Oil imports

WASHINGTON — The Commerce Department told President Clinton on Friday that rising oil imports present a threat to U.S. national security, but the solutions being considered aren't likely to satisfy independent oil producers. Deputy Energy Secretary Bill White said the administration is considering ways to increase the demand for natural gas as a domestic alternative to oil and to encourage high-technology and high-risk oil exploration and production methods that would increase U.S. oil production./4A

Teen shoots Big Spring trooper at accident scene, officials say

By Mary Dearen and Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writers

BIG SPRING — A trooper with the Big Spring office of the Department of Public Safety was shot and killed Friday night during a routine accident investigation on Interstate 20 near Sand Springs.

Trooper Troy Merle Hogue, 39, was shot once while questioning a 17-year-old driver, according to Trooper Sally Arredondo, a spokeswoman with the Midland DPS.

The Howard County Sheriff's Department and Big Spring DPS were called to the scene of a one-vehicle accident — about 10 miles east of Big Spring about 8:30 p.m.

Clinics' shootings kill 2

Police issue description of single suspect

■ Bloodshed brought to 5 the number of people killed at abortion clinics since 1993.

Associated Press

BROOKLINE, Mass. — A man in black pulled out a rifle and opened fire in an abortion clinic Friday, and minutes later a nearly identical attack took place at a clinic down the street. Two people were killed and five wounded.

State police helicopters hovered low over suburban Boston, and hours after the attack officers using dogs continued to search for a suspect, who witnesses said may have been wounded in a gun battle with a clinic guard.

WMUR-TV in Manchester, N.H., reported Friday evening the investigation centered on New Hampshire's coast, just across the Massachusetts border. Law enforcement sources also told WLVI-TV in Boston a 23-year-old Hampton, N.H., man was the suspect.

Meanwhile, Ipswich police said late Friday that federal and state authorities searched a house in the coastal town near Hampton, N.H. They came up empty, said a police officer, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Witnesses at both clinics gave similar descriptions of the gunman, and police issued a description of a single suspect. But they stopped short of saying the same man was responsible for both attacks.

"He just started shooting and shooting and shooting," said Debbie Gains, who had accompanied a friend to Preterm Health Services.

"He was very angry."

The dead were identified as Shannon Lowney, 25, of Arlington, and Leanne Nichols, 38, of Salem, N.H. Each was a receptionist at one of the clinics. The wounded were all clinic employees or volunteers.

The slayings brought to five the number of people killed in shootings at abortion clinics since 1993.

Friday's bloodshed began at a Planned Parenthood clinic on Beacon Street and spread to Preterm Health Services a mile away about 10 minutes later.

Police said they were looking for a 5-foot-7 white man with a

Company owners express optimism in Midland's business environment

Staff Report

Texas National Bank's Fall 1994 Independent Business Pulse survey indicates that Midland businesses remain optimistic.

"Time after time, these local business leaders have told us they have confidence in Midland's business environment," said Wayne Merritt, chairman of Texas National Bank.

"This confidence translates into more jobs, increased capital investment and a greater variety of products and services offered in Midland."

The key finding of this edition of the poll was that 54 percent of business owners expect their company to see better or much better business conditions over the next six months, while 38 percent expects no change in conditions.

That optimism, however, isn't immediately being converted into new jobs. The poll found that 69 percent — more than two-thirds of respondents — expects their number of employees to remain unchanged. This is up slightly from the spring survey, but just below the fall 1993 poll.

Approximately 25 percent expects to increase employment, down from the spring survey but above the fall 1993 poll.

A significant number of respondents believes that continued downsizing by major oil companies will have a negative impact.

Songwriter dies at 69

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Howard Crockett, best known for his mega-hit "Honky Tonk Man" and for having written more than 200 songs, including four gold, two platinum and one double-platinum songs, has died. He was 69.

Crockett, who was born Howard Hausey, died Tuesday at his Fort Worth home. The cause of death was lung cancer, according to his son Victor Thomas Hausey of Fort Worth. Services will be held Saturday at Shannon TCU Funeral Chapel.

"He was the finest man I ever knew," said Victor Thomas Hausey. "No one could ever have had a better father. When he got sick all three kids (who lived in Fort Worth) moved back home to be with him."

Crockett's first smash was "Honky Tonk Man," which Johnny Horton sang in 1956 and Dwight Yoakum turned into a hit again in 1986. One tune, "Slew Foot," was recorded 67 times.

Songwriting partner and close friend Joe Davis said Crockett originally had his doubts about "Honky Tonk Man."

"He was playing at a club in Mississippi called Yankee's when he wrote "Honky Tonk Man," and he almost didn't even go in and cut it," Davis said. "He reasoned, 'As many honky tonks as there were, and as many honky-tonk men as there were, somebody has to have done this before.'"

Horton recorded the song after hearing Crockett sing it on the "Hayride."

Crockett himself performed his last major hit, "The Last Will and Testament of a Drinking Man," which was on the charts in 1973.

His first album came out in 1967 and his final one was recorded in 1981, although Davis said Crockett continued writing songs until about three months ago.

"George Jones is supposed to have two of his songs on his new album," Davis said.

Crockett was born in Yellow Pine, La. He played professional baseball with the Brooklyn Dodgers before an injury sidelined him and he eventually drifted into songwriting.

But Crockett never lost his love for baseball and he remained active in coaching Pee Wee League for Colt baseball in Fort Worth, Davis said.

Crockett's wife Patricia Carol Hausey died in 1989, but he's survived by three sons, three daughters, two sisters and four grandchildren.

Copters, dogs, videos: Search is on for clinic gunman

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Helicopters hovered over the suburban street where two women were gunned down inside abortion clinics Friday.

An investigator swept a metal detector across the sidewalk in search of more of the brass casings that turned up in the gutters.

Officers paced the neighborhood, German shepherds at their side.

With no one in custody hours after the attack that also wounded five workers at the two clinics, Boston Mayor Tom Menino ordered police to guard all clinics and hospitals and Gov. William F. Weld promised state police protection to clinics throughout Massachusetts.

Crime scene tape ringed Preterm Health Services and the Planned Parenthood clinic a mile away on bustling Beacon Street, lined with 19th century apartment houses where young professionals, Boston College students and elderly Russian immigrants live.

Former Gov. Michael Dukakis lives nearby and trolley cars and pedestrians throng the street Boston marathoners sweat their way along every April.

Hundreds of anti-abortion activists have been arrested at Brookline's three clinics over the past decade.

Ilya Michelson, who lives near Preterm, said shouting matches between demonstrators on both sides of the debate sometimes awakened him on summer mornings.

Still, he said he was surprised by the violence: "It's a very friendly neighborhood."

A doctor who practices in the building that houses Preterm said even after deadly attacks on clinics elsewhere in the country, the bloodshed took him aback.

"I would think something like this was possible, but you always thought this area was not as unstable," said the doctor, who refused to give his name.

The killings frightened people around the country.

"I fear exactly what happened today, that I will step out a door or be standing outside and somebody walks up with a shotgun," said Janie Bush, director of Dallas' Choice Foundation, which works with abortion providers.

"I've just been sitting here with my hair standing up on my arm in shock," said Carolyn Izard, director of Little Rock Family Planning Services in Little Rock, Ark.

At Planned Parenthood in Brookline, workers have received death threats lately, and Friday began with the usual gathering of protesters outside, said Nicki Gamble, president of Planned Parenthood of Massachusetts.

Workers there said the clinic's door is kept locked and opens on a buzzer system. It was unclear how the gunman got in.

Investigators, meanwhile, began screening videotapes of protests held at the clinics over the years. Someone had said that one demonstrator resembled the description of the gunman given by witnesses at both clinics: A 5-foot-7 white man with a dark complexion, curly dark hair and black jacket and pants. Police described a single suspect but stopped short of saying the same man was responsible for both attacks.

KILL: Trooper dies at accident scene

the scene first and a deputy placed the Big Spring teen in the front seat of his Sheriff's Department car, Ms. Arrendondo said.

After Hogue arrived, he and the deputy — who has not been identified — questioned the teen about possibly being intoxicated, according to Mike Cox, spokesman for the DPS in Austin.

Meanwhile, Hogue's partner, Trooper Darryle Sparks, stood behind the vehicle, Ms. Arredondo said.

During questioning, the teen produced a handgun and shot Hogue once, she said. Officials would not disclose where he was shot.

The deputy and Sparks grabbed the gunman, wrestled him to the ground and handcuffed him, Ms. Arrendondo said.

The gunman remained in custody at the Howard County Jail Friday night, Ms. Arredondo said. He had not been charged Friday night, Cox said.

He is the 75th DPS officer to die in the line of duty since 1932.

The incident is being investigated by the Texas Rangers and Howard County District Attorney's Office.

At press time, traffic was still being diverted off the interstate while officers continued their investigation.

Hogue joined the DPS Jan. 19, 1988; before that he was a lieutenant with the the Big Spring Police Department, where he served for 12 years.

Hogue is survived by his wife and two children, ages 18 and 9.

Today to be partly cloudy, 60s

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the lower 60s and west to northwest winds 10 to 20 mph and gusty, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be partly cloudy with a low near 30.

Sunday is expected to be partly cloudy with a high in the lower 50s.

After an overnight low of 38, Friday's high was 49 compared with the record high for that date of 82 set in 1951. The record low for today's date was 12 set in 1983.

STATE

Texas was gray and cloudy Friday, with continued cloudiness and a chance of snow in West Texas today, according to the National Weather Service.

In South Texas, skies were cloudy and temperatures were in the 50s and 60s. Deep South Texas had scattered showers and thunderstorms. Winds were southeasterly across south central Texas at about 10 mph. The region should be cloudy today, with lows in the 40s and 50s.

North Texas was mostly cloudy in the afternoon, although parts of the region were fair. Temperatures were generally in the 50s, with a high of 58 at Fort Worth. Cloudy conditions should decrease by today, which should see highs in the 60s and lows in the 30s.

Report finds rising oil imports present threat

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — The Commerce Department told President Clinton on Friday that rising oil imports present a threat to U.S. national security, but the solutions being considered aren't likely to satisfy independent oil producers.

Deputy Energy Secretary Bill White said the administration is considering ways to increase the demand for natural gas as a domestic alternative to oil and to encourage high-technology and high-risk oil exploration and production methods that would increase U.S. oil production.

But White said the Clinton administration won't propose tax relief for marginal, low-producing wells; fees on oil imports; or authorization of exploration of potentially large oil fields in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge of Alaska or off the California coast.

Faced with a slump in oil prices that threatened to force producers to shut down thousands of costly marginal oil wells, the Independent Petroleum Association of America last spring petitioned the Commerce Department to investigate whether rising imports threaten national security.

The Commerce Department's report on that investigation was sent to the White House on Friday, and the president has 90 days to accept the recommendations or craft his own response. The report is scheduled for release Tuesday.

A provision of U.S. trade law known as Section 232 authorizes the president to take emergency action to reduce dependence on oil imports, if the Commerce Department establishes they are a threat to national security. Oil imports, which provided about one-third of U.S. needs before the Arab oil embargo in 1973, now provide about one-half of the nation's petroleum requirements.

'We filed this petition for the sole purpose of focusing this administration on the need to develop an energy strategy that recognizes the new risk we face in domestic production.'

independent oil producer

White, a lawyer who is the energy industry's principal advocate within the administration, said the report concludes that oil imports are, indeed, a threat, but he said the remedy is still the subject of deliberations.

Nonetheless, the report is sure to draw fire, both for what it says and for what it does not say. Some analysts say no policy is likely to reverse the nation's growing dependence on imported oil.

John Lichtblau, chairman of the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation in New York, told the Commerce Department that attempts to reduce oil imports by raising prices to either increase production or decrease demand would cause more economic problems than they would solve.

Roy Willis, a vice president with the independent oil producers' group that asked for the investigation, is unhappy. He said the best way to mitigate imports is to stimulate oil production, and he doesn't think the administration will do that.

"We filed this petition for the sole purpose of focusing this administration on the need to develop an energy strategy that recognizes the new risk we face in domestic production," he said. "Not only does our society face economic risk when oil prices are high, but we face a risk when prices are low."

The independents asked the administration to support a proposal put forward last spring by lawmakers from energy-producing states to provide a credit for production from high-cost marginal wells that produce only a few barrels of oil each day.

Clinton asked the lawmakers to come up with a proposal for the tax credit that would not increase the federal deficit. The members of Congress suggested establishing a credit that would phase out at prices below the current price.

Now, White says, some administration officials want a standby revenue measure that would make the energy industry pay for any lost tax revenues if oil prices fall and producers use the tax credit.

Willis said no other industry is asked to provide such protection in order to prevent a higher deficit. "What you are hearing is a code word for, 'We don't want to do it.'"

White said the emphasis needs to be on high consumption instead of low production.

"When we look at the things that are high on the list, alternatives that make a big difference on oil imports, at the very top of the list is the use of gasoline as a transportation fuel," he said.

"So long as we consume gasoline as intensively as we do, and that growth continues, it is hard to imagine a set of policies that would relieve import dependence," White said.

The Energy Department's 1995 budget provides $30 million to help other federal agencies buy 15,000 alternative fuel vehicles, and White said the 1996 budget proposal will include at least that amount, despite deep cuts planned in the department's overall budget.

Outside the transportation sector, White said, the administration will continue to press policies to encourage the use of natural gas as an alternative to coal and oil in home heating and industrial uses.

The third major focus of administration policy is encouraging the use of high-tech exploration techniques, such as three-dimensional seismic analyses that improve the chances of finding oil, White said.

The administration also wants to encourage development of oil reserves under the deep waters of the western and central Gulf of Mexico.

The Natural Gas Supply Association, which represents major producers of natural gas, opposes government mandates to increase the use of natural gas as a transportation fuel.

A spokeswoman for the association said policies that artificially inflate demand for natural gas, and possibly increase prices, could drive away price-sensitive industrial users.

Congress first authorized investigations into the national security aspects of oil imports in 1955. A finding of a national security threat was the basis for the Eisenhower administration's decision to impose quotas on oil imports in 1959.

In 1989, then-President Reagan concluded that imports pose a national security threat, but he did not propose an import fee or any other measure that would have an impact on the prices consumers pay for energy.

SURVEY: Business leaders feel good about Midland

(From 1A)

Sixty-one percent believes the effect on business will be slightly negative or very negative, while only 39 percent sees a positive impact or no impact on business.

An overwhelming majority — 82 percent — thinks that continued downsizing will have a slight impact or very negative impact on the city, while 18 percent thinks there will be a positive impact or no impact on the community.

In other findings of the survey:

■ Forty-two percent expects improved profits over the next six months. This is well below the nearly 60 percent that expected an improvement last spring and the more than 50 percent that expected better profits last fall.

In the latest poll, no change was expected by 38 percent, while 20 percent expects lower profits.

■ Forty-six percent of the businesses don't plan to change their capital investment and spending, which is down from approximately 58 percent in the spring and just above 44 percent last fall.

Increased investment is planned by 31 percent of respondents, while 23 percent plans decreased investment.

■ Improved business conditions in Midland and the state are forecast by 45 and 42 percent, respectively.

■ Respondents, however, are pessimistic about business conditions nationwide. Thirty-eight percent expects worse or much worse conditions; 32 percent sees no change in business conditions and 30 percent sees better or much better business conditions.

■ Almost half — 48 percent — of respondents said their primary source of capital comes from a bank loan, followed by personal savings, 25 percent, and other sources — income, sales, suppliers and customers — 12 percent.

SHOOT: Gunman opens fire on two abortion clinics

dark complexion, curly dark hair and black jacket and pants. Police said the duffel bag was found at the second clinic.

Natalya Kabanovsky, an electrolysis technician in Preterm's building, said a man fitting the description had protested abortion over the past several months. "He was anxious. He wanted to tell everybody what happens here," she said.

Lowney worked at Planned Parenthood.

"She was a wonderful young woman, bright personable and committed and what every person would want in a daughter," Susan Newsom, vice president of Planned Parenthood of Massachusetts.

Lowney grew up in Fairfield, Conn., and graduated magna cum laude from Boston College in 1991, her brother said.

"She died doing what she believed in," said Liam Lowney, 22. "She was committed to — and worked to provide — women the right to choose."

The Planned Parenthood clinic was participating in a nationwide trial of the French abortion pill RU-486. Workers have received death threats at the clinic lately, and Friday began with the usual gathering of protesters outside the center, where about 3,000 abortions are performed annually, said Nicki Gamble, president of Planned Parenthood of Massachusetts.

Boston Mayor Tom Menino ordered police to guard all clinics and hospitals in the city. Gov. William F. Weld promised state police protection to clinics.

Workers at Planned Parenthood said the clinic's door is locked and operated on a buzzer system. It was unclear how the gunman got in.

In Washington, Attorney General Janet Reno called the attacks "a senseless, horrible tragedy," and said federal authorities were investigating.

"Anyone in the war zone has to expect to be part of the war that's going on," the Rev. David C. Trosch, a Roman Catholic priest suspended for advocating the killing of abortion doctors as justifiable homicide, said in Mobile, Ala.

However, the Rev. Flip Benham, director of the Dallas-based anti-abortion group Operation Rescue National, condemned the attacks.

