Health Officials Make Grisly Find At Mortuary

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Owners of a defunct midtown Kansas City mortuary "apparently just walked away," leaving 31 decaying bodies stacked in caskets and lying on tables for as long as a year, health authorities say.

"In the basement, there were caskets stacked three high," said Kansas City Health Director Dr. Richard Biery, who with other shocked authorities entered the abandoned Kansas City Mortuary Service to discover the grisly scene Monday.

Biery said he walked through the converted two-story frame house with Jackson County Medical Examiner Bonita Peterson and police and found it "very messy."

"The basement floor was slippery with juices, mostly embalming fluid. It smelled of embalming fluid," he said. "Most of the bodies were in shipping cases or closed coffins."

Biery said ashtrays, papers, boxes and records were strewn around the house, and it appeared the building had been broken into since it had been closed.

He said legal proceedings against the mortuary began last year when the Missouri Board of Embalmer and Funeral Directors sought legal authority to revoke the license of the home's owner.

"We had not been receiving death certificates of people we thought we should have," Biery said. Soon after the home closed, a judge gave the state board permission to revoke the man's license, he said.

State and local officials said no criminal charges would be filed against the home's owner.

"Our role is simply to get the records straight and the bodies taken care of," Biery said.

Several days ago, a judge gave authorities permission to enter the closed home, Biery said. The owner's wife let officials inside.

"Identification is almost going to have to be based on records there in the home and the owner's memory," Biery said. "Many were brought there from nursing homes, and they have wrist tags. Most of the caskets are labeled with nameplates."

The health director said it was not unusual that family members had not complained about the missing bodies in the year that the home has been closed, "given the clientele that he (Coldsnow) had."

"Apparently part of his business, and a maybe a significant part, were unidentified bodies, medical examiner's cases, and county supervisor (indigent) cases," Biery said.

Cheyenne Tornado Kills One

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Stunned by Cheyenne's first tornado in history, residents today resume sifting the rubble of more than 200 homes in affluent sections of the city.

The twister injured 37 persons, five of whom were hospitalized. A 14-month-old boy, David McKinnon, died instantly of head injuries when his family's mobile home was torn apart, authorities said.

"No one ever thought we would ever have a tornado in Cheyenne, Wyoming," Mayor Don Erickson said, "but we had one."

The twister bounced across Cheyenne about 3:40 p.m. Monday, departing the city about half an hour later and leaving what Erickson estimated to more than 200 damaged homes in its wake.

The mayor said the twister cut across a two-block wide area for 4 to 5 miles within the city limits. "It hit more than once," he said. "It might have hit half a dozen times.

As the twister came close, Norma McClellan urged her two teen-age children to get in the car and outrun it, but her son disagreed. The family took shelter in their basement, and when the sound ended, came upstairs to find their home destroyed.

Nearby, three children alone in their home took the same action.

"The Lord was good to us," said their mother, Diana Coles.

About a mile east of the McClelland and Coles homes, Joe Griego was searching through the rubble of his home. His wife was crawling across the rubble. "I've got to go get my diamond earrings," she said. "They're the only thing I have left."

Gov. Ed Herschler asked President

Somoza Resigns, Flies To Miami

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza, toppled by revolution, resigned early today and flew in his private jet to exile in Florida, ending 42 years of dictatorship by his family.

Thousands of Nicaraguans in 26 guerrilla-held cities danced in the streets all night, drinking wine and rum as church bells pealed.

Somoza and dozens who fled with him landed at a U.S. air base in Florida, then went by motorcade to his palatial estate, where Somoza told a news conference: "I am a realist and I hoped that the best thing for my people would be for me to resign ... I am very happy to be in the United States of America as a political exile."

Administration sources in Washington said a U.S. Navy amphibious assault ship carrying helicopters and 19 soldiers was off the east coast of Nicaragua — but beyond sight of land — in case there was need to evacuate Americans.

Members of the Nicaraguan Congress elected the president of their lower house, Francisco Urcuyo, to succeed Somoza, but Urcuyo, 54, was expected to serve only until the arrival from neighboring Costa Rica of the provisional junta named by the Sandinista guerrillas.

The Sandinistas, in a successful seven-week rebellion, fought Somoza's national guard to a standstill and toppled the onetime strongman in the largest but most thinly populated Central American state.

Somoza was still in the air en route to Florida when junta member Sergio Ramirez Mercado announced in Costa Rica that the new Nicaraguan government would ask the United States to extradite Somoza to stand trial for crimes against the Nicaraguan people, including corruption and human rights violations.

U.S. officials said Somoza landed at Homestead Air Force Base near Miami this morning. Defense Department spokesman Thomas Ross said an initial group of three planes brought in 70 Somoza aides and relatives. Administration sources said other planes were en route.

Base guards said the group left the air base by motorcade, escorted by the Florida Highway Patrol, and headed for Somoza's estate on Sunset Island. The motorcade brought with it crates of food, sacks of potatoes and cases of soft drinks, the guards said.

Nicaragua has more land area than Florida, but has a population of 2.5 million, little more than one-third that of Florida's 6.8 million. It has coasts on both the Atlantic and Pacific sides of Central America.

The Sandinistas began as a Marxist-Leninist movement and still have in their ranks pro-Cuban elements. But they also have split into three factions, promised free elections, appointed a cabinet representing a broad spectrum of opinion and indicated that U.S. business interests in Nicaragua will be allowed to continue operations.

An aide reported the 53-year-old ex-president took a helicopter from downtown Managua to the international airport early this morning, then boarded his plane for Homestead Air Force Base, which the U.S. State Department ordered sealed off Monday night.

Hundreds of people in the rebel-held town of Jinotepe, 35 miles south of Managua, took to the streets in celebration as news of the resignation spread.

The Carter administration had been urging Somoza to quit for weeks, but the State Department had no immediate comment on his resignation.

Four of the five rebel junta members were waiting in San Jose, the Costa Rican capital, for Somoza's departure in hopes that they could take over without a battle for Managua.

The foreign ministers of the Andean Pact nations — Colombia, Venezuela, Bolivia, Ecuador and Peru — arrived in San Jose Monday night to accompany them to Managua, and Costa Rican radio stations said they would fly up by chart-

Carter Asks For Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter appealed today for bipartisan congressional support for his energy proposals, and said he wants enactment of his proposed "windfall profits" tax before Congress begins its August recess.

Carter's comments were reported by Democratic and Republican congressional leaders who attended a White House breakfast meeting with the president.

House Democratic Whip John Brademas of Indiana said there appeared to be "significant bipartisan support" for the president's energy proposals. Senate Democratic Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia was quoted as telling Carter the mood of Congress and the country was for action.

But Brademas said some Republicans were less than enthusiastic about parts of the president's program, including the windfall profits tax and a proposed Energy Security Corporation to spur the search for new energy sources.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said he was unhappy that Carter had "left the private sector out too much" from his energy plans.

Brademas, however, predicted approval of oil taxes and a standby gasoline rationing plan before Congress recesses Aug. 4.

Assistant Senate Republican Leader Ted Stevens of Alaska said Carter wants Congress to give him "the broadest possible" authority to ration gasoline in the event of a national emergency, without provision for a congressional veto — a condition not likely to sit well with many legislators.

The House already has approved the windfall profits tax Carter wants on the oil industry, but it is not clear how swiftly the Senate is prepared to act.

The House is expected to vote before the recess on gasoline rationing, which the Senate approved earlier this year. The original Carter rationing plan was defeated by the House in May.

The president also was reportedly planning to hold high-level talks on personnel changes that could find long-time aide Hamilton Jordan with more authority over the White House staff. The Washington Star today quoted White House sources as predicting domestic adviser Stuart Eizenstat and press secretary Jody Powell also would be given more power in the expected staff shakeup.

The president's Sunday speech was forceful, clear and eloquent, Sen. Alan Cranston of California, the second-ranking Senate Democrat, said Monday.

But Republican Sen. S.I. Hayakawa of California said Carter's address, "like most Sunday sermons," would be forgotten in a day's time.

In a question-and-answer session with union members in Detroit Monday, Carter acknowledged he has lost close touch with ordinary citizens.

"I've learned my lesson," he told the annual convention of the Communications Workers of America.

He declared he would spend more time listening to Americans everywhere and said that in the 1976 campaign, "I

Triumvirate Proposed To Administer HSCH

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

If the plan submitted by a management firm now being considered to take the helm of Health Sciences Center Hospital is accepted, the institution would be managed by three persons instead of a single executive director, the Avalanche-Journal has learned.

Sharing top management responsibility would be former Fort Worth hospital administrator William Cotner, Highland Hospital administrator Jerry Howard and Methodist Hospital administrator George Brewer.

Cotner, administrator of 93-bed Glenview Hospital from its opening in 1961 until 1977, would assume the job of executive director under the plan submitted Monday to the Lubbock County Hospital District board of managers by Hospitals of the Southwest, Inc., a management firm headed by Howard.

Howard would supervise the data processing system and Brewer would be available on a consultant basis, board member Gwen Stafford said this morning. Howard probably would take a six-month leave of absence from Highland, she said, while Brewer probably would continue to run Methodist Hospital in his present capacity.

The hospital district has been looking for a new executive director since board members dismissed Gerald Bosworth June 26. Board members surprised observers Monday, saying they were considering a proposal from a management firm run by Howard instead of hiring an individual executive director.

The new proposal comes only a few months after the board voted not to renew the contract of Hyatt Medical Management Services Inc. — a California management firm that helped get the hospital open but failed to keep it financially solvent.

Board members were scheduled to meet with Cotner today at the board's 1:30 p.m. executive session, Mrs. Stafford said. The board delayed making a decision, she said, until they could meet with Cotner, adding "You can't go with an unknown entity."

Mrs. Stafford said the board is at a stand-off at this point, with board members divided on the issue of hiring a management firm.

"I agree, we're under the gun," Mrs. Stafford said. "But we can't afford to make a mistake."

Mrs. Stafford supports a data processing proposal by Medicus, a firm which reportedly is responsible for solving many of the billing problems at Houston's Hermann Hospital and San Antonio's Bexar County teaching hospital. Bexar County administrator Warren Harding told board members last week

Gold Price Tops $297

LONDON (AP) — Gold hit a record $297.125 an ounce today, and there was speculation it would leap the $300 hurdle soon. The dollar continued to take a beating amid skepticism over whether President Carter will be able to implement his energy policies.

The gold record was set in London. It was up $4.25 from the previous all-time mark of $292.875 recorded in Zurich at the close of trading Monday. Gold finished the day in London Monday at $292.75.

In Zurich, gold opened trading at $296.875 an ounce today, up $4 from the close Monday. Gold is a traditional hedge in times of monetary uncertainty, and the mounting price reflected concern over the twin problems of inflation and recession.

In Tokyo, the dollar finished the day at 216.80 Japanese yen.

Chief Plans To Change Guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he will propose revised voluntary wage-price guidelines this fall that will be fairer to workers who have been losing ground to soaring inflation under the current 7 percent pay standard.

"I'll work ... to make sure that future wage and price guidelines are fair," Carter told a convention of the Communication Workers of America in Detroit.

But the president also told the CWA delegates Monday that a fair wage guideline for workers must be balanced against the national need to combat inflation.

"I don't want to punish any working people obviously, but it must be remembered that everybody has to take the best interests of our nation at heart," he said.

Carter also said for the first time that he might consider a tax cut to head off a serious recession if unemployment rises above levels now anticipated.

Carter, who fielded questions from the union officials, did not go into detail about plans to revise his anti-inflation guidelines. But he indicated the wage standard would be raised to reflect sharp increases in consumer prices led by a near doubling of oil prices.

Carter's comments were in response to repeated questions from delegates asking if it was fair to hold wage increases to 7 percent a year while inflation is running at nearly twice that rate.

Carter's advisers currently are drafting revised guidelines designed to make the nine-month-old program fairer to workers and thereby address organized labor's main objection to the anti-inflation effort.

Meanwhile, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., introduced legislation today to block the administration from withholding government contracts from firms violating the wage-price guidelines. The federal courts have ruled that Carter has such authority.

Dole, introducing his proposal with the backing of all six Republicans on the Senate Banking Committee, said, "It is clear that President Carter's wage and price guidelines have not worked and will not work."

Although the Teamsters union forced the administration to stretch the current guidelines to allow wage settlements of more than 7 percent a year, most labor leaders have complained that the program is still too rigid.

Aggie Women Will Don Boots, Spurs

HOUSTON (AP) — When the Corps of Cadets returns to Texas A&M University this fall, something will be different.

Women will be allowed to wear senior boots, with spurs.

Although it may not sound like much, it is a strong signal to Aggies — women' advancement has hit the College Station campus.

Graduates contacted Monday afternoon were mildly surprised, but most said they expected it.

"I think they'll look a little silly," one said, who later didn't want to be quoted. "That's not with tradition."

U.S. Army Col. James R. Woodall, commandant of the Corps, said the policy changed last month, but no official announcement was made.

"We decided it was time to go ahead and make a decision," he said.

A student committee studying problems of women in the Corps suggested the matter be referred to another committee. But he short-circuited the student group and decided, he said, to go ahead with the change.

"I think the girls anticipated it," he said. "I know they wanted it."

Women — first allowed in the military group in 1974 — have been making changes, demanding that they be treated equally.

A lawsuit is still pending against the university because women are not allowed in some honor organizations of the Corps, including the band, the mounted cavalry and the Ross Volunteers, which is the honor guard for Texas' governor.

Woodall said he thought all the women who will be seniors already have their boots — female riding boots — and will order the riding pants and gaucho skirts to go with them.

When the Corps is parading or in formation, the colonel said, they will wear the skirts.

Few outsiders know about the change, so he's received little reaction.

"I really don't care," said John West, who graduated in the late '50s and now works for A&M's office of public information.

"The Corps is not what it used to be." It was an advantage, he said, not to have any girls on campus.

Women officially were allowed at A&M in 1963, and the Corps became optional for men in 1965.

Boots first became part of the uniform sometime after World War I, when A&M trained cavalry units. In the 1920s they became a "senior privilege" and so became the envy of all the underclassmen.

Now about 60 cadets in the 1,850-member Corps are women, Woodall said, and entitled to senior privileges.

A regent of A&M, Dr. John B. Coleman of Houston, was glad to hear of the change.

He said both Woodall and A&M's

Plimpton To End Fireworks Show

WAINSCOTT, N.Y. (AP) — George Plimpton's annual fireworks show at his Long Island home may have seen the launch of its last Roman candle.

Plimpton, writer of such books as "Paper Lion" and "Out of My League," was host to his annual display at his waterfront home here during the weekend. Something went wrong, however, and fiery debris began falling on the approximately 1,000 spectators. Two people were treated for minor injuries.

The cause of the problem was not clear. It took Plimpton and his fireworks experts a few minutes to correct the problem and continue the Saturday show.

Plimpton said the 15-year tradition will probably not be carried on next year.

Rock Star Target Of Lawsuit

NEW YORK (AP) — The rock 'n' roll played by "KISS" may be music to the ears of teen-agers, but it's noise to a lawyer who lives below one of the group's guitarists.

EISEN

Attorney Stephen R. Steinberg, in papers filed Monday in state Supreme Court, charged guitarist Stanley Eisen, who performs under the name of Paul Stanley, stages late-night jam sessions with fellow musicians in his luxury apartment on Manhattan's East Side.

Steinberg said the late-night playing sometimes continues until 2 a.m. and is accompanied by the sound of musicians jumping up and down on the uncarpeted floor.

He asked for $25,000 in damages, contending Eisen violated anti-noise provisions of his lease and failed to carpet the floor, which also is required by the lease.

Singer Afraid, Director Says

NEW YORK (AP) — Movie director Rick Edelstein says Barbra Streisand has decided not to perform in public anymore because of fear of audiences, the Ladies Home Journal reports.

MISS STREISAND

Edelstein, described as a confidant of the superstar for the past 20 years, was quoted in the magazine's August issue as saying:

"One of Barbra's big fears is appearing in public. Having audiences spend millions of dollars to see her perform reduces her to a tremor. She gets veryscared. That's why she has decided not to go on stage anymore."

Miss Streisand's sister, Roslyn Kind, said in the article, "What most people don't understand is that my sister finds it hard to turn off. I think that's why she stays away from too much social contact. Her fame has actually made her a recluse."

The story released Monday said Miss Streisand has security systems, armed guards and three attack dogs providing protection at her Malibu estate.

Funeral Held For Wilding

CHICHESTER, England (AP) — Wreaths from English actors and one American senator surrounded the white-walled chapel when the ashes of stage and screen actor Michael Wilding were scattered.

WILDING

Actress Elizabeth Taylor attended the funeral of her former husband with her two sons, Wilding's only children. Wilding died last week at the age of 66.

Among the many wreaths and sprays of flowers was one marked simply "Dearest Michael. God bless you. I love you. Elizabeth." There was also one from Miss Taylor's sixth husband, Sen. John Warner, R-Va. Actor Sir Alec Guinness delivered personally a wreath marked simply "With love."

The 20-minute service in the chapel was conducted by the Rev. Philip Berry, rector of Birdham, the nearby village where Wilding lived.

Wilding's ashes were scattered in the crematorium's remembrance garden, where the ashes of his fourth and last wife, actress and painter Margaret Leighton, were placed three years ago.

High-Rent Nuisance

ATLANTA (AP) — The Peachtree Screamer comes with the seventh floor of Peachtree Towers, a prestigious downtown commercial address of particular clientele.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

Its blood-curdling scream has been chilling the seventh floor for about a year. It comes and goes, sometimes twice a week, sometimes less. Police have found nothing.

"We were warned about it when we moved in here last February," said Shay Griffin, owner of a talent and model booking firm. "We've all heard it at one time or another, but we don't know if it's a man or a woman. You just can't tell."

Said coworker Artis Roderick: "The scream is so frantic and agonizing that it absolutely freezes you and curls your toes."

One theory is the screams, which last about 10 seconds, come from somebody's disgruntled ex-employee.

"We've been told that that may be the answer," said Miss Griffin. "It's just terrible. But we've just kind of learned to cope with it, to accept it. The Screamer just comes with the seventh floor."

California Community Reduces Energy Use

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — With the help of pedal power, solar power and the power of positive thinking, this city has bucked the national trend by sharply cutting energy consumption.

President Carter praised Davis Monday in his energy speech in Kansas City, Mo., saying the city "has done a tremendous job and slashed total energy use more than 35 percent below what it used to be."

Davis, with many of its 35,000 residents associated with the local branch of the University of California, has a long tradition of innovation in agriculture and mechanics.

Since 1973, this city in California's Central Valley has encouraged bicycling, used zoning laws to reduce automobile traffic and encouraged the use of solar energy during the hot summers and mild winters.

The city's director of community development, Gloria McGregor, said the effort has resulted in an 18 percent drop in household electricity consumption and a 37 percent drop in gas consumption.

Davis claims to have been the first city to write regulations for installing solar energy equipment. Miss McGregor said some solar techniques have been mandated, but others have been widely adopted merely because a public relations campaign made citizens aware of them.

The city has also encouraged bicycling by building a large number of bike paths that often get travelers closer to their destinations than streets, especially on the university campus.

Miss McGregor said about 25 percent of the residents travel around town on bicycles, which saves gasoline — something Carter praised.

First lady Rosalynn Carter toured the city partly by bicycle in March. In an interview Monday, Mayor Tom Tomasi recalled that Mrs. Carter "was quite impressed." And he said Davis residents are getting used to the attention the city draws.

Tomasi said he was pleased to hear Carter say that 20 percent of the country's energy should be solar by year 2000.

"Solar can do more than people have suggested it can," he added.

The mandatory solar programs affect one-sixth of the city's homes. They include specifications for insulation, number of windows, and positioning of homes. About 90 percent of the new homes face northwest to avoid the direct rays of the scorching Central Valley sun.

Miss McGregor said that early in the 1970s, the city's development plan was redesigned to lead to concentric growth. This keeps the city dense and compact, and reduces auto usage. "We don't have leapfrog development," she said.

Also, shopping centers are so located that no resident has to go more than half a mile to buy food and other essentials.

Merely allowing homes to be used as principal places of business — except for retailers — brings savings two ways, Miss McGregor said.

"They don't have to heat and cool two buildings, and they don't have the transportation costs back and forth from home to work," she said.

Oil-Food Swap Not Possible

DETROIT (UPI) — President Carter says "a bushel of wheat for a barrel of oil" is a good slogan but unrealistic policy.

"It would be impossible to find anyone in Mexico or in the Persian Gulfarea or in Venezuela or in Nigeria that would swap us a $22 barrel of oil fo a $4 bushel of wheat," Carter observed.

He told a questioner at the Communications Workers of America convention that even if the United States cut off its wheat shipments, the oil-producing country "could very easily get its wheat anywtere else."

Texas Drilling Executive Sympathizes With Carter

By United Press International

William C. "Bill" Smith, president of Kenai Drilling of Texas, is sympathetic to the plight of President Carter in solving the nation's energy problems. After all the president is dealing with changing the habits of a bunch of energy "hogs," Smith charges.

The oil driller also acknowledges many mistakes have been made, and not only by Carter.

One of the biggest problems cited by Smith was the selection by Carter of people to talk to during his retreat to Camp David.

"Out of the list of names that I saw, I didn't see anybody who knew how to produce any kind of energy," Smith said. "He wasn't talking to us. He was talking to people that all they do is sit in an office and make up policy.

"You got to get rid of the bureaucrats. Carter, hell, he's got his hands tied. I don't think Carter can do anything about it. I don't think Ford or anyone else can do anything about it. They got to get these ecologists off our backs; all they want to do is stop production."

Smith shook his head — after offering the explanation that "We're all hogs" — and then summed up the bewilderment felt at the crisis.

"Dad gum, I tell you," he said.

Texas oilmen, politicians and citizens reached for comment Monday agreed the foundation of the energy crisis was as much a loss of confidence as it was an actual lack of fuel.

Arch Ballou, manager of conservation and environmental control for Sun Oil Company in Dallas, said he believes Carter finished strong in his speech, but that he was disappointed that Carter suggested another level of bureaucracy.

"I think government has proven they can't do anything better than the industry can" he said.

Decision Near On Federal Predator Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Department officials expect Secretary Cecil Andrus to determine the federal government's role in predator control in the West as early as September.

Andrus is expected to choose among nine alternatives ranging from stepped-up killing of coyotes to discontinuing the federal program, which is aimed at minimizing damage rather than reducing coyote population.

An Aug. 11 deadline is set for public comment on an environmental impact statement examining the impacts of all nine alternatives and the current program.

Officials said Thursday the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service staff would spend two weeks analyzing public comments and present Andrus with alternatives after Sept. 1.

"He (Andrus) believes it's time to settle this issue once and for all," said one official.

Policies have been in limbo since the 1972 ban of chemical toxicants in the predator control program.

The official said Andrus has revealed no position on the issue.

Following release of a draft environmental impact statement last November, public hearings were held in Salt Lake City and Washington.

The final impact statement goes beyond the draft with discussion of data and research which would be needed to justify restoration of use of a banned toxicant, 1080, both for use with baited traps and for toxic collars.

As an expensive alternative, toxic collars with 1080 would be placed around the necks of lambs. A collar would kill both a coyote that bit into the neck and the lamb victim. Officials hope coyotes as a group would learn to shy away from the collars.

"The toxic collar is considered to be the most selective" alternative because it kills only coyotes who actually attack livestock, an official said.

If Andrus decided to move toward restoring 1080 use, another environmental impact statement would be required, the official said.

Andrus set the policy review in motion 18 months ago, beginning with a separate comprehensive study of the thorny issue which has pitted livestock producers facing destruction of their animals against environmentalists who believe the government should not be in the business of killing coyotes.

These are the nine alternatives under consideration:

—End the federal coyote control program.

—Transfer the program to the Agriculture Department.

—Contract with the states to control predators.

—Work toward controls which do not involve killing of coyotes.

—Limit control to shooting coyotes on the ground or from low-flying planes or helicopters and to using M-44, a device coated with scent and driven into the ground.

