One Killed When McCamey Oil Tanks Explode Fifty-One Slain In Battle With Mexican Bandits

Thousands of Mexican Federals Are Sent Into Bandit-Infested Region In Effort To Clear Out Disturbing Band

Fourteen Federals Died and 37 Rebels Were Killed During Frey, Consul Of Place Reports.

OTHER BATTLES ARE REPORTED BY ENVOY

Nayarit Is Mexican State Most Bothered by Brigands and Government Is Bent On Extermination.

(By Associated Press) NOGALLES, Ariz., Jan. 27.—William F. Blocker, American consul at Mazatlan, Mexico, who arrived at this border point today, told the Nogales Herald that 37 rebels and 14 federal soldiers were killed in a heavy engagement at Ixtlan, Nayarit, Mexico, last week. Several hundred troops participated.

General Heitman, sub-general under General Figueroa, commanding officer at Ixtlan, led the Mexican federal forces in battle. Blocker said that the government has thrown thousands of troops into the bandit-infested region of Nayarit in an effort to rid the country of rebels.

General Zertuche, commanding the federals at Acaponeta, led his force in two engagements against rebels last week.

One engagement was fought at San Diego, small town on the Durango-Nayarit border. Many died in the fighting.

General Joaquin Espinosa is in command of federal forces operating between Acaponeta and Tepic. His troops are combating that region for bandits. Blocker's report said that when bandits are found no quarter is given.

The American consul said that there are hundreds of bandits roaming the state of Nayarit, formed in small bands. Their raids have resulted in heavy property damage in the small towns.

The increased activity of federal troops, Blocker said, has enabled operation of through trains between Nogales and Guadalupe. Bridges on the road which were dynamited by bandit gangs several weeks ago have been repaired.

PRESIDENT CALLED IN FOOTBALL ROW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—President Coolidge will be asked tomorrow to use his influence toward healing the breach in Army-Navy football relations.

Representatives Britten, Illinois, and Fish of New York, who have been active in a 36-far unsuccessful effort to get the athletic authorities of Annapolis and West Point into agreement will urge the president to take a hand in the case.

Britten, the ranking Republican member of the house naval committee, and Fish, a one-time All-American player, both feel that it would be unfortunate if the annual service classic were not played next fall.

Ratliff Shows No Emotion As Jury Metes Life Term

Ninety-Nine Years In Pen Is Verdict for Charge of Robbery With Firearms.

(By Associated Press) EASTLAND, Jan. 27.—After more than 20 hours of deliberation the jury in the case of Marshall Ratliff, charged with robbery of the First National bank of Cusco, returned a verdict of guilty and assessed his penalty at 99 years in the penitentiary.

Ratliff heard the verdict without sign of emotion. It is believed that he will accept sentence without appeal. The state demanded the death penalty on the statute which makes robbery with firearms a capital offense in Texas. The defense Wednesday rested its case without offering a single witness and Counsel argued before the jury that the state had failed to make out a case.

The verdict, awaited since shortly before 6 o'clock Thursday night, when the fate of the man the state accused as the Santa Claus bandit in the bank raid, was given into the hands of the jury, came with dramatic suddenness. At 11:30 Friday morning word was sent "To Judge George L. Davenport that the jury wished to come into court. The judge sent back word that he would hear the jury at 1 p. m.

At the appointed hour the jury told the court that it was unable to agree.

"Retire again to the jury room," the judge ordered.

At 1:10 the jury emerged again to permit one of the jurors to con-

Nine Men and Three Women, All In Middle Age, Now Loom As Jury For Trial of Youth.

COURT IS ADJOURNED TO MONDAY MORNING

Absence of Excitement or Unusual Incidents in the Second Day of Case At Los Angeles Court.

(By Associated Press) LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.—Nine men and three women, all in middle life or past, held at least tentative places tonight as jurors in the sanction trial of William Edward Hickman, with the prospect that their seats might be made permanent after a legal technicality injected in the closing minutes today had been settled Monday morning.

The dispute arose after legal sparring in which each side attempted to pass its challenges. It was the state's turn and District Attorney Asa Keyes announced that the prosecution passed Jerome Walsh, young barrister from Kansas City, defending the accused slayer of Marian Parker, astonished the court room by announcing that he accepted the jury as it stood.

Makes Dramatic Keyes
Caught unaware, Keyes leaped to his feet and asked permission of Judge J. J. Trabucco, to use his remaining challenges when the trial was resumed Monday morning if the state so elected.

Walsh was not so content to have the matter rest, however, and as a result of his further argument as to the state's right to exercise its remaining mandates and an attempt to reserve for himself a similar

No other plane had ever crossed the ranges to the valley in which the Columbian capital lies—and Lindbergh was on time.

Just as the hands of the clock pointed to the hour of three, the aviator swept down on the aviation field of the military school with his celebrated companion "The Spirit of St. Louis." The journey from Cartagena had been completed in six hours, one minute.

There was tremendous enthusiasm among the spectators as he descended from heights far above the mountains and made a perfect landing in the big basin of which Bogota is a part.

IRWIN URGES CITY
Maintain Present Pace of Progress
Linking business and its progress with all community development and urging the continuance of the same development which is dominant in the city at present, Fryw Irwin, nationally known business counselor and investigator, closed the Lubbock Retail Merchants association before some 325 business people and citizens last night in the district court room with his lecture on "Team Work for Community Development."

Last night, as on his previous programs, Mr. Irwin's ideas took root in the thought of cooperation. Cooperation or team work is the making of every community, Mr. Irwin said, and no community has ever made any progress without this element in the work of their organizations. Let every citizen find the place where he can serve best and then stay with it, he said.

Community Harmony Stressed
Comparing a community to an orchestra, he explained how harmony and music was secured in such doing his part. "The fellow with the snare drum does not get mad because he can not make as much noise as the big bass drum, neither does the flute player seem to mind the larger horns which are being blown in full force by his side," he said.

CALIFORNIA OIL TANKS EXPLODE

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Cal., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Fire which broke out in the town lot oil fields here tonight caused three oil tanks to explode and threatened to spread to other parts of the field in which are located some 500 oil wells.

The fire started when a guager employed by the J. C. Collier climbed to the top of a tank to gauge the oil, carrying a lighted lantern. The oil caught fire and soon afterwards a river of burning oil flowed toward the other tanks.

—THE— WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

Never in a long time have I been so riled as when reading in the current "Harper's" an article called "This Two-Headed Monster—The Family" by one Henry R. Carey, of whom I never heard tell before but who, judging by the platitudes and moth-eaten traditions that drop from his pen, must be at least 65. It is enlightening to find that he hails from Germantown, Pennsylvania, that hotbed of Pennsylvania Dutchism where women still stand and serve their lords and masters and may not sit down to eat until the males are filled. If there's no food left, that's just female bad luck.

