German Press Flays Speech By President

Britain's Fate Is Sealed, Help Too Late, Are Claims

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, Jan. 8.—The German afternoon press, with a unanimous, apparently preconceived pattern, declared today that President Roosevelt's Monday message to Congress was historically inaccurate and would have practically no bearing on the outcome of the war.

Britain's doom is sealed, the newspapers declared, and American aid will come too late.

Message Said "Arrogant"

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung headlined the comment on President Roosevelt's message "eccentric arguments for a lost cause."

Hours before the afternoon papers appeared, the editorial tack they followed had been foretold by authoritative quarters.

They said the papers would call Mr. Roosevelt's message "arrogant beyond description and, as compared with his fireside talk, even less dignified, more abnormally nervous and more fraught with historical inaccuracies."

No Official Reaction

There will not be any official German reaction on the grounds that the president's message to Congress Monday "brought no new viewpoints which would make it worthwhile to take official cognizance," the same sources said.

The press harked back to the slogan "don't let yourself be provoked," used by the Nazis when, before 1933, they "used to be insulted, egged and stoned" during their propaganda marches.

The press said:

"The German people can only shake their heads at the president who says the American people should keep their hearts soft but their heads hard — they'll wonder

Ground Broken For Building

Ground was broken this morning in preparation for construction of a Texas Technological college press building, which is to be completed in approximately seven months or in time for use with opening of the fall semester next September.

The building, which will contain a basement and two stories, will be of Spanish architecture in keeping with other building on the campus. It will be located north of the library building and southwest of the main engineering building.

Building Plan Released

Robert Maxey is the contractor. The contract calls for completion in 210 calendar days.

The structure will be approximately 60x120 feet, of light brick with red tile roof. The basement will contain storage space, a transformer vault and steam room; the first floor, offices for the head professor of journalism, his secretary, a publicity man, the Toreador, student newspaper, editor, the Toreador business manager, the press room and office for the press superintendent and a small proof room, and the second floor will contain five offices, a photographic studio for classwork, four classrooms and a reading room, according to plans in the office of W. T. Gaston, business manager.

The entrance will be on the east.

Food Blockade To Spain And France Lifted

British Agree To Plan; Red Cross To Dispatch Ship

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The American Red Cross announced today that it has planned to dispatch an American ship late this month loaded with condensed milk and other relief supplies for unoccupied France and a consignment of flour and milk for Spain.

In addition, Chairman Norman Davis said that the Red Cross had offered to the Spanish government on certain conditions a cargo of wheat or flour, apparently a separate ship load, to meet the immediate needs of the civilian population.

Fear Actual Famine

The plans were made for the relief shipments following an agreement with the British government for their passage through the blockade.

There was talk in informed quarters that, should these first steps be successful and the two countries retain sufficient freedom of political control from Axis powers, there might develop a continuing American relief program in Spain and unoccupied France.

Chairman Davis said that the situation with reference to children in Spain was "particularly critical." "Indeed, wheat, rye and other cereals are so short as to present not only a menace to the health of the whole population, but in some

Fascist Commander At Bardia Escapes

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 8 (AP) — British general headquarters said today that General Annibale Bergonzoli, Italian commander at Bardia, known to the British as "General Electric Whiskers," had escaped from the captured Italian base in eastern Libya and was still missing.

The British announcement of General Bergonzoli's disappearance said:

"It transpires that on the night before Bardia fell, the black shirt corps commander and his two black shirt (divisional) commanders deserted their troops, leaving the regular commanders to fight on. One of the blackshirt commanders has since been picked up with the bulk of his staff wandering north of Bardia."

Dallas Rail Branch May Be Abandoned

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP) — The Interstate Commerce commission authorized the Texas Electric Railway company today to abandon its 51 mile branch from Dallas to Corsicana.

The abandonment was opposed by railway labor organizations. The ICC said about 40 employes would be affected, and that no arrangements had been made for reinstatement on other parts of the system.

Thirty-Six Hurt In Double Train Crash

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 8 (AP) — The Missouri Pacific railroad reported today 36 persons were bruised, cut or shaken up, five of them requiring hospital attention, in a collision of two trains during a fog last night at Sabula, Iron county switching point.

The injured included three railroad employes, 20 passengers aboard "The Southerner," en route to St. Louis, and 13 on "The Sunshine Special," southbound to Texas.

Increase Of 42,000 Ordered In Fleet

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8— Secretary Knox announced today that President Roosevelt had authorized an increase of 42,000 in the manpower of the fleet. Simultaneously the navy chief ordered a far-reaching shake-up in fleet command and organization.

Knox disclosed the presidential action and his own orders at a press conference at which he also was asked about the possibility of making additional United States destroyers available to the British.

Would Impair Efficiency

"I don't think any more destroyers can be detached from our fleet without seriously impairing its efficiency," he declared.

He added, however, that the final decision was no: up to him.

Knox disclosed that the navy planned to ask Congress shortly for authority to build 280 auxiliary vessels, such as submarine chasers, mine sweepers, and patrol boats.

New Have Three Fleets

Knox said the nation's warships were being reorganized into three fleets—the United States Atlantic fleet, the United States Pacific fleet, and the United States Asiatic fleet.

He declared this as "a rearrangement which really fits the facts."

The principal change will be in the name of the present Atlantic patrol force. That force has been built up gradually, Knox said, until it now includes about 125 ships.

Kimmel New Chief

Knox announced that Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel was replacing Admiral James O. Richardson as commander in chief of the United States Pacific fleet. He also becomes commander in chief of the combined fleets.

Admiral Richardson will report to the secretary of the navy for undisclosed duty.

The new commander in chief of the fleets is a native of Henderson, Ky. At present he commands the cruises of the United States battleforce.

SLAIN IN CHURCH—Mrs. Mary Jane McCarthy, 32, was killed by a shotgun blast in St. Andrews Catholic church in Grand Rapids, Mich. Her husband, Willis, 34, from whom she had been estranged, was held in Kent county jail under heavy guard following the shooting.

New Telephone Expansion Set

A $700,000 expansion and building program for 1941 was reported for the Southwestern Associated Telephone Co., by R. B. Fairly, president and general manager, who announced four construction projects for this immediate area.

Construction of a building and plant at Sundown, Hockley county oil field town 17 miles southwest of Levelland, has begun. Materials for the plant have been ordered and it is hoped by the time the building, being built by a private owner, is finished construction of the exchange can start. The exchange is expected to start with 100 to 125 subscribers, possibly more, if growth of the town continues.

Progress At Whiteface

Meantime, construction of a building in Whiteface, another oil field town west of Levelland, in Cochran county, is making good progress. Equipment for the exchange has been ordered. The capacity will be over 100 and the plant so arranged as to permit expansion.

Three toll line circuits from Lubbock to Levelland and three to Brownfield, are to be completed by April 1, Fairly said. These circuits are needed to handle the constantly

Reasons For Ration Failure Are Given

LONDON, Jan. 8 (U.P.) — For the first time since the beginning of the war Britain failed last week to meet the meat ration, Lord Woolton, food minister, disclosed today.

There were excellent reasons for this, Woolton said in a luncheon address, among them, diversions of shipping to Libya.

"Would you rather have a little less meat for a week or two or would you rather have Bardia?" he asked.

"There was that precise question that had to be faced," he said.

Strecker Case Back In News

(By The Associated Press)

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 8 — The government today reopened the widely publicized Joseph George Strecker "Communist" case, once linked with efforts to deport Harry Bridges, California labor leader.

Strecker, saved from deportation as a Communist by the supreme court in 1939, was arrested yesterday in Hot Springs, Ark., and sent to New Orleans where immigration officials said he might still be returned to his native Austria under the 1940 alien act.

To Receive Hearing

Eugene Kessler, director of immigration and naturalization for the New Orleans district, said:

Increase In Number Of G-Men Is Asked

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (U.P.) — President Roosevelt today asked Congress to increase the number of G-men agents to more than 2,000 to protect the United States against the plots of saboteurs and spies.

The chief executive, who warned earlier this week that foreign agents and their dupes comprise the vanguard of invasion, asked an appropriation of $16,250,000 for the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—Ralph Rosenbaum, 40, a quick-tongued auctioneer, told police a man accosted him demanding "gimme your dough."

"Shucks, I'm broke and was just going to ask you for a dime," Rosenbaum countered.

The holdup man handed over two dimes.

English Force Massed; Siege Is Prepared

U. S.-Made Planes Taking Part In African "Push"

(By The Associated Press)

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 8.—The British army of the Nile massed men and guns in the Tobruk area today preparatory to laying siege to that major Libyan port, reported already cut off except for the movement of small Italian patrols.

"The concentration of our forces in the Tobruk area is continuing," the British command said tersely in telling of the speedy sweep of its forces across the Libyan desert sands in their race against time for "another Bardia."

Casualties Said Low

Tobruk, 70 miles beyond captured Bardia, was reported already blocked from the west by British troops firmly holding the Italian-built road which threads through the desert. Small Fascist patrols may be able to get through, the British reported, but asserted their forces were in a position to nip the movement of any reinforcements to the defenders of Tobruk.

In the capture of Bardia with its 30,000 Italian prisoners, the British communique reported, British and Australian casualties numbered "less than 600."

Gayda Refutes Claim

Already the British were declared to have rendered 94,000 Italian troops "ineffective" in the battle of North Africa, including the Bardia prisoners and those captured or killed there and at Sidi Barrani.

(Virginio Gayda, the authoritative Fascist editor, declared in Rome today that British "dead and wounded" at Bardia numbered "thousands.")

May Mean Disaster

Elsewhere on the African front, the British high command reported continued patrol activity on the border between the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan and Kenya.

He Was Celebrating Release, No Doubt

Ho, hum! What monotony!

At 10:30 o'clock Tuesday night he was back in custody, on a similar charge.

"He has a good chance to get a duplicate sentence," said a police spokesman.

Nazi Drive To South Doubted

(By The Associated Press)

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 8—The hubbub caused by the flood of German troops through Rumania toward the Bulgarian frontier was regarded by some Balkan observers today as possibly only a Nazi smoke screen to mask preparations elsewhere for a blow at Great Britain, or Gibraltar.

Pointing to the unconcealed massing of perhaps 600,000 troops across the Danube in Rumania, these sources commented it had not been the practice of the reich to publicize its blitzkriegs in advance.

Nazis Apparently Amused

They added that the Balkans had been used before to divert attention—as last May when German troops appeared near the Yugoslav and Hungarian frontiers just before the Nazi armies of the west struck in to the low countries.

(Chuckling at the wide speculation as to the purpose of the Nazi troop movements through Rumania, an authorized German spokesman commented in Berlin two days ago: "It's a splendid fog, and others made it for us.")

Encouraged Rumors

German sources in the Balkans have encouraged, rather than discouraged, talk that the German troops might strike to the south toward Greece or Turkey, reported to have 400,000 troops massed in Thrace.

Most Germans here say, aside from the talk about Balkan developments, that the war will be decided not here nor in Africa, but on the British Isles.

Counterman James Parsons, who likes to be a good guy, found the chef was out of beans, and passed the stranger a bowl of soup.

"I asked for beans, not soup," he said, stalking out into the cold night.

Other Big Sums Will Be Sought To Aid Allies

BY IRVING PERLMETER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—President Roosevelt asked Congress today for $17,485,528,049 in an unprecedented 'peace-time' budget reflecting a world at war and the huge cost of preparing for total defense.

Mr. Roosevelt allotted $10,811,314,600 of his 1942 budget exclusively to national defense, estimated the deficit for the year beginning July 1 at $9,210,043,049 and foretold a public debt pushed by that deficit to a record $58,367,065,056 by June 30, 1942.

The budget made no provisions for the cost of aid to Britain, Greece and China—an extensive program to be covered in subsequent appropriations request. Congressional leaders said that the overall cost of this alone might eventually total $10,000,000,000, but were uncertain now how great the actual cash outlay would have to be for the first year.

Only "A Forecast"

Irrespective of these future aid requests, nothing in treasury history compared with the huge figures presented to the Senate and House since the last year of the World war when rpending reached $18,522,895,000 and the deficit $13,370,638,000.

"A wry turn of fate places this burden of defense on the backs of a peace-loving people," the president said of the budget which was read by clerks.

BOY, THIS IS SPENDING!

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (U.P.) — Getting the budget down to the minute: The government will be spending money at the rate of $33,267.75 every minute in 1942 to account for the total estimated expenditures of $17,485,528,049.

But, Mr. Roosevelt continued, even these big sums,—62 per cent of them earmarked for defense—were only "a forecast of things to come. ...No one can predict the ultimate cost of a program that is still in development."

Asks Increased Taxes

The sole guiding "marker" down the road, he added, was "a command to defend our democratic way of life."

In line with the assertion of his annual message that the nation put "patriotism ahead of pocketbooks" in helping defray defense costs, the chief executive called for increased taxation, but made no specific recommendations.

Counting today's recommendations, the president estimated that since June 1940, defense appropriations, authorizations and requests aggregated $28,480,000,000.

May Be Boosted

The only reason today's requests were not higher, he told reporters, was industry's apparent inability to produce any more weapons than had been budgeted.

In this connection, however, Mr. Roosevelt revealed a $3,000,000,000 program of factory construction to increase industrial capacity—mostly privately financed—and said the budget still might be boosted if some of these new factories could get in production quickly enough.

Revenues To Reach High

Tax revenues, he said, would reach the highest point in American history at $8,275,435,000 in the 1942 fiscal period, but Congress should enact more — deciding itself the

'Burgers Gone For England

BY WILLIAM DOWNS
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Jan. 8—A good hamburger—"all the way" American style—is rarer today than a gold nugget in England. To an American correspondent just arrived here that is a blow below the belt.

