CAPT. ERWIN FORCED BACK TO DALLAS

Fans To Welcome Spuds Home Today From Long Road Trip

BAND TO PLAY WELCOME FOR LOOP LEADERS

Fans Urged to Appear In Carload Lots At Depot

ARRIVE AT 1:55 P. M.

1000 Extra Reserved Seats At Park Today For Buff Game

1000 EXTRA SEATS

Wichita Falls baseball officials have placed 1000 extra reserve seats in Spudder park as preparedness measure for the Houston series which starts here Wednesday afternoon. Larger crowds than usual are expected to see the league leaders fight it out with the threatening Bisons today and the next two afternoons. But there will be plenty of seats available, says Secretary Guy Airey.

By BLONDY CROSS

Your rather bedraggled but nonetheless proud Spudders return Wednesday afternoon to the home citadel after being repulsed in attacks on nearly every port in the league.

Commodore Carl Williams steers his Spudder man o' war into the home channel this afternoon at 1:55 o'clock, an almost totally dismantled vessel but still fighting.

And the home guard will be there to meet the boys. For as Wichita Falls' baseball team, almost wrecked from a sorely disastrous voyage over the circuit, struggles back into port shortly before 2 o'clock this afternoon, hundreds of loyal Spudder fans plan to be at the depot to greet the returning warriors, not as warriors in defeat, but as returning heroes, conquerors ever.

Give 'Em Glad Hand

Hundreds of enthusiastic sportsmen will be at the station this afternoon to give the boys the glad hand, to cheer them up in defeat, to slap them on the back and tell them, "We're with you, boys, win or lose! We're with you and to see you through to a finish!"

When the Williams clan came home last month from a highly productive jaunt over the league, more than 1000 Spudder enthusiasts turned out at midnight to greet them, to cheer them and to welcome them home.

This same Williams detachment blows in this afternoon on the 1:55 Fort Worth and Denver, figuratively a shell of its former warlike self, comes home with only six victory scaps attached to the belt against 16 reversals registered by enemy clubs who would rout the league-leading Spudders from their lofty perch on a gruelling road trip that closed Tuesday with the Spudders splitting a double header in Shreveport.

Ace Will Hop Off For Frisco Again Some Time Today

Mrs. Erwin, Wife of Flier, Barred From Trip Under Ruling of Easterwood Committee

LOVE FIELD, Dallas, Aug. 10.—(Wednesday)—Less than six hours after he had hopped off from this field Tuesday evening on his nonstop flight attempt to San Francisco, Captain Bill Erwin, wartime ace, landed back at Love field shortly after midnight, being forced to turn back by his fuel pumping system. At the time Captain Erwin turned back he was flying over Colorado, Texas, he reported to Love field officials, and knowing that he could not reach San Francisco with a crippled fuel pump he decided to turn back.

Officials in charge of the Easterwood flight announced that Erwin's return did not disqualify him from the contest for the Dallas-Hongkong prize. Erwin announced that he would start again later today in his second attempt to make the first leg of his flight, Dallas to San Francisco.

ABILENE, Texas, Aug. 9. (AP)—Flying high and fast, Captain Erwin passed over Abilene at 9:02 tonight. The flier was slightly off his course, coming into Abilene from the southeast, but picked up the Texas and Pacific tracks here.

ERWIN'S PLANE SIGHTED OVER CISCO

CISCO, Texas, Aug. 9. (AP)—An airplane believed to be the "Dallas Spirit," piloted by Captain W. P. Erwin on his Dallas to Hongkong flight, was sighted over Cisco at 8:35 o'clock tonight. The aviator was flying high and at a terrific rate of speed. Cisco is approximately 125 miles west of Dallas.

DALLAS, Aug. 9. (AP)—Captain William P. Erwin, Dallas ace, flying "Dallas Spirit," giant monoplane, hopped off from Love field today at 7:19 p. m. for San Francisco on the first leg of his flight from Dallas to Hongkong, China. He will remain over in the California city until Friday noon when he will enter the Dole-Hawaiian flight.

Captain Erwin was flying alone, his wife who had planned to fly with him to San rFancisco and thence to Honolulu, being ruled out of the flight by the National Aeronautical association today because she is not yet 21 years of age.

After Two Prizes

The Dallas flier not only is entered in the W. E. Easterwood trans-Pacific flight for a purse of $25,000 and the Dole-Hawaiian race, but plans to continue his long flight from Hongkong, China, around the world, returning to Dallas about October 12.

After a race of 1500 feet down the runway the green and silver Swallow monoplane rose gracefully into the air. More than 5000 persons cheered when it was seen that the big ship had successfully taken off.

Captain Erwin turned the nose of his craft northward, circled the field three times and headed through lowering clouds toward the setting sun. The giant ship soon appeared as small as a feathered swallow and disappeared.

Light Rain Falls

Although more than half an inch of rain fell in the business district of Dallas this afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock there was not sufficient rain at Love field to hinder the flier's take-off.

Acting upon special weather reports Captain Erwin chose the southern route from Dallas to San Francisco. His course will lie westward along the Texas and Pacific railway to El Paso, thence to Phoenix, Ariz., Los Angeles and San Francisco. He is expecting to reach the California coast tomorrow before noon.

ARMY BURIES LEONARD WOOD

Last Rites Are Held At Arlington

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Major General Leonard Wood was buried today in Arlington cemetery, the national valhalla.

He was laid at rest on a grassy knoll in the "rough rider" section, where fighting men from this celebrated unit which he commanded during the British war are interred.

Army Buries Him

The army which he loved and served for nearly 40 years rendered him full military honors as prescribed in the regulations which General Wood himself wrote when chief of staff.

It was the stern martial ceremony which heroes receive in war or in peace, but the solemnity of this procession swayed the emotions of a vast throng which lined the historic streets and roadways leading to the picturesque Potomac hills where General Wood now keeps his last bivouac with most of the country's famous soldier and sailor dead.

The solemn cortege moved out from union station at 9 o'clock this morning. The flag draped casket was placed on an artillery caisson drawn by white artillery mounts.

Charger Follows Him

Behind it an aged and faithful orderly, who had long served with General Wood, held his charger. The horse was robed in black. In the stirrups a pair of black boots had been reversed. A saber dangled from the empty saddle.

The long procession crossed the Potomac and wound its way slowly up the hill side to the gates of Arlington. As it entered three-inch guns from Fort Myer began the salute of 10 guns fired at one minute intervals.

Col. John T. Axton, chief of the army chaplains and Chaiplain W. H. Watts read the Episcopal service for the burial of soldiers. Colonel Axaton then delivered this brief eulogy:

Tribute to Wood

"If every person whose life has been influenced for good by Leonard Wood might place but a single petal on this grave he would sleep tonight in a veritable wilderness of flowers."

The flag which draped the casket was gently lifted and a cross in white sand marked at the head. It was then lowered into the grave. A lone bugler took his place at the head of the grave and sounded "taps," the last honor which the army can pay its dead.

Unmasked Armed Bandits Take Loot Of $25 In Raid On Iowa Park Road

Unmasked and armed bandits entered the Barnes Filling station on the Iowa Park road for the second time in two weeks about 8 o'clock Tuesday night, held Herschel Evans, 17-year-old employe, at the point of a pistol while they pilfered the cash drawer of about $25 and escaped in a waiting Buick touring car, police reported. About $50 in currency had been removed from the drawer only a few minutes before by Braz Barnes, owner of the station, who had gone home to put the money in his safe, leaving the younger lad in charge.

The two bandits drove into the station, asked for an inner tube, and as the lad went on his mission the two followed him. Arriving at the tube shelves the boy felt a gun in his back and was ordered to open the cash drawer.

Two weeks ago, B. A. Evans, brother of Tuesday night's victim, was hijacked and robbed of $17 in the same filling station.

Dry Agent Inspects Hip Pockets

Lodge Delegates at Ft. Worth Raise Howl

FORT WORTH, Aug. 9. (AP)—Alleged wholesale searching of delegates to the convention of the Dramatic Order Knights of Khorassan affiliated with the Knights of Pythias, by a federal prohibition agent from Dallas Monday night resulted in a protest by Fort Worth members of a convention committee today.

A spokesman for the committee declared that for several hours Monday night the agent stood at the entrance to a hotel here where most of convention activities centered and searched delegates who passed him carrying packages, although he had no search warrant. A request from the agent that local police aid him in his work was refused by the local officers on the grounds that his actions were illegal, the committeeman said.

The committee was assured at federal prohibition headquarters where the protest was lodged that the agents actions would not be repeated and that the agent was acting without authority and of his own initiative a committee member stated.

PETRI VOTED LIFE IN PEN

SEYMOUR, Aug. 9.—Life imprisonment was the penalty meted out Tuesday afternoon to Louis Petri, alias "Dutch" Petri, 37 years old, on trial here for the slaying last April of Mrs. Mabel Nelson, 28 years old. Unrequited love was the reason for the killing.

Sacco-Vanzetti To Die Tonight

guard, and Sheriff Charles Capen of Norfolk county, where the crimes were committed.

By Universal Service.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 9.—With only a few hours of life left on their schedule, the question of whether Sacco and Vanzetti will go to their deaths tomorrow night rests in the hands of Governor Fuller.

Arthur D. Hill, chief counsel for the condemned pleaded with the governor late today to grant another reprieve so he can continue his fight in the courts.

He has taken exception to the rulings of Judge Webster Thayer who today denied a request for a revocation of sentence and yesterday denied a motion for a new trial, and hopes to go back to the state supreme court with these exceptions tomorrow.

Appeal Not Heard

He appealed to the supreme court this afternoon but failed to get any satisfaction in the absence of Judge Sanderson who will be on the bench tomorrow.

Attorney General Arthur K. Reading was present at today's conference. After Hill had left the executive offices Reading remained closeted with the governor. A statement is expected on what action the governor will take.

During this conference the Boston police arrested 42 men and girls who were picketing the state house. Some of the girls were found to be society girls. Others were the daughters of workingmen. They were all taken for a ride and charged with loitering. Those who could give a $25 bail were released and all are supposed to be in court tomorrow morning. When Hill left the governor's office he issued the following statement.

Attorney Silent

"I have nothing to say. Propriety forbids me to say anything of the case at this time. The governor will issue a statement when he decides whether or not another respite is to be issued. I do not want to say that I was treated with utmost respect and courtesy and fairness, and that the governor gave me ample opportunity to present my client's side of the case."

Mrs. Sacco went to the death house again today to visit her condemned husband and Vanzetti. As she was leaving she complained to the warden because he is not sending out the innumerable letters that Vanzetti is writing.

Warden Henry told her flatly that he was not going to send out any more of Vanzetti's inflamatory notes. He said they condemn and attack all the officials from the governor down.

Mrs. Sacco Angered

Mrs. Sacco flared up in a hot response and the warden informed her that he would not let her see Vanzetti again. Under the law she can visit her husband every day but she has also been spending considerable time before Vanzetti's barred door.

Prison attaches say she has been giving Vanzetti more time than she has been spending with Sacco. "Ten minutes with Sacco and 30 with Vanzetti," they say.

Vanzetti is by far the more intellectual. He is the one who has been writing all the propaganda that has come out of their cells.

Vanzetti is said to have complained today because Sacco is getting more publicity than he is. Poor Sacco says he made no effort to beat his pal to the front pages.

Sacco's Name Easier

The reason that Sacco's name appears in the papers more than Vanzetti's is because his is shorter and fits better into the big headlines. Vanzetti can't understand it.

Boston's mayor, Malcolm Nichols, and his chauffeur have joined the armed forces of Boston during this Sacco and Vanzetti crisis. They both were granted permits to carry revolvers.

More than 3000 garment workers went on a protest strike here today but one couldn't have sensed it if he hadn't read the papers, for it was a very quiet strike compared to the advanced notices.

Laundry Owners Association Starts Housewife Contest

A four-year program of advertising in magazines and newspapers throughout the nation by the National Laundry Owners' association is to be featured in its housewives' essay contest to begin September 30, it was announced to members of the Wichita Falls Advertising club Tuesday noon by George O. Browne, Indianapolis, Ind., representative of the association.

The advertising program will be launched with the realization of the progress of modern laundries, and in cognizance of the fact that modern methods employed by laundries result in a considerable saving for the average American family, Mr. Browne said.

"A family washing can be done at the laundry at a cost of from one dollar to $1.25, while if the same work is done at home it will cost $4," Mr. Brown said.

The beginning of the campaign, Mr. Brown explained, will be an essay contest, to be announced through magazine advertisements, in which each housewife will be asked to write articles consisting of from 50 to 300 words on her idea as to "Why the Laundry Should Do My Washing."

The campaign in the Central and West Texas district is to be under the direction of Harry Gray Jr., it was announced.

Pond's laundry, the Wichita Falls Laundry company, and the City laundry, of Wichita Falls, are members of the national association, and will participate in the campaign.

Spuds To Return On 1:55 Train

home the Spudders after their conquests last month over the league, more than 2000 are expected to gather at the depot to welcome home a defeated team, but a team that with all its misfortune and disaster of the recent trek into foreign territory, still is up and fighting, still remains waving its banner in the league lead and flaunting its heels at the ambitious Houston club, which invades Wichita Falls this afternoon for a three-game series with the Williams wallopers.

And there will be another brass band there this afternoon. Another and still louder blare of military, soul-inspiring music will greet the returning battlers as they file from the train at 1:55, for Director Gabe Brollier, an ardent sportsman who says "it is ever easy to cheer the victor, but the man who needs the helping hand is the man who is down," and the municipal band almost at full strength will form in the Scott and Eighth intersection at 1:30 o'clock and lead a parade of fans to the depot three blocks away to receive with open arms the doughty leaders of the Texas league, your own Wichita Falls Spudders.

Home for 15 Days

The Spudders swing back home today for a 15-day stand. As result of Tuesday split in Shreveport while those irrepressible Waco Cubs topped Houston again, the Spudders gained a half game on the Buffs and rest six and a half games out front this morning.

Starting at 4 o'clock this afternoon, what looms as the most severe test of the race for the Spudders will be unraveled before Wichita Falls fandom in the first game of the three-day stand with the seriously menacing Mathesmen.

It is quite likely, Manager Williams will hurl his pitching ace, Milton Steengrafe, husky right-hander, onto the twirling eminence against the Bisons today. Barring accident, Fred Fussell, the unfathomable southpaw, will toss Thursday's melee for the Spudders.

Everything is in readiness this morning to start the Spudders on the back trail after the laurels lost away home thanks to assiduous labor yesterday by "Slick" Ansley, that eminent Spudder enthusiast; Police Commissioner Roy Carter, another star Spud fan, and Syd Gaines, one of the Spudders' pepperiest supporters. This trio, with Director Gabe Brollier devoted a large slice of Tuesday to arranging for the Spudder welcome party today.

Police Will Help

Traffic Captain Scott announces he will have a couple or so extra officers on hand to aid in giving the band and paraders the right-of-way up Eighth street to the station.

Remember the hour and the place: The Municipal band forms at Scott and Eighth at 1:30, marching to the depot shortly after. The train bearing the Spudders is to arrive at 1:55.

It is likely a number of the band men will play at the park this afternoon, also.

