Italian priest arrested in crime crackdown

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — In a nationwide crackdown on organized crime, police said Friday they arrested 425 people including a Roman Catholic priest, a nun, a television quiz show host and several local politicians.

Those arrested are suspected members or supporters of the Camorra, a powerful group of criminal gangs similar to the Sicilian Mafia. Warfare between the gangs has claimed 106 lives in Naples this year.

All suspects were charged with drug smuggling, defrauding the state and "illegal association" a catch-all charge Italian police use against organized crime suspects.

More than 10,000 paramilitary police and special agents made the arrests in coordinated raids in Naples, Rome, Milan, Venice, Bologna and 21 other cities throughout Italy Thursday night and early Friday, police said.

Those arrested include Sister Aldina Murelli, a Roman Catholic nun who was picked up at her convent in Ercolano south of Naples, and the Rev. Mariano Santini, a priest in Ascoli Piceno, a central Italian city which is the site of one of Italy's largest prisons.

Enzo Tortora, the host of a television quiz show, collapsed shortly after he was taken into custody in Rome. Tortora, 53, was treated at a hospital and transferred to Rome's Regina Coeli prison.

"This is a colossal judicial error," Tortora told reporters outside the prison. "They (authorities) are wrong."

Raffaele Graziano, mayor of Quindici, a small town near Irpinia east of Naples, who was elected on an independent slate supported by the Christian Democrats, and Giuseppe D'Antuono, former Christian Democrat mayor of nearby San Antonio Abate, also were jailed.

Salvatore La Marca, tourism commissioner in the Naples municipal government, Neapolitan singer Assunta Setaro known as Alba, and Enrico Madonna, a lawyer who represents organized crime figures, were among those arrested.

The chief state prosecutor in Naples, Francesco Cedrangolo, said more than 900 warrants had been issued, including 337 served to those already in prison on other charges.

He did not say what role each suspect was accused of playing, and gave no further details of the charges. He said all were charged with an "umbrella warrant" accusing them of illegal association, defrauding the state and drug smuggling.

Police said about 200 of the suspects were picked up in and around Naples, and caches of weapons, ammunition and explosives also were seized, police said.

Cedrangolo said the raids culminated five months of investigations based on the testimony of two Camorra gunmen who became police informers.

"What we hit today is basically one branch of the Camorra — that of (Raffaele) Cutolo's Nuova Camorra Organizzata (New Organized Camorra)," the prosecutor told a news conference.

Cutolo, the imprisoned boss of a one gang, has been fighting another gang, the Nuova Famiglia (The New Family) for three years. The gang war for control of extortion rackets and drug and cigarette smuggling claimed 265 lives in Naples last year.

Prosecutors say about 5,000 gangsters operate in the Naples area and 100,000 people — one of every 12 Naples residents — is involved in some way with the Camorra, many by selling contraband cigarettes on street corners.

A survey last year by the Communist Party newspaper l'Unita said 87 percent of shopkeepers in Naples pay "protection money" to the Camorra. Even people who rent apartments pay the Camorra each month to protect their apartments from gang attacks, the survey said.

Police say gangsters control patronage jobs in some municipal governments and some have the power to give "favors" to their supporters.

Shuttle going through final step for liftoff

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA crews began filling Challenger's external tank with more than 500,000 gallons of liquid fuel early today, a final step in readying the space shuttle for its milestone launch with Sally Ride and four male crewmates.

Low clouds a continent away posed the threat of postponement but officials remained optimistic.

President Reagan, who is expected at the Cape for Challenger's landing next Friday, sent a launch-eve message wishing luck to Ms. Ride, the first American female to go in space, and her crewmates, Robert Crippen, Rick Hauck, John Fabian and Dr. Norman Thagard.

Dark skies on Friday obscured the International Airport at Dakar, in Senegal, which serves as the emergency landing site should the shuttle lose two of three main engines during its climb to orbit.

In late afternoon, a NASA statement said conditions were "expected to be okay" for the 7:33 a.m. EDT liftoff. Air Force weather officers were more guarded.

"The key points we will be looking for is visibility," said Lt. Gen. James A. Abrahamson, head of the NASA shuttle program. He said a space agency pilot will test conditions until just before liftoff.

If the runway isn't clear enough, Abrahamson said, "That's going to be a tough choice." Cloud cover was at 1,300 feet, a critical point where commander Crippen must see the runway.

NASA went ahead with plans to fill the shuttle tank with a half-million gallons of liquid oxygen and nitrogen beginning at 12:13 a.m. Even so, a go-no-go decision could wait until nine minutes before scheduled liftoff.

After 13 months of intensive training, the crew spent much of Friday in semi-isolation going over the detailed flight plan.

"They are a very relaxed crew," said Abrahamson. "They were all running this morning. They are in good shape."

He talked of two important milestones for women.

"The first one is (today), the milestone of the first U.S. lady astronaut in space. It should have happened sooner, just as I think ladies could have done many things in our society sooner," Abrahamson said.

The other milestone will be "when we have ladies going into space and doing other things in the program and nobody notices, when it's taken for granted," he said. "We can't afford to waste the talent of half the people in our society."

The astronauts planned an early dinner with their families before retiring in the crew quarters. Wakeup was set for just after 3 a.m.

Ms. Ride, a 32-year-old astrophysicist, often makes light of the mark she is etching into American space history, but explained recently:

"It's not men going into space and having women along. I think it's people going into space...You ought to take the best person for the job, and if that person is a woman, you ought to take her."

Air carrier applies for San Angelo-Midland route

By VINCE GIORGI
Staff Writer

With an eye toward changing the notion that "you can't get there from here," a San Angelo air carrier has applied to the Texas Aeronautics Commission for permission to operate an air carrier service between San Angelo and Midland.

N.M. Mitchell, Inc., which plans to operate a commuter airline under the name Wise Airlines, will present its arguments in favor of the proposed service to a hearing examiner in Austin July 1.

If the examiner rules the company has both the financial and managerial ability to operate the carrier, Wise Airlines could be approved and in operation as early as Sept. 1.

Malone Mitchell, chief operating executive of N.M. Mitchell, Inc., said Friday the company has spent about 18 months studying the possibility of creating a carrier to service the San Angelo-Midland route. N.M. Mitchell, Inc., has operated as Southwest Aircraft, a fixed base operator at San Angelo's Mathis Field, for 38 years.

"What we're primarily aiming at, initially, is the business crowd," said Mitchell, who noted that market studies of travelers entering and leaving San Angelo indicate "the demand to be about 100 passengers a day.

"That doesn't sound like a lot," Mitchell said, "but it'll work for a commuter. We felt that this service was necessary."

Mitchell said passengers leaving San Angelo, which is not served by a major air carrier, can only make connections on major carriers by taking a non-stop commuter airline to Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

"What we're primarily aiming at, initially, is the business crowd... the demand to be about 100 passengers a day.... That doesn't sound like a lot...but it'll work for a commuter."

— Chief operating executive, N.M. Mitchell Inc.

He said the limited access to major air carriers forces some passengers, for example, to fly east to DFW Airport to connect with a carrier flying west to El Paso. He said Midland could act as a "second hub," providing access to Dallas Love Field, Houston, San Antonio, El Paso, Austin, Los Angeles, El Paso and other destinations favored by San Angelo travelers. "The primary destinations are well served by Midland," he said.

Passengers leaving San Angelo are also hindered in their ability to secure the most convenient flight schedules and the low fares offered by some major carriers, he said.

In addition, people doing business in San Angelo often are forced to fly to Midland, drive to San Angelo and back, and take their return flight from Midland. Mitchell noted that San Angelo can be a 2½-hour drive from Midland — or a 30-40 minute flight.

Preliminary plans call for two round-trip flights — one early in the morning and one in the evening — from San Angelo to Midland. He said the scheduling would benefit those passengers leaving San Angelo in the morning to conduct a day's business in another city before returning at night.

He said because the company is "fairly new to the scheduled aircraft business," it would limit itself to two daily flights "instead of starting with 20 flights going different places every day — we just don't think that's very wise." He also said the company plans to seek an arrangement with a major carrier in Midland to handle baggage and issue tickets.

Mitchell said Wise Airlines would expand its service as the market dictates and could relocate its headquarters in Midland if the business grows. "We feel like there's going to be quite a bit of demand for this service."

He said Wise Airlines will operate a 17-seat, twin engine De Havilland DH6-300 and likely will employ about 21 people. The company has already hired a pilot and two maintenance people from Midland.

Mitchell met with Midland aviation officials Wednesday to explain plans for Wise Airlines. Victor White, Midland's aviation director, said because the San Angelo-Midland route is not being served, "we'd love to welcome any new carriers."

The July 1 hearing in Austin is scheduled for 10 a.m. in Room 221 of the Anson Jones State Office Building, 410 E. 5th St. Anyone wishing to appear as a party to the hearing must file a "petition for leave to intervene" or a "notice of protest" with the hearing examiner on or before June 20.

Sellars awarded $750,000 settlement

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — The state of Louisiana has reached a $750,000 out-of-court settlement with one of the victims of a Department of Corrections plane crash at Midland's Warwick Apartments last fall.

The agreement settled a $10 million lawsuit filed by Randy Sellars, 20, who received burns over 85 percent of his body when the plane crashed into the complex where he lived.

Sellars had sought punitive damages in addition to a $6.55 million award.

In addition to an initial cash payment, the settlement guarantees Sellars $1,093.34 a month for life.

He was one of five people injured in the crash. One of the victims, Ken Hornsby, 41, a passenger in the plane, later died.

The plane crashed as it was leaving Airpark en route to Louisiana ferrying two Corrections Department prisoners who had been picked for probation and parole violations.

Also injured in the crash were the plane's pilot, Alex Sheets of Baton Rouge; Bernell Bell Jr., 30, an accused parole violator picked up in Las Vegas; and George Gibbs, 30, an accused probation violator picked up in Martinez, Calif.

Bell and Hornsby's father have filed lawsuits in conjunction with the crash. Bell seeks $525,000 and Hornsby, $854,468.

Air Force officials detain MX protesters

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Air Force officials detained 13 people, including activist Daniel Ellsberg, who entered the base Friday in what they said was an effort to halt the first test-launch of the MX missile.

The Air Force refused to confirm the protesters' claim that a test-launch was scheduled for Friday. However, the protesters claimed to have obtained a copy of a news release prepared by the Air Force relating to launch plans.

The protesters claimed to have stopped one test launch that had been scheduled earlier in the week.

"To the military we seem almost scatterbrained, yet it's working," said Vandenberg Action Coalition member Susan Komisarup. "It's almost amazing to think that a handful of activists is running around in the bushes in their blue jeans outsmarting the military."

Air Force Lt. Col. Dick Heil said 36 protesters had been arrested since Saturday for trespassing near the MX test installation on this seaside base in Santa Barbara County.

Ellsberg, a former government analyst who leaked top-secret Pentagon papers to the press in 1971, was arraigned along with five others on trespassing charges Friday afternoon before U.S. Magistrate John Seitz.

Ellsberg and another protester, Daniel Solomon, did not enter pleas and asked to appear in federal court. They were released on their own recognizance.

The other four pleaded no contest and were sentenced to 18 months probation or 50 hours of performing public service.

Hot, sunny weather forecast

If you've forgotten that gift for Father's Day, today should be the right day to get into the air-conditioned stores.

Today should be a scorcher, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The NWS is forcasting sunny and hot weather through Sunday. (So get dad in the yard today and let him relax with a cool drink and a fan Sunday).

Today's high should heat up to the mid-90s. Southerly to southeasterly winds should breeze through at 5-15 mph.

Tonight's low should cool to the low 60s, making it pleasant enough, perhaps, to bake ol' dad a special dessert for Sunday.

Today's high of 96 was hot, but not the sizzler like the 106 record high in 1977. And the overnight low of 64 stayed in the fair margin, but was a dozen degrees warmer than the record low of 52 set in 1945.

'Tiny' was reluctant treasure hunter

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

CRANE — He rode horseback alongside his father in the lowlands of the Pecos decades ago, and the hound pup before them suddenly became the subject of a living parable.

I.C. "Tiny" Earp had raised the pup as the kind of pet that would sprawl out in the nearest shade and whine at the hint of a summer day. But his father thought more practically and urged his son time and again to train the dog as a coyote killer and sheep protector.

"We'd gotten up real early that morning," recalled Tiny, an affable 57-year-old Crane County rancher with a contagious laugh. "The sun was just beginning to trickle up over the rise. We rode out from the ranchhouse there a ways. That ol' hound pup was with us, and jumped a jackrabbit and just run him right in front of the horses. (My father) was always after me because I wouldn't train that dog, and I thought, uh, oh, well, I'm gonna get another eatin' out."

BUT HIS DAD didn't say a word. He just sat and watched the hound pursue the rabbit, whose fluid cuts and speed soon left the dog panting and retreating to his master.

The elder Earp turned to Tiny. "You know, son," he said, "my whole life reminds me of that hound dog. Ever since I've been a young adult I've been chasing success in the same way that damned dog chases rabbits. I've chased it all my life and never have caught it yet."

They rode on silently for a short distance, then the older man philosophized aloud. "Well, you know, it isn't important, I guess, that I caught success. The important thing is that I never failed to run the race every opportunity, son. You do the same thing — don't you fail to run the race."

Last week, Tiny reflected on that seemingly insignificant event from the comforts of his modern-day log cabin a mile south of Crane.

"I've thought how applicable that was in a very humorous way to make that comparison, the wisdom that went into that. I've never forgotten it. And you know, any success that I may have had down through the years most probably can be attributed to people like (former Crane teacher) Paul Patterson and my father's and mother's teaching. I've been the luckiest guy in the world to have had those kind of people in my life."

TINY, WHOSE name came at the lips of an older brother who first referred to him as "my tiny little brother," has had a varied life in the country of Horsehead Crossing and Castle Gap. He's been a rancher, sometimes windmiller and — too often — a reluctant treasure hunter.

As a young man, he found himself employed by McElroy Ranch to assist old-time windmill man Cliff Newland.

"He and I would get up lots of times at four o'clock in the morning...and we'd be draining oil out of those windmills before you could see the top, in order to have enough time for us to go dig for treasure at Castle Gap. He was the technical end of the thing and I was the pick and shovel man."

Under the older man's tutelage, Tiny was supposed to have developed a keen eye for markings and other signs to point the way to buried treasure.

"I must have been a poor student," said Tiny, "because he could show me a sign and I couldn't see it whenever he was showing it to me. Anyway, it meant something to Cliff, but he was always after me, knowing that I cowboyed around all over the country, to be very well aware. He said he needed one or two more clues and he could go right to that Maximilian's treasure."

WITH THAT IN mind, Tiny once discovered just such a "sign" while he was riding horseback northwest of Castle Gap. It was a half-buried wagon tongue and nearby depression which bore evidence of a onetime excavation.

He rode into town and summoned his mentor, whose interest was so piqued that the two men, along with pool hall operator Swede Anderson, went back to the site.

"After we arrived on location, we looked around there and right due

I.C. "Tiny" Earp

north of this (depression), about 100 varas (a unit of measure), was a little ol' dwarf mesquite tree kinda out on the point of the mountain," Tiny recalled. "It was about six feet tall and probably had a trunk on it four or five inches in diameter. There was a big section probably the width of the diameter of the tree and maybe five inches across that had been cut out with an ax and a big X chopped in...It lined up with a big cave across the canyon over there."

Bingo.

But there was a problem. It was wintertime, the temperature had dropped below freezing, and sleet was beginning to fall. The men were forced to retreat to their pickup.

"ON THE WAY back to town," Tiny continued, "we all agreed that neither one of the three would go out unless the other two were present. For the first time I felt like, well, there's treasure. Being a poor man and having a family, I had to work, and it was about three months before I...so happened to work that country horseback again. And where I'd found this thing, they'd had a bulldozer out there and scraped that whole hill down."

Tiny chuckled. "So our pact not to go back out didn't hold true. I don't mean that Cliff wouldn't have give me my third of it, because I guarantee he would have if he'd've found it. The next time I saw Cliff we laughed about it. He never did say that he had (done it), but he never did say that he hadn't. But since he never did want to go back out anymore to that location, I felt sure maybe he had been through there."

Cliff Newland stories are legion and legend in the Crane-McCamey area, and few were brave enough to disdain the old-timer's treasure-hunting exploits to his face. Tiny, however, once found himself in just that situation.

"He worked me pretty hard digging for that treasure up there, and we never did find a blamed thing, but we spent a lot of hours over there on McElroy payroll looking for it," Tiny reminesced. "We were out on the McElroy Ranch one day pulling a windmill. We were eating our lunch and I told ol' Cliff, 'Cliff, you can't find anything. Hell, you're just fooling yourself. You never have found any treasure and you're not going to.'"

TINY LAUGHED in recollection. "Made him mad. But I was about half-serious about the thing because I knew we were going to finish that windmill and go dig another hole in the ground."

Newland's reply was to challenge the younger man. "He said, 'All right, you take these coins out there and you hide 'em anywhere you want to,'" narrated Tiny. "'Don't spread 'em out over a very big area and I'll go find every one of 'em.' I said, 'Boy, that's a good test.'"

Newland retreated to a location from which he could not watch, and Tiny proceeded to bury the coins at various sites in the sand. Newland then produced his witching rod and, suddenly, it was no contest.

"That rascal found every dog-goned coin," recalled Tiny with a hearty laugh. "He'd walk over one of those coins and that thing would drop right down to it, then he'd reach down there, brush the sand away and pick up that coin."

Tiny never again was foolish enough to chastise Newland's treasure hunting.

Head trauma workshop offered

ODESSA — The Psychological Association of Greater West Texas will sponsor a head trauma workshop in the Devonian Room at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Morning sessions will examine rehabilitation techniques and procedures, interventions to help families cope, indicators of long-term recovery prognosis to aid physicians and therapists and new assessment methods and techniques focusing on treatment variables.

Afternoon sessions will include videotape presentations of group therapy, therapeutic parties and other illustrations, as well as a question and answer period.

Cost of the workshop, $30 for non-association members, $15 for students and $10 for members, is payable at the door.

Persons desiring further information may contact Dr. James Olson, UTPB chairman of psychology, at 367-2167.

Hydrogen sulfide program at OC

ODESSA — Because of the hazards of hydrogen sulfide in the Permian Basin, Odessa College is offering a free one-day hydrogen sulfide training program.

The program, designed especially for the oil industry, will be from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Thursday, in the Electronics Technology Building, room 120. The program will include hydrogen sulfide characteristics, safety and rescue procedures, sources, hazards, properties, toxicity and detection.

According to OC's Director of Petroleum Technology Tommy Hill, hydrogen sulfide is the second most lethal gas in the world and will kill instantly in certain concentrations. In spite of the potential danger of hydrogen sulfide, Hill says it can be handled safely if personnel is trained.

Hydrogen sulfide is natural in this area because of the geologic formation.

The general public is invited to attend.

Local handicapped youths will go to Lions' camp

By FRANK CLARK
Summer Intern

Swimming, sailing, archery and softball are all on the agenda for eight handicapped Midland youngsters leaving Sunday for a two week summer camp in Kerrville, sponsored by seven Midland Lion's Clubs.

Said J.E. McLean, co-chairman of the Lion's Club committee organizing Midland's contribution to the special camp, "The camp is designed specifically for handicapped children from the ages of 6 to 16. Our main goal is to promote the self-reliance and the self-confidence of the youngsters."

Initiated in 1949, the program began when the Texas Lion's Club purchased 504 acres of land in Kerrville and began building a large recreational facility. The camp began operation in 1953 and has since expanded into a program that provides a free summer get-a-way for 1,300 youths from all across Texas.

"The program is growing by leaps and bounds," said McLean. "We have more children entered in the program this year than we ever have."

Boasting a swimming pool, a lake, tennis courts, softball diamonds, target ranges and an arts and crafts area, there is always something fun and new to do for everyone.

"We offer a lot of activities for the youngsters," McLean laughed. "There is never enough time for everything."

Staffed by trained college students, the special camp is offered in three sessions.

"Our middle camp is designed for young people suffering from diabetes," said McLean. "Sessions one and three are openned to kids with a variety of different handicaps."

With the big response to the program this year, the future of the Lion's Summer Camp Program seems assured.

"We'll run this program as long as the kids want to go," said McLean. "They deserve it."

Witnesses' convention speakers talk about family

Friday, a symposium of three speakers at the "Kingdom Unity" District Convention, being held through Sunday at Chaparral Center, addressed one of today's preplexing problems — holding the family together.

