WASHINGTON WILL SOON OUTLIVE HIS USEFULNESS

ST. LOUIS, July 8.—It is understood in case of failure of the convention to declare on the money question in the platform, Judge Parker, if nominated, will make a specific declaration on the subject in his letter of acceptance.

ST. LOUIS, July 8.—When the national democratic convention reassembled it was hoped by the leaders the work might be concluded today and since the adjournment taken. When the delegates came together at the beginning of this, the third day, there yet remained to be accomplished the adoption of the platform and the nomination of candidates for president and vice president. It was appreciated that this might require three sessions, the last running into the night.

Today's program held special inducements to spectators. Oratory and stirring situations were promised in abundance. The report of the committee on resolutions and the discussion incident to the consideration of the platform recommendations was awaited with keen interest, as it was anticipated this would bring forward the big orators, some of whom have as yet not been heard.

The committee on resolutions was in session all night, working upon a draft of the party platform, and a number of conferences were held to consider the question of a candidate for second place on the ticket.

GOLD PLANK IS OUT
The feature of the early hours of the day was the knocking out by the committee on resolutions of the gold plank, which had been put in the platform. Exciting contests which marked the session of the committee throughout the night and the action on the gold plank was the talk of the morning hours. As delegates arose their first inquiries were as to what the resolutions committee had done. W. J. Bryan, they learned, not only secured the fight on the money plank, but secured a modification of the tariff plank. When it was learned the gold plank had been voted out it was anticipated that a fight on the floor over the platform would be waged with greater vigor than had been counted upon, as there was promise of stirring scenes that would mark the climax. The greatest interest is taken in the principles to be enunciated and which will be embodied in the platform upon which a democrat is to make a stand in the coming campaign. Likewise speeches are to be made in nomination of those parties to be standard bearers and balloting which will result in the naming of the ticket has kept the attending throng in expectancy.

Exciting scenes which marked the perfection of the permanent organization have intensified the interest in the convention and have been sufficient to create a tremendous demand for tickets. Then, again, in anticipation of this might be the culminating day of the national assemblage of democratic hosts, that this might be the last opportunity to listen to the proceedings of the convention, stimulated those who had not been fortunate in gaining admission during the first two days, to double their efforts to obtain cards. Again the day opened with a hazy sky, with a promise of weather of much the same character as that of the preceding day, gradually warming up as the sun climbed in the heavens.

HEAT IS STIFLING

The exciting debate yesterday on the report of the credentials committee had the effect of bringing out an increased attendance this morning. Dense crowds of sightseers surrounded the building a half hour before the time set for opening, although not one in ten of them had an admission ticket or any hope of procuring one. They blocked the streets in every direction and gazed steadily at the dingy brick walls, where several thousand of their countrymen were, in stifling heat and profuse perspiration, striving for the country's good, as estimated from the democratic standpoint. Conditions inside the hall bade fair to be worse today than on any previous occasion. The heat was stifling, even before anybody entered the hall. It really seemed as though the air inside the hall had not freshened up a particle during the night. As the convention proper was a trifle slow in opening, a long-haired individual in one of the galleries felt himself called upon to start things. He mounted a chair and addressed all within hearing of his voice on the virtues of William J. Bryan and moral obliquity of those who politically opposed that gentleman. A crowd gathered about him and finally the band was called upon to drown him out. After struggling against the thumping bass drum and two dozen snorting brass horns

The New York senator, who is the leader of the Parker forces, admitted to William J. Bryan this morning that he did not know the financial views of his candidate, but had confidence in him as a democrat who would do the right thing.

SENATOR HILL OFFERS A CANDIDATE WHOSE FINANCIAL VIEWS HE DOES NOT KNOW

ST. LOUIS, July 8.—The committee on resolutions spent the entire night on the platform and at 8 o'clock today considered the last resolution of the drafts submitted by the sub-committee.

But this did not mean that the platform was finished and ready for the convention.

The struggle continued, and at 10 o'clock it was clear that an agreement on the document as a whole could not be reached immediately. During the last watches of the night in the committee room there were many dramatic scenes, not the least striking of which was the verbal encounter between Senator Hill and Mr. Bryan. It occurred while Mr. Bryan was engaged in making one of his many attacks upon the gold standard planks, as framed by the sub-committee. He was brought up to a high tension, when, approaching the New York leader and shaking his finger dangerously near the nose of that gentleman, he exclaimed:

"You ought to have a gold platform to go with the gold candidate you are forcing upon the country."

Mr. Hill replied that he knew nothing as to Mr. Parker's monetary views.

"Do you mean to say," demanded the New Yorker, "that you don't know Judge Parker's financial views?"

"I mean just that," replied Mr. Hill. "You have no knowledge on that subject?"

and the Texas delegation added to the enthusiasm by unfurling their Lone Star flag and waving it wildly. Temporary Chairman Williams soon came down the aisle, chewing leisurely at that ever-present cigar, and was greeted with cheers.

The messenger who Chairman Clark had sent to the committee on resolutions returned with a gloomy report of the readiness of that committee to appear with its important document and the waiting continued.

At 12:40 p. m. Chairman Clark arose and let fall his huge gavel. "The convention will be in order," he said.

The clerk then picked up the megaphone and announced that the session would begin with prayer by Rabbi Samuel Sale of St. Louis. The delegates and spectators at once arose to their feet and stood during the invocation.

There was no trouble in securing order, for the long day had wearied the delegates and they seemed anxious for action. At the conclusion of the prayer an announcement was made at the order of Chairman Clark that he was determined to have order, and "that any person raising a row will be taken out by the police."

The heavy rains in the state of Kansas have materially affected the traffic of Texas lines. All lines in this city have been notified not to take any perishable goods or stock shipments for Kansas City or points beyond. No stock shipments are being received for either the Kansas City or Wichita stock yards.

ALL WEST BOTTOMS COVERED

KANSAS CITY, July 8.—All the west bottoms on the Missouri side, including the wholesale district of Kansas City, will be covered with water before the day closes. The break in the Kaw river near Armourdale, Kan., last night flooded cellars in the wholesale houses and spread out toward the Union Depot. Merchants generally removed goods to higher ground or upper stories. This morning a heavy rain storm started in at Kansas City and West Topeka, which will send the Kaw still higher.

PASSED THE HIGH MARK

At 3 o'clock this morning the Kaw river reached the height of 37.4 feet. The high mark reached in June, 1903, was 37 feet. The water rose gradually and at 9 o'clock was near the Union Depot. At the Union Station every precaution was taken. All baggage was loaded into freight cars and an engine put in readiness to pull the cars from the east end of the station as soon as the water should reach the west approach and become threatening.

The express companies moved all packages to their uptown offices. As the ticket office tickets and other belongings were placed in a box ready for removal.

The Belt Line bridge, the Rock Island bridge and the new Metropolitan street railway bridge at James street were damaged severely during the night, but are still intact. Six hundred men are working to protect their approaches.

CARING FOR HOMELESS

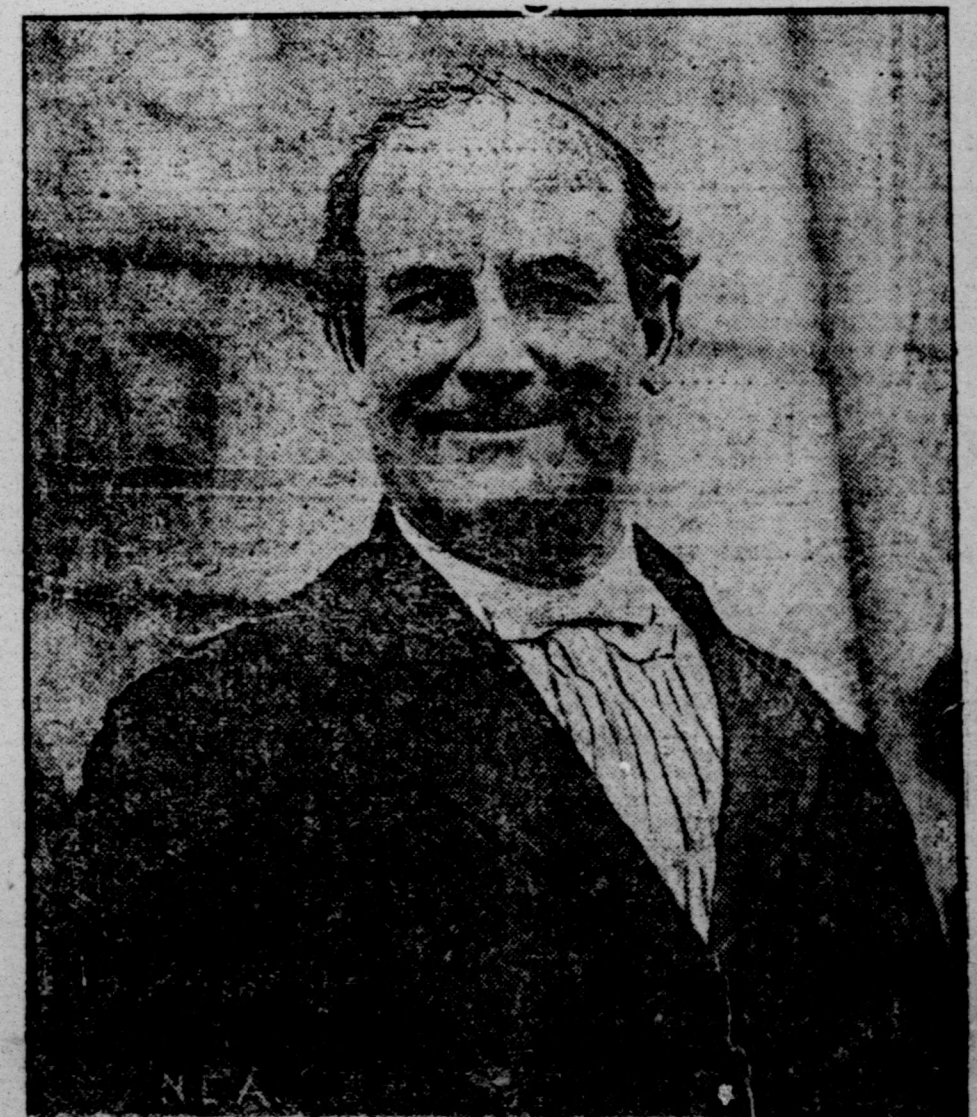

Convention hall, on the Missouri side, which has been opened to the people driven from Armourdale and Argentine, was a scene of activity. Temporary cots and bedding are being arranged for the homeless and preparations started to feed them.

In Kansas City, Kan., hundreds were cared for in churches and public buildings. On the Kansas side Mayor Gilbert ordered the saloons closed and sent an appeal to Secretary of War Taft to direct the commander at Leavenworth to issue rations to thousands who are destitute.

STOCK YARDS FLOODED

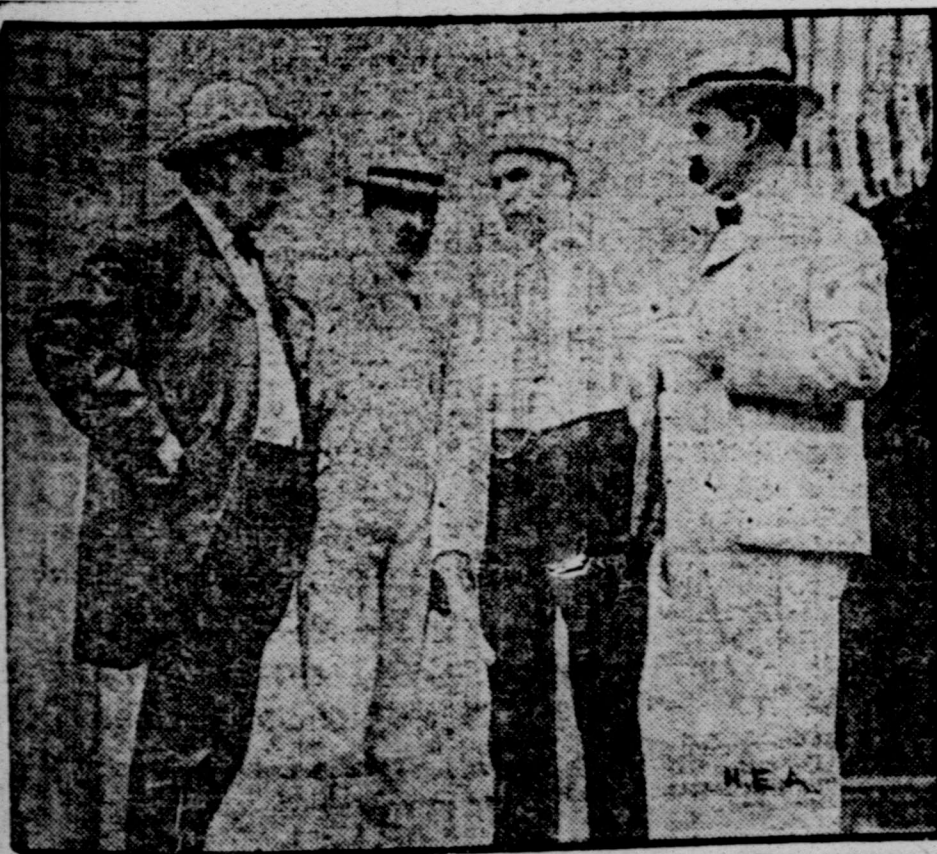

Today all business is suspended at the stock yards, where the water covered the pens to the depth of five feet and flooded the basement of the Live Stock Exchange.

