Kitty's Korner

By Kitty Montgomery

Wow! What a week. That is here at the old newspaper, it's been some week.

Besides all the other hectic things that seem to happen regularly around a newspaper office, we've been swamped with telephone calls from subscribers complaining about the Watergate hearings pre-empting their regularly scheduled television programs, the weather has been hotter than August and more humid, the news all came in after the deadline, and with the rest of the paper "put to bed," here I am trying to write something that will make sense.

I am more concerned with the prime interest rate, the dollar slump, the high cost of living and the violations of the cease-fire in Indochina than I am with the "Watergate Affair." In fact, it is my opinion that the major radio-television networks and the national press are being used quite successfully as channels for enemy propaganda. They are creating a circus-atmosphere, assisted by no less than the U. S. Senate, while the rest of the country quietly goes down the drain.

However, our "Letters to the Editor" column this week certainly reveals another opinion. And I am surprised that while I am frightened of what all this bally-hoo is doing to our country, some are taking it all in, while being taken in, and are convinced that the present administration is trying to do away with their "freedom."

If nothing else, the dismissal of charges against the Ellsberg-Russo duo should allay their fears. A government wire-tap, if discovered, is cause for misconduct on the part of the prosecution, causing all charges to be thrown out. I remember a day when a wire-tap by the government sent a prominent head of a labor union to jail, even to prison. So on that score, it seems there is no worry. Anyone has the freedom to leak their country's secrets and endanger the country's security, because if those in authority take steps to stop you, they are treading on your privacy and in the name of "justice" you can get away with it.

It seems to me, the national news media is out to change our system at any cost. They were less than "kind" to President Johnson, and they have been waiting for an opportunity to knife the present administration. They have taken the Watergate case and blown it all out of proportion, and it just might be that they will be successful in their continuing efforts to bring down the system as we have known it for almost 200 years. What a pity.

The tragedy in the whole thing is the fact that our system has worked so well for so long.

Funeral Service Wednesday For Ben H. Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION Member 1973

Proxmire On Press

Senator William Proxmire (D-Wis) has charged that the press has been "grossly unfair" in recent days, engaging in "McCarthylike destruction of President Nixon."

The reporting of so many alleged charges in the press, "the present runaway tendency to rush into headlines with disputed, unproven, secret charges against the President is the press at its worst," Proxmire says.

Speaking in the Senate, Proxmire noted that many newsmen were not even giving President Nixon "the same simple right that every other American has—to be innocent until proven guilty."

"As the Senator who succeeded Joe McCarthy in the U.S. Senate, I find this kind of persecution and condemnation without trial McCarthyism at its worst," Proxmire said.

Proxmire, as a liberal Democrat, is a proper critic of the ultra-liberal press. The American people know by now some newsmen hate the President so much, and have for so long had so little to criticize him about, they would go to any length to destroy him. In the end, that rabid extremism will help the President. It probably produced the mood that has twice elected him President.

Memorial Day, 1973

Memorial Day began—as a national observance—during the Civil War, first in Mississippi (Columbus and Vicksburg), Virginia (Winchester) and other states, and by 1865 was observed nationally. That year the Adjutant General of the U.S. Army suggested graves be decorated throughout the country.

Although the war in Vietnam has at last ended for American forces, the military establishment is still abused by many; yet, it is nevertheless true that defense will again be necessary to preserve liberty.

Christianity, idealistic and moral principles and philosophies notwithstanding—unless a free nation contains men willing to fight and die, if necessary, for country and freedom, liberty cannot long survive.

These are the thoughts which should engage us on Memorial Day, 1973. And to all who responded to their duty when their country called, and who gave their lives, the nation is indebted. It is too much to expect each individual soldier, sailor or airman to pass individually on the rightness or wrongness of the foreign policy of his government and act accordingly. This would produce only chaos. Rather, a nation must necessarily depend on brave men who believe, as Robert E. Lee did, that duty is the sublimest word in the English language.

The 'Lusitania'

A British historian, after years of painstaking research, says the famed "Lusitania" of World War I fame, the sinking of which helped bring America into that war against Germany, was secretly carrying troops and ammunition, and thus fair game, when sunk by a German submarine in 1915.

Colin Simpson, of the Sunday Times, writes in a new book that the sinking was used as a ploy to influence opinion in the United States against Germany.

Further, Simpson charges, the British Admiralty deliberately created a situation in which it was highly probable the ship would be sunk.

