Low census

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Texas households may not be participating in the census because of "gross printing errors" and a shortage of Spanish-language forms, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said Thursday.

Bentsen, D-Texas, said the Census Bureau has refused to correct its mistakes in Texas and has responded instead to complaints about the 1990 headcount with excuses and explanations.

"I must deplore the way the census is being adminstered in Texas," Bentsen told Census Bureau Director Barbara Bryant in a letter Thursday.

"This is particularly true in El Paso, San Antonio, Corpus Christi and South Texas. In these areas, complaints and problems about which, if not cured immediately, threaten the integrity of the census in Texas," Bentsen said.

Chinese rallies

BEIJING (AP) — Authorities staged all-day rallies in Tiananmen Square on Thursday, China's annual day for mourning the dead, preventing unofficial visits to the symbolic center of last year's crushed democracy movement.

It was the second time in a week city officials held official activities in the square as an excuse for closing it to the public.

Desk job

Gift will aid schools in Juarez

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

School children from impoverished neighborhoods in Juarez, Mexico, now have a shot at a decent education — thanks to the Midland Rotary Club, said Ernest Goeldner, chairman of the international committee for the Juarez organization.

About 25 local members spent Wednesday afternoon loading hundreds of school desks on four moving trucks en route to Juarez. The desks were donated by the Midland club to the Juarez (Rotary) Industrial Club.

"This is great. We appreciate the help they (Midland Rotary) are giving us," Goeldner said. "We adopted 20 schools we are going to furnish because the (Mexican) government doesn't have the resources," he said.

The donated chairs will be used in about six schools.

"Some schools doen't have chairs, some children sit on cinder blocks or on the floor. The only schools with chairs are very bad," said Ben Badia, president of the Juarez club.

The desks and chairs were purchased at an auction held by the Midland Independent School District.

"We bought them all for $744 using contributions from members in our

Summit moved up to May 30

■ American, Soviet officials break new ground in talks that lead to stepped-up date for expected summer summit.

By Tom Raum

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev will meet for a superpower summit in the United States beginning May 30, U.S. and Soviet officials said Thursday as the two sides broke new ground on Germany and on the Middle East.

Accepting the principle of unifying East and West Germany, the Soviets edged away from their demand that the merged country be neutralized, U.S. and Soviet officials reported at the end of a long day of bargaining on tough regional issues.

And, in another potential breakthrough, the Soviets said they would consider restoring diplomatic relations with Israel and permitting the direct flight of Jews to Tel Aviv if they had assurances the refugees would not be settled on the West Bank and in East Jerusalem.

Earlier, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said several major agreements could emerge at the summit, including a long-sought Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty to limit long-range nuclear weapons.

But Bush said merely that the summit would provide "time for a lot of dialogue and a lot of discussion."

Lease dispute may keep water park from opening

By John Paul Pitts
Business & Oil Editor

Sonny Henderson, the owner of Water Wonderland, denied in a statement Thursday that he was negotiating with J.R. "Junior" Franks for a lease on the recreational facility, and added that he was not certain the amusement park would open this summer.

In a statement issued by Henderson's office manager Marie Brown, Henderson said he would not negotiate a lease with Franks because of a dispute over lease of the park in 1989.

Franks had led a group of Water Wonderland employees who re-opened the park last season under a lease-purchase plan.

Henderson said he was continuing to talk with other interested parties about opening West Texas' only major amusement park, but it was not certain if the park would open in May or at all.

In a story in the Wednesday's Reporter-Telegram, Franks said he hoped to finish renegotiating a lease with Henderson by the end of this week, so that the park could open on May 5.

Franks explained that Henderson had been out of town on business and he was

Med-America, attorney general file suits against each other

■ State officials say Med-America Health Center has overcharged patients for unnecessary medical tests, while the Midland clinic alleges it has been harassed by the Attorney General's Office.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

A Midland health clinic has deceived customers and run up unnecessary charges with their insurance companies, a Texas Attorney General's Office lawsuit filed Thursday alleges.

The lawsuit states that Med-America Health Center has been operating what insurance companies call a "rolling lab," which solicits customers on the basis of promising free medical checkups or consultations.

The Attorney General's Office is seeking to close Med-America and force the company to repay its patients for unlawful charges, the suit states.

The lawsuit was filed in the 142nd District Court a day after Med-America's attorneys filed a lawsuit against the Texas Attorney General's Office. That litigation also was filed in the 142nd District Court.

According to the attorney general's suit, Med-America staffers have falsely posed as doctors and wrongly convinced patients that they suffer from a "myriad of diseases."

The clinic is run by chiropractors and unlicensed medical school graduates, while unqualified personnel have ordered lab tests, the suit alleges.

Med-America customers have been subjected to a battery of unnecessary medical tests that the customers either were free or cost only their health insurance deductible, the lawsuit states. The center, without telling the patients, then filed exorbitant charges with their insurance companies, the suit alleges.

The patients then were told they must return for more testing, of which results were rarely given, the litigation says.

Telephone solicitors have lured customers to the clinic by offering free medical consultations and giving the impression that care will be provided by licensed physicians, the lawsuit states.

Unpaid traffic tickets could bring you to a stop

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

You can run a stop sign but probably can't hide much longer if you got caught by a Midland police officer and neglected to pay the fine.

Municipal Judge Robin Smith said Thursday that 20 off-duty officers will knock on doors starting April 16 in an attempt to clear up about 12,900 outstanding traffic warrants.

The warrants would mean more than $1.5 million in revenues for the city in the unlikely event that all of them are cleared, Smith said.

Officers will hunt for their prey day and night, he said. "They'll hit the streets and look for specific people they'll be assigned to find," he said.

Those caught will be escorted to jail, he said. The crackdown will last at least up to two weeks, he said.

"That will be the main thrust, and then we'll take it from there," Smith said. "We primarily want to do it at this point before they open the county jail."

The county is expected to start housing prisoners in the new jail, 101 W. Industrial Ave., sometime in May. The city will pay the county $35 a day per prisoner sent to the jail by the Midland Police Department.

Smith urged those with outstanding tickets to clear them up before April 16. He emphasized that they will not be arrested and the court allows people to go on a payment program if they cannot pay their fines.

To make citizens aware of the upcoming crackdown, flyers will be posted in local businesses, he said. "We want to let people know that they need to take care of their warrants," he said.

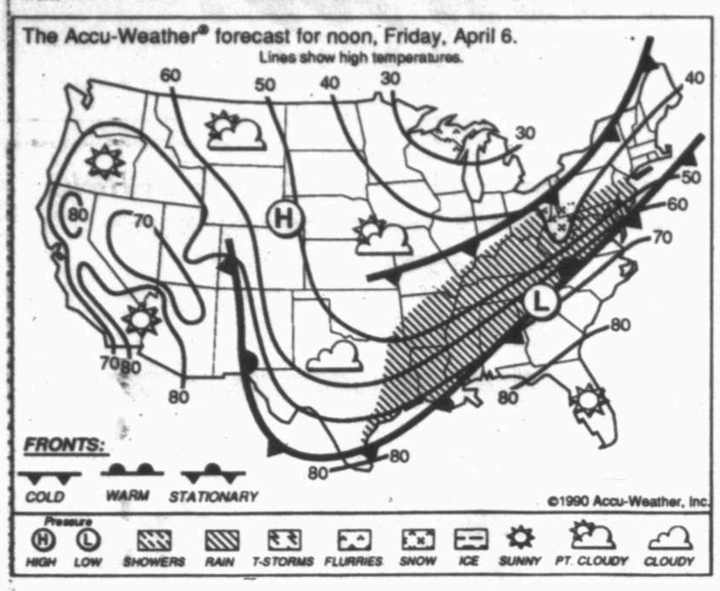

A news conference to spread the word about the crackdown is scheduled for 11 a.m. Monday in the Midland Municipal Court Building, 406 E. Illinois Ave., he said.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Temperatures to be cooler

Staff Report

The rarely boring West Texas weather will change to cool today from warm the day before.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is projecting about a 30-degree difference between the high temperatures of Thursday and today.

The peak reading today is to be in the upper 50s under cloudy skies. A day earlier, the peak was 85 degrees.

Winds today are to be northeasterly at 10 to 20 mph and gusty.

Tonight, the temperature is to drop into the lower 40s.

On Saturday morning, the weatherman is calling for cloudy skies. Skies are to be less cloudy in the afternoon, when the temperature is to pick up to near 70s degrees.

While Thursday's peak temperature was 85 degrees, the record high for an April 5 is 92 degrees in 1959. The overnight low was 55 degrees, while the record low for April 6 is 25 degrees in 1936.

STATE

Prime-time television was interrupted several times throughout North Texas Thursday night by announcements concerning the latest tornado watch or warnings.

But despite the numerous reports on the storm system that moved eastward across the top of the state, there were no reports of any major damage.

Minor hail damage was reported near Fort Worth.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

SUITS: Clinic accused of unneeded testing

(From 1A)

The clinic is run by chiropractors and unlicensed medical school graduates, while unqualified personnel have ordered lab tests, the suit alleges.

Med-America customers have been subjected to a battery of unnecessary medical tests that the customers either were free or cost only their health insurance deductible, the lawsuit states. The center, without telling the patients, then filed exorbitant charges with their insurance companies, the suit alleges.

The patients then were told they must return for more testing, of which results were rarely given, the litigation says.

Telephone solicitors have lured customers to the clinic by offering free medical consultations and giving the impression that care will be provided by licensed physicians, the lawsuit states. The customers have been told the services are free because the clinic is new, it states.

Joe Boyd, Med-America president and a defendant named in the attorney general's suit, said he moved his Med-America operations to his chiropractic offices in the 2500 block of W. Ohio Ave.

Boyd said he decided to file his suit because he has been wrongly harassed by the Attorney General's Office and the media.

"We just got tired of it and decided to bring it to a head," Boyd said. "We have nothing to hide on this thing."

Also named in the suit are R.W. Bratcher, Dennis Crockett and a man named Brucker, whose first name was not given.

Midland attorney Paul White, retained as local counsel in Med-America's suit against the state, said his clients want to get a ruling stating that the clinic is legitimate and has faced unlawful harassment.

"We want a district judge in Midland County to tell us whether my clients can operate a clinic in Midland County the way they have been," White said. "Med-America is a state-of-the-art health facility. They give a complete physical from head to toe."

White said no Med-America staffer said he was a doctor unless he was a licensed physician.

"This lawsuit brought by the Attorney General's Office is a frivolous lawsuit and a waste of taxpayer time and money," he said. "It is an insult to the taxpayers of the state of Texas."

Also representing Med-America is attorney John Collins of Dallas.

Attorney General's Office representatives in the lawsuit could not be reached for comment.

TICKETS: Outstanding warrants to be handed out starting April 16

warrants served during the past year, Smith said. The number of outstanding warrants is the highest in city history, he said.

In about 2,828 cases, worth about $489,900 in fines, the offenders have either attended court but never paid their fines, are on a payment program or are being processed for a warrant, city records show.

About 2,350 of those warrants, worth about $372,400 in fines, are on people who have attended court but never paid their fines. Warrants have not been issued in 40 cases, worth about $11,500 in fines.

The court has $106,000 in outstanding fines being paid gradually by 437 people put on a payment program.

In addition, there are about 10,500 warrants, representing about $1 million in fines, on people who never showed up for their court dates.

Smith attributed some of the backlog of cases to having only one bailiff since January 1989, when a second bailiff retired and the city cut the position.

Since then, warrant officers have been pulled off the streets to help maintain order in the two municipal courts, also overseen by Municipal Judge Gordon Marcum, he said.

However, city councilman recently approved hiring a second bailiff at a salary of $1,612 a month. Deputy City Manager Mike McGregor said the bailiff will be hired within two months.

Smith said the number of cases has mounted also because some offenders fear the courthouse more than being a fugitive.

"I think a lot of it is they don't have the money to pay it and they're afraid to come down without the money," Smith said. "Some people think they'll never be caught."

McGregor said the crackdown should pay for itself as people are forced to pay their fines.

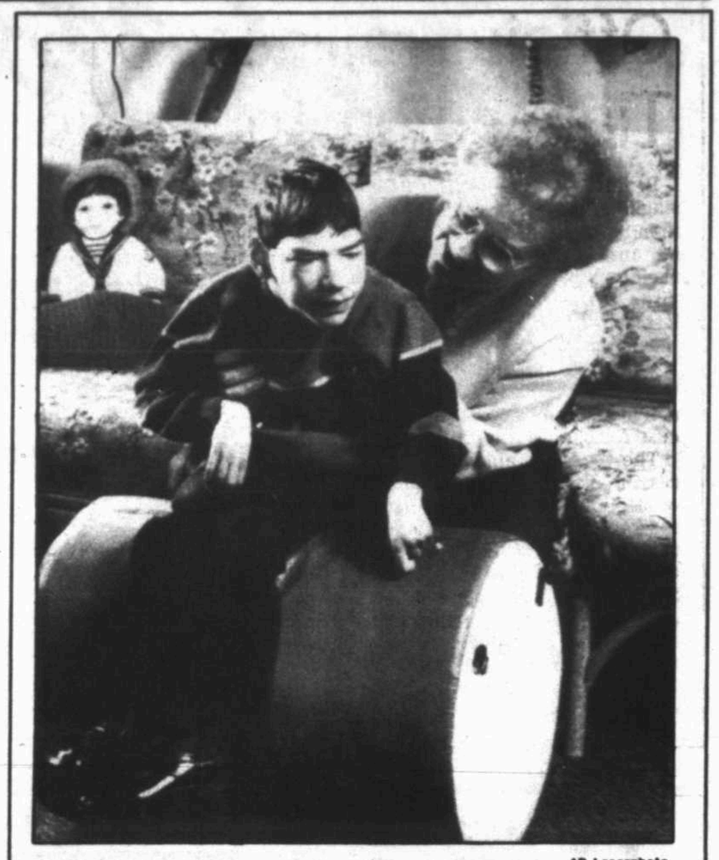

Leftover ticket revenues will be put into the city's general revenue fund, McGregor said.

"In the big (budget) picture it won't help that much, but any amount is helpful," he said, adding that it will be difficult to serve a majority of the outstanding warrants.

Impatient man kills customer

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — An apparently impatient customer waiting in line at a fast-food restaurant's drive-through window shot and killed a man who was ahead of him early Thursday.

The gunman was a passenger in a car that drove away after the shooting, and police were looking for him and the driver, said Richmond County Sheriff's Capt. Edward J. Wilhelm.

Carol Dunn helps her son, Raymond Jr., with some exercises at ther Yankee Lake, N.Y., home. The 15-year-old boy has severe allergies, so Gerber Products has agreed to manufacture a discontinued formula for his use.

Gerber will manufacture formula for disabled boy

NEW YORK (AP) — A Gerber research plant is retooling to resume production for a market of one: a profoundly allergic 15-year-old boy who cannot live without a special baby formula the company stopped making five years ago.

For a few days this month, one quarter of the production space at the Gerber Products Co. research center in Fremont, Mich., will be devoted to making MBF, a formula only Raymond Dunn Jr. wants or needs and which Gerber is providing free of charge.

"People here are working on this on their own time," George Purvis, Gerber research director, said Thursday. "We all have our own jobs, and this is one we added on.

"I don't want to talk too much about it," he added. "It's just something we can do, so we're doing it. It's a volunteer project. The Dunns have nowhere else to turn."

Raymond, who lives with his parents in the Catskills town of Yankee Lake, weighs only 31 pounds. He was born with an abnormally small head and brain. He is severely physically and mentally retarded, and cannot speak or see. He cannot move his thin arms or tiny legs without help. His warped little spine has worn a dent in the pad of his wheelchair.

And, since the age of 5, Raymond has been allergic to almost every form of nourishment. All that kept him alive was Gerber's MBF, an expensive, meat-based formula for allergic infants.

But in 1985, faced with declining sales, Gerber stopped making the brown liquid formula. The Dunns tried dozens of alternatives, but they all made Raymond sick.

Gerber agreed to reveal its formula and process for making MBF to any manufacturer who would supply Raymond, but none was willing or able.

So, Purvis said, "We scrounged around for every can of the stuff that was in existence," including many whose expiration date had passed. After obtaining a Food and Drug Administration waiver, Gerber began delivering them to the Dunns.

The unsold backlog prolonged Raymond's life, but didn't make it easier. Asthma kept him inside the house almost all the time. His mother and her helpers had to brush his teeth, bathe and dress him. To maintain his sense of touch, they ran his fingers through dry rice and beans. He slept in a small bed in his parents' room, but rarely for more than a few hours at a time.

"The little guy's been a 24-hour-a-day thing for the past 16 years," said his father, Raymond Sr., a car salesman. The Dunns have no other children.

It seemed life couldn't get any more difficult until the day in July 1988 when Dunn's wife, Carol, got a letter from Gerber. The company said its MBF was all gone, leaving Raymond with less than a two years' supply.

His mother, whose life already was totally consumed by his care, sought help in dozens of letters to political and business leaders.

TALKS: Germany, Mideast discussed

(From 1A)

Officials on both sides acknowledged that in the more than seven weeks remaining it would be difficult to forge agreements across the board of U.S.-Soviet relations.

But a group of U.S. and Soviet regional experts, working at the direction of Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, achieved surprising progress on Germany, the Middle East and also the wars in Angola and Afghanistan.

The Soviets insisted, as they have in the past, that the pace of merging East and West Germany is too fast. However, a U.S. official told reporters, "we also got the impression a neutral Germany is not the only answer to security questions there."

Confirming the development, a Soviet official briefing separately said "we think neutrality may be the answer, but we invite people to supply us with other ideas."

He said Moscow's aim was simply that a unified Germany should "be no danger to its neighbors."

In the Middle East, the Soviets continued their attack on Israel for settling Jews on the West Bank and in East Jerusalem, territory that the Arabs held until the 1967 Six-Day War.

However, the Soviet offer to resume relations with Israel, which were suspended in 1967, and to open direct flights of refugees to Tel Aviv provided they do not settle in the disputed lands "was a different kind of response than we heard before," a U.S. official said.

On two other troubled fronts, Angola and Afghanistan, the U.S. officials said the Soviets had shown an interest in elections as a way of ending wars in the countries between forces backed by the two superpowers.

PARK: Owner says no lease pending hopeful the lease would be signed by the end of the week.

Franks could not be reached for comment Thursday evening to respond to Henderson's claim that he would not renew the lease.

The water recreational facility opened late last May following speculation about the possible demise of the park. When Franks, finally negotiated a lease for the park and opened it May 27, he told the Reporter-Telegram that he was hopeful that he could put the park in the black and possibly purchase it by the end of the year.

At that time Water Wonderland Marketing Director Eric Olsen said the group led by Franks would try to operate the park with very little profit to keep it alive, but would need the support of the community to make it happen.

Official rallies close Tiananmen to public

BEIJING (AP) — Authorities staged all-day rallies in Tiananmen Square on Thursday, China's annual day for mourning the dead, preventing unofficial visits to the symbolic center of last year's crushed democracy movement.

It was the second time in a week city officials held official activities in the square as an excuse for closing it to the public.

The method appeared successful. There were no reports of attempts to lay wreaths near the square or otherwise honor the hundreds and possibly thousands of people killed June 3-4, when the army opened fire on pro-democracy protesters and retook the square where they had camped.

In Hong Kong, however, an estimated 20,000 people marched in honor of the Beijing dead, many carrying banners or bouquets of flowers.

A wreath was left from Chai Ling, a leading activist in the Beijing uprising who escaped to the West last week after 10 months on the run in China.

Thursday was China's annual Qingming, or Clear and Bright Festival, when families traditionally visit graves to mourn their dead. Chinese dissidents abroad, through faxes and mailed leaflets, urged Beijing residents to stroll through Tiananmen Square on Qingming in memory of the slain protesters.

Early in the week, however, Beijing authorities issued orders curbing even normal mourning activities, such as group visits to crematoriums.

A young Chinese boy carries his toy machine gun and holds his father's hand as the two walk in front of the Great Hall of the People bordering Beijing's Tiananmen Square Thursday.

Prime minister of Nepal resigns

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — The prime minister resigned Thursday following six weeks of pro-democracy demonstrations across the Himalayan kingdom, highly placed sources said.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said a formal announcement of the resignation of Prime Minister Marich Man Singh Shrestha would be made soon by King Birendra. They said Shrestha, prime minister since 1986, submitted his resignation Thursday night.

At least 16 people have been killed in confrontations between demonstrators and police since Feb. 18, when two banned political groups — the Nepali Congress Party and a coalition of left-wing parties — began agitating for a return to a multiparty democracy in one of the oldest monarchies in the world.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Mexican military displays force

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Armored vehicles rolled through Michoachan state in a show of force against opposition supporters occupying city halls to dramatize their election fraud charges against Mexico's ruling party.

Despite television and newspaper reports and eyewitness accounts Thursday, the armed forces refused to acknowledge the operation.

"We don't have any information on this. Absolutely nothing," said Second Lt. Jimenez, a Defense Department spokeswoman in Mexico City.

"All the chiefs authorized to give out information are gone," said Lt. Bautista, at the headquarters of the 21st Military Zone in Morelia, the capital of Michoacan.

Both spoke in telephone interviews.

Soldier escapes siege

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — A bizarre three-day siege at Haiti's international airport ended Thursday when a soldier who threatened to blow up an empty American Airlines jet jumped from the plane and escaped into a field of grass outside the main air terminal.

Pvt. Gerald Pierre, 20, who commandeered the Airbus A300 in an apparent attempt to desert the army, vanished into the darkness at about 1 a.m., according to Radio Haiti Inter.

Officials offered no explanation for how Pierre escaped police and soldiers guarding the airport, leading to speculation the army allowed him to flee to peacefully resolve the affair.

"The Army High Command conducted the operation. They haven't given their report yet," said Alfred Mentor, the Information Ministry director.

The army had no immediate comment, and it was not known whether a search for Pierre was underway.

Israelis demand reform

JERUSALEM (NYT) — Their voices are difficult to hear above the din of promises, threats, and warnings that characterize politics here, but the Israeli people are once again demanding that their government reform itself.

The caretaker leader and other members of his government are aware that they may simply be members of Parliament in a few days.

On Thursday night, the Labor Party leader, Shimon Peres, appeared close to forming a government, perhaps by early next week. He has said his new government would be dedicated to advancing the peace process.

De Klerk, Mandela meet

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — President F.W. de Klerk and Nelson Mandela agreed Thursday on a new date for formal talks between the government and the African National Congress on giving blacks a share of political power in South Africa.

De Klerk and Mandela, freed Feb. 11 by the president after 27 years in prison, met for three hours but said the time and place for talks to replace a canceled April 11 meeting would be announced later.

Soviet troops occupy Vilnius building

MOSCOW (AP) — Armed Soviet soldiers dressed as police invaded the Lithuanian prosecutor's offices Thursday, forced employees outside and occupied the building, witnesses and spokesmen for the republic's parliament said.

