Brotherhood Organized

The men of the First Baptist Church met Tuesday night and organized a Brotherhood which is composed of the men of the church. The officers elected were R. W. Alewine, pres.; Chas. Raina, 1st vice pres.; Rev. Truman Caldwell, 2nd vice pres.; Harrison Hall, sec.

We had an enjoyable social hour following our business. Sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee was served to 6 members and 5 visitors. We urge all men of the church to be present next meeting which will be Feb. 7.

Entertains

Mrs. Alva Simmons entertained Wednesday evening Jan. 11 with a bridge party honoring her sisters in law, Mrs. John Adamson of Turkey, Mrs. Ted Rhodes of Kansas City and Mrs. Ed Hooker who is moving to Memphis.

The hostess presented each of the honorees with a lovely gift, and also Miss Myrtle Reeves for winning high score.

A delicious salad course was served to the honorees, Mes. James Moffitt Payne, Thompson Ross Adamson, Moreman, Dishman Spalding, Kinslow, Dudley, Mitchell, Harmon, Reeves and McDougal and Misses Oley Watkins and Myrtle Reeves.

W. M. SOCIETY

The society met with Mrs. Masterson Jan. 16 at 7:30. A very pleasant evening was spent. The society will meet with Mrs. Cherry Jan. 23. The following program will be rendered:

Movements of Paul, (Acts 16) Mrs. Jones
How Paul was led to Philippi, Miss O. A. Cud

Women in the New Testament Mrs. Kendall
Old and new members are invited.

NOTICE

Friends and neighbors, when you come to Memphis please come around to see us at the Quality Hatchery. Baby chicks, feed store, produce and cream station. Located on South Main just behind the M. System store. We will appreciate your trade so much.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hooker

NOTICE

There will be a singing at the Nazarene Church at 2:30 Sunday afternoon. The president and vice president of the Donley county singers will be here, and numerous quartets from over the county are expected. You have a social invitation to be present.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Charlton D. (Shack) Messer of Memphis, on Sunday, Jan. 8, a fine 9 lb baby girl.

E. R. Hooker and family are moving this week to Memphis, where they will operate a feed store and produce, known as the Quality Hatchery. Hedley friends regret to lose them, but are glad that they are not moving very far away.

Lester Ellis has returned from a visit with his parents at Gilmer.

Miss Myrtle Reeves visited Mrs. Bill Ray in Clarendon Sunday and Monday.

Howard-Bell

Miss Alpha Bell and Ben Howard were married Saturday night at Clinton, Okla. Rev. Glat, Methodist minister, performed the ring ceremony. The bride was dressed in navy blue.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Bell of Clarendon, and is employed at Stabfield's dry goods store.

The groom is the son of Mrs. J. B. Howard and is employed at the McClellan dam.

They will make their home in McLean — McLean News.

The bride is a former Hedleyan and her many friends here will join us in extending congratulations and best wishes.

B. W. M. U.

The Baptist ladies met Monday with Mrs. Alewine in a Royal Service program.

Theme, the Great Commission. Leader, Mrs. Simmons. Devotional, during the will of God, leader.

The great commission and the cross, Mrs. Bain.

Hymn, Near the Cross. Prayer, Mrs. Caldwell.

The great commission and missions, Mrs. Cooper.

The great commission and the W. M. U., Mrs. Caldwell.

The great commission and personal service, Mrs. McQueen.

What shall this year be, leader. A delicious salad course was served to those present.

Mrs. John Matheson

Mrs. John Matheson of White Deer died on Jan. 11. She was a sister of Lee Read of Hedley, and had many friends over the Plains. She was true, kind and loving to her friends and neighbors and was a true Christian in the church at White Deer. A large crowd attended the funeral services and there were many beautiful floral offerings.

She is survived by her husband, 3 sons, Lon, Roy and Albert of White Deer, 2 grandchildren, 2 sisters, Mrs. Ella Banks of Gainesville and Mrs. P. D. Meadows of White Deer, 4 brothers, W. O. and Lee Read of Hedley, Noah of Big Spring and Lige of Cement, Okla.

May God's richest blessings rest on each and every one of you is our earnest prayer.

A relative

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dishman of Clarendon, Gene Dishman of McLean and Lake Dishman are visiting Bob Dishman in Kansas City.

Rev. M. E. Wells and son Fred and Rev. T. E. Caldwell attended the workers conference at Clarendon Tuesday.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

"Gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. It even pressed on my heart. A friend suggested Adialex. The first dose brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine, and never feel better."—Mrs. Jas. Miller.

