U.S., Japan avert trade war

Sides reach market-opening agreements

■ Two countries could not reach deal to lower barriers in Japan's auto market — which accounts for 60 percent of America's trade deficit with Japan.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States and Japan struck a series of market-opening trade agreements Saturday after a 20-hour negotiating marathon, averting a threatened trade war between the world's two largest economies.

However, the countries could not reach a deal to lower barriers in Japan's auto and auto parts market — which account for 60 percent of America's record $60 billion annual trade deficit with Japan.

The Clinton administration, which had been pressing the Japanese to open key markets, hailed the accords, which cover telecommunications, medical equipment, insurance and glass as landmark deals that should result in billions of dollars of new sales of American goods and services.

"This is a good deal for the United States and a good deal for Japan," U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor told reporters.

The government procurement agreement covers purchases of medical and telecommunications equipment by the Japanese government and Japan's huge government controlled telephone company, NTT.

The procurement agreement and the insurance deals were finalized Saturday while both countries agreed in principle to a proposal to open Japan's $4 billion glass market. Remaining details will be worked out over the next month.

Because of the failure to lower auto trade barriers, the administration said it would begin negotiations over the next 12 to 18 months seeking to open Japan's replacement auto parts market. Foreign producers now capture just 2.6 percent of total sales compared to 47 percent in the United States.

At 16, when she was pregnant with her first child, Peggy Ann Archer was frightened and felt ashamed.

Her boyfriend, Ken, 23, had deserted her when she told him she was pregnant.

"'I'm sorry, but I've got other plans for my life,'" she recalled him telling her.

"I have no idea where he came from or where he went to."

And she was "scared to death to tell my daddy," she said 29 years later. "Shameful."

MISD asks for citizens' input on discipline, scores, drugs

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Better discipline in the classroom, higher test scores, lower dropout rates, and drug-free campuses. What can Midland Independent School District do to meet those long-range goals? Are some programs working well now, or are there better methods to accomplish these things that are yet untried? Is there some way to motivate teen-agers to keep them in school?

Midland citizens are invited to voice their opinions at four community meetings concerning the school district's Long-Range Plan. The district is drawing up objectives to be accomplished between now and 2000.

School board trustees each appointed three citizens to serve on a Long-Range Planning Team that met three days in June to draw up district objectives.

Joe Cummins, MISD executive director of administrative services, said the team culled objectives from information received at community meetings on the subject last spring.

"Now we are going to share the objectives with the community and ask for comment on how those objectives can be accomplished — which programs are worthy of continuing and what new and different activities the district should review," Cummins said.

The district will conduct four community meetings during two days in November.

On Nov. 1, citizens from District 5 will meet at San Jacinto Junior High School and citizens from District 6 and 7 will meet at Abell Junior High School.

On Nov. 10, Districts 1 and 2 will meet at Coleman High School and Districts 3 and 4 will meet at Alamo Junior High School.

All four meetings are set for 7 p.m.

"We are looking for solutions," Cummins said. "We want to hear comments and what people feel we should explore to meet the objectives over the next five years."

Sentiment from both sides supports need for new party

By John King
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Before there were Democrats, there were Federalists. And the Whigs were big before Republicans came along in the 1850s. Not to mention occasional rumblings from the Know Nothings, the Free Soilers and the Greenbacks.

Yet for the past century and a half American politics has been largely a two-party affair, with only an occasional threat to the Democrat vs. Republican matchup in national, and most state, elections.

But there is intriguing evidence that is changing, and more than a fleeting chance that a new party could emerge before the end of the century.

"I think the country is waiting for the invention of a new party that looks a lot different than Republicans or Democrats do right now," said Vin Weber, the former GOP congressman from Minnesota.

Among the evidence to support such a view:

Groups wake up Christmas spirit in downtown Midland

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Downtown Midland will look more like Christmas this year.

That's because a group of spirited citizens has raised most of the funds necessary to purchase lighted Christmas decorations for 124 poles along Texas and Wall avenues and around the Midland County Courthouse.

Meanwhile, another group has urged downtown building managers to light up their buildings.

The decorations committee — "Merry Merry Midland" — plans to order the decorations this week to be able to meet order-

Jackpot climbs

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Saturday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were 4, 26, 29, 45, 47, and 48. The jackpot was worth an estimated $18 million. Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $28 million.

Survivors recall last night of Estonia — and 900 souls

By Frank Bajak
Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — At the Tallinn ferry terminal, it was the usual Estonian sendoff: flowers, smiles, waves, then the passengers disappeared behind a white wall and down the gangway.

Katlin Kaljurand was making her last journey as a waitress on the 515-foot ferry Estonia, namesake and pride of her country. She had found a new job, in a beauty salon.

"She was a pretty girl," says her aunt Kaja, who saw her off. Kaljurand, 22, was not among the 139 people who survived Scandinavia's worst maritime disaster.

More then 900 people went down with the Estonia in a roiling Baltic Sea off southwestern Finland early Wednesday.

Capt. Arvo Andresson was in charge when the ferry shoved off on a cool autumn evening for the 13-hour cruise to Stockholm.

The 14-year-old vessel headed into heavy weather, but not the storm of the century. Folks began enjoying themselves, as they often did on a ship popular for short holiday getaways.

A few hours out, the wind was kicking up but few people were bothered.

Some time after midnight, Kent Harstedt was feeling a bit seasick and decided to leave his cabin, one of 505 on board.

In the engine room below, Estonian ship's machinist Henrik Sillaste noticed via closed-circuit television that water was washing in through the bow door. He turned on the bilge pumps.

Ten minutes later, the invading sea was knee-deep on the car deck, which was loaded with 28 trucks, two buses and a few cars.

Two surviving crew members would later tell investigators that the bow door had been pried open by the raging sea.

Its ballast lost, the ship listed suddenly to port, jarring people awake, throwing bottles and glasses off bar shelves.

"Chaos broke out and people tried to get up to the deck," Harstedt said. At that point, what he called "the law of the jungle" took over.

The strength of youth had the edge as the ship began swaying violently, knocking people into steel bulkheads and out of consciousness. People lay in corridors, heads bleeding.

Crumpled, sobbing old people and wailing children were trampled.

With the ship's second lurch sideways, the engines shut off. Sillaste and his two buddies climbed for their lives up an escape shaft.

At 1:24 a.m., the SOS went out: "Mayday . . . Estonia . . . We have listed 20 degrees to 30 degrees and have blacked out."

Some survivors said they actually waded into the churning sea. One of them was Lars Lamke, 63. He was holding his girlfriend's hand. Then she was gone, washed into the pitch-black tide.

The Stockholm physician's watch stopped when he hit the water at 1:30 a.m. Seconds later, he saw the ship go down, stern first, its emergency lights eerily visibly under water.

Possible conspiracy emerges in assassination probe

MEXICO CITY (NYT) — The backstage players emerging in last week's assassination of a top Mexican politician suggest a conspiracy of ruling party politicians involved in fraud, money laundering and cocaine trafficking.

Last Wednesday, Jose Francisco Ruiz Massieu, the reform-minded general secretary of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI), was shot and killed by a gunman the authorities have identified as Daniel Aguilar Trevino. They claim he was paid $17,000 for the job.

The killing stunned Mexico, which was just beginning to recover from a January guerrilla uprising and the March 23 assassination of PRI presidential candidate Luis Donaldo Colosio, also viewed as a promoter of reform.

By the weekend, declarations of suspects and reports leaked by law enforcement agencies began to describe an immensely complicated conspiracy that may include two famous figures — a former PRI union leader jailed in a government crackdown on corruption and the leader of a cocaine ring.

Meanwhile, Mexicans — even top political leaders — seem confused and disprited, especially since the killing of Ruiz Massieu came so quickly after the Colosio murder.

"Not to be paranoid, but there is some structure that began with the start of the year and continues," said ex-president Jose Lopez Portillo. "We have to eliminate this malignant structure that is killing highly valued Mexicans."

"They're killing the most important people, who could change Mexico for the better," said Lorena Gomez, 26, a trinket vendor in Mexico City. "We don't know if it was the PRI or the narcos. We don't know what to think."

The most notorious figure so far mentioned is former PRI union leader Joaquin Hernandez de Galicia, La Quina, known to have cocaine connections and jailed for corruption after President Carlos Salinas de Gortari took office in 1988.

Also named this weekend was Juan Garcia Abrego, leader of the "Gulf Cartel," a drug trafficking ring in the northern state of Tamaulipas.

A third possible accomplice, prison inmate Abraham Rubio Canales, allegedly told investigators that the two men were the brains behind the murder, media reports said.

Rubio Canales was a campaign aide to Ruiz Massieu, who won the governorship of Guerrero state in 1987. But Ruiz Massieu and Rubio Canales had a falling out. During Ruiz Massieu's administration, Rubio Canales was jailed for fraud conducted in a state development agency. He also directed a state tourism agency believed to have been used to launder drug money.

A sourse close to the investigation could not confirm all details of the weekend reports but said "the investigation is going that way."

"I know they were looking into the connection between Rubio Canales, La Quina" and the cartel leader, he said.

In another development, Trevino, who authorities say has confessed to the shooting, allegedly said that two PRI congressmen and an opposition congressman planned the murder, according to media reports. Trevino said one congressman said "there are more powerful forces behind us," reports said.

The motives and connections of all these people hasn't been in the least clarified by officials. And the case is likely to get murkier before it clears.

Still most people arrested, questioned or named as suspects were among figures — or connected to figures — described as "narco-politicos," a catch-all phrase for PRI-led state government officials involved with drug traffickers.

WEATHER WATCH

Today to be sunny, near 90

Staff Report

Another lemonade-sipping day is coming up today.

The forecaster at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is calling for a sunny day today and a high near 90.

Winds are to be southerly to southwesterly at 5 to 15 mph.

Tonight is to be mostly clear with a low in the upper 50s.

For Monday, the high to be in the upper 80s.

Saturday's high was 93 degrees, and the overnight low was 56 degrees.

The record high temperature for Oct. 1 is 98 degrees in 1951, and the record low for Oct. 2 is 42 degrees in 1965.

STATE

Skies were partially cloudy throughout the state Saturday, while South Texas areas were under a coastal flood watch, according to the National Weather Service.

The watch was issued from Port O'Connor to Port Isabel because of high seas. The upper coast was mostly cloudy, although temperatures in south Texas were mostly in the 80s and 90s. Today should be fair to partly cloudy with temperatures in the 70s and 80s.

Skies were mostly cloudy and there were some scattered showers over the northwestern panhandle, but most of West Texas was sunny. Temperatures were generally in the 70s and 80s. Dalhart had the region's low of 76, while Midland recorded the high of 91. Today should be sunny in West Texas, with lows in the 60s and highs in the 90s.

North Texas skies were fair to partly cloudy, although it was sunny and clear in the Mineral Wells area. Temperatures ranged from 81 in Fort Worth to 90 in Waco. Today should be partly cloudy in the western and northern portions of North Texas, with highs in the 80s and 90s. Scattered thunderstorms were forecast for the southeastern portion of the region.

NATION

Heavy rain drenched much of the Gulf Coast and Florida on Saturday, while showers stretched from the Midwest to the East Coast.

The heavy rain in Florida prompted a flood watch for parts of the state and comes after several days of wet weather, the National Weather Service said. Key West got 3.15 inches of rain Thursday and 5.73 inches Friday, records for both days.

Showers and a few thunderstorms associated with a stationary front extended from northern Indiana and southern Lower Michigan across Pennsylvania to New Jersey and southern New England.

A few showers also were scattered over the Rocky Mountains and the northern Colorado Plateau region, with thunderstorms reported over sections of Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico.

