DETECTIVES HURT

THREE HAD ANNOUNCED THEY WOULD "CLEAN OUT" HOTEL

HOUSTON, Oct. 25.—One man was wounded fatally and two city detectives, Roy Young and Tony Margiotta, were slightly wounded in a pistol battle on the second floor of the Mills hotel about 3:45 p. m. Tuesday.

The dead man was identified by his two companions as Jim Ponder, alias P. O. O'Neil, who registered at the hotel Sunday under his alias, and gave his home address at Berger, Texas.

He was killed in a duel with city Detective Young, and B. W. Payne, in which about a dozen shots were fired.

According to the report made to police headquarters, Detective Young, Payne and Margiotta, acting on information given by a guest of the hotel—who told them that three men were in Room 205, with several pistols, and a bagful of money—decided to investigate.

They knocked on the room door and one man, who afterwards gave the name of Alex. Rydman, opened the door and stepped to one side. Ponder was sitting on a bed and a third man, T. McNamee, was standing to the left.

"We're officers," Young reported, and told the door man to get your gun out and get your gun out. Ponder started firing immediately, and Payne and Young who were standing in the doorway returned the fire, they said, Margiotta was standing in the room and grabbed for Ponder, just as the man was falling under the hail of bullets from the officers' guns.

One bullet struck Young in the leg.

SINCLAIR AND FALL SPLIT ON EVIDENCE

FORMER INTERIOR SECRETARY HAS NO OBJECTIONS TO PROBE ABOUT LEASE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—A difference of opinion between the defendants, Albert B. Fall and Harry Sinclair, developed today as the government continued to unfold to a jury in the District of Columbia, evidence in the case which it based an indictment for criminal conspiracy in connection with the leasing of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve.

Breaking into the proceedings for a second time within less than a week, Fall almost stated that he had no objection to the presentation of certain technical tests by the government to which George P. Hoover, chief counsel for Sinclair, had offered vigorous protest and argument before Justice Siddons.

Mr. Hoover said that he would appeal to the court to admit testimony which he regarded as "vital to his defense." After he had stated he had no objection, the former interior secretary glanced over toward the jury while his counsel, William E. Leahy, made this supplemental statement to the court:

"We want the record to show that we do not object to any question relating to this case."

Much of the evidence offered today by the government—held verbatim and documentary—was of cumulative character going directly into important elements of the case, including the failure of Fall to admit legal questions held with the leasing transactions to the best of his knowledge.

The Woman's Day By Allene Sumner

After all, it isn't the thing we do or see, the strange adventures, fascinating experiences we have, that make us interesting and interesting. It's what we ourselves put into mild, common, garden variety experiences.

Which says reflection follows reading "A Happy Pilgrimage," by Corra Harris.

Here is a book about a middle-aged, rather plain, sparrow type of woman who did nothing more exciting than leave her cabin home in a Georgian valley, take a trip to California, come home again, and write a book infinitely more thrilling and adventurous than many which have been written by lady travelers into the very desolate heart of the world.

The point is that during those many years in her simple, uneventful Georgian valley, Corra Harris had done the sort of living and dipping whichep deuch oyr M thinking which equipped her to mantle the commonplace in glorious enthusiasm. She was the adventurist herself. It seems to me that this woman and her book are some sort of answer to the hordes of home-keeping women who insist that their lives are wasted and that they are only "marking time."

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

BREAKFAST—Honey dew melon, cereal, cream, salt pork with cream gravy, whole wheat toast, pear marmalade, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Eggplant with cheese on toast, banana and minced sweet pepper salad, grapes, cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER—Stuffed shoulder of lamb, mashed potatoes, buttered cauliflower, tomato and lettuce salad, sliced peaches, sponge cake, milk, coffee.

Stuffed Shoulder of Lamb—Four pounds yearling lamb cut from shoulder, 1-4 pound lean veal, 4 slices bacon, 1 sweetbread, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon mixed sweet herbs, 1-2 cup chopped mushrooms, 2 tablespoons flour.

Have the butcher remove the bone from the shoulder. Remove any white membrane covering the meat. Parboil and chop sweetbread, chop veal and bacon. Combine sweetbread, veal and bacon and season with salt, pepper and mixed herbs. Fill the cavity in the shoulder with the stuffing and bind firmly with cord. Place meat in roaster and cover with thin slices of bacon. Place in a hot oven for fifteen minutes and then pour 2 cups of boiling water over meat. Roaster to even and roast in a moderate heat for one and one-half hours. Remove roast to hot platter and take off cord. Stir flour to a smooth paste with a little water. Stir the liquor in roaster pan and bring to the boiling point. Add chopped mushrooms and cook five minutes stirring to prevent sticking. Add hot water to make gravy and desired thickness. Serve in a gravy boat.

"CHANG" "Chang" is a marvelous movie. I saw it on my lunch hour yesterday. It is a simple story of simple man trying to make a living and a life for himself, wife, and children in the primitive jungle. He must build his home on stilts to keep prowling animals out. He must outwit the leopard that comes to suck the blood of his calves and kids.

WHAT PRICE FAMILY (?) But the outstanding feature of the picture is the warm solidarity of the little primitive family in its thatched house atop the stilts. Even the tiniest child has her task in the common job of outfitting the wilderness. Their common fight, fear, and rejoicing when mere food and shelter are provided, make them a congenial family unit. How can families be expected to have as much in common today when food and shelter and rainment are provided in a much more impersonal manner?

