Mitchell County News Under New Management

Monday of this week Mr. C. C. Myers formerly of Childress, Texas became manager for The Mitchell County News. Mr. Myers comes to Loraine well recommended as a printer and has had considerable experience in the newspaper business. He and his wife and two small children will move here as soon as he can secure a house.

Under the new arrangement J. W. King remains the principal owner of the plant and will assume again the editorship of the paper. Other interests, however, will keep him out most of the time for a time at least and Mr. Myers will be in complete charge of the paper.

H. P. Day, who has been with the paper for some time, has not announced his plans for the future other than that he will continue to operate the Hub Theatre.

Greetings

In making connections with The Mitchell County News I did so with the sole thought in mind of being of service to the people of Loraine and its trade territory. The few days I have been in Loraine I have met quite a number of people, but I hope to meet and make friends with many more in due course.

It shall be my purpose to assist in making The Mitchell County News the best paper possible and I shall expect to receive the cooperation of the merchants and the community in my efforts. Working together we shall be able to publish a newspaper worthy of the town and community.

C. C. Myers

COUNTY AGENTS TO ATTEND SHORT COURSE

Joe C. Williams, county agent and Vera Crippen, county home demonstration agent will be in College Station next week for the Short Course.

Williams has to be in College Station Saturday and left the county Thursday. Miss Crippen is to be in College Station Monday.

Locker Plant Is Handy For Food Storage

Farmers and townspeople in this section should not go hungry this winter. There should be an abundance of garden stuff, chickens and the like to store away in the frozen food locker system for use this winter. And just think of the hours of back breaking labor it will save the housewife who will not have to stand over a hot cooker to can her vegetables for winter. Sure, you can put vegetables in your locker and they will be just as fresh when you take them out as they were when you put them in.

YOUNG PEOPLE MEET HERE NEXT TUESDAY

The Loraine Methodist League will entertain the Sweetwater District Young Peoples Organization in a two day session here beginning next Tuesday afternoon and closing on Wednesday at noon. The District officers will be present to direct the meeting, and take part on the two day program. About 100 delegates are expected to attend this quarterly meeting of the District. This is a very important District meeting since it is the first one following the Assembly at McMurry and plans will be made for the coming year. Ruth Gilliam of Big Spring is in charge of the program. The local League is working on its pageant which they will present on Tuesday night and other plans for entertainment. Homes for the delegates are being secured by a committee headed by Ruby Jo Marshall. Rev. Alsie Carlton of Clyde will bring the consecration service on Wednesday noon.

Mrs. T. J. Piguet and daughters Delma, Lenada and Kitty are here from California visiting T. J. Green and family.

Singers Meet In Loraine Sunday

The East Side singers of Mitchell County will meet at the Loraine Methodist Church Sunday in annual convention. All singers and leaders of this section are invited to attend and enjoy the good singing.

T. F. Finley, president of the organization, announces that there will be plenty of new books available for singers.

P. T. A. MAKES PLANS FOR NEW YEAR

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the P. T. A. plans for the selection of room mothers for the various grades in school were made, and the following list of officers for the organization was completed. Mrs. H. B. Derryberry, publicity chairman; Mrs. Harold Martin, program chairman; and Mrs. Fred B. Ison, local reporter.

The P. T. A. has progressed in a very encouraging way from year to year, and with the help of each member of the group and patron of the school, this progress will continue. One way in which most of these individuals can help is in the contribution of any surplus table glasses for use in the table service for the gym. Mrs. Page, the new president, will be glad to know if you can help this way. Let's think P. T. A. and work with a will.

U. S. GETS $241,575,998 IN FRENCH GOLD

Washington—France sent $241,575,998 of gold to the United States during the week ended June 26, the commerce department said Tuesday.

That was the week the treasury and the navy departments announced jointly that the U. S. cruiser Vincennes had transported to New York French gold purchased by the United States.

FLOODS RECEDE LEAVING LOSS OF MILLIONS

Muddy floodwaters rolled on to the Gulf along three rivers in South Texas Tuesday, leaving behind 10 dead, property damage and the messy job of cleaning up.

Only heavy rains in the next 24 hours could bring additional flood danger to the Colorado river system, D. S. Adams, engineer for the Lower Colorado river authority said.

An overflow of the Colorado at Wharton was expected late Tuesday but this town, used to floods by the dangerous stream, foresaw no serious damage.

High water was receding also in the Texarkana area, far to the northeast, where a flash flood Monday drove 700 from their homes in low sections of the two-state city.

At Hallettsville, where seven persons drowned when the usually peaceful Lavaca river toppled several houses into its raging torrent, and at Smithville and LaGrange, physicians inoculated hundreds with typhoid vaccine supplied by the state health department.

PLANS FOR PRESS MEETING MADE SATURDAY

Plans for the annual convention of the West Texas Press association in Colorado City on August 9-10 were discussed and outlined at a meeting of newspapermen in Colorado City Saturday.

Present for the meeting were Sam Roberts of Haskell, president; Cedric Harrison of Seymour, first vice-president; Willard Jones of Snyder, secretary-treasurer; L. P. Henslee of Anson a director; Luther Watson of Sweetwater and Walter W. Whipkey of Colorado City.

Mr. and Mrs. Green and children of Oklahoma are here visiting her sister, Mrs. R. B. Cope and family.

INDEPENDENCE

Today is July 4th, the day on which America celebrates its independence, an independence that in this day of dictatorships means more to the citizens of this great country than ever before.

The last democratic nation in Europe (England) is now undergoing possibly the greatest trial of its history. Two dictator nations are attempting to destroy democracy in Europe and we believe they have designs on the entire world.

It behooves all of us to respect the flag of the United States of America and to be patriotic and loyal to the government under which we enjoy privileges that are entirely lacking in dictator nations.

Today America is spending large sums of money for defense of the nation. Some of us may grumble at the burden of taxation imposed upon us but one thing that may console us is the fact that should some dictator nation lay upon us in our defenseless condition our money and resources would not be worth much after they got through laying our cities and industries waste. It will be far better for us to spend our gold now and be ready to defend ourselves than to wait until it is too late.

We salute Old Glory and the nation for which it stands.

Methodist Revival Begins July 12th

Rev. Shewbert, pastor of the Methodist Church, states the Methodist Revival will open at the Tabernacle on Friday night of July 12th. It will close on Sunday night of July 21st. Rev. E. D. Landreth, pastor of the Methodist Church at Lamesa, will do the preaching. Rev. Landreth is a splendid consecrated man of God, and an outstanding preacher. Every one will want to come and hear him. Plan now to attend both the morning and evening services. Certainly in these times people need to be brought closer to God. The entire community and all surrounding communities are urged to come and participate in this revival that it may mean all possible for our community and our people. Christians awake to your opportunity in these days.

Mitchell County Grew More Cotton Than It Ginned Last Season

Over 200 bales of cotton grown in Mitchell county last year were ginned out of the county, according to a preliminary report recently issued by the bureau of the census giving statistics comparing the number of bales ginned by counties.

The figures show that Mitchell county grew 17,452 bales in 1939 and ginned 17,224 of them.

State Senator Visits Loraine

Wilbourne B. Collie

State Senator Wilbourne B. Collie of Eastland was a visitor in Loraine Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Collie is a candidate for re-election.

Mrs. Homer Derryberry and Fredda returned home Saturday from Sulphur, Oklahoma where they had been visiting relatives.

J. L. Bird is visiting his son and family in Fort Worth this week.

W. J. West is in Big Spring where he has employment with Cosden Refinery.

EX-SERVICE MEN OF COUNTY CALLED TO MEET TUESDAY NIGHT

All ex-service men of Mitchell county have been asked by Howard Rogers, commander of the Oran C. Hooker post of the American Legion, to meet at the Legion on Tuesday night.

The call applies to all World War veterans of the county, whether they belong to the American Legion or not, Rogers says.

In conjunction with WPA field crews, University of Texas are evacuating one of the nation's largest known meteor craters, a 600-foot-wide pit eight miles southwest of Odessa.

Rains Last Week Put Crops In Excellent Condition

Local Orchestra To Play at KXOX

A brand new kind of program or the regular program presented by Loraine merchants over station KXOX at Sweetwater 1:30 each Friday afternoon has been worked out and will be presented this Friday. A Loraine orchestra will be presented for the first time in public though it has been practicing for several weeks.

The orchestra is composed of W. King, Jr. and Douglas Taylor, cornets; Wennola Martin, piano and soloist; James Jarratt, saxophone; Lloyd Brame, bass; Melvin King, trombone; and Wayand Roberts, drum.

CHORAL CLUB TO SING AT FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The Womans Choral Club of seventeen members will sing at the First Christian Church of Colorado City.

The membership is growing and through the summer practice will be at the Methodist church. Mrs. W. R. Martin is directing and Mrs. Travis Hallmark is pianist. Those interested in singing are welcome at all times.

Members are: Misses Lula Mae Roberts, Fern Coon, Ruby Jo Marshall, Margaret Jarratt, Ruth Ann Hall, Fay and Dell Johnson, Mesdames K. L. Taylor, Harold Martin, Homer Derryberry, Hubert Thomas, Wylie Walker, Jack Walker, Woodrow Pratt, and Stanton Hutchins.

