NORTH TEXAS STORM STRIKES IN SIX TOWNS

AIR EXPERT BLAMES SABOTAGE FOR GRAF'S FAILURE

BATTERED ZEP FIGHTS WAY TO FRENCH SOIL

Disaster Narrowly Averted By Huge Airliner On Return Home

TWO MOTORS INTACT

France Gives Permission For New Engines to Enter Boundary

FREIDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, May 18. (AP) (Saturday)—The theory that sabotage might have been behind the crippling of the motors of the Graf Zeppelin was raised today by Director Oesterle of the Dornier Airplane works.

"Why should the same thing happen to two crankshafts?" he asked. "I have been with the motors for years and can't conceive of such duplicate tragedies. No, there has been some dirty work somewhere."

This opinion was shared, in part at least, by others at the home port of the Zeppelin, and there was great curiosity over what examination of the motors might reveal.

DIRIGIBLE FIGHTS WAY TO EARTH

TOULON, France, May 17. (UP)—The great dirigible Graf Zeppelin fought its way out of a storm sky tonight and landed safely at the French naval dirigible station here, crippled and battered but saved from disaster by the skill of its commander, Dr. Hugo Eckener.

The silvery dirigible was landed with the aid of French troops at 8:55 p. m., after an all day battle with violent winds which had tossed the straining ship up and down the Rhone river valley with relentless fury.

Disaster Averted

Escaping disaster time and again under the strong hand of Dr. Eckener, the Graf Zeppelin was saved from being blown over the Mediterranean only at virtually the last moment. Had its two remaining motors failed in the struggle to bring the drifting ship over Toulon it would have been swept on out to sea.

The Graf Zeppelin had been in the air approximately 40 hours when it was landed at Toulon. It left Friedrichshafen at 5:45 a. m. Thursday (11:54 p. m. Wednesday eastern standard time) and landed here at 8:55 p. m. (3:55 p. m. eastern standard time).

The dirigible was landed in comparative calm and without incident although the ground crew which grabbed the ropes dropped from the Graf Zeppelin was inexperienced. The government, which had made every effort to aid the distressed craft as it was tossed in the wind throughout the day, had rushed troops here to aid volunteers in landing the ship.

Passengers Silent

There was dramatic and almost absolute silence as the Graf Zeppelin was landed. The strained faces of passengers at the main gondola windows and the grim-set but tired face of Dr. Eckener told of the great and victorious battle which

Pauper's Grave Waits Body Of Slain Youth

"Bury Him at County Expense" Family of Sellers Wires When Story of Jail Break Told; Kept Troubles Secret

Denied burial in the family lot at Ladysmith, Wis., the body of Raymond Sellers, 23-year-old youth who Thursday lost his life in an attempt to escape from the Wichita county jail, will be laid in a pauper's grave across the continent from his home and his people.

The body of the youth was renounced by his family Friday afternoon after news of the circumstances of his death reached the home.

"Going South for Job"

"Bury the body there at the county's expense," came the word after members of the family had been informed that the prisoner had been shot by an officer as he attempted to break jail. Earlier in the day, before the circumstances had been explained, relatives had wired for particulars and had inquired about the expense of sending the body back to the home in Wisconsin.

Acquaintances and officials believe that the youthful prisoner had carefully guarded the secret of his difficulties here from his parents. A letter from his mother, addressed only to a noncommittal postoffice box here, was received after his death and served to put officials in touch with the family. Faced with a seven year penitentiary sentence which was to have begun within a few days, the boy had written his mother that he was "going south for a better job," his attorney explained.

Former University Student

The young man who left college in Wisconsin less than a year ago and came south to build a career will be buried in an unmarked grave in an obscure corner of Riverside cemetery. Services will consist of a simple ritual from the lips of Captain Z. H. Parker of the Salvation Army, pronounced at the graveside. The day and the hour for the burial has not been set. The body has been put into the charge of the Hines mortuary.

Young Sellers, a former student of the University of Wisconsin, who had attracted attention in the courts here by pleading his own cause, was shot through the heart Thursday morning by a bullet from the pistol of W. W. Allen, jailer. The shot was fired when Sellers and three other prisoners crawled through sawed bars and attacked the officer. Sellers had been twice convicted on charges of automobile theft. Released under a five year suspended sentence, he was re-arrested 24 hours later accused of stealing another machine. He conducted his own defense, but a jury sentenced him to serve two years. The suspension was revoked, and he faced a seven year term at the time of his death.

Eva Rablen Pleads 'Not Guilty'

SONORA, Cal., May 17. (AP)—Mrs. Eva Brandon Rablen, 32, accused of poisoning her husband, Carroll, April 27, pleaded not guilty of murder here today. Trial date was set for June 10. The court room was crowded as the "mail order bride" from Quanah, Texas, entered on the arm of her attorney.

BARRON HELPS HOLD SENATE

House Speaker Pleads With Upper Branch

AUSTIN, May 17. (AP)—Passage of the penitentiary bill last night and withdrawal of the gasoline tax and motor vehicle registration fee bills today removed much pressure from the fast-expiring special session of the legislature.

After the motor license fee went over to the senate, it was withdrawn by Rep. Leonard Tillotson of Sealy, one of the authors, who also took his four cent gasoline tax measure from the house after it had been set for special order today. He said it was too late to get the bills out of senate committee to pass them.

Movement to Go Home

There was senate movement on foot to start home and break the quorum for the balance of the session.

It had reached such proportions that Speaker W. S. Barron of the house laid his gavel aside and went over to the upper branch to use his influence to keep the wheels grinding so pending local bills would not be sacrificed.

The house substituted its nine-member board of education bill for the senate draft and passed it. The main differences are that the house would continue to have the superintendent of public instruction elected by popular vote while the senate would have the board appoint him. The senate may refuse concurrence and the bill then would be turned over to conference committee.

Moody Undecided

Governor Moody today expressed indecision about the penitentiary centralization bill and left the impression that he might veto it. He said, however, that if it is at all "workable," he will approve it. He expressed disapproval of one board succeeding another to do something the first had failed to agree on and said he feared such an arrangement would have a tendency to intensify disagreements.

He said he practically had made up his mind to give the legislators an interim of one week between sessions.

'TONGUE-TIED' WITNESS HALTS POWER PROBE

Alabama Publisher Refuses To Supply Name Of Money Lender

ATTORNEY SOUGHT

'Mystery Man' to Be Called In Southern Newspaper Hearing

WASHINGTON, May 17. (US)—Mystery thrown about the activities of three would-be newspaper buyers and financial backers temporarily halted the federal trade commission's investigation today after new disclosures of secret financing.

Chief Counsel Robert E. Healy said he expected to resume hearings some time next week.

Mobile Case Probed

Meanwhile the commission will investigate privately the connections of an unnamed Mobile, Ala., man who lent R. B. Chandler $50,000 and is to lend him $50,000 more, to start a new paper in Mobile. Chandler is publisher of the paper, the Mobile Press, which began publication April 15.

Chandler denied categorically on the stand today allegations that the paper had been financed by the Alabama Power company. He admitted that four of the 37 newspaper stockholders are connected with the power company. A fifth is a former power company director.

Stock Subscribed

The four subscribed for a total of $12,500 of stock. With Chandler's $100,000 subscription, this would represent far more than half the $195,000 stock issue. Chandler said the man lending him his $100,000 was not connected with any power company.

The commission refused to accept this statement without investigation. After Chandler had persistently refused to disclose the name of his backer, asserting that to do so would subject the backer to "vicious persecution" by rival papers, he accepted a commission proposal to furnish the name in confidence.

The backer will be subpoenaed if there appears to be a power company connection, Healy announced. Otherwise his name will be withheld and an announcement will be made that no such connection has been found.

To Hear Attorney

"I think the whole point of this investigation is to trace this money and see if it's power company money," Healy declared.

At the same time the commission will arrange for testimony by T. M. Stevens, Mobile attorney, portrayed in Chandler's testimony as the link between him and the backer who lent him $100,000, and as a key witness regarding other phases of the project.

A subpoena had been issued for Stevens to testify today. He was found to be in Spokane, Wash. Healy said Stevens' law firm had given assurance that he would appear later, and that it was understood he would be here next week. Chairman Edgar A. McCulloch, presiding, added that he thought Stevens had left Mobile before his subpoena arrived.

Explosion Victims Given First Aid at Scene of Blast

Victims of the Cleveland Clinic hospital explosion and fire received treatment for injuries as quickly as they were taken from building filled with deadly gasses. (Additional pictures of the explosion on page 12.)

PLUMBER GETS BLAST BLAME

Unknown Steamfitter Held Responsible

CLEVELAND, May 17. (US)—"We must go on."

Thus did Dr. George W. Crile, founder and head of the world-famous Cleveland clinic hospital which was destroyed Wednesday with a loss of 126 lives and property damage of $750,000, announced today plans for a new clinic.

Tonight the authorities were confident the blame for the clinic disaster was due for the shoulders of an unknown man, a steamfitter, who several years ago placed a steampipe in a wrong place and his error prevented the working of an automatic door in the X-ray room Wednesday.

While relatives and friends went about their task of planning the burial of 126 known dead, fear was expressed for the lives of more than 50 persons reported missing and those doctors, nurses and patients who escaped the actual blast and fire.

Fear was expressed today that many who seemingly escaped death Wednesday might fall victim to the noxious gases even yet. One man, Benjamin Jones, widely known professional football player, who was one of the first persons rescued from the clinic, died today at his Grove City, Pa., home. Feeling no ill effects from his experience yesterday he drove the 150 miles to his home where he collapsed and died within a few hours.

Medical authorities reported that those who survive the next 24 to 36 hours will, probably, not suffer permanent effects of their exposure to the killing gas.

Late hospital reports told of 28 patients in critical conditions with hospital attaches refusing to hazard a statement on their possible recovery.

Unable to Buy Food or Pay Debts Aged Wichitan Seeks to End Life

Unable to meet payments for necessities of running his household and without money to buy food, an aged man Friday night attempted to end his life by hacking gashes in his throat with the blade from a safety razor, according to reports made at police headquarters.

The old man was reached by neighbors who stopped him and summoned officers.

He was taken to a hospital after much persuasion on the part of Ed McDonald and W. P. Timmons, city officers. Authorities at the hospital said Friday night that he was not dangerously hurt.

According to information given officers, the old man had been ill for a number of months and, except for one daughter who works in a downtown shop, he had no means of support.

The water supply had been cut off from the home because of inability to meet the bills, the police said.

The man, the officers declared, had attempted to take his life in order to lighten the expenses of running the household.

He will be held at the hospital until he has recovered from the gashes about his throat and several around his heart.

FARM MEASURE TO CONFERENCE

G. O. P. Majority Put Over Special Rule

WASHINGTON, May 17. (US)—Amid cries of "dodger" and "steam roller" from the Democratic side, the Republican majority in the house today forced adoption of a special rule sending the farm bill to conference with the senate and mildly rebuking that body for attaching the debenture plan to the measure.

The vote was 249 to 119, with 14 Democrats joining the Republicans in support of the rule.

Four Republicans voted against the rule, being Representative Laguardia, New York; Lambertson and Sproul of Kansas and James, Michigan.

The 14 Democrats who voted with the majority were:

Representatives Aswell, Louisiana; Ayers, Kansas; Black, New York; Douglas, Arizona; Douglass, Massachusetts; Goldsborough, of Maryland; Kincheloe, Kentucky; Larsen, Georgia; McCormick and Connery, Massachusetts; O'Connell, Rhose Island; McCloskey, Texas; Ludlow, Indiana, and Crosser, Ohio.

In demanding that the house refuse to accept the senate's debenture amendment on the ground that the senate violated house rights, Laguardia said:

"The Republicans here are dodging the issues and the Democrats are playing politics."

The senate and house conferees will meet Monday.

The Democratic attack on the rule was made on the ground that by sending the measure to conference, the Republican majority evaded a direct vote on the debenture feature written in by the senate.

FIVE INJURED AS RAIN, WIND SWEEP AREA

Dundee Business District Smashed; Three Hurt During Storm

REFINERY DAMAGED

Burkburnett, Electra, Byers Petrolia and Clara Hit by Winds

Windstorms described as rivaling in velocity a gulf coast hurricane accompanied a brief downpour of rain throughout Northwest Texas Friday afternoon inflicting property damage roughly estimated at $100,000 and resulting in injury to five persons, three of whom were said to be seriously hurt.

In contrast to such reports of damage, other sections unmolested by winds, sent in reports of a "million dollar rain" which insured bumper wheat crops and prepared the ground for cotton planting.

Three Hurt at Dundee

Three persons were injured, one seriously, at Dundee, where the windstorm struck about 3 o'clock, inflicting property damage estimated at $50,000. Eight buildings in the business district were reported either totally demolished or badly damaged, while virtually every structure in town suffered shattered windowlights or other damage. Ten or 12 residences were reported damaged.

When the Sanders store collapsed in the wind, its owner, William Sanders, was badly crushed, and was rushed to Holliday for treatment, it was reported. Mrs. C. M. McDaniel was seriously injured when winds struck her house, tearing the front porch off. She was within the house, it was said, and had started to run into the open. Falling timbers from the porch crushed her.

All telephone communications into Dundee were down, and further information regarding Mrs. McDaniel's condition was unavailable.

Oil men in Burkburnett Friday night estimated that between 90 and 100 oil dericks in the Northwest field, seven miles out, had been either blown down or severely damaged, causing losses running into thousands of dollars. Most of the derricks, they said were totally demolished and rendered useless. No injuries to oil field employes were reported.

Clara School Damaged

Agnes Howard, 15-year-old student at Clara High school, was knocked unconscious and severely bruised by flying timbers hurled through the air when a windstorm unroofed the adjacent ward school building and carried the roofing, virtually intact, on the top of the high school.

Companions of the girl rushed her to Burkburnett for medical attention. Her condition was not thought critical.

A Mr. Fleming was reported badly bruised when struck by flying debris in the midst of a windstorm at Clara which demolished the baseball park grandstand and damaged several buildings.

