Race Of Two Girl Aviators Over Atlantic Starts Today

MABEL BOLL AND EARHART PLAN FLIGHTS

Charles A. Levine Asserts Columbia Will Start Thursday

STORM HOLDS PLANE

Friendship Fliers Hope To Begin Trek To London

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., June 6. (AP)—A race between two women for the honor of being the first of their sex to fly across the Atlantic grew warmer tonight as Miss Mabel Boll, "Queen of Diamonds," aided her two-man crew in preparing the monoplane Columbia for an immediate ocean flight.

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., June 6. (AP)—Charles A. Levine, owner of the monoplane Columbia in which Miss Mabel Boll and a two-man crew plan to make a transatlantic flight, announced tonight that the ship would take off by 5 a. m., tomorrow "on a flight of 3,760 miles." He declined to reveal its destination.

Levine did not indicate whether the Columbia would stop at Old Orchard, Me., before heading to sea on the long voyage.

He said the plane would follow the southern great circle course, paralleling the ship lane, cross the Grand Banks, skirt the southern tip of Ireland, cross England and France and the Pyrenees mountains.

This course, it was believed, would take the ship to Rome, although the distance Levine announced the plane would travel indicated its goal might be either Rome, Berlin or Warsaw.

TREPASSEY, N. F., June 6. (AP)—Wilmer Stultz, pilot of the transatlantic plane Friendship, announced late tonight that he planned to take off at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning for Europe. The wind which had prevented the plane from leaving the harbor here for several days, was shifting to the north tonight, indicating better starting conditions in the morning. Miss Amelia Earhart of Boston is co-pilot of the plane.

Stultz said that he still had about 200 gallons of gasoline to put on board the plane, which work will require about two hours.

PACIFIC PLANE DUE TO LEAVE ISLAND TODAY

Southern Cross Unable To Land On Proposed Take-Off Beach

1795-MILE JOURNEY

Third Leg of Australian Voyage Shortest Of First Three

HONOLULU, June 6. (AP)—The Fort Shafter radio station reported at 5:45 p. m., Honolulu time (10:15 p. m., central standard time) hearing the monoplane Southern Cross' signals indicating the plane had hopped off from Naselai Beach, Fiji. (No verification of this report was forthcoming from cable or radio sources in San Francisco at 8:55 p. m., coast time.)

SUVA, Fiji Islands, June 7.—(Thursday)—(US)—The four airmen of the Pacific made ready this morning to mount their winged steed, the Southern Cross, for the last dash to Australia, 1795 miles away.

With Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith at the controls, the three-motored silver monoplane was scheduled to rise from Albert park here at 11 a. m., (3 p. m. Pacific coast time). His three companions, Charles T. P. Ulm, Harry Lyon and James Warner, will be aboard.

Start at 3 P. M.

The Southern Cross will make a short jump to Naselai beach, 20 miles distant. There it will land and final preparations will be made for the last leg of the historic trans-Pacific flight.

According to present plans, the daring pioneers of the Pacific air trails will hop-off from Naselai beach at 3 p. m., (7 p. m. Pacific coast time) for Brisbane, first destination in Australia. A 500-mile journey from Brisbane to Sydney will complete the epochal trip of approximately 7800 miles from San Francisco to the Antipodes.

Naselai beach was selected yesterday by Kingsford-Smith as the hop-off point after a careful survey of all the available sites. Its three-mile stretch of sandy beach makes an ideal runway, the Australian flight commander decided.

Arrive at Noon

Down this stretch of coral sand, fringed by palm trees under which thousands of natives and whites have gathered to watch the departure, the Southern Cross will roar toward the setting sun. Once in its own element again, the ship's prow will be pointed straight for Brisbane, where the daring aviators expected to arrive about noon tomorrow.

All of the heroic crew will make the final leg of the journey, Kingsford-Smith announced last night.

Harry Thaw Amazed at British Order Denying Him Right to Land

LONDON, June 6. (US)—Harry Thaw tonight is striding the top deck of the Aquitania at Southampton gazing wistfully at the gangway leading to the docks. When he arrived this evening with the intention of spending a few days in London, the home office inspectors boarded the ship and told him he would not be allowed to land.

Thaw was extremely surprised, and asked why he was barred, but the only reply he received was that the inspectors were acting under orders from London.

"This is a great blow," Thaw exclaimed, and soon retired gloomily to his cabin.

It is in accordance with tradition that the home office declines to give specific reasons for its actions unless questions are asked in parliament, which is not likely to happen in this case. Nevertheless the ban took everyone by surprise. It was unofficially intimated from Whitehall soon after Thaw sailed, that he would likely be allowed to land as a transient travelling with a friend for health and pleasure.

Whether the home office acted as the result of a specific request to exclude him, or whether Sir William Haldane Porter, chief of the aliens' branch, banned him on his record as an undesirable visitor, cannot yet be learned.

E. M. Pendleton, who traveled with Thaw, announced his intention of appealing to the home office to cancel the ban.

LAW BREAKERS GIVEN ORDERS

Fairtrace Issues Warning On Charges

Warning was given Wednesday by George D. Fairtrace, city manager, to vendors of salacious and immoral magazines, that sales in Wichita Falls must be stopped.

Mr. Fairtrace also said that the police have been given orders to tighten the general law enforcement on liquor and morals to the end that the city might be made cleaner and better.

"Wichita Falls is a beautiful city of good families where boys and girls are being reared to manhood and womanhood, and not a place for vice," Mr. Fairtrace said. Monday night at the council meeting, the women and churches and laymen of the city appealed to the council to assist in curbing vice.

"The police are doing their best to minimize these conditions and are making a special effort to rid the city of those who are undesirable.

"Those who are wise and who have been breaking the law will leave the city. Those who are not wise will find law enforcement tighter, and will find it harder to avoid arrest and just penalties.

"The city council approved the request of the citizens, and the city government and enforcement officers will see that the orders of the council are obeyed."

WOMEN ELECT HOUSEWIFE AS THEIR LEADER

ELECTION WRANGLE

Sippel Leaders Charged With Unfairness In Balloting

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, June 6. (UP)—A housewife won over a professional woman in the race for the presidency of the General Federation of Women's clubs, it was learned tonight.

Mrs. John F. Sippel of Baltimore, Md., housewife, was elected president of the federation over Mrs. Edward Franklin White, Indianapolis attorney. Mrs. Sippel had a margin of 100 votes. The election was held today.

Charges of unfairness in the election marred the balloting. Supporters of Mrs. White claimed workers for Mrs. Sippel had instructed delegates favorable to the former to sign their ballots, a procedure that would cause the ballots to be ignored in the final count.

The Australian system of voting was used by the voters today and is said to have caused confusion among delegates from states where the system is not in use.

To the charges of unfairness, the Sippel campaign leaders answered, "preposterous." For a time it appeared the election would be held again but harmony was restored.

Brief memorial services for Mrs. Myrtel L. T. White, 65, of Presque Isle, Maine, delegate who died at a local hospital today of heart disease, will be held Thursday morning. Miss Anna C. Witherle, of Castine, Maine, will accompany the body to Presque Isle.

This new "robot" will be manufactured by the Remington Arms company.

Tale of Illicit Love With Employer Told in Trial of Girl Slayer

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., June 6. (UP) Sobbing frequently as she told her story, Marguerite Bumbaugh took the stand in her defense today and described 10 years of illicit love relations with Walter H. Cook, her former employer for whose murder she is on trial.

Cook, who was a wealthy manufacturer at Niles, Mich., was shot in his factory by the defendant several weeks ago. Her two brothers, George and Girard, who accompanied her to the factory are charged jointly with first degree murder.

The defense move in placing Miss Bumbaugh on the stand came as a surprise. The state closed its case this afternoon and after the opening defense statement, the defendant was called.

"At first he was very kind and acted as a gentleman," the witness testified referring to Cook. "Later he told me he loved me and that I belonged to him and that if his wife would divorce him he would marry me."

Miss Bumbaugh told of automobile trips at night into the country and of having gone with Cook to Chicago, Grand Rapids, Indianapolis and other cities. She charged that Cook had performed four illegal operations on her during the time she was keeping company with him.

SAD PRINCESS SEEKS DIVORCE

Prince Carol's Wife Wants Separation

BERLIN, June 6. (US)—Princess Helen of Greece has brought suit for divorce against former Crown Prince Carol of Rumania. The saddest princess in Europe has taken the final step to close one of the unhappiest romances in the annals of royal love affairs.

This is the report reaching Vienna and Berlin tonight from Bucharest. Princess Helen, who steadfastly refused to divorce Prince Carol in the hope that the erratic prince would redeem himself and return some day to rule as king of Rumania, has finally consented to a legal separation.

Gen. Condescu has just arrived at Bucharest from Brussels where he obtained the necessary statements and signatures from Prince Carol to make the divorce possible. Prince Carol for a long time insisted that he would never be reconciled to Princess Helen, who is the mother of his son who now is king, and whom he deserted for love of the beautiful, red headed Mme. Lupescu, wife of a Rumanian officer of his regiment.

Efforts were being made last year to arrange a meeting between Prince Carol and Princess Helen, and she went to Italy in the hope that he would visit her there and promise to return with her to Bucharest. He refused to meet her.

ENTIRE G. O. P. WING FAVORING HOOVER WINS

Delegates-at-Large First To Be Recognized In Contests

LOWDEN GAINS FOUR

Committee Decides Texas Delegates Should Be Picked in State

KANSAS CITY, June 6. (AP)—The entire Texas delegation of 26 instructed for Hoover were seated today by the Republican national committee.

In addition, the commerce secretary picked up three certain votes from Tennessee when a contest in the third district was withdrawn and a delegate committed to Hoover was seated from the tenth.

WASHINGTON, June 6. (UP). There were unverified suggestions here today that a communication from President Coolidge may be available at the Kansas City convention—if needed to halt the "draft Coolidge" movement. These suggestions followed denials in White House quarters of a published report that a letter had been written to Chairman Butler of the Republican national committee at Kansas City, saying the president would not accept a renomination under any circumstances.

Hoover's Total 62

The Texas result brought the total number of votes placed in the Hoover column by decisions on contests up to 62. The only other presidential candidate to gain at all was Lowden, who was assured the support of the four delegates-at-large from South Carolina by the withdrawal of a contest.

After seating four delegates-at-large pledged to his candidacy and the delegate from the first district, also on the Hoover slate, the national committee late today recognized in one block the credentials of the Hoover delegates from all the Texas districts except the fourteenth.

