Cogdell-St. Mary reach management accord

The Cogdell Memorial Hospital board of managers voted unanimously Tuesday night to accept an offer from St. Mary of the Plains Hospital officials in Lubbock to act as management consultants for the facility.

In effect, the agreement will replace the current type of management at Cogdell involving a hospital administrator.

The decision was in part prompted by the announced retirement this coming Jan. 1 of longtime administrator Cy Miller.

In addition to the board, Cogdell medical staff members had endorsed the St. Mary's offer. The staff met with the hospital board for approximately one hour prior to the 8:15 p.m. meeting, seeking acceptance of the St. Mary's offer over management proposals from Methodist Hospital in Lubbock and two national management companies.

Board member Rex Robinson moved that the St. Mary's offer be accepted, and Janet Hall seconded the motion before board members Leon Autry, Roy McQueen and Jackie Smith also gave their approval. Board member Dan Cotton was absent.

In his motion, Robinson suggested following St. Mary's recommendation that a chief executive officer be hired along with a chief financial officer at the hospital.

Robinson noted Wednesday morning that the agreement would in no way affect the power now given the hospital board.

The agreement involves no financial exchange between the two institutions. In line with this, Robinson noted Cogdell will still be required to "pay its own way."

Cogdell Memorial is owned by the county and has required annual ad valorem tax supplements of around $500,000 during the past several years to assist its financial situation.

Robinson said the St. Mary's agreement would not immediately affect this situation.

"When they made their presentation to us, they told us we had already cut (operations) to the bone." He speculated St. Mary's would likely look at hospital rates charged at Cogdell.

"They told us right now we're 20-25 percent below other hospitals' medical costs," Robinson said.

St. Mary's president Jake Henry last month proposed a three-year contract between the two hospitals in a meeting with hospital board members, medical staff members and county commissioners. He said the agreement would entail no fees to St. Mary's but would imply a linkage between the hospitals.

Robinson noted the contract has a 90-day notice clause allowing either party to withdraw.

Dr. Bid Cooper, Cogdell chief of staff, said the medical staff recommended St. Mary's because it "is a highly respected institution in West Texas" and because the agreement "entails no risk to the community."

Current vote 3-1...

County backs Proposition 8

With three of four commissioner precincts reporting, Scurry County voters gave nearly 3-to-1 support to Proposition 8, the prison-building amendment, in Tuesday's election and went against the statewide tide by rejecting the referendum on parimutuel betting.

An unexpectedly heavy turnout of about 35 percent of the county's registered voters had kept election officials counting all night, and the final tally still had not been reported by noon Wednesday.

Three of the county's four boxes had been completed, however, with Precinct 3 at Towle Park Barn being the last one to be counted.

County Clerk Jenna Vee Miller estimated that the final count would show about 3,200 persons had voted from the total of 9,135 registered voters in the county.

The partial returns showed 1,408 votes "for" and only 549 against the proposed amendment to offer $500 million in general obligation bonds for the construction, repair and-or renova-

WRECK SCENE — Longtime Snyder civic leader Lyle Deffebach received serious head injuries in a 7:55 a.m. accident here Wednesday. The top of Deffebach's auto was sheared away as it plunged beneath a truck trailer partially blocking the south lane of State Highway 180. The 84-year-old Deffebach was being transferred to St. Mary of the Plains at noon. (SDN Staff Photo)

Car's top sheared in wreck

Medical efforts were underway Wednesday morning to stabilize longtime Snyder community leader Lyle Deffebach, 84, who received serious head injuries when his vehicle plunged beneath a truck trailer partially blocking the south lane of traffic on the Lamesa Highway.

The accident occurred around 7:55 a.m. in front of Snyder Janitorial Supply on State Hwy. 180. The truck trailer Deffebach hit, owned by an Arkansas-based trucking firm, was legally parked in the roadway, investigating officers say, in preparation for unloading supplies at SJS.

Deffebach was headed east on 180, a direction which would have placed the morning sun in his eyes, although officers say they couldn't say if this was a factor in the accident.

Deffebach, who was alone in the vehicle, was unconscious at the scene and police say they had no eye witnesses of the wreck.

The impact of the crash sheared the roof from Deffebach's vehicle, which then traveled another 235 ft. across 180 before coming to rest on the sidewalk in front of Snyder Lumber Company.

He was removed from the wreckage by police and ambulance personnel, then taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital for emergency treatment. He was transferred from Cogdell to St. Mary of the Plains Hospital around 11:30 a.m. by St. Mary's emergency helicopter.

Deffebach was driving a 1982 Pontiac four-door and the trailer he struck is owned by the J.B. Hunt trucking firm of Lowell, Ark.

Christmas in April planning effort set

Efforts to implement an all volunteer housing repair project in Snyder--one designed primarily to aid the elderly or handicapped--will be discussed at an organizational meeting here Thursday afternoon.

Members of the Snyder Rotary have invited all civic clubs and organizations to the meeting, 72 in all. Representatives will be discussing a local project patterned after "Christmas in April," an effort begun in Midland which has since drawn national attention.

Local organizer for the project is Sam Robertson, who has invited the head of the Midland organization to speak at the meeting.

Meeting with the group will be Bobby Trimble, president of the board of directors for Midland's Christmas in April (CIA).

The organizational meeting will be Thursday at 4 p.m. at the Texas Electric Reddy Room.

In Midland and five other Texas cities, the effort is conducted annually employing a volunteer labor force to effect home repairs for the elderly or handicapped each April.

It was begun in 1973 to improve blighted areas of the City of Midland. Since that time, 1,604 homes have been repaired there, sponsors note.

Carriker points to 'best bargain' of colleges like WTC

State Rep. Steve Carriker of Roby said Tuesday that junior colleges are worth strong legislative support because they represent the "best bargain" for the state in the Texas higher educational system.

Speaking to about 50 persons in a noon appreciation luncheon at The Shack restaurant, Carriker said Western Texas College "came out relatively unscathed compared with what could have happened" in the last legislative session.

He had earlier been praised for his advocacy of junior colleges in an introduction by WTC drama department head Jim Rambo, and he came to the luncheon from "Steve Carriker Appreciation Day" activities on the WTC campus.

Carriker said he supports junior colleges because they afford higher education to many people who would not otherwise have the opportunity.

He asked the audience, which included a number of WTC faculty members, to support Proposition 8 on the Tuesday ballot because a decisive turnout for the prison-building amendment would demonstrate community support for the placement of a Texas Department of Corrections unit here.

The third-term Democrat encouraged constituents' input on issues, especially prior to legislative sessions.

It appears that few American women are going for the regurgitated mini skirt that was so popular a few years ago.

A fellow in Tulsa overheard a conversation that may explain the resistence to shorter hemlines.