Sam Hall talked on "Practicing Godly Devotion at Home," Erasmus Ruiz discussed "Parents, Train Your Children to Endure" and Frank K. Davis spoke on "Youths, Uphold Christian Principles in School."

Each speaker stressed that a family is a circle of friends bound together by kinship. Each speech emphasized the family is under assault by the glitter of materialism and the subtlety of immorality.

Hall told the 5,220 conventioners that they can be successful. "Most of us are familiar with the Scriptural counsel," he said. "But there is often a gap between what the Bible says and the way we act."

Ruiz told parents that progressive and consistent training is needed. "Do not leave training to chance," he said. "A TV or a baby-sitter is no substitute for you."

Davis spoke to the youth in the audience. "Uphold Christian principles by living a clean, moral life even though surrounded by a cesspool of immorality," he said. "Resist peer pressure of the world to do wrong."

The keynote address was given by W.L. Berry who spoke on "Kingdom Unity A Reality Today."

Barry described the world as a disunited one saying the United Nations is a contradiction of its own name. He added, "Disunity and fear abound in the economic world. It is also a sickening reality in the religious world.

"As Bible-based Christians, we are no part of this disunited world," Barry said, adding, "Today we enjoy a very real Kingdom unity."

State Education Commissioner:

Merit raises must be adopted

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — State Education Commissioner Raymon Bynum told a meeting of school administrators Friday that Texas will have "no choice" but to adopt a program of merit raises for public schoolteachers.

"We're going to have to look at competencies and production. The public is demanding it," Bynum told a group of school superintendents and administrators meeting at Texas A&M University.

Lawmakers refused during their recently ended session to adopt Gov. Mark White's proposals for raising some taxes to pay for a 24 percent, two-year teacher raise.

Bynum said educators cannot expect increases in spending for public education without corresponding increases in state revenues.

Bones found in wood-burning stove

MONTAGUE (AP) — A Stoneburg man has been charged with murder after police found human bones in a wood-burning stove in his house, and investigators said Friday another body unearthed in Denton County may be that of the man's 15-year-old common-law wife.

Henry Lucas, 46, was charged with murder Thursday in the stabbing death of 80-year-old Kate Rich, who disappeared from her Ringgold home on Sep. 16, 1982.

Montague District Attorney Jack McGaughey said another body was unearthed in Denton County on Thursday after Lucas gave law enforcement officials a statement.

Refinery fire victim's family wins

BEAUMONT (AP) — The family of a Port Arthur pipe fitter killed in a 1981 Gulf refinery fire has been awarded $1.25 million in damages by a federal court jury.

Joseph V. Roberts, 53, died nearly four months after being burned over 70 percent of his body in a March 1981 accident. Roberts was working on a pipeline maintenance crew at Gulf's Port Arthur refinery when he and a helper mistakenly opened a pipeline that contained hydrogen sulfide gas, which caught fire.

The jury found Gulf neglgient in not tagging flanges to prevent employees from opening the wrong ones.

Houston to launch security program

HOUSTON (AP) — The city of Houston will launch a new security program in its crime-ridden public housing projects that will establish small police outposts in four of the worst complexes and deploy police patrols in the others, city officials have announced..

The Public Housing Security Program, set to begin July 1, includes new door locks, additional outdoor lighting and fences to be installed at all complexes.

A security task force of representatives of the complexes, Police Department and general public will be named to oversee the program. Educational projects are also part of the plan.

Houston to get new program

HOUSTON (AP) — Saying "Economics is the next logical thrust of the civil rights movement," a consultant for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has announced that Houston is a major target of a new NAACP program.

Operation Fair Share seeks to "return the dollars made by corporate America to the black community that supports it," said L.R. Byrd, NAACP consultant to the national program.

The program was begun on the national level in December. Byrd, touring to Texas cities to introduce Fair Share on the local level, met in Houston Thursday with local government and business leaders to discuss the program.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City of Midland has been allocated $214,000 from the Federal "Jobs Bill". This money can be spent for a variety of activities. The City of Midland has proposed that this entire amount of $214,000 be spent for rehabilitation. This enables small contractors to continue working and home owners to have decent housing.

Statement of Objectives

Midland has experience a significant change not only in population, but in economic growth since Census Day 1970. The catalyst for this change was the resurgence of the petro-chemical industry in Midland and the Permian Basin. In 1970 the population of Midland was 59,463 persons compared to the 1980 figure of 70,525 persons. Between 1980 to 1983 the population rose 30 percent to 91,924 persons. Midland annexed a large tract of land north and west of the city, but took in only 2,413 persons previously out of the corporate limits. The racial composition shifted from 77.9% White, 10.8% Black, and 11.2% Hispanic in 1970 to 73.5% White, 9.8% Black and 15.9% Hispanic. There were also 6,958 (9.8%) persons over 62 years of age. The city anticipates the population to remain fairly constant for the next several years.

Midland's economic index has risen steadily since 1980. Growth was occurring at about 7% annually during the late 70's. The unemployment rate was only 4% in the first part of 1980 and peaked at 7.2% in April of 1982. The slump in the economy that began in the middle of 1982 has hit hardest welders, and small contractors.

Both of these changes, population and economic growth, have been due in part to opportunities for the white collar professional. This caused a serious demand for suitable housing for this market. Increased demand thus pushed the market up resulting in a median price of $62,500 plus a 19% interest rate. This pushed the housing market out of the reach of the low to moderate income household.

The median income in Midland has risen from $21,000 in 1980 to $33,500 in 1983.

The impact on the housing market has been significant. In 1983, there are an estimated 36,888 units available, of that number 2% are considered substandard. Of these 794 units, about 600 are suitable for rehabilitation with the rest in need of demolition. Housing needs are being met in a number of ways in Midland. Efforts are being made to provide assistance to low to moderate income persons. The emphasis is being placed on housing, through an effort to secure a new public housing facility for the low-income elderly and continuing the rehabilitation of substandard houses. The City of Midland is particularly interested in continuing the rehab program. In addition to providing decent, safe housing units it provides employment for those persons who would be otherwise unemployed. This program can be conducted with the use of small contractors, usually two or three people in a company, who can secure two or the houses at a time.

The above is a summary version of the City of Midland's proposed statement of objectives. A complete statement can be obtained at the City Manager's Office. Comments on the statement may be made in writing to the City Manager's Office, P.O. Box 1152, Midland, TX. 79702, or by calling 683-4281, ext. 204, until June 27, 1983.

Governor reviewing appropriations measures

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White has signed about 500 bills that put into law recent actions of the Legislature but he still has some vetoes in mind, he said Friday.

"I'm concerned about several areas," White told reporters after a two-hour bill signing ceremony Friday. "I am now reviewing the appropriations bill and will be deciding before midnight Sunday night."

White has until midnight Sunday to sign or veto measures approved by the regular session of the 68th Legislature. If he did not act before then the measures become law without his action.

"There will be several line item vetoes (of the $31.9 billion appropriations bill)," he said.

Then he hinted that he was considering vetoes for at least two other major issues — a bill to transfer supervision of water utilities from the Public Utilities Commission to the Texas Department of Water Resources and a bill to remove the fees charged by auto dealers for credit insurance on new cars they sell from regulation of the State Board of Insurance.

White said there were 10 to 15 other bills that might be vetoed.

During his bill signing session Friday, White vetoed a portion of a bill that would have apporopriated $500,000 from state park funds for the Sesquicentennial Museum Board. The remainder of the bill, requiring that money available for parks be spent 80 percent for urgan parks and 20 percent rural, was approved.

The governor indicated the would approve most of the 400-page state spending bill for 1984-85.

"I want to congratulate the members of the House and Senate who worked on the appropriations," he said. "They did a tremendous job under very difficult circumstances. This is probably the first time in the history of Texas whe have seen, at least in 20 years, declining revenue estimates at the same time we have increasing population.

"The pressure for larger government was tfremendous and at the same time we had less money to provide those services," White said.

Bills of statewide interest signed by the governor Friday included:

— A measure to authorize the withholding of wages from an employee's kpaycheck to make delinquent child support payments.

— A bill setting up a "ethics" commission with authority to issue advisory opinioins on queries from lawmakers and candidates.

— A bill that would make it against the alw for a justice of the peace to refuse to perform a marriage ceremony for an interracial coupld on grounds of race.

— A bill that would excuse absences of public school pupils to observe religious holidays.

Former Dallas reporter files libel suit against Abilene bank

ABILENE (AP) — A former reporter for The Dallas Morning News filed a libel suit Friday against the Abilene National Bank and a former bank president, and the suit also seeks damages from the News.

The suit filed in state district court by Earl Golz contends the reporter was defamed by an advertisement seeking to refute a July 9, 1982 story Golz wrote for the News about loan problems at the bank.

Defendant Don Earney, former president of Abilene National, Friday stood by his statements in the ad and said he was "very happy" Golz filed suit.

"I think it's going to put us in the position of being able to determine where he got the information (in the story) and I think that then would perhaps disclose to us why they did it," Earney said in an interview.

The Golz suit said the News endorsed the alleged defamation by firing Golz on July 29, 1982. The suit alleges the News conspired with the bank and bank officials to "destroy plaintiff's reputation, career and livelihood."

Burl Osborne, senior vice president and editor of News, said Friday, "I have not seen the suit. However, we have not wrongfully discharged anyone, nor have we conspired to wrongfully discharge anyone."

The lawsuit, which seeks unspecified damages, said the bank defamed Golz in an ad.

nation in brief

Parents win $3 million lawsuit

MIAMI (AP) — A Dade County Circuit Court has awarded $3 million to the parents of an 8-year-old boy who was buried alive in a sand pile next door to his home and died four hours later.

The court agreed with James Kaylor, a flight engineer, and his wife Diana that the contractor who ordered the sand pile and the owner of the proerty it was on were guilty of negligence.

The jury cleared the company that dumped the sand of any wrongdoing.

Jamie Kaylor died of massive brain damage after the sand collapsed on him, apparently as he was digging into it. There were no witnesses.

The parents' attorneys argued that contractor Ricardo Hermida knew that the construction site was used as a playground by neighborhood children and should have covered the newly dumped 13-ton pile of sand with a weighted tarpaulin.

Truck with radioactive matter wrecks

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — A container of low-grade radioactive material from the Rancho Seco nuclear power plant escaped damage in a traffic accident Friday.

The container was in a pickup involved in an accident in Amador County near the Sacramento County line in Northern California, said highway patrol dispatcher Yvonne Moon.

State Forestry Department crews identified the radioactive material as radium 192, used in laboratory tests at the Sacramento County power plant, she said.

Domestic wines may be hurting

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — California's top farm official warns that a strong U.S. dollar could mean another strong year for European wines at the expense of domestic production.

Clare L. Berryhill, director of the state Department of Food and Agriculture, predicted on Thursday that Italy and France will gain a stronger hold on the wine market on the East Coast.

California sales dropped 3.9 percent in the first quarter of the year when imported wine posted a 25 percent increase, he said. But Allied Grape Growers President Robert McInturf reported shipments were up 5.2 percent in April.

Training of Salvadorans protested

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Only 17 people prayed in front of Fort Benning to protest the training of soldiers from El Salvador, but members of Concerned Citizens for Latin America said they were accomplishing their mission.

"We're here to condemn what's happening inside Fort Benning as murder, and to pray for the lives of our brothers in El Salvador," said the Rev. Roy Bourgeois, who led Thursday evening's prayer vigil. He spent two weeks with rebel forces in El Salvador in 1981.

About 350 officer candidates from El Salvador are being trained at Benning and 175 more are scheduled to arrive within two weeks.

Navy trying to retrieve crash victims

HONOLULU (AP) — Navy rescue specialists Friday tried to figure out how to retrieve the bodies of 14 men killed when a four-engine anti-submarine patrol plane crashed on a remote mountain ridge too craggy for helicopters to land.

The P-3 Orion went down Thursday in a mountainous area buffeted by strong winds on the northwest coast of Kauai Island, according to Cmdr. Roger Copeland, public affairs officer for the Third Fleet at Pearl Harbor.

The turboprop plane disappeared before dawn Thursday while participating in maneuvers with 12 Navy vessels in the Pacific northwest of Kauai, Copeland said.

Killer of eight nurses expects to die in prison

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — Richard Speck, convicted of stabbing and strangling eight Chicago nurses in 1966, says he is at ease in Stateville prison now and laughs at the possibility that he might ever be paroled.

He says he expects to die in prison of old age now that his death sentence has been commuted to eight consecutive terms of 50 to 150 years each.

Denied parole four times — first in 1976, most recently in 1981 — Speck, 41, is up for consideration again in September 1984 but scoffs at his chances of getting out.

He says he doesn't care, now that his mother has died. "That's the only person I wanted to get out to see," he said in a rare copyright interview published Friday by the Rockford Register Star. "That's the only woman I ever loved."

He says he's happy inside the prison's 32-foot walls.

"I'm at ease here. I like Stateville," he said. "I love Stateville. This is my home."

Richard Speck

Prison officials say Speck has refused all requests for interviews in recent years. But when he wandered by two Register Star reporters touring the prison this past week, he showed no reluctance to talk.

But he told the reporters not to ask about his crime. "I know I didn't do right," he said. "I don't want to talk about it."

He used to be a problem prisoner, but says he changed his ways in 1969 while he was still on Death Row.

"My family told me if I ever hurt an employee or an inmate or tried to escape, they were through with me," he said in one of his few remarks about relatives.

Speck stressed the distance between himself and his relatives, saying, "I'm the outlaw. That's something I can't change."

Prison officials say his life has been uneventful in recent years. His last major run-in with authorities was five years ago when he got drunk on home brew.

"I tend to my own business," he said.

Another notorious killer, John Wayne Gacy, on Death Row in Menard Correctional Center for killing 33 people in a Chicago suburb, was stabbed by a fellow inmate four months ago.

Speck says that's unlikely to happen to him. Inmates respect him and stay clear, he says, " 'cause I'd kill them right out."

He took up oil painting early on in prison, but hasn't produced anything in years and laughs at those who claim to have Speck originals.

"You have dudes in here who do painting and put my name on 'em and put 'em in art shows," he said. "I've never sold any paintings. I give them away."

His coveralls and shoes are paint-splattered from his job painting walls in the prison complex.

"The only reason I paint is because I like the three wardens," he said. "They're my bosses."

The new wardens "are tops. And you can say Richard Speck said so."

Drug-laced brownies put people in hospital

MIAMI (AP) — A "pot luck" breakfast party at the Dade County courthouse put 22 people in the hospital suffering nausea and dizziness after they bit into brownies laced with marijuana, authorities said.

"The old demon weed was in the brownies," said Miami fire department operations officer Joe Dalman. "Both the weed and the seeds."

Herb Kelly, a spokesman for Mercy Hospital, where seven people were examined, said, "We've determined it was pot from urinalysis, stomach tests and through other means."

One clerk, Howard Penn, 28, was arrested and charged with possession and delivery of the narcotic-flavored confections.

"He brought the brownies to the party," said Miami police spokeswoman Stephanie Dalton.

Court operations officer Fred Guldstrand said the before-hours breakfast that spawned chaos in the courthouse had been organized as a "morale builder" by a group of civil court clerks and secretaries.

They chose from a spread of sausage, bagels, biscuits, boiled ham, cookies and brownies laid out on tables and desks before the downtown courthouse's doors opened at 8:30 a.m., said Chief Deputy Clerk W.W. Thompson.

About 1½ hours later, after paramedics had been summoned to treat the apparent heart attack symptoms of operations officer Pete Kissee, some of the clerks began complaining of queasiness, dizziness and sweating.

"Then the stretchers started rolling in and out," Thompson said. "There were ambulances out front, around back and everywhere in between. Our office was turned into an infirmary."

"They were getting nauseous and their eyes were getting watery," one courthouse worker said.

Postal rates won't go up faster than law allows

WASHINGTON (AP) — A provision that would have allowed the Postal Service to increase mail charges faster than current law allows has been withdrawn by its Senate sponsor.

Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, who won Appropriations Committee approval for the provision several weeks, offered last week a second amendment to remove the first. The Senate then approved the latest amendment.

Stevens cited "considerable confusion over the intent, the effect and the reasons this language was added." He also said that considerable opposition had developed since the committee action.

He is chairman of the Senate subcommittee that deals with the Postal Service, but his amendment was added to an appropriations bill. Stevens said the chairman of the House Post Office Committee, Rep. William D. Ford, D-Mich., opposed his move.

The Stevens amendment would have made it possible for the Postal Service to increase charges 90 days after starting a case with the independent Postal Rate Commission. This change would be "temporary" until the commission finished the case.

Under current law, the commission can hold hearings lasting up to 10 months before recommending how rates should be changed.

Schools complain of lack of black American doctors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's predominantly black medical schools are complaining that fewer than 3 percent of American doctors are black and the percentage could grow worse if current trends continue.

The Association of Minority Health Professions Schools released a report on Thursday documenting a shortage of black physicians, dentists, pharmacists and veterinarians. The report said the low numbers are likely to persist despite a projected doctor surplus in the United States by 1990.

Dr. Louis W. Sullivan, president of the association and of Atlanta's Morehouse School of Medicine, said there was one white physician for every 490 whites in 1980. But there was only one black physician for every 2,380 blacks.

Sullivan said that only 2.6 percent of the nation's doctors, 2.9 percent of its dentists, 2.3 percent of its pharmacists and 1.6 percent of its veterinarians are black. Yet blacks make up 11.7 percent of the U.S. population.

Between 1950 and 1980, the percentage of black physicians increased only by 0.5 according to the study "Blacks and the Health Professions in the 80s: A National Crisis and A Time for Action."

Of the 449,500 physicians in practice in 1980, only 11,700 were black.

"The shortage of black health professionals is the lingering legacy of decades of segregation and discrimination which, over the years, has resulted in unequal education opportunity," Sullivan said.

The report said some progress toward narrowing the gap between blacks and whites was made during the 1970s, but it added: "There is a substantial probability that previous gains in the increase of black participation in the health professions will be eroded during the 1980s unless action is taken."

The report called for more student financial aid for black students and a greater commitment from predominantly white medical schools to recruiting and retaining black students.

In addition, the study said the predominantly black professional schools should be put on sound financial footing and provided access to tax supported clinical facilities like veterans' hospitals and public hospitals as training grounds for their students.

Sullivan said that the association isn't suggesting that only blacks can or should provide health services to other blacks. But he said there should be an "opportunity for the consumer to obtain the health professional of his or her choice. Such is not the case in 1983 for many black Americans and Americans from other minority groups."

New data from the Association of American Medical Colleges showed that the number of black freshmen enrolled in medical schools decreased from 1,196 or 6.9 percent in the 1981-82 school year to 1,158 or 6.6 percent in the 1982-83 school year.

The ratio of acceptances for whites entering medical school improved from 2.1 applicants per acceptance to 2 applicants per acceptance. But it worsened for blacks from 2.5 applicants per acceptance to 2.6 applicants per acceptance.

In the 1981-82 year, 6.9 percent of the freshman medical students and 4.8 percent of the graduating physicians were black.

Four of the 127 medical schools, two of the 58 dental schools, four of the 71 pharmacy schools and one of the 27 veterinary medical schools are predominantly black. But 25 percent of the black medical students, 38 percent of the black dental students, 45 percent of the black pharmacy students and 75 percent of the black veterinary medical students attended the predominantly black schools.

The report also cited the fact that blacks are less healthy than whites, live an average of five years less than whites and have an infant mortality rate nearly double that of whites (11.4 deaths per 1,000 live births for whites; 21.8 deaths per 1,000 live births for blacks).

Protesters win order barring detention

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Protestors who expect to be arrested at an anti-nuclear demonstration next week at the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory have won a court order barring the use of an abandoned radiation testing site as a detention area.

U.S. District Judge Marilyn Hall Patel said Thursday the four women who sought a restraining order convinced her that demonstrators feared "hazardous effects to their safety or future safety" if they were held at a former Army installation called Camp Parks.

Child pornography distributor indicted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman identified by local authorities as the nation's largest distributor of child pornography has been charged in a 15-count federal indictment alleging interstate distribution of films showing children involved in sex.

Catherine Stubblefield Wilson, 43, already awaiting trial on child pornography charges in county Superior Court, was accused in the indictment Thursday of mailing "obscene, lewd, lascivious, indecent, filthy and vile films depicting children engaged in sexually explicit conduct."

The federal indictment alleged the mother of five had distributed two Super-8mm films, "Kinder Orgie" and "Randy Lolitas," that featured children engaged in heterosexual and homosexual activities as well as simulated or actual oral sex, masturbation and sexual intercourse.