WIRTZ FLAYS WATER MEET

Texas Senator Opposes Abilene Parley

AUSTIN, Aug. 9. (AP)—The water conservation meeting scheduled for August 18 at Abilene on a call of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce appears to Senator A. J. Wirtz of Seguin as "an effort to try a legal controversy outside of legal channels," he said today.

Wirtz is counsel for certain Wharton and Matagorda county rice irrigation interests which are opposing petition of the Brown county water improvement district to dam tributaries of the Colorado river, from which South Texas rice fields are irrigated.

The petition is now before the state board of water engineers, which is expected to render a decision some time in September

Accuses West Texas C. C.

"The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has used every effort," Senator Wirtz said, "to influence the decision of the water board. I do not believe in trying cases before the public forum, as was done in the day of ancient Greece, nor do I believe in trying them through the newspapers, according to the tendency of modern times. There have been some misstatements about the pending matter, resulting in considerable misunderstanding by some people, including newspaper editors."

The senator said the rice companies of Wharton, Matagorda and Colorado counties appropriated water from the Colorado river 25 years ago and have "millions of dollars" invested in permanent improvements, but that if the West Texas project is realized, the rice industry on the lower reaches of the river will be destroyed.

Declaring that an "attempt is being made to impress on the people that this is an issue between the farmers and the great power companies," Senator Wirtz said the rice irrigation interests are not directly concerned with the fact that power interests also are intervening in the case.

Call It Ill-Timed

"I think the Abilene meeting is ill-timed," he said, "unless its purpose is to bring undue pressure and influence on the board of water engineers, before whom the controversy is now pending, or upon the courts, before which it may eventually be tried. If the purpose were simply to consider what laws might be advisable on the subject, the meeting is premature, because it is not yet determined that the controversy will be decided adversely to the contentions of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

"The conclusion is irresistible that the proponents of the matter now before the board are not willing to risk the unbiased action of legal tribunals, on the law and the evidence, but are attempting to bring undue pressure to bear on their side of the scales of justice."

Sunday School Class Will Present Old Fashioned Play

Members of the Amoma Sunday school class of the Highland Heights Baptist church will present an old fashioned play, entitled "An Old Fashioned Mother" at the Crockett school Thursday evening beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

The affair which will be given for the benefit of the annex building fund of the church promises to be one of the most artistic and delightful home talent plays to be presented here for some time. Costumes some of which are 80 and 100 years old will be worn, and the stage setting will include such antiques as the spinning wheel and other articles seldom seen now.

The scene is laid in a farmhouse late in March and the story which is exceedingly comical, is woven around the "widder" rehearsing the village choir.

Leading roles will be taken by Miss Jessie Leach and Reuben Snell, while Clarence Norris is the principal comedian. Miss May Horn will preside at the organ, and others in the cast will include Misses Velma Kelly, Fannie Leach, Ida Horn, Vera Leach, Jewell Vantrease, Claudine Taylor and Travis Taylor, J. D. Fuller, Jack Goff and Robert Ludolphus.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

Mrs. Jones—"My dear! Just listen to this: 'Fruit soups are most refreshing: I never of fruit soups, did you?"

Mrs. Brown—"No, but I should like to try them, let's see the recipes.

FRUIT SOUPS

Peach Soup—Soak three-fourths of a cup of rolled oats overnight in a quart of cold water and a pint of juice drained from canned peaches. Stir, strain and bring to a boil. Season with salt, pepper and sugar. With this serve saltines that have been sprinkled with grated cheese and left in the oven until the cheese is melted.

Raspberry Soup—Drain the juice from a quart can of red raspberries. Add two cups of water and a pinch of cayenne. Heat, thicken slightly with two tablespoons of arrowroot blended with a little cold water stirred into the mixture until it boils. Take from the fire and add immediately the juice of one lemon. Serve hot or cold. This makes six servings. The berries may be used in tarts or other ways.

Hot cherry bouillon is an excellent combination of fruit juice and meat stock. Drain the juice from a quart of canned cherries, add a stick of cinamon and boil for three or four minutes. Add clear consomme to taste, season with salt and pepper and thicken with arrowroot.

Mrs. Jones: "My, that frosting looks good. May I lick the pan?"

Mrs. Brown: "You sound just like your smallest daughter, but go ahead. I am experimenting with frostings. Tell me how you like it."

Burnt Almond Fruiting

Half cup butter, two egg yolks, one and one-half cups confectioner's sugar, one-half cup almonds. Cream the butter, add the sugar and the egg yolks. Spread on the cake when ready to use. Blanch the almonds, bake in a moderate oven until light brown. Cut in pieces and sprinkle on the frosting.

FUDGE FROSTING

Two cups sugar, three-quarters cup milk, two squares chocolate, one teaspoon butter, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Place the sugar, milk and chocolate in a saucepan and stir over the fire until the sugar is dissolved. Boil without stirring until when tested, a soft ball forms in water (230 degrees F.) Remove the pan from the fire, add the butter and vanilla, set in cold water and stir until thick enough to spread.

CARAMEL FROSTING

One cup brown sugar, three-quarters cup milk, one cup granulated sugar, one teaspoon butter. Follow the method for fudge frosting. Boil to 234 degrees F.

CONFECTIONER'S FROSTING

Two cups confectioner's sugar, one and one-half to two tablespoons boiling water, one teaspoon melted butter, flavoring. Sift the sugar, add one and one-half tablespoons boiling water at one time and beat until smoot, adding more water if necessary to make the frosting thin enough to spread. Add the butter and flavoring and spread on the cake or cookies. One square of chocolate may be melted and added.

IS LOVE ALL?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THOUGH PENNILESS, THEY ELOPED.

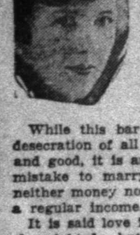

SHE SOON REALIZED LOVE IS NOT ALL OF HAPPINESS.

Ability to Support Wife Essential to Happy Marriage

By Beatrice Fairfax
An Authority on the Promblems of Love and Marriage.

SOME persons marry for money selling themselves in a cool, calculating, business-like way. Occasionally a young man marries an old woman for love of the almighty dollar. Even more frequently young girls marry old men, from whom they instinctively shrink, for the sake of jewels and other things money buys.

While this barter of love is a desecration of all that is beautiful and good, it is an equally serious mistake to marry when there is neither money nor the prospect of a regular income.

It is said love is blind. Love is clearsighted, but infatuation is blind and destructive. Only blind infatuation could bring about a marriage like the one suggested in the following letter:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I have a brother of twenty-six and a sister of nineteen. My sister has been engaged to a man twenty-two years old for two years. They are planning to be married this Summer. This young man has some good points, but his one fault is he cannot keep a job.

"In the past year he has worked but six months and that at three different places. He has not a trade and is not well educated, having skipped school as a young boy to see the country. All the places he has worked since we knew him someone else got him the job. As soon as the boss tells him to do anything, he quits. He won't take orders.

"He doesn't tell my sister, but he has told a number of our friends and my brother that he doesn't like to work. She is too love-sick to see this. He wants to go from one place to another and see the country. He says the city where we live is slow.

"I got a job for him three weeks ago, but he didn't feel like going after it the next morning. He has not worked now for ten weeks. He has not saved five dollars in the time they have been going together.

"When we try to reason with him and tell him he must have money to get married on,—or at least, a steady job,—he says he is old enough to be married now and as long as they love each other that is all that counts.

"We want her to give him up until he is more settled. We can see nothing but trouble ahead for her. Kindly advise us as to what is best to do in a case like this. I thank you in advance.

"W. A. and R. A."

Some humorous philosopher has remarked that family influence is exceedingly powerful, but that it usually has the opposite effect from that intended and planned. If you oppose this marriage too strenuously, your opposition may drive the two together. For love thrives on opposition.

You have rightly pointed out to your sister the folly and danger of a marriage without means of support. Do not argue the point with her constantly. Your energy will be more profitably spent in seeking some diversion for her, which may distract her attention from the man who is incapable of making her happy.

Can you not plan a vacation trip or long visit for her? If you can not do so, invite interesting young people—especially men—to your home. In the last analysis of course, she must decide this question for herself and work out her own salvation.

When a woman takes a husband to support and the husband is perfectly willing to be supported or else let his wife starve, trouble looms ahead. On the one side, common sense is lacking, on the other, unselfish love.

Love is all that counts when love is noble—true love. But the so-called love that prompts a man to blithely undertake marriage and all it involves, without inclination or ability to work faithfully to support his wife and home,—is self love—nothing more.

Until a man proves he is capable of protecting, supporting and caring unselfishly for a wife, he is not qualified, no matter how glibly he may talk about love, to undertake the responsibility and appreciate the supreme happiness that love and marriage bring into experience.

Do You Want Your Child to Be An Infant Prodigy?

By L. Lamar Matthews.

NEWS came recently of another child prodigy. This time it is a twelve-year-old boy, Miquel Candela, who amazed Paris critics with his violin playing.

L. LAMAR MATTHEWS.

Just think of the hours and hours that little Miquel spent practising on his violin while other children were playing out of doors. Now he can play his violin better than any other boy his age and better than most grown-ups. While all the plain, everyday, normal boys of twelve have done nothing but develop their young bodies and acquire enough learning to satisfy their teachers.

There are a great many child prodigies in the world. There is the girl who can read Caesar, Cicero and Virgil while other girls her age are reading tales of King Arthur's Knights or the Louisa M. Alcott books.

There is the boy who can solve problems in geometry, trigonometry and calculus while other fellows his age are wondering how on earth you divide a mixed number by a fraction.

There is the young girl who preaches the Gospel with a fervor and sincerity that hold her congregation as few matured ministers can do.

There are the husky girl twins who set out so bravely to swim the Hudson river from Albany to New York.

And there are various other boys and girls who have some unusual talent or advanced learning.

Almost every town has at least one child who is held up to the other children in that community as a shining example of what a child can do if he tries hard enough.

On the other hand, have you ever known any child prodigies who have rendered any particular service or achieved any marked success in after life? A few of them find their way to the stage; lots of them get their pictures in the papers; and here and there one develops into a distinguished man or woman.

But think of the thousands of careless, laughing, misbehaving, ordinary little boys and girls who have developed into captains of industry, leaders of the state, or public benefactors of one kind or another.

When a child is particularly talented it is perfectly natural that his parents should rejoice. It is also right and proper that they should give him every opportunity to develop that talent. The wrong comes when he is encouraged to devote time and energy to study or practice that should be given to the work and play necessary to normal growth.

If you have a little prodigy in your home, let him alone. If you have an "average" youngster, thank heaven for your blessing and give him the training that will further his physical, mental and spiritual development.

Southern Corn Bread Recipes

By Hannah Wing

THE flavor of corn bread along with the appetizing odor of broiled bacon is a symbol of the campers' favorite breakfast.

Of the corn breads, one that is most often popular is a thin, crispy sheet that requires very little time to prepare. It is made from ⅓ cup of corn meal, 1 cup of boiling water, 2½ teaspoons of butter and ½ teaspoon of salt. Add the corn meal to the boiling water, stirring constantly, and cook until smooth and thickened; then add the butter and salt. Grease the bottom of an inverted baking pan of a large size and spread the mixture in a thin sheet not over an eighth of an inch in thickness on the bottom of a pan. Use a long, broad-bladed knife and spread evenly. Bake until well browned. Cut in squares and serve at once. This, like all corn breads, should be eaten with plenty of fresh, sweet butter.

The secret of all Southern corn breads is that the corn meal is somewhat cooked before it is baked. This is the especial knack that has made the fame of Southern spoon bread. The following recipe, adapted from the method of the South, seems to give the desired result.

SOUTHERN SPOON BREAD.

Two cups scalded milk, 1½ cups cornmeal, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt.

Sift the meal into the hot milk keeping the mixture from lumping by constant stirring. Cook in a double boiler for five minutes after the mixture is smooth. Add the butter stir it in well and allow the meal to cool. Add the beaten yolks of the eggs and stir well; then fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Turn into a greased pudding dish and bake for twenty minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for forty minutes. An oven glass or porcelain dish should be used as spoon bread is served directly from the dish and is eaten with a fork with plenty of butter.

Pone is very like spoon bread and may be made by the same recipe using one-half cup less meal. The meal is cooked in the milk in the same manner as for spoon bread, the fat and salt added. The mixture is only slightly cooled and the well beaten eggs are added without separating. It is baked and served as spoon bread but is of a less light texture and is usually cut in pie-like sections when woolens.

Household Hints

IF YOU have carpet in the passage, place a sheet of brown paper of appropriate size under the doormat. The dust collected in the mat will then collect on the paper instead of settling into the carpet.

Vinegar will remove most stains from the hands.

Allow curtains to get quite dry before starching them. They will then keep clean much longer.

If you rub the kitchen windows occasionally with a cloth moistened with methylated spirit they will not "steam" from the cooking.

Put all scraps of soap into a jar; when you have a quantity make it into a soap jelly for washing woolens.

TODAY I have been gardening out in the sun and wind and, ah—I could not choose but sing, the whole world seemed so kind! All day I have been planting seeds in ordered row on row; old Earth, wise mother, knows their needs and she will make them grow. And, strangely, as through sun and wind about my task I went, God planted in my eager mind the seeds of sweet content. The little seeds of happy thought, of hope and love and trust that by some miracle are brought to blossom from life's dust. Was it the work of sun or sky, or balmy air's embrace? I only know as day went by joy's harvest waxed apace. Today I have been gardening out in the golden air, and, ah, what lovely fancies spring to sudden blooming there!

Leg Exercises in the 'Daily Dozen'

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOU may be one of those wise persons who take their "daily dozen." That is to say you employ a little while each morning in some form of physical exercise to set you up for the day. And such exercises do set you up. That is the reason why, in both the Army and Navy they are called "setting-up exercises."

CHARLES A.L. REED, M.D.

In all setting-up exercises leg movements are very properly conspicuous. But there can be both use and abuse of leg exercises.

The right time to use leg exercises, explains Surgeon Commander Hill, of the English Navy, is at the beginning of a series. The object is to squeeze the waste products out of the leg muscles. One is very apt to forget that one is using the legs from the time one gets out of bed in the morning. For instance, you have to use your legs in some way in order to get to the gymnasium. Before exercise begins you stand about for a certain time. The legs contain a considerable quantity of blood and their total weight is quite big; moreover, their blood vessels have to support the weight of all the blood in the body. The result is that the vessels get clogged with waste products more easily than any other vessel groups. A few movements of the legs, a few contractions of the muscles will therefore do good by squeezing the blood out of the vessels and muscles and getting rid of their waste products.

A few contractions of this kind are Nature's way of preparing any muscle for an effort. A man lining up for a 100-yard sprint moves his legs constantly. A boxer spars before he hits. A golfer waggles before he swings. These movements increase the tension of the muscles; warm them, as it were, and make them less liable to injury.

There is a certain amount of danger in making a sudden effort with a "cold" muscle. Too sudden a contraction may rupture a tendon or some of the fibres. For this reason trainers do not allow runners or football players to go out into cold air and make maximum movements without a certain amount of massage beforehand, which serves to some extent the same purpose as voluntary movement.

In sport, leg movements before a group of exercises are done for the same reason as any other preliminary exercise, and are a good thing.