"An eye for an eye, it doesn't work that way," he said. "Vigilantism invariably brings with it lawlessness."

A woman who did not identify herself said a man dressed in black came into the Planned Parenthood clinic and asked, "Is this Planned Parenthood?"

When told it was, he pulled out a rifle and shot Lowney in the neck, she said. A counselor and two men in the waiting room were wounded in the fusillade.

One of the wounded was in fair condition. Conditions for the other two were not available.

At Preterm, a witness who also wouldn't give his name gave a similar account of the attack there.

"A man came in with a black duffel bag. He took out a rifle," the witness said. "He said, 'Is this Preterm?' The woman answering the phone said, 'Yes,' and he dropped the bag and opened fire."

The witness said the gunman shot Nichols and an office worker, then fled down a hall. A guard was wounded in an exchange of fire; witnesses said the gunman may have been wounded, too.

Nichols, who had been shot at least five times, died at a hospital. The other two underwent surgery for chest and abdominal wounds. Their conditions were not immediately known.

The gunman used a .22-caliber rifle, an investigator at the Preterm clinic said.

The attacks fall under the new federal law protecting abortion clinics and patients from violence and harassment.

Women's groups and abortion rights supporters called on the government to enforce the law. They offered a $100,000 award for information leading to the conviction of anyone involved in the slayings.

In March 1993, a doctor was shot and killed outside a Pensacola, Fla., clinic. Michael Griffin is serving a life sentence.

In July, a doctor and his bodyguard were shot to death outside another Pensacola clinic.

Sarajevo feels effects from 1,000 days of siege by Bosnian Serbs

By Aida Cerkez
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — One thousand days ago, Sarajevo was an open, cosmopolitan place where people still thought of building bridges, not burning them.

The rumble of war that already had consumed neighboring Croatia was unmistakable, but Sarajevans were certain they could outrun or outmaneuver it.

The illusion came crashing down in the balmy spring of 1992. On April 6, seven people attending a peace demonstration fell to snipers' bullets and the siege by Bosnian Serbs — some of them one-time neighbors — began.

In 1,000 days since, the city's landmarks have been destroyed, its trees felled for firewood, its cemeteries filled with 10,000 dead.

Sarajevans have been left freezing and hungry, dependent on handouts, embittered by a world they believe has failed and forgotten them.

Most have gotten used to living in the cage created by the Serbs and many, say mental health experts, have added walls of their own that may never come down.

Efforts to end the war are met with boredom and cynicism, including the latest U.N. efforts to broker a four-month cease-fire.

Samira, a 26-year-old woman with cervical cancer, said she will stay, even if it kills her.

Doctors have urged her to leave her native city through the one tenuous route — a tunnel under the airport and then over Mount Igman southwest of the city. She refused.

"I don't want to go," said Samira, who declined to give her last name. "Where would I go? They love me only here."

Like Sarajevo's 286,000 other residents, she is accustomed to dodging snipers and taking precautions against mortar fire. Like a third of Sarajevo's residents, she has sought out psychological counseling.

"Samira is a typical example of a Sarajevan who spend too long in her cage," said psychiatrist Meliha Kapetanovic. "She feels she belongs to a group here, and is afraid of the outside world."

Anyone outside the cage — be they Bosnian Serb soldiers, U.N. officials who are trying to help, or even relatives not in Sarajevo — belong to the indistinguishable "others" who can't understand.

Democracy leads to crime increase for Haitians; rich are prime targets

By Pierre-Yves Glass
Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — The gunmen pummeled the maid, kicked in the front door, pistol-whipped Yveline Nicolas and put a gun to her daughter's head, threatening to kill the child unless Nicolas gave them all her money.

She had just become the latest upper-class victim of a crime wave that has plagued Port-au-Prince ever since U.S.-led forces removed brutal army rulers from power in September.

The presence of foreign troops and the restoration of the elected government has brought relief from political violence — army-backed gunmen no longer terrorize, rape and kill citizens. But the demise of dictatorship brought a rash of burglaries and murders, often attributed to the same gunmen looking for another way to make a living.

Unlike ever before, the once-protected wealthy have become prime targets.

"They beat me in the head with a revolver. They fired shots in the house," Nicolas, a 36-year-old bank employee, said of the Christmas Eve attack. "My daughter ran down in her nightshirt. They grabbed her and jerked off her earrings.

"I told them I had no money with me. They said if I didn't give it up they'd kill the child. They sat her on my bed and pointed the cocked gun to her forehead," Nicolas recalled, her voice trembling.

The five gunmen, backed up by about 10 lookouts outside, made off with Nicolas' purse and jewelry. Seven-year-old Tara, her shirt stained with her mother's blood, was unhurt, but now refuses to sleep alone.

International Police Monitors, who observe and coach Haiti's interim police force of minimally trained former soldiers, have no data to confirm a rise in crime because no records were kept before.

But IPM chief Raymond Kelly, the former New York City police commissioner, says it's clear there's more crime since the removal of army rulers and the dismantling of the corrupt, repressive military and police.

The reasons are many.

Haiti's economy, shattered by three years of world sanctions, is still moribund and foreign aid won't start flowing in until spring.

The army has been slashed to 1,500 men. About 2,000 were made interim police, but that leaves 4,000 soldiers without jobs — gun owners accustomed to arbitrary rule and easy money. Soldiers also are known to sell weapons, and former police auxiliaries known as "attaches" are widely believed responsible for high-powered raids of rich homes and businesses.

Finally, lax security has led to three major prison escapes since October and scores of convicted criminals remain at large.

Some of the more spectacular crimes in recent days include:

■ A Dec. 26 raid at the army's anti-narcotics bureau. Gunmen stole 220 pounds of cocaine. Authorities suspect seven of the depot's army guards.

■ Armed robbers burst into a downtown restaurant in early December, killing its prominent owner and wounding several customers.

■ The three-story Sanyo Center electronics store, a high-profile business, was stripped and set on fire by a gang in mid-November.

■ A Haitian soldier guarding a U.S. Embassy payroll truck Nov. 10 killed two embassy employees and wounded a third, making off with $54,000. Pvt. College Francois later was captured in a U.S.-orchestrated dragnet.

Trucks leaving the port with humanitarian aid are often hijacked, as are aid shipments in the countryside. Warehouses are plundered. Merchants complain of rampant burglaries at downtown businesses since September.

Until Haiti has a new permanent police force, crime is likely to go unabated.

The 800 foreign monitors, accompanied by interim Haitian police, patrol streets in pickups. But they are thinly spread across Haiti, and their role is to monitor police, not be cops.

Shelling destroys oil refinery, threatens plant

GROZNY, Russia (AP) — Russian forces pummeled a Chechen oil refinery and sent shells dangerously close to an ammonia plant on Friday, raising the specter of a catastrophic explosion in the breakaway capital.

Fighting raged on the edges of Grozny and Moscow's warplanes and artillery continued to hammer Chechen positions in the heart of the secessionist republic.

But the attacks appeared only to strengthen the resolve of Chechnya's defenders, who also were bolstered by the support of a visiting group of pro-reform Russian lawmakers.

"We have nothing to lose. We'll fight to the end, to the last drop of blood!" said Baudi Ilyazov, 55, standing with others surveying damage in central Freedom Square.

Chechen President Dzhokhar Dudayev urged Boris Yeltsin to call a New Year's cease-fire but renewed his call for the Russian president to withdraw his troops.

Meanwhile, his forces reportedly reinforced their positions on the city outskirts and worked around the clock to build mine-studded fortifications within a 1,000-yard radius of the presidential palace.

The palace stood, still untouched, in the center of the capital, surrounded by the ruins of bombed buildings. There was speculation Russian bombers had been told not to attack it.

Flames leaped from towers at an idled oil refinery on the southwestern outskirts of the capital of the republic, which once pumped about 8 million barrels of crude a year. The refinery had been struck Thursday and again Friday morning, residents and officials said.

The shells landed two to three miles from an ammonia plant, where several thousand tons of the toxic chemical are stored, said Baudi Tsomayev, a spokesman for the Dudayev government.

He said an explosion at the factory could release toxic gases and threaten hundreds of people in the area.

Russia blamed the refinery fire on Chechen mines, not the virtually nonstop Russian airstrikes pounding Grozny. "None of the refineries have been bombed or shelled," the Russian press service insisted.

Young men in uniform milled around the city's central market, some loading beer and chocolates for the holidays into car trunks already packed with bullets.

The thunder of outgoing artillery shells rattled windows across the city. Stray dogs roam everywhere, and haggard residents have to scoop buckets of water from the Black Sea Resevoir for cleaning or cooking.

In downtown Grozny, buildings are flattened or crumbling from the attacks. Streets are covered by rubble, twisted metal and enormous black scorch marks where fires raged.

The remaining, furtive residents pleaded for U.S. help in a war that some have compared to the morass of Afghanistan.

"We want (the United States) to stand up to Yeltsin, to make him stop this crime and pull out the army!" said Rosa Ebreyeva, a 29-year-old accountant selling fruit in the market.

More Russian lawmakers joined the chorus of protests against the offensive.

"This is not just a matter of (restoring) constitutional order," said legislator Anatoly Shabad, who arrived by bus Friday over Chechnya's muddy roads. "(This) is a violation of human rights on a mass scale and even a crime against humanity."

Dudayev made it clear in his message to Yeltsin that he was adhering to his demand for Russian troops to withdraw before beginning talks, which he said was made "with a view to avoiding senseless bloodshed on both sides."

Refugees still hold on to hope for missing prisoners of war

By Roger Cohen
N.Y. Times News Service

MALMO, Sweden — The John P. Fisk fish restaurant is a bustling place where herring is served with brisk Scandinavian efficiency. Its clientele is affluent, its waiters good-humored. So when the uncontrollable sobbing of Ermin Sestovic begins, his anguish is doubly shocking.

Sestovic is a Bosnian Muslim, a refugee in Sweden. At a recent lunch, he was recalling his father, Ruzdija Sestovic, who has disappeared. This disappearance, after arrest by Serbian nationalists more than two years ago, has spawned a terrible grief, more intractable than bereavement, because it is tinged with a tenuous hope.

"I hope my father is alive," Sestovic, 24, said. "Some days, it seems good that I don't know anything. But then I realize I have to know. Because there is a block inside me. I cannot concentrate. When I am happy, I feel I do not have the right to be. I want to know."

'Some days, it seems good that I don't know anything. But then I realize I have to know.'

— Ermin Sestovic, Bosnian Muslim refugee

The story of the Sestovic family is one of ordinary people caught up in a madness beyond their control, of refugees cast upon an unreceptive European Continent, and of pain so devouring it seems certain to spawn further Balkan conflict if it remains unassuaged.

Long overshadowed by the war itself, the question of the missing is now coming to the forefront of negotiations between the Bosnian government and the Serbs.

In recent talks on a four-month cease-fire, the issue blocked a draft agreement on an exchange of prisoners. The Muslim-led government wants information on the missing that the Serbs refuse to yield.

Sobs continue to grip Sestovic. He buries his head in his hands. Waiters pass. Cutlery tinkles. Plump herrings are dissected. Businessmen discuss Swedish exports. The gulf separating the Bosnian war from the rest of Europe — and at the same time their inextricable proximity — are palpable.

Three hundred and fifty miles from here, on the bleak eastern outskirts of Berlin, Sestovic's mother, Muska, sits in a hostel for people displaced by the Bosnian war. So far, the total is 2.7 million. She cries a lot. Her one solace is that she has been dreaming often of her missing husband: a sign, she believes, that he is alive. "I cannot believe Ruzdija is dead," she said.

The disappearance of Ruzdija Sestovic is not unusual. On a computer list in Sarajevo, the Bosnian government now has the names of more than 16,000 Muslims, including that of Sestovic, who have vanished after arrest by the Serbs since the Bosnian war began in April 1992.

This figure is higher than most estimates of the number of "desparecidos," or disappeared, in Argentina between 1976 and 1983. The comparison is not inappropriate.

Borrowing techniques used in the "dirty war" waged by Argentina's military junta, Serbs arrested most of the missing Muslims in their homes while pursuing a goal of ethnically pure Serbian territory in Bosnia.

Often, as in Argentina, the Serbs would explain to desperate relatives that the Muslim civilians were being taken away on a routine matter for "a couple of hours."

This is what Mrs. Sestovic was told when her husband was dragged from their home in the eastern Bosnian town of Vlasenica by three masked Serbian soldiers just before midnight on June 20, 1992. He never returned.

As yet, however, nobody is ready to take responsibility for what has happened.

"Past experience suggests that it can take up to 10 years for disappeared individuals to appear," Radovan Karadzic, the leader of the Bosnian Serbs, said in an interview.

"We also have missing — 7,000 Serbs from Sarajevo alone. I do not know this individual, Sestovic. But many of the missing Muslims have left. Some are even in Pakistan."

Karadzic continued: "Ethnic cleansing was not our policy. It happened because of fear. Fear and chaos. I was not informed on a daily basis of what was happening in the first months of the war, although we got some information from our troops and police. But the fate of men like Sestovic was beyond our control."

What happened to Sestovic suggests otherwise, however. It is a story of systematic oppression and arrest by the identifiable Bosnian Serb authorities, who had decided to get rid of all Muslims, if necessary through their disappearance.

Ruzdija Sestovic, age 52 if he is alive today, moved from his native Montenegro to the eastern Bosnian town of Milici in 1966. A bauxite mine called Boksit Milici was just beginning operation, and Sestovic was employed to operate earth-moving equipment.

Milici, about 13 miles east of Vlasenica, is a medium-sized town that does not hide its debt to bauxite, the principal ore in aluminum.

The supermarket is called Boksit. The bus station is called Boksit Trans. There is a Boksit sports center. The dowdy high-rise blocks scattered around town house Boksit workers. But back in the mid-1960s, when Sestovic arrived, it was a village. The mine had no more than 70 employees.

Among them was a Serb named Rajko Dukic destined to play a central role in the life of Ruzdija Sestovic. Their parallel and then sharply divergent lives reflect a central trend the Bosnian war: the conversion of friends and neighbors into foes.

Introducing GEMS Television, a New Genre of Spanish-Language Television Programming
Diamonds have long been a girl's best friend. But Hispanic women across the hemisphere prefer the full spectrum that GEMS has to offer. GEMS Television is the first and only Pan-American cable television service specifically designed for the needs and interests of Spanish-language females. With quality programming featuring telenovelas, musicals, movies, comedies, mini-series and vignettes that focus on health, beauty, fashion, career and family, GEMS Television reflects the mirror image of its viewers. It's what today's Hispanic woman watches. It's what today's Hispanic woman is. GEMS will be added on December 30 to the Dimension level of service on Channel 44.

1994 is year of many changes: war, peace, hope and despair

By Charles J. Hanley
AP Special Correspondent

When he roared off toward the stars last Jan. 8, to spend 1994 in orbit, cosmonaut Valery Polyakov had a simple wish for his return: "See you — in a better world."

The upbeat Russian may be let down when he catches up on the year he missed:

True, 1994 was a year for peace (Israel and Ireland), progress (the Channel Tunnel, democracy in South Africa) and prosperity (fatter bottom lines from Auckland to Zurich).

But it also was the year of Rwanda, lush, lethal Rwanda, where what happened in a few days and weeks of 1994 was enough to cast a shadow over Polyakov's planet for years to come, where man reminded himself that a better world is not, after all, at hand.

As 1994 began, Pope John Paul II told a New Year's audience that peace "must be born in the depths of minds and hearts." In the months that followed, some did reach deep.

The old East and the old West worked on their new friendship, NATO offering a "Partnership for Peace" to ex-adversaries of Eastern Europe, Russian troops pulling out of eastern Germany and the Baltics.

The uncovering of a Kremlin mole at the heart of the CIA barely chilled the atmosphere. "I feel at home," Russia's Boris Yeltsin beamed to host Bill Clinton at a White House dinner.

The United States reached across the Pacific, too, to rebuild on the ruins of old hate, lifting the U.S. trade embargo on Vietnam.

But peace's most dramatic gains in 1994 came in two places where the strife is rooted in dim, distant history.

The Palestine Liberation Organization signed a detailed agreement with Israel and took over some Israeli-occupied territory, a big step in what the PLO's Yasser Arafat called the "march of peace" between Arab and Jew. Then, Israel and neighbor Jordan formally ended 46 years of war.

In Ireland, too, the weight of history eased in 1994, as the Irish Republican Army announced a cease-fire in its bloody 25-year campaign to end British control of Northern Ireland.

Still, elsewhere, some hearts and minds turned to war.

In Mexico's southern state of Chiapas, Indian peasants rose up on New Year's Day in armed revolt over old grievances. On the Arabian Peninsula, Yemen's northern and southern halves fought a vicious two-month war.

Platoons of international mediators gained little ground in long-running civil wars in Afghanistan, Liberia and elsewhere. Even where they tried hardest, in the former Yugoslavia, the United Nations and NATO could not bring an end to 3½ years of conflict.

In 1994, however, the three dozen wars bleeding the globe became mere sideshows to the awesome atrocities that unreeled, before the eyes of a disbelieving world, in central Africa.

