If Webb is closed

Tower questions defense posture

A battery of Air Force officers, indirectly, Secretary of Air Force Thomas Reed and 377 Big Spring citizens were told that it would be a mistake to close Webb by Sen. John Tower and Congressman Omar Burleson and others Thursday afternoon.

Tower and Burleson and other officials made their presentations in person, while representatives of Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Cong. Dick White, and Cong. George Mahon protested the proposed closure.

Tower said that in his opinion "there are numerous shortcomings in the draft environmental impact statement and the published background studies that have been prepared by the Air Training Command," and that he is taking sharp exception to some of the fundamental assumptions.

"There is a total absence of any convincing evidence that the U.S. Air Force can still be adequately prepared and combat ready with the limited capacity for pilot training that will result from closing two undergraduate pilot training bases," Tower said.

"PREPAREDNESS," he continued, "is much, much more than having the fastest jets, the most accurate missiles, and the most sophisticated bomber in the world. Preparedness is first and foremost having people who are capable trained to do the job our nation requires them to do."

He said that if Webb and Craig are closed the other bases would be operating close to capacity, with no room for a surge of training that would be needed in the case of a national emergency.

Tower concluded, "I will not relent in my efforts to persuade the Department of Defense to keep Webb Air Force Base in operation, with its solid record of accomplishments and efficiency in pilot training and a level of public support here in this community that is unmatched anywhere in the world."

Burleson said that much of the material in the draft already released in the environmental impact analysis process is inaccurate and inadequate.

"If it can be proven that six ATC bases can meet the anticipated needs for pilot training, I am perfectly willing for Webb to be measured on its efficiency and comparative merits with every other base," he continued.

BURLESON ALSO hinted that Webb's mission could be changed.

"According to the information I have, other commands of the Air Force recognize the unique advantages of Webb and at least two possible change of mission studies are under way," Burleson said.

Following his speech Burleson admitted that he believes that the decision to close Webb and Craig Air Force Bases was a military one and that the hearings are an exercise in futility.

...protesting closure

Bob Block, administrative aide to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen read a statement issued by the senator.

It read: "Due to the significance of some information obtained within the last week, a portion of that only within the last few hours, and the additional substantive documents and responses which are pending, I desire the right to make a statement for the public comment portion of this record when the requested documents have been provided."

MIKE COOPER, representing Gov. Briscoe, said that the governor opposes the closure of Webb because of the economic impact the closure would have on the area.

State Senator Ray Farabee (D-Wichita Falls) said in a statement read by Big Spring Mayor Wade Choate that he protests the closure of Webb because of the economic impact and because other bases could be closed with less impact and at a greater savings.

State Rep. Mike Ezzell (D-Snyder) said that before any decision is made concerning Webb, that the Air Force look at the facts concerning the impact on Howard County, not opinion or theory.

County Judge Jimmy Mathis, Martin County, said that his county depends on Big Spring hospitals and college classes, and that a loss of population in Martin County would result from the closing of Webb. He said the residents left could expect higher utility rates and taxes.

Similar statements were read from county judges in Midland, Sterling and Mitchell counties.

Mayor Joe Swinney, Coahoma, said that the closing of Webb would have a great effect on that city. He pointed out that residents there depend on Big

HEARING — Captain Tim Lynch, Webb, and Colonel Howard K. Smith, Maxwell AFB, served as moderators at the Webb hearings yesterday. Here they listen to points made by Big Spring businessmen on the real impact of base closure on Big Spring and Howard County.

At Webb hearing

Statistics assault launched

About 455 citizens were on hand Thursday night as over 30 speakers assaulted the Air Force with facts and figures showing why Webb Air Force Base should not be closed, after the Air Force presented a slide show illustrating why Webb should be closed.

The show, presented by Maj. Ted Duigon, detailed the closure process through the draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), through the public hearings, through the final impact statement to the Secretary of the Air Force's decision.

The slide show was finished with the EIS figures on Webb and Big Spring, arguing the reasons it was chosen as a candidate for closure.

Following the presentation were thirty speakers representing area businesses, utilities and minorities.

The hearing continued from 7 p.m. until after midnight, when the personal presentation portion of the hearing ended.

The Air Force will accept written statements for five more days. The written statements should be mailed to 78th Flying Training Wing, Staff Judge Advocate, Webb AFB, Tex., 79720.

Jack Redding of Texas Electrical Services told the visiting board that his utility expected to lose from three-quarters to one million if Webb closes. Redding produced a chart of Webb's electrical use, computed on each other ATC base's electrical rate.

"I understand you are concerned about energy and energy costs,"

Redding said, "Well, to run Webb's operation at Laughlin AFB would cost 143 per cent more, about 2½ times what it costs here."

With the exception of Vance AFB in Oklahoma, where Redding said "substantial" rate increases are expected soon, Webb is the cheapest base to run from the viewpoint of electric power.

Redding pointed out that Columbus AFB is often held up to admire because it runs on TVA power, government owned and operated. Redding told the board that Webb's operation would cost $397,000 at Columbus opposed to $303,000 here.

Ben Bancroft compared Webb to Columbus AFB, suggesting to the Air Force the numerous reasons Columbus should have been cited for closure and the one reason he believes it was not. Bancroft called the decision of Webb over Columbus "political" and quoted Mississippi Senator John Stennis's assurances to his constituents that Columbus would not close, "Period."

Bancroft noted that, in the Air Force slide presentation, the encroachment factor at Webb had been changed from "relatively significant" to "potentially significant."

"I don't know where the Air Force found this potential encroachment," said Bancroft, "Unless the oriental restaurant plans to expand into a twenty-story building."

"We are entitled to a fair decision," closed Bancroft, "We expect no less."

The first speaker to follow the slide presentation was Col. Ralph Brooks (ret.). Brooks told the panel he couldn't understand how our new president could support the Humphrey-Hawkins bill to put people back to work and consider closing Webb and creating the massive rise in unemployment expected to follow.

Other speakers were:

—Col. Wil Banks (ret.) told the panel that while six runways would be nice at any base, he had found Webb's two to be more than adequate. Banks, former wing commander at the base, told the panel to "keep politics out of the situation."

—Dr. Alan Carey, an economics professor from the University of Texas, Permian Basin, called the EIS "seriously deficient" and "pure and simple hogwash." Carey said he spoke as a private person and a social scientist, and he said the EIS had, among other problems, no clear explanation of its figures.

—Roy Watkins, Big Spring Independent School District, told the panel that 20 per cent of the students in the school system would be lost. He said that would mean a loss of $343,329 in federal funds and the closing of five of the city's elementary and pre-schools. He said that the people of this town need proper consideration as "the most endangered of the endangered species."

—Dr. Charles Hays, president of Howard College, called the EIS "grossly in error" and said it overlooked Howard College almost completely in its study. Hays said 29 per cent of the students would be affected by closure.

—Wally Slate, representing the mayor's housing committee, told the board amidst a flood of corrected impact figures that the cost of closure would be $46 million dollars and irreparable damage to the housing market in Big Spring.

—Jimmy Taylor, president of First National Bank, said Webb, Cosden, and the agricultural community were the tripod which supported Big Spring. He said the removal of Webb would put pressure on the other two, causing the foreclosure of loans and a 25 per cent loss of funds.

—Jim Allison, publisher of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, said that 20 per cent of the Webb dollars were spent in Midland and elsewhere. Allison said West Texas needs Webb.

—Norman Knox, administrator of Malone-Hogan, told the panel that the loss of 10 per cent of his staff would be catastrophic because of the difficulty of replacing trained RNs and licensed vocational nurses in West Texas.

—City Manager Harry Nagel said the city would face a deficit of $1.3 million within the next twelve months should Webb close. "This, said Nagel, would mean doubling taxes, 35 per cent increase in utilities, and a dependency on federal funds which my experience tells me are non-existent."

—Bill Pollard projected a 27 per cent loss. That means about $6 million loss in auto sales and service, not (See Statistics, p. 2A, col. 4)

Tax cut chance revealed by Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter says there is a strong possibility he will seek a tax cut for average wage earners as one way of stimulating the economy if it does not pick up by Jan. 20, when Carter will take the oath of office.

Such a tax cut, Carter said Thursday night, "could be a strong possibility if there is no change in the rate of growth of the economy and if economic indicators should show a negative aspect."

One of those economic indicators, the October unemployment rate, is due out today.

The 7.8 per cent unemployment rate for September was the same that was recorded in July. The September rate represented an improvement from the 7.9 per cent in August.

Other recent economic reports show an economic slowdown.

Industrial production was flat in September. Based on the third consecutive monthly drop in new orders for that sector in that month, the prospect of any sizable jump in production for October is dim.

The slowdown has already been reflected in an increase in the layoff rate in manufacturing last month.

An optimistic job-related report came Thursday from McGraw-Hill Inc.'s 23rd annual survey of capital spending. The survey showed that businesses are planning to spend 13 per cent more on capital goods next year than they did this year, largely because of expansion plans deferred this year.

Such an increase would help the employment picture because of the new jobs created by expansions.

However, inflation is expected to account for possibly 50 per cent or more of the increase, even though businesses say the inflation rate next year is expected to be 1 or 2 per cent lower than 1976's rate.

Carter's top economic adviser, Lawrence R. Klein, had said that $10 billion to $15 billion in economic stimulus appears necessary.

Asked Thursday night at a Plains, Ga., news conference about what factors would lead him to recommend such a cut, Carter noted that "several of those who have advised me on economic matters have said that if the economy is still as stagnant next January as it is now, that a tax reduction primarily oriented toward the payroll tax level might be necessary to stimulate the economy."

"The size of the reduction would still have to be determined, as would the need for it."

"I think, though, that this would be a very strong possibility if there is no recovery in the rate of growth of our economic product, which has been fairly low recently, and if the economic indicators for this next quarter should show a negative aspect as they have for the last two months."

Carter also said any such tax cut would be designed to "stimulate purchasing power among the average American family."

Dawson 'wets' trying again

LAMESA — The never-say-die wets of Dawson County will bring the fourth liquor election petition in less than two years to the Dawson County Commissioners court on Monday.

All others have been defeated by voters. The commissioners will examine and act on the petition for an election to legalize the off premises sale of beer in justice precinct no. 2 when they meet Monday.

In other action, the commissioners will canvass the general election returns, pass a resolution approving the juvenile grant application, approve accounts for payment and approve reports.

Action/reaction: Broader scope

Q. Why is the Salvation Army the only religious denomination that receives money from the United Way, and why does the Pastor's Association allow this?

A. Pearl Pittman, president and campaign chairman of the United Way in Big Spring and Howard County said, "The fund works under a constitution and by-laws. Each organization must come before the board for approval."

"The Salvation Army is a community service for health, welfare, and referral of those in need. Religious organizations serving a limited group are not eligible for funds, but the Salvation Army has a broader scope which provides services which are not strictly religious."

Offbeat: Seeking home for neat chicks

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Charles Merten family is seeking a new home for five of its member — after deciding that sending them to the butcher block "was just out of the question."

The city council ruled this week that their five pet chickens had to go. Authorities said the birds violated a city code, and neighbors complained they were noisy and lacked personal hygiene.

"Not so," protested Mrs. Merten. "They're neat and quiet and the children love them."

She said the family decided to put the two Plymouth Rocks and three Rhode Island Reds up for adoption and had already gotten calls from several interested families.

