located at Graham, Texas in the early 70's where he served as county judge of Young county, following its organization there.

He met and was associated with a larger number of the prominent westerners of those days and he had a large acquaintance among the old settlers of Texas. He was an able lawyer and was for 25 years a law partner of the late Judge D. L. Kenan. His body will be returned to Seymour and burial will take place in the city cemetery Monday afternoon. The services will be conducted by his pastor, Rev. W. C. Hinds of the First Methodist church and the Masonic fraternity. Judge Glasgow is survived by his widow and one son, J. H. Glasgow, Jr., of this city, a daughter, Mrs. John N. Richards, of Mangum, Okla., and a brother, Geo. W. Glasgow, of Dickens county.

MEN ARRESTED ON DOPE CHARGE

Two Arrested At Burk Sunday

Following up the belief that a ring was operating in Burkburnett for the disposition of narcotics in violation of the federal narcotic act, United States officers arrested J. E. Smith, about 28 years old, and C. Galloway, about 25, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon on federal warrants charging them with the "unlawful possession of untaxed narcotics." Both men were brought to Wichita Falls and placed in the city prison, pending examining hearings which will be given them this morning before J. A. Lantz, United States commissioner.

Nine ounces of morphine and cocaine, together with a .32 calibre Colts automatic were taken in the raid, the authorities said.

Finding a clue to their quest in Burkburnett, the officers watched Galloway and another man as they walked down a street in the oil town toward the hiding place of the narcotics, the officers said. Galloway and the man with him, however, soon disappeared from the view of the officers, who declared they had lost sight of them as they rounded a corner.

Waiting in the vicinity of where Galloway was believed to have gone, federal men saw him come out of a house, and as he approached, they placed Galloway under arrest and searched him, removing the Colts pistol from his person, they said. The house which he had come from was then searched, where the narcotic was said to have been found in a kitchen.

Smith, who was in the house at that time, was placed under arrest and brought to Wichita Falls with Galloway.

Officers who participated in the raid included W. G. Nane, federal narcotic inspector; Archie Tyler, federal prohibition officer; Captain Koonsman of the state rangers and Tom Shook of the city police department.

HOOCH TRADE OFF

FORT WORTH, April 23.—Bootlegging in the oil fields of North Texas is on the decline, according to E. A. Turner, prohibition enforcement agent, in charge of the North Texas bureau, who has just returned from a week's inspection tour in the oil fields and in the Panhandle.

DAUGHERTY IN KLAN SAYS CAMP

Opponents Termed Broken Politicians

FORT WORTH, April 23.—Joe G. Camp of Atlanta, Ga., official lecturer of the Ku Klux Klan in an address here tonight painted a word picture of sinister influences which seek to destroy the national government and subject it to what he termed the rule of home, and declared that the Ku Klux Klan was the only agency which would defeat that purpose.

He declared that the klan was falsely accused by what he termed the "enemy press," which talked of masks and tar and feather parties to divert the minds of the people from the real issues.

He declared that Attorney General Daugherty was a klansman and that while the president of the United States might not be an obligated klansman, his sympathies were with the klan. The opponents of the Klan, Mr. Camp said, in the main, are broken down politicians, allies with bootleggers and other advocates of vice.

TEXAS ASKING IRRIGATION AID

State May Not Get In on Fund

STAMFORD, Texas, April 23.—The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has addressed a communication to Claude Hudspeth, member of congress of the El Paso district and a member of the national house of representatives, asking him to what extent West Texas will be affected by the creation of a purposed revolving fund of $350,000,000 for the purpose of assisting irrigation projects.

It is reported from Washington that President Harding favors such a project. There seems to be some apprehension on the part of Texas as to whether or not Texas projects might participate in the benefits of such a creation.

This apprehension is brought about because the reclamation department at Washington has in the past been very reticent about favoring federal irrigation aid to Texas projects, claiming that because there is no federal land in Texas that the federal government is morally inhibited from spending federal irrigation money in this state. Federal aid, however, given in the Elephant Butte project represented a breaking down of such policy. A considerable portion of the lands irrigated by the Elephant Butte projects are located in Texas. It is the view of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce that Texas like every other state is entitled to the fullest participation in all federal irrigation aid plans.

TEA POT DOME MAY BE PROBED

Competitive Bidding Act Violated?

Special to the Record News.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The senate expects soon to have the report of Secretaries Fall and Denby on the alleged proposal to transfer the naval reserve oil fields of Wyoming to the Standard Oil company.

The senate adopted a resolution by Senator Kendrick, democrat, Wyoming, last week, calling on Fall and Denby to furnish the arrangement caused a stir around the senate. The Kendrick resolution also seeks to ascertain in what persons or corporations are under consideration as lease holders.

In offering the resolution, Senator Kendrick said information reaching him is to the effect that the entire reserve has been leased to the Sinclair Oil company, subsidiary of the Standard. This was done after negotiations, but without competitive bidding.

The object of the controversy is known as "Teapot Dome" or, officially, as Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 3.

great republican landslide to the failure of the democrats to clean up, and said that the people would sweep each party in turn out of office until some one came along with the nerve to clean things up.

Tries To Clean It Up.

"I tried to get this bureau cleaned up during the Wilson administration," he said. "I also introduced ten resolutions calling for clean up of ten departments in the government—this was the first serious break with my colleagues.

"'Blanton,' they said, 'These things will hurt the party. It will show that there is a reason for cleaning up.'"

"I tried to show them that such a clean up would give the people confidence in the party. I got the resolutions through, but we did not get a clean up in several of the departments. I think the republicans elected their big majority in the house because we didn't clean up."

The congressman from Abilene is squarely with President Harding on his clean up in the printing bureau, he said, even though the president is a republican and Blanton a democrat.

"We hear that this was just to make jobs for republicans," he was told.

"That is just the kind of stuff that is put out here," was the answer.

"You don't get the truth about it."

He said that he did not approve of some of the politics which was being played by the administration in the postoffice department—he did not believe in putting good democrats out of office before their time was up just to make room for republicans.

Have Enough Judges.

Mr. Blanton does not think the country needs the new federal judges recently provided for. The reason there are needed now, he says, is that the judges will go off "about June 20 and will stay until October—with full pay."

"You don't get to do it, nor do I, but they do, and that is why the work is behind and the cry goes up for more of them," he said.

He referred to his own service as a district judge, declaring that he had left a docket entirely clean when he went off the bench, and giving instances of how he did it.

"I had announced the hour for beginning a murder trial. There were 150 jurors waiting, and about as many witnesses, many of them busy men—doctors and the like. The district attorney was not present, but I announced 'ready' for the state. The defense attorney was not there, and I announced 'ready' for the defense. There was some telephoning then, and they got into court. The first objection they took was on that point. They said I did not have a right to take the action I did. The higher court said I did. How many district judges do you know who do that?"

Describes Practices.

He described another practice which he said was upheld by the higher court.

"I would have the state witnesses go on one side, and the defense witnesses go on another side of the court room," he said.

"I would then send the defense witnesses who knew nothing at all about this case to hold up their hands. Many of them would do so. Then I would have each of them march round by me and make the district attorney tell what he expected to prove by that man. If he gave a good reason, I kept the witness. If he didn't I would let him go. The defense was then called in and the same proceedure gone through with. Many of these men were doctors and busy men. They were there on expense to the state, and losing time for themselves. Many lawyers in a criminal case will summon every man who knew the defendant as a witness.

"They think it creates an impression if half the court room rises when the defense witnesses are told to stand. The lawyers said that I had no right to do the things this way. The higher courts said I had. I left my docket clean, and a lawyer could always get a trial in my court in two weeks.

"These are just some of the little things I did as district judge to eliminate waste.

"The fight I am making is the fight of the people. I will be satisfied if a few representative people come out tonight and hear the truth about this fight."

HERE TONIGHT

Congressman Thomas L. Blanton who speaks at the court house at 8 o'clock tonight.

COTTON CROP HOLDS INTEREST

Winter Wheat Light At Crosbyton

Special to the Record News.

CROSBYTON, Texas, April 23.—Many citizens will attend the laying of the cornerstone in the new school building at Lorenzo today.

Cotton planting is the topic of the day. However, on account of the scarceness of cotton seed, there will be several days before planting to insure against replanting.

Quite a number of farmers have finished planting feedstuff.

The winter wheat is very light this year. Possibly 20 per cent crop. Some spring wheat may increase the acreage and yield.

MISS BLANTON GAINING GROUND

Opposition Is Divided Among Three

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, April 23.—Belief that Miss Annie Webb Blanton, candidate for congress to succeed the late Lucian W. Parrish in the Thirteenth Texas district, who is now campaigning against four men candidates for a plurality of votes at the May 13 special election, will win the seat in congress, and give to Texas the distinction of having the second congresswoman in the present house, was expressed here by several visitors from the Thirteenth district, who are attending the educational conference in Austin.

Miss Blanton has a large advantage, in view of the fact that her opposition will be divided among three persons, according to views of a prominent former state official who discussed the matter, and who believes Miss Blanton has an excellent showing for election to serve the balance of Congressman Parrish's term, which ends next March 4.

To Eliminate Two.

The campaign for the short term includes a campaign for the July primary nomination for the next regular term. The conditions of primary election, it was stated, are so different from a general election, that the candidate chosen for the short term may not be elected for the regular term. The primary in July will eliminate all but the two leading candidates, who will then enter a second primary in August for a majority of the votes of the district, as required in a primary nomination.

Tours In Ford.

Miss Blanton has adopted up-to-date campaig methods, it was stated. She has had a Ford car fixed up for touring the country; and this car, in charge of Brown McCallum, son of Superintendent A. N. McCallum of Austin schools, will be used by Miss Blanton in reaching every community in the 12 counties of the Thirteenth district. Miss Blanton had it labeled "Congress Special" and has her name showing prominently on banners on each side of the car.

The two "12's" showing up prominently in this race have not worried Miss Blanton, it was stated—the number of the district, and the date, May 13.

CANDIDATE IN CITY

J. D. Covey of the Coree Times, candidate for the legislature, passed through Wichita Falls Sunday, on his way home from Quanah, where he filled a speaking engagement. He is hopeful of winning at the special election May 6.

TO VOTE ON SEWERAGE.

JACKSBORO, April 23.—Jacksboro will vote on a $70,000 sewerage bond issue May 16. Election has been called by the city government. The bonds proposed to be issued are without option of prior redemption and will bear interest at the rate of 5 1-2 per cent per annum.

Public health agencies should be divorced from politics on the grounds of non-support.

GENOA NEWS HITS MARKETS

Spotted Conditions In Interior

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, April 23.—Moderate advances prevailed in the cotton market throughout this last week, buying being stimulated by the unsatisfactory progress of planting, and the distinct improvement in the cotton good market and in general trade. Operations on the long side, however, were held within bounds by the unsatisfactory news from Geno. At no time were prices under the close of the preceding week, at the highest the trading months were 54 to 74 points higher than the finals of the previous week, while on close the list showed net gains of 35 to 64 points. May traded as high as 17.18 and closed at 16.90. Middling gained 38 points, closing at 16.88, which compared with 14.25 as the closing price of this week a year ago.

Cron accounts revealed spotted conditions in the interior, some sections being forward while others were backward. The best reports came from Georgia; Texas reports were generally regarded as unsatisfactory.

One of the strongest periods of the week developed toward the end following messages from Fall River estimating sales of print cloths in that market at 250,000 pieces for the week and claiming that mills could have sold at least 100,000 pieces more had they been willing to promise deliveries before July.

The export movement for the week was:

Clearances from all ports amounting to 129,280 bales, against 51,237 this week last year.

PUG MAKES $75,000 YEARLY WIFE SAYS

NEW YORK, April 23.—The punches of Willie Jackson, lightweight pugilist, add an average of $75,000 a year to his bank account, and during his pugnacious career he has saved close to a half million dollars, his wife declared today in filing a suit for separation.

