DALLAS OFFICER MURDERED IN GRAVEYARD

Weird Murder Story To Unfold In Ozark Court

Shook In Chains For Trip To Court

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

If some big corporation were to go out to hire men like those chosen for the board of directors of the Deep Oil Development company it would gladly pay hundreds of thousands of dollars for their services.

It ought to be a big satisfaction to those who have subscribed for stock in this project to know that their funds will be handled by men of such character and ability. They are giving their services and are deeply sensible of their responsibility.

A week ago we were pleased to report that subscriptions to this enterprise were nearing the $500,000 mark. That mark was quickly passed and now the $700,000 mark is being neared. This progress shows that when there is something to be done the citizens of this section can just up and do it.

Among the events that will be watched this week is the road bond election in Haskell county next Saturday. If the bonds are voted Haskell will be connected with paved highway systems both to the north and south and its people will have access to that great paved highway system that reaches almost every section of the country.

When Wichita county pioneered in road paving a number of years ago there were no other paved highways in this section of the state to connect with. In every direction the paving ended in dirt roads at the county line. There was then not the benefit and great advantage of connecting our paving with improved highways leading in every direction.

Now almost any county can tie its paving with other systems already built to its borders and leading to almost any point to which the citizen may wish to drive. The county that votes a bond issue now can have the benefit of all the work that has been done by other counties.

We are selfish, we know, when we want to see Haskell county vote the bond issue Saturday for by doing so it will close a gap that cuts off convenient access to another great system of improved highways to the south.

Many citizens of Foard and Cottle counties have found employment in the building of the Lee highway through those counties this year. Perhaps the same plan might help the people of Haskell county through an adverse season.

The thought of disbanding its chamber of commerce was unanimously vetoed by the business men of Burkburnett when the question was discussed there last week. It was the opinion of all that the chamber of commerce was needed more than ever and a determination to get in and pitch was expressed. Preparations for the annual banquet of the organization on next Friday night are going forward and it is hoped by leaders at Burkburnett to make it the best ever held there.

Mrs. J. G. Hardin has made a contribution of $1,000 to local charity work at Burkburnett. Representatives of the four churches at Burkburnett have joined in forming an organization to distribute this and other funds for the relief of needy there.

Though belated, our congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Parker, 1402 Broad street, who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Parker have lived in Wichita Falls since 1890. May their lives continue to be blessed with peace and happiness.

Every year at this season the newspaper man finds it his duty to warn against inflammables in Christmas decorations and entertainments and just as surely it becomes his duty to record accidents due to carelessness in this matter. Here is a list of suggestions that will help prevent accidents:

Do not permit any sort of decorations near open lights or too close to an electric light globe.

Never use candles on Christmas trees or place a lighted candle in a window. Your curtain may become

TRIAL OF FOUR TORCH SLAYERS OPENS TODAY

Man Claiming to Be Murdered Bridegroom in Limelight

OLD PASSIONS CLASH

Relatives of Accused Men Are Among State's Main Witnesses

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Dec. 15 (UP)—Age old passions will clash in Stone county court here tomorrow in the weirdest murder trial ever to take place in the back woods of the Ozark mountains.

Hate, loyalty and love, have set the stage in this fantastic murder mystery where the issue is whether the murdered man, Connie Franklin, has returned from the dead.

Prospective jurymen, for the most part bearded mountaineers, were rounded up to form the panel which will decide if Herman Greenway, Joe White, Hubert Hester and Bill Younger killed Franklin and burned his body. Sitting in the front row of the little courtroom, will be a man who swears that he is Connie Franklin and that the murder merely was a figment of mountaineers' imagination.

State Charges Murder

The state, refusing to believe the story of the man who says he is Franklin, charges that the four men on trial murdered Franklin last March 9 while he and Tiller Ruminer, mountain girl, were on the way to Moutain View from St. James to get a license for their wedding.

Prosecuting attorney Hugh Williamson is directing the state's efforts to convict the quartette.

His brother, Ben Williamson, is chief of four lawyers who are fighting for the lives of their clients.

Reuben Harrell and Miss Ruminer, two of the state's star witnesses, are cousins of Greenway, one of the four accused. Coleman Foster, another important state's witness, also is a kinsman of Greenway.

Brother vs. Brother

The Williamson brothers face each other for the fifth time as prosecutor and chief of defense counsel in important murder trials. In the four previous trials, Hugh, the prosecutor, has won twice and Ben, the defender, also has scored two times.

The two brothers, famous in this isolated section, are sons of Ben F. Williamson, Stone county's foremost lawyer, now 73 years old.

Harrell and Miss Ruminer are

Japs to Assure U. S. Of Accord on Naval Policy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. (AP)—Assurances of American-Japanese accord on President Hoover's policy of actual naval reduction in place of mere limitation will be given the Washington government by the two Japanese delegates arriving in the capital tomorrow en route to the London naval parley.

The conversations which the delegates, former Premier Reijiro Wakatsuki and Admiral Takeshi Takerabe, Japanese minister of marine, will have with President Hoover and the American delegates to the London conference will be of a preliminary nature. Questions of major policy concerning the navies of the two countries will be settled at the conference itself.

Coste Seeks New Closed Circuit Record

PARIS, Dec. 15. (US)—Capt. Dieudonne Coste, holder of the world's long distance non-stop flight record, and Lieutenant Codos hopped off at Istres airdrome shortly after 8 a. m. today in an attempt to break the long distance closed circuit record of 4,752 miles.

The French airmen took off in Coste's famous plane the Question Mark. It carries sufficient fuel to remain aloft for 52 hours.

Prohibition Supporters Okeh Hoover's Idea

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. (UR)—The national conference of organizations supporting the eighteenth amendment today approved the recommendation of President Hoover that prohibition enforcement should be transferred from the treasury to the justice department.

Bride Suicide Pact Victim

Mrs. Josephine Roteh Bigelow, 22, Boston society bride of six months, was found shot to death beside the body of Henry Grew Crosby, 32, in a New York hotel. Police believed their deaths were due to suicide pact.

Body of Quanah Cattleman Killed By Auto Is Taken Home for Burial

The body of V. P. Henderson, 65, prominent cattleman of Quanah, who died shortly before midnight Saturday in a local hospital as a result of injuries sustained when he was struck by an automobile on the Henrietta highway Friday night, was taken overland to Quanah about 9 o'clock Sunday morning by the Hines mortuary. Mrs. Henderson and her two sons, who had rushed to the bedside, accompanied the body. Funeral services will probably be held Monday in Quanah.

Mr. Henderson never regained consciousness following the accident, hospital attendants said. He had suffered severe concussion of the brain, a fractured thigh bone and serious cuts and bruises.

According to police reports, Mr. Henderson was struck by a car driven by H. A. Pendleton, 1606 Buchanan street, about eight miles out on the Henrietta road shortly before 9 o'clock Friday night. Henderson, accompanied by Roland Summers and a Doctor Buck of Eldorado, Ark., was returning from a wolf hunt in East Texas, it was said. His car skidded off the pavement and into a ditch and another car containing several other men in the hunting party, passed before he could signal them. They continued on their way, unaware of the mishap, it was said.

Another motorist stopped to aid Henderson and left his headlights burning. Pendleton, coming from the opposite direction, police said, swung out to avoid striking the parked car and Henderson, standing in the darkness at the right of the road, was hit. He was rushed toward Wichita Falls in Pendleton's car and was transferred to an ambulance which had been called to the scene. The other members of the party in the other machine were stopped at Vernon by police who had been notified by Wichita Falls officers. They quickly returned to Wichita Falls.

Two Ships Collide In Galveston Channel

GALVESTON, Texas, Dec. 15. (AP)—Proceeding in a thick fog, the Norwegian motor ship Topeka, sailing with cotton for France, crashed into the steamship Lake Treba as she was entering Galveston channel Sunday morning and damaged her severely.

The Lake Treba's plating was rammed open wide at the forecastle and down below her waterline in the collision, which occurred at the sea buoy outside the bar near the channel entrance. The Topeka was damaged slightly and proceeded to sea.

TEXAN DIES AT CLOSE OF GAME

Overdose of Veronal Fatal To Templeton Man

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Dec. 15. (UP)—An overdose of veronal was blamed by authorities here tonight for the death of Walter Templeton, 39, member of a prominent Templeton, Texas, family.

Templeton, according to his widow, had spent Saturday night in a card game with friends. She said he promised her at 2:30 a. m. he would return to their hotel soon. Warren Summerfield, 30, of Malvern, Ark., was asked about 5:30 a. m. to assist Templeton from the room. Summerfield said the Texan was extremely ill and had been drinking. He showed improvement today, then suddenly lost consciousness and died within half an hour.

Coroner Randolph reported he found narcotics in Templeton's clothes and that Mrs. Templeton said he was accustomed to using them.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Warren Moore, Dallas, and a brother, Bruce, of Arlington. His father was said to have been a prominent jurist at Dallas. Templeton was an annual visitor here and had many friends among Hot Springs residents.

Cop Admits He and His Pals Staged Holdup

CHICAGO, Dec. 15. (UP)—One confessed bandit was arrested here today and search was started for three others. That doesn't sound so very unusual, but the confessed bandit happened to be a policeman and the three men he implicated also wore the stars of the Chicago force.

Policeman Joseph Casey admitted that he and three other officers "arrested" Morris Meyers, jewelry salesman, took three wrist watches and $18 from him and then told him to "beat it." Casey said Patrolmen Grover Mulvaney, Edward O'Malley and Michael Coen aided him in "arresting" Meyers.

Second Man Sentenced In Oklahoma Slaying

TISHOMINGO, Okla., Dec. 15. (AP)—A second man today was found guilty and sentenced to 50 years in prison in connection with the death of Ira Sampson, farmer who was shot last Oct. 21 following a quarrel with two of his neighbors.

A jury found Robert Ayers guilty of murder. A 50-year sentence was assessed last week against Arthur Keitner, charged jointly with Ayers. An appeal was asked for Ayers and will be heard on Jan. 2.

FRENCH PILOT, URUGUAYAN IN OCEAN HOP

Plane Takes Off From Seville, Spain, for South America

REPORT BY RADIO

Montevideo Ultimate Goal Of Flight but Natal Will Satisfy

SEVILLE, Spain, Dec. 15. (UP)—A French army flier joined hands with a Uruguayan today in an attempt to fly across the south Atlantic from Spain to Brazil without a stop.

The men, Lieut. Col. Tadeo Larre Borges of the Uruguayan army and Capt. Leon Challe of the French army, took off from Tablada aerdrome here at 12:55 p. m. (7:55 a. m. eastern standard time) in a White Breduet land plane painted with a tricolor cockade.

Cross Gibraltar

Their 450-horsepower Lorraine motor hummed smoothly as they flew south over Spain, crossed the Straits of Gibraltar, and used the coast of Morocco as a guide.

At 2:30 p. m. Rabat flashed beneath them. At 3:23 they passed Casablanca and prepared to head out over the Canary islands.

At 8 p. m. they flew over Agidir, Morocco, and continued southward in a dense fog.

Their route from the Canaries would take them over the Cape Verde islands, over the Brazilian island of Fernando Noronha, and thence to the Brazilian coast which they expected to strike at Natal or Pernambuco.

'Til Gas Gives Out

Once having reached Brazil, they planned to fly southward along the coast until their gas gave out. They hoped, if possible, to reach Montevideo, the Uruguayan capital, where Larre Borges' wife and six children awaited them, but they did not set Montevideo as their goal.

They would be satisfied, they said, to reach Natal, some 3,500 miles from Seville, in safety.

The fliers said they would radio their progress at regular intervals, using the call sign CUL on 600 to 900 meters. All ships along the route were asked to keep in touch with the plane and go to its assistance in case of need.

Negro Who Held Up Chicago Woman Hunted

CHICAGO, Dec. 15. (US)—A negro holdup was sought today to match the description given by his victim, Mrs. Irish Norgard, 23, who had seized the revolver with which he prodded her, and fired at him, only to find it empty.

Mrs. Norgard had been waiting for a street car, when the negro approached, "and scooped me up in his arms," as she put it. "Then he prodded me with his revolver. I freed myself and knocked the weapon from his hand. He grabbed my purse and started to run. I picked up the revolver and pulled the trigger. Nothing happened."

Grand Duchess Of Russia Visits U. S.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. (US)—Grand Duchess Kira of Russia was the guest this afternoon of members of the Russian colony here at a tea at Delmonico's.

She is 19, a niece of Queen Marie of Rumania and great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria of England. Her father is the Grand Duke Cyril.

This is Grand Duchess Kira's first visit to the United States.

Sheriff Orders Heavy Guard For Former Officer

Under guard of two members of the sheriff's department, handcuffed and secured by a lead chain, Tom Shook, one time chief of police at Electra, will be taken from the Wichita county jail to Graham before dawn Monday morning to face trial for robbery with firearms. The prisoner will make the 75-mile trip under the same conditions which marked his long journey back from Tennessee after his re-capture there last summer. He will be in the custody of Sheriff W. G. Bralley and Charlie Gant, deputy.

State Fights Delay

The state will marshal its forces, ready to fight any effort at postponement, when the case is called for trial in the 30th district court. Sam Spence, district attorney, and Fred Weeks, special prosecutor, have announced that they will take a determined stand for an immediate trial. T. A. Hicks, defense attorney, who went to Graham early Sunday, did not disclose defense plans in connection with a motion for continuance before his departure.

Attorneys for both sides expect the selection of the jury to occupy at least one day, should the trial get underway Monday. A special venire of 100 men has been summoned for service. The case was transferred to Young county on a defense motion for a change of venue on the plea that political feelings and widespread publicity here made a fair trial in Wichita county impossible.

Shook will be called to trial Monday for the robbery of J. B. Early, clerk of the Jefferson hotel at Electra, in the spring of 1928, a few months after his retirement as chief of police there. The indictment is one of five, including a murder charge, returned against him in Wichita county. In Tennessee a second first-degree murder indictment is pending against him.

Other Charges Pend

The former peace officer, who made a spectacular break for freedom from the Wichita county jail a few weeks after his arrest on the murder count, was re-captured in Tennessee late last summer after 13 months of evading the law. He was returned here by Sheriff W. G. Bralley with the understanding that he would be turned over to Tennessee authorities again when the counts against him in Texas are concluded.

Shook was indicted with Ed Pryor, former Electra constable, and Henry Shumate on three separate charges of robbery with firearms in the summer of 1928. In the course of the trials of Pryor here several months ago, Shumate confessed to the actual holdups, claiming that he was encouraged and offered protection by the former police officers. He was one of the principal state witnesses against Pryor and will go on the stand against Shook when the state begins its case.

Pryor, acquitted on his first trial, later was given an eight-year sentence, now under appeal.

German Gents Prefer Blue-Eyed Gretchens

BERLIN, Dec. 15. (US)—The genuine flaxen-haired, blue-eyed German "gretchen," or from 24 to 28 years of age, has the best opportunity of marrying today, judging from the requests made by lonely bachelors or widowers to the matrimonial agencies in Germany.

This is partly due to the belief that the blond girl possesses all the qualifications for making good, life-long companions.

DIVORCE HOLIDAY

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 15. (UP)—Denver's divorce holiday will begin Monday, and until after Christmas day no marital complaints will be heard nor divorce decrees granted by district or county judges here. The plan, acceded to by all judges hearing divorce cases, was devised in the hope that the Christmas spirit would be the means of patching up difficulties between estranged couples and bringing them together again.

LIVES SAVED

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15. (UP)—The holiday safety campaigns here have reduced considerably the number of deaths from traffic accidents this year. There have been 95 persons killed in San Francisco since Jan. 1, as compared with 136 in 1927. The total in 1928 was 118.

Clock Makers' Merger in Europe Forms Controlling Firm

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. (US)—A cuckoo clock merger has been effected in Germany, according to dispatches to the commerce department today.

Virtually all the cuckoo clocks in the world are made in the famous Black Forest section.