Adialex acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels. Adialex gives your intestinal system a real cleansing, bringing out waste matter that may have caused GAS, BLOATING, sour stomach, heartburn, nervousness, and sleepless nights for months. You will be amazed at this almost instant relief. Just one spoonful usually relieves GAS and constipation. Adialex does not grip, is safe habit forming. Recommended by many doctors and druggists for 35 years.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Offers New Year's Resolutions Concerning Foods and Nutrition. Suggests How to Help Make Your Family Healthier and Happier

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

IT HAS been customary for a long time to mark the beginning of a new year with the ringing of bells, with merry-making, and with the hope expressed to one's friends that they will enjoy greater health, happiness and prosperity in the forthcoming twelve months.

Though greetings are usually exchanged in a spirit of gaiety, the occasion frequently does, as indeed it should, have an undercurrent of solemnity. For it is quite fitting that we should view the close of one year and the beginning of another as both an ending and a beginning, even though we recognize that life goes along in an unbroken stream.

The magic hour of midnight may well mark the end of certain of our mistakes, and the beginning of greater wisdom in acting, thinking, and living.

It seems to me that the week in which we celebrate New Year's is a particularly appropriate time for mothers to resolve to take stock of the progress of daily living that they have gained for their families; and it is necessary, to alter it so that even a member may gain a more generous share of well-being and contentment.

Questions for a Homemaker

I believe that every homemaker owes it to her family to pause for a few moments at this season to look back over the road that she and her family have traveled in recent months.

Have you taken advantage of the knowledge offered by modern nutritional science? Can you conscientiously say with conviction that you have given your husband and children all the different food elements that are necessary for buoyant, resistant health?

If you have grown as you should in the past year . . . and no homemaker who is doing a really first class job ever remains static; she moves with the times . . . then it is inevitable that there has been a gradual change in the character of the food that you have put on your table three times a day. But can you feel confident those meals have been right in every respect? Have they included the necessary protein, fats, carbohydrates? Have they included at least 12 minerals; the six known vitamins; and sufficient bulk or cellulose to help maintain regular health habits?

Time to Take Inventory

Do not be too discouraged if you cannot answer yes to all of these questions, because the chances are that many other homemakers may also find it necessary to give a partially negative answer. Mothers especially are busy people, and many of them feel that it is difficult to keep pace, as they would like to do, with the fast-moving science of nutrition.

Now, during this season which brings us the beginning of a new year, now is a time—after taking inventory of what you have or have not done—to look forward, to survey the road that lies ahead. Before every wife and mother hangs the curtain of the future that will be slowly drawn aside, revealing the destiny of herself, her husband and her children, as the future becomes the present, as tomorrow becomes today.

And as your loved ones travel the road of life, it is you who have it in your power to help them at tain strong vigorous bodies; alert, efficiently working minds.

Now is the time for you to determine to make the power of food their power, so that they shall not flag in their travels along the highway, but draw new strength for each day's journey every time they sit down at your table, sit down, as I have said before, to Life!

The Tremendous Power of Food

What they are going to be tomorrow is indeed influenced by what they eat today, for there never was a truer statement than that man is what he eats. And that does not mean that physical prowess and mental superiority may result only when the table is set with luxuries! On the contrary, malnutrition, which means not necessarily under-nutrition but improper nutrition, is found in the homes of the wealthy as well as in the homes of the underprivileged. The power of food is determined, not so much by what you spend, as by what you choose.

One need not spend a great deal for food to provide the milk and other dairy products, fruits and vegetables that should be consumed in abundance. There is always evaporated milk for those who do not care to buy bottled milk, or who prefer to use it as a supplement to bottled milk. And since large numbers of fruits and vegetables are now in season practically throughout the year, it is almost always possible to choose varieties of these mineral- and vitamin-bearing foods that are inexpensively priced.

Be It Resolved:

I should, therefore, like to urge every homemaker to make at least one New Year's resolution: to resolve that she will build her family diet in 1939 first of all around the protective foods, milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables.

It will be my privilege each week to help interpret for you the amazing discoveries of nutritional science; and to show how you can utilize the newer knowledge of nutrition to help increase the mental and physical efficiency of your family.

Together then, let us resolve to travel along the highroad of well-being in 1939.

Questions Answered

Mrs. K. Mc.N.—You should include at least two rich sources of each of the vitamins in your menus every day. It is also important to serve some raw food, as for example, a salad, in planning the diet of persons in normal health. Use fruits liberally and provide a pint of milk for each adult, a quart for every child, either as a beverage or in cooked dishes.

They're New and Different!

