Clinton ekes out key crime vote, Senate approves bill

WASHINGTON (NYT) — After days of bitter partisan debate, the Senate handed President Clinton another closely won victory on Thursday, squeaking out a procedural win that cleared the way for final approval of the crime bill a few hours later.

The Democratic-led victory margin of 61-39 assured passage of the $30 billion measure, which now lacks only Clinton's signature to become law. Senate rules required 60 votes on the motion and enough Republicans broke ranks to join 55 Democrats and hand Clinton the win. Final passage, which required only a simple majority, came later on a 61-38 vote. Wyoming Republican Malcolm Wallop did not vote on final passage.

Texas GOP senators Phil Gramm and Kay Bailey Hutchison both voted with the Republican effort to block consideration of the bill as well as the final

Zachery-case jury brings in 2nd-degree felony verdict

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Late Thursday, a six-man, six-woman, racially mixed jury found Duann Dewayne Stewart, 18, not guilty of murder in the Jan. 25 beating death of James Zachery. The jury found instead that Stewart was guilty of the second-degree felony charge of voluntary manslaughter.

The jurors deliberated five hours before making their decision known in the 142nd District Courtroom.

The jury also found Stewart guilty of a first-degree felony drug offense, distributing cocaine by offer to sell, and an additional second-degree drug offense, possession of cocaine.

The drug offenses were proved through testimony in the case, even though police were not present at the scene of the crime to

Wave of Cuban refugees opens old wounds, raises new fears in Miami

By Will Lester
Associated Press

■ Thousands more soldiers needed for camps; setup cost put at $100 million/6A

MIAMI — After two overwhelming waves of Cuban immigration, a decade of riots, the chaos of the cocaine cowboys and the devastation of Hurricane Andrew, it's all happening again.

Residents of Dade County worry about losing their community as they face an inundation by an outside force — thousands of Cuban refugees, the largest exodus since the 1980 Mariel boatlift.

Miami's non-Hispanic whites, known as Anglos, and blacks have become more diplomatic on the subject of Cuban immigration in the last decade. They talk sympathetically of their Cuban-American friends and the pain they must feel for relatives detained by U.S. authorities.

But once again they worry about overwhelmed schools and hospi-

Texaco cuts fewer jobs than feared

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil Editor

Number of exploration, production employees in city office have been reduced from 214 to 155.

Texaco handed out termination notices Thursday as part of its previously announced restructuring plan, and according to sources it was not as bad for Midland as some had feared.

According to Charlie Rentz, spokesman for Texaco, the number of exploration and production employees in the Midland office have now been reduced from 214 to 155. It had earlier been estimated that the number could have been much higher — perhaps more than a hundred.

Of the 59 positions affected, 35 were terminated, 30 transferred out while six were transferred in. Approximately 12 of the 35 accepted early retirement packages and the remainder were given 60-day notices.

Rentz said outplacement programs had been established for those given termination notices, and that some funds had been made available for retraining.

He said there also would be some staff reductions in Texaco's regional offices at Odessa, Big Spring, Levelland and Hobbs with each office losing about three to four employees.

Cuts still to be made will come in the accounting department sometime next year when 90 jobs in the Midland office will be reviewed. Texaco employees say they are not certain exactly how many will be terminated and how many will be transferred to Houston.

Rentz also noted that more production cuts would be made later as Texaco begins to divest itself of producing properties in the Permian Basin.

The cuts are the result of a plan Texaco announced on Aug. 4, to downgrade Midland from a division office to a pro-

Wreck kills daughter; her heart gives father new lease on life

ROYAL OAK, Mich. (AP) — For Chester Szuber, it was the gift of life, but at a cost so dear he almost didn't accept it. The youngest of his six children — an exuberant 22-year-old nursing student — had been killed in a car accident and it quickly became clear her heart could be his.

The family had little time to decide. Patti Szuber had insisted she wanted her organs donated if she died.

But her mother couldn't bear the thought of the risky surgery claiming her husband, too. Chester Szuber thought ahead to the unwanted attention the rare procedure would bring to their grieving family.

In the end it was his decision. "It would be a joy to have Patti's heart," Patti's brother, Bob Szuber, remembers his frail father saying.

On Monday, Patti's heart was flown from the Tennessee hospital where she had died only hours earlier to Michigan, where it was implanted and restarted in her father.

Chester Szuber, 58, was off a breathing machine by the morning after the surgery and was in good condition

City, with state's aid, to develop 57-acre park in northwest area

Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission announces $500,000 Midland grant.

AUSTIN — The city of Midland, with $500,000 in aid from the state of Texas, will develop a new 57-acre park in the northwest part of town. The park will include a fishing pier, picnic areas, hiking and horseback-riding trails, a children's playground, and baseball and soccer fields.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission announced the $500,000 Midland grant on Thursday as part of $7.2 million for 16 park projects in Texas.

Violence leaves Zaire aid workers edgy

GOMA, Zaire (AP) — Zairian gangs looted aid supplies after American troops pulled out of a base near the Goma airport Thursday during a day of violence that killed at least three Zairians and wounded 10.

No one was hurt in the raid on the unguarded base, but it created new fears among the 800 foreigners working for 45 aid groups in Goma and further disrupted relief efforts.

"We seem to be operating in the camps in a virtual state of war," said Ray Wilkinson, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees.

Aid workers have urged that U.N. peacekeepers be sent to the Goma region, but no such force is under consideration. A U.N. force is patrolling across the border in Rwanda, but its mission is limited to trying to stablize that nation after a brutal, three-month civil war.

Sketchy radio messages said looters moved in on relief supplies at the former U.S. base soon after the last American soldiers pulled out at the end of their aid mission. Reporters could not go to the base because taxi drivers refused to travel at night fearing attack from Zairian troops.

Sporadic gunfire was heard throughout the day as gangs of Zairian soldiers looted homes of civilians and then fought with each other over the booty. Witnesses said they saw the bodies of at least two Zairian soldiers.

The shooting added to violence that has been escalating in the camps around Goma that hold an estimated 800,000 Rwandan refugees.

"The situation is really bad," said John Spring of Schenectady, N.Y., head of UNICEF's operations in Goma. "I hope I am wrong, but a time may come when the looting and thuggery may seriously hamper relief operations."

Spring was caught in a gunbattle Wednesday night when he was returning to his hotel from a meeting. His driver managed to reach safety by taking an alternate route.

Earlier Wednesday, Hutu extremists assaulted a group of game trackers and their families who had asked to be taken back to their homes in Rwanda's famed gorilla reserve. The attack seriously wounded one tracker and led the United Nations to suspend plans for large-scale repatriations of refugees.

Four French workers for the International Federation of the Red Cross and Red Crescent were withdrawn from the camps Wednesday after receiving death threats.

Mexicans wait for final vote count

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexicans were still waiting Thursday, four days after the election, for final results expected to confirm the victory of President-elect Ernesto Zedillo of the ruling party.

Officials were investigating complaints that delayed results from 11,000 polling places, ranging from simple counting errors to allegations of multiple voting and the names of dead people on voting rolls.

But the complaints were not expected to affect the victory of Zedillo, who election officials said Thursday had 50.03 percent of the vote with nearly 92 percent of the ballots counted. Final results were expected Sunday.

The voting was the most closely watched in Mexico's history. Mexican and foreign election monitors said they saw irregularities, but said they probably did not affect the outcome.

Zedillo was already receiving congratulations from leaders of other countries, including Chile, Japan, and South Africa, the Foreign Ministry said. President Clinton on Wednesday congratulated President Carlos Salinas de Gortari on holding peaceful elections with a high voter turnout.

Zedillo, a 42-year-old economist, is to succeed Salinas on Dec. 1.

Diego Fernandez de Cevallos of the conservative National Action Party was in second place with 26.85 percent. Cuauhtemoc Cardenas of the leftist Democratic Revolution Party was third with 17.03 percent.

Scattered complaints of election fraud were not expected to affect victory of ruling party candidate Zedillo.

Returns also showed the ruling party winning an overwhelming congressional majority, ending opposition hopes to hold the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party — or PRI — below 50 percent in Congress for the first time since the party's founding in 1929.

The PRI was leading in 278 of 300 congressional races and in virtually all 64 Senate races, the Federal Electoral Institute said Wednesday. Another 200 seats in Congress and 32 in the Senate will be divided according to vote percentages for the nine parties.

Under new election reforms, no party will be allowed the two-thirds majority needed to modify the constitution, but the PRI is likely to come just short of that.

Tensions were high Thursday in the southern state of Chiapas, where Indian guerrillas staged a surprise uprising on New Year's Day. Police were posted around City Hall in San Cristobal to prevent violence between supporters of two candidates claiming victory in the governor's race.

Official results showed ruling party candidate Eduardo Robledo Rincon the winner, but backers of challenger Amado Avendano were claiming fraud.

Avendano, a newspaper publisher, supported demands by the Indian rebels for greater democracy.

Charles-Diana scandal threatens British stability

By Bernard D. Kaplan
Hearst Newspapers

■ News analysis

PARIS — Britain's Princess Diana is suspected of making a long series of nuisance phone calls to a male friend. But it is Prince Charles, her estranged husband and heir to the British throne, who stands to lose the most in this latest royal scandal.

While the affair has its laughable side — including Diana's claim, as proof she wasn't the caller, that she doesn't know how to use a pay telephone — no one is really laughing.

One British political commentator calls the affair's wider political implications a "ticking time bomb" waiting to explode into a full-blown crisis.

Some European observers view the British royals' troubles as part of an assault on familiar political institutions that is spreading through much of Western Europe, fueled by popular frustration at public figures failing to live up to their responsibilities.

Some analysts warn that the monarchy's vulnerability — matched by mounting support for a republican form of government — could lead to political upheaval.

In Britain, members of what is usually called the "establishment" have tried unsuccessfully to wrap the "Diana-phone-calls-affair" in a thick blanket of discretion.

But many of those at the top reluctantly concede they think that the 33-year-old princess, despite her denials, may well have been the perpetrator of dozens of anonymous calls to the London home of Islamic art dealer Oliver Hoare for more than a year.

The harassment ended in January after the police were called in. The 48-year-old Hoare, a friend of both Diana and Charles, asked that no further steps be taken when he was told the calls had been traced to the princess's private telephone line at Kensington Palace, as well as from her car mobile phone, telephone booths near the palace and her sister's house.

Diana denied making the calls but told a British newspaper reporter in a lengthy interview this week that on a few occasions she had telephoned Hoare but had hung up when his wife answered.

Several commentators have expressed what columnist Keith Waterhouse called "concern about the princess's mental stability" and have suggested that Charles, from whom she is legally separated, may have had a role in undermining it. In a TV interview two months ago, the prince admitted he had committed adultery.

He added that Charles could lose the throne if the British public becomes convinced that Diana has been the victim of a palace-inspired conspiracy to destroy her reputation.

French celebrate WW II liberation of Paris

■ Event featuring fireworks display on Seine River honors Resistance fighters, Leclerc's Free French forces, civilians who died in Paris uprising.

By Alan Riding
N.Y. Times News Service

PARIS — As a military victory, the liberation of Paris was not significant. By the time Parisians took up arms against their German occupiers on Aug. 22, 1944, Allied forces were encircling the city. And by the time French troops arrived here three days later, most Germans had fled.

Yet as Parisians celebrated the 50th anniversary of the end of four years of German occupation on Thursday night, with World War II tanks and jeeps re-enacting the entry of the 2nd Armored Division of Gen. Philippe Leclerc, the extraordinary political significance of the occasion again became apparent.

Within 24 hours of returning to Paris from his long years in exile, Gen. Charles de Gaulle brushed aside challenges to his authority from both the Allies and French Communists. He won recognition as France's undisputed leader and began restoring pride to a France shamed by defeat and collaboration.

No less significant, in a matter of weeks de Gaulle transformed France from an occupied land into a combatant nation and, in the process, set the stage for France to be recognized along with the United States, Britain, and the Soviet Union as one of the victorious Allies.

The key to this, though, was the way he interpreted the liberation of Paris. "Paris, Paris insulted, Paris broken, Paris martyred," he told a crowd at City Hall on the evening of Aug. 25, 1944, "but Paris liberated, liberated by itself, liberated by its people, with the help of all France."

That vision has survived. Ten weeks ago, leaders of the wartime Allies traveled to Normandy to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the D-Day landings. On Thursday, no foreign leaders were invited. Just as de Gaulle insisted that it was an all-French affair in 1944, it was an all-French occasion now.

Over the last week, ceremonies have recalled key moments of the communist-led insurrection that eventually prompted tens of thousands of Parisians to build barricades across the city, and find hunting rifles and old pistols to turn against an enemy that, in Paris at least, had until then faced minimal resistance.

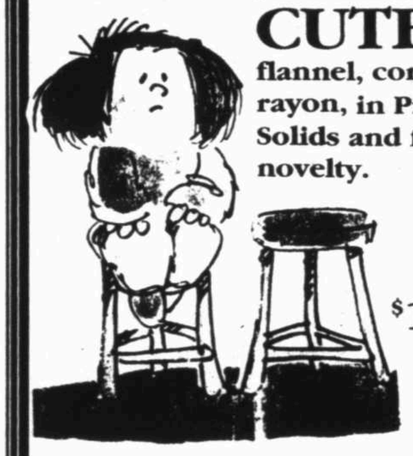

On Thursday night, before a fireworks display along the Seine and a huge "popular" celebration in the Place de la Concorde, it was the moment to honor Resistance fighters and civilians who died in the uprising as well as Leclerc's Free French forces who, at de Gaulle's insistence, were ordered by the Allied command to take Paris.

Today, huge crowds are again expected to turn out to watch 7,500 children from across France as they symbolically reenact de Gaulle's triumphal march down the Champs-Elysees on Aug. 26, 1944, when some 2 million Parisians acclaimed him as the personification of France reborn.

Indeed, it is a measure of de Gaulle's impact on modern French history, both as head of a provisional government until January 1946 and later as president from 1958 to 1969, that French politicians are to this day still wrestling to inherit his mantle.

The politics of the present, though, are little compared with the political maneuvers that preceded and accompanied the liberation of Paris. Before D-Day, de Gaulle had to fight Washington's desire to impose a military government on France as if it were an occupied territory. By mid-August 1944, as the Battle of Normandy was finally ending, he again had to insist that Paris be freed.

JURY: Panel to decide punishment today

confiscate the contraband substance.

The jury will reconvene today to decide on Stewart's punishment. Voluntary manslaughter carries a possible term of two to 20 years in prison. Delivery of cocaine carries a term of five to 99 years in prison, and possession of cocaine carries a possible sentence of two to 20 years. In addition, jurors can assess fines for each offense.

Much of the murder case was based on medical evidence, with prosecutors attempting to show that Zachery died because of head injury received during the beating administered by Stewart.

Defense attorneys in the case tried to show that the death resulted from cocaine poisoning and not the beating.

During the trial, Dallas Medical Examiner Juan-Luis Zamora testified that Zachery died from trauma to the brain that resulted from the beating. Testimony in the trial indicated that Stewart kicked Zachery and hit him with rocks, fists and a 40-ounce beer bottle.

A former medical examiner who now has a private practice, Linda Norton, testified that Zachery's death was directly attributable to his ingestion of cocaine.

Early Thursday, the third and final physician took the stand. Dr. J.J. Waller was on duty at the Midland Memorial Hospital Emergency Department when Zachery was brought in by ambulance.

Zachery displayed symptoms of shock, elevated heart rate and low blood pressure upon his arrival at the hospital, Waller testified.

"My opinion at the time was that this is neurogenic shock," he said. Waller went on to explain that neurogenic shock results from trauma to the parts of the brain that maintain heart function and respiration.

Waller said that after learning of the cocaine in Zachery's system, he now believes that cocaine, as well as the trauma, played a role in the shock and resultant death.

Waller disagreed with some of Ms. Norton's testimony. Ms. Norton maintained that death due to brain trauma could not result from a blow to the head unless that blow breaks the skull, forcing bone fragments into the brain. The only fatal head injuries with an intact skull result instead from the head being in motion and striking a fixed object, she testified.

Ms. Norton also maintains that death from brain trauma, which often kills by causing the brain to swell inside the skull, cannot occur until the brain stem is forced through the entrance hole for the spinal cord.

Waller negated both of these statements, saying death can occur from a blow that does not break the skull. "Blunt force to the head can produce some just unbelievable effects. . . . ," Waller said.

He also said that herniation, the brain stem being forced out of the skull, need not occur in all deaths resulting from brain swelling.

Testifying under conditions of limited immunity, Terry Earl Stewart, 25, testified that he saw Duann Stewart hit Zachery in the head with rocks and the bottle.

Terry Stewart is in federal custody, his probation on drug convictions revoked. He was granted immunity from prosecution on testimony given in this case, as long as he testified truthfully, Judge George "Jody" Gilles told jurors.

He originally was indicted on the Zachery killing, but that indictment was later dropped, said District Attorney Al Schorre.

Terry Stewart testified that he and some other people stopped and got out of their car at the scene of Zachery's beating. "Dewayne said 'he took my dope,' " Terry Stewart said.

He also testified that Duann Stewart's mother, Mable Stewart, slapped Zachery in the face while her boyfriend, Don Jackson, rifled through the beaten man's pockets.

In closing arguments, defense attorney David Rogers told the jury that witness testimony, indicating that another fight occurred earlier and involved people implicated in the Zachery incident, is reason to find the defendant not guilty. One witness, Rubi Melini, testified that she saw Stewart standing away from Zachery while three other people attacked him.

Because of this testimony, Rogers said, jurors should have a reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt. "We've shown you that another fight occurred. We've shown you that it could have been someone else," he said.

Defense attorney Bob Stevens, in closing statements, centered on the discrepancy in medical testimony.

Testimony has shown, Stevens said, that Zachery's death had all the signs of "classical" cocaine toxicity. Zachery's was suffering depression caused by an ongoing divorce and child custody battle and turned to cocaine, Stevens told jurors.

EKES: Senate approves crime bill, 61-38

passage.

A pleased Clinton said in a White House Rose Garden press conference, "Today senators of both parties took a brave and promising step to bring the long, hard wait for a crime bill closer to an end."

It marks the second time in two weeks that the crime bill was rescued from the verge of collapse and it was a welcome political victory for Clinton, who personally intervened to keep the bill alive in the House.

After a short summer recess lasting until Labor Day, the Senate will again take up the president's premiere legislative issue, health care. Asked yesterday about the prospects for the health care bill, Clinton said, "I don't think the recess will kill it."

The White House had once set August as the timetable for congressional passage of health care. But with a coalition of Senate moderates working on another health care reform package, Clinton said, "I think the less I say about it, the better."

After the Senate adjourns, Clinton is expected to take his delayed vacation on Martha's Vineyard, an island off the coast of Massachusetts.

The crime bill success was snatched from the GOP, which thought it had the votes to defeat the bill, when six Republicans, including Minority Leader Robert Dole's fellow Kansan, Nancy Kassebaum, decided to vote with the Democrats on the procedural motion. The other Republicans voting for the bill were John Chafee of Rhode Island, John Danforth of Missouri, James Jeffords of Vermont, William Roth of Delaware and Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania. One Democrat, Sen. Richard Shelby, D-Ala., voted with the Republicans.