"Where Will the Battle of Armageddon Be Fought?" will be Rev. Shewbert's subject for Sunday morning. Come out and hear him bring this stirring message on this subject. You will not want to miss this message. Come out and bring your friends next Sunday morning. Services begin promptly at 11 A. M.

BRITAIN BUYS RAILS TO REPAIR DAMAGES

NEW YORK—Great Britain has ordered 112,000 tons of steel rails here for "quick shipment" to be strung along every railroad in England and Scotland to permit immediate repairs in the event of damage by German bombing raids, the Iron Age magazine said Wednesday.

DAIRY SHOWS IN TEXAS HAVE BUILT DAIRY PRODUCTION

It is within the present generation that dairy animals at the state fair of Texas were shown in classifications for grade animals and pure bred animals. That was when Texas ranked 19th and 20th in dairy production.

But for the past several years, the industry has been growing in leaps and bounds and has advanced from 19th in the twenties to 4th in the thirties and with ambitious plans dairy leaders expect to see the state step up in the forties.

Dairy shows have been largely responsible for this rapid increase. The State Fair of Texas has advanced its dairy classifications until now it is surpassed by but few shows, and each year this institution presents to Texas dairymen the largest Dairy Show held in the south.

Plans made for 1940 Fair will surpass any ever arranged for Texas dairy interests. A total of $7,500 in premiums is offered.

In addition to the State Fair of Texas Dairy Show in the fall, there are 23 spring dairy shows held in all parts of the state. These shows are gradually educating farmers to the value of improving their herds and milk quality. A gradual improvement has been shown in the quality of dairy products, also.

Edwin Hallmark, who is working at the Cosden Refinery at Big Spring, returned Wednesday evening to spend the Fourth of July with his folks.

Rains, which in some portions of the territory were heavy last weekend, have made prospects for a good crop in the locality much lighter but sufficient for all needs since 1932.

Some parts of the territory received more than two inches of rain while in some places it was lighter but sufficient for all needs at the present.

Maize, cotton, corn, sudan and cane crops are all growing by leaps and bounds (so are the weeds) and with a little moisture during July and August things should hum with activity around the old home town this fall.

BANK GETTING NEW COAT OF PAINT

The First State Bank is getting a new coat of paint this week. Both the interior and the exterior of the building is being painted by E. W. Walker.

Miss Cina Croley of Alabama is visiting her uncle, Jeff Ison and family.

STORES TO CLOSE FOR JULY 4th

All business in Loraine will be at a standstill Thursday when the business houses of the town will close to celebrate Independence Day, July 4th.

There is no planned celebration closer than Sweetwater but there will probably be private celebrations among families and friends.

Ohlenbusch Paints Buildings

H. Ohlenbusch is here this week and is doing some extensive improvements to his buildings here. A glass window on the north side of the Thornhill store has been closed which gives the store more shelf room.

The William Martin barber shop building is receiving a new coat of paint and possibly all other buildings belonging to Mr. Ohlenbusch will receive a like treatment.

SEASON SUPPER ENJOYED BY A LARGE CROWD

More than one hundred people attended the Season Supper at the high school gymnasium Tuesday night. The supper was sponsored by the Local Circle and four tables, one for each season of the year, were used. Each table had a menu most suitable for the season of the year. Decorations were beautifully carried out in favors, place cards, etc. Those born in the spring sat at the table for that season as did those born in the summer, fall and winter.

Rev. J. E. Shewbert was toastmaster. Miss Ruth Ann Hall gave a reading and Misses Ruby Jo Marshall and Frances Riden sang a duet. A quiz game conducted by Rev. Shewbert and a stunt presented by those seated at each table caused much laughter.

'Dark Horse' Willkie Named G.O.P. Presidential Candidate; McNary for Vice President

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

"All Gaul is divided into three parts," said Caesar, and now modern France, covering most of ancient Gaul, is again divided into three parts. The two most important segments will be occupied by the Axis powers, Germany and Italy. Germany received the black area in the above map according to armistice terms which ended the fighting. Italy now controls the dotted area on the map. The white area remains under French control.

POLITICS: G.O.P. 'Oomph'

From the opening session of the Republican national convention in Philadelphia, there was little doubt as to what presidential nominee aspirant was the "gallery's choice."

For each time the name of Wendell Willkie was mentioned on the convention floor a sally of cheers swept down from the onlookers.

The New York lawyer and utilities executive in a decidedly brief (two months) period of time had risen from the political unknown to the pinnacle of popular G. O. P. favor.

Entering the convention balloting with a mere handful of pledged delegates, Willkie's dynamic salesmanship started its telling effect in the form of a definite trend toward him as the second roll call of states was called. On the first ballot he had 105 delegate votes cast in his favor and ranked third while Thomas E. Dewey held first place with 360 votes and Robert A. Taft of Ohio was second with 189.

On successive ballots Willkie then gained 65, 86, 47, 123, and finally on the sixth roll call he went over the top with a net gain of 204 votes, giving him a total of 633—501 being necessary for the nomination. Willkie having won, all state delegations then made the nomination unanimous.

Next day, on the first balloting for the vice presidential nominee, Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon was elected as the party's overwhelming choice for Mr. Willkie's running mate.

Tagged as a "peace, preparedness and prosperity" platform, the G. O. P. 1940 statement of party policy straddled most important national issues but packed plenty of anti-New Deal and anti-Third term punch.

Unanimously approved, the platform contained a keep-out-of-war declaration; a plan of Republican-inspired national defense; a slap at President Roosevelt's "provocative" speeches; and a demand to limit presidential service to two terms.

Willkie's political rise stands out as one of the most dramatic in American history. Coupled with the fact that he started his campaign a short two months ago, is the fact that up until the last few years he has been a Democrat. Many political experts thought this would spell political doom in a Republican convention. But it didn't.

'Socks' That Count

It's better to drop bombs on an invader than to knit socks for young soldiers in the opinion of Mrs. Lorene Holloway, able Jackson Heights, N. Y., air pilot. If war strikes this country, she wants to join U. S. defense forces and organize young women fliers into a fighting corps.

AVIATION: Spreading Wings

Three new air routes mark current developments in America's ever-expanding aviation industry.

Hailed by Alaska's governor, Ernest Gruening, as a stride toward national defense, the 20-ton Alaska Clipper began regular pay-passenger service between Seattle and the territory. On the first flight the Clipper made a trip that usually takes four days by boat in slightly over five hours. Twenty passengers were aboard.

This initial flight called attention to Alaska's air defenses which are in the process of being strengthened by the U. S. navy. Two new flying bases at Sitka and Kodiak are under construction at the present time and the naval expansion program calls for further bolstering of Uncle Sam's air arm in the area.

Pan American Airways is starting transoceanic service over 8,000 miles of the South Pacific to New Zealand and a new flight schedule with daily plane service to Argentina is slated to get under way July 12. On the New Zealand route, four and a half day service will be provided between Los Angeles and Auckland, New Zealand.

INDUSTRY: Change of Pace

Current reports of Federal Reserve banks plus other commercial indices reveal that a downward trend of industrial activity which has marked U. S. business since last December has now been reversed. Expanding production is noted in many key industries.

With much of such increasing activity centered directly or indirectly in war and defense materials, non-military industries are also registering important gains.

Steel production is now booming along at capacity speeds and new orders from foreign and domestic buyers which are currently pouring in should keep blast furnaces roaring for many months to come.

Automobile tire shipments have shown large increases and leading rubber companies say these more than offset a seasonal decline in sales to car manufacturers. Southern Pacific railroad is negotiating for the purchase of some 2,500 new freight cars.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS: Business Report

Eighty-nine employees of the league of nations—the last 89 to be exact—were given notice to resign for business appeared to be at a standstill. Secretary General Joseph Avenol started closing up shop about May 16 when Germany launched its blitzkrieg against the low countries. It was then he gave 205 league officials and employees a chance to resign or have their contracts suspended upon any notice.

Two decades ago the league was created to aid in the settlement of international disputes, but business was dull until two years ago, when aggressors started to work in earnest and things began to hum in the great marble building that housed the delegations.

But this activity began to slow down as one by one, Austria, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Albania, Finland, Denmark, Norway, The Netherlands, Belgium and then France wilted under the pressure of more powerful nations.

Starting out as a noble bid for peace and world understanding, an idealistic institution is closing its books in a world where force holds the balance in the ledger.

Bruckart's Washington Digest

Universal Military Training Plan Will Encounter Stiff Opposition

Government Owned Monopoly to Control Trade in Surplus Products of North and South America Also Faces Serious Consideration by Congress and Public.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—It begins to appear that President Roosevelt again has put his head out as a target for political pot shots. Indeed, the reaction thus far to his proposals for universal military training for all youths in the United States and his plan to create a gigantic government owned monopoly to buy all surplus products in North and South America bid fair to develop as much, or more, heat than did Mr. Roosevelt's program for packing the Supreme court of the United States two years ago.

Tremendous opposition has sprung up to each of these plans, but the opposition comes from different quarters and for different reasons. As far as my survey has gone, of course, there are many duplications among opponents, but it must be said that the fundamental objection to each comes from a different base.

