KANSAS CITY, Kansas, Jan. 27. Four passengers and pilot Dyke Lauderman, were killed when a tri-motored Central Airlines plane, bound from Wichita to Kansas City, crashed in the dense undergrowth at the edge of Fairfax airport near here late today.

The ship was the second section of the regular three o'clock passage from Wichita. The first section arrived safely with ten passengers just before the other plane plunged to death and burst into flames.

The dead, Dyke Lauderman of Kansas City, Kas., pilot; Margaret Dice, St. Joseph, Mo.; C. Roy McKinnon, Homewood, Illinois; William Flynn of Kansas City, manager of the Globe Theater and former alderman and democratic leader in Kansas City; Miss James Egger, 54, Chicago.

Account Given

An eye witness account of the tragedy was given by F. H. Brown of Kansas City, who was awaiting the arrival of McKinnon.

"Standing just within the waiting room of the air line, I saw the plane appear in the sky south of the field. I turned to the attendant and said, 'That was the Central Airlines plane. He said he didn't know yet whether it was or not.'

"A moment later," Brown said, "while the plane was almost a mile away and only about 200 feet in the air, the attendant said, 'The Central Airlines plane and he ran out to prepare for the landing.

Oil And Gas Men To Gather Friday

General Meet Of Producers At Fort Worth To Probe Recent Cut In Prices Of Crude Oil In State

(By Associated Press) DALLAS, Jan. 27.—Call for a general meeting of all oil and gas producers in Texas to be held at Fort Worth Friday, January 31, was issued here today by Edward T. Moore, president of the Texas division of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association.

The meeting was called to consider the report of the special committee appointed last Monday to investigate the causes of the recent crude oil price cut and to recommend a course of action.

Recommended Curtailment

The committee recommended a sharp curtailment of production and urged that immediate steps be taken to place it into effect.

Moore made public the report because he said he wanted producers of the state to know what the committee's report will be and give them time to devote some thought to the subject before the meeting convenes.

He urged a careful study of the report so that careful and thorough consideration might be accorded it.

The report was signed by Warner Clark, chairman, and John P. O'Donoghue, Charles F. Rosser, J. E. Birdwell, Robert R. Penn, Edgar J. Marston, Frank Cullinan and T. B. Hoffer, members of the committee.

Demolished Ship Presents New Clue In Search For Two Missing Fliers In Frozen Northland

(By Associated Press) NOME, Alaska, Jan. 27.—Searchers today dug into tightly packed snow and ice around the wreckage of an airplane 30 miles southeast of North Cape, Siberia, in their quest for Carl Ben Eielson and Harold Gillingham, American aviators missing since November 8, last.

Pilots Joe Croson and Harold Gillingham who Saturday located the wreckage, specified in their report that it was the demolished all-metal monoplane flown by Eielson and Benland.

Both Croson and Gillingham who landed their planes on the snow to examine the wreckage, had flown Eielson's plane and said they recognized it instantly.

Four men, taken to the scene yesterday from the ice locked trading ship Nankin in planes piloted by Joe Croson and Harold Gillingham, explored the area around the wreckage in the belief that Eielson and Benland were flung out to instant death when their ship crashed in a blind

Right To Offer Discussions For French Limitations Plan Given After Three Hours Of Wrangling

Italy's Proposal To Wait; American And Japanese Delegations Mark Time Until Action Taken

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Jan. 27. (P)—France today gained a technical victory on a point of procedure for the formal agenda of the five-power naval disarmament conference after a meeting of the chief delegates at number 10 Downing street.

What actually happened was that after nearly three hours of keen discussion the delegates endeavored to settle part of their disagreement by invoking the alphabet, and under its auspices France, by precedence over Italy, was granted the right to propose discussion of the French plan for limitation of naval armaments by total tonnage instead of by categories of ships.

Secretary of State Stimson admitted that today's meeting, which lasted far past the hours for lunch, had proceeded more slowly than he desired.

For the Americans and the Japanese it was largely a day of watchful waiting while the European delegates maneuvered in a maze of technicalities relating to Franco-Italian problems, including naval parity.

Ralls Youth Dies Of Electrocuting

Highly Charged Barbed Wire Causes Death Of Curon Tanton; Broken Power Furnishes Current

(Special To Avalanche)

RALLS, Jan. 27.—His body contacting with a highly charged barbed wire fence through a broken highline, Curon Tanton, 17-year-old stepson of D. A. Senn, farmer residing four and one-half miles northwest of here, was instantly killed near his home.

"Death by electrocution," was the verdict returned following a coroner's inquest held just before noon in the office of Justice of the Peace R. M. Read, assisted by Dr. E. R. Haney. No funeral arrangements have been set.

A report given by the father and mother stated that Mrs. Senn, noticed a grass fire, approximately 100 yards from the home, shortly after 8 o'clock this morning and sent young Tanton to investigate. When he did not return in a period of time estimated at from 20 to 30 minutes, Mrs. Senn went to the scene and found the lad lying across the barbed wire fence, apparently lifeless.

At a point a mile and a half west of the accident's scene it was discovered that a Texas Utilities company highline, running between Ralls and Floydada, had broken, contacting with and heavily charging the fence leading to the point where the lad was killed. Utilities company employees discovered the break and cut off the power some time between the time the boy was electrocuted and when his stepfather took the body from the wire. They did not know, however, until later, that there had been a casualty as result of the highline's break.

The grass fire was ignited when the heavily charged fence became so hot that it broke, falling into the high grass.

J. E. Dickey Is Painfully Bruised In Car Crash

J. E. Dickey, of 2014 Tenth street, was painfully injured Monday morning about 7:30 o'clock when he was struck by an automobile at 1311 Main street.

He was taken to the West Texas hospital for medical examination, which revealed that he suffered severe bruises about his body, lacerations about the head and strained muscles in his hip. Reports last night from his home stated that he was resting nicely.

According to Dickey, he had stopped his car in front of his place of business and had just stepped out and was standing near. Another car, said to have been driven by Jack Puga, struck the rear of the parked auto which in turn hit Dickey, knocking him about 30 feet down the pavement.

Should Not Drink

At the hearing, Representatives Cochran, Democrat, Missouri, and Stone, republican, Oklahoma, had inquired whether dry agents should not pledge themselves to abstain from liquor drinking.

Mitchell wrote that he believed "that no man who makes a practice of drinking intoxicating liquor or who has definite or pronounced views in opposition to prohibition, belongs, during this administration, in any post having directly to do with the prosecution of cases under the national prohibition act."

Where Byrd and Companions Await Rescue

Marooned behind 300 miles of solidifying ice at "the bottom of the world" and unprepared to face the rigors of another Antarctic winter, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, upper right, and his 35 companions in Little America may be in dire peril unless one of the Norwegian or British whaling vessels in the region break through to their rescue. The Byrd ship City of New York, on route to bring back the stranded party, was halted more than 500 miles from its objective, as shown on the map, upper left. It is feared that this craft, seen lower right, is too light to penetrate the frozen waters. Lower left you see a typical view of the great ice pack which surrounds the Antarctic continent. In the center are Bendix Johnson (top), ice pilot for the expedition, and Capt. Frederick C. Melville, skipper of the City of New York, upon whom the safety of the explorers may depend.

Abilene Railway Hearing Started

Forty-Five Mile Extension To Cross Plains Sought In Session; Expected To Last Until Wednesday

(By Associated Press) ABILENE, Jan. 27.—At a session that probably will last through Wednesday, a hearing was opened here today on the application of Frank Kell of Wichita Falls and his Abilene associates for a permit to construct the Abilene and Eastern railway, a 45-mile line from Abilene to Cross Plains.

Kell, principal witness today, picked the A. & E. as a going concern from the start. He estimated its income account on operating revenue at $100,000 the first year, as against an expense of $84,000. After the first year, according to his estimate, the annual revenue would be $201,125 a year.

Freight Estimated

For the first year he estimated the total freight revenue at $168,825, accruing from 4,881 cars of freight hauled with earnings of $38.75 per car average.

Kell said he himself would construct and operate the line if a permit were given, and would have it going six months after the work was started. He told of the plan of himself and his Abilene associates, who will own 50 per cent of the line, to

Defense Makes Motion For Suspended Sentence In Case Of Conviction; John Brady Drunk, Claim

(By Associated Press)

COURT ROOM, AUSTIN, Jan. 27. (P)—In this high old chamber filled with memories for John W. Brady, four star prosecution witnesses told this afternoon what they saw of the knife slaying of Miss Leila Highsmith for whose murder the 39-year-old former appeals court justice is on trial.

One F. R. McNaughton said he wrested a knife from Brady a moment after the girl had been stabbed; another, Frank Graham, Jr., said he saw Brady "strike" the girl who she stood there and saw him bending over her still striding; a third, King McFarlan, swore he saw Brady pull out a knife and heard him threaten Miss Highsmith; the last, Mrs. R. B. Crider, testified she saw Brady's arm movement as the girl sank to the ground, and heard the girl cry out "Please don't do that."

Lived With Victim

Two of these witnesses, McNaughton and Mrs. Crider, lived at the rooming house above Mrs. Highsmith stayed. It was in front of this house that she was stabbed to death on the night of November 9, 1929.

