Hot Charges Exchanged By Poles

By RICHARD KASISCHKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Although offering the hand of his exiled Polish government to Russia "for a lasting agreement," Premier Tomasz Arciszewski today demanded from Russia a Polish government "not imposed by force," and insisted that until this is granted "Poland cannot celebrate its day of liberation."

Addressing his Polish homeland by radio, the premier declared that his government's "whole program and all that we claim is the right of our nation to true independence."

He referred to the Lublin government—recognized by Moscow as the provisional government in Poland—as "a gang of little men who deny their reality, who can offer but false names, false slogans and false promises."

Hot Words Exchanged

Arciszewski referred to the Soviet sweep across Poland as "conquest," not liberation, and added: "Today, as the Soviet armies sweep back the Germans to the western borders of our republic, Poland still cannot celebrate its day of liberation."

As Arciszewski spoke from London, Premier Edward Osubka-Morawski of the Lublin government spoke from Warsaw, denouncing the London government for ordering General Bor's tragic patriotic uprising in Warsaw last year.

"The population of Warsaw and the whole Polish nation have crused you (Gen. Bor) for having caused that wretched insurrection," Osbauk-Morawski said. "You engineered it not for love of your country but it was an infamous gamble for retention of power by the party responsible for the catastrophe of September, 1939."

WARSAW BEGINS TO SHOW LIFE AGAIN

MOSCOW, Jan. 19. (AP) — Life was returning today to the desolation that once was Warsaw.

Twice ravaged in this war, Poland's ancient capital was "a desert of wreckage," one Moscow correspondent said, when triumphant Russians and Poles entered the city.

Most of the thousands of civilians who had survived the attack of 1939 and were caught in the final ordeal of Warsaw's liberation had been herded off to Germany.

Yet a few residents survived in the incredible destruction and stood before the ruins of their homes as the Red Army tramped through the rubble choked streets.

Now the red and white flags of Poland once more fly over the wilderness of broken buildings,

Has Wallace The 'Inside Track?'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (AP) — President Roosevelt has offered Henry A. Wallace the post as secretary of commerce but he may request Jesse Jones to remain as head of the government's lending agencies, a well informed Senator said today.

This Senator, who declined to be quoted by name, said the only question remaining to be settled was whether the Reconstruction Finance corporation and kindred agencies should be moved out of the departmen and headed by Jones in a separate setup.

Jones has held the commerce portfolio for four years and friends believe he will stay on as lending chief if the President insists.

Conference Cited

Wallace will give the oath of office to his successor, Harry S. Truman of Missouri, tomorrow noon. He conferred with the President at the White House today. He declined to talk to reporters thereafter.

Earlier Mr. Roosevelt replied to a news conference question about the vice president's future plans with the information that Henry Wallace was not going to starve.

Attaches confidently expect the Wallace nomination to be sent to the Senate Monday, possibly with other cabinet changes.

There were persistent reports that Secretary of Labor Perkins is pressing the president to relieve her of her duties. Several potential successors have been mentioned.

They include, among others, John G. Winant, ambassador to Great Britain, former assistant director of the international labor office at Geneva; Mayor F. H. La Guardia of New York City, and Dan Tobin, head of the International Teamsters union.

Grinning FDR Is Set For Ceremony

By TOM REEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—President Roosevelt closed the ledger tonight on three full terms in the White House and, with a grin and a quip, got ready for his fourth inauguration tomorrow at noon.

While all was hubbeb in the White House for the momentous occasion, the President himself had to be almost disinterested — his desk as usual piled high with war problems.

Two weeks short of 63 years, Mr. Roosevelt served up his famous smile, however, as his attitude toward what may be the toughest four years of all. After all, he said, the first 12 years are the hardest.

The war has turned this next inaugural topsy-turvy. Instead of big parades and ceremonies at the capitol, it will be a quiet affair on the porch of the White House. There will be 5,000 guests, instead of the usual 25,000 or more spectators. All but a handful will stand on the lawn.

Even a good part of Mr. Roosevelt's immediate family will be unable to attend. His four sons are in the armed forces and only Marine Col. James Roosevelt seemed able to get here. He was en route from Burbank, Calif., but said flying weather made it uncertain whether he'd be on hand.

Another wartime effect — the President is sparing only 20 minutes of his crowded day for the whole show. He is striving to keep his inaugural address within 500 words. Lincoln's second term started off with only 600.

Despite the simple and brief formalities, there was heavy work being done on the program only. Workmen rolled up the hard-to-replace White House carpets; carpenters hammered here and there and the domestic staff bustled hither and yon getting set for the 1,500-person buffet that will follow the oath-taking.

Truman Also Ready

Mrs. Roosevelt and their daughter, Anna, had countless supervising chores.

Across town, Senator Harry Truman of Missouri got out his best bib and trucker as No. 2 man in the show. He takes the oath as vice president before the President is sworn in by Chief Justice Harlan Stone.

Truman is Mr. Roosevelt's third vice presidential mate. John Nance Garner served the first two terms; Henry Wallace, the third.

Wallace is out of a job as of noon tomorrow but the President said he didn't think he would starve. The executive declined to clear up now what plans he has for Wallace though the betting is that it will be the post of commerce sec-

Churchill Vote Of Confidence 340-7

By JAMES F. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 19. — Prime Minister Churchill won a 340-to-7 vote of confidence today after Foreign Secretary Eden announced that President Roosevelt and Premier Stalin would be asked to join in creating immediate international machinery for dealing with problems arising in liberated lands.

Eden disclosed that the appeal for creation of machinery with teeth in it to deal quickly with international political problems would be laid before the forthcoming "Big Three" meeting.

He made the disclosure at the close of a two-day war debate with a blunt demand that the House of Commons show whether "we have your support . . . or not." He asserted that he wanted to show the world that the Churchill government was not "tottering."

Minimum Of Protest

Eden's call for a vote of confidence came over the protests of a small faction of Laborites who charged the government with putting them on the spot, as technically the balloting was on a $4,000,000,000 war appropriations bill.

Some members announced flatly beforehand that while they were bitterly opposed to Churchill's policy, they would not vote against the government "to permit Tory hacks to say we voted against war credits."

While the vote for the government was impressive, it was pointed out that government supporters made an all-out effort to muster full strength for the expected test —the tenth the Churchill coalition government has survived.

Former Teacher Of Lubbock Dies Here

Mrs. A. B. Slagle, 47, former teacher in Sanders school, and wife of the night news editor of The Morning Avalanche, died at 6:15 o'clock Friday night at her home, 1615 Eighteenth.

Funeral services have been set tentatively for Sunday afternoon at the Asbury Methodist church, of which Mrs. Slagle was a member.

She died after a lingering illness of more than a year's duration. She had been critically ill several weeks.

MRS. SLAGLE

Survivors are her husband; a daughter, Miss Jo Nelle Slagle, student at Texas Technological college; a son, Alton, student at Junior High; two brothers, J. D. Henly, 1509 Twenty-fifth, and W. C. Henly, Plainview.

Mrs. Slagle had been a resident of Lubbock most of the last 21 years.

In the late 1920's, she taught in Junior High, then housed in the building where now is Central Ward school. Before her marriage she was a faculty member of an elementary school in Amarillo three years.

She was a teacher at Sanders during the 1943-44 term and for the first two or three months of the current term.

Mrs. Slagle was born at Quinlan, Tex., near Greenville. She was the former Miss Nina Henly, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Henly.

Committee Okays Penalties Plan

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (AP) — "Draft dodger" penalties—a maximum of five years imprisonment and fine up to $10,000—were approved by the House Military committee today for men 18 to 45 who wilfully leave essential war jobs.

This or any other version of the manpower control bill however, faces a probable stiff fight on the House floor.

The committee, meeting behind closed doors, substituted the civilian penalties, in the proposed "work-or-be-drafted" act, for the original provisions that men refusing to take or keep war work be inducted into army labor battalions. The same penalties are expected to be set up Monday for men who refuse to take war jobs on draft board orders.

War Casualties Jump

Committeemen said the amendment by Rep. Kilday (D-Tex), regarded by some members as the first test on national service legislation, was approved by a comfortable margin.

However, the committee postponed until Monday a final vote on whether it will report a national service bill to the House for consideration.

Earlier in the day the Army reported to the House committee that war casualties requiring hospitalization jumped 270 per cent in the period including the "bulge" battle, and that drafting of nurses is "imperative to provide adequate care for America's wounded.

Patients Increasing

Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, Army surgeon general, testified before the House Military committee that since last May "our patient requiring nursing care have increased from 260,000 to 450,000," while Army nursing personnel, despite appeals, has grown by only 2,000. President Roosevelt has said 20,000 are needed quickly.

The general put all-out Army backing behind President Roosevelt's call for a nurse draft, made in the executive's "state of the union" message to Congress two weeks ago.

"We are now receiving in Army hospitals in this country from foreign theaters," Gen. Kirk said, "between 30,000 to 32,000 patients each month, as compared to 8,500 patients monthly in the first half of 1944. This represents an increase of 270 per cent. The patient load is being increased in hospitals in double the number of those being released."

It is essential, he declared, that

Lt. Walthall, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Walthall of 2304 Twenty-sixth, spent five and a half months at Guam as pilot of a Corsair fighter. He is home on a 30-day leave.

Seventh Hits At Resurgent Nazi Threat

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Jan. 19 — The U. S. Seventh army struck back today at German forces north of imperiled Strasbourg, where the enemy earlier in the day massed 10,000 troops, broke from the Rhine bridgehead and joined up with other forces farther north on a solid 75-mile front.

Fighterbombers ripped into enemy armor and doughboys drove the Germans back across the Zorn river some nine miles north of the Alsatian capital. Other American blows showered down on the front in a grim attempt to keep the Germans from outflanking all American positions in northeastern France.

Allies Drive Elsewhere

The British Second army and the U. S. First and Third armies held the initiative elsewhere on the flaming 300-mile front as both sides rushed to get stalled offensives into gear in the critical winter months when the Reich faces crushing blows from east and west.

The British slugged ahead two and a half miles in eastern Holland and western Germany, the U. S. First army seized all commanding heights west and north of vital St. Vith in the withered Ardennes salient, and the U. S. Third army was knifing through northern Luxembourg.

Snow, rain and a low overcast limited Allied air support, but more than 500 fighterbombers lashed at the enemy in the Ardennes and the crucial Rhine corridor of northeast France, where pilots reported 20 tanks and motor vehicles were knocked out.

Bridgehead Kept Limited

Failing to break across the Zorn, one of the network of rivers on the northern approaches to Strasbourg, the Germans tried to widen their bridgehead with an attack in two to three-company strength at Rohrwiller, three miles west of the Rhine 14 miles above the capital.

They were stopped by fierce American fire and withdrew, leaving 60 dead in the streets.

The Germans to the north renewed their assault on Hatten with armor and infantry but here, in the old Maginot line eight miles south of the German border, they were beaten back again. They have been pounding this area for 11 days without success.

Farther west they tried two attacks in the Bitche salient of the northern Vosges, but failed to gain an inch.

Allied reverses in the south were offset by successes in the north.

Break Exploited

The British Second army in a two-mile sweep all but cut off the German Panhandle north of Aachen, overran seven or more towns, and was storming the western ramparts of the Reich and closing on the Roer river line some 38 miles west of industrial Duesseldorf on the Rhine.

The U. S. First army, slashing through the wind-driven snow as much as two miles along a 40-mile front, had closed to within four miles of St. Vith—the way out of the now-shattered Ardennes salient—from the west as well as north.

The U. S. Third army, exploiting a break across the Sure river

Enemy Towns Fall Like Plums And Germans Bleat

By W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, Saturday, Jan. 20 — The Red Army, opening two more massive offensives, reached the German Silesian frontier 225 miles from Berlin yesterday in its sensational surge through Poland, captured the bastions of Lodz and Krakow, and clamped a huge pincers on East Prussia in a great new break-through into that ancient Reich province.

