Although a maze of detours still exists at Midland Regional Airport, the construction project there continues on schedule. An up-to-date look is just one of many improvements.

Hijackers order ship to head toward Beirut

Associated Press

Hijackers who seized an Italian cruise ship with 413 people on board forced the captain to steer a course for Beirut today, according to radio reports from Israel and Spain. The hijackers sought the release of 50 prisoners held in Israel and threatened to start killing the hostages unless their demands were broadcast.

Israel radio, quoting Israeli radio monitors, said the ship was heading northeast from the Egyptian coast, apparently toward Beirut. A maritime radio station in San Sebastian, Spain also reported that the captain of the cruise ship Achille Lauro told a nearby warship it was heading for Beirut.

The owners of the ship said there were 413 people aboard, but did not have a list of the nationalities. There were conflicting reports about the number of passengers on board.

Flavio DeLuca, director of the shipping company that owns the vessel, told NBC's "Today" show that a full crew of 350 was on board and "we have on board only 62 passengers." He said about 28 of them were Americans.

The ship's owners earlier had said 78 Americans were passengers, and the Italian Foreign Ministry had said 72 Americans were among the 600 passengers who left the ship in Alexandria, Egypt, before it was hijacked on Monday.

In Cairo, Frank Hodes of Springield, N.J., said his wife, his sister, his brother-in-law and a cousin were still on the hijacked vessel.

A State Department task force was set up in Washington to watch the situation and the Israeli Cabinet met in Jerusalem to discuss the hijacking.

Italian warships and reconnaissance planes were reported headed for the area where the cruise ship was believed located and the military was placed on alert.

The ship docked at Alexandria on Monday and hundreds of passengers got off to tour Egypt, planning to rejoin the ship later in Port Said. The ship embarked for Port Said and was hijacked at sea by a group of hijackers who said they were from a dissident group of the Palestine Liberation Organization, the Palestine Liberation Front.

They demanded release of 50 prisoners held in Israel and threatened to blow up the ship if it was attacked.

Israel radio said the hijackers made radio contact with monitors in Tartous, Syria, today to say they were willing to negotiate only with the Red Cross for release of their hostages.

The Spanish station Onda Pesquera, monitoring maritime radio messages, said the captain reported he could not answer radio messages from other ships in the area because he was under the orders from the hijackers. The radio station quoted the captain as saying the passengers and crew were calm and in good condition.

Israel radio, quoting a ship-to-shore conversation in Arabic between the hijackers and maritime officials at Port Said, said the hijackers threatened to begin killing their hostages unless Egyptian radio broadcast their demands.

That threat was made shortly after the ship was hijacked Monday night, Israel radio said. The report said nothing about a deadline for the broadcast by Egyptian radio.

Earlier, the hostages also were reported to have threatened to blow up the ship if the vessel was attacked.

Senate remains deadlocked on spending bill amendment

By STEVEN KOMAROW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite warnings that Uncle Sam's checks would soon start to bounce, the Senate was deadlocked over whether to attach a budget-balancing amendment to a bill needed to renew the government's borrowing authority.

"I assume we'll be under even more pressure tomorrow," Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole said Monday after another day of failure to clear the amendment he supports.

The government has reached its legal debt limit of $1.824 trillion and, without new borrowing, will begin falling about $20 billion a month behind in its payments.

The cash crunch wasn't noticeable Monday. "The government is going on in an absolutely normal fashion," said Ed Dale, a spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget.

But the Reagan administration insisted that by today or tomorrow it would be out of cash — money that's needed to back government checks.

"All those with government claims — whether Social Security recipients or defense contractors or holders of government securities with interest payments due — would then be unable to have those claims honored," Deputy Treasury Secretary Richard Darman said Monday in a letter to Dole, R-Kan.

Throughout the day, meanwhile, Dole drifted between the parliamentary tangle of the Senate chamber and closed-door meetings. He planned more of the same today, but there was little prospect for speedy Senate action.

The president, in remarks before a group of GOP supporters at the White House on Monday, again called for the Senate to pass the balanced-budget plan and approve the debt increase.

The Senate wrangling was "putting the federal government in an emergency situation," Reagan said. "The business of our nation must go forward. We need the debt ceiling increase passed."

The administration has asked for a new debt ceiling of $2.078 trillion to last through the fiscal year, which started Oct. 1.

Decision anticipated on Panhandle's 'white-oil' operations

By DAVID ELLIOT
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State District Judge Harley Clark could decide today whether "white-oil" operators in the Panhandle Field may resume production.

Lawyers representing the Texas Railroad Commission and gas operators clashed Monday with attorneys for 14 white-oil operators, some of whom the commission banned last week from further production.

The commission began testing Panhandle wells on the basis of a May 13 order that required hydrocarbon liquids to be liquid in the reservoir, liquid in the well bore and liquid at the surface.

White-oil operators use refrigeration, or LTX, units to chill vapors to liquid before bringing them to the surface. But the commission's order requires operators to produce a liquid without the LTX units for well classification purposes.

If the liquid is not produced, the well is classified as a gas well. This distinction is important because an oil well may be drilled on 10 acres, while a gas well requires 640 acres.

At the heart of Monday's litigation was whether the commission was within its rights in enforcing the May 13 order.

On Sept. 13, Clark declared that order "null and void," because the commission did not adhere to rule-making procedures required by Texas statute.

But he also said that based on the "substantive merits of the case, I find no error in the decisions and actions of the commission."

Lawyer Pete Schenkkan, representing Anadrako Production Co. and Pan Eastern Exploration Co., two companies aligned with the commission, told Clark he did not have the authority to "prevent enforcement of a valid statute."

He said because Clark's Sept. 13 "null-and-void" declaration was based upon a procedural — not substantive — issue, then the commission does have the authority to enforce the order.

But lawyers for the white-oil operators said the order should not be enforced. "The Railroad Commission should not be allowed to take a void order and act as if it's totally OK and begin to enforce it," said Bill Boyd. "They're saying this order is somehow almost valid."

Also lawyers representing the gas operators and siding with the commission said white-oil operators were depleting gas operators' reserves.

C.C. Small, representing J.M. Huber Corp., compared the practice with the "slant hole operation" of the 1960s when producers drilled slanted wells in order to take advantage of their neighbors' oil.

Small called the LTX process "a pure attempt at getting someone else's property."

Legal action may result from taping; Sheriff's lieutenant loses job

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

A Midland lawyer said this morning he was considering legal action against the county because sheriff's investigators taped an April phone call in which a Midland County Jail inmate allegedly tried to involve the lawyer in a drug deal.

The sheriff's lieutenant in charge of jail operations was fired Friday after denying knowledge of the tape "when in fact we knew that Dallas Smith had called him and played the tape for him," said Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter this morning.

Painter said Smith, former sheriff, wanted to embarrass Painter's administration. Smith, who lost the 1984 election to Painter, could not be reached for comment this morning.

According to Painter, Lt. Bennie Cureton "admitted to us that he did lie, that he did have knowledge of the tape."

But Cureton this morning denied having lied about the tape, and implied that his firing was part of a gradual "weeding out" of officers who had supported Smith.

"They wanted to get rid of me and they found a way to do it," Cureton said. "I had nothing to do with the tape, I just had knowledge of the tape."

"I'm glad I'm out of it," he said.

The tape of an April conversation between inmate Carlos Ramos and attorney Edward T. Garza fell into the lawyer's hands in early May, according to Garza, who refused to say how he got the tape.

"I took the tape to the FBI," he said. "It concerned me because I don't know what other tactics they would stoop to."

According to Garza, the tape was made at the instigation of former Sheriff's Lt. Roy Harrison. Garza said Harrison had been pursuing a vendetta against him, citing an episode six years ago when Harrison, then with the Midland Police Department, accused Garza of tampering with a witness.

"They didn't even take it to the grand jury. There was nothing there," said Garza, who feels the recent taping incident was "sour grapes all over the place. They just wanted something to hang me on."

Painter, who first learned of the tape from the FBI, conceded it had nothing on it to implicate Garza in any impropriety, but said taping the conversation was legal because "it was done with permission" of the inmate. The sheriff scoffed at Garza's contention that Harrison had it in for him, saying that Ramos approached sheriff's investigators with the suggestion that "he could give us this guy."

"If we have a report that someone is breaking the law, then we run on it," he said. "What bothered me the worst was that the tape made by the Sheriff's Office wound up in the hands of the subject of the investigation."

Harrison, who left the Sheriff's Office Aug. 26, could not be reached for comment this morning.

Painter said he didn't know how the tape got from the jail to Garza, but thinks Smith may be involved.

Wounded police officer changes date, marries in hospital room

HOUSTON (AP) — Lake Jackson policeman John Bailey had planned to be married on Wednesday, but a bout with a burglar over the weekend forced a change in plans.

Bailey and his bride upped the the wedding day by two days and the couple married in his hospital room, where he is recovering from gunshot wounds.

The 31-year-old officer said being close to death made him want to get married sooner. Moving the wedding day was fine with his fiancee Marcy Brown, 30.

The couple was married by a justice of the peace Monday at Hermann Hospital.

Bailey was shot with his own gun in the back about 1:30 a.m. Saturday as he tried to arrest a burglary suspect, Lake Jackson Police Chief P.C. Miller said.

"First he stuck the gun to my head and said he was going to kill me," a weak and frail Bailey said as he sat in a wheelchair.

California man, 36, remains in jail in Ector County drug investigation

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 36-year-old California man, arrested about 10:30 a.m. Monday by Ector County Sheriff's and Odessa police narcotics officers, remained in the Midland City jail without bond today in connection with what is described as the biggest drug bust in Ector County history.

According to Sheriff's Deputy Jim Dixon, officers followed Daniel Thomas Reyes from an East Highway 80 motel and apprehended him in the 2400-block of North Grandview.

Dixon said a search of the Chevrolet Blazer Reyes was driving produced an estimated $900,000 in illicit drugs, four weapons, including four handguns, a mini 14 assault rifle and a sawed-off shotgun, and $12,000 in cash.

The illicit drugs confiscated included about two pounds of cocaine and a half pound of white crystal methamphetamine and quaaludes, Dixon said.

Floods, mudslides destroy Puerto Rican shantytowns

PONCE, Puerto Rico (AP) — Workers dug through the mud and debris of devastated shantytowns early today, seeking more victims of the mudslides and floods that killed at least 55 people and left entire towns cut off.

A major storm passed over the island Monday, dumping as much as seven inches of rain in some places within a 10-hour period. Most major highways were flooded, dozens of bridges were washed out, thousands of people were left homeless and telephone service was disrupted.

There were reports that entire families had died.

Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon declared a state of emergency Monday night and activated the National Guard across the Caribbean island.

"It is obvious that a state of emergency exists and there is cause for extreme concern and necessity to protect life and property," said Hernandez Colon.

The governor flew by helicopter to the Caribbean coastal city of Ponce and met with relatives at the southern regional medical center. The bodies of 47 victims were there, and police said at least eight more people had died in floods and mudslides.

Police spokesman Luis Martinez said at least 15 people died beneath mud and debris in the Mameyes neighborhood, one of several hillside communities of wood-and-tin shacks, some built on stilts, in this industrial city of about 190,000 people.

He said as many as 400 homes in Mameyes, which is less than a square mile in size, were buried by the mudslide.

Twelve people drowned in a shantytown between Tuque Beach on the Caribbean Sea and the Jewel River, which flooded before dawn, said district attorney Edgardo Delgado.

Four police officers drowned trying to rescue a family whose car was swept away by floodwaters near Coamo, police said.

A U.S. Coast Guard helicopter rescued 16 people from a bluff just before it was flooded on the island's western tip, Coast Guard spokesman Steve Eddy said. The Coast Guard called in off-duty personnel and participated in at least nine rescues using its two Puerto Rico-based helicopters, he said.

Police also used helicopters to rescues trapped people.

Delgado said 36 of the 47 corpses had been identified as of late Monday night. Police said some of the bodies were being kept in refrigerated vans in areas cut off by the flooding.

"I have never seen a tragedy so horrible," said hospital orderly Alfred Irizarry.

Thousands of Guardsmen, police and civil defense workers continued to work early today answering distress calls, caring for people evacuated to school shelters, and searching for bodies.

Authorities urged people with missing relatives to notify police, or to come to the medical center in Ponce in an effort to identify bodies.

The National Weather Service said a tropical front that began moving slowly across the 100-mile-long island last Friday finally passed the western tip late Monday.

At 6:30 p.m. Monday the storm was located 600 miles east-southeast of Miami, and was expected to reach southern Florida, possibly on Wednesday, if it continued on the same course.

In Juana Dias, a city of nearly 30,000 just east of Ponce, most residents were without water, electricity and telephone service, Mayor Angel Leon Martinez said late Monday. He said 1,600 people left their homes and took shelter in schools.

Civil Defense officials said more than 2,000 people were evacuated from their homes in other areas, and dozens of people were hospitalized with flood-related injuries.

The Department of Transportation said 32 highways were closed, including much of the island's major turnpike connecting Puerto Rico's Caribbean coast with San Juan on the northern Atlantic coast. At least six bridges were washed out.

Families await word about passengers

LONG BRANCH, N.J. (AP) — Relatives of Americans who had boarded an Italian cruise ship before it was hijacked by Palestinian terrorists anxiously awaited word today on whether their loved ones were safe in Cairo or still aboard the vessel.

Ten passengers, all from New Jersey, were known to be among the 78 Americans who had booked passage on the Achille Lauro. The ship was seized Monday after it left Alexandria, Egypt, and the hijackers threatened to blow it up if Israel did not release 50 prisoners.

The New Jersey residents were on a trip arranged by ABC Tours, said Robert Kantor, whose parents were part of the group.

Kantor said that he spoke early today with Carol Hodes, whose parents went on the cruise, and that she said she spoke by telephone with her father at the Cairo Concord Hotel and was told that six Americans remained aboard the ship.

Frank Hodes reported that his wife, couples from New York City and Union and a Long Branch woman were still on the ship, according to Kantor.

The Lauro Group, owners of the Achille Lauro, said 78 Americans were listed as passengers on the ship, but the Italian Foreign Ministry told The Associated Press that 72 Americans were among 600 passengers who left the ship in Alexandria for a tour of Cairo and the pyramids.

Today in Italy, a spokesman for the shipping line Flotta Lauro said two Americans and one Israeli were among 413 people still aboard the Achille Lauro.

Kantor said he was hoping his parents, Neil and June Kantor of Metuchen, were among passengers who had disembarked for a tour of Alexandria when the ship was commandeered.

"I just heard on ABC News that they're just getting them into Cairo now, so it's possible they didn't have an opportunity to call," he said early today.

"I know my father wanted to go to the pyramids," said Kantor. "I'm just hoping they did."

Kantor, 35, said he has been in contact with the U.S. State Department, but that a spokesman told him the government does not know whether any American passengers were on the ship with the hijackers.

The State Department told Kantor that it was only able to confirm that his parents boarded the boat in Genoa, Italy, and were due to complete the return trip to that country, he said.

"I think what surprises me the most is that the State Department doesn't have a bit of informaition," he said.

Kantor said his parents had arranged to be on the cruise through ABC Tours of Union. There was no answer to ABC Tours' telephone early today.

Soon after the hijacking, the State Department organized a task force to monitor the situation and to provide information to worried relatives.

Last incident 10 years ago

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The seizing of an Italian cruise liner Monday apparently marked the first time in 10 years that a commercial ship was pirated by terrorists, according to a U.S. Naval Academy reference librarian.

On Sept. 26, 1975, the Suehiro Maru, a Japanese freighter, was pirated by a group from the Philippines known as the Moro National Liberation Front, said librarian Ruth Hennesy. The group demanded $133,000 ransom for the ship. They surrendered three days later when a confronted by a Philippine navy blockade at Zamboanga and fired upon.

The hijacking of the Achille Lauro by Palestinians on Monday also is the the second seizure of a luxury liner at sea in recent years.

In January 1961, opponents of dictator Antonio de Salazar hijacked the Portuguese liner Santa Maria as it cruised the Caribbean with 607 passengers, including 44 Americans.

The pirates, led by Capt. Henrique Galvao, seized control of the ship in a bloody gunbattle with officers in which the ship's third officer was killed. After 12 days of aimless cruising in the Atlantic, Galvao permitted all passengers and crew to leave the ship in Brazil. He and his band were granted political asylum there.

The Achille Lauro was seized about 30 miles out of Port Said on Monday.

Word of the takeover came in a ship-to-shore radio report by the hijackers' leader to Port Said at about 4:20 p.m. EDT. The guerrilla said the hijackers were members of the Palestine Liberation Front, a dissident faction of the Palestine Liberation Organizaion.

Trophies given for fire posters

From Staff Reports

The Midland Fire Department kicked off Fire Prevention Week Monday by presenting trophies to the 1985 Fire Prevention Poster Contest winners, whose work is intended to spark an interest in fire safety.

"We're in this business to save lives, and fire prevention is the key to it, really," said Fire Marshall Jerry Petree.

"The week's important in that it reminds us that fire prevention is a year-round job," said Fire Chief James Roberts. "We need to redouble our efforts to educate the public."

Fire prevention techniques include teaching children to roll on the ground if their clothes catch on fire, and running exit drills in the home, Petree said.

"We've set up a display at Midland Park Mall and Dellwood Mall" with various items which were found to have caused fires, he said. "We've got a curling iron we found on a couch which almost totalled out a house."

Petree warns users of space heaters to follow manufacturer's intallation instructions closely, and users of kerosene heaters to use only K1 fuel. Weeds in alleys should not be allowed to grow thickly next to back fences, he said, and fireplaces should be checked and cleaned before folks start using them this winter.

Fire-prevention techniques and smoke detectors are saving lives and property. "But I don't think we'll ever put ourselves out of business," Petree said. "There's always going to be fire hazards."

Poster contest winners included Paul Young, first, Luis Sanchez, second, and Chad Haney, third, in the high-school division; Jeff Sublett, Marcie Del Llano and Chris Myers in the junior-high division; Dana Voight, Tiffani Chambliss and Tiffany Henry in the intermediate division; David Castle, Misti Kennedy and Shanna Gregg in the primary division; and Benny B. Benavidez, Sandra Jackson and Elias Torres in the special-education division.

Tropical storm forms

MIAMI (AP) — A Cape Verde tropical wave grew into tropical storm Isabel early today after it moved away from Puerto Rico, where it hovered for several days, causing flooding that killed at least 55 people, forecasters said.

At 6 a.m. EDT today, Isabel was spinning about 45 mph and was centered near latitude 25 north, longitude 71 west about 400 miles east of Nassau, Bahamas, and 600 miles east-southeast of Miami, said forecaster Gil Clark at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables.

Isabel, moving north about 15 mph, threatened only shipping as it poured rain over the open Atlantic Ocean, Clark said. He said that if it continued on its present course, it would have no effect on the United States.

However, forecasters suspected Isabel might stall and change course within the next day or so, strengthening before once again picking up speed, Clark said.

"Sometimes when they slow down they gain strength, but it's really too early to tell. We're not sure what it's going to do," Clark said.

As a disorganized low-pressure system, the storm spent several days over Puerto Rico, where it dumped as much as seven inches of rain in a single 10-hour period over some southern and central areas early Monday.

It caused flash floods and a mudslide that killed at least 55 people, authorities said. It washed out dozens of bridges, flooded most major highways, disrupted telephone service and left hundreds hundreds homeless.

Wintry storm engulfs Northwest

Associated Press

A winter-like storm packing wind gusts of up to 81 mph surged out of the Northwest and left parts of nine states in the grip of a big chill today that pushed the mercury to record lows, closed the entrances to Yellowstone National Park with heavy snow and threatened harvests.

Up to 18 inches of snow blanketed parts of Montana, Utah, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Nevada, Idaho and the mountains of eastern Oregon. Bitter cold wind made it feel like 20 degrees below zero in some areas.