The first, F. R. McNaughton, a stationary company employee told of drinking with Brady on the afternoon of November 9, of attending a football game, and then going back to the rooming house. Here, he testified, Brady became loud and unruly and finally was turned out by Mrs. McNaughton.

McNaughton repeatedly testified that he didn't believe Brady was "drunk," except on cross examination he said he was not qualified to say definitely.

He said that early on the night of the killing, Brady, Miss Highsmith, Mrs. McNaughton, Graham, Mrs. L. J. Nachtrab and himself were in the McNaughton apartment. After Brady was sent away, he added, the others went to the home of a Mrs. Martin.

Tells of Quarrel

An hour or so later, McNaughton testified, Miss Highsmith, Graham and himself, went back to the rooming house to get a portable phonograph. They met Brady coming out.

Highsmith Claims Responsibility In Lawyer Dismissal

Father Issues Statement Explaining That He Requested Special Prosecution To Withdraw

COURT ROOM, AUSTIN, Jan. 27. (P)—A statement saying that at his request, special prosecutors in the John Brady murder trial were dismissed was issued today by A. G. B. Highsmith, father of Miss Leah Highsmith, whom Brady is accused of slaying.

Highsmith said: "During the early part of last December, after full consideration, I determined that I preferred to have the prosecution of this case conducted by the officers of the law who had no interest in the case except that incident to the performance of an official duty, and therefore that I did not want the gentlemen who had been employed as private prosecutors to any longer continue in the case. This decision on my part was reached without any consultation whatever with Mr. Brooks (district attorney), and since these gentlemen were originally in the case as my representatives, I did not consider it necessary to state publicly any reason for my conclusion that I no longer desired their services. However, on December 14, I wrote Mr. Brooks, telling him of my conclusion and my reasons.

Prosecutors Advised. "He had never broached the subject to me prior to that time. On December 15, Mr. Brooks wrote me saying that in accordance with the conclusion I had reached, he was writing to the gentlemen who had been employed as private prosecutors, requesting their withdrawal. Upon receipt of this letter I immediately wrote to them also, requesting their withdrawal and nothing further was said until nearly a month later when Messrs. Harris and Harris saw fit to publish an isolated part of the correspondence written by themselves to the district attorney, and making no mention of the fact that I also had requested them to withdraw. Although the matter was then nearly a month old, it was thus made public on the very eve of the trial, at a time when further public discussion of this irrelevant issue could only serve to disqualify prospective jurors for this reason neither the district attorney nor myself was willing to make any statement until after the jury was empaneled. His action was taken at my suggestion and with my sanction and cooperation, and any intimation to the contrary is unfounded in fact. This statement is given to the press with the request that it either be published in full and as written or not at all."

TROUBLE NEARS END Workers, Employers Join Forces In Florida

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 27. (P)—Workers and employers in the building trades joined forces here today to eliminate jurisdictional disputes from the building industry, appointing a joint sub-committee to work out details of a system of mediation.

All parties concerned declared the action one of the most important taken in years toward elimination of a trouble which has cost millions and thrown thousands out of work annually.

Committees representing both the executive council to the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor and the National Association of Building Trades employers, at a joint executive session, appointed the sub-committee of six to consider plans for the establishment of the medium for amicable settlement.

IDENTITY NOT LEARNED ALPINE, Jan. 27. (P)—Identity of the man found dead in a cave near Lajitas on the Rio Grande several weeks ago remains a mystery. The only marks of identification found on the body were business cards bearing the name of a San Antonio real estate firm and laundry marks on his clothing. Neither helped in solving his identity, however.

Officers believed the man was an ex-soldier. The body was found in a cave overlooking the Grand Canyon of the Rio Grande, where the man had made camp. He died from natural causes, the coroner's verdict stated.

Prohibition Raid Ends In Fatality

Death Of Garland City Man Will Be Investigated By Grand Jury; Victim Dies In Texarkana Hospital

TEXARKANA, Ark., Jan. 27. (P)—Death of Oscar Call, 23, Garland City, fatally wounded in a prohibition raid yesterday, will be investigated by the LaPayette county grand jury, Steve Carrigan, prosecuting attorney, announced today.

Carrigan said he had not received a report from officers in the party, who included Sheriff R. H. Duty and deputies Bryan Cryer, J. Hatch and George Powell.

Call died last night at a hospital here. He was shot as he fled from a liquor still raided 15 miles south of Lewisville, Ark. He sought refuge in the home of a farmer. Hearing that a wounded man was dying at the farmer's house, Sheriff Duty found Call and rushed him to Texarkana.

Sheriff Duty and Deputy Cryer said they had not fired at Call, but were firing to halt three men fleeing from the still, shooting in front and to the rear of the fugitives. Deputies Hatch and Powell were some distance away when the shooting occurred. The three men escaped.

Hoover Flayed By Committee Member

Failure Of President To Send Customs Collector Candidate To Senate Is Reason For Criticism

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 27. (P)—Failure of President Hoover to forward to the Senate the name of a candidate for appointment as customs collector in the Laredo district drew the fire of Mrs. Florence Griswold of San Antonio, member of the national republican executive committee today.

The majority of the Texas republican executive committee, Mrs. Griswold said, have endorsed W. K. McDowell of Del Rio for the post, now held by Roy Campbell.

Names Not Submitted. Announcement was made in Washington Saturday that the president would not send the names of Campbell and John D. Hartman, United States District Attorney here, to the Senate for confirmation. Senators McKellar and Brookhart already had filed protests against their reappointment. It was planned, Washington dispatches said, to let Campbell and Hartman hold over, as submission of their names to the Senate would bring on a patronage fight.

In her telegram to President Hoover today, Mrs. Griswold said: "If newspaper dispatches from Washington are correct concerning the intention of retaining Roy Campbell as collector of customs without submitting his name to the Senate, I wish to go on record as stating that in this instance National Committeeman Cragger is not following the wishes of 36 of the 31 members of the Republican State Committee who are in favor of appointing another candidate as clearly shown by the records on file with the Secretary of the treasury."

Mrs. Griswold asserted the 26 members of the state committee endorsed McDowell at Washington last March.

TO INVESTIGATE TITLE AUSTIN, Jan. 27. (P)—Representative Cecil Story of Vernon is preparing a resolution which would require appointment of a committee to investigate title of the approximately 80,000 acres of land owned by the state as a part of its penitentiary system.

The proposed investigation was inspired in part by discovery of legislators on their recent inspection trip to prison lands that all mineral rights had been reserved by the parties who sold the Blue Ridge farm tract to the state and that considerable oil is being produced there.

BOYS MAKE PROFITS COLORADO, Jan. 27. (P)—Three Mitchell county club boys who fed out baby beavers during 1929, realized an average of $74 per ton for home grown maize, according to records furnished by W. S. Foeter, county agent, under whose direction the calves were fed.

The boys received a nice price for the baby beavers because of the finished condition and high quality, which was a factor entering into the obtaining of high prices for the maize.

"Believe It Or Not" But Senior at Tech Wins Prize from Bob Ripley

Frank Ward, Tech senior from Wichita Falls, is in receipt of a volume of "Believe It Or Not," complete works thus far by Cartoonist Robert Ripley, as a reward for his solving the "bottle mystery," portrayed by Ripley in the Morning Avalanche two weeks ago.

In the cartoon, Ripley, whose feature is carried daily in The Morning Avalanche and who is one of the greatest successes in the newspaper field of features, offered a prize for correct solutions to how water could supplant wine in a bottle without cutting the glass or breaking the seal.

Young Ward explained how a bottle filled with wine and placed under sufficient pressure became porous and the lighter wine forced out as water took its place. He was one of between 200 and 300 persons in the United States sending in the correct answer to the problem.

Answer Awaited On Dictatorship

MADRID, Jan. 27. (AP)—Primo de Rivera today awaited the answer of leading military and naval officers of Spain to his point-blank issue his dictatorship or tender his resignation to King Alfonso at once.

The leading military and naval heads number about 17. All of them owe their rise to the general. They comprise two captain generals, the chief of the forces in Morocco, three naval officers and the directors of the Guardia civil.

General Primo, issuing a formal note to them Sunday, said he would resign within five minutes should the reply be that he was no longer wanted.

His action followed a month of unrest during which signs of weakness of his government were persistent.

Three Are Charged In Chicken Theft

Slim Erwin, Doug Ashley and Toot Turner, all Lubbock county residents, were arrested Sunday night two and one-half miles east of the Woodrow community and charged early yesterday afternoon with theft of chickens from the farm of T. A. Stevens, who lives 10 miles south of Lubbock.

Returning Sunday night from church Mr. Stevens questioned one of the three near the family residence and was told that they stopped to get water for their radiator. The farmer later reported to the sheriff's department and the three were arrested a short time afterwards.

It Is Easy To End Fat

That is, in the right way, used by modern physicians. No abnormal exercise or diet, but help to a gland that is weak. The recent large reduction in excess fat has been largely due to that method.

This modern method is embodied in Marmola's prescription tablets. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. In almost every circle you can see the amazing change it brings.

If over-fat, you owe yourself a trial of Marmola's. Don't remain abnormal. All druggists supply Marmola at $1 a box. Each box states the formula and tells the reasons for results. Start growing thin, as your friends have done, at once.