Reasons for the two proposals, as stated by those who are working with Mr. Roosevelt on the plans, are to be found wholly in the fear that Hitler's legions—armies and "fifth column" workers—will invade the Western hemisphere, sooner or later. Whether this fear is wholly genuine or partly political, I cannot say; yet that fear is being used to the utmost to force acceptance by congress and the general public of a two-part program to meet the expected invasion that is thus far just a mirage. The program, of course, comes from the wave of hysteria which has been allowed to develop, or has been openly promoted for political purposes.

There is thus far no clear cut program on universal service. Generally speaking, it provides for the training of youth of 18 for one year. It is not entirely a training on the drill field or in camp. It includes training in work "behind the front." That is to say, men must be trained in airplane factories, in handling planes on the air fields, in gun factories, powder factories, bridge building, transportation and general automotive work and a thousand other lines of service, each of which must contribute active and complete collaboration when the boys with the guns and bombs are out in front of the enemy.

Both Girls and Boys Might Be Included

That is the general thought. There are those in the administration, however, who would go much further. They would make universal military training embrace both boys and girls. They would train the girls of 18 or 19 years to fit into a great war auxiliary—equipped to make uniforms and medical supplies and produce and pack the proper foods and that sort of thing. And this group within the President's official family would have all of those boys and girls do this work and do it with almost no compensation, except their own food and clothes. In other words, if the extremes are attained in this direction, it would mean adoption practically of the methods employed by Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin in the training for military service.

Of course, the congress will never agree to such a thing as that. There would be a public revolt against any such program, but I relate these details because they actually are being discussed by men in key positions in the President's cabinet.

I doubt also that congress can be driven into adoption of any military service program of a compulsory character. There are dangers in a world so upset as ours is of this day. No one can dispute that. On the other hand, congress has voted some six or seven billion dollars to be spent for defense preparation, and unless that is wasted, as some 20-odd billions have been wasted in recent years, there ought to be some worthwhile defense structure result from use of that money.

The present defense program, as it stands today, provides a regular army of 400,000 men—the largest peacetime army in our history. A navy of fighting ships which will be the largest fleet in all history will be constructed from these funds. Airplanes by the thousands are provided for in the general defense program.

POT SHOTS

President Roosevelt's proposals for universal military training for all U. S. youths and the administration's plan to create a government-owned monopoly to buy all surplus products in the Western hemisphere, are due for a real political storm, in the opinion of William Bruckart, Washington correspondent. He thinks they will develop as much "heat" as the Supreme court "packing" issue.

From a political standpoint, the President has taken a long chance. That is more apparent as each day passes.

United States Is Not Looking For Any 'Military' Trouble

It is to be remembered, first, that the United States and its peoples are not a military nation, not a nation looking for trouble. In another phase, it is to be remembered that there are some 2,000,000 fellows who got their feet stuck in French mud and who fought off French crotches as well as German attacks. They are scattered throughout the United States. I know of few of those fellows who ever want to see any more of war. They are saying so with great freedom. They have convinced their friends and neighbors and the families. So, from a general philosophy of peace and the word-of-mouth expressions of experience, it strikes me that universal military service will not get very far now—unless the entire New Deal political machine can be used to run over the opposition as Hitler's armies overran France.

In another way, I think Mr. Roosevelt made a big political mistake by sponsoring universal military service for use when the nation is not at war. It builds up a Republican opposition and supplies that opposition with an added type of criticism to be used in the forthcoming presidential campaign. And from what I hear, the Republicans are going to use it!

Now, concerning the great monopoly for handling all surplus products of the Western hemisphere:

The idea behind this gigantic cartel—government-owned and directed—the dream that is proposed to be made into a reality—is that there is as much danger of German infiltration through business as through armed forces. Moreover, it is held that with Hitler and his gang dominating Europe, they will dictate trade. That is to say, Hitler's Nazis not only will determine who will sell to those peoples under his steel boot, but they will decide the terms at which the products will be sold. The school of thought behind the monopoly plan contends that such a control of international markets will mean wrecking North and South American trade.

Contention Holds That Hitler Will Influence All Trade

Further, it is contended that small, or even great, corporations in North and South America will find themselves so thoroughly browbeaten by the Hitler tactics that they will yield to whatever methods the Nazis desire to employ. All of which, they say, will mean that Nazi agents will be all over the place, speaking their pieces and promoting their propaganda.

So, comes then the plan for a giant corporation that would absorb all of the products of the Western world. This corporation, in the minds of the dreamers, would be so powerful that it could tell Hitler and his gang where to get off. The company on this side of the Atlantic could say to Hitler's representatives, in effect, we will trade with you, but you will not take advantage of us; we are too big. If you don't trade with us, you get nothing over here.

All of which sounds swell. It sounds like hard boiled stuff. But it will not work, and no really sane person believes it will work. In addition, it has all of the elements of danger that can be crowded into the meaning of the word "regimentation."

The first reason it will not work is because there is not the chance of a snowball in the nether regions that all of the South American nations will join. Unless it embraces everything, it will flop of its own weight. And if all of the South Americans do come, where is a guaranty that they will stay in? They have jumped the traces so many times that there is little faith to be placed in their agreements.

Another reason is that if such a corporation attempts to take all of the surplus, there must be control of production, complete and final control of production of food and fiber and materials of every known kind. If there is no such control, the corporation will find itself shortly owning an accumulation of several years' output, and more coming in because the world can and does produce more than it uses in a great many years.

I might ask also for all persons to stand who think that production control could be enforced in Mexico or Brazil or the Argentine or most any other nation in the vast reaches of South or Central America. I might suggest further that if the Hitler market, as envisioned by the dream boys, is going to be the only market, he might be just smart enough to say: "Okay, boys, hold your stuff. I will get along without it!" And what a lovely situation that would be!

These two items will furnish much lively congressional debate.

'DIET DEFICIENCY' CUTS CROP YIELD

Lack of Essential Foods Reduces Productivity.

By HERBERT L. GARRARD
Diagnosing the ailments of "sick" crops and prescribing the restoratives is a science that can turn losses into profits on American farms.

Many of the diseases that destroy the productivity of crops are due to diet deficiency—to a lack of such essential plant foods as nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash in the soil. And just as tell-tale symptoms are present when human beings are ill, so growing plants reveal their infirmities by various signs.

Even in the early stages of growth these signs of ill-health are readily discernible. Sickly seedlings with narrow leaves, thin stalks, poor root formations and tips of leaves tinted a reddish-brown hue tell a story of starvation for necessary plant nourishment.

With oats, for example, a deficiency of potash in the soil will be evident in a reddish coloration of the leaves as early as eight days after sprouting. The foliage of potatoes shows a dark green in the early stages of potash starvation; in the case of tomatoes there is a purplish leaf coloration when the plants are starved for phosphorus.

Corn that is suffering from diet deficiency is easily recognizable. When nitrogen is lacking it develops a streaked, yellow leaf. When potash is missing the edges of the leaves are "fired" or scorched and a spotty yellow streaking spreads over them.

Fortunately, it is possible, even in the growing season, to apply correctives once the ailment has been diagnosed. Tests in corn-belt states have proved that with corn still in the early stages of growth, it is possible to side-dress the plants with fertilizer to correct dietary deficiency. The use of 200 pounds per acre of mixed fertilizer containing potash, in early July on 15 corn-fields on a soil high in lime content, in a midwestern state, resulted in an increase of 15.8 bushels per acre compared with fields not treated for potash starvation.

But while plant food deficiencies can sometimes be corrected during the growing season, the sure preventive is to have the soil tested before planting time. County agents or agronomists at the state agricultural college are prepared to analyze soil samples and provide farmers with information concerning the fertilizer needs of their soil. The tests will reveal whether there is a lack of nitrogen, phosphoric acid or potash. By following the recommendations thus obtained, farmers can replenish depleted soil resources and be reasonably sure of growing healthy, productive crops.

Farmers Work Together To 'Keep Soil at Home'

After many single-handed attempts to stop the blowing of good top soil from their fields, farmers of Greeley county, Kansas, back in 1937, saw that they would have to get together in the fight to keep their soil at home. If a single farmer tried to hold his soil down by listing a field, the top soil from an unlisted field adjoining would blow over it and cover up his work.

With the help of farm leaders in the county, the farmers organized a countywide campaign to use AAA conservation practices to get all the land in the county listed at the same time, and protected by cover crops and strip-cropping.

The job was hard, but the farmers were for any plan that would break the force of the wind and keep their soil covered. When the job started, each farmer had an average of 3,000 acres of land to list, and they kept at it—literally day and night—until it was finished.

To make the plan thoroughgoing, the county organization adopted a rule that no farmer could get an AAA payment unless he had all his crop land either in cover crops such as Sudan grass or sorghums, or in strip-cropping—a strip of cover to slow down the wind, then a strip of wheat or fallow, and then another strip of cover crops.

Last year, with six times as much land in cover crops and strip-cropping as in 1936, five times as many acres in summer fallow, half as many acres in wheat, and twice as many acres of feed crops for their live stock, these farmers reported that they had the wind hazard under control. If they continue what they have started, they believe that nature will complete the job.

