Franco Spain Barred From World League

Mexico And France Lead Attack And Cheering Group Approves Proposal

By J. W. DAVIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19—A United Nations conference commission tonight voted unanimously to bar the Franco government of Spain from future membership in a new world organization.

The commission, after a cheering, laughing session, approved a Mexican proposal to write into the conference records in connection with charter provisions on membership, an interpretation barring governments set up with Axis help.

Mexico and France, one a descendant and the other a next door neighbor of old Spain, led the attack on the Franco government.

Principal Characters

The dramatic scene was the formally-arranged and brilliantly-lighted Opera house. The principal characters were Luis Quintanilla, former Mexican ambassador to Moscow, and Joseph Paul-Boncour, former prime minister of France.

The off-stage target was Generalissimo Franco, whose government they declared had no right to United Nations fellowship because of the help it got from Hitler and Mussolini in coming to power.

Before the meeting was over, the United States said it was "in complete accord" with the Mexican position.

Quintanilla, a tall man in the uniform of diplomacy, quoted from Franco-Hitler and Franco-Mussolini messages to back up his thesis that the three were Fascist bedmates.

Axis Aid Seen As Ban

"Since this is a war to stamp out the last vestiges of the Axis," he argued, "it is not unreasonable to demand that no government imposed on any nation by military forces of the Axis be permitted to participate in the conference or in the society of the United Nations."

Quintanilla told of Franco assuring Hitler once that if some day Berlin might be in danger, "then Spain will send a million men if necessary to defend it."

Laughter broke out and rolled through the hall.

The Mexican diplomat quoted further pledges of mutual thanks and admiration between the Axis leaders and Franco, and then declared dramatically:

"The voice that spoke those words must never be heard in the international organization which you gentlemen are creating here."

There was loud applause. Everyone seemed to be joining in. As he started down the aisle to his seat, Quintanilla was seized in bear hugs by Chilean delegates. Alphonse Als of Luxembourg stepped into the aisle to grasp the Mexican's hand.

Paul-Boncour treated Spain as a country which, like Italy, should be allowed to rid itself of its fascism."

Gotham's Fete Sets New High

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—New York City took General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower to its heart today and outdid itself in showering on him a rousing, emotional welcome.

The greatest crowds the metropolis has ever seen—estimated by Chief Police Inspector John J. O'Connell during the day at more than 7,000,000 but reduced later by Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine to 4,000,000—turned out to pay tribute to the Kansas boy who directed America's mightiest military success.

The overall crowd total included repeaters, who ran from one vantage point to another.

2,000,000 Jam Small Area

The modest hero told more than 2,000,000 persons jammed around City Hall:

"If we are going to live the years of peace, we must be strong and we must be ready to cooperate in the spirit of true tolerance and forbearance."

Eisenhower, who received a special city medal and honorary citizenship in the city, received an ovation when he asserted:

"It isn't enough that we devise every kind of international machinery to keep the peace. We must also be strong ourselves. Weakness cannot cooperate with anything. Only strength can cooperate."

Long Line Of Parade

From LaGuardia field to Central Park, along flag-bedecked Fifth avenue and lower Broadway, at City Hall and at the Polo Grounds, cheering men, women and children expressed their gratitude to the supreme Allied commander.

General "Ike," impeccable in a light summer uniform and smiling his infectious grin, waved and saluted as his triumphant 25-car motorcade passed through the din.

City officials said the reception, which reached its climax at a dinner in the Waldorf Astoria tonight, dwarfed all other welcomes extended by New York to visiting celebrities.

17-Gun Salute

A 17-gun salute was sounded when the general arrived at La Guardia field from Washington at 10:12 a. m. (EWT). Some 35,000 persons roared their greeting as the big silver C-54 plane, "Sunflower," glided onto the runway.

President At Olympia For Short Rest Before World Parley Close

OLYMPIA, Wash., June 19 (AP) This city of 15,000, nestling at the southern tip of Puget Sound, became the temporary capital of the nation tonight when President Harry S. Truman stepped from Gov. Mon C. Wallgren's car at the door of the executive mansion, almost in the shadow of the state capitol building, at 6:30 p. m. (PWT).

He was barely 13 hours out of Washington, D. C., after the first cross-country airplane trip ever made by a President, and less than an hour from McChord field, 20 miles north, where his special C-54 transport plane landed smoothly at 5:40 p. m.

Paid Tribute Enroute

People stood at the roadside in front of their country homes as the procession moved toward Olympia, the men always with heads bared, many rigidly at attention, some saluting. In the capital city a human lane up the main street had been formed long before the arrival, and the President waved his gray hat to the crowd as he passed.

Starting his brief vacation here as guest of the Governor, a short rest before he goes to San Francisco to address the United Nations conference, the President was to dine with his host immediately and then the Wallgrens had planned to attend with him an organ concert in the Capitol building.

He was met at the airport by Governor Wallgren, an old friend who served with him on the Truman investigating committee when both were U. S. senators.

Field Personnel Freed

There was no crowd to greet the President, but shortly before the big, silvery craft touched its wheels to the landing strip the loud speaker at the field announced that all personnel who desired could go to the hangar and view the landing.

Also at that moment retreat sounded, and for a minute the field's personnel, including high ranking officers who had joined Governor and Mrs. Wallgren, stood at attention as the flag came down and the sun touched to dazzling splendor the snowy tip of Mount Rainier just showing above the clouds to the east.

Field Closed All Day

The field had been closed to the public all day and even the press was denied admittance until just before 5 o'clock. Ten minutes later the Governor and Mrs. Wallgren arrived and were met by Maj. Gen. Joseph D. Patch, commanding officer of nearby Fort Lewis; Col. Theodore Bolen, commanding officer of McCloud, and Mrs. Bolen, and Lt. Col. Ellsworth C. French of Spokane, the colonel's adjutant.

As the plane rolled smoothly to the platform upon which stood the Wallgrens, the President waved from a window and then hurried to be the first man from the plane.

End Near On Okinawa As Japs Start 'Cliff Diving' Suicides

Disorganized Remnants Split Up As Yanks Close In For Island Cleanup

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

GUAM, Wednesday, June 20—Japanese troops leaped into the surf from Okinawa cliffs yesterday as two Marine regiments drove through weakening resistance to the southern tip of the island.

The Marines' push split the Japanese remnants into two disorganized but still fanatically resisting pockets and brought from Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz the triumphant announcement: "The enemy's defenses were in the process of collapsing" by nightfall yesterday.

Some Fight Stubbornly

"Numerous enemy personnel were reported to be jumping off cliffs near the coast south of Udo town," Nimitz added in today's communique.

However, the Japanese still were fighting stubbornly on the southeastern coast in the 96th and Seventh Infantry divisions' sectors and several thousands remained to be eliminated before Nimitz could report Okinawa militarily secure.

Despite the confusion and complete disorganization of the Japanese, except for small units, American troops continued to meet moderate to heavy fire from automatic weapons, machineguns and small arms. In one sector, Okinawan civilians joined the battle, hurling hand grenades among advancing Yanks.

Reach Southern Shore

Col. Clarence Wallace's Eighth Marine regimental combat team—a fresh outfit that entered the battle only Monday morning to help battle-weary troops speed complete victory—reached the southern coast 700 yards south of Komesu town. That put the regiment on the southern shore in almost the exact center of the island's tip.

Wallace's combat team fought its way through scattered fire as it crossed the road linking Komesu and Nagusuku on the southwestern coast.

The Fifth regiment of the First Marine division also drove through to the south coast, east of the Eighth combat team, in a fast pressing maneuver that completely split the Japanese remnants into two major pockets.

Small Pockets Hold Out

They encountered some small pockets of Japanese still fighting stubbornly from individual strongpoints.

One of the main concentrations of surviving Nipponese appeared to be in the Hill 81 sector at the southwestern edge of Yaeju escarment. This force was under attack from the west by elements of the Fifth Marine regiment and from the northeast by troops of the 96th Infantry division.

Another Japanese concentration was in the southeastern corner of the island in an area known as the Mabuni-Mura sector in which there is some high ground, affording the enemy defensive positions.

The Fourth Marine regiment, driving south in this sector, was

Yanks Cross Luzon River

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Staff Writer

MANILA, Wednesday, June 20—Under cover of a furious artillery barrage, Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler's 37th division spanned the Cagayan river of northern Luzon in assault boats Sunday and sped northward for a total gain of 13 miles, liberating the town of Naguilian.

The advance, announced by General MacArthur in today's communique, placed the Buckeye division within three miles of Ilagan, city of 30,000 and capital of Isabela province by Monday.

Jap Casualties Heavy

Japanese casualties continued heavy as the Yanks drove up the productive Cagayan valley. They totaled more than 1,600 dead and nearly 500 prisoners in the past week.

Monday's swift advance placed forward units of the 37th division within 113 road miles of Aparri, enemy-held port at the northern top of Luzon, which was strafed again by PT boats of the Seventh fleet.

JAPS SEE INVASION

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19 (AP)—Minesweeping activity—often the last naval move before an invasion—is in progress today before the oil refinery city of Balikpapan, Borneo, while Allied warships continue to shell it, Tokyo radio said tonight (Wednesday Japanese time).

The unconfirmed broadcast followed earlier ones that a fleet including three battleships, an aircraft carrier and 16 destroyers began bombarding Balikpapan, on the east central coast of Borneo, last Friday.

Australian forces on northwestern Borneo meanwhile advanced in all sectors, driving closer to the Seria oil fields.

Infantrymen mopping up in the newly captured area south of the Cagayan river killed nearly 200 Japanese and captured 447, one of the rare instances in which the number of prisoners exceeded the enemy dead. Many of the prisoners were Formosan troops, not usually found holding frontline positions.

Japs Are Thinned Out

The U. S. Sixth division, driving west and north into mountainous terrain above Bagbag in northern Luzon, killed or found already dead 132 Japanese as they advanced on Kiangan. They killed 300 more as they proceeded over the Bambang-Pinkian road.

East of Manila, where only scattered enemy strongpoints remain, Maj. Gen. William C. Chase's 38th division drew the noose around bamboo-forested ridge positions in the upper reaches of the Marikina watershed. In the week ending Sunday, nearly 930 Japanese were killed in this sector and many more sealed in caves.

Chase, who flew over the area in a Cub spotter plane, said he could smell dead Japanese even from an altitude of several hundred feet and concluded many of them were scattered through the dense forests. Cub pilots reported they observed trails clogged with enemy dead at some points.

Others Bag Japs, Too

The First (dismounted) Cavalry and the independent 112th cavalry combat team accounted for 100 more dead and 50 prisoners on Sunday.

Associated Press war correspondent Richard Bergholz reported from Mindanao that patrols of the American Eighth Army had entered outskirts of strongly defended Calinan, near Davao gulf.

Combat patrols of the Australian Ninth division pushed four miles beyond Toutong, on Borneo's western coast, in their drive toward the Seria oil fields.

Other units fanned out in all directions, MacArthur reported, with air and naval support.

Push Along Railroad

Aussies who landed several days ago at Weston, on the eastern shore of Brunei bay, penetrated two miles inland along the Jesselton railroad. They reached the village of Linghungan.

Australian amphibious patrols, searching the tidal rivers, landed without opposition 10 miles southeast of Brunei town in another move designed to mop up quickly the invaded area.

Heavy bombers blasted the east coast oil and ship building centers at Balikpapan and Samarinda with more than 200 tons of explosives. The communique said

Great Fires Rage After B-29 Triple Blow On Jap Industry

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

GUAM, Wednesday, June 20.—Today's B-29 fire raid on Shizuoka—one of three medium-sized Japanese industrial cities hit simultaneously—eliminated it as a future Superfort target, returning crews reported today.

Fukuoka on Kyushu and Toyohashi on Honshu were struck by the same raid involving about 450 Superforts. If equal results were achieved, it was the greatest morning's work of the Marianas-based bombers, crewmen agreed.

Tokyo Reports Great Fires

Radio Toyko meantime reported fires, some burning four hours, were set in all three cities.

The conflagrations raised to 13 the Japanese homeland cities scorched by 25 mass incendiary raids.

Shizuoka, with a population of 212,000 and an area of 3½ square miles, was caught by surprise. Crewmen said they left it "one solid mass of flames." It is 85 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Crewmen reported they saw few searchlights, antiaircraft fire was meager and there was virtually no fighter opposition.

Their worst peril, they said, was from thermal updrafts from the burning city — intense heat which bounced the planes 1,600 to 2,000 feet.

The big Superforts fought rough, soupy weather much of the way to Japan, where clear weather permitted visual bombing and observation of results.

