Soviet submarine sinks, officials say

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nuclear-powered Soviet submarine appears to have sunk more than 300 miles off the coast of Norway after suffering an underwater accident and catching fire, U.S. and Norwegian officials said Friday.

U.S. officials said there were "definitely" casualties on board the stricken submarine, but declined to estimate how many.

ABC News reported Friday night that Pentagon sources said as many as a dozen were killed in the fire, while others were rescued by sister Soviet ships that rushed to the scene. The submarine is believed to carry a crew of 95, according to the authoritative reference book, "Jane's Fighting Ships."

Officials told The Associated Press that the submarine managed to surface for a time in the Norwegian Sea after the accident occurred and that at least one Soviet ship had responded to a distress call and arrived on scene.

"It was on the surface, but now it appears it's gone," said one official, speaking on condition of anonymity. "We're trying to get confirmation, but we believe it sunk."

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the accident appeared to involve a Soviet "Mike" submarine — one of the Russian Navy's newer attack subs designed to hunt and destroy other submarines in the event of war.

"There are indications there was a major fire aboard, but we have no details. We understand there has been a loss of life but we can't confirm how many," Fitzwater said. "We express the sympathy of the United States government to the Soviet government for any loss of life involved."

President Bush had been notified of the accident, Fitzwater said.

One U.S. source placed the last known position of the vessel about 310 miles to the north of Norway's North Cape.

Another U.S. official, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said it was not known what caused the problem, precisely when the accident occurred or whether the nuclear propulsion section of the craft was involved.

A nuclear specialist at a Washington think-tank called the technology used in the Mike sub "inherently very dangerous" and said that if the reactor had been involved, "it could be quite catastrophic."

In Oslo, a Norwegian army supreme command spokesman said the sub apparently was lost in the area between Norway and Greenland. Col. Gollow Gjeseth, press spokesman of Norway's Supreme Defense Command, said in a telephone interview that a Norwegian observation plane sent over the area about 11 EDT saw "a Soviet ship and two rubber boats."

NTB, the national news agency, said the plane saw several Soviet planes and vessels in the area, apparently part of a Soviet rescue operation in the area, which is in international waters.

Clements, Bush discuss oil spill effects, SSC

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — President Bush and Texas Gov. William Clements met over lunch at the White House Friday and discussed the effect the Alaskan oil spill is having on oil prices as well as the multibillion dollar superconducting supercollider slated for Texas.

■ Related story — 5A

It was Clement's first meeting with Bush since he was sworn in as president Jan. 20.

In addition to the supercollider and oil prices, Clements told reporters that he and Bush "talked about the weather, our children and all those good things."

Asked if the oil spill that occurred when the oil tanker Exxon Valdez struck a reef in Prince William Sound near Valdez, Alaska, on March 24 would help the economy of oil-producing Texas, Clements said: "I don't think so. It may do that very temporarily but I really haven't thought of it in those terms."

Hijacker of bus frees hostages, surrenders

OTTAWA (AP) — An armed hijacker surrendered and freed all hostages unharmed Friday after he forced a New York-bound Greyhound bus to drive 100 miles from Montreal to Parliament Hill and kept police at bay for more than five hours.

All six people on the bus were detained when they emerged. Five were spread-eagled against the bus, and police forced one man to kneel on the ground.

Police later explained this was a precautionary measure and only the kneeling man, identified as Charles Yacoub, 36, of Montreal, was arrested as the hijacker. Police said he made demands for a Lebanese organization they were not sure even existed.

He had claimed to have dynamite, but no explosives were found, police said. They did display, however, a .45 caliber revolver they said he used.

Greyhound spokesman George Gravley said in New York that the hijacker fired three shots in the air, but no one was hurt.

Eleven passengers were on board when the ordeal began. Several were released as the day wore on, and the siege ended peacefully just before 8 p.m. Earlier reports said four people were aboard the bus at the end.

Police on Parliament Hill only learned of the hijacking after the red, white and blue bus rolled up. Parliament was in session at the time.

Scott Timmerman, another spokesman for Greyhound in New York, said the hijacker released the hostages unharmed and surrendered after negotiations.

He said the man apparently was looking for the release of prisoners from Syria.

He said the bus driver would be given time off to recuperate, adding that the driver was following company policy by cooperating with the gunman and his demands.

Gilles Favreau, the assistant Royal Canadian Mounted Police commissioner, said the gunman claimed to represent Le Front de Liberation Libanaise Chretienne (Front for the Liberation of Christian Lebanon).

Valencia's conviction, 10-year sentence upheld

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

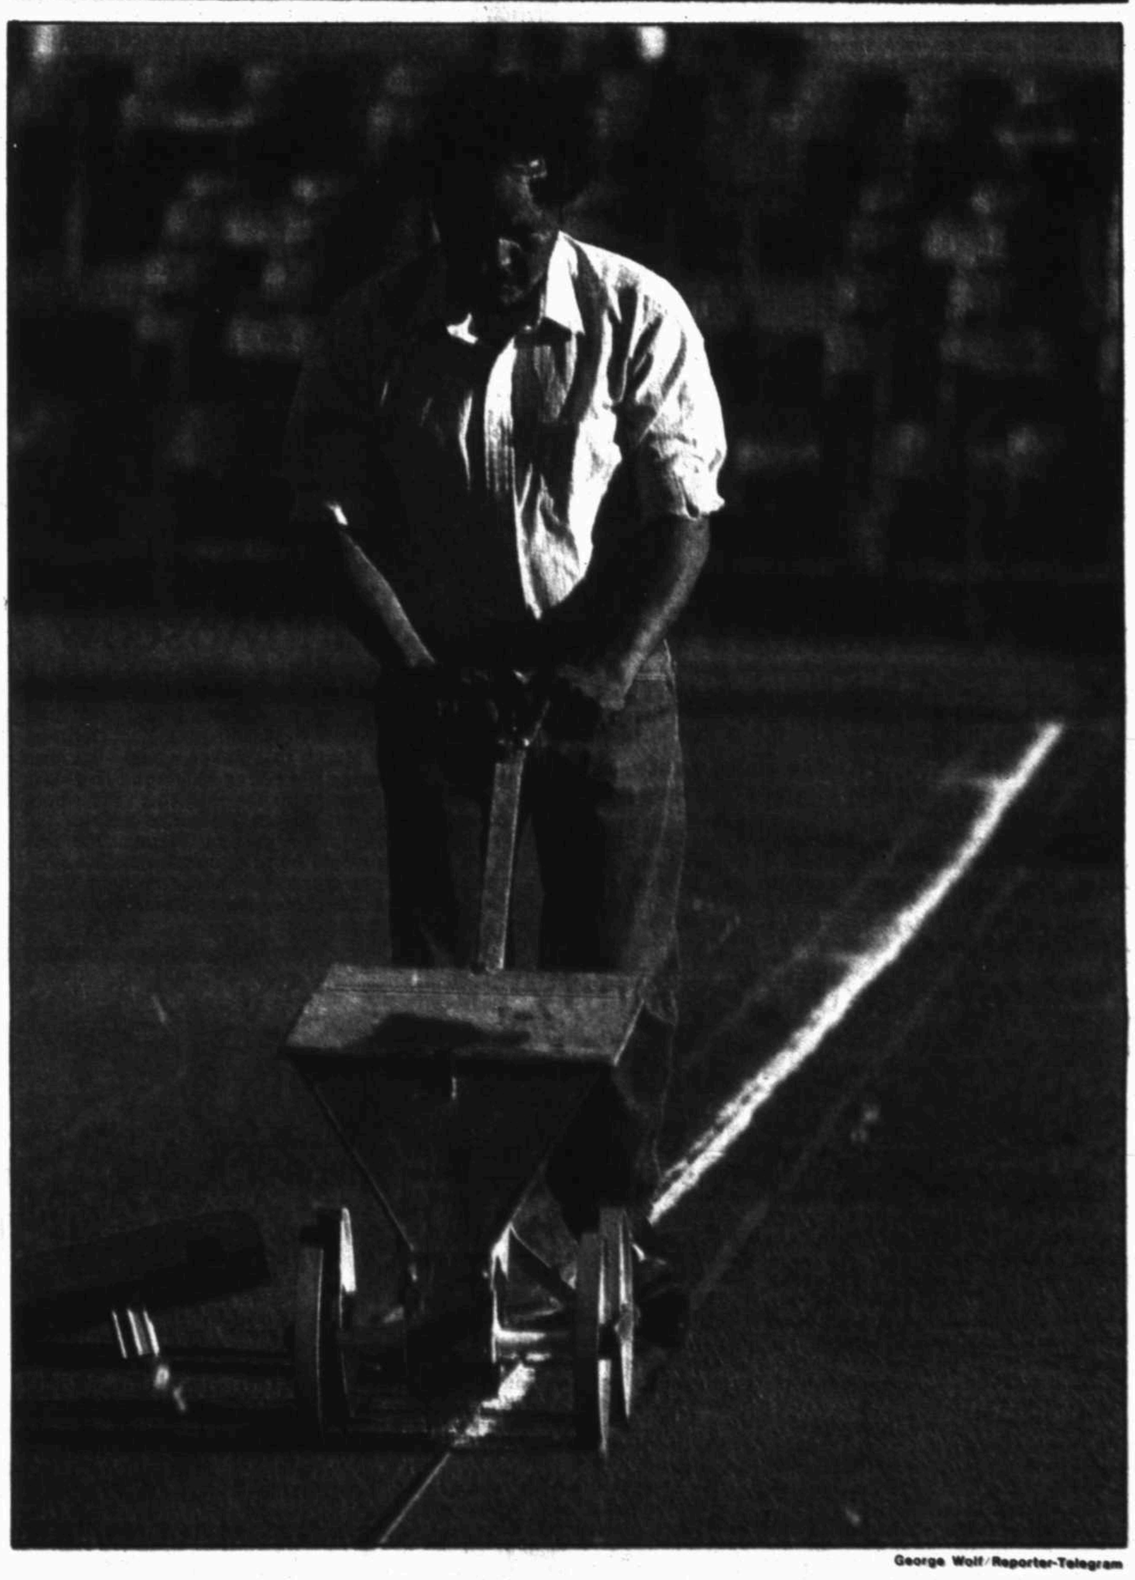

An appeals court has upheld the March 1988 conviction and 10-year sentence of Emma Duran Valencia on heroin possession charges, one of three narcotics cases filed against the Midland woman in the last 12 months.

"That is the fastest I have seen a conviction affirmed in the five years I've been with the District Attorney's office," said prosecutor Wayne Frost, who specializes in narcotics cases. "And I am very pleased with the court's decision in the case."

The Court of Appeals for the Eighth District, which includes Midland, rejected defense attorney Tom Hirsch's argument that the trial judge erred when he allowed the prosecution to call a rebuttal witness at Ms. Valencia's trial.

It was the only issue raised in Hirsch's appeal. The Odessa attorney could not be reached for comment on the court's ruling.

Angels' season opener perfect but for pooped popcorn popper

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

In preparation for the 1989 Midland Angel home opener Friday night, general manager Bill Davidson and his crew stayed up past midnight the night before — just to make sure that everything worked without a hitch.

They checked the soda machines, the hot dog warmers, the beer taps — everything. When they left at 2 a.m., even the popcorn machines were popping.

But 90 minutes before the San Antonio Missions were to take the first pitch from the Angels, the popcorn makers fizzled, made a few thumping sounds and died.

So much for preparation.

"Your typical opening night problems," Davidson said.

But busted popcorn machines were really about it, as far as glitches go. The weather was perfect, the 2,644 in attendance were tame and the Angels won 8-5 — their first successful season debut in five years.

A year ago, the biggest problems on opening night were cold weather and an overabundance of noise in the newly constructed aluminum stands.

On Friday night, both those problems were things of the past. With temperatures in the 80s, attendance had doubled from the '88 opener and the noise problems were quieted by the installation of slabs of rubber on the underside of the aluminum bleachers which dulled the sound of people kicking up their heels during Angel rallies.

"It's a typical opening night," Davidson reiterated. "Opening nights are very unique because you don't really have any idea about how many people are going to show up.

Winner of race hogs all the glory, gets to pig out

LUBBOCK (AP) — What began as an experiment in domestic animal behavior at Texas Tech University has evolved into a snout-to-snout competition in which pigs go for the gold — a golden bowl of corn meal mush, that is.

When these porcine athletes run a 40-yard dash in the dirt of an indoor arena today there will be no brand-name running shoes and no sporty uniforms, just sleek bodies, hairy legs and a team number on each ear. The hog race is being held in conjunction with the Little International livestock judging contest, where non-experts practice judging livestock events.

The 18 12-week-old animals racing to bring home the bacon are part of an experiment in assistant animal science professor John McGlone's domestic animal behavior class, where six students learn how and why animals react in different situations.

"We learn about the general activity patterns, the maternal-young behavior of animals and what we can do to help them," said McGlone about the class which is being taught at Tech for the first time this spring. "We also study their feeding, drinking and sexual behavior."

The decision to train pigs to race drew interest from Tech students who aren't taking the course, McGlone said.

And everyone has his or her own training technique.

"I'd like to think I have the edge," said Eric Fugate, an native of Fairbury, Ill., which he claims is the birthplace of hog racing.

Fugate boasts to fellow classmates about his mysterious training program, which features "a secret recipe which is 100 percent organic, no additives, no preservatives, no drugs."

In pre-racing trials this week, the animals had varied reactions to putting their pigs' feet down on the track.

Some of the little piggies wanted to stay home from the race, while others went "wee-wee-wee" all the way to the finish line. Still others tried to hog the attention of onlookers.

While the racers are going hog wild, however, the idea of the exercise is for students to learn how to best motivate their pigs.

"There are two theories on racing pigs," McGlone said. "One is negative reinforcement in which you chase them so that they really are running away from humans. The other is positive reinforcement in which you place food at the end, and they run to it."

New Soviet law expected to ease religious restrictions

MOSCOW (AP) — A long-awaited draft law reforming Soviet practices on religion removes a Stalin-era prohibition on group religious education and opens limited alternatives to bearing arms in military service.

New legislation that has been in the works for at least 18 months will replace a directive put into force 60 years ago at the height of the Soviet Union's anti-religious fervor and for the first time give churches legal standing to fight official abuse, an official said Friday.

The Associated Press obtained a copy of the as-yet uncompleted draft legislation from religious dissidents. Tatyana Belokovyiskaya, chief of legal affairs for the government's Council on Religious Affairs, said it was an authentic document that had been presented to church authorities for discussion.

"This is a big step forward in the democratization of relations between the church and state," she said.

Believers have been persecuted for years despite laws that guarantee freedom of worship, but Ms. Belokovyiskaya said the new legislation will give them a chance to fight back.

"In order to protect themselves, religious organizations have to have legal standing. They are not only presented with rights, but the ability to protect themselves," she said.

But dissidents say it doesn't go far enough to protect them from persecution, or to separate the government from the Communist Party's official atheism. Dissidents also have said they lack faith in church leaders who have cooperated with the government.

Officials are completing work on the document a year after President Mikhail S. Gorbachev met Patriarch Pimen, head of the Russian Orthodox church. That meeting, the first of its kind in 40 years, symbolized Gorbachev's effort to ease restrictions on believers and draw them into his reform process.

As a sign of authorities' more liberal attitude toward religion, the Moscow News reported that 1,610 new groups of believers were registered in 1988 compared with 104 in the previous year. It said authorities handed back 937 religious buildings that had been taken away and granted permission for 143 new churches and mosques to be built.

When finished, the draft law will be presented to the Soviet Union's new Congress of People's Deputies parliament.

Ms. Belokovyiskaya said changes are still being made in the law, but several key points have been decided. They include provisions allowing for alternatives to bearing arms, group religious education, and establishing the legal standing of churches. In addition, Ms. Belokovyiskaya said a more recent draft of the law permits religious organizations to engage in charitable work.

"Citizens may teach and learn religion in a private manner as an individual, as well as together with others, including at home and through a religious society."
— Draft of new Soviet law

Under the Stalin-era directive that still serves as the model for laws in each of the 15 Soviet republics, believers may not organize any charitable activity or church groups. They face prosecution for obtaining group religious training for themselves or their children.

Young men who refuse compulsory military service face terms in prison camps. All religious groups must be registered with the government, and only can be approved if they consist of 20 or more adults.

"Citizens may teach and learn religion in a private manner as an individual, as well as together with others, including at home and through a religious society," the draft law said.

Ms. Belokovyiskaya said that "absolutely" allowed for the group religious training of children.

Religious organizations also will be allowed to use the official media, she said.

Ms. Belokovyiskaya said alternative service permitted by courts on an individual basis was a controversial point, but "all the same, we are reducing the size of our military. This idea has its time and place."

Types of alternative service have not yet been established, but may be based on the experience of countries such as Hungary and East Germany that provide for work in military hospitals or construction where believers would not be required to take up arms, she said.

Ms. Belokovyiskaya said officials still are considering ways to provide the legal protection afforded by official registration while meeting the demands by some evangelical Christians that they not be required to register.

Dissidents who have rejected the proposed reforms as insufficient wrote their own law at a three-day conference in Moscow at the end of March.

Former political prisoner Alexander Ogorodnikov complained the draft law provides more freedom but leaves final decisions in the hands of Soviet administrators. "We know what kind of administration that is," he said.

Dissidents also included a section of law separating the government and schools not only from religion, but from atheism as well.

Tass announces Baker will visit Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union said today that U.S. Secretary of State James A. Baker III will visit Moscow on May 10-11.

The official Tass news agency announced the dates of Baker's first visit to Moscow as secretary of state in a one-sentence statement.

"It has been officially announced here that under an agreement that has been reached U.S. Secretary of State James Baker will pay an official visit to Moscow on May 10-11, 1989," Tass said.

That will be just days before President Mikhail S. Gorbachev goes to China for the first Soviet-Chinese summit in 30 years.

The Soviet Ambassador to Washington, Yuri Dubinin, announced in early March that Baker would visit Moscow this spring. During a meeting in Vienna five days later, Baker and Shevaradnadze said the visit would take place in May but did not announce a date.

Baker and Shevardnadze said in Vienna that one reason for the trip would be to discuss a possible summit meeting between Gorbachev and President Bush, but Baker said then the United States was not prepared to set a date for a summit.

Mandela urges unity among opposing groups

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela says he is deeply troubled by black factional fighting, and he urged unity among anti-apartheid groups, according to a letter released Friday.

"I consider it a serious indictment against all of us that we are still unable to combine forces to stop the slaughter of so many innocent lives," said the letter, released by Mangosuthu Buthelezi, a Zulu leader at odds with the ANC.

"The (political) struggle is our life, and even though the realization of our fondest dreams may not be at hand, we can nevertheless make that struggle immensely enriching or absolutely disastrous," according to the letter, which Buthelezi said he received from Mandela last month.

Buthelezi, leader of self-governing homeland of KwaZulu, read the letter Thursday at the KwaZulu Legislative Assembly, one of the few instances in recent years that Mandela has been quoted publicly.

Mandela has been imprisoned since 1962 and is serving a life sentence for sabotage and plotting to overthrow the white-run government. There has been widespread speculation that he could be released within the next year.

Mandela, 70, was treated for tuberculosis last year and was moved to a suburban-style house on the grounds of the Victor Verster Prison outside Cape Town.

The ANC wages a bombing and sabotage campaign in its bid to undermine South Africa's government.

Buthelezi opposes apartheid, the government's policy of racial separation, but the ANC and other militant anti-apartheid organizations say he is too conservative because he does not support sanctions, strikes, demonstrations and other confrontational methods of political resistance.

Mandela's letter called for reconciliation between the ANC and Buthelezi, who also heads Inkatha, a 1.5 million-member political organization.

"My fervent hope is to see, in due course, the restoration of the cordial relations which existed between you and O.R. (ANC President Oliver R. Tambo), and between the two organizations in the '70s," Mandela wrote to Buthelezi.

Inkatha has been involved in vicious faction fighting in Natal Province for the past two years with supporters of the banned United Democratic Front, which is the country's largest anti-apartheid coalition and a political ally of the ANC.

More than 1,000 blacks have been killed in the battles around the southeastern cities of Durban and Pietermaritzburg.

"In my entire political career few things have distressed me as to see our people killing one another as is now happening," Mandela wrote.

Five Sikhs charged with conspiracy in Gandhi assassination

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The government Friday charged five Sikhs with conspiracy in the assassination of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in 1984, which it said was part of a plot to establish a separate Sikh nation.

One defendant, Rattan Singh, was killed by rival Sikh militants in 1985, the government said. The others are Simranjeet Singh Mann, a former senior police officer; Attinder Pal Singh, a well-known militant; and college lecturers Dalip Singh and Jagmohan Singh Tony.

Officers of the Special Investigating Team examining the case filed the charges with S.L. Khanna, chief magistrate of New Delhi.

All five are accused of waging war aginst the state, sedition, criminal conspiracy, murder and attempted murder. The charges carry the death penalty.