"Temperatures will continue to drop in many areas, setting new records for the next couple of days," the National Weather Service said Monday.

The weather service said 18 inches of snow was on the ground early today near Utah's Elizabeth Mountain and Mirror Lake.

More snow was forecast today for much of the nine-state area blasted by storm.

"It's not unusual to get snow this early in Montana," said Robert Doherty of the weather service. "But it is unusual to have a storm this big this early."

In Great Falls, Mont., a low of 15 degrees early today broke a record of 18 set in 1966, and Billings' 18 degrees bettered an 18-year-old mark by 10 degrees.

Another record was set in Glacier Park, Mont., where the temperature reached 20 degrees, 11 degrees lower than the 1961 mark.

The unseasonable cold reached as far south as Florida where the temperature dived to 41 degrees in Tallahassee, breaking by 3 degrees a record set in 1932. North Dakota Agriculture Commissioner Kent Jones said the storm could threaten the wheat and sunflower harvests.

TAPE

"All I know is he had it at one point and Garza wound up with it," he said. "Mr. Garza refuses to tell us how he obtained the tape. As far as I'm concerned, it's theft."

Garza claimed his reputation has been impugned, and said he was contemplating legal action against the county.

"Now that the case has been brought to the public's attention, we believe some course of action should be taken," he said. "We may be filing suit against the county."

Cureton, 33, was a 5½-year veteran of the Sheriff's Office.

"Bennie was a good officer," Painter said. "I really hated to see that happen."

OIL

But Boyd argued that white-oil operators had used the LTX process for years, legally. "The Railroad Commission has no authority to change practices and procedures in the Panhandle without first engaging in rulemaking procedures," he said.

Throughout the proceedings Monday afternoon lawyers for the white-oil operators sought to prove that commission officials had not only been aware of the LTX process for years, but also considered it legal. "There's no question the commission staff, from the director on down, knew exactly what was going on," said attorney Ivan Hafley.

Final arguements resumed this morning.

Britain's Conservatives open annual conference

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — The Conservative Party opened its annual conference today heavily guarded against IRA terrorist attacks, and fearing that dismal poll ratings indicate Britons have tired of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's tough policies.

The 5,000 delegates gave Mrs. Thatcher a loud ovation as she arrived in a Victorian conference hall emblazoned with the slogan "Serving The Nation" — an effort by the Tories to soften Mrs. Thatcher's image.

Flanked by party chairman Norman Tebbit, whose wife was paralyzed in an IRA bomb attack at last year's convention, Mrs. Thatcher joined in singing a favorite Tory hymn, "I Vow To Thee My Country."

Polls indicate that Mrs. Thatcher, who has been prime minister since 1979, is increasingly regarded by voters as lacking compassion, and not caring about Britain's record 13.8 percent unemployment.

According to the poll of 733 voters by British Broadcasting Corp.'s "Breakfast Time" television program released this morning, 55 percent thought the Conservatives had done badly since Mrs. Thatcher's second successive election victory in 1983.

Mrs. Thatcher arrived Monday night at her heavily guarded hotel in the northwest resort of Blackpool. Police mounted a huge security operation following last year's Irish Republican Army attack that killed five peole and narrowly missed killing Mrs. Thatcher.

Conservative conferences, unlike those of the fractious opposition Labor Party, are traditionally united in public and respectful of the hierarchy, particularly Mrs. Thatcher.

But after months of running last or near-last in polls behind Labor and a centrist coalition, Tory leaders braced for a tough four-day convention.

Tebbit on Monday blamed what he termed the party's "midterm blues" on a failure "of presentation of our policies."

But some Conservatives said bluntly that Mrs. Thatcher's problems were more fundamental. She won a second five-year term in 1983 on a platform of curbing inflation with tight-money policies, but unemployment has nearly tripled.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Additional loans sought

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The Reagan administration today asked private and development banks to come up with $29 billion in additional loans over the next three years to help developing countries improve their living standards.

U.S. Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III unveiled the proposal at a news conference before the opening of the joint International Monetary Fund and World Bank Conference in Seoul.

To get the money, developing countries will have to adopt new policies "to promote growth and balance of payments adjustment and to reduce inflation," he said.

At the end of last year developing countries were in arrears on $43 billion of their overall debt, which is expected to total $1 trillion by the end of 1985.

Clausen will step down

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The president of the World Bank, A.W. Clausen, said Tuesday he will step down when his term expires next year.

Clausen has said in the past that he wanted to serve a full five-year term, leaving open the possibility of a second term.

"But the development process is a very long-term proposition and I do not delude myself that if I stayed longer then the problems I would bring before you two, three, or five years from now would be any less daunting or any less urgent than those that we face today," Clausen said.

He made the announcement in a speech to the annual meeting of the bank and the International Monetary Fund.

"I have therefore decided that my original decision was sound and that this should be my last address to you the Board of Governors as your president," he said.

Clausen formerly was president of the Bank of America.

Irish will accept rule

LONDON (AP) — Ireland is ready to make a binding commitment to recognize British sovereignity over Northern Ireland for as long a period as a majority of the province's population wishes, Irish government sources said Monday.

The sources, who are close to the Anglo-Irish negotiations for a Northern Ireland treaty, said Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald was prepared to go further than previous Irish governments in making such a commitment. They said Ireland also was willing to write it into the United Nations record to give it international underpinning.

Duarte pleads with press

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (LAT) — The Salvadoran government appealed to reporters Monday to stop reporting details of negotiations for the release of the daughter of President Jose Napoleon Duarte that are taking place by radio.

The request came after journalists monitoring short-wave radios Saturday reported an exchange between Duarte and his daughter's captors. Duarte offered to release 22 political prisoners in exchange for Ines Guadalupe Duarte Duran, her companion at the time of the kidnapping, and 20 mayors who were kidnapped in April.

Tax panel may dry up three-martini lunch

NATION

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, attacking the "three-martini lunch" that many Americans view as a symbol of an unfair tax system, is moving to restrict business' ability to deduct costs of meals and entertainment.

The panel's action, taken Monday behind closed doors as lobbyists for restaurants, hotels and sports teams waited outside, is far from final. Some members said they expect the issue to be raised again before the committee finishes work on a new tax code.

But for the moment, the committee has agreed that businesses should no longer be allowed unlimited deductions for costs of meals and of entertaining clients, including sports and theater tickets.

The panel endorsed President Reagan's conclusion that such deductions are abused and unfair. But members stopped short of accepting the president's proposed changes.

The committee also went against Reagan's wishes on another matter. It agreed to continue the $1-per-taxpayer checkoff for the federal fund that finances presidential elections.

Still awaiting the 36-member panel are the tough issues of tax overhaul, including how low to reduce tax rates, how high to raise the personal exemption, and whether to repeal the deduction for state and local taxes paid.

"We're being lapped by the snails," Rep. Ray McGrath, R-N.Y., said as the committee finished its eighth day of work on Reagan's overhaul plan.

Under current law, a business may deduct reasonable, ordinary and necessary expenses, including the cost of meals, if they are eaten in a place that is conducive to a discussion of business, and of costs of entertaining clients or potential customers.

That law favors a relative few people, the White House complained in recommending change.

"Lunches are deductible for a business person who eats with clients at an elegant restaurant, but not for a plumber who eats with other workers at the construction site," the Reagan administration noted in remarks similar to those sounded by liberal Democratic presidential candidate George McGovern in 1972.

Representatives of the entertainment and food industries said significant cutbacks in allowable deductions would destroy thousands of jobs, actually reduce total government tax collections and force up the price of meals and baseball tickets for ordinary people.

Reagan had proposed that meal deductions be limited to $25 per person plus half the excess above $25. A $40 meal, now fully deductible, would produce only a $32.50 writoff. The committee instead voted to allow a deduction for 75 percent of the cost. A $40 meal would bring a $30 deduction.

Instead of disallowing any deduction for entertainment expenses, the panel voted a writeoff for half the cost.

The showdown on those two provisions came when Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., offered a motion to keep present law. That failed by voice vote.

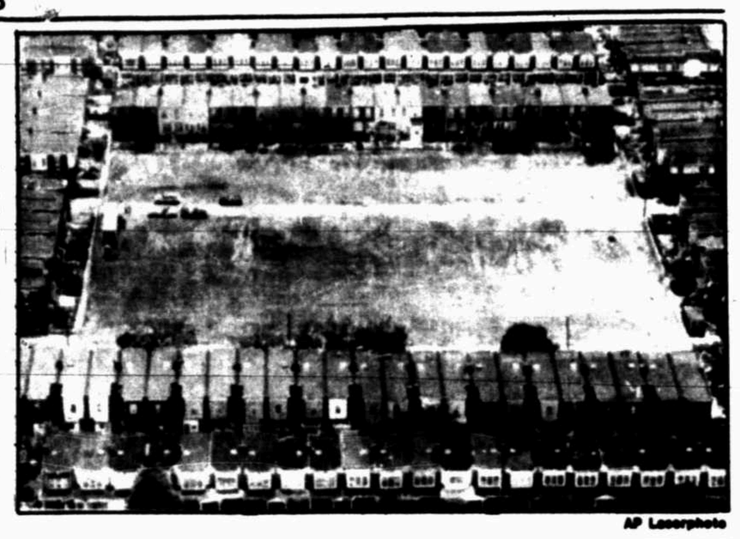

Other votes taken Monday would:

— Continue to allow a taxpayer to earmark $1 of his or her taxes for the presidential election campaign fund ($2 for a couple). Reagan wanted to repeal it. Rep. Henson Moore, R-La., offered a repeal amendment that failed 19-15.

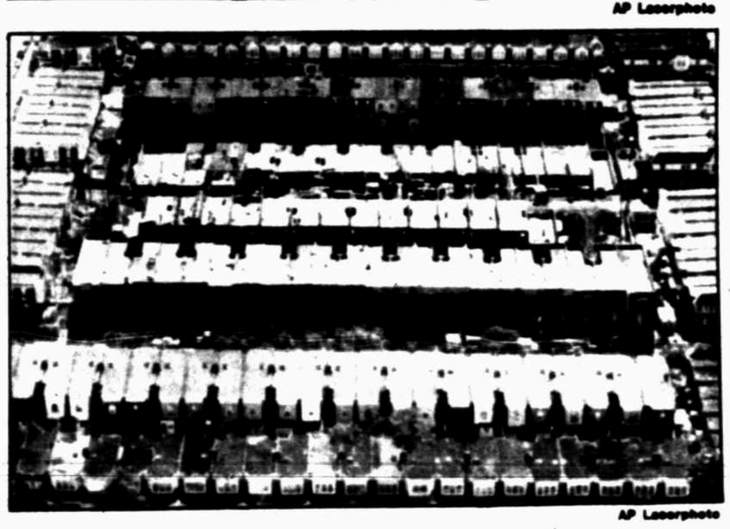

— Make it slightly more difficult to disguise hobby expenses as deductible business costs. Under present law, an activity generally is presumed not to be a hobby if it shows a profit in two of five consecutive years. The committee would change that to three of five years. Several other tests under present law remain.

Rep. Carroll Campbell, R-S.C., won an amendment to continue present-law treatment of horse breeding or racing expenses; they would still be considered a business expense by producing a profit in two out of seven years.

— Keep the law that restricts deductions for use of an office in the home. The deduction would be limited to net income from the business in the home.

Reagan OK'd secret plan to fund rebels

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing loss of congressional support for Nicaraguan rebels early last year, President Reagan approved a secret plan to use assistance from American citizens and U.S. allies to replace CIA funds, current and former administration officials say.

White House officials chose retired Army Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub as the chief fund-raising contact and advised him how to structure the campaign within the confines of neutrality and other laws that bar U.S. citizens from supporting foreign wars, said the sources, who insisted on anonymity.

White House spokesman Ed Djerejian refused comment on Reagan's reported approval of the plan to go outside U.S. government channels to continue supplying the rebels fighting to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist government.

In the past, the White House has insisted it "neither encourages nor discourages" the private fund-raising that sprang up after Congress — angered by the CIA's mining of Nicaragua's harbors — refused to continue military aid to the rebels in spring 1984.

But government sources, including one senior administration official, described the behind-the-scenes White House role in organizing and advising the aid network as much more extensive than has been acknowledged.

The network has allowed the rebels to continue military operations during the 15-month cutoff of direct U.S. assistance and circumvent congressional efforts to shut down the CIA-supported war. Rebel leaders now say they have enough weapons to arm a 30,000-man force, roughly double their current number.

One source, familiar with the program, said the "big three" countries that were expected to help the rebels were Israel, South Korea and Taiwan.

Representatives of those governments denied they helped the rebels. Other U.S. sources said Israel agreed only to sell the rebels captured Palestine Liberation Organization weapons, and aid from South Korea and Taiwan came from private businessmen and an anti-communist organization with close ties to those governments.

Three congressional committees are examining whether National Security Council officials violated a year-old ban against "directly or indirectly" aiding the rebels militarily.

But officials interviewed by The Associated Press maintained that the White House role in establishing the aid network had ended by Oct. 1, 1984, when that ban was enacted. Last summer, Congress voted $27 million in non-lethal aid to the rebels but maintained the ban on lethal U.S. assistance.

National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane has denied his staff violated the ban, but has ignored a congressional request for documents on NSC contacts with the rebels.

As for White House actions prior to October 1984, McFarlane said: "We did not solicit funds or other support for military or paramilitary activities either from Americans or third parties."

Several sources said McFarlane's statement is technically correct because private Americans and third parties in allied countries volunteered help in supplying the rebels.

One source close to the program said the plan for accepting the offers was prepared by Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, a deputy director for political-military affairs on the NSC staff.

Postponement denied; MOVE hearing begins

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The state Supreme Court on Monday rejected the Philadelphia police union's request to postpone a hearing into the MOVE siege, which ended with 11 deaths and 61 houses burned.

A special investigative commission appointed by Mayor W. Wilson Goode is to begin hearings today into the tragedy, in which police surrounded the headquarters of the radical group for most of May 13 before dropping a bomb on the rowhouse.

The Fraternal Order of Police has challenged the legality of the commission, saying police officers who were subpoenaed would be deprived of their constitutional rights since their attorneys would be unable to cross-examine them or other witnesses.

The high court rejected the FOP's request to postpone the hearings until a lower court decides whether the commission was legally created.

Robert Hurst, president of Lodge 5 of the FOP, representing most of the city's 7,000 police officers, said the union would ask the U.S. Supreme Court on Tuesday morning to stop the hearings.

The commission's hearings are to be televised.

"Our job is to determine who was responsible for the decision making and who participated in those decisions," said commission member Bruce Kauffman, a former state Supreme Court justice.

The 11-member Philadelphia Special Investigation Commission was appointed shortly after police, trying to serve arrest warrants on four MOVE members, dropped a bomb on the group's fortified west Philadelphia headquarters.

The bomb ignited a fire that killed seven adult MOVE members and four children inside the house, and destroyed 1½ blocks, leaving some 270 people homeless.

The political future of the mayor, halfway through his first term, and the future of the city's top police and fire commanders could well be affected by the outcome of the inquiry.

"One of the first questions, obviously, is did it have to come to a violent situation," said Henry Ruth, a commission member and former special prosecutor in the Watergate probe.

About 100 people out of more than 500 interviewed are expected to testify at the hearings, which are expected to last about four weeks.

Hurst said he sees no reason the hearings cannot be delayed until the state Commonwealth Court rules on the legality of the commission. The court is scheduled to consider the FOP's lawsuit on Oct. 16.

Commission spokesman Emerson Moran said the first day of testimony would cover police intelligence, life in the MOVE neighborhood before it was ravaged by the fire, and a fatal August 1978 confrontation between MOVE and police.

One policeman was killed and a dozen police officers and firefighters were injured in the 1978 confrontation, which occurred at another MOVE house that was later razed by police. Nine MOVE members were convicted of the policeman's murder.

MOVE members, who described themselves as espousing a back-to-nature philosophy, lived with rats and dogs in homes strewn with garbage and excrement and avoided bathing.

U.S. won't accept jurisdiction of World Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, which is being sued in the World Court over its support for Nicaraguan rebel groups, says it will not fully recognize the jurisdiction of the international tribunal because the court's decisions could damage vital U.S. interests.

The action, announced Monday at the State Department, stems from Nicaragua's charges before the Court that the United States was illegally supporting the Contra rebels who want to overthrow Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

"We believe that the Nicaraguans are supported by Cuba and the Soviet Union," Abraham Sofaer, the department's legal adviser, said. "We believe that the Nicaraguan effort to export revolution is part of a general effort by Communist regimes to take over and undermine democracies."

The State Department announcement said President Reagan had concluded that continuing to accept the court's compulsory jurisdiction "would endanger our vital national interests."

A lawyer for Nicaragua countered that the U.S. move was "an outrage" and demonstrated "contempt for international law and the international judicial system."

Paul Reichler, who is handling Nicaragua's case in the Court, said the Reagan administration had decided to overthrow the Nicaraguan government by armed force. "That doesn't mean the U.S. is somehow immune from answering for its behavior under the law," he said.

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., challenged the administration's decision and said he would work to reverse it.

"Khomeini, Khadafy and all the other world-class thugs who thrive on the rule of the jungle will no doubt welcome this decision," Hatfield said in reference to the rulers of Iran and Libya.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., contended that "pique at Nicaragua is not a valid justification for abandoning our commitment to the rule of law and our opposition to the law of the jungle in international disputes."

"I urge the administration to reconsider this unseemly and unworthy action," Kennedy said.

Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, declared on the House floor that the action "reduces us to the role of international scofflaw....The ideological wagons appear to be drawn in a tighter and tighter circle around the White House."

Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio, criticized the administration's unilateral move, saying, "The Senate had to offer its advice and consent to bring us into the World Court in 1946. Surely Congress has a role to play in any decision getting us out of it."

Since 1946, the United States has agreed to be bound by decisions taken by the Court. That will cease in six months, when the action approved by President Reagan takes effect.

About two-thirds of the nations of the world, including the Soviet Union, France, West Germany, China and Nicaragua, do not accept compulsory jurisdiction of the Court.

Sofaer said cases brought under U.S. treaties with other countries will not be affected. By way of example, he cited the dispute now before an international tribunal stemming from Iran's taking of American hostages in 1979 and the U.S. seizure of Iranian property.

"It does not terminate the relationship of the United States with the Court of Justice," Sofaer said.

A review of U.S. participation in the 15-judge U.N. agency at The Hague, also known as the International Court of Justice, was undertaken at the beginning of the year when Nicaragua filed suit.

The administration tried to keep the Nicaraguan case out of the Court, arguing it was being used as "a political weapon." Sofaer said Nicaragua should have taken its charges, which include U.S. mining of its harbors, to the U.N. Security Council, the four-nation Contadora group which is dealing with Central American disputes or another forum.

NATION IN BRIEF

Overtime not enforced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many of America's lowest-paid workers are being cheated out of overtime pay and minimum wages because the federal government isn't enforcing an important labor law, the General Accounting Office says.

The congressional watchdog agency said in a report to a House labor subcommittee that the Justice and Labor departments often ignore violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act because penalties are light and investigators feel their time is better spent on other projects.

"The maximum penalty for a first conviction — a fine of up to $10,000 — is not considered to be severe by Department of Justice officials, and because of higher priority work, Justice is unlikely to prosecute FLSA violations," said the study, released last week to the subcommittee on labor standards.

The report surveyed Labor Department records in Washington as well as field offices in Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Atlanta, Kansas City, and San Francisco.

Most of the affected workers do piecework in the apparel industry or are employed in light manufacturing.

To help correct the problem, the GAO recommended that government prosecutors routinely seek heavy damage payments in addition to back wages from employers who break the law.

Atlantis flight 'superb'

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Atlantis, the last in the U.S. fleet of four space shuttles, performed "superbly" on its maiden voyage and returned in excellent shape, unlike other orbiters, its commander said.