After exercise, however, leg movements are to be avoided.

Leg exercises are said to quiet the heart and reduce its rate to normal after exercise, and the same virtue is claimed for breathing exercises. They are said to have a calming effect on the body. People say that to move the legs deflects blood into them from the heart, thereby relieving it and allowing it to slow down.

I have repeatedly denounced this doctrine and now repeat that it is a complete fallacy.

A man who has had a spell of violent physical exercise has his legs as full of blood as they can be, and not only because of the call which the over-worked muscles make for blood, but also because when the heart and circulation weaken, the force of gravity tends more and more to outweigh the efforts of the heart and to force blood to the legs. The blood tends to pool in the legs and to starve the brain, lungs and heart. The pulse and breathing therefore get rapid, rather than slow, and the athlete feels giddy. If that happens, he will naturally lie down, head low and legs up, which is the best thing for him to do. This is because the first requirement after violent exercise is to get the blood out of the legs and again normally distributed throughout the body, and nothing should ever be done to prevent this. It is as much as the heart can do to force out of the lungs the blood that is already in them; for this has to be done against the force of gravity; and to deflect blood artificially to the legs is to increase the heart's difficulty still further.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

Wait a While.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man eighteen years of age. I met a certain girl six months ago, whom I love very much. What shall I do to find whether she loves me? Shall I ask her point-blank?

She lives in a near-by city. I go to see her once in a while, but usually she comes here, and then I take her out. Sometimes she seems indifferent, other times she couldn't be more sociable. Will you please tell me how to overcome her indifference?

A READER.

NO ONE can possibly feel in the same mood at all times. Your friend may be subject to many moods. If so, you may as well accept her as she is, because she is not likely to change in that respect.

The only certain way to learn whether a girl loves you, my friend, is to ask her to be your wife. You will know by her answer whether she is in love with you.

As you are too young to undertake marriage responsibilities, why do you not content yourself for a year or two with devoting yourself to her as a friend? If you establish a fine friendship, that will give love a chance to grow. All success to you!

Three Smart Paris Hats

THESE three smart hats were worn at Chantilly for the great race meeting known as the French Derby. The one at the top is a new model in natural colored straw with a wide brim. It is trimmed with a wide satin ribbon twisted round the back of the crown and swathed over the front to finish in a large rosette at one side.

One of the smartest women of Paris wore the toque of grey "Yeddo" straw. It has the brim curved up to show one eye. The two aigrettes are in darker shades of grey.

The large capeline of navy blue straw trimmed with a series of little kingfisher blue feathers laid flat on the brim and crown between rows of blue and pale green grosgrain ribbon, is a particularly smart version of the large hat which is so popular.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Absurd Introduction.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

There is a boy whom I see quite often and I like him very much. We do not know each other, though I would like to know him. I know a few boys that know him. Would it be proper for me to ask one of these boys to introduce me, or would you wait until he wanted to be introduced? What is correct?

R. G.

YOU'D better wait, dear little lady, and then when he does ask to be introduced to you, you will have all the joy that the knowledge that he did the asking will mean to you. If you suggest the introduction don't you know that the boy you ask will tell him that you did ask?

An Introduction.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Kindly explain in your column how I would introduce a doctor and a woman friend of his to a doctor friend of mine. J. R.

FIRST introduce the doctor friend of yours to the other doctor's woman friend: "Miss Lady, may I present Doctor Myfriend?" Then introduce the two doctors: "Doctor Myfriend, Doctor Other."

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Folly's Daughter

A Thrilling New Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

Folly Meets Vivian.

"YOUR heart was quite right to—send you to me," MacNell Shannon told Folly gravely.

She relifted her eyes to his. She felt that he could read what was in their limpid depths. She looked around his sunshiny little office and asked eagerly:

ANN LISLE.

"Then you will help me — just me — just poor little me? I can't tell you what that assurance means to me. I can't tell you how long I hesitated before coming. But Jill is slipping away from me. And when she told me about you she gave me the impression you were an old gentleman. So in my darkest hour I thought of you. And I came so impersonally, merely because I was—sent. An inner monitor sent me. It didn't tell me I would find a young, handsome man, a man who might spell danger for me as—men her own age spell danger for Jill."

She stopped, looked down, breathing heavily. She didn't see the flash in MacNell Shannon's steel-gray eyes. She felt the palpitant silence and ventured on:

"Men who are far above her are a—menace to Jill. She is young. If I steer her right, she will marry some nice boy and live in his nice little house in some nice little suburb and have his nice little babies. That is what I want for Jill. It is what is right for her. But for me—adventure, spice, daring, passion with the right man—that is life to a woman who knows how to live—and the price——"

She paused, laughed shakily. She put her hand to her throat, got out her tiny handkerchief and pressed it to her eyes.

"What do you think of me?" she asked suddenly.

"I think you have a code—and live up to it," he said oddly. "My friends are here, the fifteen minutes are over. So would you mind slipping out now as if this had been a regular business conference?"

"It hasn't though, has it?" she murmured, leaning toward him.

"Not at all."

"You're glad I came?"

"Very. You can't know how glad."

"I'll leave my address—so you won't forget where to find me!"

She put one of her cards down on his desk. She rose and crossed toward him with her hands held out and her eyes and lips inviting. The door opened and Mrs. Moore came in. Folly managed a curt laugh and slipped through the door.

In the outer office Folly came to a sudden, jarring, halting stop. The man and woman who were being escorted into the room she had just left glanced at her. The woman swayed for a moment, and then called excitedly:

"Dear Mr. Shannon let Roy and me in pronto. I'm starving. And the heat on the pavements has got me. I know how cool your place of many windows is."

"Come in, Mrs. Scarlett," Mac called.

Folly fled. She, too, swayed on her feet. Her world was tottering.

It didn't seem possible that fate could be so cruel— so mean—so needlessly spiteful as to bring Roy and Vivian Scartlett across her path together. She giggled and thought: "It couldn't be worse for Bonnie to meet Roy with his wife."

But she found she couldn't laugh off her nerves and fear and the realization that if Vivian had seen her and chose to discuss her, a number of things might go wrong for Folly Duane.

Trembling and resentful at the circumstances that threatened to defeat her and her plan to use MacNell Shannon for her own ends, Folly found herself on the verge of hysterics. She was desperate and afraid and yet she knew how odd, how amusing it was that Roy Scarlett and Vivian, his wife, should come marching into MacNell Shannon's office just as Folly Duane marched out. . . .

But after she had found a cool little fountain and had lunched on a strawberry float and a dainty sandwich, Folly's fears began to flutter away.

"Vivian hasn't much to gain by discussing me," she thought grimly. "She has actually more to lose than I have—"

Then she began to wonder when she would hear from Mac, to assure herself that of course she would hear from him, that she had aroused his interest that she hadn't lost her charm for men even if Sam Kerby had been cruel enough to go back to his wife: . . . .

Folly was feeling quite cheerful and actually hopeful within an hour. She stopped fearing Vivian. She stopped questioning Mac's powers of resistance. He was a man—wasn't he?

And in that man's office, Vivian Scarlett's long amber eyes were fixed with sombre speculation on a bit of pasteboard bearing the inscription: "Folly Duane, Xavier Hotel."

SENSE NEEDED IN MARRIAGE

It's No Proposition For Giddy Cranium

"Common Sense and Statistics Both Show That the Proper Time to Marry Is When You're Old Enough to Know Your Own Mind and Young Enough to Change it," Says Dorothy Dix.

What is the best age at which to marry?

Twenty-four for women. Twenty-eight for men.

This is the conclusion at which the statisticians have arrived who have been analyzing and comparing the records of the Marriage License Bureaus and the Domestic Relations and Divorce Courts. They say that the boys and girls who marry at 20 and under furnish by far the larger part of the grist for the divorce mill, and that very early marriages are almost predestined failures. Next, in point of risk, comes the marriage of the 21, 22 and 23 year olders.

But between the ages of 24 and 30 is the auspicious time, as the fortune-tellers say, to enter into wedlock, and few marriages contracted at that age ever go on the rocks. However, after 30 the divorce rate soars and marriage again becomes a hazardous venture.

These scientific deductions, made from figures which, as we were taught by our copybooks, can not lie, conclusively show that the age of discretion in matrimony comes, if ever, in our middle and latter 20s. Before that we are too young for marriage. After that we take the road to the altar at our own risk.

Of course, we all know this. Every one, except the young themselves, knows that marriage is strictly an adult proposition, calling for more strength and endurance than the young possess, and that callow boys and girls simply court disaster who undertake to cut their wisdom teeth on a wedding ring.

All of us who have passed through adolescence know that children in their teens are undeveloped, unformed, without knowledge or experience of life. They do not know what they are going to be themselves when they are grown up. Still less do they know what they are going to require in their husbands and wives.

The girl that a boy thought his ideal of feminine perfection when he was 19 or 20, bores him to extinction by the time he is 25 or 26. The youth who thrilled a girl of 17 or 18 to the marrow of her bones can't raise a single palpitation in the breast of a woman of 25. The fires of love that devoured sweet-and-twenty have burned out and are nothing but a pinch of gray ashes at 26.

So these young marriages come to grief without anybody being to blame except old Mother Nature, who hurled them into each other's arms on a gust of sex attraction while they were too young to know what they were doing. They have fallen out of love with each other simply because they have grown up and their tastes have changed, and the things that once appealed to them appeal to them no more. They no more relish the husbands and wives they have than they would an all-day sucker, or the chocolate sodas that were once their idea of gastronomic delight.

And the peak of the tragedy is reached when these disillusioned young husbands and wives find, as they almost invariably do, the woman or man who is their real mate, and who answers all of their mature needs in a wife or husband.

Furthermore, these children, who marry before they have had their playtime, furnish scandal for the community when they take it later on. The boy-husband isn't willing to spend his evenings sticking around the house. He wants to be out with the other boys and girls amusing himself, and he puts on his hat after dinner and leaves a weeping and quarreling wife bemoaning her fate.

The girl-wife doesn't want to be tied down by babies and household duties. She wants to be out with girls of her own age having good times. So she grows peevish and fretful and discontented, and neglects her home and the marriage degenerates into a free-for-all fight which some divorce court judge finally referees.

But if a couple wait until the woman is 24 and the man is 28, they automatically eliminate most of these perils of matrimony. To begin with, they are old enough to have settled down into whatever mold they are going to take. Their characters have jelled, so to speak. Their tastes and habits are formed, and so they pick out for life companions those who are congenial and who will not change because they are also mature.

The woman of 24 and the man of 28 do not look upon their home as a prison out of which they are pining to break, and their babies as incumbrances that hold them back from freedom. On the contrary, they regard their homes as temples of refuge to which they can fly from the strife of the world, and they look upon their children as God's own benediction upon them. For they have waited to marry until they were ready to settle down. They have had their fling. They are tired of running around, sick and weary of dancing and night clubs. A quiet evening at home and a home dinner looks better to them than the most gorgeous dinner-dance at the smartest restaurant in town.

Moreover, those who marry in the late 20s have a better chance of happiness than those who marry very young, because by that time a man has usually gotten on his feet in business and is able to provide adequately for his family.

Thus both are saved that terrible strain upon affection that comes when a husband's and wife's nerves are stretched to the breaking point with anxiety over how the rent is to be paid and where the next meal is to come from.

The danger to those who wait until late in life to marry, however, is that after 30 we begin to harden in our characters. We are no longer plastic and we find it difficult to adapt ourselves to others. We acquire ways that are as the breath of life to us and it irritates us to have any one interfere with our habits.

Also, as we grow older, we become selfish and we are not willing to sacrifice our personal ease and comfort and freedom, even for the sake of love. This is particularly true of women, especially those who have been in business and have been money-earners. They rarely find that a husband compensates for the loss of their independence.

So common observation, as well as statistics, show that the proper time to marry is when you are old enough to know your own mind, and young enough to change it.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix:—How in the world can a father be changed who thinks his daughter should stay at home and wait until some Sir Galahad comes along? That's the way my father thinks. He thinks a girl should sit and wait for dates to be handed to her on a silver salver. Where would we all be if we sat and waited for things to happen, I ask you? MYRA.

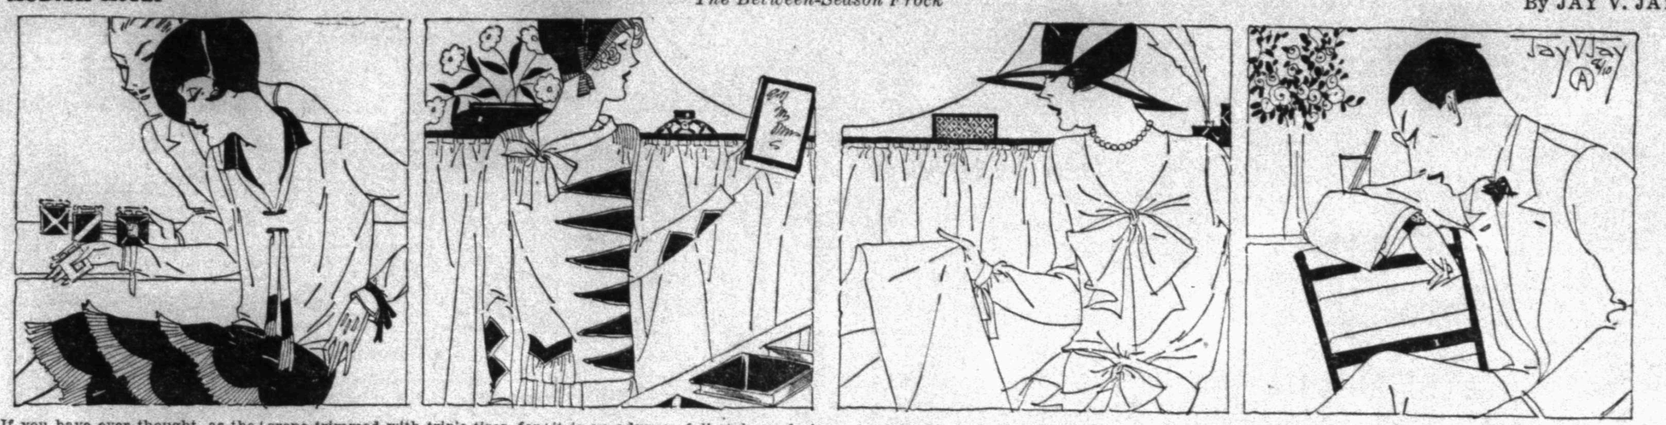

Answer: It is pretty hard to educate father in modern ways and customs, Myra, because he still belongs to the shrinking-violet school of thought which prevailed in his day when girls were never supposed to cast an eye at a man until he popped the question, whereupon she blushed and simpered. "Oh, this is so sudden. You must give me time to search my heart," even if she had spent six years toiling like a coal heaver to work him up to the proposing point.

But you are right in thinking that those good old days, when men did all the chasing, are gone, and that the girl who sits at home now and waits for some man to come along and discover her has a mighty poor show of ever being found out. A girl who wants dates in these times has to keep herself in the spotlight where her charms are clearly discernible and hit the passer-by in the eye. For men are spoiled and lazy, and they expect girls to meet them half way.