Two women, both in the their mid 30s, were chatting loudly enough to be overheard. "I've looked at some," one admitted, "but I'm not sold on the thigh-highs."

"Honey," commented her slightly older companion. "You've got to respect the facts of life. When you reach our age, you've got to realize your knees look too much like the face of a camel."

It reminds us of a lawyer a few years ago who advised his female client to wear her shortest skirt to court.

The client protested, "But, they're not in style."

The lawyer advised, "Do you want to be acquitted, or do you want to be in style."

If your allergies are acting up, don't necessarily blame it on the fall foliage.

Doctors says allergies are often subtle and misunderstood, and that patients can react to almost any substance--including the air they breath.

Researchers in London believe they have discovered patients allergic to electronic fields emanating from such common items as audio and video records, computer terminals, electronic watches and even household appliances.

The electrical frequencies to which people have allergic reactions vary. They found even slight frequency changes produced different moods.

Reactions noted include pain, immobility, watering of the eyes, confusion, crying, and in a few cases, euphoria.

That explains the reaction of the guy in Dallas whose wife was obsessed with the ease of electronic shopping and an experiment with the checkless society.

"Her spending money was so easy it brought tears to my eyes."

Ask Us

Q. — Is there a maximum and minimum age to be hired as a Snyder police officer?

A — City officials say prior to July of 1986, the minimum age was 18. Effective in July of that year, this went to 21 for individuals certified as a police officer after that date. The 21 age limit can be waived back to 18 if the applicant has at least two years military service and an honorable discharge, or if they have 60 hours college credit. They say there is no maximum age limit.

More surgery

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Jessica McClure, who survived 58½ hours in an abandoned well, underwent her fifth operation today at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Hospital spokeswoman Sue Ristom said the plastic surgery on the 19-month-old girl will help with a severe scrape on the girl's forehead. Tissue expanders underneath the skin will help cover the wound, Ms. Ristom said.

Three injured

Three persons were injured in a two-car collision at 6:38 a.m. Wednesday less than 1 mile south of the city limits on Brick Plant Rd.

Juan Torres, 39, of Box 165-C was being treated for a leg fracture at mid-morning at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, and Vivian Lee Neal, 23, of 208 E. 17th St. was listed in good condition at the hospital.

Neal's 4-year-old daughter, Paige, had been treated and released.

The Department of Public Safety said Torres was turning off a county road onto Brick Plant Rd. when his 1973 Ford two-door stalled and was in collision with Neal's northbound 1980 Datsun two-door.

Texaco, Pennzoil...

Final showdown said near

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc. will soon ask the U.S. Supreme Court to reverse the multibillion-dollar damage judgment it lost to Pennzoil Co., Texaco's top managers say.

At the same time, the company remains willing to negotiate a settlement with Pennzoil, so long as the target agreement is "sane and sound and reasonable," said James W. Kinnear, Texaco's president, on Tuesday.

Industry analysts, however, said that bad blood between the two sides and wide differences in previous bargaining positions make prospects for a peaceful resolution unlikely.

Kinnear was joined by Texaco Board Chairman Alfred C. DeCrane Jr. in discussing the case with reporters, one day after the Texas Supreme Court said it would not hear Texaco's appeal of lower-court decisions upholding the $10.53 billion judgment Pennzoil won in November 1985.

DeCrane said Texaco would file its appeal with the U.S. Supreme Court within a few weeks.

Kinnear, who called the Texas court's action "a decision that defied logic and law," said it would focus on three main allegations:

—That Pennzoil violated a Securities and Exchange Commission rule barring a company from making separate deals for blocks of shares in a company it is seeking to acquire while holding open a public tender offer at the same time.

—That Texaco did not get a fair trial because Pennzoil's chief had made campaign contributions to the judge who presided over the first part of the case.

—That a second judge who presided over the closing of the case failed to instruct the jury properly under the provisions of New York State and Delaware law, under which the case was tried.

In April, Texaco filed for Chapter 11 reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws. Otherwise, it would have have had to post a $12 billion bond to pursue its appeal under Texas law.

The Texas Supreme Court, without writing an opinion, said Monday that there had been no reversible errors in the case by Texas' 1st Court of Appeals in Houston, which earlier this year had upheld the 1985 jury decision.

Pennzoil spokesman Bob Harper said the decision "is amply supported by the record in the case and by applicable laws."

Whitmire wins 4th term in landslide

HOUSTON (AP) — Voters in the nation's fourth-largest city returned Mayor Kathy Whitmire for a fourth two-year term as she buried six political unknowns in a landslide.

Her capture of more than 73 percent of the vote Tuesday rivalled some of the widest victory margins in Houston's history.

In 1948, Oscar Holcombe took 72.1 percent. In 1936, R.H. Fonville won a primary with 73.1 percent of the ballots and Holcombe took more than 72 percent to win in 1923.

The fourth term also made her the third-longest-serving mayor in Houston history, trailing only Holcombe and Louie Welch, who left in 1974 after 10 years on the job. Welch came out of retirement two years ago only to lose to Mrs. Whitmire by a 3-2 margin in a tough campaign.

This year, however, was much easier as Mrs. Whitmire gathered nearly $800,000 for her campaign while her opponents raised little, if any, money in the non-partisan race.

Unofficial final vote totals showed Mrs. Whitmire, 41, with an overwhelming 165,835 votes, or 73.4 percent.

Businessman Bill Anderson was a distant second at 27,061, or 12 percent, followed by teacher-consultant Richard Dimond with 13,521, 6.0 percent; self-employed manufacturer Glenn Edward Arnett Jr., 6,927, 3.1 percent; refinery operator Mary J. Pritchard, 5,241, 2.3 percent; retired minister Shelby Oringderff, 4,812, 2.1 percent; and printer Don Geil, 2,791, 1.2 percent.

"We have reached out to tell people that our highest priority is to turn the economy around and provide jobs and opportunities," she said. "I think the results, with over 70 percent, show that we have what it takes to move this city forward. With more than 70 percent, it shows we've been able to bring people in this community together."

Dear Abby

Father Not Leading Cheers For Current Campus Morals

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: As the father of a daughter returning to college for her second year, I am upset and angry. I realize college students are considered adults, but are they really ready for this enormous step? I think the larger percentage of students are still children being forced to grow up too fast.

I get angry when I think of how hard my wife and I have to work to earn the $16,000-plus that it costs for tuition. But the cost doesn't anger me as much as the lack of moral supervision these "adults" get at college. When I visited our daughter's campus last fall, I was shocked to discover that the dorms and students' townhouses reminded me of the brothels I have read about.

I don't care how many talks parents have with their children, it's not fair to subject them to this kind of temptation. I wonder how many parents feel as uneasy as I do. Or have our moral standards sunk so low that parents are no longer concerned with the morals of their children? This may be an interesting poll for you to take. Maybe the results would bring about a change on our campuses. Then, instead of passing out condoms, the schools should stop the cohabitation going on at our supposedly respectable campuses!