"We're going to spend the day checking out these homes," Mrs. Merten said. "We want to place the chickens in a warm family environment — with someone who will not only give them a good home but love as well."

TV's best: Play it again

No doubt about it, tonight's best bet is the Woody Allen knee slapper, "Play It Again Sam," airing at 8:30 p.m. on CBS. Allen's encounters with the ghost of Humphrey Bogart are hilarious, and the ever-lovely comedienne, Dianne Keaton, is on hand for most of the film.

Marker on 96 ranch sparks rerun Sunday

COLORADO CITY — There will be a rerun of the scheduled dedication of the marker on the 96 Ranch, which will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at the historical ranch 12 miles south of Colorado City.

The land is still owned by Mrs. Louise Geisenberger, whose father, Bert Wulfjen and grandfather, J.D. Wulfjen, ranched on land in the Seven Wells area.

J. D. Wulfjen came to Mitchell County in the early 1880s. He was related to and worked for D.H. Snyder.

His first camp was in a buffalo hunter's dugout on the Colorado River and he later established headquarters closer to Seven Wells, building permanent houses and out-buildings there in 1885.

The brand was registered at the courthouse in 1885 and is thought to be the oldest brand in Mitchell County still in use by the same family.

It was an iron formed in the shape of a nine or six and was branded on a calf twice, one in the nine position and then flipped and branded in the six position.

Wulfjen was also in the mercantile business in Round Rock before filing on land in Mitchell County. A pair of scissors used by him to cut cloth will be used by the two daughters, Mrs. Ina Wallace and Mrs. Dera Winn in cutting the ribbon at the dedication.

Tower questions data

Spring for medical care, entertainment, and college classes and that replacing teachers in the schools there would be a major problem.

MAYOR Dan Hemphill, Odessa, said in a statement presented by Choate that Webb Air Force Base personnel provide $1.5 million in retail sales in Odessa and that airlines would lose $233,000 yearly in revenue without Webb people. He also cited higher cost of water as a major problem.

A statement from the mayor of Stanton was entered into the record.

Cong. George Mahon (D-Lubbock) chairman of the powerful House

Appropriations Committee, could not attend the hearings, but sent a statement to be entered into the record. "I shall continue to go my whole limit toward the continuation of Webb AFB. I was instrumental in the establishment of the base, and will do everything in my power to be of assistance and I wish to associate myself with the plea which Cong. Omar Burleson and Sen. John Tower will make at the meeting today," the statement read.

CONG. DICK WHITE, (D-El Paso) expressed his concern over the proposed closure of Webb because his district includes a part of Odessa, which he says would suffer a severe economic loss if Webb is closed.

Harold Hall, chairman of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Council, said that the council rejected the Draft Environmental Impact Statement as an inadequate document to show the real impact of the closure of Webb, turned over several documents to the court reporters including the minutes of the PBRPC board which rejected the statement.

He said that the PBRPC would require a carefully documented report in order to conduct their own review.

Mayor Wade Choate presented his arguments, which were published in Thursday's Herald.

Statistics draw fire

including the strictly used car dealers throughout the area. Pollard cited the cordial relationship between base personnel and the city. He quoted generals who have served at Webb as calling him up and saying, "Dammit, don't let them close Webb."

—Jimmy Morehead said that the seven local family owned and operated moving companies would lose 50 to 90 per cent of their business.

—J. Tom Graham, publisher of the Herald, told the panel that Big Spring would be unfairly punished because of the isolation of the city and because the populace "would rather move away to find work than stay here and get on the welfare rolls."

Graham said the alternatives and the change-of-mission capability at Webb had not been adequately examined.

—Jimmy Jolly expressed his concern over the impact of closure on minorities. Jolly called the Air Force lack of concern expressed in the EIS "very serious. You are ignoring the suffering which will begin with the base closure."

Jolly pointed out that minorities are the first fired, last hired and that the impact on them would be out of proportion to their simple percentage in the county.

—Jerry Carter said the furniture dealers in Big Spring intended to stay here despite the 25 per cent losses they expected to absorb.

—Denton Marsalis said the mobile home sales would lose between $2 and $2½ million each year.

—Owen Ivey of the Colorado River Municipal Water District said he had never been contacted by the company responsible for the EIS, and he didn't know where they got their figures, but he thought a thirteen per cent rise in water rates would be a conservative estimate.

—Darl Pittman said there would be considerable extra cost in gas rates.

—James Lancaster said Big Spring Cable TV would have to absorb a $148,000 loss.

—Nabar Martinez said that concern for the minority and poverty situation now would be even more seriously handicapped by the additional load created by the closing of the base.

—Dr. John Key projected a 30 per cent loss to area dentists, and said the real loss would be in trained personnel which could not be easily replaced.

—Rick Hamby projected a 13 per cent direct loss to practicing attorneys in the city and county, and a 22 per cent loss in indirectly affected jobs, such as secretaries and other legal support positions.

—Ray Don West said that Big Spring Savings and Loan and other savings and loans expect a loss of 25 per cent or about $10 million in deposits.

—Dick Egan spoke for federal employees at Webb, asking the Air Force to remember that labor is aware of the draw down underway at the base. Egan said for resources and equipment he didn't think you could find a base to compare to Webb.

—Rev. Carroll Kohl spoke about the exceptional relationship between the military and the city which exists here.

Statement figures said wrong

Winston Wrinkle, committee chairman of the Economic Development Committee of the Chamber, addressed himself to figures that he claimed were wrong in the environmental impact study at Thursday's public hearing on the Webb AFB closure.

He told new figures in possible vacant rental units, city taxes, effect on water sales, school enrollment and enrollment at Howard College. He said, "Howard College was almost completely ignored in the report."

Wrinkle also pointed out that some developers built new apartment complexes and rental units at the request of the Air Force and now were left with these units.

Brig. Gen. Kyle Riddle (USAF-Ret.) spoke on the excellent relations at Webb AFB and pointed out that "I know military people everywhere that have been stationed here that will comment on this relationship when we meet."

He also recalled the efficiency of the Webb AFB operation and pled for "a fair shake."

J. Tom Graham, also a chairman of the legislative action committee, was interrupted by applause five times during his presentation.

He attacked the political implications behind the decision and used charts to demonstrate the clear facts that showed Webb AFB was not at the bottom of the list in any of the Air Force's own designated areas of study.

"Nor are they next to the bottom," Graham added.

that the two bases near the bottom in such items as air space, encroachment and other items were actually Craig AFB in Alabama and Columbus AFB in Mississippi.

"No one can hide the fact that Webb is one of the top bases in the command," Graham pointed out. He also discussed flying weather and the fact that Webb could train pilots at a lower cost per pilot due to the large number of flying days.

"Look outside today," he said, "it's a great day for flying and it's almost always like that."

He used concrete facts and figures to show that it would save $4 million additional dollars to close Columbus instead of Webb. "I am a taxpayer and I am concerned when the Air Force is proposing to close the best training base of the six and a cost of $19,000 extra per pilot just because of Washington politics."

He closed with the thought, "I ask the Air Force to consider this matter again — this time on its merits."

Adolph Swartz, president of the Century Club, spoke in the afternoon concerning the subject of the excellent relationship between the base and the community.

"I think this feeling is unparalleled in any other community and is extended to all echelons. The feeling between citizens here and citizens from the base is one of spontaneous friendship. And it has always been this way."

Terry Hanson, chamber manager, spoke for J.D. Nelson, chamber president, stressing the disastrous effect of the closing on local economy and discussed the many lives and homes that will be affected.

Pete Evans, representative of the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, said, "Before you turn this place back into two cow chips and a windmill, I would like to say a few words. He told of the union's displeasure at the closing of the base, pointing out that the average length of service of civilian employees at Webb AFB is 15 years.

He also presented figures showing the number of civilian employees with medical problems making it difficult for them to move, the number of handicapped and the number of minority persons employed.

Following the final speaker, Col. Smith called for questions from the audience. Sandy Freeman spoke up telling them that she had grown up with the base being here. She told them she felt safer with it here and wondered what she would do if the base moved.

The answer from the military, and the only answer advanced during the afternoon was "Well, in America, we are free to move wherever we please."

This brought a slight grumble from the crowd and the afternoon session was closed.

The military committee then moved to the Chamber offices where they attempted to answer additional questions posed by Richard Jensen of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Council, Block, Wrinkle and Graham.

Plans for banquet in January talked

Plans for the Chamber of Commerce banquet in January were discussed at the Community Development Council meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at noon Thursday.

Mrs. Johnnie Lou Avery, banquet chairman, reported on the event which will see a limited amount of 600 tickets sold for the night of Jan. 24 at the high school cafeteria.

Speaker this year is Dr. Don Newbury, University of Texas at Arlington. Tickets for the steak dinner and speech will be $7.50.

Ambassadors will handle the ticket sales, according to Mrs. Avery's report.

Other reports at the council meeting, which was conducted by Ray Don Williams, included a report from Jerry Phillips on the possibility of obtaining a football play-off game in Big Spring. The committee has been talking to Forsan as well as to potential winners in other classifications in West Texas.

Dan Allen reported on a meeting to determine whether an Inter-Club council needs to be formed. The recommendation of the committee is to form such a council. This proposal will go to the chamber board.

Williams introduced the members of the BASIC committee assigned to the council. They include Cindy Mullins, Susan Musgrave, Tracy McLain, Brenda Bell, Debbie Burks, Robin Newsom and Becky Ragan.

The tourism committee report was given by Terry Hanson who reported that the tourism council will finance the construction of an observation tower, which will be a tourist attraction at the big spring. The high school trades class will build the tower. He also reported that he and a chamber director, to be named, will serve on a steering committee with college officials to operate the new coliseum.

Members of the council attending the meeting were Mrs. Marie Rowland, Cal Calnan, W.L. Thompson, Cullin Akin, Allen, Phillips, Mrs. Avery, Hanson, Williams and the members of the BASIC group.

Focusing attention on agriculture

Agriculture is as basic as mother earth to Big Spring. This area is prime cotton and ranching country in a time when agriculture is becoming increasingly important to the United States as a whole.

AMERICANS LITERALLY depend upon agricultural exports to keep the balance of payments in line, and the balance of payments (which is almost the same thing as saying the value of the dollar) is essential to keeping this country's standard of living high.

The Herald decided earlier this fall to produce a special tabloid edition which would be specifically devoted to agriculture in this area.

We put Marj Carpenter, the able reporter who has as her beat two essential categories of Big Spring's life in energy and agriculture, on the job, and she has done a really good job of coming up with farm and ranch stories for the special tabloid.

The effort is almost done now. The "agri-tab" will appear in Sunday's edition of the Big Spring Herald. It will contain 32 pages of interesting reading and information about the agriculture industry in the Big Spring, Abilene and San Angelo area.

THE HERALD has been making a bigger effort to write agriculture stories this year since Marj was put on the beat. We attempt every day to have the top farm stories and markets in our newspaper under the heading "Farm."

But I think you'll agree that this "agri-tab" is the best thing we've done to date.

Watch for it in Sunday's edition of the Herald.

Election talk

William F. Buckley, Jr.

It is the recognized duty of all publicists to deplore an American election soon after it is over, and to compare it, to its disadvantage, with more civilized practices in other nations, notably Great Britain. There, as we know, an election that lasts more than five weeks is considered excessive. Year-long rituals, in England, are reserved for royal courtships and conferences on Rhodesia.