There is no famine here, but there are a number of reasons why construction of that American delicacy is impossible.

Onions, Meat Scarce

Firstly, the meat grinder probably already has been donated for use in making British cannon. Secondly, getting the meat is no simple task. It takes an hour of standing in line provided you get there ahead of the housewives, who seem intuitively to know when the best meat is sold.

As for socially outcast onion, the vital part it plays is generally unrecognized until you eat food prepared without it. Onions are as hard to find here as tennis balls in Yankee stadium.

Lettuce Practically Forgotten

The hamburger's traditional sweet pickle relish also is difficult to get because sugar, a vital ingredient, is one of the most severely rationed foods here. So, the plain vinegar dill has to do.

Lettuce, which must not be forgotten in the completed 'burger, is practically unheard of here today. You have to be careful about or-

Striped Cover Gives Square Look To This Studio Couch And What's More You Can Make It Yourself At Home

By MARGARET KERNODLE
Associated Press Feature Writer

You can give your studio couch a new square look when you make that next slip cover.

It's a tricky idea and easy to execute. You change the appearance by using a striped fabric for the cover.

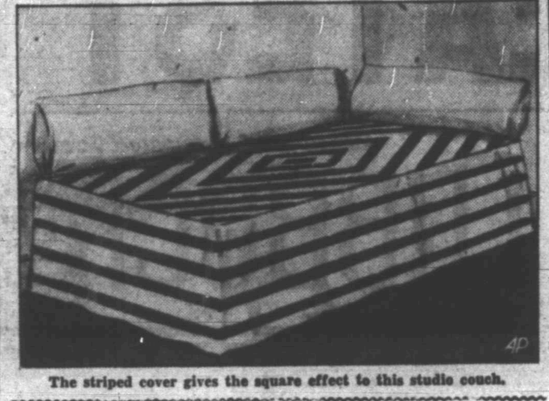

You match stripes into diamond-shaped squares on the top of the cover, but make the stripes run horizontally around the sides.

Eight yards of 50-inch fabric will be enough material. The cost will be about six dollars if you do the simple sewing at your machine and make use of the attachments. Your local sewing center can show you shortcuts perhaps.

For a four-by-six couch, cut four square pieces of equal size to cover the top, allowing an inch on all sides for seams. In matching the pieces, allow the stripes of two squares to go one way, the others at right angles. Stitch these together half an inch from the edge with flat inside seams.

For the skirt, cut two 50-by-22-inch pieces so that stripes are horizontal along the 22-inch sides. Then cut four pieces the same length but only 37 inches wide. Stitch two of these into one strip 74 inches long and 22 inches wide and the remaining two pieces the same way.

Now you can join the four long and short strips and stitch them with the cording foot attachment into a box-like arrangement. The skirt is joined to the top with a corded edge.

The striped cover gives the square effect to this studio couch.

Italy Calls Up Young Troops

(By The United Press)

ROME, Jan. 8—Italy is calling to the colors for army and airforce service its military class of 1922, composed of an estimated 250,000 youths 19 years of age, the war ministry announced today.

Previously, Gen. Alfredo Guzzoni, under-secretary of war, disclosed in an order of the day that the class of 1921—youths of 20 years—was being called.

Get Intensive Training

The 1922 class will be given intensive military training after taking the regular medical examination to determine fitness for service.

Youths of the class already have undergone two years of so-called pre-military training, during which they engaged in regular war maneuvers.

(Rome had reported that the call fo. the 1921 class was normal except that recruits normally were not called until the end of March of the year allotted for their compulsory service.

Called In Advance

(However, the authoritative statesmen's year book and the German-published Almanach De Gotha list Italian military service as starting at the 21st year.

(This would make it appear that the class of 1921 had been called one year in advance and the class of 1922 two years in advance of normal.)

Gen. Guzzoni, in his order of the day to the class of 1921, said it would be known as the "victory class."

RAF Claiming Hits On Base

(By The Associated Press)

ATHENS, Jan. 8—British bombers raided the mid-Albanian base of Elbasani today through snow, sleet and rain, dropping heavy explosives and incendiary bombs on military supply buildings, the RAF command in Greece reported.

Despite poor visibility, the RAF communique declared, fliers could see hits on several buildings and fires which were started by the bombs.

Meatless Days Boosted

A government order today increased the number of meatless days from five to six. Hereafter meat may be served only on Sunday. Chicken is still permissible on Thursdays and fish any day.

The Italians, it was reported here, have moved many civilians out of Valona in preparation for a final defense of the port as the Greeks continued their advance along the coast and farther east. There was exceptionally heavy artillery action over the whole front.

Many Prisoners Taken

Red Cross figures show the Greeks have taken more than 14,000 prisoners since the beginning of the war. Besides these, the Italians are said to have shipped 35,000 sick and wounded home from the port of Valona alone.

The Greeks were said to be advancing around Tepeleni and Klisura, menacing the Italian communications leading back to the port of Valona, 30 miles to the northwest.

England's Fleet Now Spells Difference In Conflict, Says Expert

Land Invasion Is Emphasized

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

If you want a gauge by which to measure the military potentialities of the chief belligerents in the European war—and maybe pick yourself the winner—you can take it from the conquest of Bardia in the Libyan desert.

Bardia fell in a simultaneous triple assault—from land, from the air and from the sea. Here we have the perfect example of the efficiency of a combination of the three fighting services working in unison.

Need All Facilities

Such a coordination of the forces of a first class power is calculated to be invincible, unless countered in kind.

If you can name the belligerent which has the three services best developed, or has the facilities for developing them well and rapidly, then you may have found the potential winner of the war. The country lacking any one of these three fighting arms is laboring under a terrible handicap.

That country is like the old-fashioned milking stool, with one of its legs missing. Every see one of those three-legged contraptions? I've been kicked off one by an unladylike cow, and know that the stool can't stand without all three legs.

Fleet Chief Difference

The Italians at Bardia had two of the services—a strong, mechanized land force and an air fleet. They also were protected by stout fortifications and big guns. But because they lacked the sea-power they couldn't withstand the British triple assault. Other causes contributed to the defeat but the want of the naval arm was fundamental.

The Greco-British victory over the Italians in Greece and Albania was at least partly due to the fact that the Allies could call on the British fleet, thereby being able to counter the Fascists in all three services—and with greater skill.

Should Be Land Invasion

France was plowed under by the Germans partly because she was woefully weak in the air—partly because of other circumstances, including Nazi fifth column activities.

These and other operations of the war have taught us another basic truth. Most experts now agree that, if we are dealing with major powers, there isn't likely to be complete victory without invasion by land. Sea power and air power, either separately or together, might almost achieve defeat of the enemy, but the mopping up operation must be performed by the hob-nailed infantry.

Nazis Realize Task

That's why Germany is straining every nerve to try to find an opening to invade England. Hitler has used everything he had in an effort to knock John Bull out, and now recognizes that he must get troops ashore to do the job.

The Nazi chief probably could have achieved this long ago had he not lacked one of the great fighting arms—a navy.

The British have the world's biggest navy, which virtually commands the seas. She has the other two fighting services, both of which she is rounding into shape with the aid of United States industries.

AND SOME PLACE TO GO—Judging by the ermine and lace, this young lady was going some place pretty swanky. She was—to the opening of Palm Beach's most exclusive night club. Her name: Christine Cromwell, daughter of James H. R. Cromwell, husband of the former Doris Duke.

MANY FSA AWARDS

AMHERST—Fifty Lamb county farm families produced 65 per cent of their 1940 living at home, it was announced here. Twenty-one other families produced 75 per cent or more. Blue ribbons were presented to the 21 and red ribbons to the others by Farm Security administration.

Fifth Column Work In Mexico Denied

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 8 (AP)—Minister of the Interior Miguel Aleman ridiculed today the possibility of fifth column activities assuming serious proportions in Mexico.

In answer to an inquiry in a press conference, the minister said: "Mexico is mainly rural. The arrival of any foreigner in rural districts is known within a few minutes. His every action is followed in its minutest details, if only as a matter of idle curiosity."

"In Mexico City," he added, "it would be easier to act with a certain amount of secrecy, but as occurs in every large city, the police are well able to keep foreign activities under surveillance."

Referring to an unsuccessful German legation protest against exhibition here of Charlie Chaplin's film, "The Great Dictator," Aleman said the government would maintain the policy of freedom of expression and opinion.

FISHING IN ERIE SHIFTS

'Scattered British Industry Is Secret Of Survival Against Raids

'So What!' Is English Retort

BY TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 8—While German night bombers in four months of blitz against England had laid waste some cities and blasted and burned huge hunks out of others, British officials claim that damage to the island's essential war industry so far has been surprisingly small.

Naturally, the extent of damage to military objectives in individual raids is a closely-guarded secret. That is the reason official communiques constantly refer to the destruction of "homes, churches and shops" and never mention the factories, railroads or bridges have suffered as well.

Made Extensive Study

But the average of estimates I gathered from a large number of observers places damage to all war industry in the country at less than five per cent, while damage to the aviation industry has been no more than ten per cent.

Just before I returned to New York from England as the old year ended, I made a week's intensive survey of the damage Nazi explosive and fire bombs had done to war industry.

Must Keep Up Production

Without official censorship, I went where I wanted to and saw what I wanted to. I visited factory after factory and talked to officials and workmen in every city that had been blitzed: Coventry, Southampton, Bristol, Birmingham, Liverpool, Manchester and scores of smaller industrial centers in the midlands.

I found many factories that had been destroyed or damaged sufficiently to stop production, but I found almost ten times as many that had not yet been hit.

And to your wartime Englishman all that matters is to keep up war production.

"Brutal Realism"

Two days before I left England, I talked with a high official who has charge of tabulating damage to what are officially termed "key points"—essential industry and communication.

"To us it is a question of brutal realism," he said.

"Naturally it's hard if your wife or children are killed by bombs, if the business your family has worked generations to build has been destroyed overnight. But as far as the war is concerned, to use one of your favorite American expressions: So what!

Coventry, Southampton Suffer

"Our factories are still turning out the arms with which to smash back at Germany, and our communication networks are still transporting them."

Apart from London the two hardest hit cities in England have been Coventry and Southampton. There the damage is almost unbelievably bad. After the war is over, it will take three to five years to rebuild them.

Manchester "Escapes"

In Bristol, there are districts so badly hit they make Coventry look like a thriving city. In Birmingham, whole sections, including part of its central business district, have been knocked into hollow shells of buildings.

Liverpool, on the other hand, has had it comparatively easy, while Manchester has come to be known as "the city the blitz forgot." Even the clocks are still running in Liverpool and Manchester.

In London, except for the east end, damage when I left was still spotty. The great fire raid on the "city" business district has happened since.

Much Open Space

But, even at that time, it was almost impossible to go more than two hundred yards in any direction without seeing spectacular evidence of bomb destruction.

However, approximately nine-tenths of greater London is open space—parks, rivers, lakes and streets. A large percentage of bombs dropped from high altitudes, even when carefully aimed, necessarily must explode harmlessly in these open areas.

There are apparently two reasons why bomb damage has been less than one might expect:

Industry Scattered

1. The way British industry has been scattered throughout the island over wide areas.
2. The basic difficulty of a night bomber flying at 12,000 or 13,000 feet planting sufficient direct hits on a comparatively small factory to put it out of action.

Before the war, the great complaint of British industry was that it was too decentralized. It is that same decentralization that today is making it possible for Britain to carry on.

I was at an aircraft factory one night when a Nazi bomber got in so close we thought our number was up. He dropped his first bomb about five hundred yards away and spaced the next three up to within forty yards of the main building.

The next one had to be a direct hit. But it never came.

The anti-aircraft guns ringing the factory had put up such a tremendous barrage that the Nazi had to bank and run to save his own skin before he had a chance to let that next one go.

HERE IS THE SEAGOING "road to Singapore" reported blueprinted by American naval experts as a safe wartime route to the Far East. Existing and proposed naval stations and air bases on tiny islands in the Pacific form a chain linking the U. S. and Hawaii with British bases in the Orient.

Blaze Spreads In Greenville

GREENVILLE, Jan. 8 (U.P.)—Hungry flames that ate through four buildings in downtown Greenville were brought under control in a five-hour fight early today after causing an estimated $75,000 damage.

Cause of the fire, which originated in the Southern cafe about midnight, was not known, but several cafe patrons were knocked to the floor by an explosion in the rear of the two-story building, giving first warning of the blaze.

Blaze Spreads Swiftly

Spreading swiftly despite efforts of the Greenville fire department, the fire destroyed the first floor cafe and second story, then licked through an adjoining dress shop, across an empty building and into the Rialto theater before weary firemen finally gained the upper hand.

The theater suffered heavy water and smoke damage while the two buildings between it and the cafe were burned badly.

For a time fire department officials considered calling for reinforcements from Sulphur Springs and Wolfe City, but the Greenville firemen were able to control the fire by themselves.

Excuse Or Not, He Got Ticket Anyway

DALLAS, Jan. 8 (AP)—Policeman L. O. Jones curbed a motorist here last night who had run a boulevard stop sign.

"What's the hurry?" asked the policeman.

"I was trying to catch the car ahead to tell that fellow his tail light isn't burning," said the motorist.

He got a ticket.

FDR Appoints New, Powerful Defense Body To Speed Up Industry

Nation Urged To Cooperate

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 — Four men, chosen by President Roosevelt as an industrial general staff with sweeping powers to complete the arming of the nation, called today on all Americans to subordinate everything to "the necessity of defense."

President Roosevelt set up the new and powerful defense group when he signed an executive order late yesterday establishing an "office of production management" and named William S. Knudsen director general; Sidney Hillman associate director general, and Navy Secretary Knox and War Secretary Stimson as members.

