Willing to Make Changes in Court to Suit "Doubters"

Associated Press Dispatch

ST. LOUIS, June 21.—Completing the first leg of his transcontinental trip here late today, President Harding entered upon a round of activities that completely filled the eight-hour visit allotted to St. Louis. The chief executive addressed the annual convention of the International Rotary, in session here; laid the cornerstone of a new city club building; shook hands with the crowds that surged his hotel; delivered the first prepared address of his trip with the world court as his subject, and attended a number of minor affairs.

Seven-Mile Procession.

The presidential party left the train in Forrest park and Mr. and Mrs. Harding were placed at the head of an automobile procession that took them over a seven-mile route to downtown St. Louis. The pavements from the park were lined three or four deep and bands stationed at mile intervals hailed the president's arrival in advance of the procession.

After the cornerstone laying, the president and Mrs. Harding were driven to a hotel, where a public reception was held, but the crush

Waco Man Returns From "Grave"

Associated Press Dispatch

WACO, June 21. — Charles "Cap" Davis, former citizen of McLennan county, thought dead for 16 years, appeared suddenly in the Nineteenth district court this afternoon while his wife, from whom he was separated, was on the witness stand testifying in a partition case involving the estate of R. E. "Lone" Davis, who died two years ago in this county, and which consists of between 1,200 and 1,400 acres of valuable land.

Mrs. Davis was asked if she would know her husband if she were to see him.

"I don't know," she replied.

"Bring him in," said Attorney Frank Fitzpatrick.

As "Cap" Davis was brought into the courtroom, his wife said, "I had hoped and prayed I would never see you again; this is what you have done to me."

After this incident Mrs. Davis was asked if the man before her was "Cap" Davis, her husband.

"I couldn't say. It looks very much like him, but I wouldn't say, unless I could see some scars that he has," she replied.

"Cap" Davis was then placed on the stand and testified that he had been in Canada most of the time since he left here.

It was last week, the testimony showed, that Lee R. Davis, a brother of "Cap" Davis, located him, and by wire learned that he was still living. The missing brother came to Waco at once on account of the litigation and no one knew of his presence until he was ushered into the courtroom.

Following this dramatic passage, the jury was retired, and finally dismissed, and the case will be concluded before the court.

Gulf Rum Ship Gives Slip To Sleuth Launch

Coast Officials Keep Close Eye on Boats Missing All Night.

Associated Press Dispatch

HOUSTON, June 21.—The Gulf coast's first rum-running ship, like Omar's sails of the desert, folded it wings in the wee hours of Thursday morning and slipped out to sea, its cargo presumably profitably disposed of to swift-moving launches.

Launches Out All Night.

This became known late this evening after Chief Customs Inspector H. Brinkenhoefer of Galveston and a party of newspaper men searched the bay aboard the boarding launch of the customs service. Although empty bottles, whiskey cases and casks were tossing about the anchorage off Heald's bank lightship, where the rum runner remained for more than a week no sight of the rusty, ramshackle ship itself were to be found.

Customs officials believed the last of the runner's cargo was taken off some time Wednesday night. A check of the water front showed nearly a score of "suspected" launches were absent from their slips all night.

Capitals Take Notice.

Officials at Washington and Austin took cognizance of the Texas rum ship early today. Shortly before the inspecting launch put out for the Heald bank lightship, where the runner was moored in about 10 fathoms of water, Custom Collector Humphreys received several official telegrams from both state and national capitals.

Approximately 20 dry officers are keeping a watch on the suspected launches and their landing places.

Chicago Grumbles As Mercury Rises and Takes 17 Lives, But Heavy Frost Reported in West

CHICAGO, June 21.—Weather grumblers were granted their diverging requests indirectly today by a variety of temperatures throughout central United States which ranged from torridly hot in some sections to almost winter in others.

The heat wave which struck Chicago Monday and has since spread southward and eastward to the Atlantic coast, continued here today, adding more than 20 prostrations to its list of 17 deaths in three days.

In Superior, Wis., residents were forced to shelve straw hats and summer clothing and return temporarily to woolens and overcoats by a temperature drop of more than 40 degrees in less than 48 hours.

Western New Mexico is reported in the grip of a cold wave which has killed virtually all crops of beans, corn and potatoes. At McGaffey ice was frozen last night so thick it had to be broken before stock could drink.

LIVED IN HELL DURING BOYHOOD, WITNESS SAYS

Vivid Picture of Cruelty by Father Painted by Man on Trial

HE'S MARKED BY SCARS

These He Shows to Court While Reciting Tale of Hardships

Special Dispatch to Record News

ANSON, Texas, June 21.—Making one of the most remarkable witnesses that has ever occupied the stand here, Henry J. Toussaint took the chair this afternoon in his own defense and for three hours told the story of his life as it was connected with the slaying of his father in Wichita Falls early in 1921.

The story of the defendant was easily the feature of the second day of the trial on which Toussaint's life depends. A packed courtroom listened intently throughout the day as he told how he had shot down his father after a life of supposed strife with the parent.

Good Witness for Self

Toussaint was called by the defense at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. It was just 6 o'clock when he left after having answered coolly and with deliberation all the questions that his lawyers on direct examination, had asked him. Experienced court attaches here remarked after it was over that a better defense witness could not have been found for the man than was the defendant himself.

Starting in with his history at the time he was 3 years of age, Toussaint traced his career up until the night late in February, 1921, when Otto H. Toussaint was left lifeless at the southern end of Monroe street and the defendant slunk through alleys to his home with a smoking pistol in his hand.

Early Days Living Hell

Toussaint recited a life of cruel treatment at the hands of his father. He charged that he was born in a house of ill fame in Washington, and that his early days had been a living hell. Alleged cruelty toward his mother on the part of his father, Toussaint painted with vivid, well-chosen words; how he had always quarreled with his parent and had been threatened with physical violence time and again.

He exhibited scars which, he said, had been inflicted in encounters with his father.

Domestic Difficulties

The defendant's army career, his subsequent marriage and later alleged intrusion of his home by his father

PRESBYTERIANS VOTE TO BUILD

Floor Space to Be Doubled and 25 School Rooms Added

Improvements to cost $30,000 and to result in 40 feet more of floor space, 25 additional Sunday school rooms, to double the Sunday school capacity and increase the church auditorium seating capacity 500 will be made by the First Presbyterian church.

This was decided by the membership Thursday night when plans and blue prints submitted by C. C. Bulger, Dallas architect, were adopted.

The growth in the activities of the First Presbyterian church, one of the greatest in the city, has necessitated the vast enlargement program adopted last night. According to Dr. N. F. Grafton, pastor, plans for the enlargement of the structure have been in the making for several months.

Adds to Architecture.

The enlargement of the present edifice as planned will make it one of the most commodious houses of worship in the city. The plans for enlargement are so worked out as to not detract from the present attractiveness of the building, but will add to its symmetry and beauty, it was stated at the meeting last night.

Work on the structure should begin not later than July 15 next, Dr. Grafton states. The building program has been placed in charge of the church board of elders and executive committee, consisting of thirty members.

Meeting Sunday.

Appointment of building, finance, detail and other committees are to be made soon. Next Saturday afternoon the church will meet in executive session to further discuss the program adopted last night.

The building program of the First Presbyterian church marks the second Wichita Falls congregation to plan vast building programs to begin at once. The First Methodist church a week ago adopted plans for the erection of a new building

34 Miles of Concrete Road to Be Built in Clay County.

Special Dispatch to Record News

HENRIETTA, June 21.—The fifth and sixth efforts of the anti-roads faction to get recourse in Texas courts from the overwhelming victory by the good roads faction last March 20 declaring for 34 miles of concrete highway in Clay county, went the way of the others, defeated, when Judge Paul Donald of the ninety-seventh district court Thursday abated an appeal for a permanent mandamus and a jury refused an application for a permanent restraining injunction Tuesday.

Today the same appeals will be made before the third court of civil appeals at Fort Worth by the anti-roads attorney. Like the district courts, the court of civil appeals has refused temporary injunctions on the same grounds asked for permanent injunctions.

J. S. Dickey and W. M. Glasgow are in Fort Worth today representing the good roads faction and the county commissioners court in the suits. The same attorneys in connection with County Attorney Vincent Stine have participated in the six other fights in the courts to defeat the good roads and have won each time.

It is believed here now the antis will go the whole legal route in an effort to block the roads. After the hearing today before the court of civil appeal at Fort Worth, should the antis lose as in the six other attempts, their only recourse will be to go to the Texas supreme court with the issue.

The anti-roads attorneys demanded a jury and some difficulty was found in finding one for the injunction suit in Thursday's trial. The anti-road advocates demanded jurors outside the road bond district and great difficulty was found in finding those that could qualify. A number of the prospective jurors when asked if they had heard anything about the road fight all replied they had read about the road fight in the Wichita Falls Record News.

Finally 12 men were selected and after evidence was in Judge Donald accepted a motion for an instructed verdict not granting the injunction.

Associated Press Dispatch

As precautions against possible violence, the entire day police force was put on extra duty. Electric traffic signals, ordinarily disconnected at 9 p. m., were operated late into the night.

Sicilians Praise Saint as Molten Lava River Turns

Associated Press Dispatch

CATANIA, Italy, June 21.—Although the eruption of Mount Etna has filled all hearts with terror, there have been a few rare exceptions. Wandering among fields close to where a lava stream had cooled, the correspondent of the Associated Press observed a man dressed in picturesque Sicilian costume crouching over an excavation. He was a peasant, employed on lands nearby, had devised a new and economical way to cook his dinner. He had dug a hole in the outer crust of the lava until he reached the almost boiling lava below, and had then lowered a pan filled with water which was thus heated to a point where it could cook food.

It is a deep-rooted conviction among all the inhabitants of Linguaglossa that St. Egidio was responsible for turning aside the lava stream and insuring the safety of the town. They declare that St. Egidio never failed them or their ancestors, and that he had on other occasions stopped the lava flow. In reality, the diversion of the stream was due to a small spur rising near Linguaglossa on the side of the crater. Naturally the lava flowed on either side of the ridge instead of climbing it.

NEW FIGHT ON WALTON FACTION

Action to Be Forced From Oklahoma Farm-Labor Movement

Associated Press Dispatch

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 21.—The involved situation which has attended the determination of the leadership in the farmer-labor movement in Oklahoma took a new turn today when Pat Nagle, prominent socialist, announced that an intensive campaign will be started at once to force action from a group of representatives of farm and labor organizations, which met here Monday on invitation of Gov. J. C. Walton.

In a signed statement, Nagle scored the members of the conference for their "refusal to act" and said that the "fight will be taken from the hotel lobbies to the section lines," where the "rank and file" will instruct the chief executive of their organization to vote right, or resign, or be removed.

J. Luther Langston, manager of the Reconstruction league, issued an immediate reply in which he charged Nagle with "scheming to destroy the only Oklahoma working class political organization which has ever been able to name a governor, 13 state officials and 14 legislators the first year of its existence."

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, June 21.—Bernard N. Baruch, noted financier and economist, made public tonight, copies of letters and telegrams in which he had made suggestions that farmers purchase a "going concern like the Armour Grain company" as a solution to their problems of co-operative marketing. Baruch made it clear, however, that his plan had been offered only as a suggestion and thus far had not progressed beyond that point.

Baruch said he made public his correspondence in order to set at rest false inferences that might result from premature publication in Chicago of a tentative plan relating to co-operative wheat marketing. The suggestions were contained in a telegram to J. M. Nehl, secretar, of the United States Grain Growers, Inc., and in a letter to "a prominent agricultural senator."

East Texas: Friday and Saturday partly cloudy and somewhat unsettled.

Oklahoma: Friday and Saturday partly cloudy, probably scattered thunder showers.

The highest temperature recorded Thursday was 95 degrees at 2 p. m. while the lowest was 80 degrees at 6 a. m.

Although many are complaining of the warm weather, thus far it has been cooler this year than last. Although the temperature has gone to 99 degrees it has never reached the 100 mark, all of which it did previous to this time last year.

Sheriff Tells How Ross Killed Range Inspector

Associated Press Dispatch

LUBBOCK, Texas, June 21.—Introduction of evidence by the state and completion of the jury marked today's proceedings in the trial of Tom Ross, cattleman, charged with the slaying of W. D. Allison, cattle inspector. The jurors are virtually all farmers.

Frank Britton, sheriff of Gaines county, eye-witness to the killing at Seminole on April 1, described the scene and wounds made. He said the shooting occurred about 9 o'clock at night. Later in the night Ross telephoned him, he said, and said he was out of gasoline. He inquired if anyone had been wounded and asked Britton to bring him some gasoline, but not bring a mob. A short time later the sheriff said that Ross telephoned him that he had found a man who would bring him to town and asked if that would be all right. About midnight Ross came to the courthouse steps and surrendered, the witness concluded.

Rouged Chicago Mystery Man to Hospital In Raving Condition After Confession

Associated Press Dispatch

CHICAGO, June 21.—Frank Carrick, "husband" of Fred C. Thompson, who is being held by police as the "smiling woman" bandit who shot and killed Richard C. Tesmer, was removed from his cell in a police station to the psychopathic hospital tonight in a raving condition.

Before being removed from the cell in which he was placed by police after his arrest three days ago at the time Thompson and Marie Clark, said by Thompson to have been his wife for two years, Carrick is said to have made a confession implicating Thompson in the murder of Tesmer, but detectives, because of his mental condition, say they do not believe the confession.

Thompson became a still greater enigma Thursday when a police questioning revealed that for years he played the role of husband to a woman at the same time he was passing for the wife of a man.

The suspect is said to have admitted that he has been a lawful husband of Marnie Clark for two years. Known to neighbors as Mrs. Francis Carrick, a talented singer and industrious housewife, Thompson has lived for 13 years with Frank Carrick, mechanic, in the same building in which he and his wife maintain an apartment.

Amidst the maze of conflicting statements made by the three came the assertion from the woman that Carrick married Thompson in order that he could be exempted from military service because of a dependent wife.

Thompson faced his interrogators still clad in the black gown, silk stockings and high heeled slippers he wore at the time of his arrest. His appearance was made incongruous by the two-day growth of beard which has penetrated the layers of powder and rouge on his face.

