Wreck site had safety measures in place

Garfield intersection has gates, median; witnesses say traffic too high in the area

By Joseph Basco
jbasco@mrt.com

Despite the number of safety measures implemented at the Industrial Avenue and Garfield Street intersection throughout the years, accidents, like the one involving a Show of Support parade float last week, still happen.

"The intersection is one of the worst in Midland," said Scott Moore, a sales associate for Consolidated Electrical Distribution, which has offices in the 900 block of South Garfield Street.

Moore, who witnessed the train wreck that killed four military veterans and injured 16 others, said traffic has been historically bad at the intersection.

The intersection, according to the San Antonio Express-News citing Federal Railroad Administration records, had seen 10 other crashes since 1979, but no one had died.

The most recent one, before Nov. 15, took place in 1997, the Express-News reported.

"From my office, I hear brakes screeching four to five times a day," Moore said. "Adding more stop signs or traffic lights in the area could help."

The railroad crossing features two gates and a cement median. According to a 2008 Reporter-Telegram report, the medians, constructed as part of the "Quiet Zone" mandate, help prevent drivers from cutting across train crossings diagonally.

The train tracks also are flanked by two separate intersections, Industrial Avenue and Garfield Street on the south and Front Street and Garfield on the north. Traffic lights surround each intersection, which, according to businesses working around the intersections, causes a lot of traffic throughout the day.

"By 5 p.m., there are too many vehicles in the area," said Marianna Valdez, a cashier for Affordable Tools.

Even though vehicles on the road may slow down to a crawl near the train tracks, the trains themselves may go up to 70 mph, according to the National Transportation Safety Board. According to a 2002 Reporter-Telegram report, Union Pacific strengthened its rail system in the Midland area to handle 60 mph speeds. The train involved with the Nov. 15 accident was traveling 62 mph.

A member of the NTSB and a city of Midland employee look on during a sight distance test Tuesday to gather information for the investigation into the train accident that killed four veterans during a parade Nov. 15 in Midland. The intersection of Garfield Street and Industrial Avenue has safety measures to give warning of trains, such as gates and lights. Witnesses from area businesses say traffic at and around the intersection is too high.

Claudia's Restaurant at the Bradford Inn provided a free thanksgiving meal to patrons Thursday.

As gospel songs by Matthew West and Peter Furler echo against the walls of Claudia's restaurant, it's clear this is more than a place to eat.

"This might be the only place they hear about Jesus," said owner Claudia Perdue, who opened her kitchen to Midland for a traditional Thanksgiving dinner.

Perdue, a bubbly and welcoming host, walks around the restaurant, giving warm nudges to patrons and telling them that "God loves you."

Perdue's husband, Mike, said he wants to make sure they are doing all they can to create a family atmosphere at the restaurant.

Midlander Nell Hart visited the restaurant, located in the Bradford Inn, off Wall Street, with her sister, Joyce Roach, who was visiting. Hart said the best thing about the restaurant is that "we don't have to cook."

All-military rodeo to hold finals at Horseshoe next 3 years

By Audrie Palmer
apalmer@mrt.com

An all-military rodeo will host its world finals this weekend in Midland after choosing to make the Horseshoe its home for the next three years.

Staff with the Professional Armed Forces Rodeo Association said that in light of the Nov. 15 train tragedy that killed four veterans and injured 16 others during the annual Show of Support parade, the organization will donate 20 percent of all tickets sales this weekend to those families involved in the accident.

During each performance, the PAFRA cowboys and cowgirls also will participate in a special military rodeo tribute which will include a memorial performance by the Lone Star Cowgirls Drill Team, a horse tribute along with a moment of silence and community prayers.

The association is offering the world finals venue as a place for the community to come together and heal, said officials.

"The PAFRA World Finals is such a moving patriotic event, and now it will take on even more significance," marketing director Tammy Dooley said. "These cowboys and cowgirls are veterans themselves. How they reacted to the recent news was heartwarming — with an outpouring of concern to give back to

Fort Worth's Alliance Airport examines its future

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — The Fort Worth airport built on a former cow pasture is at a crossroads with two major clients leaving, even as the airport's opening helped spur plenty of development around it.

Alliance Airport sparked new retailers, apartment complexes and other development along Interstate 35 in Fort Worth, and the airport itself helps move millions of pounds of cargo every year. But American Airlines and Bell are-Helicopter set to leave, and some of the plans for Alliance have not come to fruition more than two decades after its opening, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported on Thursday.

Officials plan to eventually spend $240 million in federal, state and other funding to reconfigure roads and extend runways.

Tim Ward, president of Alliance Air/Aviation Services, told the newspaper he still considered the project a success.

"Although the airport, in terms of the development around it, hasn't been completed as fast as we perhaps initially envisioned, it truly became a catalyst for everything else around here," Ward said.

American built a maintenance facility at Alliance two years after the airport opened in 1989. FedEx later established a regional shipping hub that still generates plenty of revenue.

But attempts to lure major aerospace companies like Boeing and Airbus have failed.

"We've chased a lot of those big deals," said Mike Berry, president of Hillwood Properties, which developed the airport, a brainchild of Hillwood chairman Ross Perot Jr. "Those projects are few and far between and, when you look at those deals, the state incentives are so high, that's usually what takes it over the edge."

Alliance executives must also deal with American shutting down its maintenance hangar as part of its bankruptcy restructuring. Bell Helicopter is also moving its commercial helicopter customer service center and training academy to new headquarters in Fort Worth.

Officials hope extending runways to 11,000 feet — the longest one is currently 9,600 feet — will accommodate larger planes and more international traffic, and help Alliance compete with Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Terry Clower, an economist at the University of North Texas, said officials could afford to be cautiously optimistic.

"They are certainly going to face some challenges, but because of the success of the rest of Alliance, they can ride this out."

Vehicles are piled on Interstate 10 in Southeast Texas on Thursday. The Texas Department of Public Safety said at least 80 people were injured in a 100-vehicle pileup.

Massive pileup closes I-10; 2 dead and more than 80 hurt

Associated Press

BEAUMONT — Two people died and more than 80 people were hurt Thursday when at least 100 vehicles collided in Southeast Texas in a pileup that left trucks twisted on top of each other and authorities rushing to pull survivors from the wreckage.

The collision occurred in extremely foggy conditions at about 8:45 a.m. Thanksgiving Day on Interstate 10 southwest of Beaumont, a Gulf Coast city about 80 miles east of Houston.

A man and a woman were killed in a Chevy Suburban SUV crushed by a tractor-trailer, the Texas Department of Public Safety told KFDM-TV.

Officials at Acadian Ambulance service said at least 51 people have been taken to area hospitals and at least eight are critically hurt.

According to DPS, a crash on the eastbound side of the highway led to other accidents in a dangerous chain reaction. There were multiple crashes on the other side of the highway, as well.

Associated Press

A family walks away from the scene of the crash on Interstate 10 on Thursday.

Jefferson County Sheriff's Office Deputy Rod Carroll told The Associated Press the fog was so thick that deputies didn't immediately realize they were dealing with multiple accidents.

I-10's eastbound lanes were re-opened Thursday after more than eight hours.

Texas Department of Public Safety trooper Stephanie Davis told KFDM that two people in an SUV died after the crash. She said at least 100 cars and trucks were involved in the accident.

Carroll said uninjured drivers tried to help as authorities sorted through the wreckage.

"It's just people helping people," Carroll said. "The foremost thing in this holiday season is how other travelers were helping us when we were overwhelmed, sitting and holding, putting pressure on people that were injured."

Plan calls for reforestation of New Mexico wildfire scar

Associated Press

SANTA FE, N.M. — Federal officials are proposing to plant hundreds of thousands of seedlings as part of an effort to reforest areas charred by one of the largest wildfires in New Mexico's recorded history.

The Santa Fe National Forest is looking for public comments on its plan for helping the Jemez Mountains recover from last year's Las Conchas blaze. The 30-day comment period starts Saturday.

The fire, sparked by a falling power line on June 26, 2011, raced across the southern edge of the mountain range. It burned through 244 square miles of tinder dry forest, destroyed dozens of homes, threatened one of the nation's premier government laboratories and scorched nearly two-thirds of Bandelier National Monument.

The proposal calls for planting 425,000 ponderosa pine and Douglas fir seedlings on 1,800 to 2,510 acres within the burn scar to the west and southwest of Los Alamos. Officials said they are choosing to focus on easily accessible areas that are more prone to regrowth.

The planting — all done with hand tools — is expected to begin next spring when soil temperatures warm.

Forest documents acknowledge that the reforestation effort will take decades.

The hope is that the plantings will eventually prevent erosion, help restore natural hydrological functions and improve wildlife habitat, specifically for the Jemez Mountains salamander, which is being considered for federal endangered species protections.

Biologists who have been studying the elusive salamander said the Las Conchas Fire burned nearly 18,000 acres of salamander habitat.

Town locks hydrants after water losses

Associated Press

MORIARTY, N.M. — All of the fire hydrants in one rural New Mexico community will soon have locks on them.

Moriarty Fire Chief Steve Spann said employees with the public works division have been installing the bright red locks to prevent water thefts as well as any misuse of the hydrants that Spann's firefighters depend on.

Spann said all of his crews will have master keys to ensure the hydrants can be accessed quickly if needed.

City officials told Albuquerque television station KOAT that 2 million gallons of water were unaccounted for in one month. Officials believe thousands of gallons have gone to people who are stealing the water.

Spann said the city has been researching possible solutions and believes the locks will prevent any undue water losses, especially during this time of drought.

City: We'll pay off Cowboys Stadium bonds early

Associated Press

DALLAS — Arlington officials say the 30-year, $325 million bond package voters approved to lure the new Cowboys Stadium is on track to be paid off three years early.

Arlington made $50.5 million in sales tax revenue during the 2011-12 fiscal year, The Dallas Morning News reported Thursday. That figure doesn't include proceeds of a half-cent of sales tax for Cowboys Stadium or a quarter-cent for street maintenance and repairs.

Mike Finley, the city's assistant director of fiscal policy, said the higher revenue has allowed Arlington — located between Dallas and Fort Worth — to cut three years from the end of its 30-year payment plan. If growth continues, the city could shorten that time frame even further, Finley said.

"We would think we're done somewhere around 2024, 2025 at our current growth (rate)," Finley told the newspaper. "Now, there's a long time between now and then, but that's what we believe."

Voters in 2004 approved the bonds, which enticed the Cowboys to move to Arlington from nearby Irving. The new stadium, built at a total cost of more than $1 billion, opened in 2009.

Critics have questioned whether Arlington should have offered tax incentives to the Cowboys — or whether local governments should finance stadiums for privately-owned teams at all. Arlington also used $135 million in city bonds to pay for Rangers Ballpark next to the new football stadium.

"Yes, I had concerns about everything," said Robert Rivera, a city council member who supported bond elections for both the Cowboys and Rangers' stadiums. "But at the same time, I had faith and confidence in the direction of where we were going. I wasn't afraid."

Terry Witt, an accounting professor emeritus at the University of Texas at Arlington, pushed hard against city money going to both stadiums.

"Maybe I'm myopic, but I don't see how that stadium ever benefited me personally," Witt told the newspaper. "I don't see that I would be any worse off if that stadium wasn't here."

Witt hasn't changed his mind, but says paying the bonds early will help drive public support for similar future projects. Arlington Mayor Robert Cluck said future opportunities would likely come up but didn't say what he had in mind.

"We've proven that public-private partnerships have worked every single time; at least they have with us," Cluck said.

Toddler dead after 2-vehicle crash in West Texas

An 18-month-old child is dead after one car rear-ended another near downtown Amarillo in West Texas.

The Amarillo Globe-News reported that the toddler and another child were the two passengers in a Mazda driving Wednesday afternoon. Police said the Mazda was hit by a Chevrolet Tahoe.

The drivers of both vehicles and the other child were hospitalized.

Police continue to investigate the crash. They did not release the names of anyone involved.

SAN ANTONIO

House fire leaves 12 homeless

A dozen people are unharmed but homeless after their San Antonio home was decimated by a fire.

The blaze after 4 a.m. Wednesday started as a small fire behind a bedroom dresser. Residents tried to put it out with hoses and cups of water, but the fire quickly spread and eventually charred most of the house.

Firefighters on scene said an electrical problem likely started the blaze.

Seven people inside the house and five others who lived in a room behind the house escaped.

San Antonio Fire Battalion Chief Mark Black tells KSAT-TV that the home is a "complete loss."