But as we also know, or should, in Britain the party leader is selected by something less than the majority of the British voters. He is selected by the members of his own party in Commons. A campaign to achieve the majority support of, say 300 MP's, takes much less time than a campaign to court the majority of the voters of New Hampshire.

SO MUCH FOR the chief of government. The chief of state issues from the conjugal success of the reigning family, with the understanding that if there is a male offspring, the female offspring do not count. If ERA ever comes to Great Britain, so much for that custom. King Edward VII would have been Queen Victoria II, and God knows who — though one could, with patience, figure it out — would be sovereign today.

In America, all kinds of proposals have been made. They tend to go away soon after the presidential election. In part because people forget how awfully protracted the campaign was. In part because there is precious little that can be done. John Connally suggested, during the spring primaries, that no member of Congress should be permitted to run for President unless he has resigned his seat before January of the year preceding the general election. That would certainly have depopulated the Senate this time around, beginning in January of 1975.

A more viable suggestion is to move the nominating conventions forward, say to late August. A step in that direction was taken when the interval between the two conventions was stretched to four and even five weeks. What happens then is that the primary contest lasts longer if it goes down to the wire — as for instance the contest between Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford — and there is little relief. If the nominations are sewn up by early and conclusive victories in the primaries — as for instance by Jimmy Carter this year — then there is a hiatus of sorts, but not one that brings true tranquility. There is no such thing as a genuine vacation from a presidential contest, even as there is no such thing as a surcease of ardor during a true courtship. Still, this would be an improvement.

Next in line in frequency of proposal is the regional primary. If the country were divided into, say, five regions, and all the states in one region ran their primaries on the same day, then candidates would not have, as they do now, potentially 50 levers on our attention.

Once again you run into the difficulty of how to enforce such a reform. There are very few powers on earth that can force the people of New Hampshire, in which millions of dollars are spent, to abandon its early primary. Any time a state comes along intending to outwit New Hampshire by scheduling an even earlier primary, the means of retaliation are readily apparent.

THE CONTROL OF expenses seems not really to have worked. All it meant was that candidates spent less time wooing voters, more wooing contributors. Individual senators and congressmen complained during the election season that as many as 50 per cent of their appearances were before small groups of people from whom it was hoped to wrest two to $10,000; often much less. Since the Supreme Court has suggested that some forms of money raising cannot be constitutionally prohibited, one must deduce that choking off the purse strings won't work.

Cancer: Problem waiting for cure

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a longtime reader of your helpful column. But I have always wondered about one thing. Why is it you seldom write on the problem of cancer, which is probably the greatest single problem today, medically speaking? — Mrs. E.T.

Your letter was longer than the portion quoted above, but I believe the essential point you wanted to make is there.

My purpose is to educate readers in medical matters and where possible to suggest ways they can help themselves. Unfortunately, present knowledge offers little in the way of new non-surgical treatment of cancer, and less in understanding it. One can only suggest symptoms and recommend appropriate examinations to detect it early. I do this frequently. Of course, the acknowledged link between smoking and lung cancer is also mentioned in these columns. The early detection and treatment of prostate and breast cancer has come in for comment.

You will notice, too, that among my numerous booklets for laymen (ranging from headaches to foot disorders) there are none dealing with cancer. The reason is basically the same, although I am considering writing one on the subject of detection.

I agree with you. Cancer is a most serious medical problem of our times. Physicians — myself among them — are constantly on the watch for any glimmers of hope from the research laboratories. Too much false hope is raised by reporting various findings and "cures," which are almost always matters of unconfirmed experimentation on laboratory animals. This cruelly raises false hopes of patients and families.

When effective new cures, along it will be the subject of worldwide headlines. With the great volume of devoted research going on in the field I am sure that day is not too very far off.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: One of my children is a poor eater. He is 10. I have noticed that the tips of his fingers are a darker color than the rest of his hands. He also has puffy eyelids, both above and below the eyes. Do his poor eating habits have any connection with this? — L.E.L.

Very well could. He may not be getting enough protein and vitamins in his diet.

However, with the swelling you speak of you should also investigate the possibility of kidney involvement.

That might cause both the swelling and the other symptoms. Nephritis or nephrosis (kidney ailments) of this kind is not unusual in children.

You can't rule out the possibility of allergic reaction. These symptoms are sufficiently suspicious for you to have the child examined thoroughly.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have calcium in my spine column, and this quite often causes my left arm to start to go to sleep. But by moving my head it stops. I have been X-rayed, and have been told to exercise. Is there anything that can be done to cure this? — Mr. R.B.

There is no way to remove such calcium deposits, which are probably related to arthritis. Since your arm "goes to sleep," it would seem that the problem lies high in the spine in the neck area. This would account for the relief you feel when you move your head. When you do this it relieves pressure on the nerve as it leaves the spine.

Improving your posture and trying to assume different positions for your head when lying down should help. Often, such symptoms disappear with time.

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. Dr. Thosteson's booklet discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as effective treatments and medications. For a copy of "How You Can Control Arthritis," write to him in care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am trying to live for God, but I don't read my Bible and pray as I should. I meditate and try to pray but I cannot find the proper words. There is so much I don't understand in the Bible. Does God really require us to pray good prayers and be devoted Bible readers to be saved? — J. M.

Dear J. M.: This may seem strange, but I think you are trying too hard. The secret of the Christian life is trusting, not trying.

Your salvation depends upon the extent to which you trust the Lord Jesus to forgive your sins, to give you eternal life and to fill you with His Spirit. He has promised to do all this for you — and much more — and you must trust Him to keep His word. You must learn to trust Jesus every moment of every day. Your whole Christian life should be one of growing trust in the Lord to meet your every need.

The same is true of prayer and Bible reading. It is the Lord who inspires us in prayer and enables us to un-

Dear Editor:

So much has been said about the proposed closing of Webb Air Force Base. There have been pros and cons and granted it will do a lot to our town and industry.

We will miss friends who will be leaving us if the base does, in fact, close. There is still a doubt, but that is not why I'm writing.

Little has been said and few seem to care that the telephone traffic department must definitely close and must be done by next August or September. We will have no local operators to help us in emergencies and none on information who are familiar with our city as our information has already been going to Midland for a few weeks.

Several operators have already transferred to other towns but there are still about 30 employees who must find a job elsewhere. The people, like most everyone else, have families and may have to just quit and lose their seniority and benefits. Some operators are commuting already.

These numbers may not seem large in comparison to the base but I for one will miss our operators and that personal touch so I wish to say "thank you" for services performed for me and my family, and we will miss you.

I was delighted last December (I believe it was Dec.) when the first Herald had the headline "The Crossroads of West Texas" was printed as I had thought we should be something special due to the two highways crossing in our town. I love it!

Around the rim

Who was the first person to discover "government?" It must have been a beautifully logical, orderly progression from the first mandate of authority down to today's wonderfully simple and responsive system.

My records show it grew first out of a desire for self-protection. It is a common fact that any group of isolated unorganized human beings will fall upon each other in a paroxysm of organization until they either die or are too exhausted to compete further. Probably that whole Andes business was just another variation of registering to vote on who was to divide up the day's rations.

THE FIRST USE of "authority" was a prehistoric strong-arm tactic called "violence." Although not now in general acceptance, it can be found as the power behind the scene in such imperial domains as Chicago (probably all of Illinois for that matter), New York (where it is acceptable behavior at black-tie dinners), and Phoenix (where they have discovered the advantages of full-color television to get the word around).

The Greeks are properly revered as the first people to use the vote system and the simple majority rule ethic. People voted by dropping clay tablets into large jugs. The tablet... invariably shattered on the bottom of the ceramic jug, leaving the candidate with the largest number of supporters left standing the day after the election day the winner.

Demosthenes tried to change all that with his influence towards clear, moving diction. He practiced speaking day after day down by the sea with his mouth filled with pebbles.

He is remembered to this day as a great elocutionist. Modern experts maintain, however, that Demosthenes's pebbles were no harder to speak around than the cliches the American people require to flow easily from the mouths of their candidates.

The Romans established, or re-established, the God-given right to rule. This was perfected as the finest, most salutary, most flexible form of government ever to grace the earth. It peaked in its sanction of Ivan the Terrible, Bloody Mary, and Richard Nixon as absolute enlightened monarchs of their respective realms. The power an absolute ruler can command is reflected in those people who would gladly, if given the chance to do it over, cast their ballot for Nixon again.

GOVERNMENT IN THE United States has, of course, remained the most earthy of the world's systems. Today we can boast in our country that the common man can easily contact those with power, and through the eloquent expression of his desires and beliefs, as presented in crude script on the back of a plane ticket to Acapulco, influence equally with the rest of the plane tickets the course of our country.

Americans are also noted for their faith in their government. They remained fixed in their unshakable faith through Watergate, the Tweed scandal, and Washington's cherry tree. This, because they know they have a direct phone line to the President, means their certainty is absolute. I think they haven't gotten the long-distance bill yet.

Foreign cops in U.S.

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — In past columns, we have exposed the close ties between the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) and some of the world's most notorious secret police. These foreign police, we charged, operate inside the United States with the full knowledge and cooperation of the CIA.

Intelligence sources tell us that the CIA has even condoned violations of U.S. laws by such police agencies as Chile's DINA and South Korea's KCIA. The CIA, in turn, is allowed to operate in their countries on the same basis.

FOR EXAMPLE, the Iranian secret police force, SAVAK, was actually organized and trained by the CIA. SAVAK's bag of tricks, like the CIA's, includes illegal break-ins, wiretaps and forgeries. SAVAK agents, like their CIA counterparts, also hide behind various "covers."

Most SAVAK agents in this country pretend to be diplomats. They operate under the direction of Mansur Rafizadeh, who claims to be an "attache" with Iran's United Nations mission.

Documents from SAVAK's own secret files, obtained by trusted sources and verified by other reliable sources, describe how its agents have the run of Iranian embassies and consulates around the world.

A secret memorandum to all Iran's ambassadors, signed by Foreign Minister Abbas Ali Khalatbari, instructs them to "treat (SAVAK agents) as you do other members of the consulate."

SAVAK operatives "should be allowed to attend all meetings which are regularly held," directs the foreign minister, "... so that they would be informed of the current affairs of the embassy."

On a recent occasion, a SAVAK agent in diplomatic disguise got carried away and granted an interview to a reporter. He received a secret reprimand from Tehran.

The secret message complained that he had given the reporter his "real name and submitted information which was not advisable to mention." Future interviews, declared the message, "should either be handled by the ambassador or the person in charge."

Only in an emergency, when a legitimate diplomat is unavailable, can SAVAK agents now speak to the press. But they must use "an assumed name" and make sure headquarters is "consulted beforehand."

The secret SAVAK papers indicate that the agents spend much of their time recruiting informants. One memorandum from Tehran warns SAVAK agents of the dangers of paying informants by checks, which can be traced too easily. This makes the "security of the operations and sources vulnerable," cautions the memo.

THEREFORE, THE memo adds, it will be "necessary for operation leaders to make arrangements to travel to their respective territories... in order to pay the sources' salaries and operations expenses in cash."