Despite the military move, Lithuanian lawmakers drafted a mild message Thursday to Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev calling for a prompt start to negotiations. They wrote that they "value highly your efforts aimed at the peaceful solution of problems," but think political talks "should not be accompanied by the willful actions of your armed forces."

Lithuania's secessionist government had accused Moscow on Wednesday of backing forces seeking its overthrow.

Lithuania, forcibly incorporated into the Soviet Union with sister Baltic states Estonia and Latvia in 1940, declared independence on March 11 and has been in a confrontation with the Kremlin since then.

Estonia is cautiously following Lithuania's lead. On March 30, its new Parliament declared Estonia to be under Soviet occupation and set an indefinite transition period for independence.

On Thursday, Estonian leaders decided to stand firm on their demands for independence in the face of Gorbachev's wrath, informed sources said.

Latvia also appeared headed toward independence. Its Communist Party congress, due to open Friday, was expected to split into pro-Moscow and pro-independence factions. Similar Communist Party splits have already occurred in Lithuania and Estonia and worked in favor of secessionist movements.

Recent statements indicated movement toward a common ground in the Lithuanian crisis, including a possible Lithuanian referendum on independence, which could bring the republic closer to compliance with a new Soviet law on secession.

Edward Tuskenis of the Lithuanian parliament's information office called Thursday's message a "diplomatic and conciliatory" response to Gorbachev's demand that Lithuania renounce its independence declaration.

The message addressed Gorbachev as "deeply esteemed president," and said the parliament "reiterates its readiness to begin a dialogue and to discuss measures to establish new relations between our states."

But Thursday afternoon, about 50 armed men entered the prosecutor's office, site of a previous Soviet attempt to seize authority from officials appointed by the new Lithuanian government.

Henrika Pocei, secretary to Lithuania's chief prosecutor, said in a telephone interview from Vilnius that the men "fully occupied the building, and there are six or eight paratroopers on each floor dressed as policemen."

The Implant Alternative.
If you've been disappointed in conventional solutions to your missing teeth, you should know about an important new alternative: dental implants.
A dental implant is a tiny cylinder which is surgically implanted in your jaw to replace the root of the tooth. Once in place, your natural jawbone bonds to the implant, making it a stable foundation for replacement teeth, a permanent bridge, or anchored, removable dentures. Dental implants are fixed so securely, in fact, they can actually restore the feeling you had with your own natural teeth. As well as your ability to eat just about anything you want—confidently.

Curtis handles arms with skill on film

Star likes target-shooting, but dislikes firearms and supports gun control

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For someone who dislikes guns and supports gun control, Jamie Lee Curtis certainly handles a lot of artillery in her new film, "Blue Steel."

The second-generation film star plays a rookie New York City police officer who kills a suspect on her first assignment and then is stalked by a serial killer, Ron Silver. Despite her qualms, she handles her .38-caliber Smith and Wesson with the same skill that Sigourney Weaver displayed with a laser blaster in "Aliens."

"I don't like guns," Curtis said, "but I was sort of fascinated by them during the making of the film, only because target-shooting became a sport for me. If you're trying to perfect a shot, to make a minuscule adjustment on a long-range target, then it actually became fun.

"I think it is a fun sport. It's a very demanding, psychological-mental test of joining your body together to point something at a faraway distance. But I'm not a gun advocate; I don't belong to the NRA (National Rifle Association). I support gun control."

Her familiarity with the weapon is "part of my job." In keeping with her family tradition, she approaches each job with total professionalism. For "Blue Steel," she practiced gun handling at the Los Angeles Police Department and went through the NYPD's "fun house," which simulates real-life dangers for rookie police. The fun house is depicted in the movie.

"Blue Steel," which drew mixed reviews and decent business in the first week of release, marks another milestone in the career of Curtis, 31. It's the first time she has solo-starred, and it's her first action-adventure. The star as well of a TV sitcom "Anything But Love," she has come a far piece since she was known mostly as chief screamer in horror flicks and daughter of Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis.

"I'm an actress; I look at my series as an opportunity to do a wide range of things," she remarked. "My show affords me totally a great expanse of character to play. I love my TV show; it has given me a lot of chances."

"Anything But Love" also allows her to schedule months of at-home time with her husband, Christopher Guest ("Saturday Night Live"), and their 3-year-old daughter, Annie.

"I love the time with my daughter," Curtis said with a visible glow. "It's three years now, and you get seasoned pretty quickly. I'm so happy. She's just an awesome little girl. We have a great time together."

Annie will grow up with famous parents, just as Curtis did. But Annie's mother is determined to make sure her daughter avoids the usual pitfalls of Hollywood children.

O'Toole in movie, planning a book

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter O'Toole once planned to be a newspaperman. On the positive side, he's been puttering around with what old-school newspapermen always claim they're puttering around with: a book.

He beams and nods when asked if it might be his thoughts on friends and life, perhaps written in the style of a pal, Spike Milligan, whose first such effort was entitled, "Hitler: My Part In His Downfall."

The title of O'Toole's tome?

"Loitering With Intent," says the actor. He would have much to write about. He has loitered and taken the waters with hearty companions like Richard Burton, Richard Harris and John Huston, and tells wonderful tales about all.

Has he set himself a deadline for the book? O'Toole, who no longer takes the waters, shook his head. "Not a deadline, a start line," he said.

He was a bit weary when interviewed. He'd risen at dawn in London and zipped across the Atlantic via Concorde jet to help drumbeat for "Crossing To Freedom," a two-hour CBS film. He left the next day for a film in Tunisia.

In the CBS movie, airing Sunday, he plays a sad, grumpy old Englishman who reluctantly shepherds seven children to safety early in World War II when Hitler's armies invade France.

Upon arriving here to tout the film, O'Toole taped an interview for "CBS This Morning." Then he was shepherded to the United Nations, where the United Nations Children's International Fund hailed the movie and served him lunch.

Then he and a squad of urchins posed for pictures, sticking out their tongues for one shot. Then came more interviews, some with more intense grilling about his 1962 rush to fame as T.E. Lawrence, the sandy mystic warrior dramatized in David Lean's Oscar-winning "Lawrence of Arabia."

O'Toole, still so gaunt he'd be marked absent if he turned sideways, was good-natured and gracious about it all. Like many who've begun on the British stage, he realizes publicity is part of the actor's territory.

But he isn't sure why he became an actor. His first desire was to fight Hitler. That would have been difficult, though; he was only 8 when the war began. So he did the next best thing.

At 16, he went to work at a newspaper in Yorkshire, England, where he'd grown up after his family left Ireland. "I did love it — we shot out four editions a day," he says of his days as an ink-stained wretch.

O'Toole, who still has pals from those days, one now the assistant editor of the Times of London, learned all phases of newspapering, from pressroom to pub-crawling.

"My dream, when I was 17, was a big one," O'Toole says. "I couldn't make up my mind whether I was to be editor of Paris Match or of Life." A sigh. His eyes twinkle.

"But something happened, I don't know what, and I joined the Navy," he says.

NATION

'Put me down as a skeptic....'

— Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Chairman, Senate Finance Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and Japanese negotiators on Thursday put the finishing touches on an unprecedented agreement seeking to make broad-based reforms in the economies of both nations.

The talks, which had been scheduled for two days, took up four days as negotiators haggled over details of the complex proposals aimed at reducing America's huge $49 billion trade deficit with Japan.

"We are making progress and I hope that we will have an announcement shortly," U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills told reporters Thursday.

Japanese officials said Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu was preparing to brief his Cabinet Friday morning on the outcome of the talks.

The talks were unprecedented in their scope because they aimed not at boosting sales for specific foreign products but at correcting broad barriers to trade in both countries.

For the first time, representatives of sovereign states drew up detailed lists of the economic shortcomings in the other nation and demanded changes.

Japanese critics of the effort complained that the United States was trying to scrap centuries of Japanese tradition and remake the country into the image of the United States.

The Bush administration insisted that its recommendations would benefit Japan by increasing competition in a country where consumers now pay some of the highest prices in the industrial world.

The Japanese had their own list of complaints against the United States, citing America's huge budget deficit, low savings rate and short-term planning by U.S. companies as restraints on U.S. productivity.

The administration chose not to accept the most politically sensitive Japanese recommendations to limit Americans' use of credit cards, boost gasoline taxes and scrap tax deductions for home mortgages.

Instead, the administration, according to officials, pledged to increase efforts to improve America's education system and pointed to proposals the administration is already pushing to cut the federal budget deficit and to provide tax credits for increased personal savings.

Officials, who spoke on condition that they not be named, said the Japanese made the following pledges in the agreement:

■ To deregulate Japan's complex goods-distribution system, including a gradual relaxation of restrictions on the establishment of large retail stores. Such a move would allow U.S. and other foreign retailers to open outlets in Japan.

■ To increase enforcement of antitrust laws with tougher penalties to discourage bid-rigging and other collusive practices by Japanese corporations.

■ To boost government spending on public works projects, thus expanding the volume of work on which American firms could bid.

The talks on broad barriers to trade, known as the Structural Impediments Initiative, were launched by the administration in July. Until this week, they had made little headway.

But Kaifu, seeking to lessen growing anti-Japanese sentiment in Congress, promised Bush at a summit meeting in early March that he would make lowering trade tensions a top priority for his government.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont. and chairman of a Senate trade subcommittee, said he was impressed with the newfound willingness by the Japanese to make concessions.

"This is a watershed development," Baucus said. "These talks go to the heart of the relationship between the two nations."

But the Senate Finance Committee chairman, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said he was not yet convinced that Japan was willing to "put an end to its longstanding protectionist practices."

"Put me down as a skeptic who has seen too many agreements in which the results didn't match the rhetoric," he said in a statement. "U.S.-Japan trade agreements — and we had a lot of them throughout the 1980s — were like nothing so much as a drugstore cowboy: all hat and no cattle."

Since the Bush-Kaifu meeting, there has been a flurry of activity in trade negotiations. Agreement were announced in the last two weeks to expand the opportunity for sales of American-made telecommunications equipment, satellites and supercomputers in Japan.

Some saw the concessions as an attempt by Japan to keep from being put on a "hit list" of the countries with the worst barriers to trade for the second year in a row. The administration faces a congressional deadline of April 30 for releasing a new list of target countries.

Such a designation opens the possibility of tough sanctions being imposed against the offending nation's imports to the United States if the barriers are not removed.

Japanese barriers to sales of satellites, supercomputers and wood products were cited by the administration a year ago.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, APRIL 6, 1990

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Seek straight answers and your business or career will show dramatic improvement. You may have to spend more for your family's creature comforts this summer. Set aside funds for investments when the money is rolling in. Your generosity and devotion to duty make you the person others turn to in time of crisis. Love abounds! A romance will weather a big storm. Next February is a great time for a wedding.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Nothing could be more effective than the plan you are working on. Take steps to protect an investment. You can be a top performer if you concentrate. Resist a temptation to sound off.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not take anything for granted now. Check out the details of an agreement before signing or recommending it. A greedy person may be trying to deceive you. Insist on seeing something for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Let loved ones know how much you care. Creative endeavors flourish when friends put their heads together. A serious discussion about the future can put marital plans into better perspective.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Much pleasure can be derived from a conversation with a loving family member. Someone who cares will urge you to be more adventuresome. Inspiration comes from an unusual experience. Confide in mate.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take advantage of an educational opportunity. Finish routine tasks before seeking responsibility for an intriguing new project. Romantic partner may want greater freedom. Remain calm.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Sudden changes at work are both surprising and pleasing. Travel could be part of the package. Taking work home at night can be highly profitable. Double-check all financial facts and figures.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Check the quality of a project before giving it your approval. Exercise or a brisk walk around the neighborhood should make you feel better this evening. Just be careful not to overdo.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An opportunity to sell possessions or property may arise. A tidy profit can be made. Your workload increases due to someone's illness. Be careful not to take on more than you can handle.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): An authority figure is easier to reach now. Extra effort will result in a higher income. Say what you think, but avoid being overly vehement. Encourage a young person to forge ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A promotion is likely if your work reflects recent acquisition of new knowledge. Be more imaginative. Confrontations with an aggressive associate should be avoided.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Now is the time to finalize agreements. An encounter with someone from your past may leave you feeling restless. If looking for diversion tonight, seek out simple, inexpensive pleasures.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Dress elegantly and go all out to impress an influential associate. Someone who is basking in the limelight now may soon be out of favor.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are aggressive, talented and impatient. Money will never be their main motive for working. Although these Aries will insist on being paid what they are worth, their incentive is the desire to be successful. They do excellent public relations work and enjoy selling. Never lie to these bright children. They find deceit hard to forgive or forget. Generous providers, these Rams are protective of their mates and offspring. At times, they appear much calmer than they really are; fires may be raging inside. Treat these affectionate Aries tenderly.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠

Position is a critical factor in bridge. Many a battle hinges on preventing a particular defender from getting in for a lead through an exposed tenace. How would you play three no trump on this hand after a spade lead, covered by the jack and East's king?

With a singleton, North naturally probed for a possible 4-4 heart fit after South opened one no trump. When none was located, North made the value bid of three no trump.

After a spade lead, declarer could count six tricks in diamonds and spades. With any 3-2 break, the club suit would furnish three more. Therefore, a club finesse was unnecessary and, indeed, dangerous, since a spade from East through the Q 9 could seriously threaten the contract.

Correct technique is to win the ace of spades at trick one, lead a club to the ace and return a club to the queen. If East shows out, declarer has two club tricks, the same number that would have been available with a successful finesse, and West on lead cannot profitably continue the spade attack.

As the cards lie, East cannot go up with the king of clubs without surrendering the contract, so that defender must play low and declarer's queen wins as West shows out. Continuing clubs is now futile, so declarer crosses to a high diamond and leads a heart to the king.

That loses to the ace, but the contract is secure. No matter what West returns, declarer's combined jack-ten of hearts assures that a ninth trick can be set up in that suit.

Jurors decide profits from firm Newman's Own

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP) — A jury Thursday rejected a delicatessen owner's claims that he was promised a slice of actor Paul Newman's gourmet food companies.

The Superior Court jury deliberated just five hours over two days before deciding that Newman never promised Westport deli owner Julius Gold 8 percent stock in the companies, Newman's Own Inc. and Salad King Inc., for the help Gold said he provided in launching the businesses in 1982 and 1983.

"It's just tragic, all of this energy and time could not have been spent in more charitable pursuits, but that's the nature of the beast," Newman said moments after the verdict was announced.

Newman showed no emotion as the decision of the six-member jury was announced. He shook hands with his attorneys and his partner, author A.E. Hotchner, before leaving the courtroom.

Gold sat dejectedly without moving for 15 minutes after the verdict was announced and appeared despondent over the verdict. But he said he would not appeal.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ryan White remained unconscious and in critical condition Thursday with an AIDS-related lung infection, while other young patients savored $500 worth of toys passed out by his friend, Elton John.

White, 18, has been in the intensive care unit at Riley Hospital for Children for a week. Dr. Martin B. Kleiman said during his daily briefing that there had been no perceptible change in White's condition and that he remained on life-support systems.

Hospital switchboard operators said about 1,000 calls a day have come in from celebrities and others expressing hope and concern for White. A record of each call has been passed along to the family.

The callers have included Vice President Dan Quayle; Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.; and entertainers Michael Jackson, Carol Burnett, Lionel Ritchie and Phil Donahue.

The family has asked that donations and cards be sent to the Ryan White Fund, P.O. Box 40, Noblesville, IN 46060. Floral arrangements sent to the hospital have been distributed to other children not in intensive care.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Peggy Lee won the first round in a $12.5 million lawsuit against Walt Disney Productions over videocassette release of "Lady and the Tramp" for which her voice was used for four characters.

She said Disney needed her approval before releasing the 1955 animated classic.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge William Huss established Disney's liability in the case and now will schedule a trial, Daily Variety reported Wednesday.

The paper said a Disney spokesman declined to say what steps Disney might take in the case.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Author E.L. Doctorow is the winner of the PEN-Faulkner Award for best American fiction published in 1989 for his eighth novel, "Billy Bathgate," the Folger Shakespeare Library announced Thursday.

Doctorow, 59, a professor at New York University, will receive a $7,500 cash prize at an awards ceremony May 12 at the library, which administers the awards. Four finalists will receive $2,500 each.

Doctorow's award-winning novel is about a young man from the Bronx who becomes the protege of the infamous 1930s gangster, Dutch Schultz. Doctorow previously had won the National Book Critics Circle Award for "Billy Bathgate" and "Ragtime" and the National Book Award for "World's Fair."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A book that Marc Christian, the ex-lover of Rock Hudson, claims has defamed him as criminal and psychotic "speaks for itself," a spokesman for the publisher said Thursday.

Christian, who won $5.5 million from the Hudson estate a year ago in a landmark AIDS lawsuit, filed a $22 million lawsuit Wednesday against the book's two authors and New York-based Pharos Books.

The Tom Clark and Dick Kleiner book "Rock Hudson, Friend of Mine," released last month, referred to Christian as "a criminal, a thief, an unclean person, a blackmailer, a psychotic, an extortionist, a forger, a perjurer, a liar, a whore, an arsonist and a squatter," Christian's lawsuit said.

Journalists given ethical warning

A longtime West Texas newswoman, who was nominated for the Pulitzer Prize in 1962 for her coverage of wheeler-dealer Billie Sol Estes's escapades, has good advice for journalists caught in a dilemma and considering stepping across the ethical line. The word is "don't."

They're toying with a precious freedom and may not recognize that they are endangering freedom of the press.

"We did everything we could think of," Marj Carpenter, now national news director for the Presbyterian Church, told those gathered for a convention of the Texas Press Women in Midland.

"We pulled each other's slides, exposed each other's film, lied to each other," she said in speaking of the battle between the competitive Pecos Independent and Pecos Enterprise. She admitted that she violated journalism principles in that era.

Yet it isn't only a matter of ethics between competing news organizations that needs attention, she noted. "We have all kinds of things to look at about what is ethically fair in journalism.

Ms. Carpenter is correct. Attitudes regarding journalism ethics have cycled from the liberal extreme which professed that getting the story first was the most important factor, regardless of the tactics used, to one which contends that journalists, too, must play by socially acceptable rules in collecting information and writing stories.

That philosophy is becoming more prevalent today, not only in terms of how it applies to competing news organizations but also in the relationship of newsmen and newswomen to their news sources and the public in general.

A higher degree of ethical behavior is demanded by readers, listeners and viewers, and journalists consequently are expected to perform up to that demand.

Ms. Carpenter noted that when journalists throw "garbage all over the alley," and try to collect it later, all the garbage cannot be collected and put back in the garbage can.

"We talk so about freedom of the press, and we don't relize what a great thing we have," she noted.

Her comments should strike a chord with journalists who bump up against the ethical barrier regularly, and must make decisions that affect not only their own lives, but the lives of thousands of people every day.

Mosbacher has taste for finer things

WASHINGTON — Most Americans would be honored simply to carry the title of a Cabinet secretary. But Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher has a taste for finer things.

Anderson

An oil baron by trade, Mosbacher was accustomed to the life of a corporate fat cat before he signed on as a public servant. Evidently some habits are hard to break.

For instance, Mosbacher had a bright red canopy installed outside his private entrance to the Commerce Department building in Washington. That cost $6,300 — perhaps the amount you paid in federal income tax last year. Now you know where your money went.

On an official trip to Canada last year, Mosbacher wanted the red carpet treatment. A high-level Commerce Department source said Mosbacher had his staff ask the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to meet his plane and bring along a band. The Canadians declined the honor.

Mosbacher is arguably the most glitzy Cabinet secretary in recent history. His blue eyes and mane of gray hair make a striking impression. He is said to be charming and gracious. He made his fortune — estimated at more than $200 million — as an oil and gas prospector.

Mosbacher and his wife Georgette, a cosmetics executive, had heavy advance billing as the couple that would take Washington by storm. That didn't pan out. They give lavish parties, but Mrs. Mosbacher now spends much of her time taking care of business in New York instead of making the soiree circuit in Washington.

Cabinet secretaries don't work their way up through the ranks as career civil servants, and Mosbacher is no exception. But in a sense, he earned the Cabinet job. He raised millions of dollars as finance director of George Bush's 1988 campaign.

Mosbacher doesn't apologize for winning a Cabinet post because he is a generous Republican party supporter who can wring big bucks out of his friends. In fact, after he became Commerce secretary, he complained that not enough prime political appointments were going to those who had paid their dues by contributing heavily to Republican campaigns.

A spokesman for Mosbacher told us the secretary gets a bum rap because he is a millionaire and a friend of the president.

On Capitol Hill, Mosbacher has received a mixed reception. He is accessible and likable. He won points last year when he persuaded Bush to keep certain technological secrets from going to the Japanese in the joint manufacture of the FSX warplane.

But Mosbacher has not lived up to that early billing as a defender of American business interests. Some congressional sources told our associate Scott Sleek that they had expected Mosbacher to be at the forefront of solving America's competitiveness problems. Instead, they said, he has taken a back seat to Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady and Trade Representative Carla Hills.

In the last few weeks, Mosbacher has picked up some momentum. He made a high-profile trip to Japan to discuss trade problems. And his defenders point out that Bush recently endorsed a concept pushed by Mosbacher — the softening of anti-trust laws so government and industry can collaborate on high-tech developments.

And what about that canopy? Mosbacher's office told us that the secretary has lots of important people coming to visit him and he wants to make an impression.

Bush right about broccoli issue

I've been alive during nine presidents. I don't remember much about the first one, Harry Truman. I was too busy teething. Then, came Ike. He enjoyed playing golf. So do I. After Ike, came Jack Kennedy. He enjoyed playing touch football and fooling around. I used to play a lot of touch football.

Grizzard

Lyndon Johnson was next. He was from Texas. I've been to Texas a lot of times.

After Johnson, came Richard Nixon. He was paranoid. I'm not paranoid, regardless of what all those people who are out to get me say.

Then, there was Gerald Ford. He fell down a lot. I fell down in 1964, entering a botany class at the University of Georgia. Everybody laughed at me, and I made a "C" in botany.

Jimmy Carter succeeded Gerald Ford. Jimmy Carter and I are both from Georgia. Ronald Reagan was a former actor. I once appeared on the television comedy, "Designing Women." Television comedies don't pay that well.

Now, there's George Bush. I didn't think I had anything in common with him. He enjoys vacationing in Maine. Why would anybody vacation in Maine?

It's cold there. When I vacation I go where it's warm. Anybody who goes skiing is an idiot.

But now I find George Bush and I agree on at least one point.

He doesn't like broccoli. Neither do I. I'd rather be dipped in horse dung and rolled in cracker crumbs before I would eat broccoli.

People have said to me, "Eat your broccoli. It's good for you."

People have tried to make me eat liver, too. I'd rather eat wet cardboard than eat liver. As a matter of fact, have you ever noticed how liver tastes like wet cardboard? In fact, wet cardboard tastes better than liver because there is no blood involved.