"I don't think we'll have to go back to Shizuoka," said Maj. Charles Tibbs, Battle Mountain,

Another Vast Nazi Treasure Trove Uncovered By Troops

By AUSTIN REALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, June 19. (AP)—American troops have uncovered a vast Nazi treasure hoard valued at $5,000,000,000, including the main national wealth of Austria and Bavaria and loot stolen from death-camp victims and desecrated churches, it was revealed today.

Announcement of the find was made by communications zone headquarters and was based on information from the U. S. Twelfth corps, whose troops discovered the treasure. Most of it was in securities and zone headquarters said it lacked information as to how values were estimated and whether they were face values or actual current market worth.

Far Exceeds Other Hoard

Far greater in estimated value than the cache of 200 tons of gold found April 7 at Merkers, 18 miles southeast of Hersfeld in Thuringia, the new trove was discovered by troops of the same 12th corps that unearthed the gold hoard from a salt mine.

The second treasure trove, including securities, stolen jewelry, church property and gold bullion, was found in the vaults of the Regensburg reichsbank, zone headquarters said.

The cache was uncovered by Lt. John J. Stack, jr., of San Francisco, fiscal officer of the 12th corps local military government detachment, and his assistants.

The major value of the hoard was in its securities. Stack and his men found foreign securities, representing the major wealth of Austria, which were valued at $3,000,000,000. Domestic German securities, comprising the main wealth of Bavaria and estimated at $2,000,000,000, also were discovered.

Vast Amounts Of Jewelry

Headquarters said suitcases and boxes bulging with watches, bracelets and other gold jewelry stolen from political and other prisoners of the Nazis were found in the vaults.

Quick Probe Of Slaying Ordered

Machinery for swift justice for the pair held in the attempted robbery and slaying early Sunday of W. T. Lamb, 49-year-old service station attendant, was set in motion Tuesday when Judge G. V. Pardue ordered a 99th district grand jury back into session at 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

Charged with murder in connection with his death are A. J. Wright, 21, former Lamesan and ex-sailor, of Clyde and Abilene; and Winnie McKeever Garner, 18, of Deming, N. M., who "meant to, but just didn't get around to getting a divorce" from her soldier husband of DeQueen, Ark.

In the meantime, it was learned here that Lamb, whose funeral rites were read Tuesday afternoon at Plains chapel, had figured in another hijacking of a filling station at Childress in the early 30s.

He had been more successful in fighting the robbers there when he employed such force that, despite a bullet fired between his legs, he beat his assailants with a "tire tool." They were captured and one was convicted.

When informed, by signed admission of both those charged here, that "This is a stickup," Lamb Sunday morning reacted in the same manner, with fight.

Disregarded Two Pistols

He grabbed an oil can and hurled it at Miss Garner. He disregarded the two pistols the robbers pointed at him, caught the girl and threw her over his shoulder. Dislodging her gun, he stooped over and picked the weapon off the floor at the moment Wright was cautioning him to "stand back!"

He fired first at Wright, and after Wright's answering shot had

Subs Add 11 More Jap Ships To Toll

WASHINGTON, June 19. (AP)—United States submarines, already officially credited with the destruction of Japan as a maritime power, have sunk 11 more vessels, the Navy announced today.

Two of the craft were small combatant patrol ships. The remainder were three cargo vessels, two tankers, and four merchant ships.

The announcement raised the war's total to 1,153 Japanese ships sunk by United States submersibles, including 138 combantant ships and 1,015 non-cabatants. The toll since January 1 is 219 ships of all types.

Governor Signs Bill On Vet Employment

AUSTIN, June 19. (AP)—A bill designed to give war veterans 40 per cent preference in public employment, but carrying no penalty for violation, was signed by Gov. Coke R. Stevenson today.

The measure, by Rep. Carlton Moore of Houston, provides that state agencies, departments, boards and commissions, all public works, and cities, towns and school districts select 40 per cent of their personnel from honorably discharged veterans of World wars 1 and 2 and other wars in which the nation has participated.

WASHINGTON, June 19. (AP)—The administration won the most hotly-contested point of its reciprocal trade extension legislation today when the Senate approved new tariff-cutting power asked by President Truman.

Nine Republicans joined with 37 Democrats and Senator La Follette (Prog-Wis) to pile up a 47 to 33 margin for giving the President authority to reduce tariffs 50 per cent under the Jan. 1 rates when negotiating trade agreements with other nations.

Voting in opposition were eight Democrats and 25 Republicans. Six pairs were announced, thus putting on record 92 of the Senate's 96 members.

Dispersed Ninth Was Outfit Of Extremes

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE AEF IN OCCUPIED GERMANY,—The dispersal of the Ninth Army as an active unit, at least temporarily, has put an end to a fighting outfit which has lived a strange life of extremes and contradictions in its drive from Normandy to the Elbe.

Kenneth Dixon

The Ninth Army at one time was the smallest fighting Army of this war, as far as anyone knows here, and then a few months later it was the biggest Army the world has ever known.

While it was at its lowest ebb in manpower it received the greatest press coverage any Army ever has been able to boast.

And when its forward units alone numbered nearly half a million men it was covered by one lone reporter—this writer.

It was fortunate that the Germans never knew—or at least were unable to take advantage of that information—when Texas Bill Simpson's Ninth Army consisted of two (count 'em) divisions holding a line which previously had been held by nearly a dozen.

It occurred along the Roer river in December and January when von Rundstedt's breakthrough was running wild down in the Ardennes. That was First Army territory and the First Army needed help badly.

So almost without notice Simpsons divisions were yanked out from under him.

Strangely enough that was the time when the Ninth Army's press camp was crowded with more than 100 reporters and photographers. The reason was that the First Army's press camp had been bombed out and they came like fugitives from a flood.

Almost all the reporters on the front were trying to report the breakthrough. Nevertheless the Ninth Army profited by the publicity since most of them stayed to report its activities or returned later.

Gradually division after division came back to Simpson's command and the Ninth was a powerhouse when it struck across the Roer and Rhine and reached the Elbe to establish a bridgehead.

Then as the war drew to a close it became even larger and the departure of First Army headquarters for home and the Pacific left additional orphaned divisions on the Ninth's doorstep.

When harassed headquarters men counted their chicks they found the Ninth Army consisted of 25 divisions, or nearly half a million combat troops alone. Perhaps that many more supply soldiers were required to maintain it from the rear.

Senate Group Votes Solons' Pay Hikes

WASHINGTON, June 19. (AP)—The Senate Appropriations committee decided today that members of the next Congress and the President's cabinet should have more money.

The committee reported by a 13 to 2 vote a bill increasing:

Senators and representatives from $10,000 to $15,000; the vice president from $15,000 to $20,000; the speaker of the House from $10,000 to $20,000 and the cabinet from $15,000 to $17,500.

The increases would be effective with the 80th Congress, starting January 3, 1947.

Senator Tydings (D-Md), reporting the measure, told reporters that "Army and Navy men think the war will be over within 18 months" and thus it would not be a wartime increase.

By that time also, all the members of the House and one-third of the Senate will have stood for reelection, he pointed out.

The pay of the legislators has not been increased in 20 years. In 1850, they were paid $3,000; after the war between the states, this was increased to $5,000 and in 1907 it went to $7,500. The $10,000 figure was voted in 1925.

West Texas Asks For Larger Oil Allowable; Schedule Due Today

AUSTIN, June 19. (AP)—West Texas bid for a larger allowable production in July today as purchasers notified the railroad commission they would buy 2,363,464 barrels daily of petroleum liquids next month.

The nominations were made at a statewide proration hearing, one of several developments on the oil and gas front, which will form the basis of a July production pattern the commission will announce tomorrow.

The Petroleum Administration for War has certified that Texas should produce 2,170,000 barrels daily of crude oil next month, unchanged from the agency's June certification but an increase of 10,000 barrels for West Texas and a decrease of 10,000 for the Gulf coast.

Two Join In Appeal

Gulf Oil corporation and Sinclair-Prairie Oil company joined in asking that the Keystone-Ellenberger allowable be increased 18,500 barrels daily, or an increase of 100 barrels per well per day. Smaller increases were asked for the Panhandle and for the Ellis Gunsite field in Jack county. Operators in the KMA field, North Texas, asked that production there be reduced to 22 days per month.

The oil hearing closed with the announcement of engineers that bottomhole pressure in the big East Texas pool declined 1.48 pounds per square inch to 998.27 pounds on June 1.

Other Developments

Other developments in the industry:

Gov. Coke R. Stevenson announced that Railroad Commission Chairman Olin Culberson will head a 12-member steering committee to prepare Texas' participation in a Federal Power commission hearing on the question of state vs. federal control of natural gas. Other members of the committee were Maston Nixon of Corpus Christi, vice-chairman; R. C. Kay of Amarillo, D. A. Hulcy of Dallas, A. H. Rowan of Fort Worth, Charles I. Francis of Houston, J. S. Bridwell of Wichita Falls, E. L. Degolyer of Dallas, Rex Baker of Houston, George A. Hill of Houston, B. G. Byars of Tyler and Paul Kayser of El Paso.

The Shamrock Oil and Gas corporation petitioned the commission to increase the sour gas allowance in the Panhandle field on the theory that allowable cannot be produced fully because of inherent operating conditions. More gas is needed to meet increasing demands for carbon black production, company spokesmen said.

Bill Murray, chairman, announced that the gas industry's conservation advisory commission hoped to have from field engineers in July all data necessary to a report which will accurately picture gas production and usage in Texas.

The commission held a special hearing on a proposed amendment of rules to tighten regulations on production from condensate fields.

The proposed amendment requires:

Production must be made through a separator on wells which have been classified as gas well and which produce hydrocarbon liquids part of which are formed by condensation.

Where oil and gas are found in the same stratum and cannot be separately produced or where a well has been classified as a gas well the operator must install a separating device with enough capacity to separate oil or hydrocarbons from gas. The device could not be removed without permission of the commission.

Opposition Is General

Operators generally opposed the amendment, declaring that in some instances it would be needless, impractical and even wasteful.

Sharing this view were representatives of H. A. Harrell, Humble Oil and Refining co., Union Producing company, Chicago corporation, Lone Star Producing company, Lone Star Gas company and Arkansas and Louisiana Gas company.

The Panola County Royalty Owners' association told the commission it did not want separators on each well if plant operators would pay royalty at the tail gate of gas processing plants.

Japs 'Hoot' At Surrender Terms

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19. (AP)—Replying to President Truman's twice-made assertion that the war with Japan could be ended only by the empire's unconditional surrender, a Japanese spokesman tonight broadcast this reply in English to the United States:

"The Japanese-American war can only be terminated through the ghastly landing operation of the American forces on the homeland of Japan, where they will bury mountains and rivers of Japan with their dead bodies and paint the beaches of Japan crimson with their own blood."

"Was" To Have Been Address

The speaker said he was reading a talk Dr. Kosaku Tamura, Japanese authority on international relations, was to have made but that Tamura was a victim of sudden illness. The speech, recorded by the Federal Communications commission, reiterated Japanese predictions of an American landing on Japan and concluded:

"The homeland defense forces are anxiously awaiting an opportunity for action in deadly silent expectation and they are waiting for the enemy's landing operation on the Japanese homeland while they yearn for action.

"A Japanese residents overseas . . . wait for the outcome of the decisive battles on the homeland, which may take place within a few months."

Demand Reiterated

Truman stated both on V-E day and in his June 1 message to Congress that the Allies still demanded unconditional surrender.

Despite all this "graveyard whistling" braggadocia, however, mounting anxiety over the threat of an American invasion of the Japanese mainland was evident in Tokyo disclosures today that civilian defense plans were being rushed and that Nippon's greatest industrial family was funneling most of its resources into aircraft production.

Tokyo broadcasts picked up here by the Federal Communications commission revealed that, even as fires wrought by new B-29 raids blazed in at least four east coast towns, pamphlets and books were being distributed to civilian home defenders.

Attack With Boldness

One booklet dealt with means to combat an air-borne attack "in the event the Japanese mainland is turned into a battlefield." It urged invaders "should be attacked with rough and ready tactics, and with boldness."

Significant was the announcement by the Domei news agency that the vast Mitsui industrial concern, greatest of the zaibatsu, or family business houses, would soon take complete charge of the Showa aircraft works, diverting "personnel, equipment and materials" from three of its other concerns to the aircraft company. These were the Mitsui shipbuilding, precision machinery and lumber plants.

The Mitsui move was seen as another effort by private interests to head off a trend toward governmental control of Nipponese industry.

House Approves Bill On Drilling Expenses

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—The House gave its approval today to a long-standing treasury regulation allowing oil and gas interests to exempt drilling expenses from income taxes.

Offered by Rep. Doughton (D-NC), the resolution passed by voice vote without debate and was sent to the Senate.