Storms developing Saturday over British Columbia could bring heavy snow to the mountains and foothills of western and central Montana by late today and early Monday, the weather service said.

There was a wide variation in temperatures across the central part of the nation during the afternoon. Temperatures were generally in the 50s north of a slowly moving cold front over Kansas and northern Missouri, while readings to the south of the front were mostly in the 80s.

Temperatures also were in the 80s in the desert Southwest and parts of the South.

Frost and freeze warnings were in effect overnight into this morning for much of Upper Michigan and northern Lower Michigan.

Temperatures late Friday and early Saturday dipped into the 30s across North Dakota, northern Minnesota, northwestern Wisconsin, Upper Michigan, upstate New York and parts of New England.

Lows in the 30s also were reported in the Great Basin and the Rocky Mountains. The low in Flagstaff, Ariz., was 29.

THIRD: Both sides see possibility for new party

(From 1A)

■ Independent and third-party candidates are crowding ballots this year.

■ Party identification is dwindling, with more people identifying themselves as independents than with either the Democratic or Republican parties. This is particularly true among younger Americans.

■ Ross Perot got 19 percent in the 1992 presidential election, even though he dropped out of the race and then got back in.

■ 53 percent of Americans think establishment of a third major party is a good idea, up 10 points from a decade ago, according to a new Times Mirror Center for the People & the Press survey of 3,800 adults nationwide.

"The economic realities of the country are remaking the middle of the electorate," argues Times Mirror survey director Andy Kohut. "The post-industrial working class is not driven by ideology."

The reasons for this discontent are many, from anxiety over global economic turmoil and stagnant wages to the increasingly held view that there is little difference between the two national parties — that both are captive of wealthy special interests and deaf to the concerns of average Americans.

"People see the political parties as a barrier to participating in society rather than a conduit," argues Weber.

Still, for a new entry into national politics to became viable, it would need a powerful personality at the top. The 1996 presidential election is viewed by most involved in this debate as the logical steppingstone.

Few believe Perot could match his 19 percent if he ran again, although he still gets that in hypothetical three-way races posed by pollsters.

Now, the consensus favorite as the personality most likely capable of launching a viable third party through a serious presidential candidacy is Colin Powell, the retired chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In a trial-heat poll of 640 voters by Newsweek last week, Powell beat President Clinton by 15 percentage points in a direct face-off. In a three-way matchup, Clinton had 34 percent, Powell 30 percent and Republican Sen. Bob Dole 28 percent, with each figure having a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 5 points.

Maverick GOP pollster Frank Luntz suggested Massachusetts GOP Gov. William Weld also could fit the mold. Also, Connecticut Gov. Lowell Weicker, a liberal Republican turned independent, has had casual discussions with political operatives to kick around the idea of a 1996 run.

To varying degrees, the sentiment that there is fertile ground for a new party is shared across the political spectrum.

Gordon Black, a veteran pollster who is assisting several fledgling new parties, argues in his recent book, "The Politics of American Discontent," that voters weakly attached to the Democratic and Republican parties could be peeled off into a new "centrist" party that is somewhat conservative on economic issues and moderate to liberal on social matters.

Similarly, Luntz says there are better than even odds of an emerging new party that would be "economically right, socially left and based in states and localities."

In Black's view, this new party would be for term limits and a balanced budget amendment, ideas advocated primarily by conservative Republicans, but not afraid to make the case for more education spending, generally a liberal cause. And it would steer clear of divisive and distracting issues like abortion and gay rights.

"A new party must avoid taking sides in the moral and cultural debate," Black asserts.

Former Massachusetts Sen. Paul Tsongas, a Clinton opponent in the 1992 Democratic primaries, suggests a "growing army" favoring deep deficit reduction and a balanced budget could prove the foundation for a third party.

"The question is, who is going to deploy that army?" Tsongas said. "I don't see a Republican who can do it. My instinct is it depends on what (President) Clinton does vis-a-vis spending and entitlement reform."

Issues aside, advocates for a new party — whether brand new or through a major reshaping of one of the existing parties — see technology as the building block.

Instead of organizing based on where people live, voters would be targeted based on what they do and where they rank in the socio-economic spectrum.

Cable television, computer networking and other technological advances offer extraordinary opportunities to organize "electronic precincts," in Weber's words. "The geographic precinct doesn't exist any more."

To Democrats, this new party debate is hardly new. But the fact that it is still being waged shows the difficulties in giving an existing national party a major face lift.

Clinton, after all, was the candidate of the Democratic Leadership Council, a centrist group whose sole mission for nearly a decade before the 1992 election was to remake the Democratic Party and loosen its ties to labor unions and other liberal interest groups.

"The intellectual work has been done for a new party," argues DLC economist Rob Shapiro. While unwilling to concede just yet that Clinton will fail to recast his party in the DLC's image, Shapiro said the lessons of Clinton's 20 months in office hardly leave him optimistic.

For Republicans, the stumbling block to any major makeover could prove to be Christian conservatives, the party's most reliable, yet controversial, constituency.

The religious right's opposition to abortion and homosexual rights clashes with the libertarian views on social issues found among the majority of disaffected voters.

Weber believes that this desired "new party" can be created from one of the existing parties.

FIND: Mother reunites with son after 29 years

(From 1A)

She left Midland and moved to California. As an unwed mother-to-be, she decided to give birth to the baby but put it up for adoption.

When the child was born on March 16, 1965, she was 17.

She viewed the child — "baby boy Archer" — only once. On the day he was born, she watched him for five minutes through the window of the hospital's nursery.

"After the baby was born, I realized how much I wanted to keep him," said his mother, now Peggy Ann Archer Hatfield, 46.

"It was unbelievable. I never understood a mother's love until I stood there looking through the glass. Before I had the baby, I didn't know what a mother's love could be."

But it was too late, it seemed, to claim the child. And she hadn't the means then to keep him.

"They wouldn't even let me hold him."

Looking at her baby, saying good-bye to the child whom she had hardly known but had given birth to, "I thought I was dying.

"The pain was so intense," she said.

Mrs. Hatfield didn't see her first-born child again until earlier this year.

While her heart ached for her son, she did not actively pursue him until recent years.

"When he was small and growing up, I sort of backed off and left it alone."

The quest for her son — Randy Snedden — was fueled in part by her suspicion that his adoption was not entirely legal.

The name "Archer" is on his California birth certificate. Mrs. Hatfield said she did not give written consent for his adoption.

In pursuit of her son and knowledge of his welfare, Mrs. Hatfield learned from the physician who delivered the child that his adoptive parents were in a small Wyoming town. They later moved to Alaska but returned to Wyoming.

Mrs. Hatfield wrote letters to the adoptive parents in Wyoming but received no reply.

Finally, this year, she talked to her son's niece there. The niece relayed the message to Snedden that his birth mother wanted to talk to him.

On July 16, Snedden called her from North Platte, Neb., where he works as a welder.

"'Mom?'" was his first word.

Her reaction was a good cry.

"Here I go again, bawling," she said.

Two weeks later, Mrs. Hatfield, her husband, Tom, and their son, Marvin, 18, drove to Nebraska to visit her oldest son.

A month later, Snedden and his girlfriend reciprocated by driving to Texas for a visit.

"It's been a wonderful experience," Mrs. Hatfield said. "It's amazing."

Her husband "thinks this is really wonderful."

And her other four children have accepted their stepbrother into the family.

"'Do you love him the same way you love us even though you never raised him?'" Mrs. Hatfield's other children asked their mother.

She replied: "He has a special place in my heart, since he was my first born."

Snedden seemed delighted to have discovered his biological mother.

"I'm just really happy I found my mom and my other family I never really knew," he said by way of telephone. "It's just great."

Mrs. Hatfield's mother, Thelma Archer, is proud of her new-found grandson.

Mrs. Hatfield thinks her late father, Charles Archer — whom she feared would have been angry about his teen-age daughter having a child out of wedlock — "would have been proud" of his grandson.

"I had seriously misjudged my daddy," Mrs. Hatfield said. "I hate that I was scared" to tell her parents of her pregnancy.

After she gave birth in 1965, she wrote her parents to tell them about her son.

"They were very supportive," she said. "I think all children, if they get themselves in this situation, need to give their parents a chance," Mrs. Hatfield said, reflecting.

She is delighted that her oldest son strongly favors her in appearance and in at least one revealing expression: a raised eye brow and a curled lip.

"He does have a God-consciousness about him," Mrs. Hatfield said. "He's a good person."

And becoming reunited with her son 29 years after his birth is "like my life becoming complete."

SPIRIT: Groups raise money for holiday decorations

ing and shipping time requirements.

Some of the decorations are anticipated to be up by Nov. 10 to coincide with the Junior League of Midland's Festival of Trees. All the decorations will be displayed by Dec. 2.

The City of Midland and TU Electric have elected to put up the decorations.

"Going up and down Texas and Wall avenues, we'll have trees and wreaths. Around the courthouse we're going to put up Santas and stockings," said committee member Denise Burns.

Each decoration is about 6 to 8 feet tall.

"And then hopefully if we get a little extra money we'll have some garland," she said.

So far, "Merry Merry Midland" has raised $31,600 of the needed $35,000 for pole decorations.

Among the donors were Wagner & Brown, $10,000; Junior League of Midland, $5,000; Arts Assembly of Midland, $3,000; Keep Midland Beautiful, $1,000; Tom Brown Inc., $1,000, and Southwestern Bell Telephone, $1,000.

"We've gotten in checks for $10 and $20 and we need those too," Ms. Burns said.

Ms. Burns said she has been told that some Travis Elementary School students are collecting nickels and pennies to contribute, the Midland Area Association of Life Underwriters will donate half the proceeds of a raffle, and a garden club has been raising money to put in the fund.

Any additional dollars raised will be used to purchase garland and/or other decorations, Ms. Burns said.

The effort of "Merry Merry Midland" will bring back decorations to the downtown area. Up until a few years ago, the city put up double-candle, garland wrapped decorations on poles downtown. But the decorations, more than 10 years old, became frayed and broken. A prohibitive city budget didn't allow for replacements.

To complement the decorations, another group of Midlanders — the Christmas Spirit Committee — has began a quest to have downtown buildings lighted up this holiday season.

"It's going pretty well. A lot of people are interested in it," said Donna Gore, who heads the Christmas Spirit Committee.

The group would like to see the top of buildings lit up with clear Christmas lights but "any type of decoration to show the holiday spirit is welcome," Ms. Gore said.

One suggestion to building managers has been to light up windows with inside lights to form a cross or Christmas tree or other symbol of the season.

Some of the larger buildings that will light up — beginning Dec. 2 — include the Petroleum Building, the Wilco Building, the NCNB Bank Building and First City Center, Ms. Gore said.

"I think there's going to be a noticeable difference," she said.

Ms. Gore said she sees the effort as the beginning of a new tradition in Midland.

"I hope in the next two or three years we'll see the entire skyline lit up. It's just a dream I've had," she said.

In addition to the lighted buildings and decorations this year, the city will continue their tradition of lighting up the Christmas tree at Centennial Plaza. The lighting usually takes place the first Friday of December.

HELP: MISD seeks solutions

being organized. The teams will establish priorities for campuses that will be assigned to school administrators to get into budgets over the next two years.

Eight MISD objectives already drawn up for consideration are:

■ By 2000, MISD will have greater than 90 percent of students completing third-grade reading at grade level.

Cummins said about 65-70 percent of students meet that objective now.

■ By 2000, MISD will increase parental involvement on each campus by 10 percent each year until 50 percent involvement is reached and maintained.

Cummins said no tracking has been done yet to assess parental involvement. "This is a new area for us. We would need to get this number and increase the baseline," he said.

■ By 2000, MISD will develop and implement strategies to effectively communicate and involve the total community.