Perhaps if you will call your father's attention to the fact that the girls who sit and wait continue to hold down the anxious bench year after year, while the up-and-doing ones make the altar, he will see the correctness of your position.

It is the go-getters, male and female, who inherit the earth in this hustling age. DOROTHY DIX.

MODISH MITZI — The Between-Season Frock — By JAY V. JAY

If you have ever thought, as the Goofer often does, that Mitzi has no affection for him you must change your mind. Here she is in town on an exceedingly hot day, in a new frock of black and white crepe trimmed with trip'e tires, for the single purpose of buying him a birthday gift.

Here is Polly, too, in town on the same rrand. She wears a between-season frock, which means that it is an advance fall style made in materials one can wear comfortably in summer weather. The pointed inserts are a modernistic touch to her dress of chiffon with applique of velvet.

Aunt Sophia feels the sad plight of the Goofer, too. Aunt Sophit is feeling sad in a dress of georgette with wide bows at the neck and waistline. The effect isn't at all widening as you might suppose because the fabric is so soft. We suspect she is looking at pajamas. Aunt Sophia is sorry—

Very sorry for the Goofer who has no mother to guide him and she always suspects that his valet never looks after him properly. The Goofer does appear to be a most forlorn young mna . Or perhaps he is only looking at his wrist watch to see if it isn't nearly time for Mitiz to be back.

Champion proved his right to his name by bringing the plane safely to earth, and escaping with only a slight singeing.

Democrats Change Front

IMPERIALISM was the song that he sang in the long ago when William Jennings Bryan declared for complete independence for the Filipinos and the Philippine Islands. Indeed the Prince of Peace made complete independence for the islanders a paramount issue in one of his disastrous campaigns. Woodrow Wilson and many of his advisers urged complete independence for the islanders and their island at an opportune time. Bryan and Wilson have passed on to their reward. Independence has not come to the Philippines. Democratic leaders of the hour appear to have changed front. They are not walking in the footprints of the great defeated or the great war president of the United States.

The August number of the Review of Reviews carries a symposum article in which many well-known democrats of the nation, including Governor Dan Moody, express opposition to Philippine independence now. Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana says the desire for independence among the Filipinos is wholly sentimental. Governor Moody says it is too early to grant independence for the Philippines. Former Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma favors independence in the future. Atlee Pomerene of Ohio believes it would be a grave mistake to grant immediate and absolute independence.

Pat Harrison of Mississippi is for eventual independence. Senator Woodbridge N. Ferris the only democrat elected to the senate by the voters of Michigan in 60 years, is satisfied the Filipinos is better off under the rule of the United States. Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York looks upon the islands as American territory by virtue of the treaty of Paris. Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey is opposed to granting immediate and absolute independence. Thomas W. Gregory of Texas says the independence pledge must be kept but the time is not arrived when the island should be granted absolute independence.

Robert Lansing would not give the Filipinos independence until they are able to understand the meaning of political liberty. Josephus Daniels would give the islanders their independence with an amendment attached to keep the Filipinos from perpetrating blunders in the creative days of their government after they have been given absolute independence, "either now or in the near future." Senator Walter F. George of Georgia is not for independence. Senator Lee S. Overman of North Carolina is for "ultimate independence." Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas is for immediate independence. Senator Duncan F. Fletcher of Florida does not take kindly to the proposal. Senator Coleman L. Blease of South Carolina is for complete independence for the islands and the islanders for the reason that to withhold independence would be to make Americans liars and thieves. Senator Blease is always different.

Senator Hugo L. Black of Alabama is willing to grant independence if consistent with the best interests of the islanders. Of course, the plain English of this is that the Alabama senator straddles the issue. Vicente Villamin is the author of the Review of Reviews symposium article.

For years and years national Democratic platforms have recommended independence for the islands and the islanders. In those years William Jennings Bryan was king. That is, his followers controlled national conventions. Now Bryan is dead and his teachings have been forgotten. Uncle Sam has been the guardian and protector of the Filipinos of the Philippine Islands for 28 years. Unless the signs are misleading he will continue as their guardian and protector for years and years to come.

Pay Them Their Fees

HEAVY expense of prosecuting liquor cases in Texas have helped exhaust the emergency fee appropriation of $210,000 made by the special session of the 40th legislature, and deficiency warrants probably will be issued until September 1, when appropriation for the new biennium become available.

This emergency appropriation was to pay fees of sheriffs, county and district prosecutors, district clerks and witnesses.

As for the fee system, it will not be knocked out this year or next year. It has a firm grip upon the office holding contingent. The amendment that aimed at its abolition had the active opposition of an army of office holders.

Business is business. These thorough-going Texans preferred the old fee system to the proposed salaried system. They were satisfied with the system they had and they kept it.

Road to Justice

"THE ROAD to justice is still long, tedious and expensive; the congested dockets of the courts make the administration of justice very slow and in many instances the cost of a lawsuit is beyond the reach of the average man," declared the governor in an interview handed out after the four amendments had been sent to the undertaker's shop.

Former State Senator E. G. Senter is going to hold a statewide convention in the city of Dallas in October to plan for a campaign to abolish all the courts of civil appeals, to clear away all technicalities, to make impossible all the laws delays, to make the road to justice short and, if possible, to see to it that every litigant is his own lawyer. This is a jolly old world when you are on the laughing side of it.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (EFS)—Probably the smallest-powered airplane in the world graces New York's flying station—Curtis field. The natty little craft is a monoplane weighing only 290 pounds. It is powered by a four-cylinder motorcycle engine, capable of carrying the plane along at 70 miles an hour.

Now that Lindbergh has deserted the field, as have all the other flying heroes, Kay Karrup, the owner and builder, and his tiny craft, along with Thea Rasche, the German lady flier, are attracting the bulk of the crowds at Curtis.

My idea of the most courageous job on record is that of the people who stand about the theatrical district, selling magazines dealing with birth control. They hold their wares high in the air as they shout for customers.

Never yet have I seen anyone stop to buy. It appears that 999 out of a thousand are ashamed to be seen buying the magazines. And this is supposed to be a city of absolute freedom from hypocrisy. Many a person, I have no doubt, is curious to learn the contents of these magazines. Yet they are too timid to be seen buying one. Imagine, then, the independent nature of the vendors themselves. At least, they are to be commended for this trait, if not for good taste in picking a job.

Modern salesmanship in the city seems to be based on the principle of intimidating the customer into buying either something he does not want or else something which costs more than he wants to pay. It is irritating to enter a store, ask a clerk for an article at a given price, and then be told condescendingly that there is nothing that cheap in stock. And it is especially irritating when this snobbery is performed by a petty clerk whose wealth probably does not exceed $150 a month.

Women whom I know tell me that the same thing is true of the big department stores. If they ask for a $25 dress, some bobbed-haired huzzy is likely to lift her nose and remark that there are no dresses for sale at so low a price. And all the time they and the customer know perfectly well that there are such dresses. I should think it would be an excellent idea for the stores to weed out this small-minded type of employe. Day by day they make countless enemies for the places in which they work.

Recently a friend from out of town came to visit me. Before I saw him he had been rambling about, looking over the best-known places in town. Intending to go to the Woolworth building, he got on the West Side subway. Getting on a down town train, he asked the guard at which station he should get off. The fellow scratched his head. He didn't seem to recall the location of Woolworth's skyscraper. So he went to ask another guard. He came back in a moment, assuring my friend that he would tell him when to get off.

His information proved to be slightly inaccurate, however, for my friend, when following instructions, found himself at the Clark street station in Brooklyn. And so he had to go all the way back under the East river. It would appear from this and many other like incidents that to get accurate information about the town, one should ask anyone but New Yorkers.

Sally's Shoulders

"Beau!—He's eloped with Mabel!"

Read This First:

Sally Jerome, pretty and clever, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for nine years. The family consist of Mrs. Jerome, the twins, Beau and Millie, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for Mr. Peevey downtown afternoons.

In the flat below the Jeromes lives young Ted Sloan, an automobile salesman, who wants her to marry him and keep on working. But the only man in whom she is interested is John Nye, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's in the Nye-Naylor building.

Nye hires the siren Millie as his secretary, and as soon as Millie learns that his father is the wealthy owner of the building she begins to shine up to him. He becomes blindly infatuated with her, as a sensible man often will with a frivolous little woman, and Sally is heart-sick and jealous.

Beau and Millie spend most of their earnings on themselves, and rarely give anything toward the upkeep of the house. Her only real financial help is an occasional check from her father, and every now and then she has to borrow money from her Aunt Emily Jerome, an energetic spinster.

Beau suddenly blossoms out with some flashy new clothes, lends Millie some money and buys the liquor for a party given by his girl, Mabel Wilmot. Sally is instantly suspicious, not only because Beau works in a bank, where money constantly is in tempting sight, but because he was light-fingered as a little boy.

The crisis comes on a Saturday night when Ted Sloan, angry with Sally because of her coldness towards him, tells her that Beau got $110 from him by means of two bad checks and threatens to make trouble for him. Sally borrows the money to pay him from Mr. Peevey and turns it over to Beau to take to him. Beau leaves the flat and Sally does not see him return. Se goes to his room to see if he has gone to bed, by any chance, without her knowing about it.

(Now Go on With the Story)

CHAPTER XIX

The minute Sally switched on the lights she saw that something was wrong.

For Beau's bed had not been touched. The spread was as smooth and white as a drift of virgin snow.

His pajamas were folded over the foot-rail and on the little bedside table lay a package of cigarets and an "adventure" magazine.

But his dresser-top had been cleared of everything except one thing. The brushes were gone. The whisk-broom, the jar of hair pomade, and the tin of talcum powder were all gone. Nothing was left but a large picture of Mabel Wilmot in a Dutch silver frame.

Mabel had given it to Beau the Christmas before, and Sally knew that Beau prized it beyond all other earthly possessions, just as his passion for Mabel was far and away the biggest thing in his life.

As she looked at the photograph Sally knew that wherever Beau had gone, Mabel was with him. He never would have left that picture behind him unless his lady-love, herself, were with him in the flesh! That much was certain.

But everything else was mystery. . . . Why had Beau gone away when he had the money to make good his disgraceful debt to Ted Sloan? Where had he gone? . . . And when had he packed his bags and made his plans to go?

"He must have slipped out of the house while I was bathing and changing my clothes," Sally said to herself, slowly putting the thing together like a paper pattern.

Then another thought struck her. Beau had been telephoning Mabel when she came in 20 minutes ago! They had been making their plans to get away then! It was just like Beau to run away from the scrape he had got himself into, instead of standing pat and facing the thing. Beau was weak and foolish, and there was no getting away from it.

"But he didn't have to go after I gave him the money for Ted," thought Sally opening the empty dresser drawers one after another and closing them again. "He had the money to square himself with."

But had he given the money to Ted? . . . The sudden thought that perhaps he had not, but had kept it instead, took Sally's breath away for an instant. . . . The hundred dollars she had borrowed from Mr. Peevey was a small fortune to Sally. Wasn't it going to take her a whole year to pay it back at $2 a week? And what if Beau had taken it along with him instead of paying Ted Sloan?

"Oh, he couldn't have done such a thing! He wouldn't have dared to do such a thing!" Sally told herself. But she wasn't really sure that he had not taken it, and with a rush of her small-slippered feet she was out of his room, out of the flat and down on the dimly lighted first-floor landing, knocking at the Sloans' front door.

After four or five minutes there was a faint sound within the flat, the door opened and Ted stood there in his bath robe, staring at her and much too surprised to speak.

"Has Beau seen you? Has he given you the money?—that is, has he given you a hundred dollars?" Sally's words tumbled out of her mouth in ueer, jerky little sentences.

"Os, sure, that's a game of his—handing me out a hundred dollars in the middle of the night," Ted answered, his lips twisting in a sarcastic smile. "Sure, he gave me the money—I don't think!"

Sally groaned.

"Oh, but I gave it to him, Ted!" she half whispered, leaning against the side of the door. "I gave it to him and he said he'd take it to you . . . and now he's gone! Most of his clothes are gone! And Mabel must be with him—"

She stopped suddenly. . . . Oh, but she mustn't do this! She mustn't give Beau away like this! Ted knew far too much about him and his dishonesty as it was.

"He probably tried to wake you up and couldn't," she said, recovering herself. "I had to pound on the door for fully five minutes before you heard me just now. . . . He may have left the money upstairs somewhere. I'll run up and look."

But she knew that Beau had not left it there. She knew exactly what Beau had done with the money. He had put it in his pocket and gone to meet his Mabel.

Ted Sloan knew it, too. His suspicious eyes told her that as she looked back at him on her way up the stairs.

"I won't come down again tonight," she told him in a whisper. "If your mother finds me out here she'll never get over it. . . . See you in the morning."

Ted's mother was just as afraid that he would marry Sally as Mrs. Jerome was afraid that Sally would marry Ted and leave her to shift for herself.

There was a light in the kitchen when Sally reached the living room of the flat. And through the doorway she could see Millie, standing beside the table, holding a bit of paper in her hand.

"Sally!" she cried, raising her head at the sound of Sally's soft footfalls on the dining room rug. "Come here and look at this, Beau! He's eloped with Mabel! Did you ever hear of such a thing!"

Sally read the note, looking over her shoulder. It was addressed to her.

"Dear Sal," Beau had written. "Sorry to have to borrow the hundred, but it's a Goodsend to me right now. Mabel and I are going to get married some time between now and tomorrow morning. We were going to, anyway, pretty soon, but I figured that if I beat it now it might throw a scare into Ted Sloan.

"I'm banking on you to talk him into tearing up those checks and calling it a day. Yop can do it if you want. BEAU."

Sally's smooth forehead knotted itself into a frown as she read the few badly-written lines.

"What a piece of crooked thinking Beau had done! . . . There had been no need to "throw a scare" into Ted Sloan after he had the $100 to make good his debt to him. . . . All he had to do, then, was to walk down stairs and give Ted the money and get the two checks from him. And in an instant he would have had the whole mess cleared up and been a free man!

"Then why did he run away without paying what he owed?" she asked herself in that simple, clear-thinking way of hers.

Suddenly she saw. Because he needed some extra money for his honeymoon and saw this way of getting it! . . . And he was depending on her to coax and cajole Ted Sloan into tearing up the two checks that could send him to jail.

Sally's deep blue eyes re-read the last two sentences: "I'm banking on you to talk him into tearing up those checks and calling it a day. You can do it if you want to."

For a fleeting second Sally almost hated her brother. What he meant was that she was to use all her lure to keep Ted Sloan from turning him over to the police. It was plain as plain could be that that was exactly what he meant.

"And he knows that I don't like Ted," she said to herself. "But he'd ask me to do a thing like that!" The very thought made her feel guilty and ashamed somehow.

"What are you going to do about it?" asked the slow, silken voice of Millie, in her ear.

"What would you do?" asked Sally wildly. She was all at sea, herself.

"Me? Why, I'd see Ted Sloan and vamp him into tearing up those checks that Beau's written about," answered Millie. "I don't know what checks they are, but I suppose Beau's given him a couple of bad ones! It would be just like him, wouldn't it?"

Sally turned on her in mild horror. "Millie, you don't mean what you're saying!" she cried. "You wouldn't 'vamp' a man whom you detested, would you?"

