Annual chamber banquet due...

Thursday event features Nigh

The governor of Oklahoma — a man noted for his humor as well as his down to earth style — will entertain what is expected to be a large gathering Thursday at this year's chamber of commerce banquet.

Governor George Nigh holds the distinction of being the first man in Oklahoma history to be elected to consecutive terms as governor.

At his re-election Nov. 2, 1982, he became the first person in state history to win a majority of votes in all 77 counties. He is also the first Lt. Governor to be elected governor and has actually served as governor four times.

As governor, he has filled in two unexpired terms prior to his election in 1978 as governor of the state of Oklahoma.

Nigh, age 56, began his political career in 1950 as the youngest member elected to the Oklahoma House of Representatives, serving four terms representing Pittsburg County.

In 1958, at age 31, he was elected the youngest Lt. Governor in the history of Oklahoma. In 1963, Nigh became the 17th Governor of Oklahoma, filing an unexpired term following the resignation of Governor J. Howard Edmondson.

Elected Lt. Governor on three additional occasions, Nigh served from 1967-1971, 1971-1975 and 1975-1979.

On Jan. 3, 1979, he became the 22nd Governor of Oklahoma, serving five days to fill an unexpired term following the resignation of Gov. David Boren.

In doing so, he became the first governor in Oklahoma history inaugurated outside of the Capitol City, being sworn in at ceremonies in Tulsa.

On Jan. 8, 1979 he officially began his first full four-year term at inauguration ceremonies in Oklahoma City.

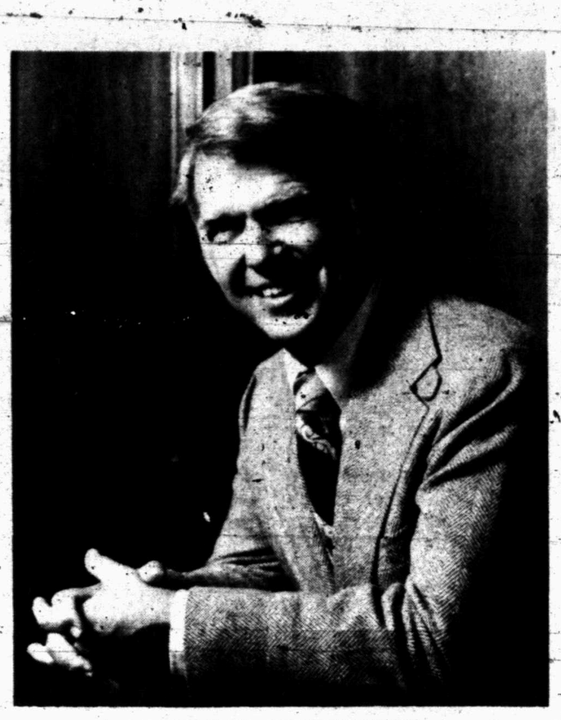

Governor Nigh is chairman of the Southern Growth Policies Board, a 13-state policy making organization for the South. He also serves as vice president of the Council of State Governments, a national legislative research organization.

He is a member of the Southern States Energy Board, has served on the executive committee of the National Governors' Association and is a past chairman of the National Conference of Lt. Governors.

He was born in McAlester, Okla. on June 9, 1927. After graduating from McAlester High School in 1945, he served a tour of duty with the U.S. Navy, then graduated from Eastern A&M Junior College at Wilburton.

In 1950, he earned his

Bids due May 10...

Guard armory renovation due

A major renovation of the Texas National Guard Armory in Towle Park is planned this summer.

Bid specifications for the work may now be picked up in Big Spring. These are available at the offices of Gary and Associates, 800 Lancaster.

According to a spokesman with the Texas National Guard Armory Board, some $314,000 has been budgeted for the project. Building renovation costs are estimated at approximately $260,000.

On the outside of the building, the plans call for repainting the facility plus the addition of a new roof. The parking area will be repaved and striped also.

Inside the facility, central air-conditioning and heating will be installed in the classroom areas and offices.

New lighting fixtures and other finish work inside is planned also and the kitchen area will be enlarged approximately four times greater than its current capacity.

Gary Guenthner, a facility engineer with the Austin-based armory board, said that a major portion of the work will involve repairing what he called a structural problem with the concrete slab that constitutes the armory's large drill area.

Different ways to repair this will be bid, he said.

Construction estimates will be received by May 10 and work is expected to begin following the Snyder July 4th celebration.

The project is expected to take from three to four months to complete.

FRIENDSHIP HOME WEEK — Scurry County Judge Preston Wilson has proclaimed the week of April 8-15 as Friendship Home Week in Scurry County. The week will include fund raising efforts planned by members of SCOOP (Scurry County Options and Opportunities for People). These funds will go toward establishing a home here for teenage girls. Pictured with Wilson at the signing are Becky Robinson (left), president of SCOOP, and board member Jane Crenweldge. (SDN Staff Photo)

Shots, birth record needed...

Pre-school signup this week

Parents of children who will be entering kindergarten next fall should pre-register their child this week at the school campus in their attendance area.

Registration days are set at individual campuses and the signup at each is scheduled from 8 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

These are planned Tuesday at Central and Northeast Elementary; Wednesday at North and East Elementary; and Thursday at West and Stanfield Elementary.

Parents should bring the child's updated immunization record and a valid birth certificate. Required immunizations include:

—Polio, a minimum of three doses with at least one having been received on or after the fourth birthday.

—DPT, a minimum of three doses with at least one having been received on or after the fourth birthday.

—Measles (Rubeola), one dose after first birthday.

—Rubella, one dose.

—Mumps, one dose.

The Scurry County Health Unit will be open Tuesday and Wednesday during pre-school roundup to give immunizations. Parents are urged to check their child's shot record prior to these dates. If shots are required, these should be obtained immediately from either the health unit or a private

Absentee voting to end Tuesday

The last day to vote absentee in the upcoming school board, city council and college board elections is Tuesday, and by Friday no more than 20-plus votes had been cast in any of the three elections.

Individuals who expect to be out of town next Saturday, April 7, may vote absentee until the close of business Tuesday. Ballots may be cast at the school administration building for the school board race; at the college administration building for the WTC board of trustee election; and at city hall for the city council vote.

The absentee count as of Friday afternoon was 24 at the school; 20 at city hall; and 13 on the campus of WTC.

Motorcycle rider in lake accident

A 27-year-old Lubbock man was listed in critical condition Saturday morning in the intensive care unit of Lubbock Methodist Hospital suffering from massive head injuries he received in a motorcycle accident near the Lake J.B. Thomas dam Friday evening.

According to Department of Public Safety highway patrolmen at the scene, Johnny Rosston of Rt. 2, Lubbock was riding an unregistered dirt-bike north bound on Farm Road 1298 parallel to the dam. He apparently failed to negotiate the turn off the paved road onto a dirt county road leading toward the north end of the dam.

The bike plunged down an embankment on the north side of the road and collided with a barbed wire fence.

Units of Aid Ambulance-Snyder were dispatched to the scene at 6:35 p.m. and Rosston was returned to Cogdell Memorial Hospital and treated before being transferred to Lubbock around 8:30 p.m.

Ambulance personnel reported that witnesses told them Rosston was on a weekend camping trip at the lake and had taken the bike to look for a telephone. He was thought to have been returning to camp at the time of the mishap.

The feller on Deep Creek says he has a friend who claims today's employees are more honest. "A guy in the office didn't show up for work--he called in lazy."

We have a lot of respect and a lot of sympathy for folks who work with abused and neglected children. There seems to be more awareness of the need for foster care in Snyder, and an organization is attempting to provide a home for neglected girls here.

For years, individual families have opened their homes to such children. It's serious business, but there are successes and sometimes even humor.

Gordon Musick, one of the child welfare workers, told us about a couple who decided to provide foster care for a young girl.

When she arrived at the home, the little girl was shown a neat little room, clean clothes and was told how much they wanted her in their family.

The child was promptly introduced to daily bathing. Although unaccustomed to it, the child took the vigorous soaping and scrubbing without complaint. After a week or so, she decided maybe she had had enough.

That night, immersed in a tub of hot water with her face and body smothered in suds, she looked up at her new mother and observed:

"You folks don't want a little girl. What you want is a duck."

How's that again?

In the small Texas town of Patton Village, a convicted police officer can no longer work as a law enforcement officer.

It seems that he lost his job for having sexual relations with a woman driver he had stopped for speeding. He plead guilty, paid his fine and agreed not to work in law enforcement.

Now the Texas Judicial Conduct Commission says the former police officer is legally qualified to run for city judge.

He can't be a policeman, but he can be a judge.

Centennial Year Footnotes: In 1915, a fire destroyed Joe Strayhorn's iron building west of the southwest corner of the square. One room was occupied by Crowder Brothers livery stable. Loss was estimated at $4,500.

Chamber drive updated

Jack Denman, chairman of the chamber of commerce membership committee, reported that in the first eight days of the current membership drive, some 15 new members have been reported.

Denman stressed that the effort is slightly less than half completed and several team members have not yet reported their new signups.

Speaking to about 16 team members Friday evening, Denman reaffirmed the drive priority that all businesses be given the chance to participate in community development through the chamber.

Denman also complimented the volunteer workers for their efforts to date.

Mr. and Miss WTC chosen

Danny Hunter of Roscoe and Cathy Caddell of Sundown have been named Mr. and Miss Western Texas College for 1983-84.

The pair were selected from a field of 12 nominees by student ballot. All nominees were introduced as campus favorites at the annual spring formal Thursday night.

Other nominees were Jayme Jones and Vera Lopez of Snyder; Vicky Vargas of Ozona, Veda Owens of Sweetwater; Karen Kuykendall of Lubbock; Bill Kelley of Roscoe; Mike Valentine of Lewisville; Clark Dennis of Fort Worth; Weldon Hurt of Gustine; and Fred Johnson of Buffalo, N.Y.

Student transfer date told

Students who do not reside in the Snyder Independent School District but wish to attend the Snyder public schools next school year must transfer by April 30, a Monday.

Those failing to transfer before this date will have to pay a tuition fee adjusted annually according to the state per capita payment.

Parents may come by the school administration building at 2901 37th St. to file for student transfers. The office is open from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The administration office will be closed for the Easter holidays April 20-23.

Artist's reception Sunday

A reception Sunday is planned in the Fine Arts Gallery at Western Texas College in honor of John Gibson, WTC art professor whose paintings and drawings will be featured in a one-man show through April 30.

The reception is open to the public and is scheduled from 1:30 until 3:30 p.m.

Eight portraits will be included in the exhibit along with four West Texas landscapes in oil.

Event for candidate's wife

Carol Hance, wife of U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock, will be honored at a coffee Monday from 10 until 11 a.m. at the Snyder Savings and Loan Community Room. All women in the community are invited.

The congressman is a Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate post to be vacated by John Tower.

Accompanying Mrs. Hance from Lubbock will be Imogene Birdwell Price, a former Snyder resident, and Martha Ann Cates Johnson, niece of local resident Louise Thompson.

Also expected with the group is Don Boucher, political consultant for the Hance campaign and immediate past executive director of the Democratic Party.

VFW elections scheduled

Election of officers will be staged here Monday at meetings of the VFW Post 8231 and its ladies auxiliary.

These will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the post home. A dinner will be served following the meeting.

Sundowners meeting due

The Sundowners Riding Club will meet Monday to distribute posters and tickets for its upcoming junior rodeo planned April 19-21.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. at the club house. All members are urged to attend.

Mishap spills chemical

MALAKOFF, Texas (AP) — Most of the 500 people evacuated after a collision between a train and a gravel truck were back home Saturday as engineers worked to clean up a spill of chromic acid.

The chemical was spilled Friday when the train hit the truck, burst into flames and derailed near the downtown section of this Central Texas town, authorities said.

The truck driver was killed and authorities were forced to evacuate a mile-wide area shortly after the 11:30 a.m. accident.

The body of the unidentified driver was not found until about 8:30 p.m., a Department of Public Safety spokeswoman in Waco said.

City Admnistrator Buddy Thompson said a brakeman on the Cotton Belt train was treated for minor injuries at a local hospital and released.

The DPS spokeswoman said engineers from Copperas Co. of Georgia, the chemical company that shipped the chemical, were on the scene overseeing the cleanup as the fire continued to smolder.

Man 'said'...

Nurse shut off machine

PEABODY, Mass. (AP) — Using his crippled knuckle and thumb to operate a special computer keyboard, a partially paralyzed man typed out the words he hopes will convict a nurse accused of switching off his respirator: "She shut machine off."

William Cronin, who suffers from an incurable nerve disease, testified Friday that private-duty nurse Victoria Knowlton then told him, "You're going to die," and lit a cigarette.

"Did you mean to type, 'You're going to die'?" asked Essex Assistant District Attorney Thomas Drechler.

Cronin, a 59-year-old businessman who cannet speak and breathes with the help of a tube attached to his neck, nodded in assent. He later testified that he had not wanted to die.

"I were weak," he typed. He had lapsed into a coma after the alleged incident but was revived by his two sons.

Mrs. Knowlton, 35, who has pleaded innocent to a charge of assault with attempt to murder, is accused of trying to kill Cronin on Feb. 16 while she cared for him at his Lynnfield home.

A hearing was held Friday in Peabody District Court to determine if there is enough evidence to send the case to trial.

Cronin, the father of six, was stricken four years ago with amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, commonly known as Lou Gehrig's disease.

Cronin's 23-year-old son, Ronald, testified that Mrs. Knowlton told him she may have turned off the respirator when she gave Cronin a face rub earlier in the evening.

The son said Mrs. Knowlton had come into his bedroom and awakened him, saying, "Ron! Ron! Come help. Your father is dead."

As he tried to revive his father, the son said, he noticed the respirator's toggle switch was turned off. He said his mother turned to the nurse and said, "Victoria, you better have an explanation for this. Victoria, why is the machine off?"

"She had no answer. She was just sighing," the son said.

At the hearing, Cronin used a special keyboard designed for handicapped people. The words were printed out on a tickertape and were read aloud in the courtroom by attorneys.

Drug suspect is asked about restaurant deaths

WACO, Texas (AP) — Authorities refused to reveal what information they might have gathered from a drug suspect about last year's slayings of five people abducted from a fast-food restaurant in Kilgore, authorities said.

Texas Ranger Glenn Elliott said he and Rusk County investigator Doyle Williams went to Waco on Friday to question the man about the killings, but Elliott would not give any other information.

McLennan County officials said the man, about 30, was arrested Thursday and was being held in the McLennan County Jail under $10,000 bond on charges of possession of methamphetamines.

The man, described as being from Kilgore, was taken into custody after a sheriff's deputy, making a routine traffic check, smelled a "pungent" chemical odor and searched the car, authorities said.

Two women and three men were taken from a Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant in Kilgore on Sept. 23 and were shot in the head as they lay face down beside a dirt road 18 miles south of the East Texas city.

Investigators said about $2,000 was taken from the restaurant.

Texas Ranger G.W. Burks of Dallas, who was supervising the investigation, said in January that drugs or drug dealing might have been involved in the slayings.

Authorities predicted in January that they might seek indictments from a Rusk County grand jury in March.

Police said at least two people were believed to have taken part in the killings. A ballistics test by the Texas Department of Public Safety indicated that more than one gun was used.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Sometimes I yearn for the good old days when cars were black, shirts were white and ice cream was either chocolate or vanilla.

No pressures, No decisions, No anxieties. Is it any wonder everyone is falling apart these days? We're drowning in choices.

Do you want your bathroom to smell like a pine forest or a day at the gym? Pick a scent. Potatoes, rice, or stuffing? Make a choice. First class, economy, coach, business, or a folding chair on the wing? Smoking or non-smoking? Window or aisle?

When I ate out, I used to be able to place my order in a couple of sentences. Now I have a dialogue with the waiter that lasts longer than most marriages.

"How do you want your steak? Rare? Medium rare? Medium? Medium Well? Well? Burnt beyond recognition. What do you want on your salad? Thousand Island? Vinegar and oil? Roquefort? Blue cheese? House? We have Brussels sprouts, buttered peas, limas and asparagus for a vegetable. How do you want your potatoes? French fried? Home fries? Baked? What do you want on your baked potato? Butter, chives? Sour cream. Bacon bits?"

And if you've ever made a decision lately on what phone to buy, you know you could make a profession out of it. The decision to have your phone rest on the table or hang from a wall was just the beginning. Next came what color do you want resting on the table or hanging on a wall. This was followed by all kinds of options. Do you want a cord on it? Do you want it to dial a number for you? One line or six? A hold button. Do you want one in the car. With or without a cord. How about a privacy release button. A receiver in Kermit the Frog's mouth. A button for conference calls? An extra-long cord that will follow you to the shopping center? A ring that plays the theme from "Dr. Zhivago"?

Television for me used to be an antidote for a life-threatening day. I'd prop myself up in front of the set like a lump and try one of three channels.