The ice controversy grows more exciting.

Today a local ice company was forced to ship out a car of ice. Heretofore this company was unable to supply the local demand, but since the 40-cent announcement the demand has not been so great. This has been especially so the last two days, when the retail dealers were selling ice for 25c and 30c.

The Weatherford ice continues its run of popularity. In fact the dealers this morning were forced to turn away scores of wagons and buggies.

When asked why they did not bring more ice from Weatherford, one of the dealers said: "We can not risk buying more than one car just yet, for the reason that we must know approximately how much we can dispose of. We expect to get matters in good running order in a few days, and then we will be in a position to supply any number of customers. All we need now is more ice and we will soon have it in any quantity."

"What do you think the manufacturers are going to do?" this man was asked.

"They will have to come down," was the reply. "Of course, just now we can not hurt their trade as much as we will later, but when we get more ice there is no reason why we can not take a big per cent of their customers. People certainly are not willing to pay 40 cents a hundred for ice when we will sell it to them for 25 and 30 cents."

LOCAL MANUFACTURERS
The various ice manufacturers throughout the city refused to give The Telegram anything concerning their present attitude. From the fact, however, that one company shipped a carload of ice out of the city, it is evident that their trade is falling off to some extent.

This morning The Telegram called up the Brown Ice Company. David Brown of that establishment came to the telephone.

"What are you selling ice at this morning?" asked The Telegram.

"That's my business," replied Brown. "What right have you to enquire into my affairs? I suppose next you will want to know my bank account."

"Well," The Telegram replied, "we simply wanted to know—people are anxious to know what price ice is quoted."

"Well I consider that my own business," said Mr. Brown, "and none of yours."

"And, by the way, Mr. Brown," said The Telegram, "we understand that you shipped out a car of ice. Can you tell us anything about it?"

There was an ominous grumble at the other end of the telephone, and then a reply which was cold enough to do justice to the ice company came over the wire. The Telegram quietly hung up the receiver.

HOME INDUSTRY FIRST
The Telegram is telling the situation in the ice trade just as it appears from day to day, believing that it is to the interest of the people that they should know of the ice combine and what efforts are being made to put the necessities of life in the hands of the people at the cheapest rates. The Telegram believes in home industry and that the makers of ice in this city should have the first call on the patronage of the people. This paper has always been a home industry advocate, but in this instance the apparent mutual understanding between wholesalers to raise the price has caused for action on the part of those who think they can give cheaper rates, and the public is patronizing the competition.

AN EX-DEMOCRAT WRITES
The Telegram has received the following letter from one who signs himself "An Ex-Democrat":

"A neighbor of mine told me this morning that his ice men insisted upon holding to the 40c (raise) rate because he was entitled for the business and that he had no guarantee that the Weatherford arrangement would last. Also that he and others in the retail ice trade had been informed by the Fort Worth manufacturers that if they handled the Weatherford ice now that no Fort Worth ice would ever be sold to them in the future. This is exactly in line with Standard Oil Company's practices for a few years ago, when retail grocers wanted to handle 10c oil of an independent dealer as against 15c Standard oil products, they were given to understand that handling the kerosene would cut them off entirely from the Standard Oil gasoline, and self-interest for the future forced them back to the Standard Oil Company again. So far as I am personally concerned, I hope the ice man's story is true and that they will be boycotted if they handle Weatherford ice at the reduced figures. The average man and woman refuses to think below the surface or ever read between the lines and learn nothing till forced to. Possibly if every voter in Fort Worth could be made to realize that ice is manufactured in Fort Worth at 4c less per hundred pounds, there might be something doing in the line of thinking possibly the city might make its own ice and sell it to its own citizens at cost of manufacture and delivery. But the chances are that no steps in that direction will be taken for some time to come. We are gradually drifting that way in thought, however, and sooner or later we will come to it. I used to be opposed to all trusts. Now I believe in them, and the meaner and more oppressive, the better I like them, for the sooner the people will realize that they must get to the bottom and remove the cause instead of applying remedies to temporarily remove the effect."

when he would be ready with his report.

COMMITTEE IS SENT

Representative Ollie James of Kentucky moved that a committee of three be appointed by the chair to wait on the committee and ascertain when it would be ready to report. This motion received a second and was carried without delay.

Chairman Clark named Clayton of Alabama and Ball of Texas as the committee.

Delegate J. C. Sheppard of South Carolina created a wild shout by declaring that the convention wanted to hear Bourke Cockran speak, but Mr. Cockran was not in the hall.

A demand for Mr. Towne, the "silver-tongued orator," was made, but Mr. Towne declined to respond. In the anxiety to learn when the committee on resolutions would be ready to report, the list of national committeemen had not been confirmed and the oversight was remedied. A motion, carried by a viva voce vote, and the procedure straightened out.

ALL SING "AMERICA"

"The clerk will call the roll," said the chairman, "for the list of honorary vice presidents," and the calling of the roll, designed more for the purpose of keeping the convention quiet by giving it something to which it could listen, proceeded with much deliberation.

By 12 o'clock the temperature in the hall had moderated moderately. The result being due to a heavy rain-storm that passed over the city. The relief, while not great, was sufficient to add decidedly to the convention crowd, which packed the hall.

When the roll was finished Chairman Clark, who was displaying decided success in keeping up the interest of the convention during the wait, called on the band to play "America," and asked the delegates and spectators to sing at the same time. His wishes were carried out, the entire convention rising and singing two stanzas of that popular national song.

HOBSON MAKES SPEECH

A motion and a carried that Richmond Pearson Hobson of Alabama be invited to address the convention. Mr. Hobson accepted the invitation and in a few moments made his way from the Alabama delegation to the platform. He was greeted with a round of applause and the usual cries, "Louder!" when he had uttered but a few words. He replied to the request and revealed the strongest voice thus far heard in the convention.

"What president has been brave enough to enforce the law against the labor union violators of the law? It was a democratic president," he said and applause greeted the assertion.

He passed on to the color question and declared that he drew a picture of the approaching battle, making a plea for a leader who will be a Wellington for the republican Napoleon and concluded with the words: "Let us make the republicans name the battlefield and let us make them call it Waterloo."

ADJOURNS UNTIL NIGHT

In his efforts to secure order at the conclusion of Captain Hobson's speech, Chairman Clark broke his gavel.

The committee headed by Representative James, which had been dispatched to the rooms of the resolutions committee, presented itself and Mr. James was introduced amid great applause. His announcement was:

"Your committee, appointed to wait on the committee on resolutions, report that they have discharged that duty. The committee informs us that they will be unable to report to this convention until 8 o'clock tonight, at which time they will report by unanimous consent, signed by every member of the committee."

Great applause and cheering greeted this last statement, and as soon as Mr. James could be heard again he continued: "New York, Nebraska, Virginia and Wisconsin have all joined the platform and bringing a platform that will carry us to a great victory in November."

Again the convention voiced its pleasure at the news and a mighty shout went up.

Mr. James followed his last announcement at once with a motion to adjourn until 8 o'clock tonight. The motion carried and the session closed at 11:58.

DEBATE IN THE COMMITTEE ROOM

ST. LOUIS, July 8.—At 4:40 this morning the committee voted the gold standard plank out of the democratic platform. This was the third victory for W. J. Bryan, during the all night session of the committee. He had made two successful efforts the evening and secured modifications of the tariff plank on two separate votes. An effort was made to secure a recess after

What a Clergyman's Wife Found
The wife of a Minnesota clergyman found the solution of her troubles in a simple change of food of which she says:

"My case proves that proper food will cure almost any ail. For years I suffered from dyspepsia, which became chronic and was treated by some of the most skillful physicians, but was not cured. The old troubles would always return because the cause was still there, and kept me weak and sickly most of the time. I had the grip every year for five years, always suffered from colds and my whole condition showed that I did not get the proper nourishment from the food."

"When I began eating Grape-Nuts according to directions I may say that since that time my stomach has not troubled me at all, but a remarkable change took place. All through the long, cold winter I ate nothing but a saucer of Grape-Nuts and cream in the morning and, no matter how severe the cold, I did not suffer and I did not have the grip or even a cold. Grape-Nuts food certainly nourished me until I have a strong constitution, feel like a new person, indeed never was healthier in my life." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

the vote on the gold plank but it was voted down and the committee continued with its work on other features of the platform.

The contest was one of the most interesting features of the convention, the main fight was upon a proposed income tax plank providing for an amendment to the constitution to meet the adverse decision of the supreme court upon the Wilson law. It was upon this amendment and the gold plank, the two propositions being brought in conjunction, that Mr. Bryan made his strong fight.

INCOME TAX PLANK

Mr. Williams of Mississippi first offered the income tax amendment and it was immediately antagonized by Former Senator Hill, who stated that with such a plank in the platform, New York could not be carried by the democratic nominee. He urged the adoption of a platform which would enable the democrats to win in doubtful states and elect their candidates.

Mr. Williams withdrew the amendment, saying that he, with many other democrats, is seeking with adjustment all differences with a view of succeeding on the democratic platform.

Mr. Bryan then offered an income tax amendment and made a speech in favor of it. He asserted that while votes might be lost among the very rich, the democratic party ought to consider the great mass of the people who bear the burden of taxation and the expenses of the government.

DANIEL DENOUNCES BRYAN

Senator Daniel replied to Bryan and was very vigorous in his denunciation of the course the Nebraska man was pursuing. He said that he wanted to win and desired a platform which would bring back to the democratic party the voters who had left it when pursuing a course which Mr. Bryan had shaped and advocated. He was tired of being forever in the minority and insisted that it would be absurd for democrats facing victory to take any action which would mean defeat.

To lose New York meant defeat. Senator Bailey and Senator Tillman while believing in an income tax said that in view of the statements of the New York members of the convention it would be unwise to insist upon the income tax plank. Senator Bailey then asked unanimous consent to have both the income tax and the gold standard planks dropped, but to this Mr. Hill objected and there was a prolonged discussion, Mr. Hill taking a leading part in it.

HILL TALKS TO SOUTH

Speaking directly to the southern members of the committee, Mr. Hill recalled the time of reconstruction and said he had always worked for democratic principles along democratic lines; that he had been the friend of the south in that trying period and since that time. Mr. Hill, in the course of his speech, talked eloquently of the personality of Judge Parker. He said that in the course of a conservative conversation about ten days ago with the New York jurist, the latter, in reply to a question about the kind of platform the democrats should adopt, said: "I am willing to leave that to the wisdom of the democratic party."

While he did not assume at any time to speak for Judge Parker, the committee interpreted the inference of his speech to be that Judge Parker favored the insertion of a gold plank.

Mr. Hill declared that the democrats could not possibly nominate a better man than Judge Parker, and spoke at some length upon his qualifications for the office. He emphasized the fact that Judge Parker was in no sense an active candidate for the nomination and that he had not dictated anything regarding the platform.