Authorities trying to arrest Ms. Wilson on Thursday did not find her at her Wilshire-area home. She had been released from jail early this year on previous charges when she posted $500,000 in bond.

U.S. Attorney Stephen S. Trott said Thursday's indictment resulted from a 10-year investigation by the U.S. Postal Inspection Service and the FBI. The agencies had been probing Ms. Wilson's businesses, known as Jackie Steen and BBC Star Inc.

When Ms. Wilson was arrested May 6, 1982, on local charges, she was described as the largest distributor of child pornography in the nation and was said to have made millions of dollars in her illicit operation.

Ms. Wilson faces up to 85 years in prison and a fine of $85,000 if convicted on the 15 federal counts.

Water dilution sinks bathers

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Water climbing toward record levels has so diluted the Great Salt Lake that bathers no longer are able to "float like a cork," a state official says.

For years, tourist brochures trumpeting the inland sea featured photos of swimmers floating on their backs in the briny water with their hands and feet in the air.

But Paul Sturm, Great Salt Lake geologist for the Utah Geological and Mineral Survey, said Thursday the lake's steady rise over the past 20 years has diluted it so much that swimmers are sinking deeper and deeper.

"It's still three times as buoyant as the ocean, but nothing like before," he said. "You can still float quite easily, but what you're looking at is the buoyancy right now is at about 40 percent what it was in the early to mid-60s."

"When I was a little kid, I wouldn't sink," said Scott Hanes, 18, of Salt Lake City. "Over the years it ain't as fun as it used to be."

Hanes was one of only four or five people swimming at the lake's South Shore Beach on Thursday. In years past, a similar sunny day would have attracted hundreds to the shore.

The lake, which covers about 1 million acres 10 miles west of Salt Lake City, has no outlet. It is a remnant of a lake that covered much of western Utah and parts of Nevada and Idaho 10,000 to 20,000 years ago.

Sturm said that during the 1960s the lake water was 28 percent salt by weight at the south end. That's the most salt that can be dissolved by water.

When the last official salinity reading was taken early this year, the water near Saltair Resort on the lake's southern shore was slightly less than 10 percent salt, Sturm said, and its salinity is even lower now. Ocean water is 3.5 percent salt.

The north and south ends of the lake are divided by a Southern Pacific Railroad causeway that has kept the north end of the lake lower and more salty than the south end.

The lake was at its lowest recorded level for this century — 4,191.35 feet above sea level — in 1963. It since has risen to its current level of 4,204.75 feet above sea level on the south end, the highest level since 1924, Geological Survey measurements taken Wednesday show.

The lake, only 37 to 38 feet deep at its deepest point, has risen 5 feet since its Sept. 15, 1982, seasonal low of 4,199.8 feet. That's the largest seasonal rise on record, well over the previous records of 3.5 feet set in 1862 and 1907.

Flooding around the lake this year caused by heavy spring runoff, above-normal precipitation and low evaporation has inundated recreational beaches and wildlife areas and threatened lakeshore industries.

State officials have estimated lake flooding at the present level could cause between $47 million and $157 million in damage.

Already, the flooding has covered the parking lot at the South Shore Marina and turned the newly reopened Saltair from a beachfront attraction to all but an island resort.

Jim Silver, president of Saltair Resort Inc., said his company spent $100,000 to strengthen the seawall around the resort's pavillion as the lake edge crept from 100 yards in front of the building to more than 150 yards behind it.

The lake has risen to the edge of the roadways that once bordered the sprawling gray beaches around the resort. Sun worshipers who still come to the lake now sit on their cars to tan.

Memories of Whippoorwill still flies by night

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — The last cruise of the Whippoorwill should have been a cool evening of musical comedy, performed on a showboat in the middle of a Kansas lake.

But a waterspout from a fierce thunderstorm capsized the boat, killing 16 people in an accident five years ago today. For some survivors, the nightmare still seems fresh.

"Someone said, 'Look at that funny thing coming toward us.' Then I saw the tail, there was a rush of wind and that was it. I turned around and the women were already under the water," recalled the Rev. Milton Vogel, whose wife, daughter and granddaughter died in the disaster on Pomona Lake, the worst water accident in state history.

The Whippoorwill, with 46 passengers and a cast and crew of 13, was to stage the 1930s musical spoof "Dames at Sea" on Lake Pomona. But it was only about 10 minutes onto the lake 30 miles south of Topeka when the storm struck on June 17, 1978.

"They didn't have a chance," Vogel said. "They were caught between the tables and the railing. The tables slid over and pinned them against the rail and they were trapped underneath when the boat went over."

Vogel, a retired Methodist minister from Topeka; his son Lynn, of Chicago, and a 6-year-old grandson, Alan Wright, were plunged into the water, but survived.

The bodies of Vogel's 66-year-old wife Grace and his daughter Sandy, 34, were found soon after the accident. The body of his 9-year-old granddaughter Melissa Wright was found the following week, the last of the casualties to be recovered.

Official inquiries into the capsizing of the Whippoorwill, a 40-foot, steel-hulled, flat-bottomed boat, spawned a state law that takes effect July 1, requiring boats to seek Coast Guard inspections if they plan to transport more than 20 passengers on Kansas lakes.

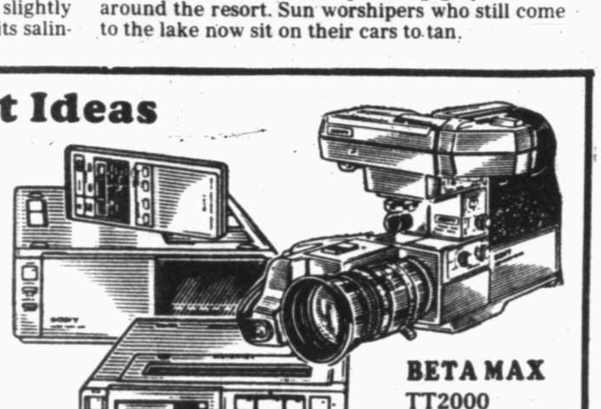

But Bruce and Veda Rogers, who operated the Whippoorwill as part of their Vassar Playhouse summer stock theater near Lake Pomona, feel the accident was totally beyond their control.

"I think the only way we could have controlled it was not to have bought the boat," Mrs. Rogers said.

IRA supporters vandalize homes

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Suspected IRA supporters burned cars and broke windows Friday in homes and businesses belonging to members of Northern Ireland's biggest Roman Catholic political party, police said.

A police spokesman said 11 separate incidents occurred along a 15-mile stretch between Dungannon and Coalisland in County Tyrone, west of Belfast.

He said property that was attacked belonged to members of the moderate Social Democratic and Labor Party. Damage consisted mostly of broken windows and burned vehicles.

NATO forces end 'Ocean Safari'

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — NATO forces on Friday ended a 10-day Atlantic excercise designed to test the alliance's ability to protect vital sea lanes.

In a statement issued at NATO headquarters, Vice Admiral James A. Lyons of the U.S. Navy, commander of NATO's Atlantic strike fleet, described the excercise as a "valuable proving ground" for NATO's maritime strategy.

Ten nations took part in the excercise, codenamed "Ocean Safari." More than 25,000 troops, 300 aircraft and 90 allied vessels, including a U.S, a French and two British aircraft carriers, participated.

Rabies breaks out in Turkish town

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Turkish health authorities sealed off six villages along the Black Sea coast and had all animals there killed after an outbreak of rabies this week, local officials reported Friday.

The villages, near the coastal provinces of Unye and Ordu, were cordoned off when a dog died after biting eight people in the town of Gomunalci and 18 others in villages around Unye.

The quarantined communities were forced to kill all their animals and authorities shipped in emergency supplies of serum for mass anti-rabies innoculation.

Train service suspended in Punjab

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Militant Sikhs abandoned plans Friday to block rail lines in Punjab state after Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government announced suspension of train service in the northern state.

The head of the Sikh party, Harchand Singh Longowal, announced the decision in Amritsar, 250 miles northwest of New Delhi, and termed the cancellation of trains a victory to his autonomy-seeking movement.

Averting a showdown, Mrs. Gandhi's government on Thursday ordered that all trains bound for destinations in and across Punjab be terminated for 12 hours on Friday.

Tripoli mourns bombing victims

By The Associated Press

Four more people were killed Friday in Lebanon's northern port of Tripoli, and the city shut down in mourning for 16 others massacred in a gas station. Five bombs exploded elsewhere in Lebanon, but no casualties were reported.

One of the bombs was placed in a watermelon and the Israeli command said that device was directed at Israeli soldiers. It blew up in the southern market town of Nabatiyeh, causing slight damage to a fruit stand, the Tel Aviv military command said. Israel radio reported the soldiers have been warned not to purchase fruit, cigarettes and soft drinks in Lebanon because all have been used to hide bombs.

The four other bombs destroyed a grocery in the Palestinian refugee camp of Sabra in mostly Moslem west Beirut, and wrecked a bakery, a grocery and an electrical tools shop — all owned by Palestinians — in the Israeli-held southern port of Sidon.

Tripoli police said an army corporal was shot to death and that the bullet-riddled bodies of three laborers were discovered in the city. Tripoli's banks, schools and most shops except grocery stores were closed in mourning for the victims of Thursday's massacre.

GUNMEN CARRYING automatic rifles set up roadblocks and placed green Islamic flags in the streets of Tripoli to monitor traffic. Most belonged to the anti-Syrian Islamic Union militia.

A van blaring Koranic verses led a funeral procession for three of the massacre victims, a tasseled fez was placed on the front of each coffin and militiamen saluted the dead by shooting rocket-propelled grenades and automatic rifles in the air.

The funeral was for Salem and Abdul Wahab Bittar, two brothers, and their nephew, 14-year-old Nour Bittar. They were killed in their garage in the beachside neighborhood of Bahsas.

The shooting was witnessed by patrons of a fish restaurant about 200 yards away. One patron gave this account:

"At 12:40 p.m. Thursday, a white Mercedes and a red BMW pulled up in front of the Bitar family garage near Tripoli's port. A dozen gunmen whose faces were covered with checkered kaffiehs (Arab headdresses) got out.

"THEY CAME out of the car and began shooting the guys at the garage. A 12-year-old boy who hid under a nearby bridge heard one of the gunmen say to another, 'Abu Khalil, stop it for God's sake, we've already killed 16.'"

The main Tripoli antagonists, the Syrian-backed Arab Democratic Party of the city's Alawite Moslem minority, and the fundamentalist Sunni Moslem Islamic Union militia, both blamed the massacre on Lebanon's Christian Phalange.

Spokesmen for the two factions charged in separate statements the massacre was a reprisal for the rejection by various groups in Tripoli of the Lebanese-Israeli troop withdrawal agreement.

But the Phalange's newspaper, Al-Amal, and its Voice of Lebanon radio charged the killers were Alawites from the Arab Democratic Party's Arab Knights militia who were avenging the killing of three Alawite militiamen in Sunni Moslem neighborhoods earlier in the week.

In another development, guerrillas loyal to Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat said they regained control of a hospital in eastern Lebanon that was stormed by a score of armed rebels.

AN OFFICIAL of Al Fatah, the PLO's mainstream guerrilla group, said fighters belonging to the September Martyrs' Brigade announced they were supporting the rebellion against Arafat and stormed a Palestinian Red Crescent hospital early Friday in the eastern Lebanese village of Bar Elias.

The official, who requested anonymity, told reporters in Damascus that the guards did not resist when the rebels stormed the hospital, but that later in the afternoon Arafat loyalists regained control of the hospital after a 13-hour siege. He gave no other details.

Meanwhile, a U.N. convoy brought fresh food and medical supplies to the southern Lebanese village of Deir Qanoun el-Nahr after the Israeli army lifted a week-long siege prompted by a guerrilla ambush that killed three Israeli soldiers.

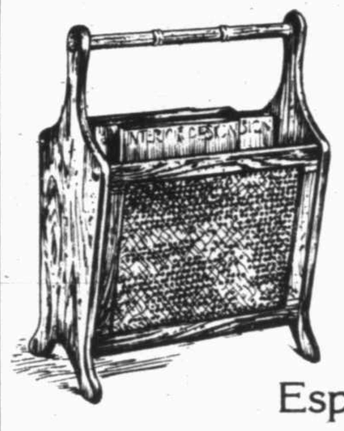

But Lebanese state television reported that Israeli forces arrested the principal of the local school, 30 of his students and two others in an anti-guerrilla sweep in the village of Abassiyeh, about a mile from Deir Qanoun el-Nahr.

In the mountains southeast of Beirut, Christian and Druse militiamen traded artillery and machine-gun fire for about two hours Friday evening, the TV station said. But there was no report of casualties.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: This was the birthdate of baseball great Lou "Ironman" Gehrig, bandleader Guy Lombardo, actress Dame Mae Whitty and New York City's flamboyant Mayor Jimmy Walker. Also sharing your birthday: Presidential hopeful Senator Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) and actors Louis Jourdan and Malcolm McDowell. The career choices you make now will determine how quickly you find true success. Be upfront when discussing money matters with friends. Those in creative fields find exciting new opportunities. Singles need to make up their minds about marriage. Be open to your co-workers' and relatives' suggestions.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Marvelous luck strikes when you and a relative are reunited. Take pride in family relationships. Money you receive from friends resolves a crisis. Stop complaining and things will turn out fine.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A phone call lifts your spirits. Romance is favored. Try to get more exercise. Mate gives you the strength you need to make the right decision. Children agree.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): An out-of-the-blue meeting with a neighbor gives you a unique opportunity to help yourself. Romance could falter if you have not invested enough effort in the relationship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Insensitivity could cause trouble between you and another family member. Think twice before speaking. Pride stands in the way of love. A lucky day for sports events. Financial worries lessen.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Neighbors help those with child-care problems. Do not impose on your parents. A hobby that produces income will alleviate domestic tension. Know what you really want from a business or school.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A lucky day for anyone who must deal with a sensitive family trust problem. Try to arrange your schedule so that you can spend more time with loved ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Spend more time catering to mate's wishes. A remarkable change in a male-female relationship delights you. Seek something out of the ordinary where entertainment is concerned—it need not be expensive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Little will be gained by attempting to conduct business today. Banking matters need review. Trust your instincts. Resist the temptation to buy sale items you do not need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The pieces of a puzzle will fall into place if you listen carefully. Seek an influential friend's financial support for a pet project. You enjoy participating in a special game.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A busy day lies ahead. Tend to those odd jobs that have been piling up. Petty differences prove easy to resolve. Donate "white elephants" to your favorite charity for a tax deduction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Home life ought to run smoothly. Talk with an influential person who holds the key to your success. Those with overseas investments find profits on the rise. Romance is satisfyingly glamorous.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Steer clear of subjects that could arouse controversy. You need solitude to think over new propositions. If romance is rocky, an emotional scene could result in a separation. Keep your cool.

Shy comic alive on Saturdays

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Live, from New York! It's Tim Kazurinsky, the miniature-sized man with the little-boy face who's wowing late-night TV viewers as the card-flashing Dr. Jack Badofsky or the mystical Vishnuvir Here on NBC's "Saturday Night Live."

"I always have been sort of shy," insists Kazurinsky, his dark eyes shining behind a pair of large, horn-rimmed glasses.

"I was never a class clown. The only place I am sort of crazed is on the stage," he said during a recent visit to Pittsburgh, where he took part in a parade.

Kazurinsky, 33, whose biography lists him as 5-foot-5 in shoes, was born in Johnstown, Pa., the son of an Australian mother and an American serviceman father.

The family moved to Sydney, Australia, when he was 3 months old. At age 16, Kazurinsky returned alone to Johnstown, where he graduated from high school and began studying journalism at the University of Pittsburgh's branch campus.

AFTER A SHORT stint as a reporter for The Johnstown Tribune-Democrat, Kazurinsky moved to Chicago, where he studied creative writing and advertising. He left for a copywriting job at a St. Louis, Mo., department store, then returned to Chicago to write for various advertising agencies.

To overcome stage fright in presenting his TV commercials to clients, Kazurinsky took a class in improvisation at Chicago's famed Second City. The next thing he knew, at age 28, he was asked to join the troupe.

"I played every possible type of character from the audience's suggestions, from a gynecologist to a secretary-general," he said. "It was great training."

KAZURINSKY left Second City in early 1981 to try his hand at writing screenplays, what he still considers "his first love." He already had co-authored the screen adaptation of "Sexual Perversity in Chicago" and the dialogue for the film "My Bodyguard."

While Kazurinsky was working on screenplays, John Belushi, a former "Saturday Night Live" star, recommended him for the show. In April 1981, Kazurinsky made his debut.

"It was like coming into a cancer ward," Kazurinsky remembered of his first show, which also introduced Robin Duke among the program's current roster of eight regulars.

"When we came in, we had to live down the fame of the first five years and the shame of the sixth. Nobody wanted to watch the show," he said.

AMONG THE show's not-ready-for-primetime players who had left to try their luck elsewhere were Belushi, Gilda Radner, Dan Aykroyd, Bill Murray and Jane Curtin.

Slowly, the program began winning back viewers.

"The more they watched us, the more they came to know us and like us, to realize that we weren't going to be what the old show was, we were something different. They learned to like us for what we are," Kazurinsky said.

Kazurinsky, who makes his home in Chicago except when he's filming "Saturday Night Live" in New York, spends a fair share of his time writing copy for himself and the show's other performers. His personal favorites are Dr. Jack Badofsky, the zany news commentator whom he named after a friend in Chicago, and the enlightened master Havnagudddime Vishnuvir Here.

He also enjoyed his role as a 65-year-old tow-truck driver in the film "Neighbors," starring Aykroyd and Belushi.

'Coke is unhealthy, unpatriotic'

PEKING (AP) — An article in an officially sponsored magazine says Coca-Cola is an unhealthy, overpriced product and condemns Chinese who drink it as unpatriotic criminals.

An article by Miu Qun in the new issue of New Observations' magazine says Coke drinkers "lose their national pride, succumb to capitalist decadence and harm China's basic national interests to satisfy the profit motive of foreign financial groups."

"They willingly fulfill the role of slaves for the foreign buyers," it said. "This is not only shameful but criminal. It is intolerable."

Well-informed Chinese sources said today that the short article does not represent the government's viewpoint and said the Foreign Trade Ministry is "furious" over the attack on Coke. The magazine is investigating publication of the article, which has disturbed Coca-Cola representatives in Hong Kong.

New Observations is a bimonthly magazine published by the Chinese Writers Association and circulated nationwide. It carries a variety of light articles, many on art, music and literature. The new issue includes an article saying that disco music — contrary to official pronouncements — is not pornographic but good clean fun.

Coca-Cola does not have a permanent representative in Peking but representatives in Hong Kong expressed bewilderment and dismay at the article.

The article asked whether a relatively expensive, caffeine-laden foreign drink was superior to China's own soft drinks.

While hundreds of thousands of Chinese businesses need foreign exchange to modernize, it said, "we nevertheless spend foreign currency on such a trivial thing as Coke. It is detrimental to both personal health and the interests of the state. This does more harm than good."

The author defended China's policy of allowing foreign imports, and various joint undertakings with foreign firms, such as the franchise agreement which allows Coke to be bottled in two plants in China.

"But in the course of opening to the outside world, we must not do what is detrimental to the national economy," he said.

Coke opened its second bottling plant in Canton last week and opened its Peking plant in 1981. They are owned and operated by Chinese enterprises and together have a capacity of up to 4.5 million cases each year.

Although intended primarily for tourists, Coke also finds its way into Chinese markets. It sells for about 33 cents a bottle to foreigners but some Chinese can buy it for 10 cents.

Chinese soft drinks cost about 7.5 cents a bottle.

Anniversary of riots commemorated quietly

SOWETO, South Africa (AP) — The seventh anniversary of black riots that killed at least 600 people began quietly today, although expections of violence heightened this year because of last week's execution of three black nationalists.

Commemoration services were planned at churches across the country, with the largest scheduled at Regina Mundi Catholic Church in Soweto, a sprawling black suburb of Johannesburg. Some black workers chose to stay home today, either to honor the memory of those who died or to avoid the wrath of black activists urging boycotts.

In recent years, there has been no major violence in this white-minority-ruled nation on the anniversary of the 1976 uprising. The voteless, segregated 21 million blacks in South Africa outnumber whites four to one.

The rioting in Soweto began June 16, 1976, when school youths protested the government's forced use of the Afrikaans language in black schools. In the following months, unrest spread to other black and mixed-race areas across the country.