The president, say news reports, absolutely detests broccoli. He won't allow it on his airplane, the Song Bird, or is it Air Force One?

This has caused a great stir. American broccoli growers are sending Bush 10 tons of the stuff in a friendly protest.

What would you do with 10 tons of broccoli if you detested broccoli? You'd send it back with a note saying, "I'm the president of the United States, and if I don't want to eat my broccoli, I don't have to do it."

That's what this country is all about, isn't it?

If an American doesn't want to eat his or her broccoli then an American doesn't have to eat it.

God bless America, and I hate Brussels sprouts, too.

British rebelling against tax seen as unfair

WASHINGTON — Two hundred years ago, our forebears got so angry at being unfairly taxed they risked their lives for an uncertain future independent of the crowned head across the ocean responsible for the burden.

Means

These days, however, it is the British who are rebelling against an unfair tax while Americans not only meekly submit to disproportionate levies but profess to love the president who imposed them and the successor who perpetuates them.

British voters have rioted to protest a new tax that abruptly transfers the basis of government revenue-raising from the customary property-based levy, which falls heaviest on the well-off, to a fee for public services that is the same for rich and poor alike. The poorest neighborhoods, in fact, are being charged more than prosperous ones with fewer needs.

Crowds attacked expensive restaurants and cars beloved of the wealthy, sending an unmistakable if violent message. Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's popularity has plummeted. The controversy could bring down her government.

A similar shift from a progressive to regressive tax policy has been occurring in this country. But voters have been slow to realize it and react.

The new approach is not only tolerated but also actually applauded as good thinking to stimulate the economy even though studies show it has not spurred savings and investment as promised. In the past decade, the rich grew richer and the poor grew poorer as the overall tax burden — federal, state and local — lifted for the rich but increased for middle-class and low-income families.

It began deliberately with President Reagan's high-priority tax cut his first year in office, which benefited the very wealthiest Americans the most. The top income tax rate on rich individuals went from 50 percent to 28 percent; people with millions have a lower marginal tax rate than those earning $70,000.

About that time, Attorney General Edwin Meese told the Hearst Newspapers a major goal of the administration was that "progressivity in the tax structure" had to go. I didn't take him seriously.

Progressive taxes are the very foundation of democracy, a social pact meant to assure that all individuals pull their own weight, according to ability, for the greater good of all. Surely, I thought, it would be politically insane to abandon such a just principle.

But Meese and his boss were more interested in preserving and enhancing private wealth for the few than in tax justice for the many.

The Reagan administration persistently pursued policies designed to relieve taxes on the wealthy, finance government services through fees paid equally by rich and poor, trim tax-financed domestic programs designed to assist the less fortunate and transfer costs to states and localities. The administration even tried unsuccessfully to balance off more federal tax cuts by eliminating the standard deduction for state and local jurisdiction taxes.

Progressivity was further assaulted by Social Security payroll tax revisions in 1983 that were pushed by the Democrats to keep the fund solvent, but financed by payroll taxes levied at a constant rate on all wages up to $51,300.

Now that the Social Security fund has a surplus which is feeding the general revenue pot, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., is pressing to make amends by cutting that tax. The Democratic National Committee, conceding the tax's regressive nature, has just endorsed the Moynihan plan, although party congressional leaders remain dubious.

President Bush clings to the Reagan concept of pampering the rich at the expense of the rest of us. He has put more emphasis upon winning a cut in capital gains taxes than any other issue.

He continues the Reagan notion of pushing off ever-more costs on the states, to the point that many governors are coping with growing budget deficits and potential local tax revolts. He has proposed a raft of new user fees, including hefty increases on travelers who fly. He refuses to consider income tax increases that might raise the top rate on the very wealthy.

CHARLEY REESE

National Endowment for Arts has got to go

Write your congressman and senators and tell them to abolish the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Reese

One, Congress is wailing about the budget deficit, threatening cuts in social programs and bemoaning its cash shortage. Well, cutting out these two boondoggles will put about $200 million back into the treasury.

Two, these are not essential programs. They do not help the needy, the sick, the elderly, handicapped, the homeless or provide essential services such as national defense. They are subsidies to a rather well-off elite.

Three, neither the arts nor the humanities — literature and social science — would suffer. Decent work can win support in the marketplace. Subsidized work is usually unmarketable junk.

Four, these elites, which have their hands in the taxpayers' pockets, are incredibly arrogant, ungrateful, and stupid. A mild amendment, sparked by outrageously poor taste on the part of the National Endowment for the Arts, and prohibiting nothing more than the production of tax-funded obscenity, has these grant-hogs in a tizzy.

Censorship is their cry. Rape of the First Amendment. Well, the answer is simple. If you don't want the regulation, don't take the money. It is not censorship for taxpayers via their elected representatives to attach reasonable conditions on grants of public money.

Artists who wish to fill jars with urine and submerge crucifixes, playwrights who wish to stage productions with porno queens, and homosexuals who wish to photograph and display the very acts they claim the government should not look at when done in the bedroom, may still do so. Just do it with their own money or with the money of any private citizen or group willing to pay for it.

There has been such a brain meltdown in America that con artistry no longer requires any artistry. All sorts of people these days make a good living pawning off on the public all kinds of junk. There is, believe it, a market for anything.

In the meantime, Congress can save around $200 million and not suffer the embarrassment of saying that children can't get drug treatment but Manhattan eccentrics can get funded for odd piles of bric-a-brac they claim is art. They won't have to explain why subsidizing the amusement of the gullible rich is a higher priority than nursing home care for the elderly or a liver transplant for a dying child.

I get damned tired of hearing Sen. Slick and Rep. Smiley Face throw up their hands and say there is just no place to cut the budget except defense.

Eliminate the National Endowment for the Arts. Eliminate the National Endowment for the Humanities. That's two easy places to cut and not commit any public injury whatsoever.

Congress obviously has suffered a brain meltdown (it made a small puddle) because setting priorities is not a difficult concept to grasp. You look at the money you have. You look at what you need to do. You look at what you would like to do. Then you set priorities and spend from the top priority down. When you run out of money, you scratch the remainder off the list.

Until we approach the maximum potential in terms of public safety and public health while balancing the budget, then everything else has to go. As a comedian likes to say, if it has to go, it's got to go.

Come to think of it, a lot of congressmen and senators have got to go.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history:

On April 6, 1909, American explorer Robert Edwin Peary became the first person to lead an expedition to the North Pole.

On this date:

In 1830, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was organized by Joseph Smith at Fayette, N.Y.

In 1862, the Civil War Battle of Shiloh began as the Confederates attacked Union forces in Tennessee.

In 1892, author and newscaster Lowell Thomas was born in Woodington, Ohio.

Rich Americans pose biggest threat to environment

PITTSBURGH (AP) — One American does 20 to 100 times more damage to the planet than one person in the Third World, and one rich American causes 1,000 times more destruction, a population expert said Thursday.

"The most serious population problem in the world is right here in the United States," said Paul Ehrlich, Stanford University professor of population studies.

"The most common misperception of the population problem is that it's a problem of poor Indians who don't know how to use condoms," he said. "Actually, the problem in the world is that there are too many rich people."

Ehrlich and other environmentalists spoke to about 1,200 students, teachers, garden-club members and corporate executives at a conference on solving global environmental problems.

He said the current world population of 5.3 billion is 1.8 billion more than in 1968 when he first predicted the problems of overpopulation in his book "The Population Bomb."

He and his wife, Anne Howland Ehrlich, who co-wrote the current book, "The Population Explosion," say this decade will be the turning point for global environmental problems.

"If we don't see some real action in this decade, it will probably be too late to avert some very serious problems" including inadequate food production, global warming, species extinction and deforestation, said Mrs. Ehrlich, associate director for the Center for Conservation Biology at Stanford.

Ehrlich railed against highly developed nations like the United States that he claims consume too much of the world's resources.

"The birth of a baby in the United States is something on the order of 20 to 100 times more disastrous for the life support systems of the planet as the birth of a baby in poor countries like Bangladesh or Venezuela," he said.

The Ehrlichs based the figures on 1987 statistics compiled by the United Nations on per capita commerical energy consumption, an index used by environmentalists to measure damage to the Earth.

People who drive gas-guzzling luxury cars, air-condition their homes and live from what Ehrlich calls "high-intensity-the-hell-with-tomorrow agriculture" do far more environmental damage than subsistence farmers, he said.

Several environmentalists at the conference echoed Ehrlich's assessments on overpopulation and his claim the world is running out of time to find solutions.

Peru adds space for exotic birds

NEW YORK (AP) — A remote, nearly uninhabited Amazon valley the size of Connecticut with some of the rarest and most exotic birds in the world has been set aside by Peru as a nature reserve, conservation officials say.

The Tambo Pata-Candamo Reserve has among the highest numbers of exotic plants and animals of any area in the world, said Charles Munn, an ornithologist with Wildlife Conservation International of New York and an authority on Peru's macaws.

"About one out of every eight species of birds in the world is found in Tambo Pata," Munn said in an interview Tuesday. "In three square miles of southeastern Peru, you can see 560 species, which is a world record. You can see 330 in one day. Which is not bad." All of Canada and the United States have only about 830 species.

Among the Peruvian birds are 8 species of brightly colored macaws, the world's largest and most endangered parrots. They congregate in great wildlife spectacles around "macaw licks," where they eat clay to help digest their food.

The reserve is also home to the endangered, 6-foot-long giant otter, which travels in family packs and eats anacondas, among other delicacies. And it has "white-water rafting that will knock your socks off," Munn said.

Such features make the park a good candidate for the promotion of "ecotourism," a means for Third World countries to profit from their wilderness areas without destroying them, Munn said.

The area covered by the 3.7-million-acre reserve has been drawing about 9,000 tourists a year, generating $2 million annually for Peru. "This area can be self-sustaining immediately if they enact a gate fee of even $5 a day per visitor," Munn said. "This is unusual. It could simply live off of gate receipts."

Peru also has announced the establishment of a 1-million-acre reserve, Kugapakori-Nahua Indian Reserve, to protect the Kugapakori and Nahua Indians, who remain out of contact with civilization, Munn said.

"If you go in there, they kill you," said Munn. "So you don't go in there."

The new parks are not in the part of Peru that has been subject to recent terrorist attacks, Munn said. "I take my family down with me, including two young children," he said.

"Peru has a fantastic system of parks and reserves on paper," said Adrian Forsyth, a tropical ecologist with Conservation International in Washington, D.C. "If they can just get the support needed to have them operate, I think conservation in Peru will be in pretty good shape."

The Tambo Pata-Candamo Reserve, north of the city of Puerto Maldonado, about 500 miles southeast of Lima, covers a varied landscape in the Andes foothills ranging from lowland tropical rain forests to mist-shrouded cloud forests at elevations of up to 10,000 feet.

In addition to its spectacular bird population, it contains half again as many trees as any other region in the Amazon, Munn said. And it is virtually untouched.

"The important thing here is there are basically no people living in this entire area," said Munn. "It is the last big valley in entire western Amazon that has no people living in it."

The two new reserves are near the Manu Biosphere Reserve, an even larger park roughly the size of Massachusetts.

Peru also is considering setting aside several million acres of rubber and brazil-nut forest in the area adjacent to the part of Brazil where Francisco "Chico" Mendes, an environmental activist and rubber tapper, was slain in 1988, Munn said.

Lava forces evacuation

KALAPANA, Hawaii (AP) — Creeping like a fiery dragon, lava from Kilauea Volcano vaporized two houses and oozed toward four others in a rural subdivision on Hawaii Island.

Kilauea Volcano has wiped out 78 residences since it began erupting more than seven years ago.

Residents of 59 homes have been ordered to evacuate. Civil defense officials said all residents of the 125-home coastal community should be ready to pack their belongings within 72 hours.

Quake felt in Guam

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — A strong earthquake shook a section of the Marianas Islands on Friday morning, the U.S. Geological Survey said. There were no reports of injury or damage.

The quake, centered 230 miles north of the U.S. territory of Guam, registered 7.4 on the Richter scale, a USGS spokeswoman said.

Friday's quake reportedly was felt in Guam and other nearby islands, she said. Guam is about 1,500 miles east of the Philippines.

Payload delivered

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — An experimental Pegasus rocket was blasted into space Thursday from a B-52 and successfully delivered its first satellite payload into a polar orbit, officials said.

"Pegasus is on its way," F-18 chase plane pilot Jim Molka radioed to controllers at 12:11 p.m. as the 50-foot rocket was dropped from its perch beneath the jet's right wing.

Strapped beneath the right wing of the gleaming white and silver bomber, Pegasus was flown to 43,000 feet over the military's Western Test Range in the ocean off Southern California.

The 41,000-pound rocket was released and appeared to fall free for five seconds, then streaked into space trailing a fiery ribbon of smoke.

Developed by Virginia-based Orbital Sciences Corp. and Delaware-based Hercules Aerospace Corp., Pegasus was designed to put small satellites into orbit at low cost. It has been called the poor man's satellite booster.

Negotiators agree

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee cleared away the last major obstacle to approval of a clean air bill late Thursday with a compromise agreement on reducing acid rain.

The Energy and Commerce Committee voted 34-4 to approve a complex allowance system aimed at helping Midwest states ease the cost of reducing acid rain pollutants and soften regional opposition to the legislation.

The acid rain issue has dominated three days of closed-door bargaining among members of the committee, which is putting the finishing touches on the pollution control measure.

The Senate earlier in the week passed a sweeping clean air bill by a vote of 89-11.

Kodak to pay fine

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Eastman Kodak Co. was fined $2.15 million in criminal and civil penalties on Thursday for violating New York's environmental laws.

The photographic giant pleaded guilty in Rochester City Court to two misdemeanor violations for illegally disposing of hazardous waste.

The $1 million criminal fine is the largest ever assessed by New York in an environmental case and among the largest in the nation, said state Attorney General Robert Abrams.

But Judge Herman J. Walz criticized the agreement for letting Kodak's officers off the hook.

"In this court's view, so-called white collar criminals ought to be punished as severely as any other criminal,...perhaps more severely," he said.

CAF looking over final contenders

■ The Confederate Air Force staff inspects local site, as San Antonio boosters wait for joint-use agreement with Kelly Air Force Base to be approved.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

While the Confederate Air Force (CAF) general staff today will be looking over Midland International Airport as a prospective home base for the CAF, San Antonio officials are readying to host the CAF staff Saturday.

The World War II aviation group, in seeking to move its Ghost Squadron of more than 140 "warbirds" out of Rio Grande Valley at Harlingen, has narrowed its choices from six to two: the Midland site and one near Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio.

Meanwhile, San Antonio leaders are seeking official United States Air Force approval for a joint-use agreement whereby the CAF could use Kelly AFB's taxiways and runways.

"The paperwork for an agreement is at United States Air Force headquarters (in Washington, D.C.), and it's being considered," said Dale Ullrich, senior vice president of the Greater San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, which is coordinating the city's CAF bid. The documents have been at USAF headquarters for a week to 10 days, he said.

"It's a matter of course," Ullrich said. "In my opinion, it will be approved."

The joint-use agreement already has been sanctioned by officials at Kelly AFB and at Kelly's major command headquarters, Air Force Logistics Command, at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio.

Nationwide, said Ullich, the U.S. government has signed 20 or more joint-use agreements on air fields, including Sheppard Air Force Base at Wichita Falls.

"That's a joint-use airdrome where the military flies off runways," Ullrich said. "At the same time, they run commercial airplanes in there. And that's the same kind of agreement that would be worked at Kelly."

"If you want to have an air show," said Ullrich, "it would be like any other air show we put on. You've got to schedule it."

During any CAF air show, for example, the base would be closed to other traffic.

To lure the CAF to San Antonio, city leaders are offering a $23-million package, which includes $3-million up-front money, and up to $20-million in industrial revenue bonds to build CAF facilities, including a replica of a World War II air base and taxiways on a 50-acre site adjacent to Kelly AFB. The indebtedness would be paid off through admission fees and other revenue generated by the CAF.

Midland, however, is offering the CAF a $19-million debt-free "deal" that includes 52 acres of land, hangars, headquarters, and museum at the Midland airport.

Mattox renews his call to debate Richards

By Brenda Masengill
Staff Writer

Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Jim Mattox renewed his calls Thursday for a debate with opponent Ann Richards, agreeing not to raise the drug issue if that's what it takes for a face-to-face encounter before Tuesday's runoff.

Mattox, the state attorney general, made his comments in a campaign stop at the Midland International Airport.

Even if the media raises the question of Ms. Richards' alleged drug use during a debate, Mattox said he will not. Further, he will face off against his opponent "anywhere in Texas," although Mattox noted "Midland-Odessa would be an excellent place to hold a debate."

Ms. Richards is expected to make a campaign stop in Midland Monday. Staff members for the candidate earlier said Ms. Richards has declined all debate requests because of scheduling conflicts prior to the runoff.

"If she can't come out and face me, she can't come out and face Clayton Williams in November," Mattox said, referring to the Republican gubernatorial nominee, who hails from Midland.

Mattox, a former U.S. congressman and state representative, said he is anxious to debate the issues with Ms. Richards, "if we can just get her to come out of hiding."

Ms. Richards, the state treasurer, has refused to say whether she has ever used illegal drugs. She has said that she hasn't used a "mood-altering chemical" in 10 years and that she never knowingly committed a felony.

Mattox again said he will turn over his tax returns when Williams "shows his (tax) records" or "maybe when" Ms. Richards discloses her medical records from a chemical dependency center where she was treated in 1980 for alcoholism.

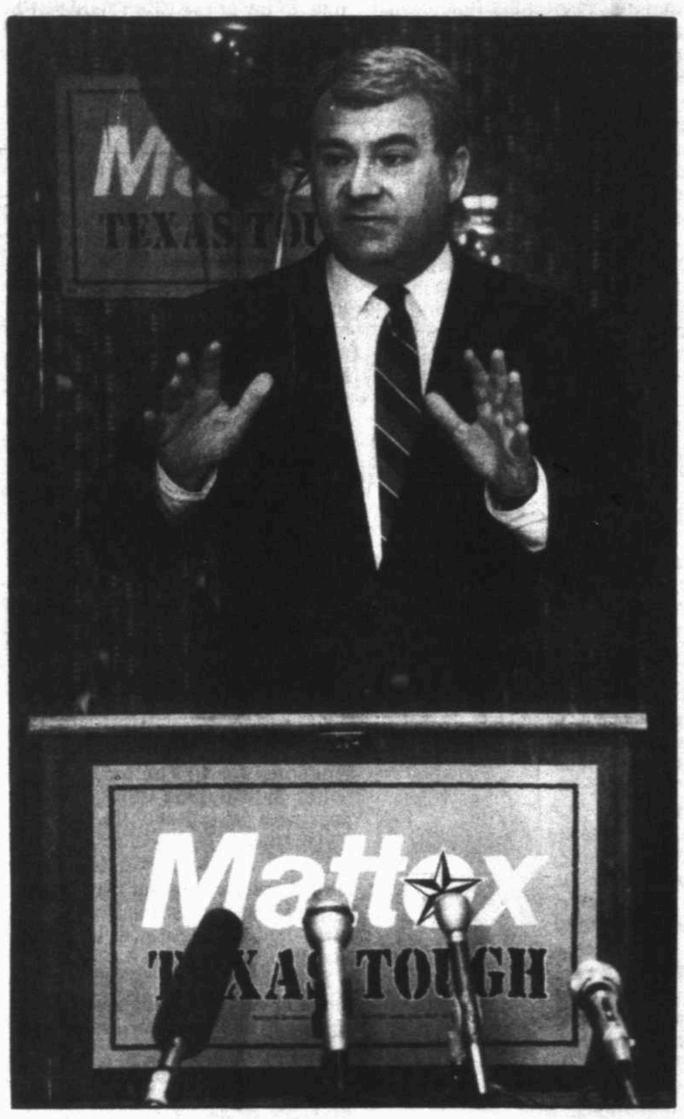

Mattox said Ms. Richards has "flip-flopped" on the question of taxes, and emphasized his position of "lottery, yes; income tax, no."

The attorney general argues that Texans will not tolerate new taxes, and are "embracing my campaign because I am the only candidate in this race who is unequivocally opposed to new taxes and in favor of a state lottery to revive our failing schools and wage a winning war on drugs and crime."

Mattox touted his 21-point program for Texas agriculture, noting that "agriculture is the second largest industry in Texas ... yet our current farm programs only benefit corporate farms."

As to Williams, Mattox said the GOP nominee "has no expertise or knowledge of state government." Williams also shows "a lack of sensitivity on issues affecting women and children," Mattox said.

Williams, according to Mattox, "is a very wealthy man, but mere wealth doesn't bring the capability to run state government."

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, who faces Ann Richards in the Democratic gubernatorial runoff next week, Thursday renewed his call for a debate with Ms. Richards.

Study shows TU Electric overcharging customers

By James Cullen
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A study done for Cap Rock Electric Cooperative Inc. concluded TU Electric is overcharging customers by nearly $350 million annually, said an officer of the co-op, which is fighting a proposed 10.2 percent rate increase.

The study by C.H. Guernsey & Co. of Oklahoma City found TU Electric's sales have increased at more than twice the pace of its expenses, said Steve Collier, Cap Rock Electric's director of power supply. He appeared at a Capitol news conference Thursday with representatives of consumer groups opposed to the rate hike.

The Stanton-based co-op, which buys its electricity from TU Electric and serves 17,000 customers in 13 West Texas counties, said Dallas-based TU Electric appears to be using "windfall" profits to pay for overruns associated with the Comanche Peak Nuclear Plant.

A spokesman for TU Electric, which also serves the Midland area, said the consultants who produced the Cap Rock study "manipulated the numbers and the results they have produced are meaningless."

The study found TU Electric was collecting nearly 10 percent more in revenue than it should, Collier said. "TU Electric's two proposed increases for Comanche Peak, when stacked on top of this overcharge, really results in an increase of 30 percent," he said.

TU Electric has asked the Texas Public Utility Commission for a 10.2 percent rate increase to start paying for the first unit at Comanche Peak, and has indicated it will ask for an additional 10 percent hike in 1993, when the plant's second unit is scheduled to be put in operation.

"These increases will allow TU Electric to sock ratepayers with all of the costs of a late, over-budget plant when it is not clear that all of these expenses were prudent," Collier said. "Even worse, these increases come on top of an existing 10 percent overcharge."

Collier said TU was authorized by the PUC in 1984 to collect $1.8 billion annually in base rates, but the Guernsey report indicates that the utility is collecting $608.5 million more than that amount because of growth in its service area, while expenses and other costs associated with the growth have risen only $263.9 million.

The difference of almost $350 million includes $130 million in reduced income tax costs to TU as a

Local children treated for exposure to pesticide

By Brenda Masengill
Staff Writer

Three Midland children were treated at Midland Memorial Hospital Wednesday night after coming in contact with the pesticide chlordane, a fire department official has confirmed. The children were not hospitalized.

