No major delays seen in trans-Atlantic flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — With planes rerouted across the Atlantic, the government reported no major delays or disruptions for European travelers today as Portuguese air controllers refused to handle U.S. flights in sympathy with their striking American colleagues.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis, meanwhile, told the American controllers, beginning their third week on strike, that they will have to prove intimidation or harassment to get their jobs back. Just saying they're sorry isn't enough, Lewis declared.

Lewis said that while about 15 percent of trans-Atlantic flights are affected by the two-day Portuguese boycott that began at 8 p.m. EDT Sunday, he anticipated "no significant impact" on air travel to and from Europe.

There might be some delays in arrival as flights are rerouted farther north, where they are handled by Canadian and British controllers, Lewis said.

Dennis Feldman, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman who had estimated that delays could run two to three hours, said early today: "Everything is going normally. They're moving with no significant delays. There are no problems with cancellation or things of that nature."

Portugal's 300 controllers, who man the key Azores control center and normally handle 40 to 50 American flights a day, said their boycott would last until 8 p.m. EDT Tuesday as a show of support for the 12,000 striking American controllers.

The Reagan administrtion has fired most of the strikers, and Lewis said Sunday that reinstatement won't be easy.

"Those that are out there at the pieket line and strike, there's no way they can come back," Lewis said in an interview in his office.

He discounted reports from union leaders in some parts of the country that Federal Aviation Administration supervisors were tellig strikers they could get their jobs back just by saying they had been afraid to cross picket lines.

"We have to have some documentation beyond somebody just saying, 'I've been on an illegal strike and I'm sorry,' " Lewis said.

Some evidence must be presented, he said, that the controller had tried to go to work but was stopped by intimidation and harrassment from the union or strikers.

He said 130 requests have been received from controllers wanting to resume work, but only three have been accepted so far.

The governmnt was beginning today to process more than 30,000 applications from people wanting to beome controllers, and Lewis said between 4,000 and 7,000 probably will be hired.

"We think (the strike) is over, and we'd be very pleased just to retrain the new people," Lewis said.

Earlier Sunday, Robert E. Poli, president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Orgaization, accused the administration of overreacting to the strike and said Preident Reagan has been misled by Lewis and other officials.

"If they ever went after organized crime in this country the way they went after the controllers, it would be a lot safer place to live," Poli said in the CBS program "Face the Nation."

Lewis disputed claims that the government was being too harsh on the controllers and said he believes Reagan woud have the same response if other government employees such as the postal workers went on strike. "I believe he'd be consistent," Lewis said.

Rainfall dampens (and lifts) spirits

Sunday's rains and thundering clouds which imparted omens of funnel clouds, high waters and flooded streets for Midlanders brought sheer pleasure and hope for bumper crops to cotton farmers and ranchers.

"It'll sure help," said Hoot Leonard, a cotton farmer who manages the Midland Farmers Co-operative gin here. "It'd have been better if we got the rain three weeks ago."

But the late-coming rains were appreciated.

"I was proud to see it."

More rain may be in the offing. And not all of it may be welcomed by city residents who are more concerned about rainfall for their lawns and gardens and for making the city's lake water more palatable than they are about underground moisture, a late-rain crop and next year's crop.

The forecast from the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport calls for more rain, possible heavy thunderstorms today and tonight, and possible flash flooding. The likelihood for more rain is 60 percent tonight and 40 percent on Tuesday.

The widespread thunderstorms dropped from 1½ to 2½ inches of rain over much of Midland County and surrounding Martin, Dawson, Howard and Glasscock counties, where cotton in the mainstay crop.

In Midland, the late rains, which came as the cotton was maturing and peaking out, are as welcome as the spring planting rains and are just as vital.

"I think it has time to crank up and mature," Leonard noted of the cotton.

The rains may help offset the effects of a crippled 1980 cotton crop, which was shot down by the drought. And cotton, including that grown on irrigated farm land, which did survive, was damaged at harvesting time by the all-too-late September rains.

Aside from giving the blooming cotton a boost, the rains will add underground moisture to keep the soil from turning to dust and blowing and will help make ready for the 1982 planting season.

"It's a life-saver for us," said Virginia Bryant, wife of Greenwood farmer Alvey Bryant, who was just as pleased with the rains.

According to the weather bureau, Midland recorded 2.14 inches of moisture Sunday and early this morning. The rain brings to 3.21 inches the total for the month, which normally gets 1.52 inches.

As far-reaching as the rain was, it overlooked Rankin and only dropped a light shower at Crane.

Rainfall total for year is 10.22 inches. The year's normal rainfall here is 13.51 inches.

"This is just what the doctor ordered," Bryant said this morning. "The only way it could be better would be if he had rained two weeks earlier. We were about to have a disastrous year. This (rainfall) saved the crop."

Many Americans express lower opinion of Begin, Israel

NEW YORK (AP) — Israel's military actions in the Middle East this summer have lowered many Americans' opinions of Prime Minster Menachem Begin and his defense policies, the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

However the poll, of 1,601 adult contacted by telephone Aug. 10-11, also says support remains constant for U.S. foreign aid to Israel.

Among respondents who said they had heard or read of Israel's bombing attacks on Arab military and civilian targets in recent weeks, 51 percnt said Israel's recent military actions have lowered ther opinion of Begin and his defense policies.

Twenty-one percent said their opinion of Begin has not changed, 14 percent said they now have a higher opinion of him and 14 percent said they were not sure.

On June 7, American-made Isreli bombers destroyed an Iraqi nuclear reactor under construction near Baghdad.

Six weeks latr, American-made Israeli warplanes killed at least 123 people and wounded at least 469 in attacks on Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Orgnization command posts in Beirut.

Many of those killed were civilians, prompting criticism from the United States and threats by congressional leaders and administration officials to withhold the scheduled shipment of more American fighter planes to Israel this year.

But Presdent Reagan has said U.S. military aid to Israel will continue as scheduled, and the latest AP-NBC News poll said public support for aid to Israel remains constant.

Forty-nine percent of all respondents said the United States is giving either not enough or about the right amount of military aid to Israel, while 7 percent said the United States is giving Israel too much military aid and 14 percet were not sure.

In May, when the poll asked a similar question about all aid to Israel instead of just military aid, 41 percent said they thought the total amout of aid to Israel was about right or not enough, while 32 percent said it was too much and 1 percent were not sure.

Israel is getting bout $2.2 billion in aid from the United State this year, including $1.4 billion in military aid and $85 million in economic aid.

People who said the recent Israeli military actions had lowered their opinion of Begin were more likely to say the United States is giving too much aid to Israel.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC News polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,600 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage point either way because of such chance variations. That is, if one could have talked this past week to all Americans with telephones, there is only one chance in 20 that the findings would vary from the results of polls such as this one by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for a number of other reasons. Differences in the exact wording of questins, differences in when the interviews were conducted and different methods of interviewing could also cause variations.

Gambler, five others charged in casino bombing

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — A gambler who lost thousands of dollars at Harveys Resort Hotel-Casino in Nevada has been charged with his two sons and three other people in the extortion bombing that wrecked the resort a year ago.

One side of the casino on the glittering gambling strip in Stateline, Nev., was blown out during a remote-control attempt to disarm the bomb Aug. 27 after the resort owners had agreed to pay the $3 million extortion demand. The payoff never was made because no one showed up at the appointed place.

The bomb, which had been wheeled into the building disguised as office equipment, caused no injuries when it blew up, but it caused $12 millon in damage, resort officials said.

Ellie Beecher of the Fresno County Sheriff's Department identified those arrested as John Birges, 48, of Clovis, a city adjacent to Fresno; the woman he lived with, Ella Joan William, 47; and Terry Lee Hall, 25, of Fesno. They were held in the Fresno County Jail pending arraignment today before a federal magistrate.

The San Fracisco Chronicle reported today that FBI agent Joseph Yablonsky said Birges' sons, John, 20, and James, 19, were charged with attempted extortion along with Willis Brown, said to be in his 50s and a resident of the Fresno area.

The elder Birges and Hall were booked for investigation of transporting explosives over state lines. Ms. William was booked for investigation of extortion, conspiracy and transporting explosives, Beecher said.

"I'm tickled to death. This is one heck of an anniversary present," said Eldon Campbell, president of the resort, which reopened May 1.

Campbell described Birges as a heavy player who had lost thousands of dollars. Others said he was a regular at the blackjack table.

The Chronicle reported that someone believed to be close to the Birges family had provided a tip and led agents to the Fresno area. Yablonsky, who had led a team of 50 FBI agents, was quoted by the paper as saying, "This thing came hard all the way."

Birges is a landscape contractor and Hall is a contractor, officials said. The Chronicle reported that the FBI said Ms. Williams was a probation officer in Fresno County.

Resort owner Harvey Gross and others along the strip put up a $200,000 reward which grew to $300,000.

At the time of the bombing, the FBI said two men posing as computer technicians wheeled a large box into the executive suite of the casino. The device was covered with blankets and stenciled with the letters "IBM." A woman in a white van waited outside, they said.

The 4-foot-high box was topped with another box equipped with 28 switches, which had to be moved in correct sequence to disarm the bomb.

The FBI said those who built the device were "experts on bombng."

A three-page extortion letter said the bomb contained 1,000 pounds of TNT.

Task force recommends crime curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal task force is recommeding a series of steps to curb violent crime by taking criminals off the street and putting them "where they can't injure innocent ciizens."

After public hearings in seven ciies over the past four months, the eight-member task force was meeting today to take a formal vote on the recommendations to Attorney General William French Smith for new laws and spending.

The proposals, tentatively approved earlier this month, include new limitations on constitutional rights to make convictions easier to obtain and uphold.

On Sunday, former Atorney General Griffin Bell and Illinois Gov. James Thompson, the panel's co-chairmen, said their most important recommendation is a plan to ask Congress during a time of spending cuts for $2 billion in federal aid to help states build new prisons. Bell, a Democrat, and Thompson, a Republican, appeared on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

Bell said the lack of prison space has "inverted the whole system of criminal justice."

The panel heard testimony about judges releasing convicted offenders for lack of space to house them in overcrowded state prison systems without violating their constitutional protection against cruel and unusual punishment.

Thompson said "all the parts of the report which aim at taking violent offenders off the street and through the criminal justice system efficiently, fairly and convincingly have in mind one end, and that is to take the violent element in our society and put them where they can't injure innocent citizens, and that means penitentiaries."

"We have in this country a prison population explosion following the criminal youth explosion following the baby boom... and that's why most states are in a crises, actually, in terms of prison construction and why federal intervenion in terms of construction grants is warranted," Thompson said.

To get violent offenders of the streets, the panel recommends the attorney general seek amendments to the Bil Reform Act to provide preventive detention before trial for arrested people who are thought "to present a danger to particular persons or the community."

The panel also backs legislation to replace insanity defenses with provisions to create a federal crimial verdict of "guilty but mentally ill."

In addition, the group supports legislation to allow the introduction of illegally obtained evidence in criminal trials if the law offices who obtained the material genuinely believed they were not violating Fourth Amendment protections aganst unreasonable search and seizure.

Although a federal study has found that the existing ban on such evidence is invoked in only one-third of 1 percent of criminal cases, Thompson said the change would allow prosecutrs to bring cases they are now dropping.

To help keep violent offenders behind bars, the panel proposes limiting to three years from conviction the time in which state prisoners may ask a federal court to free them on grounds their constitutioal rights were violated.

Although the nation's nearly 330,000 prisoners file only 7,000 such petitions a year, Bell said they have a "disturbing effect ... on deterring crime ... A defendant is in prison but ever has to admit he has done anything wrong because he ... keeps contesting his conviction."

In the face of Prsident Reagan's opposition to gun control, the panel recommends a law equiring a waiting period before purchase of a handgun to check records to see whether the buyer is barred by existing law from owning one.

"We wanted something that would have the adinistration's blessing, hopefully, and would pass the Congress as a foothold against the problem of guns in this counry," Thompson said. "If we went much further than this in our initial recommendations, we wouldn't get anything"

The task force also recommends the attorney general use investigators and prosecutors now working on organized crime against urban youth street gangs as well. It also proposes reversing sections of a federal law so that more juveniles are tried in federal courts.

Coincidentally, the Justice Department's Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency issued a five-volume study Sunday of juvenile crime in the United States. The office said the government's data "do not support the contention that, for the crimes of rape, robbery, assault and personal larcency, juvenile crime is currently any more serious than it was five years ag."

Texas officials turn attention to races

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Now that threat of a second special session has faded, Texas legislators and would-be office holders can turn their full atention to the 1982 political races.

Several possible candidates promised political announcements as soon as the legislative session ended but most of them are still leery of declaring themseles.

Gov. Bill Clements, who is riding high after his successes in the special session, just might start a series of political race declarations about two weeks from now.

"I'm going to Taos for a long overdue vacation for about two weeks and I'm sure while we are there Rita and I will get a chance to talk about 1982," Clements told a news conference Friday. "It should take us about an hour to make a decision.

"Ask me when we get back."

The same day, Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, said he was thinking about a race for lieutenant governor, "or another statewide position," and would make an announcement in about two weeks.

Earlier, Secretary of State George Strake, Republican appointed by Clements, said he was ready to make a run for lieutenent governor and had the financial backing, but he could not make a formal announcement until the fall.

Then there was a hometown newspaper story last week that quoted Rep. Pete Laney as saying he is seriously considring a run for state agiculture commissioner. He indicated it would be at least September beore he decides to try for a promotion or for re-election.

Speaker Bill Clayton has hinted he would reveal his 1982 plans, reportedly race for state land comissioner, after the end of the special session. However, one of his consultants said Friday there would be no immediate announcement and maybe not until November.

Now that the congressional redistricting battle is over in the legislature, if not in the courts, you can expect numerous announcements in the next few months for the 27 districts, including three new ones created by the legislature.

With the filing deadline not until next Feb. 1, a lot of candidates hesitate to obligate themselves to a campaign that will last at least until the May 1 primary and maybe until he Nov. 2 general election.

Here is how the prospects look in the major statewide races:

U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, already campaigning hard for re-election after raising $1.6 milion. U.S. Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas, of Dallas, also is traveling widely although he does not expect to announce his political plans until Thanksgiving. State Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, reportedly has tried to talk Collins out of making the race so Mengden could run as a favorite of Texas conservatives.

Governor — Texas Democrats don't know who they can vote for in a race against Clements. Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe and former Attorney General John Hill have made exploratry moves toward campaigns but nothing definite. Some say that if one gets in the race, then the other one will and vice versa. State Sen. Peyton McKnigt, D-Tyler, said Friday he is still interested in the governor's race and will make an announcement in a month or two. Attorney General Mark White is expected to seek re-election and delay his bid for governor to four years from now.

Lieutenant governor — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who has held the office since 1973, announced earlier in the year that he intended to seek re-election. He faces possible Democratc opposition from Kubiak and Jim Mattox, whose re-election chances were virtually wiped out in he redisticting bill. State Sen. Bill Meiers, Euless, recently turned Republican, said after Strake's announcement that he still was thinking of a lieutenant governor's race on the GOP ticket, or maybe one for Congress.

Land Commissioner — Gary Mauro, Democrat, campaign manager for Robert Krueger in the unsuccessful 1978 U.S. Senate race, already has announced and has been campaigning for the post vacated by Land Commissoner Bob Armstrong. If Clayton should decide not to make the race, Republicans plan to run a staunch conservative against whoever is the Democratic candidate.

Flash flood warnings issued for Panhandle

Flash flood warnings were issued for areas around Lubbock and Amarillo early today as heavy rainfall triggered by a weak cold front drenched much of the Panhandle and South Plains.

More than three inches of rain fell at Lubbock in a five-hour period early today and rainfall continued during the pre-dawn hours across a vast area of the western half of the state.

Several counties, including Swisher, Lubbock and Hale, were covered by the flash flood warings. A flash flood watch was in effect for eastern and southern sectins of West Texas through tonight.

Several roads were closed in thw Panhandle because of high water.

The National Weather Service said most lakes in the Lubbock area were out of their banks early today and some street floding was reported in Lubock.

Man held in drug bust

Charges had not been filed as of early today in connection with the Friday arrest of a 24-year-old Pasadena, Calif., man and the confiscation of a large sum of money and 159 Preludin tablets, an illegal narcotic drug.

The man was arrested about 9:50 p.m. Friday in a Midland motel room where officers also found $1,070 cash, three men's gold watches valued at $875 and a .38-caliber pistol valued at $125.

Officers had received information that the man was selling Preludin tablets, according to police reports. The 159 tablets confiscated were valued at $2,782.50.

The man is being held in City Jail pending the filing of formal charges.

A color television, remote control tuner and a ladies' gold watch were taken in a break-in Sunday at the apartment of Dana Beacom, 3329 W. Wadley Ave., No. 3.

Total value of the items was listed as $650. According to police reports, the burglary occurred between 4 and 4:45 p.m.

Lightning kept Midland firemen busy Sunday. During the electrical and rain storm that raked the city, lightning struck the William J. Howell house at 207 Peach St. According to fire department reports, the lightning went into the stove in the residence, damaging it but causing no fire.

Lightning also struck and set fire to a tree at 4200 Tanner Drive about 6:30 p.m. Firemen quickly extinguished that blaze with 40 gallons of water.

Reagan-Congress dispute stalls sewage program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The multi-billion-dollar federal effort to clean up the sewage pouring into the country's rivers and lakes may be going down the drain — the victim of a stalemate between the Reagan adminstration and Congress.

As of now, there is no money in the 1982 budget to continue the nine-year-old program which has funneled $30 billion to help cities build treatment plants, lay sewer pipes and upgrade crumbling systems.

President Ragan has vowed to keep things that way unless Congress agrees to sharply cut back the scope of the program, the govenment's most expensive pollution control effort.

Congress so far has balked at enacting the requsted changes, which critics say would mean skyrocketing tax and sewer bills at the local level and the abandonment of many projects.

The Environmental Protecton Agency estimates $90 billion will be needed to meet remaining obligatons under current law.