Henry Carey points, out to all men the worthy example of the hominid that bird that walks up its mate with mud or clay, bringing her food while she cares for her family.

That bird understands domestic unity and the division of labor which spells success. When his mate has performed her maternal functions, the mud wall is broken and she is free to resume her personal occupations. Consider the ways of the Hornbill, O Man, and be wise. In other words, it is the male only who knows just what is best for the children and just how the best is to be obtained. And to prevent any feminine ideas on the subject, and any of her attempts to carry said ideas out, he walks her up so that she can't meet liberal.

And Carey grows vast impassioned in setting the ridiculousness of expecting men to leave their highly specialized jobs in the office to do "work at home" which someone else can do far better. He says that this is exactly the same argument a wife uses when she wishes to swap housework for office work, thereby making the reverse quite consistent.

"Isn't it true that specialization spells efficiency," he writes, "and if it is wise for a man to specialize to produce income, is it not more advisable for a woman to specialize?" How beautifully he has stumbled into his own trap—setting the very and only argument which makes the feminist concede woman's right to the job for which she is best fitted, her specialty. Carey is simply assuming that housework is every woman's specialty whereas this is one of the greatest jokes ever imagined.

Carey gets all steamed up because unmarried women seem perfectly unconscious of owing any duty to the race. This argument always makes me snicker—just as if any men or woman ever married as a duty to the race or for any reason except that they wanted to for personal selfish, egotistic reasons. Just as other people choose not to marry for the same reason.

His whole argument seems to be that the woman who is not the old-fashioned stay-at-home woman must necessarily become masculine. The wife who would not tolerate effeminacy in a man insists on masculine activities for herself," he writes. And the truth is that women have never been so feminine as today. The only difference is that they are honestly feminine.

Beauty!

How and Why

Of all the sins that spell ruin to the appearance of the hands, nail biting is absolutely the worst.

The habit of biting the nails if not congenial in infancy of at least in early childhood, is apt to remain unconquered throughout a lifetime. So, with the exception of a few hints to grown-ups who occasionally sin in this manner, the advice given here is largely for those who have in their care young children of formative years.

Correction of the nail-biting habit, after it has once become fixed, is largely a matter of character building. If corrective measures are taken in infancy the best method is to make the biting as unpleasant as possible. This may be done by dipping the finger tips in a weak solution of bismuthate of quinine, made just strong enough to be intensely bitter.

An older child may be reformed through his vanity and an appeal to his will. Scolding and shaming him seems only to make him more perverse. But I have in my own experience known of a complete cure being effected by the simple method of taking the child to a good manicure for weekly treatment until his pride in his hands became a real thing. This coupled with an appeal to his will, brought about a lasting cure.

Menu for the Day

BREAKFAST—Stewed figs, cereal cream, crisp broiled bacon, muffins, marmalade, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Vegetable soup, toasted cheese sandwiches, canned pears, molasses cookies, milk, tea. DINNER—Baked flank steak, scalloped potatoes, buttered cauliflower, French endive with Roquefort cheese dressing, canned cherry pie, milk, coffee.

Baked Flank Steak

Two tablespoons fine sifted cracker crumbs, sprinkled evenly over the bottom of the pie crust before adding the cherries will insure a delightfully thickened juice and an uncracked shell when the pie is served. Any soda cracker can be used. If a small six-inch pie is made 1 tablespoon crumbs is sufficient.

Two pounds flank steak, 2 sweet green peppers, 1-2 large Spanish onion, 2 sprigs parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1-2 teaspoon mustard, 1-2 teaspoon sugar, 2 cups canned tomatoes.

Remove membrane from steak and trim neatly. Grease a dripping pan a little larger than the steak with beef suet. Remove seeds from pepper and parboil five minutes. Plunge into cold water and rub off both coating. Remove seeds and pith and mince flesh. Mince onion and parsley. Rub tomatoes through a coarse sieve to remove seeds. Mix salt, pepper, sugar and mustard and rub thoroughly into meat. Add minced vegetables to strained tomatoes. Heat dripping pan very hot and lay meat in it. Pour over tomato mixture, cover pan and make one hour in a moderately hot oven. The acid in the tomatoes helps to make the meat tender. (Copyright 1928, NEA Service Inc.)

DOING THE TASK AT HAND

The wise man, Solomon, says "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." The thought expressed is that which is worth doing is worth doing well, and that one should not enter into a task into which he cannot put his might—his all. Too many men put into their m-i-t-e instead of their m-i-g-h-t. Now the widow's mite was her might, for it was her all. Do the thing at hand. Do the task for each one is the task at hand. Too many people want to do the task of the other fellow—the job out of their reach. Distance seems to lend enchantment to the job. It is well to remember that greatness does not come to one because of the position one fills, but as the result of the conspicuous efficiency one brings to his task. The surest way to remove the reproach of a lowly position is to become conspicuously effective in that position. It is better to be great in a small place than to be small in a great place. It is better to be king among dogs than to be a dog among kings. Polish the diamond at your own back door. Do the things at hand, for the things not yet at hand cannot be done until they arrive—then they will be the things at hand. Do the thing at hand with what you have in hand. Each man has his talents and gifts. These constitute his capital—this is what he has in hand and with which he is to accomplish his task. It is true that one may increase his capital, but the principle is unchanged. He is still using what he has in hand. In fact the only thing one can use is that which is in hand. A butcher's knife in hand is a more effective weapon than the U. S. navy out of reach. The early settlers of our country got to their destination sooner in an ox cart than they would have reached it had they waited for an aeroplane. Each generation has to accomplish its task with what it has in hand. The individual has to do the same thing. Do the thing at hand with what you have in hand and with all you have on hand. We are not only to seize the thing at hand and utilize what we have in hand, but we are to use all we have on hand. Do your task with your might. Perhaps the thing which has proved fatal to more men in life than anything else is the failure to put all they have into their tasks. The man who thinks more of what he gets out of his position than what he puts into it will eventually prove a failure. No man does his best work while his thoughts are in what he is getting out of his task, rather than what he is putting into it. The lure in a task should be the glory of its success, not the compensation. Do your task with all your might, leaving the consequences with God and man, and your fame will be assured. Do not worry about your name; do your task well and it will take care of your name. The masses fret themselves into forgetfulness while the few forget themselves into immortal fame. Service is one of the greatest things in the world. The extent of our service to men is the measure of our loyalty to Christ. The greatest man the world has ever produced is that man who has made the largest contribution to the world's permanent good. Do your task with all your might and with a smile—Do It Now!

FOR ARMY RANK COMMENSURATE WITH COMMAND

During the present session Congress may grant higher rank to the army chief of staff and to officers commanding the Hawaiian, Philippine and Panama Canal departments and the nine corps areas within the states.