Sales of chlordane, a chemical used in termite control, have been banned since the mid-1980s, according to Midland Fire Marshal Jerry Petree. Prior to the ban, it was a commonly used pesticide, Midland Deputy Fire Chief Dean Williams said.

The children, residents of the Sandstone Apartments, 4315 Neely Avenue, "did get some (of the pesticide) on their skin," Petree said, although there were no physical signs of injury.

Nonetheless, parents of the children were advised to take the youngsters to the hospital as a precautionary measure, Petree said. Chlordane "is a hazard ... if it's swallowed, absorbed through the skin or obviously inhaled," Williams said.

Midland attorney Frank McCallum is representing Barry and Marie Neff and Cheree Case, the parents of two children involved in the incident. According to a prepared statement by McCallum, the children "got the pesticide on their legs, arms, and probably faces, and in addition, the children inhaled the fumes."

The fire department responded to the apartment complex after receiving a call about 6:40 p.m. Following the incident, the apartment's management was asked to lock up the pesticide until it can be disposed of, fire officials said.

Petree said it was unknown how the children, ages four to six, gained access to the chlordane. However, when fire department investigator Mark Hamilton arrived at the apartments, a gallon bottle of the pesticide was found sitting outside a locked storage room, Petree said.

In his statement, McCallum said "one parent, after seeing the substance on her child, and thinking it was oil, attempted to wash it off her child. When it would not come off, she located the container of pesticide still located outside the storage area."

McCallum stated that the Neffs and Case, along "with another set of parents were secondarily exposed to chlordane when they attempted to wash this substance off their children and their clothing."

McCallum also said that "both the parents and the children are undergoing daily monitoring for the effects of the poisoning." Mrs. Neff reportedly is 10 weeks pregnant.

According to the fire department report, "two small cupfuls" appeared to be missing from the gallon bottle. "We're not talking about very much at all," Petree said. However, the children did get the chlordane on their clothing and toys, as well as on their skin, Petree said. Some of the pesticide also was spilled on a sidewalk.

The apartment's management was asked to clean up the area of the spill, including any soil that may have been contaminated.

The apartment manager, who declined to identify herself, said Thursday that "we're making every diligent effort to clean up the area that supposedly (the spill) was at."

The manager said she had "no earthly idea" where the chlordane came from, but "as far as I know" it does not belong to the apartment's maintenance department. "I'm trying to determine exactly what happened," she said.

As a matter of procedure, Petree said the Texas Water Commission and the federal Environmental Protection Agency were notified of the incident.

New county jail dedication ceremonies set for Saturday

By Brenda Masengill
Staff Writer

Dedication ceremonies for a $3.9 million Midland Detention Facility will get under way at 11 a.m. Saturday with escorted tours of the new jail slated from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The building is located at 101 West Industrial Ave.

Midland oilman Bobby Holt, chairman of the Texas Public Safety Commission, will serve as master of ceremonies.

At 9 a.m., Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) will sponsor a 5 kilometer run that will begin and end at the new facility, Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter said. The group will present awards at 10 a.m.

Midland County Judge Bill Ahders, Mayor Carroll Thomas, Midland Police Chief Richard Czech and Jack Crump, Texas Commission on Jail Standards executive director, are slated to speak at the ceremonies.

Painter, Midland County Commissioner Durward Wright and Modesta Williams, chairman of Citizens for a New Jail, also are scheduled to speak.

Tom Thomson, pastor of St. Paul United Methodist Church, will give the invocation, followed by presentation of the colors by Law Enforcement Explorer Post 210.

The 36,830-square-foot facility was financed with proceeds from a $3.8 million voter approved bond issue in January 1988. The debt will be retired in 2001.

"This has been a major undertaking that has involved a number of officials and concerned citizens," Precinct 2 Commissioner Guy McCrary said. "And obviously we are very pleased to dedicate the facility and hopeful that it will make a difference in our ability to improve our law enforcement and criminal justice system."

McCrary and Wright represented the county commission on the jail project team, which helped spearhead the effort to construct a new facility.

Two previous bond issues in recent years directed at jail improvements failed, noted McCrary, who added that support from the community made the difference in 1988. McCrary praised the Citizens for a New Jail Committee.

"We are extremely appreciative that the citizens supported the concept of a (new) jail by voting for the bond issue," McCrary said.

MISD officials say factors may limit school's location

■ A flood plain and a gas pipeline may narrow the "buffer zone" between the proposed junior high school and the neighborhood around it.

By David Morris
Staff Writer

In reviewing possible site configurations for a new junior high school Thursday, school trustees promised again to accommodate north Midland residents concerned that the school could ruin their rural lifestyle.

However, the presence of gas pipelines and a flood plain will limit the school district's ability to provide a "buffer zone" between the proposed new school and nearby homes, district staffers said Thursday.

A Chevron pipeline bisects the property, part of which has been donated by the Abell-Hanger Foundation. The property's southwest corner, although relatively far from concerned residents' homes, is in a 100-year floodplain.

District architect Terry Harden said it would cost a minimum of $350,000 to raise the level of land in the flood plain if the school is built there.

Wilson Heidelberg, Midland Independent School District executive director of auxiliary services, said it probably was not feasible to place the school in the floodplain.

"Anywhere south of the pipeline we're going to have to pad up," Heidelberg said.

Trustee George Staley said it would be foolish to waste taxpayers' money on raising the site if it's not necessary.

"We don't need to spend any more money than necessary and we need to keep north of the pipeline," Staley said. However, he added that within those restrictions, the buffer zone should be as wide as possible.

RATE: Groups criticize proposed increase

(From 1B)

result of the Tax Reform Act of 1986. This reduction has not been passed on to customers, Collier noted in his summary to the Cap Rock board of directors.

"The analysis also reveals that a too-high profit margin and a continuing advanced recovery by TU Electric of Comanche Peak investment costs ... make up the bulk of the overrecovery," he said.

"TU Electric apparently has been able to finance some of its mismanagement of the Comanche Peak Nuclear Plant with excess revenues resulting from rates that are unreasonably high," he said.

"These overcollections are now history, and are not likely ever to be returned," he said. "TU Electric has collected hundreds of millions of dollars under false pretenses to help pay for this horrendously expensive, uneconomical generating plant."

David Fiorelli, senior engineer for TU Electric in Dallas, said the utility has not recovered any of Comanche Peak construction costs from rates, although the PUC allowed it to recover some financing costs in 1984.

He also noted that the company's return on equity has dropped from 11.3 percent in 1984 to 5.1 percent in 1989. "That is inconsistent with the too high profit margin charge," Fiorelli said.

TU Electric has been able to reduce its rates by 10 percent since 1984 as a result of lower fuel costs, he added.

Representatives of consumer groups also criticized the proposed rate increase that is tied to Comanche Peak, which is 45 miles southwest of Fort Worth and recently started low-power testing. The plant is scheduled to go into commercial operation this summer.

Tom Smith, director of Public Citizen's Texas office, said TU Electric has been unable to keep a dozen promises to consumers since 1970 on the price of the nuclear plant, as cost estimates increased.

The plant originally was estimated to cost $779 million. Final costs are estimated at $9.1 billion, although a second unit is still under construction.

"Now they want you to buy another promise — that the rate increases will be just 10 percent for each unit," Smith said.

Consumers should not have to pay for $5.2 billion it cost to go back in 1984 and fix contractors' mistakes, rebuilding the plant to Nuclear Regulatory Commission safety specifications, Smith said.

Betty Brink of Citizens for Fair Utility Regulation in Fort Worth, an intervenor in the case, said she was "outraged by the audacity of TU Electric to be asking for more money from its already-strapped customers in light of the Cap Rock study."

Ratepayers already paid more than $1.7 billion in construction costs before the PUC disallowed further costs to be passed on while construction was in progress, she said. "If the Cap Rock study tells us anything, it is that we, the ratepayers, have already paid enough of this tribute to a utility's folly."

Lon Burnam, Citizen Action regional director for North Central Texas, said the PUC should have challenged the overcharge in 1986. He called on the PUC to deny the rate increase, hire a new auditing firm and undertake a complete audit of the utility.

School bus accident

Idalou school superintendent Robert Moore, far left, discusses with investigators the accident involving a 6-year-old first-grader who was killed Thursday after he was run over by the school bus that had just dropped him in front of his house. According to reports, the accident occurred one-quarter of a mile west of North Farm to Market Road 400. Idalou is a small community in northeast Lubbock County.

SCHOOL: Residents say it could be closer to highway

(From 1B)

Residents at Thursday's meeting suggested that the school district is proposing to leave too much land between the school site and the highway intersection at the southeast corner of the site.

Paul Thorpe, a resident of the semirural suburb north of the school site, said property on the edge and southeast corner of the site could be narrowed and more property placed in the proposed buffer zone.

"As a taxpayer I really question the salability of that," Thorpe said of property fronting Loop 250 and Texas 349.

Board members authorized Harden to have the site surveyed and asked him to design a site plan which includes a buffer zone on the north and a "greenbelt" parkway area between the school and Texas 349.

The board's Architectural Review Committee will meet on Tuesday, April 17 at 1 p.m. to discuss site plans. A decision on the final site plan is expected at the board's April 26 meeting.

JAIL: Facility will house up to 212 inmates

(From 1B)

"I think there was a great deal of wisdom in supporting that project, and the facts so far have shown that wisdom by the electorate."

A & S Steel Buildings Inc., an Amarillo company which will be recognized during Saturday's ceremony, served as the general contractor on the project.

The jail will house up to 202 inmates, with 96 single-occupancy cells, 96 multi-occupancy cells and 10 separation cells. The facility's design is such that the building can be enlarged to eventually accommodate 576 inmates.

While booking and processing of all inmates will take place at the new jail, female prisoners will be housed in the fifth-floor jail atop the county courthouse, Painter said.

In addition, pretrial detainees will be incarcerated at the courthouse jail, which can hold up to 104 prisoners. Twenty-nine workers will be employed at the fifth-floor jail.

City Manager Fred Poe said the City Council is expected next Tuesday to formally approve the housing of its prisoners at the county's detention center, removing the city from the jail business.

The city's jail, located on the second floor of the police department at 400 E. Texas, can house up to 90 inmates, Poe said. Because of cost, the old jail likely will be used for storage rather than refurbished, he said.

"It costs more to get that old equipment out and refurbish" the jail than to build new office areas, Poe said.

Meanwhile, Painter said the city's seven jail employees will be hired by the county to work in its corrections system.

It will take 62 workers to run the new county jail, including jailers, nurses, clerks, cooks and supervisors, Painter said.

He said the county hopes to finalize a contract with the federal government in the next two weeks about housing up to 100 federal prisoners.

An agreement has been reached calling for the federal government to pay Midland County $40 a day per inmate, Painter said.

CAF: Midland hopes to lure group with debt-free deal

(From 1B)

The 11-member CAF general staff will be in Midland today to examine the local site and will be in San Antonio Saturday.

"We're ready for them and looking forward to having them down here," Ullrich said.

Last August, after 10 months of preparatory work, the Midland-Odessa group submitted an incentive proposal to the CAF general staff in inviting the it to relocate in West Texas.

The CAF, currently headquartered in a niche called Rebel Field at Valley International Airport at Harlingen, was boxed in at the South Texas airport, and had no room to expand. In additional, the antique 1939-45 era "warbirds" were exposed to the corrosive action of salt air on the aging bombers, pursuit aircraft, transports and liaison aircraft in the CAF Ghost Squadron.

The West Texas location is central to the CAF membership and is "easily accessible by car or air," Midlander Ed Jones, a spokesman for the West Texas site, said.

"We have unparalleled flying weather: 365 days a year, give or take 12 hours, and a moderate climate," Jones said. "We've got the facilities. We've got the financial incentives. We've got the geography and the weather."

Midland College SIFE wins cash award, trophy

Staff Report

A $500 cash award and a trophy have been won by the Midland College chapter of SIFE (Students in Free Enterprise). The awards were made earlier this week in Dallas at the regional SIFE contest.

MC's chapter won in the special project competition, Success 2000, for explaining how it conducts various outreach projects throughout the year.

Attending the contest were MC SIFE president Darla Hardy, Herb Clardy, Ron Lechwar, Norma Morales and Brad Seal. They were accompanied by SIFE advisors Dr. Jerry Lee Jones and Jan Tonroy.

Contest judges were business executives and entrepreneurs. Prior to their presentation, Midland SIFE members submitted an annual report which was judged on creativity and innovation, determining and addressing questions regarding economic issues, in-depth educational programs, utilization of available resources, and documentation.

During the contest, the students presented ways the chapter had informed the economically disadvantaged of the opportunities inherent in the free enterprise system, the education and skills necessary to take advantage of the opportunities, and in teaching these individuals how to seek the opportunities.

The MC SIFE chapter helps sponsor various business development and expansion seminars and workshops which are conducted by the college's Center for Economic Development.

Lawyer says tree poisoning suspect punished for refusal

AUSTIN (AP) — An attorney for the man accused of poisoning the historic Treaty Oak said his client's refusal to accept a plea bargain prompted prosecutors to add a federal firearms charge against him, a newspaper reported Thursday.

Paul Stedman Cullen, 46, of Elroy, has been jailed since June 29 on charges of felony criminal mischief in connection with the poisoning of the centuries-old tree.

The case has drawn a national outpouring of public concern for the tree, which experts say is struggling to survive.

Earlier this week, Cullen also was charged with possession of a firearm by a felon and making a false statement to a firearms dealer.

Richard C. Jenkins of Dallas, one of Cullen's attorneys, said the firearms charge was filed because Cullen turned down a plea bargain, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

"We didn't take it, so I guess this is their revenge," Jenkins said.

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bean sprouts and other specialty crops are puny compared with the major commercial vegetables such as tomatoes and sweet corn, but consumers are still adding exotic names to grocery shopping lists.

The Agriculture Department says about 12.5 million hundredweight of specialty vegetables reached U.S. consumers in 1989, a 13 percent increase from 1988. Fresh herbs also have caught shoppers' fancy.

Supplies from domestically grown crops rose 10 percent to 9.3 million hundredweight, while imports increased 24 percent to 3.2 million hundredweight, according to a report by the department's Economic Research Service.

"Imported specialties are often vegetables that are common in foreign countries, such as jicama, which is a widely eaten root crop in Mexico," the report said. "Imports also include crops that a relatively uncommon but which are receiving new promotional efforts."

Fancy lettuces make up most of the specialty category, and those supplies generally increased last year. For example, domestic romaine lettuce increased 16 percent, while imported shipments were up 76 percent. However, escarole and endive, mostly from Florida, were down.

Domestic shipments of various Oriental vegetables, including daikon and bean sprouts, increased 23 percent in 1989, while imports soared 333 percent, the report said.

Even with the sharp percentage increases the total for specialty vegetables — 12.5 million hundredweight — was relatively small compared with the 1989 output of fresh market vegetables. Those were estimated at 255 million hundredweight, up 2 percent, not counting potatoes.

Another consumer surge has occurred with fresh herbs used by home cooks and the food service industry.

The 1987 census of agriculture shows "dramatic increases" in U.S. herb production, the report said. Production includes older standby such as garlic, parsley, watercress, dill oil, ginger root and mint oil.

Also, the 1987 figures included production of an "aggregate category" for miscellaneous fresh herbs such as basil, cilantro and rosemary. Those increased to 9.8 million pounds from 2.1 million pounds reported in 1978.

The harvested acreage of garlic, which is concentrated in California, declined slightly in 1987 from earlier census tabulations made in 1978 and 1982. However, the number of farms producing garlic increased to 448 from those earlier years.

"The increase in farms, but not acreage, may reflect a surge in the number of small farmers producing garlic for farmers' markets, country fairs and other direct-marketing outlets," the report said.

Farms producing parsley have increased steadily since 1978 and are located mostly in California, Florida and New Jersey.

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department report says fish farming — aquaculture — is young but growing rapidly into a major provider of food for an expanding world population.

"The 1990s should be an important decade for growth," the report said. "World population grains and limits on wild catch from the oceans should increase the demand for aquaculture products."

Aquaculture refers to commercial production of a wide variety of fish, shellfish and seafood products. It includes baitfish, hatchery operations and the stocking of fish farms.

"If U.S. seafood consumption continues to grow, the rise in demand will likely be met through increased imports and higher domestic aquacultural production," the report said.

Fish farmers and other aquacultural producers "have an advantage over capture fisheries in that production can rise without endangering future supplies."

Catfish are the leading species grown commercially in the United States. Production in 1989 rose 16 percent in volume to 342 million pounds delivered by farmers, the report said.

Overall, including the wild catch, catfish ranked fourth in 1988 behind pollock, salmon and cod, and may have moved into third place ahead of cod in 1989, the report said.

Prices paid to catfish farmers last year averaged 72 cents a pound, down 6 percent from 1988 because of the larger supply and lower prices paid by processors for large fish.

But catfish prices have risen since October and by February had reached 75 cents a pound, the report said. Also, growers have formed a bargaining association that has negotiated prices with many processors for the first half of 1990.

Many modern farmers cultivate outside jobs to grow profits

Farm life has changed considerably in recent years, with less than 2 percent of the U.S. population now residing on farms. This compares with 30 percent residing on farms in 1919.

Kiker

Like many other independent businesses, numerous U.S. farms are incorporated, but about 82 percent are family held.

The average U.S. farm today is 463 acres, with assets of about $373,700 and debt of $70,500.

Many modern farmers also work at jobs in their respective communities as well as farming or ranching. Nationally, 48.4 percent of people in agriculture also work second jobs off their farms.

The average age of farm residents today is 37.6 years, compared with 32 years for non-farm residents.

One American farmer/rancher today provides food and fiber for 114 people — 92 of them in the U.S.. Today, the average U.S. citizen spends 14 percent of his income on food. This compares with 65 percent in Sierra Leone, 42 percent in Greece, 40 in the Soviet Union and 21 percent in Japan.

The agricultural labor force in the U.S. — including hunting, fishing, forestry and farming/ranching — represents .3 percent of the world's agricultural labor force, yet it produces 8 percent of the world's food grains, 27 percent of the global feed grains and 25 percent of the world's beef.

Which country buys the most agricultural products from the U.S.? At the close of 1987, the top eight markets were: Japan, the Netherlands, South Korea, Canada, Taiwan, West Germany, Mexico and the Soviet Union.

Each additional $1 billion of U.S. farm exports generates another $1.5 billion of economic activity.

Latest reports indicate that less than 1 percent of U.S. farmland is foreign-owned, and most of that amount is timberland.

More than answers 'blowin' in the wind,' land experts say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wind erosion this winter damaged nearly 5 million acres of crop and rangeland in the Great Plains — including more than a million in Texas alone — for the second-highest figure on record, federal officials said.

A Texas Department of Agriculture Department official said the erosion is due partly to dry conditions, and if global warming is indeed occurring the loss of soil could be a sign the Chihuahuan Desert is creeping north and east from Mexico and deeper into the state.

The erosion, "it hurts," said Bob King, director of the TDA office of natural resources. "It creates dust storms, gives allergy problems to people in Dallas, and is eroding off the organic life of the soil as well — that's the real cost to the farmer.

"It means having to put in more fertilizer to produce the same yields and ultimately ... it may be part of a long-term trend," King said Tuesday.

According to USDA, wind erosion damaged 1.15 million acres of land in Texas between November and February, a slight increase from the 1.05 million acres that were damaged during the same period a year earlier.

Across the Great Plains, USDA said 4.93 million acres were damaged by wind erosion this year, compared with nearly 4.7 million a year ago.

Only in the 1954-55 season was land damage higher for the Great Plains states for the November-February period, said Manly Wilder, associate chief of the USDA's soil conservation service.

USDA said land reported in a condition to blow is nearly 20.2 million acres, the third-highest on record, with Texas reporting 3.7 million acres. Low soil moisture and limited snow cover have been the most prominent factors contributing to "this hazardous condition," USDA said.

Parmer accuses Gramm of abortion 'smoke screen'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Phil Gramm, who has sponsored five constitutional amendments to ban abortions even in cases of rape or incest, is now backing a state Republican plan that would restrict most abortions only after a pregnancy reaches the halfway mark.

Gramm's Democratic opponent, state Sen. Hugh Parmer, said Gramm's support of the "legislative action plan" represents no softening of the Republican senator's position on the politically volatile issue and is instead a "smoke screen."

Parmer said the plan does not address the party's basic position on abortion because it does not say whether a woman should be allowed to have an abortion, or under what circumstances.

He said it merely puts the state GOP in favor of certain restrictions, such as most late-term abortions and sex-selection abortions, in a state with few restrictions on the books.

"I clearly think it's a diversionary attempt, an attempt to look like a moderation of position, where no one has to moderate their position at all," Parmer said. "It's a smoke screen, a political effort to try to muddy the issue without any of these (Republican candidates) having to change their position at all."

STATE

Gramm's spokesman, Larry Neal, said Gramm endorses the plan but since he is not a state official, "there will be no defined role for him in dealing with what in essence are state matters."

Neal said Gramm's position on abortion remains unchanged and that the constitutional amendments "speak for themselves."

Neal insisted that the only federal issue in which Gramm could cast votes on the abortion issue is federal funding for abortion. Gramm is "absolutely opposed to federal funding for abortion under any circumstances."

According to the plan of the Texas Republican party, abortions would be prohibited "when medical tests performed by a licensed physician determine that the child is viable, except when medically necessary to save the life of the mother."

After 20 weeks of pregnancy, medical tests would be required to determine if a fetus could live outside the womb, the plan said.

"This is a document that anybody that's opposed to abortion, in whatever varying degress, can endorse," said Parmer, who is pro-choice and favors federal funding for abortions for impoverished victims of rape and incest. "It does not address the question of whether (the GOP) is in favor of abortion in cases of rape or incest or the life of the mother — any of those variations."

Parmer also said Gramm was in a Catch-22: having to stick with a "damaging position" in Texas while maintaining the support of right-wing "extremists" around the country in case he runs for president in 1996.

"He is prepared to take a position opposed by almost everybody in Texas because he thinks it's good politics for him," Parmer said. "He still believes rape and incest victims should not be able to have a choice — it's wrong, it's heartless, it treats victims as if they were criminals."

Clements vows veto if taxes hiked

By Rick Brown
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Gov. Bill Clements Thursday expanded the range of new education spending he will support, but stood by a veto threat if lawmakers approve new state taxes.

Clements said that whatever level lawmakers choose to satisfy a recent Texas Supreme Court decision, the money must be found within the existing state budget.

Specifically, the governor said he doesn't "have any objection" if lawmakers "move some money around."

Clements in the past has placed a $300 million cap on the amount he would support, but Thursday's announcement placed a $450 million level that House leaders are touting within the realm of compromise.

However, the governor refused to go beyond $450 million with any specificity, saying, "Lets don't be talking about seven-fifty, six hundred or six and a quarter."