The political stakes were high for both sides.

"This could be one of those turning points in our history in terms of the position of the parties," claimed Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine.

WAVE: Refugee flood aggravates old wounds

(From 1A)

tals, an increase in crime, and rising taxes. They think about moving away, and speak bitterly about newcomers who don't learn English and recreate Havana in Miami.

"I'm angry," said Barbara Davison, an administrative aide in a law office. "Too many have already come over. You will find more Anglos moving out. People are frightened."

In the black community, residents have complained that the few available jobs were taken away by Cubans and other immigrant groups.

"People don't want any more immigration that continues to diminish and dilute the quality of life," said Dade County Commissioner Art Teele, who is black. He said, however, that relations among Cubans and blacks are improving.

After the Mariel boatlift, thousands of Miami residents moved away as the city struggled with overtaxed social services and worsening crime.

But Miami's woes can't be blamed on the influx of Cubans. The city erupted in four race riots during the last decade, most recently the Overtown riots of 1989. The drug trade peaked in the early 1980s with shopping-mall pistol fights among cocaine cartel gunmen, called "cocaine cowboys."

Thousands of people lost their homes to Hurricane Andrew.

The dominant issue in the black community recently has been the treatment of Haitians, who were routinely sent back as Cubans were admitted into the United States. All of this changed last week when President Clinton announced that refugees would be diverted to Guantanamo Bay Naval Station in Cuba, where thousands of Haitians already are being held.

Local blacks have had a saying in Overtown, said Ted Lyons, who helps develop jobs and businesses for blacks: "If you're white you're right. If you're brown, stick around. If you're black, you gotta go back."

Both Haitians and Cubans are being treated equally, Lyons said. "But blacks are still suspicious.

Leona Cooper, an organizer in the black community, said the Cuban influx doesn't have to hurt non-Hispanic whites or blacks.

"I don't think we should become intimidated by the Cuban community," she said. "I've got my space here and there are laws we have to uphold. If everybody did what the Cubans do, they could accomplish something."

Despite the Clinton administration's tough talk that the newest refugees will not be allowed in this country, few Anglos believe they will end up anywhere outside of Dade County.

HEART: Daughter's gift gives father new life

(From 1A)

Thursday, said Dr. Jeffrey Altshuler, who performed the transplant operation.

Szuber is expected to leave the William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak within two weeks, to lead "essentially a normal lifestyle," Altshuler said.

His daughter's death on a mountain road in Tennessee came while she was on a trip with a friend before her return to nursing school.

"The day she arrived she talked to my mother and said she was having a wonderful, fantastic time," Bob Szuber said Thursday.

But on the night of Aug. 18, the car she was riding in went off a curvy road in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park about 40 miles from Knoxville, Tenn. The car hit a rock wall, careened back onto the road and rolled several times.

The driver, Todd Douglas Herbst, 24, of Royal Oak was treated for minor injuries. He was charged with drunken driving, possession of an open container of alcohol, driving on a suspended license and unsafe operation, said Park spokeswoman Nancy Gray.

Patti Szuber was airlifted to the University of Tennessee Medical Center in "extremely critical condition," Bob Szuber said. Her family rushed to Tennessee from Berkeley, Mich., to sit by her side.

From the minute Patti Szuber entered the hospital, her prognosis was very poor, her brother said. By Sunday, she had been pronounced brain dead.

Patti Szuber had indicated she wanted to donate her organs, and her family concurred in that decision.

"At the time we had no idea that donation of Patti's heart to our father was even a possibility," Bob Szuber said.

The family has two choices once they decide to donate: give the organs to society or specify an individual on the national waiting list whom they know, said Thomas Beyersdorf, executive director of the Organ Procurement Association of Michigan. The family was informed of the choices.

Chester Szuber had been on the heart transplant waiting list for nearly four years. He was at the top of the list of 71 people awaiting heart transplants in Michigan, but not at the top of the national waiting list of 2,935.

He was suffering life-threatening heartbeat irregularities and had undergone three open-heart surgeries and two angioplasties in the past 20 years to clear blockages.

duction office and to sell approximately 200 producing properties. The reorganization resulted in Texaco consolidating into four divisions — two in New Orleans, and one each in Denver and Bakersfield, Calif.

That announcment followed a July 5 announcement in which Texaco said it would sell approximately half of of its U.S. producing properties and reduce the nationwide workforce by 2,500 employees.

In that announcement it was estimated that only 120 to 160 employees across the Permian Basin would be affected by the asset sales.

PARK: City receives grant

good parks in east Midland and other areas of the town," Burns noted. "We've got a major park (Reyes-Nelms-Mashburn) going in on the east side. It (a network of parks) enhances our quality of life in Midland."

While the city is "refurbishing a lot of parks," many neighborhoods are volunteering funds toward improving those parks, Burns said.

Land for Midland's newest park, to be known as Jal Draw Community Park, is being donated to the city by the Scharbauer family of Midland. The park will be developed north of Wadley Avenue, south of Jal Draw, and west of the Holiday Hill section of Loop 250 West.

Burns said that early stages of Jal Draw Community Park will represent $1.2 million in investments of which the city's contribution will be $150,000. The $1.2 million includes the value of the former Scharbauer ranchland, the state grant, and the city's $150,000.

"We are going to have five Little League baseball fields, two soccer fields, and two ponds, and jogging and walking and bike paths," Burns said.

The park will incorporate restroom buildings. It will include lighted and unlighted playing fields for softball and soccer.

In Austin, about 50 sponsors submitted requests for $15.67 million in matching funds from the Texas Recreation and Parks Account Program and the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund.

Money for the state program, approved by the Texas Legislature in 1993, comes from a portion of the Texas sales tax on sporting goods. It is used to assist cities, counties and other local governments in purchasing park land and developing outdoor recreation projects.

The city of Midland has three years to develop the park. The state is to approve construction plans.

DRY: Many cotton farmers are pessimistic

said.

And 20 years earlier, in 1933, it was really dry — dry-gulch dry.

"I have seen it drier than it is now," Bryant said. "In 1933, old man Heidelberg, about eight miles southeast of Midland, was the only man in Midland County that ginned a bale of cotton . . . on account of the (lack of) rain."

That year, Heidelberg planted cotton on the April rains. Other farmers figured that April was "too early (to plant), and they didn't plant" and waited until May, the usual planting time. But the usual May planting rains failed to come in 1933.

"He (Heidelberg) got an early April rain and planted his cotton," Bryant said. "And he got it up; he ginned cotton that year. At that time, we had three gins here in Midland County. He's the only man in Midland County that ginned cotton in 1933."

And just how the 1994 cotton crop will fare largely will depend on any impending rains and the stamina and blooming stages of cotton crops, which earlier took on rainfall.

Cotton farmer Vernon Chandler of the Warfield community is not overly optimistic of the drought-like conditions.

"I guess it's too late for this year's cotton crop," said Chandler, who on Thursday had returned from Lubbock where he examined drip-irrigation systems.

"Dryland cotton looked pretty bad all the way up there (to Lubbock by way of Lamesa)," Chandler said.

But irrigated cotton "looked pretty good. It had plenty of heat units," he said of the 100-plus-degree summer temperatures.

"If heat units (alone without much rainfall) would make it (cotton), we would be having five bales to the acre" rather than zero bales up to a bale or a bit more per acre in Midland County.

Of the drought conditions, Chandler, who survived the drought of the 1950s, said "that's the way it goes in this country.

"It (the drought) makes us appreciate the years when it does rain. It kind of averages things out. We are never ready for one (drought), but you have to expect" dry spells ever so often.

So far in 1994, the recorded rainfall in Midland has been 6.68 inches, which is more than 2 inches below the normal rainfall of 8.89 inches through August.

The normal annual rainfall, gauged over a 30-year period, in Midland County is almost 14 inches — 13.70 inches.

According to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's (NOAA's) Southern Region Climate Center in Baton Rouge, La., the lowest recorded annual rainfall in Midland is 4.6 inches 1951 at onset of the drought. The highest recorded annual rainfall at the National Weather Service in Midland is 32.13 inches in 1986.

The second-highest yearly rainfall on record in Midland was 23.46 inches in 1991.

Year after year, May and September are the highest rainfall months, according to the weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport. September's average is 2.08 inches. May's average is 2.05. The May 1994 rainfall was 1.30 inches.

In recent history, Midland's record low rainfall months and the amounts of precipitation are:

January: No rain in 1967.
February: .01 inch in 1971.
March: Trace in 1984.
April: Zero in 1964.
May: .08 inch in 1953.
June: .01 inch in 1990.
July: Trace in 1983.
August: .17 inch in 1967.
September: .08 inch in 1979.
October: Zero rain in 1951.
November: Zero rain in 1950.
December: Trace in 1958.

Researchers: Staying trim lowers heart-disease risk in middle age

TORONTO (AP) — An ounce of prevention is worth more than a pound of cure: People who avoid gaining weight as they approach middle age dramatically lower their heart disease risk and may entirely prevent diabetes, researchers said Thursday.

Young adults who are not overweight and who keep their weight constant — simply by not overeating — can avoid these curses of age, said Barbara Hansen, a physiologist at the University of Maryland.

The findings, which Hansen reported at the Seventh International Congress on Obesity, were the product of a 10-year, $1 million government-funded study of rhesus monkeys.

Monkeys were used for two reasons, she said. One is that they get heavier during middle age in precisely the same way humans do. The second is that because of their shorter life spans, a 10-year study in monkeys is equivalent to a 30-year study in people.

Many studies have shown the value of losing weight, but this is one of the first to conclusively demonstrate the value of preventing weight gain, she said.

"People are not paying attention to their weight until they get to a point where they feel uncomfortable, unattractive or they've had a heart attack," Hansen said. The time to take action is much earlier, she said.

People typically eat more as they age and begin to gain weight. To keep weight stable, people don't have to diet; they merely have to avoid overeating. "This is not starvation or restriction," Hansen said.

And exercise, while it has other health benefits, was not a factor in this result; the researchers did not monitor the amount of exercise that the monkeys got during the study.

"The study really is fascinating," said Dr. Richard Atkinson of the University of Wisconsin in Madison. "It's a lot easier to keep weight off than to lose it."

Earlier studies had shown that restricting food intake in rats could increase lifespan, but it wasn't clear whether that would apply to humans, Hansen said.

Ex-leader: Pakistan has atomic bomb

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A former prime minister defended his claim that Pakistan has a nuclear bomb, and said he announced it to stop Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto from rolling back the country's nuclear program.

The claim by former Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif, now leader of the main opposition party, has been criticized by government officials who say Pakistan can make a bomb but doesn't plan to do so.

"I dismiss this as a very irresponsible statement," Ms. Bhutto said Wednesday night in the southern port of Karachi. She said Pakistan has no plans to alter its nuclear program, which is popular with the public and military leaders.

In comments published Thursday in several newspapers, Sharif defended his statement and said he wanted to stop Ms. Bhutto from making concessions to archrival India, which is considered capable of making atomic bombs.

"Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto was about to compromise on the nuclear program," Sharif told a small group of Pakistani journalists.

Sharif gave repeated assurances during his 1990-93 tenure as prime minister that Pakistan had no nuclear arms. He has not said when Pakistan built the weapon.

He also claimed India was preparing to launch attacks into the part of the Kashmir territory controlled by Pakistan. The disputed Himalayan state is divided into Pakistani and Indian sectors.

"By bringing facts on the record, I have ... preempted the Indian aggression against Kashmir and the (Pakistan) government's planned rollback," Sharif said.

Sharif's comments are widely seen as part of his campaign to weaken Ms. Bhutto's government, and not as a change in Pakistan's nuclear policy.

"It is unlikely that Mr. Sharif has rethought his view on Pakistan's strategic doctrine," commented The News, a leading English-language newspaper. "He is a man of few thoughts and not given to cerebral labors of this sort."

The United States cut off aid to Pakistan in 1990 when it declared that the country had crossed the "nuclear threshold."

Orson Welles' last film finally is shown, gets mixed reviews

LONDON (AP) — Forty years after Orson Welles began making "Don Quixote" and nine years after his death, the newly completed film ended its journey to the screen with a premier at the Edinburgh Film Festival.

Welles' pet project, shown for the first time last week with his 68-minute narration, was playing to a second sold-out house Thursday.

"All books written on Orson Welles now need another chapter," said Mark Cousins, head of programming for the Edinburgh Film Festival.

But some critics thought that finishing the film was a misadventure worthy of its windmill-jousting hero.

"The film was rambling. I felt that Welles would have been more ruthless with the editing," said Paul Dempsey, reviews editor of the weekly film magazine Screen International.

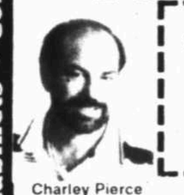

"And the music score destroyed it. It was intensely repetitive, which is disappointing since Welles was a great pioneer of sound."

Irene Bignardi, film critic of Italian newspaper La Repubblica, called it a marvelous film. "It's almost beyond criticism, more of a curio than something you can evaluate," she said in an interview.

Pentagon: More troops, money needed for Cuban refugee camp

■ Some refugees sent to Texas. Thousands more soldiers likely to go to Guantanamo Bay. Camp setup cost alone may reach $100 million.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Thousands more U.S. soldiers will be sent to Guantanamo Bay Naval Station to run detention camps for Cuban boat people, and the setup cost alone may reach $100 million, Pentagon officials said Thursday.

Up to 9,000 extra soldiers are likely to go, joining the roughly 3,000 already there as the military rushes to expand the refugee camp capacity at Guantanamo to as many as 60,000 people.

Pentagon spokesman Dennis Boxx said the cost of setting up the Cuban camps is expected to be about $100 million. It will cost about $20 million a month — or $15 a day per Cuban refugee — to run the camps.

The Coast Guard rescued 3,096 Cubans on Wednesday and 930 more by late morning Thursday, as weather forecasters warned of an approaching storm that could whip up 15-foot seas by the weekend and smash the refugees' rafts.

At the White House, President Clinton made clear that U.S. discussions with Cuba would be limited to immigration issues — not lifting the economic sanctions. "I think Mr. Castro knows the conditions for changing that policy."

"The people of Cuba want democracy and free markets," Clinton said. "That's always been our policy and that will continue to be our policy. I would urge the American people to be firm and be calm about what is going on here now."

In a speech Wednesday night, Fidel Castro said the only way to solve the refugee crisis was for the United States to open talks with Havana.

White House chief of staff Leon Panetta, in an interview with The Associated Press, said he was "feeling much better" about the government's ability to handle the surge of Cubans trying to reach U.S. shores.

Asked whether Castro would have to leave power before the United States dropped its long-standing economic sanctions, Panetta said, "If he is willing to move to make the kind of reforms that are essential to move Cuba toward democracy, then that would be an important signal to us."

Meanwhile, 49 of the Cubans who made it across the Florida Straits to detention on U.S. shores were taken to an immigration facility at Port Isabel in southern Texas — the first movement outside Florida.

The Pentagon said about 5,500 Cuban boat people already had been taken to Guantanamo Bay in southeastern Cuba and more than 7,000 more were aboard U.S. Navy and Coast Guard ships headed there.

The U.S. Navy base is on an arid, rocky and mostly barren 32-mile stretch of Cuban scil on both sides of Guantanamo Bay.

Marine Corps Lt. Gen. John Sheehan said its refugee capacity would be expanded to between 40,000 and 60,000 as quickly as possible. Currently the base accommodates about 14,500 Haitian refugees on an unused air strip.

Sheehan cited a "distinct possibility" members of U.S. military reserve units will be needed to augment the force.

U.S. troops are building quarters for the Cubans at Camp Bulkeley.

Fearing ban, folks flock to buy assault weapons

Once again, as Congress considers one of the toughest gun control measures ever, people are heading to gun stores to purchase the very weapons that may soon be unavailable.

Although current sales haven't approached the buying booms triggered by passage of the Brady law last year or the House's first vote to ban assault weapons in May, guns are still big business.

"Every time they mention the crime bill on the news, people come into the shop," said Cesare Venegoni, assistant manager at Jim's Military Collectibles in Plano, Texas. "A lot of people are afraid they might not be able to have a gun. That fear has prompted them to buy one."

Leo Papageorgio noticed the same trend at his Edelman's gun shop on New York's Long Island.

"This ban is having the adverse effect of what they're trying to accomplish," said Papageorgio, who predicted "pandemonium" on his sales floor if the Senate approves the ban. The ban would take effect immediately upon President Clinton's signature.

"When that legislation first came out, it was like a bazaar in here. We couldn't get enough from distributors," he added. "People are afraid they won't be able to get one in the future. That's what a feeding frenzy is all about."

The crime bill passed by the House and being considered by the Senate prohibits sales of 19 assault-type guns, plus about 180 specific models that are copies or look-alikes of the 19.

When the Brady law — which requires a five-day waiting period to purchase a handgun — was passed in November, it had a 90-day grace period before it took effect. That triggered the first buying boom, dealers say.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., proposed the ban on assault guns in November, and by a 56-43 vote it was added to the Senate version of the crime bill at that time. The House passed it as a separate measure in May. Proponents of the ban say the guns are designed specifically to kill or maim humans and have no hunting value. Opponents such as the National Rifle Association say the ban will do little to prevent crime.

"There was a tremendous surge in sales late last year and in May. It was unbelievable. There's not the same rush now, but any day there could be," said Norman Van Wegenen, who runs a pawn shop and gun store in Orem, Utah.

He and other dealers have given mock sales awards to President Clinton.

Guns waste more than million years of life annually

ATLANTA (AP) — Firearms annually waste more than 1 million years of potential life, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported Thursday.

Each year, the CDC examines the leading causes of death and years lost due to injuries, cancer and heart disease. The agency added firearm-related deaths for a look at years lost between 1980 and 1991.

The CDC computes potential lost life by subtracting a person's age at death from age 65, the benchmark for retirement.

In 1991, guns cost 1,072,565 years of potential life, up 13.6 percent since 1980, the agency said. In 1980, there were 33,780 firearm-related deaths and 944,125 years lost from guns.

"We are destroying our future with firearms," said the CDC's director, Dr. David Satcher. "It's not just lives lost, but lives injured or maimed . . . children who are too afraid to play in the streets."

Nearly 75 percent of the 13.6 percent increase was due to murder, the CDC said. Among the leading causes of death, only AIDS claimed more years from American lives, said Dr. Patrick Kachur of the CDC's National Center for Injury Prevention and Control.

Suicides attributed to guns increased 20 percent, from 15,396 in 1980 to 18,526 in 1991. The years lost in that category increased by 10.5 percent. Data suggest that suicide among the elderly is at a rate not seen since the Depression.

Much of the murder increase came in the late 1980s as more teens and young adults died in gunfire, Kachur said.

Donna Shalala, the secretary of health and human services, said the CDC report sends a powerful message to "take handguns out of the hands of our children and assault weapons off our streets."

Satcher said it was "entirely accidental" that the report was released the day of a key vote in the Senate on President Clinton's long-stalled crime bill, which includes a provision for curtailing use of assault-style guns.