Jackson, whose real name is Oscar Tobler, was charged with cruelty. Mrs. Tobler asked for $200 a week alimony and $5,000 counsel fees pending settlement of the suit.

LOT'TA PEP IN SOUP DISHES

Don't Skim Grease, "Blot" It

"Opening of the Record" Is Theme

GREASLESS SOUP

The woman who cared more about the front of her house than the back glanced at the clock, dumped a piece of soup meat into a doubtful looking saucepan, and shoved it over the gas flame.

"I simply loathe cooking," she murmured, and rushed into the living room to dust a table hurriedly, to place a jar of roses in a conspicious place and to thrust an untidy pile of papers under the couch.

She was expecting a visitor.

The visitor was the doctor, and he was coming because the woman had a sick husband, with whom she wrangled lovingly each day over the matter of nourishment.

When the doctor came the woman, thinking too late of the man upstairs in an untidy bed, of the bedroom she had truly intended to "tidy" before the doctor's visit, hurried to the door and apologized all the way upstairs because John was not ready for visitors.

Doctor Sends Office Nurse

Now, old man, what's all this talk about food," said the doctor in friendly tones as he rested a light finger on his patient's wrist.

"I'm sick of it! That's all! I can't take the soup you said I was to have. And you know I never could take milk and eggs! So what are you going to do about it?"

"There's some soup on the stove now. It will be ready by noon," said the wife. "Mandy left last week, you know, so I am struggling along as best I can." And she sighed as she spoke. Every one knew that John's wife hated cooking. She was always talking about it. "I'll drop in at noon," murmured the doctor.

Instead of dropping in himself he sent his office nurse.

John's wife was stirring something in a saucepan.

"It's soup," she said brightly. She always spoke brightly to members of her own sex and reserved her pensive signs for sympathy for the opposite sex. Housekeeping, she insisted, was a great trial.

There was a tray on the table. It was a badly set tray, with wrinkled linen and an appearance of having had the dishes thrown at it.

Prepares Soup That John Likes

That might have mattered less had the food been good. But it was hot. Altogether the nurse thought she had never seen a more hopeless tray or more wretched looking soup. And her heart yearned over "poor John."

Little pools of yellow oil flecked the soup which Mrs. John splashed into a soup plate.

"Isn't it too bad," said Mrs. John, "that one has to wait till soup gets cold to skim off the grease?"

"If you will get me some clean white paper I'll show you how to remove it while the soup is boiling hot," said the nurse.

And tearing the white paper into pieces she applied it to the surface of the soup. Every vestige of grease was speedily removed. The paper blotted it up.

Then, pouring boiling water into a cream pitcher to heat it, the nurse strained the skimmed soup into another saucepan and reheated it while she made a round of toast, which she cut into strips. Then she put the hot, almost appetizing looking soup, in the hot pitcher, served it with nothing else on the tray but toast and a salt cellar, and was gratified to find that John did not rebel. It was the greasiness and tepidness of former soups that had taken away his appetite for meat broths.

NEW CAPE COSTUMES FAVORED THIS SPRING

By ELOISE.

The cape costume is the newest fashion to find favor with the smart dressers. Designers foreseeing the popularity of the cape idea have created cape costumes for every occasion and every hour of the day. The cape costume may be called a three-piece cape suit, a cape dress or merely a dress with cape to match. Whatever one chooses to call it, it is the fad of the hour.

Here are three styes which are suitable for special occasions. At the l- is a cape and dress to match designed for street and afternoon wear. It is fashioned of orange barred material, the frock being trimmed with a drawn thread design and embroidery in self color done in block design. The cape is gracefully draped and black cire ribbon edges the cape, skirt and forms a belt on the frock.

At the right is a cape suit for sports or knockabout wear. It is fashioned of brown eponge. The straight line frock is fringed at the hem and is trimmed with linen collar and cuffs edged with black taffeta. The cape which falls in points on either side is button noted around the edge and its ties are fringed.

In the center is shown a more elaborate costume which boasts a cape. It is designed for the reception, tea or bridge party. It is made of gray canton crepe and heavy gray lace. The lace forms the cape and is edged with a wide border of the crepe while the dress is made of pleated crepe trimmed with side panels of the lace. Flying squirrel in a darker gray tone trims the cape.

No Man'll Ever Be Able to Live As He Pleases, No Matter How Great His Power, Says Judge Kay

"What do we mean when we talk about ambition. That great word ambition—Does it mean price? Does it mean selfishness? What does it mean?

"Nobody knows exactly what it means because to every man it has its own individual meaning," declared Judge John C. Kay before a large audience at the Olympic theater Sunday morning.

"It fits the yearnings, the desires of that particular heart. It can have no higher meaning for him than his own desires, his own wants, his own plans and his own purposes, so that it might mean one thing to one man and another to another, but to every man it means power. A man says I want a job. Now he does not want a job. Does he want the money that he will get for the work? No, he does not want that, but he does want the dynamical energy of power that money will bring.

Power our Aim.

"A man goes out here to dig an oil well. Does he want to dig an oil well? Why no! Does he want any oil? No, twenty-cents worth of oil would last him a year. Does he want money? No. But here is the way he reasons: If I can go out there and put down a wildcat and strike oil and get me some money, then I will be in sight of the things that I do want.

"Now does a man want to be president of the United States? No. If that office was considered merely in its burdens no one would approach it, but he wants to say to another, go, and he goes, and to another come, and he comes, so that it is power that we want and it is power that we are crazy about, it is not money and it is not work and it is not efforts, but the ability to do and to have those things that seem good to us.

"Of course once in a while there is an old crazy miser that wants money to stick it up and to count it. He is beyond redemption; he does not even want to use his money; he just wants to count it and say that he has got it away from the crowd and is going to keep it. A man like that is of less use to the community than any dead stump in the world.

"Now it does not bring the things that we expect it to bring. A man is mostly like the green country boy at the county fair that expects the pea to be under the wrong shell. And so it was that Adam situated in his bright Eden, with all the beauty of its flowers and all the witchery of the music of its birds, makes a wrong selection and is driven forth into the world to battle for himself.

"Do you aspire to be a great leader? Before you set yourself up as a candidate for higher leadership just remember Moses coming through all the miseries of his leadreship and standing at last on the naked mountains of Hoab looking into the blue haze of the Promised Land beyond Jordan. It is denied to him that he shall ever get there at last.

"When you think about what you want, leadership, remember Napoleon dying in a storm down there on that island, with no power and no glory left unto him, far from his friends, far from his throne, his soul going out in a storm and his leadership empty and nothing left.

"This old king wanted power. He did not know it for a long time. Let me say to you, men, that you do not know what fire is burning in your heart. Let me say to you that you do not know and you cannot know what possibility for good plans or for evil plans may rise up in your brain and in your heart.

"So this old king at last decided there was nothing he could not do. You know all of us have that idea in some degree, that we can do anything just a little better than anybody else and that whildst we might not have as much experience, whildst we might not have as much ability, with just a little effort we could do anything anybody else can do. It is a foolish idea, it grows more foolish in this day of specialists than it was in his time, but he decided he could touch the sacred things, that he was big enough to minister about the altar, that even the sacred vessels, on the altar of the church were not sacred to him.

Dangerous Condition

"Now that is a dangerous condition of mind. There are some things that it never was intended you should do, some things that you are not fitted to do, some things that are beyond you and above me, that we must not touch, that we must keep hands off.

"Now this man goes on in there anyhow, he takes hold of the church, takes hold of the altar, takes hold of the vessels and he comes out leprous.

"You know that is the tragedy of humanity to me, no matter what heights a man reaches, no matter what his power or what his fame or what his greatness he comes at last to seclusion and to silence and to emptiness, without power, without fame and not even trusted with responsibility.

"Put aside ambition? I would not say that to a young man. You know I never felt about pride like the preachers. You know I would not want to live in a community where the people didn't have any pride.

Learn Your Position

"You know the finest thing for you to learn is, where you belong. I am talking to you plainly this morning. It is failure to recognize that great principle that has got more men into trouble than anything I know about. It took me about forty-five years to find that out. Some of you fellows have not found it out yet; for instance, in the spending of money. Young men, hear me especially on this: You see some fellow out here spending a lot of money; he seems to get a new Cudillac when he wants it; he takes trips to the far places when he wants to, and you think that you can do that. I will tell you why you cannot, and you do not need a slate pencil to figure it out. That fellow is spending interest and you are spending the principal.

a man and find out where you belong, and when you make an earnest effort to find out where you belong you don't belong as high as you thought.

"I am telling you some things that cost me a great deal to find out and it is free to you.

"These lessons are lessons of life: They are the unbreakable principles of the ages. You cannot drive around them, you cannot escape them any more than you can escape the other things in the Bible, and I believe you can escape these only with more difficulty than anything else. What do we mean by power?

"They want the power to do as they please. That is what he means. Hear me, young man, that is the answer to ambition; that is the answer to power. If I can seize these things that I long for I will do as I please. Hear me further when I tell you that no man ever did get away with it.

"Moral laws that surround you, they are as unbreakable as the commandments of Moses. Social laws! You cannot sin against the welfare of your neighbor. There is no power on earth or in Heaven to enable you to do as you please as against your neighbor because Heaven hasn't any power for wrong, but only for righteousness. Educational laws! We have to take each of them and live up to them and give them to other men or perish. Religious laws! It is not only our duty to be religious, but to persuade other men to be so and to persuade them more by example than by talking. That is another of our duties, so then the most foolish idea and the weakest idea is the idea; "If I was fixed right I can do as I please." You can never do it. And if you attempt to do it you will come back from that expedition broken in body, broken in spirit, broken in mentality, naked and ashamed, in the presence of the world."

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

(Copyright by J. G. Lloyd.)

A BASHFUL HERO

A funy thing it is to see
How those who bravely fight
So bashful and so timid grow
Within a lady's sight.

There was Danny Meadow Mouse, when he had met the fat, important looking stranger in front of the house He hadn't been the least bit afraid of little Miss Nanny Meadow Mouse. No, indeed, he hadn't know what fear was. He had fought the stranger until the latter had cried for mercy and at last had run away. Danny had chased him, nipping at his heels and tail, until he was sure that the stranger never, never would dare come back. Then Danny had brushed the dirt from his coat, washed his face and hands, and had started back for the house of little Miss Nanny to make the call he had intended to make before he met the stranger.

He felt very good, very good indeed, did Danny. He had won a great fight, and he felt sure that little Miss Nanny had seen him win it. He was glad of it. She would think him a real hero. At least he hoped she would. He felt as if he could fight any one in all the great world just to win a smile from little Miss Nanny. He even strutted as he started back up the private little path to Miss Nanny's house. But as he came in sight of her house a funny thing happened. Yes, sir, a funny thing happened. He stopped strutting. Quite suddenly all feeling of boldness and bravery left him. He couldn't be sure, but he had had a feeling that two soft little eyes were watching him from behind the long grass that hung over Miss Nanny's doorway, and the very though gave him a funny, all-gone feeling inside. He stopped and pretended to be looking for something. Then he went on a few steps, only to stop again and pretend to be very busy brushing his coat. The fact is Danny Meadow Mouse wanted to go on more than he ever had wanted anything in all his life before, and at the same time he wanted to run away.

Supposing, just supposing, little Miss Nanny should refuse to see him! The very though quite upset him. Or supposing she should be angry because he had chased away that fat, important looking stranger! What should he do then? When he had started out that morning Danny had been the happiest Meadow Mouse in the world, because—why, because he was in love, you know. He was just as much in love now, perhaps a little more so, but he wasn't happy, all because he had suddenly grown so bashful. He had thought himself very handsome, but now quite unexpectedly, he found himself thinking that he wasn't handsome at all. His coat had been town in the great fight and he stopped to try to cover up the rents. So little by little he drew near to the house of Miss Nanny Meadow Mouse.