Atlantis glided onto the hard-packed sand of the Mojave Desert on Monday, ending a four-day Department of Defense mission in which secrecy was maintained to the end.

The viewing site for spectators who gather for shuttle landings was closed, and the visitors' list was restricted to reporters, military staff and workers for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The only fanfare as the orbiter sailed in from space was the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner" from loudspeakers atop NASA headquarters.

Color guard tricked

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Marine Corps was tricked into providing an honor guard for the controversial burial of 16,000 fetuses, saying it was told the color guard was needed for the burial of a Vietnam veteran, a spokesman said.

"They lied to us," Marine Warrant Officer Chuck Henry said Monday, a day the three-man Marine color guard attended a graveside service for the fetuses.

"This organization used the false pretense of the burial of a veteran to mislead our Marines into attending this event," said Henry, the corps' spokesman in the Los Angeles area.

Jean Dreisbach, who coordinated the service for an anti-abortion group called Americans Committed to Loving the Unwanted, denied that the Marines were told the service was for a veteran.

Police ring Farrakhan

NEW YORK (AP) — Louis Farrakhan, the firebrand leader of the Nation of Islam, urged an overflow crowd of 25,000 at Madison Square Garden to seize economic and political power and called for a renewal of pride and righteousness among American blacks.

During Farrakhan's three-hour speech Monday night, police ringed the square-block Garden, vastly outnumbering about a half-dozen protesters who waved signs from across the street.

Man says he helped mother hide body

ATHENS (AP) — Robert Branson II says he was protecting his mother by not telling police he helped her drag a body out of her house and hide it under a mock wishing well.

Branson, 23, was testifying Monday as the capital murder trial of Betty Lou Beets got under way. Mrs. Beets is accused of slaying two of her five husbands and burying them in her yard.

She is on trial only for the slaying of Jimmy Don Beets, her fifth husband, and testimony was scheduled to resume today. A trial is pending in the 1981 death of her fourth husband, Doyle Wayne Barker.

Branson told jurors that his mother asked him to leave the house Aug. 5, 1983, so she could kill Beets, a Dallas Fire Department captain who was asleep in their bed.

"I was shocked that she said she was going to do it," Branson said. "I did not know for sure she would kill him, but I suspected that she would."

He said that when he returned, "she told me she wanted me to help her drag the body outside. I walked to the back door and there was a zipped sleeping bag with a body in it. The two of us took the body out the back door and put it in the wishing well."

When asked why he never said anything to police about his stepfather's death, Branson said, "because I was protecting my mother."

E. Ray Andrews, Mrs. Beets' attorney, said his client pleaded innocent to the charges, but he declined to make any opening remarks Monday.

Mrs. Beets, 48, is accused of killing Beets, a 26-year veteran of the Dallas Fire Department, to collect on his retirement benefits and life insurance policy.

Authorities found his body in June, buried under a mock wishing well and flower bed in the front yard of Mrs. Beet's mobile home near Gun Barrel City in Henderson County.

Mrs. Beets, who is being held without bond in the Henderson County Jail, is also charged in the 1981 shooting death of Barker, 42, whose body was found the same day buried in her front yard under a storage shed.

District Attorney Billy Bandy told jurors that after killing Beets, "she set his boat afloat on Cedar Creek Lake with the engine up and propeller missing."

Court rules state can regulate homes

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A sticky church-state battle that raged for six years has ended in victory for the state of Texas, which can now regulate church-operated homes for troubled children.

The U.S Supreme Court, citing the lack of a "substantial federal question," on Monday let stand a Texas Supreme Court ruling of last Dec. 19 that said three of those homes could not operate without state licenses.

"It means the state will now regulate it and see the children's best interests are looked after," said Elna Christopher, spokeswoman for Attorney General Jim Mattox.

The homes — Rebekah Home for Girls, Anchor Home for Boys and Lighthouse Home for Boys, all founded by the late Rev. Lester Roloff of the People's Baptist Church — receive no local, state or federal aid.

The state sued the church in 1979 after it refused to have the homes licensed and regulated by the Texas Department of Human Resources, now the Texas Department of Human Services.

A trial judge in 1981 ruled in favor of the church and a state appeals court upheld the ruling in 1984. But the Texas Supreme Court reversed the ruling and the church appealed.

Bill Wood, spokesman for the Texas Department of Human Services, said the agency will wait for notification of the Supreme Court ruling.

"Then we'll give them an opportunity to apply for the licenses and assist them in applying for them so they'll be in compliance with state law," Wood said. "When that will be I don't know.

"There are many other church-related institutions that are licensed. They'll be treated like anybody else," Wood said.

Roloff, the Baptist preacher who died in a plane crash in 1982, went to jail and briefly closed the homes, sending boys and girls home rather than to succumb to state regulations.

In 1979, he transferred management of the homes from Roloff Evangelical Enterprises Inc. to the People's Baptist Church to avoid state licensing requirements.

But then-Attorney General Mark White sought an injunction against Roloff, to either get state licensing or close the homes.

"The issue is not whether People's Baptist is performing a service that falls beneath licensing standards. The three homes have a good record of high quality service," the Texas Supreme Court said in last year's ruling.

It added, however, that "governmental regulation may lawfully impose an incidental burden on otherwise protected religious conduct."

In the appeal settled Monday, church lawyers said the state court ruling, "if allowed to stand, will destroy an ongoing and beneficient resource, and promise chaos in the lives of the children and families involved."

The church also operates two other adult homes, not involved in the suit, on 600 acres outside of Corpus Christi. In all, about 500 children and adults are at the homes.

The residents are recovering drug addicts or alcoholics, runaways, abused children or those from broken homes.

Wiley Cameron, who was named pastor after Roloff's death, did not return telephone calls made to the church by The Associated Press.

William Ball, a Harrisburg, Pa., attorney handling the church's case, was not in his office and his associate, Philip Murren, did not return calls to The AP.

In 1979, Roloff, in court to fight the licensing requirement, explained why he transferred the ownership of the homes to the church.

"We decided the ministry of the church is to take care of the people in need. We felt we could have greater protection," he said. "The church has a protected area that nobody else ought to have."

Five-year-old girl found, reunited with father

MILAN, Ga. (AP) — A 5-year-old girl who disappeared Christmas Day 1981 was found and reunited with her father, who said "she seems to be fitting in real well" since returning home.

The girl's mother, who had been living in Texas under assumed names, was arrested for investigation of kidnapping, said Dallas County sheriff's spokesman Jim Ewell.

Brandy Nicole Long was reunited on Saturday with her father, James Tyrus Long, 32, and flew home Sunday to Milan, Ga., Ewell said.

"She just fits right in place," Long said. "A lot of news people have been taking her picture and she is just eating it up."

The girl's mother, Sherry Long DuPlain, 30, was held Monday at the Dallas County Government Center jail for women in lieu of $25,000 bond on a Georgia arrest warrant charging her with kidnapping, Ewell said.

He said the woman surrendered Saturday at an arranged meeting in the parking lot of a downtown Dallas hotel.

Long, who was awarded custody of Brandy in 1982, said he had trouble convincing law enforcement officials to search for his daughter until Telfair County Sheriff Ronnie Walker took office in January 1985.

"Walker did a super job," he said. "If it hadn't been for him, I doubt my daughter would be home today.

"When he became sheriff, the ball really started rolling. He got a lot of people working on the case."

Long said federal laws do not adequately protect a parent whose child has been kidnapped by another parent.

"I would like to see more laws passed," he said. "Parents should not be allowed to kidnap their children. It should be a crime."

STATE IN BRIEF

Salvation Army officer removed as head of store

DALLAS (AP) — The Salvation Army officer who has run the charity's $3.25-million-per-year Dallas thrift store operation for the past decade has been stripped of his post, officials said Monday.

The suspension of Maj. Lairon "Larry" T. White came amid allegations that merchandise donated to the local adult rehabilitation center was diverted to private benefit.

The charity has yet to complete the internal review that will determine what, if any, further action will be taken against White, said Col. Bramwell Tillsley, chief secretary for the group's Southern Territory headquarters in Atlanta.

White's permanent replacement has already taken charge of the Dallas operation, Tillsley said, adding that White will remain suspended with pay pending a final decision by the head of the Southern Territory.

Youth shelter too small

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County officials say problems at the Children's Emergency Shelter have forced some children to be turned away, and commissioners urged county and state officials to work together to correct problems.

The Community Council of Greater Dallas gave the commissioners the results of a study that recommended expansion of the shelter and additional staff hirings. The report also suggested the children be further segregated according to age and behavior patterns.

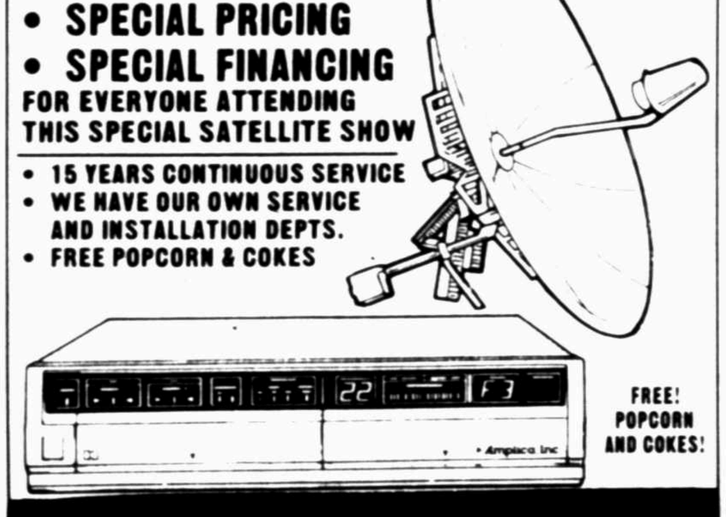

Community groups have complained for months that children are turned away from the shelter because of overcrowding. But county officials said Monday that some children are instead turned away because they pose a threat to other children. Officials said the real problem is a lack of foster homes for troubled adolescents.

Accident kills 71 cattle

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A hit-and-run driver is being blamed for an accident that demolished a tractor-trailer truck loaded with 165 head of cattle and left nearly half of the animals dead.

The driver of the tractor-trailer, Joseph Pantalion, 22, told police he was traveling west on Interstate 410 when a "wrong-way semi" struck his truck and caused it to overturn. Police today were searching for the second tractor-trailer.

Seventy-one head of cattle, on their way to a Uvalde feed lot from Bryan, were killed, 80 survived and 14 still were unaccounted for late Monday, police said.

Good riddance

When Congress created the National Institute of Education 13 years ago, the federal agency was charged with bringing about "the reform and renewal" of American education through research and development. In recent days, the U.S. Department of Education dismantled the NIE, which by most accounts has been a dismal failure.

It is fitting that Chester Finn Jr. presided over the agency's demise, inasmuch as he was largely responsible for its birth. As a young White House aide in 1970, Finn persuaded then-President Richard Nixon and the Democratic-controlled Congress that the research agency could do for education what the National Institute of Health had done for medicine.

Instead of spurring the nation's schools to greater heights, however, the NIE became a federal boondoggle that squandered more than $800 million on largely pointless research projects.

A case in point was the NIE's $6 million study of elementary education, which came to the obvious conclusion that children tend to learn more about a subject if they study it longer. The agency also awarded $79,661 to the Educational Testing Service to study how selected Missouri school districts could better lobby for more money. Another researcher was given a $119,584 two-year grant so he could study the legal tactics used by lawyers in student-rights cases.

Numerous reports denounced the meaningless agency as a drain on the federal treasury, and Congress steadily pared the institute's budget. In 1975, the Senate voted the NIE a zero budget, but the agency's supporters in the House bailed it out with a $75 million appropriation.

During the last four years, the NIE came under concentrated fire for its profligacy. When Finn was appointed several months ago as an assistant to Education Secretary William Bennett, he promptly begin to reorganize the institute out of existence.

From now on, research funded by the Education Department will be confined appropriately to projects that shed light upon specific problems plaguing the nation's schools. This long-overdue reorganization will disturb those academic hucksters accustomed to feeding at the federal trough. But it should please the taxpayers.

Rite of passage

For Walter Polovchak, formerly of the Soviet Union and now of Chicago, becoming 18 years of age on October 3 was an event more significant than for most of his peers. It meant that he is his own man and that he can apply for the U.S. citizenship which has been his goal.

Walter has been the pawn in one of the most celebrated custody fights in history. Walter and an older sister were brought to this country from the Ukraine by their parents five years ago. Dissatisfied with American life after only a few months, the parents elected to return to the Soviet Union.

In those few months, however, Walter became so captivated by his new surroundings that he resisted, with the help of other relatives, his parents' determination to take him back to the Ukraine. As he put it at the time: "I've lived in both countries. You don't have to be smart, you don't have to be a certain age to tell the difference."

A long battle ensued, eventually involving the American Civil Liberties Union. The ACLU represented the parents who have long since resumed Soviet life. Appeals courts recently affirmed the parents' rights to decide where Walter should live but his "coming of age" has now put him beyond their jurisdiction.

The U.S. should welcome Walter to the citizenship he manifestly has earned after so much emotional and legal turmoil. In the meantime, perhaps Walter and his saddened parents can achieve a reconciliation that will make their future less combative.

Another View: Debtor discipline

Three years ago, Mexico set off an earthquake that shocked the financial world — the debt crisis. Now a natural earthquake reminds the world that the crisis isn't over. The good news is that Washington is now willing to consider new remedies for debtor countries, and to turn its emphasis from austerity to growth.

That change will be visible this week, as financial leaders from 149 countries assemble in Seoul for annual meetings of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank. While debtor countries have shown some growth under austerity required by the IMF and banks, living standards still lag and debt-service costs are overwhelming.

Latin Americans alone still owe $350 billion. Seeing no end, they seem finally to have conveyed their frustration to some of their principal creditors and the Reagan administration. To keep pulling their belts ever tighter will not necessarily restore economic health, certainly not soon, but will jeopardize their political health. Mexico exemplifies the economic point; Peru the political peril.

Mexico was a success story until just a few months ago. But even before the earth shook, oil prices fell, inflation revived, capital fled, and corruption endured. Banks have now granted a temporary reprieve on interest payments because of the earthquake; eventually there must be a new deal.

Peru's debt is much smaller, but its poverty and pugnacity pose a different threat. With democracy restored, a popular new president has unilaterally suspended interest payments, put a lid on future payments and indicated he would rather pull out of the IMF than accept its harsh medicine.

Washington, meanwhile, has become newly sensitive. Under Treasury Secretary Baker and Secretary of State Shultz, there is willingness now to help more. Expectations may have been overstimulated by advance reports of official thinking. The loan window isn't about to be flung open. But the administration has stopped being an ogre. For years it lectured others on financial rigor, flagrantly ignoring its own advice. With America's foreign debt fast overtaking the field, a showing of concern for the pain felt elsewhere was in order.

Probably the most presentable way to do that is by stressing growth. That approach costs more money. The administration wants it to come from the World Bank and the IMF, perhaps collaborating, and commercial bank lending backed by World Bank guarantees. It also wants new funding through those agencies for desperate African countries.

Reorienting international institutions and expanding commercial credit will take time. The debtors' problems may worsen unless economic growth speeds up in industrial countries. They may, as in Mexico, worsen anyway. The debtor countries will have to discipline themselves; triple-digit inflation doesn't breed economic security.

For their part, creditors must continue to stretch themselves to reduce immediate financial strain on debtor countries, by lower interest rates, for instance, and prolonging current loans — not just by piling on more debt.

Mengele's dead — or is he?

WASHINGTON — In the face of a U.S. pronouncement that Josef Mengele is dead, we had the temerity last June to suggest that the notorious Nazi war criminal might possibly be alive and thumbing his nose at the world. Our suspicions have now been heightened by intriguing new reports.

Jack Anderson

First, let us concede that the evidence of the death-camp doctor's demise is impressive. Forensic experts have examined some bones from a Brazilian grave and concluded that they are Mengele's remains. Their findings are supported by letters and other documents provided by Mengele's family, plus the testimony of those who purportedly knew him in Brazil.

Yet some of our intelligence sources still are not convinced. The medical evidence, they say, is cumulative but not specific. The documents and testimony don't always jibe with other, more authoritative evidence.

They can't shake off the tantalizing suspicion that the evidence of Mengele's drowning in 1979 could have been manufactured as part of an elaborate hoax to throw off his pursuers.

Just as several governments were closing in on Mengele, with millions of dollars in reward money on his head, the 1979 grave suddenly gave up its bones. The timing was too convenient to satisfy some Mengele hunters. Besides, they say, he was an accomplished swimmer.

Now here are the latest reports:

— The Israelis have refused to close their file on Mengele and have sent an expert back to Brazil to review the evidence.

— A source close to the Israeli investigation confided to us that the Israelis have obtained a 1982 letter in Mengele's handwriting. If the letter can be authenticated, he could not have drowned in 1979.

— Both Israeli and American intelligence agencies have picked up reports of Mengele sightings in Paraguay in the 1980s. The latest was an August 1984 CIA dispatch that "unconfirmed sightings of Mengele were reported in Paraguayan border cities."

— The CIA also learned from members of Paraguayan dictator Alfred Stroessner's staff that "Mengele sent correspondence, including Christmas cards, to them from Portugal until late 1980." He reportedly traveled back and forth between Portugal and Brazil.

— Some Israeli authorities, according to a source who has talked to them, believe Mengele is alive today, hiding in Paraguay.

— Secret CIA cables, meanwhile, report that Mengele has been trafficking in drugs under the alias "Enrique Waldman" or "Henrique Wollman."

Like the Israelis, we have not yet closed the books on Mengele. We have assigned our associate Lucette Lagnado to spend full time trying to determine whether he's dead or alive.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: The recent Soviet-British retaliatory "spy" expulsions have stirred up long-festering gripes by eager beavers in the U.S. Foreign Service; most are in the State Department, but there are also specialists from Defense, Commerce and Agriculture stationed at U.S. embassies. They're all aware that assignment to the "glamour" posts in the Soviet Bloc is the best way to climb the career ladder, but for years they've been complaining that the staffs of these embassies are overloaded with CIA personnel. The spooks, masquerading as "straight" diplomats, fill the limited openings at the genuine diplomats' expense.

WATCH ON WASTE: The Pentagon winces every time there's a new revelation of some spare part or other piece of equipment that was purchased for several hundred times what it would have cost at the corner hardware store. Each service branch is constantly updating its computerized lists of parts, manufacturers and costs — but the computers are taking over. An Air Force spokesman admitted it would cost $20,000 to print out the list of 850,000 to 1 million parts now stored on computer discs. In fact, if the Army, Navy and Air Force were to combine their 1985 parts printouts in one place, they would fill nine typical rooms from floor to ceiling.

EVANS & NOVAK
Regan lacking political finesse

WASHINGTON — Spontaneous sympathy for Margaret Heckler from former colleagues in Congress well to her ideological right did not reflect admiration of her work as secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) so much as aggravation over Donald T. Regan's style as White House chief of staff.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

The consensus in the House GOP cloakroom agreed with Regan that liberal Republican Heckler never should have been named to the Cabinet and did not grow in the job. Yet, conservatives were outraged at how both Heckler and President Reagan fared in the incident. They saw it as what happens when a senior staff post is invested with prime ministerial authority.

That has been Don Regan's problem since moving from Treasury to White House eight months ago: doing the right thing the wrong way. Reaganites who ought to be applauding the chief of staff's ideological support of the president instead grumble over his tendency to act more like the Wall Street barracuda he once was than the Washington politician he must be.

The appointment of Peggy Heckler to the Reagan Cabinet, unjustifiable on grounds of either experience or ideology, could not happen now that Regan has supplanted the old senior staff triumvirate at the White House. Haphazard selection of Cabinet members in the president's first term peaked with Peggy.