Beal achievements helped others here

Midland oilman, philanthropist and polo enthusiast Carlton Evans Beal, who died Tuesday morning at the age of 79, will certainly be remembered by thousands of Midlanders for his involvement and achievements in all those endeavors. His achievements in each of those pursuits were noteworthy in themselves.

He was an independent oil operator who moved to Midland from Los Angeles, Calif. in 1954 and formed Beal, Trobaugh and Associates, better known as BTA. Beal was successful in his oil business and was eventually founder and chairman of the Beal Foundation, which has given generously to various tax-exempt and charitable organizations. As a fourth-generation polo player, Beal both played on the field and served the sport on governing boards. He had been selected for the highly prestigious Polo Hall of Fame.

There were other aspects of the oilman's life, however, that were not as visible, but nonetheless as important. A graduate of Stanford University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, from which he received a masters in petroleum engineering, Beal was teaching advanced petroleum engineering in 1946-47 at the University of Southern California when he began hearing of a student who knew as much and in many cases more about drilling oil wells as the instructors knew. Beal finally met the student, Allen "Moose" Trobaugh, and it was the beginning of a fabulous business partnership. Trobaugh knew about oil drilling because his family was in the cable-tool drilling business and he had spent his entire life in the "Oil Patch."

After coming to Midland and getting involved with the United Way, Beal became interested in conducting a follow-up on the member agencies to determine how well the money contributed was being used. At that time, about 1970, there were no committees to oversee how the member agencies were performing, so Beal began conducting unplanned visits to the agencies and having other volunteers do the same. What he learned led to the allocations process that United Way of Midland uses today to disburse funds to member agencies and to check their performance. That process instituted accountability to the United Way program and, according to Paul Rea, a member of the Beal Foundation board which has contributed heavily to United Way over the years, really led to United Way's virtual "year-round function" in Midland.

He was also instrumental in the progress of Trinity School, Midland College, Midland Community Theatre, Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale, the Petroleum Museum and the Museum of the Southwest.

Always interested in youths, Beal worked with the YMCA in Midland and even took many young people with him to Hawaii so they could learn to surf and scuba dive. According to Rea, work of the United Way for youths "has always been very dear to him. He has always been interested in youth."

An avid world traveler, Beal had been around the world about 200 times, trips he documented to his children through letters, and had rafted through the Grand Canyon about 20 times.

Beal also authored a number of books.

Carlton Beal's life in Midland was one of achievement and his work in the interest of the community, particularly its youths, stands as a hallmark other Midlanders should attempt to carry on. He will be missed.

JACK ANDERSON

Some poor scientists pose nuclear threat

DNEPROPETROVSK, Ukraine — One week before German authorities seized nearly a pound of weapons-grade plutonium as it was being smuggled into the country, we spent an evening in the apartment of one of the former Soviet Union's top nuclear physicists. His story helps explain why nuclear secrets — and weapons materials — are flowing out of the former Soviet republics at an alarming rate.

Anderson

In a sparse, two-room apartment on the outskirts of Kiev, this scientist, who did not want his name used, told how his life has changed since the breakup of the Soviet Union. This scientist now claims to earn the American equivalent of $10 per month. To survive, he and his family moved into a run-down apartment on the edge of town, which was given to them free in exchange for a promise to renovate it.

To buy food and provide for his family, this scientist is forced to rely on a wealthy sister-in-law, who considers herself well-off because of $500 tucked away in a bank account.

It doesn't seem so long ago, this scientist said, that he was one of the first to fly into Chernobyl — just one week after one of the nuclear reactors there exploded. His job was to help construct the coffin, as he calls it, which now contains the reactor.

Like most Ukrainians, this man associates his current hardship with the advent of democracy, not with the Communist system. Though Communism stole the freedom, and nationality, it also put food on the table and bestowed privileged status on the educated classes.

Unfortunately, this scientist is not alone. All across the former Soviet Union, the pillars of what was once the world's most fearsome military-industrial complex are now living in poverty. Stripped of their prestige, their job security and their income, these scientists and other former high-ranking officials may now represent an even bigger threat to American national security than they did a few years ago.

This scientist says he has not yet sold his knowledge to foreign bidders. Yet he acknowledged that some of his colleagues, who remain unnamed, have already sold out to cash-toting smugglers from abroad. The reasons, he insists, have nothing to do with ideology and everything to do with basic survival.

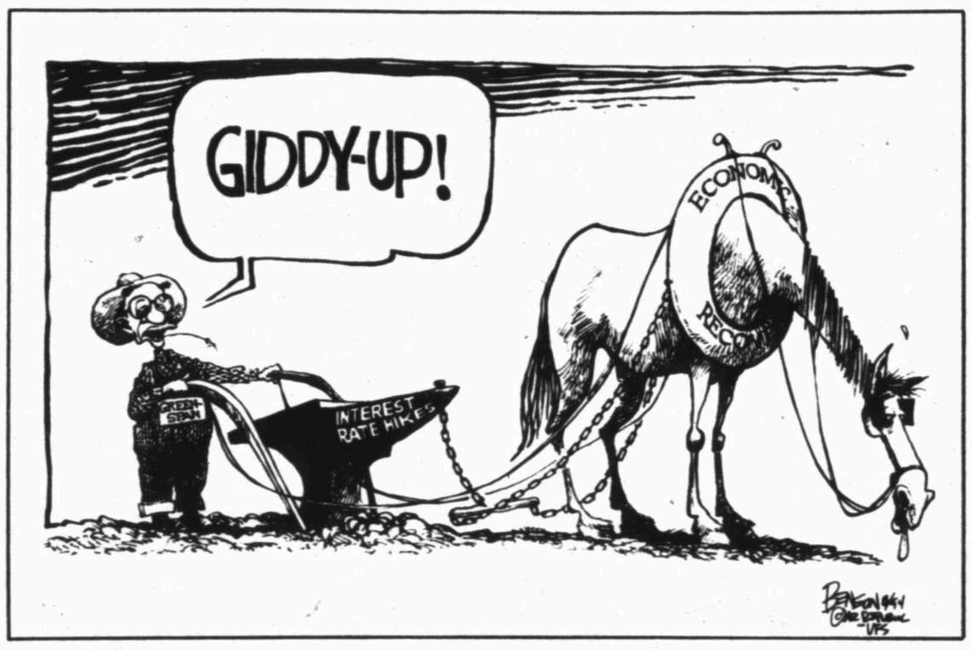

Since the former Soviet Union had an extremely diverse and widespread nuclear production network, the possibilities are great that one of these facilities will develop a serious security breach. It only takes a handful of profit-seeking employees to engineer a heist of these weapons.

In the city we visited, Dnepropetrovsk, things seem to be well-guarded. This city was once the production site of most of the intercontinental ballistic missiles which were aimed at the United States during the Cold War.

Officials here say this plant remains one of the most heavily guarded sites in the former Soviet Union. The actual warheads, officials said, are guarded on the ground by elite units called Special Weapons Custodian Section, which remain under the tight control of military hardliners.

Despite great efforts by the Bush and Clinton administrations to account for and control the nuclear arsenal of the former Soviet Union, we encountered great bitterness toward America for failing to provide a peaceful alternative to military production. After spending years of fighting a war that was lost without a bullet being fired, the scientists and technicians we met are struggling against a future that looks increasingly uncertain. Unfortunately, it seems the recent plutonium seizure in Germany will not be the last.

CHARLEY REESE

Museum chief has warped view of WW II

Next May, the National Air and Space Museum in Washington is planning an exhibit of the Enola Gay, the B-29 that dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima. Veterans are angry — and justly so.

Reese

Veterans say the museum plans to present Japan as a victim, almost a victim of racism. For a public museum to turn United States victory in World War II into a guilt trip is more than the veterans can stomach.

The problem is the intellectual arrogance of the museum director, Martin Harwit. He wrote in the Washington Post that there were two views of the bombing — the widely held patriotic consensus that the act was necessary and ended the war and "...the more analytical, critical and to some discomforting view" that stresses the "horrors of nuclear war." In other words, there is the dumb, patriotic view and the smart, sophisticated anti-American view.

Actually, it is Mr. Harwit who seems, on this subject, to be dumb as well as arrogant. To suppose that those American servicemen who were neck-deep in the horrors of war do not understand the horrors of war as well as academic twits do, is arrogant, ignorant, and absurd.

In World War II, estimates are that some 50 million people were killed. About 200,000 died at Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Why are their deaths somehow more horrible than the deaths of 49,800,000 others? On the contrary, those at ground zero died a far more merciful death than many who died slow, painful deaths at the hands of the Japanese army. Was Hiroshima more horrible than Auschwitz or Stalingrad or Bataan or Nanking?

Death is death. Pain is pain. Fire is fire. Concussion is concussion. Morally, there is no difference between dropping a conventional bomb and an atomic bomb. The only difference is the burst radius and the intensity of the explosion. As a matter of fact, conventional firebombing of Tokyo caused more casualties than the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki combined. Americans and others who died from Japanese bombs and bullets, bayonets or swords, or forced starvation in prison camps, were not less dead than those who died in Hiroshima.

The Japanese government began the war. They attacked the United States and invaded other countries. They were not merciful or gentle invaders. The atomic bombs — and all the fighting that led up to that point — ended it. The choice facing President Harry Truman was not drop the bomb or make peace instead. The choice was drop the bomb or order an invasion of the Japanese homelands. That would have prolonged the war and killed a million or more Japanese and Americans.

Truman made the merciful decision: He killed some and saved many. War forces those kinds of cruel decisions. And if the people in charge of the public's museum cannot grasp that, then they don't deserve to occupy those positions. The Japanese who died at Hiroshima and Nagasaki were victims of their own government, not ours. The president who ordered the bombing and the men who dropped the bomb were heroes. They, after being forced into a war by the Japanese government, saved lives by taking lives.

There are among us a few weird and sick individuals. Some strange compulsion inside them causes them to hate themselves, hate their country, hate their heritage, and hate their history. They seem unable to see or to think clearly.

Well, I hope they can find a good shrink.

As for the rest of us, we must not allow a public museum to turn one of America's finest hours into an insult to some of America's finest people.

The U.S. government has made mistakes, but dropping atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki was not one of them. Hiring Martin Harwit was.

Charley Reese's column is distributed by King Features Syndicate.

ANOTHER VIEW

Driver ed class insurance discounts keep Texas safe

Texas Insurance Commissioner J. Robert Hunter has a bad idea. He wants to end the practice of awarding insurance discounts to drivers who enroll in defensive driving courses to remove a ticket from their records.

His argument, backed by insurance companies who see the profit in such a measure, is that ticketed drivers have poor habits and get double benefit from the course. Next month, during a hearing on auto-insurance rates, Texas will consider dropping the discount.

Texas shouldn't.

The proposal overlooks the less visible benefits of discounts — driver education, maybe even safer roads. Perhaps more drivers will learn the importance of using a seat belt, the dangers of drunken driving, the painful lesson of not being vigilant on the road.

Admittedly, not all of them will. But it's not just the people who attend defensive-driving courses who benefit from them. The public safety quotient rises with every individual who learns more about good driving.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Word 'racism' loses meaning, begins to smell

It's past time to open the door of the linguistic deep freeze and therein thrust the word "racism." The word has lain too long on the counter. It's starting to smell. We can unthaw it later if we must, but right now, the need is to rid political discourse of a word without discernible meaning.

Murchison

I offer two examples from one convention in one city, Dallas.

Along came the inimitable Joycelyn Elders the other day for a speech to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. The surgeon general had sniffed the political atmosphere surrounding the health-care debate. She was unhappy.

She would have us know that to oppose the Clinton plan is to commit racism. "I know them well," she said of the plan's opponents. "I learned how to deal with them, with the racism. They were against women's rights, with the sexism. Then they were against abortion. They just change their issue. They are the same people, and we allow them to win."

A day or so later, up rose SCLC president Joseph Lowery. "Racism is gaining respectability again," he declared. "There's a resurgence of racism and you find it at almost every level of life." Lowery concurred with Mrs. Elders: "Much of the opposition to meaningful health-care reform is racially motivated."

What an insult to intelligence, the claim that one can't oppose a hyper-costly, hyper-bureaucratic rip-off like the Clinton plan without revealing hidden fantasies of racial purity. "This kind of stuff is just latter-day McCarthyism," said Sen. Phil Gramm's press secretary, Larry Neal. There's another outdated word for you — "McCarthyism," which has come to mean any mean-spirited, unwarranted attack. But its use, in response to accusations of racism, has a certain resonance. "Racism," too, has come to mean anything the user of the word doesn't like.

Take this health-care business. You can look at the matter from numerous perspectives, such as jobs. The major health-care bills, it is widely believed, will decrease employment by increasing business costs. Many if not most of the lost jobs would have gone to members of racial minorities. Preserving and expanding such jobs — if that is not a civilly righteous endeavor, what is?

The major health bills would fund abortions. A large number of aborted babies are nonwhite. Is it "racist" or "anti-racist" to reduce the incentives to take such lives? We know how Elders would answer the question. Those "against abortion," says she, are the same folk who fought civil rights. But where does she get this? She certainly hasn't researched the rosters of pro-life organizations. Nor has she confronted the illogic of her position: Why would "racists" labor to save non-white lives? Wouldn't they work, rather, to broaden access to abortion?

Lowery has another odd complaint. It's over proposals to close various black colleges in the South and merge their student bodies with those of larger white institutions. One can't blame him for being upset over the proposals, but where do they come from, the Klan? Not at all. They come from civil rights advocates Inside the Justice Department and the federal courts; these contend that black colleges entrench unconstitutional racial segregation. Isn't it more logical that real-live racists would support rather than oppose the molding of black and white colleges? Yet Lowery sounds off as though he had just finished reading the KKK's secret plan for undermining the Brown decision.

Deep-freezing the word "racism" clearly wouldn't cause Americans miraculously to transcend their racial divisions, but it might conduce to more honest discussion thereof. "Racism/racist" has been milked of meaning. When In doubt, you brand your adversary a racist, if only to save cogitation. The day the civil rights establishment drops "racist" as the all-purpose epithet is the day society gains some hope of recovering the invaluable insight that "God created man in His own image, in the image of God created He him."

O.J.'s lawyers challenge DNA, claim rookie technicians fouled up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police lab technician Angela Mazzola's third crime scene was a big one: the O.J. Simpson double-murder case.

Blood samples she soaked up may play a big role in whether Simpson goes to the gas chamber, and the Simpson camp is doing everything it can to show rookies like Mazzola had no business being involved.

Defense attorney Robert Shapiro told The Associated Press that DNA tests showing a genetic match between crime-scene blood and Simpson's blood may be flawed because the original samples were improperly handled by inexperienced police technicians.

"When a lab analyzes evidence, and they come back and present the opinion that there is a match of blood, they are relying in fact on everything that was done before," he said. "If it wasn't done properly, most experts would not want to stake their professional reputations and opinions on samples which were not properly collected."

Mazzola wasn't the only one whose credentials were challenged. Another technician has only been doing DNA testing for six months and acknowledged he mislabeled a blood sample. Also, the AP has reported the victims' bodies were picked up by a temporary coroner's employee in a government work program.

The defense this week pounced on the experience of the technicians in a hearing that actually had nothing to do with the subject. Superior Court Judge Lance Ito was annoyed at the defense line of questioning, and a prosecutor said the whole thing was a "red herring."

But in his closing arguments on how to handle newly discovered evidence, defense attorney Gerald Uelmen insisted that technicians' experience was important.

"The questions that we are raising go to the issue of contamination," Uelmen said.

Mazzola was thrust into the case on a moment's notice, getting word that she would be a witness just hours before she had to take the stand.

She testified she started working in the police crime lab in January. Before the Simpson case, she had collected blood at two crime scenes and said she had "zero" experience at scenes where she had primary responsibility for evidence gathering.

She said she got a call at home the morning of June 13 and arrived at Simpson's Brentwood mansion at about 7 a.m., roughly eight hours after prosecutors said Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman were murdered.

Mazzola said she spoke with detectives and went about her work: blotting up blood with cloth swatches soaked in distilled water. The bloody swatches were put in unsealed plastic bags, then in coin envelopes, then packed into a cardboard box in the back of the crime lab truck. It was Mazzola who soaked up some of the blood on Simpson's driveway.

Mazzola's supervisor, criminalist Dennis Fung, was also at Simpson's house, but she said she worked on her own much of the time and wasn't watched by Fung.

At the crime scene — Ms. Simpson's townhouse — Mazzola collected what may be the most vital evidence in the case: blood drops leading away from the victims' slashed bodies.

Senate reduces chance of health plan this year

WASHINGTON (NYT) — In a move that could further diminish chances for passage of comprehensive health-care legislation this year, Majority Leader George Mitchell said Thursday that the Senate will delay debate on the measure until after Labor Day.

Mitchell's decision to let senators go home for a short summer vacation comes at a time when lawmakers have been unable to reach consensus on the complicated health care issue despite several weeks of public debate.

The House has already gone on recess, and Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said this week that his chamber may only be able to approve minor changes this year.

Several Democratic senators conceded that when lawmakers return in September they will have to settle for a far less ambitious measure than the plan proposed last year by President Clinton, which would have guaranteed health coverage for all Americans.

"Sometimes you have to take a few small steps," said Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont.

Clinton, who has made passage of health care one of the top priorities of his administration, said he did not believe that the recess would kill the health-care issue.

The president, whose own plan has grown increasingly unpopular, said he did not want to interfere with ongoing Democratic negotiations with moderate GOP senators.

"The less I say about it the better," Clinton said.

However, the decision to take a break was immediately interpreted by Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a vocal health-care reform critic, as an admission by Democrats that they have given up on health care for this year.

"I think this was surrender," said Gramm, who opposes all but the most minimal changes to the health care system.

Mitchell, D-Maine, had been adamant that the Senate would not break until it had passed the legislation.

He and many Democrats had argued that going home at this point could diminish any momentum left for an issue that has already lost a substantial amount of public support.

Furthermore, they feared that opponents of the bill would intensify lobbying efforts in members' districts over the break.

But on Thursday the Democratic leadership insisted that the decision to take a break was not an acknowledgement that health-care legislation was dead.

Democrat John Breaux of Louisiana, who had once argued that a break could be fatal to health care, on Thursday was suddenly portraying the recess as a helpful "cooling-off period."

"No, we're not giving up," said Sen. Thomas Daschle, D-S.D., one of Mitchell's lieutenants in the health-care effort.

Daschle conceded that the debate, which began earlier this month on the Senate floor, had failed to bring about support.

Strike that idles 43,000 GM workers ends

UAW members OK contract, end parts factory strike that causes many assembly plants in U.S. and Canada to close.

DETROIT (AP) — United Auto Workers union members approved a contract with General Motors Corp. on Thursday night, ending a two-day parts plant strike that had shut down 13 assembly plants and idled nearly 43,000 workers.

The vote was 778-34, said officials at GM's Inland Fisher Guide plant in Anderson, Ind., where 3,500 workers struck for two days.

The Indiana plant produces bumpers, exterior lights and light control parts used by the 13 assembly plants, which produce some of GM's hottest-selling vehicles and shut down when they ran out of parts.

Officials said the parts plant will resume operations starting with Thursday night's third shift.

