ZEPPELIN BATTLES STRONG WINDS

Grand Jury Files "Revised" Report Under Judge's Orders

ROOM CLEARED AS THORNTON TELLS WISHES

County Officials Decline to Reveal Cause of Action

12 TRUE BILLS VOTED

Officers Are Urged to Use Consideration in Fining Tourists

Reasonable consideration on the part of officers for tourists in minor traffic rule infractions was recommended in a "revised" report of the Wichita county grand jury to Judge E. G. Thornton in 30th district court late Thursday afternoon.

The revised report was delivered to Judge Thornton about an hour after the original list of recommendations was tendered by the jurors along with 12 indictments.

Courtroom Cleared

When Judge Thornton glanced over what was intended to be the final report of the investigators he ordered the courtroom cleared of all persons except members of the jury and remained with the jurors for several minutes. He later returned to the room to receive the report.

What the original report contained Judge Thornton declined to say, stating only that he had requested the jurors to make some "slight changes." He would not assign his reason for his orders for deletion of certain parts of the first report.

It had previously been announced the jury was investigating traffic arrests by precinct officers and alleged ill treatment of prisoners in the city jail. Whether the report dealt with these subjects could not be learned either from Judge Thornton, any member of the jury or from Dick Kenley, district attorney, all of whom remained silent.

John W. Bradley, forman of the grand jury, refused to discuss the revised report or any deletions that might have been made in the original.

"I haven't anything to say," Mr. Bradley declared when he was asked by a Record-News reporter if the original report contained anything about precinct arrests or alleged ill treatment of prisoners.

"Cause Talk," Says Judge

Practically the same reply to the same questions came from N. M. Clifford, a Wichita Falls member of the grand jury, who likewise re-

JOHN W. DAVIS ASKS ACTION

Rebuke of Mrs. Willebrandt Demanded by Speaker

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (UP)—John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for president in 1924, tonight called upon President Coolidge and Herbert Hoover to rebuke Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt for her "offending speeches, which have rightly shocked the nation."

"Public opinion waits with eagerness," Davis asserted, "for a rebuke of her action by her official superior, the president of the United States, or by the candidate in whose name she speaks."

The statement was made in the course of a stirring address which Davis delivered over the blue network of the National Broadcasting company, his voice reaching out to all sections of the country. His subject was "religion and politics" and his chief appeal was for religious liberty and civic equality.

Nation's Principles

"This is a time," Davis said, "when every man and woman should be willing to stand up and be counted for or against the principles of liberty on which this nation was founded, principles which have made her great and strong and free; united and happy at home, and respected abroad.

"I beseech my fellow countrymen, standing not in the darkness of the middle ages but in the sunlight of the 20th century, to put to themselves the question whether religious liberty and civic equality are to remain the birthright of all Americans, and their children's children after them, or the privilege of a chosen few. To put the question is to answer it."

Davis ridiculed the idea of a Roman Catholic political party in the United States, as suggested recently by a popular magazine, but asserted that such a thing would come only through persecution.

Grievance Unites

"Men do not cohere for long periods simply from sentiment or in the hope of common advantage," he said. "But there is a force that will tie them together with hoops of steel—a force whose binding power is beyond all human strength to loosen. It is the stern and bitter force of a common grievance based on the denial of a common right.

"As the Catholic mother bends over the cradle of her new-born son, think if you can what emotions will stir her breast when she is told that if she wishes him to rise to the highest place in the service of his country she must first teach him to forswear the faith in which he was born."

INDIANA LAW PROF. ELECTED LEGION HEAD

Paul V. McNutt Wins Post As Dark Horse in Final Session

DEFENSE BILL PASSES

Vets and Auxiliary Members Begin Exodus From San Antonio

By ROGER M. BUSFIELD

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 11 (US)—A 30-year-old professor of law will direct the American Legion during the next year.

He is Paul V. McNutt, of Bloomington, Ind., dean of the University of Indiana law school.

McNutt was a real dark horse. Hardly a handful of the delegates to the tenth annual national American Legion convention knew the name when they gathered for their final session today.

The final session was void of any oratorical fireworks. An outburst was anticipated when the resolution of the aeronautics committee endorsing the establishment of a single department of national defense with a separate bureau for aeronautics, by the government, was offered to the convention.

Bill Passes Quietly

Col. William Mitchell, deposed head of the United States army air service, was ready to champion the resolution if it met any opposition, but it was passed without a murmur of dissent.

The resoluition empowers the national commander to appoint a committee of five pilots to confer with the proper congressional committees relative to legislation establishing the department of national defense.

During the session a telegram was received from Commander Richard Byrd, now en route to the antarctic where he will head a scientific expedition. The message said: "We carry the American Legion banner with us into the antarctic."

The women's auxiliary of the American Legion also brought its 1928 meeting to a close late today and tonight they joined the exodus of Legionnaires to the four corners of the globe.

The parting cry was: "On to Louisville in 1929!"

Oklahoman Disappointed

When the convention started to select its commander for the coming year the name of Gen. Roy Hoffman was heard everywhere. The Oklahoman's campaign managers worked feverishly. It looked like Hoffman for 1929.

Balloting started. Hoffman led on the first ballot with 239 votes,

Man Finds Watch In Catfish's Gill Year After Loss

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 11 (UP)—The latest in 20th century fish stories was told here today by Dean Taylor, a devotee of the rod and reel and of veracity.

Here's Taylor's story—take it or leave it.

"A year ago I went fishing in the Chiskaskia river in Sumner county near Caldwell, Kan. I started down stream in a row boat and while I was baiting my line, the hook snagged on my watch which was jerked into the river. I thought my watch was lost forever. I went fishing at the same place yesterday and yanked out an eight-pound cat fish. I noticed an unusual protuberance from the gill. It was my watch and it was in good condition."

MELLON PLEADS FOR CONFIDENCE

Treasurer Lauds Hoover's Qualities

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (UP)—Secretary of Treasury Mellon, in a political radio address tonight, urged voters to support Herbert Hoover, Republican candidate for the presidency, because he is the man best "qualified to assume the burden of carrying on the government and of solving the problems which will arise in the next four years."

Mellon asked for continued confidence and support of the Republican party and reviewed its record of the last eight years as "unparalleled for constructive achievement."

"That the administration has made good its promise is best attested by the fact that today the finances of the government and of the country are in a sound condition," he said.

"Under the present administration, taxes have been materially lowered on four occasions. Expenditures have been cut. The public debt has been reduced so it is no longer a heavy burden on the taxpayers.

"The nation has been given the benefit of a protective tariff; and during the entire period the country has moved steadily forward, getting further and further away from unsettled conditions which prevailed in 1921, when the present Republican administration took office.

"In no other nation and at no other time in the history of the world have so many people enjoyed such a high degree of prosperity or maintained a standard of living comparable to that which prevails throughout this country today."

Mellon said that in some localities, some industries and some individuals have not shared equally in the prevailing prosperity and premised it would be the task of the government to lessen that inequality.

Loyal Democrats of Wichita county Thursday extended a "cordial invitation" to "everybody" to attend the Democratic rally Friday night at the Memorial auditorium, and hear the presidential qualifications of Gov. Alfred E. Smith discussed in open meeting.

"We want every Democrat to realize that this is a campaign to return a Democrat to the White House and to return Democracy to power in America."

Crowds in 'Solid South' Hail Smith By First Name as He Tours Dixie

Candidate's Train Passes Through Dozen Cities; Long Stops Made in Two State Capitals

GOVERNOR SMITH'S TRAIN EN ROUTE TO TENNESSEE, Oct. 11. (AP)—Hailed by large and enthusiastic crowds in nearly a dozen cities and towns along the route of his special train, Governor Smith today went into Virginia and North Carolina and brought to those traditionally Democratic "solid South" states the first personal campaign appeal of a presidential candidate in many years.

Making his second campaign tour in his fight for the nation's highest office, Governor Smith was given tumultuous welcomes by crowds along the way and in many places bands blended the tunes of "Dixie" and "The Sidewalks of New York."

Stops at Capitals

At the capitals of the two states, Richmond and Raleigh, the candidate made his longest stops, staying for more than a hour at each city.

Tomorrow Governor Smith will go into the border state of Tennessee, where he will make two stops, at Chattanooga and Nashville, state capital. During the trip between the Tennessee cities he will be carried back for a brief incursion into the "solid South," touching a town or two in Alabama.

Saturday he will invade another border state, Kentucky, where that

JUST FIVE MINUTES

HENDERSON, N. C., Oct. 11. (US)—Crossing the Potomac, the dividing line between the "cold bread and hot biscuit belt," Governor Smith was cheered by thousands of southerners today. In Richmond, Va., the old capital of the Confederacy, virtually the whole town turned out. The police estimated fully 150,000 hailed the Democratic nominee there.

"It took Grant four years to take Richmond but Al took it in five minutes," a ruddy faced copper drawled.

Only Colonel Lindbergh and Theodore Roosevelt ever received such a reception in Richmond as that accorded Governor Smith, according to the police.

AUSTIN, Oct. 11. (AP)—State capitol departments will be closed in observance of Columbus day.

HOOVER WORKS ON NEXT TALK

Nominee 'Hides Out' From Many Callers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (US)—Herbert Hoover went into seclusion today, denying himself to callers so that he could prepare his Boston and New York addresses in the presidential campaign.

While the Republican standard bearer was contemplating the outcome of the campaign with serenity and mapping his line of attack in the pivotal eastern battleground, his campaign manager, Dr. Hubert Work, was headed for Chicago for a series of conferences with western campaign leaders there.

It was the first day since the campaign got under way that Hoover "hid out" from the army of politicians beating a path to his personal headquarters. He spent the day in his home on S street, having orders that he be not disturbed.

At nightfall he had virtually completed the address on the tariff and foreign trade which he will deliver in Boston next Monday night. He had also mapped out the address he will deliver in Madison Square garden, New York City, on the night of October 22.

These two addresses will wind up his campaign in the East. All pressure of his party chieftains for him to expand his speaking program have failed to stir Hoover from his set program of a few speeches.

Hoover's campaign plans are being guarded with the utmost secrecy. Even the itinerary for his trip across the continent has not been divulged. The impression given by his aides was that he is letting events of the campaign shape themselves before he sets his final route westward.

The nominee often has said that his motto is "To do the day's work and let tomorrow take care of itself."

BIG DIRIGIBLE SIGHTED ALONG SPAIN'S COAST

Eckener Shifts Course to Avoid Encountering Mean Weather

WIND AFFECTS SPEED

King of Air Expected in U. S. on Sunday; Flight Across U. S. Hinted

Nearly 24 hours after leaving Friedrichshafen, Germany, the transatlantic airliner Graf Zeppelin was bucking strong head winds along the eastern coast of Spain and pushing south and west toward the straits of Gibraltar—and New York.

Early Friday the dirigible slipped past Castellon, Spain, and apparently headed for Valencia, about 50 miles farther down the Mediterranean coast line. There was a possibility that she might turn inland and cross the peninsula but indications were that Dr. Hugo Eckener, her commander, would drive the giant airship on down the Mediterranean coast to Gibraltar and thence out to sea.

It was estimated that she would reach Gibraltar about dawn Friday.

MADRID, Spain, Oct. 11. (UP)—The Graf Zeppelin had not been sighted at any point farther along the route than Castellon at 1 a. m., tonight, according to the available reports here. The dirigible was last reported at Castellon at midnight. No interior or coastal cities had reported sighting her later, and it was believed she was proceeding slowly down the coast to Valencia.

CASTELLON, Spain, Oct. 12 (Friday). (UP)—The transatlantic dirigible Graf Zeppelin was sighted here at midnight.

The progress of the Graf Zeppelin down the coast of Spain was far slower than had been anticipated. The big aircraft was expected to reach Valencia, 50 miles farther down the coast before midnight, but it was not until that hour that the dirigible passed over this city.

The dirigible had covered only 150 miles from Barcelona to Castellon in five hours.

By CONRADO MALUENDA

BARCELONA, Spain, Oct. 11. (UP)—Racing out of the dusk of a Mediterranean twilight, the transatlantic dirigible Graf Zeppelin which left Friedrichshafen, Germany, at 7:51 a. m., passed over Barcelona at 6:49 p. m., and soared on down the coastline toward Valencia, en route to New York.

She passed over Tarragona at 8:30 p. m., apparently headed toward Gibraltar and the Atlantic ocean, advices from that city reported.

The largest aircraft ever built appeared here suddenly because of the fast approaching twilight. She was sighted over Mataro, in the suburbs, at 6:30 p. m., and 19 minutes later passed over the Columbus monument, which rises 200 feet above the city, and from which the United Press correspondent was watching her progress. She was at a moderate height over the city.

Excited Crowd Cheers

In the streets of Barcelona an excited crowd, which increased as the big dirigible approached, cheered and shouted as the Graf Zeppelin glided overhead. The two white lights on the forward pilot's cabin were gleaming brightly but the lights apparently had not been turned on in the cabins and lounges where 20 passengers—one woman—and 40 members of the crew were watching the scene below.

The Graf Zeppelin apparently was

Episcopal Bishops Approve Healing By Faith in Ratifying New Prayer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (UP)—The Protestant Episcopal church convention placed its stamp of approval on sacramental healing today when the house of bishops ratified a new prayer to be used in the anointing of the sick.

Sacramental healing is not a new practice in the church but the action today was the first providing for a service in the prayer book.

Eighty-eight bishops out of 115 voted adoption of the prayer, which is as follows:

"I anoint thee with oil (lay my hand upon thee) in the name of the Father, and the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, beseeching the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, that all thy pain and sickness of body being put to flight, the blessing of health may be restored to thee. Amen."

This prayer was ratified. It was explained so "when any sick person shall in humble faith desire the ministry of healing through anointing or laying on of hands, the minister may use such portion of the office as he shall think fit and use the prayer."

A recommended change in the wedding ceremony providing for a new prayer for blessing the ring was disapproved, receiving only 57 votes.

Winter Winds Delay Arrival Here Despite Rocky Mountain Snows

Old Man Winter may have actually arrived in Denver Thursday, but it was a windy bluff that reached as far south as Wichita Falls, reports from train dispatchers of the various railroads indicated.

Reports early in the day that a cold blast was hovering over the Panhandle near Amarillo were unconfirmed by railroad officials here. The Fort Werth and Denver office, which keeps in telegraphic contact with points as far north as Childress, said weather conditions in the latter place were virtually the same as here.

While the temperature kept its regular pace at about 87 degrees most of the day, a stiff south wind, reaching sometimes a velocity of 18 miles per hour, gave the feeling that winter was here. North of here the wind reached greater velocity, and many tourists reported they had difficulty in keeping their cars on the road.

In all points along the Wichita Valley railroad this same hard wind was felt. Skies were partly cloudy, the dispatcher for that railroad reported. A slight rain was reported at Dodsonville, 120 miles northwest of here, by the Katy dispatcher.

However far off the approach of winter seemed Thursday, Associated Press dispatches said the Rocky mountain region was in the middle of a snow storm, and indications were that it may penetrate southward rapidly.

RATE PARITY HEARING OPENS

Commission Reviews Cases At Galveston

GALVESTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—A further plea for retention of the rate parity existing between south Atlantic ports and Gulf ports on traffic moving from New York and eastern seaboard territory to states in the west and southwest, was made today by S. M. Stevenson of Roanoke, Va., assistant freight traffic manager of the Norfolk and Western railroad at the Interstate Commerce Commission rehearing of the consolidated southwestern cases before Examiner Charles M. Bardwell.

Stevenson in his direct testimony went into a complete history of combination ocean and rail rates and all rail rates from eastern seaboard territory to the west and southwest, and cited a number of rate wars waged by competitive coastwise steamship lines an an effort to retain business.

William Simmons, traffic manager for the Southern Pacific, was to take the stand later for cross examination. He offered direct testimony in the New York hearing on Sept. 17.

Shippers to Testify

Representatives of various coastwise lines and supporting railroads will complete their testimony, after which Gulf port organizations representing shippers, will have their turn. In the main, the Gulf ports are supporting the coastwise lines for a modification of a recent order of the commission to the extent of enabling them to compete for business without inflicting hardships on interior shippers.

Stevenson's contention for a freight rate parity via the Atlantic and Gulf ports to Oklahoma and Arkansas supported that of officials of the St. Louis and San Francisco railroad and coastwise steamships presented yesterday. The Roanoke rail man, however, went a step further and urged that the existing parity be continued on commodities moving to points in Colorado.

Mr. Stevenson gave a number of illustrations of rates that had been applied by the coastwise lines to given points in the rate wars, and cited findings made in the cases by arbitrators.

Objection Raised

Objection to this testimony was raised by G. H. Muckley, attorney for the Morgan Steamship line, on the grounds that the findings had not been made by a legally constituted group. Examiner Bardwell sustained the objection.

Muckley cross-examined the witness at some length on the handling of package car shipments via the rail and steamship lines serving both the Gulf and south Atlantic ports.

Asked why a rail-water line should enjoy a differential under the all-rail route, Stevension said by reason of certain disabilities in the nature of "slower time and handling."

Muckley drew from the witness the admission that the time element entering into the handling of freight "was not the controlling element."

Political Spotlight Now Brightens Race for Smith's Position

Interest in the New York gubernatorial election is encroaching to some extent on the national campaign, which the state fight is expected to influence. Albert Ottinger (left), state attorney general, is Republican nominee to succeed Governor Smith, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat, is his party's choice.

By WILLIAM F. BROOKS

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 11. (AP)—A few stray beams from the political spotlight focused upon Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York fall full upon the gubernatorial chair he has occupied for eight years and the public is asking what manner of man will step into it when the dynamic nominee for the presidency steps out.