Resident Graciela Galvan tells the San Antonio Express-News that the family is "only left with what we're wearing." She's not sure what the family will do next.

FORT WORTH

Attorney: Priest barred from kids

The attorney of a former high school student who settled an abuse lawsuit says the Fort Worth priest he accused will no longer be able to work with children.

Tahira Merritt told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that a settlement reached Tuesday requires the Rev. William Paiz to not hold any position that gives him access to children, juveniles or young adults. Paiz will also not be allowed to identify himself as a priest.

A civil lawsuit accused Paiz of abusing the unnamed former student between 1982 and 1987, starting when he was 16. The ex-student is now in his 40s.

A spokeswoman for the Fort Worth Roman Catholic Diocese says people who say they have been abused have several ways within the church to address their grievances.

DALLAS

SMU likely to look at Warren report on JFK death

SMU and the soon-to-open George W. Bush Presidential Center will hold programs next year for the 50th anniversary of the John F. Kennedy assassination — including possibly a look at the theories of how he died.

SMU political science professor James Hollifield told The Dallas Morning News that a program on the Warren Commission's findings "is tentative but will probably happen."

The commission found Lee Harvey Oswald fired at the former president's motorcade as it passed through downtown Dallas. The commission said Oswald acted alone. Some have questioned its findings.

Kennedy died on Nov. 22, 1963. The city of Dallas has planned a ceremony for next year's 50th anniversary featuring Pulitzer-winning historian David McCullough.

their fellow veterans."

PAFRA is a nonprofit veteran's organization made up of active duty servicemen and servicewomen, reservists and honorably discharged veterans. In 2005, the organization began holding the world finals competition during Veterans Day weekend, first in Fort Worth and then in Glen Rose. Last year was the first year the group came to Midland.

Lt. Col. Val Baker, PAFRA vice president, said getting the group to come to West Texas over Thanksgiving was a hard sell. For many, the holidays are the only leave from the military that they're given to spend time with their families.

But after experiencing the community's support for the rodeo and military last year, the organization decided to sign a three-year contract and keep the competition to the Horseshoe.

"We really like Midland. Everyone has been so supportive," Baker said.

The goal of the world finals is to provide a venue where men and women who share the bond of military service can come together and compete in the sport of rodeo. This year, the event is working with the West Texas VA Health Care System, the VFW and Hospice of Midland's "We Honor Veterans" program along with Soldiers of Today and Yesterday.

There are an expected 70 active duty, guard, reserve and honorably discharged veterans and their dependents who will come and compete Saturday and Sunday. A cowboy church service also will be held inside the main arena at 11 a.m. Sunday. The service is open to the public, organizers said.

The arena will be divided by different branches of the military — the U.S. Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines and Coast Guard — so spectators can sit in the section based on the branch they want to support, officials said. Activities to catch this weekend include: bull riding, barrel racing, bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, tie-down roping, breakaway roping, steer wrestling, chute dogging and team roping.

And while many families will be in town visiting each other and celebrating the Thanksgiving holiday, Baker said the rodeo world finals also will give those same families an opportunity to come out and show their patriotic spirit.

"It's a way to get away from Black Friday and all the shopping. They can get out of the house and do something different. The rodeo gets you more involved and kind of gets people's patriotism going," she said.

Delaney McCaghren and daughters Ali, 7, and Libby Kate, 9, pick up Thanksgiving meals from Way Out West Steakhouse in Midland before delivering them to the elderly Thursday. The event was put on by members of the Y-Indian Guides and Princesses and according to event organizers 196 meals were delivered throughout Midland that morning.

becomes a chore to cook," Hart said.

The restaurant had a number of volunteers, including Bob and Roxie Stitzel, who brought nine of their 10 children with them to serve food and drinks to patrons.

"We are always looking for a ministry for our family to serve," Stitzel said.

Stitzel kept a smile on his face as he worked in the kitchen, washing dishes and helping out in any way he can.

"It may not look like I'm having fun doing dishes, but I wouldn't let anyone else do it," Stitzel said.

Claudia's restaurant wasn't the only place hospitality was felt on Thanksgiving.

Randall Fausett opened his door on Thursday morning to a pre-made Thanksgiving meal. Oscar and Arcy Juarez woke up early with their two daughters, Alexandra, 10 and Daniella, 6, to deliver that meal. Alexandra and Daniella participate in Indian Princesses.

Fausett, who said his wife of 44 years passed away Nov. 14, was visibly moved and emotional by the gesture.

"You don't know how much I appreciate this," Fausett said.

Oscar Juarez said he was proud to give back with his girls because it reminds them of what to be thankful for during the holiday season.

"It shows responsibility to my girls," Juarez said. "It shows the girls the meaning of Thanksgiving."

Other members of the Y-Indian Guides and Princesses gathered Thanksgiving morning at Way Out West Steakhouse to pick up 195 Thanksgiving meals with routes to homes involved in the Meals-on-Wheels program, dropping off food to senior citizens across Midland.

Ray Fivecoat, chief for the Indian Princesses Plains Nation, said the organizers had to start turning volunteers away at a certain point because they had no more meals to give out.

The Y-Indian Guides and Princesses also received more than $10,000 in donations to help pay for the Thanksgiving meals through the Meals-on-Wheels senior citizen program. The groups' collection exceeded the cost of the meals, with the remaining money going toward offsetting the cost of meals in the future, Fivecoat said.

The Meals-on-Wheels program generally does not offer meals on Thanksgiving, but Fivecoat said the guides and princesses make sure to do so during the holidays.

"We're doing something they normally wouldn't do," Fivecoat said.

Fivecoat said it is important to help senior citizens in need and to show hospitality during the holidays.

"We may be the only people they have contact with during the holiday," Fivecoat said. "This is our way of helping give back to the community."

MPD: Car runs red light in accident

From staff reports

A car ran a red light at the intersection of North Big Spring Street and West Wadley Avenue, colliding with another vehicle, but no passengers were injured, police said.

Midland officers responded to the accident at about 11 a.m. and found two vehicles with front-end damage.

A man was driving north in a red Chevrolet pickup on Big Spring Street when a driver of a black Nissan Maxima headed east on Wadley Avenue ran a stop light, "T-boning" the pickup and causing it to run off the road and into an abandoned parking lot, said Margarita Strahan, investigating officer.

Traffic was not adversely affected, but Strahan said there have been a number of accidents at the intersection of Big Spring and Wadley.

The investigation is ongoing. Citations are pending against the driver of the Nissan, including a citation for failing to stop at a red light, she said.

More NM ski resorts open for holiday weekend

Associated Press

TAOS, N.M. — Skiers and snowboarders looking to the hit the slopes during the Thanksgiving Day holiday weekend now have some options in northern New Mexico.

Ski New Mexico says Taos Ski Valley and Red River opened Thursday. They join Sipapu, which was the first New Mexico resort to open last weekend.

Angel Fire Resort, Sandia Peak, Ski Apache and Pajarito are among those planning December opening dates.

With the exception of one storm that brought rain and some snow to western New Mexico earlier this month, the beginning of the snow season hasn't been promising.

Hydrologists say New Mexico is already starting off with half of the average snowpack for this time of year.

Alternate way to pay late fees

The Midland County Public Library will continue to allow patrons to participate in its Food for Fines program through the rest of November at its downtown branch. Patrons can donate one canned good for each dollar they owe in overdue fees throughout the month.

The goods will be donated to the West Texas Food Bank and possibly other nonprofit food pantries in the area, said library Director John Trischitti III. The amnesty campaign, which is the first of its kind at the library, will not forgive owed materials and processing fees, and staff members hope that many of the canned goods will be accompanied with items missing from the library shelves.

The library is closed today and Saturday and will open for regular hours throughout the rest of the month.

USPS tests same-day delivery

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Emboldened by rapid growth in e-commerce shipping, the cash-strapped U.S. Postal Service is moving aggressively this holiday season to start a premium service for the Internet shopper seeking the instant gratification of a store purchase: same-day package delivery.

Teaming up with major retailers, the post office will begin the expedited service in San Francisco on Dec. 12 at a price similar to its competitors. If things run smoothly, the program will quickly expand next year to other big cities such as Boston, Chicago and New York. It follows similar efforts by eBay, Amazon.com, and most recently Wal-Mart Stores Inc., which charges a $10 flat rate for same-day delivery.

The delivery program, called Metro Post, seeks to build on the post office's double-digit growth in package volume to help offset steady declines in first-class and standard mail. Operating as a limited experiment for the next year, it is projected to generate between $10 million and $50 million in new revenue from deliveries in San Francisco alone, according to postal regulatory filings, or up to $500 million, if expanded to 10 cities.

The filings do not reveal the mail agency's anticipated expenses to implement same-day service, which can only work profitably if retailers have enough merchandise in stores and warehouses to be quickly delivered to nearby residences in a dense urban area. The projected $500 million in potential revenue, even if fully realized, would represent just fraction of the record $15.9 billion annual loss that the Postal Service reported last week.

But while startups in the late 1990s such as Kozmo.com notably failed after promising instant delivery, the Postal Service's vast network serving every U.S. home could put it in a good position to be viable over the long term.

Sandy victims cheered at parade

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Victims of Superstorm Sandy in New York and elsewhere in the Northeast were comforted Thursday by kinder weather, free holiday meals and — for some — front row seats to the annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

"It means a lot," said Karen Panetta, of the hard-hit Broad Channel section of Queens, as she sat in a special viewing section set aside for New Yorkers displaced by the storm.

"We're thankful to be here and actually be a family and to feel like life's a little normal today," she said.

The popular Macy's parade, attended by more than 3 million people and watched by 50 million on TV.

As for the crossing gates, the Federal Railroad Administration dictates that gates provide a minimum of 20 seconds to warn motorists of an incoming train.

But Yadira Jassa, owner of women's clothing store Bella Fashion, said she thinks the warning time is less than that.

"The gates go down, then the train passes by really fast," Jassa said.

Peter Knudson, public affairs officer for the NTSB, said it is too early into the investigation to determine probable cause for the accident. He added it will be a year before a final report is released, but a preliminary report will be released in the upcoming weeks.

Man pleads no contest in burglary of Jobs' home

Associated Press

PALO ALTO, Calif. — A California man accused of breaking into Steve Jobs' house and stealing computers and the Apple Inc. co-founder's wallet has pleaded no contest to burglarizing homes across the San Francisco Bay area.

Kariem McFarlin accepted a plea deal and was convicted Wednesday in Santa Clara County Superior Court on eight felony counts of residential burglary and one felony count of selling stolen property.

McFarlin was initially charged in August with one count each of residential burglary and selling stolen property after Jobs' Palo Alto home was broken into in July. He apparently didn't realize he was in Jobs' house until he saw a letter addressed to the Silicon Valley icon, who died in October 2011.

During the 15-hour overnight heist, McFarlin took the late Jobs' wallet and driver's license as well as iPhones, iPads, iPods, Mac computers, champagne and $60,000 worth of Tiffany & Co. jewelry, police said.

A stolen iPad ended up in the hands of Kenny the Clown, a well-known street performer who used it to play music during his acts before police came for it.

Police said the clown, whose real name is Kenneth Kahn, didn't know the iPad was stolen when his friend McFarlin gave it to him to repay a debt. The device was returned to Jobs' family.

Investigators from a task force eventually linked McFarlin, 35, to seven other burglaries in Alameda, Marin and San Francisco dating back to March 2011, the San Jose Mercury News reported.

Prosecutors in those other counties agreed to resolve all of the burglary cases in Santa Clara County, said Deputy District Attorney Thomas Flattery, who filed an amended criminal complaint Wednesday.

"I think it's a good outcome," Flattery said about McFarlin's no contest plea. "I think the case demonstrates a couple of things. Really, it's a good example of judicial economy and cooperation between the various counties to resolve everything at once."

How Republicans should treat Susan Rice

■ The GOP has more important things to take care of, but that doesn't mean the Secretary of State candidate should have to answer questions.

RICH LOWRY

King Features Syndicate

U.N. Ambassador Susan Rice is set to go straight from misleading the country about a matter of national security to a promotion.

A top candidate to replace Hillary Clinton as secretary of state, Rice famously purveyed erroneous information about the Benghazi terror attack on five Sunday shows a few days after the deadly incident.

But, hey, these things happen. The conventional wisdom says Republicans should get over it and concentrate their energies on more useful pursuits like caving to President Barack Obama on taxes. We are supposed to believe that Rice's performance was one of a series of innocent mistakes that coincidentally minimized a terror attack in the weeks before a close-fought presidential election.