Official reports said at least 600 died, but black leaders said the death toll was substantially higher.

Nations in turmoil capture world attention

EDITOR'S NOTE — Central America, once a sleepy way station of the Western Hemisphere, is now a focal point of world tension. The following article by AP correspondent Soll Sussman, who has reported from four of the region's troubled nations, offers an overview of today's Central American turmoil.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Decades of poverty and oppression are exploding in Central America, stirring fears of greater foreign intervention and escalating conflicts.

A civil war is intensifying in its fourth year in El Salvador. In Nicaragua, counterrevolutionaries fight a young revolutionary government. Tensions rise between Nicaragua and neighboring Honduras. Guerrillas fight on in Guatemala's mountains. And even tranquil Costa Rica fears being drawn into the regional turbulence.

President Reagan is trying to convince Congress and the American public that what happens in Central America is closely tied to the East-West conflict.

"El Salvador is nearer to Texas than Texas is to Massachusetts," Reagan told a joint session of Congress in late April. "... The national security of all the Americas is at stake in Central America."

Those pressing for greater U.S. involvement in Central America's conflicts say the violence is being encouraged by the Soviet Union and Cuba, and that a leftist tide could affect Mexico, U.S. access to the Panama Canal, and even American shipping through the Caribbean. In addition, U.S. business has more than $4 billion invested in Central America.

CRITICS OF Washington's Central American policy say there are disturbing parallels to the Vietnam War — that the United States, in the name of anti-Soviet containment, is risking deep and difficult involvement in what are essentially local problems.

The Mexican government has joined Panama, Colombia and Venezuela in forming the Contadora Group — named after the Panamanian island where the first meeting was held — to seek a regional solution to the turbulence in Central America. At least six meetings have been held since January, with no visible results.

Geographically, Central America extends from Mexico's southern border to the Colombian border in South America, taking in Panama and English-speaking Belize.

THESE TROPICAL LANDS, whose combined population now is 19 million, developed slowly as agricultural backwaters run by petty dictators, giving rise to the term "banana republic."

Costa Rica eventually became one of Latin America's foremost democracies, but the governments elsewhere most often represented the wealthy elites.

Today, per-capita income in the region is $834, a fraction of what it is in the world's industrialized nations.

Events have moved rapidly, and at times spilled across borders, since the Nicaraguan revolution that ousted the right-wing strongman Anastasio Somoza in July 1979 and installed the leftist Sandinistas.

Here is a capsule look at Central America's countries and conflicts:

EL SALVADOR

Oct. 15, 1979, is a pivotal date in the region's recent history. That was the day reform-minded military officers overthrew the rightist president, Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero, and established a broad-based government. But leftists, seeking greater change, soon withdrew and began a guerrilla war against El Salvador's right-wing leadership.

The U.S.-supported government instituted agrarian and social reforms, but human rights groups assert that these programs have floundered and security forces continue to brutalize the population.

The majority of an estimated 42,000 civilian deaths since the coup are blamed on rightist death squads, believed to be collaborating with the security forces. In 1982, the government says, the war itself took the lives of 1,040 soldiers and about 2,000 guerrillas.

Rightist parties won a majority in a new constituent assembly in elections in March 1982 that were boycotted by the left. Alvaro Magana, named provisional president by the assembly, has announced plans for presidential elections later this year.

Five guerrilla groups allied in the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front show increasing strength on the battlefield, and their campaign of economic sabotage has caused an estimated $600 million in damage in 3½ years of war.

The Reagan administration contends the human rights situation in El Salvador has improved, meriting continued aid for the government.

NICARAGUA

After a year-long civil war that cost 50,000 lives, the Somoza dynasty was ousted July 19, 1979.

The leftist Sandinista movement gradually assumed more power in the postwar revolutionary leadership. The government, headed by a three-member junta, developed close ties to Cuba and the Soviet Union, and the United States cut off aid in January 1981. The Reagan administration charges that the Nicaraguans funnel arms to the Salvadoran guerrillas, a charge the government here denies.

Nicaragua accuses the United States of training and supplying anti-Sandinista insurgents who are fighting on two fronts — in the north under the banner of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, which includes members of Somoza's disbanded national guard, and in the south under the leadership of Eden Pastora's Democratic Revolutionary Alliance. Pastora, a hero of the revolution, now accuses the Sandinistas of betraying the ideals of the war against Somoza.

HONDURAS

The Honduran and Nicaraguan governments regularly accuse each other of violating their mutual border.

Anti-Sandinista insurgents have used Honduras as a base for their attacks, and the Nicaraguan government claims the U.S.-supported Honduran military supports the Nicaraguan rebels, a charge denied by Honduras.

Storm wrecks Open play

Mahaffey, Rassett share uncompleted lead

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — John Mahaffey and Joey Rassett finished play before the rains came and shared an uncertain lead Friday in the storm-delayed and uncompleted second round of the 83rd U.S. Open Golf Championship.

Two spectators were struck by lightning at the height of a violent storm that raked the Oakmont Country Club and caused a 2 hour, 32 minute delay and — for the first time in the history of the American championship that dates back to 1895 — made it impossible to complete the round before darkness.

THIRTY-EIGHT players were stranded on the rain-soaked course when play eventually was halted at 7:40 p.m., CDT. They marked their positions and were scheduled to return at 6 a.m., CDT, Saturday to complete second round action.

Among them was Calvin Peete, whose deadly accuracy came to the fore. Peete, who has led the PGA Tour in driving accuracy for three seasons, birdied three of his first five holes, got another on the back and was even par for the tournament — one shot back — with two second-round holes to be played.

The leading total of 141, one under par, was established by Mahaffey and Rassett early in the day.

But with 36 holes to go — in some cases more — that lead was far from secure. Bunched within two shots was a group that included defending champion Tom Watson, PGA champion Ray Floyd, Masters winner Seve Ballesteros and Hal Sutton, winner of the Tournament Players Championship earlier this season.

After all players complete 36 holes, the field will be cut to the low 60 scorers for third round play later in the day.

Among those left on the course were Lennie Clements, Dave Ogrin and Mike Nicolette, all two under par. Ogrin and Nicolette had five holes to play, Clements two.

Jack Nicklaus, at age 43 still chasing a record fifth U.S. Open title, struggled to a 74 and completed two rounds at 147.

At the height of the violent storm that ripped over the Allegheny Valley, Ronald Ard, 31, and Raymond Case, 30, both of Weirton, W.Va., were injured by lightning as they stood by the second hole. Ard was treated at a hospital and released. Case was admitted for observation and listed in stable condition.

MAHAFFEY, WHO said his victory in the 1978 PGA championship on this course "helped heal some wounds" for earlier Open losses, got his share of the overnight lead with a 15-foot birdie putt on the final hole, completing a hard-working round of 72.

"That was very satisfying," he said. "I brought it back a little after it looked like I was going to bogey in.

"It was a test of survival, a test of patience," Mahaffey said of the effort over the narrow fairways and brutal rough of the Oakmont Country Club course.

Rassett, who played the European circuit before qualifying for the American tour this season, matched the best round of the tournament with an early 69.

"Everything seemed right today," he said. "My thinking, my swing, my tempo, everything."

But Rassett, not yet a winner, quickly disclaimed any thoughts of one of the great upsets in the game.

"Winning this golf tournament is the furthest thing from my mind. I'm just hoping for a good showing," he said.

Watson, however, very definitely was looking for much more than a good finish.

"I like the feeling I have right now. I like it," Watson said after a 70 that put him at 142, tied with Floyd one shot off the lead.

"I've made enough good swings, made enough good shots that I'm getting more and more confidence in my game," said Watson, who is attempting to fight his way out of the most frustrating slump of his career.

Watson, who lost a playoff to Mahaffey for that 1978 PGA title, admits to "a compulsion" to atone for that defeat.

"I'd be lying if I said I didn't have a compulsion to make up for that," he said.

Ballesteros, the Spaniard who won his second Masters title in April and shared the first round lead here, slipped to a 74 and was two off the pace at 143. He was tied with Sutton, who had a 70. Scott Simpson was next at 71-144.

BOB MURPHY, tied for the 18-hole lead with Ballesteros and Mahaffey, was one of those on the course who had to duck for cover when the storm hit. He had three holes to go when he came back and finished bogey-bogey-double bogey. That completed an 81 that knocked him out of title contention at 150.

Bobby Wadkins lost six shots to par over one 5-hole stretch, shot a 77 and was at 148.

Lanny Wadkins, the season's leading money-winner, topped an early group of finishers at 145 after shooting a 73.

Mahaffey, whose career went into a decline after he lost the 1975 U.S. Open in a playoff, then led through 69 holes of the U.S. Open the following year, only to lose again, was asked if he feels this tournament owes him one.

"I used to. Not any more," he said. "This is a tournament you have to earn. I didn't lose those tournaments. Someone else played better than I did and won them."

He made five bogeys in his round, four of them after driving into the rough. But he also had four birdies, two on 20-foot putts, another after hitting a 6-iron two feet from the flag, then wrapping it up with the 15-footer on the final hole.

Rassett made the turn in par 36, then moved up with a pair of six-foot putts on the 12th and 13th.

Watson had a pair of 6s on his card, but also counted five birdies, including a 50-foot putt on the eighth.

Cubs survive Dodger scare

Anicich, Gerlach team up to get save

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Midland pitcher Jim Gerlach came in the top of the ninth Friday night with runners on first and second, nobody out and a 10-9 lead.

He got San Antonio's Ivan Mesa to strike out and let first baseman Mike Anicich end the game when Cecil Espy hit a line shot down the line. Mark Sheehy, who received the walk that ended Bill Johnson's time on the mound, was caught off the bag, giving Gerlach his second save and Johnson his first win of the year.

"Once again it was Anicich making the big play on us," said Dodger manager Terry Collins. "He's playing like he wants a golden glove. Everything we hit at him he gets his glove on."

However, more than the double play, it was sloppy baseball that cost the Dodgers the victory at Cubs Stadium. Five errors, nine walks (one intentional), four wild pitches and one hit batsman destroyed a seven-hit San Antonio pitching performance.

"No question about it, it was the errors and bases on balls," said Collins. "You can't walk people, especially in this ball park and our defense was terrible."

The Cubs took advantage of Dodger miscues from the very beginning when Jay Loviglio reached first on the first of three Larry See errors. One out later Bill Hatcher walked and both players advanced on the first of three Steve Martin wild pitches.

TOM LOMBARSKI drove in the first Cub run when he grounded out to second base and Hatcher scored on wild pitch No. 2. The game didn't get any cleaner. After three innings the game was tied at 3-3 and the Cubs were still looking for their first hit.

Midland didn't score an earned run until the fourth inning when Randy LaVigne tripled to the center field fence and scored on Carlos Lezcano's sacrifice fly. In all, the Cubs scored at least one run in every inning except the third.

The Cubs brought home the eventual winning run in the eighth inning, taking advantage of the speed of Bill Hatcher. With one gone, Hatcher reached first on See's third error of the night and stole second and third. Tom Lombarski followed with a walk and Anicich, who had been held hitless for two games, hit a hard shot down the third base line that See couldn't quite hold on to. Hatcher scored easily on the play.

Martin lasted on the mound for five innings giving up only three hits but with four walks, three wild pitches and a hit batsman to his credit. Morris Madden came in in the sixth and allowed one hit, three walks and another wild pitch.

Ace reliever Roberto Alexander, with 13 saves, was called on in the seventh and was the only Dodger pitcher who didn't walk anybody. He just gave up two hits and a sacrifice fly that cost him the victory. He dropped his record to 1-3.

Jeff Moscarat also pitched for San Antonio and he added two walks, a balk and one run to the team's pitching woes.

MEANWHILE, DOUG Welenc went 6⅓ innings, giving up nine hits and one walk before Ray Soff came in to relieve. Soff couldn't get anybody out, allowing two hits and two runs, so Cubs manager Tommy Harmon called for Johnson who collected the win, gave up four hits, one run and two walks. He was in danger of taking the loss when Gerlach came in to save the game.

"It wasn't to pretty, but we won and that's the main thing," said Harmon. "If there were any bright spots in for us they were LaVigne getting a couple of hits and Welenc pitched well. He (Welenc) hasn't had a start in a while.

"Their starter (Martin) threw well but got the tough breaks. In a balal game like that when both sides aren't playing well, we were fortunate to come out on the winning end of it."

R.J. Reynolds led both teams at the plate with a 4-for-5 performance with a double and his seventh home run of the year. He also scored three runs and drove in four.

See, who had the trouble with his glove, did much better at the plate, collecting three hits in five tries — two doubles and a triple.

For the Cubs, LaVigne, with a triple and two-RBI single, was the only Cub to collect more than one hit. A.J. Hill, with his single in the seventh inning, made it nine games in a row hitting safely.

CUB NOTES: The victory gives Midland a 3-2 series edge over San Antonio with one game left to play. That final game will be played tonight at 7:30 and will also be the end of the first half of Texas League play...When the Cubs open the second half, a new pitcher will be on the roster, Mark Capel who pitched for the NCAA champion Texas Longhorns this year...To make room for Capel, the Cubs are placing Ron Richardson on the 10-day disabled list...A tip of the hat to groundskeeper Lee Velarde who came to the stadium Friday morning to find the infield and dugouts under water. A pipe that had broken behind the pitcher's mound almost cost postponement of the game.

Unheralded rise from obscurity

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — There seems to be one in nearly every U.S. Open — the unheralded golfer who rises out of obscurity to find himself near the top of the leader board.

That's where 24-year-old Joey Rassett, previously known only by the keenest of fans, found himself Friday after the second round of the 83rd Open.

Rassett's 2-under 69 left him in a tie for the early 36-hole lead at 1-under with John Mahaffey — pretty heady territory for a guy who ranks only 112th on the latest PGA Tour money list.

Some of the past Open unknowns, such as Orville Moody in 1969, actually went on to win the tournament — and sometimes never won again.

Others, such as Jack Nicklaus, Julius Boros, Jerry Pate and Lee Trevino, made the Open their first major tournament victory, then went on to a series of successes.

Rassett, a Tulsa resident in his first year on the PGA Tour, doesn't plan on being a one-time wonder who will disappear after this weekend, never to be heard from again.

"Maybe it's because I expect a lot of myself. I've set some high goals and high expectations for myself," Rassett said. "I wasn't that nervous."

Facing the large contingent of news media afterwards was more intimidating than the feared Oakmont course, he said.

"I wanted this to be relaxed ... and I'm not," he said, drawing chuckles.

While some golfers disdain looking at the scoreboard while they're playing, Rassett said "it was a big thrill" to see his name go up on the leader board.

"I was very aware of it ... it was a nice feeling," he said.

Rassett, married and a former player at Oral Roberts University, turned pro in 1981, but made the tour only this year. A former member of the U.S. amateur Walker Cup team, he is playing in his fourth Open.

He was the low amateur in 1981, but has had only three top 20 finishes on the tour.

"I've played decent, I've had some good tournaments and bad tournaments," he said. "But I've not been frustrated. I don't know these courses like some of these guys, and sometimes they're going to shoot 20-under par when I'm not.

"But I had an idea what I wanted to do here. You're so up for the Open, everyone is. I knew what I had to do. I knew I could make some birdies, play some smart golf."

Can he actually do what some of the best golfers in the world haven't done — tame Oakmont?

"Winning this tournament is far from my mind," he said. "Mainly, I want to make a good showing.

"Coming into the Open, I wanted a top 15 finish. I would have been very satisfied with that."

On the flip side, Bobby Clampett, often asked to describe his scientific style of play, found it much harder Friday to talk about his second round, 11-over-par 82.

"I prepared very hard. I'm very disappointed," the 23-year-old Clampett said. He stood 76-82—158 after the rain-delayed round and didn't expect to make the cut.

"I didn't play well. I didn't putt well," he said.

Clampett, despite his age, is considered one of the most cerebral players on the PGA Tour. He spent hours carefully analyzing the demanding Oakmont Country Club course, which he had never seen before.

But no analysis, he said, could prepare him for what he called "the toughest course I have ever played."

Connors is 30, McEnroe's shoulder suspect, but...

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors is 30, and John McEnroe's serving shoulder is suspect. But who's going to challenge them for a place in the men's singles final at Wimbledon?

When Connors begins the defense of his title on the Center Court of the All-England Club Monday, against Eddie Edwards, he will be a 5-to-4 favorite to win the championship for a third time.Those odds are so short, it's hardly worth betting.

The British bookies make McEnroe 6-4 to regain the title he won in 1981, before losing to Connors in the final a year ago.

Then there is a big gap before Ivan Lendl at 7-1, and nobody else is shorter than 25-1.

A repeat of last year's women's final is also predicted. The bookies make Martina Navratilova 4-6 odds-on favorite to retain her title, with Chris Evert Lloyd at 5-2.

Andrea Jaeger and Tracy Austin, next on the list, are way behind at 12-1.

Connors is getting old as Wimbledon champions go, but he's still bouncing about the courts like a youngster.

"I feel fitter than a year ago, and I am enjoying my tennis more than ever before," he said.

Connors will be 30 years and 305 days on July 3 — finals day. If he wins he will be the ninth oldest Wimbledon men's champion. But he is nowhere near Arthur W. Gore, who won in 1909 at age 41 years, 183 days, or Big Bill Tilden, who was 37 years, 145 days when he won Wimbledon for a third and last time in 1930.

McEnroe's left shoulder has troubled him most of this year. He almost pulled out of the French Open last month, then decided to play against his doctor's advice. He aggravated the injury a week ago during the final of the Stella Artois tournament at London's Queens Club, when Connors blasted him off the court in two straight sets.

Lloyd, who has been in the final eight times in the last 10 years, concedes that she and Navratilova "are head and shoulders above the rest at the moment. In time someone will come through, but right now it seems to be between Martina and me."

Navratilova and Lloyd have each won the title three times.

But when the experts have had their say, remember Wimbledon's long tradition of upsets. It's a hard tournament with matches going on day after day for two weeks, on grass courts that are often treacherous.

"All kinds of things happen at Wimbledon," Connors said.

Howe takes Keystone lead with 66

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Lauren Howe tied the tournament record with a 6-under-par 66 to take the first-found lead in the $200,000 Lady Keystone Open on the LPGA tour Friday.

Howe, who lost her tour card and had to regain it last January at Windsor qualifying school, had seven birdies and only one bogie on her 32-34 round at the 6,388-yard West Course at the Hershey Country Club.

Donna White and Judy Clarke were tied for second and one stroke behind in the three-day tournament. Veteran Pat Bradley and newcomer Barbara Riedl were two shots off the pace.

Four players were tied at 3-under — defending champ Jan Stephenson, two-time champ JoAnne Carner, Rosie Jones and Amy Alcott.

Howe's 66 equals scores posted in 1981 by Carner, Bradley and Patty Sheehan. Twenty-one players ended Friday under par, but Sheehan, who won the LPGA Championship last week, was 2-over.

Howe started her day with a birdie-3 on the 405-yard opening hole that is rated the toughest on the course. She put a 3-iron inside 15 feet and sank the put.

She bogeyed the next hole when her third shot overflew the green and she had to take a 6. After Howe rolled in a 40-footer for a birdie at the third hole, she added three straight birds at five, six and seven to turn the front side in 32, four strokes under par.

Howe knocked a wedge 18 inches from the cup at 10 and got her final birdie of the day with an eight-foot put at 13 to complete the best round of her career.

Wimby snubs Garrison

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Jo Durie was involved Friday in a pre-Wimbledon dispute which could lead to the All-England Club, which runs the championships, being fined by the Women's Professional Tennis Council.

Durie has been seeded number 13 in the women's singles although she is ranked only 17th, while American Zina Garrison, ranked 15th, has been omitted from the 16-strong seeding list.

Jerry Diamond, director of the Women's Tennis Association, complains that this is an injustice and that the rules demand that seeding is based strictly on the world ranking list produced weekly by computer. He claims that Wimbledon does not have the right to deviate from this system.

The rules governing women's seeding, he said, came into operation in January and Wimbledon, in common with all other tournaments staging women's events, signed the agreement.

"They do not have the right to change computer rankings" he said Friday. "The Women's Tennis Association will ask the Professional Council to take action against Wimbledon and this could mean fining them."

Diamond admitted that no action could be taken until after the Wimbledon championships and that the seedings, as announced, would have to stand.

The seeding committee took the controversial step of putting Durie in at No. 13 because she had beaten all the players placed below her and had not lost to any of them.