BODY OF SLAIN MAN IS FOUND

Quanah Officers Unable to Identify Corpse

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Dec. 15.—The body of an unidentified man, who apparently had been murdered, was found on the W. O. Neal ranch 16 miles southeast of here this afternoon by the two sons of E. L. Murray, who lives in the vicinity. The boys told their father of the discovery and Quanah officers were called.

Officers said death had resulted from a bullet through the head. The man had been dead approximately a month, they said. They were seeking to identify the man by laundry marks in portions of clothing which had not decomposed. The body was not recognizable.

City Experiences 'Limehouse Night'

One of the heaviest fogs ever seen in Wichita Falls descended on the city about midnight Sunday and blanketed all objects with a heavy film of mist. Traffic in the business section was forced to move at snail's pace, vision beyond the beam of headlights being practically impossible. Street lights were invisible a block away and those near at hand appeared mere blurs of light.

The atmosphere was of such density as to dampen clothing like fine rain. Windshields became clouded and automatic wipers seemed useless. The fog descended almost instantly, smoke-like clouds whirling for a few minutes above buildings and then dropping like heavy blankets into the streets.

Former President Of Hungary Comes to U. S.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. (US)—Count Michael Karolyi, first president of the short-lived republic of Hungary, will arrive in the United States Jan. 4 on the liner George Washington. Word to this effect was received yesterday by the Rand School of Social Science.

Count Karolyi recently was given permission to enter the United States, after having been barred for some years by the state department. The Rand school is arranging a public reception to the count to be held in Carnegie hall the evening of Jan. 7.

Mysterious Ray Is Branded as Hoax

BEATRICE, Neb., Dec. 15. (UP)—Although no one seemed to know just what the Odic Ray was, its promoter, J. C. Baker, 60, interested several capitalists here in paying to bring its benefits to the world. Baker asserted it would make possible the healing of a house by the use of a piece of scrap iron and that Odic Ray in a can would cool a refrigerator. The state blue sky department saw differently, and called the control of atoms by the mysterious ray a hoax. Baker pleaded guilty to fraud, was sentenced to five years and paroled.

Rubio Leaves to See Baltimore Specialists

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. (AP)—President-elect Pascual Ortiz Rubio of Mexico left here at 11:10 a. m. today for Baltimore, Md., where he is to consult specialists about his health.

He was accompanied by the party which traveled with him from Mexico and by Dr. M. Puig Casaurano, chief of the federal district of Mexico, who joined the group here.

Holly Hunter Dies In Truck Accident

PARIS, Texas, Dec. 15. (AP)—A trip in search of native wild holly for Christmas decorations today proved fatal to George Christopher, 45, Paris. With Vernon Terry, 25, also of Paris, Christopher received fatal injuries when their truck overturned near Antlers, Okla. Terry received minor hurts.

THREE WOMEN AND TWO MEN UNDER ARREST

Police Find Mute Evidence Of Bloody Fight Near Cemetery House

VICTIM'S GUNS USED.

Five Arrests Result From Discovery of Blood-Spattered Car

DALLAS, Dec. 15. (AP)—J. L. Broome, 45, Dallas county deputy constable, was found beaten to death here today near a cemetery storehouse he had been assigned to guard. Five persons were arrested for investigation.

Information obtained by police from the three women and two men arrested placed the time of his death at 11 p. m. Saturday night. Broome was beaten over the head with an automobile crank, police said, by the accomplice of a man he tried to arrest.

Blood Covers Weapon

Broome was found by Constable Dancer who went to the cemetery to bring Broome to town at 7 o'clock this morning. After bringing the watchman to a hospital, Dancer and a squad of policemen returned to the scene.

They found the automobile crank covered with blood, the lock on the storeroom door broken, and other traces of the attack. The watchman's 12 gauge shot gun had been discharged once and his pistol twice. The grass about the place where the body was found was covered with blood.

From this evidence police reconstructed the attack. Broome apparently surprised a robber, they said, breaking down the lock, and ordered him to walk around the storehouse. As they turned a corner, the slayer leaped from behind a hedge and struck the watchman with the crank.

Automobile Found

Before noon a large sedan, which had run out of gasoline and been deserted was located. Blood streaked the upholstering and floor. The owner was traced and through the owner the renters of the car found.

It was then discovered that the occupants of the car had been arrested on suspicion earlier in the day, because the two men were wounded; but that the women had been released, and one of the men, taken to a hospital, had escaped. They were found shortly thereafter and rearrested. Police said the five made statements late today.

Spanish Singer Sued For Breaking Contract

PARIS, Dec. 15. (US)—Raquel Meller, popular Spanish songster who two years ago took the United States by storm, is being sued for $90,000 by M. Caro, manager of several Buenos Aires theaters, who can see no reason for the temperamental singer's last minute decision that South American air was not good for her health, particularly her throat.

M. Caro asserts that Mlle. Meller's refusal to entertain his expectant Buenos Aires patrons was tantamount to a breach of their contract whereby the theater manager had agreed to pay the singer $6,000 a day for a five-month stay. The contract stipulated that should either party default, the total sum involved in the engagement must be paid the other.

Scow's Bridge Ramming Worries City Official

CHICAGO, Dec. 15. (UP)—If something isn't done about the scow Sandmaster and her hectic maneuvering up and down the Chicago river, which encircles the city's business district, Commissioner of Public Works Wolfe is going to have something very similar to a nervous breakdown, he admitted tonight.

The Sandmaster, for the 45th time, crashed into a drawbridge over the river yesterday, and brought the total damage it has done to the city's bridges to almost $300,000, Wolfe said. In the last 10 years Wolfe continued, the Sandmaster has smashed one bridge 18 times, another 15 times and all the rest once or twice each.

CREW RESCUED

CORUNA, Spain, Dec. 15. (UP)—The steamship Ciss rescued the crew of 30 of the Spanish freighter Cabo Cropesa near Finisterre today.

Record News Cotton Table

For Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma

In spite of the lateness of the season, ginnings in Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma remained at high levels Saturday. In previous years, the season has either been closed or drawing to an end at this time of the year but no towns reported a falling off on the daily output of bales. Middling and cottonseed prices held steady Saturday. The following reports were received from Record News correspondents:

And Now a Gol Dern Dark Horse Reigns as Champion of Liars

By H. ALLEN SMITH

GREEN CREEK, N. J., Dec. 15. (UP)—The champion liars of Green Creek and Fishing Creek gathered around the pot-bellied iron stove in Otto Klingfelder's general store here and indulged in one of the most violent orgies of prevarication in history.

And a rank outsider—Capt. Zahhariah Leaming, of Wildwood, a salty old seaman of 84—walked off with first prize, a handsome volume of Horatio Alger's "Truth Paves the Way to Fame and Fortune."

Fifteen other finished liars spieled their fabrications, and some of them were right tolerable lies, but Captain Leaming, in something like 4¼ minutes, lied them all under the table.

County Sheriff Morris Rich, enthroned on the dry goods counter, essayed the double role of judge and sergeant-at-arms. His duty consisted in awarding the prize to the most provicient prevaricator, and enforcing the two rules laid down by Klingfelder—that contestants should not expectorate on the stove in their enthusiasm, and that expected to testify that they saw Franklin beaten to death and thrown upon a blazing log fire.

OZARK TRIAL OPENS TODAY

Case Revolves Around Identity of 'Ghost Man'

They then are expected to say that two of the four defendants attacked Miss Ruminer while Franklin's body was reduced to ashes.

The defense probably will base most of its contentions upon the man who claims to be Connie Franklin in the flesh, who says that the four defendants are his best friends, and who swears that on the night of the murder, instead of getting killed, he spent the evening getting intoxicated.

Girl Sticks to Story

Miss Ruminer, little educated, 17-year-old girl of the hills, stuck to her story that Franklin was killed, when confronted with the man who says he is Franklin. She said she believed he was an imposter, even though he did play the harmonica "about like Connie used to."

Other witnesses brought here by the prosecution, all of whom claimed to have been old friends of Connie's, found birth marks missing and othe discrepancies which they said led them to believe that the man who will watch the trial with an interest approaching that of the defendants, is not Franklin.

The trial, meanwhile, attracted so much attention throughout the backwoods, where telegraph lines and railroads are so much fiction as far as many are concerned, but men and women for miles around bundled themselves in heavy coats and trudged through the muddy forest trails to see the trial.

Lurid Stories Told

Since Miss Ruminer first charged that her sweetheart had been murdered, strange and lurid stories have been broadcast from this peaceful, Rip Van Winkle-like region of tumbled hills.

Charges were made that a group of tyrants, like the barons of the medieval ages, ruled the region with lash and pistol. Other charges said that the majority of the inhabitants were virtual slaves of the Ozark barons and served them in much the same manner as the serfs in ancient Europe when each ruler had a moated castle and a suit of mail to wear when he went out to do his jousting.

The charges all were denied by the territory's most prominent citizens.

ignited and result in the destruction of the your home.'

Storekeepers who install Christmas trees and other decorations should follow strictly safety rules. A fire in a store at this season may not only destroy stock, but may result in the loss of lives of many Christmas shoppers and possibly in a general conflagration.

Do not take foolish risks.

Set all Christmas trees securely so that they will not topple over easily.

Keep trees away from heating and lighting fixtures.

Do not use cotton, wool, tissue paper or other inflammable decorations.

Metal tinsel and flake and powdered asbestos are excellent for snow effects and will not burn.

Do not use lighted candles on Christmas trees. If lights are desired, use only electricity and wire trees carefully.

Tree ornaments should be of metal and not of paper or celluloid.

Avoid toys using alcohol, gasoline or kerosene.

The most dangerous combination for children is the home moving picture projector, using celluloid films. Use only fire-resistive films.

Santa Claus should avoid long cotton whiskers and keep away from lights and open fires.

Keep a bucket or two of water or a fire extinguisher near, to put out possible fires.

Remove all trees before they become completely dried out.

To partially fireproof clothing, use the following solution: Two ounces of carbonate of soda, 2 ounces of ammonia carbonate, 2 ounces of boric acid and 5 gallons of water. This mixture should be allowed to come to a boil and then strained and sprayed upon the material to be protected.

If Santa Claus' clothing or that of anyone else does catch fire, the victim should be rolled in a rug or woolen cloth and the flames smothered. Every effort should be made to protect the face from the flames.

Wichitan Hit by Auto Reported Improving

The condition of R. D. Smith, 1209 Fifth street, who suffered slight concussion of the brain when struck by an automobile Saturday evening, was reported good at the Wichita General hospital Sunday night.

The accident occurred between Seventh and Eighth streets on Ohio avenue about 8 o'clock Saturday night. Smith had started across the street in front of the Wichita Hardware company when he was knocked to the pavement by a car driven by A. J. Gardner of Burkburnett, according to police reports. Heavy traffic and the inability to stop quickly if a pedestrian stepped out from behind the long line of cars was blamed for the accident, police said.

Britten Would Make Officers Use U. S. Ships

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. (US)—Representative Fred A. Britten, Republican of Illinois, will move in the house tomorrow to put a stop to the practice of federal officials, including army and navy officers, traveling on foreign ships while on official duty.

Britten, who is chairman of the naval affairs committee, announced he will introduce a resolution calling upon the heads of government departments to reveal the names of officials and employes, who have used foreign ships, instead of vessels flying the American flag.

PIANO ACT TO FEATURE SHOW

Police Fund Benefit to Be Given Wednesday

A feature act different from any ever seen in Wichita Falls will be presented in "Sketches of 1930," the police relief fund benefit revue to be staged next Wednesday night at the Memorial auditorium, when five pianos will be played on the stage at one time. The act is under the direction of Miss Eleanor Pitman supported by Misses Lorene Tucker, Frances Krauss, Mildred Anderson and Vilma Vaughn. The girls will include in their program a song contest, according to the directors.

The only feature of the revue from out of town will be a novelty accordian number by Jack Ernest, who has been featured on well-known vaudeville chains and radio entertainments. He is said to be a master of his accordian.

Another feature added within the last few days is an act by "The Rhyme Boys," a trio playing the banjo, guitar and harmonica. A large beauty chorus under the direction of Miss Frances Shaver has completely mastered the difficult steps of a number of song and dance routines and will be seen in many of the 16 scenes of the "Sketches."

Scenery for the production has arrived and is being arranged for the revue. The sets were furnished and designed by the Amelia Grain studios in Philadelphia. Modernistic settings and intricate lighting effects will combine to lend a futuristic effect to the entire show, the directors said.

Ticket sales have been progressing rapidly and a large audience is expected. The entire proceeds of the revue will be placed in the police relief fund, a sum of money maintained for the benefit of officers during sickness or disability and for various charity purposes. Tickets may be purchased from any policeman. A chance to win a valuable radio set, donated by the Philco Radio Sales company, is included with each ticket.

Respected Citizen Bared as Gangster

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Dec. 15. (US)—A respected citizen up to this morning, a man known as Fred Dane was being hunted throughout the Middle West tonight wanted for bank robbery and murder.

In a moment of fury on being pressed to pay $5 for a car he had damaged, he shot and killed a policeman. The immediate investigation disclosed that his home, five miles south of St. Joseph, Mich., was a veritable arsenal, and also the cache for $311,000 in stolen bonds. His wife, Viola, placed under arrest, has not been useful as yet in helping to locate him.

When Fred Dane bought the home, some two months ago, from John Weise, its owner, he peeled off 25 $1,000 bills from a magnificent bankroll and paid for it.

He and his wife established themselves in the new home, and lived quietly.

Saturday Dane drove his car to the Pere Marquette station here to meet his wife, who was returning from Chicago. He was a bit late, and drove fast. His car scraped the guard of an automobile driven by George Kool, a young farmer of Muchananan, Mich. Kool demanded pay for the damage. Dane laughed and drove on, Kool following.

In St. Joseph, Kool complained to traffic policemen. One of them, Charles Skelly, remonstrated. Dane fired three shots at him. He commandeered a car with his gun and was driven back to his home. There was a taxicab waiting. It contained his wife who had grown tired of waiting for him. Not knowing who was within, Dane ordered the driver to go on. He changed the car for a farmer's, also at the point of his gun. He disappeared at Coloma, Mich.

Theft of tombstones from the old cemetery of Virginia City, Nev., by souvenir hunters has led to the posting of rewards to stop the vandalism.

Episcopal Christmas Pageant Tells Story of "Why the Chimes Rang"

A crowd of 200 persons witnessed the presentation Sunday night of the Episcopal church school pageant, "Why the Chimes Rang," an elaborate dramatization of a beautiful story laid in medieval Germany. The pageant was given in the parish house at 7:30 o'clock.

The story deals with the dream of an old woman who wanted to visit the cathedral in the town not far from her hut. In the dream she visionizes various characters placing offerings on the altar of the cathedral and finally she decides to journey to the place and give her offering. When she drops two bright pennies on the altar, her entire fortune, the chimes in the tower, which had not rung for 100 years, burst into music.

The pageant was directed by Mrs. James G. Oakley, with Mrs. D. K. Bell designing the costumes and Mrs. C. C. Eckman and Joe Gugenheim supervising the properties. The chimes effects, arranged with special apparatus behind the scene, was excellent. Miss Carrie Wilcox assisted at the organ and the church choir gave the Christmas and sacred songs for the play.

Miss Helen Gould was excellent in her portrayal of the part of the old woman. Others in the cast were Leo Wilmeth in the part of the uncle; Jennie Louise Hindman as Holgar; Laura Fritz as Steen; Marjorie Woolsey as the angel; Don Bowie as the king; Dorothy Russell as the beautiful maiden; Carl Waelder as the scholar; Hamlin Rugely as the rich man; Mary Collier as the court lady; Dr. W. D. Bratton as the priest; Charles Chenault and John Estes as pages, and Bobby Burns and Wallace Masters as train bearers.

DEN RAIDED

A police raiding party Sunday evening arrested 14 negroes and seized 14 half-gallons of liquor at an alleged vice den in the negro section of the city. Two of the men, said to have been the operators of the place, will be turned over to federal authorities Monday. The remaining 12 were jailed and booked for disturbing the peace.