Neither Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee for governor, of New York, nor Albert Ottinger, the Republican choice, is at all similar to Smith, yet both have certain characteristics which coincide with those of the incumbent.

Ottinger is a bachelor, short, stocky and dark. He is a perfect host. He likes company. He likes bridge and collects rare prints, drawings and etchings. He is fond of the opera and is an ardent follower of boxing. His political reputation was made as the friend of the small investor, as the enemy of swindlers, loan sharks, bucket shops and such. He was the only Republican to survive the Smith landslide in 1926.

As a youth, Ottinger began his political career in one of the Bronx districts in New York city. He rose to be district leader, and went through a half dozen or more stiff fights. In 1914 he was defeated for congress, but in 1916 he was elected to the state senate from a district that has always been Democratic. When Harding became president he appointed Ottinger assistant attorney general and he held this post until 1924 when he resigned to accept the nomination for attorney general of New York. He was the beginner of a successful fight for the installation of mechanical vote tabulating machines in New York city.

Roosevelt began his political career in the New York state senate. Fresh from Harvard and Columbia law school, he jumped into the political maelstrom in 1910 and won his seat from a Dutchess county district that had been Republican for 28 years.

In his new office he began to fling defiance at Tammany Hall and its leader, the late Charles F. Murphy. The issue was the election of a United States senator. Murphy wanted William F. Sheehan. Roosevelt was backing James A. O'Gorman. O'Gorman won and the youthful state senator became a marked man in New York politics.

Because of his championing of Woodrow Wilson in 1912 in New York, Roosevelt was appointed assistant secretary of navy in March, 1913. He went to Washington—one of the youngest men ever chosen for such a post—and carved a name for himself there by his strenuous activity. Built like a football player, with a chiseled square jaw, laughing blue eyes, and curling light hair, he gave himself fully to the task in hand. Until 1920, he held this post. That year he was selected vice presidential nominee by the Democratic party and went down before the Harding landslide.

Four years later he was stricken with infantile paralysis; it appeared the disease would bar him from further public activity; but at both the New York and Houston national conventions, he hobbled to the speakers' stand and gave the delegates the name of his friend, Alfred E. Smith, for president.

For the last four years, Roosevelt has been experimenting at Warm Springs, Ga., and by swimming and other exercises has overcome his old paralysis to a large extent.

Like Smith, Roosevelt is the father of five children. He is interested in various social activities and is an ardent supporter of the Boy Scout movement.

Both candidates are important factors in the national campaign, for upon their personal popularity may depend the column in which New York's electoral votes are found after election day.

HORAN OUSTED BY PRESS ASS'N.

Beleagured Journalist Goes To Belgium

PARIS, Oct. 11 (AP).—Harold Horan, correspondent of the New York American, who was requested to leave France by the French authorities because of his connection with the publication of a French diplomatic memorandum on the Anglo-French naval accord, was expelled from membership in the Anglo-American Press association today by a committee which investigated the case.

The association previously had requested the French authorities to postpone Horan's expulsion until the matter could be threshed out. The reason given by the committee for expelling him from the press association was that he was "on various counts guilty of unprofessional conduct."

Horan left Paris by automobile last night for Belgium. Brussels dispatches said that he had arrived there today and called at the American embassy.

Huffman, head of the state board of administration, today announced that state authorities are planning to make extensive use of the law to help in improving the condition of mentally afflicted state charges and also to end propagation of the unfit.

Second Dredger Starts Drainage Project Work

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Oct. 11.—A second dredger was unloaded last week and driven to the Deep Red drainage project where it immediately started to work. The machine is similar to the large Koehning used on the north channel except it is of smaller capacity. This dredger has a yard capacity as compared to a yard-and-a-half capacity of the larger.

Number two dredger was started at work near the east county line, where the main channel left off, and will follow Little Red channel, south to Deep Red creek, west to the line of the project.

Divorces Increase While Marriages Slump, U. S. Report Shows

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (UB)—Divorces are increasing, marriages decreasing.

This condition of love affairs was made known by the commerce department today after a survey of many states.

Illinois, the latest on the the list, showed an increase of divorces of 6.1 per cent last year over 1926. Marriages dropped 2.8 per cent.

The figures showed 80,222 marriages in that state last year compared with 82,529 in 1926 and 14,984 divorces compared with 14,125 in 1926.

Death May Close Trial for Murder

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11. (INS)—Death threatened to intervene today and close the investigation of the murder of Miss Marie Young, 21-year-old telephone operator who was stabbed to death Tuesday night by her fiance, Glenn Jenkins, 20-year-old former high school student.

Jenkins, who drove through the city's streets with the body of his intended bride at his side, finally stopped at a police station, where he swallowed poison before confessing he had stabbed the girl to death with a butcher knife he had purchased for the purpose. His suicide attempt, however, was unsuccessful and 12 hours later he tried again to end his life by plunging from a cell balcony in police headquarters to the jail corridor, 18 feet below.

In this attempt Jenkins suffered a fractured skull and has been unconscious since 7:15 o'clock yesterday morning. Toady physicians at the general hospital held little hope for his recovery.

TAXI DRIVER HELD FOR QUIZ

Tells Story of Driving Bandit-Passenger

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Oct. 11. (UP)—Police today were holding Lewis Avritt, 24, Amarillo taxicab driver, pending communication with Amarillo authorities in connection with a strange story related by the driver.

Avritt, slight of build, about five feet two, told Patrolman Oden Dolan, following his arrest, that he had been forced at the point of a revolver to drive a fare for two months from Mexico through the Rio Grande valley and over South Texas.

Officers are seeking to locate the passenger, whose name, Avritt declared, is McCaleb, said to have a police record at Amarillo and at Colorado Springs.

"He poked a gun into my side and told me to drive," Avritt declared.

"That was in San Angelo two months ago. We went everywhere. McCaleb told me officers were looking for him. He was afraid to stop."

The taxicab in which he came to Corpus Christi has been identified as one driven from Amarillo Aug. 8, and later reported stolen.

Alabama Women's League Scores Dr. Straton's Address as Vile

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 11. (UP)—Declaring that Dr. John Roach Straton used "similes which were indecent and unnecessary," and other language unfit for the ears of a mixed audience, particularly one with so large a representation of children," the executive committee of the Alabama Women's League for White Supremacy roundly scored the doctor's address today.

The league committee met Tuesday. They issued a statement through Mrs. Mabel Jones West today which said in part:

"We wish as an organization of southern women to protest the use of unnecessary and vile language and similes before a mixed audience in political campaigns or out of them, such as the language used by Dr. John Roach Straton."

The statement further rapped at Straton's alleged discussion of New York's red light district and other similes.

Hoover's Home Town in Demo Ranks

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 11. (UP) Herbert Hoover is not exactly as badly off as the Biblical prophet, but his own country, the San Francisco district, shows many signs of going for Governor Smith.

Hoover is expected by most judges of California politics to carry the state by at least 250,000, but some Republicans have told the United Press correspondent they expect Smith to carry San Francisco by 20,000 despite the fact that the Republican candidate is a neighbor, Palo Alto being practically a suburb.

There are almost two Californias. The north is not much more like the south than Charleston, S. C., is like Boston, Mass. There is no reason why they should be, for the southern line of California is on the same latitude as Charleston, and the northern line of the state is almost on the same latitude as Boston. It is almost as far from one end of the state to the other as from Washington, D. C., to Kansas City. You could put New York, Ohio, New Jersey, Delaware and the six New England states inside of California and still have room for several hundred thousand more retired farmers from Iowa.

The southern capital of California is Los Angeles, the northern capital, San Francisco. They are as different as New York and Birmingham, Ala. San Francisco is practically half Catholic, it has many foreigners, and is the wettest city west of New York. In the Italian district every home has its wine-vat until even the streets smell of the fermenting juice of the grape. It is natural Smith should be strong here. Senator Robinson's speech here is expected to increase the optimism of the Democrats if that is possible. Democratic headquarters are bustling with activity. There is more calm assurance, however, in the more palatial Republican suites in the Palace hotel.

Senator Hiram Johnson is as necessary in any picture of California politics as a slice of ham to the western breakfast. Nobody ever thought Johnson would live to take the stump for Hoover. Next to Jim Reed, Johnson has in the past been one of the nation's most noted Hoover-haters. But last spring, when Hoover wanted California's endorsement for the presidential nomination and when Johnson wanted the state's endorsement for another term in the senate, they made a peace of a sort—more properly an armistice, perhaps. A good deal of tooth gritting is involved and it has some humorous aspects, but Johnson and Hoover are playing the game like practical men.

However, Johnson apparently is not able to deliver his following for Hoover. The powerful McClatchy papers in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, which converge at the Golden Gate, long-time Johnson supporters, are for Smith. They are causing some dissatisfaction in central California, to put it no stronger than Republicans themselves do. Johnson and his ally, Gov. C. C. Young, have just lost control of the state Republican organization, but it means nothing for the moment.

Debs Wear Aprons for Hoover

Chicago debutantes revived the war aprons to form clubs for Herbert Hoover. The idea was circulated by Republican campaigners. In picture Elinor Durbin, sophomore at Vassar, Betty Frey, also of Vassar, and Rosemary Baur, daughter of Mrs. Jacob Baur, Illinois Republican national committeewoman, a freshman at Bryn Mawr.

Woman Liberal Rebuked by Jury's Findings in $4,000 Libel Action

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Oct. 11. (UP)—Two suits, the outgrowth of a woman's charge that certain prominent liberals were "playing the communistic game," were ended today but the village comment and interest carried on.

Some months ago Mrs. Helen Brumley Baldwin wrote the Boonton, N. J., Times-Bulletin protesting against the appearance of Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, Boston pacifist, in the pulpit of a Mountain Lakes church. She charged Mrs. Mead, the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, Oswald Garrison Villard, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and others were "playing the communistic game."

The Rev. William H. Bridges of Boonton replied in a letter to the same newspaper and said Mrs. Baldwin's charges were "lying imputations."

Mrs. Baldwin sued for $4,000 libel damages, and Bridges countered with a suit for an unnamed amount.

Mrs. Baldwin's suit went to the jury last night. Three hours later the jury decided Mrs. Baldwin had spoken untruthfully in her original letter but also held that Bridges was not entitled to damages.

New U. S. Certificates Are Far Oversubscribed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (UP)—Secretary of Treasury Mellon announced today the new issue of 4¾ per cent treasury certificates maturing in 11 months have been oversubscribed. The treasury asked for $300,000,000 and subscriptions totaled $838,700,000.

BANKER NAMED IN HUGE SUIT

$1,000,000 Asked After Bank Fails

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11. (INS)—Milton Thompson, Kansas City financier and livestock raiser, was named defendant today in a $1,000,000 suit filed in the circuit court by S. L. Cantley, state finance commissioner, in behalf of depositions in the Federal Trust comany, which failed Nov. 12, 1926.

In his petition, Cantley charges that Thompson was represented to the general public and customers of the bank as one of the managing directors of the Federal Trust company who superintended and managed the affairs of the bank.

It was during his directorship, extending from July 16, 1924, until the close of the institution, according to the petition, that worthless loans amounting to more than $1,000,000 were made. These loans, Cantley states in his petition, still are unpaid and are of no value.

By the exercise of proper care and precaution, the petition states, Thompson, as managing director, could have ascertained the financial responsibility of the note makers before the loans were made.

Grandfield, Okla., Gins Show Weekly Increase

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Oct. 11.—Ginnings for the past week by the three Grandfield gins totaled 530 bales, a good gain over the week previous. Cotton seems to be coming in at a better rate as bolls open better. Next week should find a greater increase.

Last fall's crop came in quicker than the 1928 or 1927 yield. Sept. 16, 1926, there was a total of 696 bales ginned in Tillman county. At the same time the following year there were 4,561 bales.

EXPENSIVE

Tourists to Spend $100,000,000 More Abroad In 1928

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (US) American tourists this year will spend nearly $900,000,000 in foreign travel or $100,0000,000 more than last year, the commerce department estimated today.

Passports issued for the first nine months were 163,319 compared with 128,384 last year or an increase of 21.4 per cent.

American tourists last year were estimated by the finance and investment division to have spent $770,000,000.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (UP)—Bert Acosta, widely known aviator, must appear in Nassau county court Oct. 22 to answer a suit of separation filed by his wife, Mrs. Helen Acosta, of Hempstead, L. I.

She asked $6,000 yearly alimony and $1,000 counsel fees.

Mrs. Dorothy Walker, wife of a wealthy rubber exporter, is named in the petition.

Mrs. Acosta is suing Mrs. Walker for $150,000, charging alienation of affections.

Chicago Thugs Threaten Mayor and Police Chief

CHICAGO, Oct. 11. (UP)—Chicago bombers extended their activity to the suburbs of Highwood today where threats were received by Mayor Joseph Severson and former Police Chief J. C. Frame that their homes were to be blown up.

Frame resigned recently when lawlessness became acute in Highwood and Mayor Severson assumed his duties. Frame said he wouldn't mind being police chief as a single man but that he had a wife and 10 children to think about.

OUSLEY RAPS LACK OF ROADS

County Judges Told of Great Need

DALLAS, Oct. 11. (AP)—Texas has been derelict in its duty because of its failure to provide continuous and comfortable highways over the state, Col. Clarence Ousley, chairman of the highway commission of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, said in an address to the convention of the County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas here today.

Ousley advocated that a system of through highways be built in Texas, construction and maintenance to be carried on through state commission with funds obtained from gasoline taxes, vehicle registration fees and a gross community tax on freight and passenger business of trucks and buses.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 11.(UP)—J. C. "Jack" Walton, former governor of Oklahoma, today was ordered by District Judge Hooker to appear in court Oct. 22 and show his assets.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flue

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as 10 times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonfuls. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.—Adv.

The Social Side—Wichita Falls' Woman's Interests—Clubs and Churches

Literature Department Opens Season's Activities Thursday

Members of the literature department of the Woman's Forum entertained with a "book" luncheon at the clubhouse at 12:30 o'clock Thursday to open the season's activities.

The dining room was attractively decorated with zinnias and marigolds, carrying out the autumn tone in the color scheme.

Mrs. J. W. Cantwell gave a talk on "Summer Book News," reviewing the outstanding books of the summer months. Mrs. Cantwell chose her list from the "Book of the Month Club," reviewing Felix Sarten's "Bambi" for the month of July, and Stephen Vincent Benet's "John Brown's Body" for the month of August.

Another feature of the program was a resume of the Hindu epic poem "Ramayana," given by Mrs. R. H. Allee, who was formerly Mrs. Nancy Taylor. This poem is generally attributed to the poet Valmiki, in the third century, although some scholars contend that it is older than "Mahabarata," another sacred poem, and may have been written as early as 500 B. C. The translation used for Mrs Allee's review is that of R. T. H. Griffiths.

The poem consists of 24,000 verses, and the book is decorated throughout with exquisitely hand painted pictures, so elaborately drawn that the most intricate designs are discernable. This rare edition is over 300 years old and was brought from India, 25 years ago by George F. Southard of Enid, Okla.

Another interesting number of the program was a skit given by Mrs. Wayne Somerville entitled "The Social Register," which outlined the year's work for the members. Books from which she took characters were "Trader Horn," "The Revolt In the Desert," "The Children. "David Copperfield," and "Little Clown Lost."

Miss Modena Howell, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. W. Akin Jr., sang "Sylvia" for her first number and "Love Came Calling" as an encore.

Guests included Mesdames Allee, Somerville, Akin, Cantwell, W. W. Silk, Hubert Harrison, C. D. Shamburger, Paul B. Stokes, Sam Kruger, Max Shain, J. M. Hawley, Henry C. Fulcher, S. D. Wadsworth, H. B. Patterson, P. P. Langford, Ben G. Oneal, S. S. McKenny, B. T. Cantrell, T. J. Brock, J. W. Akin, D. S. Parshall, W. E. Parshall, C. Buddruss, C. E. Bailey, E. T. Anderson, Carrie E. Wilcox, M. C. CHIC CHERI

(Copyr't. 1928 King Features Syn., Inc.)

Latest Fashions

Cherie's bag has a new kind of handle made of shell rings through which one may slip one's arm. It came from Paris. Cherie's scarf is novelty Jersey. It came from Paris too. Cherie's hat is of felt faced with hatter's plush. And what comes from Paris. But Cherie's spirits are low in spite of all these things.

Her spirits were low because her feet were tired. That's why the drugstore sign attracted her. Of course, it was all in a good cause. The reason her feet were tired was that she had spent the entire day in trying on new shoes. Here are some of them. First row to the left: tweed and silk kid, metal brocade, kidskin.

Center row: brown alligator and brown suede, brown kid and beige lizard, brown lizard. These are all variations of the oxford type. The oxford seems to be about to step in and snatch all the glory for daytime wear this season. Also two leathers are better than one—even the kid pump in the lower left corner has narrow applique stripes.

The slippers in the row to the right use a combination of leathers more modernately. The top slipper is of brown suede with a narrow binding of kidskin. Last of all, a black lizard oxford style with black suede trimming down the instep and over the toe of the shoe.

Woman's Bravery, Man's Folly and Boy's Love Are Miss Dix's Subjects

There Are No Rules for Success in the Love Game and the Art of Fascination Cannot Be Learned, But Any Man Who Will Take a Little Trouble Can Make Himself Popular With the Women.

A man asked me these questions; "How can a man be fascinating and popular with women? Can any man win the love of any woman?" There is a wide difference between being popular and being fascinating. One may be achieved by taking thought, by effort and by intelligence. The other is beyond human power to acquire.

A man cannot be fascinating unless he was born that way. Fascination is a gift of the gods, bestowed as capriciously as a tenor voice or a Greek nose. It is founded on that unexplained thing that we call personal magnetism and it has no connection whatever with these things which a man does or leaves undone.