The windstorm which hit Electra inflicted damage estimated at $20,000 to the Dale Oil and Refinery company plant, one mile east of the city. The spectacular element entered into the Electra storm even more than in the Dundee disturbance, according to D. G. Gray, Wichita Falls, manager of the refinery.

Returning to Wichita Falls after the storm, Mr. Gray told the story of a narrowly averted explosion which seemed imminent when the wind wrecked the vapor line leading to one of the refinery towers, showering streams of gasoline to the earth within 10 feet of the fires burning under the smokestack.

Saves Refinery Blast

The explosion, which would have wrecked the entire plant probably beyond repair, was averted by the quick action of George A. Jennings, plant superintendent, in shutting down all refinery fires, and in shooting steam into the towers, neutralizing the gas vapors, thus preventing the possibility of a fire.

The large smokestack at the plant was blown down, Mr. Gray

'City of Brotherly Love' Shows Capone True Hospitality

Chicago's Beer Baron and His Body Guard Learn Some New Tricks

PHILADELPHIA, May 17. (US)—"Scarface Al" Capone, former king of Chicago's underworld and beer baron, and his body guard, Frank Cline, a reputed Chicago gunman, were given a taste of the speed of Philadelphia's legal machinery today when he was arrested, indicted, tried and sentenced to serve one year in the county prison—all within 16 hours, on a charge of carrying concealed deadly weapons.

At first the two notorious gunmen were confident they would "beat the rap," but their smiles changed into amazement and then into nervousness when they noted how District Attorney Monaghan and Safety Director Lemuel B. Schofield, combined to send them to prison.

"They sure work fast here—some town," commented Capone. He was told of reports coming from Chicago, which quoted authorities and gangsters alike in the Windy City to the effect that the police of Philadelphia would never put Capone behind the bars.

"H—" replied the gangster, "Tell 'em I'm there already."

Capone and Cline were taken off to Holmesburg prison with a load of other prisoners and it was announced by prison authorities that no favors will be extended them.

Capone and his bodyguard were arrested as they emerged from a motion picture theatre last night. Lieutenant Detective John Creedon and Detective Malone accosted the two men.

"Hullo," said Capone to Malone.

"Want to look over," answered the detective.

"You'll find a rod on each of us then," answered the beer baron.

"Then you'll have to come along with us," replied the detectives.

From that moment the wheels of justice turned swiftly. Magistrate Edward P. Carney was awakened, held a midnight hearing and held the two men in $35,000 bail for court. Early this morning detectives testified before the grand jury and bills of indictment were found. The trial was then rushed to completion before Judge John E. Walsh.

Before he was sent to jail, Capone talked quite frankly with Schofield, and revealed he had just fixed up a "peace pact," between the rival bootleggers of Chicago, ending the war which resulted in wholesale killings by gunmen.

The gangster declared he was on his way home when arrested, "feeling safe because a truce had been declared."

Morrow Slated for Mellon's Job, New Washington Rumors Indicate

WASHINGTON, May 17. (US)—Reports were current in New York financial circles and in Washington today that Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow will ultimately be secretary of the treasury—if and when Secretary Mellon resigns.

Although Mellon recently again flatly denied reports that he was intending to resign, and the White House likewise denied that there was any change contemplated, it has been persistently rumored that Milon has no desire to serve out the full four years of the Hoover administration.

His consent to continue in office in the first place, it was said, was based on the desire to serve 10 full years as secretary of the treasury, the first time that any incumbent has served that long. That ambition will be realized about two years hence.

Morrow and Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills have been mentioned high up among the list of probable successors to Mellon's post. Because of his vast financial experience, gained by long years of service in Wall street, and the public confidence he has built up by his service in Mexico, it is generally agreed that Morrow would be an ideal choice for the position.

BRITAIN PERFECTS AIR VISION DEVICES

'SIGHT' IN DARK MADE POSSIBLE

Air Defense Made Impregnable, Experts Say

LONDON, May 17. (INS)—Britain will be practically impregnable from the air soon, according to prophecies of British air defense experts.

These experts expressed belief today they have found in the new twin sciences, television and noctovision, the solution for the successful defense of Great Britain from air attacks.

Distance is no drawback. The televisor or noctovisor cannot see further than the human eye can reach, but the images themselves can be converted into visible rays and transmitted by wireless to far distant receiving stations.

Demonstrations Successful

Within the past few weeks highly successful demonstrations of television and noctovision have been given to statesmen, soldiers, sailors and airmen.

All have expressed surprise and wonder at the possibilities of these discoveries for defensive purposes in a future war. Admiral Sir Mark Kerr, after a recent demonstration, summing up the situation, said: "He who cannot see the importance of television cannot have any vision."

Noctovision is vision in darkness by means of an invisible infra-red ray which is transformed by means of a modified television apparatus into a visible ray. The infra-red ray which has 16 times the fog penetrating power of the ordinary rays of the spectrum, picks up the object, the televisor transforms it into an image which can be seen as clearly as a moving picture on the screen.

Foes' Ship Reflected

Experts predict that the day is rapidly approaching when enemy aircraft bound for the British coasts will be reflected on tiny illuminated screens in scores of outposts, and the "hornets" of the royal air force will be in their midst before they are within striking distance of English soil.

Stimulated by the warnings of the Earl of Halsbury and Lord Sydenham, and frightened by the weakness of air defense as revealed by the sensational maneuvers over London, the research branches of the fighting services have been working feverishly on schemes for the protection of the nation's vitals from outside air attacks.

These resolutions were virtually the same as three resolutions of this kind which were introduced at the regular session.

H. Tom Kight, chairman of the house appropriations committee introduced the committee's institutional appropriation which appropriated about $21,000,000 for the maintenance of state instiutions for the next two years.

A bill providing increases in salary to $3,600 a year each for assistant county attorneys of Oklahoma county. The employment of three stenographers and two evidence men was introduced in the house of representatives Friday by the Oklahoma county delegation.

WAR WAGED ON CIGARET EVIL

Temperance Board Raps Tobacco Advertising

WASHINGTON, May 17. (UP)—Considering their fight for prohibition virtually won, temperance organizations are beginning to divert some of their energies into a war against the cigaret.

The board of temperance prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, one of the veterans of the campaign against liquor, is taking the lead in this new fight.

As far back as 1919, the Methodist board declared its opposition to the use of tobacco but until now it has been too busy with the prohibition controversy to devote much time or energy to what its officers describe as the "cigaret evil."

But figures recently compiled by the commerce department showing a tremendous increase in cigaret consumption have aroused the temperance forces to action. These figures show that 102,764,698,000 cigarets were smoked in this country last year, a gain of 5,457,083,281 over 1927.

Advertising Blamed

Officials of the board attribute this gain largely to advertising methods employed by the "tobacco trust"—endorsements by prominent persons and posters designed to appeal to women smokers.

They propose to combat such advertising by educating the public to the alleged harmfulness of smoking for women and children. No attempt will be made, they said, to reduce tobacco consumption among adult males.

The board recognized a destinction between the tobacco and the liquor traffic and contemplates no effort to outlaw the production and sale of tobacco in any form, its officials said.

"We have no quarrel with the use of tobacco by men," Deets Pickett, one of the board officials, told the United Press. "Some of our own employes smoke and we do not object to that.

"What we object to is women and children smoking. There is a difference of opinion among authorities as to the harmfulness of cigaret smoking but it seems obvious dren and women, particularly to us that tobacco is bad for chilwomen who are nursing children, and if they acquire the habit they will continue to smoke during this period.

Testimonials Rapped

"What we resent most is the attempt to spread the cigaret habit to women and children by testimonial advertising which is well paid for in magazines, on bill boards and over the radio.

"The public won't stand for this sort of thing very long. The trouble with these advertisers is that they take New York as representative of the entire country. New York may stand for it but other sections of the country won't. Already they have been compelled to modify their radio campaigns."

Pickett said he did not believe legislation would be necessary to combat cigaret advertising. An educational campaign, he believes, will accomplish the desired results.

Two Divorces Follow Soon After Triple Wedding at L. A.

LOS ANGELES, May 17. (UP)—Twin sisters who were twin brides at a triple wedding two months ago were granted divorce decrees from twin husbands here today.

Lucy Doyle Young and Louise Doyle Young obtained divorces from Alvin Earl Young and W. Byrl Young, twin brothers.

Louise Young was first on the witness stand. She said her husband promised her a honeymoon trip, but changed his mind after their marriage. He thought her coffee was "rotten," that the way she cooked eggs was awful, and that she looked like a Fiji islander.

Lucy Young's testimony ran to "so did my husband" except that he likened her appearance to that of a sick dog.

Elmer Young, brother of the twin husbands, and Miss Alice McKeen, other participants in the triple wedding, still are married happily.

Tillman County Wheat Prospects Are Revived

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., May 17.—Prospects for a wheat crop in Tillman county are better than was believed by many before the recent rains, according to L. D. Boatright, well known wheat farmer of south of Hollister.

Much of the wheat that was considered ruined by the dry weather will produce from seven to ten bushels to the acre, Boatright said.

Hollister and the community surrounding it is one of the most important wheat raising districts in southwestern Oklahoma, wheat rivaling cotton for supremacy in this district.

NEW FIGHTING SHIPS GUARDED

Machine Gun and Bomb Carrier Developed

WASHINGTON, May 17. (US)—A trim looking plane, of radically new design, which mounts three machine guns and carries a 1,000-pound bomb, was under close guard tonight awaiting first tests by aeronautical experts.

Its sponsors believe it will fulfill the long-cherished hope of American military leaders for a plane which not only can fight in the air with the ease of present attack ships, but also can carry heavy charges of TNT.

Development Quiet

Without trumpeting or fanfare, the navy department and the Glenn L. Martin Airplane company of Baltimore have developed this new type of combination ship. It may revolutionize the whole system of air tactics.

The first trial flights will be held shortly.

For years navy experts have been seeking the "ideal plane," which would combine in one unit the purposes of the various bombing and fighting types. The new plane is the outgrowth of these labors. If the tests prove successful the navy is expected to employ this type extensively throughout the service, ashore and afloat.

The plane looks not unlike the present two-seated fighters. In battle it will be able to ascend to high altitudes, dive at breathless speed toward an enemy stronghold and discharge its destructive load of ammunition. No bomber yet built has been able to nose over and dive with a 1,000-pound bomb.

Combination Fighter

Furthermore, the plane is designed to engage in hand to hand fighting and in formation attack. Unlike the present bombers, slow, unwieldy and vulnerable, the plane will require no convoy to carry out its mission. If attacked, it will be able to fight its way to base.

To accomplish the two-fold purpose, the plane has been cut to half the size of the existing bombers. Its speed has been raised by 25 per cent and it can cruise over long distances at 120 miles an hour.

The bomb is carried under the fuselage. Two machine guns are mounted to shoot through the propeller and one is in the aft cockpit. The plane has but one power plant, a nine-cylinder Pratt and Whitney motor.

A special feature for sea fighting is an arrangement whereby the plane, though equipped with wheels, can remain afloat indefinitely if forced down in the water.

Date of El Paso Meet to Be Discussed

Special to The Record News.

The members of the executive board and the secretaries of the chambers of commerce residing in the Green Belt district at a conference held in Seymour Thursday, recommended July 2, 3 and 4 as the dates for the annual meeting. An announcement at the headquarters today says there are so many divergent views and so many angles to be considered that the president and manager feel that the fullest consideration should be given before the decision fixing the dates should be reached.

The executive officers have invited the general arrangements committe of El Paso to be represented at the meeting to be held next Tuesday and will be pleased to have other interested parties present.

SUN-BACK TO RULE STYLES

Tanning Rays to Reach Reverse Side

CHICAGO, May 17. (UP)—To the rear march, boys, the girls in the latest gowns, designed for the sun-tan backs, are on parade.

This was the thought that flashed through the minds of the fortunate males attending the summer fashion parade at the Drake hotel here today, where more than 200 fashion leaders from all parts of the country were gathered.

Everything from negligee to the fullest frocks, the lengths of the skirts notwithstanding, are backless, to give that deep-summery sun-tan back a wide berth to peek through a large V on the reverse side.

Spring morning frocks of printed cotton, afternoon frocks of sheerest Spanish lace, evening frocks of chiffon, bathing suits and negligees, in fact, all the modern foundation garments, have the new decollette effect.

Fashion designers were agreed that what milady wears at the front of her frock doesn't really matter—that the smartly turned out lady this summer literally wears her clothes on her back.

"The recent vogue for sun-tan and evenly tanned V-necks has necessitated the creation of exactly the same back-lines in every garment the fashionable lady wears," Kathryn Cunningham, chief designer of the H. W. Gossard company, in charge of the style show, said today.

"Clothes for morning, afternoon and evening wear may vary as to skirt length and fabric; they may differ radically as to side and front trimming and cut, but they must follow the same lines at the back."

More than 450 new and different foundation garments and figure fashions, the last word in designs for the sun-tan back, will be shown here this week. Several models, their backs tanned to a mid-summer hue, formed in the parade today to show how milady must look to those in the rear seats in the theater and to those who stand in the background along the sea shore.

HUGE INCREASE IN SMUGGLING

Canadian Liquor Flow Goes On Unchecked

WASHINGTON, May 17. (UP)—Tremendous increases in the volume of liquor smuggled over the Canadian border were suggested in a report made public today of the fruitless Canadian-American conference of last January in which the United States sought more cooperation in enforcing prohibition.

E. W. Camp, American commissioner of customs, told the conferees last January that in the two years ended June 30, 1928, 46,594 cases of beer had been seized but that in the six months period just previous to the January conference, 46,978 cases were seized. In two years 16,560 cases of whiskey were seized and in the six months period seizures numbered 4,576 cases.

Camp said the customs patrol had broken down on the Detroit river. It was not the old-time customs men who were going wrong but the persons brought into the service for this new prohibition work.

Prohibition commissioner Doran cied the murderous operations of the criminal element in Chicago and warned Canadian conferees that unless the border situation is corrected, Canada will have the same element to deal with in its border cities.