Ed Rollins, then White House political aide, was seeking administration jobs for Republican congressmen defeated in 1982 — such as Margaret Heckler of Massachusetts. He spotted for her a tertiary post as congressional liaison officer for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). An offended Heckler protested it was too trivial.

Helene von Damm, then the administration's personnel chief, next proposed Heckler for the HHS vacancy. Longtime Reaganite Lyn Nofziger, a friend of Heckler, was incorrectly described as recommending her for the Cabinet; in fact, he suggested an assistant secretaryship somewhere. But Heckler was supported by Richard Darman (then a powerful senior presidential staffer), who excused her anti-Reagan rhetoric in the 1982 campaign as politically necessary.

Heckler at HHS proved no better than Cabinet colleague Don Regan had imagined. He perceived a competency falloff in the Cabinet's "lower half" — especially HHS. When he entered the White House last February, Regan was set on a new face there but did not want to rush into housecleaning.

The mistake, whether Regan knew of them or not, were anti-Heckler leaks starting from the White House in August to prepare her for sacking. She should have been called into the Oval Office. Instead, the leaks triggered a Heckler counterattack. Armed with typed-up "talking points," she prowled Capitol Hill corridors in September in search of support.

Several calls resulted, including a pro forma testimonial from Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole. Sen. Orrin Hatch, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee whose former aide was a top HHS official, pushed hard for her on grounds she had accomplished major savings in runaway Medicare costs.

Senatorial intervention proved counterproductive with Regan, the former CEO who recently told a group of senators he considered them a "board of directors." More leaks of Heckler's imminent departure were followed by a distressed Ronald Reagan bearding reporters in the White House press room to deny what everbody knew, that she had been fired.

Congressional GOP cloakrooms rumbled that the president was not being protected. At breakfast with Republican senators last week, Reagan cited the GOP's so-called 11th Commandment ("thou shalt not speak ill of another Republican") in connection with the 1988 presidential race. Sen. Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota coldly remarked that the commandment should have been applied to Heckler, adding that HHS had been giving senatorial offices lots better service than the White House.

Herein lies the crux of Regan's problem. He confided to outside political advisers last spring that he would not waste time massaging congressmen and journalists, as did his predecessor, James A. Baker III. He since has increased such efforts, but the end product is identical. Even Rep. Vin Weber, who headed the president's re-election campaign in Minnesota, cannot get Regan to answer his phone calls.

One longtime Reagan insider believes the Heckler fiasco was a proper decision executed fecklessly because the president draws regular advice only from his chief of staff, who is not widely exposed beyond his own inner circle. Gentle shedding of Peggy Heckler should not have been difficult for a man of Regan's intelligence. He only needs a little political finesse that would be suggested by returning Vin Weber's phone calls.

CHARLEY REESE
'Johnny One Notes' tiresome

Johnny One Notes annoy me. A Johnny One Note is a person who sings the same song no matter what number the song leader calls out. They are tiresome folks.

Charley Reese

A recent column of mine on the trade deficit awoke a bunch of One Noters. The union-basher, for example, blames the trade deficit on American unions. You name a problem and he will blame the unions.

Tagging unions with causing the trade deficit shows you just how silly One Noters are. Only a shrinking quarter, at most, of the American labor force is union and a lot of those are government employees. American union workers, however, are more productive than most foreign labor. Productivity, you see, doesn't depend on the worker but on how much capital is invested per worker. Furthermore competitiveness in productivity does not translate necessarily into competitiveness in pricing. The real world and the textbook seldom match. Finally, our most heavily unionized industries such as steel and autos don't do much exporting. Most American-based car companies have plants in foreign countries which, unlike us, have domestic content laws.

Another One Noter is the consumerist. If you put up trade barriers, he hollers, the consumer will be penalized by having fewer choices and by having to pay higher prices.

The problem with this tune is that nobody is just a consumer. Most of us are workers and consumers and how much we can consume depends on how much we can work. The consumers in the unemployment lines do not benefit much from the wide choice of imports and cheap prices. Being on the dole limits their choices to necessities and makes practically everything higher than they can afford. Moreover those cheap imports aren't so cheap when you factor in the extra taxes those of us with jobs have to pay to provide some minimum care for the people the imports put on the dole. The Congressional Budget Office estimates 1 percent of unemployment costs $28 billion to $35 billion in federal expenditures. Add your share of that to your Hong Kong radio and see how much it really costs.

Another One Noter is the Free Trade Ideologue. He screams, "The rule's the rule and circumstances be hooted." Tom Jefferson, whose IQ and education far exceeded that of any ideologue, said that a policy of free trade or of protective tariffs depends on the circumstances and that a wise nation will employ one or the other at the appropriate time to fit the situation. That works for me. I've never met an ideologue yet who had enough common sense to fill up a midget's shoe.

Another One Noter is the guy who says the answer is buy American. He's well-intentioned at least but he has gone to the bawdy house to sing gospel songs. There are, for example, no "American" car companies. American Motors is owned by Renault of France. General Motors owns nice hunks of Isuzu, Suzuki, and Daewoo. Chrysler has bought equity in Mitsuibishi. A number of "American" cars aren't really American-made cars at all. They are made in Japan. On the other hand, Volkswagen, Nissan, and Honda do make vehicles in the U.S. and GM and Toyota have a joint venture to make cars in a California plant. In today's world of international corporations and international money, it's not easy to buy American.

The best way to approach a problem is to start where you want to end up and work backwards. What situation do we want? I suggest that we want a healthy American economy in which everyone who wants to work can and can work at a liveable wage. That means we have to have a healthy manufacturing sector. That, not playing games with accounting terms like surplus and deficit in trade accounts, should be our focus.

When you focus on that goal, you can see it makes no difference whether a company goes out of business because of imports or goes out of the country to find cheap labor. The end result is the same: Loss of American jobs. On the other hand, when a foreign company builds a plant in America, that creates jobs.

Let's create jobs for Americans — and let the One Noters sing to the accountants and statisticians.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history:

On Oct. 8, 1871, the Great Chicago Fire began in Mrs. O'Leary's barn. However, the popular story that a cow had kicked over a lantern was untrue. By the time it was over, the fire had claimed more than 200 lives and burned more than 2,100 acres.

Thought for today: "The first half of our lives is ruined by our parents and the second half by our children." — Clarence Darrow, American lawyer (1857-1938).

Cardinal QB Neil Lomax found himself running scared most of the night as the Redskin defense returned to menacing form.

Forget the obituary; Cards 'Skinned alive

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON — Hold the flowers. Cancel the obituary notice. The Washington Redskins live.

Faced with what Coach Joe Gibbs called "as much a must-win as I've been a part of" after losing three of their first four games, the Redskins got back into the race for the NFC East they've won three straight times by beating the St. Louis Cardinals 27-10 Monday night.

Washington won the National Football League game with dominating performances from its offense, defense and special teams.

The ground-oriented offense got 104 yards from George Rogers and 103 from John Riggins and the defense picked off five passes and registered four sacks, three by Charles Mann. And the maligned special teams, blamed for a 45-10 loss in Chicago last week, didn't allow the Cardinals to start a series beyond their own 26 until the fourth quarter.

"We needed to win and we needed to play well more than at any time in the last five years," an ebullient Gibbs said. "I felt we played as well as we can play."

"IF YOU put the emotion of this football team on a scale of 1 to 10, we were 11 tonight," said quarterback Joe Theismann, who completed 11 of 20 passes for 83 yards and two touchdowns and bootlegged 14 yards for a third score.

The emotion was there from the start for the Redskins.

After St. Louis went 1-2-3-punt from their own 16 following the opening kickoff, Ken Jenkins returned Carl Birdsong's punt to the Cardinal 49 — only the second time in five games that the Redskins had started on an opponent's side of midfield.

Six plays later, on fourth-and-one at the 14, Theismann faked to Riggins, stuck the ball on his hip and rolled in for the first score while 11 Cardinals chased after Riggins.

On the next series, Mel Kaufman recovered a Roy Green fumble on the St. Louis 25, leading to Mark Moseley's 33-yard field goal and a 10-0 lead.

The Cards never really got back in the game.

Neil O'Donoghue kicked a 22-yard field goal early in the second quarter to cut it to 10-3, but the Redskins countered with a 56-yard drive consisting of eight runs and a 10-yard TD pass to Gary Clark and it was 17-3 at halftime.

MOSELEY KICKED a 29-yarder in the third quarter and, after Ottis Anderson skirted left end for a 10-yard score following a Rogers fumble early in the fourth quarter, the Redskins sealed the game on Theismann's 12-yard scoring pass to Clint Didier following Rich Milot's interception.

Lomax, who had thrown just three interceptions entering the game, had four passes picked off. The Redskins, who had only two in their first four games, got a fifth off reserve Scott Brunner.

"I wanted to make a big play all the time," said Lomax, who was finally forced from the game with a pinched nerve when he was hit by Mann. "I forced some balls I shouldn't have thrown."

"Our guys obviously wanted this game as badly as the Redskins did and they were trying as hard as they could," Cardinals Coach Jim Hanifan said. "But the key was the pressure their defensive line put on us. Our offense couldn't generate stuff early in the game and they wound up with terrific field position and were able to get the lead."

The win still left the Redskins behind their three main rivals in the highly competitive NFC East. At 2-3, they trail the Cardinals and Giants by a game and the Dallas Cowboys by two.

"I HOPE this sets the tone for what we can do," said the 36-year-old Theismann, who entered the game ranked 12th of 13 quarterbacks in the NFC and had taken much of the criticism over the first four weeks.

"I think this team found itself and has seen its potential."

Longer series greets Jays, Royals

By BILL CENTER
Copley News Service

TORONTO — Best-of-seven has a nice ring. That's the way World Championships are determined.

Until today, however, the League Championship Series that have been with us since baseball divisionalized in 1969 were always played in five-game quickies.

"I never liked five-game championship series," Kansas City Royals manager Dick Howser said Monday. "It seemed as if you were unlucky once you were in real trouble.

"The best team has a better chance of coming out on top in a seven-game series."

Also the team with the better pitching. Possibly the Kansas City Royals.

At least that's what the pre-series scouting reports indicate as the Royals of the West and the upstart Toronto Blue Jays of the East set to open the American League Championship Series today in the Canadian province of Ontario. The National League's division winners, Los Angeles in the West and St. Louis in the East, will open their series Wednesday night in Los Angeles.

THE BLUE Jays, of course, have a chance to make history. No team from outside the United States border has ever won a World Series. This is the second-to-the-last step for a franchise that didn't even exist a decade ago.

But Kansas City, too, is looking for a first World Series banner. Although the Royals won the A.L. West for the sixth time in 10 years last week, they have been a part of only one World Series and were defeated 4-2 by Philadelphia in that 1980 Fall Classic.

And when the teams face off for the first time tonight at Toronto's Exhibition Stadium, the lines will be drawn off as a match of Kansas City's pitching against Toronto's hitting, speed and defense.

Kansas City has enough pitching to tip the scales in the Royals' favor.

"Turf Wars" is the way it's being billed — the first ALCS to be played entirely on artificial turf. After games here tonight and Wednesday afternoon, the scene shifts to Kansas City for games Friday, Saturday and, possibly, Sunday. If more games are needed, it's back to Canada next Tuesday and Wednesday.

ON PAPER, everything seems to favor the Blue Jays.

In addition to having the home-field advantage, Toronto hit for a higher average (.271 to .251), scored more runs, stole more bases, made fewer errors and even had a lower staff earned average than the Royals during the American League season.

The Blue Jays even won eight more games than the Royals, 99-91.

But in head-to-head meetings, the Royals had a 7-5 edge and their left-handed oriented starting rotation gave the Blue Jays fits.

Toronto was 24-26 overall against left-handed pitchers this season. That was good compared to the 0-5 mark the Jays piled up against Kansas City's lefthanded starters Charlie Leibrandt, Bud Black and Danny Jackson.

Those three combined for a 1.97 earned run average against Toronto. In addition to forcing such powerful left-handed Toronto hitters as Rance Mulliniks and Willie Upshaw to the bench in favor of right-handed hitters, the trio has had exceptional luck with the two left-handed hitters (outfielder Lloyd Moseby and catcher Ernie Whitt) left in the Blue Jays lineup.

When the ALCS opens, it will be Leibrandt, a former Cincinnati Reds farmhand, on the mound for Kansas City against Toronto ace Dave Stieb. Although Stieb again led the league in earned run average, his performance tailed off toward the end of the season.

WEDNESDAY IT will be former Black pitching for Kansas City against Jimmy Key. Although Black was only 10-15 on the season, he seemed to regain command of his pitches in the last week as the Royals once again turned back the challenge of the California Angels.

If Kansas City breaks even in Canada, the Royals will have a distinct advantage at home. On Friday, the Blue Jays must face A.L. Cy Young Award favorite Bret Saberhagen — at 21 the fifth-youngest player in baseball history to win 20 games in a season.

Then on Saturday, when Toronto manager Bobby Cox toys with the possibility of pitching Stieb with three days rest, Kansas City will come back with fire-bailing Jackson.

If the starting pitching isn't enough, Kansas city third baseman George Brett is swinging a bat hot enough to single-handedly neutralize any edge Toronto might have on offense.

Over the last six games, Brett hit .500 with five homers (including two inside-the-park) shots and drove in 11 runs. The spirt pushed him to .335 on the season with a career-high 30 homers and 112 runs batted in.

AND SHOULD the game go down to the final outs, Kansas City has the league's premier relief pitcher in submarining Dan Quisenberry, who led the league a fourth straight year with 37 saves.

But all that has to be balanced against the Toronto attack paced by outfielders George Bell, Lloyd Moseby and Jesse Barfield — an outfield considered the best in the game.

"I want to say Kansas City would win it because of their pitching," said Minnesota Twins manager Ray Miller, a former pitcher himself. "The Royals pitching can shut Toronto down and Kansas City doesn't make many mistakes.

"But Toronto's got the better talent. Toronto."

"It depends on what happens up top," said Detroit's Sparky Anderson. "If Toronto gets people at the top of the order on base, someone in the middle is going to drive them home.

"They're a lot like we were last year. The only difference is we probably had more power."

The Blue Jays would certainly like to emulate the Tigers of 1984. Detroit won the World Series in a five-game blitz of the San Diego Padres after taking the Royals out in three straight."

"Who knows what might have happened in a seven-game series?" Howser joked recently.

Who knows what will happen?

Position-by-Position

Here is a position-by-position breakdown of both teams:

FIRST BASE — Kansas City's Steve Balboni hit 36 homers and drove in 88 runs this season, but he also struck out 166 times. He is among the slower regulars in baseball and no one's perfect fielder.

Olympian breaks barrier with Trotters

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Lynette Woodard, the captain of the United States gold medal-winning 1984 Olympic basketball team and holder of the NCAA women's career scoring record in basketball, was selected Monday to be the first woman ever to play for the Harlem Globetrotters.

"It's a wonderful feeling. I'm so excited I can't hide it," Woodard said after the announcement was made. "I'm here, there's a lot to be learned, and I'm ready to work hard. I have the basic skills to be a part of this team. I'm just going to blend in and let it flow."

Woodard, 26, is a 5-foot-11 guard from Wichita, Kan., who attended the University of Kansas and is the top career scorer in the history of the school, men or women.

AMONG THOSE who attended Kansas is Wilt Chamberlain, who toured with the Globetrotters in 1959 before beginning his outstanding National Basketball Association career.

Woodard, who scored 3,649 points as a collegian, beat out nine other women who have been trying out for the Globetrotters, a touring exhibition team whose athletes provide comedy on the court as well as exceptional play.

She said she had thought about playing for the Globetrotters at times during her life, "but it had never been on the horizon, so to speak."

However, she said, she saw something about the Globetrotters going coed in a newspaper nearly a year ago.

"My immediate thought was, 'You don't have to look any further,'" she recalled. "I got on the phone right away and called the Harlem Globetrotters organization and they said it was for real."

WOODARD SAID she had no idea how much she would play, and hadn't signed a contract yet.

"I usually take one step at a time," she said. "I'm here now, we're getting ready to start work. Each day, I'll learn a little more. There's a lot to learn and I'm geared up for that.

"We haven't had a chance to deal with that (a contract). We'll get around to it. I feel like they'll treat me fairly. It will take care of itself. I'm not going to worry about it."

The Globetrotters have been in existence since 1927 and have appeared live before more than 100 million people in 101 countries and before millions more on television. They open their 60th season Oct. 17 in Brisbane, Australia.

The Globetrotters, whose past stars include Marques Haynes, Goose Tatum and Meadlowlark Lemon, have won about 16,000 games and lost less than 400, playing mostly for laughs against their foils, the Washington Generals.

Their last loss was Jan. 5, 1971 at Martin, Tenn., 100-99 to the Generals.

THE GLOBIES played before the largest crowd in basketball history, 75,000, on Aug. 22, 1951, at Berlin's Olympic Stadium.

Also selected as a Globetrotter rookie Monday was 22-year-old Ernest Aughburns, a 6-8 center-forward from the Bronx, N.Y., who attended Tulane University. The addition of Woodard and Aughburns left 12 players on the Globeotters' roster.

"I'm glad I made it," Aughburns said. "It's always been a dream of mine. As a child growing up, I watched them on TV a lot."

Other women who tried out for the Globetrotters in Charlotte, N.C. this summer, were twins Pam and Paula McGee, both of whom attended Southern California; Cheryl Cook, University of Cincinnati; Rosetta Guilford, Cheyney, State (Pa.); Sandra Hodge, University of New Orleans; Candy Lucas, University of North Carolina-Charlotte; Lori Scott, Louisiana Tech; Joyce Walker, Louisiana State, and Jackie White, Long Beach State.

Rankin's improvement shows in big win

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

If there were any area teams getting big heads out there, last weekend's games surely brought them back down to earth.

In a pair of surprises, the area's two unbeaten teams both went down to defeat last Friday, and both fell to schools in lower classifications. Greenwood, now 4-1, was upset by Class 1A's Rankin, 19-14, and Crane, 4-1, was toppled by its neighbor to the south, McCamey, a 2A school, in a convincing 16-0 whitewash.

The Rangers loss was by far the most surprising given the records and past history of the two teams, but a myriad of factors played into Greenwood's tumble from the unbeaten ranks. The most prominent of which is the obvious improvement of the Red Devils, now 3-2.

Coach Dwayne Turner's Devils, down in the dumps the past two years with small and less talented senior classes, are coming back alive in '85 with a better group of athletes and a lot of hard work. After a 28-0 trouncing by Eldorado on opening night, Turner has coaxed three wins and a one-point loss out of his youthful team.

THE FIRST signs of improvement came in the second ballgame when fullback Randy Fulton showed an ability to break loose for big-gainers in a 16-10 win over Sterling City. Then, in a 21-20 loss to Forsan two weeks ago, the Red Devils proved they could move the ball on offense without an injured Fulton, thanks mainly to the running of quarterback Mick McCravey. When Fulton returned against Greenwood, Rankin had a double-edged threat in the offensive backfield.

And when Greenwood, riding high on a four-game cakewalk through 1A opponents, took the Red Devils for granted and failed to execute in the kicking department, the Devils took every edge they could find and staked themselves to an early lead.

Trailing just 7-6 at the half, the Rangers, who were celebrating their homecoming, still couldn't get back on the track that had seen them outscore their opponents 162-6 in the first four games.

"They lined us up and physically whipped us," said Ranger coach Joe Longley. "Our kicking game went to pot. We made too many mistakes and we played with no emotion. It certainly let the air out of our balloon."

Now with Wall, 0-5, coming to town, Greenwood has no time to feel sorry for itself. The Hawks' record hides the fact that they have played a much tougher pre-district schedule than Greenwood. Wall entered district play with a similar winless mark last season before whipping the Rangers 25-14 to begin its journey to a second-place district finish and a playoff spot. Longley expects Wall to contend again this season.