EACH of these new designs is a treasure trove of clever ideas. You'll enjoy making them, during long winter evenings to come, not only because they're so attractive when finished but because they're no trouble at all to do. Each pattern includes a detailed sew chart for the guidance of beginners, so you don't need experience. Just follow the easy, explicit directions, and see how quickly you'll have them finished.

Five-in-One-Dress Fashion. Just look at the different personalities this smart dress has—and every one of them is charming! You can make it as shown in the large sketch, with high neckline and sash. Also, as shown in the little sketches, either with a round collar or with turnback revers, with shawl collar and wraparound sash—or with high neckline, and beltless. The basic line is lovely. It has shrugged-shoulder sleeves, a softly gathered bodice, a doll-waistline cut high in the front, and a slim-hipped skirt. Silk crepe, velvet, thin wool or print are pretty materials for this.

Four-in-One Closet Set. A laundry bag, combing cape, hanger cover and a pair of pretty slippers comprise this gay closet set that you'll like as well for its looks as its usefulness. If you know any girls who are going back to college or boarding school, they'll love to have the set, or any one of the four pieces. Make them of chintz, cretonne, sateen or calico, in the gayest colors and prettiest patterns you can find.

The Patterns. No. 1597 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. With short sleeves, dress without collar or belt requires 3 3/4 yards of 39-inch material. With long sleeves, 4 1/4 yards. Specific requirements for collars, revers and belts appear on your pattern.

No. 1644 comes in one size—medium. Cape requires 1 1/2 yards of 36-inch material; 4 1/4 yards of binding; 1 1/4 yards ribbon for bows. Hanger requires 1/4 yard of 36-inch material, with 2 1/4 yards binding. Bag requires 1 yard, with 4 1/4 yards binding. Slippers require 1/2 yard, and 1/4 yard more to line. Purchase the soles and pom-poms.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1020, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Teen-Age Girl Outfitted In Garb of Modish Wools

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AFTER Yuletide holidays, so carefree and so joyous, then what? Ask the teen-age and the sub-deb, they know. It's back to school for them with an outfitting of new clothes. A dress, a coat and a suit as pictured give the correct answer. Starred for youthful simplicity and gay young charm, this season's smart wool costumes for the teen-age are ready to go places and do things with utmost chic and charm.

Fine, soft-textured wools, nicely adaptable to any occasion, and sturdy enough to take plenty of wear and tear, make gay little frocks, for classroom, sports and after-school wear as well as versatile action-built jacket-and-skirt costumes, nonchalant sports coats and formal fur-trimmed coats.

The lightweight wool frock for all-day wear is appearing this season in any number of attractive versions. Sheer wool crepe, fine wool flannel in its lovely glowing colors, soft rabbit-and-wool mixtures, intriguing novel weaves and the ever-popular wool knits are distinctively tailored in chic little frocks that are as flattering as they are correct.

The plaid dress with all-round pleated skirt is a school-girl favorite. The appropriately youthful gaiety of bright plaid is reflected in the winsome frock in the accompanying illustration. This youthful version of the classic shirtwaist type is of lightweight wool in a gaily colorful plaid, accenting a bold red with navy and white. The smart buttons and belt are navy leather. Short sleeves are pulled on for flattening shoulder effect.

Important in the teen-age wardrobe are the wool jacket-and-skirt suits designed for all-occasion wear. Correct for traveling, country, campus or town wear, they are distinguished by smart simplicity of line with accent on fabric and color. Fine wool tweeds in subdued or bright shades, smooth wool flannels, tailor-minded twills and worsteds are all favored for these versatile costumes which are designed to be worn with little silk blouses for dress or with sporting high-neck wool sweaters for casual wear. Pleats share honors with stitched gored constructions in built-for-action skirts. For the college-minded jacket-suit pictured a nubby wool tweed in soft rose-beige is used, with brown buttons and brown leather belt for smart contrast. The double pointed pockets are clever and decorative.

Costumes that contrast jacket to skirt have made a tremendous "hit." Suits are selling with two jackets, one matching the skirt, the other in a vivid plaid or stripe wool that picks up the color of the skirt.

Color is important in the soft wool fleeces and sturdy tweeds are used for tailored all-purpose coats for the younger set. Luscious wine shades and rich greens vie for popularity with the traditional neutral shades. Deep browns are good and navy is still popular. Styles vary from the comfortable and correct polo coat type single breasted and belted, to the boxy swagger or the high-buttoned semi-fitted reefer type. The fleecy coat pictured has a high-rolled wolf collar worn well up to show the squared shoulder line of the sleeves. A leather belt and the large buttons are in dark brown to contrast the deep green of the coat. The teen-age girl's wardrobe will not be complete unless it includes a jaunty tip-tilted feathered hat together with a youthful plaid flannel dress as pictured in the inset below. The blouse is enlivened with shining starlike buttons by La Mode and a pert sharkskin Peter Pan collar and cuff set.