The conference project originated in a note from the state department to Canada via the British embassy Oct. 1, 1925, before Canada was represented by a minister in this country. The note said cargoes of liquor which were well known to be destined for the United States in violation of the prohibition laws were being cleared for the United States from Canada. It suggested negotiation of a convention between Canada and the United States whereby Canada would refuse clearances to shipments of prohibited articles by land, sea or air an addition to the extradition convention to enable the United States to extradite violators of American customs laws.

Manitou to Get Natural Gas Soon

Special to The Record News.

MANITOU, Okla., May 17.—Manitou will be served with a good supply of natural gas in the near future, if plans now being made by city officials and the chamber of commerce materialize, according to T. F. Hill, mapor.

The Community Natural Gas company, a subsidiary of the Lone Star Gas company of Texas, proposes to furnish the gas to this city, if Manitou will guarantee as many as 80 customers. This number is already practically assured, according to Hill.

The gas company will run their line from Frederick north, following the Frisco railroad right-of-way and serve Manitou, Snyder and Mountain Park from the same line.

A meeting was held Tuesday at Snyder of representatives from the three towns who met with a representative from the gas company and discussed the possibilities of an early gas supply.

Citizens here are enthusiastic over possibilities of a plentiful supply of the fuel. Definite decision will be made in the near future, after it is ascertained whether the required number of users can be obtained here, Hill stated.

Miss Long Honored By Epworth League

Miss Annie Laurie Long, whose marriage to Dr. R. P. Johnson of Tchula, Miss., is to take place June 5, was honored Thursday evening with a shower by the Annie Laurie Long league, which she organized and of which she was first sponsor.

Miss Long was crowned "queen of the party" by Virginia Boyd, who placed a crown of roses and blue hearts on her head.

The guests were then conducted to the sun porch where rose and blue hearts were tally cards used at the seven tables where the guests played hearts.

Just as this game was at its height, "Dr. Cure-All Johnson," in the person of Thelma Norvell, arrived with his "pill-bag" and proceeded to examine the leaguers and to prescribe for each in turn, leaving bottles of medicine, boxes of salve, and "fever-powders" to be taken "three times a day until cured." When Miss Long's turn came, the "doctor" discovered her heart to be in a rather serious condition, and so felt it necessary to provide an entirely new one for her, accordingly presenting her with a gorgeous red box in the shape of a heart, in which were the dainty handkerchiefs which the members of the league gave to Miss Long as tokens of their love for her. The gift of the hostesses, Mrs. B. P. Williams and Mrs. Wayne Somerville, was a French tapestry in which the colors rose and blue predominated. A bride's book prepared by the league members was also given to the honoree. Christine Oakes spoke a few words of loving appreciation of Miss Long, and also thanked the hostesses for their help with the party.

As a fitting climax to the party, Springer Williams sang two Scotch love songs, Harry Lauder's "I Love a Lassie" and "Roamin' in the Gloamin'." He was accompanied at the piano by his mother, Mrs. B. P. Williams.

Refreshments were served to the honoree, Genevie Fitzhugh, Helen Roberson, Louise Roberson, Clifton Jones, Ed Reeder, Don Bright, Quita Elmore, Elize Cooper, Springer Williams, Emma Seitz, Virgil Mills, Virginia Boyd, Homer Lee, Ernestine Cantrill, John Loggie, Preston Thompson, Catherine Franks, Margaret Fincher, Helen Jack, Leonard Smith, Alvin Smith, Thelma Norvell, Elizabeth Beasley, Christine Oakes, Billie Leslie Stimson, and Mesdames Fincher, Somerville and Williams.

Alchemy in England—at least among scientific men—ended tragically when James Price, an amateur scientist of the 18th century and a member of a celebrated society, discovered a powder that would turn baser metals to gold. He had friends who saw him use his powder and seemingly perform this miracle. His fame went out and he was even decorated by the king but after the first experiments, he brought forth no more gold. The people began to demand that he do so. His friends told him he must. He asked for time and had several months in which he experimented with a bottle of laurel water. At the end of the time given him, his friends came to his study to see his process worked again. He ushered them in with a smile, bade them be seated, turned and drank from the bottle of water. In a moment, he fell dead at their feet. Of course, the general opinion was that his first experiment had been a cheat.

Most Women Fail to Tell Children Fathers Love as Much as Mothers

Women Who Bring Up Their Children to Believe That Mothers Have a Monopoly on Parental Love Rob Their Husbands of Their Rightful Heritage of Filial Gratitude and Affection.

I often wonder what women think their husbands think about their children. The attitude of the average mother is that she possesses a monopoly on parental love and that her husband's feeling toward his cchildren is merely the mild affection of a casual acquaintance. The mother considers that she is the one who cherishes the children who sacrifices for them, who is anxious and worried over them and whose heart would break if she was parted from them.

Not one woman in a thousand ever even suspects that his children may be the very core of her husband's soul and that his passion of devotion to them surpasses hers.

Yet the wife expects the husband to work and support these children for whom she thinks he cares so little. She sees him growing old before his time, toiling to give his sons and daughters advantages of education that he never had himself. She sees him slaving at his job through summer heat and winter cold to give his family the vacations he never takes himself. She sees him going shabby that the girls may have pretty frocks and driving the old flivver so that the boys may race around in a sport car.

But it doesn't occur to the mother that the reason the father does these things for his children is because he loves them better than he does himself or that the man who spends his life toiling to support his family has sacrificed just as much to his children as their mother has.

Now this belief that women cherish that they love their children better than their husbands do would matter little except that mothers, perhaps unconsciously and unintentionally inculcate the idea in their children's minds and thus rob the father of the gratitude and appreciation and affection from his children that are his due and that are the only reward she can possibly receive for all that he does for them.

From their very babyhood the mother teaches her children that she is their friend, that she is their protection from the harshness of their father, that she is the one who wants to indulge them in everything and that father is the one who denies. She is the mediator who stands between them and father's wrath.

It is mother who wheedles the new skates out of father for Johnny when father has said that he can't afford them. It is mother who runs up the bills that make father groan because she says that Mary must have as pretty clothes as the other girls. It is mother who helps Jane to slip out for a joyride with young Blank of whom father disapproves. It is mother who is always on the children's side making them feel that she is the one who loves them and who wants them to be indulged and to be happy, and so they grow up under the impression that father cares nothing for them and is utterly indifferent to their welfare.

Worse still, many women hold father as a club over their children's heads. The children visualize him in their infancy as a figure of terror whose purpose in the family is to beat their small bodies and deal out harsh punishments for children misdemeanors and they never see him in any kindlier light. Nothing is more common than to hear a woman say to a child: "I'll tell your father about that when he comes home tonight." Or: "I'll have your father give you a good thrashing for that." and she never seems to realize what an injustice she is doing both the child and the father.

For she is making the child hate the father and she is defrauding the father of the thing that he most desires in life, the love and confidence of his children. It must be a bitter thing to a man who has worked his fingers to the bones for his family, who has denied himself the gratification of every personal taste and whim to give likewise to them, to realize when they are grown that he has scarcely a speaking acquaintance with his sons and daughters; that they fall silent in his presence and have nothing to say to him; that they never show him the slightest evidence of affection and that they turn to their mother for sympathy and companionship.

Yet you can see this tragedy of the family, in which the father is the outsider, in many households. And all because mother has brought up the children in the belief that she was the only one who loved them.

Another illustration of women's fallacious belief that they alone are capable of parental affection is shown by their action in divorce cases, when they part a man from his children with no more compunctions of conscience than they would have in separating him from a pair of old shoes. Many women break up their homes for no good reason. They have gotten tired of matrimony and want to be free or they have lost their love for their husbands or they have fallen in love with some other man and they trump up an excuse to leave him and rush with it to the divorce courts and ask for custody of the children.

It would kill them to have to give up the children. They couldn't endure the silence of a house in which there was no patter of little feet, no little faces watching against the window pane. They would go mad with longing for the feel of little arms around their necks and little hands clinging to theirs, but they have no hesitation in inflicting this ruthless cruelty upon the children's father.

Yet there are many men who have the paternal passion just as highly developed as any woman has the maternal passion, men who are all fathers just as there are some women who are all mothers. There are even men who are bad husbands who are good fathers and there are millions upon millions of men who love for their children makes them stand by the bad bargains they have made in matrimony and endure the nagging and the tempers and the petty tyrannies of wives who make their lives a hell on earth for them.

Believe me, if women could look into men's hearts and see how they love their children and crave their children's love many a one would be more careful not to alienate her children's affections from their father and many a one would not be guilty of the inhuman cruelty of taking a man's children away from him and leaving him desolate just because she lost her taste for him. —DOROTHY DIX.

Miss Howell Has Lovely Breakfast Given in Her Honor

One of the lovely pre-nuptial events honoring Miss Modena Howell, whose marriage to Stanley Raub is announced to take place in June, was the breakfast given in her honor Friday morning by Mrs. N. H. Martin and her daughter, Mrs. Paul Rutledge.

The room was lovely with baskets of pink and orchid blossoms.

A wedding party made a lovely center with an aisle marked with white ribbons and white tapers in novelty holders of green and white. All members of the party, in proper costume, were in their places, tiny dolls modeling the parts.

Miss Howell's place was marked by a white satin bow on the chair and in it, a small doll dressed as a bride with a white veil and carrying a boquet of lilies of the valley.

Places were marked with round orchid boxes containing powder puff dolls and cards tied with green tulle mounted on these.

Following the breakfast, numbers were given the guests and the lucky numbers were received by the honoree. She was given a letter and a key. The letter directed her to the library and there she found a miniature chest filled with the lovely gifts of her friends.

Those present were: Misses Modena Howell, Marguerite Haynie, Grace Haynie, Virginia Hicks, Mesdames W. W. Silk, S. S. McKenney, W. M. Priddy, C. Y. Tully, M. D. Rowe, W. D. Cline, W. W. Cook, J. C. Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, May 17. (US)—To the saleslaadies. May they never know less!

She didn't look human. You can't prove by me whether she was or not. Her hair was shiny like a wet seal. Her eye-brows had been shaved off and she had painted eyebrows nearer to her idea of what the Lord should have put there in the first place. A Fifth avenue saleslady, that's what she was.

Her head was tilted back and she had that thoroughly detached look as I approached and asked if, perhaps, I might get someone to wait upon me.

"What do you want?" she asked, without a question in her tone, without changing her expression and without looking up from her fingers.

"I don't know—a dress of some kind." I answered meekly.

Without moving, the queen said: "Miss Jones, find Miss Smith, and tell her to get Miss Banks to find someone to wait upon this lady."

It took so long for Miss Jones to tell Miss Smith to tell Miss Banks, that I walked out, unnoticed.

The next store was quite as smart and the queens were even more slinky. The dresses were hanging in long rows instead of being locked up out of sight, so I had some hope of being permitted to buy. I saw a group of shiny haired grand dames with set faces lounging on a settee.

"Would you show me some dresses?" I queried and the longest, slinkiest one got up, and moved like a river reed toward a dress rack.

"What price dress do you wish?" she asked me, never looking at me.

"Oh about $50 or $75," I said timidly.

I got looked at then. Oh I got looked at good and plenty. Up and down and across, and then as her cold eyes met mine she said: "We have nothing of that sort."

As I walked toward the elevator I stopped to take a last look at an Alice blue tulle dress—exactly what I wanted, alluring as could be, and if I am any judge, just pining to go home with me. I turned it around and the tag popped out.

"Formerly $150, now $50," is what it said.

But the slick haired queens had put a complex on me, or my weary spirit was just too taxed to face another routine.

But what I'd like to know is, do sales ladies ever get as bored as they look like they get?

If so why?

Maybe one of the very slick ones will tell me. Maybe sudden association with the finer things of life does that to a calico constitution?

The real corking salesladies are the college girls who take these jobs with the idea that they are expected to sell things. The poor benighted dears!

Husbands as Cooks

French homes are reputed to have the best cooking of any in the world. Some one has suggested that this is due to the fact that Frenchman's ability to mix a salad dressing that is a poem, to concoct an omelette of incredible savor and fluffiness keeps his wife on the qui vive.

Imagine the humiliation she would suffer to be surpassed in the art of cookery by her own worse half!

If this is true, Frenchwomen must be more long-suffering than their sisters on this side of the ocean.

Most married men in these United States are convinced that their wives have about as much practical intelligence as a moonbeam—and when conversation veers toward speculative, abstract subjects the poor things don't know what it's all about.

The average husband grants that his wife is capable of the management of his household, largely because such affairs as servant troubles, food-planning and the counting of laundry are beneath his giant intellect, but he has a sneaking suspicion that he could do the job more efficiently if he chose to take it in hand.

And on inauspicious occasions he gives voice to this hunch by remarking that it's odd how the most famous cooks and dressmakers are men—odd, very!

Heaven help us if the boys decided to turn their serious attention kitchenward!

"Darling, you know peas should not be cooked more than an hour! Did you add a pinch of soda to tender them?"

Or picture the happiness of this family's evening. The husband has tasted the dessert, sighed and remarked in a patient tone: "You never will learn to start angel-food in a very slow oven, dear!"

Much, much better the present regime under which husbands growl that the dinner's rotten—not fit to be eaten—a blanket indictment revealing no offensive expert criticism. And wives can always retort with tears and the complaint that they're mistreated, overworked and under-appreciated!

The French system may produce better food but it would assuredly not produce better homes and better dispositions. For if our husbands were superior about everything including cooking they would soon find themselves in undisputed possession of the kitchen range and of various communications from their wives' lawyers.

DEGREE CONFERRED

Special to The Record News

BURKBURNETT, Texas, May 17.—The second degree, or rank of esquire, was conferred upon Joe Pharis, a candidate for knighthood into the Knights of Pythias lodge No. 469 at Burkburnett, during the regular meeting session Monday night at the Pythian Hall Castle. Charles Weller, chancellor commander, presided over the meeting.

ALMOST GAVE UP HOPE OF SEEING A WELL DAY AGAIN

"I have seen the time when I would have given almost anything in the world to find the splendid health I now enjoy since taking Sargon.