Millie laughed. "I'd do most anything in a case like this," she drawled. "Sally, you take things so seriously. Suppose you do let Ted Sloan hold your hand or pat you on the neck, or something. It's not going to hurt you—and it might do a lot of good! A girl can do most anything with a man if she gets him goofy over her."

She laughed again at the look in her sister's eyes. "Jiminly, but you're good!" she said. "Pure and cold as the Alpine snow—that's you, honey! Sometimes I can't believe you're my sister!"

Sally looked at her for a long moment, trying to understand her—trying to see how Millie looked at things—at life and love and her own desires.

Then she picked up Beau's little scrawl and walked out of the kitchen.

"You're beyond me, Millie," she spoke, turning her head to look back at Millie, who was putting out the light. "I don't get you at all. Come on, let's go to bed and forget this till tomorrow."

$1000 BOND IN LIQUOR TRIAL

Three Face Charges In Sunday Raid

Jodie Patton, Wichita Falls, was released on $1000 bond early Tuesday afternoon after charges of sale and possession for sale of intoxicating liquors had been filed in the justice court of R. V. Gwinn. The charges were entered by officers of the sheriff's department following a raid on a home in the Hillcrest addition late Monday night. Over 100 gallons of whisky and approximately 100 bottles of beer were confiscated.

H. C. King, former deputy sheriff of Oklahoma, and his son, Carl, also implicated in the raid, were each charged with possession of liquors for sale, and an added charge of sale was imposed against Carl. Bond in each case was set at $1000, and on completion of bonds late Tuesday, both were released.

HOW MUCH FOOD?

It has been wisely said that we live on one-third of what we eat, the doctor on another third, and the undertaker on the last third—which is to say in plain words that we eat three times as much as we should. I sincerely believe this to be true, and that everyone, no matter what kind of food they eat, would be immediately benefited if they would cut the quantity of food used to at least one-half, or possibly, one-third.

Because food was at one time very hard to get, many people seem to be trying to make up for it today by stuffing themselves with as much food as they can comfortably hold. Some people even seem to think that a meal has not been complete unless they actually feel uncomfortable afterwards!

It seems ridiculous that men who are successful in managing large industries, or who are successful in their professions, give almost no time at all to considering a sensible regulation of their diet. Every individual of ordinary intelligence can easily learn his food requirements if he will be honest with himself. It will take some study and experimentation, but the time spent in such investigation will amply repay you in increased health and efficiency.

Do you feel stuffy after meals? If so, you are overeating. Do you belch gas a short time after eating? If so, you are eating too much. Do you wake up tired out and with a coated tongue? If so, you are eating more than the body requires. Do you get sleepy in the afternoon? Perhaps you had better omit the noonday meal, as you may not need it at all. Maybe you are only burdening yourself with materials which, if not needed by the body, act only as poisons.

During all my experience as a dietitian, I have never found it advisable to urge a patient to eat more food as long as it is of the right quality. If you are underweight, perhaps you are burdening yourself with so much food that you cannot digest and assimilate even the amount your body really needs, and you may be suffering from real starvation because of this.

If your appetite is poor, it is a sure signal to quit eating entirely until normal hunger returns for simple food. If you need the stimulation of condiments to create an appetite, you will eat more food than your body needs at that time.

"Eat all you can" should be supplanted by "eat as little as you can."

QUESTION: Mrs. J. F. Writes: "I have noticed that around the irises of my little boy's eyes there is a pale blue coloring instead of white. Could you tell me what this is from? The baby is 3 years old."

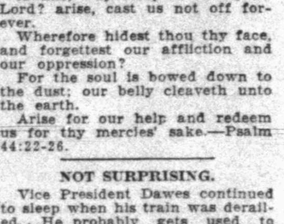

ANSWER: The blue coloring indicates a poor circulation of blood in the eyes. Give your baby some eye massage with the fingertips, pressing alternately upon each eye and thus stimulating the circulation. You can do a great deal in this way to encourage the normal growth of the eyeballs especially if such treatment is given a baby at a very young age.

QUESTION: Mrs. A. N. asks: "Are eggnogs good for a working man who is underweight, and if so, when is the best time to take them?"

ANSWER: Eggnogs, being made of raw eggs and milk, are always a bad combination. One should never take such food in an effort to gain weight as more trouble will only develop from such a stuffing process with foods in bad combinations.

QUESTION: Anxious writes: "I have a burning in my stomach nearly all the time, and my hands itch a little sometimes. I have a nursing baby and must eat for two."

ANSWER: You are, no doubt, suffering from gastritis which simply means irritation of the stomach. This comes from having too much stomach acidity which might also cause your hands to itch. If you are forced to stuff yourself to give your baby enough milk it would be better if you stopped nursing him and gave him bottle feedings of pure Holstein milk.

Yea, for thy sake we we killed all the day long; we are counted as as sheep for the slaughter.

Awake, why sleepest thou, O Lord? arise, cast us not off forever.

Wherefore hidest thou thy face, and forgettest our affliction and our oppression?

For our soul is bowed down to the dust; our belly cleaveth unto the earth.

Arise for our help and redeem us for thy mercies' sake.—Psalm 44:22-26.

NOT SURPRISING.

Vice President Dawes continued to sleep when his train was derailed. He probably gets used to sleeping through disturbances while presiding over the senate.

Spudders Purchase Hard-Hitting Catcher

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By Blondy Cross

That Safety First Exponent

It's considered a matter of course that when a baseball club is down in the race its officials should start a concerted search for material with which to plug up the leaks, but it remains for Spudder President J. A. Gardner to give a new and progressive wrinkle to the game.

Several weeks ago with the Spudders riding high and dry out front and apparently sure pennant snatchers. Gardner stepped about and dug up the heavy-hitting Pug Griffin as a new outfield addition. That was a precautionary measure taken to insure, if possible, against injury or other chance slip-ups in the outer regions.

Now, with the Spudders riding down the home stretch and still leading the league, leading it just as much when he bought Griffin from Des Moines of the Western, Gardner corrals a new catcher in Joe Cobb of the Jersey City International team. When Gardner first started negotiations for Cobb, the Spudders had reached the high water mark and seemed destined never to fall from their lofty perch of some 11 or 12 games in front of the Houston team, in second place. The fact that the Spudders after a disasterous road jaunt have fallen to a six and 1-2 game lead has nothing to do with the purchase of Cobb. The Spudder boss started his search for extra batting strength and added wizardry behind the plate while the gang was riding high on the crest. Just another insurance move. If Cobb pans out as expected, Gardner certainly has played his cards correctly. For now, it is apparent the home guard needs something in the way of bolstering.

Perhaps all will turn out jake and Gardner will discover that, after all, the Spudders could have carried on successfully without the services of Cobb. But that is not here nor there. Gardner is trying to play safe.

Well?

What is the matter with the Spudders? What can we do to pull the team over? Two questions asked everywhere baseball enthusiasts gather these days. Outside of bumping a bunch of tough breaks the past couple of weeks, the only "matter" probably is the boys are working under a strain; just trying too hard. Get them home off the road, give them a little rest and the proverbial old moral support and they'll probably whip right back up at 'em. What can you do to pull them over? Nothing except buzz out to the orchard and root for them, give them the glad hand when they roll in this afternoon and kick in behind them on the impending home stand.

Many a ball game has been won in the grandstand, if you get what I mean. When you're at home and the crowd is behind you, whether you are a boxer, golfer, baseball player or, for that matter, an orchestra leader, your best stuff is bound to come out.

Next

It won't be long now, observes Mickey McGuire, my co-worker on the telegraph desk, before the umpire will be announcing the Wichita Falls battery for t'day, "Cobb will pitch and Cobb will catch."

* * *

And then says Mickey, "Some ebony boy in the darktown grandstand will up and inquire excitedly, 'Wha, whas dis! How c'n 'at guy do both dose?'"

Apropos with addition of the new catcher, Mister Joseph Cobb to join hands with the pitcher, Mister Herbert Cobb, Mickey further comments. "Carl Williams, being a corn field farmer, should know quite a few about handling 'Cobbs.'"

Having launched on such an effusion, Mickey follows through in regulation form with that ancient one: "If either of those guys came up with a corn could you term it a case of "corn on the cob?"

Speaking of Joe Cobb, the rear receiver, I have no statistics at hand on his performance this year to date but they say the old-timer has been pelting the pitchers right at the .300 mark. That won't be hard to take down here.

MONTREAL, Aug. 9. (AP)—Betting was off today when only two horses went to the barrier in the first race at Blue Bonnets track, bookies declining to sell tickets on a race so unorthodox. Speculative thrill was conspicuously absent as L'Amour won with Baby Stone both second and last. In the King's plate Friday at Blue Bonnets only one horse entered and a walk away in the event was registered for the first time in the history of the track.

"Giant batter knocked himself out with his own batted ball. Which shows how far McGraw will go with his master mindin'."

JOE COBB HAS VICTORY HABIT

Veteran Receiver One Of Smartest in Game

Pete Lapan, scrappy Spudder backstop, has poled out many a long hit for the Wichita Falls baseball entry this season and has dealt misery to pitchers all over the circuit.

But before the week is out Texas league hurlers are scheduled to face more woe than usual at behest of the long-range hitting mask department of the league-leading Williams crew. For Tuesday the purchase of Joe Cobb, catcher and extra base slugger, was confirmed by the Jersey City baseball association and Cobb was placed on a train headed for Wichita Falls. The new receiver is expected on deck Thursday ready for the gong.

Pennant-Winning Habit

Cobb is a right-hand hitter. His specialty is long distance blows. There are two psychologically interesting angles about this guy. First, he has the pennant-winning habit. Caught for six seasons with Jack Dunn's Baltimore outfit when the Orioles were running off and leaving the rest of the league by itself. Second, he wanted to come west, anyway. According to Spudder Prez Jabez Gardner, Cobb has been itching to pull out of the east and come either to Texas or go to the west coast. Gardner on recent jaunt east and into the middle west talked matters over with the new Spudder backstop. Cobb when told the Wichita Falls club was negotiating for his sale, expressed high glee or something similar, Gardner said. Baseball is more or less on the blink in Jersey City. The club is down and out and there's talk of shifting the franchise to Montreal. Hence Cobb naturally would be tickled to break away from a loser and join a flag-winning combination such as the Spudders appear to be.

Player Limit Goes Up

The player limit goes off in the Texas league Thursday, or rather, the mark is raised to 30 players. So no room will have to be made for the new hindketch. The Spudders intend carrying three receivers the rest of the way.

The veteran Cobb, they say, is ranked as one of the smartest receivers in the game today. Besides being a hard hitter and a clever mechanical catcher, Cobb is said to keep the old noodle working behind the plate in A-1 fashion. Tricky as a fox and ever in the game heads up, it is said the veteran has turned many a victory tide when it appeared the home cause was lost, by pulling some sharp piece of strategy right at the crucial stage. Cobb is said to carry a bullet throwing wing and true peg to the bag.

Cobb Pleased

The Cobb deal came as result of a trip through the Eastern and International league by Gardner who returned home this week. Gardner had his sights leveled on Cobb as a possible addition to the Wichita Falls team but when the Jersey City interests refused his bid of $5000, although still holding out hope that in the end he would obtain the services of the veteran receiver, Gardner began pulling strings elsewhere. The Spudder leader was on the verge of swinging a deal for Shinault, Kansas City catcher formerly with the Cleveland Indians, when he raised the Cobb ante and tried the Jersey City officials again. Jersey City hearkened to the music of clinking coin, at last, and yesterday bundled Cobb up for Wichita Falls. It is said the catcher himself had a lot to do with his sale to the Spudders, urging the Jersey officials to sell him here.

Spudder Manager Carl Williams, who knew of Gardner's negotiations for Cobb while they were in the embryo, last night expressed deep satisfaction over the transaction by wire from Shreveport.

BEARS-SHIPPERS SPLIT

BEAUMONT, Aug. 9. (AP)—The Bears and Exporters divided a double header Tuesday to close the home stand, Beaumont winning the first 5 to 3 behind the splendid pitching of Elmer Hanson and San Antonio with Sep Good in the box taking the closing game, 7 to 1. Philbin was put out of the game by Umpire Barr in the night cap for arguing from the bench. After Buzz Phillips was knocked out of the box in the aftermath Haddock, recruited from the Texas Valley league, made his local debut and buried good ball. The scores:

CUBS BUY YOTER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 9. (AP)—Sale of Elmer Yoter, third baseman, to the Chicago Cubs was announced Tuesday by the Indianapolis American association baseball club. The Chicago club exchanged Fred Haney, former Detroit and Boston American third baseman, and an unannounced amount of cash for Yoter.

U. S. Polo Team Needs Practice

International Four To Get Busy

By HERBERT REED
Universal Service Polo Expert

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—America's new big four in polo will get into action on the first dry field available, probably tomorrow, for there is still a deal of work to be done in preparation for the international matches.

From the American viewpoint it was an unmixed blessing that the choice was made so early, for there remains almost a month in which to get ready for the Labor day clash, and there is need of practice against the best second team the country can turn out in order to bring the big team up to the height of its polish.

While there undoubtedly will be a steady welding together of the brilliant individuals chosen into a real team, there will be between now and September 5 some one day on which the team will show its full power. That has always been the history of these matches.

There was such a day just before the last internationals for the big cup, and the showing then prompted the best judges of the game to look for victory beyond the shade of a doubt.

No one will ever know, probably, how the committee was divided at any time in the course of the present selection. From all I can gather, however, it was a pretty cold blooded committee for several of its members had every sentimental reason for the retention of J. Watson Webb and Malcolm Stevenson, especially the extremely conscientious Webb. This committee believed that it was appointed to insure victory if possible.

Sentiment counted for nothing. Its members picked the team and did their weeping for auld lang syne afterward. The result was that I think they made the fastest, strongest, most dangerous selection since the original big four of 1909.

The lineup to oppose the first string will find Captain Wilkinson at No. 1, J. Watson Webb at No. 2, a position at which he made a great reputation, Malcolm Stevenson at No. 3 and Robert Strawbridge Jr., at back.

REED'S FOULS HELP GORMAN

Referee Disqualifies Mike For Strangling

Jack Gorman, that young San Angelo wrestling maniac, settled his score more or less with Mike Reed, the Bolsheviki Bulgarian, Tuesday night at the Ross stadium in one of those old-fashioned sort of lumberjack struggles.

Reed patted the mat under pressure of an excruciating step-over toe hold, conceding one fall to Gorman. He conceded the final fall in rather unorthodox manner, but he CONCEDED it. No, Reed won't agree that he surrendered. But in reality he quit cold by the simple process of, when he apparently found he was playing the loser's end, flagrantly fouling Gorman at every turn thus necessitating his disqualification.

Like Mr. Google.

Smart little man, is Mike. Warned for stangling once then warned again, the bouncing Bulgar finally tossed caution to the breezes and openly strangled Gorman on the ropes, refusing to break until pried loose. He was pushed through the ropes in making the final break and an irate fan charged madly in and punched him poke on the nasal organ. Whereupon Michael jumped up smiling, bowed to a seething arena and tripped gaily to the dressing room.