Writing to Representative Morin of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Committee on Military Affairs, Dwight F. Davis, secretary of war, states that long experience has proved that rank should be commensurate with command. Congress recognized this principle in 1916, when it conferred higher temporary grades on rear admirals assigned to most important posts.

The chief of naval operations and the commanders of the United States, Battle and Asiatic Fleets are admirals; the Scouting Fleet, stationed on the Atlantic and the naval forces in European waters are under vice admirals. These officers report to the permanent rank of rear admiral—corresponding to major general in the army—on being relieved from such posts.

That system has worked satisfactorily at home and abroad so far as the navy is concerned. It is only fair, the War Department considers, that the military establishment should be accorded like advantages. The Department requests that the army chief of staff—after Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall vacates that post—and the commanders of the three non-contiguous departments be ranked as generals, and that lieutenant general's grade be conferred on corps area commanders. After the Spanish-American War the army chief of staff for some years held the permanent rank of lieutenant general. That struggle should have aroused the country to the need for a national defense plan, which was utterly lacking when it began. While chief of staff from 1910 to 1914, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood perhaps could have accomplished more with his plan to establish training camps throughout the country had he—like most predecessors in that post—been at least a lieutenant general.

In event of war the military forces would be grouped in six field armies as quickly as possible, and a general or lieutenant general should be placed over each such organization. Time would be saved were officers of those grades already designated. Considerable friction often has resulted in the course of developing large scale military operations in which army, corps and divisional commanders hold the same rank.

Questions of seniority and jurisdiction arose to perplex the War Department early in the Civil War, when under a major general heading a field army were many subordinates of the same grade. Commanders of the overseas military departments often come in contact with navy officers of similar authority, who invariably outrank them. Their promotion to corresponding grade would help toward efficiency and harmony between the land and sea forces.

EIGHT MONTHS AFTER THE FLOOD

One after another, cheery prophecies concerning the recovery of the flooded districts of the Mississippi Valley have been exploded by unpleasant facts. Within a month after Secretary Hoover had ventured the opinion that an extra session of Congress was not needed and that newly established credit corporations could finance the work of rehabilitation, a poll of representative bankers of the South established the fact that due to lack of security the victims of the flood had been able to make almost no use of the credit corporations. Later, when the administration proposed that the stricken areas be assessed for part of the cost of repairing the broken levees, this plan was denounced as unfair and impractical by Col. Charles L. Potter, actually in charge of the repair work, both on the ground that the flooded areas were "about at the end of the rope" financially and because the failure of any district to meet its assessment, however small, would imperil the success of the whole program.

Now, by way of further comment on the present phase of rehabilitation, comes an authoritative report filed with Congress by Dr. H. S. Cumming, Surgeon General of the Federal Public Health Service. Dr. Cumming reports that today, eight months after the flood, pellagra is on the increase in certain districts and poverty invites the spread of epidemics. Dr. Cumming says:

"While the urgent emergency was met by the measures adopted, a serious public health situation will continue to exist until the flood damage is remedied. The people in these areas will be exposed for an indefinite period to adverse health and economic conditions. The damage to water supply and waste disposal systems and the curtailment of adequate food supply are likely to give rise to conditions adversely affecting public health."

There is no use at this date in pointing out that such conditions were foreseen by those who asked for an extra session and urged that the administration anticipate these problems rather than attempt to handle them after they had developed. Dr. Cumming now asks for funds to meet what he still calls an emergency and they should be granted promptly.

COOLIDGE IN CUBA

The visit of President Coolidge to Cuba, where he addressed the Pan-American Conference, was we believe, a wise move. That he spoke in general terms only, and did not attempt to settle any of the questions at issue, was only right and proper. To state to the representatives of the other countries that "all nations here represented stand on an exact footing of equality" is to evidence acceptance, by our nation, of a truth that is not yet generally adopted throughout the world. To admit frankly that "we do not claim immediate perfection" is to recognize the difficulty of settling the contentions of nations along idealistic lines, even if the nations are sincerely desirous of doing so. The fact that the President of the United States, the alleged "colossus" of this hemisphere, is frank enough to openly avow these important principles is significant. It helps to clear the atmosphere of suspicion that is engendered every time a complication arises which calls for an exhibition of American strength.

NOT EVERY MAID IS AS GOOD LOOKING AS HER PICTURE

OUT OUR WAY—

SO THINK WE

We think that there could be a great improvement wrought in Lubbock by keeping the alleys clean. There is a great amount of trash and waste papers and boxes and things allowed to accumulate in the alleys that should not be.

We think the down town part of Lubbock could be greatly improved by paving the alleys. Why not do this in the busy section of the city at least.

We think that if Lubbock county does not get busy on her permanent highways that we will be missing an enormous amount of travel through this section of the state. Tourists are keeping up with the condition of the roads everywhere and they go where the highways are the best.

We think when one does his best, he is pretty apt to succeed. Most of us never do our best, and many of us who think we are putting forth our very greatest effort, might do more. This is true in our individual life and it is true in our community life.

We think that we all want to see prosperous times in this country, and the best way that we can figure out for the program of diversification to be carried right along as it has started out. The cow and the sow and the hen will make the bank account stay on the right side of the ledger.

We think that Al Smith may receive the nomination of the Democratic party at Houston, but that will not mean that he will be elected. It is a pretty certain conclusion that there is too much opposition to him to ever elect him. He would have a hard time being elected on the Republican ticket, but with the strong Republican majority in the United States and with the Democrats fighting among themselves, there is little hope for a Democrat.

We think there will be a great many trees planted in Lubbock this year, and great care should be exercised in planting the kind that will be here for many years to come. Money spent on a short life tree is money wasted, but when it is spent on a tree that will serve mankind as a shade tree and as an ornamental tree for years to come it is the kind that should be bought.

We think pretty yards and pretty trees and pretty shrubbery makes any town look much more attractive to visitors and prospectors and for that reason Lubbock should be made as pretty as possible.

OPINIONS

PATRIOTISM AND LAW

Yesterday Judge Newton P. Willis, in a statement in the courtroom at Simons, spoke of the unwillingness of citizens to testify in criminal cases for the state. In numerous instances witnesses have left this section of the country to keep from testifying in case of a criminal nature, the judge said. He described the condition as deplorable.

Eradication of crime under the present order of things is dependent on the enforcement of the law. Since Edward Hickman made his confession to the fiendish murder of little Marian Parker, a wave of serious crimes has spread over the United States. Officers have been on the trail of the perpetrators of these offenses and several have died in the electric chair while others have been sentenced to life imprisonment.