UPSET PARENT

DEAR UPSET: Most parents are very much concerned about the morals of their children, but when a grown child goes off to college, parents cannot expect the college authorities to assume guardianship of their children's sexual behavior. I think college students bring their moral values to college — they don't find them there. If young adults are inclined to fool around, they will find a way to do it on their lunch hour — living at home.

DEAR ABBY: I was married in June 1985 in a Catholic ceremony. The marriage didn't last long; we split two months later. We were legally divorced and now I am seeking an annulment from the church. Once that goes through, can I truthfully say I was never married?

The courts say the marriage did exist. The church says it didn't, and my analyst says, "Use your judgment and say whatever is appropriate to whomever you're with."

I would like to forget I ever met the bum. Would I be lying if I told everybody I had never been married?

NO LIAR IN KANSAS

DEAR NO LIAR: Yes. You were married briefly, and that's what you should say. The details concerning the annulment and divorce can come later. Divorce is nothing to be ashamed of. It occurs in the best of families. There's only one thing that is worse than making a mistake — and that's perpetuating it.

DEAR ABBY: You advised readers not to cancel their newspapers when they go on vacation because someone at the newspaper may tip off professional burglars as to when they're leaving town and coming back. You suggested that a trusted neighbor be asked to pick up the newspaper.

Well, I happen to be one of those trusted (and practical) neighbors who picks up the newspaper for a vacationing neighbor.

However, just to confuse the burglars when my neighbor leaves town without canceling his paper, I cancel mine and read his!

'Super collider' bonds okayed

AUSTIN (AP) — Voter approval of a $500 million bond sale designed to help lure the "super collider" to Texas proves the state's determination to win the federal research project, Gov. Bill Clements says.

"The message to Washington is unmistakable: Texans are united in our quest for the super collider," Clements said Tuesday night after the proposed constitutional amendment won ratification.

With 87 percent of precincts reporting, Amendment 19 authorizing the sale of $500 million in general-obligation bonds to prepare the site for the super collider if the state gets the atom-smasher was winning with 64 percent of the vote in favor, compared with 36 percent against.

'Titanic' draws one-third

NEW YORK (AP) — Syndicated TV's "Return to the Titanic ... Live," the unveiling a week ago of artifacts from the sunken luxury liner, drew an estimated one-third of the viewing audience from the networks.

"Titanic" received a 22.9 rating and a 33 share, according to A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings released Tuesday.

NBC won the week ending Sunday with an average prime-time rating of 15.8. CBS had a 13.4 and ABC a 12.6. NBC's 38-week win streak was snapped the previous week because of the World Series on ABC.

Sunday was the first day of the November sweeps, one of four periods a year when ratings are measured in local markets to set advertising rates. The networks put on special programming to boost ratings.

CBS opened the competition with the first installment of its two-part miniseries "Echoes in the Darkness," based on the Joseph Wambaugh best-seller about a Pennsylvania murder case. It finished 11th with a rating of 20.1 and a 33 share.

The rating is a percentage of the nation's 88.6 million households with televisions. The share is a percentage of households actually watching television during a time period.

NBC's entire Thursday-night lineup made the top 10 network shows, including "L.A. Law," with its highest rating yet, 21.0.

The top 10 were: "The Cosby Show" NBC, "A Different World" NBC, "Cheers" NBC, "Growing Pains" ABC, "Night Court" NBC, "Who's the Boss?" ABC, "Murder, She Wrote" CBS, "60 Minutes" CBS, "Family Ties" NBC and "L.A. Law" NBC.

"Titanic" would have ranked seventh had the list included syndicated programs.

The 10 lowest-rated shows were: "The Oldest Rookie," "Top Flight" (a CBS special), "Hotel," "Sledge Hammer!" "The Charmings," "West 57th," "My Sister Sam," "The Midnight Hour," "Everything's Relative" and "Leg Work."

The "CBS Evening News" has won all six weeks so far in the new season.

McLaughlin likely to be confirmed as labor secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ann Dore McLaughlin, President Reagan's choice to succeed William Brock as labor secretary, appears headed towards a quick and easy confirmation by the Senate.

Within hours after Reagan formally nominated the former interior undersecretary to the labor post Tuesday, both Senate Democrats and labor leaders said they looked forward to working with her.

"I would be delighted to see her follow in the footsteps of Bill Brock or Frances Perkins," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

Miss Perkins was labor secretary from 1933 to 1945 under President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the first female Cabinet member

Even the 14.2 million-member AFL-CIO, which helped mount a grass-roots campaign that contributed to defeat of Reagan's nomination of Robert H. Bork to the Supreme Court, extended a welcome to Mrs. McLaughlin.

"Depsite her lack of experience in the labor area, we will do everything in our power to help her carry out the purpose for which the Department of Labor was created," said the labor federation's president, Lane Kirkland.

Mrs. McLaughlin herself alluded to Miss Perkins during a brief nomination ceremony Tuesday in the White House Rose Garden.

"Doubtless, there will be comments about my being a woman," she said, recounting what Miss Perkins had replied when asked if being a woman was a disadvantage in public life.

"'Only when I'm climbing trees,'" Mrs. McLaughlin recalled Miss Perkins as saying at the time. "And that was before blue jeans. So I have no reason to feel disadvantaged at all," Mrs. McLaughlin said.

Brock, 56, resigned from Reagan's Cabinet last month after holding the labor post for 2½ years to head the Republican presidential campaign of Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas.

As his successor, Reagan said Mrs. McLaughlin, 45, who previously held high-level public affairs positions in the Treasury Department and the Environmental Protection Agency, would bring "uncommon experience and competence" to her new job.

Mrs. McLaughlin gave up the No. 2 post in the Interior Department, a job she had held for three years, last March following several clashes with Interior Secretary Donald P. Hodel.

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch of Utah, senior Republican on the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, called the choice of Mrs. McLaughlin "an inspired one. Ann has the ability and background to run the department."

Neither Reagan nor Mrs. McLaughlin addressed any issues facing the department, including a large backlog of pending regulations in the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

But if confirmed by the Senate she can be expected to lead the administration's fight against a broad agenda of legislation being pushed in Congress by labor unions.

Among more than a dozen bills moving through Congress are measures to raise the minimum wage, frozen at $3.35 an hour since 1981; to require 60 days advance notice of plant closings and large layoffs; and to require employer-provided health insurance.

With Democrats holding a 54-46 majority in the Senate, lobbyists for business groups said the AFL-CIO could block Mrs. McLaughlin's confirmation if it wanted to.

"It appears that she was the least controversial of the candidates," said Pete Lunney, a lobbyist and labor relations specialist for the National Association of Manufacturers. "My guess is that she will be no less vocal than Mr. Brock was in opposing most of labor's bills."