Beant Singh and and Satwant Singh, Sikh members of Mrs. Gandhi's personal guard, shot her down Oct. 31, 1984, in her New Delhi residence. Beant Singh was killed by other bodyguards and Satwant Singh was hanged Jan. 6.

Also hanged was Kehar Singh, an uncle of Beant Singh, who was convicted of conspiracy.

None of the other Singhs are related. All male Sikhs take the name Singh, which means lion in Punjabi, as a doctrine of their faith.

The government said the five began plotting after the army raid Mrs. Gandhi ordered in June 1984 on Sikhism's holiest shrine, the Golden Temple in Amritsar.

Its list of charges gave this account of the defendants' activities:

They conspired to commit "sensational acts in order to create chaos, confusion and anarchy by hijacking planes, breaching canals, poisoning drinking water supply and destroying Parliament House."

Those acts included organizing the hijacking of an Indian Airlines plane to Dubai on Aug. 24, 1984. They planned to kill Mrs. Gandhi and her son, Rajiv, who succeeded her as prime minister, in September in Nagpur, central India, but "the assassination...could not be executed for want of weapons."

Mann and Attinder Pal Singh decided to attempt the murder through someone associated with Mrs. Gandhi's security, and Attinder Pal Singh "located Sub-Inspector Beant Singh as the most suitable person," the government said.

Attinder Pal Singh fled to Pakistan a week before the assassination, "where he was given a free hand" to enlist support for a separate Sikh nation in Punjab, the only Indian state where Sikhs are the majority.

He also was allowed to "provide arms for training Sikh youth and contact foreign-based activists for financial help," according to the government.

It did not elaborate on the militants' alleged links to Pakistan, but India often accuses the Pakistanis of supporting Sikh secessionists. No proof has been offered, and Pakistan, which borders Punjab, denies it.

Mann was arrested in December 1984 while trying to flee to Nepal and Attinder Pal Singh was apprehended in October 1988.

While in custody, Mann was named president of the Unified Akali Dal, a militant Sikh political party in Punjab, a northern state that is India's richest agricultural region.

He resigned as a senior superintendent of police to protest the raid on the Golden Temple, whose purpose was to dislodge militants who had turned the shrine into a fortress. At least 1,200 people were killed in the assault.

Only 2 percent of India's 880 million people are Sikhs. They accuse Hindus, who make up 90 percent, of discrimination.

Sikh militants began fighting for a separate nation in 1982. At least 2,400 people were killed in 1988 and more than 500 this year.

U.S.S.R. rates low in survey of death rates

GENEVA (AP) — Life expectancy in the world's industrialized countries is highest in Japan and lowest in the Soviet Union and Hungary, according to the first-ever survey on mortality in all developed countries.

The World Health Organization, which published the survey Friday in its weekly Epidemiological Record, said official statistics supplied by the Soviet Union have now "made it possible to prepare an overall assessment" of health conditions in the 33 countries.

The population of the countries totals about 1.2 billion, about one fourth of the world total.

According to the survey, the chances of dying from cancer in the developed nations are 1 in 6, and almost 500,000 annual deaths below age 65 are related to cigarette smoking.

The average life expectancy in the developed countries is now 73.7 years. The Japanese rate is 79.1 years, or almost a decade longer than the Soviet rate of 69.7 years.

All Western countries listed life expectancies above the average. They included Switzerland at 77.6 years; Sweden, 77.1; Spain, 76.6; Canada, and the Netherlands, 76.5; Australia and Norway, 76.4; France 75.9; West Germany, 75.8; Italy, 75.5; the United States, 75.0, and Belgium, 74.6.

Life expectancy in all East European countries was below the average; East Germany ranked highest at 73.2 years.

Heart disease, cancer, and stroke are the leading causes of death in the developed countries, according to the survey. About 1 in 3 people will die from heart disease, 1 in 6 from cancer and 1 in 7 from stroke.

WEATHER SUMMARY
Weekend to be warm

From Staff and Wire Reports

Warm temperatures and sunny skies should continue through the weekend, but not as warm as Friday's record-breaking high of 93 degrees, according to National Weather Service forecasters at Midland International Airport.

Saturday will be mostly sunny and very warm with a high near 90. Winds will be from the northwest at 10-20 mph, becoming northeasterly 5-15 mph by midday.

Saturday night will be fair and mild with a low near 50.

Sunday will be partly cloudy and cooler with a high near 80.

Friday's high of 93 was a new record for the date. The low for Friday of 46 was double that of the record set of 23 which was set in 1938.

STATE

Despite high temperatures, much of the state remained cool Friday as winds swept through the state and clouds dotted the skies.

The combination of higher pressures east of the state and a trough of low pressure near the Texas-New Mexico border brought on south to southeast winds across South Texas. East to southeast winds in north Central and northeast Texas. Southwest winds prevailed in West Texas. Wind speeds were picking up in the High Plains and low rolling plains at 15 to 25 mph. Otherwise, speeds were mainly in the 5 to 15 mph an hour range.

West Texas should experience some cooling on Saturday and Sunday and showers may dampen the Panhandle on Sunday.

NATION

A heat wave continued Friday over the Southwest, with temperatures rising past 100, but in the East snow fell at higher elevations of the southern Appalachians.

The mercury hit a record 100 degrees in downtown Los Angeles at 1 p.m. Downtown had a record-tying 100 Tuesday and record highs of 105 Wednesday and 106 Thursday.

Other early afternoon readings in southern California included 108 in Palm Springs, 100 in Burbank, and 93 in San Diego. An estimated 60,000 people crowded Santa Monica Beach, lifeguards said.

The National Weather Service predicted the beginning of a cooling trend Saturday with the dissipation of the Santa Ana weather condition, which began with warm wind last weekend.

Snow fell at midday over the higher elevations of southern West Virginia, western Virginia and western North Carolina.

Early in the day, up to 4 inches of snow fell in the mountains of northeastern Georgia, and schools in three counties were closed because of slippery roads.

Rain fell across much of the rest of Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina, and across eastern Tennessee, eastern South Carolina, the Georgia coast, and northeastern Florida.

Snow was scattered over western sections of Pennsylvania and New York state, and across northwestern Lower Michigan.

Snow also extended over northern and central North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota, changing to rain or rain mixed with snow across southwestern North Dakota and the eastern half of South Dakota. Rain reached from eastern Nebraska and western Iowa into northwestern Missouri.

For Saturday, snow, some mixed with rain, was forecast over northern Maine, Upper Michigan, northern Lower Michigan and Wisconsin.

Local students to get rulers with message

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The ruler's message is simple: "Just Say 'No'" to drug abuse.

Midland's Westside Optimist Club is carrying the message to Midland and Greenwood school children by way of 12-inch wooden rulers bearing the three-word message, according to Optimist Doug Wilmut.

This week, the club delivered rulers to Greenwood Elementary School and to Midland's Emerson Elementary School for students who are taking classes on the effects of abusing drugs, including alcohol, tobacco, marijuana, cocaine, stimulants, hallucinogens and tranquilizers.

"We thought it was good," Wilmut said of distributing the message-bearing measuring sticks. "It is something they are going to use instead of having a sword fight with."

The Optimist Club has given rulers to the Palmer Drug Abuse Program (PDAP) for distribution today at Midland Park Mall in launching Alcohol Awareness Week.

"We are trying to get an awareness going of alcoholism, alcohol abuse and associated problems," said Bob Savage, executive director of PDAP in Midland.

Eight agencies will be participating in the awareness program, sponsored by the Midland Council on Alcoholism/Drug Abuse and the National Institute on Alcoholism and Alcohol Abuse.

Participating in the program are PDAP, the Council on Alcoholism, the Council Against Substance Abuse, Straight Inc., Teen Challenge, Clearview Hospital, Glenwood Psychiatic Hospital, and Insight Counselors of the Midland Independent School District.

The awareness program coincides with the Council on Alcoholism's alcohol-free weekend campaign to help families become aware of "the role alcohol plays in the family and how alcohol affects the family," Savage said.

"At least one weekend at year, we, as a family, can commit to not using alcohol," Savage said. "Some people this weekend may find out how they put alcohol above their families in the priorities of life."

The Optimists will participate in a "Be Smart; Don't Start; Just Say No" exhibit on May 6 at Midland Park Mall.

Defendant gets deferred sentence

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

A 10-year deferred sentence against a man who pleaded guilty to causing a fatal accident in downtown Midland last October is "satisfactory," Midland District Attorney Al Schorre said late Friday.

"Under the circumstances, and in light of the victim's family's position, we thought it was satisfactory," the prosecutor said of the plea entered by James Edward Carrasco, 18, of Midland. Carrasco, represented by attorney Bob Garcia, agreed to plead guilty to involuntary manslaughter in exchange for the sentence, Schorre said.

The prosecutor had requested 10 years probation, but when Garcia asked 142nd State District Judge Pat Baskin to defer the sentence, Schorre said he did not object.

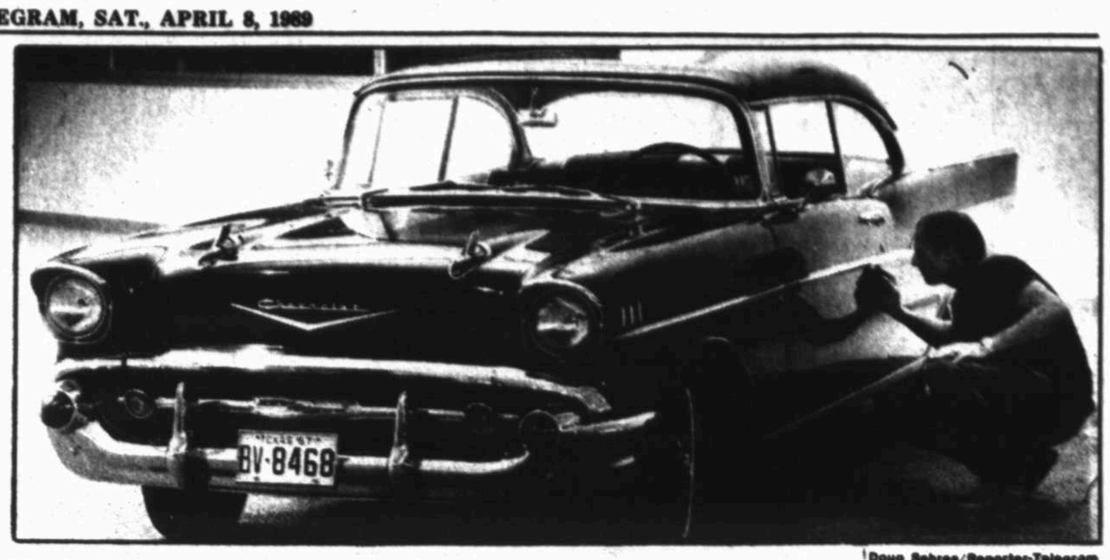

"We left that to the court's discretion," he said.

The Oct. 7, 1988 accident occurred after a 1981 pickup truck driven by Carrasco disobeyed a traffic signal at the intersection of Big Spring Street and Illinois Avenue, according to the police report of the accident. The truck driven by Carrasco smashed into a four-door sedan, killing one of the truck's occupants, 18-year-old Valentin Reyes Jr. of Midland. At least nine persons were injured in the wreck, but have recovered.

Schorre said Carrasco and Reyes were friends, as are the two families. Their relationship contributed to the relatively light sentence he was given, Schorre noted.

Carrasco was originally charged with driving while intoxicated. After his blood-alcohol level was tested and showed he was legally drunk at the time of the accident, he was charged with and indicted for involuntary manslaughter.

But Schorre said he pleaded guilty to driving recklessly, and not to driving drunk. No other charges are pending in the case.

Taking a shine

Jerry Koonce of Midland polishes his 1957 Chevrolet Bel-Air in preparation for the Classic Car Show at Dellwood Mall. The show began Friday and continues Saturday through 6 p.m.

BUS

"As far as we could establish, (the group) does not exist," he said.

Private CTV television quoted security sources earlier as saying the gunman was demanding that Syrian troops withdraw from Lebanon and free all of the prisoners they hold. Syria sent troops into Lebanon as a pan-Arab peacekeeping force after the civil war between Lebanese Moslems and Christians erupted in 1975.

Police said the bus had just left the toll gates at the north end of Champlain Bridge over the St. Lawrence River in Montreal, at about 12 noon, when the man pulled a pistol and ordered the driver to stop. The gunman then pointed at a middle-aged man and told him to leave, police said.

They reported the freed hostage said the hijacker told him, "You're going to get off here — everything is going to blow up."

The bus rolled onto Parliament lawn and became mired down at about 2:45 p.m.

Legislators were ordered out of the House of Commons at 2:50 p.m.

The bus sat the extensive lawn of Parliament Hill surrounded by police hiding behind their vehicles or nearby walls, until the hijacking was over.

Traffic was blocked off and and people cleared from the area, including pedestrians at the front of the U.S. Embassy, across the street from the House of Commons.

Prime Minister Brian Mulroney has offices in the House of Commons but was attending a private event and was not in the building, his aides reported.

Oscar Arias, the president of Costa Rica, was speaking at a news conference a short distance from Parliament Hill as the crisis developed.

SUB

The agency said people had been sighted in at least one of the rubber boats, but it was not clear if the boats were from the submarine or from one of the surface vessels.

The biggest surface ship in the area was a Soviet refrigerator trawler, the NTB report said.

U.S. sources offered no indication as to what the submarine might have been doing at the time of the accident. They said the U.S. Navy had no warships in the area and had not received any request from the Soviet Union for assistance. The sources declined to say when or how the United States first became aware of the submarine's problems.

But ABC News reported that Pentagon sources said U.S. intelligence learned of the accident through electronic intercepts of communications from the stricken submarine.

ANGELS

It's very much a weather-related event.

"Opening night is a seasonal business. No matter how much you prepare for it, how much you train for it or how ready you are, you're not going to be able to do it with top efficiency."

In the stands, fans may or may not have been mourning the loss of the Pee Wee Gang. For two years, the group of — oh, some would say misfits — would dance between innings in the stands. Three of its members have moved on to better and brighter futures.

The lone member of the Pee Wee Gang who still calls Midland home is Doc Bryant. He was especially saddened at the disbanding of the tightly knit troupe.

"We sadly mourn its passing," Bryant said. "But some good things came of it. Some of us turned what was a hobby into the fulfillment of a dream."

At the peak of its success, Bryant said the gang was extended invitations to perform at every Texas League park. They were so famous — methinks that is the correct word — that even Davidson had words of regret at their passing.

"It was something that was fun," Davidson said. "And there's no adequate replacement for them. But something else will occur that will establish itself as a fan favorite."

For many in attendance, the highlight of the evening came after the conclusion of the game when a 73-year-old man blew himself up on second base.

He is known as Captain Dynamite. His real name is Patrick O'Brien. He is from Houston and not even the Astrodome will welcome him back because he shattered hundreds of light bulbs when he blew himself up inside the Eighth Wonder.

He has numerous scars on his arms from his escapades inside an exploding coffin. And yes, the dynamite has had a profound and damaging impact on his hearing, of which there is not much left.

The Captain was slightly injured following Friday night's explosion, but walked away from the mishap.

O'Brien, who sat and signed autographs for dynamite-loving children, said he was still risking danger for one reason.

"I want to outlast the Flying Walenda," he said. "He was 75 when he fell off his wire. I want to do this until I'm 75, so I can be known as the oldest active stunt man."

All in all, opening night at Angel Stadium took on a carnival-type atmosphere. Above all, those in attendance enjoyed themselves which, according to both Davidson and Captain Dynamite, is the important thing.

And despite the popcorn machine and assorted minor problems, Davidson said the crowd — and the night — was outstanding.

The Angels will host San Antonio at 7 p.m. in the nightcap of a Saturday doubleheader that begins at 4 p.m. with the Midland High-Midland Lee game.

The Angels remain in town through April 16, sans the Captain and hopefully with working popcorn machines.

CLEMENTS

Gasoline prices in California, Oregon and Washington state have increased in the aftermath of the spill.

Clements, a Republican, said he and Bush are in full accord on the supercolliding superconductor, which would be the world's largest atom smasher if built, as the U.S. government plans, in Waxahachie, Texas, 25 miles south of Dallas.

The Reagan administration announced the location for the $11 billion project Nov. 10. Bush has included $250 million for the project, $160 million for construction and $90 million for operation, in his fiscal 1990 budget.

Though an effort to block funding in Congress is expected, the amount requested by Bush was included in a Department of Energy authorization bill approved Thursday by the House Science and Technology energy research and development subcommittee.

Said Clements: "I'm optimistic as far as the support in the Congress is concerned. At what level (of funding), I'm not quite sure." Bush, Clements said approvingly, "strongly supports" the project that has been billed as an economic boon to the Lone Star State.

Clements was in Washington for a whirlwind 27-hour visit. On Thursday, he met Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and separately with Texas's Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. He also attended the White House state dinner for Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

In addition to meeting Bush, he met with Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger Friday.

Clements predicted that Cheney would appoint a task force to study the national security implications of having other countries participate in the supercollider project.

An aide said Clements and Eagleburger discussed the issue of twin Maquiladora plants located along the Texas-Mexican border.

Also attending the Oval Office luncheon was John Sununu, Bush's chief of staff.

VALENCIA

Ms. Valencia, 55, remains in the Midland County Jail where she has been since 238th District Judge Vann Culp, who presided over her March 1988 trial, revoked her appeal bond. That action came after she and her husband Joe, 59, were arrested February 6 at their home in rural Midland. They were charged with possession of a controlled substance. Joe Valencia has been released on bond.

"Now that this (1988 conviction) has been affirmed, she will remain and jail and serve her 10-year sentence," Frost said. He said it was uncertain if she would stay at the county jail or be transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections.

The trial on the February charge likely will begin in June, Frost said. The prosecutor said he "couldn't say," what effect the appeals court action would on the pending case.

Midland County Sheriff's officers arrested Ms. Valencia in August 1987 at the family-owned store, La Morenita, 609 N. Dallas St., after they found her in possession of 31 "papers" of heroin. The March 1988 trial followed that arrest.

A few weeks after the August arrest, the store was boarded up and locked, as officers sought federal help to seize the business. The effort was successful, as U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton on Jan. 27 ordered the store forfeited to the government.

In his order, Bunton said "the property was used by the Valencias as a storage place and distribution location for heroin and cocaine."

Local author having autograph party

Mrs. Smith died Thursday at a local hospital.

She was born March 20, 1904 in Granbury. She moved to Martin County in the late 1920s. She later moved to the Courtney community with her husband, James Garrett Smith, where they farmed, raised their family and were active in church.

In 1952, they moved to Midland where she was an active member of the Christian Life Center Church as well as other local churches. She was preceded in death by her husband in 1982 and her son, Gene Smith, in 1976.

Survivors include one son, Billy J. Smith of Denver City; one daughter, Patsy Ruth Stewart of Midland; one brother, Ira J. Hamilton of Texas City; two sisters, Minnie Mitchell of Crosbyton and Effie Evans of Pasadena; six grandchildren, 11 great-grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

The family requests memorials to Hospice of Midland.

Pallbearers will be Gerald Smith, Chip Stewart, Steve Smith, Tim Smith, Brent Wilkens, and Brandon Wilkens.

Honorary pallbearers will be Garrett Stewart and Michael Grimes.

Willie Pearl Tubbs

Services for Willie Pearl Tubbs, 70, of Midland will be held at 3 p.m. today at the Macedonia Baptist Church with the Rev. O.J. Archie officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Jackson Funeral Home.

Tubbs

Mrs. Tubbs died Wednesday at a local hospital.

She was born Nov. 7, 1918 in Oakwood.

Survivors include two daughters, Hortense Brown of Midland and Lilly Griffin of Dallas; four brothers, Jesse J. Tubbs Jr. of Fort Worth, John A. Tubbs of Electra, Louis L. Tubbs of Vernon, and Leland Tubbs of Oakwood; and six grandchildren.

Karla Meek

ODESSA — Karla Meek, 23, of Odessa died Thursday at a Dallas hospital.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Monday at Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home chapel, with burial following in Trinity Memorial Park in Big Spring.

Ms. Meek was born Sept. 14, 1965 in Big Spring and was an office clerk for the Swim Shop in Odessa. She also was a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Meek of Odessa; a brother, James Kent Meek of Odessa; and a sister, Kathy Fontenot of Eunice, La.

George Dewhurst

TULSA — George Dewhurst, 56, died Friday at a local hospital.

Services will be Monday at 2 p.m. at the Boston Avenue Methodist Church here with Dr. Mouzon Biggs officiating. Arrangments are under the direction of Moore Funeral Home's Southlawn Chapel.

He was born April 22, 1933 in Colorado. Dewhurst, vice president of production for Amerada Hess, was a former Seminole resident.

Survivors include his wife Anita of Tulsa.

Clements seeks review of foreign participation in SSC

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign participation in the super collider raises national security implications that must be investigated, Gov. Bill Clements said Friday after seeking such a review from President Bush and Defense Secretary Dick Cheney.