No more.

Every night I have to decide what I want to watch: a 24-hour mini-series called "Sleaze" ... a documentary on how scorpions mate ... the Yugoslavian Battery Jumping team vs. the Polish team ... Convent Bloopers ... Your Car's Horoscope ... Sibling Face-off ... the city council of Gary, Ind., in session ... a weather feature tracking a cold front ... Michael Jackson riveting himself into the floor ... a spleen transplant ... watching celebrities floss for dollars or any one of 300 shows being offered.

All my husband asked last night was, "Which one do you want to watch?" I fell apart.

'Candy Man' executed for death of young son

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Ronald Clark O'Bryan asked "God's forgiveness for all of us" and then was executed by a lethal injection early today for killing his 8-year-old son with cyanide-laced Halloween candy.

O'Bryan, 39, dubbed the "Candy Man" by his fellow inmates, was pronounced dead at 12:48 a.m. CST.

"We as human beings do make mistakes and errors," said a calm O'Bryan as he lay strapped to a gurney in the death chamber, needles in his arms.

"This execution is one of those wrongs," he said. "But it doesn't mean the whole system of justice is wrong. Therefore, I forgive all — and I do mean all — those who have been involved in my death."

After the execution began, an 18-year-old Texas A&M student O'Bryan had corresponded with for six months began to cry.

"Ron, I'll miss you," pen-pal Kim Manganaro yelled, her voice quavering.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox offered her a handkerchief as she wept. After the execution, she was escorted by two corrections guards to a car.

O'Bryan, who in death row interviews insisted he was innocent, is the third Texas inmate to be put to death by lethal injection and the second Texas inmate executed this month. James David Autry was executed March 14.

As 24 witnesses filed into death chamber today, O'Bryan turned and looked, winking or nodding his head at those he recognized.

Warden Jack Pursley asked him if he had any last words. O'Bryan recited a two-minute statement.

"If in any of my 39 years I have offended anyone, I hope they will forgive me as I forgive them. I also pray and ask God's forgiveness for all of us respectively, as human beings," he said.

His last words were, "God bless you all and may God's best blessings be always yours."

He was dressed in the clothes he had selected for the execution: dark trousers, a khaki shirt and running shoes. The glasses he had asked to wear were missing.

O'Bryan yawned, his chest heaved and his eyes rolled after the mixture of drugs flowed into his veins. He gasped and seconds later there was a gurgling, choking sound, as if he were clearing his throat. He was pronounced dead 10 minutes after the deadly solution began.

A crowd of nearly 300, mostly young people, cheered as witnesses emerged from the prison.

O'Bryan's body was taken to Houston for an autopsy. His eyes were to be removed immediately and donated to the Lions Club Eye Bank, as the former optician had requested.

The Rev. Ron Cloutier, a Harris County Jail chaplain who met O'Bryan at a hearing and who today witnessed the execution, said afterward, "As a society we figured out how to recycle beer cans, but we haven't figured out how to recycle human beings."

O'Bryan's son, Timothy, died after eating a cyanide-laced candy called Giant Pixy Stix on Halloween 1974. Prosecutors said he murdered the child to collect $31,000 in insurance.

O'Bryan's ex-wife, Daynene, 39, told the Houston Chronicle on Friday, "He made his bed, and now he is having to lie in it.

"I have no pity for him," she said.

The Boer War broke out in South Africa in 1899.

Prison building paid for twice

AUSTIN (AP) — A state lawmaker says a Texas Department of Corrections "flim-flam" forced taxpayers to pay twice for the same prison building.

House Law Enforcement Committee Chairman Ray Keller's comments came shortly after the prison board chairman conceded there have been problems in the TDC construction program.

"We cannot defend the past," said Robert Gunn of Wichita Falls. "We will conceal nothing. We do not hide from the accusations and guilt of mismanagement."

"Most accusations are accurate — especially in the area of construction, but also in the area of supervision and utilization of various funds," Gunn told lawmakers at a Friday joint committee hearing.

The double payment came on a 900-bed facility at the Ramsey Unit in Rosharon, south of Houston. TDC asked for $4 million to build the facility, and a potato warehouse and canning plant.

Legislators approved only $3.6 million and told TDC not to build the warehouse and plant, Keller said.

Robert Petty, TDC assistant director for construction, told the lawmakers Friday that the 900-bed facility had been built with other money. The money lawmakers thought they appropriated for that building went to the warehouse and plant, Petty acknowledged.

Keller said, "The money we appropriated was exactly to the dollar what it cost for the canning plant and potato warehouse." He added, "It was a flim-flam they got away with."

"We paid for them twice," he said of the 900 beds. "They didn't use that money on a 900-bed facility. They are in the process of using it on a potato warehouse and canning facility."

Those two projects are now in the slab stage, he said.

Keller wants TDC projects monitored by another state agency.

The apparently misspent construction money is the latest in a series of allegations of improprieties in TDC projects.

Keller also told prison officials he is dissatisfied with their use of a law allowing inmates to be released to halfway houses.

Cancer drive here goes door-to-door

Volunteers of the Scurry County Unit of the American Cancer Society will be waging a door-to-door "battle against cancer" Monday through April 14, according to Caron Perkins, residential drive chairman for the 1984 effort.

The door-to-door drive is called C-Days and is part of a month-long educational and fund-raising campaign.

"This year, trained volunteers will be carrying information on the two most common and deadly forms of cancer," said Perkins.

A folder offering a "Quick Test on Cancer Risks for Lung, Colon and Rectum" will be handed out to all residents.

"This short test may help save some lives here," Perkins said. "The test helps people find out how lifestyle, medical history and health habits could affect their risk of getting lung and colorectal cancer."

Individuals interested in helping with the door-to-door effort are invited to call local workers at 573-4041.

Nixon home for visit

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Nixon is returning to his former seaside residence here, but not to stay — just as part of a four-day visit to Southern California from his New Jersey home.

A private reception for Nixon was planned for late this afternoon at La Casa Pacifica, the coastal home the former chief executive used as his Western White House. The home now is owned by Gavin Herbert, co-chairman of the Richard Nixon Presidential Archives Foundation.

Until Tuesday, Nixon will be a guest at the Rancho Mirage desert estate of Walter Annenberg, former ambassador to Great Britain, Nixon aide Nick Ruwe said Thursday.

Death causes policy probe

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A dying man whose brother begged ambulance technicians to take him to the hospital could not legally be transported because he would not give his consent, ambulance service officials said.

The man's brother, Ron Thomas, said he argued with ambulance technicians for 30 minutes.

"I begged them to take him to the hospital, and they kept saying that they couldn't without his consent," Thomas told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Reginald Thomas, 30, died March 10 after the attack.

"He was drifting in and out of consciousness. He wasn't saying anything, just mumbling. His fiancee was trying to get him to say OK, and he finally did and they took him to the hospital," Thomas said.

Bob Harvey,a shift supervisor for the ambulance service, Daniel Emergency Medical Service, said the ambulance company technically can be charged with kidnapping or with battery if they take a patient without the patient's consent.

"According to my reports, and I talked to the paramedics who made the call, the patient was conscious and talking. He was combative and would not allow us to put him on the stretcher," Harvey said.

"Any legal adult who is conscious can refuse transportation, and we can't touch him, no matter who wants us to take him, even if it is his wife," he said.

Kit Carson, emergency medical services coordinator for the city of Fort Worth, which subsidizes the ambulance service, said, "It is against the law to force someone to go to a hospital."

The law is designed to assure individuals of their right to refuse treatment, Carson said.

"A person has the right to refuse treament if he is conscious and in his right mind," Carson said.

Determining whether a patient is in his right mind is a judgment call, Carson said.

"It is a matter of individual freedom," said City Attorney Wade Adkins. "In the case of a minor, you need a court order to force treatment that a parent does not want for the child. Unless there is a danger to the public health, you cannot ordinarily force someone to accept treatment."

Thomas contends that his brother never refused to go to the hospital, though he did not orally give his permission until just before he was put into the ambulance and taken to St. Joseph Hospital's emergency room.

Why you should pick a Macintosh Apple.

Macintosh™ is the newest member of Apple's 32-bit family. Its brain is the same blindingly fast 32-bit microprocessor found in the Lisa™ Personal Computer.

You can cut information from one program and paste it into another. Or even take figures out of a spreadsheet program like Multiplan™ and turn them into a spectacular bar graph, without touching the keyboard.

Pull down menus give you all the options you need to work with numbers, words or pictures.

Complex computer commands are replaced with on-screen pictures called icons. Common objects like file folders. Clipboards. Even a trash can.

Macintosh
Clock
Trash Can
MacPaint
Document

Macintosh's built-in disk drive uses miniature 3½" disks that store 400K bytes — far more information than conventional 5¼" floppies. Big enough to hold a desk full of work. Small enough to fit in a shirt pocket.

If you can't bring the problem to a Macintosh, you can always bring a Macintosh to the problem. It's 1/3 the size of the most popular 16-bit machines. And weighs 8 lbs. less than the most popular "transportable."

Since the mouse replaces the usual confusing array of command keys, this keyboard is strictly for typing. With a full size, office-style layout. It's also detached — so you can position it anywhere that's comfortable.

This palm-sized "mouse" controller replaces typed-in computer commands with a form of communication you already understand — pointing.

Finally, you should pick a Macintosh from us. Because we can answer all your questions and provide full service and support. Come in for a demonstration, and meet Macintosh. But do it now. Before we're picked clean.

IN EXHIBIT–This portrait of Evelyn Davies will be included in an exhibition of works by John Gibson opening Sunday at Western Texas College. Gibson will also be showing seven other portraits along with other works in various mediums in the show which is scheduled to continue through April 30. (WTC Photo)

John Gibson...

One-man art show slated

Paintings and drawings by John Gibson will be featured in the Fine Arts Gallery at Western Texas College from April 1-30.

A reception marking the opening of the exhibit is scheduled from 1:30-3:30 p.m. on April 1 and the public is invited to attend.

A native of Oklahoma, Gibson was graduated from the University of Oklahoma with the bachelor of fine arts degree in painting. He received the master of the fine arts degree from North Texas State University and joined the art faculty at WTC in 1979. His works have been featured in other exhibits at the college but this will be his first one-man show there.

Eight portraits will be included in the show along with four West Texas landscapes in oil. There is also a relief sculpture in hydrastone. The largest piece is an interior seven feet in length.

In 1983, Gibson was among the exhibitors at the 47th annual Mid-Year Show of the Butler Institute of American Art in Youngstown, Ohio, the 39th annual painting competition of the Abilene Museum of Fine Arts in Abilene and the Museum of the Southwest Painting Competituon in Midland.

He and Mike Thornton, chairman of the WTC Fine Arts Division, held two-man exhibits at Angelo State University, Odessa College, Midland College and Abilene Christian University in 1983.

Gibson received an honorable mention in the Snyder Palette Club's 11th annual exhibition in 1982 and an honorable mention in the 1981-1982 Midland Art Association exhibitions. He received first place in the painting division of the Art Annual XVII in San Marco in 1980 and won the gand purchase award in the 11th annual Arkansas Artists' Exhibition in Pine Bluff, Ark. in 1979.

Adult classes are ongoing

Adults who would like to prepare for GED tests are invited to enroll in the Adult Education classes offered on Tuesday and Thursday nights at Western Texas College.

"Students can enroll at any class meeting," Howard Sawyer, Adult Education coordinator, stresses. "Anyone who would like to join us can meet with us at 6 on Tuesday or Thursday night. Classes are held in the Learning Resource Center from 6 to 9. People who work and can't come at 6 can come as late as 7:30 or 8 and still have time to get in some study."

There is no charge for the Adult Education Classes, which are open to adults who did not complete high school. WTC does not give GED tests since Snyder High School already schedules these.

The Adult Education classes do offer instruction in the same subjects covered by GED tests. Persons enrolling begin at whatever level they have already achieved either through schools or personal study.

THINK BEFORE YOU LIFT

If there's a box to be moved at work, you just move it. You seldom think about how to do it properly. Right?

If there's a piece of furniture to be moved at home, you just move it. You seldom wait until you can get help. Right?

It's this tendency to want to get the obstacle out of the way as quickly as possible, and the erroneous belief that you can manage anything you can lift, that causes most back injuries. Sprains and strains of the back are the third major cause of activity limitation, superseded only by heart conditions and arthritis/rheumatism conditions.

Most disabling back injuries come from falls and careless lifting. They occur on the job, and at home as well. Thus, it is important to protect your back by learning, observing, and teaching preventive habits.

Following are the Rules for Lifting as recommended by doctors of chiropractic.

— Size up the object to be lifted; decide how best to get a good grip on it.

— Plant your feet about 10-12 inches apart and solidly close to the object to be lifted. Squat down, keeping the spine straight.

— Lift up with the big muscles of your legs, thighs, arms and shoulders — NOT with the back. Keep the load close to your body.

— Use mechanical lifting devices for moving heavy objects. Get help for large, bulky, awkward, or extra-heavy loads.

— Use rhythm, both alone and in a team effort. Let the load help lift itself.

— Be sure you can see where you're going.

— Setting the load down is just the reverse of lifting. Keep the back straight, let the legs bend slowly, and set the load down easy.

Prevention is the best way to avoid a back injury. However, if a strain or back injury should occur, no matter how minor, it is wise to visit a doctor of chiropractic immediately. Spinal problems must not be neglected as they can cause or contribute to disorders which appear at many other parts of the body.

Candidates to speak at center

Candidates seeking election to local offices in April 7 elections will be guests at the Senior Center this week.

On Tuesday, city council candidates are invited to speak briefly in a program starting at 11:30 a.m. Candidates for election to the Snyder Independent School District Board of trustees and the Western Texas College board are invited to address senior citizens at 11:30 a.m. Friday.

Pine Wood racers built by senior citizens will race in competition at 11:30 a.m. Thursday. Cub Scouts are to judge the races as a return favor for the judging done by senior citizens at their races earlier.

A bowling tournament will be held at 2:30 p.m. Thursday at Snyder Lanes. Senior citizens bowl each Thursday afternoon and contestants must have bowled at least three games previously to enter the tournament.

Exercise programs geared for Senior Citizens are a part of each week's activities at the center. Stretching and bending exercises are stressed in a daily session at 11:15 a.m. Swimnastics is scheduled at 10:30 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Western Texas College indoor swimming pool. A reducing exercise class for women meets at 3:30 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays.

Located at 2603 Avenue M, the Senior Center is open each weekday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Thursdays.

Ex-student wins contest

Chris Walior of Colorado City, a former Western Texas College art major, has won first prize in the National Recreational Sports Week Design Contest.

His design for posters and buttons for Sports Week 1984 will be used in national promotional materials. He received a cash award along with the honor of having this design selected.

Walior is currently a junior at North Texas State University. His wife is the former Rebecca Pierce of Snyder.

It's hard to believe, but there once was an English race horse named Crytochon-choiphyastigmatic. It would not be possible in the U.S. where only 18 letters are permitted.

Council condemns use of chemical weapons

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Security Council condemned the use of chemical weapons in the Iran-Iraq war without naming Iraq as the culprit. Iran said the action was "not strong enough" and vowed to keep fighting until Iraq's president is captured and tried as a war criminal.

Friday's condemnation, which also called for a cease-fire in the 3½-year conflict, came in the form of a presidential statement — the weakest type of council action requiring neither open debate nor a formal vote.

At the same time, the State Department said it has evidence that Iraq has used nerve gas against Iran and announced that controls are being imposed on the export of certain chemical compounds to both countries.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said President Reagan has been kept "fully apprised" of U.S. concerns about the use of nerve gas and has made his protests known "through diplomatic channels to all governments in the region."

Iraq repeatedly has denied Iran's allegations that it used chemical weapons.

Iran has made the charges several times during the war. Most recently, it said gas bombs were dropped on Iranian soldiers in fighting east of Iraq's second largest city of Basra. A handful of the soldiers apparently suffering from chemical wounds were sent to European hospitals, where some died.

The 15-nation council statement urged "the states concerned scrupulously to adhere to the obligations" of the 1925 Geneva Protocol banning the use of chemical and bacteriological weapons. Both Iran and Iraq are parties to the international pact.

Iran's U.N. delegate said the council's action was "not strong enough." He also vowed his country would keep fighting until Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is captured and tried as a war criminal.

The Soviet Union, which has been Iraq's major arms supplier, maneuvered behind the scenes to discourage the council from registering condemnation in the more binding form of a resolution, which would have required a vote and could have sparked a heated debate between Iran and Iraq.

Council sources speculated that, in the face of overwhelming evidence of chemical weapons use, the Soviets wanted to avoid an open debate to protect the Iraqis from further embarrassment.

In response to charges from Tehran, four specialists were sent by the United Nations to Iran two weeks ago.

Tate hurls no-hitter as...

Snyder blasts Panthers, 11-1

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Snyder took everything Fort Stockton had to give and left nothing in return as the Tigers blasted the Panthers in their district opener here Friday, 11-1.

