Irene Keating Writes

The 4-H Food Show - Bake Show will be held March 30th in the Assembly Room of the Courthouse. Do come at 11 a.m. to see what our 4-Hers have done.

Scientists have helped us have good nutrition by developing a guide, the Four Food Groups, to help consumers choose wisely. When foods are chosen from these four food groups it is possible to get all the nutrients necessary for good health without knowing about amino acids, or polysaccharides or any of the complicated chemical reactions that go on in the body. The foods within a food group are similar in the nutrients they supply, so you can choose many different foods each day and still follow our four food groups. Since there are many foods in each group, consumers can follow the guide and save money by choosing lower cost items in each group.

The meat group includes pork, lamb, veal, poultry, fish, beef and meat substitutes such as eggs, peanut butter or dried beans. Everyone needs two servings of meat group foods each day. Less popular cuts of meat, variety meats, fish, poultry and dry beans can be nutritious money savers.

The milk group is a favorite with time and money conscious consumers. The milks, cheeses, ice creams, and custards found in this group are usually quick to fix, moderate in cost and always nutritious. Everyone needs at least two servings from this group each day, but children, teenagers, pregnant and nursing mothers need more than two servings each day. Instant non-fat dry milk and processed cheese are two economical choices in this group.

The fruit and vegetable group also gives the consumer many choices. Wise consumers will choose canned or frozen forms of fruits and vegetables that are "out-of-season" in the early spring. For example, canned tomatoes or frozen strawberries might be better choices than the fresh produce. Cabbage, carrots, sweet potatoes and grapefruit should be "in-season" in the early spring and make good choices for consumers who want fresh produce. Everyone needs four servings of fruits and vegetables each day.

"To save energy and money this summer . . . cool your home with Gas Central Air Conditioning.

You save with a gas system because it's a more efficient energy user than its electric counterpart. It's more efficient because gas, unlike electricity, is a direct source of energy. You don't have the energy loss that occurs in electrical generation and transmission.

We help you save in another way, too.

In addition to determining the exact cooling requirements of your home, our cooling specialists also check your attic insulation. If it's insufficient, insulation is added and included as part of the job. Proper insulation saves energy and money for both cooling and heating.

So, beat the summer rush.