"We were after the jobs and that's what we got," Ron Gettelfinger, director of Regional 3 of the UAW and a chief negotiator, had said prior to the announcement. "It didn't matter what the product line was, we just wanted the jobs. We want to do good quality work for General Motors."

A note from the local's shop committee told UAW members, "We urge you to vote yes."

GM spokesman John Shea said ratification of the agreement would mean the factory could be back in production today, but the assembly plants probably would be idle until sometime next week.

By Thursday, at least 13 GM assembly plants had closed and nearly 43,000 workers were sent home or told not to report for duty.

The plants build models including full-size pickup trucks and the new Chevrolet Luminas and Monte Carlos.

The strike occurred Tuesday after bargainers failed to settle disputes over local issues, including GM's transfer of work from the plant to outside contractors.

Gettelfinger said the contract promised them the product line through 1997.

Thursday's settlement might not head off additional plant closings, because it would take a couple of days to refill the parts pipeline.

Ward's Automotive Reports, an industry journal, estimated GM's production loss from the strike and shutdowns would total 20,000 vehicles this week.

The Anderson plant supplies parts to most of GM's more than two dozen North American car and truck assembly plants.

If the strike had continued, other parts plants they buy from might have had to close.

These GM assembly plants had closed Thursday:

Indicted congressman has hidden contributions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Campaign reports for Illinois Rep. Mel Reynolds, indicted last week on sexual charges, fail to list thousands of dollars in contributions since 1991 as required by law, a review of election records found.

A spot check of the unreported political action committee donations turned up some that were deposited at two banks that at the time were not registered to handle his campaign accounts.

The Chicago Democrat's campaign finances are being investigated by federal authorities. State officials last week charged him with child pornography and sexual assault of a 16-year-old campaign volunteer.

The government imposes strict rules requiring campaigns to quickly disclose donations and spending to ensure no political money is misused.

Federal law imposes penalties up to $5,000, or 100 percent of the campaign money involved, for failure to disclose donations. The Federal Election Commission can double those fines and also recommend criminal prosecution if the violations were knowing and willful.

Reynolds and his former campaign treasurer, who has filed a complaint against the congressman with the FEC alleging campaign irregularities, differ on who is to blame for the finance problems.

Reynolds said he believes any unreported PAC contributions were spent on the campaign. He blamed former treasurer Earl Worthington.

"If it wasn't on the report, that means that either Mr. Worthington deliberately didn't put it on or it was an oversight," Reynolds said. He said he is reviewing all campaign records and would file amended reports to disclose any donations that previously were not.

Several unreported donations have occurred since the congressman's wife, Marisol Concepcion, took over as treasurer.

Concepcion was first listed on FEC records as treasurer for her husband on Jan. 30, 1992. But Reynolds said Worthington still did all the reporting and managed the campaign's money until April 1993 and his wife just signed the reports.

Worthington, however, said he was "just a ghost treasurer" who simply followed Reynolds' instructions.

Worthington said he believed the congressman frequently converted all or portions of contribution checks into cash .

Q. When firefighters do searches why do they keep the same shoulder to the wall?

A. Firefighters must always think of safety, that is why they work in pairs when conducting searches. Under smokey conditions it is easy to get lost, even in a small room. Firefighters, upon entering a room to search, can keep the same shoulder against the wall, search, then exit the same way they entered. Members of the public can aid themselves in escaping a fire by using the same technique to find a window or a door.

Questions about emergency medical services or firefighting should be sent to Lights & Siren, P.O. Box 1152, Midland, 79702-1152.

Police chase

AMARILLO — A fleet-footed fugitive wanted in four states was on the lam again Thursday after eluding six police cars. The man who outran Amarillo authorities late Wednesday is believed to be Richard Dean Carter, a former Missouri prison inmate with a long record of escaping from jail and stealing cars. Carter, 31, is wanted in Texas, Missouri, Indiana and Florida. "I think we'll find him here in Amarillo," police Capt. Milton Pool predicted Thursday. Officers who found a stolen Ford pickup at about 8 p.m. Wednesday saw Carter step outside the house where the truck was parked. Carter turned and ran out the back door. He was spotted later that night buying hair dye in K-Mart, Pool said. Police found a small-caliber revolver on the floorboard of the truck, which was stolen in Brookshire, about 50 miles west of Houston. Pool said he expected Carter to try stealing another vehicle in Amarillo.

WASHINGTON — President Clinton nominated seven lawyers for the federal bench Thursday, including Republican appointee Fred I. Parker of Vermont for the U.S. Court of Appeals. Beaty for middle North Carolina, and David Briones for western Texas. The nominations are subject to Senate confirmation.

Museum opens environmental exhibit

■ New video exhibit at Permian Basin Petroleum Museum shows how oil industry protects air, land and waters.

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil Editor

The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum Thursday debuted a unique environmental exhibit designed to better acquaint the public with the petroleum industry's role in protecting the environment.

The $35,000 video exhibit — which was funded by Arco, Parker & Parsley Petroleum, Myco of Artesia, N.M., Compressor Systems Inc. and Santa Fe Resources — offers a variety of viewing options that deal with how the oil industry protects the air, land and waters.

Among those making video contributions to the exhibit were Conoco, Arco, Marathon, Tretolite Chemicals, Texas University Lands System and Compressor Systems Inc. According to Petroleum Museum Director Ed Rowland, the exhibit was a combination museum and industry project.

Marsha Sheffield, chairman of the Petroleum Museum Exhibits Committee, planned and helped coordinate the project with oil industry volunteers providing most of the actual development. Ms. Sheffield said the environmental exhibit was part of the museum's long-term goal of becoming a major information center for the oil and gas industry.

In dedicating the exhibit, Tony Best, president of Arco Permian, said it was time the oil and gas industry began to educate the public on the "excellent environmental performance" of the industry. "This exhibit offers an outstanding opportunity to do just that," said Best.

Best said several Arco employees, Mike Schall, Peter Simon and Leonard Trout, spent consider-

Candidate for state treasurer stops in Midland

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

David Hartman, a Republican candidate for state treasurer, has set his sights on being the Texas taxpayers' watchdog.

Campaigning in Midland Thursday, the Austin banker and Harvard graduate said he has the qualifications to serve as the financial manager for the state's "$15 billion bank and trust company."

"If the over 43 percent increase in state government spending continues, it's going to force a state income tax which the taxpayers of Texas don't want and can't afford," Hartman said.

"That's ridiculous," said state Treasurer Martha Whitehead in a telephone interview Thursday. "The voters passed a constitutional amendment prohibiting a state income tax. Only the voters can change that."

Hartman said the state treasurer's plan to merge her office with the state comptroller's would eliminate an important checks-and-balance on appropriation of state funds. "That's not true," Ms. Whitehead countered. "The Legislation writes the appropriations bills. The state treasurer doesn't have a thing to do with operating as a checks-and-balance. If Hartman believes that, he is running for the wrong job."

Ms. Whitehead said there "isn't one word about the Treasury serving as a checks-and-balance in the constitution or the government code."

She announced in November that she wanted to eliminate the Texas Treasury office as well as her own elected position of treasurer.

"It would save about $8 million per year of the taxpayers' money by eliminating duplication and waste," she said. "Duplication in state government surrounds every elected official. We have deputy administrators, press secretaries, travel aids and schedulers and personnel departments, and so on."

She noted that eliminating the state Treasury would take a constitutional amendment and would have to pass both the House and Senate by a two-thirds vote.

"I've been very encouraged with my conversations with lawmakers, and I have every confidence in their abilities and commitment to make government smaller," she said.

Hartman said a better proposal would be the "creation of a consolidated state finance and banking center managed by a professionally managed State Treasury Department."

He said taxpayers are "tired of seeing government spend money as fast as the economy grows."

Family searches for dog to prevent more rabies shots

By Katherine Poteet
Staff Writer

A seven-year-old Midland boy and his mother are searching for a dog.

Not as a pet or a watchdog, but to find out if the canine, which bit the boy on the foot, is carrying any diseases, including rabies.

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Seven-year-old Logan Forest waits to hear from a woman whose dog bit him Friday.

"We just want to know if the dog has rabies or any other disease we need to know about," said Kim Forest. "Right now, Logan is going through a series of rabies shots, which could stop immediately if we know the dog was not rabid."

Ms. Forest said her son, Logan, and two of his friends were playing at Fannin Elementary School Friday evening when a woman with a dog on a leash walked by them.

"He said the dog looked kind of like a dachshund," she said. "A small dog."

Logan and his friends asked the woman if they could pet the dog, and the woman gave them permission. However, Ms. Forest said the dog snapped at the children and punctured the top of Logan's foot with one tooth. According to the children, the woman then left the school grounds.

"I am not sure if she simply did not realize that the dog had actually bitten Logan or she was scared, but she just left the park," Ms. Forest said.

With their family doctor out of town, Logan was taken to Memorial Hospital and Medical Center, where Ms. Forest said hospital personnel said if no blood had been drawn when Logan was bitten, then the wound could be cleaned with alcohol. The boy was then sent home.

Ms. Forest was not advised to start a series of rabies shots on Logan until Tuesday when she took her other son to the doctor with an infection.

"Our doctor told us right then to start giving him rabies shots," Ms. Forest said. "We were told there are about 50

New director takes helm of Tech Prep program

Staff Report

Making sure that area employers can hire skilled and qualified workers is only one of the goals of Cheri Hensley, who recently was named the new director of the Permian Basin Tech Prep Consortium last week.

"We have to get students ready for the work force," Ms. Hensley said about Tech Prep, a national program designed to provide both a structure and substantive education to help young people focus on their future.

The Permian Basin Tech Prep Consortium is a partnership between area businesses, Midland College, Odessa College and Howard College and 36 schools from area independent school districts.

"Ms. Hensley brings a great deal of experience, enthusiasm and professionalism to this job. Her business and marketing background give her excellent insight into the challenges of the Tech Prep program," said Deana Lusk, Tech Prep steering committee member and Midland College associate vice president of instruction. Midland College is the fiscal agent for the Permian Basin Tech Prep Consortium.

Until her promotion, Ms. Hensley had been the Permian Basin Tech Prep curriculum specialist. Her duties included working with representatives of business and industry to identify essential compe-

Grammy-nominated songwriter to perform at Cactus Moon

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff Writer

James House traces his interest in singing back to his childhood, when, as a small boy, he spent time on his grandparents ranch in Klamuth Falls, Ore.

"I'd spend every summer up there, baling hay, herding cattle, spreading manure, fixing fences, whatever needed to be done," said House, who performs at Midland's Cactus Moon today.

"I mean, I used to drive a tractor when I was 6 or 7," said House, a Grammy-nominated songwriter for Dwight Yoakam's "Ain't That Lonely Yet."

"And I can remember my dad and his brothers singing all those old cowboy songs with the four-part harmonies. 'Tumbling Tumbleweed' and 'Red River Valley' were the kind of songs I was raised on. My dad even taught me to sing 'Cattle Call' when I was little, which was very hard because of the yodeling."

Eventually, his parents moved to Sacramento, Calif., where his mother checked groceries and his dad sold insurance.

"We lived maybe 60 miles form Merle Haggard. I was always listening to music: Buck Owens, Jim Reeves, Johnny Cash, George Jones, Roy Orbison, Marty Robbins — and later (Linda) Ronstadt, the Eagles, Van Morrison, Waylon (Jennings) and Willie (Nelson)."

House moved to Los Angeles to pursue songwriting. Then, in 1988, House moved to Nashville, Tenn., and has since made two critically acclaimed albums for MCA containing "Don't Quit Me Now" and "You Just Get Better All The Time."

House, whose success thus far has come mainly from his songwriting expertise, has since left MCA and signed with Epic.

"My heroes were Waylon and Willie, so I take solace in knowing they had to prove themselves as songwriters before they found success as artists,"

POLICE REPORTS

Vandalism

Two 16-year-old males are in Culver Youth Center charged with criminal mischief and burglary of a vehicle in connection with a string of vandalism cases that occurred Saturday.

According to police officials, a Crime Stopper tip led to the arrest of one of the teen-agers Monday. The male confessed to the crimes and then named the second male involved, who was arrested Tuesday.

Officials said one of the teenagers, who is from Midland, has a previous criminal record. The second, who just moved to Midland, might also have a previous record, according to officials.

The arrests solved 17 vandalism cases that occurred on the northwest side of Midland in which vehicles were spray painted and some burglarized, officials said.

diseases a dog can have in its mouth. There is a 99.9 percent chance that this dog is OK, but I just don't want to take that chance."

Logan will take the series of rabies shots for 28 days if the dog is determined to be rabid or if the Forests do not find the dog. However, no other medicine can be prescribed until doctors know if the dog that bit Logan was carrying any other diseases.

Ms. Forest said the sheriff's office and local animal control officials have been alerted to the situation.

"I am not after the woman," she said. "I think she just probably didn't realize Logan was bit. We just want to take care of Logan."

CANDIDATE: Hartman hopes to become next state treasurer

(From 1B)

He said there were plenty of better qualified women, especially some in commercial banking, to fill the treasurer's office than Ms. Whitehead and that the office has gone down hill since U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison left office.

"You don't have to be a banker to head up a state agency in a managerial position," Ms. Whitehead said. "Kay Bailey Hutchison was not a banker. Running the Treasury takes good management and motivational techniques, planning, having vision and an ability to hold the line on spending."

Hartman has a masters of business administration degree from Harvard. He is chairman and CEO of Hartland Bank in Austin and director of Valley Bancorp, which oversees $250 million deposits and $100 million investment portfolios. He has also served as chairman of Texans for Responsible Government and was former Gov. Bill Clements' appointee on the Special Committee on Organization of State Agencies.

"I'm afraid my opponent isn't qualified," Hartman said. "She should never have been appointed state treasurer by (Gov.) Ann Richards in the first place."

However, Ms. Whitehead, who earned a masters degree in business from East Texas State University, has served on the Texas Bond Review Board, the Texas State Banking Board, the ETSU Board of Regents, the Citizen's Lottery Commission, the Greater Longview Economic Development Foundation and was mayor of Longview as well as a Longview City Council member for two terms.

If elected, incumbent Ms. Whitehead said she would work to eliminate her office and position. "We don't have to bear the tax burden of an entire state agency just to perform our vital functions." She said just turning over the job of auditing and enforcing the tobacco tax collection to the State Comptroller's Office will save the state $1.5 million per year.

"The State Comptroller's Office already has hundreds of auditors and enforcement agents. We wanted to take advantage of that economy of scale, and we did," she said, noting that she is receiving support from both Democrats and Republicans to elminate the state agency.

"It's a dramatic step," she said. And if it happens?

"I'll be out in the job market. But it's the right thing to do. And the taxpayers' want more efficient and smaller government, not more bureaucracy."

Hartman, however, said he would see to it that state government would be made smaller under his direction. He said at least three other agencies, including the Pension Review Board, could be consolidated to cut down on spending.

"Moving three other state agencies into the Treasury isn't smaller government, it's bigger bureaucracy," Ms. Whitehead said. "Expanding the Treasury is creating new layers of bureaucracy."

"I would force the state to adjust its spending back into constitutional limits," Hartman said, noting that he would like to see tax relief for property taxpayers. "By making some sales tax a local option sales tax, we could reduce property taxes. That's my dream, and it would take legislative action. But it would send out an electric signal to businesses that Texas has it's appetite under control."

The GOP candidate said 14 other states are looking at tax reductions. "South Carolina reduced taxes and got a BMW plant," he said. "Hey, we need those plants and jobs in Texas, and if we could get taxes under control and government spending under control, Texas would be an attractive state to businesses."

Hartman said that, at the turn of the century, taxpayers paid $1 of every $10 to federal, state and local governments for services such as fire departments, police, schools, city streets and roads and "a world-class military." He said taxpayers now pay $5 of every $10 for the same services.

"Taxpayers are paying five times as much for the same services and nobody is getting five times as much benefit," he said.

"We need a qualified financial manager to run the state Treasury and to keep the books balanced."

Ms. Whitehead disagreed. "If we could eliminate the Treasury through a constitutional amendment, we could save all the money we're spending on press secretaries, schedulers, and our parking garage, even the building . . . all the duplication that's cemented into almost every part of state government."

TECH PREP: Area educational program gets new director

tencies of targeted occupations, overseeing the development and submission of six-year Tech Prep curriculum plans and planning a Technology Fair as a pilot program.

"It is a fact that technology is being used in all areas of industry and business. And, it is a reality that employees must be able to manipulate and use that technology. Students need to know this when preparing for their futures in the business world," Ms. Hensley said.

Ms. Hensley points out that research shows only 25 percent of American youth today will earn a baccalaureate degree and that 85 percent of all jobs in 1995 will require less than a baccalaureate degree but more than a high school diploma.

"We're not looking for just great scholars or just great technicians — but a balance between the two," Ms. Hensley said. "Our aim is to arm our students with a firm academic foundation as well as a sound technical knowledge base."

Ms. Hensley said one of the primary ways the Tech Prep program has been able to help provide more than 1,000 students in the Permian Basin with a "seamless education" is the cooperative program between the three area community colleges and local school districts. Students in the program can take college-parallel courses in high school for which they receive college credit once they enroll in Midland College, Odessa College or Howard College.

The Tech Prep program emphasizes a broad-based curriculum of academic and technical classes with academic-based instruction, cooperative learning and interdisciplinary teaching. Through a concept called "applied academics," the program emphasizes marketable skills that are relevant to the work place, Hensley said.

Ms. Hensley has a MBA in international marketing from The American Graduate School of International Management. She received her bachelor's degree from Loretto Heights College and Loyola University. Previously, she was director of marketing for Primary Medical Clinic and director of sales for Wellness Professionals, Inc.

SONGWRITER: House to perform

(From 1B)

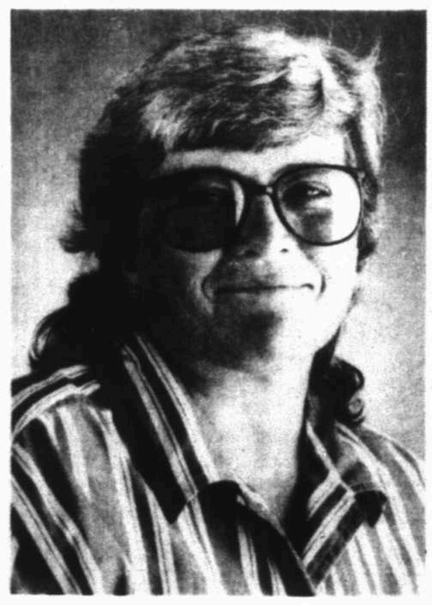

House said.

"When I was between record deals, I really got to focus, and it was such a gift. I fell in love with writing shuffles for the first time. I practiced my guitar and learned bluegrass. I even learned how to play songs I loved the right way, instead of the way I'd always faked it — and there's a lot to be said for not faking it."

He will be performing songs from his debut Epic album, "Days Gone By," during his Cactus Moon concert tonight. Doors open at 6 p.m. Cover charge is $5.