"Before we actively pursue foreign participation in the SSC, we have an obligation to make a considered judgment on what are the national security implications in this project. This is a vitally important question," Clements said after meeting with Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

After the session with the president in the Oval Office, Clements suggested an interagency task force be created to conduct the review.

Clements said he has raised the issue with Bentsen, a Texas Democrat; Cheney; Energy Secretary James Watkins; National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft; and members of Congress including Rep. Tom Bevill, the influential Alabama Democrat whose House appropriations subcommittee will decide spending for the collider in next year's budget.

"Everybody's in agreement that an evaluation of the national security aspect has to be thoroughly explored and determined before we get in to some kind of a foreign participation," Clements said.

At a recent hearing of his subcommittee, Bevill suggested Congress would not be willing to fund construction of the collider unless foreign governments agree to help pay for it.

Bevill said Congress would insist on knowing specifically how much each foreign contributor planned to spend. Bush is seeking $250 million to begin construction next year for the particle accelerator at a site south of Dallas.

Clements said he met with Bevill on Thursday, and "he acknowledges that this area of national security needs to be fully explored."

The Republican governor was in Washington for a dinner at the White House Thursday with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

Clements said the review he is seeking could be completed in 60 to 90 days, and that the issue had been on his mind for some time.

Asked what he was specifically concerned about, Clements said, "If I knew, I wouldn't be investigating it."

Rep. John Bryant, a Dallas Democrat who opposes foreign participation in the superconducting super collider, said he welcomed Clements "to the battle."

"I think it's only common sense that we ought to question a proposed arrangement in which we pay all the costs and Japan gets as much benefit as we do," Bryant said Friday.

"It's costing $5.9 billion and they're negotiating with Japan on an in-kind contribution of $400 million. "It's peanuts compared to the overall cost of it," Bryant said.

If the anticipated spinoffs make the project worth spending billions to build, "surely it would be nonsense to give all the of benefits away in return for a tiny contribution from Japan," Bryant said.

Sen. Phil Gramm, a Texas Republican, said he is still committed to SSC cost-sharing arrangements with foreign governments.

"Since will we will share the science and technology from the SSC, I am committed to sharing the costs of building the SSC," Gramm said. "Certainly, there will be technology that evolves from the SSC that will later be made proprietary by private companies and that will be classified for security reasons by the Defense Department."

Gramm said the review proposed by Clements is "prudent."

Bentsen said Clements has a "good point. We ought to resolve this question."

Students think coffee hides drugs

HOUSTON (AP) — A new anti-drug effort at Bellaire High School involving drug-sniffing dogs has prompted some students to put tuna, coffee or incense in their lockers in an effort to derail the program.

"I heard about coffee," said Gabby Garcia, 16. "People say the coffee hides the odor of drugs. I know a girl (whose boyfriend) sells drugs in school. He said he was going to put coffee in his locker."

Antoine Thomas, 17, said Thursday he's heard students say they'll light tiny incense candles to mask any drug odors.

But Houston Police Narcotics Division Capt. Dennis Schumann said the students' ploys won't work.

"That's a misconception on their part," he said. "The dogs are trained to go after narcotics. The dog knows what he's supposed to alert on. A lot of cocaine dealers feel that way (about coffee), but they are mistaken as well."

Kenneth Collins, 17, said no one he knows is trying to hide drugs, but he disagrees with using dogs to search lockers.

"The lockers are too easy to get into," Collins said. "You could easily be set up."

Man who says wife died in accident has 2 wives, both alive

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas man who claimed the city was negligent in the traffic death of his wife actually has two wives — and both of them are alive.

Robert Jerome Brown, 33, and one of his wives, Sonja Brown, 20, remained jailed in Malvern, Ark., Friday on capital murder charges stemming from an unrelated incident.

The two face arraignment on the capital murder charges Monday, officials said.

But it was Brown's arrest in East Texas early last month for auto theft that started Texas and Arkansas officials on a whirlwind investigation that uncovered suspects in an unsolved 1986 murder, a phony identification of a traffic accident victim and two wives — one of whom says she was never near a Dallas freeway accident that Brown said killed her.

"This is a very bizarre case," said Dallas homicide Dectective James Gallagher. "If he didn't have this small problem with this homicide case up in Arkansas, I'm sure we'd see quite a few more charges against him."

In January 1988, Brown identified the body of a woman who was struck and killed while walking across a Dallas highway as his estranged wife, Jacquelyn Brown, 34, of Alport, Ark. When Brown said he had no money to bury his wife, the body was placed in a Dallas County pauper's grave.

Then Brown allegedly hired an attorney to file a wrongful death lawsuit against the city, claiming negligence in not placing a street light in the area.

But Gallagher found Jacquelyn Brown "alive and well" after he was tipped by Brown's other wife, Sonja, that there might be something mysterious about her "death."

Gallagher called Jacquelyn Brown's parents after reviewing her death certificate and was startled to learn the woman was still alive. He also learned the woman, who had been estranged from Brown for several years but never divorced, saw Brown in October.

"Initially she was surprised," Gallagher said of Jacquelyn Brown's reaction to the news of her reported death. "But then when I told her who had made these allegations, she wasn't too surprised."

Calls from The Associated Press to Jacquelyn Brown's home in Arkansas were unanswered Friday.

"For somebody to do something like this takes a lot of gall," Gallagher said.

Brown, a Stuttgart, Ark., native who had been living in Dallas, was apprehended March 3 while driving a 1983 Cadillac through East Texas to Shreveport, La. The car had been stolen in Arkansas, said Hot Springs County Chief Deputy Leonard Tisdale.

Brown was extradited to Malvern, Ark., and began discussing information about murder cases in Dallas, Tisdale said.

"He had implicated himself in seven down there," Tisdale said. "He said he knew about these killings."

But when Gallagher and a colleague gathered their files on the cases and talked to Brown, they realized he knew many details of highly publicized cases, but nothing more than had been reported in the news, the Dallas detective said.

"I don't know what would make a man admit to doing something he didn't do," Tisdale said.

But when questioning continued, Brown told Arkansas officials he and his wife, Sonja Brown, had strangled a Little Rock prostitute in 1986 and left her body on a guardrail on Interstate 30.

The body of Gloria J. Reynolds, 24, was found about six miles south of Malvern, just past a highway rest stop, on Dec. 4, 1986, Tisdale said. She had been robbed of $50 and strangled with a belt.

Gallagher said Dallas police began questioning Sonja Brown about her alleged role in the murder and she told them Brown told her he was somehow inovolved in Jacquelyn's "death."

"At first it appeared it was going to be a homicide," Gallagher said. But when Jacquelyn Brown was found alive, Dallas police began an investigation into the real identity of the traffic accident victim.

"I have a good idea who it is, but I'm waiting for some fingerprints to arrive from Los Angeles to confirm who's in the grave," Gallagher said. Last month, a woman reported her 22-year-old sister missing since December 1987, he said. Fingerprints of the missing woman are being shipped from Los Angeles where she was once arrested.

Gallagher said police believe Brown's motive in claiming the unidentified body appears to be money from the lawsuit against the city, but he never followed up on the suit.

Panel OKs $46.9 billion budget plan

AUSTIN (AP) — House budget writers Friday approved a $46.9 billion proposed budget for the 1990-91 biennium that can be funded without a tax increase, according to the chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

"It's a little high, but we think we're going to be OK," said state Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield. "We've got our fingers crossed."

The budget recommendation is about 10 percent higher than current spending levels and represents a $2.5 billion increase in general revenue spending.

The general revenue fund is the state's major account that is composed of taxpayer dollars.

Rudd said the proposal will pay for basic state services. "It really covers the basic subjects. It's about as good a job as we ever do," he said.

The increased spending can be supported without a tax increase because of bookkeeping and insurance and franchise tax changes enacted by the Legislature that will pump in about about $1.9 billion, Rudd said.

In addition, the improving state economic picture will result in more revenue.

"We've got a lot of good signs out there in the economy. We're pretty optimistic," he said.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock will give lawmakers more breathing room in the budget when he delivers a revised revenue estimate later this month to reflect the improving economy, a spokesman said Friday.

The revenue estimate is important to lawmakers because it controls the amount of money they may appropriate for expenditures for the two-year budget cycle.

Tony Proffitt, a spokesman for Bullock, said the comptroller's office is working on a revised estimate to take into account the "continued and expanded economic recovery."

"Quite frankly there's been some preliminary calculations on the numbers and it's good news," he said. He declined to say how much more revenue would fall into state coffers due to increased economic activity.

The Appropriations panel cheered after approving the proposed budget on a 22-0 vote. The recommendation will be considered by the full House in about two weeks.

The Senate is expected to take up its budget committee's proposed $46.7 billion budget next week. If both chambers adopt their respective proposals then a conference committee will negotiate the differences.

The Appropriations Committee's budget includes about $100 million in prison construction and $154 million for Capitol renovation that the Senate Finance Committee doesn't include. The Finance panel budget envisions issuing bonds for the prison construction.

"We can get by without bonds," Rudd said.

The Appropriations budget includes about $300 million for a state employee pay raise. The raise would give employees making below $1,820 per month a $125 per month raise, while employees making more than $1,820 per month would receive a $100 monthly raise.

According to preliminary figures, the budget would boost higher education spending by about $650 million; public education, $500 million; and human services $325 million.

A rider attached to the bill near the end of the panel's deliberations urges state agencies to attain goals reflected in the private workforce in hiring minorities.

Lawyer says fired TPW director following orders

AUSTIN (AP) — The lawyer defending fired state wildlife director Charles Allen says Allen was simply following the orders of his Parks and Wildlife Department bosses when he conducted "political" stockings of animals onto land owned by several influential Texans.

Lawyer Richard Morrison of Houston, a former Parks and Wildlife commissioner, blamed department officials and news coverage for Allen's downfall.

But authorities in New Mexico, where Allen faces charges over a Jan. 30 antelope-trapping mission, said they knew nothing about news reports of the incident and relied on their own investigation.

Morrison, in an interview with the Austin American-Statesman published Friday, said Allen was libeled by high-ranking Parks and Wildlife officials and was the victim of a conspiracy to force him out of the job he held for just over two years.

Morrison, who served on the commission until March, criticized news coverage of Allen's investigation by state and federal officials over the antelope trapping mission that authorities allege strayed into New Mexico.

"You've done a bad job in this," Morrison told a reporter.

The lawyer said the truth of Allen's involvement was that he was directed by his superiors in the political stockings, adding that such information wasn't included in news reports.

"I'll tell you what the truth is. They engaged in a conspiracy to get my man, from the word go," Morrison said.

Commission Chairman Charles Nash said he couldn't respond to Morrison's charges since he hadn't talked with Morrison or seen reports of the allegations. Charles Travis, executive director of the department, didn't return a call from The Associated Press.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, whose ranch was stocked with elk, deer, turkey and fish in the stocking operations, on Thursday also criticized news reports about the department. He said the "only reasons" charges were filed "was because of the press play it received back here in Austin, Texas."

But that was disputed by New Mexico officials, including an assistant district attorney and the law enforcement officer who headed the investigation. They said news coverage of the event played no part in the three felony and six misdemeanor charges filed against Allen in Alamogordo, N.M., last week.

"I never knew there were any articles printed in Austin up until the time that the charges were filed," said Ron Porter, New Mexico game and fish law enforcement officer.

"What we did was look at the case itself, the facts, that are contained within the (official) report. I assumed there had been no press in Texas. We did not know anything (news coverage) existed, therefore it could not have influenced us," he said.

Assistant District Attorney Isabel Bronzina-Brim referred to a news release issued by her office when the charges were filed, saying they came after a review of the investigation.

"I think that that answers your question," she said.

Former official reportedly gets extra permits

AUSTIN (AP) — Former Parks and Wildlife Commissioner George Bolin used his position to obtain 42 alligator hunting permits over the limit set by department biologists between 1985 and 1988 for friends who operate a ranch in Chambers County, the Austin American-Statesman reported Friday.

Officials now say they are concerned about the decreasing size of alligators on the ranch. According to field studies conducted by the parks and wildlife staff, the alligators have gone from more than 9 feet in 1985 to a little more than 7 feet in 1987, said Lee Ann Johnson, alligator species leader in Austwell.

Bolin said he asked for the extra permits at the request of friends and saw no impropriety in the action.

Alligators have been off the endangered species list in Texas since 1983. They remain on the list of threatened species, which is why hunting them is strictly limited by Parks and Wildlife. Their numbers, however, are strong in Texas.

According to the American-Statesman, Bolin requested extra permits for the property after Parks and Wildlife Department personnel had set the limit for the number of alligators that could be harvested on the land that year.

Bruce Thompson, endangered species program director for Parks and Wildlife, said the extra permits "were a specified number that I received." He would not say who gave him the number but said "it came out of the executive office. The request came down the line."

Thompson said, "I was aware of the potential damage (of the additional harvest to the alligators and the program) and voiced it." He said he "found it disconcerting because it wasn't in sync with the program." Thompson added, however, that Texas had deliberately used conservative numbers in setting harvest quotas.

Asked if he viewed his actions as special favors, Bolin said, "It was a request that I made. And it was granted." Asked if he had made similar requests for others, Bolin told the newspaper, "That's for you to find out."

Thompson said no other such requests had been made or granted.

Bolin said he asked for the extra permits after his friends, Ralph and Dee Leggett, "called me and asked me if it was possible to get any more."

U.S. accuses Soviets of bugging consulate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States angrily accused the Soviet Union on Friday of placing several listening devices in the U.S. Consulate in Leningrad and said the American people resented "such hostile attempts at intelligence gathering."

The allegation was leveled by the State Department in a brief notice to the press. It said the listening devices were discovered in early February during an inspection.

"Such hostile attempts at intelligence gathering, however long ago they may have been initiated, are deeply resented by the American people," the department said it had told the Soviets in a protest.

The devices in the consulate — which was opened in 1973 — were discovered by security officers from the Bureau of Diplomatic Security, the statement said.

According to a U.S. official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, the devices were implanted "deep in the structure a long time ago."

Ambassador Rozanne Ridgway, who heads the State Department's European Affairs Bureau, summoned Soviet Ambassador Yuri Dubinin this week to deliver the protest, said spokeswoman Nancy Beck. Officials, refusing to be identified, said Dubinin was called in on Friday.

In 1985, the United States accused the Soviets of planting listening devices in the new U.S. embassy chancery in Moscow. In 1987, a Marine guard, Sgt. Clayton Lonetree, was accused and court-martialed on charges he permitted Soviet intelligence agents to gain access to the U.S. embassy.

The latest accusation of Soviet intrusion was unexpected. The two governments were in the process of deciding whether to open new consulates in Kiev and New York.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III, meanwhile, was in the midst of deciding what to do about the U.S. embassy in Moscow.

The two aides he sent there on an inspection trip returned two weeks ago with a recommendation to salvage part of the chancery, an administration official said Wednesday.

Their recommendation was to dismantle the top floors, which are believed to be riddled with eavesdropping devices, and to replace them with bug-free floors or an adjoining annex, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The inspection was conducted by Nicholas M. Salgo, a former U.S. ambassador to Hungary, and Ivan Selin, who has been nominated to be undersecretary of state for management.

They told Baker on their return that refurbishing the building or even constructing an annex would be cheaper than razing the chancery and starting over. The estimated cost of tearing down and rebuilding the structure is $500 million.

The official said Baker would take into consideration the views of key members of Congress. Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, chairman of a House appropriations subcommittee, last month opposed spending the $500 million. Others on Capitol Hill are inclined to agree with the conclusion last year of a Washington area engineering firm that starting over is the only way to make the chancery secure.

A trade group headed by Dwayne O. Andreas, chairman of Archer Daniels Midland Co., offered to buy the building for use as business offices.

Andreas is co-chairman of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade and Economic Council, which promotes trade between the two superpowers. He made the offer on behalf of a consortium of U.S. companies, which would use the building as a Moscow headquarters.

The Soviets would have to approve any sale because the building was intended for use as a new embassy, built under a 1972 agreement between the two countries.

A study done for the Reagan administration by former Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger recommended last year that the top three floors be dismantled and rebuilt while an annex also was put up next to the chancery.

In 1987, Anne Armstrong, who was head of then-President Reagan's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, called for the use of existing technology and development of new methods to clear the chancery of eavesdropping devices.

North admitted he lied to lawmakers, said he was 'pawn'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oliver North conceded Friday he lied to congressmen who came to the White House to question him about the Contras, but he said he didn't think it was unlawful because the things he was hiding, "I was told, could not, should not be revealed."

"I felt like a pawn in a chess game being played by giants," he testified.

The courtroom at his criminal trial was packed and long lines formed in the hallway outside as the former National Security Council aide spent his second day in the witness chair, undergoing gentle examination by his own lawyer, Brendan Sullivan.

At the White House, meanwhile, President Bush, citing concern about "endangering the trial," refused to answer questions about his own role in aiding the Contras, as disclosed in a lengthy "admission of facts" introduced by North's lawyers on Thursday.

The court statement, agreed to by both the government and North's lawyers, said Bush got several North memoranda regarding the secret operation to aid the Contras and also flew to Honduras to tell that nation's president of expedited U.S. aid — which was aimed at inducing Honduras to help the Contras as well.

In court Friday, the jury was read a "Dear Ollie" note that Bush, then vice president, sent North at Thanksgiving in November 1985.

"One of the many things I have to be thankful for is the way in which you have performed under fire in tough situations," said the note, written on the back of a picture. "Your dedication to the hostage thing and Central America gives me cause for great pride."

On the witness stand, North testified that to fend off the possibility of a broader congressional inquiry, he agreed to meet with the House Intelligence Committee in the White House on August 1986.

The 12 felony charges against him include obstructing Congress in saying he didn't give military advice to the Nicaraguan Contras and didn't raise money for them.

"Did you tell the truth at that meeting on Aug. 6, 1986?" Sullivan asked.

"No," said North.

"Do you believe your conduct was unlawful?"

"No, I didn't think that it was unlawful..."

"I was put in a situation, having been raised to know what the Ten Commandments are and knowing it would be wrong to do that, but I went into the meeting not believing it would be illegal not to tell Congress the truth. And that's why I didn't think the meeting would be a good idea."

North said he wanted the Reagan White House to invoke executive privilege and refuse to answer any questions but was brushed aside by his boss.

"You start howling about executive privilege and it's just going to make it more difficult for everybody," North said Poindexter told him.

North also testified Friday that he complained that a key letter sent to Capitol Hill by Robert McFarlane, Poindexter's predecessor as national security adviser, was "totally inconsistent" with the facts and "all this was going to do was add fuel to the fire." North said, "The answer he wanted to give was wrong; it was not factual."

That letter forms the basis of one of the charges. Although it was signed by McFarlane, prosecutors charge that North drafted it.

North also contradicted McFarlane by testifying he altered classified memos at McFarlane's direction.

The memos showed "what I had been doing at his direction in Central America" for the Contras, "the delivery of arms, working with General Secord and...building the resistance," North told the jury.

Richard Secord, a former major general, was enlisted by North to run arms to the Contras.

McFarlane, however, had testified at the trial that North came to him unsolicited with a few proposed changes, but that McFarlane threw them away.

North said he had balked at making the changes when McFarlane first asked in 1985.

But in November 1986 as the Iran-Contra affair was surfacing, McFarlane, by then out of the NSC but having returned to help reconstruct an account of the Iran arms initiative, again asked North about the memos.

"I haven't taken care of it yet, but I will," North said he told McFarlane. North's former secretary, Fawn Hall, testified earlier that on instructions from North she altered the documents by deleting numerous references to North's direct involvement with the Contras.

"It never occurred to me it was unlawful," North said.

"I felt like a pawn in a chess game being played by giants."

Ex-Rhodesian soldier recalls 'immoral' war

By DIDRIKKE SCHANCHE

HARARE, Zimbabwe (AP) — As a Rhodesian soldier, Bruce Moore-King believed the good were white, the evil were black and the war he fought was a noble struggle waged in the name of Christian democracy.

Moore-King

A decade later, he is convinced the war to prevent black majority rule was immoral and looks back with shame at how he and thousands of other white Rhodesians accepted "simplistic, jingoistic nonsense" from their leaders.

Far worse, he says his fellow whites still hold blacks in contempt and he fears they are throwing away their last chance for peace in the land now called Zimbabwe.

Once a member of an elite counterguerrilla force, the Grey Scouts, Moore-King has written the first published reproval of the seven-year war by a former supporter of white rule.

In "White Man Black War," Moore-King accuses the leaders — "Elders," he calls them — in what was the breakaway British colony of Rhodesia of an inflexibility that led to the deaths of 1,400 whites and 27,000 blacks before the white minority gave up power under British pressure in 1978.

"These Elders valued the comfort of their lifestyles beyond the lives of their children," Moore-King writes in the book published by Zimbabwe's year-old Baobab Books. "It was greed that sent us to war."