OFFICIALS TO GAS MEETING

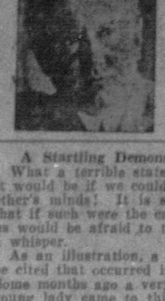

Mann and Stayton Will Go and Others May Join Them

At least six city officials and possibly seven, will in all probability attend the gas hearing in Dallas next Saturday, it developed Thursday night at a special called meeting of the city council.

City Attorney E. M. Mann and Utilities Commissioner Stayton announced definitely that they would be in Dallas for the all-important session and it was intimated by Mayor Collier and Commissioners Young, Patton and Shepherd that they, too, would probably make the trip. Commissioner Clifford was not at the meeting and it is not known whether or not he will be able to get away for the day or not.

Decision to attend the session followed a report from City Attorney Mann on the status of the fight to prevent the Municipal Gas company from assessing a 50-cent per month ready to serve charge on gas consumers after September 1. Mr. Mann has been busy for the past three weeks working with other city officials in combatting the gas company move. He returned Wednesday night from an all-day trip to points between here and Denver enlisting the aid of other communities in the fight.

Mr. Mann told the commissioners last night that the session at Dallas Saturday was to be one of the most important in the campaign against the gas company. He said that representatives from 21 cities in the northern part of the state would meet to perfect a permanent organization through which the extra charge was to be opposed.

NEW GEMS BY

A Treasure Trove of Humor From His Newly Discovered Newspaper Writings.

A Startling Demonstration

What a terrible state of affairs it would be if we could read each other's minds! It is safe to say that if such were the case most of us would be afraid to think above a whisper.

As an illustration, a case might be cited that occurred in Houston. Some months ago a very charming young lady came to this city giving exhibitions in mind reading, and proved herself to be marvelously gifted in that respect. She easily read the thoughts of the audience, finding many articles hidden by simly holding the hand of the person secreting them, and read sentences written on little slips of paper by some at a considerable distance from her.

A young man in Houston fell in love with her, and married her after a short courtship.

They went to housekeeping and for a time were as happy as mortals can be.

One evening they were sitting on the porch of their residence holding each other's hands, and wrapt in the close communion of mutual love, when she suddenly rose and knocked him down the steps with a flower pot.

He arose astonished with a big bump on his head, and asked her if it were not too much trouble, to explain.

"You can't fool me," she said with flashing eyes. "You were thinking of a red-headed girl named Maud with a gold plug in her front tooth and a light pink waist and a black skirt on Rusk Avenue, standing under a cedar bush chewing gum at 20 minutes to 8 with your arm around her waist and calling her 'sweetness,' while she fooled with your watch chain and said: 'Oh, George, give me a chance to breathe,' and her mother was calling her to supper. Don't you dare deny it. Now, when you can get your mind on something better than that you can come in the house and not before."

Then the door slammed and George and the broken flower-pot were alone.

Dentist Buys His Gold at Bank Just As You Buy Soap

At the bank where most all other kinds of gold is kept. This was discovered by the cub reporter when he was passing by the savings window at the City National bank and saw a dentist buy some gold for tooth-filling.

The dentist approached L. L. Sellars at the savings window and said he wanted a little gold. Sellars didn't hesitate, but drew out two strips of gold and asked the dentist what kind he wanted. The dentist bought a little piece about an inch and a half square, 22 carat, and paid $5.50 for it. The other gold sample was a little long strip of 20 carats and sold for a dollar.

"We keep a supply of gold on hand for the dentists. They do not care to keep it in large quantities, as it is a big risk," Sellars stated.

"How much of this dentist gold do you sell?" the teller was asked.

"Sometimes as much as $500 a month and sometimes not so much."

Another Wichita Falls Couple Decides to Enter Poultry Game

By AL OLSTON
The Record News Poultry Editor

Two more local people are planning to enter the poultry game, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Rowsey, who live two and one-half miles northeast of this city on the Thornberry road, are going to enter the chicken business this fall and already own 150 of the prettiest and best laying White Leghorn hens in this part of the state.

They also have quite a number of beautiful Leghorn cockrels and a good start in White Wyandottes. Up to this time Mr. Rowsey has only kept chickens as a hobby, but declares that his hens average him $4 profit per bird. Mr. Rowsey will be ably assisted by his wife, as she is a great Leghorn enthusiast. She can always be found working among her birds when not occupied with other duties. The above couple have about 15 acres of land and are planning to make this one of the leading poultry yards in the state and beyond a doubt they will make a wonderful success, as they are going into the game in the right way.

Steady Market

The place mentioned is very suitable for a poultry farm, being close to the city and the entire acreage is well drained with some of the best soil in Wichita county. They have always found a market for their stock and have always received a better price right at their house than they received by bringing it to the city. This is merely another proof that poultry pays and pays well when it is properly handled and, I, personally, believe that it is the best mortgage-lifter for the farmer today and the most profitable business that a farmer may enter.

If we could only realize the number of people who are today planning entering the poultry game I believe that the chamber of commerce and other civic organizations would begin wondering if the slogan of the city built by faith is not likely to be changed to the city built by faith in the poultry game. Many of the people who are building homes along the Electra and Burkburnett pike are planning to enter the poultry game in a business-like way.

Cull Stock Now

People are already preparing their stock for the Texas-Oklahoma fair. Now is the time you should be culling your show stuff out in a separate group and getting them in shape for the fair. You will be culling and re-culling your show stock several times before you decide just what one you intend to show.

Look closely for my next article, as I shall write pertaining to the poultry show at the fair and show how to enter, and help you in arranging entry blanks.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Max Hundberg, City:

Do not feed your turkeys so much. Force them to run on the range and try to keep them separated from your chickens at all times through the day. Feed them just a little grain in the morning and just enough at night to make them come home to roost. Trade all your hens for others this fall if possible. Try to make a watermelon patch in your front yard.

"LIMP EYES" COSTLY, SO SAY COPS

Motorists driving at night without tail lights burnings are running afoul of the law regularly now, it is revealed at the city hall where records show that the number of arests on these offenses have increased about 50 per cent in the last three days. Chief of Police George Hodgins recently started a police campaign against violators of this neglected law.

"One eyes," meaning in dignified English, one headlight that refuses to burn, are also under the ban and cars equipped in this fashion are liable for a halt at the hands of the police.

MOTHER AND 2 CHILDREN HURT

Crowd Attracted to Accident at 9th and Indiana Late Yesterday

In alighting from a street car on Ninth and Indiana streets near the Perkins-Timberlake store, Mrs. H. C. Lewis and two children, Ruby, age 6, and Joe, age 4, were struck by a car driven by J. W. Whitman, who had had a collision with a Star Furniture company truck, causing his car to be thrown into the woman and two children.

A large downtown crowd returning home from work was attracted to the scene of the accident, and Mrs. Lewis and the two children were rushed to the General hospital.

After an examination was made it was discovered that the only injuries sustained were slight bruises about the face and body of the two children. Mrs. Lewis was uninjured. It is thought that the wheels of the car passed over the back of the oldest child, but she seemed to suffer no ill effects as far as the examination could determine.

After the examination the children were moved to the home of their parents at 302 Chester street. Mr. Lewis is an employe of the Wichita Falls Mill & Elevator company.

IRRIGATION
By A. M. McPHERSON
Kahn Bldg., Eighth and Indiana
Consulting Engineer

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Will the Water In the River Here At Wichita Falls Be Salty After the Land Is Irrigated?

During low water periods the river at present is quite salty. After the land on the project has been under irrigation a few years the flow of the river during the dry periods will be greatly increased. Both surface and sub-surface drainage from the project will find its way into the river.

If all this drainage water was free from salt or alkali of any kind then the river water would not be as salty as it is now because the present salty water would be greatly diluted.

However the irrigation water will penetrate the soil and as it does so it will dissolve much of the salt that exist in it at present and will carry it along until it reaches the river.

There is not much salt or alkali in our soils, nevertheless a very small percentage of salt will in the aggregate amount to a great many tons.

If the salt and alkali content of the soil only amounts to 1-4 of 1 per cent still each acre of land to a depth of 10 feet only, would contain about 110,000 pounds. There will be about 60,000 acres of land draining into the river and in this area to a depth of 10 feet there would be 6,600,000,000 pounds of salt. This would take a train of freight cars about 600 miles long to haul it.

This is a startling quantity, but as time goes on, this amount and much more will be removed from the land by the water and will flow down the river.

There is no question but that the river water after irrigation will contain some salt. The percentage may not be as great as it is now in low water periods but the water will certainly not be fresh.

That's That, Anyway.

Another evidence in support of the theory of evolution is that steam-rollering Mr. Bryan seems to get easier and easier.—Ohio State Journal.

CUTTING IN ON CLOSEUPS
The Movies By Joedie Fisk

Olympic—Kenneth Harlan and Miriam Cooper in "The Girl Who Came Back."
Strand—Hobart Bosworth and Claire Windsor in "The Stranger's Banquet."
Empress—Tox Mix in "Stepping East."
Majestic—Hoot Gibson in "Double Dealing."
Gem—Johnny Walker in "Captain Fly-by-Night."

ADVENTURE AND EXCITEMENT IN THIS ONE—

Out on a western cattle ranch with his dog and his beloved horse Tony, foreman of the works, Tom Mix, as the prosperous and contented young rancher receives word to come east and accompanies his little mother west where she can enjoy the remainder of her days with him.

Then begins adventure and excitement! There is a long search for Alice—daughter of his fine old friend whose dying words tell the rancher of the ring Alice wears, and the mate to it—of the hidden treasure.

There are the implications with the Chinese bandit gang—the horror of trap doors and sliding walls and merciless cruelty and torture.

He finds Alice only to be thrown with her into a foul dark dungeon, but a note tied to the neck of a dungeon rat that is let loose through the bars brings freedom—and happiness!

BIG SETTINGS IN "THE GIRL WHO CAME BACK"—

The scrupulous care used in making the settings for "The Girl Who Came Back" have contributed greatly to its success.

In order to reproduce every detail of the historic prison, Sing Sing, that serves as the set for one scene, experts used photos and sketches drawn to scale. Not a single window, door or grating was made in the Schulberg studio mills but were constructed by hand in order that the knobs, pegs and other details might be placed at exactly the right distance apart.

A costume ball, staged with the picturesque "rim of the world" serves as a background for Kenneth Harlan as sheik of the big society pageant.

Owing to the fact that the picture was filmed during California's rainy season, it was decided that the big garden "exterior" should be constructed indoors, bushes, trees, pool and all. A complete garden, with colossal gateways and silken hangings, was therefore erected on one of the stages. In the center is a novel pool on which floats a flower-decked boat, and in whose depths splash oriental maidens.

Miriam Cooper handles her versatile role well, first as a little shop girl and a jail bird, then as a woman of refinement and culture. She is supported by Kenneth Harlan, Gaston Glass, Za Su Pitts, and Joseph Dowling of "Miracle Man" fame.

HERE'S AT LEAST ONE ON BULL MONTANA—

Kala Pasha, 300-pound strong man-wrestler, who lets automobiles run over his neck and full grown men jump deliberately on his 56-inch chest, received a great surprise recently. It occurred ddring the filming of Bull Montana's comedy, "High Society," which Hunt Stromberg produced for Metro.

"Tiny" Stanford is also in the picture. He weighs only 250 pounds and is built in proportion. He and Kala were ordered by the director to "mix it," and it was all fixed that "Tiny" was to get the better of his bigger opponent.

"Tiny" in his enthusiasm forgot and went in for a bit of realistic action. He walloped Kala full on the mouth.

"O-o-ow!"

And with this howl of anguish, Kala Pasha pulled four gold teeth from his mouth. They were all awry, and the bridge work was bent and broken. No one knows what Kala did to "Tiny" after that.

Bull didn't interfere.

40 FAMOUS STARS PLAYING IN STRAND PICTURE—

Derith, slender, dainty, fiery, little Derith Keogh, sitting behind her father's huge mahogany desk, head of the great Keogh shipyards. In her tiny white hand rests the destiny of thousands of her employes—and the fate of her father's great industry.

Then the strike—the walk-out—the mobs under the leadership of a passionate fiery alien with red rebellion in his veins. How does this dainty slip of a girl meet the emergency?

This is one of Claire Windsor's finest pieces of acting. She is starring in "The Stranger's Banquet," the rest of this week at the Strand. She is supported by a splendid cast of over forty famous stars, with Rockliffe Fellows, Hobart Bosworth, Claude Gillingwater, Eleanor Boradman and Stuart Holmes among the headliners.

Texas Rum Ship Slips Into Gulf With Cargo Sold

Associated Press Dispatch

GALVESTON, June 21.—Its cargo presumably disposed of to the numerous launches which have been visiting its anchorage for the last three or four days, the liquor ship reported by incoming ship captains to be anchored near Hald's bank lightship, about eight miles off Galveston, has pulled up anchor and departed.

Chief Customs Inspector Brinkenhoefer, with a party of newspapermen, visited the banks in a government launch during the afternoon, tonight said he believed the runner slipped out into the gulf in the early hours of this morning. Only empty bottles, wooden cases and casks remained to mark the spot of her operations. The rum-runner was of the "lake" type, according to ship captains, similar to those operating off New York.

FORD AND HIS MILLIONS.

Henry Ford has been granted a license to develop power at the government high dam between Minneapolis and St. Paul. He is to pay $95,000 a year and will have power rights for 50 years. Official Washington says the federal power commission granted the license. The Ford interests in forcing their claims before the commission said that they intended to construct a plant at St. Paul to cost approximately $10,000,000, for the manufacture chiefly of parts of tractors and automobiles.

Some days ago it was announced that the billionaire manufacturer would establish a $25,000,000 cotton manufacturing plant in Georgia or some other southern state. Now the live wires of Texas are interviewing Henry Ford and his advisors.

This man of millions expects to manufacture $2,000,000,000 worth of tractors and cars this year. He may not be a politician, but he keeps the politicians guessing and the politicians are not the only people that he keeps guessing.

If he holds a lease on life for 10 or 15 years and success crowns his efforts as success has crowned his efforts in the past, Ford will be the wonder of the world.