Rice assured everyone that Benghazi was a "spontaneous reaction" to an anti-Muhammad video. It was then exploited by "opportunistic extremist elements."

And they happened to have "heavy weapons, which unfortunately are readily available in post-revolutionary Libya."

It didn't take a degree in international relations, or even in a stint at the Model U.N. as a teenager, to recognize this as transparent nonsense. On "Face the Nation" that very morning, the president of Libya directly contradicted Rice in saying that the attack was an al-Qaida-linked preplanned act of terror. But Mohamed Magariaf didn't have the benefit of the best work of the U.S. intelligence community.

Rice hewed to talking points provided to her that were grievously wrong. How they got so wrong is now one of the great mysteries of the Benghazi controversy. Chairman of the House Intelligence Committee Mike Rogers said on "Meet the Press" over the weekend that "the intelligence community had it right, and they had it right early."

Susan Rice's allies make two defenses of her. One is her hackish susceptibility to inherently implausible talking points. This is a version of the defense the president made of her at his press conference recently chivalrously insisting that she "had nothing to do with Benghazi."

The other is that attacks on her are racist and sexist because she's an African-American woman. Richard Wolffe of MSNBC explained all on "Hardball" the other night. According to Wolffe, Susan Rice is a hard-nosed foreign-policy hawk just like John McCain is on Iran and Libya, so he concludes there can only be one reason the Arizona senator is gunning for her.

You can probably guess what it is. "You're saying that McCain's being driven by racial prejudice here?" Matthews asked. Wolffe replied, "There is no other way to look at this." No other way.

Yes, because we all know that the Republican Party could never abide a black woman as secretary of state. Across the last 20 years of our national life, only one party has had lily white secretaries of state. If she were nominated and confirmed, Susan Rice would make history — as the Democrats' first black secretary of state.

As it happens, the mouthpiece defense probably has a lot to it. Rice was aiming to please the White House in a high-profile audition. If she's nominated, Republicans shouldn't let the ritualistic cries of racism scare them off of holding her accountable. On the other hand, they shouldn't get distracted from more important questions involving the president himself.

Was he apprised of prior attacks on the consulate, and what did he do with that information? When did he get the accurate account of the attack from the intelligence agencies? What did he do when he learned of the hours-long attack, and what orders did he give to help the besieged Americans?

We know in great detail the president's involvement in the Osama bin Laden raid. But Benghazi has been a closed book. If the White House had a good story to tell, presumably The New York Times already would have reported the details in a 5,000-word front-page article built on leaks by anonymous administration officials.

Say this for Susan Rice: She would be a secretary of state worthy of Obama's administration.

OUR VIEW

End of the A&M-Texas rivalry changes Thanksgiving routine

A traditional Thanksgiving weekend in America often has to do with family get-togethers, great food (often turkey and dressing) and football. Some go as far as to call it the perfect holiday period.

If that happens to be your perfect definition of Thanksgiving, you obviously are missing something in this year's celebration. It seems that the changing face of college football is in the process of changing the face of the Thanksgiving holidays.

Most of you have noticed by now that the University of Texas will not be playing Texas A&M during this holiday period. The Aggies of College Station have become part of the changing face of college football. The Aggies have packed their bags and are now playing in the Southeastern Conference instead of the Big 12.

That pretty much means the UT-A&M game is no more. They have no games scheduled between each other in the foreseeable future. These two teams have played 70 times, and most of those meetings have held a traditional spot on the Thanksgiving weekend.

We have to admit that we miss this series going forward. We think it's sad to lose such a great rivalry, regardless of what time of year it is played. It's not quite the same watching LSU-Arkansas on Thanksgiving — or Texas-TCU for that matter.

Maybe that's why we never give up on the possibility of UT and A&M meeting again. There have been several indications that the Cotton Bowl would love to match the pair up again on Jan. 4. The biggest fly in that ointment is Kansas State's recent upset loss to Baylor. That loss could end up shifting bowl alignments, making Oklahoma the Cotton Bowl pick.

There is also good indication that neither team has much interest in playing each other in the Cotton Bowl or anywhere else. The two did not part from the Big 12 rivalry on great terms. We're sure both teams would just as soon go about the business of ignoring each other.

We still hold fast to the fact that the UT-A&M series is one of the most storied rivalries in all of college football and there ought to be a way to keep them playing despite ever-changing conference alignments.

It just seems to us that these two teams could give a small bone to the fans. After all, they are changing the face of Thanksgiving as Texans have known it for the last 55 years. We deserve a replacement game.

Why was there war in Gaza?

■ With the changes in the Middle East, anti-Isreal antagonists would have it no other way.

CHARLES KRAUTHAMMER

Washington Post Writers Group

Why was there an Israel-Gaza war in the first place? Resistance to the occupation, say Hamas and many in the international media.

What occupation? Seven years ago, in front of the world, Israel pulled out of Gaza. It dismantled every settlement, withdrew every soldier, evacuated every Jew, leaving nothing and no one behind. Except for the greenhouses in which the settlers had grown fruit and flowers for export. These were left intact to help Gaza's economy — only to be trashed when the Palestinians took over.

Israel then declared its border with Gaza to be an international frontier, meaning that it renounced any claim to the territory and considered it an independent entity. In effect, Israel had created the first Palestinian state ever, something never granted by fellow Muslims — neither the Ottoman Turks nor the Egyptians who brutally occupied Gaza for two decades before being driven out by Israel in the 1967 Six-Day War.

Israel wanted nothing more than to live in peace with this independent Palestinian entity. After all, the world had incessantly demanded that Israel give up land for peace.

It gave the land. It got no peace.

The Gaza Palestinians did not reciprocate. They voted in Hamas, who then took over in a military putsch and turned their newly freëd Palestine into an armed camp from which to war against Israel. It has been war ever since.

Interrupted by the occasional truce, to be sure. But for Hamas a truce — hudna — is simply a tactic for building strength for the next round. It is never meant to be enduring, never meant to offer peace.

But why, given that there is no occupation of Gaza anymore? Because Hamas considers all of Israel occupied, illegitimate, a cancer, a crime against humanity, to quote the leaders of Iran, Hamas' chief patron and arms supplier. Hamas' objective, openly declared, is to "liberate" — i.e. destroy — Tel Aviv and the rest of pre-1967 Israel. Indeed, it is Hamas' raison d'etre.

Hamas first killed Jews with campaigns of suicide bombings. After Israel built a nearly impenetrable fence, it went to rockets fired indiscriminately at civilians in populated areas.

What did Hamas hope to gain from this latest round of fighting, which it started with a barrage of about 150 rockets into Israel? To formally translate Hamas' recent strategic gains into a new, more favorable status quo with Israel. It works like this:

Hamas' new strength comes from two sources. First, its new rocketry, especially the Fajr-5, smuggled in from Iran, that can now reach Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, putting 50 percent of Israel's population under its guns.

Second, Hamas has gained strategic strength from changes in the regional environment. It has acquired the patronage and protection of important Middle Eastern states as a result of the Arab Spring and the Islamist reversal in Turkey.

For 60 years, non-Arab Turkey had been a reliable ally of Israel. The vicious turnaround instituted by its Islamist prime minister, Recep Erdogan, reached its apogee on Monday when he called Israel a terrorist state.

Egypt is now run by Hamas' own mother organization, the Muslim Brotherhood, of which Hamas is simply the Palestinian wing. And the emir of Qatar recently visited Gaza, leaving behind a promise of a cool $400 million.

Hamas' objective was to guarantee no further attacks on its leaders or on its weaponry, launch sites and other terror and rocket infrastructure. And the lifting of Israel's military blockade, which would allow a flood of new and even more deadly weapons. In other words, immunity and inviolability during which time Hamas could build unmolested its arsenal of missiles — until it is ready to restart the war on more favorable terms.

Yet another hudna, this one brokered and guaranteed by Egypt and Turkey, regional powers Israel has to be careful not to offend. A respite for rebuilding, until Hamas' Gaza becomes Hezbollah South, counterpart to the terror group to Israel's north, with 50,000 Iranian- and Syrian-supplied rockets that effectively deter any Israeli pre-emptive attack.

With the declaration of a cease-fire on Nov. 21, Israel seems to have successfully resisted these demands, although there may be some cosmetic changes to the embargo. Which means that in any future fighting, Israel will retain the upper hand.

Israel has once again succeeded in defending itself. But, yet again, only until the next round, which, as the night follows the day, will come. Hamas will see to that.

Iowa straw poll on the outs with GOP establishment

Associated Press

DES MOINES, Iowa — In the days since Republicans lost an election many in the party thought was theirs, chatter has been bubbling about what the GOP should do to recover.

For Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad, it starts with the smallest of actions: abandoning the state's now-infamous straw poll.

Once a festive checkpoint on the road to the leadoff Iowa caucuses, the poll has devolved into a full-blown sideshow, Branstad and other critics contend. They say it's an unfair and false test that has felled good candidates and kept others from competing in the state.

"It's just something that's gotten totally out of control," said veteran GOP presidential campaign consultant Charlie Black. "It's been bad for years, but no one has had the guts to say it until now."

The poll, which morphed over the decades into a closely watched early test of caucus campaign strength, had "outlived its usefulness," Branstad told The Wall Street Journal this week. Some activists contend it amplifies the voices of candidates lacking broad appeal.

Branstad said he has widespread support for a different event to replace the poll, held in Ames the summer before every contested presidential caucus since 1979. It has become a lavish affair where campaigns spend heavily to wine, dine, entertain and chauffeur their supporters by bus to the Iowa State University campus.

Critics have increasingly called it a shakedown. Not only do campaigns buy up thousands of tickets for their supporters to attend the event, they bid thousands of dollars for prime spots to pitch tents near the voting area on the college campus.

It's all to show early support in Iowa, where the precinct caucuses traditionally lead off the early-state nominating march, even though only a fraction of caucusgoers turn out for the straw poll.

"It's a tedious effort. It costs a lot of money. It's totally irrelevant at the end of the day. It used to be a test of organization," said Ed Rollins, who managed Minnesota Rep. Michele Bachmann's presidential campaign at the time she won the 2012 straw poll.

"Today it's a lot of effort and a lot of energy that really is not worth the effort."

Bachmann spent $2 million on the August straw poll and edged Texas Rep. Ron Paul with heavy support from religious conservatives.

"The straw poll doesn't provide a complete cross-section of the caucus-going electorate," said Phil Musser, an adviser to former Minnesota Gov. Tim Pawlenty.

Pawlenty pinned his hopes on a strong finish in Ames last year but dropped out of the race for the GOP nomination after finishing third, never reaching the caucuses in his neighboring state.

Only about 17,000 turned out for the straw poll, one-seventh the size of the roughly 120,000 who voted on caucus night in January.

John McCain, the GOP's nominee in 2008, and one-time favorite Rudy Giuliani opted not to compete for the straw poll, turned off by the event's heavy influence by Christian conservatives. They ran scaled down caucus campaigns as a result.

Romney did not compete in the 2011 straw poll, choosing to project himself as a national candidate who didn't need to define himself among the Iowa GOP's rank and file.

But in 2007, Romney spent millions and won, only to struggle to a second-place caucus finish. A month later, he quit the race.

During that campaign, the former Massachusetts governor was so struck by the ferocity of opposition by Iowa Republican activists to illegal immigration that he tacked to the right to distinguish himself from Giuliani and McCain, who supported relaxed sanctions for illegal immigrants.

Doug Gross, a leading Iowa Republican who chaired Romney's 2008 Iowa campaign, said Romney's strong opposition to any pathway to citizenship or tuition benefits for illegal immigrants hurt him in the general election four years later against Obama, partly because of his effort to appeal to Iowa conservatives at the straw poll.

The straw poll "forces them to deal with extremists and you can't help but have some of that rub off on you," Gross said. "That hurts our ability to nominate candidates who can win."

Who is our greatest generation?
They fought and won world wars.
They are the builders, teachers, donors, workers and dreamers.
They are the parents, caregivers and protectors.
They are family.

Together, we can honor their commitment and sacrifice by helping them maintain health, independence and dignity.

That's what they did for their greatest generation.

It's our turn.

LDS church opens family history center to the public

By Audrie Palmer
apalmer@mrt.com

Midlanders interested in learning about their ancestors have a local free resource available to them.

Genealogy is one of the fastest growing hobbies in the country, according to ancestry.com, and volunteers with the Midland Family History Center at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints said they've seen an increase of people coming in locally.

"It's not your grandma's genealogy anymore," said director Devri Conlin.

With three computers, printers and microfilm machines, the church also provides free baby-sitting in the nursery for mothers with young children who might want to come and utilize the service to research their families.