Mrs. McLaughlin is a native of Chatham, N.J. Her husband, John McLaughlin, is a well-known conservative political commentator and television talk show host. "If she handled John McLaughlin this long, she can handle anything," Reagan quipped.

Management of stuttering

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have been a stutterer ever since I was a child. I don't understand why sometimes the words come easily and sometimes they don't. Should I see a neurologist?

DEAR READER — Stuttering and stammering are social handicaps of unknown cause. Such speech difficulties can be a mild embarrassment for the person who occasionally trips on a word under stress. However, according to a New York Times article last year by Olive Evans, serious stuttering is estimated to affect about 1 percent of the U.S. population. The condition is six times more common in men than in women. About 75 percent of children who stutter will grow out of it.

Stuttering is believed to be due to lack of synchronization of speech. It does not have a psychological basis, although — understandably — stutterers can develop emotional problems, such as lack of confidence and loss of self-esteem.

Various treatments are available for people who stutter. Skip seeing a neurologist and call the Stuttering Hotline (1-800-221-2483) or write the National Center for Stuttering (200 E. 33rd St., New York, NY 10016). Either of these agencies can help you find resources within your own community.

In addition, the Precision Fluency Shaping Program (450 Park Ave., New York, NY 10022) offers a 120-hour therapy program costing $2,500, which breaks down the stutterer's speech patterns and then rebuilds the way the patient uses the muscles of speech. The agency claims that 93 percent of its clients achieve fluent speech.

DEAR DR. GOTT — From the left knee to the hip I have a mass that feels solid, gives me pain and cramping. I also have lower back pain and am developing a similar mass above my left breast. The doctors pooh-pooh it.

DEAR READER — I believe that you are describing muscle spasm and tension. Your symptoms may be due to muscle overuse or inflammation — such as fibromyositis, a condition of unknown cause that produces pain and stiffness. If your doctors cannot diagnose your ailment, request a referral to a muscle and joint specialist, called a rheumatologist.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, CHOOSING A PHYSICIAN. Others who would like a copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Quality control problems cited

DALLAS (AP) — A federal licensing panel says it assumes there was a breakdown in the quality-control program for construction at the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant.

An official of the U.S. Atomic Safety and Licensing Board made the announcement Tuesday as Dallas-based TU Electric, the primary owner of the $7 billion plant, sought a resumption of hearings on the utility's request for an operating license on plant's twin 1,150-megawatt reactors near Glen Rose in Somervell County.

Panel chairman Peter Bloch said his panel's assumption does not mean the board is leaning toward denial of the plant's operating license.

Mother sues district after son ineligible

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - A U.S. district judge will decide a request from the mother of a high school football player to restore her son's recently stricken eligibilty.

Tommie Anderson, the mother of Ezekiel "Zeke" Richardson, 16, filed a lawsuit Monday against state and District 6-5A athletic officials alleging civil rights violations after the youth was ruled ineligible.

In the suit scheduled for a hearing in U.S. District Judge David O. Belew Jr.'s court today, Mrs. Anderson alleges the ruling violates the equal protection and due process clauses of the U.S. Constitution.

The district's 6-5A executive committee composed of eight principals ruled Oct. 27 that Richardson was ineligible because he did not meet University Interscholastic League residency requirements.

The ruling forced the school to forfeit four victories, dropping its district record from 5-0 to 1-4 and costing the team its district championship. The team is now 2-4 in the district and 2-7 overall.

Mrs. Anderson is seeking a temporary restraining order to prevent District 6-5A officials from enforcing the ruling. The suit asks the court to void the ruling and restore the boy's eligibility and the team's victories.

Papers filed in the suit named the executive committee; its chairman, Quince Fulton; and the UIL. The Austin-based league is the state governing body for high school athletics.

Mrs. Anderson said she signed a lease for an apartment outside the Arlington Heights High School attendance zone on behalf of a friend. But she said she and her son live with her mother in the Butler housing project, within the Arlington Heights zone.

The league's residency rule "does not consider the circumstances of some inner-city kids," said Fort Worth attorney Edward L. Kemble, who filed the suit in federal district court.

The suit claimed the ruling penalizes Richardson because he lives, out of financial necessity, with his grandmother and not in the home of his mother. Documents filed in the suit claimed that infringed a constitutionally protected right.

Cowboys gear for Detroit; club enthusiasm is renewed

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Tom Landry got to enjoy his Dallas Cowboys' 33-24 upset NFL victory over the New York Giants in the time it took him to get to sleep after it was over Monday night.

"I had a little trouble getting to sleep because I kept thinking about the game," Landry said Tuesday. "Then I woke up thinking about what a tough time we're going to have in Detroit."

Dallas is 7-3 against the Lions, but Detroit is 2-1 in the Silverdome, including upsets in 1981 and 1985. Last year, Dallas got the crowd out of the game early and whipped the Lions 31-7.

"I don't know why we should be over-confident because we've beaten the Giants twice," Landry said. "That will get you beat real quick. Detroit has always been a hard place for us to play."

The game in the Silverdome has been moved from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday to accommodate West Coast television audiences.

Dallas is 4-3, trailing the NFC East division-leading Washington Redskins, who are 6-1.

Landry said it was hard to leave the Texas Stadium fans now that they've begun a new love affair with the club.

"The crowd was as loud as I've ever heard it in Texas Stadium in the fourth period," Landry said. "Normally, I don't notice a crowd. But that one was loud. It had the Giants jumping offsides because they couldn't hear the signals."

Landry said his team had an old-fashioned pep rally in the locker room after the game.

"It was a good feeling," he said. "They hadn't had a good feeling in a long time. They were excited because you don't usually come back to beat world champions in the fourth quarter."

Club President Tex Schramm agreed.

"It was an amazing thing," he said. "The crowd came to cheer when we thought they would boo."

Landry said, "It surprised me. I think (linebacker) Jeff Rohrer (who had earlier called Dallas fans "stupid") was the only one who caught it. The cheers were a welcome thing."

Roger Ruzek's four field goals in the fourth period tied an NFL record shared by Garo Yepremian of Detroit (1966) and Curt Knight of Washington (1970) for field goals in one period.

It was the most ever in an NFL game in the fourth period. Yepremian and Knight's field goals came in the second quarters of their games.

"Ruzek did just a remarkable job," Landry said. "Everything he hit went right down the middle. He was perfect."

The Cowboys also entered the record books on the negative side.

Dallas' 26 yards' rushing was a club all-time low, and Tony Dorsett gained only 11 yards, his career low for one game.

"Danny White did a great job of passing the ball because we had no running game at all," Landry said. "The Giants have a great run defense and our offensive line had two rookies in it. We couldn't run at all."

Landry said the Giants gave the impression they had the game won after Phil Simms hit Lionel Manuel with two touchdown passes for a 10-point lead.