Warren Simpson Improving

Warren Simpson, 10-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. Claude M. Simpson, who suffered a fracture of the leg, dislocation of the knee and severe lacerations of the face when he fell while playing with a group of other children Saturday afternoon, was reported resting well at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital Sunday night. Doctor Simpson is pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church.

Argler Injured When His Auto Turns Over

Stanley Herring, 2310 Broad street, is in the Hargrave-Walker hospital suffering from injuries to the chest and back sustained about 2 o'clock Sunday morning when the car in which he was riding overturned near the corner of Keeler and Harrison streets.

The injured man was rushed to the hospital in a Hines ambulance. His conditioned is not considered serious, attendants stated. X-ray examination revealed no fractured bones.

Herring was returning from a fishing trip to Lake Wichita at the time of the accident, it was reported. The car struck a curb and turned over on its side. Herring is an employe of the Holt pharmacy.

Christmas Decorations Cause Small Blaze

Firemen were called to the Texas Electric Service company, 904 Scott avenue, about 7 o'clock Sunday night when Christmas decorations in the front portion of the building caught fire. The small blaze was quickly extinguished with but little damage, according to officials of the fire department.

BIFFLE'S TRIAL UP

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15. (UP)—Garland Biffle, law book salesman, accused of perjury in connection with the Alexander Pantages case, will go on trial again Monday in superior court. A jury which stood 7 to 5 for conviction disagreed in Biffle's first trial.

Are YOU Getting YOUR MONEY'S WORTH In Entertainment?

The American people pay more generously for entertainment than any nation on earth. Their generosity has enriched the motion picture industry.

* * *

Spoken dialog has come to replace the subtitle of the silent picture. Tagging along with the talkie comes Mechanical Music—an economy.

* * *

Real Music is being ordered out of many theatres in favor of this new comer, who never dared a theatrical appearance until he gained the protection of the Talking Picture's novelty and the magic word "Synchronized." Now synchronization with a picture does not give Mechanical Music the quality of Real Music.

* * *

Banishment of Living Music represents a loss for the theatre patron. Is this loss balanced by the substitution of Mechanical Music?

A very great many theatre-goers will answer:

"NO!"

Then why should the aforementioned American people, who pay so generously for entertainment, be required to take less for their money than they were wont to get?

STORE LOOTED AT FREDERICK

Burglars Take $1,500 From Firm's Safe

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Dec. 15.—Fifteen hundred dollars in cash was taken from the Wide Awake variety store here last night by burglars.

Forcing entrance at a door opening into an alley, the intruders opened the store's light safe with a crow bar. They carefully separated the checks from the currency and coin, leaving the checks in the box. About $100 was saved when the burglars failed to notice another box in the safe.

No arrests had been made in connection with the robbery Sunday night but Sheriff Charles Wages held some promising clues. Among these is the crowbar used to knock the combination from the safe door. An official is to arrive here Monday from the bureau of criminal investigation at Oklahoma City and will photograph finger prints left on the bar.

R. B. Tomlinson is proprietor of the looted store.

Wichitan Jailed By Big Spring Officers

Alfred Jennings, under a five-year suspended sentence, and wanted here on charges of driving while intoxicated, is being held for Wichita county officers in Big Spring, according to informaton given Sunday by Sheriff W. G. Bralley, at whose request Jennings was taken into custody. H. L. White, deputy sheriff, will leave early Monday morning to bring the prisoner back to the Wichita county jail.

A $1,500 bond, under which the defendant was released several months ago, was forfeited in the 89th district court here early this month when Jennings failed to appear for trial, Mr. Bralley explained.

Salty Old Seaman Tells Best Story

whosoever was caught pillaging the cracker barrel should be ignominously disqualified.

Josiah Upjohn, a 70-year-old fibber from Fishing Creek, did right well with a story about the coldest winter he ever enjoyed, in which they postponed Christmas for three weeks.

Uriah Hodges, of Green Creek, who has no hair, eyebrows or eyelashes and is known as "Hairless Hodges," called for a "chaw" and then delivered himself of a monstrous fable concerning his hairless state. It had to do with his grandfather's blueberry patch. It seems that the sea gulls often descended on the berry patch, and that Uriah's grandsire, in a terrible rage, once captured one of the birds. With his teeth, he picked every feather off the gull. And the good Lord punished him by causing his hair, eyebrows and lashes to fall out—a defect handed down to his descendants.

Joe Sears, of Green Creek told a story about his sensitive toes—how he could stick his bare foot in mud and detect the presence of a snapping turtle within a radius of five yards.

Then old Captain Zach riz up from his soap box and floored the company for the sheriff's decision.

"One day last summer," related the captain, "I was out behind my barn atakin' of a little nip, when I sees Lizzie Jackson, of the Cape May county W. C. T. U., a comin' up th' lane. I dropped the bottle, I got so dog-goned excited, and it spilt all over th' ground.

"Well, after Lizzie left, I decides to go a fishin'. I goes out behind th' barn and digs me some worms. I noticed that some of them worms was a feelin' kind of spry like but I didn't think nothin' abouten th' corn a doin' it.

"Well, I goes down to Delaware bay, baits up my hook and th's it in th' water. By jiggers, I gets a bit right off. So I jerks in and here's a dandy bass—a three-pounder.

"But gentlemens, that bass didn't no more have aholt of my hook than I did! Th' worm had th' bass by th' neck, and th' worm was a hollerin', 'gol durn ya, ya will try to bite me!'

"So every time I go a fishin' now I sprinkles a little of my lightnin' on th' worms and let 'em fight it out with th' fish."

C.-C. BANQUET MONDAY NIGHT

Junior Organization to Name Directors

Five new directors for the Wichita Falls Junior chamber of commerce will be elected at the first annual banquet of the organization to be held at 7 o'clock Monday night at the Wichita club. Twenty nominations have been made and these will be voted on by the members.

About 300 are expected for the banquet, a large number of guests having been invited by the organization. Walter Nelson Jr., president of the junior chamber, will act as toastmaster and will make an address. The principal speaker of the evening will be former State Senator Robert L. Stuart of Fort Worth, who will be introduced by Ben G. Oneal.

One of the features of a large entertainment program will be the S. M. U. male quartet. Dances, solos, talks, novelty acts and a playlet, "Dark Horse Stable," produced by James V. Allred, will also be included on the program. Music during the dinner will be furnished by Frank Byrd and his Bluebirds of radio station KGKO. The banquet will be the first annual affair of the organization and will mark the first election since it was organized last spring.

Tugs Fail to Raise Grounded Steamship

GALVESTON, Dec. 15. (UP)—Efforts of four tugboats to float the Mallory steamship Brazos had proved in vain and a dredgeboat was dredging out a channel for the steamer tonight in a further attempt to get it off the mud.

The freighter went aground north of the Galveston channel in a thick fog Friday morning and has since been held fast by the mud.

The vessel was too high up for the four tugboats to get it out, it was reported tonight.

Coterie Club Members Entertain Husbands

One of the loveliest Christmas scenes of the holiday season was that in the Woman's Forum clubhouse dining room Friday night when members of the Coterie club enjoyed their annual evening social meeting at which they entertained their husbands.

The long table was spread with runners of red and green. In the center, stood a beautifully decorated Christmas tree with tall red candles at each side. Then came smaller Christmas trees, glittering with bright decorations and just beyond these at each end, were sleighs, drawn by eight reindeers. The sleighs were loaded with prettily wrapped favors, one for each guest. Accenting the holiday motif, were poinsetta place cards.

After the delicious dinner served, Mrs. J. H. Massie showed many beautiful scenes and points of interest in Mexico and Honolulu, taken by Dr. and Mrs. Massie on a trip to these countries. Their movie camera brought much of the beauty of the trip back to their friends.

Covers were laid for Dr. and Mrs. E. B. Bailey, Mrs. E. P. Bass, Messrs. and Mesdames C. W. Boller, C. P. Burton, A. D. Collins, Mrs. Hubert Harrison, Messrs. and Mesdames A. G. Holmes, Rhea Howard, Lester Jones, Mrs. J. H. Massie, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mytinger and Mrs. C. D. Shamburger.

Mesdames E. P. Bass, Rhea Howard and J. H. Massie were the entertainment committee who arranged the lovely party.

In the mock wedding, Landon Cullum was the minister who read the improvised ceremony marrying Sara Katherine Clough and Jimmie Cullum. He read it, we hear, word perfect. For instance, when the paper said "(here the bridegroom snickers)" Landon read seriously "here the bridegroom snickers." But when he came to the place where the groom was supposed to kiss the bride, Landon whispered shrilly "Kiss the bride, Jimmy; kiss the bride." Jimmy hissed back, "Kiss her yourself."

Speaking of acting, we fear the recent success of "White Collars" has created an embryo actress in our own family. No matter how much we throw cold water on ambition, we hear "Oh but that Dorothy Campbell was the prettiest thing! And that man named Jerry—gosh he was pretty." How can on squelch such ardent admiration by correcting grammar?

It's a divine tenderness that gives youth faith in itself. And the same divine understanding gives youth courage to get up again when failure knocks one down.

There's one thing we cannot understand, try as we may. The faith that people have that a photographer will make them look pretty.

◆ ◆ ◆

We stood before a window where a local photographer was offering wonderful values in Christmas pictures and saw the smiling countenances, which probably disappointed nine-tenths of the people photographed.

◆ ◆ ◆

Not many people have perfect features and have to depend on all the expression they can muster to make them attractive. And anyway, few people are satisfied with a picture unless it flatters them. That's why it is a poor idea to give protographs unless one begins a long while beforehand and gives the artist a chance.

Rabbit Breeders To Meet Tuesday Night

Members of the American Rabbit and Cavy Breeders' association of Texas will hear reports of the national convention recently held at Fort Worth in the regular bi-weekly meeting to be held at the courthouse Tuesday night, Dec. 17, at 7:30 o'clock, according to W. L. Smith, publicity director.

Mr. Smith and J. H. Stanfill, secretary of the organization, attended the Fort Worth convention and show, and will make reports of the affair Tuesday night.

Plans for a rabbit show to be conducted here on Jan. 16, 17 and 18 will be completed at the meeting, Mr. Smith stated. Members are requested to bring to the meeting all ads and announcements of premiums provided for the organization catalog, which will be printed within the next few days, it was said. Location of the show also is to be decided Tuesday night.

Closer drawing of the lines thrown out by the Kiwanis club to assist in providing a Christmas for the needy, and vocal numbers by Miss Harriett Bradley, contralto, will feature the weekly meeting of that organization at the Kemp hotel Monday.

Committees engaged in making up the Kiwanis Christmas charities are working under the supervision of Paul Hines, who will report progress in the movement Monday. The program is in charge of Jouette Bonner.

Sunday Schools Raise Attendance

Attendance at 30 local Sunday schools on Dec. 15 represented a net gain of 561 over that of the preceding week, Sunday's total running to 7,827 pupils.

One of the largest gains recorded in individual schools, according to percentage, was that of the Fannin Community Christian Sunday school where attendance was more than 25 per cent larger than the preceding week.

Increasing attendance at the Floral Heights Methodist church school continued to narrow the gap giving the First Methodist school numerical supremacy in the Methodist group. The larger church enjoyed a lead of only 106 Sunday.

Beauty, Love And Wealth Desired By Every Woman

If Every Woman Had Three Wishes She Would Ask to Be Supremely Beautiful, Incredibly Rich and Romantically and Passionately Loved—Yet Every Woman Finds Her Highest Happiness in Love And Service to the Adored One.

Of course, every woman's and every man's greatest desire is for happiness. There is a blanket wish that covers all other wishes, and every other wish is simply a means to that end. But if a good fairy should suddenly appear, as in the good old nursery tales, and offer every woman her three requests of the gods, it doesn't take any prophetess to tell what she would ask.

She would ask without even stopping to debate the question, to be supremely beautiful, incredibly rich and romantically and passionately loved, because to the feminine fancy, to be a living picture, a millionairess and an affinity fills the cup so full that it slushes over.

Yet the gratification of none or all of these wishes would make a woman happy unless they could be backed up by two more wishes—one that they might be made eternal and that the woman's interest in them might not pall. It were folly to ask for beauty unless it could be made perpetual, as, alas, it cannot be in this changing life. No agony can be greater than that of the woman who sees the years steal the bloom from her cheeks, the luster from her hair, the brilliance from her eyes and knows herself powerless to prevent the ravages of age.

It is better to have been born homely than to have to listen to people tell you how you have faded, nor is there any tragedy more complete than that of the woman who having had great wealth loses it and is reduced to poverty, unless it is that of the woman who has nothing but money and who starves in the midst of her gold for real love, real friends and real interests in life.

Now, to my thinking, if a woman were given three wishes she would ask for good health, for genius for little things.

To have health means to possess beauty of a type that does not fade; it also includes good nature, because practically all irritability and ill-temper are caused by shaken nerves, and it assures its happy possessor an unending fountain of enjoyment and pleasures, since whether life is worth living or not depends upon the liver.

It is the mentally and physically diseased woman who fill the divorce courts and burden the air with their lamentations over being forsaken and neglected by their husbands or sweethearts. The woman who has good health holds her own.

Next to good health I should wish, being a woman, for the genius of small things—to be eternally interested in small-town gossip—what the neighbors next door had for dinner, how many silk stockings Mrs. Smith has on the line, to be thrilled to my narrow about the cut of a sleeve or the hang of a skirt, to be able to be utterly absorbed in my own house, my own children, my own Browning society. And, above all, I should pray the gods to grant me that I might always have my particular John, the oracle of the world.

Then, I should ask to love, for a woman not to have been loved is a misfortune, but for her not to love is for her not to have lived. She may weary of the noblest love, of the noblest heart; she may find a thousand imperfections in the most chivalrous lover, but her own love knows no tiring and it gilds the meanest object and turns it into a god.

In love and in service to the adored one a woman finds her highest happiness, and if she has of her own a man and a child on whom to lavish her affections she does not need to ask anything else of fate. She has all wishes bunched in one. —DOROTHY DIX.

CHIC TWO-PIECE FROCK

Pattern 8834

A flattering diagonal bodice closing, a front skirt panel that seems to point upward because of the unusual cut of the bottom of the coat, and a side pleated skirt, combine to create a delightfully wearable sports frock.

A light weight tweed fashions this smart rig, particularly lovely in mixed shades of brown and beige or black and white. Bone buttons fasten the coat in front, and trim the sleeve bands. Other suitable fabrics are jersey, kasha, wool crepe or velveteen.

May be obtained only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires three yards of 54-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model. The pattern has ample and exact instructions. Yardage is given for every size. A perfect fit is guaranteed.

Patterns will be delivered upon receipt of 15 cents (15c) in coins carefully wrapped or stamps. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, style number and size desired.

The fashion book is 15 cents, but only 10 cents when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to The Record News Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

Floral Heights League Elects New Officers

New officers of the Epworth Young people of Floral Heights Methodist church were announced Sunday evening.

Thomas C. Scott will be president; Mary C. Boone, vice president; recording secretary, Mildred Johnson; assistant recording secretary, Elizabeth Albritton; corresponding secretary, Helen Simpson; treasurer, Emmarie Lewis; assistant treasurer, William Luther Donnell; superintendent of supplies, Frank Hunter; superintendent of publicity, Estelle McPhail; superintendent of social service, Margaret Bone; superintendent of mission and Bible study, Mr. George W. Truitt; chairman of program committee, Margaret Pease; chairman of social committee, Lena May Lesley; chairman of scrap book committee, Dorothy Johnson; chairman of reception committee, William Luther Donnell; chairman of membership committee, Leon Deaton; pianist, Katherine Hawley; and assistant pianist, Margaret Bone.

As a devotional, the story of the birth of Christ was read with Elizabeth Albritton leading. Van Dyke's "First Christmas Tree," was told by Mrs. Henry Milliken. The story based on facts, tells of the best known and most dramatic event in the life of St. Boniface, an English monk, who went as a missionary to the pagan Germanic tribes.