The Midland Family History Center is free and open to the public and provides access to many premium subscription genealogical websites such as Ancestory.com. There is also free access to approximately 2.5 million microfilms available in seven languages that allow visitors to search government and church records for births, marriages and deaths as well as censuses, probate records, land records and draft cards.

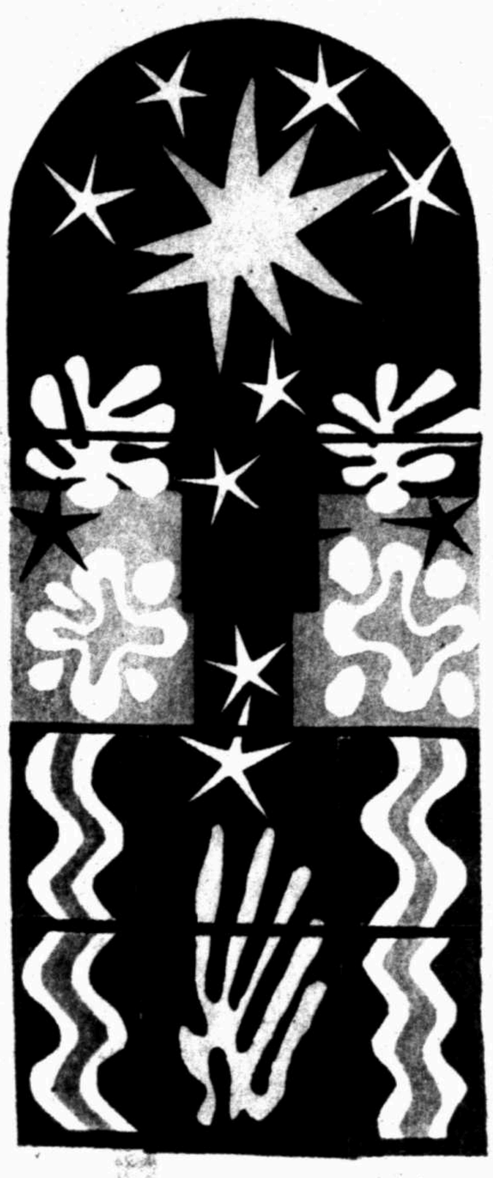
CHRIST IS BORN



'Christ is Born' art display to open Monday

■ First Presbyterian Church to host 30 exhibits from the Sandra Bowden collections.

By Audrie Palmer
apalmer@mrt.com

A unique art exhibit and display will open in Midland next week in time for Christmas. Twenty-nine pieces will be on display depicting various artists' interpretations of the incarnation story that tells the story of Christ's birth.

"Christ is Born" is set to open at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave., on Monday and will run until Jan. 6. The pieces are part of the Sandra Bowden collections. The collection features a 16th century woodcut of the annunciation by Albrect Altdorfer.

Other pieces include works by artists Aegidius Sadeler, Simon Fricius, Jacob Jordean and Henri Matisse.

Some pieces also will be displayed by contemporary artists Joan Bohilg, Sadao Watanabe, Rudolph Bostic, Bruce Herman and Tatiana Grant.

Staff at FPC are encouraging families to experience the story of Christmas through the display. The exhibit will be in the church's Garden Gallery and will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays and before and after all weekend services.

The collection showcases the different artists and how they have each interpreted the good news of Jesus Christ, said FPC staff.

FPC pastor Mary Beth Anton said she encourages those in the area to come and view the exhibit because there will be few opportunities as rich as this one to see the reason for the season through the talents of the artists.

"The wondrous story of Jesus Christ never gets old nor loses relevance," she said. "Nowhere is that more apparent than through this exhibit of art created by masters to add visual interpretation to the greatest story ever told — the birth of our savior, Jesus Christ."

Devotional &

Ancient wisdom for modern life.

This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would.

Members of the Church of England General Synod vote on whether or not to approve legislation introducing the first women bishops in the Church of England, at Church House in central London on Tuesday. The Church of England's governing body on Tuesday narrowly blocked a move to permit women to serve as bishops, leaving the church facing more years of contentious debate.

UK politician wants new vote on women bishops

Associated Press

LONDON — The Church of England should hold another vote on women bishops as soon as possible, its representative in the House of Commons said Thursday, while some members suggested stripping the church of its exemption from sex-discrimination laws.

Legislation to permit women to become bishops was blocked in the church's governing General Synod on Tuesday, a result that has drawn harsh criticism in Parliament.

"This is not an issue which can in any way be parked for the next couple of years or so awaiting another round of synod elections," said Tony Baldry, a member of Parliament who is the official designated to speak for the church.

"There has to be an understanding that this is an issue that has to be resolved as soon as possible," he said in a Commons debate.

Church legislation to permit women to serve as bishops failed to win the necessary two-thirds majority among lay members of the General Synod. Church officials have said it could take five years to lay the ground for another vote, but Baldry said this should not be necessary.

"It is perfectly possible for a different and amended measure to be considered by General Synod," he said.

The church has been unable to find a formula which meets the objections of traditionalists who believe only men can be priests and bishops, without at the same time offending women by restricting their authority and status as bishops.

Frank Field, a legislator and former member of the General Synod, introduced a bill on Thursday to strip the church of its exemption from sex-discrimination laws. More drastically, there has been talk of ending the church's status as the state church governed by the monarch.

"We might, in fact, be doing the church a favor by seeking to review its constitutional status," said Eilidh Whiteford of the Scottish National Party.

Field said the church was granted an exemption from the sex-discrimination law in 1975 "on the basis we understood that they were going to sort their own affairs out."

"Any organization that thinks it can turn its back on half of the talent in the country, and thinks it will be taken seriously, needs some sort of serious wake-up call," Field said in a BBC radio interview on Wednesday.

Labour's Diana Johnson said the church had been "held to ransom by a few narrow minds" and was left "looking outdated, irrelevant and frankly eccentric by this decision."

Baldry, a Conservative, suggested that the church should reconsider how it elects members of the General Synod so that it reflects the views of ordinary members.

The Church of England is a product of government interference, established by King Henry VIII who appointed himself as head. The government still formally appoints the archbishop of Canterbury, the spiritual leader of the church, and 26 bishops are allocated seats in the House of Lords.

Parliament has a role in church affairs, and would have had to ratify the female bishops legislation had the General Synod approved it.

Mont. revokes child's tuition for religious school

Associated Press

HELENA, Mont. — Montana education officials have cut off tuition assistance to a 4-year-old Columbus girl enrolled in a Christian preschool, and her parents are protesting the action as unconstitutionally targeting religious students and schools.

Eric and Kelsi Wilson have filed a complaint requesting a hearing with the state Office of Public Instruction over the agency's refusal to provide the assistance their daughter is eligible for under the federal Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

"The Wilsons seek the overturning of the OPI's practice of prohibiting parents from independently placing their children in private religious preschools," the complaint reads.

Office of Public Instruction spokeswoman Allyson Hagen said she couldn't comment on the complaint because of student confidentiality. She cited federal regulations and a Montana Constitution clause that say education funds can't be used for religious instruction or to aid church-run schools.

The Wilsons disagree with the state's interpretation and say refusing to provide tuition assistance to attend a religious school is unconstitutional.

The complaint claims the state is violating the First and Fourteenth Amendments by interfering with conduct undertaken for religious reasons.

The Nov. 16 complaint says there is no public preschool program offered by Columbus Public Schools, so they decided to enroll their daughter in ABC-123 University, a nearby Christian preschool.

The Wilsons' daughter has hearing and speech-language impairments, and she received special education services through the federal program administered by the state and the Stillwater/Sweet Grass Special Services Cooperative.

The girl's older sister has similar disabilities and attended the religious preschool with tuition assistance before going on to Columbus Elementary School, the complaint says. The cooperative also paid the 4-year-old's tuition at ABC-123 University for the month of September before OPI officials revoked the aid.

Officials with the cooperative told the Wilsons they had to move their daughter to one of the two non-religious private preschool programs in the area to continue receiving tuition assistance, according to the complaint.

The Wilsons chose to leave her in the religious preschool instead at a cost of $150 a month, and filed their complaint.

The school shares their Christian beliefs, their daughter is doing well in the classroom and taking her away would be disruptive, the Wilsons argue.

"Parents should be able to choose what's best for their own children. When the government provides funds to help disabled children at private schools, it cannot favor non-religious schools over religious ones," attorney Jeremy Tedesco said in a written statement.

In response to an Associated Press request for the regulations guiding OPI's decision, Hagen cited a section of the Code of Federal Regulations that deals with state-administered education programs. The code says the use of program funds may not be used to pay for "religious worship, instruction or proselytization."

Hagen also cited a passage in the Montana Constitution that says state and local agencies shall not make any appropriation or payment from any public fund or money to aid any church-run school, academy, seminary, college or university.

It is not clear whether OPI has scheduled a hearing, which is the first step in the complaint process that could include court if the Wilsons appeal.

BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA

Imams, priests play soccer match

ZENICA — A soccer match between Muslim imams and Catholic priests has helped raise funds for a new kindergarten in Bosnia.

More than 4,000 people paid 1 euro to watch the game in the central town of Zenica on Wednesday night, cheering "Bosnia, Bosnia" and celebrating whoever scored.

The Catholics won 5-3.

The match, organized by Bosnia's Inter-religious Committee, was played by priests of the Bosnian Franciscan order and Muslim imams, said Priest Fra Zdravko Andjic. His good friend, Imam Jakub Salkica, said both sides got along well but joked that shouldn't raise suspicions about match fixing.

Nearly two decades ago, more than 100,000 people died in this country in a war that involved Muslim Bosniaks, Christian Orthodox Serbs and Catholic Croats.

WYOMING

Jackson Council: Make rodeo prayer non-sectarian

JACKSON — The Jackson Town Council wants the Jackson Hole Rodeo to start with a non-sectarian prayer addressed to "Father" instead of Jesus.

The Jackson Hole News and Guide reported Wednesday the council plans to add a provision to the rodeo operator's town contract spelling out the words of the prayer.

Some rodeo spectators complained to town officials last summer after the prayer offered by the announcer sometimes quoted Bible passages and mentioned Jesus Christ.

Two pastors who attended a Town Council meeting on Monday objected to the new language, citing the free speech provision of the First Amendment.

Council members responded that the First Amendment's provision on the separation of church and state requires a prayer that doesn't favor any religion.

Rodeo operator Phil Wilson's contract runs through September 2013.

VIRGINIA

Blended parish told to change practices

VIRGINIA BEACH — A church that has offered blended Roman Catholic and Episcopal services for three decades has been told by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Richmond to meet in separate rooms for Holy Communion.

Clergy at the Church of the Holy Apostles were told to devise a plan that allows parishioners to remain under the same roof but worship separately. The plan is subject to approval by Roman Catholic Bishop Francis X. DiLorenzo and Bishop Herman Hollerith of the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Virginia.

Parishioners told the Virginian-Pilot the blended church has allowed families in mixed marriages to worship side by side and strengthen their community.

The Rev. Michael Ferguson, the parish's Episcopal leader, said representatives of the Catholic diocese were supportive of the ecumenical congregation at a meeting this week but were firm on some degree of separation of worship. For instance, the use of a combined liturgy in which the priests move to separate altars in the same room was deemed unacceptable, he said.

They instructed the parish to come up with a plan that provides for separate liturgies in separate rooms, Ferguson said.

"What was left in our laps was to develop a way to be together in those parts of the service where it would be acceptable to the diocese for us to be together and then to separate," Ferguson said.

Ferguson said he is confident an acceptable arrangement can be worked out. "It could have been much worse," he said.

DiLorenzo said he was sending in a team to determine whether the way the parish worships is consistent with Catholic doctrine.

Raffin died Wednesday of leukemia at the Ronald Reagan UCLA Medical Center, her brother, William, told the Los Angeles Times. She was diagnosed with the blood cancer about a year ago.

Raffin, the daughter of 20th Century Fox contract player Trudy Marshall, had roles in movies such as "Forty Carats" and "Once Is Not Enough." She also starred in television miniseries, most notably playing actress Brooke Hayward in "Haywire" and a businesswoman in "Noble House," based on the James Clavell saga set in Hong Kong.

She and her then-husband, music producer Michael Viner, launched Dove Books-on-Tape in the mid-1980s, which blossomed into a multimillion-dollar business. The company's first best-seller was Stephen Hawking's opus on the cosmos entitled "A Brief History of Time."