Honeycutt notches ninth win

Jays walk over Angels

By The Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas — Rick Honeycutt tossed a five-hitter for his ninth victory and George Wright belted a three-run homer while Buddy Bell had a solo shot as the Texas Rangers crushed the Minnesota Twins 10-1 Friday night.

Honeycutt, 9-3, leads the American League with a 1.65 earned run average. Wright added a run-scoring double and Bell delivered a two-run double as Twins had their four-game winning streak stopped.

Minnesota starter Ken Schrom, 4-2, was beset by wildness and only lasted two innings.

Two walks and Billy Sample's double gave Texas two runs. A hit batsman, another walk and Mickey Rivers' sacrifice fly brought home another before Bell hit a two-run double off Schrom.

Wright drilled his fifth homer of the year in the fifth inning off reliever Jim Lewis after a double and a walk. In the sixth, Bell tagged his sixth homer off reliever Pete Filson and Wright doubled home another run.

Blue Jays 6, Angels 3

TORONTO — Dave Stieb became the first pitcher in the majors to win 10 games this season by firing a six-hitter and Barry Bonnell and Cliff Johnson each homered as the Toronto Blue Jays downed the California Angels 6-3.

Stieb, 10-4, struck out seven to increase his American League-leading total to 92. The right-hander walked three.

Royals 3, Mariners 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Willie Aikens smashed a solo homer and Hal McRae and Frank White drove in Kansas City's other runs to lead the Royals past the mistake-prone Seattle Mariners 3-1.

Loser Gaylord Perry, 3-9, retired the first 10 Kansas City batters while winner Larry Gura, 6-8, was hammered for 10 hits and lasted only 6⅓ innings. But Gura profited from four double plays and the Mariners stymied themselves with shoddy baserunning, including a mistake that cost Al Cowens a home run.

Moments after Richie Zisk homered leading off the second inning, Cowens hit a sinking line drive into short center field that Amos Otis tried to short hop. The ball got past Otis and rolled to the wall with Cowens reaching home plate before the Royals got the ball to the infield. But the Royals claimed Cowens had missed second base and he was called out by second base umpire Tim Welke.

Red Sox 5, Orioles 3

BALTIMORE — Dwight Evans smacked a two-run double during Boston's five-run second inning and the Red Sox went to defeat the Baltimore Orioles 5-3 Friday night.

The Red Sox, who had lost nine of 11, launched their uprising against Dennis Martinez, 4-10, by loading the bases on one-out singles by Carl Yastrzemski, Ed Jurak and Gary Allenson.

The first two runs scored on a sacrifice fly by Glenn Hoffman and a single by Jerry Remy, the second of his four hits. Martinez was lifted after making a wild pitch to Evans, putting Hoffman and Remy in scoring position.

Evans then hit reliever Sammy Stewart's full-count pitch down the right-field line for a two-run double. A single by Jim Rice, his 1,500th major league hit, drove in Evans.

Bob Ojeda, 4-2, who allowed Eddie Murray's ninth homer in the second inning, took a three-hitter into the eighth.

Yankees 7, Brewers 2

NEW YORK — Rick Cerone, playing in only his sixth game in the last 23, drove in three runs, had three hits and scored twice to back Dave Righetti and the New York Yankees to a 7-2 victory Friday night over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Righetti, 8-2, gave up 11 hits and did not yield a run until Mark Brouhard hit a one-out homer in the seventh. George Frazier took over for Righetti with one out in the ninth.

Brewers left-hander Mike Caldwell, 5-6, gave up two more runs in the fourth. Roy Smalley and Jerry Mumphrey singled to start the inning. One out later, Cerone singled home Smalley for his first RBI since May 22, and Mumphrey raced to third. Willie Randolph then laid down the first of his two suicide squeeze bunts to score Mumphrey.

White Sox 6, A's 3

CHICAGO — Vance Law's tie-breaking double keyed a three-run eighth inning Friday night to lead the Chiago White Sox to a 6-3 victory over the Oakland A's.

Greg Luzinski began the eighth with a single off loser Tom Burgmeier, 4-3, and pinch hitter Mike Squires sacrificed pinch runner Lorenzo Gray to second. Tom Paciorek was then given an intentional walk before Law's deep drive to center bounced into the bullpen for a ground-rule double.

Scott Fletcher drew a walk to load the bases and Paciorek scored on a sacrifice fly by Julio Cruz. Vance Law scored the final run of the inning on a balk by Burgmeier.

Kevin Hickey, 1-2, got the victory and Salome Barojas got his fourth save.

The White Sox battled back into a tie with two runs in the seventh on doubles by Fletcher, Rudy Law and Carlton Fisk.

Oakland scored a run in the first on a hit batsman, a walk and a run-scoring single by Carney Lansford.

The White Sox tied it in the bottom of the first when Rudy Law walked, stole second and scored on a single by Fisk off starter Mike Norris.

Tigers 11, Indians 4

CLEVELAND — Tom Brookens drove in four runs and Lance Parrish had four hits as the Detroit Tigers rode a 14-hit attack and a seven-run fifth inning to an 11-4 route of the Cleveland Indians.

Jack Morris, 7-5, yielded all four Cleveland runs over the first seven innings as the Tigers rolled to their 11th victory in 13 games. Len Barker, 4-7, took the loss.

Cards blast Cubs behind Hendrick

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — George Hendrick drilled three hits and scored two runs and the St. Louis Cardinals struck for four runs in the fourth inning to beat the Chicago Cubs 7-2 Friday night.

Hendrick led off the fourth with a double against Chuck Rainey, 7-5, took third on Dane Iorg's single and scored on Andy Van Slyke's double. Iorg scored on Darrell Porter's grounder that put the Cards ahead 3-2, then Van Slyke scored on Ozzie Smith's suicide squeeze bunt and Tommy Herr followed with a triple to score Smith, who reached first on Rainey's throwing error.

Bob Forsch, 5-5, pitched an eight-hitter, retired the final 13 batters and contributed a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning.

The Cards' scored first on Hendrick's single and stolen base and Iorg's double in the second inning but the Cubs went ahead in the top of the third on doubles by Jody Davis and Mell Hall and Bill Buckner's sacrifice fly.

St. Louis also scored a run in the seventh when Herr doubled, advanced on Ken Oberkfell's long fly and scored on Willie McGee's grounder.

Hendrick had three hits, giving him 10 in St. Louis' last four games, and raised his National League-leading batting average to .351.

Expos 7, Mets 2

MONTREAL — Charlie Lea pitched a six-hitter and Chris Speier had three extra-base hits, helping the Montreal Expos beat the New York Mets 7-2.

It was the first victory since May 27 for Lea, 4-3, struck out a career-high nine batters without giving up a walk en route to his second complete game. The start of the game was delayed 93 minutes by rain.

The Expos pounced on Tom Seaver, 4-6, for three runs in the first inning. Tim Raines walked and scored on Chris Speier's double. Speier came around on singles by Al Oliver and Gary Carter.

Warren Cromartie then singled, but Carter was caught between second and third. Keith Hernandez, making his Mets' debut after being traded by St. Louis on Wednesday, hit Carter with a throw in the rundown, allowing Oliver to score on the error. Hernandez also had two hits.

The Expos also scored single runs in the fourth and fifth innings and two in the sixth. Andre Dawson had two of the RBI with a sacrifice fly and a single.

The only runs off Lea came on Seaver's sacrifice fly in the third inning and George Foster's double-play grounder in the ninth.

Pirates 2, Phillies 1

PITTSBURGH — Dave Parker hit a run-scoring triple and raced home with the decisive run on Tony Pena's grounder and John Candelaria recorded his 100th career victory as the Pittburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1.

Candelaria, 5-6 this year and 100-67 lifetime, allowed four hits and struck out eight before leaving the game with tightness in his left elbow after seven innings. Kent Tekulve earned his sixth save.

In the fourth inning, Mike Easler singled through the legs of loser John Denny, 4-4, and scored on Parker's triple into the right-field corner. Pena then grounded to second base and Parker barely beat Joe Morgan's throw home.

The Phils got their run in the fifth on a leadoff double by Bo Diaz, an error by Bill Madlock on Garry Maddox's grounder that moved Diaz to third and a sacrifice fly by Ivan DeJesus.

Birmingham blitzed by Blitz

USFL Roundup

By The Associated Press

The Chicago Blitz rode the passing arm of Bobby Scott to a 29-14 victory over Birmingham Friday night to take over the Central Division lead in the United States Football League.

The victory moved the Blitz, 11-5, ahead of Tampa Bay, 10-5, pending the Bandits' battle with Boston on Sunday.

In other USFL action Friday night, the Denver Gold routed the Arizona Wranglers 32-6 and the New Jersey Generals squeezed past the Los Angeles Express 20-13.

Scott, acquired during the season in a trade with New Jersey, completed his first passes for Chicago, three of them for touchdowns to Trumaine Johnson.Scott entered the game after Tim Koegel was injured and found Johnson alone in the left corner of the end zone for scoring tosses of 12, 19 and 10 yards.

Birmingham, 8-8, led 14-12 at halftime, but Frank Corral hit a 30-yard field goal to put Chicago ahead for good in the third period.The Blitz added to the margin with Johnson's third scoring catch and a 15-yard run by Mack Boatner in the final period.

Craig Penrose fired three touchdown passes and running back Vincent White rushed for a team-record 159 yards to lead Denver over Arizona.

The victory raised Denver's record to 7-9 and kept its slim playoff hopes alive. Arizona suffered its eighth straight setback and fell to 4-12.

A final home-game crowd of 42,621, which enabled Denver to average 41,735 for the season, saw the Gold jump to a 15-0 halftime lead and extend the margin to 25-0 after three quarters before Arizona finally scored early in the final quarter on a 9-yard pass from backup quarterback Dan Manucci to tight end Mark Keel.

Herschel Walker scored on an 11-yard run while he increased his league-leading rushing total to 1,705 yards and the league's worst defense had four interceptions, four quarterback sacks and two fumble recoveries as New Jersey defeated Los Angeles.

Sam Sopp had two interceptions for New Jersey, which broke a two-game losing streak to boost its record to 5-11.Sopp, a free safety, made his second interception in the end zone, ending a Los Angeles drive that reached the 8-yard line with 6:32 left to play.

Baby Olympics

Midland's youngest athletes will test their early skills in the first Father-Baby Olympics Saturday, June 25, from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Center Court area of the Midland Park Mall.

The Father-Baby Olympics is being sponsored by the Midland County Chapter of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation and the Midland Jaycees.

Registration for all fathers and their babies under the age of three years is free and each child participating will receive a blue ribbon for achievement.

Events include a baby doll diapering contest for the fathers as well as several fun tasks geared to the children's ages.

Since the ultimate goal of the March of Dimes is to see that all children are born healthy, each well baby born in America is considered an achievement well worth celebrating.

The event is being held to celebrate the many successes the March of Dimes has known in Midland and to thank everyone in Midland who has supported the fight against birth defects.

LL playoffs

Eastern Little League will host the American Little League City Championship playoff tournament at Sparks Park Monday through Saturday.

Championship teams from leagues across Midland will compete in the city championship tournament, which will be a double-elimination affair with games starting at 6 p.m. daily.

Teams entered will be from Eastern, Mid-City, Western, Tower and North Central leagues. North Central recently won the National Little League single-elimination tournament. The American tournament is for the top level Little League players.

Roberto Duran forgets the past

NEW YORK (AP) - Roberto Duran is a born-again fighter.

At a news conference Friday, Duran was asked if his eighth-round victory over Davey Moore for the World Boxing Association junior middleweight title wiped away the humiliation of his quitting against Sugar Ray Leonard and eased his bitterness toward manager Carlos Eleta and Don King for breaking their association with him.

"AFTER LAST night, I forget whatever happened in the past," said Duran, who celebrated his 32nd birthday Thursday, the night he became a champion for the third time. "I'm thinking of the present and the future.

"I don't remember anything (about the past). "I was born again last night.

"I know I have a good boxing future," said the Panamanian, who many considered a fighter with only a past when he quit in the eighth round and lost the World Boxing Council welterweight championship against Leonard Nov. 25, 1980, at the New Orleans Super Dome.

"First I have to talk to Bob Arum about future fights."

"I think the fight everybody wants to see is Roberto Duran and Marvelous Marvin Hagler," said Arum, who promoted the Duran-Moore match, which drew a sellout crowd of 20,061 at Madison Square Garden. "First, I have to sit down and talk to Roberto and Mr. Spada (manager Luis Spada) and see what their preferences are."

Arum said it was possible Duran's next fight would be a title defense. Duran mentioned a rematch with Moore, but that is not regarded by boxing observers as being likely.

SPADA SAID it was not known when Duran would return to Panama where a victory celebration is planned.

Moore, who was knocked down in the seventh round before being battered into defeat at 2:02 of the eighth round of the scheduled 15-rounder, did not attend the news conference at a mid-Manhattan hotel, but his manager, Leon Washington, appeared and offered congratulations to Duran.

Moore went into his fourth title defense with only 13 pro fights against an opponent who was fighting for the 80th time.

"We went to school last night and we graduated," said Washington. "Mr. Duran beat us. All we can say is we were inexperienced, and that includes me as manager and trainer."

DURAN, WHO was lightweight champion from 1972 until 1979 and now has a 76-4 record, with 57 knockouts, is the seventh man to win titles in three weight classes. The others were Bob Fitzsimmons, Tony Canzonneri, Barney Ross, Henry Armstrong, Wilfred Benitez and Alexis Arguello.

Minor league baseball in Cooperstown is still dream

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Roger Kahn is in Utica. The New York Mets are in Little Falls. And minor league baseball in Cooperstown remains a dream for Mayor Harry Hollis.

The mayor's quest to put a professional team in the Leatherstocking town where, legend has it, baseball was invented seems to be a natural.

The village certainly has the history. It also has the stadium, 10,000-seat Doubleday Field, which hosts the Hall of Fame Game between two major league teams each summer.

And last winter, Cooperstown almost landed a franchise in the New York-Pennsylvania League — the Cooperstown Mets, a Class A club for the National League's New York Mets and owned by Kahn, the author of "The Boys of Summer" and other baseball books and articles.

The team, however, never made it past the conversational stage.

Now Kahn is president of the Utica, N.Y., Blue Sox, an independent Class A team in the New York-Penn League. The Mets have a farm club in nearby Little Falls, N.Y. And Hollis is looking for some other way to make his dream come true.

"A very important thing is the time element," said Hollis, alluding to both the reason Cooperstown doesn't have a team this year and why it might have one next season. "Time is a great asset. The more time you've got, the better job you can do."

Cooperstown's recent foray into minor league baseball was a hurried one. But the proposal's irresistable nature convinced Hollis it was worth a try.

"We don't say no to anything fairly reasonable," the mayor said. "We give it a shot."

Kahn approached New York-Penn Commissioner Vince McNamara early last winter about the idea for his next book: A look at life for ballplayers just beginning their struggle to the majors.

Kahn wanted a different perspective. Instead of the traditional observer-chronicler role of a writer, he wanted to be the man pulling the strings, the club's owner.

"I thought it was a romantic place to have a team," said Kahn, adding, "I do not believe for a moment that the game was invented in the town (but) it's a harmless legend."

Kahn then talked with Hollis, who has taken at least one other stab at bringing professional baseball to Cooperstown.

About six years ago, Hollis began what he termed a "test sale" of stock for a Cooperstown team. The plan was to use the interest on the stock sale to run the club.

Although he sold about $16,000 worth of stock, the plan never gathered momentum and the money was returned to investors. It takes about $135,000 a year to operate a Class A team, according to McNamara.

With 2,500 residents, Cooperstown would be the smallest community in professional baseball.

But there are 50,000 people surrounding Cooperstown in Otsego County. And although Oneonta, a city about 20 miles to the south, already has a New York-Penn team, Cooperstown has the Hall of Fame, which attracts 210,000 baseball fans a year.

"After doing some research it seemed very feasible," Kahn said. "They get about 120,000 visitors in the months of July and August (when New York-Penn action takes place), half of whom would stay in the area overnight. That is a viable single A (volume)."

For all it had, however, Cooperstown lacked two essential items — a clubhouse for players and lights for the field.

Fowler is out, Martin stays with Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner reassigned pitching Coach Art Fowler, long-time friend of Manager Billy Martin, to the team's Columbus affiliate in the International League on Friday.

At an impromptu news conference at Yankee Stadium, Steinbrenner said, "Naturally this will create a problem because he (Fowler) is Billy's best friend."

Steinbrenner's move came out of a meeting Wednesday in Cleveland with Martin and his agent, Ed Sapir. It was after that meeting that Steinbrenner gave Martin a vote of confidence.

"I hope we got some things straightened out," Steinbrenner said. "There were some things that bothered me, and there were some things that were bothering him (Martin)."

Sapir, from New Orleans, said he asked for the meeting as part of a pre-season plan "that we had agreed upon" to keep the lines of communication open.

Sapir described the meeting as "very, very productive ... everything is in great shape."

"I have complete complete confidence in Billy," Steinbrenner said at his news conference. "I don't think he has to look over his shoulder. But, there's always a possiblity (of a change).

"We had a meeting early yesterday morning. I'm not going to pretend it was utopia, but it was a good meeting. We have an agreement to sit down and discuss things before we react. Hopefully it was an honest discussion."

Steinbrenner said that Fowler had not yet accepted the assignment to Columbus. In addition, the re-alignment brings Coach Jeff Torborg from the bullpen to become Martin's No. 1 pitching instructor, and Coach Sammy Ellis was assigned to the bullpen.

Martin, visibly upset, shut himself in his office and declined to speak with reporters.

Fowler, however, said, "I'm never going to badmouth George Steinbrenner. But he should take some advice and listen to Billy, and he'll win a pennant."

Torborg said he was informed about the switch at lunch Friday. "Certainly, Billy was extremely upset, and Art wasn't very happy either," he said.

Steinbrenner said, "I know Art thinks he's a major leaguer, but I need him there. Art Fowler isn't the only move. I've been contemplating reassignment of certain duties for a long time.

Sampson pro debut is set

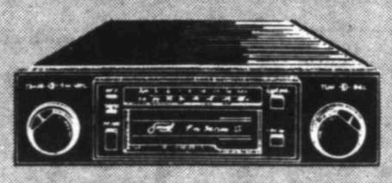

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Ralph Sampson will make his professional basketball debut against Moses Malone and Artis Gilmore in an exhibition game here Tuesday night, the game's sponsor announced Friday.

The game is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Scope Coliseum, said Bill M. Douthat, president of Whisper Concerts, Inc.

Sampson, a three-time player-of-the-year at the University of Virginia, signed a contract Thursday to compete in the game, which also features several former Atlantic Coast Conference stars and the San Antonio Spurs' George Gervin, Douthat said.

City faces more lawsuits after million-dollar brutality judgment

RICHMOND, Calif. (AP) — The city of Richmond staunchly defended its police officers against charges of racially motivated brutality. Now it faces a multimillion-dollar judgment that may force cutbacks in services and encourage more suits.

A federal court jury ruled on June 3 that two white policemen violated the civil rights of two blacks by shooting them to death. The panel ordered Richmond to pay the victims' families $3 million. The city council, which earlier rejected a $760,000 settlement recommended by its attorneys, voted to appeal the verdict.

The award equals almost 12 percent of the general fund budget for Richmond, a city 10 miles northeast of San Francisco where unemployment is 12 percent and nearly two-thirds of the 75,000 residents are non-white. The police force of 160 includes 33 black officers and 12 Hispanics.

Officials worry the award to the families of Johnny Roman and Michael Guillory may only be the first. There are at least 60 other federal claims pending, two involving deaths, and attorneys say the large award is likely to prompt additional lawsuits.

The pending cases, all involving blacks and Mexican-Americans, prompted charges from the regional counsel of National Association for the Advancement of Colored People that a "deviant cult" of "cowboy" police officers has for years acted with reckless disregard for human life.

"It's a police department which is virtually out of control," said NAACP attorney Oliver Jones last October.

Official reaction to the suits has been minimal, although one of the upcoming cases has prompted the city to ban use of chokeholds by police.

"As far as other procedures go, the procedures are generally the same. There has been no change in general policy," said police spokesman Ray Ramer, adding that there have been no major personnel changes in the department as a result of the civil rights allegations.

"We're going to be moving as rapidly as possible in terms of attempting to heal a lot of apparent wounds and perceived wounds both within the department and in the community," said city manager James Fales, who assumed his job seven weeks ago.

"The exact means by which we do that has not been determined, but it won't be very long before we start," he added.