If approved by the Senate and President Truman, it has the effect of reversing a racent decision of the Fifth circuit court at New Orleans, which held that no legal authority exists for exemption of drilling expenses from taxation.

Following the court decision, treasury officials announced the regulation, in effect more than 20 years, would be followed until action was taken by congress.

Oil and gas interests contend abolition of the treasury regulation would virtually halt "wildcatting" and drilling exploration.

DALLAS, June 19 (AP)—Texas E bond buyers moved less than one per cent closer to their assigned Seventh War Loan goal yesterday, leaving nearly $58,000,000 yet to go, the War Finance committee of Texas said today.

Total E bond sales now stand at $110,336,945, or 65.7 per cent of the quota, Judson James, jr., WFC executive manager said.

"Only 24 counties in the state have reached their E bond quota," the executive said.

Smile Of 'The Boss' Recalls Vast Problems Met In Defeating Nazis

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is by a United Press war correspondent who accompanied the first American troops to Europe and watched Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's genius unfold from the first fighting in Africa to the end of the war).

By C. R. CUNNINGHAM
United Press War Writer

NEW YORK, June 19. — That smile today of "The Boss'" was that of the only military leader in the world who has achieved what no other fighting man has been able to do—the perfect coordination of ground, sea and air forces of three nations.

"The Boss" is five-star General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, who left New York three years ago wearing a major general's two stars and only a faint hope of becoming the world's greatest coordinator and conqueror of western Europe.

Men Call Him "The Boss"

Those closest to him call him "The Boss;" others call him "General Ike" or "Ike." His staff members call him "The Boss"—some even to his face. Others, like Winston Churchill and General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery call him "Ike."

The smile has not always been there. There were plenty of dark moments from the summer of 1942 until V-E day in Germany. While Allied leaders were making plans in the summer of 1942 for an invasion of the continent, "The Boss" got orders in Washington one night to go aboard and assume command of the first combined British-American force to operate against Germany and Italy.

The "G-3" (plans and operations) of the American Second corps was in England planning for a 1943 D-day when suddenly the Allied plan was changed and "The Boss" went over to take charge. The plan then called for a landing on the French coast south of the Seine. Russia was demanding a "second front."

Neither Nation Ready

The high command called off the second front because neither Britain nor the United States was prepared for such a huge undertaking. The plan was switched to hitting Germany and Italy through the "back door," and at the same time pinch off the best Army Adolph Hitler had at bat—the Afrika korps. Field Marshal Montgomery was poised for a punch at the korps from El Alemein. A combined force of British and American troops was to strike from the west—through French North Africa and Tunisia.

That's when "The Boss" didn't wear that Kansas smile. Four days before the invasion of North Africa—Nov. 8, 1943 — Ike literally was "sweating out" the greatest combined force (up to that time) of all history—more than 500 warships and troopships carrying British and American troops to the landing beaches. It was then he first showed his ability as a coordinator. When the first communique was being prepared this correspondent asked the general whether correspondents should dateline their stories "General Eisenhower's Headquarters."

It's Not His Show

"Hell no," the general stormed. "It's not my show—it's a show by the troops of Britain and the United States."

That is when the term "Allied Force Headquarters" came into being.

During the first two days of the African invasion there was no smile on Ike's face. The landing at Algiers had gone well. So had the one at Oran. But no word had come from the landing in French Morocco.

Then came the word that Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., had "secured" French Morocco. And Ike flashed his famous victory smile for the first time.

"I knew Georgie would do it," he shouted.

Then Came Kasserine Pass

The smile did not appear until six months later. During the intervening months came Kasserine Pass—America's first defeat on the east side of the Atlantic.

The 39-day campaign in Sicily produced another smile, and the successful landing at Salerno, where things were touch and go for several days (there had been plans for a withdrawal) brought another.

Then Ike took his best commanders, his best corps and best divisions back to England to prepare them for D-day. Its success brought another smile.

But today's smile was like adding another star to the cluster of five on his shoulders. It was his conqueror's smile.

Cpl. Elvin W. Hargis Awarded Bronze Star

WITH THE 33RD DIVISION ON LUZON: Cpl. Elvin W. Hargis of Crosbyton, Tex., has been awarded the Bronze Star Medal for heroism in action against the Japs near San Luis, La Union Province, on Luzon. The award was made by Maj. Gen. P. W. Clarkson, commanding general of the 33rd division.

Cpl. Hargis, who is with the Medical detachment of the 123rd Infantry regiment, was an aid man attached to a patrol which was making a reconnaissance far behind enemy lines. The patrol encountered an enemy strong point and came under direct machine gun fire. Four of the men of the patrol were wounded.

Without regard for his own safety, Cpl. Hargis crawled out under heavy fire to administer first aid to the wounded men and tend to them until they could be brought back to a place of safety.

Cpl. Hargis' citation said, "His calmness and courage were a source of inspiration to all the members of the patrol."

His wife, Lucille, lives at the home address.

Gallup Poll Uncovers Strange Divergence Of Opinion

U. S. Public Feels Harder Toward People Of Japan Than Toward German Civilians

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J.—A fact of considerable significance in our present and future dealings with Germany and Japan is revealed in a cross-section study of public opinion just completed by the Institute.

This shows that the American people have fundamentally different points of view concerning the two enemy countries. The public is disposed, on the one hand, to place the blame for Germany's crimes less heavily on the German people than on the German leaders, and to feel that the German people did not fully approve of the killings and torture perpetuated by the Nazis. In the case of Japan, however, the great majority of Americans think the Japanese people themselves fully approve of crimes and atrocities carried out by their leaders against the people of other countries.

GALLUP

In short, most Americans apparently think of the Japanese people as a barbaric lot, beyond the pale of civilized behavior, but consider the German people less so—an attitude which is bound to affect our ideas on the post-war treatment of the two enemy countries.

In conducting its survey, the Institute asked two questions as follows:

"To what extent do you think the German people have approved of the killing and starving of prisoners in Germany — entirely, partly or not at all?"

Entirely	31%
Partly	51
Not at all	4
German people didn't know	8
No opinion	6

It will be noted that only about one-third (31 per cent)think the German people fully approved of the sadistic conduct of the Nazis. Compare this with the attitude toward Japan, as follows:

"To what extent do you think the Japanese people approve of the killing and starving of prisoners — entirely, partly, or not at all?"

Entirely	63%
Partly	25
Not at all	2
Japanese people don't know	4
No opinion	6

Basic attitudes on the Germans and Japanese were brought out in another way in today's poll through the asking of a third question, "Which people do you think are more cruel at heart—the Germans or the Japanese?" Those giving an opinion as between the two named the Japanese by almost 5-to-1.

A Warning For Future

Attitudes toward the German and Japanese people do not vary to any important extent by education levels in this country. Today's poll finds that the typical college-trained person feels about the same way as the person who has had only a high school education, or a grade school education, the majority in all groups thinking that the Japanese people show instincts considerably less civilized than the German people.

Today's survey results contain a warning for Allied statesmen. The current American sentiment that the German people are not entirely to blame and did not fully approve of the cruel acts of their masters, is obviously an advantage to German statesmen and politicians of the future, whose point of view will be that the German people are really not like the Japanese, did not approve the actions of Hitler, and should merit sympathy rather than punishment.

Mexico Group Seeks Sugar Coordination

MEXICO CITY, June 19 (AP) — President Avila Camacho will be urged to appoint a commission to coordinate Mexico's sugar industry, Felipe Gutierrez, a director of the General Confederation of Labor has announced. He said this was decided at a convention of the confederation just held in Guadalajara.

He declared that in Mexico's sugar industry "cane growers plant as they please and the sugar mills manufacture alcohol or sugar in whatever proportions they choose, without any central organization to guide them according to the needs of the country."

Vichy Minister Is Condemned To Death

PARIS, June 19 (AP)—Marcel Deat, minister of labor and internal solidarity under the Vichy government, was condemned to death in absentia by the French court of justice today. A jury took just 12 minutes to reach its verdict.

The French traitor was accused of having been responsible for the deportation of more than 1,000,800 slave laborers from France to Germany. He fled to Germany after the liberation of France last August and has not been seen since Germany's defeat.

Puebla Opposition To Texans Halted

PUEBLA, Mexico, June 19 (AP) —Students at the University of Puebla, who went on strike over week ago, have agreed to cease all opposition to Texas students here for summer classes.

However, the 2,000 Mexican students voted yesterday to continue their strike against university authorities.

The Texans are members of a group sponsored by the Sam Houston State Teachers college, Huntsville, Tex.

The local collegians had agreed Sunday to return to classes but voted at assembly yesterday to continue the strike. Their most important demand is for revision of the organic law of the university to equalize the student vote with that of the professors, the rector to have a deciding vote in case of a tie.

Soup Bones To Be Sent To Congressmen

PHOENIX, Ariz., June 19 (AP)—They sing a song of one meat ball. But Arizona's congressional delegation is going to hear a lot about used soup bones.

Phoenix Restaurant and Hotel Owners association, in protest of a reduction of 20 per cent in meat point allotments, voted last night to send Arizona's senators and congressmen used soup bones to call attention to the restaurateurs' plight.

Gene Doyle, operator of restaurants in Phoenix and Tuscon, who suggested the idea, said: 'Bones can't be thrown in wastebaskets as easily as telegrams."

Corporations Invest Heavily In War Bonds

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—Corporations, eager to invest their idle funds in U. S. securities, already have put more than three billion dollars in the 7th War Loan drive.

Bonds were not issued to corporations in the drive until yesterday. Ted Gamble, National War Finance director, said the size of the early figure "indicates that corporation sales will equal the good record shown to date in sales to individuals."

Here is the money standing in the drive which ends June 30:

Total sales, $8,903,000,000, which is 63.6 per cent of the $14,000,000,000 quota. This figure is divided as follows:

To corporations, $3,049,000,000, which is 43.5 per cent of the $7,000,000,000 quota.

To individuals, $5,854,000,000, of which series E bond sales make up $2,638,000,000. The individual sales are 83.6 per cent of the $7,000,000,000 quota for individuals. E bond sales are 66 per cent of the $4,000,000,000 E bond quota.

PATTON AND PROFANITY

GUN-TOTING, dynamic Gen. George S. Patton, jr., was target for a blast from the pulpit of Dr. Don Householder, co-pastor of Trinity Methodist church in Los Angeles, who, Sunday, declared the colorful fighter turned what would have been a glorious celebration into a tragic experience in the profanation of the name of God, repeated over and over again.

We listened to the radio account of the gigantic demonstration in Memorial Coliseum held June 9 in honor of General Jimmy Doolittle and General Patton and were especially interested in Patton's talk, since he happens to be one of our heroes. Try as hard as we may, we can recall nothing blasphemous in his remarks, although they were peppered with several "hells" and "damns," which we suppose the Federal Communications commission had rather would have been omitted. Since the radio program closed before General Patton had concluded his address, the villification Dr. Householder describes may have come later.

* * *

While not condoning the Third Army general for his profanation of the name of God, we think the Methodist minister goes too far in saying that it was the greatest disgrace the country has known.

* * *

THOSE in the know say that profanity is one of the by-products of combat. An occasional curse word relieves the tension and young men who never expressed themselves in violence during training days sometimes startled their comrades with their outbursts in action under fire. And so with Patton, who is a soldier's general and a fighter to the last. Just before he arose to speak, a mock battle was staged and he said it brought back visions of European battles.

* * *

Fiery, hot-tempered Patton was so moved by the ovation given in his honor at Boston he wept and even as he was praising the men who had followed him to victory in Europe, he was telling of plans to visit the Episcopal Church of Our Saviour at San Gabriel, Calif., where he was baptized and confirmed. "God has been good to me," he said, "and I want to go there and give thanks to Him."

We believe there is a deep understanding between Patton and his Counsellor and that he will be forgiven for his outbursts. The news services carried pictures of Patton leading the little children in that San Gabriel church in singing "Onward Christian Soldiers." Last Thanksgiving he composed a prayer-poem so beautiful it was put to music. In our book he is listed as a Christian soldier.

IKE'S NICKNAME

A story about Mrs. Ida Eisenhower, wife of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, general of the armies, reveals she does not like nicknames and reversed her youngest son's baptismal record from "David Dwight" to "Dwight David," because she didn't want his name shortened to "Dave." And then as fate would have it, Mrs. Eisenhower had to listen to his brothers and friends call him Ike.

Well, Mrs. Eisenhower of Abilene, Kas., has lived long enough to know Americans are going to nickname everything and everybody, sometimes in derision, often through devotion. And so it would be with her son, Gen. Eisenhower, who seems to like the nickname as much as anyone. If that pleasant, smiling warrior had not been nicknamed "Ike" in childhood it would be another name, perhaps not so fitting and so American.

Moreover, we are sure headline writers have found it helpful since the whole name is quite a bit of name to get into a column.

