A FAMILY AFFAIR — Jim and Katie Hargrove of Fort Worth, Texas were among the several hundred persons who paraded in downtown Dallas Friday in protest to the Iranians holding Americans as hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Khomeini orders release of some American hostages

By the Associated Press

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini on Saturday ordered students occupying the U.S. Embassy in Tehran to free all women and black hostages if they are absolved of "espionage," Radio Tehran reported. It added he acted out of Islamic mercy, but ordered the others held until the shah is returned to Iran.

All the hostages were reported to be in good condition, and there was no word on when the women and blacks, said to total about a dozen, would be freed.

The broadcast, monitored in London and Kuwait, said the students agreed to release the group and would hold all other hostages until the shah is sent to Iran from New York, where he is undergoing cancer treatment.

Pars, the official Iranian news agency monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, quoted a Foreign Ministry spokesman as saying the released hostages could leave Iran "either tomorrow or any other time." It added Foreign Affairs Supervisor Abolhassa Bani Sadr had asked Khomeini's son, Ahmad, to escort the freed hostages to the Foreign Ministry.

In Washington, the White House said it knew in advance of the plan to free the women and blacks, welcomed it and was doing all it could to secure the release of all the estimated 60 to 62 Americans and eight non-Americans held in the embassy since Nov. 4.

Khomeini called the embassy a "den of espionage and those professional spies will remain as they are until (Shah) Mohammad Reza Pahlavi is returned to be tried and until he has returned all that he has plundered.

"However, as Islam has a special respect towards women, and the blacks who have spent ages under American pressure and tyranny and may have come to Iran under pressure, therefore, mitigate their cases if it is proved that they have not committed acts of espionage.

"The noble Iranian nation will not give permission for the release of the rest of them, who will therefore remain under arrest until the American government acts according to the wish of the nation," Khomeini said.

A Tehran Radio broadcast said Ayatollah Mohammed Beheshti, secretary of the ruling Revolutionary Council, called a news conference for Sunday in Tehran to discuss major topics, but there was no elaboration.

Iran has expelled most foreign news agencies, and in a Radio Tehran broadcast received in London, a commentary said the Western news media were "propaganda facilities" for imperialism and Zionism.

The embassy captors released an Italian cook on Thursday, but remain steadfast in their demands for the bedridden shah.

In Washington, Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd said the United States was right in admitting the shah for medical treatment and would have done the same for Khomeini under similar circumstances.

President Carter has imposed an embargo on oil purchases from Iran, frozen Iranian government assets in U.S. banks and halted delivery of spare parts for Iran's air force.

But Bani Sadr said U.S. losses will far outweigh Iran's if the Carter administration steps up the economic war to free the hostages.

Two local men wounded seriously during Saturday night shooting

By JAMES WERRELL

Two men were wounded, one of them seriously, during a shooting outside of the Ramirez Cafe, 103 Main, 9 p.m. Saturday.

Although details of the incident were still sketchy late Saturday night, police believe that one gunmen is responsible for wounding both men. A total of four men are thought to have been involved in the fight that led to the shooting, and three are now in custody.

Doctors were struggling, Saturday night, in the emergency room of Malone-Hogan Hospital to save the life of the fourth.

One of the three arrested had been shot in the left calf during the fight, and was later taken by ambulance to Cowper Clinic.

Investigators recovered a pearl-handled, nickel-plated .22 caliber revolver at the scene. Officers also discovered a dent in a car outside the cafe which is thought to have been caused by one of the bullets fired.

Lovers killed four, including girl, 11

Spree started in Illinois, ended in Texas

This is the third in a series of famous homicides which occurred in the Big Spring area.

By EILEEN McGUIRE

A three-day shooting spree that left a trail of bodies from Illinois to Texas ended just west of Big Spring in 1961.

Four persons, including an 11-year-old girl, were shot to death during the spree. Details of the murders and locations of the bodies were casually recounted by one of the killers, a 13-year-old girl who accompanied her 32-year-old boyfriend on the bloody trip to Texas.

The girl, Donna Marie Stone, appeared in a "60 Minutes" interview some years ago. She told a news reporter she was sorry for what she had done . . .

Donna Marie, described by relatives and friends as being a "good girl", a quiet sort, met John Edwin Myers while he was living above her family's residence in Chicago, Ill. After the murders, she testified that she and Myers had been intimate since March, 1961.

Perhaps because of her involvement with Myers, Donna Marie's parents sent her to live with her grandparents in Edwardsville, Ill., located near St. Louis, Mo., during the summer of 1961. Myers, a drifter, followed.

After her capture, Donna Marie told authorities that her grandmother had criticized her, so she left. Before leaving, she stole her uncle's .22 caliber revolver.

Donna Marie and Myers left Edwardsville Aug. 22 on foot. It took them about two days, according to Myers' confession, to walk to East St. Louis. From there, they walked to Hucke Lake near Belleville, Ill., where they found an empty farm house from where they stole some food, blankets and clothing.

Statements made by Myers are still in the possession of Miller Harris, 606 W. 15th, who served as Howard County Sheriff from 1957 to 1965. According to the confession, Myers and Donna Marie camped on the lake front until Wednesday evening, Aug. 30, when they encountered George Ballard, 47, and his daughter, Carole, 11, fishing.

The sweethearts decided to rob the campers and take Ballard's car. The following events were the beginning of a death journey that was to gain national attention.

George Ballard was bound. His little girl begged the pair not to kill her father. They responded to her pleas by binding and gagging her, too. They shot Ballard in front of his daughter before shooting her. The bodies were later found shot with a .22 caliber pistol.

Neither of the victims had any money on them and the car would not start. Myers and Donna Marie resumed their adventure on foot.

Eventually they came to another farm house, the home of H.D. "Pat" Graham. Harris recollects that the residence was some type of a boarding house. Inside the home, Myers and Donna Marie found Margaret Mary Wernicker, a 39-year-old St. Louis, Mo. department store saleswoman. They demanded money and a car.

Miss Wernicker got them Graham's car, a 1954 Chevrolet, and gave them $16. For no apparent reason, they decided to take her with them.

According to Donna Marie's confession, the kidnapped woman was taken to a spot between Alton, Ill. and Thayor, Mo. where the pair tied her up with her hands bound behind her back.

"John told her (Donna Marie) to take the lady over the hill and kill her," Harris recalled.

Donna Marie shot her twice in the back. "I aimed at her head, but she wiggled and I missed," the teenage murderess told local authorities.

"She tried but couldn't kill her, so she beat her in the head with rocks," Harris said. "Then she went back and told this fellow Myers 'I can't kill her'. So John killed her." He shot the woman in the back of the head.

According to Harris, Donna Marie took the victim's clothes. At the time of Donna Marie's arrest in Midland, she was still wearing the victim's slacks.

The saleswoman's body was found the morning of Myers' and Donna Marie's arrest after they described the general area and assisted Harris in pinpointing the location on a road map. Harris passed the information on to Missouri officials who had been treating Miss Wernicker's disappearance as a kidnapping.

The pair's third killing brought them little more wealth than the Ballard shootings. No money was gained from the murder other than the $16 that the victim had given them. In the stolen car with their stolen gun, the outlaw sweethearts headed toward Arkansas.

According to Myers' and Donna Marie's statements, they traveled through Hot Springs, Ark., and Texarkana and then on through Dallas and Fort Worth. They related to local officials that at about 2 p.m., Friday, Sept. 1, they picked up a hitchhiker on the west side of Fort Worth who told them he was from Iowa and going to California.

Their trusting passenger was Arthur Lee DeKraai, 33, an intinerant plumber from Ottuma, Iowa. It was never known why DeKraai was in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. The ride he accepted from the duo was to be his last. Divorced, his survivors included three children, his parents and five brothers.

They stopped in Sweetwater, according to Myers' statements, for a cup of coffee the evening of Sept. 1. DeKraai made a mistake when he declined their invitation to join them. His refusal aroused suspicion in Myers and Donna who took it to mean that he had money on him and didn't want them to see or know about it. Over coffee, they devised a plan to kill him.

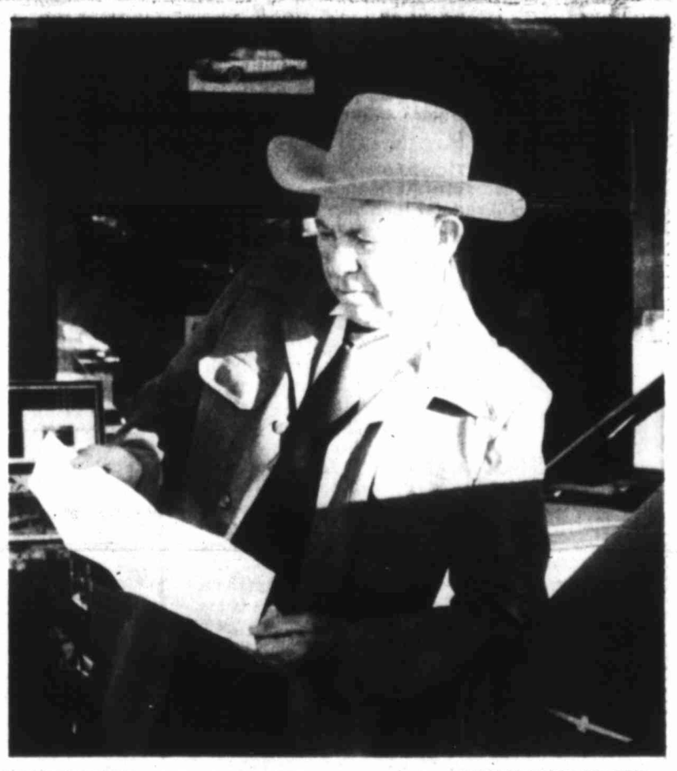

The slaughter of DeKraai was readily revealed by Donna Marie and Myers when they were later arrested. It was to be their last killing.

They returned to the car and began driving further west on U.S. Highway 80 with Myers at the wheel and Donna sitting between her lover and their next victim. It was evening when they drove through Big Spring.

They had driven a few miles west of Big Spring, still on Highway 80, when Myers nodded to Donna. DeKraai was dozing. It was time to carry out their plan.

Donna reached over and placed her hand on the steering wheel to guide the car while Myers, pistol in hand,

FAMOUS MURDER RECALLED — Former Howard County Sheriff Miller Harris rereads statements made by John Edwin Myers, a confessed murderer of four persons, as he talks about one of the murders that took place just west of Big Spring during one of his terms as sheriff. Myers, twice meted the death penalty, may be paroled next February.

AFL-CIO heads favor Kennedy over Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward M. Kennedy enjoys a 2-1 advantage over Jimmy Carter among AFL-CIO leaders willing to commit themselves to a 1980 Democratic presidential candidate, a survey shows.

But an Associated Press check of 513 local, regional and national union leaders — more than half the delegates to the AFL-CIO convention in Washington — also indicates that many labor leaders haven't yet made up their minds.

The survey showed 187 favor Kennedy and 92 want Carter re-elected, while 195 are undecided between the two Democrats.

Another 14 delegates said they lean toward the Massachusetts senator, while 12 said they were leaning toward the president.

The third Democratic candidate, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California, had scant support. Only seven delegates said they preferred or were leaning toward him.

Six delegates spread their choices among five Republican candidates.

The random survey was conducted Friday on the floor of the AFL-CIO convention. In brief interviews, the delegates were asked to state who they would most like to see elected president in 1980.

Carter and Kennedy are courting labor support for their campaigns. Unions, with their substantial financial, organizational and manpower resources, can be mighty forces in political contests.

The survey is consistent with previous estimates by most union leaders who say the rank-and-file favor Kennedy because of his name and his long pro-labor record in the Senate.

"Kennedy has more charisma and more leadership ability and he could move this country forward," said Paul Davis of Ohio, a vice president of the 5,000-member International Chemical Workers Union.

But that sentiment may not hold, some officials said.

Q. Why has the county homestead tax exemption been taken away from property owners? And why was it not made public?

A. Tax Assessor and Collector Zirah Bednar explained that there has never been a county homestead tax exemption, except for persons over 65. The state homestead tax exemption, however, was abolished by the last state legislature except for property over $1 million. Tax on property worth over $1 million is considered very, very low. State tax on such property is .000001 of the property value.

Body was gotten rid of, but not murder evidence laid his arm behind Donna and held the gun within an inch of the sleeping passenger's head. He squeezed the trigger.

The first shot didn't kill DeKraai. As he thrashed about in the seat, Myers fired a second shot into his head. The car never stopped traveling.

With DeKraai's body slumped against them, the sweethearts continued their travel westward until they came to the IS 20 and Lomax Road intersection west of Big Spring. They turned south onto Lomax Road and continued for two miles, then turned east onto a ranch trail and continued for another tenth of a mile.

They searched DeKraai's body for the money he had hidden from them. They didn't even find a penny. The luckless outlaws dumped the body in a mesquite thicket on the lonely ranch road and threw his empty wallet into the thicket after him.

A few wrinkled papers, including DeKraai's military discharge, were placed in the glove compartment. The papers later served local authorities in identifying the body.

Myers and Donna Marie got rid of the body, but they couldn't get rid of the evidence. There was blood all over the front seat of the car. The blood-stained seat covers were ripped out and thrown to one side, but the blood had seeped into the cushions. Donna's stolen slacks were also stained.

According to Harris, Myers and Stone resumed their westward drive. Apparently, they made it to Midland, then got lost, and were stopped east of Midland by an alert highway patrolman, Jack Reeves of Midland, who recognized the license plate as one belonging to a stolen car, involved in an Illinois kidnapping. It was the early morning of Sept. 2.

Reeves approached the car, saw the blood, and asked where it came from. Donna blurted out, "It came from a man John killed."

Myers and Donna were taken into custody in Midland. Under questioning, the story of their bloody exploits unfolded.

Reeves and Midland Police Capt. Roy Merket accompanied Donna as she led them to the body of DeKraai.

"On a dirt road in the western part of Howard County in the general area known as the Lomax Community, the officers found the body of Arthur Lee DeKraai," reads the statement in Harris's possession. "DeKraai had apparently been killed a few hours previously. The blood on his clothing was still moist at the time of discovery of the body."

Reeves and Merket then notified chief deputy of the Howard County sheriff's office Fern Cox and special investigator for the district attorney's office Bobby West who, together with Howard County sheriff deputy D.R. Buzbee and Justice of the Peace Walter E. Grice, joined the Midland officers at the scene.

Buzbee later recalled how the girl was literally unmoved as she sat in the car, within 15 feet of the body, and casually talked of the shooting.

Fingerprints taken from the victim were compared with those found on his Army discharge papers which corroborated the identification. According to his identification papers, DeKraai was 5-feet, 6-inches tall, weighed 135 pounds and had brown hair.

Donna and Myers were transferred from Midland to the Howard County jail where each would mark the passing of a birthday. Donna turned 14 in jail Jan. 5, 1962.

At 9 a.m. Sept. 2, murder with a malice aforethought charges were filed against Myers before Howard County Justice of the Peace Jess Slaughter. Slaughter denied bond.

Myers, who had a past record in Minnesota and Nebraska, was indicted by the grand jury for murder with malice Sept. 6, 1961. A trial for the DeKraai murder case was set for Sept. 18 in 118th district court.

Myers filed a claim that he was destitute, according to records on file at the Howard County Courthouse. Wade Choate was district clerk at the time.

Two attorneys, John R. Coffee and Hartman Hooser, were appointed by District Judge Ralph W. Caton to represent Myers. Bond was denied Myers a second time by Caton. Myers was to face murder charges here and in Oregon County, Mo. which was holding both Myers and Donna responsible for the Wernicker slaying.

Oregon County authorities later learned that juvenile laws in Texas and Missouri at that time made trying Donna Marie as an adult impossible and even if she were convicted, she would have to be released when she reached the age of 21. Illinois law, however, would permit prosecution as an adult so she was held in the Howard County jail to testify here if her testimony was needed in the Myers trial and plans were made to transfer her to Illinois authorities following the testimony.

Myers was granted a month's delay in this case, from Sept. 18 to Oct. 19. He entered a plea of not guilty on the basis of insanity.

Due to the spectacularity of the case, Judge Caton ruled that it would be impossible to obtain an impartial jury in Big Spring and the case was transferred on a change of venue to the 145th district court in Rusk.

Myers was released to Rusk Jan. 16, 1962 and was tried in March, 1962 before Judge James H. Moore with the prosecution made up of Howard County District Attorney Guilford Jones, assisted by Cherokee City D.A. Hulon Brown.

After two hours of deliberation, the jury returned a guilty verdict and recommended death by electrocution. The defense asked for a new trial which was denied by Judge Moore on April 29, 1962.

Myers did not die in the electric chair. The conviction was reversed by the Texas Criminal Court of Appeals who held the jury guilty of misconduct in discussing the three other murders of which Myers was suspected.

Myers was returned to the Howard County Jail May 1, 1962, according to records at the sheriff's department. Gil Jones made several attempts to retry Myers and finally turned him over to Illinois where two murder charges — that of the Ballard child and her father — were pending. A fourth murder charge, growing out of the slaying of Margaret Wernicker, was pending in Thayor, Mo.

Myers left the Howard County jail for the final time Sept. 11, 1963. He was released to the custody of the sheriff's department in Belleville, St. Clair County, Ill.

In June, 1964, a Belleville jury convicted Myers for the murder of Carol Ballard. He was sentenced to death by electrocution. The case was denied judicial review by the Supreme Court.

Myers appealed to the Circuit Court of Appeals who declined to reverse the Illinois court's decision, but did remand the case to the U.S. District Court at Danville, Ill. for the limited purpose of determining whether confessions given to Midland and Big Spring officials were voluntary.

Myers said that Midland authorities had not informed him of his rights and that they had made errors in his confession. He said that he was mistreated after he was transferred to the county jail in Big Spring and that a confession given in Big Spring was involuntary. He contended that the involuntariness of his confession in Big Spring negated the voluntariness of a similar confession he made to Illinois authorities.

Myers was granted an indefinite stay of execution in 1967 to allow him time to prepare his appeal. In August, 1969, Fern Cox, then Howard County District Clerk, traveled to Chicago to testify since he had been in on the arrest and interrogation of Myers here.

John M. Karnes, who prosecuted Myers in Belleville, Ill. for the Ballard's girl's death, reportedly said that Myers' Illinois confession had "several times been determined voluntary . . . and I have no reservation but that the court will conclude the Texas confessions also were voluntary."

Myers still hadn't been tried for the two other murders, those of George Ballard and Margaret Mary Wernicker. He had already overcome one murder charge and was using every angle to overcome a second, but his luck ran out. The validity of Myers' confession was upheld.

Myers and his chubby sweetheart had killed four persons, presumably for the purpose of gaining some money. Their exploits had netted them a total of $16. Myers was now to be punsihed for at least one of the murders.

Myers escaped the electric chair a second time. Capital punishment is still officially permissible in Illinois, but the last execution in that state took place in 1962.

A check done by Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard and his staff on the disposition of Myers' case revealed that he is currently serving a 75 to 150 year sentence in the Menard Penitentiary at Chester, Ill. Now 50 years old, he will be up for parole Feb., 1980. To the best of our knowledge, he was never tried for the murders of George Ballard or Margaret Mary Wernicker.

Myers, who confessed to the murders of four people, may soon be a free man. Donna Marie Stone, now 31, has been free for 11 years.

Newspaper accounts published in 1969 differed as to the fate of Donna Marie. It was assumed that a final disposition would be made on her case when she reached the age of 21. But what really happened to Donna Marie?

Upon her return to Illinois authorities, Donna Marie pled guilty on Aug. 20, 1962 to a reduced charge of voluntary manslaughter in connection with the Ballard murders.

She was then remanded to the Illinois Youth Commission and, according to 1969 newspaper accounts, received an indeterminant sentence in the Illinois State Training School for Girls at Geneva, Ill. She reportedly was later transferred to the women's state prison at Dwight, Ill.

Sheriff Standard's check on the Myers case disclosed some additional information on Donna Marie Stone. On June 27, 1968, at the age of 20, she was paroled to the custody of her parents in Chicago, Ill.

Neither Myers nor Stone were ever required to answer for the murder of Margaret Mary Wernicker.

Straw poll conducted

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The Republian State Central Committee decided Saturday to conduct a straw poll of the people participating in the 2,531 January precinct caucuses.

However, committee members decided against polling the delegates elected to the county conventions. It will be the first time the state Republicans have held such a poll. The committee recomments use of a secret ballot, but said the actual method will be left up to the individual caucuses.

Police cruiser crashes

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A police cruiser on an emergency call crashed into a car at an intersection late Friday, killing three members of a family and critically injuring a fourth, officers said.

Police said officer M.J. Flaherty was traveling in excess of 65 mph when his cruiser struck a car attempting to cross the intersection.

Those killed in the accident were identified as George Farrar Parker Jr. 46, his wife, Gilles Brown Parker, 36, and their son, George Farrar Parker III, 13, all of Charlotte. A daughter, Dana Clyburn Parker, 12, was reported in critical condition Saturday. Flaherty suffered multiple abrasions and was in stable condition.

Man charged with rape

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Richard H. Church, 36, of Marrero, has been charged with raping a 54-year-old woman, robbing her of $11 and then setting her clothes and hair afire.

Officers quoted the victim as saying her assailant wanted to see her suffer. Church, who was found hiding in a car nearby, was jailed Friday, charged with rape, armed robbery, battery and arson. The victim was treated for minor scalp burns, then released from Charity Hospital.

Birthday party surprise

Albert Martinez Jr., Route 3, received a surprise while celebrating his 25th birthday Friday night.

As the clock struck midnight, he was attacked by a woman while dancing at the Howard County Fair Barn. The woman wielded a knife, and Martinez sustained a minor cut on his left shoulder.

Burglars broke into the home of Alfredo Morales, 901 Douglas, sometime between 12:30 and 5:30 p.m. Friday. After removing the air conditioner from a window in the home, the intruders sneaked inside and ransacked a bedroom.

Stolen were a Barretta .380 automatic pistol and clip, a hunting knife, an unknown amount of jewelry, including six rings and a pendant, several blank checks and two pool balls. Loss was estimated at over $325.

Some time within the last six months, thieves stole a turntable, two stereo speakers and a stereo amplifier from the rear storage area in the home of Jim Wells, 1010 Bluebonnet. The equipment was valued at $1,200.

Deidra Avery, 1519-A Sycamore, knows the man who stole her 1967 Oldsmobile Cutlass, 9:20 a.m. Saturday. The car was valued at $900.

Ms. Avery told police that before stealing the car, the thief struck her several times on the face with his fists.

Michael Perry, 200 Goliad, believes he knows the man who tried to break into his residence, sometime between 10 a.m. and 10 p.m. Friday. The intruder succeeded only in damaging the front door to the home.

An envelope containing $160 in cash was stolen from Tammy Cruz, 1325 Mesquite, after she left it lying on the counter at the Airport Grocery, Saturday afternoon. According to reports, Ms. Cruz left the payroll envelope on the counter, left, and then, after finding it missing, returned to the store.

When she arrived, the envelope was gone, and the store manager said that several people had been at the counter, but she could identify none of them.

Thieves stole miscellaneous groceries and an electric blanket from the home of Gretta Yockers, 2408 Runnels, sometime between 2 and 5 p.m. Saturday. The items were valued at $45.

Several mishaps were reported over the weekend.

For the record

A publicity release which originated at Howard College concerning the selection of the school's Ralph Smith as District 18 College Business Teacher of the Year by the Texas Business Education Association contained some inaccurate information.

Smith gained his bachelor's degree from North Texas State University and his master's degree from the University of Oklahoma at Norman.

Smith is also a lay reader at St. Mary's Episcopal Church whereas the story identified him as a member of the First Baptist Church.

On behalf of the college, the Herald is happy to make the corrections.

Lie dector test on employees may be unethical

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Sunset Advisory Commission staff says serious constitutional and ethical questions surround the use of lie detector tests by employers on their employees.