Separate Hearing

At the insistence of the two delegates from that district opposed to the Hoover slate, a separate hearing was allowed on their appeal for recognition.

The committee adopted a resolution deciding that under the laws of Texas and the rules of the committee that issues calls for the Republican national convention, district delegates from that state should be selected at a state convention, as was done by the R. B. Creager faction, recognized today,

CLEANEST ART SHOW OPENS

Because Sculptors Carve In Soap

NEW YORK, June 6. (UP)—The world's cleanest art exhibit opened yesterday in the Swanky Anderson galleries in Park avenue when 318 dozen bars of soap were placed on view for lovers of the beautiful.

Nudes Not Suppressed

Although fully 1000 of the 3816 bars of soap had been whittled into nude young women by enthusiastic amateur and professional sculptors, neither the district attorney nor the society for the suppression of vice showed any intention of interfering.

The extraordinary number of nudes was possibly only the natural result of the bathroom material employed in the nation-wide competition for $1675 in prizes offered by the Proctor and Gamble company.

The company started the competition in a small way four years ago as an object lesson in what can be done with soap besides stepping on it and landing on the small of one's back. The entry list this year surprised even the company's optimists.

Noted Judges

Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor whose original ideas concerning the Stone Mountain memorial were blasted off the mountain by army corps at a considerable expense to the Daughters of the Confederacy, was one of the judges of the carved bars of soap. Another was Lorado Taft, the Chicago sculptor and another was Charles Dana Gibson.

The judges awarded first professional prize of $300 to a portrait bust of Silvie Derdyn MacDermot, a Pittsburgh singer by Margaret J. Postgate of Brooklyn. Miss Postgate used two bars of soap on Miss MacDermot and turned out an indubitably swell job.

John Held Jr., creator of the flapper, won a special prize of $250 by doing "Scott" the Held Scotch terrier, in one bar of soap and a coat of black paint.

Christmas Soap

"Mushrooms," and very good ones, won J. O. Cammack of Greencastle, Ind., the advanced amateur prize of $150. Rupert Gonsalves, 14, of New York employed 11 bars of soap to win the junior division prize. He whittled out and colored three wise men, a madonna, a babe, a shepherd, a sheep, a cow, a mule and two archangels, arranged them in a circle and named them "The Christmas Crib."

At Wednesday's program Optimists heard a report on the recently organized Vernon club. Following this report Bill Fitch, Optimist International organizer, advised members that an addition of 50 to the membership in Wichita Falls and organization of a club in Breckenridge would more than double the memebreship for the seventh district for the past year. Mr. Fitch outlined plans for the proposed membership drive here.

Damages Asked by Oklahoma Man

Suit asking for $15,000 for alleged damages was filed against the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad company by J. H. Gosden of Jackson county, Oklahoma, in district court Wednesday.

In his petition Mr. Gosden sets out that while in the employ of the Katy, on September 2, 1927, he was sent to the company hospital at Denison, Texas, where an operation was performed on him and a tumor removed from his right arm.

As a result of the operation, the plaintiff alleges, his right arm was paralyzed and made unfit for further use. Paralysis resulted, Mr. Gosden alleges in the petition, when operators severed the median nerve in his arm.

HARD ARTERIES

Hardening arteries indicate high blood pressure, which means that the blood in the heart and blood vessels is under too great a tension—a condition which may end life suddenly.

High blood pressure, indicated by hard arteries, heart palpitation, dizziness and difficulty in breathing, is the penalty of our abnormal habits of living. We place too great a strain on the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming "limp" or sluggish, fails to cleanse the blood of the toxic poisons formed in food waste. The whole system then becomes toxic, with stomach, kidneys, heart and blood vessels affected.

It is generally recognized that the liver occasionally needs a little help. There is nothing better for this, as medical men know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall has been found to be a great stimulant for the liver. The genuine, pure ox gall is to be had, dainty and tasteless, in the form of Dioxol tablets. Each tablet represents 10 drops of pure ox gall and costs less than 2c at good druggists. To be sure of getting the genuine, look for the name Dioxol and picture of ox's head on the package.

Free Test Take this ad to the druggist named below and he will give you a free sample of Dioxol tablets. Try them yourself. See the splendid, quick results. One trial of Dioxol and you will want a full package!

Ramblin'

with Marie Theresa

THOSE girls who have always felt themselves out of the scheme of things because they are neither pronounced brunets or the dainty golden blondes of novels, have occasion to cheer up. Their day has come, or maybe it has always been here but never recorded in books.

How many girls with chestnut hair have tried all methods suggested to darken those strands and how many girls with eyes that were neither blue nor brown, have decided there was no romance in merely having make the best of those orbs and trust that someone would mistake them for velvety brown ones?

And now they awaken to find Miss Universe, thus chosen Tuesday evening in Galveston, at the third annual international beauty show is one of these nondescript beauties whose eyes are hazel and whose hair must be called chestnut because there is no other word that would fit so well. The new Miss Universe is Miss Ella Van Huesen of Chicago, who was chosen from among 41 other bathing beauties after many hours of close study on the part of five internationally known judges of feminine pulchritude.

Miss America of last year, Miss Norma Smallwood of Tulsa, Okla., was also of this rather undecided type, possessing blue eyes and chestnut hair, unbobbed, as is that of Miss Universe.

Second and third places Tuesday evening went to candidates from Paris and Rome respectively, while fourth place went to the candidate from Denver, the only blonde in the group. This fact may be an indictment against the judges, or maybe, gentlemen don't prefer blondes, after all.

A DIRECTOR of the Woman's Forum told me last season that she was not in favor of engaging women speakers to feature the programs at the clubhouse because so few of them were good speakers. She went so far as to say that only one feminine speaker on the program of the season had really made a good impression.

This train of thought led Marie Theresa to listen more closely to the women who appeared on the programs of the Woman's Forum, and found that most of them had unnatural speaking voices. The feminine voice is pitched a little too high for pleasant loud enunciation at best, and when raised in order to be heard in the far corners of the auditorium the effect is often unpleasant. The natural nervousness of any speaker when enhanced by added nervousness due to unfamiliarity with the subject matter being discussed, creates an ensemble difficult to combat. The average woman has never been taught the necessity of being able to think while standing on her feet before an audience. She is likely to memorize her speech rather than prepare herself to have something of interest to say—and merely say it.

TEXAS has a just pride in its old landmarks, Mrs. P. P. Langford who has just returned from the biennial of the General Federation of Women's clubs held in San Antonio, believes. She expresses a pride in the age of the governor's mansion in Austin, since women of the east are wont to pride themselves of the age of their public buildings. The ladies of the hostess state, therefore, took great pride in being able to display some of the old buildings of Texas giving to the visiting women of the eastern states something of the virile history attached to them.

Delegates passing through Austin Sunday preceding the opening of the biennial were guests of Mrs. Dan Moody at a reception in the picturesque old mansion with its historic winding stairway and other signs of bygone days. A reception was also given delegates by Mrs. H. H. Sevier, wealthy and aristocratic resident of Austin, who purchased the grounds of the Alamo and made a gift of it to the state of Texas. Mrs. Sevier maintains the Sevier home with its many antiques and statuary from the continent, which was a novelty to many of the delegates passing through Austin on their way to San Antonio. Mrs. Langford expressed confidence that no other state in the union can surpass Texas in the natural beauty of its parks many of which were visited by biennial delegates with Texas women hostesses.

Miss Humphris Wedded In Pretty Ceremony

Miss Annette Humphris, daughter of Mrs. A. J. Humphris, became the bride of Andrew C. Carpenter Monday evening at the home of the bride's brother, Clint Humphris, and Mrs. Humphris, with the Rev. S. A. Barnes, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church, performing the ring ceremony.

The home was prettily decorated with ferns, palms, cut flowers and smilax entwined over the French doors, making an arch under which the bride passed, attended by Miss Naomi Cushman. Bridal cord marked the pathway of the bride and led to an improvised altar built of ferns, palms and roses.

Preceding the ceremony, Jimmy Hulse of Austin gave as a violin solo, "Minuet in G," by Beethoven, with piano accompaniment by Miss Macie McClure. Miss Evelyn Cushman of Ardmore, Okla., sang "O Promise Me," with Mrs. Lovejoy playing piano accompaniment. Mrs. Lovejoy played the bridal chorus, "Lohengrin," as wedding processional, and "Call Me Thine Own" during the ceremony.

The bride was attired in pink chiffon over satin with hand-made flowers and lace. She wore a picture hat of chiffon over silk lace and carried a bridal bouquet of bride's roses. The attendant wore an orchid chiffon gown with a pink picture hat, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and lavender and pink sweet peas. Clifford Deaton attended the bridegroom as best man.

Following the ceremony the bride cut the bridal cake which was served with punch to guests, with Mrs. Charles Pfeiffer of Houston at the punch bowl. The young couple left immediately for Oklahoma City where they will visit relatives of the bridegroom. They will return to the city August 1 and will be at home in their new residence at 1807 Seventh street.

CHIC CHERIE — LATEST FASHIONS

This is what Cherie came to Paris for—to sit in a chair and have the smart styles of the season parade in front of her. This coat, for instance, uses zigzag lines in a way in which, surely zigzag lines have never been used before. And that's news. The coat is white satin and the fur used in so smart a manner is kolinsky. For evening wear.

This is the transparent coat so new for summer. It's made of navy chiffon and trimmed with balls of gold sliced in half and applied as shown. You have a good view, too, of Cherie's hat of black straw trimmed with black ribbon, which makes an odd brim and flips out into a bow at one side of the back. A hat, we think, that's eminently French.

This satin afternoon dress has a rippling slanting flounce on its skirt and the line of the flounce is repeated, you see, by another such smaller flounce on one side and the back of the bodice. The only trimming is the little rippling line along the edge of the bodice opening — if even that can be called a trimming. Simply elegant simplicity!

There are ever so many evening gowns of plain or dotted tulle, and beige is even newer than black. Also colored tulle is shown—as witness this evening gown of dotted blue tulle. The skirt dips down in back, giving the background for silk-clad legs that seems to be the thing this season.

Boys "Evil" Influence Greater Than Girls in Youth, Dorothy Dix Says

Are Boys of Today Ruined by the Modern Girl or Are Girls What the Boys Have Made Them? Dorothy Dix' Idea of a Gentleman and a Lady.—Advice to Man Whose Marriage is a Failure.