Officers cannot be expected to bring justice to criminals unless they receive the cooperation of the people. Witnesses who leave the scene of a crime in which they may have been only an observer, are

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that a new move is on foot to get an under pass on the highways out of Lubbock and that is a very splendid idea. It is something that has been needed for some time, and the sooner we get them the better off the general public will be. It is a thousand wonders that some very tragic accidents have not happened in this city at the street crossings on the railroad.

It is reported that seats on the New York stock exchange now cost $10,000. We cannot see through it all, but we can very readily see why the New York brokers cannot sit down.

It is reported that a Michigan cobbler can tell what the weather is going to be a year in advance by studying the layers on the onion. He might be classed with that group of people who "know their onions."

It is reported that there are several fellows who have not paid their 1928 license tax, still others who have not paid their poll tax, and there will be a grand rush for the tax collector's office next Tuesday, and it may be that some will rush too late.

It is reported that a Kansas woman is going to erect a monument to her husband's first wife. We wonder what for? Possibly for taming him, and possibly for the heroic act of dying to get rid of him.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, The Health Magazine.

Public health authorities are becoming inclined to view with more and more suspicion the possibility of infections brought about by the medium of hand to mouth. This has given rise to many of the anti-handshake campaigns, that have recently been launched upon the public.

There is no harm in handshaking, provided the hands are washed each time before they are conveyed to the mouth or to the nose. It is taken for granted that even the most careful in matters of etiquette will, on occasion, insert a finger in the nose.

It is presumed that the person who eats at home is supplied with food from thoroughly washed dishes, served by hands that have been washed before the serving, and by persons in reasonably good health. Unfortunately the attendants in public eating places are not always so carefully chosen as is the cook or the wife who is responsible for food in the household.

Inspection of the state department of health of New Jersey considers the question "Where to eat?" as being of equal importance as the more familiar "When do we eat?" Certainly the patron of a public eating place has a right to know whether or not food is prepared and cooked in a clean kitchen by clean cooks and attendants.

He wants to know whether it is served on clean dishes and whether the knives, forks and spoons are clean. In every community there are large and small restaurants, cafes, saloons, lunch rooms, ice stands, lunch wagons, frankfurter establishments in which food may be served in one form or another.

Some of the problems which restaurant inspectors have had to consider particularly concern the handling of water. Even though the water is satisfactory as it comes from the city supply, it may be placed in unsanitary vessels, mixed with ice that has been cracked with a hatchet, and placed in glasses with unwashed hands.

LAUGHS

A crowd of American college girls were discussing which of two classmates was "cuter." The Chinese student listened in silence, declining to commit himself to any opinion. Finally someone appealed directly to her.

"What do you think is cuter?" Still the Oriental took no notice of the question.

"I believe that each of them has her own peculiar cuter."—The Spokesman.

"Take a seat, Miss Smith," said the always tactful manager to his new stenographer. "You are a very handsome-looking young woman! You dress neatly and you have a well-modulated voice. I might add that your manner is at all times charming."

"Oh, you shouldn't pay me so many compliments."

"Look, heah, you's cheatin' on me."

"Lord, black man, ah ain't cheatin' on no one."

"Yes you is—Ah never dealt you that acc."

Father—"Well, do you think you can make my daughter really happy?"

Suitor—"Say, you should have seen her last night."

Margaret, where is your little sister?
"I just hurried away from her, mother, 'cause I fell sur' I was going to lose my temperature."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Lower the cost of producing cotton through sound cultural methods, applied in a business like way; increase the uses of both cotton and cottonseed, in those ways which have already been proven to be entirely practical, as well as those to be determined hereafter; re-establish the live-at-home principle on which our farming industry originally was built; and there will come to the South an era of prosperity such as few of us have ever dreamed; a prosperity that will steadily be reflected in the financial and economic life of the entire nation.

That is the view of J. I. Lancaster, president of the Texas and Pacific Railway company. They are farming a business, not simply an occupation. When the farmer, backed by his banker or merchant, realizes this, and that lowered cost of production through increasing efficiency of operation is just as vital to successful farming as any other business thing, still improve. The farmer's production costs can be lowered through intensive cultivation of smaller acres, properly prepared and abundantly cultivated.

But this intensive cultivation has been impossible with the acreage the farmer has usually had on a farm. This fact and the one-crop habit has been largely responsible for the Southern farmer's trouble. Sowing down at least part of the land in cover crops, crop rotation, seed selection and better soil and livestock, these fundamentals must be the foundation for any successful farm program.

And the farmer must learn to co-operate wholeheartedly, not only with his banker and merchant, but with his neighbors, and with the layers on the onion, in their efforts to develop new markets and find new markets for the things the farmer produces.

A bill which shortly will be introduced in Congress, provides for the sale of cotton on a net weight basis, thus opening way for use of the linted cotton as a covering for the cotton bale itself, and numerous other additional uses are being found for cottonseed, especially in the rapidly developing dairy industry, new in its infancy in this country. This is an unlimited source of farm revenue, once given its rightful place on our farming program.

Purebred livestock and selected seed are to the farmer what sharp tools are to the mechanic, and a capable man to cash in on his knowledge and skill. We believe purebreds do pay; that no man can afford to match his time against a scrub, and we stand ready to do what we can to help.

Is It Your Duty To Vote?

By WILLIAM B. MUNRO
Professor of Municipal Government, Harvard University.

It is the theory of popular government that every adult citizen shall have the privilege of voting. But I take issue with the doctrine that every citizen has the right to exercise of popular government requires everyone to exercise this privilege every time his rulers offers him the opportunity to do so. The safeguard of democratic government lies in the preservation of the opportunity, not in the hundred per cent exercise of it.

The great body of the voters form a reserve which can be mobilized to express the will of the people when the momentous issues of principle or of policy are at stake. But it does not follow that we need, or ought to expect, a full mobilization when the issues are of relatively slight consequence. As a matter of fact, the people as a whole appreciate that differentiation and act upon it. Everywhere their ratio of attendance at the polls is in direct proportion to the intensity of the feeling aroused, and this again is proportioned to the gravity of the issues that are before them for decision. The people, in fact, are wiser than those who so vociferously undertake to remind them of their duty.

If we undertook to run corporate business on the principle that every stockholder is in duty bound to cast his vote whenever the directors are to be elected, or questions of policy decided, our whole system of corporate management would break down. Only when some question of deep and real interest arises do the stockholders muster their full strength in person or by proxy. To the extent that government is business (which it is to a large extent) the analogy would seem to hold. It avails nothing, either in business or in government, to make men go through the gesture of playing an interest which they do not feel.

In this field we can learn something from the experience of Europe. Why do a large percentage of the people go to the polls there? The answer is that they do so because they are inherently more interested in politics than Americans; and much less is it true that the propaganda for getting out the vote is more active than here. It is largely because elections do not come so frequently that they are so important. The mental laziness of policy, with a sharp cleavage between the programs of the various political parties.