"OUR KIDS have to think about making a new committment, (the loss) was probably a good lesson for our kids," Longley said. "I don't feel we have the type of kid who will look arond and panic, though.

"From now on, every time we step on the field will be a test for us. And Wall's record is not indicative of the kind of team they have."

Rankin is still more than a week away from its district opener, hosting Klondike Friday. Klondike is suffering through a winless season so far and has yet to put a point on the board.

The Red Devils will face a real test on Oct. 18 when they travel to Iraan, 5-0. The Braves have been unstoppable this season, rolling to a victory margin of 204-13 and three straight shutouts.

AREA RUMBLINGS: The McCamey Badgers, 4-1, have vaulted themselves to the forefront of the District 8-2A race with their impressive shutout win over Crane. The Badgers have now won four straight games after an opening loss to Iraan.

Coach Buster Leaf brings his team back to earth quickly when district play begins Friday when preseason favorite Reagan County comes to visit. Senior quarterback Nandy Zarate, who was injured in the first game and has seen sporadic action since, is slated to get the call for McCamey this week...

In Big Lake, the Reagan County Owls, 3-2, are licking their wounds in more ways than one this week, after a tough 22-20 loss to Sonora Friday. The Owls also lost third-year quarterback Bobby Gunnels who went down with a knee injury in the first half. Coach Ronnie Reeger said Gunnels will be lost for the season.

Sophomore Scott Lipsey, Reagan County's No. 1 receiver, now becomes the signal-caller. Tailback James West is still nursing a sore shoulder but should see action in the district opener Friday...

Stanton's coach Dale Ruth is just happy to be looking forward to a District 8-2A game after taking a 37-0 lashing by Seagraves Friday. The Buffaloes, 2-3, travel to face defending district champ Eldorado, 2-3, a 16-13 loser to previously winless Ozona Friday.

Ruth welcomes back senior quarterback Kevin Glaspie who went down with a knee injury in the Crane game, and receiver Mark Gonzales after a one game absence. The Buffs hope the senior pair will help rejuvenate their passing game...

In Andrews a 1-0 district mark looks better than 0-1 which is where Lamesa, 4-1, 0-1, is sitting. The Mustangs, 2-2, 1-0, return home for another District 2-4A contest with Pecos, 3-1, 0-1.

Junior fullback David Criswell sparked a resurgence of the Mustangs' ground game Friday with a 135-yard performance on 21 carries.

Lillis ousted; Tanner next for Astros?

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — When the Houston Astros tried to reassign former coach Don Leppert earlier this season, he balked and called the Astros "too nice," a team more interested in decorum than winning.

New Astros General Manager Dick Wagner must agree.

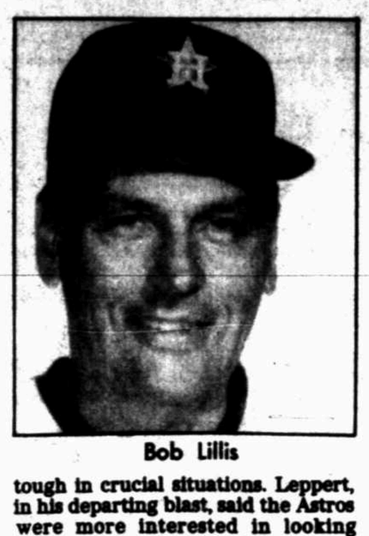

Wagner, in the midst of a housecleaning, swept aside the No. 1 nice guy Monday by firing Manager Bob Lillis and offering him a front office job.

On a team filled with nice guys, Lillis may have been too nice for his own good.

"You can't blame a guy if he can't change his personality," Astros outfielder Kevin Bass said. "When Flea (Lillis) went out to argue with an umpire, it was from the heart. But to be a manager, you've got to have a little Billy Martin in you to get the respect of the umpires."

Wagner said the change was a necessity.

"I don't want to be critical of Bob, but the fact that Houston played at the .500 level over three years was a big part of it," said Wagner, who took over Sept. 14 as general manager. "We've got to look for a team that is more aggressive on the field."

Bob Lillis

THE ASTROS have often been criticized as a team too passive to get tough in crucial situations. Leppert, in his departing blast, said the Astros were more interested in looking good in a hotel lobby than playing tough baseball.

"I wouldn't say the makeup of this team is timid or mild. We've just got a lot of nice people here," catcher Alan Ashby said. "Sometimes it's necessary to have someone light a fire under all of these nice people and get them to be a little more aggressive and mean."

Wagner offered Lillis a job as head of baseball operations, which he described as "a behind-the-scenes job, one of substance and importance to the Astros."

He gave Lillis a week to consider the offer while rumors started about Lillis' replacement.

Chuck Tanner, fired as Pittsburgh manager Monday, reportedly is among those being considered for the job.

LILLIS, 55, took charge of the Astros Aug. 10, 1982 when Astros owner John McMullen fired Bill Virdon. Lillis led the Astros to a 28-23 record the rest of the season.

Houston finished third with an 85-77 record in 1983, second at 80-82 last season and tied for third this season with an 83-79 record.

Lillis has been with the Astros organization since its inception. He was chosen in the 1961 expansion draft and played six seasons for the Astros.

He spent five seasons in various capacities in the minor leagues before becoming an Astro coach in 1973.

"Bob Lillis is a fine man," Ashby said. "I feel bad for him. He did all he could do to make us a winner. He did a lot of good things but unfortunately the performance of some of the players cost him his job."

Astros pitcher Bob Knepper isn't sure the Astros need a fire-breathing manager to whip them to a pennant.

"You could say he should have come down on us when we were going bad in July," Knepper said. "But we are professionals and should go out and do our jobs."

THE ASTROS were only 8-18 in July and fell far back in the National League West.

Bass said he agreed with Wagner's goal of increasing the Astros' aggressiveness.

"I think we were conservative on the bases this season," Bass said. "We didn't have the freedom. You'd get a hit and we'd be tied or behind and we never ran."

Tanner, the ever-optimistic manager who guided the Pittsburgh Pirates to a world championship and three second-place finishes in nine years, was fired as part of a shakeup that will put a local public-private partnership in control of the team.

Tanner said the decision was "mutual," but made it clear he was ousted not by current club President Dan Galbreath, but by the new ownership group.

Ex-blue chipper says Tech gave cash, gifts

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A former schoolboy football star says he was given cash as well as use of a rental car and a motel room while being recruited at Texas Tech.

Chris Pryor, a former Judson High School running back, told the San Antonio Express-News in a copyright story Sunday he got the gifts from assistant coach Rodney Allison and three Tech boosters.

Allison, now an assistant coach at Duke University, did not answer calls The Associated Press made to his Durham, N.C., home Sunday night and early today.

Pryor said Tech Head Coach Jerry Moore had no knowledge of the alleged recruiting irregularities before he signed with Tech Feb. 8, 1984.

PRYOR SAID Allison and one of the boosters promised him and Judson teammate Chip Lambert a pair of Tony Lama lizard boots if they signed with Tech. Allison had the two athletes measured for the boots on their first visit to Lubbock, Pryor said.

"I called Coach Moore thinking that he had known about everything that was going on, but he didn't know anything," Pryor said.

Moore, when contacted about Pryor's allegations, said, "This is the first I've heard of any of this. I don't even remember a conversation like that."

Pryor set a 5A high school record when he rushed for 2,800 yards in 1983 at Judson. But he lost his scholarship with Tech after failing to graduate with his class in May 1984.

HE LATER received his diploma and signed with Texas A&I, playing there briefly before quitting school during the 1984 season. Pryor returned to A&I in January, but dropped out of school before the spring semester.

He now is working part time for a soft drink company in San Antonio.

Lambert never enrolled at Tech and later joined the Army. He is stationed in Germany.

"This is not to get Tech in trouble and I hope I don't offend anybody associated with Tech or Coach Moore, especially," Pryor said.

Hawkeyes, OU hold on to top spots; Michigan climbs

Associated Press

Iowa and Oklahoma remained 1-2 today in the Associated Press college football poll while Michigan continued its steady climb toward the top, moving into third place.

Although this week's 20 ranked teams are the same as last week's, there was considerable shuffling, notably Southern Methodist's fall from third to 16th, Ohio State's drop from fifth to 15th and LSU's skid from eighth to 20th.

Top Twenty

Iowa celebrated last week's No. 1 ranking, its first in 24 years, by waiting until the final 27 seconds to defeat Michigan State 35-31 on a 2-yard touchdown run by Chuck Long, who also passed for four touchdowns and 380 yards.

The Hawkeyes received 34 of 59 first-place votes and 1,137 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. Oklahoma, a 41-6 winner over Kansas State, was runner-up for the fifth week in a row. The Sooners received 14 first-place votes and 1,106 points.

HOWEVER, SMU'S 28-6 loss to Arizona knocked the Mustangs out of the Top Ten. Michigan jumped from seventh to third with seven first-place votes and 1,037 points by trouncing Wisconsin 33-6. The Wolverines, who were not ranked in the first three polls, have been 19th, 12th, seventh and third in the last four weeks.

Florida State, which was idle, held onto fourth place with three first-place votes and 993 points, while Oklahoma State climbed from sixth to fifth with the remaining first-place ballot and 896 points by defeating Tulsa 25-13.

Arkansas vaulted from 10th to sixth with 806 points by drubbing Texas Christian 41-0, Florida blanked LSU 20-0 and shot from 11th to seventh, idle Penn State moved up from ninth to eighth with 745 points, Nebraska rose from 12th to ninth with 656 points by trimming New Mexico 38-7, and idle Alabama went from 12th to 10th with 650 points. Alabama visits Penn State this Saturday.

The Second Ten consists of Brigham Young, Auburn, Air Force, Tennessee, Ohio State, SMU, Texas, Georgia, Baylor and LSU.

Last week, it was Florida, Alabama, Nebraska, Auburn, BYU, Tennessee, Air Force, Georgia, Baylor and Texas.

Ohio State suffered its first loss of the season, bowing to Illinois 31-28.

Two Koreas may co-host '88 games to avert boycott

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The national Olympic committees of North and South Korea meet today to consider whether to stage the 1988 Seoul Olympic Games in both parts of the divided nation and thereby avert a threatened Communist boycott.

The two-day meeting, convened and chaired by Juan Antonio Samaranch, President of the International Olympic Committee, is also due to resume the long-stalled negotiations on forming a single all-Korean team to compete in the Olympics.

The IOC chose Seoul as the site of the 1988 Games at its congress in Baden-Baden, West Germany, in September 1981 despite warnings from Soviet bloc members that they might not be able to take part because they have no diplomatic relations with South Korea.

NORTH KOREA expressed resentment at the worldwide prestige boost the Games would bring to South Korea. During the past four years, Pyongyang repeatedly has hinted it plans to urge its Communist allies to stage another boycott of the Games in 1988, following their boycott of the 1984 Los Angeles Games.

Earlier this year, North Korea formally proposed that the 1988 Games be jointly hosted by both Koreas in return for a guarantee against a new boycott.

Samaranch urged the two rival Olympic committees to meet at the IOC headquarters here with himself as mediator to find an amicable solution. Also to represent the IOC at the meeting were Vice Presidents Alexandru Siperco of Romania and Berthold Beitz of West Germany, IOC Administrator Raymond Gafner of Switzerland and Sheikh Fahid Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah of Kuwait, president of the Olympic Council for Asia.

SAMARANCH earlier told reporters that the 1981 decision awarding the Games to Seoul was "final and irrevocable," but said some "arrangement" might be worked out with the agreement of the two Korean Olympic committees.

The IOC Charter states explicitly that the Games, held in a different host country every four years, can only be awarded to a single nation in any one Olympic year. But IOC officials said this rule might be "adapted to circumstances" if the two Koreas reach an agreement at their meeting here and provided the four-year-old Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee (SLOOC) remains in overall charge of staging the Games.

The IOC recognized South Korea immediately after World War II, when the North was still under Soviet military occupation. In 1957, four years after the end of the Korean war, the IOC accepted North Korea as a separate member of the Olympic family. Repeated IOC efforts since then to persuade the two Koreas to compete as a single team have failed.

Samaranch said he would try again at the Lausanne meeting, in addition to discussing the co-hosting.

THE TWO delegations were led by Kim Chong-Ha, president of the South Korean National Olympic Committee, and Kim Yu-Sun, President of North Korea's national committee.

Upon his arrival in Lausanne last week, Kim Yu-Sun said his delegation "will propose and seriously discuss ... the joint hosting of the 1988 Games and will take a sincere approach to any proposals, no matter who may submit them, if they are conducive to the strengthening and development of the Olympic movement ... and the re-unification of Korea."

South Korean Foreign Minister Won-Kyung Lee said during a visit to New York Friday that his government might allow "one or two events" — which he did not specify — to be held North of the 38th parallel, provided they remained under SLOOC control. If North Korea and the IOC were satisfied with such a solution, he said, "we will be happy to accommodate them."

BUT HE described North Korea's proposal for an outright co-hosting of the Games as "impractical and unacceptable."

IOC sources said South Korea was willing to allow some preliminary competitions and unofficial demonstration sports to be staged in the North, while Pyongyang has demanded the right to organize some of the key Olympic events, including the marathon.

In his arrival statement Friday, Kim Chong-Ha did not repeat his earlier hints of a Communist boycott of the Seoul Games. There were some indications that the Soviet Union might be unwilling to join a new boycott even if the Games are staged exclusively by South Korea.

Some of the leading Communist sports nations, particularly East Germany and Hungary, are known to have joined the 1984 boycott only reluctantly and are believed to have warned Moscow they might step out of line if the Soviet bloc decides to boycott Seoul.

Lasorda tabs Fernando

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Experience guided Los Angeles Dodger Manager Tommy Lasorda to his decision to tab left-hander Fernando Valenzuela to start in the opening game of the National League playoffs.

"It's not a tough decision," Lasorda said. "I want to pitch Fernando first. When the playoffs start, forget about all the records and stats. He's been through this before."

Valenzuela, a 17-game winner this season, will be matched against St. Louis Cardinals' left-hander John Tudor, 21-8, in Wednesday night's opener.

Valenzuela, 24, has a 2-1 record and a 1.96 ERA in three Championship Series starts, two in 1981 against the Montreal Expos and the other against the Philadelphia Phillies in 1983.

While Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog contemplated loading up for Valenzuela, 17-10, by starting a lineup of right-handed hitters, Lasorda predicted the best-of-seven matchup with St. Louis will be "a very, very exciting playoff."

"The Cardinals are the best in the league in hitting and in defense," he added. "And they have two 21-game winners. St. Louis is a very, very good team."

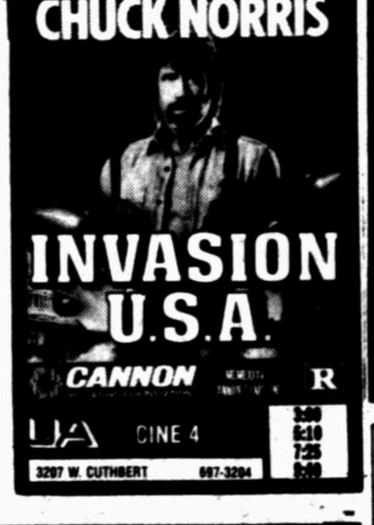

The series figures to match up contrasting styles of winning baseball.

"They have the speed and we have the power," said Dodgers outfielder Mike Marshall, whose 28 homers ranked second behind Pedro Guerrero's club-leading 33.

The Cardinals will be led by the National League's leading hitter, Willie McGee, who batted .353. Their primary weapon will be their team speed.

VETERANS
Own your share of Texas, if you served in the Armed Services for at least 90 days, and entered from Texas, or if you've lived here for five consecutive years.
Horseshoe Bend on the Colorado is a great opportunity for groups of five or more to come together and secure substantial riverfront property—and all the seclusion and recreation that brings.
Horseshoe Bend has it all—homesites of ten or more acres, all but seven on the Colorado River...convenience to Austin...abundant wildlife...ponds and greenbelts... good roads.

ALCS— Bad news continues; Frogs QB Ankrom lost

Toronto's Willie Upshaw slumped to .275 with 15 homers and 66 RBI this season. He is a much better glove man.

Slight edge to Kansas City.

SECOND BASE — Kansas City's Frank White, a 13-year veteran, gets better with age. He hit 22 homers this season. At 35 he remains one of the best fielders in the league.

Toronto's Damaso Garcia might be one of the few better fielders. This year he hit .284 and drove in 66 runs as the leadoff hitter. He also stole 28 bases.

Even.

SHORTSTOP — Kansas City's Buddy Biancalana and Onix Concepcion are weak hitters and average fielders. Both give way frequently to pinch-hitters.

Toronto's Tony Fernandez hit .289 and had 31 doubles in his first full season. He makes some exceptional plays, but he also made 31 errors.

Edge to Toronto.

THIRD BASE — Kansas City's George Brett might have been the hottest hitter in the game at season's end (five home runs, including two inside-the-park homers, in the final week). He was healthy all year for the first time since 1979. He had 30 homers but is tough to strike out. He hit .336 and led the AL in slugging percentage.

Toronto has the best platoon tandem in baseball this year, Garth Iorg against left-handers and Rance Mulliniks against righties. Mulliniks hit .294, Iorg .314. They combined for 17 homers and 93 RBI. As a combo, they rank statistically behind only Wade Boggs and Brett.

Big edge to Kansas City.

LEFT FIELD — Kansas City's Lonnie Smith was acquired early in the season to give the Royals some speed on the bases. He hit only .257 and is becoming worse in the field. The Royals' lead off man was not hot down the stretch.

George Bell has become Toronto's offensive leader, with a .275 average, 28 homers and 95 RBI. He also stole 21

WASHINGTON (AP) — Yields on short-term Treasury securities rose for the second straight week in Monday's auctions.

Report says Texas loan program misses target

DALLAS (AP) — A low-interest, subsidized home loan program designed for needy families has actually been benefitting middle-and upper-income buyers, according to the Dallas Morning News.

The newspaper, in a copyright story in today's editions, said the city-subsidized mortgages financed the purchases of homes in an exclusive residential development near downtown.

"It's a ripoff of the taxpayer," said John Fullinwider, a member of the board that oversees the city's Housing Finance Corp. "There is such a gap between the announced intention and the results that you just have to call it a fraud.

"It is sold with the rationale that it will help low- and moderate-income people," said Fullinwider of the mortgage subsidy program. "But I've probably met half a dozen people recently who told me with a sheepish grin they bought their homes under the program; and these are professional people, they're not low- and moderate-income people who are struggling for a place to live."

Carol Barcellona, president of Fox & Jacobs' Specialty Division, said she sold four Bryan Place houses costing from $113,000 to $126,000, and two condominiums, financed with $1 million in the below-market interest mortgages.

The newspaper reported that a month-long investigation found the city, Dallas County and the state of Texas have financed more than $500 million in low-interest loans in recent years that benefitted relatively few of the lower-income families and "target" neighborhoods for which Congress designed the program.

Ms. Barcellona said the subsidized mortgage money enabled the Bryan Place purchasers to "buy a home probably a few years before they could otherwise."

More than $200 million has already been spent in Dallas County in such programs.

The newspaper's analysis of more than 9,100 loans approved between 1982 and 1985 showed that the mortgage money, funneled through private mortgage lenders, primarily benefitted middle- and upper-income families buying homes in established neighborhoods or new subdivisions.

As an example, the newspaper reported that during the period, the city, county and state have financed more than $193.8 million in subsidized mortgages in Dallas County for which target neighborhoods were eligible. Only 4 percent of this low-interest loan money has gone into the county's 27 target areas, despite some program requirements that mortgage lenders reserve up to 20 percent of the funds for one year for use only in target areas, the report said.