It is winter underwear time again! A couple of decades ago, this season of the year, women got out their husband's red woolen underwear and their own long-legged and long sleeved woollens and folded up their dainties till May violets boomed again.

True, there is some woolen underwear on the market today which might almost be called "daintier"—fine, lightweight, so soft that a suit almost fits into the palm of the hand.

Outstanding Features. But, for the most part, when wintery winds blow this year, the women of America will still like—gorgettes, ninos, crepe de chine and washable satin, not to mention lace. And much of it will be tan, for change, with peach and flesh running second. The outstanding feature of this season's modes is the fact, intricate tuckings, incrustations, and handwork of the most elaborate underpinnings Missy has had offered her in ages.

Next, comes the lines. For undies have graduated to the importance of having silhouettes, neck lines, irregular hemlines, belts and in a moderate heat for one and one-half hours. Remove roast to hot platter and take off cord. Stir flour to a smooth paste with a little water. Stir the liquor in roaster pan and bring to the boiling point. Add chopped mushrooms and cook five minutes stirring to prevent sticking. Add hot water to make gravy and desired thickness. Serve in a gravy boat.

The pantie suits, of brasseries and panties, so popular this summer, have yielded their place. The fadling pan and bring to the boiling point. Add chopped mushrooms and cook five minutes stirring to prevent sticking. Add hot water to make gravy and desired thickness. Serve in a gravy boat.

Every smart style is included, and all are this season's models.

Satins, Velvets, Felts, Metallics and smart combinations included.

Values so great that the comparative prices speak volumes for the savings.

Frilly Winter Lingerie Feature Now Milady Has Huge List To Choose From

Anderson Bros Jewelers

One such nightgown is shown today. "Trousseau," it is called, of peach georgette, with an elaborate Duchess lace yoke in the back, a lined back waist portion and back of lace. Most novel of all, this gown has the swaying hemline that follows the newest "down-in-the-back" dip. The front is fairly short—as many gowns are some of them just below the knees. And the front has only a modest lace yoke for trimming.

Another of the latest gowns is shown today. "Debutante," with a high back. This gown is plain, but elegant, with a subtle matching Alencon lace for its vesper front and the little collar that stands up in the back and flares in the front. Curiously this little collar has a bit of fine, silk wiring to hold its points out. Perhaps not the most comfortable thing to feel under one's cheek at night, but tremendously stylish.

Other gowns have felts, puff sleeves, and drapes and are, yet, chic, in a manner that is so typical of black satin with the diagonal closing outlined with oval beads. Another black crepe de chine has a pleated insert from the waistline in front of the skirt and the "lady" the entire back and shoulders. Other rich and delicate styles have been shown.

What Versatility! Told us, however, that versatility that there is everything from the cottons to the silks, with lace, with the use of the black lace (during the short skirt, to the graceful but ever dainty hand-tailored plain set of beige crepe de chine.

One particularly dainty intimate set is of apricot Alencon lace entirely—with a fitted cut like an abbreviated Princess evening gown of graceful lines. Diamante shoulder straps complete its charm. Another is a beautiful white tulle. Beautifully graceful is the white tulle, shown today, use of a brilliant set. Exquisite gleaming French crepe de chine, of a quality of softness and beauty we do not seem to have, this bit of femininity has real merit in all its beautiful trimmings of front and four in back—every which put in by hand!

Please Lend Fullness. Over the shoulders are the narrowest strands of the silk. It gets its fullness from the pleated inserts on the sides.

Sets this season include gowns, teddies and slips; old-fashioned short skirts and panties. But just as it grows more popular to have different kinds of rate dishes for each course at one's dinner table, so it seems more popular for Milady to choose a teddy of this kind, a gown of that and a slip of still another kind.

Tangerine Velvet. Tangerine velvet fashions a stunning evening gown with extreme low back and side train. It has cut steel beading for decorating.

True, there is some woolen underwear on the market today which might almost be called "daintier"—fine, lightweight, so soft that a suit almost fits into the palm of the hand.

Outstanding Features. But, for the most part, when wintery winds blow this year, the women of America will still like—gorgettes, ninos, crepe de chine and washable satin, not to mention lace. And much of it will be tan, for change, with peach and flesh running second. SLED ALLEN TO MANAGE AMARILLO TEAM

FREELAND FANS SPIRIT TO HIGH PITCH AT TUESDAY PRACTICE

3,000 NEW SEATS WENT ON SALE YESTERDAY

The Texas A. and M. club has 11 real 'he Texas boys; and Tech has 11 'he West Texas boys; and it is going to be the best fight and hitting team that has ever been seen in the history of the sport. Ewing Y. Freeland told his Matadors yesterday.

The fighting of the Tech gridiron and 'Big Ten' is exactly right about the matter for last week the Matadors and invincible Aggies led the Horned Frog's lot, held to a scoreless tie by an "underdog" Southwest conference team.

The spirit of fight has come over the flaming jested ballplayers of Tech. Tech and the greatest rival the Matadors have ever shown a beginning to crop out among the boys as they work daily behind closed gates.

"Let's get the best morale possible for the game with the Aggies," the big fellow told his group of players yesterday afternoon.