ESSAY ON FAITH

SOMEONE sent a bulletin from a New Guinea base section chapel and we especially liked a little essay on faith it contained. Since this has turned out to be a column on soldiers, we'll include it:

"Faith can light the stars on the blackest night. Faith can reduce the hardest and the highest mountain to marble ways beneath our feet. Faith can cause us to come off more than conquerors.

"Faith can turn scars into badges of honor, hurdles into helps, mud into marbled halls, rough and rutted roads into highways of gold leading to God."

Boy Over-Fished; Tells Fish Story

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 19 (U.P.)—One fish story is as good as another even if the fish don't bite, in the opinion of Claud McComas, jr.

The 16-year-old Kansas City boy went fishing yesterday during his lunch hour. Since the fish were so uncooperative Claud lost track of the time.

Fearing he would lose his job the youth said he had been kidnaped and robbed of $1.

Prime McDonough and George Geckwith, two old-time Kansas City detectives, soon unraveled the fish story.

"And I didn't even get a bite!" Claud sighed.

Maedgen underwent a minor, preliminary operation at the hospital about 10 days ago. Prior to going to Dallas he was operated on in a local hospital. He has been away from his office approximately six weeks, friends said. Maedgen lives at 1811 Broadway.

L. T. Anderson, 33-year-old negro, didn't appreciate a remark by Hubert Brown, another negro, which brought giggles from others at a "big feed" Sunday morning in the Acuff community. Anderson had warned Brown to "stay out o' my way." Brown cracked, "I'm just like a potato—all eyes, and I'll stay out of your way." Anderson yanked out a .38 pistol and shot Brown in the arm, Anderson posted bond of $500 Monday after he had been charged in the court of C. E. Lynn, justice of peace, with assault with intent to murder. Deputy Sheriff Earl Horton signed the complaint.

Truman Asks That Speaker Of The House Be First In Succession Line

WASHINGTON, June 19. (AP)—President Truman today waived the power to name his successor in the event of his death or disability and asked Congress to place the speaker of the House first in the succession line.

The president's message, delivered after his departure on the first of a series of long aerial trips, evoked comments of approval from Republicans and Democrats in both chambers.

Bridges Preparing Bill

Senator Bridges (R-NH) said he was preparing a bill following substantially the president's suggestions and would introduce it soon.

Republicans and Democrats alike applauded when the president's message was read in the House, Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex), who would be the successor-designate under the proposal, referred the message to the judiciary committee.

Mr. Truman, who left this morning by airplane for Olympia, Wash., and the San Francisco United Nations conference, said in his message said that the question of succession is of great importance now because there will be no elected vice president for nearly four years.

The present line of succession, established by an 1886 law, is through the presidentially appointed cabinet, beginning with the secretary of state, a post now held by Edward R. Stettinius jr.

"It now lies within my power," Mr. Truman said, "to nominate the person who would be my immediate successor in the event of my own death or inability to act.

Stems From People

"The speaker of the House of Representatives, who is elected in his own district, is also elected to be the presiding officer of the House by a vote of all representatives of all the people of the country. As a result, I believe that the speaker is the official in the federal government, whose selection next to that of the president and vice president, can be most accurately said to stem for the people themselves."

The president recommended that if there were no qualified speaker, the succession pass to the president pro tempore of the Senate. If neither officer was qualified, Mr. Truman suggested that the succession pass to the cabinet as at present, until a qualified speaker was elected.

Explaining why he placed the speaker of the House ahead of the Senate's president pro tempore—now Kenneth D. McKellar, Tennessee Democrat — Mr. Truman said senators are "not as closely tied in by the elective process to the people as are the members of the House of Representatives.

Strawberry Grower Ceilings Extended

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—The OPA today extended through July 20 the present grower ceiling price for strawberries.

The ceilings, which apply to North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and all states to the east are: 18½ cents a pint, 36 cents a quart and 24 cents a pound.

FLIER DECLARED DEAD—Word has been received by Mrs. H. M. Phillips of 1918 Ave. N that her only son, Luther W. Tate, who has been missing in action for over a year has been officially declared dead. Lt. Tate, B-24 Liberator bombardier with the 14th Air force, had been in China only a short time when he was reported missing in action on a sea-sweep mission May 26, 1944. On June 20, the wreckage of the plane was found where it had crashed into a mountain about 100 miles from the base. Due to the nature of the accident, it was not possible to salvage anything from the wreckage or to identity any of the bodies in and around the plane. The War department is of the opinion that none of the crew could have survived the crash. Lt. Tate attended Lubbock High school and was graduated in 1938. He received his basic training at Santa Ana, Calif., and won his wings at the Victorville bombardier school. He worked in Lubbock at the Coca Cola Bottling company. Survivors are his mother, his father, M. B. Tate of Slaton and a sister, Mrs. Alton Young of San Bernadino, Calif.

Man Convicted, Given Five Years Suspended

A five-year suspended sentence was assessed Tuesday afternoon in the 99th district trial of Hubert Brown, charged with embezzlement of a case of cigarets valued at more than $50, in a jury verdict.

He had entered a plea of guilty and asked for suspension of sentence.

Roswell, N. M., authorities had asked for a Hubert Allen, alias Hubert Brown, "which is all the same to us," saying they held a warrant for burglary of a private residence at night. District Attorney Burton S. Burks said he would file a fugitive warrant against the suspect, in case extradition were contested. He quoted Roswell officialcs as saying they "want to go there and get him."

A jury Monday afternoon returned a 5-year suspended sentence verdict in the case of William Thomas, charged with forgery by false endorsement.

Jewel Loyd, a negro accused of a Slaton burglary, pleaded guilty before Judge G. V. Pardue and was given suspension of a five-year sentence.

Ethel Lee Munson Garrett, a negro woman charged with theft over $50, was given suspension of a three-year sentence by the court.

Ship Brought Back Despite Lethal Load

WASHINGTON, June 19. (AP)—A sleepless, wary crew brought the Destroyer Lamson home a third of the way around the world with her live torpedoes jammed in their tubes and likely to explode at any moment.

The Navy, telling of the odyssey today, said that a freak movement of the ship might have blasted the crew to bits.

A Japanese suicide plane crashed amidships on the Lamson last Dec. 7 at Ormoc bay during the invasion of the Philippines. The impact bent the torpedo tubes, hopelessly jamming enough torpedoes to sink a battleship. The ship's bridge and superstructure also were badly damaged.

Eisenhower Sees Giants Go Down Again Before Braves

NEW YORK, June 19. (AP)—With General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower attending until the top of the eighth, 24,600 fans saw the Boston Braves whip the New York Giants 9 to 2 today with homers by Johnny Rucker and George Hausmann spoiling Jim Tobin's shutout. Dick Culler also homered for the Braves.

The crowd, including thousands of service men, paid tribute to the general, who was forced to vacate his box in the third inning because of an incessant rain.

IKE ONCE A PRO

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower disclosed today that he once had been a professional baseball player as a crowd of about 25,000 welcomed him at the Eisenhower day game between the New York Giants and Boston Braves at the Polo Grounds.

Before the game Manager Mel Ott of the Giants and Bob Coleman of the Braves visited Eisenhower's box and presented him a baseball bat autographed by all members of the Giants and two baseballs signed by players of both teams.

The general then remarked that he once had played professional baseball in the Kansas State League under the name of Wilson.

Asked what position he played, Eisenhower replied:

"That's one of the secrets of my life."

Eisenhower watched the game, from the third inning until the eighth, from President Horace Stoneham's office. He was not around at the finish, which marked the Giants' fourth straight defeat and their 18th in the last 23 games.

The Braves gave General "Ike" their own personal welcome, a 13-hit salute, including a pair of home run salvos by Dick Culler and pitcher Jim Tobin.

Joe Medwick, traded last Friday to the Braves for catcher Clyde Kluttz, made three singles against his former mates and scored once.

Tobin softballed the Giants with eight hits, home runs by Rucker and Hausmann accounting for both New York runs. The victory was Tobin's sixth, his third straight, against seven defeats.

Tommy Holmes, league leading batter, stretched his consecutive hitting streak to 16 games with a single off reliever Bill Voiselle in the ninth. The victory put the Braves over the .500 mark, making six teams in the National League above that figure.

REDS WIN IN 13TH

CINCINNATI, June 19 (AP)—A thirteenth inning single by catcher Al Unser scored Al Libke to give the Cincinnati Reds a 1-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals tonight after Red Barrett and Joe Bowman battled on the pitchers' mound throughout the evening.

Until then, Barrett, who came to St. Louis from Boston in the Morton Cooper deal, had the edge, retiring 26 Redlegs in order from the first to ninth inning.

SPORTS WRITER DIES

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP) — James Sidney (Sid) Mercer, 65, veteran sports writer for the Hearst newspapers, died at his home early today after a long illness.

A native of Paxton, Ill., he formerly was president of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, which he helped organize.

Tigers Nose By Cleveland, 4-3

DETROIT, June 19. (AP)—Detroit Tigers moved two games out front in the American League by defeating the Cleveland Indians, 4 to 3, in a twilight game tonight before 20,351 fans. Frank (Stubby) Overmire, third Detroit pitcher, took over in the ninth to save the decision for starter Zeb Eaton.

Eaton, leading 4-1, after five innings while giving one hit but seven walks, was touched for two runs in the sixth when Jeff Heath singled, Lou Boudreau doubled and Jim McDonnell singled both home.

Les Mueller relieved at that point, pitching shutout ball until he walked pinch-hitter Fred Williams leading off in the ninth. That brought in Overmire. Dutch Meyer singled to left and Ed Wheeler, running for Williams, stopped at second. Mickey Rocco forced Wheeler at third but both runners advanced a moment later on Overmire's wild pitch. Paul O'Dea lined to Doc Cramer in center and Meyer was doubled trying to score after the catch.

The Tigers bunched three hits for one run in the second and three more blows, including Rudy York's two-run triple, for three runs in the third in pinning the defeat on Steve Gromek, who allowed nine hits.

Hank Greenberg, expected to report to the Tigers today after his Army discharge, failed to arrive but may join the club tomorrow.

Golfers Launch New Association

The West Texas Pro-Amateur Golf association was organized at the Lubbock Country club Tuesday night at a meeting of golfing leaders from throughout the West Texas area.

Shorty Hornbuckle, Odessa Country club pro, was elected president of the new organization. Franklin Baker of Pampa was named secretary-treasurer.

Pro-Amateur meets will be held over the West Texas area once a month, with the next one scheduled for Amarillo July 17. The meet will move to Borger in August, Abilene in September and Odessa in October.

The grand finale of each season will be climaxed with the West Texas Open, a war casualty that will be revived by the new organization.

There were 56 entries at the meeting here Tuesday with golfers on hand from Odessa, Amarillo, Slaton, Abilene, Borger, Pampa and Big Spring.

In the pro-amateur events held during the day, Charles Akey's team won top honors with a 6 and 2 record. Teams captained by Chick Trout and Raymond Marshall tied for second honors with 6 and 3 records.

Teamed with Akey on the winning team were Jack Allen of Amarillo, H. M. Chick and W. E. McAllister, both of Lubbock. Sterling Forsythe of Lubbock, Troy Suttle of Odessa and A. C. Jackson of Lubbock teamed with Trout, while C. F. Anderson of Slaton, Cpl. B. W. Gerdes of Amarillo and Otis Felty of Lubbock played with Marshall.

The best individual score of the meet was turned in by Morley Jennings of Lubbock, who blistered the runways with a three under par 68 for the round.

Schultz Due Credit For Rise Of Dodgers

NEW YORK, June 19 (U.P.)—If any individual is to be credited with the rise of the Brooklyn Dodgers to the giddy heights of first place in the National League, long Howie Schultz, the guy who was too tall to get into the Army, is the man.

Highpockets Howie, who placed a college education ahead of a career with the Dodgers, was late in reporting because he wanted to get his degree from Hamline university at St. Paul where he created quite a stir as an amateur basketball player last winter.

The six-foot, seven-inch youngster, now in his third season with the Dodgers despite the fact he is only 22 years old, moved into Brooklyn a little more than two weeks ago, and since that time the Dodgers have moved from fourth place to the league lead. While he has not been tangibly responsible, his presence in the lineup was considered significant as the Dodgers knocked off 10 victories in 12 starts since he rejoined them.

ABC Defeats Rotary In Error Packed Game

The American Business club's junior ball nine bunched four hits, four errors, and three passed balls in the fifth and sixth innings to defeat the Rotary club 11-6 Tuesday night at the Boy's club.

Beginning very loosely, the game continued to be error-infested through the last inning. The ABC's began scoring in the first half of the first inning when seven errors, two walks, and a wild pitch gave them four tallies. Rotary's team followed with three runs off of three straight walks, an error, and a passed ball.