"I do not think it is improper for us to say we want to," continued Mr. Hill. "We have stood defeats in the past and we can stand them again, it is true. This contest for me means that I shall devote myself from now until November to the campaign. I shall leave my business but I shall do it gladly and I shall work hard for whomsoever the democrats nominate, but I think the platform is of the greatest importance, especially the gold standard plank."

He reiterated that he thought an income tax plank would be a mistake, but added that the gold plank was of far greater importance. In conclusion he said:

"Nor should one of these planks be traded for the other. I earnestly hope each will be taken up separately and considered on its individual merits."

Mr. Mail was applauded at the conclusion of his speech.

MR. BRYAN REPLIES

Mr. Bryan replied at length to the argument of Mr. Hill and insisted that in the face of the past declaration of the party, a gold plank would now alienate many of the democratic voters. He said that, when the campaign for Judge Parker was started it was never expected that the democratic party was to be brought to a declaration for the gold standard.

Mr. Thomas of Colorado also made a strong protest against the gold standard plank. Senator Carmack of Tennessee made a plea especially for the south and said that democratic success was necessary in the act of the republican policy of imperialism. Its recent platform was dangerous to the south. He hoped some agreement could be reached which would bring to the support of the democratic south the democratic party of the east. As to the money question that was to be settled and he urged that matter be not injected into the coming campaign as a disturbing element.

DANIEL ATTACKS BRYAN

Mr. Shively of Indiana spoke on much the same line. Shortly before 4 o'clock Senator Daniel created a sensation in the committee by an attack upon Bryan which soon evoked cries of order from several members. Senator Daniel, who some time before called Tillman to the chair began by saying he questioned the propriety of a man whom the democrats had twice honored with the presidential nomination, and under whose leadership the party had twice been defeated, attempting to force his leadership upon the party again. Growing more impassioned Senator Daniel said regarding Bryan:

"The silver question was a question in 1892 ten years before the generation from Nebraska discovered it. Conditions have changed in the last few years and heroic changes demand heroic remedies. We must consider New England, New York and that section of the country."

Again facing Mr. Bryan, Senator Daniel said, he has reviled every man whom any state has recommended for the presidency and "as far as I have been able to learn, has as yet precluded no candidate of his own."

At this point Senator Daniel was interrupted with cries of order. Senator Tillman, who was acting chairman, demanded order and said: "Well, let's have order before this meeting degenerates into a conversational row."

Mr. Bryan asked that Senator Daniel be allowed to proceed and the latter resumed his speech by saying that he had

Market Quotations

NORTH FORT WORTH, July 8.—Receipts of cattle today were light enough to make a better market, at least the slow, dull trading that has prevailed all week. With only twenty cars in the pens and none reported, receipts were estimated at 700.

The supply of steers was light and, though nothing strictly choice came in, the bulk of the supply was fairly good killing cattle. There was a fairly good demand from packers, feeder buyers and speculators, and all offerings sold active and fairly steady with yesterday. One or two loads were good enough to land around $3.60, but the bulk went at a range of from $2.50 to $3.

The prices for butcher stock were unchanged with yesterday. There seemed to be a better demand and, though there was no improvement in quality over yesterday, the general trade ruled active, generally steady and in some cases strong compared with yesterday.

The marketing of bulls was light, and trading ruled steady with yesterday. The calf supply was fairly liberal and of good quality. A good demand prevailed for all good killing calves and the market ruled active and steady.

Receipts of hogs were composed of about four loads, or 300 head, the quality of which was fairly good, but averaged light.

The market, in spite of the light supply and strong demand, reflected the decline at other points yesterday, and trading ruled generally 5c to 10c lower. The top today was $3.30 for one load averaging 183 pounds, with the bulk of sales at a range of from $2.25 to $2.75.

COGS.—The bulk of receipts was composed of cows and heifers, the quality of which was about on an average, mostly common to medium. Salesmen did not have such a hard time disposing of this class of cattle today and offerings sold freely on a steady to strong basis with a top of $3, and the bulk from $1.90 to $2.25. The sales:

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may appear in the columns of The Fort Worth Telegram will be gladly corrected upon due notice of same being given at the office, Eighth and Throckmorton streets, Fort Worth.

A FINE NEWS SERVICE

Readers of The Telegram were yesterday presented with the speech of Hon. Champ Clark, permanent chairman of the democratic convention, in full. The day before they were given the speech of Temporary Chairman John Sharp Williams. These two speeches were features of the convention. They will form a part of the democratic hand-book, and were important. Readers of the morning papers did not read what Mr. Williams said until Thursday morning and that spoken by Congressman Clark until this morning. Therefore the news service of the afternoon paper is superior to the news service of the morning paper.

Being a member of the Associated Press, which is the greatest news-gathering association in the world, The Telegram is enabled to have exceptional news facilities. During the Chicago convention of the republicans, and the St. Louis convention of the democrats a leased wire service is maintained for The Telegram, which connects Fort Worth direct with convention hall. In addition to that leased wire report there is a news service through the Western Union, and a bulletin service over the long distance lines of the Southwestern Telegraph and Telephone Company, and up to late press time yesterday—4 p. m.—The Telegram told the happenings of the convention. This is a service which is bound to appeal to the reader as being superior to that for which he must wait until the next morning. We give the news the day it happens. We give it in full and in detail, and it is brought to your home in the cool of the evening when the business cares of the day are over and you can enjoy it.

In addition to the wire service which is provided, The Telegram has two staff artists on the ground, Bushnell and Satterfield, than whom there is no better in the country. The Telegram being a member of the Newspaper Enterprise Association, which employs these artists, who are men of national reputation, gets the benefit of their excellent work the year round, and especially during an important event like the present convention. We have also the facilities for pictures which are unsurpassed, and during this convention have been able to show the faces of the most prominent men in the country.

THE TELEGRAM DOES THINGS.

WIVES ARE WANTED
The desire of the bachelor men of Waukomis, Okla., to negotiate with the bachelor maids of any part of the country, state or territory, has been flashed across the country by wire, and now they await replies to their invitation. Young ladies of marriageable age please write and send your photograph.

This is an opportunity for the unmarried women to become married women. The feme soles of this country need no longer live this life of single blessedness, but husbands will be provided with them, because the unmarried men of that town are just waiting to be wedded.

The kind of women desired has not yet been announced, but it is understood they must be white and reasonably young. Whether it is the fat or the thin, the blond or the brunette, the sedate or the vivacious, the unsophisticated or the experienced that will be preferred is also still a matter of doubt, although it might be supposed that assorted lots giving a wide range of choice would be the most warmly welcomed.

Waukomis, Okla., lies in township 21 north, range 7 west of the Indian meridian, and is in the heart of as fine a country as the sun shines on. Waukomis is a lively, hustling village, but not very large, as it is overshadowed by Enid, its more pretentious neighbor to the north. Its population is only 688, composed mostly of bachelors.

The fact last mentioned is what has brought the town into prominence and inspired this article. The Waukomis bachelors have organized themselves into an active association for the purpose of securing brides—and they mean business. Officers have been selected, with Mr. R. M. Brittan as president, J. M. Keegan, R. O. Cull, Morris Converse, S. U. Wren as vice presidents, and Cliff Morris as corresponding secretary. To the last named all letters should be addressed. Funds also have been collected to further the purposes of the organization. A treasurer and a committee on traffic and transportation have been elected, so that all likely young ladies with serious intentions who apply will be railroaded through with their luggage to destination without unnecessary delay or expense.

BIG FAMILY FORTUNES
Under the title of "Diligent Sons of Millionaires," a writer gives us a sketch of the noteworthy achievements of some of these young men. We are told that George J. Gould has doubled the value of the property left him by his father.

J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., is "another young man who wastes no time in frivolity. Business is second nature to him."

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is "veritably a chip off the old block." He is "a business man through and through."

John D. Spreckles, son of the sugar king, is "one of the most strenuous of the second generation of millionaires."

John Jacob Astor has pushed his fortune up to $75,000,000 or $100,000,000.

Every young member of the Vanderbilt family is "not only able to care for his estate, but to add to it by careful management."

Other millionaire's sons—Harry P. Whitney, Peter C. Hewitt, Clarence Mackay, John R. Drexler, James H. Hyde—"have seriously and successfully taken up the burden of heavy financial responsibilities."

All this is very interesting. And significant.

In view of the ability of these young millionaires to care for the estates left them by their fathers, and to add to them, what becomes of the contention that the great fortunes of this country will be normally distributed by division of the estates?

The framers of our institutions took good care that the low of primogeniture should not maintain in the republic. They feared the creation of class distinctions through the conservation of wealthy estates. They did not want great fortunes to descend from father to son.

The millionaires and their sons have found a way to circumvent the fathers of our republic.

THE ABILITY TO FORGET

How quickly the public forgets a great calamity and the conditions that have caused it.

Very recently a mob of New York men, women and children fought each other to get on board an excursion steamer which the police officers told them was already loaded beyond its capacity.

Those people had already forgotten the General Slocum horror.

And yet, in its disposition to forgetfulness is both the strength and weakness of the race.

One day we hold up our hands over some great accident and demand punishment for those who have made it possible. The second day after we forget and make a like calamity possible. And it is this forgetting that makes reform so difficult.

On the other hand—

The ability to forget is a merciful provision of human nature. Through forgetfulness the sanity of life is preserved. We are so constituted that the veil must be drawn over the past, to some extent; and entirely over the future.

Nature will not allow us to suffer forever over the darkest trouble or sorrow over the deepest bereavement. Nature, the Ineffable Goodness, or what you will, coaxes us gently back from sorrow—gradually and gently—back to the activities of life, mitigating our bitterness into chastening. Little by little we are resigned to the inevitable past—and forget. Else we should die.

Without the lapse of forgetfulness there would be no buoyancy of life. Without the ability to forget, life would have no elasticity. It would be without hope and given over to grief.

Had there been no balm of forgetfulness the tragedy of existence would long since have driven man to insanity and destruction.

In an interview in The Telegram yesterday a "well known republican" says there appears to be little interest in that party here except among those who want to hold onto what they now have. Just wait until after the November election and we can make arrangements under a democratic administration for these office-holders to go to work.

If the prohibitionists knew how liberal the government is with water they would be more careful about attacking the administration. The post office walk in this city is washed daily with such an excess of water that a rivulet forms in the gutter leading along in front of the city hall.

SYNOPSIS

"The Gentleman from Indiana" is the story of a young college man, journalistically inclined, who buys the local paper in a small Indiana town. Through his fearless editorials he gains fame for himself and paper and becomes an important factor in politics. In the neighborhood of the town is a colony of poor whites who are constantly terrorizing the neighborhood by their lawless deeds. The young editor makes a fight against these people, convicting several of the men, thereby gaining their enmity. The town folk, loving him dearly, detail the young men of the town to guard him at night. A Miss Sherwood from the east comes to visit Judge Briscoe, one of the community's most influential men. She hears of the young editor and becomes greatly interested in his work. One evening a child from the "cross roads," the lawless settlement, is discovered in the village. Mischief is suspected and the editor is closely guarded.

The night that the little girl is discovered in the village the young editor walks in the moonlight to Judge Briscoe's. Miss Sherwood is there. As he approaches the house he hears strains of music and stops in the moonlight to listen and think of his college days. When the music ceases he starts for the house to greet the musicians. As he does so a figure springs from a clump of bushes and a shof rines out. Immediately pandemonium reigns. Miss Sherwood runs to the editor's aid. They give chase to the assailant but he escapes.

When the excitement of the shooting has somewhat subsided, the editor and Miss Sherwood take a walk in Judge Briscoe's garden. It is their first meeting and in the moonlight they sit and talk.

"Yes," she answered, "to come here and to do what you have done and to live this isolated village life that must be so desperately dry and dull for a man of your sort, and yet to have the kind of heart that makes wonderful melodies sing in itself—oh," she cried, "I say that is fine!"

"You do not understand," he returned sadly, wishing before her to be unmercifully just to himself. "I came here because I couldn't make a living anywhere else. And the 'wonderful melodies'—I have only known you one evening—and the melodies!" He rose to his feet and took a few steps toward the garden. "Come," he said, "let me take you back. Let us go before I'm finished with a helpless laugh."