The 134-page volume has caused a stir among blacks and whites who fought or lived through the conflict that ended with Rhodesia's transition to independent, black-governed Zimbabwe. It provoked numerous reviews in the local media, with one white lawyer saying the book "was like peeling a scab off and seeing how well the wound was healing."

Moore-King's unforgiving and brutal accounts of war atrocities form the basis of his scathing indictment of Rhodesia's leaders. He particularly assails Ian Smith, the prime minister of Rhodesia, calling him the whites' "High Priest."

"Mr. Smith, along with the farmers, businessmen, and other politicians told us that we were not fighting to persecute, oppress, or deny our black countrymen — we killed and burned to save them from communism," Moore-King writes.

"The shameful part of our history is not that we were wrong, just that we were so childishly thoughtless," Moore-King said in an interview at his modest home in Ruwa, about 20 miles east of Harare (formerly Salisbury), the capital. The house is off a dirt road surrounded by African bush and black neighbors.

Moore-King, 36, said the book, published in December and now into its second printing, was born of anger and fear he felt after returning to his homeland in 1985 after a seven-year absence.

"I feared the whites in this country were screwing up the opportunity to live in this land," he said. "They have been given a second chance, in a way."

An estimated 90,000 whites remain in Zimbabwe out of the 250,000 or so in the early 1970s.

"The irony is that having lost the war, we haven't lost the lifestyle," Moore-King added.

Most whites in Zimbabwe live in spacious homes, many with swimming pools and tennis courts and cared for by black servants.

Smith, who still lives in Zimbabwe, said he does not intend to read "White Man Black War" and dismissed Moore-King as a "crank."

"It seems at one time he was a great Grey Scout," said Smith in a telephone interview. "Now he's turned against everything he once believed."

Moore-King, who is bearded, broad and imposingly tall, was a sergeant in the Grey Scouts, a mounted infantry unit used as a mobile fireforce and specializing in high-speed tracking.

In flowing, impressionistic style, his book recounts wanton destruction, torture and pointless massacres.

Soldiers mistakenly bomb a schoolhouse in which black civilians have taken refuge, and 123 are killed. A "nanny and two pics" walking home late at night are gunned down by inexperienced young soldiers who mistake them for guerrillas. A black man hangs spreadeagled on a steel bed-frame while a soldier sends electric jolts through wires attached to his scrotum and a nipple.

Moore-King left Rhodesia in 1978 and wandered around Europe for several years, still believing the war was a noble affair.

"I swore I wasn't a racist and justified it by saying I didn't hate black people, they just weren't ready for independence," he said.

Moore-King's attitude began to shift when he went to South Africa in the early 1980s and worked at an insurance agency on an equal basis with blacks.

When he returned to Zimbabwe upon the death of his parents, he feared retaliation by the black government. Instead, he said, he was welcomed back by blacks who treated him with respect.

But he found attitudes little changed among whites.

In his book, Moore-King tells of a moment soon after his return when his landlord found him sharing tea on his porch with a black neighbor. Not only were Moore-King and his wife evicted, but the landlord locked the vegetable garden Moore-King had left to his black friend.

England's Nick Faldo chipping into share of lead

Trevino, Faldo set for Green Coat run

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A cold, blustery wind had some of the world's finest players talking to themselves Friday in the 53rd Masters.

But Lee Trevino's attention was centered on a morning shower that softened the greens at the Augusta National Golf Club course.

"I love it. I'm a mudder. Every major championship I've won has been in the mud and rain," said Trevino, twice a winner of the U.S. and British Opens, and a two-time winner of the PGA.

"If it rains, if the greens stay soft, I've got a great shot at it," said Trevino, 49, who has never finished higher than 10th in this tournament and once vowed he'd never play again at Augusta. "But I hear it's clear from here to Hawaii."

The forecast is in his favor. There's a chance of more showers Saturday.

"If it rains, I can play this course," said Trevino, the oldest man to ever lead any round of the Masters.

He led through the first round with a 68 and held onto a share of the top spot with Nick Faldo after making up four shots over the last eight holes. Trevino now finds himself poised for a run at the big one that has eluded, frustrated and angered him over the years.

Ignoring the wind and cold — he was stomping around in a short-sleeved shirt while the rest of the field was burrowing into layers of sweaters — Trevino patiently contrived a round of 74 and reached the halfway point tied with Faldo at 141, 3 under par on the unforgiving course.

Faldo, the Englishman who recorded eight runner-up finishes around the world last year, had a 73 that included bogeys on two of his last three holes.

Faldo, four shots in front of Trevino and three ahead of the field after 10 holes, agreed that Trevino could win.

"Lee is playing very solid. He's hitting a lot of good shots. He can play here. He can play anywhere," Faldo said.

THIS TIME, it was an exercise in patience.

"On a day like today, you have to remember that par is about 75," said Trevino, who let the extremely difficult conditions sweep away the hopes of other would-be challengers.

"Brutal," Tom Kite said.

"It's ugly out there," said Ken Green, whose 69 was the best round of the day and one of only five subpar efforts.

Green was tied at 143, two shots off the lead, with British Open champion Seve Ballesteros of Spain, former Masters titleholder Ben Crenshaw, Mike Reid and Scott Hoch.

Reid had a 71. Crenshaw and Ballesteros each matched par 72 and Hoch shot 74.

"It was a two-club wind," said Green. "With the wind swirling through the pines, it was very hard to get the ball close to the hole.

"And if you do, when you get on the green the wind is rocking you, moving you, and it's tough to make a putt."

Ballesteros could testify to that.

From a position one stroke off the lead, the two-time Masters winner four-putted for a double bogey-7 on the 15th hole and three-putted for bogey on the 17th.

"A disaster," he said.

It certainly wasn't the only one.

Take Faldo, for example. He was breezing along with a two-stroke cushion with three holes to play.

But suddenly, he couldn't find a green. He bogeyed two of the last three holes, and flirted with double bogey on both the 16th and 17th.

Or there was Hoch, within striking distance of the top after a birdie on the 15th. He hit into the water on the 16th and wandered away with a double bogey.

Tom Kite, who has played so well so often on Augusta National but has yet to acquire the green jacket that goes to the winner, was 2 under for the tournament after 15 holes, then bogeyed two of his last three.

"The golf course, combined with the conditions — it's brutal," Kite said after matching par 72. He was at par 144 for two rounds.

"Under the conditions, this is about as hard as I've seen the golf course play. And I've been here 17 times," he said.

Curtis Strange, who beat Faldo in a playoff for the 1988 U.S. Open title, had one of the more remarkable efforts with 17 pars and a birdie.

"Incredible," said Kite. "No bogeys? I don't believe it."

Strange was very much in contention at 145, only four back. Also at that figure, 1 over par, was Tom Watson, the five-time British Open winner who is trying to regain some of the magic that once was his alone. He had a hard-won 73.

Jack Nicklaus, the only six-time winner of this title, birdied the last hole for a 74 that left him at 147.

Australian Greg Norman was two shots higher at 147 after a 75.

Midland Angels open Texas League season with win

Inside the park homer highlight for 2,644 fans

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Midland's Angels, on opening night, at least, were everything Manager Max Oliveras predicted they'd be in handing the San Antonio Missions an 8-5 loss in the Angel Stadium Texas League opener before 2,644 fans in idyllic baseball weather Friday night.

The Angels exhibited strong pitching, power, speed and good up-the-middle defense that wasn't bad around the edges either.

Highlight of the night for Midland was the home run, not just any home run, but an inside-the-park-home run, something as rare as a buffalo in these parts.

Bob Rose banked it off the angle in right-center in the fifth and circled the bases to cap a three-run rally and give Midland an 8-1 lead. What's more, the Angels flirted with the Guiness Book of Records by almost hitting two of the insiders in a row.

CATCHER JOHN Orton rattled the fence in left-center, preceding Rose, and was nailed at the plate. Oliveras blames first baseman Brian Traxler for heading that one off at the pass.

"I sent Orton home when the centerfielder's throw missed the cut off man," explained the Midland manager, "I didn't see the first baseman coming over to back up the play."

Two double plays, two Brooks Robinson jobs by Rose at third and Reed Peters diving catch to rob Michael Santana provided major league defense. And while the Angels didn't steal any bases, the inside the park homer, Orton's triple and another by Gary DiSarcina offered evidence of the base path speed Oliveras alluded to earlier in the week.

"No stolen bases, but we are going to use speed the way it should be used, going for the extra base, the hit-and-run," promised Max. "The rabbits are out. We are going to play aggressive baseball."

AND THERE was pitching, Scott Lewis starting, leaving with the bases loaded in the sixth with an 8-1 lead and getting the win. Lefthander Frank DeMichele, Vinicio Cedeno and Gary Buckles nailed it down with Buckles earning the save with a one-two-three ninth.

"Sure, we were concerned about starting our youngest pitcher, but Gary (pitching coach Gary Rubey) told him he had to pitch aggressively in this park and he responded. The kid has big league control."

Oliveras also praised the job his relievers did, even though Cedeno was tagged for two runs. "I was glad to see him come back after giving up the two-run homer. We know what he can do for us. He has the big league arm. That's why he has the big league contract."

"You bet I heard the stories about this park. They scared me," admitted Lewis, who a year ago was still pitching college ball. "But I pitched in a worse park at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas. I gave up 20 home runs a season all three seasons I was there, but I won 10 games a season because I didn't walk anybody."

For Lewis, usually a fastball-slider pitcher, the fastball and the curve were doing the job against San Antonio in a six-hit, 5.1 inning stint. Until he ran into trouble in the sixth and loaded the bases on two singles and a walk, the lone run came in the three-hit second on Manny Francois' triple.

TRAXLER swung the big bat for San Antonio, singling home a run in the sixth and drilling a Cedeno pitch down the right field line for a two-run homer in the eighth.

MHS, Lee join Angels for twinbill

By JIMMY PATTERSON
Sports Writer

Two baseball games for the price of one aren't common enough as it is, but when you have a doubleheader which features four different teams, you're in for a real treat if you're a baseball fan.

And should you be a fan of the game, today is your lucky day as Angel Stadium hosts Midland High-Midland Lee at 4 p.m., followed by the Midland Angels-San Antonio Missions Texas League matchup at 7 p.m.

It is the first time in the history of the Angels' association with Midland that such a double bill has been offered.

"Ideally, a (doubleheader) of this nature should benefit the Angels and both the high schools," said Bill Davidson, general manager of the Angels. Davidson added that for the price of a ticket to the high school game ($1 for students, $2 for adults) fans could remain for the Angel game at no additional charge. Those who arrive after high school ticket sales end, though, will pay regular Angel ticket prices.

Midland High, 14-2 overall, 5-1 in district, is currently riding a four game winning streak. The Bulldogs, ranked No. 7 in the state in 5A ball, are in a tie for first in the District 4 baseball race with Odessa Permian.

The Lee Rebels have been confronted with some tough-luck losses lately, including a 13-0 drubbing by Abilene Cooper last Tuesday. The Rebs are 7-8 overall, 2-4 in district, and tied for fifth place with San Angelo.

MHS head coach Tim Whalen said he expects to either go with Dorey Thompson or James Madrid as his starting pitcher today. While Madrid has not yet started a district contest on the varsity level, he has shown encouraging signs in JV action. Thompson is 1-0 in district, winning a 3-2 decision over San Angelo while allowing just one earned run.

Whalen said one last practice session Friday would hopefully be the determining factor on who gets the nod.

Michael Pearson (1-2, 4.93 ERA) should start for the Rebels.

"It's going to be a very tough, close game," Whalen said, "because (the Rebels) are going to play us harder than anybody else. Whoever covers all their bases will win it."

Whalen, who called his team's batting "anemic" and hitting for extra bases "a cartoon" said the Bulldogs are under more pressure than the Rebels because of their position in the standings.

"At least not at this point, they're not under the same kind of pressure," Whalen said. "(Lee) can relax and come after us. Later on, though, the shoe may be on the other foot."

McCovery steps into Tubbs' Sooner succession line

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

Former Midland College standout Charles McCovery fits in well with a line of succession that already includes former MC greats Ricky Grace and Mookie Blaylock, says University of Oklahoma head basketball coach Billy Tubbs.

McCovery, who signed a national letter-of-intent with the Sooners last fall, can fill an immediate need for the Sooners next season, much as Grace and Blaylock did three and two seasons past, respectively, Tubbs said.

The OU mentor was in Midland to speak at a Friday banquet honoring the players selected for tonight's Texas-USA NJCAA All-Star Basketball Game.

Game time is 7 p.m. at Chaparral Center, but Tubbs and other major college coaches — like University of Arkansas mentor Nolan Richardson — spent much of Friday checking out both the Texas and USA squads in practices at Chap Center and the Midland College gym.

Tubbs said McCovery picked a good time to become a Sooner, though the veteran OU coach declined to detail McCovery's exact role.

"He'll be in our program at a great time," the coach said. "We do need him, and we're just delighted to have him."

McCovery joined high school forwards Jeff Webster of Midwest City, Okla. and Orlando LightFoot of Chattanooga, Tenn. as early Sooner signees. Tubbs said OU has room for three more recruits on its 1989-90 roster, some of whom come from among the many uncommitted standouts at tonight's game, if Tubbs' past track record is any indication.

Tubbs has liberally mixed junior college with high school recruits throughout a head coaching career that includes stops at Southwestern University, Lamar and OU. He finished the 1988-89 season with a lifetime record of 336-146, including a 230-78 mark in nine years at Oklahoma.

But Tubbs' attraction to junior college basketball predates his use of juco recruits as a head coach. The Tulsa, Okla.-bred Tubbs was a two-year starter at Lon Morris J.C. in Jacksonville, Tex. many moons ago, and he said juco players made their way to the major college ranks even then.

"There's always been a place for junior college players," Tubbs said. "Everybody off my junior college team went on to play somewhere."

Junior college basketball was really thrust into the spotlight when Proposition 48 went into effect in 1986. "Prop 48" outlined minimum grade point averages and standardized test scores for incoming freshmen. Non-qualifiers were either forced to sit out their freshman year at a major college or go to a junior college.

"Prop 48 spotlighted junior college basketball," Tubbs said. "A lot more players started going to junior colleges because the eligibility of junior college players was easier to insure."

Then, the coach's natural tendency to copy his colleagues came into play.

"Some coaches saw the success that Indiana had with junior college transfers and the fact that OU had gone far with theirs, and tried the same thing."

But Tubbs cautions against putting all of one's eggs in the junior college basket.

"We build our foundation with freshmen," he said. "Then we'll bring in a junior college player to fill an immediate need."

Sometimes a line of succession is established.

"Mookie (Blaylock) replaced Tim McCallister, who came to us as a freshman. Ricky Grace replaced Linwood Davis, who came to us from another junior college," Tubbs said.

And now McCovery is primed to replace Blaylock.

Texas-USA game chance to show cage wares to college recruiters

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

Kurt James has seen the bright lights of major college basketball and wants to go back after a year in relative junior college obscurity, while Billy Coles is still looking for that first crack at Division I competition.

Both played juco ball in relatively remote areas, but both hope that today's 7 p.m. Texas-USA NJCAA All-Star Basketball Game is the springboard to even more recruiting attention than they've already getting.

The vast majority of players on both teams opted to wait until the spring signing period to make their major college choices. Only guard Charles McCovery (Midland College to Oklahoma) and forward Larry Johnson (Odessa College to UNLV) on the Texas team signed last fall, while forward John Eubanks (Sullivan (Ky.) to Marshall) and David Harris (Mississippi CC (Ark.) to Texas A&M) signed early last fall.

However, Eubanks was reportedly seeking to get a release from his commitment to Marshall after the Thundering Herd underwent a coaching change this spring.

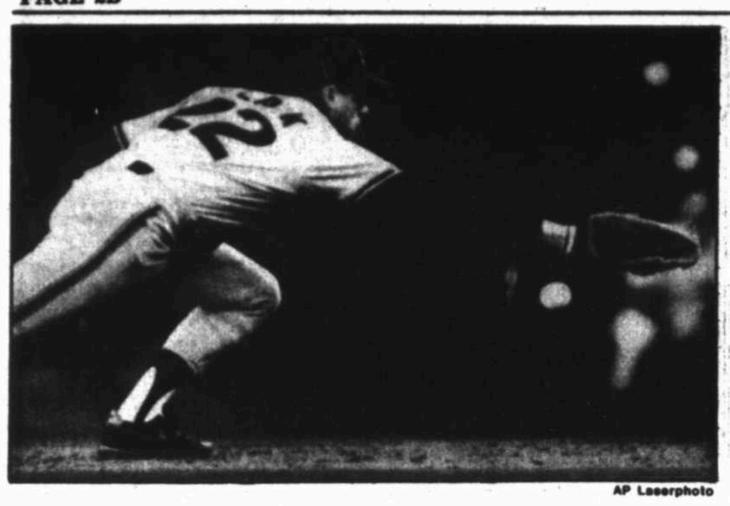

James, a 6-foot-4 guard, is the only player on either squad with major college experience. He led UNLV in assists as a freshman before running afoul of the books and transferring to Dixie College in St. George, Utah. — only about an hour's drive from Vegas.

The move from Nevada to Utah was not something the former Baltimore (Md.) Dunbar standout planned on, especially after his brother "Spoon" had done so well at UNLV. But he hopes the trip to St. George was just a one-year detour to glory with the Runnin' Rebels.

"I'm trying to get back to Vegas," James said. "But I would go to any other school where I would fit into their style of program and fit in academically."

Gruber's homer sinks Texas in 9th

San Francisco's Will Clark misses can't come up with this double down the line by Cincinnati's Jeff Reed Friday night.

Associated Press

Kelly Gruber's leadoff homer in the eighth inning gave the Toronto Blue Jays a 10-9 victory over the Texas Rangers Friday night.

Moments after Gruber's home run, the Blue Jays' Tony Fernandez, who hit a grand slam in the second inning, was hit in the face by a pitch from Cecilio Guante. Fernandez lay motionless for several minutes and was taken to a hospital.

Manny Lee's RBI single off Guante, 1-1, the fourth Texas pitcher, lifted Toronto into a 9-9 tie in the seventh.

Tony Castillo, 1-0, who relieved for the Blue Jays in the seventh, got the victory. Tom Henke pitched the ninth for his second save.

Toronto erased a 2-1 deficit with a five-run second inning capped by Fernandez's first career grand slam, which hit the right field foul pole.

But Julio Franco, who doubled in Texas' two runs in the first inning, came back with another two-run double in the third as Texas rallied for five runs for a 7-7 tie.

Scott Fletcher gave Texas the lead in the fourth with an RBI single after Sundberg walked and Espy singled. Espy then scored on Palmeiro's ground out, giving Texas a 9-7 lead.

Toronto made it 9-8 in the fifth when Fred McGriff walked, moved to second on a wild pitch by Brad Arnsberg and scored on Ernie Whitt's single.

American League

Indians 4, Yankees 2

Former Midland Cub Joe Carter hit a fluke three-run homer in the first inning, leading Cleveland past New York for the Yankees' first loss in a home opener in six years.

Carter hit a 2-0 pitch deep to left-center that center fielder Roberto Kelly ran down. But upon impact with the fence, the ball popped out of Kelly's glove and over the 399-foot sign for a three-run homer.

It was the Yankees' third straight defeat since beating the Twins on opening day in Minneapolis last Tuesday. Their previous home-opener loss was to Detroit April 12, 1983.

The Yankees rallied for two runs the ninth after Rich Yett limited them to three hits through eight innings.

John Candelaria walked Oddibe McDowell leading off the game and Jerry Browne followed with an infield single to third.

Last season, Candelaria walked only one of 162 leadoff batters he faced.

Candelaria, who missed 16 days in spring training with a sore knee, then settled down and left after seven-plus innings in which he allowed eight hits and struck out 10.

Tigers 10, Brewers 3

Kenny Williams' drove in three runs with double and single and Detroit battered Milwaukee in their home opener.

The Brewers, who got a solo homer from Rob Deer in the second inning, had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the seventh on a two-run homer by Glenn Braggs.

Twins 8, Orioles 3

Gary Gaetti had four hits, including a two-run single in Minnesota's six-run sixth inning.

Gaetti's single in the sixth tied the score 2-2 after singles by Wally Backman, Kirby Puckett and Kent Hrbek loaded the bases. Randy Bush tripled off the right-center field fence to drive in two more runs and knocked Orioles starter Rob Milacki, 0-1, out of the game.

Royals 9, Red Sox 8

Bob Boone capped a four-run rally in the ninth inning with a run-scoring single.

The Royals, who led 4-0 only to trail 8-5 going into the ninth, tied the score with no outs after Kurt Stillwell walked, Jim Eisenreich singled and Kevin Seitzer walked to load the bases.

George Brett singled in two runs, knocking out reliever Lee Smith, 0-1. Danny Tartabull then greeted Dennis Lamp with a game-tying single.

Padres maintain Astro mastery

Associated Press

Dennis Rasmussen scattered eight hits in eight-plus innings and escaped several jams as the San Diego Padres beat Houston 5-3 Friday night for their seventh consecutive victory over the Astros.