Mussolini is the Moses of Italy. A. C. Bedford says so, and A. C. Bedford speaks for the Standard Oil company, of New Jersey. This spokesman of Standard Oil in a recent address before the Associated Advertising clubs of the world asserted that government supervision of commerce is warranted but interference is not. Now just where would the line be drawn between supervision of commerce and government interference? Isn't supervision interference?

ILLINOIS WETS.

Illinois is a republican state and Illinois legislature in both branches is overwhelmingly republican. By a vote of 78 to 73 the lower house adopted a resolution calling for a referendum on the appeal of the Volstead act.

As the Illinois senate is republican and dry in its make-up, the opponents of the Volstead act assert that favorable action on this resolution will not be taken by the upper house. Politicians are rare birds. They know that the congress elected last year is ultra dry by a large majority. They know that the Volstead act was behind it, President Harding and all the drys—dry republicans and democrats. There are important issues before the American people and before the congress. Are these to be side tracked next year for a dummy issue?

Mrs. William E. Corey, of Paris and London, is the American wife of a former steel king. She was Mabel Gillman, an actress, when she met the steel king. His wife divorced him and he married the actress. They deserted America and established themselves in Paris. Then they were forgotten. Now Mrs. Corey bobs up again in London. She reported to the police the loss of a $100,000 necklace. This gave her a first page position in the London newspapers and a pictorial display in the newspapers of Gotham and the provinces. This former actress has not forgotten the value of publicity.

Chancellor Cuno, of Germany, receives a salary of $67.15 a month. That is, he receives in German marks a salary equivalent to $67.15 a month in American money. It must be true that the high cost of living has no terror for the German chancellor. His daily stipend, paid in marks, would fill a suit case but over here in America the sum would not pay the price drawn down by the cashier of a fashionable hotel for a Cuno family dinner.

Business failures for May are the smallest reported since last September and with that exception, the smallest in two years. Extent of the liabilities shows no even more favorably than does the total of suspensions. These in the aggregate are the smallest for any month since August 1920, when the business boom which culminated in that year was at its peak. Is this a prosperity straw?

CROKER AND HIS MONEY.

Mrs. Richard Croker, of Oklahoma and Ireland testifying in an Irish court, declared her late husband a saint and admitted that he had given her a million dollars in the first or second year following their marriage. In the good old days when the Late Richard was the political boss of New York, the World of that city estimated his wealth at $10,000,000 and then asked this question: "Where did you get it?" Now his sons and daughters are asking, in an Irish court of justice: "Where did he place it?"

GOULD AND HIS HEIRS.

George J. Gould was not a pauper when he died. His will has been admitted to probate and it disposes of an estate estimated at $30,000,000. There are 10 children, seven by the first Mrs. Gould and three by the second. According to the New York lightning calculators after all taxes have been deducted the share of each of the 10 children will be $2,933,000. There are no charitable bequests in the will of the late George Gould. He provided for his widow and his 10 children and then let the world go hang.

BOAT ROCKERS.

George E. Roberts, of the National City bank of New York, asserts that American business for the first time in a decade is on an even keel, headed straight for an era of prosperity which should have a long run—" but no element should rock that boat." Prosperity, he declares, is but a matter of proper balance between the branches of industry, the same as harmony from an orchestra is a matter of coordination. Now just who are the boat rockers?

WHERE THEY WIN.

More than 400 rich Swedish farmers landed in New York last week on their way to the west and northwest. They purchased farms in the new world before they said goodbye to those they left behind them in the old world. There are aliens who come to this country who avoid the cities and the towns and till the soil as their fathers tilled it before them. New comers from Norway or Sweden or Denmark are not often found in the tenement districts of an American city. They love the open, they live in the open and they are among the successful farmers of America.

Indiana has a law imposing a tax of two cents a gallon on gasoline, estimated to yield $300,000 yearly. This will be devoted to good road purposes. Oklahoma has a law imposing a tax of one cent a gallon on gasoline which is expected to yield $900,000 annually. In both Michigan and Iowa a tax of two cents a gallon on gasoline was passed by the legislatures but was vetoed by the governors. Texas has a gasoline tax. It is estimated that the tax will net the state $2,500,000 and the license fee increase will bring $5,000,000.

Texas state bankers have subscribed a fund of $10,000 to prosecute members of the state guaranty system "who deliberately loot their own institutions." Is it possible that there are state bankers who deliberately loot their own institutions? If not, why the fund?

UNCOMMON SENSE

By JOHN BLAKE

Housework and Routine.

A great many domestic difficulties and most of the servant problems arise from tediousness.

A man, if he is the bread winner of the family, gets a daily change of occupation.

His wife, unless she has some special interest, is kept at the same job.

She may, in her husband's opinion, have an easy time. Housework seems easy to him. He has never tried it.

It can, it is true, be made easy, as far as labor goes.

Modern devices have looked out for that.

But nothing that must be done over and over again, day after day, with no progress, no building, no advancement, is tolerable for long.

The surprising thing about housewives is that so many of them remain patient. Few men would do so, under the circumstances.

The same thing is true of the household servant.

They may be lazy, and incompetent, and shiftless. But one can hardly work up much enthusiasm for cooking the same kind of meals, and sweeping and dusting the same rooms, and washing the same dishes, from one week end to another.

Even moving pictures and occasional dances cannot compensate for that.

We have not the hardihood to seek to solve the servant problem.

But we do venture to suggest that the housewife's lot would be a little easier if, with the co-operation of her husband, she ROTATED her duties as the farmer rotates his crops.

What makes life worth living is having something to look forward to.

The reason that insanity is more prevalent among the wives of farmers than among city women is partly due to their necessity to work harder, but due mostly to the dreary monotony of their lives.

All married women ought to have interests outside their home.

If it is only a bridge club, it is better than nothing.

If it is a woman's club, or a club for civic betterment, it is still better.

Many women find pleasure in gardening, knowing little of it, save that lovely flowers can be grown by hard work.

A little study of gardening, a little understanding of it as an art and as a science will supply a rotation of ideas that will be profitable and wholesome.

The same is true of all the activities in which women now engage.

The husband may think his wife a "gadder" and neglectful of her home if she is "always running about," but she would better run about than sit still and vegetate, and she will be a better companion for her husband, and a better mother to her children if she does find new duties which can be taken up as a rest from the eternal round which must be followed at home.

TODAY AND YOU

By MARY BLAKE

CANCER.

Today is one of exceptionally favorable signs. It probably would be well to initiate and to terminate any projects you may have in mind or in action.

A child born today will be honest, trustworthy—a bit old for its age, affectionate and responsive.

You are a builder of great schemes if today is your birthday and the chances are very much in favor of making your schemes realities. You are both capable and ambitious.

Your mind sees clearly and fearlessly the nature of all problems it faces, and not only the nature but the solution too, no matter how radical or how hazardous.

You are courageous and resolute. You fear danger as all intelligent and sensitive people do, but you have the will power to overcome any fear you may feel and the steadfastness of purpose to act in spite of it.

You are magnetic and an intuitive judge of character. You should never lack for helpful assistance in your work and you will know whom to choose because you know subconsciously the feelings of your associates.

You are an idealist with a practical mind. Your projects never embrace the impossible though they may look centuries into the future. This is probably because you have a natural bent for finance and your calculations on such propositions are sound and realistic.

You have a quiet but profound capacity for love. You love humanity wisely if not too tenderly and you are capable of a deep and loyal affection for an invidual. You have the true lover's desire to create the person or thing believed—you wish to correct, improve and give of yourself.

You are fated to lead an interesting and ennobling life. Be sure that you make most of your natural talents.

It is possible that you will be offered a business proposition that will take you to foreign countries. You should not depart until you have taken very good care of your present interests.

POEMS THAT LIVE

DOVER CLIFFS.

On these white cliffs, that calm above the flood,
Uplift their shadowy heads, at their feet
Scare hear the surge that has for ages beat,
Sure many a lonely wanderer has stood;
And while the distant murmur met his ear,
And o'er the distant billows the still eve
Sailed slow, has thought of all his heart must leave
Tomorrow; of the friends he loved most dear;
Of social scenes of which he wept to part,
But if, like me, he knew how fruitless all
The thoughts that would full fain the past recall;
Soon would he quell the risings of his heart
And brave the wild winds and unhearing tide,
The world his country, and his God his guide.

Dallas Attorney Resents Attacks on Constitution

Associated Press Dispatch

MASON CITY, Iowa, June 21.—The constitution of the United States must be protected from the onslaught of insidious forces, declared R. E. L. WAR DEPARTMENT FINDS NEW POWDER

Associated Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Successful development of a new powder for use in small areas and artillery which possesses all the driving power of the type now in use and at the same time is smokeless, flashless and impervious to moisture, was announced today by the war department.

Both the moisture proof quality and the fact that the new powder can be exploded without a flash are regarded by department experts as of great importance.

WHAT DOES MR. LASKER MEAN BY GIVING THE PUBLIC A RIDE ON ITS OWN BOAT, ANYWAY?

FOR CONGRESSMEN TO TAKE AN INVESTIGATIVE JAUNT AT THE EXPENSE OF THE U. S. NAVY IS DOUBTLESS ALL RIGHT

BUT TO THINK OF LETTING THE PUBLIC IN ON ANY SUCH PRIVILEGE—MERCY!

Peter goes to America and ransacks the house on the Hudson for some clew to the mystery. He finds two volumes of "The Explorations of Father Carlos in the Mescalero Desert." He reads Father Carlos' description of "The Lost Pueblo" and the old missionary's reference to an immense figure of "the serpent with feathers like a bird" on a wall. But from each book following that point had been ripped a number of succeeding pages.

Peter procures another book, in which he finds the missing pages and a map of the region explored by Father Carlos. Next he had an accountant examine the personal books of Parmalee, with a view to finding out especially what an account known as "XD" meant, and then employed a hand-writing expert to determine whether the endorsement on the check made by Brena was written by the same person who wrote the words "this sign" on the slip of paper bearing the Aztec figure. Brena returns to New York and is shocked to learn that Peter has disappeared.

She learns, however, that he has gone to Kremlin Wells, Texas, and joins him there. Together they start on the route mapped by the old missionary. Peter refuses to tell Brena his object in making the journey.

At last they come to the crumbling walls and the gaping mouth of the ancient gateway. The sun was still sending down its heat in throbbing layers over the desert. It slanted down from the west following the angle of declivity of the wall of rock behind the ruin that mounted up in ragged overhanging crags of red and brown.

Upon the base of this rock, rudely smoothed and carved, was the symbol of the feathered serpent.

Brena clutched Peter's forearm.

"It did have a meaning then!" she exclaimed.

"A terrible meaning, Brena," he said with awe.

Amidst the gigantic proportions of desert, sky and cliff, this figure of the Mayan god—a symbol brought from the lands of the Central America's by a craven tribe fleeing from its enemies—had looked down with its heathen eyes upon the growth of a city around an oasis, around a flowing giant spring.

It had seen perhaps in the coming and going of generations within that fortified pueblo, strange rites, barbaric human sacrifice, the march of a little pomp and power, moving funerals, the dance of naked priests with painted yellow bodies, the endless stream of laborers bending under their loads of water carried from the well to irrigation ditches, the harvest, the maricles of water.

But perhaps it had seen, too, the day when a subterranean shift had driven the underground water course away, and in a night drained out the life-maintaining supply of 5,000 panic-stricken praying men and women and their lamenting priests.

Perhaps, if tradition were right, it was worse than that—more ghastly. knew where the treasurers of that city had been hid away.

"You are not going into it alone?" said Brena. "I will go with you!"

"It isn't right, Brena! I do not know what we shall find."

He looked at the opening in the high wall as if it were the maw of destiny opened to belch forth upon them a sentence.

"Tell me, Peter—are there dangers there? Do you know?"

"I only guess," he answered. "I think there are bones. I think, Brena, that beyond that wall is freedom for us—life for us—a message for us."

"I must go with you."

He nodded.

At the entrance he stopped, gazing down at the ground—the film, the blanket of fine dust. He uttered an exclamation.

"What do you see, Peter?"

"I see a record in the sand."

"What record?"

"We shall see more," he said grimly. "Come."

In the center of the enclosure, there was one monument of permanence; it was the great well-curb of mighty slabs hewn from the rock of the cliffs.

Toward the memorial of tragedy, of death, of decay, of the insignificance of time, of the inconsequence of an age of man, Brena and Peter, like two creatures of a moment life, walked with solemn, awed faces.

"Look!" said Peter suddenly. "Have you your nerve? Look!"

He pointed to a pile of charred bones lying close to the well. Among them was a piece of human skull blackened as if by fire.

"Wait," Peter commanded.

He went forward, bent over the ghastly pile, kicked the sand that surrounded it, and, stooping down, gathered a number of objects into the cup of his hand.

"This was no prehistoric man," he said solemnly. "See! The eyelets and the nails of shoes. The leather long ago vanished. Here are two mother of pearl buttons, a pocket knife, coins, the snap on a wallet. This man lost his life, Brena, many years ago."

She tried to speak, wetting her dry lips with the tip of her tongue.

"There are things of gold too," said Peter. "Keep your nerve, dear. Look at this!"

He held out in his trembling fingers a signet ring with an H deeply engraved upon it.

"That!" exclaimed Brena with horror. "It was his!—Jim Hennepin's. This is—he?"

"Yes."

Brena moved toward the pile of bones half consumed by fire; then she stopped and looked away.

"He was killed," she said. "He was shot or stabbed."

"No," replied Peter grimly. "It He was killed. But it was not by a human hand."

* * *

"Brena, I want you to stand here by this old well without walking away from it a moment," said Peter, taking her by the shoulders and looking squarely into her dark eyes. "I'm going to leave you alone a minute. It's not pleasant. I want you to do it just the same."

"Where are you going?"

"Outside the wall again. I've seen something there that you did not see."

Brena shivered.

"Don't be afraid, dear," he said. "We have had—both of us—the lesson of futile fear. Once we told each other that fear was a crime—a terrible waste. We are on the verge of learning how terrible a waste it can be."

She put her hands in his; with a smile she said, "You see, Peter I am in the dark, dear. But just the same I'll do as you tell me."

He disappeared outside the old wall, and as he vanished, so vanished all that attached her to the living world.