Dear Dorothy Dix—A leading preacher, who has held meetings in 40 states, says that his honest opinion is that there are more boys being ruined by girls today than girls by boys. Do you think that he is right or wrong?—M. A. T.

Answer—I suppose that would come back to the discussion of the old question of which sex had the greater influence over the other, and that is a problem no one yet has been able to decide.

The principal of a high school attended by both boys and girls told me not long ago that she considered that the girls had a very demoralizing influence over the boys. The reason she gave for this was that girls mature younger than boys do, and that they begin making eyes at the boys and inveigling them into flirtations long before the boys would ever have thought of such a thing themselves. Furthermore she clinched her argument by calling attention to the fact that, boys who were sent away to boys' schools when they are young remain lads and interested in purely boyish sports much longer than boys who are thrown into daily contact with girls.

I also get hundreds of letters from boys who tell me that unless a boy is wild and fast, the girls will have nothing to do with him, that they call him slow—a flat tire—and apply other opprobrious epithets to him, and that it is only the boys with hooch on their hips and fast automobiles and money to spend who are popular with the flappers.

And, of course, when a poor, weak, little brother goes wrong, when he robs the cash drawer or stages an amateur hold-up or pawns his mother's jewelry, practically always he has committed his crime to get the money demanded by one of the gimme-gimme sisterhood.

Undoubtedly all of this is true, and "the sacred influence" of which we hear so much is not always employed to lift callow youths up to the higher life. Very often a little, innocent-looking school girl is just about the most dangerous playmate that a boy could possibly have, because it is when a boy is a boy, when his character is unformed, when his beliefs are nebulous, when his ideas are fluid, that he is most susceptible to outside influence.

And when a boy in his teens falls into the wrong feminine hands, they can do awful things to his soul. They can twist it and distort it, and kill in him all belief in anything that is pure and good and true and holy.

I am sure that there are many girls who are a bad influence over many boys, but not all girls are wild women. There are many who are sweet and good and high-minded and their influence is as uplifting as the bad girl's is degrading.

As to the comparative influence for evil between the sexes, I think that of the boys is far greater over the girls than that of the girls over the boys, because boys set the standard for girls' conduct, just as men have always set the standard for women's conduct.

And just now boys have made personal degradation the price of their attentions to a girl. She must pet. She must kiss. She must permit insulting familiarities. She must throw into the discard all of the canons of modesty and propriety that have prevailed for centuries for her sex, or else they will have nothing to do with her.

Girls naturally want to have a good time. They want to have dates and go to parties instead of sitting at home sucking their thumbs of an evening. They want to love and be loved. They want to enjoy their youth, and so most of them throw their scruples to the winds and accept the boys' attention on their own terms.

So I think that girls are what the boys have made them, and that the boys' influence over them has been far more disastrous than their influence over the boys.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Will you please give me your idea of a gentleman and your idea of a lady?

—SEVENTEEN.

Answer—My idea of a gentleman is a man who is clean without and within. If he has money, he is immaculately dressed, but if he is poor he is still washed and clean and shaven and shorn. A man can look as much a gentleman in overalls as in broadcloth, provided it is clean. And he is clean in mind.

He doesn't think dirty thoughts, and he never tells rotten jokes. A gentleman is honest and honorable. He never does mean and scurvy tricks, nor takes advantage in a trade. And his word is a little bit more binding than his bond.

A gentleman has manners, but no manner. He is simple and unaffected. He never brags. He never poses. He isn't ashamed of being poor and not being able to do what richer people do. He does not feel that he demeans himself by doing any honest work.

He is more polite to servants and people below him in the social scale than he is to his equals because they can't talk back to him. A gentleman never willfully hurts the feelings of another person. He never says cruel or cutting things, or makes others the butt of his jokes. He laughs with people instead of at them.

A gentleman is a man who is not elated over prosperity, nor cast down by defeat. He pays when he loses and does not gloat when he wins. He does not think more highly of himself than he should, and he never makes himself the subject of conversation.

In a word, a gentleman is a man who always remembers others and never forgets himself.

A lady is a woman who is gentle, refined, modest, who is balm to the eyes and a benediction to the soul of all who know her. She controls her temper and her tongue, and she is loving and tender to those of her household, sympathetic and helpful to her friends, considerate to those who serve her.

If she is a shop girl, she does not condescend to her customers. If she is a customer, she does not patronize the saleslgirl. If she is rich, she does not flaunt her riches in the face of the poor. If she is poor, she does not fawn upon the rich.

She regards her body as sacred, and does not pet, nor neck, nor give her lips to every Tom, Dick and Harry.

She regards her body as sacred, ford, but does not make a religion of clothes nor does she wear the ultra modes that make her conspicuous.

A perfect lady is one who never does a rude or vulgar or unkind thing, because her heart is filled with gentleness and kindliness.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Suppose you were a man and had been married eight years to a good woman, faithful, a good housekeeper, and one that tried to make you happy. But suppose you had married too young, long before you were settled, and that your ideas and tastes had all changed, and the woman you once loved now bores you stiff, and your love was dead. And suppose you had met the one woman who was everything you wanted in the world and your heart was breaking for her, and this love grew stronger and stronger with every year. And suppose you were so miserable you thought of ending your life at times. What would you do?

—MISERABLE.

Answer—Why, I think I would go and tell my wife just how I felt about it and ask her to set me free. Probably she would be glad to do so, for if you are that tired of her and that much in love with another woman, you can't be a very satisfactory husband. But offer her a fair divide of your property, for, after all, it isn't her fault that your marriage is a failure.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a widow of 32 with six small children. I have a home but no income and I cannot go out to work because the children are too small. I have a chance to marry a widower who also has six small children. But all my friends say I should not think of such a marriage because it will not last, mixing the children. What do you think?

—WORRIED WIDOW.

Answer—Take it from me, if you marry this man and superimpose your family upon his you will be worse than a worried widow. You will be a crazy wife.

Don't think of doing anything so idiotic as trying to mother twelve small children. They will fight like the Kilkenny cats and you and your husband will fight over your respective broods, and there will be no peace nor happiness in your home.

It will be far better for you to put your children in some institution where they will be well taken care of while you go out and work. Study some trade. Learn how to do some one thing well enough to enable you to become an expert and command good wages.

Give up all thought of marriage, because no man suitable for you to marry will be altruistic enough to undertake to support six step-children. It is only desperation and an effort to get some woman to take care of his brood that has made the widower offer to consolidate his orphan asylum with yours.

—DOROTHY DIX.

HARMONY THE WATCH WORD

Harmony was the watch word of the Democrats who followed the flag of Governor Moody at Beaumont.

Harmony champions are responsible for the platform of principles adopted.

They are responsible for the delegates to the national convention.

They are responsible primarily to the district delegates at the Houston convention.

They are responsible for the pledge of party loyalty after the standard bearer has been named.

They are responsible for the two national representatives who will sit with the national committee until the year 1932.

These harmony Democrats had a program. They believed that the Democrats should be returned to power in the nation. They hope that harmony will govern the deliberations of the national convention.

A NIGHT ON THE RANGE

The still of the friendly prairie,
The slanting black of night—
The howl of a lonesome coyote,
The gleam of the faint starlight—

Across the jagged arroyo,
There comes a nighthawk's call,
And thru the still night's blanket,
There floats a lost calf's bawl.

The weird laugh of a screech owl,
Across the night so still
Makes queer, dejected feelings,
And makes my blood run chill.

Then from the dim horizon
There bursts a ball of red;
It turns to solid silver
As it sails overhead.

And finally the east sky
Is tinged with platinum
To chase away the darkness
And let the sunrise come.

DINNER STORIES

His Argument

"Did you maliciously assault him?"

"I hit him."

"Did you use a dangerous weapon?"

"No, I had a club."

"Did you knock him down?"

"He fell."

"Did you hurt him?"

The prisoner smiled for the first time. "Ask him," he replied.

"What is your name?" asked the lawyer.

"Michael Levinskey," was the answer.

"Can you read?" went on the attorney.

"Nope," being the reply.

"Can you write?" came the next on the query list.

"Yup, I can write," responded the defendant.

"How does it happen that you can write but not read?" demanded the counsel for the plaintiff.

"I don't haff to read my own writin,' do I?" exclaimed the lawbreaker.

ABE MARTIN

One-Minute Sermon

Strengthen ye the weak hands, and confirm the feeble knees. Say to them that are of fearful heart, Be strong, fear not: behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompense; he will come and save you.

Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped.—Isaiah, xxxv, 3-6.

Smith of South Carolina

SENATOR E. B. SMITH of South Carolina is a Democrat, a grower of cotton and a scientific farmer. He is the chairman of the subcommittee which made an extended investigation of the cotton price decline in the fall of 1927. He made a report. He says a loss of $40 a bale or a total of $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 was sustained by producers of cotton as a result of the price prediction report made by the bureau of economics, United States department of agriculture, September 15, 1927. It is ancient history now. If the price prediction cost the cotton growers of the South $400,000,000, the Texas tenant was right who said, "Cotton growin' is hell."

Congress' Lost Bills

WITH Congress adjourned there is the usual tale of various bills that got "lost in the shuffle"—bills that were never acted on because of the rush of last minute business.

That is a bad commentary on the way Congress works. Any bill introduced in either house ought, at the very least, to come to a vote. No measure should die from sheer neglect.

Congressmen often get peevish because the rest of the country sometimes criticizes them. The amount of unfinished business that each session leaves is one of the reasons. Inefficiency and trickery are not the way to raise Congress in the country's esteem.

About Those Taxi Meters

DID you ever sit in a taxicab, watch the meter tick out the ever-rising toll, and mutter to yourself, "the darn thing's crooked?"

Probably you have—most of us have. But, if you did, the chances are you accused the little mechanical fare-assessor unjustly.

Ralph W. Smith, inspector of weights and measures for the U. S. Bureau of Standards, has spent more than two years making scientific tests of taxi meters. Now he reports that most of them are very accurate and fair. The dishonest meter, he says, is the exception rather than the rule.

And that seems to settle that question.

Deprivation's Lesson

NATION'S, like individuals, are often benefited by being deprived of things. It makes them develop resources of their own.

Potash salts are very essential to agriculture and industry. The United States always used to import most of its supply from Germany. But when the World War came along this source was shut off, and some new source had to be found.

It wasn't found right away. But the Interior Department began a search that has lasted ever since; and now it announces the discovery of rich deposits in Texas which may eventually make us independent of all other potash beds.