Announcement was made that the Christmas tree for the colored day nursery, which the young people are sponsoring, will be from 10 to 11 o'clock Saturday, Dec. 21 in the basement of the church.

Several committees were appointed to carry out the plans for the tree.

The Epworth young people and the senior department of the Sunday school will join in singing Christmas carols and anyone who wishes them to sing or who knows shut-ins who would enjoy the carols is requested to telephone Mrs. George Truitt, 2-1383 or Mrs. Joe Richker, 7971.

The meeting closed with the Lord's prayer said in unison. Fifty members and guests were present.

Camp Fire Girls Will Have Full Christmas Week

A pretty Christmas council fire will be held by the Camp Fire Girls in the Alamo school auditorium Friday night, Dec. 20, at 7:45 o'clock. The Christmas theme will be used throughout the council fire, beginning with the Christmas story, told by Mrs. R. E. Davis. The girls will enter the scene as shepherds of old, weaving their camp fire fire-lighting ceremony of the spirit of work, health and love, into the story of Christmas. During the program, new members will be initiated, ranks will be awarded, training course certificates received, and all special honors that have not been awarded will be presented. The climax of the program will be Camp Fire Girls gifts of love to the spirit of Christmas in the form of gifts to the children and mothers of less fortunate families. A showing of all toys completed will be made and the leather honor for all girls who have completed their three projects will be awarded. Christmas carols will be used throughout the program. All interested people are invited.

The Camp Fire Girls have a full program for December with the toy shop projects to complete, singing of Christmas carols at Perkins-Timberlake on Dec. 23 and 24, and at the municipal Christmas tree at the Memorial auditorium on Christmas eve. A showing of the toys will be held in the various schools where they have Camp Fire groups, at the Kiwanis club luncheon on Dec. 16.

The following is a calendar for the activities through Christmas eve:

Monday, Dec. 16—Exhibit of Christmas toys at Kiwanis club luncheon.

Tuesday, Dec. 17—Exhibit of Christmas toys at Crockett school P.-T. A.; rehearsal for Christmas council fire and Christmas carols in the basement of the First Presbyterian church at 4 p. m.

Wednesday, Dec. 18—Opening of Christmas tree sale downtown.

Thursday, Dec. 19—Exhibit of Christmas toys at Rotary club luncheon; rehearsal for Christmas carols and council fire in basement First Presbyterian church at 4 p. m.

Friday, Dec. 20—Christmas council fire at Alamo school, 7:45 p. m.; Christmas theme and carols to be used. Exhibit of Christmas toys, awarding of ranks and honors. Public invited.

Sunday, Dec. 22—Carol rehearsal, basement of First Presbyterian church, 3 p. m.

FRISCO PLANS NEW BRANCHES

Three Extensions to Be In Quanah Area

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Dec. 15.—Announcement has been made that the Frisco railroad will spend nearly $25,000,000 for extensions in 1930, and three of the major appropriations included in this huge total have direct interest in Quanah and this territory. These are the Quanah, Acme and Pacific extension from Matador, the "Q" extension from Quanah to Acme, and the proposed line from Vernon to Seymour, connecting with the Rock Island extension from Shamrock to Quanah.

Quanah is the terminus of the direct line of the Frisco from St. Louis through Oklahoma City, and connects with its subsidiary, the Quanah, Acme and Pacific line here to the southwest through Acme. Permit has been granted the Q. A. & P. to extend its line from Matador, and application is pending to construct its own track between Quanah and Acme. Heretofore they have used a joint track with the Fort Worth and Denver City railroad to Acme.

A total of $306,000 has been appropriated for the Matador extension, and the budget sets aside $214,475 for the construction of the four and one-half miles between Quanah and Acme, as confidence is felt that the interstate commerce commission will grant the application.

The sum of $12,563,053 will be spent for new equipment, including 2,500 box cars, 1,000 coal cars, 300 automobile cars, 20 large Mikado type freight engines, 10 baggage and mail cars, 10 baggage cars and 3 diners.

Two million, three hundred and ten thousand dollars will be spent for 175 miles of new 110-pound steel rails to be laid in the Frisco's heavy traffic districts.

Decision is expected any time now on the application to construct the line between Vernon and Seymour, which calls for an expenditure of $1,646,646. Work will begin immediately upon favorable decision on this application pending before the commission.

TOO MANY BONES TO GNAW

Daily Editorial

THERE'S no chance for mental cud-chewers nowadays. Events are crowding so fast on each other's heels that delay-linger-and-wait thinkers must be side-tracked to give do-it-now men right of way.

Chess players are required to decide their moves within set time limits. Prompt decision is the essence of that game, and the essential qualifications for success in every important operation of politics, business and progress, too.

If you take too long to digest the import of changing trends, don't expect to wear shoulder-straps in any organization.

The world machine is whirring at breakneck speed. We've so many problems, and they are so inter-related, that slow-poke reflection handicaps action and cost sheets everywhere.

But even the shrewdest and most resourceful brain is bewildered by the number and variety of questions feverishly pressing legislation and international concord for answers—as though by concerted agreement.

Before congress can even resume its interrupted consideration of the overdue tariff bill, Mr. Mellon's proposed hundred and sixty million tax cut is presented for immediate passage, despite the fact that millions of citizens have centered their hopes on a drastic reduction on earned incomes, and, by sheer force of numbers, are entitled to a conscientious hearing on the subject.

SENATORS, with only 24 hours a day at their disposal to study the contending claims of high protection and low schedule advocates, are, without warning, urged by Owen D. Young to permit a general communications monopoly—not only absolute control of wire and cable services, but exclusive franchises to exploit the still unestimated resources of radio, to boot.

The American Newspaper Publishers association meeting, in protest against arbitrary price-fixing on print-stock—and determined to resist an upward revision which will provoke raises in advertising and subscription rates, increase common living costs and inevitably lead to the suspension of small weeklies and dailies—also promises to invoke the offices of the administration to defeat the profiteering plans of a pulp-producers' coalition.

President Hoover, to the consternation of many of his warmest supporters, elects this kaleidoscopic hour to order the signing of the world court protocol, thereby setting up another schism in a party already rent with policy dissensions.

On top of it all, China, not only in a mess with the Soviets, again exhibits utter incapacity to handle her domestic affairs, stages a revolt within a revolt, allows pirate bands to seize foreign shipping and compels the dispatch of an American fleet to preserve the lives and property rights of our nationals there.

Nor are our film or automobile industries without foreign quandaries. Overseas competition is in process of establishing a ban upon American cars. And the former French minister of education and high arts rises to declare that our theatrical productions and motion pictures are a serious "menace to Gallic culture."

And one day's news tosses all these bones of contention to be gnawed upon, and have their marrow extracted by average intelligence, in an overnight news-break. Whew!

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who controls the education of a nation, controls it's destiny."

As the bush is bent so will the tree grow. We must have a department of education in our national government and it is strange that this most important department remains the last to be added. However, it is written, "The last shall be first and the first shall be last." Dedicated to the Robison-Capper bill.

Italy has increased its purchases of foreign frozen meats about 250 per cent in seven years.

The national congress of India adopts an independence resolution, lifting much of it verbatim from the American declaration of independence. Those Indians had better be careful; we signed the thing 153 years ago, and now look at us.

The "first robin" story is already at hand—from Ohio—and the only trouble is that it's impossible to figure out whether this particular bird is getting there ahead of time or just getting away late.

Or, perhaps, it'll turn out that somebody was just objecting to the free garden seeds that he sent through the mails.

That Lost Little Boy

THE RAPID APPROACH of Christmas brings us, once more, to that old and interesting question: Who gets the bigger kick out of junior's new toys—junior, or junior's daddy?

A small boy turned loose in the toy department of a big store just before Christmas is an interesting and wistful sight; yet he is not half so wistful or interesting as his father usually is under the same circumstances.

Similarly, on Christmas morning it is usually dad who can't keep his eyes off of the new electric train, the automatic whirligig or the toy set of structural steel pieces. Sonny takes them all in, and crows with delight; but the light that shines in his father's eyes is the light that never was on land or sea.

Some day, no doubt, we shall have to start a movement to provide toys for grownups. Be honest, now; couldn't you—if you were sure no one would see, and laugh—spend a perfectly delightful afternoon down on your hands and knees playing with a toy train, or a regiment of lead soldiers, or a miniature steam engine? Of course you could; but, like all the rest of us, you don't do it. The closest we come to it is when we steal half an hour with junior's stuff—pretending that we are "showing him how it works."

All of this is rather puzzling. Underneath the dignity of the banker, the serious intentness of the lawyer and the hard alertness of the factory hand there seems, in every instance, to lie concealed a wistful, slightly bewildered small boy, who is forever out of place, forever disappointed, in this busy workaday world in which he has, unaccountably, taken his place.

That lost boy is forever with us. He comes close to the surface at Christmas time. Then, it seems, for a moment, as if he could break loose and come into his own once more. But he never, quite, can make it. The world is always a bit too much for him. People might laugh—and a small boy fears ridicule more than he fears anything else on earth.

But he betrays his presence, just the same. For a little while, Christmas brings us knowledge. Back of the pompous, energetic grown-up we can see the towsled head and wide eyes of the boy that used to be—the boy that never quite died, but that remains hidden, biding his time, perhaps, waiting for a day when he can come forth the way he used to.

Maybe that day will come, sometime. After all, what are all our efforts, all our ambitions, all our strivings but attempts to make the world—or our section of it, at any rate—into a place where that lost boy can feel at home? What we have never satisfies him. The world is never made to his liking.

So, ridden by the insistent prodding of the lad he used to be, each man goes about the daily task, always hoping that some day he will be able to look his juvenile self in the eye and say, "There—doesn't that suit you, at last?"

The Debt of the Student

WHEN you reduce the matter of a college education to dollars and cents, it quick becomes apparent that the college student owes a very real debt to his college—a debt that puts him under a deep moral obligation to make the most of his opportunities.

The annual report of the University of Chicago, for example, shows that students' fees—tuition and the like—provide just under 40 per cent of the university's total operating income.

In other words, for every four dollars that the student spends on his college course, the university spends six more. It is paying more of the cost of his education than he is.

Obviously, then, the student who refuses to study, who spends his time as an idler and a "collegiate" do-nothing, is literally cheating his college. For it should be noted that similar conditions prevail at every college and university in the land. No student really pays his way.

An Investigation Is Needed

WE HAD almost forgotten about Haiti. Our marines have been there for a good many years, and we had nearly lost track of them. Now, however, that troublous island nation is restive again and 500 tanned young men from Norfolk and Paris Island are going down there to sit on the safety valve.

This would be an excellent time for congress to adopt President Hoover's advice and undertake a searching investigation of the whole situation, finding out just what we are doing and setting forth some definite policy which we can follow in the future.

The present situation doesn't seem to be so very satisfactory to anybody. It is time that we looked into all the facts and decided just what we are going to do.

An Unjustified Delay

NOW THAT the senate has finally and definitely rejected Vare, there remains one question to ask—why all the delay?

This case hung fire for three years. Not once was there any chance that Vare would be admitted. The verdict, from the first, was a foregone conclusion. Yet the thing dragged on for three years—and, in all of that time, Pennsylvania had to get along with only one senator.

There is little doubt that the senate did the right thing in closing its doors to Vare. But it did Vare's state a grave injustice in delaying the matter so long. There was no acceptable reason for taking more than a month to settle the thing.

Marriage for Two-- By Arthur Somers Roche

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Shortly after an interview in which Helen Wilson tells Larry Tracy that she wishes to break their engagement so that she can marry the wealthy, middle-aged Frank Burton, and Larry swears, in pique, to marry the first girl who will have him, he rescues from a park bench a starved but beautiful girl, Joyce Carroll.

A few days later they are married, agreeing that the marriage shall in reality be nothing more than a friendship.

Shortly they sail for Biarritz, where Joyce gains great popularity and where Larry finds himself falling in love with her despite evidence of her strange past. A man named Ratty Hogan, in New York, tries unsuccessfully to tell Larry something of his wife and in Biarritz Joyce gives 60,000 francs to a woman of the demi-monde and tells Larry she lost the money at the gambling tables.

During a party given by Billy Valdemagara, a red-headed Spaniard and Larry's best friend, Larry comes on Helen Wilson on a high cliff overlooking the sea, and, feeling all his old love for her revived, takes her in his arms. They are seen by Paul Weedon, who threatens to spread the story. Larry goes at once to tell Joyce and is suddenly overwhelmed by the realization that it is Joyce he loves, not Helen. Joyce, however, refuses to credit his love for her.

While Joyce is dancing with Burton, he declares that he will ruin Larry unless Joyce will promise to keep him from Helen.

An Indomitable Will

Idly, she wondered what was the color of Burton's eyes. For as she looked at them they seemed to change from palest gray to deepest green. She had a queer feeling that all of the man was like this, thus his features might seem to change under emotion, and that beneath his features his character would also change. This, of course, could not be true. Nevertheless, she was willing to believe that there could be such extraordinary diversity in the traits of Burton that one might be justified in imagining that two souls dwelt within the single body.

His eyes—his expression, too—had been pleasant enough until the very minute that he had said that Larry might lose every cent he owned in the world, and then the eyes had become frightening in their pale glare. Almost like madness. But not that really. Merely the inflexible will showing through. It took will to amass fifty millions, and more to keep it. She imagined some one trying to take Burton's money away from him. At the thought she smiled.

"Find it funny?" he asked.

"No," she soberly answered.

"Why the smile?" he persisted.

She told him the inconsequential thought that had drifted, from nowhere, into her mind.

"Glad you got the angle," he commented. "You're right. Nobody's getting my money. Nor anything else I happen to own—or want. Or, if anyone does, then I get something in return. Well, what are you going to do about it?"

"Do about it?" Now he was funny; and her smile was not speculative but was the product of genuine amusement. "Mr. Burton, aren't you being rather ridiculous?"

An Agreement

"If it's ridiculous to realise that I'm 20 years older than Helen, that she happens to be in love—as much as she can be in love—with your husband, and that he's probably still in love with her—"

"That isn't very complimentary to me," she interjected.

"You and I aren't passing compliments," he drily rejoined. "This is business. I'm not saying that you couldn't make Tracy forget all about Helen. As a matter of fact, I think you can. The point is—you've got to."

"You win all your business battles this way?" she inquired.

"I win them any way I can," he replied. "But I win them. Never forget that, Mrs. Tracy."

"And even unwilling brides—"

"You have too much sense to talk that way," he interrupted. "Helen's a young girl. She'll be 20 times as happy with me as with Tracy. Only—she doesn't realise that yet. I know her. I understand her—and as for her unwillingness—I'll take care of that after I'm married to her. Well, where do we stand?"

Now her smile was neither speculative nor derisive. It was wise, wiser than her years.

"Together, Mr. Burton."

He nodded. "I thought so." Admiration crept into his glance. "You're an unusual woman, Mrs. Tracy."

"You're not an ordinary man," she laughed.

He accepted the statement, compliment or flattery, quietly.

"I guess Im not," he admitted. "Ordinary men don't do what I've managed to do."

"I wasn't thinking of your money," she said.

"I know. You mean—my coming out frankly—well, a man can have the wrong kind of vanity, you know. I haven't got that kind. I know that when a young girl accepts me, she isn't lying awake nights thinking of my eyes."

"Then why not," Joyce ventured, "look for a woman who—"

"We do what we have to when it comes to love," he answered. "We never love the kind we want to love."

They circled the room in silence.

"I said a minute ago," he finally broke the pause, "that I didn't have a certain kind of vanity. But I have another kind. I don't want—I'm not going to be made ridiculous, Mrs. Tracy. I want Helen to understand—right away—that Larry Tracy belongs to you."

"Don't ask too much too quickly, Mr. Burton," she advised. "And—I think we've said enough, don't you?"

He looked down at her face. "Well, I guess we have," he said.

Disgust

His features relaxed, and that inner meanness of which she had been conscious from the moment of meeting him, became, in his complacency, an almost outwardly visible thing. She had had experiences, this girl, with many kinds of men, but Burton was beyond anything she had thus far encountered.