There was no sound, no motion within the range of the senses; the place of death was still. Not even a horned toad, like a piece of dried and shrivled cactus skin, drew trail upon the dust. Brena felt as though she too had become incapable of movement and of sound; she had a sense of being transformed into stone—an adamantine statue of a woman, carved from rock, waiting beside the waterless well under the beating sun, the cloudless infinity of sky, the cliff, until the crack of doom.

From the table lands above a lonely buzzard came swooping down on wide, black wings, dipping and turning, with one eye cocked down, as sometime before he had picked bones in this enclosure and had returned to the scene of gruesome feasts.

Black, ill-omened, carrion creature that he was, Brena felt glad that he had come—a thing of life and motion into this place of vast dimensions filled by the silences and rigidity of death.

She watched the magnificent grace and power of his flight until Peter's voice broke the silence again, and flapping toward the west the bird began to circle up whence he had come.

"Brena," said Peter, who came to her with an expression drawn as if with some stress within.

"Yes?"

"Sit down here with me where these blocks cast a shadow, dear. I will show you what I have found—a thing like the writing of a giant finger of justice—here in the desert. But first I want to tell you a tale, Brena—revolting and terrible."

"Tell me," she said, sitting with her elbows on her knees.

"It is of surprising brevity, Brena," he asserted. "Its simplicity is the thing that makes ridiculous the many things I expected, all the nightmares of the unknown. I stumbled on to the trail. I used my head. That's all."

He stopped to think.

"And yet the simplicity is hideous!" he said.

Brena glanced toward all that remained of Jim Hennepin of Virginia—the blackened fleshless relics of his existence.

"He deserved it, perhaps," said Peter pointing. "He tried to cash in his knowledge."

"You told me last night of the superstition of buried treasure here," she said. "You mean that?"

"No, not exactly," said Peter. "I picked up the trail in the house where Parmalee took you. Two old books, and maps of this country and of this place were missing from both. One Parmalee took when he went away. The other? Well, I began to wonder about the other."

"You thought it must have been used—before?"

"Yes. It had been used and probably been destroyed. It was used by one man to lure another to his death!"

Brena leaned forward.

"I began to be sure, Brena, when I found that expert knowledge pronounced that the writing on a check made out by the one man who led the other to his death here was written by the same hand that, with an attempt to disguise, had written the words: 'This Sign,' on the scrap of paper Jim Hennepin left with you and that you gave me. I'd better tell you that when I first took that check it was because your indorsement was on it. I wasn't sure, Brena—of anybody."

"I understand," she said. "I understand. And the scrap of paper was a part of the bait?"

Peter raised his hand as if to say that he wished to go on in his own way.

"It was chance, too, that led me to the motive for ridding the world of Hennepin. That miserable man had become a menace. He knew too much! He knew of a long series of embezzlements from a certain estate in Texas. A capitalist had bought vast quantities of something—on speculation—and his agent after his death deceived the executors as to the extent of his holdings. I have had a clue from an old account book sifted to the bottom."

"And Jim Hennepin knew?"

"Knew and began a merciless blackmail, threatening ruin. I can see him now, insatiable, hungry, losing in speculations, asking for more, hounding a man who was balancing between success and failure and always hinting at bankruptcy and the penitiary."

Peter went on. He told of the probability that Compton Parmalee, the hunded man, a physical coward, but resourceful and ingenious, had come upon an old volume describing this lost city of the desert. There were traditions of vast wealth hidden there. Parmalee had pretended to the possession of knowledge confirming it. He had shown old letters, the scrap of paper with the Kuk-ul-can symbol. He wanted to take the blackmailer to a place from which he would never come back.

"To kill him?" asked Brena.

"No," replied Peter. "He hadn't the courage. He feared that. He feared the work. He feared the result. He had a better way!"

More Truth Than Poetry

POTATO BUGS

A gentle lady that I know,
Who thinks all Nature art,
Believes us gardening persons low
And quite devoid of heart.
The pretty little bugs with striped wings
That through my garden fly
She says are quite the loveliest things
That ever met her eye.
And how a man can be so mean
As with a murderous hand
To drown them all in kerosene
She cannot understand.

These bugs are lovely, it is true;
My garden plot they grace,
But only to the outward view—
Their hearts within are base.
They toil not, neither do they spin,
But flutter to and fro,
Observing with a hopeful grin
My weed-destroying hoe.
And when the little plantlings peep
In wonder at the sun
Upon them do the creatures leap
And eat them every one.

I trust that I'm not inhumane;
I'm fond of beauty, too;
But when these insects seek to gain
Rewards from what I do,
And make my plant their morning meal,
Departing thence in haste,
Their loveliness has no appeal
To my aesthetic taste!
I think each morning, when I've seen
Denuded root and stem,
That drowning them in kerosene
Is much too good for them!

Local Campfire Girls Raise Age Limit For Their Summer Camp

Local Camp Fire Girls, realizing the need of Wichita girls in general for a big, organized, well-equipped regulation camp for girls, similar to the girls' camps in the East that are proving such a success, formed an initiative camp last year for Camp Fire Girls of this city, 30 girls going to the Boy Scout camp at Craterville Park.

This year, the age limit has been lowered from 12 to 11 years and the Camp Fire Girls are inviting any girl in Wichita Falls over 11 years of age to join them. The expenses of the entire trip including eats, bed and transportation, is $10. The party leaves the morning of July 2 and returns July 12. The invitation includes all girls, regardless of race or creed.

Camp Fire is world wide, among Jews, Gentiles, Catholics and Protestants. The work in Wichita Falls just happens to be centered in Methodist and Baptist churches, and in the Junior college, but any group of girls with a guardian may start a new Fire. And summer camp is the best place in the world for prosceptive Camp Fire guardians and girls to get their training.

The camp, which is large enough to accommodate 200 girls, will be conducted under regulation schedule the entire 10 days and will be under the supervision of Miss Glenore Fisk, backed by a capable staff of guardians who will have charge of the various classes in trailing, fire lore, woodcraft, stenciling, first, aid, swimming, diving, life saving, star study, tree, flower and bird lore.

Call Miss Fisk at 6829 or Miss Haynie at 6984 for particulars about necessary equipment for the trip. Girls from the surrounding towns are planning to come and it looks as if the Camp Fire Girls are in for a royal summer at camp.

TWO CHIC HAT SUGGESTIONS HERE

As the summer advances the smaller and off-the face styles in hats give way to those that afford more shade. Small hats, however, are more convenient for the traveler and are more suitable worn with the traveling suit or dress of dark material. One has to economize space on a Pullman and if one takes a trip on the water the wind is usually too strong for a large, shady hat to be comfortable, and is forced to resort to a veil, powder and cold cream to prevent toopainful burning by wind and sun.

The two hats pictured here combine smartnes with snugness of fit. The one on the left is of white felt, as pictured, with a crown of white Canton crepe embroidered in black. It might be developed in black or any other dark color as well, however, and lose none of its chicness and possibly be more practical as a traveling companion.

The one shown in the center is a black haircloth design. This material needs very little trimming as it is ornamental in itself. The chartwheel on the right side is of twisted black moire ribbon and gives a very original and coquettish touch to the hat.

The three piece suit has been popular for quite some time and has proved most pratical. As shown here it might be made of any cool material, silk or crepe. It is simple enough to conform to the dictates of good taste, the embroidery with which it is trimmed giving it a dressy but not over elaborate appearance. The coat has the ever popular fur collar. The hat worn with the suit is a shady but not over large model of silk the only trimming being the pleated ribbon of which the crown is formed.

Incidentally, the fur worn with all three models attest the overwhelming ing popularity of that form of accessory for the sumer as well as the winter season.

SUNSETS IN TEXAS

By FRANCES COFFIN BOAZ

On the southwest plains I sometimes sigh for trees.

Joyce Kilmer wrote: "Only God can make a tree."

After you have seen a sunset on the plains, you think that God did not forget the golden west.

Once I thought I saw mauve mountains around a blue lake. The opalescent colors seemed to bathe the grasses and plains. Again it was a golden sunset. The sky reflected and rippled the Chinese yellow of the sun. It seemed to promise wealth to the plucky who remained in the southwest.

When a sand storm had made the day dull and dust colored the sky unfurled a banner of hope. The sun descended as a cerise ball until every fleecy cloud was rose-tipped. Having loked over the travel ads and silently folded them, the sunset compensated.

With a scorching summer sun and tan plains, eventide offered a penacea. Overhead there was a cool, pale green dome with clumps of darker green around blue lakes in the western sky. Would that Turner lived again and in Texas to reproduce the sunsets.

Last night the sunset was purple and gold with streets of paler gold. A sunset did I say? Nay, 'twas the heavenly host.

Your Heart and Home Problems Solved By Elizabeth Thompsun

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I met a young man about two years my senior, and I loved him. He seemed all that a fellow should be. I went with him about two months and during that time I was the happiest I have ever been.

One day I took a foolish notion that I didn't care enough for him, and so I asked him to stop coming, and he accepted. The last night we were together he told me if I ever wanted to come back, he would be waiting. I know his heart was broken.

After going a few days without hearing or seeing him, I knew how much he really meant to me. My heart is just broken. I try to go with other fellows, but I can't be happy. I love him so much. He is the first one I think of in the morning and the last one at night. He was so true to me, but I wouldn't see it when I had him. I have no one in the world but a brother, and it just seems that I will go crazy. What should I do?

WILD IRISH ROSE.

You were certainly very foolish to let a whim cause you to lose such a good friend. It seems to me that under the circumstances it would be all right for you to write a note to the young man and tell him that you find you miss him very much and that you wish he would forget what you said and come back again. Do not talk of love, and do not fill your letter with apologies. Make it simple and short.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am in love with a boy who is one year younger than I am. He seems perfectly devoted to me and does not think the difference in age should be considered at all. Do you think that six months or a year is too much difference in a couple's age?

THE INQUIRER.

Six months or a year should not be considered; it certainly is not too much difference in age.

GALVESTON June 21.—In spite of rain, which prevented the scehuled game between the Spudders and the Sand Crabs, the Spudders regained first place yesterday, taking the top again when the Cats dropped a game to the San Antonio Bears, by a bare margin of three points in the percentage columns.

The Spudders will meet the Crabs again today, and will endeavor to take the last contest of the series and maintain their lead before returning to Wichita Falls. Walter Salm, skipper of the Spudder club, declared last night that his club was working in fine shape and would win not only the series but the pennant.

The Bears gave the Spudders their lead yesterday when they put the Cats in second position by winning a fast game at San Antonio. However, the lead is so small that it can hardly be taken as a decided advantage, and only three points in the precentage column gives the Wichitans the best of the Atzmen. A game either way would mean a change in the standings. The Spudders will return home after today's game to open a series on the home lot. They will open Saturday against the Beaumont Exporters and will stay at home to meet every team of the league with the exception of Dallas in three weeks.

Wheezes From The Press Coop

By Don Weldon

The Spuds got back on top yesterday in spite of the fact that they didn't get a crack at the Crabs. Jupe Pluvius stepped in and ruined the day as far as chances for a win go, but the Cats lost one to the Bears, dropping into second place, giving the Spuds the lead again, if only by a three-point margin in the percentage columns.

Not so bad at that! The Salms can get back in the game today with the advantage of a rest and ought to pound the old pill for another win. Unless the unexpected happens, they will steer back into port leading the loop.

Only one more day till they come back to the old stamping ground! The Beaumont Exporters will open the home series here Saturday, when th. Spuds come back for a three weeks' stay, during which time they will meet every team in the league with the exception of Dallas. Sticking at the top of the loop and with a long home stay ahead of them, the Spudders ought to show their stuff if they do at all. They went away in second place and got to the top in short order, and it only remains for them to stay there. And while they can't go higher in the listings, a few additional joints between the Spuds and the Cats would not be entirely out of place. With a club like the Cats clawing at their feet, the Spudders will feel a lot safer with a bigger margin. They ought to get it, too, before they take the road again!

Several changes have been made in the Spud crew in the last few days. One of the latest was the farming of Hodges to the Paris club. Hippo hasn't shown enough stuff in his few starts with the Salms this season to earn a regular berth with the club, so Skipper Salm sent him to the farm to try his luck under Paul Trammel and try to get in shape to stay in the Texas loop when he comes back next season.

After letting the southpaw go, Salm annexed a good righthander in the person of one George Stueland, who was released Wednesday by the Chicago Cubs. With Stueland taking his place regularly, the Spudder hurling staff will be strengthened, and Salm will be in shape to expect a whole row of wins from his crew. Here's hoping.

But he will have to cut his club down to the limit within five days after Stueland reports, and just who the man to leave camp will be has not been chosen as yet. At any rate it will be two of the Spuds, for when Feigert gets back in the game the club will have a couple of extra players on its list.

Rumors that Ace Elliott had been injured were proven false yesterday when the Ace got back in the game with the Cubs and played the entire game at the initial sack. He also got across the rubber for a counter. The fact that he was benched Wednesday brought out rumors that he had been hurt. Not Ace—he's in there as good as ever now!

Three Ten-Round Bouts Planned as Dempsey-Gibbons Appetizers July 4

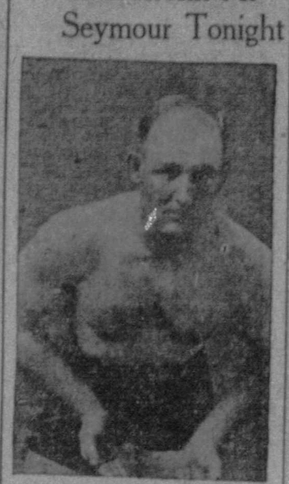

Associated Press Dispatch

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 21.—Three ten-round bouts will precede the Jack Dempsey-Tom Gibbons heavyweight championship contest at Shelby, Mont., July 4. Mike Collins, matchmaker for the championship contest, announced here tonight.

The boxing carnival will get under way promptly at 12 o'clock noon with the first preliminaries, and Gibbons and Dempsey are scheduled to get into the ring promptly at 3 p. m., mountain standard time. Collins expects that he will have a lee-way of probably a half hour, provided all the preliminaries go to the limit, before Dempsey and the St. Paul challenger crawl through the ropes.

Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul lightheavy weight, working in Gibbons camp, will meet Jack Burke, of Pittsburgh, one of Dempsey's sparring partners, in one of the ten-round preliminaries, while Tillie "Kid" Herman, of Los Angeles, also of the Gibbons camp, will meet Joe Simonich, of Butte, in another preliminary. They are welter weights. The third preliminary probably will be between Lackey Morrow of Portland, Oregon, and Dandy Dillon, Minneapolis feather weight.

A Tonic for Golfers

By Jock Hutchison

ONLY AMERICAN WINNER OF BRITISH "OPEN"

Merely learning how to hit the ball down the fairway is not all that there is to the game of golf. Some golfers—I had better call them golf enthusiasts—figure it out that they would rather hit one good drive than make a fine approach.

There is a lot of thrill for the average player in a well hit drive or one that travels a long way. The expert is not so well pleased because oftentimes he might want it on the opposite side of the fairway, where the approach is easier.

Golfers who hit a long ball, and insist that they can do it better their own way, do not get as much out of the game as they would if they learned to play the shots the right way.

Style may not appea. to every golfer in the beginning, but sooner or later he will reach a point in his game where he will wish that more attention were paid to golf form than to merely slugging at the ball in any old fashion.

Learning to play golf is just like learning to play on the piano or learning any art that is accomplished with the hands. It is a pity that most golfers in the embryo start out to learn the game alone without instruction of any sort. They sometimes are falsely led into believing that the game is easy.

Most of them have played baseball and they carry their baseball swing with them to the golf links.

The baseball swing is totally different in every detail from the golf stroke. The baseball played sways with the bat, while most golfers, 99 out of 100 good ones, pivot to get a long ball.

There is a sway in the golf stroke of some very good golfers, but it is quite different from the baseball stroke. To induce beginners to cast aside any thoughts of their former favorite pastime is a difficult matter. They will give you an argument, that is to them, convincing and usually final.

Hitting a few long balls in one's own way, right or wrong, is fatal in this respect. He is constantly thinking of the good ones he has hit instead of the great percentage of poor ones.

When this class of player comes to me I know that I am going to earn whatever I charge him for lessons. Here is where I have my greatest trouble as a teacher, and I am sure that other pros are in the same boat with me.

I start out by doing the best that I can to teach him how to hit the ball properly. I work with him till he begins to show improvement and then the whole thing is knocked into a cocked hat by the pupil becoming discouraged with a few bad shots.

He will usually come back and tell you that he could not get the results with the new idea and in a moment of dispair he returned to his old style with great success. The ball flew a lot further and a lot straighter when he used his own ideas than when he attempted to follow my directions.

Sometimes the pupil in question was game enough to come back and try again, but oftentimes he convinced himself that he was right in his own mind and never bought to learn anything more about style or golf form.

I know a player who used to tee the ball a foot in front of his left toe and then took a sort of running jump at the ball. About once in three times he times it fairly well and got a good enough shot, but nothing extraordinary. It was a half baseball and half cricket stroke, and perhaps he had some tennis mixed up with it. The freak style never failed to furnish a lot of amusement for those who happened to be around when he drove.

Another pupil of mine used to place his left hand below the right one, and somehow he hit a few good shots. Perhaps it was because the left hand was stronger than the right—perhaps it was force of habit from long practice. There are several golfers who play this way, but I never knew a good one.

Watch the Good Ones.

Another fairly good player used to draw his left foot back about six inches just as he hit the ball, but strange to say he did well with this freak style.

There was another golfer, not a very good one, who developed the habit of hitting the ball and finishing with the weight on his right foot. He jerked the left back in such a way that he was facing exactly opposite from what he was when he addressed the ball.

Of course there was no punch in this shot. It was impossible for the body to help the least bit toward getting the ball away. I remember seeing another freak driver use a method quite the opposite. He used to wheel around on the left foot with the right up in the air a foot or so off the ground. Here was an exaggerated idea of a finish on the left foot.

Many golfers have freak putting styles. Some players put with one hand. All sorts of grips and stances are taken on the green with varying results. Some go so far as to half shove the ball along the grass, not realizing that they are making an illegal stroke.

The Royal and Ancient had to call a halt years ago on freak clubs which were shaped like mallets. Some freak shot makers used to stand square to th hole and push the ball ahead of them. I have seen others stab at the ball as if in desperation, and I have seen them miss it too by hitting the ground behind it.

Beginners can learn good golf by watching good players perform. This is the surest way to acquire a style. Caddies learn this way and become good golfers quickly.

SPORTS through Edgren's EYES

By Robert Edgren

Johnny Dundee never lacked confidence. Matched now to box Eugene Criqui, world's featherweight champion, for the title on July 30th, Dundee is going right along taking on other fights. And he isn't picking easy marks, like our careful friend, Firpo. Ritchie Mitchell and Joe Tiplitz, lightweights, are his meat.

Dundee has been a featherweight or a small lightweight for the past 10 years. He has fought all of the best lightweights, including Benny Leonard, has beaten a lot of them and has been dropped for the count only once, a remarkable record, in hundreds of fights.

Dundee's stamina is one of the wonders of the ring. He is a greater "iron man" than Austin Rice., Battling Nelson, Elbow McFadden and all the other such birds of twenty years or so ago. All the rest were softened by time and punches, but Johnny looks as if he might go on forever.

Just 10 years ago Dundee fought Kilbane a twenty-round draw. Kilbane was an exceedingly cautious champion. He kept the title by not fighting to defend it. He never gave Dundee another chance in spite of many good offers for a Kilbane-Dundee fight.

Dundee Has Won Fortune.

Dundee is the Joe McGinnity of the roped square. Dundee will give Criqui a genuine battle. He may not be as muscular as he was a few years ago, and he may not hit as hard, but his speed and endurance seem to stay with him.

At least Dundee will make more of a fight to get the crown than Kilbane made to defend it—if that's saying anything. Kilbane, in the ring with Criqui, showed about as much fighting spirit as an oyster. He seemed to be glad when it was over and he could go out and count his $75,000.

Dundee will be there every second trying to bury the clever and hard hitting French champion under a flurry of gloves that will be flying like snowflakes in a whirlwind.

If Dundee hadn't already gathered about all the ring cash any one man is entitled to there might be something pathetic about the spectacle of a fellow who was close enough to the title to draw with the champion 10 years ago, making a belated effort to win it from a still better champion. But a bird with half a million or so stuck away in the old sock doesn't need sympathy.

Personally, I feel inclined to pull for the French boy who gave four of his best years to his country, had his jaw half shot away while charging with th bayonet at Verdun, was patched up, went back to boxing and fought his way to a world's championship. A man with Criqui's stubborn courage is going to be mighty hard to beat—to say nothing of the sock that Criqui carries in either mitt.

London "Punch" gets off the following paragraph:

"We learn from a Paris mesage that Battling Siki last week walked into a cafe with the lion he recently purchased. What might have been a panic amongst the patrons was avoided when they noticed that the lion had the colored boxer on a leash."

A Bad Year for the Champions.

"Twenty-three" is the well known "skiddo number," and it is beginning to look as if there's something in the superstition, this being the twenty-third year of the century.

Ring champions are falling fast. Villa lost the American fly-weight title to Genaro and Dundee lost the so-called "Junior lightweight" title to Bernstein—both on much criticized decisions.

Kilbane was knocked out by Criqui after clinging to the featherweight championship for 11 years. Carpentier was flattened by Siki, who lost the world's light heavyweight title to McTigue, who will probably pass the crown on again before the year is out.

Grob lost the American light-heavyweight title to Tunney, Jimmy Wilde, long world's flyweight champion, takes a sporting chance when he meets Villa, who has youth and speed and punch to offer against the little English fighter's fine skill and heavy hitting. Johnny Wilson, after a playing safe for a couple of years, is going to fight again, and may join the ex-champions of the middleweight class.

The two greatest champions we have, Dempsey and Leonard, will take some risk of losing their titles this year. Leonard showed by knocking out 140-pound Pinkey Mitchell, a first class youngster, that he is still in his best form, but he is going to meet the one man he worries over when he fights Lew Tendler in a couple of months.

Tendler gave Leonard a desperate battle last year, close enough to make Benny feel glad there was no decision. Benny had a slight lead, but you never can tell what two judges and a referee will do. Tendler is the one man in sight who has a fair chance to win from Leonard.

As for Dempsey, he isn't in much danger of losing the title to Tom Gibbons in their fifteen round Montana bout. His real risk should come later when he meets the winner of the Firpo-Willard fight. Firpo outweighs Dempsey 30 pounds, and Willard outweighs the champion 55 pounds. There is nothing absolutely sure about the outcome of a fight with either of the giants. Firpo looks more dangerous than Willard, being younger, tougher and having a right hand punch that is likely to knock out anybody.

All this makes it more interesting for the birds in the ringside seats. Let the champs do the worrying.

LITTLE LESSONS IN Big Sports

Is it best to pitch all shots to the green, or is it better to play a run-up shot when possible?

Answered by

BOB CRUIKSHANK

The man who, in 1921 defeated Hutchison, Sarzen and Barnes in an invitation tournament at St. Joseph, Mo. Runner up in Pittsburgh turnament for professional golfers, 1922, being defeated only by Sarazen.

The pitch shot is always a safe way to a green but the run-up is often better if you have a clear space to the green. It is also easier. In playing a run-up, a straight faced club should be used, and throughout the backswing and down-swing the club head should be kept low. The pitch and run, a combination of both, is also a very useful shot but rather difficult. (Copyright, 1923, Associated Editors.)

Regular Shoot This Afternoon At Three o'Clock

The Wichita Falls Gun club will hold its regular weekly shoot at the traps near Athletic Park at 3 o'clock this afternoon with a large attendance expected. Regular events as singles and doubles will be held.

Several of the local shooters who took high scores in the state meet at Amarillo have returned and will take part in the local shoot, attempting to show the other members how it was done at the big shoot, as some records are due to be hung up.

TEN THOUSAND HEAR HARDING

World Court Proposal Discussed in Speech at St. Louis of the crowd was so great that only a small percentage of those holding tickets to the reception were able to greet the chief executive and first lady.

Off to Kansas City.

A quiet dinner preceded the address on the world court at the Coliseum—the building in which Woodrow Wilson was nominated for the presidency for the second time. After the address the presidential party was taken to the municipal open air theater to see a portion of an operatta, and it was near midnight when Mr. and Mrs. Harding boarded the train again, with Kansas City the next principal stop.

In his main speech at the Coliseum, the president placed before the country a renewed plea for American adherance to the permanent court of international justice "as the one and only existing 'agency of peace' to which we can safely subscribe without violating the basic principles of our national being."

Willing to Change Court.

Making the first prepared address of his western trip, the president said that to bring about the end he desired he "would gladly wipe out the factional difference" and proposed the reconstruction of the machinery of the international tribunal "to dispose conclusively of all other cited apprehensions of danger from the exercise of any influence whatsoever, either open or furtive, by the league of nations or by any other organization."

WHAT PRESIDENT TOLD ROTARY CONVENTION

Speaking to the Rotarian convention in the St. Louis coliseum, the president declared that if he could find Rotary in every community throughout the world he would do so and then would guarantee tranquility and a forward march for the universe.

"Statesmen have their problems and governments have theirs," the president continued. "But if you could plant the spirit of Rotary throughout the world and turn it to practical application, there would not be much wrong with the human procession.

"I can understand how you have grown, how you have come to exercise a great influence, because, I tell you, fellow Rotarians, no matter whence you come, service is the greatest thing in the world.'

"This could be done in one of two ways," he asserted, "first, by empowering the court itself to fill any vacancy arising from the death of a member or retirement for whatever cause, without interposition from any other body; or, second, by continuing the existing authority of the permanent court of arbitration to nominate and by transferring the power to elect from the council and assembly of the league to the remaining members of the court of justice."

"We Want to Know."

Then anticipating "the voice of the doubter," who might inquire whether the 40 nations now represented on the court would consent to these changes in the structure of the tribunal, Harding answered that "to submit terms which we consider essential to the preservation of our nationality is not an act of discourtesy; it is the only fair, square and honorable thing a great, self-respecting nation can do."

The crux of the conditions suggested, the president described as "the making of the world court precisely what its name implies."

"Can it be possible, that despite their protestations to the contrary, this is not what some of our sister states at heart desire?" he asked. "Must there not be a test of sincerity abroad as well as at home? Then the more quickly it can be made the better, the better for them and the better for us. There is nothing to be accomplished in ambiguity. We want to know. And the only way to find out is to inquire."

Own Regime Reviewed.

The president devoted virtually all of his address to the world court issue, but he also reviewed briefly what had been done by his administration to get the country "back on the right track" in its domestic affairs. Although declaring he did not come to make a "partisan report," he said he took pride in pointing out that unemployment had been "banished," financial stability restored, taxes lightened, and economies effected in government.

Washington's farewell address was taken by the chief executive as his point of departure, when he turned to foreign relations.

"Two conditions may be considered indispensable

"First, that the tribunal be so constituted as to appear and to be, in the ordinary and in practice, in form and in substance, beyond the shadow of doubt, a world court and not a 'ague court.

"Second, that the United States shall occupy a plane of perfect equality with every other power."

Would Refuse League.

Elaborating upon his pronouncement that the court must not be a league court, the executive asserted that the country had an opportunity to indicate its desire to join the league in 1920, and it "most emphatically refused," and "it would refuse again, no less decisively today."

"There has been no change of condition," he added with respect to the league issue. "It is the same league. Not a line in the rejected covenant has been altered, not a phrase modified, not a word omitted or added. Article 10 still stands as the heart of the compact. Article 11 and all other stipulations objected to and condemned by the American people remain untouched, in full force in theory; however, circumspectly they are being ignored in practice."

"In the face of the overwhelming verdict in 1920, therefore, the issue of the league of nations is as dead as slavery. It is not the part of wisdom and common sense to let it rest in the deep grave to which it has been consigned, and turn our thoughts to living things?"

Wants Best Features

Harding said he recognized rudiments of good in the league organization, however, and repeated his declaration of 1920 that he hoped to "take and combine all that is good and excise all that is bad" from the league and The Hague tribunal.