Doubtless we wouldn't have found these if it hadn't been for wartime deprivation.

Another Rubber Discovery

DISCOVERIES useful to industry often are made in strange ways.

The process of vulcanizing rubber came because an experimenter happened to drop a bit of rubber on a hot stove.

Now the War Department announces it has found a way to extend the normal life of rubber to approximately 35 years. At present rubber deteriorates badly after a few years use. The discovery will be of great importance to industry.

But here's how it happened to be made. The chemical warfare service was trying to find some way of preventing rapid deterioration of the rubber parts of army gas masks. In its experiments it not only solved its own problem; it gave makers and users of rubber everywhere a great discovery.

Artificial Starlight

A BERLIN scientist has invented a means for making artificial starlight. The mystic glow of other worlds that blankets the earth on a cloudless summer night can now be made to shine in the corner of an unromantic laboratory.

This business of doing nature's work for her seems to be progressing beyond all reason; but perhaps a complex civilization makes it necessary. Many cities dwellers never see the stars on account of the factory smoke. For such people artificial starlight is more or less a necessity.

For starlight, an insubstantial commodity in many ways, is one of those things which are essential to our well-being. The hard glare of the noonday sun is a light for realists. At night, when the sun is gone and the stars translate familiar landscapes into enchanted glades and haunted fields, the world takes on a different aspect. The romancer can carry on his trade by starlight; and men who cannot live by bread alone cannot get along without romance.

This is especially true today. There never was a time when the material facts of existence crowded so closely about men. By daytime the twentieth century civilization has many discouraging aspects. It is at night that when we can see it in its proper prospective and judge it aright.

Not long ago a young man had occasion to visit Detroit, where he spent two days going through some of that city's vast automobile factories. The experience was acutely depressing. The endless lines of whirring machines, each unit tended by a man whose function it was to become as much like a machine himself as possible, stood out like an impressionistic sketch of the whole of modern life. It seemed as if all human endeavor were being reduced to the level of the automatic steel contrivances that chattered endlessly in the great factories. What hope was there that the men who served such monsters could ever realize their divine potentialities? None. The prophets of disillusion were right. Man was a machine.

But, late at night, when the young man boarded a steamer to continue his journey, things looked different. The ship swung away from its pier and dropped down the black tide of the Detroit river, and the stars came out. The shapes of the factories and warehouses on the bank grew indistinct. Detroit's skyline loomed hugely against the horizon; but it was no longer stark and forbidding. Under the stars its office buildings became soaring turrets and spires, and the glare of their incandescents was dimmed in the reflection of light from universes far across the black sky.

Detroit was no longer a mechanistic symbol of disillusion. It could be seen for what it really was; the temporary dwelling of many thousands of immortal men, striving in a new way to remake the world into a closer image of the place they call home.

The Story Thus Far

Margaret Odell is found strangled. Skeel's finger prints are found in the apartment, but Vance believes Skeel had been hiding in a closet while the strangler did his work. The thing that baffles police is the side door to the alley. It had been bolted on the inside the night before and found that way in the morning. Mannix, Dr. Lindquist and Cleaver all lie about their whereabouts the night of the murder. Spotswoode, who had called on the girl, had rushed to her door at the sound of a scream, but had been reassured through the door that nothing was wrong. Then Skeel is found strangled, after promising to reveal the murderer. Vance then demonstrates how Skeel could have left through the side door and relocked the bolt. He suggests to Markham that Cleaver, Mannix and Spotswoode be invited to play poker with them and he will tell Markham who committed the murder.

CHAPTER XLVII

(Monday, Sept. 17; 9 p. m.)

Vance and I went home after lunch, and at about four o'clock Markham telephoned to say that he had made the necessary arrangements for the evening with Spotswoode, Mannix and Cleaver.

Immediately following this confirmation Vance left the house, and did not return until nearly eight o'clock. Though I was filled with curiosity at so unusual a proceeding, he refused to enlighten me. But when, at a quarter to nine, we went downstairs to the waiting car, there was a man I did not know in the tonneau; and I at once connected him with Vance's mysterious absence.

"I've asked Mr. Allen to join us tonight," Vance vouchsafed, when he had introduced us. "You don't play poker, and we really need another hand to make the game interestin,' y' know. Mr. Allen, by the bye, is an old antagonist of mine."

The fact that Vance would, apparently without permission, bring an uninvited guest to Markham's apartment amazed me but little more than the appearance of the man himself. He was rather short, with sharp, shrewd features; and what I saw of his hair beneath his jauntily tipped hat was black and sleek, like the painted hair on Japanese dolls. I noted, too, that his evening tie was enlivened by a design of tiny white forget-me-nots, and that his shirt front was adorned with diamond studs.

The contrast between him and the immaculately stylish and meticulously correct Vance was aggressively evident. I wondered what could be the relationship between them. Obviously it was neither social nor intellectual.

Cleaver and Mannix were already on hand when we were ushered into Markham's drawing-room, and a few minutes late Spotswoode arrived. The amenities of introduction over, we were soon seated comfortably about the open log fire, smoking and sipping very excellent Scotch high-balls.

Markham had, of course, accepted the unexpected Mr. Allen cordially, but his occasional glances in the latter's direction told me he was having some difficulty in reconciling the man's appearance with Vance's censorship.

A tense atmosphere lay beneath the spurious and affected affability of the little gathering. Indeed, the situation was scarcely conducive to spontaniety. Here were three men each of whom was known to the others to have been interested in the same woman; and the reason for their having been brought together was the fact that this woman had been murdered.

Markham, however, handled the situation with such tact that he largely succeeded in giving each one the feeling of being a disinterested spectator summoned to discuss an abstract problem.

He explained at the outset that the "conference" had been actuated by his failure to find any approach to the problem of the murder. He hoped, he said, by a purely informal discussion, divested of all officialism and coercion, to turn up some suggestion that might lead to a fruitful line of inquiry. His manner was one of friendly appeal, and when he finished speaking the general tension had been noticeably relaxed.

During the discussion that followed I was interested in the various attitudes of the men concerned. Cleaver spoke bitterly of his part in the affair, and was more self-condemnatory than suggestive.

Mannix was voluble and pretentiously candid, but beneath his comments ran a strain of apolgetic wariness.

Spotswoode, unlike Mannix, seemed loth to discuss the matter, and maintained a consistently reticent attitude. He responded politely to Markham's questions, but he did not succeed entirely in hiding his resentment at thus being dragged into a general discussion.

Vance had little to say, limiting himself to occasional remarks directed always to Markham. Allen did not once speak, but sat contemplating the others with a sort of canny amusement.

The entire conversation struck me as utterly futile. Had Markham really hoped to garner information from it, he would have been woefully disappointed. I realized, though, that he was merely endeavoring to justify himself for having taken so unusual a step, and to pave the way for the game of poker which Vance had requested. When the time came to broach the subject, however, there was no difficulty about it.

It was exactly 11 o'clock when he made the suggestion. His tone was gracious and unassuming; but by couching his invitation in terms of a personal request, he practically precluded declination.

But his verbal strategy, I felt, was unnecessary. Both Cleaver and Spotswode seemed genuinely to welcome the opportunity of dropping a distasteful discussion in favor of playing cards; and Vance and Allen, of course, concurred instantly.

Mannix alone declined. He explained that he knew the game only slightly, and disliked it; though he expressed an enthusiastic desire to watch the others. Vance urged him to reconsider, but without success; and Markham finally ordered his man to arrange the table for five.

I noticed that Vance waited until Allen had taken his place, and then dropped into the chair at his right. Cleaver took the seat at Allen's left. Spotswoode sat at Vance's right; and then came Markham. Mannix drew up his chair midway behind Markham and Cleaver.

Cleaver first named a rather moderate limit, but Spotswoode at once suggested much larger stakes. Then Vance went still higher, and as both Markham and Allen signified their agreement, his figure was accepted. The prices placed on the chips somewhat took my breath away, and even Mannix whistled softly.

That all five men at the table were excellent players became obvious before the game had progressed ten minutes. For the first time that night Vance's friend Allen seemed to have found his milieu and to be wholly at ease.

Allen won the first two hands, and Vance the third and fourth. Spotswoode then had a short run of good luck, and a little later Markham took a large jack-pot which put him slightly in the lead.

Cleaver was the only loser thus far; but in another half hour he had succeeded in recovering a large portion of his losses. After that Vance forged steadily ahead, only to relinquish his winning streak to Allen. Then for a while the fortunes of the game were rather evenly distributed. But later on both Cleaver and Spotswoode began to lose heavily.

By half-past twelve a grim atmosphere had settled over the party; for so high were the stakes and so rapidly did the betting pyramid, that even for men of means—such as all these players undoubtedly were—the amounts which continually changed hands represented very considerable items.

Just before 1 o'clock, when the fever of the game had reach a high point, I saw Vance glance quickly at Allen and pass his handkerchief across his forehead.

To a stranger the gesture would have appeared perfectly natural; but, so familiar was I with Vance's mannerisms, I immediately recognized its artificiality. And simultaneously I noticed that it was Allen who was shuffling the cards preparatory to dealing. Some smoke from his cigar evidently went into his eye at this moment, for he blinked, and one of the cards fell to the floor. Quickly retrieving it, he restuffled the deck and placed it before Vance to cut.

The hand was a jack-pot, and there was a small fortune in chips already on the table. Cleaver, Markham and Spotswoode passed. The decision thus reached Vance, and he opened for an unusually large amount. Allen at once laid down his hand, but Cleaver stayed.

Then Markham and Spotswoode both dropped out, leaving the entire play between Vance and Cleaver. Cleaver drew one card, and Vance, who had opened, drew two. Vance made a nominal wager, and Cleaver raised it substantially. Vance in turn raised Cleaver, but only for a small amount; and Cleaver again raised Vance—this time for an even larger sum than before. Vance hesitated and called him. Cleaver exposed his hand triumphantly.

"Straight flush—jack high," he announced. "Can you beat that?"

"Not on a two-card draw," said Vance ruefully. He put his cards down to show his openers. He had four kings.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD.

NEW YORK, June 6.—The grand dames and matrons whose testimonials in behalf of beds, cold creams and cigarets appear in magazines and newspapers, illustrated with approved portraits, are paid money for use of their names. The price for a bed or cold cream testimonial is around $4000 and a "blindfolded test" cigaret okeh brings $1000.