"I had suffered for two years with such stomach trouble that I had about given up hope of ever being well again. After eating I would have heartburn and an uncomfortable, bloated feeling in my stomach that lasted for hours. My entire system seemed to be out of order. I was so nervous that actually I was afread to be alone. I could not rest day or night. I had dissy spells every morning when I first got up and would be so tired that I didn't feel like starting my housework. You would have thought that I didn't have a drop of blood in my body, my color was so bad. I felt dull, lifeless and drowsy all the time.

MRS. RUBY LIGHT

"Three bottles of Sargon have already done more for me than I expected any medicine to do. That depressed feeling has left my stomach and I am no longer bothered with indigestion or heartburn. I'm no longer nervous, I sleep well and get up in the mornings feeling fine. My strength and energy returned and I go about my housework cheerfully and without tiring. It seemed like I could just feel Sargon building up my blood and bringing back a good, healthy color to my face. I am certainly like a different person from what I was one month ago.

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills have rid me of constipation in an easy, natural manner by stimulation of my inactive liver. They never nauseate like other laxatives.

"There are several in my family taking Sargon with splendid results."

The above statement was made recently by Mrs. Ruby Light, highly esteemed resident of 413 North Washington street, Dallas.

Sargon may be obtained in Wichita Falls from the Renfro Drug Co., Eighth and Scott streets, No. 1 main store, and Seventh and Indiana, No. 2; in Electra from Lough's Drug store; and in Burkburnett from Burkburnett Pharmacy.—Adv.

MERGER SAVES DEPOSITORS AFTER SHOT KILLS BANK PRESIDENT

OFFICIAL FOUND DEAD IN AUTO

Okmulgee Firms Agree on Combine After Death

OKMULGEE, Okla., May 17. (UP)—A bank, whose president shot himself to death last night, today was merged with another bank.

Tom King, president of the American National bank, took his life in front of his home here. His wife, attracted by a gunshot report, ran to his car where she found his body slumped in the seat. A gun was near his hand.

A small crowd of persons gathered at the closed bank doors today to read the sign: "The American National bank and the Central National bank here have consolidated and checks of the American National will be payable at the Central National."

The bank did not open.

W. E. Wilson, cashier of the American, said that shortage had been discovered in the American's accounts. He said they were due to unwise investments. Consolidated business was resumed today at the Central National bank under the name of the Central National bank.

The merger was agreed upon at a meeting late Thursday night after a report of the suicide had been received by the bank officials. King's body was found shortly after he had left the director's meeting earlier in the evening.

Five Towns Hit By Windstorms

said. Several of the large tanks of 150 gallon capacity were toppled over or otherwise damaged, and one of them was lifted into the air, hoisted over a barbed wire fence, and placed intact on the other side of the road. The company oil tank cars, standing on the refinery tracks, were blown down to the end of the line, where they piled in a heap. Other railroad cars in the yards near Electra, were propelled down the tracks by the wind until they struck a derail and were thrown over on their sides.

YOUTH PADDLES BOAT ALONG FLOODED STREET

During the hour following the near-cloudburst Friday afternoon, motorists on Broad avenue just north of the Wichita Falls and Southern railway had the unexpected experience of being escorted "over the river" by a lone boatman.

A lad of about 12 years launched a small rowboat shortly after the deluge on the considerable body of water which submerged Brook avenue and extended some distance along the right-of-way to the east and west. Paddling completely about the street, the young oarsman guided questioning drivers, and paralleled their course through the flood.

Refinery Damage Heavy

The roof was taken off of one of the tanks, and the steel ladder on another tank was twisted from the structure.

All of the refinery buildings were damaged, Mr. Gray said. The windows were shattered from the office building, and seven cottages on the place were badly damaged, all losing window panes, and some of the roofs being marred.

While driving to Wichita Falls in the latter stages of the storm, Mr. Gray said refinery implements and pieces of galvanized iron picked up by the wind could be seen within a radius of two miles of the plant. Even further out, as far as five miles south of Electra, Mr. Gray said bits of steel could be seen along the road and suspended from barbed wire fences. Some of them, he said hurled through the air with sufficient force to instantly kill anyone who might have chanced to be in their path.

Other plants and buildings in Electra were damaged. A warehouse on another lease near the Dale refinery was toppled over, and several business houses within the town were damaged, some losing plate glass windows, and the walls of others being crushed. No one was reported injured.

Mr. Gray said the refinery probably would be shut down a week for repairs. Part of the loss, he said, was covered by insurance.

At Rock Crossing, about 18 miles southwest of Electra, several rigs were reported to have been blown down.

When the storm hit Petrolia, fruit crops suffered considerable damage and several garages and outhouses were blown down. The home of W. A. Elsea, one mile west of there, was completely demolished. None of the occupants were reported injured. The rain in this vicinity totaled three and one half inches.

School Children Escape

Clara, near Burkburnett, suffered intensely from the storm, and it was only through the presence of mind of the school principal that probable injuries were not sustained by more than one of the students. As soon as the storm struck, all students in the ward school were ordered to the basement of the high school building, located a short distance away. The transfer was made successfully. A short time later the roof of the teacherage was lifted by the wind, and deposited on top of the high school. The doors of the ward school building were blown in, and all the windows shattered. Two outbuildings were demolished.

A barber shop across the street from the school building was leveled to the ground. Other reports from the vicinity of Clara said that a vacant house on the Mathews farm three miles west of there had been blown down; that a barn on an oil lease south of Clara had been blown against the home occupied by a Mr. Prey, and that the house had been caved in. No one was reported hurt.

In addition, it was reported that a rig on the Ed Foster farm six miles west of there had been blown down. Other reports were not available as all telephone lines were down within a short while after the storm began.

Telephone lines likewise were down in the vicinity of Byers, it was reported. However, it was learned that in addition to the damage wrought at the baseball park, the home of R. G. Fields was badly damaged, that the windows in the Masonic hall were shattered, and that the school buildings suffered.

Dundee, at latest reports, presented a scene of complete wreckage. The Rayborn hotel was almost completely wrecked when wind tore off the roof of the Dundee Motor car company building, depositing it with force on top of the hostelry. The large Dundee grain elevator was blown down. The north end of the depot was shattered, and the N. C. Williams grocery store was wrecked. The First National bank entrance was likewise damaged. The J. D. Smith building was reported hard hit, as was an empty store building. In addition to others listed as injured, Bill Miller was reported to have suffered cuts on the head when struck by debris.

Tonight the town was without lights, all power lines being down.

Rainfall in Wichita Falls, accompanied at some intervals by hail, totaled 1.05 inches, according to the Texas Electric Service company bureau report. The heaviest rain fell about 3 o'clock, continuing in downpour fashion only a short while. Short squalls occurred intermittently thereafter, but by 6 o'clock the sky had cleared. A light rain fell early Friday morning.

Reports of rainfall at other points, as received from Record News correspondents, follow:

CLEARENDON.—Some roads were damaged by a heavy rain which fell here today. The crops were greatly benefitted.

MEMPHIS.—A slow rain which started this morning developed in intensity until early in the afternoon it had become a downpour. Crops and range grass profited.

LAMESA—One and one fourth inches of rain "worth a million dollars" fell in this section today, greatly aiding the crops. Prospects were never brighter for abundant yields of all crops in the lower South Plains, farmers assert.

WELLINGTON—Three inches of rain fell here this afternoon, badly damaging crops in some parts of the county. In the brief but heavy fall here, the water mounted in the streets until some of the stores were flooded.

HASKELL—Heavy rains, averaging a total of one and one half inches, fell over Haskell county today, greatly aiding the crops. No damage was reported.

HENRIETTA—A heavy rain fell for over an hour here today. Crops generally were helped.

GALE DAMAGES M'CAMEY STORES

M'CAMEY, Texas, May 17. (AP)—The roof of a department store was twisted away and several garages were blown down by a severe rain and windstorm which struck here late today.

No one was injured.

The wind blew out windows in some buildings and drove the rain through loosely-fitting doors. About two inches of rain was said to have fallen in slightly more than an hour.

A portion of the roof on the Bender Department store was torn off and water damaged the stock, entailing a loss of several thousand dollars.

The rain apparently did no other damage.

Highways remained open although many of them were covered by water during the rain.

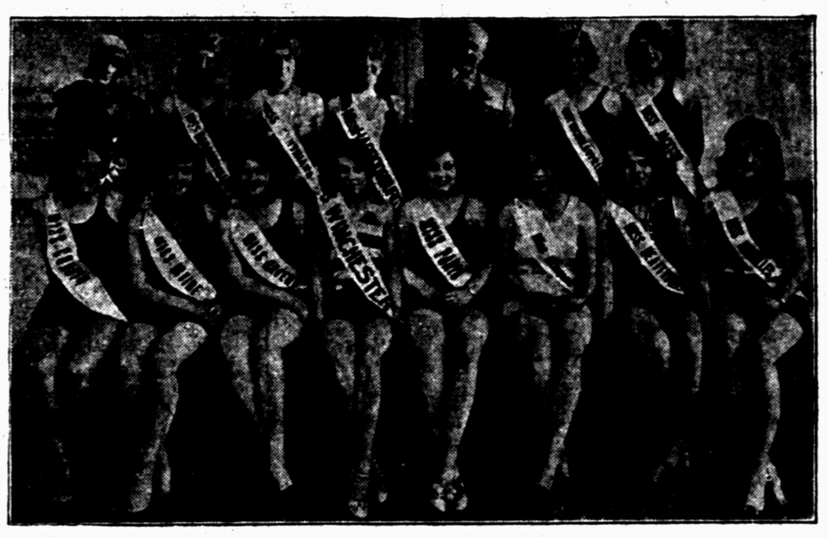

One corner of a two-story hotel was blown off, later reports said, but the occupants escaped injury.

THREE INJURED NEAR DUNCAN

DUNCAN, Okla., May 17. (UP)—A small tornado struck the farm home of W. S. Hinkle near here today, injured three persons.

Hinkle's wife, a relative named George Hinkle, and a 12-year-old son were in a hospital here tonight. Physicians said they were not seriously injured. They were struck by falling timbers.

1928 Cotton Crop Shows Increase in Production

WASHINGTON, May 17. (US)—America's cotton crop of 1928 shows a marked increase over that of 1927, but is still far under the figure established in 1926, according to figures made public today by the commerce department's industrial census bureau. The figures place the total amount of cotton ginned from the 1928 crops as 14,477,874 500-pound bales as against 12,956,043 in 1927 and 17,977,374 in 1926.

Texas, as usual, led in the amount of cotton produced, with 5,109,339 bales to its credit.

American Business Delegation To Make Survey of Russian Conditions

WASHINGTON, May 17. (UP)—A delegation of leading American business men will visit Russia during July and August for a survey of economic conditions, an event of unusual significance because it has been approved, it is understood, by both President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson.

The visit accordingly has aroused keen interest among those agitating for recognition of the soviet republic. These include Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee who regards the mission as a most promising contribution to his campaign for Russian recognition. It is the first venture of this kind since the revolution 12 years ago and withdrawal of recognition when the soviet came into power.

Borah believes that the weight of business is the most effective factor for influencing the government's viewpoint. He re-introduced at the beginning of the special session his resolution for recognition, and is contemplating calling before his committee later some of those who will make the tour. He has withheld any agitation for his resolution until completion of the survey, of which he has been closely advised.

The delegation, expected to number about 50 or more, will leave Berlin for Russia on July 13, following the meeting of the international chamber of commerce there.

Tax Expert's Skill Cause of Charges

LOS ANGELES, May 17. (AP)—Pinned to the income tax return of Louis W. Barnett, wealthy Long Beach and Pasadena, Cal., shoe store owner, federal income tax inspectors said they found this note:

"This is the best I can do for you. I have listed $1,760 as an item for legal advice. Of course I didn't charge that, but we can get by with it because I don't have to file an income tax return."

Officials said the note was from Barnett's income tax counselor, George C. Terry, of Los Angeles. Today indictments charging Barnett and Terry with a conspiracy to defraud the government were returned.

Authorities said Barnett, whose income was listed at $45,811.79 for 1927, apparently forgot to remove the "documentary evidence of fraud."

You pay for KELLYS—
why not have KELLYS?

SOME people buy "mail order" tires under the impression that they are saving money. Others buy Kelly-Springfields — and don't have to pay any more for them.

Contrary to general belief, Kelly-Springfield tires are not high-priced. Their reputation has given many people the idea that because Kellys are so good they must cost more.

If you'll drop in and see us the next time you are in the neighborhood, we believe you'll be surprised to learn how Kelly prices run.

Besides, we can make you a trade-in allowance on your present tires — and put the new ones on for you.

When you can buy the best for the same price, why be content with less?

HE PLAYED TOO SAFE

Daily Editorial

FIFTY YEARS ago, reports reached his little village that fortunes lay in the streets of America. So he took ship for El Dorado.

One block away from Castle garden, he spied a half dollar in the gutter. What a land!

He didn't even pause—such a trumpery coin!

Why waste time on a fifty cent piece when, beyond doubt, there'd be golden eagles at the next crossing?

With eyes searching Belgian blocks, he trudged the full length of Broadway. Then he patronizingly came back for the small change he had so despised that morning.

Too late: that's how he missed his first opportune moment.

The next week, he went to work. He began life in the New World as a tailor. At 70 he has a little shop of his own.

Fellow-immigrants and compatriots with no more skill or initial experience became manufacturers, property-holders and bank directors, while he waited for Opportunity to drop and force a forelock into his fist.

But Opportunity was busy running up the street with a mob in pursuit.

She was leading foresight from the East Side to Harlem, and from Harlem to the Bronx.

A friend overtook her on upper Fifth avenue and acquired an acre of land near the Metropolitan museum, out of which he offered him a lot for a hundred dollars—terms, five down and five a month.

But he wouldn't be hornswoggled. Last year the plot brought over a hundred thousand.

The fairy tales were true. You could and you can find fortunes in the streets of Manhattan, and of Miami. And of Los Angeles.

HE SAW CENTRAL park surveyed. He watched goat kennels give way to apartment houses and truck farms become business blocks as he stitched and laid away, and never lifted eyes higher than his needle.