Seven police officers, including two involved in the Roman-Guillory case, are under investigation by the U.S. Department of Justice for alleged criminal violations of civil rights laws.

Plaintiffs in the pending federal cases include:

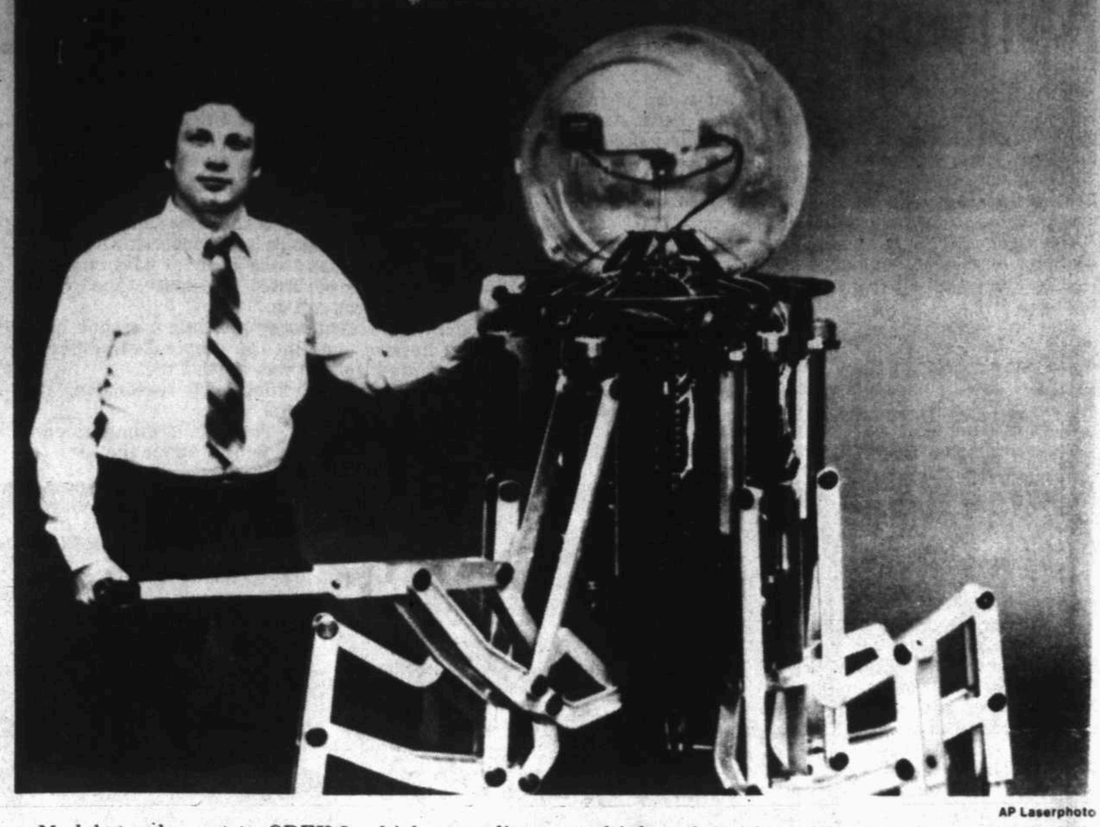

— Emilio Gallegos, who said officers attacked him with a police dog when he and his wife were stopped on their way home from a high school fund-raiser.

— Ramon Ortega and 27 others who say police used dogs and batons to break up a party at Ortega's home, seriously injuring four people and knocking over Ortega, who's confined to a wheelchair.

— The family of Willie Lee Drumgoole, a burglary suspect who died from neck injuries after a scuffle with a jailer, two officers and a police assistant in the city jail. Police say they applied a chokehold when Drumgoole tried to escape.

Twenty-seven other cases are now under arbitration, and two more cases are pending in federal court.

Last month, the city paid $25,000 to Rufus Kennedy, a black police officer who said harassment from department officials damaged his health. Kennedy is among the defendants in the Ortega suit.

Feminist argues rights violated in murder case

GRETNA, La. (AP) — Attorneys for feminist leader Ginny Foat, accused of the 1965 murder of a man in Louisiana, say pressing the charge now violates her constitutional right to a speedy trial.

District Judge Robert Burns planned a hearing today on Ms. Foat's claim that her rights would be violated because her trial, scheduled for Oct. 11, would come six years after a murder warrant was issued in 1977.

Ms. Foat, on leave as California president of the National Organization for Women, is accused of beating Argentine businessman Moises Chayo to death with a tire tool in 1965.

Ms. Foat pleaded innocent two months ago and has been free on $125,000 property bond.

Witnesses have died and disappeared since the warrant was issued and any of them still available would have only a vague memory of what happened, Ms. Foat's attorneys have argued.

Prosecutors say Ms. Foat, who was working as a barmaid in New Orleans French Quarter when the crime occurred, lured Chayo out of a bar and beat him to death.

She was arrested Jan. 11 in Burbank, Calif., on the 1977 warrant and was indicted later that month by a Jefferson Parish grand jury.

Authorities say a former husband of Ms. Foat, John J. Sidote, told an Albany, N.Y., detective in January 1977 that he and Virginia Galluzo — now Ms. Foat — had murdered a man near New Orleans in 1965 and another in Nevada.

Dispute may block exoneration

WASHINGTON (AP) — A constitutional dispute between Congress and the Reagan administration threatens to block exoneration of former Environmental Protection Agency chief Anne M. Burford of contempt of Congress charges.

The dispute arose out of the executive branch refusal to prosecute Mrs. Burford after the House voted last December to hold her in contempt, a misdemeanor criminal offense.

"Without resolving these problems, there will be no means for Congress to compel executive branch officials to comply with subpoenas," said Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., chairman of the House Public Works Committee.

But Stanley S. Harris, the U.S. attorney who refused to prosecute Mrs. Burford, maintained in testimony Thursday that he alone — not Congress — has the authority to decide whether to prosecute congressional contempt cases.

"Once the matter is referred to a United States attorney, the status of Congress is akin to that of any complainant in any other criminal case," Harris said in a prepared statement.

Harris appeared before the committee to explain his handling of the case and to attempt to soothe the congressmen who feel he ignored a direct order to prosecute.

But Howard said afterward he was "even more disturbed and concerned" after hearing Harris.

The hearing was called because the committee is considering a resolution declaring that Mrs. Burford now is in compliance with a congressional subpoena and no longer should be considered in contempt.

However, Howard said Harris' testimony "makes it even more difficult for us to consider a resolution purging (Mrs. Burford) of contempt. A decision on that matter will be made in the future."

Students send ants to space

CAPE CANAVERAL, FLA. (AP) — His friends laughed when Anthony Trusty said his high school planned to send an ant colony into space.

"They were rolling in the aisles," the Camden, N.J., teen-ager recalls, "but it turned out to be one of the neatest and cleanest ideas around."

Trusty and about 50 other graduates of two southern New Jersey high schools expect to see their idea launched into orbit Saturday as one of the Getaway Special projects aboard the space shuttle Challenger.

With the help of engineers from RCA, about 300 students at Camden and Woodrow Wilson high schools designed and built the container that will carry 150 carpenter ants into space.

The project took five years, with the students themselves designing the experiment on how ants react to weightlessness.

Students tested ants in stress and gravity conditions similar to those they will encounter in space, then sent about 150 of the insects in a vacuum-proof container to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Camden Assistant Principal Herbert Factor said Thursday.

Once in space, the ants will be filmed by two cameras while they are weightless in the 30-gallon canister the students designed.

House extends food program

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an effort to keep surplus commodities flowing from the warehouse to the tables of needy families, the House has voted to extend for two more years an emergency food giveaway program.

"Even with the economy on the rebound, the closing of plants and factories caused by a shifting industrial base has displaced thousands of workers who may need the food assistance," says Rep. Ed Madigan of Illinois, the ranking Republican on the House Agriculture Committee.

"This program will help them get by until they can again provide for themselves and their families," Madigan says.

The bill, approved 389-18 Thursday over Reagan administration objections, continues through September 1985 a temporary emergency food giveaway approved by Congress last winter but ending this fall.

That program, part of the $4.6 billion recession-relief package passed in March, was an expansion of the cheese and butter giveaway initiated by President Reagan in late 1981.

The bill passed by the House requires Agriculture Secretary John Block to distribute to public and private institutions serving the poor free government-stockpiled commodities that are not needed for traditional domestic and overseas purposes.

Although the administration accepted the emergency program as part of the overall recession-relief package, USDA officials opposed the extension on grounds that the department already has the authority and has been using it, as demonstrated by the dairy products distribution.

The bill also earmarks $50 million a year to help states pay for storage and further distribution of surplus goods once they receive them.

It goes to the Senate, where similar legislation was endorsed by the Agriculture Committee but has failed to reach the floor for a vote.

Congressional analysts estimate that in the next year the expanded program could funnel as much as half a billion pounds of food worth nearly $100 million to those who have lost their jobs and, in some cases, their homes because of the recession.

Under the current emergency program, Agriculture Department officials estimate that more than 14 million pounds of corn meal, flour, rice, non-fat dried milk and honey will be distributed each month. Another $75 million in perishable commodities will be disbursed by this fall.

That is in addition to the 35 million to 40 million pounds of cheese and butter USDA will continue giving away under Reagan's original initiative.

"It is better to provide food for those who need it than to pay considerable costs to store food and run the risk of losing it to spoilage," said Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., nutrition subcommittee chairman.

NEA wants to discuss merit pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of the National Education Association say President Reagan is misstating their stand on merit pay and other issues, and they want a chance to talk with him about it.

"Instead of passing barbs back and forth, why don't we sit down and talk?" Mary Hatwood Futrell, secretary-treasurer of the 1.6-million-member union, said in an interview Thursday.

"For us to go around in circles and play cowboys and Indians while the wagon is burning isn't going to solve the problem," she said.

Willard H. McGuire, the NEA president, said Reagan is "in error on a number of his points" about the union, "but it's difficult to straighten that out without the opportunity to have a conversation with him."

McGuire said that although the NEA opposes the merit pay plan advanced by Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander, it is supporting a merit pay plan nearing approval in California's legislature. He said teachers had a role in drafting the $1 billion California plan, but were ignored by Alexander.

Reagan has said that the union's stand on merit pay and other issues makes it a major obstacle to school improvement.

Reagan told the national Parent Teachers Association in Albuquerque, N.M., Wednesday that the NEA's leaders "cling to a pay scale based on seniority and the number of college credits earned."

McGuire asked for a meeting last month with Reagan and the White House said he would get one. But Reagan did not include the NEA when he invited several education leaders, including Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, to the White House for lunch last week.

Education Secretary T.H. Bell said, "The table was full." but added that the NEA would be invited at a later date.

The NEA has bitterly opposed Reagan's efforts to dismantle the Education Department, cut school aid, restore prayer to public schools and provide tax breaks for private education.

Ms. Futrell, who last month accused Reagan of making a "disgraceful" assault on the teaching profession, acknowledged the union has fought the administration on a host of issues.

"Obviously, he has some problems with us ... We're not one of his favorite organizations," said Ms. Futrell. But she added that the administration and the union have a common interest in working together on school problems.

"The issue is larger than the White House, it's larger than the NEA," said Ms. Futrell, who is expected to succeed McGuire as president at the union's annual convention in Philadelphia next month. "This issue deals with 50 million children ... and the future of this country."

Student's nuclear views frozen

WASHINGTON (AP) — She did not make a convert in the Oval Office, but 17-year-old Ariela Gross emerged from a 20-minute debate with President Reagan with her views about a nuclear weapons freeze unchanged.

The Princeton, N.J., high school senior, a winner of the prestigious Presidential Scholar award, had planned to give the president, at a White House ceremony Thursday, a letter signed by 14 scholarship winners urging a weapons freeze.

But administration officials, who knew of her plans, defused the gesture by inviting her to a session with the president two hours before the noon presentation.

Miss Gross, nonetheless, remained an adamant critic of the president's nuclear weapons policies.

"He said here today that we should be proud of a country that wants to remain strong," she said, referring to Reagan's remarks at the South Lawn ceremony for the students.

"But I say I'm ashamed of the leaders of this country who can vote for a new freeze, and then turn around and vote for the most dangerous and expensive missile system that this country has ever suggested, the MX missile," she added.

Miss Gross said that even though Reagan disputed her argument and dominated their conversation, she believes she accomplished her goal.

"I felt satisfied that I spoke my views and I hope he considers them seriously, rather than as just coming from someone else who is misinformed," she said. "I didn't expect to change anybody's mind."

Presidential candidates take time out for jokes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five Democrats who usually would rather be president than funny took time Thursday night to josh Morris Udall, who lost out in the presidential sweepstakes but kept his wit about him.

John Glenn, Walter F. Mondale, Reubin Askew, Gary Hart and Ernest Hollings — all competing for the 1984 Democratic president nomination — hailed Udall on his 61st birthday at a banquet that raised $160,000. The money will enable the Arizona congressman to campaign for other Democrats.

Udall offered mild complaint.

"I came here to be honored," he said, "but this is ridiculous."

Udall ran in 1976, losing to Jimmy Carter. He thought about running again this year, then thought better of it.

"Barry Goldwater and I," he said, "have made it so that Arizona is the only state that little kids aren't told by their mothers that they can grow up and be president someday."

Edward M. Kennedy, Udall's fellow 1984 dropout, served as master of ceremonies or, as Udall put it, "massacre of ceremonies."

Kennedy lamented that something is wrong with an era in which "Richard Nixon gets elected president and Mo Udall doesn't."

"He is a gentle man," the senator said, "with steel in his backbone and joy in his soul."

Udall aimed his tartest barb at Glenn, the ex-astronaut with an all-American image.

There's a lot of talk that Glenn is a "goodie-goodie two-shoes," Udall said, but it isn't so: "I can tell you as a fact after investigation that he once struck a match before closing cover. And he is addicted to talking to bus drivers while the bus is in motion."

Friends to mourn Sackter

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Hundreds of Bill Sackter's "buddies" will gather at his tiny coffee shop on the University of Iowa campus Sunday to pay their respects to the mildly retarded man who became the subject of a TV movie.

Sackter, whose return to society after 44 years in an institution inspired the acclaimed CBS movie "Bill" and won presidential recognition, was found dead Thursday. He was 70.

"Bill had a motto that he used to repeat over and over," said California screenwriter Barry Morrow, who befriended Sackter and was instrumental in developing the movie. "He said, 'If you ain't got a buddy, what have you got?' Now my buddy's gone and I feel very, very empty."

The meal of condolence at "Wild Bill's" coffee shop will follow services at Agudas Achim Synagogue in Iowa City. Hanging in the small gathering place will be a Stetson hat, a gift from actor Mickey Rooney, who portrayed Sackter, that Sackter and Thomas Walz, a professor at the university school of social work, intended to put in the shop.

Sackter's body was found Thursday in the chair in which he slept. Mae Driscoll, who rented a room in her house to Sackter, had asked a friend to check on him after he failed to come to breakfast.

Officials said he died in his sleep of natural causes.

Born to Russian immigrants on April 13, 1913, in Minneapolis, Sackter was diagnosed as being mentally retarded and at age 7 entered a school for the feeble-minded at Faribault, Minn.

Specialists later determined that his learning disability was so minor he never should have been institutionalized.

Released from the school on a work program, Sackter was befriended by Morrow, an aspiring filmmaker. He accompanied Morrow to Iowa City where he eventually found a job and became well-known among University of Iowa students and staff.

Sackter received dozens of awards, including the Handicapped Iowan of the Year Award in 1976. He received special recognition from President Jimmy Carter in a 1979 White House reception.

Earth swallows cellar, tavern, apartment

PHILLIPSBURG, N.J. (AP) — The owners of Dot And Shorty's tavern had a sinking feeling when they heard noises coming from the bar below their apartment, so they called police and got out fast.

Dot and James Vosseler thought the noise was a burglar. It turned out to be the sound of their cellar plunging into a huge crater, followed by the rest of the building.

"The whole cellar was gone," said Mrs. Vosseler, after the building, with a first-floor tavern and second-floor apartment, collapsed.

Benefits claims drop, figures show

WASHINGTON (AP) — Approximately 432,000 jobless Americans applied for unemployment benefits in early June, the lowest total of first-time claims since the early weeks of the recession in September 1981, according to government figures released Friday.

The Employment and Training Administration, which said it has been experiencing problems with its computers, issued only an abbreviated jobless claims report on Friday, a day later than usual. The agency also said that some essential information was not received in time for inclusion in the report.

Based on the available figures, the seasonally adjusted total of new applications for 26 weeks of unemployment benefits — at 432,000 — was 27,000 below the previous week's revised level, the report said.

The jobless claims figures are in keeping with a moderate recent improvement in the U.S. labor market, which has led to slight declines in the seasonally adjusted civilian unemployment rate — from 10.8 percent in December to 10.1 percent in May. Still, nearly 11.2 million people remained out of work last month.

The first-time claims total in the week ended June 4 was the lowest first-time claims total for any week since 413,000 such claims were placed at state employment offices in the week ended Sept. 12, 1981.

The figures on first-time applications for unemployment benefits are adjusted to take into account such seasonal variations as weather and school closings.

The seasonally adjusted total number of jobless Americans drawing regular state-paid 26-week compensation checks plunged by 223,000 in the week ended May 28, to 3,399,000, the department said. That was the lowest total since Nov. 21, 1981, the report said.

It also said there was a sharp decline — from 4.2 percent to 3.9 percent — in the national insured unemployment rate, the proportion of working Americans insured against the loss of jobs who actually received unemployment insurance compensation benefits in the week ended May 28.

Some 88.5 million of the 99.4 million working Americans are covered by the unemployment insurance compensation program.

Peace talks resume

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.N.-sponsored Afghanistan peace talks resumed with a meeting between the chief United Nations mediator and Foreign Minister Shah Mohammed Dost of the Soviet-backed Kabul government.

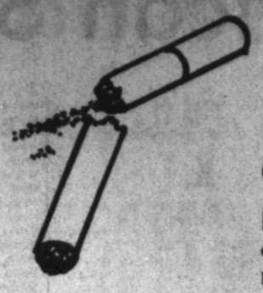

Dost made no statement as he passed waiting reporters to join United Nations Undersecretary-General Diego Cordovez for the third round of the closed-door negotiations after an eight-week recess.

The Pakistani delegation, led by Foreign Minister Sahabzada Yaqub-Khan, was to meet with Cordovez later following the pattern of "indirect" talks.

Pakistan, sanctuary for almost 3 million Afghan refugees whose number is boosted by an estimated 1,000 per week, has been pressing for a settlement in the war. The Soviets have been in Afghanistan since they sent in an estimated 100,000 troops in December 1979 to help the Marxist government fight anti-Communist guerrillas.

The negotiators have before them a draft settlement which Cordovez, an Ecuadoran, says is "near completion." But Niaz Naik, Pakistan's deputy foreign minister, was quoted as saying before his departure for Geneva that the main issues were "still wide open."

The proposed settlement includes a timetable for withdrawing Soviet troops, conditions for the "voluntary" return of Afghan refugees who fled to Pakistan and Iran, and U.N. guarantees for non-interference by other countries. Delegates have maintained strict confidentiality on details.

Leader: Cuba wants to talk

HAVANA (AP) — Cuban Vice President Carlos Rafael Rodriguez says relations between the United States and Cuba are at their lowest level in 23 years and the threat of military action against his nation is "hanging" overhead.

But, he added Wednesday, Cuba is willing to negotiate its differences with the Reagan administration.

Rodriguez, 70 and third in command in the government of Fidel Castro, said President Reagan and U.S. government spokesmen have threatened military action against Cuba.

Such a threat, he said, has forced Cuba to double its defense capability in the past two years and to create a "well-organized and well-equipped" territorial militia force of 500,000.

He told visiting executives of The Associated Press and U.S. editors and publishers that Cuba wants better relations with the United States. But Cuba feels that "the possibility of the use of military force (against Cuba) not only exists but is much closer now than at any other time," he said.

In a wide-ranging discussion, Rodriguez said Cuba "is willing to discuss" emigration, radio-jamming and other issues with the United States "without any preconditions other than mutual respect" and the elimination of what he described as aggressive acts.

Rodriguez also called for Nicaragua and Honduras to negotiate to prevent a "war that is nearly imminent" between the two Central American nations. He said broader multinational negotiations including Cuba and the United States could help resolve tensions throughout the region.