Advertising concerns obtain such names by employing women of social position who are in reduced circumstances, to solicit testimonials from friends. Sometimes a charitable organization with wealthy patrons begs the ads and receives all the money. Only one woman is on record as having kept for herself the money received for signing a testimonial, a prominent social matron of Washington.

Actors and athletes used to be paid for use of their names in the exploitation of "don't cough" cigarets, but so many second-raters were willing and eager to grant free use of their monikers and mugs for the sake of the publicity that this is no longer necessary. A carton of cigarets is the reward now.

One actress who has publicly approved two brands of cigarets is known to smoke another kind.

All of the Broadway girls who do not expect to grab a millionaire husband, hope to have a shop or tea room somewhere some day. "You're due at the tea room," has got to be a gag.

Sometimes they do quit Broadway and realize their hopes—Peggy Gray, for instance. A few years ago she was hostess in a night club. She didn't like having to be cordial to all sorts of persons, and keep all hours. "Some day," she told the girls, "I'm going to have a shop. Then no more of this life for me."

She now is the proprietor of a store in Easton, Pa. She bought the building a year ago for $60,000, and is landlord to 10 other shops. Recently she was offered $100,000 for the property.

The newest stunt in the de luxe barber shops is radio receivers, which are at the disposal of patrons. Customers may listen in on market reports or entertainment while getting haircut or shave, without disturbing any neighbor who might prefer to sleep.

It is now difficult to escape radio broadcasting. Loud-speakers blare from the doors of shops: there are receivers in shoe-shine parlors, restaurants, theater smoking rooms, billiard halls, parks. There must be persons who dislike to listen to broadcastings incessantly. What about them?

The dorsey place to throw a charity benefit now is aboard ship. Steamship companies rent out liners in port for dinners, dances and bridge parties. There seems to be some special appeal about a ship that attracts crowds to these affairs. Lots of folks are glad of an opportunity to see the palatial surroundings in which the rich travel between New York and Europe. It gives them the opportunity to talk about the de luxe accommodations aboard the Leviathan or Ile de France or Aquitania like veteran travelers.

Adopting as subject, "Home Ownership," J. Wilkie Talbert, vice president of the Wichita Falls Building and Loan association, gave the principal talk at the luncheon of the Lions club Wednesday.

Mr. Talbert spoke of man's inherent love for home ownership and explained the mechanism by which a man without funds excepting those of a moderate income, may now build the type of home he desires.

"There is $8,000,000 now invested in the four loan associations in Wichita Falls, while in the state of Texas there is a total of $93,000,000 thus invested. Eleven years ago, the state had only $1,800,000 invested in building and loan," Mr. Talbert said.

Mr. Talbert believes that there is nothing wrong with the city but is of the opinion that there is something wrong with the houses in the city that are vacant. Up to November the company had not made a foreclosure, he said.

A nomination committee made up of Frank Cripliver, Roy E. Carter and H. L. Ruehl, was appointed by Dr. R. H. Graham, president, who announced election of officers for the next meeting of the club.

Entertainment numbers on the program were given by Mrs. O. G. Stephens, who played piano selections, Alton Bedinghaus, who gave a violin solo, and Miss Roberta Wolford, who gave a reading.

Sore, Aching Feet

Tender feet—tired, aching, burning and swollen feet! The minute you put them into a "Tiz" bath you can feel the pain being drawn out and glorious comfort being restored.

"Tiz" draws out the poisons and acids that cause your feet to ache, swell and burn. It also takes the soreness out of corns, calluses and bunions. Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store and have real foot comfort at last. Costs only a few cents.

Bathe Them in "TIZ"

Thought it came from Shaving

"For many months," writes a man in New York, "I was bothered with an extremely cloudy complexion. I always seemed to have pimples or blackheads. Often large blotches would appear, and I thought it came from shaving. Then someone recommended Resinol. I put it on at night, and within a few days was surprised to find that my face had completely cleared up." Resinol brings quick relief. You try it. At all druggists.

PIRATE GOLD IS HUGE MYTH

Explorer Discounts Old Sea Tales

WASHINGTON, June 6. (UP)—Pirate gold — buried treasure — pieces of eight stained with blood of those in the "Red sea trade"—gleaming jewels—iron-bound chests crammed with riches.

Nice bits of interesting folk lore and legend but all pure fiction, Dr. Herbert W. Krieger, of the Smithsonian institution, just returned from extensive excavation work in the West Indian pirate lands, said today.

Discounts Tales

Dr. Krieger has explored and excavated in practically every spot where pirate gold was rumored to have been cached. His excavations, of course, were not connected directly in the search for buried treasure but he has always been on the look out for interesting pirate relics.

"I have yet to see a bit of pirate treasure or learn of any one who ever found any," the scientist said, "and I have come to the conclusion that there never was pirate treasure or that pirates did not bury their loot.

"In the first place, the pirates did not plunder ships and rob men to bury the wealth they obtained. It is true that they stole hundreds and thousands of dollars worth of stuff. But they squandered their money and did not stick it in the ground.

"I don't believe there ever was enough pirate gold buried outfit one good sized fishing schooner."

Search Party

Pirate gold played an interesting and at one time a serious part in Dr. Krieger's recent excavations in the Dominican republic.

He was searching for traces of the early inhabitants of the West Indies and his studies took him to Somana Bay, or the Bay of Arrows, where the Aboriginals prevented Columbus from landing. It was in this section that Geoffre Sie, the notorious French pirate operated.

The story of Sie's buried treasure around Somana Bay has been handed down from generation to generation until the natives regard it as as actual fact.

Chests Seized

Krieger and his assistants were busy digging up ancient village sites when they noticed native police watching them closely.

Convinced that Krieger really was searching for pirate gold the police seized several of his chests and strong boxes. They were taken to the capital and opened before an astonished group of high officials. In the boxes were nothing but bones and bits of broken pottery. Krieger was permitted to continue his excavations.

MADRID, June 6. (UB)—Following a reported rift with his fiancee, Senora Mercedes Castallanes, Primo de Rivera, Spanish dictator, was reported today to be planning a vacation in Paris to recover from the shock of his ruptured romance.

The story current tonight in the capital was that Primo and his fiancee had quarrelled. The dictator, according to the story, asked King Alphonso's sanction for the Paris trip but the king was said to have refused.

The reports had no official recognition but one sensational story current said that Primo de Rivera was so upset that he desired to resign his dictatorship immediately and resign permanently from politics. The King Alphonso refused to consider at this time.

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to
FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By MARY ASTOR

MARY ASTOR

Mary Astor

At the age of 14 this little lady was offered a part in a "pitchur" providing her mother would consent. After running home as fast as she could, Mary Astor said that her mother said O. K.

And so it wasn't long until Mary's little lamb had to go to the schoolhouse by itself because Mary was out in wild, wild Hollywood playing with Mr. Fox.

"On a recent trip east," Mary told me when I asked what she had laughed over most, "I went to Washington on a sightseeing trip with my aunt, uncle and little cousin.

"The little fellow waxed enthusiastic when we were shown the senate chamber. He was especially impressed by the chaplain, who opened the session with a prayer.

"His father explained that this procedure was observed at each session.

"'But, daddy,' insisted the boy, 'why does he have to pray for congress?'

"'You've got it all wrong,' my uncle laughingly replied. 'The minister doesn't pray for congress—he comes in, looks it over, and then prays for the country.'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Arterial Hardening

Hardening of the arteries, or arterial sclerosis, may be divided into several different classes. That which is most talked about is produced by deposits of lime in the walls of the arteries. At first it would seem that this lime deposit is due to eating too many foods that contain this material, but a careful investigation will disclose that this is not the real cause.

It is true that the use of too many cereals is one of the principal causes of hardening or the arteries. This is not because of the presence of lime in the cereals, but because of the fact that an excessive amount of starch found in the cereals leads to fermentation in the stomach and intestine, which produces acidosis. The toxins from this condition pass through the delicately lined arteries causing them to tense, and in time the arteries form a coating (an alkali) to neutralize the effect of the irritating acidosis.

Excess fermentation of food is undoubtedly the principal cause of this disorder. If this fermentation continues day after day, the vicious irritation of the walls of the arteries causes them to become thickened and calcified, often to such an extent as to interfere with the flow of the blood.

In the early stages of hardening of the arteries, there is no lime present, but the condition is recognized by a thickening of the arterial walls. Any deposit of irritating materials in the blood is apt to result in this disease. Those who overeat, excessively use alcohol, those afflicted with gout, kidney disease, syphilis, or those who habitually consume wrong combinations of food are most susceptible to this disease.

Valvular heart disease is often caused by the same type of irritant which produces a thickening and hardening of the valves, interfering with their action.

Other diseases are sometimes brought on by this type of arterial weakening. Sometimes aneurism or dilation of the artery will result because of the strain from pulse pressure. Occasionally an embolus is formed which is carried by the blood until it becomes lodged in a smaller vessel where it clogs the circulation and may result in a stroke of apoplexy of gangrene.

The arteries leading into the legs sometimes become so calcified that they can be seen through the x-ray just like thin bones.

The hardening deposits of the arteries can be softened by following a rigid dietetic regime over a long period of time. The arteries will probably not entirely return to their normal tone in advanced cases, but even so, the patient can usually lessen his arterial tension and prolong his life.

The greatest caution must be used to avoid inharmonious food combinations or the things which I have outlined as prodpcing a toxicosis. Patients who are careful will continue to improve over a period of many years, but they must learn their food combinations.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: K. L. writes: "I am much overweight and would like you to publish a list of rations that are not fattening. Are lima beans fattening? Have already quit eating bread, butter, potatoes and gravy."

Answer: You can slowly reduce your weight through following the weekly mnus which are published in this column. To reduce more rapidly eliminate the meals containing the starchy foods and substitute a fruit meal. You will notice that I recommend the starch to be used at noon, so a simple rule for you to follow is to use the breakfasts and dinners as I suggest, but take one kind of fruit at noon, using as much of the one kind as you desire.

Question: Mary asks: "May plums be used in combination with other foods?"

Answer: Plums are a good acid food but should be used by themselves. In season they make a good noonday lunch.

Question: N. L. V. writes: "Are eggs good for a person suffering with diseased or weak kidneys?"

Answer: Anyone suffering from kidney trouble of any kind should be able to handle a limited number of eggs, about one a day, properly prepared by coddling or poaching.

Question: Mother writes: "I have a year and a half old baby who has constant colds. I have had him on a general baby's diet under the care of a child specialist. What kind of diet would you advise?"