An illiterate bootblack became his landlord. The greenhorn family upstairs and the tin-smith to the right moved into better quarters, in the telephone directory and the social register.

He kept his hands busy, but he never put his head to work. His savings were being tied up in little rainy-day umbrellas, while imaginative enterprise sowed skyscrapers and factories and banks from pay envelopes. He wouldn't take a risk, so he didn't take a prize.

Thrift must have vision. There is no magic in miserd money.

To this instant, he cannot understand why so many of his old friends are living in clover and Palm Beach. If he asked them the secret of success, they'd tell him they didn't leave pick-ups for men behind, but swooped upon half dollars and half millions as they met them.

He came to America with the wrong idea; he expected to find life easy here. But our winnings aren't for chance-wasters.

If you need more capital than a hat will cover, Golconda can't furnish sufficient funds.

The richest prospect is wasted upon misjudgment.

O'Reilly and McLaughlin discovered the Comstock lode. O'Reilly's fifty thousand was the largest sum the locaters of that incredible trove received. It requires a mind as well as a mine to make a killing. Failure is always explicable—so is affluence.

Reapportion the country's wealth—divide it pro rata, and in a generation you'd have the present's proportion of bond-clippers and drudges.

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who does good every day is successful."

Success is a journey of which every day is a part. It matters not whether you win or lose, but, what is important is how you meet and pass those along your path.

A man often takes a day off on his birthday, but a woman isn't satisfied with anything less than a year.

Why hasn't anybody thought to suggest sending a couple of furniture installment collectors to Germany?

Tragedy—and a Child

THIS PICTURE with this editorial shows a grown man and a very small boy trudging along the road, hand in hand, and behind it this story:

The man was Robert Thornton, and the boy was his 5-year-old son, Clyde. They lived on a farm in Missouri. A short time ago the floods came. The farm was devastated. Its buildings were washed away, its fields were eroded and covered with debris, the planting that had been done was spoiled. The two were left with nothing.

Robert Thornton and His Son, Clyde

They decided, the man and the boy, to go to relatives in Newark, N. J., where they could rest and get assistance in making a new start. They had no money to pay their fare, so they walked. The man carried a satchel containing such food as they had been able to get together.

All they way from Missouri to New Jersey the man and the five-year-old boy walked. You can imagine, at your leisure, how pleasant the trip must have been. Finally they got to Newark. There they had another setback. Their relatives had moved to Pittsburgh.

There was nothing to do but hike to Pittsburgh, and they set out to do it. In Philadelphia, out of food and deeply discouraged, they encountered a policeman. He was a friendly soul, and when he had heard their story he took a little collection among his fellow officers and sent the couple on to Pittsburgh by train.

The photograph of the two was taken at Philadelphia. The two faces that it showed were faces to haunt the sleep and spoil the repose of people who looked at them.

The man's face was grim; grim and sad, with deep lines about the mouth, and an expression of dogged hopelessness in the eyes. It was the face of a man who knew that there was no hope for him, but who was determined, nevertheless, to carry on; a man who needed help but saw that he wasn't going to get it.

And the little boy! Wistful, puzzled, entreating—a baby face made prematurely old by understanding, too early, that life can be brutal and harrowing; a face in which all the wrongs of maturity, saddled abruptly on a 5-year-old's shoulders, spoke silently through a pair of wide, incomprehending eyes. His hands clutched his father's hand, confidingly, and one little foot was raised to continue the long, long hike; and the little chap was a sight to make angels weep.

What can we make of a thing like this, anyway? No little boy's face ever ought to look like that. There isn't any greater wrong, anywhere, than the thing that has happened to him.

And yet—we can do nothing, or next to nothing. We can be more understanding, perhaps, more sympathetic, more ready to help; but that is all. Such things happen, in our broad land, and that is all there is to it. The millenium is still a long way off.

Another Republican Farm Bloc

REPUBLICAN representatives from 10 states have organized a bloc. They demand protection on livestock, that hides shall be taken from the free list and that the growers of long staple cotton shall be given the same protection that is enjoyed by New England manufacturers who buy long staple cotton from southern farmers and turn it into high priced thread.

There may be a new tariff bill written if the Democrats and the Republican representatives of 10 agricultural states of the West and the Northwest battle together and then vote together. Those who represent the growers of things, regardless of party affiliation, show signs of putting up a bold front to checkmate the plans of the representatives of the makers of things.

President Hoover holds the whip hand. He wields the veto power. It is impossible for a hostile farm relief bill to get by him and it is just as impossible for a hostile tariff bill to get by him.

In the Shadows

BY A VOTE of 104 to 0 the Texas house of representatives went on record "permitting the erection of a statue of Joseph Weldon Bailey either in the capitol grounds or in the capitol rotunda."

Joseph Weldon Bailey was the last of the great champions of the dogma known as state rights. He was of a civilization that has passed away. This dogma of state rights was not slain on the battle fields of the civil war. Southern senators, sons of fathers who wore the gray, shot the dogma to pieces more than 50 years after the close of the bloody conflict known as "the war between the states."

A new civilization has suceeded the civilization which grew out of reconstruction day. American voters of today do not care a snap of the finger for state rights or the landmarks erected in bygone years by their champions and defenders.

TOONERVILLE FOLKS — By Fontaine Fox

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, May 17.—In the municipal lodging house on the Bowery—that place where the lost ones in the world's social scheme converge—you may find more vivid results of prohibition than in the statistical files of temperance organization.

The lack of saloons, with their old provision for "free flops," has resulted in a greeat demand upon the facilities of the lodging house. Other such places, solemnly designated "inexpensive lodging houses," where a bed may be had for a quarter, and the missions all have been deluged by derelicts.

In such places gather the men who by circumstances or their own shortcomings have sunk to the lowest rung. The Bowery is their Main street for there they may trudge along without embarrassment, if they have that instinct left. In despair and a strangely calm acceptance of their fate, they live out the anti-climaxes of their unfortunate lives.

You can always tell on Broadway when summer is approaching. The sure sign is the arrival of the revues known as "intimate." There seems to be a persistent legend that people in the summer like "light" entertainment. And whether that remains the case or not, the producers continue to supply it.

It wasn't so long ago that publishers used to think only "light" fiction should be published during summer months. The result was that bookstores were flooded with frothy yarns in which love of the lighter sort, of course, dominated, without much damage to any of the characters concerned.

Maybe the critics and not entirely the public affect the state of the drama in summer months. Most of them go to Europe about this time of year and don't return until the fall. They include Percy Hammond, Robert Littell, John Anderson, J. Brooks Atkinson and Ward Morehouse.

The producers also go away and, for that matter, a large part of the theater-going public.

About the only group connected with the theater who seem to stay on the job without vacations are the ticket speculators.

About the most un-English Englishman I've run into yet is William J. Locke, the author of 32 novels, who recently came to New York after six months in Hollywood.

He dislikes cold water, hates tea, doesn't play golf, can't play bridge and never takes strolls in the country—nor does he wear a monocle. However, he betrays his nationality by berating our social life and customs. What surprised him was that residents of New York and Hollywood think they have a riotous time staying up now and then until 6 a. m. Why, says Mr. Locke, over in England we often stay up at night and sleep by day. But our answer is that Mr. Locke must be mistaken. The heavy fog in London deceives him so that by day he thinks it is night and at night he thinks it is merely a foggy day—or something incoherent like that.

About that city of culture which is to be erected on the Palisades. Since all residents must show college diplomas (if they can find them) what will happen if a college man marries a girl with less than a high school education?

And I suppose the dignified and intellectualized homes will not be called love nests, but culture nests.

The New Yorker, a "cultured" magazine, chiefly for the consumption of local sophisticates, put it in the right light when it said:

"Our idea of a cultured person is a person who doesn't want to live in a community of cultured persons."

There are 20,000 people in Manhattan who have private telephone wires.

Two types of this service are provided: one for subscribers who allow a phone manager to query them if an insistent person is trying to reach them, but doesn't know the number, and the other is for those who never wish to be bothered under any circumstances.

Incidentally the dial phones are fast replacing the old "vocal call" phones, largely because of the shortageof competent telephone operators.

Speaking of efficiency, T. S. Stribling, the novelist, has injected it into his writing. He turns out two kinds of books, he says, on the same plan of a large manufacturing corporation.

One group of books is the serious novel for which he seeks esteem and praise from critical minds, and the other is the adventure novel intended to bring in little praise but large financial returns.

For all I know, he may have a third occupation: that of selling butter and eggs, or bolts and nuts or drop forges and tools.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PHILLIPS

Mr. Canby: Now we come to the problem of selecting the best book of the month.

Mr. Broun: Must we?

Mr. Canby: I see no way out of it.

Mr. Broun: The best thing I have read this month is President Coolidge's autobiography.

Mr. Crutch: I didn't know it was in book form yet.

Mr. Broun: Have we got tobe that technical? No matter what form it is in it will get us into less trouble than Joan Lowell's.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. Morley: I can't fully accept that passage in which he tells about jumping overboard and swimming ashore from the burning ship.

Mr. Broun: That wasn't Calvin; that was Joan.

Mr. Morley: Didn't Mr. Coolidge swim ashore from the burning ship?

Mr. White: He got off the ship rather hurriedly recently, but there was no visible fire.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. Crutch: What I'm afraid of in the Coolidge autobiography is that part in which he makes the statement that he was the country's healthiest president, and quit office in perfect condition. There might be a come-back on that.

Mr. Morley: Yes, how do we know his health is perfect?

Mr. Broun: We could have him examined.

Mr. Morley: Then there is that chapter in which Mr. Coolidge tells of sending Everett Sanders to the Kansas City convention. I heard of a story that Sanders was aboard an auxiliary spinnaker off Bangor, British South Africa, splicing a binnacle, at the time.

Mr. Broun: There you go thinking of "The Cradle of the Deep" again.

Mr. White: How about the part where he tells of being an Amhearst man. Suppose we indorse the book and it turns out he went to Harvard?

Mr. Morley: I knew a man named Coolidge in Oxford: He tried for the varsity crew, but was thrown out for always showing up in Indian costume.

Mr. Broun: That could have been Coolidge.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mr. White: A chapter that we've got to be careful about swallowing is that one about the Boston police strike. Was there ever a Boston police strike?

Mr. Crutch: Is there a Boston?

Mr. Morley: Is there, for that matter, a Calvin Coolidge?

Mr. White: I think there is, but he's not the one the book describes.

Mr. Broun: Well, let's send him a wire.

Mr. White: What kind of a wire?

Mr. Broun: A wire reading, "Have read story of your life. Wire confirmation."

Mr. White: That's a good idea.

BATTERED ZEP REACHES LAND

Eckener's Ship Hangared At Toulon, France

had been fought in the clouds over France today.

Only the deep-voiced orders which the veteran commander shouted to the volunteer ground crew broke the silence of the landing.

The mighty dirigible which had started on its second trans-atlantic flight to Lakehurst, N. J., and ended with a most narrow escape from disaster, was dragged halfway inside the hangar, where it was halted while the passengers and crew were removed on ladders. Mrs. Pierce of New York, was the only woman among the passengers, who were granted immunity from the usual passport rules.

The Zeppelin company at Friedrichshafen, Germany, which city the dirigible had been attempting to reach after abandoning the projected flight to America, asked the French government for permission to rush five now motors to Toulon by automobile immediately after they learned of the safe landing.

The request was granted and the broken motors which forced the Graf Zeppelin to turn back shortly before it reached Gibraltar will be replaced here.

Troops Arrive

Dr. Eckener first guided the dirigible over the field at a far corner, apparently planning to approach the mooring mast. The ropes were dropped and seized by those on the field and they walked the big craft across to the hangar as Dr. Eckener leaned from the cabin and directed their movements.

The landing here was the fourth attempt made during the day to bring the big airship down to earth. Dr. Eckener had made two attempts to land at Montelimar field when its position became most desperate late in the afternoon. Both failed because of the fierce winds which had thrown the dirigible about for hours and continued to sweep across the field when it was lowered to the earth.

Another attempt to land at Istres, within eight miles of the sea coast, before the Graf Zeppelin reached Toulon failed when the wind gained new fury and blew the ship further south.

None Injured

Dr. Eckener, after the landing here, said none of the passengers or crew had been injured despite the severe buffeting throughout the day.

He said the Graf Zeppelin was "always under control" even when running before the storm with all her motors dead. Only one motor was really functioning when the ship landed and it strained the metal work to a dangerous point when running alone, it was said.

The great drama of the Graf Zeppelin's battle against the winds was heightened by the tremendous efforts which France—official and unofficial—made to aid it through the long hours of suspense when the craft hovered only a few hundred feet from the ground but far from safety. A decade ago, the appearance of a German dirigible over French territory was a signal for greatest alarm of war times.

The greatest Zeppelin disaster in the world was early in 1917 when 12 dirigibles started out to bomb London, were repulsed by anti-aircraft guns and caught in a gale. They were blown over France and four crashed in the Rhone valley. All were lost.

Having decided to turn back because of motor trouble when several hundred miles from Gibraltar on the projected transatlantic flight to Lakehurst, Dr. Eckener brought the dirigible back along the Spanish Mediterranean coast and to the mouth of the Rhone river in France early in the morning.

Even at that time, with rain and storm clouds over the Rhone valley, the dirigible was fighting stiff headwinds and making very slow progress. There was no alarm aboard, however, and the 18 passengers and crew of 41 men were unworried except for the disappointment of missing the flight to America.

Mrs. Mary Pierce, of New York, the only woman aboard, was the most disappointed passenger, according to a radio message to the United Press from Maurice Nathan of New York, who was a passenger. Nathan said the dirigible was traveling slowly.

The dirigible had been in the air 12 hours and 40 minutes when the decision to turn back was reached. When it had retraced its route to the Rhone river, it had been aloft approximately 24 hours—having left Friedrichshafen at dawn Thursday—and had traveled in the neighborhood of 1,200 to 1,300 miles. The distance probably was increased somewhat by the circuitous route which Dr. Eckener followed.