To Speed Up Work

Stripped of detail, their task is to put the full drive of industrialized America behind the defense program which has been lagging in several important phases.

Even before their formal commissions were signed, the new board members joined in a statement urging the cooperation of capital and labor and of "every man, woman, and child in the United States if we are to make this arsenal in America adequate to the successful defense of democracy and freedom."

Given Broad Powers

The president's order creating the agency gave the four the broadest executive powers, including authority to "formulate and execute in the public interest all measures needful and appropriate in order to increase, accelerate, and regulate the production and supply of materials, articles and equipment and the provision of emergency plant facilities and services required for the national defense."

That power is sufficient, Mr. Roosevelt said, to permit the OPM to commandeer the plants of ramshackle manufacturers.

Commission Still Functions

Although the board is an adjunct of the presidency, Mr. Roosevelt said the members would come to him for a final decision only in case of a policy disagreement. He added that he expected such instances to be rare.

The existing National Defense Advisory commission of seven members, including Knudsen and Hillman, the latter as labor member, will continue to function as before, the president said, with some personnel shifts to complete the new set-up.

The OPM will have three administrative divisions—production, headed by John Biggers, Ohio glass manufacturer who has been an assistant to Knudsen; purchases, headed by Donald M. Nelson, a Sears, Roebuck official and former priorities administrator; and priorities, headed by Edward R. Stettinius, jr.

Tobruk "Cut Off"

ized cavalry constitute such a threat that the Italians must withdraw from British military circles said.

An attempt to defend Tobruk, whose outer fortifications already have been tested by British armored patrols, may result in a major disaster for the Italian army, these circles said.

Once the army of the Nile, supported by the British fleet and the RAF, lays siege to that Libyan port, its defenders never will reach Bengasi, more than 200 miles to the west, the British declare.

It was announced the Royal Air Force had dropped tons of bombs on Tripoli Monday night, hitting one vessel in the harbor squarely, damaging others and setting port buildings afire.

An RAF official disclosed last night that American-made planes had made their first appearance with the British middle east forces during the present Libyan campaign, and had done "exceptionally good work."

Col. William J. Donovan, who recently has been in London on an undisclosed mission from the United States, arrived in Cairo by plane last night. He is staying in the British embassy.

Programs At Camps

Fairly said the company had two new exchange programs for army camps, one at Hitchcock, near Galveston and the other at Camp Hulen, near Palacios, nearing completion. Both programs came up unexpectedly due to the national defense program.

Regular improvement program for the company, one of the largest independent telephone concerns in the southwest, will be carried out, according to Fairly.

Ground Broken

The front of the press building will be a few feet back of the front of the library building. According to the original college plans, the main engineering building would eventually be extended to the southward. Location of the press building would not interfere with such a plan.

Cecil Horne, head professor of journalism at the college, said excavation work had begun when he arrived at the college at 8 o'clock. There were no formalities in connection with breaking of ground.

In celebrating the birthday of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, "father" of the Republic of China, the Chungking government urged people to contribute toward the "National Reconstruction fund."

MARKET CALM

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (AP) — The market took with relative calm today revelation of the administration's plans to spend $13,000,000,000 or more in the next three years on defense.

A creeping forward move started even before the president's budget message was delivered, reached its best — advances of fractions to a point or more for leaders—in mid-afternoon, and slacked off some at the close.

Clinging to all or part of their gains at the finish were Bethlehem, United Aircraft, U. S. Gypsum, Owens Illinois, Santa Fe, New York Central, U. S. Rubber, pfd., Cerro De Pasco and International Nickel.

Trading was leisurely throughout. Turnover approximated 700,000 shares.

Commodities were favorites as the spending plans promised great demand for industrial materials.

In the curb advances occurred in American Hard Rubber, Creole, Heyden Chemical, Eastern Malleable Iron, Montgomery Ward "A" and Pittsburgh & Lake Erie. Rails were strong in the bond market.

LORD BADEN-POWELL

Scout Founder Death Victim

(By The Associated Press)

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony, Jan. 8—Lord Baden-Powell, 83, a veteran soldier who spent the last 30 years of his life working for peace as the founder of the Boy Scout movement, died today at his home in Nyeri, Kenya Colony.

He had been in precarious health since last November, when he suffered a series of severe heart attacks.

Had Visited U. S.

A lineal descendant of the early American settler, John Smith, Lord Baden-Powell had visited the United States on numerous occasions—the last time in April, 1937, when he delivered a radio address to the Boy Scouts of the world from San Francisco.

He was a guest of President Roosevelt at the White House in July, 1935, while in Washington to inspect the site for the first national jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America.

Lord Baden-Powell founded the Boy Scouts in 1910, following his retirement from the British army, to "promote good citizenship in the rising generation" and to further peace through the advancement of international understanding.

Abandoned Active Life

He had resided in Nyeri since 1937, when "a tired heart" forced him to abandon his active life in London.

At the time of his departure for Nyeri, he told friends:

"I've had a long inning—I'd rather die in Africa where my heart is than anywhere."

Baden-Powell, a veteran soldier and a retired lieutenant-general, had served with the British armed forces in Africa during the Boer war and participated in the famous defense of Mafeking.

His home at Nyeri, where he spent his last days, was a bungalow on the slopes of Mount Kenya, where he was able to live much in the open air—a practice which he had long recommended as the secret of good health.

Two Serious Operations

He underwent two serious operations in London in 1934, but his vigorous constitution speeded his recovery despite his 77 years.

In 1937, before his departure for Africa, Lord Baden-Powell was on the coronation honors list, receiving the order of merit from the newcrowned King George VI.

Although known best for his work with the Boy Scouts, Baden-Powell also founded the Girl Scouts of which his widow is the British head.

Hamburgers Scarce

dering it even in the best hotels so as not to embarrass the waiter or show your ignorance.

So Are Other Essentials

However, something along the lines of lettuce can be improvised from Brussel sprouts, which have the same standing in England as beans in the navy.

Butter is to be had, of course, but what the ordinary American hamburger stand puts on one sandwich is the equivalent of a whole day's ration. Mayonnaise is just another French word that has little meaning now.

That is why you go to your favorite snack bar or restaurant and order—"fish and chips."

Sausage Most Plentiful

Many butchers are running out of beef and even tripe, kidneys, fowl, pork and rabbits, and some are giving their customers "iron rations" to tide them over the weekend. Hotels and restaurants are forced to accept half their quota and even the wealthier diners are getting their vitamins from potatoes, peas, cabbage and—Brussel sprouts.

Sausage seems to be the most plentiful meat. It looks and tastes like sausage, but the consistency of the meat in it seems more like bread or potatoes.

There is no danger, however, that England will become vegetarian or starve. The people accept the new restrictions as part of the war for victory. The army may travel on its stomach, but the Englishman travels on his bulldog determination not to be beaten even if he has to go without rare roast beef.

AMERICAN KILLED

LONDON, Jan. 8 (AP)—Philip Howaard Leckrone, 28, of Salem, Ill., a member of the American Eagle squadron of the Royal Air Force, was killed in a flying accident Sunday, the air ministry announced today.

FDR Asks Huge Budget Outlay

types and amounts of the new levies.

National income, the president predicted, also would rise to a new record of about $87,000,000,000 in the fiscal year—exceeding 1929 by $7,000,000,000—and thereby would produce the greater tax yields.

Upholds Domestic Program

Turning to non-defense costs, which he cut $600,000,000, from the 1941 totals, the chief executive explained the absence of deeper reductions in these words:

"Democracy as a way of life is equally at stake. . . . Only by maintaining these activities (relief, social security, regular government activities, etc.) can we claim the effective use of resources which our democratic system is expected to yield, and thus justify the expenditures required for its defense."

Summarizes Defense Costs

Summarizing the $28,480,000,000 defense program, undertaken since last June, the president said it included $13,704,000,000 to multiply the army nearly six times (from 250,000 to 1,400,000) and equip it with the "most modern devices of motorized and mechanical warfare"; $11,587,000,000 to double the navy; $1,902,000,000 (of federal money plus other private billions) to help expand factories to produce airplanes at an eventual 50,000 a year pace and to make other weapons; and $1,287,000,000 for such other defense activities as power projects and FBI surveillance of saboteurs.

Of the $10,811,314,600 allotted by the president for defense in the next fiscal year, $3,447,394,000 went to the navy, $5,596,600,600 to the army, $407,320,000 to scattered agencies including the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and $1,000,000,000 was left blank for future allotment.

Visualizes Sale Of Bonds

Mr. Roosevelt visualized a program necessitating the sale of government securities on a scale possibly rivaling the World war days when "four minute speakers" interrupted theater programs to sell liberty bonds.

Failure of financially able persons to buy bonds, he told reporters, might, in fact, be considered unpatriotic.

The anticipated federal debt of $58,367,065,056—it was $16,185,308,000 when the annual deficits started in 1931 and now stands at $45,000,000,000—would require raising the present limit of $49,000,000,000.

Questions Statutory Limit

Congress might want to set a new limit as a "fiscal monitor," the president said, but "I question the significance of a statutory debt limit." Congress, he explained, can automatically regulate the debt by limiting appropriations.

The big question mark left by the president was how much more money would be needed for the United States to buy airplanes and other weapons and "lend" them to "democracies" abroad resisting the "aggressors." The British already have submitted a detailed list for $3,000,000,000 worth and some officials have put the ultimate cost as high as $10,000,000,000.

Aid Spread Over Years

In placing the ultimate cost that high, officials emphasized, however, that it would be spread over a period of years. They said that the British, for example, had made cash commitments for virtually all of the supplies on which they can receive delivery this year, so that any additional cash outlay under a "lease-lend" plan would be relatively small during the 1942 budget period.

The president explained that "lending" estimates could not be included in the budget because they had not yet been authorized by Congress, but said that he would ask immediately for some appropriations and contract authorizations.

Pay Cash For Some Time

He would not name an amount, but cautioned that the British would pay cash for some time to come on existing orders, and that the actual cash outlay from the United States treasury for British aid in the next fiscal year might be relatively small.

Showing how the defense program already had affected the nation's finances, he estimated that expenditures in the current 1941 fiscal year ending June 30 would total $13,202,370,970, including $6,463,923,900 for defense. Revenues were figured at $7,012,830,000, and the deficit at $6,189,400,970, to lift the public debt to $49,156,972,000.

Cargo Construction Covered

These figures reflected the initial effect of defense spending on the treasury's ledgers. Just a year ago, before expansion of the "total defense" program, the president's budget called for expenditures of $8,424,191,570, including $1,840,000,000 for defense, and a deficit of only $2,176,231,570.

Under various headings the budget message provided for $350,000,000 in cash and authorizations to cover President Roosevelt's recently announced plans for the rapid construction of 200 cargo vessels—a program which some officials believe will make possible eventual release of more merchant shipping to Britain.

Embarked On Total Defense

The president also requested $100,000,000 in cash and $25,000,000 in authorizations to replenish the special emergency defense fund which Congress placed at his disposal during the last session. The previous grant of $100,000,000 in cash and a like amount in contract authorizations was utilized to expedite the start of work on the naval bases acquired from Britain, to get plans under way for the cargo vessel program, and for other defense purposes.

At the outset of the 1,072-page book comprising the budget, Mr. Roosevelt asserted that it was "a reflection of a world at war," and added:

"Carrying out the mandate of the people, the government has embarked on a program for the total defense of our democracy.

Forced To Build

"This means warships, freighters, tanks, planes and guns to protect us against aggression; and jobs, health and security to strengthen the bulwarks of democracy. . . .

"The threatening world situation forces us to build up land, sea and air forces able to meet and master any contingency. It is dangerous to prepare for a little defense. It is safe only to prepare for total defense.

"Total defense means more than weapons. It means an industrial capacity stepped up to produce all the material for defense with the greatest possible speed."

Affects Air Program

For the nation's workers he foresaw more jobs, and intensive training to fit men and women into the new jobs. He explained that a civilian training program—still incomplete and possibly requiring more funds than shown in the budget—was being prepared, to enlarge current activities in which 1,000,000 persons are participating.

Part of the plan, Mr. Roosevelt said, will be a change in the civilian pilot training program to emphasize preparation for military flying.

"Ordinary" Costs Covered

The president said anticipated receipts for 1942 would be $1,600,000,000 more than the cost of non-defense governmental activities, and that this margin was enough to cover "ordinary" military costs on the scale practiced by the United States up to about two years ago.

Although he reported that the defense program was making many new jobs, Mr. Roosevelt said a large WPA program would still be necessary both because the program could not absorb immediately all the unemployed and because many WPA workers were physically or mentally incapable of full-time employment.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 8 (AP)—The telephone rang in the home of Carl Farnham and a voice said: "Hello, Carl? What about that accident last night?"

Farnham knew of no accident and promptly said so.

"Gosh, I must have the wrong party," continued the voice on the other end. "My girl friend went driving with another fellow and they had an accident. The only thing I know about him is that his first name is Carl.

"I'm calling all the Carls in the 'phone book. Four more to go. Sorry to bother you."

sections actual famine," Davis said.

Hull again flatly denied that the state department had at any time ever considered granting Spain a loan of $100,000,000.

The French and Spanish governments are being notified, Davis said, that the Red Cross is ready to proceed with the emergency relief shipment under certain conditions.

These conditions were not specified but they were believed to involve assurances of complete freedom for Red Cross authorities in distributing and handling the supplies.

Program Outlined

In the case of France, Davis outlined the following relief program which he said had the approval of President Roosevelt:

1. Relief shipments to be confined to medical supplies in the strict sense, dried or canned milk, children's clothing and with certain exceptions, vitamin concentrates.

2. Distribution to be effected solely by the American Red Cross either direct from its own warehouses or under strict supervision to children's hospitals and clinics.