Executive Runs Corporation 'Much Like Army'

KENT, Wash. (AP) — Pay 'n Pak stores are designed for the do-it-yourselfer, but the home improvement retailer is sort of a do-it-yourself project for the corporation's chief executive.

"I just won't stand for anybody that doesn't have the goals I do," says David Heerensperger, chairman of the board of the Kent-based corporation.

"We run pretty much like an army," Heerensperger says. "It has to be that way."

The chain has 71 stores in 14 states and recently announced increased earnings for the 37th consecutive quarter. The $140 million a year business is 12th in size nationally in the field of home improvement operations.

The corporation was formed in 1969 with the merger of TNT, Falcon and Eagle stores owned by Heerensperger, John Headle and Stanley Thurman.

Heerensperger had started at the age of 18 with Thurman Electric of Longview. At 20 he was a store manager.

The internal history of Pay 'N Pak "all revolved around us starting together, getting together again, fighting and going our separate ways," Heerensperger says.

Thurman still owns stores and Headley is involved in a cooperative purchasing agreement.

Devotion to the company and strict accountability has its rewards for ambitious employees. There is no seniority system and any employee may become one of the store managers.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Trailways Under Control

THERE IS something inherently contradictory about a 55 miles-per-hour national speed limit for motor vehicles deliberately designed to travel twice that fast.

Trailways bus company also has noticed that incongruity and has asked the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to mandate design limitations on all interstate trucks and buses that would prevent them from traveling faster than 57 mph.

NHTSA has agreed to consider the rule-making application, which would affect only commercial not private vehicles. But it must have sent a shudder through Detroit, if it's reading the handwriting on the wall.

Public comments on the Trailways proposal will be accepted by NHTSA until Aug. 17, after which time a public hearing date will be set.

A NUMBER of major trucking companies support the Trailways bid, although other bus companies and independent truckers so far have been "hostile to the concept," according to syndicated columnists Martha Angle and Robert Walters.

The speed governors, which cost $75 each, do not affect acceleration or performance at speeds below the legal limit, Trailways spokesmen say. But the company estimates it can save 3 million gallons of fuel a year by holding its buses to the 57 mph maximum.

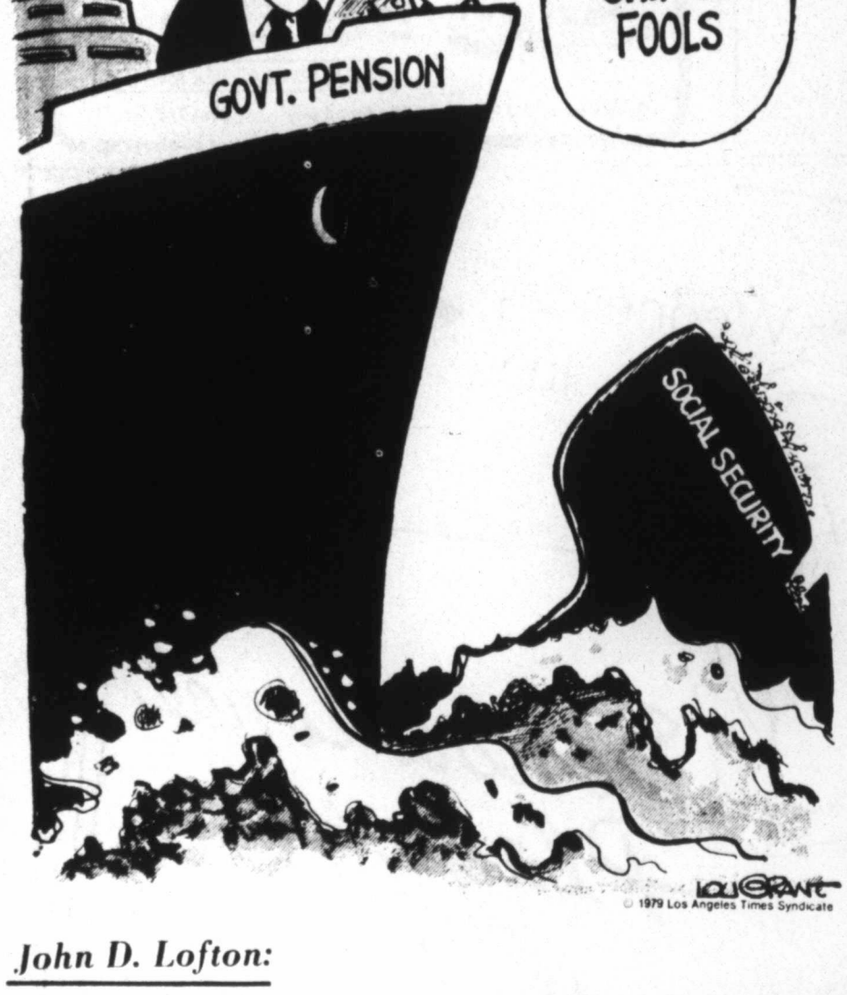
It already practices what it preaches. After months of testing in late 1977 and 1978, Trailways began fitting speed control devices on its entire fleet of 2,200 buses.

"I think it's a remarkable testimonial to the change in public attitudes that has taken place in recent years," said Ben Kelley of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety. "Six years ago, when I gave a speech on design speed controls, I was laughed out of the room. Nobody is laughing now."

NHTSA has documented a direct correlation between adherence to the 55 mph limit and traffic fatalities. In the first two years after the 55 mph limit was adopted, fatalities dropped from a 1972 peak of 56,278 to about 46,000.

Last year, as compliance started to slip, fatalities went over 50,000 for the first time since the law was enacted. Apart from safety, fuel consumption is a source of growing concern in this era of shortages and soaring prices. The Federal Highway Administration estimates 100 percent compliance with the 55 mph limit would save 5.7 billion gallons of gas each year.

Americans' love affair with the auto and with speed has been a long and ardent one. But serious questions are being raised about whether we can afford the romance indefinitely.



ONE MAN'S OPINION

Set Your Goals

IF YOU'RE PLANNING on being here circa 1990, what kind of city would you like Lubbock to be?

Subcommittees of the Goals for the '80s Program are chewing on that question these days and nights.

Before the work is finished, perhaps in the dead of winter next, everybody hereabouts will have had more than one chance to have his say.

The citizens' planning project, spawned and staffed by the Chamber of Commerce-Board of City Development, is patterned after the highly successful Goals for the '70s program.

Chairman Harold Harriger emphasizes the committee's not programming another tornado into the new 10-year plan but he does hope that efforts to accomplish the goals for the next decade will be at least as successful as were those of the 1970s.

THE TORNADO OF May 11, 1970, you'll recall, was a tragedy quickly put behind us because Lubbock had a ready-made blueprint for recovery from the disaster.

Committee 70 had just wrapped up its goals program, listing in priority order the programs, projects and endeavors the citizenry believed would make Lubbock a better and more prosperous place in which to live.

Implementing those goals became the driving force for a decade of progress here. A surprising number of the goals have been reached and, in many cases, surpassed.

Some of those which have not been realized—notably the importation of farm irrigation water to this region—are longrange efforts that doubtless will be incorporated into and reemphasized in the Goals for the '80s.

Other goals will be adopted by a process which calls, first, for letting imaginations run wild. Dreams will be dreamed and reactions to those dreams will be heard.

Then, so that the final goals will be both realistic and attainable, the "wish list" will be refined and the cold facts of practicability will be applied.

IN THE END, IF the process works as it did last time, the proper mixture will be achieved. Lubbock will have a blueprint for the 1980s that will express the hopes, aspirations, spirit, determination, capability and means of a forward-looking people.

The Goals for the '80s will represent a commitment to the future. It will be this generation's expression of the way it sees itself and of the type community it would like for the next generation to inherit.

So, if you were sole author of the goals, what would you include?

IF I WERE DOING it, I would have to picture the Lubbock of Tomorrow as environmentally pleasing.

Older neighborhoods now teetering between deterioration and stability would be revitalized as safe, quiet, well-maintained places to live.

Parks, playgrounds and school campuses would be upgraded. They'd be nice to live around but, considering what may happen to the price of gasoline, they'd also be made places big enough and inviting enough to spend a lot of weekends.

The Food and Fiber National Institute of Achievement, the Tech Museum, the Ranching Heritage Center, the Lubbock Lake Site and other cultural-historic projects would be fully supported and developed.

Weeds would be cut, alleys would be cleaned, Memorial Civic Center programs would be expanded; Lubbock would be a fun place.

INTERSTATE 27 would be extended across the city and State Highway 114 would be four-laned to Dallas. Its route through Lubbock would be shifted southward and rebuilt as an east-west expressway.

Airline flight schedules would be improved. Citibus or some alternative public transit system would be so convenient that nearly everyone would use it for going to work.

Job opportunities would be vastly expanded with the opening of new industrial plants, especially of a technological nature. Blacks and browns would be fully integrated into the economic mainstream.

Area agriculture would be booming with crops grown on imported irrigation water. Farm products would be processed and finished in new plants built here and then shipped worldwide.

TEXAS TECH would be 25 percent larger than it now is, the perennial Southwest Conference football and basketball champ, and a full cooperative partner for progress with Lubbock.

The medical school would be the nucleus for several teaching hospitals and Lubbock would be a mecca for retirees wanting to enjoy their senior years near expert medical care.

Crime would be insignificant. Conventions and trade shows would be numerous. Water recreation would be abundant. First-class restaurants would overlook the Canyon Lakes.

What would be your kind of town?

Paul Scott:

Castro Sanctions Death Squads

WASHINGTON—There is hard evidence that Fidel Castro's Communist government in Cuba is linked to the increasing number of assassination attempts against officials of pro-U.S. governments in Central America.

A secret State Department memorandum titled "Cuban Support for Central American Guerrilla Groups" reveals that the pro-Castro Guatemalan Guerrilla Army of the Poor (EGP) has since February been offering the services of "Cuban experts" to work in Guatemala and other Central American countries to "coordinate" the assassination of government security and other personnel of non-communist governments in the region.

The document warns: "The Castro regime contends that...the use of counterterrorism is a legitimate weapon in the effort to promote the cause of revolution, and...believes that the current situation in Guatemala (and other Central American countries) justifies such an approach."

BASED ON information gathered in recent weeks by the U.S. intelligence community in Latin America and from other sources, the Cuban assassination link is part of a broader warning that Castro has stepped up the arming and training of terrorist and guerrilla groups throughout Central America.

A high Cuban official secretly met in Guatemala with the leaders of the EGP in January and urged them to take the lead in uniting the three major guerrilla groups in that strife-torn country.

Evidence of this Havana assassination connection comes at a time that U.S. military officers and CIA officials serving in Latin America and abroad have been alerted to protect themselves and their families from possible assassination attempts.

THIS WORLD-WIDE alert followed the recent unsuccessful attempt near the NATO headquarters in Europe against Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Jr., the just retired supreme commander of NATO forces in Europe.

In his retirement speech, Gen. Haig became one of the first U.S. military leaders to publicly link the Russian government with the growing terrorist activities against Democratic governments throughout the world.

The 54-year-old general, who headed President Nixon's White House staff, is expected to be called before one or more congressional committees to elaborate on his statement since he had full access to information on terrorist groups and their links to Moscow and Havana gathered by U.S. and NATO intelligence officials.

In Central and Latin America, the KGB is known to be directing Castro's intelligence agency in the training of terrorist and guerrilla groups, including the organization of assassination teams to be used in Latin and Central America and against anti-Castro Cubans in the U.S.

Gen. Haig also is expected to be questioned about his statement that "what was being done in Nicaragua (under U.S. policy) is criminal."

In private talks with Rep. George Hansen, R-Ida., and others, Haig has expressed shock at the Carter administration's efforts to oust a pro-U.S. government and replace it with one controlled by Marxist guerrillas, whose leaders have been trained and armed by the Cubans.

Sylvia Porter:

What Would You Call This Mess We're In?

WASHINGTON—The economic downturn of 1979-? in the U.S. is well under way—and it is right on schedule.

Months ago, the age of the 1975-79 business expansion alone flashed the signal of its near-term death. By the start of this year, the recent upturn already was into its 46th month.

With the single exception of the artificially prolonged 50-month boom of the 1960s, no post-World War II expansion had lasted this long.

Add to this fundamental factor of old age:

* THE ACCELERATING RATE of inflation back into the double-digit range this year, which has slashed consumer buying and sobered businesses into reappraising their spending on new plants and equipment;

* The Federal Reserve System's progressive tightening of credit in a traditional (but cruel and usually self-defeating) attempt to compel a cutback in housing and other big-ticket industries;

* The deepening concern of the White House and Congress with curbing expensive (and stimulative) spending programs;

* The bite in paychecks from the hike in Social Security tax rates and raising of the wage base on which SS taxes are paid.

THE DOMINANT FORCES in the U.S. economy clearly have been tilting toward a downturn since Christmas, 1978.

Of course, the explosion in oil prices and the spotty but spectacular shortages of this most vital of the nation's fuels almost certainly will intensify—and well may prolong—the decline.

But "oil" did not start it!

Preliminary figures for the first quarter of 1979 and a "feel" of trends in the second quarter strongly suggest this downturn has been in existence all year, meaning that even now it matches the definition of a "recession"—a drop in the nation's total output of goods and services (Gross National Product) for two consecutive quarters.

In 1973-75, the drop matched the definition of a "slump."

WHAT ARE THE distinctions? All can be summarized in three words: Depth, Duration and Breadth.

In the comparisons below, the GNP is "real"—measures the decline in output after elimination of the impact of price changes on the figures.

From peak to bottom, "GNP" dropped 34.1 percent during the depression of 1929-32; 1.6 percent in the 1948-49 recession; 3.4 percent in the 1953-54 recession;

3.9 percent in the 1957-58 recession; 1.6 percent in the 1960-61 recession; 1.4 percent in the 1969-70 recession; and 5.7 percent in the 1973-74 slump.

Declines in industrial output can also be compared. In 1929-32, output dropped 52.2 percent from peak to bottom; in 1948-49, 9.6 percent; in 1953-54, 9.1 percent; in 1957-58, 12.6 percent;

In 1960-61, 8.6 percent; in 1969-70, 8.1 percent; and in 1973-74, 13.9 percent.

ANOTHER ASPECT TO consider is the duration of the decline. From peak to bottom the decline took 43 months in the 1929-32 depression; 11 months in the 1948-49 recession;

13 Months in the 1953-54 recession; nine months in the 1957-58 recession; nine months in the 1960-61 recession; 12 months in the 1969-70 recession; and 17 months in the 1973-75 slump.

Unemployment also should be considered: At the bottom of the business drop in 1929-32 the unemployed numbered 25.4 percent of the work force; in 1948-49, that figure was 7.9 percent; in 1953-54, 6.1 percent; in 1957-58, 7.5 percent; in 1960-61, 7.1 percent; in 1969-70, 6.0 percent; and in 1973-75, 8.2 percent.

Clip and save these comparisons. I'll update the 1979-? drop as the realities of today show up in tomorrow's figures.

John D. Lofton:

Carter Finally Picks Winner

WASHINGTON—Call me a starry-eyed idealist, or whatever. I don't care. But I always knew it would happen. I knew that if President Carter sent enough proposals to Capitol Hill, he would finally produce something worthwhile.

And he has: the Trucking Competition and Safety Act of 1979, which is a major step towards the deregulation of the trucking industry.

Not everybody, of course, likes the idea of deregulating the trucking industry.

The essence of the argument of proponents of regulation is expressed by Bennett Whitlock, president of the American Trucking Association, who says: "We really don't know what is going to happen under deregulation."

Well, Whitlock is absolutely, irrefutably correct. Nobody "knows" what's going to happen about anything that has not happened. The assertion is unassailable.

DONN MCMORRIS, another master logician, who is chairman of the board of the ATA, observes: "Not all regulation is bad." He, too, is right on target.

But we do know what has happened as a result of a regulated trucking industry, and a lot of it is bad. In fact, a lot of what's happened is downright loony and expensive.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability estimates that consumers pay about $5 billion a year because of the federal red-tape wrapped around the trucking industry. For example:

— Backhaul restrictions force many trucks to return empty from their point of destination.

The Carter proposal seeks to remove all backhaul restrictions immediately.

— Many ICC certificates map out the exact route a truck must travel, thus denying the flexibility needed to meet shifts in customer demand.

One trucking firm authorized to serve Denver and Salt Lake City, which is 512 miles by direct route, must haul by way of Flagstaff and Phoenix, a route of 1,142 miles.

The Carter proposal would require the ICC, within 180 days, to remove such route restrictions on a phased basis. All such limitations would be done away with no later than Dec. 31, 1981.

— CURRENTLY, MANY trucking certificates limit the commodity a trucker can haul. These restrictions are inefficient and cause many trucks to haul empty or almost empty. One recent certificate permitted a carrier to haul bananas, but not pineapples, unless they were mixed with bananas.

The Carter proposal would abolish all commodity hauling restrictions by Dec. 31, 1982.

— Presently, trucking certification procedures allow already certified truckers to block the certifying of new truckers, and this stifles competition —especially small businesses and those operated by minorities.

The Carter proposal would reverse the current burden of proof and require opponents of new truckers to demonstrate that the applications being applied for would be inconsistent with the public convenience and necessity.

— AS IT STANDS now, agricultural co-ops can haul their members' products, but not more than 15 percent of their backhauls can be regulated commodities.

This has created such problems as an exempt agricultural hauler being allowed to haul raw shelled nuts, or even raw unshelled nuts, but only so long as they have not been roasted or boiled; or an exempt hauler being allowed to haul parrot food but not hamster or gerbil food.

The Carter proposal would broaden the agricultural exemption to include all edible items.

— Today, regulated truckers enjoy a special immunity from antitrust laws which allows them to meet and decide what rates will be. This collective rate-making privilege, which would be a felony if there were no special exemption, has cost the consumer billions of dollars.

THE CARTER PROPOSAL would repeal this special antitrust immunity and would allow carriers to decrease rates within an established range free from ICC interference.

Arguing for his trucking deregulation proposal, President Carter told a White House audience: "The best anti-inflation medicine, in my opinion, is the American free enterprise system."

Right on!

But if he really believes this, why hasn't the President deregulated the price of gasoline, and why is he seeking to impose federal price controls on the hospital industry?

Oh, well—for this President, one out of three ain't bad.

So They Say...

That feller you see straddling a fence isn't a farmer. He's a candidate for President out campaigning.

There's enough gasoline to go around. It's common sense that's short.

Look for the governor of California to suggest a dual ticket in 1980. Teddy Kennedy would be President on even days and Jerry Brown on odd days.

Coke Returning To Egypt

ATLANTA (UPI) — Coca-Cola, banned in Egypt 12 years ago because of political pressures, Monday announced plans to re-enter the Egyptian market later this week.

J. Paul Austin, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Coca-Cola, said an agreement had been signed with the Arab Republic of Egypt to begin sales in Cairo Eaturday, climaxing lengthy negotiations between the soft drink manufacturer and the Egyptian government.

Coca-Cola products were boycotted by the Arab League a dozen years ago because the company did business with Israel.

No.1 America's energy problem is a very complex and multi-faceted issue. This is the first in a series in which we will take each of the individual factors involved, one at a time, and discuss the role of each.

Imported oil—part of why we're coming up short.

In 1970, the U.S. imported less than 23% of its oil. Today, we depend on other countries for about 45% of our total supply. This heavy dependence on other countries means that even small interruptions in our imported supply can cause severe problems here at home.

"Sorry, no oil for a while, we're having a revolution."

The unexpected revolt in Iran cut the world's oil supply by about 5 million barrels daily. Almost immediately, a world-wide scramble for the limited supply of oil still available took place. In the months that followed, some oil exporting nations did boost production somewhat, but not enough to off-set the world-wide loss.

"And what about today?"

Though oil is once again coming out of Iran, they are exporting only about 3 million barrels daily, less than two-thirds the amount exported before the revolution. Making the current supply situation even more uncertain is the fact that, except for Saudi Arabia, most of the other OPEC countries are unable or unwilling to increase production to make up for the Iran shortfall.

Events in other countries are not the only reasons why the world is coming up short—and why Americans are experiencing shortages at the pumps. But these events are a significant part of the problem.

Factors like refining capacity, increased demand, government regulations, environmental restrictions, and different qualities of crude oil have all played a role and all will be discussed in future communications.

"...And what about tomorrow?"

The fact is, we are consuming energy at an alarming rate. U.S. oil consumption has jumped by over 16% during the last three years, while U.S. oil production, including Alaska, increased only 3%.

While we cannot control the availability of oil from foreign suppliers, we can and must begin developing more of our own domestic energy resources. We must, at the same time, do everything possible to conserve the energy we have now.

Thank you for listening.

European Parliament Opens

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — The first popularly elected European Parliament opened its inaugural session today with Simone Veil, a French advocate of liberal abortion laws, favored for election as president of the 410-member, nine-nation assembly.

Mrs. Veil, a 52-year-old member of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's center-right Republican Party, was challenged by Italian Socialist Mario Zagari. But her election appeared assured when a caucus of the 108 Christian Democrats in the assembly endorsed her Monday night despite the objections of some Italian and Irish Catholics because of her sponsorship of the liberal French abortion law adopted when she was health minister.

Hundreds of demonstrators, mostly from Italy, gathered outside the Parliament today to protest Mrs. Veil's pro-abortion stand.

"We are here to protest against abortion, and against the candidacy of Mrs. Veil, whose name is linked to abortion in the opinion of many Europeans," said Piero Pirovano of Milan, a member of the Movement for Life anti-abortion league.

Other groups, also from Italy, clustered behind police barricades demanding a pan-European currency and more authority for the near-powerless assembly.

The Parliament has a total of 210 center-right members, including Christian Democrats, Conservatives and Liberals, plus 21 rightist European Progressive Democrats. On the left, there are 111 Socialists and 44 Communists. There are also 24 independents ranging all the way across the political spectrum, from ultra-right to ultra-left.

The European Parliament grew out of the parliamentary Assembly of the six-nation European Coal and Steel Community established in 1952, the forerunner of the 1958 European Economic Community or Common Market and European Atomic Energy Community.

When the Coal-Steel, Economic and Atomic communities united in 1967 to form the European Communities, the Assembly became the European Parliament, with its members chosen by the parliaments of the member nations.

In 1976, a summit meeting of the member nations agreed to direct election of the Parliament members. After a year's delay, the first election was held in June. About 60 percent of the 180 million voters in Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Denmark and Ireland participated, a low percentage by European standards.

Advocates of European unity consider the new Parliament a momentous step toward the peaceful realization of the centuries-old dream brought closest to fulfillment heretofore by the conquests of Charlemagne in the 8th century and Adolf Hitler in the 20th. They expect it to be a major moral voice. But its powers are extremely limited.

It has authority over the Common Market's $21-billion budget and can dismiss the commisson that administers Common Market policy and directs the bureaucracy. But it has no power over national governments.

The Parliament is also a reflection of the diversity of the nine nations of the European Communities. It has six official languages, with simultaneous translation of all proceedings. Some of its members in their election campaigns promised to work to broaden its powers; others promised to work to curtail them. And the absence of 40 percent of the voters from the polls in June indicated the sizable lack of interest in progress toward European unity among the public.

Britain, France, West Germany and Italy each are allotted 81 of the 410 seats. The Netherlands has 25, Belgium 24, Denmark 16, Ireland 15 and Luxembourg 6.

Hussein Continues Hard-Line Policies

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — The leadership of Iraq changed hands in a stunning television spectacular. But for all the drama, little or no change was expected in Baghdad's hard-line stand against the United States and the Egyptian-Israeli peace.

Ahmad Hassan Al Bakr, 65, stepped before the cameras Monday night to announce he was resigning as Iraq's president "for health reasons," and that strongman Gen. Sadam Hussein was taking his place.

The ruling Revolutionary Command Council announced immediately that Hussein, 42, a tall, elegant champion of Iraqi Baath Socialist Party infighting, will move into all of Bakr's lositions — the presidency, the council chairmanship, the premiership and the Baath Party secretary generalship.