Crochet Ensemble

Winter fun for a young lady will be just so much more exhilarating if she is dressed for her sports in this smart playtime outfit. This perky knitted and crocheted hat-scarf-glove ensemble is warm to wear and eye-appealing to behold. This set is worked in white german-town wool with a dashing trim in two contrasting colors. The gloves are done in a bold vertical ribbing effect.

Brown Takes Lead In Late Fashions

Brown, despite annual predictions to the contrary, this year made a sweeping campaign in the fashion collection and, if the forecast holds good, a large part of feminine wardrobes this winter will be made up of dresses, coats and suits in some shade of brown.

The darker color range includes, first of all, those rather indefinable brown tones that remind one of wine dregs or deep mahogany tones. Quite different are the deep brown costumes which, if made in velvet or downy wool fabrics, can hardly be distinguished from black.

Bolero Theme in New Silhouette

A new departure in the bolero theme is the very short dress top that pulls on over the head like a sweater. It is, as a matter of fact, of bolero inspiration except that it is closed up the front instead of left open jacket fashion. The beauty of this new fashion is that it has a tendency to slenderize the waistline below, giving width at the top of the figure and extending out at bustline. Some of these new pull-on boleros are prettily braided and embroidered.

Lingerie Note

There is a definite trend toward high necklines and short sleeves in lingerie.

Real Stuff

Actor—I must insist upon having real food in the banquet scene. Manager (fed up)—Just as you like, but then you will have to have real poison in the death scene.

The boss to his secretary: "Now, Miss Jones, be careful when you write to Messrs. Griftons. Don't lose my temper!"

Yes, That's It

The prospective customer entered the art shop.

"I want to see some of those pictures that are done by scratching," he said.

The assistant thought a moment, and then his face lighted up. "Oh," he said, "you mean itchy-ings."

STUCK

Mr. Rabbit—Good morning, Miss Hedgehog, going to the ball tonight?

Miss Hedgehog—No, none of the boys will ever dance with me.

Family Man

Joan—Elsie, may I introduce my cousin?

Elsie—How interesting! Last week he was my cousin.

Covering Question

"How old are you, sonny?" asked the inquisitive old man of the little boy on the beach.

"Six," came the reply.

"Six," echoed the old man, "and you are not as tall as my umbrella."

The boy drew himself up to his full height. "How old is your umbrella?" he asked.—Stray Stories.

The Better Show

At the theater last week, a woman wearing one of those creations known as the latest thing in hats seated herself in front of Jim. Suddenly she bethought herself and, turning round, said: "Pardon me, sir, but if my hat is interfering with your seeing the comedy, I'll take it off."

"Please don't, madam," replied Jim. "The hat's much funnier."

AROUND the HOUSE Items of Interest to the Housewife

Cleaning Burnt Pans.—Burnt saucepans can be made bright again with scouring. Sprinkle the burn with salt, leaving it for some hours and then wash, rubbing the burn gently. Unless the burn has actually eaten into the surface of the pan it will come away with the salt.

Drying Fur Garments.—Damp fur garments should be dried in a cool current of air, never near a radiator or other source of heat.

A Dyeing Help.—The household washer is ideal for dyeing curtains, drapes and other articles made of fabrics that can be colored without dyes that do not require boiling. You can let the washer run until the articles are sufficiently wet and evenly colored.

Fire Hazard.—The basement is one of the chief danger places in the house from the fire standpoint. It should be kept free from accumulations of inflammable materials such as paper, old boxes, oily and paint-soaked rags, and trash.

How to Buy Spices.—In buying spices choose the smaller packages, for spice must be replaced often as the essential oils evaporate. Don't allow your spice to waste its sweetness on the air. Keep cans and jars tightly closed. If your gingerbread has not been up to par, if your pickled peaches are flat, the answer probably is in the spice jar.

Color for Foods.—Grated raw carrots give cabbage salad added color and flavor. Minced green peppers or pimientos will do the same for creamed potatoes, turnips, cauliflower, lima beans or corn.

Safeguarding the Baby.—Inspect baby's toys before putting them in his crib or pen to be sure there are no loose fragments, such as eyes, buttons, bits of wood, etc., that might be pulled off and swallowed.

Storing Steel Articles.—Put a lump of freshly burned lime in the drawer or box when storing away steel articles and it will prevent them from rusting.