■ By 2000, MISD will provide a student-centered learning environment that is safe, orderly and drug-free.

■ By 2000, MISD will plan and/or construct new facilities and renovate or replace outdated facilities to accommodate projected enrollments and student needs.

■ By 2000, MISD will reduce the district annual dropout rate to 5 percent or less.

The current total rate is 8 percent, with Hispanics having the largest dropout rate per population.

■ By 2000, MISD will recruit the best qualified personnel available for the job, while maintaining a diverse ethnic representation.

According to the Long Range Plan mission statement: "MISD will provide a safe, drug-free, child-centered environment and will graduate competent individuals whose skills, knowledge and aspirations empower them to accept the responsibilities of productive citizenship. As lifelong learners, they will effectively contribute to the needs of their family, nation and world community while demonstrating a respect for cultural and economic diversity."

AGREE: U.S., Japan avert trade war

(From 1A)

But the administration refrained from citing Japan under a more feared section of trade law known as Super 301, which carries the stigma of being labeled an unfair trader.

Kantor said that Japan's willingness to reach deals in the other areas had been a factor in withholding a Super 301 designation. He said no country would be cited this year, although the administration would publish a "watch list" of countries with unfair barriers on Monday. Such a list would not carry the threat of imminent sanctions.

Various industry groups, from telephone giant AT&T to glass producer Guardian Industries, were unanimous in their praise of the deals. But they warned that results — that is, increased sales — would be what counted.

And Andrew H. Card Jr., president of the American Automobile Manufacturers Association, expressed disappointment that more headway was not made in the auto sector.

"No agreement with Japan can be meaningful without addressing the auto and auto parts sector," he said.

However, Clyde Prestowitz, the president of Economic Strategy Institute, a Washington trade research group and frequent critic of administration trade policy, said he was "pleasantly surprised" with what the administration had been able to achieve.

The dollar, which hit record lows earlier this year because of market fears that a trade war could erupt between the world's two biggest economies, should rise in value when trading opens Monday, Prestowitz predicted.

"The administration has demonstrated that it can be firm with Japan without blowing up the whole U.S.-Japanese relationship," he said.

The trade agreements were only reached in the 20th hour of a marathon negotiating session that saw Japanese Foreign Minister Yohei Kono and Trade Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto shuttle back and forth between Kantor's offices and their hotel room throughout the night.

The administration had set a midnight Friday deadline for reaching deals or hitting Japan with sanctions.

Saturday's outcome was a far cry from last February when President Clinton and then-Prime Minister Morihiro Hosokawa decided to let a summit meeting collapse rather than paper over their differences in the framework talks.

These negotiations were started in July 1993 and were supposed to put U.S.-Japan trade relations on a sounder, less acrimonious footing. But up until Saturday, they had not worked that way.

Residents return to Indian city hit hard by plague

SURAT, India (NYT) — Thousands of people were streaming back to this city Saturday by rail and road to resume lives disrupted by the outbreak of pneumonic plague that began here two weeks ago, despite a continuing rise in the numbers of people being infected both here and elsewhere in India.

The scene at Surat's railway station was in sharp contrast to 11 days ago, when crowds of people stampeded in an effort to force their way onto trains, only for many to be pushed back by armed police.

Saturday, the crowds were mainly arriving, many of them among the estimated 400,000 people who had fled to Bombay and other cities.

"You can't hide forever," said J.V. Pathak, 52, an engineer who had gone to Bombay. "Sooner or later, you have to say: 'To hell with it. I have a job to do and a family to feed.' "

Like many other passengers, he had a handkerchief tied around his nose and mouth to ward off the airborne bacteria that transmit pneumonic plague.

Figures issued by the Indian Health Ministry indicated that nearly 2,600 people across India are now believed to have contracted pneumonic or bubonic plague. No other outbreak of plague in decades has spread so quickly, and affected so many people.

Cities reporting plague cases include three with populations of at least 10 million — Bombay, Calcutta and New Delhi — as well a score of others.

The largest number of suspected plague patients, 614, remained in isolation wards in Surat.

Troops and police officers with automatic rifles have been posted at all exits from the city's New Civil Hospital to prevent plague patients from fleeing.

Serbs decide to lift blockade on aid vehicles

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian Serbs agreed Saturday to lift their blockade of U.N. aid and military vehicles, imposed more than a week ago in retaliation for a NATO airstrike.

The agreement was announced in a joint statement by Bosnian Serb leaders and the U.N. commander in Bosnia, Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Rose. It followed an earlier announcement that the Serbs and the Muslim-led government had agreed in principle on a long-delayed exchange of war prisoners.

The statement, issued at Serb headquarters in Pale east of Sarajevo, said aid convoys would be allowed to resume as of Sunday under previous rules, which required 24-hour notice.

"It was a very successful meeting," said U.N. spokeswoman Claire Grimes. She said the session was attended by Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic and his military chief, Gen. Ratko Mladic.

Numerous previous accords on prisoner exchanges and aid delivery have collapsed or been ignored in Bosnia's 2½-year war. But the latest agreements suggested a slight improvement in the deteriorating relations between Bosnian Serbs and U.N. peacekeepers.

Grimes said the Serbs also agreed to start immediate talks on reopening the Sarajevo airport to vital aid flights, "but at the moment we still don't have a concrete agreement."

Bosnian Serbs effectively closed the Sarajevo airport and stopped U.N. military movement and humanitarian convoys after a Sept. 22 airstrike on a Bosnian Serb tank. U.N. commanders asked for the strike after Serbs attacked French peacekeepers.

NATO officials have acknowledged that their six air attacks on Serbs so far have been largely symbolic.

The strikes seem to have only hardened the position of Bosnian Serbs, who refuse to cooperate with the United Nations and continue to reject a peace plan.

China celebrates 45 years of communism with fireworks, dances

BEIJING (AP) — In celebration of 45 years of Communist rule, lavish fireworks lit the skies over Tiananmen Square on Saturday — five years after the army crushed pro-democracy demonstrations there.

Every five years, the People's Republic of China marks the anniversary of its birth with a special celebration. This year's festivities seemed designed to promote the Communist Party's message of economic well-being and patriotism.

During the day, the city's parks pulsated with martial arts displays, Peking opera and dance performances.

At the gate of Zhongshan Park, hundreds of children danced in rows under two giant photographs of senior leader Deng Xiaoping.

Deng, frail at age 90, did not appear during the celebration of the day in 1949 when Mao stood atop the crimson and gold Tiananmen — the Gate of Heavenly Peace — and proclaimed the Communist People's Republic.

The festive atmosphere was in stark contrast to five years ago, when the vast concrete-paved plaza was closed to all but carefully selected groups — and empty on the eve of National Day — following the violent suppression of pro-democracy celebrations several months earlier.

This year, the gaiety returned.

The bright lights and neon signs flashing in the commercial district to the south of the square, and the cameras carried by almost every family, underlined the changes that have taken place since 1989, when the Tiananmen Square democracy protest was crushed — in particular, wider market-oriented economic reforms that have raised Chinese living standards to their highest level ever.

Security was heavy Saturday. Hundreds of police stood guard in downtown Beijing, and admission to festivities at Zhongshan, near the Forbidden City, and seven other parks was by special pass for selected army heroes, ethnic minorities, model workers and overseas Chinese.

Tiananmen Square was open and jammed with people taking pictures and gazing at enormous dragons, a pagoda and a peacock made of potted flowers.

Before dawn, tens of thousands of people gathered at the square to see the raising of the country's red flag with five yellow stars, representing unity among China's minorities and the Han ethnic majority.

The government has sought to enhance a sense of well-being. State-run media have carried daily reports trumpeting China's progress over the last 45 years.

Food reserves were released to ensure well-stocked markets, and price ceilings imposed to help take the sting out of inflation that has topped 20 percent.

In spite of a loosening of social and economic controls, Communist Party leaders remain determined to vanquish any challenges to their monopoly on political power, which they say is crucial for China's political stability.

Cubans flock to free market to buy produce

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thousands of Cubans, hungry for fresh produce, flocked to two free markets that opened in Havana on Saturday as part of an experiment by the communist government to overcome growing shortages.

About 10,000 people shopped in Havana's Cuatro Caminos market in its first six hours, the Cuban government news agency Prensa Latina estimated.

At least 30 products were on sale, including potatoes, vegetables, cereal grains, pork, mutton, rabbit, beef and chicken stock and cooked dishes such as rice with frijole beans. All are impossible to get at government markets.

Virtually all essentials, including gasoline and other fuels, have been strictly rationed in Cuba since a 1958 revolution brought President Fidel Castro's regime to power.

Until now, everything was controlled through ration cards and sold in government stores, except for a brief period in the mid-1970's when the government tried but failed to deregulate foodstuff retailing.

Subsidies kept prices low at government stores. But production has been dropping, shortages have grown and items have virtually disappeared from government stores since the demise of the Soviet Union, which used to finance Cuba's economy.

A shortage of hard currency and the three-decade U.S. economic embargo of the island has further weakened the economy.

Previously, farmers and other food producers had to sell to the government. But under reforms enacted last week, quotas for sale to the government were set and producers were allowed beginning Saturday to sell any surplus privately.

Scores of small farmers and farm cooperatives rented space and set up stalls to sell their produce at Cuatro Caminos and Plaza de la Revolucion, Havana's other big market. Both are state-owned.

Leader urges Tutsis not to seek revenge

KIGALI, Rwanda (AP) — The general who led Rwanda's Tutsi rebels to victory in the country's civil war appealed to them Saturday not to seek revenge against Hutus blamed for ethnic massacres.

Maj. Gen. Paul Kagame, vice president in the new Tutsi-installed government, criticized "foreigners who come to preach division" — a reference to allegations by some U.N. officials that Tutsi-led forces have carried out widespread reprisal killings.

The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees conceded Saturday that intimidation by Hutu extremists — not reprisals by Tutsi-led government troops — was the main factor preventing more than 2 million Rwandan refugees from returning home from camps in neighboring countries.

"Ninety percent of the problem is related to the presence of ex-government soldiers in the camps," said Marjane Aalam, a UNHCR spokeswoman.

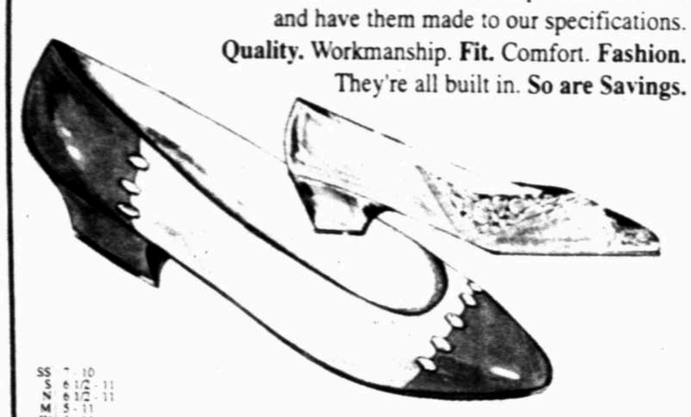

"They are the main obstacle to repatriation. As long as they are there, there's nothing much we can do. People who want to go have to leave secretly at night, they fear for their lives, and it's getting more and more violent."

An internal agency report had accused Kagame's troops of systematic killing and persecution of Hutus. The government denied the charges.

Kagame, speaking to soldiers and supporters at celebrations in Kigali on the anniversary of the rebels' first attack in 1990, said Rwandan soldiers were duty bound to prevent further ethnic bloodshed in the central African nation, where more than 500,000 people have been killed in massacres since April. Most of the victims were minority Tutsis killed by Hutu militias.

"You must be careful not to wreak vengeance," Kagame said.

Take a Walk in Our Shoes.