The Red army's first contact with the border of the main body of Germany, from which Adolf

LONDON HOLDS BREATH

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP)—The possibility that Russia's astounding advances may crush Germany and end the war in weeks fills military circles in London with suppressed excitement.

No responsible military figure will predict the outcome, but informed persons make no secret of their impression—and delighted hope — that the Red army has used massive strength in diversionary attacks on a scale hitherto undreamed of to catch the Germans off balance in central Poland, and may, at Czestochowa, have pierced the only Nazi line of fortifications on the eastern front.

Hitler's legions invaded Poland to start the second World war Sept. 1, 1939, was announced officially in the midnight Moscow communique.

Unofficial reports said the Russians already had plunged across the frontier and were fighting on the Nazis' beleaguered homeland.

Capture 2,750 Places

It was the First Ukraine army, one of five powerful Soviet armies estimated at 3,000,000 or more men, that reached the frontier of industrially-rich Silesia with the capture of Praszka, 50 miles east of the capital at Breslau. These troops also toppled the six-way road junction of Wielun, 12 miles northeast of Praszka, and also 225 miles southeast of Berlin.

Scoring their greatest gains of the war, the Russians captured 2,750 towns and villages as they ripped through collapsing German lines on a twisting 800-mile front from the Baltic to Budapest.

Early today DNB, the official German news agency, declared: "The present Russian offensive will decide the fate of Germany. It has outreached anything hitherto known."

Halfway In 8 Days

There was no indication whatever that the Germans were able to make a stand anywhere along the vast Polish plains which extend into Germany.

On the eighth day of the gigantic push the Russians already had swept 150 miles west of the Vistula river—more than half-way to Berlin—and the Soviet tide still was rolling and being reinforced hourly.

Soviet bombers were lashing Breslau, and Berlin said it was the greatest air force ever sent

Jap Bestiality Disclosed Again

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19. (AP) —The Navy today disclosed loss of the Liberty ship John A. Johnson and 10 of its men in the Pacific late in November, 1944 by action of a Japanese submarine whose frenzied crew shouted and danced on its deck and poured machinegun bullets at the helpless suvivors.

Five men were wounded seriously by bullets and the submarine rammed one life raft and made repeated attempts to overturn others.

Survivors, telling their stories to interviewers in the presence of naval officers, related how they spent two terrifying hours submerging themselves and hiding behind bits of wreckage to keep away from the rampaging boat and its guns.

They said the Japanese, dacing on the sub's decks, shouted banzais and cursed the "Yankee— —."

B-29 HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Jan. 19.—Scores of Saipan-based Superfortresses today made their first sweep over the Kobe-Osaka industrial area on Honshu island, Japan, leaving big fires rising from the sprawling Kawasaki aircraft factory after the daylight raid.

(While 20th Air force headquarters at Washington said only that a 'sizeable force" of the B-29s attacked the modern factory at Akashi, 10 miles west of Kobe, the Tokyo radio set the figure at 80 planes and admitted "some damage" was done.)

All Supers Return

All the Superforts returned home, having encountered only fairly light aerial and antiaircraft opposition. The crewmen reported every plane in the formation hit the target.

Perhaps the reason for the unusually good preliminary reports for the raid — better than any made immediately following previous Honshu attacks — was due to the fact that the planes came over their target several thousand feet lower than had been the earlier practice, and the bombing was done visually at a comparatively low altitude.

The crewmen had special interest in blasting the factory, since it is believed that the Kawasaki plant turns out engines for the enemy's Tony and Nick fighter planes which have been concentrated against Superforts in previous raids.

Ground Fighting Stubborn

In hitting the Kawasaki plant today the Superfort crewmen had a target 200 miles short of the 1500-mile hop from Saipan to Tokyo.

Induction Order Is Made Clearer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP) — The civilian job of a draft registrant in the 26 through 29 age group doesn't matter if someone else is available to do it.

This was made clear today by Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, who told local draft boards they face their "most difficult and important task" in providing young men for the armed forces without impairing essential war production.

Hershey sent to the local boards the War Manpower commission's list of essential activities, now divided into two sections to indicate the activities regarded as most critical in the war program, and James F. Byrnes' five-point guide for determining the order of induction of men in the 26-29 age group.

"If, however, you find that a replacement is available for a registrant, he should be classified as available for induction regardless of his place in the groups," Hershey wrote.

System Explained

Following up the Byrnes recommendations, Hershey told the boards to follow "to the fullest extent possible" this order in inducting men 26 through 29:

(1) Registrants not employed in an activity appearing on the essential activities list; (2) Registrants whom the local board finds to be employed in relatively unimportant jobs in essential but not critical jobs; (3) Registrants whom the board finds to be employed in relatively unimportant jobs in critical activities; (4) Registrants whom the local board finds to be engaged in relatively more important jobs in essential activities; (5) Registrants whom the local board finds to be engaged in more important jobs in critical jobs in critical activities.

Hershey said the supply of men in the age group 18 through 25 is "practically exhausted." The only major source of men under 30, other than those who become 18 each month, is those now deferred in industry or in agriculture, he continued.

Nazis May Turn On Red Machine

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Caution born of hard experience leads high placed British and American military circles to view the stunning progress of Russian Armies in Poland as due to a sweeping German retreat in the east rather than as a rout.

Shattered and overwhelmed as the German armies on that front appear to be, they may yet possess the power and the skill to stand again in defense of the eastern gateways to Berlin. It has happened before, military leaders point out, in Russia, in Italy, in France and in Hungary. The very pessimism reflected by Nazi propaganda broadcast playing up the force and power of the vast Russian onslaught is viewed with suspicion.

Possible Gravity Cited

An exerpt from the comment by the British official war interpreter in Washington, Brig. Gen. Horace S. Sewell, is very much in point. He noted this Nazi propaganda attitude and added:

Dallas Bonehead Club Denied Permission To Send Mastiff By Plane To President

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Jan. 19.—Thirty men wearing derbys and bibs took over downtown airlines offices here in an attempt to send a huge St. Bernard dog to President Roosevelt by air.

The animal peered somberly from under the brim of an opera hat as members of Dallas' Bonehead club loudly demanded, but didn't get, a class A priority with plenty of passenger space.

Boneheaders, quick to seize on the well publicized flight of Col. Elliott Roosevelt's dog to the west coast as an opportunity for action, first invaded the Braniff airways office.

"Take that dog out of here," a Braniff employe cried. "We don't want to hear any more about dogs on planes."

Traffic halted as the club members wended their way across the street to the American airlines agency. Thirty members pounded on the counters demanding choice reservations for the St. Bernard which by this time was wearing a large "Priority A" tag on his collar. The opera hat was intact, too.

Finally an American airlines representative smilingly promised a reservation — but he didn't say when.

Mollified, the Boneheads went back to their meeting room and voted:

1. To send all 266 dogs in the Dallas pound on an all-American sightseeing trip by air.

2. To change the name of Groundhog day; Feb. 2, to "Ground-Dog" day. On this day, all dogs would be grounded and people would get a chance at plane reservations."

ANOTHER REPERCUSSION DEVELOPMENT REPORTED

GRANITE CITY, Ill., Jan. 19. (AP) — The local carpenters union voted last night to refund to the Red Cross the $98 which Maurice Nix, Navy carpenters mate, said he borrowed when he was unable to travel on a westbound Army plane because a dog belonging to Col. Elliott Roosevelt had a higher priority rating.

Nix is a member of the local union. He borrowed the money from the Dallas Red Cross chapter to continue his trip from there to his station in San Francisco. He had come to Granite City on emergency leave because his wife, Mrs. Ola Vee Nix, and their four children were ill, according to Mrs. Nix.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

(This column of news notes is collected for you to clip and send to someone in service.)

Jan. 19, 1945

DEAR:—

Talk this week has concerned the fate of South Plains Army Air field since a change in the Army Air Forces Training Command's role in the production of glider pilots ends the command's direct participation in the training of glider pilots. Glider pilot training in the future will be given only to officers who have their airplane pilot's wings and are proficient in flying two-engine planes.

According to Lt. Gen. Barton K. Young, these graduates in the future will have dual ratings—airborne pilot and glider pilot-being able to fly troop-carrying gliders on invasion thrusts or pilot transport planes with gliders in tow and carry supplies to airborne troops.

An official statement has not been issued on the fate of SPAAF but the Morning Avalanche has it upon good authority the field will go on a "standby" basis on Feb. 15. "Inactivating" of SPAAF likely will result in Lubbock Army Air field's continued maintenance and operation for a longer period of time than might otherwise have been the case. Employes of SPAAF will largely be absorbed by LAAF as soon as they are released from duty at the glider school. Capt. Richard Purrington, civilian personal officer at LAAF, estimates that between 300 and 500 employes can be fitted into aircraft maintenance and supply jobs.

Full complement of the Army air forces band at the north base moved across town to the west base.

Sgt. Lawrence P. Ingley of near Lubbock, at home after two and a half years in a Jap prison camp, recently received the Purple Heart in a quiet ceremony in the office of Col. Howell M. Estes, jr., at LAAF. Ingley is a modest young man who has expressed the wish for quiet and to be permitted to forget about those years in the Philippines. He was on the ship loaded with prisoners which was sunk by an American submarine while en route from Mindanao to some northern Jap base. With 83 other survivors he managed to swim to shore where he lived with Philippino guerrillas until the U. S. Navy sent in a rescue boat.

A directive from National Selective Service headquarters has instructed the two Lubbock county draft boards to carefully review classifications of all men from 18 to 37 except those classes 2-B (direct war production).

Lubbock Boys club now has 500 members, according to John W. Wilson, club manager. Approximately $25,00 has been invested in the club building at 2323 Ave. K, and equipment for it by the American Business club, sponsoring organization. Other Lubbock service clubs have contributed an aggregate of $7,200 to the project.

In a judicial redistricting bill proposed in the Texas House of Representatives, plans to abolish the 99th district court were set out. If effected, the abolition would leave Lubbock county to be served by only one district court, the 72nd which serves four counties—Lubbock, Crosby, Hockley and Cochran.

The Lubbock County Bar association is preparing an exhaustive report showing the volume of business done by the court and setting out the need for both the 99th and 72nd courts.

Lt. (j.g) Ernest Winter is safe the War department informed his wife, Mrs. Genevieve Decker Winter of Childress. He had been reported missing in action in the Philippines. He is pilot of a Navy dive bomber and fighter plane.

Lt. Col. William Harold Reddell is missing in action since a recent a recent bombing mission over Czechoslovakia, his wife, Mrs. Harriett Jarrett Reddell, has been informed. Mrs. Reddell has been making her home in Banning, Calif., with her mother, Mrs. D. Jarrett.

W/O Robert Rodgers, jr., who has completed 10 months of service in the European theater, is home on leave. He is to report to San Antonio for reassignment.

From the Marianas Islands comes a letter from Sgt. Mel R. Alred who expresses his thanks for these news columns which his mother, Mrs. J. A. Alred, send. As he says, "Of course anything which pertains to Lubbock or the state is interesting, as my home has been in Lubbock so many years."

Thanks to you, Sgt. Alred.

Goodbye until next week.

Fighters Prowling Much Farther In Search Of Japs

SOMEWHERE IN THE MARIANAS, Jan. 13. (Delayed). (AP)—The long tentacle of Japan that reaches down through the Bonin islands into the Marianas is quivering to the sting of heightened fighter attacks.

Seventh airforce P-38s and P-47s from this base strike daily, with bombs and machineguns, at the long exposed ends of the enemy's empire, such as Rota and Pagan, in the Marianas. At night deadly Black Widows—the twin-boom P-61s—prowl the skies.

With increasing frequency, Lightnings are venturing still farther north, to Iwo Jima in the Volcano islands, a round trip of more than 1,400 miles. At Iwo they bomb and strafe installations and attack air-borne fighters. The Iwo run is one of the longest fighter missions in the world. It is considerably longer than the old London-to-Berlin route.