Tuesday, Bill Toomey, the governor's chief of staff, outlined an eleven-point plan to capture $270 million in additional education aid by shifting budgetary surpluses and diverting other money.

One aspect of the plan Toomey presented to the House Appropriations Committee would divert $50 million from a $150 million appropriation for renovation of the state Capitol.

Increasing that diversion to $75 million would bring the total to the $300 million level the governor previously has endorsed.

A spokesman for the Comptroller's Office, Tony Proffitt, was unsure if all of that amount eventually will materialize.

"We're not going to challenge the numbers until there is a bill," said Proffitt. "But informally, the bean counters over here say that out of $300 million, there may be only about $220 million," he said.

Toomey also held out the prospect of capturing $172 million more for school finance equalization through a one-year manipulation of state payments to the Teacher Retirement System."

The idea would send the total amount available into the $450 million realm, but would entail agreement from teacher's groups, to whom Toomey offered a benefits increase as a sweetener.

Still, three of the groups slammed the proposal Thursday after the state's largest teachers organization logged its opposition earlier this week.

The president of the largest group, Ollie Besterio of the Texas State Teachers Association, called the plan "preposterous" and "unconscionable."

John Cole, president of the Texas Federation of Teachers, accused the governor of "extortion." Clements is "holding children's education hostage and asking us to give up our retirement to save the schools," he said.

The proposal would delay for a year implementation of a stepped plan to increase the state's contribution to the retirement system from 6 percent to 8 percent.

But Cole said the current lower rate is the result of lawmakers' "raiding" the fund in 1987, 1985, 1983 and 1981. The rate was 8.5 percent in 1981, he said.

Still, Clements Thurday was under the impression that teachers would support the idea. "I was sure that they were just knocking on my door, asking me to do that, or asking the Legislature to do that," he said.

"It doesn't hurt the retirement system or the benefits in any way, shape or form," he said.

One spokesman, Sandy Kibby of the Association of Texas Professional Educators, said the amount the system currently holds, $21 billion, "probably shows that it is over-funded."

But "it is teachers' money, so it should be used on teachers," she said, indicating that a benefits increase without any other manipulation would be the best use for the money.

STATE in brief

Four regions awarded historical designation

AUSTIN (AP) — Four regions — the Hill Country, Galveston Bay, El Paso and the cotton area near Bryan-College Station — will take part in a national pilot program designed to promote tourism and historic preservation, officials announced Thursday.

The $2.4 million program is aimed "at merging history with the travel industry" and is designed to help cities and towns develop cultural and historical attractions and promote tourism, said Gov. Bill Clements in announcing the areas being selected.

Joining him was Texas first lady Rita Clements, who said the National Trust For Historic Preservation had designated Texas as the top choice among states seeking to take part in the program.

Bats fly high with tourists

AUSTIN (AP) — The largest urban bat colony in North America is about to get recognition as an official tourist attraction.

Featured on major TV networks and written about in national newspapers and magazines, Austin's Congress Avenue Bridge — and its large flock of bats — have drawn crowds of local visitors and tourists.

Responding to the interest, the city's parks and recreation department and Bat Conservation International plan to unveil a four-panel educational display featuring the bats on April 20 on the shores of Town Lake.

The kiosk, on the north shore of Town Lake, will inform novice bat-watchers when and where to watch for the flying nocturnal mammals, as well as why so many of them have chosen to make the bridge their home.

Break forces evacuation

DALLAS (AP) — Fifteen families were evacuated for a brief time Thursday after a car overturned, rupturing a 6-inch gas main in northeast Dallas.

The accident, which occurred near the border between Dallas and Mesquite, was reported at 2:38 a.m., said a Dallas Fire Department spokesman. The families were evacuated as a precaution but were allowed home later in the day.

The driver of the car was taken to Mesquite Community Hospital, officials said.

Texas does poorly on annual economic report card

By James R. Owen
Reporter-Telegram Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Texas is still in poor economic condition despite the state's abundant natural resources and growing high-tech industry, according to a "report card" released by a private research group Thursday.

Because of a weak educational system, an unfair tax system and tight business regulatory environment, Texas has been hindered in its effort to recover from the collapse of the energy industry in the 1980s, say the authors of the "1990 Development Report Card for the States," published by the Washington-based Center for Enterprise Development.

Each of the 50 states was graded from "A" to "F," using more than 150 economic and policy measures.

Texas got a "D" for economic performance, a "C" for business vitality, a "B" for development capacity and a "D" for state policies encouraging development.

In announcing what he called a "non-partisan" report, Doug Ross, the group's president, said Thursday most of the "states used the 1980s to invent new medicines to help America regain its competitiveness while Washington talked."

Instead of relying on traditional liberal approaches that include protectionism and subsidies, or conservative market-oriented policies that exclude any government role, many states created "homegrown" remedies that combined elements of both, said Ross.

Those economic cures included new state policies that helped businesses commercialize new technologies, offered non-traditional financing for new businesses and emphasized specific education reform measures to train a modern, skilled workforce.

Jerry Bailey, deputy executive director of the Texas Department of Commerce, said Thursday that state officials had not fully studied the report. But he questioned its validity, suggesting that some of the conclusions were based on outdated statistics.

"We in Texas will admit we're a little behind because we had our own resources right here," Bailey said. "Texas has had a rough time in the past few years, the whole country knows that. But we're on our way back."

But while Texas has launched some state-sponsored initiatives to spur new research and development and the growth of high-tech companies, the Lone Star State lags behind most other states in key development policies, said Mitch Horowitz, an analyst with the center.

"Texas really is a leader in the high-tech arena," said Horowitz. "But it relies so heavily on its sales tax that it jeopardizes development and creates an unfairness and instability. Also, the state's 'rainy day' fund (a reserve fund for emergencies) was at zero at the end of 1989."

Texas has no state income tax or corporate income tax. The Texas sales tax is 6 percent; cities can impose additional municipal sales tax up to a maximum of 8 percent.

Elementary and secondary education in Texas also is deficient, said the report, which pointed out that in 1989, Texas ranked 37th in the nation in terms of per-pupil spending. The state ranked 47th in terms of high school graduation rates and 47th in adult illiteracy rates, the report said.

FAMILY MATTERS

Sister's affairs concern woman

By Jim May, Ph.D

DEAR FAMILY: I am writing for my sister who lives in another city. She is involved in affairs with two different men. She says that it all started when she and her husband were having problems. She has to travel in her job at least two days a week and to two different cities. She met one guy in one city and started an affair with him almost two years ago. Last month she started an affair with a guy in the other city!

May

I don't think that my sister is a tramp or anything but I think that she has a real problem with men. She has never been just real happy with her husband. He is very hard to talk to and always seems more interested in doing things with his buddies than being with my sister. However, they have one child and a great big house because they both make good money. They are in debt up to their ears.

My sister is in a real bind now because she has fallen in love with the second guy. I don't have any idea about what to tell her. My life is simple compared to hers. I did tell her that I would write to you and would send her your answer. She said do it quick, she's in trouble. What should she do? STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: Your sister is indeed in trouble. In addition to the problem of too many men, she seems to have a pattern of entering into such relationships. No matter how painful it may be, I encourage her to end her extramarital relationships and seek professional counseling at once. Her long-term goal should be for both her and her husband to go to marriage counseling.

In the short-term, she must take care of herself by no longer committing adultery. When spouses cheat, they really cheat themselves. Everyone has to be responsible for her or he own actions. If she does not want to seek counseling, she may find it "cheaper" (in terms of self-esteem) to divorce than to remain in an extramarital relationship.

DEAR FAMILY: When I was in college, I had a number of boyfriends. I probably was "easy," but so were a lot of other girls then. I have never been ashamed of anything that I did until now. I have been happily married for a number of years and my husband and I have decided to start a family. We have been trying (not using any form of birth control) for almost a year now and no pregnancy.

The only thing that I ever did that I really never wanted to think about again was have one abortion. It was a mistake that I made when I first started having sex with a long-time boyfriend. I thought he was protected and he thought I was on the Pill. I just did what I had to do and haven't regretted it until now.

I am afraid that God is punishing me by not letting me get pregnant now. I don't want to go to the doctor because I'm afraid that he might somehow find out about the abortion and tell my husband. I just don't know what to do. Can a doctor tell if you've had an abortion? Will he tell your husband? I know that I should have told my husband but I just never did and now I think it is too late. I worry that he would think that there are other things that I hadn't told him (there aren't). What do you think? SCARED

DEAR SCARED: First, I don't think that God punishes us in this life. Second, infertility is a very common problem. An estimated 10 million Americans are infertile. Many reasons contribute to this situation, including two that may apply to you. In delaying pregnancy until their late 20s or early 30s, many women find their fertility has begun to decline. Also, abortion can negatively affect future fertility.

Please see a physician specilaizing in infertility. You will find him or her to be very sympathetic to your plight. Fertility specialists know that infertility can create emotional of physical crises. Share openly with your physician and you can be assured that the information will remain confidential.

Employer-sponsored child care wanted

Associated Press

A recent study shows a strong desire by working parents for child care facilities where they work, sponsored by their employers. The study by Kinder-Care Learning Centers showed that 83 percent of parents surveyed throughout the U.S. would take advantage of such facilities.

Use of battery-powered heart aid planned

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Heart Institute surgeons plan to implant a battery-powered heart assist device in a patient this summer if they get federal approval.

If successful, the patient could move freely and perhaps leave the hospital while awaiting a transplant, said Dr. O.H. Frazier, director of the Houston-based institute's cardiovascular surgical research laboratories and heart transplant service.

THI and Thermo Cardiosystem Inc. have applied for a Food and Drug Administration exemption that would permit them to use the battery-powered device in patients awaiting transplants.

THI and the Massachusetts-based bioengineering company have worked together on heart pumps for several years, and their experts believe the battery-powered device is an important step forward.

Currently, such devices are powered by large air-driven pumps, making movement difficult.

"With this newer electrical pump, you do have a wire through the skin, but it's battery controlled," said Frazier.

The heart assist pump or left ventricular assist device performs most of the pumping function of a normal heart's left ventricle.

The battery-powered pump is vented to the outside through a small tube, Frazier said. The only other part that passes through the skin is the wire that leads to the external battery worn under the patient's arm.

DEAR ABBY

Twain wrote words on reading

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You stated that "the person who does not read is no better off than the person who cannot read" was your original statement. Mark Twain once said, "The man who does not read good books has no advantage over the man who cannot read them."

Van Buren

So you see, yours was not an original thought, though the statement is quite relevant to today's literacy program. — ESTHER A. BEHNKE, NORTHBROOK, ILL.

DEAR ESTHER BEHNKE: I wouldn't dream of plagiarizing Mark Twain — only quoting him. I have used that quote several times over the years without crediting anyone because I honestly thought it was my own. Mea culpa.

DEAR ABBY: Never in my wildest dreams did I think I'd write a letter to Dear Abby, but the letter in your column signed "Nobody's Valentine" prompted this response.

The lady was complaining because her super guy never acknowledged St. Valentine's day with a little gift or card, and she felt hurt and neglected. She signed herself "Nobody's Valentine."

You told her never let it happen again — next year leave notes on his pillow or on the bathroom mirror, and stick an artificial flower in his shoe with a note to remind him to at least give her a card.

Come on, Abby! Do you hold stock in Hallmark or something? If I had to harass my husband for a card, I wouldn't want one.

This year for Valentine's Day, I made my husband a marvelous dinner, followed by a heart-shaped cake, flowers and a loving note. What did he give me? Nothing. I didn't feel slighted. Why? Because I see evidence of his love and appreciation for me every day of the year, and I don't need some commercialized, hyped-up, obligatory day to make me feel loved.

My husband surprises me every now and then when I least expect it. One night he came home and told me to go outside and look at the car that was parked in the driveway. I thought for sure someone had put a dent in my fender.

I nearly fell over when I saw the brand-new car I had looked at and admired the day before. What a doll! So you see Abby, not all men want to be pushed into giving a gift out of obligation. — LUCKY LAURIE IN CARLSBAD

DEAR LAURIE: Meet another lucky lady who, after a little soul-searching, came to the same conclusion:

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Nobody's Valentine," perhaps a few words from someone in the same boat will help:

I've been married for 10 years, and in all that time, I received only one valentine from my husband: His mother had bought it for him to give to me! Of course, when I found out, it meant nothing to me.

I tried your suggested approach — reminding him with little hints, pointing out things I needed and wanted in case he wanted to give me something for Valentine's Day. Still nothing.

Finally, after seven years, I sat down and thought of all the good qualities my husband had exhibited over the years. He was honest, dependable, hard-working, affectionate at the appropriate times, good to my parents, and absolutely the best father and husband a family could ever have.

Then, all of a sudden, it didn't matter to me anymore that he didn't buy me a card or a gift just because it was St. Valentine's Day. — COUNTING MY BLESSINGS IN TEMPLE CITY, CALIF.

Copley News Service

The United States is about 50 years behind in the treatment of vision disorders, according to optometrist Arthur Seiderman, who wants mandatory vision testing for all children entering the first grade.

He currently, such exams only test how well a child can see a chalkboard, but a new exam would add three tests — performed by a qualified optometrist in about two minutes.

First, doctors would examine how well the eyes work together because that can affect a child's attention span and ability to concentrate.

Second, they would test to see how well a kid absorbs information to determine if the child is reading backward.

Finally, a test of eye/hand coordination show how well information travels from the brain to the paper.

Seiderman says the same testing should apply to adult drivers as well.

Designers give junky office items decorative look

N.Y. Times News Service

PASADENA, Calif. — If your job requires you to sit in an office, imprisoned at a desk for eight hours, staring at a computer screen with your fingers seemingly glued to a keyboard, your sensitivities toward the notion of beautiful office equipment probably have been severely — if not eternally — numbed.

Your phone, your desk, your chair, your typewriter, your calculator are ugly. And that is when they are operating properly.

Snap out of it. There is hope.

Art Center College of Design in Pasadena has organized a Good Offices exhibit that honors and recognizes beautiful and functional office products and equipment.

More than 150 products selected from 800 entries by designers, manufacturers and educators are in the display.

They include wastebaskets, ashtrays, pens, pencils, coat racks, desks, chairs, phones, calculators, portable coffee machines, copiers, computers and word processors.

"From an aesthetic view, these (items) don't try to look like something they're not," said Stephen Nowlin, vice president of exhibitions at Art Center, a college that specializes in professional education in art and design. "They address their function through use of shape and appropriate materials. The notion of beauty is such a subjective thing, but when a design for something is married to its function, when the material it is made of grows out of its function, there is a beauty to it."

Nowlin stressed that functionally beautiful equipment can make a difference for those using it in the workplace.

"The wear and tear on people is greatly helped out by having an environment that they find aesthetically rewarding," he said.

Route 66 filled with nostalgia kicks

By Ellen Knickmeyer

HYDRO, Okla. (AP) — The people at Lucille's Service Station have pumped gas on Route 66 long enough to see history buffs start getting mileage out of it.

Eula Mae Brown, 67, remembers when it was something to have the traveler perched on the Nehi icebox at her father's Hydro station turn out to be from the East Coast.

"I always found it just exciting," Mrs. Brown said. "Some of the people who talked a different dialect would amuse me so."

Now the people who pull up to the pumps under the station's old-fashioned clapboard overhang talk with British accents, Australian accents.

They ask Lucille Hamons to autograph her photograph in a glossy book on Route 66 that confirms her status as living history. Mrs. Hamons has run the station since her husband took it over in 1941, 14 years after Mrs. Brown's father built it.

Mrs. Hamons sells sandwiches and soft drinks from her gas station, and since 1966 also has sold what she calls the coldest beer in Oklahoma.

"You know who will be coming here next, don't you? It'll be the Japanese," Mrs. Hamons says, anticipating the next wave of tourists on the highway that ran from Chicago to the West Coast.

Tulsa writer Michael Wallis said he already has seen Japanese among the tourists and filmmakers at barbecue joints and cafes along Route 66 this year. Four independent filmmakers are working on documentaries about the highway, he said.

AP LaserPhoto

Lucille Hamons looks over some of her Route 66 memorabilia inside her store along what used to be U.S. Route 66 near Hydro, Okla. Ms. Hamons has been in business at the same location for more than 40 years.

St. Martin's Press is due to publish Wallis' own book about the road this spring. Wallis plans to tool down 66 in a 1964 Corvette to promote it.

Route 66 crosses eight states and three time zones, starting out at the shores of Lake Michigan in Illinois. It makes its winding, wooded way south from the lake, and from Oklahoma City on makes a pretty straight shot through the western Plains and desert, over the Rocky Mountains, and through arid country again to the beach at Santa Monica.

It opens to four lanes in spots, but is mainly a two-lane highway, with curbs and curves that used to send Packards and Plymouths spinning off the road and into tree trunks.

Legislation is under way to make all 2,400 miles a national monument. This winter, Kansas became the eighth and final state to establish a Route 66 association, devoted to the 12 miles that hook through its territory, Wallis said.

Oklahoma tourism is catching on. Promoters plan a Route 66 car rally and a Mr. and Mrs. Route 66 contest this summer. Businesses are capitalizing on the "Route 66" moniker to sell everything from art to antiques.

Regulations insure quality nursing home care

By Steve Edwards

In Texas, long-term health care for the elderly is governed by the state. Long-term health care can refer to care in nursing homes or services provided in a patient's home, and the length of time the services are used may vary.

Edwards

In this state, nursing homes are divided into two categories, depending on the services provided:

■ A skilled nursing facility offers basic care, plus continuous skilled nursing care for patients who need it, and rehabilitation and therapeutic services.

■ An intermediate care facility offers routine or skilled nursing services for residents who do not require continuous medical care. This type of nursing home may offer skilled nursing, or restorative or rehabilitation services on an occasional basis.

Eventually, both types of nursing homes will be called nursing facilities. The current distinction between the two, however, may be important to elders now, depending on the kind of care they require.

Another type of facility, known as personal care homes, also is available for long-term care of elders. These facilities offer less skilled care than nursing homes, and are not required to meet the same requirements as skilled nursing and intermediate care facilities.

In Texas, nursing home personnel are required to meet minimum educational standards; nursing homes may offer more, but cannot provide less. These requirements, however, may differ depending on whether the home is a skilled nursing or an intermediate care facility.

All nursing homes must provide a full-time, licensed administrator who is responsible for the general operation of the nursing home; a medical director who is a doctor to supervise medical care of residents; and a full-time nursing director who is responsible for the supervision, training and performance of the nursing staff. At a skilled nursing facility, the nursing director must be a registered nurse; while at an intermediate care facility, the nursing director can be a registered nurse or a licensed practical nurse.

Texas requires that skilled nursing and intermediate care facilities provide enough nursing services to care properly for all residents. Both types of facilities must have licensed nurses on duty 24-hours a day.

In nursing homes, nurses' aides usually have the most frequent contact with the patients. Under Texas law, mandatory training for nurses' aides requires them to complete 80 hours of classroom and clinical training. The state also has a registry of nurses or aides who have had complaints lodged against them.

Nursing homes must provide staff members who can offer residents a variety of other services, including:

■ A social worker.

■ Physical, occupational and speech, and hearing and language therapists.

■ Activities directors to develop and implement programs for the residents.

■ Dieticians or food service staff to provide nourishing, palatable and well-balanced diets.

Texas' requirements on nursing homes insures quality care for residents. New regulations are designed to keep standards of care and staffing as high as possible.

Steve Edwards is executive director of Community and Senior Services and the Visiting Nurse Service of Midland.

Poll shows elderly want to stay at home

By Bob Dart
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Rather than rushing to sunny retirement communities, most elderly Americans want to live in their current homes as long as possible, a national housing survey showed.

However, the poll indicates that many of these aging homebodies expect to be forced to move eventually because of financial shortfalls, declining health or a lack of services.

The survey, sponsored by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), was conducted by Market Facts Inc. to study emerging housing trends among the nation's "older consumers." It found a growing preference for "aging in place."

About 86 percent of all people aged 60 or older would like to stay in their present homes and never move, said the report, "Understanding Senior Housing for the 1990s." That compares to 78 percent who wanted to stay put in 1986.

Belying the perception that a white-haired army of rambling retirees has fled the snow states for the sun cities of Florida and Arizona, the report showed that mobile older people are in a minority.

Almost two-thirds of the elderly respondents have lived in the same region for more than 20 years. Only 1 percent of people 55 or older have moved outside their geographic area in the past year, compared to 20 percent for the general population.

Many retirees find that after a lifetime of work, their house has become their major asset.

The survey found that 59 percent of Americans over the age of 55 owned their houses outright and another 23 percent were paying a mortgage. About 17 percent were renters. Over three-fourths of the respondents live in single-family detached homes.

Still, housing worries are widespread among the elderly. With many retirees living on fixed incomes, inflation is a chief concern, the survey showed. Over 60 percent of the respondents were most concerned with the rising cost of utilities and property taxes. That compared to 29 percent who were more concerned about mortgage and rent payments.

Over a fourth of these older people (28 percent) live alone. Among those who reside with others, 89 percent live with a spouse and 18 percent live with their children.

Only 5 percent of those surveyed said they live in a retirement community or building complex planned specifically for the elderly. However, another 27 percent said their neighborhood or apartment building has become a "naturally occurring retirement community" that developed as longtime neighbors aged together. Nearly half of the elderly have lived in their current homes for more than 20 years.

Most respondents acknowledged that their housing situation will likely change. More than half expect to need help with household chores.

School snubs 'V'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Jim Valvano lost a chance Thursday to plead his case before North Carolina State trustees and prepared to negotiate a price for surrendering his 10-year reign as basketball coach.

Valvano

"We are disappointed that one who has served the university for such a long period of time is being forced out without an opportunity to be heard," his attorney, Woody Webb, said.

Webb asked the school's lawyers to allow Valvano to address the Board of Trustees and bring a financial proposal with him. But Chief Deputy Attorney General Andy Vanore, a school negotiator, said the meeting would not be held, according to Webb.

"We are assuming that each member of the Board of Trustees has been apprised of Coach Valvano's repeated requests to meet personally with the board, and we find it most unfortunate that they have rejected these requests," Webb said.

He said he would deliver a firm proposal for a financial settlement by 9 a.m. Friday.

Coach of month named

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Adelman, who led the Portland Trail Blazers to a franchise-record 10 straight victories and a 13-4 record during March, has been named the NBA's Coach of the Month.

The 13 victories tied a team record for most victories during any month and the Trail Blazers set a club record with six road victories in a row.

In addition, consecutive road victories over New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington gave Portland its second four-game sweep of a road trip in franchise history.

Other candidates for Coach of the Month were Chicago's Phil Jackson, Houston's Don Chaney, Philadelphia's Jim Lynam and Utah's Jerry Sloan.

Anthony on trial

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — If there is a sputter and a cough in rookie Eric Anthony's major league takeoff this season, Houston general manager Bill Wood won't panic.

"He's going to struggle but it's his time," Wood said of the Astros' opening day left-fielder. "My prediction was he'd have a good spring and then struggle when we get to Houston and those guys start throwing their money pitches."