All the time little Miss Nanny had been watching him. Danny would have felt a lot better if he could have known just what she was thinking. "How splendid and brave he is, and how handsome!" thought Miss Nanny. "He must be the hero I have always known would come for me some time. Oh, dear, I wonder if I look all right? Why doesn't he hurry? I-I-Isn't he a dear?"

By this time Danny had almost reached her doorstep. Quite suddenly little Miss Nanny became very shy, quite as shy and bashful as Danny. What do you think she did? Why, she slipped out the back door and ran away and hid. Yes sir, this is just what she did. Was there ever anything so funny? There was Danny, brave of heart and bold in a fight, so timid at the thought of her soft eyes that he was afraid to knock at her door, and there was little Miss Nanny, sure that he was the hero she had waited for, yet running away and hiding.

MILLIONS IN UNDEVELOPED HOLDINGS

One of the unanswered questions that are often propounded by stockholders of companies that are not operating for various reasons, chief among them being the lack of capital, is this: Why, now and then do some small companies find their way into receiver's hands while the larger institutions are so very prosperous, says the Texas Oil Gazette.

A portion of the reason is very plain. The Standard Oil company comes to the rescue of the larger independents whenever their treasury becoms a little short of cash.

The Humble Oil & Refining company was credited recently with getting $20,000,000 from the Standard for a half interest in the stock ownership. The Standard came to the assistance of Sinclair when that concern started the construction of more pipe lines than its treasury could comfortably stand, while the Mid-West, also a Standard subsidary, has gone to the rescue of many smaller companies in Wyoming and Montana.

The need for rescuing these non-operative concerns by means of a consolidation absolutely independent of the Standard group is quite apparent. These small companies, several of which were sponsored during the boom times, have millions of dollars of undeveloped wealth under their control and yet find their way into receivership merely because of the lack of capital.

A great deal can be said about the Standard Oil Company that is not to its credit, but we must all admit one thing—that when it goes into any new enterprise it continues to stick until a paying institution results.

The present stock market boom which is being led by the oil issues gives to the small investor and the small non-operating company a great opportunity if some Moses of Finance will come forward to lead them out of the valley of receivership and the shadow of bankruptcy to the fair land of dividends and prosperity. is the prediction of the Gazette.

AN ANSWER REQUESTED.

Export of crude petroleum and refined products through three ports of Mexico during the month of March showed an increase of 421,591 barrels as compared with the month of February and 83 per cent of the crude and refined came to the United States. Senator Porter J. McCumber, when he made the republican tariff bill, overlooked the fact that Mexican crude is on the free list and he overlooked the independent oil producers of the states of Kansas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas. It is said that Dr. John Henry Kirby will be the opposition candidate for United States senator and that the Hon. Jack Culbertson will head the state ticket. Dr. Kirby and the Hon. Jack Culbertson should speak out on this Mexican crude business. Dr. Kirby has made a glorious fight to keep out the yellow tinted eggs of China but he is mum on the oil question. If it is good for "aigs" isn't it good for petroleum? It is no trouble for the writer to ask questions and it should be no trouble for the senatorial and gubernatorial standard bearers of the outs to answer questions. They are talkative men, they are patriotic men, they know all about governmental affairs, they are willing to help save the country, so why not discuss Mexican crude?

FARMERS IN AMERICA IN the year 1921 produced gross wealth estimated at $12,336,000,000. They produce the stuff that feeds and clothes the world. Civilization begins and ends with the plow but there are simpletons in the cities and towns of the world who look upon farmers as the rubes of society and civilization.

SENATOR PORTER J. McCUMber of North Dakota is chairman of the Senate tariff committee and an innocent abroad. In reporting the bill to the Senate he is said to have warned manufacturers and others that enactment of the measure should not be made the occasion for increased prices to American consumers. And that man calls himself a statesman. How would the Hon. Porter J. McCumber go about it to prevent increased prices to consumers? There is no law to prevent it. When Jones is gigged he may let a squeal but he has no recourse and is compelled to pay.

a rate 63 per cent greater than ever before. China is now buying 125,000 bales every eight months, an enormous percentage increase. Spindles heretofore idle in Europe are being brought into activity by thousands. The United States is now producing 62 per cent of all the cotton consumed and the world's consumption in 1921 was more than double the American crop of 8,340,000 bales. Of 9 and one-third million bales of cotton consumed throughout the world during the last half of 1921, approximately 5,800,000 bales were grown in the United States. Exports for the same period of American cotton totaled slightly more than 6 million bales. This the correspondent says, would indicate that the world is keeping only about 200,000 bales ahead of consumption so far as American cotton is concerned. Now why shouldn't the American cotton grower get a fair price for his product? Why should he be compelled to sell it below the cost of production? When Southern cotton growers are organized like the orange growers of California are organized they will have something to say about price fixing and marketing.

Rippling Rhymes

THE KILLJOYS.

Jim Jackson has a brand new bus, that glitters in the sun, and he's a proud and happy cuss, whene'er he makes it run. And we might take him gladder feel if we would but be kind, and hand him out the sort of spiel that soothes the voter's mind. Alas, we are not built that way, we're stingy with such talk, and when we see a neighbor gay, our impulse is to knock. And so, on slow and dragging limbs which wearily we ply, we push ourselves to Neighbor Jim's, and try to make him cry. We view his car and shake our heads, and look depressed, and say, "It's all done up in blacks and reds, and makes a brave display; but gingerbread and paint and brass don't make a worthy van; your car will never cut much grass—the make's an also ran. They say its pistons are of wood, its springs won't bear its weight, its generator is no good, its frame is out of date. You might have bought, at smaller price, a boat that's better, far; had you but asked for our advice, you'd have a better car." And so, in our poor foolish way—we are but human guys—we try to spoil our neighbor's day, and turn his grins to sighs. We're always doing tricks like these, and low down tricks they are; and Jackson shudders when he sees the bunch approach his car.—(Copyright, 1922, George Matthew Adams.)

CASINGHEAD GASOLINE BUSINESS BOOMING

Special to the Record News.

EASTLAND, Texas, April 23.—Manufacture of casinghead gasoline in Texas has grown to a business involving a valuation of about $35,000,000. It began on a small scale when the Central West Texas oil fields opened a few years ago. Sixty-nine plants are now operating in Texas with an output of aproximately 350,000 gallons a day. Gas used in the process amounts to about 165,000 cubic feet. Wichita county leads in this industry, with Stephens county second and Eastland county third in the order of volume of business done. The Desdemona district in Eastland county alone has twelve plants with a capacity of 40,000 gallons a day. There are seven plants in the immediate vicinity of Eastland.

THE ONCE OVER

EX-PRESIDENT WILSON'S DENIAL

Joseph Tumulty will have to take steps at once to discipline Woodrow Wilson.

Whatza matter? Hasn't ex-President read his secretary's recent memoirs? Doesn't he know yet who's boss around the Democratic plant?

Gosh! Here's Mr. Wilson coming out and daring to say he doesn't always say whatever Mr. Tumulty says he says, and saying that in a recent case, specifically, he didn't say it!

A statement purporting to have been sent to the dinner by the ex-President through Mr. Tumulty was read at the Jefferson Day dinner to Governor Cox, as follows:

"Say to the Democrats of New York that I am ready to support any man who stands for the salvation of America, and the salvation of America is justice to all classes."

Now Mr. Wilson denies that he said anything. Well, even had he admitted the above statement, it still would be true that he hadn't said anything.

However, it looks like a hard rap at Joseph, and the baseball scorers probably would score the play as 'Tumulty out; Wilson, unassisted."

In other words, the ex-President would appear to have knocked Mr. Tumulty into a Cox hat, so to speak.

MORE DENIALS

WASHINGTON, April 14.—Ex-President William Howard Taft indignantly denied today that he had made the highly significant statement attributed to him at the Republican Ward Workers' Whist club dinner last week.

"Anybody who knows me should know that I would not be indiscreet enough to make a statement of such sweeping import at this time," said Mr. Taft today.

The statement attributed to him follows:

"Say to the ward workers of Fittsburgh that it is always fair weather when good fellows get together, and that if this is not so it should be."

The Republican party is highly disturbed over the denial of this statement. It may mean a serious party split.

ALBANY, April 14.—"I denounce here and now as a fake the message read from me at the last barbecue of the Canarsie Egg Candlers' Association," declared Governor Miller of New York today. "The message plainly carries the implication that I would support John F. Hylan for President, which is, of course untrue."

The message in question read:

"Say to the Canarsie Egg Candlers that I will support any man who believes in life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

LINCOLN, Neb., April 15.—William Jennings Bryan today issued a public statement denying that he had authorized a telegram read at the weekly meeting of the Skagway Marching Club last Tuesday. The statement had created a sensation in Democratic political circles and had been interpreted as supporting Joe Cannon for the presidency on the Democratic ticket.

"I have been in politics too long to commit myself by such a rash message," said Mr. Bryan.

The message follows:

"Say to the citizens of Skagway that I string along with any man who subscribes to the doctrine that great oaks from little acorns grow, and that government of the people, for the people, and by the people must not perish from the earth."

WASHINGTON.—President Warren Gamaliel Harding today authorized the Associated Press to authorize a denial of the report he had authorized his secretary to read at the monthly meeting of the Marion Ladies' Club the following statement on the coming senatorial campaigns:

"Say for me to the ladies of Marion that truth crushed to earth shall rise again, and that the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world."

In his denial today President Harding said: "The inference in the above fake message is that I wish to indorse certain specific candidates for re-election. This is untrue. Kindly give my denial wide publicity."

Press Comments

POLITICAL BUNK.

(From the Denison Daily Herald)

In days of old when candidates for office were bold enough to express convictions and stand or fall by them great principles were announced and discussed—principles touching the art of government and the best policies to pursue in order to assure the greatest good to the greatest number at a minimum of cost. But the old order has changed—principles are eschewed by the average office seeker who apparently bases his claim to preferment upon the quantity and quality of "bunk" he can inject into the campaign. That the senatorial campaign in this state is being so characterized is evidently the opinion of Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald, as witness the following editorial recently appearing in the Wichita Falls Record News:

"Hon. Earle B. Mayfield demands the repeal of the Esch-Cummins act and the Hon. Cullen F. Thomas demands a real dirt farmer as a member of the federal reserve board. Republicans will control the Senate for years to come. Former Congressman John J. Esch is an interstate commerce commission. Three or four members of the federal reserve board were born on the farm. Now when is a man a dirt farmer and when isn't he a dirt farmer? Mr. Mayfield was a farmer before he became a statesman; Mr. Thomas was a farmer before he became a school teacher and a lawyer before he became a statesman. If a man deserts the farm for other fields of endeavor does he lose all heart interest in the tillers of the soil and their needs? There is a lot of bunk tossed about in every political campaign."

There is hardly a man holding a responsible public position today who has not worked on a farm at some period in his life. President Harding went from a farm to a newspaper office. Governor Neff toiled in the field until he took up school teaching and later became a lawyer. Call the roll of all the real big men in American life today and it will be found that they came from the farm, the work-shop, the mills or the mines. Is it reasonable to suppose that these men would turn their backs upon the ladders by which they did ascend? Would they destroy it after having risen to heights through its friendly offices? Certainly not. And when men with selfish ambitions seek to convey a different impression they are merely indulging in "bunk" designed to serve the purposes of the passing hour.

Class distinction and favoritism is fast superseding questions of principle. It is being demonstrated along all public lines, from the highest to the lowest. It finds manifestation in the demand for a dirt farmer on the federal reserve board; a dirt farmer as secretary of agriculture; a dirt farmer for representative in congress. And again we find this and that position, as though one who does not work in the shops or in the mill or on the farm is not in sympathy with those who do. It even goes further by insisting that only men who labor with their hands can be trusted with the conduct and management of public schools and to that end school boards are stocked with men drawn from that class.