Victory. That was all that counted with Burton. That the victory was petty, unworthy, unfairly gained—these things could not matter to Burton. She could imagine him, if need seemed to arise, cheating at cards, and accepting his winnings with the same complacency that was in his expression now. He had gained Helen Wilson's promise to marry him by the force of his fortune. He now believed that she would fulfill that promise because of a threat that he made to Joyce. And he would probably, married to Helen, parade her with pride, as though his own innate charm had won beauty to his side.

A mental nausea suddenly attacked her. Here were people who saw the best, ate the best, drank the best, lived the best, had the best, and ought, by reason of their opportunities, to think the best and be the best. They might not be of the world's aristocracy, but they were of the world's smart, and aristocracy no longer held itself aloof, but tried to join the smart.

Jim Burton's lapel was a little silk-covered button. France had deemed something he had done worthy of honor. It didn't matter that the Legion was nowadays granted almost as freely as concessions at Coney Island—after all, it was the Legion. This man Burton had the entree, she knew, to the sanctums of the great. If he went to London, the American ambassador would make appointments for him with England's highest. The White House doors were never barred against him. Newspapers took pains to chronicle his lightest word, his casual comings and goings. Matrons—witness Mrs. Wilson—were glad to give him opportunity with their daughters.

She wondered if ever there had been a time when brains and character had really amounted to more in the world of affairs than cunning and meanness. Probably not. Probably history lied about the past as current reporting lied about the present. There'd probably never been a time when meanness was not in the ascendency, because meanness will work for petty ends and character will not.

Burton was not the only person here who inspired contempt. Helen Wilson's mother had snobbery and greed written plainly on her face. Jeanne Mazell was nice, and so were one or two other of these people gathered here, notably Billy Valdemagara. But even he, aristocrat by birth and a gentleman by happy accident, seemed to chum around with swine. How could a man like Paul Weedon be accepted, for even a single second, unless those who accepted him had traits of character so like his that contempt did not occur to them!

She despised herself that she did not release herself from Burton's arms instantly. Had there been only herself to consider, she might have done so. But the man had threatened Larry's fortune, and she did not believe that he uttered threats lightly.

She frowned faintly. How could it be possible for Burton to ruin Larry? But she knew that there were intricacies of finance incomprehensible to her. Somehow she believed that Burton could do what he said he'd do. And once again, the utter absurdity of the whole situation swept over her, so that she was smiling when Billy Valdemagara thrust his red head through the press of dancers and cut in.

"I am disappointed in you, Mrs. Tracy," said the Spaniard.

"In me? I'm afraid that you're a fickle man, Bill," she laughed. "A while ago I flattered myself that I had won a heart, but now—"

His freckled face wrinkled in a grin at her obviously sham pathos.

"That was before I found you smiling at the dull Burton," he explained. "Behold me, languishing on the outskirts of the dance floor, waiting a reasonable time before cutting in upon that odious man, saying to myself, 'No, it is not right that you should place so much charm before Mrs. Tracy,' reminding myself, again and again, that Larry is my friend.

"And then, finally, I approach you, and Burton has made you smile. It is a shock, Mrs. Tracy, a distinct shock. Had any of these other women been pleased with him, I would have dismissed it from my thoughts. They are obvious creatures who cannot understand the obvious. But you—I thought better of you."

"Some day I'll explain the smile," she said. "Just now, suppose we let it be understood that I felt your yearning and my lips merely expressed the anticipation in my heart."

"I Told Her"

The marquis beamed upon her. As outward expression of his inner feeling, he whirled her amazingly around, and Larry Tracy, looking on, marveled once again at the exquisite grace of the woman he had married. For Valdemagara danced with a rhythm unknown to many professionals. Yet Joyce followed his every step with utter ease and with an abandon that only superb ability could save from awkwardness.

Mrs. Wilson had left to dance with some one and he and Helen were alone.

"Larry," said the girl, "I'm afraid."

"Of whom?"

"Of your—wife," she replied. She rushed into words. "Larry—she—she looked at me as though she knew—what had happened out there." She glanced toward the cliff. "How could she?"

"I told her," he answered.

"Told her?" She was unbelieving. "Why, Larry—what can she think—of me?"

"I've been wondering," he bitterly replied, "what she's thinking of me."

"Is she—will she—divorce you?" He shook his head. "I'll never let her do that."

"You'll not let her! Larry, what do you mean?"

"I mean," he said, "that I love her."

And I think it's keen
But it can't dope out
What the brokers mean.

Though I read their views
Nearly ev'ry day
I can't understand
What they wish to say.

"We expect a rise."
Say McGrew & Gryme—
"So we wouldn't buy
At the present time."

"Stocks are due to drop."
Reason Zilch & Dow.
"They are over-priced—
Buy the best ones now."

"We are now convinced."
Writes E. Hutton Brown
"Prices should go up
If they don't go down."

"It is our belief."
Say DeWitt & Blink,
"It is time to buy

Queen Elected At Seymour School

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, Dec. 15—The Seymour high school students elected their annual queen Friday night at an old fashioned box-supper, in the auditorium of the high school. Funds realized from the sale of the boxes will be used for defraying expenses of the 1930 annual "The Panther." Each class placed a candidate in the field for queen and in the elimination contests the freshmen and sophomore girls were eliminated leaving Miss Janette Plants, senior, and Miss Thelma Shawver, junior, in the finals. The seniors were victorious and their candidate was crowned queen in a very impressive ceremony. She was presented a large box of candy, which she presented to her losing opponent. Votes were given for money paid on annuals. Christmas cards sold, adults present who registered for candidates, boxes brought, money paid for boxes, and chances at a cake which was given away.

Miss Ruby Lee Shipp, English teacher and sponsor for the sophomore class held the lucky ticket and won the cake. A very interesting program was given, and music was furnished throughout the evening by an orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Lee Coy.

Chillicothe Streets In Holiday Attire

Special to The Record News.

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, Dec. 15.—Chillicothe business streets have all been dolled up in their new holiday attire, following the stringing of electric wires across the streets, and the placing of fir trees in front of the business houses, and beautiful Christmas window displays in all the stores. The placing of the fir trees this season has been sponsored by the local American Legion, and has met with widespread approval and cooperation. The Legion and Lions club will present a community Christmas tree in the city hall on Christmas eve.

Honey as a Sweet

Until a few generations ago honey was man's principal cherished sweet. It has since been largely replaced by granulated sugar. As long as man depended on honey for all of his sweetening, he was in no danger of overeating of this form of carbohydrate, for honey was comparatively rare, and a delicacy, while sugar is now so cheap that millions now use it in large quantities daily.

Honey is prepared by the bee from the nectar of flowers. One pound of honey may often be the result of the nectar from 2,000,000 flowers or more. A hive of 75,000 bees will produce only about a pound of honey in one day during the busy season, working from dawn to the last bit of light. Honey is not really nectar, as it has undergone a sort of digestion in what is called the bee's "honey stomach." The bee has two stomachs, and the work of the honey stomach is to cause the nectar to undergo a chemical change and become honey as we know it.

Flower nectar is 75 per cent water, while the final honey is only 18 per cent water. The form of sugar is also changed from cane sugar to grape sugar. After the honey is put into the hive it is further evaporated by the bees who cause their wings to whir somewhat rapidly, in effect like an electric fan evaporating the water. The bees also introduce a small amount of formic acid which is probably to keep the honey.

The flavor and color of honey differs according to the flowers from which it is produced. The light honey usually sells for more than the dark but cannot be considered any more wholesome. In America the principal honeys are: buckwheat, a dark honey; orange blossom, a light honey; white sage; white clover, sweet clover; horse mint; alfalfa and basswood.

Honey is very concentrated. A tablespoonful furnishes approximately a hundred calories, and for this reason it should not be used in large quantities as food, but simply be used as a flavoring. I do not consider it a great deal better than other forms of sugar, as it has a tendency to cause flatulence in some people. It is a little better than the commercial sugars, however, since it contains some important mineral substances in the form of magnesia, phosphoric acid and iron.

In using honey in the diet, it is advisable to use it with either bread of muffins or other starches since this will cause a fermentation in the stomach and intestines producing much gas. If ever used with cereals it should be used with toast or waffles which have been completely dextrinised. Honey can be used to sweeten lemonade or orangeade. These drinks should be either used between meals or in place of a meal. The habit of spreading bread with honey is not a good one, although melba toast may be used occasionally in this way. Honey can also be used as a dressing for fruit salads, mixing equal parts of honey, orange juice and salad oil. Honey ice cream can be made by mixing one quart of thin cream with three-fourths of a cupful of delicately flavored honey.

When honey is bought for a large family it is often advisable to buy the five-gallon can and store in a dry place. Honey is not harmed by crystallizing as this is usually an indication that honey is pure. It can be liquified by placing the containers in a pan of warm water.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Sneezing Each Morning

Question—N. H. asks: "Please tell me through your column what causes sneezing and a cold every morning, regardless of season, whether summer or winter."

Answer—You must be suffering from a chronic state of catarrh which makes the irritating discharge in your nose and makes you sneeze each morning. If you will send me your full name and address I will be glad to send you some special articles on the cause and cure of catarrhal disorders.

Too Much Salt

Question—C. B. asks: "What is the cause of one wanting an excessive amount of salt in one's food?"

Answer—The cause of this craving is due to the fact that most people cook their foods too long, and also cook them improperly, so that all of the organic sodium, chloride and other salts are destroyed. Try the waterless cooking method and I am sure that you will find your craving for seasoning of food to be lessened.

Enemas

Question—J. H. writes: "Kindly give me your opinion of the continued use of the enema. I have been told that one can indulge in its use daily for a lifetime without ill effect. Will appreciate your opinion on the subject."

Answer—I am sure that a small enema of plain water each day is of decided benefit and can do no more harm than washing your face daily. The membrance of the colon is suited to such treatment, and is simply kept cleaner than when the bowels are allowed to move in a normal manner. However, the fact that you require an enema shows that either your diet is wrong or that you have prolapsed or kinked intestines. You should study to find the cause of constipation, then you can remove such cause and not be bothered with taking an enema each day.

Hollis Decorates For Christmas Shoppers

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., Dec. 15.—The Christmas shopping season was ushered in last week with evergreens being placed along Broadway in front of every business establishment in Hollis. The streets of the business district have been decorated with red and green lights, gayly decorated Christmas trees and tinsel. All the merchants have dressed out their show windows in holly wreaths, red and green lights and artificial snow, while the interior of the stores have been transformed into magic gift shops. The spirit of Christmas predominates in Hollis and Hollis shops.

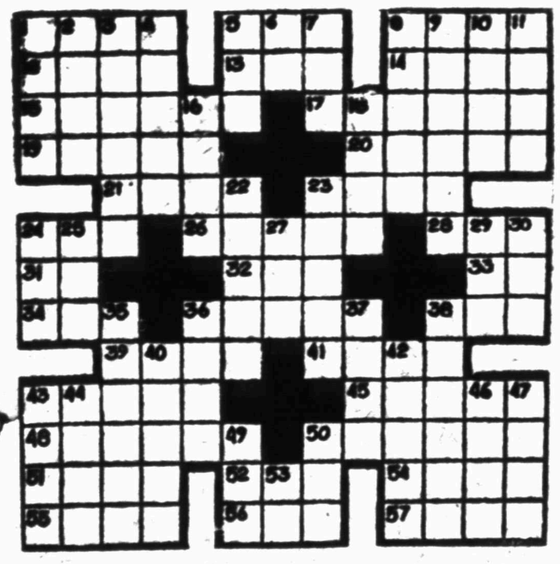

Hardeman County Lodge Association Meets

Special to The Record News.

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, Dec. 15.—The Hardeman County Association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs met here Thursday night. All lodges in the county were represented, the attendance being around 140. Visitors from Crowell were also present, and the Crowell lodge was accepted as a member of the association. H. Cole of Medicine Mound is the president. A short program of music, readings and interesting talks was rendered. The next meeting will be held in Medicine Mound in March. A social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Tunney and Dempsey

Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey happened to hit New York about the same time. They have been two of the most remarkable products of the ring, although about as opposite as two men could be.

They are far more interesting than such giants as Jeffries, Jack Johnson and Jess Willard, where bulk and strength played such star roles in the championship dramas of their reigns.

Dempsey weighed 183 when he whipped Willard. Tunney weighed 186 when he beat Dempsey at Philadelphia. So the heavyweight area for 10 years has been under the control of fighters weighing less than 190 pounds.

Dempsey was practically the last word in flaming ring spirit—speed, smash, crash and action.

Tunney was practically the last word in self-development with few outstanding physical qualities to start with. Tunney lacked the speed quickness and physical ability of Jim Corbett and other good boxers. He developed the speed that he had. But his main accomplishment, outside of perfect condition, was the slow and gradual improvement of his punching accuracy. He had at least four or five brands of punching to work with and while he was not in any way phenomenal with any brand he was at least effective.

Both Dempsey and Tunney worked out their pugilistic destinies effectively with what nature gave them. Of the two, Dempsey was naturally more interesting to watch, because offense is nearly always more interesting than defense Dempsey's reign lasted for seven years and it was the most spectacular seven years from all heavyweight history. It was nearly all action and drama, tumult and excitement. It isn't likely that another Dempsey will come along for the next half century. For that matter it will be a long time before another heavyweight starts with Tunney's original limited physical equipment and builds himself into a champion. He came closer to getting 100 per cent from his capabilities than any competitor in the game.

Covering Football

There is only one sure way of pleasing two rival football crowds in the treatment of a game. First: The better team must always win. Second: The losing team must always go down fighting or else achieve a moral victory.

It is a fairly well established fact that the better team does not always win in a football game—meaning, of course, as the game is played that one day. Through the recent season teams that played the better all-around football for certain afternoons were often beaten by teams that did not play quite so well. It is that brand of a game; as mentioned often before in these dispatches, the most basically unsound of all the competitions.

But the average football fan happens also to be the most biased, the most prejudiced and the most unreasonable of all who follow sport, no matter what other game you might name. He gets worked up into an emotional frenzy, giving little credit to lack of partisanship on the part of some football writer who doesn't give a rap if either team is beaten 100 to 0.

Most of them are fair to this extent—all they want is 100 per cent the best of it.

In the course of a season team after team is beaten that might easily have won with an equal split in the luck of the day. To suggest anything of the sort is to be placed as badly biased and unfair. It would be simple enough if the score always tells the story. It tells the story of the final result—but it doesn't always tell the story of the game as it happened to be played by six or eight running jumps.

Learning Golf

"Why is it," asks H. L., "that so few golfers ever seem to improve? Is it an impossible game for the average player to learn, or is most of the instruction unsound? There must be something of this sort when you see so many go on year after year without improving their scores."

One trouble with much golf instruction is that it takes up certain defects in the mechanics of the swing without going into the important fundamentals upon which the swing must be built.

There are such fundamentals and without them all the correction of certain faults is of little help except for a day or two.

Another fault lies with the average golfer who hasn't the time or the patience to take these fundamentals and build on them through study and practice and hard work.

A tip that will correct a slice or correct a hook may last for a day or two or a week or two, but it is only a temporary cure. Unless there is an understanding of the fundamentals covering the swing and the willingness to work on these fundamentals, any hope of real improvement might as well be thrown through the window.

Rice May Play In Home and Home Go In 1930 Grid Season

DALLAS, Dec. 15. (AP)—Rice institute of Houston, Texas, and the University of Arizona may meet on the gridiron the next two years in a home and home engagement, it was reported today.

Contracts were mailed to the Arizona institution, but had not been returned to Houston tonight, Rice officials said. Pending their arrival, no announcement will be made, they said.

A report that arrangements for the game were completed in El Paso Saturday was unconfirmed.

Doctors Ordered To Make Writing Legible

OSLO, Dec. 15. (US)—The number of fatal errors made by chemists and nurses in misreading prescriptions has led the Norwegian parliament to pass a special law under which doctors are forced to make their handwriting legible.

Under the statute physicians are ordered to comply with the strictest rules of penmanship or pay a fine.