Raffin's job was getting celebrities to provide voices for some of the books. Among them were the nonfiction bestsellers "Anatomy of an Illness" and "The Healing Heart," both by Norman Cousins and read by Jason Robards Jr. and William Conrad, respectively.

Church of England's leader: Failure to approve female bishops requires explanation

LONDON — The Church of England has much explaining to do following its failure to vote to allow women to serve as bishops, its leader said Wednesday — and politicians from the prime minister downward are already demanding action or answers.

One legislator even suggested there might be an issue under anti-discrimination laws.

The governing General Synod blocked the change as the vote among lay members on Tuesday fell short of the required two-thirds majority. Bishops and clergy, in separate votes, overwhelmingly backed the proposal.

Speaking to the synod a day after the vote, Archbishop of Canterbury Rowan Williams said any church member who thought there was an easy solution to the impasse between traditionalists and proponents of female bishops was being unrealistic.

FAMILY

From 1B

The center is one of more than 4,600 that are operated in 126 countries by the LDS church. The church also sponsors the website Familysearch.org, which receives more than 10 million hits each day.

Who am I? What does family have to do with who I am? — Those are questions Conlin said many who begin researching want to answer.

She started researching her family tree by osmosis. One of six children, Conlin said growing up her mother loved family and was obviously interested in children. When Conlin had her first son, she began researching her husband's side of the family to learn more about his past.

"I must have a gene for it," she said.

She learned that even with an Irish last name, there was a large chunk of Danish background in his family. The more she learned, the more she said she saw how her perspective changed and family became more important.

"You learn about sacrifices made in their country and for their families. You can better reap the benefits of their hard work. They (my ancestors) in turn would want me to make it better for my children," she said.

While some people may not be connected with their families, the center can help them find their ancestors.

LDS missionaries travel around the world to find original documents. Those documents are then stored on microfilms and kept in Salt Lake City. Family history centers around the world can then request those microfilms and rent them for a fee of $7.50 for 90 days.

While some people may never be able to travel to villages in Europe or even in the states, with the microfilms, researchers are able to find records that may connect the missing links on their family trees.

"It brings the world to us," Conlin said. "Not only do you get the facts, but you kind of get to know them."

The church believes in families, and that families are an eternal gift given from God, Conlin said. It's important to provide this free resource as a way to help individuals bring those families together.

"They'll always learn something. It's an adventure," she said. "Maybe you didn't know something about your ancestors and now you're learning something about yourself.

"You can picture them with their lives in your mind with all the dry, dusty details that bring other questions that you want answered."

'Life of Pi': Plenty of gods, but just one fellow passenger

By A.O. Scott
N.Y. Times News Service

It is spoiling nothing to disclose that Pi Patel, the younger son of an Indian zoo owner, survives a terrible shipwreck during a storm in the Pacific Ocean. That much you know from the very first scenes of "Life of Pi," Ang Lee's 3-D film adaptation of the wildly popular, arguably readable novel by Yann Martel. A middle-aged Pi (the reliably engaging Irrfan Khan) tells the tale of his earlier life to a wide-eyed Canadian novelist (Rafe Spall), so we know that he made it through whatever ordeal we are about to witness.

Whether a viewer's good will can survive until the shipwreck is another matter. The older Pi introduces us to his younger self (played as a boy by Ayush Tandon and as a teenager by Suraj Sharma), whose life is so besotted by wonder that those in the audience who do not share his slack-jawed piety might think that something is wrong with him, or themselves.

Named Piscine Molitor after his uncle's favorite Parisian swimming pool — he adopts the 16th letter of the Greek alphabet as a nickname to avoid schoolyard teasing — Pi grows up in Pondicherry, a serene and picturesque city in South India. His childhood unfolds in this colorful setting, beautifully filmed by Claudio Miranda, inflected with a hint of exoticism by Mychael Danna's score and graced with the presence of a handful of excellent Indian actors, notably Adil Hussain and Tabu as Pi's parents.

Young Pi's existence — and also that of the gentle, professorial man he will grow into — is dominated by religion. Pi's story, the Canadian writer is told, "will make you believe in God," and Pi himself is infused with a godliness that knows no doctrinal limits.

The Hindu deities "were like superheroes to me," he recalls, and at a tender age he began collecting heroes from other faiths, an all-around holiness fan reluctant to declare a rooting interest in any particular team. He likes them all. After receiving a quick precis of the Gospels from a kindly priest, Pi offers up a prayer that summarizes his amiable, inclusive approach to the notoriously divisive subject of theology: "Thank you, Vishnu, for introducing me to Christ."

No problem! He will go on to embrace Islam and study kabbalah. Thousands of years of sectarian conflict, it seems, can be resolved with a smile and a hushed, reverent tone of voice.

"If you believe in everything, you will end up not believing in anything at all," warns Pi's dad, who is committed to the supremacy of reason and who is, as rationalists often are in the imaginations of the devout, a bit of a grouch about it. But this piece of skeptical paternal wisdom identifies a serious flaw in "Life of Pi," which embraces religion without quite taking it seriously, and is simultaneously about everything and very little indeed. Instead of awe, it gives us "awww, how sweet."

Until the Bengal tiger shows up, and thank the divinity of your choice for that. Or, rather, thank Lee and the gods of digital imagery, who conjure up a beast — named Richard Parker, for mildly amusing reasons — of almost miraculous vividness. His eyes, his fur, the rippling of his muscles and the skeleton beneath his skin, all of it is so perfectly rendered that you will swear that Richard Parker is real.

What is and isn't real — what stories can be believed and why — turns out to be an important theme of "Life of Pi," albeit one that is explored with the same glibness that characterizes the film's pursuit of spiritual questions. But Lee and his screenwriter, David Magee, have the good sense to put all of that aside for a while and focus on the young man, the tiger and the deep blue sea.

Sharma is a gangly, likable presence, with an emotional expressiveness that makes him good company, and sufficient humility to not mind being upstaged by a computer-generated kitty. Tales of lonely survival have a durable, almost primal appeal, and the middle section of "Life of Pi" confidently clears a space for itself alongside "Robinson Crusoe" and Robert Zemeckis' "Cast Away."

Part of the appeal of these stories is their intense preoccupation with practical matters, and the problems Pi must solve form the dramatic heart of the film. How will he secure food and clean water? How will he stay sane and hopeful? How will he avoid turning into Richard Parker's dinner?

These questions are answered with equal measures of wit and wonder, and with only occasional moments of god-bothering. Unlike just about every other cartoon animal you can think of, Richard Parker, despite his name, is never anthropomorphized, never pulled out of his essentially predatory nature. The relationship that develops between him and Pi is therefore a complicated one, involving fear and competition as well as (on Pi's end, at least) compassion and love.

It unfolds in a setting that is one of the great achievements of digital cinema, and a reminder that the eclectic Lee is, among other things, an exuberant and inventive visual artist. (In this respect it is an apt companion to "Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon," speaking of tigers.) There are images in "Life of Pi" that are so beautiful, so surprising, so right that I hesitate to describe them. Suffice it to say that the simple, elemental facts of sky, sea and animal life are captured with sweetness and sublimity.

The problem, as I have suggested, is that the narrative frame that surrounds these lovely pictures complicates and undermines them. The novelist and the older Pi are eager to impose interpretations on the tale of the boy and the beast, but also committed to keeping those interpretations as vague and general as possible. And also, more disturbingly, to repress the darker implications of the story, as if the presence of cruelty and senseless death might be too much for anyone to handle.

Perhaps they are, but insisting on the benevolence of the universe in the way that "Life of Pi" does can feel more like a result of delusion or deceit than of earnest devotion. The movie invites you to believe in all kinds of marvelous things, but it also may cause you to doubt what you see with your own eyes — or even to wonder if, in the end, you have seen anything at all.

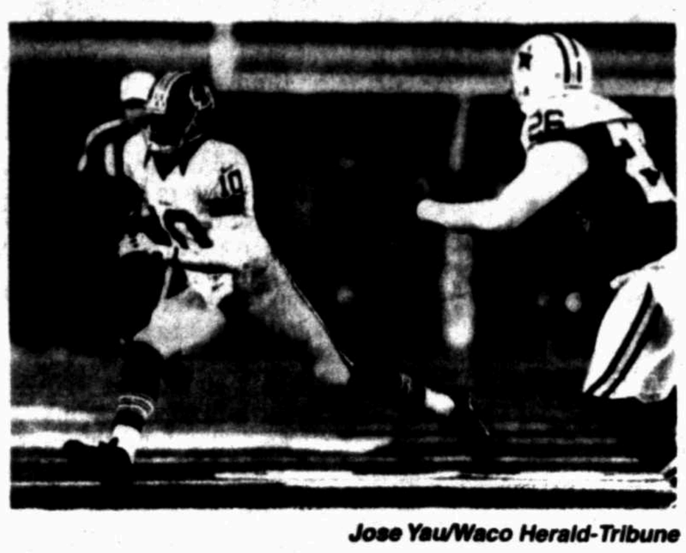
Redskins beat Cowboys behind Griffin's 4 TD passes



Jose Yau/Waco Herald-Tribune

Washington Redskins quarterback Robert Griffin III (10) escapes from Dallas Cowboys strong safety Charlie Peprah (26) for a first down Thursday in Arlington.

By Tom Orsborn
San Antonio Express-News

ARLINGTON — Inexplicably, nearly all the lights in the Dallas Cowboys' locker room dimmed 20 minutes after the media was allowed in after Thursday's 38-31 loss to the Washington Redskins.

With the Cowboys' playoff hopes all but dashed, it was a fitting moment, conjuring memories of former Dallas quarterback Don Meredith singing, "Turn out the lights, the party's over" on Monday Night Football in the 1970s.

"We don't have really no room for any of that talk right now," cornerback Brandon Carr said when asked if it was realistic to think the Cowboys could still make the playoffs after falling to 5-6 with five games left.

"Our mindset is just the next game and finally giving these fans something to cheer about."

With Redskins rookie quarterback Robert Griffin III torching Carr and his defensive teammates much of the game, all the Cowboys faithful could do on Thanksgiving was sit in stunned silence while Washington fans chanted, "RG3, RG3."

In his first game as a pro in Texas, the Baylor product shook off four sacks to complete 20-of-28 passes for 311 yards with four touchdowns and one interception for a 132.6 passer rating.

Three of Griffin's TD tosses came in the second quarter when the Redskins (5-6) scored 28 unanswered points for a 28-3 halftime advantage. Two of Washington's three TDs in the quarter came after Dallas turnovers: a Tony Romo interception and a Dez Bryant fumble.

Redskins	38
Cowboys	31

"I was in awe," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said when asked what he was thinking while watching Griffin go 8-for-8 in the second quarter for 178 yards with three TDs and no turnovers for a perfect 158.3 rating.

Just five days earlier, Griffin was 14-of-15 for 200 yards with four TDs and no turnovers for a 158.3 rating in leading Washington to a 31-6 laugher in Philadelphia. That was special, but beating the Cowboys in his home state was even better.

Serious fun

As playoffs heat up, Buck, Sullivan try to keep Rangers cool

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

All Greenwood football coach Shad Hanna can do sometimes is shake his head at senior receivers Colin Sullivan and Brackston Buck.

That's not a bad thing as both of those guys always seem to be enjoying themselves, hanging out with their teammates and the Rangers' coaching staff. Sullivan is a self-described "idiot" who tends to keep things lively during practice, while Buck is another kid who doesn't like to take things too seriously, except when he's mad at himself for dropping passes during practice.

"Colin is hilarious. He's got such a great personality, a jokester," Hanna said. "He gives everybody a hard time, including Buck. And Buck likes to have fun and enjoy life, and it sometimes wears me out, but they're both so much fun to be around."

While Sullivan and Buck are two kids acting, well, like kids playing a sport they both love, they're both serious when it comes to game time and both would love to help the Rangers (8-3) get past Perryton (7-4) in the area round of the Class 3A Division II playoffs tonight in Plainview.

"I like to have fun out there," Sullivan said. "I try to act like an idiot to keep everybody happy, but still stay serious at the same time and know that we've got a job to do.

"I haven't really thought too much into how good (Perryton is) or what their record is. The only thing on my mind is winning games."

Added Buck about playing Perryton, "People say they're not very good but they beat a few teams that were decent. I think we've got our tempo down pretty good and our defense seems to be holding up."

Both Sullivan and Buck were instrumental in helping the Rangers blow past Clint, 51-0, in last week's bi-district game in Alpine. Sullivan caught five passes for 97 yards and one touchdown, while Buck added four catches for 91 yards to go with 21 yards rushing on three carries. It seemed any time Kam Williams and the offense needed to move the chains, the go-to guys down field were Sullivan and Buck.