Guy Is Hurt

To begin the Rotary's half of the third, leftfielder Jimmy Wells reached first base on an error with one out. Danny Strickland, playing deep, pulled a line drive out of the air with one hand, and threw a "strike" to first base to cut off Wells. Dorrance Guy, about two feet towards second, caught the ball in the base line and tagged at Wells in mid air.

In the collision, Wells stepped on Guy's knee, pulling a cartilledge out of place. It is doubtful whether or not Guy will be able to play again this season.

Wells, safe when Guy dropped the ball, went around the bases to score on three passed balls.

The ABC tally in the third, and Rotary's in the third and fourth tied the score at five all.

Kent Starts Rally

Ronnie Kent began an ABC three-run rally with a triple in the fifth frame. York poled out a Texas leaguer scoring Kent, and advanced to third when Clark singled and went to second on a fielder's choice. Peters was hit by McCabe, filling the bases. Scott hit to Maner, York scored, Clark was hit when Maner played for him at third, and then scored.

Wylie doubled for the Business club to begin the sixth. He took third on a passed ball, and crossed the plate when Maner overthrew first base after fielding Adkinson's grounder. Adkinson advanced to third when Maner dropped Kent's grounder, allowing Kent to go to second. Adkinson and Kent then scored on two passed balls, finishing the runs for the ABC.

Lester York pitched the win for the ABC; Wylie caught. McCabe took the loss for the Rotary with Cotman working behind the bat.

Favorites Win In Golf Tourney

INDIANAPOLIS, June 19. (AP)—All of the favorites, paced by Defending Champion Babe Didrikson Zaharias, of Los Angeles, successfully slammed through the opening round of match play today in the 16th annual Women's Western Open golf tournament over the Highland Country club course.

Mrs. Zaharias, humming nonchalantly to herself, banged an easy 6 and 5 victory over Mrs. Elizabeth Dunn, of Indianapolis, and—playing through 18 holes—matched women's par with a 37-38—75.

However, the most decisive victory in the 16-match inaugural round went to 115-pound Carol (Babe) Freese, of Portland, Ore., who trounced Ann Lewis, of Bloomington, Ill., 7 and 5, and made the nine-hole turn with the day's best, a one-under-par 36.

Nearest to an upset came in the nip-and-tuck scrap between poker-faced Louise Suggs, of Atlanta, Ga., who yesterday fired a qualifying 75 to deadlock Mrs. Zaharias for medal honors, and veteran Marjorie Row, of Anniston, Ala. Miss Suggs overcame a two-hole deficit at the 11th to triumph 2 and 1.

Co-Medalist Suggs will figure tomorrow in the top second-round match as she collides with comely Dorothy Germain, of Philadelphia, 1944 runner-up and Western Amateur champion the past two years.

The two professional entries, Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Texas, and Betty Hicks, of Chicago, scored identical triumphs. Miss Jameson, winner of both the Western Open and Amateur, topped Marjorie Lindsay of Decatur, Ill., 5 and 4, and Miss Hicks, duration National Women's champion, polished off Mrs. Lawrence Selz, of Highland Park, Ill., 1932 open champion, by the same score.

STATE COLLEGE, Tenn., June 19 (AP)—Phil Dickins, former University of Tennessee backfield star, will become assistant to Coach Allyn McKeen of the Mississippi State college Maroons in September.

Dickins carried the ball for Vol elevens from 1934 through 1936, winning All-Conference honors his second year.

Jeep Romps To Win in Peter Pan Test

NEW YORK, June 19 (AP)—Col. C. V. Whitney's Jeep, making his first start since failing to run to expectations in the Kentucky Derby, tuned up for Saturday's $50,000 Belmont stakes today by easily defeating seven other three-year-olds in the Peter Pan handicap at Belmont park.

As usual, the son of Mahmoud came from off the pace to chalk up his third victory in four starts this year. With Eddie Arcaro in the saddle, Jeep caught the front running Sun Herod from Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade stable in the stretch and pulled away to win by three lengths. Lt. James M. Roebling's Wildlife trailed by another length in third place.

Carrying top weight of 122 pounds, the Whitney colt was clocked in 1:51 1-5 for the mile and one-eighth. The time was three seconds off the track record, but Jeep's performance stamped him as the horse to beat when the distance stretches out to a mile and one-half in the Belmont stakes.

Chandler Takes Over In Baseball Office

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—Senator A. B. ("Happy") Chandler said today that he has "formally taken over" the office of baseball commissioner.

"I have completed the process of taking charge," he told a reporter. "There will be no formal swearing in, and only a few routine matters remain to be worked out."

Matters are now being referred to Chandler and his Chicago office by the presidents of the two major leagues, although he has not yet been called upon to make any official decisions.

Chandler soon will establish the commissioner's headquarters in Cincinnati.

SAFEGUARDING THE EYES OF TEXAS

There is no magic in a pair of glasses

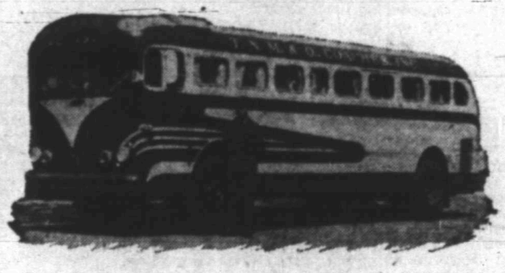

Many people have the mistaken idea that faulty vision may be corrected simply by "buying a pair of glasses" and putting them on. That's the same as believing that there is some magical quality in glasses alone. The truth is that the correction of faulty vision is a task requiring the professional services and technical skill of a properly qualified person. Glasses are important, of course, but without professional services, they cannot improve your eye comfort and visual efficiency. If your eyes need help, don't take risks. Seek professional advice, not glasses at a price.

Slashing Maneuver

The double smash to the coast by the Eighth and Fifth Marine regiments was a fast, slashing maneuver designed to prevent Japanese remnants from collecting into any organized force for a finish stand.

The Marine corridor to the south coast forecasts a quick end for remaining broken Japanese forces, although Associated Press correspondent Al Dopking reported from the front that the mopping up process against isolated machinegun ambushes and sniper posts was a difficult job.

Many Americans, including some high officers, were being killed.

Generally, the 96th and Seventh Infantry divisions on the eastern side of the island were meeting stiffer small pockets of resistance.

Both Army divisions have been in the front lines a long time and were not able to press forward with as much vigor as the fresh Eighth Marine combat team.

One Stubborn Pocket

Maj. Gen. James L. Bradley's 96th division met stubborn resistance from small groups of Japanese in the escarpment area near Aragachi, nearly three miles directly north of the southern coast.

On the southeastern coast, Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold's Seventh division was meeting similar resistance.

Some Japanese units were confused. Forced into flight, they were shelled by warships from offshore, alert for such targets.

LCI's (landing craft gunboats) were standing in close to the shore and sending murderous rocket fire into the fleeing Japanese bands, some of whom were driven into hopeless leaps over the cliffs into the sea, or onto rocks on the beach.

The collapsing Japanese garrisons' resistance was growing steadily weaker and isolated bands broke into open flight.

Tactics Often Used

Japanese suicidal leaps have characterized the collapse of Japanese defenses on other central Pacific islands.

Heavy naval fire from battleships, cruisers, destroyers and small craft supported the ground action. The warships were firing at Japanese fleeing in some open spaces on southern Okinawa and into cliffside caves on the southern shore in which they might seek refuge.

The Japanese made a smaller aerial attack in the Okinawa area Monday, but did no damage, Nimitz said.

The bloody job of wiping out surviving fanatics of the beaten Nipponese garrison fell to Marine Lt. Gen. Roy S. Geiger Monday after Army Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, jr., was killed on the southern front by a fragment of a Japanese shell. Geiger gave the Japanese no chance to reorganize, but continued the final victory-assault Buckner had launched Monday with the Marine 8th regimental combat team, entirely fresh troops, spearheading the drive.

Gotham's Welcome

tuous reception accorded him yesterday in Washington, Eisenhower waited in the plane's doorway until steps were rolled up. Then, he stepped down briskly, head bent forward, and smilingly said:

"Well, it looks like we beat the weather in."

A service band played four flourishes and then broke into "The General's March."

Inspect Honor Guard

After an inspection of an honor guard of 200 men, Eisenhower and Mayor La Guardia started toward the official car which was to take him on the 35-mile victory tour. When photographers crowded about them, Eisenhower remarked, "It looks like the toughest charge I'll ever have to make."

The crowds swelled and the cheering increased as the procession entered Central Park. There, 40,000 children and 10,000 adults waved and shouted at Eisenhower who was riding in the fourth car with the mayor.

The first paper wafted down from buildings when the caravan began its journey down Fifth avenue — whose department stores and shops had closed to honor the nation's hero.

Colors Line Route

Flags and red, white and blue bunting lined the route. Large banners read: "Welcome Ike" and "Welcome—Well Done."

Lower Broaway went wild when Eisenhower's car came into sight. Ticker tape swirled down like snow in the financial district. Surging crowds broke through police lines.

A tremendous cheer went up when Eisenhower reached City Hall park. He alighted from his car and walked up a welcoming carpet last used when King George VI visited New York.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who came here by train from Washington, joined her husband at the City Hall celebration. Later, she was guest of honor at an official luncheon in the Waldorf Astoria.

Cowboy Henry Gets Another Reprieve

SAN ANTONIO, June 19 (AP)—Claude (Cowboy) Henry, husband of the cigar-smoking Toni Jo Henry, and the convicted slayer of a San Antonio police officer in 1933, has again been granted a reprieve by Gov. Coke R. Stevenson.

The reprieve, of six months duration, was granted on April 18, on the recommendations of the state board of pardons and paroles, it was learned here Monday.

Henry, whole wife was executed in Lake Charles, La., in 1942 for the murder of a salesman, was granted a three-month reprieve May 31, 1944, and came to San Antonio shortly afterward.

This initial reprieve was revoked by Gov. Stevenson on July 14, following an alleged disclosure that $2,000 had been deposited in a Huntsville bank in the interest of obtaining his parole.

Marines And G.I.'s Deserve More Credit For Our Victories, Lt. Cocanougher Says

The Marines and what few G.I.'s there are fighting in the Pacific war deserve much credit for our victories over the Japs, Lt. (j.g.) Ralph Cocanougher, 25, just back from his second hitch against the Japs with the Naval Air forces, declared Tuesday.

Cocanougher

"They're the boys who are really fighting this war," Lt. Cocanougher said, "and they deserve a lot more credit than they're getting. . . . They live in the muck and mire, sleeping mostly by day and fighting by night, eating K rations and going for days without rest from combat."

And Lt. Cocanougher knows whereof he speaks, for he spent several days with the Marines, living in foxholes with them and eating their K rations. It all came about in one of his most hair-raising episodes of the war.

Lt. Cocanougher and a fellow pilot had succeeded in landing a blinded Navy pilot, Cocanougher flying in front of him and the pilot behind, so that he brought his plane in safely on Yontan field on Okinawa. Several days later they took off to fly back to their carrier, off Okinawa. Lt. Cocanougher discovered his hydraulic system wouldn't work and he couldn't get the plane's wheels up.

Mistaken For Enemy

Flying over our naval forces, he was mistaken for an enemy plane and two cruisers and five destroyers opened up on him, but two of our planes came in to join him and the firing ceased.

They were escorting him back to a landing, when the shore batteries, thinking they were enemy planes, also opened fire on them and shot down the two escorting planes and hit Lt. Cocanougher's plane several times. The two escorting pilots managed to bail out successfully and Lt. Cocanougher landed his plane back on the airstrip.

Had To Leave Plane

Next day the Navy sent a Navy TBF to fly them back to their ship, Lt. Cocanougher having to leave his damaged plane behind.

Lt. Cocanougher's second trip to the Pacific was more featured by participation in fighter sweeps on Tokyo, Iwo Jima and Okinawa and also trips in a Navy F6F, photo reconnaissance plane.

On his first trip out late in 1943 and until April, 1944, he participated in deeds of the now famous Hell Divers squadron of Task Force 58, whose feats were described in the book, "Hell Divers Squadron" by Robert Olds. He participated in raids on Kaving, New Ireland; the Marshalls, Marianas and Truk.

Flew In Raids On Tokyo

He came back to the States in April, 1944, and January, 1945, found him again in the Pacific where he flew in the first carrier-based Corsair raids on Tokyo, Feb. 16 and 17, and later on Feb. 25.

On the first raid to Tokyo, he went over in a fighter sweep with his carrier standing an undisclosed number of miles offshore of the Jap homeland. Next day he flew a Navy F6F photo plane, taking pictures before the raids and damage afterwards.