She stood by the bench, one hand resting on it. She stood all in the tremulant shadow. She moved one step toward him, and a single long sliver of light pierced the sycamores and fell upon her head. He gasped.

"What was it about the melodies?" she said.

"Nothing. I don't know how to thank you for this evening that you have given me. I—I suppose you are leaving tomorrow. No one ever stays here. I—"

"What about the melodies?" He gave it up. "The moon makes people insane!" he cried.

"If that is true, then you need not be more afraid than I, because 'people' is plural. What were you saying about?"

"I had heard them—in my heart. When I heard your voice tonight I knew that it was you who sang them there, had been singing them for me all ways."

"So!" she cried gayly. "All that debate about a pretty speech!" Then, sinking before him in a courtesy, "I am beholden to you," she said. "Do you think no man ever made a little flattery for me before tonight?"

At the edge of the orchard, where they could keep an unseen watch on the garden and the bank of the creek, Judge Briscoe and Mr. Todd were ensconced under an apple tree, the former still armed with his shotgun. When the young people got up from their bench, the two men rose hastily, then sauntered slowly toward them. When they met, Harkless shook each of them cordially by the hand without seeming to know it.

"We were coming to look for you," explained the judge. "William was afraid to go home alone—thought some one might take him for Mr. Harkless and shoot him before he got into town. Can you come out with Willets in the morning, Harkless?" he went on, "and go with the young ladies to see the parade? And Minnie wants you to stay to dinner and go to the show with them in the afternoon."

Harkless seized his hand and shook it and then laughed heartily as he accepted the invitation.

At the gate Miss Sherwood extended her hand to him and said politely, while mockery shone from her eyes: "Good night, Mr. Harkless. I do not leave tomorrow. I am very glad to have met you."

"We are going to keep her all summer, if we can," said Minnie, weaving her arm about her friend's waist. "You'll come in the morning?"

"Good night, Miss Sherwood," he returned hilariously. "It has been such a pleasure to meet you. Thank you so much for saving my life. It was very good of you, indeed. Yes; in the morning. Good night, good night." He shook hands with all of them, including Mr. Todd, who was going with him. He laughed all the way home, and William walked at his side in amazement.

fection that had reminded Harkless, when he first saw it, of an old Sunday school book woodcut of an inebriated parent under convoy of a devoted child. The title to these two buildings and the blank yard had been included in the purchase of the Herald, and the cottage was the editor's home.

There was a light burning upstairs in the Herald office. From the street a broad, tumbledown stairway ran up on the outside of the building to the second floor, and at the stairway railing John turned and shook his companion warmly by the hand.

"Good night, William," he said. "It was plucky of you to join in that muss tonight. I shan't forget it."

"I just happened to come along," replied the other awkwardly. Then, with a portentous yawn, he asked, "Ain't ye goin' to bed?"

"No; Parker wouldn't allow it." "Well," observed William, with another yawn, which threatened to expose the veritable soul of him, "I d'know how ye stand it. It's close on 11 o'clock. Good night."

John went up the steps, singing aloud—

"For tonight we'll merry, merry be,
For tonight we'll merry, merry be,"

and stopped on the sagging platform at the top of the stairs and gave the moon good night with a wave of the hand and friendly laughter. At this it suddenly struck him that he was twenty-nine years of age and that he had laughed a great deal that evening; laughed and laughed over things not in the least humorous, like an excited schoolboy making a first formal call; kind that he had shaken hands with Miss Briscoe when he left her as if he should never see her again; that he had taken Miss Sherwood's hand twice in one very temporary parting; that he had shaken the judge's hand five times and William's four.

"Idiot!" he cried. "What has happened to me?" Then he shook his fist at the moon and went in to work, he thought.

CHAPTER V.

THE bright sun of circus day shone into Harkless' window, and he awoke to find himself smiling. For a little while he lay content, drowsily wondering why he smiled, only knowing that there was something new. It was thus as a boy he had wakened on birthday mornings or on Christmas or on the Fourth of July, drifting happily out of pleasant dreams into the consciousness of long awaited delights that had come true, yet lying only half awake in a cheerful borderland, leaving happiness undefined.

The morning breeze was fluttering at his window blind, a honeysuckle vine tapped lightly on the pane. Birds were trilling, warbling, whistling, and from the street came the rumbling of wagons, merry cries of greeting and the barking of dogs. What was it made him feel so young and strong and light hearted? The breeze brought him the smell of June roses, fresh and sweet with dew, and then he knew why he had come smiling from his dreams. He leaped out of bed and shouted loudly: "Zen! Hello, Xenophon!"

In answer an ancient, very black dandy, his warped and wrinkled visage showing under his grizzled hair like charred paper in a fall of pine ashes, put his head in at the door and said: "Good mawn', sub. Yessuh. Hit's done pump' full. Good mawn', sub."

A few moments later the colored man, seated on the front steps of the cottage, heard a mighty splashing within while the rafters rang with stentorian song:

"He promised to buy me a bonny blue ribbon,
He promised to buy me a bonny blue ribbon,
He promised to buy me a bonny blue ribbon,
To tie up my bonny brown hair."

"Oh, dear, what can the matter be? Oh, dear, what can the matter be? Oh, dear, what can the matter be? Johnnie's so long at the fair!"

The listener's jaw dropped, and his mouth opened and stayed open. "Him!" he muttered faintly. "Singin'!"

"Well the old triangle knew the music of our tread; sang the editor.
How the peaceful Seminole would tremble in his bed!"

"I dunno buccome it," exclaimed the old man, "but, bless Gawd, de young man happy!" A thought struck him suddenly, and he scratched his head. "Maybe he goin' away," he said querulously. "What became of ole Zen?"

The splashing ceased, but not the voice, which struck into a noble marching chorus.

"Oh, my Lawd," said the colored man, "I pray you listen at dat!"

"Soldiers marching up the street.
They keep the time;
They look sublime!"

Hear them play 'Die Wacht am Rhein.'
They call it Schneider's band.
Tra la la, la la."

The length of Main street and all sides of the square resounded with the rattle of vehicles of every kind. Since earliest dawn they had been pouring in to the village, a long procession, on every country road. The air was full of exhilaration; everybody was laughing and shouting and calling greetings, for Canow county was turning out, and from far and near the country people came—nay, from over the county line; and clouds of dust arose from every thoroughfare and highway and swept into town to herald their coming.

Dibb Zane, the "sprinkling contractor," had been at work with the town water cart since the morning stars were bright, but he might as well have watered the streets with his tears, which, indeed, when the farmers began to come in, bringing their cyclones of dust, he drew nigh unto after a burst of profanity as futile as his cart.

"Tief wie das Meer soll deine Liebe sein," hummed the editor in the cottage. His song had taken on a reflective tone, as that of one who cons a problem or musically ponders which card to play. He was kneeling before an old trunk in his bedchamber. From one compartment he took a neatly folded pair of duck trousers and a light gray tweed coat, from another a straw hat with a ribbon of bright colors. He examined these musingly. They had lain in the trunk for a long time undisturbed. He shook the coat and brushed it. Then he laid the garments upon his bed and proceeded to shave himself carefully, after which he donned the white trousers, the gray coat and, rummaging in the trunk again, found a gray pluk cravat, which he fastened about his tall collar (also a resurrection from the trunk) with a pearl pin. He took a long time to arrange his hair with a pair of brushes. When at last it suited him and his dressing was complete, he sallied forth to breakfast.

Xenophon started after him as he went out of the gate whistling heartily. The old dandy lifted his hands, palms outward.

"Lan' name, who dat?" he exclaimed aloud. "Who dat in dem panjinders? He gone fine de circus?" His hands fell upon his knees, and he got to his feet rheumatically, shaking his head with foreboding. "Honey, honey, hit bald luck, bald luck sing 'fo' breakfus'. Trouble 'fo' de day be done. Trouble, honey, great trouble. Bald luck, bald luck!"

Along the square the passing of the editor in his cool equipments was a progress, and wide were the eyes and deep the gasps of astonishment caused by his festive appearance. Mr. Tibbs and his sister rushed from the post-office to stare after him.

"He looks just beautiful, Solomon," said Miss Tibbs.

Harkless usually ate his breakfast alone, as he was the latest riser in Plattville. There were days in the winter when he did not reach the hotel until 8 o'clock. This morning he found a bunch of white roses, still wet with dew and so fragrant that the whole room was fresh and sweet with their odor, prettily arranged in a bowl on the table, and at his plate the largest of all with a pin through the stem. He looked up smilingly and nodded at the red faced, red haired waitress who was waving a long fly brush over his head.

"Thank you, Charmion," he said. "That's very pretty."

"That old Mr. Wimby was here," she answered, "and he left word for you to look out. The whole possetucky of Johnsons from the Crossroads passed his house this mornin', comin' this way, and he see Bob Skillet on the square when he got to town. He left them flowers. Mrs. Wimby sent 'em to ye. I didn't bring 'em."

"Thank you for arranging them." She turned even redder than she always was and answered nothing, vigorously darting her brush at an imaginary fly on the cloth. After several minutes she said abruptly, "You're welcome."

There was a silence, finally broken by a long, gasping sigh. Astonished, he looked at the girl. Her eyes were set unattractably upon his pink tie. The wand had dropped from her nerveless hand, and she stood rapt and immovable. She started violently from her trance. "Ain't ye goin' to finish yer coffee?" she asked, plying her instrument again, and, bounding slightly, whispered, "Say, Eph Watts is over there behind ye."

As soon as the great doors of this institution open. It will be a battle royal. It will be a battle wherein the man that has made this store famous is in the front ranks leading the procession on to victory

Greater Fort Worth; that is his one aim, and this store will always be in the front ranks for all time to come. The great work goes on in daylight, under the roof of the Daylight Store, known for hundreds of miles around. It is a plant that is doing great work in Fort Worth. It is a plant where the wheels of commerce roll as never before in this city. When it came to Fort Worth it brought high grade goods such as were never seen in this city before, and up to the present hour they have maintained that reputation which only a store of this character and magnitude could maintain. The man behind the guns in this great institution is the one who will direct the great works that are now being put in the field, drawing the artillery in line, backed by 125 of the most accommodating clerks within the walls of the great and grand Lone Star State. It is a dash, not for liberty, but for the gold dollar, of which we must have thousands in the next thirty days. In order to get them we are going out and say to the people that for once in their lives they can buy the highest grade merchandise ever brought within the walls of this city at about the price of trash elsewhere. His word is out, and that's his bond. You know him, and it's just plain G. Y. Smith.

The golden opportunity is before you. It is before every man, woman and child in this city and within a radius of 200 miles of here, to attend one of the greatest sacrificing, cash getting sales that ever existed within the known history of the Lone Star State. Will you accept the situation as it is? We believe you will. We would like to have a whole barrel of the dollars of our daddies, and in order to get it we are sending word to the people who have helped make this great city what it is today, and who are still fighting for it to grow greater, and telling 'em we're going to have this great thirty days' sale, commencing here next Saturday morning, July 9, when the doors open, and continuing the entire thirty days. Right here under the consolidated roofs of this institution you will see the great sale. It is G. Y. Smith that says to you, "Under this roof and in this store in this great and grand city a welcome awaits you and every one of you." Things will be re-arranged until you will think you have struck a paradise right down here in this great city. It is a welcome such as was never before extended by any man or set of men in this city. It is not for the purpose of deceiving you or leading you out and advertising something that we have not got, but every item you see advertised will be delivered to the people at prices that were never before made by mortal man in these parts on high grade goods. In fact, when you enter this store and when you leave it, it will seem like a dream, to think that within the walls of this great and growing city you have just left a real emporium or a fair such as you never saw in a city of four times the size. New ways and new methods during this thirty days' sale, which should attract the attention of every man, woman and child within the gates of this city. While it is neither a flower garden or the Garden of Eden, yet it is a fusillade of merchandise throughout the different departments; everything put on sale so that you may have an opportunity of getting bargains in everything. Here you will see thousands of big red tickets put on everything, from basement to the roof. You will find bargains galore, and you will find no higher grade goods anywhere under the canopies of heaven.