"Me and Brackston just seemed to be in the open spots at the right time and Kam was just hitting us there," said Sullivan, the 5-foot-10, 170-pounder, who also starts at safety.

Buck, a 6-foot, 170-pound receiver said the reason they continued to get open was thanks to the work of Williams, who would look one way before looking the other way to his targeted receiver.

"The safeties will bite and then he'll turn right back around and throw it to the other guy who's wide open down field," Buck said. "Kam is aware of all his receivers. He throws to everybody and not just one or the other. And then if he can't get

Mustangs prepare for physical Dallas Parish Episcopal

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Midland Christian defensive lineman and the rest of the team practice Wednesday afternoon at Mustang Field.

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

Midland Christian is used to playing physical teams who run the football, but what the Mustangs will be facing this week in Dallas Parish Episcopal could be considered a completely different animal.

The Panthers run a double-wing offense, and they run it well. So well in fact that Parish Episcopal is averaging just over 480 total yards a game this season and most of it is on the ground.

The double-wing is not a spread offense, either, it's one where all the players are lined up close to each other around the ball, and the plays they run are not exotic. It's the type of offense where the Mustangs' defensive line may have to play its best game of the year.

Defense sparks TCU over No. 18 Texas

By Jim Vertuno
Associated Press

AUSTIN — TCU could get used to these Thanksgiving games. Given their first chance to play one since 1928, the Horned Frogs beat No. 18 Texas to get the biggest win of their first season in the Big 12.

Matthew Tucker scored two touchdowns, Jaden Oaberkrom kicked two field goals and TCU's defense forced four turnovers, three by Texas quarterback David Ash in the first half. Shortly after the Horned Frogs had dumped their old Southwest Conference rivals 20-13 on Thursday night, purple-clad fans sprinkled among the burnt-orange of Royal-Memorial Stadium chanted "T-C-U!"

"I'm going to probably get home some time tomorrow and go out in the street and yell," TCU coach Gary Patterson said.

Horned Frogs	20
Longhorns	13

The Horned Frogs (7-4, 4-4) picked off two passes near their own goal line to kill Texas scoring drives and picked up an Ash fumble at the Texas 16 that set up Tucker's second touchdown. The Horned Frogs also dominated the line of scrimmage, running the ball 48 times for 217 yards and passing just 10 times.

Ash was relieved by Case McCoy, who led a late touchdown drive before an interception by Sam Carter in the final two minutes sealed the win for TCU.

Although Texas (8-3, 5-3) has been a Thanksgiving regular since playing its first game on the holiday in 1895, those contests were usually against Texas A&M. But that rivalry broke apart when the Aggies left the Big 12 for the Southeastern Conference.

So the Big 12 sent TCU to Austin this year for one shot at the Longhorns — Texas will play Texas Tech on Thanksgiving next year — and the Horned Frogs nailed it with their first win over a ranked opponent this season.

"To put us on a Thanksgiving game, to be in this place, it's a long way since when I was here when we started 15 years ago," Patterson said. "We're growing as a football team."

Texas had won four in a row and

Doctor says boxer Camacho is brain dead

By Danica Coto
Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Famed Puerto Rican boxer Hector "Macho" Camacho is clinically brain dead, doctors said Thursday, but family members disagreed on whether to take him off life support and two of the fighter's aunts said later that relatives had agreed to wait two more days.

Dr. Ernesto Torres said doctors had no more medical tests to perform on Camacho, who was shot in the face Tuesday night.

"We have done everything we could," said Torres, who is director of the Centro Medico trauma center in San Juan. "We have to tell the people of Puerto Rico and the entire world that Macho Camacho has died, he is brain dead."

He said at a news conference Thursday morning that Camacho's father indicated he wanted the boxer taken off life support and his organs donated, but other relatives opposed the idea.

"This is a very difficult moment," Torres said.

One of the fighter's aunts, Aida Camacho, said Thursday evening that two of Camacho's sisters had asked to have two more days to spend with him, and other family members had agreed even though they felt it was time to give in.

"I'm a person of a lot of faith, and I believe in miracles, but science has spoken," she said.

Another aunt, Blanca Camacho, also said the family had agreed to the wishes of the two sisters from New York to hold off on ending life support. But, she added, "There's nothing left here. He's already dead."

Most of Camacho's relatives left the hospital by Thursday night without commenting.

About a dozen people stood vigil outside. One, Orvil Miller, a singer and actor, expressed sadness about Camacho's fate and recalled his admiration for the fighter's flamboyance.

"He had the combination of the skills of a boxer along with a great sense for entertainment," Miller said.

Texans top Lions in OT after coach's mistake

By Larry Lage
Associated Press

Texans 34
Lions ..... 31 (OT)

DETROIT — Jim Schwartz threw a challenge flag when he didn't need to and the Houston Texans made him regret it.

Shayne Graham's 32-yard field goal with 2:21 left in overtime lifted Houston to a 34-31 win over the Detroit Lions on Thursday after their coach broke an NFL rule by attempting to challenge a scoring play.

"Obviously that's a big break in the game for us," Houston coach Gary Kubiak said. "But I think you make your breaks when you work your tail off."

Detroit kicker Jason Hanson had a chance to get Schwartz off the hook, but his 47-yard field goal attempt on the fifth possession of the extra period hit the right upright.

Lions defensive end Kyle Vanden Bosch did, too, on the previous possession when he couldn't intercept a pass Matt Schaub threw directly at him deep in Houston territory.

Detroit might've won in regulation if its coach didn't make a costly mistake.

Schwartz threw a challenge flag when Houston's Justin Forsett scored on an 81-yard touchdown run in the third quarter after two Lions tackled him.

"Give him credit for continuing to play football," Kubiak said. "We talk about that all the time. You don't stop, you play."

Replays showed Forsett's left knee and elbow hit the turf near midfield, and the automatic review that accompanies all scoring plays probably would have taken the TD off the board. But NFL rules say that throwing the challenge flag on a scoring play negates the review — and is an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty to boot.

"It's on me," Schwartz could be seen saying to assistants and players on the sideline as he tapped his chest. "It's on me."

Yes, it was.

Forsett even acknowledged he shouldn't have allowed to score.

"I know now that I was down, but I didn't think I was during the play," he said. "I didn't think my knee hit, and there was no whistle, so I kept going.

"I wasn't giving the touchdown back."

That score pulled Houston within three points.

"I knew the rule — you can't challenge on a turnover or a scoring play — but I was so mad that I overreacted," said Schwartz, whose temper got the best of him during a postgame handshake last year with San Francisco coach Jim Harbaugh. "I had the flag in my hand before he even scored because he was obviously down."

Kubiak had no sympathy.

"A rule's a rule," Kubiak said. "I know one thing: You've got to keep your flag tucked in your pocket."

Arian Foster ran for 102 yards and two scores, including a 1-yard run with 1:55 left in the fourth quarter to cap a 15-play, 97-yard drive that tied the game at 31.

AFC South-leading Houston (10-1) took its first lead when Graham made up for missing a field goal earlier in OT after teammate Danieal Manning ripped the football away from Lions tight end Brandon Pettigrew at its 32 on the first drive of the extra period.

Brady, high-scoring Patriots embarrass Jets

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Tom Brady and the New England Patriots put this game — and the New York Jets' ugly season — away early.

At least it was competitive for a quarter. By halftime, it was a big-time laugher.

Brady threw three touchdown passes and ran for a score as the Patriots thoroughly embarrassed the Jets with a 35-point second quarter in a 49-19 victory Thursday night.

Brady

After a scoreless opening quarter, the Patriots (8-3) went on a touchdown spree despite holding the ball for only 2:14 as they took advantage of several mistakes by Rex Ryan's hapless Jets (4-7). Their 35 second-quarter points tied for the fourth-most in a quarter in NFL history.

Fans were chanting for Tim Tebow to play before the second quarter of this Thanksgiving showdown was over, and booing as the team left the MetLife Stadium field at halftime.

New England, which beat Indianapolis 59-24 on Sunday, scored four touchdowns in just over 6 minutes — including three in a jaw-dropping 52-second span — helping Bill Belichick become the eighth coach in NFL history with 200 career victories, including the playoffs.

Julian Edelman returned a fumble for a touchdown and caught a 56-yard pass for a score before leaving with a head injury. Wes Welker and Shane Vereen had touchdown catches, Steve Gregory returned a fumble for a score, and Stevan Ridley ran for a touchdown.

The Patriots improved to 19-0 in the second half of the season since 2010. They were 8-0 that year and last year, and are 3-0 this season after the midway point.

Meanwhile, the Jets allowed their most points since giving up 52 to Miami in the 1995 season opener, and will likely have to win all of their remaining five games to even have an outside chance at the postseason.

New England was without star tight end Rob Gronkowski, out a few weeks after breaking his left forearm in the win Sunday against Indianapolis. They didn't need him — not with the Jets fumbling and bumbling around.

Brady finished 18 of 28 for 323 yards before leaving with 2 minutes left in the game. He reached 3,000 yards passing for the 10th time, becoming one of six players to accomplish the feat. He also passed Dan Fouts for 10th place on the career passing list.

Tight end Aaron Hernandez returned after missing three games with a sprained ankle and had two catches for 36 yards.

New York's Mark Sanchez was 26 of 36 for 301 yards with a touchdown and an interception. Tebow didn't play at all — nursing sore ribs that made him questionable for the game — and stood on the sideline with a cap on throughout despite the occasional chants for him to get some snaps.

It looked as though this one might be a close one as both teams missed opportunities to score in the opening quarter, including Stephen Gostkowski being wide left on a 39-yard field goal attempt. The Jets were hoping to boost their playoff hopes and keep some momentum going after a 27-13 victory at St. Louis last Sunday that snapped a three-game skid.

But this one got ugly in a hurry.

The Patriots jumped on a poor decision by Sanchez, who ruined a nice drive by keying in on Jeremy Kerley on second-and-6 from the 23. Gregory read the play the whole way for an easy interception.

Brady then led the Patriots on a 15-play, 84-yard drive that was capped on Welker's 3-yard touchdown catch on the first play of the second quarter.

New England was helped by a questionable neutral- zone infraction by Muhammad Wilkerson on third-and-4 from the Jets 49, and a facemask penalty on Ellis Lankster on second-and-10 from the 32 that gave the Patriots the ball at the 9.

The Jets made another costly mistake on their next possession when Shonn Greene fumbled on fourth-and-inches from the Patriots 31 and Gregory recovered.

COWBOYS

From 1C

"I always get emotional when I come back," said Griffin, who grew up in Copperas Cove. "I got to see my (Baylor coach) Art Briles. I had not seen him in a long time. It was good to see him and just to be back in Texas. I just had that feeling like I was back home where I spent so many years.

"But it didn't drive me through the roof emotionally as far as getting charged up for the game."

That was evident early in the second quarter when he wound up and threw deep to Aldrick Robinson, hitting the speedy SMU alumnus in stride for a 68-yard TD that gave the Redskins a 7-3 lead.

Robinson got behind the coverage after safety Danny McCray bit on the play-action fake. For all the talk of Griffin running the college zone-read offense, it was just conventional passing that did in the Cowboys, including a 59-yard catch-and-run score by Pierre Garcon that made it 21-3 with 2:14 left in the first half.

"We were actually OK on the college stuff," defensive coordinator Rob Ryan said. "But they out-executed us throwing the deep ball and they hit some huge shots on us, and those are hard to recover from. That deflates the entire team."

It was the third straight home game in which the Cowboys fought back after falling behind early. On Oct. 28, they trailed 23-0 to the New York Giants before losing 29-24. Last Sunday, they overcame a 13-0 deficit to beat Cleveland 23-20 in overtime.

Against Washington, Romo was 37 of 62 for 441 yards with three TDs and two picks, tying his own club record for attempts set against the Giants last month and throwing for the third most yards in club history behind Meredith (460 in 1963) and Troy Aikman (455 in 1998). Bryant had eight catches for a career-high 145 yards the second week in a row and two TDs.

"It was disappointing," said Romo, who saw his November record fall to 21-4, including 14-1 at home. "It was a tough game against a tough opponent. They got after us pretty good."

Bryant's first TD covered 85 yards – the longest scoring play for both him and Romo. His second was for 11 yards and pulled Dallas within 35-28 with 8:18 left.

Griffin, however, answered by driving the Redskins 50 yards for a game-clinching 48-yard field goal.

"It was probably the drive that saved our season," Griffin said.