3. Extent of this program to depend on developments and the fulfillment of the general conditions of the agreement.

Finland, too, may get supplies later, it was reported.

The French shipments were expected to include vitamin products reported badly needed by some two million children faced with malnutrition.

Salvation Army To Seek Service Fund

DALLAS, Jan. 8 (AP) — Brigadier William George Gilks, divisional commander for the Salvation Army of Texas, said today that a statewide campaign would be launched within a few days to obtain funds for the organization's service programs at Texas military training camps.

The Salvation Army already is making plans, Gilks said, for suitable buildings in which to carry on its work at Brownwood, San Antonio and Palacios.

The last census of New South Wales, in 1938, showed roughly 1,380,000 males and 1,356,000 females.

Tech Men To Attend Meet

Several faculty members of Texas Technological college will attend the Texas Agricultural Workers association meeting in San Antonio Friday and Saturday.

Dr. A. W. Young, head professor of plant industry, and W. L. Stangel, head professor of animal husbandry, will attend a meeting of the executive committee and board of directors Thursday night, Dr. Young is a member of the board and Stangel is treasurer of the association. R. E. Dickson, superintendent of the experiment station at Spur, also is a member of the board.

Dr. Young To Speak

Dr. Young will lead a discussion in the plant industry section Friday afternoon, following a paper by H. P. Smith, chief of the division of agricultural engineering of the Texas Agricultural Experiment station, at College Station. Smith's paper will be on "The Significance of Different Methods of Harvesting Cotton."

Ray L. Chappelle, head professor of agricultural education at Tech, will speak in the animal industries section Friday afternoon on "The Relation of FFA and 4-H Club Boys to Future Development of the Various Phases of Livestock Production in Texas."

Chappelle, Stangel and Dr. Young will leave Thursday.

R. L. Lee, jr., head of the department of textile engineering, is arranging a Tech exhibit to be shown at the meeting. It will show steps in the cotton manufacturing process, effects of grades of cotton on the color when dyed, and some photomycrographs showing cross sections of cotton fibers. Lee may attend the conference.

R. E. Karper of the Lubbock experiment station and Dickson will go to San Antonio together.

how the president's own head looks inside . . .

"The message constitutes provocation to Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia."

Roosevelt, the press said, completely misunderstands and misreads historical and territorial processes in Europe, yet "with an arrogance that simply cannot be excelled" tries to deny these processes and paint the German people to his American people as their enemy.

Means Little Now

"In former times," the press commented, "the American president's message to Congress used to be something which attracted attention of the whole world, but now our German people will simply shake their heads."

It seemed likely that German editors would take an extensive effort to show that America owes so much to German contributions that the president has no right to adopt a "holier than you" attitude toward Germany.

Roosevelt alone, it was said, is looking for military bases in Latin America for the United States, and no other nation has such designs.

Strecker Case

tive hearing at a time not yet decided before immigration officials here on charges that as an alien he is a member of the Communist party, which advocates overthrow of our existing government by force and violence, and therefore subject to deportation."

Contention Upheld

The supreme court upheld Strecker's contention that the fact he once joined the Communist party was not proof that he advocated "violent overthrow of the government."

Strecker came to this country in 1912 and worked as a laborer until he opened a restaurant in Hot Springs in 1919. In 1933, he said he went to a Communist meeting and, when asked for 60 cents, paid it and was given a card.

Legion Leader Urges Elimination Of Labor's "Need To Strike"

Defense Plans Are Explained

Elimination by law, if necessary, of the "need to strike" by labor working in national defense industries was advocated by Milo J. Warner of Toledo, Ohio, national commander of the American Legion, in an address in Senior High school auditorium here Tuesday night. An audience of approximately 600 persons heard him.

The national commander also disclosed to the audience that there now is in the hopper of the new session of Congress a measure which would require a year's military training of all young men between the ages of 18 and 21 years who, at the end of their period of active service, would become part of the armed reserve for about five years.

For Aid To Britain

His references to strikes in labor and to the pending legislation were included in an address which advocated the continuation of all possible aid short of war to Great Britain "because the welfare and defense of the United States demands it," and which reiterated the demands of the American Legion for a national defense so strong that America "can meet any intended invasion before it arrives and turn it back so that our homes will remain intact and no part of the United States will be destroyed."

At the close of his address, the national commander walked from the stage in a pair of Texas-made boots which were the gift of Lubbock's Allen Bros. post of the Legion. He changed from shoes to boots in the presence of the audience immediately after the presentation.

Must Be No Strikes

In his reference to labor, Warner emphasized that the Legion does not urge the abrogation of the "right of collective bargaining, nor the final weapon of the right to strike."

"We do believe, however, that in the face of national emergency there must be no strikes against the national defense," he continued. "We do say that in a national emergency, the ranks of labor must not provide a hiding place for alien agitators and un-American subverters. Without this non-American viper hiding his poison under the flower of free American labor, 80 per cent of what we know as labor trouble will not appear at all in the national defense program."

"I do not mean to say the right to strike shall be impaired. I mean to say the necessity to strike must be eliminated, and a better means of settlements with equal and fair-handed justice must be provided. If this cannot be done quickly, almost immediately, by agreement, then it can be done quite promptly by act of law."

Serve As Warning

In support of the proposed legislation under which young men between the ages of 18 and 21 years would be required to spend a year of active service in the military, he argued that it would "create such a vast reservoir of trained manpower that any nation knowing of it would hesitate a long time before bothering us."

Explaining that the American Legion, which now includes a membership of more than a million veterans of the first World war, has advocated for more than 20 years a national defense so strong as to preclude the danger of attack by aggressors, Warner related that as late as about two years ago the organization went on record as opposed to aid to any belligerent in any war not involving this nation.

"Since then, the tempo of the times has changed," he continued. "The wild hurricane overseas has brought to America the full impact of the threat of this nation. Since then Adolf Hitler has waged an undeclared war upon the United States and upon our form of government. He has arrayed totalitarianism against representative government as we know it.

America First

"The American Legion still stands, as it did then, for America—first, last and all the time. But it also is on record as favoring all the aid that can be given to Great Britain without weakening the national defense on the theory that such aid becomes a part of our defense. This, however, does not mean that we send troops to Europe, nor that we join side-by-side with Britain in the actual war with Germany."

The national commander arrived in Lubbock late in the afternoon after a noon address in Amarillo. He was escorted here by Chas. Whitacre of Lubbock, 19th district commander of the Legion, J. Louis Murfee, commander of the local post, and A. C. Jackson, a past post commander. Traveling with Warner on his present tour is his aide, Joseph Deutschle. Warner's official escorts as he travels across Texas with pauses for four major addresses are Edd Riedel of San Angelo, Texas state commander, and Fred E. Young of Port Arthur, state adjutant.

Other Visitors Here

Others prominent in the Legion here to honor the visiting officials included Rev. H. E. Markley of Wink, state chaplain; Lou Roberts of Borger, immediate past state commander; Charles Maisel of Phillips, fifth division commander; Howard Hudgens of Vernon, 15th district commander; J. Ward Moody of Odessa, 16th district commander; J. M. Johnson of Canadian, 18th district commander; W. A. Wilhite of Coleman, who resigned recently as 21st district commander to become head of the Veteran's state service office; Jim Willson of Floydada, immediate past 19th district commander and present national executive committee member; and Henry Teubel of Tulia, assistant district commander.

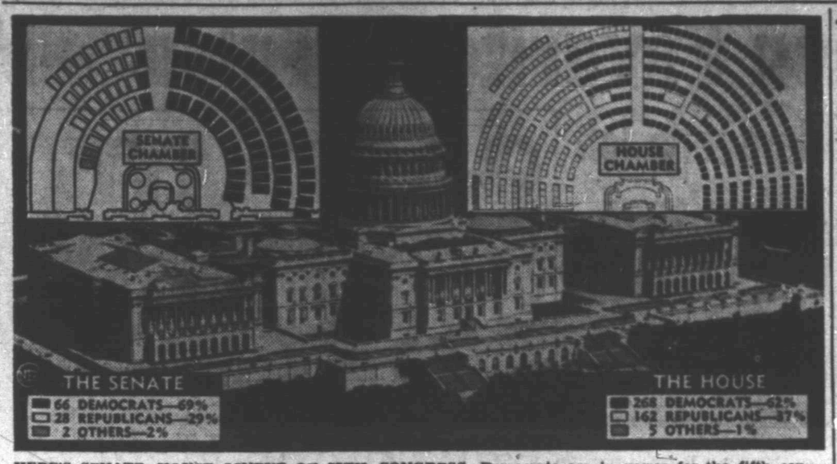

The national commander and several others were guests at a dinner in the Hilton hotel soon after arrival here.

To Speak At Belton

At the high school, the national guard band directed by Joe Haddon played a 30-minute concert before Murfee called the meeting to order. Mr. Markley asked the invocation. George Meiser sang a solo. Whitacre introduced several visitors before presenting Riedel, who introduced Warner. At the end of the national commander's speech, W. T. Strange, jr., presented the boots.

Among those introduced by Whitacre were several women prominent in the Legion auxiliary, including Mrs. George S. Berry of Lubbock, immediate past state president and present national committeewoman; Mrs. Tillman Jones of Post, past state president; Mrs. Elmer Anderson of Plainview, 19th district committeewoman, and Mrs. W. O. Daniels, president of the Lubbock auxiliary.

Warner, Riedel, Young and Deutschle left last night for Belton where the national commander is to speak at a dedication ceremony today.

Texas '41 License Plates Delivered

AUSTIN, Jan. 8 (U.P.)—Automobile, truck, tractor, trailer and motorcycle license plates for 1941 are now being delivered to county tax collector's offices but the state highway department warns they are not lawful for use until March 1. Operation of a vehicle without a 1941 license plate will be unlawful after March 31.

The 1941 plates for passenger cars have a black background with gold letters and figures. All other plates are the reverse, with gold background and black letters and figures.

Numbers for passenger vehicles only will start with number one. The others will start in higher brackets to distinguish the type of vehicle for which issued. Farm vehicle license numbers will start at 100,001. Commercial vehicle licenses will start with 300,001.

Draftees Must Pay Income Tax, Also

DALLAS, Jan. 8 (AP)—"Crisis—service" in the armed forces doesn't mean escape from Uncle Sam's income tax.

H. E. Arnold, chief of the income tax division of the internal revenue bureau here, said today that five field deputies will go to army camps at Brownwood and Mineral Wells to handle between 20,000 and 30,000 soldiers' income tax reports.

Instructions Regarding Personal Effects Given Draftees Who Will Report For Duty

A minimum of personal effects should be taken and trunks and automobiles should be left at home by men drafted into army service, according to instructions received by Lubbock county draft boards Tuesday from Major G. S. Armes of Fort Sam Houston, assistant adjutant general and chief of recruiting service in the Eighth Corps area.

In a statement to directors of selective service for Texas, Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico and Oklahoma, Major Armes sets forth what should and should not be brought by draftees to induction stations and also to camp.

Suggestions are:

Baggage, only minimum baggage should be brought. There is no provision for transporting or storage of trunks; barracks bags will be issued at reception centers. Foot lockers will be issued when selectee arrives at his organization.

Shoes, only one pair of comfortable and serviceable shoes, in good state of repair, is essential.

Autos, private autos are prohibited.

Athletic equipment, selectees should be encouraged to bring any athletic equipment they have.

Musical instruments, it is suggested that such musical instruments as guitars, banjos, etc., be brought.

Pictures, small photographs permitted but there will be no place for large pictures in barracks.

Fire arms and weapons, not permitted and will have to be returned to home of selectee at his own expense.

Liquor, not permitted. Any brought to induction stations or reception centers will be confiscated.

Visitors, facilities for housing and entertaining visitors in the vicinity of reception centers will be very limited.

Money and valuables, their safekeeping will be a responsibility of the individual men.

Books and periodicals, there will be stocked libraries and reading rooms available at reception centers and posts. It is suggested that periodicals received by mail, be not forwarded, until the selectee is sent from the reception center and arrives at his organization.

Postal cards, these will be furnished each selectee at the reception center for the purpose of notifying relatives and friends of his arrival at the reception center. Similar cards will be furnished when the selectee is transferred to his final center in order that his permanent address be known.

Toilet articles and wearing apparel, toilet articles, towels, and a limited amount of clothing in addition to that worn, such as shirts, underwear, socks and handkerchiefs are desirable. Uniforms and clothing will be issued to selectees within 24 hours after arriving at reception center.

SPINNING WHEEL CAFE OWNER LEARNS OF AID TO STOMACH DISTRESS

Mr. Steve Etter, Well-Known Lubbock Cafe Operator, Says Hoyt's Compound Relieved His System Of Poisons Caused By Constipation, Ended Gas And Bloating

MR. STEVE ETTER

The Hoyt Man at the Mark Halsey Drug Store, here in Lubbock, is in position to meet your friends and other well-known people who have suffered because so many of them come in to tell him of the marvelous relief they have found in Hoyt's Compound, the medicine he represents. Most of those same people have previously taken his word for it, and tried Hoyt's when he recommended it for indigestion, gas, sourness, bloating, kidney and bowel misery, nervousness, fatigue. He invites you to visit him, as did prominent Mr. Steve Etter of 1616 College Ave., Lubbock, who states:

"I have been bothered with stomach trouble for the past three years, and was unable to get any food that I could digest at all. The food that I ate formed gas on my stomach, and I bloated and was in misery all the time. I had become full of poisons from constipation.

"When I started taking Hoyt's Compound, all the gas and bloating in my stomach was relieved. I can now eat anything I desire without that fear of misery caused by gas and bloating. My food is digesting properly. I eat, sleep and feel much better than I have for a long time. My bowels are becoming more and more regular, poisons are leaving my system."