"Whether people laugh, cry or dance — whatever they need to get from the songs, I want it to be there. I'm always stunned when I get feedback about a song, because I don't write it to have power over anybody, but sometimes it touches people. That's a very humbling feeling."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Although loved ones' problems will sometimes infringe on your work hours, you will make considerable headway in business and finance. Guard against the high-pressure tactics used and advocated by others. Romance is lively! Do what you can to strengthen a marital relationship. An opportunity to travel arises early in 1995. Combine business with pleasure. New investments are favored next May and June.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actor Macaulay Culkin, singer Valerie Simpson, bandleader Bradford Marsalis, actress Jan Clayton.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): There is greater emphasis on independence and mobility now. A younger person could have the last word when an important decision is made. Ride with the tide. Family life holds special appeal this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You could get in over your head if you oversell an idea this afternoon. Emphasize practical aspects. Using up too many of your resources would be a mistake. Romance has its ups and downs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A confidential tip could prove very lucrative. Keep it to yourself! A new fashion trend gives you a clever business idea. Give a key partnership extra attention.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid any open conflicts, even if it means giving up a project. Current aspects stress the importance of complete financial cooperation. You can expect to make real headway with a long-term business venture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are susceptible to pressure from your friends today. Be prudent if asked to lend money. You need to broaden your social horizons. Work at it!

Strive to stay within your budget. Harnessing your vivid imagination to practical endeavors produces spectacular results.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your common sense comes to the fore today. A more selective approach to romance will brighten your social life. A cooperative effort begins paying off handsomely at work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Negotiating a real estate deal will be easier if you wait until conditions are more favorable. You could encounter both dishonest people and deceptive documents if you push ahead right now. Cut certain ties.

Opening lead: King of ♠

A doctor can't prescribe a cure without being able to diagnose the disease. A bridge player can't find a solution if unaware that a problem exists.

Unless the opening lead establishes a heart trick for the defenders, slam in clubs and game in diamonds appear to depend on a 3-2 club break. North-South did well to stop in the latter. When North showed little outside the diamond suit, South decided that discretion was the better part of valor.

West led the king of spades, and it did not require a bridge genius to realize that, as long as clubs were 3-2 or West held the King of hearts, the contract was unbeatable. Therefore, declarer set out to see if a 4-1 club split could be neutralized. No sure way was available, but South spotted an interesting possibility.

Declarer won the opening lead in hand, led a middle trump to the king and ruffed a spade. Another trump to the queen drew both outstanding fangs while providing an entry to ruff the last spade high. Now declarer exited with a low club!

We would like to say that, sitting West, we would have shot up with the queen — a 'crocodile coup' — and swallowed partner's jack. Truth to tell, however, we would have followed low, as did West, and East was endplayed.

A spade return would yield a ruff-sluff, so East was forced to return a heart. Declarer ducked that and, whether or not West held the king, the contract was secure—either the queen would win or furnish a discard for declarer's remaining low club.

Brando discusses women, affair with Marilyn Monroe in new book

NEW YORK — Marlon Brando considers himself "lucky" with women, including Marilyn Monroe.

"We had an affair and saw each other intermittently for years," Brando said in his new book, "Brando: Songs My Mother Taught Me." An excerpt appears in Sunday's Parade magazine.

The star of "The Godfather" and "On The Waterfront" recalls that he met Miss Monroe when both were students at Lee Strasberg's Actors Studio. Brando, 70, said he joined "to meet girls."

In 1962, Miss Monroe "called and invited me to come over for dinner. I already had plans but promised to call the following week. She said fine. Two or three days later, she was dead," Brando said.

On women, in general, Brando added, "There have been many in my life, though I hardly ever spent more than a couple of minutes with any of them. I've had far too many affairs to think of myself as a normal, rational man."

Brando's book is scheduled for release next month.

HAMPTON, N.H. — Fans who turned out for a Tanya Tucker concert want their money back.

A spokesman for the Hampton Beach Club Casino said the country singer showed up an hour late for Tuesday's show and performed for only 45 minutes.

Tanya Tucker concertgoers want their money back.

Fred Schaake said 1,000 people paid between $27 and $29 per ticket and "the crowd reaction was that it was not her best performance." He didn't know how many fans sought refunds.

Jennifer Barton of the Nashville, Tenn.-based Trifecta Entertainment, which handles Tucker's marketing and promotion, blamed some of the delay on sound problems.

"We did get few calls from the fans," she said. "We've taken telephone numbers and she's handling those calls personally."

WASHINGTON — The wife of Washington Redskins owner Jack Kent Cooke pleaded guilty in District of Columbia Superior Court Thursday to operating a motor vehicle while impaired.

Judge Fred McIntyre gave Marlena Cooke a suspended 30-day jail sentence, fined her $200 plus $10 court costs, and ordered her to successfully complete an alcohol diversion program within one year.

She could have been sentenced to as much as 30 days in jail and fined $300. Mrs. Cooke was arrested on June 10 after leaving the scene of a minor accident.

This was the second alcohol-related incident involving Mrs. Cooke in less than a year. She also is fighting a deportation order following a drug conviction.

NEW YORK — Herman Wouk and Jimmy Buffett might become Broadway's newest odd couple.

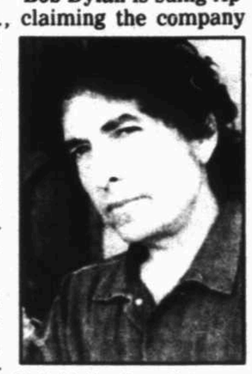

Wouk and Buffett are expected to begin work in November on a musical based on Wouk's 1965 novel "Don't Stop the Carnival." It's about a Broadway press agent who quits his job and buys an island hotel, hoping to find paradise. He doesn't.

If things go according to plan, there will be a stage production of "Don't Stop the Carnival" within a year, said Scott Zeiger of Pace Theatrical Group, which will coproduce the show.

Buffett's biggest hit "Margaritaville." Wouk's best-known books are "The Caine Mutiny" and "The Winds of War."

LOS ANGELES — Bob Dylan is suing Apple Computer Inc., claiming the company planned to steal his name for a new CD-ROM.

Bob Dylan is suing Apple Computer for using his name.

Apple plans to call the product "Dylan" and filed papers seeking a patent under that name, said Dylan's attorney, Joseph Yanny.

Dylan, whose real name is Robert Zimmerman, wants a temporary restraining order barring the use of his name.

Apple, according to the lawsuit, also has used the names of other famous people, including Isaac Newton and Carl Sagan "in a deliberate attempt to capitalize on the goodwill associated with these famous individuals."

Apple officials did not immediately return a call Thursday.

Sagan, an astronomer, sued Apple last year when he learned his name was the in-house code name for a personal computer Apple was developing. Apple agreed to drop Sagan's name.

A federal judge threw out part of Sagan's lawsuit but left intact his claims that Apple invaded his privacy.

FAMILY MATTERS

Extinguishing old flame may take some time

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: I feel really foolish writing this letter to you, but I have to find out about something. I went to my high school reunion almost three months ago and I saw an old boyfriend. He still looks really good to me and was very friendly. I haven't been able to stop thinking about him since, and I know that's dumb! We dated for over a year in high school and became very close. He was my first real love.

May

I never did know what happened, but when we came back to school for our senior year, he just broke up with me. I was truly upset for months. My mother even thought she was going to have to take me to a shrink (at least she threatened it). I did get better and had an OK senior year, but I just never got over Bob (not his real name). I have thought about him off and on all of these last 15 years, and I still don't understand why he dumped me.

When I saw him at the reunion, all of the old feelings came back. Then when he seemed very interested in me, they've gotten even stronger. Nothing happened between us, but it could have. I'm a happily married woman with children and everything I ever wanted, but it was so good to really talk (and flirt) again. Since the reunion, I've been very critical of my husband. He can't understand what's wrong with me. I know that in my mind I'm comparing him with Bob. When he asks what's going on, I obviously can't tell him, so I just keep trying to do better.

Now I know enough to know that this is silly, but I just can't stop thinking about "how things would be with Bob." He's married too, so all of this is just crazy. I haven't talked to him since the reunion, but why can't I stop thinking about him? This whole thing is driving me crazy. At my age, this is ridiculous. I feel like I'm ready for the funny farm and I know my husband would agree! I've even having dreams about him. This stuff has got to stop, help me!! STILL FLAMING

DEAR FLAMING: Strongly remembering and fantasizing about an old love is not unusual — especially a first love. No real explanation can be offered as to why these feelings continue, but relationship research often reveals the fact that the feelings do exist. For example, one study found that feelings about past relationships can affect feelings about a current relationship, which matches your experience. Take comfort in the fact that you are not really a candidate for the funny farm — others have similar experiences.

Research also reported that those who understood why a love relationship ended were much more satisfied with their current relationship, possibly because knowing why it failed provides some form of closure. Since you probably will never the why, you might consider another approach to closure. Consider getting a notebook "for your eyes only." Write your old flame letters expressing your pain and anger over his breaking up with you. Let your feelings have a voice. After you have written all that you need to write — and you will know when that occurs — burn the notebook.

This process is designed to give the subconscious a way to express itself rather than just through dreams. Your feelings are real and powerful. Let them have a channel to resolve your grief over a lost love. As we know from hundreds of years of poets and literature, love is inexplicable.

THE CENTERS FOR CHILDREN AND FAMILIES OFFER THE FOLLOWING IDEAS ON DISCIPLINING CHILDREN:

- Discipline is helping children develop self-control.
- Discipline is setting limits and correcting misbehavior.
- Discipline also is encouraging children, guiding them, helping them feel good about themselves and teaching them how to think for themselves.
- Spanking is not a useful approach to discipline.
- Discipline should help children to learn how to control their own behavior.
- Spanking is used to directly control children's behavior and does not teach children to change what they are doing.
- Spanking can teach children to be afraid of the adult in charge.
- Good discipline teaches children to respect the adult in charge.
- Respect goes both ways — treat children with respect and let them have some control and they will respect and listen to you.
- Spanking can make children afraid to misbehave — but probably only when you are watching.
- Children need to learn to control their own behavior even when you are not around to watch them.

Summer day camp hosts ill, disabled children

By Enid Nemy
N.Y. Times News Service

Orman W. Ketcham put on a wig, stuck two enormous "beaver" teeth between his lips, went out on stage and danced his version of the Charleston.

His recent performance was as much a surprise to him as it was to the audience, many of whom summed it up with their favorite word — awesome.

Ketcham, 75, is a retired judge of the Juvenile and Superior courts of the District of Columbia.

The audience in the big rustic cabin on the scenic shore of Lake Vanare in upstate New York consisted of 82 critically ill and severely handicapped children between ages 6 and 16. They were spending eight days at the Double "H" Hole in the Woods Ranch, founded last year by Paul Newman, the actor, and Charles R. Wood, a philanthropist, in Lake Luzerne, N.Y.

Ketcham was one of 19 men and women, all over 60, taking part in a new program sponsored by Elderhostel, a Boston-based nonprofit organization started in 1975 to offer older adults modestly priced learning opportunities with accommodations in academic settings.

LAST YEAR, some 290,000 men and women took part in the 12,000 programs held at 1,800 sites around the world, about 1,000 of them in the United States and Canada.

The educational aspect of Elderhostel was extended two years ago to include service programs, but this was the first season that working with sick and handicapped children in the 300-acre camp was among the choices. (A similar site, "The Hole in the Wall Gang Camp" in Ashford, Conn., was founded by Newman and Wood in 1988.)

A large majority of the campers, who are looked after by a staff that includes 36 young counselors, chosen from some 800 applicants, have cancer or serious blood disorders; a few suffer from neuromuscular impairments.

The hostelers, each of whom paid $550 for the eight days' room and board and the privilege of working, were on call for everything from shampooing the youngsters, baking cookies and helping with the camp's horses, goats, ducks, rabbits, ferrets, donkey and snake to teaching swimming, working in the infirmary ("Paul's Body Shop") and serving as mentors.

"We had a lot of apprehension, but it's a natural mix," said Max J. Yurenda, the administrative director of the ranch.

"The children are responding to them like one of the family." In fact, although some of the youngsters referred to the hostelers as "the elders," others called them "the grands" or "the grandmas" and "the grandpas."

"These people are neat, because you think older people act old and these don't," said Adam Jed, 12, of Pleasantville, N.Y., who contracted a blood disease when he was 4 and spends most of his time in a wheelchair. Adam, who plans to be a lawyer, added, "They aren't like grandfathers and mothers; they're like friends — after a while they get tired or something but they all act pretty young."

PARTICIPANTS IN other Elderhostel programs throughout New York State agreed that, in addition to the programs, their enjoyment stemmed from the caliber of discussion among fellow participants.

"You never see pictures of grandchildren at these things," said Kaye Tobin, 64, a real estate broker and grandmother of two from Huntington Beach, Calif.

"No one is on a diet, no one talks about doctors and they don't talk about themselves. They talk about places and things." She had traveled by bus across the country with her sister to attend a new program at Fordham University in Manhattan.

The program offered dormitory accommodations and lectures in the arts and literature of New York City. The five Fordham programs this season, each for 50 hostelers, were sold out, as were the two "Hole in the Woods" programs.

Ms. Tobin has seven children, each of whom, she said, sends her $300 a year. The gifts have paid for past Elderhostel programs and will go to future ones.

The cost for almost all the five- and six-day programs generally ranges from $275 to $355 for accommodations, meals and lectures. In most cases, participants stay in double rooms on campuses, in conference centers and commercial centers, with meals taken in cafeterias and dining halls.

At Hamilton College in Clinton, N.Y., Max E. Lourie, 85, a former mathematics teacher from Bayonne, N.J., was taking part in the type of program on which Elderhostel was built.

He was living in a dormitory on the 1,200-acre campus, eating in the cafeteria and attending lectures on "The Thinking Person's Hamlet," "The Fate of the Family" and "Prints and Printmaking."

"I went to New York University and there's no campus there," he said, explaining his attraction to the traditional type of program.

"I'VE ALWAYS been jealous of friends who went away to school and had a campus, and I was determined to have one. This is my sixth Elderhostel, and I always choose programs on campuses — they're so beautiful, you're inspired."

Lourie's wife was at home. "We have a philosophy that's lasted 50 years," he said.

"She says, 'You row your boat and I'll row mine.' She can't see herself standing in line for food or using a communal bathroom."

Single men, or men who attend without their wives, are an exception at most Elderhostels. Women, single, widowed, divorced or with husbands at home, and married couples make up the bulk of the enrollment.

Elizabeth Belmonte, 64, was also alone at Hamilton, although she had attended several Elderhostels with her husband, whom she met while she was with the British foreign service. She had found, she said, that being on her own led to getting to know more new people than she might have as part of a couple.

In fact, part of the Elderhostel appeal is its comfort factor for single women. Almost all the women traveling alone commented on the ease of making friends and the feeling of inclusiveness. Many campus programs offer activities like visits to nearby places of interest, sports centers, movies and square dances. There is also mingling at meals.

Despite some initial trepidation among hostelers, the opportunity of spending a reasonably priced week in Manhattan ($355), combined with lectures on the city's attractions and history, accounted for the waiting lists for the Fordham programs.

"MY FEAR factor of New York has gone down," said John Lees, 67, of Melbourne, Fla., a lawyer and former company tax officer. He and his wife, Mollie, who is 64 and a former biology teacher, "hit two Elderhostels a year," he said, adding, "They're congenial and affordable and on average the people are politically more liberal and more articulate than most."

Blanche Frenaye, 84, of Auburn, Calif., had a similar reaction to New York. "When I first came here, I didn't like the noise and the sirens," she said. "Now it's like a lullaby."

Mrs. Frenaye was a center of interest when word got out that she had met her husband at an Elderhostel in California nine years ago — and that she is 13 years older than he.

"I had been married 51 years and was a widow and I thought 'it's all through,'" she said. "Then I met Bill." She had to gather her courage to tell him her age, she said, but his reaction was everything she could have hoped for. "Now, I'm invariably approached by single women who ask, 'How did you do it?'"

MRS. FRENAYE had attended several Elderhostels before her initial meeting with her husband, but it was his first. Both Californians, they were married two years later, after corresponding and getting together halfway between their two homes. In the interim, she went to more Elderhostel programs; he didn't.

"We didn't think it proper to go together if we weren't married," said Frenaye, a former student financial aid director who had been twice divorced. Since their marriage, they've attended five together.

For Ketcham, who lives in Chevy Chase, Md., a highlight of his time at the Hole in the Woods Ranch (smash stage performance aside) was hearing various children call, "Hey Orm, come sit with me." He added, "It's been worthwhile."

Marcella Rueda, 7, from New Rochelle, N.Y., was pleased at having braved, safely harnessed, a wire walk 40 feet above ground.

On the final evening of their stay, the children made little boats out of twigs and vines, put a wish written on a piece of bark and a lighted candle in each boat and placed them in the lake to sail away into the unknown. The wishes could only be guessed.

Information is available from Elderhostel at (617) 426-8056.

Margaret Amberg of Bloomfield, Mich., her granddaughter, Katie Amberg, 11, of Anaconda, Mont., and Frank Rideout of Marietta, Ga., look up at the trees as they stand on a floating boardwalk in the cypress swamp at Heron Pond, Ill. All three were attending a week-long program in the Shawnee Forest, designed to bring grandparents and their grandchildren closer together.

Grandparents, grandchildren share program

By Frank Fisher

HERON POND, Ill. (AP) — For one precious week, Margaret Amberg is hiking, swimming and exploring the forests of southern Illinois with her 11-year-old granddaughter, Katie.

There are no worried parents, no rigid schedules.

"This is an important time in her life growing up," Amberg, who lives in Bloomfjeld Hills, Mich., said recently as she watched the girl scamper away on a rickety wooden bridge. "She's been a little girl, and it's not going to last much longer."

"I'm used to seeing my parents all the time and not my grandma, so I like to spend more time with her," said Katie Amberg, who lives in Anaconda, Mont.

The Ambergs are among 54 older people and their grandchildren at a camp organized by Elderhostel to bring the two age groups together. The Boston-based Elderhostel sponsors activities for older people around the country.

Besides bringing families closer together, organizers hope that the program inspires an appreciation of nature. Some, like young Daniel Ziluca, who lives in a New York City suburb, haven't spent much time in the woods before.

"Well, there's not much of this in New York," Ziluca said while admiring Heron Pond's towering cypress trees and moss-covered swamp with his grandmother, Samantha Monheit, who lives in Southern California.

It was the first time the two had spent much time together alone.

"This is a neutral zone, a zone to share and experience and have fun without any other pressures," said Curtis Carter of Southern Illinois University's Touch of Nature environmental center, where the group stays and plays.

Not all of the children live far from their grandparents, but that hasn't made the experience less meaningful. Chris Fletcher, 11, of Waukegan came with his grandmother from Rockford.

"We see each other more often than most grandparents and grandchildren do, but you know we've never really had any quality time, when it's just the two of us," Chris said.

The camp costs $290 per adult and $225 per child between the ages of 9 and 13.

Cause of Alzheimer's memory loss suggested by researchers

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unexpected discovery by researchers at the National Institutes of Health may help to explain how Alzheimer's disease causes memory loss.

The research shows that beta amyloid, a common protein in the brain, can make cell membranes leak choline and thus reduce production of acetylcholine in cells.