"We now have a program that has bloated into one of the largest public works efforts in peacetime history," says EPA Administrator Ann Gorsuch. "The federal government can no longer afford to construct every sewer line in the country."

The Reagan aministration proposes slashing the federal government's commitment 75 percent, from $90 bllion down to $23 billion. That would be accomplished by cuting out many types of sewer improvements which now qualify for federal aid.

Sewage treatment plants still would qualify, but the collector pipes that carry sewage from homes to the main sewers would not.

Also cut would be federal aid to finance extra plant capacity to meet projected future growth. Instead, the government would fund only the capacity needed to meet 1980 population needs. Money to repair sewers and to better handle storm water runoff would beaxed.

Th changes, the EPA maintins, would focus limited federal funds on the worst polution problems and get the federal goverment out of the business of subsidzing urban sprawl.

Critics see it differetly.

"When the president's men finally put their guns away, the water pollution program wasn't exactly dead, but it sure had a lot of bullet holes in it," said Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., chairman of the House Public Works Committee.

He and other critics say Reagan is continuing his war on the federal budget by shifting its biggest environmental commitment onto the backs of local communities.

"If the administrtion program is enacted, the impact on consuers will be staggerng. Instead of sewer rates of $150 to $200 annully for the average houehold, they could be $80 to $900," said Rep. Robert A. Roe, D-N.J., chairman of the Public Works subcommittee which is drafting an alternative to the Reagan proposal.

But environmental groups, in support o Reagan's changes, say the current program wastes money on unnecessarily compicated sewage plants that do little to clean up waterways.

They point to a report by the General Accountig Office critical of treatment plants. In a random sample of 242 plants built in 10 states, the GAO, Congress' investiative agency, found 87 percent were violating discharge standards.

Kennedy's missing dog returned by ASPCA

NEW YORK (AP) — An 8-year-old Gordon setter named Hogan has been reunited with its owner, Robert F. Kennedy Jr.

Hogan, who ran away Thursday night, was found Friday on Manhattan's Upper East Side by Karen Patrick. It was wearing a tag that said "R.F. Kennedy, Ivy, Va."

Ms. Patrick took the dog to the ASPCA, which called people named Kennedy in Ivy and talked to a man who remembered the dog from when Robert Kennedy Jr. went to school there.

Meanwhile, the ASPCA discovered that someone had filed a missing dog report on Kennedy's behalf, and dog and owner were back together quickly.

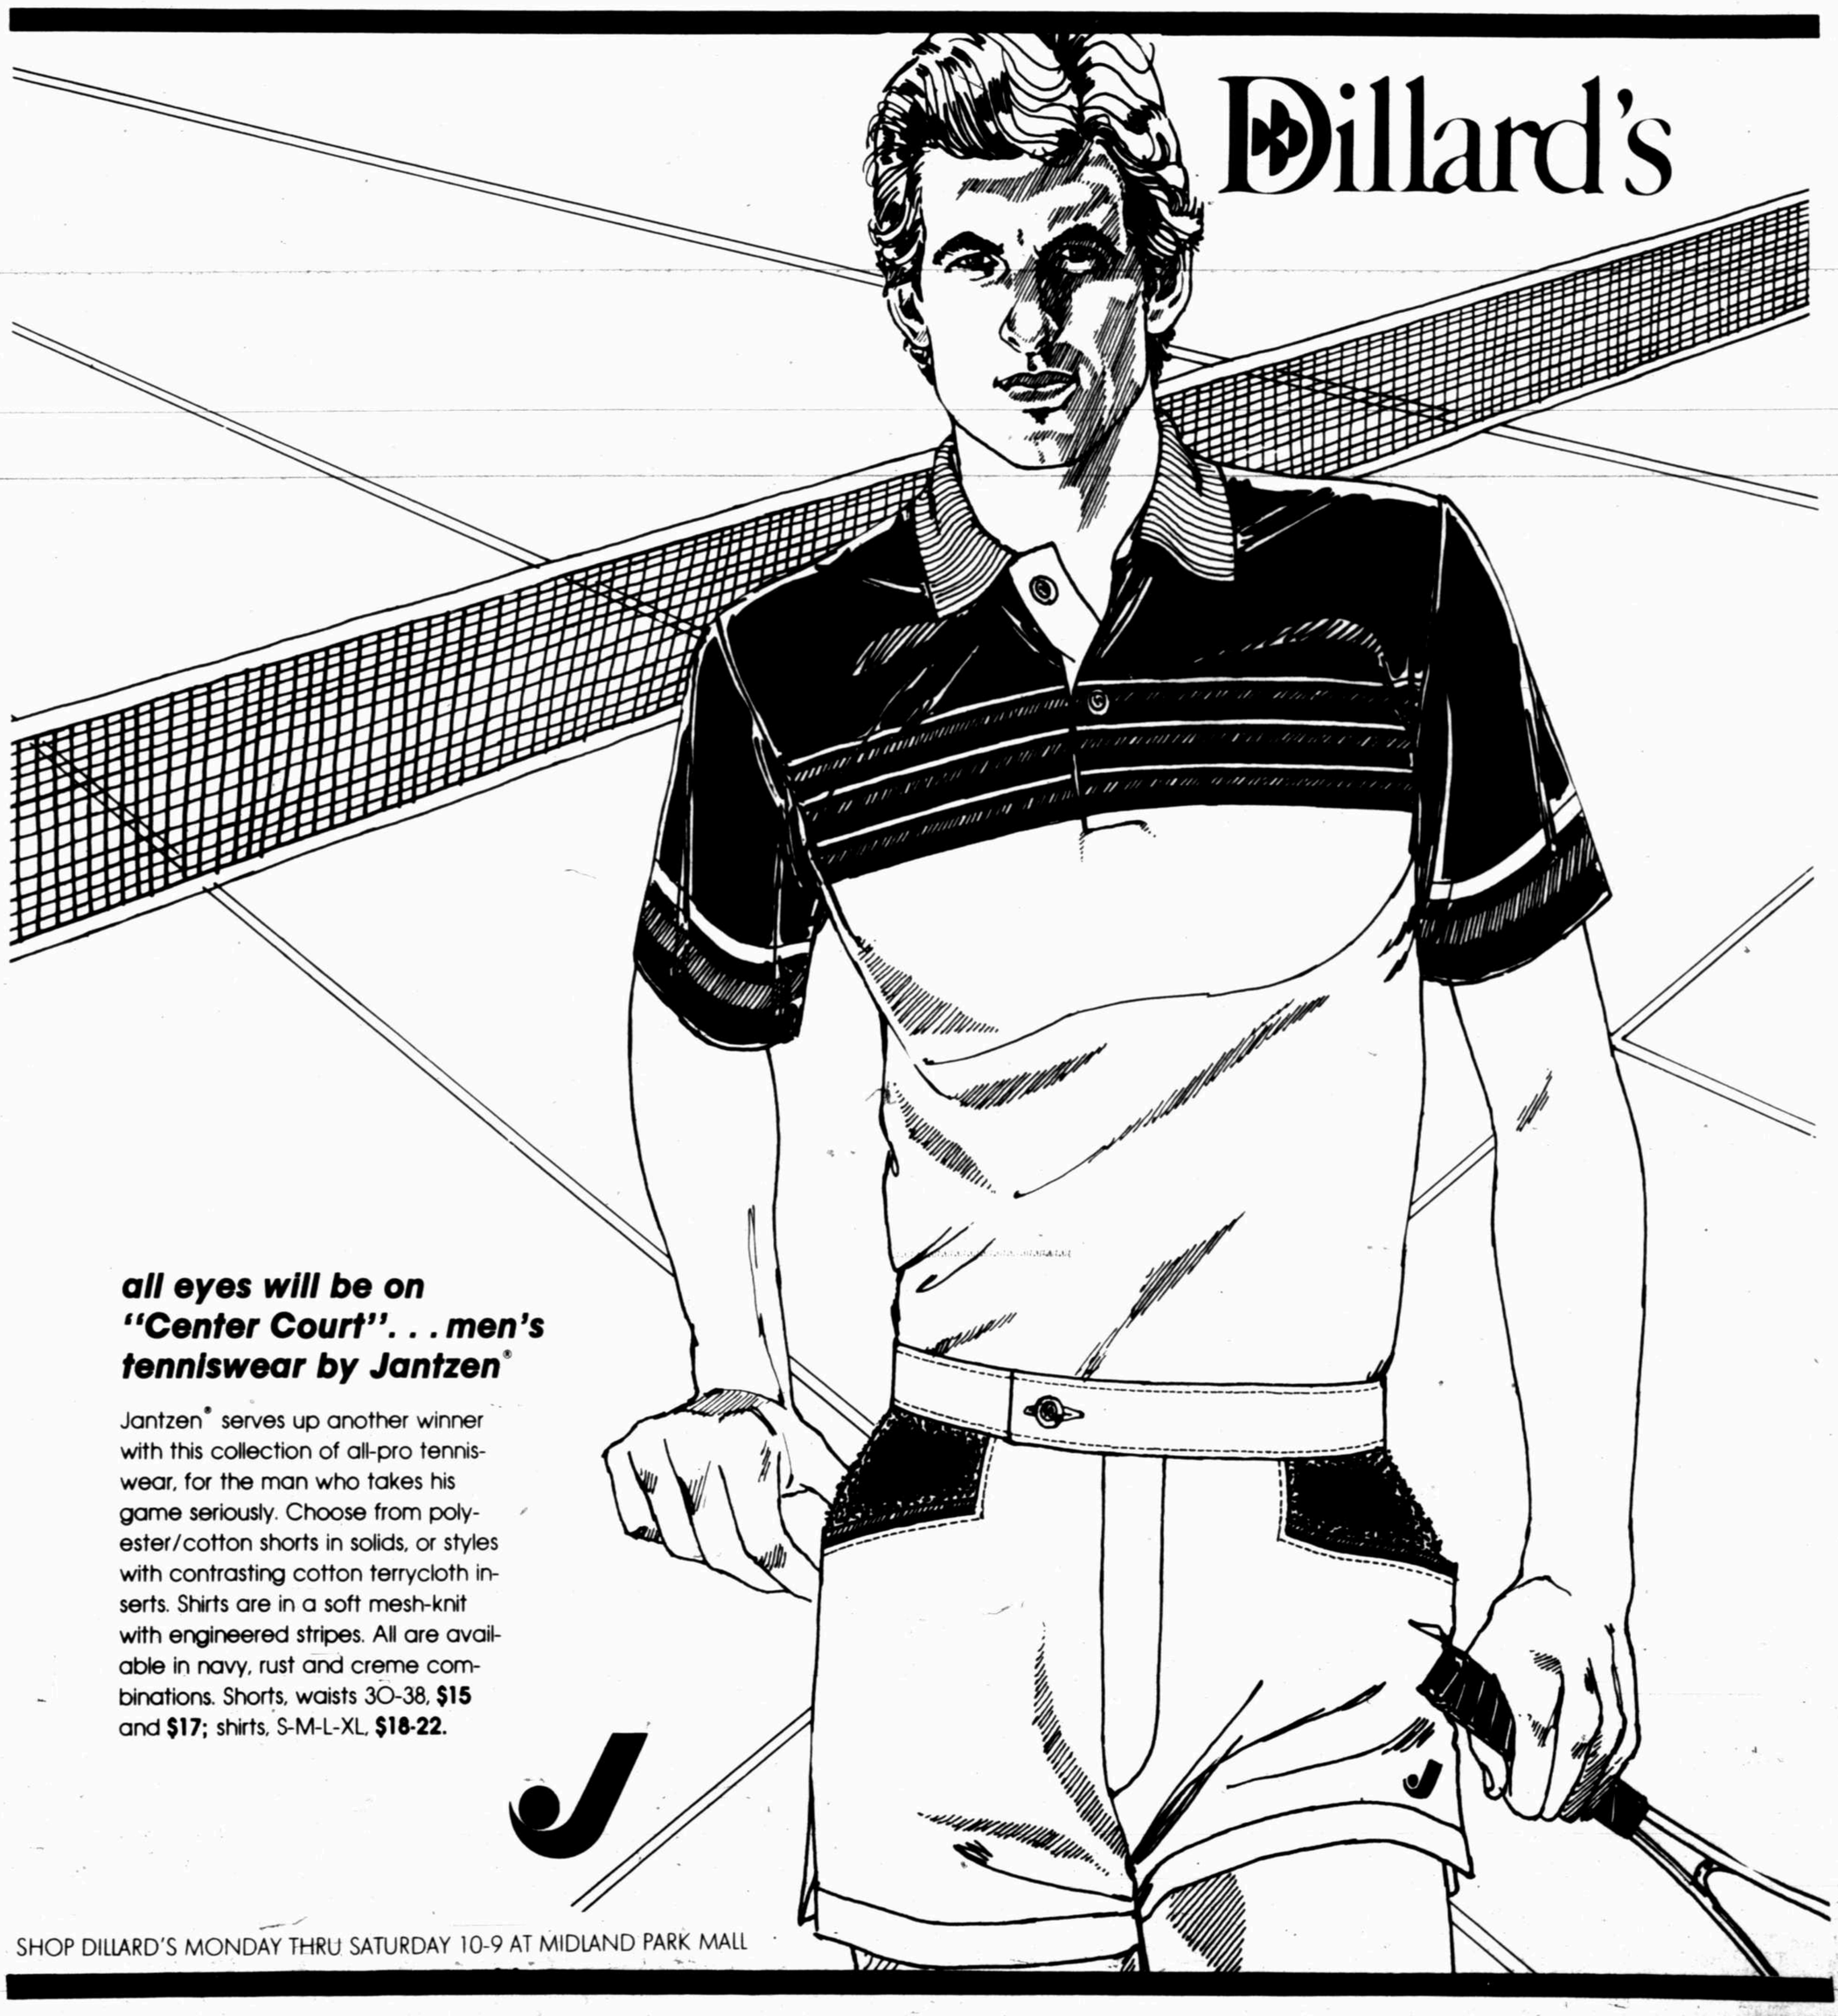

Kennedy, who has owned Hogan since the dog was 2 months old, was told to get a New York City license.

He gave a reward to Ms. Patrick, who has two dogs of her own, and a donation to the ASPCA.

Snelson watched

Although a proposal by State Senator Pete Snelson of Midland which would have created a 3-cent ad valorem tax to finance construction, make major repairs and provide other assistance to colleges and universities not part of the University of Texas and Texas A&M Systems ended in a deadlock, Snelson's performance on behalf of the proposed amendment did not go unnoticed in Austin.

Snelson, who believes the tax is the least painful way to provide needed assistance to our institutions of higher learning, managed to obtain 23 to 7 Senate approval for the proposal which was adopted as an amendment to a proposed constitutional amendment, already approved by the House, that would have totally repealed the 10-cent ad valorem tax. Gov. Clements had put the repeal issue in his original call for the special session and the Snelson proposal would, in effect, have rejected repeal and amended the tax from 10 cents per $100 valuation to 3 cents.

But the House refused to accept the amendment and asked for a conference committee. The resulting maneuvers resulted in a deadlock that for all practical puposes killed the proposal, for the time being at least.

Even so, some veteran political watchers say Snelson's performance and skill in gaining Senate approval, which included influencing some Republican senators to oppose the governor, was one of the best, if not the best, pieces of political legislative work that had been seen from the Midland senatorial representative.

With that kind of respect being generated, it is no wonder why Snelson was named one of the most effextive state senators of the year by Texas Monthly magazine as well as being recipient of other honors.

He, obviously, is a man to watch. And Austin political observers are doing just that.

Terrible 20

One of the campaign promises President Reagan is insistent on fulfilling as speedily as possible is a reduction in federal regulations.

To prove he was serious he appointed Vice President George Bush as top general in the war against what the administration considers regulatory boondoggling. "General" Bush in turn asked the Commerce Department to come up with a list of the most egregious examples of burdensome and costly regulations.

The department has presented Bush with a compilation the U.S. Chamber of Commerce has dubbed the "Terrible 20." Here are a few sad samples from those 20:

— It costs $4 billion for equipment to meet the Clean Air Act's standards for handling industrial wastes.

— It costs $3 billion initially and $2 billion annually to classify and handle hazardous products.

— It costs an estimated $4 billion annually to meet standards for the national pollutant discharge elimination system.

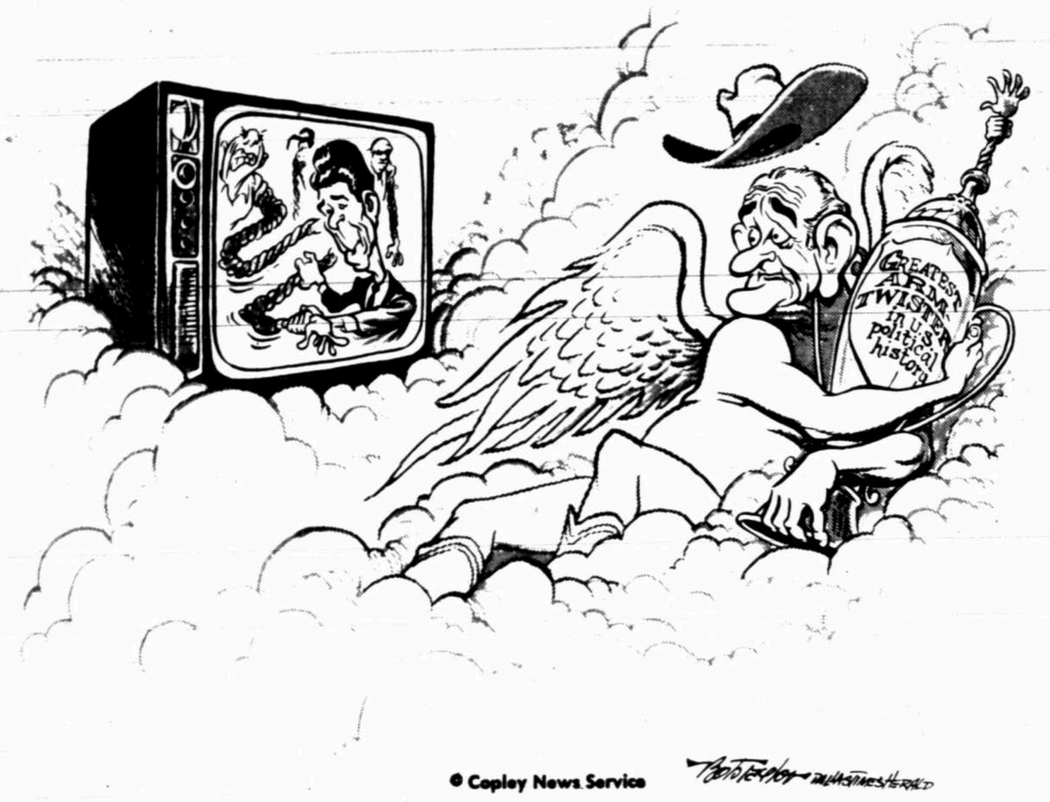

And so it goes, the expenditure of billions of dollars after billions of dollars to meet the requirements of the nation's new regulatory laws. It will be argued that the Chamber of Commerce has its own prejudicial axes to grind, and that not all of the "Terrible 20" regulations are in the boondoggle category.