In Europe it is the issue that produces the election; in America the election comes on a fixed date and the issue is made up for the occasion. It is small wonder that the voter does not let himself get seriously excited about issues which have been produced in this way.

The organizations which are spending much effort and money in "get-out-the-vote" campaigns and in promoting a movement for compulsory voting, would do well, therefore, to ask themselves the question whether propaganda which confines itself to a mere recital of the issues before the voter and the danger to democracy is likely to contribute anything in the long run to a more enlightened expression of the public will. By all the indications it will not. They are applying the stimulus at the wrong spot.

What we most need is to make registration easier, the ballot simpler, election less frequent, the issues clearer, the party programs less evasive and, above all, to organize our campaigns of civic education so that they will be more comprehensive, more persistent and more effective in reaching those sections of the potential electorate which now contribute most heavily to the percentage of stay-at-homes. Until we do this there is not much that we stand to gain by merely using the methods of round-up.

Today's Poems

There's not a cloud in the sky
At evening or morn,
Every thing's lovely,
There's nothing forlorn
All things are smiling,
And happy and gay,
Since Jesus came into my heart,
There to stay.

No more am I bothered
With worries and cares,
For now all my troubles
And sorrow he bears.
My life grows still brighter,
As I draw life from his love,
For Jesus, my Savior,
Said it would be so.

No longer I'm walking
In by-ways of sin,
For light brightly shines
In the temple within,
It's cleaned and its garnished.

And ready for use,
No longer it's subject
To things of abuse.

Our Savior once said,
When He lived here on earth,
That He loved everyone in this world.

From their birth,
He gave up his life,
And died on the tree;
And all this he bore,
For you and for me.

Then why will folks turn
A deaf ear to his plea,
When all his life's work,
Was to make all men free,
He entreats, and he beckons you,
Let us and turn,
From sin's evil ways.

Plunkett Speech Defended, Upheld

Solons Take Sides On Issue; Admiral Said War With Commercial Rivals Was Inevitable.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Rear Admiral Plunkett, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, whose recent remarks regarding the possibility of war with the United States were so widely reported, was attacked and defended on the floor of the House.

Leading the attack was Rep. McClintic, Democrat, Oklahoma, a member of the naval committee, who said it was "a pitiful situation when the president of the United States feels that it is necessary to deny sentiments expressed by a man of such high rank as Admiral Plunkett that the country should prepare for war."

Representative Black, a New York Democrat, defended Plunkett and assailed what he termed as "the unfair view expressed at the White House."

McClintic charged that high navy officers play an important role in guiding the American foreign policy and said such officers should be removed.

His stand was supported by Representative Lacharria, Republican, New York.

Black proceeded to charge that foreign policy was often directed by Secretary Hoover, and denied that Plunkett's purpose was to increase appropriations for naval construction.

"In marked contrast to this policy," he added, "the nation is confronted with an outbreak from a naval officer which according to the interest of foreign policy of increased appropriations for naval construction."

Such idiotic, asinine outbursts put this nation in bad repute with other nations of the world, and instead of increasing our commerce with friendly nations, this admiral's prophecy has the effect of curtailing and destroying satisfactory trade relations."

Writ Asked For Acosta, In Jail

Move to Secure Release of Famous Aviator, Held On Larceny Charge, Is Made By Attorneys.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 27. In an effort to obtain release of Bert Acosta, transatlantic flier, from the New Haven county jail, where he is being held on a warrant from New Jersey charging larceny of a plane, his counsel late today obtained a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Walter M. Packard, of the court of common pleas.

The writ summons Sheriff James Geddes to produce Acosta in court tomorrow morning to show by what right he holds the aviator.

Rocco Terardi, of New Haven, and John H. O'Connell, of New York, attorneys for Acosta, maintain that the New Jersey warrant charging larceny is not binding on the flier, from whom counsel earlier today had produced release from a five-days' sentence imposed on him for flying low over Naugatuck, his former home town, on Wednesday. Acosta's counsel today filed the $100 bond necessary for the release of the flier on that charge in the Waterbury common pleas court.

The warrant under which Acosta is being held is from Sheriff H. C. Harper of Bergen county, New Jersey, and charges larceny of the Connecticut aviation laws in flying low over centers of population. The governor's office today notified the jail that Gov. John H. Trumbull had received a telegram from Commander Richard Byrd in Chicago, offering to be any ser-

Livestock Association, In Closing Session, Takes Steps to Insure a Fight Against "Loco Weed."

EL PASO, Jan. 27.—Protesting against any legislation attempting to place Mexico on an immigration quota basis was made in a resolution adopted by the American National Livestock Association at the close of its annual convention today. It was stated that such legislation between this country and Mexico would also be damaging to agricultural interests.

An advance in the tariff on beef products, because of increased imports, especially of canned varieties, was asked at the session. The convention also went on record as favoring an import duty on hides and opposition was expressed to legislation restricting the sales of oleomargarine.

Cooperation of the federal and state governments in establishing a laboratory to devise methods of eradication of the loco weed and increased appropriations for the bureau of entomology in combating insect pests also were recommended.

L. C. Britz, of Marfa, today was re-elected president of the association. H. B. Boice, of Phoenix, Arizona, was named first vice-president and William Polman, of Baker, Ore., second vice-president. San Francisco, Cal., was selected for the 1929 meeting place.

Increase In Sheep, Hogs, and Goats Is Feature of Year's Livestock Review

Number of Cattle Declined During Year But High Market Meant Best Financial Returns for the Cattleman Of Any Year Since 1920, Statistician Avers

AUSTIN, Jan. 27.—Continued expansion in the sheep, goat and hog raising industries, with hogs emphasized in the farmers' diversification program, accompanied a decrease of horse, mule and cattle production in Texas, the nation's leading stock raising state, during 1927, H. H. Schutz, federal statistician, reported here Friday.

Milk cows on the farm are holding their own in numbers, however, despite the slump in production of other cattle, he said.

Profits from the cattle industry generally, due to higher prices, were "easily the greatest since 1920."

Ranges are fair to good but need more moisture for a favorable spring. Cattle and other stock have wintered well to date with losses at a minimum and a few contracts farms and ranches on January 1, 1928, to 2,554,000 reported up to last January 1.

Hog production increased from 1,000,000 in 1926 to 1,375,000 last year and but for a decline in price, probably would have been greater. The report attributes the renewed interest in hogs to the slump in cotton prices in 1926, turning farmers to efforts at diversification.

Prices on cattle, which have decreased from 7,218,000 head in 1922 to 3,607,000 for last January 1, took a sharp advance last fall, bringing the average price to a point 25 per cent higher than for 1926. As a result of this favorable situation, marketing during the year just closed was heavier than in 1926, but lighter than in the preceding years of liquidation and readjustment.