We have no quarrel to make about the men who are so chosen so far as manhood and public interest goes, and their service may be just as efficient as could be had from any other source. Mention is made of the practice to show the tendency toward dividing the masses into class groups, creating prejudices that should not be permitted to exist and causing distrust where confidence and sympathy should prevail if society reaps its highest reward. And any man who appeals to the passions and prejudices of the people is simply dealing in bunk—that's all.

BANKERS AND LONGEVITY.

(From the Dallas News)

Great minds never grow old. Raymond G. Carroll in a review of the master minds of finance in the city of New York gives names and ages: William A. Nash, banker, 82; John D. Rockefeller, 83; William Rockefeller, financier, 81; Joseph Seep, financier, 84; Oliver T. Warring, financier, 82; Judge Albert H. Gary, of the United States Steel Corporation, 76; Edwin J. Berwind, financier, 74; E. T. Bedford, financier, 73; Samuel G. Bayne, banker, 78. George F. Baker is said to be the busiest banker in New York and he has passed his eightieth mile post. There is another financier in the city of New York who is 99 and still reaching out for the shekels.—Wichita Falls Record News.

Bankers live a long time because they feel like they can't afford to die before their notes come due. In a statement to stockholders a few days ago the biggest bank in New York stated that it has had losses in the last year proportioned to the volume of its business. That means that big bankers are no more immune to mistakes than little bankers are. Many little banks also have had losses proportioned to the volume of their business, as have also little farmers, little butchers, bakers and mantua-makers. Another reason why financiers experience longevity is that they keep physically fit. They do not reduce their vitality by dissipation. Realizing that they are engaged in money matters, and that money matters demand the utilization of sound minds, financiers consciously or unconsciously avoid that which flabbergasts their mental equipment. Once in a while a so-called financier, usually one whose papa made him rich, looks too long on wine, women and song when they are red, as in the case of one or two eminent New York bankers, but that kind do not last long in finance. They finally slide down to their level, which is right low.

10,000 CHILDREN IN HEALTH CAMPAIGN

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas April 23.—Ten thousand rural school children entered the health crusade campaign last fall, according to statistics just compiled and reported to Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs, state president of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' associations, by Mrs. Pearl Hyer Hazel, childrens' secretary for the Texas Public Health association. Mrs. Hazel reported also that 50 per cent of the children entered in the crusade took all the honors given.

IF DREAMS CAME TRUE. —By Herbert Johnson.

NAPOLEONISM
By DR. FRANK CRANE
(Copyright, 1922, by Frank Crane.)

(Copyright, 1922, by Frank Crane)

Napoleonism is the exact opposite in almost every point to Chritism.

Napoleon stood for the consummation of vanity. He was the arch egoist. Christ stood for the highest type of humility. He was "servant of all."

Napoleon is the incarnation of the ambition to rule; Christ the perfect illustration of the ambition to serve.

Napoleon's characteristic attitude is a pose. He was always theatrical. The important thing with him was to seem. Christ never posed. With him the main thing was to be.

Napoleonism is what is the matter with the world. There are all sorts of Napoleons, Napoleons of finance, Napoleons of war, Napoleons of industry.

The owner of the woolen mills in the factory town likes to think of himself as Napoleonic. So does Trotsky. So does the ward boss in Chicago or Philadelphia. So does every little fippennibit soul that loves the spotlight and feeds on prominence.

Napoleonism is what is the matter with Europe. Europe contains too many grand and noble windbags and humbugs. Statesmen are doing too much strutting and crowing and not enough work.

All these Napoleons, from the vain Corsican who devastated Europe in his day down to the last Ponzi who seeks to dazzle and dominate by crooked means or straight, are like the chaff which the wind driveth away.

A characteristic incident occurred the other day in Paris. Napoleon was evicted from his garret. All his worldly goods were put into a cart and dumped in a disused quarry. This Napoleon we a rag-picker and his possessions consisted of old tin cans, rusty iron, scraps of carpet and other junk.

He had not paid rent for so long that the owner of the place where he lived had the law on him. This Napoleon owed his name to his claim that the great Emperor was his grandfather. He looked on while his property was being moved. He finally exclaimed:

"This is an injustice! I am not Napoleon's grandson for nothing. This work shall cost France dear!"

It seems to be a long way from the Emperor of France and the dictator of Europe to the angry rag-picker quarrelling over his humiliation, but the distance between the two is not so far as it appears.

When a woman tries to do her own housework with three yelling brats clinging to her skirts, you can't expect her to call it a "career."

As the average American reads of Japan's activity in Siberia, his only reaction is a comfortable reflection that he doesn't care a darn.

As we look over the list of those classed as the saviors of civilization, we can't remember that any of them wore hoods and bed sheets.

There is a difference of opinion concerning the things a young girl ought to know, but an old girl should know better than to act as though she doesn't know.

DOGHILL PARAGRAFS
By GEORGE BINGHAM

Slim Pickens is ambitious to become a show man, and will soon know how to walk a slack wire, as he has been rehearsing on the clothes line in the back yard. He says he would make much better headway if he didn't fall off so often.

Just as an illustration of how competitors watch each other and try not to let the other get ahead, about two weeks ago the Rye Straw Storekeeper washed his front window, and today the proprietor of the Bounding Billows store was seen doing likewise.

Frisby Hancock complains that some unknown person has relieved him of one dollar. His disappearance is shrouded in deep mystery. It has been missing since the day his wife patched his pants.

THE TRAILER

(Copyright, 1922, by W. Werner)

It all began the morning that Shirley Keith looked out of her front window and saw Zilah Bates cleaning Mrs. Whipple's veranda. She lived opposite Shirley. Her house was not unlike the Keith house in design. Both had been built about the same time by the same architect, whose business was building and selling houses. He had sold to the Keiths on the strength of the Whipples having bought the other. Shirley had argued that if the Whipples could buy a house on his wages her husband ought to be able to buy one on his. So she got the house and she thought she was perfectly happy until she looked out of her window and saw Zilah Bates at work for Mrs. Whipple.

"Of all things! She's hiring," Shirley said to herself.

Now when the people on that street hired their work done they were sick or else they wanted to show their neighbors that they could afford to sit idle while somebody else scrubbed and swept for them. Shirley knew that Mrs. Whipple was not sick. Therefore, she must be trying to put on airs.

"Maybe she thinks," Shirley continued mentally, "that she's the only woman on this street who can hire her work done, but I'll soon show her she isn't."

Shirley's veranda did not need cleaning, but the very next morning there was Zilah Bates scrubbing it with a great splashing of water. Shirley had walked clear across the town the night before to engage Zilah.

"Yesterday and today's the only time I ever worked on this street," Zilah told Shirley. "Miss Whipple's awful nice to work for. She's engaged me permanent—every Thursday morning. She says she's so busy with society that she ain't all the time she'd wish for doing her own work. But I guess she can afford to hire it she wants to."

"I'm sure I hope so," said Shirley darkly. "So she's hired you for Thursday morning, has she? Well, you'd better come here Friday mornings. I'm rather busy socially myself."

Zilah grinned. She had picked up a good deal of knowledge concerning human nature as she worked about. These two little women in their two little houses were acting just exactly the way Mrs. Homer Brunt nad Mrs. Ami Van Tile acted over on Floral avenue. And there was just as much fun to be got out of them as out of the older and higher toned pair. Long ago Zilah had learned how to keep herself in work by playing one patron off on the other. In her way she was a good advertiser but no one would ever have suspected it.

"Mis' Whipple kept me all day yesterday fussing with plants from the greenhouse," she informed Shirley next time she came. "She's going to make her veranda look like a garden."

So Shirley made her veranda look like a garden and Zilah got more work.

Then Mrs. Whipple bought some veranda furniture and Shirley had to have some, too, as near like it as she could get. She used some of her own money for it. She had a sum in the bank which she had been keeping for a rainy day, but even at the cost of its sacrifice she would not let Mrs. Whipple get ahead of her.

No sooner did Mrs. Whipple get her veranda arranged than she invited the Hinkey Dee club for an afternoon at bridge. They played in plain sight of Shirley all the afternoon and ended up by enjoying tea served by Miss Slack, the caterer.

That was about the unhappiest afternoon that Shirley ever spent. But she determined to do likewise or better. She did not belong to any club, but she sent out invitations for a party. She invited everybody she could think of to make sure of a crowd. And they came. She was fairly overrun with guests. But the torment of the whole affair was that Mrs. Whipple did not stay at home to see what was going on. She went motoring with Mrs. Van Tile and never got back till the moon had risen!

That night Shirley had such a headache that she could not sleep and Tom growled about it. "I don't see any sense of you inviting into your house a herd of women that would never think of returning the favor," he scolded. "The most you've got out of it as far as I can see is that you've made yourself sick."

"I don't care," sighed Shirley. "I'd have done it even if I knew that I had to have forty headaches afterward."

"You're a queer lot, you women," said Tom. "There's Whipple's wife across the street. She's hounding him for a phonograph for her birthday. I'd see her in tunket before I'd humor her if I was him. Why, they haven't got their house all paid for yet!"

"Oh, haven't they?" cried Shirley. "A phonograph!" she gasped and became silent while digesting these two facts.

A few days later a couple of men from the phonograph shop carried a handsome machine in at the Whipples' front door. Immediately after Shirley began to hear the echoes of famous artists. She stood it as long as she could, then she drew the rest of her money out of the bank and partly paid for a playerpiano. How she was going to finish paying for it she did not know, but there was comfort in the knowledge that the notes of the piano drowned out for the rest of the street any record that phonograph might play. She had gone ahead of Mrs. Whipple in that race, anyhow. And for a time she was almost satisfied.

"Between the Whipples' phonograph and your piano, Shirley, I'm sorry for the rest of the neighbors," Tom said. "I was crossing the street the other night and what I heard was plenty. I wonder what you two women will be up to next."

It was Zilah Bates who answered that question. She was scrubbing the veranda one Friday morning and had come into the kitchen for a pail of water, when she suddenly remarked: "Oh, say! D'you know Mis' Whipple's going to have her a car—one of them little roundabouts? She ordered it mor'n two months ago and she's expecting it'll come most any day now."

"A car!" exclaimed Shirley. But she recovered. "That's nice," she mused. "I wonder if it's the same kind I'm going to have. If you find out, Zilah you tell me, won't you?"

Up to that instant she had never thought of having a car or wanted one. But she wasn't going to have that Whipple woman get ahead of her for one moment. For several days Shirley suffered. The Whipple car came—a little red beauty—and Mrs. Whipple began to learn to drive. Shirley's head had begun to ache so horribly and so constantly that she was obliged to go to the doctor.

"You need more fresh air," he said, "and to stop worrying." He smiled. "What does a healthy young woman like you find to worry about?"

If Shirley had said Mrs. Whipple, the wise old doctor would have understood. But she only sighed and left him to infer that money troubles were half killing her. And they were. But they were the kind of money troubles that came from not having nearly enough money.

"A car! Great Scott!" Tom fairly jumped into the air. "What could we buy a car on? You better wait until you get that piano paid for."

And then Shirley wished that she had never heard of such a thing as a piano-player. What she wanted was a car, and she wanted it so much that she was fairly sick for it.

"Now, just because Will Whipple's wife has gone and run him in debt for a car is no sign I'm going to do the same for you," said Tom brutally.

Shirley wept. She had reached the point where she had to. But tears brought up no relief when she heard the toot of Mrs. Whipple's siren as she whirled out of the yard for her first spin.

In twenty minutes Mrs. Whipple returned. Dr. Parks brought her. He helped her out and fairly carried her into the house. A moment later Shirley's phone bell rang. It was the doctor summoning her across the street. "She ran into a wagon," he explained when Shirley appeared and got thrown out. I telephoned for you and her husband. Shirley. Now get me a basin of cold water."

After all, it was more shock than injury that ailed Mrs. Whipple. But Shirley, forgetting all their former rivalry, in sympathy hovered over the injured woman like a dove and won her everlasting friendship.