Staff members Friday told the commission 17 states prohibit employers from using lie detector tests. The staff report also said Texas may want to impose such a ban.

"Serious constitutional guarantees concerning a person's right to privacy may be violated through such polygraph testing, especially where economic factors due to unemployment may reduce the voluntary nature of a person's consent to be tested," the report said.

The Board of Polygraph Examiners is one of five state boards now being reviewed by the commission. The boards will go out of business in 1982 if not approved by the 1981 Legislature. The commission — four senators and four representatives — will make recommendations on the boards.

The staff reports recommended tighter control over the use of lie detector equipment.

Staff members suggested three alternatives. The first would maintain the current board, but add procedural and administrative changes. The second alternative would abolish the board and give its powers to the Department of Public Safety.

The third alternative would give the powers to the DPS and ban the use of lie detector tests in employment situations.

Commission members were told the use of polygraph exams has increased greatly in recent years. The six-member board, created in 1965, regulates 458 licensed polygraph examiners in Texas.

"A review of board operations indicates that the board has only partially achieved its objective of efficient and effective regulation," the report said.

It stated the growing use of polygraph equipment by employers has increased "the public's need for protection" because of "possible infringements of privacy rights, the intrusive nature of the polygraph, and the unproven validity of the technique in such situations."

The report said the 17 states cited varying reasons for the ban on such tests. Some said "there is considerable disagreement concerning the accuracy" of the equipment. Others said the tests may be "so intrusive as to be objectionable."

Some of the states said "serious constitutional guarantees concerning a person's right to privacy may be violated" by the tests, according to the report.

SENTIMENTAL WREATH — Mrs. Jim Hodnett of Vincent displays a wreath she made with shells from the Canton Islands, located some 700 miles from Hawaii. Her son sent the shells to her by the boxful several years ago. She made the wreath with the help of Mrs. Bonnie Neel, wife of Vincent Baptist Church pastor Ben Neel, at a meeting of the Vincent Baptist Women Tuesday. The women made wreaths to give to convalescent homes in the area. This one, said Mrs. Hodnett, will not be given away. The unusual, multi-colored shell wreath has too much sentimental value.

A few tips on how to save energy

People in 20 industrial nations, including the United States, observed October as International Energy Conservation Month.

In all countries, consumers have faced a large increase in the cost of energy they used, with prospects for even more increases.

The U.S. Department of Energy suggests 14 no-cost-low-cost ways to save energy dollars. They include:

(1. Set thermostat at 78 degrees in summer, 65 degrees in winter.

(2. Lower hot water temperature setting to low or medium (110 to 120 per cent). It might shock you to find where it is now set.

(3. Launder in cold water.

(4. Dry laundry on the line.

(5. During the day, keep shades and drapes closed in summer, open in winter.

(6. Insulate and weatherstrip the back of the attic door.

(7. Seal gaps around pipes entering the basement or attic.

(8. Install flow restrictors in showers and hot-water taps.

(9. Keep fireplace damper closed and sealed when fireplace is not in use.

(10. Seal leaks in joints of heating and cooling ducts.

(11. Vent clothes dryer into the room; install lint trap.

(12. Replace incandescent bulbs with flourescent screw-in bulbs.

(13. Seal electrical outlet covers with insulating gaskets; put plastic inserts into unused outlets.

(14. Wrap hot water tank with insulation.

Each of the suggestions will save you anywhere from $5 to $135 annually. The savings will approach $400 annually, if all the undertakings are accomplished.

If you're in doubt what your energy has cost over the past year, digs up your bills for the 12-month period. Save and compare them with what your energy costs will amount to over the next year. By implementing these energy-saving ideas, you may well offset the increased costs in energy that are bound to come during the next 12 months.

It behooves us all to save as much energy as possible, not only because it will reduce our cost of living but because it converses energy that becomes more precious every day.

Wrong approach

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Senate troubles for SALT II persist thanks to President Carter's failure to link the treaty's ratification with survival of the Western alliance, an ill-conceived effort that collapsed at last month's NATO political assembly in Ottawa.

Headlines proclaimed that assembled members of the alliance's parliaments had called for early Senate ratification of the arms control treaty (SALT II). But behind the scenes, there were bitter recriminations among U.S. delegates, and attempts by embarrassed Europeans to tone down the unrestrained language drafted for them by the Americans.

Those efforts belied the Carter administration's claim of Western Europe pleading for salvation through SALT. Rather, it was American SALT-sellers in Ottawa unwittingly buttressing the Soviet campaign against nuclear modernization in order to label Senate rejection of the treaty as subversive to NATO's future.

THIS NATO GAMBIT bears family resemblance to Carter's successful strategy for the Panama Canal Treaty. Instead of arguing the merits of giving away the canal, the president's men warned that rejection by the Senate would reap havoc throughout the Western Hemisphere and lined up Latin American statesmen to agree. Lloyd Cutler, Carter's chief SALT-seller, pursued the same strategy in tying an umbilical cord between SALT II and NATO.

But European political leaders proved less malleable than the Latin Americans. NATO parliamentarians visiting Washington resented being manipulated into a Senate debate. Members of the British and West Germany governments (including British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher) publicly declared that, of course, NATO would survive the death of SALT II.

At this point, SALT supporters sought to revive the NATO gambit at the Ottawa meeting of the North Atlantic assembly. With European parliamentarians on hand in Canada, their U.S. congressional counterparts remained in Washington for late votes. They were preceded, however, by a Senate Foreign Relations Committee staffer named John Ritch, renowned on Capitol Hill as a passionate arms controller.

Ritch brought to Ottawa a draft resolution urging "early ratification" of SALT and bearing the names of two pro-SALT senators: Republican Jacob Javits of New York and Democrat Joseph Biden of Delaware. It is widely believed, though denied by the White House, that inspiration came from the administration.

Peter Coterier, a Social Democratic member of the West German Bundestag and supporter of SALT, was asked to introduce the resolution. After some hesitation, Coterier agreed. His initial caution might have stemmed from its extraordinary language. Besides contending that U.S. failure to ratify would be "seriously disruptive" to NATO, it specified that would be true "particularly with regard to the forthcoming decision on the modernization of NATO's theater nuclear forces." Europeans were amazed at U.S. officials seeming to buttress the Soviet campaign against NATO's nuclear modernization.

With the U.S. delegation still in Washington, the assembly's military committee toned down the American language. The warning against undercutting nuclear force modernization was stricken. So was a clause contending that linkage of "the current situation in Cuba to SALT ratification would unnecessarily jeopardize alliance security interests."

'Devil's Grip' not a voodoo illness

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Recently, I began having severe chest pain. All the tests were negative and I was put on pain pills. I still get the attacks, though. Finally, one doctor told me I have "devil's grip." If I have an attack at night I go to the emergency room and try to tell the doctors there it's "devil's grip." But they look at each other and then at me as if I practice voodoo or something, then order stomach X-rays and heart tests.

Can you comment? What is devil's grip? — J.R.

Devil's grip is a descriptive name given to a viral disease of the chest muscles. "Grip" refers to influenza (which this is not). There is sharp pain over the breastbone and lower ribs, made worse by coughing or sneezing.

An attack usually lasts from three to seven days. I suppose it was given the name, "Devil's grip," because it hurts like the devil. It is more properly called pleurodynia, or Bornholm's disease, less "voodoo-" sounding terms.

This pain may recur, but not with the frequency you imply in your letter. May I suggest that when you go to an emergency room you ask the doctors there to speak with your personal physician?

Dear Dr. Donohue: My brother told me that squeezing an acne pimple on the face can somehow affect the brain. Is that true? — F.M.

In the first place you shouldn't be squeezing acne pimples. Your brother is technically correct, though. There is an area of the face, especially around the bridge of the nose, from which infected material can be drained backward toward the veins of the brain. This is quite rare, but serious. See the booklet, "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples," for a fuller discussion. For a copy, send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I hope you can help me make a decision, even though I realize the decision is mine to make. What I want is information.

I have a lipoma that's almost three inches round. It's back of my arm between the shoulder and the armpit. It protrudes outside sleeveless dresses and is unsightly. I am extremely self-conscious about it.

About 10 years ago, I had a radical mastectomy on that side. I've had the lipoma about 15 years. I also had lymph glands removed. My surgeon said he could remove the lipoma, and he's quite sure it would heal.

But I understand that the lymph glands take care of the healing process, and without them the healing wouldn't occur. That's what worries me. Please comment. — Mrs. L.B.

Lymph nodes are not the body's only defense against infection. They are one of many.

If your arm is not chronically swollen I would accept the surgeon's advice. The place where your lipoma (a benign fatty growth) is located would not be greatly affected by the lack of lymph nodes removed during your breast surgery. To ease your concern, why not seek a second first-hand opinion on this matter. This is what second opinions are all about. The patient is not "hurting the doctor's feelings."

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am 65. For the past eight months my right leg has been slowly getting smaller. There is no pain, and I am in good health.

I've been advised to have a spinal. Will this cure it? Or is there no cure? — C.M.Z.

I don't think your doctor meant that the "spinal" would be a cure. That is done to make a diagnosis. The cure depends on the cause. If you are losing muscle bulk in one leg the problem may be with the nervous system (spinal cord or nerves). Your doctor is trying to find the reason why this is happening to your leg. Then the proper treatment can be given. The "spinal" referred to is the removal of spinal fluid for analysis.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you explain what causes the iris of the eye to turn opaque around the edges? — M.J.

Arcus senilis, the whitish rim around the rim, may indicate high blood cholesterol or high triglycerides. It can also signify nothing at all. It does not effect vision.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple — write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy of the booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have a soreness and uncomfortable itching and dryness at the openings of my nose, also a scabbing. My doctor calls it "vestibulitis." Are you familiar with this and what is best for it? — J.C.

In anatomy class, one is taught that a vestibule is the entrance to any passageway. In your case, it is the entrance to your nasal passages. "Itis" means inflammation.

A common cause of inflammation at the entrance to the nasal passages is the habit of pulling out nasal hair. The hairs should be clipped, not pulled.

Whatever the cause, the best protection is with a thin film of petrolatum or boric acid. An anti-microbial ointment may have to be applied for several days, until the infection subsides. Vestibulitis is a treatable nuisance.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there any truth to the idea that on some days you are taller than on others? — C.R.

You might be taller on Monday morning if you've been laying around all weekend. After lying flat on the back for a long time the spine may straighten out a bit and add a couple of fractions of an inch to your height.

But most people are measured after being on their feet for some time, so you can figure on being just about as tall or short on one day as on another.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Some people in my church believe our preacher should never mention money and giving. They say we should just trust God to bring in the money we need, instead of having budgets and financial reports. What do you think about this? — Mrs. B.V.

DEAR MRS. B.V.: There have been some remarkable instances of Christians involved in some type of ministry who have never made any public statements about money. George Muller was a good example; his great orphanage work in England in the last century never lacked the money it really needed, although Muller never made any public appeal for funds. I have always respected the faith of people like this, and believe God may certainly have led them to take this position.

However, there is nothing I find in the Bible which suggests there is anything wrong or unspiritual about making appeals for financial support for a legitimate ministry. In fact, the example of the Apostle Paul suggests otherwise. He sought to raise money for the relief of Christians in Jerusalem who were suffering greatly. He made no secret of the need, and sought to present it to various churches. To the Corinthians he wrote, "Do what I told the Galatian churches to do. On the first day of every week, each of you should set aside a sum of money in keeping with his income, saving it" (I Corinthians 16:1-2). He later spent several chapters telling the Corinthians more about the collection, as well as teaching on the subject of money. (See II Corinthians 8 and 9).

God's work should be supported generously by God's people. Every possible care should be taken to be sure there is no room for misunderstanding or dishonesty in the handling of funds. It is also possible for a pastor to talk too much about money, and this must be guarded against. I believe if people really are seeking to follow Jesus Christ as their Lord, they will want to serve Him through their money also. When they see the needs of God's work, they will want to support it.

No one that mean

Around the rim

Walt Finley

LEFTY J. O. SHEID JR., classified expert, reports while he was in service he had an old sergeant who was noted for his extreme thriftiness..

"How do you get out of buying presents for your children?" I asked him.

"Simple," came the reply. "All you do is stay up with the kids listening for Santa Claus. Suddenly you shout 'I hear him!' "

"You grab your shotgun, run outside and fire one blast into the air. Then you go back into the house, look at the kids, and say ' "I got him.' "

Nobody's that mean.

We have never had the type of government which includes a Prime Minister, but other countries who have had have found some of them to be prime monisters.

I'm sure that sentence is the first one I have produced in a lengthy career of writing which included the three word phrase "have had have."

And having accomplished that, I'd be tempted to retire, except that a few word chasers at the Herald insist I already have.

INTREPID REPORTER John Edwards, El Paso Herald-Post city hall crusader, overheard on a journey to Big D.

"I can sympathize with you," said the other.

"I just got out of prison this morning," a traveler told a man on the plane.

"I can sympathize with you," said the other. "I'm just getting home from Congress."

FORMER HERALD CITY EDITOR Jean Fanning, before she married Jim J. McGuire, recently named managing editor of the Minnesota Star, and their childaren Jason, 5-months-old and Tracy, 2-years-old, visited her parents and pals in Big Spring about three weeks ago.

Jean came up with a dandy solution to the problem of Big Spring's chuckholes — an idea borrowed from the people in Falls City, Ore., who sell theirs.

For $10 you can buy your own chuckhole. You get a certificate describing its location and the date the city filled it in.

If you want a deluxe model, you pay $20 and the city sends you a color photograph of the chuckhole with your name painted on it by the mayor.

Sounds like an idea that should meet with everyone's approval.

Except, possibly, Mayor Choate, who would have to keep his nose to the signed stone.

One of my leaders, Joe Pickle, who celebrates his birthday this year on Thanksgiving Day, says:

People who contend that the bald eagle does not symbolize the national character just don't realize how many taxpayers are pulling their hair out.

Scare tactics

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Tribal witch doctors use fright masks and mumbo-jumbo incantations to intimidate their superstitious patients. A growing number of U.S. pharmaceutical firms are using the same deceptive scare tactics to protect windfall profits which would make even an oil executive blush.

Greedy drug companies have played a major role in sending the cost of medical care skyrocketing out of reach for millions of elderly and disadvantaged Americans. Since 1975, the cost of prescription drugs has soared by 30 percent, while those who need them most survive on fixed starvation-level incomes.

THE INDUSTRY'S rake-off has been threatened recently by an increasing consumer awareness that generic drugs, which are sold by chemical name and are not protected by lucrative trademark laws, can be obtained at a fraction of the price of the heavily advertised brand-name products of big pharmaceutical operators.

We've reported how the big companies resorted to clever ruses to discourage smaller competitors from using generic names, while charging millions of dollars more for equal, but more expensively labeled products.

Now we've discovered shamelessly misleading promotional campaigns designed to frighten doctors and pharmacists from dispensing cheaper generic drugs. Here are just a few of the questionable tactics we've uncovered:

McNeil Laboratories, manufacturers of a prescription brand-name painkiller called Parafon Forte, wrote pharmacists across the country warning that substituting generic equivalents of their product was against the law. Outraged Food and Drug Administration officials protested the claim an untrue and demanded a retraction.

McNeil responded with a weak rejoinder contending that while the government backed the generic substitute as legal, the firm's lawyers were of a different opinion. The company's legal beagles had implied veiled threats of legal action against pharmacists who might prescribe the less expensive generic substitutes.

Pfizer, a profiteering titan in the drug industry, sent promotional material to physicians on its anti-dizziness drug, Antivert, which has several generic equivalents. Pfizer claimed their own tests showed 10 of 17 generic products failed to meet potency standards.

But FDA investigators discovered that 64 generic samples had been tested by Pfizer, making the true failure rate less than 15 percent. Pfizer's propaganda was branded as "false and misleading" and FDA bloodhounds said poor testing procedures cast further doubt on the drug firm's findings. The company has quietly withdrawn the controversial material.

Roerig, a Pfizer division, financed a film called "Pharmacy and the Law." Experts told us that the film seeks to intimidate pharmacists by warning they are in danger of costly law suits if substitute generic drugs cause users any ill effects. Other drug ads in medical trade journals stress the same self-serving message.

FDA OFFICIALS assured our reporter Kurt Cobb, however, that generic drugs are subject to the same consumer safeguards as the more expensive brand-name drugs.

JEALOUS JUDGES: It has been almost impossible to discipline misbehaving black-robed federal judges, no matter how outrageous their offenses. Even powerful senators fidget nervously at the slightest sign of a judge's displeasure.

A little-noticed power struggle between the judicial and legislative branches was fought recently when the Senate passed legislation outlining disciplinary measures for federal judges suspected of misconduct.

The senators laboriously worked out a compromise; but the dissatisfied judges, who are a close-knit fraternity, would have no outside interference. A number of them quietly tried an end run by lobbying senators personally against the judicial tenure legislation.

The Elmo Hunter, chief of the U.S. Judicial Conference, went a step further. He dashed off a letter, on federal stationery, to each senator, blasting the judicial bill as "not necessary."

Senate staffers expressed outrage at the judge's boldness, though none were anxious to take on the powerful Hunter. "We were disappointed," one Senate insider confided, commenting on the judges' inability to compromise.

Sen. Dennis Deconcini, D-Ariz., has asked the Justice Department to determine if Hunter violated federal statutes with his lobbying letter.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

We would like to express our appreciation to the Herald for the excellent coverage you gave to all the Big Spring High School Homecoming activities. Preliminary articles helped to promote the best attendance ever at the Open House-Hall of Fame Induction.

Special bouquets of thanks go to Mickie Dickson and Danny Valdes for their comprehensive reporting and photography.

The Herald once again has served to bring the schools and community closer together.

Dear Editor:

Big Spring has lost one of its finest citizens in the death of Roy Worley.

Mr. Worley was principal of Big Spring High from 1948 to 1961. During his term of office, Mr. Worley knew every student by name, knew their background, their parents, knew when they were troubled and why they were.

He metered out a brand of tempered justice that was fair, impartial and swift, one the students could understand and live with.

He inspired a feeling of "our school" and a togetherness not equaled since.

So I'd like to say in loving tribute, "Dear old Big Spring High" had its shining hour under you, Mr. Worley.

White House urges release of all hostages in embassy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House welcomed Iran's decision Saturday to free women and black hostages at the U.S. embassy in Tehran, but urged the release of all captives held for two weeks by militant Islamic students demanding the return of the shah.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said the order by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini could lead to the release of about a dozen of the approximately 60 American hostages in the Iranian capital.

While one of the captors reported all hostages to be well, President Carter urged Americans and people around the world to pray for the hostages' safe return.

With Thanksgiving approaching, Carter issued a statement saying, "The hearts of all Americans are heavy with concern for the safety of those held hostage in Iran:

"On Thanksgiving Day and during the holiday weekend, I ask all Americans to make a special prayer at churches and synagogues and places of public meeting. Let us seek God's guidance in our search for peace and human brotherhood, and pray for the safe return of those whose lives are threatened."

Carter's statement, five days before Thanksgiving, seemed to indicate he had little hope the crisis would be over by then.

Khomeini's order, issued in the name of "Islamic mercy," did not catch the administration entirely by surprise, Powell said. But the press secretary refused to explain why Carter had "reason to believe some hostages were about to be released."

The announcement reached Carter between 5:30 a.m. and 6 a.m. EST. It led to a hasty telephone conference with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance. This was followed by a meeting of the Special Coordinating Committee comprised of top government officials who have been keeping track of developments in Tehran.

Carter did not attend the 90-minute meeting, presided over Saturday morning by Zbigniew Brzezinski, his national security affairs adviser. The session was attended by Vance, Defense Secretary Harold Brown, and Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

Carter, who had canceled a Saturday trip to the Florida Democratic Party Convention in St. Petersburg, stuck to his plan to follow developments in the Iranian crisis at Camp David, the presidential mountaintop retreat that is only 30 minutes by helicopter from the White House.

Carter's spokesman said the U.S. government wanted all hostages offered release, to accept it.

It was understood the administration was making private efforts to get this word to the captives, reflecting an apparent concern that some might feel duty-bound to remain with fellow prisoners until all are set free.

Carter administration officials say

Another boost in oil prices by exporting nations could push U.S. into recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — High-ranking Carter administration officials say that if oil-exporting nations decide on another big increase in prices, they could push the U.S. economy into a major recession.

"Another big oil price rise would be extremely difficult for us and the Western world generally to swallow," said one such official, who asked not to be named. He said it would make an already difficult economic situation much worse.

Officials agree that some increase is likely. But they disagree on whether the Iranian crisis has darkened the price outlook. Some feel it has; others say it should make no significant difference. None wants to be quoted by name.

Members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries already have increased prices 60-70 percent this year, and they will meet in Caracas Dec. 17 to decide whether to raise them further in 1980.

One U.S. official said there is reason to believe OPEC may increase the price by a dollar or two over the current OPEC ceiling price of $23.50 a barrel, a hike that would not be disastrous.

A few OPEC nations, Nigeria, Libya and Algeria, already have broken the ceiling, with Nigeria's oil priced at $26.27 a barrel. Industry analysts have forecast a per-barrel increase of $2 to $4 at Caracas.

"Although we assume there will be some increase, oil prices are already so high at this point that it doesn't really make much difference whether they go up, or down, a dollar or two," a U.S. official said.

But he qualified this by adding that it depends on OPEC continuing production at its current level of nearly 32 million barrels a day.

The big question for most officials is supply.

Although the United States is not currently buying oil from Iran, and Iran is not selling to this country, most officials agree that this will not alone drive up oil prices. If Iran continues its production, the world supply will remain the same, they say.

However, at least one official believes Iran may be unable to maintain its current production because of domestic turmoil. There have been reports production already has slipped below the recent average of 3.5 million to 4 million barrels a day.

"There is obviously much greater uncertainty now over the will and ability of Iran to maintain production at current levels," said one official. "It may not affect the Dec. 17 decision, but it would affect the ability of OPEC countries to make the price stick to the extent that Iranian production is cut back."

Another worry is that other OPEC countries would have difficulty increasing production to offset a cutback in Iranian output. Saudi Arabia already is producing at near the 9.5-million-barrel daily limit that some analysts believe is the maximum it can sustain.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller will leave this week on a trip to Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates, all OPEC moderates. There is no doubt that he will discuss both price and supply with these countries, officials say.

U.S.-Iranian relations may do most for energy conservation

NEW YORK (AP) — The crisis in U.S.-Iranian relations may do more for energy conservation in the United States than a whole string of presidential pronouncements.

"It takes a period of high emotion for Americans to move," said Ralph Bailey, chairman of Conoco Inc. "I think we've got it now."

The taking of the American Embassy and nearly 100 hostages in Tehran by supporters of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini supporters triggered a series of political and economic actions by the United States and Iran.

President Carter last Monday banned the shipment of Iranian oil into the United States. Three days later, Iran ruled out sales of oil to U.S. companies regardless of its destination.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. reimposed odd-even gasoline rationing in his state, a move other states are considering.

The oil actions deprived the United States of 700,000 barrels of oil a day — almost 4 percent of U.S. consumption. And while it was possible that the loss could be made up from other sources, experts believed that it would tighten the United States' supply of oil. Energy Secretary Charles Duncan predicted it would cause spot shortages of heating oil this winter.

In announcing the import ban, Carter said the lost oil could be made up through conservation.

"I urge every citizen and every American business to redouble efforts to curtail the use of petroleum products," Carter said. "This action will pose a real challenge to our country. It will be a test of strength and of our determination."

The rhetoric was not new; Carter, and other presidents, have made similar calls for conservation, usually to little avail. More than 2½ years after Carter called the energy crisis "the moral equivalent of war," his energy legislation is still stalled in Congress by political infighting.

But many analysts believe that the same spirit that spurred the anti-Iran demonstrations around the nation might finally bring on a concerted conservation attempt by Americans.