There was no advance warning of the shift, which appeared to consolidate in Hussein the power he has shared with Bakr as an "indispensable partner" since 1973.

"My health state ... doesn't allow me any more to take the responsbilities which the (revolutionary) council has honored me with," the now balding and bespectacled Bakr told a nationwide television audience.

"I've asked my friends to lift this burden from my shoulders," he said. Neither Bakr nor the revolutionary council said immediately what the outgoing president's plans were.

But Iraq, legendary home of the Garden of Eden and birthplace of the grand civilizations of Babylon and Ur, was unlikely to change its hard-line policies.

Hussein, described by one diplomatic observer as "extemely sure of himself," has followed faithfully the political line laid down by Bakr and the leftist Baathist Party that has run the country since a doublebarreled coup in 1968.

The first coup on July 17 was engineered by a young army officer, Lt. Gen. Abdel Razzak Nayef, and deposed the regime of President Abdul Rahman Aref. But the key date for Bakr that year came nearly two weeks later.

On July 30, the 10th tank division led by Gen. Hamadi Al Takriti rumbled through the streets to take control of Baghdad and the government radio station, from which it was announced that the Nayef government had fallen and the appointment of Ahamd Hassan Al Bakr as commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

Four months later, a vice president was named, 32-yearold Sadam Hussein.

As Bakr's No. 2 man, Hussein carved a political niche of his own by guiding Iraq in a series of overtures aimed at a reconciliation with the communists.

Hussein flew twice to Moscow, laying the groundwork for the "friendship and cooperation" treaty of April 9, 1972, cementing ties between the Soviet Union and Iraq "in all fields."

Asians Meeting To Resolve Refugee Crisis

By United Press International

Asian leaders headed for Switzerland today determined to resolve the Vietnamese refugee crisis. But Vietnam warned it would walk out of the conference if it were singled out for attacks.

"The conference could break up and produce no result if it is used only for political debate," Radio Hanoi said Monday.

Vietnam, which is sending delegates to the Geneva meeting, said some countries wanted to "use this forum to slander Vietnam and undermine the efforts of sincere countries."

Hong Kong Gov. Murrary MacLehose left the British colony today for London where he was to join the British delegation to the refugee conference Friday and Saturday.

Japanese Foreign Minister Sunao Sonoda was leaving Tokyo today to attend the opening of the conference, but he was scheduled to leave Friday for a friendship tour of five black African nations.

Thailand will be represented at the Geneva parley by Air Marshal Sidhi Svetsila, secretary general of the National Security Council. He left Bangkok today with seven aides, vowing to avoid criticizing Vietnam at the conference so that the work of finding new homes for the refugees can be completed.

Malaysian Home Affairs Minister Ghazali Shafie, whose troops have been accused of raping and robbing Vietnamese refugees, also left Kuala Lumpur for London en route to Geneva.

On the eve of the summit, resettlement efforts by Western nations appeared to be picking up steam after many months of inaction. French, Norwegian and American mercy ships were operating in the South China Sea rescuing refugees in sinking boats. A Swiss team was selecting refugees in Malaysia for resettlement.

In Ottawa, Canada announced it would rent planes to bring refugees to Canada and send more officials to Southeast Asia to select boat people.

The Canadian Immigration Department said more than 60,000 persons are fleeing Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos each month. There are now 350 000 in refugee camps.

In Singapore, the Straits Times newspaper called on the governments attending the Geneva parley not to be taken in by Hanoi's propaganda.

The newspaper said Vietnam and its backer the Soviet Union were attempting to appear "compromising and reasonable" but in fact "they will not deviate one iota unless forced to."

Rescued Viet Boat People To Resettle In Norway

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Another 26 Vietnamese refugees rescued by a Norwegian tanker headed for Singapore today with a guarantee they would be resettled in the Scananavian nation.

The 80,000-ton Bar Bare was en route for Japan for repairs when it picked up the refugees in the South China Sea, according to the Singapore representative of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees.

The latest group, which has a guarantee of resettlement in Norway, included 10 children, 6 women and 10 men.

It was not yet known whether they were from the original group of 289 who were towed away from Malaysia July 3 and cut adrift the next day in five leaky boats with little fuel or water.

Ninety-three persons including 20 children, the only known survivors from the July 3 group, settled in a temporary shelter in Singapore today. They joined 763 other refugees awaiting guaranteed resettlement elsewhere, mostly in the United States.

The 93 from the American mercy vessel Sea Sweep came ashore shortly after midnight expressing gratitude for their rescue.

Tom Dunson... Rooster Cogburn... J.B. Books... Sgt. John M. Stryker... Ringo Kid... Sean Thornton.... All the characters we have learned to know and to love... all the characters in John Wayne movies.

John Wayne, half-myth, half movie star. John Wayne, a name that seems synonymous with American movies themselves. It's not a movie "with" John Wayne, or even "starring" John Wayne. It is, simply, "a John Wayne movie." The image is immediate and clear.

"JOHN WAYNE: A TRIBUTE" chronicles the life and times of the rugged, two-fisted hero of some 150 movies—and the personal challenges in his life—his three marriages, lung cancer, open heart surgery, political debates, stomach cancer...

With some 250 photographs, "JOHN WAYNE: A TRIBUTE" puts it all together in a memento worthy of its protagonist.

LPOA Threatens To Take City To Court

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Property Owners Association will take the City of Lubbock to court if three charter amendments proposed by the organization are not submitted to the voters, LPOA attorney Warren Goss says.

Although Goss claims he is optimistic "good sense, knowledge and integrity will prevail" and the Lubbock City Council will call an election on the three tax limitation amendments, he says the LPOA can force the council to call the election if it refuses.

On Thursday, when the LPOA petitions calling for such an election were presented to the council, City Attorney John Ross said he thought the proposed amendments present "serious legal questions" which may prevent them from being placed on the ballot.

Specifically, Ross questioned whether the initiative process by which voters can petition the council for a charter amendment election can be used on the three LPOA amendments.

Although Ross said further study is needed of the proposed charter amendments and of applicable state law, he indicated he would recommend against calling an election unless the questions are resolved.

However, the LPOA's recourse if an election is not called, Goss says, is to file for a writ of mandamus from state district court to compel the council to submit the amendments to the voters.

Failing that, Goss says the organization might take its fight to federal court with claims that the rights of LOA members to due process and equal protection had been violated by the council's refusal to allow them a voice in taxation procedures.

Ross' statements regarding the election "seem somewhat premature," Goss says, adding the city attorney appears "not to be doing a very good job."

"It sounds like he's going to pose arguments regardless of the constitutional questions," Goss says.

LPOA director Elmer East, also an attorney, says Ross should be more specific about the constitutional questions he has about the proposed amendments.

"Anybody can express grave concern over constitutional questions," East says. "It's been going on for years."

The council should "follow the clear mandate of the people" by submitting the amendments to the voters, East says.

"When it comes to the question of encumbering future tax revenues of the city, they ought to let the people speak," he says.

LPOA chairman Bob Green says he is unconcerned by Ross' statements because "we did quite a bit of legal research before we started this thing and we think we have as good attorneys as the city."

If submitted to and approved by Lubbock voters, the amendments would limit the city tax rate to the current $1.12 per $100 valuation, limit the assessment ratio to the present 60 percent of market value and require voter approval for any increase in the tax rate or assessment ratio.

Ross will give the city council his legal opinion of the amendments and his recommendation on whether they should be submitted for a vote when the council meets July 26.

Attorneys For Drug Defendants Seeking Additional Evidence

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Attorneys for Steven Moss and Joe Leonard Jr., two of 14 persons indicted last month as alleged conspirators in a South Plains cocaine trafficking ring, Monday filed pretrial motions seeking additional government evidence against the defendants.

Both Moss, of 3102 40th St., and Leonard, of Austin, were named as co-conspirators in one of six sealed indictments returned June 7 by a federal grand jury. They are accused of transporting cocaine from Austin to Lubbock for distribution and, in a second count of that indictment, Moss is charged with possession of cocaine.

A second indictment names Moss as a conspirator in another cocaine trafficking operation.

Travis Shelton, Moss' attorney, stated in his motions concerning the two indictments that because of "limited access to the government's file," Moss believes the U.S. attorney's office has other material relevant to the cases.

This other material, Shelton added in briefs supporting the separate motions, should be made available to his client "because the (indictments are) based on the very broad, vague and uncertain allegation of conspiracy by both named and unnamed co-conspirators."

Among materials sought by Moss and Shelton are transcripts of all grand jury witness testimony and any conversations that were written down with such persons before they testified, a list of prosecution witnesses, results of all scientific tests and statements made to law enforcement agents or other persons, provided such statements were recorded.

Shelton also filed a motion for a Bill of Particulars, seeking specific information about the allegations in the indictments, including when the alleged conspiracies began and ended and the alleged role of Moss in each conspiracy.

A third motion filed concerning each indictment seeks any evidence the government may have in connection with the indictments that may be favorable to Moss.

Leonard's attorney, Anthony Nicholas of San Antonio, filed three motions with the clerk Monday.

The first motion filed by Nicholas requests a separate trial for Leonard because it is "highly prejudicial to (Leonard's) name" to be tried jointly with the other co-defendants.

Nicholas also is seeking a pretrial evidentiary hearing or an order from the court that the government offer its proof of the indictment's charges "prior to the introduction of any hearsay testimony of co-conspirators."

The third motion filed on behalf of Leonard asks that if the court refuses to grant him a separate trial, he be given an additional six peremptory jury select challenges separate from those of the other defendants.

Monday was the final day attorneys could file any pretrial motions for clients facing Aug. 6 trial dates. In addition to the trials of the persons named in the indictments, including Moss and Leonard, the trial of Stephen Zane Hall also is set for the Aug. 6 docket.

Hall is charged in another indictment with two counts of possession of cocaine with intent to distribute the drug.

Tobacco Firms Up Cigarette Prices

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

More than ever before, the spending money of cigarette users is going up in smoke.

Two of the nation's largest tobacco companies Monday told their distributors they are raising the price of a carton of cigarettes nearly 15 cents, effective immediately. The other major companies are expected to follow suit later this week.

The increase is the second since about Christmas, when the tobacco companies kicked their prices up nearly 20 cents a carton.

Local distributors received telegrams from R.J. Reynolds Co. (the world's largest tobacco company) and Liggett-Meyers Co., informing them of the sudden increases. Reynolds produces such brands as Winston, Salem, Camel, Vantage and More, while Liggett-Meyers makes Chesterfields and L&Ms.

In Lubbock, the average price for a carton of cigarettes will jump from about $5.50 to $5.65, while vending packs could jump to as much as 85 cents, according to Matt Smith, co-owner of McKee Distributors here, which handles about 20,000 cartons of cigarettes weekly.

"That may not seem like so much of an increase until you realize that nearly half the cost of cigarettes is a combination of federal and state taxes," Smith said. "That 15-cent increase is really an increase of about 25 percent of the actual cost of the cigarettes."

Before this new increase, the price of cigarettes, excluding any taxes, was about $2.75 per carton. But to that amount, the federal government added 80-cent tax, while Texas added another $1.85, so the actual cost of cigarettes was only 52 percent of the retail price.

"(The new increase is) a pretty healthy increase, but it's pretty well hidden in the taxes," Smith said.

Smith said the tobacco companies offered no explanation for the increases.

"The telegrams said only that the increases were within the guidelines set by the president's Council for Wage and Price Guidelines," he said. "I'm guessing that it just costs more to get the merchandise to the public, and that it costs more to keep their representatives out in the field fulltime."

Cigarette prices have been rising nearly twice a year for the last few years, Smith said.

The only way frustrated smokers can force the price to drop or at least remain the same is to "let the cigarettes sit on the shelf," he said.

"The market will charge what the traffic will bear," he continued. "If $5.65 cigarettes are too much, don't buy them. The tobacco companies will have to lower their prices to a point where people will pay them again. It works the same way with clothes or anything else."

In the meantime, that mile walk for a Camel is rapidly becoming a most expensive one.

AAM Wants Brown To Explain Stand

AUSTIN (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown owes the public an explanation of why he so strongly opposes creation of a farmers advisory commission, the American Agriculture Movement says.

The organization also said Brown's apology for a racial slur made in a display of temper did not go far enough.

"We accept Mr. Brown's apology to the general public, but we feel he owes a public apology specifically to the black citizens and family farmers of this state," American Agriculture said in a statement Monday.

Craig Bryant of Austin, a spokesman for American Agriculture, said the statement was drafted after a weekend conference call among farmers who took part in a July 10 meeting in Brown's office.

Bryant also said the group decided against making public a tape that was secretly made of the conversation with Brown.

"Since he (Brown) is going to be in office a few more years, we want to get along with him the best we can," Bryant said.

Brown reportedly grew angry during the meeting and said he did not need the farmers' vote to be re-elected because "there are more niggers on a Houston street than there are farmers in Texas."

"Mr. Brown has forgotten that the people are the government and not the other way around. To slur the blacks and belittle the farmers is beyond our comprehension. It's a sad day when an elected official not only slurs the people he is elected to serve but tells them they have no right to question his actions — that he alone knows what is best," the statement said.

American Agriculture said Brown had refused to explain why he opposes creation of an agricultural producers advisory commission.

"Mr. Brown is certainly fearful of a citizens advisory commission for agriculture. The public has a right to know why," the statement said.

The statement also criticized the middle men whom American Agriculture blames for rising food prices. Bryant said Brown has the power to investigate them but has not done so.

"We are concerned when bread prices go up because wheat prices are up. But when wheat prices go down, bread prices do not go down," American Agriculture said.

Bryant said some grain companies in a strip running from Victoria to Corsicana are cutting from 15 to 20 cents from what they pay farmers for a bushel of wheat if it has a yellow color.

He said the companies claim the color shows a loss of protein content resulting from the wheat's having been rained on and then dried. Bryant said the U.S. Department of Agriculture dropped that standard two years ago.

State Board Inspecting Rising Insurance Rates

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Insurance Board is expected to receive a staff report Wednesday recommending a statewide average car insurance increase of between 10 percent and 15 percent.

But board member Lyndon Olson said Monday the board will closely examine the assumptions made by the rating formula before making a final decision.

The result could be a smaller increase than staff actuaries arrived at with their usual rating methods.

The staff recommendations will be presented at a conference Wednesday to set the ground rules for the Aug. 1 statewide car insurance hearing.

Rate proposals from the insurance industry are expected to be in the range of 20 percent to 25 percent.

Olson said he and the board's new chairman, William Daves, "are taking a really hard look at the way we set insurance rates."

"We want to know what that formula says. ... If we use investment income, we want to know how we use it. If not, we want to know if we should," Olson said.

For about a decade, the board has formally recognized that insurance company earnings consist not only of policyholders' premiums but also of income from investing those premiums.

Oil Firm Settlement Near $1 Million

SAN ANGELO (AP) — While jurors were deliberating in a $10 million damage suit, plaintiffs reached an out-of-court settlement with Sun Oil Co. and a tank repair firm accused of causing an explosion that left two men dead and two others badly burned.

Plaintiff's attorney John Green said the settlement was "close to $1 million" for the injured workers and families of the dead men.

Jurors had deliberated 12½ hours in three days when the settlement was announced Monday.

Don Holliday and Guy Hadorn Jr. of Odessa, were injured in the 1976 oil tank explosion on a Sun Oil lease near Big Lake. Two others, Donald Royce Holliday and Garvin Dean Moore, died as a result of burns. Don Holliday was the father of Donald Royce Holliday.

Their families alleged the explosion was caused by negligence on the part of Sun Oil and Texas Tanque.

The defense contended throughout the week-long trial that one of Holliday's crew was responsible.

The elder Holliday, owner of tank repair firm, had contracted with Texas Tanque to install a walkway between an existing tank and a tank recently brought to the lease.

While Holliday and the three other men were working, the new tank exploded, burning the younger Holliday and Moore over 85 percent of their bodies, burning Hadorn over 50 percent of his body and slightly injuring Don Holliday.

Holliday and Moore died several weeks later in a San Antonio hospital. Hadorn is still undergoing plastic surgery for his injuries.

Green, the plaintiffs, and Sun Oil attorney Lucius Bunton declined to disclose the exact amount of the settlement. But Green, who also is Ector County district attorney, said Hadorn had received more than $500,000 and the three other plaintiffs had received "lesser amounts."

Green said the plaintiffs decided to accept the offer because they feared there would be a hung jury and the case would have to be retried.

Enrollment Numbers On Rise In Schools

AUSTIN (AP) — The number of public school districts in Texas has steadily declined since 1974-75 but enrollment has risen, the Texas Education Agency reported Monday.

The TEA's annual report to the governor showed Texas had 1,135 school districts in 1974-75 and 1,105 in 1977-78.

The number of students in that same period rose from 2,529,015 to 2,588,319, the agency said.

In the 1978 fiscal year, the report said, the TEA handled more than $2.6 billion in state and federal funds for schools.

"This is slightly less than 3½ times the $764 million of support 11 years earlier, in 1968," the TEA added. "The proportions of state and federal support, however, have remained virtually constant over this period, varying no more than 2 or 3 percent from the average of about 83 percent for state funds and about 17 percent for federal funds. Private sources of support have been negligible."

European Parliament Opens

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — The first popularly elected European Parliament opened its inaugural session today with Simone Veil, a French advocate of liberal abortion laws, favored for election as president of the 410-member, nine-nation assembly.

Mrs. Veil, a 52-year-old member of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's center-right Republican Party, was challenged by Italian Socialist Mario Zagari. But her election appeared assured when a caucus of the 108 Christian Democrats in the assembly endorsed her Monday night despite the objections of some Italian and Irish Catholics because of her sponsorship of the liberal French abortion law adopted when she was health minister.

Hundreds of demonstrators, mostly from Italy, gathered outside the Parliament today to protest Mrs. Veil's pro-abortion stand.

"We are here to protest against abortion, and against the candidacy of Mrs. Veil, whose name is linked to abortion in the opinion of many Europeans," said Piero Pirovano of Milan, a member of the Movement for Life anti-abortion league.

Other groups, also from Italy, clustered behind police barricades demanding a pan-European currency and more authority for the near-powerless assembly.

The Parliament has a total of 210 center-right members, including Christian Democrats, Conservatives and Liberals, plus 21 rightist European Progressive Democrats. On the left, there are 111 Socialists and 44 Communists. There are also 24 independents ranging all the way across the political spectrum, from ultra-right to ultra-left.

The European Parliament grew out of the parliamentary Assembly of the six-nation European Coal and Steel Community established in 1952, the forerunner of the 1958 European Economic Community or Common Market and European Atomic Energy Community.

When the Coal-Steel, Economic and Atomic communities united in 1967 to form the European Communities, the Assembly became the European Parliament, with its members chosen by the parliaments of the member nations.

In 1976, a summit meeting of the member nations agreed to direct election of the Parliament members. After a year's delay, the first election was held in June. About 60 percent of the 180 million voters in Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Denmark and Ireland participated, a low percentage by European standards.

Advocates of European unity consider the new Parliament a momentous step toward the peaceful realization of the centuries-old dream brought closest to fulfillment heretofore by the conquests of Charlemagne in the 8th century and Adolf Hitler in the 20th. They expect it to be a major moral voice. But its powers are extremely limited.

It has authority over the Common Market's $21-billion budget and can dissmiss the commisson that administers Common Market policy and directs the bureaucracy. But it has no power over national governments.

The Parliament is also a reflection of the diversity of the nine nations of the European Communities. It has six official languages, with simultaneous translation of all proceedings. Some of its members in their election campaigns promised to work to broaden its powers; others promised to work to curtail them. And the absence of 40 percent of the voters from the polls in June indicated the sizable lack of interest in progress toward European unity among the public.

Britain, France, West Germany and Italy each are allotted 81 of the 410 seats. The Netherlands has 25, Belgium 24, Denmark 16, Ireland 15 and Luxembourg 6.

Hussein Continues Hard-Line Policies

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — The leadership of Iraq changed hands in a stunning television spectacular. But for all the drama, little or no change was expected in Baghdad's hard-line stand against the United States and the Egyptian-Israeli peace.

Ahmad Hassan Al Bakr, 65, stepped before the cameras Monday night to announce he was resigning as Iraq's president "for health reasons," and that strongman Gen. Sadam Hussein was taking his place.

The ruling Revolutionary Command Council announced immediately that Hussein, 42, a tall, elegant champion of Iraqi Baath Socialist Party infighting, will move into all of Bakr's lositions — the presidency, the council chairmanship, the premiership and the Baath Party secretary generalship.

"My health state ... doesn't allow me any more to take the responsbilities which the (revolutionary) council has honored me with," the now balding and bespectacled Bakr told a nationwide television audience.

"I've asked my friends to lift this burden from my shoulders," he said. Neither Bakr nor the revolutionary council said immediately what the outgoing president's plans were.

But Iraq, legendary home of the Garden of Eden and birthplace of the grand civilizations of Babylon and Ur, was unlikely to change its hard-line policies.

Hussein, described by one diplomatic observer as "extemely sure of himself," has followed faithfully the political line laid down by Bakr and the leftist Baathist Party that has run the country since a doublebarreled coup in 1968.

The first coup on July 17 was engineered by a young army officer, Lt. Gen. Abdel Razzak Nayef, and deposed the regime of President Abdul Rahman Aref. But the key date for Bakr that year came nearly two weeks later.

On July 30, the 10th tank division led by Gen. Hamadi Al Takriti rumbled through the streets to take control of Baghdad and the government radio station, from which it was announced that the Nayef government had fallen and the appointment of Ahamd Hassan Al Bakr as commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

Four months later, a vice president was named, 32-yearold Sadam Hussein.

As Bakr's No. 2 man, Hussein carved a political niche of his own by guiding Iraq in a series of overtures aimed at a reconciliation with the communists.

Hussein flew twice to Moscow, laying the groundwork for the "friendship and cooperation" treaty of April 9, 1972, cementing ties between the Soviet Union and Iraq "in all fields."

Asians Meeting To Resolve Refugee Crisis

By United Press International

Asian leaders headed for Switzerland today determined to resolve the Vietnamese refugee crisis. But Vietnam warned it would walk out of the conference if it were singled out for attacks.

"The conference could break up and produce no result if it is used only for political debate," Radio Hanoi said Monday.

Vietnam, which is sending delegates to the Geneva meeting, said some countries wanted to "use this forum to slander Vietnam and undermine the efforts of sincere countries."

Hong Kong Gov. Murrary MacLehose left the British colony today for London where he was to join the British delegation to the refugee conference Friday and Saturday.

Japanese Foreign Minister Sunao Sonoda was leaving Tokyo today to attend the opening of the conference, but he was scheduled to leave Friday for a friendship tour of five black African nations.

Thailand will be represented at the Geneva parley by Air Marshal Sidhi Svetsila, secretary general of the National Security Council. He left Bangkok today with seven aides, vowing to avoid criticizing Vietnam at the conference so that the work of finding new homes for the refugees can be completed.

Malaysian Home Affairs Minister Ghazali Shafie, whose troops have been accused of raping and robbing Vietnamese refugees, also left Kuala Lumpur for London en route to Geneva.

On the eve of the summit, resettlement efforts by Western nations appeared to be picking up steam after many months of inaction. French, Norwegian and American mercy ships were operating in the South China Sea rescuing refugees in sinking boats. A Swiss team was selecting refugees in Malaysia for resettlement.

In Ottawa, Canada announced it would rent planes to bring refugees to Canada and send more officials to Southeast Asia to select boat people.

The Canadian Immigration Department said more than 60,000 persons are fleeing Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos each month. There are now 350 000 in refugee camps.

In Singapore, the Straits Times newspaper called on the governments attending the Geneva parley not to be taken in by Hanoi's propaganda.

The newspaper said Vietnam and its backer the Soviet Union were attempting to appear "compromising and reasonable" but in fact "they will not deviate one iota unless forced to."

Rescued Viet Boat People To Resettle In Norway

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Another 26 Vietnamese refugees rescued by a Norwegian tanker headed for Singapore today with a guarantee they would be resettled in the Scananavian nation.