Plenty of drill is in store for the Texas Tech 11 throughout today and tomorrow and the members of the bullfighter staff are better equipped than they have ever been before in the three football seasons the club has experienced. A defense is being set for the powerful Aggie offense, and it is hoped that the men Freeland is detailing for the wracking work will come through with their efforts in strengthening the work of head Hunt, flank quarterback of the Southwest conference team.

Passing and other tactics are being carefully worked by Grady Hutchinson and the boys' backs and wingmen. It was by a long forward pass that the Matadors looked and the trio of handlers of the bullfighters anticipate furthering their scoring attempts via the long route.

Freeland believes in team. "I just can't keep repeating that the boys will come through Friday and battle a real game," Coach Freeland told the Avalanche yesterday. When Coach Freeland came through with his club before entering into action with the one of the Southwest conference machines, he will have all of the fighting spirit and drive he can possibly get out of them—which is plenty if they come out and battle.

3,000 Additional Tickets. Three thousand additional tickets will be available a little day of the game, according to an announcement from the office of E. W. Provencher, business manager of Texas Technological college.

Reservations are out all over the South Plains that will be held by the boys' fans. And it is said that ticket scalpers are already busy over this section profiting from the reservations of the students and handouts that no more tickets can be secured by the game. Mr. Provencher advised that the tickets for the game may be reserved, either at the Hotel Drug company, or at the office of the business manager of the college.

Big Bonfire Thursday. Much color will be shown in the Chicago gridiron classic of West Texas when the Texas Tech boys and girls pep squads go through their drills and performances during the wonderful day. Both groups are working daily and will have their stunts down to a perfection for the game. A huge mass of boxes and other kindling material has been collected on the Tech campus for the big bonfire which will be staged on the eve of the game, and will conclude the pep rallies for the week.

The cry over the campus is "Down the Fighting Aggies" and "Make those Farmers Aghs and have plenty of regrets."

WITHDRAWAL TO BE FOUGHT BY WESTERN

DEF MOINES, Oct. 25.—The Western League will fight to a finish to retain Tulsa and Oklahoma City in its circuit or to relocate a just return for their withdrawal and entrance into the Texas League. Dale Grier of Tulsa, Kansas, president of the league, declared here today upon his arrival for a conference with E. L. Koyser, president of the Des Moines club of the Western League.

"We have baseball and civil law on our side and cannot see how Tulsa and Oklahoma City will be allowed to withdraw," Grier said. "Certainly we will not let the two clubs unless Amosette goes too, for the latter which has invested $100,000 in its club and property, must be protected and it would be impossible for us to retain Amosette without Oklahoma City and Tulsa. If the Texas League wants to take the three cities and recognize the Western League for its loss, we will be ready to talk business."

T. C. U. Will Hold Homecoming On Day Of Pony Tilt

(Special To The Avalanche) FORT WORTH, Oct. 25.—Homecoming Day for the University of Texas at Fort Worth will be held on Thanksgiving this year in connection with the T. C. U. - S. M. U. football game, therefore Homecoming Day has been held in June.

The fact that the football game will be an extra large crowd and that the time is a nationwide holiday were influential factors in the change of dates.

A tentative program for the Thanksgiving Homecoming calls for parade, an alumni luncheon, group picture, campus visit, the football game and a reception in the T. C. U. Library building after the game. The reception is to be sponsored by the T. C. U. Women's Club. Mrs. E. R. Tucker was appointed chairman of the reception arrangements.

Strolling Down Sports Lane WITH JAMES R. DOW

Fight is going to be the cry of the Matadors Friday when they romp on the field before the largest crowd ever to witness a football game in West Texas. Ewing Y. Freeland handed the boys an appropriate sermon yesterday when he told the flaming-jested lads that it would take the best fighting they can put out to take down the Aggies.

Ewing told the bullfighters that the Aggies have been stopped, and they can yet be stopped if they are battled to the last whistle. The "Big Yellow" was in the right humor to hand the boys something yesterday and let them have it.

Coach Freeland says: "I believe that the boys are going to fight A. & M. Friday and I look for them to come through. We must not be lulled by the fact that they are twenty points but just don't believe that the Aggies have a twenty-point better club than we have."

By excluding fans from the practices yesterday, and for the rest of the week, Coach Freeland told me that it was not for money as he wasn't afraid of anybody as far as fanfare goes. Anything, but it was the only method by which he could get the Matadors to concentrate on the plays and work. "The fans were in the way and they didn't realize it and by having them out of the field I feel that we can do much more work with the team."

Coach Freeland may continue to work behind closed gates for the rest of the season, however, he has not made definite plans to do so. Should he continue the practice he will allow one day a week for "fanfare" and allow the fans to witness the workout from the stands. "I am of the opinion that it would be the best thing for both himself and the team."

The game box is being built in the new stands and it is certainly going to be a dandy. Thanks to Mr. Provencher and Mr. Warlick, who worked out the details of the box as it is certainly appreciated by the visiting press members.

Of course this a little out of the season to be talking about baseball, but, nevertheless, I can't keep from commenting on the good move the owners of the Amarillo, Texas, of the Western League, have made in securing Skipper Allen, former Hubbar manager, to pilot their club through the 1928 baseball season. Skipper will make them an excellent manager for the battles for victory in every game he goes into and he doesn't hesitate to let the fans know about it. Congratulations, Amarillo, you will never regret the day you secured Skipper Allen to handle your ball club.