"Discontinuing the importation of 700,000 barrels of crude oil is ... an important step in a direction we must move, and a bold example for the rest of the consuming world," said Duncan.

And Duncan suggested that by reducing the distance each American drives daily by three miles, the United States would save as much oil as it was losing to the Iranian embargo.

But not everyone is convinced that Americans will voluntarily conserve oil to make up for the loss from Iran. California Gov. Brown said he acted because he expected shortages and long lines at filling stations like those earlier this year.

And Armand Hammer, venerable chairman Occidental Petroleum and veteran of dozens of calls for conservation, said, "It just means that there's just that much less oil to this country. ... People won't conserve."

Texas' medium-sized cities pay less taxes

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Bureau of Business Research study shows Texans in seven medium-sized cities pay less taxes than citizens of similar cities elsewhere in the country.

But the article printed in the current issue of Texas Business Review also says the seven Texas cities spend less on municipal services — especially education.

The University of Texas study included Irving, Fort Worth, Amarillo, Austin, San Angelo, Port Arthur and Galveston. A "medium-sized city" was defined as one with population between 50,000 and 500,000.

"All seven Texas cities had lower per capita fire, education, health and welfare expenditures than the averages for the 57 (U.S.) cities (studied) in each of these expenditure categories. These differences, however, may be the result of cost of living differences," said Joseph Pluta's article.

Public input being sought

Members of the Herald Editorial Advisory Board will meet in regular session in the Chamber of Commerce office at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday.

The board has been seeking public input on the issue of newspaper printing the names of juveniles who commit serious crimes. In the past, the Herald has always refrained by such a practice except in situations where the crimes are particularly odious.

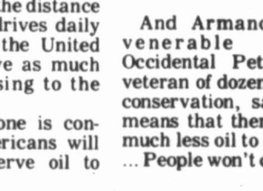

There is no law against such a practice, however. Members of the board have been in contact with the readers about the matter and will discuss the proposed change in policy at length.

The public has an open invitation to attend the Tuesday meeting and volunteer its opinions.

Elma Martinez will again chair the meeting and will call on reports from the family and entertainment, local news, national and international news and sports sub-committees.

Talk is cheaper than you think.

How to save up to 60% on Long Distance.

If you're one of those who thinks a Long Distance call is a luxury, read on.

The trick to saving money while keeping in touch with family or friends is knowing when to call, and calling One-Plus.

make a ten-minute call to Atlanta for only $1.55. That's almost worth making a new friend in Atlanta for.

Call between 11pm and 8am.

Before you groan about how you can't stay up late or see straight in the morning, think about it.

You'll be saving up to 60%! If you're a night person, you probably don't start counting sheep until after 11 pm anyway. And if you've got friends and family to call out west, it'll be a perfectly civilized 9 or 10 pm when their phone rings. If you like to see the sun rise, and you know folks back east, it'll be an hour later on their end.

Call out of state anytime before 8 am and you can talk all day if you want and still save 60%. In-state calls are also greatly reduced. Just remember to dial One-Plus.

Reach out on the weekend and save up to 60%.

Now this is a stroke of good luck: a really cheap Long Distance phone call just when you may want it most. Call any time between 11 pm Friday and 5 pm Sunday and really save. For instance, dial One-Plus and you can Even on weeknights, save up to 35%.

Sometimes you can't wait for the weekend. Or you don't want to. But you can still save plenty Sunday through Friday from 5 pm to 11 pm. Think about what a bargain it is to call someone 1900 miles away, talk it up for ten minutes, and only run a tab of about $2.00. There's just no other way to get close to a faraway friend or relative so quickly, so cheaply.

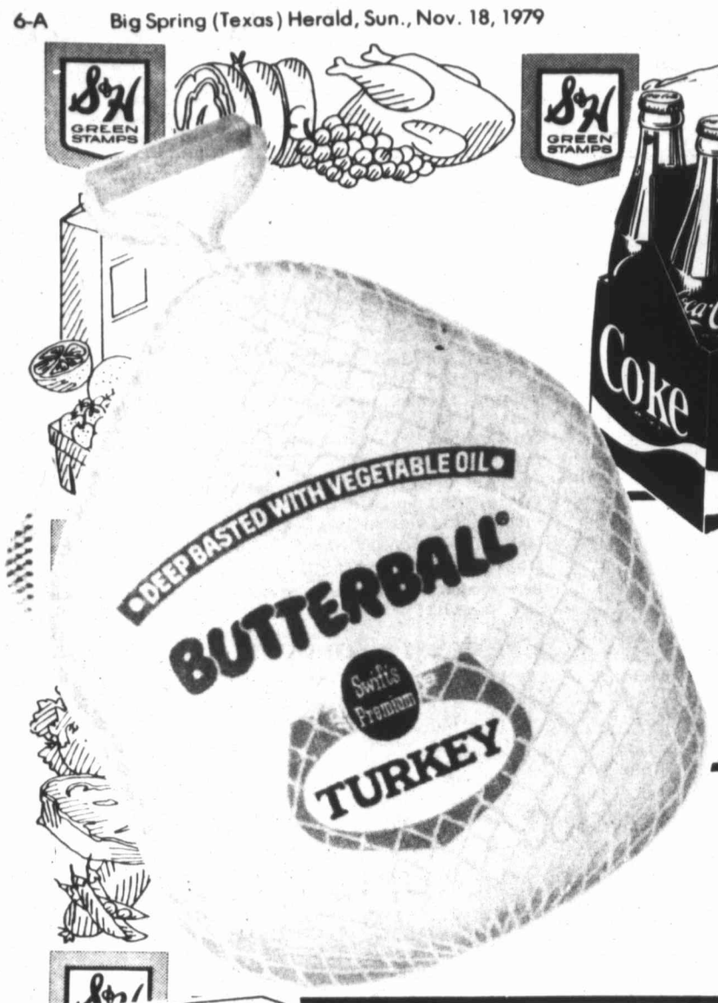

On weekdays it's still a bargain.

Here's a surprise. From 8 am to 5 pm, a Long Distance chat still doesn't cost very much. A five minute call out of state, to anywhere in the continental U.S. is only about $2.50 when you dial One-Plus. Think of how good the sound of your voice would be to a friend (not to mention your mother!) right in the middle of the day.

Reach out and touch someone.

FLORIDA WELCOMES REAGAN — Republican Presidential candidate Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy, are cheered as they enter onto the floor of the Florida Republican Presidential Preference Convention in Kissimmee, Fla., Saturday.

Mayorial run-off candidates promise not to get personal

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Mayor Jim McConn and Councilman Louis Macey promised not to get personal in their campaigns for the mayoral runoff election set for Tuesday.

That promise died on the line, however, as each candidate has accused the other of using misleading campaign techniques.

Meanwhile, McConn has managed to garner the most public support, with endorsements from the city's largest Hispanic and black organizations, four incumbent councilmen, three newly elected councilmen and Police Chief Harry Caldwell.

Macey said McConn's campaign literature in the black community was deliberately designed to divide the city, especially the phrase, "Don't let the Republicans close the door at City Hall."

Noting that the election was non-partisan, the councilman said the statement was an effort to mislead black voters into thinking he would not represent them.

McConn said he resented Macey's advertisements alleging the mayor is a big spender and a gambler, an allusion to a controversial loan McConn received to pay off Las Vegas gambling debts last January.

The two candidates, who have been bitter rivals in most areas of city government, continued to voice their differences on the disannexation of the Clear Lake area and the handling of the city's traffic problem.

While McConn is fighting efforts by Clear Lake to nullify its annexation by Houston, Macey is backing the community's effort, saying Houston can't provide proper services.

Macey said he believes the Metropolitan Transit Authority should provide more money and assistance in helping solve the traffic mess. He accused McConn of not considering traffic a high enough priority.

He said the city has no funds available for projects designed to improve the flow of traffic at crowded intersections.

McConn said the MTA will be joining with the city in cooperative financing of mutually beneficial projects. And he said there are now several projects on the drawing boards to improve the traffic flow.

The mayor said solving long-range traffic problems doesn't happen overnight, but his administration has taken the initial steps.

Prisoner is apprehended

Roy Touchet, who had only 12 days to spend in the U.S. minimum security camp here of a three-year sentence imposed for auto theft, was apprehended while attempting to board a bus in Midland Thursday night.

Touchet was to have entered a halfway house in Odessa for about three months when his prison term ended after this month.

Touchet, second Big Spring inmate to walk away in two days, was last seen leaving the Howard College campus about 8 p.m., Thursday with a female he had met in class. When apprehended in Midland, he was in possession of cash and credit cards which, according to John Allman, camp superintendent, indicated he was going to leave.

Touchet was returned to federal custody and will be charged with attempting to escape, Allman said. His female companion was not detained.

The first prisoner to escape the compound was Paul Koogler, convicted of transporting stolen securities in 1978. Koogler remains at large.

Touchet and Koogler were two of about 40 inmates attending classes at Howard College. Allman said the escapes would not affect the program.

Trustees could decide on name

Howard College trustees will consider a name for the proposed school for the deaf, which will be affiliated with the college if it becomes a reality, when they meet at 12:30 p.m., Tuesday in regular session.

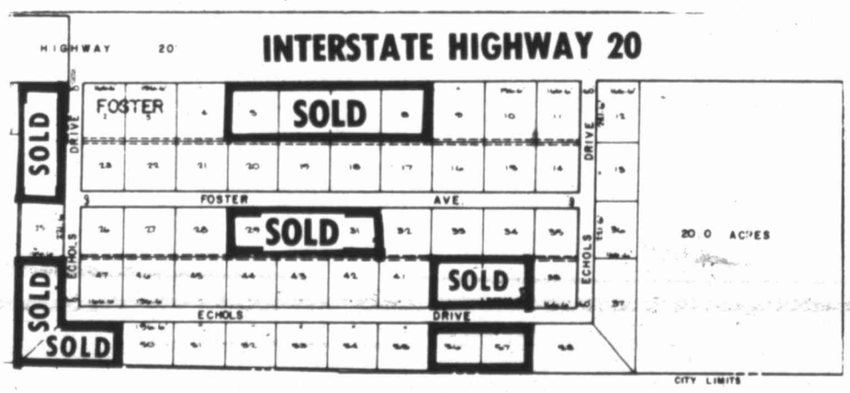

The board will also discuss a new program for the Lamesa campus, review board policy, consider resignations and review bids on television for the student lounce at the Tuesday meeting.

Dr. Charles Hays, school president, will offer his report at the end of the session.

For Bishop Fiorenza

Nov. 24 mass scheduled

A community Episcopal Mass will be celebrated in Big Spring Nov. 24 for the newly installed bishop of the Catholic Diocese of San Angelo, Joseph A. Fiorenza. The mass will enable the bishop to meet the people and clergy of the Big Spring Deanery, many of whom could not be present for his installation in San Angelo.

The mass will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Civic Auditorium.

The Big Spring Deanery, composed of a number of surrounding parishes and mission churches, is one section of the San Angelo Diocese. The Dean (priest in charge) of the Big Spring Deanery is the Rev. James Delaney, OMI, pastor of Sacred Heart Catholic Church.

Bishop Fiorenza will serve as the principal celebrant of the mass with priests of the Big Spring Deanery serving as co-celebrants. In addition to the Rev. Delaney, they included the Rev. Bernard Gully, Immaculate Heart of Mary; the Rev. Robert Breteau, OMI, St. Thomas Church; the Rev. Michael Moore, OMI, Sacred Heart Parish; the Very Rev. Bernard Binversie, St. Lawrence Parish, St. Lawrence; the Rv. John Busch, OMI, St. Ann Church, Colorado City; the Rev. James Coleman, St. Elizabeth Church, Snyder; the Rev. Thomas Jordan, MSC, Our Lady of Guadalupe, Snyder; the Rev. Robert Bush, St. Joseph Church, Stanton; and the Very Rev. Andrew Marthaler, Chaplain of the V.A. Medical Center in Big Spring.

Deacon of the mass will be the Rev. Mr. Horacio Yanez. Other deacons in attendance will include the Rev. Mr. Salome Barrera, the Rev. Mr. Frank Ortega and the Rev. Mr. Robert Ra... all of Our Lady of Guadalupe Church at Snyder; the Rev. Mr. Ernie Sanchez, St. Joseph Church, Stanton; and the Rev. Mr. Teodoro Mireles of Hermleigh. Big Spring deacons in attendance wil be the Rev. Mr. Eduardo Martinez of Sacred Heart, the Rev. Mr. David King and the Rev. Mr. Wayne Rock of Immaculate Heart of Mary, and the Rev. Mr. Horace Yanez of St. Thomas.

The Bishop Fiorenza was presented to the Diocese of San Angelo Oct. 25. Because of limited space, only about 840 people were present.

He is expected to arrive in Big Spring in the middle of the afternoon Saturday and will be honored with a dinner at Sacred Heart Church, hosted by the Rev. James Delaney, at 5:30 p.m.

At the end of the ceremony in the Civic Auditorium, he Bishop will meet as many of the local people as possible.

The Bishop was born to Anthony and Grace Galiano Fiorenza, both deceased, on Jan. 25, 1931 in Beaumont. He graduated from St. Anthony High School at Beaumont in 1947 and went on to the St. Mary Seminary at La Porte. He was ordained in the Seminary Chapel at La Porte on May 29, 1954.

THE BISHOP'S SEAL

He was installed as vice chancellor of the Diocese of Galveston-Houston in 1972 and chancellor in1973. He has served as a pastor at Assumption Church, St. Benedict Church and St. Augustine Church in Houston.

He was the Administrator of Sacred Herat Co-Cathedral, Houston, and in charge of Medical Ethics at Dominican College, Houston.

He served as chaplain at St. Joseph Hospital and professor of Medical Ethics at Dominican College, Houston, from 1957-1959. Before that, he was the assistant pastor of the Queen of Peace Church of Houston.

He was named Prelate of Honor to His Holiness on Dec. 5, 1973. While at the Galveston-Houston Diocese, he served as a director and member of a number of boards, campaigns and committees.

Fiorenza was ordained the fourth bishop of San Angelo in 3:30 p.m. ceremony at the Sacred Heart of Cathedral. Archbishop Jean Jadot, Apostolic Delegate of the Vatican to the United States, presided during the ceremonies. Archbishop Patrick F. Flores, new Archbishop of San Antonio, served as the principal consecrator.

Co-consecrators were the Most Rev. John L. Morkovsky, S.T.D., Bishop of Galveston-Houston, and the Most Rev. John E. McCarthy, Auxiliary to Bishop Morkovsky. About 20 bishops from throughout the nation were in attendance for the ceremonies.

Fiorenza was preceded as Bishop of San Angelo by the Bishop Thomas J. Drury who served as the first bishop of the Diocese from 1962 until 1965 when he became the Bishop of the Diocese of Corpus Christi.

The Most Rev. Thomas Tschoepe served as the second bishop from 1966 until 1969 when he became the Bishop of the Diocese of Dallas.

In 1969, the Most Rev. Stephen A. Leven became the third bishop of the diocese and served until he retired in April of this year due to illness.

The coat of arms of the Bishop of the Diocese of San Angelo is basically in two colors, gold and red, to reflect the heritage of the region around San Angelo. Red and gold are the colors of the Spanish who first settled the areas. Across the center of the diocesan arms an embattled fess which is, heraldically, representative of a fortified place. It is used to symbolize the old Fort Concho near the City of San Angelo. The fess is also adorned with a single silver star for Texas, the "Lone Star State."

In the upper portion of the arms is a heart that is surmounted by a crown to honor the Sacred Heart of Jesus, titular of the cathedral. The lower portion contains two wings to honor the partrons of the See City, San Angelo.

For his personal arms, Bishop Fiorenza has adopted a device that is composed of three colors, green, white and red, the colors of the Italian national flag, used by His Excellency to honor the heritage and culture of his ancestors. His heritage is further symbolized by the dominant feature of his personal arms, a florentine fleur-de-lis, symnol of the City of Florence whose name was originally spelled in the same way as the Bishop's surname. In this way, the Bishop pays particular honor to his parents.

The chief of His Excellency's arms are dominated by a carpenter's square for Saint Joseph, the Bishop's baptismal patron, and a lily for Saint Anthony, his second baptismal patron. These two charges are placed below two stars, as one for the Bishop's home, the State of Texas, and the other for Mary, the Mother of Jesus, in her title Star of the Sea, patroness of the Diocese of Galveston-Houston in which he served until his episcopal appointment to the See of San Angelo.

NTSU researchers' trial, error

Biofeedback: Controlling pain

DALLAS (AP) — Volunteers at a North Texas State University clinic are finding they can control a variety of ailments by using their own biological rhythms, such as a pulse, to master their responses to physical disorders.

The process the clinic uses is called biofeedback — a technique that gives the volunteers information about their bodies through auditory or visual signals.

About 100 people have come into the Denton clinic over the past three years, said Dr. Howard Hughes, associate professor of psychology at NTSU.

Their maladies have included tension and migraine headaches, skin disorders such as psoriasis, hyperactivity, ulcers and epilepsy.

"A fair percentage of the cases" have succeeeded in learning to control their ailments, Hughes said.

Hughes said persons with headaches, ulcers and high blood pressure have shown the greatest improvement, although his group has not studied some disorders as extensively as others.

"In learning trials, most cases can control blood pressure," Hughes said. "We've been pretty successful in hypertension."

In biofeedback, a person is hooked up to a machine that records "some kind of physiological response" such as blood pressure, heart rate, muscle tension or skin temperature, Hughes said.

A normal heart rate, for example, will be "fed back" to a person in the form of a certain tone. As the heart rate increases, the frequency of the tone changes.

"We tell them to either lower or raise the tone," Hughes said. "How they do it is still somewhat of a mystery."

Some people say they concentrate on their muscles, some use mental imagery, and others are not sure how they do it.

In some cases, people can learn to control a specific function, such as dilating blood vessels in their heads to ease the pain of headaches, he said.

But in most cases, the researchers are dealing with stress and its role in various diseases. Stress causes overreaction and overreaction destroys tissues, Hughes said.

The most frequent biofeedback response is the EMG, or electromyographic, Hughes said. The EMG records muscle activity or relaxation.

The researchers teach stress management training, or relaxation therapy, in conjunction with biofeedback.

Hughes and his associates operate on a university grant for equipment. Other expenses fall under the clinical training program.

Hughes said EMG training has proved applicable to many disorders, particularly tension and migraine headaches.

Skin temperature, which Hughes said is highly correlative with the amount of blood flowing to the extremeties of the body, is used to treat skin disorders.

An EEG, or electroencepholagram, and SMR, sensory motor rhythm, are used to study changes in the brain during seizures.

After a two-to three-week assessment phase, the treatment phase can last from two weeks to two months, depending on the frequency of the visits.

"This semester we're mainly looking at hypertension and various skin disorders," Hughes said. "Our next major area is ulcers. We will continue to work with these other areas and try to offer more integrated treatments."

VIEW FROM THE MOUNTAIN

Down at the Y

By CAROL HUNTER

At the very end of 1st and Main, there was once a classy two-story brick building, bustling with activity. Built in 1902, it was the T and P Railroad YMCA, inspired and financed by Helen Gould, daughter of railroad magnate Jay Gould. Miss Gould saw to it that within the edifice, there was a library and also that its 500 members could take advantage of gymnasium facilities, checker and domino game rooms, and a barber shop. The Y's opening was marred by a summer deluge which flooded parts of the new building. Later Miss Gould and her fiance, Finley Shepard, a leading railroad man also, came here for a reception, which turned out to be the social event of the season.

This fine community center was a hub of activity for T and P personnel and their families, ranchers, but also for groups such as the Boy Scout Troop One, founded by Mrs. B. Reagan, Texas' first, and the Girl Reserves. Many father-son banquets were held in the meeting hall. By the mid-20's, the Y's use had declined. The handsome building was used for a brief period as T and P offices, but by 1928, it had been demolished.

After World War II, there was increased interest in developing a community program for Howard County youth. After numerous meetings, it was decided to organize a YMCA. It was chartered in 1946 and with furnishings from the USO, the organization was begun in a building above Wacker's Store, now where the Good Housekeeping building is. W.R. Dawes was the first General Secretary. The headquarters was located there until 1949 when the vacated Christian Church at 411 Scurry was acquired and used for over a decade.

Plans were in the making for our present building by the mid-50's. Through a series of exchanges with the city and through a parcel of land which Carl Strom had donated to the YMCA, the present, site of 8th and Owens, next to Birdwell Park was chosen. The Area Council had verified a need for Y facilities and capital funds were established. Major gifts from the Dora Roberts Foundation and Cosden Petroleum made a building campaign possible by 1958. The present building was completed and dedicated in a special ceremony on May 15, 1960. There have been some additions since, but the major features, the natatorium and gymnasium were original, and quite uptown for that time.

The Y program grew even further with the acquisition of the vacated Lakeview grade school building in the north part of Big Spring. That extension of the Y has lasted until today, and there is discussion of a building program for that facility which now has a small gym, game room, club rooms and a playground.

Running the YMCA is accomplished through a General Secretary and a Physical Director, with a part time director at Lakeview. Big Spring has been blessed with longevity in the position of General Secretary, which provides reason for the success of the program. Serving after Dawes were Lee Milling, Grover Good, James Hardy, Francis Flint, Curtis Mullins, Bill Etchison and presently the position is held by Mike McCracken. Jerry Zambrano is the current Physical Director, Sam Dawson director at Lakeview.

Policies and control of the YMCA rest with a Board of 30 directors. The Presidents of the Board have been outstanding civic leaders through the years. The first President was our new city councilman, Jack Y. Smith, followed by Dr. R.B.G. Cowper. Clyde McMahon was the first President to serve two terms. Jane Thomas and Edna Womack are the only two women to have served. Other men who have served are Cecil Collings, Walter Reed, Dr. G.H. Wood, Arnold Marshall, K.H. McGibbon, Joe Pickle, Clyde Angel, Truman Jones, R.H. Weaver, Dan Krausse, James Tidwell, Jack Little, Frank Hardesty, Jimmy Taylor, Wade Choate, Sidney Clark, Pete Cook, Dearl Pittman and W.A. Moore.

Some of the programs offered through whe years at the Y are household knowledge, but there is such a variety that it is interesting to look at the range. First, as was the original idea in the Railroad Y, it is geared to all ages, even though the focus of the present Y is for our youth. They are surely not slighted. Many a youngster has learned to swim through the Y. Organized team activities bring large numbers of youth there. Mrs. Ora Burson has taught dancing and acrobatics for many years. Many a young lady owes her grace and charm to this program. Tri Hi Y reaches the teenage youth. Through the years, Big Spring has excelled in this program both in local civic service and also at the state Youth and Government. Many of the State officers have been from Big Spring. It is such a valuable program for training youth.

Little old ladies in tennis shoes, and some younger, use our Y facilities through programs in swimming, aerobic dancing, volleyball teams and Ladies' Health Club. Many a Howard County resident is preventing heart attacks by keeping in perfect shape through the Men's Exercise Room and programs. It is wonderful to see the use that the sedentary business man makes of the YMCA.

The Y was supported early by the United Fund, now the United Way, which still gives a generous amount, but mainly the Y is supported through its Membership Drives. Much strength is visible through the large number of community leaders who work on the Drive.

It is delightful to know that our community can support and utilize an organization, which gives, in return. No youth is turned away for lack of funds, for there is a Friend of Youth membership purchased by clubs and individuals which permits those not able to pay to have membership. Obviously, from earliest times in our county, recreational facilities have been important and are a great diversion for life on the prairie.

The junior varsity came out on top as they downed the Stanton Buffaloes 29-12.

The Bulldogs jumped out with an early lead in the first quarter making it 8-0. But Stanton came right back and made it 8-6. Then Coahoma scored on a four-yard run, 53-yard pass, another four-yard run, and a six-yard run.

Stanton only scored once more in the 4th quarter on a 32-yard pass play.