An airplane crash killing Rwanda's president was the spark setting a nation ablaze. Soldiers, militiamen and ordinary villagers of Rwanda's Hutu majority abruptly set about slaughtering the Tutsi minority. It was the latest replay of an ethnic blood feud, and the most horrifying.

Rivers flowed with corpses. Entire towns were dispatched with machetes, bullets and clubs. "There are no devils left in hell," a Western missionary lamented. "They are all in Rwanda." In this holocaust beyond calculation, only estimates could be made: a half-million people were believed murdered.

Throughout, the world stood by, wrung its hands. A hapless U.N. secretary-general had a word for the international paralysis — "a scandal."

This question of where and how to intervene in an unruly world vexed the major powers repeatedly in 1994.

In his own backyard, Clinton answered with old-style gunboat diplomacy, sending an invasion army toward Haiti, intimidating its military dictators at the 11th hour to make way for an elected president, who was escorted back to power by the U.S. Army.

Washington also airlifted thousands of troops to Kuwait to face down Iraq's Saddam Hussein and the threat — real or ruse — of renewed war in the desert.

But the map overflowed with threats, oppression, dirty little wars. And few proposed intervening — against the generals who buried democracy in Nigeria and Burma, for example; or in the nonstop civil war of Sudan. In Somalia, in fact, the Americans threw their intervention into reverse gear, and the United Nations voted to follow suit.

But even Africa, tragedy's homeland, had its helping of hope in 1994.

Mozambique pulled off elections. Angola, exhausted by fratricidal war, tried another truce. And South Africa, sad and desperate South Africa, became hope's own home, a democratic vote giving blacks their country back, and Nelson Mandela the presidency.

"The moment to bridge the chasms that divide us has come," the nationalist hero declared.

Other chasms, too, were bridged in 1994.

Today's trivia gluttons may know it as the year of O.J. Simpson. But to tomorrow's history students, it will be the year when nations joined hands and signed a world trade treaty tearing down business barriers between them.

To gossip-mongers, it's the year of Charles and Di. But in the next century, it will be remembered as a year when governments, shamed by Bosnia and Rwanda, came together to form the first global court for war crimes.

To soccer fans, it was the year of Romario, the star with one name, and Brazil, the team with four World Cups.

U.S. prepares for trade war with China

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unable to resolve a dispute with China over theft of American computer software, movies and tapes, the United States is preparing a list of punitive tariffs the Chinese warn could spark a trade war.

Sources close to the negotiations said Friday the threatened trade sanctions will target more than $1 billion in Chinese products. The goal is to force the Chinese to halt what U.S. officials say are abuses that cost U.S. companies $800 million annually in patent and copyright piracy.

A formal announcement of the proposed sanctions will be made Saturday by U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor, according to the sources, who spoke on condition that their names not be used.

In Beijing, Chinese officials were taking a tough line as well, saying they have increased efforts to halt abuses of copyright and patent protections. They warned that if the United States carries through with its threat, the Chinese government would retaliate against American products.

"To threaten trade retaliation will not solve the problem and will do no good ... to the talks," Foreign Ministry spokesman Shen Guofang said.

One U.S. source said the Chinese products that will be targeted would cover all the most popular Chinese imports to the United States — textiles, clothing, toys and electronics.

America's trade deficit with China was certain to set another record this year, running at annual rate of $29.5 billion through October. That puts China second only to Japan's deficit, which was running at an annual rate of $64.7 billion through the first 10 months of the year.

Those figures have made Japan and China chief targets of U.S. efforts to knock down foreign barriers in an effort to narrow the overall trade gap.

On the Japanese front, U.S. officials reported they were close to reaching agreement on lowering barriers that have prevented American banks and brokerage companies from expanding their operations in Japan.

Timothy Geithner, a Treasury Department official who heads the U.S. negotiating team, said Friday that many unresolved issues in financial services had been resolved during talks with the Japanese this week in Seattle.

"We made a lot of progress across the board and we are close," he told reporters. A Treasury source said both sides needed more time to draft final language but that an agreement could come soon.

The prospects for the Chinese trade negotiations, however, appeared for less promising. But if the dispute follows the pattern of trade fights with China over the past several years, a deal still could be reached before the sanctions go into effect.

U.S. officials planned this weekend to release a preliminary list of products that could be subject to punitive tariffs of up to 100 percent.

The sanctions will not go into effect until after a 30-day comment period. American importers will be given the chance to argue that sanctions in particular areas would cause extensive harm to American businesses and consumers.

Last January, the United States withdrew a threat to sharply reduce China's textile quotas after reaching a last-minute agreement with China. During the Bush administration, $3.9 billion in Chinese goods were targeted but the sanctions never took effect because the Chinese agreed to a series of market-opening moves.

FDA approves diabetes drug, warns of effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has approved a new drug to treat diabetes, but warned Friday that patients must watch out for a dangerous side effect.

Metformin, manufactured by Lipha S.A. of France, will be sold here under the brand name Glucophage to treat non-insulin dependent, or Type II, diabetes.

Some critics tried furiously to block approval of the drug, which the FDA said may cause some patients to suffer lactic acidosis, a life-threatening buildup of lactic acid in the blood.

About 14 million Americans have diabetes, where the body loses its ability to control levels of sugar in the blood. Left untreated, it can cause organ damage and even death.

Type II diabetes is the most common type, afflicting about 13 million Americans, only half of whom are diagnosed. They either don't produce enough insulin, a hormone that regulates blood sugar, or can't use it properly — or both.

The standard treatment is a strict low-sugar diet and weight loss. Those who don't respond can take drugs that stimulate the pancreas to secrete more insulin.

Metformin works differently, increasing the body's response to its own insulin. The drug appears to work as well as other diabetes drugs, but rarely causes the hypoglycemia — plummeting blood sugar — and weight gain that its alternatives do, said FDA's Dr. James Bilstad.

"We're excited," said American Diabetes Association president Dr. Kathleen Wishner. "For some people, this drug will work better."

Gingrich relinquishes advance for book deal to quiet public furor

By Marc Rice
Associated Press

MARIETTA, Ga. — Conceding he'd underestimated the public furor, incoming House Speaker Newt Gingrich relinquished a $4.5 million book advance Friday in hopes of silencing critics and ending a major distraction to Republican plans in the new Congress.

He said anew that he'd done nothing wrong but was worried about giving ammunition to opponents at the start of the session that begins next week.

The deal with HarperCollins Publishers for two books had been under unrelenting criticism from Democrats, and on Thursday incoming Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole also raised concerns.

In a news conference at his suburban Atlanta office, Gingrich read a letter to fellow Republicans announcing his decision. He also said reporters and critics had made too much of the situation.

"You've got to get a sense of humor and relax. This isn't that big a deal," said Gingrich. He appeared cheerful despite giving up — at least for now — what he said would have amounted to "financial independence for the first time in our lives" for himself and his wife.

He could still make a great deal of money, but only if the books sell very well.

Gingrich said his deal was legal and ethical — in line with a long history of office holders writing books for profit — but he'd decided that as House speaker he needed to go further.

"I am not a normal politician," Gingrich said. "If you're given a chance by your country to lead, you can't just be defensively narrow and say this is legal and ethical, and after all my family deserves the money. I think you've got to go an extra length."

The industry standard is for an author to receive a 10 percent royalty on each of the first 5,000 hard cover copies sold, 12.5 percent for the next 5,000 and 15 percent on all books sold thereafter, according to Hamilton Cane of Simon & Schuster publishing in New York.

Rep. David Bonior, D-Mich., the incoming minority whip, said Gingrich "finally got the message that an outraged public has been trying to send: that you can't use public office for personal gain."

But Bonior said he still had a problem with Gingrich receiving royalties because media giant Rupert Murdoch, who controls HarperCollins, has an interest in major communications industry legislation to be taken up by Congress.

Dole, however, said Gingrich's action "lays to rest the book issue and paves the way for the important work that Newt and I and our Republican team look forward to accomplishing."

Dole had said a day earlier that the deal was "not too popular around people who talk to me" and that critics were bound to keep bringing it up when Republicans in Congress "start cutting programs that might affect low-income Americans."

Gingrich said he would take a $1 advance as a formality to seal the book contract, and then accept royalties on book sales. He refused to disclose the terms of the royalty agreement, saying it was in the "standard market range for a commercial book."

The industry standard is for an author to receive a 10 percent royalty on each of the first 5,000 hard cover copies sold, 12.5 percent for the next 5,000 and 15 percent on all books sold thereafter, according to Hamilton Cane of Simon & Schuster publishing in New York. A HarperCollins spokesman refused to comment on the terms.

Tony Blankley, a spokesman for Gingrich, said that, while the contract has not been finalized, the royalties will be normal, customary and definitely under 15 percent. At 15 percent, Gingrich would have to sell 1 million copies of his book at $30 each to make $4.5 million.

Jack McKeown, senior vice president and publisher of HarperCollins' adult trade group, said in a statement that Gingrich's decision was "entirely his own" and "lays to rest once and for all any specious notion that this was anything other than a straightforward publishing negotiation." The New York-based publisher plans a first printing of 750,000 copies of the first title, "To Renew America."

Gingrich wrote in his letter, "The defenders of the old system were clearly going to use the book advance to distract, to obstruct and to critique."

Pilot gives account of helicopter crash

By Robert Burns
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Army pilot Bobby Hall, in his first debriefing by U.S. officials since being freed, said his helicopter was hit by North Korean air defenses after he strayed across the border, forcing him into an emergency landing.

Hall reported that after he brought the chopper to the ground, he pulled his gravely wounded co-pilot, Chief Warrant Officer David Hilemon, from the aircraft, according to a U.S. government official who spoke Friday on condition he not be identified.

Hall told officials that Hilemon died a short time later.

The pilot's remarks, as related by the U.S. government official, made clear that Hall heard or saw an airburst or explosion on Hilemon's side of the helicopter while still in the air — apparently from anti-aircraft artillery fire or a surface-to-air missile. The engine of his small scout helicopter then went dead, and he steered the aircraft to the ground without crashing.

Hall, thinking he was over South Korea, apparently did not realize at the time that his helicopter had been hit and that Hilemon apparently was wounded, the official said. Hall was not injured.

The exact cause of Hilemon's death remained uncertain, the U.S. official said, but it appeared from Hall's description that he was killed either from the artillery or missile explosion or from those injuries combined with a hard landing.

A senior military officer, commenting in a Pentagon briefing, said separately that Hall did sign the statement that the North Koreans have characterized as a "confession" about his flight. Hall called the statement "an accurate depiction" of the events and said he had resisted Korean efforts for him to make a stronger denunciation, the Pentagon officer said.

In the statement released by North Korea, Hall wrote that "the helicopter was shot, it caught fire and crashed into a steep mountain" and that Hilemon "was thrown from the aircraft and died on the spot."

The Army helicopter went down in North Korea on Dec. 17. Hilemon's remains were returned to the United States last week and are being autopsied. Hall was released by North Korea Thursday night after Washington expressed regret that its air space had been violated. U.S. officials have said the incursion was accidental.

Hall was undergoing additional questioning by U.S. officials on a flight home to Florida from the Korean peninsula, and the Pentagon was undertaking a detailed investigation, officials said. Hall said he had been well treated in captivity.

Prominent members of Congress expressed relief at Hall's release but cautioned that U.S.-North Korean relations had been damaged by the incident.

'The North Koreans must understand that the resolution of this episode doesn't lessen the need for Congress to closely examine the agreed framework on nuclear weapons.'

— Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole

"The North Koreans must understand that the resolution of this episode doesn't lessen the need for Congress to closely examine the agreed framework on nuclear weapons," Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole said. He was referring to an October accord in which the North Koreans pledged to abandon their nuclear program in exchange for $4 billion in modern power-generating reactors.

The State Department said, however, the nuclear agreement with North Korea "will go forward as planned."

Assistant Secretary of State Winston Lord said late Friday the nuclear agreement was "a very important factor" in winning Hall's release.

Interviewed on PBS' "MacNeil-Lehrer News Hour," Lord said U.S. officials made no specific link between the two issues, but that "the prospect of losing this agreement" was an important issue to the North Koreans.

Hall told U.S. officials in South Korea that he had not realized he had entered North Korean air space while on a routine orientation flight, and that he saw no tracer rounds from anti-aircraft guns or other warnings to turn back.

"He confirms that he was lost," said the senior Pentagon officer, who briefed reporters on condition that he not be identified.

Hall reported that he was well fed and allowed plenty of rest during his 13 days in captivity, the officer said.

He said Hall was not under any physical duress to sign the North Korean statement, which described the incursion as a "criminal action" and a "grave challenge" to the Korean People's Army.

Resolution failure leads to big money, marriage proposals for winner

N.Y. Times News Service

WEATHERFORD, Texas — Diane Leiding didn't keep either one of her two 1994 New Year's resolutions, and as a result, she's getting mailbags full of marriage proposals and is Weatherford's best known new millionaire.

In 1994, Leiding resolved to quit playing the lottery and to quit smoking.

She did neither, but backsliding on her lottery promise paid off rather handsomely.

She got a $22 million return on her $2 investment Dec. 10 as one of two people in Texas to hold winning tickets for a $45 million jackpot.

Leiding, 39, picked up her first check for $1,009,500 in Austin on Dec. 12, and she will get a check for the same amount each year for the next 19 years from The Texas Lottery Commission.

Before she won the jackpot, the single mother was making $4.25 an hour as a part-time bartender at Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 4746 in Weatherford, which is about 30 miles west of Fort Worth.

She quit her bartending job as soon as she realized she'd won the lottery.

Just before Christmas, she bought a red Mustang convertible, and she has arranged to give her sister a blue one after the first of the year.

She also arranged for her sister, Andrena Kaminski of Georgia, to fly to Texas for the holidays.

Through it all, she has learned that the government doesn't make it very easy to play Lady Bountiful.

'It's really strange. Uncle Sam really has a grip on this money. I've already made some errors in the first few days. It really can mess up on your taxes.'

— Diane Leding, lottery winner

"It's really strange. Uncle Sam really has a grip on this money," she said. "I've already made some errors in the first few days. It really can mess up on your taxes.

"There's just so much you can do as gifts, and I've pretty much 'gifted' my sister out. She'll still get her car, if that's what she wants, but it'll be after the first of the year."

Leiding said her accountant told her that she could give two separate gifts of $10,000 each to an individual each year without it affecting her taxes or the recipients.

"Once you go over that, it just messes everybody up," she said.

Leiding said the car has been her biggest purchase so far, and she took her lawyer and accountant with her to buy it because she wasn't sure how to write a check for that large an amount.

"I cried when I wrote the check because I never dreamed I'd have that much money," she said.

She bought a few extras for her daughters, 10-year-old Heather and 2-year-old Shelby. Heather lives in California with her father and is visiting her mother.

Leiding hasn't moved from her subsidized housing, but she said she probably will after the first of the year. She described her holidays as "hectic but great," and she said she is able to be generous with her friends.

"I was able to help some of them out financially. I was happy about that," she said.

Strangers have tried to help her spend her loot. Since telling the world she is single and looking for a husband when she picked up her first lottery check, Leiding has been swamped with marriage proposals and pleas for money.

"Most of the mail and telephone calls have gone to the VFW hall," she said. "Some comes to my home addressed 'Lottery Winner, Weatherford, Texas.' Some mail goes to the Weatherford newspaper, and men are just walking into the VFW, asking for me.

"I've received manuscripts, resumes, pictures and not just one-page letters.... Some of these letters were 20 pages long. But my sister won't let me open them. We just throw them away, and we tell the VFW to do the same thing."

She deposited the first lottery check at the Weatherford branch of Bank of America, and she said she is a little unhappy that the bank hasn't issued her a credit card.

Report says Bush to name commissioner

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov.-elect George W. Bush's office refused to comment Friday on a newspaper report that said Bush has picked Democratic state Rep. Elton Bomer of Montalba to serve as state insurance commissioner.

The Houston Post, citing anonymous sources, said Bomer will replace Interim Commissioner Rebecca Lightsey, whose term ends Feb. 1.

Reggie Bashur, a spokesman for Bush, said, "I'm really not in a position to confirm or deny" the report.

Bomer, a lawmaker who became a lobbyist and then a lawmaker again, said he has talked with Bush about several jobs in his administration.

"I'm honored to be considered for such a post," Bomer said. "He might be considering me for that and other posts as well. But that decision hasn't been made."

Bomer said the fact that he and Bush, a Republican, are members of different political parties isn't a problem. He said he agrees with Bush's philosophy.

The reported appointment of Bomer was greeted warmly by insurers and coolly by consumers.

"He has not had a pro-consumer voting record," John Hildreth, executive director of Consumers Union, told the Post. He added, however, that Bomer "served with distinction" in the House.

Mark Toohey, a spokesman for Farmers Insurance Group, praised Bomer.

"Representative Bomer's outstanding and effective legislative record speaks for itself. As a legislator he has demonstrated fairness, intelligence and integrity, and those traits would bode well for Texas consumers," he said.

Bomer served in the House from 1981 to 1985 and won re-election in 1990.

No clues surface in disappearance case, officials say

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Investigators still haven't decided whether foul play had a role in the unexplained absense of a Brownsille mother involved in a sensational custody case.