"The abstract principal of a world court found its genesis in The Hague tribunal," he continued. "The concrete application of that principle has been made by the league. Sound theory and admirable practice have been joined successfully. The court itself is not only firmly established, but has clearly demonstrated its utility and efficiency.

"It is a true judicial tribunal. Its composition is of the highest order. None better, none freer from selfish, partisan, national or racial prejudices or influences could be obtained. That, to the best of my information and belief, is a fact universally admitted and acclaimed. I care not whence the court came. I insist only that its integrity, its independence, its complete and continuing freedom be safeguarded absolutely.

Presents Proposal

"The sore question is whether the requirements which I have enumerated as essential to adherence by the United States can be met. My answer is that where there is an unanimous will, a way can always be found. I am not wedded irrevocably to any particular method. I would not assume for a moment that the readjustment of the existing arrangement which appears to my mind as feasible as the best, much less the only one. But, such as it is, I submit it, without excess of detail, as a basis for consideration, discussion and judgment."

The president then presented his proposal for a self-perpetuating court and added:

"The fixing of compensation of the judges the supervision of expenditures, the apportionment of contributions, etc., could also be transferred from the league to either the court of arbitration or a commission designated by the member nations. Thus, incidentally, would be averted the admitted unfairness of the present system, which imposes a tax upon members of the league who are not subscribers to the court.

"The exclusive privilege now held by the league to seek advisory legal guidance from the court might either be abolished, or, more wisely perhaps, be extended to any member or group of member nations.

Voting Trouble Abolished

"Thus all would be served alike, subject as now to determination by the court itself of the kind of questions upon which it would render judgments.

"The disparity in voting as between a unit nation and an aggregated empire, which now maintains in the assembly of the league, to which many object, because of apprehensions which I do not share, would, under this plan, disappear automatically."

In presenting these suggestions, the president declared he neither advanced nor retreated from the position assumed in presenting the court proposal to the senate, but merely indicated "ways and means for realization of our common aspiration," which he defined as a desire to substitute "justice for warfare in the settlement of controversies between nations."

"Further than that I shall not go," he declared. "I shall not attempt to coerce the senate of the United States. I shall make no demand upon the people. I shall not try to impose my will. I shall embark upon no crusade. Hereafter, from time to time, as tonight, acting strictly within, but to the full limit of my constitutional authority, I shall make further exposition of my matured views and maturing proposals.

Appeals to Feeling

"But I shall not restrict my appeal to your reason. I shall call upon your patriotism. I shall beseech your humanity. I shall invoke your Christianity. I shall reach to the very depths of your love for your fellow men of whatever race or creed throughout the world. I shall speak, as I speak now, with all the earnestness and power of the sincerity that is in me and in perfect faith that God will keep clear and receptive your understanding.

"I could not do otherwise. My soul yearns for peace. My heart is anguished by the suffering of war. My spirit is eager to serve. My passion is for justice over force. My hope is in the great court. My mind is made up. My resolution is fixed."

The president voiced the "enhanced regard" of this country for Great Britain because of her "studied assumption" of her financial obligation to the United States. He recognized the German democracy's "clear manifestation of faith in our consciousness of fairness—and of our disinterestedness."

He bespoke good will for Mexico with hope of early resumption of "fraternal relations."

He hoped that Germany, Turkey and Mexico would accompany the United States into the world court.

Oh! For the Life of An Exile!

Next to being the exclusive and personal income tax collector of Hank Ford, John D., the Maharanee of Kapurthala and a few others—on a commission basis, of course we can't think of a thing we'd rather do than live the life of an exile.

Of course, the former might prove lurid Saturday nights of yesteryear, "them days is gone forever."

But, like John Barleycorn and the more lucrative, but the latter would be the kitten's kerchief when it comes to ease and luxury.

Time was when exiles were decorated with a choice assortment of bails, chains and manacles, given one-way transportation in some old galley, boasting of nothing more than bilke water baths, and safely escounced on some desert isle.

Now after having safely gathered in the contents of the Bank of England or thereabouts the candidate for membership in the Royal Association of High Living Exiles is escorted with much pomp and ceremony to the "Exiles' Quarters"—now quite the thing on every first class ship—where more flunkeys than assisted in the Duke of York's wedding start salaaming in most approved style.

The voyage completed, the "exile" is escorted to a "modest" villa that usually is adjacent to a rather exclusive society resort. Desert islands as places of exile seem to have gone out of style about the time that hoop-skirts departed for the great unknown.

Once in "exile," the "exile's" troubles begin in earnest. He must put up with a myriad of flunkeys vieing with each other to anticipate his every wish. He is not even allowed to bathe himself or indulge in that great little in-a-tub sport of washing one's own back.

His privy council decides everything, not even allowing him the choice of his favorite red, pink or yellow necktie.

The chancellor of the family exchequer handles all the bills so that the poor and abused "exile" doesn't even have the pleasure of playing hide-and-go-seek with the collectors.

It is reliably reported from certain European capitals that eligibles for membership in the association are going into training for the strenuous life of an exile which they may be called upon to undergo any time an upheaval makes their departure a matter of prudence.

The latest recruit to the "exile" ranks is the ex-sultan of Turkey, who abandoned his life of ease and his harem but not his cash when one young upstart, Mustapha Kemal Pasha, made the going too rough.

He's now struggling along as an "exile" at the Villa Noble, near San Remo, Italy.

All we've ever seen of the villa is a picture, but at that we'd be willing to take our portable muse mill, forsake the promising literary career which we have been told lies behind us, and go into "exile" if they'll let us pick San Remo, or even Deauville, as our desert isle.

100 PROTEST TAX VALUATION

Two Days Set for Hearing But More Time May Be Necessary

More protests were made Thursday to the board of equalization when it met for the second day to hear protests on valuation boosts in property renditions. Nearly 100 persons appeared during the day to file their protests.

It was indicated Thursday afternoon that more time might be needed for the hearing of compaints. Two days were originally set.

5-YEAR-OLD INJURED BY CAR

As a result of an accident on the corner of Eleventh and Bluff streets, Denie Bolen, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bolen, 1100 Burnett street, is in the General hospital in a critical condition. The little fellow attempted to cross the street and was struck by a car driven by Lawrence Townley.

He was immediately rushed to the hospital where an examination showed that he was suffering from serious injuries about the head. It is thought that he will recover.

PAVING PROTESTS WILL BE HEARD HERE NEXT WEEK

Continuance until next week of the hearing of protests on paving the Thirteenth and Clark street project was made by the city council at its meeting Thursday night. Only one property owner appeared to lodge a complaint against the work or to specify what type of paving he desired.

It was the wish of the commissioners to have a more representative gathering present before any contracts were let and for this reason it is asked that property holders in the territory effected appear at the regular council meeting next Monday night.

Many Charges Coming After Sheriff Raids

Arrests on white slave, adultery, theft and drunkenness charges were made by the sheriff's department Thursday night in a series of raids in this city and other points in the county. All those taken in custody were lodged in the county jail for the night and charges will be filed this morning.

Charges of adultery will be preferred against a man jailed early in the night at Burkburnett after it was found that he had been living with a woman in that city. It is said that the woman is wanted on a charge of bigamy.

On the way in from Burkburnett two drunks were picked up and later in the night a man and woman were arrested in Wichita Falls shortly after they had come here from an Oklahoma town. The man is said to have a wife living in El Reno and to have brought the woman to this city for immoral purposes. He will face a white slave charge.

An 18-year-old boy, said to be wanted in Paris, Texas, for theft charges, was picked up still later in the night. A suit of clothes the boy is alleged to have taken was found in his possession.

TWO CARS STOLEN

Two automobiles were stolen from down town streets Thursday night, according to reports to the police.

The first machine was a Ford touring car owned by R. D. Jones of Archer City, taken from in front of the Senate cafe on Ohio avenue.

The other was an Essex touring car, stolen from in front of the Wichita theatre. It was the property of J. W. Stringer, 1500 Grant street.

were next brought out. The witness blamed the elder man in no small measure for domestic difficulties he had had with his wife.

When the three-hour period of direct examination had been concluded at 6 o'clock court was adjourned until Friday morning. Cross examination will start at that time.

It was indicated by the defense Thursday afternoon that they had about six more witnesses to question before they rested.

Toussaint Paramonaic

Prior to Toussaint's taking the stand, two other witnesses of major importance were called by the defense. They were Dr. F. S. White, superintendent of the Northwest Texas insane asylum at Wichita Falls, and Dr. George Powell, superintendent of such an institution at Harrell, Texas. Both are regarded as experts on criminal psychology and on questions relating to insanity. Both were firm in the belief at this time that Toussaint awwas a paramoniac and was not responsible for his actions. Neither man would give an opinion, however, as to what was the state of Toussaint's mind on the night he murdered his father.

Other witnesses called during the day were old friends and acquaintances of the defendant, who were used in an effort to prove that during his past life Toussaint had exhibited peculiar tendencies.

The death of Otto H. Toussaint, for which his son, Henry, is now being tried at Anson, took place February 6, 1921. The man was shot to death as he was walking north in Polk street between Avenues J and K.

Officers investigating reports of the shooting found the man's body lying in a gutter at the side of the road. The cash in the pockets was gone, as was a gold watch he had been carrying. The remains were taken to the Merkle-Lunn Undertaking parlors that night where efforts at identification were of no avail. A handkerchief bearing the initials O. H. T. was the only marked article found on the body by which identification could be traced.

Son Identifies Body.

Early the next morning, which was Monday, friends with whom the elder Toussaint had been visiting the night before called at the undertaking parlors and recognized the corpse. Young Toussaint was later taken to the parlors and promptly admitted that the body was that of his father.

The two Toussaints had been in the contracting business in this city and at the time of the shooting were building the Buchanan street fire station for the city. The structure was then incomplete and was finished after the sensational affray had quited down.

Suspicion Diverted.

Young Toussaint, as developed from his confessions to the police, went to work the morning after the killing and prepared to follow out his daily routine. He had been living with his father in a Ninth street apartment.

At the police station where he was taken after viewing his father's body his lack of emotion and apparent unconcern at his father's death first diverted suspicion toward him. He answered all questions readily and seemed, if anything, only impatient that the officers would not allow him to continue with his work.

He was not placed under formal arrest that morning but early in the afternoon was closeted with Lee Huff, then chief of police, who started the grilling which ended eventually in Toussaint's breaking down and making a complete confession.

He told the chief how, unable to put up with his father any longer, he had planned the murder for a week or ten days previous. He told how he had purchased a gun from a local hardware store and how, on the night of the murder he had tampered with his father's automobile so that the elder man would be forced to walk home.

His father had been visiting with friends in the Floral Heights addition and Toussaint explained how, after dark, he had wrecked the ignition system of the machine so it would not run. Then, the young man told the chief, he lay in wait along the route he knew his father would take.

Following the shooting Toussaint stated that he had robbed the body and later buried the watch and money in an alley at the rear of a Monroe street residence. These articles were located just where Toussaint said he had buried them.

Toussaint's indictment on a charge of murder followed as a matter of course and late in July of 1921 he went to trial. On August 2 the jury returned a verdict of guilty and sentenced Toussaint to hang. Subsequently, however, he was granted a new trial by the court of criminal appeals.

CHILLICOTHE JUDGE'S FORD CAR STOLEN

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, June 21.—A Ford touring car belonging to Judge L. W. Allred was stolen from the Methodist church Wednesday evening during prayer meeting. Mrs. Allred had driven the car to services and knew nothing of the theft until ready to return home. There was no insurance and at a late hour no clue had been obtained. This is the second car stolen in this city within the past two months, T. B. Nuckles' Ford having been stolen from his residence in April.

I. W. W. DENOUNCES ESPIONAGE FREEDOM

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Protests against the conditions laid down by President Harding yesterday in commuting sentences of political prisoners in the Chicago and Wichita espionage cases reached the White House this afternoon from the general defense committee, representing the I. W. W.

The principal objection was made to the condition that the ex-prisoners must remain law-abiding to keep from being sent back to the penitentiary.

FURTHER TESTS IN ARCHER CO.

Several Companies Announces Casing Being Set to Drill in Several companies Thursday announced casing being set preparatory for drilling in, the test being all in Archer county.

In the Kemp-Komper tract the American Refining company has set casing on a promising sand at 1,440 feet and will extend the field about a quarter mile if a producer. The Wilson Drilling company's No. 4 well also in the Kemp-Kempner is setting casing at 1,560 feet.

The Delmar Oil company will set casing at once on its test on the Coleman land in Archer county at 1,205 feet depth.

Minimum Weight Livestock Freight Charges Removed

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, June 21.—Minimum weight charges on less than carload shipments of livestock were ordered removed on intrastate business by the railroad commission today and such shipments made subject to actual weight charges at prescribed rates. The decision is on the famous livestock rate case which has been before the commission for some time and has attracted attention throughout the state. Scale of rates and regulations were promulgated to cover involved shipments.

The livestock case was brought before the commission on application of numerous shippers throughout the state, asking for revision of the rate basis on stock shipments. In an extended opinion written by Commissioner Splawn, the commission finds that elimination of minimum weight charges would not be burdensome to the carriers and that it would be impracticable to rely upon trucks for movement of such shipments.

A minimum charge of $5 was fixed for any livestock shipment. Other regulations set forth are: Shipper must give three days' notice of shipment; consignee must load and unload where there are no livestock chutes. The minimum rate is fixed at 70 cents per 100 pounds for less than 10 miles and maximum of $3.40 per 100 pounds for over 500 miles. Minimum double line rates are placed at 95 cents and maximum at $3.65.

The order is effective five days after publication.

Green and Key No. 2 on Bruner Will Be Rushed

The Green and Key No. 2 well, 25 feet from the first test on the Dr. Edwards land in the Bruner survey near Scotland in Archer county which last week created such a sensation when a fine showing was made at 1,446 feet, has been spudded in and will be rushed to completion as fast as practicable.

The No. 1 test which had such a fine showing was abandoned because the casing broke when being pulled leaving 150 feet of it in the hole. The company decided at once to put down a second test and come back to the first one later. The well is being watched by oil men closely as a new sand is thought to be found and opens up a new part of Archer county for exploitation. Tests near the second location are to be made by several companies it is announced and the new area given a thorough test.