Big Spring

Sr. circle made

By DARALYN LAWRENCE

This last Friday the Steer seniors said their goodbyes to the quarter graduates and cheered their victory of getting out of school. The senior circle has been around a long time. It gives all seniors a great chance to cry about the people they'll probably never see again.

On Nov. 12, Cindy Knight and John Smith gave their respective speeches for the Veterans Day observance. A prayer was said for all those who gave their lives and their strength to the armed forces during the wars. Then the "Star Spangled Banner" was sung.

Big Spring Steer Band attended the UIL Band Marching Contest this last Saturday the 17th in Odessa. All the band members attended. The pieces picked for the concert were: "Fanfare for the Common Space Odyessy," "Bohemian Rhapsody," "Boogie Bee," "Fanfare from Superman" and "Echano."

Quarter exams will be on Monday and Tuesday. Students are required to stay in class for two hours and no students will be allowed out unless cleared through Mr. Smith's office. Test times are as follows: Monday 8:30-10:30-2nd, 10:30-12:30-3rd, lunch 12:30-1:30, 1:30-3:30-5th; Tuesday 8:30-10:15-1st, 10:20-12:00-4th, lunch 12:00-1:00, 1:00-2:45-6th.

Annual band banquet will be held Nov. 27 in the cafeteria. Tickets will go on sale later.

Board bars exemptions

By ELVIA ACOSTA

This was quarter exam week at Stanton High School. There were no exemptjons for this testing period due to board action before school started. The concensus, published at the time, was that some students could graduate without ever having to take a major test and that those who plan to go on to college need the experience of preparing for and taking a major test.

Tests for even class periods were given on Thursday with odd classes taking tests on Friday.

The last football games of the season were played this week with varsity meeting the Forsan Buffaloes in Stanton. All other teams were pitted against Coahoma.

Basketball begins Monday when our girls play Reagan County there. Varsity boys play Midland Lee Tuesday here, preceded by girls' games with both varsity and jayvees playing Coahoma.

A National Honor Society committee composed of David Luna and Steve Maker, with Derrick Looney representing Youth Against Cancer, gathered material from kindergarten through third grades Tuesday to be used as community service announcements on Thursday, Great American Smokeout Day. The elementary students had written short statements telling why they think it is a good idea not to smoke.

Also promoting GASO, members of the local Youth Against Cancer Posted "Burma Shave" type signs along two major thoroughfares Thursday. The jingles, a product of a brainstorming session, read:

There once was a man had a pain.
He thought he was going insane.
His doctor said, "Seth,
You're very near death,
Because you have smoked in a chain.

There once was a man had a hack.
From smoking too many a pack.
He quit for a day,
Decided to say,

And vowed he'd never go back.

Christmas citrus will be expensive

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Last year's killing freeze will increase the cost of sending those luscious ruby red grapefruit and other Texas citrus to snowbound relatives and friends this Christmas.

The citrus growers of the Lower Rio Grande Valley lost an estimated 3,000 to 4,000 acres of the 75,000 planted when icy temperatures damaged the multi-million dollar industry.

Lower production this year will mean higher prices for oranges and the sweet, red grapefruit first grown in the semitropical southern tip of Texas.

Jesus Barrera, shipping manager for Frank Lewis Shipping Co. of Alamo, said the freeze, combined with higher trucking rates and overall inflation will drive up shipment prices about $1 for fruit going to the Northeast.

"The freeze affects our prices, but so do other things like the trucking rate which the consumer will have to pay for," Barrera said.

A check of other gift fruit shippers shows similar price increases due to higher costs of fruit, labor, cartons and shippping.

Citrus farmers will enjoy "excellent prices" due to short supplies and high demand, said Michael Wallace, general manager of the Texas Citrus Mutual Inc., an industry association.

"Usually a grower will be getting $65 or $75 a ton for grapefruit," Wallace said. "This season, prices for grapefruit are $85 to $120 a ton, well above the average for the previous year due to high demand and short crop."

The citrus industry is relatively new to Texas, compared to other money crops like cotton, grain sorghum and sugar cane.

The year 1919 marked the first commercial shipment of fruit from the "Miracle Valley," where irrigation and land clearing turned the brush and grasslands into groves of citrus trees.

Texas ranks behind California and Florida in citrus production. The ruby red, star ruby and other red grapefruit varieties compete for market space with Florida fruit.

Grapefruit crops in the Indian River area of Florida suffered heavy losses when killer Hurricane David tore through earlier this year.

"The Florida supply is uncertain because of Hurricane David," Wallace said. Any decline in Florida production means Texas growers could demand better prices, he explained.

Although the Rio Grande Valley is considered a winter haven for northeners tired of shoveling snow, the area occassionally suffers hard freezes.

Last year's frosting was mild compared to freezes of 1949, 1951 and 1962, said Richard Hensz, director of the Texas A&I University citrus center in Weslaco.

"An estimated 10 million trees were lost in 1951," Hensz said.

Less than 10 percent of the Valley's $40 million a year citrus crop is protected by artificial heating devices.

"It was a very strange freeze last year. It hit spots that generally don't freeze," said Dave Phipps of the federal Department of Agriculture Marketing field office.

According to the latest USDA estimates, Texas orange and grapefruit harvests will be down substantially from last year.

In an Oct. 12 report, the department predicted 171,000 tons of oranges and 260,000 tons of grapefruit will be harvested this year. The figures compare to 272,000 tons of oranges and 360,000 tons of grapefruit taken last year.

BADLANDS, YOU SAY? — This drilling rig is at work for Tenneco Oil Exploration and Production in the Williston Basin of North Dakota. Freezing temperatures prepare cotton harvest

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Freezing temperatures reached across the northern half of Texas this week, slowing forage growth but preparing cotton for harvest.

Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says the cold weather should enable cotton harvesting to get into full swing in the High and Rolling Plains and in West Texas where many farmers have been waiting for frost. Some farmers have already applied harvestaid chemicals, Pfannstiel said.

Cotton harvesting should peak in about two weeks in the South Plains, the state's major cotton growing area. Harvesting is winding down in North Central, Central and South Central Texas. Pfannstiel said yields have generally been good, with reports of recordbreaking crops in some counties.

Peanut harvesting continues in Central and North Central Texas, and Southeast Texas and the Coastal Bend. Soybeans are still being harvested in the Coastal Bend and in South and Southeast Texas.

Harvesting of a bumped pecan crop is in full swing, Pfannstiel said. Crop quality is off in some areas due to dry conditions in late summer and early fall.

Fall vegetables are being harvested in the Winter Garden and Rio Grande Valley. Citrus is moving to market although the crop will be short due to damaging freezes last winter; the market is strong.

Sugar cane harvesting continues in the Rio Grande Valley while sugar beets are being harvested in the High Plains.

Wheat and oats are providing some grazing for cattle in eastern areas and in the plains, but dry conditions are hampering crops over much of the state, Pfannstiel said.

Reports from district Extension agents showed the following conditions.

PANHANDLE: Cold, wet conditions have hampered harvesting. Some sorghum has lodged. Recent moisture should help wheat although grazing still is bleak. Cattle and range conditions are average.

SOUTH PLAINS: Cotton harvesting is resuming and should peak in about two weeks, with about 90 percent of the crop now open. Harvesting of most other crops is nearly complete, with good yields in most counties. A few fields of dryland sorghum remain out, and the sugar beet harvest is 65 to 70 percent complete. Stocker cattle are moving in to graze wheat and crop stubble.

ROLLING PLAINS: Freezing weather should get the cotton harvest under way. Some early fields have been harvested, with excellent yields and quality reported. Peanut harvesting continues in Motley, Hall and Stonewall counties. A good pecan harvest is in progress, and guar is producing excellent yields. Wheat continues to suffer from dryness.

NORTH CENTRAL: Cotton and peanut harvesting is winding down, with good yields. A good pecan harvest is under way. Wheat and oats are growing well, with some oats being grazed. Some farmers are topdressing small grains with nitrogen. Cattle look good, with some supplemental feeding starting.

NORTHEAST: Cotton is 85 percent in, and peanuts 90 percent. Rains have delayed soybean harvesting. A good pecan harvest is in progress. Cattle are in good shape, with average to above average grazing.

FAR WEST: Cotton stripping continues, with good yields. Most of the sorghum is in. The pecan crop is heavy. Cattle are in good condition, with some supplemental feeding. Calves are heavier than normal.

WEST CENTRAL: Cotton harvesting ranges from 15 to 90 percent complete. The pecan harvest is showing good yields and excellent quality. Rain is needed for wheat; some farmers are awaiting moisture to plant. Poor ranges are forcing livestock feeding in most counties.

CENTRAL: Cotton is 85 percent harvested and peanuts 95 percent.

Tax itemizers advised to gather '78 records

Be prepared — that's good advice for taxpayers who plan to itemize on their 1979 tax returns. "By starting to gather records now, taxpayers can spend a little extra time organizing them and pay attention to deductible items they might overlook later," said A.W. McCanless, IRS Director for the Dallas District. "Sorting records into the categories — medical, interest, taxes, charitable contributions, employee expenses — will also enable taxpayers to locate supporting evidence which IRS auditors may request during an examination."

When itemizing, taxpayers should keep track of interest paid on loans and mortgages, as well as payments for medical insurance which are documented on various financial statements. These amounts are often deductible and easily overlooked by the taxpayer.

Medical expenses, union dues and charitable contributions are a few other commonly-claimed deductions for which IRS auditors often request supporting evidence. Mr. McCanless noted that it's a good idea to keep both cancelled checks and bills when possible.

"Good recordkeeping is a fine start to filing an accurate tax return," McCanless said, "Gathering records now will enable taxpayers to file an early return, and, if a refund is due, get an early check from Uncle Sam."

For more information on record-keeping and deductible items, ask the IRS for a copy of Publication 17, "Your Federal Income Tax." Water, soil conservation need priority, experts agree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservationists tend to agree on at least two things: Efforts to save the nation's water and soil deserve a higher priority and farmers, as the front line of defense in these efforts, need greater incentives.

The message was loud and clear at a two-day National Conference on Soil Conservation Policies. The meeting, which concluded Friday, was sponsored by the Soil Conservation Society of America in cooperation with the National Association of Conservation Districts and the Agriculture Department.

Gerald R. Calhoun, the society's president-elect, said farmers "need to make conservation a way of life" because there are limits to soil and water resources.

"As a society, Americans have steadfastly ignored warnings that our resources would one day run out," he said. "And who can blame them?"

The reason, he said, is that Americans have been accustomed to being "the best fed people in the world."

Calhoun, a U.S. Soil Conservation Service employee, is state conservationist for Maryland.

In his windup speech, Calhoun described what he called four major challenges: production of enough food to help feed an expanding world population, preservation of good farmland for crop production, keeping more young persons in farming, and the preservation of "economic incentive" that will guarantee the survival of the family farm.

"Simply put, the basic economic incentive is profit," Calhoun said. "If we can keep agriculture prosperous, we can meet all of the challenges that I have mentioned. And, with a proper balance of economics, ethics and ecology, we will have roots for productive conservation.

Oil industry is given area legislative vote

Legislators from the Permian Basin thus far have voted 100 per cent in favor of the oil and gas industry during the 96th Congressional session, according to Al Dillard, president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

Dillard cited a list of voting records tallied by the Independent Petroleum Association of America in his support of the legislators. The IPAA annually matches United States Senators and Representatives with their voting records on energy issues.

Out of the 30 Texas and New Mexico Senators and Congressmen, 18 have a 100 per cent pro-industry voting record, while only four voted consistently against the oil and gas industry. Dillard said the people of Texas and New Mexico's Permian Basin are fortunate to have such strong support in the nation's capital.

The following IPAA list shows how Texas and New Mexico members of the 96th Congress voted on oil and gas legislation. The following chart lists the United States Representatives and Senators from Texas and New Mexico and how they voted on energy related matters as tallied and rated by the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

Tight pocketbook brings dorm crunch

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — High off-campus rents and rising gasoline prices are contributing to what some university officials see as a new college trend — a return to dormitory living.

"Upperclassmen, traditionally those who decide to spend some period living off campus, are returning to the campus living facilities more than ever," said Bob Tomlinson, director of residential life at the University of Alabama. "Many are deciding to spend all four undergraduate years in a dormitory these days."

Tomlinson said about half the university's undergraduate population, nearly 7,000, are living on the Tuscaloosa, Ala., campus, which he said is a record.

"It's a problem that has been brought on because of inflation and the high cost of energy," said Edward Boling, University of Tennessee president. "The students are finding that when they go out into the market, the rents are simply prohibitive.

"If rents were still reasonable and the energy costs were not still with us, I'm not sure they would still be living with us. I'd say it's these two things that are driving them back to live with us."

Apartments around the University of Tennessee cost about $175-$210 per month for one bedroom, $200-$260 for two bedrooms. Dorm rooms at Tennessee average about $250 for a three-month quarter. Married students can get space in university-owned buildings for between $115 and $200 a month.

Officials at several universities said the increased demand for dorm rooms has created a housing crunch.

Middle Tennessee State University and the University of Tennessee's Knoxville and Chattanooga campuses were forced to lodge students in motels and hotels this term when more applied for campus housing than officials could place.

At the University of Wisconsin-Madison, associate housing director L.E. Haffe said the number of applications is increasing every year. Last year, the university had 2,000 more applications than it could accommodate. Halle said this year the university housed 6,700 single and 1,100 married students, or about 18 percent of the campus enrollment.

Halle said he believes student demand has increased because UW housing costs have not risen as much as private housing prices.

At Tufts University in Medford, Mass., near Boston, assistant housing director Helen Glickman said the back-to-campus trend has been going on for the past few years.

"It's getting a little cheaper to live on campus, depending on what your financial set-up is," she said. "It's also a little more convenient. You don't have to deal with landlord hassles."

She said Tufts has housing for 2,950 students in an undergraduate population of 4,500. A room costs $685 per semester, up from $632 last year. That's still considered a competitive price in the neighborhood, where an average two-bedroom apartment might rent for $325 a month.

Bill Fox, dean of campus life at Emory University in Atlanta, said the demand for on-campus housing has increased significantly in the past five years. "We are operating now at maximum," he said.

Real estate around Emory is in great demand and rents have risen steadily. Fox also said he has heard at least one student say gasoline prices caused him to seek an on-campus room.

"While our enrollment has increased and that is a factor, I don't think that explains the phenomenon," Fox said.

At Central Connecticut State College, housing director Peter Vieira said, "The gas crunch has compounded it and made it a little more severe." He said more commuter students applied for dorm rooms this year.

Dan Hallenbeck, University of Georgia housing director, said the university has begun the fall quarter the past two or three years with more than 100 percent occupancy in dorms. This year he turned away more than 350 students who wanted on-campus housing. Georgia can house about 6,300 students on the Athens campus.

Halle, at Wisconsin-Madison, said increased transportation costs make campus living more convenient and cheaper, but he also noted appealing — including liberalizing visitation rules, improving decor and providing more counseling services.

Tomlinson, at the University of Alabama, agreed.

San Antonio girl selected

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jeanette Alvarado of San Antonio, Texas, an 8-year-old paraplegic, has been selected as the 1980 National Easter Seal Child.

As part of her national campaign, she'll make personal appearances and appear as a special guest on the Easter Seal Telethon in Hollywood, Calif., March 22-23, the Easter Seal Society said Friday.

Miss Alvarado, who suffers from a congenital spinal cord lesion, was the Texas State Easter Seal Child in 1978. The second-grader enjoys singing and collects records.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., was to give the keynote address today at the annual Easter Seal Society convention here.

President in worst period

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — President Carter's son, Chip, says current tensions between the United States and Iran are giving his dad one of the worst periods of his presidency.

Young Carter said at a news conference that he thinks people believe his father has taken the right course during the Iranian crisis.

Carter said he talked with his father Thursday night. "This is probably the worst time in his presidency. I think he would like to do more all the time but he can't. He just has to go slow."

He said he did not know how the Iranian situation would affect his father's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. "I assume it will show up his leadership and help his campaign," he said.

Russian memoris stirring

MOSCOW (AP) — Because of his successful musical career and his mixed success in accomodating the Soviet leadership, the memoirs of Russian composer Dmitri Shostakovich caused something of a stir when they were published recently in the West.

Now, though, the composer's son says the memoirs published in the United States and Britain under the title "Testimony" are fake.

Maxim Shostakovich met Friday with Western reporters at the State Copyright Agency here. In denouncing the book, he said, "If I thought my father had anything to do with this book, I would not be talking to you here today."

The memoirs of Shostakovich, who died in 1975, show him as cynical about the Soviet system that he strongly supported in public. Shostakovich was highly decorated by the Soviet government, but was sharply criticized during the dictatorship of Joseph Stalin.

Maxim Shostakovich said the book, which editor Solomon Volkov described as the fruit of four years of interviews with the composer, was largely rumors and anecdotes. Maxim, a conductor, said Volkov had met his father for a total of only about eight hours.

Damage from oil spill minimal, biologists say

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The massive Mexican oil spill that ruined the summer tourist season on South Texas beaches left only "minimal" environmental damage, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists.

"There is no evidence of noticeable damage to Texas fish or wildlife other than possibly redfish larvae," said a department release issued Friday.

The oil coated some Texas beaches after a Bay of Campeche well blew out in June. Some scientists feared the oil would endanger the Texas fishing industry.

However, department biologists who gathered shrimp samples from water covered with the runaway oil found no damage to the shrimp.

"The oil also had little or no effect on shore and wading birds, and had absolutely no impact on whooping cranes or migratory waterfowl," the release said.

Shrimp and oyster production along the coast is down this year due to flooding, according to the department.

TEXAS TOUCHDOWN — A.J. (Jam) Jones, 24, gives a staff arm to Texas Christian linebacker Kelvin Newton (37), as he scores for Texas on a pitchout from quarterback Donnie Little in the first period of their game at Austin Saturday.

Longhorns trounce TCU

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sophomore A.J. "Jam" Jones slashed for four touchdowns — two on split-second pitchouts from quarterback Donnie Little — as sixth-ranked Texas defeated Texas Christian 35-10 in Southwest Conference play Saturday.

Little also scored on a one-yard dive as the Longhorns raised their record to 8-1 and stayed in the thick of the major bowl picture. TCU dropped to 2-7-1 for the season.

Jones, the nation's No. 15 rusher, scored on runs of 3, 5, 4 and 3 yards. Jones, a 200-pounder, finished with 127 yards on 20 carries and caught two passes for 32 yards.

Intermittent rain had little effect on Little, who guided Texas to a 28-0 lead in just over a quarter before leaving the game for good with sore ankles.

The Horned Frogs scored in the second quarter on a 27-yard pass from quarterback Steve Stamp to Phillip Epps and on a 23-yard field goal in the fourth quarter by Greg Porter.

Without Little, the Texas offense sputtered without a score until freshman Rick McIvor took the Longhorns 80 yards for their fifth touchdown. Jones scored from the 3.

A 53-yard punt return by all-America safety Johnnie Johnson set up Jones' second touchdown for Texas, which led 28-7 at the half, and a Johnson interception at the Longhorn 37 triggered the march for Jones' third TD plunge.

Jones four touchdown runs and 24 points tied a single game record for Texas.

Defensive end Tim Campbell blocked a TCU punt, but McIvor fumbled at the Horned Frog 12 to spoil a late scoring bid by Texas. The Longhorns also lost a scoring opportunity just before halftime when No. 2 quarterback Herkie Walls threw an interception in the TCU end zone.

Over slumping Texas Tech

SMU passes to big win

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Southern Methodist quarterback Jim Bob Taylor rifled a record-tying four touchdown passes, three of them to All-America wide receiver Emanuel Tolbert Saturday, and the Mustangs routed Texas Tech 35-10 in a Southwest Conference game.

Taylor threw three of his scoring passes in a 28-point second quarter explosion which was highlighted by Dick Blaylock's 64-yard punt return for a touchdown.

The scoring passes tied an SWC record held by 18 other players who did it 20 times.

Tolbert caught touchdown passes of 21, 13, and 13 yards, and Gary Smith snared a 42-yard scoring bomb off Taylor's suddenly accurate arm.

Tolbert now holds the all-time SWC reception record at 25.

SMU is now 5-5 for the year and 3-4 in SWC play as the Mustangs beat the Red Raiders for the first time in eight years. Tech is 3-5-2 for the year and 2-4-1 in the league.

Tech was hampered by the absence of right cornerback Larry Flowers and free safety Ted Watts, who along with two reserve offensive linemen, were benched for the game by Coach Rex Dockery for missing curfew Friday night.

The landslide started after place kicker Bill Adams' 23-yard field goal gave Tech a 3-0 first quarter lead.

The Red Raiders scored a consolation touchdown with 36 seconds left on a five-yard pass from quarterback Jim Hart to Anthony Hutchison.

SMU Coach Ron Meyer mercifully yanked Taylor with 3:19 left in the third quarter after he had completed 11 of 22 passes for 205 yards. Freshman Layne Walker took over.

It was the most points of the year scored on the Red Raiders, who had not lost to SMU since 1971.

The SMU defense held 1,000-yard gainer James Hadnot to only 41 yards on 14 carries, his lowest rushing total of the year.

SMU scored the first four times it got the ball in the second quarter

Moving Arkansas within one game of Cotton Bowl berth

Razorbacks overwhelm Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Arkansas' Kevin Scanlon picked Texas A&M apart with his passing and Darryl Bowles rushed over 100 yards and scored on runs of 22 and 8 yards as the eighth-ranked Hogs defeated the Aggies 22-10 Saturday and then stood by to consider bowl invitations.

The victory boosted the Razorbacks to a 9-1 season record and kept them on pace for a possible trip to the Cotton Bowl as the Southwest Conference representative with a 6-1 record.

Sugar Bowl officials also watched the game and were expected to offer the Razorbacks a conditional bid to their bowl if Arkansas failed to make the Cotton Bowl.

Scanlon, the SWC's leading percentage passer, ripped up the Aggie defense starting in the second quarter when the Hogs took a 10-0 lead on a 45-yard field goal by Ish Ordonez and a 22-yard run by Bowles.

The Aggies, trying to play the role of spoiler in the SWC, struck back in the third quarter for their only scoring drive that ended with David Hardy's 27-yard field goal.

But Ordonez returned twice in the fourth quarter to add field goals of 25 and 41 yards and Bowles added an 8-yard touchdown run in the final three minutes.

A&M quarterback Mike Mosley added the game's final points on a 20-yard run with 1:43 to play.

The Aggies are 4-5 for the season and 2-4 in SWC games.

After a scoreless first quarter, Arkansas started loosening the Aggie defense with an effective blend of Scanlon's passing and Bowles running.

Prior to Ordonez' 45-yard field goal, Scanlon completed passes of 12 yards to Gary Anderson and 16-yards to Bobby Duckworth and Bowles rushed 16 and 11 yards. The drive ended at the A&M 28 on a motion penalty and a 9-yard loss by Scanlon.

Scanlon hit wide receiver Robert Farrell for 21 yards and Duckworth for 16 more prior to Bowles first touchdown.

SWC Bowl Roundup

OU, Huskers eye Cotton

DALLAS (AP) — The runnerup of the Big Eight Conference will meet the Southwest Conference football champion in the Cotton Bowl here on New Years Day, Cotton Bowl officials announced Saturday.

The Oklahoma Sooners or the Nebraska Cornhuskers are the two teams competing for the Big Eight title. They will play either Arkansas, Texas or Houston on New Years Day.

The invitation was extended to Chuck Neinas, comimissioner of the Big Eight Conference, by John Thompson, president of the SWC, following the Oklahoma-Missouri game in Columbia.

Washington in Sun Bowl

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The University of Washington has accepted a conditional bid to appear in the Sun Bowl Dec. 22 against one of three Southwest Conference teams, bowl officials announced Saturday.