Thousands of people will be in line during this great sale. Some will imagine it is too hot to come out and do shopping, but down here you will find a cool store, and more shoppers than you ever saw before under one roof. As we said before, this store's reputation was founded on high grade goods, and up to the present nothing else has entered our doors, and we hope it never will as long as we live and you can always buy the highest grade goods here at the price of common stuff elsewhere.

VISIT OUR DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT and there you will find everything the heart could wish. All of the beautiful new novelties known to fashion are here on exhibition. We have made great preparations for this sale, in order to get in thousands of dollars in the next thirty days. When you visit our wash goods counter, there you will find those beautiful, soft, clinging silken effects, such as are not found in any other store in this city. They were purchased direct from the looms by G. Y. Smith.

Maybe you will be interested in some TABLE LINENS at about the price of table oil-cloths elsewhere. It was G. Y. Smith's money and ability as a buyer that purchased these things at these low prices.

OUR WONDERFUL SHOWING IN EMBROIDERY AND LACES, as well as ribbons of every description, is beyond the comprehension of the closest and most careful buyer in this city. Thousands of yards are here at prices never made by any man or set of men in this city before.

Speaking about Underwear, when you see our great line of Muslin Underwear you will see sales, and you will hear of sales, for there is not one item in this line but what you will buy for less money than you will in any other store in this city, and for less money than trash elsewhere. We have made special efforts in our Underwear Department to meet the wants of every lady in this city and surrounding country. Remember one thing:

With us, it is cut this gigantic stock down to the lowest possible ebb. It is the almighty dollar we're looking for, and if you've got it, here is the opportunity that only presents itself once in a lifetime. Everything in the Hosiery line; everything in the Neckwear line; all Parasols, Umbrellas, Fans—in fact, everything in this big Dry Goods Institution goes during this sale at the most ruinous prices you ever heard of. The very walls of the city will shake. It is G. Y. Smith at the bat, and he is battling for dear life. He needs the cash. What more could he say? Nothing; only that we've got a line of Furnishing Goods, the equal of which is not in the State of Texas. Men's Wearing Apparel at prices that certainly should attract the attention of the closest and stingiest man on the face of the earth.

On the second floor of this gigantic institution you will find hundreds of rolls of the FINEST CARPETS that ever met the eye of man. The reputation of this house is at stake, and it shall be maintained at any cost, and during this sale if you ever figured on buying a Carpet or several Carpets, here is an opportunity we don't believe you will let pass by.

Then you can just drop across into our MILLINERY DEPARTMENT, and see that it speaks for itself. Our Millinery is known throughout the entire city. Our Milliner visits the market centers, where only fashion's latest is produced, and she brings them here to Fort Worth to be sold to the people of this city. This is fact in cold print, and every item in this department you can buy at a low price, which means three or four hats here at about the price of one elsewhere.

ABOUT THE NOTION COUNTER IN OUR STORE. There you will find thousands of items on sale, and you will find that 9 cents there does the work of 15 cents in any other store. It is G. Y. Smith that makes it that way. We're up and a comin'. We're after business, and we're after the almighty dollar, because we can use it now, and it is to cut this stock down that these ruinous prices have been made for the NEXT THIRTY DAYS. Rain or shine, the good work goes on. It is a battle royal—a battle without gloves. No matter what they are doing in the Far East, our interests are down here in Texas with yours, and we're proud of the day we came to the great and grand Lone Star State, and we hope we may live and die here, but during this great sale we're going to make our business so good that our reputation will still live on.

A WONDERFUL LINE OF LACE CURTAINS. Great stacks of Bed Spreads. An immense line of Draperies. Case after case of Prints and Domestics. In fact, we are going to raise the roof if it is necessary, and let in the sunshine to make this Daylight Store even a little bit brighter. Here you will find on sale, not ten, fifteen or twenty items, put out for bait and leaders, but you will find 169,000 items. They all go to the people, at prices never made before. We believe in Greater Fort Worth. We believe in making prices that will attract attention, and get the necessary cash, which we must have. That certainly will help build Fort Worth up, as we're the people that are behind the guns.

BLANCHETTE CALLS ATTENTION TO VACATION METHODS

LEE BLANCHETTE

The following letter appeared in the Caldwell News-Chronicle June 3, last:

Editor News-Chronicle—Dear Sir: My attention has been called to a statement from Hon. J. W. Stephens in your issue of May 27, in which that gentleman denies my statement concerning the absence of clerks in the controller's department. I stated that clerks were absent from the department "from one to six weeks," and it will be observed that Mr. Stephens takes the maximum time of "six weeks" in denying my statement. My assertion is true. If we take the aggregate time that the clerks are absent from their desks, I did not intend to state that any clerk had been absent for six weeks continuously; however, one of the clerks, well known in North Texas, was absent from the office for several weeks electioneering for Mr. Stephens before his resignation was acted upon and before his salary ceased. I know what I state is true, because I met these clerks in my canvass throughout Texas.

You will observe that Mr. Stephens says that it has been the "custom" to allow clerks a two weeks' vacation. Very true; but the "custom" has been for this vacation to be spent in rest and recreation during the heated season, and not for the purpose of electioneering against a Texas citizen who aspires to be controller. The law does not provide for any such vacation; the clerks draw good salaries, they have short hours, they get the benefit of all holidays. This "custom" is what I am opposed to—I want to break up a practice which allows department clerks any privilege whatsoever not vouchsafed to the citizen. Especially is this "custom" reprehensible in the extreme when men and women, whose salaries the people of Texas are taxed to pay, draw those salaries while canvassing Texas to defeat me. This "custom" is dangerous; it saps the life of the government clerk the slave of his chief instead of being the servant of the people. It will not prevail under my administration, if I am elected. Suppose that every clerk takes his "custom" vacation during this campaign (as he or she will, if they follow the dictates of their chief); count forty clerks at an average salary of one hundred dollars per month each (which is a reasonable estimate); each clerk spends two weeks electioneering for the present controller. This is a half month—amounting to fifty dollars each—a total of two thousand dollars that the taxpayers of the state of Texas contribute to Mr. Stephens' campaign, aside from the time spent in the office by clerks writing letters to friends throughout the state. And yet, I, a candidate for spending my own money in this race, am forced to maintain headquarters, because my opponent is provided with headquarters under present conditions by the taxpayers of the state of Texas, supplied with ample clerks, typewriters, stationery, etc., and men and women to come and go at his beck and call. All this at the expense of the taxpayers of Texas because it is a "custom." Allow me to say that this "custom" places the chief under more obligations to his clerks than to the people who do the voting. No matter how poor, how unsatisfactory, the work of the clerk, the chief cannot discharge him if he has "delivered his share of the goods" at the primary election.

As I announced at the beginning of this contest, I am a democrat. I maintain that this "custom" is undemocratic, wrong in principle, and can not be successfully defended before the intelligent citizenship of Texas. This "custom" will cease to be a "custom" should I be elected state controller. Very truly yours,
LEE BLANCHETTE.

DALLAS, Texas, July 6.—To the Voters of Texas: My opponent denies the above statement by saying that the clerks are taking "their vacation," when it is a known fact that the following counties are being canvassed by the clerks in the controller's office in the interest of Mr. Stephens: W. J. J. Terrell, in Hunt, Valter Kennedy, in Fannin; G. N. Holton, in Robertson; J. B. McCauley, in Frio, and the clerks have taken "their vacation" in the following counties: Bell, Bexar, McLennan, Harris, Tarrant, Dallas, Collin, Milam, Smith, Kaufman, Galveston, Hopkins and Caldwell.

The above are facts. Respectfully,
LEE BLANCHETTE.

The savage tribes in the interior of Brazil are exceedingly fond of roast monkey. Humboldt estimated that one small tribe of 200 Indians consumed over twelve hundred monkeys during a year. It is said that until recently monkey meat was for sale in the butcher shops of Rio Janeiro.

SANTA FE WILL GO AFTER WESTERN BUSINESS

Proposed Improvements Will Cut Down the Mileage of the Line to Some Extent

DENVER, Col., July 7.—Along with the announcement that George Gould has completed arrangements for the construction of a line of railroad from Salt Lake to the Pacific coast comes the news that the Santa Fe has determined on an immense project, which, when carried out, will enable it to cut down its mileage, improve the service and give it a tremendous advantage over the Southern Pacific in freight and passenger competition. It may be able to monopolize the fruit business of the coast.

The fruit raisers of California have promised to give the railroad that enters first into the field and offers better facilities for the handling of their products in the eastern markets than the Southern Pacific business to the amount of $40,000,000 annually. At least four of the great systems are now striving for that prize.

The first of these is the Moffat line which will have a through connection at Salt Lake City with Senator Clark's road now building to San Pedro. The second is the Rock Island's proposed extension through Colorado from Colorado Springs to Durango, thence through New Mexico and Arizona to Los Angeles. Surveys for the route have already been made, and it will be but a short time, officials of the road say, before there will be something doing in the way of letting contracts.

The next system through to the coast will be the Gould lines. The Rio Grande will have an outlet to the coast over the new road that Mr. Gould will build from Salt Lake City. The route is through Southern Utah and Nevada, and cuts down the distance as compared to the Southern Pacific just 100 miles.

BIG CUT OFF
The fourth railroad that will go after the Californians' business is the Santa Fe. The scheme of cutting off about 125 miles on the main line in New Mexico has been under consideration for some years, but it has now been definitely worked out, and is soon to come to a head. By the new route the long, steady pull over Raton pass will be avoided. Instead the Santa Fe will dip Raton from the main line, and will cross the divide at a much lower altitude in the state of Colorado. Then the road will be by almost direct air line to Los Vegas. Seventy miles will be cut from the distance from Los Vegas to Albuquerque by running the line via Santa Fe, which is now eighteen miles off the main highway to the coast. The Santa Fe system will then be in a position to rush perishable freight east in from fifteen to twenty hours shorter time than its present schedule, and from ten to twelve hours shorter than by the Southern Pacific-Rio Grande route.

The cutoff from Trinidad to Albuquerque will involve an outlay of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, but the expenditure will be well worth the candle. News received in Denver today from high Santa Fe sources state that there is no doubt that the management contemplates the early building of the project outlined. Gould's straight line to the coast is confirmed in a dispatch from New York, which says that the trust deeds and mortgages for the right of way have been filed for record.

SHIPMENTS FROM COLORADO
COLORADO, Texas, July 4.—W. K. Harrington shipped two cars of horses from this city to Fort Worth on the 4th. E. J. Leggett shipped one car of cattle to Fort Worth on the 4th and H. C. Beal shipped four cars.

Jefferson De France today shipped about thirty-seven cars of cattle from this place to Pecos. The cattle interests are looking up a little since the rains set in. The range is good now and cattle are rapidly gaining in flesh, and sales and shipments will hereafter be more frequent.

TOMORROW WILL BE ELECTION DAY IN ALL TEXAS

List of Places Where the Polls Will Be Established for Nine Wards of the City

Judge W. R. Parker announced yesterday afternoon that voting booths and paraphernalia were being given out to the election officers sending for the same in preparation for tomorrow's primary elections.

In order to obtain the necessary paraphernalia, however, it must be sent for, as the executive committee has not assumed the responsibility of sending it out.

In the city wards generally the voting booths are being put up this morning and all will be in place before night.

In compliance with the Terrell election law all saloons will be closed and all the regulations doing away with the politicians' usual methods of raising enthusiasm will be barred. In brief, the American public will exercise its prerogative in a quiet and effective way, without the usual accompanying demonstrations.

In this city the primary elections will be held at the following places:

Precinct No. 1, First ward, at 504 Rusk street.
Precinct No. 2, Second ward, basement west wing of county court house.
Precinct No. 3, Third ward, 297 East Fifteenth street.
Precinct No. 4, Fourth ward, at the city hall.
Precinct No. 5, Fifth ward, at 113 South Main street.
Precinct No. 6, Sixth ward, at the fire hall, corner Peter Smith and Fulton streets.
Precinct No. 7, Seventh ward, at 1415 South Main street.
Precinct No. 8, Eighth ward, at Reeves' store, corner College and Magnolia.
Precinct No. 9, Ninth ward, in basement of east wing of court house.