And the one that killed the Cowboys'. Even the ever-optimistic Jones suggested it might be over after the already-injury riddled team likely lost two more key defensive players for the season: linebacker Bruce Carter (dislocated elbow) and slot corner Orlando Scandrick (fractured hand).

"I don't know if 8-8 will get it there or not, and I sure don't know if we're going to be 8-8," Jones said. "I'm not trying to be negative, but we've got to play these guys again (in the season finale). And with how impressed I am with how they played, we've got our hands full for the last game."

FROM STAFF REPORTS

CLASS 5A DIVISION II AREA
ABILENE COOPER VS. ARLINGTON HIGH

When/where: 2 p.m. today, Maverick Stadium, Arlington

Records: Cooper 9-2; Arlington High 9-2

Last game: Cooper 40, El Paso Americas 21; Arlington High 28, Keller Timber Creek 16

Players to watch: Cooper, DB Fred Lawrence (5-10, 175, Sr.), WR KaShawn Brown (6-0, 175, Sr.), WR Anthony Pierson (6-1, 195, Sr.), QB Lorenzo Joe (6-2, 180, Jr.), LB Cordell Dorsey (6-2, 190, Jr.), LB Josh Hale (5-11, 185, Soph.), RB Kerry Sims (5-7, 155, Sr.); Arlington High, DB Devin Harris (5-10, 180, Sr.), OL Daireck Hicks (6-3, 265, Sr.), LB Sammy Douglas (6-2, 180, Sr.), WR Dontha Robinson (5-8, 165, Sr.).

Cooper coach Todd Moebes on the game: "(Arlington) is a very good football team. They've got a lot of talent. They have a lot of guys offensively that can make plays. Defensively, they're on you with great team speed. Their front seven is very active, especially their front four."

Notes: Moebes said he feels the Cougars got back into a groove during the second half against El Paso Americas in last week's bi-district playoff game. Getting back in a rhythm was important for the Cougars, which had a bye in the final week of the regular season. "You can't ever simulate game speed in practice," Moebes said. "You can practice all you want to and go good on good, but it's tough to imitate the focus and speed that happens on Friday night. We finally adjusted back to where we had been in the second half." ... Cooper has won seven of its last eight games, including five straight. The one loss came against crosstown rival Abilene High, 31-27, in the final seconds of the game. "We finished the regular season off really well," Moebes said. "We had a little longer break than we wanted with the bye week at the end of the season, but we're back in our flow." ... Arlington High and Cooper have met only one other time, with Arlington High winning, 42-39, in a third-round playoff game in 1994.

Next: Winner plays winner between Denton Ryan-Cedar Hill in regional semifinal.

ABILENE HIGH VS. ARLINGTON LAMAR

When/where: 7 p.m. today, Maverick Stadium, Arlington

Records: Abilene High 11-0; Lamar 6-5

Last game: Abilene High 34, El Paso Montwood 15; Lamar 37, Justin Northwest 30

Players to watch: Abilene High, RB Marcel Porter (5-7, 165, Sr.), QB Evin Abbe (6-1, 190, Sr.), CB Nate Kittley (5-11, 165, Sr.), OL Chantz Anderson (6-1, 240, Sr.); Lamar, LB Dillon King (6-3, 205, Sr.), RB Cameron Smith (5-9, 155, Jr.), QB Charlie Baird (6-3, 180, Sr.); WR Kavonta Mayweather (6-2, 200, Sr.).

AHS coach Steve Warren on the game: "(Lamar has) gotten healthy. They've had some guys banged up, but they're back now. They got their offense on track against Northwest."

Notes: Warren said he feels like Lamar's record is quite misleading given the competition the Vikings have played this season. "The only teams they've lost to were some of the better teams in DFW," Warren said. "I think they've played some tough games, and they can give us some problems." ... Abilene High is in the second round of the playoffs for the 11th time in the past 13 seasons, which makes playing on Thanksgiving week commonplace for the Eagles. "We do things a little differently this week," Warren said. "We lighten it up quite a bit and try to get most of our work in on Monday and Tuesday. We've had the fortune of playing on Thanksgiving week for a while now. We talk about it and treat it like a tradition here." ... Lamar and Abilene High have played only once with Abilene High winning a 2009 bi-district matchup, 42-10.

Next: Winner plays winner between Colleyville Heritage-Waco Midway in regional semifinal.

CLASS 3A DIVISION I REGIONAL
ANDREWS VS. ABILENE WYLIE

When/where: 7:30 p.m. today, San Angelo Stadium

Records: Andrews 7-4; Wylie 11-0

Last game: Andrews 49, Borger 28; Wylie 49, El Paso Mountain View 21

Last meeting: Wylie 42, Andrews 0 on Nov. 20, 2009

Players to watch: Andrews, QB Jase Hammack (6-2, 185, Soph.), WR/DB Tadarius Ridge (6-1, 165, Sr.), WR/DB Coy Lopez (5-10, 165, Jr.); Wylie, TB/CB Garrett Martin (5-10, 175, Sr.), QB/FS Taylor Grant (5-11, 185, Sr.), LB Cole Townsend (6-2, 210, Sr.)

Notes: Andrews coach Ralph Mason called this game the Mustangs' biggest test of the year, and when asked what Wylie does well, he responded, "Everything." ... Andrews is searching for consistency after following up a win against rival Seminole with an underwhelming first half that ended with the Mustangs trailing two-win Borger. Mason is hoping for a better start against Wylie. "We've got to do a better job of that," Mason said. "We've got to go in also with the right mindset. You can't go into a game like this and be intimidated, you can't go in and try to feel them out. You've got to go in head strong. You've got to make plays." Andrews is also hoping to do a better job of protecting the ball after fumbling five times, losing one, and throwing two interceptions against Borger. "We can't have any turnovers and no big plays," said senior Austin Luna. "We're pretty susceptible to that." ... Wylie coach Hugh Sandifer said his team had the chance to rest starters in the second half of its playoff-opening win against Clint Mountain View, which he said was good for a battered team. Sandifer praised the senior leaders on the team and the way the Bulldogs as a whole have prepared for games this season. He said both are why the Bulldogs have been able to remain undefeated this season and that he hopes to see it continue this week. "You just try to continue to do what you've done and what got you to this point and try to find a way to slow (Andrews) down," Sandifer said.

Next: Winner plays the winner of Kennedale-Stephenville in the Class 3A Region I quarterfinals

SIX-MAN DIVISION I REGIONAL
NO. 1 RANKIN VS. NO. 6 IRA

When/where: 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Memorial Stadium, Big Spring

Records: Rankin 10-1, Ira 11-0

Last game: Rankin 78, Sterling City 30; Ira 52, Crowell 43

Players to watch: Rankin, RB/S Dalton Michum (5-11, 180, Sr.), OL/DE Ryan Thomas (5-8, 200, Sr.), C/NG Caleb Wrinkle (6-3, 290, Sr.); Ira, RB Lance Morris (5-10, 160, Sr.), S/RB Logan Morris (5-8, 140)

Head coach on the game: "They are a tricky team. Their kids aren't very big and we've got a size advantage but what they do they do well."

Notes: Among the four games in Regions I and II this weekend, this is possibly the marquee matchup and it matches two teams that like to run the football. ... The Red Devils opened up a 36-16 lead on Sterling City in the first half and kept the pressure on through the second half to win with the 45-point mercy rule last week. Dalton Michum had another big game as he rushed for 249 yards and five touchdowns. ... Rankin coach Shannon Williams said that the Bulldogs don't have the same type of size as the Red Devils, but with Lance Morris running the ball, Williams said Ira is tough to stop on third and fourth down. "How they kill you is on third and fourth down," Williams said. "You may smash them on first and second, but they go to more of a pass-option type of offense on third and fourth down and Morris is so fast it's hard to account for him as a receiver. He's a weapon." ... Morris rushed for 364 yards and scored seven touchdowns in last week's game against Crowell. Lance Morris has rushed for more than 10,000 yards in his career.

NO. 15 GRADY VS. NO. 8 PETERSBURG

When/where: 6 p.m. Saturday, Cardinal Stadium, Hermleigh

Records: Grady 8-3, Petersburg 10-1

Last game: Grady 80, Ropes; 56; Peterburg 61, Miami 38

Players to watch: Grady, QB/SB E.J. Rodriguez (Soph.), QB Brett Glaze (Sr.); Petersburg, RB/DE Thomas Roden (6-1, 230, Sr.), QB/DB Ryan Smith (5-7, 150, Jr.)

Head coach on the game: "Petersburg is a lot like Ropes, and they are bigger than Ropes at some key positions but are about the same speed."

Notes: The Wildcats rebounded from being down by 16 points in the first quarter to take a 44-22 halftime lead and rolled to a convincing victory against the Eagles last week. Kuykendall said the Eagles recovered two onside kicks early to score those two touchdowns, but Kuykendall said once they were able to get the ball they kept scoring. Plus, he said his defense did a good job of stopping the Eagles. "I think we had some pre-game jitters because none of the guys on this team have ever been in the playoffs," Kuykendall said. "Once the pre-game jitters were down, we settled down and we started playing some defense." ... Rodriguez had another big game last week as he threw for 318 yards and rushed for 120. ... Petersburg was the runner-up in Six-Man Division I District 2 as the Buffaloes' only loss this season was to No. 2 Valley. ... Steven Resendiz, Chris Sharples and Ryan Smith each scored two touchdowns for the Buffaloes in the victory.

Notes

■ Tonight's game is the first meeting between the two schools.

■ Dallas Parish Episcopal finished second in TAPPS Division II District 2 as the Panthers' only loss was a 42-35 loss to district champion Dallas Christian in early October.

■ Parish Episcopal is averaging 492.7 yards a game this season and 385.7 of that is coming on the ground. The Panthers have a pair of 1,000-yard rushers in Zach Shelley, who has 1,813 yards and 31 touchdowns, and Tre Vance who has 1,324 yards and 13 touchdowns.

■ The Mustangs had another big offensive game last week against Bullard Brook Hill as Midland Christian had 427 total yards. Quarterback Mason McClendon completed 10 of 19 passes for 280 yards as his top target was Jarrod Koym with 152 yards on four catches and a touchdown. Overall this season, the Mustangs are averaging 432.2 yards on offense.

■ Midland Christian coach Greg McClendon said a good start will be key in today's game as both teams have relied on them for success this season. "Both teams are geared on starting fast," McClendon said.

■ Parish Episcopal has been playing football for seven years, and Scott Nady has been the coach all that time. Nady is a Dallas native who played football at the University of California, and later coached in the Bay Area. He returned to coach in his hometown and start a new program. The Panthers won the 2010 TAPPS Division II state championship.

MUSTANGS

From 1C

"It's a pretty big challenge," said senior defensive end Dakota Jones. "It's a simple offense, but the reason they win so many games is that they are more physical than the teams they play. I think they might have a little more trouble against us."

Playing physical is something that coaches have been stressing to players this week in preparation for today's TAPPS Division II regional round game, scheduled for 7 p.m. at Gordon Wood Stadium in Brownwood.

Jones and fellow defensive lineman Charlie Fisher said the schemes the Panthers run are similar to Monahans, but where Parish Episcopal is also similar to the Loboes is how physical they are on offense.

And for Midland Christian's defense, especially it's defensive line, being able to match the physical nature of the Panthers offensive line will be important in slowing down their running game.

"We've got to move back the line of scrimmage so there is nowhere for them to run," said Fisher, who is a senior defensive tackle. "We have to stop them from getting the big gain because the big gain is what they have gotten and why they've scored so much."

Fisher and Jones are part of a seven-man rotation on the front four for the Mustangs that has been fairly productive this season, as two players, Bryson Taylor and Reid Talley each have more than 30 tackles, and the seven have combined for 21 tackles for loss.

Along with Fisher, Jones, Taylor and Talley, T.D. Reeger, Erwin Baquirin and Brandon Glossop all play up front for the Mustangs.

"I'm excited for the challenge," Midland Christian defensive coordinator Mike Munguia said. "But you've got to line up and whoop the guy in front of you, and you've go to do it over and over and over, and whoever whoops the other the most wins. They are not hiding who they are and what they are going to do."

Parish Episcopal coach Scott Nady said he brought the offense with him when he returned to Texas after coaching in California, and said it allows his team to get some angles and double team opportunities against teams that are bigger.

But he said he was impressed with how physical Midland Christian plays, and knows his offensive line will have to continue to play well this week.