Answer: It is apparent that your child is not on the right diet or he would not be having constant colds. Stop using all milk modifiers and give your baby nothing but pure certified Holstein cow's milk with the addition of one or two teaspoonfuls of orange juice before each feeding. Your baby, at his age, should use about eight ounces at a feeding, taking this quantity at four hour periods, making only four times daily.

SPUDDERS BAT HARD AND STEENGRAFE BLANKS BEARS, 6 TO 0

TURGEON AND LAMB FEATURE

Lymie Leads Attack With Perfect Day at Bat

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

If the Spudders can avoid further injuries; if they can continue to co-ordinate hard hitting with effective pitching, they will be on the road to better things. The champions yesterday played more like the great machine of 1927 than for many a day. Hard clouting, errorless fielding and superb pitching by Milt Steengrafe were combined to rout the San Antonio Bears in the first of the two-game series out at the lot.

The score was 6 to 0.

Steengrafe's chucking was such as to delight and baffle the eye. His sharp-breaking hooks had the Bears and Umpire Irwin guessing. And with good cause. It seemed at times as if Pete Lapan himself was uncertain as to where Milt's curves were to break.

Milt limited the hostiles to five hits, and except for the first and third innings the Bears never threatened to score. They had two on in the first and filled the bases in the third but Milt bore down. From then on the Bears were impotent at bat. Steengrafe struck out eight.

Spuds Get 12 Hits

The Spudders hammered Walter Newman for 12 knocks. Lyman Lamb and Pete Turgeon led the attack with three hits each.

Lamb had a perfect day at bat and drove a home run over the left field wall that scored a comrade ahead of him. Lymie had two sacrifices in addition to his knocks. He drove two runners home, helped score two others and counted a fifth by tallying himself. And it seemed Tuesday that he would be out of the lineup several days when he was hit by a ball pitched by Bo Melenda of Waco.

Pete Lapan had two hits and Wally Swenson flashed some extra fancy fielding around third base in other features.

The game marked another Spudder incapacitation. Rabbit Benton was hit above the left eye while fielding a ball in practice before the game. An x-ray examination revealed that he is not seriously hurt and that his vision will not be impaired. So Rabbit will be back in the lineup today or tomorrow with no more ill effects than a severe headache. Roetz played shortstop yesterday.

The Spudders scored a pair of tallies in the third inning. Steengrafe led off with a single to right. Roetz flied to Najo. Turgeon singled to left, Steengrafe stopping at second. Lamb lifted a sacrifice fly to Boggess, Turgeon scoring and Steengrafe going to third. Nason dropped Eldred's fly, Turgeon tallying.

Turgeon Starts It

Turgeon started the fifth with a single to center. Lamb sacrificed, Newman to Philbin. Eldred grounded to Flaskamper, Turgeon going to third. Jenkins singled to left, Turgeon scoring.

Turgeon walked in the seventh after one was out and scored when Lamb hit over the left field barrier. The Spudders added their sixth tally in the eighth, after two were out.

Roetz singled to left and went to second on Turgeon's deep hit to short. Lamb singled to center, Roetz scoring.

CHICAGO RACE IS OPEN AFFAIR

Misstep Choice in American Derby Saturday

By FRED VAN DEVENDER

CHICAGO, June 6. (US)—In the Kentucky derby, they finished:

Reigh Count, Misstep, Toro.

In the Fairmount derby, they finished:

Misstep, Toro, Jack Higgins. (Reigh Count did not run.)

In the American derby?

That is to be decided next Saturday afternoon at the palatial Arlington course.

Again Reigh Count will not be in the race. If he had been in fit condition, his owner, Mrs. John D. Hertz probably would have sent him to the post in the Belmont stakes on the same date.

But he is now recuperating at the Arlington plant from a leg injury sustained in the Kentucky classic. He will not be in condition to start Saturday.

That leaves the field much the same as the Fairmount derby, with odds about the same. Misstep is the ruling favorite, Toro second and Jack Higgins third.

Other Contenders

But there are several other probable starters who must not be overlooked to win this event.

The route is over a mile and a half, a quarter longer than the Kentucky or Fairmount derbies. This suits some horses better than the shorter distance.

For instance, Galahad, son of the illustrious Britisher, Prince Galahad, has been sent here to start. He finished fourth in the Fairmount derby after running far behind the field for three-quarters of a mile. Then with a rush he came up to fourth, led only by Misstep, Toro and Jack Higgins.

Lawley also is to be considered. He has shown much improvement, according to his trainers, since his Kentucky derby race. In that event, he was clearly outclassed, but at the same time he was bottled up from the start.

In a seven-furlong race at Churchill Downs, Lawley and Misstep battled a ding-dong race to the finish, making the distance in 1:24 4-5.

Misstep Rules Favorite

But despite the newcomers, Misstep rules the favorite. In fact, he would run Reigh Count a close race, for there are some handicappers who believe that on a dry track Misstep is the fastest 3-year-old this year.

Opinion is expressed in some quarters that Reigh Count will never start again. These experts say he is in the same class with other Kentucky derby winners, who win that one race and are never in fit condition to run again.

Bubbling Over, probably the greatest colt ever to win the Kentucky classic, never ran another race after that event.

The first renewal of the American derby after the 21 years lapse was won by Boot to Boot, a stable mate of Bubbling Over. Baggenbaggage was the other famous colt of the Bradley trio of that year. Hydromel won last year's American derby.

Notes of the Game

Payne or Cvengros will pitch the final of the series today for the Spudders.

It will be the last game here until June 15 when the Dallas Steers are guests at flag-raising.

Ray Grimes, who was spiked in the leg Monday will be out of the game for a week. Pug Griffin plays first base and Boggess right field while Ray is out.

Jenkins held Flaskamper to a single in the third when he knocked down a sharp drive after the ball had hit the ground.

Foxy Grandpa Lapan capered like a three-year-old yesterday. He beat out a bunt in the sixth inning, much to the surprise of the Bears, and pranced around first base, to the annoyance of Walter Newman. Pete's playing hard and playing about the best heads-up baseball he ever showed.

George Stanton continues to be the most unlucky of the Spudders in his hitting. The kid is banging the ball hard, but he can't break the jinx and get base hits. Flaskamper robbed Buck of a hit in the second with a great stop of a harsh grounder and George hit three other hard balls in the game that were destined to be fielded.

It looked for a time as if another member would be added to the hospital list. Roetz' hand was hit by a pitched ball in the third inning. But the paw wasn't badly hurt.

Lets ALL go out to the game today and give the boys a hand.

Penner was in good form and two of the three runs off of him were made by home runs, Whelan and Deviveros each hitting out of the lot. In the first inning Selph hit a home run. Score:

GINGLARDI'S HOMER WINS

DALLAS, Texas, June 6. (AP)—Dallas welcomed the lowly Beaumont Exporters for their two-day stand by taking the opener Wednesday, 4 to 2. Ginglardi was the hero of the day when he smacked a home run with three on board to give Dallas all its runs in the fourth stanza.

Barring the fourth, Phillips had the Herd fairly well in hand.

Blankenship turned in another win for the locals by a well-pitched game in which he gave up only a half dozen hits. He fanned three and passed only one and kept the Exporter bingles for the most part well scattered. Score:

CATS DEFEAT CUBS

WACO, June 6. (AP)—After weakening in the late stages of the game today, Pate stopped Windle's hot grounder with his stomach and had to retire from the game in the eighth. Burns, who relieved him, was hit rather freely for the balance of the inning and Waco whittled a 6 to 1 lead down to 6 to 4. But Burns tightened up and retired the Cubs in order in the ninth, the Cats thereby taking the opener of the abbreviated series, 6 to 4. Lafayette hit a homer in the first with one on. Score:

Roberts Orders Replay From 9th Inning On Cat-Bear Game

DALLAS, Texas, June 6. (AP)—President J. Doak Roberts of the Texas league today announced that he had allowed the protest by Fort Worth of Monday's game there between the Fort Worth Panthers and San Antonio Bears and would order the game to be re-played from the time the illegality occurred in the ninth inning.

He said that the inning would be re-played at San Antonio either on June 22 or 23, immediately after completion of the regular scheduled game. The players will be placed in the exact positions which they held at the time Manager Frank Gibson of San Antonio entered the game for the second time and the game continued from there.

DAILY DOPE

By Larry Dailey

JERE R. HAYES, sports editor of the Dallas Times Herald, has some nice words to say of J. Alvin Gardner and the Spudders in his column recently. Hayes takes some Wichita Falls fans to task for not treating the champions right in this slump. He points out, however, that knocking fans are in the minority. I think the fans in Wichita Falls have been eminently fair and patient with the Spudders, though as Jere says, there are a few disgruntled ones. Here is Hayes' dissertation:

♦ ♦ ♦

SCANDAL, the greatest enemy of baseball, has finally worked its way into the baseball situation at Wichita Falls, where the Spudders, badly used by Lady Luck and slipping rapidly out of the pennant picture, are being made the target for fans of that city.

♦ ♦ ♦

THIS INFORMATION, which comes to the writer from a real, 18-karat baseball fan who is loyal to his city—and ball club—should serve to show just how ridiculous it is to believe all the ugly rumors started by disgruntled fans.

♦ ♦ ♦

THE OLD STORY, drinking—fights among the players—poor management—and so on—is being told at Spudderville.

♦ ♦ ♦

Pete Turgeon, so they have it, hooked up with George Payne in a fistic battle. The players are "laying down" on the job because they don't like Carl Williams. Brick Eldred is a disturbing factor. Oh, they can think of a thousand silly, ridiculous stories to spread around when a ball club is having a hard run of luck.

♦ ♦ ♦

AS A MATTER of fact, Pete Turgeon's back was injured in the spring, and he has been playing on nerve alone. Fitzgerald, as every one knows, was put out of the running following a battle with Carey Selph, the Houston second-sacker. Lyman Lamb experienced a charley horse. Benton and Swenson both were injured.

♦ ♦ ♦

IN FACT, everything went wrong. The Spuds were harder hit than any club in the entire league.

♦ ♦ ♦

AND DON'T FORGET, Alvin Gardner didn't have any big league "daddy" to draw on—a baseball parent to send, on a moment's notice, a better man than the one put out of the running, such as was the case at Houston, where Benson went out with a sore arm, and was replaced by Heinie Schuble, a 100 per cent better ball player. And Homer Peel went out, only to have Red Worthington step into the outfield and lead the entire league in hitting during the early weeks of the campaign—even now, to wield a vicious mace. No, Wichita Falls didn't have any such "baseball parent." They had to take their wallops like a groggy fighter, in the best way possible.