Rasmussen, 1-0, stranded runners at third base in the first three innings and in the sixth inning when Houston had two runners on with none out. Rasmussen was 14-4 for San Diego last season after being acquired from Cincinnati on June 8.

Ken Caminiti singled to start the ninth off Rasmussen and Mark Davis relieved. Alan Ashby doubled home Caminiti to make it 5-3 but Davis recovered for his second save of the season to send the Astros to their third straight defeat.

Luis Salazar had three of San Diego's 10 hits and Tony Gwynn had three stolen bases.

The Padres snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth with two runs off starter Rick Rhoden, who was making his debut with the Astros after being acquired from the New York Yankees during the offseason.

Braves 6, Dodgers 1

Fernando Valenzuela, trying to make it back from a shoulder injury last year, lost his first start of the season as Atlanta's Jody Davis drove in three runs.

It was Atlanta's third straight victory after an opening-night loss in Houston. Last season, the Braves lost their first 10 games of the season.

Valenzuela, the Dodgers big winner during the 1980s, suffered a stretched anterior capsule in his left shoulder last July and spent most of the winter building the muscle in the shoulder.

He pitched 6⅔ innings and allowed five runs and eight hits while striking out eight.

Braves' left-hander Tom Glavine, 1-0, pitched a four-hitter before a crowd of 31,929 which included former University of Georgia football coach Vince Dooley, who threw out the first ball.

With the score tied 1-1 and two outs in the fifth, Lonnie Smith doubled and moved to third on Jeff Blauser's infield single. Smith then scored on Valenzuela's wild pitch to put the Braves ahead.

After Gerald Perry walked and Dale Murphy got an infield single, Davis doubled in two runs to make it 4-1.

Davis added a run-scoring single in the seventh, to chase Valenzuela.

Cubs 6, Pirates 5

Mark Grace capped a two-run rally in the sixth inning by doubling home Andre Dawson from first base.

Dawson's single up the middle on Dorn Taylor's first pitch, had scored Mitch Webster with the tying run.

Webster, who went 4-for-5, had given the Cubs life with his fourth straight hit, a triple just inside the right field line with one out in the sixth.

Taylor, 0-1, who replaced Mike Dunne, the starter at the beginning of the fifth, got Ryne Sandberg to bounce out as Webster held third, but Dawson came through with his clutch hit.

Sid Bream had doubled home R.J. Reynolds from first base with two outs in the top of the sixth inning off Steve Wilson, a reliever, capping a two-run rally and giving the Pirates a 5-4 advantage.

Jose Lind opened the inning off starter Scott Sanderson by reaching second on third baseman Curt Wilkerson's throwing error. Bobby Bonilla drove in his third run with a single to right, tying the score. After R.J. Reynolds grounded into a fielder's choice, Reynolds scored on Bream's hit.

Wilson, who appeared in three games for Texas last year, won his first major league game with two-thirds inning of work. Calvin Schiraldi finished up to gain his first save.

NL Roundup

Expos 7, Mets 3

Kevin Gross allowed seven hits in eight-plus innings in his Montreal debut and Nelson Santovenia hit a two-run homer.

Gross struck out three and walked four and also added a single. He was acquired from Philadelphia in December for pitchers Floyd Youmans and Jeff Parrett.

After allowing a double and a walked in the ninth, Andy McGaffigan relieved and got the last three outs after allowing run-scoring grounders to Gregg Jefferies and Keith Hernandez.

Ron Darling, 0-1, was hit hard in his first start of the season for New York, allowing six runs and five hits in two innings.

After Tim Raines was caught stealing in the second, Andres Galarraga singled, stole second and went to third on catcher Gary Carter's throwing error before scoring on a wild pitch. Tim Wallach then walked and scored on Santovenia's first homer of the year.

Montreal addded four more runs in the third to chase Darling, who was the loser in the seventh game of the National League playoffs last October to Los Angeles.

Otis Nixon walked, stole second, and scored on Tom Foley's single. After Hubie Brooks singled Foley to third, Rick Aguilera relieved and walked Raines to load the bases.

Reds 4, Giants 3

Herm Winningham scored on Kal Daniels' sacrifice fly in the 16th inning.

Winningham, the Reds' last position player, bunted for a single to open the bottom of the 16th, stole second and moved to third on Barry Larkin's sacrifice.

Joe Price, 0-1, the sixth San Francisco pitcher, intentionally walked Chris Sabo and Eric Davis to face Daniels, who hit the first pitch to left field to easily score Winningham.

Tim Birtsas, 1-0, the sixth Cincinnati pitcher, allowed one hit and one run over the last three innings.

The Giants twice wasted several chances to win the game in extra innings.

Chris Speier scored an apparent go-ahead run for the Giants when he tagged up on Kevin Mitchell's fly out in the 11th, but third base umpire Bob Davidson called him out on appeal for leaving too soon.

The Giants broke a 2-2 tie in the 14th when Robby Thompson scored from third on a wild pitch by Britsas. But the Giants gave the run back in the bottom of the inning as Sabo doubled off Jeff Brantley, took third on Brantley's wild pitch, and scored on reliever Joe Price's first-pitch, wild pitch to Daniels.

The Reds took a 2-1 lead into the eighth, but the Giants tied it off the Cincinnati bullpen.

Mavericks remain in playoff hunt

Associated Press

Derek Harper scored 34 points Friday night, 12 in the final 1:14, to help the Dallas Mavericks hold off the Sacramento Kings, 115-102.

Dallas moved to within a half-game of Portland in the race for the eighth and final Western Conference playoff spot. The TrailBlazers hosted Boston later Friday night.

After Friday each team has eight games remaining.

Harper scored Dallas' final 12 points to nullify a Sacramento rally and give the Mavericks their third victory in their last four games.

Adrian Dantley added 23 points for Dallas.

Ricky Berry paced the Kings with 23 points.

The Mavericks took control in the fourth quarter behind three straight Sam Perkins baskets, the third giving them a 98-87 advantage with 3:53 to play.

Sacramento made a final run, moving to within 101-96 with 1:46 to play on Harold Pressley's three-point play but Harper hit an 18-footer with 1:14 left, then added a three-point shot for a 106-96 lead with 1:14 to play.

Sacramento cut a 15-point half-time deficit to 75-69 with 2:08 left in the third period but Dallas worked its lead back to 80-69 entering the final quarter.

NBA Roundup

Hawks 120, Rockets 112

Dominique Wilkins hit a 3-point shot to send the game into overtime and then made another one to ignite Atlanta in the extra period as Atlanta beat Houston.

Sleepy Floyd sank a pair of free throws to give Houston a 108-105 lead with 12 seconds left in regulation. The Hawks got the ball to Wilkins, who was fouled as he made a 3-pointer. But he missed the free throw and Houston's Allen Leavell missed a jumper from the top of the key with two seconds left.

In the overtime, Wilkins immediately sank another 3-point shot that put the Hawks ahead for good. Moses Malone made four straight free throws in the final minute to seal the victory for Atlanta.

Nets 115, Knicks 105

Mike McGee scored eight of his 18 points near the end a 17-0 burst in the opening minutes and New Jersey ran away from New York.

The Knicks, who lead the NBA's Atlantic Division by a comfortable margin over Philadelphia, never came closer than eight points as they lost for the eighth time in 14 games.

Bullets 107, Cavaliers 96

Bernard King scored 10 points in the first six minutes of the fourth quarter and Jeff Malone had 17 in the final six, sparking Washington to its 15th straight home court victory.

76ers 118, Hornets 108

Charles Barkley scored 31 points, including a backcourt steal and layup with 1:24 left that turned back a Charlotte rally and sealed Philadelphia's victory.

Barkley also had 20 rebounds and nine assists. Mike Gminski had 29 points and rookie Hersey Hawkins added 23 for the Sixers, who also held off a wild third-quarter rally by the expansion Hornets.

Pistons 114, Bulls 112

Vinnie Johnson scored 30 points, including the go-ahead basket in overtime, as Detroit edged Chicago in a game that saw Detroit's Isiah Thomas and Chicago's Bill Cartwright ejected in the first period.

Olympics open door for professional basketball players for 1992

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — The United States, which lost the Olympic gold medal in basketball with college players, will be able to use professionals to get it back in 1992.

FIBA, the international basketball federation, voted overwhelmingly at a special session Friday to allow professionals in the Olympics and other world competition.

"We see this as our triumphant entry into the 21st century," said Boris Stankovic, general secretary of FIBA, the international basketball federation.

Almost certainly, it will be a triumphant entry for the Americans, who voted against the pro-eligibility plan but clearly welcomed the 56-13 vote.

"For more than 40 years, our country has been discriminated against because we could not use our best players," said Dave Gavitt, commissioner of the collegiate Big East Conference and president of the USA Amateur Basketball Association. "For the first time, our country will be able to play on a level field with our best players — no age limits, no constraints."

Gavitt said he bowed to college and high school basketball in voting "no" and that much work had to be done before NBA stars could wear "USA" on their jerseys and play for medals in Barcelona in 1992.

He said professionals could be playing for U.S. national squads as early as this summer.

The new eligibility rules, which apply to players in all professional leagues worldwide and at all FIBA-sanctioned championships, took effect immediately. Stankovic said regional federations have until Dec. 31 to work out details.

The NBA issued a statement in New York which said the league and the players' union is working to develop a framework for players to participate.

"We have also begun a constructive dialogue (with the Amateur Basketball Association) and its president ... and expect to begin meetings shortly to resolve the number of issues that are presented by this new era of open basketball," Russ Granik, the league's executive vice president, said in the statement.

The Goodwill Games, to be played in Seattle next year, said it hoped to have pros playing in its basketball tournament.

LSU's Sowell sets 100-meter mark

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Louisiana State's Dawn Sowell broke the American collegiate record in the women's 100-meter dash Friday night at the 62nd annual Texas Relays.

Sowell, a transfer from the University of Texas, posted a time of 10.93 with an allowable wind of 1.5 mph at her back. She beat the college record of 10.94 set by Diane Williams of Cal State-Los Angeles in 1983. It was the seventh best all-time U.S. mark.

Florence Griffith Joyner holds the world and American record of 10.49.

Sowell, a senior, had a previous personal best of 11.17 in the Olympic Trials.

She won't say why she transferred in 1987 to LSU but noted it was fun to set the record in front of Texas fans.

"Hopefully I'd run as fast as I could anywhere," Sowell said. "I really got off to one of my famous bad starts but I really came on at the end."

Texas A&M's Melinda Clark set a meet record in the women's high jump with a leap of 6-3½, best this year in college.

The best collegiate women's high jump this year was 6-2 by Chris Wilson of Brigham Young. It was the third best collegiate jump ever and the fifth best in the world in 1989.

Lisa Bernhagen of Stanford holds the college record at 6-5 1/3 and Louise Ritter owns the American record of 6-8.

"My goal coming in was to clear six-feet," said Clark, who transferred to Texas A&M from Brigham Young in 1987. "I hit the bar and I was surprised it stayed up."

Clark, a 5-11 senior, won the 1988 Southwest Conference outdoor title with a school-record leap of 6-1¼.

Texas Christian won the men's university 800-meter relay when Texas A&M passed out of its lane and Baylor dropped the baton. TCU's time of 1:22.13 was well off its college mark of 1:20.20.

Richard Cooper of Arkansas won the 3,000-meter steeplechase in 8:48.02 with Jonas Lundstrom of Lamar second in 8:53.03.

But Arizona upset Arkansas in the distance medley relay, winning in 9:36.13 on John Quade's 4:01.3 anchor while the Joe Falcon-led Razorbacks were second in 9:36.38.

Shenell Searcy of Ennis established a meet record in the high school high jump with a leap of 6-0. It broke the old mark of 5-7 set by Gwen Buck of Plano East in 1988.

Kareth Smith of San Jacinto eclipsed her women's national junior college record of 59.89 in the 400-meter hurdles with a time of 58.34. She finished fourth in the all-comers college event won by Dorchelle Webster of Florida in 56.93.

Marlin Cannon of Dallas South Oak Cliff ran the 400-meter dash in 45.98, smashing the boys' old meet mark of 48.26 by Tony Marquez of South San Antonio in 1987.

Ali Uberecken of Clear Lake established a Texas Relays record in the high school girls 3,200-meter run with a time of 10:48.38. The old mark was 11:05.23 set by Larah Treadwell of Austin High in 1988.

Odessa Junior College broke the meet mark in the sprint medley relay with a clocking of 3:17.05, beating the old mark of 3:17.15 it set in 1988.

Brown, Davies share LPGA Inamori lead

POWAY, Calif. (AP) — Nancy Brown and Britain's Laura Davies shot 4-under-par 67s Friday to share the lead after two rounds of the $300,000 Inamori Classic.

Davies, one of nine golfers who started the day one shot off the lead, carded five birdies against an 18th-hole bogey for a two-day total of 6-under 136 on the hilly, 6,024-yard StoneRidge Country Club course.

Brown, who also shot an opening-round 69, birdied six holes on the par-71 layout but bogeyed at her third and 11th holes.

Martha Nause birdied three of the last six holes for a 68 that put her alone in third place at 137.

First-round co-leaders Dale Eggling and Cindy Rarick, who both shot 70s, were next at 138. The other opening-round leader, Deedee Lasker, had a 74 dropped back to even-par 142.

Amy Alcott, one of 10 players who started the day two shots back, shot a 69 that left her tied with Pat Bradley at 139.

Bradley had three birdies and two bogeys in the first eight holes before parring the last 10 for a round of 70.

Seventy-six players made the cut at 147.

MHS netters near titles

From Staff Reports

ABILENE — It wasn't too surprising to find No. 2 seeded Elizabeth Ameel of Midland High in the girls singles semifinals or No. 1 seeded MHS doubles team of Luke Morrow and Harper Essex roaring to the finals of the Abilene Invitational Tennis tournament Friday, but finding the MHS girls doubles unit of Krissy Hall and Susan Johnson in the finals was another matter.

Hall and Johnson went into the tournament unseeded, but made their way to today's finals with a key upset, beating the No. 2 seeds of Rena Rhodes and Isabell Derosas of Tyler Lee in the second round.

Morrow and Essex will play at 8 a.m. today for the title while Ameel plays at 9:45 a.m., and if she wins, again at noon in the finals.

This is the last tournament before the District 4-5A tennis tournament in Odessa next weekend. It's there that individuals may earn advancement to the Region I meet in Lubbock in three weeks.

Boys Singles: Leo Oei lost to Aaron Layman, Permian, 6-0, 6-2; Joseph Baressi lost to Jarod White, San Angelo, 6-0, 6-1.

From Staff Reports

DALLAS — Midland High junior Matt Seay won his 200-yard breaststroke race and the City of Midland swim team finished 12th of 60 teams with 83 points in the recent Texas Age Group Swimming championships at Loos Pool here.

Seay set a new West Texas TAGS record in the boys 15-18 age group with his time of 2:10.02.

Other West Texas TAGS record-breakers included the 400-yard freestyle and medley relays in the 15-18 boys age bracket, with a foursome including Seay, brothers Matthew and Marc Houston, and Joseph Fennell. High school freshman Matthew Houston joined the three MHS veterans to set the new marks.

Rebel linksters closing 4-5A gap

Only nine strokes separates San Angelo, Permian, Lee

From Staff Reports

ABILENE — The Midland Lee Rebels narrowed the gap in the District 4-5A golf race, closing to within nine strokes of first place San Angelo Central after third round action at the Abilene Country Club.

The Rebels, who had the low round of the day with a 309, have a team total 946, compared with Central's 937. Permian is in second with a 940, six shots ahead of Lee.

"We're closing the gap and coming home," Lee head coach Ronnie Stephens said. The district's final round will be played next Friday at Midland Country Club.

Midland High also picked up some ground, improving to fifth place, just two strokes out of fourth place. The Bulldogs had the second-best round of the day with a 311.

Rebel golfer Beau Brown, who shrugged off a sinus infection which caused him to miss two days of class earlier this week, remained tied with Permian's Ben Bangert for medalist honors. Both Bangert and Brown have 220s after three rounds.

Lee's J.J. King is fifth in the medalist hunt with a 232.

Midland High's Ty Kretzinger leads the Bulldog team with a 241; B.J. Boudreaux (243) and Kris Doan (244) are close behind for the Bulldog team lead.

Both Lee's King and Kelly Daviss finished with birdies on the 18th hole to allow the Rebels to gain ground in the team totals.

Texas Tech assistant resigns cage position

LUBBOCK (AP) — Texas Tech assistant women's basketball coach Tina Slinker has resigned her post as of May 1 after a single season with the Red Raiders.

"I've found that I missed coaching at the high school level more than I thought I would," said Slinker.

BOWLING BEAT

Stacy Welborn sets pin pace at Dellwood

By RANDY ISENBERG

Isenberg

Stacy Welborn paced city bowlers at Dellwood Lanes during the past week with a sterling 669 series on games of 225, 208 and 236 while bowling in the Las Vegas Mixed League.

Doug Browning continued his fine performance, a carryover from an outstanding city tournament, with a 651 set in the Dellwood Men's League. A 229 game was his best.

David Wright had a good week in the Civic Commercial with a 257-650 performance before tunring around with a 279-615 in the Southwestern Bell League.

Nancy Hayes, bowling in the Midweek Break Mixed, rolled a 592 series that featured a 216 high game. Lena Tennison rolled a 230 game in the Ladie Nite Out while Lavina Mitchell, with a 122 average, rolled her first game of 200 in the His & Hers, a 213.

Teammates Ruben Garza, Junior Perales, Leo Rodriquez and Ken Robey put together a stellar middle game in the Civic Commercial League. Garza rolled a 231, Perales a 222, Rodriquez a 223 and Robey a 221. Even with one absent member, they still managed a respectable 1030 scratch team game.

TC Relays have early start

From Staff Reports

The annual Tall City Relays is set for an early 9:45 a.m. gun at Memorial Stadium today with the Odessa Permian boys and Lubbock Coronado girls trying to defend titles won last year.

All field event finals begin at 9:45 a.m. and running preliminaries start at 10 a.m. Running finals are scheduled for 1:30 p.m. with the 3200-meter run.

Permian's boys will face a field consisting of hosts Midland Lee and Midland High along with Odessa High, San Angelo, Lubbock Coronado and 4A Lubbock Estacado.

The Coronado girls face MHS, Lee, Odessa High, Lubbock High, Permian and 4A Lubbock Dunbar.

There will also be a junior varsity boys' division in the meet.

The Tall City Relays is the last meet of the year prior to the all-important district meets that follow next week. The District 4-5A meet will be held next Saturday in Odessa's Ratliff Stadium.

The top two winners in each event in the district meet earn advancement to the Region I meet in three weeks in Lubbock while the top two at the Region I meet earn state advancement to Austin.

This is the last chance for competitors to hone skills for the important final push where track glory is earned in the state.

TWINBILL

Lee pitcher Kyle Greeley, who started Tuesday's loss to Cooper, said his teammates "know we can play better than this. And we'll have to work real hard. We'll just have to get Midland High."

Greeley said he feels the Rebs may have a better chance since they will be facing Midland High's No. 2 pitcher instead of ace Kevin Rychel (3-0, 0.85 ERA).

Whalen, also in defense of the crosstown Rebels said, "They know they can play baseball and work hard enough to get something out of their efforts."

On looking ahead to Tuesday's first place showdown with Permian, Whalen said "I've casually mentioned it a couple of times to our guys that Permian is a long way off. They can't look past Lee."

As for today's game, the only possible casualty will be Keith Gilbreath who has been used primarily in a courtesy runner role. Gilbreath is undergoing therapy on a leg injury and his status late Friday was questionable. Gilbreath, despite his limited role, has scored three Bulldog runs.

JUCO

James names Syracuse and South Alabama as top possibilities, if a return to Vegas falls through. In addition, NCAA finalist Seton Hall and fellow Big Easter Providence are listed as possibilities by one scouting service.

So James doesn't look at tonight's game as a make-or-break proposition to his major college chances. After all, he's already proven himself on that level.

"I'm just looking at this game as a great opportunity for me," he said. "I appreciate this opportunity and I hope to do well."

Coles received little interest from major college scouts after his senior season at Kecoughtan H.S. in Hampton, Va., so off he went to Chowan College in the northeastern North Carolina hamlet of Murfreesboro, where he has simply torn up the court.

The 6-8 post averaged 22.5 points per game while shooting 61.5 percent from the floor, despite playing out of position with his back to the basket.

He's looking forward to returning outside in the major college ranks.

"I played forward in high school, but we had some outstanding perimeter players at Chowan, so I had to learn more of an inside game," Coles said. "Now I'll have to learn how to play outside again.

"It won't be that tough. It's been done before."

Coles has only visited James Madison University, but plans visits to Virginia and Boston College before making his final decision.

For Coles, tonight's game is a test.

"It's the opportunity of a lifetime just to see what I can do against the best."