Most SAVAK informants, according to our sources, are used to infiltrate dissident student groups such as the World Confederation of Iranian Students (National Union). This is the group that occupied the Iranian embassy in Geneva last June and staged a noisy protest in Baltimore against the award of an honorary doctorate degree to the shah's sister by Johns Hopkins University.

No less than the shah, meanwhile, has acknowledged that SAVAK agents are "checking up on anybody who becomes affiliated with circles, organizations hostile to my country."

Footnote: Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., who heads a House investigations subcommittee, has assured our associate Joe Spear there will be a full congressional investigation of foreign intelligence operations in the United States. Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., has already asked the CIA about its arrangements with foreign intelligence agencies.

MAVERICK BATTLE: Deep inside the Pentagon, a bitter battle is raging between two of the Navy's most respected mavericks, Adm. Hyman Rickover and cost-cutter Gordon Rule.

Rule has urged the Navy to pay a huge claim to the giant Tenneco conglomerate for cost overrun claims on ships being built at the firm's Newport News shipyard. Rickover wants to pay Tenneco only what the contracts and substantiated claims call for.

IN A classified memo to Navy officials, Rule belittled Rickover's attempts to make Tenneco stick to the original deal. At best, argued Rule, the Navy had a 25 per cent chance of beating Tenneco in the courts. In addition, he charged, one of Rickover's aides had "usurped negotiating authority" and the admiral was making "frenzied" efforts to cover it up.

Rickover promptly snatched back a memo to Chief of Materials F.H. Michaelis charging Rule with committing a "gross injustice" against his aide. Rule, the admiral fumed, was using "unsubstantiated allegations to justify the unwarranted payment of tens of millions of dollars of taxpayer funds" to Tenneco.

The firm, roared Rickover, has made "public attacks on the Navy... threatened to stop work on Navy contracts and... been highly critical of me and my staff and even lobbied against my most recent appointment."

As a result of the behind-the-scenes flap, Adm. Michaelis has issued orders stripping Rule of his authority as the contract supervisor on an important Tenneco claim.

Security job 'bit shocking'

MIAMI (AP) — Louis J. Kilmer says a summertime switch from sociology instructor to campus security guard at Barry College here proved "a bit shocking, a little scary in retrospect."

Kilmer said when school ended last spring, he needed money, so he applied for a guard job. "I walked up to the chief of security and said how about a job. He thought I was kidding," he said.

Kilmer said that patrolling the campus on a scooter at night soon made him suspicious of things such as people walking across campus at night and automobiles cruising around.

Kilmer said he also noted with distress how eager he became to ticket cars parked in unauthorized spots. "After a while I became aware of the fact that this would be a good chance to sort of look at myself in terms of what the job might be doing to my behavior," he said.

Carter vows to pursue new goals for United States

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter, who won the White House by only 27 electoral votes, vows that the slim margin of victory will not halt his plans to aggressively pursue new goals for the nation.

The Democratic president-elect spoke on the main street of his little home town of Plains, Ga., on Thursday night, and a crowd of some 400 watched in the chill autumn air as reporters, seated on metal chairs in the middle of the street, asked questions of the president-designate at the town's old railroad station.

It was also Thursday, two days after the election, that the final two states completed tabulating their ballots.

Carter won the presidency with 272 electoral votes in the wee hours of Wednesday. The final accounting on Thursday gave him the 25 electoral votes from Ohio for a total of 297. It took 270 to win.

President Ford, the loser, got 241 electoral votes with the six votes from Oregon completing his tally Thursday night.

Carter took 40,291,626 votes or 51 per cent and Ford received 38,563,089 votes or 48 per cent.

"I wish we could have carried all 50 states, but since I didn't, I hope to demonstrate even before my inauguration my complete commitment to being president of all the American people," Carter said, holding his first nationally broadcast news conference since the election.

The news conference, he said, will be the first of many. He said he hopes to hold at least two each month after taking office in January.

He said the narrow win would not stop him from "moving aggressively to carry out my campaign commitments." And he said there is a strong possibility he will seek a tax cut for average wage earners as one way of stimulating the economy if it does not pick up on its own by Jan. 20, when Carter will take the oath of office.

He said any such tax cut would be designed to increase the purchasing power of the average American family and would be oriented toward lower-income workers.

But the Democrat said he does not intend any interference with the workings of the Ford administration during its final days. In fact, Carter said after the news conference that he will spend less time in Washington than had been expected before the CARTER INTRODUCES MONDALE — President-elect Jimmy Carter waves to crowd Thursday night after introducing vice president-elect Walter Mondale during Plains, Ga. news conference.

Jan. 20 inauguration.

Earlier, Carter had indicated he would spend several days a week in the capital in transitional offices. But Thursday, he said he would spend less time in Washington to avoid the suggestion that he is trying to interfere with or second guess the last Ford administration decisions.

Carter said he would be represented in Washington by Vice President-elect Walter Mondale, who sat silently listening during the news conference in Plains. "Mondale will be there," Carter said.

As for the plans of his own administration, Carter admitted there would be difficulties in carrying out his goals. But he said he thinks his promises can be fulfilled, especially since he will be working with a Democratic Congress.

He mentioned hopes for overhauling the federal bureaucracy, for welfare and tax reform and for a new and comprehensive energy policy.

He said the narrow victory in the popular vote and the electoral college win gives him a mandate sufficient to tackle the tasks he wants.

"We had a clear majority of the total electorate," he said. Carter said the slimmest of the victory "is fairly typical" of recent elections. "I don't feel timid or cautious or reticent about moving aggressively to carry out my commitments because I only got about 300 Congress," he said.

Carter said he has not yet set any list of priorities for his administration, but he vowed to do so over the next few weeks. He said he will announce the decisions publicly as they are made.

At one point, he was asked to comment on the possibility that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries is planning to raise oil prices. While continuing to stress his intention to avoid interfering with the Ford administration's prerogatives, he said such a move by OPEC would be a serious blow to the U.S. economy. He said in regard to such matters that he can't act as diplomat or policymaker yet.

Carter said the authority to deal with such a problem is still Ford's and "I have none whatsoever" until January.

On the election, Carter said he didn't think the voting showed a strong, negative reaction against Ford and that it did not indicating a sharp difference in voter trust between the two men.

But he said he thought the majority of voters felt it was time for a change, and that they had wanted the Democrat's promised action on the problems of unemployment and inflation.

Asked about foreign policy, Carter said he will try to improve relations with allies and open the policymaking process to Congress and the American people.

Farm

Cotton classing office opens

LAMESA — The Lamesa Cotton Classing Office opened this week as the cotton harvest began in earnest in the drying-out fields of Dawson County and the surrounding area.

Many of the area farmers view the early bad spell of rain and snow as an indication of a hard winter ahead and are now extremely anxious to get their crops out, according to the county agent's office.

Don R. Lewallen is in charge of the local cotton classing office again this year. He said the classing office will employ a total of 35 people when the season gets fully under way.

Having already worked in the Lubbock Cotton Classing Office this season, Lewallen pointed out that he has seen samples from the cotton harvested earlier from the Dawson County area and that "they looked good." He also reported that the micronaire had been good.

The Lamesa Cotton Classing office handles samples from 42 gins in the immediate area. These gins are located in Howard, Dawson, Lynn, Martin, Gaines and Borden Counties.

Most farmers prefer to have samples classed locally as they get the grade results earlier, allowing for the cotton to be sold that much quicker if they desire.

The charge is five cents a bale with the fee providing funds for maintenance and improvement of the existing facility.

Almost all of the area gins have already ginned their first bales and many have ginned a couple of thousand bales.

Last week's bad weather also halted ginning operations but most will be picking up volume in the next few weeks.

Among the first bales was Terry Adcock at the Arvana Gin; Gus White Sr. at the White gin and Barry Addison at the Lamesa Gin. At Klondike, Alton Barkosky ginned the first bale and Mike Clines had the first one at Server.

Barry Addison was a double winner with the first bale at Tinsley and Bobby Joe Furlow had the first bale at Harmony. Kenneth Stroud ginned the first bale at Flower Grove Co-op while Gary Woodul had the first bale at O'Donnell and Bernice Beeman at Ten Mile.

At Three League, Archie Lee Dennis ginned the first bale and Glen B. Brewer brought in the first at Wells Farmers Co-op. Toby Furlow also had two first bales, with the first bale at Dempsey and Jerry Staggs at Farmers Co-op No. 2.

At the Ackerly Paymaster Gin, Dawson Wright ginned the first bale and J.F. Forbes had the first at the Farmers Co-op in O'Donnell. Weldon Bessire ginned the first bale at O'Donnell Paymaster.

Trading of new crop cotton was reported slow by Paul R. Dickson in charge of the Lubbock Cotton Class office where local samples have shown mixed lots of mostly grade 42 staple 31, mike 3.3 through 4.9 bringing from 69.75 to 70.75 per pound.

Predominant qualities for this week's classing were grade 42 at 32 per cent; grade 32 at 21 per cent and grade 41 was 20 per cent.

Predominant staple lengths were staple 30 accounting for 15 per cent; staple 31, 31 per cent and staple 32 at 28 per cent.

Mike readings of 3.5 through 4.9 showed 76 per cent of the total. Pressley tests indicated breaking strengths over the Texas High Plains averaged 85,000

Neighbors were out helping Virgil Graham in the Ackerly and Knott area this morning.

A total of 42 cotton strippers were in his fields getting his cotton out since the farmer was critically ill.

The Ackerly Paymaster Gin was putting his cotton ahead of the other cotton in the yard for baling today.

Money trouble? Not in Dakota

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — While many states and cities worry where their next dollar's coming from, North Dakota has a surplus the tax commissioner says "isn't just a cushion — it's a mountain of pillows."

The coffers are bulging in this almost entirely rural state primarily because of booming prices for farm goods, which in turn have sent revenues from income and sales taxes soaring.

State Budget Analyst Dale Moug estimated Thursday that on Jan. 1 the general fund will have a surplus of $176 million left from a two-year budget of $442 million approved by the 1975 legislature. When the legislature adopted the budget, it cut taxes by $44 million.

Mindful of their fiscal fortunes, North Dakotans passed a measure in Tuesday's general election reducing the state sales tax on most items by 25 per cent — from four to three cents on the dollar. The vote was 129,181 in favor to 93,272 against.

Voters also reduced the sales tax on farm and irrigation equipment from 4 to 2 per cent, and eliminated a 4 per cent tax on electricity bills.

The tax cuts are expected to sharply reduce future surpluses, but state officials said they could not immediately project the amount. Officials also said it had not yet been determined what they will do with the $176-million surplus.

Tax Commissioner Byron Dorgan said that between 1970 and 1975 North Dakota, where the health of the farm economy "is everything," led the nation in personal income growth.

"The farm economy just went wild," said one state official. "The price of wheat went up and we had bumper crops."

The rosy picture for North Dakota is a switch from the early 1960s, when residents had the highest tax burden of any state in the country — with 11.27 cents of every dollar going to state or local taxes. The national average at that time was 7.58 per cent.

But taxes here climbed more slowly than elsewhere, so that in 1975 the average

Murder verdict

WACO, Tex. (AP) — A sentence of death for Thelette Brandon, 23, was recommended Thursday by a state district court jury in the shooting-slashing death of a police officer here last June.

The jury deliberated more than six hours Wednesday and Thursday before finding Brandon guilty of capital murder, and took four hours to agree on the death recommendation.