While his teammates were discovering how many ways they could score, a pumped up Paul Tate was tossing no-hit ball before the game was called by the 10-run rule after four and a half innings.

"We needed to play well," said the senior right-hander, who wasn't bothered by the 10-20 mile per hour crosswinds and a wind-chill factor of 42 degrees. "I kept warm in the dugout between innings. When I got out there I didn't even think about it. Playing at home in the first district game and getting to start, well, I guess I was pretty up for the game."

Except for a single run in the third when Mark Ochoa scored on a passed ball, Fort Stockton got runners to third base only three times; each time with two outs. Tate handled the situations well, offering a strikeout in the first inning, getting one in the third on a popup which catcher Eddie McClure pulled down and wiping off the final batter of the game on a fly ball to second-sacker Jay Mayo. He also fanned the side in the fourth, claiming eight strikeouts for the night's work.

Meanwhile, Snyder's offense started slowly against pitcher Daniel Sarabia. A lack of early hitting was made up with intelligence at the plate. Norman Malone led off the second inning with a walk and moved to third when McClure bunted and the Panthers overthrew first base. Malone then scored on a balk. McClure moved to second on the pitcher's miscue and gave up his place to pinch runner Willie Greathouse who scored on a passed ball. William Cotton walked and came in on Jimmy Cain's single to make it 3-0.

"We noticed they were judging the wind and they went with Sarabia who is a good curve ball pitcher. We had problems at first, but we started getting patient and waited on him," said Coach Albert Lewis.

Sarabia was pulled in favor of Guy Gladson in the second inning. Gladson managed to get Fort Stockton out of the second and third innings but the game fell apart for the Panthers in the fourth.

Cotton walked, then scored when Bobby Velasquez bunted and Gladson overthrew first base. Velasquez was out at second on the play, but Snyder added another runner when Cain followed with a walk.

Chad Peterson then hit a single and again the Panthers made an error which resulted in Cain scoring.

Next up Chris Sanders slapped a ground ball to score Peterson when the Fort Stockton catcher also overthrew first base, 6-1.

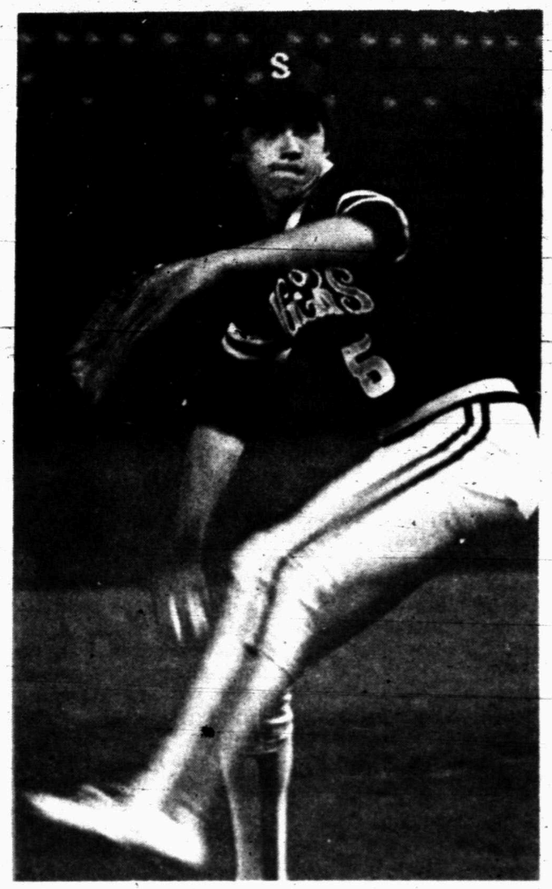

That brought in a third pitcher, Richard Morales, who promptly gave up a run-scoring single to Charles Bollinger. In subsequent action, McClure got a two-run single and Velasquez slammed a two-run double to make the score 11-1.

"We played well except for our baserunning," said Lewis, who bemoaned the fact that Snyder runners were thrown out trying for extra bases on several occasions. "I'll bet we had at least five guys thrown out on running errors. Other than that, we hit the ball pretty well and played good defense. Paul threw as well as I've ever seen him throw. Except for some walks, he was in full control out there," added the coach.

The win was Snyder's fourth in a row and gives the Tigers a 9-5 season record. Fort Stockton falls to 5-6.

Snyder will play again

NO-HITTER -- Senior pitcher Paul Tate held the Fort Stockton Panthers without a hit as Snyder won its first District 2-4A outing of the season here Friday, 11-1. Andrews among Friday's victims

Snyder, Pecos and Lamesa were the winners in the first District 2-4A outings of the season Friday.

Snyder got no-hit pitching from Paul Tate and turned the lights out via the 10-run rule to burn Fort Stockton 11-1 in Snyder. Daniel Sarabia was the losing pitcher.

The Tigers are now 9-5 for the season; Fort Stockton is 5-6.

Elias Payan pitched three-hit ball and had 11 strikeouts as Pecos handed Andrews only its second loss of the season, 1-0. Pecos, 9-8, scored the lone run in the bottom of the sixth when Erasmo Acosta doubled, was sacrificed to third on a bunt and scored on Leon Mosby's single. Omar Trevino was the losing pitcher for Andrews, now 15-2. He also gave up three hits.

Lamesa tagged Monahans 8-2 as Johnny Gonzales struck out 12 and allowed only three hits. The Golden Tornadoes, now 8-8, scored in five of the seven innings. Johnny Bates took the loss with only one and one-third innings of work. He was relieved by Trey Ford. Monahans is 6-5.

In play coming up Tuesday, Pecos is at Snyder, Andrews is at Monahans and Lamesa is at Fort Stockton.

Sweetwater takes lead in boy's 2-4A golf play

LAMESA -- Sweetwater A team got a pair of 84s from Jack Poe and Steve Skupin to win the first District 2-4A boys golf tournament of the season here Friday.

Sweetwater edged favorite Andrews 349 strokes to 352. Andrews' Scott Jones also shot an 84 as three golfers tied for the lead in the medalist race.

Snyder shot a 409 to finish in 12th place.

Team totals will be added after three district meets and the teams with the two low scores will serve as champion and runnerup. The next tournament will be Friday (April 6) at Snyder's Western Texas College course. Tee off is 11 a.m.

Snyder had only one player to break 100. Lance Leatherwood shot a 95. Other A-team scores were a 101 by Todd Turner, a 104 by Chad Sellars, a 109 by Mike McKinney and a 118 by David Holley. The low four scores on a team are used to compute the team total.

Snyder B squad has only three players and thus cannot compete as a team. Playing for the B squad were Shane Gann, a 114; Virgil Feinsod, a 118; and Billy Newton, a 123.

Pecos A team and Sweetwater B tied for fourth place here with a pair of 360s. Lamesa A was fifth with a 364, followed by Monahans A with a 366. Thirteen teams were entered.

Tigers grab early lead at San Angelo Relays

SAN ANGELO -- Ricky Vaughn won the discus and Chad Peterson outdistanced the field in the long jump as Snyder polled 20 points in early action of the San Angelo Relays here Friday.

The Tigers also qualified two relay teams, Peterson in the 100 and Darren Greenway in the 200 for Saturday's finals which were to start at noon.

Vaughn tossed the discus 162 feet to win one of only two events that were finalized Friday. In the other, Chad Peterson soared 22-6½ to win the long jump.

Peterson also ran a 10.75 to qualify as the second fastest runner in Saturday's 100 meter finals. The Tiger senior, who doubles as a starter for the Snyder baseball team, had to leave to get back for a baseball game and was unable to run in the 200 meter prelims.

The Tiger 400 meter relay team of Greenway, Tommy Holladay, Marcus McGlouthin and Peterson qualified in fifth place for Saturday's finals with a 44.5. Coach Robert Crawford said there was a possibility Kyle Freeman would replace McGlouthin in that event for the finals. McGlouthin is also on the 1600 meter relay team which ran a fifth-place qualifying time of 3:33.4.

Others on the 1600 team are Holladay, Greenway and Sunny Cobb.

Cobb will not be able to run in the finals because he will be taking an SAT test on Saturday. He will be replaced by Earl Ware.

Snyder is also entered in Saturday's other field events. McGlouthin and Chris Garrett will compete in the high jump; Freeman and Chris Stevens in the shot put; and Reggie Price and Robert Patterson in the pole vault.

Friday's results left Snyder and Kerrville Tivy with 20 points each, Brownwood with 7, Sweetwater 6, Monahans 5 and Andrews and Pecos, 2 each.

Girls to tee off Monday

SWEETWATER -- Snyder's girls will eye a District 2-4A golf championship when they play their final loop tournament here Monday.

The Lady Tigers carry a 36-stroke advantage into the tournament which tees off at 11 a.m.

Snyder has a three-tournament total of 1,176 strokes while Andrews has a total of 1,212. Pecos is 41 strokes back with a 1,253. The champion and runnerup will advance to regional play.

Snyder's Lisa Franklin leads the medalist race with a 252, followed by Lisa Sheeler of Fort Stockton with a 293 and Rebekah Powell of Snyder and Kellie Nelson of Andrews with 295s.

Mitchell talks with UTSU

CANYON -- Howard College coach Mike Mitchell is in Canyon this weekend, apparently consulting with officials about the vacated basketball coaching position at West Texas State University.

Mitchell, who reportedly has been offered the post, coached the Hawks to a Western Junior College Athletic Conference championship this season.

A veteran of junior college ranks, Mitchell led Western Texas College to a NJCAA National Tournament championship in 1975. His WTC Westerners placed sixth in the nationals in 1977.

He is in his first year as coach at Howard College.

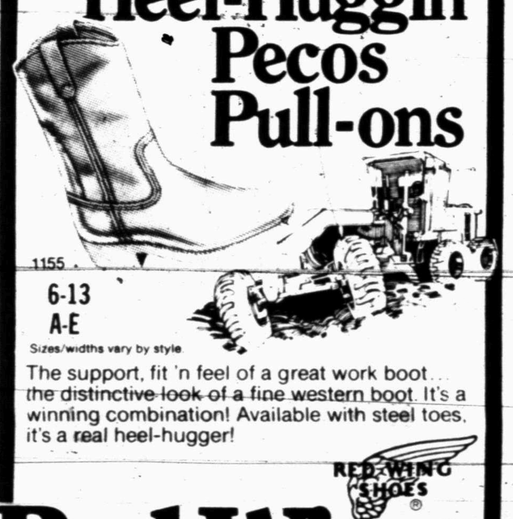

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

ASPIRIN vs BLOOD CLOT

Many physicians take a small daily dose of aspirin to reduce the chance of stroke or heart attack. Aspirin helps because it slows blood clotting. Clots in coronary arteries cause some heart attacks — clots in brain arteries cause stroke. Researchers find that half an aspirin daily is as effective as bigger doses for slowing blood clotting.

Intimidation constant factor in NCAA semifinal rounds

SEATTLE (AP) - Just as it was the buzzword at the Super Bowl, so has it become the byword of the Final Four.

The word is "intimidation."

It bespeaks of 7-footers staking out their territory underneath the basket, of tenacious defenses pressing and trapping, of rim-shaking, crowd-rousing slam dunks.

"Intimidation is a fact of life," says Patrick Ewing, the dominating Georgetown center who will be leaning his 7-0, 240-pound frame against the Kentucky Wildcats' 6-11, 240-pound Melvin Turpin Saturday in the second half of the NCAA championships.

In the first game, Houston, with its own man in the middle in 7-0, 245-pound Akeem Olajuwon, faced Virginia, the only team without a dominating center as the Cavaliers played without three-time Player of the Year Ralph Sampson, now a pro.

The first game was set for 2:39 p.m. before a sellout crowd of 39,000 in the Kingdome.

The Hoyas play hard. There is little finesse to what they do, which is just fine with the Wildcats. "Georgetown plays a lot like we do," says Turpin. "We don't back down from nobody."

Neither do the Wildcats.

To John Thompson, the outspoken coach of the Hoyas, the officiating may be one of the most important factors.

"I just hope the officials aren't influenced by all this talk of intimidation," he said. "I think when you've got good athletes who are agile and 6-8, 6-9, taller, those people have a tendency to make contact with one another."

Joe B. Hall, the Kentucky coach, is on his third trip to the Final Four. He is the only coach among the four to have won the title - and if he hopes to add to it he'll have to find a way to deal with Ewing.

Ewing has expanded his defensive play by moving out of the middle to block perimeter shots. He may have to do that against Kentucky's big men.

For two of the four coaches, the games Saturday and Monday night could represent a step toward redemption of a sort.

Terry Holland's Virginia Cavaliers were supposed to win it all last year, the year before that, the year before that ... They had Sampson. But the closest they got was a loss in the 1981 semis.

TIGERS IN SAN ANGELO – Snyder's boys were in San Angelo this weekend, competing against some top caliber teams in the Angelo Relays. In action Friday, Ricky Vaughn and Chad Peterson both won first places. The meet was to continue Saturday. Among other events scheduled was the pole vault. Above, vaulter Reggie Price clears the bar. Hagler defends undisputed title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - While Juan Domingo Roldan may have looked like a routine stop on middleweight champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler's route to another mega-bucks fight, for a brief time he appeared to be a major obstacle.

Roldan knocked Hagler down in the first round of their title bout Friday night, then landed a number of solid blows in the next.

That, however, ended the brief blaze of glory for the underdog challenger from Argentina.

Hagler, who hopes to be able to meet Sugar Ray Leonard or Thomas Hearns in a fight that would produce a huge purse, took command of the fight in the third round and went on to the ninth successful defense of his undisputed middleweight title with a 10th-round knockout.

The tide turned in the third when Hagler landed a crushing uppercut to the challenger's right eye. Roldan stood straight up, blinking, and Hagler landed a flurry of punches that sent the Argentine sprawling into the ropes.

Wobbly, Roldan took an eight-count and continued, but the fight belonged to the champion from that point on.

Hagler used his boxing skill, cautiously punishing Roldan through the next six rounds, then unleashed an all-out attack in the 10th.

"The bell saved him a couple of times, but I said, 'OK, this is the bus stop, this is where he gets off,'" Hagler said.

Colts following through despite legal blockades

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Despite legal efforts by Baltimore to prevent the Colts from moving their National Football League franchise to Indianapolis, officials met here Saturday to consider the terms of a lease worked out by negotiators.

The Capital Improvements Board released the details of the lease agreement before the meeting started at the Indiana Convention Center.

The meeting was held despite court action Friday in Baltimore, where City Circuit Judge Robert Karwacki signed a 10-day temporary restraining order barring the team from moving. The order was signed less than an hour after Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer signed a bill giving the city the right to move or seize the team under eminent domain. The City Council passed the bill during an emergency session Friday.

The terms of the Indianapolis lease agreement include a 20-year term with two five-year renewal options. The Colts would pay $250,000 per year plus $25,000 per playoff game during the term of the lease.

The Colts also will assume the expenses of ticket takers and security plus other costs associated with the day of the game. A 5 percent admission tax would be added to all tickets sold for Colts' games. The tax would help pay off bonds purchased to build the new 61,300-seat Hoosier Dome where the Colts will play.

Based on lease agreement's terms, the CIB would receive $90,000 to $100,000 per game, said David Frick, who negotiated the agreement for Indianapolis with Colts' owner Robert Irsay and his representative, team general counsel and vice president Michael Chernoff.

The CIB also is required to provide a temporary office and training facility in addition to constructing a new office and training facility to replace the one the Colts left in Maryland. The estimated cost for the new facility is $3 million to $4 million and the Colts would have an option to purchase it for $4 million.

Autry witness plagued with numerous offers

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Shirley Tadlock, the Dallas housewife who struck up a friendship with Death Row inmate James David Autry, says she wants the executed man's body exhumed so she can give him the hug she promised him.

"I'm so nervous and exhausted," Mrs. Tadlock told the Beaumont Enterprise in an interview published today. "Everything's blank. I feel like I'm fixing to have a nervous breakdown"

Mrs. Tadlock began writing to Autry last October after he lay strapped to a gurney with needles in his arms before his execution was stayed by a U.S. Supreme Court justice.

When Autry was executed on March 14, Mrs. Tadlock attended at his request.

"I thought it was cruel the way we'd done the boy," she said. "But I had no personal feelings for him."

At Autry's execution, the two called out "I love you" several times as prison officials prepared to kill Autry with an injection of lethal drugs.

Mrs. Tadlock said she promised Autry that she would hug him after he died, but prison officials would not let her. She said the broken promise haunts her.

"I feel like I need to see him so bad," she said in a whisper. "The pain has not eased up any. I've got to hug him."

Mrs. Tadlock told the newspaper that she planned to visit Autry's nameless grave in the prison cemetery Friday.

She said she would like to have his body exhumed. She also has thought about having him moved to a private cemetary in Dallas.