The District Attorney's words in his closing argument came back to Phil in burning phrases:

"He decided to kill her. How do we know? Because he stole his son's revolver. If he wanted to carry a weapon for any legitimate purpose, he, a man of standing, would have asked for and would have received a permit; he would have bought a modern pistol, compact, easily carried, effective. Instead, knowing his son was away, knowing the absence of the gun would not be detected, knowing it was an old weapon that could not be traced, he chose to use that to commit the murder he had planned. He planned the murder, he arranged a pretext to explain his return to the office that night—the forgotten coffee-pot—in case he encountered someone on the way. He made an assignation with his victim. He met her there, he killed her, he staged a clumsy fake robbery . . ."

Phil's thoughts ran over and over the same words; and Linda suddenly was beside him. He had not heard her come. She said nothing; only took her stand there firmly, her arm through his, her eyes straight ahead.

He said at last, "Funny, but I feel better, now that it's over."

"Soon be spring," she murmured. He exclaimed, surprised: "Queer you should say that. It's just what I was thinking."

"I know! People get to be that way, knowing each other's thoughts, sometimes." She added: "Barbara seems better. But I saw you from the window, so I came down."

He told her what Doctor Maiton had said. "And he wants someone to sit with her, talk to her," he explained. "You or me."

"I can't stay for lunch," she confessed. "But I'll come and be with her this afternoon."

Phil and his mother had lunch together, and at first they were silent, but at last she said:

"Phil, I've been meaning to speak to you. There is something we shall have to decide. You and I. You, really." And she explained Mr. Loran's demand for the dissolution of the partnership.

Phil tried to focus his thoughts on this new problem. "Shall we sell?" he suggested; and he said, with a sort of shudder: "I told Eli to sell the roadster—and give up the number plates. I want to get rid of everything."

"I understand, Phil. But—will you want to go back to college in the fall?"

He shook his head. "No. I never want to see the fellows I used to know."

"You must do something, son!"

"Why must I? We've plenty of money."

"Plenty," she agreed. "But—just spending money is not enough to make a life out of. Playing, killing time, making a business out of sport, no man can be content with that. I won't have you do that, Phil."

"I can't go back to college. Oh, I could, but it would mean leaving you alone here." He realized with a faint surprise that the thought of leaving their home was not to be considered. Their roots were here, roots deeply grown. His mother would stay here. "I want to be with you, mother."

"I'm afraid I shall need you," she agreed; and he saw her shiver uncontrollably, and she waited a moment before going on. "Of course," she said, "the first thing is to appeal; to use every possible means to save him. That may take a long time. I don't know much about such things. Mr. Falkran can tell us. But after that is over, I shall need you. I'll try not to be selfish. I hope as long as there are things I must do, I can keep going. But when the time comes that there is no more for me to do—" She smiled pitifully. "You'll have to pick up the pieces of me and put me back together again."

"I'll be here, mother. But I'll always need you more than you need me."

"But you must have work, Phil. So I think we should buy out Mr. Loran, let you take over down there."

"I don't know anything about the business."

"Good! You will have to work so much the harder. That is what you need." And she said: "Think about it, Phil. You have time. It need not be decided yet a while."

They did not speak again of his father until they left the table. Then, she asked in a low tone: "Phil, what did the Judge—" She hesitated, said at last, "Phil, when?"

He told her, hoarsely, "The week of July 1."

She said quietly: "That seems—very soon." Then she hesitated, turned away from him up the stairs.

Professor Brace came in that afternoon. It was a long time since he had called at the house. Mrs. SENTRY was resting, and Phil, who was sitting with Linda and Barbara, went down to speak to the professor. He had gone out of the courtroom to overtake the other man, the day Brace testified, and as his mother directed had assured the professor that they did not resent his testimony; but Brace said now:

"I ventured to call, Phil. Your assurance the other day . . . And I must ask about Barbara."

"Doctor Maiton says she's better."

"Does she know about my testimony?"

"No. We haven't told her anything much about the trial."

Brace said, half to himself: "I shall have to tell her, when she is better."

Phil protested: "Oh, don't, Mac! Let her forget the whole thing."

Brace shook his head. "I want everything open and above board between Barbara and me. I think a lot of her, Phil."

Phil nodded awkwardly. "Sure," he agreed. "But that's no reason you have to—rake this all up again. It's all the more reason for letting her forget it if she can."

"I want to—to build a life together for Barbara and me. But didn't dare!" And Dan pointed out, "You heard him, yourself, in his closing argument!"

"But why didn't Mr. Flood cross-examine her?"

"He knew they had a conviction without crucifying her."