The 80,000-ton Bar Bare was en route for Japan for repairs when it picked up the refugees in the South China Sea, according to the Singapore representative of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees.

The latest group, which has a guarantee of resettlement in Norway, included 10 children, 6 women and 10 men.

It was not yet known whether they were from the original group of 289 who were towed away from Malaysia July 3 and cut adrift the next day in five leaky boats with little fuel or water.

Ninety-three persons including 20 children, the only known survivors from the July 3 group, settled in a temporary shelter in Singapore today. They joined 763 other refugees awaiting guaranteed resettlement elsewhere, mostly in the United States.

The 93 from the American mercy vessel Sea Sweep came ashore shortly after midnight expressing gratitude for their rescue.

The Associated Press Chronicles the Life and Times of John Wayne

Tom Dunson... Rooster Cogburn... J.B. Books... Sgt. John M. Stryker... Ringo Kid... Sean Thornton....
All the characters we have learned to know and to love... all the characters in John Wayne movies.
John Wayne, half-myth, half movie star. John Wayne, a name that seems synonymous with American movies themselves. It's not a movie "with" John Wayne, or even "starring" John Wayne. It is, simply, "a John Wayne movie." The image is immediate and clear.
"JOHN WAYNE: A TRIBUTE" chronicles the life and times of the rugged, two-fisted hero of some 150 movies—and the personal challenges in his life—his three marriages, lung cancer, open heart surgery, political debates, stomach cancer...
With some 250 photographs, "JOHN WAYNE: A TRIBUTE" puts it all together in a memento worthy of its protagonist.

LPOA Threatens To Take City To Court

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock Property Owners Association will take the City of Lubbock to court if three charter amendments proposed by the organization are not submitted to the voters, LPOA attorney Warren Goss says.

Although Goss claims he is optimistic "good sense, knowledge and integrity will prevail" and the Lubbock City Council will call an election on the three tax limitation amendments, he says the LPOA can force the council to call the election if it refuses.

On Thursday, when the LPOA petitions calling for such an election were presented to the council, City Attorney John Ross said he thought the proposed amendments present "serious legal questions" which may prevent them from being placed on the ballot.

Specifically, Ross questioned whether the initiative process by which voters can petition the council for a charter amendment election can be used on the three LPOA amendments.

Although Ross said further study is needed of the proposed charter amendments and of applicable state law, he indicated he would recommend against calling an election unless the questions are resolved.

However, the LPOA's recourse if an election is not called, Goss says, is to file for a writ of mandamus from state district court to compel the council to submit the amendments to the voters.

Failing that, Goss says the organization might take its fight to federal court with claims that the rights of LOA members to due process and equal protection had been violated by the council's refusal to allow them a voice in taxation procedures.

Ross' statements regarding the election "seem somewhat premature," Goss says, adding the city attorney appears "not to be doing a very good job."

"It sounds like he's going to pose arguments regardless of the constitutional questions," Goss says.

LPOA director Elmer East, also an attorney, says Ross should be more specific about the constitutional questions he has about the proposed amendments.

"Anybody can express grave concern over constitutional questions," East says. "It's been going on for years."

The council should "follow the clear mandate of the people" by submitting the amendments to the voters, East says.

"When it comes to the question of encumbering future tax revenues of the city, they ought to let the people speak," he says.

LPOA chairman Bob Green says he is unconcerned by Ross' statements because "we did quite a bit of legal research before we started this thing and we think we have as good attorneys as the city."

If submitted to and approved by Lubbock voters, the amendments would limit the city tax rate to the current $1.12 per $100 valuation, limit the assessment ratio to the present 60 percent of market value and require voter approval for any increase in the tax rate or assessment ratio.

Ross will give the city council his legal opinion of the amendments and his recommendation on whether they should be submitted for a vote when the council meets July 26.

Attorneys For Drug Defendants Seeking Additional Evidence

Avalanche-Journal Staff

Attorneys for Steven Moss and Joe Leonard Jr., two of 14 persons indicted last month as alleged conspirators in a South Plains cocaine trafficking ring, Monday filed pretrial motions seeking additional government evidence against the defendants.

Both Moss, of 3102 40th St., and Leonard, of Austin, were named as co-conspirators in one of six sealed indictments returned June 7 by a federal grand jury. They are accused of transporting cocaine from Austin to Lubbock for distribution and, in a second count of that indictment, Moss is charged with possession of cocaine.

A second indictment names Moss as a conspirator in another cocaine trafficking operation.

Travis Shelton, Moss' attorney, stated in his motions concerning the two indictments that because of "limited access to the government's file," Moss believes the U.S. attorney's office has other material relevant to the cases.

This other material, Shelton added in briefs supporting the separate motions, should be made available to his client "because the (indictments are) based on the very broad, vague and uncertain allegation of conspiracy by both named and unnamed co-conspirators."

Among materials sought by Moss and Shelton are transcripts of all grand jury witness testimony and any conversations that were written down with such persons before they testified, a list of prosecution witnesses, results of all scientific tests and statements made to law enforcement agents or other persons, provided such statements were recorded.

Shelton also filed a motion for a Bill of Particulars, seeking specific information about the allegations in the indictments, including when the alleged conspiracies began and ended and the alleged role of Moss in each conspiracy.

A third motion filed concerning each indictment seeks any evidence the government may have in connection with the indictments that may be favorable to Moss.

Leonard's attorney, Anthony Nicholas of San Antonio, filed three motions with the clerk Monday.

The first motion filed by Nicholas requests a separate trial for Leonard because it is "highly prejudicial to (Leonard's) name" to be tried jointly with the other co-defendants.

Nicholas also is seeking a pretrial evidentiary hearing or an order from the court that the government offer its proof of the indictment's charges "prior to the introduction of any hearsay testimony of co-conspirators."

The third motion filed on behalf of Leonard asks that if the court refuses to grant him a separate trial, he be given an additional six peremptory jury select challenges separate from those of the other defendants.

Monday was the final day attorneys could file any pretrial motions for clients facing Aug. 6 trial dates. In addition to the trials of the persons named in the indictments, including Moss and Leonard, the trial of Stephen Zane Hall also is set for the Aug. 6 docket.

Hall is charged in another indictment with two counts of possession of cocaine with intent to distribute the drug.

Tobacco Firms Up Cigarette Prices

By JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

More than ever before, the spending money of cigarette users is going up in smoke.

Two of the nation's largest tobacco companies Monday told their distributors they are raising the price of a carton of cigarettes nearly 15 cents, effective immediately. The other major companies are expected to follow suit later this week.

The increase is the second since about Christmas, when the tobacco companies kicked their prices up nearly 20 cents a carton.

Local distributors received telegrams from R.J. Reynolds Co. (the world's largest tobacco company) and Liggett-Meyers Co., informing them of the sudden increases. Reynolds produces such brands as Winston, Salem, Camel, Vantage and More, while Liggett-Meyers makes Chesterfields and L&Ms.

In Lubbock, the average price for a carton of cigarettes will jump from about $5.50 to $5.65, while vending packs could jump to as much as 85 cents, according to Matt Smith, co-owner of McKee Distributors here, which handles about 20,000 cartons of cigarettes weekly.

"That may not seem like so much of an increase until you realize that nearly half the cost of cigarettes is a combination of federal and state taxes," Smith said. "That 15-cent increase is really an increase of about 25 percent of the actual cost of the cigarettes."

Before this new increase, the price of cigarettes, excluding any taxes, was about $2.75 per carton. But to that amount, the federal government added 80-cent tax, while Texas added another $1.85, so the actual cost of cigarettes was only 52 percent of the retail price.

"(The new increase is) a pretty healthy increase, but it's pretty well hidden in the taxes," Smith said.

Smith said the tobacco companies offered no explanation for the increases.

"The telegrams said only that the increases were within the guidelines set by the president's Council for Wage and Price Guidelines," he said. "I'm guessing that it just costs more to get the merchandise to the public, and that it costs more to keep their representatives out in the field fulltime."

Cigarette prices have been rising nearly twice a year for the last few years, Smith said.

The only way frustrated smokers can force the price to drop or at least remain the same is to "let the cigarettes sit on the shelf," he said.

"The market will charge what the traffic will bear," he continued. "If $5.65 cigarettes are too much, don't buy them. The tobacco companies will have to lower their prices to a point where people will pay them again. It works the same way with clothes or anything else."

In the meantime, that mile walk for a Camel is rapidly becoming a most expensive one.

AAM Wants Brown To Explain Stand

AUSTIN (AP) — Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown owes the public an explanation of why he so strongly opposes creation of a farmers advisory commission, the American Agriculture Movement says.

The organization also said Brown's apology for a racial slur made in a display of temper did not go far enough.

"We accept Mr. Brown's apology to the general public, but we feel he owes a public apology specifically to the black citizens and family farmers of this state," American Agriculture said in a statement Monday.

Craig Bryant of Austin, a spokesman for American Agriculture, said the statement was drafted after a weekend conference call among farmers who took part in a July 10 meeting in Brown's office.

Bryant also said the group decided against making public a tape that was secretly made of the conversation with Brown.

"Since he (Brown) is going to be in office a few more years, we want to get along with him the best we can," Bryant said.

Brown reportedly grew angry during the meeting and said he did not need the farmers' vote to be re-elected because "there are more niggers on a Houston street than there are farmers in Texas."

"Mr. Brown has forgotten that the people are the government and not the other way around. To slur the blacks and belittle the farmers is beyond our comprehension. It's a sad day when an elected official not only slurs the people he is elected to serve but tells them they have no right to question his actions — that he alone knows what is best," the statement said.

American Agriculture said Brown had refused to explain why he opposes creation of an agricultural producers advisory commission.

"Mr. Brown is certainly fearful of a citizens advisory commission for agriculture. The public has a right to know why," the statement said.

The statement also criticized the middle men whom American Agriculture blames for rising food prices. Bryant said Brown has the power to investigate them but has not done so.

"We are concerned when bread prices go up because wheat prices are up. But when wheat prices go down, bread prices do not go down," American Agriculture said.

Bryant said some grain companies in a strip running from Victoria to Corsicana are cutting from 15 to 20 cents from what they pay farmers for a bushel of wheat if it has a yellow color.

He said the companies claim the color shows a loss of protein content resulting from the wheat's having been rained on and then dried. Bryant said the U.S. Department of Agriculture dropped that standard two years ago.

State Board Inspecting Rising Insurance Rates

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Insurance Board is expected to receive a staff report Wednesday recommending a statewide average car insurance increase of between 10 percent and 15 percent.

But board member Lyndon Olson said Monday the board will closely examine the assumptions made by the rating formula before making a final decision.

The result could be a smaller increase than staff actuaries arrived at with their usual rating methods.

The staff recommendations will be presented at a conference Wednesday to set the ground rules for the Aug. 1 statewide car insurance hearing.

Rate proposals from the insurance industry are expected to be in the range of 20 percent to 25 percent.

Olson said he and the board's new chairman, William Daves, "are taking a really hard look at the way we set insurance rates."

"We want to know what that formula says. ... If we use investment income, we want to know how we use it. If not, we want to know if we should," Olson said.

For about a decade, the board has formally recognized that insurance company earnings consist not only of policyholders' premiums but also of income from investing those premiums.

Oil Firm Settlement Near $1 Million

SAN ANGELO (AP) — While jurors were deliberating in a $10 million damage suit, plaintiffs reached an out-of-court settlement with Sun Oil Co. and a tank repair firm accused of causing an explosion that left two men dead and two others badly burned.

Plaintiff's attorney John Green said the settlement was "close to $1 million" for the injured workers and families of the dead men.

Jurors had deliberated 12½ hours in three days when the settlement was announced Monday.

Don Holliday and Guy Hadorn Jr. of Odessa, were injured in the 1976 oil tank explosion on a Sun Oil lease near Big Lake. Two others, Donald Royce Holliday and Garvin Dean Moore, died as a result of burns. Don Holliday was the father of Donald Royce Holliday.

Their families alleged the explosion was caused by negligence on the part of Sun Oil and Texas Tanque.

The defense contended throughout the week-long trial that one of Holliday's crew was responsible.

The elder Holliday, owner of tank repair firm, had contracted with Texas Tanque to install a walkway between an existing tank and a tank recently brought to the lease.

While Holliday and the three other men were working, the new tank exploded, burning the younger Holliday and Moore over 85 percent of their bodies, burning Hadorn over 50 percent of his body and slightly injuring Don Holliday.

Holliday and Moore died several weeks later in a San Antonio hospital. Hadorn is still undergoing plastic surgery for his injuries.

Green, the plaintiffs, and Sun Oil attorney Lucius Bunton declined to disclose the exact amount of the settlement. But Green, who also is Ector County district attorney, said Hadorn had received more than $500,000 and the three other plaintiffs had received "lesser amounts."

Green said the plaintiffs decided to accept the offer because they feared there would be a hung jury and the case would have to be retried.

Enrollment Numbers On Rise In Schools

AUSTIN (AP) — The number of public school districts in Texas has steadily declined since 1974-75 but enrollment has risen, the Texas Education Agency reported Monday.

The TEA's annual report to the governor showed Texas had 1,135 school districts in 1974-75 and 1,105 in 1977-78.

The number of students in that same period rose from 2,529,015 to 2,588,319, the agency said.

In the 1978 fiscal year, the report said, the TEA handled more than $2.6 billion in state and federal funds for schools.

"This is slightly less than 3½ times the $764 million of support 11 years earlier, in 1968," the TEA added. "The proportions of state and federal support, however, have remained virtually constant over this period, varying no more than 2 or 3 percent from the average of about 83 percent for state funds and about 17 percent for federal funds. Private sources of support have been negligible."

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband's mother had been a widow for a long time. About two years ago she married a nice-looking, quiet man none of us knew. They live only a few miles from us but we never visit them, and neither do any of her other four children who live in this area. The reason is one you will probably not believe: Mom's husband smells like he hasn't had a bath in 50 years! I am not kidding. Their house is an absolute pigsty; every piece of furniture in the place smells to high heaven. Nobody cares to eat or drink in their house because the smell spoils their appetite.

Mom was in the hospital for three weeks recently, and every day we'd take her husband to the hospital with us (it's a 25-mile drive). He smelled so bad we had to keep all the car windows open.

My husband even told him flat out that people were complaining, and to please clean himself up, but he got mad and refused to do anything about it.

The merchants in town complain about him, but they can't keep him out. They spray after he leaves. Abby, what can we do?

Holding Our Noses In W. Va.

Dear Holding: The man must be mentally ill. And his wife has either lost her sense of smell or she's as sick as he is. This is a case for a doctor. For goodness' sake, don't just hold your noses; hold a family conference and get some medical advice!

DEAR ABBY: Ten years ago, before I met the man I married (I'll call him Bob), he got a girl pregnant. Bob was in the service in San Diego at the time.

The girl went to a home for unwed mothers in Seattle, had the baby (a girl) and gave it up for adoption. She named Bob as the baby's father.

My questions: When this child grows up, do we have any responsibility for her? Can she locate us if she wants to? Does she have any claim on my husband's estate if he dies before I do?

We have children of our own. Our wills read: "To all our surviving children..." Is this daughter considered a surviving child of my husband's?

Bob told me that he has no real proof that this is really his child. He said he didn't love the girl, but he did sleep with her one weekend exactly nine months before the baby was born, so he could be the father.

Where do we stand?

Needs To Know

Dear Needs: You could be standing right behind the eight ball — or in a safety zone, depending on what state you live in. (The laws differ.) Your questions are intelligent. Consult a lawyer. It could be the best investment you ever made

DEAR ABBY: I am in love with a divorcee and want to marry her. She says she loves me, too, but doesn't want to get married again because, if she does, her ex will not have to pay her any more alimony. She frankly admits that it's not the money — she just wants to punish him by making him pay as long as she lives.

I am not rich, but I could support her well enough so that she wouldn't have to go to work.

How can I get her to change her mind?

In Love In St. Charles

Dear In: You probably can't. And you could be lucky.

Quiz Examines Marriage Predictability, Mystique

NEW YORK (Special) — The opposite of romance is predictability, according to New York psychotherapist Carole Altman. "When we say that a love affair or a marriage has gone stale, what we actually mean is that one or both partners has come to know exactly what to expect, and when and how."

Mrs. Altman's observations are based on more than 15 years experience as a practicing psychologist and marriage counselor. Her theories on the dynamics of love relationships were confirmed, she says, by a recent study conducted for the publishers of Mystique Books, who asked Mrs. Altman to help predict the popularity of a new romantic-suspense series combining the twin elements of love and mystery.

Being unpredictable is difficult in a long-term relationship, Mrs. Altman adds, but it can be done. The quiz that follows can help you test your own romantic mystique ratio. The questions are applicable to both men and women.

THE MYSTIQUE QUIZ

1. You pursue interests in which your mate is not involved
   a. once a week or more.
   b. occasionally.
   c. rarely.
2. When you are faced with a problem, you
   a. follow your mate's advice.
   b. ask for help if needed, but make your own decision.
   c. solve it yourself.
   d. discuss it and arrive at a joint solution.
3. When you disagree with your mate's opinions, you
   a. offer your own ideas.
   b. explain why he is wrong.
   c. agree to keep the peace.
4. You are bored with the relationship; you
   a. keep it to yourself; why risk hurt feelings?
   b. complain to your mate.
   c. suggest possible solutions.
5. When invited out independently, you
   a. refuse.
   b. accept if you think you will enjoy it.
   c. ask your mate's permission before accepting.
   d. ask that your mate be invited too.
6. When entertaining, you invite
   a. mutual friends.
   b. people he doesn't know.
   c. both.
7. Your wardrobe, hairstyle and makeup are
   a. conservative.
   b. dramatic.
   c. sexy.
   d. a mixture of the above.
8. When you buy a smashing new outfit, you
   a. take it out of the box to show it to him.
   b. have it on the next time you go out together.
   c. ask your mate's opinion before making the purchase.
   d. do the shopping together.
9. You give parties, plan evenings out and give gifts
   a. on birthdays, anniversaries and other special occasions.
   b. whenever the spirit moves you.
10. When your mate asks you how your day went, you
    a. repond with "Fine, how was yours?"
    b. give him a detailed account.
    c. relate the events you think are genuinely interesting.
    d. relate only the positive events.

MYSTIQUE QUIZ ANSWERS (Score 10 points for each correct answer.)
1. (a) 2. (b) 3. (a) 4. (c) 5. (b) 6. (c) 7. (d) 8. (b) 9. (b) 10. (c).

A score of 70 or more indicates that you inject an interesting degree of suspense into your love relationship; 40 to 60 suggests that your romance may be suffering from a lack of surprise and challenge; 30 or less indicates that dependency or timidity is keeping you in a predictable — and unromantic — rut.

PAM LENNING

Pam Lenning, bride-elect of Richard Alexander, was honored Saturday with a miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. Terry Vieregge.

Special guests were Mrs. James Alexander, mother of the future bridegroom; Mrs. Timothy F. Lenning and Mrs. C.L. Owen, mother and grandmother of the bride-elect.

The couple plans to be married Aug. 3 in the Broadway Church of Christ.

Pronounciation Changes Through Years

HOUSTON (AP) — Ask a Texan to count "eight, nine, ten," but don't correct his pronunciation when he says, "eight, nahn, tin," advises John W. Black.

Black, a retired member of Ohio State University's communication faculty, is a visiting professor of speech at Texas Southern University.

"Most of us hear with our mouths. In other words, we subconsciously match what we hear with what we would say if we had done the talking," he says.

"In fact, to criticize a person's habitual pronunciation is often taken as an affront because a person's pronunciation is so much a part of himself."

Pointing out that no one is immune to language conditioning, Black, a native of Veedersburg, Ind., recalled that "many of us who were reared near the Wabash River have trouble saying the diphthong of 'owl.'"

"While speaking in class recently I stopped after saying the word 'vowel' and asked if the class noticed anything odd," he says. "One girl snickered that I said 'vol.'

"But it turned out that same girl had picked the word 'since' on a pronunciation test as sounding like 'fence.'"

Black, past president of the Speech Association of America and other professional societies, explained how the American language had been changing ever since the colonists settled here in the 1700s.

To examine some of this change, Black recently repeated a student pronunciation test he first gave some 40 years ago and compared the results.

He found not only evidence of change, but also that most Americans are more tolerant of variations in pronunciation than they were a few decades back.

"Pronunciation trends are hard to pin down," he says, "but if there is anything you can say, it's that the discrepancy between the heard version and the written version of the language has been increasing and will continue to increase."

Characteristic of this divergence between the heard and written expression of language, says Black, is a tendency toward overcorrection — called "hyperurbanism."

He points out that a common example of hyperurbanism is the pronunciation of the "t" in "often."

"This inclination has led us toward pronunciation as spelled and the insertion of a great many silent letters into our speech," he said.

"Take that word 'toward' which I just used. It used to rhyme with gourd, but the tendency today is to say 'too-ward.'"

Black said our tolerance of variable pronunciations was apparent all around, both among educated and uneducated people.

All attempts at simplified spelling — to bring the written and heard language closer together — have failed since the time Noah Webster tried it, he said.

"Furthermore, had later proponents of simplified spelling been as influential as Webster, the gap between the English and American languages could be much wider."

Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary notes that not all educated speakers pronounce words the same way and that a second-place variant is not to be regarded as less acceptable than the pronunciation given first, Black pointed out.

"Even so, teachers cannot let bizarre and unlettered pronunciations go unnoticed," he added.

"Nor can they ignore the fact that the educated person is expected to exhibit certain characteristics of pronunciation that reflect breadth of experience and classroom exchange of ideas."

He advises that should a contemporary dictionary record the variant pronunciations of educated speakers, "students — guided by teachers — should monitor their own usages, checking them against listed variants."

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS

1 cup prepared instant mashed potatoes
1 egg
1 tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. nutmeg
⅛ tsp. ginger
Butter or margarine
1 lb. ground beef
½ lb. ground pork
2 tbsp. minced onions
1 tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. allspice
¼ tsp. pepper

Prepare 1 cup (2 servings) instant mashed potatoes as directed on package. Combine all ingredients except butter; mix thoroughly. Form into tiny balls using about 1 level tablespoon of mixture per ball. Melt butter in frying pan; add meat balls. Brown over low heat, shaking pan occasionally to brown evenly. Yield: 48 meatballs.

Decorator Utilizes Secondhand Items

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

Designer Leslie Linsley is addicted to secondhand stores and junkyards the way some women are to dress shops.

She can't pass one by. Linsley reacts the same way to military surplus stores, garage and tag sales, hardware stores, lumberyards and suppliers of plumbing, industrial, restaurant and pharmaceutical equipment.

What most other people regard as either worthless junk or institutional products, she turns into attractive and unusual home furnishings and accessories. They are also cheap.

"Some people call it 'low tech,'" she said in an interview, a reference to the current vogue for "high tech" — industrial furniture and furnishings in the home.

Steel shelves, a popular "high tech" item, can cost hundreds of dollars.

Most of the projects in Linsley's crafts book, "Army-Navy Surplus" (Dell paperback $7.95) cost less than $10 to make, sometimes a lot less.

She said she paid $1 for a baker's five-loaf steel bread pan at a sale of used restaurant supplies. After cleaning it up, she spray-painted it bright red and marked each pan with press-on letters from an art supply house. She uses it in her Nantucket, Mass., kitchen to hold table knives, forks, spoons, napkins and miscellaneous articles.

She uses an old French map case she bought in an army-navy store in San Francisco as a purse.

Army-navy stores sell cooking equipment for a fraction of the cost of department stores and specialty shops, she said.

Not that she uses them to cook in. Smaller pans become ash trays or serving dishes. Spray-painted, the kidney-shaped field cup from a mess kit becomes a vase or a handy holder for cosmetics, toothbrushes and toothpaste.

"A brushed aluminum paint bucket makes a good ice bucket," she said, and when it frosts up, that adds to its charm. To make ice last longer in it, she suggests a cheap plastic foam ice bucket as a liner.

"We're very visually oriented," Linsley said of herself and her husband, Jon Aron, a designer and photographer.

"This is our way of living, using space creatively without spending a lot of money. We often can't afford what we want to buy.