Choline, an essential ingredient in acetylcholine, has been known for many years to help store and retrieve memories. Two hallmarks of Alzheimer's disease are accumulation in the brain of beta amyloid and reduction of the concentration of acetylcholine. In Alzheimer's disease, as well as in older subjects with Down syndrome, the brain cells which produce acetylcholine are known to die.

The research was reported in the May 23 issue of Brain Research by investigators at the National Institute on Aging and the National Institute of Neurological Disorders.

Agency pays for forced retirement

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the Kentucky State Police to pay an additional $10 million to 35 former employees wrongly forced into retirement 13 years ago.

The employees, all former officers, had to retire at age 55 before Oct. 19, 1981.

The first phase of the 10-year-old case ended two years ago when U.S. District Judge William Bertelsman ordered the state police to pay more than $6 million to 39 officers forced into early retirement.

DEAR ABBY

Funeral flowers cause grief when it's time for thank-yous

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from the early 1970s.

By Abigail Van Buren

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Will you please do a tremendous service for many, and remind those who send flowers to a funeral to please request that their full names and addresses be written on their cards?

I have spent days trying to find out who some of the folks are who sent flowers to my mother's funeral. (One card said, "My deepest sympathy, Betty." No last name, no city. Just "Betty.")

You would think that when a florist takes an order for flowers, he or she would insist that all cards be signed with full names and addresses, since he is the one the family will pester later when trying to track down the senders to thank them. — STILL HUNTING

DEAR STILL: Not only should flowers for funerals have cards with full names and addresses, but all gifts should have TWO such cards to identify the sender: one on the inside, which invariably gets thrown out with the tissue paper: and one on the outside, which is sure to be illegible due to water damage or rough handling.

DEAR ABBY: When my girl and I started going together, I asked her to please get her teeth fixed, as she needed it badly. I even offered to pay for it. She agreed to see a dentist, but she never did. I know she hasn't been to a dentist in a good many years.

We are planning to be married in a few months. Last night I reminded her of her promise and told her to start right away so she would look nice for our wedding. She turned very cold on me and said she didn't want to discuss it.

Abby, she's a very pretty girl, but her teeth are ugly. When she smiles, it spoils her looks.

She's a wonderful person in every other way. But her teeth are so bad, I would even postpone our wedding until she gets them fixed. What should I do? — THE GROOM

DEAR GROOM: The only logical reason for your fiancee to duck the dentist is fear. She needs to be assured that dentistry has come a long way since she was a little girl. Offer to go with her and let the dentist examine her mouth and explain exactly what must be done. A neglected mouth is not only unsightly, it's unhealthy. She may be a wonderful girl, but she needs to grow up and face reality. Help her.

DEAR ABBY: In the summer of 1944, I met and fell in love with a wonderful Marine. I knew he loved me, too, but for reasons I won't go into, we didn't marry then.

I tried hard to forget him, but I guess I never really did. I still have his letters, and when I read them and play all those tunes, "I Walk Alone," "I'll Be Seeing You," "Saturday Night Is the Loneliest Night in the Week," etc. I feel he is near.

I know he is still living in the Northeast and I would love to see him again.

While trying to forget him, I married a guy I'd known all through school, but it lasted only five years. I guess I didn't love him enough.

Abby, I am told I'm too nice-looking to stay alone, but I think I am one of those women who can love only once. I've never met a man who can measure up to my Marine. Any suggestions? — SEMPER FIDELIS

DEAR SEMPER: Quietly investigate and find out if he's married or single. If he's single, maybe you can pick up where you left off. It's worth a try. Good luck.

'Casual days' inspire more casual clothes

EL PASO (AP) — "Dressing down" — wearing casual clothing to the office on Fridays — is not only popular with employees, it has also given a boost to manufacturers of casual clothes. Technology was recently perfected to produce wrinkle-free cotton fabrics which require no ironing. According to Richard Allender, chairman of Farah, USA, the clothing manufacturer that pioneered "no-wrinkle" cotton, the trend now accounts for 83 percent of their total volume.

ADA awards honor to former Midlander

Staff Report

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — The American Diabetes Association has announced that Wendell Mayes Jr., formerly of Midland now living in Austin, was honored with the Harold Rifkin M.D. Award for Distinguished International Service in the Cause of Diabetes at the organization's 54th Annual Meeting and Scientific Sessions, conducted recently in New Orleans, La.

The award is given to an individual whose outstanding service in the cause of diabetes has been performed with an international perspective and with international impact.

Mayes is the first layperson to preside as president of the International Diabetes Federation (IDF). Since his son was diagnosed with diabetes 28 years ago, he has worked diligently as a volunteer, lending his business savvy and leadership skills to the cause. As president of IDF, he is continuing his efforts on a global scale.

Mayes served as chair of the American Diabetes Association's South Texas Affiliate and was the first chair of the Texas Diabetes Council. He was chair of the national Board of Directors of the American Diabetes Association, a position he held for three years — longer than any other chair. Later, he went on to become a member of the first-ever National Diabetes Advisory Board.

A recipient of one of broadcasting's highest awards, the George Foster Peabody Award, Mayes has been a leader in the industry for more than 40 years. He is chairman of the board for KCRS-AM/FM in Midland, and KAMG-KVIC radio in Victoria, and president of Corsicana Pioneer Company. He served as president of the Texas Association of Broadcasters (TAB) and as vice chairman of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Mayes has served as chairman and a member of the Board of Regents of the Health and Sciences Center and Medical School of Texas Tech University. An honors graduate in electrical engineering, he was named a Distinguished Engineer by Texas Tech in 1985 and was selected as a member of both the Mass Communications Hall of Fame and the Electrical Engineering Academy.

Sills takes early Nike lead

■ Tony Sills' 65 is good enough for first round lead as 62 players fire under par.

By Bill Petitt
Staff Writer

The 1994 Nike Permian Basin Open leader board looks like a class reunion after the opening round. Familiar faces from the tournament's freshman and sophomore years are near the head of the class after Thursday's round, but one name unfamiliar on the class roll leads the tournament going into today's second round.

Tony Sills, who had played in just four Nike tournaments this season, fired a 7-under-par 65 to take a one shot lead after the first round.

Sills birdied eight holes but bogeyed the next-to-last, par-3, 160-yard No. 17 before draining a 30-foot putt on the final hole for a birdie to break away from the pack. Sills got on a roll with four straight birdies beginning on the par-4, 445-yard ninth.

"I just made every putt today," said Sills, whose 65 is one shot off the tournament record set in the first round of last year's tournament by Gary Rusnak. "I've been playing the last month and half. I played four tournaments on the regular tour and I played all right, but wasn't getting any exemptions and so I thought I would try it on the Nike. I've been at home (Bermuda Dunes, Calif.) by my own choice, practicing, working on my game and trying to figure it all out."

Speaking of Rusnak, he is one of the familiar names in hot pursuit of Sills after a 67, two shots off the pace.

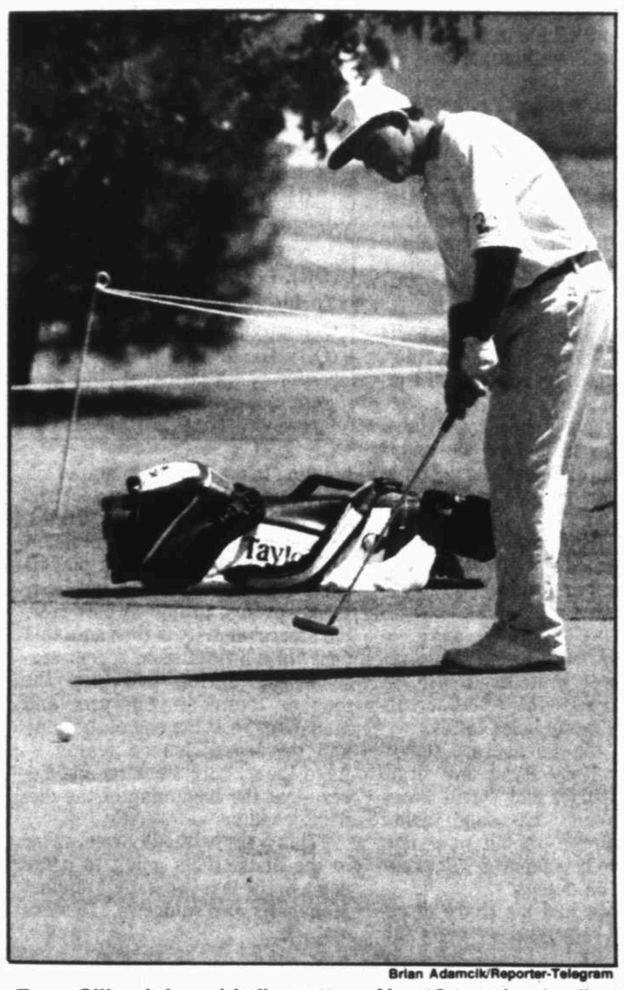

"I played good today and I played good at the Pro-Am on Wednesday. I haven't had a bogey in 36 holes," said Rusnak, who led the first round of the 1993 PBO with an 8-under 64. "I made some short putts and I'm a low-ball hitter and this course is good for me."

Rusnak is tied with six golfers at 5-under, including Bill Porter who was in second place last year after the first round.

Steve Isley and David Jackson are tied for second at 6-under 66. Isley played bogey-free golf on Thursday which included a birdie on what many consider the toughest hole on the course — the No. 14 "Mickey Mouse" hole. It's a par-4, 445-yard hole that earns its name from a bunker that laces the green in the shape of the famous Disney character.

Murchison handles the clubs well enough for a number 12 ranking on the money list of the Nike Tour, at The Club at Mission Dorado for the Permian Basin Open this week. But it's not his golf game that has attracted the attention of the national media. It's his traveling companions. All nine of them.

DE nixes Oilers

HOUSTON — Defensive end Lee Williams, waived by the Houston Oilers on Wednesday, returned to his home in Florida on Thursday, vowing not to resign with the Oilers for the NFL's $162,000 minimum salary.

"At this point, I don't know what they're going to offer me," Williams told KRIV-TV of Houston. "I simply will not play for the minimum. I think they understand that." Williams, scheduled to earn $1.125 million this season, was waived after he failed to pass his physical examination. The Oilers hope to resign Williams at a lower salary. Williams is recovering from knee surgery but was unable to work out with the team in training camp.

"I'm not retiring," Williams said. "Since what has transpired the last few days it made me regain my focus. Now, I'm more eager to get this knee well."

Waters runs for Big Spring

■ Dustin Waters at quarterback is the top prospect for the Steers in revamped district.

By Mike Butts

BIG SPRING — This was probably not a year Dwight Butler looked forward to.

The Big Spring coach had enough rebuilding to do with only six starting players returning. Then promising 220-pound tight end Tedric McCallister quit school. And the season's top running back prospect, Harvey Simpson, moved.

But the football gods gave back what they took away with a key player moving in. And the Steers have a quarterback who might be the best to play for the team in years.

Big Spring appears in as good a shape as recent years to make a run at the playoffs.

"We've got enough raw talent here (and) we've got a chance to surprise some people if we stay on a steady course of improvement," Butler said.

Andrews looks unbeatable among the Steers' District 4-4A opposition. Meaning a postseason appearance for Big Spring should come down to whether it

MHS set to meet Steers for warmup

■ Bulldogs travel to Big Spring for only scrimmage before season opens Sept. 2.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

BIG SPRING — Midland High has one test tonight that doesn't count on the record before the Bulldogs take to regular season football play in its home opener against Class 4A Frenship on Sept. 2.

MHS' test will come in a scrimmage with the Class 4A Big Spring Steers today at Big Spring's Memorial Stadium. Sophomores will scrimmage at 5 p.m. The junior varsities go at 6 p.m. and the varsity scrimmage will be between 7 and 7:30 p.m.

Bulldog coach Ronnie Reeger has a Christmas list on hand of what he would like to see against the Steers.

"We are going to do half of the scrimmage with 20 plays on offense and 20 plays on defense, and we'll probably do that twice," Reeger said. "We would like to emphasize our passing game during that portion of the scrimmage and see where we are.

"The second half of the scrimmage will be two regular quarters with the clock on. That will give us the situational emphasis we need right now. We'll also add the punting game and that's something we need to look at. We have a new punter this year in Mark Leaverton and we are excited about him. He has a strong leg.

"We would also like to see some aggressiveness on defense and make sure

Saints send 'Pokes reeling

■ New Orleans wins first preseason game of the year, bashing the Super Bowl champions 28-10.

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — This was the game that finally pleased New Orleans coach Jim Mora. The Saints not only picked up their first preseason victory, they did it against the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys and showed signs of being the team Mora hoped for.

■ NFL Roundup/ 5C

"I think that we played a lot better tonight than all season," Mora said after the 28-10 victory Thursday night. "We still have a lot of work to do, a long way to go, but I like this team. I think we're ready to go and start the season."

The Saints scored two touchdowns on long passes and two on hard runs.

Mario Bates, the Saints No. 2 draft pick this year, plunged over the right side of the Cowboys' first-string defense for a 1-yard touchdown in the second quarter. Derek Brown, who led the Saints in rushing as a rookie last year, scored in the third quarter on a 4-yard run.

"Last week we were rough, we made a lot of little mistakes," Brown said. "This week we eliminated some of those small things and it paid off."

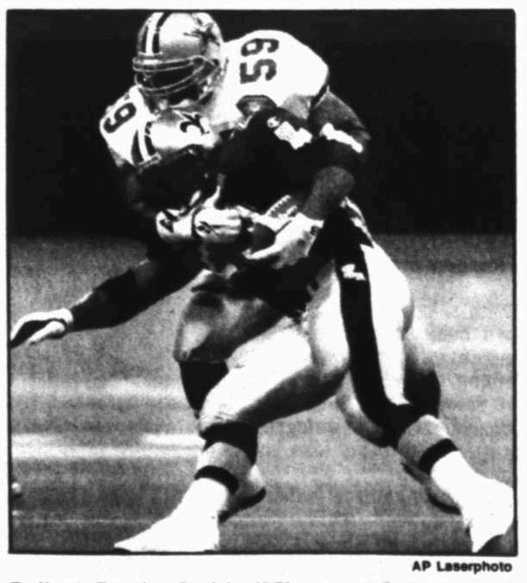

The Saints ran for 121 yards on 34 rushes, led by Bates with 62 yards on 12 carries.

Jim Everett, who played the first half, completed 10 of 14 passes for 150 yards, an interception and a touchdown — a 49-yard bomb to Torrance Small in the second quarter.

"I thought it was a well-rounded effort," Everett said. "Our running game really picked up and the offensive line was great."

In the second half, Wade Wilson hit all four passes for 71 yards, including a 51-yard touchdown to Steve Rhem in the third quarter.

STEERS: Butler puts minor changes to 'I' can beat Monahans in Big Spring Oct. 28.

(From 1C)

If a playoff berth does come to the Steers this year, it will probably have as much to do with senior quarterback Dustin Waters as anything. The strong-armed Waters can create a lot of offense with his running ability.

He played the first game of the season in 1993 when starter Wes Hughes sat out a game for disciplinary reasons. In a 21-6 win over Levelland, Waters had a 59-yard touchdown run and two touchdown passes while accounting for 224 yards of offense.

"Dustin is so talented it's not going to be as much a rebuilding challenge," Butler said of his 6-foot-1, 170-pound signal caller. "If we can keep Dustin mentally focused there's no doubt he could be the best (quarterback) coming out of here in a long time."

The Steers will make some minor changes in their multiple I offense to get Waters running the ball more.

"We're going to run a lot of bootleg stuff and option stuff and we put in a quarterback draw," Butler said. "(We'll run) some sprint out passes that get him on the perimeter."

Waters has the arm strength but still lacks the touch needed to be an accomplished passer.

"He's got a cannon for an arm (and) he's working real hard in two-a-days to try to get a touch on it," Butler said. "He'll overthrow a receiver by 30 yards and he won't even look like he's throwing it (hard)."

Steer fans should be happy to have Quentin Dickson back in town. He returned to Big Spring this year after moving to Clovis, N.M., when in junior high. Dickson's 5-9, 190-pound junior frame will give the Steers a power runner.

"He doesn't mind lowering his shoulder and getting two or three yards instead of taking it outside and trying to get 30 or 40," Butler said of his new tailback. "We've not had anybody that can power the ball from tackle to tackle (like him) since Jermaine Miller (in '89)."

Six-four, 180-pound Daniel "Bubba" Franks will take McCallister's place at tight end. Butler says he could be better than McCallister. Senior Tony Rodriquez returns to split end with senior Brien Burchett the flanker and junior Marc Baker the other split end. Butler calls the bunch "a great group of receivers."

Senior guard Jason Roberts (240) and senior tackle Norman Timmerman (210) return to the offensive line.

"Our offensive line could be a big plus for us before the end," Butler said. "We feel like we have more size than we've had there in a while."

Mario Cavazos (210-pound guard), James Stiell (center) and James Escobar (tackle) will likely round out that unit.

Big Spring's defense gave up only 105 points last year while recording three shutouts. It will be hard to live up to those numbers in '94 with so many holes to fill.

Leading the defense are senior linebacker Kory Ryan and first-team all-district end David Foresyth. Five-nine, 220-pound junior Kinney Dupree should play one tackle. Two sophomores will probably start on defense.

Butler has had his share of rebuilding to do, having a total of six returning starters in two of his four years. He has never had a losing season in his three completed years at Big Spring, but a playoff berth this year would be his first.

Except for losing Sweetwater, the Steers' district is the same this year. In a switch from recent seasons, Big Spring will play the tougher teams — Andrews and Monahans — at the end of the year and the lesser league teams — Lake View, Fort Stockton and Pecos — at the beginning of the district schedule.

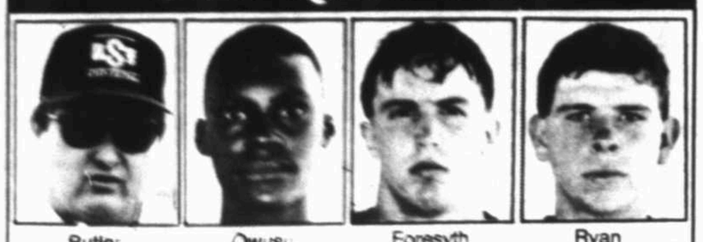

"This year without Sweetwater in the district it's going to come down to the last two games against Monahans and Andrews," Waters said. "And I think it's a big plus that Monahans lost (1,740-yard rusher) Tari Jessie."

What Butler likes the most about having only five other teams in the district is the lack of open dates and not having to play Andrews, Sweetwater and Monahans three weeks in a row.

"No longer can Andrews have an open date before they play us," Butler said. "(And) the last two years we've had to go to Monahans, Andrews, Sweetwater. Give me a break."

The Steers get their break not having to play Sweetwater. The rest of the breaks they'll have to make on their own.

'Huskers, West Virginia meet

■ Nebraska, West Virginia meet after both finished regular season undefeated.

By Rick Warner
AP Football Writer

This year's college football opener almost was last year's closer.

Nebraska and West Virginia, the only major teams that didn't lose a regular-season game in 1993, play Sunday afternoon in the Kickoff Classic at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J.

Some people thought the Cornhuskers and Mountaineers should have met for the national championship last New Year's night in the Orange Bowl. But once-beaten Florida State was invited to play the Cornhuskers, and the Seminoles won the national title with an 18-16 victory.