Federal regulations define target areas as those census tracts in which at least 70 percent of the families earn 80 percent or less of the area median income. Area median family income in 1984 was $30,200.

The subsidized mortgages provide 30-year, fixed-rate loans that are two to three percentage points below market rates.

Striking Continental pilots sue air carrier

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal racketeering lawsuit filed by the Air Line Pilots Association alleges Continental Airlines improperly trained and certified new pilots to take advantage of striking pilots.

The lawsuit filed Monday accuses Houston-based Continental of administering improper, shortened "refresher" and requalification training to pilots who were hired or promoted to replace striking pilots. The replacement pilots, according to the suit, were required by law to receive more comprehensive training.

ALPA alleges that Continental allowed inadequately trained and fraudulently certified reviewing pilots to certify the competency of replacement pilots.

The union also alleges that Continental improperly trained and certified new pilots "to gain an unfair and fraudulent bargaining advantage" against striking pilots.

Continental spokesman Mike Cinelli, when asked about the lawsuit, said, "Pardon my laughter, but it's obvious that ALPA has more lawyers than they have sense.

"This suit will undoubtedly make the most entertaining reading yet of any legal document they filed," Cinelli said.

ALPA struck Continental on Oct. 1, 1983, one week after the airline filed for court protection from its creditors under the federal bankruptcy code, slashed wages up to 50 percent and scaled down its operations.

In addition, ALPA said the airline gave false statements to the Federal Aviation Administraiton and other authorities "to conceal these schemes."

"The defendant deceived the FAA and other federal authorities, undermined federal regulations designed to protect the public safety and unfairly undermined the bargaining position of the ALPA pilots striking Continental Airlines," the union said in its suit.

Cinelli said the FAA earlier this year examined and approved all of Continental's operations, including its pilot training and certification procedures.

"They inspected our entire operation from top to bottom," he said.

The union also alleges Continental carried out the fraud by using interstate telephone calls and wire facilities.

The union has authorized its 1,450 striking Continental pilot members to seek their old jobs at Continental and temporarily has suspended picketing. However, ALPA insists its strike continues.

A group of Continental pilots announced in August that more than 90 percent of the carrier's pilots had signed a petition asking ALPA be removed as their official bargaining agent. ALPA is suing the airline in that matter, saying the company is violating the federal Railway Labor Act by attempting to withdraw recognition of the union.

Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca (left) and Mitsubishi Motors Corp. President Toyoo Tate shake hands after announcing that Bloomington and Normal, Illinois will be the site of the companies' $500 million auto assembly plant

Illinois gets Chrysler-Mitsubishi plant

BLOOMINGTON, Ill. (AP) — Illinois relied on a tried-and-true approach — money — to beat three other Midwestern states and persuade Chrysler Corp. and Mitsubishi Motors Corp. to locate a $500 million auto assembly plant and 2,500 jobs here.

"Six years and many long, hard hours went into securing the auto plant for Illinois," Gov. James R. Thompson said during a news conference Monday at the Bloomington site. "We will be reaping the benefits of it for years to come."

Illinois' package, worth at least $260 million and ranging from tax breaks to Japanese language and cultural classes at a nearby university, was the "best economic deal," Chrysler Chairman Lee Iacocca said in making the formal announcement from the automaker's Highland Park, Mich., headquarters.

"I think in the last several years we've had a tremendous resurgence in the Midwest," Iacocca said. "Just think, in 1981 people were recommending you move to Houston to find a job."

The plant will occupy 636 acres west of the twin cities of Bloomington and Normal in central Illinois, and will employ 2,500 people and create 9,000 more related jobs, Iacocca said.

Construction is expected to begin later this year at the plant, which would use computerized robots to build 180,000 small cars annually. The Mitsubishi-designed two-door and four-door cars with a 1.8-liter or 2-liter Japanese-made engine should roll off the lines in late 1988.

Illinois' package, assembled by state and local officials, included $80 million in direct incentives for land acquisition, capital improvements in roads and sewage systems and worker training; a $20 million property-tax abatement; and tax advantages of about $160 million over Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, said Mike Woelffer, director of the Illinois Commerce Department.

Leter W. Brann Jr., president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, estimated the plant would generate more than $300 million annually in income for the area.

Auto industry analysts generally backed Illinois officials' optimistic views.

"Whoever put this together looked at the totals and said this is a good, long-term investment. ... I think they'll turn out to be right," said Jeanette Garretty, head industry analyst for Bank of America in San Francisco.

"I'd characterize Illinois' offer as very generous and very well thought out. It certainly wasn't a case of giving away the store," said Arvid Jouppi, a Detroit-based independent analyst.

"Illinois is in as a one-time partner and the plant could end up being there 100 years," he said. "At some point, it will become a tax-paying business no matter what kind of breaks they got."

Mistubishi and Chrysler each will own 50 percent of the venture, named Diamond-Star Motors Corp. and initially capitalized with $150 million, Chrysler officials said.

Mitsubishi is 24 percent owned by Chrysler and is the fourth-largest Japanese carmaker. It will be the fifth Japanese company to produce cars in the United States and the third to settle in the Midwest.

Iacocca and Mitsubishi President Toyoo Tate said the Bloomington-Normal area was selected because it offered "modern air, rail and highway transportation, a superior education system, many cultural advantages, a good labor climate and a favorable tax base."

Half the cars will be sold by Chrysler dealers and half distributed through Mitsubishi's sales network.

United Auto Workers President Owen Bieber said the union intends to represent the workers at the Bloomington plant.

Kansas company begins Texas pipeline costruction

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Construction has begun on the Texas section of a 1,700-mile crude oil pipeline that will pass south of Austin over the Edwards Aquifer recharge zone.

Although the pipeline company, All-American Pipeline of Wichita, Kan., has promised to add environmental safeguards, state officials plan to scrutinize the project before issuing a permit to operate the 30-inch-wide line.

Ray Grasshoff of the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates pipelines in Texas, said a decision on whether to issue a permit could take a year.

Ron Hinn, project manager for All-American, told the Austin American-Statesman that the pipeline will be ready to carry 300,000 barrels of heavy crude oil per day by January. Construction is expected to to cost $240 million.

The oil carried by the pipeline will come from the outer continental shelf off the California coast. But it must be refined in Texas because of its thickness, Hinn said.

All-American has obtained state and federal approval to build the line from Santa Barbara, Calif., as far as McCamey, south of Midland-Odessa. The first 130 miles of pipeline east of McCamey is under construction.

"We issue a permit to operate a pipeline, not to construct," said Grasshoff. "Because of the recharge zone, we're going to take a lot closer look at this one."

One missing after offshore rig explosion

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Natural gas explosions and fire at an offshore drilling rig forced 80 workers to flee, and one was missing and feared dead Monday.

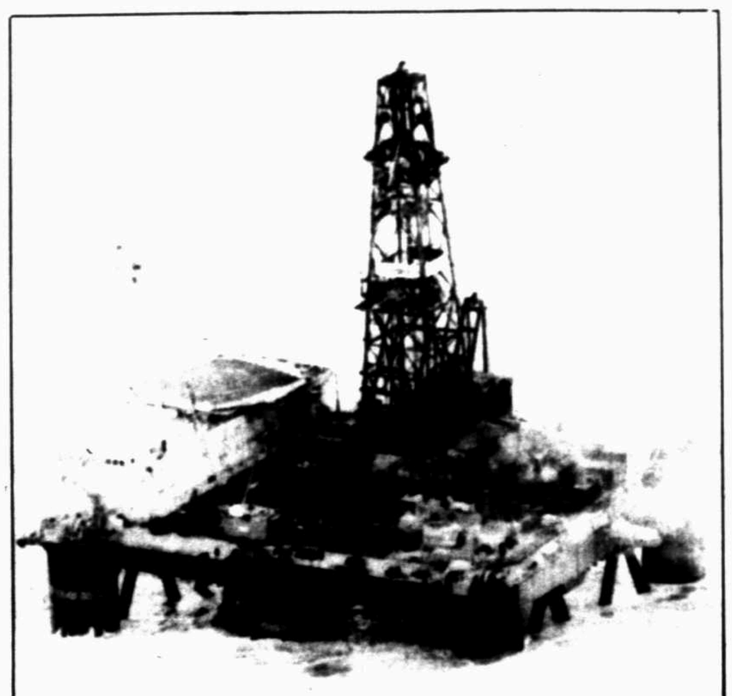

The missing man was identified as Alf Odvar Bjordal, a 28-year-old Norwegian.

Flames raged for nine hours after a gas blowout and explosions late Sunday at the 13,000-ton West Vanguard rig before dying out, the Norwegian state oil company Statoil reported.

Willy Olson, a Statoil spokesman, said the blowout occured at 11.15 p.m. when the rig was drilling a pilot well to check a small pocket of natural gas.

He said the gas leakage started when drilling had reached 1,725 feet below the bed of the Norwegian Sea, about 50 miles off the central coast.

A decision was made immediately to evacuate the rig, he said, and most of the crewmen went into two lifeboats and were quickly tranferred to the supply vessel Black Isle. Two men jumped into the sea and were picked up, but it was not known if Bjordal also jumped or was trapped aboard the rig, according to Olson.

The West Texas acquisitions mean Southwest will have 28 offices in 13 Texas counties, Todd said.

Second power outage at Palo Verde occurs

WINTERSBURG, Ariz. (AP) — A second power outage occurred Monday at the closed Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station as technicians attempted to locate the cause of the same type of outage that happened last week, officials reported.

Electrical service was interrupted between the primary reactor and the plant switchyard, which was the same type of outage that occurred Thursday, prompting officials to shut down the reactor, said Dan Canady, a spokesman for Arizona Nuclear Power Project, owner and operator of the plant.

In both cases, Unit 1 automatically shifted to a backup source of electricity, he said. Both incidents were determined an "unusual event" and the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission was notified.

Lomas & Nettleton buys insurance company

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A Dallas financial firm has agreed to pay $86.45 million to acquire the Jefferson National Life Insurance Co., of Indianapolis, Jefferson National officials say.

The agreement with Lomas & Nettleton Financial Corp. requires keeping the 46-year-old life insurance company in Indianapolis and maintaining its management and employees, according to Jefferson National chairman E. Kirk McKinney Jr.

Lomas & Nettleton would use Jefferson National as a way to move heavily into the life insurance business, officials said.

Agreement reached to clean up jet-fuel spill

ALAMOGORDO (AP) — The company responsible for a 1980 jet-fuel spill that apparently contaminated a rural water well near Alamogordo has reached an agreement in district court to clean it up.

A May 1984 lawsuit between the state Water Quality Control Commission and Standard Transpipe Corp. was settled last week and approved by 12th District Judge Robert Doughty.

Standard Transpipe is a Dallas-based corporation that pumps fuel for Holloman Air Force Base's fighter jets to a storage depot near Boles Acres, a small desert community south of Alamogordo.

LaGloria to revamp Tyler refinery

HOUSTON–(SWN)–La Gloria Oil & Gas Co., a subsidiary of Texas Eastern Corp., has announced that it will revamp an idle processing unit at its Tyler, Texas refinery to make it possible for the refinery to double its output of premium unleaded gasoline and improve overall gasoline quality. The modifications will also permit the refinery to use more economical feedstocks available in East Texas.

La Gloria plans to convert an idle reformer to an isomerization unit, thereby increasing the octane rating of the light paraffinic naphtha stream, a component of blended gasoline. Gasoline containing higher-octane light components produces better engine performance at all speeds.

La Gloria estimates that modifying existing equipment will be significantly less costly than purchasing a new isomerization unit. Construction will be done by Belmont Constructors, Inc. and is scheduled to begin in October 1985. The unit should be in operation by April 1986.

Tenngasco reports highest monthly average

HOUSTON — Tenngasco Exchange Corp. said daily volumes for its monthly posted price program have averaged in excess of 275 million cubic feet of natural gas during September, the highest monthly average in the program's history.

The company also posted a price of $2.09 per million BTU for spot market natural gas delivered in October 1985 at either Tennessee Gas Pipeline at Vinton, La., or the Tenngasco-controlled facilities at Tivoli, Tx.

While Tenngasco Exchange's October price is down eight cents, it is the smallest monthly decline since May. The company said this indicates a firming of natural gas prices is near.

Addressing a crowd

John Carmony, chairman of the Central YMCA Board of Directors, addresses guests Monday during groundbreaking ceremonies for the Hoffman-Werner Memorial Playground. The playground is to be constructed in memory of Midlanders George Hoffman and Kyle Werner. The two were killed last May when they were struck by a car while riding bicycles on State Highway 191 west of Midland.

Lawyer president of Leadership Midland alumni

From Staff Reports

The Alumni Association of Leadership Midland, comprised of some 300 members, recently elected officers for 1985-86.

Michael R. McElwrath was elected president of the organization now entering its seventh year in existence. Other officers are: David T. Clark, vice president; Jo Ann Bagwell, secretary-treasurer; Pamela Feist, newsletter editor; and Amy Steward, publicity chairman.

Alumni, selected annually to enter the nine-month Leadership Midland program, develop leadership and concentrate on issues strategic to Midland's well-being, according to McElwrath. Members also seek to encourage continued involvement in, and service to, the community.

He said, the Alumni Association, "keeps its members advised of the service and manpower needs of various service organizations, charitable boards, and governmental bodies in Midland, with the goal of taking a leading role in providing service to the community.

"We try to challenge our members to contribute to the community and to Midland's quality of life," he said.

In addition, the Alumni Association organizes and sponsors numerous activities.

"This past summer, the Alumni Association sponsored the Centennial Citizen Program, and this year plans to institute a similar program to honor 'Volunteer of the Month,' recognizing the service and efforts of a deserving Midland volunteers each month," McElwrath said.

The association also will sponsor its "Charity Golf Tournament which last year, in its inaugural year, raised over $4,000 for local charities. The association also assists in the organization and presentation of programs for the current class of Leadership Midland and provides scholarships for deserving participants," he added.

McElwrath, partner in the law firm of Turpin, Smith, Dyer, Saxe and MacDonald, serves as president of the Midland County Young Lawyer's Association, chairman of the Midland Planning and Zoning Commission and is the statewide vice president of the Texas Affiliate of the American Heart Association. Blind musician modest about talent

Jerry Henry

HOUSTON (AP) — Jerry Henry whistled and tapped out a melody on the family's freezer with a spoon before he could even walk, his mother remembers.

Now fellow students at Aldine High School often hear the tapping of his white cane as he feels his way along the hallways.

Jerry, now 15, is blind, but his friends and teachers say he has never let his physical impairment limit his ability to make music.

"He's got great, unlimited potential. He has a good, basic grasp of what he needs to do," said Jeff Laird, assistant band director at the high school about 20 miles north of Houston.

The living room in the Henry home is filled with Jerry's instruments — a piano, drum set, organ, saxophone, clarinet, accordian and harmonica.

His mother, Verda Henry, said she is still paying for the $7,000 organ, but doesn't object.

"I never had to buy him those play-with-it-once-and-it's-broken toys when he was little," she said. "So I don't mind buying this now."

She recalled how her son, at the age of 9, would climb out of bed at night and play the family piano.

"About 1 or 2 in the morning, we would hear this 'plink, plink, plink' on the piano," Mrs. Henry said.

Doctors diagnosed Jerry as having congenital glaucoma when he was six weeks old. Today, he uses Braille books to study for most his classes. His music, however, he learns by ear and memorizes.

Laird says Jerry has "an incredible sense of rhythm and perfect pitch."

Perfect, or absolute, pitch refers to the ability to hear a musical tone and identify it without having another tone sounded. Most people have relative pitch, meaning they can identify one tone if another one also is played.

When Aldine's symphonic band performs during the fall marching season, Jerry plays xylophone on the sidelines. He plays tympani for the symphonic band the rest of the season and also plays piano and drums for the stage band.

But Jerry is modest when discussing his musical abilities.

"Talent is great, but it must be developed," he wrote in a recent paper for his English class. "Band provides a time, a special place and special people to help produce new ideas and correct mistakes."

Airport construction 'right on schedule,' spokesman says

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Although travelers trying to catch a flight out still must navigate the windy maze of a detour to reach the Terminal Building, the $15 million face-lift of Midland's airport is "right on schedule," according to a spokesman.

"It's beginning to look like a top notch airport," said Jon Mathiasen, assistant director of aviation/administration at Midland Regional Airport. "Most of the inconvenience portions are completed."

One large incovenience, however, the detour from Highway 80 to the Terminal Building via back roads (Wright Drive and Sloan Field Blvd.), will remain in effect until Christmas.

"It was a 120-day detour," said Mathiasen. "We've finished pouring the curb and gutter on LaForce and should begin paving it soon."

Other areas being renovated, including the short term and long term parking areas are taking shape, he indicated.

"We'll have most of the short term and long term areas finished by Christmas," he added. "We're working on the new up and down ramps for the structured parking and in about 35 to 45 days, we'll have an additional 800 parking spaces over near the water tower."

Mathiasen stated the covered parking area adjacent to the terminal building will remain for short term parking users only.

The administrator added there had been little problem with the project so far.

"We've actually had very few complaints and no parking problems," he said. "We've also had a real good response to the new toll booths as you leave the parking area." Mathiasen was referring to the new multi-laned exit area which replaces the two wooden huts used before for parking fee collections.

Although those areas most affecting the general public will be completed "before the Christmas rush," Mathiasen said the project would not be entirely completed.

"We'll still have some odds and ends left," he said, "but the majority of it will be finished. We're anxiously awaiting the day the last shovel moves."

The airport project, which was announced in March, is being financed by both airport revenue bonds, airport surplus funds and the Federal Aviation Administration.

"Seven million dollars is being supplied by the FAA, another $7 million from revenue bonds and the rest from the surplus funds," said Mathiasen.

Included in the street renovations are the revamping of the short-term and long-term lots, the new ticket booths, the new parking lots and the reconstruction of LaForce Boulevard, that goes from Highway 80 to the Terminal Building. In addition, Pliska Road, which divides short-term from long-term is being eliminated and a different route constructed.

The project is one of three revamping efforts being undertaken by the airport. Officials also announced in March plans to install a new heating and cooling system to be operational by February 1986 and a roofing and expansion project to be finished in 1987. Total cost of the three projects is $21 million.

Ron Jeap/Reporter-Telegram

Visitors to the Midland Regional Air Terminal follow the myriad of maze-like directions while winding their way out of the facility's parking area. Construction and renovation on the airport's parking lots and roadways are expected to be completed by Christmas.

English language becoming victim of jargon epidemic

Jargon stinks.

Want to feel like an utterly, stone-headed fool? Walk into a room full of accountants, tax specialists or lawyers.

Better yet, talk to an insurance representative.

There are those proponents of Save Our Language or some such group who are deathly afraid that the ever-increasing Hispanic influence in America will lead to bi-lingualism and a weakening of our language.

I say, "esta loco."

I fully believe that the English language will suffer an asphyxiating death in some obscure finance office in Des Moines. The last semblance of a recognizeable English phrase will be buried in the necessary but unintelligible utterings of an accountant.

With a tomb-like silence, the world will awake to the 7 p.m. news and realize that no one understands what anyone else is saying. The news anchor will drone on in his non-stop macawish mimicry of others. Completely oblivious to the realization that his audience does not comprehend a word he is saying, he'll switch with acquired ease from one jargonized language to another — a sort of mini-United Nations with no interpreters.

The ink wasn't wet on the Constitution, I'm quite sure, when the businessmen and early leaders of our country began devising new terms to make the best of a dollar invested. The advent of income tax in the 20th century, however was a license to print dictionaries for latent jargonists.

Jargon has gone beyond a simple method to eliminate loopholes in contracts and insert them into tax forms. It's become a tool for the average American worker to set himself apart from others and to add sophistication where there is none.