"They (the Giants) relaxed, you could see 'em kind of back off," Landry said. "Then when we got going they couldn't turn it around again."

Landry said the victory keeps the Cowboys in the hunt for a wildcard spot.

"It's such an unpredictable year that I believe 9-6 might get a playoff spot," Landry said. "We might have a playoff team if our defense keeps moving. And we've got to run the ball."

Dallas will be on the road two straight weeks before returning on Nov. 22 against Miami. The Cowboys are at New England Sunday, Nov. 12, in a scheduled noon kickoff.

Hagy, Norris star for Texas in victory over Red Raiders

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas safety John Hagy on defense and teammate Darron Norris on offense have been selected as the outstanding Southwest Conference football players of the week for their performances in Texas' 41-27 victory over Texas Tech.

Hagy was selected for The Associated Press honor after scoring twice on a pass interception and punt return as the Longhorns held on to first place in the SWC.

Norris, running at tailback and fullback, gained 110 yards on 14 carries to edge Texas' Eric Metcalf, who returned after treatment for a bruised hip to throw a 19-yard touchdown pass and score on a 27-yard run.

Hagy, a 195-pound senior, is the first Longhorn defensive player to score twice in one game, and now holds the school record for touchdowns in a single season by a defensive player with three - two interceptions and the punt return.

Metcalf's injury put Hagy in deep punt-return formation for the first time, and he responded with a weaving 33-yard scoring run in the third quarter.

"I was watching him from the bench, saying, 'Cut, cut.' Everytime I said 'Cut,' he cut," Metcalf said.

Hagy's first score came on a 20-yard run with an intercepted pass in the first quarter.

"Being a defensive player, you try to get the ball in the end zone every time you get a chance to touch it," Hagy said.

Texas Coach David McWilliams said Hagy "was just amazing. He was all over the football field. He played with great intensity and great leadership."

"He made up his mind this year was going to be a top year for him - not just a personal year for him, but a team year for him," McWilliams said. "He's really done a good job of being a leader for us. He doesn't talk about himself as much as he talks about 'us' or 'we' or 'this team.'"

McWilliams said when Metcalf went out with an injury, Norris, a 195-pound junior from Oceanside, Calif., "picked the slack up real well for us."

"It's a good feeling to know that we can go ahead and keep the same offense (with Metcalf out), McWilliams said.

Norris, who has played in 30 consecutive games, has rushed for 461 yards this season, second only to Metcalf.

"He has run really hard and made some big plays for us," McWilliams said.

He also said Norris' blocking has been a key to Metcalf's success - "no question."

Slams 49 home runs...

McGwire AL Rookie of Year

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - Mark McGwire had 49 home runs, one short of a mark reached by only 10 players in major league history, when he decided to go home and miss the Oakland Athletics' final game of the season.

The husky, red-haired first baseman, named American League Rookie of the Year unanimously in a Baseball Writers Association of America vote announced Tuesday, has no regrets.

"I saw my son Matthew born. That was my 50th home run," McGwire said in a telephone interview from his off-season home near Los Angeles.

"He's a big boy now," the 24-year-old McGwire said of his son born one month ago today.

"Everyone had been asking if I thought I could hit 50 homers. After I hit my 49th, I really started thinking about it and I really wanted to hit 50," McGwire admitted.

But, with the Athletics playing in Chicago on the final weekend of the season, McGwire got a call from his father-in-law with news that his wife, Kathy, was going to the hospital. McGwire got a Sunday morning flight to Los Angeles and arrived at the hospital 45 minutes before Matthew's birth.

McGwire's batting production included a .289 average and 118 RBI as well as the 49 home runs which set a major league record for rookies. The old AL rookie record was 37 by Al Rosen, and the major league record of 38 was shared by Wally Berger and Frank Robinson.

The BBWAA's 28 voters, two from each city in the league, made McGwire the second unanimous choice in the 40-year history of the award. Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox swept the honor in 1972.

This year's runner-up, with 20 second-place votes and four thirds, was the Kansas City Royals' Kevin Seitzer, who had 207 hits and drove in 83 runs while batting .323. Matt Nokes of Detroit was third in the voting, Mike Greenwell of Boston fourth.

The selection of McGwire gave Oakland its second consecutive AL Rookie of the Year. Outfielder Jose Canseco won the award in 1986, edging California Angels first baseman Wally Joyner in a very close vote.

McGwire did not play in Oakland's opening game of the season and didn't become an everyday player until April 20. Rob Nelson, another rookie, opened the season as the starting first baseman, but he was sent to the minors on April 20 and was traded to San Diego late in the season.

"I wasn't down about not being in the starting lineup right away, by no means, because I was lucky enough to even make the club. In spring training, I had to earn a spot on the team," McGwire recalled.

"But I've always believed that if you can swing the bat, they'll find a spot for you."

Chadwick hopes quickness will counter youth, height

Quickness may be the key word out of the Western Texas College Dusters camp as Coach Kelly Chadwick's charges prepare for Thursday's season opener.

"I think our biggest asset, right now, is quickness. We're awfully quick," said Chadwick. "Hopefully we can use that quickness to pick up some loose balls and some offensive rebounds. You may see us speed the ballgame up at times. We may press some, just do things that will take advantage of our speed and quickness."

The Dusters tip off the 1987-88 season Thursday at 4 p.m. when they go against Western Oklahoma in the Lady Texan Classic at Levelland's Texan Dome.

The team plays Seward at 4 p.m. on Friday, and will challenge Northern Oklahoma at 6 p.m. Saturday in the three-day classic.

Chadwick hopes the quickness will help the team overcome the type of mistakes that plague a freshman-dominated squad.

"We're going to make mistakes. I knew that when we signed 10 freshmen. We'll just have to live with it awhile. But I think we'll have a lot of girls that will be able to play. I think we'll see a lot more substituting than we did last year, and certainly if a player is not playing hard, she'll be sitting down."

Weaknesses include the obvious - 10 freshmen - and a lack of overall height, and suspect shooting.

"We're not as big as we need to be and I don't think we'll shoot the ball anything like last year's team (which led the nation)," said Chadwick. "We have so many freshmen, though, and that's really our No. 1 weakness.

"I think we'll be able to rebound the ball pretty well unless we go up against a couple of 6-1, 6-2 girls, and I think because of our quickness we could have a real good defensive ballclub."

Point guard Kayla Thompson, a 5-8 sophomore from Hobbs, N.M., is the only returning starter. She is joined by Nancy Bals, a 5-10 guard from Lubbock. The other sophomore is Lisa Houston, a 5-10 post from Michigan City, Ind., who transfered from USC.