PASSENGERS CALM
By ALEXANDER R. VON KRYHA
Graf Zeppelin Passenger
(Written for The Associated Press)

TOULON, France, May 17.—The Graf Zeppelin brought us all safely back to land tonight. Four of its motors were out of order, but none of the passengers was unduly frightened.

Most of those aboard intend to start out again for New York with Dr. Hugo Eckener (the dirigible commander) in 10 or 15 days.

One after another of the motors gave out because they were fatigued. They had worked too many hours already in trial flights and in long flights in the early spring over the Mediterranean.

Excellent Cast Presents Musical Comedy as Optimist Club Benefit

A well cast group of players, supported by zestful music and a charming chorus, Friday evening delighted an audience at the Memorial auditorium with their presentation of "Sunshine," a musical comedy offered by the Wichita Falls Optimist club and directed by Miss Virginia Street Orr.

Comedy Well Handled

Among a cast distinguished for an adroit handling of difficult parts, little Miss Mary Jo Ellis, playing the 10-year-old Maudelia McCann, was the particular star. The youngster threw herself into an uproarious and endearing role with a poise and finish which made her almost the central figure of the performance.

With the eccentricities of the inmates of the Sunshine sanatorium near New York as one of the factors in the development of the dramatic action and principal source of a rollicking humor, the unusually heavy problems of make-up and characterization were met with an adequacy which rivaled the professional stage.

From the wild antics of the "mental case" to the whimpering shivers of the nervous Mrs. Whipple, the players made the most of opportunities for effective interpretation. Miss Lucile Rivers Henderson was a particularly terrifying "Tessie Mitford," and H. O. Rupnow suffered a very convincing attack of delirium tremens as the thirsty Mr. Butternip. Mrs. Florence Hawkins Inge, the professional invalid and mother of the child wonder, shook the rafters with her lamentations and the flor with her hobble. Jennie Louise Henderson, the "human Niagara" in antiquated garments, added just the fragile touch needed and acted as the perfect foil to Buddy Grady, ball player, as interpreted by Baldwin Montgomery.

Paul Barnett made a distinguished and effectively suave speculator in the character of Major Kellicott, until he was transformed into the vendictive foster parents of Mary Sunshine herself as charmingly played by Miss Mabel Edmonds Hines.

Romantic Climax

Romance found its perfect embodiment in the charms of Sylvia Deane, played by Miss Ellen Beauchamp Totten, whose wedding to Jim Anthony, enacted by Walden (Bob) Spencer brought the drama to a brilliant climax.

Misses Mora Katherine Douglass, Clarice Pitman and Geraldine Jackson were charming nurses. The final wedding scene was made complete by the appearance of little Misses Dixie Potter Shenault, Eloise Curtis, Cornia Conner, Roberta Fisher and tiny Paul L. Putty Jr. and Rex Curtis in the bridal party.

Secretary of State Grants Charter To Wichita Zoological Society

Charter of incorporation was granted to the Wichita Falls Zoological society Friday by the secretary of state, according to Associated Press dispatches from Austin.

J. T. Harrell, Lester Jones and Den D. Donnell were named as incorporators.

The society was organized about three months ago, Dr. R. H. Graham being elected president and Ira D. Brown, secretary. Besides the three men named as incorporators, about 12 other well known business and professional men of this city were named as directors.

The purposes of the organization are the perpetuation and continued development of the municipal zoo, the fostering of more interest locally in natural history, and to aid in the establishment of similar exhibits of wild life in other cities of the Southwest.

"Bad Man" From Oklahoma Held Here

Talk Was Big, but Cop Was Bigger

One swaggering young man from across the Oklahoma line or thereabouts blew into town Friday night and, being "some tough hombre" with his big sombrero and high heel cowboy boots, decided to let it be known about these parts just how bad he was.

So the self styled "tough hombre" chose to strut around a local theater with his big white hat placed jauntily on one side of his head and his chest swelled out, declaring that Elmer Thornton, city plain clothes officer, was so and so and a lot of things he shouldn't be, and that furthermore if that particular officer ever deigned to cross the state line he could just consider himself a dead man.

Now Officer Thornton, not liking particularly to be threatened and called harsh names, strolled by the theater where the "tough hombre" was telling the boys just how he would fix the officer up. The young fellow gaped a little at seeing the six foot, four inch officer towering above even his high white hat, and lost little time in accepting Officer Thornton's invitation to "come along and think it over in a cell."

So Mr. Thornton offered the visitor the hospitality of the "cooler" in the city jail and the self styled "tough hombre" pulled off his high heel boots and his big sombrero for a nap in the municipal hotel.

GRAIN MEN JAB AT FARM RELIEF

Texas Dealers Plan Attack On Senate Bill

FORT WORTH, May 17. (AP)—Texas grain dealers in thirty-second annual convention here today, took jabs at the farm relief program before congress, branding it a step which might throw hundreds of grain men out of business, create a new middle class in their stead and work no ultimate good to the farmer.

Dismissing the debenture feature of the senate bill as of little consequence the grain dealers concentrated their attack on creation of such a powerful board as is proposed and the methods provided for its working.

Charles Quinn, Toledo, secretary of the grain dealers' national association, outlined the proposed legislation, pointing to features of it which the national organization considers "laughable, absurd or dangerous."

At conclusion of his talk, numerous dealers in the meeting spoke to it, condemning the measures proposed without exception.

ACHED ACROSS BACK AND SIDES

Painful Effects of Constipation Relieved by Thedford's Black-Draught.

Louisville, Ky.—In telling how she was benefited by taking Thedford's Black-Draught, Mrs. J. C. Dickerson, of 536 North Seventeenth street, this city, says that until about seven years ago she had been a sufferer from constipation.

"This usually brought on a dull, stupid headache," explains Mrs. Dickerson. "I ached all across my back and sides. I felt tired, even when I hadn't done any work.

"A friend of mine came to see me one day when I had the headache so badly, and told me to take some Black-Draught, which I have. It relieved me so much, I have never found anything that gave me so much relief.

"Now I take Black-Draught whenever I feel the least bad, and notice that I do not have the headache."

Thousands of others have written to tell how many disagreeable symptoms, due to constipation, have disappeared after they had taken Thedford's Black-Draught.

In successful use nearly 100 years. Costs only 1 cent a dose.

WILTSE OR SMITH TO OPPOSE INDIANS TODAY IN SERIES FINAL

MOUDER HURLS FOR SANTONE

Houston Buffs Open 3-Day Stand Tomorrow

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Good morning. May rains bring doubleheader games. Which is punk poetry. But the sentiment is well expressed. If you get what I mean. Anyhow, yesterday's second Spudder-Indian game was rained out. To be explicit, it was washed out. A veritable deluge, which also included hail, came up an hour or so before starting time and when 4 o'clock came the field was a quagmire, as they say at the club.

The Wichita Falls and San Antonio clubs will wind up their series today. Harold Wiltse is the likely pitching choice of Jim Galloway, although the skipper indicated that Cy Smith might work.

Boss Pat Newnam of the Tribe probably will start Dick Mouder, a new acquisition from the Pacific Coast league. Indeed, Mouder only recently joined the Indians and has yet to make his debut with the San Antonio club. Mouder is a righthander and Newnam expects him to round out a winning pitching staff.

Competent Hurlers

Andy Messenger, whose turn it is to work today, Glaser and Carson have been hurling superb ball for the Tribe and if Mouder is all that Pat believes he will be, there will be four chuckers mighty hard to beat.

The day's respite, which set yesterday's game back to be played on the next jaunt of the Indians here in June, was not unwelcome to the Spudders, even though they have won three straight. It gives Galloway's one ball game to play later when the full Spudder strength should be presented, providing the darn jinx that has beset the Wichita Falls club with injuries can be shaken. Turgeon and Stapleton can't play for a few days yet, and though the club is going good now, those star infielders and more than .300 hitters will be of great aid when they get back into the lineup.

The Spudders as now constituted are satisfactory to Owner Gardner and Manager Galloway, that is, of course, when all the fellows are able to play.

Tribe Has New Fielder

Manager Newnam is also very well pleased with his Indians. He believes that his two recent additions to his roster, Mouder and Outfielder Leo Casey, will give the Tribe just the strength they need. Casey was purchased from the Eastern league and is to join the Indians tomorrow at Dallas. He is a righthand hitter.

The Houston Buffaloes invade Spudderville tomorrow for a three-game stand, and the w. k. fur will fly again when these old rivals and flag contenders get together.

Glenna Defeated In British Golf

Joyce Wethered Is Victor In Finals, 3 and 1

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, May 17 (US)—Glenna Collett, vivacious American national women's champion, was forced to bow to the superior and consistent golfing of Joyce Wethered, former British women's ruler, today, when the British miss turned in a 3 up and 1 to play victory to win the British women's open tournament.

Colonel Skene, who presented the championship trophy to Miss Wethered in the St. Andrews clubhouse after the match, was enthusiastic over the game battle put up by the American girl.

"Miss Collett's fighting pluck carried her along," he said. "The game today was one of the greatest and finest fought struggles I have ever seen at St. Andrews."

Glenna just couldn't stand prosperity, and went to pieces after having a lead of 5 up on the first nine of the morning 18, which was cut down to a 2-hole lead when the gallery and the players laid off for luncheon.

No. 3—Lou Gehrig

When Ruth has seen a few more years
Columbia Lou will get the cheers,
A Crown Prince turned into a king,
Where distant echoes answer Bing!

In fact, if Babe should slip at all
In laying ash against the ball,
Columbia Lou upon his own
Is primed and ready for the throne.

In days of old, to tell the truth,
They always slipped a pass to Ruth,
Until Lou helped along the fun
And turned the pass into a run.

When Lou will be the home run star,
No longer Prince, but Czar of Clout,
As disappearing balls fade out.

In fact, Chicago feels fairly certain that her Big Four will gets its chance to prove the argument in the next world series.

Philadelphia is ready to dispute this part of the debate. A long, lean citizen by the name of Connie Mack will make no such concessions, and in this stand he has the support of his entire community.

If the Yankees fail it will not be through their Big Four, but upon their lack of pitching. They have no such pitching for a pennant race as the Athletics can command, and they will have no such pitching for the world series as the Cubs can call on, if both happen to reach that goal.

No team in baseball history ever had such a devastating pair as Ruth and Gehrig. The matter of the Big Four from any one team is another argument.

The Might-Have-Been

Dear Sir: Alexander Cant, a Carnoustie man, who competed in every British amateur from 1895 to 1905, and father of Bob Cant, who gave Bob Harris such a battle in the 1926 amateur at Muirfield, claims that Dave Bell was the greatest golfer ever to come from the famous Scotch incubator of stars.

"There was a player," said the old veteran, "killed in New Orleans when not more than 23. He was the greatest that ever came out of Carnoustie—and a putter the like of whom never lived before or since."

Who objects to that declaration?
—F. J. P.

Old and New Baseball

Dear Sir: An oldtimer was talking. "They do not play baseball with the spirit they did 15 years ago. On our team not a single man has gone from first to third on a single in more than three weeks. That used to be a familiar sight, and it was the means of scoring many runs."

Neither do they steal bases as in the days of Milan, Cobb, Bescher and Max Carey. Few pitchers are able to go every fourth day throughout the season without needing a lot of assistance. Nor do you often see a shortstop make a play at third, which was a favorite of some oldtime stars. All attention now is devoted to batting.

Young pitchers are not taught to mask their deliveries carefully; they are careless in watching runners on the bases, and when has the double-queeze play been successfully worked?

Baseball is drawing greater crowds than ever before. But there is merit to the oldtimer's claim that the game is not what it once was. "We cannot get the players, although we have plenty of money to spend," declared one club owner recently. —OVERLAND RED.

The Coming New Golf Ball

It will be something like a year and a half before the proposed new larger and lighter golf ball comes into being, but the change is still being discussed by both duffers and stars.

The duffers are beginning to grumble over the proposed loss of distance, but this will not be marked, and it should be overcome by their ability to get the new ball up much quicker with a longer range club.

Few from the ranks of the average golfer today can get the present ball into the air from a close lie with brassie, spoon or the longer irons. Anything even resembling first-class brassie play is almost entirely absent among the rank and file of golfers, unless the ball happens to sit well on top of matted turf.

The new ball isn't so much larger, but it looks to be much larger than it actually is, and its lighter weight is more easily got into the air. It is at least the belief of the United States Golf association that it will make the game of golf more pleasant and bring about a greater variety of strokes that can be played with somewhat less tension than the game carries today.

Nick The Greek in Looeyville, Ready to Plunge on the Derby

He Warms Up Playing the Faro Bank, Having Quit the Less Dignified Pastime of Shooting Craps

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

LOUISVILLE, May 17.—Looeyville may look for the smart money to show Saturday. And have I got the Derby winner? Buh—boys, you'd be astoundulated!

They tell me the Greek is already in Kentucky, or rather in territory contagious thereto. He is playing the bank at Jeffersonville, across the river from Looeyville.

I don't mean Joe, the Greek, or Gus, the Greek, or Tony, the Greek, I mean Nick. All other Greeks are really infringements. I cite the presence of the Greek within striking distance of Looeyville, and my own arrival, as sure harbingers of Derby day. The singin' kid ought to be on the ground, too, and that makes everything about 6 to 5, against.

I hope the Greek is going better in Jeffersonville than the last time I saw him, which was in Miami. He couldn't seem to cash a bet down there. I would like to have 10 per cent of all the cocoanuts the Greek has lost since the hard winter of '26 when he hit New York with a roll that a steeplechaser couldn't hurdle, and lost about $1,650,000 from the high point of his play.

Bank the Rage Now

The Greek was shooting craps in those days. Of late he has become a faro bank player. It is an improvement socially, but it isn't as fast. However, it is the fashion just now, and the Greek would rather be dead than out of fashion.

It is a revival, of course. Faro, or just "the bank," as they say professionally, is an ancient pastime. It goes 'way, 'way back yonder. Folks have always played the bank. But for a long spell it was as passe as pug dogs. It was played mainly by old blokes in high wing collars, such as are worn by Louie Mann, and Foxhall Keene.