The poor little car was towed to a garage and some time later a foolish farmer bought it. But Mrs. Whipple had had her lesson. And Shirley had had hers.

DIET AND THE GLANDS
By H. ADDING BRUCE

With increasing appreciation of the importance of the so-called ductless glands as conservers of health and efficiency there has naturally been increasing effort among medical men to ascertain factors favorably or unfavorably affecting these glands. Of special interest in this connection is a report recently made to the College of Physicians of Philadelphia by Dr. Robert McCarrison of Madras, India.

In his report Dr. McCarrison reviewed the results of experiments made by himself and other investigators in modifying the diet of dogs, rats, pigeons, and tadpoles with reference to possible food effects on glandular activity. The findings obtained would certainly seem to offer useful hints to all who would keep their ductless glands in good working order and thereby increase their general resistivity to disease.

Especially do the experiments go to emphasize the importance of a well-mixed diet and an adequate diet in maintaining glandular balance and vigor.

When the diet is inadequate, it appears, there is not only an underfunctioning of nearly all the ductless glands, but a shrinkage in their size. The only exception is in the case of the adrenals.

"Inanition," I quote from Dr. McCarrison's report, as published in the New York Medical Journal, "gives rise to enlargement of the adrenal glands and to atrophy (shrinking) of all other endocrine structures. The atrophy of the thyroid is considerable and amounts to about one-third of the noral weight of the organ.

"In pigeons starved to death the thyroids weigh 30 milligrams per kilogram of original body weight, as compared with 5 milligrams in healthy controls. The adrenal glands increase in weight by approximately two-fifths of their normal weight."

Similar glandular trouble also results when the diet is not varied enough, and particularly when it is deficient in vitamin-containing foodstuffs. No matter how adequate the diet otherwise, if there is a vitamin deficiency all the glands, except the adrenals, shrink in size.

Overfeeding, on the other hand, may produce an abnormal glandular enlargement. Dr. McCarrison's experiments suggest that the thyroid is most susceptible in this respect, particularly if fats are eaten to excess.

In fact, he found it possible to produce goitre in pigeons by feeding them with a liberal diet of mixed grains in which he included a comparatively large amount of butter. In 65 per cent. of the pigeons thus fed goitre resulted.

When, however, codliver oil was mixed with the grain, instead of butter, there was no goitre, doubtless because of the iodine contained in the codliver oil. Hence, Dr. McCarrison concludes:

"An excess of edible fats in the food may, in certain circumstances, involve a relative deficiency of iodine and an undue stimulation of the thyroid gland."

In fine, these experiments afford fresh confirmation, from a most important standpoint, of the familiar dietary advice:

Don't let your diet become too scanty or too monotonous. Be sure to include in it fresh fruits and leafy vegetables. And beware of eating an overabundance of food, especially of foodstuffs rich in fat.

OPPOSE RENAMING OF VESSEL FOR HARDING

Special to The Record News.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Much opposition has been expressed here against the plan to rename the liner Leviathan, calling it the President Harding. The action has been taken by the Shipping Board under its policy of naming the big American ocean liners in honor of presidents.

Other vessels are to be called Woodrow Wilson, William McKinley, William Howard Taft, Theodore Roosevelt and Grover Cleveland. The hope is being expressed that the shipping board will name some other great liner for President Harding and leave Leviathan with its present name.

Spuds Lose Despite Two Homers and Flock of Hefty Hits

STANDS FILLED DESPITE RAIN AND WIND

Series Evened With Big Game Today To Decide

By "Spike" Cooper

Walter Salm tried all sorts o combinations yesterday in a vain attempt to stop the Panthers. Five hurlers went to the mound and three men were used in center field, but the Cats charged on and evened the series with a 10-7 win.

The Cats started their rungetting in the first inning and chased two men across the plate in the first, second, third and fifth innings, while a lone tally was counted in both the fourth and seventh. Bowman opened the firing for the Spudders and due to the weather, the ball and the Panther hitters, yielded up six runs on five hits. After the third inning there was a succession of pitchers whose terms of duty ranged from one to two innings, and the steady stream of Panther runs was not halted until the eighth.

The game greatly resembled that of Saturday, as the Panthers accumulated what looked like a safe margin during the first four rounds with a total of seven counters, but in the Spudders half of the inning, Beck singled to center and Adams walked. Two men were out when White faced Joe Pate, but he promptly drove the sphere over the left wall and three tallies were credited to the Spudders. Jake Miller responded nobly with another homer in the sixth when he was the second hitter up. None were aboard and the blow counted only one. White came through with a single to center in the same round, went to second when Tavener fumbled Kitchens roller, and counted when Tanner singled to left as he went in to hit for Mokan.

Pate got away to a good start in the opening rounds, but as the game aged, the Spudders began to fall into his chunking, and threw a scare over the visitor bench which sent another batch of heavers to the bull-pen. They were never called on, however, and Pate went the entire route, despite the threatening drive of the Spudders.

"Rabbit" Tavener showed that even though he is small, he can hit when the sign is right and accounted for four of the Panther runs. The little fellow is fast and has a good arm. He promises to develop into a valuable man for the Cats, but it is a big undertaking for any man to attempt to fill the shoes of Topper Rigney.

Salm sent two pinch hitters into the fray and both delivered. Tanner singled to left in the sixth for Mokan and Ruth singled to center for Ramsey in the eighth. Both sent runners across the plate.

Coombs walked, as the first man to the plate. Ziggy Sears skied one to Tex. Chink Taylor who went to center in place of Calvo hit a fast one to Bowman who tured to throw to second to get a couple, but held the ball until Adams ran over the bag and everybody stopped safe. Stellbaur came through with a blow to center and the parade started. Hoffman drew a walk. Phelan sent Beschner toward the fence after his long fly and Taylor countey easily on the throw in. Hoffman went down to second and Stellbaur attempted to complete a double steal, but Adams returned the ball perfectly to the plate and the runner was out.

Bescher rolled feebly to Hoffman who threw him out at first. Summa jumped from one of Pate's hooks, but it cought him in the back. Tex larruped one which sent Sears to the fence and Beck also flied out to right.

Tavener grounded out White to Beck. Possum Moore straightened one out to center and Pate drove one over Bescher's head which went for two bases. Moore was held at third. Bowman wild pitched Moore in and Pate advanced to third to score later on Coombs' sacrifice fly to right. Sears was out White to Beck.

Jake Miller pasted one to left for the Spudders' first hit, but got no further as Adams sent one to the fence but Stellbauer got under it. White flied to right and Kitchens was out, Pate to Coombs.

Taylor sent Miller to the left field corner after his drive. Stellbauer came through with another single to center and Hoffman walked. Art Phelan sent Stellbaur to the bench with a double to the left field fence, Hoffman being held at third. Tavener hit a short fly to Bescher, but Hoffman beat out the throw to the plate. Moore flied to Summa.

Bowman popped up to Hoffman in the Spudder half of the third. Bescher grounded out to Coombs and Phelan threw out Summa at first.

Pate opened the fourth with a walk but Coombs forced him at second when he hit to Adams. White threw wild to first and Coombs drew up at third on the play. Sears sent O'Brien to the fence after another long fly and Coombs counted. Taylor popped one and Kitchens threw him out from in front of the plate.

Beck shot a foul back of first, but Coombs is an outfielder as well as a first sacker and made a nice catch of the fly. Miller gave Chick Taylor a merry chase to the boards after one, but he was out. Adams drew a pass as his lot. White most unceremoniously blunted one over the wall for the first three chalkers of the homelings and the stands went wild. Kitchens struck out to finish the inning.

Stellbauer was passed 'n the first of the fifth. Hoffman singled to left advancing the runner. Phelan laid down a perfect bunt and Beck threw him out to White who covered the bag. "Rabbit" Tavener proceeded to violate all Spudder rules of etiquette by lambasting a double to left, sending two runners scampering in. This finished Newkirk's mound duty and Steve Mokan went in. Moore flied out to O'Brien who made a nice catch and Pate hit one to Miller.

Mokan lifted a short fly to Tavener. O'Brien, who had relieved Bescher in the previous inning, popped up to Hoffman. Summa failed to get out of the way of another slant from the famous Josephus Pate and was advanced. Tex shot a long drive to Taylor in center.

O'Brien got the first two put-outs in the sixth on flies from Coombs and Sears while Adams threw out Taylor at first.

Beck lifted a pop foul to Phelan in the last part of the sixth. Jake Miller followed the pattern set by White in the fourth and walloped one over the wall, his third of the season and second in as many days. Adams was out, Tavener to Coombs. White belted one to center for his second hit and was safe at second when Tavener booted Kitchens' grounder. Tanner went in to hit for Mokan and singled to left, scoring White. Smiley Bischoff hit for O'Brien but rolled out Phelan to Coombs.

Stellbaur lofted one over second, but White made a nice run and reached it in time to make the grab. Hoffman doubled against the left field fence. Phelan whiffed, but Tavener came through with a knock, scoring Hoffman from second. Moore popped up a high foul for Kitchens.

Summa and Tex McDonald both flied out to Taylor. Fred Beck lifted his second pop foul to Phelan.

Pate shot one down to third and Tex promptly threw him out. Coombs flied to Miller. Sears walked but was thrown out on an attempted steal.

Miller went out Pate to Coombs. Adams singled to right and both he and White were safe when Hoffman dropped a throw at second to start a double play. Kitchens was thrown out at first when there was no chance to head either runner. Babe Ruth was called upon and responded nobly with a blow to center scoring both runners. Bischoff grounded to Phelan who forced Ruth at second.

Taylor was passed on the opening of the final chapter. Tex fumbled Stellbaur's grounder momentarily and all hands were safe. Hoffman popped up a foul which Jake Miller captured. Phelan flied out inside the line to Miller also and Tavener went out, McDonald to Beck.

The Spudders threw a scare into the Cats again when Summa opened the last chance with a smashing single to center. Tex fell off his hitting streak of ten consecutive games, and on his last chance yesterday, forced Summa at second. Beck lifted a short fl yto Hoffman and Miller buried the Spudders' chance with a foul to Phelan.

The win yesterday brought the two teams up all even in the series and left the Spudders an even game to the good in the standing. A win by the Panthers today will send both clubs away with an equal average.

Just what will constitute the battery nominations for this afternoon's fray in a mere conjecture, but Phelan, vice Jake Atz, will in all probability nominate Moore, the husky recruit who dealt misery to Shreveport and Dallas in the first two appearances he had this season. Walter Salm will probably depend on Clancy to humble the Cats in the final home game of this stay.

The Spudders take the road tonight for 13 games abroad, stopping in Fort Worth, Dallas and Shreveport, before they return to Athletic park for an engagement of 12 days, entertaining Galveston, Houston, Beaumont and San Antonio in three day parties.

THOUSANDS THERE

The Spudder fan is a loyal fan and despite the loomy weather
They all turned out in a rooting crowd and pulled for the team together,
But the Cowtown Cats returned to earth and stood with their backs to the wall.
They clawed and scratched through
count one all.

'Twas not the fault of the faithful
fans, for every one was there
That the Panther Cats took another game and carried it back to the lair.
Nor was it the fault of the Spudder nine. They fought like Hell
all the way,
And they're goin'ta begin right where they left off, when O'Hearne yells "Play" today.

GIANTS-CUBS BATTLE FOR LEAD

Yankees Set Merry Pace for All in American

NEW YORK, April 23.—Major leagues teams rounded into the third week of the season today, with the New York Yankees setting a merry pace in the American and the Giants and Cubs battling for the lead in the National. The Giants also were on top by a half game margin today, winning from Brooklyn again, while Pittsburgh handed Chicago a set back.

Both New York teams, backed by splendid pitching and heavy and timely hitting, are displaying the aggressiveness which carried them to the top last year. The Yanks especially have gotten off to a brilliant start, despite the absence of their slugging stars, Nane Rath and Bob Meusel. Hoyt won his third straight game today, blanking Washington. Bush, Shawkey and Jones round out one of the greatest hurling corps in the major leagues. Young Norman McMillan, incidentally, is making an impressive job of filling the Great Bambino's slugging shoes and is one of the season's finds.