If this study is accepted in due time, the ruse might have changed the world's history—for U.S. entry into the war doomed Germany, the one nation which could have prevented a Bolshevik success in Russia in 1917 and 1918.

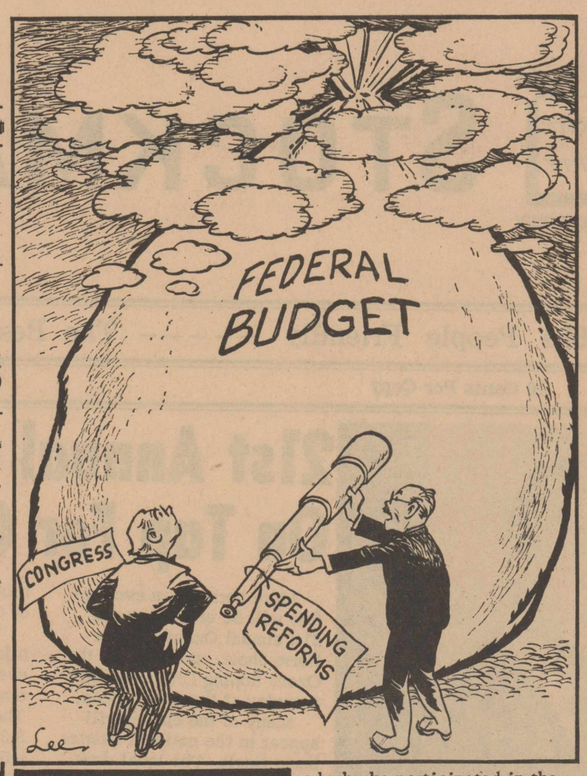

Hero Stuff

The recent death at 86 of one of the country's most distinguished military men, General Alexander Vandergrift, reminds us freedom must sometimes be defended, that it would have been lost long ago if there were not brave Americans to risk their lives to preserve it.

"Sunny Jim" Vandergrift was the first Marine on active duty to attain four-star rank, and the first to win both the Navy Cross and the Congressional Medal of Honor in World War II.

The native of Charlottesville, Virginia, was an honor student, widely respected by fellow officers and men. Samuel Elliot Morrison has written of Guadalcanal, that it was fortunate the nation had a commander of the Stonewall Jackson breed on that fateful island in the grim summer of 1942.

That was the bitter, desperate turning point in the Pacific, and the nation should always remember the Marines and their commander who succeeded there in 1942 and 1943.

Washington News Letter

By Congressman O. C. Fisher

Behind the scenes, grave concern is being heard in Washington as to the advisability of the current Senate Watergate hearings. It now appears that later on others may be indicted for cover-up activities. Some observers fear the circus atmosphere created plus TV and other coverage may inevitably prejudice chances for successful prosecution of any others who may be guilty, and that it may cause many jurors to become disqualified.

After all, the Congress cannot prosecute anyone, cannot determine guilt or innocence of anyone. Only Grand Juries can indict.

In judicial trials hearsay evidence is outlawed, but in Congressional hearings hearsay is admitted, personal animus of witnesses may be involved, and evidence ruled illegal in a court trial is admissible.

Therefore, the public which listens to testimony before a Congressional hearing has the burden of evaluating such evidence.

One of the strangest developments in the Senate Watergate hearings was testimony given by James W. McCord, a star witness. A former FBI and CIA specialist on security and electonic bugging, while working for the Committee to Re-elect the President early last year McCord was arrested, along with others, after breaking into the Democratic National headquarters in Washington.

Indicted on 7 counts for burglary, theft, and electronic bugging McCord was indicted, pleaded guilty, and was convicted. Following his conviction, and before the Judge decided on his punishment, McCord wrote the Judge a letter and said he wanted to tell more details involving others in the break-in.

Later he testified at length before a Grand Jury and also before the Senate committee. That happened several weeks ago. When called before the same Senate committee last week McCord for the first time testified about incriminating incidents, involving others, he had never before revealed. This was mostly hearsay. Asked why he participated in the 2 a.m. break-in, he maintained he thought the burglary and bugging was legal!

Legal experts insist that most of the testimony he gave would not be admissible in a court of law.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Robbed At Work

Hired as floor manager in a department store, Phyllis asked where she should leave her new fur coat during working hours. Since there were no more lockers available, she was told to leave the coat in a corridor closet.

A few days later, the coat was stolen from the closet. The store denied any responsibility for the loss, but Phyllis—unconvinced—took the matter to court.