U.S. soldiers disarm Haiti's navy, carry out weapons seizures

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — U.S. soldiers disarmed Haiti's small naval base and seized private caches of arms in the area west of the capital Saturday, one day after pro-army militias fired on pro-democracy marchers.

Also Saturday, U.S. soldiers took dozens of shotguns and other firearms from a food warehouse belonging to a pro-army businessman after private guards there fired repeatedly on hundreds of would-be looters gathering outside. Seven people, including two children, were wounded by the gunfire, and U.S. Army medics treated some victims at the scene.

The arms seized at the Admiral Killick naval base in Bizoton, just west of the capital, included semi-automatic weapons and machine guns. U.S. military spokesmen said they did not have any information on other seizures, but reporters witnessed seven private locations that were searched in the area.

The U.S. soldiers, in Sheridan tanks, met no resistance, said U.S. Navy Lt. Mark McCaffrey.

"We're just trying to make a stable environment out there for the return of (exiled President Jean-Bertrand) Aristide," McCaffrey told The Associated Press.

The operation, which began late Saturday afternoon was still ongoing Saturday night, followed three days of violence that raised questions about the ability of the 20,000-plus American force to protect Haiti's people from its army and army-allied civilian gunmen.

■ HAITI UPDATE: Call Cityline 560-2400, enter 6201.

The naval base recently had been used as a training center for pro-army militias. McCaffrey said American soldiers confiscated 119 M-1 rifles, 3 M-60 machine guns, 11 .50-caliber machine guns, 11 Uzi assault weaons, 39 bolt-action or recoilless rifles, 13 cases of tear gas grenades and four cases of .50-caliber ammunition.

Unlike the regular army and police, Haiti's poorly equipped navy, which has about 165 sailors, usually isn't involved in repression.

The Killick base is named after a Haitian admiral who in 1902 blew himself up in his ship to avoid turning the vessel over to a German gunboat which had demanded its surrender. When U.S. troops invaded Haiti in 1915, the first wave landed at the Bizoton base.

Local radio Quisqueya also reported that sacks, possibly containing weapons, were seized by the American soldiers from a hotel nearby.

The Hotel Voyager is owned by a paramilitary trainer and member of army chief Raoul Cedras' private "Ninja" security force. The man was detained by American troops just before a pro-democracy march Friday. The car he was riding in was full of automatic weapons and chargers.

Meanwhile, outside the warehouse near the Cite Soleil slum, hundreds of angry Haitians stood around Saturday night. It wasn't clear whether the U.S. soldiers would remain there overnight after having disarmed the private guards and the owner's relatives. The warehouse stores food, mostly rice.

U.S. avoids involvement with fighting

■ Analysis

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — The actions of the 20,000-member American military force in Haiti in the face of rising violence have been subdued and the policy behind that force tentative and contradictory.

The U.S. Embassy here encourages Haitians to demonstrate on behalf of democracy, yet when they do the United States disclaims responsibility for protecting them against pro-military auxiliaries such as the Front for the Advancement and Progress of Haiti, or FRAPH.

These paramilitary organizations now are being emboldened by the United States' hesitancy to get directly involved in the street. And ordinary Haitians are losing respect for the American forces.

The situation in the capital bodes ill for Washington's plans to reinstall President Jean-Bertrand Aristide in mid-October. FRAPH has vowed to resist Aristide's return.

The rules of engagement under which the U.S. forces came to this troubled Caribbean nation of 7 million people allow the Americans to intervene in Haitian-on-Haitian violence, but they are not doing it.

This is sending a very dangerous message to organizations like FRAPH — that they can literally get away with murder.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Stanley Schrager has been one of the main articulators of American policy in Haiti, to the point where pro-military forces have asked for his explusion. After a renewal of violence during a demonstration on Friday, Schrager said:

"It is unfortunate that inadequate Haitian police protection on the street permitted anti-democratic elements, in particular FRAPH, to attack marchers and disrupt a peaceful demonstration, resulting in several deaths and a number of injuries. This behavior is unacceptable."

The fact that it is "unacceptable" implies something must or should be done about it. So far, there is no evidence the United States is willing to exert the force allowed under the rules of engagement.

For its part, the U.S. military insists that the primary responsibility for dealing with violence is the Haitian police force, which is a branch of the army that overthrew Aristide three years ago.

The Haitian army, police and the paramilitary auxiliaries have been blamed by human rights organizations for most of the repression and bloodshed over the past three years, so it is very difficult to understand how they now can be viewed as the agents of peace and order.

Following the American logic, the very people responsible for the repression are the ones now responsible for the peaceful transition of power to the pro-democracy forces.

"It is clear we are going to have to do something about it," Schrager said of the numerous outbreaks of violence last week. "What we are going to do about it is under discussion at the highest level." He did not elaborate.

Seismic 'ghost towns' stand an eerie reminder of L.A. quake's destruction

By Niko Price
Associated Press

Gang graffiti cover walls in an abandoned condominium in L.A.

LOS ANGELES — Nine months after the deadly Northridge earthquake, the deserted Garden View Terrace apartments remain littered with remnants of residents' shattered lives.

A 1,500-piece puzzle and eight-track tapes of Herb Alpert and Dionne Warwick are strewn around Rose Gold's former apartment. Still standing on the bathroom counter, covered with broken tile and dust, are a bottle of pump soap and a deodorant spray can.

The 65-year-old widow lived in the close-knit community for eight years, and wistfully recalls "that little nuclear group that came down to the pool all the time."

Now the pool is empty except for dried leaves and two bowling balls. A few Diet Coke cans line the Jacuzzi.

She hasn't been back since the Jan. 17 earthquake, a 6.7-magnitude wallop that killed 61 people.

Garden View sits crumbling in one of the city's 15 seismic "ghost towns," abandoned neighborhoods where quake-ravaged buildings became homes for squatters, drug dealers and prostitutes.

Beefed-up patrols and sturdier fences have since brought silence, except for eerie sounds like window shades rattling in the breeze and stray cats rummaging in the debris.

"At nighttime it's weird. You hear all kinds of noises," said a security guard who wouldn't give his name, shining his flashlight into the dark. "There's no one to talk to, just me and my partner."

Police noticing growing crime in the abandoned neighborhoods in late February, after inspectors pasted their last red tags banning entry into destroyed buildings and residents finally moved out.

In May, the buildings started to attract gang activity. That's about when Housing Department officials dubbed the dilapidated neighborhoods ghost towns.

In July, the city created a task force on ghost towns. In August, they received federal permission to spend earthquake recovery money to hire guards.

"There are no more people selling drugs," said 17-year-old Diana Lopez, who lives near the North Hills ghost town, which had been one of the worst. "They got scared, I think, of the securities."

Garden View is littered with things passed over by looters. Cracked flower pots and torn sofas are scattered around the cracked courtyard. Dented filing cabinets, rusty ironing boards and broken televisions clutter balconies.

Elaine Spilkoman, 55, said she is frightened by the changes in Garden View, just across an alley from her home of 31 years. "It's scary when you're used to having people next to you," she said. "There's nothing there."

The next priority, officials say, is to rebuild, to eliminate eyesores as well as hiding places for crime. Crews recently began tearing down the Northridge Meadows Apartments, where 16 people were killed, and many other buildings are being demolished or rebuilt.

"When construction begins, the problems disappear," said Greig Smith, chief of staff for city Councilman Hal Bernson, who heads a committee on earthquake recovery.

The Small Business Administration has already approved more than $2.13 billion in low-interest loans for homeowners and renters. That includes more than $55.5 million for ghost town applicants.

"We are giving top priority to ghost town requests," said Rick Jenkins, spokesman for the SBA in Los Angeles.

The city Housing Department, which lends money to people turned down by the SBA, is working on $164 million in loans, including $64 million for ghost town properties, said Bob Moncrief, the Housing Department's major projects director. Of the ghost town loans, $24 million had been committed, he said.

Rose Gold, who lives with her daughter 20 miles away, has written off her cherished Garden View apartment — a hefty down payment and eight years of mortgage payments a total loss.

Clinton turns from U.S. agenda to world stage

By Terence Hunt
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Goodbye, Boris Yeltsin. Hello, Nelson Mandela.

A long line of foreign leaders is backing up at the White House VIP turnstile as President Clinton turns from his embattled domestic agenda and tries to bolster his image as a world leader.

When presidents are in trouble at home, it's not unusual for them to switch to foreign affairs. And with Congress anxious to flee town, leaving Clinton's proposals on the shelf, there's more time for the president to pay attention to global issues.

In some measure, the change of focus was driven by U.S. intervention in Haiti, as well as problems with North Korea and Bosnia. There are also longstanding plans for a trip to Asia.

"Some of his advisers want him to get back on the economy but foreign policy is going to cram it out for awhile," said one senior administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity. "They need to realize you get something from being commander in chief."

Foreign policy has never been Clinton's strong suit, as measured by polls. Sending troops to Haiti hasn't improved his overall approval rating, which hovers around 40 percent or less.

"That's pretty tepid support for a president who's just put troops into the field," said pollster Andrew Kohut of the Times-Mirror Center for the People and the Press. "Usually there's a lot more rally-'round-the-president."

For the immediate future, Clinton probably will be judged by how things are going in Haiti. That could spell trouble, since an Associated Press poll found that only 45 percent of Americans favored U.S. intervention and 51 percent opposed it.

Instead of waging an 11th-hour battle to get health reform through Congress, as had been anticipated before lawmakers killed his prized program, Clinton has made international economics his priority on Capitol Hill.

Clinton has insisted that Congress pass a global trade agreement before going home, and pledged to bring the Senate back for a lame-duck session to get the accord through. Administration officials say they're confident he'll win.

Yeltsin's two-day state visit last week, ending with a pledge to accelerate the dismantling of nuclear weapons, was viewed as a big plus for Clinton.

Similarly, there are high expectations when Mandela visits the White House on Tuesday and Wednesday as the leader of South Africa's first black-led government.

Even before Mandela arrives, China's vice premier, Qian Qichen, will pay a call on Clinton on Monday.

It will be the first high-level contact in Washington with a senior Chinese official since Clinton's decision last year to grant trade benefits to Beijing without regard to its human rights conduct.

Also Monday, Clinton will sit down with Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and Jordanian Crown Prince Hassan bin Talal.

Carter turns 70, takes rap for tensions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter said Saturday that recent tensions between himself and the Clinton administration stemmed from "miscommunications, most of which were my fault."

Carter's comment came at the end of a day of awards, grants and a celebration of his 70th birthday at the State Department.

The former president, who won new attention this year with missions to resolve U.S. disputes with Haiti and North Korea, accepted a $50,000 Fulbright Association award for a "substantial contribution to breaking through the barriers which divide mankind."

President Clinton added his praise in a letter which said, "You have unselfishly devoted the better part of your life to bringing conflict to an end."

In his speech accepting the award, Carter talked of his efforts at conflict resolution around the world. But in an apparent reference to the diplomatic static caused by his Haiti and North Korean ventures, Carter quipped, "Our next task is to work a little bit harder on domestic understanding."

Carter led a three-man team to Haiti last month in an attempt to avert a U.S. invasion and restore the country's democratically elected president.

Afterward, Carter angered some diplomats when he said publicly that he told Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras, Haiti's military leader, that he had been "ashamed" by the Clinton administration embargo against Haiti. Carter said it only hurt poor people.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher traveled to Carter's home in Plains, Ga., last weekend to help sort out differences, many of them rising from Carter's recent criticism of alleged State Department inflexibility.

GM workers OK strike settlement

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Striking autoworkers who said they were forced to build too many cars with too few people voted overwhelmingly Saturday to end their walkout in exchange for a General Motors promise to hire new workers.