THE STORY brought to us about the Spuds reminds us of the 1927 Steers. The Herd won in 1926 and copped a Dixie series. Then, when the club failed to get off in front during the first stages of the 1927 race, rumor—scandal—and plain lies were circulated.

The Spuds won in 1927—and in 1928, well, they seem to be paying the penalty—they are being made a target for a flock of unfair fans who stand ready to cheer their heads off when a team is winning—but let that team get down, and need support, and hear the same type of fan roar disapproval, and whisper scandal about in a knowing manner.

♦ ♦ ♦

THANK GOODNESS, most baseball fans are not of that type. Just the minority—a certain element anxious to place themselves in the baseball limelight by being "on the inside" in such affairs.

♦ ♦ ♦

ALVIN GARDNER, Spud owner, is as square a shooter as any baseball man alive. And we hate to see the baseball situation in Wichita Falls placed in such a muddle, when Gardner is playing on the level, and doing his best to give the fans of that city the highest grade of baseball possible.

About Amateurs

Bill Habern, DeMolay catcher, is one of the best catchers in the City league. Bill never loses his aggressiveness.

Harry Costley, outfielder for the DeMolay club, has made several sensational catches this season and is one of the few DeMolays that are hitting consistently.

Speck Roberts, Texas Electric shortstop, is among the best in the Twilight league. Besides being a fielding ace, Speck is probably the fastest man in the league and an excellent base runner.

Speck holds the record this year in the Twilight league for stealing home. He has marked up two runs by this method.

Pewee Hinds, infielder, and Rusty Trout, pitcher have quit the Texas Electric club. Both were good ball players.

Rusty has not been beaten this year and has indicated that he will go to the Panhandle team.

Schrimpsher, Katy first baseman, is one of the most feared sluggers in the City league. He frequently clouts two and three base hits.

Toad Graves, Panhandle outfielder, seems to be the safest hitter in the Twilight league. Toad rarely fails to get on base some way and has delivered some clean hits when they were most needed by his team.

OUTSIDER COPS ENGLISH DERBY

Royalty and 1,000,000 'See' Felstead Win at Epsom

By ROBERT J. PREW

LONDON, June 6. (US)—Racing fans throughout the world were disappointed today when the Epsom derby was won by an outsider, Felstead, owned by Sir Hugo Cunliffe, well-known tobacco magnate. The first favorite, Lord Derby's Fairway, was nowhere, dropping out after only a third of the race was run.

The second fancy, Lord Dewar's Sunny Trace, also failed to finish in the first four, but Sir Laurence Philipps's Flamingo, which started at 9 to 2, finished second. Black Watch was third at 33 to 1, and Fernkloof was fourth at the same odds. The winner also paid 33 to 1, which is the longest price for a derby winner for nine years.

More than a million people gathered at Epsom Downs struggling to see the event, but only a small proportion of them were able to see the running. The race was run in brilliant sunshine.

The royal party, including King George and Queen Mary, the duke of Connaught, Princess Ingrid and Prince Adolf of Sweden, Princess Mary and Lord Lascelles, the prince of Wales, the duke of Gloucester and Prince Paul of Serbia arrived in motor cars about 1 o'clock. The cavalcade was preceded by an airplane detailed to keep in touch with the police and keep a clear road for the entire route.

Oliver Wolcott was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence for the state of Connecticut.

The Belmont, Oldest and Richest U.S. Turf Fixture, Run Saturday

By DAMON RUNYON
Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service

NEW YORK, June 6.—They will decide a stake race at Belmont park next Saturday afternoon that is older and richer than the Kentucky Derby, richer than the Preakness, and almost as rich as the Coffroth handicap, but which lacks the general public interest of any of these races.

It is called The Belmont. It is for 3-year-olds and will be worth upwards of $60,000 to the winner this year. It is said to be valued by breeders more than all the other stakes combined. But for one paragraph that will be printed in the newspapers about The Belmont, or after the race, two columns are printed about the Kentucky Derby and one column about the Preakness and the Coffroth.

You don't have to go far to find the reason. Conditions have placed horse racing in New York state beyond general public interest. It is essentially a rich man's game here. There isn't supposed to be any public betting. The admission fee is above the means of the average man.

There is a very, very high hat atmosphere to New York racing, especially at Belmont park, that isn't found in Maryland, or Kentucky, or out at Tia Juana, where the other big stakes are decided, and where the pari-mutuels make all the bettors little brothers in joy and sorrow.

Public Indifferent

So you won't hear much public chatter about The Belmont this week, though the days preceding the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Coffroth, are devoted largely to gossip, in the immediate neighborhood of the races, as to the probable winners.

The average New Yorker can't tell you, offhand, the names of three potential starts in The Belmont. The average Kentuckian, or Marylander, this far in advance of events, could rattle off the names of at least 10 of the nags slated to go.

The average southern Californian the Sunday before the Coffroth, can come close to calling the entire field that will face one barrier in the winter stakes, and out in southern California their racing is a somewhat remote pastime in the matter of distance.

The Kentucky Derby was originally a poor man's race. It is only of late years that the rich turf owners of the east have been shipping their horses to Kentucky. The Belmont is mainly a silk stocking event, beginning with the name, and while it may carry a world of turf tradition with it, it has no human interest tradition, and no human interest appeal.

Interest Lags

When the conditions took horse racing away from the general public in New York, they took away the general interest that causes the newspapers to print columns about such stakes as The Belmont, The Suburban, or The Metropolitan.

Big crowds still turn out at Belmont, and the other New York race courses, to be sure, but there hasn't been enough general interest aroused in them to make the front pages since Papyrus, the English horse, and Epinard, the French nag, were brought to this country for match races that made the tracks look as if they had gone Democratic again.

They ran The Suburban at Belmont Saturday, a historic handicap that used to cause Sam Small Jr., Langdon Smith and other great newspaper writers to turn out turf epics columns long, but the race attracted comparatively little attention. It was won by a rank outsider by the unromantic name of Dolan. If it had been "Red" Dolan, I might admit that romance had returned to the New York tracks.

I doubt if it ever will. Only at Saratoga, in the short-lived month of August, does turf romance seem to blossom briefly hereabouts, but probably the seraphic surroundings make me imagine that.

Like Taking a Drink

The New York system of betting on the races lends a surreptitious, not to say illegal, atmosphere to the game. When man has to act like a pickpocket to make a bet on a horse, he can't get up a lot of real enthusiasm over the proposition. The pari-mutuel gives it a banking tone, as when you step up to the paying teller's window and look him in the eye.

Not that I am arguing in favor of public betting in the form of pari-mutuels for New York. I have become too strongly impressed by Mr. E. Phocian Howard's thought that all horse players must die broke to argue for betting in any form. I am merely stating a few facts.

The New York bookmakers themselves naturally oppose the mutuels. It would hurt their business. And general public interest in the races having died here, I doubt if it could ever be aroused to sufficient extent to create a demand for the mutuels. You must have general public interest in any proposition to create a demand.

Victorian Should Win

The Belmont this year would appear to be a nice little gallop for Harry Payne Whitney's Victorian, winner of the Preakness. Mr. Whitney dodged the Kentucky Derby, probably saving Victorian a beating, for most horsemen who have seen both horses think Reigh Count, the Derby winner, can beat Victorian doing anything.

Reigh Count will not answer roll call for The Belmont because he got scuffed around by his stablemate, Anita Peabody, just before the Derby and developed infections and what not. The other 3-year-olds that will go with Victorian aren't much—Distraction, Bobashela, Sun Beau, Vito and a number of others that are still dusty or muddy from taking the heelings of Victorian in the Preakness and Reigh Count in the Derby.

Nassak, of the Rancocas stable, a steed that was expected to win the Preakness like breaking sticks but folded up like an accordian, is out of The Belmont. The Hildreth-Sinclair outfit will probably start Mowlee. There are a lot of other equines of different shapes and sizes expected to start, but by and large it isn't much of a field in point of race horse quality.

And the general public is strangely unexcited.

GARDNER AND ASSOCIATES BRING IN GUSHER IN LE FORS POOL

WELL STARTS AT 100 HOURLY

Townsite of Le Fors Scores First Oiler

J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Spudders, who has rapidly risen to fame in organized baseball circles, Wednesday had scored a clean hit in the Petroleum league.

With an estimated flow of 100 barrels per hour from the pay at 2682 feet, the Le Fors Petroleum company (Gardner brothers and Collins) is showing up among the best in the Gray county field.

The well, which is located in the northwest corner of the original townsite of Le Fors, is the second to be drilled in the townsite, the other being some distance to the east and completed as a gasser some time ago.

The new well encountered the top of the pay at 2682 feet and was drilled two feet when it filled up and started to flow.

The owners will make location for No. 2 within the next few days.

Gardner brothers and Collins are Wichita Falls operators and contractors. J. Alvin Gardner, one of the guiding lights of the concern, also pilots the destinies of the championship Spudder club.

Restriction For Champagnolle

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., June 6.—The Champagnolle pool of Union county, Ark., the newest flush pool of the Midcontinent, now doing around 26,000 barrels a day, is to be restricted.

The conservation committee of the Midcontinent Oil and Gas association Wednesday created a committee to work there and bring about a restriction of drilling and if necessary a proration of runs.

W. C. Ferrell and J. E. Stopford, both of Eldorado, were the first members named. Three others are to be chosen by the operators. Before any definite plan can be adopted, however, the attitude of the conservation committee of Arkansas is to be sought.

Magnolia Gets Well in Wichita

One of the best wells completed in the southwest Wichita county area was brought in by the Magnolia Petroleum company on its J. A. Kemp lease in block 27, Wichita valley farm lands. The well which topped the sand at 1215 feet was drilled two feet when the hole filled with oil. Later the well was placed on the swab and in the first 14 hours made 175 barrels. When completed the well is estimated at about 100 barrels.

Two Crockett County Wildcats Offer Opening of New Oil Pools

Special to The Record News

SAN ANGELO, June 6.—Two Crockett county wildcats Wednesday offered possibilities of opening separate oil pools.

William Shaffer's No. 1 University opened at 2191 feet after being abandoned temporarily a year ago, when it pumped only 10 barrels daily following a shot, had swabbed and flowed approximately 80 barrels in less than 24 hours. Further swabbing awaited shift of the wind which was blowing gas towards the boiler. Unless further swabbing develops a steady flow, the well will be pumped. It is in the southeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 9, block 49, 11 east and one mile north of the Powell field.