"(The offense) helps, but Newton's Law still applies," said Nady, who is a Dallas native and started the program at the school seven years ago. "I would love to find an offense that negates all of Newton's Laws. It gives us a chance to be competitive at the line of scrimmage, but the reality of it is that Midland (Christian) brings a team to the game that is extremely impressive up front and they are bigger and stronger than anything I've seen in TAPPS in quite a while."

The physical style that is expected today is something that both Jones and Fisher are ready for, and are expecting as the playoffs continue.

"We just have to play harder than they are," Jones said. "Coach Munguia on Monday said that whoever whoops the other team more is going to win the game. It's a lot of fun, and it's been a really intense week."

Notes

■ Greenwood will be the home team in this game.

■ The Rangers advanced to the area round for the second straight season thanks to a dominating victory over Clint in the bi-district round.

The Rangers had more than 500 of total yards with a good mix of the run and the pass, while holding the Lions to 95 total yards.

QB Kam Williams (6-3, 200, Sr.) led the offense with 248 yards passing, 132 yards rushing and accounted for four touchdowns (two rushing).

The defense was led by the defensive line, which did a good job of containing the Lions' wishbone attack with 46 yards rushing on 39 carries.

Even LB Brandon Brown got into the end zone when he returned a fumble 15 yards for a TD in the second half.

■ Greenwood coach Shad Hanna said RB Braydin Moreland (back), who did not suit up last week, is questionable but was able to practice early in the week.

■ RB Dustin Rea (6-0, 185 Jr.) did a good job of filling in for Moreland in the starting spot, rushing for 53 yards and two TDs on 10 carries to go with three receptions for 33 yards.

■ Perryton, like Greenwood, runs the spread offense and its mascot is also Rangers.

"They run a a lot of screens which seems to be their favorite play, and they have a couple of pretty good receivers," Hanna said. "Defensively, they're all over the place and they run kind of a multiple front 50. They've got two safeties that are pretty fast. We've got our work cut out for us."

■ Perryton had a nice balance as well in its win over Estacado with 120 yards rushing and 130 yards passing.

■ Because of injuries, second-year Perryton coach David Flowers said third-string quarterback and sophomore Justin Ventura has been taking the snaps as starter. Last week, he completed 10 of 24 passes for 130 yards with three TDs and one interception. WR Callum Townsend (Sr.) caught six passes for 71 yards and two TDs.

"The kids have done a good job of fighting through adversity," Flowers said. "Our quarterback has stepped up and done a tremendous job."

Flowers added that playing teams such as Dalhart and Borger helped prepare his team to face Estacado's speed.

"I think both of those teams gave us a pretty good idea of the pursuit angles we had to take," he said. "We bent but didn't break and the points they got, we made them earn it."

■ Flowers, a Perryton native, was the head coach at Bushland for seven years prior. And before that, Flowers was the head coach at Merkel and coached the Badgers in 2003 when they knocked off a talented Greenwood team in the bi-district round of the playoffs.

Next: Winner plays either Graham or Glen Rose in Class 3A Division II regional round, TBA

RANGERS

From 1C

it to one of us, he runs and he usually gets some pretty good yardage out of it."

Buck is also the kind of player who can take the hand-off out of an end-around and make something happen out of the backfield. Buck has 103 yards rushing to go with his 430 yards on 30 receptions this season

"We don't usually run it a lot but once coach saw me run it, I guess that boosted his confidence in me to run the football," Buck said. "So whenever they hand it off to me, I try as best as I can to get that first down or more if I can."

While Buck can also make things happen for the Rangers out of the backfield, Sullivan has been the go-to receiver for Williams for the past two years. This season, Sullivan leads the team with 45 receptions for 642 yards, and is second to Call Carmichael's five touchdown receptions with four. Hanna said Sullivan also has the ability to play multiple receiver positions.

"Colin is so dependable," Hanna said. "There for a while, I was thinking, 'Man, he's nonexistent, what's the deal?' But he's just kind of been that guy that's a silent (pass) catcher with 642 yards receiving and 45 receptions. That's just awesome. He does such a great job of getting open and he catches almost everything thrown at him. He's one of those guys that doesn't have that many drops."

Sullivan said it helps that he's had a good rapport and chemistry with Williams over the years.

"Me and Kam have been friends all the way since kindergarten so we've just had a really good relationship growing up with playing football, 7-on-7 and then last year (on varsity)," Sullivan said.

In addition to enjoying the life of a receiver playing in a spread offense, Sullivan and Buck hope to continue having fun at Greenwood for at least one more week with a win tonight.

"I'm really excited about it," said Sullivan earlier in the week. "I can't wait for it to be here all ready. I'm looking forward to practicing Thanksgiving morning."

Even though the Rangers practiced during the holidays to get ready, you can bet that Sullivan and Buck were enjoying the time and having as much fun as possible.

TCU

From 1C

came in the game with an outside shot at the Big 12 title or a BCS bowl bid with a win.

"We missed a great opportunity to get back in the mix for some things," Texas coach Mack Brown said. "You can't win a football game when you have four turnovers."

Texas hoped for a little McCoy family magic at the end. McCoy, younger brother of former Texas quarterback Colt McCoy, rallied the Longhorns in the fourth quarter last year against Texas A&M and rallied his team to a road win at Kansas this year.

Trailing 20-6, McCoy's scrambling feet and short passes led an 82-yard drive to a touchdown by Jeremy Hills with just over three minutes left. But after Texas forced TCU to punt, a scrambling McCoy threw up a pass into coverage that was easily intercepted by Carter.

"The ball slipped and floated in the air," McCoy said. "We didn't take care of the ball when we needed to."

Freshman quarterback Trevone Boykin rushed for a team-high 77 yards for the Horned Frogs. TCU linebacker Kenny Cain had 14 tackles.

TCU has had to slug its way through its first Big 12 season. The Horned Frogs were 4-0 before starting quarterback Casey Pachall was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, got suspended and then left school for treatment at an inpatient rehabilitation facility.

TCU turned to Boykin in midseason and he was coolly effective against the Longhorns, scrambling for big yards on broken plays and called runs after ball fakes. TCU's first scoring drive started with Boykin throwing out of his own end zone to direct a 94-yard march to Tucker's first touchdown.

Widower looks for right way to say thanks but no thanks

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: My wife died a few years ago. I live alone and have been a bachelor since then. Old friends have been kind enough to pass along the names and phone numbers of widows or divorcees they felt would be of interest to me. I have taken several of them out to dinner. Some were interesting, but for one reason or another we didn't have enough "chemistry" for me to call them for another date.

What is the considerate thing to do after having just one date? Should I call the person and say it was pleasant, but ...? Should I not call at all and move on? I feel guilty at times for not following up with some comment, as they were mostly nice women. Any suggestions about how to handle these situations would be welcome. — MIAMI WIDOWER

DEAR WIDOWER: Conversations such as this can be awkward, which is why many people avoid having them. Because you feel you "should" say something, a way to handle it would be to say you had a nice time, but you are still grieving and are not ready for a relationship. Chemistry is supposed to be mutual, so don't be surprised if some of the women aren't interested in pursuing a relationship with you, either. That's life.

DEAR ABBY: I work in a store that is popular with teenagers. Every Christmas, parents and grandparents come in here with absolutely no clue what to get.

Asking "What's popular right now?" doesn't help. (What's cool to one teen may be lame to another.) I'd like to offer a couple of tips to help clueless relatives select the right gift for their teen.

(1) Bring a recent photo of her or him. We can tell a lot by looking. It will provide hints as to what kind of gift they may like.

(2) Copy a list of their "likes" from Facebook and bring it with you. It may mention books, music, movies or other interests that will make it easy to track down something they would enjoy.

I hope this helps some of your readers. — VALERIE IN FORT WORTH

DEAR VALERIE: Bless you for writing. I'm sure many parents and grandparents will take your suggestions to heart. Santa isn't the only one who needs a "helper" at Christmastime.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a 30-year-old man who posted every detail about his breakup with my daughter on Facebook for all of their 1,000 friends and family members to read? There was some personal and very painful stuff.

Is this the "new generation" norm? Or is he immature and inconsiderate? — HURTING FOR MY DAUGHTER

DEAR HURTING: Welcome to the wonderful world of the Internet, where millions of individuals have chosen to live their lives online for all to see. And while you and I might consider what happened to be a form of kissing-and-telling, bragging, a bid for sympathy and in poor taste, the people who love your daughter will "unfriend" this person, and those who love gossip will devour every detail with relish.

In time your daughter will realize she is lucky this relationship is over. Whether her former boyfriend used Facebook to gain 15 minutes of fame or as a weapon to hurt her, I think she can do better. Don't you?

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♡

Here's another deal from Eddie Kantar's award-winning series "Thinking Bridge," designed for players who are eager to improve their game.

West would like to enter the fray, but his sordid distribution plus the vulnerability dictate otherwise. North's raise to two spades shows the same strength as a direct raise from one spade to two spades; however, the raise of a secondary suit guarantees four-card support ... in blood.

West's lead is questionable in dummy's first-bid suit. An alternative is the five of diamonds — the unbid suit.

Once East discourages in hearts (all hearts lower than the six are visible), West shifts to a low diamond. East plays king-ace and a diamond to South's queen.

South has five top losers: two hearts, two diamonds the ace of clubs. The idea is to locate the queen of spades. Both opponents are passed hands and neither figures to have as many as 12 points. West has turned up with ace-king of hearts and East with the ace-king of diamonds. Each opponent has turned up with seven points. If South drives out the club ace, whoever takes the trick, in this case West, will have turned up with 11 points and cannot have the queen of spades. If West doesn't have it, East must! Good thinking. Notice that by driving out a relatively unimportant honor, the ace of clubs, South was able to find out who had a very important honor, the queen of spades. It is called a "discovery play."

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, Nov. 23, 2012:

This year you often become angry and frustrated if you feel that others are not being as sensitive as you would like them to be. Recognize that you are more dynamic than in past years. People could be taken aback by this new strength and energy. If you are single, you have many admirers circling around you. You might discover that the person you choose to relate to is volatile. Give yourself time to decide who is right for you. If you are attached, try not to be controlling. You cannot change your significant other, no matter what you do. Accept that fact, and there will be more understanding between you. ARIES can make you smile at the drop of a hat.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Someone might not have adjusted to your new spirited, spontaneous self. By doing the unexpected, you irritate this person and cause him or her to question the status quo. Stay level and refuse to respond to his or her reaction, and you both will be better off. Tonight: All smiles.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★ Stand back and rethink a personal situation. You could be trying to absorb sudden insights, which might be uncomfortable. By detaching some, you will get yet a different perspective. Realize the implications of trying to control a situation. Tonight: Head home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ If you can, the wise move would be to steer clear and not get involved in controversy. Your depth and ability to move past an immediate problem will play an important role. A partner or loved one could be enmeshed in an upsetting situation. Tonight: Find your friends.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ Take a stand, whether you are comfortable doing so or not. Someone who has clout could be very challenging. You do not need to play into this person's power play. You simply must support yourself in what you want. Tonight: Follow your instincts.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ Keep reaching out to others. You might be overwhelmed by someone's strong drive. This person could deliver surprising news of a different variety each time you meet up. Reorganize your day in the best way possible. Tonight: Reach out to someone.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Deal with people in general on a one-on-one level. Brainstorm away. Use your creativity to the max, and know what you want. A child or new friend could capture your interest. Opportunities emerge from your ingenuity. Tonight: Meet up with a loved one for dinner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Defer to others, as everyone around you seems to have a very clear idea of what he or she wants. Loosen up and relax with a friend or two, and get into a game while others are out shopping. A family member could be testy. Tonight: Just go along with someone's plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ Move forward with a project or choose to join a friend this Black Friday. You could get a lot done quickly and efficiently by working together. Call a partner if you are unsure about a purchase. Tonight: Could go into the wee hours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ As you set out to do some Christmas shopping, allow your creativity to emerge. You could be overwhelmed by everything you have to do. Nothing can ease the pressure like diving right in, but remember to maintain your budget. Tonight: Be naughty and nice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ The unexpected occurs close to home. You might not be able or want to handle everything that comes down your path. After a while, you might decide to make a run for it, whether it's to join a friend or simply to get away from the uproar. Tonight: Make a to-do list.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ You could be busy, as you start in on some holiday errands. You could be overwhelmed by everything you have to do. At the same time, you are working through some intense feelings from a different situation. Let your lighter side emerge. Tonight: Hang with friends.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ Curb a need to be possessive by worrying less about others. You might suddenly encounter the perfect gift for a certain someone. Don't hesitate to get it. A friend could become controlling or touchy at the last minute. Tonight: Take the action back to your pad.