Freshmen include Snyder's Stephanie McKnight, a 5-4 guard; Staci Smith of Amarillo, a 5-10 guard; Julie Roewe of Denver City, a 5-8 guard; Sheron Rosemond of Denver City, a 5-9 guard; Carolyn Colbert of Dallas, a 5-9 post; Tabitha Walton of Beaumont, a 5-9 guard; and Jackie Reed of Pampa, a 5-9 post. Others are Nickey Allen of Amarillo, a 5-11 points; Erika Bunce of San Antonio, a 6-2 post; and Cathey Crowder of Ira, a 5-10 post. Crowder has suffered a knee injury and is not expected to play this season.

"We're in real good shape at the point-guard position with Kayla Thompson and Stephanie McKnight, and potentially, with Staci Smith, Julie Roewe and Nancy Bals, we could be outstanding at the wing. Staci and Julie can play any one of the perimeter positions. They are both quick and are good shooters and eventually will be good defensive players," offered the coach.

"Nickey gives up a lot of potential at the post. She is extremely quick and should, in time, be a great defensive player. Jackie Reed is another one who can be strong for us there. Carolyn Colbert and Lisa Houston, 5-9 and 5-10, are really going to have to play tough to compete with the height we'll be matched up against sometimes. And the jury is still out on Erika. She has got to get more aggressive. She has a good shot and at 6-2 if she can become more aggressive, she can be a force," he noted.

The Dusters play in the Odessa Tournament on Nov. 12-14, the Howard Tournament on Nov. 19-21, and play South Plains in O'Donnell on Nov. 23 before hosting the Holiday Festival in Scurry County Coliseum on Nov. 27-28.

Player Profiles

Below are Duster player profiles with comments from Coach Kelly Chadwick

KAYLA THOMPSON, 5-8 sophomore guard, Hobbs, N.M.

"Kayla is one of the very best point guards in the country. She does an extremely good job of running the show. As a sophomore she has been one of our leaders. We expect more points from Kayla this year. She still needs to work on her off-the-ball defense but she is a potential All American."

STACI SMITH, 5-10 freshman guard, Amarillo.

"Staci will play the second-guard or a 3 (big forward) for us. She is extremely quick and fast and an excellent shooter. She has the ability to handle the ball with either hand and she takes the ball to the basket real well. How good she turns out to be is up to her. She has all the tools. Her defense is improving. Right now, she lacks the intensity to get after it for 40 minutes."

STEPHANIE MCKNIGHT, 5-4 freshman guard, Snyder.

"Stephanie is a point guard who is going to give us the dimension of the three-point shot. She's an excellent shooter with exceptional speed. She is handicapped some defensively because of her size but I don't see it offensively. We believe she can step in and help us right away."

JULIE ROEWE, 5-8 freshman guard, Haskell.

"Julie is a good, all-around athlete. She has good speed, good hands and is a good shooter. She needs to improve her lefthand ballhandling and her defense needs work. It is still a learning process for her. She is a 2-guard who will be capable of playing the point or as a 3. She is a strong, physical player."

SHEARON ROSEMOND, 5-9 freshman guard, Denver City.

"Shearon has the ability to make something happen. She has the potential to be a pretty good player, but her ballhandling and shooting need to improve. She is making mistakes, but she is very aggressive. She's probably the best offensive rebounder we've got. If her shooting and defense can improve, and her ballhandling, we feel like she can help us."

CAROLYN COLBERT, 5-9 freshman post, Dallas.

"Carolyn has good jumping ability and goes to the boards hard. We're probably playing her our of position out of necessity. She needs to play the perimeter but we need her in the post. She has the ability to take it to the basket if we can get her to do it. She plays hard and those are my kind of players."

TABITHA WALTON, 5-9 freshman guard, Beaumont.

"Tabitha is another hard player. She's quick and hard-nosed but not exceptionally fast. Her ballhandling is her biggest weakness and her passing and catching are suspect, but she has been improving. She can be a pretty good shooter."

JACKIE REED, 5-9 freshman post, Pampa.

"Jackie is only 5-9, 5-10, and that's a handicap for a post player. But she is exceptionally quick and very physical. When she learns what we want on defense I think she'll be a super defensive player. Her ballhandling is good for a post player."

NANCY BALS, 5-10 sophomore guard, Lubbock.

"Nancy has improved a lot and I think she will be able to make a contribution this season. She'll have to play as hard as she can to compensate for her lack of speed and quickness. Defensively, her rebounding and knowledge of the game have improved. Offensively, she's the best shooter on the team. I've never coached a kid that is more determined than Nancy. She is optimistic all the time. She is a joy to be around and have in the gym."

NICKEY ALLEN, 5-11 freshman post, Amarillo.

"I think Nickey can be an outstanding post player. She is trying to learn the post like I want it played and it is different than she played in high school so it is a transition for her. She is a good ballhandler and that's a big plus. She makes good passes and catches the ball real well. She is extremely strong and quick. I think she will be a good defensive player when she learns to play with intensity."

LISA HOUSTON, 5-10 sophomore post, Michigan City, Ind.

"Lisa is a really good perimeter shooter but her ballhandling, speed and defense won't allow her to play the perimeter right now. She needs to work on her defensive intensity. As she continues to work she will improve and make a big contribution. The fact that she is a sophomore will start to show up, I think, as we go along."

ERIKA BUNCE, 6-2 freshman post, San Antonio

"Erika has the tools but she is not aggressive yet. She can be a great post player but she has to work harder. Her catching of the ball has to improve. We hope that as time goes on, she'll become more aggressive and confident. Right now, it's a big transition for her coming from high school to college. Erika gets up and down the floor well and she can really shoot the ball."

CATHEY CROWDER, 5-10 freshman post, Ira.

Knee injury, expected to be out for the season.

Voters in state decide on 'Build Texas' amendments

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans approved $1.4 billion in new state debt to build prisons and mental health centers and to lure an atom-smasher, but rejected other parts of the "Build Texas" economic development plan.

Voters turned down $525 million of the Build Texas proposals, including $400 million in bonds for local public works and $125 million for promoting private enterprise.

"I think it's a great victory for the people of Texas," said Bexar County Judge Tom Vickers, chairman of the Build Texas Committee that campaigned for the eight constitutional amendments.

"I think we're going to create some jobs out of this. We're going to build needed prison space (and) water projects. Hopefully, this will help us get the super collider (atom smasher)," he said.

The total package, with several proposals initiated by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, was touted by the bi-partisan committee as the key to creating nearly 60,000 new jobs and increasing statewide income by almost $6 billion.

With 81 percent of the precincts reporting, four of the eight amendments had been approved, three were defeated and the outcome of the remaining proposal was too close to call early today.

"We have a mixed decision from the voters," Hobby said: "Yes' on prisons and water bonds, and 'No' on the state-local partnership amendment. 'I am very pleased that Texans clearly understand the need to spread the cost of some of our capital needs over the life of these projects."