"I know this is going to make me sound like a sicko, but I'm not," she said. "I'm just a housewife, a mother. I've never really bothered anybody."

Her husband, Buddy, says he fully supports his wife.

"I'm 100 percent for what she's doing," he said. "I'm going to back her. I don't care what the public thinks."

Mrs. Tadlock said her husband was not jealous of her relationship with Autry, nicknamed "Cowboy" by his fellow inmates.

"He said that since J.D. was locked up, he didn't feel jealous," she says. "But he said if they had set him free, that would have been a horse of a different color."

"Buddy is quiet," Mrs. Tadlock said. "But he's kind of hard. It surprised me he was against the death penalty."

She said she felt a bond with Autry, who was convicted for killing a convenience store clerk. Autry said he was abused as a child by an alcoholic father. Mrs. Tadlock, 32, said her first husband beat her.

GIFT TO WTC--Stewart & Stevenson of Odessa and the Detroit Diesel Allison Division of General Motors have given the Western Texas College diesel mechanics department this new engine. Company and college personnel present for the presentation included Bettie McQueen, John Tunks, Dr. Don Newbury and Gordon Searl. (WTC Photo)

WTC receives engine as gift

Western Texas College has received a new 8.2 Fuel Pincher diesel engine donated jointly by the Detroit Diesel Allison Division of General Motors and Stewart & Stevenson Services of Odessa.

The turbo-charged engine is similar to those used in a variety of light- and-heavy-duty trucks, off-highway vehicles, marine applications and as stand-by and full-duty generator power worldwide.

"This will give our students an excellent opportunity to learn the basic fundamentals, repair and overhaul procedures of this Detroit Diesel engine," Carl Guinn, diesel mechanics instructor, said. "It is very valuable training aid and we are pleased that Detroit Diesel and Stewart and Stevenson have given us this generous gift."

Presenting the engine to WTC were Gordon Searl, director of training; and John Tunks, Odessa branch manager for Stewart and Stevenson. On hand to accept the gift formally were Dr. Don Newbury, college president; Bettie McQueen, director of vocational educational, and Guinn.

Texas ag commissioner is now touring Israel

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, who is winding up a tour of Israel, Friday said the Middle Eastern nation and Texas have much in common when it comes to farming and the Israelis have some good ideas Texans might borrow.

Weather, soil conditions and the attitudes of the people all are similar, Hightower said in a statement released through his Austin office.

"We are a similar people in terms of spirit and attitude, believing that if you just work at it, if you put your energies into it, if you put your heart into it, tomorrow might be better," he said.

Hightower, who is visiting the city of Ber Sheva, Israel, said he will be returning to Texas next week with many ideas the state's agriculture industry can adopt.

Noting that Texas and Israel are on the same geographic latitude, 30 degrees north, the commissioner said the two areas have similar rainfall patterns but the Israelis manage to make the desert bloom with food crops.

"They've got a desert that would make the Texas Panhandle look like a rain forest. Yet they make this desert turn green ... through diversified agriculture," he said.

Hightower said Israeli farmers not only raise food, but also are heavily involved in its processing for consumption and its marketing.

He said the major exporting firm in Israel is owned by vegetable farmers who market their crops nationally and internationally.

He said the Texas Agricultural Bond Program, which can make low-interest loans available to farmer- and rancher-owned businesses in Texas, might be utilized for marketing and processing raw agricultural commodities in the state.

Among other Israeli ideas Hightower said might be adapted for Texas are:

— Drip irrigation systems which Israelis use on about half their 150,000-acre cotton crop.

— Using partially treated sewage and even salt water for irrigation of some crops.

— Utilizing algae ponds, even in desert areas, to grow a high-protein cattle feed.

— Conversion facilities at dairy farms which turn manure into methane gas for heating and fuel. The facilities also turn manure into a "nutrient water" for fields and into a high-grade compost for use on nursery products.

— Solar hot water systems.

— Covering the soil with large sheets of plastic, which capture more of the sun's heat and allow for minimum evaporation of water. Using the system, seeds germinate earlier and Israeli farmers are the first to hit European markets with fresh fruits and vegetables.

Hightower said his eight-day trip also brought promises of help from Israeli leaders with whom he talked.

A Latin proverb says, "Keep quiet, and people will think you are a philosopher."

TEKA EICKE

Eicke wins recognition in business

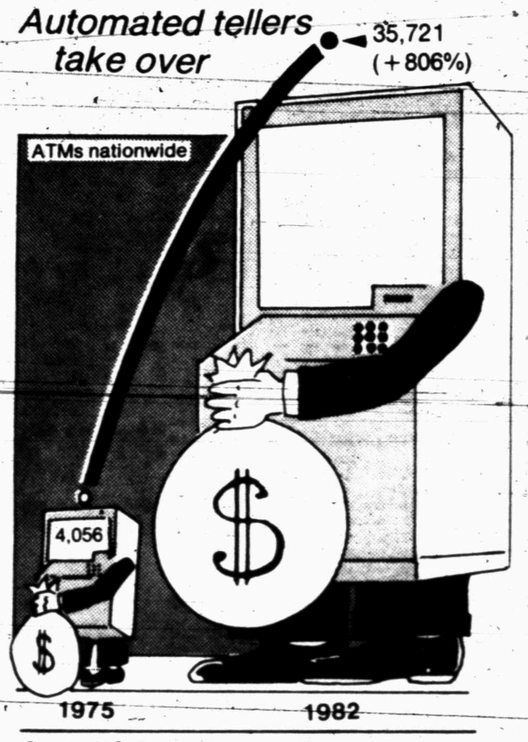

Teka Eicke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seabourn Eicke, has received notification that she has been officially nominated as a United States Business Education award winner. The nomination means that she qualifies as a candidate who can apply for one of the USAA College Scholarships.

Eicke is also officially eligible to have her personal biography printed in the 1984 United States Achievement Academy Awards Yearbook. This is a second time honor, the first bring in English.

Mrs. George Killam, bookkeeping and accounting instructor at Snyder High School, submitted Eicke's name for the honor. She will also be listed in the national publication along with Eicke's personal biography.

HIGH-TECH BANKING

Automated tellers take over

(Source: U.S. Justice Department) NEA/Moffitt Cecil

High-tech banking is a boon to banks and to customers. This explains the popularity of Automated Teller Machines (ATMs). Banks use ATMs to speed transactions, reduce staff costs and lure customers. Many people use ATMs to shorten waiting times.

CARD OF THANKS 060

IN MEMORY Of our dear Father and Grandfather, M.J. (MATHIS) KUSS, we his family in some small way wish to express our gratitude for the kindness, love and concern shown during his long years of illness and suffering. To "all" the staff of Cogdell Memorial Hospital; Emergency Room; Medical I Nurses, for your patience, love and compassion; all the many times we had to call upon you for his care. With the medical care, abundant love and concern of Doctors' Wiman, Rao and Tom Tarkenton, you made it easier to bear and to take one day at a time. Bell-Seale Funeral Home Staff, what a difference you make in being so kind and helpful, understanding our grief. To the home of "Grandpa", Snyder Oaks Care Center, thank you seems very little for the love and taking care of his daily needs. The community of Hermleigh, thank you friends, neighbors and relatives for the food brought and served by our "ladies"; for the comforting words of sympathy expressed by all. Father Shan Sheeran and Deacon Ted Mireles for the beautiful offering of the funeral Mass; the altar boys; organist Betty Watts and soloist Jeana Fox, our deepest thanks and appreciation for making his last journey memorable.
Mr. & Mrs. Aubrey Williams

Great-Grandchildren

THE FAMILY Of our beloved mother & wife, Edna Ruth Halloway, would like to say thanks for the many kind expressions of sympathy offered to us in the time of our sorrow by our many friends & neighbors. She had a smile for one and all. She knew no strangers. May God Bless You All.

Volcano causes people to flee

HILO, Hawaii (AP) — Fast-moving lava from Kilauea, one of two erupting volcanoes on this island, flowed toward a subdivision Friday and authorities ordered residents to leave their homes.

Hawaii County Civil Defense Administrator Harry Kim ordered the partial evacuation of the Royal Gardens development, with all residents of a hillside area to be out of their homes by sunset.

Molten rock quickly rolled over previous lava flows toward the homes, where residents have been forced to flee seven times in the last 14 months because of Kilauea's on-again, off-again eruptions — the latest one starting only Friday morning.

Earlier Friday, the threat to Hawaii's second-largest city from the simultaneous eruption of Mauna Loa appeared to ease, until a new finger of molten rock that had been diverting some lava away from Hilo shifted to parallel the main flow, officials said.

When Kilauea resumed its intermittent eruption, it marked the first time in more than a century that the two volcanoes erupted simultaneously.

Officials flying over the area early Friday sighted the new stream of lava from Mauna Loa about three miles behind the front of a 13-mile-long flow. The wall of lava has descended the mountainside to about five miles from the nearest homes in the upper Kaumana area of Hilo, which has a population of 40,000.

The new finger of molten rock is "more favorable, because it's farther up the flow," said Bill Takaba, a Hawaii County Civil Defense volunteer, shortly after the new flow was spotted.

2 accidents called minor

Two minor traffic accidents were reported in Snyder Friday.

Involved in the day's first mishap at 8:50 a.m. in the 2200 Block of 37th St. were a 1977 GMC driven by Edwin Henry Galyean of 1901 Scott St. and a 1983 Chevrolet driven by Terry Canon Cheatham of Rt. 3, Snyder.

The south entrance road to WTC was the scene of Friday's second mishap at 12:49 p.m. Involved in it were a 1983 Chevrolet driven by Mark Franklin Bailey of Haskell and a 1981 Plymouth driven by Margaret Ballard Shawn of Colorado City.

No injuries were reported in either accident.

Tools taken from pickup

Two misdemeanor theft reports were filed with Snyder police Friday.

Larry Thompson of 400 34th St. filed the first complaint at 3:08 p.m. He told investigators that a number of miscellaneous tools had been stolen from his pickup while the vehicle was parked at his residence between 6 p.m. Thursday and noon Friday.

No value was listed for the missing tools.

Debbie Brown of the WTC apartments filed the second report at 7:10 p.m. According to reports, a small stereo tape player and a single tape had been taken from her apartment. This theft is thought to have occurred at approximately 9:15 p.m. Thursday.

Value of the missing items was listed as under $200.

Local detectives were also called to investigate a misdemeanor criminal mischief complaint early Saturday morning.

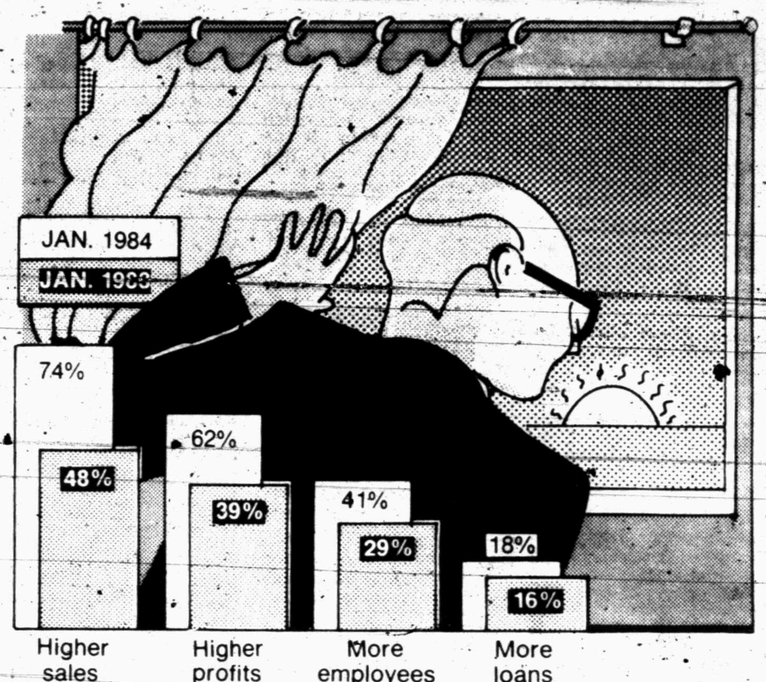

Floyd Sisneros of 2701 Ave. X, Apt. No. 4, called police at 6:18 a.m. and told investigators that the bathroom window had been broken out of his apartment sometime during the night.

No value was estimated for damage to the apartment.

City police also logged nine arrests Friday-evening. Four subjects were jailed for public intoxication, three for DWI and two for driving on suspended licenses. One of the DWI suspects was also charged with DWLS and resisting arrest.

A SURGE OF OPTIMISM

Small businesses see better times ahead

(Source Heller/Roper Small Business Barometers) NEA/Moffitt Cecil

Owners of small business have high hopes for 1984 — and not just in terms of sales and profits. They also expect to do more hiring and borrowing this year, which would give the economic recovery an added boost.

Retired FBI agent says Estes' claim is 'malarky'

WACO, Texas (AP) — A retired FBI agent who investigated the 1961 shooting death of a U.S. Agriculture Department official says Billie Sol Estes' claim that Lyndon B. Johnson ordered the killing is "a bunch of malarky."

Tommy G. McWilliams Jr. told the Waco Tribune-Herald on Friday that he is convinced the official, Henry Marshall, took his own life. McWilliams was an FBI agent in Waco from 1952 until his retirement in 1968.

Estes, a twice-convicted swindler, told a Robertson County grand jury on March 20 that Johnson ordered Marshall's killing because he feared Marshall could link him with Estes' illegal business dealings.

After hearing Estes' testimony, the panel changed the official cause of Marshall's death from suicide to murder. But District Attorney John Pascall said the grand jury planned no other action, since Estes' testimony was unsubstantiated and all other parties in the case were dead.

U.S. Marshal Clint Peoples, who investigated the case as a Texas Ranger and has written a book about it, also testified before the panel and said he believes Marshall was murdered.

McWilliams, who investigated Marshall's shooting a year after it occurred, said the grand jury should have had the benefit of his FBI report before changing the cause of the death.

"I don't think they should have undone what a grand jury did that was much more in the know," McWilliams said, referring to the 1962 grand jury which investigated the case for five weeks.

Paschall said Friday that he would have considered using McWilliams' report if he had known about it.

"The federal government hasn't cooperated with me one bit whatsoever," Paschall said.

Paschall said he was frustrated at the dearth of information left from the 1962 investigation.

Prospective students should also have a valid birth certificate. This is one issued by the county clerk in the county where the child was born.

A hospital document or baptismal record is not acceptable following guidelines set down by the Texas Education Agency.

Parents who have not already obtained this certificate should request one by calling or writing the county clerk's office in the county where the child was born.

Children who did not attend public school kindergarten but will be six years old on or before September 1 should preregister for the first grade this week.

Screening tests willl be given by school staffers to determine those eligible for the pre-school summer program.

Your Birthday

April 1, 1984

Persons who have been lucky for you in the past will, in the coming year, again play important roles in bringing about several beneficial happenings.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Desires to explore new avenues of self-expression will begin to grow stronger in you at this time. However, you must not charge ahead recklessly. The areas in which you'll be the luckiest are revealed in your Astro-Graph year-ahead predictions for Aries. To get your mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before launching new ventures strive to complete that which you have already begun. Don't go off on tangents when rewards are close at hand.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Interesting changes are in store where your social life is concerned. However, if you begin to make new friends, be sure you don't neglect old pals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's time to raise your expectations regarding what you hope to get from life. Don't permit self-doubts to cause you to think they're unattainable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're in a cycle where you are apt to be more visionary, but in order to make your dreams a reality you'll have to employ positive measures.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're contemplating an investment at this time, don't make any moves until you've received the wisest counsel possible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Even though you thrive on partnerships, it may be wise at this time to get to know a new acquaintance better before forming an alliance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) For a brief time you may experience a disenchantment with your work but don't use this as an excuse to suddenly change your job. This will pass.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't put too much dependence on new social contacts for help in your commercial endeavors. They may promise more than they can deliver.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're now in a period where your patience may be tested pertaining to a matter you're anxious to conclude. Don't give up. The end is in sight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be hopeful regarding your new involvements, but don't let your optimism cloud reality. Success comes from seeing things for what they are.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) New ways will be opened to enable you to add to your resources. These possibilities will come from dedicated effort, not from luck or chance.