Phil nodded. "Falkran wants to see mother about an appeal," he said. "I told him to wait a few days."

Dan hesitated. "Phil, if you appeal, you'll only drag this thing out. He hasn't a chance in the end. The State leaned backward to give your father every break."

"I still believe him, believe it was an accident."

Dan did not argue. "Can I see Barbara?" he asked.

So they went upstairs. Barbara's eyes met them in the door, held fast to Dan's. Dan took her limp hand, spoke to her; but Barbara made no sound.

"Shucks," Dan urged cheerfully, "you don't have to keep that up, Barb! He told her gently: 'It's all right. They won't ask you any questions now. You can get your voice back any time.'"

She turned toward him in a sudden and Linda were forgotten; and Linda touched Phil's arm, drew him away. They went out into the hall, away from the door. Low murmurs came to them.

Linda whispered: "She's so sweet, Phil. And Dan's fine!"

Phil said huskily: "Is she—does she love him? Or is it just—"

"Stupid!" she said, smilingly.

After a little, Dan came to them.

"She went to sleep," he said in a low tone. "In my arms." His eyes were wondering, as if he had seen a miracle.

"She didn't wake when I put her down." He looked at Phil, at once apologetic and defiant.

"She's so little, and hurt, and soft, and sweet."

Phil nodded. "It's all right, Dan," he said, then thought of his mother and amended, "At least it's all right with me."

Linda said: "Stay with her, Phil. Dan, walk home with me!"

So, together, these two departed; and outside the house, looking back, Linda said: "I'm glad, Dan. For both of you." She added, half-smiling, "I guess you know I wish Phil and I—"

Dan chuckled reassuringly. "I know. Don't worry. Give him time, Linda."

She asked huskily, "Did the Judge—"

"Yes," he said, in a low tone. "Usually the Court waits a few days before imposing sentence; but I think the Judge and District Attorney Flood thought it would be easier for them all here if he didn't have to come to court again." And he answered her half-uttered question. "The week of July 1. Unless they appeal."

"Will that do any good?"

"Just—delay, I'm afraid. Drag the thing out. Falkran hasn't got a single good exception. Flood leaned backward to be fair."

"It won't—save him?" He shook his head; and she cried: "Then I hope they don't! Oh, I wish it were tomorrow!" And she whispered penitently: "I shouldn't say that! Wishing him dead!"

He said: "Dying's nothing. I've got a friend, a doctor, and he says there's nothing to it. You just close your eyes and die, that's all. It's living that's hard. Mr. SENTRY will be out of it, but they'll never be out of it, Lin." And he said explosively, rebelling at his own just-uttered words: "Yes they will! I'm going to get Barbara out of it if I have to—kidnap her." They walked in silence for a little, and he said: "They ought all to go away, change their names and take a trip, go around the world. Plan to be in China or somewhere when—by July."

"Oh, no!" Linda protested, near tears. "No! Don't let them go away. I have to be with Phil."

He squeezed her arm. "You know, Miss Dane, your brother Joe picked himself out a pretty good egg for a sister, if anybody should call you up to inquire."

She laughed tremulously, said then, "Besides, no matter where they went, someone would be sure to recognize them."

"I doubt it," he declared.

"There's nothing so dead as yesterday's story. Inside of a month there won't be a line about the Sentries in any paper in town."

"They were come to her door. 'Think so, really?'"

"Sure! Newspaper stories are like the bumps a baby gets when he falls downstairs. They hurt for a while, but they're forgotten mighty quick."

"When you bring me a paper with nothing in it about them, I'll have it framed," she promised.

"That's a bet!"

"He Knew They Had a Conviction Without Crucifying Her."

not on a foundation of lies and concealments."

"You're too darned—conscientious, or something. You had to do it. You were as helpless as the rest of us. But why not forget it?"

"When can she see me, do you think?"

"Anytime, I suppose. But darn it, Mac, if you're going to get her all worked up—"

"No, I'll wait till she's herself again," the other promised.

When Professor Brace was gone, Phil returned upstairs, told Linda in whispers what the other had said.

She said, vehemently: "Oh, he's always so—positive, and virtuous, isn't he, Phil? I think it's better to—bend a little sometimes; not be so stiffly good all the time."

She stayed for dinner. Mrs. SENTRY went early to bed, and Phil and Linda were with Barbara when the doorbell rang. Phil went down and admitted Dan; and Dan started to speak, then checked himself.

"You all right, Phil?" he asked in a low tone.

"Sure!"

"You look—different, changed."