Gas Company Sees Potential Growth To 100,000 Population Here and Has Taken First Step to Meet Increase

The Municipal Gas company entering into a $50,000 program of replacement is building its equipment for a potential growth of the city to reach 100,000 population, according to a statement made by Harry McLaughlin, general manager of the company in the course of a discussion of the company's plans yesterday.

This expenditure of $50,000, it is explained by McLaughlin, is just one step in the company's replacement program and includes the laying of some 6,000 feet of 10-inch main from Indiana and Tenth to Brook and Tenth streets. Four and six-inch piping is being replaced with 10-inch plain and dresser joint piping, wrapped with asbestos paper and covered with asphalt. The material should last for 25 years.

Five miles of the same size piping was laid three years ago, replacing a smaller piping, McLaughlin explains. This was put down from the Denver tracks west to Taylor, south on Taylor to the alley tracks.

An additional $20,000 was recently spent for replacement piping under pavement, McLaughlin said.

Gas companies, telephone and other public utilities are always planning for a city's growth and as a general thing, these concerns have a system of graphs which are used to follow upbuilding of a town over a period of years and have proven accurate. Just how far the local gas company has planned toward the development of a city of 100,00 population is not known nor was it given out just what time the figure was expected to be reached. It is explained, however, that the present replacement work is just one step in a program that will be carried on by the company from year to year.

Carter Test on Wichita Valley Lands Will Be Good for 200 Bbls.

ARCHER CITY, Texas, June 21.—The Roy I. Carter test, block 53, Wichita Valley Lands, will probably be good for 200 barrels daily, according to operators who have visited the well. For the past two weeks much interest has been shown in the test and leasing has been active in the vicinity of the well. Other tests are to be started soon in that area.

Casing is being set and cemented in the following wells in the Swastika field: Swastika Oil Syndicate's 3-A and 5-A; Walling and Clark's No. 2, offsetting the Swastika A. lease; American Refining company's No. 2. The pay sand was found at the expected depths, and cores from each showed quantity of oil. The four wells are within the proven limits of the field. The Swastika Oil Syndicate's 2-A is accredited with 350 barrels daily production.

24 ARE INITIATED INTO DEMOLAY

Youths Hear Address on Loyalty to Their Parents

In one of the most impressive ceremonies in the history of the Hope chapter of the Order of the De Molay, 24 candidates were received into the chapter. The present enrollment of the local chapter is approximately 250, which places it among the foremost chapters in the state.

Immediately following the ceremonies, J. C. Jones, assistant to Samuel P. Cochran, member of the grand council of the DeMolay in Texas, gave the boys a brief but interesting talk on DeMolay work. Mr. Jones who looks to be about 20 years of age, but who told the boys he had a son old enough to enter the De Molay work, held the undivided attention of the DeMolays during his entire speech. Mr. Jones urged the boys to bless their parents, as they were the best friends in the world. He told them that no matter how dark the day may seem, the mother is always by one's side to comfort one.

After his speech, Mr. Jones presented Robert McAbee, past master councilor of Hope chapter, with a beautiful past master's jewel and in doing so told McAbee that due to the wonderful work the Hope chapter had done under his administration the gift was given to him.

In conclusion the speaker declared the degree work of the Hope chapter was among the best, if not the best, he had ever witnessed and commended the entire chapter upon their efficient work.

Several out-of-town Master Masons were present at the ceremonies, the majority of whom were from Burkburnett. The out-of-town guests made brief speeches and also commended the boys upon their performances.

Dance Announced.

Just before the closing of the meeting, Dad Bright announced the large DeMolay dance would be given Friday night at 8:30 o'clock and urged all the DeMolays and Master Masons to be present, as many novel features would be presented.

Otto Stehlik invited all the DeMolays to attend the large Masonic Fourth of July picnic, which will be given on the fourth of next month. He told the boys that preparations were being made for a 3,000 crowd, and that the committee in charge intended to have beef, lemonade and other good eats for the crowd.

The candidates who were received in the Hope chapter last night are as follows: Paul Edmond Martin, Henry R. Garret, Leland Eugene Miller, Sam W. Gibbs, Mathew W. Qualline, John Gustave Leuschner Jr., Paul Stewart Russel, William J. Brown, Lester P. McNiel, Crotuse Franklin Douthitt, Jack B. LeBus, Jack B. Fletcher, Lewie H. Edmonson, Harry E. Logan, John Ebner, Kenneth A. Rice, Duncan Y. Qualline, Mercer H. Parks, Robert Bruce Palmer, William C. Crockett, Leo Haney, Bascom Nelson, Elmore L. Mounts and Eloyd A. Harrison.

With the Women of Today

By EDITH MORIARTY

In this country where women are entering so many unusual lines of work, we have many teachers of wood carving, etc. Furniture repairing and cabinet making are a little deffirent, however, and we venture the statement that there are not many women engaged in those lines of work in our broad land. In Potsdam, Germany, there is a young woman, little more than a girl, who has successfully passed her first examinations as a journeyman joiner. She is Mrs. Mary Peschlow and is only 18 years old. She is the first of her sex to so qualify in Prussia. Mrs. Peschlow is now in charge of her father's artistic furniture shop, where she does most of the repair work.

Mrs. Mary Peschlow.

Woman Receives Degree.

Mrs. Anna G. Paddock, Clarence, N. Y., is the first woman in the state of New York to receive the degree of master of religious education. She has just complete a course at the Auburn Theological seminary. She is planning to aid her husband, who is pastor of a church at Clarence.

What were women like a hundred thousand years ago? A number of French professors have been trying to find out, and some very interesting results have followed their search. They say that in the days when people lived in caves woman was the most important of the two sexes. Men were only tolerated for the sake of the food they provided. Women ruled everything, and almost every art and science we have today is due to the work of the women of thousands of years ago. Women taught men how to defeat famine by snaring animals and storing them for times when food would be unobtainable. Women taught men how to get skins to clothe themselves in the winter. Women, in fact, saved the human race from being destroyed. Since she was not strong enough to kill her enemies or provide food and clothing, woman had to use her wits and employ cunning instead of force. Every labor-saving device we have today is descended from the early invention of a woman.

To Study Palestine.

Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the eminent British labor party leader, is on her way from London to Palestine. She will investigate conditions there and the operation of the British mandate over the country in the interests of her nation and Zionism. DOKEY CLUB IS FORMED HERE

Knights of Pythias Form Organization at Enthusiastic Banquet

Wichita Falls now has a Dokey club.

It was organized by the local Knights of Pythias lodge Thursday night at an enthusiastic banquet held at the First Christian church.

The new organization got away to a flying start with 150 Dokeys of Wichita Falls to make up the membership and prospects of other aliens being admitted and forced to tread the hot sands which every Dokey vividly remembers.

The banquet last night was presided over by John P. Marrs who introduced A. R. Westfall who in turn explained that everything was arranged for the organization of a Dokey club. Mr. Westfall stated that at the present time the local Dokeys were members of the Fort Worth temple and that permission had been granted for a charter allowing the Dokeys here to function as a club.

Guy Braley placed in nomination Dr. C. E. Bailey to become the first president of the Wichita Falls Dokey club. Dr. Bailey was elected by acclamation unanimously and responded with enthusiastic plans for the future of the order. The privilege of appointing the remaining officers was voted to the new president who stated he would name his cabinet by next Tuesday night. It was decided the Dokeys would meet in a social session one night out of each month, the time to be selected later.

Hugh Simmons followed the election of officers with an address on fraternalism asking each Dokey to go into the new club with the one idea of making it one of the largest, livest fraternal orders in the city. Resolutions of thanks to Ira D. Brown and John P. Marrs for their efforts in bringing about the organization of the club were offered by A. C. Cole and unanimously adopted. Resolutions to the women of the First Christian church for the excellent meal prepared were also adopted.

Taylor Entertains.

In the matter of entertainment George Taylor and his mandolin were the whole show. Mr. Taylor was forced to sing and play until his voice gave out and his repertoire ranged from old plantation melodies to negro dialect songs and was uproariously topped off with "Barney Google." Mr. Roberts was encored so many times on his rendition of "Barney Google" that he had to make up about six verses on "Soark Plug" and his races. A vote of thanks to Mr. Taylor for his selections was unanimously adopted.

Harry Ingrum and F. G. Swanson, the only unmarried Dokeys present had to pay for their state of unattachment by responding extemporaneously to subjects assigned them by Toastmaster Marrs. Mr. Ingrum spoke on "How to Raise a Baby the First Six Months." Mr. Swanson was compelled to explain "How Best to Make Love to an Old Maid."

Ira D. Brown introduced Pitcher Harris of the Knights of Pythias baseball club and asked all the Dokeys to accompany the team to Archer City next Sunday afternoon to a game to be played there.

STOCK ORDERS START RALLY

Rise of Prices Extends Throughout Entire List

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, June 21.—Supporting orders placed at the opening of today's stock market started a rally which reached proportions before the close. Recognition of such orders influenced aggressive short covering operations and there was strong evidence of buying so-called "bargain hunters."

Today's rise was confined to no particular class of stock, but extended throughout the list. Railroad shares shared in the upward movement, gains ranging from a point to more than 4 points.

Sugar shares reflected the improved outlook in the commodity market. American Sugar, American Beet, and Cuba preferred rising 1 to 3 points.

Foreign exchanges ruled slightly lower. Demand sterling slumped 3-4 to $4.61 5-16 and French francs were off 5½ points to 6.19 cents. German marks held relatively steady at .0007 3-8.

Call money again held steady throughout the day at five per cent. The time money market was dull, being confined almost entirely to renewals. Quoted rates were unchanged at 4 3-4 to 5 per cent for the shorter maturities.

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, June 21.—The first of the private end-month crop estimates to make its appearance was published in the cotton market this morning, and evidently made a bullish impression on sentiment.

Early advances were followed by reactions under a renewal of July liquidation, but as soon as this had been absorbed the market firmed up again on covering and trade buying. July which had sold off from 26.89 to 26.40, advanced to 27.25 in the late trading, while October sold up to 24.88. The close was irregular, but within a few points of the best, showing net advance of 43 to 85 points on the more active months, while June was nominally 11 points higher. The market opened steady at an advance of 29 to 45 points on old crop months and of 6 to 20 points in new crop position.

A report from New Orleans placed the condition of the crop as of June 17 at 67.7, the increase in acreage at 7.7 per cent and the indicated yield at 10,500,000 bales. October eased off from 24.60 to 24.40, while the market was under near month pressure. There were reports that ocean freight room had been engaged for 75,000 bales for September shipment out of Galveston. Exports today were 4,433, making 4,568,348 so far this season; Port receipts 4,074; United States port stocks $342,593.

PRESIDENT OF STOCK EXCHANGE TO QUIT

NEW YORK, June 21.—William S. Silkworth, president of the New York Consolidated stock exchange, announced to the New York Evening Post today that he would resign next Thursday.

In making known his intention to resign, Silkworth said, "I am resigning for the interest of the exchange. I feel I have been made a target for personal abuse and that this fact has reacted to too great an extent upon the exchange itself."

Troublous Days Ahead for New Envoy to Sofia

Hon. Charles S. Wilson.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, June 21.—Except for an advance of 15 to 25 cents on grass steers, and slight strength in cow rates, the market was unchanged Thursday. Some good grassers went at $6.65 and several cars of a fair sort brought $5.75. The calf market was steady and fairly active, south Texas calves in the southern yards notches 7.75. Receipts were estimated at 3,000 head of cattle and 1,000 calves, the run including 400 head of cattle and 500 calves that were on through billing.

Hog receipts were almost to small to make a market quotable, only 800 head being yarded and the run did not include anything that was really choice. Prices were steady. Shippers paid $7.30 and packers bought up to $7.15. Most of the run went at a spread of $7 to $7.30. Pigs sold at $5 to $5.50 for the most part.

Buyers were slow in making their sheep selections and early bids were lower. Only 1,000 head were on offer.

Foreign Shipments Over Million Bushels Help Wheat Price

Associated Press Dispatch

CHICAGO, June 21.—Export business estimated at more than 1,000,000 bushels gave fresh strength to the wheat market today after both the September and December deliveries had touched a new low price record for the season. Wheat closed firm, ⅝ to 1 cent net higher, with September 1.04⅜ to 1.04½ and December 1.07 to 1.07½. Corn finished ⅜ to 1¼ cent up, oats at ⅛ cent decline to ⅝ cent gain, and provisions 5 to 7@15 cents lower.

Corn was strong all day. Oats averaged a little higher in line with other grains. Weakness of hog values had a depressing effect on the provisions market.

Gas Company Manager Says Bureau Of Mines Supports Service Charge

Calling attention to a recent statement issued by the United States bureau of mines, Harry McLaughlin, general manager of the Municipal Gas company, replies to opponents of the so-called ready-to-serve charge now being advocated by the company.

This bureau of mines statement, issued under a Washington date line, follows:

"The distribution of natural gas involves the rendering of a service as well as the selling of a commodity, because the distributor is expected not only to furnish gas, but also to deliver the quantity the customer wishes whenever he demands it.

"It is not always possible to fulfill expectations entirely since no more gas can be distributed than is yielded by the wells, nor the company can only serve within the limits of supply.

"The demand for natural gas for household use is extremely variable—for example, the quantity of gas used by domestic consumers in January may be six or seven times the quantity used by these consumers in August—and if good service is to be rendered at all times, the capacity of the wells and transmission and distribution system must be sufficient to meet the maximum demand. This means that a natural gas system largely dependent upon domestic sales must work far below its capacity throughout the most of the year.

"The cost of supplying natural gas includes the expense of standing ready to serve in addition to the cost of the gas, and payment for natural gas should be on a basis that recognizes both the service and the commodity features and provides that each consumer shall carry his fair share of the burden of cost."

Quotations Unchanged, No 1 Wheat Selling at 90 Cents

At last the grain supply has begun pouring into Wichita Falls from the surrounding vicinity and will continue to do so for several weeks. Harvesting of the wheat was delayed for several days due to the rainy season but at the beginning of this week a few scattered wagons began coming into this city and have steadily increased every day until more than a hundred were reported yesterday, Thursday as it has been for the past few days with wheat No. 1 selling at 90 cents, No. 2 at 87 cents, and oats at 40 cents per bushel.