We can count on Vice President Bush and his aides to be fair, and sensitive to the needs of the environment, as they continue their investigation. But in view of the billions being spent for these projects the American taxpayer can be happy the Reagan administration is taking a hard and serious look at where his money is going and what it is doing.

CHARLEY REESE

Clues tie Soviet Union to shooting

Well, the Italians have sentenced Mehmet Ali Agca to life in prison for trying to kill Pope John Paul II. Not much came out at the trial.

Charley Reese

Dr. W.S. McBirnie in a pamphlet published by Community Churches of America, makes a pretty good case, however, that the Turkish terrorist was acting on the orders of the Soviet Union. It's a circumstantial case, but it makes plenty of sense.

First, the Soviet Union has a motive. With all the trouble in Poland, there is no question that Kremlin strategists have been making contingency plans for crushing the Poles with tanks if the situation gets out of hand.

You wouldn't have to be a genius in the Kremlin to foresee that if Soviet tanks did have to roll and did meet with resistance, the one man in the world who could, and most surely would, do the most to arouse world-wide support for the Poles would be the Polish pope. Pope John Paul had already caused the Kremlin no end of trouble by re-awakening the religious impulses of the Polish people. In short, the Soviets had a perfectly logical reason for killing the pope. The chances that the successor would be Polish or even have John Paul's courage and ability are remote.

Another bit of evidence is that immediately after the shooting, Agca was tagged in a number of European reports as a rightwing terrorist. These reports smell of the Soviet's well-known disinformation activity.

Agca himself is quoted by the Italian police as angrily denying that he was a rightist. "I am a pro-Palestinian Communist comrade, a follower of George Habash," the police quoted him as saying. Habash is a long-time communist who heads the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

Later, Agca claimed he was acting entirely on his own. There is no question, however, that Agca is a professional terrorist and no pro will rat on his employer. Furthermore, Agca never explained how he managed to travel and to live so well six months prior to the shooting if he was acting on his own.

So there you have it. The Soviets had a motive. The "gun" is a self-admitted communist. It is obvious he had help in traveling and planning and financing. There was the predictable attempt to shift the blame to the political right. And last, but very important, there is clear record of Soviet involvement in the world terrorist network.

Claire Sterling, an American journalist, has summarized the evidence of Soviet participation in terrorism in her book, "The Terror Network." According to her, the Soviets decided to get involved in the new breed of terrorists in 1966. They staged the Tricontinental Congress in Havana. "The like of it had never been seen since the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917, and the world would never be the same," she writes. Ten months after the conference, which set up a permanent oganization of revolutionaries on four continents, a whole new chain of guerrilla training camps sprang up around Havana under the supervision of Soviet KGB Col. Vadim Kotchergine.

She also documents the Soviet takeover of the Palestine Resistance. Soviet involvement with the Palestinian terrorists is well substantiated by many sources, including the Palestinians. Yasir Arafat, the PLO's chief spokesmen, is undeviatingly supportive of the Soviet Union even to the degree of defending the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan at a meeting of Moslem foreign ministers.

So I think Dr. McBirnie is right. The contract on the pope probably was put out by the Soviet Union. They have never been timid about killing people. The only flaw in their plan was that they forgot the pope has friends in high places.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Haig's aide tapes secret Senate session

WASHINGTON — If any government official should recognize the danger of secretly taping high-level conversations, it should be Secretary of State Alexander Haig. He was White House chief of staff in 1974 when the Supreme Court ordered the release of oval office tapes that forced Richard Nixon to resign the presidency in disgrace.

Jack Anderson

Yet one of Haig's aides recently made a clandestine tape-recording of a secret session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. To the intense embarrassment of the State Department, the improper taping was quickly discovered — because one of the tapes was inadvertently left behind in the meeting room.

Despite this Maxwell Smart touch, the episode was not regarded as laughable by the senators. And Haig's staff soon realized the enormity of the gaffe.

On July 10, two days after the secretly recorded meeting, Richard Fairbanks, Haig's assistant secretary for congressional relations, wrote Committee Chairman Charles Percy, R-Ill., a letter of apology that is unmatched in its abject tone by any communication to Capitol Hill from the Reagan administration.

Fairbanks positively groveled. He assured Percy that "the individual made the recording without our knowledge or approval," and acknowledged that the action was "a violation of the rules of your Committee."

Fairbanks wrote that he was "personally most apologetic for this unintended breach" of the committee's rules, promised that "it will not happen again," stoutly maintained that he had taken personal responsibility to insure against a repetition, and closed with a pathetic sackcloth-and-ashes protestation:

"Again, you have my personal apology for this incident. Please convey my apology to the other Members of the Committee and to the staff."

This astonishing Uriah Heep routine by a top aide to the haughty secretary of state may not have convinced the members of the Senate committee, some of whom have reportedly had their noses put out of joint by Haig's overbearing behavior in the past. The fact that the culprit who did the taping, Keith Schuette, still has his job — indeed, seems to have suffered little more than a "reprimand" for his sneak attack on senatorial dignity — may add to Senate suspicions that the incident was not the accident it has been painted to be by Foggy Bottom artists.

Percy read the Fairbanks apology to assembled committee members, and for some, that ended the matter. Others were not sure that it should be dismissed so lightly.

The doubters wonder why the secret taper wasn't detected by one of his State Department colleagues and warned that his clandestine taping was a no-no.

There is even the possibility that — heaven forbid — Haig may have reverted to his old Nixon-era form and authorized the secret taping himself. Unworthy as this suggestion may be, Senate sources reminded my associate Lucette Lagnado that Haig, in the past, has been burned by what he considers partisan leaks from earlier closed sessions with Congress.

In fact, Haig's minions had complained about earlier leaks traceable to such "closed" sessions on Capitol Hill and had asked permission to have their own transcriber present to record the July 8 briefing session. The committee refused the request; if the State Department wanted a transcript of the proceedings, it could look at a copy, with the express stipulation that no copies be made.

Whether the taping was a result of stupidity or deliberate skulduggery, there is no question that it was artlessly carried out. The telltale tape was found laying on a Xerox machine after the briefing by Senate aides.

Since the tape was found on the side of the committee room occupied mostly by State Department people, it took no Sherlock Holmes to figure out who was responsible. An accusatory call to Foggy Bottom nailed down the culprit — and brought the abject apology from Haig's embarrassed congressional liaison aide.

WHAT PRICE PRIVACY?: Members of the House of Representatives put great store in the common touch, but there are times when they want to escape from their constituents and have a quiet meal among their peers. The trouble is that the House's private, members-only dining room is a money-losing enterprise.

In fact, the elegant eatery was already $40,000 in the red by the Easter recess. So the subcommittee in charge closed the place down.

Deluged by complaints from congressmen who relished their private dining privilege, the subcommittee ordered the Capitol Architect to consider ways that would put the dining room on a break-even basis — even suggesting the possibility of a self-service cafeteria operation.

Meanwhile, some privacy-minded members had another idea — specifically, tacking on a $300,000 appropriation to bring back the good old days. Rep. Fred Richmond, D-N.Y., even suggested that members pay more for their meals — and got 288 colleagues to sign a petition for reopening of the dining room.

INSIDE REPORT:

Kennedy groping for alternative policy to Reaganism

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's speech was skillfully constructed and forcefully delivered to a labor audience filled with volunteers for a 1984 presidential try, but the old Kennedy magic was lacking.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Kennedy's failing at the ironworkers national convention was partly cosmetic. Nearing 50 and a little overweight, he arrived here in a wrinkled suit with graying hair in need of grooming and cutting. But it is not merely that he is no longer the dashing restorer of Camelot; he seems unwilling or unable to paint a clear picture of the future restoration, a failing common to Democratic leaders since Reagan.

His principal message attacked President Reagan's economic program that "rewards the rich and pressures hard-pressed workers and the middle class." The attentive union audience sat on its hands until Kennedy turned to Social Security, high interest rates and, especially, the Davis-Bacon Act that protects wages of construction workers.

Kennedy's appearance at the ironworkers convention reflects a continuing Democratic problem as well as his own special strengths and weaknesses. Ironworkers president John H. Lyons is an old backer of the Kennedys. But rejecting advice from subordinate officials, Lyons put his union behind Jimmy Carter against Teddy Kennedy in 1980.

He has been making amends ever since. Last October, the ironworkers became the first union to pledge the maximum $5,000 contribution to defraying the Kennedy presidential campaign debt and later pledged the maximum for his Senate re-election campaign next year. Lyons was so anxious to snare him for the convention that when the air traffic controllers strike posed complications, the union hired an expensive executive jet to fly Kennedy out of Florida. He seems the probable ironworkers choice for '84 against former vice president Walter Mondale.

Yet, leaders of the union admit their rank and file backed Ronald Reagan last year and still like him. "Their attitude is, 'Why don't we give Reagan a chance to see what he can do?'" one ironworker officer told us.

Thus, Kennedy's assault on the Reagan tax bill as "a tree ripe with the richest plums for the wealthiest individuals and corporations but ... only bitter fruit for workers and the middle class" got little response. Later, Kennedy privately commented that workers seem not to care "that two-thirds of the tax cut goes to the rich so long as they are getting their one-third."

Union leaders think this attitude will change when hard times come. After Kennedy told the convention that "the construction industry is on the rocks," a union official informed the senator that ironworkers have plenty of work. "All the new office buildings?" asked Kennedy. "Mainly power plants," the union official replied, too polite to identify many of them as nuclear power plants opposed by Kennedy.

Naturally, Kennedy did not mention nuclear power to the ironworkers but did bring them to their feet with this: "Let us pledge together that repeal of the Davis-Bacon act (the law requiring prevailing wages for government construction projects) shall not be passed by Congress!" The easiest way to chase the union's rank and file away from Reagan, one of its leaders told us, would be a Reagan push for Davis-Bacon repeal. So far, Reagan is not obliging.

Generally, in wooing back blue-collar workers, Kennedy and other Democrats are groping. "We must be something more than just warmed-over Republicans," Kennedy told the convention, thinking of opposition to him in the Senate Democratic Conference.

But having opted for boldness in general, Kennedy is cautious with specifics. His 1980 program of government controls on wages, prices, interest rates, profits, dividends and rents is buried — certainly for now, perhaps forever. His national health insurance specialty was not once mentioned here.

Substituting for new policies is familiar rhetoric. Introducing Kennedy to the Massachusetts Committee on Political Education (COPE) following his Florida trip, state AFL-CIO president Arthur Osborne denounced "the enemies of the working class, who somehow have managed to take control of our government." Accepting COPE's unanimous endorsement in Boston, Kennedy assailed the Reagan administration not only for Davis-Bacon repeal but also for such other non-Reagan policies as a national right-to-work law and an effort to apply anti-trust laws to unions.

The Massachusetts labor leaders cheered loudest when Kennedy declared of himself: "This happens to be one target of the Moral Majority who intends to fight back." Newsmen were then hustled from the room as Kennedy and COPE planned strategy against the National Conservative Political Action Committee (NCPAC), whose targeting of the senator led to COPE's unusually early endorsement. Still groping for an alternative policy to Reaganism, Ted Kennedy can thank the NCPAC bogeyman for mobilizing his support.

Hit man's condition worsens

HOUSTON (AP)— Authorities say Charles V. Harrelson cannot see visitors in his Harris County jail cell because of the hunger strike that has deteriorated his condition.

Bu his wife and his lawyer told a Dallas newspaper that they think the rule against visitors has been invoked to "break his resistance" to federal investigators looking into he assasination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

Harrelson, identifed as a prime target of the federal investigaton, said he began his hnger strike to protest the jailing of his stepdaughter, Teresa Starr Jasper.

Ms. Jasper was jailed for contempt when she refused to testify beore the federal grand jury.

Jo Ann Harrelson, who also has been threatened with contempt in the grand jury inquiry, said her husband has lost about 10 pounds since he startd the hunger strike 32 days ago.

"I don't think anything they could do right now would change his mind," Mrs. Harrelson said. "I don't think he really wants to die, but he's not one to back down."

Dennis heads to Florida

(AP) — Dennis, a gentle giant of a tropical storm, pelted extreme South Floida with heavy rain early today as gale warnings were extended northward along the Florida East Coast from Key Largo to Palm Beach.

The storm, which had stalled just north of the Florida Keys, was moving slowly northward about 5 mph. Forecasters said it was likely to continue the motion as it neared the Ten Thousand Islands Region on Florida's lower West Coast.

Highest winds remained at 55 mph, mainly in squalls east of the center. Dennis's winds would have to exceed 74 mph in order for it to be clasified a hurricane.

"It's like an old outboard motor," said Gilbert Clark, a forecaster at te National Hurricane Center in Miami. "It just can't seem to get started."

Forecasters said early today tha no important changes in strength were indicated, although "as long as the storm remains over water, there is the possibility it could strengthen," forecaster John Hope said.

The storm had made its way into Florida Bay on weak currents Sunday night after its diffused center passed over the lower Keys, bringing downpours and strong gusts of wind but causing no injuries or major damage. "We really didn't have any storm at all," said Florida Highway Patrol dispatcher Judie Wilson. "People are going to think we were kidding."

At 6 a.m. EDT, Dennis was centered about 6 miles west-southwest of Miami, near latitude 25.6 north and longitude 81.3 west.

Mall plans Back-to-School Bicycle Round-up

Area school children will have a chance to practice their bicycle skills and sharpen their awareness of hazards while riding at a Back-to-School Bicycle Round-up Saturday at 10 a.m. in the northeast end of the Midland Park Mall parking lot.

The highlight of the round-up, sponsored by Midland Park Mall, Midland County 4-H and the Texas Department of Public Safety, will be a competitve series of skill and agility tests where children will demonstrate their ability to turn, ride a straight line, weave through pylons and stop on a line after riding a set distance.

According to DPS records, some 2,600 Texans were injured while riding pedal-type cycles in 1980. There were 69 fatalities in the same period, according to the DPS.

With the growing number of bicyclists, the accident rate in Midland also has increased, according to the Midland Police Department. Although only 19 car-bicycle mishaps involving injuries occurred in 1980 in Midland, 14 have already occurred in the first six months of 1981.

Competition in the round-up will be divided into three age groups: 7 and under, 8 to 10 and 11 and up. They will receive points on a cumulative basis for each course they run.

During the clinic a DPS representative will inspect the children's bicycles for possible hazards. Participants will then hear a brief safety program on preventive maintenance for their bicycles and on the traffic rules that they, as bicyclists, must obey.

A representative from Operation Identification will be available to engrave the bicycles with a parent's Texas drivers license number and to register the bicycle with the Midland Police Department and the child's school.

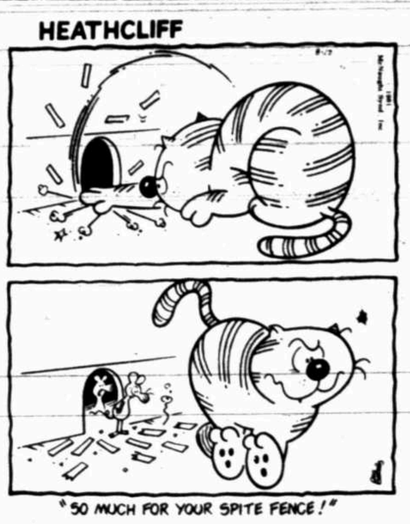

Mickey Mouse, Minnie Mouse, Pluto and Goofy will be present to assist in the awards ceremony immediately after the competition where the high point winner in each age category will receive as first prize a bicycle donated by a Midland Park Mall merchant.

Awards will be presented to each age group through fifth place, and the Department of Public Safety will award ribbons to the first three contestants in each group. Every participant will receive a certificate from the Department of Public Safety upon completion of the clinic.

Syrian forces try to disengage militias

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Tank-led Syrian forces moved to disengage warring pro-Iranian and pro-Soviet Lebanese militias today, where two days of street battles left eight combatants killed and 30 wounded, police reported.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan flew to Saudi Arabia in quest of an Arab summit conference to take up the confrontation between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization in Lebanon.

The militias traded fire from mortars, rocket-propeled grenades and machine guns in a raging battle that paralyzed traffic between the city's Moslem and Cristian sectors.

Beirut police spokesman said armored units from the Syrian peacekeeping army moved at mid-morning into the southern Chiyah and Sfair suburbs in an attempt to set up buffer zones to separate the combatants.

Ceasefire calls were made through bullhorns as the Syrians intervened. The police spokesman said hostilities had de-escalated but not all guns had fallen silent.

Gunmen in Moslem West Beirut killed a former Christian militiaman, his 9-year-old daughter and 7-year-old son in an ambush Sunday that also left two bodyguards dead. One of the bodyguards was identifid as a PLO member.

Two Iranian clerics assassinated

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Foes of Iran's fundamentalist Islamic government assassinated two clerics during the weekend while the government announced 54 executions and said it arrested more than 200 leftists.