Anthony has led the minor leagues in homers for the past two season and he offered a preview of his potential when he hit four homers in 61 at bats with the Astros late last season.

Work ethic pays off for Owens

■ Former MC star will be joined by WJCAC rivals Lewis, Collins and Stern.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

The world could use more people like Tim Owens. The way he plays on the basketball court, the way he lives off the court.

His work ethic and defensive abilities, his commitment to the team concept of basketball and his fine touch underneath on offense are four reasons why Owens has landed himself a spot on the Texas All-Star Junior College basketball team.

The Texas Stars will tip-off against selected top players from the USA Saturday at 7:30 p.m. at Midland College's Chaparral Center. Owens will be joined by Howard College guard Terrence Lewis, South Plains post Jeff Stern and Odessa College guard Lynn Collins.

Owens had his trademark smile intact at a Meet The Players get-together at the Holiday Inn Country Villa Thursday night, discussing the highs and lows of a phenomenal two-year career at Midland College.

Owens said he'd miss the people of Midland perhaps more so than any other facet of his 24-month association with West Texas.

"It's rare," Owens said, "that you can find a place where everyone is so nice to you. The people here are good. When I first stepped into this city I knew I was going to like it."

Owens said he is leaning strong toward continuing his college career at the University of San Francisco. He has been told that if he works hard enough, he's got himself a starting spot at the school, plus a third year funded if he should want to stay on as a graduate assistant.

A handful of schools are interested in Owens, who is listed among the Top 25 players in the country by one JUCO rating service. Oregon, North Texas, Texas-San Antonio, Baylor, Texas A&M and Georgia Southern have all made contact with him.

But it is the University of San Francisco, where Owens has been told he'll switch from power forward to small forward, that has caught his eye.

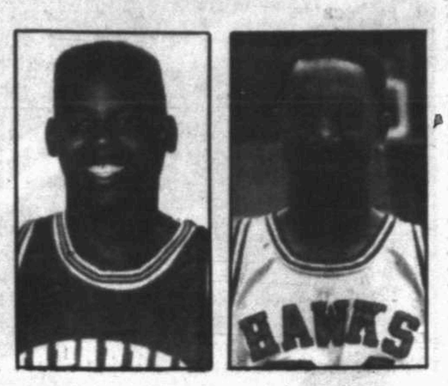

"It's not too big a school," he said. "I'm looking for somewhere I can go to graduate. That's the main thing. That and somewhere I can go and play right away. No one can tell you that you can come right in and start, but they said it's there for me if I want it bad enough."

Owens averaged 17.9 points per game during the Chaps' '89-'90 season, shot 56 percent from the field (158-281), and 66 percent from the line (94-143) during his sophomore year.

The jovial Owens did mention one other aspect of Midland that he would miss once gone: The tutelage of MC head coach Reggie Franklin, who Owens credits with turning him into the player he has become.

"He taught me a whole lot," Owens said. "There's a lot I didn't know that I should have learned in high school and he's been very inspirational to me."

Owens said Franklin's pre-game pep talks helped the team pull through the controversy-filled season when several players were suspended for a variety of reasons.

Owens Lewis

"Come game time," Owens said, "with all the problems we had, Coach Franklin told us to just forget about it and play. He'd go through a little speech before each game."

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The longshots left the legends behind at Augusta National on Thursday.

Donald, playing in his first Masters thanks to a victory last year at Williamsburg, Va., came within a single shot of the tournament record with a wind-blown 64 and took a 2-shot lead after 18 holes.

"The round of my life," the 34-year-old journeyman said of the eight-birdie effort that gave him the lead over another Masters rookie, John Huston.

The 28-year-old Huston shot an errorless 66 in earlier, more calm conditions. He didn't miss a green and wasn't even close to a bogey.

Bill Britton, the last man on the course, made it three of four first-timers at the top when he completed a 68 late in the day.

Donald, who normally spends this week among the also-rans playing at a tournament in Hattiesburg, Miss., just missed the Masters record set in 1986 by Nick Price.

Huston was nearly as good.

"I never hit a bad enough shot that I had to struggle," Huston said.

At least one of the game's more seasoned performers, however, suggested those spectacular efforts should not be accorded undue importance.

"It doesn't matter so much what happens Thursday, Friday or Saturday," Peter Jacobsen said. "It's Sunday that counts.

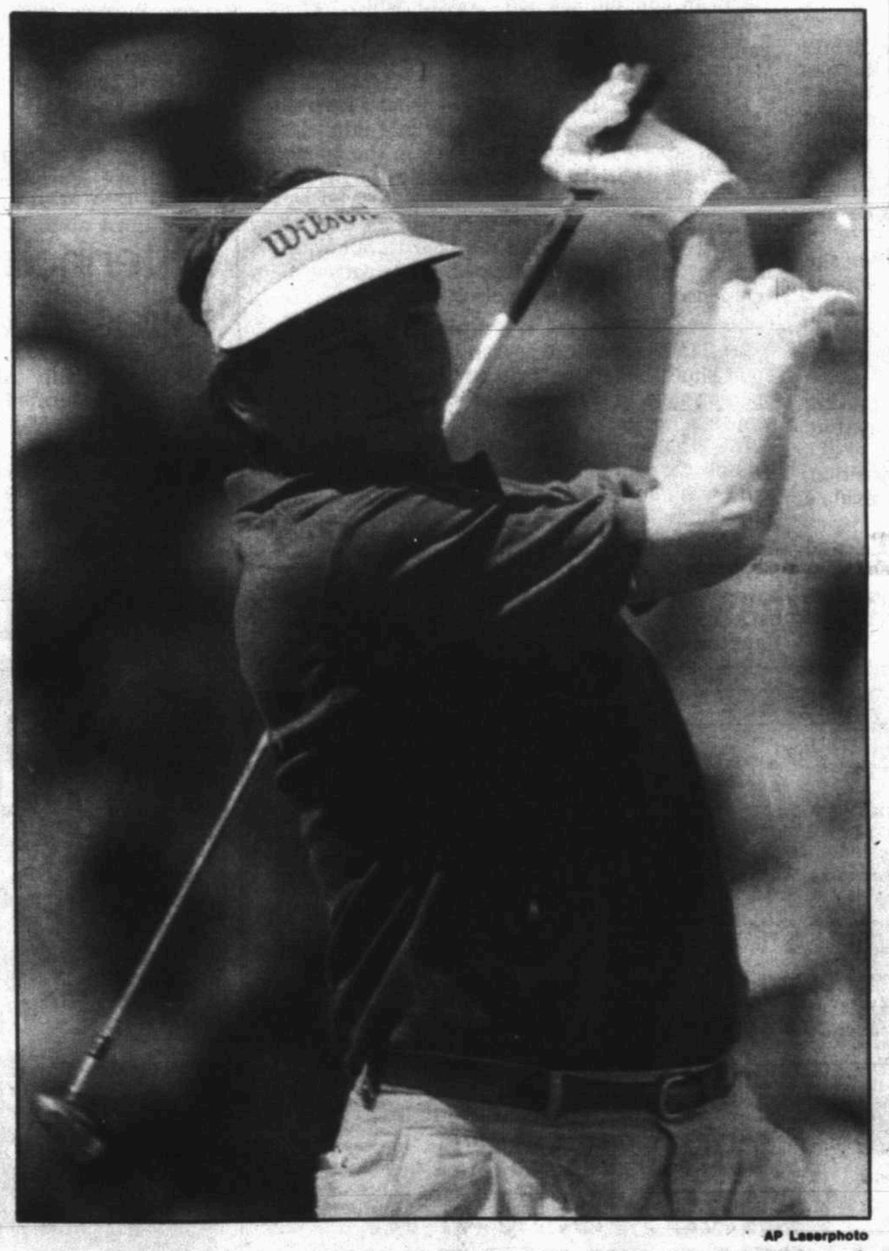

"These low scores don't mean much," he said, making it clear he included his own 5-under 67 in that analysis. "You and I both know they always come back to par."

That possibility was not lost on Donald, whose effort included a chip-in birdie and 10 one-putts on the grass-slick greens that are the trademark of Augusta National.

"Even if I mess up, maybe people will remember for a while that Mike Donald led the first round of the Masters," said the man who has won once in an 11-season career among golf's touring pros.

Two-time U.S. Open champion Curtis Strange was less certain the upstart rookies would falter and fail over the last three rounds of the tournament that ranks among the game's Big Four events.

"Huston has just won and Mike has been playing well. There's no reason they can't stay there," Strange said.

Mike Donald checks out his tee shot on No. 14 at Augusta National.

He also had an explanation for the surprise scores by Masters rookies in an event that normally is dominated by the most established of the game's great players.

"The first-timers don't know where the trouble is," Strange said. "If they're playing well, the don't find the trouble."

Donald, Huston and Britton did just that — they played well and avoided the terrors of the course that has tested the nerve and temperament of golf's best players for more than a half-century.

But those veterans who knew the location of the trouble found it in abundance in the gusty, swirling winds.

Take Paul Azinger, for example.

He got tangled up in the woods for a while on the par-5 13th. Then he hit one in the water. Then he hit another in the water. He eventually stalked away, saddled with a 10, and finished with an 80.

Greg Norman, the muscular Australian who was a favorite going in, also saw water splash in his 78 that once again put him in a catchup position.

"Just lost my concentration," he said.

Lee Trevino also had a 78 and Arnold Palmer shot 76. It was no great surprise considering Trevino's well-known lack of love for this course and Palmer's age, 60.

But the explanations were more difficult to find for Tom Kite's 75 and Tom Watson's 77.

The winds swirling through the pines, however, made it a much more difficult day than the rookies' exploits would indicate.

OU officials reverse field

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — University of Oklahoma officials, reacting to a public outcry and facing imminent legal action, announced Thursday that they will reinstate the women's basketball program.

The announcement by President Richard Van Horn and Athletic Director Donnie Duncan was greeted by a chorus of cheers from members of the women's basketball team, who attended the news conference. The announcement came a day after attorneys for the players threatened a lawsuit if the program were not reinstated.

Van Horn said the outpouring of public support for the program as well as the state senate's resolution condemning the university for its action were more a factor than the threat of the lawsuit.

He said the lawsuit threat was not a significant issue, but team captain Tammy Rogers said it appeared to be more than a coincidence that the program was reinstated on the same day a lawsuit was to have been filed.

"I think it made the decision come a lot quicker than maybe they wanted it to," Rogers said.

"This is an enormous victory for the student athletes, women's sports and every one who believes in equal opportunity for women," said attorney Arthur H. Bryant, executive director of the Trial Lawyers for Public Justice.

Van Horn said school officials started to rethink the decision to eliminate the women's basketball program after Tuesday's Senate action and the public outcry.

He also said there are no plans to consider disbanding women's basketball in the near future.

Van Horn and Duncan said they had planned to reallocate the money to other women's sports, thereby giving more women an opportunity to take part in athletics. They said the women's basketball program had a budget of $300,000, which represents about a quarter of the total budget for women's athletics and involves 13 to 15 players.

Last week's decision to disband the program created a furor. The Women's Basketball Coaches Association threatened a lawsuit and players rallied on campus in attempts to fight for their program.

Attorneys for the players said the disbanding violated the Title IX provision of federal law requiring equal opportunities for women in college athletics.

Oklahoma players had gone to athletic officials asking for a re-evaluation of the program after losing seasons the past two years.

Postema files sex discrimination suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former Texas League umpire Pam Postema, whose bid to become the first woman umpire in the major leagues ended when she was let go as a minor-league umpire last winter, filed a federal sex discrimination claim Thursday against the American and National Leagues.

Postema, 36, had been an umpire in the minor leagues since 1977. She claims that as a result of being passed over for the third consecutive year for a major league assignment, she was fired as a minor-league umpire after last season.

She alleges that the only reason she's been denied a chance in the majors is because she is a woman.

Rich Levin, a spokesman for major league baseball, said Thursday night that officials of the two leagues had not seen the suit.

The claim of sex discrimination in employment, filed with the U.S. Equal Employment and Opportunity Commission, also listed the Triple A Alliance of Professional Baseball Clubs and the Baseball Office for Umpire Development.

Baseball

Postema, who has umpired major league exhibition games, said in a statement, "I am devastated that I was not selected to umpire in the major leagues and I firmly believe that the only real reason that I was not chosen is because I am a woman.

"I am filing this charge because I believe it is time for the major leagues to permit women to be umpires."

Postema said in an affidavit that she had received verbal evaluations from umpire supervisors from the Baseball Office of Umpire Development indicating that her performance was "at least satisfactory."

Postema said her rating apparently was negatively affected by the number of players she had ejected from games last season. She said she ejected 14 players last year and contended that each of the ejections was fully warranted.

Contained in the remarks section of her 1989 evaluation, Postema said, was the statement: "At this point in your career, with 13 years in umpiring ... it is the consensus that the prospect of you becoming a major league umpire is questionable."

Puppa saves Sabres

That will change in a hurry if Puppa strings together a few more performances like the one he gave Thursday night in leading Buffalo to a 4-1 victory over the Montreal Canadiens in the first game of their Adams Division semifinal series.

Puppa finished with 34 saves, of which at least six or seven were extraordinary. More importantly, he made the big saves when the Sabres needed them.

His biggest came on Petr Svoboda early in the third period while Montreal trailed 3-1. Svoboda came in on a 2-on-1, Puppa sprawled to make the save and the rebound started a 2-on-1 the other way that Bob Corkum converted into Buffalo's fourth goal.

"That's what I get paid for, making the big save," Puppa said. "It turns the whole momentum back the other way."

Montreal coach Pat Burns said that save — and the Buffalo goal that followed — turned what would have been a one-goal game into a three-goal deficit that proved too much for the Canadiens to overcome.

"We had our good scoring chances and Daren stood up and did the job," Burns said.

Dudley said Puppa "has won us a lot of big games this season with that kind of goaltending."

Capitals 5, Devils 4

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Dino Ciccarelli scored his third goal of the gamer 5:34 into overtime to give Washington a victory in the opener of its Patrick Division playoff series.

New Jersey goaltender Sean Burke, who was shaky all night, had the puck behind his own net and tried to flip it around the boards, but Washington Kevin Hatcher stopped the clearing attempt and flipped the puck at Burke.

Whalers 4, Bruins 3

BOSTON — Hartford scored on four of its first eight shots, including Todd Krygier's goal on its opening shot, in the opener of its Adams Division semifinal series.

Rangers 2, Islanders 1

NEW YORK — Rookie Mike Richter, making only his second start in the NHL playoffs, turned back 28 shots, including a penalty shot, to lead the Rangers.

Pistons earn road victory

Associated Press

Mark Aguirre came off the bench to score 25 points and Isiah Thomas hit four free throws in the final 31 seconds as the Detroit Pistons broke a four-game road losing streak with a 104-99 victory over the Atlanta Hawks Thursday night.

Dennis Rodman made two free throws to put the Pistons ahead for good 96-95 with 1:11 left. Thomas added two free throws at 31 seconds and two more with 15 seconds remaining to put Detroit ahead 100-95.

Spud Webb cut that margin to 100-98 with a 3-pointer with 12 seconds on the clock, but Bill Laimbeer answered with a pair of free throws one second later.

Dominique Wilkins put in a free throw for the Hawks final point, but Rodman was fouled as the Hawks tried to rebound Wilkins' missed second shot. Rodman then made two more foul shots.

Bulls 111, Magic 104

Michael Jordan scored 16 of his game-high 38 points in the fourth quarter to lead the Chicago Bulls to their fifth staight victory, 111-104 over the Orlando Magic.

The victory, Chicago's 12th in its last 14 games, improved the Bulls' overall mark to 50-23, including 32-5 at Chicago Stadium. The Magic (17-56) lost its seventh in a row and 23rd in their last 25 contests.

Buck, Stockton named by CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Buck replaced Brent Musburger as CBS' top baseball announcer on Thursday and the network filled Buck's spot on the second unit with Dick Stockton.

CBS Sports executive producer Ted Shaker said the network met earlier this week with ABC's Al Michaels and Arthur Kaminsky, Michaels' agent.

CBS announced Sunday that it would not retain Musburger.

Weaver takes early lead

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — Doug Weaver, playing in his first tournament of the year, used six birdies for a 6-under-par 64 to take the first- round lead in the Deposit Guaranty Golf Classic on Thursday.

Weaver, 30, led David Canipe by one stroke. Carl Cooper, Tommy Moore, Dick Mast and Don Reese were third at 66.

POWAY, Calif. (AP) — Lenore Rittenhouse birdied four of her last eight holes Thursday for a 5-under-par 66 and a one-shot lead over Nancy Brown after one round of the Red Robin Kyocera Inamori Classic.

ALL-STAR NOTES: Howard's Terrence Lewis, already committed to Washington State and one of the most gifted JUCO players in the country said he will try to turn pro one day, but it doesn't seem to be at the top of his thoughts. Lewis, working on a criminal justice degree, shrugged when asked what if the pros didn't work out, then added he'd work as hard as possible to land a job as a social worker ... Jeff Stern, the 6-10 center from South Plains, who like Lewis is one of the Top 10 players in the country, is leaning toward either DePaul or St. John's. Stern has already visited St. John's, located in Queens, N.Y., and will soon visit Joey Meyer's DePaul, in Chicago. Either way, Stern will likely benefit from the high profile of whichever school he chooses ... Texas union files Chapter 11

■ Called an historical event, a chemical workers union in Port Arthur has filed for bankruptcy, because of financial reverses.

Associated Press

PORT ARTHUR, Texas — In what may be the only case of its kind, a local chapter of the Oil, Chemical & Atomic Workers International Union has filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy.

Local 4-23 said in a statement Wednesday that it filed for bankruptcy protection because of an "accumulation of financial reverses." The local said its biggest creditor is a former member who is owed almost $2 million fromo a shooting on a picket line eight years ago.

"I believe this (case) is unique in the history of the bankruptcy code of the U.S.," said John W. McKendree, general counsel of the Denver-based union.

McKendree said the bankruptcy filing was definitely the first for an OCAW local and possibly the first ever for any union local.

Hinote's lawyers contend the union and seven of its members conspired against their client because they feared his defection would erode support for the strike. Hinote won $1.2 million in 1987. Interest since then brought the judgment to $1.8 million.

The union filed for bankruptcy after exhausting its appeals, and Hinote said the filing is an attempt to get out of paying the judgment.

"No matter what the judgment is, they are going to try to get out of it," said Hinote, 58, who still works at the Fina refinery. "I don't know, but I suspect that is what they are trying to do."

The union cited a "deterioration in the value of the Local's real estate, its office buildings' maintenance costs" and the judgement in the filing.

Last month, a state district court in Huntsville issued a writ of garnishment to help cover the judgment. This would have prevented the union from receiving the money employers collect for union dues, said James Weber, Hinote's attorney. The union was seeking to quash those writs at a Thursday hearing in Huntsville.

Weber said the union testified in court that they receive $60,000 in union dues a month, which adds up to $720,000 a year — less than half of the court judgment.

Local 4-23 represents about 2,500 refinery workers, but McKendree said the OCAW believes the bankruptcy filing will not affect union contracts.

In addition to Hinote, the union listed seven other unsecured creditors, which are owed a total of $3,349.69.

Southland loss $1.01 billion

DALLAS (AP) — Southland Corp. announced a $1.01 billion loss for the fourth quarter of last year, and a California analyst predicted the convenience store chain's bondholders won't accept restructuring.

Jay Lustig, an analyst at Drake Capital Corp. in Santa Monica, Calif., said bondholders do not want the founding Thompson family to be associated with the company any longer.

Under terms of an agreement to sell about 75 percent of the company to Ito-Yokado Ltd., which operates 7-Eleven stores in Japan, the Thompsons would retain 15 percent.

The deal is contingent on bondholders approving the restructuring of some $1.8 billion in debt and preferred stock. Most analysts have suggested bondholders, who would forego about $1.4 billion, will not agree to the deal as first announced.

"Bondholders no longer want the Thompsons running the company," Lustig said.

Auto sales up 3 percent

DETROIT (AP) — Sales of North American-made cars and trucks rose 2.9 percent in late March compared with a year ago, mainly because of gains by General Motors Corp., the automakers said Wednesday.

Industry analysts said the results were encouraging but said it was unclear whether a 6-month-long slump in auto sales was coming to an end.

Sales by Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. fell by 3.8 percent and by 16.6 percent during the March 21-31 period this year compared with the same period in 1989.

GM's car and truck sales in late March rose 6.1 percent, mostly because of its light trucks, including minivans that were offered with buyer-luring incentives for the first time.

On March 22, GM began offering $1,000 rebates on its three-vehicle line of minivans: the Chevrolet Lumina APV, the Pontiac Trans Sport and the Oldsmobile Silhouette. The program runs until May 2.

Combined car and truck sales for the nine major U.S. automakers rose to a daily average of 43,688 during the period, compared with an average of 42,451 in the same period last year. The vehicles are manufactured in the United and Canada.

Combined domestic and imported car and truck sales of 1,271,465 vehicles last month was 3.1 percent lower than in March 1989. Sales for the first quarter of 1990 were 1.8 percent down.

In the first three months of this year, Ford's car and truck sales were down 6.3 percent and Chrysler's were off 5.6 percent. GM's 3 percent decline in car sales was offset by a 4 percent jump in truck sales during the quarter.

"Compact van sales increased 41 percent due in large part to GM's newly introduced APVs," said J.I. Stark, executive director for GM's worldwide vehicle operations.

"A new trend has developed and GM is a market-share gainer," said auto analyst Scott Merlis of Morgan Stanley & Co. of New York.

Chrysler, with its Dodge Caravan, Plymouth Voyager and Chrysler Town & Country, has held a commanding lead in minivan sales since the vehicles were introduced in the mid-1980s.

"Chrysler minivans sales are up ... 15 percent for the calendar year, although there has been some dropoff following a record January," Chrysler said.

In January, Chrysler's minivan sales received a huge boost through a $1,000 incentive. That program expired at the end of January and minivan sales since then have dropped.

Merlis said the slump in the auto industry that began in October, as the 1990 model year got under way, appears to have bottomed out.

"Sales have found a resting point," he said. " ... The strong income growth in job creation and a stable prime (interest) rate has created a nice underpinning for sales."

Former Vernon chairman gets 30 years

AP Laserphoto

Woody Lemons leaves the Federal courthouse in Dallas after being sentenced to 30 years in prison.

■ Federal authorities are elated following the sentencing of former Vernon Savings Chairman Woody Lemons, who the judge called a thief, to 30 years in prison for fraud in the failure of the North Texas S&L.

Associated Press

DALLAS (AP) — Woody F. Lemons, the former chairman of Vernon Savings & Loan, was sentenced to 30 years in prison Thursday by a judge who called him "a thief in every sense of the word."