Insect Defense

When insects injure a farm crop, the attack often comes at the edge of the field, orchard, or woodland—not at the center. If the fence rows or edges of the fields are attractive to birds, the farmer has an auxiliary line of defense against the insects. The birds may be able to destroy some of the insects before the insects can lay their eggs. This is one of the reasons that may make it wise to make the edges of fields attractive to wildlife.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

The ambulance rumbled along slowly. Sheila's thoughts wove back and forth dreamily. Now that the first horror was over she felt oddly weary and weak. Her shoulder hurt her, and her head ached; but she was all right, she told herself, no harm had been done, but oh—how good it would be to get home to Mother, to be away from the crowd, and the voices and the questions! She need never see the pantry at the Pendergast again, never take orders from Mr. Benny. In a few hours more she would be safe in the beloved home kitchen, talking to Ma, watching Angela's round eyes pop out of her head with excitement; she would be drinking a cup of tea the way she liked it, reaching to the stove for her toast—

"Isn't it getting dark early?" Frank said, suddenly rousing from the stupor into which he occasionally seemed to lapse.

"It's nearly five, Frank," Sheila said.

"Pivel!"

"Yes. I just saw a clock." "These things take time, you know!" the nurse observed soothingly. Sheila, sick and shaken as she was, thought that she must remember that to tell Joe.

The poor pilot, she mused. One minute floating over the gray-white panorama of beach and wintry world, and the next minute just that still form, that trampled depression, in the snow.

"I've been in a terrible accident!" she thought. And then, wearily, "But what haven't I been through in the last few weeks?"

"Does it feel good to be back in New York, Sheila?" Frank said, opening his eyes.

"Oh, does it! I was just thinking. My heart is pumping so, I can hardly breathe."

They were in the city streets; the ambulance bell was ringing steadily now, and Sheila could see the sidewalk crowds eyeing them interestedly as they went through.

"I had them telephone Mother I'd hurt my arm, and to have Doctor Underwood at the house," Frank said. "Well. Not much more of this, eh? We'll be comfortable in no time now, Sheila."

"When on earth could you phone your mother?"

"I had the police sergeant do it, asked him to telephone. Just to say that there'd been a smash and that we were all right, and on our way in. I told him to say that Mother was to use her own judgment about getting in touch with your mother—"

"Ma's probably got the fire department out!" Sheila exclaimed, aghast.

"Well, the poor fellow was killed, Sheila, and you can't avoid a certain amount of interest in that."

"To be in an airplane smash—" Sheila murmured, struck afresh with the strangeness and horror of it.

"I took my training at Bellevue," the nurse said, as they stopped at a Broadway artery, "and my first case was a fellow that had come down in a plane. She was diverted. For goodness' sakes look at the evening papers!" she exclaimed, and, glancing eagerly out at a corner newsboy, she read a headline: "Mystery Girl in Plane Crash!"

For a minute the words meant nothing to Sheila. Then her heart gave a great spring. In the remaining few seconds that they waited at the corner, she leaned forward and saw the front sheet of the paper, the hurried blurred photographs of the group in the park, the plane's great fallen wings, the lifted form of the dead man.

"That's the crash, all right," Miss Sutter said. "It doesn't take long to get things into the papers nowadays, does it? But where do they get that 'mystery girl' stuff? You and— She glanced at Frank and then at Sheila. "You're his wife, aren't you?" she asked.

"Oh, no. Mr. Mc Cann was just bringing me home," Sheila said, with a queer, affronted little laugh.

"Oh, I see—" the nurse said, in a peculiar tone, with a quick glance.

"Mr. Mc Cann," Sheila explained, in a low tone, with a wary look at his closed eyelids and unconscious face, "is engaged to be married to a Miss Bernadette Kennedy, of Spuyten Duyvil."

The nurse's young bright eyes were sympathetic.

"You two were trying to get away with something, hey?" she guessed shrewdly, smiling. "I don't mean anything wrong, just—" she paused. "For heaven's sake!" she said.

"I wish I was dead," Sheila said simply. Frank muttered incoherently.

"He'll be all right when he gets his arm set," Miss Sutter said in a whisper. "He's dazed with shock."

"That isn't what's worrying me," Sheila answered, dully. "It's what my mother'll think, and what his people will think—"

"But my good gracious, it isn't your fault if you're in an accident!" the other girl said quickly.

"No, of course not," Sheila admitted, uneasily. "But—but it just seems as if everything had gone crazy!" she lamented.

Frank opened his eyes.

"Don't worry, Sheila," he said, in a deep reassuring voice that still had traces of stupor in it. "I'll take care of you. We're all right!"

The car turned a corner; they were at the Mc Cann house.

"Oh, God protect us!" Sheila said in a whisper. It was a prayer. Oh, Frank, she said, "look! There's a million people waiting!"

Not a million. But a crowd that framed both sides of the brown-stone steps; a crowd that demanded the constant attention of two policemen. Men were pressing forward, women were planted in solid lines; all turned their eyes eagerly to the ambulance as it drew up.

"Frank, I can't go in, I'm going on home—" Sheila stammered, aghast. "I can't—they've a camera there—"

He had pulled himself together, he gripped her hand.

"No," he said, "you've got to go through with it. Your mother may be here. Come on, just walk through—"

The crowd buzzed excitedly, as Sheila, and a policeman between them supported the limping man across the sidewalk.

"Narrow escape, Mr. Mc Cann!" one of the policemen said, respectfully.

"I'll tell the world!" Frank answered, with a groan and a smile. The crowd laughed in shocked sympathy.

Sheila looked up. The door of the Mc Cann house opened, a flood of persons poured out; servants, family, and the gray-headed stout man that she was afterward to identify as the family doctor. And with them was Joe Carscadden—Joe!—and while Sheila was stumbling upward to the lighted wide hallway, half dragging Frank with her, and half dragged herself, she saw her mother, majestic in her best dress—

Then they were all crying and milling about madly in the hall. Sheila saw Mrs. Mc Cann, with her face white and tearstained, and she saw the judge, looking somehow old and broken. She caught at his hand.

"Judge, I'm so sorry—" she faltered.

Judge Mc Cann brought his distracted gaze to her face.

"Now, now, Sheila," he said gently, "accidents will happen! And he returned immediately to the business of the moment. "Put your arm around him there, Leo. All right, Mary. Hurting you, son?"

"It's my arm, look out for my arm—" Frank muttered, and the mother's moan was distinguishable above the other moans that suddenly filled the hall.

"My darling, my son—" "We'll get you right upstairs, Frank; we'll fix you up in five minutes!" the doctor said.

Brothers, sisters, servants, parents, they surged about him. His voice rang out suddenly, as he was being tenderly lifted upstairs.

"Is Sheila there?" "Right here, son," said his father.

"Sheila, I must see you before you go!"

"Anything, dear'r, anything!" Judge Mc Cann said, faltering, and Sheila heard Frank's effort at a laugh.

"I'm not dying, Pop. I want Doc Underwood to look at her, that's all. She's done something to her shoulder—"

They were all straggling upstairs; they eddied into a big front bedroom where Mamie was turning down the covers of an immense old-fashioned walnut bed.

"They've broke him completely!" Sheila heard her mother say, in a whisper, and Mrs. Mc Cann said weeping, "Oh, Mrs. Carscadden, how they break your heart on you—the children!"

Frank gave another groan as they lowered him against the pillows.

"Poor dear!" his mother, bending over him, said tenderly. She began to pray in a low voice.

"Mother, I'm all right. And the doc has a lot of dope for me, haven't you, Doc?"

"I'm going to fix you up right here in the dressing-room, Frank," the old doctor said. "Doctor Russell is on his way from the hospital now. When he gets here we'll give you a shot, but you to sleep."

"Doctor, do you think there may be internal injuries?" The frantic mother again asked. Frank answered:

"Internal injuries, Mother—forget it! I'm fine. Give you a scare, Pop?"

"Good God!" "We came down," Frank observed briefly.

"It was in the paper, Frank. That's the way Pop saw it."

"In the paper!" "The late afternoon edition, with pictures, dear."

"They don't lose much time! Lord, I'm sorry!" Frank muttered.

"Ouch!" Sheila exclaimed, on a weary and desolate echo of a sob. The old doctor, gently exploring her shoulder, apologized sympathetically.

"Go easy on her," Mrs. Carscadden warned him. Sheila, completely disarmed by the concern in the beloved voice, began to cry bitterly as she slipped her bare, bruised shoulder back into her dress and straightened the tumbled ruffle of white at her neck.

"You had a narrow escape, my dear!" the doctor said, gravely.

"Don't I have me again," Mrs. Carscadden said in a whisper. Sheila clung to her, their wet faces touching, her mother's arms about her.

CHAPTER XIV

Frank moved his own shoulder restlessly, groaned.

"Wouldn't you know the damn thing—" he began mildly. He put his uninjured hand on his mother's bowed head. "How'd you hear of it, Mother?" he asked.

"Oh, Frank, that was so terrible! God grant we never have that to go through again! Pop saw it in the paper, but I got it over the telephone. It was the police, dear, from Newark. The man, said, 'Mr. Mc Cann has been slightly injured!' I thought of course it was Pop."

"That must have been hot!"