There are handsome scapegraces who have but to whistle and every woman within earshot gets up and follows after. There are other men who are protesquely ugly, yet who cut a wide swath in feminine hearts. There are men who are dull and commonplace, and still others who are actually boorish in their treatment of women, yet women break their necks running after them. Most bigamists, though singularly unattractive men, have been able to marry not wisely but too often.

No, son, there is no correspondence school that can teach you the art of being a fascinator. Probably a man who is a fascinator doesn't know how he does it. He just makes a few passes at any woman, from his landlady to a millionairess, and he gets the liver wing of the chicken or the heiress and her moneybags.

On the other hand, any man who is willing to take the trouble can make himself popular with women, because women are simple creatures and easily pleased where men are concerned.

If you want to be popular with women, begin by dressing as well as your income will permit, and at all events keep yourself neat and clean. A slouchy woman is not half so revolting to a man as a man with a three-day's stubble, beard, soiled linen and rumpled and baggy clothes is to a woman. Having made yourself presentable, cultivate the good will of your women acquaintances by showing them some attention, by taking them to places to amusement and laying sweet offerings at their feet.

You can still further boom your stock in the feminine market by acquiring a reputation for being always agreeable, not the sulky sort nor the grouchy sort nor the pea-green sort nor the sort that has to be handled with gloves.

And if you want to be popular with women, son, try to make yourself interesting to them. Just try to bear in mind that unless a woman is going to marry you she doesn't care a rap about your business, nor what you said to the boss, nor what the boss said to you, nor whether you played halfback on the football team at college, or led the cripples' march. Just cut out the monologue about yourself with which the majority of men seek to entertain women.

Oh, it's as easy as falling off a log to be popular with women—just display a human interest in them, talk to them about their own affairs, give them a few boxes of candy, take them to the theater now and then, send them a souvenir postal card to show that you think of them, and a bunch of posies upon an anniversary—and the trick is done. They will chant your praises from Dan to Beersheba.

It is no trouble to make a woman like you, son, but love is a different matter. Love is a miracle that happens to a man. He doesn't work it himself, and when it occurs he couldn't tell you to save his life how it happened, or what he did. Somehow, his blundering hands touched the secret spring of a woman's heart, and lo, its treasures were emptied at his feet; but he hasn't any diagram that he could pass along to another man that would show him the combination to another woman's heart; and so the mystery remains as great as ever.

The man who pleases one woman's fancy displeases another; the man who sets one woman's pulse thrilling leaves another unmoved, and the idea that any man could win any woman is absurd.

Every day we see tragedies that result from this. We see splendid, noble men wasting their lives in the useless pursuit of women whom they will never win. These men have every quality that women admire. They have the warm liking and friendship of women, but for some occult reason, beyond human divination these men cannot arouse one answering throb of the real love of a maid for a man in woman's breast.

Sometimes we see a woman who permits the man who has been her slave for years to ocerpersuade her into marrying him. The man is so good and kind, so faithful and patient, that the woman tells herself she will surely learn to love him when he is her husband; but she never does. She may be filled with gratitude to him, with appreciation of him, with liking for him, but she knows and he knows that the best that she can give him is only the husks of affection.

No man can win a woman's love. If she gives it to him, she gives it as a free-will offering, and if she doesn't, she doesn't; and that is all there is to it.

There are no rules to the love game, son. They are all exceptions.

Dry Weather May Cut Clay County Cotton Crop

HENRIETTA, Texas, Oct. 11.—The continued dry weather has cut the cotton crop in Clay county at least 50 per cent. The farmers have had an ideal fall in gathering the cotton crop, due to two months of dry weather. The crop will be less than last year per acre. Most farmers think that nearly all cotton will be gathered by the first of November. Cotton that is gathered now is pretty and white and unstained, but short of staple. North Clay county has some better cotton crops than there are in the south part of the county.

Grain farmers are having a time trying to get land broke to sow grain. There will be a great deal of wheat sown in cotton stalk land, which will be sown behind cotton pickers. The dry weather will cause lots of farmers to be late in getting in an average fall grain crop.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (US)— The maharajah of Patiala is visiting Berlin with his six wives and personally superintending the purchase of their fall wardrobes. He has a turban made to match their costumes. He doesn't have to tell his favorite for the day to hang around. All he has to do is wear the turban that matches her gown. It saves a lot of conversation, and a maharajah has to encourage silence.

When two women get along amicably for years, you can bet they don't like the same kind of men.

Chicago's Fashion Art league sends out word that women are becoming dress conscious, in Chicago.

In New York the women are wearing less and less and becoming more and more unconscious of the fact. They are extremely undress unconscious.

Men are afraid of black cats and mice. That used to be women's prerogative. Ex-King Ferdinand of Bulgaria aroused the whole house in Vienna last week when a black cat got into his room. He ran through the halls in what is recorded as "an old fashioned nightie," and shrieked for somebody to bring him a gun.

I suppose by "old fashioned nighties" they mean that the ex-king doesn't wear the new pink and blue and green ones with which the clothing store windows are hilarious.

Will the men who wear them please hold up their hands?

Mrs. Josephine Hiltwein of Chicago has secured her third divorce from the same man. And from her wail she has yanked down a motto and stuck it in the furnace. It read: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

Old fashioned girls are getting the jobs in California, while flappers are being rejected, according to the university bureau of occupations. They want girls they can depend upon, is given as the answer.

In other words, the interesting ones find husbands.

It is quite the thing to remarry one's divorced husband. Not only are women doing that every day, but Chicago boasts one who remarried three times and is getting another divorce. Los Angeles has one who was divorced 10 years ago and is to remarry number one.

The new motto is: "The more you see of the others, the better you think of the first one."

I know a woman who corresponds with all her former husbands and any one of them would take her back, so she says. She gets a certain satisfaction out of that knowledge. She talks about it so much I sometimes wish she would tell one of them she'd go back, and get a real jolt. They forget it's a game two can play.

Bridge Being Built to Span Drainage Project

Special to The Record News.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., Oct. 11.—A temporary bridge is being built this week on state highway 36, spanning the 18 foot ditch put across the road last Wednesday by the Deep Red Drainage company, according to E. M. Cason, chairman of board of Tillman county commissioners. Cason received this word from Hugh Leninginger, chairman of the state highway commission.

Highway 36 has been closed the past week on account of this ditch. When the bonds are voted for the drainage project, a year ago, it was agreed that state highway department was to put in the bridge, but the recently appointed state engineer did not have a clear understanding of the matter, according to Cason. This misunderstanding was the cause of the week's delay.

Girl Contest Winner Will Get Cash After Illness Stops Fair Trip

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Oct. 11.—Eunice Bell Hallahan, fourth grade pupil in the Valley View school, was a very unhappy girl until recently, although her entry in the Girls' Poultry club contest sponsored by the chamber of commerce did win her a trip to the Dallas fair.

She was unhappy because she was taken ill with appendicitis, and couldn't go. But when Carroll Duke, vice president of the First National bank, who donated the prize money, heard Eunice Bell was ill, he said the amount necessary to take her to the fair should be given her as soon as the rest of the premiums are sent out. And Mr. Duke says, Eunice Bell can do as she pleases with that money.

Eunice Bell's entry took first place over 16 others submitted in the recent contest, which was judged by W. C. Homeyer, of Fort Worth.

TEXAS SHOWS GAIN FOR AL

Wilcox Predicts 'Usual' Victory

DALLAS, Oct. 11 (INS)—A swelling tide of Smith-Robinson sentiment in Texas during the past 10 days insures the usual victory for the entire Democratic ticket in Texas this year, D. W. Wilcox, of Georgetown, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, declared here today.

Wilcox spent the day conferring with Democratic leaders, relative to the campaign which is being conducted by the state committee.

Wilcox predicted that when the "boys from the forks of the creek" are heard from they will show that the last poll of the Literary Digest that gives Herbert Hoover 58 per cent of the Texas vote, is incorrect. "I don't know where the Digest gets its list for mailing ballots," he said, "but I know it is not their subscription list, since I have been a subscriber for 15 years and did not receive a ballot."

The Democratic chairman admitted that there is considerable agitation among the Democrats for a revision of the election laws which will give the state executive committee more power over the internal affairs of the party. He declined, however, to state his own views, saying that he had not given enough study to the matter to comment at this time.

LOCAL FIRMS SEEK AGENCY FOR ORGATONE

An Allotment of Sensational New Medicine May Soon Be Secured By Wichita Falls Firm—Wilson Gives Interesting Facts About Discovery

Orgatone, the sensational new medicine that has caused so much favorable comment throughout Texas and the entire South, in the past few weeks, will soon be sold in Wichita Falls.

Several prominent local druggists, taking advantage of the presence here of Mr. R. T. Wilson, personal representative of the manufacturers of this famous medicine, are making strong efforts to secure an allotment of the famous medicine and indications were that their efforts will soon be rewarded with success. In an interview at his suite at the Kemp hotel, today, Mr. Wilson stated that, while the enormous demand is already taxing the Orgatone laboratories to their fullest capacity, the present facilities are rapidly being enlarged which will enable the people of this section to obtain the medicine at an early date.

TELLS OF DISCOVERY

Mr. Wilson gave a highly interesting account of the discovery of Orgatone and the remarkable results the new medicine has accomplished.

"The story of Orgatone," he stated, "is the story of the remarkable patience, the determination and tenacity of purpose of one of America's leading chemists. His idea was that there must be somewhere in nature's store-house a master health builder, and its discovery became the passion of his life.

"The search led him through modern pharmacy, chemistry and medicine, which in themselves took years of work. He then delved into the methods of curative practice followed by ancient races, many of whom possessed a vigor and vitality unknown to modern civilization. Some of these ancient people live a remarkable old age, which led to the belief that they possessed secrets of health that had been lost in the passing centuries. Naturally this chemist made the most important progress towards his goal while pursuing his studies in chemistry, where the practice of medicine first began hundreds of years ago. When success finally crowned his efforts he gave the formula the name of Orgatone.

SENSATIONAL SUCCESS

"The medicine proved to be a sensational success under the most rigid scientific tests that could be applied by one of America's oldest, and most reputable pharmaceutical houses. Our own company, always being on the alert for proven successes in this field, also began a series of exhaustive tests lasting over a prolonged period of time. These intensive investigations proved Orgatone to be even more beneficial than the most optimistic of our officials and chemists had dared hoped. The results were simply a revelation to us.

"Although these tests were made quietly, news became known, with result that leading drug firms all over the country were clamoring for the medicine, and everywhere Orgatone has been introduced it has proved its wonderful restorative power and repeated its astonishing success.

"Our visit here is occasioned by our desire to investigate the local field first hand with a view to alloting some of the present limited supply of Orgatone to this territory if we find such a step advisable. I am frank to say that up to the present time our impressions have been favorable and it has become largely a matter of selecting the firm best qualified and equipped to serve the public. Further than that I cannot know just now."

Mr. Wilson said he may be able to announce a definite decision within a day or two. Meantime, competition between local druggists for the agency has reached the keenest point.—Adv.

London Girl 'Pret tiest' in British Isles

Sir William Orpen (left), noted English artist, picked Miss Bennie Dicks (right), brunet London actress as the "most beautiful girl" in the British Isles. Miss Clare Stritch (center), an Irish lass, was selected as second prettiest.

LONDON, Oct. 11. (AP)—Without powder, paint or any other makeup, Miss Bennie Dicks, a tall, dark, vivacious young London girl, an unknown actress with a provincial touring company, has been acclaimed most beautiful girl in the British Isles.

"Her beauty is just simple, natural, perfection," said Sir William Orpen, famed portrait painter and member of the Royal academy, who judged the winners among 30,000 beauties entered in a contest sponsored by the Daily Mail, the great newspaper owned by Lord Dothermore. Prizes in the contest amounted to $20,000.

A shy little Irish colleen, a decided contrast to the winning type, took second honors. She is Miss Clare Stritch and she lives with her parents in Dublin.

"Naturally, as an Irishman, I was delighted to find that the second prize winner is an Irish girl," said Sir William Orpen. "I didn't know this until after I had chosen her, but it is very fitting, for there are many beautiful women in Ireland."

Commenting on his task of judging the photographs of 30,000 beautiful girls, Sir William said:

"When I looked at my final selection of 50 photographs of the loveliest women competitors, one calm and beautiful face caught and held my attention.

"That is the winner," I said.

"What struck me was the beautiful symmetry of her features," he said. "Her beauty did not come from a carefully considered expression; it was not the product of the photographer's skill. She had not obtained her charm from the art of the coiffeur or the cunning aids of the beauty parlor and the chemist shop."

The fact that Bennie Dicks is a London girl impressed Sir William Orpen.

"It is a very satisfying thought," he said, "that these huge modern cities, with the stress and strain of their artificial life, should produce really lovelier women than are to be found in the country.

"Partly it is, I suppose, because London is such a healthy place; partly, too, because in great cities continual contact with other personalities makes the intellect brighter, and this is reflected by the more intellectual and lively expression.

"There is no doubt that the women of the British Isles today are prettier than they have ever been in history.

"For this pleasant state of affairs we must largely thank the free, open air, athletic life led by the young women of today."

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

War Commander Pleads for Tolerance To Preserve Ranks of Demo Party

DALLAS, Oct. 11 (AP).—Death for the Democratic party after a "history of constructive service as old as the nation itself" was pictured as a possibility here by Gen. Henry T. Allen of Kentucky, war time commander of the 90th division of Texas and Oklahoma troops and later commander of the army of occupation in Germany, in an interview with newspapermen.

He declared that if the Democratic party should be killed it would be the work of one or more of the southern states.

"The defeat of Gov. Alfred E. Smith for president could be caused only by a deflection of Democrats in the south," General Allen said, "and that deflection can have no other reason than violent and untenable prejudices founded in religious intolerance and supported by an equally untenable prejudice on the prohibition question thrown up to screen religious fanaticism."

General Allen, who came to Texas to attend the legion convention at San Antonio, declared that in his opinion Gov. Smith is a "truly great Democrat and a great American." He said that if it were not for "violent and intemperate prejudices that have no excuse, Governor Smith would have the solid support of the Democratic party.

"When America's millions of defenders were hurried to the cantonments there was no question asked as to what church, if any, they attended. Through the war Jew and Gentile, Catholic and Protestant, fought shoulder to shoulder. No one ever raised the question as to whether the Unknown Soldier, whose body I started from its temporary resting place in France, and which rests now in Arlington cemetery, was Catholic, Jew or Protestant."

Plane Throttle Freezes As Aviators Chatter

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 11. (UP)—Capt. A. W. Stevens and Capt. St. Clair Strett, army aviators, today were recounting their experiences when the throttle of their airplane froze after they had reached an indicated altitude of 40,200 feet. The aviators were unable to descend until after their gasoline supply was exhausted.

They finally brought their plane down with a "dead stick" near Rushville, Ind. The plane was a VCO-5, one that has been used in numerous altitude flights.

State Department to Regulate Canal Plans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (UP)—Authority to regulate commercial aircraft operating between the Panama Canal zone and foreign countries have been vested in the secretary of state by executive order dated Sept. 28, the United Press learned today.

The order, it is believed, was issued to protect the canal from menaces which would be presented should foreign air bases be established in the vicinity as well as to promote development by United States capital of aviation in Central and South America.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Walking down Fifth avenue—in the neighborhood of the shopping Thirties. First, an oddly assorted couple—a male, some 35 years or so in age. Gray trousers, a white vest marked with tiny black dots, a standing collar, causing its wearer to hold his head erect, beyond human endurance. Patent leather pumps, as black and shiny as the ascot tie, he affects. Holding his cane, as he would a baton, the dandy accentuates his every word accordingly. Says he: "Really, I cawn't see it." And his companion? A young woman—mannish to her finger tips. She wears stout tan shoes, a tweed tailor-made suit, topped by a severely built brown felt hat, drawn down over an equally severe black, straight-haired bob. Oxford glasses grace her nose, and over these she peers at her fellow stroller, as she grunts—"Hm, you never could see anything, anyway."

In front of one of the most exclusive beauty parlors, along the avenue stands a big, good-natured chauffeur, awaiting the coming of Milady. With folded arms, he watches a colleague, standing correctly alert at some six-feet-two—holding on to the end of a long leash, at the opposite end of which frisks the tiniest of French poodles. Yelping and jumping about the black leather puttees of its keeper, the latter registers embarrassment, while passersby smile at his discomfiture. Now the dog's owner appears, and as the liveried one hands over the yelping one to its mistress, the lady hugs the squirming little fellow and coos—"Dear, dear Napoleon."

Finally—an Isotta Fraschini, an aristocrat of the motor world, standing half open, at the curb. A strikingly pretty girl sits upon its rear seat while a dapper little Oriental, presides at the wheel. Next to the girl, reposes a bushel basket of fine red apples, in full view. The whistle blows the hour of noon. Workmen quit jobs upon a nearby and partly completed office building. Two strong young fellows in overalls—good-looking chaps, climb down from a lofty perch, and as they are about to partake of their midday lunch, they see the apples. They grin—and so does the girl in the car. The two young men, eyeing the luscious fruit, again smile at the girl, who in turn beckons to them, to come and help themselves. They do.

Two English Fliers Die In Exhibition for Sultan

HENDON, England, Oct. 11. (AP)—A royal air force exhibition for the Sultan of Muscat, who is visiting in England, ended in tragedy today with the death of two fliers.

While one of the planes in the air display was speeding close to earth in front of the grandstand, its tail dropped off and the ship crashed violently. The victims were Flight Lieutenant Somerville and Corporal Loud.