USA coach Ken Rochlitz returns for his second year at the helm of the national stars, and he's encouraged about the possibility of turning the tables on the Texans, who won last year's game 123-112.

"Based on what I've seen so far, our point guards are better than they were last year, and that's so important in an all-star game," Rochlitz said.

The Northwest (Wyo.) Community College coach said Team USA probably won't get anywhere trying to match muscles underneath with the likes of Carl Herrera and Larry Johnson, so strong perimeter play is a must.

"We're not quite as physical as them on paper, so we'll have to be very good shooters."

ANGELS

Offensively, Midland collected 12 hits off loser Greg Mayberry and reliever Mike Pitz and, more speed, Reed Peters and Scott Cerney, the two guys at the top of the order, got three leg hits. In fact, in 10 appearances this pair reached base six times.

Chris Cron singled home a run in the two-run first and a hit batsman, DiSarcina's triple, Peters infield hit to short, a walk to Cerny and Everett Graham's double produced three second-inning runs.

Mike Butcher, up from Palm Springs where he was 2-1 in 1988, goes for the Angels in today's 7 p.m. game and Dennis Springer is Manager John Shoemaker's choice for the Dodgers.

Graf, Navratilova advance

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Top-ranked Steffi Graf advanced to the semifinals of the $300,000 Family Circle Magazine Cup Friday by defeating Radka Zrubakova of Czechoslovakia 6-2, 6-1.

Second-ranked Martina Navratilova also advanced to Saturday's semifinals, beating eighth-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Australia 6-2, 7-5.

Saturday's semifinals will pit Navratilova against fourth-seeded Natalia Zvereva, who defeated fellow Soviet Leila Meskhi, 6-3, 6-2.

"I don't really know how she's playing right now. I can't say anything special about her weakness. ... I would say I will try to do my best tomorrow," Zvereva said of Navratilova.

Graf is scheduled to play No. 7 seed Arantxa Sanchez of Spain in the semifinals. Sanchez defeated Linda Ferrando of Italy, 7-5, 6-1.

Graf, the top seed, waited out a 2½-hour rain delay and needed just 47 minutes to defeat her unseeded opponent on the windswept, clay courts at the Sea Pines Racquet Club.

Fittipaldi turns fast lap

PHOENIX (AP) — Emerson Fittipaldi, the former Formula One champion from Brazil, led the way Friday, turning a fast lap of 165.975 mph at Phoenix International Raceway on the first day of practice for the season-opening Autoworks 200 Indy-car race.

Rick Mears, the defending Indianapolis 500 winner and the Penske Racing teammate of defending series champion Danny Sullivan was close behind at 165.411.

Both drivers were able to ignore a heat wave that sent temperatures soaring above 100 degrees for the second straight day, making the one-mile asphalt oval extremely slick.

The irony is that both Mears and Fittipaldi, who drives for Patrick Racing, are at the wheel of almost identical Chevrolet-powered Penske PC18s.

Roger Penske, whose cars and drivers dominated the CART-PPG Indy-car circuit last season, surprised a lot of people over the winter by selling his team's new PC18 chassis to longtime competitor Pat Patrick.

That means the PC18, which may be even better than the PC17s that won six races and nine pole positions in 1988, is in the hands of Fittipaldi.

Asked if he would be upset if Patrick's team had developed a great new chasis, then sold it to Penske, Fittipaldi smiled and said, "For sure. Very upset."

Kontos Kings' real secret weapon

Associated Press

The Los Angeles Kings, who hoped the $15 million they spent for Wayne Gretzky would turn them into a Stanley Cup challenger, remained off the critical list Friday largely because of a guy who a month ago was had to be called to a lumber store in Ontario to sign a contract.

The guy is Chris Kontos, who scored a goal in each period Thursday night as the Kings evened their series against Gretzky's former Edmonton teammates with a 5-2 victory.

"It's totally unbelievable," said Kontos, a one-time first-round draft pick of the New York Rangers, whose career has taken him from New York to Tulsa to New Haven to Pittsburgh to Los Angeles to Switzerland and then back, finally to the Forum in Inglewood for his heroics.

"We were hiding him in Europe all year," said Gretzky. "You know, 'Stay back.'"

Kontos, 25, had been released by the Kings last season and played in Switzerland this year before coming back home to Canada. On March 7, just before the deadline for signing new players, Kings general manager Rogie Vachon decided he needed an extra center and called Kontos' father.

"I had flown back from Switzerland and moved into my house but I didn't have a phone," Kontos said. "My father had to drive over at 1 in the morning before the deadline because they wanted me to sign a contract. So they sent a fax to the lumber store. Here I am today."

Despite Kontos' heroics, the Kings go into Edmonton as the eight playoff series resume Saturday, having lost the home ice advantage. So did four other teams — five series are tied 1-1. In the other three, the home teams all took 2-0 leads.

There will be Saturday and Sunday night games in all seven other series.

Washington is at Philadelphia; Boston is at Buffalo; Los Angeles at Edmonton and Detroit at Chicago in the others tied at 1-1.

Pittsburgh, meanwhile, takes a 2-0 lead into Madison Square Garden to play the New York Rangers; Montreal goes into Hartford with the same edge and so does St. Louis, which goes into Minnesota after winning two 4-3 overtime games against the North Stars.

It's 'Thwack', 'Thump', 'Whoosh' for Palmer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — "Thwack" goes Arnold Palmer's drive as it hits a tree on the par 4, 7th hole. "Thump" goes his second shot into a bunker. "Whoosh" goes his third shot within four feet. "Ahhhhhhh," sighs the crowd as he makes the putt.

Par. The hard way. The way so many of them come these days for Palmer, who on Friday failed for the sixth year in a row to make the cut after the second round of the Masters golf tournament.

The four-time Masters winner was a prominent early name on a cut list that also included last year's champion, Sandy Lyle of Great Britain, 1982 champion Craig Stadler, three-time winner Gary Player, and all five amateurs.

Lyle said he would be heading home to practice his short game.

"I'm disappointed. That's it," said Lyle, who had rounds of 77 and 76.

Palmer, who shot 161, his worst opening rounds in 35 tournaments, was worried about his long game, or lack of it, but said he didn't "have too many thoughts about not coming back."

But Palmer, 59, said his performances lately have left him wondering if he is up to the demands of Augusta National Golf Club.

"The power player is always going to have an advantage on this course," said Palmer, who shot his first two rounds ever in the 80s at Augusta National.

Palmer, who brought the game to its modern popularity through the televising of his charismatic charges at Augusta National, grew wistful as he held court under the weeping oak in front of the clubhouse.

He said he'd be back — for his friends, fans, the tradition of the Masters, and the memories.

"I've had a few bad ones recently, but I think the Masters says it for itself. I look forward to coming back," Palmer said.

There has been a thinning in the ranks of his famous "army" recently, but a fine shot, such as an approach within inches on the ninth hole Friday, triggers an echo from his glory days.

And he is ever gracious, signing hundreds of autographs, granting long interviews, chatting with most anyone who catches his ear.

Circus' 'broom and shovel' act draws biggest ovations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The kids at the circus gasp at the Whirling Wheel of Death and ooh over the amazing Tahar, the alligator tamer from Morocco, but they usually save their biggest ovations for the lowly elephant sweepers.

That's show biz.

When the ringmaster at the visiting Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus introduces the next act — "a million pounds of performing pachyderms" — 16 elephants lumber gracefully into the spotlight, followed by a half-dozen anonymous men in blue jumpsuits and carrying brooms and shovels.

For the next few minutes, 16 elephants dance through their intricately choreographed routine with sequined showgirls. Meanwhile, the sweepers are performing their own desperate minuet, dodging a swaying trunk or a thundering hoof to keep the three circus rings nice and tidy.

The kids in the bleacher seats, and many of the grownups, howl with delight, especially when a man in blue smilingly holds his shovel under an elephant's tail.

"Elephant manure is the most potent fertilizer in the world. It will grow tomatoes as big as beach balls. It will grow spinach as powerful as Popeye's."
— Kim Turpin Davis
circus spokeswoman

"Sometimes the sweepers get more applause than the performers get," said Scottish-born stablemaster Tommy Henry, 56, who's swept up his share of elephant manure during 40 years of circus work.

"The public likes it," he said. "They think it's funny. Most of the guys think it's a big joke."

A million pounds of performing pachyderms produces a lot of pounds of manure.

Ringling's entire animal menagerie, in fact, fills a 30-cubic-yard metal trash bin every day, says general manager Mike Melssen. A private contractor is paid to haul it away, except when the circus hosts a "manure giveaway" as a promotional gimmick.

"Elephant manure is the most potent fertilizer in the world," said circus spokeswoman Kim Turpin Davis, with the unabashed hyperbole for which Ringling is famous.

"It will grow tomatoes as big as beach balls," she said. "It will grow spinach as powerful as Popeye's."

Ms. Davis said the stuff is so highly prized that someone in Houston, responding to a Ringling newspaper ad, drove his truck up to the circus the night before an elephant manure giveaway and stole the whole aromatic pile.

"We put out an all points bulletin but it was never recovered," she said.

An unidentified worker dodges performing elephants and cleans up one of the rings of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus recently during one of its many performances. The elephant sweepers usually get as much applause as the circus acts.

This baby makes a marvelous picture—but would he or she really make a marvelous chef? Can you imagine what might happen if you let the baby brew up a pot of everything its chubby little fingers could latch onto?

Let's face it! It takes thought, direction and planning to do anything well in life—even to make a good stew. Though a true chef may not follow the cookbook precisely, the ingredients will be selected and blended with care and precision. Only then will the dish be a success.

What does all this have to do with going to church? More than you might think! If you have been leaving the church out of your recipe for living, you have been missing some of life's most priceless ingredients—God's love. His priceless gift of Faith and some of the greatest lessons ever revealed to man.

Second of dedicatory recitals scheduled

The public is invited to attend the second in a series of three dedicatory recitals for the new pipe organ console and trumpet pipes at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, 1412 W. Illinois Ave., at 3 p.m. Sunday.

Performing in the recital are Darryl Knapp, the church's organist and choirmaster, and flutist Cynthia Whitman.

Two works which were commissioned especially for this concert feature the flute and organ in a collection of hymn-preludes entitled "Lenten Prelude" and "Easter Prelude." the composer, Charles Callahan, is on the faculty of Middlebury College, Vermont.

A native of Minnesota, Miss Whitman began her flute studies at the Kansas City Conservatory. She returned to Minnesota and obtained a bachelor of arts degree, followed by graduate studies in Los Angeles with Roger Stevens, professor at the University of Southern California.

In 1982, Miss Whitman received a grant for study in Paris from the Harriet Hale Woolley Foundation and an invitation to study with Michel Debost, the world renowned flautist of the Paris Conservatory and the Orchestre de Paris. Debost has said of her, "Cynthia Whitman is a gifted flutist with a lively musical imagination."

In 1988, Miss Whitman won first prize and acclaim from Yehundi Menuhin and the Foundation Menuhin. Menuhin has said of her, "Miss Whitman has a captivating presence and a beautiful silvery sound."

Miss Whitman has premiered the music of today's leading composers while maintaining her devotion to the standard flute repertory. She has performed in Europe, North Africa and the United states.

She is often heard on French radio and television and is a member of the Players of the New World.

New Wayland leader hopes for growth

By WENDY LANE

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — The brown-bricked shell of a library building stands as a monument to the fiscal woes of Wayland Baptist University.

The $3.2 million project, begun in 1983, has been idle since the school ran out of money last year to finish the building.

When Edwin L. "Lanny" Hall is inaugurated as the school's 10th president April 28, he hopes to usher in a new era at Wayland, one in which the school stays out of the red — and finishes the library.

Hall, 39, says the financial picture already has improved since the mid-1980s, when the small, 81-year-old college with a strong Christian emphasis lost $3.2 million over three fiscal years.

"We've turned the corner, but I wouldn't say we've worked our way out," he said. "It takes a while to turn things around."

Hall, a former three-term Democratic state legislator and executive vice president at Howard Payne University in Brownwood, took office in January, marking the end of 18 months without a permanent president.

Hall's predecessor, Dr. David Jester, resigned under pressure in May 1987 after a growing deficit forced the school's trustees to slash a $12.5 million budget by $2.5 million, cut faculty and staff positions and eliminate some programs.

Dr. Glenn Barnett, a Wayland financial consultant and former dean of Texas Tech University's college of education, took over as interim president, but not without some controversy.

A few members of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, which provides more than $1 million a year to Wayland, objected to the school being led by a Methodist and tried to rescind Barnett's appointment.

But Barnett stayed on, trimming the budget each year and helping get the school back in the black.

The deficit had been caused by declining revenues from Wayland's oil- and gas-related endowments, loans for operating funds and cutbacks in church contributions.

"He provided an objective point of view about what the university needed and what its problems were," said Eddie Owens, Wayland's director of public relations.

In the past two years, the university has eliminated more than 30 faculty and staff positions, closed one of eight off-campus centers, discontinued the Spanish major and agribusiness offerings and reduced spending in all areas. The 1987-88 budget cut the university's losses to $1 million, and this year Wayland officials expect to finish the school year with a small surplus from a budget of about $10 million.

With the belt-tightening under way, Hall is focusing on enrollment as one way of augmenting revenues. About 1,900 students are enrolled at Wayland, but fewer than 900 attend the Plainview campus.

"In the next five years, I'd love to see an inrease of a total of 400 to 500 students on our campus here," said Hall, an ordained Southern Baptist deacon. "At that 1,300 to 1,400 size we could still deliver on that small-campus, family feeling and be in a better financial position."

The tuition alone for 15 semester hours is $1,470, and tuition fees and room and board is $3,039.

Hall sees himself as the No. 1 salesman for Wayland, so he is personally soliciting students to enroll.

"I just think it sends a real strong signal when the president of an institution calls and shows personal interest in students," said Hall, who makes about a dozen telephone calls each week to prospective students suggested by the recruiting staff or current Wayland students.

Hall is focusing his growth efforts close to home, rather than toward the seven off-campus centers largely devoted to adult education.

Centers in Lubbock, Amarillo, Wichita Falls and San Antonio; Honolulu and Anchorage and Fairbanks, Alaska, cater to the military installations there, and the school boasts that it has produced more U.S. Air Force officer candidates than any school other than the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Hall said he hasn't had time to examine the off-campus centers and their place in the university.

"I'm not looking for new installations in which to place a center," he said, "but we're obviously serving many a need out there that is not being met through other means and there's tremendous support in these centers for the programs that we're offering."

Hall also wants to use a market-oriented approach to bring more students to the Plainview campus, home to small but successful NAIA athletic programs in basketball and track.

Besides touting the school's athletic and extracurricular programs, he hopes to use the university's traditional Christian emphasis as evidence that students will get personal attention at Wayland.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Laymen's worshop scheduled for today

A workshop for laymen is being conducted today from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Greater St. Luke A.M.E. Church, 401 S. Adams St.

The workshop was set up by W.T. Gilbert, president of the Northwest Texas Conference Lay Organization of the A.M.E. Church, and features sessions on church music, lay and pastor relationships, mobilizing young Christians between 18 and 30 and lay ministry.

"Stirring Up the Gift of God Within" is the theme of the workshop.

The Lay Day Observance will be at 11 a.m. Sunday at the church.

Laymen will be in charge of the service. Nelda Washington of Dickinson will be the featured speaker. Ms. Washington has studied at Prairie View A&M Univeristy, the University of Houston, the University of Colorado at Boulder and at Southern Methodist University.

She holds a teaching certificate in early childhood education from the University of Houston. She works as manager of the appliance division at Sears in Friendswood.

Ms. Washington is an active lay person in the African Methodist Episcopal Church on all levels. A member of St. James in Dickinson, she has worked as area supervisor for the Texas Conference Young People's Division of the Missionary Society. She is president of the Lay Organization in Dickinson. In June of 1988, she was nominated for financial secretary of the State Lay Organization.

For the workshop, Fannie Burnett, district musician, will guide participants through a series of hymn appreciation.

The Rev. Albert Dunn of Lubbock, who holds two master's degrees in Christian education, will moderate a pastor/layman rap session.

Mary Eliza Cofield, director of Christian education in San Angelo, will demonstrate how to reactivate young adults in the church.

The Rev. Billy Chavers of El Paso, who is working on his doctorate in theology, will review the responsibilities of the layman from a theological perspective.

A prayer breakfast, with pastors and laymen from the 21 churches in the conference, will precede the workshop. A rededication ceremony, presided over by the Rev. Morris Goffney, will end the workshop.

The Rev. S.V. Ferguson is host pastor. Carlton Price is host president.

For more information call Gilbert, 684-8558.

Bentley presents series

"Genuine beauty is ageless, and no age group has a corner on it," says minister and gerontologist Virgil Bentley, who will be speaking at the North A & Tennessee Church of Christ during a series of services April 21-23.

"God is the best beauty operator of all," Bentley says. "God can put a twinkle in your eye, a smile on your face and radiance in your character."

Bentley, who is the author of "The Beauty of Age" and "How to Find the Gold in the Golden Years," presents a positive approach to aging in the 20th century and pays tribute to older people in the church and presents a challenge to younger adults.

Now associated with the Highland Oaks Church of Christ, Dallas, Bentley serves as minister to aging Christians and conducts research programs in aging. He has served churches in New York, Virginia, Oklahoma and Texas and has done free-lance writing for the Arkansas Gazette, Daily Oklahoman and Houston Post.

The seminar for young and old will conclude Sunday, April 23, with "Friend Day," an annual event at North A. Services will be held April 21 at 7:30 p.m., April 22 at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. and April 23 at 9:30 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Transportation will be provided by calling 682-8653.

Prayer Day observed

May 4 marks the 37th consecutive observance of the National Day of Prayer.

Though days of prayer are found throughout U.S. history and the National Day of Prayer has been in extistance since 1952, this year marks the National Day of Prayer's first year as a specific calendar date.

Following the unanimous action of both houses of Congress, former President Reagan signed the Bill on May 5, 1988, making the National Day of Prayer the first Thursday of every May.

The National Day of Prayer Task Force and its parent, the National Prayer Committee, urge all Americans to become personally involved in the observance.

"Now that the National Day of Prayer is a specific day that can be anticipated and found on our calendars, we trust that many more Americans will join in thanking God for His many blessings upon this land and in praying for the future of our nation," says Vonette Bright, co-chairman with entertainer/author Pat Boone, of the NDP Task Force.

Senator Mervyn Dymally is quoted in the Congressional Record on the day of the senate vote as having said, "The National Day of Prayer is a celebration of the 'free exercise' clause of the first amendment. Let us join in spirit with the Founding Fathers to acknowledge God's role in our lives and to turn to Him for personal and national guidance."

Presbyterians celebrate

The three Presbyterian churches in Midland will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church USA at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave.

The service, which is sponsored by the Midland churches and Midland Presbyterian Corporate Ministry, will be a typical "Scottish" worship service and birthday celebration.

"It will be a celebration for all ages," says a release from the Presbytery of Tres Rios, overseer of the Presbyterian churches in West Texas, and officed in Midland.

The Rev. Gordon S. Bowie of El Paso, who is a native of Glascow, Scotland, will be the featured speaker. Music will include bagpipes played by the Rev. Flynn V. Long of Big Spring, in full Highland dress. Also featured will be Scottish hymns led by the handbell and voice choirs of Grace, Trinity and First Presbyterian churches.

A special offering will be taken as a birthday gift to St. Andrews Mission for its expansion fund. The mission is sponsored by the three churches. The children will be presenting gifts of canned food for needy families.

In celebration of the occasion, 500 balloons will be released at 7:30 p.m. in front of the church.

The public is invited to attend the special service.

Church has 'Friend Day'

Kelview Heights Baptist Church has declared April 16 as "Friend Day" in recognition of the 28th anniversary of the church's pastor, the Rev. Frank Johnson.

Robbie Hiner, soloist on the "Old Time Gospel Hour," will be featured in the "Friend Day" services at 9 and 10:15 a.m.

Kelview Heights Baptist Church offers a variety of ministries to meet special needs. Currently, the church offers a singles parenting seminar at 5:45 p.m. Sundays with a parenting seminar for couples with teens meeting at the same time. Children's choirs also meet at that time.

Awana Clubs, for children from 3 to 6th grade, and Midweek Teen Bible meet at 7 p.m. Wednesdays.

A ladies Bible study is studying "Your Personality tree," a video study by Florence Littauer, at 9:30 a.m. Tuesdays.

In spite of the economic downturn in the Permian Basin oil industry, Johnson says the brightest days are ahead for Kelview Heights Baptist Church as members use the resources and experience that God has given them to continue to reach people for Jesus Christ.

The annual "Friend Day" services at 9 and 10:15 a.m. April 16 are an open invitation to the people of Midland to be guests of the church.

Rigtrup returns home

Robb N. Rigtrup, son of Mr. and Mrs. Newell H. Rigtrup, has returned home after serving a two-year mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

He has been serving in the Taejon Korea Mission as a trainer, district leader and a zone leader.