At the hearing, the company said it had never guaranteed its employees against theft. But it seems the closet had neither lock nor guard. Finding a lack of reasonable care, the court said the company would have to make good the loss.

It is common for employees to deposit clothing and other personal belongings in company facilities while at work.

As a rule, the company must provide reasonable safekeeping if — as in Phyllis' case — the employee has been instructed to put the article in a particular place. This creates a "bailment" relationship, with a legal duty imposed on the company as the "bailee."

But the duty is not unlimited. In another case, also involving a stolen coat, the clothes closet was within a locked enclosure to which only employees had access. A court ruled that the company had made a resonable effort to prevent theft, hence could not be held liable.

Of course, some responsibility rests upon the employee as well. A toolmaker who owned his own tools often left them overnight on his work bench. Right above the bench was a broken skylight. One night a thief climbed in through the skylight and decamped with the tools.

Could the company be blamed for the loss because of the broken skylight? A court said no, because the toolmaker himself was aware of the danger. By leaving his tools in such an accessible place, said the judge, he had "assumed the risk" of their being stolen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR:

Mrs. Montgomery

Your statement comparing the Watergate affair to the Kennedy-what's her name affair is a bit immature if I may say so.

Hanky Panky between two adults-sinful though it is-hurts no one outside their families, but when a bunch of thugs in high places of my government take license to mess with the basic freedoms guaranteed me by our Constitution (I wonder if Nixon changed that too?), it scares me to death.

If the president of the U.S. didn't know (and I'm sure he was part of it) then I can only wonder (and I do-wonder and worry) if he knows what he and Kissinger did in Russia, China and Viet Nam. He's either plumb dumb or in my opinion "one of them"-I never did think he should be any thing more than a shyster lawyer!

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS FROM YOUR STATE CAPITAL

BY BILL BOYKIN

Texas Press Association

Austin, Tex.-- The first overall revision of the Texas penal code in more than a century is nearing final passage as the legislature plows through its last full week of regular session duties.

House members promptly went to work on the bill after the Senate passed it last week.

The revision is the product of a seven-year study ramrodded by the State Bar of Texas.

Generally, the code pulls together the thousands of criminal laws scattered through the statute books.

It groups felonies and misdemeanors into classes, ranging from most severe to minor offenses and fixes a range of punishment for each.

Many separate statutes are consolidated into comprehensive sections, and laws covering a variety of attempted crimes are grouped under a general attempt provision.

The new code increases maximum penalties for certain crimes of violence. Murder without malice, for example, could carry a maximum term of 20 years compared to five under present law.

Penalties for some other crimes were lowered. Minimum, as well as maximum, punishment is provided in each category of felony.

One of the major changes in existing law is the definition of insanity as applied to defense in criminal cases. The new definition terms insanity as a mental disorder or defect that prevents one from conforming his conduct to requirements of the law. The old "M'Naghten rule" terms a person insane who does not know right from wrong or understand the nature and consequences of his acts.

Lawmakers went into Friday and Saturday sessions in an effort to reduce the tremendous pile of unfinished legislation. Must of it will remain unacted on.

Open Records Bill Passes--The Senate passed its version of open records legislation, returning it (HB 6) to the House for consideration of amendments.

The bill would require most records to be available for public inspection and that copies be provided promptly at cost.

An amendment would allow agencies to require prepayment for copying records of many pages.

Exceptions are provided for private correspondence and communications of elected officials and information related entirely to personnel matters within the agency.

Oil Allowable Retained--Texas Railroad Commission for the 15th straight month set the June oil allowable at 100 percent.

Commissioners responded to soaring, record demands for crude oil.

Purchasers requested 3.8 million barrels a day for June, an increase of 33,931 over May.

Courts Speak--The Court of Criminal Appeals overturned a murder conviction of a Houston man because it was impossible to prove who actually fired the fatal shot in a motel shootout.

The State Supreme Court held a druggist can be liable for refilling a prescription for eye drops that caused cataracts, but the drug company that made the drops cannot be, because directions indicated the medication was for short-term use, not for a year.

Atty, Gen, John L. Hill's consumer protection division got permanent injunctions against Austin and Amarillo companies involved in illegal chainreferral sales schemes.

AG Opinions--Atty, Gen. Hill held constitutional a controversial compulsory oil and gas unitization bill (HB-311).

Hill also held that a person may be employed both as a University of Texas law professor and a researcher for the State Constitutional Revision Commission.