Detroit has shaken its losing jinx and today scored its third straight victory over Cleveland, pulling Speaker's men down to a tie for second place with St. Louis.

The Chicago White Sox, although losing today, won four out of five games during the week. The Athletics dropped behind after an early spurt. Boston improved its standing while Washington was trampled on, chiefly by the Yanks.

"Chick" Carney, one of the most brilliant atsletes the west has produced, has ended his college athletic career. For three years Carney played on the varsity football and basketball teams and was a brilliant performer in both sports. He was placed at one of the ends on Camp's all-American football team in 1920, the second Illinois man so honored. He played in a total of sixteen conference grid games in his career.

In 1920 he led the conference point scorers in the cage game with 137 points. He was captain of the past year's basketball team.

ATHLETICS LED LOOP

Who said Connie Mack's team isn't ready to give the American league clubs a scare? Fact is, that for a time on April 12 Connie's team led both big leagues and was—in fact—the only team in either league with a victory to its credit. This happened when the Athletics and Red Sox finished their game ahead of all the other big league matches and Connie's team came out on the long end—primarily because of the brilliant work of Galloway.

JUNIOR HI WINS FROM BURK, 7-5

Woodson, Walker and Carrington Feature

Wichita Falls Junior High School defeated Burkburnett High School at Burkburnett by the score of 7 to 5 Saturday. After the first inning Glidwell for the Juniors settled down and pitched shutout ball.

The game was featured by the hitting of Woodson, Carrington and Walker. Carrington also starred on the paths, stealing three bases. The two teams will play a return game here Thursday. Saturday is an open date with the Juinor nine and they would like to play one of the City League teams on that date. Any manager desiring a game on that date is asked to call Coach MacMillan at 5380. COULD THEY DO IT?

Chicago "outlaw" outfit offers Babe Ruth $100,000 to play ball with them because he's under suspension. The easiest way in the world to get publicity is to offer large gobs of paper money for something or other. Putting up the jack is a tougher proposition.

A dwelling forty-seven miles from Jordan, Mont., was moved to Jordan in ten days and across several deep coulees without cracking a window pane or damaging the plaster.

FIVE PLAYERS HURT AS CAR TURTLES

Herman Merritt May Not Recover From Injuries

By Associated Press.

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 23.—Five members of the Augusta baseball club of the South Atlantic league were injured when the automobile in which they were traveling to this city turned turtle just outside Greenville, S. C.

Herman Merritt, "farmed out," to Augusta by the Detroit Americans was reported to have received injuries which may prove fatal. The others were not seriously hurt.

Daniel Baker Coach Announces Schedule

Coach Mac D. Gilfillan of Daniel Baker college at Brownwood has announced the baseball schedule for that institution as follows:

April 20-21, Austin college at Brownwood.
April 25-26, T. C. U., at Brownwood.
May 3-5, St. Edwards college at Brownwood.
May 10-11, Simmons college at Abilene.
May 12-13, Abilene Christian college at Abilene.
May 15-16, West Texas Norman at Canyon.
May 17-18, Clarendon college at Clarendon.

M'INNIS OR SMITH

So far the knockers who jumped the Cleveland club for disposing of its leading home run hitter, Elmer Smith, to acquire the veteran first sacker, McInnis, have no material to work with. In the opening contests of the season McInnis proved the offensive star of the day for the Indians, poking out a single, double and triple, while fielding McInnis-ically. Smith collected one lone bingle. The season isn't over yet. But that's a blamed good indication of about how the pair compare, in my estimation.

Fight Cities Scarce

The report that a battle between Benny Leonard and one of his leading contenders is planned for Michigan City, Ind., July 4, isinteresting. It shows how promoters are searching for new locations for big fights.

Local and state laws have cut down the number of available sites for important battles. The biggest blow boxing suffered in years was the one delivered by the California legislature in prohibiting twenty-round decision bouts. Before the ban there boxing history was ground out in large grists. The main eastern centers already had prohibited the reasonably long battles. This gave the champs a great chance to remain at ease. All they had to do was to agree to fight "whenever a site was found for a real championship battle." This left the promoters with a nice job of globe trotting on their hands.

TENDLER SUSPENDED

Lew Tendler, prominent contender for the crown worn by Benny Leonard, has been suspended by the New York Boxing commission for rough talk to Referee Griffin following the Tendler-Pitts match in New York city. After taking a terrific beating from Tendler for 7 rounds, Pitts was awarded the decision on a foul, which brought on all the argument.

CONNALLY TO TORONTO

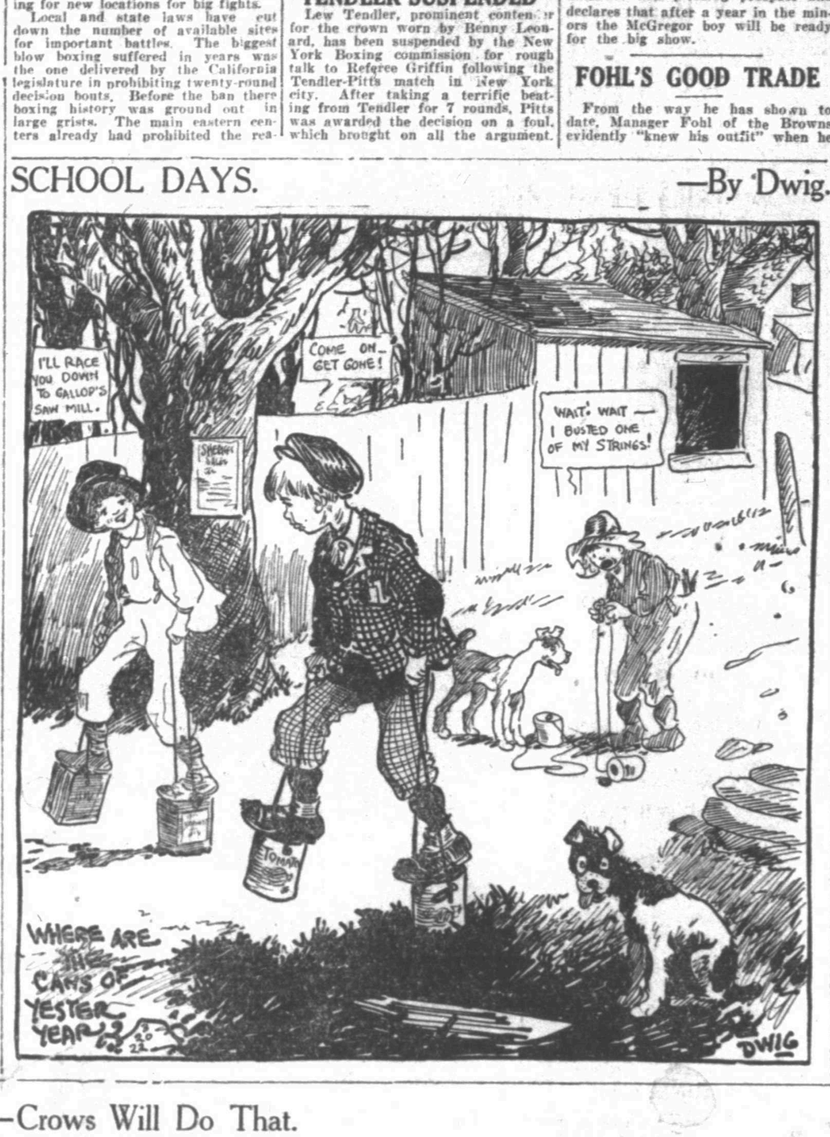

George Connolly, McGregor product, has been released by the Chicago White Sox to the Toronto team of the International league with strings attached. Gleason thinks much of this pitching prospect and declares that after a year in the minors the McGregor boy will be ready for the big show.

FOHL'S GOOD TRADE

From the way he has shown to date, Manager Fohl of the Browns evidently "knew his outfit" when he traded 11 so-called players for Dave Danforth, who once sported the regalia of the green and gold in this city. He has won two games and the season isn't a week old as yet.

SETBACK HITS MONEY MARKET

Stocks Advance to Higher Ground

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 23.—The financial market experienced another week of extraordinary activity at mounting prices regardless of national and international happenings which in normal times might have acted as deterrents to speculative enthusiasm.

Despite the extension of the coal strike and its effect upon industrial productions and the Genoa conference which is developing unexpected complications, the stock market advanced to higher ground on the largest transactions of any similar period in almost three years. That the enormous turnover represented to a large degree the operations of professional interests was generally conceded.

It was also believed, however, that public participation figured to a greater extent than at any time since the boom markets of the world war period.

The bond market kept time with the lively pace set by the stock list. New issues for the week exclusive of various minor underwritings approximated $150,000,000 and total offerings for the current month already exceeds those of March.

Money conditions were a greater factor in the advance than any previous period of the movement. In the open market call loans were practically "Pegged" at 3 1-2 per cent, but even this low rate was shaded in many private negotiations.

Time funds for one to three months were obtainable at 4 per cent, although quoted at 4 1-4 to 4 1-4 per cent and bank acceptances and commercial paper rates relaxed.

Aside from the coal strike gains were reported in many branches of business and manufacture and foreign trade prospects brightened. Price schedules for iron and steel again were subjected to upward revision. Decision of the United States steel corporation to build at a cost of $15,000,000 a tube mill in the Gary district was regarded in trades circles as a significant development. The slight disturbance to the international currency which followed announcement of the Russo-German pact was cited as strong proof that the foreign exchange market had reached the stage of stabilization. It is understood that barring unforeseen events the request of the European powers that American financials interests be represented on the inter-allied reparations commission will be accepted.

Big Day Sunday At First Baptist

Splendid attendance, on all services, and a record of twenty additions to the church following the Sunday school services, marked yesterday the best day, so far, of the Scarbrough revival, now in progress at the First Baptist church, according to an announcement from the church Sunday night.

"Yesterday was undoubtedly the best day attained in the revival being conducted at the First Baptist church by Dr. L. R. Scarborough. The audiences, both morning and evening were good, not only in numbers but in the attention.

Following the Sunday school service in which more than 20 people accepted Christ as their personal Savior. Dr. Scarborough preached on the theme, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory." He pointed out how Paul no doubt the greatest man ever known except Jesus, is today the means of saving many souls. "The apostle, through his writings is still a mighty power, even though he lived far more than a thousand years ago. During his life, fourteen years of which were spent in jail, he was victor in being able to lead kings before whom he was tried to Christ. Can we truthfully say we have sacrificed aught for the cause of righteousness when we look on such a record?"

Thirty people united with the church following the morning and evening services, the subject of the latter being "Repentance," or "The First Step Toward Salvation." One feature of the meetings is the number of prominent business men who are taking their stand for Christ and the church. A more perfect organization for winning the lost is being put into operation, and the coming week is expecting to find even larger numbers coming into the church.

Tonight, Dr. Scarborough will use as his theme, "A Personal Message From Hell." He says, "This will not be a sermon as to what hell should be, but what hell really is as recorded in the Bible. There is a doctrine of hell even as there is a doctrine of heaven, and men should know the truth concerning both. Through God's wireless telegraph we have a message from an inhabitant of hell, and this message is of great concern to both the lost and saved. There are logical reasons why this man sent such a message and I shall give them to you in this sermon of tonight."

Services will be held this morning at 10 o'clock. The morning services are growing in spiritual interest.

A. J. KEY SHOT AT SATURDAY NIGHT

Mystery surrounds a shooting on the corner of Ninth and Polk street Saturday night at an early hour in which a Hupmobile roadster in which Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Key of 2300 Ninth street suffered a punctured rear tire and a bursted top glass.

Driving home from a picture show, Mr. and Mrs. Key had turned the corner at Polk street, when firing began from an automobile which had been trailing them. Four shots were fired, according to the authorities, two of which struck the car, the bullet which penetrated the top glass passing but a few inches above Mr. Key's head.