Several thousand workers applauded, cheered and whistled when United Auto Workers union leaders explained the deal at an auditorium near the Buick City complex. Employees then voted 1,850 to 151 to approve the proposal.

It was not immediately clear when the workers would be back on the job.

The 11,500 workers who walked out Tuesday build new General Motors Corp. cars, but more important, they make transmission and suspension parts that are used in most GM vehicles. The shutdown at Flint threatened to hamstring GM operations nationwide and by Saturday had forced several plants to close or cut back operations.

Under the settlement, GM would hire more than 500 new workers from the ranks of long laid-off union members whose benefits and callback rights have expired. It could set a pattern for resolving similar disputes over staff size and overtime that threaten to disrupt other GM plants.

"I think in the future you're going to see that solved across the country," Dave Yettaw, president of striking UAW Local 599, told his members at Saturday's session.

UAW Vice President Stephen Yokich said Friday that he and GM President Jack Smith would work together in the next two weeks to try to head off threatened strikes at several other GM plants.

Yokich, who will become the union's president next year, praised Smith for his role.

Congressional veterans, disillusioned newcomers leave Capitol behind

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — When Congress goes home at the end of the week, dozens of lawmakers will pack up their offices for good. Some hope to win bigger jobs in November, some are simply ready for less hectic lives, and a group of relative newcomers leaves disillusioned and frustrated.

Rep. David A. Levy, R-N.Y., who lost his re-election bid last week, is one of four House members ousted in primary battles. He joins Rep. Mike Synar, of Oklahoma, a popular young Democratic leader who lost to a 71-year-old political novice a week earlier.

Meanwhile, dozens of veteran lawmakers are willingly vacating their seats after decades, saying it's time for a new generation.

"I think a lot of these guys who are over there right now ought to take heed to what I'm saying and get the hell out," Rep. Douglas Applegate, D-Ohio, who is 66, said on the day he announced his retirement. "They reach a point when they sort of become stale or stagnant and then they just occupy the seat."

In all, 49 House members and nine senators chose not to return next session.

Decades of accumulated experience go out the door with many of them. They include Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, 77, first elected in 1976, an independent-minded liberal who has fought against congressional perks and special interests, and Rep. William D. Ford, D-Mich., 67, who has ardently championed America's workers in his 30 years in Congress.

Some departures leave open key leadership positions. Ford, for instance, is chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine is leaving Congress, as is House Minority Leader Bob Michel of Illinois. Michel, 71, came to Congress in 1956, has been the Republican leader since 1980, and is the most senior GOP member of the House.

Another who will not return next session is Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., who in 1992 became the longest-serving member of Congress in history. Whitten came to the Capitol in November 1941.

For decades, Whitten was a powerful force on the Hill, serving as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee from 1979 to 1992. But he is leaving with much of that force gone, stripped of chairmanships of both Appropriations and an Agriculture subcommittee he had headed since 1949 after he suffered a stroke two years ago.

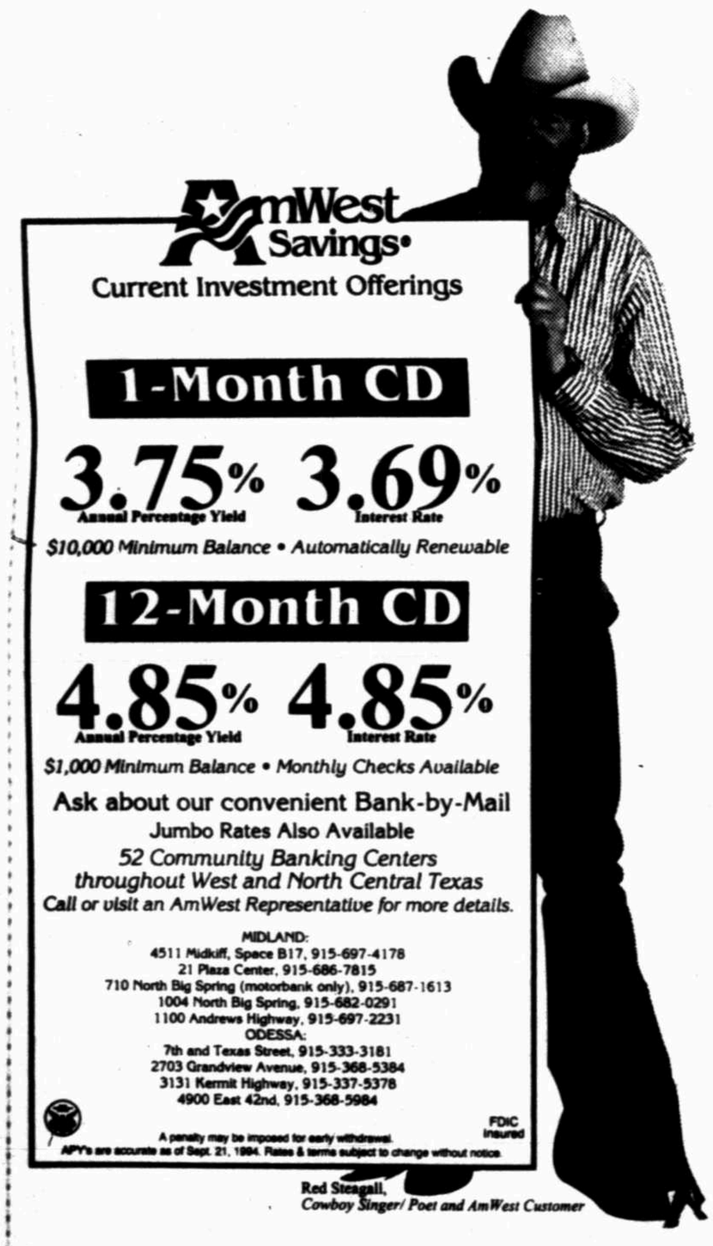

California will lose its senior congressman when 79-year-old Democratic Rep. Don Edwards retires after 32 years. The chairman of a key Judiciary subcommittee dealing with amendments to the Constitution, he has fought for abortion rights, the rights of death-row inmates and many other civil rights causes.

Allegations of corruption hover over some exiting lawmakers — such as Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., who faces a trial over improper use of his Senate expense account, and Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., and Donald Riegle, D-Mich., two senators investigated in the "Keating Five" ethics probe.

One zealous young lawmaker, Rep. Mike Kopetski, D-Ore., heads home sooner than he might have chosen. After he was convicted of drunken driving last year, he felt he no longer could set an example.

Some promising lawmakers are leaving out of frustration, like Rep. Tim Penny, D-Minn., who came to Congress in 1982, and has challenged more senior members in pushing for fiscal responsibility.

Rep. Alex McMillan, R-N.C., elected in 1984, wrote a letter to constituents announcing his retirement in which he expressed frustration with Congress, party politics and the media. He accused many of his colleagues of being "consumed only by the next election."

Wilderness dreams fade to rugged reality, but modern pioneers endure

By David Foster
Associated Press

CASCADE CREEK, Alaska — No one seemed to be home. Just a German shepherd whose wild barking inside the log cabin suggested it was time for the visitor to leave.

Then a boy stepped out from behind a tree, his eyes wide at the sight of a stranger. He dashed off without a word, leading the way to a pile of rocks in the woods. Near the rocks was a hole and, down in the hole, sweating and jabbing with a shovel, was the boy's father.

Digging a well? the visitor asked.

"It's a grave," the man said quietly. "For my wife."

Nine years have passed since Pete and Rosemary Oliva came to Cascade Creek with the dream of building a cabin in the Alaska wilderness.

By the luck of the draw or the will of God — Pete and Rosemary always believed it to be the latter — they slipped into one of the last spots in America open to homesteading, where a person could get free government land just by living on it.

A wonderful dream. But the rugged reality of frontier living, and sometimes dying, reveals why most people keep it a dream. As anyone at Cascade Creek will tell you, there's no such thing as free land.

Pete and Rosemary Oliva moved to Alaska in December 1983, a natural step in a migration that had already taken them from the Florida Keys to the Maine woods.

They were well-suited for life on The Last Frontier. Pete, then 34, was a rugged bear of a man with a wide-ranging resume: pilot, fisherman, diver, welder. Rosemary, then 37, was an adventure-seeker whose crippled leg, the result of childhood polio, could not keep her from climbing mountains.

They envisioned moving straight into a cabin in the woods. Instead, they did as many Alaska newcomers do, living in an apartment in Anchorage, where 41 percent of Alaska's 600,000 residents are crammed into an area smaller than Rhode Island.

Rosemary Oliva

Breathing got easier when they moved to Sterling, a small town on the Kenai Peninsula, where Pete welded for oil companies. But they still weren't happy.

"I may as well have been in New Jersey," Oliva recalled. "I didn't come to Alaska to weld on oil rigs. That's not part of the dream."

AP Laserphoto

Pete Oliva, 44, and his son, Daniel, 9, pose by their cabin.

They were not the only frustrated dreamers. For decades, any American seeking the pioneer life could stake an Alaska homestead on unreserved federal land under the Homestead Act of 1862. But that law was repealed in 1976, and no federal land has been opened for homesteading in Alaska since 1986.

The state began its own homestead program in 1984, open only to Alaska residents. But much of the land offered was very lonely — beyond roads and so expensive to reach by boat or plane that few could afford the "free" land.

An exception was the 1985 offering near Cascade Creek, right along the Glenn Highway and just 100 miles northeast of Anchorage. Spruce and aspen blanketed a gentle south-facing slope by the Matanuska River. The craggy peaks and glaciered valleys of the Chugach Mountains loomed to the south; the Talkeetna Mountains rose to the north.

More than 1,000 Alaskans applied to stake 40 acres of this wild paradise for their own. Only 15 permits were issued. A lottery chose the winners, and among them were Pete and Rosemary Oliva.

They thanked the Lord and got to work.

First came bushwhacking to find a level homesite, then staking boundaries and brushing them clear. The next spring, they moved onto their land, living in a little trailer they hauled in on a rough trail from the road.

Building a home took until August 1987, when they threw on a roof and moved in: two adults, a 2-year-old boy named Daniel and a big dog named Rocky, all snug in an 18-by-24-foot cabin.

They settled into the rhythms of homestead life. Chopping wood. Hauling water. Bathing in a plastic tub on the floor. Pete hunted for moose, and Rosemary cooked it on the cabin's tiny stove.

Summer days were spent in hurried preparation for winter's burrowing-in, when snow piles 3 feet deep and the sun disappears for two months behind the mountains.

If these were hardships, the Olivas didn't complain. A self-sufficient life close to nature was why they had come. The hard part was making ends meet.

Oliva said he worked as a pilot in Palmer, 50 miles down the road, until the company went out of business. He found work welding, but injured his arm and had to stop. Now, he carves wooden whale sculptures at home. The pieces sell for $275 in art galleries.

Case of woman taking Halcion who killed mother is heartbreaking

By Kim Cobb
Hearst News Service

If Ilo Grundberg had any memory of the day she pumped eight bullets into the head of her sleeping 83-year-old mother, it mercifully was tucked into her subconscious for most of the last six years.

But mercy has its limits, and her memory came back.

Her daughter thinks that's the main reason Grundberg hanged herself June 22 — just two days after the sixth anniversary of the 1988 shooting death of Mildred Coates.

Never mind that court-ordered psychiatrists had found Grundberg had been "involuntarily intoxicated" on the sleep aid Halcion at the time of the shooting and she never stood trial. Never mind that she eventually settled a $21 million lawsuit against the company that manufactures the drug, albeit for an amount that remains confidential.

"Regardless of what anyone else said, she pulled that trigger," her daughter, Janice Scherf, said. "And that was always confusing for her."

Grundberg's case was the groundbreaker for people who describe themselves as "Halcion victims." The potential dangers associated with the drug were not widely known before the Utah woman's case became public.