Phil said gropingly, "Well, something's changed, I guess." He tried to explain. "Did you ever swim in a fast river, Dan? A strong current, with stuff drifting in it? You seem to be standing still, because the drift around you isn't moving. But if you look at the banks, they're racing past. See what I mean?"

Dan nodded briefly, and Phil said: "It's been like that, these last months. As though we were all standing still—and yet racing, past something. Or maybe—toward something."

"And it's—different now?"

"Yes. Now I sort of feel as if I was—running under my own power again. Instead of just—drifting, I'm—going somewhere."

Dan nodded. "I know what you mean. How's Barbara?"

Phil said: "Better, I think. I'm sure she is. She's sure father didn't do it, you know."

Dan made a rueful gesture. "How's your mother?"

"Asleep," Phil said. "Or at least she's gone to bed. She's sort of—caved in." And he asked: "Dan, why did Falkran put her on the stand and then not ask her anything?"

"He wanted to be able to say to the jury, 'SENTRY testified that his wife knew these things. I called Mrs. SENTRY as a witness, gave the District Attorney a chance to ask her whether that was true; but he didn't! Why not? Gentlemen, he den access of vigor, and her lips moved."

"Can't talk?" he asked. She shook her head. "Sure you can, Barb! Nobody's going to make you say anything you don't want to; but you can say anything you want to say." And he urged: "Listen, Phil and your mother have enough on their minds without having to worry about you. You don't want to make it harder for them, do you?"

Her face contorted grievously, and her eyes filled, Dan bent close and tenderly. "There, sweet," he whispered. "It's all right. You're going to be better in the morning, sure as sure. Don't let me bother you, my dear!"

Her hand caught his fingers against her cheek, held his hand pressed there. Her brimming eyes besought him. Then suddenly she was tugging at him, tugging at his arms, trying to lift herself into his arms. And Dan looked at Phil and then at Linda, and Linda saw his streaming brow.

He muttered: "Phil—" Then abruptly he caught Barbara in his arms, bending over her, pressing her close; and her arms were tight about his neck, and her cheek and then her lips pressed his, and Phil

Famed Orange Trees Grace Paris Summer; Brought Out From Versailles Winter Home

Although after the Commune of 1871 destroyed most of the buildings of the Tuileries, the surviving Imperial orangerie was turned into a picture gallery, that at Versailles, more closely associated with the kings of France, continued to perform its original function as the winter home for the orange trees in their enormous tubs, brought in each October from the Tuileries gardens in Paris, where they are on display each summer.

Mansart originally built it for Louis XIV, whose 600 orange trees were brought in the spring to line the broad paths of the palace gardens at his sumptuous galas.

There are not nearly so many as that today; but a few of those which are still there date back to the Grand Monarque, and more would do so if the prisoners whom the army of Versailles took when it was fighting the Paris Commune in 1871 had not been shut up in the orangerie, and had not used the wood of many of the orange trees to warm themselves.

These trees of Louis XIV, as well as many of the later ones which were grown at Versailles, are said all to have been cuttings from a famous and venerable ancestor, which ended its life in the same orangerie just before the beginning of the present century, at the almost incredible age of 473 years. The seed from which it sprang was sown in 1421 at Pampeluna by the wife of Charles II, king of Navarre, of which Pampeluna was then the capital.

Later, the little tree was given by a queen of Navarre to Anne of Brittany, and it afterward came into the possession of the mother of Francois I. He eventually took it to Fontainebleau, and called it "le grand Connetable."

When Louis XIV had his orangerie made, he moved it there, and gave it the new name of "le Grand Bourbon." Neither the fruit of this tree nor that of those which have sprung from its famous stock has ever been known to ripen.

April Once Had Only 29 Days

There was a time when April had only 29 days. That was before Julius Caesar made changes in the calendar not quite 2,000 years ago. Caesar found he had 10 extra days to pass around, and gave one to April.

- By Virginia Vale —

WHEN you see Walt Disney's new Technicolor short, "Mother Goose Goes to Hollywood," you'll have a lot of fun guessing the identity of the main characters. For Disney has caricatured Film-dom's greatest as Simple Simon, Old King Cole and other famous nursery rhyme favorites—and in nearly every instance the casting is perfect.

Whenever he wants to, Reginald Denny may visit at White Lodge, which was the girlhood home of Queen Mary of England, and where the duke of Windsor was born. The home of British royalty for 200 years, it is the house to which the present king, when he was duke of York, took his bride. White Lodge has been leased by Mrs. Reynolds Albertine, who is Denny's sister.

Incidentally Barbara Denny, daughter of the famous Reginald, is getting to be a big girl now. She is breaking into the movies by being stand-in for the Heather Angel.