"It wasn't any better when I learned the truth, dear. Mamie had to take the phone. I got faint. They fixed me up on the sofa, and they tried to reach Papa; but they couldn't find him."

"I'm so sorry!" Frank said heavily. The look that was almost coma had come into his eyes again.

There were fewer persons in the room now. The younger brothers and sisters were being firmly ejected, one by one, by a powerful, big black-headed woman who was being cajoled by them under the name of "Diddy." They were imploring Diddy to allow them to remain, and Diddy was sternly refusing.

Mamie and two younger maids were running back and forth, in and out of a large, adjoining dressing-room, with sheets, tables, electric brought on ye, sir!" Sheila's mother was saying, as they all went out into the hall. "But I know her—there isn't a bad bone in her body!"

"Mrs. Carscadden—" Mrs. Mc Cann said in a whisper. Her face was ghastly. "We knew nothing of this," she began again. "My son Frank has always been—we've depended on him!" she finished faintly.

"You mustn't break, Mamma!" the judge said. But he looked broken himself.

"Is he so sick?" Sheila faltered, bursting into tears.

No one paid any attention to her. Judge Mc Cann, always grave and kindly, addressed Sheila's mother:

"Mrs. Carscadden, as soon as the boy is out of the woods I'll get in touch with you."

Sheila's mother appeared not to be listening.

"He said it. But I don't believe it!" she said, in a dull, stricken tone.

"Nor I, either," the judge agreed. "There's some explanation—"

"No—no—no, he'd never do that!" Mrs. Mc Cann said in her soft, eager voice. "He never—they never thought—that was all!"

"Well, well, well," the judge said, "we'll straighten it all out. God's ways are not our ways. And the young people today are not what we used to be!"

"Indeed, you're right about that!" said Sheila's mother.

They were working their way downstairs; Sheila and Joe, and their mother, and the senior Mc Canns, and various other unidentified persons, servants, cousins, aunts.

Among these Sheila had confusedly noticed, from the beginning, a pretty, black-eyed girl in a dark red suit trimmed with black fur, and a dark red hat. If she had tried to identify this girl at all she might have placed her as one of Frank's younger sisters; he had three besides Veronica, she knew, or she might have supposed her to be a concerned, pretty cousin. But as a matter of fact the group had been so large, and so mixed, and the babel of voices and the general movement so distracting, that Sheila, although she had distinctly observed this girl, had wasted no thought whatever upon her identity.

But now, in the lower hall, the girl suddenly took the center of the stage by arresting them all with a quick imperative word to the judge.

"Judge Mc Cann, and Mrs. Mc Cann, too," this girl began, in a high-strung and haughty voice. "I'm going. You'll understand—you'll understand, of course, that this changes everything."

"Oh, Bernadette, my dear!" Mrs. Mc Cann said, in a heartbroken tone.

"You must see that!" the girl said, in a quick, feverish manner. She stood close to Mrs. Mc Cann, her fingers nervously busy with her lace collar. "You see that?" she asked.

"Bernadette," the judge said, "don't be too quick to judge him. We mustn't jump to conclusions. In a few days—when, God willing, he'll be better—"

"No, never!" the girl said with spirit. "Never! You heard what he said. He never saw me. He never spoke to me! It was—it was—"

She began to choke, flung up her head, was silent.

"Bernadette, dear," Mrs. Mc Cann said, her arm about her, "control yourself. I feel as bad as you do. It doesn't seem possible it's Frank. But let's give the poor child the benefit of the doubt."

"Doubt!" the girl echoed quickly, with a scornful laugh. "You heard what he said!"

"Bernadette," said Mrs. Mc Cann, "you know as well as I do that Frank Mc Cann is incapable of anything underhand—"

"Underhand!" The girl caught up the word again, angrily. "I don't know what you call it. Engaged to me, he was visiting this girl down there at Atlantic City! I don't care—I don't care whether he was living with her or not!" she rushed on recklessly, and the judge and his wife and Sheila's mother recoiled from the phrase as if from a blow.

"That doesn't make any difference!" Bernadette Kennedy said, beginning to sob. "What difference does that make, as long as we know that she knew she was there, and was going down to see her—and her own mother didn't know where she was—and even the papers didn't know it—look at them!"

"Why, that's a lie!" Sheila said, understanding at least. "That's a lie! Frank never telephoned me in his life!"

"Oh!" breathed Mrs. Mc Cann, "this is terrible!"

"I wouldn't believe anything you said, if you swore it on the Gospels," Bernadette said, in a low, trembling tone, turning toward Sheila.

"I wouldn't care whether you believed me or not!" Sheila returned fiercely.

"You ruined Peter Mc Cann's life, and Gertrude Keane's life," Bernadette flung at her, breathlessly. "You might as well know it, you've ruined all our lives! While your mother and brother were worrying themselves to death about you, you and Frank—who's a hundred thousand times too good for you—you and Frank were down at Atlantic City! The papers no sooner get through with denying you're married to Peter Mc Cann than they have you in an airplane smash with Frank!"

"Mother, I'm all right."

light extensions. Someone had lighted a fire, someone else had drawn shades, someone was standing now with a tray and a steaming cup beside the bed, somebody else had ice in a bowl and was murmuring about "comprizes."

An elderly woman, majestic and assured of demeanor, and identified as "Gramma," had established herself in a great wing chair, near enough to the bed for a clear view of all proceedings; Judge Mc Cann stood at the foot, his graying, black curly hair rumpled, his face grave and pale, his eyes for his son only. There were others beside Sheila and her mother; the big luxurious room was full of movement. The doctor, having finished a quick examination of her shoulder, drew Sheila toward the bed.

"No harm done here, Frank. She wrenched her shoulder and scratched one side of her face."

"Not broken?" Frank asked eagerly.

"Nothing broken."

"We're going now," Sheila, beside the bed, said timidly. "I hope they won't hurt you, Frank."

His eyes were beginning to burn brightly with fever; he caught at her hand. She looked shabby, tired, sick; there were great rings about her eyes; her lashes were stuck together in long points. Her hat had been lost in the crash, and her soft coppery hair was uncovered in the evening lamp-light. Frank remembered that she had not wanted to fly home; she had said she was afraid of it, and he had made her do it!

Remorse surged in his heart. There was something about this poor little luckless thing that had appealed to him in the very beginning of their acquaintance; it was stronger than ever now.

"I'm glad, if anything had to happen, it happened to me!" he said. "It was my fault, Mom, you mustn't blame this child. She's been—"

He tried to smile, but he was weak and in pain; the tears came instead.

"She's been wonderful," he said. "Down in Atlantic City, all this time. I knew it. Her own mother didn't know it. She's such a scary little thing, Pop; she didn't want to come home to face you all. I talked her into it." He looked up at her through misty eyes, managing a sickly smile. "We didn't know our adventure was going to end like this, did we, Sheila?" he said.

"We won't say that," Judge Mc Cann said. When she heard his voice Sheila's heart sank within her, for it sounded as if Frank might be dying—

JOB TEMPTED TO DOUBT GOD'S GOODNESS

LESSON TEXT—Job 2:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—In all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly.—Job 1:22.

Poetry has in all ages been the language of the soul. Feelings beyond the reach of the choicest prose seem to pour forth unhindered through the poetic channel. That is one reason why Christian people find such a response in their own souls as they read the magnificent poetry of the Bible. For the next three months we are to be privileged to carry on a study of the poets of the Bible. None of us should miss a single lesson.

The book of Job deals with and solves the fundamental problem, "What is the meaning of the suffering of the righteous?" Our first lesson presents Satan as the great adversary and accuser of man, and reveals that man may successfully resist him by faith in God.

I. Satanic Accusation (vv. 1-5). The lesson opens with a scene in heaven, where the angelic beings present themselves to give an account of their activities. Satan, too, is there as the adversary and accuser of men's souls. He had already, by God's permission and as a test of Job's faith, destroyed all of Job's property and taken from him his family (see Job 1:14-19), but he had not destroyed Job's trust in God (1:21).

Now Satan had a new charge; namely, that Job could bear the loss of his children and his riches, but if God would permit his own body to be afflicted, he would deny God. It is the familiar refuge of those who would lie about the servants of God to say, "He is in it for what he gets out of it." Those who use that lie do well to recognize the originator of their calumny; they are working with Satan when they thus hinder the Lord's work.

II. Spiritual Integrity (vv. 6-10). The trial of Job was most severe, for only his life was spared. His affliction was evidently not only that of boils on his skin (which would have been bad enough), but a systemic condition which made his whole body sick and made him so repulsive as to be unfit to live with other people (see Job 7:1-5, 14, 15; 16:8; 19:17-20).

Not only did he suffer physically within an inch of his life, but he was subjected to the mental and spiritual torture of having the one who should have stood by him—his wife—urge him to renounce his faith in God and die. Many who have borne excruciating physical pain have broken down under spiritual cruelty, but Job still maintained his integrity.

Why God permitted him to suffer he did not yet understand, but he knew God and he was willing to take from His hand evil as well as good (v. 10) as long as His heavenly Father was in control. What a testimony!