TOD MORGAN VS. BENNY BASS GO

The Great Shires Will Fight Again

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. (AP)—Tod Morgan, Seattle holder of the junior lightweight championship, defends his title against Benny Bass in Madison Square garden this week, but even this titular affray will have a tough time competing for public interest with the second ring start of Art (the Great) Shires pugnacious first baseman of the Chicago White Sox.

Shires Fights

Shirer, who knocked dangerous Dan Daley of Cleveland kicking in a few seconds in his first professional ring bout last week, takes on George Trafton, big Chicago football player, in a five rounder at the White City arena, Chicago, tomorrow night. Confidence comes from both camps, but Chicago fans are willing to wait for the fight itself to determine the relative merits of football and baseball training grounds for the prize ring.

Slim Schedule

Morgan's defense of his title against Bass heads a rather slim schedule of shows for the Metropolitan district. A master boxer with little or no punch, Morgan is tackling one of the most punishing punchers in the business in Bass. If the bout goes its full limit of 15 rounds there appears to be no reason to doubt that Morgan will retain his crown, but some critics believe the slightly built title holder will wilt under Bass' deadly body punching. Nel Tarleton, English lightweight, meets Al Ridgeway of Jersey City in the eight round semifinal. Another eight rounder will bring together Dom Volante of England and Harry Carlton of Jersey City, lightweights.

Cuban Fighter

In the only other big show here, the New Coliseum offers a 10-rounder between Kid Chocolate, Cuban featherweight and Dominick Petrone of Harlem on Wednesday. Rene de Vos, Belgian middleweight, will take on Babe McGorgary of Oklahoma; Jack Kid Berg, English lightweight, tackles Tony Caragliano, New York, and Leonard (Young) Zazzarino, Jersey City lightweight, battles Jose Martinez of Spain, in three other 10 rounders on the same card.

A 10 round meeting betweens Armand Emanuel, Los Angeles, and Jack Gagnon of Boston, heads an all heavyweight show at the Boston garden Friday night. Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle negro, and Billy Wallace, Cleveland lightweight, furnish the chief entertainment at Detroit Friday.

St. Edward's Team Elects Captains For 1930 Season

AUSTIN, Dec. 15.—Henry Parma of Ennis and Roland Blackwell of Weslaco were elected co-captains of the 1930 football team of St. Edward's university Tuesday by the 1929 letter men. Just before the election, the faculty committee for athletics announced the voting of letters to 19 members of the 1929 squad.

The men who will receive the letters are: ends, Pat McLaughlin of Taylor, Farris Brotherman, San Antonio, Al Vance, Devine, and Bob Frisch, Elgin, Ill.; tackles, Roland Blackwell of Weslaco, Al Vogt of Victoria, and Louis Munoz of El Paso; guards, Louis Hertenberger of Waco, Jack Caplis of Elm Grove, La., and Elias Rougeaux of Bastile, La.; center, Marvin Farr of Sherman; quarterbacks, Irwin Fanette of Beaumont and K. J. Kivlin of San Antonio; halfbacks, Harold Jansing, West Phalia, Dave Figari, Galveston, Henry Parma, Ennis and Mario Ransom, San Antonio; fullbacks, Anthony Bomba of Yorktown and Nels Macki of Stambough, Mich.

The schedule for 1930, although not yet complete, was revealed by Al Sarafiny, director of athletics, as having been reduced from 11 to nine games. Teams played this year who are not on the new schedule are the University of Texas and Baylor university. Games thus far approved by the faculty committee are:

Sept. 27.—Not yet definite.
Oct. 4.—Rice institute (date tentative.)
Oct. 11.—Daniel Baker college of Austin.
Oct. 17.—Southwestern university at Georgetown.
Oct. 25.—Trinity university at Austin.
Oct. 31.—Austin college at Sherman.
Nov. 11.—Howard Payne college (place undecided).
Nov. 20.—Simmons university at Austin.
Nov. 27.—Texas School of Mines at El Paso.

Brooklyn Dodgers May Settle Long Internal Strife

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. (UP)—Prospects were held out today for an amicable settlement soon in the internal Brooklyn baseball war.

Both factions are understood to have made concessions and peace probably will be restored within the ranks of the Brooklyn club for the first time since the late Charles H. Ebbets died in 1926.

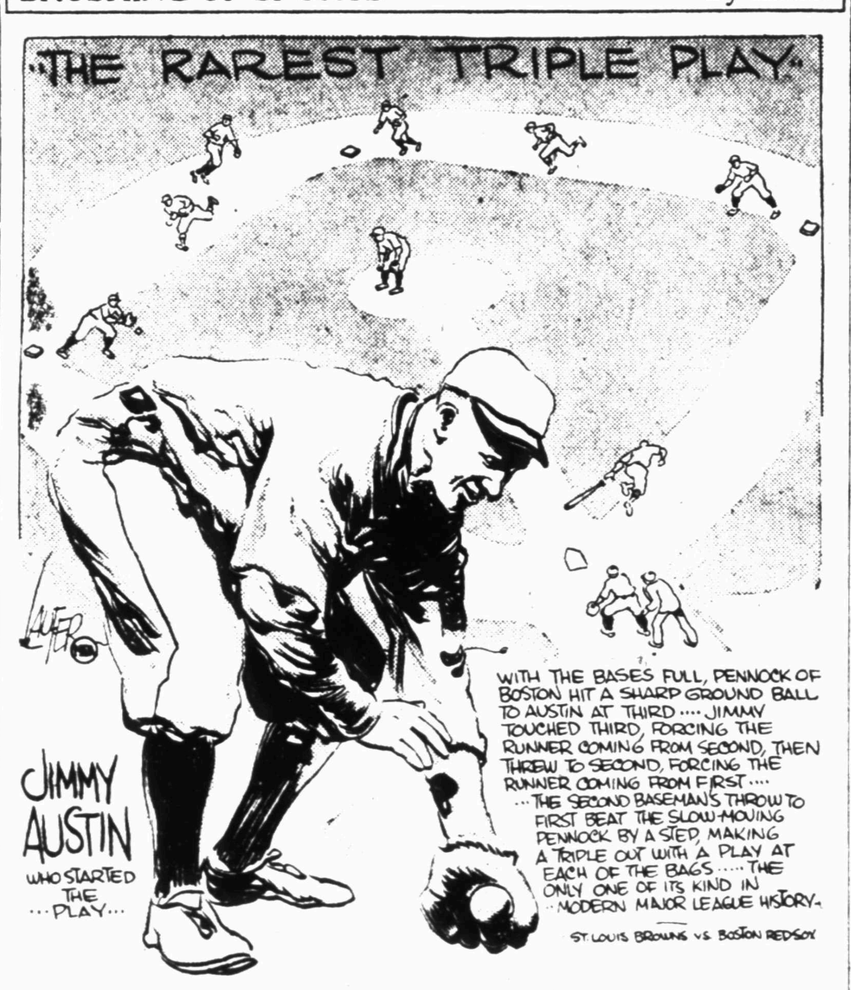

Through the efforts of President John Heydler of the National league and Commissioner K. M. Landis, a temporary compromise is said to have been agreed to by the two warring groups.

Under the terms of the armistice Frank York will be promoted from secretary to president, succeeding Wilbert Robinson who will get a two-year contract as manager.

A fifth director will be named to serve on the board, and President Heydler has agreed to accept this post until such time as the two sides can get together and select another director agreeable to all concerned.

Internal dissension has kept the affairs of the Brooklyn club in a turmoil for three years, and if it is true that at last peace has been restored the Robins should return to their rightful place as one of the most powerful clubs in the National league.

BRUSHING UP SPORTS By Laufer

Soph Football Sensations Feature Sports During Past Season in East

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 15. (INS)—That this year was more conducive to sophomore football sensations than probably any other in the history of the sport seemed to be more and more evident with the spontaneous ascension of Bill Morton of Dartmouth following so closely upon the heels of Albie Booth, Yale second-year star.

Being a third-string substitute under Al (Special Delivery) Marsters and Tommy Longnecker wasn't such a roseate situation for any aspiring gridiron back but it was the nearest Bill Morton, humble soph rookie, could dare yearn for with such recognized performers above him. When Marsters' strained back rendered him hors de combat and Longnecker's virility appeared on the verge of waning, Morton had the same opportunity before him that the secretary of state would have, should the president and vice president go into retirement.

Whacking Surprise

Just how Bill Morton, the 20-year-old kid, would react to this wholly unexpected chance was entirely up to Bill Morton himself. Suffice to say the kid was a whacking surprise—to those unacquainted with the youth. To those who knew the record of Morton, he did precisely what was expected of him.

The wizard of New Rochelle high's grid team, Bill entered Dartmouth with a sizable reputation but like most schoolboy prodigies his importance was overlooked when it came to varsity consideration. Undaunted and unconcerned, Bill became president of the first-year class and proved to be better than the next man in freshman football, baseball and hockey. With such excellent preparation Morton made the scrub team this season, and, with the rest of the verdant material, warmed the bench while the exploits of Marsters and the dependable playing of Longnecker hogged the headlines.

When the weary Longnecker failed to get away a punt in the initial period of the encounter against Brown and the blocked ball was converted into a tally, Head Coach Jackson Cannell decided to replace Longnecker for a while and see what "that kid" Morton could do.

The new arrival to the ranks of the Green transmitted that inspiration, confidence and energy that youths like himself and Albie Booth are capable of. After it only required a few minutes time to ram home the fact that here was the logical successor to Al Marsters. The dazzling open field running, the far-reaching punts, the baffling, accurate forward passes and his timely interference maneuvers, summed up, are a monument to the class of this 5-foot-11, 168-pound quarterback.

Added to the list of Longnecker, Johnson, Wolff, McCall, Frigard and Sutton is Bill Morton, who, in time, will undoubtedly top them all because of his superior ability to gain much yardage, evade tacklers, and run back opposing punts aside from his attributes mentioned above.

The folks around these parts are in a conundrum endeavoring to figure out where this kid has been all the time and his meteoric rise before their very eyes. Taylor of Yale, understudy to Booth, would probably make just this sort of a hit if tossed into Morton's situation but being tossed into a situation and making good in a big way are two different things.

Pro Football Team Loses Game to Saunders Team

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 15. (UP)—The Green Bay Packers, national professional football champions of 1929, lost their first game of the season today before 10,000 fans, to Clarence Saunders' Tigers, 20 to 6.

The Tigers, southern independent football champions, scored during the second half on two long passes and an intercepted pass. The Packers scored their touchdown in the last minute of play by recovering a fumble and plunging through the line.

Girls Basket Ball Team at T. C. U. Is Getting Under Way

FORT WORTH, Dec. 15.—Girls' basket ball, under the direction of Miss Virginia Brock of Putnam, Texas, student manager, is now under way at Texas Christian university.

There are four teams playing in intramural games, a freshman team, a sophomore team, a junior-senior team and a varsity team. Girls from any class except the freshman are eligible for the varsity team.

Letters will be awarded to all girls practicising 30 hours on their team and playing in at least three class games. Points will also be given, credited toward sweater and blanket awards of the Woman's Athletic association.

Girls who have reported to date for basket ball include: Misses Mozelle Clutter, Bonham; Harriet Griffin, Aledo; Mae Housel, San Benito; Elizabeth McKissick, Cisco; Lucy Mae Merritt, De Leon; Marian Miller, Waco; Julia Merle Morgan, Longview; Lillian Preston, Mexia; Ines Reynolds, Houston.

Hazel Rightberger, Dallas; Edna Sewell, Jacksboro; Ruth Tarpley, Welasco; Madeline Westbrook, San Angelo; and Virginia Bryson, Pearl Decker, Loree Guhl, Frances Hutchings, Dorthea Proctor, Mariam Smith and Ruth Williamson of Fort Worth.

Grid Notes From Pony Corral

Big Choc Sanders, last year's all-American guard and this year's leader of the Ponies, will be the left guard on Ray Morrison's all-star team from the Southwest when they meet Coach Phelan's Big Ten aggregation in the Ownby stadium for the Dixie classic in January. Choc was sent an invitation by the coach of the all-West team which plays the annual benefit game with the all-East team each year in San Francisco, but for some unexplainable reason the Pony captain failed to get the invitation and the officials of the game in the West believed that Sanders refused the invitation by not accepting immediately, and withdrew it. It was a very unfortunate happening because the big guard wanted to make the trip.

The announcement that Sanders would not make the trip to the West coast to play in the annual all-West vs. all-East game on Dec. 25 and that he would be on Ray Morrison's all-Southwestern star team certainly strengthened the Southwest's midsection of the line. From the reports, the Big Ten eleven will have plenty of drive and power with such men as the all-American Pest Welch in its backfield and Morrison will need all the power he can get.

The undefeated Red and Blue machine put up its moleskins after the championship game with the Horned Frogs but S. M. U. has postponed storing the athletic "pare-Phenalia" until after the New year's game. All the bleachers, scoreboards, temporary seats, and football equipment is usually stored after the football season until next year but the S. M. U. officials invited the big benefit game to be played in their plant, and have put off storing any of the temporary seats as it is hoped by the officials that the entire capacity of the stadium will be needed to seat the crowd.

MANERO TAKES CATALINA OPEN

Pro Golfer Is Winner of $7,500 Tourney

AVALON, Catalina Island, Calif., Dec. 15. (UP)—Tony Manero, a dapper little Italian professional from Elsmford, N. Y., shot parshattering golf here today to win the $7,500 Catalina open tournament. He was five strokes under par with a 59 for today's 18 holes and had a total of 186 strokes for the three days' 54 holes.

Second place went to Olin Dutra, of Los Angeles, who had held a one-stroke lead over the field at the start of today's round. He cracked and three-putted the 11th green twice—the 18 holes today consisted of twice around the second nine—to take a 61.

Dutra was three strokes under par 64 and his card for the tournament was 187.

Wild Bill Mehlhorn of New York, was even better than Manero today and took a 56 to make a nice climb into third place with a total of 188.

Manero took first money, $1,500. Dutra won $1,000 and Mehlhorn $750.

Four stars tied for fourth place with 189. Among them was Frank Walsh of Appleton, Wis., who had a brilliant 57 for the day. Charles Guest of Los Angeles, took a 62; John Golden of Patterson, N. J., had a 61, and Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, who last week won his second consecutive national P. G. A. title equalled Manero's 59.

They divided fourth to seventh money of $600, $500, $400 and $300. The $1,800 gave them $450 each.

One stroke behind, with 190, "Lighthorse" Harry Cooper of Los Angeles, won $200.

Ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth money, totaling $500, was divided by Ray Mangrum, a Los Angeles caddy, Tom Stevens of Culver City, Calif., W. H. Cox of Brooklyn, and Joe Turnesa of Elmsford. They had cards of 191.

There were 36 prizes of $50 each. Ray Coleman of Culver City, headed the amateurs with 199. Johnny Dawson of Chicago, was second in the non-money group and each of them received a radio set.

Lack of rain put the first nine in poor shape and necessitated its abandonment today. The twice around the second nine schedule was then adopted.

Carnegie Tech Gridders Enjoying Calif. Vacation

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15. (UP)—Carnegie Tech's Tartans, having paused in their sightseeing trip long enough to take a 45 to 13 beating from Southern California Saturday, resumed their vacationing today.

The team went to Catalina Island for the day and took a look at some of the famous golfers playing in the Catalina open tournament, then returned to the mainland tonight. Late Monday the athletes will leave for Palo Alto, Calif., making as leisurely a trip eastward as they did in coming to the coast.

Carnegie Tech outplayed Southern California in the first two quarters, even though the score was 13-all. But in the second half the Tartans wilted beneath the savage charges of the Trojan linesmen and the super-plunging and weaving of Russell Sanders.

As a result of Southern California's decisive victory, local interest in the Trojan game with Pittsburgh at Pasadena on New year's day was greatly increased.

Drive to Pass Tariff Bill Starts Today

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. (US)—With the tax reduction bill out of the way, a final drive will open in the senate tomorrow to get the tariff bill passed before the end of January.