Tehran Radio charged that two "American mercenaries" killed Mullah Saleh Khosavi and his 18-year-old son and wouded three others as they were leaving a mosque in the western city of Sanandaj.

Another clergyman, Hojatoleslam Towhidi, died on the way to the hosital Saturday after three men ambushed his car and shot him in the Caspian Sea town of Babol, he official Pars news agency reported.

Tehran newspapers also reported a machine-gun and grenade attack by two motorcyclists on the Tehran home of the president of the Supreme Court, Ayatollah Musavi Ardebili. But they said no one was hurt and one of the cyclists was captured.

Ardebili's predecessor, Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, was killed with 71 other political leaders in the bombing June 28 of the headquarters of the ruling Islamic Republican Party.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's forces kept up their war on their opponets with more arrests and executions.

Tehran Radio said the weeend executions by firing squads included 26 people convicted of armed insurrection, 26 drug smugglers, a homosexual and an adulterer. This brought to more than 400 the number of executions since President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr was ousted in June. Bani-Sadr escaped to Paris on July 29.

The government radio also reported more than 200 members of the Mujaheden Khalq, the chief leftist guerrilla organization, and other opposition groups were picked up in raids in four cities.

Bani-Sadr's successor, President Mohammad Ali Rajai, in a broadcast address accused the Mujahedeen Khalq of "brutal terrorism" and said it should be making war on "Americans, capitalists, exploiters or Zionists."

"You should know that you are hated, for the people's hearts, hands and existence are linked with the Beheshtis, and you are blind and do not see it," Rajai declared.

Meanwhile, Iran charged tha the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency masterminded the hijacking off Spain last Thursday of one of three Iranian gunboats en route to Iran from a French shipyard. The Iranian Freedom Seekers, an organization of anti-Khomeini exiles in Paris, said it did the hijacking. Arab newspapers said the boat was being taken to Egypt. the home of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's son, who proclaimed himsel Shah Reza II.

John Paul travels to palace

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — Pope John Paul II arrived here to convalesce at his summer palace, apologizing to thousands of cheering pilgrims for being the first pontiff in 20 years to miss Mass in the parish church on the Feast of the Assumption.

An Italian air force helicopter on Sunday ferried the 61-year-old pontiff 18 miles from the Vatican to the 17th century Castel Gandolfo, where 3,000 pilgrims greeted him.

John Paul chatted and joked for nearly 30 minutes with the crowd, first in the courtyard of the papal palace and then from his third-floor window looking out on the town's central square.

"I will begin my apologizing, as a fellow citizen of Castel Gandolfo who should have been here Aug. 15, while today is the 16th," the pope said.

"However, an excuse is not enough — you need a justification. But for that you would hve to lisen to a special delegation from the Gemelli hospital."

The Feast of the Assumption, a Roman Catholic holy day of obligation, fell on Saturday.

Doctors who released him from Gemelli hospital on Friday said the pope will need about six weeks of convalescence before resuming his regular public duties.

"We're so happy he's here. We feel like he's one of our own when he comes," said Sister Maria Grazia, 35, a nun who was in the crowd.

Japanese opposition seems 'misinformed'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials are concerned that what they call "misinformed" oppositon in Japan could block the two-way flow of technology vital to defense interests of both countries. These officials say Jpanese critics wrongly charged that the United States wants to raid high technology developed by Japan and to push Japanese industry into selling arms to other friendly countries despite Japan's policy against such sales.

"If we are going to have cooperation and coordination in our mutual defense interests, technology must flow both ways," said one official.

"It will avoid duplication in research and development and could lead to lower weapon costs for both nations," he said.

Pentagon officials, speaking anonymously, noted that for many years the United States has shared its military technology with Japan, with only limited reciprocity, such as when Japanese ideas were adopted years ago to improve U.S.-built P-2 patrol planes and F-104 interceptors.

The Carter administration brought about direct U.S.-Japanese military planning for the first time and made a strong effort to establish formalized coordination in resarch and development at the same time, according to officials.

"The objective we are following now is no different than the past administration's," said a Pentagn official. "We want to get the best systems available for the benefit of both countries."

There have been published reports from Tokyo that the Japanese government is divided on the issue of joint development of weapons and other military quipment.

Some Japanese critics have been quoted a claiming the United Sates wants to get its hands on Japanese devlopments in such fields as lasres and fiber optics.

"We are not seeking high technology fom Japan, although conceivably that could come eventually," said a senior U.S official. "At this time, we don't have any specific items in mind. We're still trying to work out cooperative procedures."

Pentagon officials also denied allegations that the United States hopes to prod Japan into selling arms to pro-Western and potentially friendly non-aligned countries.

"We don't think anything we are proposing would change Japan's non-export arms policy," said an official.

Train crash kills four

VIENA, Austria (AP) — A commuter train crashed into a station retaining barrier early today, killing four people and injuring at least 100 others, authorities said.

Three people were killed immediately and a fourth died from injuries while being taken to the hospital, police reported.

The accident occurred during the height of morning rush hour traffic, when a commuter train failed to stop at the end of a station platfom and the train's eleven cars piled into one another, observers said.

Police gave no immediate cause for the accident.

At least eleven of the injured had to be cut out of smashed train cars with rescue equpment, the Austrian press agency reported.

Four of the injured were pinned inside of one car or more than two hours, the agency added.

Even though the cost of housing has skyrocketed, new houses are still being built in Midland and most are sold even before they're completed.

...It'll cost you

housing: second in a series

EDITOR'S NOTE: Two years ago, residents on the low end of the income scale were feeling the pinch of escalating housing costs and unavailability of units. Today, housing is ranked as the city's worst problem. This is the second of an eight-part series focusing on what is — and isn't — being done to resolve the situation.

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

"I hope things is all right in California...Seems too nice, kinda. I seen the han'bills fellas pass out, an' how much work they is, an' high wages an' all; an' I seen in the paper how they want folks to come an' pick grapes an' oranges an' peaches....I'm scared of stuff so nice. I ain't got faith. I'm scared somepin ain't so nice about it."

—"Grapes of Wrath"
By John Steinbeck

They don't come to pick oranges and peaches and grapes in Midland. But like the farmers who picked up their lives during the dust-bowl days in Oklahoma and moved to California, hundreds of people are swarming into Midland to get into the petroleum business.

Finding a job is no problem for these people. But they also discover that "somepin ain't so nice about it" and that's the lack of housing. And if they can find housing, they discover the prices are as high as another commodity in demand — gold.

Cunningham

Two years ago, it was the low-income family that was affected most by the scarcity of housing and its high cost. Today, the problem has spread its tentacles to the middle-income family. In Midland, officials have said, middle-income applies to families making about $25,000.

INDICATIONS ARE that salaries will continue to escalate, but in many cases it's not going up as fast as houses or rent.

By July 1980, the Texas Employment Commission listed the average working salary in Midland as $316 a week. That amounts to $16,432 per year. And Ed Miller with the local TEC office said the weekly wage would be higher this year, although the figures haven't been released yet.

"I'm not downing the petroleum industry, but there are some high salaries in there. The higher salaries are driving up rents and the cost of housing," he noted.

In recent months, Miller has observed that "all our applicants now are coming in from outside the area. Last winter, we got a lot of people from up north because of the cold winter up there, and they've stayed.

"We're in an employment boom right now. The jobs are here in Midland. We usually have 350 to 400 jobs every day. And the Midland job bank — which lists openings in Midland, Odessa, Big Spring and San Angelo — shows up to 1,500 jobs."

Until last June, Midland reported one of the lowest unemployment rates in the state with the figure hovering around 4 percent. In June it jumped to 7.2 percent. Miller attributed the higher rate to the influx of people from outside the area.

"ONE OR TWO people will make a difference in the unemployment figures. The rates are not a true picture of what's happening."

He prefers to look at the constantly rising employment numbers. In June, the work force totaled 54,630, a 10.8 percent jump over the figure of 49,320 for June 1980. And it's 4.3 percent higher than the previous month when 52,370 persons were employed.

The work force in the Permian Basin area is nothing to sneeze at, in Miller's viewpoint. He sees Midland-Odessa as a metropolitan area with 300,000 working people.

"Midland is the downtown section, Odessa is the industrial part and the smaller surrounding cities are the suburbs," he explained.

Midland remains the white collar city with at least 51 percent of the job openings for office positions, according to Miller. But he sees that it's time to push the service aspect of the community — businesses which serve the high-paid professionals.

"This part (service industry) is hurting real bad, such as food service, retail and trade. These jobs are generally low-paying considering the average wage in the area."

The Midland Chamber of Commerce lists the 1979 Effective Buying Income, or the income after taxes, as $25,083 per household. In the chamber publication, "Design for a City," a report shows that 70.1 percent of the households took home $15,000 or more. Out of that 70.1 percent is included 6.8 percent who made $50,000 or more after taxes. And on the other end of the scale, 8.3 percent of the residents took home $5,000 or less that year.

By 1983, the EBI is projected to be $41,270, according to the report.

According to bankers and Realtors, $15,000 after taxes doesn't leave a family with much buying power when it comes to housing.

PROFESSIONAL EMPLOYEES are having to fork out $650 to $900 a month for house payments or rent, Miller noted. "Middle income people can't pay that. It makes my hackles rise when I see what I used to pay for rent and what they're charging today. You shouldn't pay more than a fourth of your salary for housing; but it's not working that way."

"Our problem is we don't have enough houses to sell. A lot of people coming here are tranferees with major companies and can afford to buy houses. However, even some of these people are finding a problem...."

Ray Moudy, president of Citizens Savings & Loan Association and also president of the Texas Housing Association, also sees housing costs going above limits that middle-income people can afford.

Two years ago, interest rates for a conventional home loan were about 9¾ to 10 percent. Average cost of a house then was $40,000 and on a 9¾ percent loan, the house payment, which included taxes and insurance, was $401 a month. This amount could be afforded by a family making as little as $20,000 a year, or $1,660 a month.

Today, that same house costs at least $60,000 and the house payment has jumped about 125 percent, as compared to the inflation rate of 25 percent for the past two years.

INTEREST RATES today have been hovering around 17 percent, Moudy noted. Taking a $60,000 house, "which isn't much of a house nowadays with 1,200 square feet," on a 90 percent loan, the principal and interest on the $54,000 mortgage, along with insurance and taxes, would be $905 a month. To meet the underwriting guidelines, he said, the applicant must make $3,200 a month or $38,400 a year.

"At this level, many people can't qualify for a loan," Moudy said. "Even with a two-income household, that's a healthy income. The median family income in Midland is $22,000 a year. And that means 50 percent of the people made less than that."

Although the cost of houses has jumped to hurt the average income homebuyer, the real knife in the heart has been the interest rates.

To illustrate the problem, Moudy said that same $60,000 house at 12 percent would mean house payments of $680 a month. Income requirement would drop to $29,000 per year.

Despite these problems, Moudy continues to see a house as a good investment. "It still increases in value over the years."

It's the low end of the housing price spectrum that is suffering, he noted, while houses costing over $100,000 are selling well in Midland. "The high interest rates affect these people less. They have a greater income and the house serves as a tax break."

One Midland homebuilder, noted for large and expensive houses, brought out another fact that is inherent in the rich: These people for the most part don't need home loans; they pay for the houses in cash.

Despite the high figures, houses are selling at a record rate this year. Betty McDearmon, president of the Midland Board of Realtors, noted that up to the end of July, housing sales had hit $86 million. For all of 1980, the sales were $123 million.

AVERAGE COST of the 1,197 houses sold during the first seven months of 1981 was $71,902. During 1980, average cost of the 1,939 housing units purchased was $63,700 — a difference of $9,000 in one year.

"The housing market is good here. Our problem is we don't have enough houses to sell," noted Ms. McDearmon. "A lot of people coming here are tranferees with major companies and can afford to buy houses. However, even some of these people are finding a problem. There's not that many houses to choose from and the average selling price is in the $70,000 and $80,000 range."

Building permits were issued during the first six months of this year for 696 new single family homes, with the average costing $75,310.

And 482 new apartment units were permitted for a cost of $8,275,000. Average cost per unit will run $17,000 to construct.

If interest rates were lower, Ms. McDearmon predicted housing sales would go even higher. But residents are staying put in their houses, rather than trade it in for a newer or larger home.

Apartments used to serve as an alternative housing stock for persons residing on the lower end of the income spectrum. But even rents are going beyond what many people can pay, Moudy observed.

NEW APARTMENT COMPLEXES are opening at $300 or more for a one-bedroom unfurnished apartment. Add $50 a month for utilities and a person needs to make $1,300 a month, or $16,080 a year to qualify for the apartment.

Moudy figured that a two-bedroom apartment with 1,000 square feet of space would rent for about $425 a month with $65 a month utilities. The renter must make $21,500 a year to afford his housing.

An updated survey of local apartment complexes by the Chamber of Commerce reflects how rents, and even deposits, have increased in six months. The first survey was made last winter; the second in July.

Picking randomly through the list and taking the comparisons on one-bedroom unfurnished apartments, Midland Elms has gone up from $260 a month to $295; Peppertree has increased from $235 to $295; Village Green is up from $255 to $290; Saddle Club has risen from $345 to $395; Courtyard has gone from $270 up to $310; Fairmont, from $250 up to $310; and 4400 Andrews Highway, from $325 up to $375.

Deposits in some places have doubled in six months: Cabana, from $100 up to $200; Haystack, $125 up to $250; Peppertree, $100 up to $200; Alpine, from $100 to $200; and Dellwood Village, from $100 to $175.

EVEN OFFICIALS at City Hall will admit that housing costs in Midland are 25 to 30 percent higher than in Lubbock, only 120 miles to the north.

Comparing two apartment complexes in the two cities comfirms that report. The Haystack Apartments in Lubbock will rent a one-bedroom unfurnished apartment with 680 square feet for $225 a month. Deposit there is $135.

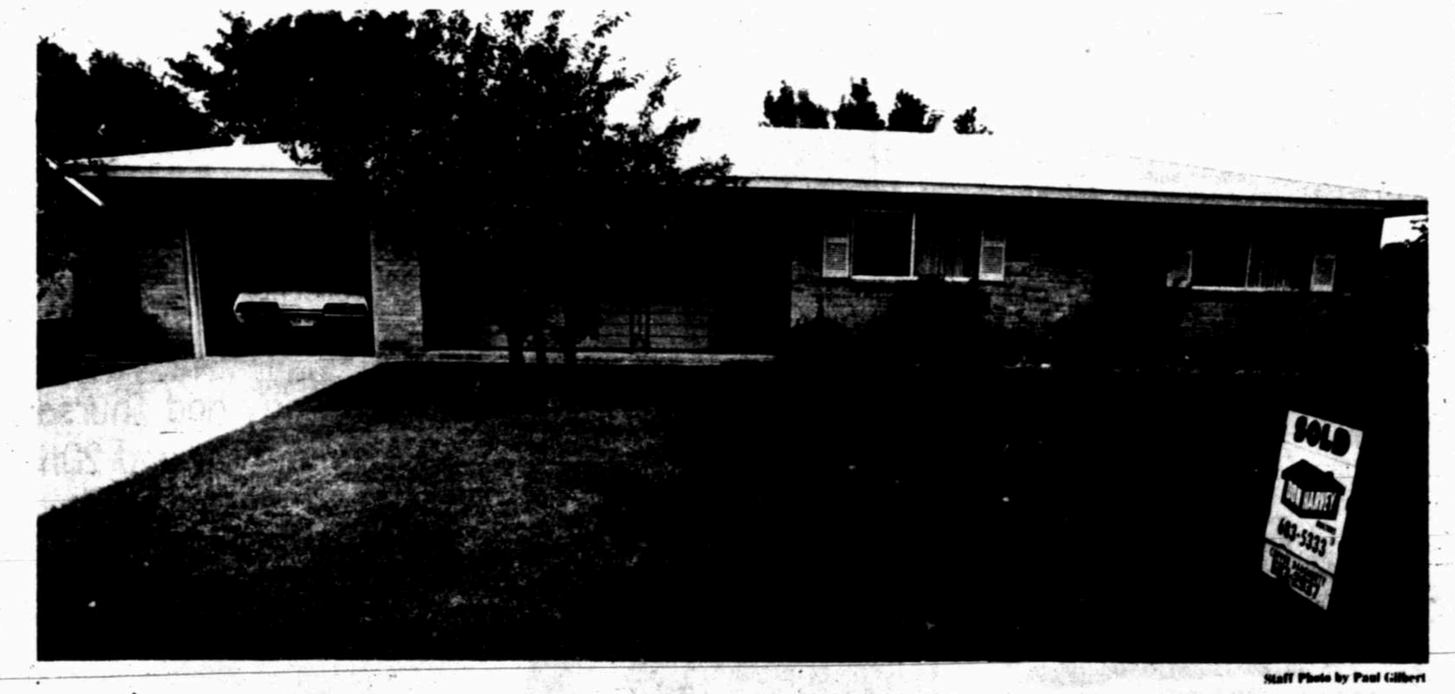

Meanwhile, the same Haystack Apartments in Midland require a $260 deposit for a similar one-bedroom unit with 690 square feet that rents for $270 a month.

To move into the Midland apartment will take $530, while the Lubbock complex will only require $360, a difference of $170.

"A family has to give up something else to afford housing nowadays," Moudy said. "It also means that people in the market can't buy as large or as nice a home as they'd like. They're having to 'buy down' in size and quality. It's a reflection of the inflationary times we're living in."

Looking at the figures for renting an apartment or buying a small house, Moudy concluded that "there's a shortage of housing that people in moderate income categories can afford. It points to the fact we need more multi-family units in Midland until housing costs come down."

Nicotine connection: Final withdrawal

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the continuation of a two part series detailing ways to quit smoking without any weight gain.

PSYCHOLOGICAL SUPPORTS

+ Spend as much of your free time as you possibly can in public places where smoking is prohibited: Museums, galleries, theaters, concert halls, department stores, etc.

+ Try as much as you possibly can to steer clear of friends who smoke during this interim period.