Bernice Bede Osol

April 2, 1984

Changes will develop this coming year that will have an effect upon your material circumstances. These won't be implemented by you, but they will work to your ultimate benefit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to steer clear of complex financial involvements today, especially those where you question the veracity or wisdom of persons with whom you have to deal. Want to find out to whom you're best suited romantically? Send for your Matchmaker set by mailing $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It reveals compatibilities for all signs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't deliberately ignore the counsel of others today but, by the same token, think for yourself. Weigh your ideas against what they have to offer.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Arrange your schedule today so that your most difficult tasks are at the top of your agenda. Your proficiency may lessen with time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, unfortunately, wishing will not make it so. Heed your practical judgment when it tells you that if you want something to happen you must make it happen.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In a career situation today the rug could suddenly be be pulled out from under you. Don't kid yourself into thinking your position is impregnable.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Avoid encounters with persons whose ideas are usually in opposition to yours. Today, each could be more intent upon defending his or her position.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't yield to pressure when shopping today. Remember that the money being spent is coming out of your pocket, not the salesperson's.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll not tolerate having your independence tampered with today, so try to avoid companions who like to plan your schedule.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Tedious tasks could prove to be too frustrating today. Focus your efforts on jobs that don't require total concentration.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Though your friends are interested in what you have to say during coffee breaks today, you must be careful not to monopolize the conversation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may be tempted today to point the finger at others for errors of your doing. Instead, even if it's difficult, own up to your mistakes.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Rather than adhere to narrow views, try to be flexible in your thinking today. A closed mind may shut out thoughts that could enrich your life.

U.S. ships moving from Lebanon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has formally ended its commitment of American troops to stop the fighting in Lebanon and is preparing to redeploy U.S. warships from the Lebanese coast to traditional operations in the Mediterranean.

The close of U.S. participation that cost 264 lives, 137 wounded and $59.7 million in Lebanon was announced on Friday in a letter from President Reagan to Congress and statements by government spokesmen.

U.S. warships, whose guns have been within range of warring Lebanese factions since most U.S. Marines left the country in February, will no longer "be tied to the coast of Lebanon," White House spokesman Robert Sims said.

"We expect a gradual return to normal naval deployment levels in the eastern Mediterranean," said Pete Hefler, a Pentagon spokesman. He did not say how far from Beirut they would go.

There are about 15 U.S. naval vessels, including the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy and the battleship New Jersey, operating off the Lebanese coast, the Pentagon says. The 1,800-man Marine amphibious force is now aboard five of those vessels.

The force, backed by U.S. air forces, would still be available for short-notice contingencies, Pentagon officials have said.

"The United States has not abandoned Lebanon," Reagan wrote in his letter. But he said participation in the multinational force had caused "heavy burdens and grievous losses for our country" and said "the MNF is no longer a necessary or appropriate means of achieving," the goal of peace in Lebanon.

The U.S. Embassy will remain fully operational in Beirut, guarded by a 100-man Marine detachment, he said.

"In addition, a limited number of U.S. military personnel (equipped with personal weapons for self-defense) will remain to provide military training and security assistance liaison to the Lebanese armed forces."

Cultist says posters true

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — An Arkansas-based cult leader says his fundamentalist organization is printing posters identical in appearance to anti-Vatican posters that have shown up in cities throughout Texas.

In a telephone interview with the Corpus Christi Caller-Times, Tony Alamo acknowledged distributing fundamentalist posters nationwide that have typeface and wording similar to the anti-Vatican posters.

But Alamo said he wants to keep everyone in suspense concerning his responsiblity for the rabidly anti-Vatican signs.

The posters Alamo acknowledges distributing read, "Warning! Blasphemy of the Holy Ghost is never forgiven in heaven or on earth."

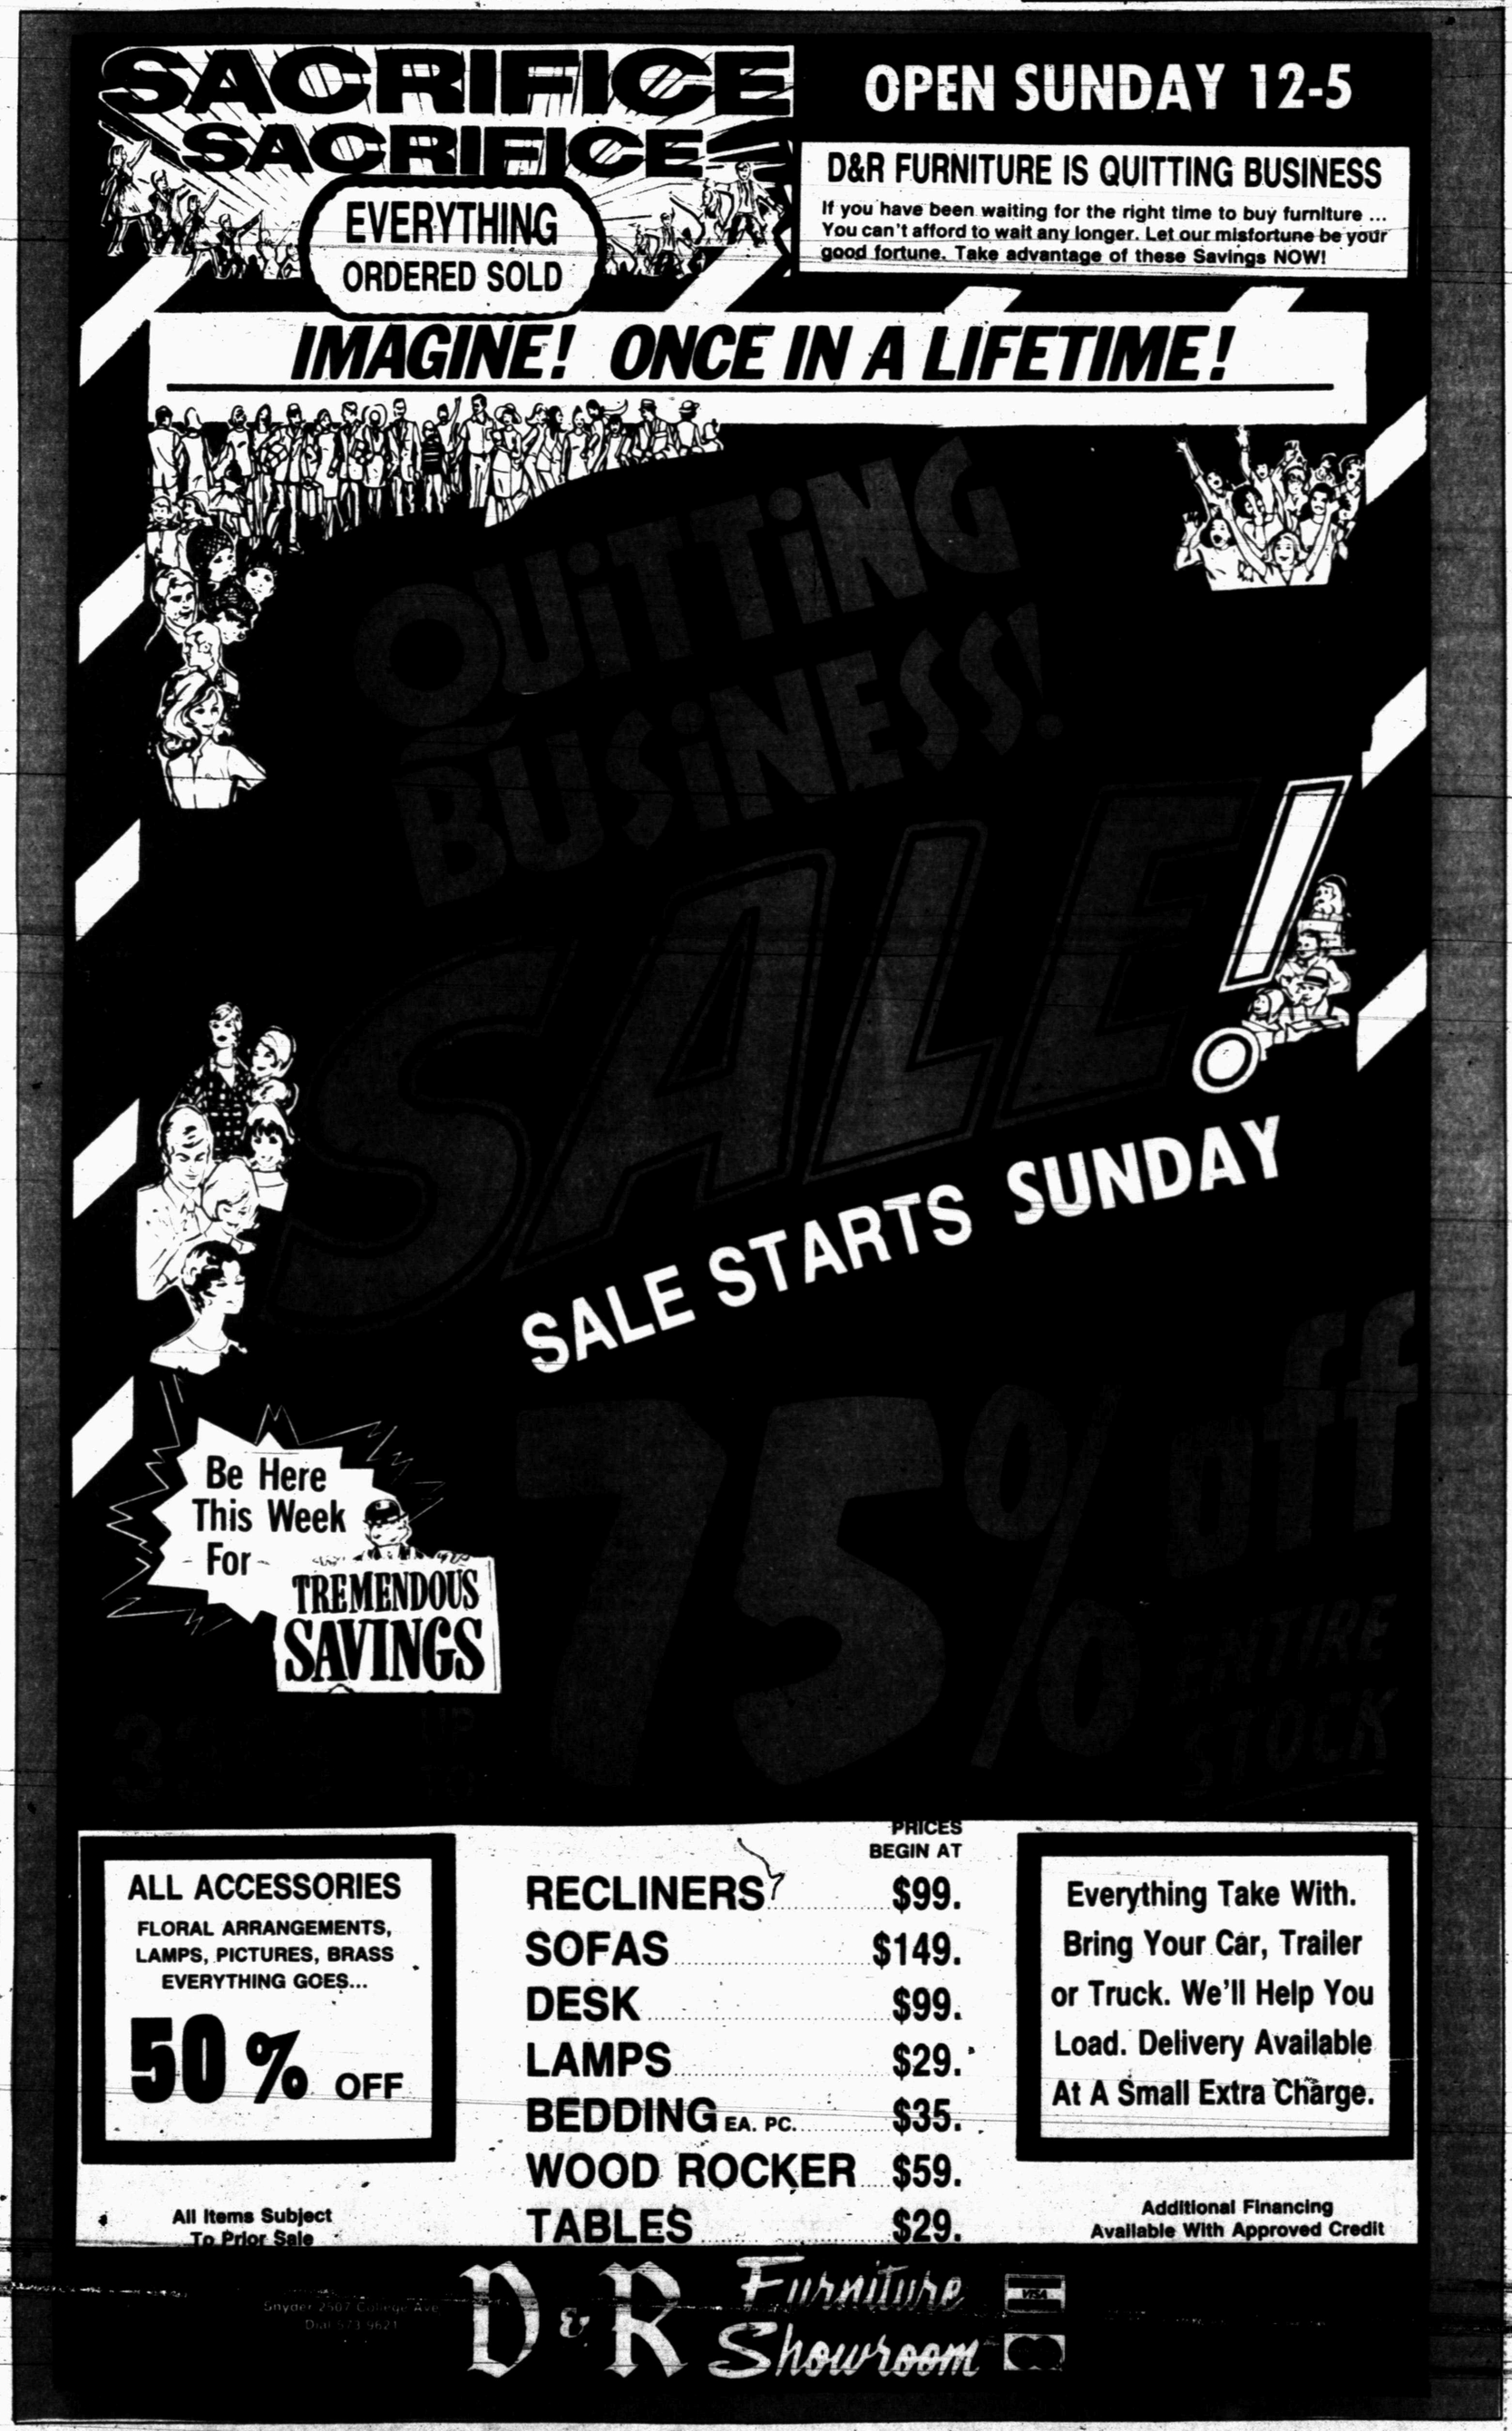

In some cities these posters have been glued beside the anti-Vatican ones which state, "Warning! People, Newsweek, Time Life magazines are secretly owned by the Vatican."

"I'm not a Judas and I'm not going to say who is printing the Vatican posters," said Alamo, head of the Tony and Susan Alamo Christian Foundation in Alma, Ark.

Anti-Vatican posters, which were pasted on downtown windows throughout South Texas last week, have also appeared in New York, Miami and Salt Lake City. In Des Moines, Iowa they were ripped from chancery doors and cathedrals by angry Catholics.

In Corpus Christi, students from the Jewish community worked to remove the posters from vacant shop windows.

Alamo, who claimed to be Jewish, said he was "embarrassed by my fellow Jewish countrymen who removed the posters in Corpus Christi."

Moore, Buchanan repeat vows

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS BUCHANAN

Kimberly Beth Moore and Dennis J. Buchanan were united in marriage March 10 at 2:30 p.m. in the First United Methodist Church of O'Donnell. The double ring ceremony was jointly performed by Reverend David Hamlin, superintendent of Lubbock District of the United Methodist Church, and Rev. Elmer Ward, pastor of the First United Methodist Church of O'Donnell.

The bride was presented in marriage by her father, Elvin R. Moore. Her wedding dress was a replica of the wedding dress worn by her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ben Moore Sr. April 2, 1911.

The tea-length dress, recreated by the bride's mother, Rildabeth Moore, was made of white batiste and lace with seed pearls hand sewn around the neckline, sleeves, cummerbund and lower ruffle. The bride wore a white wide-brimmed hat adorned with silk flowers.

Her bouquet of Dutch iris, yellow sweetheart roses and baby's breath rested on a small white Bible. She carried a silk handkerchief belonging to the groom's maternal grandmother, Mrs. T.B. Bell, as something old. Something new was her lilac and yellow lace garter made by Jane Carol Geer, the maid of honor. Something borrowed was an antique gold bracelet belonging to Mrs. Ben Moore Sr., and borrowed from the bride's aunt, Mrs. Warren D. Smith. A turquoise ring given to the bride by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. H.E. Wood, was worn as something blue.

Musical selections were performed on the organ by Mrs. Karen Dingus of Lamesa. Jimmy Gay Ash sang "God, A Woman and A Man" and "Gentle Shepherd." She was accompanied by pianist Joylene Roye. Shannon Ash served as acolyte. Lisa Howard of Dallas registered guests. Dana Mott distributed programs to the entering guests, as Charles Moore, brother of the bride, and Randy Vines of Lubbock served as ushers.