Old Square Dance Is Gala Function

Two Hundred Guests Attend Event Given By Messrs. Hilton And Myrick

Holding interest for 200 guests was a square dance given Saturday evening from 8:30 to 12 o'clock in the ballroom of the Hotel Lubbock. Hosts and hostesses for the event were Messrs. and Mesdames Hub Jones, Joe Hilton, and Walter Myrick, Jr.

Music for the occasion was furnished by an old fiddlers' orchestra from Tahoma, which played a variety of old-time familiar numbers for the dancing of such steps as the figure eight, right schott, ocean wave, right hand across and how do you do, and other old favorites interspersed with the waltz, two-step, and schottisches.

Punch was served throughout the evening. A revival of the old-time dance is taking place in Lubbock, and in certain circles is becoming as popular as the modern dance. One of the most interesting of these functions given during the winter months was the Cowboys' Christmas ball given at Christmas time by Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sheffield. Two hundred fifty guests were present on this occasion, and all joined in dancing the old steps.

That Few Women Are Born Beautiful Is Belief Of Eve VeVerka, Who Is To Tell Local Women Charm Secrets

Modern science has contributed most wholeheartedly to the education of womanly beauty. Old methods are being rapidly replaced by newer ones that prove more effective and longer lasting. Facial treatment for many of the minor defects has become a science. Eve VeVerka has made an extensive study of this subject both in Europe and throughout America. She will demonstrate the latest methods each day during her series of five free lectures on "Beauty, Health and Charm," to be conducted at the Uptown Dance Palace, under the auspices of the Avalanche-Journal. The lectures will be given on February 3-7, inclusive.

The women of Lubbock will have the opportunity of learning first-hand from this internationally famous beauty expert how to care for the skin and remove the unwanted extra chin.

"Built-in" Beauty. Eve VeVerka states that, like the proverbial "way to a man's heart is through his stomach," so it is with a woman to her beauty. She says that in a great measure "what you eat makes you what you are."

"More people eat their way to ill health, ugliness and the grave than die of contagious disease."

This noted beauty and health expert instructs her listeners in the building of a perfect body by correct eating and supplement the ultimate health effects with the proper grooming—facial and dress, which results in what she terms as "built-in" beauty.

Eve VeVerka will talk at length on the proper arrangements of diet and the usual fallacies on the subject. She will remind her hearers of the correct dieting for the growing child, for disciplinary reasons and the establishment of life habits as well as for immediate benefit. She believes that one cannot start too early to be beautiful.

"No fad in recent years has wrought so much havoc with health and feminine beauty as ill-advised dieting," the charm specialist declares, adding: "If you are practicing reducing for the sake of pleasing men, for Heaven's sake use discretion. Men do not like headless armless and hipless women. They prefer an armful."

"One Must Strive for Beauty." Eve VeVerka's philosophy of beauty which will be expounded by lecture and demonstration during the school is that few girls are born to be beautiful and charming, but that most women must plan work to attain charm.

The wise use of one's own brain will bring all the beauty and charm that will ever be needed," according to Eve VeVerka. She lists four things which any individual may win—poise, confidence, health and perfect grooming.

This noted expert is a psychologist and her teachings deal not alone with outward beauty, which is often traditionally "skin deep." She is a champion of the proved theory that real beauty has its inception in one's own brain.

"The perfection of a complexion—the scientific application of cosmetics and careful grooming are, of course, most essential, but real beauty—magnetic attractiveness—is born in the mind. It is charm and in most cases it is self-developed."

Foiled by Moderation! THE HEARTLESS SHADOW that threatens the modern figure

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—"The Cream of the Crop"—"IT'S TOASTED." Every one knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fads reducing tablets or other quick "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Broken Mains Are Reported In City Following Freeze

Several Streets Flooded To Present New Problem To Employees Of Lubbock Water Department

With rising temperatures and thawing pipes, employees of the city water department are facing a new trouble as broken mains flood several streets.

A working force of about 25 men has been on the job day and night in an effort to locate and stop the leaks.

A two-inch line broke Sunday at 501 Avenue Q, and a small main was leaking heavily in the 2100 block on 12th street.

Other locations where lines burst are 1315 Avenue E, corner of Avenue V and 28th street; Fifth street and Avenue R; 515 Fifteenth street and the 1400 block on Avenue O.

India Makes Move For Independence

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 27. (AP)—Stirring scenes were enacted in various parts of India Sunday as nationalist advocates the empire over expressed their aspirations for Indian independence.

One hundred thousand assembled at Chowpatty Sands and passed a resolution of independence. A strong communist mill workers faction clashed with nationalists, and in free-for-all fighting several were injured.

At Ashram, the little colony of Mahatma Gandhi, venerable advocates of passive resistance to British dominion, spent the day with fasting and spinning and at an evening meeting in the presence of their leader passed the resolution for independence.

Huge processions were held here at New Delhi, Calcutta, Lahore and Ahmadabad.

Jewels, precious, semi-precious and imitation, are worn on midday's sun, truck, hat, shoes, palamas and fur. Even her dog has jewels.

Handbags of tweed to match the tweed ensembles are well liked this season.

Which Princess Will Wales Marry?

With the bachelor Prince of Wales making no effort to find himself a bride, the list of European princesses eligible to share the throne of the British Kingdom is fast dwindling. Marriage of pretty Marie Jose, of Belgium, reduced the field to eight, and two more royal marriages are in prospect. The princesses from whose ranks Wales must choose a bride, if he marries, are: Ingrid of Sweden, 19, tall, blond, socially popular and a favorite prospect; Maria Cristina of Spain, 18, one of the best-dressed princesses; Beatrice of Spain, 20, brunet and a fine dancer; Giovanna of Italy, 22, with coal-black hair, but whose eyes are set on the Bulgarian throne; Juliana of Holland, 20, blond and buxom, but whose marriage to a Teutonic prince seems a certainty; Eudokia of Bulgaria, 31, domestically inclined and caretaker of the palace of her brother Boris; Wilhelmina of Luxembourg, 32, blond and exceptionally fine cook; Ileana of Rumania, 20, a real blond beauty and taller than the prince.

C. U. James Will Run For Post On Commission Here

After 14 years residence in Lubbock county, C. U. James, a farmer residing 10 miles northwest of Lubbock, has entered his candidacy for the office of county commissioner in Precinct No. 4.

Mr. James has never asked for public office before, he said, and in offering his candidacy this year asks support upon a platform of fair play. "I am not offering any sensational reasons for voting for me," he said, "but I ask the voters' support upon a platform of honest, diligent and efficient duty if I am elected."

Mr. James moved to Lubbock county from Collin county.

Opposing Talkies Amusement Ban Spreads

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 27. (AP)—Deputy Luis Sotelo Regil of Campeche, shouted down when he introduced a bill in the chamber for the suppression of bull fighting, boxing and cock fighting, has joined in the public debate over American talking pictures, opposing the stand of Acting Foreign Secretary Genaro Estrada against the pictures.

Deputy Sotelo has added motion pictures to his list of "savage pastimes," but finds nothing objectionable about the talkies. He says the campaign against them is misdirected and should be aimed instead at the diversions he considers degrading.

Pullen Out For Oklahoma Office

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 27. (AP)—Jesse Pullen state senator of Sulphur, announced today that he would be a candidate on the democratic ticket for nomination in the primary election next summer for governor of Oklahoma.

"My fight," he said "will center around public health, public roads, conservation of natural resources and taxation."

Texas Property Owners Lose Out

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. (AP)—An appeal of T. H. Isensee and other property owners attacking validity of the statute under which the Nueces county, Texas, fresh water supply district No. 1 was created was dismissed today by the Supreme Court.

Justice Holmes, presiding in the absence of Chief Justice Taft, after polling the court dismissed the case for want of a federal question.

Counsel for protesting property owners contended the original act was unconstitutional because it did not provide for a hearing for property owners in the matter of a boundary for the district, nor on the question of benefits which would result from the district. It insisted the Texas Supreme Court was wrong in holding the validating act, passed after suit had started, had corrected defects in the original act.

Members of the court here said they were bound by the construction placed on the state statute by Texas courts, and, after doing the unusual in complimenting M. G. Eckhardt, Jr., of Corpus Christi, Texas, representing the protesting property owners, declined to hear counsel for the district.

Uncontrolled, the plane continued on for about half a mile and crashed within a few feet of a group of houses, the witnesses said.

T. I. A. A. Quintet Is Easy Victim For Texas Tech Cagers As Locals Annex Eighth Consecutive Victory

Maxwell and Fisher Lead Scoring Attack On Enemy Basket In Ragged Exhibition; Black Is Outstanding Scorer For Losers

By ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor

Outclassed in every department of play, the Wildcat basketballers from Abilene Christian College were easy victims last night at the college gymnasium as the Texas Tech basketball quintet romped away with its eighth straight triumph of the season, 40 to 21.

A full house turned out to see the rambling Matadors humble the Christians in the easiest victory for the home team this year. Tech's win over the Purple cagers last night was decisive, but the opposition was far below standard for an A. C. C. hardfloor combination.

Cats Below Par.

The visitors showed little of the brilliant performance that has characterized the majority of Wildcat basketball exhibitions in the past. Coach Bug Morris understood the crew was no match for the rangy Tech sharpshooters and the outcome was never questionable.