"I think today people will spend money on a comfortable couch but they might not spend money on accessories — ash trays, a candy dish, a fruit bowl.

"People should look more closely at ordinary things. Right now places like Bloomingdale's (a trendy New York department store) carry industrial lamps in bright colors."

It's a lot cheaper, she said, to spray paint the kind factories buy. She said sources can be located by consulting industrial catalogs in your local library.

Suppliers are surprisingly nice to deal with, she said. "They're fascinated by someone walking in off the street (to buy their merchandise.)

"Hardware and plumbing supply houses have wonderful hooks that do a better job than decorative hooks."

If the gasoline shortage puts a crimp in her weekend drives to find objects to make over, she can always look in her own kitchen drawers. The last time she did that, she found two giant, spring-operated tension hooks, the kind used to fasten tennis nets to poles.

She put them together end-to-end to make a hanger for a planter — a yellow plastic paint bucket that cost about $1.25.

New Clinic Helps Teenage Girls

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The young girls were ill at ease, troubled by the score or more older women sitting in the doctor's waiting room. Some wanted to leave without seeing the physician because they felt out-of-place in the surroundings.

Dr. Patti Jayne Ross had witnessed this scene on many occasions and decided the time had come to open an obstetrics and gynecology clinic for girls between the ages of 10 and 19. Those older need not call for appointments.

"Some felt too old to go to a pediatrician and uncomfortable in an obstetrician-gynecologist office because they felt too young," Dr. Ross said.

With the help of the University of Texas Medical School, Dr. Ross opened the youth clinic and the "response has been very, very good. The girls now are with their peers. They have common interests and can relate to one another. The adolescents are a group that has been overlooked in the past and their needs are great," she said.

The clinic offers routine gynecological examinations, care for venereal disease, obstetric care for pregnant teenagers and sex education.

Dr. Ross, a graduate of the Tulane School of Medicine, said, "We use sex education during the examinations to help those young girls know more about their bodies. A lot of girls, believe it or not, don't know how they got pregnant.

"Despite the talk of a free society and sexual activity, so many know so little."

Dr. Ross says each patient is treated individually. "I had a girl of 16 as a patient. She was a young 16 and I wouldn't go through all the birds and bees lecture. She just wasn't ready. In another case, there was a much younger girl who was ready to listen and to learn."

One of the greatest benefits of the clinic, Dr. Ross, 31, said, "is that mothers often come with their daughters. They come in as a team. I examine the girl and then ask if she wants her mother with her for our talk. In 99 percent of the cases, the girls ask that Mom be in the room. That is healthy. That makes it work. That makes it all worthwhile."

In the months and years ahead, Dr. Ross said, she hopes to branch out into sex education lectures in the schools of Houston; to work with rape victims; to give advice on adoption, on how to lower the venereal disease rate, now high in the growing Houston area.

"This is not a clinic where you are rushed through," Dr. Ross said. "Each patient is a private patient. They or their parents pay for the costs. They are treated like private patients and the young girls seem to appreciate this.

"I want to see these clinics grow throughout Houston and the nation. Once we can deal with the young girls in surroundings where they feel at home, we can solve so many of the problems of the future," she said.

Engagements

HOWELL—STRUVE

LEVELLAND (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. A.J. Howell announce the engagement of a daughter, Glenda Fern, to Victor Albano Struve Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor A. Struve of Abernathy.

The couple plans to be married Aug. 17 in the Bacon Heights Baptist Church.

The bride-elect was graduated from Valley Union High School in Elfrida, Ariz. and attended Grand Canyon College in Phoenix, South Plains Junior College and Texas Tech University. The future bridegroom was graduated from Abernathy High School and attended Tech.

PINTO BEAN-CHEESE DIP

Opening lead: Three of ♡.

Hoarding assets can be a shortsighted policy at the bridge table. We realize that it goes against the grain to spend two top honors on one trick, but there are often considerations that make this play an overriding necessity.

South had a difficult bid to make at his second turn. His hand was somewhere in between a simple two diamond rebid and a jump to three diamonds. Since North would probably have passed a two diamond rebid, South's actual decision could have produced a hefty profit. Unfortunately, his aggressiveness in the bidding was not accompanied by an equal skill in the play.

West chose to lead his fourth-best heart and declarer won the king. Since there was no entry to dummy, declarer banged down the ace of diamonds in the hope of dropping the king, while carefully unblocking dummy's queen. When the monarch failed to appear, declarer continued with the jack of diamonds from his hand. East won the king and shifted to a spade, and the defenders collected five spade tricks and a diamond for down two.

Declarer was ruined by his own false economy. It was vital to win a trick in dummy as speedily as possible in order to take the diamond finesse. On the first trick, therefore, declarer should have risen with dummy's ace of hearts despite the fact that it decapitated his king!

If he had studied the play more carefully, declarer might have concluded that the ace of hearts was a totally wasted card except as an immediate entry. He simply didn't have the entries between the hands to take his top hearts separately without encountering grave risks. There was the additional consideration of keeping East off lead to avert a potentially fatal spade shift.

With the diamond finesse succeeding, declarer has nine running tricks. But even if it lost, declarer would still have had chances for his contract. On the run of the diamond suit, the defenders would have to be very accurate in their choice of discards in order not to give declarer the fulfilling trick.

New Store Specializes In Old Wooden Toys

By NANCY KERCHEVAL

BALTIMORE (AP) — Children used to entertain themselves for hours spinning two buttons on a cord or whipping the string off a top and watching the toy twirl across the floor.

And there were wooden blocks to build houses with garages that held unsophisticated little cars carrying tiny people.

Then in marched the big toymakers who flooded the market with intricate toys, and games requiring college degrees to assemble and a set of batteries for power.

And with these new toys came higher and higher prices.

Carol Fitzgerald remembers the toys grandmothers talk about. And many of her East Baltimore customers also get nostalgic when they walk into her shop — the Marvelous Toy Store.

The 31-year-old former schoolteacher, and Wade Wright, a one-time lay minister, opened the store two years ago. They learned the skills of the trade, bought several large power tools and started making simple wooden toys.

"They're old folk-toys. We're bringing them back — trying to revive them," Fitzgerald said.

Their first toy was an old-fashioned milk truck, made of solid maple. The wheels are attached with dowels instead of nails, for durability and safety.

"We figure if we pound a dowel in, it's almost impossible to take apart," she said.

"There is really not much design," Fitzgerald said as she sat in the living room of the store-home-workshop building, converted from an old sheet-metal factory which had been vacant for 15 years. "We want to produce fast and make good quality toys at a fair price. This is a working-class neighborhood which can afford our toys."

Most of the tops, tugboats, sailboats, ferry boats, trains, trucks, games and other small items for young children cost between $1 and $10. The wagons, blocks, rocking horses, table and chair sets and doll houses range from $20 to $50.

When the shop opened, Fitzgerald said, about 50 items were produced. But business grew quickly, and now they stock about 200 toys. After the summer fairs are over, business slows down, which gives the toymakers time to build up their stock.

Most of the toys are plain wood, but the tugboat is painted by hand and the train carries small brightly colored people. "Kids love colors," she said, adding that the tub toys are made of pine so they will float.

For Fitzgerald, toymaking was the result of a dream and a need to work with her hands.

"I had a dream of being a cabinet maker. It sounded so romantic," she said. "Instead, we started toymaking.

"It was hard at first, but it's working real well. Anything working with my hands, I really get into. It's therapy for me."

Toymaking is definitely not an eight-hour-a-day job, Fitzgerald said. "While we're making toys, we can't keep the shop open, too, so we have very sporadic hours."

And when they are working, they have all sorts of help from the neighborhood:

"We're running a free day-care center. Mothers who go to the store send their children down here. I put them to work and they love it," she said.

"Lots and lots of kids come in. Some are friends of the shop and some help by coming to fairs with us. We feel we're an integral part of the neighborhood," she said.

One day, Fitzgerald said, she would like to offer apprentice programs for the neighborhood boys and girls, "but that's probably not realistic."

In addition, the shop lends its tools to neighborhood machinists. "We get a nice friendly feeling of mutual aid," she said.

Wade and Fitzgerald have set up a worker-managed operation. As the sign says in the shop: "In a worker-managed shop everybody is their own boss."

"It's an important experiment — taking a workplace on a small scale. We're finding it's real hard — it's a lot easier to ask someone what to do," she said.

Profits are not great. "We're trying to make a living while giving ourselves meaningful work," she said.

CALIFORNIA PLUMS

California's plum orchards grow more than 90% of all the nation's plums — some 20 different major varieties, each distinctive in color, shape, flavor and use. All of the prominent California plums are of two types: the European — always blue or purple, medium-sized, mild in flavor and firm textured; and the Japanese, which may be bright red, crimson or yellow, very juicy and medium to large in size. All are delicious for fresh out of hand snacks or just as good when poached, baked, canned, frozen, jammed or jellied.

School Board To Present Cuts

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Public school administrators were expected today to present proposed expenditure cuts to trustees in order to help offset what at least one board member sees as a deficit school district budget.

During the second day of a two-day work session at 3 p.m., the board also was to consider a request by the Lubbock Classroom Teachers Association for an increase in local salary payments that total $920,123.

Trustees Monday night ordered the administrative staff to cut about $300,000 off the projected general operating expenditures of $40.1 million before the board votes on the 1979-80 budget.

The district is projected to receive only about $39.5 million in revenue for the general operating funds that go into most school programs, however, leaving about a $600,000 deficit.

Although the budget calls for a net figure of $834,956 in cash balance from last year, trustee Buddy Forbess warned that school officials cannot rely on a surplus every year to build up the budget.

The gross surplus for the year is estimated at $2,216,956, but $1,382,000 was subtracted for delinquent taxes that will not be collected, resulting in the $834,956 as the net surplus.

"I'm afraid in a couple of years someone is going to be looking at some gosh awful figures no one will understand," said Forbess.

"If it's going to cost us $600,000 more to operate, I think we ought to face it this year instead of next year," he added. "I don't want to vote on a deficit budget."

Board members also mentioned the possibility of a tax rate increase to bring in more revenue. "If we have to raise taxes to keep the level of education up, I'll vote to do it," said trustee Brad Crawford.

Forbess agreed, saying, "Before I will vote for one (a budget) like this, I'll vote for raising taxes."

During today's session, the board was to consider a local salary increase plan presented by Wendell Huddleston, past president of LCTA, at the June board meeting. The proposed increment increases would be in addition to the 5.1 percent pay raise mandated by the state legislature this year.

Information submitted with the salary increase requested at last month's meeting showed that in the past 43 months, the cost of living has risen 29.2 percent while teachers' salaries have risen only an average of 13.6 percent.

The proposal calls for increases of $360 to $1,107 over last year's increments, depending on the year's of experience.

For instance, a beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree who would make $9,670 this year with the present increment and state raise, would make $10,030 with a $360 local increase.

The proposed raises would increase increment totals — the amount the local district would have to contribute to teacher salaries — to $3,186,148 this year.

During the seven-hour work session Monday, trustees also expressed concern over the delinquent tax collection rate for the school district. Although, the district's budget is based on a 97 percent collection rate for local taxes, money is subtracted from the resulting figure to account for delinquent taxes that will not be collected. Administrators and trustees said that as a result, collection runs at only about 94 percent.

Trustees noted the need for improved collection rates, though they added that the removal of automobiles from the tax roll should improve that rate. Tax-assessor collector John Brooks has said previously that automobile collection rates have averaged about 62 percent in past years.

Deaton Rigsby, the newest member of the board, also suggested looking at ways to reduce the district's inflated workman's compensation rate in future years. He said that the district's bill of $460,000 for workman's compensation "is just dead expense to us," and suggested more emphasis on the district's safety program to combat the high rate.

The district's personnel plan calls for an overall cut of 10.5 in classroom teachers and only one addition in an administrative position at Iles Elementary.

Dr. E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent for administration, said that the district will have about 400 fewer students during the coming year, with the greatest decline in the junior high school population. He said that about 300 less students will attend junior highs this year.

During Monday's lengthy board session, trustees also named two new principals to Ballenger School and Rush Elementary to replace the two administrators who died in a June 17 auto collision.

Johnnye Smith, presently special education consultant at Ballenger, will replace Ballenger principal Tommy Herring and James Baker, elementary education consultant for the schools, will replace Rush principal Bill Bravenec.

Police Probing Man's Death

Police were investigating the unexpected death this morning of a 32-year-old Lubbock man who reportedly was set afire on March 20. Preliminary reports indicate the man died from complications resulting from the four-month-old incident.

Kenneth Dale Ashley of 2611 E. Cornell St. died shortly before 10 a.m. on the operating table at Health Sciences Center Hospital. The man was undergoing surgery in an attempt to relieve tension caused by the burns, Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy said he was told.

LeCroy was withholding a ruling in the death and has ordered an autopsy to be performed on the man at St. Mary's Hospital.

Ashley about 4 a.m. on March 20 walked into Methodist Hospital's emergency room suffering from extensive burns over 25 percent of his body.

The man, who was listed in critical condition several days after being hospitalized in March, had suffered burns on the face, arms and legs.

Police at the time said Ashley, who reportedly was in great pain while talking to officers, would give few details on what happened, except to say he was set afire after having gasoline doused over his body.

REMAINS OF SKYLAB? — San Francisco Examiner editor Steve Cook shows what could be the burnt remains of Skylab. The remains were brought to San Francisco by Australian Stanley Thornton. Tests will be conducted at NASA's Marshal Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., to determine if the debris is actually from Skylab. If the test proves that the debris is Skylab, Thornton will win the $10,000 prize offered by the newspaper. (AP Laserphoto)

Obituaries

Eunice Dotson

Services for Eunice G. Dotson, 67, of 1311 E. Tulane St. will be at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in Immanuel Baptist Church.

The Rev. L.C. Landers, pastor of the church, will officiate and the Rev. Joe Pendleton and the Rev. Raymond King will assist.

Burial will follow in Tahoka Cemetery under direction of Resthaven Funeral Home in Lubbock.

Mrs. Dotson died at her home Monday morning after a lengthy illness. Justice of the Peace Charles Smith ruled the death of natural causes.

The Hamilton County native had lived in the Tahoka area for many years and had lived in Lubbock for the past 15 years.

She married J.F. Dotson Feb. 20, 1932. He died in 1956. Mrs. Dotson was a member of the Immanuel Baptist Church.

Survivors include two sons, Glenn of Lubbock and James of Arlington; four daughters, Elwanda Ford and Linda Kelly, both of Lubbock, Vonnell Lindsey of Brownfield and Freda Wood of Fort Worth; two brothers, J.C. Pendleton of Lubbock and George Pendleton of Andrews; a sister, Thelma Smith of Lubbock; nine grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Ervin French

Local services for Ervin French, 64, of Harlingen will be at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the Resthaven Funeral Home chapel. Home services were conducted Monday in Harlingen.

Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Resthaven Funeral Home.

French died Sunday in Valley Baptist Medical Center of Harlingen after a lengthy illness.

Man Found Guilty At Abuse Trial

A-J News Services

A Wichita, Kan., man, charged in Lubbock with the 1977 murder of his 3-month-old son, was found guilty Monday in Wichita of beating his 3-month-old stepdaughter last January.

Patrick Olivas, 49, was convicted of simple battery, a misdemeanor, in connection with the injuries suffered by the stepdaughter, which police said included permanent brain damage and blindness in one eye.

The man had been charged with aggravated battery, a felony, but the Seigwick County (Kan.) District Court jury found him guilty of the lesser charge.

The maximum sentence for the conviction is six months, and Olivas has already served five months in jail.

In Lubbock, District Attorney John Montford said he plans to seek Olivas' extradition here to stand trial for murder.

The murder charge here stems from the Jan. 15, 1977, beating death of an infant whose body was found just outside Lubbock Feb. 19 of this year.

The suspect's common-law wife early this year told Amarillo authorities that Olivas had beaten the child to death after an argument the couple had at a Lubbock motel, according to Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard.

The woman led Blanchard and other authorities to the spot where she said she buried the body about a mile north of FM 1729 and North University Avenue.

Lubbock County Jail trusties using shovels found the deteriorated body of the small infant at the site.

Olivas is accused here of "repeatedly hitting the infant child with an open hand, holding the infant by the feet and striking the body of the infant child against the bed...

"And holding the infant child in a sitting position, repeatedly bending the child forward, then striking the child, thereby causing the death of said individual."

A joint autopsy report by Lubbock pathologist Dr. John Ray and Harris County medical examiner Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk led to Olivas' indictment for murder.

Montford's office recommended Kansas authorities hold Olivas in lieu of $100,000 bond in connection with the charge here.

CDAC To Meet Thursday Night

The Community Development Advisory Committee will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday to consider the use of $65,000 in CD contingency funds for improvements to the intersection of East 50th Street and Quirt Avenue.

The proposed improvements include widening of the intersection and installation of a traffic signal.

Interested citizens are invited to the meeting, which will be at Copper Rawlings Community Center, East 40th Street and Avenue B.

Steakhouse Murder Trial Postponed

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An Alabama drifter charged with six counts of murder in the July 16, 1978, steakhouse killings here has had his evidence hearing postponed after his lawyer asked for more time to study the case.

Roger Dale Stafford has had two private attorneys withdraw from the case because his family couldn't pay the legal fees. On Monday, public defender T. Hurley Jordan received a hearing postponement to August. 1.

LPOA Schedules Membership Rally

The Lubbock Property Owners Association will hold a general membership meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday at Mackenzie Junior High School, 5402 12th St.

LPOA chairman Bob Green said the purpose of the meeting is to bring members up to date on the organization's activities, including the submission of petitions to the Lubbock City Council calling for a tax limitation election.

The group has been conducting a membership drive, largely in northwest Lubbock where the meeting will be held, since residential properties in that area were reappraised this year.

Rationing Plea Moving Toward Panel Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The future of President Carter's new energy program may well depend on what kind of windfall profits tax the Senate Finance Committee votes to impose on the nation's oil producers.

That tax would pay for most of the program, which, at a cost of $142 billion over the next decade, is designed to reduce U.S. dependence on imported oil.

The tax plan recommended by the Carter administration would provide ample revenues for the program, as would a version passed by the House.

But there is considerable doubt the Finance Committee, which traditionally has been friendly to the industry, will approve a large tax on oil revenues. The committee, which may begin voting on the tax next week, may instead opt for a program of its own emphasizing less government involvement in energy production.

If upheld by Congress, such a move could force Carter to completely rethink his massive program, which includes government aid to produce 2.5 million barrels per day of substitutes for imported oil by 1990.

When Carter decided earlier this year to phase out federal price controls on U.S. crude oil, he proposed the windfall profits tax to soak up some of the billions of dollars that will flow to oil producers and owners as a result. That windfall will be created as the price of U.S. oil rises to world market levels.

The tax, which would take away a portion of future price increases that exceed the rate of inflation, is misnamed because it has nothing to do with profits. That point is not lost on opponents, who note an oil producer who made no profit at all during a given year still might have to pay the tax.

Carter wants the tax to finance government assistance in development of oil from shale, tar sands and other exotic sources, and to help the poor pay their energy bills.

The prevailing mood of the Finance Committee seems to be to allow the oil industry to keep a big chunk of the money if it uses it to produce more energy. The reasoning there is that the oil industry has the expertise to produce more energy and that a new government agency, such as proposed by Carter, does not.

The windfall tax passed by the House would produce an estimated $69 billion from 1980 through 1984 for the "energy trust fund" proposed by Carter. In addition, removing price controls will result in sharply higher federal income taxes on oil producers and owners, but these taxes would go into the general treasury — not into the energy fund.

The Carter administration wants those increased income taxes — about $25 billion over the five-year period — to go into the trust fund to help pay for developing alternative fuels.

A second major change made by the House in Carter's bill also would significantly reduce revenues available for the energy trust fund by ending in 1990 the tax on newly discovered oil. Carter had recommended that portion be made permanent.

The House bill still would result in a permanent tax after 1990 on oil that is now subject to controls as well as to certain Alaska production and to "stripper" oil, which is from wells averaging 10 barrels a day or less.

In three days of hearings on the tax, members of the Finance Committee have denounced it as more a revenue-raising bill than as a solution to the nation's energy problem. But members have seemed unable to reach a consensus.

The chairman, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., insists that some sort of windfall tax will be enacted, if only as insurance against reimposing price controls on oil. But he doesn't necessarily mean the same tax Carter is talking about.

Long has not tipped his hand on what kind of a tax he wants, although he has said the basic 60 percent tax rate approved by the House should be cut back to the 50 percent level recommended by Carter.

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, senior Republican on the committee, wants an 80 percent tax. But a company could avoid the tax altogether by pouring all its windfall revenues back into exploration and development. Committee aides say there is not enough support to pass that plan.

Motorists Expected To Benefit From Fuel Allocation Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group says new federal allocation and pricing rules grant windfall profits to gasoline dealers, but an organization of 60,000 service stations claims the regulations don't help enough.

The Energy Department, meanwhile, says more motorists will benefit than suffer from the changes, which set a uniform ceiling on dealer profit margins of 15.4 cents per gallon, effective Monday.

Whatever the future price of gasoline, its supply appeared to be improving Monday.

Even in the hard-hit Northeast, where blocks-long lines at gasoline stations were common in recent weeks, drivers were facing little or no wait.

Missouri Energy Program Dirctor J.W. Abbott said, "We probably are in as good a position as we've been in the past 60 days. ... We think people have realized things aren't as bad as they thought. They're finding out they can operate just as well on the bottom half of their tanks as the top."

In Pennsylvania and Delaware, independent dealers began pumping fuel again after many closed during the weekend to protest the outgoing federal fuel allocation and pricing rules.

While the Energy Department said the new rules would "provide new protection for consumers," the Center for Auto Safety, a private consumer group, said it will file suit this week to overturn the regulations. "No dealer deserves more than an 11-cent to 12-cent profit margin," said its director, Clarence Ditlow.

"The bottom line is: consumers will be paying more and many dealers who don't need relief will be getting windfall profits," said Ditlow. He also charged that the Energy Department moved so rapidly to help dealers it failed to give motorists time to speak out against the new rules.

The department said current profit margins range from 14 cents to 16 cents a gallon, so the new ceiling will not raise prices significantly, and in some instances, it will force rollbacks.

But the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers puts the current average profit margin closer to 12.5 cents per gallon.

Gasoline prices in the Midwest and South should rise the most, with little change in the East, the retailers' group said. Western motorists may see prices fall, it added.

Yet, the dealers' group voiced unhappiness with the rules. "It lets dealers hang on, but it doesn't enable them to rebuild profits they have lost due to inflation," said Risque Harper, spokesman for the retailers.

Under the new rules, the 15.4 cent ceiling can be raised every six months, beginning in December, to allow for inflation. Moreover, governors have the power to increase the profit margin up to an additional 10 cents per gallon to account for local economic factors.

Harper claimed the Energy Department was "passing the buck" to the states.

The rules' impact on motorists is further clouded by the Energy Department's elimination of "banking," a loophole that let many stations, primarily high-volume outlets, charge far more than allowed by the old price ceilings.

Energy Plan Depends On Senate Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Commerce Committee moved today toward expected approval of President Carter's request for standby gasoline rationing authority, even though the committee chairman believes the proposal is a big mistake.

"I've always been against rationing," said Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., the panel's chairman, in an interview. "It's unfair to many people and it leads to corruption."

Staggers predicted committee approval of the bill was imminent. He said he would support bringing it to the House floor, but then would vote against it. House leaders hope to bring the bill to the floor by early next week.

The plan would give the president standby power to ration gasoline in the event of a severe shortage and would set state-by-state energy conservation targets.

Staggers also said the president's program falls far short of what is needed to curb America's appetite for imported oil, notwithstanding its $142.2 billion pricetag.

"He'll never spend that much because he'll never get that much," Staggers said.

Even though Carter appealed today to congressional leaders for enactment of his windfall profits tax by the Aug. 4 start of Congress' August recess, it's doubtful he'll get that either.