Fountains of Youth

PONCE DE LEON, centuries ago, went stumbling through the Florida lowlands looking for a fountain whose waters would give everlasting youth.

Today a group of our greatest physicians is tackling the same problem. They are in New York instead of Florida, and they don't expect to find any rippling waters with miraculous powers; but the general goal is the same. These doctors are trying to find out if there is not some way by which they can stave off old age.

To date they are a bit discouraged. Dr. Alfred Cohn, of the medical research department of the Rockefeller Institute, reports that, after all, a man is as old as his arteries, and that nothing much can be done about it. It is the nature of the human body to wear out, and it would take something quite as miraculous as Ponce de Leon's fountain to stop it.

We are inclined—some of us, at least—to fear old age almost as much as we fear death. The ideal life, for an American, is a strenuous one. We hate to think of the day when we shall have to take things easy. The comfortable chair by the fire is a fine thing, but not for a steady diet.

But our slant on the subject is all wrong. The fireside armchair can be a great place, even for the adventuresome. No man ever does half the things in real life that he does in his mind. Idle reveries can be the scene of brave explorations, daring sallies, fear-haunted retreats.

What do we do with our lives, anyhow? We spend a good share of the time in making a living, of course, and a good deal in recreation; but for any man who is anything more than a clod, the most important thing is the effort to discover his own place in the world and to get an inkling of the secrets of life and death. These are the great adventures; and age and an easy chair give them the best atmosphere.

Painstakingly, we piece together the clues experience has given us; and now and then we get a hint of the answer. We forget the easy pessimism of youth and the dry doubt of middle age. We are high adventurers, seeking the shore that no man has ever quite reached alive. The emotions of Columbus, Magellan and Drake are ours.

Ponce de Leon failed, and modern doctors, as Dr. Cohn says, may fail also. But we needn't be afraid. Age, with its fireside quiet and its chance to make one last inquiry into the mystery of mysteries before death comes to solve it for us, is nothing to dread.

The War and Tropical Disease

AS THE WORLD WAR recedes farther into history, it is interesting to note that in some way this great tragedy had what we might call by-products of inestimable value to humanity.

The impetus which the war gave aviation is well known. The art of building and flying planes made far greater advances than it would have in an equal period of peace.

Now comes Hygeia, a health magazine, to remark that the development of tropical medicine was aided more by the war than by any other event in world history.

Dysentery in Egypt and Gallipoli, malaria in Salonika, beri-beri in Mesopotamia and scurvy and sleeping sickness in East Africa demanded the attention of army medical authorities—and got it. Research work was done that might otherwise have had to wait many years. As a result, doctors know much more about fighting these diseases than they ever knew before.

Price as a Prophet

COL. THEODORE PRICE is a prophet. He is a man of vision. He is argus-eyed. His sweeping orbs cover the world. He lets it be known that it is "hard to find a dark spot on a business map" and gives as a reason that "high record in brokers' loans fails to curb speculations."

This is an excerpt from the prophecy of the New York colonel: "A bulge in wheat that was attributed to a speech by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine is significant of the readiness with which the price level can be lifted by developments that are extraneous."

Now if Jardine will make a speech that will cause a bulge in the price of cotton, the southern growers of the staple are ready to listen. All his speeches have caused slumps in the price of cotton since he became a cabinet officer.

Of course, if he can advance the price of wheat by a speech this will help the Republican cause in the wheat belt. What has become of the old gentleman known as "Mr. Supply and Demand?"

WHAT OF THE PARTY?

But there are some Democrats and Democratic editors who aver that they are doing this "for the good of the Democratic party" as well as the good of the country. They aver that after this battle the really holiest-fo-God Democrats will be able to gather up the pieces and form a Democratic party that will command respect and the support of a majority of the voters of the United States. No human being with practical intelligence would put forth such an argument! What these better-than-thou deserters need to be told is that unless the Democratic ticket wins in November their party has joined that innumerable throng of political organizations which failed utterly to meet the responsibilities of the hour and passed into that bourne from which no traveler has ever returned. —Altus (Okla.) RISE IN COTTON PRICES SPELLS PROSPERITY

Cotton prices went up yesterday on the strength of the government forecast, but not as far as many had hoped.

At the same time forecasts in this county generally were raised from 15,000 to 20,000 bales.

The two factors, price increase and larger crop than expected, will benefit this county greatly, and will do much to hold business up to the high level which it has reached here. It all spells prosperity which will carry us confident and optimistic into another year.

THE AMENDMENT AND THE ACT

We have been asked to explain the difference between the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act. The eighteenth amendment is the constitutional provision for national prohibition and the Volstead act is the federal statute passed setting up the machinery to enforce this prohibition.

The eighteenth amendment can be compared to father's admonition to his delinquent child about as follows: "Son, stay out of that watermelon patch." And the Volstead act may be compared to dad's switch applied in the woodshed—his means of enforcing the admonition to stay out. —Altus (Okla.) Times-Democrat.

The Room Under the Stairs

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Copyright by G. Howard Watt — Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Thomas Dean, well-known writer of mystery novels, has hidden from the world the fact that he is really

Paul Forrester, who as a youngster had been mixed up in a breach of promise suit and had figured in a self-defense killing out west some years before, from which encounter he still bears a knife scar on his neck. Dean is therefore astounded to read the death-bed confession of

Martin Lamont, western business man, in New York on a visit, in which he repents the murder of Paul Forrester five years before. This confession is witnessed by

Dennis Littleby, famous lawyer, at whose home the dying man is visiting, and

Dr. John Ballinger, well-known physician. Identification of the body, found in "The Room Under the Stairs," in Dean's deserted family house, is made by

Lieutenant Shane, of the police, who also finds a watch bearing the initials "P. F." Revisiting the house, Dean discovers pieces of a broken watch crystal at the scene of the murder, and is surprised at the sudden entrance of Littleby, who seems upset over Dean's find. Matters are further complicated by a strange young lady

Viola Gray, who tries to connect one of Dean's stories with Forrester's secret.

A visit to the notary who took the confession reveals that Lamont seemed to have a peculiar dread of the telephone.

That night Dean outwits a hired assassin, Freddie Mills, and forces the man to give the signal by telephone that his night's work has been successful and Dean supposedly killed.

A chance encounter with the mysterious Miss Gray proves startling, as she shows terror at seeing Dean alive.

Startling Discoveries

Even as he tried to gauge the limits of her involuntary self-betrayal she regained a paltry semblance of composure.

"You gave me such a fright," she told him, and he could see that the words cost her a desperate effort. "You see, I had just been thinking of you, and then to see you appear in person like that was—— Well, it gave a sort of shock."

"So I see," said Dean, unsympathetically, steadily watching her face. The color was coming back, and with it some of the loveliness that had been erased from it.

"It isn't often one's thoughts materialize as mine did just now," she went on, sweeping back a few curls of her glorious hair that had fallen into disarray. "That's why I got so startled."

"I can understand. You must have felt all the thrills and shivers that one experiences at a seance when the spirit materializes."

"Yes; something like that," she said, hesitantly, with a keen glance out of her great amber eyes, as if half suspecting that he had spoken with a double meaning. "Only your appearance was entirely unexpected."

"One is more or less prepared for the materialization of a spirit. That's why I got a double shock."

"Sorry," said Dean, looking anything but contrite. "At any rate, it is flattering to know that you were thinking of me. I would have guessed from your expression that you whole mind was on the engine."

"Why on earth should you try to guess what a woman is thinking from the way she looks?"

"It's foolish, I know." Dean regarded her with a mingling of wonder and admiration. Her quick transition from terror to lightheartedness was marvelous, hinting of a more mature experience with life than went with Viola Gray's flowering youth. But again, as on their frist meeting, it came to him that probably she had more years and more worldly wisdom to her credit than one would have judged from her face.

"Not only foolish, but disillusioning," she corrected him. She seemed to have herself well in hand once more, but he detected an under current of excitement beneath her vivacious exterior. "Now that you have shocked me out of my wits," she added, "please make yourself useful. What in the world do you suppose is ailing this car! It stopped all of a sudden."

Dean made a rapid diagnosis, conscious that her eyes followed his every movement. The trouble, an obstruction in the carburetor, was soon found and easily remedied. She thanked him gayly, though again he perceived a hidden strain under her outward sprightliness, climbed to her seat, and was off.

"Don't forget that I shall expect an invitation to afternoon tea soon," she flung back over her shoulder.

Dean nodded grimly. His head was in a state of aching confusion as he started off down the street. The scene just closed could have but one significance, and that one his mind refused to accept. His thoughts were haunted by the withering film of pallor that had rushed across her features as she saw his face. Who would have thought that little Miss Gray, a mere child in many ways, had guilty knowledge of Freddie Mills' attempt on his life?

A mere child! He laughed in scorn as he recalled his earliest impression of her and how he had revised it in the meantime. As he saw her now she was a strange amalgam of childish naivete and womanly maturity, of youthful caprices balanced by precocious adroitness and a marked resilience of mental fibre, but a murderess? Dean's mind simply refused to accept the verdict of his senses.

He glanced back before turning a corner, just in time to see the red roadster draw up at the curb and its occupant step out and hurriedly enter a drugstore. To purchase something soothing for her nerves, perhaps? But no—little Miss Gray was not the kind of person whose nerves were dependent on stuff that came out of bottles and jars. Far more likely that she had stepped into the drugstore to telephone some one.

That seemed much more plausible than the theory of smelling salts. Dean, gazing absently at the empty roadster two blocks down the street, gave a start all of a sudden. Had she entered the drug store in order to telephone a warning to somebody? The suspicion entered his mind with the abruptness of an inspiration, but in the next moment he shrugged his shoulders and walked on. Even if he had been so disposed, it was now too late to steal up behind the booth and eavesdrop. Besides, he had learned all that his mind could hold for the present.

He walked on a few blocks, and then, for the second time in two days, the brightly polished plate in Dr. Ballinger's office window caught his eye. The door stood open, and a servant was energetically scrubbing the latticed glass panes. Deciding to have a chat with the genial physician, Dean turned and walked up to the door.

"The doctor's in his office, sir," announced the servant. "You can walk right in."

Dean entered. The white-capped attendant who had admitted him on his first visit was nowhere in sight. The door to the doctor's office stood open, and Ballinger was seated at a cluttered desk. He was gazing absently at the opposite wall as if pondering some difficult problem, perhaps a baffling case of illness. His powerful body was motionless, so deeply did he seem absorbed in his reflections. His face, with its strong and boldly etched lines, appeared hard and cold for want of the smile that had softened and illuminated it the day before. It was a face, perplexing in its total detachment, that seemed closed up against scrutiny.

"Hello!" said Dean, standing in the doorway. "Not intruding, I hope?"

The Doctor Loses His Composure

Ballinger turned in his chair, glanced toward the door, then half rose from the chair, and remaining in that position, stared stonily at his visitor. There was a queer twitching of the lips, a momentary blanching of the healthily tanned cheeks, a brief flicker in the deep gray eyes, and then Dr. Ballinger dropped back into the chair and smiled a cordial greeting at his visitor.

Though he thought his mind had absorbed all the surprises it was capable of receiving, Dean stared at him in astonishment. The doctor's bewilderment had been only a matter of seconds, and then his superb nerves were on the rebound again, but Dean had seen enough. For just an instant Ballinger's eyes had turned glassy, with a flickering haze over the pupils, and there had been just the merest hint of pallor in his cheeks. Dean knew that he had received a shock as great as Miss Gray's, but he had thrown it off in a twinkling. It was maddingly strange that, within the narrow space of 10 or 15 minutes, two persons should be so startled by his appearance.

"Oh, you, Dean," said the doctor genially, extending a cool, firm hand across the table. "Glad to see you. I have a particularly stubborn case over at the hospital and I was just debating with myself whether it is a case for medication or surgery. That's why I didn't hear you come in."

Dean shook the outstretched hand. It transmitted a steadying current to his senses, testifying to the physician's marvelous mental equipment. Then the telephone rang, and Ballinger murmured an apology and turned to the instrument. There was something almost sinister in the complete control his will exercised over his nerves, suggesting a mind schooled in the art of instantaneous readjustments.

It was very still in the room. Dean, slipping into a chair a few feet away, could hear a brisk steam of words overflowing the confines of the wire. It was a feminine voice that was speaking, and it instilled a suspicion in his brain. Five minutes, at least, must have passed since he saw Miss Gray hurry into the drug store. She could easily have finished her telephoning by this time, unless delayed by such a commonplace irritation as a busy wire or a wrong number. In the latter event, it was probable that she had just now been able to get her connection.

The physician listened impassively, with a slightly bored air, the fingers of his right hand toying absently with a prescription pad. "Yes, I know," was all he said, but to Dean it sounded as if he were trying to convey the maximum of meaning through the minimum of words. His magnificent composure was almost irritating.

"Do you happen to know a young lady named Viola Gray?" Dean could not resist asking when the physician had hung up.

If the question surprised Ballinger, his face did not betray the fact by so much as a flicker. Before answering, he reached into a drawer and handed a box of perfectos across the table.

"I am changing my brand, and I think you will like it," he explained. "Miss Gray? Curious you should ask that question just now. Miss Gray left my office only a few minutes ago. She called up just now to tell me something she had forgotten." He smiled amusedly. "Why do women always leave the most important part for the postscript?"

"I met her two and a half blocks from here," said Dean. "She had some trouble with her car."

"Didn't know you were acquainted. Miss Gray's father was one of my best friends. Charming girl! Well, Dean, have you received any more brilliant ideas in regard to Lamont's confession?"

Dean shook his head. "I understand he has a chance to pull through," he remarked, remembering what Littleby had told Shane and himself at police headquarters.

"I would hardly call it a chance. Only a faint glimmer of hope. He seems to have a considerable amount of reserve energy that has not yet been exhausted. Curious thing about his daughter, wasn't it?"

"Very. Any further news of her?"

"None at all." Ballinger twirled his cigar, gazed at it appreciatively, and sent a coil of blue smoke spinning ceilingward.

"Miss Farnham, the nurse, telephoned me just before you came, but she had nothing to report beyond a slight change in the patient's temperature."

"I wonder," said Dean, impelled by a sudden idea, "if it would be possible for me to see him—alone?"

Ballinger frowned for an instant, then a flicker of amusement appeared in his eyes. "You writers are veritable ghoula," he remarked good-naturedly. "Always hunting material in the weirdest places. I fear it wouldn't be advisable. In his present condition the slightest shock may have a disastrous effect. But you are at liberty to interview Miss Farnham. She may be able to tell you what you want to know. I wish you luck."

"Thanks." Dean rose to go, for there was the faintest hint of dismissal in the last words, conveying the idea that a doctor's time belongs to his patients. Soon he was out in the slanting sunshine of the later afternoon, doubly bright by contrast with the fog in his mind.

An hour later, after an unappetizing dinner in a restaurant near the station, he turned his steps toward the Littleby residence.

2,000 Men in Cars Battle Against Prairie Fire

CLEARWATER, Neb., Oct. 11. (INS)—Two thousand men in 500 automobiles fought all night against a prairie fire south of this place. Two hundred stacks of hay pastures, fences and some small buildings were destroyed. A heavy rain helped the men, who were fighting a losing battle due to the high wind which fanned the blaze.

Gas Mask to Combat Carbon Monoxide Both in Industry and War Perfected

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Perfection of a gas mask, affording complete protection against carbon monoxide—one of the most dangerous industrial poisons—was announced today by Gen. Amos A. Fries, chief of the army chemical warfare service.

The achievement is regarded as one of the outstanding accomplishments of chemical warfare activities since the armistice, and is of two-fold importance because of its applicability both to industry and national defense.

The chemical warfare service also sees success ahead in its efforts to provide protection against carbon dioxide, twin brother of the other gas, and a product of ordinary combustion and respiration of men and animals.

Used in Submarines

Writing in the journal of the American Chemical society, Fries declared that the new mask is of direct military importance at the present time, owing to the necessity of providing some means of combating poisonous effect of carbon monoxide in submarines, where crews are entrapped, through accident or other emergency, as in the collision of the S-4.

Fries points out that as most of the poisons common in hazardous industries have been proposed as effective chemical warfare agents, the chemical warfare service has studied the problem of protection against them. The protective measures are directly applicable to industry.

"Carbon monoxide is one of the dangerous industrial poisons because of its lack of odor, color, taste and its widespread prevaleney," Fries said. "While it is not such as to make it a practical chemical warfare agent yet it was often encountered during the war.

Aid to Soldiers

"The explosion of high explosives in enclosed places such as dugouts and ships, caused the generation of deadly concentrations of carbon monoxide. Machine gun fire in tanks and pill boxes and the use of explosives in sapping operations also were responsible for carbon monoxide casualties."

Fries explained that this gas is responsible for many deaths in civil life annually, it being present in illuminating gas, exhaust vapors from gasoline engines, in boiler rooms with defective ventilation, in fires and in general wherever combustion is incomplete.

"As a result of research the chemical warfare service has devised a mask which affords complete protection against carbon monoxide for a limited time and by changing canisters indefinite protection can be afforded, Fries said.

A device for detecting the existence of carbon monoxide also has been perfected of value in mine rescue and recovery operations after fires and explosions as well as for testing air in enclosures where this gas is a hazard.

A THING OF THE PAST

She bore them, and labored to rear them;
She went without clothes that she might
Endow all her children with wisdom,
And principles, steadfast and right.
And then came a day that her children
Each launched on his separate way;
And mother still sits by her fireside
To meditate, wonder and pray.
They all have their own little firesides,
And all have their troubles and care,
And though mother goes in to see them,
She's only a visitor there.
Yes, each has his fireside to manage,
And each has some young lives to cast.
'Tis dreadfully hard for old mother
To see she's a thing of the past.