Then 57, Grundberg had been taking Halcion for several months — even though the drug is recommended only for short-term use — when she killed her mother. The Upjohn Co. settled her lawsuit just before the civil trial was scheduled to begin in August 1991.

Grundberg moved from Utah to Las Vegas and tried to start a new life.

Around June 20 each year, the anniversary of her mother's birth and death, Grundberg made a trip to Pueblo, Colo., where both her parents are buried. She talked about plans for this year's trip to the cemetery when she visited her daughter in Salem, Ore., a short time before her suicide.

"In this last six years, I had not heard her mention suicide at all," Scherf said. Grundberg was, however, upset at the news that a London court had delivered a mixed verdict in a lawsuit brought by Upjohn against Scottish Halcion critic Ian Oswald.

The court ultimately ruled that Upjohn and Oswald had, in effect, libeled each other. The judge ordered Upjohn to pay Oswald twice as much in damages as Oswald was required to pay Upjohn.

But Upjohn declared the court decision a victory, and it upset Grundberg terribly.

"I tried to explain to her that it was just a slander suit — nothing to do with the validity of the drug," Scherf said.

"I think that in her mind, and I think it says a lot about justice, if a person isn't punished, they punish themselves," Scherf theorized. "If they were declaring victory, she must have been guilty.

Scherf said she last spoke to her mother by telephone on June 21, just before midnight. Investigators in Las Vegas told Scherf that her mother probably hanged herself shortly afterward in the early hours of June 22.

QVC network, baby boomers find gardening

By Anne Raver
N.Y. Times News Service

In the beginning, after everyone got kicked out of Eden, some hunters and gatherers stuck a few seeds in the ground, and the first gardeners were born.

Now, about 10,000 years later, the QVC shopping network has discovered gardening. And so have the baby boomers — 60 million potential consumers of trowels, perennials, shrubs, trees, lily ponds and worm boxes.

In 1993, according to the National Gardening Survey, conducted by the Gallup Organization, 68 million American gardeners spent $22 billion on plants and equipment, up $6 billion from 1989.

The people who are spending the most — an average of $400 a year — are between the ages of 30 and 49, college educated, with annual incomes of more than $50,000. Those making $100,000 are spending twice as much.

"What's really hot now is the home as sanctuary, and that includes making a space outdoors that renews you," said Bruce Butterfield, who has been tracking trends for the National Gardening Association for 16 years. "In the 80s, the cocktail chatter was 'How are your tomatoes?' Now it's 'My perennial garden looks like hell.'"

Gardening has edged out swimming as America's No. 1 hobby for 15 years. But all of a sudden, it's hotter than compost.

Why now? Television, for one thing. When Martha Stewart talks about hydrangeas on her syndicated television show, they sell out all over the country. The shopping networks are selling plants, cheap, and not just daffodils but peonies, bleeding hearts and butterfly bushes.

The Scripps Howard Broadcasting Co., which owns nine television stations, is setting up a 24-hour cable Home and Garden Television Network in Knoxville, Tenn., and plans to begin its live shows in November.

Ken Lowe, the president of the new network, it hoped to reach 30 million to 40 million homes in five years. Programs will include everything from how to design a rose garden to features on community gardens and the gardens of celebrities.

Newsstands are flooded with garden magazines like Fine Gardening, Organic Gardening, Gardens Illustrated, Horticulture Magazine, Sunset and Southern Living.

The Meredith Corp., which publishes Better Homes & Gardens, now offers its 7.6 million readers an eight-page insert devoted entirely to gardening and puts out seven special issues a year full of ideas for the home landscaper.

And next year, it hopes to draw another million new readers to a glossier.

The Solution: Laser Surgery

Laser surgery can be an effective way to remove small varicosities (veins) on the nose & cheeks. These veins occur as a result of sun damage and other factors. Laser surgery offers a superior way to remove these with little to no evidence of surgery. No down time, fast healing, and excellent results are common.

Federal director was 'protecting' Brady in Texaco-Haiti case, diary says

By John Solomon
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The head of the federal office that enforced the Haitian trade embargo ordered an aide to keep quiet about then-Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady's intervention in a case involving Texaco, according to the aide's notes of the conversations.

"I'm protecting him," Office of Foreign Assets Control Director Richard Newcomb is quoted as saying of Brady. Brady served under President Bush and was in office in 1991 when the Haitian embargo was put into place following a military coup there.

Newcomb ignored his staff's pleas to stop the flow of oil and money to Haiti's military junta after his agency concluded Texaco was illegally doing business with the regime, according to documents examined by The Associated Press

Notes of three discussions between Newcomb and OFAC chief of enforcement William Wasley, obtained by the AP, say that Newcomb was dragging his feet in the case against staff recommendations because Brady had asked him to.

In one set of notes, it says that Newcomb told Wasley, "Secretary Brady told me to go slow. What was I supposed to do?"

The AP first reported two weeks ago there were unusual delays and lenient treatment afforded Texaco for alleged embargo violations in Haiti after Brady apparently gave the "go slow" order.

The matter is now being reviewed by the U.S. attorney, Treasury inspector general and congressional committees.

The AP has learned that Wasley noted three conversations with Newcomb about the case in a government calendar book in which he occasionally recorded sensitive incidents inside the office.

Notes suggest OFAC director was aware that any role by then-Treasury Secretary Brady in an ongoing probe was improper.

Wasley on occasion used the calendar book much like a diary, according to officials who have seen the notes.

His annotations suggest Newcomb, a career government executive whose enforcement office is supposed to be free of political interference, was aware that any role by Brady in an ongoing investigation was improper and would have to be kept secret.

"Brady told me to go slow on Texaco. That is the reason I haven't moved quickly," Newcomb is quoted as saying during a meeting around the time the Bush administration was leaving office.

"Now I'm protecting him. Don't tell anyone about this, especially (John) Roth," the notes further quote Newcomb as saying.

Roth, OFAC's chief of policy, was an advocate of stiff action against Texaco. He repeatedly challenged Newcomb about lenient actions and delays in the case, according to documents reviewed by the AP.

Brady, through a spokesman, has said he has "no recollection" of giving Newcomb such an instruction. Newcomb has declined to discuss the case, citing the ongoing investigations.

The AP has learned that at least one OFAC staffer, Robert McBrian, heard Newcomb's side of a phone call between Brady and Newcomb concerning the Texaco case.

According to three officials, McBrian has told colleagues he interpreted from Newcomb's comment that Brady had ordered the OFAC director to call Texaco chief executive James Kinnear to discuss the case. The officials spoke under condition of anonymity. McBrian declined to be interviewed.

Texaco and OFAC documents indicate that Kinnear called Brady on May 18, 1992, the same day Texaco received a cease-and-desist order from OFAC staff concerning the company's activities in Haiti.

Sinn Fein leader plugs IRA cause across America

NEW YORK — On his first visit to the United States earlier this year, the leader of the Irish Republican Army's political ally was acclaimed by backers of his cause — the end of British rule over Northern Ireland.

That was only a 48-hour visit, limited strictly to New York City and made possible only by President Clinton's decision to temporarily waive a ban on U.S. visas for known or suspected terrorists.

Now Gerry Adams is back, this time on a two-week visit to nine cities from Boston to Los Angeles.

At the midway point of his tour, the president of Sinn Fein said that even if his presence in the United States is no longer the novelty it was in February, the welcome is no less warm.

"I am overwhelmed, humbled," he said of his reception from both officials and the ordinary people he encounters on sidewalks and in elevators and hotel lobbies.

His agenda includes private meetings with bankers and financial officials to discuss possible investments in Northern Ireland.

This week, he intends to visit Washington, seeing State Department officials, members of Congress and labor leaders.

Supreme Court's top '94-95 cases

Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — Following are major cases before the Supreme Court in its 1994-1995 term:

TERM LIMITS — In 1992 Arkansas voters approved a state constitutional amendment saying U.S. House members who serve more than three terms and U.S. senators serving more than two terms cannot appear on state election ballots but are eligible for write-in votes. Opponents of the measure argue that the U.S. Constitution requires only that congressional candidates must meet age and residency requirements but says nothing about length of terms. Any limits, they say, can be imposed only by an amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

AFFIRMATIVE ACTION — A white-owned firm, Adarand Constructors Inc. of Colorado Springs, Colo., is challenging a U.S. Department of Transportation policy of financial incentives for contractors that do business with "socially and economically disadvantaged" subcontractors. Although it was low bidder, Adarand lost a highway contract in the San Juan National Forest in Southern Colorado to a firm that employed a Hispanic subcontractor. Adarand claims the policy violates the Constitution's equal-protection clause.

FREQUENT FLYERS — Passengers sued American Airlines in an Illinois state court over changes in the formula for awarding frequent flyer miles. American says federal law precludes such lawsuits in state courts.

FREE SPEECH — Michael Lebron, an artist, is challenging an Amtrak policy of prohibiting political advertising or art work in New York's Penn Station. At issue is whether Amtrak is a government agency that cannot suppress political speech.

CHILD PORNOGRAPHY — Federal law prohibits the depiction of anyone under 18 in sexually explicit films, videos and photographs. At issue is whether the government must prove that Los Angeles porno filmmaker Rubin Gottesman actually knew that the star of his productions, Traci Lords, was under 18.

GUN LAWS — Alfonso Lopez, a 12th grader at Edison High School in San Antonio, was arrested by federal agents in 1992 under a U.S. law that prohibits possession of a gun within 1,000 feet of a school. Lopez says the Constitution limits Congress to legislating on matters affecting interstate commerce and that gun possession near a school is an in-state matter.

DEATH PENALTY — Sentenced to death for murdering a fellow prisoner at the Jefferson City (Mo.) Correctional Center, inmate Lloyd Schlup contends that a prison videotape of the dining room proves he was eating his lunch at the time of the crime. At issue is the extent to which federal habeas corpus law permits appeals based on a claim of innocence.

PAROLE — California inmate Jose Ramon Morales of Los Angeles, serving life terms for 1971 and 1980 murders, argues that a 1981 change in state law reducing the frequency of parole eligibility hearings is an unconstitutional ex post facto law, which is a law that applies retroactively to an action that preceded its enactment.

Younger, less ideological Supreme Court opens '94-95 term

By Dan Freedman
Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court that opens its term Monday is younger and less ideologically polarized than at any time over the past decade.

The replacement of 85-year-old Justice Harry Blackmun by 56-year-old Justice Stephen Breyer means the average age of the justices is 60. That's 10 years below the average age of 70 a decade ago.

The addition of Breyer not only bolsters the court's relative youth revolution; it also solidifies the grip of justices who are centrists — those in "the murky middle," as conservative activist-lawyer and former Justice Department official Clint Bolick calls it.

While the court still is capable of issuing opinions pleasing to one ideological side or the other, the centrists prefer cautious, incremental opinions.

"This court, whatever else it wants to do, does not want to upset the apple cart," says Michael Seidman, a Georgetown University constitutional law professor.

To prevail, the middle bloc — Breyer and Justices Ruth Bader Ginsburg, David Souter and John Paul Stevens — will have to grab the vote of one of their somewhat more conservative colleagues — Justices Sandra Day O'Connor or Anthony Kennedy. Such a majority would outgun the court's strong conservatives — Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Justices Antonin Scalia and Clarence Thomas.

But that assumes the middle will always vote together — and it probably won't.

The present court is a far cry from the ideological configuration a decade ago. With old liberal justices like William Brennan and Thurgood Marshall approaching retirement, the Reagan administration sought to appoint justices who would reverse the court's liberal decision-making dating to the 1950s.

But the conservative thrust of the Reagan and Bush years fizzled in 1992. That was the year the court declined to overrule the 1973 Roe v. Wade decision legalizing abortion, and it was the year Bill Clinton was elected president.