"He wants to fund all $142 billion of his program from the windfall tax. Well, he can't spend money he doesn't have and won't get," Staggers said, suggesting that the tax would be watered down drastically in the Senate.

Democratic leaders are trying to line up action on as much of Carter's plan as possible before the August recess. The task is made easier because many of the proposals, including rationing and the windfall tax, already were progressing through Congress.

The House rejected the president's own standby rationing plan in May.

But leaders quickly went to work on another plan that would give the president the standby rationing authority he wanted as well as the power to impose mandatory fuel-saving steps in states failing to meet specified conervation targets.

House and Senate leaders met privately Monday afternoon to put the rationing bill and other Carter-backed measures already before Congress on an express track.

Emerging from the strategy session, House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, said, "We hope to get four or five pieces of the mosaic through Congress quickly" before the month-long recess that begins Aug. 4.

Leaders said a rush effort will be made to complete Senate action on legislation to launch a new multibillion-dollar synthetic fuel industry and impose the president's windfall profits tax on the oil industry.

OPEC's Holdings Could Help Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investments in the United States give Arab nations a reason to keep the U.S. dollar sound and "could help stabilize the world economy," a man who represents several such investors said today.

Munawar H. Hidayatallah, a naturalized American born in Pakistan, told a House subcommittee he did not believe Arab nations would use their investments to disrupt the dollar because a long-term worldwide depression "would be suicide for oil-producing nations."

"I just find it very far from the realm of possibility," he said.

His testimony came after two economists told the panel Monday that members of the Organization of Petroleum-Exporting Countries have so much money invested in the United States that those nations could disrupt the dollar's stability by simply withdrawing their funds.

The economists said the potential impact could be even more severe if OPEC nations — fueled by new funds from the latest round of oil price increases — funnel more cash into U.S. investments.

But Hidayatallah, whose clients invest in small U.S. manufacturing corporations, said Arab investment "is only a very small proportion of foreign direct investment in the United States."

And he told the House Government Operations subcommittee on commerce, consumer and monetary affairs that "the facilitation of investment by Arab countries in the United States may result in a more reasonable pricing and supply policy in OPEC."

The subcommittee is interested in learning whether oil-rich Arab nations may now have an energy-dependent United States over a financial barrel as well as an oil barrel.

The Treasury Department has declined to release breakdowns on U.S. investments by individual countries, contending such action could embarrass certain sensitive governments — primarily Saudi Arabia — and trigger the large-scale withdrawals economists worry about.

As a result, the extent of investments by individual OPEC nations is not publicly known and the impact a withdrawal could have is in dispute.

For example, estimates of U.S. investments by OPEC nations presented to the subcommittee Monday ranged from $52.1 billion to $90 billion, with the bulk coming from Saudi Arabia.

Bundy Refuses To Attend Murder Trial

MIAMI (AP) — Theodore R. Bundy apparently used an orange to smash a light in his jail cell then refused to come to court this morning for trial on charges of murdering two sorority sisters in 1978, his jailers said.

When Bundy finally went to court under orders from an angry judge, he said he had been protesting a systematic attempt by jailers "to coerce me, to wear me down."

The judge found him in contempt and told Bundy the trial would go ahead if he came to court or not. Bundy is accused of killing Lisa Levy and Margaret Bowman, both 19, at the Chi Omega sorority house at Tallahassee during the early morning hours of Jan. 15, 1978.

Bundy then took his customary seat at the defense table and the trial resumed.

"I'm laboring under conditions which are causing stresses this court is not aware of," said the 32-year-old Bundy, a chronic complainer about conditions of his confinement.

"This railroad train may be running, your honor, but if I want to get off, I get off," Bundy said. "There comes a time when the only thing I can do is passively resist...I have a great deal of potential to deal with the situation. I have only asserted that part of my potential that is non-violent."

Judge Edward D. Cowart asked if that meant Bundy contemplated violence.

"Knock and ye shall find," the judge said.

Bundy: "There comes a time when I just have to say 'whoa.'"

Cowart: "If you say whoa as it relates to these proceedings any more, I'm going to be using spurs and overcoming that whoa."

Bundy: "Giddyup, as it were."

Cowart: "Bless your heart. I just hope you'll stay with us, because if you don't, we'll miss you."

Meanwhile, two young women say Bundy was the loner with a disturbing stare they saw in a college nightspot a few hours before the murders of the two Florida State coeds.

After telling their stories with the jury out of the room Monday, Connie Hastings of Fort Pierce, Fla., and Carla Black of Palatka, Fla., had been expected to testify again today with jurors present. Lawyers for Bundy tried to block the testimony but presiding Judge Edward D. Cowart said it could be admitted.

Two other Chi Omega members, Kathy Kleiner and Karen Chandler, survived severe beatings by a club-carrying attacker the same morning. And four blocks away, dance student Cheryl Thomas was attacked in her apartment.

He's also charged with murdering Caryn Campbell of Dearborn, Mich. near the Aspen ski resort in Colorado in 1975.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Dow Jones Average Down 2.05

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices slipped in moderate trading today in what analysts said reflected inflation worries and continued concern about a recession.

The market got only a mild lift Monday from President Carter's energy proposals. Some analysts said fears that the $140 billion program may worsen inflation weighed on the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which gained 1.37 on Monday, was down 2.05 at 832.85 by midday today. Declining issues outnumbered gainers by a slim 6-5 margin.

Big Board volume was 13.15 million shares, up from 11.03 million in the previous session.

The effect of second quarter earnings reports coming out in recent days also was evident.

RCA Corp. fell ⅜ to 23¾ as the most actively traded issue. Trading included a 200,000-share block at that price. RCA said Monday its would have recorded a loss in the second quarter if it had not had a one-time gain from the sale of property.

IBM Corp. fell ⅜ to 70⅛, on trades including a 100,000-share block at that price. Among other issues, Citicorp fell ½ to 24¼ after reporting lower second quarter earnings. Chase Manhattan, which previously reported higher earnings in the quarter, also fell ½ to 39½.

Among oil stocks, Getty jumped 1¼ to 56⅛ after gaining more than a point on Monday. Exxon was up ⅛ to 53½ but most other oil stocks were unchanged to a bit lower.

The NYSE composite index fell .13 to 58.30. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .65 to 197.83.

Rape Seminar Scheduled For September 30

A rape prevention seminar proposed by Mayor Dirk West will be held Sept. 30 in the Civic Center Banquet Hall, an organizational committee decided this morning.

Becky Mahan, director of the Rape Crisis Center, will chair the event, with West and District Attorney John Montford acting as co-chairmen.

Included at the seminar will be discussions and presentations on:

— Security lighting, locks and security rating of apartments and houses.

— Police patrols, priorities, danger areas and rape prevention.

— Rape Crisis Center counseling and literature.

— Prosecution of rapists and the role of judges and police in prosecution.

— Self-help information on weapons, police whistles, tear gas, self-defense, etc.

West said he hopes hardware stores can be convinced to offer deadbolt locks at a discount in connection with the seminar and that service organizations or carpenters might be persuaded to intall the locks for less than the going rate.

However, Miss Mahan said women must be encouraged to exercise personal responsibility and use the locks, as well as taking other precautions.

"There's got to be a certain amount of female responsibility in the community," she said.

Montford agreed, saying many rape victims place themselves in situations they shouldn't.

"Statistically we can make the areas known that are a problem — areas that are danger signals to look out for," he said.

Montford suggested illustrating the point with rape cases which might not have occurred had the victim not accepted a ride with a stranger or left doors or windows unlocked.

Miss Mahan suggested having a convicted rapist now serving time in prison appear at the seminar to explain why he attacked women and West suggested asking a rape victim who already has prosecuted her attacker to speak.

If the seminar is successful, West and other members of the committee said they'd like it to be repeated, possibly at the beginning of each semester at Texas Tech University.

TRC Hears Testimony

AUSTIN (UPI) — Advertising regulations adopted by the Public Utility Commission give electric utilities an unfair advantage over natural gas companies and could force the gas utilities to curtail their advertising and charitable contributions, witnesses told the Texas Railroad Commission today.

Pioneer Natural Gas Co. has asked the Railroad Commission to approve a rule that would allow gas utilities to pass the cost of advertising and charitable contributions along to consumers up to a maximum of 0.5 percent of the company's total revenue.

Electric utilities, under a PUC regulation, may pass along up to 0.3 percent of gross revenue to consumers for advertising and contributions.

Pioneer's proposal drew strong support from newspaper and broadcast organizations, charities, and utilities, but opposition from two consumer organizations.

"There is intense competition in Texas among the gas and electric utilities, and this competition is decidedly one-sided," said Tom D. Stephens, attorney for Pioneer. "Gas utilities are suffering because of electric utilities' protection provided by the PUC."

Stephens said allowing gas utilities to pass along their advertising and contribution costs to consumers would cost customers less than a penny a day.

"The amount of these items on the average customer's bill would be only a fraction of a cent a day. That seems to be a pretty painless way to see that support of community organizations continues."

United Way representatives from Killeen, Lubbock and other cities endorsed the proposed rule, as did representatives from charity hospitals in Abilene, Tyler and other cities.

Governor Signs Death Warrant

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Bob Graham today signed a death warrant ordering the execution of convicted murderer Howard Virgil Lee Douglas. He is scheduled to die at 7 a.m. July 26 at the Florida State Prison.

Douglas' lawyers promptly asked his Polk County sentencing judge to stay the execution so Douglas would have time to pursue his appeals. They claimed his trial did not follow constitutional guidelines. A hearing was set on the appeal for late today.

He was condemned to death by Circuit Judge William K. Love even though the trial jury recommended a life sentence. Love was not bound by state law to accept the jury's recommendation.

Douglas was condemned for the July 17, 1973 slaying of Jessie William Atkins Jr., who was abducted along with his wife at gunpoint. Atkins was struck in the head with the butt of a rifle and then shot at least once in the head.

Graham signed the death warrant at 8:09 a.m. today, according to his press secretary, Steve Hull. It was the fifth execution that Graham has ordered since May.

So far, only convicted killer John A. Spenkelink has been put to death in Florida's electric chair under Graham's warrants.

Not All Banks Paying New Rates

By STEPHEN BROWN

NEW YORK (AP) — New federal regulations allow higher interest rates on small savings accounts, but some banks have chosen not to pay the maximum on small deposits.

Many consumers incorrectly assume that banking regulatory agencies set the interest rates all banks will pay on savings deposits. In the case of passbook accounts, the regulators set limits on interest rates or limits for rules on early withdrawal. Banks are allowed to choose any rate or set rules on early withdrawals that fall within the limits.

For example, many banks are advertising new interest rates for passbook accounts — 5¼ per cent at commercial banks and 5½ per cent at savings banks and savings and loan associations. These rates are a quarter of a percentage point higher than before, and are aimed particularly at "small savers" — people who don't have the $10,000 minimum required for money market certifcates or can't afford to put their money away for several years in long-term certificates.

A few institutions are regulated only by state agencies. Some state-regulated banks and thrifts are paying interest rates three precentage points higher than federally regulated ones. The new 5¼ per cent and 5½ per cent interest rate ceilings were set by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Passbook accounts cost the most for banks to maintain. Passbook accounts with very small balances are especially costly, perhaps even money-losers.

Most banks raised their passbook rates to the federal ceilings, despite the cost. Some didn't. Two of them are Chase Manhattan Bank in New York and Marine Midland Bank of Buffalo, N.Y.

New policies on small-balance passbook accounts were announced previously by First Bank & Trust Co. in Evansville, Ill., which pays no interest on accounts with average balances below $50, and Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. in Chicago, which uses a $100 limit. Lincoln First Bank in Rochester, N.Y., charges customers $1 a quarter for accounts with average balances below $100 and pays no interest on amounts below $25.

Chase will match the new, 5¼ per cent ceiling only on statement savings accounts. Depositors who want to hold on to their passbooks will have to settle for the old 5 per cent rate.

Except at its New York City area branches, Marine Midland's new policy will mean a 50 cent fee charged to depositors in any month that the passbook account balance falls below $25.

Chase has decided to pay no interest on any day a passbook account has less than $100 on deposit.

Chase instead will encourage small savers to put their money in 90-day certificates of deposit, which pay 5½ per cent regardless of the size of the balance. The fact that the deposit will be on hand for at least 90 days outweighs the small size of the account.

There are no more minimum deposits set by banking regulators for most time deposits — such as Chase's 90-day account. But banks and savings institutions may, on their own, set minimum requirements for certificates.

Small savers who are expecting the new regulations to give them a better break on savings yields should look beyond the new federal regulations and check at least two things:

—Has your bank or thrift raised its passbook rate to the new maximum?

—Are better deals available on time deposits such as 90-day, 180-day or longer-term accounts with small balances?

Fuel Shortage To Cause Rise In Clothing Costs

NEW YORK (AP) — Consumers who buy permanent press clothes may soon be in the same boat as motorists, truckers and others who have been unfavorably affected by soaring fuel costs.

Textile industry officials said this week costs for permanent press clothing and all other petroleum-based clothing material will escalate and that consumers definitely will feel the pinch.

The question is how hard they will be hit and when will the petroleum impact reach the clothing counter.

"We use about 1 per cent of the nation's petroleum supply," Fisher Rhymes, a spokesman for the Man-Made Fabrics Producers Association in Washington, an industry group, said.

"Half of that goes into the feedstock, the materials used to make the fiber. The other half goes into the energy needed to convert the materials. With that, we make 75 percent of the nation's textiles. There is even more polyester used now than cotton," he said.

Although industry leaders said they have no trouble buying petroleum, they are very worried about rising prices.

The price of one petro-chemical used in making acrylics — Propylene — has increased by 41 percent in the past year, according to Carl Moskowitz, a spokesman for Monsanto Industries.

Compounding the problem, Moskowitz said, was the fact that one ingredient used to make polyester and nylon is also prized by the gasoline industry as a no-knock additive, boosting its price even higher.

The cost of the materials in a finished item of clothing ranges from 2 percent to 8 percent of the store price. The impact in the stores would not be felt for about a year, the lead time between the purchase of the petroleum and the sale of the garment.

"We see oil prices as continuing to increase," Moskowitz said. "It's going to erode our margins. It's going to be hard to pass on these price increases, especially if a recession hits."

In that case, consumers might have to turn to non-petroleum synthtics, such as rayon and acetate, which are made of wood and cost about the same as fibers based on petro-chemicals.

DR. LAMB

Skin Care

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know what blackheads are and how to help get rid of them. My question is how do you get rid of whiteheads and what causes them to break out?

DEAR READER — If you know what causes blackheads, you know what causes whiteheads. They're basically the same thing. They're a core of fatty acids formed by your skin glands. This little core of fat may have some pigment from your skin at the top of it or the fats may be affected by oxygen so that they change color.

Many people make the mistake of thinking that a blackhead means dirt. That's not true at all and you can't usually wash them off like you would wash off dirt because the discolored fat is just below the surface of the skin. If it's not pigmented then it's a whitehead.

The treatment is exactly the same. The best approach at home is merely to wash the face two or three times a day with warm water and a mild soap. Soak it throughly. Some doctors recommend a degreasing soap. You can also sponge off the face with alcohol sponges to help remove the excess oil formation by your skin glands.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated, to give you more information on the whole problem of blackheads, whiteheads and pimples. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In one of your columns you referred to whether pills were dissolved or not when you took them and you suggested that perhaps some pills should be crushed before they are taken. My wife and I are both in our 70's and a few years ago we had an experience that made me vividly recognize this problem.

We live in a semi-rural area and had our septic tank cleaned. When the tank was pumped out and the operator was finished, I looked indside and there on the bottom of the tank were hundreds of vitamin and mineral tablets. I retrived some of them and was able to identify the bone meal, liver, Dolomite and B complex. Ever since then all the vitamin tablets that have been taken in our household have been chewed before being swallowed.

I brought this to the attention of the manufacturer and he said our system was lacking in acid. This may be, but the truth is we didn't get the benefit from the vitamin and mineral pills that we had expected.

DEAR READER — I included your letter in my column to highlight your point. The problem is even worse than you think. Not only are some vitamin pills passed through the digestive system without any benefit to the person who swallowed them but excess water soluble vitamins that are digested and enter the body are eliminated in the urine. You're not going to see those on the bottom of the septic tank. The penchant that some people have to take large amounts of unnecessary vitamins has led to the comment that Americans have the richest and most expensive urine in the world.

These remarks are not meant to indicate that people shouldn't have an adequate amount of vitamins. As I've said before, I like people to get these in a well balanced diet. You're not likely to find a well-balanced diet on the bottom of the septic tank either.

Make Secret Place To Hide Treasure

By SHARI LEWIS

Keep Out! Private. Do Not Open. Those signs just don't work around your house, eh? Well, you're not alone! Privacy is very hard for anyone to achieve nowadays and it's extra hard for a kid.

If you have something-a key, a note, jewelry or money-that you simply must keep away from the eyes and hands of others, make yourself a secret place in which to hide your treasure.

You'll need a big old book (make sure it belongs to you and is not a piece of general family property).

On the first page, draw a rectangle that is a little bigger than the treasure you want to hide. Cut that rectangular shape out of all the pages (cut just a few pages at a time). Throw away the scraps.

Drop your treasure into the hole and close the book. Stick the book back on the shelf with other books, and no one'll ever know. In fact, your greatest problem may be in remembering which book holds your secret!

YESTERDAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Try to imagine what the back of a $10 bill looks like. How many people are pictured walking on it? None? Six? Ten?

ANSWER: Ten. And there are some people riding in automobiles as well.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: Why should a doctor always keep his temper? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

Rat Study Traces Human Sugar Intake

WASHINGTON (AP) — Children who eat a lot of sugar may not necessarily prefer sweets as adults, if a new animal study holds true for humans.

A rat study conducted by two Massachusetts Institute of Technology scientists found no detectable relationship between sugar consumption during infancy and childhood and subsequent preference for sugar. A report of the study, being published in Science magazine, says the work provided "no support for the view that the consumption of sucrose-rich foods early in childhood causes prolonged increases in preference for sucrose." The study was conducted by Drs. Judith J. Wurtman and Richard J. Wurtman.

Insults Stricken From Record

By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Should a historian in the distant future find himself poring over the Congressional Record of June 25, 1979, he would probably skip an exchange between two senators named Weicker and Heinz.

There is nothing in the Record — the official chronicle of Congress — that would whet his appetite for more information. It is possible that the historian, unless he were a scholar of the period, might not even know who Sens. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., and John Heinz, R-Pa., were,

But what that historian will never know is that the two — Weicker and Heinz — exchanged some of the ugliest insults possible.

Heinz, at least in Weicker's mind, accused him of offering an amendment to please special interests of a steel company. Weicker's reply to this was that Heinz was an "idiot" or "devious" and most likely both.

Those counter-accusations are not part of the official history of the 96th Congress. They were removed from the transcript after Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd stroked his two Republican colleagues and even got Weicker and Heinz to shake hands, albeit without enthusiasm.

Not only were the insults stricken, but so was the one attempt at humor during the exchange: Heinz said he hoped the wholesale revisions would not expunge "any remarks about my good character" that Weicker may have accidentally made.

Although the Weicker-Heinz episode is an extreme example, it shows that the Congressional Record is far from being an accurate accounting of the floor proceedings in the Senate and House. Unfortunately, it is the only one and the official one.

Newspapers reported the incident as it happened but there is no way for the reader of the Record to know that. Television and radio, of course, are not permitted to broadcast in the Senate, where even tape recorders are forbidden.

The fact is, the Congressional Record is an artificial transcipt that often misses the flavor of the proceedings. The reason is that senators have the right to change their remarks after they are made and before the material goes to the printers.

In a high-ceilinged room far from the tourist paths of the Capitol, there is a large table where Senate aides sit in the afternoons and clean up their bosses' acts. This wondrous transformation comes about through the ability of the aides to snip and cut with scissors, edit with pen or pencil, rewrite with skill and verve.

As a result, the senators who follow this practice become magnificently erudite, masters of the language and unfailingly courteous even to colleagues they detest.

The end product looks good. It is not, however, a true reflection of what has gone on in the Senate and House.

Perhaps feeling a bit uncomfortable, Congress some years ago took what was considered a great step forward. As a result, speeches inserted in the Record, but not given, are so signified by a "bullet" or round circle next to the senator's or congressman's name.

It did not take members of Congress long to find a way around that. They now, somtimes, will read the first few paragraphs and insert the rest.

With the advent of television in the House, rewriting history may become more difficult. Presumably, portions can be spliced out before a copy of the film is stored in the Library of Congress, but any editing to make the member look better would be difficult.

But the Senate, lagging behind, does not have television. As a result, the poor historian may think, as he goes over the Record of June 26, 1979, that Weicker and Heinz may be the best of friends.

BOY FINDS, DISARMS BOMB

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A 15-year-old boy successfully dismantled a bomb he found in Ramat Eshkol district of predominantly Arab East Jerusalem, the Israeli state radio reported Sunday. The youth, who was not identified, found the bomb Saturday night and removed a wire connecting the explosive charge and the timer, the radio said. He then took the bomb home and later showed it to an older brother, who notified police.

Testimony Differs On SALT Accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four retired admirals and a former commander of the Strategic Air Command dueled in Senate testimony today over the merits and defects of the SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union.

Retired Adms. Thomas Moorer and Elmo Zumwalt, both former chiefs of naval operations, contended the treaty is fatally flawed and will give the Soviets nuclear strategic superiority by 1985 or sooner.

But the three other former senior officers said the treaty is a useful step toward arms control while providing the United States a badly needed opportunity to modernize its aging nuclear strike force.

"We are a strong nation that has allowed itself to get behind ... in both strategic and conventional forces," said retired Adm. Isaac Kidd who once was responsible for the development of the navy's strategic forces.

"The treaty offers a 'time-out' as it were, for us to catch up," Kidd said. "I trust we will not blow this opportunity to catch up as it could well be our last chance."

Retired Adm. Noel Gayler, former head of the National Security Agency, also endorsed the treaty.

And retired Air Force Gen. Russell E. Dougherty, former SAC commander, said he agrees with the military Joint Chiefs of Staff, who endorsed the treaty as a "modest but useful" step if coupled with a modernization of U.S. strategic weapons systems.

Moorer said he opposes the treaty "unequivocally" on grounds it will "freeze the United States into a position of inferiority."

He said the pact in its present form undermines the U.S. bargaining position in the SALT III negotiations because it concedes too much.

He said the Soviets should not have been permitted to keep their Backfire bomber free of SALT II restrictions because "the Backfire has a full capability of reaching the United States without refueling."

Moorer said President Carter never should have accepted the verbal promise of Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev that the Soviet Union will not use the Backfire as a strategic bomber.

"I think no chief of state should pay any serious attention to such assurances and anyone who really believes to the contrary, particularly in regard to the Soviet Union, is naive indeed," Moorer said.

He also criticized the treaty provision that permits the Soviets to retain their 308 heavy SS-18 missiles. And he said Soviet compliance with the traty will be difficult to verify.

Zumwalt agreed but said the treaty is so heavily weighted in favor of the Soviets that they will have no incentive to cheat.

He called the treaty "dangerous," and labeled the leadership of the Carter administration "inadequate."

The treaty, Zumwalt said, "encourages the Soviet Union to accelerate its foreign policy adventurism around the globe in the face of our strategic inferiority and of the weakness of an administration which has permitted itself to be driven to such terms."

"I cannot disagree with my colleagues who are confident that we could (or might) negotiate a better treaty," Dougherty said. "They may be right. But we didn't negotiate a better one, we negotiated this one.

"I hope it is not the last one we negotiate, and I hope and urge the Senate to be in a better, stronger position for the next negotiating round," he added.

In a nationally televised debate last week, Moorer accused the Soviet Union of "grossly" violating the SALT I agreements, and Zumwalt said the new treaty "fails the verification test."

LCHD Studying Latest Proposal

that Medicus has worked well for them, she said.

But board chairman Jack Strong said after Monday's meeting that the board was under pressure to make some kind of decision and needed to move as quickly as possible. He called the HSI proposal a "stopgap" measure to be used simply to get the hospital back on its feet again.