Following is the estimated number

JESSE BALLOU DEAD

Uncle of Lubbock Woman Dies at Roswell

Death of Jesse Ballou, age about 50, uncle of Mrs. W. C. Edwards of Lubbock, was reported in dispatches from Roswell, N. M. yesterday. Mr. Ballou died Thursday and was buried yesterday at Brady. Mr. Ballou was a prominent cattleman and was quite well known in Lubbock.

for young steers, cows and heifers have been made for spring delivery at "very attractive prices."

The sheep industry has enjoyed a 30 per cent increase in production during the past two years—1,958,000 head. The number of goats has climbed from 1,800,000 head on and value of classes of livestock in Texas as reported up to January 1 for the year preceding.

All cattle 3,607,000 head, $25.05; milk cows, 306,000 head, $70.20; hogs 1,375,000 head, $32.00; sheep 4,593,000 head, $29.00; goats 2,544,000 head, $13.08.

IT TAKES ALL-BRAN TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION

More and more people are eating bran for "health's sake" these days. And it's a fine thing. But not everybody realizes what a difference there is in so-called "brans." Doctors say it takes 100% bran to supply enough roughage to relieve constipation. Part-bran products, at best, can only be partly effective.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is 100% bran. It furnishes roughage in effective quantities—and in the most effective form: cooked and krumbled. It does a work part-bran products cannot hope to equal. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal—are guaranteed to relieve constipation.

Serve ALL-BRAN often. With milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's though—in the red-and-green package. Use it in cooking. Sprinkle into soups. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Houston Hurries On Arrangements For Convention

City Votes Money to Clear Site of Hall—Reed To Open Headquarters For Campaign in City.

(By Associated Press) HOUSTON, Jan. 27.—Steps, actual and prospective, today brought Houston nearer realization that it is to entertain the Democratic convention here in June. For one thing, the city administration appropriated $5,000 and began to use it in removing a score of small residences from two blocks of ground for the proposed temporary convention auditorium. The site, a part of the city's proposed civic center, was chosen subject to the decision of Mayor Holcombe and Jesse Jones when they return from New York. Both have been in the east awaiting completion of architects' plans for the auditorium.

Reed Headquarters Shortly after newspapers carried these messages to Houston citizens. Associated Press dispatches told them that Senator James A. Reed of Missouri would lose no time in opening his headquarters as a candidate for Democratic nomination for president. The dispatches announced that Edward S. Villmore, treasurer of the Reed-for-President organization, planned to leave for Houston shortly to reserve space for headquarters and it was decided that he probably would get here Friday or Saturday. It was expected that the Reed delegation would number more than 200 persons, which contrasts with an earlier report that Governor Al Smith of New York had asked for 700 hotel rooms for his contingent. No Houston hotel has announced either receipt or acceptance of the request.

According to an unverified report, the New Yorkers proposed to house their delegation in a ship on the Houston ship channel if hotel rooms were not available. It was pointed out that the plan is perfectly feasible and that berthing space for large ocean going vessels and deep water to float them is available. With the hotel facilities of Galveston open to convention attendees, however, the ship housing plan was not regarded as necessary. Galveston has 1,000 rooms for large ocean going vessels and deep water to float them is available. Various Opinions On Moody Resolve

Love Believes Governor Is Definitely Out of National Race; Renfro Thinks Him Still Available.

DALLAS, Jan. 27.—Governor Moody's statement that he is not, has not been, and has no intention of being a candidate for nomination as democratic vice-presidential candidate, is viewed differently by various political observers. The Times-Herald said today:

Governor Moody's statement is plain and should end the talk he is desirous of being on the democratic ticket with Al Smith. Sen. Thomas B. Love, former national committee man from Texas, said:

"I have felt all along, especially since his speech at the Jackson Day dinner at Washington, that Governor Moody was not in sympathy with the movement to make a 'boon' party of the democratic party."

C. C. Renfro, secretary of the Uninstructed for president club, on the other hand, believes Moody is still open for the nomination.

DAIRYING GROWTH Figures Show Development Of Hale Association

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 27.—Dairy farming around Plainview reached major proportions during the year 1927 in many respects, including volume and profits. This condition is reflected in the statement of the earnings of the Hale County Dairy Association just rendered to its members of the organization by its manager, Luther Griffin.

The Hale County Dairy Association is an organization of dairy-farmers united together for the purpose of cooperatively marketing their dairy products, and for educational purposes in dairying.

During 1927 this Association handled 390,752.3 pounds of butterfat as compared to 249,994.9 pounds in 1926. It paid its members $144,432.07 for cream in 1927, and $85,220.28 in 1926. The Association has grown so big that it is now contemplating the construction of a cooperative creamery which will manufacture butter in Plainview, the promoters of the Association having convinced themselves that in this manner they can obtain a higher price for the butterfat.

Uphold Provision Of Jones Measure

Bill Still Requires Consent of Full Shipping Board For Sale of Any Merchant Vessel.

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The provision of the Jones shipping bill requiring unanimous consent of the shipping board for the sale of any government vessels hereafter was upheld today by the senate, 51 to 25, against the assault of administration leaders who declared it meant permanent federal operation of the merchant marine.

Heeding the advice of President Coolidge for early disposal of the government fleet into private hands, Republican leaders had waged a determined fight against this provision of the bill to build up American shipping under the direction of the agency formed during the world war.

Sponsored by Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, the chairman of the commerce committee, the sale provision of the measure drew an almost solid Democratic vote along with a line of western Republican independents. Four Democrats, Blease, South Carolina; Bratton, New Mexico; Copeland, New York, and King, Utah,—21 Republicans of the administration group to require unanimous consent of the board for the sale of vessels in place of a majority vote as now prevails. An attempt by Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey, to permit sale of ships upon the vote of four members of the board—a majority—was rejected 54 to 34 to permit the sale upon a vote of five of the seven members of the board. The motion by Senator Willis Republican, Ohio, was superceded, though by the final vote to require unanimous consent.

Senator Jones, in charge of the measure, has announced he wants the senate to act on the bill before the end of the week and there is every indication that it will be sent to the house where the administration hopes to muster a stronger showing against it.

Sunday-School Lesson
BY DR. J. E. NUNN

GENERAL TOPIC: The growing fame of Jesus

SCRIPTURE LESSON: Mark 3: 17-21, 33-35

Mark 3: 17. And Jesus with his disciples withdrew to the sea; and a great multitude from Galilee followed; and from Judea.

18. And from Jerusalem, and from Idumaea, and beyond the Jordan, and about Tyre, and Sidon, a great multitude, hearing what great things He did, came unto Him.