The brawl was one of the most gruelling and bitterly waged ever seen in Wichita Falls. Both men resorted to kicking and slugging most of the time. Reed charged Gorman with biting him at one point. Each pulled hair, sank knees into the ribs and slapped elbows to the jaw when working in close.

Gorman Rallies

Gorman rallied after being almost beaten by a body slam and scored the first fall in 23 minutes with the step-over. Reed came back with a rush and balanced accounts in six minutes with a well-tagged short-arm scissors.

Terrific Scramble

The final scramble proved nothing more than a slugging and strangling melee with Gorman scoring heavily on the punching end but almost having the life choked out of him in return. Reed's strong forte was rushing Gorman to the ropes, then gripping the strands and bending his adversary across in a manner to cut the wind. He was ever slow to break and had to be pulled away by the referee. At the 10-minute mark, both men went into the ropes with Reed on top. At the order to break, Reed clamped on a tighter hold, the lower rope catching Gorman in the neck and just about putting lights out for the San Angelo battler. It took at least half a minute to work Reed out of the hold. Several short jolts to the chin and a twist of the toe by the third man in the ring finally jarred the Bulga loose with Gorman almost asleep to the world. That was all.

Sandow Beats Yaqui.

Bobby Sandow, the Seattle junior welter, took an uphill fight to the flashy Yaqui Joe, Sonora Indian, and after losing the first fall rallied to victory.

The match was a stiff one, pretty clean all the way, but a mighty tough encounter. Joe, after being outmaneuvered most of the way, slipped into a flying body scissors and beat Sandow for the first fall in 40 minutes. Sandow evened the match in 20 minutes with a wrist lock and smother. The Coast grappler scored the decider in 26 minutes with a flying headlock after he was on the verge of going out cold for the rugged pace set.

Jess Lowrence, Wichita Falls amateur wrestler, refereed the Yaqui-Sandow match. The sports editor to The Record News served as third man in the ring during the Gorman-Reed fiesta.

The feature play of the night was a read-long dive Reed made into the lap of a ringsider when the Bulgar rushed Gorman who side-stepped and let him sail on through the ropes.

Far Behind But Battling

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig are running away with the home run honors in the American league and have outdistanced the leaders in the National league, but old Cy Williams of the Phils, Rogers Hornsby of the Giants and Hack Wilson of the Cubs, are fighting it out for the honors in the latter circuit. Williams is leading the field. Large photo shows Rogers Hornsby, at left, and Cy Williams. Inset is of Hack Wilson.

Official Permit Issued for Big Bout Between Dempsey and Tunney Sept. 22

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Thursday night, September 22, 1927. That is the official date, weather permitting, of course, on which Jack Dempsey, the "old" champion, will attempt to knock Gene Tunney, the soldier title-holder, loose from his under-pins and thereby regain the heavyweight boxing championship of the universe.

The official ticket scale of the big brawl is $40, $30, $25, $20, $15, $10 and $5, all prices including state and federal tax.

The Illinois state athletic commission issued Promoter George Getz a permit to stage the fight at Soldier Memorial field, Chicago, on that date at its regular weekly meeting held today. Immediately afterwards, "the big dealer's" application for the approval of his ticket price scale was also acted upon favorably.

Chairman John C. Righeimer and Commissioner Paul Prehn voted in favor of both applications. Oswald W. Huncke, the third member of the board attended the meeting, but whether he voted for or against the applications was not disclosed.

Getz did not attend the meeting. His formal written applications for both the date and the price scale had been received on Monday, however, and they constituted the first business of the board.

No one appeared to protest against the applications and they were immediately put to a vote on motion of Chairman Righeimer. A second by Commissioner Prehn in each instance was all that was necessary to remove the last possible obstacle from an official source, at least, to the big fight.

Dempsey and Tunney will not be required to sign a new set of articles with Getz until after they have established training camps, it is understood. This procedure, however, will be necessary in order that the Illinois code may be conformed with.

Getz Keeps Busy

Getz spent a busy evening tonight milling around the loop with various real estate representatives looking over prospective sites for a box office. He succeeded in locating two that were suitable but will not close for either until Thursday. The central box office will be opened, according to the present plans, by Saturday.

Getz left late tonight for Holland, Mich., to spend a quite day at his farm with his collection of wild animals. Wild animals, it appears, are welcome company to the "big dealer" after a day or two in Chicago with the ticket wolves. He will return Thursday morning.

$7000 Damage In Clarendon Blaze

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, Texas, Aug. 9—Fire of unknown origin did $7000 worth of damage in Clarendon Saturday night. The fire started in the horse barn belonging to Will Lott and from there spread to the planing mill across the street. Several horses and mules were taken from the barn but nothing was recovered from the planing mill. Insurance was carried on both buildings to the amount of $7300. Much valuable machinery was destroyed in the mill.

Three Negroes Jailed, 50 Bottles Beer Held

Three negroes were arrested and about 50 bottles of beer were confiscated by officers of the sheriff's department in a raid on a Dallas street house late Tuesday afternoon.

Two of the negroes, juveniles, were turned over to J. T. Cabe, juvenile officer, who released one of the pair after investigation. The other two are being held in the county jail. Charges are to be filed Wednesday, officers said.

Stolen Copper Wire Found in Hen House

While scooping up the hay in an effort to make her chicken's nests more comfortable, a Witchta Falls woman Tuesday afternoon found her prize chickens had been enthroned for weeks on nests built on a large quantity of copper wire.

At least two large sacks of the metal were unearthed from the nests, supposedly the picked hiding place of petty thieves. Police were called to investigate.

Texas and New Mexico To Co-operate On Road

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Aug. 9.—The ribbon-like length of interstate connecting highways of West Texas and Eastern New Mexico may be improved through co-ordinate efforts of the highway commissions of both states. Correspondence instigated by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to highway officials of the Lone Star state and New Mexico find both groups entirely agreeable to forming some definite move toward co-operative work.

But Athletics Trim Yank Outfit, 8 to 1

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9. (AP)—Lou Gehrig's 38th circuit drive of the season in the ninth inning today averted the Yankee's first shutout of the year but did not materially affect an 8 to 1 triumph for the Athletics. Gehrig's rap advanced his lead on Ruth by three. Dutch Ruether started for the New Yorkers but gave way to Pipgras after six innings. All the Mackmen hit safely, Cobb and French getting three apiece, a double and two singles for each. Rube Walberg checked the Yanks with six hits.

"Scrap of Paper" Worries Rickard

Delaney's "Champ Resignation" Not Filed

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (AP)—A slip of paper, tucked carelessly in Jack Delaney's pocket as he broke camp for his 15-round battle with Paulino Uzcudun, took Tex Rickard's mind completely away from the heavyweight scrap in Chicago for at least a few minutes today.

The paper—Delaney's formal resignation of the light heavyweight championship—must be posted with the New York athletic commission Thursday morning or Jack will not be allowed to enter the ring with the Spanish heavyweight at the Yankee stadium that night, the commission ruled today.

Although Pete Reilly two weeks ago received permission to withdraw his charge from the light heavyweight ranks, the board requested that the resignation be put in writing. Some time ago, they said, Johnny Dundee's featherweight title was renounced by his manager only to be reclaimed by the fighter on the ground that he knew nothing at all about the supposed abdication. Johnny's plea was overruled but not forgotten.

CUBS SPLIT PAIR

CHICAGO, Aug. 9. (AP)—Brooklyn sliced Chicago's lead in the National league to three games today by forcing the Cubs to split a double header while the Pirates were defeating the Giants. The Bruins shut out the Robins in the opener by 2 to 0 but lost the aftermath 5 to 4. An overflow crowd, estimated by President Veeck of Chicago to have been close to 40,000, was on hand and made necessary the enforcement of ground rules. The score:

Von Elm Second To Bob Jones

Sweetser and Ouimet Next In Golf Ranking

By ROBERT A. HEREFORD
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Robert T. Jones Jr., that astounding young golf genius from Atlanta today entered an interesting answer to the sage question once propounded by William Shakespeare, "What's in a name," when his own appeared at the head of the 1927 national amateur ranking released today, despite the fact that George Von Elm won the national tournament at Baltusrol last year.

Von Elm Second.

Von Elm is given second position and Jess W. Sweetser, who won the British amateur crown last summer was placed third. Francis Ouimet, former amateur champion, appears fourth on the ranking list while Watts Gun, also of Atlanta, who recently captured the intercollegiate golf crown is number five.

Although it is somewhat unusual for the winner of the national amateur tournament to be given anything but first position in the rankings, there will be no dispute over the United States Golf association's choice. Although Jones was beaten fairly and squarely by Von Elm in the Baltusrol final, the man who in the last two years has twice won the British open tournament and the American open event once, could scarcely have been placed elsewhere than at the top of the golfing list.

How They Rank.

The first 10 men ranked by the national golf committee numerically follow:

1. Robert T. Jones.
2. George Von Elm.
3. Jess W. Sweetser.
4. Francis Ouimet.
5. Watts Gunn.
6. Ben Stein.
7. Eddie Held.
8. Jesse Guilford.
9. Harrison P. Johnston.
10. Roland MacKenzie.

Some New Names.

Some new names appear among the golfing elite this year. Notable among these is Eddie Held, of St. Louis, former Washington university star, who received seventh ranking.

George Von Elm of Los Angeles, that bold young links Lochinvar, who rode out of the west to woo the fickle amateur golf title away from Bobby Jones at Baltusrol last year, must defend his prize against nine former champions when the Minneapolis event begins on August 22.

This became known today when the United States Golf association also published the official pairings for the amateur classic which will this year be held at the Minikahda Golf club.

The nine men, who once wore the changeable amateur crown and who feel that it never has fit another quite as well as themselves and who are one and all determined to regain the title, are Bobby Jones, needing no introduction; Jesse Guilford, the hard driving Boston golfer; Bob Gardner, the mid-western star; Francis Ouimet, Finley S. Douglas, Chick Evans, William C. Fownes, Max Marston and S. Davidson Herron.

Two Medal Rounds.

Two medal rounds of 18 holes each on August 22 and we will determine the qualifiers for the championship rounds that will follow on the last four days of the same week.

Von Elm, the defending champion, will lose no time in the defense of his title, being scheduled to hustle away from the first tee Monday morning at 9:30. He will be paired with Frederick A. Steele Jr., of Baltusrol, the New Jersey club on whose links Von Elm made his bid for golfing fame last year.

Jones Right There.

Bobby Jones, fortified by his recent record-breaking European performance when he brilliantly defended his British open crown, will be right on Von Elm's heels, leaving 35 minutes later. Jones is paired with Jimmy Manion, the steady St. Louis star.

Jesse Guilford, another favorite, will start at 10 o'clock, accompanied by F. E. Wattles of Wanakah.

Spudders Split Double Header

PAYNE DISPLAYS GREAT FORM TO STOW LONG GAME, 8 TO 2

SHREVEPORT, Aug. 9.—The Spudders brought their season to a close in Shreveport Tuesday by dividing a double header with the locals. They won the first game 8 to 2, but lost the second 3 to 2. Karpp, who was batted from the mound in the first game, came back in the seventh inning of the second game to check a rally by the visitors and save the contest for Shreveport. Third Baseman Swenson hit three singles and a double in the second game for a perfect day at bat.

The Spudders sewed up the first game in the second inning when they scored four runs. Jenkins opened the inning with a smoking home run drive over the left field fence. Swenson followed with a single to center. Williams doubled to right and Swenson scored all the way from first base. Tobin popped out to short and Payne grounded out to the pitcher. Williams going to third base. Turgeon then whipped a line single to left, scoring Williams. Turgeon stole second a moment later and scored before a single to right by Benton. Wilkins went to the mound for Shreveport and Griffin forced Benton at second.

Payne in Form.

Payne, Spudder righthander, was working in grand form. He held the Sports scoreless until the ninth. The Spudders scored two more runs in the sixth. Lamb led off with a two-bagger to left field. Jenkins hit to Distel at short who muffed, Lamb scoring on the play. Swenson laid down a sacrifice bunt and the catcher threw him out, Jenkins advancing to second and scoring on a single to left by Williams. Williams tried to go to second on the throw-in, but was tagged out. Tobin retired the side with a fly to left.

Wichita Falls scored its seventh and eighth runs in the eighth inning. Lamb beat out an infield hit and went to third when Jenkins followed with a single to right. Swenson bounded to Distel at shortstop and Lamb was run down between third base and home plate. Jenkins went to third and Swenson to second on the play. Williams hit to Maderas at third and was safe on the third baseman's miscue. Jenkins scored and Swenson drew up at third base. Harris staged a brilliant running catch of Tobin's lutsy fly to center. Swenson scored after the catch. Payne struck out.

Gill started the Shreveport ninth with a base on balls. Moore grounded to Turgeon at second. Kilduff doubled to left and Gill scored. Distel singled, sending Kilduff to third. Maderas forced Distel at second, Gill scoring. Hayworth flied out to Griffin in center.

Herb Still Jinxed

Shreveport scored all its runs off Cobb, the Spudder hard-luck pitcher, in the second inning of the nightcap. Kilduff opened with a double to center. He went to third on a wild pitch. Distel struck out, but Woehrs singled to center, scoring Kilduff. Elliott hit to Turgeon and all hands were safe when Mann dropped the throw to second. Thompson bunted and went out, Cobb to Williams at first base. Harris followed with a two-bagger to left, scoring Woehrs and Kilduff. Taylor popped out to Swenson.

The Spudders rallied in the seventh but fell a run short. They scored two runs after two were out. With two gone, Jenkins drew a base on balls. Swenson doubled to right and Jenkins went to third. Williams doubled to left, scoring Jenkins and Swenson. Karpp was sent to the rescue by Manager Phelan of the Sports. Benton batted for Lapan and walked. Fitzgerald batted for Estell and popped out to first base.

WACO 7, HOUSTON 5

HOUSTON, Aug. 9. (AP)—Art Shires, the talkative first sacker of Dell Pratt's boys who is ridden with more gusto by Buff fans than any other player, Tuesday got back at local enthusiasts by slapping out a triple with the bases loaded, Waco finally winning, 7 to 5.

With the bases loaded in the fifth "Stump" Edington batted for Blackberry. The first pitch Carleton sent up was a floater which hit Edington and Umpire Kane waved him to first and Windle home. Manager Joe Mathes and the other Buffs protested that Edington made no effort to avoid being hit, but to no avail. Shires, the next batter, put the game on ice. The score:

Historic Kyle Field No More

Texas Aggies to Build New Ball Park

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Aug. 9. (AP)—The old historic Kyle baseball field of A. and M. college is no more.

The grandstand has been moved more than 100 yards south and a new diamond will be laid out in the near future, which will be the scene of A. and M. baseball classics.

On the old diamond many of the game's greatest players have performed, and A. and M. baseball stars, many of whom have flashed in the big time, reached their greatest heights there.

Saw Famous Players

Old-time fans recall that on this field the late "Bugs" Raymond, the former New York Giant's star, one of the greatest and most eccentric pitchers of all time, threw his smoke ball. The late Christy Mathewson, whom John McGraw recently said was the greatest pitcher of all time, threw his famous "fade-away" on this diamond. Jack Coombs, an ace of the Philadelphia Athletics staff 15 years ago, made his fast ball whistle there. Bryan Harriss, the lath-like flinger of the Boston Red Sox, exhibited his side-arm delivery, and Rogers Hornsby, who led the Cardinals to their only pennant in this century, played on the old turf.