In a Lightning raid upon Iwo Jan. 5, Second Lt. Gerald J. Heagney, Chicago, shot a Zero down Second Lt. Horace D. Bennett, Crawford, Tex., probably destroyed another.

Infrequent Japanese attempts to scout or raid the southern Marianas are proving more and more costly for the enemy.

A Japanese Myrt reconnaissance plane, believed to have carried a crew of three, appeared over Tinian at noon Jan 2. Second Lt. Michael Danylo, Koppel, Pa., and Second Lt. Jesse F. Gibson, Longview, Tex., attacked the visitor with their Thunderbolts at 26,500 feet, expended 450 rounds of .50 calibre machinegun ammunition, and shot the plane into the sea.

It was the third Japanese plane shot down that day. Black Widows knocked off the others before dawn.

Fire Department To Help Start Fires

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 19. (AP)—Forty-four members of the Richmond Fire department volunteered today to help start fires.

The firemen, responding to Mayor Herbert's plea for volunteers to help deliver coal to Richmond homes and business houses, agreed to haul coal on their days off. A survey indicated 50 per cent of the coal trucks in the city were not being used because of the manpower shortage.

Blinded Marines Taken On Tour

By MELVIN C. KRAMPF
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. — Six young Marines, blinded forever by enemy fire, took their first halting steps on the long road to rehabilitation today, touring New York under the watchful eyes of the New York Institute for the Blind.

The tour took them to shops and offices where institute officers demonstrated that they can find useful places in society without eyesight.

To Work In Bakery

Pvt. Joseph Thomas (Scottie) Scottino, 20-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Scottino of Dallas, Tex., who used to help his father in a bakery before a Japanese grenade exploded in his face on Tinian island, displayed interest in a modern bakery. Scottie plans to return to his pans and ovens after he has learned how to move surely in the wrold of darkness.

Others on the tour include: Pfc. Robert Redlich, 18, Mountain View, Mo.

The six arrived yesterday from the naval hospital at Philadelphia and will be given a short "indoctrination" course at the institute. They will be trained in Braille and will be placed in contact with employers who may hire them after they have completed training. They will acquire seeing eye dogs at Morristown, N. J.

Officials at the institute said that the six were cheerful and hopeful.

Work with sightless veterans of this war began last summer when a group of Army privates was sent here. When the Army established its own convalsecent hospital at the Old Farms Boys school at Avon, Conn., the institute shifted to training Navy blinded.

Spies Operated Near Galveston, Note Says

HOUSTON, Jan. 19. (AP)—The possibility that an American Army lieutenant and a sergeant were held captive at a secret German spy base on an island in Galveston bay in 1942 was being investigated today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The investigation was launched after discovery near La Porte Thursday of a bottle containing a note dated Feb. 17, 1942, which was signed by a Lieut. James Monroe and Sgt. Nolan C. Coleman of the U. S. Army.

The note said:

"Being held prisoner on an island in Galveston bay by German agents. Send help. Do not know exact location. Finder of this message please give it to the Coast Guard immediately."

The note, found by an unidentified young boy, was turned over to La Porte authorities, who notified the Houston FBI.

Don Brown, Houston FBI chief, said a check was being made to determine whether two such men were in the Army and to learn their whereabouts.

Fighting Craft On Luzon Island Base

LINGAYEN AIRSTRIP, Jan. 19. (AP)—The first land-based American fighter planes grated down on the new metal mat of this first U. S. air base on Luzon after an engineering triumph had prepared the strip in exactly one week after the Lingayen gulf landings.

Capt. George Weart of Chicago led the first flight of Lightning fighters into the field as Americans and Filipinos cheered and then resumed laying mats to extend the strip and enable larger type planes to land.

Soon after the Lightnings landed the Southwest Pacific's great system of air transport went into action and workhorse C-47's, which can use any airstrip that will accommodate a fighter, began pouring in from Leyte, Mindoro, and other bases with ground personnel and maintenance equipment.

The story of the C-47s often has been told but when you see them coming into a newly won airfield there seems to be much justification for the boast of their crews that "the Flying Freight Cars are winning the war."

Lt. Edward A. Merritt of Arkansas City, Kan., who piloted one of the first transports to land, regarded it as a merely rountine job.

"We'll do this every day now," he said.

The land-based fighters will take over the job of supplying tactical support to ground forces, providing cover for the beachhead and neutralizing enemy airfields on Luzon. They also can escort heavy bombers on strikes at airdromes and other targets.

Japs' Names Would Be Replaced On Roll

CHICAGO, Jan. 19. (AP) — Edward N. Scheiberling, national commander of the American Legion, today recommended immediate restoration of 15 names of servicemen of Japanese ancestry, removed last Nov. 29 from the Hood River, Ore., Legion honor roll.

In a telegram to J. B. Edington, commander of the Hood River post No. 22 of the Legion, Schiberling asked that all the removed names be destroyed except that of one individual who was dishonorably discharged from the Army.

In a statement accompanying his announcement of the telegram, Schieberling said: "The American Legion has always maintained that bigotry and race hatred have no place in American life, and the action of this one individual post, of more than 12,245 posts of the American Legion, was ill-considered and ill-advised, and contrary to the ideals and purposes for which the American Legion is organized."

Texas Man Sentenced For Swindle Attempt

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 19 (U.P.)—Michael Schliesing, 42, Mesquite, Tex., today began serving a year and a day sentence in the federal correctional institution at Sandstone, Minn., after pleading guilty yesterday to charges of attempted swindle.

Schliesing and George Kennedy, 59, Miami, Fla., attempted to bulk Alfred Anderson, Geraldine, Mont., rancher, of $7,000 in a racing pool last November at Rochester, Minn. The rancher became suspicious, notified the FBI, and the men were arrested.

More Texas Cattle Estimated By USDA

AUSTIN, Jan. 19. (AP)—A. U. S. Department of Agriculture report for the nation showed today that the estimate of Texas cattle on feed for market last Jan. 1 was 150,000 head compared to 130,000 head on the same date in 1944, an increase of 20,000.

The same report showed 175,000 head of sheep and lambs on feed compared to 140,000 in 1944.

The national figures gave 4,173,000 cattle on feed compared to 3,967,000 and 6,630,000 head of sheep and lambs compared to 6,536,000 in 1944.

Russians Drive Toward Berlin

aloft by the Russians. The planes, in coordination with artillery, were laying down a carpet of fire on German soil ahead of the tank-tipped Soviet spearheads.

Entire German divisions were being cut off and killed on the snow plains and in the mountains of central and southern Poland and the forests of East Prussia in the north. Budapest, ruined Hungarian capital, also was on the verge of complete liberation.

Swamped by the Soviet avalanche the Germans were fleeing from Poland back into Germany in an effort to escape disaster; fighting raged along the southeastern Silesian frontier, on the southern East Prussian border and 31 miles inside eastern East Prussia as the Russian steamroller advanced up to 30 miles.

The Germans were throwing in their home army of striplings, the elderly and the physically deficient in an effort to hold the Russians at the Silesian border, and Berlin spokesmen officially termed the situation "serious."

The Soviet-sponsored German National committee in Moscow again called on the Germans to "revolt against Hitler," saying: "The German defense system in the east has crumbled—never yet has the Germany army been in such a catastrophic situation."

Five Orders Of The Day

Premier-Marshal Stalin announced these victories in five orders of the day, giving all Russia its greatest single day of triumph:

1. The capture of Krakow, ancient Polish capital and southern anchor of the shattered Warsaw-Krakow line 43 miles from the German frontier:

2. The toppling of Lodz, Poland's "Pittsburgh" and second city 70 miles southwest of fallen Warsaw. Also the capture of Leczyca, 20 miles to the northwest and 238 miles from Berlin, and Kutno, on the Warsaw-Berlin highroad 58 miles west of Warsaw and 240 miles from the German capital.

3. A new invasion of northern and northeastern East Prussia which began Jan. 15 and swept ahead 28 miles on a 37-mile front, capturing Raonit on the south bank of the Memel river five miles southeast of the big rail center of Tilsit, and also Kraupischken, 31 miles inside East Prussia from the Lithuanian frontier and only 53 miles east of Konigsberg, the capital. Six hundred localities were captured.

4. The fall of Dzialdowo, on the Warsaw-Danzig railway only three miles from the southern East Prussian frontier, 77 miles from the Baltic, and 99 miles south of Konigsberg. In this drive the Russians were forging swiftly ahead in an effort to cut off all of East Prussia.

5. A new offensive west of Tarnow in the Carpathian mountain region east and southeast of fallen Krakow. This fresh drive, begun Jan. 15, broke through German lines to a depth of 50 miles on a 37-mile front. Four hundred localities were captured.

Planes Roam Skies

Stormovik fighters "are hanging over German columns" fleeing westward, strafing them and inflicting enormous casualties, Moscow dispatches said. "We have begun mass air operations" said Front Correspondent Maj. Stepan Romanov.

In the last 72 hours the Russians have flown 30,000 sorties, bombing and strafing not only troops but long trains of equipment which the Germans had hoped to pull out of Poland.

Saber-wieldnig Cossack horsemen were also slashing to ribbons many German units trapped on the plains and in the forests. German commanders were captured who had lost all touch with their disorganized troops, dispatches said.

"This Way To Berlin"

Russian infantrymen stuck up crudely-painted signs reading "This way to Berlin—the road to Hitler's nest," and "This way to the lair of the Fascist beast."

Moscow dispatches said that the next five days should tell whose armies are going to reach Berlin first, the Allies in the west or the Russians in the east.

A Berlin reporter, terming the offensive "unparalleled in the history of modern war," said historians later would say that "other nations stabbed Germany in the back" while the Nazis "fought the entire battle almost unaided."

Vote Of Confidence

forthcoming "Big Three" parley, Eden frankly admitted that Britain "was not fully satisfied with the existing machinery for international cooperation on the political plane."

"I can tell this house," he said, "that the issue of the machinery of our collaboration will certainly be among those which will have to be examined at the meeting which rumor has it is to be held sometime or other somewhere or other."

He said Britain had been "troubled" about this issue for some time and warned "the advance of the victorious armies is going to present us with many more such problems."

Eden spoke calmly and deliberately as he set down the government case in the whole foreign field and especailly in Greece, but he lost his temper near the end, banged the table in front of him and snapped back at hecklers.

He said that British actions in Greece were the only things that "prevented a massacre in Athens," although he admitted frankly that at time it had been "unpopular and difficult as it was hard to explain to our American friends at the time."

The peacock, inhabitant of Ceylon, Burma, Malaya and Java, was imported into Greece by Alexander the Great.

Strasbourg Threat

of Northern Luxembourg along an eight-mile front, seized Diekirch, 17 miles northeast of the Duchy's capital, nearby Bettendorf, and was making menacing gestures on the right flank at the Duchy's border only eight miles west of the Siegfried fortress of Trier.

New Offensive Rumored

(Berlin radio said the Third army had opened an offensive on a 20-mile front in this sector and heavy fighting was raging.)

Even on the long-slumbering Holland front, the Canadian First army was attacking after a battalion of Germans wedged into its lines at Zetten in the water-soaked wastes northeast of Nijmegen.

Despite the new blows by the enemy in northeastern France, operations division of supreme headquarters declared the German attacks had "not seriously affected our own plans and preparations for future operations."

It issued a long statement branding the German Ardennes offensive a resounding failure that cost the enemy 120,000 men, 600 tanks and self-propelled guns, and one-half the air force with which he struck. Allied losses were placed at 55,421 killed, wounded and captured.

Rhine Hold Stronger

The German bridgehead nine miles north of Strasbourg, capital of Alsace, became a full-blown menace overnight as the Germans smashed three to four miles through the lines which the U. S. Seventh army had been holding north of the bridgehead.

This broke the Allied hold on the Rhine for 27 miles north of Strasbourg to the German frontier, and gave the enemy one solid line stretching all the way west to Sarreguemines.