The Westerners have been hard at it all week getting prima for the hardest home game of the season. The Wichita Falls Coyotes, yet undefeated by a conference team, will be here to inflict a victory over the local lads Saturday. Have you gotten your reservation for the game, if not do so today. You are doing your part if you attend the game Saturday, in assisting the lads in their hard tilt.

Pat's Matadors' Fight. Those Aggies' see the spirit of the native student body this week on Texas Tech's campus. If you think the old school isn't putting out plenty of everything in getting ready for the big day just attend one of their pep rallies and see for yourself.

Gen. Koyser and the former's attorney, Harry Colmore, also of Tulsa, Okla., it was said, probably will go to Chicago tomorrow or Tuesday to meet with other club owners of the Western circuit.

It Looks Like Billings May Be Found Respected Youth Goes To Detroit

BY BILLY EVANS
Better picking in the election of Manager Gen. Moriarty of the Detroit Tigers has resulted in the first division this year because, on the whole, the Tigers' staff of writers showed improvement.

In Haskell Billings, called "Josh" by his teammates, Moriarty feels confident he has added a young star to his staff destined to shine in the majors.

It is an unwritten law in baseball that all Weavers are known as "Buck" players with the name of Young are called "CS," while "Josh" is invariably tied on to any player who answers to the name of "Billings." Hence the nickname given him as soon as he joined the major.

The chap "Josh" is unusual in that he is a high-brow, mentally and wears spectacles, a la Lee Meadows and Carmen Hill, pitching stars of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Billings was educated at Brown University.

Older fans who recall Jess Dugan, a star of the Tigers' pitching staff a dozen years back will note a great similarity between the style of young Billings and the veteran Dugan. And it is only proper that the resemblance should be most striking, since it was Dugan, as coach at Brown University, who instructed Billings in the art of pitching.

When Dugan, who acts as scout for the Aggie, on which he never starred, sent Billings to the Tigers, he expressed the belief that the youngster was capable of making the grade without any minor league experience.

Talking Dugan at his word, Manager Moriarty put Billings to the test a few days after his arrival in Detroit. He beat Boston.

Friday will be a gala day in Lubbock and he tonight should be dressed in his best, members of the Matador club believe. The Matador club, an organization formed to foster Tech athletics, has been working in every way possible to make the Tech-A. and M. football game a success. The club is anxious that spectators of Lubbock put out their street flags to give the town a celebration dress effect.

A special train will unload about 11 o'clock from Amarillo with some A. and M. fans aboard. This group will be just however, in the mob of some seven or eight thousand who will be in the stands Friday afternoon at the Tech stadium to witness the football classic. Thousands will come here in cars and on regular trains and buses to see the game.

The majority of business firms of Lubbock have signed an agreement to close from 11 o'clock until after the Tech game. Many officers of the Matador club have announced, and they believe that it will be appropriate that the town be decorated with flags as well.

A. and M. fans in hope that the same as well as the attendance may prove of such importance that the

LUBBOCK MANTO TAKE PLACE OF KELLY

(By Associated Press) AMARILLO, Oct. 25.—Pitching star Allen has been named manager of the Amarillo Texas, baseball club to succeed Joe Kelly.

This announcement was made today by the local owners of the club, who express themselves highly pleased with the agreement reported with this former big league Amarillo baseball firm by his "manager," Kelly, under his previous management, Amarillo baseball club.

In bringing Allen to the local firm, the owners here could say what Kelly would do during the coming season. The former manager of the Texas held a one year contract and, anatomically, becomes a free agent. However, it is about that he may tie up with Denver or Oklahoma City, but nothing definite is known of his expectations.

Stod Allen is a resident of Lubbock and has lived here since 1925 when he came to the Hub City to manage the Lubbock Hubbers of the West Texas league. During the regular season of 1925 he carried the Hubbers to the championship of the Farabee-Roose Valley league and since that time he has been connected with semi-pro ball in Lubbock, taking the 1925 Denver Post Tournament, one of the strongest baseball tournaments of the United States. In 1926 skipper Allen's club took the Amarillo News-Globe tournament.

TOADS MEET OLD FOES AT WACO SATURDAY

(Special To The Avalanche) FORT WORTH, Oct. 25.—With two tie games marring their percentage beyond hope of a high position in the Southwest Conference football race, but with the satisfaction of having stopped both the Texas Longhorns and Texas Aggies to spare them on the T. O. U. Horned Frog Monday resumed their workouts in preparation for their game with Baylor Saturday. At the Cotton Palace in Waco.

Concise Matty Bell and Ed Kettle are jubilant over the battle put up by their Frog Saturday. The fact that only two substitutions were made for those for the same positions proved beyond doubt the marvelous physical condition of the Christiana Substitutions were frequent for the Aggies although in the past the Farmers have been known as the best conditioned team in the circuit. The same combination looked for the Frog and the last five minutes of play when the crippled Captain "Bicycle" Williams was sent in for a passing attack, replacing the spunky little "Nasty" Clark who jumped into the coach in the absence of the Princeton leader and played a superb game.

Williams' last pass, a 50-yard one, hit the three on goal posts and "Pug" reduced him. The Purple forward wall proved a stone on the Aggie line after time.

Saturday in Waco the Frog will meet an ancient rival. Old timers will recall many thrilling battles between Frog and their in the days when T. O. U. was located in Waco. The annual game, very dissimilar to that when the schools joined different conferences and was not resumed regularly until 1925 when they met at the State Fair in Dallas. They tied 7-all in 1925 and 1926 in almost identical contests.