19. And He spake to His disciples, that a little boat should wait on Him because of the crowd, lest they should throng Him.

20. For He had healed many; inasmuch that as many as had pangs pressed upon Him that they might touch Him.

21. And the unclean spirits, whenever they beheld Him, fell down before Him, and cried, saying, Thou art the Son of God.

22. And He charged them much that they should not make Him known.

Mark 6: 63. And when they had crossed over, they came to the land of Gennesaret, and moored to the shore.

24. And when they were come out of the boat, straightway the people knew Him.

25. And ran round about the whole region, and began to carry about on their beds those that were sick, where they heard He was.

26. And whosoever He entered, into villages, or into cities, or into the country, they laid the sick in the market-places, and besought Him that they might touch if it were but the border of His garment; and as many as touched Him were made whole.

Time—A. D. 28, in the second year of Christ's ministry; the second passage, April, A. D. 29, in the third year of His ministry.

Place—The shore of the Sea of Galilee.

Golden Text—The common people heard Him gladly.—Mark 11: 37.

Last week we watched the increasing hostility of the Pharisees, scribes and Herodians against Jesus and saw one reason for it to be Christ's opposition to the foolish and burdensome ceremonial rules which these people had based upon the law of Moses. Another reason, which was not brought out in last week's lesson, was Christ's rapidly growing popularity with the common people and this we are to study in today's lesson, discovering the reasons for that popularity. In the course of Christ's ministry, we learn why the world today in spite of its selfishness, carelessness and sinfulness, still admires, loves and reveres Jesus Christ far above any person who has ever lived.

Jesus Seeks Retirement v. 7

And Jesus with His disciples withdrew to the sea. The Sea of Galilee, the only large body of water in Palestine. It is about twelve and a half miles long, and eight miles broad in the widest part. It is about 150 feet deep and lies about 600 feet below the level of the Mediterranean. It is a lovely body of water and has been compared to the lake of Lucerne, the lake of Geneva, and Loch Lomond. Matt. 13: 15 states that Christ's withdrawal was on account of the plotting of His enemies.

And a great multitude from Galilee followed and from Judea. Very likely they camped upon the beach. It must indeed, have been a large crowd including contingents from regions so widely separated. Galilee was the northern division lying between the Samaritans who were not welcome among the Jews and did not mingle freely with them; if any of them were in this company, they were not thought worth mentioning.

The Thronging Multitude vs. 7-19
A great multitude, hearing what great things He did, came unto Him. "It is a very external and vulgar kind of sensation that the evangelist describes: the people flock together, not because echoes of Jesus' teachings reached their consciousness, but because they have heard of His works."
"For He had healed many." Few value health while they have it, but as soon as they lose it, it is seen at once to be one of the main foundations of happiness and prosperity. Even the charitarians, whose claims of healing powers are so easy that one would think they could fool nobody, will draw great crowds of sufferers around them; how much more the Divine Healer whose mere word could make a leper whole in an instant, open blind eyes and even bring back the dead to life!

Unclean Spirits Cast Out v. 11
"And unclean spirits, whenever they beheld Him, fell down before Him." "It is worthy of notice that the afflicted people "fell upon Him" but the unclean spirits "fell down before Him" and this not out of love or devotion, but out of abject fear, dreading lest he should drive them out of the "possessed," and send them before their time to their destined torment. It is just possible that this homage paid to our Lord may have been an act of cunning—a ruse, as it were, to lead the people to suppose that our Lord was in league with evil spirits. "And cried, saying, Thou art the Son of God." The Messiah, the earthly incarnation of Deity. These evil spirits, being of the invisible world, seem to have had earlier knowledge than any man of Christ's nature and mission; that is, earlier than any man who did not learn of it through an angel.

"And He charged them much that they should not make Him known." Christ was not ready to declare his Deity. He knew that to do so would raise against Him an array of enemies strong enough to kill Him. He had first to win and train a body of disciples numerous enough to continue the work He had begun. And even if He were ready for the proclamation of His Messiahship, He would not have it made by demons.

The Busy Life of Jesus
Between the extract just considered and this passage stretched a portion of Mark's gospel which is crowded with events. Our Lord had definitely chosen His Twelve disciples and had instructed them with the sermon on the mount and many other parables and teachings. He had sent them forth on their first missionary journey and had received their report on their return. He had worked many marvelous miracles and had unfolded their teachings to the disciples. He had just fed five thousand men with five barley cakes and two small fishes. This was on the northeastern shore of the Sea of Galilee, and after the miracle He had withdrawn in a boat. A storm came up and the boat was in a terrible plight when Jesus came to them, walking on the sea, and Peter made his attempt to go to Jesus on the water, but failed. Our Christ's arrival—the storm suddenly ceased and the amazed disciples speedily reached the shore. It was all a wonderful revelation of the Saviour and education of the disciples' faith.

The Land of Gennesaret v. 33
"And when they had crossed over, they came to the land unto Gennesaret, and moored to the shore." The land of Gennesaret is only mentioned here and in Matt. 14: 34. It is a fertile crescent shaped plain on the northwestern shore of the Lake of Gennesaret, about three miles in length and one in width. From its sheltered situation, and especially from its depression of more than 500 feet below the level of the ocean, its climate is of an almost tropical character. Josephus speaks of it as if it were an earthly paradise, in which every kind of useful plant grew and flourished. The Sea of Galilee is sometimes called the Lake of Gennesaret from this region.

The Sick Brought to Jesus v. 35
"And began to carry about on their beds those that were sick, where they heard He was." The beds were thin mattresses or pallets serving here as stretchers. Our Lord seems to have moved freely about the whole region, and the determined sick folk who could get about on their own legs or beg or hire carriers, followed Him about as rumor reported his movements, keeping up the pursuit till they found him—a vivid description of a desperate search. The people seized the opportunity of Christ's presence to secure the blessings which they most desired. If men were so anxious promptly to seize a physical advantage, how intense should be their urgency in seeking the higher blessings of moral and intellectual redemption and sanctification.

"Little faith will get very great mercies, but great faith still greater."—C. H. Spurgeon.

"When trials come we should say, 'My Heavenly Father puts this cup of trial into my hands, that I may have something sweet afterwards.' Trial is the food of faith."—George Muller.

"Faith means a conscious and deliberate grasping of the outstretched hand of God. Faith means an absolute confidence in Christ, that he is what he says he is, and will do what he says he will do. Faith brings heaven down to earth. To faith God is the greatest reality in all the world. Faith is my response to his seeking love."—Canon Edward S. Woods.

"I do not want to get rid of the problems, perplexities, and responsibilities of existence, for life would be meaningless and colorless without them; what I need is to know how to meet my difficulties and triumph over them."—Dr. Frank Crane.