PRIMARY CONVENTIONS
Primary conventions will also be held in each of the wards tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock to elect delegates to the county convention to be held July 14, at the court house. The convention will select delegates for the legislature and delegates to the state convention. County and precinct officers will be elected at the primaries.

In the country districts the primary conventions will be held at 2 p. m. The primary conventions in the city will be held generally at the same places as the primary elections, with the exception that in the Third ward the primary convention will be held at the new hotel at the corner of Fifteenth and Calhoun streets.

THE REPUBLICANS

The republican party will hold primary conventions also tomorrow, those in the city taking place at 2 p. m. and those in the country at 2 p. m.

The places of holding these conventions in the city has been announced as follows:

First ward—Slager's paint shop; Pete Curry.
Second ward—Baskin & Dodge's law office, Powell building; A. A. Goette.
Third ward—Hiram McGarr (colored).

DIXIE MONUMENT FOR DAN EMMETT

WACO, Texas, July 8.—A suggestion has been made before the meeting of Confederate Veterans here, by Homer D. Hoxie, former adjutant and chief of staff of the Sons of Veterans, to erect a suitable monument to Dan Emmett, composer of "Dixie," who died a short time ago practically penniless and in poor health. The suggestion was received with great enthusiasm, and Commander-in-Chief N. R. Tisdal of the Sons thinks it will be a fine plan. The matter will be presented to the state meeting of Confederates at Temple week after next, by resolution, introduced by Mr. Wade, and it is hoped to get the Veterans, Sons and Daughters over the country to take the matter up at once.

TWO LOAVES OF BREAD FOR A NICKEL NOW

WACO, Texas, July 8.—Owing to the fact that one of the leading bakers advertised that he would sell two loaves of bread for 1c in order to celebrate the opening of a branch bakery up town, a cut was made by several other bakers and for the past day or two it has been possible to buy two loaves for a nickel. It is not thought the cut will amount to anything more than "two for five," however, or that this will last long.

CAPERA BOTTLING CO. HAS CHANGED HANDS

The transfer of the Capera Bottling Works, located at 1108 and 1110 Jones street, to Messrs. Kuhen & Uglow, who will continue the business at the present location, making extensive improvements in the plant, has been announced.

The new proprietors will also take charge of the exhibit of the Capera Bottling Company at the World's Fair. This exhibit at the fair is the only soda water exhibit installed within the St. Louis grounds up until the present time. Texas and Fort Worth being ahead of all the world in this respect as in others.

The transfer of the property becomes effective at once, and the new managers have announced that they will continue the business in the same prompt and efficient manner that characterized the firm under its old management.

PLOWED NINE TIMES

WACO, Texas, July 8.—"I have cotton which has already been plowed over nine times," said C. J. George, an extensive planter, while speaking of the crop conditions. Continuing, Mr. George said that the thought of the non-appearance of boll weevil in some places was due largely to the fact that early varieties of seed had been planted, the cultivation had been thorough and rapid, and no time had been given the pest in which to get in its work. Of course the weevil is expected to do harm, but it is thought the damage can be greatly minimized. Many farmers feel more fear of boll worm than of the weevil, especially if damp weather continues. Prospects for all crops yet unharmed are all that could be desired.

The eucalyptus tree dries up springs rapidly.

REBUILDING OF DAM DISCUSSED

Austin People Believe Penn- sylvania Man Will Take Up the Matter

AUSTIN, Texas, July 8.—The proposition to rebuild the dam is now up to Dr. John N. Jacobs of Lansdale, Pa., and it is expected that within the next few days the committee of citizens here who have charge of the negotiations will get a definite proposition from him as to his intentions in the premises.

A member of the citizens' committee stated last evening that he had sent to Dr. Jacobs certified copies of the resolutions adopted by the water and light commission and the city council, in which both bodies have expressed themselves as being entirely favorable to the general proposition made some time ago by Dr. Jacobs.

Certified copies of the report of the citizens' committee have also been forwarded to Dr. Jacobs and now it is up to him as to what he will do in the premises. As these resolutions and reports were only sent a few days ago, it is impossible as yet to hear from Dr. Jacobs, but as soon as he receives the report, a reply from him it will be made public.

Mr. Downing, who is an associate of Dr. Jacobs, has recently written several letters to the committee, asking for particulars regarding the reports made by the committee and he seems to be taking a great deal of interest in the proposition.

The people of Austin are deeply interested in rebuilding the dam across the Colorado river and the city council and water and light commission have entrusted the negotiations with the citizens' committee, which is composed of some of the leading business men of Austin.

As outlined before in a general way, the plan of Mr. Jacobs is to lease the plant for a term of fifty years, rebuild the dam and derive its revenues for that time and assume and discharge the bonded indebtedness of the city of Austin, which amounts at present to about $1,420,000.

Work Is to Be Commenced on the Construction About the First of October

Charles Adams, one of the leading merchants of Colorado City, president of the Commercial Club of that city, is in Fort Worth with his daughter, who was brought here for medical treatment.

Mr. Adams says that it has been decided to begin work on the big dam at Colorado City to be constructed by the Texas and Pacific Railroad Company, October 1. When completed this dam will be the largest body of fresh water in West Texas.

While it is not positively stated, it is generally understood at Colorado City that the Texas and Pacific will eventually move its shops from Big Springs to Colorado City and that the construction of the big dam is done in order to provide an abundance of water.

Another matter that militates against the shops remaining at Big Springs is the fact that during the rainy season much trouble is given the railroad company by freshets, hence the desire to move the shops to some more advantageous place.

While the railroad company has not made the matter public, the people of Colorado City have it on good authority that the shops are to be moved.

MOTHER AND CHILD DROWN NEAR COLEMAN

Mrs. Bennett Goes to the Rescue of Son Who Has Fallen Into Stream and Both of Them Perish

Bravely going to the rescue of her 8-year-old son, who had fallen into a creek while fishing near Coleman, Mrs. Bennett, the wife of a well known lumber dealer at that place, was drowned yesterday afternoon. Her heroic efforts to save the boy proved futile, his lifeless body being recovered at the same time hers was among the rescuing party.

Mrs. Bennett and the boy had been fishing along the stream. A portion of the bank had become caved out by recent rains and in running along the edge the bank gave way, precipitating the child into the middle of the stream.

Without an instant's hesitation the mother sprang after the boy and was drowned attempting to save him. The creek at the point where the accident occurred is about five feet in depth and it is thought that Mrs. Bennett must have become entangled in her clothing, causing her to fall.

As soon as the accident was discovered a number of men, including Mr. Hollers and H. H. Alexander of this city, went to the rescue and recovered the bodies about 4 o'clock. All efforts to resuscitate them, however, were unavailing. Mrs. Bennett was a sister-in-law of L. G. Curd of North Fort Worth, manager of the Waples-Platter Lumber Company.

USES EARLY SEED
ARDMORE, I. T., July 8.—W. P. Poland, who has 10,000 acres of Indian lands in cultivation, has 400 acres planted in cotton, on which he used King's extra early seed, and on this he now has half grown bolls. Mr. Poland believes that he will have cotton on the market by August 5. This is three weeks earlier than the ordinary variety and is early enough to prevent the ravages of the boll weevil and will mature to full crop before early frost. The variety will be given full test next year on 1,000 acres of Washita bottom land.

CHIEF REA FAVORS EMPLOYMENT OF A MATRON

Says Experience of Other Cities Shows It to Be Money-saving Plan and Should Be Adopted by All Large Cities

After long years of effort the members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union may again take courage in their struggle to secure a police matron for the city of Fort Worth.

Chief of Police Rea, who has just returned from the sessions of the City Marshal's Association in Dallas, where the matron question is being agitated, is heart and soul in favor of its establishment.

"Every city of 10,000 inhabitants should have a police matron," he said in response to an inquiry.

A suggestion that additional expense to the city would be incurred in this way was met by Chief Rea with the statement that on the contrary it would mean a saving to the corporation.

"The records of both Houston and San Antonio," he said, "prove conclusively that the employment of a matron means a saving to the city, such a result having been obtained in both places since the employment of a police matron."

Mrs. R. M. Wynne of the philanthropic department of the Department Club, which last fall took up the matter of having a police matron and urged it upon the city council, stated this morning that they were as earnestly in favor of the movement as ever and would do anything they could to secure the employment of a matron by the city. Mrs. Wynne has herself investigated the system as employed at San Antonio, where she states it has met with marked success and has at the same time proved an economical measure.

With the indorsement of the system, as given by Chief Rea, it is almost certain the matter will again be taken up and urged upon the city council.

TEXAS COMPANIES MAY NOT GO TO ST. LOUIS

No Provision Has Been Made for Transportation of the Regiment

AUSTIN, Texas, July 8.—The doubt as to whether the Texas regiment of the National Guard will be able to attend the St. Louis exposition grows more grave every day. The adjutant general has done everything expected of him, and the companies have raised the $3,000 for subsistence, but the Texas commissioners have not as yet provided the transportation. This will cost close to $15,000 for the twelve companies and their equipment. This amount the companies would not perhaps undertake to raise, and even if they felt disposed to do so, the time is now too short to accomplish the task.

General Hulen has been pressed to go to St. Louis and take the matter up with the secretary of the commission, and if nothing was effected to take it up with the railroad, but he says a personal visit would accomplish no more than he has tried to accomplish by correspondence.

UNIFORM RANK IS SUGGESTED FOR ARMY SERVICE

Brigadier General Tiller Does Not Believe Members Will Agree to It

In Texas and in other states as well the question whether the uniform ranks of different fraternal organizations will join the national reserves is being discussed. The plan as proposed is for all secret societies to tender the government a drilled force of not less than 150,000 or 200,000 men. The Knights of Pythias, with 80,000 available men, is taking the initiative in the move and will consider the project at the coming Louisville encampment.

"It is extremely doubtful if the Knights of Pythias will decide to enter into any such arrangement," said Brigadier General John H. Tiller of the Uniform Rank in Texas, when asked regarding the plan. He says that it is not the desire of the Uniform Rank members of the order to tie themselves up in such a manner as to be subject to beck and call of the government, and for this reason he doubts very seriously if the Knights of Pythias will endorse the movement. However, he says that the members of the order are perfectly willing, if it should become necessary at any time, to tender to the government their services, just as the Uniform Rank members in Texas did during the Spanish-American war. But Brigadier General Tiller says that so far as he is individually concerned the move will be opposed.

"We are ready at any time to respond to the call of the government, but do not care to be bound up in such a manner as to be forced to take up arms," added Mr. Tiller. He predicts that there will be very few knights who will favor the project when they meet at Louisville.

The plan is to consolidate the various uniform ranks of various secret organizations similar to the German Landwehr, which will be added to the military resources of this country, and among the orders now started to form this combination are besides the Knights of Pythias, the Macabees, the Foresters, the Fraternal Brotherhood, the Red Men and several other societies.

The Knights of Pythias two years ago petitioned congress from whom the organization obtained its charter, for the privilege of carrying firearms. No action was taken, however, but of late the fact that the national government is arming the state militia with regular army Krags-Jorgensen rifles, thus rendering a great number of Springfield rifles available, has caused the project to take new life.

The intention is to enlist the members of the uniform rank of the different organizations into a homogeneous body, under the control of the president, to be used as reserves in case of extreme peril in war, to be called on for active service only to replace the regular army or national guard, when these are called away.

It is estimated that such an organization would provide a force of well-drilled, competent soldiers, amounting to at least 150,000 or 200,000 men, to do duty as reserves. The government, it is learned, has been advised by General Nelson A. Miles to act favorably on the project, and to turn over to the organization the Springfield rifles which would answer all practical drill purposes, instead of selling them as condemned arms or placing them in armories to become useless.

The uniform ranks of the societies are drilled in the same tactics of the regular army at present, and would be well fitted to take up arms in cases of necessity.

While the Texas Knights of Pythias do not look upon the scheme with any great favor, the order in California is enthusiastic over the project. The supreme encampment of the Knights of Pythias will be held at Louisville, Ky., August 15, when the plans for carrying out this scheme will be completed and submitted to the encampment, before being presented to congress.

In California the matter is taking shape. The uniform rank of the Fraternal Brotherhood has already formed a battalion of four companies, and has entered into the plan with zeal. This order in that state is hourly in favor of the scheme. The Woodmen of the World in that state are also up and doing, having perfected a uniform rank with a view of participating in the general plan of the unification of these society military companies.