Vernon, shut down in a $1.3 billion government bailout in 1987, has been used as a prime example of abuses in the industry. Regulators said the sentenced handed down by U.S. District Judge Robert B. Maloney is the stiffest given in the fraud cases of former executives found guilty of various crimes involving the thrift industry.

L. William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Resolution Trust Corp., praised the sentence.

"Oh great," said Seidman, who attorneys said had written Maloney requesting a harsh sentence.

"I think it says these kinds of crimes are very serious," Seidman said Thursday. "They are very harmful to the people of the United States and they are going to be punished severely."

Maloney levied no fine against Lemons, who still faces an April 19 hearing on restitution. The government is seeking as much as $18 million in repayment.

Maloney, who attorneys said is not known for overly stiff sentences, had harsh words for Lemons.

Maloney said he had received more than one hundred letters on Lemons' behalf, as friends from Vernon praised his church and community activities.

"Your friends are wrong," Maloney said. "You are not a religious man. ... Even though you are present (in church), you are not listening."

"You have no real moral values," Maloney said. "If you had the opportunity, you would (steal) again. You are a thief in every sense of the word."

Elated government attorneys would say little about the sentence, but could be heard shouting "hot dog" as they disappeared into their offices.

"They hit a home run," said defense attorney Michael Gibson, who had accused the government of "another agenda" in its prosecution of Lemons.

"He's going to be the trophy that the federal agencies bag," Gibson told Maloney.

After the sentencing, Gibson predicted, "You will see Mr. Lemons and the sentence used to enhance (agencies') position" in congressional and other forums.

Congress has been critical of the government's effort to prosecute fraud in the savings and loan industry. The government committed $48.5 million to fraud investigations as part of legislation passed last year to bail out the industry.

Gibson had suggested a 3- to 5-year prison term for Lemons. After the hearing, however, he said he had expected no more than a 10-year sentence.

The conviction and sentencing of Lemons sets the stage for an expected indictment of former Vernon Chairman Don R. Dixon, painted by government officials as the main culprit behind the abuses at Vernon.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

How to figure returns on two mutual funds

By Bill Doyle

Q. I have money in two mutual funds. One is a "government securities" fund. The other is an "income" fund. I have been taking the dividends from them since I retired.

If I withdraw from them now, will I receive all the money I invested?

A. You might. You might not. On a happy note, you might come out with a profit by receiving more than you invested. You'll have to do some arithmetic to find out. Do separate calculations on each fund.

Doyle

First, write down the amount you put into a fund, either in one shot or at various times. To that, add all the dividends and capital gains distributions you reinvested to buy more shares before you started taking those payments by check. The total will be your cost basis.

Next, figure out how much you will receive by redeeming your shares. Open your newspaper to the table of mutual fund quotations. The first number next to the fund's name is the net asset value, the price you will get for each share.

(Some mutual funds have rear-end loads — redemption fees or contingent deferred sales charges — that reduce the amount shareholders get when they cash out. Neither of the funds you named in your letter does.

Multiply the number of shares you own by the net asset value number. That tells you how much you will get by redeeming your shares.

The difference between your cost basis and the redemption amount is either a profit or a loss. For your sake, let's hope it's a profit.

Q. I invested $3,000 in a mutual fund in 1973. Over the years I was in that fund, I reinvested $16,000 dividends and $12,000 capital gains distributions. This added up to $31,000 as my cost basis for income tax purposes.

When I liquidated this mutual fund investment, I received a redemption check of $12,000. I subtracted the $12,000 from the $31,000. The result was a $19,000 loss.

A. It is, if your numbers are correct. Although most mutual funds have produced profits for their investors, many have resulted in losses.

However, the fund you mentioned has not had a record so horrible as to result in the loss you calculated. Over a 17-year period, the $3,000 you invested and the $28,000 you reinvested almost certainly should have purchased enough shares so that your redemption check would be a good deal higher than $12,000.

I suspect your figures — especially on reinvestments — are out of whack. If not, you were grievously shortchanged on that redemption check.

The statement you received with that redemption check should list the number of shares you redeemed and the redemption price per share. That number of shares should be the same as the number on the last previous fund statement. If those numbers don't jibe, there was a serious error — costing you money.

In that case, contact the fund and insist that you get all the money that should have been in the redemption check.

Oil futures slip

The energy futures market lost more ground Thursday as concerns about overproduction by OPEC depressed prices of crude oil and other petroleum products.

The May contract for West Texas Intermediate, settled at $19.43 per 42-gallon barrel, down 35 cents while the posted price clings to $18.75.

Meanwhile, natural gas for June delivery closed at $1.615 per million British thermal units, down from $1.620 Wednesday. The contract began trading on the Merc earlier this week.

Bob Baker, a senior energy analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc., attributed the drop in prices to reports that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was producing as much as 24 million barrels of oil a day, far above its 22-million-barrel daily quota.

"We're not going to see $20 oil with this level of production," he said.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar finished mixed Thursday in dull trading on world currency markets.

Gold prices fell in the United States after rising overseas. On the Commodity Exchange in New York, gold bullion for current delivery settled at $374.80 a troy ounce. Republic National Bank of New York quoted a late bid for gold of $375 an ounce.

Dollar rates in New York: 1.6997 West German marks, 1.5015 Swiss francs, 5.7150 French francs, 1,249.50 Italian lire, and 1.1684 Canadian dollars.

Gold rose in London to a late bid price of $377 a troy ounce, up from $374.50 late Wednesday. In Zurich, Switzerland, the metal rose to a closing bid of $376.50 an ounce from $374.50 late Wednesday.

Gold was not traded in Hong Kong, where all financial institutions were closed Thursday for the Chinese Ching Ming, or Remembrance of Ancestors Day, holiday. They will reopen Friday.

Silver prices were mixed. On New York's Comex, silver bullion for current delivery finished at $5.141 a troy ounce, down from $5.160 on Wednesday. But in London, the metal rose to a late bid price of $5.18 an ounce from $5.02.

MANZANO OIL CORP. has added to East Gem production in Lea County, N.M. with completion of the No. 1 Texaco Federal.

The well was finaled to flow 200 Mcfd on a 6/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 650 psi. The well flowed from perforations 13,214 to 13,309 ft., which had been acidized with 650 psi.

Permitted as a 13,700 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 13,650 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, and plugged back to 13,558 ft. Pay was topped at 13,214 ft.

Dallas operator plans activity in Orla field

FEDERAL ENERGY DEVELOPMENT CORP., Dallas, has completed two wells in the South Orla field of Reeves County and staked two more. Both completions were located in Section 5.

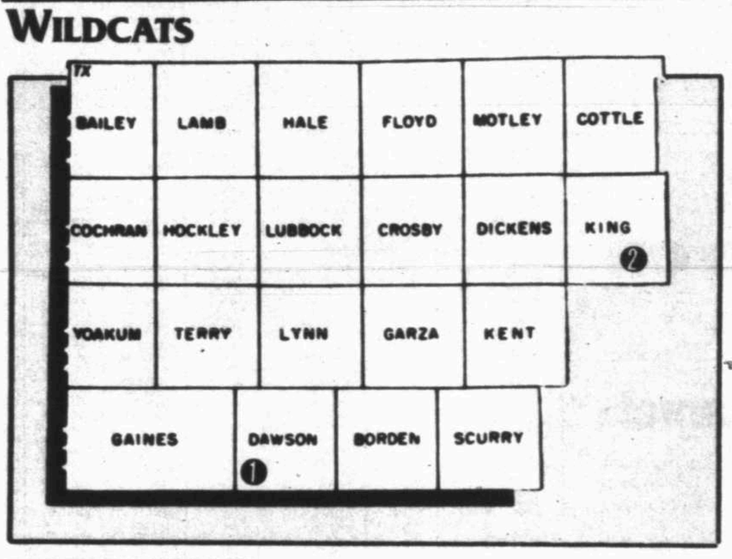

E. Carter Bills II, president of the company, said that in addition to the two staked in Section 5 that will begin drilling next week, another three-well project is on the planning board.

"We are projecting the same production range for these new wells," Bills said. The two completions were tested for 96 and 104 barrels of 39 gravity oil daily from perforations 3,472 and 3,479 ft. in the Delaware Sand.

The two wells set to begin drilling are in Southwest, Northwest Section 44 and Southeast, Northeast Section 44. The three on the drawing board includes two in Section 5 and one more in Section 44.

FORT WORTH — MSR Exploration Ltd. has reached an agreement in principal to purchase 100 percent working interest in the 46-well Winters (Capps) field of Runnels County from Omni Petroleum Corp.

MSR's engineers estimate that this acquisition will add some 1.6 million barrels of proven oil and 2.5 billion cubic feet of gas reserves to the present company total. The company's daily production will now more than double to in excess of 1,200 barrels of oil equivalent daily.

This purchase also marks MSR's entry into the Mid-Continent area and is only the first step in a five-year program to expand the company's asset base as evaluations continue to be performed on other areas of interest.

Oil firms taking on 'Mom and Pop' stores

N.Y. Times News Service

ATLANTA — Don't be fooled by the dainty bouquets of fresh-cut flowers in the new Texaco convenience store on Pleasant Hill Road in suburban Duluth, Ga.

The flowers are among the weapons deployed by powerful oil companies such as Texaco Inc., Shell Oil Co. and BP Oil Co. as they muscle their way into the nation's convenience store industry. With prime real estate and deep pockets, they're taking on mom and pop shops and traditional "c-store" chains, especially financially strapped operators such as Circle K Corp. and Munford Inc., parent of Majik Market.

"You are going to see fewer traditional convenience store operators out there in the future and relatively more oil companies moving into the business," said convenience store expert D. West Griffin, a vice president for Bankers Trust Co. in New York.

Nationwide, the number of convenience stores operated by oil companies and gasoline marketers increased nearly 90 percent to 30,000 stores from 1984 through 1988, according to Convenience Store News, a New York trade publication.

In contrast, the number of stores run by traditional operators increased by about 12 percent to 52,500.

A bruising shakeout in the nation's $62 billion-a- year convenience store industry clearly is in full swing. Nowhere is it more evident than in and around Atlanta.

Phoenix, Ariz.-based Circle K, the area's largest operator, with about 150 stores, last week said it may be forced to seek bankruptcy court protection if it can't renegotiate its $1.17 billion debt.

In January, Casselberry, Fla.-based Munford filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection, after it ran into debt problems and didn't have enough money to restock bare shelves and refill empty gas tanks. It subsequently received an emergency loan and closed about 20 unprofitable Majik Market stores, leaving Atlanta's once-dominant chain with only about 50 stores in the area.

Circle K recently slashed prices on cigarette, milk and soft drinks to stimulate business. Price cuts are being planned for all merchandise.

"The customer has become much more price-conscious," said Ray Cox, Circle K's senior vice president of corporate affairs. "Frankly, when you are as far out of line on prices as we were, people would say, 'We'll go somewhere else.' And they did."

While Circle K and Munford try to lure back customers and resolve their debt problems, stemming largely from overly aggressive acquisition strategies, many small, independent chains are scrambling as well.

They must compete amid the price-cutting, and small chains that sell gasoline also face the expensive prospect of replacing old fuel tanks as new, strict state and federal environmental regulations are phased in.

Analysts said convenience store chains that are financially sound will continue to prosper. And there always will be a place for mom and pop operators who avoid direct competition with big players, they added.

Analysis

By Jim Barlow
Hearst News Service

HOUSTON – The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has been preparing the oil-consuming nations the way I prepare lobster.

No plunging the living creature into boiling water at my house. Instead, the pot with lobster and water is gradually heated. At the end, there might be a slight tap dance on the bottom of the pot, but that's it.

The oil cartel has been cooking us with kindness, keeping the price of oil in that magic area where the cartel has adequate revenues, without letting it get high enough to encourage exploration in non-OPEC countries.

The Middle East oil states already have an advantage in production costs. Oil there is still easy to find and pump.

Most of our easy oil has been found. What's left is in expensive places, like off shore. Even if extracting costs were equal, we would still be on the short end of the price stick. In the Middle East, they don't have things like the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the Clean Air Act.

But even other non-OPEC oil producers are doing better than we are in finding new sources of oil and natural gas. They have recognized that, in this particular case, you can't fight a cartel with private enterprise.

To compete successfully with OPEC, we must have some kind of government intervention. But don't expect that to happen any time soon.

In 1985 we imported 27 percent of the oil we consumed. Last year, the U.S. Department of Energy said that was up to 41 per cent. Domestic crude oil production since 1986 has fallen by 20 percent.

The Department of Energy predicts petroleum imports will reach 55 percent of U.S. consumption by the year 2000. James A. Schlesinger, former energy secretary, believes imports will hit 65 percent by 1995.

On prices, the Department of Energy forecasts that in 1989 dollars, a barrel of oil will cost $20.40 in 1995 and $27.80 in the year 2000. A recent study from Harvard University predicted $60 oil by the year 2000.

The United States is not a weenie exporter. Last year we led the world, according to the International Monetary Fund, with exports of $364 billion. But we ran a trade deficit of $129 billion because we also imported $493 billion worth of goods. Of that, $40 billion was for imported oil.

Of course Japan imports 100 percent of its energy needs, yet seems to do all right in the trade deficit game.

Japan also does a much better job of conserving energy than we do. The World Resources Institute in Washington, D.C., says it takes Japan – and Germany – half as much energy to produce a dollar of gross national product as it does in the United States.

Much of that difference comes from our automobile-based transportation system, which sucks up two-thirds of all oil consumed in this country.

We could encourage conservation through government incentives. But the easiest and surest way is through price. An import tax to push the price of oil in this country to $30 a barrel would encourage conservation, make alternate energy projects like solar more practical and increase drilling of domestic supplies of oil and natural gas.

But we don't trust politicians enough to believe them when they say we need to make sacrifices. Much of that can be blamed on the 1960s and '70s.

We saw President Lyndon Johnson campaign for re-election on a peace platform, then send hundreds of thousands of U.S. soldiers to Vietnam. That was followed by Richard Nixon and Watergate, and the dominance of special interests in Congress today.

Given that situation, our best scenario is a poor one indeed –a political explosion in the Middle East, followed by another oil boycott and a huge increase in oil prices.

That would at least force us to act.

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices drifted through a mixed session Thursday after a rumored financial storm in Tokyo failed to materialize.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had been down 17.34 points Wednesday, rose 1.80 to 2,721.17.

Declining issues slightly outnumbered advances in nationwide trading of New York Stock Exchange-listed stocks, with 703 up, 744 down and 540 unchanged.

Volume on the floor of the Big Board came to 144.17 million shares, against 159.54 million in the previous session. Nationwide, consolidated volume in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 175.91 million shares.

Prices of U.S. stocks pulled back on Wednesday amid talk that the battered Japanese market might be hit with a fresh wave of selling overnight.

As it turned out, Tokyo stock prices did decline sharply in early trading, but then recovered most of their losses.

Analysts said that calmed some fears that pressure on stocks in Japan might soon start to exert an increasing influence in other markets around the world.

But at the same time, brokers said, traders in this country were proceeding carefully in advance of Friday's monthly report on the employment situation.

Phillips introduces clean gas

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Phillips Petroleum Co. on Thursday became the latest oil company to introduce a reformulated gasoline designed to be less harmful to the environment than existing grades.

Phillips' reformulated fuel — blended to reduce certain hydrocarbon emissions — will be tested in St. Louis, one of more than 100 cities that fall below the Environmental Protection Agency's minimum standards for air quality.

The rush by America's oil companies to make gasoline less toxic comes in response to stepped up government efforts to reduce air emissions from the tailpipes of cars and trucks.

George Gaspar, a stock analyst for Robert W. Baird & Co. in Milwaukee, said oil companies are trying to protect their markets by developing "cleaner" gasoline that will help auto companies meet tougher air emission standards.

"If the auto companies don't get any help they may have to take some major actions that could hurt the petroleum industry," said Gaspar. "We're going to hear a lot about how great reformulated gasoline is."

Phillips, based in Bartlesville, Okla., sells gasoline in the Midwest. It selected St. Louis for the test because of the company's strong selling base in the area.

The reformulated gasoline is blended to reduce the amounts of certain hydrocarbons, such as aromatics, benzene and olefins, that react with the atmosphere and produce ozone, a main component of smog.

Charles Bowerman, a Phillips senior vice president, said the midgrade gasoline, SuperClean Unleaded Plus, contains 20 to 30 percent less olefins and aromatics and 35 percent less benzene than the average gasoline sold in the St. Louis area. The company did not make a comparison with the average gasoline sold nationally.

The new gasoline is made by removing the more toxic compounds and replacing them with methyl-tertiary-butyl-ether, a blending component with a high oxygen content.

Other oil companies that have introduced reformulated gasolines include Arco, Marathon, Exxon, Amoco, Mobil, Citgo and Sun Oil.

Ichan resurfaces as potential buyer for Eastern

NEW YORK (AP) — As Eastern Airlines' unsecured creditors step up pressure to sell the carrier, Trans World Airlines owner Carl Icahn has resurfaced as a possible buyer, sources said Wednesday.

Icahn and associates held informal discussions recently with representatives of Goldman, Sachs & Co., financial advisers to the committee of Eastern's unsecured creditors, said the sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified. The talks have been preliminary, and the notion of an Icahn bid for Eastern has not yet "ripened," one of them said.

Eastern spokesman Robin Matell declined comment on the matter. Icahn was said by his office to be unavailable for comment, and aides at Goldman, Sachs didn't immediately return phone calls.

Goldman, Sachs is said to have recently told the committee that TWA wasn't interested in bidding for Eastern, but a source close to the company said there is some interest.

The creditors' committee, exasperated by Eastern's mounting losses, voted Tuesday to reject the airline's latest reorganization proposal and to seek the appointment of a special trustee to sell Eastern. The creditors have been soliciting possible buyers behind the scenes in recent weeks, sources say.

Icahn, a corporate investor who took TWA private in October 1988, appears to have emerged as the predominant potential buyer, said the sources. They suggested he might bid for Eastern in concert with other investors.

Icahn's interest in Miami-based Eastern goes back at least to September 1988, when members of Eastern's Machinists met with him about a possible bid. After Eastern's filing for bankruptcy protection on March 9, 1989, and the subsequent collapse of an attempted buyout led by ex-baseball commissioner Peter V. Ueberroth, Icahn was the unions' favorite to buy the strike-plagued airline.

Machinists, pilots and flight attendants struck Eastern on March 4, 1989.

Icahn was TWA's "white knight" in 1986, buying the airline in a $440 million deal to thwart an attempted takeover by Frank Lorenzo, chairman of Eastern's parent Texas Air Corp.

Industry analysts have noted a potential compatibility between Eastern — which operates mainly between the Northeast and Florida and Atlanta — and TWA, which is strongest in TransAtlantic operations.

But Icahn backed off from Eastern last May.

LEMONS: Gets 30 year term

(From 4D)

Five other Vernon officials have pleaded guilty to various crimes and one, former President Patrick G. King, was convicted and sentenced, by Maloney, to five years in jail and fined $55,000. A consultant and two Vernon borrowers also have pleaded guilty in thrift-connected cases.

Dixon has been notified he is the target of a federal investigation, according to his attorney. He also is the lead defendant in a $540 million federal fraud lawsuit filed in 1987.

Gibson would not say if prosecutors had sought Lemons' cooperation against Dixon, but Dixon's attorney, William M. Ravkind, said, "Anybody facing 30 years would turn in their mother."

DOYLE: Return on funds

(From 4D)

Q. Topic: Junk bonds.

For years, I have had three accounts with the same mutual fund management organization — a money market fund, a government securities fund and a high-income fund. The fund group sent word recently that it handles only top-grade bonds. But does it?

A. There is no doubt it does as investments for the first two funds. The third could be a different story. Most high-income funds hold junk bonds — those counted below investment grade.

You can check that easily enough by looking at the investment portfolio in the shareholder reports the fund sends to you. If any of the bonds are rated BB or lower by Standard & Poor's Corp. or Ba or lower by Moody's Investors Service, the fund management's claim of handling only quality bonds was a fib.

Three people die from avalanche

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Two Americans and their Sherpa guide died in an avalanche more than halfway up the world's seventh-highest mountain on the Nepal-Tibet border, the Tourism Ministry said Thursday.

Charles Schertz, 35, of Pittsburgh, Nancy Jackson of Federal Way, Wash., and Nima Wanchu, 41, were found buried in the snow March 27 by other members of the American Manaslu Expedition, according to the Tourism Ministry and Dan McConnell, spokesman for the Seattle-based team. Nepalese officials said Jackson's passport said she was 43, but McConnell said she was 34.

McConnell said two others escaped the accident, which occurred at the 15,510-foot level of Mount Manaslu, a 26,775-foot mountain in the Himalayan range. It is one of the Himalaya's lesser climbed peaks because of its remoteness.

Climber Steve Steckmyer, 39, of Seattle, escaped the direct path of the avalanche, while another Sherpa was partially buried but pulled himself out. Steckmyer stayed behind to look for his teammates while the Sherpa descended to get help and ran into the other climbers, who were coming up from the base camp with gear, McConnell said.

Poor communications delayed news of the deaths, said the Ministry of Tourism, which serves as a clearinghouse for Himalayan climbs.

"We are shocked and shattered by the loss of our good friends, Nancy, Charlie and Nima Wanchu in this tragic accident," team leader Don Goodman said in a news release.

Goodman, of Mercer Island, Wash., flew to Katmandu, Nepal, and said the remaining members of the 12-person team abandoned the climb and would be returning home after the bodies are cremated at a monastery near Manaslu.

McConnell said the team is not expected to return to the United States for 10-14 days.

Jackson, an environmental engineer, climbed Mount Rainier more than 50 times as a guide during the 1980s and reached the summits of Mount McKinley in Alaska and Aconcagua in Argentina.

Schertz, a physician, was one of two climbing doctors on the expedition. He was a member of the 1988 Northwest American Everest Expedition and part of the first American ascent of Cho Oyu in the Himalayas in 1986.

Colombia police deactivate bomb

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Police defused a truck bomb containing more than a half-ton of dynamite on Thursday that had been planted by drug traffickers hoping to destroy several blocks of a wealthy Bogota neighborhood during the morning rush hour.

Military armor and patrols poured out of army bases and into the streets minutes after the attempt.

Interior Minister Horacio Serpa, who police said escaped being a victim by minutes, called an emergency meeting of the National Security Council. He is acting president while President Virgilio Barco is in Europe on a state visit.

Federal Sen. Federico Estrada, 63, who was kidnapped by drug traffickers last Tuesday in Medellin, was released unharmed Thursday in that northwestern Colombia city, home of Medellin's cocaine cartel.

In a communique, traffickers had threatened to murder him if police did not release four of their associates.

Police have denied detaining the four, and the reason for Estrada's being freed was not clear.

Gunmen working for the Medellin cartel killed another policeman Thursday in Medellin, bringing to 15 the number of officers killed there since Monday.

Most of a surge of violence believed drug-related has been concentrated in Medellin.