Brandon was convicted of killing Police Sgt. Roger Barrett during a disturbance at a downtown bus station. A bystander also died during the ensuing gunfire.

The defendant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Brandon of Waco, both testified their son was sick.

resident paid 12.03 per cent of his income in state and local taxes, compared with 11.89 per cent nationwide.

The sales tax cut will put the slightly more than 600,000 North Dakotans below the national average.

State Rep. Earl Strinden of

Grand Forks, state House Majority Leader in the last session, sounded one sobering note for the future. He pointed out that because the economy is "90 per cent agricultural, the income can go up very fast, but it can also go down very fast."

Salvation Army busy in October

October was a busy month for the Salvation Army over 160 people were housed and fed.

According to Brig. W.R. Ball, local commander of the Big Spring Salvation Army, 269 lodgings and 719 meals were provided for transients during the month of October.

Brig. Ball said that the rise in the number of transients was due to the cold and rainy weather of last month. "Men would rather sleep inside than outside."

"While some transients come into town and demand traveling expenses from the Salvation Army or church services, some travelers are willing to apply for work at the employment bureau to secure funds to continue their journey," said Ball.

After a car wreck outside of town, a family of eight were housed and fed four days until able to continue their travels. According to Brig. Ball, 27 other families were given furniture, clothing, and welfare assistance from the Salvation Army Welfare Department.

The religious and character program, operating at 600 W. 4th, had an attendance of 356 adults and 526 children at the meetings last month.

Brig. Ball and Mrs. Ball will attend a conference for Salvation Army officers in Kerville, Nov. 8 through 11.

Four children's films booked

The Howard County Library, Fourth and Scurry, will show four children's films from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. Saturday. The films are "Felipa-North of the Border," "Zoo" (a look at zoo animals), "Anansi, The Spider," (an African folk tale), and "In Dutch," (a Walt Disney cartoon). Admission is free of charge.

Briscoe's school plan mulled

Marie-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Big Spring Independent School District's share of basic educational expenses would be reduced by about $625,500 under recommendations made this week by Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Briscoe's plan to let the state assume a greater share of the Foundation School Program would mean the state would provide $4.7 million as its share of the program in Big Spring. That amounts to a $636,300 increase in state money in 1977-78 over 1976-77.

According to estimates of the Governor's Office of Education Resources, $5 million will be required in 1977-78 for Big Spring ISD basic programs. The local share would be about $305,500.

State equalization aid, which goes to districts with lower than average tax bases, would also be increased by $315,900 to $449,700 under the Briscoe plan.

A small amount of state funds, about $7,100, would also go to Big Spring as its share of the $10 million Briscoe recommended for improvement of district tax offices.

The Coahoma ISD would have its share of the Foundation School Program reduced by $159,300 to $95,100. The state would pay $656,700, or $179,300 more than in 1976-77. Tax office improvement funds would bring in another $2,200.

Forsan ISD's share of the basic program costs would drop by $144,800 to $91,700. The state would pay $282,300, a $199,400 increase. Tax office money would be $2,100.

The Governor's office estimated property values of the districts (based on full market value of land) at $399 million for Big Spring, $105 million for Coahoma and $101 million for Forsan. Land values adjusted for agriculture use were $321 million for Big Spring, $91 million for Coahoma and $93 million for Forsan.

Teen busted for going braless

DEAR ABBY: I have always considered myself a very fair-minded person and have tried to look at things from all points of view, but this has me stumped.

I have a 16-year-old daughter I'll call Barbie. Well, Barbie believes that it's everyone's right to do as he pleases as long as it doesn't hurt anybody and there is no law against it. This includes going braless, and that's what Barbie does. She's a nice-looking girl, but she's "top-heavy." Her teacher has called me three times to tell me that if I keep letting Barbie come to school without a bra, she will be expelled.

Abby, do you know any 16-year-old high school girl who lets her mother dress her? Neither do I, and that's my problem. She's a good student and I've never had any trouble with her until now.

Can you help me?

BARBIE'S TROUBLED MOM

DEAR MOM: Does the school have a dress code? If it does, and a bra is required, Barbie could be out of bounds in more ways than one. If there is no dress code, the complaining teacher is guilty of making threats she can't carry out, and SHE is out of bounds. Call the high school principal and get the facts.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old whose husband left me for a younger woman. I cried my heart out, then I met a young man I could really relate to. We fell in love, and now we have a beautiful relationship unlike anything I've ever known. This last year has been the happiest in my entire life!

The problem: He is only 23. Abby, is it possible for two people who love each other to overcome such a big difference in age? He's older in the head and I look younger in the face, so we look fine together. I have two sons, 11 and 13.

ON CLOUD 8 IN CHICAGO

DEAR ON: Ride those clouds a little longer before you make any permanent decisions. If it's the real thing, it will last. If everything else works, the age difference is unimportant.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this letter hoping that your millions of readers (parents and teenagers) will read it. We are foster parents who care for infants who are born out of wedlock and need homes until their adoptions go through.

Now we have a beautiful 4-week-old girl whose mother changed her mind, hastily married the baby's father and decided to keep her baby. Both the mother and father are 15 years of age.

The girl's parents are very much against their daughter's decision, so these 15-year-olds are getting an apartment and joining the welfare rolls.

Yesterday I met the young parents and was heartsick. They sat there giggling the whole time they visited their baby.

I wanted so much to say, "If you really love this little girl, you will do what is best for her. Please let some nice, mature couple adopt her and give her the many advantages you can't offer her."

Instead, I sat there feeling sorry for the child who was going to be raised by parents who were only children themselves.

I pray that you will remind teenagers to think twice before having a sexual relationship—at least until they are old enough to accept the consequences.

HEARTBROKEN FOSTER MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your letter is a powerful testimony to the aims and purposes of Planned Parenthood. Most accidental pregnancies carry with them the seeds of human tragedy. Sexually active people (especially youngsters) need to realize this. Legalized abortion is a sad substitute for birth control or self-control.

Women in politics tired of being phenomenon

LONDON (AP) — Women are assuming a growing and more important role in Western European politics, stepping into jobs as Cabinet ministers, party leaders or top political aides.

But some who have made it to the top caution that their political success doesn't mean the women's battle for equality is over. And they wish they weren't centers of attention just because they are women.

"One must not imagine that the women's issue is suddenly solved because a woman has become foreign minister," says Karin Soden, Sweden's first woman foreign minister. She serves in the centrist government of Thorbjorn Falldin which came to power in the Sept. 19 election.

"I'm tired of being regarded as a phenomenon," says Margaret Thatcher, who in February 1975 became Britain's first woman party leader. She would also become the country's first woman prime minister if her Conservative party wins the next national election.

"The idea of a woman making decisions and giving instructions is not yet easily acceptable in Greece and is viewed suspiciously by some male colleagues," says Lina Koutiafi, who in October became undersecretary of education and only the third woman since World War II to hold a Greek cabinet post.

West Germany's outgoing president of the Bundestag, the lower house of parliament, is a woman: Annemarie Reger. France, Italy, Britain, Austria, Greece, The Netherlands and Sweden all have women in their Cabinets. Antwerp, Belgium, has a woman mayor.

But most of them would agree that women are far from fulfilling their potential in a field long considered in most countries a bastion of male chauvinism.

The relatively recent emergence of women in Western European politics may be attributed in varying degree to women's liberation movements in their countries, but few of the successful women politicians consider themselves militant feminists.

Britain's Mrs. Thatcher, 51, and a mother of grown twins, says she doesn't have much time for women's lib. "I had a Cabinet post before the term women's lib became trendy," she said.

But as recently as 1973, when Mrs. Thatcher was education secretary in the then-Conservative government of Prime Minister Edward Heath, she said she didn't think a woman could become prime minister in her lifetime.

Now she expresses confidence that Britain's voters will oust the Labor party government of Prime Minister James Callaghan and sweep the Conservatives to power and to the prime minister's job.

Another woman politician not regarded as a militant feminist is Simone Veil, 49, French minister of health since July 1974 and the only full-ranking woman minister in the government of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

"I am a minister because I am a woman, not in spite of it," said Mrs. Veil, a lawyer and magistrate and wife of the director-general of the French intercontinental airline UTA.

Soon after her appointment she steered a bill through the National Assembly authorizing abortion for the first time in modern French history. Shortly afterward, a poll rated her the most popular member of the government.

Some of the women who have made it in politics feel they have a responsibility to help other members of their sex achieve full equality.

West Germany's Annemarie Renger, for example, faced some opposition from cautious feminists in her Social Democratic party in 1972 when she became Bundestag president, the highest political position ever held by a woman in her country.

"We fear that a woman Bundestag president would be seen and portrayed as proof that discrimination against women is not really all that bad," they wrote in urging her to turn down the post.

But Mrs. Renger, 57, replied: "I regard that as a well-meaning but very unpolitical statement. It's my conviction that one should use every opportunity given us to show that we can assume a place from which we can help to change the role of women."

Michelle Palmer back in Rainbows

INDIANOLA, Iowa (AP) — Twelve-year-old Michelle Palmer has been installed as a member of the International Order of the Rainbow. But whether she and 5,000 other Iowa members still belong to the national service organization remains in doubt.

Michelle's admission caused national officials to expel Iowa's 136 Rainbow assemblies because of an "unwritten law" banning blacks, according to one state official of the Mason-affiliated group. Michelle's mother is black, her father white.

But national officials later said the assemblies were only suspended, not expelled. They blamed the situation on the Indianola chapter's failure to follow correct procedure in nominating Michelle for membership.

Dwaine Palmer said his daughter was installed "without incident" at a ceremony — Wednesday. Reporters and photographers were barred from the installation at the Indianola Masonic Lodge, and police were called to keep them off the Masons' property.

Herbert Grou, supreme inspector of the Rainbow Girls in McAlester, Okla., was unavailable for comment on the installation.

"The kids would have gotten along great if the damn adults didn't get involved," said Palmer. "It's something the girls have never experienced before — the discrimination — and they're going to remember this."

"When she (Michelle) came to me and said she wanted to join, she was concerned about the dues and buying a white dress the girls wear."

Michelle said she was upset at the prospect of Iowa losing its charter.

"Pretty soon there'll be another state losing its charter," she said, "then another and another, and before long, the Rainbow will be all gone."

Pet rocks don't bark

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — The Pet Rock, the superstar of the 1975 gift-giving season, made a lot of money for Gary Dahl, its creator — an estimated $4 million.

Dahl says he still has a few Pet Rocks lying around and that he might use them to pave his driveway here, headquarters for him and his Rock Bottom Productions.

The Pet Rock, Dahl said, was inspired by all those disobedient, destructive and dirty run-of-the-mill pets, like dogs, cats and birds. Rocks are relaxed, clean and they don't bark.

He said he's putting a piece of his Pet Rock proceeds into a saloon.

First Baptists eye $500,000 expansion

Members of the First Baptist Church launched the formal phase of their "Together We Build" campaign Thursday evening with a substantial nest egg.

Dr. P. W. Malone, leader of the effort, announced at the all-church banquet held in the high school cafeteria, that $204,286 had been raised and pledged toward the completion of the church master building plan.

The canvass began Thursday and will continue for the next 10 days. The stewardship-building enlistment will conclude Nov. 14 when the church celebrates the retirement of the indebtedness of Phase I of its building program, and coincidentally, the 90th birthday of the church.