Attendants to the bride were Cheryl Buchanan of Dallas, sister-in-law of the groom, and Pamela Bunch of Houston, sister of the groom. Maid of honor was Jane Carol Geer of Washington, D.C. The ladies wore lilac tea-length dresses with coordinating cummerbunds and carried long-stemmed yellow roses adorned with flowing ribbons and baby's breath.

Attendants to the groom were Win Bunch of Houston, brother-in-law of the groom, and Alan Schaffner of Henrietta. Harold Buchanan Jr. of Garland, groom's brother, was best man. The groom and male attendants wore charcoal grey tuxedos with yellow rose boutonnieres.

At the reception, following the ceremony, the groom's table and bride's table were attended by Ann McLauring, Deanyalyn Williams, Connie Gates, Pat Smith and Lisa Howard. The groom's table featured a mocha butter cream cake with a gold coffee service and horseshoe shaped butterscotch mints. The bride's table was centered with a four layer white cake decorated with fresh flowers, a crystal punch bowl and silver coffee service.

The bride is the daughter of Elvin R. and Rildabeth Moore of O'Donnell. She graduated from O'Donnell High School in 1978 and received her B.A. and M.A. degrees in History and English from Texas Tech University. She is now a history teacher and coach at R.W. Matthews Learning Center, Lubbock.

The groom is the son of Harold and Genell Buchanan of Snyder. He graduated from Snyder High School in 1976 and received his B.S. degree in mechanical engineering from Texas Tech and is now an engineer with Southwestern Public Service in Hobb, N.M.

Following the wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple will make their home in Hobbs.

The groom's family hosted a barbeque dinner in the fellowship hall of the church following the rehearsal March 9. At the dinner members of the wedding party were presented with appreciation gifts from the couple.

Ego and taxes

NEW YORK (AP) — Ego, economic frustration and taxes have helped spur an entrepreneurial boom in America, a recent study indicates.

Ego enters the picture because enterpreneurs must be risk-takers who have the confidence to start new enterprises, according to Business Centres International, which conducted the study.

The frustration has been caused by inflation, recession, unemployment and credit crunches, leading to creative attempts to deal with the situation, the company says.

It adds that a recent cut in taxes from 49.5 percent to 28 percent for investors has helped achieve a better climate for taking financial risks.

Two new members welcomed by BSP

Members of Beta Sigma Phi welcomed two members into their chapter Tuesday evening, March 20 when they met at the Snyder Country Club.

The traditional pledge ritual was presented by president Dena Ellis and was given for Jeanie Johnson and Judy Brown. Assisting Mrs. Ellis with the candlelight ceremony was the membership committee, Brenda Hedges, Sue Sewell and Mona Bryan.

Following the ritual, chapter business was conducted by Mrs. Ellis. Carolyn Limmer announced the next program would be entitled "Physical Beauty" and will be presented by Gay Idom.

Members were reminded of future activities to include Founder's Day, April 28, and the annual western dance in the fall.

Jean Rico, service chairman, said that the chapter would be working on the Scurry County cancer drive set for April 1-13.

New officers for 1984-85 were elected. They are Brenda Hedges, president; Mickey Baird, first vice-president; Margaret Corkran, second vice president; Beverly Mitchell, recording secretary; Carolyn House, corresponding secretary; Sue Sewell, treasurer; and Carolyn Limmer, extension officer. They will be installed at the May 1 meeting.

Sorority members were guests at the annual "Husbands Party" hosted by ladies husbands at the Red Barn March 17. A Mexican buffet dinner was prepared and served by the hosts. Following dinner, couples played card games. Morris Sewell served as chairman.

Spring is coming

WINTERTHUR, Del. (AP) — Spring comes to Winterthur Museum and Gardens April 7.

On that day, 34 selected rooms and over 200 acres of gardens will be put on display so that visitors can view American decorative arts and naturalized gardens.

The showing ends June 3.

For our last hand from "Test Your Play as Declarer," we are back at a slam. We won't discuss the bidding except to say that the slam is a good one. If clubs break 3-3 and the spade finesse is on, you make seven. If one of these things happens, you make six. Naturally Rubens and Lukacs have arranged a hand where neither works, but the slam makes in spite of that.

You start by winning the ace of hearts, ruffing a heart and drawing trumps. Now you attack clubs. East shows out on the third club lead, but the slam is home. You simply lead dummy's fourth club and discard your little spade.

Poor West is on the toasting fork. He must lead either a spade up to your A-Q or a heart to give you a ruff in dummy and a discard of your spade queen.

We have not charactertized the amount of expertise necessary to make this play. Suffice it to say, it is the type of end play that comes up time and time again.

Cognac birthday April 1 if distilled on time

COGNAC, France (AP) — Brandy makers here are nearing the fruition of last year's grape harvest which ends with the distillation of wine into cognac no later than April 1.

"Unless our wine can be distilled into cognac by the stroke of midnight, March 31, it misses its first birthday," according to Jacques Martell, director of a cognac firm.

He says all true cognacs celebrate their birthday April 1, and it is law that if fermented grapes are not made into cognac by that time, the brandy produced too late has to wait for the following year to be certified.

VITAMIN C TABLETS LINKED TO DENTAL PROBLEMS

People who munch on chewable vitamin C to ward off the common cold could be damaging their teeth.

The ascorbic acid in vitamin C has long been associated with dental erosion. Vitamin C syrup which clings to the teeth is not recommended for this reason.

Until recently, vitamin C tablets were not thought to be related to dental erosion. But the marketing of chewable vitamin C tablets containing mega-dose levels may present dental health problems.

A recent American Dental Association report indicated that the acidic level of three 500-milligram chewable vitamin C tablets, when dissolved in distilled water, is about equal to that of stomach acid. While saliva has a certain buffering effect, it can provide only limited protection when there is daily direct contact between ascorbic acid and teeth.

If you are using chewable vitamin C tablets regularly, check with a dentist for any sign of a dental problem.

CARING FOR COTTON

Easy-care cotton can be exactly that if consumers will follow care label instructions.

Some consumers got used to caring for cottons years ago by washing them in hot water and drying at high heat. This is still possible for some untreated 100 percent cotton fabrics, but will reduce the appearance and wearing life of other cotton fabrics.

Cotton fabrics are now usually treated with chemical finishes that control shrinkage and help them resist wrinkling. Even 100 percent cotton is likely to have some kind of finish.

Cotton is also now found more often in fabric blends with other natural and synthetic fibers. It's an excellent addition to blends because as a natural fiber cotton breathes and lets off heat and moisture to keep the wearer comfortable in any kind of weather.

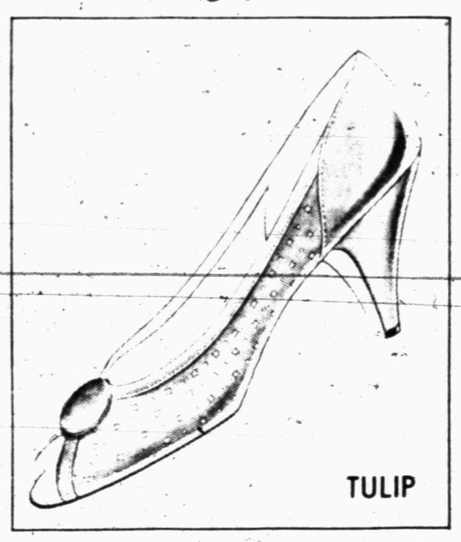

Cotton treated with permanent press finishes and most cotton blends need a permanent press washing drying cycle. A permanent press cycle uses warm water to relax wrinkles and does not spin clothes quite so dry. The drying cycle starts out with hot enough temperatures to relax wrinkles and then cools down to maintain the wrinkle free state.

Because consumers know cotton is durable fiber, care labels that recommend special laundering procedure or even dry cleaning, can be confusing. But it's still best to follow label instruction since they are designed to protect the fabric finish and preserve easy-care qualities for the life of the garment.

A dry cleaning instruction may be given because other fibers blended with the cotton or some part of the garment, such as the trim or lining make it necessary.

"Hello. I'm away from the phone right now; but if you'll leave your name and message at the sound of the tone I'll get back to you."

Whenever we encounter one of these taped stopgaps to real communication, our "message" always seems to get stuck in our throat.

Whatever it was we wanted to say, it comes out awkward when relayed to some tin and plastic recorder machine.

At first, we attributed it to "mike fright," a malady first encountered more than 20 years ago. Being raised up in the semi-sticks, we had never bumped into one of those two-way communicating hamburger-ordering machines until we were in the proverbial sixteenth summer.

The first time the waitress asked to "take our order please," we experienced the same thick tongue and tight throat.

We held back our first urge, which was to poke our head out far enough from the car to speak directly into the microphone. But our order was no doubt loud enough to be heard by the lady at the order window without benefit of electronics.

Way has led on to way, however, and we now order "two all-beef patties, lettuce, cheese, pickles, onions on a sesame seed bun" as effectively as the next guy.

With that problem solved, we have to cope with the phenomenon of the telephone recorder, which has now found its way into West Texas.

For folks who persist in having their telephones answered by these things, we would offer one suggestion. Try to put a little zip into your explanation monologue.

There is something strangely lifeless about most of them. It's probably only voice reproduction problems, but they sound like the speaker is either holding his nose or is being forced at gunpoint to recite.

All of which doesn't answer the question we began with, why talking to the durn things spooks us so much.

Then the light bulb finally went on.

West Texans love to hem and haw — a little friendly bullfeather talk to warm up the old conversational oven.

But these telephone recorders only give 15 seconds or so to get cranking. You are forced to relay a name, a number and any other extraneous stuff you feel is important.

You are forced to be direct and you are given a minimum of lead time to organize thoughts and deliver a message. And no one rings up a telephone number expecting to talk to a recording.

Ordering cheeseburgers is one thing, but editing a five minute telephone exchange down into a terse five second comment requires a different type cat.

We suspect most folks are like us. For those with telephone recorders, those three calls you received were from the same guy.

It just took us three runs at it to think of something to say.

Someday I'm going to compile an entire dictionary of things that should be uninvented. You know, items that seemed like a good idea, but just aren't working out. I'll call this lexicon the "Useless Dictionary" and sell it paperback for $28.95, 50 percent off, as is standard.

A sampling of entries follows:

Ashtrays - I have nothing aganist people who smoke. The most inconsiderate chain-smoker is invaribly better company than a self-righteous non-smoker. However, there is absolutely nothing fascinating about a dirty ashtray, and I'm constantly surrounded by the smelly things. Wouldn't it be fun to watch all the smokers search about frantically for an appropriate place to flip their ashes. I mean they never look before they light up. I can see their eyes darting around as the panic mounts.

Baby diapers that you throw away - I have nothing against infants, or their beleaguered mothers. In fact the only objection I have to disposable diapers is where they are disposed at - everywhere. I suppose a few even find their way into trash cans.

Perhaps a diaper could be invented that self-destructs whenever touched by moisture. I realize there are a few bugs to be worked out in this concept, but we put a man on the moon didn't we?

Clocks - Specifically digital wristwatches - Why do we need anything that only works when it is on the blink? And I wonder if Ross Perot realizes that education scores began declining about the same time these beeping things flashed on the scene? When a kid learned to tell time off a clock that started over in the middle of the day, algebra, trig and an inconsistent grammar was child's play.

When the energy consuming power source of the digital goes dry, you get nothing. Even unwound, the old-style watches are still right twice a day. Besides they are classier.

Damn yankees - First of all, a yankee, as opposed to a damn yankee, is anybody who is not from Texas. They can't help that, so let's not be derogatory. Some of these people are semi-okay. Some of you may have also heard that a yankee is somebody who visits, and a damn yankee is somebody who stays. Some of them who stay are also semi-okay. A damn yankee is anybody from somewhere else who annoys me.

By uninventing them I'm suggesting we return to the old days, before the invasion, when only once or twice a year did we have to listen to how ignorant and deprived we were 'cause we live here.

Electric shavers - They don't shave as close as a razorblade and never will. Let's lose them.

F - That's funny, I can't think of anything that begins with this letter that should be uninvented, so I'll start all over.

Answering machines - Do you feel comfortable talking to a machine?

Babies - Really I don't have anything against infants, but you must admit they are a nuisance sometimes; and uninventing babies would solve the throw-away diaper problem.

Country music - There's enough misery, poverty and adultery in the world already. Is it really necessary to put it to verse and sing about it?

Dictionaries - Nobody uses them, so let's eliminate them.

I seem to have written myself into a corner.

Ronald Reagan

"Like a roving wolf, Castro's Cuba looks to its peace-loving neighbors with hungry eyes and sharp teeth."

— President Reagan, speaking to a group of some 200 Cuban Americans. He said those who link military aid and human rights are "naive or downright phony" and accused his critics of assisting Marxist takeovers in Central America.

"We've had a really active weekend here. All you need is one mating — three minutes. They've made it. What more can you ask for?"

— Devra Kleiman, National Zoo zoologist on Ling-Ling, the giant panda who recently recovered from a nearly fatal kidney infection and spent the weekend mating with her partner Hsing-Hsing.

"Though my constituents support some type of prayer in school, they feel that the United States Senate and the administration ought to spend more time praying about the deficit."

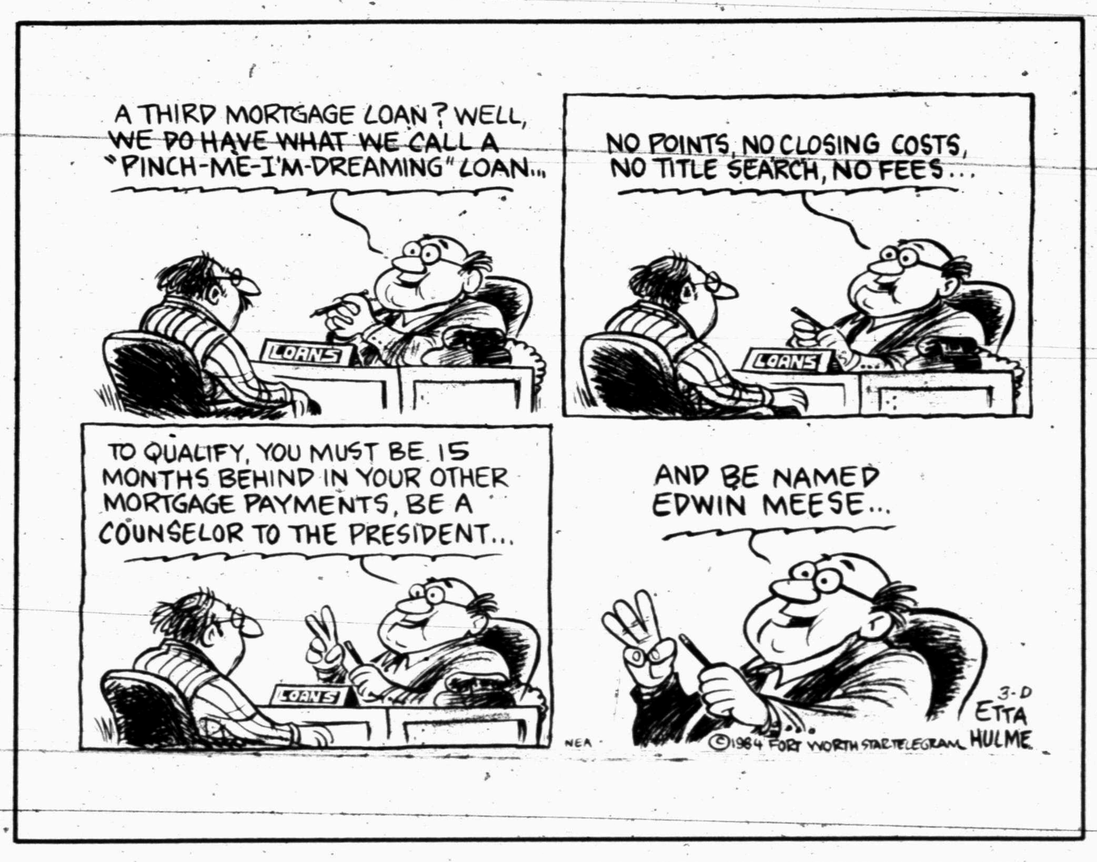

— Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., on the controversial school prayer amendment.

"When you hear this record, you're gonna die, man. The guitars are really fat and the drums are massive."

— Gina Schock, drummer for the all-female rock band, the Go-Go's, on their new album, "Talk Show." (Rolling Stone)

"We can hold our heads high. This is a place where no one is limited by race, creed or gender. People cast their votes solely for quality and ability to govern."

— Martha Layne Collins, the newly elected governor of Kentucky. (Time)

SDN Week in Review

SATURDAY
March 24

The district trophy for District 2-AAAA UIL Literary events will stay in Pecos one more year as they out-pointed eight other competing schools on the campus of Western Texas College Friday and Saturday.