In other recent opinions, Hill held:

A bill requiring the state comptroller to make sales tax reports to cities is constitutional.

A bank applying to be a county fund depository must submit along with its bid a statement of a legal rate of interest for time deposits of all amounts and lengths of time. A bid cannot be corrected later to include the information if it is first omitted.

MIA Day Proclaimed--Governor Briscoe has proclaimed June 3, 1973, as "National MIA Day" in Texas, and urges all citizens to rally behind their national leaders in the quest for a full and accurate accounting of all MIAs.

He said that "the number of captured Americans recently released by the Communist leaders in Indo-China is only 30 percent of those who have been listed as Prisoners of War (POW) or Missing in Action (MIA), and,.. the other 70 per cent, or over 1,300 men, have not been accounted for by the Communists," and, "those who may be still alive endure secret captivity and its degredation and deprivations."

Appointments--Governor Briscoe named Reagan Houston of San Antonio to the State Highway Commission, succeeding Herbert C. Petry Jr. of Carrizo Springs.

Ethics Feud On--The House and Senate are poles apart on ethics legislation, and called on a conference committee to try and adjust the yawning differences.

House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., who has been stung with attorney general's opinions holding several of his reform measures unconstitutional, asked Attorney General Hill for an opinion on the Senate changes in HB 1, a cornerstone of his government cleanup package.

The Senate bill applies to only top-level state officials, legislators and judges, where the House bill took in all officials. Senators also ditched a House provision for an ethics commission to police violations and left the filing provisions up to the Secretary of State.

Agriculture Fuel Needed--Agriculture Commissioner John C. White urged the Federal Office of Oil and Gas to seek immediate compliance from industry with guidelines which would assure adequate fuel supplies for Texas agriculture.

White said curtailments are already being made in spite of federal guidelines announced May 10. The commissioner said Texas is in a "critical period," and a lack of fuel could be "disastrous" to the 1973 crop season.

RECIPE

By Sarah Anne Sheridan

It is patriotic to be a good cook, to make food taste it's best. For better flavored meals use garden herbs with a light hand. On your grocer's shelf you'll find rosemary, savory, garlic, basil, marjoram, tarragon, thyme, sage, any number of dried herbs and blends of herbs. These herbs, whether fresh or dried, are easy to use.

Spanish Chicken

2 medium sized hens
6 T cooking fat
4 large onions chopped
1 large green pepper chopped
1 No. 2 can tomatoes
1 t salt
12 cloves
3 bay leaves
1 t poultry seasoning
1 t ground sage
½ t savory
1 clove garlic
2 c uncooked rice

Cut up chicken, salt and pepper well. Melt cooking fat in large heavy iron cooking pan. Fry chicken until done. Add onions and pepper and fry until partly done. Add cloves, bay leaves, poultry seasoning, sage, savory and garlic. Cook 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Cover chicken with water and add tomatoes. When boiling add 2 cups uncooked rice. Cover closely and cook slowly for 30 minutes.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club by Mrs. Bailey Post

May is the month to enjoy the most popular of all flowering plants, the rose. They are about to come into peak bloom, with some of the large varieties of climbers already in full bloom.

If you don't have the space or right location with plenty of sunshine, try growing tomatoes in containers. They can be grown in large, deep cans or baskets, if plants are supported in an upright position or in a 10 or 12 inch hanging basket with rich, porous soil, leaving 2 inches of water space at the top. Let the plant cascade over the sides. They should have water daily if hot weather prevails. Feed lightly with a complete liquid fertilizer once each week. Some varieties, dwarf or cherry tomatoes adapt better to this type of culture.

One of the most prolific vines to bloom in August is the white clematis (C. paniculata). It does need to be planted on the north or east side of a fence or support to provide afternoon shade on the roots. This vine has fragrant white clusters of flowers and very interesting tufts of plumed seeds. Small plants that come up from seeds are easily transplanted.

Problem: How to tell when soil is workable. Soil should not be worked when too wet, because the air will be driven out and the particles compacted into long lasting clods. Gardeners have several tests for soil workability. Some press a ball of soil in their hands, and if it forms a mass that keeps its shape when released, it is too wet. Some make a ball and pitch it on the ground to see if it crumbles. If it does, it is in working condition.

Debra Says:

By HD Agent Debra Gentry

With Memorial Day comes the start of the cookout season. What are you cooking on your grill this summer? Have you grilled any vegetables lately? In grilling steaks, hamburgers, chicken, and other meats we sometimes forget vegetables. Vegetables are important for rounding out a good-tasting and nutritious meal.