Tech took the lead early in the opening period and the Matadors continued to pile up their score as the ragged exhibition wore on. Captain Leon Fisher and California Bill Maxwell led the first half assault, the two scoring 18 of the 23 points registered by the locals during the first twenty minutes of play. Moon Black, flashy little A. C. C. forward, was the whole show for the visitors in the opening stanzas, scoring 7 of their 9 points.

Enjoying a comfortable lead, the Tech five let up considerably in the last half, allowing the invaders to come back with 12 additional markers while the homeboys were counting 19. Before the contest ended, Coach Payne had sent his entire squad of 14 men on the floor.

Maxwell Is High

Scoring honors last night went to Bill Maxwell who lead the field with 11 points. Captain Fisher was next in line with 10 markers. Tech's guards, Tadlock and Vinsant, came in for their share of the scoring, the former with 8 and the latter with 7.

"Moon" Black was the individual scoring star for the Cats, accounting for 9 of their 20 tallies.

Tonight's game between the same teams starts at 8 o'clock.

Photographs May Be Worth Million

TEXARKANA, Ark., Jan. 27. (AP)—Photographs which may support the claim of Silas A. Lazarus, formerly of Sherman, Dallas and Amarillo, to one-third of the estimated $2,000,000 estate of the late Sam Lazarus, Texas and St. Louis capitalist, were traced to a Dallas detective agency here today in deposition taken before a special federal commissioner.

H. C. Thatcher, former investigator of the Thiel Service company, Dallas, testified he turned photographs in to headquarters after obtaining them from Mrs. Margaret Paxson, of Sherman, an aunt of Silas, nearly two years ago.

The deposition was in connection with a suit filed against Mrs. Lily N. Lazarus, widow of Sam Lazarus, for enforcement of an alleged contract between Sam and Silas Lazarus in 1911.

Ballot Recounting Is Thought Likely

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. (AP)—Brought back into the election count hearing by John H. Bickett Jr., attorney for Representative Augustus McCloskey, a possibility of recounting the Texas county, Texas, ballots in the 1928 congressional race between Representative McCloskey, democrat, and Harry M. Wurzbach, republican, for a seat from the Fourteenth Congressional district, today was again before the house elections committee.

Bickett provided all committee members with magnifying glasses with which to study tally sheets and return sheets alleged by Wurzbach to be fraudulent, and told them that on the basis of that study they should make a final decision as to whether the ballot boxes should be opened and the ballots counted.

Schepps Five To Play Athens Team

National Schoolboy Champs Tangle With Crack Cag Crew From T. C. U. Wednesday At Athens

ATHENS, Jan. 27. (AP)—Two of the fastest basketball teams in the Southwest, the Athens High School Hornets, national champions in 1929, and Schepps Aves, crack independent team of Fort Worth, will meet here Wednesday night.

The game is attracting wide attention. The Schepps team is composed almost exclusively of members of the Texas Christian university squad and has been trimming all opposition, including the Prog varsity. Two stars of the team, "Doc" Summer and Buster Brannon, played with the champion Athens quintet last year.

As a result of the Hornets' decisive victory over Denton high here Friday and Saturday, local sportsmen are envisioning another national title. The Hornets were runners-up for the state crown last year and generally are regarded as the greatest obstacle in the Hornets' path. Estelene, Tyler and Austin also are reported unusually strong.

Coach Jimmy Kittle believes "Country Boys" will take them all when the time comes.

Mickey Walker to Confer with Com

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission is scheduled to consider tomorrow the case of Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, with the chances great that the 160-pounder will make peace with the colons and defend his crown against Rene de O. Beigan challenger, in Madison Square Garden, March 14.

Walker, suspended here three years ago for failure to defend his title in the specified time limit, aggravated his offenses by failing to appear before the commission when summoned. He has not fought in New York state since winning the middleweight crown from the late Tiger Flowers at Chicago in 1926.

Wrigley Criticizes Some Club Owners For Retarding Baseball

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.—Take it from one of the well-known men of baseball—William Wrigley, Jr.—there is nothing radically wrong with the great American pastime, but "some of the club owners haven't kept step with the times."

Wrigley's name is pretty well established in the business world and he is the richest man in baseball. He owns the Chicago Cubs, the Los Angeles team of the Pacific Coast League, and the Reading, Pa. club.

As democratic as Tony the Book-black "Bill" Wrigley will talk baseball anytime, any place. He warms up like a sunshiny afternoon when the subject is mentioned.

"Baseball doesn't need any sympathy, if you know what I mean," he says. "It's the soundest pleasure stock the American public has invested in during the last half century."

"The only trouble with the game, as I see it, is that some of the club owners haven't kept up with its progress. They don't give the customers value received for their money in the way of accommodations. A lot of parks in both major leagues are eyesores to the community and insults to the paying public. The same old stands that father sat in in his youth are providing parking space for the son today."

"More than $45,000,000 is invested in equipment in the major leagues. As long as there is that much in, several millions more should be modernizing every plant and give the customers a first class run for their money."

Baseball's future is assured. Otherwise it would have been killed 40 years ago. Charles Ebbetts, deceased former owner of the Brooklyn Nationals, once said "Baseball is still in its infancy."

That still goes except they've got a few more safety pins in it."

Last year his Chicago team won the National League pennant. It cost him $464,000 worth of players to turn the trick. Was it worth it? Don't ask. He already has bought five new players to strengthen his 1930 team and is looking around for more talent. In short, he is after the flag again and is confident it will fly from his club's masthead when the season is over.

(AP)—With two days more for practice rounds for the ninth annual Texas open golf tournament, the Brackenridge Park Municipal course battle ground for the $1,500 in prizes, was dotted with players Monday trying out their best strokes, and among whom a young amateur of San Antonio, Jimmie Vincent, turned in the best score, 69.

Among others were Johnny Golden, of Patterson, N. J., who shot a 70; W. A. (Lefty) Stackhouse, Hillsboro, Texas, 70; and Lewis Mathews, Cisco, Texas, 77, and Fred McLeod, Washington D. C., 71.

Lower Water Rate Looms for Lamesa

LAMESA, Jan. 27.—(Special)—New low water rates for this city, to go into effect February 1, were announced here this week by Mayor E. B. Warren and the city commission following an ordinance passed January 14. The rates were fixed as follows: A minimum of 2,000 gallons at $1.00, with excess water above the minimum for domestic use at 15c per thousand gallons. Commercial use above the minimum has a fixed rate of 25c per thousand and gallons up to 200,000 gallons. Should the user consume more than 200,000 gallons the rate will be 15c per thousand gallons.

"Lamesa now has as low water rates as any city of similar population in this general section and by far lower than a number of neighboring cities," Mayor Warren stated when he gave out this news story.

Gorilla Jones Is Victor in Match

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. (AP)—Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., negro middleweight, knocked out Izzy Grove, New York, in the seventh round of their 10-round bout at the St. Nicholas arena here tonight. Jones weighed 156 1-2; Grove 157 1-2.

Jones floored the New Yorker four times before the knockdown that ended the fight. A good hitter with either hand, Jones slammed Grove all around the ring and had the New Yorker holding on after the third round.

Ancient Parks Are Cause For Cub Chief's Pain

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.—Take it from one of the well-known men of baseball—William Wrigley, Jr.—there is nothing radically wrong with the great American pastime, but "some of the club owners haven't kept step with the times."

Wrigley's name is pretty well established in the business world and he is the richest man in baseball. He owns the Chicago Cubs, the Los Angeles team of the Pacific Coast League, and the Reading, Pa. club.

As democratic as Tony the Book-black "Bill" Wrigley will talk baseball anytime, any place. He warms up like a sunshiny afternoon when the subject is mentioned.

Thirty-Five Out For Opening Day Under Grid Chief

Array Of New Material Is In Uniform Monday As Six-Week's Grind: Nine Letter Men Back

Thirty-five lads who will carry the burden in Lubbock High school's 1930 football campaign crawled into their molehills Monday afternoon to initiate spring training under the direction of Head Coach Henry E. Franks.

It was a likely looking army of high school busters that reported to the Westerner commander and the opening day found the golden-jerseyed candidates lumbering up beneath a warm sunshine.

While the majority of the men who started the six-week spring grind yesterday were from the ranks of former local squad, there was an imposing array of new forces who donned a Westerner uniform for the first time. From this horde of newcomers, Coach Franks hopes to find material to plug the rapping holes left in the forward wall, due to graduation.

A glimpse of the squad that Lubbock will have backfield material a plenty next fall, but the line prospect is anything but rosy. Of the ten letter men that were lost to the team, five were regulars in the Westerner front line.

In addition to the 35 that were issued equipment yesterday, another score of ambitious footballers were turned away with no uniforms. These were told to come back again today with the possibility that ten more suits will be given out.

The opening day's activity for the 1930 Westerners was limited for the most part to lumbering-up exercises. This program will continue until the gridsters have begun to round into a more strenuous training condition.

Captain-elect W. D. Lawson, all-district quarterback last season, was one of the first to make his appearance on the high school practice field. Lawson is one of the nine letter men who will be in harness when the fall training season opens. Only five of these were in uniform yesterday. McGeehee and Green are two letter men who are working with the high school basketball squad.