On Wednesday, gunmen entered a tavern and began shooting indiscriminately. Two doctors, a university professor, an engineer and two waiters were killed and two people wounded.

Police found five shot bodies at a downtown soccer field and three bodies on the city outskirts of the city. Two bodies were found in a northern neighborhood known as a center for gangs of hired murderers. An off-duty soldier was shot dead.

Authorities have not established responsibility for the massacres, but similar killings have been carried out by rival gangs working for drug traffickers.

In the back of the truck, police found about 1,100 pounds of dynamite buried under a load of toilet paper and hand soap, a police lieutenant on the scene told The Associated Press.

The lieutenant, who spoke on the condition of not being identified, said the interior minister passed by the truck bomb minutes before police discovered it. He said Serpa's apartment lies 1½ blocks from the bomb site.

"If the bomb had gone off, it would have wiped out two square blocks," he reported.

Two private schools with a total of 2,000 pupils lie within two blocks of the site.

Other major figures live in the neighborhood of luxury high-rises, embassies and consulates. They include former President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen, presidential candidate Cesar Gaviria, and the chief of Colombia's secret police. Gen. Miguel Maza Marquez.

Second, we sell only late model cars. And because we display the price on the window of each car, there's none of the usual haggling over price.

Third, we have a wide variety of cars to choose from. National currently has cars available to sell that were manufactured by General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, Nissan, Honda and Toyota.

MIDLAND CHURCHES

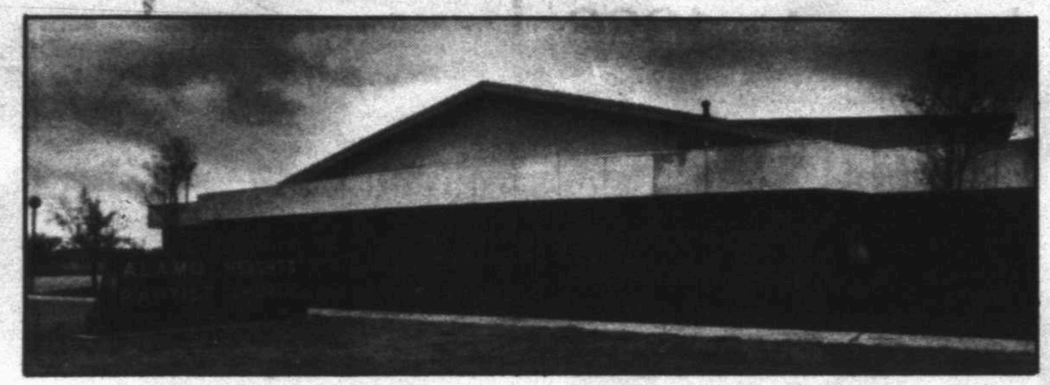

Alamo Heights Baptist outreach serves community

Alamo Heights Baptist Church is well known in Midland for its outreach and personal evangelism programs. The church is located at 1305 N. Midland Drive. Dr. John S. Rasco, retired pastor of First Baptist Church in Odessa serves as pastor.

Alamo Heights Baptist missionary programs serve the community. The congregation is actively involved in Meals on Wheels, Baptist Crisis Center and Christmas in April.

The main thrust of the church at this time, and projected into the future, is personal evangelism through the outreach program of the church.

"This church is here for no other purpose but to magnify the Lord Jesus Christ. There will be obstacles," reads the minutes of the April 16, 1961 constitution service of Alamo Heights Baptist Chapel. "Paul's prayer in Ephesians 1 is applicable here as to Ephesus. This church has no business ever being comfortable." The chapel was a mission outreach of the Glenmore Baptist Church and began its mission work in borrowed space in Alamo Junior High School.

On or about March 16, 1960, eleven persons gathered to begin the Lord's work in west Midland. On the first Sunday, 145 people attended Sunday School. Abe Hester was Alamo Heights Baptist's first leader.

The fellowship hall was constructed in 1965, the youth building was constructed in 1971 and further additions were added in 1974, 1978, 1982 and 1983. Much of the work was completed by family members.

Our Savior's Lutheran known as teaching church

Our Savior's is known as a teaching church. Besides two adult Bible classes and Sunday School on Sunday morning, there are Sunday and Wednesday evening Bible studies. Our Savior's sponsors "Simple Secrets," a Bible study by Pastor Otterness, on Sunday mornings on KOSA—TV.

The congregation has two young men preparing for the ministry. Edward H. "Skip" Hedgpeth is attending Wartburg Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa. Robert Walter is attending Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, California.

Church personnel includes Tom choir director and Judy Laney, organist. George Harley is president of the congregation. Rev. David Herman, retired, is also on the staff.

The church was started on Ash Wednesday of 1983, and met at the Presbyterian Day Care Center. The sanctuary at 3309 W. Neely was built in 1987. It is a flexible building that provides worship, Sunday School and fellowship space.

Pastor Otterness was given the award for Excellence in Community Service in Religion by the Heritage of Odessa Foundation in 1985. He was pastor of Lutheran Church of the Risen Lord for 25 years, and resigned as head pastor in 1985. "Simple Secrets," his program, has been on KOSA-TV for more than ten years. During his 25 years in Odessa, the congregation grew from zero to more than 1,000 members. There were six building programs during this time.

Pastor Herman had a similar experience in Houston at Park Place Lutheran Church and then served at Midland Lutheran Church until his retirement.

When organized in October 1983, Our Savior's Lutheran Church identified itself in its articles of incorporation as "A Fellowship of Forgiven Sinners. Apart from Christ, we can do nothing, with Him we can do all things."

Christian Church of Midland history, success traces to 1966

The Christian Church of Midland, located at 2608 Neely, was started by a few families in 1966. They met at Rusk Elementary and Midland Christian School until 1968 when they built the first unit of the present facility. After a period of growth, the congregation built the first unit of the present sanctuary, which seats 250. It was dedicated in February 1973. In 1984, the house and lot next door was purchased and is occupied by the church pre-school

Blazek

Robert E. Blazek was called as minister in 1976. Since that time, the church has enjoyed considerable growth. The Christian Church of Midland is a young congregation and many have been transferred to other places. The current membership is made up of about 95 percent new people since 1976.

The congregation now has members of all age groups, including a Prime Timers (senior) group, classes for older, middle aged, young adults and a full schedule of activities for youth from nursery through high school.

Regular services include Sunday Bible School at 9:45 a.m., morning worship at 10:45 a.m., evening worship and study at 6:00 p.m. and scheduled activities and Bible studies on Wednesday nights. The Sunday evening services include youth meetings for all ages — nursery through high school — at the 6:00 hour. Other youth activities include summer camp and retreats. The church also has an athletic program for all ages.

The church is very missionary minded and gives about 25 percent of its income to missions through its Faith Promise Mission program. All funds are sent directly to the missionaries. These include Charles and Florence Littell, who have ministered in the Philippines on Mindanao for 20 years.

Minister Robert Blazek preached crusades for three weeks in Mindanao in 1986. He plans to return this year for another crusade. The congregation also supports a ministry in Acuna, Mexico, Dallas Christian College, a children's home in Oklahoma, a radio mission that has broadcasts worldwide, a youth ministry called Christ in Youth, and Children's Clinic in Midland.

On Palm Sunday, Blazek will present his Easter sermon. Easter Sunday, April 15, at the 10:45 a.m. worship service, the adult choir will present David Clydesdale's "How Great Thou Art." This musical portrays the great love of God displayed through the death, burial and resurrection of his son, Jesus.

The story is told through song and narration and the music will come to life as characters portray the scenes.

The Christian Church of Midland is located at 2608 Neely in the near northeast of Midland. Their doctrinal position is one of non-denominational stance, taking the Bible as their only rule of faith and practice. Their services are open to all regardless of race, creed or color.

Come to Life!

Easter is the traditional time when we celebrate Jesus' triumph over death, and praise God for the new life He has given us.

We invite you to share in our services during this special time. Our minister, Bob Blazek, will preach Sunday on THE HEART OF THE GOSPEL. Easter Sunday our Adult Choir will present the musical entitled HOW GREAT THOU ART. These services begin at 10:45 A.M.

If you have not accepted God's gift of new, eternal life, let this be the time when you come to life!

Tall City Missionary Baptist choir to present cantata

The Tall City Missionary Baptist Church choir will present an Easter cantata, "Hosanna," on Sunday, April 15. The cantata will be performed during the morning worship at 11:00 a.m. The public is invited to attend. During the service, the church will take up one of its annual special offerings, the "30 pieces of silver love offering."

The church is located at 3500 Anetta Drive — at the corner of Thomason and Anetta. It is affilliated with the American Baptist Association on a national basis, particularly with worldwide mission work.

Weekly services include Sunday School Assembly at 9:45 a.m., morning worship at 11:00 a.m., Wednesday evening meetings at 7:30 p.m., B.T.C. at 6:00 p.m., and worship at 7:00 p.m. On the last Wednesday of each month, food and fellowship meets at 7:00 p.m.

Before entering the ministry in 1955, Pastor W.R. (Bill) Simpson was a rice, soybean and livestock farmer in southeast Arkansas. Three years later he entered the Missionary Baptist Seminary in Little Rock, Ark., completing five years of training. Simpson earned a bachelors degree in Bible languages.

Tall City Missionary Baptist sponsors three missionaries — Bruce Turner, Comox Valley, Vancouver Island, British Columbia, Canada; David Dawson, Big Spring, Texas and Paul Hull, Abilene, Texas. The Tall City congregation works with other churches to help financially support these missionaries.

For three years, Tall City has sponsored the West Texas Baptist Institute-Seminary. Closing exercises are May 4.

Tall City Baptist was started as a mission on Easter Sunday, 1969. The first services were conducted in the Carpenter's Union Hall on Florida Street. After a year, it was organized into a church. The first building was done on the Anetta Drive property within the year. Another building program for the auditorium was completed nine years ago.

The congregation is praying to expand its mission programs for this area. As soon as finances are provided, the congregation plans to build on its property the facilities to house the seminary.

Easter egg hunt, cookout slated for Church of God of Prophecy

On Easter Sunday, April 15, Sunday School will be at 10:00 a.m. and the worship service will be at 11:00 a.m. A cookout and Easter egg hunt, followed by an outdoor service, is scheduled for the afternoon.

Year round weekly services include Sunday School at 10:00 a.m., morning worship at 11:00 a.m., Sunday night services at 6:30 p.m. and Wednesday night services at 7:30 p.m.

John Miller has pastored the Church of God of Prophecy for 11 years. He previously served a church in Big Spring and a mission at Clyde, Texas. Also working for the congregation are Bobby Satterfield, sunday School superintendent, Leonard Dumire, minister of music and Clayton Willoughby, finance director.

The church was established in 1954. Locations have included Rhode Island Street, Spruce Street and the present location, 5301 Thomason. The present structure was built in 1978.

Future plans include adding more Sunday School space and a kitchen. Also, a future possibility is building a home for the elderly to live. A food bank and clothing distribution center are being organized.

Sunday morning services, as well as Sunday School, commence at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday evening services are at 7:30 p.m. and include testimonies of healing.

The Christian Science Reading Room is located at 201 W. Wall and is open to the public Monday through Friday from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. and on Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Here, the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read, borrowed or purchased.

Christian Science church services have been held in Midland since the early 1920s, first in private homes and later in leased quarters. In 1949, a small church was erected at the present location, the existing edifice was built in 1960.

All are welcome to attend the services, which focus on the power of prayer and love. The members would especially like to share the Easter Sunday service with the public. The subject is, "Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?" The citations from the Bible tell how Christ Jesus proved step by step that they are not real, and thus he was able to experience the resurrection. This mighty triumph gave us the joy of Easter.

"Let us sing of Easter gladness that rejoices every day; Sing of hope and faith uplifted; Love has rolled the stone away. (From the Christian Science Hymnal.)

The First Church of Christ, Scientist is located at 1001 W. Tennessee.

This study and support group is devoted to personal recovery and spiritual growth through working the traditional 12-step program in the name, light and hope of Jesus Christ. Local benevolence is offered through the St. Andrews Mission.

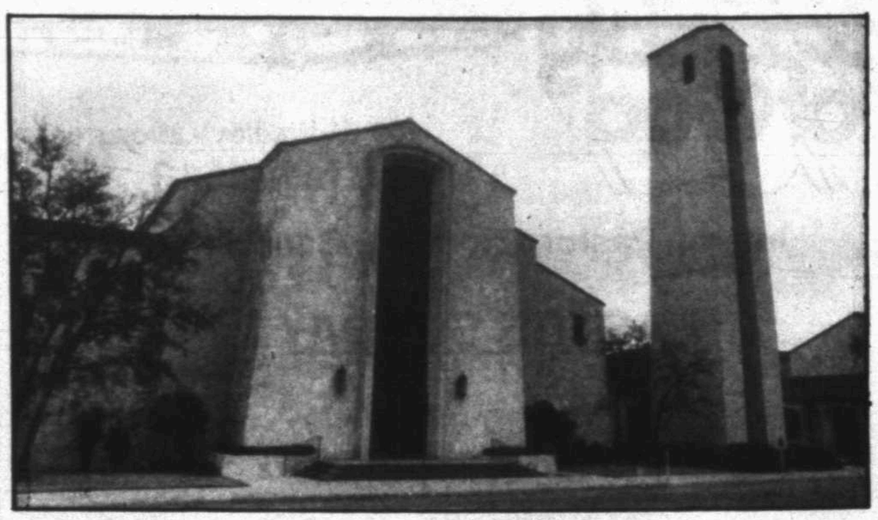

Yearly mission support totals approximately $300,000.

Rev. Russell H. Ritchel is a graduate of the University of Kansas and Princeton Theological Seminary.

St. Ann's of Midland will be 92 this year

On Nov. 5, 1898, a sandstone building on East Texas Ave..was dedicated in honor of St. Ann. This was the first Catholic church in Midland. Until that time, the 45 Catholic families of Midland met for liturgical celebrations in private homes and were served by priests from the nearby town of Marienfeld, now known as Stanton. Only 15 years earlier, the westward-building railroad had set aside a box car as a temporary station and named it Midway. When the cornerstone of the church building was laid on Oct. 24, 1896, Midland had only 1,500 inhabitants.

By July 1933 there were some 550 parishioners at St. Ann's. Father Edward Harrison, O.M.I., was appointed its first pastor by Bishop R.A. Gerken of Amarillo. A generous donation was made to the church through the Catholic Church Extension Society, with the request that it be named St. George Church. This request was granted, the church was renovated and the Catholic parish was known as St. George Parish until 1948.

By 1947 it was apparent that the growing congregation would require more room for worship. Father Harrison purchased a block of land on West Texas Ave. for $900 and negotiations were later made to acquire the Midland Army Air Field Chapel, which was moved to the St. Ann's location. The old chapel was finished in brick, a bell tower was added and the cornerstone was dedicated by Bishop Laurence J. Fitzsimon of Amarillo on Oct. 20, 1948.

In 1951, Father Thomas J. Kennedy, O.M.I., became the pastor at St. Ann's. As the parish grew, a new rectory was purchased for the priests and one-half block of property on West Illinois Avenue was acquired, which is the site of the present church building.

The present church was dedicated in 1959 during the pastorate of Father Kennedy. The parish was served by the Missionary Oblates of Mary Immaculate until July 1984.

The present pastor, Father Fred Nawarskas, was installed by Bishop Joseph A. Fiorenza on Aug. 26, 1984.

Today St. Ann's Parish counts 1,650 active parish families with more than 50 spiritual and social parish organizations. The parish school has an enrollment of 328 students, and there is a strong C.C.D. program staffed by over 90 volunteer teachers and aides.

Word of Life Academy builds to change future

Word of Life Academy, located at 9700 W. Highway 191 (four miles west of Loop 250 in Midland and seven miles east of Loop 338 in Odessa), offers a complete elementary school program including four-year-old preschool through the sixth grade. It is a member of the Association of Christian Schools International and is in the initial stages of accreditation.

The Academy was established in 1986 to prepare young people to be spiritually steadfast with their trust and faith centered in Jesus Christ and God's word, the Bible. In order to accomplish this goal the school strives to do the following:

■ To offer students an education consistent with Biblical principles.

■ To undergird the student in the fundamentals of the Christian faith while stimulating him to evaluate knowledge in the light of scriptural truth.

■ To encourage growth in Christian character in each student and to help the student accept his responsibility in faithful Christian service in whatever career he so chooses.

■ To increase the student's awareness of the world and of ideas and events which are influencing our contemporary culture and to prepare the student to knowledgeably participate in society.

The accumulation of truth by rote memory or the recitation of answers falls short of the goal God has set. The aggressive search for truth, the searching out of ideas, and the refinement of mental skills are emphasized as part of the knowledge process. Learning in the Christian school not only answers the question of what and who, but also why and how. Learning then is not a matter of static achievement, but of dynamic activity for the glory of God.

The mission of Word of Life Academy is to provide a quality spiritual learning environment while maintaining an educational program of academic excellence and good character training. These are implemented throughout the A Beka curriculum and exemplified by Christian teachers and parents.

The A Beka curriculum, designed for self-contained classrooms, utilizes the teacher as a role model and instructor. The highly acclaimed phonics-first reading program leads to early independence in reading by developing early word-analysis and comprehension skills. The program contains an abundance of delightful classics and incorporates Bible reading and character building stories primarily found in McGuffy readers.

In a recent review by experienced public school teachers, the curriculum was rated as being challenging and substantially accelerated. Their review is verified by the sustained record of achievement test scores which are significantly above national norms.

Realizing that children at each age level have unique interests, needs and abilities; the early childhood program was begun to provide the best preschool experience for young children. The curriculum introduces the concept that learning is fun and reinforces to each child that he or she can learn.

The lessons and activities are planned to utilize and enhance the developmental tasks of each age. The preschool class is designed for children who will be four-years-old by September 1 and the pre-kindergarten class is for children five-years-old by December 1.

Due to the level of learning in the kindergarten class, a developmental test is required for all students to ensure success in their initial academic endeavor.

Word of Life Academy cannot meet the educational needs of all children. It is a school offering a high quality of Christian training. It is not a correctional institution for problems arising beyond those usually encountered in Christian children.

Word of Life Academy is not equipped to meet the needs of delinquent and emotionally unstable children. Enrollment procedures require an interview with all prospective students and parents, pre-admissions tests and a careful review of all previous records before making a mutually beneficial decision to enroll and properly place all students.

The task of training our children to center their lives in Christ and outfitting them for the future is no less than our number one mission is live. Word of Life Academy stands ready to assist you in that all important responsibility. Classes are limited to 12 students in preschool classes and fifteen in elementary classes in order to ensure individualized attention.

Call the school office at 561-9103 to request an application package or to schedule an observation period.

Johnson

The adult choir of Kelview Heights Baptist Church will present a special musical drama for Easter, "Then Came Sunday." This exciting presentation expresses the hope that the Resurrection gives to all. The public is invited to enjoy this production at 9:00 a.m. or 10:30 a.m. on Sunday, April 15.

The church is located off North Big Spring Street at Scharbauer Drive. Child care will be provided.

The congregation will celebrate the 29th anniversary of Frank Johnson's Midland ministry on April 29.

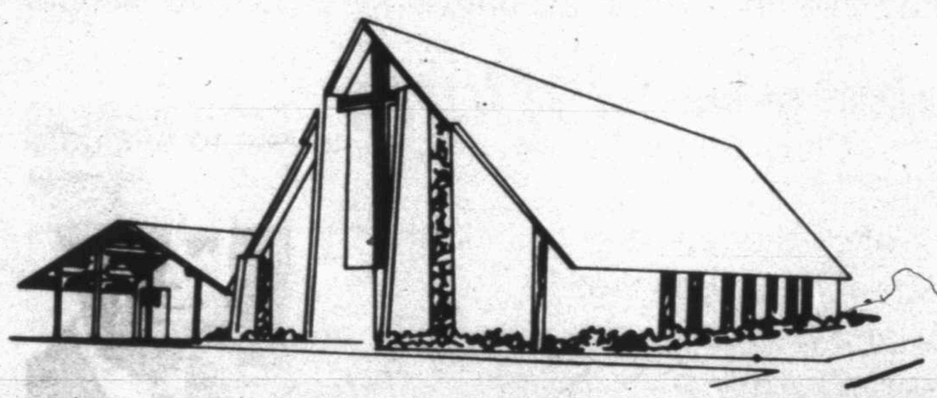

Since that beginning 25 years ago there have been thousands of people saved and multitudes that have turned toward the Lord. To accommodate the growth of the congregation, there have been many building additions, including a 30' by 70' auditorium, a 100' by 45' educational building, a 52' by 90' auditorium seating 600 and a 90' by 120' educational building.'

The present auditorium, which seats 1,100 was occupied in 1973. In 1979 the first building and the first auditorium were remodeled with 2,000 square feet added for a nursery.

In the spring of 1986 the newest addition was completed. It encompasses approximately 40,000 square feet of educational and office space, including the teen department which doubles as an activities room, housing volleyball and basketball facilities. It also houses a beautiful 5,000 square foot nursery with round, canopied cribs, and a drive-through entrance. Early in 1989 the auditorium was remodeled, providing excellent facilities for the Kelview Heights congregation.

Kelview Heights offers two morning church services at 10:00 a.m. and 11:00 a.m., with Sunday Schools meeting both hours. Evening services are Sundays at 6:30 p.m. and Wednesdays at 7:00 p.m.

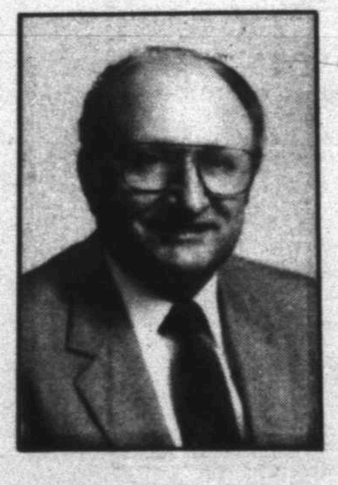

Throughout the week, Kelview has opportunities for involvement in children's choirs, AWANA clubs for children, ladies aerobics classes, volleyball and softball leagues, men's prayer breakfast and many other activities.

PART-TIME $$$$$ AVAILABLE

April 2 the Midland Reporter-Telegram became a morning newspaper instead of an afternoon newspaper. As a result we have several routes which need to be re-filled with qualified, responsible individuals. Due to this one-time large number of routes available, now is the best time ever to obtain a route in your area!

Often asked questions:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current carrier force is already 60% adult and 40% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
- ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a part time job and daycare, because as a carrier, you do not need daycare!
- COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- YOUTHS who are involved in afternoon school functions, but want to work!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $150 to $500 monthly! Some motor routes make even more, although currently none are expected to be available. Depending on your service record, you may qualify to move up to a motor route later!

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the route(s). Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many carriers choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Some collecting in person will be necessary though.

When do the papers have to be delivered by?

6:00 am Monday - Friday, and 7:00 am Saturday and Sunday.

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, carriers do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!