Harry J. Stone Jr., president of the 45th Southwest Sun Carnival Association, said the offer is contingent on Washington not winning the Pac 10 title and appearing in the Rose Bowl.

Washington would play either Houston, Texas or Arkansas, depending on which teams do not go to the Cotton or Sugar Bowl.

Baylor chooses peaches

WACO, Texas (AP) — The Baylor Bears, who've gone to only one bowl game in the past 16 years, don't get a lot of offers. But after Saturday's 45-14 thrashing of Rice, they got two. They chose the Peach Bowl.

The 20th-ranked Bears got bids from the Tangerine and Peach Bowl after quarterback Mike Brannan sparked them to their seventh victory in 10 games.

Although no formal announcement will be made until Sunday, Baylor coach Grant Teaff and Peach Bowl officials in Atlanta have acknowledged the Bears will be playing Clemson Dec. 31 in Atlanta.

It had been said that Baylor would have to beatta the Owls soundly to clinch a bowl bid. Asked about the Bears' prolific scoring, Rice coach Ray Alborn said: "A man does what he has to do. That's the game. Baylor has a heck of a football team and I congratulate them."

Baylor claws Rice

WACO, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Mike Brannan raced for two touchdowns and threw for another Saturday as 20th-ranked Baylor thrashed Rice 45-14 in a Southwest Conference game. Sources said the victory means the Bears will have a choice between the Tangerine and Peach Bowls.

Baylor spokesman Sid Wilson said it would be announced Sunday where the Bears would be going if they did get a bowl bid. Baylor is 7-3 for the season, 5-2 in the SWC and must play at Texas next week.

Brannan, a red-shirt freshman from Brazoswood, connected with tight end Raymond Cockrell for a 38-yard touchdown pass play on the fourth play of the game to give Baylor a 7-0 lead after onl 51 seconds.

Brannan then added an 11-yard touchdown run with 1:12 remaining in the first period.

With Baylor leading 31-0 midway through the third quarter, Mike Singletary intercepted to give the Bears the ball at the Rice 31-yard-line. On the next play, Brannan ducked through the right side of the line on an option keeper and galloped for a touchdown.

No information on the amount of the contract was announced, but it is estimated to be worth $1.1 million.

Western Hills jumped out to a 14-5 lead at the end of the first eight minutes against the smaller Steers and never looked back. Anderson scored 18 of his game high 22 points in the first half in outscoring the Steers by himself.

It was the season opener for the Steers, and the Big Spring crew were forced into numerous turnovers by the Western Hills team.

Hawk Queens capture College Classic

By NATHAN POSS

The Howard College Hawk Queens played the role of the inhospitable hosts Saturday night by holding off a late Tyler rally and winning the First Hawk Queens College Classic by a score of 68-62.

The Queens, led by the shooting of Tournament Most Valuable Player Joanne LeFridge, and Susan Martin, jumped out to a comfortable lead in the first half, leading by a 28-13 count with nine minutes to play before intermission.

But Rosie Aldridge led a gradual Tyler rally, and the East Texas visitors trimmed the Queens lead to 38-32 by halftime.

Tyler continued to rally, especially when Carla Hutchins found a hot shooting touch in the second half, and finally took the lead at 43-42 with just over 12 minutes remaining.

The two juco powers then played it nip and tuck for the next four minutes, but the Queens utilized a full court press to rattle Tyler momentarily and burst into a 54-48 lead with 8:45 to play.

The Queens, benefitting from the inside game of Kelly Lyons and Shawn Smith, then held off the Tyler team the remainder of the game to claim the championship trophy.

The Queens had advanced to the finals by taking an exciting 77-72 win over Temple Friday evening, while Tyler had toppled Western Texas College of Snyder by a score of 70-53.

Temple held a slim lead at the halftime, but Shawn Smith enjoyed one of the best games of her career in helping LeFridge lead the Hawks past their foes in the final minutes. Smith took top scoring honor in the game with 22 points, while LeFridge chipped in with 20. Rae White, the leading scorer in the tournament, kept Temple in the game by pouring in 45 points in the loss.

LeFridge was joined on the All-Tournament squad by teammates Susan Martin and Shawn Smith. Bobcats vent frustrations on Steers in finale

SAN ANGELO — The San Angelo Bobcats scored three establish control and then romped to a 42-12 win over the hapless Big Spring Steers in the final District 5-AAAA game of the year for both schools.

The win enabled San Angelo to finish with a 2-4-1 district mark and a season record of 3-6-1 in Jimmie Keeling's first year as the Bobcat mentor.

Big Spring, meanwhile, finished at 0-7 in district and 1-9 on the year.

San Angelo initially lit the scoreboard with just over four minutes gone in the contest when sophomore quarterback Kel Crain connected with sophomore Steve Yarbrough on a 17-yard scoring pass. Ray Fields booted the PAT.

Following a short punt on Big Spring's next possession, the Bobcats drove 40 yards in five plays, with Crain's 24-yard pass to Yarbrough setting up tailback Glen Payne's two-yard touchdown run with 4:28 remaining in the opening stanza. Fields converted the PAT.

Big Spring's Richard Evans fumbled shortly afterward, with San Angelo recovering on the Steer 28. It took Crain four plays to direct the Bobcats to their third touchdown of the stanza, with Yarbrough racing in from the 13 to cap the short march. Fields converted the PAT.

Payne, the leading rusher in the history of San Angelo Central High, rambled for 137 yards in the contest to increase his final total to 2,209 yards. He displayed his versatility late in the first half when he nailed fullback Doug DeWitt on a 49-yard pass to the Big Spring 10. Three plays later, Payne rambled in from the two to increase the Bobcat lead to 27-0 with 1:27 left in the second quarter.

But Big Spring quickly retaliated. Quarterback David Coffey hit Mark Knight on a 12-yard pass to the Steer 38 on the Big Spring possession following San Angelo's touchdown. Then Coffey lofted a bomb downfield, with the ball bouncing off San Angelo defender Payne's arm and into the grasp of Big Spring's Joe Willie Jones, who then raced into the end zone to complete a 62-yard scoring play. Edward Vela's PAT was wide to the right with 41 seconds left in the half.

San Angelo began the onslaught again in the third stanza on their second possession when Crain connected with split end Paul Hayes on a 50-yard scoring bomb. Fields successful conversion gave San Angelo a 35-6 lead.

San Angelo's Doug Horne intercepted a Coffey pass early in the fourth quarter, but the Bobcats couldn't move the ball. On fourth down, Bobcat punter Dickie Scott watched the snap from center sail over his head, giving the Steers possession on the San Angelo 32.

It took the Bovines only six plays to register their second touchdown of the night, as Evans raced in for the final three yards to narrow the Bobcat lead to 35-12. A pass for the two points fell incomplete.

The touchdown gave the Steers their biggest offensive output of the season, scoring wise.

The Steers desperately tried to pass their way back into the contest in the final stanza, but Bobcat defender Horne put the final icing on the victory by stepping in front of a pass and going in to score from 10 yards out in the final minute of play. Fields' PAT was again true.

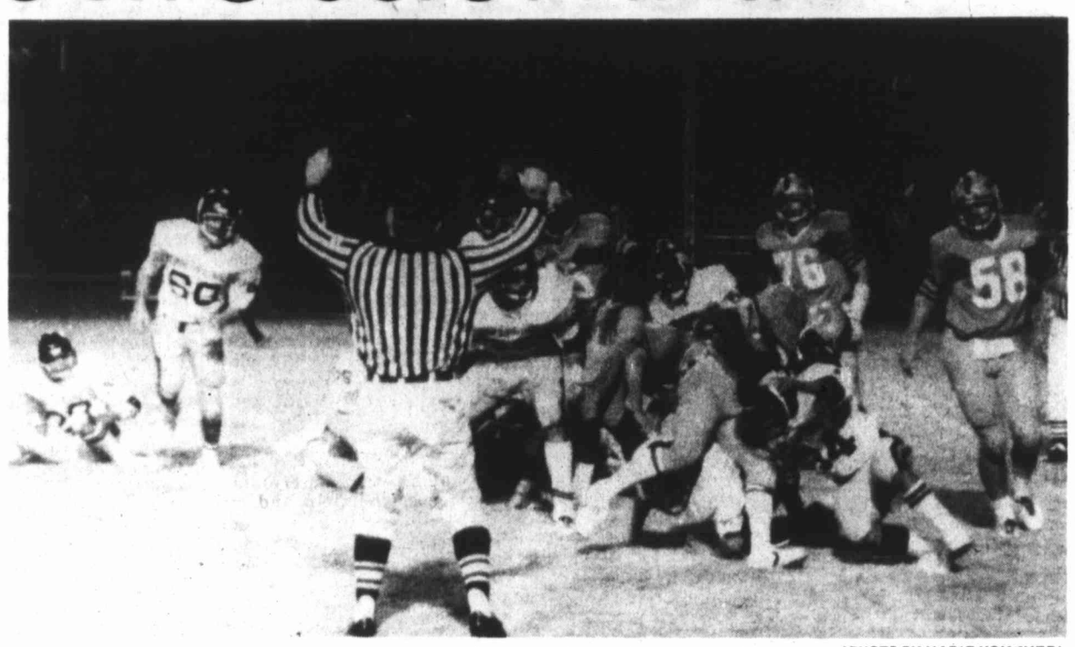

The Steers rushing output was again anemic in the contest, as the San Angelo defense held the Bovines to only 15 yards rushing in the contest.

Cooper caps perfect regular season with 31-0 win

ABILENE — Abilene Cooper, the top ranked team in the state in Class AAAA, finished their perfect regular season by taking a 35-6 win over the Abilene High Eagles in a game played here Friday night.

The Cougars held the Eagles, who came into the game with one of the most explosive offenses in the district, to only 45 total yards. Eagle quarterback Loyal Proffitt, who entered the game as the leading passer in 5-AAAA, completed only three of 15 passes for 19 yards against the rugged Cooper defense.

Cooper scored in the first stanza on a five-yard run by quarterback John Slaughter.

Terry Orr, the game's leading rusher with 75 yards on 12 carries, scored two touchdowns in the second stanza as the Cooper team took complete control of the contest.

Cooper scored twice early in the third stanza to increase their lead to 35-0, and Coach Ray Overton then played his reserves the remainder of the way.

Abilene, which finished with a record of 4-5-1, scored on an 81-yard kickoff return by Willie Roberts following the final Cooper touchdown.

The Cougars begin their quest for a state championship next Friday night when they play Lewisville in Texas Stadium in Irving.

Lee upends Midland behind Butler's arm

MIDLAND — The Midland Lee Rebels claimed the Tall City title for 1979 by scoring a 15-9 win over the Midland Bulldogs in the final game of the year for both District 5-AAAA schools.

All of the scoring occurred in the first half. Midland took the lead first when Bobby Stovall connected on a 29-yard field goal.

But Lee came right back on their next possession when quarterback Gary Butler, who passed for 147 yards in the contest, found Mark Thompson in the end zone for a 10-yard scoring play. Larry Linne booted the PAT.

The Bulldogs drove 75 yards to regain the lead moments later, with fullback Billy Applin diving over from the two to give Midland a 9-7 lead. The conversion pass failed.

But Midland Lee took the ensuing kickoff and drove 65 yards in six plays to give themselves the lead for good. Butler threw for 54 yards in the march, which was finally capped when fullback Thompson ran in from the one. Butler passed to Waldron for the two-point conversion.

Lee thus finished the season with a record of 7-3, while Midland slumped to a 5-5 mark after winning four of their first five games.

Mojo stuffs OHS with stingy defense

ODESSA — The Odessa Permian defense completely shut down the Odessa Broncos here Friday night, giving the Mojo offense time to uncrank en route to a 31-0 win in the final District 5-AAAA game of the year for both schools.

Permian held OHS to only two first downs in the contest, limiting the Red Hosses to a total of 67 yards offense. The Panthers, while, totalled 22 first downs and 338 yards total offense.

Roy Dunn booted a 20-yard field goal in the opening stanza, and Kelly Howard scored on a two-yard touchdown run in the second quarter to give Permian a 10-0 halftime lead.

The score remained the same until the final stanza when the Panther offense exploded for three scores. The Permian touchdowns came on a Howard pass to Keith Rodgers, a run by Ricky Reynolds, and a pass from Reynolds to Bruce LaRoque.

Permian ended its season with an 8-2 record, while OHS was 6-4.

Stanton uses first half explosion to stampede Forsan

STANTON — The Stanton Buffaloes took out their frustrations from a somewhat disappointing season by taking a 50-6 win over the Forsan Buffaloes in the final game of the season here Friday night for both schools.

Stanton erupted for 20 points in the first stanza and the game was never in doubt.

Fullback Norberto Arguello began the onslaught when he burst 26 yards to paydirt with 9:24 to play in the opening stanza. Craig Eiland booted the PAT.

With 3:35 left in quarter one, Eiland hooked up with split end Freddy Silva on a 24-yard scoring pass. A bad snap nixed the PAT try.

Eiland, who threw for three touchdowns in the contest, drilled a 14-yard strike to the hands of wingback Curtis Williams for the third Stanton score of the opening stanza with 24 seconds left. Eiland then booted the PAT.

Stanton wasted no time in increasing their lead in the second stanza, as fullback Derrick Looney burst over from the six. The versatile Eiland added the PAT with 10:47 left to play in the first half.

Two minutes later, speedy Ernie Byrd excited the crowd by taking a punt on his own 40 and racing down the right sidelines on a 60-yard punt return for a touchdown. Eiland's PAT gave Stanton a 34-0 lead with 8:28 to play before intermission.

Stanton added two points just seconds before halftime when a snap sailed over the head of Forsan punter Weldon Nichols and out of the end zone.

Forsan came back quickly in the second half to avoid a shutout when fullback D.F. Stanley ran over from one yard out. Stanton then blocked the PAT attempt.

Neither team could score again until 5:55 remained in the game. Eiland threw his final scoring pass of the game at this point, connecting with split end Dean Lawson on a 56-yard play. Eiland again booted the PAT.

Stanton's final touchdown of the game came with 26 seconds to play when tailback Richard Perez, who rushed for 108 yards to lead all ball carriers in the contest, raced in from the five. Todd Davis added the PAT for the final point of the evening and of the season.

The Stanton defense, rated as the second best in West Texas in Class A, held Forsan to only seven first downs and 134 total yards in the contest. Byrd had two interceptions and Keith Hull one for Stanton.

Williams had four catches for 50 yards in the contest, and Lewis Henry and Arguello chipped in with 53 and 52 yards rushing, respectively, to go along with Eiland and Perez's offensive show.

Stanton thus finished the year with a 5-A mark of 4-2-1 and a season record of 6-2-2, while Forsan finished with a district record of 1-6 and a season mark of 2-8.

Despite the running of Gary Gee

Stamford rallies to spoil Coahoma Bulldog title hopes

By NATHAN POSS
Sports Editor

COAHOMA — The Stamford Bulldogs used a stout second half defense and a ball control offense that managed just enough points, rallying to take a 21-18 win over the Coahoma Bulldogs in a hard hitting contest here Friday night.

The win gave the Stamford team the District 6-AA title outright and a slot in the first round of the Class AA state playoffs next week against Slaton, co-champions of District 5-AA, who won the right to advance by winning a coin flip with Tahoka and Seminole.

The loss ended the Coahoma hopes of throwing the race into a three-way deadlock with Stamford and Abilene Wylie, as the Bulldogs ended up with a 5-2 district record and a 6-4 mark on the season.

Coahoma received the opening kickoff and quickly let the crowd and Stamford both know that their game plan was to give the ball to senior tailback Gary Gee, who gave a great impression of Charles White in the first half. The swift 155-pounder rambled for 182 yards on 27 carries in the first half, and ended up with an auspicious total of 253 yards on 37 carries.

Gee carried on the first five snaps for the Bulldogs for 18 yards, then Coahoma quarterback Philip Ritchey hit Randy Clanton on the right sideline for 22 yards and a first down at the Stamford 36.

But Stamford dug in at that point, stopping Gee on a fourth and three attempt.

Coahoma began their first scoring march later in the opening stanza from their own 20. Gee carried for 21 yards and a first down, and ran for 11 yards and another first down on a third and five situation three plays later. Ritchey surprised the Stamford dfense on the next play by connecting with split end Shane Mayhall, a 145-pound sophomore, on a 68 yard play to the Stamford nine.

Gee swept right end on the next play to score, but complications before Spot Paige could boot the extra point kept the score at 6-0 with 48 seconds left in the first quarter.

Stamford ran the kickoff mask penalty against Coahoma on the runback gave the visitors excellent field position to start a drive at midfield.

Quarterback Mike Cox ran and passed Stamford to the Coahoma 13, with shifty halfback Edward Gardner then racing around right end, breaking three tackles and romping into the end zone with just under two minutes gone in the second quarter. Bart Rosenquist toed the extra point to give Stamford a 7-6 lead.

But Coahoma stormed right back, starting from their own 11.

Gee carried nine straight times to start the drive, good for 65 yards and four first downs. With the Stamford defense then obviously keying on the Coahoma workhorse, Ritchey passed 15 yards to Clanton for a first down at the Stamford 18.

A penalty for a late hit gave the Bulldogs a first down on the Stamford 10, and Ritchey then drilled a pass to Mayhall in the left corner of the end zone to give the host Bulldogs a 12-7 lead with 4:22 remaining in the half. Gee's try to run around the left side on the important two-point conversion was stopped.

Stamford moved to the Coahoma 34 following the ensuing kickoff, but Bulldog linebacker Spot Paige intercepted a Cox pass and returned it to his 38 to start Coach Roy Winters' team in motion.

Ritchey hit Mayhall for 14 yards for a first down three plays later, then Gee raced for 20 yards to the Stamford 25.

After fullback Paige ran for two yards, Gee started to his right after a pitch, faked inside, and then burst outside to the right sidelines, outrunning everybody on a 23-yard scoring play with 1:02 left in the half. Ritchey's try for the two-point conversion on a pass was incomplete, leaving the Coahoma team with an 18-7 lead.

Gardner ran for 17 yards on the first Stamford play following Gee's touchdown run, but time was running out in the half.

With the Coahoma fans on their feet stomping their encouragement three plays later, Gardner stunned the crowd when he accepted a Cox pass on the right sideline, eluded numerous tacklers before finally cutting completely back across the field and outrunning the Coahoma defenders to paydirt. Only one second remained on the clock before the intermission. Cox then ran off right tackle and scored the two-point conversion, narrowing the Coahoma lead to 18-15 at the halftime.

Gardner's run definitely seemed to give his team a boost entering the third stanza, as the Stamford defense, victimized by the trojanlike running of Gee and the occasional passing of Ritchey, in the first half, stopped the hosting Bulldogs cold. Coahoma managed not one first down and only 12 total yards of offense in their two third quarter possessions.

The Stamford team controlled the ball for five minutes midway through the stanza, but two costly penalties moved them out of scoring range and Coahoma maintained their slim lead.

But Coahoma couldn't move offensively, and Stamford's Ike Liles returned Paige's punt 15 yards to midfield.

Stamford, basically on a 20-yard run by the elusive Gardner and a Cox completion to Liles for 18 yards, then moved the 50 yards in seven plays for the winning touchdown. Gardner again took scoring honors for Stamford, bruising over from the one on a third down with 36 seconds remaining in the third stanza. The extra point was then blocked, leaving the score at 21-18.

Coahoma got their offense untracked in the final stanza, but penalties and interceptions prevented the Big Red Machine from the scoring the touchdown that would have given them a share of the district title.

Gee ran for a first down at midfield early in the stanza, with a piling on penalty giving Coahoma a first down at the Stamford 35. Ritchey then went to the air, throwing two incompletions and being intercepted by Marty Gomez.

Stamford then moved for three first downs and ate four minutes off the clock, moving to the Coahoma 32 before a jarring tackle made Stamford's Victor Davis cough up the pigskin, with Coahoma recovering on their own 21.

Coahoma then using Gee prodigously, as the converted tailback carried four straight times for a total of 42 yards. His final jaunt gave the host Bulldogs a first down at the Stamford 37, but a clipping penalty moved Coahoma back to its own 48 and left them with a first and 25 situation.

Gee carried Coahoma back into Stamford territory at the 43, but the versatile Cox intercepted Ritchey's third down pass with 4:24 to play and returned it into Coahoma territory, but a clipping penalty on the runback moved Stamford back into their own territory at the 39.

The swarming Bulldog defense then threw Gardner for a four-yard loss on the next play, but Coahoma was penalized 15 yards for spearing. The call gave Stamford a first down, and allowed them to begin a march that moved to the 21, and only left Coahoma with 1:12 in order to attempt a last minute rally after holding Stamford.

Ritchey, operating without the benefit of any time outs remaining, connected with Gee, who had lined up as a wide receiver, on an out pattern for a first down at the 30.

After an incompletion, Stamford's Joe Garcia broke through to sack Ritchey at the 25. Ritchey then threw two more incompletions, the last being a batted pass, and Stamford took over the football and began their victory celebration.

Gee's 253 yards rushing moved him past the 1,000 yard mark for the season, which is even more honorable when considering that he only moved to tailback two games ago. In his three games at the tailback slot, Gee amassed 652 yards rushing on 89 carries.

Much of his success in the disappointing loss must go to his blocking cast of fullback Paige, wingback Darrell Douglass, tackles Jerry Roever and Gary Bayes, guards Kyle Bennett and Faron Phinney, center Bobby Joe Tucker and tight end Clanton.

Stamford now enters the playoffs with a record of 9-1. Their only setback came in a non-district game against Haskell, the fifth ranked team in Class A.

Kush embarrassed with ruling on ASU

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Frank Kush, ousted Arizona State football coach, says many people — including himself — must accept responsibility for a scholastic scandal that led to the forfeiture of the university's season victories.

"I feel sorry that the entire incident has happened because it hasn't done anybody any good," Kush said in an interview Friday night with KPNX-TV of Phoenix. "It degrades the entire program, not only from the point of the football progam, but the entire athletic program as well as the institution."

On Thursday, the university declared eight Sun Devil players academically ineligible for the remainder of the season, and the Pacific 10 Conference ruled the school must forfeit its league victories over Washington, Washington State and Oregon State.

The action stemmed from an extension course offered in Gardena, Calif., last summer by Rocky Mountain College of Billings, Mont. The eight players had claimed credit for the course, but the university said the eight have admitted that they had not met any of the course's requirements.

The forfeits revised Arizona State's league record from 3-3 to 0-6.

On Friday, Dick Mullins, Arizona State's sports information director, said the school was offering to forfeit non-conference victories over Toledo and Utah State.

"For all intents and purposes, we are 0-9," he said.

Asked who he felt was to blame for the scandal, Kush replied: "It's a combination. There is no question that I am responsible for it.

"Then, we have an academic adviser. He's supposed to check on the number of hours and make sure the people are taking an adequate number of hours so that they are eligible.

"Then it goes down to the athletic administration, then on through the university administration and then on back to us, and then we get the certification that they are okay."

Arizona State's academic counselor for athletics said he was under constant orders from Kush to keep players academically eligible or face dismissal.

Dr. Fred Miller, Arizona State's athletic director, said he felt the Pac-10 action was fair, and that he expected other institutional penalties from both the conference and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The ineligibility stems from the Pac-10's Progress Rule, which requires every athlete to complete 24 credit hours 12 months prior to participation in a sport. Without the proper credit from Rocky Mountain, all eight players fell three hours short.

The other six players involved are linebackers Ben Apuna and Louis Camptell, defensive lineman Tony Baker, offensive linemen Brad Igou and Kani Kauahi and running back Alvin Moore.

Stanhouse signs pact with Angels

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Free agent Don Stanhouse, one of baseball's top relief pitchers, has agreed to terms of a five-year contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers, said club vice president Al Campanis said Saturday.

Earlier this week, the Dodgers signed another free agent pitcher, Dave Goltz. Stanhouse, 28, saved 21 games for the American League champion Baltimore Orioles last season and is credited with 45 saves over the past two years.