The congregation has set a goal of at least $500,000 over a three-year period toward the completion of the plan, a project that is projected to cost twice that sum. Included are the erection of a chapel, fellowship hall, educational wing additions, also moving offices and library to Marcy Drive front, installation of a parlor, and extensive remodeling of the present office space.

These projected changes were described by Clem Jones at the banquet, and

Harold Raines, canvass chairman, outlined mechanics of the effort, while Sidney Clark sounded the basic challenge to realize "what mine is thine."

Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor, said that participation gave identification with the cause of Christ and meeting needs of people, would inspire the giver, and get him or her involved in the opportunity of sacrificial giving.

Joe Pickle gave a brief history of the church. Joe Whitten was soloist for the evening and the crowd was entertained by several songs from the Murry Vise Trio.

Assembly of God hosts Lubbock pastor here

The Rev. Morris Sheats will speak at special services at First Assembly of God church here Nov. 8-9 at the church at 4th and Lancaster.

He will speak at 7 p.m. both nights and at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday. The public is invited to attend.

Morris Sheats, senior minister at Trinity Church in Lubbock speaks on a subject in regard to dealing with emotional problems.

Sheats maintains that "A lot of people are hurting inside, but too many get only partial treatment." He isn't anti-doctor or anti-psychiatrist, but in his first book, "You Can Be Emotionally Healed," he includes the spiritual side as well as that of body and mind.

Rev. Sheats emphasizes that the book isn't case studies, nor is it only for the religious market. He has chapter titles such as "The Healing of Memories", "Wounded Hearts", "The Hidden Child Within You" and others.

This book is not his first success. He is senior minister of Trinity Church, a non-denominational fellowship in Lubbock with 4,000 members.

He has an interdenominational background — studies at SWBTS Perkins School of Theology and Brite Divinity School.

He says, "The goal of the church is to build a family, both as a body of believers and to strengthen the nuclear family. We encourage each family to have a family night at home. After all, the family came before the church."

Big Springer in unit

Jesse McElreath, a native of Big Spring now involved in full-time discipleship ministry, has been invited to Europe to hold three Discipleship Revivals and an all European Youth Conference, in European Baptist Convention churches.

He will leave November 15 to share with the English speaking laity of 41 churches from nine different countries. He will have two meetings in West Germany, one at Faith Baptist Church in Kaiserslautern, November 21-24, and one at Immanuel Baptist Church in Visbaden, November 28-December 1. The all European Youth Conference is scheduled for November 25-27 and then Jesse will travel to England to the Suffolk Baptist Church December 3-5.

Bob Ferguson, pastor of Faith Baptist Church, extended the invitation after being a part of the National Conference on Discipleship at Lake Country Baptist Church, Fort Worth, in March.

Jesse served for 11 years at the Baptist Sunday School Board in Nashville, Tenn. He left there in May 1975 to begin a Discipleship ministry. This ministry developed primarily as a result of four years of work with the Home Mission Board and the Brotherhood Commission in Lav Renewal-Evangelism.

Since January of this year Jesse has led 15 Discipleship Revivals across the Southern Baptist Convention. He is also involved in Lay Renewal Conferences, Seminars, and Retreats. He was recently a coordinator with the Lay Renewal Weekend at First Baptist Church in Dallas. He is working with the Home Mission Board, Texas Baptist Convention, and the Brotherhood Commission in Lav Renewal-Evangelism.

Jesse has served as Minister of Music for seventeen years in six different churches, and has led Bus Evangelism and Children's Worship Conferences. He has authored "Spiritual Daybook" and "Victory Packet" (a resource packet for bus ministry and children's church). His writings in the area of children's church

Bazaar planned by 1st Christian

Months of planning and preparation will be culminated Saturday in the Christian Women's Fellowship First Christian Church Bazaar. The doors to the bazaar will open at 9 a.m. Saturday, inviting interested shoppers to a world of buying opportunities. Laura McEwen and Jacie Allen have co-chaired this annual fund-raising project of the church's women's organization.

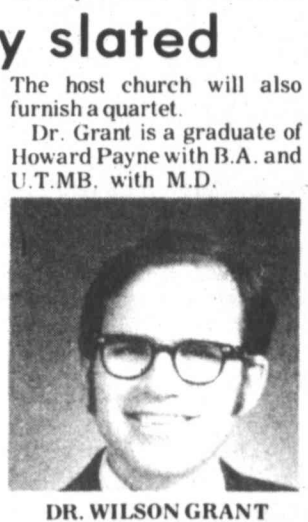

The CWF is composed of about seventy women who affiliate with four individual study groups. The bazaar is the major cooperative event that is sponsored by the four groups working together. The event is the women's major fund-raising effort each year.

The proceeds from the bazaar will be used in underwriting their annual budget, involving to a large degree service and mission giving, locally and foreign. Among the women's organizations projects are contributions to the Christian Church's (Disciples of Christ) mission enterprises for foreign mission; support of our colleges and universities, including Texas Christian University, and homes for children and the aging; Big Spring High School Bible Fund; local missions for needy families and child care.

Various booths will feature items for sale. Most of the items have been handcrafted by members of the church. Among the goods that shoppers will find are baked goods, children's toys and clothing, Christmas decorations and ideas, home canned fruits and home prepared pickles, decorator items, and plants.

To assist shoppers there will be a children's entertainment booth to occupy the younger children while parents shop. All shoppers will surely want to be on hand for the luncheon to be served from 11 a.m.-2 p.m.

A chicken spaghetti lunch, with salad, dessert and drink will be served to adults at $2.50 per person. Children ten and under will be served for $1.25. Take out food will be available. Your support of this church sponsored event will be appreciated officers pointed out.

Ronald Hope, formerly of Big Spring and now of Dublin, won the One Armed Dove Shoot in Olney recently.

This is a very special event with two categories. One is arm-off-at-the-shoulder category and the other is arm-off-at-the-elbow. This is not exactly a qualification people will try to obtain, but for those who are already there — the event is an exciting one.

The two winners this year, included Ronald, who is the A. Edwards of Big Spring. The other winner was Tommy Hood of Lubbock, and both have special guns that are replicas of flint loaders.

There are only a few of them in Texas and two were presented to Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Ben Barnes. These two young men also each have a flint loader replica.

Ronald, who is 28 years old, won the arm-off-at-the-shoulder division of the event started by two men who call themselves, "The One Arm Jacks" from Abilene and Olney.

Ronald lost his arm in Vietnam. On July 15, 1969 he was pilot of a helicopter which crashed and burned. He pulled the gunner, mechanic and co-pilot of the craft out of the wreckage. The co-pilot was dead and the gunner died later.

His family was notified that Hope had two broken legs and had burns over 17 per cent of his body. They received a two-page telegram, but it never mentioned the arm.

RONNIE HOPE
... a real winner

Hope was taken to a hospital in Yokohama, and his mother was able to talk to him on the telephone. He was later transferred to a Texas Army hospital and it was then they learned about his arm. He was taken to Brooke General in San Antonio and they learned that the shoulder strap at the time of the crash had caused an injury that was going to cause him to lose his arm.

Undaunted, Ronald, who was 21 at that time, retained his enthusiasm for life, his friends and his sparkling personality.

This bit of information didn't come from parents, who always see the best in their own, but from other friends and acquaintances.

Ronald, who had graduated from Big Spring

High School and attended Howard College had worked at GAMCO here before enlisting.

He went on to Tarleton University at Stephenville and obtained his degree and now sells real estate in Dublin.

When the One-Armed Jacks go to Olney, the competition is fierce.

If any of you fellows with two arms want to challenge Ronald, go right ahead.

The spirit that brought him through and helped him save others when the helicopter crashed, also brought him through the convalescent period.

Ronald's life is more in focus than the lives of a lot of us. And at Olney recently, he proved what his friends in Big Spring already knew.

He's a winner. Or that's the way I heard it this week when I was out ridin' fence.

Gov. Briscoe will seek third term?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A source close to Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he thinks the governor's mind is made up to seek a third term.

Briscoe has refused to divulge his 1978 political plans, always adding that he likes the gubernatorial job, finds it challenging and "it's a lot of fun."

"He is feeling particularly good since the presidential election and I think his mind is made up," the source told the Associated Press Thursday.

"Three of his top aides are in the process of buying houses in Austin and he told another today to go ahead with retirement plans (that included another four-year term)."

"What does that tell you?" the source said.

Briscoe spent most of the past three weeks on the campaign trail throughout Texas in support of Jimmy Carter.

14,500 get pay raise

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston City Council has approved a 5 per cent pay raise for the city's 14,500 employees.

The council voted 5-4 Wednesday to grant the hike despite opposition from Mayor Fred Hofheinz who said the salary increase may force a property tax rate boost next year.

City workers had asked for at least a 6.8 per cent raise.

R.O. Rich, president of the Houston Police Officers Association, said the 5 per cent increase is insufficient "to correct inequities in the police salary structure and to cope with inflation."

Ford's 'pros' shutting up shop

WASHINGTON (AP) — They're selling the furniture at the President Ford Committee. Half price.

Handsome desks of chrome and walnut. Chairs with casters. Filing cabinets that once contained the plans for keeping the Ford lease on the White House.

The plans failed, of course, and the lease was not renewed. So Ford's campaign committee is shutting up shop, almost.

Until that moment early Wednesday when Mississippi and Wisconsin joined the Carter clique of states, the office was filled not just with furniture but also with optimism. The furniture remains.

In the next few days, the campaign staff of 700 paid workers and hundreds of volunteers will get a letter signed by Ford. "Although ours was not a victory in fact, it was a victory in spirit," it will say. "Together we brought to the American people a new enthusiasm and confidence which had not been seen in the past few years."

A draft copy of the letter contained a heading that it was to be used "if defeated." Presumably there was another that would have been used if only two electoral vote-heavy states had gone the other way.

Only a few days ago, Bill Russo was one of the key strategists of President Ford's election campaign. Now he's helping some of his colleagues find jobs and thinking about getting onto the golf course.

Jim Cochran is director of administration of the President Ford Committee. His immediate concern is disposing of more than $150,000 worth of office furniture.

It won't be much of a problem, he says. It's being offered first to the staff. Law firms have made inquiries. In the end, it will be available for public sale.

At the end of the campaign, the Ford committee occupied floors 2, 5, 7 and 10 of a fancy downtown building, with an equally fancy $17,000 a month rent coming out of the $21.8 million in campaign funds the government gave to both the President and Carter.

With the new campaign finance law, the election is not the end of the committee.

District Clerk Peggy Crittenden, County Clerk Margaret Ray and their staff, Mayor pro tem Polly Mays, County Democratic chairman Rafor Dunagan, County Republican chairman Ben Bancroft, and County Judge Bill Tune combined to produce the computer results and get them to the media.

Free agents on block

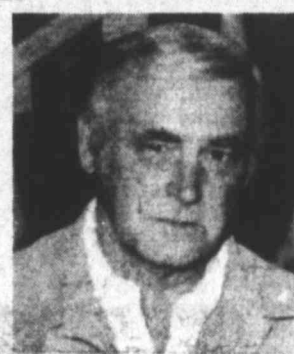

NEW YORK (AP) — And now, the bidding begins.

Super-agent Jerry Kapstein's Providence, R.I. offices open for business bright and early today and baseball owners and general managers will be lining up to talk money with the man who represents 10 of the 24 free agents selected in Thursday's free-agent clearance sale.