Fine Games Seen

Local fans admit that two of the best pitched games seen on that field were played this year between the Longhorns and the Aggies when Neal Baker, now with the Philadelphia Athletics, defeated the Aggies, 2 to 1, while H. A. Hillin, now with Palestine, blanked the Longhorns the next day, 3 to 0.

It was on this field that Bib Falk, the former Longhorn pitcher and outfielder, did his greatest playing as a collegian. The Chicago White Sox outfielder, when a member of the Longhorns, used to go to bat, doff his cap, and announce to the Aggie students that he would slam out a triple. The Aggies would commence to ride him, but a few moments later he would pull up at third and again he would tip his cap.

Many Saw Start

It was on this diamond that Pat Olson and Barnyard Henderson of A. and M., Teddy Lyons of Baylor, and Eddie Dyer of Rice showed promise of being big league material. Olson afterward had a trial with the Yankees, while Henderson is now pitching for Joe Dunna at Baltimore in the International league. Lyons, the White Sox pitcher, is now rated one of the best boxmen in the big time, while Eddie Dyer, who is the property of the St. Louis Cardinals, is hurling great ball for Syracuse.

By getting three home runs a week Babe Ruth can beat his 1921 world record—and put a lot of American league pitchers out of jobs.

SORDS POINTS

... ...

Chicago Has Been Bad Ground for Champions

Boxing has been legal in the state of Illinois a comparatively short time.

Since the state made the gunmen real awngray by giving the fight promoters legal right to "get away with murder," Chicago has had two honest-to-goodness championship battles. And in both instances the title changed hands.

Which may or may not give Gene Tunney, heavyweight king, some food for thought.

Rocky Kansas, lightweight champion, was the first king to risk his crown there after the lid was raised. They met a year ago—July 3, 1926. The affair went 10 rounds. Neither one of them tossed a haymaker during the fight. Mandell received the decision at the end of 10 rounds—and the title.

Tiger Flowers was the middleweight champion—and the first of his race to hold that title—when Chicago promoters brought him into town to meet Mickey Walker, Dec. 3, last year, in defense of the title.

The bout was suggested and engineered by Jack Kearns, managing Walker and former pilot to Jack Dempsey. The shrewd Mr. Kearns is said to have promised Flowers a return battle with Walker within 90 days should the former lose the title.

Walker won the bout—and crown—on points. There was considerable squawking. Flowers is still waiting for the return battle.

Now comes another champion of a major division to risk his crown in the Windy (from bandit bullets) City.

It's to be a 10-round affair—liable to go to the finish and be decided on points. Tunney's last battle with the former champ went the limit.

If Tunney is given to pondering such matters it may be that the reverses handed champions who preceded him there will worry him a bit.

THE SUN NEVER SETS ON CHESTERFIELD'S POPULARITY

[Popular in all 4 corners of the Earth...]

in Paris . . .

where good taste is born

FROM the brilliant lobby of the Crillon to the obscure little bureaux de tabac in the Quartier Latin, you'll see the familiar Chesterfield package in every corner of Paris.

The marked favoritism shown Chesterfield by this most cosmopolitan city of the Continent is added proof that the appeal of natural tobacco taste and fragrance is universal. And that alone explains Chesterfield's world-wide popularity.

GAS FROM PANHANDLE TO FUEL STOVES OF THOUSAND CITIES

AMARILLO TO BE FUEL HUB

Lines Radiate in All Directions

AMARILLO, Aug. 9.—Natural gas is the chief topic of discussion among Panhandle oil folks today, and in it is possible that the search for oil may be changed to a search for gas, if all of the outlets that are now being talked of materialize.

Denver, Pueblo, Colorado Springs, El Paso, Wichita, Hutchinson, El Reno, Fort Worth, Dallas and scores of towns and cities in several states are either now getting or expecting to get Panhandle-Amarillo field gas in the not far distant future.

Two lines have already been constructed and are in operation—the Upham Gas company and Lone Star Gas company, working out of the Shamrock field of Wheeler county, and another is now nearing completion—the West Texas Gas company to the South Plains country.

A fourth line is just getting under way good—the Empire Gas and Fuel company 20-inch line from Pampa to Wichita, Kan., where it will tie into its Kansas City line.

Fifth Line.

A fifth line has been organized, the Knorpp Gas company, with John L. Knorpp, George F. Coomber and associates as its leaders. It plans a 24-inch pipe line from a point near the "Four Corners" of Hutchinson-Moore-Potter - Carson counties to Kansas City. Contract for the construction work has been let, and the surveying and right of way contract is to be let right away. This line, it is said, will cost $42,000,000, and will furnish gas to many towns and cities where industrial gas franchises have been secured, or are being solicited.

Interest in the gas lines, building and proposed, is more centered in the Knorpp plan than all of the others because Panhandle producers see in it a declaration of war against the Henry L. Doherty subsidiaries, who have controlled the natural gas business of Kansas and Missouri for years.

Knorpp has gotten an industrial gas franchise on his offer of gas at an industrial scale of 17 to 33 cents per thousand cubic feet, and his offer of furnishing a surplus volume to the Kansas City Gas company, the marketing organization of the Doherty interests at Kansas City, for 40 cents a thousand cubic foot. Its rates are way under those of the Doherty subsidiary.

Fight on Doherty.

The granting of Knorpp's franchise was followed by the launching of a movement to have the Missouri authorities oust the Doherty concern on the grounds that it has violated the anti-trust laws of that state. The charges are based on the fact that the Kansas City Gas company, a distributing unit, gets its gas supply from a pipe line unit, which in turn receives its gas from the producing unit. Each Doherty unit, is alleged to take a profit in the grand total rate charged.

The Knorpp concern will take gas from properties owned by Mayor Lee Bivens, Terry Thompson, Joseph T. Sneed Jr., J. M. Sanford and J. O. Whittington and others. Gas leases of the Pure Oil company, Moore County Oil and Gas company, Southwest Oil and Development company and other firms are also to be tapped.

The Knorpp concern will pay the producers two cents a thousand cubic foot at the well, and it is understood that the organizers figure that it will repay its builders in full in six years time.

Art Wagoner, oil man, cattleman and resident of Amarillo, is associated with Knorpp and Coomber, and has had a hand in assembling much of the acreage for the new concern.

The starting of the Knorpp line has caused the city of Woodward, in northwestern Oklahoma to postpone the awarding of a gas franchise there to a Bartlesville concern.

Gas to Denver.

Next most interesting gas development is the Panhandle-Amarillo-Denver gas line. It will be carried on under the name of the Colorado Interstate Gas company, made up of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, the Prairie Oil and Gas company, the Mission Oil company and the Henry L. Doherty and company.

Christy Payne, director of the Standard in charge of its natural gas properties, is president, and W. S. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the board of the Prairie, is also chairman of the board of the Colorado Interstate. A. R. Jones, chairman of the Mission Oil company, is vice president; J. B. Luce is treasurer and E. E. DuVall, is secretary.

The Colorado Interstate Gas company will begin business with 334,000 acres of proven gas territory in six counties, and 24 wells shut in with an open flow of 525,-000,000 cubic feet, and an equal amount of gas cased of and which can be secured. It controls a gas territory 12 miles in width by 35 miles in length, and is the only single area of one ownership. In this way the gas found can be held in reserve for a long period of time.

A 22-inch screwed and welded gas line is proposed from a point near the Four Corners to Pueblo Junction, a distance of 160 miles. From Pueblo Junction to Denver, a distance of 70 miles, the line will be 20 inches in diameter. A 15-mile branch of 12-inch will serve Colorado Springs and Concrete and Portland, towns near Pueblo, will be served with a 10-inch line, 29 miles in length.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (AP)—The market for cotton seed oil was again active, but prices responded little to the early strength in cotton and aside from a moderate early advance ruled lower.

The close was steady at 10 to 23 points net lower with sales for the day 51,700 barrels. Prime crude 8.50; prime summer yellow spot 9.80; September closed 10.00; October 10.23; December 10.28; January 10.33; March 10.52.

WOOL MARKET.

BOSTON, Aug. 9. (AP)—Wool trading is very slow, but a good inquiry from mills is being received on the fine end of the grades. A sizeable lot of Ohio fine Delaine has sold at a fraction above 45 cents in the grease. The present lull in buying is thought to be the result of mills having largely covered duplicate orders on heavyweight goods.

POULTRY PRICES.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9. (AP)—Poultry alive, firmer; receipts five cars; fowls 17@24c; springs 22@28c; broilers 22@24c; turkeys 20c; roosters 14½c; ducks 19@21c; geese 13@19c.

NEWS of the FIELD

MOORE COUNTY POOL

The Skelly Oil company had a small show of oil at 3140 feet in its No. 1 Armstrong, in the Freeman Brazemore survey, in the extreme central-eastern area of Moore county. Drilling was immediately suspended to run the 6 5-8 inch casing.

The Skelly show is said by geologists to be 100 feet higher stratigraphically than the Cadman & Martin No. 1 Sneed, in section 68, block 3, of G. & M. survey, and due west.

To the southwest some miles the Moore County Oil and Gas company No. 1 Sneed, in the northwest corner of section 30, block 6T, of T. & N. O. survey, is measuring up to 3351 feet with some water in the hole. It may be saved as a gas well.

NEAR CHANNING

Deep Rock Oil company No. 1 Lyman & Balfour ranch, in section 9, block 2, of G. & N. survey, near Channing, in Hartley county, is still shut down at 3670 feet to run 6 5-8 inch pipe. The casing has arrived at Channing and is being hauled out to the well. The boiler has been moved back from the well.

GRAY COUNTY AREA

In the McLean area of southeastern Gray county, the Rensaul Petroleum company No. 1 Russelby, in section 55, block 25, of H. & G. N. survey, continues to attract attention. It was shot late last week with 140 quarts from 2890 to 2960 feet and bridged and when this bridge was penetrated it made a reported flow of 90 barrels in 90 minutes and then again bridged.

Monday's report had the well shot with 30 quarts from 2790 to 2820 feet, after which a 25-foot anchor was run in the hole, and it was then shot with 40 quarts from 2825 to 2860 feet, making two headed flows—one for 60 barrels and another of 40 barrels, before bridging again.

MODEL DOME READY

The Model Dome Syndicate is ready to resume drilling at No. 1 Permit, in 11-30-60, some 39 miles northeastof Trinidad, in Los Animas county, southern Colorado. This test has been shut down for weeks at a point below 1500 feet. The 8 and 10 inch casings are to be run.

Parker Club, Inc., at No. 1 Adams, in 32-34-56, near Branson, has run the 12 1-2 inch casing to 1425 feet. Shallow gas found there is still pouring from the well.

The Magnolia Oil company has an estimated 40-barrel producer in its wildcat, No. 1 Ryan, in 23-6s-6w, Jefferson county, Oklahoma. It is seven miles from other production. The sand was topped at 4196 feet and drilled in only one foot.

Roxanan Petroleum corporation drilled in the third producer in the Oxford, Kan., townsite pool Saturday night. It is the No. 1 Nevitt, an east offset to the discovery well.

Pure Oil company No. 1 Kendrick, section 41, block B-5, Winkler county, Texas, has a 15 million gasser from 2835 feet. The well made 735 barrels the first three hours from 2827 to 2880 feet.

Cromwell Oil and Gas company No. 1 Thompson, in 15-12-3w, near Oklahoma City, is down 4055 feet. It is 300 feet above the pay found in the No. 1 Edwards, a half mile northeast of this test. It is believed the structure in the Thompson is running higher than that in the Edwards. No. 1 Edwards is a small producer.

The drilling in the No. 1 Thompson is being done with a rotary.

The Cromwell Oil and Gas company and Woods-Franklin are down 4535 feet in 22-14-3. The wel is shut down temporarily.

Winkler-McQueen have made a location No. 1 Gray, SW NW of 29-1s-6w, six miles southeast of Duncan in Stephens county. It is a wildcat.

The Watchorn Oil and Gas company has abandoned its No. 1 Petit, SW SE of 11-4-8w, in the Chickasha gas pool, at 3353 feet. This was an old well deepened from 1435 feet where it had made around 2,500,000 cubic feet of gas.

M. P. Evans No. 1 Smith, NE SW of 7-15-10 toped the Wilcox at 3400 feet, drilled in eight feet and got a hole full of water. The well is near Slick in Creek county.

Harris and Haun are preparing to drill on their No. 5 Frost, SE corner SE NW of 22-29-1w, Kay county, north of Braman. They are after gas. This test offsets the Comar Oil company's well on the Buell farm, completed last fall for 11,500 barrels in the Wilcox.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (AP)—Cotton prices advanced about $7 a bale on the New York cotton exchange today before the flood of buying orders released yesterday by the unexpectedly small government crop estimate was filled, but subsequent profit taking cut the day's net gains to about $2.50 a bale. All contracts sold above 20 cents a pound at new high levels for the season. The December option dropped from a high of 20.66 cents to 19.85 cents, closing at 19.90.

The market opened firm at an advance of 73 to 92 points on a renewal of the excited buying movement which characterized yesterday's session. Firmness in Liverpool and a sensational advance of 348 to 461 points in the futures market for Egyptian cotton at Alexandria, stimulated the demand here and the active months showed net gains of about 102 to 105 points before the initial buying orders had been executed. Reactions of 25 or 30 points followed under realizing but the declines brought in fresh buying orders.

There was a renewal of active general buying during the early afternoon on the prospects for further showers over the greater part of the belt and reports of too much rain in Oklahoma and Arkansas, reviving fears of overflows. The market was very active and excited with prices reaching the highest levels of the day and season during the afternoon.

October sold up to 20.42, January to 20.75 and March to 20.90, with active months generally showing net advances of about 134 to 144 points, and an advance of nearly 3½ cents per pound from the low level of yesterday morning. "Stop" orders were uncovered on the way up and after their execution the market weakened under realizing.

New Orleans was an active seller here. In the last half hour offerings increased while support seemed to be lacking after the heavy buying earlier in the day and prices broke almost as rapidly as they had advanced. October sold off to 19.60 and active months generally showed reactions of 81 to 87 points from the highs, closing within 3 or 4 points of the lowest on most positions.

Cable advices from Cairo said that frantic buying took place in the Egyptian market on receipt of the small crop estimate from the United States.

Exports today 1177 making 75,033 so far this season. Port receipts 15,337. U. S. port stocks 906,214.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 9. (AP)—The cotton market experienced one of the most active days in years today with wide and frequent price fluctuations. Following an opening gain of approximately $5 a bale on the execution of buying orders which were held over from yesterday, the market eased off 59 to 58 points on profit taking. In the early afternoon, however, all months made new highs on reports of general rains over the belt. December traded to 20.56, 80 points above the lows. There was a sharp reaction in the late trading and December dropped to 19.81, 76 points down and closed at 19.85. The general market closed steady at net advances of 63 to 80 points. Liverpool cables were much better than due and first trades here showed gains of 100 to 125 points. October soon traded up to 20.12 and December to 20.20, 110 to 126 points net up.