Snyder and Andrews were in a close race for second with Andrews eventually inching past for the second place win.

Snyder students managed two first place wins in addition to placing in six other divisions.

MONDAY
March 26

Scurry County Commissioners returned a county baseball field to the Ira school district Monday.

Ira ISD officials had requested the action.

Another legal step was reported Monday which might ultimately lead to an argument before the Texas Supreme Court involving the disputed use of SACROC's residual field gas by Scurry County residents.

The 11th Court of Appeals in Eastland notified attorneys for both sides that they have denied a motion for a re-hearing in that court of an earlier decision lifting an injunction which had temporarily halted the gas shutoff.

TUESDAY
March 27

Approximately 21,200 Scurry County acres will be idled this coming cotton growing season, according to figures released Monday by staffers with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS).

ASCS officials said some 84,065 acres — approximately 88 percent of county farm land used for cotton — had been signed up in the federal farm program. Participating farmers pledge to reduce the planted acres on their farms by 25 percent.

Mike Dennis, who announced last Friday as a write-in candidate for place 6 on the Snyder school board, said Tuesday morning he is withdrawing his candidacy.

Dennis noted that since Friday he has become aware of a legal technicality involving registration which would prevent him from serving.

Scurry County blood drives passed another record mark Tuesday, surpassing a recond set only last January by an additional 36 donors.

Local drives have also improved during the past year from an average of 40 to 50 donors per effort to Tuesday's count of 179. The previous donor record set last January was 143.

A special thanks was offered on the campus of Western Texas College Tuesday to WTC student Danny Hunter, who brought national honors back to Snyder this past weekend by being named national president of Phi Theta Kappa.

A "Danny Hunter Day" at WTC is planned when the weather permits. At that time, a flag which is flown only on special occasions will be raised in his honor.

Snyder High School's one act play "The Crucible" by Arthur Miller again was chosen to advance Tuesday after area competition conducted locally in Worsham Auditorium.

The SHS production now goes to the regional contest in Brownwood April 14. In addition, Snyder's David Etheredge and Dana Parham were selected as Best Actor and Best Actress.

WEDNESDAY
March 28

Dr. Shel Hillis, one of six division chairmen at Western Texas College, has notified administrators he will be resigning his post effective at the end of this contract year, it was reported Wednesday.

In a related matter, Hillis said he will also be removing his name as a candidate to the Snyder school board, place 6.

THURSDAY
March 29

SACROC officials are now contacting affected Scurry County residents to renotify them of SACROC's intent to terminate the private use of its residue field gas, it was reported Thursday.

It is estimated more than 120 county residences are currently connected to the SACROC gas lines.

A second write-in campaign for place 6 on the Snyder school board was noted Thursday. Allen Grimmett, a Snyder native currently working as the computer supervisor for the family-owned business Grimmett Brothers, is the new candidate

Rock influence...

Punk haircuts go slightly soft

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — Cutting is more important than curling in current hair styles, according to stylists whose client celebrities were chosen by the Helene Curtis Guild of Professional Stylists as today's best coiffed women.

The big influence, say these stylists, is coming from the rock music scene, where male and female youth go to "punk" rock hot spots with heads cut into shaggy topknots and closely sheared sides. Singer Pat Benatar is wearing a version of this look by stylist Philip Carreon of California.

New York stylist Rick Gillette, who advises actress Nastassia Kinski, says rock styles can simply be cut into naturally thick hair, or the crown area can be permed to get the desired volume, although curling is out. Miss Kinski has a fuller, softer version of the rock look.

Styles at Vidal Sassoon are coordinated with general fashion trends, such as his weave cut that lifts the front of the crown to balance small hats set in back of this new version of the pompadour. For non-hat wearers, his cascade cut smoothly graduates length through the sides to build up volume above the temples. The neck is always closely cut.

Not every woman is going to want the rock look. So, many stylists combine a short, fluffed crown with longer side or back hair. Debbie Allen, of the "Fame" TV series, is styled this way by Anthony Santana of New Jersey, with layering cut into her naturally curly hair.

From this short-and-long look, stylists have gone to the opposite of the spiky rock look with side-parted, loosely waved styles derived from the 1930s. Morgan Fairchild, styled by Hollywood's Rahn McDow, wears an example of this free-flowing, but controlled shoulder-length style, which is both simple and versatile, as it can be swept back or put up in various ways.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

CUT IMPORTANT—A softened version of the punk rock influence in spring hair styles is found in this short, wisp-cut style with short sides and smooth, shoulder-length curls in back. By Mario Tricoci, Illinois stylist and member of the Helene Curtis Hairstylists Advisory Board.

Dada data

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sixty-nine works are included in an exhibition at the Philadelphia Museum of Art entitled, "Tabu Dada: Jean Crotti and Suzanne Duchamp, 1915-1922."

The showing, which runs from Nov. 19 through next Jan. 29, will reveal work not wellknown to contemporary viewers, since much has not been displayed in more than 60 years.

Included are paintings, works on paper and constructions of glass shadow boxes, machine parts, wire, sequins, tin foil and glass eyes by the Swiss painter Jean Crotti (1878-1958) and his French wife, Suzanne Duchamp, sister of the famous artist Marcel Duchamp.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev shattered the decorum of a 1960 U.N. General Assembly meeting by pounding on his desk with his shoe.

Law is far from exact

By NANCY SHULINS
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"What are you supposed to do, rent them a motel room?" Mrs. Donald Orr of Stanfield, Ore., asked in 1975.

Mrs. Orr wasn't talking about visiting dignitaries or out-of-town relatives. She was talking about a city council ordinance designed to control Stanfield's animal population.

Not satisfied with a simple leash law, the council decided to go right to the source.

It voted to ban public sex between animals.

"The law," wrote Irish playwright Charles Macklin in 1760, "is sort of a hocus-pocus science."

Macklin knew what he was talking about. Besieged by lawsuits throughout his life, he once killed an actor in a dispute over a wig and, although he was prosecuted, he was never sentenced.

More than 200 years after Macklin, the law remains far from an exact science, especially in America's nooks and crannies, where local ordinances spice up law books with varied, and often unintended, results.

Public sex between animals is taken calmly in Ocean Beach, N.Y. Try munching a cookie, however, and they'll throw the book at you. Ocean Beach has an ordinance against eating in public.

According to Town Manager Thomas Potter, Ocean Beach's law was passed in 1977 as a means of reducing litter and injuries in the tiny resort community of 500 homes.

Most often, ordinances are concerned with what you cannot do. You cannot, for example, halloo in Belgrade, Mont., which is to say you cannot yell back and forth between houses, thereby waking the neighbors. Pick up the phone.

You cannot flush nuclear wastes down the toilet in Hamilton, Mont. If you do, it'll cost you $25. Ditto dead pets, although officials concede that one's tough to enforce. Neither can you sleep in an outhouse, shed, or barn in Hamilton, unless you happen to be the owner.

You cannot wear stereo headphones while walking, jogging, or driving in Woodbridge, N.J.

When the law took effect in October 1982, Oscar Gross of nearby Perth Amboy took exception, calling the ordinance unconstitutionally vague.

He was fined $50, the law was upheld by the courts, and nobody has challenged it since.

But, not all local laws are prohibitions. There's one in West Yellowstone, Wyo., that allows snowmobiling on public streets — a practical measure, since public streets in West Yellowstone often are paved with five feet of snow.

You can own a squirt gun in Enid, Okla., population 45,000, provided it's filled with nothing stronger than water. However, you cannot legally buy one in Enid, ever since someone squirted ink all over the uniforms of a visiting high school band.

You may wear stereo headphones while jogging in Palm Beach, Fla. What you may not do is remove your shirt, unless you are under 14. The ban on public shirtlessness was challenged by a sweaty jogger. He lost.

An ordinance prohibiting video games traveled all the way from Marshfield, Mass., to the U.S. Supreme Court. Citing the lack of "a substantial federal question," the high court refused last November to hear arguments that the ban violated would-be players' freespeech rights — good news, too, for Coral Gables, Fla., which has a similar ban.

Meanwhile, back in Stanfield, the law controversy brought Stanfield into the limelight. Johnny Carson got some mileage out of it on "The Tonight Show." Letters poured in from animal lovers — and animal behaviorists — from as far away as London and Hawaii.

Compensation is to increase

Disabled veterans should receive an increase in their compensation payments on May 1, E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said.

The House and Senate agreed upon a compensation increase of 3.5 percent to be effective April 1 and the measure has been sent to the president.

Included in the increase will be all veterans who receive service-connected disability compensation as well as widows and children receiving dependency and indemnity compensation based upon the service-conncted death of a veteran.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

Right to Die With Dignity Is Comfort to the Living

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for helping to get the Living Will legalized in Georgia. It's long overdue.

I stood by helplessly and had to watch my terminally ill mother suffer for months when she begged to die. She was in her 90s and had always been such a proud and independent woman. How I wished I could have disconnected all those machines that kept her alive long after her life held any meaning.

Yesterday I went to an antique shop and asked the owner if I could come in and browse. She said, "Please come back later—we are just about to take Fifi to the vet to be put to sleep." In her arms she held a beautiful little white poodle with a bright pink ribbon in her hair. Her nails were painted matching pink.

The woman said, "Fifi is very old. She's incontinent, lame and nearly blind. The vet said she should be put out of her misery." (Lucky dog!)

Abby, I agree with you. We all have a right to die with dignity. I for one will never go to a nursing home where people are alive but not living. I don't want my grown children to say, "You go to see Mama this Sunday. I went last week."

RUTH IN ATLANTA

DEAR RUTH: Well said, dear lady. My warm thanks for a letter that speaks for many.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My mother and I are having an argument about "affairs," and we hope you can settle it.

I am over 21 and have a gentleman friend with whom I've been going for some time. I told my mother that he and I had been intimate, and she insists that I am having an "affair." I say I am not—that one of the parties must be married in order to call it an "affair."

Please clear this up for me.

PERPLEXED IN WESTERLY, R.I.

DEAR PERPLEXED: Would you believe Webster? He defines an "affair" as "a romantic or passionate attachment typically of limited duration." In other words, it's just a passing "glandshake."

DEAR ABBY: Can you help me? I don't know who has the problem—my husband or me. He is 65 and retired. I am 63.

He has two beers every day with his lunch, then he takes a nap. Before dinner (on an empty stomach) he pours himself two or three 4-ounce vodkas on the rocks. He has three to five 8-ounce glasses of wine with his dinner. Socially he drinks more. At a recent party here, he drank three 3-ounce glasses of vodka in 4 1/2 hours. (He said he didn't think he was overdoing it.) Before we go out for a social evening he has one or two "quick ones"—usually vodka on the rocks.

He sleeps between 10 and 12 hours a day. We have no sex life. He's getting what I call "spacey." His mind is slow, but he says I don't explain things very well. Also, his memory is poor. We can have two conversations on a subject, and he can't even remember talking about it.

Thank you for your time.

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Your husband is an alcoholic, and if you care about him (and I assume you do or you wouldn't have written), your problem is him. No one can help your husband unless he (a) admits he has a problem, and (b) wants to do something about it. Help is as near as your telephone, and the number to dial is Alcoholics Anonymous, but your husband must dial it. If he refuses, I hope you will call Al-Anon, and learn how to live with an alcoholic husband and possibly persuade him to seek help for himself. I wish you both well.

Local verifies need for home

by Marjorie Mathis

Editor's Note: A series of articles about abused children in Scurry County is being printed to help readers become aware of the need for a girl's home. Local citizens calling themselves Scurry County Options and Opportunities for People Organization are asking for contributions for this home. A fund has been established at Snyder National Bank to help abused and neglected girls. Make checks payable to Friendship House.

Help! What can this word mean to an abused or neglected child? The volunteer SCOOP people who are pushing for a Friendship House in Scurry County are asking the community for help. Do you know the definition of help?

One meaning is to give assistance or support. Another is to make more pleasant or bearable. It can mean to be of use, to further the advancement of, to change for the better.

Help also translates as to supply what is needed to accomplish an end. Same meanings are words such as relieve, rescue, benefit, aid, assist, protect, defend, serve. Help can also be the prevention of occurrence.

Surely it falls on the shoulders of all good citizens to make an effort to prevent the occurrences of abuse and neglect among the children of our community. Many agencies and individuals are dedicated in this pursuit.

What of those who despite the efforts for good still fall victim to the worst of crimes—cruelty to children? Where can they go when no more foster homes are available? What do they do when no aunt or uncle will take them in? Whom do they reach out to when a friend's parents finally can keep them no longer?

If a child has no place for shelter or protection, there are but two choices open to him. He becomes a street statistic (a run-a-way) and faces perhaps alternatives worse than at home, or he just goes back home to the same old treatment, maybe more violent now that he has rebelled.

Envision if you will a youngster the right age to be playing Little League ball this spring, who might have a paper route, too young to drive a car, but old enough to hold bitterness and fear. Eleven years old is pretty young to be kicked out by a stepfather who never knew anything but violence when he grew up. This kid can't go to his dad. He's in prison. What about grandparents over in the next county? Oh, they don't want him either. What do you do with him when you find him on your back step during the coldest part of the winter?

This boy doesn't go to church. His clothes are a disgrace, and he's dirty. He doesn't go to school anymore either. He can't keep up. Someone's always on his back. He's dodging the authorities. He's like a wild animal, fear walking with him always, the wary streetwise look in his eyes, always distrustful. The only time he asks for anything is just a chance to stay because he never had a home or anyone who cared.

How many kids have never had a home with any love or security? How many children get cuffed around, cussed, slapped, locked out, left to their own devices, to get their own meals, to dress themselves even when very small?

How many young adults have you turned your back on because they don't measure up? Measure up to what? All they've ever had to look at was meanness and squalor.

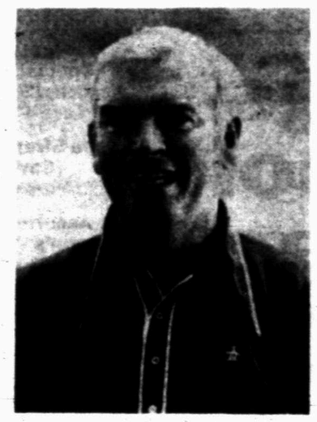

Do you want him—this pitiful boy who's afraid and alone? He's crying out to you for help.

This particular little boy is being cared for today because someone went the extra mile. Other boys and girls in Snyder neighborhoods are not so lucky.

Won't you do your part in helping SCOOP get money together for Friendship House in Scurry County? Any amount of money will be gratefully accepted. Time or services, furniture and appliances are also needed. If you want to donate or set up a trust fund, contact Snyder National Bank. If you have items to give, call Peggy Kennedy, 573-2973, or Becky Robinson, 573-4882. If you are willing to donate materials and labor toward the house, let the SCOOP people hear from you.

Will you help an abused or neglected child today in your home town? Your help can mean a life saved or a life rehabilitated in Scurry County.

First jail built in '84

History tells us that there were 150 necessary names appearing on the petition asking for Scurry County to be organized. The election came on June 28, 1884 which officially made a county which had previously been named by the legislature for Confederate General William Read Scurry.

The citizens were so anxious for a county to be organized that some overzealous citizens got the petition signed by some who were living as far away as the Matador Ranch. While there may have been a few dishonest well-meaning citizens who would go to any measure to organize a county, there was a definite need for a governing body in this area.

The only law which prevailed was that provided by marshals or by groups who organized to take the law into their own hands. Early history tells us that one such group did just that when a man was caught cheating in a poker game. A Kangaroo Court was organized and the man was shot and hung near dry creek which is a short distance from the new Scurry County Jail.

From the time settlers and hunters came here in 1876, Deep Creek was a hang-out for many who were hiding from the law. When the county was organized in 1884, many of these renegages moved on west where the law might be easier on them.

There have been only four jails built in Snyder to serve Scurry County. The first one, shown in this picture, was built shortly after W. W. (Uncle Billie) Nelson was elected sheriff on June 28, 1884. As one can see, it did not take long to construct such a jail as it was a very simple building. This jail was built near the Snyder square and served the citizens until 1886 when a second jail was built near the same location.

In the spring of 1911, a bond election was held to erect a new jail for the county. Most of the communities such as Fluvanna, Ira, Camp Springs, Hermleigh, Canon, Dermott, and Red Bluff voted against the proposal, but Snyder opted overwhelmingly for it. This jail, still standing on College Avenue near Deep Creek was built in 1912 and served the county until 1978. This jail cost the taxpayers $16,000 plus $600 for the land.

The first sheriff, W. W. Nelson, had to deliver legal papers to Pete Snyder and Tommy Nunn when they went to court over the disputed townsite for the City of Snyder.

Sheriff Nelson only put one man in the jail during his two year tenure. This was a young man who twice attempted to burn the structure. He was captured near Colorado City and after a gun and foot race and returned to the Snyder jail.