Going over, the squadron was jumped by 60 Jap planes but they "wouldn't come in" for a fight. After the bombing, he and four other pilots "hung around" while Lt. Cocanougher took pictures, the three other planes assigned to protect him. Then they flew halfway back across Japan all by themselves, after mixing it up with some of those Jap planes.

Lt. Cocanougher is one of those fellows who believe the war with Japan is a long way from being over.

Japs Not So Dumb

"Everybody thinks the Japs are pretty dumb and all that, but they're wrong," he said. "They're pretty sharp, both in the air and on the ground. If some of those armchair strategists could see those Marines carrying their dead buddies back from the front lines, they'd change their attitude about the war nearly being over."

Lt. Cocanougher is one of the few pilots in the Navy to qualify as pilot for four Navy combat planes — the SBD Douglas dive-bomber, the SB2C Curtis Hell Diver, the F6F Hellcat and the F4U Corsair fighter.

He wears the Distinguished Flying Cross, two Air Medals and six battle stars. A promotion is due within a few weeks.

Flew 51 Missions

Lt. Cocanougher landed back in the States on June 3 with a record of 51 missions against the Japs. He has 38 days leave before he reports to Brunswick, Me., for experimental tests of an undisclosed nature.

He entered Naval air training on June 1, 1942. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Cocanougher, 1711-B Fourteenth, who have another son, Maj. Harold Cocanougher, veteran of Pacific warfare with the Army Air forces, who is stationed at Wright field, Dayton. Lt. Cocanougher indicated he planned to return to civilian life as soon as the war is over and he will more than likely complete his requirements for a degree at Texas Tech, where he had studied two and one-half years before going into military service. He was a member of the Silver Key club while in Tech.

After college, he plans to enter business with his father, at present a real estate salesman.

gium, presiding, noted that several others wanted to speak on Quintanilla's resolution, which simply would state that any regime which got its help from the Axis could have no part in the United Nations.

Other Arguments

Rolin drily added that if anybody wanted to speak against it, they could, "but I am not making an invitation."

Other arguments:

By Alexander Palladin of the Ukraine: "There can be no room among the United Nations for Franco."

Fernand Dehousse of Belgium: "It would be illogical and offensive to our dead if, while we keep out the Axis, we opened the door to their satellites."

Herbert Evatt of Australia: "We know Spain sent troops against Russia. If for that reason alone, we support the Mexican suggestion."

Kurma V. Kiselev of White Russia: 'In this war between evil and good, Spain was on the side of evil. Now when Hitlerite Germany and her satellites have been destroyed, Franco has transformed Spain into a refuge for Fascist criminals of this war."

James C. Dunn of the United States: "The United States delegation is in complete accord with the statement . . . by Mexico and desires to associate itself with that declaration."

Agreement Near In Last Big Problem

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19—The Big Five were reported near agreement tonight on the last major problem of the United Nations conference—the scope of debate to be allowed a 50-nation world assembly.

Andrei Gromyko, heading the Russian delegation, was reported to have proposed to the United States, Great Britain, China and France, a change in wording of a compromise suggestion made on the part of small nations by Herbert V. Evatt of Australia.

Would Accept Principle

Word came from a closed-door meeting in the penthouse of Secretary of State Stettinius that Gromyko, acting on instructions from Moscow, told other Big Five chairmen his government was willing to accept the principles laid down in the Evatt proposal.

The Evatt draft would permit the general assembly to discuss "any matters covered by the purposes and principles of the charter or within the sphere of action of the United Nations" and make recommendations to the league members, or to a world security council, on such questions.

The original Russian demand, voiced last week, was for retention in the charter of the language of the Dumbarton Oaks formula. It said that debate in the general assembly should be limited to matters affecting the maintenance of international peace and security.

Differ In Language

Some of those present at today's meeting described the Russian counter-proposal to Evatt's suggestion as differing only in language and not in substance. It was emphasized, however, that this language had not yet received the full approval of the Big Five. Nor had it been checked back to Evatt as a representative of the smaller nations which have been demanding wider latitude in assembly discussions.

At the moment the Big Five broke up, Evatt was addressing a public commission meeting in support of a Mexican proposal to bar the Franco government of Spain from ever joining the United Nations.

The outlook of most of those who attended today's Big Five session, called at the request of Gromyko, was optimistic for an early agreement on the assembly controversy. It was regarded as the final remaining obstacle in the path of the signing of a world charter.

Former Lubbock Man Dies At Fort Worth

Mystery Surrounds Shooting Of Youth

A youth, 16, identified as Lloyd Halford—was reported in a critical condition Tuesday night in Lubbock General hospital from a gunshot wound and another youth was held by juvenile authorities for investigation into the shooting, which occurred about 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning at Parrish rooms, Broadway and Ave. G.

James Toler, 16, told officers that he was showing his friend a .25 automatic when the gun went off. "I had the clip in my pocket and I didn't know there was a shell in the barrel," he was quoted as saying.

The victim was shot in the lower left abdomen. He told officers that he and Toler had not argued. John W. Wilson, juvenile officer, said that he would question the wounded youth thoroughly when his condition permitted. Wilson said that the boys were rooming at the same place.

The victim was rushed to the hospital by a Rix ambulance.

Hold-Up Slaying

knocked him to the floor, fired three more times, hitting the bandits' getaway car twice, and fought with the butt of the weapon he'd seized. Twice in the battle he had been hammered on the head by the gunman.

The pair drove to Brownfield and hijacked Ben Baggett, attendant of Mack's Oil well, of approximately $90, an act they admitted in writing. They sped away in Leaird's car, appeared at the Lowrimore station soon afterward, shot Lamb and, when driving 80 miles an hour, ran off the south terminus of the Slide paved road and crashed the car.

Made 25-Mile Flight

Abandoning the car, they took liquor from it and began a 25-mile twisting attempt to escape across the dry farm and pasture land, and were captured 29 hours after the crash. They offered no resistance, since they had buried their remaining gun. The girl said she had also "set down" one pint of liquor.

"It was too heavy" for carrying "so far."

Mrs. Lamb said after receiving news of the death of her husband:

"He was too good for his own protection. After the Childress attack on him he told me he 'had to fight them. I don't ever want my boss to think I'd take his money.'

Mrs. Lamb attributed the same credo as having influenced Lamb's resistance Sunday when two guns were leveled at him.

Neighbor Praises Lamb

Mrs. John Holt, a neighbor living next door to the Lambs, said:

"He was one of the best men I ever saw. They moved out here last summer and put in a fall garden. My table never was set after the garden had produced without having something they'd given me.

"I'd come home from work and find they'd even shelled the black-eyed peas they'd bring me."

A solid gold tabernacle from a Russian Orthodox church in Prague, Czechoslovakia, stood in one corner, an announcement said.

In addition, there was $50,800 to $100,000 worth of gold and silver coins and 15 bars of gold bullion valued at $300,000.

Other troops of the 12th corps found a cache of pure gold valued at $50,000 under a haystack near the railroad station at Haidhausen, Austria.

Munich Library Found

Twenty miles east of Munich, other American soldiers discovered the irreplaceable library of the University of Munich, valued at several millions of dollars, hidden in the tiny farming village of Kirchdorf, SHAEF announced.

Several score paintings from Munich cathedrals valued at nearly $1,000,000 were found, along with 1,500 rare books which were hidden in the homes of a priest and a schoolmaster in the hamlet of 40 houses. One painting was signed by Vincent Van Gogh.

Fleecing Mariners

Monday morning the men were gone. Also gone was $50 from the billfold of Mrs. Autry's son, Buddy Autry.

Huffaker said the three were overdue at port and that their respective draft boards were seeking to find them.

The official said they were in Lubbock about two weeks ago and went from here to El Paso and into Arizona. They came back because the girls in Lubbock "were so nice."

Lubbock officers said the mariners had "pitched several big parties" in local hotels. One wore a ring in his left ear.

Couple In Hospital With Food Poisoning

E. W. Hartman and wife, of 203 Hub homes were admitted to Lubbock General hospital at 11:30 o'clock Tuesday night suffering severe pain from what was tentatively diagnosed as food poisoning.

Hospital attendants described the condition of each as "fairly good" although both were to be held overnight for observation.

Hartman told an ambulance driver that their illness might possibly have been caused by stew which they ate yesterday at a local cafe.

The two ambulances which rushed to the address attracted a large crowd of curious persons. Approximately 30 automobiles were reported observed parked in the vicinity of the Hartman residence.

Rev. J. N. Marshal of Austin, former Baptist missionary in the South Plains area, will speak at 7:30 o'clock tonight at prayer services of the First Baptist church, it was announced by Dr. C. E. One dollar in pennies and chewing gum and cigars were taken Tuesday night in the burglary of Langford's grocery, in 1100-block Ave. G. A torn window screen led Patrolman Floyd Hodges to discover the breakin about 10:30 o'clock.

New B-29 Raids

The enemy broadcast did not comment immediately on the other two targets hit but said 10 B-29s laid mines in the Kanmon strait between Kyushu and Honshu.

Second In Three Days

The mission was the second in three days of the newly-launched campaign on Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay's 21st Bomber command against secondary war production targets in the Nippon homeland.

About 3,000 tons of latest type incendiary bombs, aimed to scatter unquenchable blobs of fire throughout the tightly packed areas of the three cities, were released by the B-29s from low level starting about three a.m. (1 p.m. Tuesday, U. S. central war time).

The three cities were tasting for the first time the bitter flames of war, roaring over factories, shops and thousands of congested homes.

Shizuoka, with a probable population of around 212,000, and Toyohashi, about 242,000, are on the south Honshu island coast between Tokyo and Nagoya. Fukuoka, population 323,000 is on the north coast of Kyushu island.

Today's missions brought to 25 the number of mass incendiary raids by the Marianas-based Superfortresses since they struck Tokyo March 10 in the first big fire bomb attack. That and subsequent raids on the great key cities of Tokyo, Osaka, Nagoya, Kobe, Yokohama and Kawasaki knocked them virtually out of war production.

Political Chief For Oil Industry Urged

TULSA, June 19 (AP)—Andrew M. Rowley, veteran Tulsa Tribune oil editor, proposed today that the petroleum industry select a leader to consolidate its potentialities as a political force.

In his daily column, Rowley said "the petroleum industry should have a definitely recognized leader, authorized to speak and act for it in connection with governmental activities affecting the business."

Rowley said the industry "needs a political action committee and a Sidney Hillman to direct it" in fights against "any attempt to regiment the business."

Whistling In The Dark

Jittery Japs Await An Invasion

FACED with the prospect of invasion, the Japanese are reacting much as the Germans did during the months before the Allied armies landed on the coast of France. Their propagandists are saying that Japan has been built into an "impregnable fortress" during the period that American forces have been fighting from island to island across the Pacific.

The Japanese are indulging in elaborate descriptions of the preparations made for the defense of their homeland. They talk of vast subterranean fortifications on a scale so extensive that they will introduce "a new epoch in military history." Their engineers, to hear them tell it, have put ammunition dumps and supply depots underground along with communications and artillery. They boast that neither bombs nor shells can knock out these positions.

Probably there is some truth in all this. American troops have come up against Japanese defense installations many times and they have come to expect the enemy to take advantage of any and all opportunities to dig himself in. Caves, tunnels, trenches—these have been encountered wherever the terrain permitted. Nor is there any question that mountainous Japan favors these tactics.

Consequently, it must be expected that any invasion of Japan will be a formidable problem. It will be Saipan, Iwo Jima and Okinawa over again—with additions. That calls for even greater bombing and artillery preparations and bigger coteries of landing craft and larger bodies of troops. It will mean slow gains and heavy losses.

But the Japanese are whistling in the dark, hoping to discourage American Forces and put heart into their own troops at the same time. Their bravado cannot hide the fact that so far every invasion attempted by American forces in the Pacific has succeeded.

Furthermore, the American people know U. S. commanders in the Pacific will not open an invasion of the Jap home islands until they know beyond shadow of doubt that the invasions will be as great a success as all its predecessors.

A Big Job, Admirably Done

AFTER five years in the service of his country, Lt. Gen. William S. Knudsen has laid aside his uniform and returned to civilian life. Much of the credit of the miracles of production which have been achieved in that time belongs to this quiet, able, hard-working and self-effacing man.

When General Knudsen left the presidency of General Motors to go to Washington, this country was just beginning to use the power of its industrial plant to build its defenses. First as a member of the old National Defense Advisory committee, and then as one of the two heads of the Office of Production Management, he used great abilities to speed this job.

But his most effective work was done when, freed of the handicap of divided authority, he served as the Army's ace troubleshooter, traveling all over the country to untangle production snarls and hasten the output of urgently needed arms.