The governor did not go into details of the plan. It is known, however, that the state executive has considered a statewide bond issue and an increase in the state gasoline tax. It is understood at the statehouse that the governor favors the bond issue plan over the gasoline tax plan.

BIG DIRIGIBLE HEADS TO SEA

Graf Zeppelin Expected in U. S. Sunday

following a long route to America and was making rather slow progress. Her average speed from Lyons, France, to this city was 55.5 miles per hour, compared to a normal cruising speed of 68 miles per hour. It took her six hours and 19 minutes to make the 350-mile trip.

When the Graf Zeppelin moved on down the coast, her two red rear lights glimmered brightly and another white light astern could be seen by the crowd.

Writer Follows Lights

Although it took the dirigible only two minutes to pass over the city, the United Press correspondent was able to follow her flight from about a mile and a half up the coast until the lights finally faded away as she continued toward Valencia.

Her route tonight strengthened the belief that the big craft would proceed via Valencia to the Straits of Gibraltar and thence out to sea.

The trip from here to Tarragona, which is 52 miles down the coast line, was made in an hour and 40 minutes.

Authorities here had taken every precaution to prevent the Graf Zeppelin from losing the craft. A Spanish warship was anchored four miles off the port and a watch had been kept all day at the military castle of Lerida to see if the Graf Zeppelin passed inland. The war ship was brilliantly illuminated.

Long after the dirigible had passed out of sight the crowd remained in the streets here, still excited over the shadowy air liner which slipped past them at twilight.

DIRIGIBLE HEADS FOR GIBRALTAR

(By United Press)

Pushing steadily westward through the night, the first transatlantic dirigible ever put to commercial use and the largest aircraft ever built, was roving like a great shadow down the coast of Spain Thursday night to the Strait of Gibraltar and toward New York.

The Graf Zeppelin, built by the government and the people of Germany and commanded by Dr. Hugo Eckener, carried 20 passengers, a big cargo of mail and freight, and 40 aviators along the Mediterranean coastline, past Barcelona at dusk, on to Tarragona and onward through the darkness.

Thirteen hours after her departure from Friedrichshafen, Germany at 7:51 a. m., the Graf Zeppelin had covered approximately 680 miles of her more than 4,700 miles route. She had maintained an average speed considerably lower than was predicted, having made only about 50 miles per hour for the trip to Tarragona. The dirigible's normal cruising speed is about 68 miles per hour.

Mediterranean Calm

For the first part of her trip the Graf Zeppelin encountered favorable weather, but it was forecast that she might be forced to buck a storm over the Atlantic ocean unless the veteran pilot, Doctor Eckener, can steer around unfavorable areas at sea. The Mediterranean sky, however, was lit with stars and there was no wind.

According to her present speed the Graf Zeppelin probably will reach Lakehurst, N. J., her final destination, sometime Sunday morning, but any number of conditions along the route could speed or retard her progress. She carries fuel for more than 100 hours' flight.

The Graf Zeppelin was in constant communication with various points, principally Berlin, by radio, and changed her course suddenly near Lyons, France, when Doctor Eckener was informed that unfavorable weather existed over the Bay of Biscay. It was believed the bad weather areas over the north Atlantic and off the coast of Newfoundland might clear away before the dirigible reached the Azores Islands, which probably will be on her route.

Woman Aboard

After one delay of 24 hours, the Graf Zeppelin left the Friedrichshafen hangar at 7:51 a. m. There were 60 persons aboard, including one woman, Lady Grace Drummond Hay, well known in England society circles. Three Americans, including Com. Charles E. Rosendahl, commander of the U. S. N. dirigible Los Angeles, were among the 20 passengers.

Doctor Eckener arrived at the hangar less than an hour before the departure. The sky was overcast but there was no ground wind and it was possible to squeeze the big aircraft out of the hangar without danger of damaging her. Only when the wind is favorable or when there is no breeze can the Graf Zeppelin be removed from her hangar.

Sale Is Rumored

Rumors were current that the Graf Zeppelin would be sold in the United States for commercial service, but none could be confirmed. Navy officials explained that the flight was purely a commercial venture, so far as they were aware, and indicated that any action on sale of the airships would have to come from Zeppelin company officials in New York.

Radio stations all along the coast were listening for reports from the Zeppelin tonight, but it is believed the airship's radio will not be able to get into direct communication with American stations until it is well out over the Atlantic.

Navy officials said the Graf Zeppelin's messages would be received for the most part through commercial stations, barring emergencies. The power navy stations will stand for any emergency, but inasmuch as the airship is using regular intermediate ship channels, the same as used by the Leviathan and other north Atlantic liners, most of the messages will be picked up on these wave bands.

Extensive preparations for handling the big ship when it reaches Lakehurst have been completed by the navy. A ground crew of 350 men, especially trained, will be standing by for the difficult task when the craft is sighted.

After the Graf Zeppelin lands the public will be admitted to the field at Lakehurst for inspection, it was learned.

RETURN EXPECTED IN FOUR DAYS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11. (UP)—Navy officials said today they believed the Graf Zeppelin will begin its return flight to Germany after a stay of about four days in the United States.

They said they had heard of no plans for a flight to the west coast as originally planned, but reports that the giant airship would not make the transcontinental flight could not be confirmed here. The German owners of the ship had originally planned to send the Zeppelin all around the world. It is expected a decision on an interior United States flight will be made by Commander Eckener after his arrival.

The navy department has completed arrangements for a dinner to the crew of the German airship, probably at Philadelphia. Should the ship complete the flight Sunday as expected the dinner will most likely be held Monday.

Navy reports indicate the Graf Zeppelin will arrive at the coast at about 11 a. m., Sunday, and orders have been issued for no airships to meet it, in order that the Lakehurst area may be kept as clear as possible.

EXCITEMENT REIGNS IN FATHERLAND

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 11 (UP)—The many thousands of visitors who gathered here this morning to witness the departure of the giant dirigible Graf Zeppelin for America, still commented on the magnificence of the spectacle tonight.

The excitment had not diminished one whit many hours after the Graf Zeppelin circled the city and then plunged sturdily away on her long flight to America. Everywhere, those who had seen her leave and wished they might have been aboard were asking for the last reports, wondering if the weather would clear in the path of the giant ship.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, who dreamed and built the largest aircraft in history, was probably the coolest individual in Friedrichshafen when the dirigible departed. He strolled around with his hands jammed deeply into the pockets of his jacket, calmly inspecting the ship which must carry 60 persons across the Atlantic ocean.

Gruffly, he gave orders for the Graf Zeppelin to be hauled from her hangar and himself took the pilot's wheel when she was cast loose and rose into a misty sky. Somewhere in the main gondola was stowed a caged canary which had been thrust into the commander's hands before he entered the ship.

As an indication of increased confidence in aircraft, the ad valorem charge for insurance on the dirigible for this trip was 9 per cent compared to 15 per cent on the Los Angeles for her trip in 1924.

1928 GINNINGS NEAR RECORD

2,429,000 Bales Ginned Before October 1

AUSTIN, Oct. 11. (AP)—Much of the Texas crop is in the crib, cutting and heading of grain sorghums has progressed, about half the cotton crop has been ginned, plowing for fall sowing of small grains has been active, and livestock is in generally good condition with winter grass assured where September rains have fallen, H. H. Shutz, livestock and crop statistician of the federal agricultural department reported here today.

Cotton ginnings of 2,429,000 bales prior to Oct. 1, represent the heaviest percentage for this date since 1923, except last year, when 54 per cent had been ginned. A crop of 5,050,000 500-pound gross weight bales is indicated by the 58 per cent condition of the crop.

Corn condition reported at 72 per cent, indicates a production of 101,462,000 bushels compared to 119,347,000 last year, although this season's crop is only slightly less than the past 10-year average. With the price of hogs considerably above the average, and declining market for corn, there should be better than ordinary profit in feeding corn to hogs.

The 83 per cent condition of rice indicates a probable yield of 41.5 bushels to the acre and total production of 7,221,000 under revised estimates of the area planted.

Production of about 97,910,000 bushels of grain sorghum, 2,000,000 bushels more than last year, is indicated by its 79 per cent condition.

Dry weather during the early part of the year reduced the tame hay crop to expected yields slightly lower than those of 1927 and 1926. The indicated production is 991,000 tons.

A further decline is reported in the conditions of sweet potatoes, resulting largely from insufficient moisture in important producing areas.

A slight improvement in the condition of pecans have been noted during the past month.

Officers Hunt Negro Attacker of Woman

FORT WORTH, Oct. 11 (AP).—Officers Thursday were combing Marlin and the surrounding territory in an effort to apprehend the negro who Monday attacked and assaulted Mrs. A. R. Hassenfhlug in the Elm Grove community, 11 miles south of Gainesville.

The car in which the negro made his escape, and which belonged to Hassenfhulg, was found early Tuesday morning parked on a Marlin street.

Chattanooga Today

Leaving Raleigh late today after a reception at the capitol, Governor Smith's schedule called for brief halts of his train at four other North Carolina cities, Durham, Greensboro, Salisbury and Charlotte.

His route after Charlotte during the night lay through western North Carolina and southeastern Tennessee with no stops scheduled until his train reaches Chattanooga tomorrow.

As he entered Virginia and North Carolina, Smith was met by high Democratic chieftains of the two states. At Fredericksburg, his first stop in Virginia, the train was boarded by Governor Byrd, Murray Hooker, chairman of the party's state committee; Mrs. R. C. Watts, national committeewoman and Pres. Edwin A. Alderman of the University of Virginia.

Senator Carter Glass, Virginia, joined the train early in the morning at Washington.

Leaders Board Train

At Norlina and Henderson, the governor received his first ovations in North Carolina, going to the rear platform to exchange greetings with well wishers. At Norlina his train was boarded by Democratic leaders from the Tarheel state, who accompanied him to Raleigh. In the delegation were Governor and Mrs. McLean, O. Max Gardner, of Shelby, Democratic gubernatorial nominee; Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy; Mrs. Palmer Jerman of Raleigh, national committeewoman; O. M. Mull, Democratic state chairman and Miss Mary Henderson, state vice chairman.

Probably the most historic setting of his campaign was laid for Governor Smith when he made his appeal to the voters of Virginia at the capitol at Richmond. From just inside the portico of the capitol building, built by Thomas Jefferson, he delivered a short speech of appreciation for the reception. During his tour of the building with Governor Byrd, he paused for a minute or two to gaze upon Hounod's famous statue of George Washington, said to be the best life size statue of the first president of the nation.

Historic Church

Adjoining the capitol grounds was the St. Paul's church in which Jefferson Davis, the Confederate president, received word of the surrender of General Lee at Appomattox.

Telling the throng in the capitol grounds that it was his second visit to Virginia, Governor Smith declared that he "did not know so many people in Virginia knew him personally because nearly one-half of them said 'Hello Al.'"

"I have heard the Sidewalks of New York played all through the west," the candidate continued, "and through the great northwest as well as in the state of New York, but it certainly sounded good to me to hear it from the lips of the people of Richmond, and I like to hear it played with the tune of Dixie."

In introducing the candidate, Governor Byrd described Smith as "the greatest living exponent of Democratic principles." "If the spirits of Grover Cleveland, and Woodrow Wilson are looking down upon this assemblage," he said, "I am sure they would feel that Governor Smith represents the highest ideals of Jeffersonian Democracy."

French Dubbed 'Kids' For Ousting Reporter

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (US)—The French are "acting like spoiled children" in the deportation of Harold J. T. Horan, Universal service and Hearst newspaper correspondent, for publishing the secret Franco-British naval agreement, William Randolph Hearst declared here today.

Mr. Hearst was interviewed at the conclusion of a conference with President Coolidge which lasted for half an hour. Earlier in the day he conferred with Secretary of State Kellogg and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Casualties Listed in Mexican Rebel Forays

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11, (US)—According to dispatches in this afternoon's Mexico City papers, rebels in the states of Jalisco and Michoacan have developed unusual activity in the last few days resulting in a number of clashes with federal troops.

No casualties are published, but it is stated that these have been considerable on both sides with one federal officer killed and one rebel leader captured and executed.

This morning, a rebel band attacked a train from Mexico City to Guadalajara without success. Rocks had been heaped on the tracks, but the engineer saw them and halted the train. The crew beat off the attacking rebels.

Congressman Will Urge Al Smith's Election

Guinn Williams of Decatur, United States representative for this district, will speak in the memorial auditorium Monday night, Oct. 22, according to an announcement made Thursday by Edgar Scurry, county Democratic chairman.

"We are pleased to announce Congressman Williams as a speaker this month on behalf of Gov. Alfred E. Smith's candidacy," the county chairman said.

"He is an outstanding Texan who knows national Democratic politics well, and who will bring a true message on the national political situation, and particularly on Governor Smith. We are more than pleased that he is coming."

Significance Attacked To Morrow-Gil Breakfast

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11. (US)—Much significance is credited to the breakfast which took place this morning on President Calles' ranch at Santa Barbara, 20 miles from Mexico City, which was attended by Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow and Doctor Emilo Portes Gil, president elect of Mexico who takes office Dec. 1.

The party composed of Calles, Morrow and Portes Gil left the national palace at 6 o'clock in the morning, returning at 11 a. m.

Since the ambassador met Portes Gil on previous occasions, the breakfast did not serve the purpose of introducing the two.

SOUSA'S BAND DRAWS KIDS

Students Make Reservations For Concert

Sousa and his band threaten to play to all the youngsters in this part of Texas at the concert here Oct. 17, it was said Thursday by Maskat Shrine officials who are in charge of the band's engagements here.

A reservation for 50 tickets was received from the Geraldine school near Archer City Thursday. Other reservations have been made in large numbers by Wichita Falls school pupils.

Burkburnett pupils have already ordered 48 tickets. Electra has reserved a large block. Still more reservations are coming in from schools out in the county.

The band will play in the Wichita Falls Memorial auditorium both afternoon and night under the auspices of the Shrine.

Among the featured ensemble specialties announced are a sextet of flutes and a sextet of trombones.

"The Stars and Stripes Forever," march known to the entire world, will be played at each concert.

Bridge Committee to Report Work Soon

A report on work being done by the committee now seeking to obtain contributions from Wichita Falls property owners to aid in constructing a $75,000 bridge across Wichita river at the north end of Scott avenue will be made within a few days, according to J. T. Harrell, chairman of the general committee.

Partial returns from the committee indicate that the $35,000 contributions will be raised in the near future. The county commissioners court is expected to supply the remainder of the sum necessary in building the bridge, according to plans of the committee made at the last meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce.

The $35,000 is being solicited from among property owners of Lamar, Scott and Indiana avenues.

New York Deaths Blamed On Wood Alcohol Drinks

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (UP)—Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator of New York, today reported to Prohibition Commissioner Doran that the recent poison liquor deaths in New York were caused by wood alcohol and not by denatured alcohol.

Doran said that federal authorities would work with New York city police in an effort to learn what bootleggers sold wood alcohol.

Raskob Regrets Hansbrough Speech Linking Hoover With Oil Concessions

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (UP)—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, issued a formal statement here tonight severely criticizing former Republican Senator Henry C. Hansbrough, head of the Smith Independent league, for his speech in Minneapolis Wednesday linking Herbert Hoover with Latin-American oil concessions.

Raskob disclaimed any responsibility for Hansbrough's speech which brought a vigorous denial of Hoover's connection with any Latin-American oil concessions from the Republican national committee.

"I regret it a great deal," Raskob said. "There is absolutely no truth in the charge. It is a great pity that Senator Hansbrough should have made that charge.

"I had sent Senator Hansbrough a telegram advising him that the facts were untrue and asked that he refrain from delivering it. I was advised that he was to make the speech. I learned of it through the organization."

Raskob said Hansbrough had not been routed through the Democratic national committee's speakers bureau and that he has not been scheduled to make any addresses for the bureau in the future.

"Any attempt to vilify a candidate for the high office of president of the United States is a low form of politics," Raskob said.

Oklahoma and Wichita Join in Seeking Paved Road to Waurika

A paved road between Wichita Falls and Waurika, Okla., would connect this trade territory with the important cities to the north and east through St. Louis to New York, according to a statement made Thursday by Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the chamber of commerce, who with J. D. Parnell and J. S. Bridwell, members of the highway committee of the chamber, spent Thursday in conference with representatives from the Ardmore and Waurika, Okla., chambers of commerce. The meeting was held in Waurika.

The conference held in Waurika was for the purpose of securing state designation from Waurika directly to Wichita Falls through Byers, thus giving cities of this region an important highway north and east in connection with the Oklahoma system of improved roads.

Paving the gap between here and the Oklahoma area would connect Wichita Falls with a system of highways to the important cities north and east, Mr. Harrison said. The Waurika and Ardmore chambers of commerce expressed a willingness to cooperate in the project.

a little more than half of the required 500 votes for election.

Just eight votes behind Oklahoma's soldier-lawyer candidate was Capt. John D. Ewing of Shreveport, La. McNutt was third with 139 votes.

Just before the nominations closed, a candidate from Wisconsin, Frank Schneller, previously unmentioned as a candidate, was nominated. He received only 85 votes, Wisconsin's strength, on the first ballot.

The vote for the other candidates on the first ballot was: A. E. Cox, of North Carolina, 155; Ralph T. O'Neil, of Kansas, 125 votes, and W. L. Bodenhamer of Arkansas, 99 votes.

Ewing went into the lead on the second ballot with 245 votes. McNutt moved into second place as Hoffman dropped to fourth place. When the vote was announced Capt. Ewing withdrew in favor of the Indiana law professor, who was then made the unanimous selection for the national commander.