He will report on his mission at 2:50 p.m. Sunday at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 4805 Gateway.

Rigtrup was graduated with honors from Lee High School and attended Bringham Young University prior to his mission. He plans to continue his college education in the fall.

"Elder Rigtrup has enjoyed serving the people of Korea and teaching them about The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints," says a release from the church. "Korea is about 20 percent Christian; the highest rate of Christianity in any of the Asian countries."

Hayes to minister locally

Johnny Hays of California will be ministering in word and song at Midland's First Assembly of God, 100 W. Wadley, at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Hays

Hays has presented the gospel in song through the medium of worldwide network television. He has appeared with such artists as Pat Boone, Hank and Jimmy Snow, Gary McSpadden, Jake Hess, Big John Hall and Audrey Meier.

He was the bass singer for the groups The Concords and The Californians.

"The songs he sings are a definite testimony of his love for Christ," says a release from the church.

"He expresses vividly, in sacred concert, the reality of peace in knowing Jesus as his personal savior. Having begun an instrumental career at an early age, the sounds of his saxophone reveal the depth of one's innermost adoration for the Lord."

The church's pastor, Zane A. Haun, invites the public to attend.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Lecture series begins

The 30th annual West Texas Lectureship Series will be held at the Lee Street Church of Christ, 101 N. Lee St., beginning Sunday and ending Friday night.

This marks the 14th consecutive year that the event has been hosted by the Lee Street church.

Speakers from throughout the continental United States attend this lectureship and serve as presenters. Coordinators of this year's lectureship are the host congregation's minister and assistant minister, L.H. Alexander and Gene E. Morris.

Topics of study and lectures are taken from the books of First and Second Corinthians in the Bible.

The events of the day Sunday begin with a guest minister for the morning worship service, followed by dinner for all guests in the church's activity building. Then, a special worship service begins at 2:45 p.m. Group singing follows this special service. Another guest speaker will deliver the message for the 7 p.m. service.

Services Monday through Friday begin at 7 p.m. and feature three 30-minute lectures by various speakers.

The public is invited to attend all lectures and services.

Planning seminar slated

All Midland churches are invited to send representatives to a seminar on church planning being held from 9 to 11 a.m. Saturday, April 22, in the Education/Activity Center of Crestview Baptist Church, Midkiff Road south of Illinois Avenue.

Mayor Carroll Thomas will make opening comments and introduce Walter Ashby, president of The Church Planning and Research Corp., who will present his film entitled "An Introduction to Church Planning."

Ashby's experience spans years in both regional and city planning, as well as banking and financial consulting. The film will address issues such as goal setting, service area analysis, estimating future building and land area requirements, strategies for "unlandlocking" a church and revolutionary financial concepts. A question and answer session, hosted by Ashby, will follow the film.

Coffee and pastries will be served. The workshop is free and open to interested parties.

Evangelist to perform

Christian evangelist and comedian Mike Warnke is performing at Ector County Coliseum at 7:30 p.m. today.

A $3 suggested donation will be accepted at the door, and a love offering will be received for the "War on Satanic Crimes" during the service.

Warnke was a Satanist high priest and his evangelistic career began after his first book, "The Satan Seller," was published in 1972. His second book, "Hitchhiking on Hope Street," was published in 1979 by Doubleday and Company.

He has appeared on such television shows as "Larry King Live," "the Oprah Winfrey Show" and in a "20/20" segment on Satanism.

For more information call 1-362-1911 or 1-606-748-9961. The concert is sponsored by Warnke Ministries and Life Unlimited Christian Center.

Godfrey guest minister

Anticipating placement of a new minister this fall, the Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland continues to fill its Sunday programs with a variety of presentations by guest ministers, friends and members of the congregation.

This Sunday, designated Family Sunday, the guest minister will be the Rev. Norman Godfrey, director of the Samaritan Counseling Center. The 10 a.m. forum discussion will be "Public Education" by Sam Manning, philosophy professor at Lee High School.

The public is invited to attend.

Handbell choir performs

The Celebration Ringers Handbell Choir of Grace Presbyterian Church will present its annual spring concert at 2 p.m. April 23 in the church's fellowship hall, 2801 N. Garfield St.

Under the direction of Jan Mouton, the choir will perform a variety of numbers, including works by Bach, Brahms and Pachelbel.

Also performing in the concert are the Jubilate Deo Ringers of First Presbyterian Church, Odessa, under the direction of Linda Hill.

A reception will follow the free concert. The public is invited to attend both.

Special services Thursday

Special services will be held Thursday through April 16 at Iglesia Bautista Betel, 1311 W. Florida St.

Service times are 7 p.m. weekdays and 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday.

Evangelist is Rolando Lopez from Lubbock. Music will be provided by Midlander Ray Jimenez.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Ismael Villa, invites the public to attend.

A nursery will be provided. For more information call 682-1404.

Annual musical featured

The Faith Temple Church Choir will hold its annual gospel musical at 7:30 p.m. today.

The musical, being held at 1605 N. Terrell St., will feature the Faith Temple combined choirs, the Alexander Temple Choir, Carolyn Nelson, Youth Spiritual Enlightment Singers, the Voices of Praise and other choirs, groups and soloists of the surrounding area.

Special guests will be the Williams Singers of Fort Worth.

The church's pastor, the Rev. W.C. Kenan, invites the public to attend.

Native American service set

United Methodism will observe its first churchwide Native American Awareness Sunday this Sunday.

An offering collected Sunday will help fund ministries and provide seminary scholarships for Native Americans who number an estimated 30,000 in the 9.1-million denomination.

Administrators to meet

The next meeting of the Permian Basin National Association of Church Business Administrators is set for 11:45 a.m. Tuesday.

The meeting will be held at Wilshire Park Baptist Church, 801 S. Bentwood St.

Group to perform Brahms' classic at St. Ann's church

The Permian Basin Meistersingers will present Brahms' masterpiece, "A German Requiem," at 8 p.m. April 18 at St. Ann's Cathloic Church, 204 N. M St.

The PBM will be joined by members of the Midland-Odessa Symphony, directed by Dr. William Lucas. Soloists are sopranos Beverly Newsom and Pam Priebe and bass-baritone Tom Laney.

Ms. Newsom received a bachelor of music education degree from Texas Christian University where she studied with Ira Schantz and Ronald Shirey. More recently she has done masters work at Texas Tech University where she studied with Sue Arnold.

Ms. Newsom has sung leads in "The Sound of Music," "Bye Bye Birdie," "Lil' Abner," "Merry Widow" and "The Student Prince."

She also has done solo work in Handel's "Messiah," Haydn's "Lord Nelson Mass," Mozart's "Missa Brevis," Bach's "Magnificat," Brahms' "Liebeslieder Waltzes" and Saint-Saens' "Christmas Oratorio."

Ms. Priebe moved to Midland over three years ago from Dallas, where she sang with the Dallas Symphony Chorus under the direction of Dr. Ron Shirey. Since coming to Midland, she has sung with the Midland-Odessa Symphony Chorale, performing several solos in Honegger's "King David," under guest director Robert Page.

In addition, Ms. Priebe had the lead role in Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas" during the 1987-88.

Ms. Priebe has performed with the University Sjngers and is a member of the PBM. She is a student of Lucas.

Laney began studying voice in 1971 while a student at Millikin University, Decatur, Ill. At Millikin, he sang leading roles in, among others, Rossini's "Barber of Seville," Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi" and Weill's "Street Scene." While pursuing his master's degree in music in Nashville, Laney was a featured soloist with the Nashville Symphony Chorus and the Scarritt College Chamber Singers.

Since 1983, he has been a frequent soloist with the MOSC and the UT Permian basin University Singers. He now serves both organizations as assistant conductor.

The performance is free. The public is invited to attend.

Mormon teen-agers attend 'seminary' classes for 4 years

Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — Why would any Mormon teen-ager rise before the sun, 180 days a year, voluntarily?

To go to seminary.

"Seminary" is the name of the early morning religious study classes attended by more than 75,000 Mormon teen-agers around the country. These hour-long classes are the bread and butter of Mormon religious education.

In Utah, Mormons have a special arrangement with the public schools by which teenagers can use a class period during the school day to attend seminary classes off school property. Elsewhere, teen-agers must squeeze in classes before school. They attend for four years, with each year devoted to a different religious book: the Old Testament, the New Testament, the Book of Mormon and Doctrine and Covenants (Mormon church history).

Teen-agers gather at Mormon ward (congregation) chapels all around the country. One group of nine Houston teen-agers say they rise at 5 a.m. weekdays to meet at 6 a.m. The boys wear jeans, T-shirts and Reeboks, and come fortified with large drinking mugs of hot chocolate. The girls arrive in warm-up suits.

They each take a Mormon translation of the King James Bible and, under the tutelage of Brad Bauer, a University of Texas medical student, they explore the meaning of the passages.

"Our heavenly father," prays high schooler Erica Blake, "thank you for the opportunity to come to seminary..."

Bauer opened the Bible to 1 Corinthians 7, a New Testament chapter that mainly deals with marriage and celibacy. Bauer began by asking them what sort of person they'd like to marry.

"He has to be a returned missionary," said one girl. Young Mormon adults often spend 18 months to two years doing mission work in their late teens and early 20s.

"He has to take me to the temple," said another girl. Mormon temples are reserved for sacred ordinances such as marriage and baptism. The closest temple is in Dallas, with the granddaddy Mormon temple in Salt Lake City.

"She has to obey the commandments," suggested Sharpstown High School student Walter Ruales.

Bauer discusses the chapter verse by verse, getting surprisingly articulate answers, considering the early hour. The discussion switches to whether Mormons should marry outside their faith, hoping to convert their spouses.

Revival at Crestview set to begin Sunday

Crestview Baptist Church, Midkiff Street at Illinois Avenue adjacent to Dellwood Mall, will begin Days of Revival beginning Sunday and continuing through Wednesday.

Guest preacher will be the Rev. Wendell Estep, pastor of First Baptist Church, Columbia, S.C. Leading the singing will be Ross Ellis, a full time music evangelist.

Sunday services will be 8:30 and 10:50 a.m. Bible Study is at 9:30 a.m. Sunday evening services are at 7 p.m.

Services on Monday through Wednesday will be at 7:30 a.m. A ladies luncheon/style show will be held at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday.

A men's luncheon is set for 11:45 a.m. Wednesday.

Estep Ellis

The public is invited to attend the luncheons. Reservations may be made by calling the church office, 694-7701.

Sullivan orders officials to revise sex survey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Health Secretary Louis Sullivan, responding to criticism from budget director Richard Darman, ordered public health officials on Friday to revise a survey that would probe the sexual lives of thousands of Americans.

Sullivan said he was acting to ensure that the federal government does not inappropriately intrude into the most personal aspects of citizens' lives, while balancing the need to gain a better understanding of how the deadly AIDS virus is being spread.

In a statement issued by his office Friday evening, the secretary said his "initial review of the survey instrument does indicate to me potential problems with the tone and content of the questions."

He said he ordered the Public Health Service to conduct a "thorough review and revision" of the survey to assure it is scientifically sound and "sensitive and appropriate to the proper role of government in gathering information of the most personal nature."

Sullivan acted after Darman told him in a Thursday letter: "I have a great deal of difficulty understanding how many of the questions are related to essential public interests."

Darman asked Sullivan to review the survey questions "personally" and if he still wants the study to go forward after that, the White House budget office "will not continue to stand in the way."

Sullivan, noting that the survey was submitted to Darman's office before he took over as head of the Department of Health and Human Services in March, said he would conduct "a final, personal review" of the survey when the revisions have been completed.

The Office of Management and Budget, which Darman heads, must approve all government surveys as part of the Paperwork Reduction Act, but only for purposes of reducing burdensome federal paperwork.

Citing that law, Darman told Sullivan in the letter that OMB officials do not "have the authority at this point to stop the proposed study."

The proposed project includes a pilot survey of 2,300 Americans to learn the intimate details of their sexual lives, including when they last had sex what they did and whether their partner was a man or woman. A subsequent survey, at an estimated cost of $15 million, would question 20,000 people.

The department said the survey is intended to produce a comprehensive picture of Americans' sexual behavior to help health experts better plan strategies to fight the spread of the deadly AIDS virus and other sexually transmitted diseases.

Darman said he did not question public health experts' need to better understand the transmission of AIDS and the other diseases.

"But, as important as it is, that is a considerably narrower subject than the more general subject of sexual mores, preferences and behavior patterns in American society," Darman said.

"While I in no way question the rights of private researchers to explore this subject, I do question the extent to which it may be appropriate for the public sector to subsidize such research," the budget chief said.

Darman had been pressured to act against the survey by a few conservative Republicans in Congress who have organized letter-writing and telephone campaigns expressing outrage at the survey proposal.

Paul Mero, a spokesman for Rep. William Dannemeyer, R-Calif., who has been rallying opposition to the survey, said: "We hope Secretary Sullivan will take it (Darman's concerns) to heart and put this thing out to pasture where it belongs."

The survey's sponsoring HHS agency, the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, submitted its proposal to OMB in December. Earlier this year, OMB asked for further justification of parts of the survey, and the institute submitted a revised survey in February.

Most of the new material aimed to bolster the reasons behind the survey elaborate on why some of the more sensitive questions should be asked. It also suggested that some of the questions more peripheral to the AIDS issue could be deleted.

Darman acknowledged the suggested reductions and said "I would think that more could be accomplished in that regard."

He also told Sullivan:

"The important thing is that any government survey which potentially intrudes into sensitive and private aspects of individual behavior should be reasonably focused and directed toward the advancement of an essential federal interest."

However, he added, "I do not believe that we at OMB have the authority at this point to stop the proposed study under the Paperwork Reduction Act." While the office can attempt to regulate the paperwork burden associated with the survey, Darman said, "the larger issues are beyond our narrow authority."

He asked Sullivan to "consider carefully whether the inevitable controversy that would be associated with this proposed study — as currently drafted — would advance the interest we share" in maintaining public support for government-sponsored research.

BEE SMART

The Reporter-Telegram will sponsor the 1989 Regional Spelling Bee April 15 at Midland College.

School spelling champions from Midland, Martin, Glasscock and Upton counties will compete for the top prize of an all-expenses-paid trip to the National Spelling Bee in Washington, D.C.

This daily column on words, their spellings, meanings and origins will be published through April 14. These words are typical of those used in bees but may not necessarily be used in competition.

ri-sus'ə-tat'

resuscitate — (verb) "Resuscitate" means to revive or restore and can be traced to a very similar Latin word meaning the same thing. Rescuers of drowning or smoke inhalation victims may force air into the victims' lungs in an attempt to revive them, and get them breathing on their own. One can "resuscitate" other things too: moribund legislation, old houses, antique furniture and parched grass.

Exxon tanker runs aground in river

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An Exxon tanker carrying 13 million gallons of petroleum products ran aground Friday near the mouth of the Mississippi River, but the hull was not damaged and none of the cargo spilled, the Coast Guard said.

The 617-foot Exxon Wilmington was freed after seven hours and resumed its journey to New Jersey, officials said.

"Thank goodness for something called Mississippi mud," said John Reidy, a spokesman for Exxon.

The ship ran aground at 8:30 a.m. about three miles downstream from a Russian grain freighter that has been stuck in the channel for 18 days, said Coast Guard Chief Dan Dewell.

"Some build up and settlement may have occurred in that area as a result of changes in the current where the grain ship is," Reidy said.

Dewell said the tanker hit soft mud, unlike the Russian freighter which is hard aground and was being unloaded so that it can be floated free.

Minister wants to organize form of Olympics for gang members

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A community leader in Los Angeles wants to organize a form of Olympics for gang members to curtail violence that often occurs during summer.

"We want to take the Uzis and AK-47s out of the hands of the young members of our community and put shot puts and javelins in their place," the Rev. Charles Mims said Thursday.

The games, scheduled July 10 through Aug. 18, are to include academic as well as athletic events and will be open to contestants aged 12 to 18, said Mims.

Events are to be organized so that members of opposing gangs are on the same teams, in an effort to build tolerance between rivals, Mims said.

Baby Doe rests at Holy Cross Medical Center in Los Angeles recently. The newborn boy, wrapped in a plastic bag, was found by transients digging through garbage earlier this month in North Hollywood, Calif.

Throwaway children blamed on 'baby blues,' drug abuse

By BARBARA METZLER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The baby boy was found at the bottom of a motel trash bin. His face was swollen, his body still, strangled in the first hours of life and dumped by three people who sped off in a late-model Chevy Nova.

"It's such a waste of life," said Gardena police Detective Bill Moreno, who is trying to trace the mother by a serial number on the video-game box into which the infant was stuffed. "Who would do something like that?"

The mother who abandons her child is often unwed, perhaps has lost a job, is addicted to drugs or has mental or physical problems, experts say. "Baby blues" — postpartum depression — also can play a part.

"I was isolated. I felt very alone. I didn't feel there was anybody out there in the world that could possibly understand what I was going through," explained Gayle Marcuerquiaga, who left a newborn girl in a neighbor's trash.

An estimated 20,860 children were abandoned in 1986 in the United States, ranging from babies dumped in the trash to toddlers left in foster homes and not reclaimed, according to the American Humane Association.

"This is just the tip of the iceberg because nobody keeps any hard figures," said AHA spokeswoman Katie Bond. It's hard to tell if abandonment is increasing, she said, because it represents only 1 percent of child abuse and neglect — and those reports have climbed 212 percent since 1976.

BUT ALEX MORALES of the Children's Bureau of Los Angeles, a private, non-profit agency which places some forsaken babies in foster homes, said, "There is an increase and a change in the flavor of what's behind it. It seems to be very related to substance abuse problems that the adults are having."

"It's an act of desperation," said Thomas Hicklin, assistant professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at University of Southern California.

Mrs. Marcuerquiaga, 28, who is appealing her attempted murder conviction and three-year prison term, calls her Sparks, Nev., family typically American. She was a young mother juggling work, family, children, and financial ruin.

She believes abandoning her baby last April culminated a series of events that included her father's death and a back injury that put her husband Jim out of work. Her job as a manicurist didn't bring in enough to support their sons, ages 8½ and 4. The couple separated for six months, and she got pregnant during a one-night stand. Yet she refused to believe she was pregnant until the child was born as she sat over the toilet, and even then the child was not real.

"If it were a child to me, that would not have happened," she said of the abandonment. The infant was put up for adoption because Mrs. Marcuerquiaga did not want her to grow up with knowledge of her first few hours. "I felt if we brought her home, she would have to live with this, and she deserves better."

In some cases, children have been left where there is a possibility someone will rescue them, such as doorsteps, churches, hospitals.

A NEWBORN BOY was found in March 1988 outside a Mission Viejo urgent care center with a bag of diapers, a $20 bill and a note saying: "Hi, my name is Brett. Please find me a good home."

Last November, a woman pinned a note to the yellow sleeper of her infant son and left him on the steps of a Roman Catholic church here. The note, in Spanish, said: "I have no job. I have no money. I am from El Salvador."

In January, a newborn boy dressed in a T-shirt and diaper was left on the doorstep of a home in the upscale Los Angeles suburb of Simi Valley.

"We were just thankful that we were home," said Valerie Carrillo. "It was a shock to open up and see something so special on the doorstep."

The Rev. Alberto Villalobos, who answered a bell at the door of St. John of God Catholic Church in Norwalk, Calif., in March 1988 to find a week-old boy, said the 22-year-old unwed mother was driven by fear. "Nobody knew she was pregnant."

The baby had been left with the note: "Please take care of my child. Give him a good home. I can't, because I don't have one."

"From what I know, she was a young person down on her luck who did what she thought was best for the child," sheriff's Sgt. Douglas Dickinson said of the decision not to file charges. The mother was not identified.

An abandoned child becomes a ward of the county or, in some areas, the state. While authorities search for the parents, the child is put in a foster home, where it might live for up to 1½ years before it can legally be adopted.

PSYCHOLOGISTS and social workers say most abandoned children who are permanently adopted into good homes will not suffer any special problems.

But Hicklin said "some children think maybe they're to blame or something's wrong with them — they must not be right or worthy of their mother's love."

Finding parents willing to love a throwaway child is not difficult. Most waiting lines are years long for couples who want to adopt an infant. Each case of abandonment lights up switchboards nationwide with would-be parents.

"People are clamoring for babies," said Ray LaMotte, spokeswoman for the Los Angeles County Department of Children's Services. "They can walk in and hand the baby to us. No one needs to know their name."

All the newborns abandoned in the Los Angeles area in the last year were unclaimed by parents. With older children, mothers sometimes do return.

A woman who abandoned her 3-month-old daughter at a Visalia hospital in January, saying she couldn't pay her medical bills, later returned for the baby and was offered help by county mental health workers.

One of the more publicized cases is that of Christina LoCasto, who gave birth to a daughter, Alyssa, July 13 on a United Airlines jet bound from New York to San Francisco.

Gallaudet pride 'gets better all the time'

By JILL LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spring came gently this year to Gallaudet University, with no outward sign of the tumult that catapulted the nation's only university for the deaf to international prominence and led to the naming of its first deaf president.