Approved, with 81 percent of the vote counted, were:

— Amendment 19, authorizing sale of up to $500 million in general obligation bonds for the federal "super collider" research project. In favor: 992,499 votes, or 64 percent. Against: 554,431 votes, or 36 percent.

— Amendment 8, authorizing up to $500 million in general obligation bonds for prisons, youth corrections and mental health facilities. In favor: 1,030,731 votes, or 66 percent. Against: 527,743 votes, or 34 percent.

— Amendment 23, authorizing up to $400 million in general obligation bonds for water projects. In favor: 1,075,693 votes, or 64 percent. Against: 593,272 votes, or 36 percent.

— Amendment 4, removing the constitutional prohibition against loans of public money to private individuals and corporations. In favor: 800,891 votes, or 52 percent. Against: 748,174 votes, or 48 percent.

Defeated, with 81 percent of the precincts counted, were:

— Amendment 7, authorizing up to $400 million in general obligation bonds for local public works projects. In favor: 624,143 votes, 41 percent. Against: 906,715 votes, 59 percent.

— Amendment 5, to allow public money for turnpikes and toll roads. For: 695,061 votes, or 46 percent. Against: 819,140 votes, or 54 percent.

— Amendment 6 authorizing up to $125 million in general obligation bonds for economic development. For: 728,843 votes, or 47 percent. Against: 823,839 votes, or 53 percent.

Amendment 11, providing a local property tax exemption for property temporarily in the state, was in a close race. For 740,492 votes, or 49 percent. Against: 760,200 votes, or 51 percent.

Gov. Bill Clements applauded passage of the bonds for prisons and the super collider.

"Hooray for the people of Texas," he said in a statement issued by his office. "Texans are willing to pay the price to guarantee that criminals pay the price for their lawlessness."

Clements added, "Passage of the super collider bonds package was my top priority in this election. So, I am delighted at the outcome."

Vickers said the recent stock market crash could have affected the vote.

"Any time you have something like that happen ... it scares people — the whole idea of bonds and borrowing money," Vickers said. "Even in spite of that ... I think they realized that what we're talking about are things that we have to have in the state of Texas."

Attorney General Jim Mattox and State Comptroller Bob Bullock, cautioning that the package could violate the state's pay-as-you-go mandate, noted that financing projects through bonds is more costly because of interest payments.

"Most of the people realize that the economy in the state of Texas is changed from what it was, and we perhaps cannot afford cash for everything like we used to," Vickers said.

State Board of Education to be elected

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas voters, rejecting a campaign that featured state leaders and H. Ross Perot and his money, have decided to go back to electing the State Board of Education instead of letting the governor continue to pick the members.

Vote totals today, with 85 percent of the precincts reporting, showed 905,797 votes, or 53 percent, in favor of returning to an elected board. There were 809,893 votes, or 47 percent, in favor of continuing the appointed board.

"I really think the people are saying, 'Let us get our hands back in this and help make the decisions,'" said Sandy Kibby, legislative action chairman for the Texas PTA, one of several education groups in favor of an elected board.

From 1949 through 1984, voters picked the State Board of Education, one member from each congressional district. House Bill 72, the education reform bill of 1984, scrapped the elected board and replaced it with a 15-member panel picked by the governor, working from nominees forwarded by lawmakers.

But HB72 also said the board would change to a 15-member elected panel in 1989, with members selected at the polls in 1988. Lawmakers this year decided to let voters decide how the board should be selected.

Perot, the Dallas billionaire who shepherded HB72 through the Legislature, led the campaign for continuation of the appointed board. He said a return to an elected board would undo the other reforms in HB72.

But the PTA and every major education organization fought Perot, who enlisted Gov. Bill Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Gib Lewis, San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros and former U.S. Rep. Barbara Jordan for his high-profile campaign.

The first overland mail reached St. Louis from San Francisco in 1858.

Handcuffing the defense

By James Jacoby

Continuing our time-machine travel into the past of American bridge, we look at a deal played in the Great Lakes National Tournament, an event held in January 1937 and sponsored by the United States Bridge Association several months before that organization merged with the American Bridge League to form the present organization. Declarer in four spades doubled was Sonny Moyse, for many years editor of the Bridge World magazine.

When the club queen was led, Sonny had to exercise some care. The no-trump bid and subsequent penalty double by West warned declarer that playing to the spade ace and back would doom the contract to certain failure when West continued with clubs. So Moyse ruffed a diamond to his hand and led up to the spade queen. West won the king and continued with the spade jack. Declarer took the queen in dummy and now played a heart. West won the ace, but was helpless to defeat the contract. If he played another club, Moyse would ruff in dummy, ruff a diamond to his hand to cash the spade ace, and then knock out the remaining high heart. If West played a third spade, declarer would win and force out the heart king while he still held the club king as a control. Later dummy's fifth heart would provide a discard for his losing club.

Voters in Texas approve referendum on wagering

AUSTIN (AP) — Job-hungry Texans voted to legalize pari-mutuel gambling on horse and dog racing for the first time in 50 years, apparently buying the argument that the racetrack would mean an economic boost to the state.

Both winners and losers said the economic issue proved a powerful force in the outcome.

"The jobs issue was insurmountable, no matter how hard we tried to say these would be low-paying, seasonal jobs," said Gary McNeil, spokesman for the anti-gambling campaign. "In times of economic deprivation, it's hard to combat something that seems to offer immediate hope."

With 92 percent of the precincts reporting early today, the statewide referendum was passing, with 1,126,065, or 57 percent, in favor and 849,302, or 43 percent, opposed.

Texas, the largest state that still banned gambling at the track, now joins 40 other states allowing it.

Backers had billed racing as a way to boost employment, pump additional dollars into the economy and raise new tax revenues in a state hard-hit by the oil price slump.

"It's because we are going to build an industry in Texas, the breeding and racing of horses," said Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris, R-Dallas, a longtime sponsor of pari-mutuel legislation.

"The people of the state of Texas were committed to diversifying the Texas economy," added Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, another legislative sponsor. "It means the people were committed to creating new jobs, and they were committed to holding the line on new local and state taxes."

Opponents, including the Texans Who Care campaign, acknowledged that the jobs argument was a powerful one.

"The jobs aspect and the tough economy and a million dollars to put that message across" won it for the pro-racing forces, said Dick Stanford, political director for the Texans Who Care.

"Our same coalition will be keeping a watch on pari-mutuel gambling being implemented in a clean, animal abuse-free way. The other side will also have to meet the prommises they made about economic development."

Horsemen across the state had anxiously awaited the voters' decision.

Bill Breese, track manager at Manor Downs east of Austin, said he was pleased that pari-mutuel gambling won, and said the track would quickly seek state approval to begin racing.

"First off, we'll upgrade our facilities to include new grandstands, a new racing surface and enlarge our stable area," Breese said.