GARDEN ARENA MAKING MONEY

Many Events Carded in Short Time

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The sports world, at least that part of it ruled by Madison Square garden, can report to President Hoover that business is booming as never before and that fear of panics in this business at least is just a laugh.

In the past few weeks when in the minds of many prosperity hung in the balance and the stock market quivered from past punishment, the box office men at the garden have been developing tin ears listening to the rustle of large bills and the clink of much silver. In 15 days the sports attractions at the battle palace have broken all records for receipts for that time.

Record Gates

Round figures show a new record sum of $501,000 passed over the counter in two weeks during the six day bicycle race, two fight cards and four hockey games at the garden. Individually the bike race set a new record and the intake at the ice skirmishes is running at least 10 per cent ahead of receipts last season. The big boxing boodles come and go with attractions.

Hockey Attractions

The pine saucer that was wood to the carpenters but home to the rider for a whole week, was torn down in time to accommodate $24,000 worth of customers for the National league hockey game between the New York Rangers and Pittsburgh, Dec. 8, Sunday night.

Monday night the patrons of the Christmas fund paid $92,000 to see Phil Scott win one from Ottio von Porat on a delicate foul that was billed as a heavyweight elimination contest. The money changers rested Wednesday night but Tuesday and Thursday hockey games drew a total of $31,000.

The hall was changed back to a fight arena in time to lure $107,000 worth of patrons in for Jimmy McLarnin's sensational knockout of Ruby Goldstein Friday night. Not a dime passed through the turnstiles last night but this evening a packed house and $27,000 in receipts greeted the Boston-New York American hockey tilt.

Aviator Football Players Have Game Down Santone Way

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 15. (AP)—Pete Heffner's 23rd infantry siege guns proved too much for the aviators of Kelly field today, the flyers coming out on the short end of a 12-6 score in the third gridiron encounter between these two aggregations this year. The other two engagements were tie scores.

The game was extremely hard fought, and outstanding feature being hard tackling by both elevens. The resultant victory gives 23rd infantry the right to meet Fort Crockett, winner of the 7-6 battle with Fort Warren Saturday.

Texas Aggie Sport News in Brief

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Dec. 15.—J. G. "Bull" Floyd, recently elected by his teammates to captain the 1930 Texas Aggie gridsters, is not only one of the strongest defensive backs in the conference, but holds in addition to his gridiron laurels, the javelin record of the Southwest, having tossed the tipped spear 204 feet 4½ inches in the conference meet at Dallas last year to beat the former record of 197 feet set by "Ox" Dietrich, former Aggie track and football star. Floyd was the mainstay of the Aggie interference during the past season and was one of the hardest blockers and tacklers in the conference. He lettered at guard for the Aggies in 1928 but was shifted to the backfield by Coach Matty Bell this year. He is a former Gilmer high school athlete and earned freshman numerals in both football and track at A. & M.

Honors in the contest to determine what former student of A. & M. came the longest distance to see the Turkey day clash between the Texas Aggies and Texas Longhorns at Kyle field this year went to J. R. Puckett, Everett, Wash., it has been announced by E. E. McQuillen, secretary of the Former Students' association. Mr. Puckett came from within 100 miles of the Canadian border and was run a close race by E. R. Brecher, who journeyed from Niles, Mich., to see the game. The winner of the distance marathon was rewarded not only by seeing the Aggies trounce the Longhorns, 13 to 0, but with an engraved silver A. & M. buckle and belt.

More than 85 candidates answered the call for volunteers for the Texas Aggie freshman cage team issued by Coach Roswell Higginbotham Tuesday. Work has already been started and following a period of drill on basket ball fundamentals, Coach Higginbotham expects to have his charges in shape for scrimmage with the varsity cagers within a short time. A promising characteristic noted about the freshman candidates this season is that a large number of them stand more than six feet tall, a feature that the freshman teams of the past few years have lacked. Coach Higginbotham is being assisted in his work with the freshman cagers by Red Petty, former Aggie gridster and captain of the A. & M. cage team last season.

ARMY TREKS WEST

Biff Jones and Army Players Go to Calif. Dec. 18

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 15. (AP)—Biff Jones, Army coach, will take 110 football players on the long trek West to meet Stanford at Palo Alto, Dec. 28. The players will be drawn from the varsity scrub and plebe teams. Only members of the A squad, or varsity, will participate in the game but the scrubs and plebes will be used for practice while on the road or at Palo Alto before the game.

The Army team will leave here Dec. 18 in a special train. Jones plans three workouts en route, at Galesburg, Ills., Syracuse, Kansas, and Needles, Calif.

COACHES MEET TO FIX GAME

Buckaroos-Jackets in Title Go Saturday

BEAUMONT, Texas, Dec. 15. (AP)—School Superintendent George M. Sims and Coach Tom Dennis passed through here tonight en route to Austin where tomorrow morning they will represent the Port Arthur Yellow Jackets in a conference with Breckenridge High school officials on the site of the championship high school football game Saturday.

They held several long distance conferences with Breckenridge officials Saturday night but found themselves "talking in circles" so decided on the Austin meeting in the office of Roy B. Henderson, secretary of the Interscholastic league.

Indications now point to a neutral field at either Austin, Waco or Dallas. The Beaumont Enterprise was informed today that Breckenridge favors Dallas, while Port Arthur favors Austin, and that Waco might eventually be selected as a compromise. It appears highly unlikely that either Port Arthur or Breckenridge will get the game on their home town lots.

Southern Football Teams Will Play Harvard in '30

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 15. (INS)—Football teams of the University of Texas and Virginia come to the Harvard stadium in 1931, according to the schedule for that year made public by William J. Bingham, director of Harvard athletics. It will be Virginia's second visit here, having first come in 1920, when the Crimson triumphed 24 to 0.

The schedule, which has two open dates, follows: Oct. 3—Open; Oct. 10—New Hampshire; Oct. 17—Army at West Point; Oct. 24.—Texas; Oct. 31—Virginia; Nov. 7—Dartmouth; Nov. 14—Open; Nov. 21—Yale.

Bingham said that negotiations were underway for the opening game with some small New England college. The second open date falls on the date usually given to Holy Cross.

It is believed likely that the Purple would again occupy that date before final arrangements have been completed. Although there was some speculation over the possibility of Harvard resuming football relations with Princeton, the other member of the former "Big Three," it was believed unlikely as the date falls just before the Yale game.

Al Smith Has Only Solarium in New York

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. (US)—He could not take "The Sidewalks of New York" to the southland, so former Governor Alfred E. Smith has brought Miami to the metropolis. He has added it to his 11-room penthouse atop the roof of No. 51 Fifth avenue.

There enclosed in a steam-heated glass solarium, amid living tropical foliage he can bask in the sunshine.

When the new sun parlor is completed, the Democratic party's recent national standard bearer will have the only private roof top solarium in the great city.

Wages of Women In Cotton Mills Fall

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. (US)—The wages of women employed in cotton mills throughout the country have dropped 13 per cent in the last four years, according to a report today by the women's bureau of the labor department.

New Hampshire's rate is the highest in the country according to the report, with an average weekly salary for full time work of $20.31. On the other extreme is Alabama, with a low figure average of $11.88.

Wacoan Shot by Negro In Serious Condition

WACO, Texas, Dec. 15. (AP)—James T. Duncan, 22, shot early this morning in a difficulty with a negro, was reported to be in a serious condition tonight. Jake Tolbert, 27, negro, was arrested several hours later and lodged in the county jail charged with assault with intent to murder.

GREAT SHIRES FIGHT TONIGHT

Hack Wilson in Dilemma Over Bout

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—Charles Arthur Shires, the self-confessed great man, will make his second appearance as a professional fist fighter Monday night, with Hack Wilson, his opponent in the proposed battle of the ages, absent from the ringside.

Wilson notified Promoter Jim Mullen tonight he would be unable to be on hand with his notebook to see the Great Shires in action, due to the pleadings of his wife to remain in Martinsburg, W. Va.

The Cubs' famous center fielder decided to remain at home after William L. Veeck, president of the National league champions, called Wilson on the long distance telephone urging him to give up the idea of fighting Shires in Chicago next month.

Wilson's Plight

"Yesterday afternoon while I was out duck hunting," Wilson telephoned, "Mr. Veeck called up Mrs. Wilson and asked her to join with him in urging me not to fight. So I am not coming."

Wilson said he had not definitely decided to abandon the match, but gave evidence of weakening. He said he was unable to sleep because he was so busy counting $10,000. Promoter Mullen had offered him and wouldn't be able to sleep again tonight because Mullen had boosted his offer to $15,000.

Dough Looks Good

"I hate to pass up that dough and may decide to come to Chicago Tuesday or Wednesday for a final decision," Wilson yelled over the telephone.

The Great Shires accused Wilson of running out on the match. He said that Wilson need have no fear of getting hurt provided he could take care of himself in the ring.

"Wilson will be alone in that ring after the fight starts," Shires said. "Nobody can help him. He will have to take care of himself. If I knock him out I promise to take good care of him by dragging him to his corner instead of leaving him lay alone in the center of the ring."

Shires vs. Trafton

Shires will tangle with George Trafton, 225-pound center of the Chicago Bears, in one of the preliminary bouts scheduled for five rounds or less on Promoter Mullen's card of 44 rounds of boxing tomorrow night. Trafton swings with such terrific force that he usually falls on his face whenever he misses a punch, but when he connects, his opponent gets into immediate communication with the stars and resin.

Shires required 21 seconds to stretch "mysterious" Dan Daly on the rug in the same arena a week ago and says Trafton will go out the same way after he gets a couple of socks in the front porch.

Shires' Free Boast

The great man says he will dispose of Trafton, who outweighs him by 40 pounds, in a hurry. In fact, the fight is already won so far as he is concerned. Trafton, the experts say, must win in a hurry, if he wins at all, as Shires with two weeks of boxing training behind him, is beginning to show signs of knowing what it is all about.

"Shires thinks he is a great fighter because he knocked over that push-over a week ago," Trafton said, "but the folks can quit worrying about a Shires-Wilson go after I get through with him tomorrow night. I'll take care of that sucker like he took care of Dan Daly."

Promoter Mullen reports a tremendous demand for tickets with prospects of another sell-out for the White City arena.

Mo. U. Gridders To Meet Colo. Eleven

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 15. (AP)—The University of Missouri football team will meet the University of Colorado gridders in Columbia next Oct. 4, and Oct. 17, 1931, at Boulder, Colo., under terms of a contract announced late today by Athletic Director C. L. Brewer.

The contract with Colorado fills up the eight-game Tiger schedule, but officials were attempting to gain permission of the Big Six conference for nine games next fall.

Negotiations are continuing for a Missouri-St. Louis university game at the dedication of the new Billiken stadium at St. Louis next Oct. 11.

Negotiations with the University of Texas have been dropped, but Brewer said it was highly possible that Missouri would play Texas in 1931.

AIRPORT TO BE FINISHED SOON

Electrans Plan Final Construction Work

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Dec. 15.—W. A. Asbill, general chairman, and Charles McGann, chairman of the finance committee of the Electra airport, report that plans are now complete and that the airport now under construction will be completed shortly.

The port is located three miles west of Electra on the Electra-Vernon highway on a 108-acre tract of land secured from the Magnolia company. The field will be in a circle shape and weeds have been cleared and runways one-half mile each way are being graded and oiled.

The name "Electra" will be painted in six-foot letters on a bed of white crushed rock so that pilots may see it at a great distance. A large aerial pointing to the north will be erected. The field will be graded at once and fences will be built around the entire field. A six-plane hangar will be built with the necessary equipment needed for a port of this size.

At a recent meeting of the finance committee composed of W. A. Asbill, Charles McGann, chairman, W. T. Waggoner, J. G. B. Totten and J. C. Shaw it was decided to incorporate the port at $10,000, half of this amount to be raised at once. Stock certificates valued at $25 will be offered to the public Tuesday, Dec. 17, and will be in charge of Charles McGann.

The Electra port has caused much interest in this part of the state and several prominent business men of nearby cities have offered their aid in helping to make it a successful one. Seth Barwise, president of the Texas Flying company of Fort Worth, and Henry Woods, vice president of the same company, attended a meeting here recently and gave some very helpful information concerning the construction of ports of today.

Piano-Legged Girls Keep Short Skirts

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. (UP)—The girls with the shapely legs in Paris are the ones who are adopting the new long skirts mode, while the piano-legged grade dames and the elongated matrons are sticking by the shorts, according to Baron de Meyer, European fashion expert, writing in the current Harper's Bazaar.

De Meyer believes the popularity of the long skirts among the debutantes of Paris is traceable directly to the younger generation's constant quest for novelty.

CARUSO'S BODY FINELY TOGGED

Clothes on Corpse Changed With Styles

PARIS, Dec. 15. (INS)—Although he has been dead more than eight years, Enrico Caruso, tenor of tenors, is still dressed in the height of fashion.

His embalmed body, a masterpiece of the embalmer's art comparable only to that of Lenin, is exhumed every three years from the tomb in the Pozzio Reale cemetery at Naples, and redressed according to the style dictates of the day.

The existence of this strange and little known ceremony, which is observed by a few intimate friends, was revealed by Tito Schipa, compatriot and one time confidant of the world's most famous tenor. Schipa, who belongs to the honored circle charged with the Caruso rites, told of the ceremony while in Paris fulfilling concert engagements.

"In doing this thing, we only carry into effect one of the last wishes of Caruso himself," Schipa said, "and we intend to keep it up as long as any of us still lives.

"Just now he is dressed in a smart cutaway with striped gray trousers, wing collar and the typical Caruso cravat. The suit fits him perfectly.

"Next year the time for the ceremony comes around again. What will we find for him then? We shall be guided by the fashion plates of the day.

"Enrico has been wonderfully well embalmed," Schipa continued. "The lifelike appearance is astonishing. They have even brought out fresh and natural color in his face. He never looked better on one of his best nights at the Scala or the Metropolitan."

Why did Caruso arrange for these dress rites? Schipa professes not to know. Perhaps the great tenor, ever particular to a fastidious degree about his personal appearance, was struck with horror at the thought of his shroud going to decay with no one to care for it.

Whatever the motive, the wish is being respected. Caruso continues as Broadway, Piccadilly and the Paris boulevards knew him—an excellent and tasteful dresser.

Electra Lions to Give Dinner to Children

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Dec. 15.—The Lions club has completed plans to give a Christmas dinner and party including a tree and gifts for children who need Christmas cheer. The list of names of children deserving such a party was secured from the Federated Missoianry society. Each member drew the name of some child that will be his guest next Thursday when the party is held.

G. J. Gillis presided over the regular meeting at the Marriott hotel. E. V. Haltom was in charge of the entertainment and presented Miss Claire McNay, director of the high school girls glee club, and some 30 members of that club in several selections.

E. E. Rogers, F. M. Baker and E. V. Haltom were named as a committee to select a speaker for the annual Lion-Senior banquet.

LAMONT TELLS OF PROGRESS

Secretary of Commerce Points Out Advancement

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15. (AP)—The steadiness of business during the last eight years, characterized by neither sharp booms nor slumps, was portrayed today by Secretary Lamont.

With two or three minor and short-lived recessions, he said in his report for the year ending June 30, 1929, the upward trend of production and consumption had been gradual, but in the aggregate considerable.

For the 12-months' period he said the activity of American factories was the high spot of industry, and while business was not spotted by the feverish activity of the war period and the immediately succeeding boom, the actual production of commodities and services was larger.

Factory Activity

The secretary reported that the high activity of manufacturing and mining industry during the year was accompanied by larger employment of labor and reduction in part-time work.

"Throughout our history a gradual shift has been taking place in the occupations of the people," he said. "The proportion engaged in production of necessaries of life has steadily fallen, more and more labor being set free to produce advanced commodities and services characteristic of a higher standard of living. For a long time this movement was reflected in a steady expansion of employment in factory industries as well as in distribution and in service occupations, agriculture being almost the only branch of industry to lose relatively, in the number of workers. For some time after 1920, however, the trend toward service occupations was so strong as to bring about an absolute reduction in the number of factory employes. This downward movement has been checked during the last three or four years, and the number of factory workers employed during the fiscal year 1928-29 was appreciably greater than during the preceding fiscal year."