The motion was made by the Oklahoma delegation when it became certain that their candidate, General Hoffman, was out of the running. It carried without a dissenting vote.

Five regional vice commanders also were chosen. They were: E. L. White, of Westville, Conn.; Lawrence McGann, of Chicago; George Malone, of Reno, Nev.; Miller C. Foster of Spartansburg, S. C., and Walton D. Hood, of San Antonio.

Rabbi Hermann Deck of Pottsville, Pa., was selected national chaplain.

The legion's new commander entered the army as a captain of field artillery and was promoted twice, becoming a lieutenant colonel. He is national executive committeeman of the American Legion for Indiana.

Hickman Family Not to Attend Kin's Execution

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 11. (AP)—None of the members of William Edward Hickman here will be present at his execution in San Quentin prison, Oct. 19, for the murder of Marion Parker, Col. Charles Edwards, family adviser said today.

"There is no reason why they should go," Colonel Edwards said. "I have advised them against it. It is the easiest way."

Captain Edwards said the body probably would be buried in California.

Rangers Make Second Raid During Legion Meet

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 11. (UP)—Texas rangers swooped down on downtown hotels today for the second time since the American legion convention opened and seized gambling paraphernalia in a room of the Gunter hotel. No arrests were made.

Officers said they had been instructed to rid the city of professional gamblers who have been operating during the convention.

DAILY DOPE

By

LARRY DAILEY

BUD MCALLUM, coach of Wichita Falls high school, and other officials of the local prep institution, are to be commended for their action in declaring Harvey Black, a star backfield man and football captain, ineligible. The barring of Black because he has played the limit of scholastic football in the state, four years, is a blow to Coyote grid prospects. But McCallum, acting in a sportsmanlike manner, conducted a thorough investigation of Black's status, and found him ineligible, thus eliminating the necessity of Harvey being protested by some other school and declared under the ban by the state high school athletic governing body.

There was no attempt by Black or Wichita Falls school authorities to "cover up" on his case. When intimation was made that Amarillo would protest Harvey's eligibility, Black gave the facts of his status to the coach. Harvey participated in competition at Archer City while he was in the grade schools there, and had no idea that he thus had violated the rule of four-year competition, which included one season here. Prompt action of officials of the school involved, such as by McCallum in the Black case, will do much to further the interests of sportsmanship and friendly relations in prep athletics.

IN THE DAY'S MAIL is a letter from a correspondent at Seymour, who kindly congratulates me on my "ability" to pick winners of football games. It seems that the writer of the letter is also a football expert. Indeed, he advises that he has picked 100 winners in 116 games to date this season and he challenges me to a "battle of wits" in picking grid victors. He further says he has picked the exact scores of several games.

◇ ◇ ◇

The CHALLENGE is NOT accepted. One expert is enough or too much for one paper. Too, I am afraid that you might, Mr. Seymour man, show me up as a better football prognosticator than I am. And that would be terrible as I do this as part of my daily stint, for which I receive remuneration that pays the butcher and baker and candlestick maker — sometimes. Anyhow, space requirements forbid the running of more forecasts than my own. However, Mr. Seymour man, I'm pleased to hear from you. Thanks for your interest, and write again.

◇ ◇ ◇

INCIDENTALLY, I gained a game on last week's forecast. An error in transmission of the score or in the composing room gave Oregon a 12-6 victory over Stanford last Saturday. Stanford won the game, 26 to 12, giving me 43 winners out of 50 selections for the week.

Walter Johnson To Manage Senators, Rumor In Kansas As He Speeds East

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Oct. 11. (UP)—Friends of Walter Johnson, veteran pitcher of the Washington Senators and manager of the Newark club of the International league the past season, said tonight that Johnson had signed as successor to Manager Stanley Harris of the Washington Senators.

Johnson was en route to New York tonight after a short visit with his mother, three brothers and a sister, who live in Coffeyville.

When queried late today concerning the report that he would manage the Senators next season, he said:

"I can't discuss that now." Johnson neither denied or affirmed the rumor.

Earl Johnson, a brother of the famous pitcher, when questioned by the United Press tonight, first laughed then said:

"I can't tell you about that now, but we'll all hear about it in just a few days."

Then he added "I don't know," but neither did he flatly deny the report. He intimated that final arrangements may hinge on conferences that Walter will have soon in Washington.

According to a very close friend of Johnson, confirmation of his appointment as manager is expected to be made in Washington simultaneously with the arrival of Johnson in the capital city early next week.

From the same source, it was learned Johnson was sent to manage the Newark club this past season in order to gain managerial experience, and then to return to take the place of "Bucky" Harris.

Immediately after the past baseball season, it was announced in Washington that Harris had been released as manager of the Senators.

Johnson joined the Senators as a pitcher in 1907 and for 20 years he served the Washington club on the mound. This past season has been his first away from the Senator's camp since 1907.

A British Golfer And Indian Maize

By O. B. KEELER

Out at the old Chicago Golf club, where the 1928 international match between Great Britain and the United States was played recently, there is a distinguished member named Jack Sellers, and just 25 years ago last September Mr. Sellers, a very good golfer today, was playing as a member of the American team which was striving manfully to afford an interesting competition to a crack team of British amateurs visiting this country in 1903.

"As I recall it," said Mr. Sellers, "we did not press them severely. I think we halved two matches in all, losing the rest. Our boys were not in their class, in those days."

Mr. Sellers had drawn a most engaging adversary, none other than Mr. John Low, one of the great veterans of British amateur golf, and a genial, charming gentleman.

"I shall never forget the pretty and formal courtesy with which Mr. Low asked if the match might be interrupted while he inspected at closer range a small patch of corn, growing by one fairway," said Mr. Sellers.

"'So this is your Indian maize?' he inquired. I told him we called it corn, and sent my caddy over to pull an ear. It was just well ripened. I stripped off enough of the husk to reveal the grain and handed it to Mr. Low. He looked at it closely, and in that delightfully drawling British accent of his he said: 'Most extraordinary—most extraordinary! And how the little beggahs nestle together!'"

This, said Mr. Sellers, was far and away the most original comment he ever had heard on a simple and forthright ear of American corn, or "maize."

"I never pass a field of corn without thinking of it," he said.

Yanks Hibernate In Winter Homes

Gehrig and Ruth to Barnstorm Until Oct. 31

By BILL SLOCUM

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Baseball's conquering heroes rode in from the West last night. For most of them the stay in the metropolis will be brief. There will be some packing up, some farewells to friends and then another train ride to the home towns which know them in the offseason.

The homecoming trip of the Yankees started from St. Louis at 7 o'clock Tuesday night, just a few hours after they had written new pages for baseball history. They traveled in a special train of eight cars over the Big Four and New York Central roads, and reached New York early last night. Col. Jake Ruppert, Al Brennan and a party of close friends traveled on the special, as did about 20 New York newspaper men.

At stations when the train stopped crowds gathered. They called for Ruth, then for Gehrig, and gave each a rousing welcome. They asked Babe about Sherdel's quick pitch which caused all the discussion, questioned him about his three home runs, and showed themselves familiar with other happenings of the game.

Babe and Lou Heroes

The largest gatherings were at Buffalo, Syracuse and other New York state stops. Everywhere it was Babe and Lou who were wanted and the two obliged. They got off at Syracuse for photographs, and at every stop the demands for autographs and handshakes were numerous.

Gehrig and Ruth will leave Friday on a barnstorming tour which will end on Oct. 31 at Omaha. That is the time limit for exhibition games by world series players. Tony Lazzeri will remain in New York for a while to take special treatment for his ailing arm, and Ben Paschal will go into St. Vincent's hospital tomorrow for an operation.

Benny Bengough will leave Sunday for a hunting trip to New Brunswick. Joe Dugan and Waite Hoyt will spend the off season close by, the former at Scarsdale and the latter at Larchmont. Bob Meusel did not return to New York, going from St. Louis to his home in California. Mark Koenig and Sid Durst returned here and will follow Bob westward in a few days. Paschal will go to Charlotte, N. C., after his operation, and Tom Zachary also will hibernate in that state.

Moore in Oklahoma

Leo Durocher will spend the off-season at Springfield, Mass., John Grabowski at Schenectady, Pat Collins at Kansas City, Gene Robertson at St. Louis, Herb Pennock at Kennett Square, Pa., Earl Combs at Richmond, Ky., Bill Dickey at Little Rock, Myles Thomas at Altoona, George Pipgras at Slayton, Minn., Henry Johnson at Bradenton, Fla., Bill Ryan at Worcester, and Wiley Moore already is at his home in Hollis, Okla. Mike Gazella will remain in New York and work with a Wall street firm. After the barnstorming and hunting tours, Ruth will return to New York, Gehrig to New Rochelle and Bengough to Buffalo.

Coaches Art Fletcher and Charley O'Leary passed up the return trip with the conquerors. Fletcher lives at Collinsville, Ill., close to St. Louis, and O'Leary went to his home in Chicago.

Miller Huggins will remain in New York about two weeks and then depart for St. Petersburg, Fla., where he spends the off-season.

Porkers to Texarkana For Clash With Baylor

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 11. (AP)—Twenty-three Razorback football huskies left here tonight for Texarkana, where Arkansas will meet Baylor university Saturday in the Arkansans' first Southwest conference football game.

The Porkers will put a 200-pound forward wall on the field but the Texans will have a slight edge in reserve strength.

The game between the Porkers and the Bears originally was scheduled for Little Rock, Ark.

PERMITS FOR HOMES

Two permits for new homes were granted Thursday at the city clerk's office.

Sam L. Butler will build a $4000 brick home at 3212 Hollywood. E. E. Barbee will be the contractor.

N. D. Wood will build a $5000 house at 3103 Miami with L. G. Cook as contractor.

BIG CROWD WILL SEE IRISH-NAVY

Record Throng Is Forecast For Game Tomorrow

CHICAGO, Oct. 11. (UP)—The world series and baseball in general was forgotten as the talk of the street among fans turned to the impending Navy-Notre Dame football game in Soldiers' stadium here next Saturday.

All records for attendance at a football game are expected to be broken when the kickoff sends the Middies and Irish into gridiron combat.

The advance ballyhoo for the game has found willing and eager ears among the fans who like their football, especially the brand these two elevens are expected to show on the stadium field.

Very few reserved seats remained unsold today, it was announced. The sale has been on for several weeks but the rush for the better seats got under way about a week ago and the demand seemed to increase hourly.

Rockne's Team Improves

Knute Rockne will have a vastly improved team from the one that fumbled itself to defeat last Saturday at Madison where Wisconsin romped to the unexpected 22-6 victory.

The Irish paid for their mistakes this week, according to reports from South Bend, where the Notre Dame eleven is said to be undergoing strenuous training for hours daily. The rudiments of the game, tackling and catching punts, and the one important essential—holding the ball while running—are being taught the entire squad.

Rockne also is schooling his men in the finer points of recovering fumbles, the apparent lack of such knowledge being responsible for many of their losses in the Madison contest. The Notre Dame line, through which the Badger forward wall and backfield plunged with consistency for long gains, also has been strengthened to meet the Navy offensive.

Irish Fullback Out

One serious loss to Notre Dame is Fred Collins, who will be absent from the lineup owing to an injury received in the opening game of the year with Loyola. Collins is regarded as one of the best fullbacks in the middlewest and a candidate for all-American honors.

Chevigney, a halfback, has been switched to the fullback position pending Collins' recovery.

The Navy football team also is experiencing stiff practice this week at Annapolis that the Middies may get started crossing the enemy's goal line this season. In two starts this year, first against Davis and Elkins and later against Boston college, the Navy has been defeated by small scores.

These defeats, however, do not furnish a basis for a definite comparison of the representative strengths of the two teams. Sentiment among the fans indicate that they feel that both Notre Dame and the Navy always have teams capable of displaying more than ordinary football and that is what it takes to draw the crowd.

Bob Waugh Pens Book in Hospital

Once Great Texas Fighter Writes Career's Story

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 11. (AP)—The same bulldog tenacity that made him one of the most feared prizefighters in the country has enabled Bobby Waugh, former lightweight champion of the Southwest, to write the history of his career in the ring.

Half paralyzed and almost blind, he has pecked out his story with one finger while convalescing from a series of operations at a sanitarium in Rochester, Minn. Fans who once idolized Waugh dug into their pockets to send him to Rochester. His book, "My Life in the Prize Ring," was written in a valorous effort to pay back the money his friends had lent him for his rehabilitation.

Fighter 15 Years

For 15 years Waugh cut a wide swath through the fistic ranks of the Southwest. Never more than a legitimate lightweight, the Fort Worth battler fought every man who came his way up to light heavyweights.

In 354 fights he was victorious by knockouts 182 times. He suffered three technical knockouts, all in the last year of his activity. Although he did most of his fighting in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, Waugh's mighty fists once were close to the lightweight throne.

Best Charlie White

Charlie White and Waugh met twice when the Chicago southpaw was in his prime. Waugh gained a technical knockout in the seventh round of the first encounter, but White got a draw in the second battle.

French Girl Plays Tennis Like Helen

PARIS, Oct. 11. (AP)—Helen Wills and not Suzanne Lenglen is the model which Mademoiselle Yolande Metaxa, the 16-year-old girl who recently won the junior tennis championship of France, is striving to copy.

Aggressiveness and speed of stroke displayed by the youthful champion instead of tap ball, soft placements and keeping ball in play, show that she has built up her game along the lines of the American champion's style rather than that of the former French and Wimbledon star. So once again it is: Helen versus Suzanne.

Mademoiselle Metaxa's forehand drive is remarkably powerful. She meets the ball on the rise and sends it spinning across the corners or straight down the aisle with a speed that many ranking men players might envy. Mademoiselle Metaxa is the best feminine tennis prospect developed in France since the reign of Suzanne.

Like Didi Vlasto and Helen Contoslavos, who, but for the presence of Lenglen on the courts, would have led French tennis several years, Mademoiselle Metaxa is of Greek origin. Born in Marseilles, she has adopted French nationality and will defend the tricolor of the courts of the world before many years have passed.

SIMMONS WILL ARRIVE TODAY

Cowboy Eleven Works Here For S. M. U. Battle

Simmons university Cowboys, foes here tomorrow of the Southern Methodist university Mustangs, will workout this afternoon at Spudder park, scene of their clash with the Ponies. The Simmons eleven will arrive at about 2 o'clock by motor and will go immediately to the athletic field for a final tuning-up.

They will be quartered at the Holt hotel.

More than 400 students of Simmons and townsfolk of Abilene, seat of the university, will see the game, some arriving today and the others tomorrow.

Efforts are being made to bring the Simmons Cowboy band, which has been playing at the American Legion convention at San Antonio to the game here. In the event the "varsity" band is unable to be here, the Simmons freshman Cowboy band will be sent to the game.

No word had been received last night regarding the time of arrival of the Mustangs, but it is assumed that they will be here today. However, as they have not asked for a practice time at Spudder park there is a possibility that the Mustangs will not come to Wichita Falls until tonight or tomorrow morning.

BRIDGES SAYS COWBOYS WILL HALT AIR ATTACK

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, Texas, Oct. 11.—Simmons will be able to squelch S. M. U.'s famed overhead attack in the game at Wichita Falls Saturday afternoon, Coach Frank Bridges predicted today, adding that the Cowboys will have their greatest difficulty in stopping the line plays of the Mustangs.

To stop the rushes of the Pony ball luggers, therefore, most of the practice of the week and the rearrangements in personnel of the team have been made.

Local Youth Plays

Big Uncle Joe Smith, Wichita Falls product who will play his first game at home since the high school campaign of 1923, will take defensive end for a part of the game—the part of it in which Wayne Davenport plays. Davenport on offense is one of the Abilenians' most powerful line plungers, but it is hard to find a defensive position for him. Bridges will use him at tackle this week in an attempt to halt the Mustangs, but has announced that he will not be in the starting lineup.

"The wrecking crew," first-year men who get their football lessons from Assistant Coach "Fats" Cranfill, supplied the opposition for the varsity in a dummy scrimmage today. The novices went through the plays used by S. M. U. against the Army. Naturally, S. M. U. cut loose with everything on the Cadets and have had little time since to develop any new acts.

Cowboy Backfield

Hyde, Kuhn, Sanders and Harvey have been named by Bridges as the starting combination. It brings together the best of the defensive backs available and at the same time leaves every kind of threat when the Cowboys have possession of the ball.

Hyde, Sanders and Harvey are all good running backs, Hyde a crack passer, and Sanders a punter who is rarely outdistanced in any game. His boots last Saturday averaged forty yards from the line of scrimmage, considerably better than the Horned Frogs kickers were able to do.

Sanders also proved the hardest tackler on the field at Breckenridge. If there are any stars rise from the Cowboys' ranks in this week's tussle, he is almost certain to be among them.

College Eleven Better Than Pro, Stagg Says

CHICAGO, Oct. 11. (AP) — A first rate college team would defeat the best professional eleven, in the opinion of A. A. Stagg, veteran University of Chicago coach.

"Pro teams are composed of great individual players," Stagg observes, "but they haven't the collective strength, nor the spirit, nor the will to win that college players have."

Navy Captain

Edward Burke, a star of the line, leads the Navy Middies into battle tomorrow with Notre Dame at Chicago in an outstanding intersectional game of the year.

Iowa Park Defeats Burkburnett, 6 to 0

IOWA PARK, Oct. 11.—Iowa Park and Burkburnett, class B members of district 1, fought three quarters without either scoring and with no advantage in their game today. With the last period half over, Burkburnett worked the ball far into Iowa Park territory. Burkburnett tried a forward pass. Intercepting the ball within the 10-yard zone, Williamson of Iowa Park sped through the field for a touchdown—to give his team victory, 6 to 0.