"We haven't made that determination yet," Police Chief Victor Rodriguez said Friday.

Laura Lugo left her Brownsville apartment without her purse or other personal belonings on Dec. 21 and has not been seen or heard from since.

The man and woman with whom she apparently departed willingly still have not been identified, Rodriguez said.

Ms. Lugo, 28, left her 2-year-old boy and his three older sisters with their grandmother. She was expected to return shortly, family members said.

Ms. Lugo regained the custody of the boy, Jorge Daniel Alaniz, in October after a Texas judge stripped parental rights from Paulyna Botello, the woman who raised him.

Ms. Lugo alleged that Ms. Botello and her sister Rosa snatched the infant after a forced Caesarean section at a Mexican clinic on Sept. 1, 1992.

Rodriguez said the investigation was not solely focusing on the Botello sisters, who are charged in Mexico with child-trafficking.

Both sisters are free on bond in Matamoros, just across the Rio Grande from Brownsville.

"What we know is that there are no reports of missing Botellos," the chief said.

Rosa Botello, considered a fugitive for nearly two years, turned herself into Mexican authorities more than two weeks ago and was granted a bond, according to Friday editions of The Brownsville Herald.

Gump (and other stuff) happens

"Hoop Dreams," a brilliant documentary, was a highlight of the year's releases.

AP Laserphoto

By Janet Maslin
N.Y. Times News Service

Flukes set the standard for 1994 on screen. While big films ("Wyatt Earp") and even big seasons (Christmas) fizzled, the triumphs came out of extreme left field. Foreign films were in serious decline, but American independent cinema experienced a burst of creative fervor. And, of course, Gump happened. More about that in a moment.

While 1994 was short on major fireworks, it brought so many solid successes that this year's 10-best list includes a dozen entries. Arithmetic should never matter more than merit.

So, the 10-best films of 1994, in order:

PULP FICTION. Moral tales for a jaded, topsy-turvy world, told with dark, outrageous humor and absolute command of style. Quentin Tarantino, one natural-born killer of a film maker, has been facetiously labeled the directorial flavor of the decade. But if he sustains the brilliance of this instant classic, he'll earn that title for real.

HOOP DREAMS. The year's most heart-stopping drama came from a work of nonfiction. A documentary masterpiece, endlessly revealing, about two inner-city high school basketball players and the forces that exploit their raw talent.

What a long, strange trip it's been

Entertainment suffered through profoundly weird year

By Dave Ferman
N.Y. Times News Service

1994 wasn't a great year for pop music, or a terrible one.

What it was, was truly, profoundly weird:

Michael Jackson and Lisa Marie Presley married and then, before you could say "Graceland," were rumored to be splitting up. And just where is that long-promised new CD, Mike?

■ Music

Pearl Jam, one of the best bands in the world, spent more time testifying on Capitol Hill than playing live.

Ancient religious songs sung by Spanish monks rose to the top of the charts, spawning one spinoff CD after another.

Kurt Cobain killed himself.

More than a decade after the death of John Lennon, the remaining Beatles did what we'd all hoped the band would do back in the '70s when Lennon was still alive: record new music.

John Mellencamp was felled by that least rock 'n' rollish of maladies — a heart attack.

Not one, not two, not three, but four of the most famous names in rock and pop (Barbra Streisand, the Rolling Stones, Pink Floyd and the never-say-never Eagles) were back on the boards, filling arenas and stadiums at prices that were unheard of even five years ago.

And punk rock, of all things, became white-hot again, as two mediocre bands — Green Day and the Offspring — sold millions of CDs and were played on mainstream rock stations that wouldn't have thought of spinning the Clash, the Sex Pistols, the Buzzcocks or the Ramones 15 years ago.

Add to this the rather disorganized (but musically interesting) Woodstock '94 festival, the long-awaited release of Prince's fabled black album, English pop bands (the London Suede, Oasis, Blur, Ride) doing incredibly well over there but hardly anything here, and you have a year where the unexpected and the strange became al-

TV made dramatic comeback in 1994

By Frazier Moore
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — Television was just full of surprises in 1994.

For instance, a year ago few viewers expected to see an Olympic hopeful writhing on the floor and wailing "Why? Why me?" Nor did the audience imagine a Ford Bronco would edge out Roseanne, David Caruso and David Letterman's mother as the year's biggest scene-stealer.

■ Television

But one of 1994's headiest surprises was not what happened on TV, but what didn't. Despite experts' forecasts, drama didn't fade from sight, nor did news magazines swallow prime-time whole.

To the contrary: As 1995 dawns, TV dramas are hot, TV magazines are not.

Surprise! As recently as a year ago, the one-hour TV drama was thought to be a dying breed. Dramatic series were supposedly too costly to produce at a profit, and, compared to sitcoms' more convenient half-hour form, were difficult to fit into the networks' prime-time lineups.

Besides, the cheaper news magazine had stolen drama's storytelling thunder. Even better than a show with scripts and actors, magazines told real-life tales about real people who did real things.

And they were real popular. Indeed, it seemed viewers couldn't get enough as magazines sprang up all over the schedule.

No wonder, then, that a year ago every TV network had its sights on Diane Sawyer as her ABC News contract neared expiration. The popular "PrimeTime Live" anchor embodied magazines' seemingly unlimited appeal, and, for whichever network won her, she would be the star on which it built its magazine empire.

1994: The year best left forgotten

1994, oh what a year.
A whole lotta sleaze, but not a whole lotta cheer.
There was Lorena and Tonya and Nancy and Newt
O.J., Michael and Lisa Marie to boot.

Patterson

It started quite simply, yet painfully enough
With a gal named Lorena and a husband she'd rebuff.
She took out her knife and it got kinda gory
And the rest, as they say, is tabloid glory.

A little while later there was Nancy's famous knee
And those unending screams of "Why me, why me?"
At the Olympics, Tonya and Nancy would both skate
Nancy earned a silver; Tonya, No. 8.

The Royal Family did not escape the dirt
With Chuck and Di both feeling the hurt.
Di, they said, made calls with a quarter
To a man she desired to have as her courter.

There was Tom and Roseanne and their nasty little spat
In which both would end up smelling like a rat
Why should we care as much as we did?
Instead we should be joyous when of both we are rid.

Madonna would have her 15 ticks of fame
But when it was over she would leave in great shame
On 'The Late Show' she would one night appear
But her verbiage was such that no one could hear.

Forget that Caruso would exit stage left
"NYPD Blue" had even more heft.
It was Dennis Franz who would grab all the hype
By baring his backside, and, gosh, was it wide.

Burt and Loni were put asunder but what was even odder
Were the nuptials of Michael and Elvis' lovely daughter.
But what's even stranger than having them do wed
Is imagining the two of them sharing the same bed.

All of this sleaze was incredibly pale
When compared to seeing O.J. locked up in jail.
He was our hero a long while ago
But now his tale is an awful one of woe.

He has been charged with killing his ex
And a friend she was with of the opposite sex.
He led us all on a breathtaking chase
As we watched him and Al at a really slow pace.

But since that incredible, unbelievable June day
We've all had a horrible price for to pay.
To turn on the TV with no news of O.J.
Is what we now dream of every day.

And what of '95? What should we expect?
Who knows, but there's one thing certain as heck:
It can get no weirder than the Year of the Bore,
The thankfully completed 1994.

MUSIC: Old bands, artists make return in strange year

most commonplace.

Even odder, though, was the overwhelming fascination with the past. Three old guys — Tony Bennett, Johnny Cash and George Clinton — became the standard by which hipness and coolness were measured. Reborn '70s hard rockers Aerosmith became media darlings.

At the same time, young bands bent over backward to laud '70s acts (Kiss, Black Sabbath, the Carpenters) and samples of '70s funk tunes popped up on one rap song after another.

Young fans snapped up tickets to Pink Floyd and the Eagles, while the median age of those attending Woodstock '94 was no more than 25. These people came not to unify against war — or anything else — but to wear their Grateful Dead T-shirts, drink beer and go as bonkers over Aerosmith as Nine Inch Nails.

And that most grizzled of acts, the Dead, continued to fill stadiums, while younger bands that leaned very heavily on the music of the Dead and the Allman Brothers (Widespread Panic, Phish) filled arenas on their own, playing to hordes of young fans trying their best to look like they'd stepped out of 1971.

Part of this is due to the cyclical, everything-old-becomes-new-again nature of pop culture. But it's also partially due to the relatively lackluster showing by numerous young bands that, on paper, looked to be on the crest of taking their art (and, in many cases, their popularity) to new heights.

Time after time, some of the most lauded performers in pop delivered CDs that fell short of their abilities: the cranberries, Sugar, Sonic Youth, the Spin Doctors, Arrested Development, House of Pain, Big Head Todd and the Monsters, Dinosaur Jr.

In light of that, paying attention to oldies-but-goodies (be they Black Sabbath or Tony Bennett) made perfect sense. Not that there weren't some credible debut CDs this year, because there were: Austin's soul/rock Storyville, metal bands like Nailbomb, Kerbdog and the Obsessed, country-rocking the Tractors, rockabilly/country dude Big Sandy, Fort Worth soulman Glen Clark, Irish popsters Engine Alley and Guns N' Roses guitarist Gilby Clarke.

All of the above bode well for the future of rock — even if the future seems more than a bit dependent on what came before.

Musician of the year

Trent Reznor of Nine Inch Nails: For the severely unsettling "The Downward Spiral," for two excellent live performances in Dallas in one year, for the "Natural Born Killers" soundtrack, for the excellent cover of Joy Division's "Dead Souls" on "The Crow" soundtrack — hey, if the guy didn't drag Marilyn Manson around with him, he'd be perfect.

Dave Ferman's top 10 albums of 1994:

1. "Troublegum" by Therapy? Smartly jagged modern hard rock and tales of loneliness, hatred and disgust from three guys from Belfast.

2. "Strange Pleasure" by Jimmie Vaughan. Once merely a fabulous guitarist, Vaughan has re-emerged as a credible singer and excellent songwriter who can tackle shuffles, R&B and gospel.

3. "The Downward Spiral" by Nine Inch Nails. A redefinition of what metal and industrial music can be, this massively unsettling CD is an angry shriek from a soul in torment.

4. "C.C. Adcock" by C.C. Adcock. Roots-rock was big doin's this year — too bad most of you didn't hear the REAL deal, this gumbo of swamp-pop, R&B, after-midnight hoodoo, funk and Bo Diddley proto-rock by a baby-faced Louisiana dude.

5. "Universal Mother" by Sinead O'Connor. Often self-indulgent? Yep. Strident here and there? Check. But underlying this remarkable CD is a fierce independence, a unique voice and a willingness to go far out on a limb lyrically.

6. "Sleeps With Angels" by Neil Young and Crazy Horse. As usual, Neil is as compelling addressing the topical (inner-city violence, Kurt Cobain's suicide) as the internal (his hopes for the future).

7. "Voodoo Lounge" by the Rolling Stones. The album Stones fans have been waiting for since 1978's "Some Girls." A tart, sassy mix of all that the Glimmer Twins do well, from bone-hard rock to sweeping ballads.

8. "Viva Zapata!" by Seven Year Bitch. This wise-beyond-its-years riot grrrl band lashed out at rapists, abusers and a future they see as hopeless in quick bursts of choppy, metallic rock.

9. "The Black Album" by Prince. I know I only gave this 3 1/2 stars when it came out. I was wrong. The decades-spanning funk is massive, the rap is hilarious, the tone is raunchy without being dirty and the whole thing is a non-stop delight.

10. "amorica." by The Black Crowes. In which the Crowes distill all their influences and come up with what is easily their best CD: The music swaggers and Chris Robinson sings with superb confidence.

TV: 'E.R.' now TV's pride, joy

(From 1B)

Before long Sawyer would decide to stay on at ABC, rewarded with a new $7 million annual contract and a second magazine show, "Turning Point." The ratings for its premiere last March were touted as the highest ever for a news magazine.

Magazines, it seemed, were unstoppable, and the networks announced that more were on the way. NBC went as far as to consider "stripping" a magazine each weeknight at 10 p.m. EST — the ancestral home of the drama.

At the same time, the smash success of freshman "NYPD Blue" was dismissed as an anomaly. Otherwise, drama was surely dying on the vine.

Or was it?

"Whenever you hear something's dead, you know there's a great opportunity to spin that around and have a big hit," crowed NBC Entertainment President Warren Littlefield recently.

A man who knows that TV is nothing if not cyclical in its trends, and that the TV audience is nothing if not fickle, Littlefield was referring to his pride and joy, "ER." This, of course, is NBC's triumphant new medical drama whose scattershot storylines and rapid-fire pace seem more compellingly "real" to many viewers than the bona fide reality that magazines craft into their stories.

An instant and growing-by-the-week hit, "ER" is ranked fourth for the season and is the most talked-about, written-about series of the year. But even more significantly, it has helped spark new life in TV drama overall.

"The one-hour drama is taking over prime time," Variety reported in October. The show-biz weekly added that forward-thinking network bosses "have put the word out to the production community: 'Drama is working and we want more.' "

And what of the TV magazine that boasted of a whole new way of storytelling? "Turning Point" as a weekly series is kaput.

Meanwhile, "PrimeTime Live," pounded by its Thursday night rival "ER," next week flees to Wednesdays at 10 p.m. EST (where it can expect little relief as it faces two popular dramas, "Law & Order" on NBC and CBS' "Northern Exposure," which has given up its long-time Monday berth to "Chicago Hope").

Then next Thursday at 10 p.m. EST, another ABC magazine, "Day One," awakens from its hiatus to find a more forbidding world than the one it left six months ago. Diane Sawyer joins original "Day One" anchor Forrest Sawyer in a tough time slot to butt heads not only with "ER," but also with another struggling magazine, CBS' "48 Hours" (which follows yet another struggling magazine, "Eye to Eye with Connie Chung").

A year ago, news magazines were booming.

Magazines on the wane, and drama redux — a surprising turnabout for the new year? Sure.

But — reminder to the "experts" — maybe no more surprising than whatever will have caught on when 1996 gets here.

FILM: Reviewer sees 'Forrest Gump' as a loser of '94

(From 1B)

The film makers had everything: time, patience, insight and the cooperation of people who sensed the emblematic importance of their own stories. It is tough, gripping and profoundly illuminating in ways that make it a landmark.

QUIZ SHOW. Graceful and subtle, Robert Redford's exegesis of the 1950s television scandals had a rare, ruminative intelligence and delivered some of the year's best acting. John Turturro and Paul Scofield expertly defined opposite extremes in a film that took eroding American scruples as the subject of its $64,000 questions.

THIRTY-TWO SHORT FILMS ABOUT GLENN GOULD. Dazzlingly, form followed function in this biographical meditation modeled on Bach's "Goldberg Variations." With its starkly imaginative approach to character study, it summoned an eerie intensity perfectly suited to the elusive Canadian pianist and his idiosyncratic genius.

TO LIVE. China's most daring film maker, Zhang Yimou, viewed his country's recent history through the eyes of its humble, fearful citizenry and told the tale of one couple with devastating understatement. Once again, this great storyteller displayed extraordinary gifts for distilling major political and cultural events into intimate human drama.

THE LAST SEDUCTION. John Dahl single-handedly reinvigorated film noir with two made-for-television sleepers. This film, more streamlined and deliciously brazen than his "Red Rock West," showed off a hard-boiled director and a scorchingly effective star. Films were full of street-smart attitude in 1994, but Linda Fiorentino's ice-blooded schemer was tough cookie of the year.

FOUR WEDDINGS AND A FUNERAL. Sparkling wit made a delightful comeback in this swift, literate English ensemble film propelled by Oxbridge talent on and off the screen. While Mike Newell and Richard Curtis, the director and screenwriter, found an unexpected but wonderfully buoyant structure for their comic confection, previously little-known Hugh Grant emerged as the year's brightest of new stars.

RED. Krzysztof Kieslowski's "Three Colors" trilogy ended on a high note, with a beautifully intuitive film that displays this director's cryptic style at its most penetrating. A grand feat of gamesmanship, linking events, emotions and parallel characters in a web of haunting complicity.

CARO DIARIO. With a fresh, funny approach to social criticism, the Italian film maker Nanni Moretti took stock of his country's health and, ultimately, his own. The diary format made this a winningly nimble and varied film, soothingly contemplative in some spots and cheerfully audacious in others. A reminder of how radical and satisfying such one-man-army tactics can be.

NOBODY'S FOOL. Robert Benton's pitch-perfect literary adaptation of Richard Russo's wry novel performed a remarkable balancing act, describing everything about the life of a small, upstate New York town without skipping a sardonic beat. Paul Newman, as the wisecracking fulcrum of this unexpectedly stirring story, will be the old pro to beat at Oscar time. A rare big-studio movie with the wisdom to think small.

BULLETS OVER BROADWAY. Beneath the smooth comic professionalism of Woody Allen's best recent film lurked truly audacious thoughts about art, love and genius.

LADYBIRD, LADYBIRD. Wrenching social realism from Ken Loach, who told his story with full respect for its staggering ambiguities. As a mother battling social service agencies for custody of her children, Crissy Rock gave a searingly good performance, one that did justice to the complex agonies Loach addressed.