Had the referendum lost, he said, it would have been "catastrophic. I've heard it from several owners that they could not afford to run their horses in a non-pari-mutuel situation because of the cost. A lot of trainers have said they would move to a pari-mutuel state."

Local-option elections, also required before racing can begin, were being held simultaneously Tuesday in 56 counties. Most of those issues were leading.

Approval of the statewide referendum means pari-mutuel wagering will be legal for the first time since 1937. Greyhound racing could be held in three Gulf Coast counties.

Pending the outcome of local-option elections, major horse tracks could be established near Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth and San Antonio. Smaller tracks could be established elsewhere and would have shorter racing seasons. Greyhound tracks would be limited to Cameron, Nueces and Galveston counties, pending local approval.

Racing backers cited a 1986 study that concluded pari-mutuel racing in Texas would amount to a $1.2 billion annual industry, creating more than 10,000 jobs directly and generating $100 million in new taxes over five years.

Since construction of major tracks could cost from $50 million to $100 million, some experts said it could be several years before Texas becomes a major racing circuit.

But racing could begin at existing tracks by late 1988, they said.

Gov. Bill Clements said he voted for pari-mutuel gambling to keep tourism money in Texas, instead of losing money to other states that have betting.

Exiled Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza was killed in 1980 in Asuncion, Paraguay.

Some counties okay wagering

DALLAS (AP) — Voters in almost 50 counties gave themselves a headstart to the betting window by approving a local option that allows wagering at dog or horse races.

Fifty-six counties put the local option on the same ballot as the statewide pari-mutuel referendum Tuesday. Voters in the largest urban counties deciding the issue gave it strong support, while the option failed in a few small, rural counties.

For pari-mutuel betting to be allowed in any county, both local and statewide approval had to be given. With 85 percent of the precincts reporting early today, the statewide referendum was passing with 1,005,368, or 57 percent, in favor and 770,284, 43 percent, opposed.

A state racing commission, to be appointed by Gov. Bill Clements, will have to approve track permits in the counties that opted for betting.

Because pari-mutuel passed at the state level and local voters approved the option, large race tracks may be established near Houston, San Antonio, and Dallas-Fort Worth. Smaller race tracks in counties which approved the option also may have pari-mutuel betting, but will likely have shorter racing seasons.

Cameron County — the only county voting on both greyhound and horse betting — gave the nod to each. Greyhound betting also was approved by voters in two other coastal counties, Galveston and Nueces.

Voters in the largest counties with the horse racing local option on the ballot — Harris, Bexar and Tarrant — gave it overwhelming approval.

With 85 percent of the vote counted, Bexar County, which includes San Antonio, supported horse racing 72,930 votes to 26,284 votes.

In counties that included Houston, Fort Worth and Austin, where 100 percent of the local-option vote was counted, supporters strongly outnumbered opponents.

In Harris County, the vote was 217,119 to 162,249 in favor; in Tarrant County, 97,620 to 76,068; and in Travis County, 71,640 to 32,162.

In five small counties, the local option failed.

"We're largely an older county," said Swisher County Clerk Pat Wesley, explaining the 935 to 639 failure of the option in the Panhandle county. "The only reason the commissioners put it (local option) on the ballot, I think, was so everyone could decide the whole gambling issue at once."

Voters in Lipscomb, Nacogdoches, Shelby and Van Zandt counties also turned away local betting. Results from a handful of counties were too light to determine an outcome early today.

Returns from Parker County, west of Fort Worth, indicated the measure would fail there, too, but a huge favorable vote in the final five precincts turned the total around.

"That surprised me because we had a lot of local churches, a lot of Baptist churches in our county, against gambling," said Parker County Clerk Carrie Reed. "I don't know what five precincts turned it around at the end."

Many counties, including Parker, which decided the local-option question already had horse tracks without legalized gambling.

As a Snyder civic leader, his active involvement in community life dates to 1940. His relationship with the city itself dates to 1909, when, at the time six-years old, he first moved here with his family.

The family left Snyder in 1916, but Deffebach returned with his own wife and children in 1940.

During the past 47 years, he has been involved in practically all areas of community and church work and is still active as a leader in the Methodist Church, the Boy Scouts and Scurry County United Way.

He has operated a private accounting business since returing from the partnership of Deffebach, Yorgesen and Blakey, public accountants, in 1983.

tion of state corrections and mental health-mental retardation buildings.

Proposition 8 also passed statewide.

Wagering on horseracing and greyhound racing did not get the approval in Scurry County that it had over the rest of the state. Some 1,150 voters cast "no" ballots and 832 voted "yes" in the three completed commissioners precincts.

County voters went with the statewide majority on Referendum 1, to decide if the State Board of Education should be elected or appointed, voting by 1,314 to 591 to reject the proposal to continue having the board members appointed.

County election officials were still awaiting returns from precinct 3 at noon Wednesday. The heavy turnout caught election officials by surprise, but Scurry County did not run out of election supplies, although some ballots were transferred from one voting place to another.

When the polls were due to close at 7 p.m. Tuesday, long lines still existed at all four polling places in Scurry County.

The Rules Have Changed -

THEN - When prison supporters first asked for endorsements it was for a private minimum-medium security private prison run by Corrections Corporation of America - paying $475,000 in property taxes - After an intensive community campaign seeking endorsements for this type prison, the Economic Development Committee saw fit not to apply. Why?

NOW - They have applied for two prisons - state owned which will pay no property taxes. One of the units is a maximum security. The public had been assured by members of the EDC Committee they would not accept a maximum security prison -

Questions!

What kind of prisoners are we inviting into our community?

All types. The Diagnostic Center at Huntsville determines the placement of male prisoners. Violent and sex crime offenders are usually sent to maximum units. The behavioral record of a prisoner - not the crime - determines this placement. They can go up and down the ladder from minimum to maximum security according to their behavior in prison.

Juvenile and female prisoners have their own facilities.

Who are the Concerned Citizens of Scurry County?

This is a group of people concerned about what is best for Scurry County - We do not want to throw out the baby with the bath water. We think a prison would do away with the good quality of life that attracts people - particularly young people to Snyder. Many young couples who chose Snyder to raise their children are afraid of the risk of AIDS and added drugs that a prison would bring.

We think this crusade for a prison has been a strange one. If you oppose the prison you are against God and motherhood. Everyone is entitled to be for or against the prison without intimidation or fear of losing his job.

Why run ads?

Many people contribute money, questions, and ideas for the ads because they feel only one side of the story has been publicized. Since a prison will affect everyone we should look at the bad as well as the good - then decide what direction Scurry County should go.

Evidently the people of Johnson County (Cleburne) thought a prison would take them down the wrong road - and according to their spokesman, "Basically we didn't feel it was something we'd like to have here. We felt like it would be a strike against us if we tried to get other businesses to come here."

The residents also feared the possibility of an escape by a prisoner.