The occupants of the car from whence the shots are said to have emanated, continued on Ninth street immediately following the shooting and effected their escape. No clue as to their identity, other than that they drove a Buick auto, has been obtained.

Mr. Key is an employe of the Panhandle Oil & Refining company.

TEXAS DEATHS CUT

Special to the Record News

AUSTIN, Texas April 23.—"During the past seventeen years the death rate from tuberculosis has been cut practically in half," states D. E. Breed of the Texas public Health Association. "In 1904 the death rate from tuberculosis in the registration area of the United States was 200 per 100,000. The best available records for 1921 indicate that the death rate will be practically 100 per 100,000. This means an annual saving of nearly 100,000 lives."

NEFF PESTERED WITH LETTERS

Ask Everything From Politics to Opinion

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 23.—Being governor requires more than working knowledge of the affairs of the state government, more than the ability to sit in the executive chair and veto or sign bills and more than the energy required to make an occasional speech at a dedication of a home for dependent animals, or something of the sort.

It requires an abundance of patience and a knowledge of everything.

Ask Color of Cravat

This information was gained from watching the mail arriving at Governor Neff's office. His daily mail includes questions on early every subject under the sun. It seems that after people in various parts of the state have exhausted their immediate sources of information they write the governor, thinking "well, why not? Isn't he the public servant?"

These queries are written on all kinds of stationery, from the pink perfumed kind to plain old wrapping paper. People want to know all about the governor, from why he does not wear a red tie to what make of cigar he smokes. The governor, however, does not smoke.

Want His Oinion

The daily mail always includes several requests for opinions by the governor. Most of these are from school or college students wanting the opinions for use in an essay.

Complaints figure a great deal in the daily mail. People complain about everything to the governor. One man in Hunt county wanted the governor to detail rangers to guard his pecan trees, while another in Dallas asked in a lengthy letter on wrapping paper, for a ranger to guard his home. It was considered queer that the latter did not give reasons for wanting a special guard.

Every question of state interest brings hundreds of letters to the governor. About half of these want to know why he does not takes sides on a question and the other half offer advice as to what to do if he is drawn into the controversy. The recent agitation about the Ku Klux Klan in Dallas almost doubled the governor's mail for several days. While an effort was being made to have the sentence of George Hornsby, who was recently hanged at Belton, commuted to life imprisonment, the governor's mail increased by many letters for several days before the hanging.

"DEAD MAN" WINKS AT UNDERTAKERS

NEW YORK, April 23.—Peter Gurnik Tuesday night slept in Bellevue hospital, totally unconscious that he came within a wink of spending the night in one of the cold steel boxes of the city's morgue. And this is how it happened:

Cleaning windows was his job, but Peter didn't bother about a safety belt. However, two minutes after he had started on the windows of the office on the sixth floor of a building he landed on the top of an automobile parked in the street, bounced 10 feet in the air and eventually cuddled up in the hole he had made in the automobile.

In response to cries of clerks, stenographers and others, Traffic Policeman Grahame hustled Peter, pale and motionless into a taxicab and over to the city's morgue.

Stretched out on the hard marble slab Peter looked all that was expected of him until Superintendent Ward noticed him blink his eyes. Never before had a dead man so behaved. Mr. Ward called Policeman Grahame and told him he had been in error.

So Peter was hurried to Bellevue hospital where it was found he would soon recover, with no injuries except a fractured thigh.

PLANE FIRES. THEN CRASHES

Both Occupants Die Of Burns

By Associated Press.

HATBORO, Penna., April 23.—Two men were burned to death at the Warminister Flying Field late today when their airplane burst into flames at a height of about 750 feet and crashed to earth. The victims were Charles Van Der Vere, a former army pilot and Harry L. Schaeffer of Philadelphia, a passenger.

SEE AMERICA THIRST

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Mexicans are harvesting for tunes from America's prohibition thirst.

Recent reports from border agents to Prohibition Commissioner Haynes stated that Mexican booze promoters, bottling concoctions with extract of the Mexican pulque plant as a base, are shipping enormous quantities into the United States.

Bootleggers in the border states buying the fiery Mexican drinks at a low price are getting top-notch prices for their wares in many of the southwestern and western states, the report stated.

FREE CAR FARES URGED FOR PUPILS

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO, April 23.—Free street car fares for school kiddies in advocated by L. J. Marienberger, teacher of romance languages in the Lane Technical high school.

"In many cases," he says, "parents can ill afford to spare the money for transportation. If the traction company cannot give them free rides the board of education should provide the fares.

"Free fares are as necessary as free textbooks."

The matter is to be put up to Mayor William Hale Thompson.

DETROIT GROUP HEADS NOBLE

Tulsa Judge Restores Control of Plant

Following five changes in management the first of the year, four of them coming last week, control of the Charles F. Noble Oil & Gasoline company, owners of the largest casinghead gasoline plant in the world, near Burkburnett, as well as valuable production in the Northwest pool, back in the hands of the men who have been in control since the resignation of Noble and other officers last January. This control is vested in the representatives of the Detroit group of stockholders.

The order restoring them to control was granted by Judge Hunt at Tulsa, dissolving a temporary receivership which had been gained following efforts of Noble and associates to regain control of the company through court action, and which resulted in four changes in management last week.

No Emergency Existed.

In reviewing the case for his final decision, Judge Hunt, according to the Tulsa World, declared that in his opinion no emergency existed in the company's affairs which called for the receivership order, and that it was apparent to the court that the purpose of the meeting at midnight which resulted in the appointment of a receiver was to throw the company into receivership before the petition could be heard, with due notice, the next morning.

Judge Hunt's decree restores Charles H. Avery, George H. Kirchner and T. B. Preston and others who were elected officers and directors at the meeting last January to control of the company.

On January 20, Charles F. Noble, president of the company, well known in Wichita Falls through his residence here managing the company properties in the Burkburnett field during the heighth of the development E. E. Allman, treasurer, and several directors resigned from the company under the understanding, they allege, that they would be re-elected. At this time, however, new officers and directors were named.

Early last week, Noble secured in Judge Hunt's court at Tulsa, a temporary order restoring him to office, and enjoining the other set of officers from interfering with his management of the company.

Local Officials Act.

Following a day of excitement around the Noble company offices in Tulsa, during which officials from Wichita Falls and other points where the company operates rushed to Tulsa, Judge Biddison, another Tulsa judge, appointed a temporary receiver in a session in Chambers at 11 o'clock at night. The next morning Judge Hunt rescinded his temporary order granted to Noble, and named a co-receiver for the company. His subsequent action the next day restored the control to the group which held it before the merry round started at Tulsa.

The Noble company, in addition to their production here and their gasoline plant, still the largest in the world, has a gasoline plant at Quay, Oklahoma, and production in several Oklahoma pools.

LOCAL MAN PROTESTS MUZZLELESS HOUNDS

Explanation of non-enforcement of the dog muzzling, dog tax ordinances in Wichita Falls and other towns may be due to a secret contest among police commissioners, suggests E. H. Breaux, local machinist, in a communication to the Record News, following up one of protest two weeks ago following his being bitten by a dog, and which he declares has resulted in promises.

This contest, he suggests in his letter, may be for a prize to go to the community with the proportion of fewest persons to most dogs, least tags and no muzzles.

"Boys we stand high." Breaux says. "We're batting 600."

The communication follows:

"To the Record News:

"A few weeks ago we felt greatly relieved. Now we feel like a Mohammed. We have gone to the mountain. But unlike Mohammed the 1st we were promised—that the ordinance to muzzle all dogs would be enforced.

"That promise is more easily kept than the one lowering the gas rate. All it needs is a sensible man and a .22 rifle. The men and rifles are both plentiful.

"Last Monday evening at 6 o'clock we were about to enter the police station, but at the door we met an unmuzzled dog. Probably the police commissioner's dog.

"We did not go in. Didn't have the nerve. Would you?

"We passed more dogs and still more and got home safely in spite of not having on our galvanized breeches.

"Friday we met some little children, one of whom had been bitten by a lady's dog.

"The dog was safely put up after biting the child. And then the police approached. Reverse English you see. We saw in the paper where two children in Corsicana were sent to Austin for treatment of rabies. If the little children on Austin dies? Perhaps then the dog will be killed as ordered.

"And, assuming he so far forgets himself and bites another child in a day or so, perhaps it may be shut up in the best bedroom for an hour by order of the police commissioner.

"Then, there is an ordinance requiring the tagging of dogs. Over half are untagged. Some law, eh! Some law enforcement? Or can it be that an ordinance is not a law unless it is enforced? There might be the solution.

"Some one suggested that there might be a secret contest between police commissioners, the prize going to the community with the proportion of fewest persons, most dogs, least tags and no muzzles. Boy we stand high. We're batting 600.

"I hereby resolve that after death I do not care as to the manner used in disposing of my body, but "I am resolved that during life I object to being used as dog meat.

"Be it further resolved that P. Comm. promised there would be action taken to enforce dog muzzling ordinance two weeks ago at meeting of council, and did not keep said promise. By the dog bitten.

"E. H. BREAUX."

NOW THEY'RE DIGGING * * * * * * * * * OIL WELLS INSTEAD * * * * * * * * * OF DRILLING THEM

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, April 23.—Digging instead of drilling is the latest method of reaching oil in the earth, according to a report received at the office of J. T. Robison, commissioner of the general land office of Texas. Commissioner Robison said he received a report from the operators of a well in the Toyah field stating that oil in commercial quantities had been obtained in the field by digging a well to a depth of 99 1-2 feet deep. The hole dug was four feet square, according to the report.

Timbers of 2 by 6 dimensions formed the walls for 79 feet of the depth. When the bottom of the well was reached the operators tunnelled eleven feet in one direction and six feet in another.

BURK PERSONALS AND OTHER ITEMS

BURKBURNETT, April 23.—The Ladies Missionary society of the week met in Bible study and finished the lessons in Eclesisastics and the songs of Solomon, under the leadership of Mrs. Lulu Majors, president. The attendance was good.

The Wednesday Needle club held their weekly meeting in the home of Mrs. Ellis, on the Ellis addition of the city south of town. Three guests were entertained with the members, and the happy social hour, devoted to needle-work of many kinds, was concluded with a treat of refreshments graciously dispensed by the hostess.

Mrs. M. L. Urban, and daughter, Miss Florance Urban, Mrs. B. A. Weldon, and Mrs. Charles Wharton formed a pleasant shopping party in Wichita Falls Thursday.

Miss Maggie Cordell, agent for the Hygiene Corest company, with headquarters in this city, is spending several days this week in Electra and Henrietta, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Nelson of the Webber Oil company lease, of which he is superintendent in Newtown, were guests this week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Urban.

Mrs. Edd Peterson, Mrs. Judd Exley and Mrs. Bert Calkins were among the Burkburnett ladies who were business visitors in Wichita Falls Thursday.

Mrs. W. J. McGuire and Mrs. W. B. Furgeson accompanied their young brother, Paul Ferguson, to Wichita Falls en route to his former home in Mineola, Texas.

Ed Trotter, a former citizen of Burkburnett was greeting friends on our streets Friday.

The young people of the Methodist Church leagues have been improving and arranging for out-door recreation grounds at the church, the spring and summer season. Tennis courts, volley ball court, croquet and other good game equipments will be installed.

Tuesday evening the Senior league, chaperoned by their recreation leader, Mrs. W. R. Hill, enjoyed a weenie roast and moon light frolic on the Shoal sand of the Red river near the bridge. The party went out in motors and a big truck and a delightful time is reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gorden, and little daughter, Virginia Anne, of Mineola, Texas, were guests in the home of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McGuire Saturday.