SCOGGIN &

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

THE STORY THUS FAR

Vance's theory is that two unknown persons were in the "Canary" apartment on that fatal evening; one locked in a closet, the other—the man who strangled—Margaret Odell. The murder is the most baffling one Vance ever has encountered. In no way can they account for the presence of anyone in the girl's apartment. The door to the alley was bolted on the inside and the man who had gone out with Margaret Odell the night before had been the only one to be seen with her, and circumstances completely eliminated him.

CHAPTER XI!

Heath sought consolation in a new line of thought.

"Anyway," he submitted, "we know that the fancy fellow with the patrician pumps who called here last night at half past nine was probably Odell's lover and was grafting on her."

"And in just what recidive way does that obvious fact help to roll the clouds away?" asked Vance.

"Nearly every modern Delilah has an avuncular amoroso. It would be rather singular if there wasn't such a chap in the offing, what?"

"That's all right, too," returned Heath. "But I'll tell you something, Mr. Vance, that maybe you don't know. The men that these girls lose their heads over are generally crooks of some kind—professional criminals, you understand. That's why, knowing that this job was the mark of a professional, it don't leave me cold, as you might say, to learn that this fellow who was threatening Odell and grafting on her was the same one who was prowling around here last night."

"And I'll say this, too; the description of him sounds a whole lot like the kind of high-class burglars that hang out at these swell all-night cafes."

"You're convinced, then," asked Vance mildly, "that this job, as you call it, was done by a professional criminal?"

Heath was almost contemptuous in his reply. "Didn't the guy wear gloves, and use a jimmy? It was a yeggman's job, all right."

"Tuesday, Sept. 11, 11:45 a. m."

Markham went to the window and stood, his hands behind him, looking down into the little paved rear yard. After several minutes he turned slowly.

"The situation, as I see it," he said, "boils down to this:—The Odell girl has an engagement for dinner and the theater with a man of some distinction. He calls for her a little after seven, and they go out together. At eleven o'clock they return. He goes with her into her apartment and remains half an hour."

"He leaves at half past eleven and asks the phone operator to call him a taxi. While he is waiting the girl screams and calls for help, and in response to his inquiries she tells him nothing is wrong and bids him go away. The taxi arrives, and he departs in it. Ten minutes later someone telephones her, and a man answers from her apartment. This morning she found murdered, and the apartment ransacked."

"He took a long draw on his cigar. Now it is obvious that when she and her escort returned last night, there was another man in this place somewhere; and it is also obvious that the girl was alive after her escort had departed. Therefore, we must conclude that the man who was already in the apartment was the person who murdered her."

"This conclusion is further corroborated by Doctor Doremus' report that the crime occurred between eleven and twelve. But since her escort did not leave till half past eleven, and spoke with her after that time, we can put the actual hour of the murder at between half past eleven and midnight. These are the inferable facts from the evidence thus far adduced."

"There's not much getting away from 'em," agreed Heath.

"At any rate, they're interesting," murmured Vance.

Markham, walking up and down earnestly, continued:

"The features of the situation revolving round these inferable facts are as follows: There was no one hiding in the apartment at seven o'clock—the hour the maid went home. Therefore, the murderer entered the apartment later."

"First, then, let us consider the side door. At six o'clock—an hour before the maid's departure—the janitor bolted it on the inside, and

To Nicaragua

Two officers of the American high command who have been called to Managua by the Nicaraguan disturbances are Major General John A. Le Jeune, U. S. M. C. (above) and Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, U. S. A. Le Jeune, chief of the Devil Dogs, is to inspect our field forces and McCoy is to supervise the 1928 national elections.

"What about the next apartment?" asked Vance. "The one with the door facing the rear passage-way—No. 2, I think?"

"Heath turned to him patronizingly. "I looked into this the first thing this morning. Apartment No. 2 is occupied by a single woman, and I woke her up at eight o'clock and searched the place. Nothing there. Anyway, you have to walk past the switchboard to reach her apartment the same as you do to reach this one; and nobody called on her, or left her apartment last night."

"What's more Jessup, who's a shrewd, sound lad, told me this woman is a quiet, ladylike sort, and that she and Odell didn't even know each other."

"You're so thorough, Sergeant!" murmured Vance.

"Of course," put in Markham. "I would have been possible for someone from the other apartment to have slipped in here behind the operator's back between seven and eleven, and then to have slipped back after the murder. But as Sergeant Heath's search this morning failed to uncover anyone, we can eliminate the possibility of our man having operated from that quarter."

"I dare say you're right," Vance indifferently admitted. "But it strikes me, Markham old dear, that your own effecting recapitulation of the situation jolly well eliminates the possibility of your man's having operated from any quarter."

"... And yet he came in, garrotted the unfortunate damsel, and departed—eh, what? ... It's a charmin' little problem. I wouldn't have missed it for worlds."

"It's uncanny," pronounced Markham gloomily.

"It's positively spiritualistic," amended Vance. "It has the careless odor of a seance. Really, you know, I'm beginning to suspect that some medium was hovering in the vicinage last night doing some rather tip-top materializations."

"I say, Markham, could you get an indictment against an ectoplasmic emanation?"

"It wasn't no spook that made those finger-prints," growled Heath, with surly truculence.

Markham halted his nervous pacing and regarded Vance irritably. "Damn it! This is rank nonsense. The man got in some way, and he got out, too. There's something wrong somewhere. Either the maid is mistaken about someone being here when she left, or else one of those phone operators went to sleep and won't admit it."

"Or else one of 'em's lying," supplemented Heath.

Vance shook his head. "The maid, I'd say, is eminently trustworthy. And if there was any doubt about anyone's having come in the front door unnoticed, the lads on the switchboard would, in the present circumstances, be only too eager to admit it. ... No, Markham, you'll simply have to approach this affair from the astral plane, so to speak."

Markham grunted his distaste of Vance's jocularly.

"That line of investigation I leave to you with your metaphysical theories and esoteric hypotheses."

"But, consider," protested Vance banteringly. "You've proved conclusively—or, rather, you've demonstrated legally—that no one could have entered or departed from this apartment last night and as you've often told me, a court of law must decide all matters, not in accord with the known or suspected facts, but according to the evidence; and the evidence in this case would prove a sound alibi for every corporal being extant."

"And yet it's not exactly tenable, d'ye see, that the lady strangled herself. If only it had been poison, what an exquisite and satisfactory suicide case you'd have! ... Mose, inconsiderate of her honor, visited her not to have used arsenic instead of his hands."

"Well, he strangled her," pronounced Heath. Furthermore, I'll lay my money on the fellow who called her last night at half past nine and couldn't get in. He's the bird I want to talk to."

"Indeed," Vance produced another cigaret. "I shouldn't say, to judge from our description of him, that his conversation would prove particularly fascinating."