RUNNERS-UP AND LOSERS: 1994 was an unusually strong year for runners-up, so here are the best: "The Madness of King George," a royally entertaining screen version of Alan Bennett's play, with Nigel Hawthorne holding court. "I Like It Like That," Darnell Martin's jubilant Bronx comedy with a savvy, feminist point of view. "Clerks," Kevin Smith's no-budget miracle from a convenience store in New Jersey.

"Spanking the Monkey," a down-to-earth "Graduate" for these dysfunctional times. "Little Women," Gillian Armstrong's smart, unmannered retelling of that heirloom tale. "I'll Do Anything," James Brooks' soulful Hollywood satire, unfairly blasted for a big budget and the last-minute removal of its musical score.

Also: "Ed Wood," Tim Burton's hilarious and touching valentine to Z-movie bravado. "The Boys of St. Vincent," an unflinching Canadian drama about pederast priests, directed with cool, documentarylike intensity. "Savage Nights," the ragged, desperate AIDS-era romance directed by the late Cyril Collard.

"Eat Drink Man Woman," Ang Lee's lighthearted culinary and comedic treat. "Vanya on 42nd Street," presenting Chekhov with rare intimacy in an unusual film-theatrical hybrid. "Little Buddha," a grand, gorgeous folly of a theology lesson from Bernardo Bertolucci. And "Interview With the Vampire," the best conceivable film version of an Anne Rice story. Rats and all.

Now for the flip side: 10 worst films of 1994, each with the kind of disastrousness that is emblematic in some notable way. "Even Cowgirls Get the Blues": all thumbs, with Gus Van Sant turning a pitifully dated Tom Robbins novel into a full-scale creative calamity.

And "Forrest Gump": because its hollow man was exactly that, self-congratulatory in his blissful ignorance, warmly embraced as the embodiment of absolutely nothing. We shouldn't settle for movie heroes who don't do more than show up. And we all look that much more dumbed-down when, as it did in 1994, Gump happens on a global scale.

"THE HOT-BUTTON DATE MOVIE OF THE YEAR!"
Spectacularly entertaining. bang-on funny and provocative. A sizzling sexual powder keg. Michael Douglas and Demi Moore are terrific. Moore is hell on high heels. Peter Travers, ROLLING STONE
"THE 'FATAL ATTRACTION' OF THE 90'S! MICHAEL DOUGLAS IS AN OSCAR FRONTRUNNER AGAIN FOR HIS RICH PERFORMANCE. A SEXY, SUSPENSEFUL THRILLER." - Jeff Craig, SIXTY SECOND PREVIEW

Religious right, women's roles take top spots for 1994 stories

By David Briggs
Associated Press

The electoral success of religious conservatives, expanded roles for Catholic women and the debate over feminist images in Christian churches were the top religion stories in 1994.

In a poll of members of the Religion Newswriters Association, the top religion story of the year was the role conservative religious groups such as the Christian Coalition played in getting out voters to contribute to the GOP election landslide. Issues such as abortion and school prayer are expected to be on the agenda of the new Congress.

Ranking No. 2 was the Catholic Church's attempt to define the role of women in the sanctuary. Pope John Paul II ruled out any further discussion of opening the priesthood to women, but the Vatican gave its approval for female altar girls. Meanwhile, the U.S. Catholic bishops in November said women should be encouraged to move into the top ranks of church theologians and administrators.

The fallout over a "Re-Imagining Conference" in 1993 in Minneapolis was the third most important religion story of 1994. Organizers of the feminist conference attended by more than 2,000 people said it was an attempt to challenge women to find new ways to view God and spirituality. But critics claimed it was marked by heresy and goddess worship, and numerous protests and threats to withhold contributions were received at the headquarters of some Protestant denominations.

The story of Paul Hill, a former minister condemned to die for killing an abortion doctor and escort outside a Pensacola, Fla., clinic July 29, was ranked fourth. Hill, who contended he committed a justifiable homicide, also was the first person convicted under a new federal law protecting clinics.

Rounding out the top five was the forward progess of the historic peace accord between Israel and the PLO. The Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to PLO leader Yasser Arafat, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres. In June, Israel and the Vatican established full diplomatic relations.

The Church of England's historic ordination of 32 women priests at Bristol Cathedral on March 12 ranked sixth on the list of the top religion stories. The decision to ordain women priests won wide acceptance, but also drew protests. In the United States, Episcopal Bishop Clarence C. Pope Jr. of Fort Worth, Texas, announced he is planning to move to the Roman Catholic Church after he retires Jan. 1.

The murder-suicide of 53 disciples of a doomsday sect, the Order of the Solar Temple, ranked seventh. Forty-eight bodies were discovered Oct. 5 in two burned-out Alpine chalets and a farmhouse in two remote Swiss villages. Five other bodies were discovered shortly before in an apartment in Canada belonging to the cult leaders.

Sexual abuse issues in the Catholic Church ranked eighth. Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of Chicago said he was "totally vindicated" after he was dropped from a sexual abuse lawsuit. In November, a committee of bishops issued a report saying the church should put victims first in policies on sex abuse. Faced with dozens of lawsuits, the Archdiocese of Santa Fe, N.M., expressed concern about the possibility of bankruptcy.

In ninth place was two Catholic publishing success stories: Pope John Paul II's best-selling "Crossing the Threshold of Hope" and the new English-language version of the Catechism of the Catholic Church.

Religious involvement in the United Nations population conference in Cairo was No. 10. Catholic and Muslim delegates expressed concerns about language on abortion and sexual morality. The plan developed in Cairo referred to unsafe abortion as a major public health concern, but said reproductive health should conform to the laws and religious, ethical and cultural values of a country.

In other voting, the pope was judged to be the religion newsmaker of the year, and the Episcopal House of Bishops was the top vote-getter for the Into the Darkness Award for attempting to keep secret drafts of its sexuality statement.

Thirty-seven religion writers picked the top 10 stories from a list of 50 choices compiled by Bill Thorkelson, a free-lance religion writer from Minneapolis and a former RNA president.

Ministry grows after accident

NEW CONCORD, Ky. (AP) — The work that two young church leaders were doing with a bus ministry didn't die with them a year ago; it is being carried on by others as a tribute to them.

Bryan and Carol Luffman were delivering Christmas packages to underprivileged children last year when their church bus was hit head-on by another vehicle.

The church bus burst into flames, and both died in the accident. The Christmas packages also were destroyed.

A day after the crash, people throughout the area donated money, clothing and food to the 11 needy families whose packages the Luffmans were delivering.

A year later, the bus ministry has grown to four buses and a Chevy Suburban to pick up children for events at Blood River Baptist Church.

In January, church members will start tutoring children in schoolwork each Sunday after the morning worship service. Children will eat a lunch prepared by church members and then will start their lessons.

The program is aimed at children who might drop out of school if they aren't encouraged or helped.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Mission planned

Scott A. Hoose, son of Gary and Lauryl Hoose of Midland, has been assigned to the Thailand Bangkok Mission of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints for a two-year voluntary mission beginning January 4, 1995.

A missionary farewell will be held for Hoose at 9 a.m. Sunday (January 1) in the chapel at 2101 Gateway. Visitors are welcome.

Before leaving for Thailand, he will spend two months at the Missionary Training Center in Provo, Utah, where he will learn the Thai language.

Hoose was the 1993 valedictorian of Trinity School in Midland. A National Merit Scholarship recipient, he is now now a sophomore at Texas A&M University. He is an Eagle Scout and a graduate of the church's four-year early-morning seminary program.

Upon completion of his mission assignment, Hoose plans to continue his education in the field of electrical engineering.

■ Church has guest

Jim Fullingim, Music Evangelist from Lubbock, will be at Greenwood Baptist Church on Sunday, January 8, 1995 at both the 9:45 a.m. and 11:00 a.m. Worship Services.

The church is located next to Greenwood School; 12 miles east of the intersection of FM 307 (Cloverdale) and Interstate 20. For more information, please call 682-4188 or 682-3404.

■ Seminar conducted

Former atheist and nationally known scientist John Clayton will conduct a free seminar titled "Does God Exist?" at Sixth and Jackson Church of Christ, 301 E. 6th Street, Odessa, Saturday and Sunday, January 7th and 8th.

The seminar will run 9 a.m.-5 p.m. on Saturday, January 7. On Sunday, January 8, Clayton will speak at 9 a.m. Bible class and 10 a.m. Worship. The final session will be 12:30-1:30 p.m.

A teacher and geologist by profession, Clayton uses charts, slides and fossil displays during his presentations, and he takes questions from the audience at the end of each session.

He has traveled the country since 1969, giving as many as 40 seminars per year.

Clayton holds a master's degree in Chemistry and Psychometry from Indiana University and in Geology and Earth Science from Notre Dame University.

His most recent honors include Distinguished Physics Teacher for the State of Indiana in 1985; S.T.A.R. Instructor for Indiana Department of Public Instruction in 1990 and South Bend Community School Corporation High School Teacher of the Year in 1991.

The seminar is free and open to the public. For more information call the Sixth and Jackson Church of Christ at 332-0926.

■ Night-Out set

A Mother and Daughter Night-Out with Patty Ellis will be held on January 28, 1995 in the fellowship hall of First Baptist Church from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Dessert will be served after Patty speaks.

Young ladies and their mothers will have the unique opportunity to hear the nationally acclaimed speaker, who is a humorous, knowledgeable speaker on mother-daughter relationships and has just published a book called "Girl Power - Making Choices and Taking Control." She has also designed an educational program for teenager girls. Her 8-part video series, "A Friend Like Patty" is currently used in schools throughout the United States.

The event is for girls, fifth through twelfth grades and their mom's and she will provide some very relevant advice to teens trying not to succumb to negative peer pressure and to mothers who are struggling to maintain a close relationship with their daughters.

Tickets will be available at Fannin Terrace beginning January 1 at a price of $5 each. Seating is limited. For more information call Deborah Baty at 570-4209 or 687-3526.

■ Music presented

On Sunday, January 1st First Assembly of God, 100 W. Wadley presents gospel music by The Fox Family at 6:00 p.m.

Dr. Paul Fox is the husband and father of the family, a Chiropractic Physician who had practiced successfully in Florida for seventeen years and gave up his practice and set up their home base in Nashville, Tenn. to sing for a living. They started singing in 1983 in Florida and now appear in civic centers, auditoriums and resorts and churches all across this nation.

Dr. Fox and his wife, Pattie, have seven children, Joy, Paul Jason, Debra, John, Trisha, Jared and Jacob. They have recorded ten albums from old traditional to middle of the road, Southern style music and they are currently on the family record label.

The public is invited. Sammy Hayes is the pastor. For more information call 684-4613.

■ Service scheduled

Redeemer Lutheran Church, 824 E. 18th Street, Odessa, with Rev. Dean Kelm, Senior Pastor, will hold a New Year's Eve worship service with Holy Communion at 7:00 p.m., Saturday, December 31st. On New Year's Day, there will be one worship celebration at 10:00 a.m.

■ Special service set

St. Ann's Spiritual Church, 208 N. Tilden St., will hold a New Year's Eve service starting at 7:30 p.m. and ending at 12:30 p.m.

Everyone is invited. For more information call 682-8616.

■ Ceremony planned

Unity Church of West Texas, 210 E. 12th, Odessa will hold a "Burning Bowl" ceremony December 31st, New Year's Eve. Call the church at 337-7851 for details or more information.

■ Time to be same

On Sunday January 1st, Ranchland Heights Baptist Church's Sunday School and worship services will meet at their regular time.

The church is located at 3203 S. County Rd. 1211,

■ Classes to begin

SAN ANGELO — Bishop Michael Pfeifer, O.M.I., has announced that the diocese is working with Loyola University New Orleans to bring its Institute for Ministry Extension program to San Angelo. "With this program we have the opportunity to offer a Catholic university education in religious education and pastoral studies whereby students may obtain a master's degree," he said.

Classes will begin in the fall of 1995. The site for the program will be Immaculate Heart of Mary Parish, Big Spring. It usually takes around three and a half years for participants to complete the program.

In 1987, the program was thoroughly reviewed by an outside visiting team of scholars and their report indicated that "It is the unanimous and strongly held view of the LIMEX evaluation team that the LIMEX program is an educational enterprise of extraordinary vision, entailing and unparalleled commitment by a major Catholic University in this country to promote the ministerial richness of the life of the Church." Further in the report, the evaluation team observed: "We consider that the present and future potential impact of LIMEX is deepening the base and quality of a cadre of professionally trained and spiritually mature ministers and cannot be exaggerated." It is this latter observation that gives purpose to our own attempt to provide continuing education for people who are called to ministry within the Church and the larger society. We believe that LIMEX offers our diocesan ministers an opportunity for Catholic graduate education and formation that is not readily accessible any other way.

To inform interested people about the LIMEX program and to answer questions and concerns, there will be information sessions at St. Stephen Parish in Midland, 4601 Neely Ave. at 7 p.m. January 26.

The contact person for the Midland/Odessa area is Sr. Doris Moore, St. Mary's Parish, 612 E. 18th, Odessa, phone 332-5334.

■ Woman to speak

On January 28, 1995 at Fannin Terrace Baptist Church from 6:30-8:30 p.m., young ladies and their mothers will have the unique opportunity to hear nationally acclaimed speaker, Patty Ellis.

She is a humorous, knowledgeable speaker on mother-daughter relationships and has just published a book called "Girl Power - Making Choices and Taking Control." She has also designed an educational program for teenager girls. Her 8-part video series, "A Friend Like Patty" is currently used in schools throughout the United States.

A Mother-Daughter Banquet will be held at Fannin Terrace Baptist Church on January 28, 1995. The banquet is for girls, fifth through twelfth grades and their mom's and she will provide some very relevant advice to teens trying not to succumb to negative peer pressure and to mothers who are struggling to maintain a close relationship with their daughters.

Tickets will be available at Fannin Terrace beginning January 1. Seating is limited. For more information call Deborah Baty at 570-4209 or 687-3526.

■ Tree pickup set

The Junior and Senior High Youth Groups of Trinity Presbyterian Church are providing a Christmas Tree pickup service at the low cost of $5. The trees will be mulched and used to enhance, rather than to degrade, our environment. For pickup, please call the church office, 682-2514.

■ Evangelist to speak

ODESSA — Chinese evangelist Nora Lam will speak at 7 p.m. Jan. 6 at Holiday Inn Parkway, 3001 E. Business Loop 20.

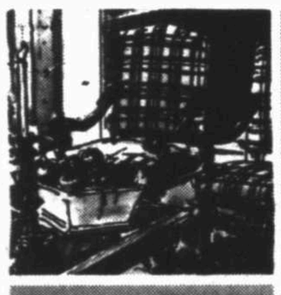

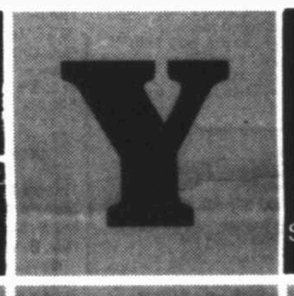

Her life story is portrayed in the movie, "China Cry," which is now in the Top 10 Christian videos in the United States.

A full course banquet dinner will be served. The meal ticket is $9. Registration is required and may be obtained by calling 1-800-551-5400.

Program teaches students, parents alternatives to violence

By Fox Butterfield
N.Y. Times News Service

CHICAGO — The lesson for the day in Ms. Nash's sixth grade class was "dissing" — how children can keep their self-respect when challenged in real life.

Two small boys in baggy sweat shirts were assigned to act out roles from a textbook on what happens when one child insults another.

"Man, you're so dumb you don't know nothing," said Hector, assuming a practiced swagger. Faster than a magician, the second student, Angel, pretended to punch Hector in the face.

The class in the James G. Blaine Elementary School here, a hulking old edifice in a poor neighborhood, laughed knowingly.

"That's right," said Mrs. Nash. "That's what happens when you don't think about the consequences."

The class is part of a pioneering program with 5,000 students in a dozen Chicago-area schools that tries to prevent juvenile violence by teaching young children — and in some cases, their parents — amicable ways to resolve disputes.

Financed by the National Institute of Mental Health, the Chicago project is only one of thousands of anti-violence programs that have sprung up in schools, clinics, churches and neighborhoods around the country in the past few years in response to the epidemic of violence among young people.

A growing number of experts agree that the approach favored by the public and politicians — threatening criminals with longer and longer sentences — has little impact on adolescents, especially those from poor, already-stressed families.

Instead, they say, the best hope lies with early intervention, working with children as young as 6 and their parents to head off antisocial behavior.

"Early aggressive behavior is the single best predictor of later violence and delinquency," said Patrick Tolan, an associate professor of psychiatry and psychology at the University of Illinois in Chicago, who is co-director of the school project here.

He and others said the most worrisome signs of trouble in young children are irritability and impulsiveness and a propensity to fight, lie, cheat, steal or be cruel to animals.

With such children the earlier you intervene the better, said Gerald Patterson, a psychologist and co-founder of the Oregon Social Learning Center in Eugene, an agency that is widely respected for its work with antisocial youth. Treatment is most effective on children between 4 and 9 years old, he said, while those older than 11 are much more difficult to reach. "After 14, it is extremely hard to make any changes," he said.