There will be some delay in the Macabees entering into the plans from the fact that the constitution would have to be changed to permit of such action. However, this order in several states look upon the move with favor.

Brigadier General Tiller of Fort Worth does not believe that the move will be sanctioned at the Louisville encampment. However, it may be. He is not overly enthusiastic on the proposition.

HOW TO WIN A JOB

Professor W. G. Bowdoin, author of "Book Plates" and other special art volumes, did not always enjoy the success he now has. He tells a very interesting incident in connection with his first magazine appointment.

"It was this way," he said. "I tried to get on the staff as art editor, critic and contributor, but neither owner nor editor took much notice of me. One day I got my dander up. I went into the office, saw an empty desk and ordered the office boy to clean it for me. I dictated to the stenographer nearly all day. The rest of the staff listened and seemed interested. The next day they appeared to me for orders. I gave them. The editor sent me out on the third day for an art essay. Near the end of the week the owner happened in.

"Say, Bowdoin, how do you like your job?" said he, with a twinkle in his eye. "First class," I replied, "all but the salary."

"Don't worry about that," he answered. "I'll give you the same as the last man we had."

"And he did."

DR. MARY WALKER SUGGESTS A PLANK

ST. LOUIS, July 7.—Claiming to be the original Parker boomer and with a woman's suffrage plank in her pocket, Dr. Mary Walker of Oswego, N. Y., has been flitting about from headquarters to headquarters to find some one to promise to secure the insertion of the plank in the platform. Dr. Walker still clings to her old silk tie, frock coat and baggy trousers. Upon the lapel of her coat is pinned the medal awarded her by congress for services rendered as nurse during the civil war.

Dr. Walker wandered into Tammany headquarters at the Southern. She wanted to see Mr. Murphy, but the leader of the wagwag was busy and sent one of his lieutenants to interview her.

"I have a plank I would like to have put in the platform of this convention," Dr. Walker announced by way of introduction. "It's a good thing and would aid the party interests if adopted."

"I'm very sorry," said the Tammanyite, "but Mr. Murphy isn't the man you want to see about that plank. Mr. Hill is in control at this convention, as a member of the committee on resolutions, and he is the man to whom you want to talk."

"Well, I don't like Mr. Hill," chimed in the doctor. "He didn't treat me as he should have done the last time I went to see him."

"I'm sorry," reiterated the Tammany man, "but Mr. Hill is the whole thing when it comes to platform planks and unfortunately his friendship for us is not great."

So Dr. Walker hid herself to the headquarters of former Lieutenant Governor William F. Sheehan, where she was promptly pounced upon by half a dozen enterprising photographers. Would she pose? Certainly she would. Carefully removing her hat and coat, not even neglecting to take off her rubbers, the doctor climbed out through the window to the balcony, where she was soon posing to the great delight of the camera fiends. Dr. Walker proved more of an attraction than the Parker boom and soon the Sheehan headquarters was filled with a crowd of curious delegates from Texas, Indian Territory and even from New Mexico.

The excitement interfered with Governor Sheehan's plans and some one decided that it would be well for the photographers to look elsewhere for a place to take pictures. "This is no Heards' quarters," remarked one of the attaches of the office. "It wasn't hired to take pictures in."

"You know I'm for the best man who can win," confided Dr. Walker to the reporters. "I was the one who originally suggested Parker."

"How long ago was that," asked one of the curious.

"Oh, it must have been six months ago," said Dr. Walker.

Then some one remembered having heard something about Judge Parker in connection with the presidential nomination even before that, and Dr. Walker, after pinning a button bearing the picture of the Esopus jurist alongside the congress medal, disappeared through a group of delegates in the corridor.

MOTORMAN SAVES A BABE FROM DEATH ON THE TRACK

Heroism of One of the Front End Men on an Interurban Car Is Told of

Ed Mackey, motorman on interurban car No. 3, is the hero of the hour, and is justly entitled to this honor, for he risked his own life Wednesday evening to save that of a little babe which had playfully waddled upon the track in West Arlington.

Mackey's car was rumbling along at a rapid pace when Mackey noticed a small object in the middle of the rails several hundred yards ahead of him. At first he thought it a dog, but as the car rolled on he discovered that it was a child, waving its tiny hands above its head. Mackey's blood fairly froze in his veins as the car was rapidly gaining momentum, the grade being a heavy one. Quickly as possible he applied the air and reversed his car in an effort to bring it to a standstill before the child was reached, but the frenzied motorman saw that this was not possible before he would be upon it. Mackey quickly crawled down on the fender to be in position to grab the babe when the car reached it. Mackey watched the child which was gleefully clapping his little hands backward. Conductor Cloud discovered something unusual was going on and rushed to the front end of the car. He took in the situation at a glance and stopped it.

The babe was the 15-months-old boy of John Lampe, a blacksmith of Arlington. The child was carried on to the depot where it was turned over to its father.

Except a slight bruise on its limbs, the babe was not injured.

Had it not been for the heroism of Motorman Mackey the babe would have been crushed to death.

And now when car No. 3 makes its way along Main street in this city it makes that peculiar noise which is noticeable whenever a car has a flat wheel. The air brakes caught the wheel in a grip of steel, the wheel stopped and made a slide on the track, one side was worn and is worn yet. When any one "cusses" the flat wheel, let him stop to see whether it is car No. 3 and he will know then what caused it.

DEMAND FOR TWOS IS VERY STRONG

Quite a Number of Sales Are Reported in the San Angelo Country

SAN ANGELO, Texas, July 7.—Colonel C. C. Poole, representing the Stockman Journal and The Telegram is here. He is suffering from the effects of a severe blow on the head received from a falling awning at Ballinger, but is rapidly recovering. He is still looking for his dog.

The demand for 2-year-old steers is very strong. Quite a number of sales are reported. J. G. Cooper of Water Valley sold to Fayette Tankersley of Stiles, Reagan county, 250 twos at $15 around. Harris Brothers have purchased about 500 head of twos from different parties at $15 to $16 a head. Cattlemen are looking for the market in fat range stuff to open up considerably in the next week or two. There is a world of fat range stuff in this country now since the splendid condition of the range has obtained for such a considerable length of time.

The stockmen at Stiles, Reagan county, are going to have a big jollification on the 15th by way of celebration of the first condition of the range and cattle through that section. Rome Shields, who is in town from there, says they have the finest conditions there now he has seen for a great many years past.

The muttons have about all gone to market. A few more shipments will likely be made this week and next week, but it is not likely that many more muttons will go out to market after those shipments have been made.

A NEW CHURCH FOR SAN ANGELO PEOPLE

SAN ANGELO, Texas, July 7.—The Methodist church of San Angelo is preparing to erect a handsome new church home to cost $10,000. It will be located on Beauregard Avenue and Oakes street and will be built within the next few months.

SKIN DISEASES

The Outcropping of Bad Blood.

While not always painful these are aggravating beyond expression. With few exceptions they are worse in spring and summer, when the system begins to thaw out and the skin is reacting and making extra efforts to throw off the poisons that have accumulated during the winter months. Then boils and pimples, rashes and eruptions of every conceivable kind make their appearance, and Eczema and Tetter—the twin terrors of skin diseases—Nettle Rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and such other skin troubles as usually remain quiet during the cold weather, break out afresh to torment and distract by their fearful burning, itching and stinging. A course of S. S. S. now will purify and enrich the blood, reinforce and tone up the general system, and carry off the bodily impurities through the proper channels. The skin, with good blood to nourish it, remains smooth and free of all disfiguring eruptions. SQUIRES' NEW ROAD
The contract for the first twenty miles of a railroad from Cotulla to Corrozo Springs has been let and the work of construction will begin at the first named place in two weeks, according to a statement made by Colonel W. A. Squires, who is now in Fort Worth.

The contract for this construction was let to Ward & Lee of Palestine. This company is already at Cotulla, waiting for the line to be located.

Colonel Squires is representing the Lee syndicate, which is behind the movement to build the road. Colonel Squires promoted and built the old Gulf and Brazos Valley road into Mineral Wells. It was later absorbed by the Weatherford, Mineral Wells and Northwestern, the rails being removed, and the only thing left to show that the line was ever in existence is the old roadbed.

It is understood from Colonel Squires that the new road will not stop at Corrozo Springs, but will be built without delay to what is known as Shaw City, twelve miles beyond the springs.

This road is to be known as the Rio Grande and Neuse Valley and it is said that all arrangements have been made for its construction to the great onion district of Texas. Donations amounting to $25,000 cash and 15,000 acres of land have been secured by the company.

FLANAGAN IS SLATED
Jack Flanagan of Houston will probably be appointed at the head of the Southern Pacific Railway and Steamship's business in Cuba, headquarters at Havana, to succeed Joseph Lallande, who has resigned. Flanagan is a young man, but has rapidly worked his way to the front. He was elected as the World's Fair commissioner for the island and has had full swing in the management of the Cuban part of the exposition. Until a year ago Flanagan was the general agent for the Mexican International, headquarters at San Antonio. He resigned to accept the assistant general agency for the Southern Pacific in Havana.

SPENT THE REST FOOLISHLY
At a reception given recently at Poughkeepsie the general told this story: "Not long ago a soldier in the regular army stopped me on the street and asked me to lend him a quarter. "Why, yesterday you received your month's pay, did you not?" I asked him. "Yes," replied the veteran. "Where is your money now?" "It's like this," he went on. "I left the post and crossed to New York with that $15.50. I met a friend and we had dinner. I was mighty surprised when the bill was $8. Then I bought $1 worth of cigars, and we went to the theater for $4. After the theater we went down the Bowery, and I spent $2 there. "That's $15," I replied. "What happened to that other 50 cents?" "The old fellow seemed puzzled. Finally he answered: "I must have spent that foolishly."

PIE THE GREATEST
"Pie, coffee and conversation," said Senator Platt of Connecticut, "are the three ingredients that constitute a good dinner." "And the greatest of these is conversation," commented a companion. "No; pie is the greatest," corrected the senator. "It excels conversation in that it always comes to you with a point to it."

GALVESTON 4, BEAUMONT 2
GALVESTON, Texas, July 8.—The Sand Crabs administered a beating to the Oilers yesterday. Luithe was in the box for the home team and kept the visitors guessing. Only four scattered hits were gathered off his delivery.

The field work of the Beaumont boys was good, had it not been for this fact the locals would have gotten a bigger score, for they hit Seay hard and often.

FITZSIMMONS GOES
AGAINST O'BRIEN
TONIGHT

Lanky Bob and the Philadelphia Boy Are to Meet in the Quaker City at Park

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 8.—Not in years has so much interest been manifested in a fight in the east as is shown in the contest to be pulled off here tonight between "Bob" Fitzsimmons and "Kid" O'Brien.

simmons and "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien. This will be the most important fight in the history of O'Brien's ring career. The Quaker fighter, since his first trip to England several years ago, has made rapid strides toward the top of the pugilistic ladder, and many good judges of pugilism to believe him, next to Jeffries, to be the greatest fighter in the world. In Fitzsimmons he will meet the best man he has ever faced in the ring and he will have to do even better work than he did against "Kid" Carter and Marvin Hart if he gets a decision over the veteran.

Both men appear to be in the pink of condition. O'Brien says he will win on points. Fitzsimmons, on the other hand, says the contest will not go the rounds, meaning that he will win by a knockout. The advance sale of seats has been the largest in the history of boxing in Philadelphia, which is an indication that there will be a record-breaking attendance. The fight will be pulled off under the glare of electric lights at the Philadelphia baseball park.

Fitzsimmons says: "I will knock O'Brien out. I never saw him box, but no matter how fast he is he will find me faster, and he will be easy game beside the men I have been fighting. I intend to finish him with the old 'shift' and 'solar plexus' punch that I used in knocking out Jim Corbett, Gus Ruhlin, Tom Sharkey and some of the others. I don't mind telling O'Brien that before the fight. I told Corbett the same thing in Carson, but he couldn't prevent my turning the trick. I'm the only man who can use the 'shift' and there's no man living who can get away from it. I have tried my hands out on Armstrong. They are all right."