III. Sympathetic Friendship (vv. 11-13). His wife and neighbors had abandoned Job, and even the children of the street despised him (19:18), but he did have three friends. Thank God for friendship—not the fair weather kind, but the type that stands by in the hour of trouble. These friends apparently came from a distance (vv. 11, 12) and at some sacrifice of time, effort and money. Friendship that doesn't cost anything usually doesn't amount to anything.

Note the intelligent and sympathetic manner in which they shared his sorrow. They were themselves sorrowful (v. 12) and they sat with him, not saying a word. In the hour of deepest need words are futile and often only add to the sorrow, but how much it means in such an hour to have someone who will silently, and yet sympathetically, stand by. One could wish that his friends had continued as they began and not later have spoiled their comfort by many important sounding but foolish words which the Lord had to condemn in the serious words found in Job 42:7, 8.

We shall see the answer to the question regarding suffering in our lesson for July 21 as being that man might be brought to really know God and to see himself in the light of God's holiness. Thus, by victory through testing, man proves to himself and to his fellow men that God is worthy of our fullest confidence, that faith in Him will bring us through the deepest darkness and the severest trial.

Roots of Evil To abolish evil its roots must be dug up and exposed in the sunlight, where they will wither and perish. These roots thrive underground and are cancerous.

No More Vanity Ye shall see no more vanity, nor divine divinations; for I will deliver my people out of your hand; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.—Ezekiel 13:23.

For more than a year the editor of this newspaper was engaged in the task of organizing the farmers of this territory into a cooperative association to establish a cheese and butter plant. The plant has been established and has been operating for four months on a much larger scale than many of us ever dreamed possible even in a much longer period of time.

The farmers of this territory are interested in the dairy industry and most of them are trying to learn more and more about it.

Now that the plant is here is no reason for any of us to quit working for the betterment of the dairy industry. More farmers should be encouraged to supplement their income by the intelligent use of dairy cows on the farm.

We business men here in Loraine can, and should, assist the association in every way possible to make the venture a further success. One way in which we can help is to stage a big dairy show that will attract dairymen throughout this section. We had a nice little show early in the spring at the opening of the plant but we believe late fall or early winter would be a much better time for a show and we should start now to make our plans for a big show this fall. If we wait until just a week or two before show time to start getting up our show it will not be a big success. Let's get our chamber of commerce together at once and make plans.

What is Loraine doing to attract people to Loraine? Nothing. Shall we continue to let our neighboring towns beat us to the draw and furnish the entertainment for our people or shall we get together and provide something in the way of attractions to draw the crowds here. There is no reason why we should continue in our old rut. The road would be smoother if we move over to the other side out of the rut. Who will help form the lead team to pull us out?

Senator Collie For Re-Election

Ladies and gentlemen:

Patrick Henry said in his immortal speech, "I have but one light by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience; I know of no way of judging the future except by the past."

And so, my friends, when I come before you as a candidate for re-election, the best way to tell what kind of Senator I will make during the next four years, if re-elected, is to look at the record already made.

Since I became your Senator in 1933, more paved roads have been built than ever before; the deficit in the school fund has been wiped out and the per capita apportionment increased from $16 to $22.50; rural aid has been more than doubled, from five millions in 1933 to eleven millions now; we have a state employment service which has greatly reduced unemployment; our insane asylums and other eleemosynary institutions have had more buildings and additions than during any other like period in history; a state securities law has driven from our state hundreds of swindlers; our natural resources have been conserved; major crime has been intelligently and vigorously dealt with through a rejuvenated and modernized state police force; pardons and paroles now are granted upon recommendation of a non-political board; the people have been given tax relief through the exemption of homesteads up to a valuation of $3,000 from all state taxes. I have sponsored and given my support to all these measures and policies.

Where others may tell you what they will do "if" and "when", it is my happy privilege to be able to point not simply to promises, but to performance.

The record will show that I am now and always been the friend of old age assistance, the blind, the poor, unfortunate children; and all constitutional amendments on these matters have been submitted to you the people, and by you have been placed in the Constitution during my tenure of office.

I was born in West Texas, the son of a minister and was left fatherless at the age of four, and, being one of 14 children, I was compelled as an under-privileged boy to make my way. These facts mentioned that you may see that my sympathies naturally are with the rank and file of our people. During my school days, I worked after hours as a printer and in other newspaper work. Later, working as an abstractor, I studied law at night and was licensed to practice law in 1928 and served as assistant county and district attorney before my election to the Senate.

It would of course be impossible to discuss all the thousands of roll calls and all the hundreds of bills that have been before the Senate during that time but I can state without fear of contradiction that no member of the Senate has missed fewer roll calls or been any more "on the job" than has Wilburne Collie—and that is the kind of faithful service that I promise you, if you again elect me.

Economy in our State government is a big need of the hour. With our tax bill from Washington increasing because of the necessity of building up our army, our navy and our air forces to protect us from possible invasion, it is more important than ever that all non-essentials in State government be dispensed with. Millions of dollars have been saved on some appropriation bills and further savings can and must be made so as to leave adequate revenue for the services which are necessary.

"Co-operation" is the key word to the achievement of results. I was one of the Senators working with the Governor to make his administration a success. I pledge continued co-operation with other officials and branches of government.

I voted for the old age pension tax measure, House Bill 908, but in the closing days of the session when the only proposal that had a chance to pass was SJR 12, I voted to submit that to a vote of the people.

If you wish to know my individual preference as to financing social security, it is by taxes based on the Jeffersonian fundamental that those shall pay who are best able—in other words those who have the most and receive the greatest benefits from government. That would mean a tax upon the corporate interests and reasonable increases on natural resources.

I have always favored good roads and believe that they should be used to the best public advantage, particularly for the benefit of farmers and stock-raisers by lifting the truck-load limit for these producers. I favor continued support for our public schools; I stand

All-American "Carries Ball" for Sadler

'Jarrin' John Kimbrough, "All-American powerhouse from Texas A. & M. College" and his brother Jack, will buck the political line in the governor's race for Jerry Sadler, Hickory Grove's entry for this office. The Kimbrough Brothers will travel with Sadler in his swing around the state "as the avowed foe of a sales tax in any form, whether it is called transaction, gross receipts, or what-not". Sadler is running for governor on a platform to pay old age pensions and other social security obligations with increased taxes on oil, gas and sulphur.

for the further enlargement of our State institutions for the insane. Our epileptic colony at Abilene and our institutions for the treatment of tuberculosis are in need of increased space, which I pledge my best efforts to obtain.

If you believe in these things and if you feel that my record has been to advance the public welfare if you believe that the tasks of tomorrow should be entrusted to hands that were trained in yesterday's accomplishments; if you feel that there is no substitute for experience, especially in such troublous times as these; then I will appreciate your vote for Wilburne Collie for re-election as State Senator.

HIGHWAY USERS PAY FOURTH OF TAXES

Austin, June 3—The highway users of Texas contributed more than one-fourth of the income for the State during 1939, Mr. Lynn Shaw, Manager of the Texas Motor Transportation Association said today, after studying a summary issued recently of the income and expenditures of the State for last year.

Actually, the highway users paid 29.73 cents of every dollar that the State Government took in, Mr. Shaw declared. With a total income from highway motor fuel taxes set at $44,216,908.15 for the last fiscal year, the State report shows that this represents 25.24 cents of each dollar taken in. Added to this was the $7,874,902.46 which was taken in for license tags and driver's licenses. This represents 4.49 cents of every dollar of income.

This 29.73 cents is by far the largest part paid by any single source into the revenue dollar of the revenue of the State. Gross receipts taxes account for 11.34 cents of the dollar, and the ad valorem tax supplied 8.54 cents, to place second and third as money sources for the State. Next highest was the cigarette stamp tax which supplied 3.93 cents for each dollar, Mr. Shaw said.

Though the highway users paid a great deal more than any other group, they also received a large part of the State's dollar when it was spent. 34.04 cents of every dollar which the State expended went for highways. In figures for the total amount spent, this is $55,934,368.56. Next highest came the 27.78 cents of every dollar spent for education in Texas. Third was the public welfare bill, including pensions, benefits, and retirements, with 21.61 cents per dollar.

Total income for the State last year was $175,216,238.99. Total expenditures were $164,323,499.81.

It's Easy to Stay Young ELECTRICALLY

• No wonder the modern mother stays young. Cheap electricity at the flip of a switch does work in a few minutes that took hours of hard effort by women of a generation or two ago.

Leisure... freedom from household drudgery... comfort... these are just a few of the advantages you enjoy from the use of your cheap electric service. You have hours of leisure while electricity cooks the meals. Electricity takes practically all the arm-work out of food preparation and the back-work out of housecleaning.

Electric Service is one of the smallest items of expense in the home—averaging only a few cents a day

Feeding for Fall Production

Growing pullets must be kept on a good feeding program during July and August, if they are expected to come into heavy production by September 1st. A plentiful supply of both grains and mashes should be kept before them at all times. This method permits the birds themselves to choose which ever they need the most for their best development. They should have plenty of green feeds or alfalfa hay soaked overnight in water. The idea of forcing birds for heavy fall production, when eggs can be sold for a good profit, is becoming more and more popular. It is a well established fact, that unless a flock lays heavily during September, October, November and December the year's poultry business will end up in the red.