+ If you smoke while driving, perhaps you can shift to buses or subways (where smoking is prohibited) for a good deal of the time.

+ Do not stay at the table after you have finished eating. This is a compulsive smoking time for almost all smokers.

+ Be very careful about alcohol. Drinking, whether wine or beer or hard liquor, is closely linked with smoking. Drinking is also likely to weaken your willpower.

+ Some people find that having a cigarette with a cup of coffee is a stubborn habit. On the other hand, you may discover that a small cup of strong, really delicious coffee, like espresso with a twist of lemon, can take the place of a cigarette at the end of a meal. It gives you the much-needed taste you have come to expect at that particular time.

+ Find something new to do with your hands. For men, a key ring with lots of keys on it helps. So does a handful of small change in your pocket that you can really jingle. Or twirling a pair of eyeglasses. For some, needlepoint can be an excellent preoccupation; for others it is nerve-racking. The same goes for knitting and crochet. Greek worry beads work for just about everyone. An important point for women: wear clothes with big pockets that you can stick your hands in, vigorously.

+ If you miss the oral gratification of a cigarette and you are not using snuff, keep something you can pop in your mouth — chewing gum, Life Savers, or the new diet candies that are almost zero in calories. Sipping drinks on a straw can be a big help.

+ Deep breathing can act as a substitute for the deep puff of a cigarette. Take a long, deep breath slowly, hold it two or three seconds, and then let it out slowly. Repeat several times.

+ Take up some new activities, particularly exercise. Try swimming at the local "Y." Or check for classes in karate, fencing, yoga, gymnastics, or tap dancing. Or take up biking, jogging, running, walking, cross-country skiing, racquetball, squash, roller-skating, or iceskating.

STOP SMOKING DAY

Once you are down to about eight to 10 cigarettes a day — if not sooner — it is time to make the big quit-try. Do it the moment you get up in the morning. Throw out your cigarettes and matches and put all the ashtrays away. Keep very, very busy all day. Make a special point of avoiding places where people habitually smoke. Go to a movie. Do whatever can help you take your mind off cigarettes. This is one day to be good to yourself in every way.

WITHDRAWAL WEEK

Why mince words? The six or seven days that follow Stop Smoking Day are likely to be the most difficult. Everything that can help you keep your mind and hands and taste buds occupied is needed more than ever now.

Get plenty of rest. This means getting a good night's sleep every night, and not stressing yourself any more than need be. From here on, the job is to stay off cigarettes. Keep using strategems that you found to be effective during the stopping period. Do not allow yourself to have "just one cigarette" to see what its like now — that is enough to start you smoking all over again.

Give fireplace a facelift with gypsum board

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Every year thousands of home owners vow to get their fireplaces and accompanying chimneys in good shape for safe and efficient operation.

Some do. Some don't. While the warmth and ambience provided by the old hearth is undeniable, a brick fireplace that looks tired and overwhelms the living room is sometimes in need of a facelift. When cosmetic surgery seems in order, gypsum board, often loosely called drywall, can be the answer.

The first step in the renovation is to clean the bricks with a strong detergent and a stiff brush. Pay special attention to those within about 8 inches of the fireplace opening. On completion, that area will be left uncovered. Using nails or screws and anchors, attach 1-by 2-inch furring strips to the brick. Place them on all outside and inside edges except around the fireplace opening. There, attach furring strips a minimum of 8 inches from the sides and the top of the opening, leaving a brick border around the opening. Add other furring strips so that there is no more than 16 inches between any two strips.

Cut the gypsum board to cover the fireplace so that the edges butt over the center of the furring strips. On the corners, the edges should be flush with the side of each furring strip. To cut the panels, score the face side with a sharp knife, using a straightedge as a guide. Fold the panel back until it snaps, then slice through the remaining paper on the uncut side.

Nail the boards to the furring strips, using drywall nails. Be sure to cover the inside edges of the wood framing around the fireplace opening with strips of gypsum panels so that no wood is exposed.

Place a nail about every 8 inches where the drywall overlaps with furring strips. Make sure the nails are at least ⅛ths of an inch from the panels' edges. Drive the nails into the boards just far enough to create a little dimple.

An expert on such an installation, Wallace Weidman, U.S. Gypsum senior vice president, says all outside corners should be reinforced with metal corner bead, nailing the flanges through the boards into the furring strips, trimming to size and nailing every 9 inches on each flange.

Apply joint compound across all joints and immediately apply reinforcing tape by firmly pressing it into the compound. With a joint-finishing knife, remove excess compound, making sure a thin layer covers the tape. Apply joint compound to the dimples and corner bead and remove any excess with a joint-finishing knife. Run the knife along the corner bead with one edge riding on the corner bead and the other edge on the surface of the gypsum panel. Let dry for at least 24 hours and then smooth lightly with sandpaper or a moistened sponge. Apply two more coats of compound over the joints, dimples and corner bead

Cover all the drywall and joint compound with a primer and at least one coat of paint. You can either paint the brick around the opening or leave it as is.

The result is a contemporary look for a tired fireplace. If painted the same color as the room's walls, the fireplace will blend visually with the entire room. Or you can choose a different color to accent the fireplace.

Vocabulary of modern design

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Today's waiting rooms, offices and modern home interiors probably would not look the way they do without the work of Marcel Breuer.

Breuer, who died in July, may be best-known to the public as the architect who designed such buildings as the Whitney Museum in New York and the headquarters in Paris of UNESCO. But he is honored by designers for being the first to create tubular steel furniture.

An exhibition of his furniture and interior designs which opened recently at the Museum of Modern Art in New York makes it clear the design idiom Breuer created in Europe in the 1920s and 1930s is still the basic vocabulary of modern design.

Create a special shelf to prevent backache while painting your house's window screens

By AL CARRELL

If you paint your window screens, you know you'll do better with the screens off the house. You also know that you can develop a backache by all the bending over if the screens are resting on the ground and leaning against something. L.K. got tired of the back problem, so he created a special shelf that became his back saver. The shelf is the same width or narrower than the step on his stepladder. It's made of 1x1 scrap. He then added a lip to the edge from a 2-inch wide scrap slat. This special shelf was then attached using C-clamps to a convenient step on the ladder so the screens could be held on the shelf by the lip and leaned against the ladder. For taller screens, he works the top part while the screen is on the ground and raises it to the shelf for the lower half. Of course, some of us could stand a little bending-over exercise for the expanding waistline.

Dear Al: The new indoor-outdoor thermometer was great except I had to go over to the window to actually tell what the temperature was because the numerical markings were too small. Since I could see the column of red stuff from across the room, I decided to improve the gadget's efficiency. For summertime, the big number where we live is 90. We'd also like to know when the temperature is at 75 so we can enjoy fresh air instead of air conditioning or heating. In winter, we need to know when it hits freezing, and also like to know when it's down around 20. I used some bright red fingernail polish to make a large dot at each of these points. Now I can tell the approximate temperature at a glance from across the room. — Mrs. G.L.

+ + +

Dear Al: If you haven't tried this, you'll think it's silly. However, after I finish cleaning a paint brush, I have found that using a fabric softener from the laundry room as a final soak makes the brush like new. I use it full strength and let the brush soak for half an hour or so before rinsing it. This works whether you've used oil or latex paint. — S.S.

+ + +

A SUPER HINT — If you like getting a tan in the summertime, doing furniture stripping out in the sun while you're partially stripped isn't the answer. The extra heat will let some of the very important ingredients of the paint and varnish remover evaporate, and this means the stuff doesn't do its job as well. Using a fan to blow away the odor and fumes can also do the same thing. Follow all the caution notices as to ventilation, but pick out a shady spot for stripping with a paint and varnish remover. Besides, too much sun tan isn't all that good for your skin according to medics.

+ + +

Dear Al: Here's a trick for those with a hot melt glue gun. Applying the hot glue to a cold surface makes the adhesive set up almost immediately. This means that it often doesn't have the extra time to flow into any surface irregularities or into pores of such things as wood. If you pre-heat the surfaces to be glued, the adhesive has that extra time to wet the surface, and thus fill in everywhere before it solidifies. I use a hand-held hair dryer to heat such surfaces for much better results with the hot melt adhesive. — R.R.G.

SHOP TALK — I've seen a lot of different and weird types of hammers in my life. The newest is one from Easco called the "Hand-tasic." The wooden handle has a bend in it that makes it look like a factory second. "Au contraire," says the manufacturer. They say the 19-degree patented bend gives a better grip for greater striking impact with less strain on the hammerer. Their tests produced far fewer cases of carpenter's elbow. After a few practice swings, I found I could hit the nail on the head. Look for it in your favorite home center or hardware store.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Ways to remove sticky adhesive backing

DEAR HELOISE:

We are selling our home and I really need help. I lined my kitchen cabinet shelves with adhesive-backed paper. They are a mess now and I can't get the paper off.

I can't leave them this way for the new owners of our house, so I'm hoping you will be able to offer some advice. — Dorothy Chapell

+ + +

I know the feeling, luv! Everything has to be shipshape at house-selling time, especially the kitchen, which is the heart of any home.

While the covering is difficult to remove, it isn't impossible, so do this:

If you're sure the covering you used is paper, wet it with very soapy water and keep it wet until the paper loosens, then remove it.

If the covering is adhesive-backed plastic, get your iron and set it on low heat. Place a piece of heavy brown paper (a grocery bag will do) over the plastic to protect your iron.

Iron the plastic until the glue backing begins to soften, then the plastic should be easy to peel off. Work with a small area at a time for best results.

If any glue residue remains on the surface, spray it with a laundry pre-wash stain remover. Leave the spray on for a few minutes, then rub with a dry cloth until the glue comes off.

In some instances, the glue can be stubborn and you'll have to resort to rubbing it with a dry substance such as cornmeal, dry powdered cleaner (if the surface won't scratch) baking soda, etc. Takes tons of elbow grease too.

Good Luck! — Hugs, Heloise

PANTYHOSE BRA

Dear Heloise: In addition to making "panties" out of old pantyhose by cutting the legs short, make a strapless bra out of the control-top. Better than braless and it saves a bundle!

Cut the seat straight across, just above the crotch. With the elastic band at the top, center seam at front, pull the garment over the head down to under the arms, then stretch it down under the bust and tuck the raw edges under.

Not a support bra but it's great for strapless sun dresses, house and garden outfits, or whatever outfits. Try it! You 'll like it! — M.M.

SHOE LACE TIPS

Dear Heloise: My children's shoelaces always lose the plastic tips.

Putting a small piece of clear, sticky tape around the stray ends enables the laces to go through the eyelets easier. — Mrs. Gibbons

R-T to host coffee for publicity chairmen

The Lifestyle Department of The Midland Reporter-Telegram will host a coffee Aug. 26.

Publicity chairmen of all women's clubs, sororities, fund-raising groups and other civic organizations who work with the Lifestyle Department are invited to attend the coffee and program beginning at 9 a.m. at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

William C. Thomas, publisher, and Jim Servatius, editor, will welcome the group and make the opening remarks. Members of the Lifestyle Department will then introduce new guidelines for fall, and answer any questions the group might have.

Dallas has highest number of rapes in nation

By ALLEN K. SHORT
Associatd Press Writer

DALAS (AP) — Five years ago, when a young Dallas secretary told her boss sh'd been raped, he fired her because he didn't want "that kind of woman' around the office

About the same time, two rape victims reported they had to wait in a hospital emergency room more than 12 hours before they were examined by a physician.

Attitudes toward rape and its victims have changed a lot since then, and Dallas has been in the forefront of the reform movement.

But this prsperous city — a meca for thousands of young career-oriented women and men — has become the statistical "rape capita" of the nation.

No one, least of all the more than 1,100 women who are victimized here each year, seems to know why.

Despite a rape treatment and reporting system that is regarded as a model among American cities, despite an aggressive prosecutor's office that routinely obtains life sentences in aggravated rape cases and a public that is notoriously tough on violent criminals, an average of four women report to the Dallas Rape Crisis Center each day.

In 1980, according to FBI and U.S. Census Bureau figures, a woman living in Dallas, the nation's seventh largest city, was three times as likely to become a victim of rape as a woman resident of Chicago or San Diego and twice as likely to be victimized as a resident of Philadelphia, New York, or Baltimore.

Dallas police recorded a total of 1,121 reported forcible rapes that year, or 121 sexual assaults for every 10,000 residents. For every 100,000 female residents of all ages, Dallas reported nearly 20 rapes.

"We have the record, the reputation for being the worst in the nation,"said Irving Stone, a forensic chemist with Southwestern Medical School in Dallas. In 1973, Stone's laboratory conducted 530 examinationsof tissue and fluid samples taken from rape victims for use as evidence in court.

The laboratory expects to conduct 1,450 tests this year, nearly three times as many. The tests are limited to cases in which the victim decides to cooperate with the police, he said.

About 90 percent of the women who report their assaults to the Rape Crisis Center ultimately decide to press charges, said Sue James, senior coordinator of the center. That's up from 10 percent just five years ago a sign, Ms. James says that the center's public education programs are working.

Ten years ago, said Ms. James "no one reported rape. It just wasn't done. And if you told a girlfriend you had been raped, she was liable to ask you what you did to provoke the attack."

Ms. James said Dallas' rape reporting procedures may be one reason the city stands out when compared to other major metropolitan areas.

"In a lot of cities, if the investigating officer decides that the case is unfounded, it isn't recorded as a rape. In Dallas, all of them are listed in the statistics regardless of the outcome of the investigation."

In Houston, a rape victim is charged a fee if she consents to a physical exam and then decides not to take the completed rape kit containing blood, saliva, semen and hair specimens to the police. Dallas authorities also charge the victim for rape examinations if the victic changes her mind about reporting the crime, but do not make her responsible for taking the specimans to police, Stone said.

Houston authorities reported 90 rapes per 100,000 residents last year. Ms. James and Stone believe the figure might have been higher were rape victims not asked to carry the evidence of their trauma around with them.

Stone was one of the designers of Dallas' current rape treatment and reporting program. He agreed with Ms. James that the program's success in allaying anxieties and encouraging police reports may have given Dallas an undeserved black eye.

"I challenge anyone to show me a case in which a rap victim alleges she was mistreated in Dallas — at least in recent years," he said.

Yet Stone is quick to concede that the city's 12 to 15 percent annual increases in reported rapes cannot be acounted for entirely by populaton growth or better crime reporting techniques.

Police officials believe the city's high rape rate may be a result of the tens of thousands of young women who flock to the city each year to seek employment.

'Every time the local papers say there's another shortage of secretaries in Dallas, these young women come to the city in droves," said police department spkesman Bob Shaw. Many of them come from small towns or rural areas where personal security measures were not a major concern, he said.

"Sometimes, when they get here, they learn a real, real hard lesson."

Vetran rape investigator Evelyn Crowder agreed.

"We have so many lovely young women coming into the city," she said. 'Dallas is a very popular place to women in Oklahoma, Texas and other states. And look at all the apartment complexes we have. That's where most of our rapes occur."

But statistics compiled by the Rape Crisis Center offer little support for the department's thesis.

In 1980, for example, only 5 to 6 percent of the women counseled by center employees came from small towns and rural areas. A much larger percentage had lived in Dallas all their lives, Ms. James sai.

Perhaps a more plausible factor is Dallas' long summers, which stretch from March to October and are responsible for more open windows and doors han even the most efficient nighttime intruder, said Ms. James.

"Rape goes way down during the colder months here," she said. She also speculated that Texas' infamous summer heat may push potential sex offenders to the breaking point.

"It could be that the heat, combined with the frustrations and irritability it causes, makes it more difficult for a potential attacker to control his impulses."

Larry Rivers' paintings on view in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — An exhibition of 45 works by American artist Larry Rivers is on view at the Smithsonian's Hirshhorn Museum through Sept. 20.

The museum says Rivers "first attracted attention in the 1950s, the decade of Abstract Expressionism, with paintings that unabashedly relied on figurative images. Borrowing from both popular culture and high art, and working in a sketchy, improvised style he developed an ironic approach that was later said to foreshadow Pop Art. Rivers has, however, remained independent of any movement."

Old dress exhibit scheduled

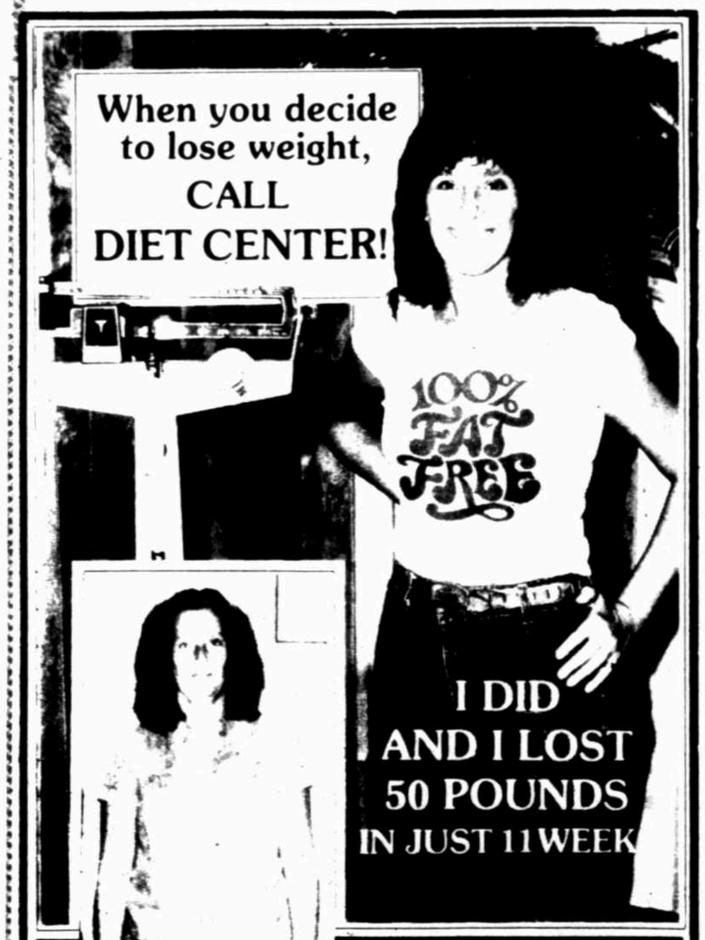

NEW YORK (AP) — The glamorous garb contributed to fashion history by the women of the 18th century will be on display this winter at the Metropolitan Museum of Art's Costume Institute.