But a year later, the spirit of the "Deaf President Now" protest lives on — in newfound pride and assertiveness among the deaf, in heightened awareness and understanding among the hearing.

"The euphoria is still here. The energy is still here," said I. King Jordan, Gallaudet's president. "The sense of purpose, the sense of community — it's better than it was ever before. It gets better all the time. Something fundamental has changed in the beliefs that deaf people have about themselves and that hearing people have about deaf people."

Jordan won his post March 13, 1988, after students, joined by faculty, staff and alumni, shut down the 125-year-old school for five days and forced the board of trustees' initial choice to resign. She was Elisabeth Ann Zinser, a hearing woman who did not know sign language; she was gone within a week.

Lofty pronouncements emanated by the dozens from protesters riding the exhilarating crest of victory last spring. "God made the world in seven days and we have changed it in seven days," deaf chemistry professor Charles Giansanti said then. Nothing will ever be the same, said countless others.

VISIONARIES OR fools? The developments of the past year point to the former.

Enrollment at the 2,400-student university is up 52 percent. Congress, which provides most of the Gallaudet budget, boosted its contribution 6.2 percent. The two congressmen on the Gallaudet board are learning to sign. The new deaf chairman of the board developed a plan to recruit deaf board members. Jordan, in constant demand to speak, has become an inspirational symbol revered by deaf people all over the country.

Perhaps the most fundamental change is a shift in attitude.

"People have developed a lot more confidence in themselves," said Greg Hlibok, student body president and part of the intense quartet that led the insurgency. "Their pride has increased. Their view of the future — they look forward to much more than people did five years ago. There's a wider range of perspective."

Off campus, the story is similar. "More people are aware of deafness," Hlibok said through an interpreter. "Before, they looked at us as a problem. Today, they look at us as people with a problem — deafness. That's all."

The board chairman, IBM executive Philip Bravin, said Gallaudet's week in the limelight was enough to propel much of the private sector from discomfort to openness toward the deaf.

Referring to his and Jordan's speaking engagements around the country, Bravin, who also won his job as a result of the insurgency, said that "countless times we have run into people saying that their job or working conditions changed for the better overnight as a result of DPN (the Deaf President Now movement). That's a very positive thing to hear. It's not limited (to a few corporations) but (is) very global."

AGAIN AND AGAIN, one is told of students landing jobs they were never able to get before — whether because of their own insecurity or an employer's intolerance.

AP Laserphoto

I. King Jordan uses sign language during an interview on the Gallaudet University campus in Washington. The statue is of Laurent Clerc, the first deaf teacher of deaf students in the nation.

One girl, told that a pizza delivery job had been filled, passed by the store next day and saw the "help wanted" sign again in the window. She confronted the supervisor and got the job. "She felt that empowerment that a year ago she might not have felt," said Jordan.

Since the protest, students have "a general attitude of 'I can win, I can succeed, I can achieve what I want,'" said career center director Sue Pressman. At the same time, she said, employers have become more receptive to hiring deaf graduates and many more companies are participating in Gallaudet career fairs.

"You do still find a lot of attitudinal barriers," she said. "But the deaf protest allowed us to go in and work with those people. Employers are looking to Gallaudet for the answers. They're willing (to hire deaf people). They want us to help them. They're looking to us to show them the way."

The same heightened interest is evident in Gallaudet's internship program, which has expanded rapidly since the protest. "The one big thing is (that) we have name recognition now. We never had that before with private companies, and it's an important entree," said program director Anne Nissen.

Nissen said she used to have to give a long explanation of Gallaudet, often with little to show for it.

"PEOPLE WERE always courteous, because you're not rude to people who are explaining a disability, but they didn't follow up," she said. "Now there's a lot of curiosity and eagerness to be attached to a famous place. We have milked that."

New participants in the internship program include Sears, Roebuck and Co.; Saks Fifth Avenue; Northern Telecom; MCI Communications Corp.; AT&T Bell Laboratories, and several Big Eight accounting firms. Students are doing more challenging work, Nissen said, and are more likely to complain promptly if a job turns out to be busywork.

Students say they're being treated better not only on the job but in other aspects of daily life as well. "When I used to go to a restaurant and ask for paper and pen to order some food, people tended to have a negative attitude," said Hlibok. "Now there's a willingness. They're eager to help."

The other big change, the four protest leaders said through an interpreter, is that the nation's deaf community no longer sits on its hands when its interests are at stake. "This was our first movement," said Jerry Covell. "Deaf people now feel that we're entitled to our opinion."

Tim Rarus recalled his doubts in organizing a Capitol Hill rally to demand telecommunications devices for the deaf on phones at federal agencies. "I thought, deaf people aren't going to show up," he said. "But they did. We got a good crowd."

Hlibok said another successful rally was held in New York to protest threatened budget cuts for state schools for the deaf. "There's an unwritten rule since the protest" at Gallaudet. "When something happens that's a crisis in the deaf community, deaf people are going to act," he said.

"That didn't happen before the protest. We asked ourselves, 'Should we or shouldn't we?' But, now, if something's wrong, we're going to speak out right away."

Hlibok, Rarus, Covell and Bridgetta Bourne all said they plan to attend law school in the next few years and serve the deaf or disabled community in some fashion.

SUNDAY, APRIL 9, 1989

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Avoid people who may have good intentions but who cast a negative influence or inflict emotional damage. Romance will not be dull. Do what you can to strengthen your support system. Although cooperative ventures require sensitive handling, they will produce sensational results. A great year for domestic projects and remodeling your home! Let your surroundings reflect your good taste.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Keshia Knight Pulliam, actor Dennis Quaid, politician J. William Fulbright, Playboy founder Hugh Hefner, country singer Carl Perkins, actor Ward Bond.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Put career and financial matters aside and enjoy a day of rest. A change of scenery could bring new companions into your life. Friendships enjoy highly favorable influences. Promote a favorite hobby.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Catch up on your personal life. Call friends who have been waiting patiently to hear from you. Reading the Sunday papers can be profitable as well as entertaining.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You will enjoy going to Sunday services with mate or a close friend. A real estate bargain could come to your attention if you go househunting. An evening telephone call brings welcome news.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Family gatherings are especially fun if they are informal. Let your hair down and relax. The pieces of a puzzle fall into place. You finally forgive yourself for a long-ago mistake.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Put more spice into your life by getting involved with a group of people from diverse backgrounds. Travel is also favored. Be open to new experiences and ideas. A bolder approach pays off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Home and domestic affairs take up most of your time today. Avoid emotional scenes. A parent-child relationship improves when you spend more time doing enjoyable things together. Forget past grievances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Early afternoon could hold some tense moments. A candid chat with the party involved could lead to new understanding. Let down your defenses and show this person how you really feel.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Devoting more time to your own well-being is essential. You will look and feel much better! An unexpected guest adds excitement but could upset certain social plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): If you have travel plans, try to keep expenses down. An excellent time to pursue romance. When visiting an older person confined to hospital or home, take along a small, carefully chosen gift.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19): Fortunate trends are seen today. New contacts and fresh ideas make the future look bright. Important information could be made available to you; use it to your advantage. Discretion is your best ally.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Time spent on the tennis court or golf links is fun if you are with the right companions. Use diplomacy if you must socialize with a difficult person. Relax alone with mate.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Avoid people who waste your time or try to intrude on your privacy. Deferring to the wishes of your mate will win you important points. Large parties may be more fun than small ones.

Sonny Bono uncomfortable seeing actress pose as Cher

NEW YORK (AP) — There are certain things elected officials simply do not do — and Palm Springs Mayor Sonny Bono says one of them is to appear on a show where a comedian poses as your ex-wife and sings "I've Got You, Babe."

Bono

Bono departed from a Thursday taping of "Friday Night Videos" after Judy Tenuta strolled onto the set dressed as Cher and burst into song, a spokeswoman for the NBC-TV program confirmed Friday.

"Sonny felt uncomfortable. He felt as mayor, he should stay within certain boundaries," said spokeswoman Diane DeStefano. "He thought Judy was funny, but as mayor, he felt it would hurt his credibility."

According to Tenuta, Sonny was "kind of moody" when taping began and things went downhill from there. After her appearance as Cher, Bono said he was leaving for a cup of coffee and never returned, she said.

"The director comes to me and says, 'Sonny is freaking out. He says he doesn't want to be a straight man; he's the mayor of Palm Springs,' " Tenuta said Friday. "I said, 'Believe me, the mayor of Palm Springs is not the straight man. He's the joke.' "

Tenuta completed the taping by herself, at one point using a cameraman with a wig as a Sonny stand-in. The program will probably air in its entirety on April 28, said DeStefano.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A sunburned Rod Stewart, fresh from a vacation at the coastal resort of Puerta Vallarta, said he hoped his three concerts in Mexico would pave the way for similar appearances by other rock groups.

Stewart

The singer showed up two hours late for a news conference Thursday and presented a $4,000 check to the director of a home for orphans in Puebla state. He accepted an album of drawings from 10 of the children, who all wore dark glasses, the Excelsior news service reported.

Stewart was to perform Friday night in the northern industrial city of Monterrey, Nuevo Leon; on Sunday in the central state capital of Queretaro and on Wednesday in Guadalajara, Jalisco.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Marlee Matlin, who won an Oscar in 1986 for her performance in "Children of a Lesser God," says speaking at last year's Academy Awards signaled a dramatic change in her career.

Matlin

The deaf actress, 23, said she had been afraid to pursue roles that required her to speak until she decided to present the nominees for best actor last year by talking instead of using sign language.

Her action was criticized by some hearing impaired organizations, who argued that she gave the impression that every deaf person could speak.

"I felt sad for those individuals who did not or would not respect me for what I did, but I decided I'm not going to let other people change me," Matlin said in Friday's editions of The Nashville Banner.

Matlin's newest film, "Bridge To Silence," was an added challenge, said the actress, who has been deaf since the age of 19 months.

"It was a great deal different because I've never acted and spoke at the same time," she said. "And I would do it again and again and again if I was offered the opportunity."

NEW YORK (AP) — Jackie Mason has quit the Friars Club in a flap over its Man of the Year award.

It began six months ago, when a board member approached Mason about accepting the award.

"They cornered us and said, 'Will you please say yes?' So we did," Jill Rosenfeld, Mason's manager, said Friday from London, where Mason is appearing in his one-man show, "The World According to Me."

But the board apparently hadn't authorized the invitation and went ahead with plans to honor Alan King.

Rosenfeld said when she learned that Mason had not been chosen, "I asked them to write a note saying, 'We're sorry, a mistake was made.' "

No note arrived, so Mason resigned.

Jean-Pierre Trebot, executive director, said in a telephone interview that he had no idea why Mason quit and that his letter contained no explanation.

Rosenfeld said Mason didn't want the incident to reflect poorly on King, who will be honored May 13 at the Waldorf-Astoria.

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Frank Sinatra, Liza Minnelli and Sammy Davis Jr. will probably head to Moscow in June to perform in Red Square, an Italian TV executive said Friday.

Sinatra

The three entertainers kicked off a European tour in a Milan tent theater Thursday night before 6,000 fans and a national television audience.

Giampaolo Cresci, head of the commercial arm of the state-run RAI-TV, said organizers have been working for more than a year to take the show to Moscow for a worldwide TV broadcast.

"The show should take place in the second half of June, although the Soviets have not set the date officially," Cresci told the Italian news agency ANSA.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Country singer Merle Haggard celebrated his 52nd birthday on stage with a little help from friends Conway Twitty and George Jones.

Haggard

The three entertained at Barton Coliseum on Thursday night with their hit tunes: "The Race Is On" and "Who's Gonna Fill Their Shoes" from Jones, "Hello Darlin'" from Twitty and Haggard's "Today I Started Loving You Again."

Haggard performed last, backed by his 10-piece band The Strangers. With a nod to the two opening acts and a mention of his birthday, he sang and then asked, "Did I win or lose?" The crowd roared approval.

Senior advocate, journalist visits Manor Park

By JANICE FORD
Advertising Feature Writer

As a journalist covering issues critical to senior citizens, Doris Winkler is a busy woman on the go. Because she is a respected journalist and senior citizens' advocate, Mrs. Winkler has access to many of the nation's leaders.

As a senior citizen, Mrs. Winkler, 67, identifies with the people she interviews and reaches through television.

She was in Midland this week, taping a segment for "The Senior Report," a nationally syndicated news program aired each Monday, Wednesday and Friday during the 5:00 p.m. news on KTPX-TV.

The Manor Park retirement community was the focus of her visit Wednesday, where she gathered information for her show. Between interviews, Mrs. Winkler gave a brief talk to a group of residents.

The journalist became interested in reporting issues concerning senior citizens after she turned 60 years old. "I became a little bit anxious about what was lying ahead of me when I really settled down to retirement. And I knew it wasn't just a matter of finding a place to live or relying on Medicare to pay my medical expenses; I knew there was more to it than that."

Mrs. Winkler, unsure of what to expect of life after age 60, didn't have a close relationship with her parents or her husband's parents before they died. "I didn't have close up information about what happens as people age and get ready to go into the final phases of their lives."

As she sought the information on aging and the resources available for herself, Mrs. Winkler began to steer her career into investigative reporting aimed at older Americans. "I realized that it (aging) is one of the most serious subjects in America."

"You and I are of the generation that is healthy because of penicillin and other medical advances," she told the Manor Park group. "We live longer than other generations that went before us."

With 60 million people in the United States age 55 and over, Mrs. Winkler said, "We're talking about an awful lot of people, many of whom aren't really aware of the many programs that are out there."

"Aging is one of the biggest businesses in the United States, and one of the biggest businesses in the world," she concluded. "The more I get involved in it and the more I hear about it, I realize that we're going into a new phase of American life."

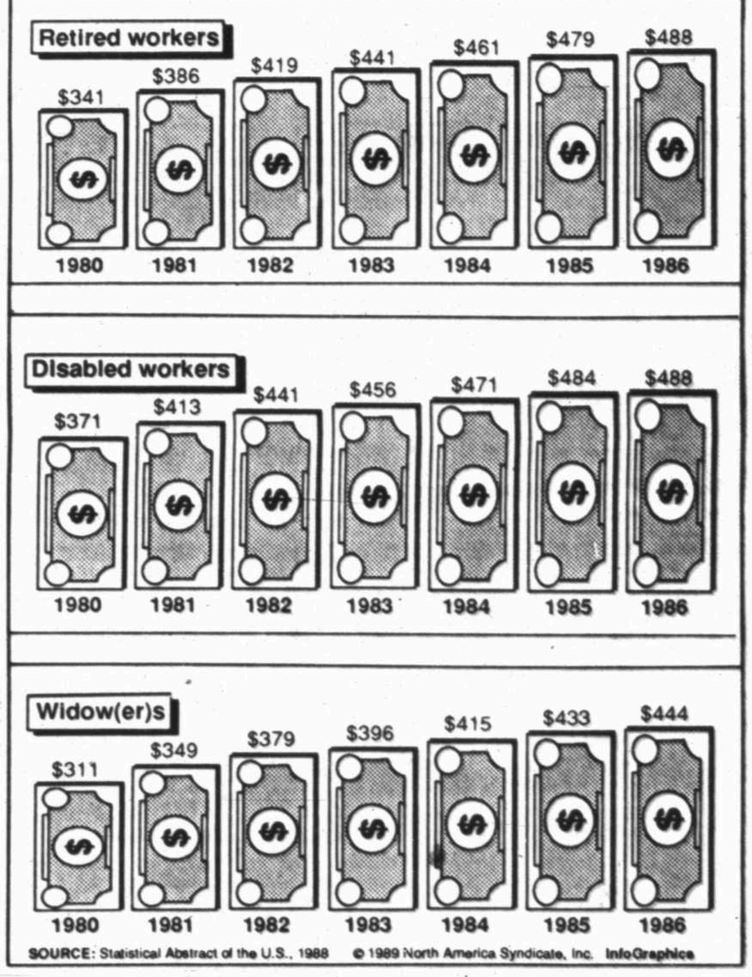

Doris Winkler, nationally syndicated television journalist for "The Senior Report," spoke to a group of Manor Park residents Wednesday. She was in Midland to tape a segment about the retirement community.

Volunteer opportunities

Volunteering has no age limit. Enrich others with the wealth of your knowledge and talents. The Volunteer Center has many opportunities that can be filled by senior citizens. Here are just a few of the jobs currently available:

...Be a reassuring friend for latch-key children. Give two afternoons a month to answering phones at an agency on Andrews Highway from 2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekdays. Those few hours will go far to assure the safety and security of our children.

...Tickle those ivories! A piano player is needed at an east-side agency to lead sing-a-longs. You pick the weekday morning hour to fit your schedule.

...Be a friend, make a new friend. With just a five minute phone call you can daily brighten the life of a homebound person and assure that all is well.

Transfers: Solution for idle retirement plans

What can you do if you've contributed to an Individual Retirement Account or other retirement plan but are not totally satisfied with the investment results? One answer is to move your funds to another plan.

It's important, however, to understand the difference between a transfer and a rollover.

With a rollover, you take receipt of the assets from your retirement plan and roll them into an approved IRA within 60 days. Delay longer and you could wind up with a sizable tax bite.

A transfer simply moves assets between similar plans for a better return on the plan's investment or for better service. You do not take receipt of the assets, and the assets move directly between two trustees. The distinction may appear small, but it is important.

A simple transfer usually works like this. Assume your retirement plan isn't satisfactory. This plan could be a defined-contribution plan, Simplified Employee Pension Plan or IRA. You decide to change your investment but still wish to keep your retirement plan intact. A simple transfer could be the answer.

Before you begin any transfer, first decide to which investment you wish to transfer your assets. You could select a guaranteed, deferred annuity, a mutual fund or a self-directed plan with which you make all the investment decisions.

Once your choice is made, you must then select an approved plan and new trustee.

At that point, you initiate the transfer by completing an application and transfer letter for the new plan. This is sent to the trustee of your new plan. On receipt, the new trustee sends a written letter and all paperwork accepting your account to the losing trustee. The losing trustee can now release your assets and the transfer between trustees is complete.

Although it sounds complicated, it's routine. Your financial representative generally handles the transaction for you. The final responsibility, however, is yours.

It is important to remember four things about transferring a retirement plan:

- Don't take receipt of any of the fund's assets as it could result in tax liability.
- There's no limit on the number of transfers you can make.
- Most trustees charge a termination fee to transfer plans, so make sure you ask about the costs or fees to terminate.
- A transfer only changes plan trustees. It does not affect the tax-deferred status of your plan.

Retirement planning is a major part of any financial plan. Regular deposits for retirement is the first step. Equally important, however, is that the money earned is enough to keep ahead of inflation and increase buying power for future years.

An annual review of your retirement plan is both necessary and prudent. If you find it comes up short, a transfer could be the answer.

MIDLAND COLLEGE

The final session of College Classics starts Monday, with 17 classes being offered. College Classics was started this spring especially for those at least 55. The classes are taught one or two afternoons a week, usually for an hour. This session ends May 5. Cost is just $25 to take as many classes as you wish.

Topics being offered during Session III include Basket Weaving, Be Your Own Travel Agent, Communication Skills, Computerized Dietary Analysis, CPR and Standard First Aid, Comprehensive Financial Planning, Golf, Novice Ham Radio, Life and Transitions, Memorable Characters in History, Nutrition, Piano, Tennis, Experience Theatre, Tole Painting, Walking for Fun, and Western Classics.

You register for College Classics in the Continuing Education Office, Administration Building. More information is available by calling 685-4518.

But there are many other activities taking place at MC this week.

You are invited to attend the final Free Enterprise Lecture for 1989, which is being presented at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Allison Fine Arts Building Auditorium. "The U.S.-Canada Trade Agreement" will be discussed by Chris Pearson, Deputy Consul General for Canada in the Southwestern United States. The lecture is free and open to the public.

David Aguirre of Tucson, Arizona, is on campus again next week for his brief artist-in-residence stay. A talented young ceramics artist, he will be speaking to classes and doing demonstrations all week. The public is invited to hear his lectures and observe his demonstrations...and there is no charge. You can call John Harmon at 685-4652 for more information.

Sign-ups are underway for local vocalists who would like to participate in a free master class. Leonard Johnson from UT-Austin is conducting the class from 1-3:30 p.m. on Friday, May 5, but the deadline for taking part is April 20. Johnson will give a free concert at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 7, in the Allison auditorium. To register for the master class, call Dr. Michael Jordan at 685-4647.

Country music star Reba McEntire presents a concert at Chaparral Center Friday at 8 p.m. with special guest Ricky Van Shelton. Tickets are $16.50 and may be purchased at Chap Center or Endless Horizons.

There are four classes starting next week through the Continuing Education Department. And they certainly are diverse in subject-matter. You can choose from Basic Mountaineering, Bridge II, Financial Planning, or Threat Awareness. Call 685-4518 for more information or visit the Continuing Education Office Monday to register.