Waco Barber Held On Murder Charge

WACO, Jan. 27. (AP)—Lee W. Whitley, Waco barber, charged with the murders of Sam Kua, hamburger stand operator, and Alex Bush, an employee, was denied being today in an examining trial before Justice of the Peace Aubrey Morris.

Abe Ellis Jr., and Rex Bass, two customers who were in the stand at the time of the shooting, Patrolman R. M. Brownlow, the officer who arrested Whitley, Alonzo Mendolia, a dishwasher who was struck by a stray bullet, and John Cassidy, an employee, were the witnesses.

"I'm going to kill you," both customers quoted Whitley as saying to Kua when he entered the stand.

John Cassidy, an employee of the stand, said Whitley turned the gun on Bush after he had shot Kua. Other witnesses said Bush was shot when he attempted to knock the gun from Whitley's hand.

Mr. Roberts is scheduled to speak on the program during the week and the Lubbock delegation will extend an invitation to the school to select this city as its meeting place next year.

OVER 17 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

AN OLD TIMER'S SCRAPBOOK BY TIM MCGRATH

HOW TIM ALMOST GOT YOUNG GRIFFO TO TRAIN FOR A FIGHT—WITH THE AID OF A PIANO

Young Griffio, that great Australian eccentric, had me completely beaten at the job of training him.

On his second start for America, he reached San Francisco. The first time, he changed his mind as the vessel was leaving Sydney, and jumped overboard, swimming back.

Griffio was too fast and too clever to be a hard puncher. With a punch he would have become a wonder of all time. He was satisfied to make monkeys of his opponents—and usually did. He lacked ambition. Glory and money meant nothing. He loved his good times so well that no trainer ever succeeded in getting him in good condition for a fight.

His was a wonderful defense. He had immense shoulders, although a lightweight, and a big neck. It was impossible to hit his chin when he buried it in his chest. He went through many 20-round fights without being tapped above the shoulders. And he never took a fight seriously.

One of the bright-light spots that Griffio liked best was John Crowley's old Rosalie Cafe, in Mason street of pre-disaster San Francisco. Griffio had a good ear for music, and he also was a good club dancer. He loved to hoof while the Rosalie orchestra played. This attracted some attention. Crowley was pleased, and gave Griffio an expensive sweater for a present.

That gave me a bright idea. I engaged a piano player, and solicited the services of Tom Kelly, who still is successfully trouping the vaudeville circuits as a singer. We went over to the training camp and started up the piano. Kelly began singing what then was called "ragtime." The blithering music caught the ear of Griffio. He put on his new sweater and danced most of the afternoon.

I was elated. I phoned the news to W. W. Naughton, who later became a famous New York sports writer, that I'd found a way to train Griffio.

Next morning, while I was reading Naughton's story, Griffio came sauntering in, minus the fine sweater, but wearing a red flannel undershirt. He eagerly told me that he had traded the sweater to an Italian huckster for a ride from the training camp into town.

"All right, Griffio," I said, "let's go back to the training camp and have a lot more fun dancing this afternoon."

"Tim, my boy," he answered, "if you want to dance out there in the country, go ahead. But I'm going to dance in town. The music's lots better."

Griffio was illiterate. It was one of my jobs to read him any letters his Australian sweethearts sent him. But to maintain a sense of privacy, Griffio used to make me stuff cotton in my ears so I wouldn't hear what I was reading.

Alcohol Is Blamed In Woman's Death

HOUSTON, Jan. 27. (AP)—An inquest verdict of death due to alcoholic poisoning was returned here today in the death of Mrs. Vivian Hardy, 30.

She was known at the inn where she had been working a short time as Florence Marie McGowan and also as Vivian McKen, but was identified as Mrs. Hardy at a morgue by her former husband.

Mrs. Hardy had had a fight with another woman at the inn, officers were told, and had a number of bruises on her body.

Dr. Ernest Wright, county health officer, examined the body and declared the bruises did not show evidence of violence sufficient to cause death. No autopsy was held.

LEGATION STONED

Uruguayan Demonstration Is Staged Against Mexico

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 27. (AP)—The Mexican legation today was stoned by a small group of demonstrators. They broke the glass of the front door and escaped before the police arrived.

Because of recent demonstrations in front of Mexican embassies in Buenos Aires, Rio Janeiro and Washington, one officer had been stationed in front of the legation here for the past few days.

Today he was surprised by three men, who seized his arms and threw him to the ground. When he succeeded in freeing himself, he fired into the air and the attackers dispersed. He said that only ten or twelve men took part in the demonstration.

Eleven-Month-Old Mystery Before Grand Jury

MARSHALL, Jan. 27. (AP)—A grand jury today reopened its inquiry into the eleven months' old mystery of the death of H. B. Alston, railroad man, found beaten to death in a cemetery here.

The grand jury inquiry was ordered by Judge Ruben A. Hall on the statement of a man held in jail here that he knew Alston's slayer.

The Revolution in Sportswear

Intricate new details take outdoor apparel outside the realms of those simple little frocks worn in the dear dim days when the fair sex abandoned the sink to take up golf

I. This cotton ensemble, developed in shirting with diagonal stripes, uses a tuck-in blouse.

II. This tweed and knitted wool ensemble of rose and gray features a snugly fitting hip yoke, box pleats, and belt.

III. This cape coat of diagonal tweed chooses knitted dress fabric for a lining.

IV. Spongy woven cotton ratine is shown in this jacket suit which presents an inverted pleat at the skirt back.

V. Novel treatment of the bold red stripes adds interest to this linen tennis dress, fastened at the back by three obvious buttons.

A REVOLUTION is going on in sports wear as well as in the more formal attire. The 1930 Palm Beach styles register important changes of policy and treatment that affect the entire sartorial program.

For Palm Beach can always be depended upon to introduce the newest wrinkles and the smartest clothes, and its straws are the infallible indication of the direction of the style zephyrs.

One interesting and outstanding development is the popularity of cotton and wool, disputing as it has, the supremacy of silk.

The smart silhouette is not exaggerated. It is slim, graceful and natural. The waistline, though higher and usually belted, is less emphasized than it is in afternoon frocks, and the skirt is much less extreme, being just an easy, graceful length, a few inches below the knee.

LINING up the colors we find white leading easily, but it always does. Yellow and green both have favored positions, and there is much interest in a new pink. It is noticeable that black and white combinations are featured this year even for sport and that deep colors are given what artists call a "gray wash" to impart a slightly faded appearance. Pastel colors are more desirable than the hard, bright tones.

Gray is much featured in wool materials for sport, and the combination of gray and yellow is very smart. A touch of gray is used very deftly on many of the pastel shades, to add just the relief that is needed for contrast.

Stripes are smart and used in many interesting ways. They lend themselves admirably to the intricate cutting and the manipulation of material that is so inevitable.

There is a tendency to roughness in wool, particularly in tweeds and jerseys, and in silk fabrics. Shantung and pure silk weaves are newer than the flat crepes with the high sheen.

A DECIDED vogue for the cape is assured from the Palm Beach models, not only on coats, but on frocks as well—ending just a few inches above the natural waistline.

Illustrated today are some of the newest models created by William Bloom.

I. THIS cotton ensemble, which is developed in a fine cotton shirting with diagonal stripes, is worn with a tuck-in blouse. The blouse is also of shirting, but it features wider stripes. The jacket is not unlike, in cut, that which the lumberjack wears, with its large breast pockets and the wide belt to give the bloused line. The skirt features a wide yoke and a discriminating use of deep pleats.

II. HERE is a new version of tweed and knitted wool. It comes in the most alluring shade of rose that is blended with gray. The blouse with its fascinating neckline is of knitted wool, and the skirt is of a plain rose, and both are banded with the tweed of the coat. A snugly fitting hip yoke, box pleats, and a belt that is almost above the normal waistline are style points of importance.

III. THIS costume is one of the typical wool ensembles of diagonal tweed, featuring a shoulder cape coat, lined with the new knitted fabric that is used for the dress. The small scarf collar is an interesting finish at the collar, and the bag matches the coat. The frock is simplicity itself, with a modified princess line, and pleats in the skirt.

IV. A YOUTHFUL and smart golf costume is shown in this jacket suit of the spongy woven cotton ratine, with an inverted pleat at the back of the skirt, and the jacket which buttons squarely down the front. The blouse here is of knit cotton, and the turban is contrived of the ratine fabric.

V. FOR the tennis player, as well as for the woman who aspires to a good coat of tan, is the striped dress of linen boldly striped with red. The interest is achieved by the novel treatment of the stripes, and the back fastening with its very obvious three buttons—and not much else. The linen belt is worn at the natural waistline, and is buckled in front.

IN RE: WORLD PEACE

PRESIDENT Hoover and England's Prime Minister MacDonald sit on a log near a river's bank and talk disarmament. A conference is held and great nations send accredited representatives to party on the question of naval forces. Newspapers the length and breadth of the world are filled with reports of the doings at that conference but will it mean a great deal toward world peace in the final analysis?

The Morning Avalanche is idealistic enough to wish that war could never again cast its shadow across the world—but it is not idealistic enough to believe that conflict will be definitely banished, at least during this and the next generation. Gestures, such as those described in the first paragraph of this editorial make interesting reading, but that's about all at the present time.