The Germans already had brought up their lines along the Rhine to within 10 miles south of Strasbourg. The capital found itself almost in the middle of a 22-mile stretch of Allied-held positions on the west bank.

Thus the Germans, who held only 55 miles of the Rhine's 114 miles from the Reich south to Switzerland at the beginning of the offensive now held 84 miles. French control the Rhine for eight miles from the Swiss border north.

Nazis Exploit Advantage

The Germans were hurrying forces across the Rhine north of Strasbourg by pontoon bridge and ferry apparently bent on trying a new offensive now that the Ardennes effort had been blasted.

A big tank battle was breaking. American armor battered into Sessenheim, 18 miles northeast of Strasbourg, only to be driven out by German tanks.

Thunderbolts flashed out of the skies and attacked enemy lines, where as many as 10,000 troops and a number of tanks were believed massed.

The enemy seized Stattmaten, Dengolsheim and Dalhunden in its drive that joined up with other German forces which for 10 days have been hammering without success against American Maginot line positions at Hatten, eight miles south of the Reich's border.

The line along the Rhine was a thin one east of the Maginot line, broadening out to as much as four miles in the old bridgehead area.

Snow Slows Progress

Fresh, wind-whipped snow fell along many sectors of the battle-front preceded by a rain in some places. Underfooting was uncertain and fog grounded all tactical air forces.

With the Stittard-Roermond highway in the Holland appendix slashed, the British developed their outflanking threat to Roermond—stronghold on the Maas river.

They seized Schilberg, beat off a counterattack, and then occupied Hingen, just to the north some six and a half miles southwest of Roermond.

The Germans were retreating toward the Roer, six miles to the northeast, under steadily mounting pressure. Significantly, they had yet been unable to bring up tanks—their mobile reserves were all believed committed in the Ardennes—and they were resisting with self-propelled artillery.

To the southwest, Lt. Gen. Miles C. Dempsey's Tommies overran four or more German villages in a two-mile drive that cut almost all the way across the German Panhandle. Among the towns taken was Hongen, less than a mile from the German-Dutch border.

First Makes Gains

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army defied the weather and made some of the most promising gains since it clogged its gears in snowdrifts and dug-in enemy defenses.

The First division in advances of a mile and a half fought into Schoppen, eight miles northeast of St. Vith and seven miles from the German border.

Other forces closed down to within five and a half miles northeast of St. Vith and edged into Ebertange.

The 30th infantry division rooted the last German snipers from the Recht, five miles northwest of St. Vith, but its advanced elements moving down the main highday still were reported four miles from the communications center.

The 75th division, moving due east on St. Vith, fought deep into the densely-wooded Grand Bois where it was some four miles from the city after advances of more than two miles.

Patton Tightens Squeeze

The 83rd division found Bovigny, 10 miles southwest of St. Vith, abandoned, but the Third Armored division still was striking resistance as it neared Sterpigny, 13 miles southwest of St. Vith on the highway to fallen Houffalize.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army was tightening the squeeze from the south.

Diekirch fell after the Fifth Infantry division drove back three counterattacks. Six miles east, the Fourth division seized high ground at the junction of the Sure and Our rivers, from where it could look east into Germany and the Siegfried line.

Two miles west of Diekirch on the left flank of the Sure river crossings, the Fifth division swung on three quarters of a mile into the hills beyond captured Erpeldange.

the center made further progress, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported.

On the central sector the American advanced six miles below Camiling to Santa Ignacia, about 60 airline miles northwest of Manila. The town of Cabaruan was captured, giving the doughboys control of the Cabaruan hills, and other units moved southward toward Villasis aiming to seize control of the main Agno river crossing. A small Japanese tank unit was destroyed near Binalonan.

Air Power Tremendous

Japanese communication and supply roads on Luzon remained at the mercy of American planes, which also extended their blows northward to Formosa where the Okayama airdrome was bombed Wednesday night, for the fourth consecutive night pounding.

American sources said every one of a sizeable force of B-29s put their bombs into the Kawasaki factory in the city of Akashi, 10 miles west of Kobe. Air and anti-aircraft opposition was light, and all the raiders returned to their base.

Tokyo raido said 80 Superforts made the raid, and acknowledged some damage in the attack which was the first in the Kobe area, heavily populated center on Honshu island.

Japanese island bases in the Volcano and Bonin islands along the B-29 air trail from Saipan to Japan also were pounded again by Army Liberators and rocket-armed Marine Mitchells, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported.

Neutralizing Raids Continue

The Liberators hit Iwo Jima in the Volcanos Wednesday (U. S. time) in another of the almost daily neutralizing raids on the island since Dec. 7.

The Marine Mitchells showered their rockets on small Japanese convoys north of the Bonins, which lie north of the Volcanos and only 550 miles below Tokyo. Two enemy cargo vessels were hit. Liberators also raided Chichi Jima and Haha Jima in the Bonins, starting fires.

Nimitz said that Adm. William F. Halsey's Third fleet carrier force lost 22 planes in smashes along the China coast from Hongkong and Canton to Swatow and Amoy, last Saturday, Sunday and Monday. This price was paid in return for 104,000 tons of Japanese shipping sunk or damaged, and heavy damage to enemy docks and oil deposits.

In the South China land war theater, Chinese forces in western Yunnan province captured several villages and were only a mile and a half from wanting, Japanese-held Burma road strongpoint, the Chinese high command reported. The land forces received continuous bombing and strafing support from planes of the U. S. 14th air force.

cesses) and in the face of this it is wise to refrain from committing the Soviet armies to too much."

Despite this brunt-child reaction in Allied military quarters as the Red army attack plows on, the situation for the foe could become graver within a matter of weeks, forcasting the end of organized opposition in Germany within a few months.

No Allied political or military leader has yet elected to put that into words but that undercurrent is detectable even in formal warnings against over optimism such as General Sewell's.

There's Another Possibility

It seems incredible that the Germans could have effected the withdrawal of their major forces in Poland leaving only rear guards to meet the Russian attack thunderbolt without the Russians knowing. Russian reports of utter Nazi confusion in some sectors discount the notion that a wholly orderly retirement to the borders of the Reich has been or is being carried out.

Even if that was the Nazi purpose — and unquestionably the main Russian assault must have been expected by the Germans in Poland—by every present sign the attack struck with a power, force and speed and possibly in a direction the Nazi command in the east had not anticipated or prepared for. It has moved too fast to believe that the Germans have managed the bridge and road destruction and mining operations essential to read guard stands to cover withdrawal of main forces.

ELECTORAL COLLEGE TOASTS PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (AP)—The college without a faculty, a student body or even textbook met tonight to toast President Roosevelt on the eve of his fourth inaugural.

It was the electoral college, convening over the dining table for the 40th time in 160 years.

Fifteen hundred guests jammed the Mayflower hotel for the quadrenniel party, including some 350 of the 531 electors—Democrats and Republicans—Vice President Elect Harry Truman, supreme court justices, cabinet officers and such entertainers as Bob Hope, baritone Lansing Hatfield and soprano Marjorie Lawrence.

shattered telephone poles, snarled electric and telephone wires and uprooted streetcar lines.

"Warsaw met us with terrible silence," said one Russian correspondent.

And yet so tough is the human race, so well does it survive the greatest catastrophes, that one writer was able to say today that "the streets are becoming unusually animated."

Tractors roared through the streets, clearing the debris. The sound of beating hammers echoed as the great task of rebuilding was begun.

Now and again the roar of German mines blowing up drowned out conversation in Warsaw's streets and squares.

The frozen Vistula was bridged again.

WORTH REPEATING

DALLAS, Jan. 19. (AP) — Women witnesses, says Corporation Court Prosecutor Robert A. McBean, are usually too talkative. But today a woman who saw a collision between two cars was asked to tell what she saw and answered with four words: 'They just ran together," she said.

Manpower Control

the number of Army nurses be increased immediately from 42,000 to 60,000. He said those drafted would be commissioned second lieutenants.

The Military committee temporarily sidetracked general manpower legislation to discuss nurses, but the work-or-be-drafted issue was kept warm by a high government official's statement that the armed forces have lent 16,000 combat qualified men, the equivalent of more than a division, to meet labor shortages in critical war production.

The official, who could not be quoted by name, said the Army and Navy want their men back, while at the same time estimating a need of 300,000 new munitions workers.

He said production conditions now are akin to those of 1942 at the height of the pressure for munitions.

Shirley's "First" Kiss Is Questioned

HOLLWOOD, Jan. 19. (AP) — Shirley Temple got kissed grown-up fashion, smack on the mouth, for the first time in her long movie career today, but perhaps she went into the scene backed by a little previous necking experience.

It was just a screen kiss but Shirley, being a young lady of nearly 17, gave every evidence of knowing what it was all about. She was asked if she had practiced a bit.

"Of course not." She didn't sound very convincing.

"Do you mean to say you never have done any necking?"

"Oh, perhaps a kiss or two at a New Year's party, or something like that."

"I can rely on the honesty of that?" a reporter asked.

"Well," she paused and added a doubtful, "maybe."

Amarillo Sandies Beat Westerners

AMARILLO, Jan. 19. (Special)—Amarillo's towering Sandies made it two in a row over the Lubbock Westerners here tonight, romping to a 31 to 20 victory over the defending champions of District 1-AA.

The Sandies took an early lead in the ball game, and held it all the way, never being pressed by the South Plains lads after early in the ball game.

Waghorn Is Star

Jack Waghorn of the Sandies was the standout performer of the night, and the only Sandie player able to find the range on the basket for more than one field goal. Waghorn swished five through the basket from the playing floor, and added three more from the foul line for 13 points, and scoring honors of the night.

The Sandies won the opening game of the series by the free throw route, and put the same point getting system to a good use tonight, converting on nine out of ten from the foul line.

The game was not as rough as the opener, and far less fouls were called as the two teams displayed a smoother working offense. But both clubs lost key men early in second period when Leroy Foster of Amarillo and R. W. Moyers of Lubbock were banished from the game after having a "run-in" on the court.

The early loss of Moyers, and the loss to the team of T. J. Price, regular forward, greatly hurt the Westerners, and made them a decided underdog.

All the Westerner points were made by three men on the club, with George Brewer nosing out for scoring honors with the visitors by dropping four field goals through the hoop for eight points.

Running a close second was Gerald Davis, who tipped in seven points.

The Sandies built up an 8-4 advantage by the end of the first period, and again had the Westerners doubled at the half with an 18-9 margin. The smooth working Sandies stretched this lead to 26-15 at the end of the third period, and coasted in with the victory from there by playing the Westerners on even terms in the final quarter.

The Sandies made it a clean sweep for the night, winning the B game curtain raiser by a comfortable margin.

Thrillers Open Levelland Meet

LEVELLAND, Jan. 19 (Special) Brownfield, Levelland and Section C of Lubbock Army Air field moved into the semi-finals of the Levelland invitation basketball tournament here tonight with first round wins in the meet.

Brownfield's Cubs staged a garrison finish to nose out the Morton five, 22 to 19, in the opening game. In another thrill packed battle, the Levelland Lobos eked out a 27-25 victory over Section A of Lubbock Army Air field, and Section C had little trouble in disposing of the Littlefield B team, 35-9.

Wheatley Scores First

Wheatley of Brownfield broke into the lineup at the soda fountain, and won a malted milk by making the first score of the opening game, and the Cubs went on to pile up a 12-5 lead at the half in a nip and tuck battle.

Morton rallied in the last half, and paced by Hammonds, who copped scoring honors for the game with 13 points, the Morton club roared into a lead, but the Cubs nosed past the Morton lads again late in the ballgame, and held on for the victory.

Kempson and Franks tied for honors with Brownfield, each with six points.

Second Thriller

The second game was another thriller, with the first half largely a defensive ball game. Jess Clairdy of the Lobos pulled in both malted milk prizes for this game, getting the first score, and also topped the scoring for the game with 14 points. Miller paced the soldiers with nine.