The exhibition, called "The 18th-Century Woman," will feature more than 100 costumes including ladies' riding outfits, simple day wear (both under and outer) and elaborate court and ball gowns. Supplementing the costumery will be a full range of accessories — jewelry, laces, hats, gloves and slippers, plus a selection of decorative arts such as furniture, musical instruments, desk sets and toilet articles.

Q.1 – Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠72 ♡965 ◇AK872 ♣Q103
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ◇	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A. – First, forget about rebidding your five-card minor suit. That leaves you a choice between one no trump and a raise of partner's first bid suit. While no trump describes both the strength and shape of your hand, you do not have a heart stopper, but you do have two honors in partner's suit, a ruffing value and prime cards on the side. Those assets should not be suppressed. Bid two clubs.

Q.2 – Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠872 ♡9 ◇KJ6532 ♣AJ8
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A. – Since partner could do no more than rebid two hearts, you should resign yourself to the fact that game is a remote possibility. With a potential misfit, get out of the bidding as soon as you can. Pass. A bid of three diamonds suggests that the ego is mightier than the wallet.

Q.3 – North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠952 ♡AK92 ◇K76 ♣854
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A. – Partner's single raise has promised no more than a minimum opening bid, so at best your side has a combined count of 25 points. If you allow for the fact that you should deduct one point for your flat distribution, it is most unlikely that your hands will stretch to game. Pass.

Q.4 – Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠105 ♡K7 ◇9653 ♣AK854
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A. – Don't bid no trump without a sure diamond stopper. Also – neither the quality of your suit nor the strength of your hand warrants any bid at the three-level. You have shown your values with your two-over-one response at your first turn. All you can do for the moment is take preference to partner's first-bid suit. Bid two spades.

Q.5 – Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ76 ♡AQJ8 ◇J72 ♣J9
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ◇	Pass

What do you bid now?
A. – Partner's cue-bid of four diamonds shows interest in slam and asks for your cooperation if you have additional values, either in high cards or distribution. Unfortunately, you have neither – queens and jacks do not a slam make. Therefore, you must sign off at four hearts despite the fact that you have excellent trump support.

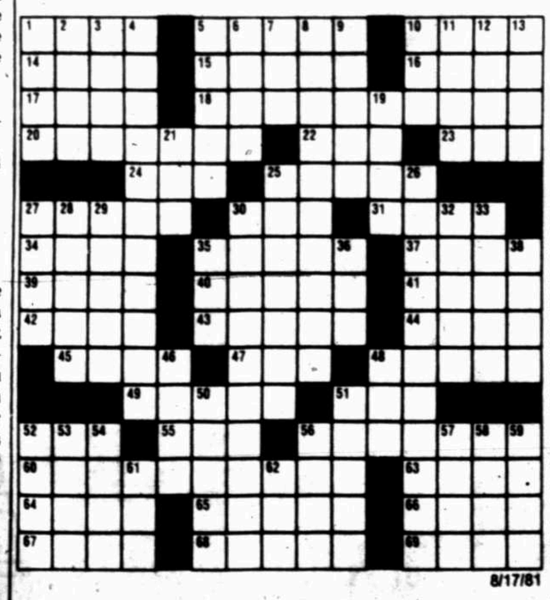

Q.6 – North-South vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKQ109 ♡KQ96 ◇94 ♣84
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ◇	Pass	5 ♡	Pass
?

What action do you take?
A. – When partner launched into Blackwood, he became the captain of the hand, and he has decided that he doesn't want to play in slam. Even though you have extra values, you must respect his wishes – you are almost surely off two aces. Pass.

Craig Ammerman, executive editor of The Philadelphia Bulletin, makes official announcement to assembled newsroom sraff Sunday that the paper will continue publishing. Ammerman said eight of the newspaper's unions has afreed to wage cutbacks and other contract concessions, preventing closure of the publication.

Presses roll in Philadelphia after workers make many concessions

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Presses rolled at The Bulletin today where workers hoped their $4.9 million in contract concessions would combine with new investment by the owners to give the 134-year-old newspaper a bright future.

The vote by eight unions to make the concessions saved The Bulletin from becoming the third major metropolitan afternoon newspaper in the United States to close this month. The Daily News Tonight in New Yok announced its last edition would be Aug. 28 and the Washington Star folded Aug 7.

The Bulletin, once America's largest afternoon daily, had been losing $250,000 a week and management had said Sunday's edition would be the last if the unions turned down its proposals.

William Gullifer, representing the eight unions that agreed to new five-year contracts, said, "All the unions are prepared to do the job, to work hard to make The Bulletin No. 1 again." Gullifer is business agent for Teamsters drivers and garageman, who voted 166-31 to accept a 10 percent pay cut.

Of 1,901 Bulletin employees, 100 union members and 63 non-union workers will be laid off. With ther cuts including layoffs of non-union workers, trimmed vacation pay for some and reduced overtime for others, the newspaper is expected to save $6.3 milion annually. The eight unions represent 879 workers.

"We're temendously excited, we're pleased," said N.S. Hayden, the newspaper's president and publisher, at a news conference in a Chinese restaurant where fortune cookies were distributed carrying the message, "Good fortunes for the future of The Bulletin."

In the newsroom, where some 60 reporters and editors waited anxiously for the separate unions to vote on the bail-out there were cheers and tears when the final tally came in just before 6:30 p.m.

Bottles of champagne, beer and soda pop came out of desk drawers.

Copy editor Peggy Higgins cried and said, "I'l take tears of joy over tears of sadness any day."

Metroolitan Editor Dave Taylor called it "an emotional rollercoaster."

Executive Editor Craig Ammerman put a match to "a contingency plan" that would have ben used if The Bulletin folded, and then got the staff going on a morning edition with a page one headline, "We're Here, And It Feels Great."

Ammerman, who came to The Bulletin a year ago from the New York Post, said he believed management could turn losses into profits, of which employees were promised 25 percent.

"It's not going to be easy, but I think we can make it," Ammerman said. "We'll give it our best shot."

The program calls for circulation and advertising gains. The Bulletin, which topped 700,000 daily copies in the late 1940s, reported 412,268 for the six months before April, according to the Audit Bureau of Circulation. The newspaper's owner, The Charter Co., says The Bulletin is the 14th largest daily in the United States.

Yet Hayden reported it lost $7.5 million in 1979, $13.4 million in 1980 and $10.3 million in the first six months of this year, a situation that Charter found intolerable.

Hayden said Charter, based in Jacksonville, Fla., was willing to pump up to $30 million into the newspaper over the next four years if union employees would make some economic sacrifices.

The vote for acceptance was overwhelming. Besides the Teamsters, the paperhandlers voted 27-8. The pressmen, with members from other newspapers also voting under their unin rules, voted 235-177. Mailers, also including other newspaper emloyees, voted 223-4; printrs, 117-12; building service, 27-7; platemakers, 2-0, and graphic artits, 16-7.

Few of the unions disclosed terms of their agreements.

A Teamsters spokesman said its 10 percent pay cut would cost drivers about $37 in lost pay a week. Also, three jobs were to be cut in the garage with those workers shifting to driving when positions opened.

Pressmen business manager Donald Salvicci said "we gave up 34 jobs, but we didn't take a pay cut. We gave up time and a half on vacations and a fifth week vacation after 25 years."

Mailers agreed to give up $1 million in annual guaranteed overtime, accepted four layoffs and lost a $25-a-week raise due Oct. 1.

Printers President Joseph Lombardi saved all jobs while taking a 10 percent pay cut that will cost an average $42 a wek.

There are three other dailies in Philaelphia — the morning Inquirer and Journal, and the afternoon Daily News.

Michael McGinnis, 34, a driver for 14 years, said: "We came in with a gun at our heads, we came in to keep this thing alive, and now it's up to the company. I hope they can punch as hard as we did."

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pete Rose, the sparkplug of the champion Philadelphia Phillies and the most productive hitter in National League history, is going to bat today for The Bulletin.

The 134-year-old newspaper — which Sunday was given a new life when eight unions ageed to $4.9 million in wage concessions, averting a threatened shutdown by management — has hired the 40-year-old All Star for five radio advrtisements.

Rose even had offered to forfeit his payment if the newspaper folded Sunday, according to Craig Ammerman, Bulletin executive editor.

Rose, who talks a mile a minute in salty language, doesn't slow down or tone down in the ads. But as a concession to the listening audiene, Rose's speech is peppered with "bleeps."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After his good friend John Lennon was slain, singer-songwriter Harry Nilsson began organizing an anti-handgun campaign.

Now his supporters include such Hollywood celebrities as George Segal, Carol Burnett, Goldie Hawn, Gene Wilder, Ed Asner, Jean Stapleton, Elliott Gould and Christopher Reeve, Nilsson say.

"You see, I get nervous when they shoot piano players," Nilsson said in an interview in Sunday's Los Angeles Herald Examiner. "When someone dies, you get angry, you get sad. Then there's the period of adjustment, the acceptance. Somewhere between two of those periods, I decided to do something."

That something turned into a march on Washington the last week of October, said the 41-year-old musician, whose hits have included "Everybody's Talkin' " and "Me and My Arrow."

The event will be called A March to End Handgun Violence, said Nilsson, who said he doesn't oppose sporting guns.

Fans still mourning death of Elvis Presley

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Despite the heat and the expense, Elvis Presley' fans keep trickling into the city, some to pay their respects, others hoping to catch something of the rock'n'roller's spirit.

After the highpoints, like Sunday's fourth anniversary of Presley's death at his Graceland estate, most of the visitors leave.

But not all.

Jody Compton moved to Memphis from Ohio to live in a crowded mobile home park not far fom Graceland.

"This is the third time we've tried to stay," Mrs. Compton said. "Before, we've always run out of money and had to go back to Toledo. But this time, it's going to be different because te trailer and the car are paid for."

Sometimes spending her nights at the gates of Graceland, she says she can visualize Elvis when she visits the mansion.

"He's not really gone, you know. Not in our hearts. He never will be," she said. "He is very much around at night.... I don't want to be misquoted on that because I'm not a fanatic.

"But Elvis is with me, no matter where I live," Mrs. Compton said.

Joyce Smith, who used to work in a Beaumont, Texas, hospital, now works as a waitress at a restaurant across the street from Graceland.

"If you're an Elvis fan, this is the hub," Ms. Smith said.

Another Elvis fan, Bruno Veronese, is 33 and drug supermarket supervisor in Milan, Italy.

He was in Memphis this weekend for a pilgrimage for which, he says, he had to save part of his salary for 2½ years.

Veronese, who speaks no English, said through an interpreter that even the air traffic controllers' strike could not have kept him from visiting Presley's grave.

Veronese stayed at a hotel about 1½ miles from Graceland. He said he walked from the motel to the gravesite, and also walked six miles to the Sun Records studio near downtown Memphis. It was in that studio that Presley made his first recording.

Hitching a ride with three women from Fountain Valley, Calif., Veronese also visited Presley's birthplace in Tupelo, Miss., about 50 miles southeast of Memphis.

Ther were various concerts and fund-raisers scheduled during the anniversary weekend, including a banquet at Memphis State University honoring entertainer Charley Rich.

At midnight Saturday, a candlelight memorial service was offered at Graceland by the more zealous of Presley's followers.

Presley died Aug. 16, 1977, when he was 42.

Presley's manager answers charges

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)— The man credited with turning Elvis Presley from a guitar-playing truck driver to one of the highest-paid entertainers in history denies he ever cheated the late singer.

On Sunday, Presley fans marked the fourth anniversary of Presley's death at his Graceland estate. But across town the week before, a court battle resulted in a judge ordering a halt to further payments of management fees to Col. Tom Parker, a cigar-chomping, reclusive man who rarely speaks to reporters.

But Parker spoke by telephone to a reporter from his Palm Springs, Calif., home Saturday after the payments from the Presley estate were ordered stopped by a probate court judge.

Describing his business relationship with Presley as "unique and extraordinary," Parker told The Commercial-Appeal that he was shocked by the probate proceedings that also concerned his involvement with Presley's father, Vernon.

"Elvis and Vernon were well pleased with my services and desired to continue them over the years," Parker, 72, said. "Detailed explanations were regularly made of the transactions pertaining to Elvis and the companies with which we dealt. I never hid anything from them.

"I must say that during the more than 21 years that Elvis and I worked togeter, he had many opportunties to consult legal and other experts and independent counsel, and I encouraged him to do so," Parker said.

Diana seen in bikini

LONDON (AP) — Honeymooning Princess Diana appeared on the bridge of the royal yacht Britannia in a bikini and went into the mess room while the sailors were still clad only in towels after their showers, the tabloid Sun reported today.

"It's all right, I'm a married woman, aren't I?" the newspaper said Prince Charles' bride told te towel clad sailors.

Five wildcats under control, two more may be caught

Permian Basin oilmen have started making money on five wildcats, and have invested in two to be drilled.

GARZA WILDCAT

L.R. French Jr., Midland, will drill another of the Double Mountain wildcats, 3 miles northeast of Justiceburg.

No. 3A Double Mountain will be sunk 3/8 mile northeast of its two predecessors. They're all about 1 mile west of the Justiceburg/Curt-Roy fields area. No. 3A will be drilled to 8,000 feet — about twice the depth of most nearby wells.

The stake is set 660 feet from the north and east lines of section 9, block 6, H&GN survey.

CRANE DISCOVERY

Andover Oil Co., Tulsa, has made an oilwell of the 10,035-foot wildcat No. 1 A.B. Connell "29".

The hole flowed 145 barrels of 30.4 gravity oil daily, and 7 barrels water, during the test. Production is through perforations scattered between 7,388 and 9,834 feet. It was given 8,000 gallons of acid, and frac'ed with 92,000 pounds of sand, and 38,000 gallons of water.

A String of 5 1/2-inch casing was set at 10,000 feet.

The wellsite is 990 feet from the west line, and 1,320 feet from the south line of section 29, block B-16, PSL survey.

COKE DISCOVERIES

Hudson Petroleum Inc., Houston, has completed two lower Caddo oil discoveries in Coke County, seven miles south of Robert Lee.

The No. 1 Willcockson "A" pumped 88 barrels of 46 gravity oil, and 60 barrels of water through perforations between 6,232 to 6,242, which had been acidized with 500 gallons.

Location is 1,980 feet from the south, and 660 feet from the east lines of the I.N. Moreland No. 16 survey.

The No. 1-B Willcockson et al pumped 64 barrels of 46 gravity oil, and 46 barrels of water through open hole at 6,201 feet.

Location is 3,900 feet from the south and 612 feet from the west line of the I.N. Moreland No. 1, abstract 510 survey.

MENARD FIND

Mote Resources Inc., Dallas, has finaled the No. 1 S.H. Allison as a upper Strawn discovery, in Menard County, 15 miles west-southwest of Menard.

The well pumped 36 barrels of 42 gravity oil, and no water, through perforations at 3,254 to 3,261, which had been acidized with 8,000 gallons.

Location is 660 feet from he south and 825 feet from the east lines of the Nicalons Furhmann No. 265, abstract 740 survey.

TOM GREEN WILDCAT

Pro Oil, Dallas, will drill the No. 1 Douglas, as a 4,400-foot wildcat in Tom Green County, 5 1/2 miles northeast of Harriett.

Location is 810 feet from the south and 260 feet feet from the west line of the T&NO No. 66 survey.

LOVING PAYOFF

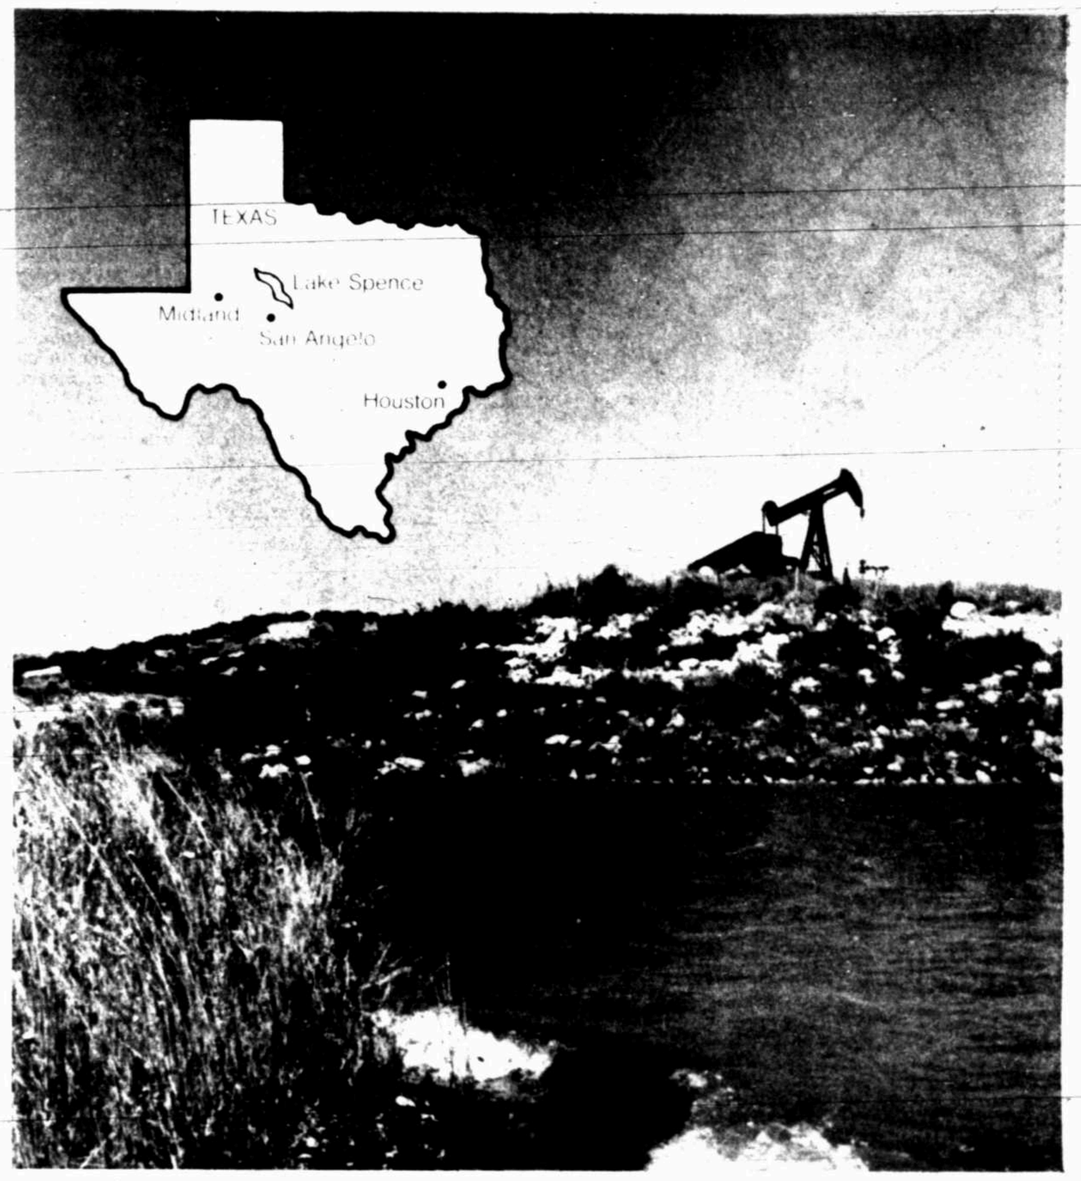

G.M.W. Oil Corp., Midland, is doing a victory dance today. Their "wild Indian" No. 1 Yellow Bear, is blowing 8,200,000 cubic feet of natural gas a day. They're calling the producer a Morrow discovery.