"We set out to obtain the best starting pitcher and the best relief pitcher available in the re-entry draft and we did just that in signing Dave Goltz and Stanhouse," said Campanis.

"I've always considered the Dodgers an organization with a great deal of class and I'm thrilled to join them," Stanhouse said of his move to the National League club.

Oilers trying not to look past Bengals

HOUSTON (AP) — The luckless Cincinnati Bengals, with a losing streak as long as their injury list, and the Houston Oilers, smelling a playoff berth for the second time in as many years, meet in the Astrodome Sunday in a National Football League game.

The Oilers, 8-3 and on the crest of a three-game winning streak, won't be taking the Bengals, 2-9, lightly.

"I've said every time we've played them that Cincinnati has some of the best personnel in the league," Oiler Coach Bum Phillips said. "We're playing Cincinnati this week, and that had better be the only game we're interested in."

Phillips will admit, however, that he has glanced at the rest of Houston's schedule, which includes a Thanksgiving Day game against the Dallas Cowboys and a return bout Dec. 10 against Pittsburgh.

"It's horrible to lose to anybody, but a loss now would be really tough," Phillips said. "We've just got to hope we can win our games and get down to Pittsburgh again."

Despite a pair of impressive victories over Pittsburgh and Philadelphia and the strong passing of quarterback Ken Anderson, the Bengals have been victims of narrow defeats all season, losing four of the contests by a total of five points.

Cincinnati jumped ahead of San Diego last week, but eventually lost 26-24 despite Anderson's third-straight 300-yard passing performance.

It would be enough to send many coaches into retirement. But not Cincinnati Coach Homer Rice.

"My primary function right now is to build this club for the future," Rice said.

As for Sunday's match against the Oilers, Rice said, "We had a great week of work and the spirit has been good."

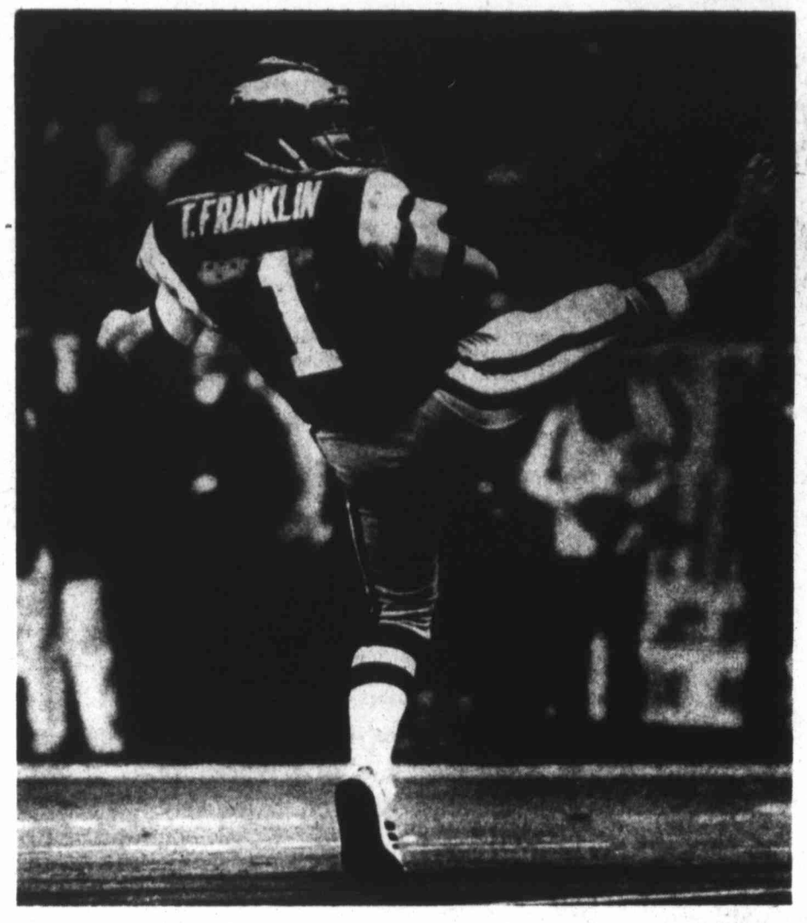

The Bengals, with 26 players having two years experience or less, played the Oilers to a 27-27 standoff earlier this season before losing 30-27 in overtime on Tony Fritch's field goal.

The Oilers have a reputation for playing to the level of the competition, but Phillips said, "I believe our players know how good Cincinnati really is. They must have been fired up to beat Pittsburgh, and I now they'll be fired up when they play us."

Anderson is the sixth-ranked passer in the American Football Conference with a quarterback rating of 79.9. He has completed 54 percent of his passes, including 40 to tight end Don Bass, the No. 7 receiver in the AFC.

Houston's Earl Campbell, who last week became the first player in history to rush for more than 1,000 yards in his first two seasons, leads the AFC and is fourth in the NFL in rushing with 1,039 yards on 245 carries.

Kickoff is at 3 p.m. CST.

59-YARD FOLLOW THROUGH — Philadelphia Eagles place kicker Tony Franklin watches a 59-yard field goal sail through the uprights in his team's 31-21 win over the Dallas Cowboys last Monday night. Franklin, who lived in Big Spring during much of his childhood, takes his kicking act home today when the Eagles host St. Louis.

Cowboys renew rivalry with Redskins today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys renew their intense rivalry with the Washington Redskins Sunday in a National Football League game which could tighten the eastern division race.

Although the rivalry has been soft-peddled Dallas where officials says contests with Pittsburgh are more important, things have been different at Redskins Park where the office staff, from secretaries to assistant general managers, wore Tshirts imprinted "I Hate the Cowboys."

Redskins Coach Jack Pardee predicted, "We are going to beat Dallas." The Pardee statement brought a rejoinder from Dallas linebacker Thomas Henderson, who last Thanksgiving Day called the Redskins "turkeys," that, "We're going to beat them. We'll beat them because we have to. It's a must game for us and that's the reality of the situation."

Dallas, which was defeated by Philadelphia Monday night, leads the NFCEast with a record of 8-3, one game ahead of the Redskins and Eagles, each with 7-4 marks.

A Redskins victory combined with Philadelphia beating St. Louis would create a threeteam tie for first in the division, with four games to go.

The Redskins always believe they can handle the Cowboys in RFK Stadium, as they did last year 9-5 before the largest Monday night television audience in history. The Cowboys won in Dallas 37-10 on Thanksgiving Day.

Over the past eight season, the Cowboys own a 9-8, including the 1972 NFC championship, advantage by virtue of a sweep in 1977. Since the series began in 1960, Dallas holds a 21-15-2 lead, but the 15 victories against the Cowboys are the most by any team in club history.

What makes the final weeks of the season so intriguing is that now Dallas, after its loss to Philadelphia Monday, appears vulnerable in Texas Stadium. And that is where the Redskins and Cowboys end the season Dec. 16.

"Sunday really is a championship game now," said Redskins safety Mark Murphy. "It won't decide the championship, obviously, but if we win it will set up a great stretch run."

The Cowboys have lost two of their last three games, a situation that has perplexed Coach Tom Landry, especially since they have to play Houston on Thanksgiving Day.

"We need to get a successful game like we had against the Rams (a 30-6 victory four weeks ago) because you have to play well in a tough situation," he said. "Whether we're in a tough situation in the eyes of our players, I'm still not sure.

"At this point, Philadelphia, Washington and Dallas are dead even as far as I'm concerned. We're all contenders. But I'm confident. I'm always confident in the players we have.

"Anytime you have the kind of record we have, a lot of the players have no conception what it's like to be on the bottom. Sometimes you wish they'd been down there so they could know what it's like.

"But I think we can pull out of it," said Landry. "We better start now."

Blocked punt sparks Ohio State past Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Ohio State's Jim Laughlin and Ben Lee blocked a fourth-quarter punt attempt by Michigan's Bryan Virgil and Buckeye Todd Bell scooped it up and ran it in for a touchown to give Ohio State an 18-15 victory and the Big Ten football championship Saturday.

Michigan jumped to a surprising 7-6 halftime lead over No. 2 Ohio State when quarterback John Wangler connected with fleet freshman wide receiver Anthony Carter for a 59-yard touchdown pass play with 1:30 left in the second quarter.

The Buckeyes stayed in the game as Vlade Janakievski booted second-quarter field goals of 23 and 25 yards.

Then, on their first possession of the second half, the Buckeyes marched 51 yards in 13 plays, capped by an 18-yard touchdown strike from sophomore quarterback Art Schlichter to Chuck Hunter.

Michigan bounced right back, though, taking the ensuing kickoff and marching 80 yards in seven plays — the key being a 66-yard toss from Wangler to Carter. Wolverine fullback Roosevelt Smith concluded the drive by diving across from the 1-yard line, then plunging for the 2-point conversion.

Alabama keeps record spotless

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Quarterback Steadman Shealy passed for 187 yards and a touchdown and Alabama's stingy defense intercepted five passes as the top-ranked Tide dominated Miami of Florida 30-0 in a nationally televised football game Saturday.

The victory was Alabama's 10th of the season and 19th in a row, the longest current string in the nation. It was the Tide's fifth shutout of the season, a year in which Bama has average giving up only four points a game.

The five interceptions, all by different backs, gave Alabama 25 for the season, breaking the record of 24 set by the 1952, 1966 and 1968 teams.

Shealy teamed with Tim Travis on a 56-yard scoring pass play on Alabama's second possession, with Travis far behind all Hurricane defenders when the ball reached him.

Shealy's 187 yards came on nine completions in 15 attempts.

Cornhuskers cruise past Iowa State

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska quarterback Jeff Quinn connected with tight end Junior Miller for two touchdowns and fullback Andra Franklin rammed two yards for a touchdown, leading the third-ranked Cornhuskers to a 34-3 triumph Saturday over Iowa State.

The victory by Nebraska set up a Big Eight conference championship showdown next week with Oklahoma, with the Cornhuskers owning a 6-0 league record.

A 22-yard field goal with 1:37 left by Iowa State's Alex Giffords deprived Nebraska, 10-0, of its fourth shutout.

Ignited by Quinn, who was making only his second start of the year, Nebraska exploded for 25 points in the second quarter.

Sims heroics overcome Mizzou

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Billy Sims rushed for 282 yards Saturday, including a spectacular 70-yard scoring gallop in the third quarter, and No. 7 Oklahoma overcame Missouri with a 24-22 Big Eight football victory.

Missouri, behind the passing wizardry and running of quarterback Phil Bradley, led the favored Sooners twice and missed on a 37-yard field goal attempt with three minutes left that would have won the game.

Oklahoma trailed at halftime 9-7, but Sims, on the third play of the second half, broke free on his 70-yard scoring jaunt. Missouri cornerback Johnnie Poe hit the 1978 Heishman Trophy winner at the 30 and spun him completely around, but Sims kept his feet, accelerated and ducked Kevin Potter at the 20.

Deer hunting tips

Yesterday marked the beginning of another deer and turkey season in Texas.

Bag limits are three deer, no more than two bucks, and two turkey of either sex.

No person may hunt anterless deer without first obtaining a legal signed permit from the landowner or agent of the tract where hunting.

Deer and turkey tags are issued with the hunting license. All deer and turkey must be tagged immediately upon being killed. Failure to tag an animal may result in a fine from $25 to $200.

Hunters are cautioned that night hunting and spotlighting is illegal. The hunting day begins 30 minutes before sunup and ends 30 minutes after sundown.

Hunting licenses are available throughout the county at Hardware and sporting goods stores, as well as in the county clerk's office.

Hunters are often an endangered species in the hunting season, often being mistakenly shot, and are advised to wear bright orange clothing.

Cleaning out your garage easier than you think.

THE FAMILY CIRCUS®

"Read them all to us, Daddy, and we'll tell you which ones to play."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Avoid feeling frustrated or resentful because conditions do not seem to be working out as you wish. Be the objective observer now and you sidestep considerable woe.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Organize your debits and credit better for the weeks, months ahead. Try to understand loved ones better. Stay within your budget.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Others may not agree with your ideas but don't become belligerent, listen to reason. Being extravagant is unwise at this time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Try to do your work by yourself without arguing with others and be efficient. Take care that you don't overwork, overeat.

MOON CHILDREN (June 23 to July 21) Don't overspend for pleasure or you regret it later. Your talents can be expressed well now. Be active.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Being kind with those who live with you is wise since they are apt to need your help. Don't tackle new projects that require new co-workers.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Concentrate on finest precepts and follow them to the best of your ability. Avoid one who could cause you to go off on the deep end.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to economize and get all of your affairs running more smoothly. A trusted adviser could be helpful, if you have one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't be demanding with others. Tact and diplomacy are your best bet to gain favors. Not a good day to meet with distant friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You feel frustrated and could make serious mistakes if you don't take yourself in hand early. Avoid criticizing closest tie.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't permit a friend to force you into doing something that does not appeal to you. Not a good day to go after personal wishes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have to be above reproach if you are to avoid the day's rather unpleasant aspects. Care is the keynote today and tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You want to get out to new places and meet interesting persons, but this is not the day for that. Take care of small tasks.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will always be wanting to make changes. Teach early the importance of perseverance and stability, otherwise there will be little chance of success in this lifetime. There could be real ability at music, so give lessons.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's aspects bring increased activity in your regular routines but be sure not to force your will on others or considerable problems could follow. Be sure to maintain a cheerful manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care you don't use all that excessive energy to stir up trouble with others today. Schedule your activities wisely.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to use tact in all your dealings with associates today if you want them to follow your wishes. Be more objective.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can complete what you have left unfinished in the past and branch out in new and worthwhile directions. Be happy.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to control your emotions at all times today. Delve into pleasures that are not expensive in the evening.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Taking steps to make your life more ideal is wise at this time. Use your hunches in handling a difficult situation.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make long-range plans that could give you added abundance in the days ahead. Make sure there are no errors in written material.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Wait until you have completed current monetary affairs before you take on any new ones. Think constructively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan how to attain personal aims and anticipate possible obtacles you might run up against. Strive for happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Analyze your financial position well and make it more secure by cutting down on expenses. Live a more worthwhile life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) New friends are stepping into your life while others are stepping out, so be encouraging with the new. Be logical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can handle money matters wisely at this time. Find new way to expand in career activities. Express happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Concentrate on how to expand in your line of endeavor and command more respect from allies. Avoid unwise investments.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will be able to find better methods for handling regular routines and make them more profitable. Be sure to give the finest education you can afford. Give ethical and religious training early in life.

A DOG'S LIFE — Beauregard, the bloodhound who appears on the "Hee Haw" syndicated television show, gets a hug from Cathy Baker who is a member of the show's cast. Beauregard, who is 3, is the grandson of another dog who appeared on the show previously.

Sad-looking bloodhound has his 'day' every Saturday night

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Every dog has his day, and in Beauregard's case, it's Saturday night.

That's when Beauregard, a sad-looking deep crimson bloodhound, becomes one of the most famous dogs on TV since Lassie.

Beauregard, who is 3, appears on "Hee Haw," which is syndicated on more than 220 stations.

The brown-eyed dog appears often in scenes with farm girl Cathy Baker. He's also frequently in scenes in which cast members portray moonshiners.

But mostly, he just lays there. Rin Tin Tin he's not.

Lately, Beauregard's been in the doghouse. He's barked when other members of the cast were singing. But he gets back in good graces by barking on cue.

"He feels at home on the show," said his owner, a Memphis lawyer who prefers to remain anonymous. "He's real friendly toward the cast members."

Perhaps he feels so much at home because he's well paid.

"He put me through law school," his owner said, refusing to specify how much Beauregard makes.

Beauregard, who weighs 120 pounds, has been on the show three years. His grandfather appeared on "Hee Haw" until he died a few years ago.

Although he appears shiftless on the show, he's just acting. Actually he's very active and friendly.

"The cameramen and stagehands want to play ball with him and we have a hard time taming him down," the owner said.

When he's not taping the show, he spends most of his time in his owner's backyard. Sometimes he's near the television when the show is on, but he doesn't pay much attention.

When he's in public, he's recognized just like a Hollywood star. But occasionally there's confusion.

"He gets confused with Duke on 'The Beverly Hillbillies,"' his owner said.

Buck Owens, a co-star of "Hee Haw," said fans ask about Beauregard all the time.

"They want to know if he's a nice dog and things like that," Owens said. "Questions about Beauregard are the second or third most-asked questions. The most-asked is whether Junior (Samples) is really like he is on the show."

Library has book with windfall profits details

By REBECCA TAYLOR
Reference Librarian

The Howard County Library has just received a summary of the Crude Oil Windfall Profit Tax Bill of 1979, which is now before Congress.

The summary gives a brief outline and explanation of the major points of the proposal. The House passed a proposal which included an energy trust fund made up from the receipts of a three tier tax on crude oil. The Senate Finance Committee has a substitute bill incorporating these two provisions into a six part bill.

(1) The windfall profit tax is an exice, or severance, tax on domestically produced crude oil. Taxable oil is taxed in one of three tiers. For each tier, the taxable windfall profit is the difference between the selling price of oil and a base price, minus an adjustment for the State excise tax on windfall profit.

(2, 3) Residential energy credits and business energy tax incentives would be expanded and increased on both conservation items, such as insulation, and on renewable energy source expenditures such as solar heating.

(4, 5) Part of the income from the tax (½) would be used to give subsidies to low income families and the elderly and to finance tax credits based on heating costs. The remaining half of the income would be divided between a Transportation Trust Fund and the Taxpayer Trust Fund for support of the social security payroll tax freeze coming in 1981.

(6) The last provision is a rider unrelated to the tax bill.

This report is part of the comprehensive Federal Tax Guide Service from Commerce Clearing House. The service includes: 1. the four volume Tax Guides which gives comprehensive coverage of all federal tax laws and regulations, 2. the two volume Federal Tax Forms providing up to date copies of all federal forms needed to file any kind of federal tax report, 3. regular updates to both of these services, 4. newsletters on the latest tax laws and court interpretations, and 5. special reports such as this one on the wind fall profit tax bill.

'I never repeat myself'

Actress Mason opts for subtle

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marsha Mason remembers the advice from Paul Mazrusky, who directed her first movie, "Blume in Love."

He commended her for planning to spend a year in repertory at San Francisco's American Conservatory Theater. Mazursky added: "You could have a career in films. The important thing to remember is: Don't ever pick material on the basis of what is good for your career."

Evidence that Marsha Mason has followed that advice may be seen in the country's theaters this month. After the immense hit of "The Goodbye Girl" — Oscar nomination for Miss Mason, Oscar for Richard Dreyfuss — she might be expected to play it safe with another commercial comedy. Instead, it's "Promises in the Dark."

The movie might help restore shattered faith in the Hollywood decision-making process, which seems to result in films about disasters, devils and disco fever. In this case Orion Pictures opted for an uncompromising story of the relationship between a woman doctor and a cancer-stricken teen-age girl.

"I'll never repeat myself," explained Miss Mason. "The role in 'Promises' was the least histrionic I had ever undertaken, the most subtle, the most subdued in terms of emotional response.

"Also I had never prepared so thoroughly for a role as I had to for this one.

"The area of medicine was so foreign to me that I had to do a lot of research. I needed to know what makes a doctor tick, and particularly how a woman doctor functions in a world that is predominately masculine."

The actress devoted long hours to watching hospitals at work and questioning doctors about their profession. Her best source was Alexandra Levine of Los Angeles County-U.S.C. Medical Center — "I even had my character's name changed to Alexandra because of her."

The crux of "Promises in the Dark" is whether life-support systems for the girl should be shut off after her condition becomes hopeless. The girl, played with heart-breaking conviction by Kathleen Beller, had asked the doctor to promise to do so.

"Almost all of the doctors I talked to were my age or less, and they all took a humanistic approach to their work," Miss Mason observed. "Only one woman doctor told me that she would never tell her patients if there was no hope for recovery."

Miss Mason recently finished work with James Caan in "Chapter Two." Her role there is autobiographical, since Neil Simon, her husband, wrote about their life together, before and after marriage.

TURNAROUND — Actress Marsha Mason, who received an Oscar nomination for her role in the film comedy "The Goodbye Girl," gets a turnaround in roles in her new film, "Promises in the Dark," in which she plays a woman doctor dealing with a cancer-stricken teen-age girl. The Orion Pictures release is due in the nation's theaters later this month.

OWN THE PERFECT BUSINESS!

The Great American Dream, owning your own business. A business that has a good income potential. No boss to answer to, work when you please (full or part time). A business that may be run by men, women, or even an entire family. And it is actually downright fun.

SOUND IMPOSSIBLE?

Robco Products is a 14-year-old company with a proven record of success. We invite you to join us by becoming a wholesaler for the world's most famous brand of toy products. We cannot mention the brand name, but you've all seen these products and animated characters at amusement parks in California or Florida. Your kids watch these famous animated characters on TV every day and at the movies just as you did and your parents did 50 years ago.

LET US PROVE IT

Our Jobbers invest a minimum of $7995. (A small price to pay for "The Perfect Business.") They receive starting and backup inventory, company secured locations and complete training. They service a chain of retail accounts such as Department Stores, Drug Stores, Supermarkets, Toy & Gift Shops, Shopping Malls, etc. If you act right now you could be in this wonderful business in just a few short weeks.

When hearings are held

The customer always pays

By JIM DAVIS
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Because utility rate fights are complex affairs that are expensive for Texas consumers, an unusual case before the Texas Public Utility Commission deserves more attention than it is getting.

The case concerns Gulf States Utilities Co., which providws electricity to parts of southeast Texas and Louisiana.

Gulf States wanted $50.4 million more a year in revenue but agreed to $20.8 million after negotiations with customer representatives.

That agreement prevented a long utility commission hearing involving costly lawyers and consultants. Such costs appear insignificant when compared to the millions of dollars involved in a rate case, but they are important to the people who pay them — the customers and taxpayers.

In Texas, utilities don't have to worry about rate case costs. They can hire expensive consultants and lawyers, rent special offices and send dozens of employees to sit through the hearings and to benefit Austin's hotels and restaurants.

The expenses simply are passed on to customers as a necessary cost of doing business. On the other side, if cities served by the utility fight the rate request, they also hire lawyers and consultants at taxpayer expense.

So, the many Texans who are both taxpayers and utility customers are hit from both sides.

It seems better for all concerned when negotiations lead to an agreement without a full rate fight. That's what happened in the Gulf States case, but it didn't end there.

Under Texas law, any agreement on electric rates must be approved by the utility commission. The commission looked at the Gulf States settlement and threw out two important parts.

One part was an experimental one-year plan to allow low-volume customers to pay winter rates during the summer. Because winter rates are lower than summer onews, the plan would reward those who use 500 kilowatt-hours of electricity a month of less.

The other part gave special rate credits to homes with solar water heaters.

Saying the provisions were discriminatory, the three utility commissioners refused to accept them.

That was fine with the company, of course. The commission just knocked out some of its concessions.

The customer representatives who fought to get the provisions included in the settlment are understandly upset.

They made concessions to achieve a balance, and now the commission has tipped the scales without requiring the parties to renegotiate.

The winter-rates-in-summer plan was pushed by East Texas Legal Services of Beaumont as a way to help low-income residential customers.

Legal service attorneys have filed a motion for rehearing, asking the commission to reconsider its veto of the plan.

They say the plan does not discriminate because it would reward any household willing to conserve electricity sufficiently during the normal high-use summer months.

Commissioners said the proposal would reward wealthy persons with summer or weekend homes as well as low-income customers. The legal service attorneys say that doesn't matter as long as the households do not add to the expensive peak demand placed on Gulf States during the summer.

Commissioners will consider the rehearing motion on Nov. 27. How they handle the particular issues is not as important as how they approach the entire settlement question.

In the Gulf States case they went against an agreement reached by all parties and recommended by the commission staff.

That is their prerogative. But an observer gets the impression that they came into a complex process at the last minute and knocked things askew without trying to arrange a new balance.