Although pressed to do so, he refused to confirm or deny reports that Cuba is supplying arms through Nicaragua to anti-goverment guerrillas in El Salvador. But he said Cuba would not give up its right to provide such assistance.

The United States has charged that Cuba is arming and otherwise supporting leftist guerrillas in their 3½-year-old war against the U.S.-backed Salvadoran government.

Rodriguez said Cuba soon would test the readiness of its defenses in previously announced maneuvers whose full extent will be revealed "within days."

Rodriguez stressed that lifting the 21-year-old U.S. embargo of trade with Cuba could pave the way for the resumption of "normal relations," adding, "In spite of ideological difference we could be friends and good neighbors."

Cuba would reply "very soon," he said, to a U.S. request that it take back 789 Cubans whom the United States declared ineligible for admission because of criminal records or mental illness.

They were among several thousand Cubans who reached the United States in 1980 in the so-called Mariel boat lifts.

Rodriguez said the establishment of a proposed U.S. government radio station broadcasting to Cuba from Florida would be viewed as "an aggression" and "would hinder the possibility of talks" between Cuba and U.S. broadcasters who say Cuban stations interfere with their transmission.

The proposal to establish the station, named after Jose Marti, leader of Cuba's struggle for independence in the 19th century, is pending in Congress.

Soviet party, government listed

MOSCOW (AP) — Here, at a glance, is a brief description of the Communist Party and governmental system of the Soviet Union:

The Party:

—The most powerful of several party institutions is the Political Bureau of the Central Committee, or Politburo, the principal policymaking and the elite ruling body. Membership is not set, but since 1981 the number of voting members has declined due to death and resignations from 14 to 11. Existing Politburo members predetermine additions or removals, and the Central Committee typically approves them. It meets at least once a week.

—The Central Committee, its membership predetermined by the elite party leadership, has about 320 full members, maintains 20 departments, and meets twice a year. The two-day session this week was the first session of 1983. Between full party congresses, which are held every five years, the Central Committee is charged with directing the work of central government bodies and the party, appointing functionaries, and other responsibilities. But in reality, the Politburo does this since the Central Committee only meets twice-yearly.

—The Secretariat, now nine members plus the general secretary (Yuri V. Andropov) who also chairs the Politburo, is composed of members with overall control of the 20 Central Committee departments. Secretaries have considerable powers in appointments and execution of policy.

The Government:

—The Supreme Soviet, or Soviet parliament, has two chambers and about 1,500 deputies. One chamber represents the population on matters of overall national interest and the other concerns itself with questions of nationalities, of which the Soviet Union ~~has more than~~ 100, and regional issues. Its members are "elected" every five years, and it meets twice a year to ratify decisions handed down by the party leadership.

—The Council of Ministers, according to Soviet law, is supposed to be the highest executive and administrative organ of state power, responsible to the Supreme Soviet which appoints it. It has about 100 members, directors in charge of government ministries, and meets quarterly. It is lead by Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov.

—The Presidium acts as an "inner cabinet" for the Council of Ministers and meets frequently. The chairman of the Presidium is the head of state, in effect, the president.

Yuri V. Andropov was elected chairman of the presidium, or president of the Soviet Union, today.

El Paso is the most Hispanic large city in America, but burgers at McDonald's local restaurants can either be ordered in English or Spanish. The city is nearly two-third Hispanic, and even Mexicans from bordering Juarez cross the Rio Grande to stop for a Big Mac, the same in both languages.

Best-sellers: McDonald's 'hamburguesas con queso', 'papas fritas'

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A famous Saturday Night Live television skit featured a Greek restaurant where no matter what patrons ordered, they always ended up with a cheeseburger.

But in El Paso, the nation's most Hispanic large city, residents who crave a cheeseburger can go to any of McDonald's 11 local restaurants and order a "hamburguesa con queso" - cheeseburger in Spanish.

"We consider the Hispanic market exceptionally important to us as a business," McDonald's Corp. Oak Brook, Ill., spokesman Bob Keyser said.

With Hispanics making up 62 percent of El Paso's nearly half-million residents, it's little wonder this West Texas border city's McDonald's menus are in English and Spanish.

"In a market like El Paso that's fairly unique, it's not a hiring requirement, but most people who work for us also are bilingual," said Gail Burbank, McDonald's spokeswoman in El Paso.

Bilingualism and English-Spanish menus are necessary to those who work in the Mills Avenue McDonald's, just a half-mile from the muddy Rio Grande that separates El Paso from Ciudad Juarez, Mexico.

"Hamburguesa con queso or cheeseburger? What's the difference? This is El Paso, so there's not much difference," maid Manuela de la Esperanza said. She travels four days a week from her home in Juarez to work for an El Paso family.

Ms. de la Esperanza and fellow maid Roberta Ayala Gutierrez only speak Spanish, and said that after work they love to stop in McDonald's downtown restaurant near the bus stop to order a cool "barquillo" - vanilla ice cream cone.

"It gets too hot here in summer, so it's really nice to have an ice cream," Mrs. Ayala Gutierrez said, wiping her brow with her hand. "We can't always get ice cream in Mexico."

Mexico's economic problems have spilled over into neighboring El Paso, where three 1982 peso devaluations sliced by one-sixth the Mexican's purchasing power, and caused the closure of an estimated 35 El Paso stores that depended on cross-over business from Juarez shoppers.

Even McDonald's has been affected. "Problems across the border obviously have had sporadic effects on our walk-in business. The better the situation is in Mexico, the better we do," Keyser said. McDonald's El Paso stores stopped accepting pesos for payment last August.

"The peso was fluctuating too much (against the U.S. dollar). We lost $160 one day in the peso exchange," store manager Gordon Chamberlain said.

Black newspaper celebrates its 100th year anniversary

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Editor John Templeton says the goal of the nation's oldest general-circulation black newspaper is unchanged since it was started a century ago by 13 former slaves.

"The reason the paper was founded was that the black community felt it had no voice," he said. "That basically hasn't changed over the past 100 years."

Providing that voice has kept the weekly Richmond Afro-American and Richmond Planet publishing since Dec. 8, 1883. Its centennial year has brought a congratulatory letter from the White House, a tribute from Gov. Charles S. Robb and letters from schoolchildren as far away as California.

While the situation for blacks in this capital of the old Confederacy has improved since the 1890s, when editorials entitled "Eighteen Colored Men Lynched" and "'Jim Crow' Streetcars" appeared in the paper, the Afro-American itself is recovering from hard times.

"I'm told we had about 20,000 circulation in the '40s," Templeton said. "In our heyday, the Afro was in every black household in the city. Either it was in the house, or people talked about what was in it."

But like other black papers in America, the Afro-American's circulaton dropped as blacks won important civil rights struggles.

As Templeton put it: "Folks figured the struggle was over. Why read the Afro?"

By 1981 the paper's circulation had decreased dramatically, to a paid circulation of 7,080, according to the 1982 Editor & Publisher Yearbook.

"We had really dropped. I was brought in basically to save this paper," said Templeton, 28, a graduate of Howard University in Washington, D.C.

What he found when he arrived as editor and general manager in September 1980 was a paper that was about half local news and half national news. The pages of national news in the Richmond Afro-American were the same as the pages of national news in the other papers in the Afro-American chain in Baltimore, Newark, N.J., and Philadelphia.

"I decided what we needed was a completely local paper," Templeton said.

English city seeks 'mystery sailor'

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — City officials said Friday they have discovered the name of a mystery American sailor whose love songs made him a local heartthrob during World War II.

If they can find the man they want to invite him to next year's 40th anniversary of the D-Day invasion of France.

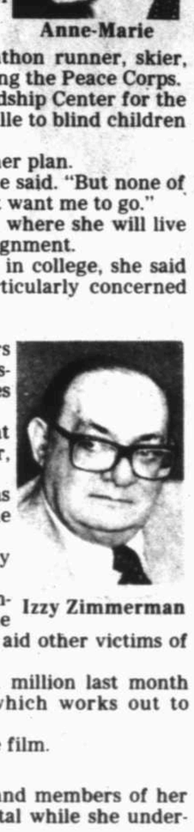

The City Council said the sailor who used to sing at wartime dances in the port city was named Bob Organ. He would probably be about 60 years old now.

Organ, among thousands of servicemen camped near here waiting for the invasion, used to go to dances at the Guildhall and sing with the resident Bert Osborne Orchestra.

Osborne, 77, remembered Organ's name after the City Council appealed to the memory of people who heard the crooner.

"We became great friends and I would love to see him again," he said. "Women did make a fuss of the handsome American. But we were more interested in his singing. He had an incredible voice, really wonderful."

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — A woman who is a marathon runner, skier, wrestler and hiker — and blind since birth — is joining the Peace Corps.

Marsha Martin, 30, an instructor at Fresno's Friendship Center for the Blind, was accepted by the Peace Corps to teach Braille to blind children and arts and crafts to adults in Ecuador.

She says her friends showed little enthusiasm for her plan.

"None of them tried to really talk me out of it," she said. "But none of them really encouraged the idea. I guess they did not want me to go."

Ms. Martin will leave Tuesday for Quito, Ecuador, where she will live with a family for 11 weeks before getting a work assignment.

A physical education and home economics major in college, she said none of her Peace Corps interviewers seemed particularly concerned about her blindness.

Izzy Zimmerman

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who spent 24 years in prison for a murder he didn't commit and successfully sued New York State for $1 million in damages will be the subject of an ABC television docudrama.

Izzy Zimmerman, 66 and in poor health, will get at least $115,000 for the film, according to his lawyer, Fred Fabricant.

Moonlight Productions, in Los Angeles, which has produced several miniseries for ABC, acquired the theatrical television rights to Zimmerman's story.

The film will be titled "The Nightmare that Really Was."

As part of the deal, Zimmerman insisted that Moonlight Productions help out with a benefit to form the "Zimmerman Foundation," which is being set up to aid other victims of miscarriage of justice.

After years of legal battles, Zimmerman won $1 million last month from the state for wrongful imprisonment — which works out to between $700,000 and $800,000 after legal expenses.

There was no word yet on who will play Izzy in the film.

Ultrasound cures boy's brain tumor

CHICAGO (AP) — When doctors said they couldn't operate on a brain tumor that was causing headaches, memory lapses and psychological problems for a 6-year-old boy, his mother refused to take "no" for an answer.

This week, just two weeks after his mother found the right surgeon, Tom Biesiadecki was back out playing baseball, competely cured.

Barbara Biesiadecki of Brooklyn, N.Y., had taken her son to half a dozen specialists who administered clinical examinations, brain scans, tranquilizers, a spinal test and even psychotherapy.

The results were always the same: no change and little hope.

IF ANYTHING, Tom's problems were worsening. It was a striking deterioration in a boy who at age 4 had won a contest for creativity and was given an exam to determine if he was a gifted child. By the time he was working his way through the first grade, he had begun to scribble illegibly and he couldn't remember his birthday.

Finally, a friend of the family offered a newspaper clipping about a Chicago doctor doing brain surgery with the help of ultrasound.

Tom's tumor was nestled deep under a delicate brain area, where conventional surgical methods made trying to remove it too dangerous.

Mrs. Biesiadecki had his X-rays sent to Dr. George Dohrmann III, who told her, "There's a possibility I can help."

While her husband, a maintenance and security worker, worked two jobs so the family of five could keep up with medical bills and expenses, Mrs. Biesiadecki climbed on an airplane with Tom and headed for Chicago.

AP Laserphoto

Barbara Biesiadecki visits her son Tom at a Chicago hospital where he is recovering from a brain tumor operation that uses ultrasound.

"I DIDN'T believe this was happening," she said Thursday, recalling the trip just over two weeks before. "You only see this on television."

Dohrmann and his radiologist teammate, Dr. Jonathan Rubin, operated. They lifted a flap of Tom's scalp, removed a patch of his skull, bored a hole in a non-vital part of his brain and extracted a marble-size tumor.

The doctors had found their way through the delicate tissues by using ultrasound — high frequency sound above the level of hearing — emitted by a scanner they had developed for brain and spinal surgery four years ago.

"This is very much like a flashlight into the brain," said Dohrmann.

Instead of light, the scanner pulses ultrasound into tissue and records the echoes, which vary with the density and structure of what they encounter, producing an image on a television screen, showing the surgeon where to go.

BECAUSE ULTRASOUND will not travel through bone or air, it cannot be used to diagnose brain abnormalities, only to help neurosurgeons find their way after they've opened the skull.

But that was enough for Tom.

His tumor was non-cancerous, and the surgery offered a permanent cure. After two weeks of recovery, his head was healed and he was free to go home.

In short order, Tom, who has turned 7 in the meantime, was back out playing baseball and hitting the ball well.

"Hey, Ma, we should have had this operation while I was on the team," he told his mother.

De Lorean's lawyers ask for trial to be delayed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Z. De Lorean's attorneys, saying they are investigating claims that the British government sought to destroy the automaker and his company for political reasons, asked Friday to delay his cocaine trafficking trial for at least two months.

"The defendant is at this time continuing an investigation that the British government requested United States authorities to initiate the prosecution of Mr. De Lorean in an effort to destroy his successful business endeavor in Northern Ireland," De Lorean's attorneys said in a 23-page motion filed with U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi.

"The success of the De Lorean Motor Company Limited in Northern Ireland, at which Catholic and Protestant Irish workers labored side by side without violence, was a political embarrassment to the conservative government of Great Britain," the document said.

"The destruction of that business, and Mr. De Lorean in the process, was a practical, although clearly amoral, response to a political problem," said attorneys Howard Weitzman and Donald Re.

The motion alleged that the government's reputed chief informant in the case, James Hoffman, was acting on orders from U.S. government agents who were indirectly receiving their orders from the British government.

They also contended they are entitled to a delay of the scheduled Aug. 9 trial because of the recent guilty plea entered by De Lorean's co-defendant, William Morgan Hetrick.

"Substantial investigation is being conducted into Mr. Hetrick's background, the nature of his cooperation in this case and the periods of his cooperation and his longstanding illegal activities," the motion said.

De Lorean, 58, was arrested last Oct. 19 and charged with conspiring in a scheme to distribute $24 million worth of cocaine. Hetrick, 51, and Stephen Lee Arrington, 34, were also charged in the case, but Hetrick changed his plea last Monday to guilty on six counts of drug distribution and money laundering.

The defense team said Arrington has no objection to a delay.

In the same motion, the defense outlined a series of points it intends to allege at the trial, including the claim that De Lorean never consented to become involved in narcotics dealings, never possessed cocaine and specifically never discussed it.

The defense informed the judge it plans to file at least seven further motions in the case and requested extension of the deadline for filing motions to early August. Among the motions, they said, would be a request for dismissal or change of venue based on pretrial publicity, a motion charging outrageous government conduct and a motion to suppress the use of tapes and other evidence at the trial.

They also said they would seek discovery of intelligence information, including some classified information about the case. Takasugi scheduled a hearing for Monday afternoon to rule on the matter.

Romance writer wins $40 million lawsuit

NEW YORK (AP) - Best-selling romance writer Jackie Collins won a $40 million verdict Friday from the distributor of a skin magazine that misidentified her in a photograph as a naked woman at an orgy.

Miss Collins, author of "Chances" and other paperback hits, had sued the Flynt Distributing Co. Inc., owned by Larry Flynt, because of the photo in the magazine Adelina.

A jury of six women at U.S. District Court in Manhattan issued the decision after hearing evidence that the magazine was circulated in defiance of court orders.

"We are confident that the trial court judge will either grant our motion for a new trial or very substantially reduce the verdict to a rational amount," David Kahn, general counsel for Flynt Distributing Co. said afterward.

He said Flynt, publisher of Hustler magazine, distributed Adelina but did not produce its contents. The actual publisher is in bankruptcy proceedings, h said.

Miss Collins, sister of actress Joan Collins of the television show "Dynasty," got a court order curtailing circulation of the offending May 1980 issue, but about 1 million copies were distributed anyway, said Roy Grutman, the writer's lawyer.

The magazine then reprinted the cover, which said the purported photo was inside, in two more promotional advertisements in Adelina despite two more court orders, Grutman said.

U.S. District Judge Henry Werker, who had issued the orders barring circulation of the photographs, ruled before the trial that the woman in the pictures was not Miss Collins. The trial was only on the issue of how much Miss Collins, whose married name is Jackie Collins Lerman, should receive.

Miss Collins, who charged her privacy was invaded, was awarded $7 million in damages compensating for her experience and, in an unusually large award, another $33 million in punitive damages.

She testified during the trial that she was humiliated by the experience, saying it caused headaches, made her so unable to write that she had to turn down a $200,000 movie script offer, and gave her insomnia.

NBC files suit against Corpus Christi cable company

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC said Friday it has filed suit in Texas charging a Corpus Christi cable system with illegally intercepting and transmitting to subscribers the network's broadcast of the Super Bowl football game last Jan. 30.

The network said the signal allegedly intercepted and retransmitted was a "clean" feed of the game to network headquarters here. That is, it did not contain commercials or station promotions.

The federal court suit against the system owned by Athena Cablevision of Corpus Christi, Inc., follows a complaint NBC filed with the Federal Communications Commission last month which accused three cable systems of violating federal prohibitions on unauthorized interception and use of broadcast communications.

EPA planning strategy against dioxin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is for the first time trying to lay out a strategy to deal with the nation's growing dioxin problem, say agency officials.

The strategy paper, still in draft form, is likely to include a national inventory of where the toxic chemical may lie undiscovered; further evaluation of its human health risks; and an evaluation of how dioxin can be safely handled, according to officials involved in putting the document together.

Top EPA administrators began drafting the dioxin plan several weeks ago after it became clear the agency's efforts to handle the problem, although considerable, had suffered from lack of management-level coordination.

"As happens quite often, each individual program in each individual region has been dealing with the problem without a comprehensive strategy," said Steven Schatzow, director of the EPA office of water regulations and standards, which has taken the lead in developing the strategy.

"The agency, frankly, does not have the best mechanisms in the world in terms of this level of coordination."

A draft of a strategy paper is circulating within the agency and a final version may be ready for new EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus as early as next week, Schatzow said.

The problem with dioxin, one of the most deadly of man-made substances, has been brought into sharper focus by the discovery that Times Beach, Mo., and at least 30 other sites in the state are contaminated, and by the finding of dioxin in fish tissue downstream from a Michigan chemical plant, he said.

"To get this level of agency coordination, the problem has to be magnified" in public awareness, Schatzow said, adding that the only other chemical problem to get similar attention has been PCBs.

Schatzow said the report would call generally for an examination of how the EPA can identify where the chemical may lie undiscovered, beginning with a focus on the 13 or more sites where the herbicide 2,4,5-T — of which dioxin is an unwanted byproduct — has been made.

The report also will seek to re-examine the levels of dioxin which the agency will test for in soil and water and at what levels cleanup is warranted, he said. The standard used in soil contamination in Missouri, for example, is one part per billion. But experts disagree on whether there is any safe level of the chemical.

And it will address the question of cleanup — what can be done to neutralize, destroy or isolate the chemical, he said.

Democrats stand firm on primary-caucus battle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic Party is standing firm with its 1984 calendar of primaries and caucuses, telling states to heed the party rulebook.

The party's enforcer, called the Compliance Review Commission, told both Maine and Iowa on Thursday to schedule their caucuses in accordance with the regulations hammered out more than 16 months ago.

The commission rejected Maine's plea to slip its caucuses in two days ahead of the New Hampshire primary. It also told Iowa to hold its caucuses on Feb. 27, 1984, instead of the vaguer "not later than Feb. 27" outlined in the state's delegate selection plan.

Today the commission will consider a staff recommendation to remind New Hampshire firmly that the rules dictate its first-in-the-nation primary be held March 6, 1984 — whatever state law may say.

Iowa state party chairman David Nagle warned the commission Thursday that the rules are causing major problems and that allowing Iowa and New Hampshire to move just a week earlier could ease the pressure, a change that will be voted on by the Democratic National Committee next month.

"In these three states, we cannot live with what you've done," he said. "Seven days are not worth the Armageddon that you are leading the three state parties toward."

The commission is charged with enforcing the party's delegate selection rules, which call for primaries and caucuses to be held in the "window" between March 13, 1984, and June 12, 1984, except for the exempt states. Under specific exemptions written into the rules, the Iowa caucuses are set on Feb. 27 and the New Hampshire primary on March 6.

The idea was to shorten the primary season, but Nagel said that has failed.

"We have not succeeded in shortening the process," he said, citing the straw polls that have proliferated this year.

In addition, Iowa and New Hampshire both now have laws that dictate they shall go "first," with the compromise giving Iowa the true No. 1 position.