Legionnaire Held Up In Turkey As Passport Probed

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 25.—(By Associated Press.)—The only legionnaire of the second A. E. F., to push as far as Turkey as he had to for the adventure, cost him an anxious few hours when the Turks took his passport from him at the frontier. The victim, A. L. Smith (59th division, A. E. F.) of San Antonio, Texas, bred in Turkey with no visa as the special legion passport carries the right of free entrance to all European countries save Russia.

The Turkish guards at the desolate Turkish frontier had never heard of the American Legion and thought the special passport a big fake. So they sent the passport by special courier to Constantinople and allowed the legionnaire to proceed there under guard.

The Constantinople authorities were also somewhat in the dark about the second A. E. F., allowed Mr. Smith to see the sights of Stamboul after affixing the regular visa to his suspicious passport and extracting from him the regular fee of eleven liras.

BANKS PRAISED IN POLICY SHIFT

DEPARTMENT SYSTEM IS A BIG BOON, SESSION AT HOUSTON TOLD

(By Associated Press) HOUSTON, Oct. 25.—Departmental banking, although in its infancy, is a mighty healthy youngster, W. R. Morehouse told the American Bankers association at its annual convention here today and coupled with the statement a prediction that the time would come when nearly all banks in the United States would become departmentalized in order to render complete financial service because, he said, they would "find it to their advantage to take care of all their customers' needs, at least within reason."

Mr. Morehouse is vice president of the Security Trust and Savings bank of Los Angeles and is president of the savings bank division of the bankers association.

Many Angles of Banking

Addressing the convention on "The Trend of Banking," Mr. Morehouse covered many angles of the subject including thrift, bank mergers, failures and robberies. But his conclusion was that if read the signs of the times correctly that there is every reason to believe that banking in the United States is on the verge of a great advance—that in the future our banks will be greatly strengthened and their service improved as the natural result of the many constructive movements under way today.

Bank mergers, he believes, might not have the support of all bankers, but will have many supporters. Some bankers might see in mergers "grave circumstances" but others will regard them as a good sign with the monopolistic features completely overshadowed by the added strength which mergers will give the merged banks.

Minimum for Failures

Mr. Morehouse advanced the suggestion, which it was gathered previously had been made, that a remedy for the bank failures might be found in a minimum bank capitalization of $25,000. In the main, he said, bankers are agreed that failure in many cases is due to under capitalization and added that the bank guaranty of deposits plan has been tried "with disastrous results in certain cases."

Another sign of the time, Mr. Morehouse believed pointed to a reduction of the number of bank robberies which had alarmed bankers and had moved them to make for definite action, in some sections vigilante committees had been formed on the basis of "shoot to kill." Other sections had offered a reward of $1,500 for the capture of each bank robber with an additional reward of $1,000 to the bank robber if brought in dead. "If I am certain human nature," Mr. Morehouse somewhat grimly remarked, "the additional reward will have the effect of bringing in more dead robbers than live ones." Regarding the "best way to solve the problem," he said, "the thing certain," he said, "is to make it gradually making it 'hotter' for the robber."

Laurel Group Meetings

Mr. Morehouse found a most promising sign of the time in the tendency of the bankers to assemble in group meetings, lay their problems before the members and ask for suggestions. Some of the results had been an exchange of experiences in the use of business building modern agreements to stimulate meeting participation and too much free service and had resulted in friendly co-operation and fair competition. Considerable also had been done, he said by bankers to meet the attack of wild-cat promoters on bank depositors through advice to investors. Never before he said, have bankers cooperated to such an extent, in conjunction with newspapers and Better Business bureaus, to "rid our land of all schemes used to offend our depositors." Many banks, he said, are already giving advice to contented investors and some have come a step further in establishing departments where depositors may

Audience Acclaims Little Theater Play, "Dulcy," As Success Last Night

The initial production of the Little Theatre for this season was a success.

Archimede came from the audience between acts; undivided interest attested that the play was "going over," and loud applause greeted the players through their acting. "Dulcy," a comedy in three acts, and presented last evening in the high school auditorium under the direction of Mrs. R. E. White with Mrs. Bryon C. Dickinson starring in the leading feminine role and supported by a well-balanced group of players. Edna Shelton who played the part of C. Roger Park, a New York business man who was contemplating entering a jewelry business with Dulcy's husband, Gordon Smith, was an outstanding player among the male characters. D. G. H. Aker, cast as Gordon Smith, shared the honors with Mr. Shelton in acting.

Each player carried his part with ease and nothing was so excellent throughout that one chooses the best in the cast with difficulty.

Others Do Well

Clayton Handley, who played the role of Mrs. Evelyn Lecker, William Parker, old splendidly playing Miss Ernestine Wilson, who was taking her first part in Little Theatre work, portrayed well the character of Mrs. Parker.

As Amelia Forbes, Miss Eleanor Cole was the lover of the Little Theatre audience last evening. Other characters were D. G. Aker, who played as Richard Van Dyck in the play; Edgar Jones, who took the official role of Tom Sterrett an advertising executive; Harace Grad, a newspaper editor; W. W. Proctor, attorney; and Ralph Carpenter, the butcher.

Piano Numbers Please

In making his role, Mr. Allen gave a number of piano selections and a large number of applause which greeted him on one occasion indicated something of his popularity there.