W. W. Donnelly and Dr. J. D. Young's No. 1 J. S. Todd, nine miles south and five miles east of the Powell field, bailed free oil from 1682-83 feet and shut down to run 5 3-16-inch pipe to shut off sulphur water coming from 1460 feet.

It is in about the center of the south line of the northwest quarter of section 26, block WX, G. C. & F. F. Ry. survey.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 6. (AP)—Reports of improved weather conditions and prospects in the south were considered chiefly responsible for declines of about $1.50 in the cotton market today. After selling off to 20.75 at the start, October rallied to 20.91 but broke again to 20.54 and closed at 20.55, compared with 20.88 at the close the previous day. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 29 to 33 points.

The opening was steady at declines of 4 to 10 points, active months soon showing net losses of 5 to 13 points under liquidation and local selling promoted by better weather reports and relatively easy Liverpool cables. The initial decline brought in some trade buying and covering and the market soon rallied. July selling up to 20.69 and December to 20.74, or about 3 to 4 points net higher.

This bulge was checked by a renewal of liquidation or selling for a reaction, and offerings became more active after publication of the forecasts for generally fair weather over most of the belt and the weekly report of the weather bureau. The latter appeared to be more favorable than anticipated by recent buyers, and prices eased off the rest of the day with the market under considerable pressure. Selling seemed to come from local, Wall Street and southern sources, and some stop-orders were uncovered on the decline which extended to 20.35 for July and 20.39 for December contracts in late trading when active months were about 30 to 34 points net lower.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 6. (AP)—An early advance was followed by a steady decline in the cotton market today, due to liquidation and selling inspired by a bearish weekly weather and crop report and an official forecast for generally fair weather over the belt. October contracts which had traded up to 20.35, eased off and closed at 20.00, net 30 points down. The general market closed steady 30 points net lower on all active months.

Private cables reported liquidation and poor support in Liverpool and that market came in 2 to 4 penny points lower than due, but the local trade seemed to ignore the foreign market and first trades here showed gains of 5 to 10 points. Prices continued to advance after the start on buying promoted by several unfavorable reports of crop damage from the interior. July ultimately traded to 20.53. October 20.35 and December 20.33. 10 to 15 points above the previous close. Expectations of a bullish weekly weather and crop summary accounted for a good part of the early firmness.

When the report was issued, however, it showed no material damage by the recent heavy rains and was on a whole rather favorable. As a result longs liquidated freely and there were some selling on the official forecast for fair weather for practically the entire belt. Some ring traders also sold for a reaction and before the offerings were absorbed. July had traded off to 20.20. October to 20.04 and December 20.02. or 31 to 33 points under the highs and 26 to 28 points below the previous close.

Following a rally of about 12 points near mid-session the market in the early afternoon sagged again under additional liquidation, all positions making new lows with July at 20.15, and October and December at 20.00, or 33 to 38 points, nearly $2 a bale, below the highs and 30 points under the previous close. The market closed at the lowest.

Steel Trips Forward as Market Breaks in Face of Easier Money

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, June 6.—President Coolidge was reported preparing to issue a statement that he positively would not run and the stock market broke today, in the face of easier money. Brokers advised that the call rate would ease to 6 per cent. As a renewal of 6½ was announced early in the day

The bullish enthusiasm that resulted was enhanced as steel was taken in hand and pushed forward in better manner than it has acted in several weeks.

Just as the call rate dropped to 6 per cent, however, the report arrived from Washington that the president would decline renomination without equivocation and widespread selling broke out that closed all groups net lower. Radio lost 9 points net, while General Motors closed 4 points lower and other recent favorites to a lesser extent. Foreign exchange evidenced that there was not any considerable amount of funds coming to the market from abroad as sterling and other Europeans rallied in good manner. Wheat jumped on covering and influenced strength in other grains while cotton continued its decline.

The Coolidge report brought politics forward as a definite market factor. It is likely to continue such until after the election in November and be particularly influential while the Republican convention is voting next week.

The reports from Washington were quite definite and if proven correct will constitute a keen disappointment to Wall Street. Those most active on the bull side in recent months have been quite confident that the president would be drafted. Several of the active group believed an effort would be made to nominate Hoover but then the party would fall back on the president. They feel that to nominate anyone but the president will mean a hard fight and arouse differences in the party that will find reflection in the action of the stock market.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
Universal Service

CHICAGO, June 6.—All the grains closed with good advances today, but what seemed more important was they developed pronounced symptoms of a return of real bullish proclivities. This diagnosis may be a bit premature, but the trader who sells grains short on setbacks under the closing level of yesterday may have cause to regret it before many days pass.

Wheat finished 1⅜ to 1⅞ higher; corn was up 1 to 2⅝; oats were ⅛ to ⅝ better; rye was up 3⅝ to 4¼.

Rye, by the way, as was pointed out here this morning, is in such a strikingly bullish position because of short supplies and the prospects for a 1928 crop of under 40,000,000 bushels, that one wonders how the statisticians and crop experts have overlooked it.

But overlooked the rye market has been for months. Professionals and public alike do not care much to trade in it because it is so narrow that it moves over a wide range on a small volume of trading.

Next to rye July corn seems to be in the most bullish position. A belated bull market may be coming now in corn. Herbie Blum, big bull in this grain, told me today that he is as bullish as ever he was, and looks for much higher prices.

Wheat showed decided strength. The market was sold out and technically fit to respond to buying. To me it looked strong at the close and as it was ready to work higher today. In any event it may be dangerous to sell it on any early setback.

In the cash market wheat was 1 to 2 up; corn was ½ to 2 up; oats were firm; rye was quiet with No. 2 selling 2 to 2½ over July; barley was steady.

Supreme Court Upholds Restriction in Wichita Falls Case

But Fails to Save Evening Dinners on Lawn For Local Plaintiff

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 6—Right of an addition to a city to adopt restrictions as to locations of buildings was left intact by the Supreme court Wednesday in closing the case of R. O. Grant and wife vs. John Allen and wife, despite the fact that the court's decision permitted the moving of an additional building onto the Allen lot in the Southland addition of Wichita Falls in violation of the restrictions.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant secured an injunction in district court at Wichita Falls against moving the extra building onto the Allen lot. The injunction was later dissolved by the court of civil appeals in Fort Worth. The Supreme court today refused application for writ of error for the Grants, sustaining the civil appeals court.

The civil appeals court decision had said that owing to an agreement of property owners to resubdivide, and failure of residents to protest such action, the attempt to move the second building onto a residence lot apparently did not conflict with the original building restrictions to the extent of nullifying them.

The petition of R. O. Grant and wife asking for an injunction restraining moving of an additional building adjacent to their lot at 1303 Marshall street recently maintained that placing of the building on the lot would interfere with their dinners on the lawn in the summer months, according to W. H. Sanford, local attorney who represented the Allens in the case.

The injunction, dissolved in court of civil appeals, was again denied in Supreme court Wednesday, Mr. Sanford said, owing to the fact that part of the addition had been replatted by the owners, and did not conform to the remaining lots of the addition.

The Allens, he said, had purchased a small house they intended to place in the rear of their residence, which faces Marshall street, making the additional building face on Huff

Attorneys Lose Delay In Legislative Hearing

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 6. (UP) Sharp acrimonious tilts between attorneys marked the opening today of the legislative petition hearing before Secretary of State Graves Leeper.

FLORIDA VOTE SHOWS CHANGE

Pro-Smith Candidates Are Trailing in Count

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 6. (AP)—With only about half of the record vote cast in yesterday's Democratic primary counted, 24 hours after the polls closed, Florida electors watched tonight with interest the results of the election, as several marked changes in races for important state offices were recorded.

United States Senator Park Trammell continued to hold his own against the attempt of Governor John W. Martin to unseat him. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of the late commoner, William Jenings Bryan, stepped up her lead over Congressman W. J. Sears in the fourth district, and appeared to be sailing to the nomination for Sears' position.

Only scattering returns from delegates to the national convention had been received. The state will send an uninstructed delegation to Houston later this month, but there has been a distinct issue between the candidates favoring the candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith for the presidential nomination, and those who have not made known their choice in the matter.

On the face of these very scattered returns, it appeared, however, that the pro-Smith candidates were trailing.

Vernon Crowd Hears Senator

VERNON, Texas, June 6.—Senator Earle B. Mayfield, candidate for reelection to the United States senate, discussed his record in the senate before about 200 people in the district courtroom here this afternoon. He emphasized his efforts in the fields of transportation and farm relief. The speaker was introduced by G. W. Backus of Vernon, who praised him as a conscientious worker for the people.

Outlining his work in the senate, Mr. Mayfield said:

"I am author of the law that permits the Interstate Commerce Commission to authorize emergency freight rates into drouth or flood stricken areas. With this law in effect the people of a drouth or flood stricken area will never suffer on account of high freight rates as did the farmers in the drouth stricken area of Central Texas in 1925."

MANY LANDS SHIP 'SCOTCH'

South American Boats Are Booze Laden

NEW YORK, June 6. (US)—Good Scotch whiskey hails from South America now. Comes from Peru, Brazil and other un-arid spots on the continent below the Caribbean.

So it would seem from the results of the activities of customs searchers today. From the ship Perene, in from Peru, docked over in Brooklyn, federal agents seized from 150 to 200 bottles of whiskey labelled "Johnnie Walker" and "Old Tom Gin." In addition to the contraband, they took along Emanuel Mendoza, the ship's second steward, whom they had seen talking to men they recognized as Brooklyn bootleggers. The stuff was found, the Three Musteteers said, in Mendoza's cabin.

Valuable as the haul was, it was impossible, the searchers said, to discover who would admit ownership.

CONOCO Ethyl Gasoline stands head and shoulders above all other motor fuels in this market. True, it has its imitators. Jogging along behind every outstanding product are the "Me Toos" and the "Just as Goods." But in the final analysis, Conoco Ethyl Gasoline sets the standard of motor fuel performance.

The veiled charges that Ethyl Fluid is destructive to engine parts are, of course, ridiculous. Any intelligent motorist knows that the Conoco name would never be associated with any product which was other than a real contribution to motoring satisfaction.

Conoco has a reputation to maintain and it does it as never before in offering you Conoco Ethyl Gasoline—the fuel of extra knockless miles.

Get it at the Conoco Ethyl Sign.