A recent tour of a new hospital nursery ended in the LDR area. All of the rooms had LDR 1, LDR 2, ect. A guide spoke of the benefits that the new LDR could provide. I hope I wasn't the only one who left who was wondering what a LDR was. Came to find out it was a labor/delivery room. Oh.

"We're trying to get the people used to the new term," said a public relations person.

Trying to get used to the terms that people in diverse businesses dream up could leave you speechless.

Try reading through a financial report sometime. Words and phrases like "encumbrances," "recoupment," "incurrence test," and "maximum annual debt service," may be Dick and Jane type stuff for your average accountant, but for Dick and Jane, it's Greek.

Jargon, however, is not limited to financial wizards.

I heard a postal clerk tell a little old woman that her mailman would deliver only to her NBU. I thought she was going to slug him, until he explained about the Neighborhood Box Units — those metal community mailboxes so prevalent in the suburbs.

And anyone who grew up in the Oil Patch is probably oblivious to their inherited vocabulary of petroleum terminology.

A co-worker must have thought I was a slobbering moron, when I blinked at the term "tertiary recovery." I thought it had something to do with hospitals.

Kids, of course, have always been a rebellious supporter of innocent-sounding words with sinister and clandestine meanings — which enables them to cuss around their parents and get away with it.

It has been documented that the American public reads, on the average, at an elementary to junior high level. Newspapers have been accused of writing down to the level of the average reader.

Not so. We're just victims ourselves of the jargon epidemic.

We simply take out the words that no one understands and print the rest.

The youth compares walking in a band hall to "stepping into a new world where sometimes even musical magic happens. I love being involved in that magic," he said.

Soil, water conservation district taking orders for trees

From Staff Reports

The Midland Soil and Water Conservation District is taking orders for windbreak tree seedlings in the district's continuing efforts to protect land from erosion, according to Tomas M. Dominguez, range conservationist for the United States Soil Conservation Service (SCS) here.

The trees, both hardwoods and conifers, are to be delivered in early spring of 1986.

"Trees are to be used to protect farmsteads or any rural area that may be subject to wind erosion," reported Dominguez. "These trees are for windbreak planting only and are not to be purchased for resale."

The conservation district will provide information on how and where to plant the windbreak trees.

Hardwoods to be offered for sale include Russian olive, pecan, honey locust, bur oak and desert willow. Conifers include Afghanistan pine, Arizona cypress, Austrian pine, red cedar and Scotch pine.

The sale price is "very reasonable," Dominguez said. Hardwood seedlings, which may mature in height to 25 to 50 feet depending on the variety, will sell for $30 for 100 seedlings. Conifers, which grow to 50 feet tall or more, will sell for $30 for 40 seedlings.

Dominguez recommended that those wishing to plant windbreak trees make arrangements to install "some sort of watering scheme" to ensure survival of the trees. The Midland conservation district has information available on drip irrigation systems.

Trees are to be ordered as early as possible because of the limited supplies, he said. Delivery date will be in early March.

Forms for ordering trees may be obtained by writing the Soil Conservation Service, 1348 S. Fairgrounds Road, Box B, Midland, Texas 79701, by visiting the office, or by telephoning 684-8722.

Midland-area GOP members on Brown's committee

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Six Midland-area Republican activists and 195 other Texans have joined the steering committee for Lake Jackson Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown's campaign for the 1986 Republican nomination for attorney general.

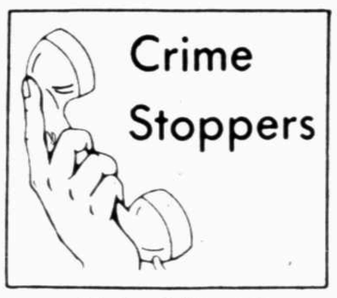

The six include Odessa state Rep. Kelly Godwin; long-time Republican activist and financier Dean Stoltz of Midland; Jess Ann Thomason of Midland, the 1982 regional field director for Gov. Bill Clements; Rudy Judemann of Odessa, recently named "Mr. Republican" by the Ector County Republican Party; 1982 state Senate candidate Jim Reese of Odessa; and Odessa auto dealer David White.

They join such well-known persons as Amarillo oilman T. Boone Pickens, U.S. Rep. Tom Delay of Sugarland and Houston oilman Michael Halbouty on the committee. Four of the five other GOP state senators and 36 of the remaining 51 Republican House members have also signed on.

"Our campaign is gaining momentum and I am proud to have all these Texans join our efforts to bring a law-and-order conservative to the office of attorney general," Brown said. "With the help of my charter steering committee, I believe we are well on the way to electing the first Republican attorney general in Texas."

Other Republicans seeking to challenge incumbent Democratic Attorney General Jim Mattox include former Williamson County District Attorney Ed Walsh and possibly Bexar County District Judge Roy Barrera.

Program would beef up industry

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A majority of the state's ranchers favor a promotional program that includes a $1-per-head checkoff on all cattle sold, says the head of a regional cattlemen's association.

Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association president John Shelton said the organization's board of directors unanimously endorsed federal legislation that would beef up the ailing industry. The Beef Promotion and Research Act of 1985 would increase a national promotional budget from $18.6 million to about $60 million.

"The facts are that working cattlemen want the legislation," Shelton said. "They want a mandatory program so that all cattlemen, including big operators and foreign beef importers pay their share."

Tinker the Clown will turn ordinary events into unforgettable occassions full of fun. Invite Tinker to your next birthday party, company picnic, or store promotion by calling 335-0371.

Tinker the Clown makes parties memorable events

Birthday parties, company picnics, and children's promotions become great events, never to be forgotten, when Tinker the Clown is invited. And oh, they're so much easier on Mom and Dad or whoever is planning the entertainment.

Tinker, famous for her blue hair and wonderful magic tricks, is no ordinary clown. She travels around to seminars and conventions to learn more fun and tricks from nationally-known clowns. She even takes classes like the Art of Clowning. During her spare time you may see her cheering people at nursing homes or hospitals.

Tinker knows just what children like and tailors her show to the special needs of various ages. Before she even arrives at the party she spends an hour getting her face and costume fixed just right. She makes sure all the right balloons, bags, colorful scarves, and wilting flowers are neatly packed in her magician's box. The show is ready to begin!

When Tinker does a mini party for one to three year olds, two fun puppets help her entertain. Tinker sits down right in the middle of the children and tells her stories, then makes animal balloons for everyone to take home with them.

Tinker's big party for older kids also includes all sorts of animal balloons. A perfect party favor - one more thing the hostess does not have to worry about.

Everyone gets to participate in Tinker's magic tricks. Magic words must be repeated, and everyone watches closely. Who knows what will happen when Tinker's around? The big show lasts for 45 minutes to an hour, depending on the number of children.

Children all over the Permian Basin have enjoyed Tinker at parades and special store promotions.

To arrange to have Tinker at your next birthday party, company picnic or store wide promotion, call 335-0371 for rates and reservations. Tinker will make that event far more than just another plain old party.

Crystal Vend features delicious purified water for salt-free diets

Customers enjoy the 24 hour convenience of Crystal Vend purified water for salt-free diets. For just 30 cents a gallon you have your choice of tasty drinking water or purified water which is suitable for distilled water uses.

Crystal Vend brings new meaning to the words "convenience" and "affordability." Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, you can get delicious, crystal clear drinking water for only 30 cents a gallon at six convenient locations in Midland.

Crystal Vend features Purified Water for salt free diets, along with their Crystal Clear drinking water.

Advance technology is Crystal-Vend's secret to clear drinking water. The blue cabinet houses a miniature, precision water purification system. Municipal water is first filtered to remove sediment particles and sand followed by carbon filtration which removes unpallatable chlorine and dissolved organic impurities.

The filtered water is then demineralized to remove harsh disolved metallic salts and then exposed to ultraviolet light for bacteriastatic control producing a PURIFIED WATER (99.9 percent pure) for doctor ordered salt-free diets and all distilled water uses.

A trace of the minerals are retained in the CRYSTAL CLEAR drinking water for taste.

The CRYSTAL—VEND machines are based on state-of-the-art technology and as such, exceed capabilites of all other machines of this type.

Whether your need is for Purified Water for a salt free diet or Crystal Clear drinking water, you will enjoy the convenience of Crystal Vend. All you have to do is take your container by one of the convenient locations:

M System - 400 Midland Drive
M System - 2200 Rankin Hwy
M System - N. "A" and W. Scharbauer
Safeway - 4340 W. Illinois
Safeway-Wadley and Garfield
Walgreen's - 215 Andrews Hwy

Each machine is coin operated and is designed to accomodate containers of any size from one gallon to five gallons. All you have to do is position your container on the adjustable shelf, insert your coins and push the green button for CRYSTAL—CLEAR drinking water or push the blue button for PURIFIED water for those salt-free diets and distilled water uses.

Crystal clear water doesn't have to be expensive, so try Crystal Vend this week for just 30 cents a gallon.

Harris Acoustics offers experience and quality

Harris Acoustics is now in a beautiful facility at 2011 Trade Drive. President J.E. "Slim" Mason announces that since January they have added a dry wall division. Bill Shonkwiler is the head of this new division and chief estimator.

David Stickney, manager, heads up the acoustical and flooring division of Harris Acoustics. David has eight years experience in the contruction industry. He credits the success of Harris Acoustics to quality materials and workmanship, combined with a thorough knowledge of the construction industry.

Harris Acoustics has been a sub-contractor for commercial acoustical ceiling and floor covering for 18 years in Midland. Slim feels that the reason for their success is quality materials and workmanship combined with a thorough knowledge of the construction industry.

With that experience, Harris Acoustics has added a new dimension to their company. They are a supply warehouse and sell a complete line of sheetrock, metal studs and acoustical ceiling materials along with all the necessary accessories. All of their materials are available to contractors and do-it-yourselfers.

Harris Acoustics and Supply is proud of the fact that they have the largest inventory in the Permian Basin. This is a major benefit to the contractor because it eliminates time lost on the job waiting for materials to arrive.

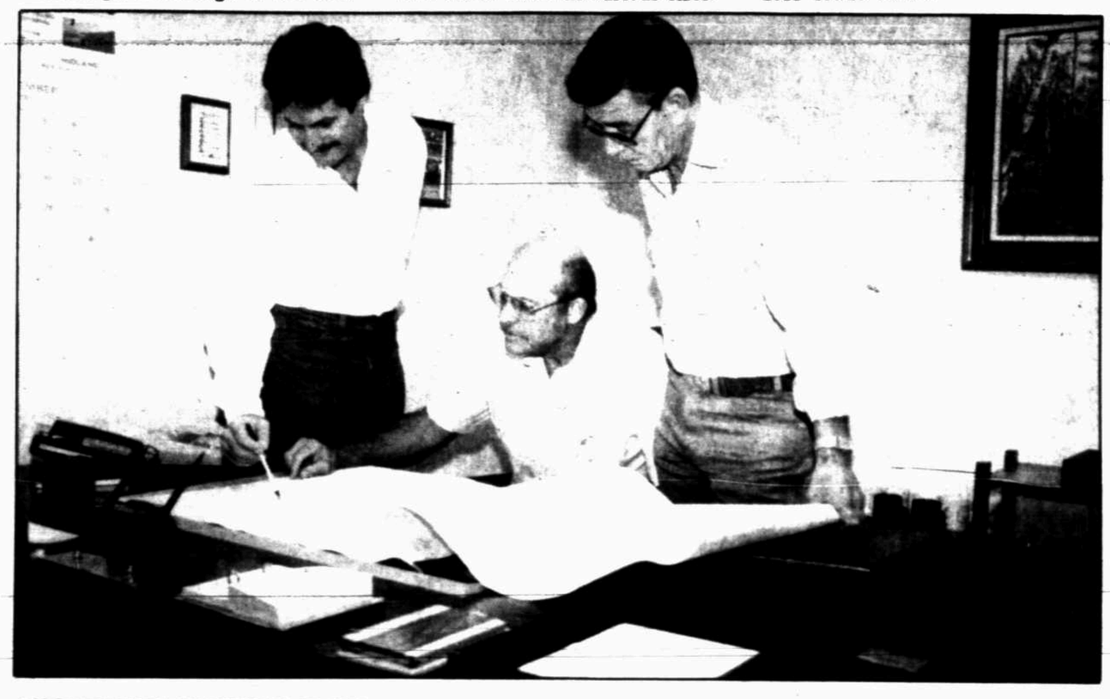

Whether you purchase supplies for commercial or residential use, quality products are essential. As a newly named distributor for Gold Bond Building Products, Harris Aeoustics and Supply carries a wide range of sheetrock and metal studs in various sizes.

Harris Acoustics also carries installation accessories such as adhesives and screws. They have a complete selection of tile such as Armstrong, Owens-Corning and Conwed. They carry a wide range of ceiling grid in a number of finishes, plus fiberglass insulation for both ceilings and walls.

In addition to their drywall and ceiling materials, they also carry vinyl base and commercial vinyl floor covering. Harris Acoustics and Supply is the dealer for Azrock and Armstrong floor coverings.

Just as you would expect, the prices at Harris Acoustics and Supply are very competitive. Truckload pricing is available upon request.

If you would like more information call Slim Mason, David Stickney or Bill Shonkwiler at 699-7018 or stop by their new facility at 2011 Trade Drive.

Slim Mason (seated), David Stickney (standing left to right) and Bill Shonkwiler review some plans for a recent project. Harris Acoustics is now in its new location at 2011 Trade Drive. Go by or call 699-7018 for help with your building needs.

Get ready, get set, go with Temporary Resources

Get ready, get set, go....with Temporary Resources.

Winter months are just around the corner and that means time is running out to catch up on all of those goals your company set for 1985. Countdown is also starting for those dreaded annual reports. Production requirements are at peak, yet holidays and winter illnesses may slow your company's production.

Tausha Day, account representative for Temporary Resources, can help you reach those goals you've set for 1985. Call 684-0527 for more information about qualified temporaries who can help you get through those hectic months this year.

It's time to go with Temporary Resources!

Temporary Resources is a local company which proudly serves both local and national companies in Midland and Odessa. This company with local commitment has qualified temporaries who can help you get through those hectic, final months of 1985.

Owner and president, Patricia de Little says that being locally controlled and totally dedicated to temporary services allows Temporary Resources to offer things that other companies simply are not able to offer.

After serving as a branch manager for a national temporary company, Patricia recognized that Permian Basin businesses on the go could greatly benefit from a locally-owned company. So, Patricia started her own company, Temporary Resources.

Temporary Resources has expanded, now having offices in Midland and Odessa. Patricia credits the growth to outstanding service which is possible, "because decisions are made locally, not off in New York, Detroit or some other faraway place." People who understand Midland businesses make the decisions at Temporary Resources.

One important decision that has long been settled at this local office is that temporaries perform better and enjoy their assignments more when they get personal attention. That is why Office Manager Barbara Smith and Associate Manager Fran Hawke dedicate much time to each interview. Finding out whether the applicant is qualified as a word processor, secretary, clerk, receptionist, or marketing temporary is only part of the task. Getting to know the individual's personality is equally important.

Once a temporary starts accepting assignments, the professionals at Temporary Resources still maintain contact with that temporary at least twice a week.

"We don't just send out warm bodies, we send qualified people," says Patricia. That's why Temporary Resources is confident enough to offer a 100 percent guarantee.

Temporary Resources also offers customers two to four hours of free training time. This is a real plus.

Patricia emphasizes that temporary employment is their specialty, not a side line to permanent placement. Companies that depend on a Temporary Resources temporary sometimes want to make that individual a permanent employee. Patricia says, "All that we ask is that they try the temporary for eight weeks. Then they are free to hire them." No extra fees are charged.

Patricia announces that Temporary Resources is now able to offer a payrolling service at a low, low mark up. This service allows companies to add an employee without having to put that individual on their payroll.

To find out how Temporary Resources can serve your company, call Account Representative Tausha Day at 684-0527. Cross training makes it possible for anyone in this office to take orders and dispatch the temporary needed.

We're the local kids on the block who REALLY want your business.
Temporary staffing is our ONLY business not a side line.

B and J shampoos upholstery and carpet of every kind, everywhere

Betty and Jerry Massey shampoo upholstery and carpets of every kind, everywhere- your home, your automobile, your store, restaurant or office.

You can remove loose dust by vacuuming and brushing your carpet and furniture, but to remove the soil you must have it shampooed. It revives the colors, and makes your home more sanitary and more attractive.

The Masseys recognize that carpet and upholstery is an investment which should be treated with care. Thus they did a lot of research before they purchased their Von Schrader equipment, which replaces antiquated and wet shampooing systems.

The Massey's concluded that the Von Schrader Carpet Extractor method is the only safe way to clean carpets. You'll understand why.

Ever see a man on hands and knees sponging a carpet? Such old-fashioned procedures will brighten the surface but can't remove the dirt deep in the pile. Result: embedded dirt works up quickly to the surfact to resoil the carpet.

In the "steam" method, the "steam" is only hot water that is sprayed into the carpet. And in most cases, little more than half of the dirt bearing water is extracted from the carpet. The remainder is left and can result in soggy carpet, browning, mildew, shrinkage, or damaged backing, padding and floors. Drying time can run up to 24 hours - a long time for any carpet area to be unusable.

Equally inefficient are rotary brush cleaners. The brushes simply scrub into the surface of the carpet, leaving deep down dirt untouched or even carried deeper into the pile. Then separate vacuuming is required to remove the soil and water.

Only the Von Schrader Carpet Extractor applies a dirt emulsifying dry foam, brushes it thoroughly into the carpet and removes both foam and dirt immediately before it can sink back down into the carpet. This simultaneous operation is an important benefit.

With this revolutionary method, a cylindrical brush shampoos down to the base of the carpet, then a powerful suction lifts out dirt laden foam in seconds.

For carpet and upholstery, the odorless detergent used is beneficial to fabrics. No dirt-attracting soaps or toxic dry cleaning fluids are used by B and J. Because no liquid touches the fabric, just a soft, gently dry foam, that separates the dirt from the fabric, cleaned furnishings are ready to use the same day.

Even your carpet is ready for use in an hour or so. And there is no danger of shrinkage, dry-rot, browning or mildew. Restaurants and other businesses appreciate the speedy drying, because it means that if the carpet is cleaned in the evening, it will be dry and ready for business the next morning.

That's right, stores and offices with upholstered furniture and carpet who let B and J come in after they close for the day, will find it ready to use the next morning and looking more beautiful than ever.

If you call (915) 697-0444, the experts at B and J will be glad to examine your furniture or carpet and give you an estimate at no obligation. People in surrounding towns are invited to call COLLECT.

For upholstery jobs, the Masseys will take a Von Schrader Upholstery Extractor to your place and quickly get the job done with no mess or odor. The Von Schrader Company pioneered on-location upholstery cleaning nearly 50 years ago.

The delicate but thorough action of this cleaning process cannot be equaled or duplicated by other processes.

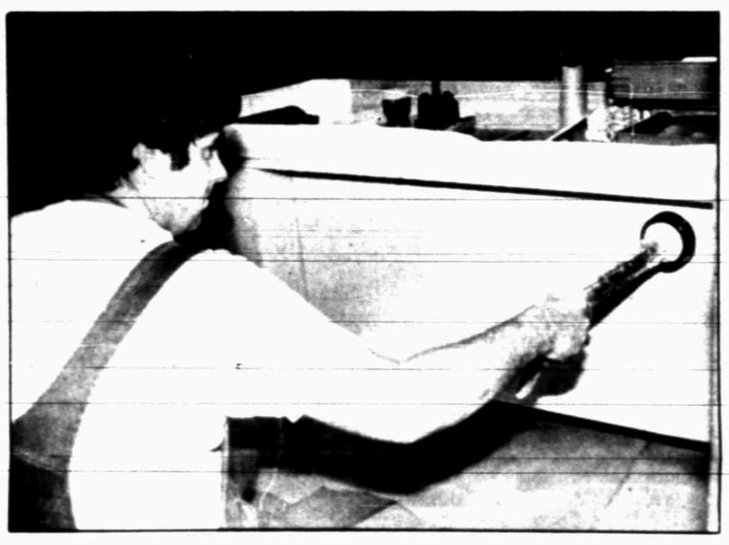

Remember, "steam" is just a lot of water. "Rotary brushes" just take dirt for a joy ride. "Hand application" only does superficial cleaning. Only the Von Schrader Carpet Extractor shampoos deeply with a dry foam and then gets rid of the foam along with the dirt in one operation.