Opposes Sales Tax

AUSTIN, TEXAS, July 3, 1940—As an avowed foe of a sales tax in any form, Jerry Sadler, youthful candidate is making the race for governor of Texas on a platform to pay old age pensions and other social security obligations of the state with additional taxes on oil, gas and sulphur.

Sadler would meet the Teachers Retirement fund with reforms in the present franchise tax laws, and has called attention to the fact that there are billion dollar corporations now doing business in Texas and only paying $10 annually in franchise taxes. Teachers of Texas have already paid more than $6,000,000 in to this fund to the state, which is supposed to match dollar for dollar and has paid nothing.

Sadler has called attention of the people to the fact that Governor O'Daniel's Transaction tax bill, which he advocates in seeking reelection is a sales tax which would tax poverty in Texas from 6 to 14 percent for each loaf of bread bought, each gingham dress, overalls, work shoes, or would tax any kind of a transaction made in the entire state.

Sadler's proposal of taxing oil, gas and sulphur to pay these State obligations would put the tax burden on those most able to pay. His slogan is "Tax the mouths of the people." He has shown that by taxing oil, gas and sulphur that the people of Texas would only be paying 20 percent of these taxes, as more than 80 percent of all oil, gas and sulphur produced in Texas is exported to other states.

"Any sales tax passed," Sadler said, would be paid in its entirety by Texans. It would tax the poor, because the rich could buy their necessities outside of the state and would therefore not come under a sales tax. I am opposed to putting any further tax burdens on the little man of Texas, but believe it is high time Big Business started paying its share of our taxes."

Turkey Shipments Have Doubled

Austin, Texas, July 3—Though still small—only 18 cars—turkey shipments from Texas in May doubled those of May, 1939, and contributed to an 18.9 per cent gain in the movement of poultry from Texas to other states University of Texas statisticians have reported.

The 70 cars of chickens shipped showed a 7.7 per cent gain over May of last year, the Bureau of Business Research statement said.

The 70 cars of chickens shipped showed a 7.7 per cent gain over May of last year, the Bureau of Business Research statement said. The 18 cars of turkeys shipped were twice those of May, 1939. Shipments of turkeys and chickens combined totaled 88 cars, as compared with 74 last year.

Egg shipments gained 37.1 per cent to total 122 cars.

Six cars of eggs were received from other states during May—three cars from Kansas, two from Missouri, and one from Tennessee—compared with sixteen carloads received from Kansas in May of last year.

For Congress George Mahon

A personal word to the people of the 19th District:

During this grave emergency I have remained on the job in Washington, seeking to serve you and our Nation at this time of great crisis. As you know, it has been necessary for Congress to remain in session and the adjournment date is still uncertain.

I am not unmindful that this is election year. Under normal conditions, I would now be visiting among you, thanking you for past favors and seeking your continued good will and support. Not being able to be in our District, I take this means of thanking you for the wonderful cooperation you are now giving me and have always given me during my service as your Representative in Congress. May I earnestly solicit your continued confidence and support in the July Primary.

GEORGE MAHON

LeMay Seeks Superintendent's Office In Primary

Athens, Texas, June 3—Predicting "the collapse of the political machine which has fastened itself on the public school system of Texas," Supt. S. R. LeMay of Athens told a large crowd that his campaign for state superintendent "is on the road to a smashing victory."

School superintendent here for the past 18 years' LeMay returned home from a campaign that took him through west and north Texas and into more than 100 towns and cities.

He said "the reason Texas has been ranked 38th in educational efficiency lies in the fact that a political machine" fed on the fuel of fear and favor, has sapped the vitality of our public school system."

"The people of Texas are worried about democracy at home and abroad," LeMay declared. "They are saying that if our democracy is to survive, we must practice it at home. They are determined to break up the political machine in the State Department of Education which has used the weapons of fear and reprisal to keep itself in power."

"Everywhere I go I find a keener interest in the working of our government than ever before. The people realize that democracies perished in Europe because they failed to serve the people, and they don't want that to happen here. They feel that our public school system, entrusted with the education of the Texans of tomorrow, should be free of the blight of machine politics and special privilege."

LeMay outlined his plans for a statewide conference of business, agricultural, labor and educational leaders to map a program for the 250,000 Texas boys and girls who have left school and are out of jobs.

"We must remember," he said, "that a legion of young men and women were responsible for the elevation of Adolf Hitler to power in Germany. When the youth of the land loses confidence in the power of democracy, then they turn to other forms of government—any form—even if that something is to go which has something for them to war."

"We must not miss the moral of this lesson."

Requests Of Highway 80 Group, Including 9 Mitchell Countians, Promised Consideration After Appearing Before Texas Highway Commission Saturday

"One of the most important undertakings of my administration will be to furnish the leadership to solve this problem for our Texas boys and girls. We will make democracy work."

Stock Shipments On Decline

Austin, Texas, July 3—Livestock shipments from Texas ranches to Fort Worth stockyards and to other states during May showed a 3.1 per cent decline from that month of 1939, with calves and sheep showing the only gains—7.7 and 28.3 per cent respectively, the University of Texas business research bureau reports.

Cattle shipments dropped 13.6 per cent to only 4,630 cars and hogs decreased 8.6 per cent to 824 cars. Shipments of all classes of livestock totaled 8,652 cars.

For the first five months of the year, shipments totaled 34,197 cars as compared with 43,101 cars during the same period last year.

The 70 cars of chickens shipped showed a 7.7 per cent gain over May of last year, the Bureau of Business Research statement said. The 18 cars of turkeys shipped were twice those of May, 1939. Shipments of turkeys and chickens combined totaled 88 cars, as compared with 74 last year.

Egg shipments gained 37.1 per cent to total 122 cars.

Six cars of eggs were received from other states during May, three cars from Kansas, two from Missouri, and one from Tennessee—compared with sixteen carloads received from Kansas in May of last year.

Milk Increases At Cheese Plant

The record-breaking figure of 24,300 pounds of milk was recorded at the Lorraine Co-Operative Association Wednesday, according to Mr. Wade, assistant cheese-maker in the cheese plant division. Part of this increase was due to the heavy rains over the area served by the plant, and a general increase in the amount of milk coming in from all parts of the country covered by the milk routes may be expected as a result of these rains improving pasture lands. A new route is now being run to Fluvanna, Texas, and this one brings the total number of routes to thirteen.

Inexpensive Chintz, China and Ingenuity

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IT WAS with a thrill of pride that Betsy's mother looked over a list of the nicest girls in Betsy's class. She had said, "yes," when Betsy wanted to give a luncheon for them. Now what would she do about the shabby old dining room with its veneered oak chairs, short, faded curtains and bare buff-colored walls?

Here is the answer and it cost exactly six dollars. An inexpensive green and yellow flowered chintz was used for draperies from ceiling to floor. The trick of making the windows higher is explained in the diagram. The old window shades were painted a soft, clear green. The backs and seats of the chairs were slip-covered with the chintz with green bindings, and a set of green and yellow china was brought out to lend color to the walls and add a note of interest on green painted stands in front of the windows. The stands were made of empty spools as described in the new Sewing Book 5, which is now ready for mailing. This book also gives directions for a buckram stiffened valance of the type shown here. All of its 32 pages are packed as tight as I could make them with ideas to make your home attractive without breaking the bank. You can have your copy for 10 cents to cover cost and mailing. MOTHER'S DAY OUT

(See Recipes Below)

Was there ever a homemaker who didn't wish now and then that she could "play hooky" for one afternoon without the dire consequences of leaving her family to shift for itself at meal time? It can be done and it's a wise homemaker who arranges her schedule during the pleasant summer weather, to allow for a few hours of leisure, here and there.

Plan a meal, for "Mother's Day Out," that will cook without watching while you're away; casserole dishes that require long, slow cooking are ideal. With a simple salad dessert and beverage, you can have a highly satisfactory dinner.

Or perhaps a menu that permits beforehand preparations will suit you better. Select, for it, foods that can be made ready (except for a few last-minute touches), hours ahead of time. Make use of canned and packaged foods, too, that will permit you to serve a tempting evening meal with a minimum amount of time and effort.

Here's a menu that's quickly and easily prepared, yet so delicious that it's bound to please even a critical family.

Menu for a Quick Meal.
Scrambled Eggs With Creole Sauce
Mixed Green Salad
Hot Rolls Strawberry Jam
Fresh Fruit Cookies
Beverage

The scrambled eggs with creole sauce are easily prepared and they're a delicious basis for a very quick meal. To save precious time at the very last moment, collect and measure ingredients beforehand, and, if you like, prepare the sauce ahead of time, to be kept in the refrigerator and reheated just before serving.

Salad greens can be washed, picked over and carefully dried, hours ahead of time, then stored in the vegetable crisper in the refrigerator until you are ready to use them.

Rolls, from yesterday's baking, or fresh from the bakery, can be buttered, and placed in a shallow pan ready to be popped into the oven for quick heating. (Be sure they're kept covered during the afternoon, to prevent drying out.)

For dessert why not serve fresh pineapple, which is better by far when it's peeled and cut early, generously sprinkled with confectioners' sugar, and allowed to mellow and chill before serving.