In this role General Knudsen became, in the words of Assistant Secretary of War Robert Patterson, "one of the foremost leaders of the nation," who, "by his foresight and ability not only saved this country millions of dollars, but by expediting production of critical weapons saved countless American lives."

William S. Knudsen returns to private life with the good wishes of a grateful nation.

Our Good Neighbor, Brazil

THE active participation of Brazil in the war against Japan is not necessary to assure Japanese defeat, but Brazil's declaration of war against the island empire is appreciated nonetheless.

Brazil took considerable more than a token part in the war against Germany. Not only did she provide valuable air bases and supplies, but she sent troops who distinguished themselves fighting in the Italian campaign. And against Japan, Brazil stands ready to do anything required of her, even to providing military manpower, which likely will not be asked.

The practical value of Brazil's declaration of war against Japan lies in the maintenance of Brazilian bases at the hands of the sizable Japanese colony in Brazil.

Under the original agreement, bases used by the United States in Brazil were to revert to Brazil six months after the end of war in Europe. The Brazilian declaration of war assures continued American use of the bases.

Brazil's action is doubly welcome as a contribution to United Nations solidarity and as a further affirmation of friendship for the United States.

The American House

By Virginia Chase

(Copyright, 1945, NEA Service, Inc.)

IV

When I saw the inside of the American House I felt a little cheated. The carpets were red and green, to be sure, but their roses had been worn almost beyond recognition, and, although ornate, the wicker suite in the parlor was too hard to suggest easeful living. The tin tub fell short of my expectations—I had expected a kind of Roman bath—and the sign CAUTION above the faucets belied stories of extravagance. The dumb-waiter, which I had pictured as a kind of agile automaton, proved to be no more than a crude framework (topped by an enormous knot), which moved with creaks and tremors.

Still there was the furnace, a great black monster, sending out long tentacles into the darkness of the cellar. There was hot water—in season. There were two telephones, one for local calls, the other for long distance. And there was the electric bell. You had only to press a button in any of the upper rooms and a gilt arrow moved unsteadily in a glass-covered case in the office. The mechanism was out of adjustment, and no one downstairs could be sure what room was calling, but the buzz was impressive.

Otherwise the place was undistinguished. The kitchen was in the basement of the old house. Its concrete floor and gray sheathing gave it a moist, tasteless look. It held a huge, square stove with a rusted top, bearing a copper tank, grown green like boats below the waterline; a table covered with oilcloth that looked as though it had been scaled; a row for pots and a rack for knives and cleavers; a high milk closet, screened with mosquito netting; a large pump with a long, perpendicular handle, which filled the tank in the attic; and a sink, also rusted, with a shelf above it where a row of lamps stood.

* * *

At the head of the kitchen stairs was the serving room, once half of the whole first floor. On the back, two windows looked out over the yard; on the side, two high ones over the Landing; and on the front the two that had faced the village were now painted gray, like the walls. Between them were shelves stacked with heavy, white dishes—plates, cups, nappies, butter chips tiered up like silver dollars.

A swinging door opened into the dining room—not too easily because of the uneven meeting of the floors. Here in each corner was a table set for six and in the center a larger one, which we came to know as the Transient Table. All of them were swathed in cheesecloth, and above each hung a spiral of flypaper.

Across the hall was the office, running the depth of the entire building, old part and new. It was finished in brown sheathing. One row of armchairs, leather-seated, lined the front; another formed a semi-circle around the stove, which stood in the middle of the room. The desk was in the back corner. On it were a cigar case, a clipper, a contraption for cutting plug tobacco, a circular inkwell with a wire helix, a paper weight of polished copper, and a register with a mottled leather cover. Opposite the desk were a safe, a row of tin wash basins, a safe, a roller towel, and a chocolate-colored water tank with a red rose above its spigot.

On the second floor were the parlor, the bathroom, the linen closet, and four bedrooms. The parlor was directly at the head of the stairs, facing the village. It was our greatest disappointment. Though my mother had never passed on any stories, we had heard them, just the same. There had been parties in that parlor, wild parties, parties that had lasted until 12 o'clock. There had been wine and cigars. People had played cards, perhaps even gambled there. Yet it had turned out to be only a small, dingy room, with stiff, varnished furniture, primly placed.

The bedrooms in the house were furnished alike throughout. Each had a bed, a commode, a straight chair, and a bureau with a swinging mirror — all highly varnished. The floors were covered with straw matting, and the walls were papered with brown "oatmeal." The rooms were fairly large, but they differed in contour, for those on the back of the third and fourth floors were cut off by the roof and distorted by dormers.

Our rooms were on the corner of the second floor. The one my parents shared was toward the village. Ours looked out over the back yard, now muddy and rutted. It had five windows—one on the back; one, painted over like those in the serving room, facing the hall, and three on the side. Of these, two were so high that you had to stand on tiptoe to see out, and the third was a porthole.

We drew lots for the walls, but we divided the closet less peacefully. It was a very small closet, well cut into by the chimney. There were 12 hooks in it, and a nail.

"I shall have the nail," Sue said. "I'm the oldest."

That started us off.

"How old you are doesn't have anything to do with it," Julia insisted.

I backed her up noisily.

"Girls, girls," my mother called. "No quarreling! You'll just have to manage somehow. It's only for a little while, anyway"

Poor Mama! She really believed it.

CAP CADET TRAINING CUT

DALLAS, June 19 (AP)—In line with plans for stabilizing Army Air force activities, Lt. Col. Harold Byrd, wing commander of the Texas Civil Air patrol, announced today that CAP cadet training for the state had been cut by 50 per cent. Byrd said that in contrast to the 12,500 cadet quota set for 1944, only 6,000 cadets between the ages of 15 and 17 were allotted for this year.

FREE PRESS URGED

LONDON, June 19. (AP)—Leslie Randall, war correspondent for the London Evening Standard, urged a "hands off the press" campaign today to permit free reporting of news in Germany and liberated countries.

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

BISHOP William T. Manning announced to his congregation at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York last Sunday that the reredos, or ornamental partition, behind the altar would soon be removed, thus exposing the full length of the beautiful edifice to full view.

BRANDEIS

"The view," he said, "will then be the longest unbroken vista in Christendom."

He further announced that, immediately after the war, the campaign to raise ten million dollars for the completion of the cathedral would be continued. He reminded his hearers that that was not very much since "it has just been announced that it will take thirty-five million dollars to repair the airplane carrier Franklin."

And, he stated that, when finished, St. John's would be the second in size in the world. "It will be more than one-third larger than St. Paul's Cathedral in London or Notre Dame in Paris."

* * *

I don't blame the Bishop for being proud of his church.

I hope that every last cent of that ten-million dollars will be raised. I, myself, shall contribute my mite if I am asked.

But what has the fact that St. John's will be the second largest church in the world got to do with the rebuilding of the airplane carrier Franklin?

If, out of a tiny backwoods chapel in New England or California or Michigan should come the message that will eliminate the need for future airplane carriers—that will be a far larger vista than any cathedral can give as long as it is subject ot the bombings of enemy planes.

The largest vista in Christendom can never be through the expanse or the windows of a man-made building, but it must come through the windows of the soul.

* * *

RIGHT here in our village of Brookfield we have a little white church that was built many years ago. Its building has not cost more than one of the windows of St. John's.

But when I pass it in the evening sunset and see its steeple rise into heaven as in prayer, and when I see the farmers and the villagers go into it on Sundays because they have a need for it and for all it stands for, then, to me, that little church is as great an edifice and as beautiful a memorial to man's faith in God as any St. John's or St. Paul's or Notre Dame can be.

For, in that little church, every bit as sincerely as in the great cathedrals, men and women pray that the time may come when not another penny will have to be spent for the building or rebuilding of airplane carriers!

Our Synthetic Rubber

It Will Be Postwar Boon To Us

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

POSTWAR motorists are assured of a plentiful and inexpensive supply of tires as a result of the miracle which American industry and federal authorities have achieved in the field of synthetic rubber. Now that Germany has been defeated, it can be revealed that we are making a million tons a year of the artificial product so essential to our economy in war and peace.

This amount is almost double the total which was consumed in normal times. Moreover, some manufacturers report to Washington that eventually they will be able to reduce the price to 10 cents a pound or less, which is almost half the lowest price paid in the lush days. And there have been periods when, under foreign restrictions on importation of the raw material, the figure soared to around $1 a pound.

TUCKER

This domestic production will not free us completely from dependence on the crude article from British Malaya and the Dutch East Indies. It is estimated that about 15 per cent of the real stuff will be needed for mixture with the substitute. But proper stockpiling will save the United States from the sort of crisis that confronted the armed forces and civilian workers when the Japs seized rubber areas in the southeastern Pacific.

* * *

BOOM: This brand-new $500,000,000 industry has aroused deep concern in Washington as to what promises, if any, FDR may have given Prime Minister Churchill and Queen Wilhelmina about the preservation of this enterprise when England and Holland have recovered their rubber-growing possessions. If his predecessor made pledges it is quite possible that President Truman will be forced to scrap them.

Mr. Roosevelt was slow to see the advantage of taking precaution against the loss of Malaya and the Dutch East Indies to the Allies, and later to the United Nations. Even after the attack on Pearl Harbor, the British assured him that their navy would keep open the supply lines to those strategic but remote lands.

Furthermore, Mr. Truman does not entertain the belief held by Mr. Roosevelt that our factories should be abandoned when the present emergency ends. He has declared that we should never again be left to the mercy of England's restrictive acts on the raw supply or to the agreements which Standard Oil negotiated with I. G. Farbenindustrie for monopolistic control of synthetic patents. Anyway, rubber manufacturers expect him to keep their facilities in operation, or to retain surplus plants as military stand-bys.

As a Middle Westerner, however, HST hopes that processes for making rubber from such products as corn, soy beans and guayule can be developed commercially. He envisages this new American industry as providing employment, new markets and fresh uses in everyday life, in addition to the boom it will give to the automobile and accessory business.

* * *

SYNTHETIC: The details of the creation and expansion of this industry make one of the more fascinating dramas of wartime America. Had it not been for the materials it provided for the armed forces of the United States, Britain and Russia, the United Nations might have suffered disaster.

It was early in 1940 that Edward R. Stettinius, jr. and William L. Batt, vice chairman of WPB, stormed into Jesse H. Jones's RFC office and declared, "We want you to see the boss (President Roosevelt) and get him interested in doing something about synthetic rubber. We have talked to him but can't move him."

"Well," replied the Texan, "how do you expect me to succeed if you two have failed?"

* * *

EXPANSION: However, Mr. Jones tried, and he persuaded FDR to authorize expenditure of $25,000,000 for a pilot plant. Mr. Jones had asked for $50,000,000, but the President thought that figure excessive. So the RFC chairman persuaded the du Ponts to build a $12,000,000 experimental factory, and they started out on their pioneering venture.

A few days after Christmas, 1941, when the Japs were advancing through Thailand and Malaya, President Roosevelt met Churchill at the White House for their first war conference. Rubber became a key topic.

"What is the capacity of the plants now under construction?" Mr. Roosevelt asked of Mr. Jones.

"Four hundred thousand tons," replied the Texan, to FDR's utter amazement.

"That is more than enough," interjected Lord Beaverbrook, British Minister of Supply. Churchill added his promise that Singapore would never fall, and that the Allies would never lack for the raw.

But the canny RFC chieftain, with the complete cooperation of private industry, financed expansion to its present state.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

THE WEATHER will probably put a stop to the savage fighting of the Anglo-American forces in Burma where, since January, more than 31,000 Japs have been killed.

Veterans from that front say that the first monsoons have struck and that floods restrict the use of tanks. Big waves from the Indian Ocean pound sand bars and swamps that gird the west coast, making amphibious operations difficult. Aviators defy storms to strafe isolated Jap positions.

LEMAN

Regardless of the downpour, patrols are active. Twenty or 30 men spend around a week at a time trailing enemy units. They must often hack their way through growth so thick that relays are changed every five minutes.

They cannot wear mosquito nets as these are torn by branches; insecticide cream stops the pores in the humid brush. The hothouse atmosphere causes whiskers of fungus to grow on personal belongings. Sleepers are imperiled by the venomous little krait, a snake whose bite brings death within a few minutes.

It is about the toughest soldiering in the world.

* * *

YANKS: The United States 10th Air Force, which has been operating in conjunction with the Royal Air Force, is now pulling out for China. RAF squadrons that only a few weeks ago were bombing the Rhine are taking over.

The cooperation of Americans and British has been excellent. At first the two services eyed each other a bit, but Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten built a "sandwich" organization somewhat similiar to General Eisenhower's in Europe, where Yanks and Tommies were thoroughly mixed—from generals down to privates.