As long as human nature remains essentially the same as it is today there is very little hope of peace. As long as there remains upon the face of the earth one people to whom war means conquest and romance, world peace can be little more than the will-of-the-wisp for which thinking peoples reach but can never quite grasp.

Civilization, as we see it, must take a great forward step before it can overcome the natural human desire for conflict.

The Morning Avalanche doesn't mean by all this that the naval conference, and the new famous Hoover-MacDonald confab on the banks of the River of Peace, are for naught. Not at all. They are, however, little more than preliminary steps along a lengthy road which may eventually bring mankind to peace. They are indicators of a changing time but the wind may blow from another direction and set the gauge at a direction not nearly so Utopian in aspect.

World peace as a permanent institution is still a long way removed. Ardent pacifists and those who favor radical slashes in armed protection will do well to take cognizance of the fact.

LAWS AND CRIME

A New York magistrate says that the gravity of the crime situation is due to two things. The first is that our laws relating to the trial of criminals were formulated in remote days when innocence was in constant danger from tyranny of the great and powerful, and now serve as a protection for the guilty by putting many and often insuperable difficulties in the way of the prosecuting officials.

The second reason given by this judge for the disturbing prevalence of crime is frequent failure of juries to convict, even when the evidence warrants and demands a verdict of guilty. This trend in the jury box, if it amounts to that, he attributes to the same disregard for law that is responsible for the "crime wave."

These are phases of the crime situation if they are not contributing factors. Many reasonable heads will question the statement that men and women commit crimes because of an inherent "disregard for law" or in the hope of beating the law. The criminal's chance of escape is smaller today than ever in the past, and yet one hears it said crime was never more prevalent. The threat of arrest and punishment has always existed, but so has crime.

Suppose there are some laws which afford the criminal undue protection. Would the public voluntarily surrender them. Knowing that the idea of changing these laws is blasphemy to many judges and lawyers one would answer that the law-abiding will cling to these statutory and constitutional protections as jealously as will the criminal. It is not impossible in this civilized age for the life or liberty of innocent people to be placed in jeopardy. Better that two guilty men be at large than that one innocent person be killed cold gray walls.

THE KILLER

A series of revolting murders has once more turned the attention of the American people to adequate means of dealing with crime. Of course the arguments about capital punishment, pro and con, are being aired again, with some persons favoring more of it and others pleading for its abolition. Some think that death penalty is necessary as a crime deterrent. Others turn to it to satisfy a sort of sadism or in the conviction that a moral responsibility rests on society to punish those who sin against it. And those who oppose capital punishment are inspired either by the thought that it has failed as a crime deterrent or by the belief that society does not have the moral right to take human life.

But while the discussion rages, it is interesting to note that 13 foreign countries have abolished it for one reason or another. They are Norway, Sweden, Portugal, Netherlands, Austria, Rumania, Latvia, Lithuania, Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Honduras, Lithuania, Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Honduras and Uruguay. In Bogota, Denmark and Finland the federal government and 10 of the 15 cantons of Switzerland have abolished it. Executions are rare in Prussia and, locally, in Italy. Russia executes for political crimes and some misdemeanors but not for murder.

Even here there is a division in practice. Eight states have abolished it and in most of the other only a small percentage of the accused pay the supreme penalty. With the exception of a few scattered states the death penalty is imposed only for murder.

The prohibition forces seem to have been doing plenty of shooting, but most of the big shots in the racket are immune.

There wouldn't be a great deal of striving after fame, however, if one couldn't cash it at the paying teller's window.

It is said that too many young men are looking for $10,000 jobs and it seems that most of them look only.

The sale of toys was greater this year than ever before, according to holiday statistics. Father simply must be entertained.

NEW WHITE HOUSE MENTOR GRABBED FROM SALVADOR MINISTERSHIP IN EMERGENCY

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Italian situation even has thrown a wrench into the social machinery at the White House.

It's a long story.

To begin with, away back early in the Coolidge administration the presidential family had no professional expert at hand to decide who should sit where at the dining room table when there was company.

It happened that no doubtful, intricate question of precedence arose for quite awhile. Everyone knows a few of the simpler rules—such as that the secretary of state stands at the head of the cabinet class and the secretary of labor at the foot of it; that an ambassador ranks a minister; that a senator is tonier than a representative; that the supreme court justices never must be invited when other prominent guests are coming or there certainly will be a rumpus.

The Coolidges bore these basic principles in mind and encountered no serious difficulty until they were pretty well on into their second "season" in the executive mansion.

In fact, nothing very awful occurred there—nothing to compare with the Gann-Longworth mix-up.

Still, the Coolidges realized that a mistake or two had been made—which might have been embarrassing, except that Mrs. Coolidge was so popular that no fuss was made—and decided that a past master must be consulted, to prevent any errors in future.

In this emergency Charles L. Cooke, the state department's officer in charge of ceremonials, was asked to act as the White House's adviser.

Now Charles L. Cooke is not exactly the type of individual one would expect to find in a master of ceremonies, but as matter-of-fact a person as anybody. True he wears a frock coat at all hours; however, with his contacts, he has to be. He is not particularly a society man. If he were, he would be C. Leffingwell Cooke (or whatever his middle name may be) and not Charles L., same as ordinary folk. Social forms are straight business with him.

Due regard for all the technicalities is absolutely essential in the state department's dealings with foreign diplomats. Mr. Cooke's job was (and is) to keep track of them.

As a social counselor Mr. Cooke suited the Coolidges down to the ground, but as for Mr. Cooke, his new White House duties appear presently to have begun to irk him.

They got him talked about into the newspapers. Folk smiled a little. In short, his work had become a trifle too conspicuous.

So, in due season, we find that the post of "officer in charge of ceremonials" has disappeared from the list of state department functionaries. In place of it there has appeared a "division of international conferences and protocol" with J. Clement Dunn at the head of it.

The congressional directory does not say that J. Clement Dunn, until very recently, has also been ex-officio, White House ceremonial officer.

At this point Charles L. Cooke's name vanishes from the story.

Not that Charles L. Cooke has vanished in person. If we look for him, we shall find him at a desk in the division of international conferences and protocol—where he may be as influential as ever—indeed, it is good betting that he is—but, insofar as shows on the surface, the real power now is the chief of the division he is attached to.

J. Clement Dunn has not objected to the role of White House arbiter, not a particle. Social ceremony is not a trade with him, as with Mr. Cooke; he has a personal flair for it. They say he was socially prominent himself in Newark (N. J.) before he came to Washington.

Anyway, it was not that he was otherwise than fascinated with his task at the executive mansion that he was wished out of it; he had the bad luck to be a first class authority on Haiti.

PROPER HEALTH PROGRAMS VITAL TO MODERN FACTORY SYSTEM

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

More than two hundred years have passed since a famous Birmingham, England, writer wrote a book in which he considered particularly the diseases that affect workers in various industries.

He surveyed the metal workers, glassmakers, potters, painters, dyers, tanners, bakers, millers, masons, barbers, welders and other occupations that afflicted people because of their trades. Modern physicians, reconsidering these trades, find little new to add to what Ramazzini observed.

Of course we have such new occupations as steamship building, dye and dynamite manufacture and airplane, of which he could not write because the occupations simply did not exist in his time. Chemistry, too, has made tremendous strides in the last two centuries, and there are new chemical hazards, particularly in the nature of toxic gases, of which the ancients did not even dream.

With the coming of the machines and the building of the great industries, more and more industrial plants have seen the wisdom of having special departments devoted to health and safety of the workmen. The saving in hours of labor, in payments made as compensation of disease and injury and in more efficient work, more than compensate for any sum that may be spent on the health and safety department.

In one factory changes in illumination increase the output. In another factory the provision of adequate safeguards to machinery lessens industrial accidents. The provision of rest periods may increase greatly the total output.

In a recent survey of the work of a department of industrial medicine the Journal of the American Medical Association points out four specific ways in which the industrial may be of benefit to the plant and to the workmen.

The first duty is to fit every worker to the type of employment and to the quantity of work that is suited to his health and his ability. Furthermore he must be able to carry on this work without danger or impairment to himself or his fellow workmen. Second, the industrial surgeon studies the conditions in the plant as they concern the individual workman, the group and the employer and makes every adjustment possible in the interest of health and safety. The department of industrial medicine also educates the workers in personal hygiene and in accident prevention.

Finally, the industrial surgeon makes a study of time lost through illness, through accident or for other reasons and endeavors to save such time for the employer and the employee by getting at the cause.

The headline, "Mexican President Files Over Volcano" doesn't suggest anything thrilling. Mexico has had presidents who jumped right down into them.

FRANCIS DRAKE'S DEATH

On January 28, 1545, Sir Francis Drake, the first man to circumnavigate the globe, died on board ship off Porto Bello, a little Spanish town on the Isthmus of Panama which he once sacked.

Drake began his sea life at an early age by engaging in coastal trade. After a few years at this he grasped an adventurous opportunity by serving under Hawkins in an expedition against the Spaniards. The English were defeated and young Drake vowed revenge.

It was not many years later that Drake captured Nombre de Dios, a wealthy town on the Isthmus, seized a Spanish galleon in the harbor of Cartagena and burned Porto Bello. Many such predatory expeditions occupied Drake until he decided to explore the unknown Pacific. When he finally returned to Plymouth in late September, 1580, laden with treasure and spices, he had circled the globe. For this achievement, he was knighted by Queen Elizabeth.