While this statement, and the thousands like it, is important, it is not unusual, for so many people have already learned that Hoyt's Compound is really a medicine in a class by itself. But for the benefit of those who have not yet discovered it, or who remain in doubt, the Hoyt Man is anxious to convince them by calling to their attention such widely-known people as Mr. Etter, known throughout Lubbock, who have used and benefitted by Hoyt's Compound. Never a day passes but the Hoyt Man learns of more folks who use Hoyt's, and who find relief in it. So why not drop in at the Mark Halsey Drug Store and let him tell you why it relieved them, and how it may help you? Hoyt's Compound is recommended and sold by the Mark Halsey Drug Store and by all leading druggists. Mail orders promptly filled. And don't forget, there's a vast saving to you when you stock up with six bottles at once, for only $5.00. It's equivalent to the price of two bottles at their individual price of $1.25. Or buy two bottles for $2.00, and save fifty cents.—Adv.

Texas Tech Athletic Council Turns Attention To Expected Grid Applications

Sportometer

Strictly Personal Letter

By Collier Parris

Dear Elmer,

Well, it has happened at last, as you probably saw in the newspapers. The newspapers were full of it. One of the best stories to break since our Uncle Sam discovered there was a war going on over in Europe.

You missed your guess, though; you thought it would happen five years ago. I held out for a full ten-year term—and missed it by a year. It came close to happening last year, too, and I would have been right, but I'm glad I wasn't because it was a rough year, and 1940 was a good year and it is nice that he can bow out on the wings of a good year.

Pete's been a helluva swell person this season. The 1940 season, I mean. Don't know whether you've ever read after the late Don Marquis and Archy the Cockroach, but if you have you'll get the idea. Transmigration, metempsychosis, etc. Well, Peter Willis transmigrated from Cawthon the Tyrant and the "wolf-bait," to Cawthon the Gentle and Sweet, from 1939 to 1940, and it was a pleasure to be around him during the grid season just lamented. We had a lot of fun, here and on the trips, especially to Milwaukee and San Francisco. Our relations never were more cordial, and, for a fact, we'd almost forgotten the previous disagreements, falling-outs and mutual stubbornness.

But all the time, for five years or more, we knew the hour would come when we'd write and read the stories of the current newspapers. There were differences that couldn't be corrected, and the agitation of time only widened the sore spots.

So now I'm sort of "lost," or something. Frankly, I'm a little worried. Like Pete, I'm a bit superstitious. You see, Elmer, I "broke in" with old Morley Jennings at Baylor university, and Baylor finally got rid of me, and I came out here to "break in" all over again. Jennings and I hit the Baylor campus at the same time. Pete Cawthon and I hit the Texas Tech campus at the same time, except that I didn't linger long on the campus because a new sports editor ought to stick close to his desk, especially after he has been warned to stay off the campus. Pete and I weren't strangers; we'd met years before, when he was officiating basketball games in the Southwest conference. We didn't need to be introduced. .

I wouldn't know what the fans think about the sports editor, and I don't give a darn what they think as long as they read my stuff; the more they bawl me out and the more they complain to my boss, the editor, the more they are reading of my stuff, and it's all hunky dory with me. I'm like the well-trained athlete who goes into professional sports and tells the sports writer: "Cuss me or praise me; lay me low or lift me high; I don't giveadam what you say, as long as you say something! When you leave me out altogether, I'm a dead duck."

Getting back to the subject, Elmer, I will say that I am not surprised at the turn of events; I was by no means knocked off my little swivel chair when I heard the news. I wasn't surprised at the "reason" given by Coach Cawthon for turning in his resignation. I knew, and you knew, that he wasn't getting along with the athletic council, and vice versa; particularly in regard to the chairman of the athletic council, who is one of the best judges of livestock in the country, but who has his own and peculiar ideas about how an athletic department should be run. Among his ideas, as you no doubt have affirmed by this time, is the "inadvisability of taking the press, particularly the local newspaper sports department, into confidence."

On the other hand, Elmer, the free advertising given to forthcoming home games is not only appreciated, but expected, in our columns.

As you know, it means nothing to the sports department, financially speaking, whether Texas Tech plays or doesn't play. The game is merely another news story, longer and more tiresome to write than a mention of "ladies day" at the Country club, and probably less appreciated.

I've been here nearly eleven years, Elmer, and I've made all the overtures to the Texas Tech Athletic council I am going to make. The council has "robbed" me of numerous "news breaks;" has been silent when I asked for news; has neglected to cooperate and has withheld important news that I should have known. It held up the Cawthon story, to a large extent, and made a monkey out of me.

Frankly, Elmer, I am "at outs" with the Texas Tech athletic council.

Frankly, Elmer, I do not believe in this or any other athletic council. I do not think there should be an athletic council. I think there should be an athletic director! He should direct athletics, and be responsible to the president of the college and the board of directors. He should NOT be the head coach, or any other coach, but he should be a man, of firmness and intelligence, who has fought the football, basketball and physical education wars, and who knows the ins and outs of college athletics.

Please do not make this letter public, Elmer, because I would have some of the "powers" down on my neck. My neck is pretty tough, after eleven years here, but don't forget that I'm still more or less "one-armed," since the results of that traffic accident still prevail.

I realize you want to know more about the Cawthon-Smith-Huffman-Dowell resignations. I realize you want to know the "low down." I could tell you things that would raise you out of your chair, Elmer, if you didn't know them already. But since you know them, why should I waste good white paper telling you?

As I said, I am not surprised at the action taken by the coaches. After all, they were just a jump ahead of the athletic council, and they were smart in surrendering before they were captured. Voluntary retirement is better than honorable discharge, when the retirement is timed right.

It is hard for me to conceive of a spring training session at Texas Tech without the adjectives and verbs of Pete Cawthon and Dutchy Smith. It is even harder to conceive of a Texas Tech team dashing out on the field for a game without the overcoated figures of Cawthon and Smith trotting behind and giving instructions during the warm-up.

Hardest to conceive is the picture of a Texas Tech team doing its stuff on the field without Cawthon and Smith doing their stuff on the sideline! And can Cawthon do his stuff!

But we gotta get used to a changed picture, Elmer. Personally, I hope Pete and Dutchy get themselves some good jobs, and I think they will. Unlike the athletic council, which "buries" recommendations and news for two years at a time, Cawthon and Smith will tell me when they get a strong scent on a new job; I may not be privileged to publish their statements at the time, but they know I respect their confidences, and vice versa, which can't be said for the A. C. And when they definitely land a job, they'll be the first to tell me; I won't have to read it in the Dallas News or some other foreign newspaper.

So I'll keep you posted, Elmer, and in the meantime let me know what you know. Maybe it'll make a story and maybe it won't, but meanwhile,

Yours for fair play,

COLLIER PARRIS.

Speculation Is Rife; Nothing Is Announced

The Texas Tech athletic council is expecting a flood of applications by mail, wire and in person in the next few days for the positions relinquished Tuesday by Head Coach Pete Cawthon, Line Coach Russell T. "Dutchy" Smith, Freshman Football and Varsity Basketball Coach Berl Huffman and Athletic Manager Gwyn "Mule" Dowell.

President Clifford B. Jones announced that applications will be received by the council, which will consider them and make recommendations to the board of directors.

"Applicant" At Tulsa?

Meanwhile, speculation of fans was divided between the identity of Tech's next coach and the future plans of Cawthon and the other resignees.

An Associated Press dispatch from Tulsa quoted "an official" as saying that Cawthon was one of more than 50 applicants for the Tulsa university coaching spot vacated earlier in the year by Chet Benefiel. Cawthon said he had not definitely applied for the position, but had written a letter to Tulsa university officials "inquiring about the job."

"Several Irons In Fire"

Cawthon said he "had several irons in the fire," but did not make further statement regarding his future plans.

There were many who believed that the resignations of Huffman and Dowell would not be accepted, and that they would remain in their present capacity.

Late last night, no applications for any of the jobs had been received; at least no applications that had been brought to the attention of the athletic council in a body.

Statement Issued

In a statement to press and radio men, Cawthon said he was leaving Tech to avoid a 'de-emphasization' movement.

But W. L. Stangel, chairman of the athletic council, issued the following statement:

"Texas Tech in no way plans a program of 'de-emphasization' in football.

For Stronger Schedule

"On the contrary, we are anxious to arrange an even stronger schedule than any we have now or have had in the past. And we intend to work constantly and untiringly toward that end because we feel that the fans are justified in seeing grid games of a major calibre here, and that Texas Tech's team is in the major classification.

"But, we feel that Tech should arrange to play more elevens in this territory. We are anxious to schedule such opponents.

"I refer specifically to Hardin-Simmons university—a major attraction from every angle in a game with the Red Raiders—especially in attendance and natural rivalry.

No Hard Feelings

"We are no more satisfied with our present grid schedule than are many of the fans. And it is with that idea in mind that we are attempting to make progress in future relations with rival schools, and pave the way for more attractive sectional and intersectional contests."

Emphasizing that there was no hard feelings on his part, Stangel did say that it was over the Hardin-Simmons game that the final break with Coach Cawthon arose; that Coach Cawthon had expressed himself as opposed to playing the Cowboys, and that the council had partially based its recommendations to the board of directors on this factor.

Rumors circulated yesterday that some of the Texas Tech footballers would not come back for the 1941 season because of the resignation of Head Coach Pete W. Cawthon seem to be without foundation, according to interviews with the players last night.

None of them wanted to be quoted directly, but all agreed that only a few, if any, of the players would fail to return.

Cawthon and his assistants, Smith and Huffman, called a squad meeting yesterday afternoon and informed the boys of their resignations.

Grid Leader Quoted

Cawthon exhorted the boys to continue the fighting spirit they showed this season, and to play the best football they could under the new coach. He told the boys he regretted leaving them very much, that if it were at all possible he would stay and coach them next year, because he thought they had the greatest possibilities of any Tech team.

One of the boys, a lineman who is regarded as one of the leaders of the team, seemed to express the sentiments of most of the squad when he said:

"We all hated to see Coach go, and naturally there is a lot of resentment about it. But that is finished now and there's nothing we can do about it. So we're going to sit tight and play the best football we know under the new coach, whoever he is."

Arkansas To Tangle With Detroit Eleven

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 8. — (U.P.)—One new name pops up today in the University of Arkansas' 1941 football schedule—the Detroit Titans.

Trying their luck against a midwestern school this time instead of in the east where they lost for three straight seasons, the Razorbacks go to Detroit Oct. 24 for a night game, their only one of the year.

The rest of Arkansas' opponents are nine old familiars—six Southwest conference foes, the Central Teachers, Tulsa university and Mississippi.

The schedule:

Sept. 27—Central Oklahoma Teachers of Edmond at Fayetteville.
Oct. 4—Texas Christian University at Fayetteville.
Oct. 11—Baylor university at Waco.
Oct. 18—University of Texas at Austin.
Oct. 24—Detroit university at Detroit (night game).
Nov. 1—Texas A. & M. at Little Rock.
Nov. 8—Rice Institute at Houston.
Nov. 15—Southern Methodist University at Fayetteville.
Nov. 20 or 22—University of Mississippi at Memphis.
Nov. 27—Tulsa university at Tulsa.

Marquette Job Is Mentioned By AP Scribe

BY FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Jan. 8—Idle talk about football coaches:

1. That Peter Willis Cawthon, who gathered up his staff and resigned at Texas Tech yesterday because Cawthon said Tech's plans to cut down on its major college schedule, became the overnight favorite in the Tulsa university derby—with Marquette also a possibility.

2. That Jimmy Kitts, the former Rice institute coach who left the profession two seasons ago to enter business, is back with that old feeling after visiting the National Coaches convention at New York and is a good bet for the Tech job—if he doesn't accept one that has been offered him. Genial Jim is carrying a barrel of recommendations from notables.

Brumbelow To Dartmouth?

3. That certain Dartmouth alumni in this section have mentioned Mike Brumbelow, great line coach at Texas Christian, to the athletic heads of the eastern school.

4. That Marty Karow, crafty backfield tutor of the Texas Aggies the past two seasons, is being courted by at least three schools.

5. That Francis Schmidt, the old Arkansas and Texas Christian mentor just cut adrift by Ohio State, is a great coach with gloomy prospects for next season.

Quiet, mild Johnny Petrovich, the Alhambra, Calif., High school lad who became one of football's unfortunate cases when a couple of Pacific Coast conference teams became too zealous in efforts to lure him to their cause, will enroll at University of Texas within the next few days.

The sensational schoolboy halfback, barred from two coast colleges through no particular fault of his own, will become a Texas student at mid-term, be eligible for football in 1942.

Receives Praise

Coach D. X. Bible of Texas thoroughly investigated the lad's case before assuring him he would be welcome as a Texas student. The boy, Bible's informants report, is a great kid and victim of circumstances.

The sports editor of the Alhambra paper writes of Petrovich:

"Johnny is still the same quiet, unassuming kid I have known and watched come up from his grammar school days. He's a man's man and a helluva football player. I really don't need to make a plea for Johnny. I'm sure that after you Texans know him, you will give him a square deal. He will sell himself to you with his quiet manners. He doesn't talk much at any time. And he still wears the same size hat."

Henry Has "A Sure Thing"---

Fairymant Holding Racing Spotlight

BY HENRY McLEMORE
United Press Sports Writer

ARCADIA, Cal., Jan. 8.—Talk may be cheap at a lot of places, but not at a race track.

An optimistic whisper will make the boys go for thousands on a horse. A solid tip on a nag sends them up to the sellers' cages with the rolls off the bankrolls, and when you get a whole track talking about a thoroughbred—well, the bettors will all but rob baby's bank to get plenty down on the good thing.