United States ground forces have also been shifted to China to supplement General Wedemeyer's growing army. Several of these units are the original ones that General Stilwell took into the hills. Their places are being filled by fresh British divisions, which until V-E day were chasing Germans under Marshal Montgomery. Some of these veterans began to fight in the hot, dry North African desert; now they are in the hot, wet Burmese jungle.

A whole new army, the 12th, under Gen. Sir Montague Stopford, will join Gen. William J. Slim's British 14th Army. Most of the new divisions are composed of men from the United Kingdom. Slim's veterans are intermingled British and Indian brigades. The other day two Indian colonels from this force were in New York. They said that Indian generals are now in command of troops in the Far East.

"Life is simple. It is merely a chemio-physical system," says a scientist. Why, yes, of course! But, er, what is a chemio-physical system?

The day after her husband gave her a diamond ring for a birthday present, an Indian woman pawned it, bought a revolver and shot him. There's many a woman a man can't afford to be nice to.

Symington, Vs. The Surplus Property Board

A Study In Business Psychology

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The Senate is confronted with an interesting psychological study of an American businessman and American business methods, as well as a problem in basic national policy, in considering the confirmation of W. Stuart Symington, of St. Louis, to be chairman of the Surplus Property board.

This board, charged with disposing of billions of dollars of surplus war property of all sorts, including plants, will have much influence on the postwar national economy. Its operations and policy are being investigated by the Senate Military Affairs subcommittee, headed by Sen. Joe O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), who is concerned that no monopoly be built up in distributing surpluses.

STOKES

Mr. Symington would be a key figure as chairman. What of his approach?

An interesting picture, familiar to business circles, comes from a review of his business history, experience and correspondence submitted as evidence in one of two government anti-trust suits. The suits were against companies with which Mr. Smyington had previously been connected.

* * *

"Promoting Go-Getter"

He emerges as the go-getter type of businessman, with a strong promoter instinct. He has been in and out of several businesses, beginning with a family business, and including radio, parking meters, iron and steel and, lastly, an electrical manufacturing company which bloomed out with war contracts and which attracted an inquiry by the House Military Affairs committee three years ago.

His thinking about business methods probably was influenced by experience with a family business which had trouble with competition, but which flourished after a combination with another business. In a radio business he learned about the power of Radio Corp. of America and its patent licensing system.

* * *

HE TOLD the O'Mahoney subcommittee how he led the fight of the independents against the RCA licensing system and described it as "one of the most unfair in the world." But it was learned that at the time he came to feel that RCA would have been more successful if the patent licensing system had been exercised more tightly.

Such an effective system of patent control he found when he became president, in January, 1935, of Rustless Steel and Iron Co. It impressed him. This patent control system and price-fixing arrangements were the bases of an anti-trust suit brought by the government last year against several companies, including Rustless Steel and Iron. The government charged monopoly in stainless steel, starting in 1934. Mr. Symington retired from the company in 1936.

* * *

He Learned Fast

It was in 1936 that he helped devise the patent control system in parking meters through Vehicular Parking, Ltd., of which he became president. That patent control system was the basis of an anti-trust suit in 1942, won by the government. It was previously discussed here. Mr. Symington left the parking meter business in 1938, but his activities were detailed in the court, and letters he wrote were put in evidence.

* * *

EXCERPTS from one which he asked the recipient to destroy was quoted here before. Another to the same man, John Howard Joynt, one of the patent pool organizers, warned him "you tell them little of the advantage of the pool itself from the standpoint of industry regulation—of course nothing of this character should be put in writing—but confine your comments to the previous opinion given by Mr. Taylor and me with respect to the relative merits of the Dual picture and the Parkrite picture, on patents confining, or rather emphasizing, the importance of the two going together."

Another letter, referring to the necessity of bringing Carl Magee of Dual Parking Meter Co., "into the fold," continued:

"Perhaps a 1-2 of 1 per cent license would do the trick. This would give us access to his books and mean his admission to the validity of our patents. Also we would have him under control from the standpoint of price."

* * *

Price Well Guarded

Another letter said:

"These other companies are not going to let our holding company control without some struggle. I hope these meter ideas and applications are being pushed to Joynt. A $35 meter may kick out some companies but it won't stop any exp competition. Magee says he has one that can be built for a couple of dollars. Let's get control if we can. It looks as if our fight is against Dual."

The subsequent agreement among the various companies fixed minimum prices of $35 for manual meters and $45 for automatic meters, which later were raised, by agreement, to $39 and $50.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

Buses are overburdened as never before. A crisis is near. With more men, tires and gas going to war, present service can barely be maintained. Each day brings greater loads. When you must travel locally, let this be your creed:

1. Do Not Ride in Rush Hours, except to and from your job.
2. Have Exact Fare Ready, saves time and fuss.
3. Move Back When Driver Asks, speeds your ride.

This simple creed will work wonders.

Work Of Lions Club Reviewed

Dr. W. A. Pettey, retiring president of Lubbock Lions club, presented a resume of the year's activities at the luncheon meeting yesterday in the Hilton hotel. A standing vote of recognition and appreciation was given the president who guided the club through one of its most successful years since its organization 15 years ago.

Dr. Pettey reported that on July 1, 1944, the club had a membership of 139 and on May 1, 1945, the membership was 161. The club maintained an average attendance of 76 per cent.

Activities of the civic organization included a collection of $5,380 for the Lubbock Girl Scout work; 300 gifts and 30 magazine subscriptions sent to McCloskey General hospital; collection of 58,000 pounds of old clothes for the peoples of Europe; sponsorship of the annual crippled children's dance which netted $1,200 for treatment of infantile paralysis; presentation of lockers to the Boys club; sponsorship of concessions at American Business club rodeo which netted $1,000 for Boys club work; sponsoring of passion play which meant $3,510 for the club and sponsorship of a tin can drive.

Paper Weight Presented

The club now has $4,699 bonds, cash value, according to a financial report given by Dr. Marshall Harvey, secretary-treasurer.

Vernice Ford presented the retiring president with a silver lion paper weight in recognition of the club's membership work. The president's pin, which has been worn by the last 15 presidents, was presented to R. C. (Bob) Harvey who will be installed as the new president next Tuesday. Harvey presented a past president pin to Dr. Pettey.

B. C. McCasland presented pins to 59 members of the club having perfect attendance records for the last year. G. C. Aycock was announced as a delegate to the Lions International convention when, and if, such a convention is held this year. The other delegate will be the president. Alternates will be T. C. Ingram and J. O. Kuykendall.

Richard Rivers, who is assisting in a meeting at the Broadway Church of Christ, presented two vocal selections accompanied at the piano by his wife. Other guests were Dr. F. G. Behmlander of Lowell, Ind., Lt. (jg) Ralph Cocanougher, V. A. Moore

Final Military Rites For General Buckner Held On Okinawa Island

OKINAWA, June 19. (AP)—Impressive in its simplicity, with high ranking officers and men of the fighting Tenth Army standing quietly beside the gray casket beneath leaden skies, final military rites were paid today to a "soldier's soldier," Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, jr.

In Forward Position

Seventeenth American general officer to be killed in action since the war on both fronts began, the hearty, silver-haired 58-year-old Kentuckian met almost instant death yesterday at a forward position as he looked, literally, off into the space of the victory soon to come in the bloody conquest of Okinawa.

Associated Press correspondent Vern Haugland, reporting from the Eighth Marine regiment, said Buckner had reached an observation point "from which for the first time he could see the extreme southern tip of Okinawa and the ocean beyond it."

About 60 officers and men were standing beside or near the general when Japanese artillery suddenly found the range. Only Buckner was injured—a shell fragment "by a million to one spin of the wheel of chance" buried itself in his chest.

Unconscious, Buckner was carried to the protection of a nearby cave. First aid was applied, but he died within 10 minutes.

New Commander Present

Today, with Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger of the Marine Third amphibious command, who succeeded Buckner as commander of the Tenth Army, at the graveside, taps and a final rifle salute were sounded at Hagushi beach where the first landings in the Okinawa campaign were made Easter morning.

Maj. Frank R. Hubbard, jr., of Des Moines and Los Angeles, Buckner's aide, and one of the first men to reach his side, said the general died with a smile on his face. He had been pointing out bits of action to his staff as they gathered to watch the Marine Third battalion, newly arrived on the line.

"He didn't know what hit him," Hubbard said.

Gen. Geiger, a veteran of the Solomons, Marianas and Palau, and regarded as one of the best military schooled men in the Marines, took over the command after receiving orders from Admiral Nimitz.

RECTOR HAS OPERATION

HOUSTON, June 19 (U.P.) — The Rev. John E. Hines, rector of Houston Christ church and bishop coadjutor-elect of the Texas Episcopal diocese, was reported "doing fine" today following an appendectomy late Monday.

Cox Appointed On Cotton Committee

AUSTIN, June 19. (U.P.)—Dr. A. B. Cox, University of Texas cotton marketing expert, today accepted appointment as a member of a U. S. cotton policy committee.

Dr. Cox had just returned from a Washington meting of a committee of the American Cotton association to discuss possibilities for opening an export market for cotton, and for a trade agreement program in regard to domestic policies.

"Money used now directly and indirectly to induce the farmer not to produce more cotton will be ample to implement a thoroughly constructive, co-ordinated program for agriculture," Dr. Cox said.

"Cotton production affects many other industries and trades. It needs to be recognized as an industry and a way of living, before any methods of formulating policies and a program are attempted."

FOX TAKES COMMAND

SAN ANTONIO, June 19 (AP)—Brig Gen. Alonzo Fox, back from services in the European theater, has assumed command of the War department personnel center at Fort Sam Houston. Gen. Fox served overseas as assistant commander of the 102nd division.

Good Roads Group Praises Amendment

AUSTIN, June 19 (AP)—The Texas Good Roads association in a resume today of highway legislation by the 49th legislature, put at the top of the list passage of a constitutional amendment to prevent any further diversion to nonhighway uses of motor fuel and lubricant taxes, and vehicles registration fees.

This amendment will be voted on at the general election in 1946. Its submission to the people, said the association's report "represents a real victory—and puts Texas in the select category of states which place a higher than average value on their highway transportation systems."

The report also applauded passage of:

A bill which increases the load limit on commercial motor vehicles from 38,000 to 48,000 pounds, based on a modified application of the formula approved by the American association of state highway officials.

A constitutional amendment (to be voted on in Nov. 1946), which will authorize establishment of a social security system for state employes, including the highway department.

ONION PRICE UNCHANGED

WASHINGTON, June 19 (AP)—The grower ceiling price for the late spring crop of onions will remain unchanged at $2.50 per 50 pounds during the period beginning Thursday, June 21 and ending July 15, the OPA announced today.

MacArthur Sets New Command

MANILA, June 19 (U.P.)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today set up a new Pacific command under Lt. Gen. Wilhelm D. Styer to handle the flow of ammunition, equipment, food and personnel to the fighting fronts in the coming assault on Japan.

The new command, to be known as the Armed Forces of the Western Pacific, will include all non-combat forces under MacArthur's investigator of overseas supplies. be in Manila.

Was Somervell Deputy

Earlier in the war, Styer was chief of staff of services of supply and deputy to Lt. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell. He handled Somervell's duties while the latter was attending the Casablanca and Quebec conferences with President Roosevelt.

More recently, Styer traveled more than 100,000 miles as special investigator of overseas suplies. Originally an Army engineer, he served in World war I in the battles of Picardy and Chateau Thierry.

He was assistant engineer of the Panama canal and railroad between the wars.

Styer's deputy commander and chief of staff for logistics to Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Shangri-La Victims Hacking Way Out

MANILA, Tuesday, June 19. (AP)—Led by an American paratroop commander, the three Yank survivors of an Army transport plane crash in mountainous New Guinea hacked their way through dense jungle undergrowth today as they descended a rugged mountain toward the floor of "Shangri-La valley."

Latest reports received here said the survivors started their 10-mile mountain trek last Friday as scheduled. They are expected to reach a temporary glider landing strip on the valley floor by midweek.

The three survivors of the crash, in which 20 others met death, are WAC Cpl. Margaret Hastings, of Owego, N. Y., Lt. John B. McCollom, of Trenton, Mo., and Sgt. Kenneth Decker, of Kelso, Wash. They have been stranded on a mountain saddle, 2,000 feet above the valley floor, since May 13.

National WLB Asked To Take Strike Case

DALLAS, June 19. (AP) — Failure of striking employes of the Tri-State Transit company to resume work today was reported to the National War Labor board by the Eighth Regional WLB with a request the national board take whatever steps it deemed necessary to get the men back to work.

Clifford Potter, regional WLB disputes director, said the action was taken when officials of the company reported 400 drivers and mechanics had not met a back-to-work deadline at 10 a. m. today in compliance with a regional board directive.

The deadlock, in which a wage dispute is involved, has kept the company's buses out of operation in nine states since June 9.