On the arrival of the Spanish Armada, Drake was serving under Lord Howard. It is said that Drake prevented Howard from putting to sea until they had finished their game of bowls, saving "There's plenty of time to win the game and thrash the Spaniards, too." The Spaniards were thrashed.

In spite of the large number of buildings being erected by the London County Council, that body has had to refuse, in the last 18 months, applications for housing accommodations for more than 156,000 persons, and it will continue its program of construction.

Today's Poem

TO—

One word is too often profaned
For me to profane it.
One feeling too falsely disdained
For thee to disdain it.
One hope is too like despair
For prudence to smother it.
And pity from thee more dear
Than that from another.

I can give not what men call love;
But will thou accept not
The worship the heart lifts above
And the heavens reject not.
The desire of the moth for the star,
Of the night for the morrow,
The devotion to something afar
From the sphere of our sorrow.

—Percy B. Shelley (1792-1822)

SEEK AUTHOR OF NOTE

Police Guard Young Boy In Santone; Threat Made

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 27. (AP)—A police guard is protecting 14-year-old Donald White, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. White, while detectives seek the author of a note threatening the boy's life unless his parents pay $1,000.

The note, crudely scrawled with a lip stick, demanded delivery of the money at a street corner. The note ended: "This is no joke. You have been warned."

Mrs. White told officers her husband was in Wyoming and he was notified of the threats.

"Snake" King Says Disease Is Fake

BROWNSVILLE, Jan. 27. (AP)—W. A. "Snake" King, bird and animal importer, "there's nothing to the parrot fever."

"I know parrots," he said, "Each year I import several thousand. I never heard of a case of parrot fever. There isn't any such thing as a disease peculiar to parrots."

GALVESTON, Jan. 27. (AP)—Federal customs men today moved suddenly against an alleged liquor running gang here. Conspiracy charges involving 22 men, among them several members of the Galveston police force, were filed.

Five men had been arrested late today and warrants were out for others. Among those arrested were Joe Marrero, patrolman, and it is understood at least two other policemen were involved. Others arrested were Richard Coffield, Andrew Best, Leon Savanovich and M. S. Chetovich.

The charges were brought under both the prohibition act and the customs law. The complaint declares the defendants conspired to import and conceal liquor in this country.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH CAMERON, typist in a New York publishing house, marries ARTHUR KNIGHT, executive of the department in which she works. Knight is a widower with a daughter, TONY, 18, in Paris, and a son, JUNIOR, 16, at school.

A honeymoon in Bermuda is interrupted by a cablegram that Tony is on her way to America. Judith and Arthur sail to meet her. When Knight brings his daughter home the girl ignores her stepmother. Later she commands Judith to leave the house. Knight, overhearing, forces Tony to apologize.

The girl spends much of her time with MICKEY MORTIMER, base amusement seeker whom she met in Paris. As days pass a state of armed neutrality exists between Tony and Judith. Junior arrives home for the holidays and treats Judith with cold, aloof politeness. Christmas proves to be a dismal day with both children away from home and all Knight's eager preparations wasted. Judith is uncomfortable until the boy returns to school.

AND CRAIG, a young man Knight has helped through college, calls on Tony. Craig is to be employed in the legal department of the publishing house. He has loved Tony for years—rather hopelessly. One afternoon Judith encounters Craig unexpectedly. She is annoyed at her embarrassment.

Because time hangs heavily on her hands, Arthur suggests that Judith should have the house redecorated. Craig calls frequently and one evening when Tony refuses to accompany him to a dog show at Madison Square Garden, Judith goes.

Tony, left alone with her father, tells him it is Judith and not herself whom Craig comes to the house to see.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XX
Arthur Knight spoke heatedly.

"Tony, that's not true. Why, Judith wouldn't—I have no reason in the world to say such a thing! It's nonsense."

"I didn't want to tell you," mumbled the girl with eyes downcast. "But it isn't true!"

Tony made no reply to this. It was, by far, more effective than argument. Knight could not deny when she made no allegations. And silence gave Tony the appearance of keeping her own counsel.

What did the girl know? Was there anything—anything she was keeping from him? No, of course not. It was preposterous! Thoroughly annoyed and upset, Arthur Knight turned on the girl.

"You've never been fair to your stepmother!" he told her sternly. "If you think you've seen anything more than ordinary friendship between her and Andy Craig you've imagined it! She's fond of the boy just as I am. Why—I've treated Andy almost like a son. It's—It's preposterous!"

"Modern talk, like modern life, should be quick, compact, colloquial."—Graham McNamee.

Boys taking a course in shoe repairing at a street school at Birmingham, England, bring old shoes from home and take them back in good condition.

That was enough.

Her eyes were flashing and she stamped one foot as she cried: "All right for you, Arthur Knight! So I imagine things, do I? Oh, yes, I imagine them! And you've treated Andy like a son. Well—why did you have to marry someone young enough to be your daughter? Why did you do that? Andy and Judith are angels, of course, but I—I, your own daughter—oh, I think you're hateful!"

Tears streaming from her eyes the girl ran out of the room. A few moments later there was the loud slam of a door being closed upstairs and Arthur Knight was left alone with his thoughts.

He did not see his daughters again that evening.

When Judith and Andy Craig came in shortly after 10 o'clock both were too eager to tell of the cuddlesome, wobbly pup, brightly colored terrier, and the handsome German shepherd they had seen to notice anything unusual about Arthur Knight's manner. Judith had lost her heart to one small shaggy Scotch terrier in particular. She laughed him extravagantly.

"Well, well," Knight told her, "why didn't you bring him home with you? There doesn't seem to be any doubt but that we'll have to have the brute if he's necessary to your happiness."

His wife smiled slyly.

"I did write down the name of the kennels," she said. "Here it is. She rummaged in her purse, produced a bit of cardboard and handed it to Arthur. He glanced at it, then pocketed the card.

"Well, the evening certainly was a pleasure, Mrs. Knight," Andy Craig spoke up. "May I say good night now? I have enjoyed it more if you'd been there, dear."

Was there questioning in Arthur Knight's eyes?

For an instant Judith thought she noted something peculiar in the way her husband looked at her. Then he laughed and she wondered what nonsense had prompted the thought. "I'll see about the pup tomorrow," he promised. "Been thinking it would be nice to have some sort of a pet about the place. Well, it's getting late. Better be getting upstairs, I guess."

"Arthur—"

He looked at her sharply, saw that Judith was smiling maliciously.

"Good night, Andy," Arthur and Judith spoke almost in unison.

When the young man had gone Judith moved over to where her husband stood before the hearth.

"It was a fine dog show," she said, "but I'd have enjoyed it more if you'd been there, dear."

fully. She continued: "I'm finished. What about a raid on the ice box?" "Think we might find anything there?" "Wait a minute—I'll go look." She came back before long with a tray on which was piled a remarkable midnight lunch. There were cheese sandwiches, cold chicken and tomato sandwiches, thin wedges of apple pie, olives and a dish of baked beans. There was also a pot of fragrant coffee. "Coffee, Judith, at this hour?" Knight protested. "She nodded her head affirmatively."

"It's madness, I know, but I was hungry. And nothing in the world is so good as coffee and pie at midnight." They spread the lunch out on the reading table, arranged themselves guiltily with napkins and set to devouring the food. Twenty minutes later nothing but stray crumbs covered the plates. Judith marshaled the bits of bread into two croasting lines. "X," she pointed them out to Arthur Knight, "marks the scene of the disaster."

Knight returned the tray to the kitchen table. Then he and Judith mounted the stairs. She thought afterward that he had shown an unusual amount of tenderness that evening.

The following morning Arthur Knight awoke to face a disagreeable world. His head ached. He had not slept for hours and hours through the night. It was that contumacious late eating of course!

Judith tried to minister to him as best she could. She found this difficult for Knight was in testy humor. He wanted aspirin. He did not want a hot water bottle. He wanted all possible suggestions for breakfast, then capitulated and called for black coffee. When the coffee was ready he wanted dry toast too.

Knight looked as miserable as he no doubt felt, and the young wife reproached herself. It had been her notion entirely to indulge in the late lunch. She had tempted him with coffee. Arthur's complexion had a shallow tinge that morning. He looked every one of his 48 years.

He did not want Judith to stroke his head. "Does it feel any better at all, now, dear?" she inquired solicitously as he finished the coffee. "Don't know. Guess I can make it to the office all right. Will you tell Bert to bring the car around? Couldn't stand that damned train this morning!"

"But, Arthur, I don't think you should go to the office when you're so ill!" Judith worried still after she had seen her husband go down the walk slowly, get into the car and drive away. She knew her thoughtlessness was to blame for his misery. At 11 o'clock she telephoned the office and Arthur Knight's reassuring voice came back over the wire. Yes, he was feeling better—much better. He would stay through the day at the office and reach home about five o'clock.

Judith was so concerned over her husband's welfare that for some time she failed to notice Tony. And Tony was taking particular pains that day to be noticed. She came downstairs about 11:30 o'clock, looking glum and occasionally shooting glaring glances in Judith's direction. She told Harriet she wanted breakfast served in the dining room.