Iowa Park made 14 first downs to five for Burkburnett.

Texas Aggie and Centenary Game Involves Leaders of Southwest

Champions of Respective Conferences Clash Tomorrow at College Station in One of Day's Feature Tilts

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Oct. 11.—Two maroon and white teams both of whom won national praise last season and each of whom carried away honors in its conference last fall, will clash on Kyle field Saturday afternoon when the Texas Aggie gridsters of Coach Dana X Bible and Coach Homer Norton's Centenary Gentlemen meet in what is expected to be one of the outstanding games of the Southwest football card this year.

The Aggies last year went through to the championship of the Southwest conference, winning all of their games except one, which resulted in a scoreless tie with the T. C. U. Horned Frogs. The Gents were victors in the S. I. A. A. and were one of the few teams in the country who finished with a record marred by neither a defeat nor a tie game. Both of the teams were among the high point scorers of the country, the Aggies finishing last fall with a total of 262 points to their opponents' 32 and the Gents closing with 259 points to their opponents' 37.

High Scorers This Year

This year both teams are again among the high scorers, the Aggies leading the Southwest conference with a total of 111 points and none for their opponents while the Gentlemen have scored 113 points to their opponents' 12. Daniel Baker college is credited with scoring all of the points which have been made against the Centenary eleven.

The Aggies have won victories over the Trinity Tigers, Southwestern Pirates, and Sewanee, defeating the first two teams, 21-0 and smothering the team from the mountains last Saturday with a 69-0 score. The Gentlemen are also credited with three victories and no defeats in their early games. They won their opening game with the Sam Houston teachers, 47-0, and defeated the Southwestern Louisianans 46-0, in their second affray. The third game was not so easily won, however, but a belated rally enabled them to down the Daniel Baker gridsters, 20 to 12.

Teams Evenly Matched

Last year the Gentlemen played three teams that the Aggies met in the Southwest conference race. Both the Aggies and the Gents were victorious over the S. M. U. Mustangs and the Rice Owls, but the Aggies failed to cross the T. C. U. goal line and the game resulted in a scoreless tie while the Gentlemen were able to nose out a 7-3 victory, th smallest score the Centenary team made during the season. The Gents down the Mustangs, 21-12, while the Aggies ran wild and piled up a 39-13 score, but the Gentlemen made the better showing against the Owls, whom they defeated, 33-7, while the Aggies came off with a 14-0 victory. The Centenary eleven scored a 9-6 victory over the Baylor Bears for their fourth victory over a Southwest conference eleven.

Both elevens boast the strongest backfields in many years, the Aggies opening the season with five lettermen contending for positions in the backfield, while the Gentlemen still have the Smith-Allday-Hanna-Jefferies combination which proved to be a wrecking crew last season. Jake Hanna and Bear Allday, who take care of the halves in the Centenary backfield and who are considered by many as two of the outstanding backs in the South, will be pitted against Hershel Burgess, Aggie fullback; Brooks Conover, half, and R. R. Dorsey, quarter, all of whom were among the outstanding backs in the Southwest conference last season.

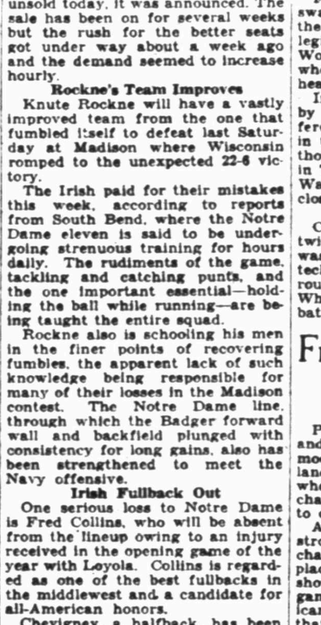

Longhorns Leave For Vandy Clash

Grid Rivalry Renewed Tomorrow at Dallas

AUSTIN, Oct. 11. (AP)—A cautious football team representing the University of Texas, not over-confident but determined, will leave here Friday for Dallas to tie up with the Vanderbilt university squad in the annual state fair game Saturday.

A week's hard practice ended today with signal practice—a week in which the Longhorns have had time to ponder over Vanderbilt's victory over Colgate, one of the East's strongest teams.

Longhorns draw some consolation from the fact that Armistead, who made such a showing in the Colgate game, is no new problem for the Texas squad. Armistead was with the Commodores last year when Texas won 13 to 6.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, Oct. 14.

Sunday—Breakfast, coddled eggs, Melba toast, stewed prunes; lunch, baked Hubbard squash, salad of vegetables (string beans, peas and carrots), molded in gelatin; dinner, roast chicken or pork; stewed tomatoes (canned), cooked spinach, salad of head lettuce, ice cream (small portion).

Monday—Breakfast, real wholewheat bread and peanut butter, stewed figs; lunch, Avocado salad, cooked beet tops; dinner, broiled steak with mushrooms, baked ground beets, salad of sliced cucumbers, apple whip.

Tuesday—Breakfast, baked eggs, Melba toast, stewed raisins; lunch, orange souffle, glass of milk; dinner, baked mutton, buttered vegetables (beets carrots, turnips and peas, cooked separately, served diced together, and seasoned with only butter), salad of raw spinach, baked pear.

Wednesday—Breakfast, cottage cheese, pineapple (fresh or canned—if canned discard syrup; lunch, carrot loaf (grated with a little celery and baked), cooked oyster plant; dinner, baked white fish, spinach, asparagus, McCoy salad, no dessert.

Thursday — Breakfast, poached egg on Melba toast, crisp bacon; lunch, eight-ounce glass of fresh cider; dinner, stuffed and rolled round steak (use diced carrots, celery, parsley and Melba toast crumbs as stuffing, and bake steak one hour); dinner, baked egg plant, boiled okra, salad of chopped raw cabbage and parsley, prune whip.

Friday—Breakfast, French omelet, Melba toast, baked apple; lunch, 10 or 12 dates, pint of buttermilk; dinner, broiled filet of sole, cooked oyster plant, squash, salad of tomatoes and cucumbers, no dessert.

Saturday—Breakfast, coddled egg, genuine wholewheat bread and butter, stewed raisins; lunch, baked sweet potatoes, cooked celery, cooked lettuce; dinner, veal loaf (chopped, cooked veal and parsley molded in gelatin), baked parsnips, cooked tomatoes, salad of raw celery and ripe olives, pearsauce.

Fresh vegetables should be thoroughly cleaned, with a vegetable brush, under running water in order to remove all trace of grit or poison spray. The water that clings after the final washing usually affords sufficient moisture to start the cooking process, especially where the thick aluminum pans are used, and with a little care almost any vegetable may be entirely cooked in practically its own juice either over the flame, on top of the stove, or by baking. Many vegetables which are commonly cooked by boiling or steaming may be given a desirable and "different" taste by baking, such as ground beets, turnips, carrots, etc. The flavor may be varied by slight browning on top.

In either boiling or baking vegetables, avoid over-cooking and be sparing of the water added. A little careful practice, with the proper cooking utensils, will more than repay you in the better flavor and actual benefit derived from fresh or canned vegetables.

It is believed by some that the vitamins in vegetables are lessened through the process of canning, but with our modern methods of canning the loss of vitamins is so slight as to be of no consequence. My advice is to stock your pantry with a variety of canned vegetables to be used when the fresh ones are not procurable, and thus guarantee yourself a plentiful supply of these essential minerals every day in the year.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Canker Sores

Question: D. F. writes: "I am frequently troubled with canker sores. Can you give me any information as to the best method of treating them?

Answer: Canker sores are usually caused by a condition of acidosis, and an acid fruit diet for a few days is usually advisable after which you should follow the menus outlined in my newspaper articles.

Digestive Troubles of Children

Question: G. D. W. writes: "I have been reading your articles on health with interest, and wish your advice in regard to my grandchildren, ages three and one-half and five years. They are very healthy looking children, but the older one quite frequently eats his breakfast and vomits it up almost immediately. They both grind their teeth at night till one can scarcely sleep in the same room with them. Will you kindly tell me the cause, and what should be done for them?"

Answer: Your grandchildren are probably overeating, and using bad combinations of food. The grind of teeth at night is usually caused by some form of indigestion. The older child who vomits his breakfast doubtless does so because his stomach is still upset from the meal of the evening before. Try giving the children a lighter dinner, and I am sure these troubles will disappear.

Acid Reaction

Question: J. L. writes: "Please tell me what foods or combinations of foods produce acid in the kidneys. Is milk or buttermilk good in the above?"

Answer: Normal urine has a slightly acid reaction. When too much starch, sugar or protein is used, there will be an over-acidity of the urine produced. There is seldom any reason for trying to produce more acid in the urine, but the diet treatment in usually advised in all kinds of kidney derangements is one which will reduce the acid rather than increase it. A milk or buttermilk diet is an excellent treatment for adjusting metabolism, and to assist in balancing the quantity and quality of urine so as to make it less irritating.

By MAJOR A. HAMILTON GIBBS

A. Hamilton Gibbs is one of the famous "writing Gibbses"—one of his brothers is Cosmo Hamilton, the other is Sir Philip Gibbs, and there is a nephew also who writes. The major told me that he favored the story about a regiment in the first line which was to be inspected by a certain famous general.

A. Hamilton Gibbs

Days were spent in preparation, and when inspection day dawned the regiment faced the approaching general in a condition of spit-and-polish that would have done credit to a Victory parade. But at the last moment one private was discovered to be not only drunk, but completely spifflicated.

Consternation reigned. The commander used language strong enough to win the war; majors found that sarcasm was a futile indulgence, captains grew purple.

"The general was approaching when one lieutenant had a brain wave," Major Gibbs said. "He sent for a stretcher and a blanket, the drunkard was laid on the stretcher, covered with the blanket and the stretcher bearers were ordered to carry the body away. Commanders of the regiment smiled again; captains felt easier in their blood pressure, majors twirled their mustaches, lieutenants snickered. The regiment was saved.

"But as the body was being borne down the trench, the little cortege met the general and his glittering staff. The general saw the blanket-covered body and understood. This was war. Some mother had lost her boy. He stepped to one side, drew himself to attention, saluted and said, in a firm, soldierly voice, 'I salute the glorious dead!'

"Suddenly the blanket was kicked aside and the 'glorious dead,' vastly disheveled and reeking of whisky, sat up on the stretcher, waved a hand, suppressed a hiccough and said: 'Whopee old dear, I'm jusht playin' dead!'"

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE (421) OUR PRESIDENTS

War was declared in April, and by October American soldiers were in the trenches in France. Before fighting ended, Nov. 11, 1918, more than two million men were in France and two million more training on this side. Wilson's "fourteen points," in which he pointed the way toward peace, proved a factor in the final terms of the Armistice.

By NEA, Through Special Permission of the Publishers of The Book of Knowledge, Copyright, 1922-28.

After the Armistice was signed, President Wilson attended the Peace conference in Paris and took part in drawing up the Versailles treaty.

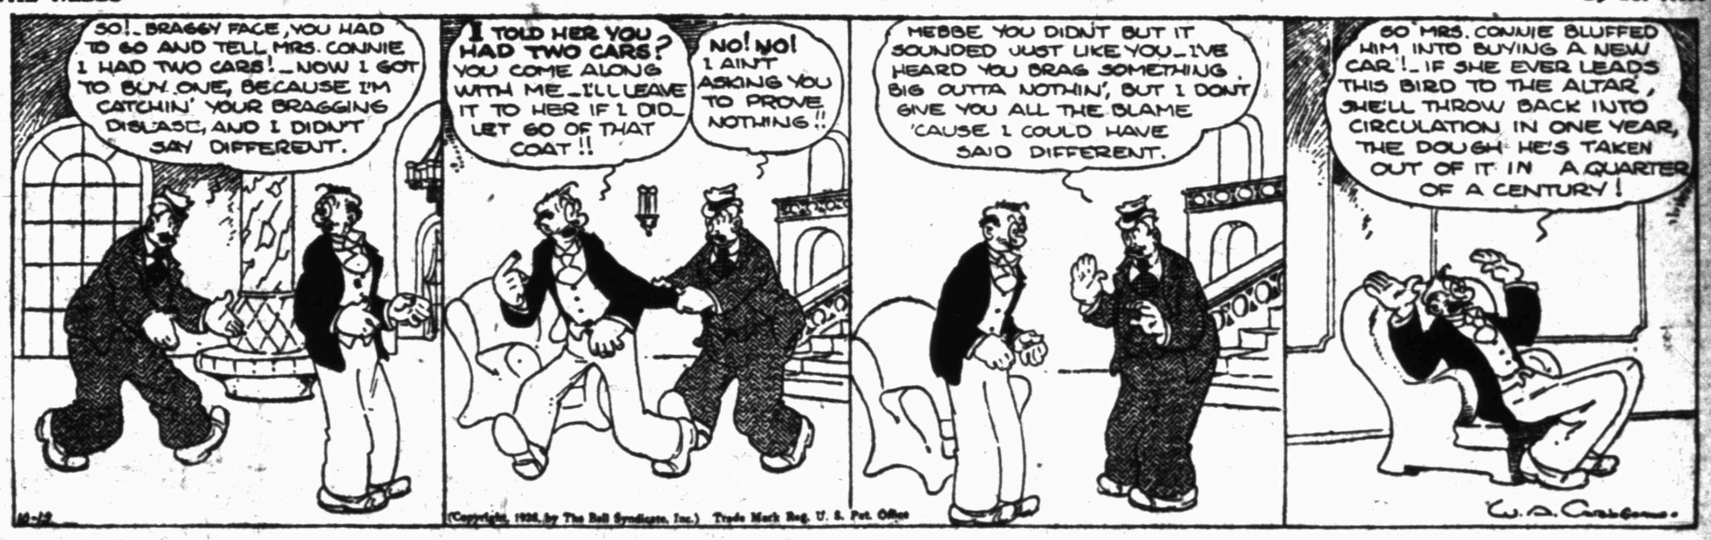

Wilson offered to the world his ideal, the idea of a League of Nations, working together for peace, bound by sacred pacts not to wage war.

The League became a part of the treaty of Versailles, but when Wilson returned home he found much opposition to both. The Senate hesitated to ratify the League. Wilson stumped the country to win sympathy for his dream of a peaceful union. While on a trip to the west to try to arouse sentiment for the idea, his frail body collapsed. (To Be Continued)

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—An early advance on prospects for lower temperatures in the south was followed by partial reactions in the cotton market today under southern selling and realizing. December which had advanced to 19.30 early, sold off to 19.12 but the offerings were comparatively light and there were bulges later on renewed covering. December closed at 19.22 with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 28 to 38 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 24 to 31 points and the active months soon showed net gains of 32 to 41 points on covering which appeared to be coupled with some trade and commission house buying. This was evidently promoted by the outlook for cooler weather in the south with a possibility that it might bring frosts in some northern sections of the belt before the end of the week, while there was also buying on the relatively firm showing of Liverpool. The advance met considerable southern selling and realizing, however, and after the initial demand had been supplied, prices turned easier. Doubt was expressed in some quarters as to whether the expected drop in temperatures would go far enough to cause killing frosts in the belt and this combined with the proximity of the Columbus day adjournment probably increased a disposition to take profits on long cotton. Prices eased off during the middle of the day with October selling down from 19.35 to 19.16 and March from 19.13 to 18.98 or about 15 to 18 points from the best, but the selling tapered off at these figures and the market rallied several points later on renewed covering.

After the early hedging, offerings from the south were comparatively light and the closing rallies were supposed to reflect continued uneasiness over the weather outlook. A private estimate placing the consumption of lint cotton in this country for the month of September at 499,000 bales compared with 526,729 bales for the previous months, appear to attract comparatively little comment.

Private cables said there had been trade calling with Continental and Bombay buying in Liverpool on apprehensions of a cold wave in the south that there was a fair demand for cloths from India. Exports today, 35.815 making 1,353,002 so far this season. Port receipts, 85,502. U. S. port stocks, 1,486,921.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 11. (AP)—An advance of nearly $2 a bale in cotton prices today met some realizing for over the holiday tomorrow and the market receded about 50 cents a bale, but in final trading there was some additional covering and prices traded to new highs closing at a net advance of 32 to 36 points.

The early advance, due to reports of a cold wave in the northwest which traders feared would extend to the cotton region, carried December up to 18.72, but the option later reacted to 18.54 but rallied and closed at 18.67, or 32 points net higher.

Liverpool cables were higher than due and this coupled with the early reports of the cold wave in the Northwest accompanied by sleet and snow which traders assumed would eventually descend to the cotton belt and injure late cotton was responsible for an early gain of 35 to 38 points. January contracts traded to 18.67 and March 18.60.

The demand appeared to have been supplied at these levels and more or less realizing for over tomorrow's holiday developed and carried prices off 12 to 14 points from the top.

Some activity developed in late trading, however, when shorts covered for over the recess and prices traded to new highs for the day. January sold up to 18.69 and March 18.60, or 37 to 38 points above the previous close. Final prices were a shade under the top.

DUN'S WEEKLY STATEMENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (AP)—Dun's Review this week will say:

"Although restricted in some localities by special influences, the public purchasing power, as a whole remains notably extensive, while attractive prices on many goods are increasing consumers' interest. That distribution of general merchandise is enlarging is evidenced by a railroad freight traffic exceeding that of the two immediately preceding years, and the marketing of crops naturally is giving a stimulus to trade in agricultural sections. Supplementing the encouraging features enumerated, the great iron and steel industry continues to disclose exceptional progress.

Steel Rises to New High Record As Money Rate Drops to 6 Per Cent

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Steel common was pushed to a new high record price and offset continued liquidation in other parts of the list today. The influence of the rise in steel was enhanced by further easing in the money rate which dropped to 6 per cent from a renewal of 6½. Increasing uncertainties of the speculative community were added to when it became evidenced that some had "double-crossed" in the Hudson operation.