The most popular violence prevention programs have been "conflict resolution" curriculums introduced in schools in the past few years, not only in Chicago, but in hundreds of places including New York, Boston, Washington, Tucson, Ariz., and the Los Angeles area.

Whether these programs, some of them sold commercially in the form of textbooks and videos, have any real benefit remains a matter of debate, since few have been scientifically evaluated.

"I think what they can change is fighting in the cafeteria line," said Terrie Moffitt, professor of psychology at the University of Wisconsin. "But that is very different from changing violence on the street corner."

But Dr. Deborah Prothrow-Stith, a professor at the Harvard School of Public Health and a developer of one of the most widely used curriculums, said it was wrong to dismiss the school programs.

"I think violence is a learned behavior and getting along is a skill, just like basketball," she said. "You need to practice."

The problem confronting any simple prevention strategy, like the school curriculums, said John Cuie, a professor of psychology at Duke University, is that violence has complex roots.

It can arise out of living in a poor neighborhood, where violent crime, unemployment and drugs are rampant. It can spring from growing up in a family where the parents are abusive or neglectful. Or it can grow out of the difficulties an impulsive child has on entering first grade, and facing the necessity of sitting still and learning to read.

"A successful intervention needs to attack all these factors at once," Cuie said, and continue over many years.

He has developed one of the most highly regarded prevention programs, Families and Schools Together, or FAST Track, which is being used in 50 schools in Durham, N.C., Nashville, Seattle and rural western Pennsylvania.

Cuie's program combines training for parents, including visits to the homes by professionally trained staff members, and special enrichment classes for selected students, the 10 percent seen as most troubled by their teachers and parents.

The very thing that puts these children at risk — that they become angry easily, that they don't use language as effectively as other children — makes them harder to help."

There is as yet no hard data on the results of the Duke and Chicago projects, both of which started in 1991, but those involved in the projects say they believe they are slowly making some progress.

Financed by the National Institute of Mental Health, the Chicago project is only one of thousands of anti-violence programs that have sprung up in schools, clinics, churches and neighborhoods around the country in the past few years in response to the epidemic of violence among young people.

Fireworks ban lifted in Midland County

EFFECTIVE SEPTEMBER 1ST, 1994

Fireworks fans who endured the Fourth of July without the normal show of firecrackers, sparklers and Roman candles can now light up in Midland County without fear.

The fireworks ban was lifted automatically September 1st as per Country Commissioners order.

Midland County Commissioners and Fire Department officials were glad to see the nice rain fall earlier this week. So were local firework stands, which are open until midnight, Sunday.

With the ban lifted the public can once again enjoy their favorite fireworks without fear of violations of fines.

Firework stands can remain open until midnight Sunday for the New Year selling season, but Midland County residents can legally shoot fireworks now year round provided you are outside the city limits.

All the favorite fireworks including rockets and roman candles may be purchased and shot.

Be careful, have fun and be safe.

Ector County Commissioners unanimously approved measures also lifting the ban on fireworks, conceding to arguments, from the owner of a local fireworks shop that once dry and dangerous conditions have long since passed.

"I agree. If conditions are good enough to allow outdoor burning, they are good enough for setting off firecrackers," said Ector County Judge Jim Jordan in their August 22nd meeting.

Emmitt rests

IRVING — Dallas Cowboys running back Emmitt Smith is spending this off week doing conditioning work and avoiding taking hits on his injured left hamstring. But Smith's leg was tested more than he expected in the Atlanta airport Saturday, several hours after he missed the first game of his career due to an injury.

Holiday happy for Bulldogs

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Canyon guard Lindy Lombard (23) tries to get past Georgetown defender Natalie Tucker in the girls championship game at the Byron Johnston Holiday Classic Friday at Chaparral Center. Class 4A defeated 5A Georgetown, which was listed in USA Today as the No. 5 team in the nation, 64-35. The Midland High boys defeated El Paso Riverside 81-75 for the boys title.

■ Midland High boys claim second tourney title in 1994 with an 81-75 win over El Paso Riverside in the Byron Johnston Holiday Classic.

By Bill Petitt
Staff Writer

Midland High forward John Marc Sanon cannot help but think back to 10 games ago when the Bulldogs fell by a single point to El Paso Riverside. The 79-78 setback stuck in the paw of the senior forward.

Teams, in the heat of battle, tend to talk a little smack to one another on the court. In the prior meeting it was smack, crackle, pop for 32 minutes.

So for Sanon it was extra sweet to pull out an 81-75 win for the boys championship in the 1994 Byron Johnston Holiday Classic at the Chap Center Friday evening.

Earlier, fans were treated to the upset of the year in Texas high school girls basketball with Class 4A Canyon routing previously undefeated, nationally-ranked Class 5A Georgetown 64-35 to claim the girls title.

"It was my best Christmas present this year," said Sanon after the game where he scored a career-high 29 points. "They talk quite a bit on the floor, they did it in El Paso and they were doing it tonight."

Sanon scored 22 second-half points as Midland weathered a furious Riverside rally that saw a 14-point Bulldog lead dwindle to three points, 78-75, with 18 seconds to play.

After a Riverside timeout, Sanon stepped in front of a Ruben Diaz inbounds pass and then made one free throw to up the lead to four, 79-75, with 12 seconds to play. He then reounded a Riverside miss and sank two free throws after being fouled to seal the win.

"We got a little cocky with the lead and lost our patience and concentration," said Sanon.

"I wasn't pleased with the way we played," said Midland coach Jack Stepehenson. "We did what we had to do. We started off good early, but then we got into foul trouble and I did a poor coaching job for letting us get into their game.

"But we showed some character late in the game and it sets up a big game Tuesday for us with Lee."

Midland jumped out to a nine-point lead in the first quarter, thanks to eight points from Jumon Hailey who finished the night with 17, but Sanon was the go-to guy all night.

"They kept giving me the shot in the lane," said Sanon, who also grabbed a game-high 10 rebounds. "I guess they didn't know how to defend it."

In the girl's final, Canyon played giant killer with a stunning 29 point win over Georgetown, the fifth ranked team in the nation according to USA Today.

Welcome to first day of 2nd season

■ NFL Roundup

Joe Montana, tired of the Dan Marino comparisons and talk of retirement, has just about weathered the storm of pregame hype.

The Green Bay Packers, faced with the prospect of stopping Barry Sanders, were hoping for stormy weather.

Welcome to Day 1 of the NFL's second season.

It will be Montana and his Kansas City Chiefs visiting Marino's Miami Dolphins in an AFC matchup today of future Hall of Fame quarterbacks.

In today's other opening-round playoff game, the Packers entertain the Detroit Lions, hoping for conditions the late John Facenda made famous as "the frozen tundra of Green Bay's Lambeau Field."

The first round continues Sunday with New England at Cleveland in the AFC and Chicago at Minnesota in the NFC.

Montana spent the past week fending off the inevitable comparisons between himself and Marino. Asked flatly who was better, he came up with an answer that might displease his legions of fans.

"He's done a lot more and accomplished a lot more throwing the ball than I have," the man with four Super Bowl rings said of the man with none. "A lot of that goes along with the type of offenses you're in.

"We both have our strengths."

Montana figures any comparison between quarterbacks is an exercise in silliness anyway.

EL PASO — John Mackovic saw his hopes for rekindling the Texas Longhorns' winning bowl tradition resting in the hands of flying, pinwheeling Priest Holmes. And at the end, Mackovic was smiling.

Holmes capped a four-touchdown performance with a diving, somersaulting 5-yard scoring run to give Texas a 35-31 victory over No. 19 North Carolina in the Sun Bowl on Friday.

"He was up there in the stratosphere," Mackovic said of the final TD run, which capped Texas' comeback from a 31-21 deficit.

Tech brothers Thomas hope to halt Trojans

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — The brothers Thomas don't say much. They do their talking on the football field.

Senior Bart made All-Southwest Conference as a defensive back. Junior Zach made The Associated Press second team All-America as a linebacker.

Neither is particularly swift afoot. But they are football smart and West Texas tough. They love collisions.

If the Texas Tech Red Raiders upset No. 21 ranked Southern California on Jan. 2 in the Cotton Bowl, it could be because the Trojan offense couldn't handle the brothers Thomas.

Bears, Cougars enjoy Alamo city but ready for game

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — After a week of Mexican food, the River Walk and about all the Alamo Bowl pre-game events they can handle, Baylor and Washington State are ready to play a little football.

"Everyone enjoyed San Antonio," Baylor coach Chuck Reedy said Friday. "They're all getting a little bit restless. I think it's time to play."

The two teams won't be waiting much longer.

Baylor takes on No. 24 Washington State at 7 p.m. today at the Alamodome in the second annual Alamo Bowl.

Washington State coach Mike Price, whose Cougars are a 5½-point favorite, agreed it's time to turn pre-game talk into game-time action.

"All that hype only lasts a split second," Price said. "It's just football, baby. It's just me against that guy and let's go after it. We can't wait for Saturday night."

Both coaches are predicting a low-scoring game.

"We have two coaches saying that. It'll probably be 50-49," Price joked.

"We've been known to bring out the best in offenses,"

Duke hands loss to ACC rival Ga. Tech

Associated Press

HONOLULU — Duke's inside duo of Cherokee Parks and Erik Meek combined for 33 points and 25 rebounds Friday to lead the seventh-ranked Blue Devils to a 76-69 victory over No. 17 Georgia Tech in the fifth-place game of the Rainbow Classic.

■ Top 25

It was the first of at least three games between the Atlantic Coast Conference members, with the first regular-season matchup on Jan. 7 at Atlanta.

The Blue Devils (8-2), who lost to Iowa 81-71 in the opening round, struggled at the start, missing seven of their first nine shots from the field in falling behind 12-4.

No. 8 Connecticut 88, Northeastern 70

HARTFORD, Conn. — Donny Marshall scored 26 points to lead Connecticut to victory over Northeastern.

It was the first matchup between Connecticut coach Jim Calhoun and Dave Leitao, a former Connecticut assistant who is in his first season at Northeastern.

No. 9 Maryland 98, Loyola 77

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Johnny Rhodes made two of Maryland's school-record 11 3-pointers in a 22-0 second-half run that propelled the Terrapins past winless American University.

Rhodes scored 8 points during the decisive surge, which followed a sluggish first half in which the Terrapins (10-2) trailed by as many as 7 points.

No. 13 Florida 87, St. Francis, Pa., 72

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Florida, led by Dan Cross' 21 points and seven assists, beat St. Francis, Pa.

Florida (6-2) was ranked No. 8 before losing 68-67 to Jacksonville Dec. 21 in its last game.

St. Francis (4-4), a member of the Northeast Conference, was led by Terrence Martin and Rob Wooster with 14 points apiece.

No. 15 Michigan St. 70, Long Beach St. 60

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Jamie Feick scored 15 of his 16 points in the second half as Michigan State struggled to a victory over Long Beach State in the championship game of the Spartan Classic.

Michigan State (7-1) won its sixth straight title in its tournament.

Long Beach State (4-2) trailed just 35-31 at the half, and quickly cut the margin to two when Joe McNaull opened the second half with a basket.

No. 18 Wake Forest 95, Marshall 59

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Tim Duncan made all six of his shots, grabbed 15 rebounds and blocked eight shots as Wake Forest beat Marshall.

No. 22 New Mexico St. 85, Bethune-Cookman 55

LAS CRUCES, N.M. — Clyde Jordan scored 17 points and pulled down 16 rebounds to lead New Mexico State to an victory over Bethune-Cookman.

The Aggies (9-2) took the lead for good with 11:24 remaining in the first half and extended it to 36-23 at halftime.

open 13-footer at the buzzer, leaving Wilkens tied with Red Auerbach at 938 career wins. Smith missed all eight of his shots from the field in the game.

More than a third of Wilkens' victories — 316 in all — came during his seven years as Cleveland's coach. He had tied Auerbach with an overtime win against San Antonio on Thursday night.

Spurs 115, Bullets 101

LANDOVER, Md. — Chuck Person, making his first start of the season, made a franchise-record eight 3-pointers and had 27 points as San Antonio beat Washington.

Person was starting in place of forward Sean Elliott, who dislocated his right index finger Thursday in Atlanta. Person hit five treys, also a franchise record, in the first half as San Antonio wiped away an early Washington lead.

David Robinson added a game-high 30 points and nine rebounds for the Spurs, who improved to 5-1 against Atlantic Division opponents and won for the eighth time in nine games.

Pacers 96, Nets 79

INDIANAPOLIS — Derrick McKey scored a season-high 21 points as Indiana defeated undermanned New Jersey.

The Pacers extended their home winning streak to nine, topping the Nets for the eighth time in the last 11 meetings. Indiana has now won five in a row at home against New Jersey, which is 4-12 on the road this season.

Benoit Benjamin led the Nets with 21 points and 12 rebounds.

Magic 116, Clippers 105, OT

ORLANDO, Fla. — Orlando narrowly averted the biggest upset of the season, scoring the first nine points in overtime to defeat Los Angeles.

Shaquille O'Neal scored 38 points and Anfernee Hardaway added 36 with 10 assists and five rebounds as the Magic ran their home record to 13-0.

AP Laserphoto

Atlanta coach Lenny Wilkens is still tied with Red Auerbach for most NBA coaching victories after a loss to his old team Cleveland.

Knicks 90, Timberwolves 81

MINNEAPOLIS — Patrick Ewing matched his season high with 30 points and New York overcame a sluggish start with smothering defense for a victory over Minnesota in Pat Riley's 1,000th game as an NBA head coach.

The Knicks won their third in a row after a five-game losing streak, their longest slump since 1990 and the worst ever for Riley.

Nuggets 118, Trail Blazers 114

DENVER — Reserve guard Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf scored 26 points to lead Denver to a win over Portland.

The win avenged a 104-93 Nuggets loss in Portland on Thursday night. Clyde Drexler scored 39 points for Portland in a fast-paced game that went down to the final seconds.

Celtics 124, Pistons 107

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Dominique Wilkins had 32 points and Rick Fox scored 12 of his 14 in the fourth quarter to lead Boston to a victory over Detroit.

Boston outrebounded the Pistons 41-21. The league record for fewest rebounds by a team in a game is 20, accomplished twice, most recently by the Buffalo Braves against Houston on February 17, 1974.

Bulls 133, Heat 88

CHICAGO — B.J. Armstrong scored 26 points — including 5-of-5 from 3-point range as Chicago made a team-record 15 — and the Bulls posted their most decisive victory this season, with a win over Miami.

Scottie Pippen had 17 points and nine assists, and he got plenty of help — Steve Kerr with 17 points, Ron Harper 14, Toni Kukoc 13,

Kings 85, 76ers 82

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Mitch Richmond had 21 points, including two free throws with 4.5 seconds left, and Sacramento held the 76ers to 11 points in the second quarter as the Kings defeated Philadelphia.

Walt Williams added 20 points and 11 rebounds for the Kings, who won their fourth straight at home.

After Richmond, who also hit a pair of key 3-pointers in the closing minutes, made the free throws, Dana Barros missed a 35-foot shot for the 76ers at the final buzzer.

Mavericks 110, Warriors 94

DALLAS — Roy Tarpley came off the bench to score 16 of his 22 points during the first half and Dallas went on to match last season's victory total with their 13th win, with a victory over Golden State.

The Mavericks, winners of 24 games over their previous two seasons, did not get their 13th victory last season until April 24, their 82nd game of the season. Dallas, which broke a four-game losing streak, enters the new year above .500 for the first time since 1989-90.

Jason Kidd came within one assist of recording his first career triple-double. The Mavericks rookie point guard finished with 11 points, 12 rebounds and nine assists to help the Mavericks offset a big night from Golden State center Rony Seikaly, whose season-high 38 points were two off his career high.

Charlotte 101, Milwaukee 94

MILWAUKEE — Scott Burrell and Larry Johnson scored 25 points apiece as Charlotte overcame a slow start to beat Milwaukee.

The Bucks, who had a two-game winning streak snapped, were led by Todd Day with 21 points and Glenn Robinson with 16. Milwaukee has now lost 15 of its last 19 games.

Lakers 127, Suns 112

PHOENIX — Former Sun Cedric Ceballos' 37 points helped Los Angeles end Phoenix's franchise-record 25-game home winning streak with a victory.

Cedric Ceballos, dealt by Phoenix to the Los Angeles Lakers in the offseason, and Nick Van Exel led a record-setting show of 3-point shooting.

Rockets 111, Jazz 103

SALT LAKE CITY — Hakeem Olajuwon had 37 points and 12 rebounds as Houston won its fourth straight, ending Utah's eight-game winning streak.

Olajuwon scored 10 points in the fourth quarter, including a three-point play with 7:24 to play that thwarted a Jazz rally and put the Rockets ahead 91-85.

Robert Horry hit two 3-pointers in the last 4:40 to keep the Jazz at a safe distance, the last with 2:29 to play, which put Houston ahead 104-98.

Wilbert leads Aggies to rally win over Holy Cross

Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M's Joe Wilbert scored 25 of his 27 points in the second half and grabbed 14 rebounds as the Aggies came back to beat Holy Cross.