If that impression continues, customer representatives will be wary of settling rate cases without fighting all the way.

Houston driving: What you don't know can hurt

HOUSTON (AP) — Someone guiding a car or truck down most of the naion's streets and freeways is said to be driving, but in Houston the practice is affectionately known as Bayou City bumper cars.

There is a courageous, but very nervous, group of people who risk their lives every day for those less fortunate who don't know how to drive, but must in order to survive in this miasma of motorists — the driver's education teachers.

"Houston traffic is probably the worst in the nation," said Julius Carrio, who runs the Drivers License Preparatory School.

"People don't pay attention to signs or red lights," he said. "They just want to get where they're going and they'll do just about anything to get there as fast as they can."

Carrio said the job of the Houston driver's education teacher has been made even more dangerous by the influx of adults who came to partake of the city's economic success from places where cars aren't a necessity, such as other countries or New York City.

"The adults' reflexes are slower than teenagers and they are usually scared to death of getting behind the wheel and driving," he said.

"They grab hold of the steering wheel and hold on for dear life. While they're driving, they'll get excited and step on the gas pedal instead of the brake.

"I've been in more accidents than I can count," Carrio said. "I never holler at them because they're already nervous, but sometimes I feel like taking a club to some of them."

Those who have had a little driving experience are harder to teach than the rank beginners, he said, because they do some incredible things.

"Without batting an eye, they'll make right turns through a lane of traffic or park the car by ramming into a tree or the curb," he said.

Carrio said a lot of women come to him for driving lessons after abortive lessons from their husbands.

"They always end up yelling at each other," he said. "He is nervous and he knows how much the car cost and he has no control over it. If he yells, or even talks loud, she thinks he's trying to pick a fight."

Margaret Pennington, owner of Texas Driving School, says a lot of people come to her asking if they can buy a license.

"In many countries — India is one — a license can be bought without knowing how to drive," she said. "I've had several people offer me money for a license, and when I say I can't do that, they don't understand and say, 'but I'll give you $150.'"

She said most motorists will respect the "Caution: Student Driver" sign on top of training cars, but there are always a few who try to scare the driver.

Ag credit conference due big attendance

LUBBOCK — The 1979 Bankers' Agricultural Credit Conference Dec. 7-8 at Texas Tech University appears to be attracting more bankers from a broader geographic area than previous years, according to the coordinator, Dr. J. Wayland Bennett.

Bennett said the conference usually attracts bankers from the immediate region, but pre-registrants for the 1979 meeting come from "a much broader area than ever before."

High interest rates, the usury limit in Texas and the increased pressure on the cost-price squeeze are questions of particular interest this year, he said.

"Disaster loan effects on 1980 financing is of particular interest to a great many bankers," he said, "as well as the significance of Small Business Administration (SBA) and Farmers Home Administration (FHA) farm financing. These are participation loans with banks, and the 1980 conference will include discussions on these topics."

Bennett is associate dean of the Texas Tech College of Agricultural Sciences and a member of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas Board of Directors.

He said U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of the 19th Congressional District will be the banquet speaker for the conference Friday night. Registration will begin at 6 p.m. Dec. 7 in the Texas Tech University Center. For latecomers to the conference, registration will continue on Saturday, starting at 7:30 a.m. in the University Center Courtyard.

Lead speaker Saturday will be Jim Winningham, president of the Arthur (Ill.) State Bank, speaking on "Your Bank — Your Community." Winningham's bank is in a commercial farming area.

Other bankers participating will be John Wright, chairman of the board, First State Bank, Abilene; Gene Adams, president, First National Bank, Seymour; Norman Wright, president, City National Bank, Plainview, and Lowell Smith Jr., chairman of the board, First State Bank, Rio Vista.

Texas Tech faculty members who will discuss the general economic outlook for 1980 will include Dr. Gene A. Mathia, chairman, Department of Agricultural Economics, and members of his faculty, Horn Prof. Willard F. Williams and Drs. Calvin Brints, Billy g. Freeman and Rex P. Kennedy. The agricultural economists also will present estimated cost of production budgets for 1980 for each of the major crops in the area.

Bennett said that SBA and FHA representatives are expected to attend the conference and will be in a position to help answer questions regarding their agencies' participation in farming financing.

NEED A HELPING HAND?
Look in the Who's Who

Remember Peter Hurd, artist, his person and his work

A tribute to a great artist

By MICKIE DICKSON

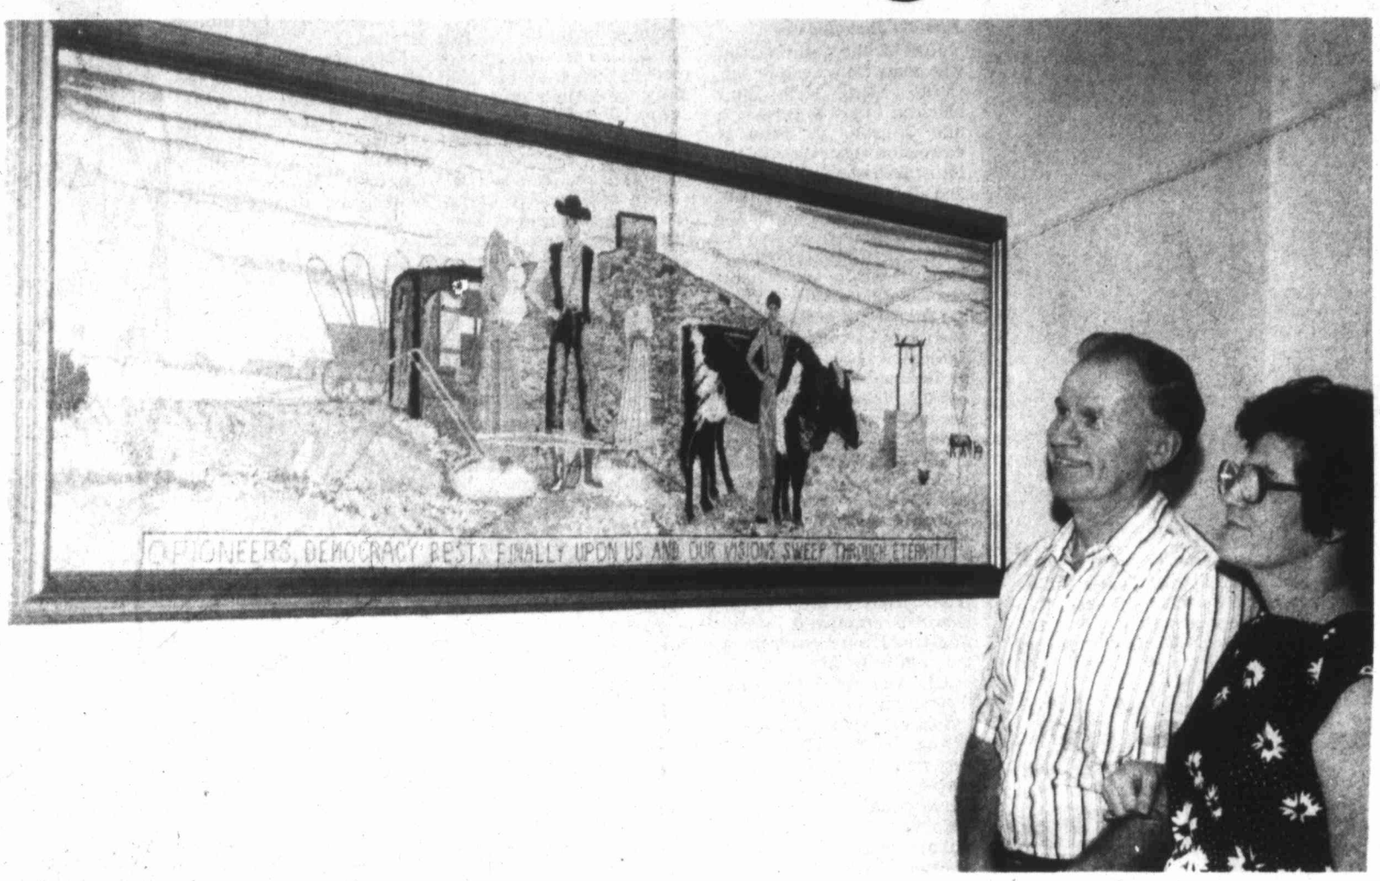

Peter Hurd, artist, 75 years old now, who painted the beautiful true fresco mural which adorned the wall of the old Post Office building and is now in the public library, labored for almost 60 of those years.

Unbelievably, Hurd is now confined to a nursing home having lost his memory through a gradual but steady deterioration that has lasted seven long years, and has been totally harrowing for his devoted wife, Henrietta-Wyeth Hurd.

An article published by Richard Reilly, Art Critic in The San Diego Union Sept. 2 Sunday morning issue states that "The tragedy of Peter Hurd is not that he has grown old but that his family has had to endure his deterioration (witness the diminution of his artistic skills) and his friends suffer the loss of his company.

Big Spring was privileged in 1937 to play host to Peter Hurd's as yet relatively unknown talent when he accepted, along with many of his peers in the painting of the time, commissions from the federal government to join in the United States Treasury Department arts projects to execute murals in the post offices of Big Spring, Alamogordo, N.M. and Dallas.

The mural in the library depicts a pioneer family of five outside their sod house with a yoke of oxen hitched to a plow. Signal Mountain is in the distance with its companion peaks, mesquite trees and a 'bear grass' in bloom along with chickens scratching in the dirt, a water well and the remnant of a covered wagon on the far side of the house. The picture is captioned, "O Pioneers, Democracy Rests Finally Upon Us and Our Vision Sweep Through Eternity."

NEEDLEPOINT REPLICA OF PETER HURD'S MURAL — Mrs. Adelle Thomas Tibbs made this 20 x 70 inch needlepoint copy of Peter Hurd's mural which is in the wall of Howard County Public Library. She worked over a year to complete it. Her sister, Mrs. Thomas Salsbury and husband are admiring it in Mrs. Tibbs home.

Louise Babers, Hurd's present business manager and former post master at San Patricio, N.M. near Hurd's ranch, shared a letter with the Herald from a former business manager of Hurds saying the characters that posed for the mural here were a local girl named Massey and a family named Wagner from Oklahoma who worked for a short time on the Hurd ranch.

Nat Shick, the postmaster at the time, became a fast friend and mentor of Peter Hurd. Shick often had Hurd and his helper, Pablo Lara, in his home, and accompanied him on forays to try to locate the right color and texture of soil to be used in the fresco. Finally, said Shick "The local soil was rejected in favor of sand brought from the bottom of the Llano River. The lime used was crushed marble dust shipped in from Alabama. Colored earths from all parts of the world, blended with water and in some instances with eggs, was used to provide the colors for Hurd's palette."

Painting in true fresco on wet plaster which was put in place fresh each day over a three foot area of the galvanized plate lathe by George Winslow, a local concrete contractor, was a new medium for Hurd. Only as much "mud" or plaster was put in place as Hurd could paint on each day.

A letter written by Nat Shick later to the Treasury Department states that he appreciated so much the fact that Peter literally 'poured his life' into the painting of the mural in Big Spring. Shick told the Department in glowing terms what the mural meant to the townspeople here along with a wonderful report on the way the artist entered into the life of Big Spring while he was here.

Nat Shick was quite a colorful character in his own right and an artist with no mean ability with the knife. His backyard was full of totem poles, figures, a swing and other memorabalia begun when he was bedfast with a gortner condition. Mrs. Lilian Dawson, his daughter, recalls a time when she was visiting her parents and the family was at the breakfast table when someone noticed Peter Hurd and his faithful companion, Pablo Lara, hunkered down in the backyard. Peter was busily sketching Shick's masterpieces. Shick sauntered out to speak to them as Hurd remarked, "I'm just playing around," as he started to yank the page from his sketch pad to destroy it. Nat quickly held out his hand saying, "That's mine — hand it here." Hurd reluctantly gave it to him with the remark that it wasn't very good. Shick framed the excellent pencil sketch and it is not a treasured part of Mrs. Dawson's home.

Another family whose lives entertwined with Peter Hurd's work here was the Clyde E. Thomas Sr. family. According to Mrs. Thomas Salsbury, 1706 Yale, a daughter of Clyde Thomas Sr., Hurd consulted her father, a lawyer, on a legal matter, and in passing, asked if he knew a couple of boys who could break eggs for him to use in his painting. Thomas introduced him to Richard and Don, his own two boys. Mrs. Salsbury said, "They broke crates of eggs there in the post office as Hurd mixed them into his other materials to paint with. One explanation that Hurd gave for using egg was that the albumen in the egg white sealed the wet plaster so that the paint would not bleed through it. Other reasons are Hurd's own special secret. Richard Thomas remembers breaking the eggs for Hurd with one of his brothers. Hurd as he painted when he came home from law school, using the egg whites.

Postal patrons were regaled with Hurd's droll wit as they remarked how 'real' the chicken seemed to look in the mural, Hurd would reply, "Sure they're real, here's an egg they laid," holding the specimen up to show.

Mrs. Adele Tibbs, another Thomas' daughter, has made a 1½ foot by 5 feet 8 inches needlepoint replica of Hurd's mural which hangs in her living room. It took her a year or longer to complete and is a beautiful piece of work.

Paul Horgan, a close friend of Peter Hurd's since 15 years of age and a fellow artist and writer in his book, "Peter Hurd, A Portrait Sketch from Life," states, "In the spirit of all Hurd's works of the thirties there is essentially a lyrical delight, by which I mean an uncritical love of forms, movements, and combined designs made by unposed life. A sort of abstract tenderness dwelled over his landscapes and his contemplations of human beings as they thoughtlessly — even perhaps at times witlessly — went about their affairs. The great painting of San Patricio," (A village of a few families fifty miles west of Roswell near Hurd's Sentinel Ranch) "In the Metropolitan Museum (Rancheria, 1937, tempera) has this golden conveyance of devotion. Many of Hurd's lithographs show it, and it is a spirit evident in the largest works of the decade between 1930 and a 1940 which he undertook to execute in the medium of mural painting."

After the commissions to paint murals in the post offices came a commission to decorate a grand public room in the New Mexico Military Institute which he attended as a boy with Paul Horgan as a classmate. This assignment gave him still greater possibilities for atmospheric painting of historical subjects which set forth the significant triad — Indian, Spanish, frontier American — of the history of the Southwest. This work was destroyed one night by incendiaries who were never identified, so only a few preparatory charcoal studies and photographs remain (Flagbearer, 1936, Horgan Collection).

"But in them Hurd had come to a full realization of his instinct for the dramatic, the entrance into reality through atmospheric inventions. There was, also, an amusing satisfaction in returning to paint noble monuments of history on the walls of an institution where in an English class 20 years before he had, with a accomplice, presented his first illustrative pictures to an envious and spellbound class of high school cadets," said Paul Horgan.

National recognition came to Hurd during this period when the editors of Life magazine became interested in him and sent one of its most responsive young editors, Richard Pollard, to visit Sentinel ranch. Like everyone who goes to see the family he was captivated by the atmosphere of hard work and its beautiful productions; its gaiety, charm, and order of the household under Henriette Wyeth Hurd's touch; and the fullness of life that Hurd himself suggests to even the most casual acquaintance. Life took hundreds of photographs, borrowed a number of paintings, and recorded thousands of words in interview form. The magazine then produced a pictorial and textual essay about Hurd, with many reproductions of some of his best works to that date in full color. Hurd was famous.

Hurd was summoned to a captain's commission in the Army Air Corps on the strength of his appointment to West Point and his two year record there at the outset of W.W. II. Daniel Longwell, covering the global story of the conflict as an editor for Life, contrived to have Hurd demobilized from the Army and classified as a Life correspondent in the assimilated rank of captain with all an officer's prerogatives.

He was attached to the Eighth Air Force and sent to England where he painted in tempera the life of Britain at war and filled dozens of pocket sketchbooks with drawings.

In March, 1943, in Chadds Ford with his family, awaiting his next overseas assignment, he went with 26-year-old Andrew Wyeth to paint for the first time in water color out of doors, from nature, on sizable papers. The painters found a fine subject looking from a hillside down toward a frozen pond with other hills and bare ranks of trees beyond. Peter's young son, Peter Wyeth Hurd, 10, went skating with two friends while his father and uncle set up painting boards with large papers taped down flat, and painted the scene of ice, hills, stark trees, skaters and all. This was, for Hurd, an immediate statement of a newly discovered power in a medium he would use later in a new canon of significant work. Presently he was sent to India, by way of the south Atlantic and Africa.

Hurd had to be able to record the instant, not the memory of the look and the emotion of the war in his work as a reporter. This necessity to fix the immediate, to make the brush serve the eye and heart with expert speed, brought him a command of the water-color medium to a degree which he had not known before.

Other effects that seemed to come out of the war assignments was a new lenslike acuity of vision, an increased sharpness which suggested the universal vision of bird life. The other was a trend toward a severity of mind, perhaps even of feeling, which made his earlier enjoyment of science into an almost vocational respect for the scientific view of life. His earlier Lyricism seemed to give way to a pursuit of truth.

Both vision and apprehension were shown in a further degree than ever before in a suite of heroic mural panels which Hurd executed in buen fresco for the rotunda of the museum of Texas Technological College in the 1950's. There is nothing like these anywhere else in mural decoration.

The rotunda is a regular polyhedron of 16 sides. Peter Hurd set forth on its walls, which are three stories high, a continuous landscape background of the West Texas plains. Earth and sky are shown flowing from day into night and again into day; and the weather of the plains,the vastness of the circle of their flat world, summon up a sense of timelessness, truth as true of a thousand years ago as of today.

On each of the 16 panels is a full-length portrait of an actual settler of the Lubbock area, with attributes of vocation or activity. The doctor, storekeeper, preacher, teacher, rancher and the rest, all of whom were interpreted from life or from early likenesses and memories in the possession of their descendants.

The Lubbock pioneers stand not only in a localized geography of their own lives, the fields or earthen water tanks or the village street, but in the midst of the whole circling sequence of the 16 panels, which enclose the particular and humble dust of one life's earth, and sweep it into the general landscape of the whole praire and plains world, where these forerunners, in their various ways, brought order out of the wilderness, and human relations out of abstract space.

This large theme dealth in particular, local terms with the most significant social spectacle and of the 19th century, the expansion of the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific in the course of a human lifetime. The Lubbock mural derives from this connotation its most powerful energies of spirit and conviction. The pioneering theme was perhaps the strongest in the American character for many generations, and Hurd was born close enough in time and place to the Frontier West to be able to paint its life without any sense of the picturesque but with the thoughtless command of inherited possession. The energies of this large work are released to us through a style as calm and reposeful as it is pure.

Paul Horgan in his sketchbook of Peter Hurd, parallels quiet dignity of the figures in the Lubbock mural graphically to the figures of saints in the Gothic paintings of late medieval Europe. "In Gothic painting," continues Horgan, "A single saint could exemplify the preoccupation of a segment of society; here, in the Lubbock mural, a single cattleman can do the same. If a Gothic painter needed to indicate a town, he made a little dazzle of walls, towers,and pinnacles serve as a background. At Lubbock, Hurt put to the same purpose his sweetly lighted clusters of shacks and store fronts and plains dwellings. Most powerfully of all, the parallel between the two styles is demonstrated in how the figure is used in both. The figure is presented in an attitude of rest. Its humanity seems to emanate from it by the simple force of self-unconscious being Nowhere the false eloquence that can rob historical truth of its power, as it has done in so much of the conventional American interpretation of the frontier. Like the population of Gothic panels, all the personages of Hurd's Lubbock panels seem simply to exist."

"Hurd lifted his painted figures into a second life that translated real individuals into the open secret of mankind, beyond specific personality. By this very act he delivered his subjects to the universal, to generalized humanity, and so assured them that survival of interest which is limited in art only by the durability of the painter's materials."

"In treating his backgrounds Hurd proceeded as purely and contemplatively. The result is that subjects in themselves without beauty, inherently graceless, make shift, temporary and expedient, shacks of various sizes and sorts that made up the shelters of the early south plainsmen whether alone on the prairie or gathered in townsite, are resolved in pure design. They become suddenly marvelous obstacles inthe path of prairie light by which they are transformed into prismatic splendor; become signs of human wish, effort and accomplishment that move us now, long after their moment of history."

Hurd established a continuous flow, a harmony amongst all 16 panels by a command of the arbitrary in honor of an inclusive design. He did this by two measures of an inspired amplitude. The first was to let the landscape of each panel flow without interruption into that of the neighboring panels, and to let the foregrounds of all panels recede into a common and unbroken circle of horizon, so that everywhere we might look we would see the south plains in all their far reach of subtle variety.

The sky holds together as well as the earth by the use of the whole firmament, and its weather, and its passage from day to night and back again to day as we turn within the spacious polyhedron to take in the 360 degrees of its compass. We see dawn grow into bright midday, and clear sky turn to storm and silvery afternoon deepen into night with starlight above and firelight below, and so come again to morning, having traversed in the artists's timeless and ideal day all the lives and places and purposes to which under a common sky he promised the memory of the future.

The painting as a whole remains a work without seams, actual or metaphorical. It presents a complete union of style, technique, color, tone, feeling and opinion. Capturing its human figures in a vastness of earth and heaven, it makes an analogue of the region's life; and yet if delivers them from the vastness by bringing them to us through a kind of austere intimacy. In a meditative devotion to truth, Hurd lifts the local values of his subject into a parable of mankind as seen anywhere at a beginning.

"Hurd remained true to his own vision and answered that wants of those who, in a mechanical age, sought out the mechanics of art to idealize above its wholeness of spirit. Once again the immense commonplaces of our existence are rediscovered for us in art and art lifted into our newly aware vision to be given our thanks for life, along with the artist's, since every act of true art is an act of devotion," Horgan said.

There is a psalmistic nobility in Hurd's presentation of the starkly drawn, flowingly painted forefathers, in which all that passes is arrested with simplicity and dignity for us to see, while all that abides is evoked in our responses, which are as close to the nature of religious feeling as they are to aesthetic appreciation or historical recognition.

The 16 fresco panels of the mural at Texas Technical University Museum, are studied by students, art historians and collectors along with his other paintings of the Southwest. Hurd's paintings are in numerous of the finest public and private collections.

At one time, Hurd in his sketchbook (published by Sage Books; The Shallow Press; Chicago; 1971) wrote: "What is it that motivates me in the first place and brings on these frenzied races against time and light? If the effort is destined to have any success, it must be triggered by an inner elation, an excited reaction to some color or light effect which by its inevitable evanescence is always productive of delight and despair, despair in that it is so quickly changing, so difficult to record."

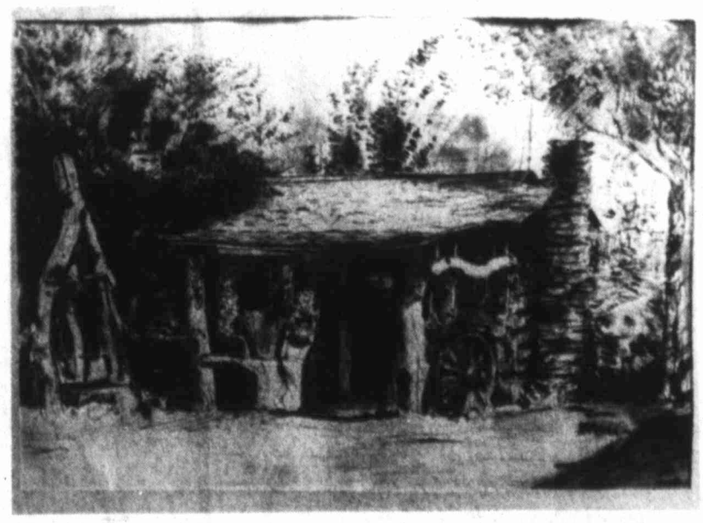

Paul Horgan described Peter Hurd almost 20 years ago as a student at West Point, having known him intimately since they were 15, as trim and slender in the same terms as he is today (1964). His energy was fixed for life in a tightly wound spring system which produced swift reflexes and comprehension leading to immediate and perfectly coordinated action."