The soldiers held a 7-6 lead at the half, and completed the half with one of their stars missing from the game after Bob Brewer had gone out of the game with an army injury when he ran into the wall of the gym.

In the second half, Levelland pulled into the lead, and managed to hold it, although the soldiers made it a real battle all the way. The schoolboys held a six point lead, briefly, at one time in the last half.

While the Littlefield Wildcats had their varsity club in a tournament at Amherst, and the reserves fought gamely against the more experienced soldiers, but were never able to make a showing.

Harris scored first for the soldiers, and paced the team with 12 points as the Second C club rolled to a 21-0 lead at the half. Gage paced the Littlefield five with six points.

Play will be resumed Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock with the remaining first round game, scheduled to pair off Sudan and the Levelland B club. Morton moves into the consolation finals by default from Section A, which will not be able to return Saturday because of duties at the field.

Brownfield and Levelland A team play for the right to move into the championship finals, while Section C will play the winner of the Sudan-Levelland B game.

TUCSON, Ariz., Jan. 19. (AP)—Shy Joe Zarhardt, Philadelphia, Pa., Open champion skimmed over the El Rio course in 65 strokes, five under par, to take leadership today in the first round of the $5,000 Tucson Open golf tournament.

The lanky Norristown, Pa., pro held a one-stroke margin over five golfers deadlocked for second place at 66. They were Leonard Dodson, Kansas City, Mo.; Claude Harmon, Lochmoor, Mich.; Bruce Coltart, Atlantic City, N. J.; Leland Gibson, Randolph Field, Tex., and Jim Gauntt, Ardmore, Okla.

Twenty-Third Kayo Racked By Costner

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (AP)—George "Sugar" Costner, lanky Cincinnati, O., welterweight, rocketed to his twenty-third consecutive knockout by defeating Richard "Sheik" Rangel, Fresno, Calif., in the first round of their scheduled 10-round bout in the Chicago stadium tonight.

The willing but none too competent Mexican was a wide-open target for the sharpshooting negro.

The bout lasted exactly one minute and 22 seconds.

Costner weighed 147 3-4 to 149 for Rangel.

Not Much Money, So Thieves Fire Cafe

After breaking into the Silver Dollar cafe, 1105 College, early Friday morning and robbing coin machines, a burglar set fire to the kitchen.

Loot had not been determined last night and Aubrey Fawver, captain of police, said it would be impossible to determine the amount. He said the owner of the machines had "robbed" them Thursday and there could not have been very much money in them.

Firemen who were called to the cafe at 5 o'clock, found the music box and several pin-ball machines wrecked. Fire damage was light, according to Fire Chief W. E. Twitty, and that the worst damage was to an inside wall.

Fawver said it was evident that someone had piled napkins on the kitchen floor and set fire to them.

In another break-in Thursday night, merchandise valued at approximately $272 was taken from the McLarty Music Co., 805 College. Loot included 350 records, two ohm testers, two amplifier tubes and a box of condensers and resistors, according to Patrolman John Truly, who investigated.

Howard Payne Cagers Defeat ACC, 37-34

BROWNWOOD, Tex., Jan. 19. (AP) — Howard Payne's Yellow Jackets opened their 1945 basketball season here tonight by defeating Abilene Christian college 37-34.

It was Howard Payne's first game since they dropped intercollegiate athletics in 1943.

Green Light On Sports Is Asked

CHICAGO, Jan. 19 (U.P.)—Industrial leaders in the Chicago area today prepared to ask the government to turn the sports' go-ahead light to a Kelly green shade in the interest of increased war production.

The war plant executives, leaders in the nation's steel and fabricating industries, believe that in sports lie the answer to absenteeism and increased overall output. They have organized to send requests to sports leaders for a helping hand, to send a plea to the government that sports be allowed to proceed "umolested," and to spread their plans from coast to coast.

Industry Makes Request

Organizer of the group is Howard M. Reineman, general manager of Industrial Metal Fabricators, Inc., operator of four major Chicago war plants. Among the companies represented are Westinghouse Electric and manufacturing, Carnegie-Illinois Steel, Pressed Steel Car, Inland Steel, Pullman-Standard, Midland Steel and Modern Fabricating and Welding.

The industrial leaders representing these concerns believe that well known sports figures should tour war plants, talking to the workers, and that the nation's sport calendar should remain unchanged, thereby providing the proper type of recreation and relaxation for overworked home front fighters.

The man who proved Reineman's theories is Umpire John (Beans) Reardon, famed National League man-in-blue, who has been calling them in the senior circuit since 1926.

Would Aid Output

When Reardon recently returned from a USO baseball tour of Pacific camps, he was met on the West Coast by Reineman, who wanted the veteran umpire to return to Chicago and talk to his workers in an effort to curb growing absenteeism and step up output.

In one Chicago plant, where absenteeism had climbed to 46 a day, the total dropped to only 10 after four days of the "Reardon" cure, and "those 10 were really sick," an official said.

Sports figures can do what any Army veteran or celebrity can not, Reineman said. The workers believe that a veteran has been given his speech by his superior officer and that a celebrity is uninformed, "But they will listen to sports figures because they know them and they believe in them," he continued.

Reardon's success drew the attention of other plants and the various industrial executives met and appointed a subcommittee to put the plan in concrete form for presentation to the government and other war plants.

In regard to the industrialists' desires for continued sports, Reineman explained, "Our workers need wholesome good relaxation. Sports is good for both the home and war fronts and just as the fighting man likes to hear and talk about his favorite athletes, our workers like to do the same thing.

"We believe sports help production," he said.

Whites Win Opener In Junior Playoffs

Coach Russell Wimberley's Cowhands White team took an early lead in the double round robin playoff between the three junior high school cage fives, by winning 19 to 8 over the Reds Friday.

The White bounded away to an early lead, and were never pressed. The winners held a 9 to 2 advantage at the halftime intermission.

Nelms Young paced the Whites with seven points, while Royce Ellison was high for the Reds with five points.

CHAMPION CALLED

BRAWLEY, Calif., Jan. 19. (U.P.)—Manuel Ortiz, N. B. A. bantamweight champion, said today he would be inducted Tuesday unless he can obtain a temporary deferment to permit him to dispose of his vegetable farm. The hard fighting Mexican champion said he had been classified 1-A by his El Centro, Calif., draft board.

Williams To Try Out Power Punch Monday

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19. (AP)—Ike Williams, exponent of the theory that the puncher can lick the boxer, goes to work on his thesis again Monday night.

Williams' dynamite-packed right, which beat scientific Willie Joyce Jan. 8, will have the opportunity to strike the clinching blow in behalf of his theory in a 10-rounder here with cool and deliberate Maxie Berger, welterweight champion of Canada.

The dusky Trenton lightweight and his Canadian foe weighed in yesterday.

Despite his title, Berger will enter the ring a 5 to 9 underdog.

Texas Cagers Upset Favored Arkansas In Series Opener

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 19. (AP)—The Texas Longhorns soundly whipped the University of Arkansas Razorbacks here tonight 49-40, in a roaring Southwest Conference basketball game that dropped the Porkers into second place behind the Rice Institute Owls and raised Texas to a .500 standing in the pennant chase with two losses and two wins.

The two teams play again here tomorrow night.

Favored overwhelmingly to take both games of the series, the Razorbacks, apparently unable to cope with the whirlwind attack-defense set up by the Longhorns, saw the Steers whip into the lead, 11-9, after 12 minutes of the first half. The steers never relinquished the lead after that.

Scoring honors of the game went to Kok, rangy Razorback star, who swished 15 points through the meshes. The Texas scoring parade was paced by Cleary and Hornyer, the former flipping in 12 points and the latter added ten more for third honors.

The Steers built up a 28-17 lead by halftime intermission, and held this advantage over the dazed Porkers for the first major upset of the current SWC cage race.

Basketball Booming In English Centers

LONDON, Jan. 19 (AP)—Basketball is the top sport in Great Britain these days with more than 25,000 American servicemen competing in the greatest overseas program ever organized in wartime.

Winter league champions, survivors of approximately 2,000 original teams, will compete for district and base titles to determine the quintets to compete for the United Kingdom championship March 7-9 in London.

Site of the final tournament will be Albert Hall with its red plush seats—a situation roughly comparable to holding the NCAA finals in Carnegie Hall.

Baskets have been turned out in spare time by England's small arms factories and British clothiers have produced uniforms consisting of pants resembling boxing trunks.

Teams compete in gyms, hangars, municipal produce markets, home guard drill halls or any place two hoops can be hung.

Juan Zurita Seeks Opponent By Feb. 27

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19. (AP)—Juan Zurita is a well-behaved, peace-loving native of Mexico City, but he'd like to fight somebody before or on Feb. 27.

If Juan, who is the NBA's lightweight boxing champion, doesn't defend his crown by that date, he's out in the cold, and he doesn't envision that situation with any relish.

Zurita was to have boxed a Los Angeles negro, John Thomas, on Feb. 27. The bout was all set for Los Angeles at a $15 top. Last week the Army called up Thomas.

The promoters of the bout began to look around for a replacement for Thomas.

Joyce, Gary, Ind., negro, seems to be the answer. He was going great guns here a year or so ago until Henry Armstrong broke his jaw.

It seems, however, that another promoter, Joe Lynch, holds an exclusive contract here for Zurita's services. The state athletic commission had ruled that rival promoters must satisfy Lynch's contract before they held the Zurita-Thomas fight. Now, Lynch intends to talk Zurita's manager George Parnassus, into meeting Joyce, who is accorded a pretty good chance to beat the titleholder.

Anyhow, Zurita would be glad to meet anybody over the 15-round distance by Feb. 27.

Anybody want to fight?

Idalou Tourney Nearing Finals

IDALOU, Jan. 19. (Special)—The Idalou high school invitation basketball tournament moved toward the finals after nine games were played off here today.

The Idalou boys set a blistering pace in the boys division of the tournament, rolling over Crosbyton, 53-33, in the opening game, and coming back later to shove out the Roosevelt club, 42-28, and matched the double win of the day turned in by the Lorenzo boys.

Lorenzo pushed out the Petersburg five in the first clash of the day, winning a 31-20 thriller that was an even better game than the score indicates, then came from behind tonight to eliminate the Cooper club, 36-21.

Williams, one of the outstanding men of the tournament, played a great game for the Lorenzo lads, and played perhaps some of his best ball of the year in the the half comeback, that found Lorenzo going into the last half trailing by 11-12.

In the only other boys game on the program, New Deal nosed out Robertson, 12-10, in a close, well played defensive battle that provided some of the best guarding of the entire tournament.

The Idalou girls roared into the semi-finals by winning two of the four girls games on the program today, knocking over Shallowater for the first win, 31--16, and taking the second from the powerful Petersburg club to the tune of 36-15.

Cooper's fine girls team moved into the quarter-final round with a 35-17 win over Lorenzo in the opening girls game. The remaining girls game provided another thriller that was much better game than the score indicates, with New Deal winning over Abernathy, 23-10.

Semi-finalists will be named today, with the finals and battle for third places scheduled for the gala finale Saturday night. The girls third place game will start the night's program Saturday at 6:30 o'clock, followed by the boys third place game, battles between semi-final losers.

The girls final will start at 8:30 o'clock and the boys finale will feature the card at 9:30.

Post Opens Cage Tournament Play

POST, Jan. 19. (Special)—The Post High school invitation basketball tournament opened it's two day round robin play here tonight with four games providing the fans with plenty of thrills in the opening barrage.

Dawson and Post provided the winners in the girls games, with the O'Donnel Eagles and Tahoka Bulldogs flashing to wins in the boys games. The smooth working Eagles, rated as one of the top teams in the South Plains area, proved their right to this rating with a scoring exhibition that left the scorekeepers groggy.

The Eagles piled up a 62 to 29 victory over Southland in the opening boys game of the night as Brownlow and Pearson poured points through the meshes to set a blistering pace.