BUCKING BOVOLUPUS BOOKED AS TERROR TO RODEO RIDERS

In the herd of wild longhorn bucking Brahma steers, which Tom Burnett has procured for use in the round-up at the ball park May 3, 4 and 5, there is one big red longhorn that is larger and more vicious than any of the rest, in fact this steer which was one of the herd used at the Fort Worth rodeo bucked off and badly bruised four riders, knocking one unconscious with his long horns, breaking another's nose in the same manner and badly bruising the other two.

Pop Boone the genial sporting editor of the Fort Worth Record nicknamed this steer the "Bovolupus" which in the language of ancient scribes is supposed to mean "wolf cow." Anyway without any terror being attached to the name, there are just plenty of cowboys and spectators who saw the bovolupus perform that will wager a good sum that there is not a cowboy in Texas who can ride the animal and qualify and accordingly Tom Burnett has put up a special purse for the riding of this steer which will be a separate contest from the regular steer riding contest.

There will be but three riders who will attempt to ride the bucking bovolupus and they are three of the most noted steer riders in the game, on the first afternoon Tommy Douglas of Waco, Texas, will try his luck at staying above the hurricane deck of the bucking bovine, Tommy is known as an excellent steer rider and seldom fails to land in the money. He will be remembered as putting on the closing ride of the roundup here last year, making an excellent ride on a longhorn but having the misfortune of breaking his arm in dismounting.

RADIO SETS FOR GUESTS

Hotel Radio Switchboard for accommodation of guests.

So popular is radio becoming that several of the larger hotels are planning to install radio receiving sets in the rooms, so that their guests may cut in any time they desire. These room sets will be operated through a switchboard in the lobby of the hotel.

Rodeo Riders Pay More for Their Lids Than Any Woman Would Think Of Doing in These Low-Price Days

Ladies, particularly unmarried ones, who have a penchant for high priced millinery. Listen to a bit of advice.

If you would have a husband who absolutely wouldn't kick on prices of headgear, regardless, select a rancher, or a rodeo star. For why?

Well, you couldn't imagine a man who paid $40 for his ordinary every day Stetson, kicking about $25 or $30 for a simple little bonnet, or about $40 or $50 for a real nifty chapeau, perhaps even $75, when he paid $150 for a Sunday go to meeting. Now could you?

Those generous brimmed Setetsons that are seen on the streets of Wichita Falls, and will continue to be seen in increasing numbers until the big rodeo is over, represent a real investment. The most ordinary every day one of them will set it's wearer back $35 to $40, while those respondent ones, with elaborate band and fancy block, represent anywhere from $75 to $150.

And the magnificent hat worn on special occasions by the master of Texas rodeos, Tom L. Burnett, of the Triangle Ranch—well, the cost dope on that isn't being put out.

There is one advantage that these felt sunshades can boast over some forty or fifty dollars worth of flowers, straw and ribbon, they will weather the sand storms, rains and heat for many, many months. In fact there have been some marvelous endurance records performed by many of these sombreros now prominent on Wichita Falls streets and in hotel lobbies. When it comes to being practical that's the one thing they are most.

One of the most remarkable items concerned with these high priced hats is that in the general decline of merchandise, there has been no drop in the price of the cowman's favorite model. On the other hand in some styles there has been an advance of a few dollars, recent purchasers state.

A Wife or a Profession?

CHAPTER LVIII

"Let us go home, Howard, back home!"

"What for?"

"To be the way we were—together. There I saw you every day, and all day. I scarcely see you now. I should have you to myself—you are my husband. I never have you for a minute any more."

"You were the one who urged gayety."

"I know, but I'm tired of it, Howard, and frigtened, too."

"Frightened?"

"Yes, frightened at what Paris is doing to you."

"Paris has done nothing to me. You did it all."

"I don't understand you any more, Howard. You say such queer things to me. Don't you love me any more?"

In one of his sudden fits of passion he crushed her in his arms.

"You know I love you!"

"Then take me home."

"Very well."

No woman ever knows what sleeping giants a man may have within him, so, like Annette, she doesn't know what may happen if she arouses them. She had aroused in the soured, disappointed Howard Blake a craving which he himself never dreamed he possessed. He had tried to play the game for her sake, then had played it because it brought him relief from an accusing conscience. Because it helped him to forget disappointed ambitions. And he had played it desperately, dragging himself from place to place, sometimes with Annette, oftener alone, sleeping little, eating less, and drinking brandy when he felt the need of bracing up.

At first he used to say to himself that he couln't hold the pace; it was too swift for him; that he really didn't fit. But in an almost unconscionably short time he forgot to tell himself he didn't fit, forgot to despise himself for going the limit.

"Funny Annette isn't happy. This is what she wanted. I am what she had made me." Showing again his weakness by throwing the blame on her. But it was her money. He couldn't keep up the pace without a lot of it, and she had decided they would go home.

They took a slow boat. It was Annette's choice, made without any particular thought except that she was tired and the long, lazy sea trip would rest her.

There is nothing so cleansing, so purifying, as old mother nature. Before they had been many days at sea Howard found himself dissecting his actions, his emotions of the last three months. He recoiled from himself in disgust and with a wonder that he could have so debased himself as to find enjoyment in the fast life of the French capital. For hours both during the day and at night he either walked the deck or stood looking out to sea, letting the glorious cleansing air filter through his mind and sweep away the contagion.

He was very gentle, very tender with Annette, although he had fallen back into his quiet, reserved ways and talked little. But he was solicitious for her comfort and in all ways let her feel she was, as she longed to be, his only thought.

When the boat docked at New York Howard felt like a new and different man. All the hectic desires of the last months were gone. He was to a certain extent himself again—not the Howard Blake of Clarkstown, but the Howard Blake of New York, the quiet, self-contained, handsome husband of Annette Blake, the wealthy society woman.

It was a comeback, but the come back had not gone far enough.

Annette was gloriously happy.

"Isn't it perfectly lovely to be at home again?" she asked over and over.

"Very nice indeed," had been his answer. All their friends had welcomed them warmly. Annette was back in her little coterie of chosen people, those she understood and enjoyed. Howard trailed along, never showing any repugnance, even if he felt any, which is doubtful. They entertained in the same cold way and were entertained in return. Howard opened his office, sent for his nurse and door boy, and occasionally had a call from some friend of Annette's or some woman of fashion. Seldom did a man ask his services.

Mrs. Norwell had passed on while he was in Europe. Nadine told him that she fretted a good deal after he left.

"Not that she thought you could cure her. She knew that was impossible. But she liked you so much and dreaded so to confide in strangers."

Nadine was very lonely in her sorrow. Howard's pulses quickened as he saw her. He knew that Nadine cared for him, had known it way back in Clarkstown when he had mended her broken body. But he loved Annette, owed her allegiance.

"I've been enough of a rotter without that!" he said, and so turned back from the temptation to make love to lonely Nadine.

"And you still refrain from joining the staff of a hospital?" she had asked, and had looked grieved at his answer. "She has faith in me." Howard muttered, and someway it comforted him. He who so little deserved it.

Shrine Oldsmobile Won by Unknown Wichita Resident

Who gets this new Oldsmobile?

Some Wichita Falls resident did, but who?

In a telegram received by the Record News last night, James Mitchel of the Oklahoma City Information Motor club announces that No. 8558 was the lucky number in the drawing held at the Shrine Show in that city.

The stub bore the information that the holder of the ticket was a local resident, and that the car was being held awaiting the claimant.

Look over your stubs and see for yourself.

Number 8558.

A SPOTTED CAREER.

He's a hard-looker, I say.

Yes. I'll wager he'd stoop to nearly anything.

MEXICAN MISSION TEACHER TO ADDRESS PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN

Miss Kate Spencer, teacher in a Presbyterian mission school at Vera Cruz, in Mexico, took part in the Sunday night services of the First Presbyterian church Sunday night, and will address the Westminister guild and women's auxiliary in joint session this afternoon at the church.

Miss Spencer spoke very briefly of the general conditions in Mexico, contrasting the Mexican citizens with citizens of the United States, with regard to their ideals, as well as their advantages.

"The difference has existed since the beginning," she said.

"The pilgrim fathers came to the new land that they might have freedom of conscience and worship of God. The Spaniards came to Mexico in search of gold. And the religion they brought with them has sought to keep consciences and minds in bondage. The people have not had the Word of God, and it is to bring this Word to them, that we have labored, and are still laboring. The fight against ignorance and sin is made the harder because those we are seeking to help do not realize their ignorance, and really have not the real conception of the meaning of sin."

Miss Spencer's talk this afternoon will go into details of the mission schools work in Mexico. She has been connected with several of the Presbyterian schools in the republic, for a number of years, and has a rich store of experiences.

BACHELOR CLUB DANCE AT KEMP

The dance to be given by the bachelors' club tonight, will be held at the Kemp hotel instead of the Lake Pavilion as announced.

HUNT KID THIEFS

Have you lost your garden hose?

If you have, you might be able to find it through R. L. Yates, probation officer of Wichita County, who declared Saturday that he has had numerous calls during the last few days of the past week inquiring about the probability of locating the missing articles.

Officer Yates said that three calls reached him Saturday and that there seems to be a concentration of petty thefts from other articles on to garden hose at this time.

It was the officers opinion that youthful marauders and not heavy-bearded bandits are the looters, and with this thought in mind, he is making investigations over the city searching for lost hose.

FOLLOW CHRIST FOR SUCCESS

Dr. Pittenger Points To Bible Lesson

Preaching upon the subject of "The true meaning of discipleship," Dr. T. S. Pittinger, of the First Methodist Episcopal church, declared the true meaning was to follow in the path of Christ and His teachings, and to carry out His program for the redemption of the world.

"No man will succeed," declared the pastor, "who does not follow Jesus Christ and keep His commandments, and the man that pretends to do this, and does not do as Christ would have him do, will find that his life has been a failure at the end of it. The man that wins a place in a life of righteousness is the one that follows in wake of the Master. In the story of the morning Peter had been fishing all night without success and the Master told him to cast his net on the right side of the boat for a good catch of fish. I am certain it made no difference what side of the boat he cast the net on just so it was the one on which Christ had commanded him to cast it on. The wealth of the world is accumulated and saved by men that do the thing that Christ wants done, and in the way he wants them done. Fishing in the lake for ever has in it the same element that Christ said must be present if we are to gain success in anything in this life. To be a disciple of Christ means listening to the commands of Christ and doing what he wants done. If we are failing in life let us see if we are following Christ just as we should. If our aims are being defeated in life, is it because we are turning a deaf ear to the entreaties of Christ and His commands for our lives.

"Jesus said "cast your net on the right side." What is the right side for us? There is but one answer, and that from the lips of the Master 'Feed My lambs and then follow Me'. Jesus Christ has the only program for the world, as no one else has ever brought a program big enough for the needs of the world, and more people are listening to the voice of God today than ever before in the history of the world."

Public Service and Public Opinion

Success in public service depends upon public opinion. Public Service—heat, power and light, etc., is a part of the prosperity of a community.

Public Service vitally concerns every person and every industry in the city, or in the town, where it is located. Public Service is, in fact, PERSONAL SERVICE.

We all know that the quality of personal service which we receive depends largely upon the degree of our personal co-operation and consideration for those who serve us. Maintain an unfriendly attitude toward public service, and you injure every individual in your community, you hamper development, you balk business.

Unfriendliness toward public service is in reality unfriendliness toward the public itself. Constant criticism—without understanding; knocking, without investigation, all tends to react against your own interest.

Public Service is not defending itself. It needs no defense. It is potent that public service, by its very nature, is more interested in doing the right thing than are its critics.

The successful manager of a gas company knows positively that the public's interest is paramount. One of the greatest contemporary writers in the United States says: "I do not know a class of business men who are trying harder and succeeding more in their efforts to build up towns and cities, local interests and industries, than those of the public service companies. They are co-operating with the cities all over the country to create more industry. They are helping in every possible way to build better and bigger business in the towns where they are located."

PUBLIC SERVICE AND PUBLIC OPINION ARE INTERDEPENDENT