"We have appointments with clubs in both leagues starting Friday," said Kapstein, who watched quietly in a corner of the room as baseball divided up the available talent.

Thirteen players were chosen by the maximum 12 teams and nine of those men are clients of Kapstein.

The most popular player at the start of the draft was Oakland outfielder Joe Rudi, who was selected six times on the first round. The first player to be removed from the list of eligibles was Oakland catcher Gene Tenace, who reached his 12-team limit midway through the third round. Kapstein represents both of them.

DOOMED FINLEY

Others chosen by the 12-team limit in order were Rudi and another Oakland outfielder, Don Baylor, outfielder Gary Matthews of San Francisco, pitchers Don Gullett of Cincinnati, Bill Campbell of Minnesota, Wayne Garland of Baltimore and A's reliever Rollie Fingers, infielders Bobby Grich of Baltimore, Sal Bando of Oakland, and Dave Cash of Philadelphia, and pitcher Doyle Alexander of the New York Yankees.

Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland club, went almost to the limit, drafting throughout the first 16 rounds and selecting such old friends as Jackson, the outfielder he traded to Baltimore on the eve of the 1976 season. He participated in the draft but he didn't enjoy it.

"It means doom," the A's owner predicted. "The handwriting is on the wall. The day of reckoning is coming. It will prevail and we are all going down. I shudder to think about sending out contracts for 1977. It is going to be very difficult to stay in business at these prices."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn wasn't quite as pessimistic as his longtime adversary, Finley.

"Baseball will survive," said the commissioner, "but this has to work. The economies of the game may change and we will have to see if the competitive balance will remain. If these players are spread out amongst many teams, that will be all right. This was a product of collective bargaining. If it doesn't work, something else will have to be tried."

Sophomores come through

Hawks win opener in Laredo

LAREDO — The Howard College Hawks opened their 1976-77 basketball season with a surprisingly easy 91-75 victory over the Laredo Jr. College Palominos, and the big question "How good are the returning sophomores," was answered positively from the outset.

The question, "What about the freshmen" was also answered to the satisfaction of Head Coach Harold Wilder and his assistant Leroy McClendon.

The two guards were the big guns for the Hawks. Reggie Leffall, a 6'4" sophomore, led all scorers with 24 points. His counterpart, 6'3" freshman guard Mike Little, came in a close second with 21.

The Hawks two forwards, both returning sophomores, also had good scoring efforts, as well as helping to control the boards for the visiting quintet.

Lowell Walker, 6'6½", had 15 points and 8 rebounds, and his 6'6" teammate Paul Cathey, the other forward, had 12 points and 24 rebounds.

Center Eugene Williams, 6'8", played aggressively under the net, and had two points and 8 rebounds.

Scoring for the rest of the Hawks went thusly: Freshman Johnny James pumped in eight points, Marc Meyers had four, Joe Cooper had three, and ex-Steer Jim Ray tallied with two.

Joey Cavazos for Laredo could only manage 15 points against a tough Hawk defense to lead the Palominos.

The game was a see-saw affair for the first half, with the Hawks experiencing brief and not-so-brief stretches of cold-hands from the field.

The Palominos, known to be practically unbeatable on their home hardwoods, led by as many as 10 points going into the fourth period.

But with the complete dominance of the backboards by Cathey, Walker and Williams, the Hawks had their hands on the ball most of the time during the last three minutes of the game.

Even though Wilder's "Dutiful Dozen" fell behind during some of the action, the outcome of the contest was evident. The "Run, gun, have fun and WIN" motto of the Hawks this year proved to be too much for Laredo.

The Hawks' next game is Tuesday against McMurry in their home-opener. Two days later, on Thursday, they play the same Laredo squad in Big Spring in a re-match.

Howard College — Leffall, 24; Little, 21; Walker, 15; Cathey, 12; James, 8; Meyers, 4; Cooper, 3; Ray, 2; Williams, 2. Totals: 40-11-91.

Laredo — Cavazos, 15; DeCoverly, 14; Griver, 11; Reyna, 10; Kramer, 9; Segler, 5; Ramirez, 2; Carrier, 1. Totals: 30-15-75.

Runnels 8th bops Coahoma

Runnels Jr. High 8th grade ended its football season at 1-1 with a thrilling victory over Coahoma 22-13.

Coahoma drew first blood on a seven-play drive with 4:55 left in the first quarter, but Runnels came right back on a 75-yard drive in two plays. Johnny Abreo scampered 50 yards to the Coahoma 25 to set up the TD, and then scored it himself on the next play. He also ran over the extra points.

After Runnels recovered a fumble on the Coahoma 31, Ricci Millaway passed 11 yards to Dicky Wrightsil for the second TD with just 10

Goliad ends season with wild offense

The Goliad Jr. High 8th grade football squad rolled up an amazing 648 total yards offense, and nipped a fine Andrews team 42-36.

Ben Watson scored three times on sweeps, adding two-point conversions twice. Tommy Madigan scored from four yards out for another Maverick score. He also added the PAT after his TD.

Watson then threw two touchdown passes to round seconds left in the first half. The PAT failed.

Coahoma then drove 86 yards in 18 plays, using up most of the time in the second half, scoring with just 3:05 remaining in the game. The PAT failed, and Runnels led 14-13.

The Yearlings added insurance points with just 50 seconds remaining in the game, as Johnny Abreo capped off a 63-yard drive with a seven-yard TD scamper.

Head Coach Bobby Zellars handed out accolades to his entire defensive unit, made up of Rudy Ortega, Richard Brito, Lupe Ontiveros, Bill Brown, Rudy Hilario, Ricci Millaway, Robert Aguilar, Ray James, Jimmy Carrillio, Ricky Saiz, Johnny Abreo and Mark Law.

In addition to those already named, Zellars also singled out Corbut Newton, David Bordofsky, Edward Vela and Dicky Wrightsil on offense.

Zellars also expressed his admiration for a fine Coahoma team that controlled the ball most of the game.

Snyder tumbles to Dunbar 14-6

LUBBOCK — Dunbar used a trick play on the first snap of the game to gain the impetus to beat Snyder 14-6.

On the first play from scrimmage, the Dunbar offensive team huddled at the line of scrimmage on the right side of the field. Then, center Darrell Henderson ambled back to the middle of the field over the ball, and to everyone's surprise, he shoveled-passed it back to Dennis Gentry on the right sideline who followed all his blockers for a 63-yard touchdown with 18 seconds gone in the game.

The blockers weren't really needed, as the Snyder defensive unit was completely surprised.

Queens downed 73-64

The Howard College Hawk Queens lost their first conference game to Clarendon, 73-64 in the fourth quarter of last night's game.

The Queens were able to take a lead in the first quarter, but at halftime Clarendon was able to tie up the score. The teams were tied again at the beginning of the 4th period.

The Queens were in big trouble when they lost three key players to fouls in the 4th period.

Coach Don Stevens said that "production of point-making just didn't come through, and even though we were playing a much larger team, we almost pulled an upset."

DALLAS COWBOYS

COWBOYS FACT SHEET

THIS WEEK — The Dallas Cowboys (7-1) host the New York Giants (0-8) at Texas Stadium. It is a return match of a game the Cowboys won from their Eastern Division foe four weeks ago (Oct. 10) at East Rutherford, N.J. 24-14.

RESULTS — Dallas 20, Washington 7; St. Louis 23, San Francisco 20; Philadelphia 10, N.Y. Giants 0.

UPCOMING GAMES — N.Y. Giants at Dallas, Washington at San Francisco, Philadelphia at St. Louis.

COWBOYS — GIANTS SERIES — Dallas leads the series 19-9-2. The Cowboys won both games in 1975, 13-7 at Shea Stadium and 14-3 at Texas Stadium. The Giants' last win over the Cowboys was in Dallas in 1974, 14-6.

KICKOFF — 1 p.m. at Texas Stadium. The stadium's capacity of 65,101 has been sold out for weeks.

TELEVISION — Televised regionally (the blackout has been lifted) by CBS by Pat Summerall and Tom Brookshier.

THE COACHES — Tom Landry has passed the midway mark of his 17th season as the only head coach the Cowboys have ever had. He is 133-91-6, including a rather remarkable 108-38-2 record since the Cowboys became winners in 1966.

John McVay took over the winless Giants at mid-season. Bill Arnsparger has returned to Miami as Don Shula's defensive coach.

HOW IT SHAPES UP — "I will go with Roger as long as the doctors tell me we are taking no unnecessary risks. It is just as important to beat New York as it was Washington. Both are in our division and a loss counts just as much, no matter who it is."

Thus Coach Tom Landry summed up his feelings about meeting a team that was winless after eight games. The Giants, he said, started the year with a much improved team. "They got off to a bad start by losing a game they should have won against Washington and then ran into a rough schedule. They still have a rough schedule. I've watched films the past few days and I wonder how they are 0-8. I've never seen an 0-8 team with so much talent and determination."

Landry said that Staubach came out of the Washington game with his hand hurting, but not as swollen or as painful as after the original injury. "We feel he will be throwing on the regular day (Wednesday) and be back on schedule."

Pressed, the coach said he might consider taking Staubach out a bit sooner the next few weeks if game situations permitted but "I think with that type of injury he is prepared ... and we have accepted it ... to be playing with some pain for the next several weeks."

Staubach maintained the NFL passing lead this week, in spite of a "mediocre" performance — passing day in the Washington win. He had a 103.4 rating with 64.8 percentage of completions. Drew Pearson, with 29 catches, moved to a tie for first among NFC receivers while Billy Joe DuPree was fourth with 28. DuPree still was the yards-per-catch leader at 16.2.

Rookie Jim Jensen maintained his kickoff return lead in the NFC with a 27.9 average on eight returns.

Landry cited the excellent defensive performance of his team against the Redskins, and singled out Charlie Waters as strong safety, Mel Renfro at cornerback and, of course, Harvey Martin and the entire defensive line.

"Our offense ... we didn't run as well as we've had liked to but that one good drive, opening the second half, was critical and we had good execution."

Landry stressed the "mental toughness" his team carried to Washington, and said the "difficult thing is to maintain that every game. We can't expect to do it — no one ever did except when Miami went 17-0 for the entire year — so you just hope you can still win a game when you are down."

NEXT WEEK — The Cowboys host Buffalo in the Monday night national TV game.

Pros walk the dog

NEITHER FOR THAT MATTER WAS the Pro Picket last week. A lackluster 8-6 record made the season's mark 75-36-1, a .676 percentage.

The picks: Pittsburgh 33, Kansas City 7. The shutout string ends, but the victories go on for the Steelers. Six more wins would make them 10-4 and they think that will be good enough for a playoff berth. The Chiefs have improved, but they are not in Pittsburgh's class.

Dallas 41, NY Giants 14. There's no good reason to expect the Giants to score two touchdowns. But there are all sorts of good reasons to expect the Cowboys to bomb New York. The Giants defense is about ready to collapse from supporting the absent offense. This is the perfect spot for it to happen.

Chicago 21, Oakland 17. Label this the Upset Special. Coach Jack Pardee has the Bears believing they can beat anybody, and after kayaking previously unbeaten Minnesota last week, maybe they can. The Raiders are three games ahead in the AFC West and could lose interest in this interconference match.