As an innovation in local Little Theatre circles, the setting for last evening's play was designed and built by local people. Edna Shelton, one of the characters in the play supervised the building of the setting and the decorations were made by Mrs. Earl Hunt, A. W. Mack and Mrs. J. E. Vickers, while W. W. Nelson conducted the orchestra with pointing. Harry Meyers directed the stage work for last night's production.

Saxophone Quartette

A saxophone quartette, directed by H. LeMaire, furnished music before the first curtain rolled up and between the acts. Other players were Mrs. LeMaire, Miss Doyle, Gladys Mendenhall and James H. Dorn.

Boys and Girls

American boys and girls took part in a play for a share of Mr. Morehouse's attention. "The boy or girl of the future," he said, "is not to be regarded as a nuisance in our bank offices as is the case today in many of our banks. Bankers are pushing school savings as never before," the speaker asserted, "to equate the American youngster, not only with thrift and the value of money, but also as a means of acquainting him with our banks and with banking methods and practices. They are helping farm boys with pig raising and corn growing clubs," Mr. Morehouse said. "They are holding arithmetic, essay and letter writing contests as a means of interesting youngsters in banking and as a part of a plan to extend a helping hand to the American youth instead of regarding him as too hysensensical to command their attention."

Great Automobile Corporation Now Forges Ahead at United States Steel Earnings

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The General Motors corporation in spite of curbing capacity the promise in district corporation of the company today forged far ahead of its nearest rival, the United States Steel corporation. The auto-making concern's income for the first nine months of 1927, amounting to $193,751,382, broke all previous records for any similar period, and exceeded the total net earnings for the full year of 1926. The steel corporation reported a surplus of $74,699,923, available for dividends in the same period. Net earnings of General Motors for the third quarter, exceeded $41,873,521 for the steel corporation. NORFLEET

The Manhunter's Own True Story As told to Gordon Hines

WHAT HAS BEEN TOLD:

Frank Norfleet, a Texas rancher swindled out of $43,000 by members of a confidence ring, headed by Joe Furey, resolves to break up this ring if it takes his last penny. After considerable effort he finds two of his men in California. They are brought to Fort Worth for trial. Acting on the tip of a stranger, Norfleet hurries to Florida to search for his men. After several disappointing experiences with the police force who seem in certain cities to be working with the swindlers, Norfleet hears that a link in the confidence ring is operating at Sanford. He adopts the name of Parkinson and goes there posing as a prospective purchaser of a celery farm and talks frankly of the large sum he expects to invest and attracts the attention of a man named Johnson, probably an outpost of the confidence ring, who discourages the purchase of a celery farm and induces Norfleet to accompany him to Daytona where the investment opportunities are supposed to be better. En route Johnson suddenly drags Norfleet to the car window and points to a man speeding by in an automobile saying that he would give a great deal of money for the man, who is a "financial wizard." They arrive at Daytona and Norfleet, by a ruse engages a room for the night in a private home, appointing to meet Johnson in the morning. A wakening early he peeps out his window and sees Johnson outside on guard as if he were afraid his sucker would get away. After breakfast together they go for a walk on the beach.

Chapter Fifteen

We turned and started back toward the town. The stranger stopped a little distance beyond us and sat down on a fallen log. He yawned lazily and stretched out his long form. I could see that he was waiting for us. As we came nearer, he raised up and started perusing the messages again. Then he got to his feet and started toward us. Johnson apparently noticed him; for the first time, for he stopped over and whispered to me.

"Look! There he is! What do you know about that? That is the mysterious man I pointed out to you yesterday!—The one I met in Judge Hughes' office in New York City. I think I'll speak to him and see if he remembers me."

"Go ahead," I urged. As he would have crossed us again Johnson called out. "Hello, Atlantic City." That was a signal, I thought. Probably they hadn't agreed on just which game to spring on me, the mysterious one appeared not to hear the call, for he kept on moving, though I noticed that he slowed his gait somewhat.

"Hello, Atlantic City!" Johnson called again. The stranger looked up, as though uncertain that he was being addressed. "Did you speak to me yesterday?" he asked of Johnson. Johnson nodded that he had.

"Why do you address me as 'Atlantic City'?" the man demanded indignantly. "Why, pardon me—that's just a habit of mine. I often associate men's names with the cities in which I meet them. I speak to you that way because I have met you before and 'Atlantic City' popped into my mind when I saw you. I hope I haven't offended you." He was very apologetic.

The stranger scanned Johnson's face; then a flicker of recognition flashed into his eyes. "Oh, I believe I remember you. But, say, it wasn't Atlantic City, was it? It seems to me it was in Judge Hughes' office in New York City."

"Yes," replied Johnson. "I met you there, but I met you in Atlantic City first." It seemed to dawn suddenly on the stranger that Johnson was a much more intimate acquaintance than had occurred to him at first. They grasped each other's hand with a warmth that was rather unusual in casual acquaintances. Perhaps it was for the sake of dear Judge Hughes.

Then the stranger nodded in my direction and asked in an undertone, "Who is your friend?" Johnson introduced me to Mr. Steel, saying that I was an acquaintance of his and that he would vouch for me. The con rings are fond of that word "vouch." They invariably use it when introducing a sucker to one of their brethren.

Steel relaxed somewhat in his manner and said he hoped I was not offended; he was always skeptical of strangers and perhaps his manner betrayed him. If so, he was very sorry. Many times he had barely avoided considerable financial losses in his big deals through the unholly inquisitiveness of newspaper reporters who, it seemed, used many ruses to get to interview him.