Some improvement in the agricultural situation during the year was noted by the secretary. With an increase of 2 per cent over the year ended June 30, 1928, the gross income from farm products (after deducting the value of crops fed or used for seed) totaled $12,527,000,000, the largest, except for 1925-26, he reported. If allowance is made for the buying power of honey, he continued, the value of agricultural production in 1928-29 was larger even than in 1920-21.

Less Construction

The construction industry was reported by the commerce department head to have been one of the few branches of business which was less active during the year, while the net operating income of class 1 railroads was the largest ever reported, exceeding the figure for the previous year by 20 per cent.

He asserted that the quality of service furnished by railways as well as by other public carriers, was better than at any other time in the history of the country, with shortage of cars a rare occurrence. The other branch of transportation, American shipping, also was reported to have progressed satisfactorily, a marked reduction in the tonnage of idle vessels and a considerable increase in the tonnage active in seagoing foreign and domestic commerce being reported despite a slight decline in the total capacity of seagoing vessels registered under the American flag.

Exports continued to take an increasingly large place in American industrial life, with the export trade for the fiscal year 10 per cent greater in value than the year before and 43 per cent greater than in 1921-22. Finished manufactures reached more than $2,500,000,000, showing an increase of 22 per cent over the previous year, the secretary reported, while purchases of this country abroad increased about 9 per cent.

A new long distance telephone cable, to be available in the spring, is being laid between Paris and Versailles.

NEW VODVIL BILL SCORES

Comedy and Music Please Majestic Fans

By W. L. UNDERWOOD
The Record News Staff

It was somewhat like one of those situations in which the score settles down to a tie about the fourth round and remains so up to the twelfth, and then the home crew pushes a candidate around to second, whence he rides home triumphantly on a lusty poke by the wallop specialist—you recall that brand of applause? Well, that it was that sort of a response with which Sunday afternoon's patrons received the current vaudeville bill at the Majestic, with occupants of third and fourth places in the lineup doing the cleanup hitting, as per.

The balance is up again, and there was no mistaking the satisfaction with which the house "relaxed" under the inspired manipulation of Ethel Parker and Fred Babb, number three team, and the Pressler-Klaiss number four act. Not that the supporting cast imposed any handicap, for they had knotted the score. It remained for the vodvil bambino's of the day to put it down definitely as another success.

Singer Wins Praise

Miss Klaiss brings to the vaudeville stage one of the best voices signed by the Interstate circuit in recent years, it being a large mezzo-soprano. Incidentally, its owner is not too minute to afford it full play in a number of acceptable songs, but ankles like that more than redeem a super-average stature in this day of reductions. Miss Klaiss' voice is easily capable of better numbers than the skit demands, and needs less of the peculiar "vaudeville tone" than it receives. But it scored, along with clowning by Ed Pressler which goes unanimously on the all-season team of entertainment.

The prevalent type of athletic dancing which has been refined to blend effectively with more delicate aesthetic performances becomes concentrated animation, with no small measure of grace, as presented by Ethel Parker and Fred Babb. Using a chorus of six instruments manned by the "Philippine Sextet," this pair present one of the most scintillating dance numbers exhibited by Interstate this season.

Lioness on Bill

"Princess Pat," noted Hollywood lioness, imposed her own handicap to a 100 per cent hit in the closing act by being mother to a two-weeks' old cub which was presented following the mother's performance. Mother Pat was the kitten's silks until "Patette" appeared. The baby's plaintive notes stole the show.

Saxon, Reed and Kenny in "Just Kidding" did just that, with lots of play on bootlegging, while Pollard's comedy juggling killed 10 minutes pleasantly enough to start things off.

Sue Carol and the three boys are properly modern and collegiate in "Why Leave Home" on the screen. It will be much discussed in the Kemp ballroom Friday nights.

Electra to Have Christmas Party

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Dec. 15.—Through the efforts of Mrs. Martha McSpadden, manager of the Grand and Crown theaters, and Robert P. Hall, manager of the chamber of commerce, there will be a community Christmas tree at the Grand theater Christmas eve. Gifts will be given to the children, and the names of children whose parents cannot afford toys will be secured. These children will be presented toys, clothing, and a Christmas dinner.

Lubbock Business Man Endorses Orgatone

"I'm Grateful for the Health and Happiness It Has Brought To My Home"

"I'm one of the happiest men in Texas today and I just want to tell my friends what Orgatone has done for my wife," said Mr. J. T. South of 1613 Sixteenth street, Lubbock, Texas, who owns and operates the J. T. South Gin company.

"She had suffered so for the past fifteen years," he continued, "with stomach trouble and indigestion that we had almost given up hope. She had very little appetite and what food she did eat would stay in her stomach and make gas and misery for her; her nerves went all to pieces, and she got weak and run-down and would have to lie down and rest during the day while trying to do her housework. She was very restless and could hardly sleep, lost weight and felt despondent and down-hearted all the time. Her liver was in a bad condition and she never found any kind of medicine that would give her much relief until we found Orgatone.

"She is getting wonderful results and we both think Orgatone is the best medicine in the world. Her stomach trouble and indigestion is a thing of the past now, and she has such a big appetite that she can hardly get enough to eat. She sleeps good every night and is enjoying life better than she had in a long time. I'm certainly grateful for the happiness Orgatone brought to my home by restoring my wife's health. I honestly believe it will help anybody."

Genuine Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison Drug Store, 716 Indiana Ave.—Adv.

STRAND: Helen Kane, Nancy Carroll and Jack Oakie in "Sweetie." And William Austin. Relax and grin. Screen singsong. Paramount sound news.

MAJESTIC: Five acts Keith-Orpheum Interstate vaudeville. Up again. Sue Carroll in "Why Leave Home?" Except to see this show, why? News.

OLYMPIC: William Boyd, Jetta Goudal, Lupe Velez in "Lady of the Pavements." Pathe news. Comedy.

GEM: "Show Boat," Edna Ferber's novel, synchronized music. Hal Roach comedy.

QUEEN: "My Aunt From Utah," Griffin melodramatic troupe.

Introducing the smiling young gentleman whose likeness supports this comment, Robert Euler, manager of the Strand theater. Mr. Euler's presence in that position demonstrates, at least in one case, that if you want to "go up" with the Publix chain of theaters, take a university course in pharmacy. Originating at North English, Iowa, which may be identified as being near the famous communistic Amana colonies in the land of tall corn, Mr. Euler graduated from the village basketball institution to enroll at Iowa university, where he completed his course in drug concoction.

ROBERT EULER

It may be that subtle influences worked unseen in those parts about that time to draw young men theater-wards, for while Robert was tossing mortars and graduates at Iowa City, Gary Cooper of "The Virginian" was paralyzing the coeds with blooming masculine "it" over at Grinnell college, just a few miles away. They jumped off on different routes, however, Gary hurrying to Nancy Carroll and Hollywood, Robert turning up pronto as display manager for a large mercantile concern out in Montana.

Mr. Euler is not the first young man to exercise a choice between Montana's 50 below at Christmas time for the sunny Rio Grande country, and he soon was installed as a motion picture operator down at Mission, Texas. The thermometer in that hot-house went as high as the one in Montana had gone low, however, and again the paints and brushes came out of hock.

Followed a prolonged term in the National Academy of Art at Chicago, under the renowned Studley Burroughs of the General Outdoor Advertising company, and Mr. Euler was back in Texas as poster artist with the Dent theaters at Abilene. Despite the frigid experience in Montana, he transferred to Amarillo a year later to function in a similar capacity, but about one year ago became manager of the Vitaphone house in that city. As might be inferred, climates considered, mid-winter aroused visions of the balmy South, and Brownsville-on-the-border gained a new citizen early this year.

Migration northward being seasonable, even in the Rio Grande valley, Mr. Euler joined the flight and landed as assistant city manager of Dent theaters at Abilene. Assigned to the Strand here several months ago, he arrived in time to be adopted by the Publix chain when the Dent stock was taken over.

Universal Application of Golden Rule Drawing Nearer, Says Teacher

In a plea for a universal application of the Golden Rule, Judge P. A. Martin Sunday morning told the men's Bible class at the Floral Heights Methodist church that each day is bringing realization of the Christian ideal nearer to the world. The speaker referred to the progress of peace conferences, of the world court, and of capital and labor arbitration as well as movements toward tolerance in religion.

His address is quoted below:

"The simple words of the golden rule express the highest ideal of Christianity in its contact with the lives of others. It is the acme of fraternity. Thousands of men all over the world recognize the beauty of the concept and profess to pattern their lives thereby without giving credit to the Man of Gallilee who is the author of the thought. True it is that Confucius expressed the negative of the thought but there is a vast difference. The so-called silver rule of the heathen philosopher simply said 'do not unto others what you would not have them do unto you.' It prohibited actual injury to your fellow man, while the golden rule of the Christ calls for actualy doing good; a ministry of actual service to humanity.

Fall Short of Teaching

"All of our unions and brotherhoods are unconscious testimony to the appeal of the principle of the golden rule, but unfortunately they fall short of its teaching because they are usually limited to the membership. The same is true of many churches. Our own discipline says 'do good unto all men especially to those of the household of faith' and we are too often inclined to emphasize the 'especial' feature of it and confine our love and our ministrations to Methodists alone. This Bible teaches a world-wide fraternity, embracing all nations, kindreds and tongues and demands that we 'do unto all men what we would have them do unto us.'

"We have heard the golden rule quoted all our lives; we have applied it and misapplied it so frequently that we have almost lost sight of its real meaning. I have heard attorneys beg courts and juries to acquit guilty wretches 'as you would have him do unto you' to assess unreasonable damages 'as you would have done unto you' until it made me sick at heart that men should suppose for a moment and the Christ ever meant that a man should do an injustice or violate his oath of office in the name of the golden rule. And I have heard men excuse themselves from being Christians, saying, 'I'm not a Christian, but I try to live up to the golden rule.' If God has given to such a man grace enough to even approximate such living for a day, he should dedicate his life to His service in thankfulness for such a miracle. It is my opinion that it takes a heart full of love for God and man to live the golden rule and I doubt if any man can so far counterfeit Christianity as to live it without God's grace in his heart. But it is not an impossible ideal as many are inclined to believe. It is not a Eutopian dream that the world some day will come to be guided and governed by the golden rule for the Master has said that it would—has promised that His kingdom shall be supreme in the hearts of men some day.

"Just how near we are to this culmination of the Christian hope no man can say but every turn of the wheel of time brings it nearer. Horrified by the experience of the world's war a decade ago, 52 nations have signed up a solemn agreement to submit their controversies to arbitration rather than war. Our own nation is just now entering the world court of the League of Nations and taking its proper place there. A group of the leading men of different religious denominations are forming a world-wide organization having for its object the promotion of good will and joint endeavor to keep down religious intolerance by a campaign of education. Boards and commissions are being formed to settle disputes between labor and capital in all civilized nations and the signs of the times are indeed very favorable for an early settlement of some of the most serious questions involved. Our internal troubles and tendencies are being studied and analyzed in a scientific way with a view of reaching and removing the causes of crime and moral delinquency. Never in the history of the world have so many agencies been at work to improve the conditions of life in the home, in the nation and in the world. If the crash in the value of securities which happened in Wall street a few weeks ago had happened even 10 years ago it would have produced a financial panic which would have thrown millions out of employment and caused suffering from coast to coast.

Best Policy

"We are learning that it is not only good Christianity but also the best of policy, both individually and as a nation, to do right to others. We have discovered that we are all members of one body and that when one suffers, all suffer. Lindbergh and the radio have brought the nations of Europe to our front yard; Commander Byrd has brought the earth's icy regions within hailing distance of each other, and the habitable regions lying between are all occupied by peoples united with us in the common ties of friendship and mutual sympathy, and oriental races with their strange customs and religions are brought by the genius of our recent enemy's country, Germahy, with her mighty Zeppelin right up to our back gate. It's 'a little old world after all' and why should we not all love each other and drop our petty jealousies and live by the golden rule in international, as well as all other relations of life?"

New Home Agent Arrives at Seymour

Special to The Record News

SEYMOUR, Texas, Dec. 15.—Miss Esther May Wade has arrived here and will take the position of home demonstration agent, which has been vacant since the resignation a few days ago of Miss Beulah Bradley on account of her health. Miss Wade was accompanied here by Miss Myrtle Murray, district agent who will acquaint her with the work and people of the different rural clubs. The new agent comes highly recommended, having the highest qualifications for this work. She has been teaching domestic science in the Graham Chapel school in Garza county and her home is in Van Zandt county.

Moscow Musical Show Draws Heavy Protest

MOSCOW, Dec 15. (US)—"Grandmother's Nosegay," a three-act musical comedy featuring "30 beautiful girls," now being shown in a Moscow music hall, has aroused a storm of protest in dramatic circles against what the dramatic critics describe as "a cheap imitation of the worst form of the Bourgeois theater."

The comdey is named after a toilet soap sold here, and is attacked as being merely an entertainment showing pretty girls and pretty clothes, but entirely lacking in educational or cultural value.

Hasty survey of the broadcast announced for Monday by the principal stations of the country reveals again that WLW of Cincinnati offers many of the most attractive programs to be gleaned from the congested air.

Ranging widely among the foremost European composers of the past half-century, the program to be given at 10 o'clock Monday morning by the Orpheus instrumental trio promises 30 minutes of exceptional entertainment.

Pat Gillick's noonday organ program will include selections from the "Vagabond King," and other musical comedy and operetta favorites.

At 3 p. m., the Matinee players, with Miss Ida Blackson, soprano, will present chosen bits of Mendelssohn, Tschaikowsky, Godowsky, and a number of modern composers. The Tea Time instrumental trio, with Bromley House, baritone, takes the air at 5 o'clock for 30 minutes, and a fourth pretentious musicale is announced for 9 o'clock with varied talent. And if you owl the hours away until 12:30 a. m. Tuesday, the Cino Singers may be heard in an enviable group of vocal numbers, solo and ensemble.

TOYLAND HAS NEW DESIGNS

Some of Gadgets Are Really of Some Use

By H. ALLEN SMITH

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. (UP)—A tour of the bigger toylands of the New York stores resulted in revelations bordering on the startling. For the bigger and better toys this holiday season are designed, not just to be played with, but to help mama wash the dishes and sweep the floor or to mow the lawn while papa plays golf.

Of course, there are many toys that are strictly toys, but the utilitarian innovations are manifold and varied. The toy lawnmower, for instance, is really no toy. It is guaranteed to cut grass and little Orville will yelp for more pasturage once Santa drops the thing down the chimney.

For little Elvira, there is the dish washing outfit. It is designed so Elvira can handle a great many of mama's dishes while she is washing the cups and saucers for her dolls. A toy vacuum cleaner is another item mothers won't pass up in a hurry.

There are planes and dirigibles of every conceivable model and make. To operate some of them, a child simply has to possess a considerable knowledge of aerodynamics.

The electric trains this year are things of beauty and joys forever. You may have a subway train, an elevated, or a regular cross-country limited. The more expensive outfits have loading devices, complicated switches, sturdy wreckers, and many features unknown to the B. & O.

A more complete airport, European style, with sponge shrubbery and electric beacons, is a nifty offering in one store. There are gasoline pumps that really work, bicycles with sidecars, polar bears that strut around and growl quite realistically, a whale that swims in the bathtub and spouts water, a toy coffee percolator that works, tops shaped like dragon fliers that skitter off into space and a goose that ambulates and lays golden eggs to beat the band.

In the way of uniforms, the most amazing getup is that of the gangster. It is billed as the "gunman and general crime equipment." The pistols spit sparks and the only thing lacking is a textbook to inform the embryo racketeer how to engage in decorous gangland conversations.

Corn huskers were scarce in the cornhusker state of Nebraska this fall.