The well is 19 miles northeast of Kermit.

The hole was cut to a total depth of 18,279 feet. The yield is through natural perforations between 16,412 and 16,429 feet.

It is also producing 25 barrels of condensate daily.

The well is located 1,980 feet from the north and east lines of section 15, block C-24, PSL survey.

Oil production units such as this sit on several man-man islands in Lake Spence, a West Texas reservoir about 30 miles north of San Angelo. The islands were constructed by Exxon Company U.S.A. before the lake filled. The pumping units are maintained by crews traveling to the islands by barge.

A Weatherford/Lamb tong operator uses the company's Model 20,000 Hydraulic Power Tong in running a record-breaking casing string in Oklahoma's Anadarko Basin. The 16,200-foot string of 13 5/8 inches, 13 1/2 inches and 13 3/8 inches high-tensile casing was the heaviest such string in U.S. oilfield history.

Longest string in the hole

HOUSTON — Casing crews from Weatherford/Lamb U.S., Inc.'s Oklahoma and Arkansas facilities recently completed a record-breaking casing run in Oklahoma's Anadarko Basin.

Two crews worked around the clock to run more than three miles of 13 5/8 inch, 13 1/2 inch and 13 3/8 casing on Parker Drilling's Rig No. 179, north of Marlowe, Okla., approximately 75 miles southwest of Oklahoma City. The entire run was finished in 53 hours. The well's operator is Nortex Gas and Oil Co., a subsidiary of Internorth, Inc.

The 16,200-foot casing string weighed in at 1,286 million pounds, the heaviest tapered string of 13 5/8 inch, 13 1/2 inch and 13 3/8 inch casing in U.S. oilfield history. A special alloy (high tensile strength) casing was used on the job and it was this casing's weight (88 pounds-per-foot) that produced the heavy load.

Weatherford/Lamd joint analyzed makeup operators used their computerized equipment to monitor each casing connection during the run. Weatherford crews also provided lay-down services in tripping the drill pipe out of the hole before the casing run. Projected total depth for this well is approximately 25,000 feet.

Nation imported Soviet uranium

NEW YORK (AP) — American concerns imported $43.8 million of enriched uranium from the Soviet Union last year, the New York Times reported today.

The newspaper said it was the first time that a large amount of uranium had been traded directly between the two super powers, whose trade has suffered since the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan at the end of 1979.

The imports of uranium, which made up 10 percent of U.S. imports from the Soviet Union last year, were recorded in the Commerce Department's report on Soviet-American trade in 1980, the newspaper said.

The Time quoted unidentified sources as saying the uranium as bought in Canada by a West German electric utility and was sent to the Soviet Union for enrichment. It was then sold to the Exxon Nuclear Company of Bellevue, Wash. for nuclear fuel fabrication at a plant in Richland, Wash. Th fuel then was to be re-exported to West Germany.

The United States monpolized the market for enriched uranium outside the Soviet Bloc unti 1974, when the Soviet Union began to offer the enriched uranim to Western countries. Some Western European nations are now also in the business.

Another prisoner joins hunger strike

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Irish nationalist guerrilla Jacie McMullen refused breakfast today at the Maze prison near here, Britain's Northern Ireland Office said, joining six other imprisoned hunger strikers.

Supporters of the protesting prisoners had announced ealier that McMullen would take the place of the most recent fatality of the fast, Thomas McIlwee, who died Aug. 8 in his 62nd day witout food.

Nine Maze prisoners have died of the hunger strike, launched by Bobby Sands March 1 to demand more liberal treatment from the authorities. Sands, 27, died May 5 in his 66th day without food.

British government plans for an advisory council for Northern Ireland with Protestant and Catholic members, meanwhile, received a setback from the Social Democratic and Labor Party, the provinces main moderate Roman Catholic group.

John Hume, a leading SDLP member, said he told Northern Ireland Secretary Humphrey Atkins that the party does not want to be associated with the council. Atkins had announced the plan July 2, saying it would bring the people of Northern Ireland back to politics.

The province's leading Protestant parties, the Official Unionists and the Democratic Unionists, previously announced opposition to the plan.

McMullen, 25, was born and brought up in Belfast's staunchly Roman Catholic Andersontown district. He is a member of the Irish Republican Army's militant "Provisional" wing. He was sentenced to life imprisonment by a non-jury court in 1976 on charges of possessing arms and threatening to kill officers of the predominantly Protestant Royal Ulster Constabulary.

He is believed to have joined the republican movement 10 years ago. He was arrested 12 times by the security forces over a span of five years from 1971 to 1976.

Hunger striker Michael Devine "continued to deteriorate" on the 57th day of his fast, the Northern Ireland Office said. A room in the Maze prison's hospital has been made available to his family, and for alost a week they have maintained a round-the-clock bedside vigil, a spokesman said.

Devine is a member of the Irish National Liberation Army, a splinter group of the IRA. Both groups, almost exclusively Catholic, are fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland and reunite the Protestant-dominted province with the largely Catholic south.

Residents of 'plague area' receive preventive medicine

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — People living in the same area where the state's two latest plague cases have occurred are receiving preventive medicine, state health officials reported.

And Dr. Jonathan Mann, assistant director for health promotion and disease prevention, said Sunday the latest victim, a 22-year-old Albuquerque area man, was recovering "very nicely."

The unidentified man was admitted to an Albuquerque hospital last Wednesday night and the diagnosis of plague was confirmed Saturday by the state laboratory in Albuquerque.

Mann said the man lives about 50 yards away from a 46-year-old woman who was confirmed as the state's fifth case earlier this month.

Oswald's widow will file petition to have Oswald's grave opened

DALLAS (AP) — Marina Oswald Porter's attorney said Sunday that he "definitely" will file a petition this week on her behalf that seeks to open the grave of Mrs. Porter's former husband, accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

Jerry Pittman said he worked on the petition this weekend, and will file it "no sooner than Wednesday and hopefully no later than Friday" in the Tarrant County District Clerk's office.

'Mrs. Porter feels she has the right to know whether the body in the grave is that of her husbnd, and whether it has been disturbed," Pittman said.

Philippine rebels raid five villages

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Communist rebels disguised in military uniforms raided five villages, disarmed local militiamen without firing a shot, and fled with 32 firearms, authorities said today.

A goverment announcement said Defense Minister Juan Poce Enrile has odered an investigation of the incident, which occured Sunday in the villages about 70 miles north of Manila.

There was no word on the fate of Magtanggol village milita supervisor Elpidio Dreza, who was taken hostage by the raider, the authorities said.

It was the third raid for firearms staged in the region since 1978 by the NPA, military arm of the outlawed Philippine Communist Party, the authorities said. The Defense Ministry said the raids were part of the NPA's firarms collection operation.

Kuhn promises revision of split season

By TERRY TALOR
AP Sports Writer

The split-season format, adopted by club owners in hopes of salvaging the rest of the 1981 baseball season, will be revised to prevent the possibility of a team deliberately losing games to gain a playoff berth.

"We're going to change it, at least make an adjustment in it to preclude any possibiity of a team losing a game to get ahead," Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Sunday during an interview with ABC Sports.

"We're not going to have that happen. We'll have an announcement in a day or two," he said.

Kuhn, meanwhile,, also said he would not discipline Manager Tony LaRussa of the Chicago White Sox who, along with most of his players, told the Chicago Tribune he would purposely lose a four-game series with the Oakland A's if it meant getting into the playoffs.

LARUSSA later said he would favor forfeiting a game rather than being placed in a position of deciding whether to try to lose.

Soon after the 50-day players' strike ended July 31, club owners voted to split the remainder of the 1981 season and named as first-half winners the four teams in first place in their divisions when the strike began June 12.

If a first-half winner repeated, it would play the team in its division with the next-best two-half record. Owners had hoped the split season would create interest for teams which fared pooly in the first half, but would be given a shot at a second-half crown.

Dick Young, sports columnist for the New York Daily News, reported Sunday that a revised plan would call for a change in the way a second-place team is chosen.

The report said a team that finishes second in the second season would be given the wild-card spot, not the team that finishes with the second-best percentage for the two halves combined.

Kuhn said only that it was possible an adjustment would be made in the wild-card spot. He said any proposed revisions would be discussed with the Major League Players Association. Marvin Miller, the MLPA's executive director, was unavailable for comment. In addition to LaRussa, Kuhn said he would not discipline Whitey Herzog, the St.Louis Cardinals' general manager and field manager who agreed with LaRussa.

"My job is to get the Cardinals into the playoffs," Herzog said Saturday on NBC. "I'd tell the public the day before the game, 'I'm sorry but the Cards have to lose this game.'

'I'll activate myself. I'd be the catcher and I'd have players throw with the other hand.

"The commissioner don't like me for saying that, but I didn't want this anyway. To lose would be the right thing to do."

SAID KUHN: "I'm not going to discipline them. The administration of baseball put them in the position they found themselves in.

"I don't agree with what they said or what they were quoted as saying. I don't think for a second they would do anything such as they were talking about."

After the Tribune story was published, LaRussa said that "under no circumtances would the Chicago White Sox take the field and do anything not to win a baseball game.'

"What we are trying to do is clarify what winning means within the concept of the split season, which means the winning of a spot in the playoffs against not losing on purpose once we take the field.

Golf losing its finesse

By DEAN GOLEMBESKI

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — The stage was his and his alone, and Hubert Green took advantage of the situation to criticize the golf courses that make up the PGA tour and professionl golf itself.

"Golf is getting away from finesse," Green said Sunday after winning the $300,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

"The most important thing in golf is control of the ball," Green said. But he said many courses now are designed "to see how long you can drive it."

Green, who ended a two-year winless streak with the victory, said he "tried to adapt" by changing his swing so that he could drive the ball farther.

But he said, "I shouldn't have and I have paid for it."

Only recently, he said, has he regained the form that has led to 17 tournament victories, including the 1977 U.S. Open and Sunday's triumph.

Green's comments were prompted by often repeated criticism of the par-71, 6,534-yard Wethersfield Country Club course, where the GHO was held. The course is considered easy by some because of its lack of distance.

Green sank seven biridies during his final round to shoot a 7-under-par 64 as he rallied from three strokes back to win by a stroke. He finished with a 72-hole total of 20-under-par 264, tying the GHO record set in 1973 by Billy Caper and tied in 1978 by Rod Funseth.

Third-round leader Roger Maltbie shot 68 to finish in a tie for second at 265 with Bobby Clampett and Fred Couples. Clampett shot a 64 Sunday and Couples a 66.

Lon Nielsen, who led the first two rounds, shot an even-par 71 for a 13-under 271 total and a tie for 23rd. Defending champion Howard Twitty shot a 72 Sunday to finish in a tie for 51st with a 275 total.

Reviewing his final round, the 34-year-old Green said it was his putting that gave him the victory.

"There were many putts that could have lipped out but went in," Green said. "The putts that went in today didn't have to go in. I kind of feel that it was my week."

Green's last victory was in 1979 in New Orleans. His best previous finish this year was a tie for 11th in the Masters.

With the $54,000 first-place check he more than doubled his earnings this year to $84,812. It also raised his career total earnings to more than $1.49 million, good for 11th place on the all-time money list.

Tim Simpson, who shot a 65 and finished at 266, was alone in fifth place at 18-under par.

Three strokes off the pace were Curtis Strange and Jack Renner. Four others were grouped at 269, including George Archer, who shot 64 Sunday, Jay Haas, 67, John Maza, 65, and Greg Powers, 66.

Joe Niekro puts Astros in 1st

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer

Veteran Joe Niekro and Tony Scott combined their talents to pull the Houston Astros into a tie with the Atlanta Braves for first place in the National League West.

"We thrive on pitching and defense," Niekro said after Houston gained its second straight shutout victory over the San Diego Padres, winning 3-0. "We have good pitching and we're going to keep a lot of clubs down."

Niekro, a veteran knuckleballer who had limited the Padres to just two hits, asked to be relieved after Scott broke a scoreless tie in the top of the eighth with the first of his two RBI singles.

"Each game makes me feel much better here," said Scott, who was acquired by the Astros from the St. Louis Cardinals shortly before the strike began last June.

Reliever Dave Smith held the Padres hitless over the final two innings, picking up his fourth save of the season.

"If we started the second half like we did the first half, we would be in real trouble," said Niekro, referring to how the Astros won only three of their first 15 games in late April. "With a short season, it helps to get off to a fast start. There is not much room for error with 50 games.'

Niekro, 7-6, gave up only a third-inning single to losing pitcher Steve Mura and a sixth-inning double to Ruppert Jones as he defeated San Diego for the 17th time in his career.

Mets 5, Phillies 2

Ellis Valentine's two-run double highlighted a two-out, four-run third inning and Hubie Brooks added a solo homer as the New York Mets downed Philadelphia and moved into a virtual tie for the NL East lead.

The Mets are .086 percentage points behind the St. Louis Cardinals after the first week of baseball's 'second season.'

And Dave Kingman singled home the Mets' first run of the inning, Valentine dumped a bloop hit down the left field line that fell just fair, scoring Brooks and Kingman. Lee Mazzilli singled home the final run of the inning.

Brooks slammed his third homer of the year — all in the last week — in the fifth.

Schmidt belted his 18th home run, a solo shot, for Philadelphia.

Reds 2, Giants 1

George Foster singled home Dave Collins in the first inning and doubled and scored in the sixth on Sam Mejias' single to lead Cincinnati past San Francisco. Mario Soto, 7-6, needed seventh-inning relief help from Tom Hume, who pitched out of a bases-loaded jam to post his seventh save.

The Giants scored in the seventh when pinch-hitter Dan Bergman doubled home Milt May.

Pirates 4-4, Cubs 3-6

A three-run single by Bobby Bonds in the fifth inning of the second game led Chicago to a 6-4 victory over Pittsburgh and a split of their doubleheader.

Tony Pena's run-scoring single in the 11th inning, his third hit of the game, gave the Pirates a 4-3 triumph in the opener.

In the nightcap, the Cubs loaded the bases in the fifth inning on a single by Tim Blackwell and a pair of walks. With two out and a 3-2 count, the runners were running when Bonds singled to left, scoring all three base runners.

The Cubs held a 3-1 lead in the third inning of the opener before Pittsburgh came back to tie the game with single runs in the fourth and eighth, setting the stage for Pena's game-winning hit.

Dodgers 6, Braves 5

Steve Garvey doubled home the tying runs and Ron Cey followed with a run-scoring single as Los Angeles scored three times in the seventh inning for its come-from-behind victory over Atlanta.

The Braves had opened a 5-1 lead against Los Angeles starter Fernando Valenzuela on two-run homers by Chris Chambliss and Dale Murphy and a solo homer by Bob Horner.

The Dodgers cut the lead to 5-3 with two runs in the fifth off Gaylord Perry, who was going after his 296th career vctory.

Valenzuela, the Dodgers' early season sensation when he won his first eight starts, struck out nine in five innings but gave up five runs on eight hits. After posting a 0.5 earned run average in his first eight starts, Valenzuela's ERA for his next eight starts was 6.51 and overall is 2.87.

Jan Stephenson blasts out of trouble for pin on way to easy victory in Mary Kay Classic.

By DENNE H. FREEMA

DALLAS (AP) — In the 33-year history of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour nobody ever did it better than Jan Stephenson did Sunday.

She one-putted all but one hole on the front nine as she shot a personal best 8-under par 64 which gave her an 11-shot victory in the Mary Kay Golf Clasic.

Her rounds of 65-69-64 were 18-under par which bested the LGPA 54-hole record of 200 by two strokes.

"I didn't know I had shot 64 until I added it up in the scoring tent," said Stephenson, one of the tour glamour girls who created quite a stir earlier this year with a picture in Fairway Magaine that showed a generous helping of thigh. "I asked my dad when I was 14 if all the work I was doing was worth it and my father said would be in the record books some day...he was right," said Stephenson. Carol Mann shot 16-under par 200 in the 1968 Lady Carling Open in Palmetto, Ga. Ruth Jessen shot 200 in 1964 but it was over a Par 70 course.