Despite the commission ruling, Maine Gov. Joseph Brennan said that state law dictates the precinct and municipal caucuses be held not later than March 4 and that's what will take place.

"We will carry out the law that has been passed," he said.

And Maine state party chair Barry Hobbins hinted that the caucuses might even be held in February, although he would not say so directly.

If Maine goes on March 4, New Hampshire law may dictate moving its event to Feb. 28 and then Iowa would move to Feb. 20. But then all three states would be in violation of party rules.

With such a shuffle, other states might well try to move their primaries earlier in the year. That is exactly the scramble Democratic party officials fear, for it would not only lengthen the primary season, it could also encourage wholesale violations of the other delegate selection rules.

In addition to Iowa and Maine, the commission rejected the delegate plan from Minnesota, citing a variety of omissions.

A father's love is one of life's greatest joys. Though a son or daughter grows up all too quickly, there are wonderful memories of many good times spent together.

Fathers deserve a national day of honor. Look how much they do for their families. They leave home early each morning and come back late, often tired. Their toil in the work places of the world provides shelter, food, clothes, education and a great deal of happiness.

Above all, a real father gives of himself to those he loves through his understanding, kindness, guidance and encouragement.

Our Heavenly Father showed how much he cares for each of us by sending his own beloved son to lay down his life for us that we might have eternal life.

Find the strength for your life in the power of that divine love. Worship this week.

Puppets with Louis and Mary Smith

Kids' Crusade begins Sunday

A Kids' Crusade will be presented Sunday through Thursday at Calvary Assembly of God Church, 908 S. Johnson St.

The crusade features the children's ministry team of Mary and Louis Smith of Marshall and includes puppetry, ventriloquism, magic tricks, cartoon drawings, stories and songs. The Smiths have been involved in children's ministry since 1974.

An ordained minister, Smith attended Southwestern Assemblies of God College, Waxahachie, where he earned a bachelor of arts degree in Christian ministry. Mrs. Smith attended Panola College, Carthage, and East Texas Baptist College, Marshall.

The two have conducted crusades and camps in several states in addition to presenting children's ministry seminars in churches and ventriloquism and magic shows in public schools.

For more information call Pat Homola, 682-4158.

They have also authored a number of one-act puppet plays and have written articles dealing with children's ministry for church publications.

Baptist minister speaks in tongues

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Rev. Boris Rock was born in Russia and raised in Romania. He studied in Germany and then preached in Indiana. But now that he's become a Southern Baptist missionary, he does most of his globe-trotting without ever leaving Pittsburgh.

Most of the estimated 20,000 Southern Baptists who gathered in Pittsburgh for their 126th convention this week were from the South, according to the Baptist Press. But Rock speaks to a different audience.

At Rock's Southern Baptist services on Sunday, you're more likely to hear the hymn "Nearer My God to Thee" sung in Ukrainian than a Southern drawl.

On Sunday afternoons, Rock talks about religion in Russian over a suburban radio station.

On Friday nights, Rock preaches in Hebrew — in the Church of the Brethren in Pittsburgh's heavily Jewish Squirrel Hill neighborhood. And during the week, Rock often hands out tracts in Spanish or Polish.

Rock, 66, was raised in the Eastern Orthodox faith. At 18, he became interested in preaching.

"As a good Orthodox, I was studying about the Baptists only to combat the threat they posed. Baptists weren't recognized as a religion in Romania. They were thought of as a sect," he said recently.

"I learned so much about Baptists that I became convinced they were right — and I joined them," Rock said.

Rock enrolled in the Baptist Seminary in Hamburg, Germany, and later moved to Chicago, where he earned a master of divinity degree from the American Baptists' Northern Theological Seminary.

From 1957 through 1969, Rock was pastor of the Romanian Baptist Church of Gary, Ind. Then, a friend from the German Baptist seminary working with Southern Baptists in Atlanta, the Rev. Dr. Elias Golonko, asked Rock to become a Southern Baptist missionary among Pittsburgh's ethnic groups.

The Southern Baptist Convention represents more than 36,300 churches and nearly 14 million members in the United States, Puerto Rico, American Samoa and the Virgin Islands, according to the Baptist Press.

Southern Baptists make up the nation's largest Protestant denomination and claim to baptize 8,000 converts a week.

The church has missions in more than 100 countries and has foreign-language programs all over the United States for ethnic groups.

But church officials estimate nearly three-quarters of Southern Baptists live in the former Confederacy and only an estimated 300,000 blacks are Southern Baptists. Former President Jimmy Carter is a Southern Baptist.

Minister's daughter converts to Islam after reading books

RELIGION

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Lisolette Rumsey was an active Presbyterian, and her father was a minister. But after only a few hours of reading Moslem books in a library in her native Philadelphia, she decided to convert to Islam.

"I was amazed, the Koran (Islam's holy book) is so comprehensive," said Miss Rumsey, 24, who changed her name to Laila upon conversion. "I went through all the books (on Islam) in the library."

Miss Rumsey is working on her master's degree in Islamic history at Al Azhar University, the premier theological institute in the Moslem world.

She is one of hundreds, perhaps even thousands, of young Europeans and Americans who convert from Christianity to Islam every year, although a comprehensive list of all those who join the world's estimated 800 million Moslems is not known.

There are an estimated 2 million Moslems in the United States.

Those who wish to convert to Islam in Egypt eventually wind up talking with Sheik Abdel Fattah Baraka of the Al Azhar staff. The sheik, wearing the traditional wide robes and turban, questions would-be converts on their knowledge of Islam.

In a recent interview at Al Azhar's main offices, Baraka said he rejected maybe one out of every 10 who he felt was converting for pragmatic, rather than spiritual, reasons.

One case he cited was that of a young European woman who expressed her wish to convert. Although she seemed convinced of Islam, Baraka said she insisted on continuing to live with her husband, who was not a Moslem, and so he rejected her case.

"It would have been pointless unless her husband converted too," he said. Islam does not permit marriage between non-Moslem men and Moslem women, although Moslem men can marry Christians or Jews, referred to by the prophet Mohammed as "People of the Book."

Since Moslem women are not allowed to marry non-Moslems, it is not uncommon for foreign men to convert to be able to marry Egyptian girls.

"If I am convinced of their sincerity and belief, I proclaim them Moslems," Baraka said. The conversion ceremony is simple. The convert repeats the basic doctrine of Islam:

" I testify that there is only one God and I testify that Mohammed is his prophet."

The convert and the sheik fill out forms, and the new Moslem receives a certificate and is welcomed into the faith.

Miss Rumsey said she found it impossible to live as a good Moslem in the United States, especially after she donned the Islamic costume that leaves only the face and hands uncovered.

"The situation for Moslems is horrible in the United States, especially after the Iranian hostages incident," she said. "People were constantly obnoxious."

She said her father had died without knowing of her conversion and her mother had accepted it. However, she said, friends had deserted her, an attitude she attributed to "uninformed hatred and ignorance."

Another convert, Austrian Alfred Huber, said his parents had wanted him to be a Roman Catholic priest. After five years of traveling in Islamic countries and studying orientalism, he converted to Islam. He now teaches German literature at Al Azhar University and is working on his doctorate in Sufia, Islamic mysticism.

According to Islamic law, Moslems who convert to other religions can be punished by death, but few countries adhere to this doctrine.

In Egypt, which has a Moslem majority and Christian minority, it is illegal for Christian priests to seek converts, but Moslems who join other religions are not punished.

The Newspaper BIBLE

"SHE ISN'T DEAD: SHE'S ONLY ASLEEP!"

A man named Jairus, a leader of a Jewish synagogue, came and fell down at Jesus' feet and begged Him to come home with him, for his only child was dying, a little girl twelve years old. Jesus went with him, pushing through the crowds.

As they went a woman who wanted to be healed came up behind and touched Him, for she had been slowly bleeding for twelve years, and could find no cure (though she had spent everything she had on doctors). But the instant she touched the edge of His robe, the bleeding stopped.

"Who touched Me?" Jesus asked. Everyone denied it, and Peter said, "Master, so many are crowding against You...." But Jesus told him, "No, it was someone who deliberately touched Me, for I felt healing power go out from Me."

When the woman realized that Jesus knew, she began to tremble and fell to her knees before Him and told why she had touched Him and that now she was well. "Daughter," He said to her, "your faith has healed you. Go in peace."

While He was still speaking to her, a messenger arrived from the Jairus's home with the news that the little girl was dead. "She's gone," he told her father; "there's no use troubling the Teacher now." But when Jesus heard what had happened, He said to the father, "Don't be afraid! Just trust Me, and she'll be all right."

When they arrived at the house Jesus wouldn't let anyone into the room except Peter, James, John and the little girl's father and mother. The home was filled with mourning people, but He said, "Stop the weeping! She isn't dead; she is only asleep!" This brought scoffing and laughter, for they all knew she was dead.

Then He took her by the hand and called, "Get up, little girl!" And at that moment her life returned and she jumped up! "Give her something to eat!" He said.

Her parents were overcome with happiness, but Jesus insisted that they not tell anyone the details of what had happened.

Church has 'image problem'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) has a "serious public image problem," says the report of a survey.

While the 1.2 million-member denomination is considered part of the mainstream of liberal Protestantism, a Gallup organization survey commissioned by the denomination found that two-thirds of Americans aren't aware of it.

Of those who are aware of it, the survey found an eighth of them identify it with the "Moonies" or some cult.

Lay teachers form new 'order'

CHICAGO (AP) — Lay teachers, who increasingly have replaced nuns in Roman Catholic elementary and secondary schools, amount to a "new religious order," says a study director of the National Opinion Research Center.

William McCready said in an interview with the national magazine, U.S. Catholic, that Catholic schoolteachers now are typically young, single women whose sense of dedication, community, spirituality and commitment mirrors that of nuns who formerly predominated in the schools.

He said the diffference is that the new teachers plan eventually to marry.

Christians discard 'blinders'

NEW YORK (AP) — A Christian scholar says the reality of Israel has "forced the church to take off its ancient blinders" and recognize that "the God the church worships is the God who has made an eternal covenant with the Jewish people."

The Rev. Paul van Buren of Temple University told the American Jewish Committee's annual meeting that the relationship between the church and Judaism "is finally, after 19 miserable centuries, beginning to take on the cooperative character that God must surely have intended for it."

He said establishment of Israel has made Christians realize that "the church of Jesus Christ is nothing other than the community of Gentiles who have been called by the God of Israel to love and serve him."

Fundamentalists begin congress

CAPE MAY, N.J. (AP) — An organization of relatively small, fundamentalst denominations, the International Council of Christian Churches, on Thursday began a two-week world congress.

Its long-time president, the Rev. Carl McIntire of Collingswood, N.J., says it is to call "God's people to separate themselves from the great apostasy" of the major denominations belonging to the World Council of Churches.

Critic attacks RC bishops

COLLINGSWOOD, N.J. (AP) — A long-time critic of major churches, the Rev. Carl McIntire, says U.S. Roman Catholic bishops have "inverted morality" in urging a halt to nuclear weapons expansion.

He says they have "placed life above liberty, men above God and fear above faith."

Local church celebrates 50 years

Alma Marshall

Friday the Primitive Baptist Church of Midland celebrated its 50th anniversary. A Friday evening service kicked off a special series of services which will continue through Sunday.

Constituted June 17, 1933, the church building is now located at 411 W. Shandon St.

Two former pastors will be honored guests this weekend — Elder B.R. Howze of Big Spring, who was pastor from 1943-54, and Elder J.S. Kirkpatrick of Midland, who was pastor from 1954-61. Elder J.E. Barrington, whose father Elder J.A. Barrington was an earlier pastor, has served the church since 1961.

The Primitive Baptist Church has a very simple form of worship.

Congregational singing, followed by prayer and preaching are the worship service. No musical instrument is used in the service and no literature except the King James version of the Bible is used in the preaching service. Communion is observed twice each year by the taking of unleavened bread, the tasting of wine and, finally, the washing of each other's feet.

Visitors are welcome.

Archives planned

The federal government has decided to build a $309 million headquarters for the Australian Archives in Canberrra, the capital, next to the National Library and the National Gallery.

Local educator to speak Sunday

Alma Marshall will address the youth of Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, Adams Street at Kentucky Avenue, at 10:45 a.m. Sunday for Emancipation Day.

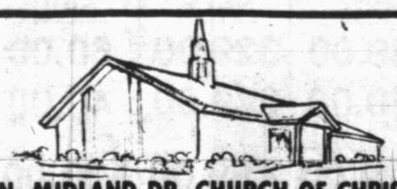

Miss Marshall is head of the social studies department at Goddard Junior High. A veteran educator, Miss Marshall is a recruiter who has traveled in and out of state to attract new black teachers to Midland's school system. In addition, she is past president of the Midland Educators Association.

The Rev. C. L. Boyd, pastor at Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, invites the public to attend.

Indira Gandhi battles relative

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Maneka Gandhi's melodramatic battles with her mother-in-law, which began with a bitter parting 15 months ago, have become front-page, prime-time politics in the world's largest democracy.

The mother-in-law is Indira Gandhi, 65, the prime minister. The ingenue in the drama is Maneka Gandhi, 26, the freckle-faced widow of the flamboyant Sanjay Gandhi and leader of a new oppostion party bearing his name.

Followers of the rivals occasionally clash in the streets. Last month, Delhi University postponed its gradution exercises — reportedly because the prime minister couldn't bear to have her prodigal daughter-in-law receive an award.

Maneka is regarded as a nuisance to Mrs. Ghandhi and her ruling Congress Party, but a real threat to her brother-in-law Rajiv. Maneka intends to run against him, for Sanjay's old parliamentary seat.

Maneka Gandhi became a widow when her husband, Sanjay, younger son of the prime minister and her political heir apparent, died in a stunt plane crash in New Delhi on June 23, 1980.

Mother and widow stood silently together as flames consumed Sanjay's pyre at the River Jamuna, and for nearly two years Maneka remained in seclusion. Her mother-in-law's followers, meanwhile, pulled Rajiv Gandhi, a commercial pilot, into politics.

But on March 19, 1982, Maneka abruptly left the prime minister's house with her baggage, 2-year-old son Feroze Varun, and two dogs.

A letter said to be from the prime minister, accusing the younger woman of "bad language" and "surrounding herself with influences that were exploiting her," appeared in the press the same day.

Maneka responded with a "Dear Mummy" letter, complaining that "as soon as Sanjay died you started literally torturing me in every conceivable way."

"I am not political and have no wish to be, but please let me live my life decently without shouting and abusing me all the time," Maneka Gandhi said in her open letter.

Last month, participants at a Congress Party meeting in Lucknow quoted the prime minister as saying Sanjay's 1974 marriage took place "against my wishes" and that she had "no option but to reprimand" Maneka in 1980 for wearing colorful dresses instead of the traditional white widow's weeds of Hinduism.

The Arab News of Saudi Arabia earlier quoted the older woman as saying her daughter-in-law was installed in her house "by some forces from the very beginning."

Maneka retorted that her mother-in-law had "scant respect for the truth and Sanjay's intelligence." She added that, "I can only conclude from her statements that with advancing age and an erratic memory she is suffering from great mental strain..."

She also chided the prime minister, herself a widow, for "statements that will set back the movement for the emancipation of widows by a century."

In an interview, Maneka said the prime minister has taken to "making up things as she goes along" and reacting like "a mother hen when you attack one of the chicks," the chick being Rajiv Gandhi.

Marriage began Maneka's political education. Sanjay, often criticized for methods that were illegal or ruthless by Indian standards, was described by his widow as "a Western-style politician — he stood for a program instead of hanging around for endless meetings."

To the suggestion that she has learned from her mother-in-law, Maneka once said, "I have lived in the same house for seven years and when you admire a person it's obvious that you try to learn from them."

Italians embroiled in heated debate about sending art to foreign museums

ROME (AP) — The Italian artistic world is embroiled in a highly charged debate: Should Italy "rent" its poorly kept artistic masterpieces to wealthy foreign museums in return for restoration and money?

The mayor of a tiny central Italian town kicked up a storm recently by proposing to lend its best known artwork — a 15th century fresco of the Virgin Mary — to New York's Metropolitan Museum for three months.

The Metropolitan, in return, would restore the work, the "Madonna del Parto" by Piero Della Francesca, and provide an unspecified amount of money to the town of 1,900 people.

The mayor said he got the idea from the Vatican which sent to the United States 237 priceless masterpieces for a 13-month, three-city U.S. tour. To obtain Vatican permission for the exhibition, the U.S. museums and their sponsors restored the art works and provided funds and technical help in establishing a modern art restoration center at Vatican City.

The town council of Monterchi enthusiastically approved Mayor Marcello Minozzi's proposal, but it was later turned down in Rome by Culture Minister Nicola Vernola, whose authorization is needed for export of any artwork.

"The proposal was subject to criticism because it had been conceived not as part of a cultural exchange but for minor economic reasons which the central government could have taken care of," Vernola said. The town authorities claimed, however, that the government had ignored their repeated pleas for help.

Vernola's aides said the approval of Minozzi's request might have opened a "floodgate" of similar suggestions from financially pressed small communities and museums.

The ensuing debate has divided Italian art and museum experts over how Italy should take care of tens of thousands of artworks in disrepair or stored in safe deposit boxes and never seen by the public for lack of space and money.

Birute Vileisis, a top European art expert at the National Museum of American Art at the Smithsonian Institute, said after a recent tour of Europe that some of the important paintings and frescoes in Italy were in "miserable" condition.

"I saw water running down an 8th century fresco in Rome. Another fresco in Todi was ruined because of water dripping from the window," Miss Vileisis said.

"At another place, a poor, uneducated monk who was guiding us poked a finger at a fresco, causing a chunk to fall off. In Naples, I was absolutely appalled at the way some paintings were being handled. Workmen were moving pictures without wearing gloves, and I could see dozens of fresh fingerprints appearing on the paintings."

She said art officials in Milan, Naples and other places told her they did not have any money to hire competent art handlers.

Professor Federico Zeri, a leading art historian, calls the idea of renting artworks "ridiculous and scandalous."

"The fact is that most of these art pieces, like a delicate bottle of wine, do not travel," he said. "This art for money idea is dangerous."

He says irreplaceable artworks should not be exposed to danger inherent in any long-distance travel.

Florence art expert Luigi Bellini disagrees.

"Just think of the benefits," he said. "We can restore these objects, show them to admirers in safe, selected places, and make some money as well."

Government officials say Italy spends about $2 million on museums every year. By contrast, New York's Metropolitan Museum brings in about $4 million every year in admissions alone.

In an effort to provide financial incentives for private initiatives in arts, Italy recently enacted a law that exempts important historial and artistic works from inheritance tax. It also allows expenditure and maintenance and restoration as a tax deduction.

Taking advantage of the law, which brings Italy into line with the United States and other European countries, fashion designer Gianfranco Ferre has contributed 200 million lire ($140,000) to restore Guericino's ceiling fresco inside the dome in the Piacenza Cathedral in northern Italy.

Klansmen held in hanging of black youth

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Charges filed against two Ku Klux Klansmen in the 1981 beating death of a black teen-ager found hanging from a tree "serve notice" that the government won't abide Klan violence, the Justice Department says.

A federal complaint filed Thursday alleged the men killed a black picked at random, because they were angry that a black man was not convicted of murdering a white police chaplain.

Nineteen-year-old Michael Donald was savagely beaten to death and then left dangling from a tree in Mobile on March 21, 1981, "in a classic hangman's noose," authorities said.

Henry Francis Hays, 28, and James Llewellyn "Tiger" Knowles, 19, were charged Thursday with civil rights violations in the crime, which carry a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

Knowles immediately pleaded guilty before U.S. District Judge W.B. Hand in a plea bargain, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Thomas Figures. The plea was made in the judge's chambers because Knowles was a juvenile when the crime was commited, and terms of the plea bargain were not released.

It was not immediately known if bond was set for Knowles; Hays was being held on $1 million bond.

District Attorney Chris Galanos said a special grand jury may be called to consider capital murder charges against Hays.

Dan Rinzel, a Justice Department attorney with the Civil Rights Division in Washington, said at a news conference that the arrests should "serve notice" that the government will take whatever steps necessary to fight Klan violence.

Dr. Robert Gilliard, president of the Mobile chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, called the murder "a lynching" and accused local officials of failing to investigate it thoroughly.

"There is certainly a great degree of resentment that the local authorities did not pursue it," he said. "We're now faced with a situation that federal authorities can charge no more than conspiracy."