In the other boys game, Nolan Jones returned to the lineup after a lengthy illness, and paced the Tahoka Bulldogs to a 29 to 10 victory over Post. Jones flipped in ten points to pace the Bulldogs to the opening win.

The girls opener provided a thrill packed battle that found Dawson edging out a 29-24 victory over Southland. Whisenant flipped in 16 points for the winners for scoring honors of the game, and Mining paced the losers with 13 points.

Post had a little easier time, winning by a 23 to 14 margin over the Tahoka girls. Cowderly paced the winners, while Peggy Dunlap was top scorer for the Tahoka girls.

Play will be resumed Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with eight games carded to complete the round robin in alternating boys and girls games. The girls start the schedule with a battle between Post and Dawson, winners of the first round.

At 4 o'clock, Tahoka plays Southland, and Tahoka returns at 6 o'clock to play Dawson. The girls finale will be the Post and Southland battle at 7 o'clock.

Post tackles the high scoring O'Donnell in the first boys game at 3 o'clock. Tahoka and Southland play at 5 o'clock. On the night schedule, Post and Southland play at 8 o'clock, and the opening winners, O'Donnell and Tahoka play the feature game at 9 o'clock.

Stan Musial Passes Physical For Navy

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 19. (U.P.)—Outfielder Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals today passed his induction physical test and was accepted for service with the Navy.

Musical's acceptance by the Navy was predicated on the assumption that he will pass his blood test, results of which will not be known until later today.

The 24 year old Donora, Pa., baseball star will leave for the service Monday night, but won't learn until Monday afternoon which camp he will be assigned to.

"I'm glad I made it into the Navy," Musial said. "A lot of my friends are in the Navy and like it. I know I will, too."

Last season Musial was the league's second leading batter, with an average of .347, ten points less than that of Fred (Dixie) Walker, of Brooklyn.

Whiteface Romps To Three Wins In Row

WHITEFACE, Jan. 19 (Special) The Whiteface High school cagers turned on the pressure here tonight, and roared to three wins over the Sundown cagers in a thrill packed triple bill.

The Whiteface girls rolled to a 22 to 7 win, the boys A team won an 18-15 verdict, and the boys B team won by a 12-8 count.

Mary Lou Bowden accounted for half the Whiteface points in the girls game for scoring honors with 11 points, while Ragland paced the Sundown girls with five points.

Jimmy Gill poured 13 points through the hoop to account for almost enough points to beat the Sundown A team of boys. Matlock was high for the visitors with nine points.

Warden Hudgens of the Whiteface B team flipped in seven points to lead the parade in this game, while Reoen, with three points was high for Sundown.

Jacobs Doubts Louis To Fight Only Once

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (AP)—Mike Jacobs, who expects to promote a Joe Louis-Billy Conn return bout after the war, isn't so certain the heavyweight champion will fight only once when peace returns.

"I think that when the time comes Joe may want a tuneup bout with some ordinary heavyweight before he takes on Conn," Jacobs declared today.

West Coast "Reforms"

Offers "Home Front Peace Plan"

ON this page today, Ray Tucker tells us that out of the once turbulent West Coast has come a new prescription for peace and co-operation between union labor and management. This is important not only because the entire nation needs such co-opeartion, but because the prescription comes from an area where labor and management were accustomed, over long periods, to flying at each others throats.

Fair and intelligent co-operation between management and labor is essential, of course, to the success of the war effort. Disputes between the two ends of the production line too often have resulted in wartime shut-downs; much of the trouble has been indefensible and some of it has resulted in acts that should be defined by our laws as treasonable. There should never have been a wartime strike, especially in a war industry. There shouldn't be any more.

But as essential as industrial peace is to the war effort, it isn't much more essential than such peace will be in the postwar period. Our economic structure cannot be strengthened, it cannot even be bolstered, if management and labor are frequently "on the outs." Therefore, what Mr. Tucker reports has happened on the West Coast should be closely studied by leaders of management and labor everywhere—and, as Mr. Tucker says, especially in the Detroit area.

If management and labor, alone, suffered as the result of strife between them, it wouldn't be so bad. The average American would be willing to let both to "stew in their own juice." But when such feuds result in slowing up the war effort now; or, in the future, contribute to national economic dislocation, then the whole nation suffers and every citizen has a stake in the situation.

If, over a period of further time, the West Coast arrangement continues to work as splendidly as it has been working, the government, management and labor will do well to institute it everywhere—and the rank and file of Americans should insist uon such an institution. For nothing can be more detrimental to postwar economic security than a continuation of the "public-be-damned" philosophy which too long has been in vogue in American industry.

More American "Know How"

BACK from a visit to China, Congressman Mike Mansfield, of Montana, has reported to President Roosevelt that recent shifts of military and civilian representatives from this country to our Oriental ally are working out splendidly. Mr. Manfield says Chinese Generalissimo Chiange-Kai-Shek is delighted with the contributions being made by Maj. Gen. Pat Hurley, new U. S. ambassador at Chungking; by Donald Nelson, sent by Mr. Roosevelt to help the Chinese work out their production problems, and by Gen. Al Wedemeyer, who succeeded Gen. Joe Stilwell as our military representative on the staff of Chiang.

The U. S. public knows little about General Wedemeyer, therefore is in no position to judge the extent of his contribution to allied co-operation across the Pacific. But Americans do know both General Hurley and Donald Nelson, whose records for doing hard jobs well are outstanding.

Both Hurley and Nelson are Americans who have driven their way, through hard work and common sense, to high stations and, incidentally, to wealth. Both had modest beginnings and both made good "the hard way." That they are achieving sucecss in aiding the Chinese, therefore is not surprising. Nor is the fact that the Chinese recognize their worth and abilities.

General Hurley and Mr. Nelson typify the sort of men who should be sent to represent us in whatever important jobs crop up around the world. They are do-ers, they are workers, they have what Texans call "savvy." They know how to get along with people and they have "guts.' Chiang Kai-Shek, or any other man who has risen to a place of eminence in any land, could not fail to recognize the worth of Donald Nelson, who rose through sheer ability to a commanding position in one of our countrys' largest businesses; and Pat Hurley who started as an oilfield roustabout and wrested millions from the red soil of Oklahoma.

Both are rendering great public service, not only to this country but to the world.

XI

The next day was a Sunday and Walt usually consecrated it to late sleep and golf. But he lashed himself awake with a long cold shower, dressed in his best and fell in alongside Margaret when she went to church.

She was very much dressed up, and so was her face. She wore a public smile of Sabbath sweetness, but she did not speak to Walt at all.

As they went home she said:

"I'm sorry we quarreled, Walter. I'm sorry I was so cross with you."

"Why, Margaret!" he gasped in a rush of hope.

"It's my duty to be more patient and forebearing with you," she went on. "I just wanted you to know that I forgive you."

After luncheon Margaret heaved herself out of her creaking chair, and her voice creaked:

"I'm going to get out of these tight things."

"While you're all dressed up and looking so swell, why not come out to the country club?"

"And sit like a bump on a log while you chase a ball around the links? Humph!"

"I'll not play. I'll sit with you."

"You'll blame me for keeping you from playing. I know you. I'd be happier at home by myself."

She was turning into a mere vegetable that sits still and fattens where it takes root. He flared up:

"Margaret, it begins to look as if you've given up all idea of any duty to yourself, not to mention me. Do you think married life is a pay-as-you-enter car; and a nickel's worth of love at the beginning entitles you to ride to the end of the line? Is security all you want? Well, if it is, let me tell you there's no such thing. If this is your idea of a home—well, it's not mine."

"What's her name?" she said.

"I don't know yet," he answered, and flung out of the house in a rage of more fear than fury.

* * *

At the club he looked about for Tom Beckley, but he and Sue were going round the links together with Bob Dunbar and his wife. Walt knew few men at the club and he was feeling lost and forlorn when he heard a voice that put a deal of witchery in three syllables:

"Oh, hello!"

He turned and faced Mrs. Drummond.

"Hello yourself!" he answered with a wit that delighted them both. His heart began racing like a silly pup that has broken its leash and is running wild in a free world.

"I've had enough golf for today," said Mrs. Drummond. "I was just going in for a swim."

'A grand idea," he said. She was a forward thing, but he could go forward, too.

"I'll meet you here?" said she with a rising inflection.

He kept a swimming suit at the clubhouse, which he now entered with a sense of wild adventure.

He came out to find Mrs. Drummond waiting. She had a light robe about her, but its shapelessness seemed to proclaim, by its clinging concealment, what shapeliness was beneath. She was to Walt bewitchingly beautiful, dazzling. Her bathing cap gave her a Grecian look. His eyes were flooded with such admiration that he looked away from her uneasily.

The glance he flung over his shoulder revealed his wife watching him.

He looked as guilty as she took him to be, but she looked triumphant. He had justified all her suspicions. She had caught him in a secret rendezvous with a—her very eyes seemed to say harlot." When she came slowly down to them, Margaret said:

"After you left, Walt, I changed my mind and took a taxicab out. I saw you going into the clubhouse to change; but you didn't see me—naturally."

She put a lot of venom into that. He managed to stammer an introduction of a sort and he felt himself a traitor when he could not help noticing the difference between the two women. Mrs. Drummond was superb in carriage and terribly alive in mind and in flesh. Margaret was like a week's wash tied up somehow in a laundry bag of ornate silk, bulging here and drawn in there and likely to break out at any moment. On top of the laundry was a head, a face like the painted face of a doll.

Walt could see that Margaret's chief emotion was terror. She was more frightened, more desperately afraid than she had ever been before. She was drowning and doomed.

But Mrs. Drummond was so demure in her superiorities that Walt suddenly turned against her. Old loyalties to his old love, his family, his home recaptured him. Yet Mrs. Drummond dared to assume an ownership in him.

"Your husband and I are just going in for a swim," she said. "Won't you join us?"

"Me?" said Margaret. "Heavens on earth, I haven't swum since I don't know when. My daughter does all the swimming for our family. That's her out in the pool now, just taking off from the diving board with Tom Beckley."

"Oh yes! Beautiful girl," said Mrs. Drummond. "I met her last night. I have three daughters of my own and I have a devil of a time trying to keep up with them. Yet they think I'm fast—or something."

'Three daughters? You have three? Well, my one don't approve of me either," said Margaret with the hollowest of laughs. "As I always say—"

She went rattling on with stupid generalizations and ancient jokes. Walt must have loved her mightily because he took shame for her bad showing.

Looking At Life - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

ONE of my friends told me a few days ago about having gone out to lunch with a woman he knew. They were seen in the restaurant by a friend of his wife, and, of course, the friend told his wife about it.

And when she heard about it, she raised the dickens with him.

I think the whole business was very foolish.

I go to New York every week and usually stay there Wednesdays and Thursdays.

My wife doesn't come in with me very often because, in the first place, she likes it in the country and in the second place she is busy with house work and war work.

I have the lunch hours and the evenings to myself and I hate to be alone.

Usually I have lunch with the fellows from the the office and, whenever I can, I go out in the evenings with men.

* * *

But sometimes it happens that all my men friends are busy and then what do I do?

Stay in the hotel and twiddle my thumbs?

Of course not.

I'll call up Margaret Carson, a very interesting person who is publicity director of the Metropolitan Opera, or a young woman who is with the British Information Office, or a singer whom I know and who has been at our house for the week ends.

We'll have lunch at Mayan or cocktails at the St. Regis or dinner at the Twenty-one.

Then we'll take in the opera—although I usually manage to sneak out when the singing is the loudest — or we'll go to a show or a concert, or we'll just sit around and talk.

Yes, the other night we even went to the Hawaiian room of the Hotel Lexington and danced until one o'clock in the morning.

And what do you think my wife did a couple of weeks ago when she was in New York? She met an old friend of hers — a man of all things! —and he took her to lunch at the Waldorf and she even had a drink.

* * *

But here is the story: My wife trusts me and I trust her.

When she goes out with a man or I go out with a woman she tells me and I tell her and everything is all right.