Jack O'Brien says: "When I saw Fitzsimmons fight Gardner I made up my mind to get a match with him and beat him. I had to wait, but the first part of my plan came out all right. I am confident that I will carry out the rest of it. Fitz is a great fighter still, but I am faster than he is and a more clever boxer. Fitz is a slugger. He can put up a great fight with the big fellows who can't get out of the way of an ice wagon, but he will have to find a new way to fight tonight. If I can't jab Fitz to a finish in six rounds I will have to apologize to all my friends for giving them the wrong tip."

DISSENSION CAUSES
CRITICAL SITUATION

Many Seceders From Ranks of Junior Order of American Mechanics

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 8.—The Junior Order of United American Mechanics, which has been in existence half a century and has a membership that extends throughout the entire country, is facing a critical situation as a result of the dissension in its ranks. There has been trouble in the order for years, but it was not until recently that matters reached an acute stage. The national convention was in session at Minneapolis in June, 1899, when the national council made a decision in the object of the order, it is said. Many of the members declared that this action was arbitrary, and that the matter should have been put to a popular vote. The council decided to establish an insurance branch, and appropriated money from the national council to defray expenses. Immediately after the convention a protest came from five states. It was ignored. The insurgents refused to pay any more per capita tax. Charges were preferred against the state council of Pennsylvania, and there was a trial before the judiciary board of the national body. As a result the state council was directed to "pay the national tax or forfeit its charter. The tax was paid."

Then the insurgents, representing seventy-five councils, asked the national board to call a special session to settle the differences. The request was ignored. The council was threatened with mandamus proceedings, and a call for a meeting for June, 1900, was issued. Seven days before this meeting the national council met in Philadelphia and decided that any subordinate council delinquent in its per capita tax could not be represented in the state council's session. More trouble ensued and the feeling grew very bitter. The subordinate councils insisted upon representation, and were arrested and fined for contempt of court.

In September the act of secession was officially carried out, and the insurgents instituted suit to determine which set of officers has been regularly elected. No decision was rendered until last month, when the court declared in favor of the officers chosen by the regulars, and said they were entitled to act for the order. This led to the final split in the order. Two weeks ago the insurgents met in convention at Lansing and organized under the name of the Order of Independent Americans. The promoters of the insurgent movement are now planning an organization even greater than that from which its members seceded. There are said to be about 100,000 seceders from the Junior Order of United American Mechanics in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. A conference has been called to enlist all of these in the new organization and later steps will be taken to extend the membership throughout the country. The first national convention of the new order is to be held at Altoona in September.

CROPS IN TEXAS
ARE DOING WELL

A McFadden Man Talks of the Conditions Which Obtain in Limestone

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, July 8.—J. R. Henry, local representative of the cotton agency of George McFadden & Bros., has returned from South Texas, where he spent a month inspecting the cotton crop and observing the methods being employed to destroy the boll weevils. The chief object of Mr. Henry's trip to that section of the state was to make a careful survey of the situation with a view to establishing a number of cotton buying agencies. The McFadden people had no buyer in that section of the state last season on account of the destructive work of the weevils. At present they do not maintain a single agency between Waxahachie and Hearne. Mr. Henry will go to that part of the state again in about two weeks to make a final inspection of the crop and if conditions look encouraging buyers will be located at a number of points along the line of the Central.

Mr. Henry said to the correspondent yesterday morning that barring the ravages of the weevil, the general crop condition in Limestone county were good. The corn crop is unusually fine and other crops in that section give promise of a fair yield. Mr. Henry says that in spite of the work of the boll weevils cotton is well advanced and is fruiting nicely, a large per cent of the crop having passed the weevil stage. He says different methods are being used to destroy these pests, but the one appearing to him as the most effective was to burn them. This, he says, is done by the farmers going through the fields, picking up squares that have fallen from the stalks, carrying them to the end of the rows and then burning them. Every square falling off contains either an egg or a young weevil and by burning them the pest is absolutely destroyed. Crude oil, Paris green and other poisons are being used to good advantage. Mr. Henry says the Paris green is effective in destroying the weevil that has left the square and taken up his habitation on the plant. It is the opinion of Mr. Henry that a better crop of cotton will be made in South Texas this year than was gathered last season. He thinks boll worms are more to be feared this year than weevils, and already farmers are adopting means for destroying them. A large number of lamps are being burned in the fields and to these the millers which produce the worms are attracted and destroyed. Mr. Henry says cotton is beginning to open in the neighborhood of Navasota and he thinks the crop will begin to move in that section by July 15.

Mr. Henry has not yet made an inspection of the Ellis county crop, but he expects to make a number of trips to the country at an early date. He gives it as his opinion that the crop in this county is two weeks earlier than last year, and he expects the first bale to be received in Waxahachie between the 1st and 5th of August.

LEE'S RUNABOUT
Lippincott's Magazine tells this story of Edward E. Lee of Baltimore, manager of a well-known wickerware house, who is a fiend after coupon collecting:

He had been collecting all kinds of tags and coupons bearing premiums for some time when he one day noticed an advertisement of a New Jersey firm that upon receipt of fifteen of their tags they would forward one chance for a series of prizes, the first prize being a horse and a runabout.

Mr. Lee began industriously to get all the tags he could find until he had the requisite number, which he forwarded. A few days later he was notified that he had won the first prize. Immediately following this letter came a tiny rocking horse.

He sat down and wrote a sarcastic letter to the firm:

"I beg to acknowledge receipt of horse," he wrote, "but you failed to inclose the runabout."

In an early mail he received this letter: "Dear Sir—We have your letter acknowledging receipt of horse. As for the runabout, go chase yourself. Yours truly,"

SHARP SHOOTERS NEAR DENISON
DENISON, Texas, July 8.—Sharpshooters, very destructive to cotton, are reported in several sections near Denison.

John Harmon brought to the city yesterday a stalk of corn fifteen feet in height. It contained three very large ears. This is said to be the tallest ever seen here.

The windmill has been put to work in Germany driving dynamos.

Miss Nellie Holmes, treasurer of the Young Woman's Temperance Association of Buffalo, N.Y., strongly advises all suffering women to rely, as she did, upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your medicine is indeed an ideal woman's medicine, and by far the best I know to restore lost health and strength. I suffered misery for several years, being troubled with menorrhagia. My back ached, I had bearing-down pains and frequent headaches. I would often wake from restful sleep, and in such pain that I suffered for hours before I could go to sleep again. I dreaded the long nights as much as the weary days. I consulted two different physicians, hoping to get relief, but finding that their medicine did not seem to cure me. I tried your Vegetable Compound on the recommendation of a friend from the East who was visiting me. "I am glad that I followed her advice, for every ache and pain is gone, and not only this, but my general health is much improved. I have a fine appetite and have gained in flesh. My earnest advice to suffering women is to put aside all other medicines and to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Miss NELLIE HOLMES, 540 No. Division St., Buffalo, N.Y.—$5000 Forfeit if original of above letter properly genuineness cannot be produced.

ORGANIZING
BANDS

ST. PETERSBURG, July 8.—A special dispatch from New Chung, dated yesterday, says General Kuroki, is advancing all along the line, and adds the Japanese officers are organizing Chinese bandit bands throughout the Liao valley for an attack on Mukden.

RUMOR OF A BATTLE
ST. PETERSBURG, July 8.—It is reported in a special dispatch from Liao Yang, under yesterday's date that a persistent rumor is current there to the effect that a naval engagement occurred at Port Arthur in which twenty-one Japanese warships participated, resulting in a Russian victory. A similar report was current in Liao Yang on July 5, the location of the engagement then being given as northward of Gensan, Korea.

PLANS OF THE JAPS
LIAO YANG, Thursday, July 7.—General Kuroki, talking to a Russian officer who had been taken prisoner, says the Japanese intend to take possession of all Southern Manchuria, establishing themselves at Port Arthur and Yin Kow (Port New Chung), which it is supposed to fortify as a garrison with large bodies of troops and supply it with long range artillery. If the Russians then recapture these places General Kuroki declared it would be at the cost of an enormous amount of money and 500,000 troops from Europe.

LOSS IN NIGHT ATTACK
LIAO YANG, July 8.—In a recent night attack at Hot Yan the Japanese lost 200 killed and 500 wounded.

JAPAN'S STRENGTH
IN THE FIELD

LONDON, July 8.—There are four Japanese armies now in the field, three of which are acting in co-operation in the general advance against General Kuroki in Manchuria; leaving the fourth engaged in the siege of Port Arthur. The four armies are accompanied respectively by Generals Kuroki, Oku, Nodzu and Nogai. Marquis Oyama, the commander in chief, is expected in Manchuria the coming week to take supreme command of the four armies.

The first army, General Kuroki's, is that which was disembarked at Chem-ulpo between February 8 and March 1, consisting of 22,500 men—17,000 combatants and 5,500 coolies—with 5,000 horses and thirty-six guns and an immense supply of stores and ammunition. This army is that which marched through Korea to the Yalu, crossed that river at the battle of Chin-Lien-Cheng on May 1, and having occupied Feng-Wang-Cheng, has made its headquarters there pending the development of the plan of campaign.

Kuroki's army was originally composed of the imperial guards division, the Second and Twelfth divisions, and possibly has been reinforced by the Seventh, Eighth and Ninth divisions, these three being those kept back for disposition as circumstances might require.

The second army, under General Oku, is that which landed at Pitsewo and elsewhere on the Liao-Tung peninsula. After obtaining possession of Kao-Chow and the neck of the peninsula by the battle of Nanshan, this army was divided, two divisions and possibly another being intrusted, as the fourth army, with the task of subjugating Port Arthur, under General Nogai, while General Oku led the rest of his force northward along the line of the Manchurian railway to co-operate with Kuroki and Nodzu. It was this army which engaged and drove back General Stakeberg at the battle of Wafangow. It originally consisted of the first, third, fourth and fifth divisions.

Lastly, the third army is that of General Nodzu, which was landed at Taku-Shan and concentrated in the neighborhood of Su-Ken. It is composed of the sixth, tenth and eleventh divisions.

Including the seventh, eighth and ninth divisions, the location of which is not certain, this accounts for all the thirteen divisions of the Japanese army. Roughly speaking, the strength of a Japanese division, combatants and non-combatants, is 25,000.

If the permanent active army has been put into the field there would be altogether 203 battalions, fifty-five squadrons of cavalry, 684 cannon, 61,390 horses, 7,500 officers and 192,700 men.

It has been reported that the reserve battalions of each division have also been sent into the field. This adds fifty-two battalions, seventeen squadrons, 114 cannon, 9,000 horses, 1,000 officers and 36,600 men, making the total of fighting men 223,300 rank and file and 8,500 officers. Allowing for troops guarding communications, garrisons and 50,000 engaged at Port Arthur this would give 150,000 men, or 160,000 approximately, as opposed to the Russian army at General Kuroki's disposal.

WEATHER FORECAST

Henrietta was the only point in the state reporting appreciable rainfall yesterday, the precipitation at that place reaching .38 inches.

Clear weather generally prevailed this morning. Partly cloudy weather is predicted for East Texas tonight and tomorrow.

A heavy rainfall of 5.62 inches was reported yesterday from Weatherford, Indian Territory, the rainfall being accompanied by a destructive hail storm. The following statement of conditions has been issued by Section Director L. H. Murdoch:

Weather Conditions.—Showers were general during the week and a large portion of the Panhandle, southwestern, central and northern divisions received over an inch of rainfall. The average temperature was about normal or slightly below.

Cotton.—Cotton is growing rapidly and fruiting nicely. A few bolls are opening in the extreme southwest coast counties. Some fields are found in the northeastern portion, but elsewhere the crop is generally in a fair state of cultivation. Boll weevils are doing some damage in the southwestern, central and coast counties and the boll worm has made its appearance in a few central counties.

Corn.—Corn is maturing nicely and will make an excellent yield.

Rice.—Rice is making fine growth. Sugar Cane.—Sugar cane is doing well.

Miscellaneous.—Ranges and pastures are in fine condition. The hay crop is unusually good and much of it was saved during the week. Forage crops are doing well. Sweet potatoes and melons are also doing well. There has been too much rain for tomatoes.