The hospital can't afford to waste time when they are losing money at the rate of $150,000 a week, he stressed.

The search for a permanent executive director would be delayed — possibly as long as a year — until the hospital is in sounder financial shape, Strong explained.

Brewer turned down the job of executive director when the board offered it to him July 5. Howard would not say Monday whether the job had been offered to him, but said that he wouldn't accept the job in any case.

"No, I wouldn't take this job," Howard said. "Not when I have a good one."

Howard has been unavailable for comment since Monday's meeting. But Brewer spoke favorably about the HSI proposal this morning before it was learned he is a part of that proposal.

"All management groups are not inept," Brewer said. "Why Hyatt didn't help them I don't know," he said.

"I think if something isn't done very quickly ... they won't have any options," Brewer continued. "They can't listen to everybody. They need people to leave them alone while they make a decision."

Lubbock orthodontist Jim Granberry, chairman of the newly formed "blue ribbon" advisory committee for the hospital, said he did not feel slighted that the board had not asked his committee for input on the selection of a new executive director or data processing service.

"A management firm might be the quickest way to get something done," Granberry said. But he added that he wasn't convinced that the hospital shouldn't hire both a management firm and their own executive director.

"I view our committee as an advisory committee to the board of managers," Granberry stressed. The board has no real authority, he said, adding that its independence from the board is vital to its effectiveness.

But the subcommittee on operations and management will make its analysis, he said, regardless of whether the board hires HSI or any other management firm. The hospital might not have continued the Hyatt contract for as long as it did had the firm's activities been monitored, Granberry said.

"I think, though, that they need some interim help," Granberry said.

Dr. John Selby, chairman of the blue ribbon subcommittee on hospital-community-physician relations, said he knew that Highland Hospital is well run and has confidence in Howard. But he added that management firms, like any other business, are out to turn a profit for themselves.

"I'm inclined to feel that we'd be better off with a good administrator," Selby said. "I'm not real enthusiastic about it, no."

Rain Chance Held Out For City

A-J News Services

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were reported early today over wide stretches of the South Plains and the Panhandle, with the possibility of rainfall in the Lubbock area expected to continue through Wednesday.

The National Weather Service listed the probability of rain in the Hub City at 30 percent today, 50 percent tonight and 20 percent Wednesday.

Although only trace amounts of precipitation officially were reported here Monday, heavy but brief showers fell in western portions of Lubbock.

Some portions of the South Plains received substantial rainfall as the continued presence of a weak high pressure system over Northwest Texas, combined with a moist, southerly flow of air, set off thunderstorms.

Early today, light to moderate rainshowers were reported moving south in a line extending from Morton to Brownfield to Crosbyton to Paducah. More powerful activity, including a few heavy thunderstorms, was reportedly located over the central and eastern portions of the Panhandle, extending from just south of Amarillo to Pampa.

During the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today, South Plains communities receiving more than .50 of an inch of rain included Olton, with 1.90 inches; Silverton, .91 of an inch; Morton, .90; and Abernathy, .55.

In the Panhandle, Amarillo reported .18 of an inch of rain and Dalhart measured .15.

Forecasts for the Lubbock area show partly cloudy skies through Wednesday and high temperatures near 90 degrees this afternoon and Wednesday. The high Monday was 92 degrees.

The extended South Plains forecast shows partly cloudy to clear skies by the end of the week, with temperatures reaching the mid 90s by Thursday and the upper 90s on Saturday.

Carter to declare the ravaged blocks disaster areas, qualifying residents for emergency federal relief, Erickson said.

About 300 National Guard troops were assigned to the area to help provide relief and prevent looting.

Erickson said his estimate of more than 200 homes damaged was "a very wild estimate. It's not scientific in any regard."

Earlier, Capt. Merv Mydland of the Wyoming Disaster and Civil Defense Agency said 150 houses in the expensive Buffalo Ridge area were heavily damaged and 45-50 were destroyed. He said the Buffalo Ridge Grade School was "almost gone," but no children were there.

Somoza Flees Nicaragua For Estate In Florida

ered plane as soon as Somoza left. But other sources said they would not come until the guerrillas secured the Managua airport.

The intentions of Somoza's national guard, and of the guerrillas, were unclear. Guard Maj. Pablo Emilio Salazar, in charge of the southern zone, met with Somoza and told reporters the guard would keep fighting to assure democracy. But he did not say whether he meant the guard would fight the guerrillas or accept reorganization under the junta.

Sandinista southern commander Eden Pastora said the Sandinistas "hope that the United States, which supplied the bombs and other arms used to destroy people, property and homes, will now recognize its moral obligation to help reconstruct Nicaragua. ... If not, we will seek help wherever it comes from — Latin American countries, Europe, the Arab world, Socialist countries or wherever."

Somoza delivered his resignation during the night to members of the Chamber of Deputies at the Bunker, his fortified headquarters in downtown Managua. The congressmen immediately went into session at the nearby Intercontinental Hotel and elected Urcuyo.

Somoza's statement, read to the congressmen, said he was stepping down to concur with an Organization of American States call for his resignation, and to avoid further sacrifices by the people. "History will look at the reason for my fight against communism," it said.

Minutes after the congressional session ended, about two dozen of the legislators rushed upstairs to their rooms, grabbed already-packed suitcases and boarded a bus for the airport and the flight to Miami.

Among them was a first cousin of Somoza, Luis Palais Debayle, the vice president of the lower house.

Heavy gunfire between snipers and members of the national guard was heard near the hotel, but the war between the Sandinistas and the guard had been in a lull for about 10 days while the United States and Latin American governments negotiated for Somoza's resignation and the enlargement of the Sandinistas' proposed government to include moderates and conservatives.

The guerrillas held all the other major towns and cities in the country and controlled all the roads leading to the capital. A Sandinista member of the junta, Sergio Ramirez Mercado, said over the weekend that if Somoza did not quit soon, the rebels would "begin the battle for Managua."

Auto Union, Ford Begin Discussions

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser and Ford Motor Co. negotiator Sidney F. McKenna shook hands across a bargaining table today, opening 1979 contract talks between the union and the No. 2 U.S. automaker.

The talks at Ford headquarters in Dearborn will cover 197,000 workers. McKenna is Ford's vice president for labor relations.

Talks began Monday at General Motors Corp. Bargaining starts Wednesday for 110,000 Chrysler Corp. workers. The talks at GM will cover 471,000 workers.

The traditional handshake between bargainers for the union and GM were delayed for the first time in memory as Fraser and other top officers upbraided Chairman Thomas A. Murphy and President Elliott M. Estes in a rare pre-bargaining meeting — the second in three days.

Fraser complained that activities of the management of the new assembly plant in Oklahoma City violated a 1976 agreement by which GM said it would neither oppose nor support UAW organizing drives.

The 2,200 workers at Oklahoma City will vote Thursday on UAW representtion. Because of that election and the union accusations, negotiations were recessed until Friday for top union officers to go to Oklahoma City. GM said it also was sending headquarters executives to help settle disputes.

Both sides said they might sign a shorter agreement than the usual three-year contract because of increased economic uncertainty.

They agreed to establish their first subcommittee, to explore the union's principal demand, pension increases for retired workers.

Fraser has said the union will seek a "substantial" wage increase and improvements in the cost-of-living formula.

The UAW, he said, would accept "equality of sacrifice" but would not settle for an increase held to the 7 percent originally established by the Carter administration guidelines.

Morris said the guidelines as now interpreted by the Council on Wage and Price Stability left room for "a generous settlement that takes into account everything the autoworker really needs."

Solons Turn Down Moratorium On Permits For Nuclear Plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected an attempt today to slap a six-month moratorium on the issuance of construction permits for new nuclear power plants.

On a vote of 57-35, senators rejected a move led by Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Gary Hart, D-Colo,, designed to give the Nuclear Regulatory Commission time to develop new regulations dealing with siting new plants.

"We cannot pretend the Three Mile Island accident never happened," Kennedy said. "We must learn from it."

But opponents, led by Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., said the proposal was "intended only to send a message that further attempts to expand nuclear power at this time is unwarranted."

The plan would have affected six plants under review for construction permits and would not have stopped work on any plant now under construction or forced an operating plant to shut down.

But the vote was important as an indication of congressional backing for nuclear power in the wake of the atomic scare last spring at Three Mile Island.

The Senate indicated Monday it intends to tighten controls over the nuclear industry, voting to shut down, as of June 1, 1980, all nuclear power plants for which a state has no emergency evacuation plan approved by the federal government. As many as 39 of the nation's 70 licensed plants could be affected.

Hart, chairman of a nuclear energy subcommittee, hailed that vote as "the first major reform resulting from the Three Mile Island (nuclear reactor) accident.

"The Senate would have failed in its constitutional duty to protect the public welfare if it had not adopted this measure and another major nuclear accident had occurred in a state which was not prepared to act," he said.

Pressure for stronger federal controls over the nuclear industry has been building in Congress since the March 28 accident at Three Mile Island near Harrisburg, Pa., raised the possibility of evacuation of tens of thousands of people.

Both houses of Congress, as well as the Carter administration, have begun investigations of the accident.

A study performed for the owner of the Three Mile Island plant, General Public Utilities Corp., estimates that it could cost more than $400 million and take as long as four years to rehabilitate the facility and put it back in safe operation.

The Bechtel Power Corp. said in the study released Monday that the cost could total $405 million, including up to $85 million to replace the damaged reactor core of the plant's Unit 2. General Public Utilities added $25 million to the Bechtel estimate.

The House of Representatives earlier this year rejected restrictions similar to the ones approved by the Senate. But the matter is almost certain to reach the House floor again this year.

The Senate debated the new restrictions as President Carter declared Monday in a speech in Kansas City that nuclear power "must play an important role in the United States to insure our energy future."

The new controls the Senate voted on the nuclear industry are contained in legislation authorizing $373 million for Nuclear Regulatory Commission programs for the next fiscal year.

The plan the Senate approved Monday on a vote of 63-20 would require states to draw up evacuation plans acceptable to the NRC for each of the country's 70 plants.

Officials said 39 plants in 16 states are not covered by such state-drawn emergency plans. However, each plant is covered by a plan drawn up by its operating utility and approved by the federal government.

Also approved by the Senate was a proposal to deny operating permits to nuclear plants nearing completion in states without the NRC stamp of approval of their plans.

Opponents of the proposals said governors hostile to nuclear power could drag their feet on emergency plans as a means of crippling the industry. Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., singled out California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. as one governor who has vowed to do what he can to halt the spread of nuclear energy.

"It is not the responsibility of a governor to stand in the way of the federal government," Johnston argued.

had to do that or I wouldn't have been elected."

And he exhorted his audience to work with him in meeting his energy goals and promoting national unity.

"I guarantee if you join me we will have the greatest nation on earth, like we always have."

Earlier, before the National Association of Counties in Kansas City, Mo., he declared, "We can and will regroup."

And, inviting questions in Detroit, he promised to "open the government process so that the fresh air of America can blow through Washington."

Both audiences received Carter enthusiastically, giving him standing ovations in mid-appearance.

The unspoken goal of the campaign-like oratory, following several days of cloistered consultations at Camp David, Md., is to revive Carter's troubled presidency and boost his re-election chances next year.

He used the Kansas City appearance to detail his energy blueprint, which he said would cost $142 billion through the 1980s.

The money, he said, would come from an excise tax on oil industry profits that the White House is confidant will soon be approved by the Senate. It has already passed the House.

Answering his first questioner in Detroit, Carter said he would consider a broad tax cut if unemployment rises to unacceptable levels.

The most likely reduction, he said, would be a cut in Social Security payroll deductions.

Carter previously rejected the idea of a tax cut. Last week, however, the administraton concluded that a recession will occur later this year — a recession many economists say could substantially boost joblessness.

Aggie Women Will Don Boots, Spurs

president, Jarvis Miller, had promised the board of regents the change would be coming.

Official policy of the university does not allow discrimination against women, he said.

Organizations such as the honor guard, he said, might be considered social and therefore not under the school's policy. This change might not help A&M win the lawsuit, Coleman said, but it will aid the school.

"I think it will help them as far as image is concerned," said the physician, who did not attend A&M.

Most alumni, he said, were proud women are on campus and want to make them feel welcome.

Then he laughed. "They wish like hell women had been there when they were there."

One Aggie who graduated in 1941, Bernie Richardson of Houston, said, "I see nothing wrong with them wearing boots if they're going to be in the Corps — if they're seniors."

But a more recent graduate of A&M, Shane Hennum of Houston, said it will make a difference.

"The boots will create a bigger rift between male and female in the Corps," said Hennum, who graduated in 1978 after four years in the organization.

The women will lose more than they'll gain, he said.

"I don't think they'll look good in boots," he said. "I may joke about it and laugh with my friends, but deep down I'll be embarrassed."

He and some of his friends, he said, are considering taking down their boots — displayed in their homes — and returning them to the school.

Each cadet must buy his boots, either new or used, and some have been passed down as many as eight times. Now a custom-made pair of boots costs about $300, but the women's boots are less expensive because they're not custom made.

Hennum said the older graduates just don't know how serious the change is. He thinks it will destroy the Corps.

But some current cadets disagree.

"It's not creating more hatred," said Dillard Stone, assistant cadet commander of the Corps. "It's creating more amusement."

The boots look odd, he said, but change is part of any organization.

Bill Dugat, student commander of the Corps, compared it to changes at the military academies.

"They took to the change with grunts and groans, but learned it was good."

"We'll be optimistic about it," Dugat said.

"Women are awful proud of them, and the men will have to adjust."

Traffic Deaths Expected To Rise

CHICAGO (AP) — Traffic deaths can be expected to go up as Americans turn to smaller cars, motorcycles and car pools to save gasoline, the head of the National Safety Council says.

Such an increase would end a five-year period of progress in reducing such fatalities, Vincent L. Tofany, president of the council, said Monday.

The nation's driving habits are changing in response to the energy situation, but safety specialists caution that while slower speeds, less driving and better use of public transportation help cut down traffic fatalities, smaller vehicles do not.

Subcompacts and other energy-efficient vehicles are more likely to be damaged on impact, and such accidents are twice as likely to result in deaths as those involving standard-size cars, the council says.

And though motorists tended to stay closer to home during the last energy crisis in 1973, the old warning that most accidents happen close to home still holds true, said Jack L. Recht, manager of the council's statistics department. In 1977, the last year of complete statistics, 71 percent of the 49,500 motor vehicle deaths occurred within 25 miles of home, he said.

In addition, as more commuters car pool or double up for social outings, the risk rises of more people dying from a single collision, said Tofany.

Preliminary figues indicate 51,900 lives were claimed in traffic accidents in 1978. The record was set in 1972, when 56,278 died.

Before the effects of long gas lines and high gas prices took hold, the accident death rate in the first quarter of 1979 began climbing for the first time since 1974, when the 55 mph speed limit was enacted, he said.

"If that were to continue, we would achieve a record number of deaths this year compared to previous years," Tofany said. But in April, when gas supplies were reduced, the death rate stopped its upward trend, he said.

Safety council statistics show that during the first four months of this year, 14,580 persons died in motor vehicle deaths compared to 13,390 last year and 13,300 in 1977.

There's no doubt that the 55 mph limit has saved lives, Tofany said. "There has been nothing more dramatic in the history of driving in this country — with the execption of World War II — that has enhanced public safety than the 55 mph speed limit," he said.

Since 1973, 35,000 lives have been saved, half of which can be directly attributed to the lower speed limit, he said.

But the council is pushing for stricter, more uniform enforcement of the law and better driver education to reduce the death rate further.

"We need now, more than ever, to start addressing the problem of the driver," Tofany said. "The average individual doesn't think he's part of the problem. He doesn't think it is going to happen to him."

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn and soybean futures fell and wheat futures were mostly higher Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Most wheat futures contracts managed to sustain price gains of up to 5 cents a bushel, mostly in response to reports of good export demand and rains in the winter wheat belt that delayed an already late harvest.

The Agriculture Department late Friday reported that the Soviet Union had bought 300,000 metric tons of U.S. wheat and Mexico another 100,000 tons.

Corn and soybean futures were unable to hold onto price increases scored early in the session in sympathy with higher gold and silver prices, however. Reports of needed rains in drought-troubled central Illinois, and an absence of commercial demand or significant other bullish developments, took prices lower.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading in the Lubbock cotton market Monday was slow.

Supplies of cotton for sale were moderate and demand was eak. The Lubbock Cotton Exchange's spot quotations were steady. Grade 41, staple 34, 3.5-4.9 micronaire, was quoted at 58.60 cents per poun d, up 25 points from one week ago. Grade 42, staple 31, 3.5-4.9 micronaire, was quoted at 53 cents.

Growers sold mixed lots at 800 to 1,000 points over 1979-crop loan rates.

LUBBOCK SPOT COTTON

Quotations are the approximate prices reported to the Agricultural Marketing Service for qualities equal to the U.S. Official Grade and Staple Standards. Prices are for micronaire (mike) readings of 3.5 through 4.9, in mixed lots, uncompressed, tree of all charges in the warehouse in the market.

Price trend: steady on Monday.

Stars Bang For Fences Tonight

SEATTLE (AP) -It won't take a king-sized hit to get out of Seattle's Kingdome, so batters look forward to tonight's 50th All-Star baseball game with unabashed anticipation.

Even though they'll face the major league strikeout king Nolan Ryan, the National League hitters surveyed the enclosed stadium with happiness.

Davey Lopes, the second baseman from the Los Angeles Dodgers, banged a few balls into the bleachers and observed:

"This is very conducive to hitting. Everybody in batting practice was trying to hit the ball over the wall to hear the oohs and aahs from the crowd. It will be a different story against Nolan Ryan."

The right-hander from the California Angels was named for the Americans with Steve Carlton of the Phillies the choice of National League manager Tommy Lasorda.

Ryan is 12-6 with 160 strikeouts with Carlton 11-8 with 113.

Lasorda said he went to Carlton as his starter because the American League would send up a flock of left-handed hitters and he wanted a southpaw to be going against them the first three innings.

The game is scheduled to start at 7:40 p.m. CDT as the NL goes after its eighth straight triumph and 16th in 17 games. Overall, after 49 games, the NL has won 30, the AL 18 and there has been one tie.

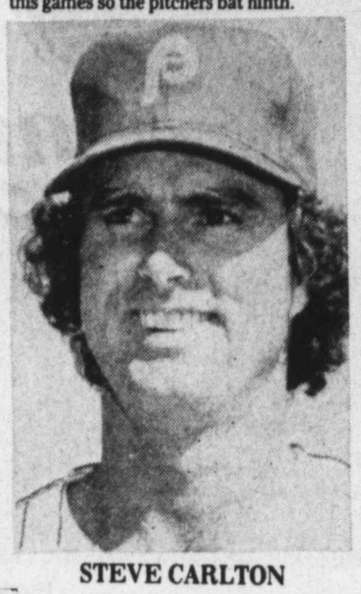
Two years ago Ryan refused a last-minute invitation to join the AL squad and infuriated Manager Billy Martin who said last season he wouldn't choose the flame throwing hurler "if he had a 40-0 record."

Ironically, Bob Lemon succeeded Martin in mid-1978, the New York Yankees won the AL pennant and beat the Dodgers in the World Series. Thus Lemon chose the AL pitchers even though he was fired earlier this summer and Martin became manager again.

"It's nice to have him pitching for me at least this one time," said Lemon who has been prominently mentioned as the next manager of the Cleveland Indians.

The National League batting order leads off with Lopes, followed by Dave Parker, right field; Steve Garvey, first base; Mike Schmidt, third base; George Foster, left field; Dave Winfield, center field; Bob Boone, catcher and Larry Bowa, shortstop.

There will be no designated hitters in this games so the pitchers bat ninth.



STEVE CARLTON

The Kingdome is sold out at 58,960 — a record for the park which measures 316 down the foul lines, 357 down the power alleys and 410 to center.

Many feel the All-Star Game record of six home runs will be broken, and some are even predicting as many as a dozen homers will driven out of the domed stadium. Six homers have been hit in All-Star Games on three occasions, in 1951 and 1971 at Detroit and in 1954 at Cleveland.

Brett of the Kansas City Royals isn't a newcomer to the Kingdome, but he admits, "Playing here is a lot of fun. I'm not a home run hitter but I can hit home runs here."

The National League batters relished their times in the batting cage.

Gary Matthews of Atlanta commented, "You know how small it is when you are hitting. You hit it good and it's out. My thinking is to hit the ball hard and to guard against trying to undercut it. If you go up with the idea of hitting it up, you won't have much success."

Winfield took his batting practice and observed, "This is a small park. The ball seems to go out pretty easy. That doesn't mean it will happen in the game."

Weather doesn't mean much in the enclosed Kingdome, but for outsiders it will be fair with temperatures in the 60's.

Lou Brock commands much interest since he has announced he'll retired after this season so this must be his final All-Star Game.

He isn't a starter but Lasorda says, "We will find a place to use him where he will benefit our club."

Each manager vowed he would use as many from the 28-man squads as possible, but Lemon said, "I feel just as Tommy does. We want to win."

In this game, pitchers are limited to three innings of action each and Lemon said he didn't know who would follow Ryan. He has seven others to choose from including rookie Mark Clear, a reliever for the California Angels.

Lasorda said Steve Rogers of the Montreal Expos would follow Carlton.

Yastrzemski was elected an outfielder by the voting fans but he suffers from an Achilles tendon injury so was switched to first base and there was some question if he could see much action.

Baylor, voted only No. 14 by the fans, got his starting job with the switch of Yastrzemski.

The Angels' designated hitter commented, "In my heart, I know there weren't 13 better outfielders than I. But I got more recognition finishing 14th than if I had finished fourth."

Lemon said he decided on Baylor because his bat currently is one of the hottest in the American League. He leads the league in runs-batted-in with 85.

Astros Blame Curves For Current Slump

HOUSTON (UPI) — What's the key to the Houston Astros slide from a 10 to a 5½-game lead in the National League West?

Third baseman Enos Cabell says opposing teams are pitching to him differently than early in the season. But relax Astro fans, he's got a solution to the problem.

"Nobody's nice to me now," said Cabell, who has hit only .133 since July 7. "They won't throw me no fast balls and they know I can't hit the curveball. I think I'll buy my wife a Cadillac and maybe she'll throw me some fastballs."

Right fielder Denny Walling was agonizing in a similar slump as the Astros took a three-day All-Star Game break. And the reason is the same as Cabell's, breaking pitches.

Before the rest period, Houston lost eight of its latest nine games. There was concern that rest was not the antidote for the Astros' light hitting, but manager Bill Virdon said he thought it might be.

"A break is the best thing in my opinion. That's what we're going to try. We've been hitting (batting practice) and that hasn't helped," he said.

The Astros do not appear nervous about their lead being halved. But complaints are heard from them concerning the solid pitching they have faced recently.

In the last nine games the nine opposing starting pitchers have thrown well enough to earn a decision each.

In 84 games before July 7, opposing starting pitchers completed 13 games. But since that date opposing starters have thrown six complete games.

"I never see a fast ball anymore," said Walling, who hit two pinch hit home runs last month. He hit those homers when pitchers were in tight situations and had to throw fast balls for strikes.

But Walling is a regular right fielder now and pitchers can be more careful as they throw to him. Currently he has not been hitting breaking pitches.

"Early in the season," said Cabell, "the pitchers we faced did not have the fine control. These past few games we faced no one who wasn't throwing to a spot."

Houston hitting has not been consistently strong at any time this year. Pitching, defense and speed have carried the Astros into the lead. But presently the Astros' hitting is even more sporadic and untimely than it was a month ago.

The first-place Astros did not have a representative in the All-Star Game other than pitchers before shortstop Craig Reynolds was named as a replacement for Garry Templeton, who refused to play.

No Astro is hitting better than .288. First baseman Cesar Cedeno's season average has dropped to .263, Cabell's to .259 and catcher Alan Ashby's to .221.

"Tired?" Ashby said. "It's not something I feel, but it's possible. It doesn't affect me defensively, but I'm not popping the bat. A bunch of us are that way, from the look of things."