San Francisco 27, Washington 14. The wear and tear is starting to show on the elderly Redskins. The 49ers have one of the best pass rushes in the NFL and that should keep Billy Kilmer and Joe Theisman on the run.

New England 20, Buffalo 14. Go figure the Patriots. They looked like world-beaters early in the season, but then last week they looked just beat against Miami. O.J. Simpson can't run for 166 yards every week and that was the only offense the Bills could generate against the Jets.

Cincinnati 24, Los Angeles 20. A Monday night goodie for Mongo and his friends. We like the Bengals for no special reason other than they are at home and have James Harris, Pat Haden or Ron Jaworski at quarterback.

Green Bay 23, New Orleans 14. Don't mistake either of these clubs for a powerhouse. Packers lost three straight, won three straight and now have dropped their last two. Saints also are having problems, with three straight setbacks. Stay with the Saints' streak.

Cleveland, Houston and defending champion Pittsburgh all are tied for second in the AFC Central Division with 4-4 records.

Baltimore 30, San Diego 10. The Colts may be the best team in the NFL right now. Lydell Mitchell and Bert Jones key an explosive offense that never seems to let up.

Minnesota 23, Detroit 17. The Lions have to win to create an NFC Central race. Minnesota won't let that happen, certainly not at home.

Cleveland 20, Houston 17. Another upset pick. Both teams are tied in the AFC Central with 4-4 records. But Houston still is licking its Monday night wounds inflicted by Baltimore. The extra day's rest is worth three points and a victory for Cleveland.

Miami 24, NY Jets 10. The Jets have lost nine of the last 10 games against Miami and the Dolphins, now 4-4, still figure they can get to the playoffs. Count New York as one more stepping stone on that path.

St. Louis 27, Philadelphia 13. The cardiac Cards were at it again with last week's overtime victory against San Francisco. Jim Bakken provided the winning points with a 21-yard field goal. The Eagles will be easier.

New England 20, Buffalo 14. Go figure the Patriots. They looked like world-beaters early in the season, but then last week they looked just beat against Miami. O.J. Simpson can't run for 166 yards every week and that was the only offense the Bills could generate against the Jets.

20,000 theft convictions voided

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Fri., Nov. 5, 1976 3-B

HOUSTON (AP) — A spokesman for the Harris County district attorney's office says a ruling by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has, in effect, voided every theft conviction in the county since 1974—an estimated 20,000 criminal cases.

Bill Burge, chief of the district attorney's appellate division, said Thursday the office will seek a rehearing before the court on its Wednesday decision.

The appeals court ruled that Harris County was using faulty indictment and misdemeanor criminal information forms on all theft cases.

"We in good faith followed the theft statute as set out in the new penal code when we drafted the forms," Burge said.

The appeals court's ruling, on a 4-1 decision, came on the appeal of Kelly Gene Reynolds, who was convicted on a charge of stealing a man's wallet in a downtown Houston store April 1, 1974.

The court ruled that the indictment charging him with theft failed to allege he took the wallet without the effective consent of the owner.

The indictment, and every other indictment returned in the county since the penal code went into effect Jan. 1, 1974, alleged only that the defendants took property "unlawfully."

Burge explained that the state statute on theft only contains the word unlawfully—then it defines unlawfully as "without the effective consent of the owner."

The assistant district attorney said the ruling does not consider facts of the specific case and that it is applicable to every indictment and conviction on a theft charge since 1974.

He said inmates in prison on theft convictions from the new code can file a writ of habeas corpus and be granted a new trial under the ruling.

He said pending indictments and criminal informations also could be voided, making new action necessary.

Senate 'dean' is stricken

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — The dean of the Texas Senate, A. M. Aikin Jr. of Paris, was in satisfactory condition today after being stricken with what his family termed a "heart-related" problem at his home Wednesday night.
 The 71-year-old Democrat was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he remains in intensive care, and a hospital spokesman said it was discouraging contact by relatives and friends.
 The spokesman said Aikin was resting comfortably and apparently had too much fluid around the heart.
 Aikin suffered a heart attack in 1964.
 He has been a member of the Senate for 39 years.

About 27 from Webb to visit academy

About 27 Webb AFB people will fly to the Air Force Academy today to visit Cadet Squadron 39, the one sponsored by the 78th Flying Training Wing.
 Col. Harry A. Spannaus, wing commander, will lead the contingent of instructors, support officers and non-commissioned officers. He will be the guest speaker at an informal dining-in tomorrow night.
 "This is our first opportunity for a major portion of the wing's personnel to visit cadets at the academy," said Maj. John M. Grathwol, operations executive officer. The group will tour the academy prior to the dinner.
 The 39th cadets visited Webb last spring and this trip amounts to the wing's return visit. "We hope the cadets will be able to come back here next spring," Major Grathwol said.
 Individuals selected for the trip represent a cross section of the wing's support and flying activities.

Arthritis foundation to meet in Midland

MIDLAND — Annual meeting of the West Texas Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation will be held Nov. 6-7 at the Rodeway Inn, Midland.
 Directors, governing board members, and volunteers from an 80-county area will plan 1977 activities designed to aid the more than 125,000 West Texas victims of arthritis.
 The general public is invited to attend the Nov. 6 luncheon which will feature a presentation by Cece Caldwell, the former entertainer who is now referred to as the "Six Million Dollar Girl" as she has had 13 operations to repair or replace damaged joints. Miss Caldwell has rheumatoid arthritis.
 With division offices in Odessa, El Paso, Amarillo, and Lubbock, the West Texas Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation lends free aids, such as wheelchairs, to victims of arthritis who can not immediately afford to acquire them.
 In addition, the chapter supports research, public educational activities, and informational clinics throughout West Texas.

Cool, wet weather reduces water sales

Nothing affects water consumption in West Texas like the weather. October turned out to be substantially cooler and wetter than usual, and deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District went down correspondingly.
 Production records of the district show 1,467,394,000 gallons of water pumped to customers, down 125 million gallons from October a year ago. However, this was not enough to erase an advantage built up through previous months. At the end of October the district has delivered 16,404,132,586 gallons of water, up 467 million over the same period in 1975.
 Much of the loss in October came from the cities which took 867,636,000 gallons, or 87 million gallons less than October last year. For the 10-month period, cities have taken 10,784,365,000 gallons, up 573,992,000 gallons over the first 10 months of 1975. Oil companies used 609,110,000 gallons in October, or 45 million less than October 1975 and for the 10-months used 5,619,767,000, down 106 million gallons from the first 10 months of 1975.

Judge deep in debt, officer testifies

HOUSTON (AP) — A probation officer in the court of State District Judge Garth Bates has testified Bates had heavy financial obligations at the time he is accused of accepting a bribe.

Bates is on trial on charges of taking a $59,000 bribe to insure that Houston pawnbroker Nukie Fontenot would not go to jail on a robbery charge.

James M. Brown, probation officer in Bates' court and also an accountant, testified Thursday that Bates bought an 869-acre ranch near La Grange Jan. 30 and a 1,488-acre ranch in Houston County Feb. 25.

Brown said the January purchase was financed by a $350,000 loan and the February purchase included $800,000 in loans.

Brown also testified he watched—Bates' request—the transfer of a briefcase from Fontenot to Ed Jay Riklin, a Bates associate, July 16.

He said the judge reported that the man was paying off a debt to Riklin. He said Bates told him he feared foul play or even abduction during the transfer.

The state contends that Riklin, also charged in the case, was the go-between in the alleged bribery.

Persons accused of crime turned loose too easily?

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The chairman of a House task force on crime said Thursday Texans fear that persons accused of crimes are turned loose too easily, where they can commit other crimes.

Rep. Joe Spurlock said, however, Texans are leery of giving police too much authority—such as the power to conduct wiretaps.

Spurlock, D-Fort Worth, told reporters the task force is considering proposals to deny probation to those convicted of "serious crimes of violence" and some other crimes and to permit more extensive use of oral confessions.

He said the task force was taking no position on the use of wiretapping to fight organized crime.

"We did not find any popular support for electronic surveillance," said Spurlock. He said he thought this hesitancy over allowing wiretapping was an "outgrowth of what has happened on the national level in years past."

He said law officers claim they need wiretapping as a tool to break up rings of narcotics, prostitution and interstate gambling. But the average citizen, he said, "doesn't see the cancer of organized criminal activity" as do law officers who "deal from day-to-day with the crime war."

The task force also is considering a proposal to deny bail to a person who is charged with committing a felony while he is on bail for allegedly committing a previous felony.

"A major fear expressed by people throughout the state," Spurlock said, is that persons "walking the streets on bail are committing other crimes."

Crimes for which probation would be denied, under the task force's proposals, would include rape, robbery with firearms and the selling of dangerous drugs.

Other proposals by the task force include mandatory supervision for those on parole and the right of the state to appeal in cases where a criminal law is declared unconstitutional.

Spurlock called the meeting to order and then immediately recessed it because only he and Rep. Robert Maloney, R-Dallas, were present.

Spurlock said he would visit with the other House members—who were unable to attend the meeting for a variety of reasons—to prepare the task force's final report to the 1977 Legislature.

This year's pecan crop smallest in 14 years

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) reports this year's pecan crop is the smallest in 14 years. The November "Food Marketing Alert" published by the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service shows the supply of pecans at "light," with 1976 production estimated to be less than half the 1975 crop and a little lower than the 1974 production.

The short supply of fresh nuts will be offset somewhat by an increased supply of pecans in cold storage—about 16 million pounds, compared with about 10 million pounds in storage this time a year ago. But the total 1976 production is estimated to be only 114.4 million pounds, compared with 246 million pounds harvested in 1975 and 137.1 million pounds in 1974.

The small 1976 crop can be attributed partly to poor weather conditions during bloom and the dry summer which caused a heavier than normal drop of premature nuts from the trees. Insects are also reported to be more prevalent because of curtailed spray programs. And many growers who do have good crops are reporting a problem with crows, who are also finding no pecans "across the street."

However, much of the short supply is due to the alternate year phenomenon which makes 1976 an "off" year for pecan output.

Dr. George R. McEachern, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, explains that pecan trees produce nuts only when they have accumulated enough carbohydrates to produce female flowers in the spring.

Liquor price fixing trial is scheduled

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) —Three Lubbock County retail liquor executives who pleaded innocent to price fixing charges were scheduled for trial March 14 by U.S. District Judge Halbert Woodward Thursday.

The three were indicted by a federal grand jury last week for conspiring to fix prices on alcoholic beverages between 1967 and 1974.

Named in the Oct. 26 indictment were Bob J. Grimes, of the Lubbock County division of Pinkie's Inc. of Odessa, Hurbert Odom, president and general manager of Cecil's Inc. of Lubbock and Kenneth F. Odom, secretary-treasurer and manager in charge of operations at Cecil's.

Pinkie's Inc., Cecil's Inc., Crossed Keys Package Store of Lubbock, the All Star Liquor Company of Lubbock and the Lubbock County Beverage Association were also named in the same indictment.

Woodward ordered the executives to continue on their personal recognizance bonds until the trial. He continued $1,000 bonds on the stores and corporations.

Federal agents began their investigation in August 1975 at the request of the U.S. Attorney's office. Before returning the indictment, the grand jury heard testimony from about 70 witnesses and reviewed hundreds of sales records, invoices and other liquor store records.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Robert Wilson said the trial should take about four days.