"They're so damned clever, you know, about getting things out of you that you don't suspect you are giving away. I have to be very cautious. We speculators and stock manipulators have to carefully protect the secrets of our business. Publicity has ruined many a good man."

I wanted to say, "It sure has! Look where Ward and Gerber are!" but I stifled the desire and listened to an old story with interest.

Steel could not get away from his intrigues entirely. He would intersperse his remarks to us with muttered repetitions from the yellow papers, almost losing himself in thought as he delugged us with them. Then he would come to with a start and resume chatting with us. He was anxious to impress me with the thought that his very important business absorbed him and gave me a winning look. "Only I am too busy to run back and forth to place bets and deliver the winnings to you too, boys!" He flashed the telegram again as if to impress us with his lack of time. At least this game had a variation, although it was built on the old general plan. It seemed from his mention of "bookies" that we were to play the ponies for a while. It would be diverting to see the new game unfold, anyway.

"The best thing for you fellows to do," Steel went on, "if you want to make a little wad, is to come with me to the club."

"The club? Ah, the plot thickened! 'We have rented the county club up on the hill and use it as an exchange. We have splendid equipment. Come on up with me and we'll do the work from there. Today's betting is practically all on the horse races in Cuba.'"

"That sounds good! It's mighty good of you, Steel," agreed Johnson, getting up from the log and brushing his clothes. Johnson was acting his part, at least, Mr. Steel could find no fault with Johnson's part in the little comedy.

"What do you say, Parkinson?" "Sounds all right to me," I assented, anxious to be agreeable. "Only I haven't many thousands on me, besides," I added conservatively. "I must be careful and not let the horses run away with my celery farm."

A fraternal look was exchanged between the pair. "No danger of that," Steel said reassuringly. Fishing in his leather satchel he drew out a newspaper clipped and handed it to me, telling me to read it if I felt that there was any likelihood of his not knowing his business.

As we walked to town to get an automobile, I read the item. It told how he had broken a bucket shop in one day taking out more than $125,000. At the top was a photograph which might have resembled Steel if the top of the head had not been torn off. Steel explained that this was done so that the persistent newspaper reporters could not identify him. He dropped his publicity, strange!

The drive was beautiful, scenic. The air was warmer than it had been in Sanford, yet the morning was young enough that the sun hadn't driven away that sweet, pungent scent of the new day. On the way I thought of the credulity of this pair's work and wondered how I ever tumbled for a similar game as I had. Their work was convincing in many ways yet it was inconsistent. They had started as if they intended to work the "stock exchange racket," then switched to the "racing" "frapped wire game," as old as Methuselah. Steel had left to place a bet early in the morning and returned shortly with the winnings. Many other little raw spots showed up in their work. Perhaps they were not yet regulars—just apprentices.

I was rather depressed by contemplation of a possible dangerous trap. The road was lonely. I don't remember that we passed another car on the entire trip of several miles. Tangled jungles bordered the smooth road and everything was oppressively still. No one said a word. The sound of the purring motor was magnified in the deafening silence.

Suspense! There is nothing so terrible. I had rather be in the midst of an active gun battle than to sit and wait for it to begin. My tongue grew thick in my mouth and my breathing was almost stifled, as if something was closing in round my heart with a gentle, firm pressure that would eventually squeeze the blood from it. In all my life, I have never experienced just the same feeling, before or since. The road spun under us like a narrow ribbon. As we climbed a steep slope overlooking the sea, quite suddenly, I thought of my mother's wicker basket.

That was queer, I thought. I wondered why it came to my mind. Then I recalled how, when I was small and worrisome, my mother would call me to her knee and place a tangle of hair in my hair, twisting it through all its twists and turns, undoing knots one by one, until I came to the end.

Was this experience the starting place in my own tangled skein of affairs? Would I have the perseverance or the ability to follow through to the end, in case this were the beginning?

YIELD PER ACRE HERE IS LARGER

FOURTH TO THIRD BALE AN ACRE LOOMS: TOTAL HERE 538 BALES

One of the best yields per acre that this region has experienced in several years seems to be the lot of the cotton farmer of this vicinity. Estimates from various sections place the probable yield at from three-fourths to one-third bale an acre.

A total of 538 bales had been ginned in Lubbock up to yesterday, a canvass of the seven gins here showed. The compresses report that their share of the cotton is beginning to flow in.

Others declare that the quality of the cotton being brought in this year is better than ever before; that the bales are cleaner. Bales are said to be larger than usual on the average.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

How I make Cakes—perfect every time!

Success depends on following the recipe and method carefully. So be sure to read your recipe and method through to the end before you start to work.

When you grease them with Crisco, you do not need to flour them. Crisco contains no moisture to cause your cakes to stick to the pans and scorch.

Measurements must be accurate. Here is a way I have found to measure shortening accurately. To measure, for example, 3/4 of a cup of Crisco, I take a measuring cup, put in 1/2 cup of cold water, then add enough Crisco to bring the water to the top of the cup, pour it off, and I have an exact 3/4 cup of Crisco.

The importance of the right shortening I used to make all my cakes with butter. After I began to make my cakes with Crisco, using no butter at all, I found that they were perfectly delicious and my reputation as a cake-maker was just as high as ever.