Jack L'Amour's son is also getting somewhere in pictures. RKO has just signed him to a long-term contract. His most recent pictures are Westerns, but he's not worrying about being typed, as he did well in such pictures as "Gold Is Where You Find It" and "Stella Dallas" before he took to the wild West.

It begins to look as if Gary Cooper would never escape from playing historical characters, once he begins. At present he's making "The Last Frontier," but before long he'll be playing Abraham Lincoln; he's had photographs made, in make-up, and is delighted with the idea of playing the Great Emancipator (and should be better at it than the other movie actors who will probably tackle it).

Meanwhile General John, about to write his autobiography, is said to have stated that he'd like to see Cooper in the role of the hero if it is screened. As there is little, if any, resemblance between them, it must be that the General has always longed to look like a long-legged cowboy.

Lessons in government are to be made easy if other producers follow the example set by Warner Brothers. They're starring Pat O'Brien in a series of two-reelers on "What the Constitution Means to You."

You must put Nancy Kelly down on your list of youngsters who will be top-notchers in the movies by the time another year has passed. She's set for the only good feminine role in "Manley and Livingstone" (at least that's what this film of Darkest Africa is called now, but surely it will be changed) and as that will be one of Twentieth-Century-Fox's big numbers of 1939, her being chosen for the part is significant.

Another young girl who is rapidly carving out a career for herself is Jane Warren, whom you've heard on the Rudy Vallee hour. Rudy likes her voice, for she wouldn't be on the program—think that the most amazing thing about her is the fact that she had only about 15 months of vocal instruction, and practices only 30 minutes a day.

Any boy could do well in school if he had chances like this. Recently Peter Van Steeden's young son had to prepare a lesson which included some questions about Admiral Richard E. Byrd. He went to his father for help.

"Can't help you," said Van Steeden Sr., but Admiral Byrd is going to be on my 'For Men Only' program, come to the rehearsal with me and you can ask him those questions."

Young Van Steeden got the highest mark in his class the following day; now he's wishing that his father could introduce him to George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and the man who invented mathematics.

Make Stocking Case For Dresser Drawer

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS. THINGS that will have a ready sale at a fair or church bazaar; things that may be made quickly from odds and ends of material on hand; colorful, useful things for gifts—these are the requests that come in the mail.

Here is another suggestion that has stood the test of practical use—a flat case that holds six pairs of stockings. What a relief not to have them all mixed up with underwear and other things in dresser drawers.

This case may be made quickly on the sewing machine. A piece of cretonne or bright ticking or other cotton material of the dimensions given here, and about two yards of contrasting bias binding are the materials needed. The diagrams given here in the sketch, explain each step in cutting and making the case.

If a more elaborate case is desired, silk may be used with ribbon for the bindings. A quilted silk case of this type would make an exquisite gift. Machine quilting may be used for this purpose.

Be sure to clip and save these lessons as they are not in either Book 1 or 2. These books are full of still other useful ideas, with complete cutting and sewing directions for each item clearly illustrated. They save the price of many patterns and you will use them constantly for references and inspiration.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, has helped thousands of women to use odds and ends of materials and their spare time to make things to sell and to use. Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, is full of inspiration for every homemaker. These books make delightful gifts. Mrs. Spears will autograph them on request. Books are 25 cents each. Crazy-patch quilt leaflet is included free with every order for both books. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

Perhaps Guest Would Prefer Glass of Water

A new waitress at the cafe had been given strict instructions that she must do everything to please the customers and give them exactly what they wanted.

On her first morning a gentleman sat down and called for something to drink.

"Tea, coffee or milk, sir," asked the waitress.

"Tea, please."

"Will you take green or black, sir?"

The man decided on green.

"With cream or lemon, sir?"

"Cream," replied the guest, thinking that must be the end of the matter.

"Yes, sir. Jersey or Guernsey?"

ACHING COLDS

Relieve Their DISTRESS This Easy, Quick Way!

To bring speedy relief from the discomfort of chest colds, muscular rheumatic aches and pains due to colds—you need more than "just a salve"—use a stimulating "counter-irritant" like good old warming, soothing MUSTEROLE. It penetrates the surface skin breaking up local congestion and pain resulting from colds.

Even better than a mustard plaster—Musterole has been used by millions for over 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. In three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild) and Extra Strong, 40%. Approved by Good House-keeping Bureau. All druggists.

PHONE 29 when you know a New Item

A Telephone

Is no longer a luxury - - it is a necessity. For calling your grocer, butcher or doctor it is indispensable. And remember, one minute's emergency might pay a year's telephone bill.