What I'm leading up to, men, is a stall-stalker, a bran-burner, a horsey-hide who operates under the name of Fairymant. He is quartered here at Santa Anita, and if he were Gypsy Rose Lee doing a strip tease on the backstretch every morning, he couldn't attract more attention.

"A Hot Thing"

You ask a clocker what he thinks of Fairymant and he peeks over the checks of his vest and whispers: "A hot thing."

You ask a jockey how he feels about Fairymant and before the wrinkles in his walnut face can get in line he tells you: "He'd be mighty nice to sit on."

You ask trainers what they think of Fairymant and before they can remember to be mysterious as trainers are supposed to be, they whisper: "He's the hoss we gotta watch."

They All Like Him

You go to owners, even, and before they can remember to duck you lest you ask them if they know anything good, they tell you that Fairymant has "got us worried."

You would think from all of this that Fairymant had already won the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, the Belmont, the $100,000 Handicap, the Pulitzer prize, and the Dan Beard Memorial plaque for blazing trees to aid lost campers. As a matter of fact, Fairymant hasn't won anything. He has never walked on a track in a real race. He wouldn't know a starter from Michelangelo. The sound of the starter's bell is as foreign to him as the island of Madagascar, and no one knows whether he can carry enough weight to get a singer midget past the draft board.

Doing All Right

At three years old this son of Man O' War and Star Fairy has never been to the barrier. He was scheduled to start at Sarasota last summer as a two-year-old, but like a human child of that age, got all tangled up in his own legs and "bucked" his shins.

His trainer, Dick Handlen, took no chances with the big fellow and kept him in his stall. Since arriving at Santa Anita he has regained his health and has been working out as if he knew who his daddy was and was not satisfied to be just an-

SWC Cage Race In Form Again

(By The Associated Press)

There was something strangely familiar about the Southwest conference basketball race today.

It harkened back to the same stage of the campaign last year when the University of Texas was surprisingly on top and a favored Rice quintet was on the bottom.

Texas defeated Rice 48-37 at Austin last night to open the race. Rice, generally picked to win the championship, couldn't stand up to an inspired Longhorn team.

Rest Of Week Busy

Last season Rice opened the campaign against Texas at Houston and was defeated 50-46. But the Owls went on to win the title.

Two more teams swing into action tonight when Baylor meets Texas Christian at Fort Worth.

Friday night Texas opens a crucial series with the giants of Arkansas. Saturday night Rice meets Texas A. and M. at Houston and Southern Methodist plays Texas Christian at Dallas.

The Longhorns strewed 45 points almost equally among four players while Texas was halting Frankie Carswell, an Owl scoring star. Carswell was held to a lone free throw.

Lubbock Seeks High School Grid Meet

ATHENS, Jan. 8 (AP)—Nine cities are bidding for the annual Texas High School Football Coaches association coaching school, selection of which will be made here this weekend at a meeting of the executive committee.

Ted L. Jefferies of Wichita Falls, president of the association, announced today that the board would meet Friday afternoon to consider bids for the site of the school, which annually attracts from 400 to 500 coaches.

Lubbock, Dallas, Fort Worth, Waco, Tyler, Houston, Galveston, Kerrville and San Antonio are seeking the school.

Awards for the winners of the fifth annual Avalanche-Journal District Golden Gloves tournament were ordered yesterday, and in a few days will be placed on display in the show window of the downtown gymnasium building, 1016 Broadway.

The awards consist of handsome trophies for the winners and medals for the runners-up in each of the eight weight divisions. In addition, the winners will receive uniform boxing trunks, which they will wear in the state meet at Fort Worth.

Open For Workouts

The downtown gymnasium will be open again tonight from 7 to 9 o'clock, and all amateur boxers are urged to attend.

About 15 boys attended the first session at the gymnasium last night, and under the supervision of Babe Hunt, went through short workouts.

Heath Enters

Eugene Heath, the curly-haired Hale Center boy who won the featherweight championship in last year's tournament, was one of nine who entered the tourney yesterday.

Heath was the fourth 1940 district winner who has entered the 1941 meet either to defend his title or to seek honors in a higher weight class.

Dodgers Plan Huge Training Program

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 8 (AP) — The Dodgers, always bent on outdoing everybody else in baseball, have laid out the biggest spring training program of any major club this year—fifty games.

The entire Brooklyn squad will report to Manager Leo Durocher at Havana February 15 for a month's training in Cuba, then will divide into two groups to play two games a day on eleven days. During this time, one team will tour Texas and Louisiana; the other will play in Florida and Georgia.

The schedule for main squad includes:

March 28 Port Arthur at Port Arthur, Tex.; 29 Houston at Houston; 30 Dallas at Dallas; 31 Dallas at Longview.

April 1 Shreveport at Shreveport; 2 Fort Worth at Fort Worth; 3 Dallas at Waco; 4 Houston at Galveston.

Early American colonists mixed fruits with their potatoes and then cooked the mixture with sugar for variety.

New Deal, Frenship Win Cage Contests

New Deal and Frenship won Lubbock county basketball league contests last night. New Deal defeated Slaton, 31-19, at Slaton and Frenship took a 25-15 victory from Roosevelt at Roosevelt.

New Deal is still undefeated, and tied with Cooper for the lead in the county race.

Slaton will play at Frenship, Shallowater at New Deal Friday nights.

Nearly 1,000 teachers retired under the age limit in Greater London last year.

JOINS PRO RANKS

COMMERCE, Jan. 8 (U.P.)—Newest Texas college footballer to join the pro ranks is P. K. Rogers, 225-pound fullback star the last three years with the East Texas Teachers.

Rogers, one of football's fastest big men—they say he can run 100 yards in 10 seconds flat in uniform—signed to play with the Philadelphia Eagles for an undisclosed sum.

Bill To Increase Tax On Crude Oil To Be Introduced At Session

Various Funds Would Benefit

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 8 — Rep. Ben Sharpe of Paris announced today he would introduce in the general session of the legislature a bill increasing the tax on crude oil from the 2 3-4 cents now levied to five cents a barrel.

The measure would tax natural gas one cent per 1,000 cubic feet as it comes from the refinery, instead of at the well as under the existing law.

He estimated $18,000,000 additional revenue would be yielded from oil, and $5,000,000 from gas, to give the state $23,000,000 additional.

The oil tax is now producing $21,000,000 a year, and gas about $500,000 he said.

The new money would be allocated to finance the social security program and improve the condition of the treasury general fund, which has a $26,000,000 deficit.

Could Use More

"These would be conservation taxes on Texas' natural resources," Sharpe stated.

He said that by taxing gas at the refinery butane and casinghead, now escaping taxes, would be levied upon.

"This is not all the revenue the state needs," Sharpe said, "but probably it is all we should attempt to raise at this time. In view of the national situation, we should move cautiously. If those who want additional revenue run wild, they likely will get nothing."

He said the general fund deficit should be reduced gradually over a period of years.

"While it should be reduced," he asserted, "there is no doubt it tends to curb reckless spending."

This big creature, who belongs to William DuFont via the Foxcatcher farms, is the Lionel Strongfort of horses insofar as looks are concerned. He looks as if he would like to put on a leopard skin, yank up a dumb-bell, and sell four lessons for two bucks on how to look handsome.

He is half-brother to Fairy Chant, best three year old filly of last year, and Fairy Hill, winner of the $50,000 Santa Anita derby in 1937. But Fairymant, or so the boys with the clocks say, figures to outdo these relations so far he will be able to name them as dependents if he happens to get caught in the draft.

WILL "PARDON" GRIDDERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (U.P.)—The automatic suspension of all the players but one who took part in the East-West football game at San Francisco on New Year's day will be lifted whenever those players make application to the amateur athletic union, Secretary-Treasurer Daniel J. Ferris said today.

Levelland To Play Host With Tourney

LEVELLAND, Jan. 8 (Special) — Fifteen ambitious amateur boxers yesterday announced their intention to compete in the first Levelland Invitation boxing tournament. The meet, sponsored by the Hockley County Herald, will be conducted Jan. 28 and 29.

An eight-man team will be designated to represent Levelland in the Lubbock District Golden Gloves, February 6 and 7. Awards to all participants will be made as well as miniature gold boxing gloves to champions in each of the eight contested weight divisions. Sponsors of the tourney announced today a novice division would also be contested, open for youngsters who cannot qualify for Golden Gloves competition because of their youth.

Word was received from Junior McLaurin, O'Donnell welterweight, that he would compete in that division in the Levelland tourney. Other early entrants included Marvin Logsdon, lightheavyweight, and J. B. Worley, welterweight.

Efforts are being made to have arrangements complete for installation of a downtown gymnasium by early next week in order that local glovers will have an opportunity to be properly conditioned for the tourney.

Boudreau Is Given Top Rookie Award

CHICAGO, Jan. 8 (AP) — Lou Boudreau is a young man of rare wisdom and few words.

The Chicago chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America heaped praise upon the 23-year-old Cleveland shortstop last night and then awarded him the J. Louis Comiskey normal plaque as the outstanding major league rookie in 1940.

But modest Lou didn't take this as his cue for a speech. He simply got up, thanked the boys graciously in 10 well-chosen words and sat down. He got almost as much credit for his brevity as he did for leading American league shortstops in fielding, batting almost .300 and knocking in more than 100 runs in the first full season in the big time.

LEGION DEFEATS PHILLIPS

DENVER, Jan. 8 (U.P.) — For the second time this season the Denver Legion, ex-National A. A. U. basketball champions, last night defeated the present champs, Phillips "66" Oilers of Bartlesville, Okla., in a game marked with a display of fisticuffs. The score was 28 to 25.

Prospector Learns About Conscription

LAS CRUCES, N. M., Jan. 8 (AP)—Luther B. Goodwin, 25-year-old prospector, came down out of the isolated Black Range mountains in southwestern New Mexico for a winter visit today and learned:

That Congress had passed the nation's first peace-time conscription law on August 27 and that he should have registered under the selective service program on October 16.

Goodwin's information came from Dona Ana county officers who arrested him here for evading the draft.

After Goodwin explained he had been on a prospecting trip since early summer and hadn't heard the news, authorities allowed him to register here and released him.

Draft Board No. 1 Lists More Names

Officials of Lubbock county draft board No. 1 reported Tuesday that names of two volunteers and two late registrants have been added to the board records.

The volunteers are William Elton Devere, whose order number was 1721 and Lige Edwin Cook, whose number was 664.

Late registrants are Sedrico Zepeda, who was assigned No. 1027-A, and George Calvin Edd Wynne, assigned No, 1550-A.

Quotas for the February call will not be received from the state selective headquarters for sometime, it was said.

CHICAGO, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs already have the signed contracts of two players one of them from Dizzy Dean, the Texas farmer whose past holdout tricks brought him almost as much publicity as his great pitching.

The other contract contained the autograph of Dominic Dallesandro, young outfielder in his second year with the Cubs.

Dean signed for $10,000, same salary he drew in 1940 when he won three games and lost three. The eccentric righthander spent most of the past season with Tulsa

IT'S A FAR CRY FROM THE COVERED-WAGON TO ROADLINERS

Todays Transportation Methods Have Progressed As Much . . .

In an effort to show our appreciation to our patrons and friends we have put into service, in the last few months, some of the finest motor coaches available. Air-conditioned Roadliners that were built to our own specifications and just delivered to us.

We know of no more comfortable and safer means of transportation than these fine Roadliners . . . truly a step forward from the old covered wagon days.

Economical? Yes! You can travel at far less cost than you can drive your own car.

That Girl on Broadway says poise is the result of feeling confident you can bluff the other fellow.

The Average Citizen is that queer fellow who will all but break his fool neck rushing around to save 10 minutes he hasn't the slightest use for!

A FEW days after the thrilling clean-cut victory of the Texas Tech football team over a fine aggregation from Wake Forest—it was on November 19, to be exact—the writer took time out to browse in the history of football at the college here.

We recalled those days when a poorly coached, undisciplined Tech team frequently was pushed around by elevens representing lesser institutions and we contrasted that period with the golden era come to be known as "the Cawthon-Smith regime."

We said then that the records prove Messrs. Cawthon and Smith have done a fine coaching job at Texas Tech.

We said then that if the two were to leave we didn't know where Tech would find their equal, especially with the money the college has for coaching service.

Coaches Cawthon and Smith were then, to all intents and purposes, "riding high."

But now that they have resigned, and are on the way out, we have no reason to wish to change one jot or tittle of what we wrote on November 19.

The writer feels precisely about the coaches and their work now as he did then.

There were, and are, of course, two sides to the upheaval at Texas Tech as well as two sides of any discussion of events leading up to the upheaval.

The Plainsman sees two sides—and the merits of both, and it is neither his desire, nor his intention, to argue either in this space or at this time.

Regardless of whether the coaches were or were not to blame for finding themselves in the position where to resign seemed the best policy, the fact remains that they did a good job for Texas Tech.

CONTRARY to the ideas of some, there was nothing mysterious about the situation which brought about the resignations of the Tech athletic staff.

Those who are looking for scandal will be disappointed.

We never heard of an institution—commercial or otherwise—in which there failed occasionally to arise differences in opinion regarding the acceptance, or the rejection, of certain primary policies of operation.

Texas Tech is no exception to the rule and a difference of opinion arose over policies to be followed by and in the athletic department.

The coaching branch of the athletic department favored one set of policies; the administrative branch favored another set. Since the two either could not, or would not, get together, the resignations followed.

And that's all there is to it.

With malice toward none and only the best of feeling toward all involved, The Plainsman believes there had to be some sort of a change.

If the two branches of the athletics department either could not, or would not, agree, then certainly one group or the other should have stepped down and out. To continue to work at loggerheads would have been bad for the school and, to say the least, highly unpleasant for the individuals involved.