If you are one of those who simply find it unbelievable that you can use all Crisco in cakes, try half butter and half Crisco at first. Then next time, perhaps, three-fourths Crisco and one-fourth butter. I am sure you will be so pleased with the results, that before you know it you will be using all Crisco for all your cakes.

Importance of creaming shortening and sugar. Not everyone realizes the importance of creaming the shortening and sugar together. The purpose is to soften the grains of sugar, and this is done by beating the sugar with the shortening until the mixture is soft and fluffy, and does not feel grainy to the spoon.

To have your layers even and of uniform thickness, divide your batter in equal parts and spread evenly over the bottom of the pans.

Correct baking temperature important. Up-to-date recipes give you correct temperature. If you are an experienced cake-maker and have never used a thermometer, you, of course, have your favorite way of testing your oven for the proper heat.

If you have your own favorite cake recipes, simply use Crisco in the place of the shortening your recipe calls for, adding 1 teaspoon of salt to every cup of Crisco used.

This recipe can be used as a standard for a variety of layer cakes. It will make a large 3-layer cake, and also six cup cakes. Or, instead of making the cup cakes, you can make four layers, making two cakes of two layers each.

1/2 cup Crisco 2 teaspoons baking powder 1/2 cup sugar 2 eggs 1/2 cup milk 1/2 cup vanilla 3 cups pastry flour Cream Crisco and sugar together thoroughly. Add egg yolks, well beaten. Beat in the milk, a little at a time. Then add 3/4 cup flour and beat until smooth.

Prime Cake 2 eggs pastry flour 1/2 cup Crisco 2 cups sugar 1/2 cup milk 1/2 cup vanilla 3 cups pastry flour 1/2 cup shortening 1/2 cup nuts

Cream Crisco and sugar thoroughly. Add egg yolks well beaten. Then stir in prunes. Sift together, soda, salt, and flour and add alternately with milk. Layer fold in large egg whites. Bake in loaf pan, one hour in moderate oven (325° F.). Be sure prunes are thoroughly drained of all juice.

ALL MEASUREMENTS LEVEL. Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute.

An Astonishing Blindfold Test SEE if this doesn't give you the greatest surprise of your whole cooking experience! Put a little Crisco on the tip of one spoon. On the tip of another place a little of the fat you are now using; have someone blindfold you, and give you first one, then the other fat to taste.

Now, did you ever imagine there could be such a striking difference in the taste of raw cooking fats? Think what an improvement Crisco's sweetness and freshness will make in your own cakes, pies, biscuits and fried foods.

Featherweight White Cake 1/2 cup Crisco 1/2 cup sugar 1/2 cup milk 1/2 cup vanilla 3 cups pastry flour 1/2 cup shortening 1/2 cup nuts

Cream Crisco with sugar. Stir in alternately milk and sifted dry ingredients. Fold in thoroughly stiffly beaten egg whites. Add vanilla and turn batter into two greased layer pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.). Ice with Seven Minute Icing.

Seven Minute Icing 1/2 cup sugar 1 egg 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar or baking powder 1/2 cup milk 1/2 cup vanilla 1/2 cup shortening

Place all ingredients in top part of double boiler, having water in lower part boiling. Beat together until thick enough to spread. Add vanilla. Precaution—Have fine sugar or melt it in water before adding egg.

SNYDER AND GRAY SEEK NEW TRIALS

CONDEMNED PAIR MAKE FIRST BID TO ELUDE ELECTRIC CHAIR TUESDAY

(By Associated Press) ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray have made their first bid for salvation from the electric chair.

Counsel for the two appeared before the court of appeals yesterday to argue that they should have new and separate trials for the murder of Albert Snyder, the woman's husband, in Queen's Village last spring.

Claim Rights Invaded. Raising their case on the single legal point that Mrs. Snyder's constitutional rights were invaded when she was denied a separate trial upon first being brought to justice, her counsel declared that the trial was surrounded with incidents peculiar to such "spectacular affairs" as prize fights or circuses.

Counsel for Gray held his plea-up for the court to see as a helpless loaf of Mrs. Snyder, who had been "prevented from freely selecting a jury of his peers," and for whom it was found impossible to obtain a jury "wholly free from bias and prejudice."

Insurance Held Motive. To this statement Assistant District Attorney C. W. Forzelle, of Queens county, replied that "insurance was the dominant motive for the killing of Albert Snyder."

As to the contention that Gray and Mrs. Snyder should have had separate trials, he held that "they jointly confessed and were jointly indicted and they properly stood trial jointly."

Decision on the appeals is expected in six or seven weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Wilson and daughter, Lois, left yesterday morning for Comanche where they will attend the funeral of Mrs. Wilson's sisters, Mrs. Georgia Gore, which will be held there today.

Plaintiff in Putty Case Gets More Than First Asked

Judgment for a greater amount than asked for by the plaintiff was rendered in the county court yesterday when Judge Charles Nordyke held a hearing on motion for judgment in the case of Mary Putty versus Ed Putty and wife. Judgment in favor of the plaintiff had been previously rendered in the county court by jury decision, for an amount approximating $700.

The suit came as aftermath of the disappearance of F. M. Putty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Putty, who has not been heard from for about three years. The plaintiff, suing as guardian of her three children, alleged that before the disappearance of F. M. Putty the children had been given 200 acres of land, but defendants asserted that there were only 80 acres in the tract. Suit was brought to recover rents on the 200 acres paid in 1925.