West Virginia settled for a Sugar Bowl showdown against Florida, which routed the Mountaineers 41-7.

Now, instead of playing for the national championship, the No. 4 Cornhuskers and No. 24 Mountaineers will play the first game of college football's 125th season.

Both teams have key players returning, but Nebraska has more of them.

Thirteen Cornhusker starters are back, including option QB wiz Tommie Frazier, four offensive linemen, leading receiver Abdul Muhammad, All-Big Eight defensive tackle Terry Connealy and standout linebacker Ed Stewart.

Frazier, a junior who has started 19 straight games, is an elusive runner who has worked hard to improve his passing.

"He's a great player," said West Virginia coach Don Nehlen. "He could easily be the Heisman Trophy winner."

Quarterback is a question mark for Nehlen, who must replace 1993 starter Jake Kelchner and backup Darren Studstill. Sophomore Chad Johnston, who threw only 15 passes last season, will make his first college start against Nebraska.

"He'll have to grow up quick," Nehlen said.

Much of the offensive burden will fall on junior tailback Robert Walker, who rushed for a school-record 1,250 yards last season. However, the Mountaineers may not have to score too many points if their veteran defense lives up to expectations.

"They've got a lot of size and strength," said Nebraska offensive tackle Rob Zatechka. "They look a lot like us."

Not quite. Had they played last year, it probably would have been a close game. But this year Nebraska has a big edge, especially at quarterback.

The Cornhuskers are favored by 16½ points. ... NEBRASKA 31-14.

The second game of the season takes place Monday night, when No. 20 Ohio State plays Fresno State in the Pigskin Classic at Anaheim, Calif.

Ohio State lost All-American defensive tackle Dan Wilkinson and leading rusher Raymont Harris from last year's 10-1-1 team that tied for the Big Ten title. But the Buckeyes still have a lot of talent, including all-league selections Joey Galloway (receiver), Korey Stringer (offensive tackle) and Lorenzo Styles (linebacker).

Fresno State has a huge gap to fill at quarterback, where record-setting passer Trent Dilfer left for the NFL after his junior year. Sophomore Adrian Claiborne is slated to start against 13-point favorite Ohio State.

"It seems like they're going to put pressure on me whether I want it or not," Claiborne said.

The Bulldogs, who went 8-4 last season and shared the Western Athletic Conference title, upset Southern Cal 24-7 in the 1992 Freedom Bowl at Anaheim Stadium. Their next trip to the stadium won't be so successful.

Big Spring-Andrews rivalry different, sort of

By Mike Butts
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — W.T. Stapler's departure from Andrews will soften the rivalry between the Big Spring Steers and the Andrews Mustangs. But not by much.

Mike Lebby takes over head coaching duties from Stapler at Andrews this year. And Steer coach Dwight Butler thinks things will be different. Sort of.

"It's going to be a different situation," said Butler, who wasn't a fan of Stapler's but speaks well of Lebby. "The (new) head coach and I were roommates in College. They (Andrews) are still going to be arrogant ... but they (won't be running the score up on anybody)."

The Andrews-Big Spring series is 18 games old with the Steers up 9-7-2. But since the Steers dropped to Class 4A and went into a district with the Mustangs in 1986, they have never made the playoffs without beating Andrews.

This season Andrews is ranked tenth in the state in Class 4A in Texas Football. It just missed the top ten of the Associated Press' Class 4A state poll.

"They're going to be tough, but I don't think there's any doubt in any of us that we can beat them," Steer linebacker Kory Ryan said.

Big Spring quarterback Dustin Waters isn't concerned about the Andrew's game being on the road again this year. The Mustangs beat Big Spring in their homecoming in 1993, 28-10.

"I really like going there," Waters said. "In the seventh and eighth grade I had real good games in Andrews and Sweetwater. I play real good in bowls."

Waters, a senior, said the Mustangs beat his class only once, when he was a freshman. And that, according to Waters, was not a convincing win.

"They got a lucky little quarterback fumble and picked it up and ran for about 85 yards," Waters said.

Big Spring hopes the luck goes their way this year.

Baylor hoops star dies in car crash

TEMPLE (AP) — Jerode "Smokey" Banks, a promising forward on the Baylor basketball team, was killed early Thursday in a highway car crash, the school said.

His car burst into flames after running into an overpass support about 2:55 a.m., the Department of Public Safety said. State troopers said the incident happened on Interstate-35 in Bruceville-Eddy.

The badly burned body of the car's lone occupant was taken to the University of Texas-Southwest Institute of Forensic Science in Dallas for positive identification.

MHS: Bulldogs tackle 1st warmup

we do a lot better job of tackling than we did last year. We felt like that was a big problem for us last year. We feel we are more physically able to that this year, but we hope the kids react to that in a positive way."

That should be enough to keep your eyes on, but the Bulldogs do still have some battles being waged for positions as the first game nears.

"The quarterback position is not a done deal," Reeger said. "Brian Crowley, Craig Coleman and Jeremy Kimble are all seniors and all did some positive things in our scrimmage last Saturday. Each one leads in a different area of execution and that job is still open right now.

Reeger will also be looking at his linebacking corps. Bobby Avent and Tom Paul Howard are being tested at the middle linebacker post. If Howard wins that job, Avent will probably move to a defensive tackle slot. Rick Cunningham and Marcus Carlisle appear to have the outside slots in tow, but Reeger would like to see a good performance from those two.

At defensive end, three players are battling for two positions. They are John McCright, Robert Royals and Collin Upham.

"All three are looking good, but there are only two end slots out there. We wish we could play all three there. That would really help us," Reeger joked.

The MHS coaching staff would love to see mid-season execution against the Steers, but Reeger made it plain that he has a major theme for this outing. He wants to see some aggressiveness on the field, a matter that he was disappointed with in 1993.

"We have to play tougher. We have to tackle," Reeger said. "We'll be watching to see who can do those things. We need this scrimmage now. We've done all we can stand against each other."

Big Spring is also previewed in today's sports section as part of the Reporter-Telegram's Friday Night Thunder series.

Rangers gear marked down due to strike

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers are having a half-price sale.

With sales of club merchandise down because of the strike, the Rangers are rolling out half-off clothing and other sale merchandise Saturday and Sunday.

Coaches will sign autographs in an attempt to bring fans out to a silent stadium.

"Without games, sales have slowed down," said Rangers spokesman John Blake. "This is a way to get people out to The Ballpark and keep it and baseball alive."

Stadler shares lead in World Series of Golf

■ Golf

AKRON, Ohio — Craig Stadler's love affair with Firestone Country Club has even survived a change of courses.

Stadler birdied the last four holes Thursday to complete a 5-under-par 65 that gave him a share of the first-round lead in the NEC World Series of Golf with Loren Roberts.

PGA and British Open champion Nick Price, who has won three of the last four tournaments he has played in, was cruising along at three under par and threatening the leaders when he put his tee shot into the water on the 184-yard 17th and made a bogey 4. The native of Zimbabwe, the only multiple winner on the PGA Tour this year, finished at 68, tied with U.S. Open champion Ernie Els of South Africa.

It was Price's first competitive round since winning the PGA title on Aug. 14 and then undergoing office surgery the next day for possible skin cancer.

Stadler's closing burst lifted him into the tie with Roberts and ahead of an international field of 49 that is chasing a $360,000 winner's share of the $2 million purse.

Masters champion Jose Maria Olazabal of Spain, Mark McCumber and Jeff Maggert were a stroke back. Maggert chipped in for an eagle 2 as the highlight of his 66 and McCumber played without a bogey and without a "5" on his card.

Greg Norman of Australia led a large group at 67 that included Billy Mayfair, Steve Lowery, South African David Frost and Australian Ian Baker-Finch.

Stadler is looking to the World Series as a revival to his game for the third consecutive year.

"I caught a little bit of fire there at the end," he said.

This time, however, it is on a different course, the shorter, water-laced North course that was pressed into service on an emergency basis last month when the South course — site of this tournament since its inception in 1962 — suddenly lost its greens to a mysterious blight.

The change didn't seem to bother Stadler at all, but he admitted he "was a little disappointed," when it was announced.

"There are just some places some guys play better than they do other places, like (Bruce) Lietzke in Canada and (Tom) Watson in Dallas," he said. "You have more confidence coming to a place where you've played well before, maybe won before.

"If you're playing well coming in, you think you've got a chance to win. If you're not playing well, you think you've got a chance to turn things around."

LPGA du Maurier

OTTAWA — Martha Nause birdied the last three holes to match the course record with a 7-under-par 65 and take a one-stroke lead after the opening round.

Nause, a 16-year LPGA Tour veteran, equalled the course record set by former club pro Ken Clark and matched by Jack Nicklaus in 1960.

"Oh yeah, me and Jack, right up there," Nause said laughing. "It's great company. I'd like to be mentioned with Jack more often."

Leigh Ann Mills, Kelly Robins, Debbie Massey and Michelle McGann were all at 66 on the rain-soaked 6,400-yard Ottawa Hunt and Golf Club course.

Nancy Lopez, Kim Williams, Dottie Mochrie and Betsy King were all another shot back in the LPGA's final major tournament of the year.

Nause had eight birdies and one bogey playing late in the day after the rain-softened greens had been torn up by previous golfers.

The performance was even more impressive considering Nause is still on the comeback trail after spending much of 1993 recovering from an illness that caused nerve damage in her ear.

"I had to re-learn how to do everything," Nause, 40, said. "I still feel like I'm trying to find my way back from the illness."

U.S. Amateur Championship

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. — Teen-age sensation Tiger Woods won four straight holes on the back nine and rallied to defeat former champion Buddy Alexander and advance to the quarterfinals.

"As far as comebacks are concerned, this is a pretty big one," said Woods, 18, of Cypress Hills, Calif.

He was three down with five holes to play, but needed to make only one birdie in his comeback.

"I've never lost a match like that," said Alexander, the 1986 Amateur champion and the golf coach at the University of Florida. "I didn't hit a good shot after the 12th hole. I just played lousy."

Woods displayed the same poise that carried him to three successive USGA junior national titles (1991-93) and three prestigious amateur championships this summer.

Defending champion John Harris, 41, of Edina, Minn., bogeyed the second playoff hole and lost to Jabaley in the second round.

FAMILY: Roll calls, seat assignments help clan made it to all but one of the tour's 21 tournaments this season. Motivated by Bill's love of golf and the family's desire to stick together, the Murchisons use organization and more organization to make it work.

"When you have ten people you have to be a little more organized," said Murchison, 38 and a devout Christian. "Proverbs 18 says, 'The lot puts an end to contention.'"

One way the Murchisons put an end to contention is to draw numbers for seating assignments in their van. Roll calls also help keep everybody together.

"Everywhere we go we'll have a roll call. Otherwise it's too easy to lose somebody," Murchinson said.

Bill and his wife, Karen, for the most part take the publicity in stride. But Bill admits it can get tiring.

"Sometimes you don't feel like doing (interviews)," Bill said. "But you have to make it part of your obligation."

Karen would just as soon not get the recognition.

"I could be a wallflower, but he enjoys it," said Bill's wife since 1978. "That probably shows our personality differences."

Karen, a certified teacher, home schools the kids, who range from 16 months to 13 years old. She said they like most of the family's on-the-road life, and in some ways it's easier than if they were at home.

"I'd be sacrificing at home taking them here and there with all the extra-curricular activities," Karen said. "Out here it's easier. There's two parents raising them and not just one."

Bill, a '77 Texas Christian University graduate, decided early in his golf career that he didn't want to go the tour life alone.

"(Karen) was a year behind me in school and my first year out of school I was playing in a few tournaments," Bill said. "And my roommates use to kid me when I got married that the postal rates went up because we (Bill and Karen) would write five or six times a week before getting married."

Bill and Karen, with six girls and two boys, spend $1,700 dollars on a "good week" to cover expenses. Many players on the Nike Tour struggle to make it with no family to support. But Bill ranks number 12 on the tour's money list this year, having won $77,731 coming into the Permian Basin Open.

"I had a rough day out there today," Bill said. "I'm really struggling right now (but) I have to be careful how I say that because somebody will say, 'Bill, you're making x amount of dollars. How can you be struggling?'."

Other golfers on the Nike Tour marvel at how the Murchisons handle the rigors of the tour with a family of eight in tow.

"I think (other golfers) are amazed," Nike Tour member Bill Porter said. "But it's like anything else. Once you make a committment you can make it work. And I think they've done a better job than just making it work."

The Murchisons have traveled on golf tours with the whole family since they started having kids. But only recently have they garnered so much attention.

"We were here two years ago with seven children and people didn't flinch," Karen said.

Lots of folks are flinching now.

comfortable with the putter and I made a lot of putts," Isley said. "I putted well (and) I've been hitting the ball about like I have been lately."

Qualifier Deane Pappas, a standout from the University of Arkansas, birdied the first four holes of his round, but double bogeyed the No. 14 and ended the day 4-under-par 68.

Defending PBO champ Franklin Langham is tied with Pappas at 68 and former Hogan Permian Basin Open champion Taylor Smith finished two-over-par 74.

Locally, Odessan Joel Gallimore turned in the best round of the area golfers with an even-par 72. Leon Van Rensburg fired a 73. Midland Country Club pro Terry Lester finished with a 74 as did Stanton's Adolph Garza.

Kyle Howard of Odessa had a 76 while Midland's Scotty Niemann and Randy Kahn had 77's.

Second round action begins at 8 a.m. today.

Sampras, Graf grab top U.S. Open seeds

NEW YORK (AP) — Defending champion Pete Sampras, coming into next week's U.S. Open without playing a singles match in a month because of an injured foot, got lucky today when he drew a qualifier in the first round.

Sampras, who said his foot is healing from tendinitis, should be able to play himself back into shape during several relatively easy early matches as he came up with perhaps the easiest draw of any of the top seeds.

The qualifying tournament is still going on, so Sampras doesn't yet know who he will play.

Women's defending champ and top seed Steffi Graf, undergoing treatment for back spasms that led her to pull out of an exhibition tournament this weekend, opens against Anne Mall of La Mesa, Calif.

Graf's toughest early opponent could be Zina Garrison Jackson in the third round.

Former champion Mats Wilander, who got a wild-card entry, meets another unseeded but dangerous floater in Guy Forget in what could be the best first-round matchup.

The winner of that might meet Andre Agassi, also unseeded, in the second round. Agassi opens against a qualifier.

Jim Courier, who wasn't sure he wanted to play the Open after losing recently, decided to stay in. He drew Aaron Krickstein in the first round and could meet Stefan Edberg in the fourth round.

Millen's two TDs lead Broncos

Associated Press

■ NFL Roundup

DENVER — Hugh Millen threw two touchdown passes just 29 seconds apart late in the first half, leading the Denver Broncos over the Arizona Cardinals 30-21 Thursday night in a preseason finale.

Millen, who played virtually the entire game one day after inheriting the No. 2 quarterback job, completed 22 of 32 passes for 290 yards as Denver (2-3) snapped a three-game preseason losing streak to the Cardinals (1-3).

Millen's 19-yard TD pass to Cedric Tillman gave the Broncos a 16-15 lead with 36 seconds left in the half, but Millen's pass fell incomplete on the 2-point conversion.

On the next play from scrimmage, Arizona rookie running back Brian Henesey fumbled and defensive end Jeff Robinson grabbed the football on one bounce and returned it 14 yards to the Arizona 17-yard line. Three plays later, Millen found Mike Pritchard for a 14-yard TD pass with seven seconds left.

Millen's night started inauspiciously. After being sacked on the game's second play from scrimmage, his third-down pass was intercepted by cornerback Aeneas Williams, who returned it 39 yards for a quick Arizona score.

The Broncos promptly marched for a 50-yard Jason Elam field goal on their next possession, and Rod Bernstine's 2-yard run capped an 88-yard scoring drive for a 10-7 Denver lead early in the second quarter.

Colts 24, Browns 7

INDIANAPOLIS — Marshall Faulk, whose longest run in four games was 12 yards, caught a 72-yard touchdown pass as Indianapolis completed its first unbeaten preseason since 1989 with a victory over Cleveland.

Faulk, who twice led the nation in rushing at San Diego State, picked up only 26 yards on nine carries. But his long TD reception from Jim Harbaugh in the second quarter erased an early 7-0 Browns lead.

Faulk did not play the second half as the Colts (4-0) finished the exhibition season unbeaten for only the second time in 25 years. The Browns (3-1) scored their only touchdown on a fourth-down, 1-yard run by Tommy Vardell early in the second quarter.

Indianapolis took a 10-7 lead on a 27-yard field goal by Dean Biasucci late in the first half. Then with reserves playing the final two quarters, the Colts put the game away.

They scored on a 49-yard interception return by Leonard Humphries off Cleveland backup Mark Rypien midway through the third quarter, and a 24-yard pass from Colts backup Browning Nagle to Brian Stablein on the first play of the fourth quarter.

Chargers 24, Rams 6

SAN DIEGO — Stan Humphries threw touchdown passes to new starting wide receivers Mark Seay and Shawn Jefferson, and the defense provided two turnovers as San Diego beat Los Angeles in the exhibition finale for both teams.

Natrone Means, who takes over as the starting running back in his second season, gained 41 yards on 10 carries, and Junior Seau and Darren Carrington each had a takeaway. San Diego (1-4) avoided its first winless exhibition season while the Rams (0-4) lost their ninth straight exhibition game dating to 1992.

The Rams scored only three touchdowns in four exhibition games, and were outscored 95-42.

Means gained 42 yards on seven plays on San Diego's first drive, including a 19-yard reception, to set up Seay's touchdown.

COWBOYS: Dallas 'O' loses grip

(From 1C)

"We wanted to come into the Kansas City game (Sunday) on a high note and we will now," Wilson said. "We have to keep it in perspective. They didn't play their starters much, but it's still a good win for us."

With free agent cornerback Deion Sanders watching and weighing the possibility of playing for the Saints, the defense came up with two fumbles and an interception — all of which led to scores.

Mora worried throughout the preseason about the lack of defensive turnovers by his team. New Orleans had recovered only two of five fumbles and had no interceptions in its first three preseason games.

The Saints' second-string defense staged an impressive goal-line stand in the fourth quarter, stopping Dallas on four straight scoring attempts from the 1-yard line.

Dallas coach Barry Switzer limited the playing time of his starters, especially running back Emmitt Smith and quarterback Troy Aikman.

"The disappointing thing about this game, was that our first unit, when it had its opportunities in the first quarter, didn't take advantage of them," Switzer said.

The Cowboys' first-string offense was not impressive, coming up with only 39 yards on 11 first-quarter plays. Aikman completed 4 of 6 passes for 29 yards.

"I'm disappointed, I'm embarrassed," Aikman said. "Every time we go out I expect us to win."

Smith had all the Cowboys' first-quarter carries, running five times for 10 yards, including a 6-yard run. Pro Bowl wide receiver Michael Irvin had two receptions for 19 yards.