Fresh potatoes, carrots, whole young squash, small beets, and young sweet corn are good for both outdoor and indoor cooking on a grill.

Frozen or canned vegetables, such as peas and snap beans can also be ccoked on the grill over hot coals. Simply divide into individual portions season with salt and papper, and add margarine; then wrap tightly in foil. Cook 10 to 15 minutes.

Grilled corn goes good with almost any charcoal grilled meat. Strip corn husks down to the end of the cob but don't tear off. Remove silks from the corn then drop it into salted water and cook for about 30 minutes.

Drain thoroughly, brush with softened butter or margarine and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Wrap two strips of bacon around each ear and bring husks up around the vegetable. Wrap each in aluminum foil and cook on charcoal for 10 minutes turning once.

You can prepare individual whole meals by combining ground beef, carrots, potatoes, onions, and season to taste. Start by buttering the center of a square sheet of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Add layers of raw-thin-sliced potatoes, carrots and onion. Season with salt and pepper and top with a seasoned ground beef patty. Seal the foil to make a tight package and cook over hot coals ten minutes. Turn and cook ten minutes longer.

To please your family and surprise guests try some of your favorite vegetables on the grill this summer.

Have a happy summer!

The Secret That Was

When someone shares a secret, it's on its way to becoming no secret at all. And yet it doesn't cease to be a secret until you have shared it.

When Jesus preached in the wilderness, hundreds came miles to hear Him. They wanted to share His secret . . . the secret of God . . . the secret of Man and God.

So right there in the wilderness, it was on its way to becoming no secret at all. Except that, even today, not everyone has shared it.

Academically every intelligent person knows what Christianity is all about. But each Sunday all over this world someone is finding in church a new strength, a new purpose, a new faith. For the heart of Christ's message brings a human soul into harmony with a mighty and loving God . . . whose power gives our lives direction . . . whose concern gives our lives meaning.

The secret that was is still a secret, until YOU share it too.

Texas Produces Most Crude Oil In Nation

In the face of unprecedented demand, Texas oil fields last year produced almost 1.3-billion barrels of crude oil, an all-time record for the state. This figure was tops among the nation's oil-producing states and represented some 38 percent of total U.S. production, according to statistics compiled by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

These figures show an increase of more than 67.8-million barrels over production in 1971. They reflect that during the last nine months of the year, the Texas Railroad Commission maintained a maximum efficient production rate for Texas fields. This marked the first time Texas wells had produced all-out since 1948.

Last year's crude oil production, recorded in 203 of the state's 254 counties, was valued at some $4.5 billion.

In 83 years of recorded production, Texas has produced nearly 37-billion barrels of oil, about 36-percent of total U.S. production.

Crockett County, which has had recorded production since 1925, last year produced 7,913,838 barrels of oil at the rate of 21,623 barrels a day. Production in 1972 boosted the County's production total through the end of the year to 221,015,528.

Capt. Houston Participates In A. F. Exercise

U. S. Air Force Captain Ronnie L. Houston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Houston, Ozona, participated in a joint training exercise held recently in Denmark and Norway.

Captain Houston is a weapons system operator with the F-4 Phantom fighter-bomber equipped 36th Tactical Fighter Wing at Bitburg AB, Germany.

The Phantom crews flew low-level navigation, reconnaissance, intercept, electronic warfare and over-water search missions during the three-day air, land and sea maneuvers.

The captain, a Vietnam veteran, was commissioned in 1967 upon completion of Officer Training School, Lackland AFB, Tex.

A 1963 graduate of Ozona High School, he received his associate degree in 1965 at Angelo State University, San Angelo, Tex., and his bachelor's degree in 1967 from Texas Tech University.

Captain Houston's wife, Penny, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benton Carlisle, Rt. 3, Kaufman, Tex.

U.S. Irish

The External Affairs Minister of Ireland, speaking in Dublin, appeals to Americans to refuse aid to the Irish Republican Army. Garret Fitzgerald says the IRA sometimes fools Americans, who then contribute money to murderous activities of the IRA.

"People of Irish origin in the United States have felt it proper to send arms and money to help an illegal organization kill other Irish people," Fitzgerald said. Such aid, he says, is contrary to the wishes of the majority of people in Ireland. (It is, of course, even more resented in Northern Ireland.)

For those who have been misguided, many with good intentions, the Irish minister's words are both timely and persuasive. Few Irish-Americans wish to support a campaign of murder and violence.