But of late everybody is playing the bank again. I mean everybody that goes in for such divertissements at all. It went big in Miami, and the other southern resorts last winter, where the wheel, the bird cage, and the lowly crap table usually draw most of the play.

Possibly this was due to presence of so many professionals. They like to play the bank because they get more of an even bust at it than at the other pastimes. The bank is almost a dead even proposition.

I know scores of brows who have systems that are sure things to beat the bank if the inventors only had enough money to play.

As evidence of the return to fashion of the bank, you see young coves serving as dealers. I always had an idea that it was against the law for any man under 50, and minus a short, stubby gray moustache, to deal the bank. At least I never saw any other kind until recently.

Champion Bank Dealer

There was a young fellow at Miami working in one of the down town temples of chance, as we speak of them on the curb, who was the fastest and smoothest bank dealer I ever saw. You know there is an art in dealing the bank, acquired only after years of experience.

This young guy must have been a natural born bank dealer. She was small, and thinnish, with reddish hair, and his name was Johnny something. Old timers around the gambling joint conceded that he was as good as they ever climbed, and when an old timer fails to think up a guy who was better, you know Johnny must have been good.

A committee of which Mr. Wilson Mizner was chairman, and of which I was a member, once conducted a searching inquiry into the question of what becomes of old bank dealers, because it is a well known fact that no one ever heard of an old bank dealer dying.

I contended that they wind up at Tia Juana, but Mr. Mizner thought there must be a secret refuge for them somewhere. We finally gave up the inquiry in despair, leaving a standing offer of $500 cash reward for proof of the death of any old bank dealer for the past two centuries. The reward has never yet been claimed.

Hopeless for Damon

As a youth back in my old home out West, I always thought dealing the bank offered a great career, but I was under the impression that it was a hopeless ambition for me because I couldn't raise a short gray moustache with any promptness. I was really surprised when I saw young Johnny what's-this dealing in Miami, without a mouser.

Some distinguished citizens have gone in for playing the bank. It is less exhausting than golf. Old Bet-a-Million John W. Gates, the steel king, dead these many years, was a champion bank player of his time. He had to have a high limit, and he would play 'til the cows came home.

George Tex Rickard would rather play the bank than eat. He also loved to display his proficiency as a dealer. At a little social gathering of millionaires out in Chicago when Tex was arranging for the Dempsey-Tunney fight, the folks induced Tex to deal a little bank for them to while away the time. He clipped 'em for $40,000, and he got more of a bang out of it than anything that had happened to him in quite a spell.

I don't know how it is with these young upstarts of the day, but an old time dealer wasn't considered a union man unless he took the wage he received for dealing the bank all night to a neighboring deadfall, and lost it playing the bank. Hence we have the old adage "Them as deal will play."

THIS IS QUITE a race we are having in the old Texas league. Quite a race indeed. More than a month of play has elapsed in the 1929 campaign, and every manager's club still is in the contention. Some teams are in more favorable spots than others, of course, but except possibly for Beaumont and Fort Worth they all have more or less chance to cop the flag, or at least to wind up in the first division.

Waco's surprising Cubs still refuse to crack, though the leaders encountered some adversity recently that prevented them from making a runaway race of it. Houston threatened the Cubs until a week ago but the Buffs slumped in recent days. The champions, however, loom as the ball club to beat out. Houston looks as good as any of them now and it isn't unlikely that the Cardinals will help them at any time.

WICHITA FALLS checked a losing streak that had extended to five straight and walloped the league leaders two in a row. I still accord the Spudders an even chance for a one-two finish with not less than third their ultimate destination. Pitching has improved recently and when the right side pair of the infield get back, Stapleton and Turgeon, and Benton returns to short, they're going to be a mighty hard bunch to stop. As indeed they are now.

The Spudders are the hardest hitters in the league. Given continued steady pitching and if they can shake the jinx and put their full strength on the field, something that hasn't been possible since the championship season got under way, the Galloways will gallop through with lots of ball games.

SHREVEPORT strengthened by the acquisition of Elton Langford, an outfielder with Cleveland last year, and recently in the Pacific Coast league. The Sports continue to make a most courageous and effective fight.

Dallas has been the flop of the league. The Steers are to be held as dangerous, however, with a veteran team that should bat out lots of victories. The Steer pitching, which should be the best in the league, has been the main cause of the downfall of that club.

SAN ANTONIO made an inspired upward climb soon after Pat Newnam became manager and the Indians are hustling for every point. They probably won't win the pennant but they will cause lots of trouble to clubs with flag aspirations.

Fort Worth has strengthened a bit within the past several days but still lacks a lot of being a first division club. Beaumont has been a distinct disappointment and the Exporters seemed doomed to occupy their perennial submerged place in the standing unless a speedy change for the better is made.

JACK DEMPSEY TO FIGHT AGAIN

At Least, Universal Service So Asserts

NEW YORK, May 17. (US)—Now comes the real inside story of the famous fracas between Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight champion, and Joe Benjamin, ex-lightweight boxer, and Dempsey's best man when Jack married Estelle Taylor.

Dempsey was tes ting his punch. Although Benjamin disdainfully declared that Dempsey had to hit him twice to put him down, the man mauler must have been satisfied with the result. He has since decided he will return to the ring.

Within 10 days, possibly before the end of this week, Dempsey will issue a formal announcement of his comeback, Universal Service was informed tonight. The event will take place at an open-air stadium to be built at Long Island City, which will have a seating capacity of 125,000. The bout will take place in September.

Opponents Signed

Although no infimation of his plans have leaked out, the project is so far advanced that two prospective opponents have been signed. Either Max Schmeling, his German double, or George Godfrey, the current black menace, will have the corner opposite the old man mauler.

Two contracts on Schmeling have been signed by Arthur Bulow, one of which provides that Schmeling is to be paid 26 per cent in the event he fights anyone else but Dempsey, and the other called for 20 per cent if Dempsey is named as his opponent.

In the event Schmeling is defeated by Paulino Uzcudun in the milk fund show on June 27 at the Yankee stadium, Godfrey will be chosen as Dempsey's opponent. Jim Dougherty, manager of the negro, also has signed a contract. Dougherty and Dempsey are now together in Montreal inspecting a site for a July bout in which Godfrey will appear.

Must Quit Promotion

In order to re-enter the ring Dempsey will be required to sever his connection with Humbert Fugazy and Ed ("King") Cole, with whom he has been associated in the promotion of boxing matches. Under the rules of the state athletic commission, boxers are not allowed to be financially interested in the promotion of their match.

Dempsey will be guaranteed at least $500,000 for his September appearance, and the percentage privilege under which he will work will give him a chance to double that amount if Schmeling is his opponent. The largest purse ever paid to a boxer was $991,000 which Gene Tunney received for defeating Dempsey at Chicago.

Schmeling is red hot now. He will be blazing if he passes the Spaniard.

RECORD FIELD IN THE DERBY

26 Entries Named for 55th Running Classic Today

By ALAN J. GOULD

LOUISVILLE, May 17. (AP)—A record field of 26 3-year-olds, pick of the East and West, North and South, was named today to start in the Kentucky derby, to be run tomorrow for the fifty-fifth time since Aristides, the "Little Red Horse" first romped home a winner in 1875.

The field outnumbers by four the previous record, made last year when Reigh Count, flying the colors of Mrs. John D. Hertz, proved the best of an array of 22 thoroughbreds in the race through one mile and a quarter of mud.

Experts doubt that all those named actually will answer the bugle call to the post, somewhere around 5 p. m., central standard time, tomorrow.

Fully 75,000 spectators, represent the chivalry and beauty, the wealth and fashion of the turf world, as well as official life and the racing citizenry-at-large, will throng Churchill Downs to get at least a fleeting glimpse of the big race for 3-year-old equine glory, prestige and gold. On the basis of 26 starters, the financial harvest for the winner will amount to approximately $56,000 of the total stakes of $66,000.

Out of all the chatter emerges the conviction that Blue Larkspur, star of the famous E. R. Bradley stable, is the horse to beat: furthermore, that if any horse in the big field is to upset Kentucky's own favorite, it will be Clyde van Dusen, gallant little Man O' War gelding, owned by H. P. Gardner of Amsterdam, N. Y.

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

Constructive Thinking and Talking

The one who is earnestly seeking health cannot afford to fall into the habit of destructive thinking. It is so easy to be sarcastic and critical about every person or topic under discussion, and this temptation must be resisted. If you are critical of others they will, in turn, think derogatively of you, but if you speak kindly of them, they will speak kindly of you. A scowl brings forth a scowl from others but, fortunately, a good-natured smile always creates a feeling of good-fellowship.

Recognizing and praising good qualities encourages their development. There is no one but who has some good qualities that could be developed with the proper encouragement. Find fault with no one, condemn no one, and antagonize no one. This may not come naturally at first, but it can soon be established as a good habit. It will prove an interesting and helpful game. You will be pleased to find your friends becoming more attached to you, while new acquaintances whom you meet will be unconsciously impressed with your cheerful comment. Make your slogan: "A kind thought and a kind word for everyone and everything."

Cheerfulness brings friends. Ella Wheeler Wilcox said, "Smile, and the world smiles with you; weep, and you weep alone." There is no way to waste nerve energy more rapidly than through the irritation that can come from a critical attitude toward others. If we appoint ourselves judges to condemn the actions of others, we must suffer the consequences with enervation and decreasing of our vital forces. Disease thrives on discord, while health is the natural outgrowth of a life based on kindness and living in harmony with nature's laws.

Every night before retiring, take a mental inventory and see what you have accomplished that day. Each day try to improve a little and you will be welcomed everywhere, and be hourly cheered by your achievements in spreading sunshine. You will soon be delighted to discover that your vitality is increasing and you are not so tired at night, but have more strength after your daily work.

Often, nervous indigestion, sleeplessness, restlessness, and despondency disappear when one cultivates the gentle art of being kind.

It is a good plan to think of happiness as a mental necessity just as food is a physical necessity. If you do this, you will soon learn that being kind to others creates the most lasting happiness. In your conversation, it is a good plan not to be sarcastic nor witty at the expense of someone else, but try to say something which will leave a kindly thought afterwards. If you sow kindly thoughts, sweet remembrances will grow from them and you will find life is much more interesting and pleasant as you cultivate the habit of constructive thinking and talking.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Tubercular Bowels

Question: K. M. M. asks: "Will you please explain the symptoms of tubercular bowels?"

Answer: One of the common symptoms of tubercular bowels is dysentary or frequent movement of the bowels. There is also a temperature, running up higher in the afternoon, much as in tuberculosis of the lungs. I would not advise you to try to diagnose your own case, as sometimes colitis is very similar to tuberculosis of the bowels and you may become unduly frightened or worried.

Baked Potatoes

Question—B. E. A. asks: "Will you please inform me why a baked potato contains less calories than a potato cooked otherwise?"

Answer—There is very little difference in the caloric value of a baked potato and one cooked otherwise. The baking does destroy some of the starch, changing it into dextrin, which makes a lower starch content, but has little effect upon the caloric value.

Facial Rejuvenation

Question—Marie asks: "Do you approve of facial rejuvenation without surgery, same consisting of violet ray and electric treatment and lotions? Would you consider this treatment permanent or would they have to be continued? The skin under the eyes is loose and lines are forming."

Answer—There are many kinds of facial treatments which are beneficial in producing a better tone of the skin and muscles of the face. No treatment of this kind can have a permanent effect, but must be continued off and on through life, if it is ever necessary to start it.

DEMANDS FOR GASOLINE GAIN

Standard of Indiana Raises Spot Prices

Special to The Record News

TULSA, Okla., May 17.—Oklahoma refiners generally quoted 7⅞ cents a gallon spot for U. S. motor gasoline Friday, and news of Standard of Indiana advance for Saturday has caused Sinclair Refining company to announce its Group 3 spot price Monday will be 8¼ cents a gallon.

Demand is increasing as good weather returns and vacation season approaches. Natural gasolines, however, are very soft. Natural gasoline association of America meeting in Tulsa next week may pep up that motor fuel mart.

All Seminole field wells are now doing what they can without any restraint. Two firms, Barnsdall Oil company and Shell Petroleum corporation, were confused when the Seminole lid was to be lifted and didn't open their wells up wide until yesterday. The field made 389,053 barrels Friday against 379,577 barrels Thursday.

Deep Oklahoma Test Abandoned

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., May 17.—After a prolonged fishing job, the Cromwell-Franklin Oil company has decided to plug and abandon its deep test well, north of Oklahoma iCty, at No. 1 Thompson, in the southwest corner of the northeast of the northeast of 15-12n-SW, in Oklahoma county. Total depth is 7178 feet.

While a failure, the deep well has revealed a lot of information to the geology of the area. Only one other well has drilled deeper than it in Oklahoma.

Evidence of this thought is the starting of the Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas company and Ramsey Petroleum corporation's No. 1 Trosper, in the northeast corner of the northwest of 19-12-1w, about 10 miles due east.

In the Capital Hill area, south of Oklahoma City, the operators are still drilling ahead. A number are testing the Tonkawa and Layton sands.

Sole well of the area, Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company and Foster Petroleum corporation's No. 1 Fee, in the center of the southeast of the southeast of 24-11-3w, made 2,829 barrels of oil and 698 barrels of water Thursday morning.

FRUIT CROP OUTLOOK GOOD

Season so Far One of Most Favorable

One of the best fruit crops in the history of Wichita county should be harvested this year, unless hampered by hail or unusually violent wind storms during the next 90 days, according to present indications as reported by agricultural leaders here. Friday's hail, while damaging to fruit, left many trees heavily loaded.

The spring weather, with the recent adequate rains, has been very favorable to production of both quality and quantity in the different varieties of fruit grown in this county, it was stated. Having been spared untimely cold snaps, trees and vines were said to be heavily fruited.

Fruit yield in Wichita county is confined principally to peaches, plums, dewberries, and grapes, it was stated. The two most popular varieties of peaches have been early Wheelers and Alberta, although successful growth of other kinds has been demonstrated. The harvest of the peach crop here usually begins early in June, and continues through August. It was estimated that there are approximately 15 peach orchards in the county which contain from 200 to 700 trees each, with the fruit growing industry gaining impetus annually.