Creole Sauce.
1 No. 2 can tomatoes
1/2 cup celery (diced)
2 tablespoons green pepper (minced)
1 tablespoon onion (minced)
1 teaspoon salt
Few grains cayenne pepper
2 tablespoons cornstarch
4 tablespoons water

Combine vegetables and seasonings and cook for about 15 minutes, or until the vegetables are done. Mix cornstarch with water, and add to the sauce. Cook for about 10 minutes, or until sauce has thickened.

Old Fashioned Ginger Creams.
(Makes 5 dozen)
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1/4 cup molasses
2 1/2 cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Granulated sugar

Cream the shortening thoroughly, add the sugar gradually and blend well. Beat in the egg and molasses. Sift the ingredients together and add to the creamed mixture. Chill the dough over night in your refrigerator. Shape it into small balls and roll each ball in granulated sugar. Place 2 1/2 inches apart on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for approximately 12 minutes.

While all the luscious, tempting berries and fruits are available, make use of them in as many ways as you can. In this column next week Eleanor Howe will give you some of her own practical, tested recipes for using summer fruits and berries. Be sure to read this column next week.

erately hot oven (375 degrees) for approximately 12 minutes.

Scrambled Eggs.
(Serves 5)
3 tablespoons butter
6 eggs (slightly beaten)
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper

Heat butter in frying pan over low heat. Combine eggs, milk, and seasonings and pour into frying pan. As mixture cooks, stir with a spatula, forming creamy flakes. Cook for about 5 minutes or until eggs are firm but tender.

Summer Salad Bowl.
(Serves 6)
1 head lettuce
1 cucumber (unpeeled) (sliced)
1 green pepper (cut in thin rings)
3 fresh tomatoes (cut in wedge-shaped pieces)
1 bunch radishes (sliced)
6 green onions (cut in strips)
French dressing

Prepare and chill vegetables thoroughly. Line salad bowl with large crisp leaves of lettuce and shred remaining lettuce rather coarsely. Place all vegetables in salad bowl and toss together with a well-seasoned french dressing. Serve at once.

Graham Refrigerator Rolls.
(Makes about 4 dozen)
2 cups milk (scalded)
1/4 cup strained honey
1/4 cup shortening
2 teaspoons salt
2 cakes yeast softened in 1/4 cup lukewarm water
2 eggs (well beaten)
5 cups flour
2 cups whole wheat or graham flour

Pour scalded milk over honey, shortening and salt, in large mixing bowl. Cool to lukewarm. Then add softened yeast and well-beaten eggs. Add about half the flour, beat well. Add remaining flour and mix until the dough is smooth. Place batter in greased bowl, grease dough generously and cover. Store in refrigerator until needed, then let dough warm to room temperature, shape into rolls, and let rise until light. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees) for about 20 minutes.

Six Layer Dinner That Cooks While You're Away.
(Serves 6)
1 cup potatoes (sliced raw)
1 cup uncooked rice
1 cup onion (raw and chopped)
2 cups round steak (ground)
2 1/2 cups tomatoes (cooked)
1 cup green pepper (chopped)
3 strips bacon

Butter a baking casserole and place all above ingredients in order given, in layers, in the casserole. Season layers with salt and pepper while putting together. Cover casserole and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees) for about 2 hours. Remove cover during last 20 minutes of baking time, cover with bacon strips, and complete baking.

Star Dust

By VIRGINIA VALE
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

THE first actor in Hollywood history ever to be elected a delegate to a national political convention, Melvyn Douglas wonders if he will be able to enjoy the honor.

"Of course I can always be represented by proxy," he said the other day. "But a chance like this comes only every four years, and I'd hate to miss it."

Douglas made preparations to be in Chicago July 15 for the big conclave. But he temporarily forgot that he is also an actor, involved in the new Columbia comedy, "He Stayed for Breakfast," along with Loretta Young, Eugene Pallette, Una O'Connor and Alan Marshall. Alexander Hall, the director, is making every effort to hurry things along, and is making all the scenes with Douglas first.

If you think you'd like to be a motion picture producer, pause and consider what happened at the Paramount studio recently when Joel McCrea withdrew from the cast of "Arise My Love" because of ill health. (1) Because of McCrea's withdrawal, Ray Milland was plucked from the cast of "Virginia" to take the McCrea assignment, opposite Claudette Colbert. (2) That meant that "Virginia" wouldn't start on time. (3) That meant that Franchot Tone, who was to have co-starred in "Virginia," had to withdraw from the cast, because he had another commitment, and could appear in "Virginia" only if it started on schedule. (4) That meant that Fred McMurray stepped into the role for which Milland had been scheduled, playing opposite Madeleine Carroll, but (5) She flew to England recently; at the moment of writing there's no telling when she'll be back.

Dorothy Lamour traded a $10,000- (according to her studio) head of hair for 30 cents' worth of calico, and it wasn't just a stunt in a movie scenario either. Seems she's been wanting to bob those 40-inch tresses, which played quite a part in establishing her as a draw at the box-office. The studio wanted her to make some more pictures in which she wore a sarong, and she was determined not to. So both sides gave in; she had her hair bobbed by Wally Westmore, head of the make-up department (and cried a little, as most girls do when they hear that first snip of the shears) and consented to do three South Seas pictures - "Moon Over Burma," "Alma of the South Seas," with Jon Hall, and "South of Samoa," with Bing Crosby.

A custom has been initiated during the rehearsals of the Rudy Vallee show to mark the scripts with asterisks to denote the laugh allowed. The reason for this is to clock for timing when the show is actually broadcast. Four asterisks are tops in laugh pauses. The other night someone in the cast asked scriptwriter Sid Fields what it meant to see five asterisks instead of the customary four. Replied Fields, "Then you know that you have the Fred Allen script by mistake."

When you see the Bing Crosby picture, "Rhythm on the River," you may be surprised to find that Ken Carpenter, Bing's announcer and chime ringer on the air, plays a radio announcer named "Ken Carpenter." It's the result of an accident. Scenarists had given Carpenter another name in the picture, but John Scott Trotter, who's Bing's broadcast band leader and plays a band leader in the picture, made a long film take in which he called Carpenter by his real name. It was simpler to change the name than to do the scene over again.

Arthur Lake's desire for realism on the "Blondie" radio show nearly disrupted the program recently. In one scene he had to fall down, with the proper accompanying sound effects; usually that just means that the sound man makes the noises. But Arthur insisted on doing his own fall. The show was on for the eastern broadcast. Arthur fell wrong, the script fell in all directions, and Penny Singleton had to rush over with her script and let Arthur read his part from it until his script had been reassembled.

OLIN CULBERSON FOR R. R. COMMISSIONER

AUSTIN, July 3—A simple plan to force the use of dissenting opinions which he contends would in short order end all opportunity for and talk about "influence peddling" in connection with the Texas Railroad Commission was advanced to day here by Olin Culberson of Jackson County, candidate for railroad commissioner.

The South Texan, a former Hill County judge, had the backing of six years experience working under the commission's gas utilities division, as such reduced gas rates in many Texas cities, was head of the oil proration enforcement division and helped drive out the "hot oil" racketeer.

"The legislature should pass a law requiring that all three members of the commission sign every order, although two signatures validate it," Culberson said. "After all they each draw salaries. As matters now stand, many orders are issued by two without the third ever seeing them. This allows for evasion of responsibility that is wrong and leads to worse things. It provides a loophole through which a sharp-shooting 'influence peddler' can operate with impunity. If all three were forced to sign every order,

This great feature appears in some of the country's largest newspapers. Its wide appeal has made it recognized as one of the leading comic strips of the day, and we consider ourselves fortunate to be able to offer it to our readers.

shortly the practice of writing dissenting opinions to explain signatures would develop.

"This would bring out for public inspection many occurrences now hidden.

"I also am in favor of making up and rigidly adhering a calendar of routine events so that the members of the oil, gas and transportation industries would know exactly on what date hearings would be held orders issued and the complaint that something had been done behind some fellow's back would no longer be possible. I learned in training that routine is important."

Having just concluded a mid-campaign trip that in two weeks took him from the Panhandle to the Valley, from far West to deep East Texas, Judge Culberson said he felt he had a pretty good idea of how the railroad commission was going.

"Thanks to the work done by my friends, particularly the volunteer firemen in the small towns and the fireboys of the cities, I will poll a more widespread vote than any of the 18 railroad commission candidates," Culberson said. "It is hard for me to believe at times that friends could be so loyal and fine.

I come to town after town without any notice and find that my friends have called on the newspaper editors asking for their support, that they have contacted their county chairmen and their precinct judges that they have put out my literature and my placards not on posts and trees but with permission in places of business in cities and towns.

"I have no other way than this to reach these fine folks to thank them than this. Their number is so large that I cannot even afford postage stamps to correspond with them regularly.

"If Olin Culberson becomes railroad commissioner, it will be through the efforts of just such true Texans and true friends, and to them I pledge that I will transfer my gratitude to them to my work to help all Texas as a railroad commissioner."

Judge Culberson said that his experience and proven ability contributed largely to the success of his friends in securing support for him.

"It is pretty generally agreed that now is the time for experience, not experiment," Judge Culberson said.