Stephenson finished 11 shots ahead of second place Sandra Haynie who fired a final round 3-under par 69. It was the third largest winning margin in the history of the LPGA tour.

Stephenson began her birdie binge on the fifth hole with a 30-foot putt.

She almost eagled the Par 5 No. 6, settling for a tap-in birdie, then birdied the 7th and 8th wih 25 footers, and holed a monstrous 5-footer on the 9th green for a 5-under par 31 on the front nine.

On the backside she birdied the Par 5 No. 13 with a short putt. On the 16th, she holed 15-footer and knocked in a 10-foot birdie putt on the final green.

"I was really nervous on that last putt...I got really emotional I wanted to make it so bad," she said.

Stephenson earned $3,250 first place money to send her career high total for the year to $111,443.55.

It was her sixth tournament victory and each time she had the lead from the first day.

Defending champion Jerilyn Britz, who shot a final round 73, Sandra Spuzich, who had a 69, Kyle O'Brien who shot 68 and Laura Baugh-Cole who shot 70, all tied for third at 4-under par 212.

Stephenson's shotmaking was even more impressive considering the 72-hole record is 17-under par by Hollis Stacy.

"I never putted so well in my life," said Stephenson. "I have never believed I was a super star but if I keep putting like this look out."

Birds' Weaver burns book on Tony

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Baltimore Orioles pitching coach Ray Miller has a "book" on Tony Bernazard from managing him in the Puerto Rican winter baseball league, but as far as Earl Weaver is concerned, you can burn it.

"Evidently," says the manager of the Orioles, "what they did against him in Puerto Rico doesn't work up here in the major leagues."

While playing for Miller this past winter, Bernazard hit a paltry .215. While playing for Chicago this season, Bernazard is 17-for-35 against the Orioles, including a game-wining single in the 10th inning Sunday that provided the White Sox with an 8-7 victory.

"How can you figure it out?" Miller said of Bernazard, who had four game-winning RBI as the White Sox took the abbreviated season series over the Orioles, 6-3. "Everything he hits, goes in."

Weaver is just as puzzled about the infielder's success against his team, considering the information available on him.

"Miller gave us about as much on him after seeing him play 60 games, as we had on anybody," said Weaver. "I just don't understand it."

Says Bernazard: "It's just one of those things, I can't explain it. I'm just making contact. There's not any special reason."

Harold Baines doubled to open the White Sox 10th off Dave Ford, 1-2, and Bernazard singled of Jeff Scheider, the fifth Baltimore pitcher. Reliever Ed Farmer, 2-2, was the winner with help in the 10th from Kevin Hicey, who gained his second save.

The Orioles sent the game into extra innings on Eddie Murray's two-run homer in the last of the ninth. Jim Dwyer drew a walk from Lynn McGlothen, recently acquired by Chicago, then Murray hit his second homer of the game into the right feld seats at Memorial Stadium off Farmer.

Earlier, Murray had walloped a grand-slam homer to help the Orioles take a 5-3 lead after eight innings, but the White Sox scored four runs in the top of the ninth.

A's 7, Angels 6

Ken Forsch walked Tony Armas with the bases loaded in the sixth inning to force in the winning run as Oakland beat California.

The A's had loaded the bases on singles by Rob Picciolo and Dwayne Murphy and a two-out walk o Wayne Gross. Forsch worked Armas to an 0-2 count but then could not find the plate and issued his fifth walk of the game The RBI gave Armas the AL lead with 46.

The Angels had tied the score 6-6 with two unearned runs in the sixth off A's starter Rick Langford, 6-8, who allowed only one earned run in the game.

Tigers 5, Yankees 4

Kirk Gibson's three-run homer in the ninth inning capped a four-run rally that carried Detroit over New York. Gibnson's blow came off Yankee reliever Ron Davis, who relieved Rudy May after May walked Lance Parrish to start the ninth.

Davis, 2-3, walked pinch-hitter Rick Leach and gave up an RBI single to Bill Fahey before retiring Lou Whitaker on a foul fly. Gibson then smashed his fourth homer of the season into the bleachers in rightcenter field at Tiger Stadium.

Aurelio Lopez, 4-1, who relieved starter Jack Morris in the fifth inning, gained the victory. Earlier, Reggie Jackson had blasted a pair of RBI doubles to help the Yankees take a 4-1 lead into the ninth.

"I was just waiting for a pitch inside and I got it," Gibson said. "I knew I hit it well, but others hit it long today and the wind blew them back."

Brewers 6-2, Blue Jays 2-0

Jim Gantner and Roy Howell each drove in two runs to key Milwaukee's six-run fifth inning as the Brewers beat Toronto in the first game of their doubleheader.

Ben Oglivie smashed a two-run homer and Randy Lerch and Rollie Fingers combined to scatter 10 hits as Milwauee blanked the Blue Jays in the second game. Fingers saved both games raising his season's total to 15.

"I've had two saves before and I've got two losses before and a win and a save, but I've never had two wins on the same day," said the 34-year-old righthander. "I had good breaking stuff and I was happy with myself, especially after a long layoff.

Royals 6-6, Indians 2-7

Frank White's three-run homer in the second inning paced Kansas City over Cleveland in the first game of their twinbill. Larry Gura, 6-5, allowed six hits and one run in six innings for the Royals.

Pinch-hitter Von Hayes singled home Mike Hargrove from second base to break a 6-6 tie in he seventh inning and lead the Indians in the second game.

Mariners 7, Twins 4

Tom Paiorek had four hits and drove in two runs, leading Seattle past Minnesota. The Twins scored two runs in the bottom of the eighth on a sacrifice fly by Sal Butera and a run-scoring single by Butch Winegar to tie the game 4-4. But Seattle came up with three runs in the top of the ninth against reliever Doug Corbett,2-3, as Paciorek singled home the tie-breaking run.

Rangers 3, Red Sox 0

Rick Honeycutt scattered six hits and logged the first complete game by a Texas pitcher in the second season as the Rangers beat Boston. Honeycutt, 8-1, stuck out one and walked none in recording his fourth complete game of the year.

The Rangers took a 1-0 lead in the sixth on Bill Stein's RBI infield hit and added two insurance runs in the eighth one on a RBI double by Leon Roberts.

Bradley's 20th homer gives SA tie for first

By The Associatd Press

Mark Bradley slugged his 20th home run of the season as the San Antonio Dodgers took an 11-7 Texas League baeball victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox Sunday night. The win enabled San Antonio to tie idle Midland for first place in the West division.

In other Texas League action, Shreveport and Tulsa split a doubleheader. Shreveport won the first game, 4-0, and Tulsa took the nightap, 6-1. Arkansas' game at Jackson and Midland at El Paso were postponed because of rain.

Bradley's two-run homer, double and a single gave him four RB's for the game. Myron White an Mike Zouras had solo homers for San Antonio.

James Steels and Ron Tingley had back-to-back solo homers for the Gold Sox.

Orel Hershiser, 7-5, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Mark Daly, 2-22.

Dan Gladen got four hits in four trips to the plate and stole his 11st base of the season as the Greensboro's multi purpose stadium with left field fence dissecting the football field.

Baseball in the Bushes

Minors or majors, Midland or Carolina, ball players still have their young fans.

Few foul balls are caught in Greensboro's odd right field corner.

During strike some fans found majors...

Not Only game around

TED BATTLES BATTLE SCENE

It's over now, the two-month long baseball strike, and owners and players are still waiting for the jury's verdict as to whether the game will be accepted back into the fans' good graces without grudges or a backlash show of hositlity. The verdict still seems indecisive.

And while no one liked the strike, there was one side benefit. Some fans rediscovered minor league baseball and liked it.

Even one Midlander who has been watching Texas League ball for 10 years was surprised to find that the Tall City wasn't the only place the game was being played. On a fact-finding mission to North Carolina, home of more minor league teams than any other state, to determine how the game was faring in the bushes, fans in record numbers were still enjoying their ice cream, hot dogs, peanuts, popcorn and crackerjack undisturbed by the strike that ravaged the nation's major population centers.

WHAT WE discovered, or rediscovered, was the charm and innocence of baseball played in a relaxed atmosphere, devoid of table pound agents, foot-stomping prima-donnas and balking owners.

Going to a minor league park was like opening a box of crackerjack. You were never quite sure what you'd find inside. In contrast to the major leagues where, if you didn't know what city you were in, you couldn't tell Busch from Three Rivers, Veterans or Riverfront stadiums without a scorecard, every park is a surprise. And the minors, like the majors, have their multi-purpose stadiums, too.

While the young players can't wait to escape the cramped, two-shower locker rooms, the dim lights and long, wearying bus trips, minor league parks, like Wrigley, Tiger, Comiskey and Fenway, those surviving relics from the past, still have the oddities that provide each with a distinctive personality.

WE FOUND that attendance was up in every park we visited and in the Sally (South Atlantic League), George Steinbrenner was still a naughty word in opposing ball parks.

And, if you look long enough, you'll even find an ex-Midland Cub here and there.

The mystery of whatever became of Daryl Strawberry, last year's No. 1 draft choice, was solved, and despite a slow start, the can't miss prospect of the New York Mets is beginning to abuse Carolina League pitchers and will probably be highly visible in the Texas League next season.

We found that the $1 beer in Asheville is enough to last a doubleheader and can only imagine that the $2 beer must come in a bucket with a handle on it.

Also in Asheville, in the the high Appalachian Blue Ridge country, they send out for an electrician when the umpires want the lights turned on. It took 25 minutes. Even so the game was over in two hours and 15 minutes.

We also found that they ought to change the words of Take Me Out to the Ball Game. Peanuts and popcorn, yes, but just try to find a box of crackjack. Asheville is the only place.

KINSTON'S EAGLES play in an old fashion brick ball park, complete with roof and permanent individual foldup seats. Although the park is located in an old residential neighborhood, the traditional railroad track with warehouse runs behind the right field.

It was in Kinston that we found Bernie Beckman, the lefthander who pitched here in 1974-75, coaching the Toronto Blue Jays' farm club.

"I spent the last three seasons playing in a league in Europe," said Beckman, a 9-2 lefthander for the Cubs back in 1974. "We played three times a week. It was an amateur league, but the three American players each club was permitted were all paid under the table and everyone knew it."

Born in Holland, Beckman was picked up by Amsterdam because he could speak Dutch. "It was a nice experience, but Amsterdam is going to rot. We even had one American player murdered. This winter, I heard the Blue Jays had this coaching job open so I took it. I like it. Toronto's a good organization and I think I have a future here...Hey, be sure to say hello to the fans in Midland for me. We made a lot of friends there."

While in Midland, Beckman spent the off season running an in-city ski resort in Toronto, but now spends the winters months learning the construction business in Florida.

IT WAS in Kinston, that Strawberry, the California phenom, was discovered playing for the Lynchburg Mets. The night we saw him he doubled, singled and knocked in three runs and said, "I'm beginning to put it together. It's tough when fans expect you to get a hit every time up."

Even the Mrs. was "taken" by relic Asheville (Texas Rangers) calls home. The park, built in 1924 and showing every year, is built into the side of a mountain, and it helps if you are part mountain goat to climb to the only entrance down the rightfield line. There's a fence, but they really don't need one. The tree, brush-covered mountain provides a natural back drop. Before the game, Spartanburg (Phillies) players were searching the foilage above the right-field barrier for balls knocked "out of the park" in batting practice.

IT WAS at Asheville that one long time fan informed, "Greensboro ran away with the first half and now they're winning the second half. It's that damned Steinbrenner. He's buying a pennant, like he always does. He has loaded the club."

Ron McKee, the young general manager, says Asheville attendance, despite the Yankee farm club's domination, is 14,000 ahead of last year.

Last year North Carolina's nine minor league clubs drew almost a million fans. This year, they will surpass a million. One reason is the hated Greensboro (Yankees) Hornets, who drew 255,130 in the A Sally League last year and this year are doing even better with a goal of surpassing the minor league record of 287,860.

And just down the road, Durham (Carolina League) average 2,600 a game.

But Greensboro is baseball batty. At a gas station, "Where's the ball park?" brought instructions and a cautioning warning, "Better get there early. I went last night and there were 10,000."

At the motel, "How do you get to the baseball field?" Instructions and advice, "Park on a side street a couple of blocks from the park. It's easier than fighting the congestion...Sure it's safe, this isn't Philadelphia."

Greensboro plays in a multi-purpose stadium. The left field stands stretch into infinity, which explains why they've been able to handle crowds of 15,000. The left field fence traverses the football field on the far 40-yard-line and the right field line must be one of the most oddest in all baseball. Halfway down the line, the right field fence runs parallel to the foul line with just a couple of feet leeway. Try, catching a foul ball there, Joe Carter.

Like Kinston, Greensboro sells two scoops of ice cream in miniature major league batting helmets, only for a nickel (80 cents) more and fewer flavors.

From bullpen in right field corner toward press box, Asheville's hillside ball park was built in 1924 and carries its age with charm.

At Kinston, the father of one family of five in ordering a second round, instructed his son, "This time get Kansas City, Texas, Milwaukee, San Francisco and San Diego."

And, hey, Bill Schammel, the press box is air conditioned, but no elevator.

But, none of the parks visited could challenge Cubs Stadium in one important respect. No one plays on a surface like the one manicured by Lee Velarde.

Hughes' Cowboy career finished?

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboy Randy Hughes was to consult with team doctors in Dallas today about a right shoulder reinjured in an exhibition game, an injury that may mean the end of his career.

It was th third time Hughes has dislocated the shoulder and he was playing in only his second game after surgery between seasons.

"I don't think he'll be playing anymore. Ever. When you have the thing operated on twice and they try to strap it down tight, well, it doesn't look good," Dallas coach Tom Landry said after conferring with doctors in the Anaheim Stadium training room.

"I WOULD think the chances are slim for him to play again. I hate to speak for Randy Hughes and the doctors," Landry said, "But I know that after you operate on a shoulder twice that if you have to go in there again, then the chance of having a good shoulder for football is very limited. He'll have a good shoulder for life, but not for football."

HUGHES was trying to tackle rookie fullback Jairo Penaranda when his shoulder was dislocated. He then slowly walked to the sideline and slammed his helmet to the ground.

Hughes said he would rserve any decision on what to do until after he talked to team doctors Marvin Knight and Pat Eans, but he did not sound optimistic before flying back to Dallas.

Tide may make history

Bear can top all-time win list

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — "Sometimes I think about this year and get the shakes. It means that much to me."

Warren Lyles, giant middle guard on what is expected to be another stingy Alabama defense, was talking about the 1981 Crimson Tide's opportunity to put Coach Bear Bryant at the top of the list of all-time winning college football coaches.

"Coach Bryant has told us to win this season for ourselves, not for him," Lyles said. "But that's nothing new. He has told us that every year, that he will show us how to win and then leave the winning to us. And that's the way we've done it.

"Still, this is a special year for everybody on our team. We all realize the significance."

THE SIGNIFICANCE is that Bryant has 306 victories in his 36-year career and needs nine more to put him one past the late Amos Alonzo Stagg's mark of 314. The late Glen "Pop" Warner had 313.

"We're totally dedicated to helping him pass Warner and Stagg," said Lyles, "with our eyes on winning another national championship for ourselves."

Lyles has national title rings for his freshman and sophomore seasons but missed out in 1980 when Mississippi State and Notre Dame edged the Tide to give it a "poor" 10-2 mark.

Bryant himself said he is tired of talking about the Stagg record, claiming Stagg is in a class by himself and will always be "the Babe Ruth of football."

His attitude this season, as interest in the coaching record mounts, "is going to be a little different than it's ever been before," the 67-year-old Bryant said.

"I'm going to try not to worry," he said. "I normally do all the worrying and frowning and all that, but I don't have many years left. I'm going to enjoy every practice. I'm going to enjoy every game, regardless of how it comes out, and just have a good time."

COUNTING AN almost inevitable 23rd consecutive bowl game, Alabama will have 12 games in which to win the magic nine. Its quest starts Sept. 5 in a televised game at Louisiana State. Then it goes against Georgia Tech, Kentucky, Vanderbilt, Mississippi, Southern Mississippi, Tennessee, Rutgers, Mississippi State, Penn State and Auburn.

Lyles is a key figure in a defense that loses little from a group that gave up an average of only eight points a game in 1980. On the line will be Mike Pitts, Randy Edwards, Jackie Cline and Russ Wood.

The linebackers, Robbie Jones and Thomas Boyd, and the cornerbacks and safeties, Jeremiah Castille, Benny Perrin, Tommy Wilcox and Jim Bob Harris, are proven performers.

On offense, the major question marks are the line and quarterback.

PALYNOLOGISTS AND PETROLOGISTS/SEDIMENTOLOGISTS
San Francisco

Sohio Petroleum Company's share of Alaskan oil production, (nearly 700,000 B.P.D.), results in an impressive cash flow. But the Prudhoe supply will begin to decline within the decade. This fact gives our exploration effort a very specific focus; we are committed to finding new oil reserves to replace Prudhoe.

We have the financial resources to fund a first-rate exploration program. But the key to our success lies in our ability to attract explorationists of the highest technical quality and geoscience vision.

We are young and growing and hungry. We'll put you and your technical skills to a severe test. And your promotional opportunities will be directly tied to your skills and contribution.

Our Geological Services Department in San Francisco has these immediate needs:

PALYNOLOGIST with 4 or more years of biostratigraphic experience, (preferably with the oil industry), to analyze palynologic successions in most parts of the continent and from much of the geologic column.

CARBONATE AND TERRIGENOUS CLASTIC PETROLOGISTS/SEDIMENTOLOGISTS with 5 or more years of experience in basinal and local facies interpretation and the unraveling of diagenetic histories.

We offer the opportunity to live in the Bay Area and work in San Francisco, one of the most beautiful cities in the world. And we'll make it easy for you to move with a generous relocation package. If you'd like to join the Sohio adventure, send your resume to Frank Wood, Sohio Petroleum Company, #94866, 100 Pine Street, San Francisco, CA 94111.