■ SWC

The Crusaders led 42-37 at halftime, then Wilbert and Tony McGinnis led a rally for Texas A&M (5-7).

McGinnis, who had 20 points, scored a basket to give A&M its first second-half lead with 12 minutes left, 57-56.

Rice 70, Kent State 57

HOUSTON — Kevin Nanney scored 19 points and Jesse Cravens contributed 18 to lead the Rice to a victory over Kent State.

Rice (4-4) snapped a three-game losing streak. Adam Peakes added 14 points and 12 rebounds for the Owls.

Colorado 85, Houston 66

HOUSTON — Donnie Boyce had 21 points, 9 rebounds and 4 steals, leading Colorado past Houston.

Mack Puck added a season-high 19 points as the Buffs (6-2).

No. 10 Arizona 88, Texas Tech 82

TUCSON, Ariz. — Damon Stoudamire unleashed a second-half defensive assault as Arizona pushed past Texas Tech to claim its 10th straight Fiesta Bowl Classic title.

Stoudamire, who scored 27 points, made a free throw to crack a 48-48 tie with 16:52 left, then hit a 3-pointer as Arizona (9-2) used a man-to-man press to set up a 10-point run.

Women

Arkansas St. 85, No. 23 Texas A&M 80

ORLANDO, Fla. — Evevetta Crawford scored 28 points to lead Arkansas State to an upset victory over Texas A&M.

Tiffany Mitchell added 24 points for Arkansas, combining with Crawford for more than half of the team's scoring.

No. 17 Kansas 85, Baylor 68

WACO — Angela Aycock scored 24 points and Charisse Sampson 20, leading Kansas past Baylor.

Kansas (9-2) held a 35-30 halftime lead before the Lady Bears (7-3) went cold, hitting 38 percent from the field in the second half.

Keshana Ledet added 10 points and seven rebounds, and Tamecka Dixon chipped in with 11 points and six boards for Kansas.

Volunteers roll over Virginia Tech in Gator

Associated Press

■ Bowl Roundup

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — James Stewart ran for three touchdowns and threw a 19-yard scoring pass to Kendrick Jones as Tennessee rolled to a 45-23 Gator Bowl victory Friday night over turnover-plagued Virginia Tech.

Both teams finished the season with 8-4 records, but the unranked Vols won their last five games — scoring 162 points in their last three wins — while No. 17 Tech lost three of its last four. The 68 points scored by the two teams was a Gator Bowl record.

When Dwayne Thomas scored for Tech on a 1-yard run with 5:17 left in the half, it ended a string of 148 consecutive points by the Vols dating back to the second half of their victory over Memphis State in mid-November.

Stewart, the Vols' career rushing leader, scored twice on 1-yard runs and hit Jones on a halfback option pass that gave Tennessee a 35-7 lead with 2:13 left in the half. His final TD, a 4-yard run early in the fourth period, gave the Vols a 42-16 lead.

Peyton Manning's near-perfect passing and an 76-yard run by Jones sparked the Vols to a 21-0 advantage in the first 17 minutes.

Manning, son of former Mississippi and NFL great Archie Manning, led the Vols to seven wins in their last eight games after taking over as the starting quarterback following season-ending injuries to Jerry Colquitt and Todd Helton.

Heritage Bowl

S. Carolina St. 31, Grambling 27

ATLANTA — Marvin Marshall accounted for four touchdowns as South Carolina State ended the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference's Heritage Bowl frustration with a 31-27 comeback victory over Grambling on Friday.

It was the eighth victory in a row for the Bulldogs (10-2), who handed Grambling (9-3) its third consecutive loss in a season the Tigers hoped to use to get its celebrated coach, Eddie Robinson, his 400th victory.

Robinson, 75, will return for his 53rd season at Grambling next year three shy of the milestone.

Marshall, State's cat-quick 175-pound quarterback, scored on runs of 2, 3 and 1 yards and connected with Kelly Craig on a 2-yard scoring pass with 8:13 remaining to end the scoring.

Holiday Bowl

No. 20 Michigan 24, No. 10 Colorado State 14

SAN DIEGO — Todd Collins threw for two touchdowns and Tyrone Wheatley ran for another as Michigan benefited from excellent field position to overwhelm Colorado State.

Michigan (8-4) had to drive only 17 yards for each of its final two touchdowns, a 16-yard pass from Collins to Mercury Hayes and a 3-yard run by Wheatley.

The Wolverines, playing in a bowl game for a 20th straight year, extended their postseason winning streak to three and evened their all-time bowl record at 13-13. Michigan's only other Holiday Bowl appearance was 10 years ago when it lost 24-17 to national champion Brigham Young.

Western Athletic Conference champion Colorado State, playing in only the third bowl in school history, finished at 10-2.

NFL: Montana doesn't like comparisons

(From 1C)

"It's hard to compare quarterbacks," he said. "You don't play the same teams. You don't play in the same offense. There have to be a certain amount of constants, and there are none."

He also rejects the notion he's the quarterback everybody else is measured against, including Marino.

"I don't think that's necessarily the case," he said.

The most intriguing facet of the Montana-Marino matchup is the possibility that every game the Chiefs play in this postseason could be Montana's last.

The 39-year-old Montana has denied published reports he plans to retire.

"I've said all along that I signed a three-year contract and I plan to honor it," said Montana, in his second year with the Chiefs.

The game between the AFC East champion Dolphins (10-6) and the wild-card Chiefs (9-7) will be their third playoff meeting.

Despite the presence of Marino and Montana, the game doesn't figure to generate the suspense of Miami's first postseason encounter with Kansas City. But few do.

On Christmas Day 1971, Super Bowl-bound Miami beat Kansas City 27-24 on Garo Yepremian's field goal in the second overtime period, ending the longest game in pro football history.

Minus All-Pro wide receiver Sterling Sharpe, the Packers would like to avoid a long day of their own thanks to Sanders.

The Packers are hosting their first home playoff game in a non-strike season since the Ice Bowl of 1967. That game, in which Bart Starr's quarterback sneak and "the block" by guard Jerry Kramer beat Dallas in the final seconds, served as inspiration for Facenda's "NFL Films" rhetoric.

The weather doesn't figure to be that bad for Green Bay, with forecasters calling for a windy afternoon with highs in the mid-20s, a 60 percent chance of snow and a wind-chill factor near zero.

Green Bay linebacker Fred Strickland said that might be exactly what the Packers need to curtail Sanders, the NFL rushing champion with 1,883 yards. He gained 188 yards in Detroit's 34-31 win over the Packers at the Silverdome Dec. 4, but had only 47 yards on 15 carries when the teams met Nov. 6 at Milwaukee.

"I guess cold weather and a little snow," Strickland said with a smile when asked what he considered perfect weather for the game. "Get him (Sanders) on some slick ground so he can't make those cuts like he does on the turf."

The Lions have been asking about the weather all week.

"How's it going to be Saturday (today)?" tackle Lomas Brown inquired during a conference call Wednesday, when the forecast called for a 26-degree day with clear skies.

"So, it's not going to be too bad. Don't have them change. Don't summon up the frozen tundra. We don't need that this year."

The Packers will be playing without Sharpe, out for the season — and perhaps his career — and facing surgery for a serious spinal injury.

Emmitt rests hamstring, teammates nurse injuries

■ Cowboy RB Emmitt Smith tests leg with last-minute airport jaunt during holidays.

IRVING (AP) — Dallas Cowboys running back Emmitt Smith is spending this off week doing conditioning work and avoiding taking hits on his injured left hamstring.

But Smith's leg was tested more than he expected in the Atlanta airport Saturday, several hours after he missed the first game of his career due to an injury.

"We landed in terminal A and I had to run all the way over to terminal D to catch the flight because the train was broke," Smith said. "I literally had to jog through the airport to catch the plane.

"The leg was hurting bad, but I made the flight."

Smith, who was injured Dec. 19 against New Orleans, has another week to let his leg heal. The Cowboys are off until Jan. 8, when they'll host an undetermined team in the second round of the NFC playoffs.

Several other Cowboys, including quarterback Troy Aikman and receiver Michael Irvin, also are nursing nagging injuries.

No matter what, though, all three offensive stars will be in the lineup as Dallas tries taking the final three steps towards an unprecedented third straight Super Bowl title.

"When you're nicked up and banged up, it's kind of hard to go out and play your best," Smith said. "Hopefully, in about another seven, eight or maybe 10 days, with some rest and a lot more treatment, a lot of guys can be pretty close to 100 percent."

As for his own condition, Smith said his leg is "feeling OK. It's definitely not ready, though."

This year, Smith ran 368 times for 1,484 yards. That was two less yards on 85 more carries than he had last season when he won his third straight NFL rushing title.

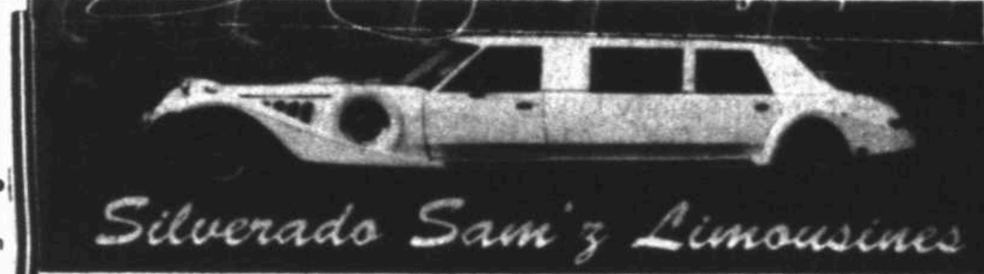

Part of the reason for that drop-off was the season-ending injury of Erik Williams and several key free agent losses.

"I think if you ask people, across the board, talent-wise, we are not equal to what we were last year on the right side," center Mark Stepnoski said. "But, the fact we've done as well as we have, the drop off hasn't been as noticeable."

SUN: Longhorns top 19th-ranked Tar Heels

(From 1C)

When Holmes came down in the end zone, he handed the Texas coach his first bowl victory with the Longhorns. "It feels real good," Mackovic said.

The Texas coach had talked all week about wanting to get the Longhorns back to their bowl-winning ways.

Texas was making its 35th bowl appearance and got victory No. 17. But the Sun Bowl marked the Longhorns' first bowl since 1991 and only their third in the last nine years. "We're happy to have a new trophy for our case," Mackovic said.

He can thank Holmes for that.

Holmes, voted the game's MVP, turned in his best performace of the year as he rushed 27 times for 161 yards against a defense that had only been giving up an average of 115.2 yards on the ground all season.

With less than two minutes remaining and the Longhorns facing first and goal at the 5, Holmes took the ball and sped around the right end. Faced with a wall of defenders, he launched into the air at about the 4, was hit once and tumbled head over heels into the end zone for the winning score.

"I didn't know where I was when I jumped," said Holmes.

He also tied Thurman Thomas' 1987 record for most rushing touchdowns in a Sun Bowl game.

"It's just an honor to be mentioned in the same sentence as Thurman Thomas," said Holmes.

Holmes' running eclipsed a passing attack that had accounted for most of Texas' success this year. The Longhorns (8-4) racked up 229 yards on the ground, and James Brown threw for 196 yards on 15-of-31 passing with an interception and no TDs.

The Tar Heels (8-4), meantime, managed 180 ground yards, down from their average of 226.9, but amassed 298 yards through the air.

Mike Thomas was 23-of-39 for 298 yards and two TDs for North Carolina, including a 50-yard touchdown to Octavus Barnes.

"I'm personally as disappointed s I've ever been," North Carolina coach Mack Brown said. "I felt like we had an opportunity to win throughout the game."

The Longhorns led 21-17 at halftime, but fell behind as their offense sputtered. They trailed 31-21 after Marcus Wall, returning punts for the first time in his career, rattled off a 82-yard scoring return with 13:35 remaining and Thomas followed with the 50-yard TD pass to Barnes.

But with 6:35 left, Holmes scored his third TD to cut the margin to three points. Holmes took the ball at the Tar Heels 9 and raced around the left end, outdistancing the grasping hands of one defender then leaping away from another at the goal line.

North Carolina, trailing most of the game, put together a quick drive with time running out in the first half, cutting the Texas lead to 21-17 with just 22 seconds remaining. The Tar Heels drove 74 yards in just under two minutes, assisted in part by a 15-yard personal foul against Texas that turned a 6-yard pass into a 21-yard gain.

Seven plays later, Thomas hooked up with Wall for a 8-yard TD pass to close out the first-half scoring.

North Carolina took the opening kickoff and drove 78 yards in 10 plays to take a 7-0 lead. Curtis Johnson, who led UNC in rushing with 74 yards on 17 carries, capped the drive with an 11-yard burst up the middle.

ALAMO: Baylor still reeling from Texas loss

(From 1C)

quipped Reedy, whose team still is reeling from a Thanksgiving Day 63-35 loss to Texas that cost Baylor the Southwest Conference title and a trip to the Cotton Bowl.

The Bears (7-4, 4-3 in SWC) finished in a five-way tie for the conference championship. Washington State (7-4, 5-3 in Pac-10) ended up fourth in the Pacific 10.

Price said the key to the game for Washington State will be how well its special teams and offense perform. Quarterback Chad Davis, a redshirt sophomore transfer from Oklahoma, leads the inconsistent Cougars offense, which Price said has shown improvement.

Crucial for Baylor will be how its defense and special teams play and how the younger Bears, led by freshman quarterback Jeff Watson, adjust to Washington State's experience, Reedy said.

"I think our guys are just as big, for the most part, probably just as talented. But a lot of our guys are freshmen. They're going to have to mature in a hurry," he said. "They're going to be out there with a bunch of men."

Washington State's defense is ranked second nationally and is dominated by senior standouts like linebacker Mark Fields, defensive end DeWayne Patterson and tackles Don Sasa and Chad Eaton.

One of Price's worries is that the emotion surrounding the seniors' final game together could be a distraction. Some of the senior players have been together five years.

"It means a lot to the players. It means a lot to me," Price said. "It's going to be an emotional time for those kids."

But Price said the Cougars are ready for the New Year's Eve contest.

"We're starting to focus in, and we're getting antsy for the game just like (the Bears) are," he said. "I think it's going to be a very competitive game."

TECH: Brothers want matching Cotton rings

(From 1C)

"Every herd has a bell cow," said Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes. "Zach Thomas has great instincts. He's not tall and fast like some people. But he's a perfect college linebacker. His brother is the same way. He's always around the football. They're a great pair. Neither one of them says a lot. They just play hard."

The Thomas brothers honed their skills competing against each other.

"We would compete at everything, ping pong, you name it," Bart Thomas said. "We even boxed each other. In the later years he kind of caught up with me. It wasn't as much fun to box him then. Zach hit back. Hard."

Zach Thomas said he relishes the tag of being a "blue collar" player.

"I guess I'm not the greatest talent around but I watch so much film it's pitiful," Zach said. "I'm one of those kind of guys who has to outsmart the other team. If you play intelligently and you are around a bunch of guys who say "we" instead of "I" then you're OK. We have a lot of "we" on this team."

Zach has a bone to pick with those who say Tech backed into the Cotton Bowl because unbeaten Texas A&M couldn't play due to NCAA probation.

"The way I look at it it's like a guy got caught with three aces up his sleeve," Thomas said. "You can't do that. Our 6-5 record won't matter if we beat USC. People won't remember anything but the fact we won the Cotton Bowl.

"I think we'll do OK. We've played good against good teams like Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas A&M. We were playing pretty good at the end of the year."

Zach said it will be a special game because he figures it will be the last time he'll play with brother Bart, who came back to Tech this year after a year off while he attended to personal problems.

"I guess this will be the last one," Zach said. "It would be great to go out with a Cotton Bowl ring. And it would be great to do it with Bart."

Bart said "this makes it all worth while. Playing your last game in a bowl with your brother. It's a perfect way to go out."

HOLIDAY: Sanon gets career-high 29

(From 1C)

And the score does not tell of the domination by the Lady Eagles.

Canyon connected on 11 of its first 12 shots in the game and bolted out to 22-7 first quarter lead and never looked back.

Canyon coach Joe Lombard and his assistants could do little else but smile and look like they had just hit the pick six when the halftime buzzer sounded and their team led 39-14 amid a standing ovation.

Canyon led 52-16 at one point in the third quarter.

"I don't know how we could play any better," said Lombard, whose team shot an amazing 73.9 percent from the field in the first half. "Our focus was extra intense tonight and I think that their ranking had something to do with that.

"In a tournament sometimes you can let down after an emotional game like they had against Midland last night."

In other action, Midland Lee's boys had a case of the three-ver. The Rebels canned nine three point field goals in their 62-60 overtime win over Hilton Head, S.C.

The three-point fever was rampant on the Lee team as everyone that shot a three made at least one.

Lee shot more three pointers (32) than two-point field goals (21) in the game.

"I thought the last six minutes — the two to end regulation and the overtime period — we played pretty well," said Lee coach Jon House.

Mark Holly scored 12 points, but stole a pass with four seconds left in overtime and then sank a pair of free throws for the win.

"I thought we just took the shots our offense gave us all night," said Holly, about the run of threes in the game. "I think we are just getting our chemistry together. We should be ready for district."

Midland High's girls rebounded from a loss to Georgetown the night before with a hard-fought 66-49 win over Plainview.