The early bulge was followed by a reaction which carried October to 19.54. Profit taking and realizing by early buyers caused the decline. After mid-session, however, and renewal of buying based on the showery weather map carried all months into new high ground, October reaching 20.40, 140 points above the previous close.

Heavy profit taking in the late trading brought on a sharp reaction and the market dropped 71 to 72 points from the highs closing barely steady.

Exports for the day totaled 1177 bales.

Strong Rally Ocurrs In Stocks 'As Shorts Stage Busy Drive To Cover To Avert Bull Rush

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—A substantial rally occurred in the stock market today on short covering and fresh accumulation. The presidential election is forgotten and is rather remote. Big operators believe it can be ignored for the moment as a stock market factor. Too much stress has been laid on the Coolidge announcement. The people have tasted the fruits of conservative business management of the country and the next president will be of the Coolidge type whatever his party, is the Wall street view.

The bear party has always entertained a theory that after such a rise of prices there should be an old-fashioned swing downward. This, however, is strictly a chart theory and chartists have been wrong for months.

Money loaned at 3 3-4 per cent sterling sold at the best price of the year. Wheat was easier but cotton at one time crossed the 20-cent mark for an additional advance of $5 a bale. Cotton is up $15 a bale since Saturday. Last Saturday morning it was pointed out here that the condition of the crop was poor and that the boll weevil was working night and day destroying the white commodity. All of this was borne out by the government crop report at noon on Monday.

Yellow Truck was the star performer and moved ahead easily. The stock sold at a new high on buying for General Motors and the Managers' account. Outsiders also boarded the band wagon. General Motors officials felt confident that the stock represents the coming leading truck concern in the world within a few years. They believe the stock should sell close to 100 in a few years.

Mullins Body stock rose $8 on further buying reported for the account of banking interests who have advised purchase of the stock to friends. Buying is based on the big earnings, estimated at $8 a share on the common. American Linseed moved into new high ground as the shorts smoothed the way by covering. Buying is for the account of the same interests that have been responsible for the linseed market for the last seven years.

General Motors was picked up by banking and Dupont interests in the belief that it will sell considerably higher by September 15 on the foreign business. Gabriel Snubbers was active at higher prices. The people responsible for its last big rise were again reported to have entered the market. Earnings are running at a higher rate than last year and with the big Ford order in prospect dividends will either be increased or a substantial extra distribution declared.

Reynolds Tobacco sold at the highest price on the move and the best price when the 25 per cent stock dividend is taken into account. People friendly to the stock predict that it is in for one of its old-fashioned moves. Baldwin Lovie recovered on short covering. People short of the stock must pay a premium of 1-64, which accounts for the easy manner in which stock rises. A resumption of buying occurred in Texas Gulf Sulphur. This stock should soon come into the limelight.

Somebody is picking up California Packing quietly. Advices from the coast today were that the best kind of accumulation is taking place after months of dullness. Reports from California also indicated that the company had come to an agreement with peach growers; that as a result the real people behind the company believe it is time to buy the stock in anticipation of better business ahead.

Postum Cereal rose $4. Buying of this stock is by the same interests that have been prominent in the shares for years. The company now has the Baker Chocolate, the largest concern of its kind in the world. It does 80 per cent of the confectioners' chocolate trade.

Bethlehem shared honors with Yellow Truck. Bethlehem is likely to put its stock on a $5 dividend basis in January. The company is in a position to handle large orders from the government because of its shipbuilding plant and its strategic locations for steel shipments. U. S. Steel, however, shared in the advance.

Atchison recovered and a demand prevailed for Gulf Mobile.

West Texas Gas To Extend Lines

Tentative Gas Franchises Are Obtained

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, Aug. 9.—The East Texas Gas company, a subsidiary of the Prairie Oil and Gas company and now constructing a natural gas line from the Panhandle field to the South Plains, plans to extend this line into the West Texas district.

Tentative franchises have been taken at Lamesa, Stanton and Midland, and franchises may be taken at O'Donnell and other towns.

The extension from the South Plains line, now in process of completion, would lengthen the present West Texas line from 274 miles to 385 miles, with the field for laterals into other towns open for the future.

The extension to Midland would be 10 3-4 inches in diameter, and be a welded line. Construction will not start until late in the year, or early next year.

The Midland extension will increase the grand cost of the West Texas line from $5,000,000 to around $10,000,000.

A large compressor station is to be built near Plainview, in Hale county, and it will push the gas on south.

Motion pictures of the important phases of construction on the line have been taken by Pathe News at the direction of M. K. Moody, president of the Prairie company, and these are being shown to civic bodies along the route. W. W. Graves, engineer of the company, is explaining the picture to the different clubs where it is shown. The films depict the drilling of a gas well and the various steps in the building of the gas line so consumers can utilize the cheap fuel found in the world's largest gas field.

The West Texas Gas company will move more than 80,000,000 feet of gas a day through the line when it is completed. The gas has a rock pressure of 435 pounds per inch.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9. (AP)—Warmer temperatures together with indications that Canadian frost damage may prove less severe than was supposed had a bearish efect today on wheat. Black rust advices from North Dakota and Minneapolis, however, were again a source of anxiety. Closing quotations for wheat were unsettled, ⅜ to ⅝c net lower, corn unchanged to ⅜c off, oats ⅜ to ⅝c up, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 27c.

In the corn trade, and in wheat as well, some disposition was shown to mark time pending the government crop report due tomorrow. December corn, however, touched a new high price record for the season. Field reports as to corn remained unfavorable. Oats proved responsive to news of adverse threshing returns northwest.

COTTON GOODS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (AP)—Cotton goods in the gray advanced about ⅛c a yard with light trading, print cloths selling on a basis of 8c to 8⅛c for 28½ inch 64x60's. Other goods are being advanced. Yarns have been advanced from 1 to 1½c a pound. Raw silk was unchanged in Yokohama and is being sold here at slight concessions.

Cocoons raised in Lombardy this season had a total weight of 110,-000,000 pounds.

Big Flow Reported in New Hutchinson Field Well Tapping Pay at 2994 Feet

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, Aug. 9.—Another big well has been found in the Sanford-Paramount pool of southwestern Hutchinson county.

The Gordon & Barnes No. 1 Sanford, in the center of the west line of section 83, block 46, of H. & T. C. survey, tapped the oil pay Sunday at 2994 feet, and penetrated two feet, it filled up 2300 feet with oil in 40 minutes.

The well then began to head up and it made 18 small flows. Most of the oil was lost, but connections were finally made to the small amount of storage tanks on the lease, and pending the construction of other tanks, the well was shut in.

Estimates on what it would do when opened up vary from 2000 to 3000 barrels. Considerable gas is coming in with the oil, it is reported.

The Gordon & Barnes well is the one that Ned O. Miller, petroleum engineer, tried out successfully his device for the conservation of gas, while drilling through gas. He effectively shut off more than 100,-000,000 feet of gas with the 8 1-4 inch pipe. Miller's device was installed under his own direction, assisted by J. E. Latimer of the Latimer Drilling company.

The new well is west of the Paramount Oil corporation's discovery well and also of the McMillen Oil corporation's new producer, both in section 82.

Synthetic Gasoline at Lower Price Produced by German Dye Trust

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Gasoline—10 cents a gallon.

It's synthetic—but it'll make automobiles run.

Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey announced today that he had closed a deal with the German dye trust for the production of synthetic motor fuel.

If further practical tests verify the experiments so far completed, it means the elimination of the fear of a fuel famine that many chemists and geologists assert is impending.

The synthetic gasoline process has been studied by many authorities, among them Walter E. Trent, chemist and engineer, and pronounced reasonable.

In brief, it consists of pulverizing low grade coal and screenings. After certain treatments, there remains a mushy substance from which a high grade motor gasoline is made. Mr. Trent explained:

"The cost of production by this method is so low that when it is sold at prevailing prices for anthracite, the gasoline is a true product and is actually produced at zero cost, the profit derived from coal being more than enough to carry the entire operation. The gasoline will be profitable if sold at 10 cents a gallon."

Mr. Trent has a plant in operation at Cranston, R. I., where the synthetic gasoline is now being produced on a small scale.

OIL FLOW AT SEMINOLE OFF

Some Slump Is Shown Over Week-End

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 9.—The effect of proration was felt over the week-end, when the greater Seminole field decreased 12,974 barrels in two days.

Monday morning's production figures for the field were 483,366 barrels. Sunday morning it produced 481,946 barrels.

Oil men explained that the 1420-barrel increase was due to new wells and increases in others and not to a tendency on the part of producers to avoid the proration.

It was pointed out that the production never could be held right on the 450,000 barrel mark, the goal of the proration program.

Although the first day's report after proration revealed only a 5,-000-barrel decrease, the operators said they were not discouraged because it would take time for all the companies to meet the 10 per cent reduction required in the program.

The following is the production report on the Seminole field for Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Pool	Saturday	Sunday	Monday
Bowlegs	191,693	180,840	180,838
Earlsboro	195,897	194,935	195,686
Seminole	77,733	75,525	76,976
Searight	31,017	30,646	29,866
Total	496,340	481,946	483,366

Many companies are taking their wells off the air and putting them on the pump, reports from Seminole yesterday, stated. This move was made in an effort to meet with Umpire Ray Collins' instructions to cut slightly more than 10 per cent.

Crude Production Has Heavy Slump

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 9. (AP)—Crude oil production in the United States displayed one of the greatest slumps in months during the week ending August 6, the Oil and Gas Journal says today. Average daily production for the week was 18,420 barrels less than that of the preceding week.

Daily average production for the week was given as 2,568,685 barrels.

Daily production in the Seminole area in Oklahoma where a reduction agreement went into effect last Friday averaged 7675 barrels less for the week. The entire state showed an average daily loss of 8855 barrels with every field excepting the Garber and Wewoka areas showing decreases.

Texas production averaged 1910 barrels less daily, Louisiana fields held about even and Arkansas showed a lower output. Light oil production in California averaged 4050 barrels less daily but a gain of 500 barrels a day was made in heavy crude. Kansas showed a slight decrease.

RED ROUND-UP PLANNED

Immigration Service To Oust Anarchists

By ARTHUR HACHTEN
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Congress will be called upon to appropriate funds to enable the immigration service to make a thorough round-up of alien anarchists and other undesirables illegally in this country, Commissioner of Immigration Harry E. Hull announced today.

When the undesirables have been hunted down they will be shipped out of the country to the lands whence they came.

"The immigration service is doing all it can with the funds at its disposal to rid the country of alien anarchists, criminals and other menaces to free institutions, but we are not making the headway we would if we had a greater personnel," said Commissioner Hull.

Inspectors of the immigration service and agents of the department of justice as well as secret service men of the treasury and postoffice department, are watching Sacco and Vanzetti demonstrations, it was learned.

Watch Radicals

Leaders in radical meetings are being watched for evidence of anarchist views. That the Sacco-Vanzetti protest meetings will result in a movement in congress for a tightening of immigration and deportation laws, was believed certain, with the announcement by Representative Albert Johnson of Washington, chairman of the immigration committee, that such action should be taken.

"The immigration service is deporting about 12,000 aliens a year, but there are still many in this country who should be shipped out," said Commissioner Hull. He continued:

"There are 113,500 aliens in public institutions, penitentiaries, insane asylums, poor farms, etc. Perhaps 20,000 of these are deportable, I don't know. We ought to have $1,000,000 to make a survey of that situation and find out which should be deported.

"That $1,000,000 would be spent. It would save many times that amount in cost to the states and the federal government in supporting such public charges. At present our force is insufficient to make a detailed survey of that situation.

Funds Limited

"The immigration service has about $6,500,000 a year to spend. That is less than is allowed to the New York city police department.

"It is all we can do to keep up with the traffic. Every day our service examines 100,000 persons on the borders or at ports of entry, about 35,000,000 persons a year. And we have a force of only 800 inspectors.

"It is obvious that the more vigilant we can be in watching the borders to keep anarchists and others from unlawful entry the fewer we will have to contend with in the country.

"Every time a new bridge or road is built across the Canadian or Mexican border our work is increased. The new peace bridge at Buffalo, opened last Sunday, will require about 20 inspectors as a starter.

Not All Reds

"There are some alien anarchists in this country that ought to be shipped out, but not so many as generally believed. It is hard to prove that a person is an anarchist.

"There are about 1,000,000 aliens in this country who are desirable citizens. It would cause a mild sensation were the names of some of these aliens made known. Some are very prominent in business affairs and they do not want the fact they are aliens made known."

Burrier is also under indictment for robbery with firearms in connection with the alleged robbery of the Three Way Filling station in Archer county.

Law's Long Arm No Longer Than Law's Memory

A group of lads indiscriminately shooting chickens with "nigger shooters" along Michigan avenue about three weeks ago were the indirect saviors of a 94-year-old man Tuesday afternoon.

He came to police headquarters, deaf, crippled and half blind. He had forgotten his name and where he lived, and he was seriously ill.

Officers Pat Allen and Luke Hart gave him water and made him comfortable. Then Allen remembered he had answered a call to arrest some unwitting boys on Michigan avenue some time back, and had seen this same old man on a nearby front porch.

They took him there. Pat had remembered well. Anxious relatives welcomed the old man.

Lake Road Accident Victim Improving

Improvement in the condition of Miss Margaret Gentry, 19, of 905 15th street, who was painfully injured when she was thrown out of the automobile in which she was riding on the Lake Wichita road after midnight Monday, was reported by attendants at the Hargrave-Walker hospital Tuesday.

Although Miss Gentry sustained a slight concussion of the brain, her condition is not thought to be serious, physicians said.

Miss Gentry was thrown to the pavement when the door of the car flew open as the car rounded a curve.

City-County Hospital Meeting Postponed

Due to the absence of several members of the city council, who are on vacations, also members of the Wichita General hospital board, a conference scheduled for Tuesday between the council, county commissioners and the court relative to the status of the hospital concerning its future operation or sale, was postponed until September.

The time of the September meeting will be determined at a latter date.

Fair Executives Will Address All City Luncheon Clubs

To arouse more interest at home in the sixth annual exposition of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association, Mayor R. E. Shepherd has arranged for superintendents of the various departments of the fair to speak at each luncheon club of the city, beginning next week. Each address will be only five minutes and the superintendents are being asked to tell about the plans of that particular section of the fair. In this way the people will be informed of practically every detail for the 1927 meeting October 1 to 6.

Many inquiries regarding the cattle division and the agricultural section are being received at the Fair association's headquarters.

These, according to Mr. Shepherd indicate more interest in the coming exposition. Mr. Shepherd is anxious that the cattle and county agricultural entries this year set a new record.

WHY are real estate mortgages preferred by the heaviest investors in the world—life insurance companies?

Because the investment experts of these companies know that SAFETY is assured in this form of investment. They also get LARGER RETURNS than from any other form of investment equally safe.

Building & Loan Associations invest in first mortgages on local real estate not exceeding 60 per cent of its value and more often 50 per cent or less of its value.

Your surplus money placed in this Asosciation will therefore be PERFECTLY SAFE. It will earn 6, 7 or 10 per cent, according to the plan you select. There is a plan to suit every purse and purpose—from $1 a month up to $10,000 lump sum.