If a person is interesting and entertaining neither she nor I can see what difference it makes whether that person wears trousers or skirts.

We can't see why marriage if it is made and kept in good faith should put blinkers on anybody.

It's sneaking that makes it wrong, but as long as it's on the up and up it's all right as far as we are concerned.

My friend should have told his wife that he was out with that woman. Not telling her made it look suspciious. Or may be his wife is just plain narrow-minded.

Any woman who is sure of herself knows that no other woman can take her husband away from her. And that holds good the other way 'round.

I have been married more than 20 years and I'd marry the same woman all over again, in spite of the fact that there are much younger ones around.

But if my wife didn't trust me enough to let me go out with other women, or if I didn't trust her enough to let her go out with other men—then I don't think we would have been married these many years.

May be you won't agree with me. I'm only telling you the way I feel about it.

And if you don't agree — may be there's something wrong with your marriage.

P. S. Some of the women with whom I go out are married, too.

GOP Eyes Vandenberg

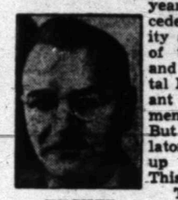

Michigander Seen As $8 "Hope"

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

ARTHUR H. VANDENBURG'S statesmanlike speech on America's part in present and future world affairs has naturally catapulted him into all cloakroom speculation anent Republican presidential candidates in 1948.

Seldom in Senate history has a single address brought such nonpartisan acclaim to one individual. Politicians and newspapers of the left and right broke into eulogies and headlines. The Office of War Information asked permission to broadcast his remarks overseas in condensed form.

"Van", as his colleagues call him, finally hit the jackpot after 16 somewhat disappointing senatorial years. Everyone has always conceded his ability, energy, sincerity and mental agility. He is one of the most popular, best-liked and unostentatios men on Capital Hill. He represents an important state, and has frequently been mentioned for the nomination. But somehow the Michigan legislator has never before quite lived up to his friends' expectations. This time he has.

TUCKER

The former Grand Rapids editor said in temperate but incisive phrases what the average perplexed American wanted to hear from someone on this side of the Atlantic. That simple fact apparently accounts for the nation-wide reaction.

He rewrote the Atlantic Charter so as to make it readable, understandable and workable. He provided a specific, nontechnical formula for cutting diplomatic red tape, ironing out London-Moscow-Washington wrangles and getting on with the war and the peace.

The handsome, gray-haired Michigan man will be 61 years old on March 22, but he has the energy—and uses it—of a fellow in his late forties. One speech, of course, does not make a presidential nominee, but in these times of world worrying his kind can help.

WEST: The beginning of the grand campaign against Japan will put tremendous burdens on West Coast industrial, loading and shipping facilities from the Canadian to the Mexican borders. Key men in all these fields have been notified by the Army and Navy to prepare for unprecedented activity until the Land of the Rising Sun has been blasted into darkness.

Luckily, thse demands fall at a time when labor and management in that area have achieved a live-and-let-live arrangement almost unique in the history of that once turbulent section. High officials here wish that other manufacturing centers, especially Detroit, would please note.

San Francisco probably had more "quickie" prewar strikes than any other port. Since Pearl Harbor there has been only one major stoppage—last summer's machinist strike—and that lasted only a few days.

Seattle has not had a serious labor difficulty since 1941. Several threatened disputes in shipyards and airplane plants were prevented when American Federation of Labor officials warned the logical unions that they could expect no assistance from the higherups.

Harry Bridges, once a storm center along the water front, has played an important role in the peacemaking. He has kept his men on the job, and they have broken all records for efficiency. Recently the CIO signed an agreement with San Francisco warehouses outlawing strikes and lockouts for three years, regardless of whether the war has ended by that time.

It is true that the cooperation of the Australian Communist, long the target of deportation proceedings, dates from the German attack on Russia. But the reasons for his changed attitude are far more fundamental than a mere ideological shift.

LABOR: Employer and employe leaders in the Pacific states have achieved a nice industrial balance and mutual understanding after years of fruitless and wasteful feuds.

Both groups are strongly organized, united and disciplined. Each knows that the other can stage a costly battle if provoked. Likewise, all hands realize that they can make larger profits and higher wages if they work together instead of against one another. It amounts to a practicable system of labor-management direction.

The West Coast arrangement may point the way toward solution of another difficult question. It enables the principals to settle their own problems on the basis of local conditions without dragging in such outside agencies as the National Labor Relation board or the War Labor board.

Another and extremely important factor governs the men responsible for the establishment of harmonious relations. It, also, is one which may commend itself to the managers and workers of vast industrial plants in other sections of the United States as they frame preliminary blueprints for reconversion.

Farseeing leaders want to retain the industrial—shipbuilding, aviation, steel, aluminum etc. — which have been built or expanded to meet military needs. They have organized to oppose any attempt by eastern interests to demobilize or destroy their factories in the postwar period.

Labor and management have a common stake in that anticipated controversy—the lines are already forming in Washington—and they figure it smart to bury their differences in advance of the engagement.

Most immediate national gain from the noble experiment, however, is that it will keep arms and men pouring out in an unbroken stream across the vast reaches of the Pacific Ocean.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

DEPARTMENT stores foresee trouble by fall—and even more after V-E day. To side-step it and hold good will, they are laying plans now to the tune of one billion dollars.

Shoppers will benefit from the many new features proposed, among them the use of sensational developments in television.

LEMAN

Sales last year were 11 per cent above 1943. Proprietors expect to supply most wants for at least six months and to maintain in that period a dollar sales volume as high as it was in record-breaking 1944.

But, by the end of summer, if war emergencies prevent an increase in civilian manufacturing, the result may be permanently empty shelves and disappointed customers. When peace comes and the sellers' market ends, there will be the greatest competition in commercial history. Women in wartime formed the habit of searching different shops for elusive articles. Where successful, they may like their new stamping grounds better than the old.

WEDDINGS: A questionnaire sent out by the National Retail Dry Goods association brought replies showing that its members are ready to spend more than a billion dollars on modernization and improvements.

The program covers expansion of present facilities, branch outlets, fixtures, escalators, air conditioning systems and use of the advance in technology, including electronics.

Many merchants object to providing too many customer services as it adds to the price of merchandise. If they stuck together, they might eliminate the extra expense of "frills." But each owner thinks he "must keep up with the Joneses." So he is studying ways to make his establishment outstanding.

When competition is stiff again, even small shops may offer such conveniences as free suburban telephone service, advice on weddings, interior decoration, layettes, passenger and package bus trips from store to railroad station, courses in knitting, rug-making, needlework, amusement tickets, children's playrooms, check cashing, fashion lectures, footmen, doormen and notaries public etc.

Where The "Main Stem" Gets Its Glamor

Lamplighter Of Broadway!

By JAMES THRASHER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK,—Jake Starr is not what you would call a glamorous man. Nor, for that matter, is his partner, Ben Strauss. Their names seldom appear in the public prints. Yet for more than 40 years these two men have been among the chief contributors to the glamor of what is perhaps the world's most publicized thoroughfare.

Mr. Starr explains their contribution simply: "Broadway is actresses behind electric signs. We make the signs."

Specifically, they design, manufacture and erect more than 90 per cent of all the spectacular displays on Broadway. They own 42 per cent of the street's choice sign locations. They have helped to glamorize the glamor girls from "Floradora" through Ziegfield to the offerings of Mike Todd and Billy Rose. They have seen the bright lights change from gas to neon, and have watched them move uptown from 14th street to Times Square.

NEVER SEES STARS

BUT Jake Starr doesn't get to see the actress behind his signs. He's too busy. As treasurer and guiding mechanical genius of the Artkraft Strauss Sign Corp., he works 16 hours a day, seven days a week. He has no hobbies, and has never taken a vacation.

The average Broadway sign costs from $10,000 to $12,000, and good 10 years. Sometimes this seems like wasted effort. Once the firm finished a big job for a hopeful producer on Saturday, and the show closed the following day.

Mr. Starr learned artistic integrity, among other things, from the man to whom he was apprenticed in his native Russia. This man made beautiful rubles, better and cheaper than those turned out by the imperial mint. So when the tsar's police finally picked him up for counterfeiting, the authorities offered him his freedom if he would tell them how he did it.

"What," said the counterfeiter, "and give away a secret worth millions? Never!" So off he went to spend the rest of his life in Siberia, while his young apprentice came to America.

President jobs include the supervision of a lot of war work and the ground work for what will be the biggest outdoor sign in America. Oddly enough, war and the blackout haven't brought a business slump to Artkraft Strauss. Quite the contrary.

They had to hustle, first of all, to find substitutes for critical materials, and figure out systems of mirrors and indirect lighting that would preserve a glimmer of Broadway's glamor without violating blackout regulations. Then came war orders, and the firm opened a second shop to make parts for tanks, ships and other vehicles of war.

PERFECTS "WONDER SIGN"

MR. STARR is also perfecting two war-interrupted miracles of his craft. One is the "newsograph," similar to present-day running electric signs except that it can be operated and changed as fast as a man can teletype. The other is the "wondersign," which, with the help of 27,000 bulbs and 500,000 electrical connections, will dash off electrical pictures with all the splash-dash virtuosity of an old-time lyceum entertainer giving chalk talks.

Mr. Starr's labors aren't confined to his own neighborhood. One of his signs was flown over the Andes to a movie theater in Bogota, Colombia. Another, sailed by chartered ship to Iceland, said "This Theater Is Air Cooled. (Mr. Starr never quite figured that one out.)

But you get the impression that Jake Starr's heart belongs to Mazda Alley, even if he never gets to see its shows. Nothing pleases him more than to be called the Lamplighter of Broadway.

Jake Starr's 154-foot Varga girl, advertising a Broadway musical, was world's largest pin-up.

RAILS, INDUSTRIES RETREAT

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (AP)—Good but deflationary war news more than offset inflation psychology in today's stock market and leading rails and industrials again beat a more or less orderly retreat.

As in the preceding session, the sweep of the Russians in the east, combined with Allied successes on the western front, stressed reconversion troubles for industry at home should the Nazis suddenly fold.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off .5 of a point at 56.8. The market was broad, 976 issues registering. Of these, 680 were down, 158 up and 168 unchanged. Transfers totaled 1,609,250 shares compared with 1,631,030 Thursday.

Exceptions on the downswing at peaks for 1944-45 were Crucible steel, up 3¼; American Ice, Budd Wheel and White Sewing Machine. Conspicuous in the minus ranks were Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Santa Fe, Chicago and Northwestern common and preferred, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Graham-Paige, Hiram Walker Distillers Corp., Standard Oil (NJ), Kennecott, Anaconda, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Western Union "A," Westinghouse, Du Pont and Douglas Aircraft.

Railway bond casualties were widespread. In the curb Pennroad, Texon Oil and Leonard Oil recovered.

Lodz And Krakow Captures Important

(By The Associated Press)

The capture of Lodz and Krakow gives the Russians two of Poland's most important—and strategically valuable—cities.

Lodz is an industrial city which had a pre-war population of 655,-000 making it Poland's second largest city. Located 82 miles southwest of Warsaw, it is the center of a group of industrial towns which manufacture textiles and chemicals.

Krakow, ancient capital of Poland and the nation's fourth largest city with a population of 255,-000, has a long history of invasion by armies of many nations.

Hitler took it Sept. 6, 1939, in his eastward sweep toward Russia.

One of Europe's great classical cities, Krakow long has been the seat of Polish learning and culture as well as an important industrial center.

Situated in a fertile plain on the left bank of the Vistula river, Krakow lies 212 miles northwest of Llow. Near Krakow are mines of coal and zinc.

Both Lodz and Krakow are strategic hubs in transportation systems.

Traditions Swept Aside By Planners Of Inauguration

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (UP)—Many traditions were swept aside for Franklin D. Roosevelt's fourth inauguration, but a few survived unchanged.