The change in viewpoint of a leading banker regarding the money situation was a bullish factor also as it indicated that there was something more than desire behind the rumors that the federal reserve would take no stringent disciplinary measures before election at least. Steel gained over 4½ points by the close, while Goodyear skyrocketed 9, Allis Hhalmers 3, General Ice Cream more than 7 and advances of over a point were frequent. Railroads remained dull and ragged despite the continued good reports from leading carriers while oils and coppers turned dull but ruled fairly steady.

Sales Bump Hudson

After letting the whole world know that they would push their pet above 100 the group working Hudson were taken off their feet when deluge of selling appeared through brokers who work for the leading operator who has paid more transatlantic phone charges in recent weeks than any individual ever paid before. It was close to 50,000 shares he sold and he knocked the stock off 7 points before pool support had an effect.

It was another instance that it is time to get out from under when a pool promises a certain price. No group wants too much competition. When they really try for a promised level they meet double-crossing from one or another member of the group that balks their efforts. The result is that followers of such operations find themselves hung up again because they held for advertised price levels. There were some who admitted the pool had "been sold out on" while others pulled the usual alibi of taking profits on additional stock accumulated as the pool work started.

Steel accumulation is not surprising as the current advance was forecast here over a fortnight ago. Those dominating the market now are sure the steel directors will recommend a melon at the December meeting to be decided upon by stockholders in April. No matter how bad a crack the rest of the market has they can afford to hold Steel especially when its strength lets them slip out of more precarious speculations. The increase of 74,000 tons in steel tonnage added to the demand and was instrumental also in helping the move of Bethlehem and other independent steel shares.

General Ice Cream's further rise to a new high was the result of realization of improving earnings helped out by the short interest that has been caught in the stock as told of here last week. Goodyear's rather sensational rise was made possible also by the technical position. Those active of the "Big Ten" have no trouble learning how much of a stock is available and when they learned the state of the market in Goodyear last week, started working on the theory that normal increase in demand for tires at this season should be reflected in that group of stock and temporarily offset the disordered condition of the tire and rubber industry.

First step in Durant's motor merger is expected soon in grouping of Peerless, Chandler and Moon. Those stocks benefited fractionally yesterday. If Durant gets away with it he is expected to put the combined organization into his Durant Motors. Certainteed was sold because of fear the dividend would be cut or passed.

Further increase in brokers' loans of $19,900,000 to a new high record will not worry the street much in view of the strengthened belief that the money will stand aside for awhile longer. Eventually the continued increase in amount of credit being used by the stock market means a higher rediscount rate. As that comprises a real threat to the growth of general business disciplinary measures cannot be held off too long. But the market operator of today thinks no further ahead than next week at the most. He believes he can beat the other fellow out before the Waterloo and while he entertains such belief money rates and loans mean little.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 11 (AP) (U. S. D. A.)—As indicated on yesterday's market, the decline on hogs around the 11-market circuit has been temporarily checked. Trade today was moderately active to both packers and shippers at strong to 15c higher prices. The day's extreme top at Chicago was $10.25. Total offerings were around 56,100, as compared with 61,507 a week ago and 58,293 the same day last year.

The market for killing cattle had no appreciable degree of stability, packers where supplies were sufficient, shading prices on the in-between grades of steers and yearlings as much as 25c. Some strength on strictly choice grain feds was reported at Chicago; in-between grades of short-fed grass steers scaling over 1,200 pounds are especially susceptible for price fluctuations. Prime 1,381-pound steers at Chicago scored $18.35 while highly finished lightweights realized $18.25. The supply estimated at 31,200 was 1,500 more than last Thursday and 7,000 less than a year ago.

Fat lambs found a fairly active outlet at strong to 25c higher prices and firm to slightly higher values prevailed on aged stock. Choice native lambs in Chicago topped at $13.50, while best westerns at Kansas City ended at $13.25; aggregate receipts were estimated at 82,400 against 87,529 a week ago and 79,528 a year ago.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW
By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Oct. 11. (US)—Grains shook off the bear poison today and in the face of selling before the holiday tomorrow slowly advanced for small gains during the day. The extent of the gains was not much, but the action of the market was impressive.

At the close wheat was up ⅛c to ⅜c; corn was ⅛c to ½c higher; oats were unchanged to ⅛c lower; rye was unchanged to ⅜c higher.

The opening was a shade under the previous closing prices for both wheat and corn, but the low points for the session were touched immediately. That bottom was adamant, and although several times prices seemed to threaten breaking through it, they could not do that.

A curious thing worth careful consideration is the fact that the open interest in the wheat and corn markets did not decrease on Wednesday's break as one might have supposed would have been the case, and as almost certainly would have occurred if there had been liquidation of long holdings.

On the contrary the open interests increased decidedly by several million bushels in both markets. The meaning of this can be only one thing. That the break on Wednesday was, as suggested here, caused by bear raiding and not by longs selling out.

Short selling pounded the market downward, but increased buying power took the offerings and thus increased the open interest.

The result of this is likely to be the driving of shorts to cover again if wheat and corn work higher towards their tops the last time up. The near their price levels come to these, the more the markets will become oversold.

The strength in wheat is surprising to almost every old time professional on the board of trade. Few of them can see how it is possible to carry the load put upon the market by hedging of the enormous yield.

So far as corn is concerned, that grain looks to me to be a very bullish position. If the market advances from here, as seems highly probable to me, it may become tighter and tighter as it goes up. Corn, I think, is due for a very considerable advance that will take the price up to heights that will astonish bears.

The market seemed to be in a technical condition at the close that will require little impetus to get it under way on the upgrade. A shift in the weather may be enough to give it the necessary start on Saturday.

Rye, also, looked as if it might be in a position attractive to purchasers once more. This grain ought to emphasize with a greater upturn any rise in wheat. Rye has been overlooked by most speculators. z

In the cash market wheat was steady; corn was unchanged to 5c higher; oats were unchanged to ½c off; rye was firm; barley was steady.

Livestock Gets Boost in Texas

STAMFORD, Texas, Oct. 11. (AP)—Officials of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce are encouraged at the interest being taken in the development of better livestock and poultry in West Texas.

A letter received from Norman J. Keller, secretary of the Petersburg Chamber of Commerce at Petersburg, asked for advice about starting the organization of a bull circle for the purpose of increasing and improving the dairy stock in the section. When this plan is fulfilled, a registered sire will be placed in every community in the county.

S. W. Cooper, manager of the Winters Chamber of Commerce visited the West Texas Chamber of Commerce headquarters recently for information on establishing an organization similar to the Central Texas Poultry association for the purpose of co-operative handling of poultry and produce.

This association, of which Col. R. L. Penick of Stamford is president, holds the record of being the only association in Texas to gather two full carloads of eggs in one week. One of its other successes is the shipping of from 800 to 1,000 pounds of live produce daily.

By affiliating with the Central Texas association, members have been able to receive top prices for their produce and have been receiving several cents more on eggs and live produce than those outside its protection. It is the ambition of Mr. Cooper and other Runnells county men to have a similar organization. The regional chamber of commerce intends to co-operate in their efforts and its agricultural department in charge of B. M. whiteker will devote much energy along those lines.

OIL CAMP LIKE MODERN TOWN

Style Changes in Workers' Living Quarters

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 11.—It used to be that any sort of a camp was good enough for a new oil field, but those days are gone forever.

A visit to the Greater Seminole field will show a lively competition among the major oil companies to see which can provide the most comfort to the field officials and workers, and at the same time make their camp buildings present an attractive and interesting appearance.

This tendency is spreading through the West Texas and Panhandle oil fields, while out in California fields, one finds some beautifully laid out and maintained oil field camps.

Like Small City

In the Seminole area the best camp is that of the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company at its Walker camp in the east half of the southeast of 15-8-6. Instead of being just a camp, the Walker camp resembles a small city, with wide streets, electric lights, well-kept sidewalks and lawns of the cottages and buildings around the main office building.

All of the gas and oil operations of the I. T. I. O. in the Seminole district are managed from the Walker camp, and separate structures house the transportation, storage and so on.

There one finds a well laid out group of buildings, the first being the administrative office. In it is performed the clerical work of the division, with the telephone switch board, as well as dormitory facilities for visitors and some employes. The dormitory is on the second floor. The floors are of hardwood and covered with rugs. The small rooms have single beds and the larger ones double beds.

Has Own Ice Plant

In some respects Walker camp resembles an army post, with the married workers supplied with individual quarters, that possess all the comforts of a real home. The bachelors live in quarters similar to that of squad rooms. Their mess is served in a large building devoted to dining room and kitchen. Adjacent to the dining hall is an ice plant with a capacity of 5,000 tons a day and several days' capacity in storage.

The garage and warehouse present the mechanical side of the camp. All motor transportation of the field is serviced in the former, and everything needed in a busy oil field is to be found in the warehouse.

Four New Wells Fail To Help Seminole

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 11.—Four new wells, all in the Little River pool, failed to increase the production of the Greater Seminolle field. It produced Wednesday 321,405 barrels from 1,247 wells, or a loss of 4,486 barrels over the preceding day's gauge.

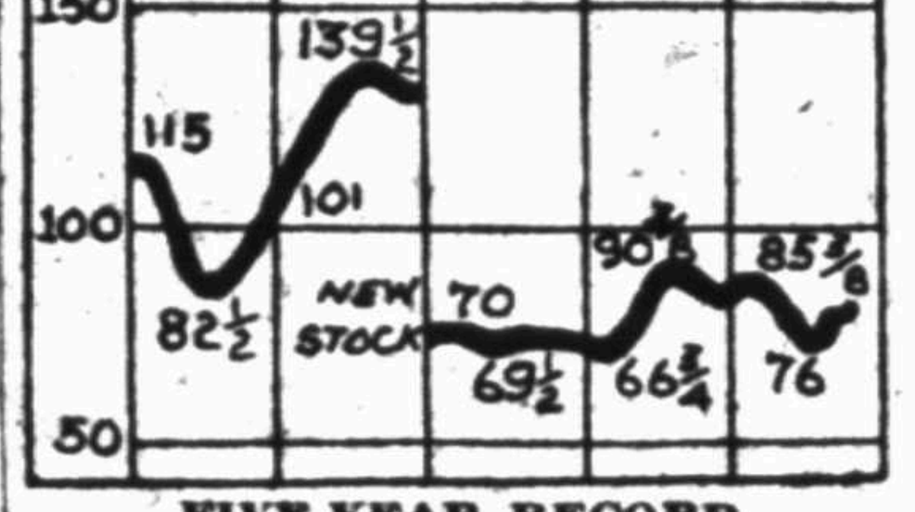

The Little River pool had the greatest loss in its output, having produced 132,385 barrels Wednesday, as compared with 137,317 barrels Tuesday.

Sinclair Oil and Gas company and Kingwood Oil company No. 1 Pompey, in the northwest of the southwest of the southwest of 24-7-6, the southeast extensioner of the Little River pool, swabbed 445 barrels in 11 hours and is showing no water. The top of the Wilcox sand was corrected to 4,469 and drilled to 4,472 feet.

PARDO-TODD FEATURE BILL

Dancer Wins Hand in New Vaudeville Act

The dancing of dainty Mollie Todd and the wit and comedy of Eddie Pardo easily proved the features of the Eddie Pardo All-Collegiate show on this week's vaudeville bill at the Majestic theater.

The act carries suitable and colorful scenery as a collegiate background for the specialty dancing and singing numbers. Alan Green has a rich voice and is best in sentimental songs. Eddie Pardo makes a hit with his "Hula Lou" solo, and a still greater one with some rather racy jokes.

The action in this skit is somewhat crescendo, if such a term could be used in vaudeville, as it increases as the act goes on and ends in a lively ensemble with the entire company of 12 entertainers bringing a minstrel show to a close.

JURY REVISES ITS REPORT

Thornton Clears Room to Tell His Wishes

fused to divulge the contents of the first report.

When Judge Thornton was asked why he requested a revision he said he had rather not say because it would just "cause a lot of talk."

Mr. Bradley said the jury has not been dismissed "for good but that the body will be reconvened Oct. 25.

Two of the 12 indictments brought in by the grand jury charge Ray Sanders, alias Henry Wheeler, with forgery and passing of forged instruments. He is in the county jail. The other ten charge burglary and liquor law violations with one charging a statutory offense.

Commendation for Dick Kenley, district attorney, and members of his staff and for Sheriff W. G. Bralley and his deputies was contained in the report which follows:

"To the Honorable E. G. Thornton, judge of the 20th judicial district of Texas:

"We, the grand jury for the October term of the 30th judicial district of Texas, beg leave to submit our report as follows:

"We have been in session for seven (7) days, and have examined carefully into every case or matter of law violation which has been brought to our attention from any and all sources.

Report Filed

"We have examined 194 witnesses and have returned 39 true bills. A number of matters which have been brought before us we have considered it necessary to pass for the present without action, waiting further information, in other the evidence obtainable has not seemed sufficient to warrant the return of a true bill.

"It has come to the knowledge of this body that it has been common practice among independent butchers to buy, kill and sell to the public, cattle and other live stock without complying with the laws which govern same. We recommend that the proper county authorities cause to be published the existing laws governing the purchase, sale or slaughtering of live animals for food, so that all persons engaging in same may be advised of the requirements. We refer to articles No. 1446, 1445 inclusive of the criminal statutes of the state of Texas.

"This grand jury recommends that all dealers in second hand clothing, jewelry, or other wares be required to keep a careful legible record, which will be open for inspection to any accredited authority at all times in accordance with the laws governing the same.

"We desire to commend the sheriff's department for the efficiency with which it is being conducted, and to express our appreciation to Sheriff Bralley and his deputies for the prompt and willing assistance rendered by them to this grand jury while we have been in session.

"Reasonable" Enforcement

"We also wish to express our appreciation to the district attorney, Mr. R. O. Kenley Jr., and to his assistants, Mr. George W. Anderson and Mr. Mike Anglin for their efficient service and cooperation during our investigation of the numerour cases brought before us. They have assisted in every way within their power to get all the facts in each case.

"We recommend that in the enforcement of the traffic laws in Wichita county that reasonable consideration be given by the officers of the law for first offenses (if of a minor nature) in the case of strangers and tourists who may be passing through or stopping for a short time, it being the sense of this body that many such strangers and tourists are naturally more or less ignorant of the local traffic rules."

Pro And Con

HATCHITT TELLS SMITH STRENGTH

J. B. Hatchitt, local Democratic leader, returned from the American Legion at San Antonio Thursday saying that Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York will carry Texas and the United States just as he is going to carry San Antonio.

"The big German vote in and around San Antonio is going to Governor Smith," Mr. Hatchitt said. "Governor Smith will sweep South Texas with the usual big majority plus a large part of this former Republican vote. While in San Antonio, I talked with legionnaires from all over America, and I learned that the sentiment in Wisconsin, Illinois and other states is strongly pro-Smith. I heard glowing news all around at the convention."

WOMEN RUSH FOR HOOVER THIMBLES

Women calling for free Herbert Hoover thimbles drew the largest crowds to the Republican headquarters on the Lamar street side of the Hamilton building that have been received since the headquarters opened.

THIS THIEF TAKES FREE G. O. P. BUTTONS

Who stole the Hoover buttons?

That's the question at the Hoover Republican headquarters.

"We don't know, and we don't care a whole lot, who took a large number of Hoover campaign buttons from the Republican campaign headquarters in the Hamilton building," said Mrs. P. A. Welty, candidate for the U. S. congress from this district. "We are curious, however. Naturally we would much rather have them in circulation than here in the office."

PARTIES SUGGESTED FOR WILLIAMS' SPEECH

"I want to suggest that people living in Iowa Park, Clara and the many communities and cities near Wichita Falls arrange parties for the Guinn Williams speech on behalf of Governor Al Smith in the Wichita Falls Memorial auditorium Oct. 22," said Edgar Scurry, county Democratic chairman, Thursday.

FITZGERALD TO SPEAK

Plans for the speech by W. E. Fitzgerald at Newcastle Saturday afternoon have practically been completed, it was said Thursday at the county Democratic headquarters.

SO THIS IS HOW GRANDFIELD FEELS?

"There are not over a half dozen people in Grandfield, Okla., for Gov. Alfred E. Smith," said Mrs. J. W. Fox, a caller for free thimbles at the Hoover Republican headquarters in the Hamilton building Thursday. She knew of only five regular Republicans in Grandfield.

PADUCAH ASKS ANTI-SMITH SPEAKER

Paducah wants a speaker for the immediate future for Cottle county, according to a request received Thursday at the anti-Smith Democratic headquarters.

AUDITORIUM BOOKED FOR TWO MEETINGS

Politics Thursday made arrangements further to enrich the Wichita Falls city coffers when two bookings were made for the Wichita Falls Memorial auditorium. One is for Congressman Guinn Williams' speech at the request of Edgar Scurry, county Democratic chairman, Oct. 22. The other is for the anti-Smith Democrats the night before election, Nov. 5. The speaker for this date is not yet announced.

Youngest Legislator Plans New Election Bill

AUSTIN, Oct. 11. (AP)—Elwin Gerron, 21, Ellis county, who will be the youngest legislator in the house of representatives in the 41st legislature, said here today that he is collecting data and information for a conference of legislators here in December favoring popular election instead of appointment of state highway commissioners.

Gerron is preparing a bill which he will submit to the conferees, providing for division of the state into four highway districts, with a commissioner to be elected from each district. A fifth, to be chairman, would be elected from the state at large for four years. The other commissioners' terms would be for two years.