Development of Utilities Means Much to People

"The public has a far greater interest in the utilities than that of whether they pay a little more or less per cubic foot of gas.

"Their greatest interest is that the utilities may continue to develop and expand so that they can meet all the demands for service that the public makes upon them. This is absolutely necessary for the success of the public in their business and for their comfort in their home and social life.

"The operators, by and large, believe in the regulation of utilities. For it to be successful, however, it must be done on the broadest plane, with the necessary knowledge and vision to see what is required, not for the immediate but for the ultimate advantage of the public.

"The regulating bodies must be courageous enough to regulate as their vision and judgment dictates, althought it may be contrary to political expediency or public prejudice at that particular moment."

FIREWORKS DISPLAY FOR GOREE ON JULY 4

Special Dispatch to Record News.

GOREE, June 21.—This city is preparing for the greatest celebration in its history when the big two-day rodeo and picnic July 3 and 4 under the auspices of the chamber of commerce is staged here.

Twelve committees have been at work several weeks on the details of the affair. The entertainment committee announced this week the closing of a contract with a Dallas firm for a huge ornamental fireworks display to be given at night.

A ku klux klan parade, a freak Ford contest and band concerts will feature the entertainment. More than $300 has been spent for fireworks alone.

SONG FEATURES ROTARY MEETING

Visiting Water Men Say Clever Little Pieces of Speech

Song, usually mentioned last in that famous trinity of which wine and ladies are the other two, proved to be thoroughly effective for putting across the hilarities expected when good fellows get together, at the regular weekly meeting of the Rotarians Thursday noon at the Kemp.

Possibly the presence of so many visiting Rotarians inspired the local members to burst forth with unusual cadence and volume when Leader R. E. Shepherd, with Mrs. Shepherd at the piano, stepped forth and demanded everyone give their vocal and articulatory organs a few setting-up exercises. The result was good and the crowd joined in lustily and with perfect cadence on "The Eyes of Texas Are Upon You," "Lil' Liza Jane" and others.

Jesse Shaw, Tyler water man who has been attending the waterworks convention, was asked by Dan Daniel, chairman, to give a little inside dope on water elevation. Mr. Shaw, though admitting water is a poor beverage, stated he was both a Baptist and a waterworks superintendent, so that it was naturally his favorite.

Blake Grinnell, Burkburnett, was introduced as a baseball player of merit. Mr. Grinnell said when the Spudders got through with the next series at home the Burkburnett bunch stood ready to try the Wichita Rotarians in another baseball fray.

Charlie Ade, San Antonio, also a waterworks delegate, proved that the Ade family did not have all its humor centered in one George, of whom the family had reason to be proud. "Charlie got away with some clever witticisms and an excellent dialect joke that was fine.

The last speaker was Rev. Nat Grafton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church who, in behalf of the Alamo club ladies, asked the Rotarians to do their heavy drinking (soft) at the Owl drug store next Saturday, as a per cent of the proceeds would go to the club.

Old Johnnie Bull Got a Laugh At Dry's Faux Pas

George Lansbury.

At a meeting and luncheon to T. P. O'Connor, father of the house of commons, George Lansbury, above, one of England's most widely known teetotallers, caused an outburst of laughter by reaching the whisky bottle of Sir Henry Buckingham, M. P., and pouring it on his fish for vinegar. He said he didn't eat it, but ordered more. He was so embarrassed by the laughter that he didn't think to order Sir Henry another drink, but the noted M. P. thought of it.

Towns Between Here and Ft. Worth Promise to Help in Gas Fight

Hearty co-operation with Wichita Falls in its fight on a proposed 50 cents a month gas charge by the Municipal Gas company has been promised by towns between here and Fort Worth, it was reported Thursday by City Attorney E. M. Mann, who returned from a series of conferences.

The local man, in company with city attorneys from several other North Texas points, spent the day Wednesday visiting Bowie, Alvord, Decatur, Sunset and other communities along the Denver.

Important action in the gas fight is expected to be taken at Dallas Saturday when representatives from each of the 21 cities to be affected by the new ready-to-serve charge will meet to discuss plans. Mr. Mann will be at the convention and it is hoped that Mayor Collier and Commissioners Young and Stayton can also attend.

Topeka Picked as Next Convention City by Waterworks Delegates

With the selection of Topeka, Kan., as the 1924 convention city, the twelfth annual convention of the Southwest Waterworks association came to a close shortly after noon after the meetings had been under way since 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Practically all of the delegates left the city on afternoon and night trains yesterday.

Topeka won next year's meetings after a determined fight that started Tuesday. With Tulsa and Oklahoma City both making an active campaign for the new session and with New Orleans putting in an occasional chirp, the fight was warm during the early hours. Eventually, however, Tulsa withdrew in favor of Topeka, and this settled matters.

The convention dates have not as yet been set, but this matter will be attended to in a short time. It will probably be held at about this time in 1924.

Closing hours of the convention Thursday were busy with committee reports and with clearing away final details incident to the meetings. The newly elected officers, with F. N. Lawton of this city as their head, met informally in the morning to discuss a few matters. The final paper of the meeting was given by W. F. Mahile, chief chemist of the Fort Worth water department.

Delegates leaving the city yesterday were loud in their praise of Wichita Falls and the hospitality it had shown. Not a word of criticism was heard of anything connected with the convention, and it was the general opinion that the meetings had been among the most beneficial ever held by the waterworks association.

Old Home Town Stuff

THINGS YOU SAY, DO AND SEE AND SOME YOU DON'T

Women talked more yesterday than any day of the year. It was the longest.

M. H. Barwise is in Dallas, where he will remain two days on a business trip.

L. B. Gerner of the Clover Leaf railroad, with offices in Dallas, was in Wichita Falls Thursday on business.

D. C. Nelson left Thursday for Olney where he will spend several days on business.

Not a single marriage license was issued Thursday by the county clerk. This happens only occasionally.

Tenth street between Scott and Ohio is considerably torn up. Gas mains are being lowered.

If the grand jury hasn't called you yet you have a fair chance of escaping. The inquisitorial body may finish up today.

It was a dull day around local courts Thursday. Two cases were all that were tried in the courthouse.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Kennedy of the Kemp hotel are visiting relatives in Memphis, Tenn., for a few weeks.

Considerable interest in the Toussaint case is being manifest around this city. At the courthouse, especially, it is a live topic of conversation.

The second story of the new McClurkan store looked rather deserted Thursday after the waterworks exhibits set up for the convention had been removed.

Rough grading work for the courthouse square project is expected to be completed by the end of the week. City crews are still busy.

Robert Emory Hicks, oil editor of the Star-Telegram, is coming through the latter part of the week en route to Olney, where he will make a study of that field.

Vincent Stine, county attorney of Clay county, was in the city Thursday on legal business.

Several matters of importance are to be taken up today at the chamber of commerce business council luncheon.

Local Rotarians attending the national convention in St. Louis are expected home Friday night.

B. C. Morgan, traveling freight agent for the Wichita Falls, Ranger & Fort Worth railroad, with offices in Ranger, was in Wichita Falls Thursday on business.

Somebody around the city hall bought a new straw hat of peculiar design Thursday and before the afternoon was out two more of that identical style appeared. How come?

L. C. Robertson of the Bell Mattress company left Thursday for Chicago and other eastern points, where he will remain 10 days buying goods for his wholesale department.

A divorce sought by Opal Smith from her husband, W. E. Smith, was granted Thursday by Judge H. R. Wilson of the Thirtieth district court. Cruel treatment was alleged in the petition.

Ralph S. Shuffler, editor and owner of the Olney Enterprise, writes the following survey of that field: "Things are 'popping up' down here again. You can't keep a squirrel on the ground in a timber country, you know."

M. F. Bell, secretary to the general superintendent of the Wichita Falls & Southern railroad, has resigned his position and will leave immediately for Seattle, Wash., where he will be connected with the United States railroad administration.

F. N. Lawton was about swamped with congratulations Thursday on his election as president of the Southwest Waterworks association convention. The place is a responsible one and the honor conferred on the local man is a signal one.

Anent our pulchritudinous cops, a contributor writes in to say that "she's never been on Indiana between Seventh and Tenth or she'd have said Tom Roark was the handsomest cop on the force. (Signed) Mrs. Poet. Come on, ladies.

The two negroes involved in a serious knife fight last Tuesday evening are still being held at the city hall, pending the outcome of the injuries suffered by Eugenie Bagsdale, negress, who was badly cut in the trouble.

The city street department and local contractors are up in arms over the manner in which red lanterns placed on darker points in the streets are stolen. Sometimes as high as a dozen a week are lost, it is said.

DAILY EPITAPH.

The management at the Hotel Texan has made some changes in the fixtures in the lobby of the hotel which will prove convenient to the guests. The desk which has been situated on one side of the room has been moved to the center, thus causing the guests less trouble in checking in and out of the hotel.

Some great features coming up for Sunday Record News readers. Of course, this is an ad and we're boosting our own game and all that sort of stuff, but we're sort of like the dad of a new-born babe. We're rather proud of what we are going to offer you Sunday.

Indiana at Tenth was blocked to all traffic yesterday afternoon while the gas main was being laid. Officer Reynolds suggested to motorists who drove up to the blocked way and stopped that they might apply the old spurs to their machines and hop over. No, Mathilde, no one did.

Five persons were jailed by a raiding party from the sheriff's office, accompanied by Ranger J. W. McCormick, in a series of raids in the flats late Wednesday night. One whisky charge, several vags and a pistol complaint were filed as a result of the work.

AW, STUTTER IT OUT.

A professor in one of our large prep. schools called upon Smith, who stutters, to parse the sentence: "The propinquity of the porcupine made pot-shooting at the hippopotamus virtually impossible." Smith gave a wild glance around the room and said: "P-p-p-professor, now ain't t-t-that a d-d-deuce of a question to ask me?"—Judge.

Amarillo boosters, 125 strong, led by their Shrine band, will breakfast in Wichita Falls next Tuesday morning and stage a parade, according to word received at the local chamber of commerce Thursday. The Amarillo delegation is scheduled to arrive in Wichita Falls at 4 o'clock Tuesday morning and remain four hours.

A two-day rodeo, to be held July 3 and 4 on his ranch a mile south of Clara, is being arranged for by W. O. Evans, well-known ranchman. Mr. Evans states everything that goes with a rodeo is being arranged for and that a large number of liberal prizes are to be offered.

TOWN STUFF'S DAILY BOOK REVIEW.

"The Red Bug."

By Pullan Scratch, author of "Chinches and Chiggers," "Gnats and Knees" and other biological works.

Pullan Scratch and his crowning work, "The Red Bug," reminds one of the fair attempts of Poe to produce a similar work, "The Gold Bug." Scratch, however, does not confuse with technicalities as did Poe, so the "Red Bug" must be classed above the "Gold Bug." One chapter in the "Red Bug" is worth the price of the whole book. This deals with the peculiar habit of the red bug to make himself felt at picnics, lawn parties and other outdoor functions. The plea for the curtailment of the sale of coal oil and sulphur so as to prolong the life of the red bug, is touching and makes one want to donate more to the humane society.

It is generally rumored in the streets that the reason Dave Paul hasn't been seen around the same corner where he could be located two days ago, is that some of the boys that he inveigled into buying those cute little two-inch silver trinkets that he told them were to be used with corn are looking for a refund. These gentry claim that the cute little things destroyed the corks and didn't seem to work just right anyhow. Of course, members of the hoi polloi will understand that Dave was peddling these trinkets to be applied to corn on the cob and not under the cork.

She Will Be President of State Organization in Two Years

Mrs. Alma Y. Miller, county clerk, returned Thursday from Galveston, where she has been attending a state convention of county clerks and where she was elected vice president of the organization.

New Car Wrecked

Skidding 50 feet and turning completely over into an eight-foot ditch a new Studebaker roadster driven by a man named Walker, an employee of the Underwood Drilling company was totally wrecked three miles out on the Seymour road about 4:30 Thursday afternoon.

The driver was only slightly bruised and scratched.

Kell Returns From Grain Conference

Tremendous interest in the national grain conference at Chicago early this week was manifest by millers and others interested in the business, according to Frank Kell, who returned Thursday afternoon from the sessions. Mr. Kell has been in Chicago for the week.

Although a number of business matters relative to the industry were taken up, no definite action affecting the business had been taken up until the time he left, Mr. Kell said.

HOME TOWN'S EDUCATIONAL SERIES.

Today's word: In-ter-po-si'on (see story on President Harding's address, page 1): (1) Act of interposing, or state of being interposed: a being placing or coming between; mediation, intervention. (2) The thing interposed. The president said that the world court may appoint a successor to a member, by death, for instance, without outside interposition or interference.

Another word for today is archealogical. (See Mexican story, page 12) relating to archaeology or antiquities, as archaeological research, ancient, prehistoric.

J. W. Smith, head of the chemistry department in the Junior college and high school last year, returned to Wichita Falls recently from Wise county, where he has been looking after property in that county. Mr. Smith intends to remain in Wichita Falls for several days and will probably go from here to Mexico, where he will be connected with some of the mines in the northern part of that country.

DELEGATES TO MEXICO ARE ASKED

A request that two delegates be sent from this city on an educational, archaeological and economic convention tour of Mexico, together with delegates from other sections of the country has been received by Mayor Frank Collier from the Southern Commercial Congress at Washington. The trip starts from the capital September 1.

It is proposed that the party spend considerable time in various Mexican cities cementing friendship between that country and this and working for the advancement of business interests.

It is understood, so the communication states, that the delegates pay their own expenses.

Chinaware Hurled

A negro scrap in the flats Thursday afternoon sent police on a hurry-up call to that district. It was found that a negro woman had upbraided her husband for his general worthlessness and that his remonstrance came in the form of some chinaware and other handy articles hurled at the lady's head.

Disturbing the peace charges were filed at the city hall.

J. E. Ward returned yesterday from Wichita, Kans., where he purchased equipment for his filling station being erected at the corner of Tenth and Bluff streets. He ordered 16 visible style pumps from the Clear Vision Pump company, which will be erected at the new station, making it the largest in the city by several pumps. The cost of the pumps, which are of the latest model, was $6,400.