MHS avoided a possible land mine in the schedule after the emotional game the night before and with district rival Midland Lee to come on Tuesday.

"This is just like an air pocket with the big game on Tuesday in front of us," said Midland coach Jim Raughton. "I thought the girls, like always, came out and played hard."

The Lady Dogs used a balanced attack with Amy Alcala scoring 13, Laura Childress 12 and Jamie Rand and Ogonna Merritt with 11 each.

The Lee girls could not overcome sluggish second and third quarters in a six-point loss to Amarillo Tascosa.

Lee led 22-14 with 4:38 to play in the second quarter on a basketball by Woodard, but Tascosa went on an 18-4 run over the 6:49 to take a 10-point lead, 36-26 after two free throws by Katy Walker with 5:59 left in the third quarter.

Walker, who scored 13 points for Tascosa, reeled off nine straight points to begin the second half as Lee hit just six of 25 field goals (24 percent) in the second and third period.

LHS committed 21 turnovers against Tascosa's man-to-man and half court trap defenses.

Lee rallied late to trim the lead to three, 50-47, on a basket by Jamie Rhoads with 1:14 to play, but Tascosa made five of six free throws in the final 45 seconds to seal the win.

Krissy Woodard led Lee with 22 points, nine rebounds and two blocks.

NOTES: Roswell's Larry Ayuso shattered seven tournament record during his three-game performance this week. Ayuso, a 6-foot-2 senior guard set single game records in scoring (40 versus Wichita Falls Rider), and field goals made (13 versus Rider). He also set new tournament records in points scored (103 in three games), field goals made (33) and three-pointers made (12)... Craig Snodgrass, a senior from Rider who made the 1993 all-tournament team, set records in free throws made in a game (16) and a tournament record for free throws (27).... their was no all-tournament team for either the boys or girls bracket.

Teammates recall pitcher 'Superchief' Allie Reynolds

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Former New York Yankees pitcher Allie Reynolds was remembered Friday as a gentle family man who was anything but kind and considerate when he had a baseball in his hand.

"The only people I know that didn't like Allie were hitters on the opposing baseball teams. They didn't like him one bit," said Dr. Bobby Brown, who played third base behind Reynolds for the Yankees and is a former American League president.

Reynolds, who played on six winning World Series teams from 1947 to 1954, died Tuesday of cancer. He was 77.

Brown said New York writers dubbed Reynolds the Superchief, in part because of his Creek heritage but also because of the elegant, powerful, swift Santa Fe Railroad train — much like Reynolds on the mound — that ran from California to Chicago at the time.

"The Yankees didn't call him Superchief," Brown told a crowd of more than 500 at an Oklahoma City church. "When we talked to him and were with him, we called him Allie. And when he wasn't there, we called him The Chief."

In Reynolds' eight years with the Yankees, Brown recalled, he won 131 games and lost 60.

"As a starter, he was terrific, but as a reliever, he was awesome," Brown said. "He was virtually unhittable."

Reynolds was the first American League player to pitch two no-hitters in one season, in 1951. The second of the two was against Boston, the best hitting team in the major leagues at the time.

The last out was Ted Williams, "if not the best hitter of all time, then certainly one of the best," Brown said.

"Ted hit a high foul ball over near the dugout, it was a very difficult play, and Yogi (Berra) dropped the ball. Allie never said a word."

On the next pitch, "Yogi caught that one. But Allie was six inches away from him."

Reynolds was 7-2 with four saves and a 2.79 ERA in 15 World Series games, going 2-1 in the Yankees' seven-game victory over Brooklyn in 1952. He won the deciding game at Ebbets Field that year in relief.

De Vier Pierson, a family friend, likened Reynolds' passing to the loss of Oklahoma humorist Will Rogers in 1935. Pierson said a dark shadow dimmed the state the day Rogers died.

"That is as true today as it was 60 years ago, Pierson said. "Like Will Rogers, Allie Reynolds was the finest product of our state."

Reynolds remained modest about his accomplishments, Pierson said. Reynolds' grandson, David, was a student at Oklahoma State in Stillwater when he read in a newspaper the school's baseball stadium would bear his grandfather's name.

"He was a quiet man, but he didn't have any difficulty in communicating his love for his family, his friends, and his values, especially the values of Oklahoma and of the American Indian," Pierson said.

Reynolds, who was born in Bethany, Okla., on Feb. 11, 1917, went to Oklahoma A&M, now Oklahoma State, on a track scholarship.

The service blended a Christian memorial with some American Indian traditions.

Solemn chanting and a pulsing drumbeat echoed as members of Creek and other tribes intoned the "Journey Song." Six Creek singers sang "Amazing Grace" in their native language.

Portraits of Reynolds — one in his Yankee uniform and one in a Creek feather headdress — were placed on either side of the casket.

Reynolds moved back to Oklahoma to work in the oil business when he retired in 1954.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You can achieve considerable success in almost any field. Keep your long-range goals in sight at all times. Someone influential helps you capitalize on exciting new business opportunities. Financial rewards are directly related to the amount of personal effort you expend. Romance beckons. Be more secretive about your plans than in the past. Confide only in those who have proven their loyalty.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Ben Kingsley, actress Sarah Miles, songwriter John Denver, singer Donna Summer.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Those who prefer private celebrations are unlikely to change their minds now. Be careful not to overstay your welcome at a party. Overindulging is not a good way to greet the New Year!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Celebrate the New Year in the presence of your favorite friends. Opting for moderation this evening will get you off to a healthy start tomorrow. Surprises are possible on the home front. Avoid acting indecisive.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Follow your own inclinations regarding the proper way to celebrate the passing of the old year. A fleeting exchange of glances could lead to a brief romantic interlude. Slow down before you do something silly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are eager for 1995 to get underway. Instead of driving someplace you have never been before, invite pals to your place. By celebrating at home, it will be easier to avoid unwanted complications.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Seeing the New Year in with your family could be a lot more meaningful than attending a crowded party. Whenever a creative urge strikes, give in to it. Jot down clever ideas for future use.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your fastidious nature means you dread noisy, unruly crowds. Make sure you and mate agree on how to bring in the New Year. A child or parent may suddenly need special attention. Offer comfort.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your spirits soar with the coming of the New Year. You have a lot to offer and should find renewed success in 1995. Share what is in your heart with mate. Marital ties grow stronger.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get together with loved ones to usher out 1994. Welcoming in the New Year makes you sentimental. Do not let financial concerns close your heart to love. Romantic partner is firmly on your side.

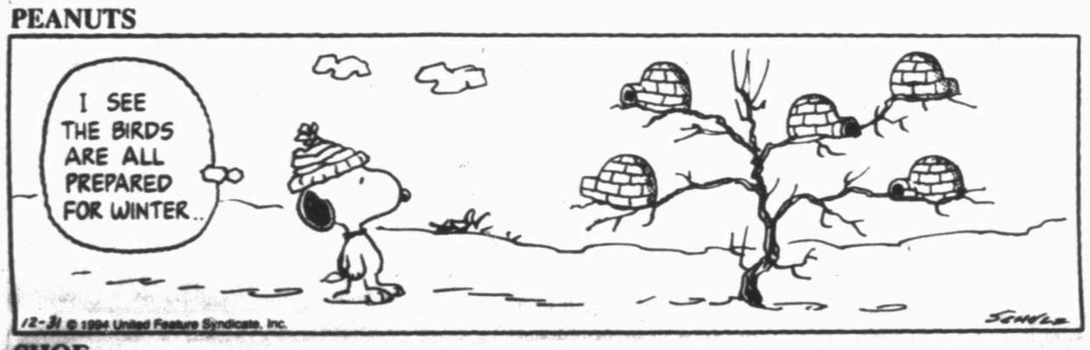

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A change of attitude will help you enjoy life more. You feel stronger and more secure. Gentle words and kind deeds will restore understanding to a close relationship. Be more flexible about entertainment plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A quiet, candlelit evening for two could be the perfect way to welcome 1995. Be a romantic. Put up a few decorations at home and wear something elegant. A tender approach turns mate sentimental.

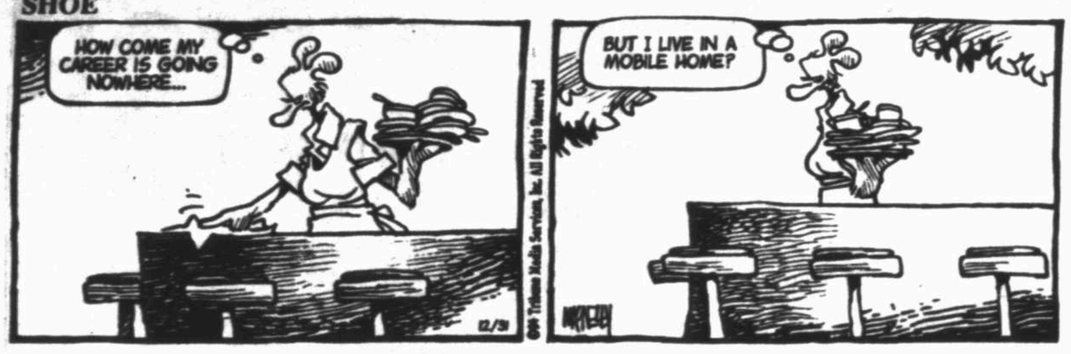

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A change in a relationship makes it more exciting. Welcoming in the New Year with close friends suits you to a tee. An upcoming wedding could be discussed. Do not ignore children's concerns.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make your thoughts and expectations known to the person most on your mind. It is not easy to guess what loved ones need. Refuse to feel guilty for being unable to fulfill all of their wishes.

Cuomo feels his 20 years in politics has been heaven

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — It's been a little slice of heaven for Gov. Mario Cuomo.

"For all the rejection, for all the failures, it's heaven because you're doing what you think is right," he said of his 20 years in politics.

Mario Cuomo feels his life in politics has been 'slice of heaven.'

In his final news conference after three terms as governor, Cuomo said Friday he will write a book — he wouldn't say what it will be about — and give speeches next year, with talks already lined up in London, Zurich and Buenos Aires.

Republican George Pataki, who defeated Cuomo in November, takes office Sunday, and Cuomo will be out of a job. While he's gotten numerous offers, he hasn't accepted anything yet, he said.

VAIL, Colo. — Princess Diana's been trying to fade into the background during her holiday on the slopes. No such luck.

Princess Diana spends holidays on the slopes.

Some who said they'd spotted the estranged wife of Prince Charles mentioned her friendliness and "gorgeous smile." Others were limited to repeating the rumors.

"I heard her face and head were swathed in fur, like a scarf," said Karen Baginski, who works for the ski resort.

"She's charming, unassuming and looked you in the eye," said Susan Fritz, owner of the restaurant where the princess had lunch with friends this week. "She thanked the servers."

NEW YORK — Mia Tyler, the 16-year-old daughter of Aerosmith lead singer Steve Tyler, sometimes wishes Dad would act his age in public.

"Well, I mean, he stands there and he's groping himself and he is 46 years old and he should not be doing that," she said in a "Current Affair" interview to be broadcast Friday. "It disgusts me. . . . And he tells me that the young kids like it."

The 29-year-old chiropractor waved a canned ham to catch the comedian's eye during the taping of Tuesday night's show.

Letterman noticed, and asked him to run down to a store to make a few hundred copies of the night's "Top Ten" list and distribute them to the audience.

Cameras trailing, Medeiros obliged, then joined Letterman on stage to shake hands.

"It was a dream come true," Medeiros said.

It's that time of year when organizations, associations and publications of all sorts issue lists of those they have deemed to be the "10 Best" or top of the heap in innumerable categories.

The Feminist Majority Foundation is among those ringing in with its list this week of people who did the most to foster equality of women. Its list includes Gro Harlem Brundtland, prime minister of Norway; Isabel Allende, Chilean novelist; Beverly Harvard, Atlanta's police chief; Taslima Nasrin, feminist writer from Bangladesh and target of death threats from Muslim fundamentalists; and Rena Weeks, a legal secretary who won a judgment against Baker & McKenzie, the world's largest law firm, for sexual harassment.

Commercial companies make lists, too. Hartz Mountain Corp. has announced its 1994 Golden Hartz Awards for the 10 people who have done the most for the welfare of pets. The winners include Carol Ann Timmel, who filed a lawsuit to force Tower Air to ground a plane after her cat Tabitha was missing for 12 days. (It was trapped in the baggage compartment.)

Also on the Hartz list: Dr. Steven Weinstein, a veterinarian, for saving the life of an English sheep dog who had cocaine hidden in his abdomen. The dog was shipped from Colombia to the airport as cargo.

When Leslie Uggams rises to present an award to Mitch Miller at the Congress of Racial Equality tribute to Martin Luther King Jr., on Jan. 16, she will have more than the routine connection of presenter to recipient.

"He discovered me," Ms. Uggams said the other day. "He saw me when I was a contestant on 'Name That Tune' and called my mother saying that he wanted me to do some demos."

About a year later, when Miller went on the air with his "Sing Along With Mitch" on NBC, he booked Ms. Uggams as a guest.

OFFICIAL GAME RULES

It's fun and easy! Anyone 18 or older can play the Welcome to the Oil Patch Game, except employees (and family members of employees) of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, Associated Publishing Company, Brite Systems, Inc. and their advertising and promotion agencies. The Welcome to the Oil Patch Game is designed for people in Andrews, Crane, Ector, Glasscock, Howard, Martin, Midland, Upton, Ward and Winkler counties. No purchase is required to play or win prizes, but you must have a Permian Basin Area Wide Book lucky number to enter and win a prize. Long distance charges may apply in some areas. If you live in the above counties and do not have a Permian Basin Area Wide Phone Book, call 687-1756, 563-5440 or 800-588-1756 to find out where to pick one up without charge.

Here's How to Play

Turn to The Game Page in the Midland Reporter-Telegram or in other area publications and look for this week's question. Then call CityLine, 560-2400. enter category 1111 for the correct answer and to find out if the number on the card following page 256 in your phone book has made you a winner of one of this week's three prizes of a tank full of gasoline (valued at up to $25) and $75 in cash or the grand prize, gasoline for a year (valued up to $1,300) and $1,000 in cash.

Each week three numbers will be selected to win a prize valued at $100 or more. If the number in your phone book is a winner, keep listening. CityLine will tell you how to claim your prize. Keep calling.....new lucky numbers will be added many times in the same week promotion.

You could win one of the unclaimed weekly prizes and enter the drawing for the grand prize. Here's how: Complete the official entry form and mail it so that it arrives before the deadline or hand print your name, address and daytime phone number on a plain 3"x5" piece of paper. Be sure to include your Permian Basin Area Wide Phone Book lucky number and the correct answer to this week's question. The more often you enter, the better your chance of winning.

Mail entries - one per envelope to: Welcome to the Oil Patch Game, Associated Publishing Company, 4400 N. Big Spring, Suite 201, Midland, TX 79705. All entries become the property of the sponsors. None will be returned.

Each week for six weeks ending January 15, 1995, the winning numbers will be selected at random and will win one of that weeks prizes. If the winners are not identified by CityLine, they will be drawn from mailed entries. The grand prize,gasoline for a year and $1,000 in cash, will be drawn from weekly winner and all qualified mailed entries. The total value of all prizes to be awarded in the Welcome to the Oil Patch Game is valued at $3,650 or more.

Each game begins at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday and ends at 11:59 p.m. the following Monday. No substitutions of prizes is permitted. Only one weekly prize will be awarded to each winner.

By entering, winners authorize the use of their names, cities or photos for publicity purposes. Winners may be required to sign an affidavit of eligibility and release. Taxes are the responsibility of winners.

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has routes available in the following areas:

Lee High School
Midland Dr. & Andrews Hwy.
Neely & Midland Dr.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work.

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for anyone willing to work early morning hours. These routes require a small deposit.

Apply in person or contact the Circulation Dept.:

Anniversaries • Welcome Home
Remember When • Congratulations
Just Because • Birthdays

Rate & Credit Policies

Rate charges are determined at the time of placement. All ads accepted are subject to credit approval. Some classified categories require payment in advance. Credit applications are also required for business accounts. Yearly contract agreements are available. The Midland Reporter-Telegram reserves the right to correctly classify and edit all copy or to reject or cancel any advertisement at any time.

Cancellations

The price of your ad will be based on the number of days published according to our rate structure. Call (915) 682-6222 - ask for your cancellation number. This is your record of cancellation and it is important that you have it in the event of any misunderstanding or adjustment. "Super Seller" and "Real Wheel Deal" ads may be cancelled, but are non-adjustable and non-refundable.

Errors and Adjustments

Please check your ad the first day that it appears to be sure that all of the information is correct. This will ensure that your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. Call us the first day if you find an error at 915-682-6222. To report an error in Saturday's edition call Saturday morning between 8a.m. and 10a.m. Errors in Sunday's edition should be reported on Monday morning after 8:00 a.m. We must limit our financial responsibility, if any, to the charge for the word or space, and cannot be held responsible for incorrect ads after the first day of publication.

Omissions of Ads

The Midland Reporter-Telegram assumes no financial responsibility in an ad beyond the cost of the ad itself, and no responsibility for the omission of an ad.