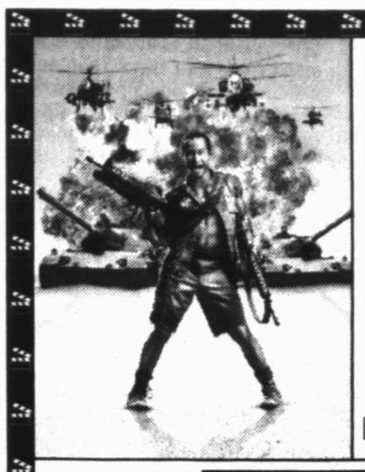

Chris Boniol put Dallas on the scoreboard with a 26-yard first-quarter field goal. The Cowboys kicked after a drive of only 23 yards — 19 passing by Aikman and 4 rushing by Smith.

Guard Ron Stone had the Cowboys' final score late in the fourth quarter. Running back Lincoln Coleman fumbled on the 1-yard line and Stone recovered in the end zone for the touchdown.

Cowboys backup quarterback Rodney Peete completed 2 of 3 passes for 46 yards, playing only one series in the second quarter before leaving the game after taking a hit. Peete was shaken up but not hurt. Jason Garrett finished the game, completing 5 of 13 for 75 yards and an interception.

Schilling says season doomed

■ Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — The baseball season looked even more doomed Thursday when negotiations broke off with no date set for them to resume.

"It's just my opinion, but I don't think there is going to be anymore baseball played this year," said Philadelphia Phillies pitcher Curt Schilling, one of 14 players at the session.

The strike, which on Thursday matched baseball's second longest, already has canceled 181 games, 8 percent of the season.

"There has been no movement. There's no indication there's going to be any movement," union head Donald Fehr said. "We're not at the stage where somebody walked out in a huff and said, 'I don't ever want to talk to you again.' We are at the stage where there isn't anything to talk about."

Players went home, meaning talks won't resume until next week. By then, it will be too late to resume playing until September. Soon, the walkout will threaten the World Series.

"The pressure builds up as you reach mid-September," said John Harrington, chief executive officer of the Boston Red Sox.

Talks resumed Wednesday for the first time since the strike began Aug. 12. But it became clear after about 5½ hours of formal sessions over two days that neither side has changed its position: Owners demand a salary cap and players say they'll never accept one.

"I would hope that if nothing else, both sides understand the resolve on both sides and we can quit probing and get down to business," executive council chairman Bud Selig said by telephone from Milwaukee.

Fehr again attacked the salary cap proposal, calling it "a little nutty."

"We're at time and place where there's no conceivable framework about which an agreement can be made," he said. "Nothing the players say or do, except to say, 'Oh, please, give us a salary cap,' is going to matter."

Management negotiator Richard Ravitch said future talks may involve smaller delegations from each side. When bargaining resumed Wednesday, there were 55 people in the meeting room.

"At this point perhaps there are other ways of getting this negotiation moving and we are going to try those," Ravitch said.

Angel streak ends

Staff Report

WICHITA — Midland ended its five-game winning streak here Thursday as Wichita's Glenn Dishman threw his first complete game of the year in a 6-2 Wrangler triumph.

Dishman gave up two runs in the first inning but shut the Angels down after that. He retired the last 13 Midland batters to lower his ERA to 2.82, second in the Texas League. The left-hander also had five strike outs.

The Wranglers led 4-2 in the third when Marquis Riley dropped a fly ball to center that scored two more Wichita runs.

The Angels took a 2-0 lead in their first at bat. Riley singled and later scored from third on a Ty Boykin bounce out. Chris Pritchett then singled with the bases empty and came home on Mike Wolff's hit.

But the Wranglers cut the lead to 2-1 on a Jason Thompson RBI in the bottom of the first. They scored five in the third, all with two out, to close out the scoring.

RBI singles by Sean Mulligan and Brad Gennero got Wichita its first two runs in the third. Mat Witkowski then hit an RBI single off Angel starter Dom Johnson to make it 4-2. Johnson fell to 7-9 in taking the loss.

The Angels continue the Wichita series, their last one of the season, tonight with Kyle Sebach (5-4, 4.30) going against Wichita's Matt Cromwell (8-5, 4.26).

California wins, goes for 3rd-straight title

■ Little League

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Nathaniel Dunlap threw a one-hitter and Spencer Gordon hit a three-run homer Thursday, sending Northridge to a 3-0 victory over Springfield, Va., that gives California a chance for a third straight Little League title.

Northridge will play Venezuela for the World Series championship Saturday. Venezuela ended Saudi Arabia's surprising trip through the World Series with a 10-1 victory in Thursday's other semifinal.

Long Beach, Calif., won the last two Little League titles, taking the 1992 championship when the Philippines forfeited for using overage and ineligible players. Long Beach beat Panama 3-2 last year.

American teams haven't won more than three titles in a row since 1966.

Dunlap (1-1) took a no-hitter into the sixth and at the time was only two hit-batsmen from a perfect game.

"In the fourth, (third baseman) Greg Wallis told me I had a no-hitter," Dunlap said. "I was thinking about it already. Then he said it and jinxed me. I knew I'd lose it."

With one out, Paul Weishar singled to right and Eric Miller reached on an error. Dunlap fanned Patrick Malatino and Ethan Lare to end the game.

Gas prices fall

NEW YORK — Natural gas futures prices fell Thursday to a six-month low on news of higher domestic inventories, while unleaded gasoline slid to the lowest close in nearly four months.

Natural gas for delivery in October fell 5 cents to $1.620 per 1,000 cubic feet on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Natural gas has fallen 21.7 cents, or 12 percent, since last Wednesday. Thursday's close was the lowest since Feb. 4.

The American Gas Association reported after the close of trading Wednesday that storage levels increased by 99 billion cubic feet in the week ended Friday.

Natural gas prices dropped sharply on Wednesday, the last day to trade September gas delivery contracts on the Nymex. The deadline can cause wide swings in futures prices.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in October rose 3 cents per barrel to $17.52 on the Nymex.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK — The dollar was mixed Thursday against other major currencies in thin trading.

The dollar rose against the Japanese yen on hopes that the United States is making progress in trade talks with Japan. But the dollar fell against the German mark for the first time this week after economic reports there suggested inflation is increasing and interest rates could remain steady or rise.

Gold prices fell. On the Commodity Exchange in New York, gold for current delivery fell 40 cents a troy ounce to $383.30.

In New York, the dollar fetched 99.71 yen, up from 99 late Wednesday.

In New York, the dollar fell to 1.5430 marks from 1.5449.

Other late dollar rates in New York: 1.3030 Swiss francs, up from 1.3020; 1.3720 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3725; 5.2885 French francs, down from 5.2920; 1,565 lire, down form 1,568.

In New York, the pound fetched $1.5560, up from $1.5536.

On the New York Comex, the spot price of silver was $5.246, off from $5.249.

Stocks decline

NEW YORK — Stocks ended mostly lower Thursday, dimming the luster of a dazzling blue-chip rally the day before.

Profit-taking and weakness in the bond market combined to hurt the market, as many investors remained unconvinced that the surge on Wednesday signaled a profound change in the malaise that has prevailed for much of the year.

The Dow Jones industrial average declined 16.84 to 3,829.89, relinquishing part of a 70-point gain Wednesday that had sent the blue-chip barometer to the highest level since late March.

Declining issues outnumbered advancers by 1,125 to 1,056 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Home resales fall 3rd straight month

■ Rising mortgage rates continue to cut into demand, real estate group says.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sales of existing homes fell again in July, their third consecutive monthly decline, as rising mortgage rates continued to cut into demand, a real estate trade group said Thursday.

Sales dipped 0.3 percent last month to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.95 million, the National Association of Realtors reported.

So far this year, sales have fallen five out of seven months, including a 3.6 percent drop in June, as mortgage rates have continued rising.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. reported, meanwhile, that the national average for 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages edged up to 8.56 percent this week from 8.54 percent last week.

This rate, which hit a 25-year low of 6.74 percent last October, has been above 8 percent since late March as the Federal Reserve has steadily tightened credit conditions in an effort to combat inflationary pressures.

In another report Thursday, the Labor Department said the number of first-time claims for state unemployment benefits declined by 3,000 last week to a seasonally adjusted level of 322,000. It was the first decline this month.

Even with the string of home sales declines, housing executives noted that sales are still 2.6 percent above the level of a year ago.

"Even with fluctuations in mortgage rates, we are on track for the second-best year on record for existing single-family home sales," said Robert H. Elrod, president of the Realtors group.

John Tuccillo, chief economist for the Realtors, said last week's boost in interest rates by the Fed — the fifth this year — should put inflationary fears to rest and lead to actual declines in long-term rates in coming months.

"As mortgage rates creep downward in the fourth quarter of this year, the housing market will ease into another period of stable growth," he predicted.

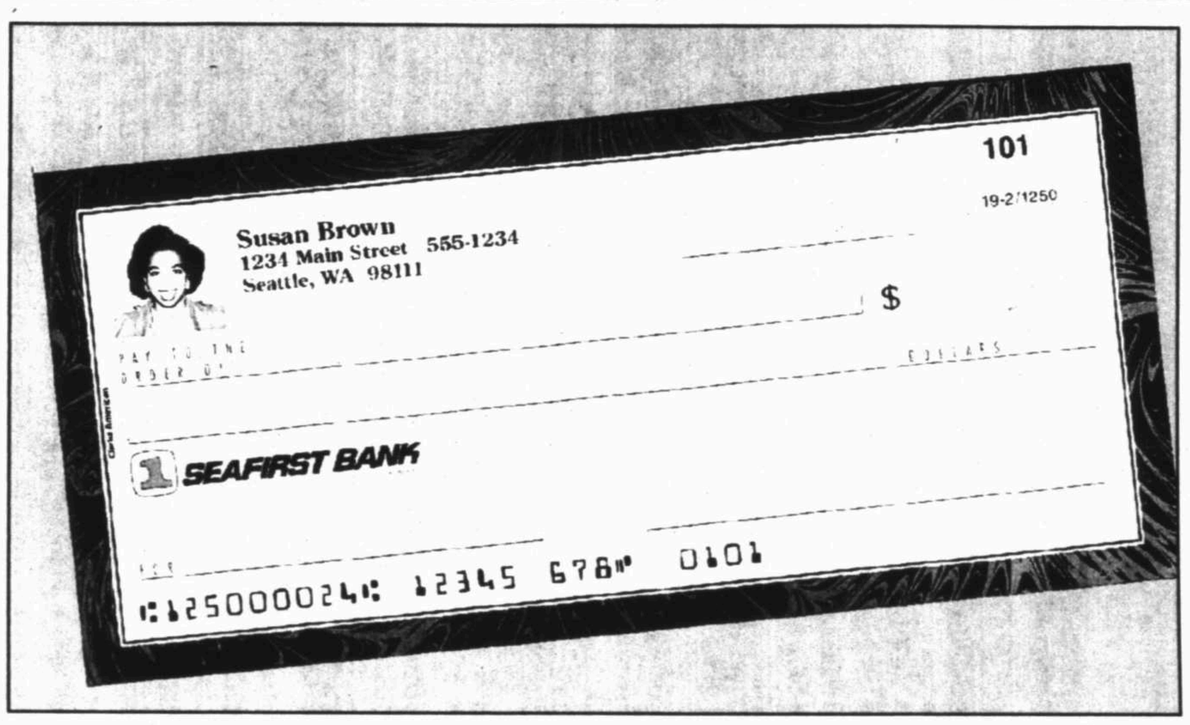

But Sung Won Sohn, chief economist at Norwest Corp. in Minneapolis, said he looked for housing to soften further in coming months, both because of the higher rates and a lessening of pent-up demand.

He said the July decline in existing home sales was "quite consistent with my view that the housing market is slowing down."

The national median price for an existing single-family home was $111,500 in July, down 1.2 percent from a median price of $112,800 in June. The median is the midpoint where half the homes cost more and half cost less.

By geographic area, the biggest sales decline was in the Northeast, a drop of 4.8 percent that left sales at an annual rate of 600,000 units. Sales also were off in the South, edging down 0.7 percent to an annual rate of 1.45 million units.

The West posted the best gain, a 2.4 percent rise to a rate of 850,000 units, followed by a 1.8 percent increase in the Midwest that put sales in that region at 1.05 million units in July.

Rule clears way for AT&T to buy McCaw Cellular

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — AT&T Corp. won court approval Thursday for its $12.6 billion plan to buy McCaw Cellular Communications, the nation's largest cellular phone company.

U.S. District Judge Harold Greene gave AT&T a partial waiver from his landmark order 10 years ago that broke up the telephone giant. The waiver allows AT&T to acquire cellular properties that McCaw co-owns with regional Bell telephone companies, including the lucrative Houston and Los Angeles markets.

BellSouth, which opposed the waiver request, will appeal the decision, said general counsel Walter Alford.

"This order gives AT&T and McCaw a clear advantage in the marketplace because they can proceed to combine cellular and long-distance operations while BellSouth and other regional Bell companies are saddled with unfair restrictions," the company said in a statement.

"Today's ruling is good news for consumers and business customers as well as for competition in the cellular industry," said AT&T spokesman Jim McGann. The company hopes to complete the merger by Sept. 30.

Greene, in a 26-page opinion, wrote: "The court concludes that the waiver is suitably tailored."

The order says that if a proposed antitrust settlement between AT&T and the Department of Justice is not approved by the court, AT&T must divest its interests in the cellular systems co-owned with the Bell companies. Telecommunications attorneys called this stipulation routine.

In granting approval, Greene imposed a number of conditions on AT&T and McCaw designed to protect competition. AT&T said it had recommended these conditions.

The order says neither AT&T nor its affiliates can unfairly steer McCaw's 3.2 million cellular customers toward AT&T for their long-distance calls, which would harm competing long-distance companies.

And, given that AT&T is a major supplier of cellular equipment, the order bars the company from being the "beneficiary of any discrimination" involving the procurement of telecommunications equipment and technical services

Babbage's, Software Etc. to merge, take on bigger foes

DALLAS (AP) — Two major software retailers said Thursday they will join forces to take on bigger competitors for sales of personal computer games and other programs.

The merger of Babbage's Inc. and Software Etc. Stores Inc. would create the nation's largest chain of software stores, with close to 700 outlets and more than $500 million in revenues.

The combined company will be stronger than the two have been separately, said Babbage's chairman Jim McCurry.

"It's as simple as two plus two is equal to five, or more," said McCurry, who would be chairman of the new company.

Under terms of the deal, Babbage stockholders will get 1.3 shares of stock in the new company for each share they own, while shareholders in Software Etc. will get one new share for each current share.

Babbage's shares gained $1.25 to $13 Thursday while Software Etc. gained $1 to $10, both on the Nasdaq Stock Market. At closing Wednesday, before the deal was announced, the combined market value of the companies was approximately $130 million, Software Etc. spokeswoman Mary Lilja said.

The company will have a new name and likely will be headquartered in Dallas where Babbage's is based, McCurry said. Software Etc. is based in Minneapolis.

Both chains will continue operating under their current names, and no store closings are expected, he said, even in shopping malls where both are found.

Both retailers have stores in malls around the country. But most of Babbage's 321 stores are in Texas and Florida, while Software Etc.'s 357 locations are concentrated on the West Coast.

The new company will maintain the current differences in the product lines of the two chains, McCurry said. Babbage's sells a higher percentage of video games, while Software Etc. concentrates more on PC software and computer-related books.

"Our intention is to continue to operate and expand both retail concepts under their existing names," McCurry said.

The company also expects to develop new concepts, such as software superstores outside of malls, which Software Etc. is exploring now, he said.

The companies still must reach a definitive agreement, and the deal needs approval by both boards of directors, shareholders and regulators. However, it could close within 60 days or less, McCurry said.

Software Etc. president Daniel DeMatteo and Babbage's president Gary Kusin would keep their posts. Software Etc. chairman Leonard Riggio would be chairman of the executive committee of the new company.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Some mutual funds rack up losing performances

By Bill Doyle

Q: In November 1987, I invested $30,000 in a government securities mutual fund and paid a front load commission of 4.5 percent, or $1,350. The remaining $28,650 bought me 3,132 shares. The monthly dividend checks have become steadily lower, going from $249 to $163. The net asset value per share has fallen from $9.64 to $8.74.

Doyle

Having stayed with this fund for almost seven years, should I stay in for another seven years and wait for it to go up?

A: That could be a serious mistake and a matter of compounding the error you made by putting money into that fund in the first place.

The fund you named in your letter is far from a star performer. It has seldom if ever turned in good investment results.

A Wall Street adage that has held up over the years goes as follows: "Let your profits run but cut your losses."

You have seen the value of your investment gradually erode for seven years. Unless you have an exceptionally strong reason to believe things are going to turn around at that mutual fund, it is passed time for you to cash in by redeeming your shares.

It would take new management of that fund to convince me that a turnaround is in the works. And there is no indication that such a change is under consideration.

You have to face the fact that some mutual funds are losers. Yours has to be counted among that unfortunate crowd.

Q: We understand that when interest rates go up bond prices go down, and vice versa. If things always work that way, we might be able to live with the loss of principal.

Our mutual fund, which invests primarily in bonds, was valued at $15.77 per share on Jan. 2 and $15.07 on June 7, a loss of 5.5 percent. Meanwhile the dividend declined 0.2 percent. Note a 5.5 percent loss of principal and a fall in the dividends.

This loss of principal and a reduction of dividends is not unique to conservative funds for "old people." Other such funds have done the same thing.

Meanwhile, my "risky" junk-bond funds are doing fine. What is one to believe?

A: You had better believe that junk bonds deserve their name. They are bonds with low investment ratings or no rating at all. As such, putting money into them or mutual funds holding them carries with it great risk.

Junk bonds have to pay high rates in order to attract buyers. No one whose head is screwed on straight would accept low interest from a highly risky bond.

As a result, junk bonds and mutual funds holding them pay high interest and attract buyers. As long as issuers of junk bonds do not default, holders of those bonds are in hog heaven.

However, when things turn sour and junk bonds miss interest payments, market prices of those bonds and the net asset values of junk-bond funds plunge.

In your case, it might be a matter of the managers of the junk-bond funds you own being astute at choosing high-yield bonds that have not gone into default.

Q: Who decides when a bond should be classified as "junk"?

A: That definition is laid on bonds by the major rating agencies — Standard & Poor's Corp. and Moody's Investors Service.

For S&P, junk bonds are generally considered those rated BB or lower. At Moody's, any bond graded Ba is counted as junk.

Although junk bonds are usually synonymous with troubled companies, they can also be debt obligations of young companies that have not yet matured to the point of earning an investment-grade credit rating from the rating agencies.

Our Mortgage-In-Advance is like taking this along when you look for a home.

With a Mortgage-In-Advance from Bank One, you have all the advantages of a cash buyer.

Since you've already been approved for a mortgage, you know exactly how much home you can afford*. Which means you won't end up shopping for a home out of your price range.

Better still, our Mortgage-In-Advance puts you in a stronger negotiating position with the seller. And that could mean buying the house for a lower price.

Last but not least, you'll be able to close the sale and move into your new home much faster than a buyer who still has to go through the mortgage application and approval process.

To find out how you can get a Mortgage-In-Advance, just stop by Bank One. Or give Cindy Kilman a call at 688-6478 today.

We'll show you how to go house hunting with some-thing that's quite a bit more useful than a wish list.