The Astros will get a chance to see how much the rest benefited them Thursday as they travel to Pittsburgh to take on the tough Pirates. Pittsburgh is now in fourth place in the National League East, just four games behind the leading Montreal Expos.

1969's 'Amazin' Mets' Reunited After Decade

By DENNIS D'AGOSTINO

NEW YORK (AP) — They rolled back the clock at Shea Stadium last Saturday, back to a time when men walked on the moon, women wore miniskirts, Richard Nixon and Vietnam occupied the nation's passions ... and the New York Mets won a World Championship.

The Mets' annual Old Timers' Day celebrated the 10th anniversary of the 1969 team, reuniting most of the 25 men who took part in one of the biggest rags-to-riches stories in sports history.

"The greatest scriptwriter in Hollywood couldn't have written what we did in 1969," said Cleon Jones, a .340 hitter that year and now a fast food executive in Alabama.

"In spring training," Jones said, "Tom Seaver and I looked over the rosters of all the teams in the league, compared them to ours, and said, 'Hey, we can win.'"

And they did, in dramatic fashion. The perennial ragamuffin Mets went from a ninth-place finish in 1968 to the top of the National League's Eastern Division. Their momentum carried them to victories over the Atlanta Braves in the playoffs, then to a five-game World Series win over the heavily favored Baltimore Orioles.

There was no lack of heroes. Seaver won 25 games and the Cy Young Award. Jerry Koosman, Gary Gentry, Nolan Ryan and Tug McGraw rounded out the league's best pitching staff. Jones, Tommie Agee, Donn Clendenon, Ron Swoboda, Ken Boswell and Art Shamsky provided the offense. Gil Hodges, the beloved manager who died of a heart attack three years later, skillfully platooned and manipulated his lineup.

"We always knew we could win," said Gentry, a 13-game winner in 1969 and currently an Arizona real estate salesman. "There's nobody here who wouldn't tell you that."

"We had a special time together," said Swoboda, now a sportscaster in Milwaukee. "Heck, this is my high school and college reunion all rolled into one."

In all, 16 of them made it to the affair, including Ed Kranepool, the lone current Met remaining from the 1969 Miracle Mets. Seaver, now with the Cincinnati Reds; Koosman, now with Minnesota, and Ryan, a California Angel, could not attend.

Neither could McGraw and shortstop Bud Harrelson, now teammates on the Philadelphia Phillies. However, McGraw and Harrleson rented a helicopter and flew to New York for the Old Timers' Dinner that night.

Indeed, it was a time for reminiscing. "It was one of the best things that ever happened to me," said Jones. "I think about it a lot."

"The whole world likes and identifies with an underdog, and we were. There was no stopping us," said Clendenon, an attorney in Dayton, Ohio.

"In all the things that have happened to me in the last 10 years, people have recognized me as a member of a championship team and because of this, they have been more warm and friendly toward me," said Ed Charles, who spent almost two decades in baseball before the 1969 Mets gave him his only major league pennant winner.

One by one, they marched out onto the familiar Shea sod: Agee, now the owner of a bar and resturant near the stadium; Don Cardwell, a car salesman in North Carolina; Jerry Grote, a rancher in Texas; Shamsky, a New York talent scout and broadcaster on the Mets' cable-TV network; J.C. Martin and Jim McAndrew, both sales representatives for Illinois firms, and Dr. Ron Taylor, now the team physician for the Toronto Blue Jays.

For practically all of them, the 1969 championship was the highpoint of their careers. By the time the Mets won the National League pennant in 1973, most of the 1969 crew was gone. But they had been around just long enough to provide a summer of magic.

Jones remembered the final out of the Series, a Dave Johnson fly ball.

"I kept telling myself I wanted the ball hit to me for the last out," said Jones. "When it was, I just stood there and said 'Come down, baby. Come down, baby.' When I caught it, I thought of all the good things that had happened to me that season, and I just got down to one knee and said, 'Thank God.'"

Basketball Superstar Moses Malone

Malone Among Highest-Paid Team Athletes In World Now

HOUSTON (AP) — Player agent Lee Fentress says Moses Malone's three-year contract with the Houston Rockets makes Malone the highest salaried team athlete in the world.

Malone figures, jokingly, he at least made the top 40.

"If he (Fentress) says it, then I guess it's true," Malone said Monday. "I hope I at least made the top 40."

The National Basketball Association's most valuable player last season likely is No. 1 on the charts however following the signing ceremony Monday that also netted a three-year guaranteed contract for former Washington Bullets guard Tom Henderson.

The Rockets called a news conference presumably to announce the signing of Henderson but Malone's contract agreement was an added surprise.

The Bullets will get Houston's No. 1 draft choice next year as compensation for Henderson.

"It is fair to say that Mo's contract makes him the highest paid pro athlete for a team sport in the world," Fentress said. "I'd say (tennis player Bjorn) Borg makes three or four million dollars counting all of his endorsements but I know of no team salaried athlete making more than Mo."

Fentress declined to give specifics of Malone's contract, which will extend through the 1981-82 season. He also refused to compare Malone's contract with that of Denver's David Thompson, reportedly making $800,000 annually.

"The money doesn't change anything," Malone said. "It just changes what you can get. I won't worry about that. I'm just going to do my best while I am here."

Malone won the MVP award last season after leading the league in rebounding with a 17.6 average and finishing fifth in scoring at 24.8. His 587 offensive rebounds set an NBA record.

The twin signings of Malone and Henderson was the biggest player personnel announcement by new owner George Maloof since he purchased the Rockets last month.

Henderson, 27, was a play-making guard for Washington last year when the Bullets compiled the league's best record, 54-28 and reached the playoff finals before losing to Seattle.

Henderson's signing gives the Rockets six guards with guaranteed contracts.

"My role with this team is different from (Calvin) Murphy or (Mike) Newlin so I'm not worried," said Henderson, who averaged 10.6 points and six assists last season. "I don't think they'll keep all the guards. They've got a month or two before the season starts."

Pro Action Picking Up In Camps

By The Associated Press

Former Texas Christian receiver Mike Renfro, who became a starter for the Houston Oilers his rookie season, expects to return from a knee injury earlier than anticipated.

"There's no pain in the knee and I think I could play in the next to last exhibition game," said Renfro, injured Dec. 3 against Pittsburgh. "I'm sure I'll be ready for the last one (New Orleans on Aug. 24)."

Renfro was the Oilers' No. 3 receiver last season catching 26 passes for 336 yards, including a 58-yard touchdown.

Meanwhile, in Thousand Oaks, the black limousine's chauffeur guided the vehicle into the Dallas Cowboys training camp Monday, and, to no one's surprise, out stepped Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson.

At a reported $100,000 a year for four years, Henderson is unhappy with his lot.

"Hollywood is unhappy," the linebacker told Dallas Morning News columnist Skip Bayless before reporting to camp. "I need more money. I don't want to cause no trouble, but I'm going to talk to them about it when I get there (Thousand Oaks)."

Henderson feels his position is strong. "With the whole strong side (Ed Jones and Jethro Pugh, both retired) gone except me, my bargaining power has increased dramatically," he said. "And now that they don't have to pay Too Tall (Jones) his $150,000, there's more money to spread around."

Henderson didn't talk to newsmen when he arrived at training camp. He wanted to talk with Cowboy negotiator Gil Brandt. Brandt was ready, if not sympathetic. He told Bayless, "We made an agreement, and obviously, Thomas was pleased with it or he wouldn't have signed it. There was no promise of renegotiation. I'll be glad to talk to him about it, but that's all I'll have to say."

If Henderson made a splash with his entrance, rookie defensive back Doug Dillon of Jackson State made an exit that bordered on one-upsmanship.

Dillon left camp following his release in a chauffeur-drive white limousine — complete with color television and champagne.

But those are nothing compared to the histrionics at the Oakland Raiders training camp. That's where quarterback Kenny Stabler will either: a.) arrive soon or; b.) not arrive. Pick one of the above.

The malcontent quarterback has supposedly been on his way here in his black sports coupe from his Gulf Shores, Ala. home, since Saturday.

Penn Picks Wolverine

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Harris, formerly an assistant director of athletics at the University of Michigan, is the new head director of athletics at the University of Pennsylvania.

The appointment of Harris, who at 29 is the youngest man to hold the position at Penn, was announced Monday. He is also the first black named to the post.

Harris, whose appointment is effective Sept. 1, succeeds Andy Geiger. Geiger resigned earlier this year to take a similar post at Stanford.

"The university's historical commitment to the ideal of the student as athlete and scholar duplicates my own ideal. I believe the kind of program Penn offers — the concept of the scholar-athlete — will carry a lot of weight in the future of athletics," Harris said at a news conference.

Asked what plans he had brought with him to the Ivy League school, he replied, "The biggest one will be a rededication of the kind of goals that have made Penn's program such an excellent one." He later added, "The No. 1 priority is what your financial posture is, and what can be done."

Harris was named athletic director at Michigan in 1975. He is the third assistant under Don Canham to move on to an athletic directorship. The other two were Bump Elliott of Iowa and Dave Strack of Arizona.

"Charles Harris has had many opportunities to be associated with high-powered athletics. However, he has chosen to join us for he shares Pennsylvania's dedication to Ivy League principles," said Provost Vartan Gregorian, who announced the appointment.

Harris received his undergraduate degree in mass media arts from Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va., in 1972, and his master's degree in journalism from the University of Michigan in 1974.

Hubbel Remembered As Great Pitcher

Steve Carlton Dims By Comparison, Especially After Conference No-Show

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

No matter how well Steve Carlton pitches for the National Leaguers in tonight's All-Star contest, no matter how well he pitches the rest of his life, he'll never be able to carry Carl Hubbell's glove — or even the lunch pail of the man they used to call "The Old Meal Ticket."

He proved that for the benefit of everybody present at the news conference which was held at All-Star headquarters Monday.

Carlton is 34, in excellent health and having a fine year for the Philadelphia Phillies. Since the hard-throwing lefthander from Miami is especially effective against left-handed hitters and since five of the eight American League starters are left-handed, Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda, handling the National Leaguers, named Carlton as his starting pitcher.

The two-time Cy Young Award winner was so thrilled over the "honor," so overwhelmed by it, he declined to show up for Monday's pre-game news conference because, well, he just doesn't do that sort of thing. He doesn't talk to writers.

For the past few years, the two All-Star starting pitchers have always attended the pregame news conference with the rival managers. Bob Lemon and Lasorda, the two managers, both showed up promptly for Monday's session.

So did Nolan Ryan, the starting pitcher for the American League. He wasn't too busy. Neither was Carlton's teammate, Mike Schmidt, who talked about how happy and honored he was to be there. Rod Carew of the Angels, Roy Smalley of the Twins, Steve Rogers of the Expos and Joe Niekro of the Astros also made it their business to be on hand.

The same thing went for Hubbell and Lefty Gomez, the two honorary captains for tonight's contest who were the opposing starting pitchers in the very first All-Star game back in 1933.

Carl Hubbell is 76 and has trouble getting around anymore. He and the 68-year-old Gomez both suffered serious heart attacks within the last year. Hubbell's legs give him a lot of trouble and he doesn't make many trips anymore from his home in Mesa, Ariz. Gomez also stays pretty close to the hearth in the San Francisco Bay area, yet both were delighted to show up for Monday's press conference when they were asked whether they'd be willing to do so.

Carlton also was asked. He wasn't so delighted. He doesn't grant interviews, he explained, so he was going to pass this one up like he does all other interview requests. He wasn't really missed at Monday's get-together, especially since Hubbell enchanted those present with his remembrances of those days he pitched for the New York Giants.

A Hall of Famer, Hubbell pitched in five All-Star games. He always will be remembered for his classic feat of striking out five Hall of Famers in a row — Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmie Foxx, Al Simmons and Joe Cronin — in the 1934 All-Star game.

Bill Dickey, another Hall of Famer, finally broke the spell with a base hit.

How come Dickey got a hit off him, Hubbell was asked?

"I was worried about the next hitter while I was pitching to him," Hubbell said. "The next hitter after Dickey was Gomez."

Gomez never could hit high C on a pitchpipe, and when he walked up to the plate after Dickey's hit, Gabby Hartnett, the National League catcher, said to him, "are you trying to insult Hubbell?"

"Why do you say that?" Gomez asked.

"Because you're coming up here with a bat," Hartnett said to him.

Hubbell joined the Giants in 1928 and was given what so far has amounted to a lifetime job with them by former Giants owner Horace Stoneham after pitching for them 16 years. Hub won 253 games and lost 154.

"I still do some scouting for the Giants," he said. "I've been with them 52 years."

Talking about the years he pitched for the Giants during the '30's, Hubbell said he "went hand-in-hand with the Depression."

"Anyone who didn't go through that doesn't know what it means," he went on. "I made $750 a month when I came up and $7,500 the next year. I went to $10,000 the year after that and then never got a raise again until after the 1933 World Series. I won two 23 games and two World Series games that year and got a $7,500 raise. I never held out. If you held out, you might get a $1,000 raise."

Hubbell is even skinnier now than when he used to throw his celebrated screwball for the Giants. Throwing it as much as he did has left him with a crooked left arm which has almost become his trademark.

Asked for his impressions about the modern ballplayer, Hubbell said:

"The tail is wagging the dog now. It's them, their agent and their lawyer against the world. I feel very sorry for the manager of any big league club. I don't see how they can get things done when they (the players) have so much to say about it."

Bad Behavior Penalized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The temperamental terrors of the professional tennis circuit are not playing in this week's Washington Star International, and perhaps it's for a reason. A crackdown on tantrums is under way.

An obscure pro named Bruce Nichols bore the brunt in Monday's first-round action. He was penalized a point at match point, ending his 6-1, 7-6 loss to Butch Walts.

Nichols is not known for his temper or for much of anything else on the pro circuit. He got into the tournament only because Brian Fairlie failed to show up.

The 23-year-old from Phoenix, Ariz., showed no emotion until he had pushed Walts into a second-set tiebreaker, then fell behind 2-6.

Then, Nichols smashed a ball over the fence, annoyed at his own errors. Umpire Zeno Pfau immediately awarded Walts a penalty point, which ended the match. Tournament and Grand Prix circuit officials said it was the first time they could remember a pro being assessed a match-ending penalty point.

Tech Signs High Jumper

Schoolboy John Paige, termed the most consistent high jumper ever to come to the school, has signed a track letter-of-intent with Texas Tech, track coach Corky Olgesby announced Tuesday.

Paige, a 6-5, 180-pounder from Killeen Ellison High School, placed fourth in the state Class AAAA track meet in May with a leap of 6-9.

During his senior year, Paige cleared 6-10 four times and was over the bar at 6-8 or better nine times. Only five other high jumpers in the high school ranks jumped higher than Paige last year, Oglesby said.

Paige cleared 6-10 once in Lubbock, at the regional meet, where he matched the height achieved by regional and state champion Chuck Perry of Monterey. Perry won on fewer misses.

According to Oglesby, Paige is a potential 7-0 high jumper.

1979 Homer Leaders Have Shot at Ruth?

If they play in all 162 games and hit home runs at the same pace they did in the first quarter of the season, 1979 would be a record shattering year. It is an 'iffy' situation, but if the above holds true, Mike Schmidt would win the home run title with 61.

Little League Teams Advance

By JOHN EUBANKS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Finalists for the area Little League Baseball tournaments were determined Monday during first-round action.,

The Northwest League All-Stars will meet the Eastern All-Stars tonight at 7:30 in the finals of the Area I Tournament Hodges Park. Northwest advanced to the finals by defeating Northeast 6-4, while Eastern advanced by holding off Midwest 12-11.

In the Area II Tournament, Dixie will meet the Southwest All-Stars tonight at 7:30 at Southern Field (42nd and Ave. U) for the championship.

Dixie advanced with a 7-6 win over the Western all-Stars, and Southwest moved to the championship game with an 11-4 win over Southern.

In the Area I tournment, Pete Ramos was the winning pitcher for Northwest, striking out 13 and allowing only five hits. Keith Thornton was the losing pitcher.

The leading hitters for Northwest were Carles Rios, who went 3-for-4, and Randy Vasquez, who went 2-for-3. Thornton was the leading hitter for Northeast, going 2-for-3. Paul Otega and Rodney Davis both homered for Northwest.

In the Area II tournament, Dixie pitcher Brent Rice got the win, while Western's Jeff Odom took the loss.

Leading hitters for Dixie were Kyle Gayler, Greg Baker, and Todd Hunt. Each went 2-for-3.

Mike Berberniss was the leading hitter for Western, with a homer in his only official trip to the plate.

In the second game of the Area II tourney, Southwest's winning pitcher, Aaron Auston, helped his own cause with a 3-run homer.

Mike Gustafson was the leading hitter for Southwest, going 3-for-3 and clouting a home run. Brian Christiansen also homered for the winners.

Luis Chavoz was Southern's leading hitter, with a homer in three trips to the plate. The pitching loss was charged to him, however.

In the two tournaments here, Monday's losers will collide for third place in 5:30 p.m. contests.

At Shallowater, the hosts advanced to tonight's Area III finals with an 8-7 squeaker over O'Donnell. They will now play Crosbyton, which whipped Wolfforth 8-5. A third-place game at 5:30 p.m. will precede the championship.

At Tahoka, in the Area IV tournament, Slaton advanced with a 4-1 win over Post, and Cooper walloped North Lynn 21-2. The Area IV tourney continues through Wednesday's finals.

In a Senior Little League playoff, Lubbock Dixie drubbed Cooper 15-2, on Rick Dillman's no-hitter. Dillman struck out 17 in the contest. The playoff is a best-of-three affair, and the two teams will collide again tonight.

WHEN IT COMES TO GOING THE DISTANCE, LINCOLN CONTINENTAL AND MARK V ARE FULL OF SURPRISES.

LONG-RANGE CRUISING

SURPRISING SUMMER CLEARANCE VALUES.

If you ever wanted to own a Lincoln Continental or Continental Mark V, right now is the time to see a Lincoln-Mercury dealer. The summer clearance values are exceptional, and you'll understand why we say . . . the cat's full of surprises.

For all you long-range thinkers, there are Lincoln Continental and Continental Mark V. Two luxury cars that offer you many long-range conveniences.
As you can see by this chart, Lincoln Continental and Continental Mark V offer you respectable estimated cruising ranges.

LINCOLN CONTINENTAL
EPA EST. MPG	HWY. EST.	Fuel Capacity	EST. Range	HWY. EST. Range
12*	17	24.2 Gal.	290*	411
CONTINENTAL MARK V
EPA EST. MPG	HWY. EST.	Fuel Capacity	EST. Range	HWY. EST. Range
12*	17	25 Gal.	300*	425

*Remember, use these numbers for comparisons. Your mileage and range may differ depending on speed, trip length and weather. Actual highway mileage and range will probably be less than the highway and range estimate.

THESE CABINET AND HIGH-LEVEL WHITE HOUSE STAFF MEMBERS HAVE OFFERED TO TURN IN THEIR RESIGNATIONS TO PRESIDENT CARTER

Resignation Offers Carry Plenty Of Symbolism

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's no job security in the Cabinet, and President Carter's action Tuesday getting offers of resignation from all its members carried more symbolism than substance.

They serve at the pleasure of the president anyhow.

So do the White House aides who also submitted resignations at Carter's request.

All told, at least 34 administration officials offered to quit. Carter is going to take some of them up on it, although he hasn't said which ones.

That's more dramatic than dismissing the aides he wants to go, and leaving the rest alone. But it really doesn't make much difference.

With or without resignations in advance, when presidents want Cabinet members to go, they go. When the president says they're no longer wanted, they resign. It's quit or be fired.

Analysis

The Constitution doesn't say anything about the Cabinet or its tenure. It speaks only of presidential authority to appoint the heads of executive departments. It does require Senate confirmation of major presidential appointees.

Dismissal didn't become a major issue until President Andrew Johnson wanted to fire Secretary of War Edward M. Stanton after the Civil War.

To block him, Congress passed in 1867 the Tenure of Office Act, requiring that the president get Senate consent before dismissing any office-holder who had been appointed with Senate approval.

Stanton refused to resign, and Johnson fired him in defiance of the act. Congress moved to impeach Johnson on charges including violation of the act, but the move fell one vote short of ousting him as president.

The tenure act was repealed in 1887.

In the meantime, Congress had passed another measure restricting the authority of presidents to fire postmasters, so the issue came up again. President Woodrow Wilson fired the postmaster of Portland, Ore., in 1920, and the man sued the government.

So on Oct. 25, 1926, the Supreme Court, which never had made a decisive ruling on presidential removal powers, held that Wilson was right despite the law.

In essence, the court ruled that the president has full authority to remove anyone he appoints, except federal judges. Chief Justice William Howard Taft said a president has "unrestricted power to remove the most important of his subordinates."

The court later ruled that this power didn't extend to the members of federal regulatory commissions, who are appointed to specific terms of service anyhow. Cabinet members and presidential advisers are not told when their tenure stops, only when it begins.

Carter's action on Tuesday recalled that of Richard M. Nixon the day after his landslide re-election in 1972. He asked for the resignations of the entire White House staff and all Cabinet members.

"Most of the resignations would not be accepted," Nixon wrote later. "My action was meant to be symbolic of an entirely new beginning."

That seems to be the case now, too.

While such wholesale requests for offers of resignation are unusual, past presidents have sometimes obtained undated resignations from their top appointees, just in case they wanted to fill in the date and accept them.

Carter hasn't followed that practice.

When Lyndon B. Johnson and later Gerald R Ford suceeded to office as vice presidents, the incumbent Cabinets offered resignations. Neither Johnson nor Ford accepted them then, although they made changes later.

Nixon got rid of two attorneys general in one night, when Elliot L. Richardson and then William Ruckleshaus refused to fire Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Walter L. Hickel resigned under pressure as Nixon's secretary of the interior. Ford fired James Schlesinger as secretary of defense. Now Carter has Schlesinger's resignation as secretary of energy.

Presidents have been dismissing Cabinet members for about as long as they've been appointing them.

Congressmen Question Carter's Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has found another way to surprise the official Washington he once campaigned against.

"Strange" and "curious" were among the comments by members of Congress to the announcement Tuesday that the entire Carter Cabinet and all of the president's top aides had offered their resignations.

Predictably, the harshest comments came from members of the opposition party. But several Democrats also indicated they had questions about the action.

"I think the president is nuts," said Sen. Lowell Weicker. The Connecticut Republican, who already has abandoned his bid for the Republican presidential nomination, said the resignation offers are "just a continuation of the scapegoat operation. It is the president, not his cabinet, that the American people have lost confidence in."

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said, "This apparent attempt at zero base staffing has the plus of making the president look like he's in charge and it gives him a way to gracefully fire several people. But the potential liability is that it may project an appearance of instability."

"It was a generous thing for them to do," Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., an acknowledged presidential candidate, said of the resignation offers. Baker said the development "underlines the fact the president has a serious problem, that we all have a serious problem."

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., said the offers seem to "symbolize President Carter's political rebirth as a result of what's happened in the past few days."

Rep. Phillip Crane, another Republican presidential candidate, said "This smacks of Rafshoonery," referring to Carter's media adviser, Gerald Rafshoon.

Crane, of Illinois, said if Carter accepts any of the resignations, "there will be a paralysis during the advise and consent period" in which the Senate must confirm the new Cabinet officers. "The president is going to be hard-pressed to find competent replacements."

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan. another presidential contender, said, "It sounds like more high drama at the White House. This is more form than substance, just like Carter's energy speech."

Rep. Robert Bauman, a conservative Republican from Maryland, said the spectre of mass resignations does little to restore public confidence in Carter. "In any other country, the head of state would go," Bauman said.

Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., said Carter had chosen "a rather circuitous method of easing unwanted members of his cabinet out of office. I hope the changes do not mean that the man in the White House has become more concerned with his political future than with the future of the country."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said Defense Secretary Harold Brown told him the resignation offers "were pro forma. They wanted to give the president the opportunity to accept resignations if he chose to do so."

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., said Carter "clearly is trying to give the impression that he's shaking up" his cabinet, "that policies are going to change, that personnel are going to change."