The actual swearing-in ceremony was patterned in its essentials on those of 1933, 1937, and 1941.

It was the same man, the same Bible open at the same place, and the same oath.

As he had three times before, Mrs. Roosevelt chose a passage from St. Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians (Chapter 13, Verses 1-13) on which to place his hand while taking the 156-year-old oath of presidents prescribed by the constitution.

The passage is St. Paul's famous essay on charity, without which, the apostle wrote, "I am nothing."

"And now abideth faith, hope, and charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

The Bible is an ancient Roosevelt family heritage, written in Dutch. It is more than two centuries old. Its exact age is unknown, however, because the title page is missing. President Roosevelt used the same book at his two inaugurations as governor of New York.

The oath, from paragraph 8, section 1, article II of the Constitution:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect, and defend the constitution of the United States."

Not having religious scruples against it, Mr. Roosevelt says "swear" rather than "affirm."

Bus Strikers Under Eye Of Draft Board

HOUSTON, Jan. 19 (UP)—Houston bus drivers who participated in the two-day Bowen strike were reported today to be under the watchful eye of their Harris county draft boards and it appeared one board might reclassify those drivers under its jurisdiction.

The board, Harris county local 14, requested a list of the strikers' names with a view toward possible reclassification.

"Our board has always had the attitude that any striker should be put in the Army," said Chairman Thomas Kehoe. "This is no time to strike."

However, he said orders for reclassification would have to come from national headquarters.

Chemist Convicted Of Murdering Kin

BOONVILLE, Mo., Jan. 19. (AP) —A Cooper county circuit court jury today convicted Edward Jewett Martin, 24, of second degree murder in the slaying of his grandmother, Mrs. Edward M. Jewett, here last May 9, and fixed his punishment at 20 years imprisonment.

The jury convicted the young Charlotte, N. C., chemist, on the second count of the information which alleged he killed his well-to-do grandmother by beating her with an unidentified instrument. It found him innocent on the first count which alleged he killed her by running over her with his automobile sometime the night of May 9.

Martin was accused of killing the well-to-do woman who had reared him from infancy here last May 10 and then disposing of the decaying body in a lake at Chapel Hill, N. C. Martins' attorneys asked a verdict of manslaughter or insanity.

It Will Be Muddy Inaugural--For Correspondent And 7,000 Others

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 — I don't know about this inaugural deal tomorrow. I got a yellow ticket to get in, all right, but it looks like I'll be standing in the mud with about 7,000 other guys in the President's back yard.

There's a question whether my ticket will get me inside for lunch on the house afterwards, but the more I hear about this repast, the less I'm beginning to care. Frankly, I don't think the Roosevelts are going to have enough to eat.

You know how it is between husband and wives. The husband's always inviting the gang to have a bite. The President asked 2,000 people in for a snack (he said something about chicken a la king) and turned that part of the program over to his wife.

Chicken Is Scarce

Well, sir, chicken's hard to get. As I understand it, the housekeeper vetoed the a la king business and substituted chicken salad, which can be eked out with hard boiled eggs of which there are plenty, and chopped-up celery. Everybody gets one small dab of salad. Mrs. R., hopes nobody asks for seconds. She will have plenty of coffee, however, and a couple or three mugs of that should carry the customers over until tea time.

As soon as lunch is over the dishwashers will get busy on those coffee cups and hope to have 'em ready for tea at 4:30 p. m., when 1,500 more people drop in.

Some of these, like governors, electors, and their wives, will be repeaters. They'll get cakes with their tea and all those cups'll have to be washed again. Kind of gives you the willies to think of all that dish washing; I believe I'd use paper cups.

Mud Is Inevitable

As for the mud in the back yard during the inaugural ceremony, that's inevitable. I dropped by for a look at the place and I can say flatly that the President's lawn is not in good shape. The grass is thin, the earth is soggy, and what 14,000 feet are going to do to it isn't good. About half of these feet will have high heels. There's nothing harder on grass.

Nobody gets to sit down, except the holders of red cards, who are the special big wigs; they'll be on the back porch with the President and if it rains, they'll have a roof over 'em.

The other guests, holding blue, salmon, white, yellow and brown cards, will stand outside and if the heavens open up, they will be out of luck, because they won't be allowed to bring unbrellas. That's so there'll be no eyes poked out.

Nobody has to wear striped pants unless he feels like it. Some of the ladies will look extra fancy. I have studied the photos of Mrs. Roosevelt in her inaugural dress and I think it looks fine. Only frippery about it is a kind of sash.

Between lunch and tea Mrs. Roosevelt will run upstairs and change into her reception dress. I have seen no pictures of this, but the fashion editors claim it is something neat in pink with a lace jabot. I'll let you know later, after I see it, what is a jabot.

An an old attender of Roosevelt inaugurations (I nearly drowned in 1937) I know what I'm going to wear: rubbers and a fireman's hat.

County Gets 1945 License Plates

The 1945 automobile license plates of pre-war variety have been received for Lubbock county, H. B. Bryan, county assessor-collector, announced.

The new tag has different dimensions and has fewer numerals than the old, large-size tag which was last issued in 1942. It measures 5 7/8 inches in width and 10 inches in length. The old color scheme is retained—black letters and numerals on a yellow background.

Only one tag will be required, which must be affixed to the rear of the car. Heretofore, both rear and front plates have been required.

Passenger plates total 14,290 and they range from EC 3200 to ED 7499.

Bryan said the plates would not go on sale until Feb. 1 and that vehicle owners must have them by April 1.

Instead of plates, tabs were issued in 1943 and '44 but the 1942 tag remained the basic permit, Bryan said.

Twelve Carloads Of Tin Cans Shipped

Since Pearl Harbor 12 carloads of tin cans for salvage have been shipped from Lubbock and there is another half carload awaiting shipment when the remainder of the car is collected, it was announced by Forrest Lindsey, pick-up and shipping director of the campaign.

Bottling companies here are joining in the pickup of cans which are left by housewives in boxes at all grocery stores. When a carload of 40,000 pounds of cans is collected, they are shipped immediately to the salvaging plants by rail.

Rules for preparing the containers are simple and are for conserving shipping space and for more efficient salvaging of the vital tin at plants. Housewives are asked to remove the label, cut each end of the can so the ends may be turned inside, or if removed, be put inside the can. Then the can is flattened by stepping on it and taken as soon as possible to the grocery store.

Lubbock's contribution of salvagable tin has mostly been made by the air bases near here in the past, but M. D. Fanning, City salvage director and Lindsey have hopes that local people will enter the campaign and double the amount of cans salvaged.

MIDLANDER COMMENDED

Posthumous Awards To Be Given Today

Highlighting an all-post parade and review at Lubbock Army Air field this afternoon, two posthumous awards will be made to Slaton and Anton soldiers.

The Silver Star for gallantry in action will be presented to George G. Green of Slaton, for his son, Pfc. George L. Green, an infantryman who was mortally wounded March 14, 1944 in the Southwest Pacific. The citation, given for gallantry in action on that date, states Pvt. Green was the lead scout of a combat patrol when he was hit by close range hostile machine-gun fire. "Sensing that other members of the patrol would be ambushed, he disregarded cover to boldly fire at the enemy position until mortally wounded by a second burst of fire. His undaunted courage and high devotion to duty enabled his patrol to contact the enemy and in the ensuing action four Japanese were killed," the citation states.

The Air Medal will be presented to Mrs. Ima D. Haile of Anton, for her husband, Lt. James R. Haile, who gave his life while bombing enemy-occupied continental Europe.

Both decorations will be presented by Col. Howell M. Estes, jr., commanding officer of LAAF, acting for the secretary of war.

Many Buildings Are Remodeled

A noticeable amount of alteration has been going on for the past few weeks in Lubbock's business district, as indicated by a $48,890.86 total of building permits issued by the building inspector's office for business building alterations in December and $6,020 so far this month.

Figures for the changes in business establishments range from 200 to 15,000 dollars and include all types of work from small repairs to changing a building into a grain elevator and storage plant.

Largest Permit $15,000

Largest of the permits was for $15,000, let to Standard Milling company, with an $11,500 permit to C. D. Shaw to remodel a building at 1114 Texas in second place. Permission was given the National Cylinder Gas company, 809 Ave. G to make $7,000 worth of improvements and Adair Music company changed their building at 1012 Main at a cost of $1,500.

These large contracts cover $35,000 of the total figure, which leaves $19,910.89 spent for other alterations and repairs, almost as much as the second largest month of last year, September, with permits for $20,244 in business building repairs.

MKT Railroad Asks Cars For Automobiles

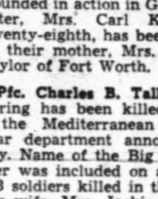

DALLAS, Jan. 19. (U.P.) — The Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad has asked authority from the War Production board to purchase 300 new automobile boxcars at a cost of about $1,500,000, Matthew S. Sloan, MKT president and board chairman, revealed today.

Sloan said the nation's railroads have been requested to purchase and put in service 20,000 new boxcars in anticipation of expanded military needs. On that basis, he said, the pro rata share of the Katy line is 300 cars which will be built in the Denver shops, if the WPB permit is granted.

Army Wife Says She Took Baby

LAREDO, Jan. 19. (AP)—Mrs. C. E. Branson, attractive wife of a Laredo Army Air field gunnery instructor, was arrested here today on charges of kidnaping the three-week-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McGill in Fort Worth Jan. 9.

The arrest was made at Mrs. Branson's home by Fort Worth and Laredo detectives. A complaint naming Mrs. C. E. Branson in the case was filed in justice of the peace court at Fort Worth yesterday.

Kidnapped Jan. 9

Tiny Mildred Louise McGill was taken from her hotel room home in Fort Worth Jan. 9 and left in a San Antonio bus station the next day. She was returned to her parents.

The Fort Worth officers, who arrived last night, were accompanied by Mrs. McGill. The party left with Mrs. Branson for Fort Worth before noon.

Mrs. Branson said she formerly lived in Fort Worth and attended Polytechnic High school. She was married here last June.

Invited In House

Mrs. Branson and her husband were in bed when officers went to their home. The lieutenant answered the knock and invited the group, including Fort Worth Detective Chief Howard Grant, Fort Worth Detectives A. C. Howerton and Theron Brooks, Laredo Detective James Sandovat and a representative of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, inside.

"We're officers from Fort Worth," Brooks said.

"I knew that. I told my husband so when you knocked," Mrs. Branson said.

As she dressed behind a curtained doorway, preparatory to being taken to the Laredo police station to be viewed by Mrs. McGill, mother of the baby, who went with the officers from here to Laredo, Mrs. Branson told this story.

"I had been expecting a baby this year," she said, "but on Dec. 31 at the USO swimming pool here I fell and it resulted in a miscarriage. I didn't tell my husband about the miscarriage.

"Previously in Fort Worth at a store I had bought a quantity of baby clthes and when I was in Fort Worth last time I decided to give the clothes away.

"When I went to the McGill's Jan. 4 I still intended to give the clothes away, but when I saw how cute the baby was I decided to take it. It was the most beautiful baby I had ever seen. I don't know what came over me. I just decided to take it."

FDR Praises Supply Boards Of Allies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. (AP) — President Roosevelt said today that the combined Allied supply boards provide a model "in overcoming excessive nationalism and in gaining cooperation which gives valuable experience for after the war."

Washington, London and Ottawa previously had revealed that the boards will be kept functioning until Japan is defeated.

The three groups, each with representatives from Canada, Britain and the United States, are the Combined Production and Resources board, the Combined Raw Materials board, and the Combined Food board.

The President said they will be continued for two reasons—necessity and the good work they have done. In general their job is finding sources, and determining production quotas, to meet over-all supply needs of the United Nations.

In a statement in which he praised their activities, the President said the boards have worked with other Allied governments on overall supply problems, and with Russia through member governments.

He told his news conference that a new lend-lease protocol is being negotiated with Russia.

Today, an American soldier buried in France slept under his native soil.