Ironically, the land where the first jail was built, belonged on the disputed 640 acres which Pete Snyder and Tommy Nunn had fought over in court. When the new jail was built in 1886, the land and old jail reverted back to Tommy Nunn. The first jail was still standing on the Nunn place on June 28, 1934 when Scurry County celebrated its 50th anniversary.

The old jail had seen a lot of history, but it soon faded with the times and new and stronger structures were erected.

This first jail, like so many of the early buildings in Snyder, served its time and soon faded away. Pictures such as this, however, is a reminder that one hundred years ago Scurry County was slowly emerging as an organized community of people.

Capital opinions varied

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Some call it grand, others have found it grotesque, but few could deny that the New York State Capitol, which took as long to build as the Great Pyramid of Cheops and cost more than the nation's Capitol, is an architectural and historical showpiece.

Through these pink marbled hallways, faintly scented with the funk of a hundred years of cigar smoke, have passed governors who became national leaders: Presidents Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt; Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller.

The building was constructed over 32 years under the direction of the most respected architects of the time, with no expense spared when it came to elaborate stone and wood carving, gilded wall coverings, massive chandeliers, heroic murals and soaring ceilings in the style of a Gothic cathedral.

Designed as a showplace of architecture and a symbol of the wealth and power of the Empire State, the building is among the most lavish of state Capitols, and has been designated a National Historic Landmark.

As with most century-old buildings, however, the routine of daily work has left its mark. Scores of archways and windows designed to let in air and natural light have been bricked up. Mezzanines have been added between floors for office space. Grime obscures hundreds of faces gazing from stonework.

Temporary offices have been parked like rows of boxcars in once-grand hallways. Suspended panels and fluorescent lights cover some of the elaborately-carved oak ceilings.

Now, work is under way to restore at least part of the Capitol's opulence.

The ambitious plan, stimulated by the success of the recently-completed restoration of the state Senate chamber, will take 10 to 15 years and cost $25 million in 1983 dollars, according to Capitol Architect Albert C. Brevetti.

That's about what it cost to build the Capitol — an unheard of figure in those post-Civil War years, more than any other state Capitol, more even than the nation's Capitol. (The replacement value of New York's Capitol is estimated at half a billion dollars today.)

The $4 million Senate restoration returned that chamber of the Capitol to the gilded Byzantine glory Henry Hobson Richardson created with $1.6 million in the 1870s.

The Capitol was originally designed by Thomas Fuller, inspired by additions made to Paris' Palais du Louvre for Napoleon III.

Three other leading American architects — Richardson, Frederick Law Olmsted and Leopold Eidlitz — left their mark over the 32 years of the Capitol's construction.

Tour planned to visit noted Japanese exhibit

The Japanese renaissance era known as the Shogun Age is brought to life in an exhibit of 300 rare treasures to be shown in the Dallas Museum of Art now through May 27.

The Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College has planned a visit to the shogun exhibit on April 28 and persons interested in joining the group are invited to make reservations by calling the office at 573-6107.

Traveling by van, the group will leave Snyder at 4 p.m. on April 27 and check into the newly renovated Adolphus Hotel in Dallas. They will see the Shogun display the following day, then return home on April 29 after a stopover in Fort Worth to visit the Amon Carter and Kimbell museums.

Cost of the trip is $175 per person and reservations are due by April 2. Included in the fee are two nights' lodging, transportation, brunch on both mornings and tickets.

Titled "The Shogun Age: The Source of Japanese Traditional Beauty," the exhibit premiered in Los Angeles and will go to Munich and Paris after its Dallas run. The exhibit is drawn from the Tokugawa Art Museum, which houses more than 20,000 items amassed by 20 generations of the Tokugawa family established by Ieyasu, founder of the Tokugawa shogunate.

Ieyasu's reign, which began in 1603, ushered in a 250-year period of peace and prosperity that is regarded as the golden age of Japanese culture. Ieysau virtually eliminated foreigners from Japan, so there was little European influence. Most works in the show were made during the Edo era but some date from the 12th century.

Karen Quinlan reaches 30th

MORRIS TOWNHSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Karen Ann Quinlan has turned 30, still in a coma eight years after being taken off a respirator following a landmark right-to-die court case, and her mother says she "symbolizes the right to life."

Miss Quinlan lapsed into a coma in 1975, and since then her family has observed her birthdays by celebrating Mass beside her nursing home bed.

But Julia Quinlan said the family was forced to cancel plans to mark her daughter's 30th birthday Thursday because of the fierce storm that blanketed parts of New Jersey with up to a foot of snow and flooded the coastline.

"When we asked to have Karen removed from the respirator, we asked to put her back in her natural state," said Mrs. Quinlan. "We asked to have her die in God's time. We are waiting and accepting God's will for her."

Miss Quinlan has come to represent efforts to permit the terminally ill to die in dignity and not have their lives artificially extended with machines, Mrs. Quinlan said.

"I think she symbolizes the right to life," she said in a telephone interview.

Sentell picked missionary for summer

WACO–Diane Sentell, a student at Baylor University, was recently appointed a Texas Baptist Union summer missionary.

Sentell, who will serve in California, is the daughter of Gene McClung of Snyder.

She is one of 132 summer missionaries who will serve in 13 states and five foreign countries. They are supported by fellow students at 100 colleges and universities througout Texas. Last year students raised more han $144,000 to support their summer missionaries.

Texas Baptist Student Unions are supported through cooperative program gifts from 4,700 churches and missions of the 2.3 million member Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Smithsonian's secretary to leave behind empire

WASHINGTON (AP) — S. Dillon Ripley, retiring after more than two decades as secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, leaves behind a cultural empire he built with the same daring and persistence he displayed 40 years ago in his bare-bottomed pursuit of a rare tropical woodpecker.

From his aerie in the turreted red sandstone Castle on the Mall, Ripley watches yet another museum nearing completion outside his window, a $75 million center for the art and culture of Asia, the Middle East and Africa that is supposed to open in the fall of 1986.

It will be the Smithsonian's 13th museum in Washington, the latest addition to the world's largest complex of museums and galleries.

Motioning at the scaffolding and construction cranes on the Quadrangle behind the Castle, Ripley says, "This project embodies the main theme of the Smithsonian, which is not so much 'know thyself' as 'know thy neighbor.' Now that we are all close neighbors, everywhere on this little orb of ours, this planet, we'd better get to know one another."

For the same reason, Ripley would like to see the Smithsonian build yet another museum so Americans can get to know the art and culture of Latin America, "our kindred continent." But he defers questions about the Smithsonian's future to his suecessor, Dr. Robert McCormick Adams, an anthropologist and archeologist who is provost of the University of Chicago.

Adams, 57, chosen by the Smithsonian board of regents in January for the $100,000-a-year post, will become the ninth secretary, or chief administrator, of the Smithsonian when Ripley leaves office in September, a few days before his 71st birthday.

Ripley, himself a noted ornithologist who still fancies the pin-striped plumage of a wealthy Yale man, will bequeath to Adams a sprawling, quasi-government domain that employs more than 5,000 people on a $292 million annual budget, slightly more than half appropriated by Congress and the balance financed by trust funds, private donations and money-making ventures.

Among the Smithsonian's bequests is one from its namesake, James Smithson, a wealthy English scientist who gave $500,000 in gold sovereigns to the United States in 1829 for reasons that remain a mystery.

Smithson specified that the money be used "to found at Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." Congress did so in 1846, chartering the Smithsonian as an independent federal trust institution, and the Treasury still pays 6 percent interest on Smithson's gift.

Today, it's a far cry from the three sleepy museums, victims of "a certain degree of benign neglect," that Ripley says he found when he arrived in Washington in 1964 from Yale University, where he was a professor and director of the Peabody Museum of Natural History.

Under Ripley's supervision, the Smithsonian has undergone explosive growth. It now boasts a dozen museums and galleries in Washington which attracted more than 25 million visitors last year. One of them, the National Air and Space Museum, is the most popular museum in the country and tops the list of tourist attractions in the capital.

In addition, the Smithsonian includes the National Zoo in Washington, the Cooper-Hewitt Museum of Design in New York, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute in Panama, and the Chesapeake Bay Center for Environmental Studies near Annapolis, Md. Affiliates include the Kennedy Center and the National Gallery of Art in Washington.

Some of Ripley's detractors, particularly on Capitol Hill, found his style — and some of his actions — disturbingly out of the ordinary. He has been called haughty, arrogant, condescending, "the P.T. Barnum of the Mall."

Congress investigated the Smithsonian's complex bookkeeping and banking affairs, but found no wrongdoing. Ripley defends his extended bird-watching trips to places like India and Pakistan, at the Smithsonian's expense, as part of his job, which provides for continuing research in his field.

It was Ripley who personally arranged for the donation of the $40 million Arthur M. Sackler collection of Asian art for the new Quadrangle museum. It was Ripley's gentle twisting of Lyndon B. Johnson's arm — and ego — that resulted in the Smithsonian's acquisition of the Renwick Gallery adjacent to Blair House on Pennsylvania Avenue.

And it was Ripley's smooth cunning, with the help of Lady Bird Johnson, Abe Fortas and a private luncheon at the White House, that helped him pull off perhaps his most stunning coup — persuading Joseph Hirshhorn, the multimillionaire uranium magnate, to donate his huge modern art collection to the Smithsonian in the face of intense pressure from Britain's Queen Elizabeth and New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Ripley says his goal for the past two decades has been to "make known to the American people the rich delights of the Smithsonian," to provide an unrivaled center of learning not only for scholars but for citizens who can enjoy a continuing feast throughout adult life.

Singer aids lad with visits

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Visits from country singer T.G. Sheppard have been good medicine for a 15-year-old boy kept alive on a hospital respirator since September, the teen's mother says.

Sheppard drove in from nearby Gatlinburg this week for his third visit to James "Chuckie" Weeden.

Sheppard was appearing at the Tennessee Valley Fair in Knoxville in September soon after Weeden was admitted to St. Mary's Medical Center for chronic lung disorder. Weeden wrote a note to nurses saying he wished he could see Sheppard perform, and they helped arrange for the singer to stop by.

Grace Weeden says the entertainer's visits have improved her son's spirit, but he's lost weight because he won't eat solid food.

During his latest visit Wednesday, Sheppard, whose hits include "Do You Want To Go To Heaven," "Last Cheater's Waltz" and "I Feel Like Loving You Again," gave the youngster a silver dollar and said, "I want you to eat so you can put on some weight and hold that lucky silver dollar."

Tips on fertilizing shade trees:

Shade trees seldom need extra fertilization when a good lawn maintenance program is allowed. But when shade trees do need fertilizer, proper application is important.

Over-fertilization of trees can force excessive top growth, making them vulnerable to storm damage.

Trees rarely need fertilization more than once every three years except in extremely sandy soils and under special conditions.

The hard December freeze injured some trees, and these should receive additional nitrogen fertilizer to speed up the healing of damaged tissue. Also, trees occasionally may need extra nutrients when their roots are confined by street and curb installations and other structures.

Fertilizer recommendations are generally based on the trunk diameter and make no allowance for the fact that the root zone may be confined to a small area. Thus, fertilizing according to such instructions may result in over-fertilization and tree damage.

The safest method of computing the amount of fertilizer to apply at any one time is to base it on the number of square feet included in the branch spread of the tree. Two pounds of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of branch area per application is recommended.

When fertilizing, make several applications, one in the fall at the usual first killing frost, another just before new growth starts in the spring, and a third applied as ammonium nitrate or ammonium sulfate in midsummer.

Spread fertilizer evenly beneath the branch spread of the tree and water thoroughly. Without moisture, roots cannot use the nutrients.

If the tree's root zone is confined by buildings, curbs, walks or other obstructions, base the fertilizer application on the actual root zone. Under these circumstances it may be necessary to fertilize every year to provide an adequate suuply of nutrients.

Man spends lifetime telling stories

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — His favorite story is a variation of Hans Christian Andersen's "Thumbelina."

"An old woman with no child is given a gift by a witch and it turns into a little girl," relates Ralph Wallenhorst. "Finally, a little tiny fairy king discovers her and she realizes she's not a human being at all. She had tried to be a human being but she's really a fairy just like him. They go into a flower bulb for the winter, and she grows wings. And when she comes out in the spring, she's a fairy just like him."

For a second, he can't explain why it's his favorite. Then, "Wait a minute. It took her a long time to discover what she was." Then another pause, "Am I Thumbelina?" he asks.

In a sense, yes.

Wallenhorst spent most of his life telling stories as a newspaper reporter and public relations man. Four years ago, at age 62, he started a new career, a career he now feels was his calling all along.

He's still telling stories, but they aren't "news." In fact, they are old, and he feels they are in danger of being forgotten.

Wallenhorst is a storyteller, one of perhaps 15 or 20 professional tellers of tales in this country who still blend horror, history and fantasy with a chronicle of the lessons learned in living.

At one of hundreds of sessions he gives every year in classrooms throughout the country, Wallenhorst recently mesmerized a group of students at the South Davis Elementary School in the Buffalo suburb of Orchard Park and talked about his craft and its importance today.

"The children are losing their sense of imagination," he says, "simply by virtue of the fact that they are not being called on to exercise it.

"Television has a lot to do with it, because the pictures are all presented there, the story is all laid out. The kids sit there like zombies and they don't have to do anything. Whereas the stuff that was around when we were growing up, you had to help create these stories.

Wallenhorst had no kinds words for the heroes being presented to children today — Superman, Luke Skywalker, the Dukes of Hazzard.

"For one thing, they're too perfect. Secondly, I don't think that the child can identify with the character or with the problems they have.

LONDON (AP) — Princess Diana has boosted another new fashion craze — this time, seamed black stockings with bow designs embroidered on each heel.

Today's British tabloids are full of close-up photographs of the decorated heels, together with puns about royal footnotes, fancy legwork and the 22-year-old princess being "the royal seamstealer."

Diana, expecting her second baby in late September, wore the stockings on a visit Thursday to a London police training college.

Two papers immediately jumped on the fashion bandwagon with offers to readers of free pairs of stockings "just like Diana's." The stockings sell for about $14 in London stores.

Healthy oatmeal fiber

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Enclosed is an article from the newspaper about oatmeal and how it lowers your cholesterol. I'm concerned about my triglycerides, which have been 700 to 800 for the past four years. I'm 5 feet 9 inches tall and weigh 155 pounds.

I started the oatmeal diet about three months ago. Have you heard of this remedy? Would you recommend it? What else can I do about my diet to help lower my triglycerides?

DEAR READER — Yes, oatmeal is a natural cereal that provides important fiber. And fiber in the diet will help to lower cholesterol levels. That may be more important than lowering triglycerides.

I certainly don't like your triglycerides levels. I see from the rest of your letter that you don't have sugar, which I presume means you have been checked for diabetes.

It's true that some fibers trap cholesterol or bile in the intestine and prevent it from being reabsorbed. Even some of the bulk preparations such as Metamucil have been reported to cause this reaction. That's a good argument for bulk in your diet.

But not all fibers are equal. Oatmeal fiber seems to be good for this. Studies on bran have not shown that it will lower cholesterol. But fiber found in raw apples certainly does. I'd certainly go along with eating a big bowl of oatmeal each day.

You need to limit your fat intake to no more than 30 percent of your calories and your saturated fats to no more than 10 percent of your total calories. Your cholesterol intake should be below 300 milligrams a day.

I've discussed the principles of how to do this in the Health Letter 15-4, Diet to Prevent Heart Attacks and Strokes, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If you're not physically active, you might begin a walking program. A good walk after each meal will help. With your doctor's approval, you may progress to more vigorous exercise after you've built up your walking capacity.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 21-year-old man. Last year I started a vegetarian diet which includes eggs and cheese. But my mom insists I can't survive without meat. I refrain from eating pork or lunch meat [illegible] in order to make her [illegible] started eating some [illegible]

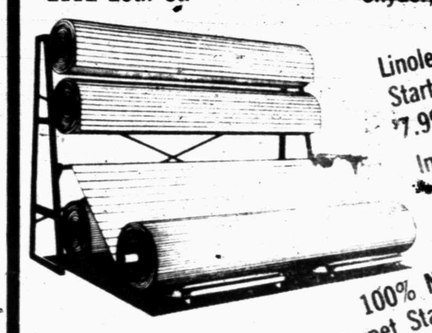

I'm on the thin side, 5 feet 11 inches tall and 130 pounds. I jog and lift weights, but I can't seem to gain weight. During the college year I don't get enough sleep. My mom is worried I'm going to be in bad health if I stick to this diet.

DEAR READER — Mothers tend to be that way — thank heavens. Strict vegetarians are healthy as long as they eat a well-balanced diet to provide an adequate amount of complete protein. The main shortage they may have under those circumstances includes iron, vitamin B-12 and perhaps calcium.

Both eggs and cheese may provide complete protein. If you use cheese, I see no reason why you shouldn't also use milk, which is an excellent source of calcium.