Still, Clinton's appointments of Breyer and Ginsburg have not marked the rebirth of a liberal court. Instead, under the new alignment, the court has continued its crab-walk to the right. "The 'left wing' of the court now are the people you would have called 'centrists' 15 years ago," says Sandford Levinson, a University of Texas constitutional law professor.

Conservatives, in fact, take comfort in Blackmun's replacement by Breyer. "We've traded a 19th century romantic for a 21st century technocrat," says Washington lawyer Edward Warren, speaking at a briefing hosted by the National Legal Center for the Public Interest, a conservative Washington-based organization.

The new court will confront relatively few blockbuster cases among the 42 selected for this term so far.

Chief among them is the question of term limits for members of Congress. Popular disenchantment with Washington has give rise to grass-roots movements in several states to put a cap on congressional service. The one before the court involves a 1992 amendment to the Arkansas state constitution saying U.S. House members after serving three terms and U.S. senators after two terms cannot appear on state election ballots but are eligible for write-in votes.

Opponents argue the measure conflicts with the U.S. Constitution, which sets forth qualifications for Congress only in terms of age and residency in the state or district. Since the federal document does not limit service, they say, the only way to do so is to amend it.

Supporters say state term-limit measures are valid because elections are state-controlled functions.

In another important case, Adarand Constructors Inc. of Colorado Springs, Colo., a white-owned contracting firm is challenging the U.S. Department of Transportation's program of preferences for minority contractors.

The justices may use the case to reconsider past decisions in which the court rejected reverse-discrimination challenges of congressionally approved affirmative action programs.

Otherwise, the docket consists of important-but-not-earth-shattering cases including a federal ban on carrying weapons in school zones, changes in airline frequent-flyer mileage bonuses and alcohol-content labeling on beer.

Beyond the immediate cases are some of the nation's most contentious issues, several of which may land on the court's docket in the next year or two.

In voting rights, the court this term may rule on one of the cases percolating up from Georgia, Texas or Louisiana. White voters in those states are challenging the unusual shapes of congressional districts designed to maximize minority voter strength.

A Supreme Court vote against the districts in Georgia, Texas or Louisiana would be a blow to boosting minority political power and, specifically, to the continued incumbency of 17 African-American House members in the three states plus Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia.

Mandela arrives in U.S. for visit

NEW YORK (AP) — South African President Nelson Mandela slipped into town Saturday for a U.S. visit that will include a United Nations speech and meetings with business leaders.

Four years after his triumphal tour of the United States as a newly freed political prisoner, Mandela is making his first visit here since winning the presidency last spring.

Mandela, 76, made no public appearances Saturday after arriving on a private jet. He was to spend Saturday night at the Rockefeller family's estate in Westchester County, just north of the city, and attend church Sunday with former Mayor David Dinkins.

His weeklong visit to New York and Washington will include an address to the U.N. General Assembly, meetings with President Clinton and other U.S. officials and a series of luncheons and dinners with business leaders whom Mandela hopes to persuade to invest in South Africa.

One in every three people will suffer sexual abuse or rape in their lifetime.

Jurors from Midland play important role in Collin County case

■ Dallas resident believes most will see death sentence as 'justice.'

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

The trial of Michael Blair — convicted in the death of Ashely Nicole Estell, 7 — was not only a trial but an ordeal as well for Collin County officials, concerned Dallas-area residents and some Midland residents as well.

Last week, Blair was convicted and sentenced to death after an extended period of legal action in Midland. Plano District Judge Nathan White had moved the case to Midland because of extensive media coverage and great public concern stemming from the case.

"There's no way he could have gotten a fair trial in Dallas," said Marilyn Lucovich of Dallas. Ms. Lucovich and her friend, Marnie Ferrell, were in Midland Friday and decided to stop by the county courthouse for the end of the trial.

Ms. Farrell said most Dallas residents would see the death sentence as "justice."

The case sparked much debate in Dallas and even an investigation of the parole system since at the time of the Plano girl's death, Blair was on parole for a conviction for burglary and indecency with a child.

The Midland capital-murder trial stuttered to a start on Aug. 18, when only 161 of 400 Midlanders reported for possible jury duty as requested, according to courthouse officials.

Word was sent that writs of attachment would be issued for those not responding to the jury summons and Midland Sheriff's Department officers would be instructed to find and bring in those missing jurors.

Agencies assist Midlander in her steps to recovery following stroke

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles featuring people who have been helped by United Way of Midland agencies.

"Thanksgiving? I don't remember Thanksgiving last year," said Eva Dominguez with a quizzical look on her face.

On Nov. 17, 1993, Ms. Dominguez suffered a stroke that left her paralyzed on her left side. At the age of 46 she thought her life was over.

TUNE IN! THE UNITED WAY

"I was angry. Bitter. I wanted to die."

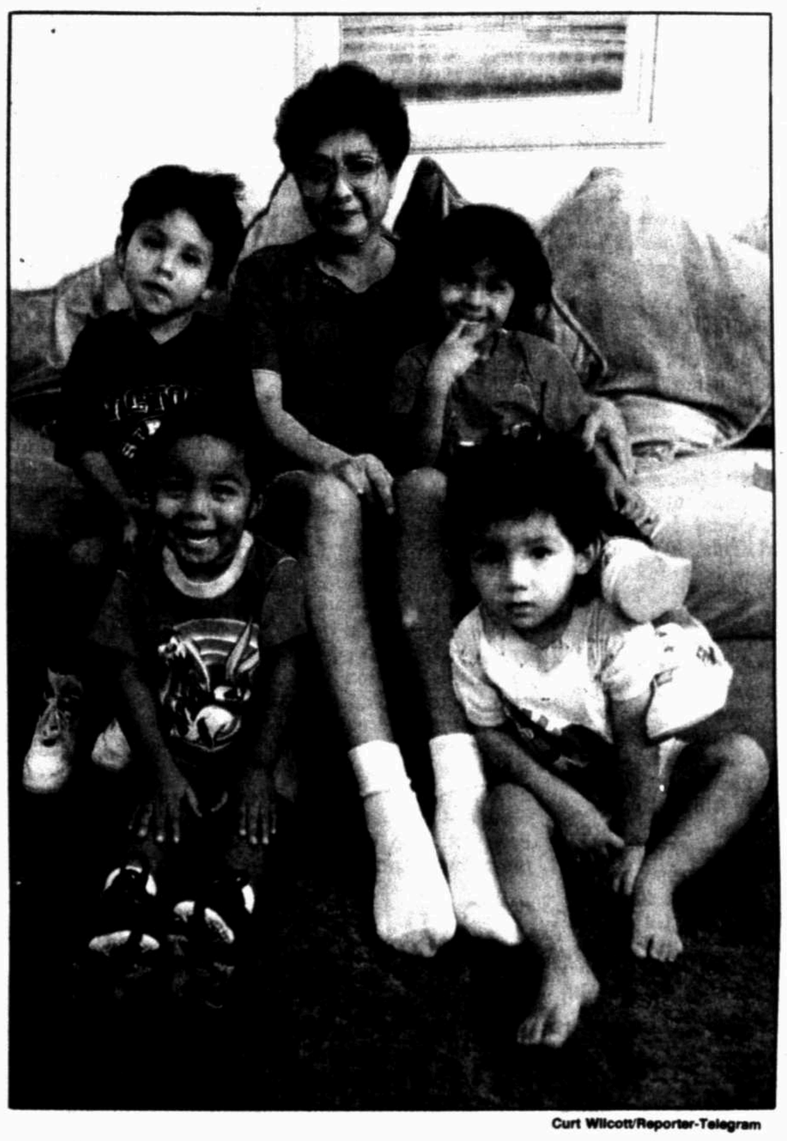

Less than a year later, she can walk again and is trying to put normalcy and independence back in her life. If it were not for the help of agencies such as Community and Senior Services with its Meals on Wheels program and the love of friends and neighbors, Ms. Dominguez said her life might be much different.

"I would be dead or I would be institutionalized."

On that memorable day in November, Ms. Dominguez was working at the Yellow Rose Christian Home for the elderly. She felt sick; she couldn't hold a jar of jelly, and she became disoriented. She told her supervisor and then went to the hospital.

At the hospital she learned she had a stroke — "due to stress" — and she

Women to hold four workshops on mental health for area families

Growing up, Melissa Williamson suspected something was different about her mother's behavior. "I didn't know exactly what, I just wished it wasn't that way. I learned to stay outside and wait for Dad to come home. Then it was safe to go home," she said.

In 1972, when Ms. Williamson was 8, her mother was diagnosed as a paranoid schizophrenic. "She actually had her first psychiatric episode in 1960, three years before I was born. So, I never knew her without these problems."

The hardest part of living with someone with a mental illness was that in the past there was a lack of information available, Ms. Williamson said.

Even today, people are hesitant to talk about mental illness.

"Once a family member is diagnosed, the family tends to withdraw and isolate because of the stigma attached to mental illness. Then the family is not in a healthy place," said Lisa Pheil, family support coordinator for Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

To offer information to family members, Ms. Pheil and Ms. Williamson will conduct a series of four workshops in October. The workshops, set for 7-9:30

Legislator discusses wide range of topics at town-hall meeting

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

If he had the power, U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith would reshape government.

His goals would be to reduce federal spending, balance the budget, cut fraud, persuade the president to get congressional approval before sending troops abroad, reduce the influx of immigrants, make crime non-profitable and force Congress to obey its own laws.

"Laws passed by Congress should apply to Congress as well," Smith said Saturday at a town-hall meeting at Midland College.

Smith, a 46-year-old San Antonio rancher-lawyer, said as things stand right now, sending U.S. troops to Haiti was not justified.

"The president should have asked Congress' approval for taking military action," Smith said.

"The Constitution requires him to seek Congress' approval before he initi-

Pet owners participate in church's 'Blessing of the Animals' service

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff Writer

Faithful. Smart. Lovable. Adorable. Precious. All are words sometimes used to describe a personal pet.

As St. Francis of Assisi's Feast Day approaches Tuesday, several Midland churches are offering all animal lovers the opportunity to participate in a "Blessing of the Animals" service.

St. Nicholas Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton Ave., has scheduled its outdoor service for 4:30 p.m. today, and St. Ann's Catholic Church will hold its service in the parking lot of St. Ann's School, N Street at Illinois Avenue, at 2:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Holy Trinity Episcopal Church conducted its ceremony Saturday.

"The basic idea goes back to the Old Testament idea of blessings," said the Rev. Jon Stasney, rector of St. Nicholas.

"The Old Testament understanding is to see God as the source of all blessings, and this is the attitude He has toward all He has made. When we see all of life as a gift, then the

GARY OTT

Impromptu road trip can magically restore our sense of freedom

When things get really dull and you feel as though your weekends have deteriorated into one endless humdrum visit to the couch, there is a sure-fire way to break out of the rut.

Take a trip.

Ott

It doesn't matter where. Just go somewhere. Get in the car and start driving. If you are an indecisive person, take out a map, close your eyes, point to some place, and then go there.

Don't think about it, just do it.

It will do your soul good. It'll also get the blood flowing again, revitalize your spirits, recrank your engine.

And another thing: avoid the interstates. Take old country roads that wind through tall trees and eventually end up in small towns where the county courthouse is still the center of activity.

It'll take longer to get to where you're going, but so what? All you're going to do is spend the night and return the next day, anyway. So the trip — the actual driving — is what this is all about.

Enjoy it.

Of course, there are factors that will be out of your control. Like the weather. If you're lucky, you'll choose one of those gorgeous autumn days where the temperature hovers near the 75-degree mark and the sky is dotted with fluffy clouds that offer the sun an occasional hiding place, but for the most part, are up there simply to look pretty.