In this case, the coaching department decided to get out of the picture, which it did as soon as that action appeared to be the best one to take.

IT is entirely within the realm of possibility that the change in the athletic department at Texas Tech will work to the best advantage of all concerned—the coaches, the athletic council, the administration and Tech athletics.

We hope, in all sincerity, the change will work out that way.

Certainly, we hope Texas Tech gets successors to Messrs. Cawthon and Smith who are as good, or better, than the two outgoing men.

And just as certainly we hope that Messrs. Cawthon and Smith will get bigger, better, higher paying and more pleasant connections than they had here.

Both of those things could and might happen. We hope they will.

In his public statement, Coach Cawthon took occasion to thank the newspapers for their cooperation and their support.

We believe when he said "newspapers," he included these of ours. We hope he had them primarily in mind. Because we have tried to be co-operative with Mr. Cawthon and his program.

Certainly, we would be ungrateful if we were not appreciative of the kindnesses and the courtesies which have been extended the paper by Messrs. Cawthon and Smith and by all the employes of the athletic staff, both present and past.

Speaking personally, The Plainsman appreciates kindnesses and courtesies they have shown him—for a telegram which came when the writer's heart was heavy over the loss of his father; for an autographed football Coach Cawthon thoughtfully gave our kids; for the good those same kids got from the all-out, generous services which for years Coach Smith freely gave to our kids, and everybody else's kids attending the Kiwanis Knothole Gang—and for many other favors which need not be listed here.

DISCERNING readers will notice that thus far no reference has been made to two resignations which accompanied those of Coaches Cawthon and Smith—the resignations of Coach Berl Huffman and Gwyn "Mule" Dowell, graduate manager of athletics.

They, too, have done good work and have carried their share of the load.

But we write particularly of Messrs. Cawthon and Smith, not only because for more than a decade they have been the top men in the department, but also because it is entirely possible that only they will sever their connections with Tech this year.

Best "grapevine" information—there's been no official statement from anyone—is that Messrs. Huffman and Dowell offered their resignations out of loyalty to their chiefs, rather than with the desire to make their decisions final.

If this is the case, and it can be worked out to the satisfaction of all concerned, we hope Messrs. Huffman and Dowell can and will remain because they, like Coaches Cawthon and Smith, will be hard to replace.

* * *

To all concerned at Texas Tech, we say today, "best wishes in the reorganization which will follow Tuesday's occurrences."

To Messrs. Cawthon and Smith—we've always called 'em "Doctor" and "Professor" because we've liked them that well—we say, "Good luck, now and always."

In fact, The Plainsman sincerely hopes that the "Doctor" and the "Professor" get the two best football jobs in the United States and have the winning team in the Rose Bowl for the next 25 years hand-running.

That Man on Avenue Q says it's just about gotten so that the only way to get rid of a fool idea is to replace it with a bigger fool idea.

It's easy to tell when a man isn't sure of his position on any particular question. He gets hopping mad if you disagree with him.

* * *

WELL, you'd better take our advice and pull your belt a couple of notches tighter, because you've already embarked upon a year which includes 70 weeks!

That's right. Not 52 weeks. Seventy weeks!

Publicity hunting organizations have discovered, but not to their chagrin because they've got no finer sensibilities, that 52 weeks are not enough for all the special weeks, such as Better Parenthood Week, Hot Tea Week, Iced Tea Week and International Golden Rule Week—not to mention Life Insurance Week, Fire Insurance Week and Leather Luggage week! Therefore, they're having to double up on some of the weeks so there'll be enough to go 'round.

We don't want to worry you, but the week of April 20 is going to be a humdinger, for during its seven-day run you're going to be urged to be Kind to Animals, to Do Bigger and Better—and More—Fishing, and to Take Better Care of Your Feet!

Yes sir, the week of April 20 will be National Foot Health Week, Be Kind to Animals Week and National Fisherman's Week, all rolled into one.

If the world's gonna come to an end in 1941, we hope it goes smash before April 20!

YESTERDAY: Wesley goes to the Bailey ranch finds Ronnie gone. He learns too, that the bomb sight has been stolen. More important to Wes, however, is the news that Ronnie, Andre and Lona are flying into Mexico. He rushes into town, hurries Inspector Starr of the Border Patrol into a car, out to the autogiro. He realizes Ronnie is in serious danger.

CHAPTER XXIX
RONNIE GETS A SHOCK

Ronica Bailey was noted for collecting interesting personalities around her and for showing scant patience with bores. Hence there was nothing unusual in her ready agreement to take Lona Montoya on the air jaunt into Mexico, although she was surprised that Andre asked it.

"Lona has never flown down," Andre explained, lightly, "and she knows the country. Besides, Ronnie, she can serve as a sort of—of chaperon, which we haven't had heretofore. Don't you see?"

Ronnie was truly grateful then. 'Of course, Andre. I am entirely too careless about such things. But I don't mean to be. I think most conventions are important, really. I'll be happy to have Lona, and my plane cabin is plenty large for three of us and more."

"Big enough for my Indian drum, too?" Andre asked, smiling. "Might as well take it down to good old Pico in person, instead of shipping it."

"Surely. It's a fine souvenir."

Wherefore the three young people took off in the early afternoon with considerable gaiety. Weather was perfect for flying—as it usually is in New Mexico—and the time to Guaymas was only a matter of three hours or so. Departing in early afternoon had been Lona's idea, urged upon Andre in private.

Being a conscientious pilot, concerned always for good flying and maximum safety, Ronnie sat alone up front from the moment they left the ground. She had told her two guests to relax and have a good time; she would talk to them but little.

There were a few early bumps, then the monoplane settled down to dutiful, smooth sailing. Ronnie held fairly low the better to enjoy the semi-desert landscape. She caught one glimpse of Rainbow Canyon—and quite involuntarily turned for a quick look at Lona, remembering.

Now there is something, Ronnie reflected, that must yet be worked out. Lona Montoya is a mystery girl! It helped make her interesting, hence made her doubly welcome company for Ronnie on this Mexico trip.

Ronnie smiled a bit to herself. Maybe, given some kind of break, she could make Lona tell her secret. Ronnie felt that if—but all at once her reveries broke down.

"Look!" Lona Montoya almost shrieked that. "Look, Andre!"

Ronnie turned. She saw Lona and Andre staring out a window, and Lona's face had an expression she had never seen before. The bright beauty of it, the open Mexican friendliness, had vanished and in its stead was an expression of anger that seemed almost fierce. The change in the girl was so quick and so complete as to be startling, and even Andre's face showed grave alarm.

Ronnie glanced out too.

"It's only the government autogiro!" she shouted back to her guests, slowing her own speed to coast so they could hear. "It's only the Border Patrol plane. See, they're waving. They're friends, and anyway—"

Lona and Andre ignored her. Lona had grabbed his arm in fury.

"I told you!" she snapped at Andre, lips tight and pale. "It's a trap! A deliberate—"

He glared back. "But you yourself agreed they wouldn't be out now, Lona! You said they patrol the international line only in mornings. That's why you wanted to leave after noon!"

"Oh-h-h-h!" Lona was half standing, and she shook Andre in an obvious little fit of frenzy fear. "I ought to have—!"

"What is wrong?" Ronica called, loudly.

"Shut up, and fly this thing fast!" Lona snapped. "If you don't you'll—"

"Hs-s-s!" Andre tried frantically to quiet the girl, but plainly Lona was in a panic now.

"They're signaling me to turn back," Ronica called. "I don't know what's the matter but—sit down, kids, and don't be afraid. It's nothing endangering us, I'm sure. Careful—I'm going to turn."

"NO!" Andre yelled at her. "No you don't! Keep straight for Mexico or I'll kill you!"

Ronnie's chin dropped. Had she actually heard correctly? Frowning, incredulous of her own ears, she turned around in her seat again.

To her further astonishment she saw Lona Montoya rolling Andre's Apache Indian drum—the souvenir he had bought to take to a friend in Guaymas. It had been carefully packed in thick padding and tied with ropes, Ronnie had observed. All at once Lona opened the cabin door and kicked the drum outside.

"HEY!" Ronica yelled, in new astonishment.

Sensing real danger now, Ronnie looked quickly out. The auto-giro was repeating its signals to turn back or land. She even thought she recognized the flyers in it. She handled her controls to obey them. A hand struck her shoulder, hard.

"Do as I tell you!" Andre Girardeau yelled, menacingly, in her ear. "Keep due south. Get across the Line as quickly as possible!"

"I won't!"

"The hell you won't you little fool!"

With a quick move, then, he jerked her out of the pilot's seat and literally threw her backward on the floor. Even as she moved she tried to reach under her leather jacket; there she carried the pearl-handled pistol Wes York had given her and ordered her to keep near. The plane lurched dangerously.

Ronnie's body struck the cabin floor, stunning her so that she came to a sitting position slowly. When her head cleared a few seconds later, Lona Montoya had taken her gun away and Andre Girardeau was at the ship controls.

She stared up front at the couple. Andre had often said he knew nothing of flying—but he handled this ship with obvious skill! Lona was shooting out a crack in a cabin window. Shooting and glowering at the autogiro with that peculiar new fury in her face, an expression utterly unlike the Lona they had first known. It wasn't simply a Mexican girl in anger or fear; it was—different.

Ronnie didn't understand it, didn't understand anything. Her own fury was such that she was beginning to sob a little, partly from sheer helplessness. Somehow she knew Lona Montoya would shoot her on the slightest provocation now. Also that Andre Girardeau was anything but a friend.

All the past weeks of adventure and change and excitement streamed through Ronnie's consciousness as she sat there on the floor of her

GOOD JUDGMENT, ALL AROUND

Fort Worth is due congratulations on its selection as site for one of the major plants in which bombing planes are to be assembled.

Reports indicate it will require an investment of more than $10,000,000 and will employ 14,000 to 16,000 persons. That will be a big help to Fort Worth. Less directly, it will be a big help to Texas.

But while congratulating Fort Worth, let's not forget to congratulate those high in the national defense program who give this evidence of seeing the light, and of placing vital industries far in the interior where they are least exposed to the danger of destruction by invading enemies. It is true that this institution is to be merely a plant in which parts manufactured in the exposed East and North will be assembled. But possibly this may indicate a trend to result eventually in placing all vital plants in those parts of the nation which will be most difficult to reach if emergency should arise.

Fort Worth's selection will, of course, disappoint several other cities which were seeking the plant and which doubtless are just about as well located for such an institution. Their rivalries, however, were of trivial importance if this proves the beginning of a trend toward greater safety for essential defense industries.

Not All Officialdom Is Bending Its Efforts Toward War

NYA And CCC To Merge In New Youth Program

BY BRUCE CATTON
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 — Shakeup of the whole government youth program is expected soon. Out of it will come a merging of the Civilian Conservation corps and the National Youth administration into one agency, and it may be that some of the functions of the Office of Education will also be drawn.

Cotton

Both Aubrey Williams, head of NYA, and J. J. McEntee, head of CCC, may be replaced, though who will head the new agency isn't known.

Parallels between the work of CCC and NYA are obvious. CCC has approximately 1350 camps, in which 260,000 enrollees are getting training. NYA has 500 work camps, and has additional work projects for youths who remain at home. In all, its programs take care of about 130,000 young men. NYA programs offer most of the varieties of work offered by CCC and in addition include a good deal of training in mechanics that the CCC boys do not get.

Both NYA and CCC draw their enrollees from relief families. Many lads have at one time or another been in both groups; most of the lads who are eligible for CCC are also eligible for NYA, and sometimes there actually has been competition for the youths by the two services.

In general, NYA currently has been trying to turn out young men equipped to take jobs in private industry, while CCC has had slightly more of a military tinge. Some army authorities are known to feel that CCC might well become a training ground for many of the "specialists" the growing army needs — cooks, bakers, truck drivers, signal corps linemen, and so on.

Art For All

With most of the government concentrating on the job of getting ready for war and destruction, you should know about the art work Edward Bruce is doing for your government.

Edward Bruce is chief of the section of fine arts of the Federal Works agency, and it's his job to see that new government buildings are properly equipped with paintings, sculptures, murals and whatnot. He makes an exciting job out of it — largely because he is taking the captial A off of the word "art" and is getting it out of the art museums and into places like postoffices, hospitals and courthouses where ordinary folk can enjoy it.

Biggest stunt Bruce has pulled recently is the set of water colors he got together. Uncle Sam was building a marine hospital at Carville, La. Usual procedure is to allot 1 per cent of the building cost for decorations. Bruce announced that he'd pay $30 apiece for each of 300 water colors—which comes to $9,000 — stipulating only that they be pleasant and cheerful in tone.

More than 10,000 paintings were submitted in this project, most of them by comparatively unknown artists, and most of them extremely good. Bruce had a committee of ranking artists pick the 300 for the hospital; then he put the best of the remainder on exhibition in Washington, invited the public to buy them at $30 each, and a lot of pictures have been sold.

And so, if your tax bills are bothering you unduly and you think the government in Washington is going to the dogs, you can get consolation out of the fact that it will go with artistic trimmings.

Dude College

golden monoplane. The new college entry, the friendship with Wesley York—was that really Wes in the autogiro?—the fight with the five Japanese, then the spying on Lona in Rainbow Canyon, the fire at her home, everything. Strangely, Wesley York had figured prominently, even heroically, in most of those exciting incidents—lordy, if Wes were only here to help her now!

Obviously, though, not even Wes could have aided her against the mad couple now kidnaping her. Andre, Lona—both foreign names, Ronnie suddenly realized. What, in truth, did she actually know about either of them? She had just accepted each at face value as she did ony one who was interesting. Plainly both were afraid of the law.