Grape culture also is increasing, with many vineyards averaging two or three acres each already developed and producing, it was said. Scores of small orchards, devoted to plums and peaches, have been developed for domestic use. Peaches, plums and blackberries were reported as comprising the leaders in contribution to the local market.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, May 17. (AP)—More favorable weather reports and prospects for warmer temperatures in the south seemed chiefly responsible for declines from a slight opening advance in cotton today. July sold off from 18.77 to 18.55, or 14 points below yesterday's closing, under liquidation or reselling, but trades interests were buyers on the declines and part of the loss was recovered. July closed at 18.65 or 10 points up from the lowest, with the general market closing steady at net losses of 4 to 8 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 6 points to a decline of 1 point, generally 3 to 6 points higher in response to the relatively steady showing of Liverpool and bullish private crop advices from the southwest. May sold up to 19.56 and December to 18.86 on this early demand, but buying was in comparatively small volume and prices soon turned easier under realizing.

The market was rather unsettled during the middle of the afternoon. May declined to 19.33 and December to 18.65, making net losses of about 14 to 17 points. Crop advices from Texas, mentioned as a factor at the opening, reported beneficial rains in Northwest Texas but said North and East Texas and much of Central Texas had received torrential rain during the week which had caused considerable injury. Reports concerning the unfavorable effects of recent weather conditions, however, seemed to be offset by the prospects for warmer weather and less rainfall in the belt.

The government report giving final revised figures on last year's acreage and yield showed slight upward revisions.

Exports today, 16,356, making 7,533,363 so far this season. Port receipts, 7,731. U. S. port stocks, 1,191,861.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 17. (AP)—The cotton market was rather two-sided today and prices developed no definite trend. After an early advance the market eased off only to rally again on demand stimulated by a bullishly construed weevil report and acreage estimate. July contracts after easing off from 18.80 to 18.60, rallied and closed at 18.71, or one point net lower. The general market closed steady at a net decline of one to four points.

Liverpool cables were relatively steady and the market here opened 4 to 6 points up in response.

Rumored Split of Reserve Bank Heads Causes Irregularity in Stocks

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, May 17. (US)—Rumors that the directors of the reserve banks of Chicago and New York were at odds with the governors at Washington as to rate policy influenced irregularity toward the close of the stock market today. Favorable showing in the reserve statements and maintenance of the local rediscount rate at five per cent influenced a better demand throughout the early hours that caused advances through the list. News of the discord in the reserve official ranks leaked out in the afternoon, however, and halted the recovery. General Electric held over 8 points of its gain, Columbia Graphaphone gained over 3, Stromberg Carburetor 6, and Burroughs Adding Machine over 16 points.

American Commercial Alcohol jumped 4 points on report of special dividend action being planned for next week. Steel and other standard industrials gained fractionally on the average. Pan American led a strong oil group with over 2 points gain. Oils and coppers remained quiet.

Call money dropped from a renewal of 8 to 6 per cent with loans on the outside at 5½ per cent. The turnover fell off to near the 3,000,000 share level.

Bankers heard that directors of the local reserve bank wanted to advance the rediscount rate at Thursday's meeting but that Washington would not permit it. All advices from the capital indicate that the reserve authorities and other powers there are satisfied with the stock market and credit conditions. That does not mean that the rate will not be raised, however. The bankers who said the New York reserve bank made application to the board to raise the rate are of the opinion that the board may give the permission next week.

A similar situation apparently exists at Chicago. The difference of opinion is likely to result in the revelation of the real reason for much of the mysterious activities of the reserve authorities. The situation has reached the stage where the entire business world is interested as the absurd fluctuations of money rates has caused nervousness that threatens every field of industry.

Good buying was reported in St. Joe Lead in the afternoon coincident with further talk of increasing earnings and prospects for further increase during the last half of the year. Tobacco shares were quietly taken again as additional forecasts were made that prices of cigarets would be advanced in the near future. Underwood Elliott's move to Newmice territory was reflection of the investment status now given the stock. As stated heretofore Underwood has climbed to a premier position in its field along with business machines and ultimately the two should go together. Borg Warner directors, it was rumored, would split up the stock next week.

Savage was in demand again. Those familiar with its affairs claim that earnings of both the arms and machines departments are showing a progressive monthly gain. An important announcement is looked for soon which is thought to have to do with another product that is expected to have similar success to that experienced with the health motor.

Shattuck registered a new high mark on the demand influenced by reports of the huge expansion program planned by the management which provides for the opening of 50 new stores.

Skelly is being absorbed by those who should be familiar with its affairs. They claim that earnings in the second quarter will show a gain of 300 per cent as compared with the same period last year.

The electric and utility group again offered most attraction. General Electric, of course, was the outstanding leader.

North American was well regarded. For a long time it was ranked among the best thought of utility holding companies and there is expectation it will add to its holdings before long. The latest to attract the favor of followers of this group was associated electrial industrials. Buying today was for the account of those who have shown most knowledge of important developments in the utility and power fields.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 17. (AP)—Wheat, corn and rye all plunged downward today to new record low prices this season, with wheat outdoing any depth reached in years. The day's maximum break in wheat values was 2⅞c a bushel. One bearish factor was word that on top of present immense supplies of wheat, Canada's 1929 wheat acreage was in excess of last year's big total.

Wheat closed heavy at the day's lowest level, 2½@2⅝c to 2⅞c under yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1⅝ to 2¼c down, ats ½ to 1c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 12c.

Corn traders were stampeded by the action of wheat, they ignored prospects of less favorable weather, notably a forecast of showers and cooler temperatures, with frost looked for tonight in parts of the West. Oats and rye were also pulled down by wheat weakness.

Provisions ended to decline on account of liquidating sales in the lard market.

WEATHER NEWS RULES COTTON

West Texas Rains Influence Week's Trading

NEW YORK, May 17. (AP)—The cotton market has been comparatively quiet during the week-end prices fluctuated within a range of 25 to 35 points. Unfavorable weather news caused sufficient uncertainty to check aggressive selling and promote some covering but were not bad enough to stimulate general buying.

In a general way the declines have brought in coverings, trade buying and a moderate speculative demand, but the advances have met realizing or reselling influenced by a belief that a few days of good weather would revive April optimism with reference to the new crop shortage.

Benefical rains have been reported in West Texas but elsewhere in the western belt and in most sections of the central belt precipitation has been excessive and temperatures have been unseasonably low at times.

It is also reported that drenching rains have caused considerable injury to the crop in some northern, eastern and central sections of Texas and an impression has been created that more cotton will have to be replanted than previously expected.

Reports from the south have indicated a continued firm spot situation with a growing scarcity of offerings of cotton above ⅞-inch staple and May has maintained a premium of about 80 points over July in the local market.

BARDSTREET'S REVIEW

NEW YORK, May 17. (AP)—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: Trade and industry have continued to run above a year ago, notwithstanding continuance of unsettled, chiefly wet and cool, weather in wide areas, where spring crop work has been retarded further. An especially intresting feature in view of the long period of partial operations in coal mining is the report that the industrial stocks of bituminous coal are the smallest for three years.

Weekly bank clearings $12,761,784,000, a decrease of 3.4 per cent from last year.

WHEN THE CHILDREN TALK TO YOU ABOUT THE OLD HOME.....

PERHAPS..... THEY KNOW BEST

Yes, it's easy to say that the old home was good enough for you, so it should be for them. It's easy to shrug your shoulders and dismiss their suggestions that perhaps you have all out-grown the old home.

Think it over. Others of your friends have moved to more modern homes, more convenient locations. Perhaps they wonder, too.

Your daughter expresses only her modern, clean womanhood when she asks for a living room, colorfully and tastefully decorated, with a fireplace, cozy furniture, bright, attractive draperies — a place where she will be proud to entertain her friends.

When your son talks to you on the same subject it's the new generation speaking. He deserves attention.

They may be right. Think carefully, yes it may be true!

Best of all, you can sell the "old home" with a well described classified ad. Let us assist to prepare it. Then buy the new home through the same Ads. READ "Homes for Sale" Classification in Daily Times-Record News Classified Section.

Call 4391. Ask for an Ad-Taker. Assistance will be gladly given—and to you it MEANS the CEMENTING OF HOME TIES AND THE DRAWING CLOSER OF YOUR HOME CIRCLE.

CAGLE CASES SET MONDAY

Five Indictments Called Despite Wounds

Five cases, each charging T. O. Cagle with the burglary of a private residence at night, will be called at 9 o'clock Monday morning when the criminal docket in the 89th district court is opened, Sam Spence, district attorney, announced Wednesday. Flesh wounds suffered by Cagle in an attempted jail break here Thursday morning will not be allowed to interfere with the schedule of the settings made public several weeks ago, the attorney declared. The state will announce ready in all of the cases in which Cagle is separately indicted, he said.

Both Cagle and Collie Bruner, who received minor wounds when W. W. Allen, jailer, used his pistol to stop the attempted break, were back in the Wichita county jail Friday. They were taken to the Wichita General hospital for first aid after the shooting. Raymond Sellers, a third prisoner who joined in the attack upon the jailer, was shot through the heart and instantly killed.

Cagle was arrested by members of the sheriff's department early in April after an investigation of a widespread epidemic of burglaries in private homes in Wichita Falls. Goods valued at around $10,000 were recovered at the time. Mae Hart, arrested on the same day, is also to be tried during the coming week on charges of receiving and concealing stolen property. C. A. Wright, the third defendant held after the investigation, will face a third offense trial on June 10.

The criminal docket for the week to come includes a third trial of Fred Hostler, accused of robbery in connection with the hold up of the Spoonts Drug store on last Christmas night. Hostler, whose first trial resulted in a hung jury, and who was acquitted on the second, will be tried again for the specific offense of robbing the soda fountain operator of the store.

R. B. Nichols, indicted with Hostler, whose former trials have ended with hung juries, will also be called again.

Other setting for the week include: Jimmie Walker, theft over $50; Douglas Harvill, theft over $50; Mae Hart, receiving and concealing stolen property over $50; Fred Hostler, robbery with firearms; R. B. Nichols, robbery with firearms; Henry Marshall, disposing of mortgaged property; E. P. Williams, burglary; Sam Williams, burglary; Walter Pointer, assault to murder; J. T. Reynolds, possession and transportation of whisky; Lloyd Hooker, possession and transportation of whisky; Neal Gaynor, receiving and concealing stolen proerty over $50; Tom Shook, et al, bond forfeiture.

Officials Inspect Sites Of Railroad Passes

George D. Fairtrace, city manager, and Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce, made a preliminary inspection Friday morning of possible sites for the passes across the Fort Worth and Denver and M.-K.-T. lines to connect North Scott avenue with the Iowa Park and Burkburnett highways.

The two officials stated that under passes probably would be required to make a desirable connection, but that one over pass might be used. Definite plans must await completion of an accurate survey of the locations by F. M. Rugsley, city engineer, they said.

Directors of the chamber of commerce recently voted endorsement of the construction of such passes, and instructed officials of that organization to begin negotiations at once toward that end.

Auto Dealers to Form Salvage Company to Junk Worn Out Cars

Plans for the organization of a local salvage corporation for the purpose of eliminating worn out automobiles from the market will be completed at a meeting of the Wichita Falls Automotive Dealers' association next Monday night, May 20, at the Langford Motor company's sales rooms, it was announced Friday.

The decision to form such a corporation here was the outgrowth of a meeting held by the association at the Kemp hotel Thursday night, when J. W. Wright, industrial engineer now connected with the Wichita Motors company, addressed the dealers and used car managers present on the subject of used cars.

"After an automobile has given five years of service," Mr. Wright said, "it becomes a menace to traffic and public safety, as well as a liability to the automobile industry. The used car sold by the dealer to a wrecking company often comes back as a trade-in to the same dealer at a price higher than he received for it as junk. Cars five or more years old are worth about one cent a pound. According to registrations and statistics in Wichita county, about 250 cars should be broken up monthly and scrapped."

One local dealer stated that he had known junk cars to be resold to dealers in this territory three different times before they were finally broken up and salvaged. The dealers voted to subscribe $5,000 in stock for the formation of the salvage corporation. Dealers from Iowa Park, Electra, Burkburnett, and other nearby towns were present at the meeting Thursday night.

Mr. Wright, associated with R. R. Hoover, has been engaged in making a used-car survey for the dealers' association, it was said.

LONDON, May 17. (INS)—Copies of the famous Pierpont Morgan art collection, now in the New York museum, are being shown by an artists, A. S. G. Finney, at the Parker Art Gallery, London.

In the 200 miniatures exhibited there is evidence of Finney's ability to reproduce faithfully the brilliant drawing and color of the original.

DAMAGE SUIT ASKS $25,000

Switchman Sues Railroad For Injuries

Damages totaling $25,000 for an alleged 75 per cent injury to his eyesight are sought in a suit filed Friday by C. O. Griffiths against the Fort Worth and Denver railroad.

The injury was suffered Nov. 17, 1928, while Mr. Griffiths was attending to his duties as switchman, the petition declares. The explosion of a fire box on a car near which the switchman stood in the course of his duties resulted in the total loss of the sight in his left eye and led to fears for the use of the right, the allegations continue. Gases, fumes, smoke, heat and foreign material, expelled by the explosion, caused the injury, the plaintiff claims.

TEXAS FILM

'Birth of Texas' May Rival 'Birth of Nation' If Produced

AUSTIN, May 16. (AP)—"The Birth of Texas" may rival "The Birth of a Nation," as a historical moving picture offering. Plans are on foot looking toward consummation of a contract to film the story of Texas' birth. The battle of the Alamo, of Goliad, where Santa Anna massacred the Texans, and the conflict at San Jacinto, where Sam Houston's army was victorious, would contribute a background that would grasp the attention of the nation, promoters claim.

Jesse Jones of Houston and representatives of the regional chamber of commerce plan to confer with Gov. Dan Moody soon about the project.