Judith wandered about the house, busy with a dozen morning tasks. At 12 o'clock Mrs. Wheeler found her upstairs in her own room. The housekeeper apparently was laboring under some mental ordeal. She came puffing up the steps and knocked at the bedroom door. "Come in," called Judith, and when she saw who was waiting, added, "Why, Mrs. Wheeler, what's the matter?" "It's Miss Tony," she panted. "She's ordered three different breakfasts, ma'am, and sent every one back! Cora's mumbled and taking on something terrible and Harriet's sittin' down in the kitchen wipin' her eyes. I don't know what you're going to do, ma'am. You can't afford to lose a cook like Cora, ma'am."

Judith was on her feet. "No, of course not. You wait here Mrs. Wheeler. I'll go down and see what I can do with Miss Tony." There was nothing for her to do or say, as it happened. Judith met Tony at the foot of the stairs. The younger girl broke into a tirade. "Well, it's too bad," she cried hotly, "when I can't get a decent bite to eat in my father's own house! I'm not going to stand for it. I'm not. I'll show you what I'll do."

Judith waited wondering. She saw Tony fly downstairs five minutes later, a big sport coat thrown around her and her head bare. A purring sound came from the direction of the garage immediately. Judith saw Tony driving down the street.

She was more than surprised, therefore, when Arthur Knight's daughter made overtures of friendliness that evening Judith was dressing for dinner when she heard a tap on the door.

"Who is it?" she called. Tony pushed the door back and slipped into the room timidly. "Judith," she said quietly, "I'm sorry about—rushing off this morning the way I did. The breakfasts were all right. It was my fault. I wonder—to make up for it—if you'll have lunch with me tomorrow—tonight?"

Nothing like this had ever happened before! Judith could hardly believe her ears. "Why, yes," she said. "Of course I will. I'll be glad to."

"I'll have a friend with me. You don't mind?" "Not in the least. I'm anxious to know your friends."

That was all that was said about the luncheon engagement then Judith continued her toilet happy in the knowledge of Tony's submissive mood.

She did not know that the friend of whom Tony had spoken was Andy Craig nor that Tony had other plans for this amazing luncheon which were yet to be revealed. (To Be Continued)

Dwindling School Coal Bins Kindle Chicago Interest

City Officials Frown On Rescue Pool Of Twenty Million Given To Citizens Committee

CHICAGO, Jan. 27. (AP)—Dwindling coal bins in the public schools kindled interest anew today in Chicago's empty money bags.

As some city officials frowned upon the rescue pool of $20,000 pledged to the citizens committee, H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the education, prepared to ask the board of coal dealers to continue deliveries of coal despite the lack of cash and a present unpaid coal bill of $480,000.

There will be a respite until Wednesday. On that day, Strawn will confer with the city council finance committee relative to setting in motion the financial pool pledged to aid the city government.

Originally set at $50,000,000, the pool has $20,000,000 in pledges from business, industrial and railroad interests to be used in loans on tax anticipation warrants. No money will be loaned any of the government. Strawn asserted, unless cooperation is pledged to reduce operating expenses to a minimum, and the committee has reserved the right to indicate for what purposes the money shall be spent.

While Mayor William Hale Thompson was still at loggerheads with the Strawn plan of relief, Chairman John S. Clark of the council finance committee said he believed the council would pledge the requested cooperation.

Up To Committee
"There is no alternative," he declared. "The banks will loan no money, and the Strawn committee holds the only purse strings available."

Each day places the local governments deeper in debt. Already, $290,000,000 indebtedness has accrued in anticipation of uncollected 1929 and 1930 taxes, while interest on loans amounts to $50,000 daily.

Blind Production Flayed Over Radio

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. (AP)—Secretary Hyde told the farmers of the nation today that "blind production" was the bane of agriculture.

Speaking over the National Broadcasting company network, the secretary closed the broadcasting of the report on the 1930 agricultural outlook with the warning that governmental farm relief measures would be useless "unless each individual farmer intelligently plans his production."

Hyde said he wanted to emphasize that in order to obtain a higher level of prices than prevailed now it appeared necessary to reduce production rather than to increase 1930 production and that the problem must be met on the farm.

CONFERENCE OPENS Eastern Traffic Managers Meet At Brownsville

BROWNSVILLE, Jan. 27. (AP)—Approximately 150 freight traffic managers from east of the Rocky Mountains met here tomorrow for the first freight rate association conference ever held west of the Mississippi.

Little entertainment has been planned for the three day meeting, the managers having numerous proposed rate adjustments from all sections in their territory to consider.

One of the most important matters to Texas will be consideration of rates on citrus from the Rio Grande valley. To obtain first hand information on the valley's principal industry, a trip will be made up the valley Wednesday afternoon.

P. H. Coon, traffic manager of the Missouri Pacific, has been in the valley several days making preparations for the meet.

Breaking Liquor Ring Aim Of Cops

Murder Mystery Solution Expected With Arrest Of Gang Of Customs And Pro Law Violators

GALVESTON, Jan. 27. (AP)—Breaking up of a liquor importing ring, which might lead to solution of a murder mystery, was the aim of Federal prohibition and customs officers today, who, with nine men under arrest sought 13 others named in complaints as violating the national customs and prohibition acts.

The fact that the charges alleged conspiracy to violate the Federal laws on or about April 15, 1929, led to the belief that the government would undertake to connect the conspiracy with seizure of several shiploads of liquor since that date.

The murder which officials hoped to solve was that of Jimmie Clinch last October 11, killed with a sawed-off shotgun.

The arrest of George Page yesterday brought the total arrests to nine. Others arrested and freed on bond were A. Gleich, motorcycle officer; Joe Marrero, patrolman; Harry Evelt, garage owner; Leon Sabanovich, Andrew L. Best, M. S. Chetovich, Richard Coffield and a man named Barrett.

'Hex' Plot Seen in Fire Death

NEA Philadelphia Bureau

A "hex" doctor's grim sorcery—such as has been linked with other mystery deaths in eastern Pennsylvania—may lie in the background of the "fire killing" of Mrs. Harry McDonald, above at Reading. Fatally burned, her body was found by her husband, pictured below, with one of their two children who were in the house at the time of the tragedy. A coroner's jury is investigating charges that Mrs. McDonald was burned to death at the direction of a "witch doctor."

Oil Curtailment Plan Is Approved

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 27. (AP)—The Oklahoma Corporation commission, after a brief hearing today, granted the application of major oil companies for a further curtailment of oil production in flush pools of the state.

The Oklahoma City field was ordered to hold production to 38 per cent of its potential output until March 31, with a 33 1-3 per cent margin allowed for fluctuation of demand.

Curtailment in the East Bartlesboro field was set at 66 2-3 per cent until February 28, with a 25 per cent margin for fluctuation. After February 28, the field will be permitted to produce 50 per cent of its potential production.

A 39 per cent curtailment until March 31 was ordered for the Logan county, Greater Seminole, Allen Dome, Sasakwa and Pearson-St. Louis-Asher fields.

The Komawa field was ordered to curtail 75 per cent until April 1.

Oil company representatives asserted the market demand until March 31 was estimated at 600,000 barrels daily, that the potential production now was 900,000 barrels and that the estimated potential production for February and March was 1,000,000 barrels.

Grain Sorghum of Section Praised

Seeking a supply of certified grain sorghum seed with which to encourage farmers of north and central Texas to raise more of the feed crop, R. Reece, of Dallas, agricultural agent of the Katy railroad, was a visitor in Lubbock Monday.

"This section is the only place in Texas where we can secure certified grain sorghum seed," stated Mr. Reece, "and the farmers of other areas are vitally interested in all feed crops raised in the Plains country."

Mr. Reece is a nephew of Pat Nix, Lubbock county breeder of pure seed and one of the three breeders in Texas who have received state certification of grain sorghum seed.

Three-fourths of the manufactured articles used by the people of Argentina in the last year were imported.

Better Protection from Lightning Announced with Thyrite Discovery

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Science Editor Associated Press Feature Service. NEW YORK, Jan. 27. (AP)—Discovery of a new material named thyrite, which offers better protection from lightning, was announced today by the American Institute of Electrical Engineers today by Karl B. McEachron of the General Electric company.

Thyrite is a compound, in appearance a cross between black slate and porcelain. Its name, of Greek derivation, means gate grid for electrical current. It is almost literally a gate in more senses than one.

For ordinary currents used in the industrial and household worlds, thyrite is a good insulator, a restrainer that keeps the current from jumping out of bounds, a closed gate. But when electricity becomes too ardent, thyrite "gives it the gate." If a tremendous overcharge comes along the wire, such as a stroke of lightning, thyrite changes from insulator into a good conductor, offering a ready and harmless pathway for escape of the overcharge.

"Thyrite," said Mr. McEachron, "has the property of decreasing its resistance as electrical voltage increases. It possesses the remarkable property of being substantially an insulator at one potential and a good conductor at certain higher potentials."

Idea Not New.
"For the first time in the history of lightning protection it becomes possible to calculate accurately the performance of lightning arrestors. The idea of using lightning arrestors along a line is not new, but suitable arrestors I've not been available from the standpoint of size or cost."

Thyrite can be produced in any shape which can be molded. The great advantages of the new arrestors lie in their performance, small size, low installation cost, small weight and the predictability of the results to be expected.