"Hurd's physical appearances is now too thin, his phsyical reflexes no longer swift, his mental capacities interrupted. But the morning, afternoon and early evening of Hurd's life have been full of talent, acclaim, joy, laughter, good food and grog, superior minds, travel, a loving wife and children, good neighbors, sound horses, good music, clear skies, apple orchards and great open spaces," said Richard Reilly in the San Diego Union.

"Peter Hurd is still capable of charming his friends, strangers, doctors and nursing staff."

Hurd has now been moved from a nursing facility in Albuquerque, N.M. to a new facility in Roswell, N.M. (70 miles from his beloved ranch), where his room is furnished with his furniture, books and memorabilia and walls are hung with big, framed reproductions of his work. Family and friends visit and find him content. Hurd does not recognize most of his visitors and frequently appears apprehensive. (Henrietta feels it is because he doesn't want his guests to know he cannot remember who they are.)

RIPLEY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT SWING — Peter Hurd made this pencil sketch of Nat Shick's backyard in 1937. Pictured to the left is a swing which Shick former Big Spring postmaster, made out of a growing tree without using nails or other metal which was featured in Ripley's Believe It or Not column. In the center is an old seat made of another tree stump. The log cabin was made of logs from the old Bud Roberts ranch, the first settler in Howard County. The totem pole to the right is the first one Shick carved in 1934. In the foreground is a "rock" dog.

Erno Laszlo's secret to beauty comes to Swartz

Whoever said "beauty is only skin deep" must have been one of many satisfied customers of the late, world reknown Erno Laszlo.

Why? Because this great doctor of dermatology specialized in beautiful skin.

Not only did women of international notoriety like Cher Bono Allman, Greta Garbo, Audrey Hepburn and Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, to name a few, benefit from Laszlo's secret, but sexual barriers in the world of beauty were broken and rock singer Elton John joined the Laszlo cult.

Dr. Laszlo gained his world-wide popularity at a young age by simply curing a terrible case of acne with a mixture known as soap and water.

Socialites Doris Duke and Marjorie Merriweather Post were the women who persuaded Laszlo in 1930 to cross the Atlantic and set up his practice in New York.

Dr. Laszlo built his practice by tearing down a number of well-known and popular beauty myths, the first of which was never to wash your face with soap and water.

Laszlo argued that soap and water have always been the best way to get skin clean, and clean skin, according to him, is the essential ingredient for beautiful skin.

Another myth Laszlo set out to destroy was the belief that the skin should always be rinsed in cold water. He spoke up for hot water and advocated a unique method for rinsing the skin.

The majority of women, when they reach a certain age and tiny lines and wrinkles become more and apparent, head for the facial cream counter at their favorite beauty aids store in an attempt to cream away those unwanted lines.

This is related to myth No. 3 the doctor attempted to put to rest that the older a woman got, the more facial creams she needed. Dr. Laszlo stressed that too much cream could clog the pores and actually add weight to the skin, causing the face to sag. He said the most important secret to having beautiful skin was tightening it up.

Dr. Laszlo died in 1973 at the age of 82. Many claim he didn't look a day over 50. However, before this "Svengali of the skin" died, he sold his exclusive institute to Chesebrough-Ponds, which now manufactures Laszlo products for limited sale throughout the country.

Now Big Spring women, and men, can receive the Laszlo beauty treatment so many movie stars, rock stars and sports stars have because these Laszlo products are now available at Swartz.

It used to take the personal recommendation of one of Laszlo's girls to get an appointment with the doctor. These days, anyone can stop at a store that offers Laszlo products and have their skin 'clocked' by a Laszlo representative. (The doctor divided the various skin types according to the numbers shown on the face of a clock.)

At Erno Laszlo membership will get you a full range of skin care products formulated for your skin type and a membership card in the institute that will entitle you to write to New York with any unusual skin problems the local Laszlo representative can't handle, according to Gwen Baum, Dallas, who is the Southwest Laszlo representative.

Although famous women still follow the doctor's formula, young working women and even students with skin problems are the bulk of Laszlo clients Ms. Baum noted.

"Young people are into the most natural things like soap and water," she said. "They also like the fact that the Laszlo method advocates using the products in different ways, depending on weather conditions."

There is no inexpensive way to become a Laszlo girl. The company refuses to sell individual products to a first-time customer because the doctor believed in a total program of skin care. Once women are Laszlo members, they can buy replacement products on an individual basis.

The Laszlo formula works, Ms. Baum emphasized, but women should expect overnight results. "It's just like diet and exercise. You have to keep at it and wait from five to six weeks to begin to see the changes," she concluded.

Denita Kionka is the specially trained Laszlo representative at Swartz.

MRS. GARY NICHOLSON HOOD

Wedding bells ring Saturday

Karen Sue McGill became the bride of Gary Nicholson (Nick) Hood in a ceremony held Saturday afternoon in St. Luke's United Methodist Church, Midland, with Dr. O.A. McBrayer, pastor, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James L. McGill, Midland. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hood, Big Spring, are the groom's parents.

Mrs. Mona Ruth Dickson provided the organ music for the rite and Mrs. Les (Loretta) Rick, was soloist.

The bride chose to wear a blouson A-line gown of quiana and Venice lace featuring a Queen Anne neckline of Venice lace sprinkled with seed pearls.

Lace accented the waistline of the sunburst pleated skirt with lace trimming the entire hemline. The silk illusion veil, outlined with matching Venice lace was gathered to a lace camelot cap.

The bridal bouquet was a cascade centered with a white orchid surrounded with stephanotis, white roses, baby's breath and white streamers.

Mrs. Ross (Darla) Jones, Odessa, served her sister as matron of honor. Mrs. George (Liz) Tuck, Burnsflat, Okla., sister of the bride, served as bridesmatron.

Mark Matson, Breckenridge, served as best man. Leon Langley was groomsman. Steve Rodgers, College Station, Les Rick, Midland and Jim McGill, Odessa, brother of the bride, seated the guests.

A reception honoring the couple was held immediately following the service in the fellowship lounge of the church.

The bride is a 1976 graduate of Monahans High School and attended Midland College.

The groom is a Big Spring High School graduate and a 1975 graduate of Texas Tech University. Hood is presently employed by The Western Company in Ft. Worth.

Following a wedding trip to New Orleans, the couple will be at home in Benbrook, Tex.

A course in "Holiday Fashion and Make-up Ideas" will be presented Monday, from 7-10 p.m. at the Science Building, Room 101, of Howard College.

Cost of the course is $3. Connie's of Big Spring will be showing their latest in evening fashions — from casual, go-anywhere jeans to their most glamorous dresses. Doris McMinn, manager of Connie's, is coordinating the fashions.

To complete the look, models will be wearing make-up from Belle Mondo's evening collection. Featured will be the very newest colors along with their Rainbow Lustre (glittered) eye shadows and blushes. Belle Mondo is a new line of organic cosmetics.

The course will be divided into two parts; the first a style show featuring the coordinated fashions and make-up, along with a discussion on how to achieve a unique evening look. Modeling will be Jackie Hancock, Mitzi Sevey, Susan Jo[illegible] Lewis, Jackie McClendon, Phyllis Martin, and Carol Huff.

The second part will be a demonstration on technique where Elaine Stone of Belle Mondo will take volunteers from the class for evening make-overs.

Interested persons must pre-register in the Continuing Education Office located in the Horace Garrett Building. For further information, please call the Adult and Continuing Education Department at 267-6311, ext. 70.

TWEEN 12 and 20

Teen by any other name

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D

Rupert, who lives in Pottstown, Pa., has an unusual proposal and asks my opinion. I thought this would be a nice time to get the thoughts of our teen guest writers.

Alicia Conners, 15, from London, Ontario, Canada, and Nick Zeruas, 15, who lives in Michigan City, Ind., will do the honors. Welcome.

Dr. Wallace: I would like to know your feelings about something that has been bugging me for a long time and that is the first names that parents stick us with for life.

A name is a personal thing and affects our self-image and our relationships with others. Yet those affected by the stupid label have no say in their creation.

Parents make well-meaning choices but their selections reflect their tastes, not the child's.

I would like to propose that parents select temporary first names and the offspring be allowed to select an official name when he or she becomes 13.

Your opinion, please. — Rupert, Pottstown, Pa.

Rupert: I think your idea is totally unique and I like it. Of course, a person can legally change his name when reaching the age of 18, but it's the younger years that cause "Agnes" and "Percy" the most difficulty. — Dr. Wallace

Hi Rupert: I think your idea is super. Personally I'm very happy with my first name but I have many friends who do not like theirs. I know your idea would never become a reality but that doesn't mean it wasn't good.

— Alicia, London, Ontario

Hello Rupert: I'm Greek and we have odd first names anyhow so I'm used to it but I think it would be a good idea to pick our own.

I've got a buddy who is named Aristotle, but he goes by the nickname Chris.

Martins celebrate 25th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Martin will be feted on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary today at Berea Baptist Church, 4204 Wasson Rd.

Hosting the reception from 2-5 p.m. will be the couple's children. All friends are invited to attend.

Martin married the former Helen Hamilton at the Trinity Baptist Church in Dallas on Nov. 19, 1954. Both attended Crozier Tech High School in Dallas.

Martin also attended the University of Texas at Arlington and his wife began working for the Republic National Bank upon completing high school and prior to their marriage.

In 1953, Martin joined the air force and after completing officer school and pilot school, the couple were married.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin were stationed at numerous bases throughout the United Staes and came to Webb Air Force Base in 1960 where Martin was an instructor pilot.

In 1966, he went to Vietnam. His wife and their children remained in Big Spring. He returned to Webb AFB in 1967.

Martin was promoted to major and worked as chief of safety until his retirement as a lieutenant colonel in August of 1973.

Mrs. Martin has been kept busy being a housewife and mother to their four children, Debbie, Gary, Alan and Scott.

Debbie is a graduate of West Texas State University and is presently working as program director at the Amarillo YMCA. Gary is a sophomore at Angelo State University, Alan is a junior at Forsan High School and Scott is a sixth grader at Forsan Junior High.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin have always been active in their church. He is music director, a deacon and teaches the young adult Sunday school class. She has taught a youth class for 19 years and is the church organist, vocalist and director of the youth choir.

In 1974, the Martins bought the Hobby Center and Frame Gallery, 1005 11th Place and have operated that as a family business for the last 5 years.

MR. AND MRS. VAUGHN MARTIN

Focus on family living

Give energy gifts

Consider holiday gifts that save resources and celebrate life.

After you've made your list of receivers and given thought to their ages, "likes" and needs, let "Consume with Care" be your watchword for the 1979 holiday season.

Here are ideas for this kind of gift-giving:

Give a gift of energy — your own.

Visit an elderly friend or babysit for a young mother so many times during 1980. Or volunteer your time and talents to a community agency that needs help.

Make your own gifts, such as children's stuffed toys, doll clothes, wooden blocks, knitted or crocheted items, baked goods or jams and jellies. Or give a plant that you grew from a cutting.

In buying, select items discriminately.

Ask yourself if it's useful — will it be used? Is it made of durable materials? Can it be recycled, repaired or reused in the future.

In addition, save resources in other ways.

Use last year's wrapping paper and ribbons or the comics from Sunday newspapers or butcher paper decorated with potato block prints or finger painting.

Or use leftover fabrics cut with pinking shears. Decorate with pine cones, acorns and other natural materials.

For the tree, buy a live tree and plant it later.

Gifts that save resources and celebrate life will reflect the giving spirit year after year.

Dear Abby

Won't Stand For Sitting

DEAR ABBY: I have been a grandmother since I was 37. I'm 40 now, and my daughter-in-law and I have a big difference of opinion about what a grandmother is supposed to do.

I have told my daughter-in-law and my son that from now on I will not baby-sit for free while they go out and have a good time. I will baby-sit in an emergency, or if my daughter-in-law has a doctor's appointment, but for no other reason will I sit for free. If they have to pay me like they pay any other sitter, they won't just dump the baby on me and run, or phone me up to come over and watch the baby for "a few minutes"—which always seem to run to three or four hours.

Don't get me wrong, Abby. I love my grandchild, but I can't make my daughter-in-law realize that grandmothers are not put on earth to take care of their grandchildren.

I have my son, his wife and the baby over every Sunday for dinner and two or three times during the week, but I don't want the full responsibility of looking after the baby while the parents are out having fun. Am I wrong? How do other grandmothers feel? By the way, Abby, if you're a grandmother, how do you handle the sitting problem?

NO SITTER

DEAR NO SITTER: I'm a grandmother with no sitter problem because my grandchildren live 2,000 miles away. But if I lived in the same city I would have to draw straws with the other grandmother for the privilege of sitting. She loves it. Bless her.

DEAR ABBY: Please, please tell teenagers that they can become pregnant without "going all the way." That is what happened to me.

My boyfriend of two years and I were very close, but we never actually went all the way. Nevertheless, I was seven months pregnant when I got married although I was still a virgin. My doctor even said so.

I love my husband and my son, but I am sorry I became pregnant when I did. It stood in the way of my finishing college.

LEARNED THE HARD WAY

DEAR LEARNED: I have stated that fact in my column many times, but it bears repeating. Perhaps your experience will be more effective than my warning. I hope so.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to a letter signed READY TO KILL—the young woman who was at the end of her patience with a neighbor's barking dog.

If she lives in Hawaii, she can call the Hawaiian Humane Society. Their staff will tape-record the continous barking, and with that evidence, confront the owner of the dog. Humane Society staff will then work with the dog owner to correct the dog's behavior. They continue to monitor the situation and, if the barking persists, the Humane Society contacts the local police, who are empowered to issue a summons to the owner. (And they DO issue such summonses.)

I would be surprised if other major cities did not have such a noise-abatement program sponsored by the local Humane Society.

CHERLY N. IN HONOLULU

DEAR CHERLY: If other communities do not have such a program, they should have! It's good to know that in Hawaii they don't have to take the matter of barking dogs into their own lovely hula hands.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Jack and Jill children to entertain Tuesday

The Jack and Jill parents and staff will be united in a fund raising effort to provide a movable stage to be used in the gymnasium for children's programs Nov. 20 at 6:30 p.m.

The public is invited to see and hear these children present an evening of entertainment including a concert in miniature; first grade — Thanksgiving skit; Kindergarten — Indian dance; Pre-kindergarten — physical education routines.

Against sexual harassment

Women coal miners fight

NEW YORK — Lured by money, women are heading for the coal mines. And, although some are accepted with few problems, many are greeted with hostility by male coworkers. Sexual harassment is a widely used tactic by men to drive women out, reports coal age, a McGraw-Hill magazine.

But women have been reluctant to complain about the abuse — afraid of retribution or of losing their jobs. Most women claim that work in the mines is a rare opportunity to make a decent salary. Many of them come from factory work where they had earned a minimum wage of $2.90 an hour. As a mining trainee, a woman can expect to earn nearly $63 per day (union scale), but about three times her former wage. And, according to a survey prepared by the United Mine Workers, more than half of the 2500 women are sole support of several children.

Sexual harassment takes both subtle and overt forms, including physical abuse. One woman who refused to date her foreman was forced to do heavy labor — labor beyond what her male counterparts were asked to do. As a result, she pulled two chest muscles and caught pneumonia. The woman was then forced to resign because the foreman would not ghve her lighter duty, as is done with most injured male workers.

In another instance, a woman was dangled off a 200-ft. water tower accompanied by the suggestion that she quit her job. She did.

Subtler forms of harassment are more prevalent, however, such as the failure of management to teach women the same mining techniques as their male co-workers. Coal mining management often hres just the number of women to meet federal hring guidelines, but refuses t give them significant sponsibility or training to lp them advance. "I atched two guys I was hred with taught to operate uipment as I swept out the ick of my foreman's tnck," said Debbie Monsor, a coal miner from Wyoming. Debbie filed complaints of sex dicimination concerning job biding against the company wth the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the state's Human Rights Commission. Several weks later she was fired. "They kept sending me out to work with a guy who refused to do any work," she said. "I had to work for two people. Finally, I told the foreman I wouldn't work with this guy anymore. He told me to go back to the pit or go home. I went home. He never told me refusing a job was grounds for dismissal. I was told a few days later that I was fired for insubordination."

Unions are refusing to help and courts are slow to uphold women's rights, the magazine says. A woman who was molested by her boss approached the union with a sexual harassment grievance and was advised that it was not an issue that could be handled through grievance procedures. Lawyer Penny Candell of Charleston, W. Va.; said. "The union has taken the position that the issue of sexual harassment is not something it's going to fight for . . . In reality, the women are on their own."

Women — comprising 1 per cent of all miners — are starting to band together to fight discrimination. The Coal Employment Project (CEP), a non-profit organization in Oak Ridge, Tenn., was founded to help women begin coal mining careers, designing programs to help develop their skills and actually fighting for equal employment rights.

Last summer, 20 women crouched and crawled thrugh a simulated mine, and learned to carry timber and 50 lb. bags of rock dust in a pilot program designed by CEP and funded by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor and the Rockefeller Foundation. "I haven't been promised a job but the program has taught me skills and given me the support I need to get a job," said Marilyn Ollis, divorced and sole support of a nine-year-old son.

In an effort to help women get jobs in Tennessee coal mines, where it has been especially difficult, Betty Jean Hall, CEP's director, has worked with the Tennesee Valley Authority (TVA), which is in the position of enforcing equal employment opportunity among its coal suppliers.

As a result, TVA Chairman David Freeman announced that all TVA suppliers must hire women to comply with federal EEO rules. "We are about to write a new chapter in human rights here in Tennessee," he said at the August TVA board meeting. "At least 43 per cent of all working women support themselves. Trade jobs pay five times more than unskilled labor. The women want these jobs. It's clearly a matter of straight economics."

Said Tom Connors, vice president of Human Resources for AMAX, "Women miners are here to stay. Mining jobs pay well and there is little turnover. But as the industry expands, I feel we cannot expect a fair percentage of the coal mining workforce to eventually be female."

Vows are solemnized at Hillcrest Baptist

MRS. DAVID ALLEN FERRELL

Barbara Glee Burchfield and David Allen Ferrell were wed in a Saturday evening candlelight ceremony held in the Hillcrest Baptist Church.

The Rev. Phillip McClendon, pastor, read the 7 p.m. vows before a golden archway laced with green foliage, flanked by twin arched candelabrums. An eternity candle completed the setting.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben L. Burchfield, Del City, Okla. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ferrell, Big Spring.

James Kinman furnished the vocal music accompanied by Jerry Oliphant, organist.

The bride was accompanied down the aisle wearing a white satin bridal gown fashioned with a high waistline cinched with a narrow ribbon tie belt and fitted lace overblouse with a round neckline with button and thread loop closing and narrow shoulder straps covered with a sheer capelet. The floor length gown was enhanced by a shaped hemline ending in a flared six gore skirt. The bridal bouquet of tiny yellow roses and orange carnations surrounded by baby's breath accented the bride's ensemble.

Brenda McDonald served as maid of honor.

Danny Ferrell, brother of the groom from Albuquerque, N.M., served as best man. Mark Hyatt and Stan Feaster seated the guests.

The couple was feted with a reception immediately following the wedding in the church fellowship hall. The brides table, covered with a white lace-trimmed cloth, was enhanced by two crystal candelbrums with the bridal and maid of honor bouquets decorating them.

Members of the house-party were Mrs. Dorothy Carter, Mrs. Brenda Hyatt, Mrs. Jackie McClendon, Mrs. Sherree Moates, Mrs. Tena Parker and Mrs. Dee Sevey. Mrs. Karen Phillips served at the registry table.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is presently employed by Dennis Appraisal Service in Del City, Okla. as secretary.

The groom is a graduate of Lakeheath American High Schoo, Brandon, England, and is presently working for Hydotatic Engineers of Oklahma in Del City, Okla.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M. the couple will reside in Del City.

House, Senate working for funding compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate negotiators, facing a tight time schedule Fridaybegan trying to find a compromise on abortion funding in hopes of keeping four major government agencies in business.

But resolving the less controversial parts of the legislation was proving more difficult than expected, and there was no indication when negotiators would finish the overall bill.

There was no discussion of the abortion controversy in the early stages of the conference, which was late in getting under way and which was interrupted several times when House members had to leave for votes on the floor.

The conference committee attempt was made necessary when the Senate voted Thursday to pass its own version of an emergency funding bill for the departments.

The only major difference between the House and Senate bills is abortion funding language.

But that continuing controversy over a few crucial words has been difficult to resolve. Failure to reach agreement last month resulted in an estimated 1.5 million federal workers having to go on half pay temporarily.

With a temporary funding measure for the four affected departments expiring Tuesday, quick action on the latest renewal of the dispute was important because the House planned to leave later today for a weeklong Thanksgiving recess.

The departments likely could get by for a week or so without additional funding.

But one of the affected agencies is the Department of Defense and several senators noted Thursday that it probably wouldn't be a good idea to keep that department's money in limbo at a time of crisis in Iran.

The departments of Labor, Transportation, and Health, Education and Welfare also will be without money unless action is taken by Tuesday.

Presidential candidates to meet with Republican governors this afternoon

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Seventeen Republican governors plan to gather Sunday to hear from presidential candidates and to discuss what their states are doing about energy, foreign trade and fiscal responsibility.

"We hope to give everyone an idea what the governors are doing in these critical areas compared to what is not happening at the national level," said Ralph Griffith, executive director of the Republican Governors Association.

In a special session Sunday afternoon the governors will hear campaign appeals from candidates John Connally, Sen. Howard Baker, Sen. Larry Pressler, Benjamin Fernandez and Harold Stassen.

Sen. Robert Dole may attend if he can make schedule changes, Griffith said.

Those not appearing, mostly because of campaign schedule conflicts, were Ronald Reagan, George Bush, Rep. Phillip Crane, and Rep. John Anderson.

Each candidate was asked to make a five-minute statement then be ready for about 10 minutes of questions from the governors.

"This conference is for the governors, the candidates are just our guests," said Griffith.

Sunday night the governors, accompanied by those who contributed up to $200,000 for the conference, will kick up their heels at a showplace ranch south of Austin

Gov. Otis R. Bowen, Indiana, opens the first general session, expected to attract about 800, on Monday morning. A panel, "Energy: What the States Are Doing," will feature Govs. Lamar Alexander, Tennessee; William P. Clements, Texas; John Dalton, Virgina and Pete du Pont, Delaware.

How to have beautiful nails. Straight from the horses mouth.

It's a fascinating story involving million-dollar thoroughbreds and their grooms. Starting with the fact that many of the grooms in charge of the most valuable race horses are attractive young women.

Being accustomed to applying our special preparation daily to their horses' hooves, naturally the grooms got some on their own nails. Over a period of time their nails then became noticeably stronger. The preparation helped splitting, peeling and breaking nails.

When we heard that dozens of female grooms were using our special hoof preparation on their horses, and getting great results on their nails, we were intrigued.

Knowing that both hooves and fingernails are made of the same basic protein, we began to reformulate and refine the original formula, until after months of research, Barielle Nail Strengthener Cream was created.

And now that we've created Barielle, here's how you can create beautiful nails.

Because Barielle is a strengthening cream, not an enamel hardener, it penetrates and moisturizes your nails. It helps prevent splitting, peeling and breaking while leaving a protective film on your nail surface.

You can even apply Barielle over your own nail enamel. Once in the morning and once in the evening. And because Barielle contains no formaldehyde, not only is it perfectly safe for your nails, it also keeps your cuticles well groomed.

A 1 oz. jar of Barielle at $10.00 is about a 3 month supply. But your nails will be noticeably stronger long before that. It takes just 3-4 weeks for luxurious nails to appear.

Then apply Barielle regularly to keep up appearances.