Angered now beyond any sane control, Ronica Bailey did a characteristic thing.

With Lona's attention centered with the gun out a window and Andre intent on his flying, Ronnie grabbed a parachute case, quickly strapped it on and threw herself out the same cabin door from which the Indian drum had fallen.

Legs And Arms Were So Stiff And Sore

Muscles Over Body Ached and Pained Dreadfully Before She Began Gly-Cas; Getting Regular Elimination Now

"Gly-Cas alone deserves the credit for my present good health," said Mrs. Antonia Esparga, 1413 San Francisco St., Laredo, Texas. "My body was clogged with intestinal impurities from years of constipation.

MRS. ANTONIA ESPARGA

Then frequent kidney action greatly disturbed me so that I was unable to get the sleep I needed making me constantly worn-out, too tired to do my regular work without the greatest effort. Various aches and pains began to develop and my arms and legs became so stiff and sore I could hardly get about they hurt me so. I lost my appetite for there seemed to be nothing I could eat that would digest properly without causing me more misery. I was about ready to give up all hope of regaining my health when Gly-Cas was brought to my attention."

"After a short trial I found it different from all else I had taken," continued Mrs. Esparga. "Now those clogged intestinal impurities are being regularly eliminated. I have been relieved of that stubborn constipated condition, then night risings and poor digestion was relieved but best of all that miserable stiffness and soreness has left my muscles and now I get about without pain or suffering. Too much praise cannot be given a medicine with such outstanding action as Gly-Cas had in my case."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway, this city, and by the leading druggists in surrounding towns. Adv.

Cobina Is Just "A Working Girl"—

She's Not A Debbie And She's Not Wealthy

BY ROBBIN COONS
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD [illegible]n. 8—Just another deb, you [illegible] trying to crash the movies?

Cobina Wright, jr., says it isn't so. She never was a debutante and besides—

Working For Living

"I'm working for a living, the same as any other girl in pictures. I have to work. There was a lot of money once, but it's been gone for years."

The pretty blonde daughter of Cobina Wright, sr., herself long a professional singer, has just won a movie contract. You'll see her first in "Murder Among Friends."

Cobina feels pretty strongly about that "deb" business.

All Got Bad Name

"Just because a few girls took up cafe singing as a gag, and did it for a couple of weeks," she says, "it gave us all a bad name. But there are girls like Eve Symington and Adelaide Moffatt who really can sing and are earning their living by it.

"I was hurt, doing a show with Eddie Cantor in New York, when I got a note that said 'Why don't you move over and give a working girl a chance?' Well, at the time I was doing 45 shows a week, and was in the theater from 9 a. m. to 1 a. m. the next day. If that isn't work I don't know what is."

Working Girl Wright (Jr.)

Won Signing Contest

Cobina made her first professional appearance three and a half years ago when she won a singing contest at Palm Beach. She appeared on Broadway with Philip Merivale in "Lorelei" and was with Charlie Chase in tryout engagements of another play which, owing to Chase's death, never reached Broadway.

Cobina sr., famous society hostess as well as opera singer, guided Junior's training from the time when the family millions — and homes, servants, and yacht—went down the sink of the depression.

"I want her to be able to stand on her own feet and marry whom she pleases," says the mother. "I didn't want her to HAVE to marry a rich boy."

Once Cobina jr. said she'd never go into the movies.

"But here I am," she says.

"And even if she stays seven or eight years," says her mother, "she'll still have plenty of time for the stage."

Cash Asked On Texas Project

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 (AP) — Funds to start the $65,200,000 lower Rio Grande valley gravity canal and storage project in Texas were requested from Congress today.

In his budget message for the fiscal year beginning next July 1, President Roosevelt proposed an initial $2,500,000 appropriation for the development, which will involve construction of three reservoirs and 176 miles of canal to provide an irrigation water supply for 400,000 acres of land now in cultivation, including 110,000 acres planted to citrus.

To Assure Supply

Long advocated by Texans, the locale of the project is higher up on the Rio Grande than developments undertaken across the border by the Mexican government and therefore will guarantee Texas farmers a continuous water supply regardless of diversions made in Mexico.

The 176-mile canal will extend from near Zapata to Brownsville. Although intended primarily to service only 400,000 acres, reclamation bureau officials estimate 750,000 may be benefitted eventually.

Lynn County's Sheriff Parker Boasts Exciting Background; Is Proud Of Indian Heritage

BY MARY MARGARET TUNNELL

TAHOKA, Jan. 8.—B. L. Parker, sheriff of Lynn county, has Indian blood in his veins and is "mighty proud of it."

Parker, who is part Comanche Indian, is the great grandson of Cynthia Ann Parker, a well-known figure in Texas history. Cynthia Ann, a blue-eyed, sunny haired white girl, was captured in 1836 by a band of Comanches who were raiding the Parker's Fort settlement in Weatherford county. Most of the white people at the fort were unmercifully tortured and killed by the savages, but the nine-year-old child and her brother John, were taken prisoners by the Comanches and Kiowas. After weeks of grueling travel on horseback, the youngsters were separated and adopted by Indian families of the two tribes.

Married Three Times

According to Sheriff Parker, Cynthia Ann grew up, and was married at different times to three Indian braves. "All told," he said, "she must have had about 16 children by the three husbands. Chief Peta Nacona, one of the cruelest of all the Comanches, was the father of Cynthia Ann's son, Quanah Parker, who made many raids on Texas white settlers. I don't know the name of the brave who was the father of Hugh Parker, my grandfather."

Twenty-five years after the massacre, Cynthia Ann and her youngest child were captured by some United States soldiers and were kept under guard so they would not escape and return to their Indian home. After the life of unrestricted freedom as a squaw, she could not be confined to one place; so, she and the child soon died of grief for the savage life they had led.

Chose Own Name

In explanation of the fact that the Parker name has lived in spite of the male Parkers being killed after the redskin raid in Weatherford county, the sheriff explained that when Indian children are born they may take the name of either parent when they get old enough to choose one. Quanah and Hugh chose to take the maiden name of their mother, while several of their brothers and sisters kept the customary Indian names of nature, such as Prairie Flower, their youngest sister.

"My granddad must have been quite a character," continued Parker. "He led what I'd call an exciting life. Before the Civil war broke out, he carried loads of freight from Fort Worth to Oklahoma City with two yokes of oxen. Each round trip took about three months. He'd load up in Texas with flour, ammunition, sugar, coffee and whiskey and start for the Oklahoma territory. His trips were quiet to him unless he had at least two or three skirmishes with Indians or renegade whites who tried to steal his supplies.

Served In Civil War

"After getting to Oklahoma," Parker went on, "Granddad would make for the Indian posts at Shawnee, Colgate, Ringland and Ragtown. He would trade his goods to the redskins for buffalo robes to carry on his trip home.

"When the Civil war spread to Texas, he enlisted, and after the war served as United States marshal in the Oklahoma territory for 40 years."

Continuing with his story, Sheriff Parker explained that unlike many of his Indian relatives, his father, Elisha Parker, was reared by white people in La Grange, Texas.

Prizes Old Rifle

"My grandmother, who was a white woman, died when my father was three days old. Since granddad didn't want my father to grow up and lead the life of an Indian, the old fellow carried him on horseback from Ringland, Oklahoma, to La Grange when he was two weeks old. Dad then grew up in the house of my two white uncles," he said.

On being asked if he had any relics or personal possessions of his Comanche ancestors, the sheriff replied that all he had left was a 45-70 rim fire rifle belonging to his grandfather. "I had any number of Indian relics when I was a boy, but they were lost in a fire when our home burned in Milam county. This old rifle that I have is one of my prized possessions, however, because it not only belonged to Hugh Parker, but it is also one of the first guns of its kind ever made."

Likes To Shoot

Parker's appearance is coincident with his colorful and historic ancestry. A person unfamiliar with him would immediately recognize Indian characteristics in his dark hair, piercing and observant eyes, and high cheekbones. His deliberate and taciturn manner might also portray his heritage. The big hat, cowboy boots and two pistols that he is never without indicate his position as a law officer, a position he has held in Lynn county, ten years.

In telling of his favorite pastimes which might be traced to his Indian instinct he said, "I like to shoot, and I keep a good saddle horse all the time. However, tracking down things, especially criminals, and hunting for clues is my real hobby."

Woman Here Gets Letter From Husband Working In Belgium, Breaking Many Months Silence

BY J. SAM LEWIS
Journal Staff Writer

After months of uncertainty over the probable fate of her husband, a Hollander who was in Belgium when the war broke out and from whom she had not heard in more than a year, Mrs. Joe Cane of 707 Avenue K, has at last had a letter from him, in Brussels.

The letter was received here just before Christmas, after having been written Oct. 25. It had passed through censors, with but little marking. Cane said little in his letter, written in Dutch, except that he was well and that he was busy at his profession, that of an orchestra leader. He has been working in the Cabaret Broadway, in Brussels.

Consulate Locates Him

However, the letter said that he could only write letters in French, Dutch, German and Italian. Mrs. Cane says she can read Dutch.

Christmas cards which she and the couple's two sons had mailed to him for Christmas, 1939, were returned early in 1940. There was no explanation. Letters also were returned.

Last May, Mrs. Cane wrote the American consulate in Brussels asking that an attempt be made to ascertain his fate. In October Edward A. Dow, jr., vice counsel, wrote that he had contacted the missing man, who had been a Dutch refugee in France and who had since returned to Belgium. For a time he had been in Liege, Belgium.

Holland Doing Fairly Well

The vice consul's letter stated that her husband was well and that he sent his love to her and the children. The letter arrived only a short time before that of the husband.

Cane said that in Holland the people were doing fairly well. It is impossible for him to save anything from his salary, he wrote, but he hoped after the war "to be able to come to Texas."

Sought U. S. Citizenship

The musician went to Belgium for an engagement, about three years ago. A short time after that he sent his wife and their two sons to the United States, her native country. He had, before leaving this country, made application for citizenship and had passed his first examination and was ready to complete his citizenship in a short time, after his return. The couple had first gone to Europe between six and seven years ago and had one child. The second son was born there.

Gathering war clouds in Europe caused Cane to send his wife and sons back to America. He was preparing to follow in the fall of 1939 when the war came and he had to cancel his plans as he could not get away.

Receives Other Letters

Mrs. Cane recently received a letter from a friend, Mrs. Betty Pohl, wife of Harry Pohl, also a band leader and known as the "saxophone king." In it she said she had tried to get in touch with Cane, but had been unable to do so. However, she offered to make a trip to Brussels, if necessary, to look him up.

Another letter also came from relatives of her husband, being received before the letter from the American consul. In it, came word that he was alive.

All Letters Personal

"It seems strange to me that letters cannot be written in English from Belgium, but they can from Holland," Mrs. Cane said.

"All the letters I have received are purely personal, telling of how they are getting along, but telling nothing about real conditions in Belgium or Holland. No reference is made to conditions there."

Mrs. Cane was reared at Lockney She was trained in physical education in Battle Creek, Mich., taught the subject in schools and married in Detroit where she and her husband lived until he had offers to play in Europe.

O'Daniel Host For Big Event

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 8—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, the flour merchant who charmed Texas voters with hillbilly music, is going to have them all down for dinner—chuck wagon style—when he is inaugurated for a second term.

But it's to be a co-operative affair.

No one has to bring his lunch along—in fact, every Texan has been invited to attend a free barbecue just across the street from the governor's mansion. But anyone who can send some livestock on the hoof will make quite a hit with the inaugural committee.

Ask For Contributions

The committee has $2,000 to buy 10,000 pounds of meat on the hoof which will be dressed down to 5,000 pounds. But when this is done and all the fixin's provided, they wonder if it will be enough for the anticipated ten to twenty thousand folks expected for the Jan. 21 blowout.

So the committee, headed by Mayor Tom Miller, is asking contributions of mutton, beef and pork.

Everything received will be cooked and if there is any surplus after all have partaken, orphanages or other institutions over the state will receive the overflow.

300 To Prepare, Serve

Rex Fowler, Austin detective captain and veteran at cooking out of doors, will supervise some 300 men in preparing and serving the huge barbecue.

Rows of pits will be dug on a tract of state-owned land with a hundred locations set up for serving.

Not over half as many people are expected as attended the first O'Daniel inauguration (it was held in a football stadium so there would be enough room) but it promises to be quite a day when "come and get it" breaks off the oratory of "my friends—"

Four Californians 'Discover' Tech

Texas Technological college made a profound impression Tuesday upon four members of a University of California debate team who "discovered" after their arrival that Tech is located in Lubbock.

The students, Richard Moore, Raymond Maines, Roy Giordano and Leslie Fishman, were driving through Lubbock while on a debate tour when they saw a group of buildings which impressed them. They stopped and inquired.

When told they were at Texas Tech, they said they had heard of the college, particularly because of its football team. They met two Tech debaters, Raymond Goodrich and Orville Shofner, and the student president, James Snyder. Goodrich also is president of the junior class.

The students asked numerous questions about the Lubbock college and in turn discussed their institution, at Berkeley.

Moore said the cooperative dormitory plan had been tried with success at the university. Six cooperative dormitories house approximately 700 students and the room and board cost ranges from $22 to $24.50, or about $10 less than the ordinary cost.

To Debate At Abilene

Each student works four hours weekly, as his share in the cooperative work plan. Some students work full time, but receive pay. Each house chooses one voting and one non-voting member to a central council. A graduate student serves as buyer-manager for the dormitories. A central dining room is used. The cooperative dormitories are off the campus.

In addition to the student representatives on the central council, there are two faculty representatives and one YMCA representative.

Some profit is being made, but it is placed in a fund to purchase the dormitories, which are being rented at present.

The students left late Tuesday for Abilene, where they are to debate today.