Just call 697-0444 in Midland (out-of-towners please call collect) and ask Jerry, Betty or Jim for a free demonstration. Area apartment managers have also discoverd what a difference B and J makes and at such reasonable prices!

Wouldn't you like for your carpet to look like the cleaned portion of the carpet shown? You'll be amazed at the way the Von Schrader method can revive the beauty of your carpet and upholstery. Regular cleaning protects these investments. B and J offers a 10 percent senior citizen discount and has special prices for commercial jobs. Cal 697-0444 in Midland for a demonstration. People in surrounding towns are welcome to call collect. No job is too large or too small.

American Metal Refinishing offers electrostatic painting at low price

Lynn Henson, owner of American Metal Refinishing, offers on-site electrostatic metal refinishing. The special process he uses yields a beautiful, durable surface. Call 686-7660 to find out more. Lynn says, "If I can't beat any written bid from a competitor, I will do the job for nothing!"

Are you moving, remodeling, redecorting? Color coordinate your office or home at a fraction of the cost of new furnishings by calling American Metal Refinishing at 686-7660.

American Metal refinishing is an electrostatic painting firm owned by Lynn Henson of Midland. Lynn has ten years experience in the field and his work is fully insured and bonded. His motto is "Quality at the lowest price."

For example, an office desk can be refinished for under $40.00. Because Lynn mixes his own paint, he can match any color you desire, usually within 24 hours. Moreover, office furniture refinishing is a completely deductible maintenance expense.

Electrostatic painting is the ideal way to paint any metal surface t is a process by which the paint is given a positive charge and the object to be painted a negative charge. Working like a magnet, it pulls the paint from the air and wraps it around the object to be painted. The epoxy paint yields a beautiful, durable, finish that is equal to the original factory finish. Because it is applied in this manner, there is no overspray and all painting is done right on site. An office can be repainted leaving drawers and files full. In the morning when you return to work you will be greeted by an office that looks like new.

Electrostatic painting is by no means limited to just office furniture, however. Because it can be done on site with no overspray and uses such a high quality of paint, it is far superior to methods used in the past. For computer firms, Lynn has painted shelving units and revolving bins. For bank buildings, he has painted safes, outdoor drive up tellers, elevator doors, bathroom partitions, vending machines, metal door and window frames and waste baskets. For the medical field, he has painted complete x-ray units, hospital beds, incubators, exam tables and dental chairs. For schools and gyms, lockers are commonly in need of refinishing. For grocery stores and restaurants, Lynn has painted refrigerated cabinets, freezers and mixers. For individual homes, he has repainted spiral staircases, railing, garage doors, solar panels, patio furniture, antique barber chairs aond cast iron beds. The most common items painted in homes are in the kitchen - besides metal cabinets, he refinishes refrigerators, oven doors and dishwasher panels.

American Metal Refinishing prides itself on its personalized, dependable, service and customer satisfaction. As a matter of fact, Lynn says, " If I can't beat any written bid from a competitor, I will do the job for nothing."

Tournament players often complain that computer-dealt hands tend toward freak distributions. Certainly, the weirdest hand we have seen for years cropped up during the Spingold Team Championship at the recent ACBL Summer National Championships in Las Vegas. However, the boards were dealt by hand at the table, not by computer!

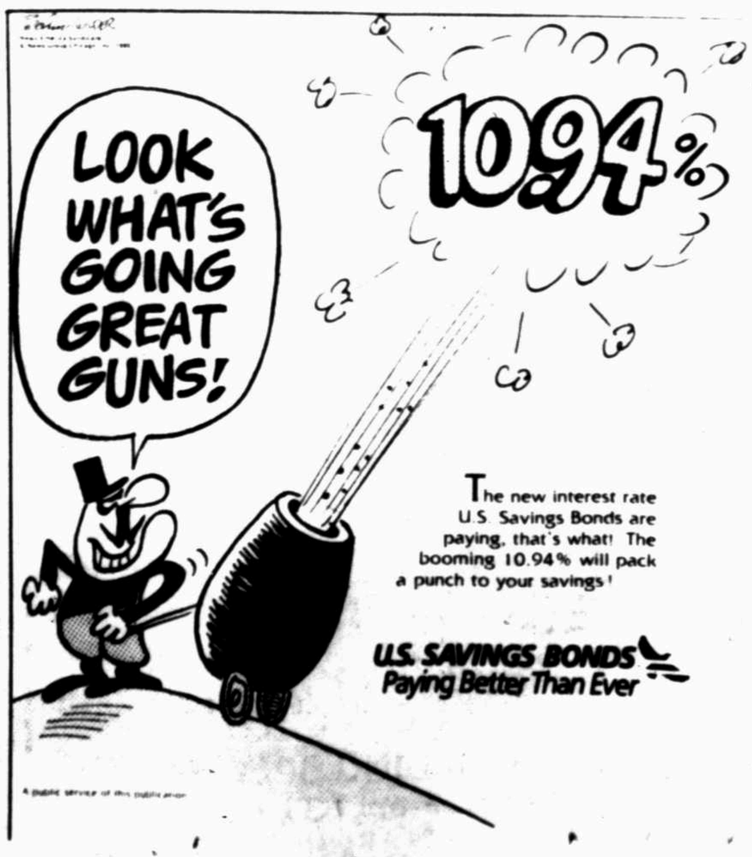

South's first two bids confirmed a long, strong club suit and a limited hand. East-West lurked in the bushes before entering the auction, then competed to the five-level. As the cards lie, West can make five diamonds, so North-South did well to ignore the interference and push on to a vulnerable slam.

West led a devilish low diamond and declarer, a duplicate aficionado rather than a rubber bridge player, ruffed and tried to cash the ace of spades for a diamond sluff. West ruffed, and the defenders simply sat back and waited for their heart trick — down one.

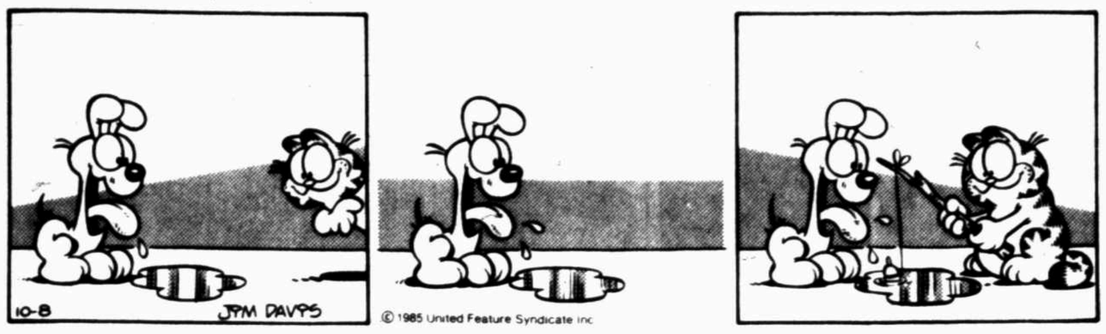

A rubber bridge expert would have had little problem with the hand. He, too, would ruff the opening lead, but he would realize there was no hurry to cash the ace of spades. Instead, he would ruff a low spade with a high trump, then draw all the trumps. Next he would lead a heart to the ace (a safety play to protect against a singleton king of hearts with East), and discard the king of diamonds on the ace of spades. After declarer returned to his hand with a spade ruff, he would then lead a heart toward the queen. Thus, he would lose only one heart.

On this line, the contract fails only if West started with a singleton heart lower than the king. But if that were the distribution, declarer would always have to bow the knee, given the early play.

Snyder to do special projects for ABC station in Los Angeles

Snyder

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Snyder, former host of NBC's late-night "Tomorrow" show, will develop special projects in his new position as a correspondent for KABC's non-news programs, a station spokesman said.

Snyder, 49, will appear on specials for the local ABC-owned station, said general manager Tom Van Amburg.

Snyder was anchorman for the evening newscast for KNBC in Los Angeles during the early 1970s, but left when NBC moved the "Tomorrow" show to New York. After the demise of the late-night talk show he became anchorman at WABC in New York.

Wonder

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A friend of singer-composer Stevie Wonder said his $10 million lawsuit accusing Wonder of stealing the Oscar-winning song "I Just Called to Say I Love You" was filed "with the deepest, deepest of regrets," a lawyer says.

Lee Garrett, who has known Wonder since 1964, and musician Lloyd Chiate claim they wrote "I Just Called to Say" in 1978 while staying with Wonder in a Hollywood hotel and gave him a demonstration tape, attorney Jack Whitley said Monday.

Wonder's song won a 1984 Oscar as the theme for the film "The Woman in Red," and Whitley said Wonder could lose his Oscar if a jury finds against him.

Wonder, 35, will not comment on the suit, a spokesman said, and his co-defendants, Motown Records, Orion Pictures and GTE Sprint Communications, made no immediate comment.

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — Like many Malibu hill dwellers, trumpeter Lee Loughnane of the rock group Chicago drives to fire hydrants for drinking water.

Every few months, Loughnane rents a 1,500-gallon water tanker at $135 a day, fills it at a nearby hydrant, then empties it repeatedly into the 10,000-gallon water tank at his home overlooking the Pacific.

It's about an eight-hour task.

"That should be enough water for two to four months," Loughnane said after his last run a couple of weeks ago. "I should be good through most of the winter."

County officials say it will be May 1987 before a $5.3 million water system takes over for local wells ruined by ocean seepage seven years ago.

Thatcher

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher says she and husband, Denis, are buying a new house partly because she wants her own washing machine and dishwasher.

"For the first time in my life, I've got the kitchen I've always wanted," the prime minister says in an interview published today by Woman's Own, a British magazine.

"I've never had one that's fully fitted out with washing machine and dishwasher in place."

Mrs. Thatcher and her husband, a retired oil executive, are building a $490,000 five-bedroom house in the Dulwich area of southeast London. It was expected to be completed in 16 months.

Mrs. Thatcher said living in No. 10 Downing St., combination office and home of generations of British leaders, is fine, "but you do feel a bit rootless if you're in someone else's private house."

Kucinich

CLEVELAND (AP) — Former Mayor Dennis J. Kucinich, 39, said he hoped his just-completed 541-mile walk across Ohio would reinforce his name recognition among voters in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor.

"The message is one of unity," Kucinich, now a city councilman, said Monday. "Through this walk I'm seeking to unify the state."

The journey Kucinich began Sept. 5 would have been 240 miles, but he extended it by moving alternately east and west while heading north. The primary is in May.

As mayor from 1977 to 1979, Kucinich made national headlines as a populist, crusading "boy wonder" and then as a "Dennis the Menace" who presided over the city's default.

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Little Richard, the flamboyant 1950s rocker whose hits included "Tutti Frutti" and "Good Golly Miss Molly," was seriously injured early today when his car crashed into a telephone pole, authorities said.

"He is in serious but stable condition, suffering from a fractured right leg, possible head injury and a possible rib fracture," Cedars-Sinai Medical Center spokesman Ron Wise said. He said the entertainer was conscious.

It took firefighters 15 minutes to remove the 52-year-old singer, whose real name is Richard Penniman, from the wreckage of his Nissan 300 SX sports car, Deputy Dave Hogan said.

"He was driving on Santa Monica Boulevard at a high rate of speed and lost control and hit a telephone pole," Hogan said. The crash occurred at 12:05 a.m.

Hogan said Penniman was alone in the vehicle and no one else was injured.

Little Richard, whose mid-'50s hits also included "Jenny, Jenny" and "Keep-a-Knockin," was one of rock music's original androgynous stars. His brand of gut-wrenching music fused gospel with rhythm and blues and rock 'n' roll.

His other hit records include "Long Tall Sally," "Lucille," and "Whole Lotta Shakin' Goin' On."

Penniman, a graduate of Oakwood College in Huntsville, Ala., left the industry in 1957 for a career as an ordained minister of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — A free-lance writer who has refused to surrender a tape recording of an interview that he made with Cathy Evelyn Smith, the Canadian woman accused of murder in the 1982 drug death of comedian John Belushi, was spared a jail sentence, at least temporarily, by a Los Angeles Superior Court judge.

Judge Robert R. Devich scheduled a hearing Wednesday to consider writer Christopher Van Ness's request to set aside permanently a contempt citation and a 10-day jail sentence imposed by Los Angeles Municipal Judge James F. Nelson.

Beefeaters bring back 'Midway'

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

Midland County Exhibit Building was all dressed up in bright lights and Western decor as the Children's Service League's biennial Beefeaters' Ball got underway Friday night. About 500 Midlanders attended the black-tie event, which is a fund-raiser for the Cerebral Palsy Center.

In honor of Midland's Centennial, the ball was decorated in early Midland and "Midway" style, with railroad cars, oil derricks, Western hotels, buckboards, cowboys and even a frontier saloon complete with an painting of a well-endowed but scantily clad lady.

The traditional Beefeaters' Ball cattle auction featured 16 steers which were sold "by the pound" — the first steer presented, which weighed in at 1000 pounds, was sold for $13 per pound.

An Isuzu pickup donated by the Midland New Car Dealers Association, a four-day trip to New York, a catered dinner for 10 by Frenchy and a Western pastel painting by Bob Konis of Amarillo were also auctioned off. The auction alone was reported to have raised $80,000 for the CP Center.

Mrs. Roy H. Davidson, representative of CSL, said the funds generated by the Beefeaters' Ball help support the CP Center's programs, including speech therapy, occupational therapy, wheelchairs and other equipment. "We send the children to hospitals out of town when the work can't be done here."

On alternate years the CSL sponsors a fashion show to raise money for the CP Center, according to Mrs. Davidson said.

"These are our two money-raising events," she said, and other funds are raised through "donations from friends of CSL."

The CP Center currently serves 378 children from 17 counties, Mrs. Davidson added.

The Beefeaters' buffet-style dinner catered by Don Strange of San Antonio featured beef — of course — as well as oysters on the half-shell, salad, rice, artichokes, asparagus and assorted desserts.

Music by Mal Fitch of Dallas and his band provided the right beat for dancing, with tunes ranging from Glenn Miller's "The American Patrol" through Barbra Streisand's "Evergreen" and Barry Manilow songs.

John Fuller McGuigan, chairman, also served as master of ceremonies. Co-chairman was William Rogers. Auctioneer was Gayle Ingram of Quitman.

Mrs. Thomas G. McIntosh and Mrs. D. Bruce Pope were decorations chairmen.

Ten 'Most Beautiful Women' named

NEW YORK (AP) — Exercise, eating vegetables and avoiding too much sun are some of the beauty secrets cited by the women lauded as the world's 10 most beautiful by Harper's Bazaar magazine.

Singer Diana Ross says freeing the mind of bitterness is her key to inner and outer beauty.

Rebecca De Mornay, of "Risky Business" and "The Slugger's Wife," says working out helps her keep her good looks. Catherine Oxenberg of "Dynasty" eschews red meat and alcohol, while Connie Sellecca of "Hotel" stays out of the sun to keep a clear complexion.

"Dynasty" star Linda Evans says in the magazine's September issue that she stays attractive by meditating. Model Cheryl Tiegs says daily weighins remind her to keep slim, and TV journalist Barbara Walters is wild about very light pink nail polish.

Isabella Rossellini, daughter of Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini, plays makeup tricks, such as doing "a very strong red mouth and nothing at all with my eyes."

Teen-age actress Molly Ringwald, star of "Sixteen Candles" and "The Breakfast Club," says her curly red locks come "straight from the bottle." Former "Charlie's Angels" star Jaclyn Smith recommends an overnight treatment of castor oil or petroleum jelly on eyelashes.

Show honors late couturier Balenciaga

LYON, France (AP) — Paris fashion designers and Lyon silk manufacturers joined forces recently to pay homage to the late Spanish couturier Cristobal Balenciaga.

Such designers as Angelo Tarlazzi and Jean-Louis Scherrer attended the dazzling opening festivities at the retrospective Balenciaga exhibition, held in a 17th century mansion of Lyon's Gallo-Roman archeological museum.

When Balenciaga died in 1972, he was considered a top Paris fashion influence, and many awed fashion followers simply knew him as "the master."

He once inspired feisty Coco Chanel to declare: "He alone is a couturier. Only he is capable of cutting, draping and sewing by hand. The others are merely designers."

Born in northern Spain in 1895, Balenciaga trained and owned shops in Spain before moving to Paris in 1937 to escape the Spanish Civil War.

His first shop on Avenue George V was a wild success, and still sells luxury articles today.

Called "the monk" by Women's Wear Daily, he was secretive, demanding, and a perfectionist. Women's Wear reporters often hung about outside his shop, spying on models trying on clothes to scoop pre-collection fashion details.

His early inspiration was Spanish with overtones of Velasquez paintings and elaborate matador boleros or hats. Antique Spanish religious sculptures inspired him to create his famous turnover collar.

Elegant Balenciaga clothes in the show range from wasp-waisted satin ball gowns to an incredible A-line cream silk bridal gown. Balenciaga experimented with many shapes and fabrics, right up through tunic and mini-dresses, all considered trendsetters.

Many clothes shown now belong to Hubert de Givenchy, a longtime disciple and friend of the Spanish creator.

DEAR ABBY

Freshman feels short-changed

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a male freshman at the University of Michigan. I am 5 feet 10 inches tall, but when I arrived at school, I found I was one of the shortest guys here. Back home in New York, I am considered average height.

I just spoke to my 6-foot-2 roommate who tells me that I am "short." Abby, in New York, 5 feet 10 inches is not considered short.

Am I crazy, or are the guys in the Midwest taller than the guys in the East? Also, what is the average height for men in the United States? I thought it was 5 feet 10 inches. — FEELING SHORT FROM NYC

DEAR FEELING: You are not short; you are taller than the average. According to the National Center for Health Statistics, the average height for an American male is 5 feet 9 inches.

Regional statistics are not available, so I can't tell you if men grow taller in the Midwest than they do in the East, but off the top of my head I'd guess that the average Swede in Minneapolis is taller than the average Irishman in Boston.

DEAR ABBY: I am dismayed when I see my smart, handsome college-age grandsons remain slouched in their chairs when they are introduced to older people.

College fraternities used to polish up the manners of their pledges in a hurry if their parents had not taught them basic etiquette.

These grandsons are my sons' children, and I've considered giving each one some private instruction. (Their manners are atrocious.)

What else should I tell them besides, "Always stand when a lady or older person enters the room. Also, hold the door open for women, hold their coats and seat them at the dinner table"?

My grandsons jump into an automobile, taking the best seats for themselves while I scramble for myself.

The father of the two grandsons who are most in need of lessons in manners is divorced, so I don't want to confront him with this problem. Can you help me? — OHIO GRANDMOTHER

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: First, have a private talk with your grandsons to find out if they're interested in improving their manners. The rules you mentioned are elementary, but more will come to mind as the boys interact in a social setting.

And grandmother, divorced fathers are not exempt from teaching their children consideration for others, which is really what basic good manners is all about.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Study says eyes revealing

NEW YORK (AP) — Dark-eyed people tend to be more "reactive" and direct than the light-eyed, who tend to be "self-paced" and deliberate, according to psychologists who say they have studied the behavior of 366 children over a three-year period.

The psychologists also cited previous research which claims that dark-eyed people tend to excel at such things as boxing, defensive football and baseball hitting, while light-eyed persons excel at self-paced activities such as golf, bowling, and baseball pitching.