Hopefully, your highway will include lots of rolling terrain because there is something particularly special about reaching the top of a hill and seeing for the first time what is on the other side. It just sort of unfolds before your eyes, not unlike a suspenseful ending to a good mystery novel.

It's worth the wait.

Likewise, water — as in lakes and rivers — can be an important ingredient to making a weekend road trip a success. Just the sight of a motorboat roaring across a lake sends a chill up and down your spine. Ripples, caused by the boat, collide with the shore line, generating that unique sound, which for some reason reminds a person of his carefree childhood.

Then there's the sun. If you are fortunate you will be blessed with one of those clear, crisp mornings where the rays ricochet off the lake and explode in a hundred different directions.

And birds. They seem to be everywhere, soaring high above the lake, darting back and forth, only to occasionally land in a craggy tree situated somewhere along the bank.

But this too must pass.

And, soon, you find yourself rounding still another curve in the highway. Up ahead, on your left, is an old-fashioned gas station. The pumps look 50 years old and the sign out front is hanging crooked. You can barely read the words. An old pickup is parked in the rear.

You suddenly have a longing to pour a bag of salty peanuts into a Coke bottle.

Perhaps the word that best describes an impromptu road trip is "freedom." You are away from the day-to-day routine. You're in a new place with no responsibilities. It is just you and your dreams. No one is looking over your shoulder. No one is judging your actions.

You can roll down the windows and let the wind blow your problems away. Yeah, you're free.

For 24 hours.

But tomorrow's Monday, and we all know what that means. The workday blues are back.

Garcia died Friday at a Lubbock hospital.

Garcia was born Nov. 24, 1973, at Fort Hood.

He married Christina Garcia Lares on March 17, 1994.

He was a pipe layer in the pipe-construction business.

Survivors include his wife, Christina Garcia of Odessa; his stepfather, Ernie Montez of Odessa; his mother, Alicia Montez of Odessa; his father, Jesus Garcia of Lubbock; a sister, Cynthia Mojica of Odessa; a stepsister, Rebecca Montez of Midland; a half-brother, Jay Lee Garcia of Lubbock; and his grandparents, Jesse Sanchez of San Antonio, Armando Garcia of Lubbock, and Otilia Garcia of Lubbock.

Tennie Rosenbaum

Graveside services for Tennie Rosenbaum are set for 2 p.m. Monday at Resthaven Memorial Park with the Rev. William D. McReynolds officiating. Ellis Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

She died Saturday at her residence.

STEPS: Dominguez appreciates agencies' assistance

spent the night in the intensive care unit. It was a week before she left the hospital.

"I couldn't do anything," Ms. Dominguez said. "It was the most horrifying thing. I felt so helpless. I was depressed all the time. I couldn't take it."

When she tried to walk she fell. Lying on the living room floor she could look our her glass front door and see people walking by, but she couldn't get their attention. With difficulty she crawled and finally got herself up.

Ms. Dominguez started physical therapy during her hospital stay and continued after she was released. Bit by bit she learned to walk again.

"I started in a wheelchair, then went to a walker and now a cane," she said proudly. "Every little step I would take was a big accomplishment."

When Ms. Dominguez succeeded in climbing the stairs to her daughter's second-floor apartment, "I wanted to shout," she said.

But the improvements didn't solve all her problems. She couldn't cook or clean her house or care for her personal needs. Her sister finally called Casa de Amigos in search of help.

Adult Protective Services came in, evaluated the situation and called agencies, including Community and Senior Services. Not only did she receive a daily hot meal designed for her diabetic needs, but Ms. Dominguez received assistance from Visiting Nurse Service and Handyman Program, which installed grab bars in her bathroom. A home health aid helps with her personal care.

Volunteers with Citywide Community Services, a Casa program, clean her house.

Ms. Dominguez said the volunteers "are so nice. They have a lot of love and a lot of compassion. The ones bringing my meals come with a cheerful attitude and ask how I'm feeling. They're sure that I'm OK before they walk out."

She also credits friends and neighbors from Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church for helping her through the rough days.

"I just want to burst because I am so thankful" for the community's help, she said.

Today, she is looking to her future, trying to plan what type of job she would like and the training she would need.

"All my life I had worked with the elderly, but they told me I couldn't do it anymore. I want something that will make me happy.

"God has a reason for everything. Maybe He'll use me to help someone else. If I can help someone else, encourage them and lift them up, I'd love to do that."

Ms. Dominguez found two Bible verses to describe the past year. The first is Corinthians 10:12: "So be careful. If you are thinking, 'Oh, I would never behave like that' — let this be a warning to you. For you too may fall into sin."

The second, Corinthians 13:13, describes the help she received: "There are three things that remain — faith, hope and love — and the greatest of these is love."

"It's worth it to give to United Way. You never know when you're going to need these services. Everybody takes everything for granted," she said. "But when something like this happens and you can't do things for yourself, it's an eye-opener. You see life differently."

This year, Ms. Dominguez will have no trouble remembering Thanksgiving, for her thanks are many.

Community and Senior Services is one of 16 agencies that receives funding from the United Way. The annual fund-raising campaign will end Nov. 8. For more information, call 682-4358.

United Way to hold report luncheon

Staff Report

Radio station KUWM will be back on the air at 11:30 a.m. Thursday for the United Way of Midland's first report luncheon at Centennial Plaza.

PET: Several churches plan to offer service this week proper response to receiving a gift is to say thanks to the giver, who in this case is God.

"So, we're really blessing God first for all this wonderful variety that He made. We're rejoicing in the fact that there is all this diversity."

And, in blessing the animals brought to the service, people are fulfilling their "priestly vocation" as it is described in the Bible's story of creation, Stasney said.

"In the creation story, we are told we are given dominion over all these other creatures. Now, the Hebrew word translated to dominion doesn't have the idea of using all this for our purposes."

Judeo-Christian teachings have been criticized for seeming to have the attitude that dominion over all concept means a carte blanche to do whatever it wants, Stasney said. This is not what the concept means, he said.

"It means to mediate God's fatherly care," Stasney said.

"The way your dog or cat knows that God loves him is through you.

"A priest is a go-between. He goes to the animals like St. Francis did and tells them how much God loves them and not just in words but in deeds.

"And, another function of a priest is to go to God in prayer for other people and all things. So when you offer thanks to God for your dog or your cat, you're voicing that for all creatures," he said.

"This concept finds concrete expression in the life of St. Francis, who preached to the birds and the animals, telling them of God's love for them. And he gave thanks for them, so he gave them voice in thanking their creator for the gift of their lives."

Stasney also referred to a New Testament source for this type of service.

"In Romans, Paul talks about creation groaning, in travail, looking to the glorious liberty of the sons of God. So you get the picture.

"The rest of creation suffers because human beings don't act in a restored way. They don't act as they're supposed to, so when they get redeemed and fulfill their proper role and place, then the rest of creation is going to benefit."

Stasney finds officiating at this type of service is a "joy."

"You get to rejoice in the diversity of the creation and you get to rejoice in the love that is drawn from people to their pets and the way their pets respond. You see something of the kingdom of heaven when things are in their right order. And that's what you are trying to do, keep that vision before people."

The Rev. Fred Nawarskas of St. Ann's Catholic Church also draws enrichment from this type of service.

"I think it's important to recognize all gifts of creation are gifts from God," Nawarskas said. "Animals are meant to help us be more humble and sensitive and appreciative of creation around us and respectful for life as it's found in lower creation in the animal life.

"Studies have borne out that people who have pets, children who have pets, are much gentler people. They are kinder to the people around them. They are patient and sensitive and understanding."

TRIAL: Jurors sentenced Blair to death last week days, and attorneys were able to continue the grueling two-week jury selection process.

The trial began Sept. 12 with prosecutors building a case of eyewitness testimony placing Blair at the scene of the girl's abduction on Sept. 4, 1993, and near the country road where her body was found the next day.

Expert witnesses testified that there were hairs matching the victim on a stuffed bunny found in Blair's car and hairs of Blair's type were found on the girl's body.

Also found in Blair's car was an envelope of newspaper clippings about the girl's abduction and death, according to police testimony.

Prosecuting attorneys took about a week to present their evidence, and defense attorneys took about a week and a half to present their case.

Defense attorney Don McDermitt spent much of the time trying to show that another man, Josh Crowley, was a better suspect.

Crowley, a convicted child molester, was a referee at the soccer tournament where Ashley was kidnapped.

Police discounted Crowley as a suspect because there was no eyewitness testimony to place him in a position to kidnap the girl.

All of Crowley's offenses had been of a non-violent nature and all had involved boys, according to witnesses with psychiatric training. They said child molesters usually stay within a certain "victim pool."

Attorneys were shocked on Wednesday when jurors deliberated for only 27 minutes before finding Blair guilty.

At the time, McDermitt said, "How can you evaluate a two-week case in 27 minutes?"

On Friday, the jury deliberated about 90 minutes before coming back with their recommendations on a sentence.

White read the jury's verdict on punishment at about 1 p.m. Friday.

Since this deliberation was to determine if the convicted man would be sentenced to life in prison or to death, the jury had to determine two points.

First, the jury had to decide if Blair constitutes a continuing threat to society or second, was there insufficient evidence of mitigating circumstances to warrant the sentence of life imprisonment instead of the death penalty.

All 12 jurors were unanimous in this verdict and in sentencing Blair, White elaborated on his reasons for sentencing him to death.

"You have left a trail of destruction of the greatest magnitude," White said to Blair. White spoke of how children today, unlike the Plano of his youth, are unable to play outside without supervision and are unable to be helpful or kind to strangers.

"Your trail of destruction is at an end," White said, ordering that Blair be confined "until his transfer to the institutional division of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice where you shall be put to death by lethal injection."

Before passing sentence, White allowed Blair to read aloud a prepared statement where he again told the judge, prosecutors and jurors that he was innocent.

McDermitt said Blair was convicted on the basis of his past record and not the evidence of this case.

Although McDermitt was appointed by the courts, he is convinced of his client's innocence.

Jurors, however, were completely won over by the preponderance of evidence convincing all 13 — including the alternate — that Blair committed the crime, said juror Pam Six, following the trial.

TOPICS: Smith speaks on many issues at Saturday's meeting

ates any act of war. This is clearly occupation of a foreign country by military troops. It is clearly an act of war by anybody's definition."

Clinton's rationale for occupying Haiti was to restore democracy to an island-nation that Smith said has "never enjoyed democracy in its 300-year history" and to protect the U.S.' national security, which, Smith said, is not an issue.

Smith likened Clinton's push to Haiti to a "kid jumping into mud and then wanting a reward for taking a bath."

The United States helped set up the very problems it is trying to cure, Smith said.

Discussing health-care reform, Smith said it is "obviously dead for this year.

"The media have generated a crisis when we really are not into a crisis," Smith said.

The "talk about 37 million people who don't have health-care insurance" is misleading, he said.

"Actually, three-quarters of those people go without health insurance for less than nine months . . . because they are between jobs or are very young, think they are healthy, wealthy and wise and don't need health-care insurance.

"And when you boil it down to hard-core uninsured, you're talking about 3.5 million people."

Health-care reform ought to be directed toward "those people rather than completely disrupt the health-care system for the rest of the American people."

Smith said he voted against the $30 billion crime bill because it was directed more toward social spending than attacking crime.

Smith suggested reform in the criminal-justice system.

"There is so little connection between crime and punishment."

Of reform in government, Smith offered a truism: "No bill is better than a bad bill."

Discussing the influx of immigrants, Smith said, "We are going to have to regulate the number of immigrants (legal and illegal). We are going to have to protect our borders, and we are going to have to close our loopholes that we now have in our immigration laws."

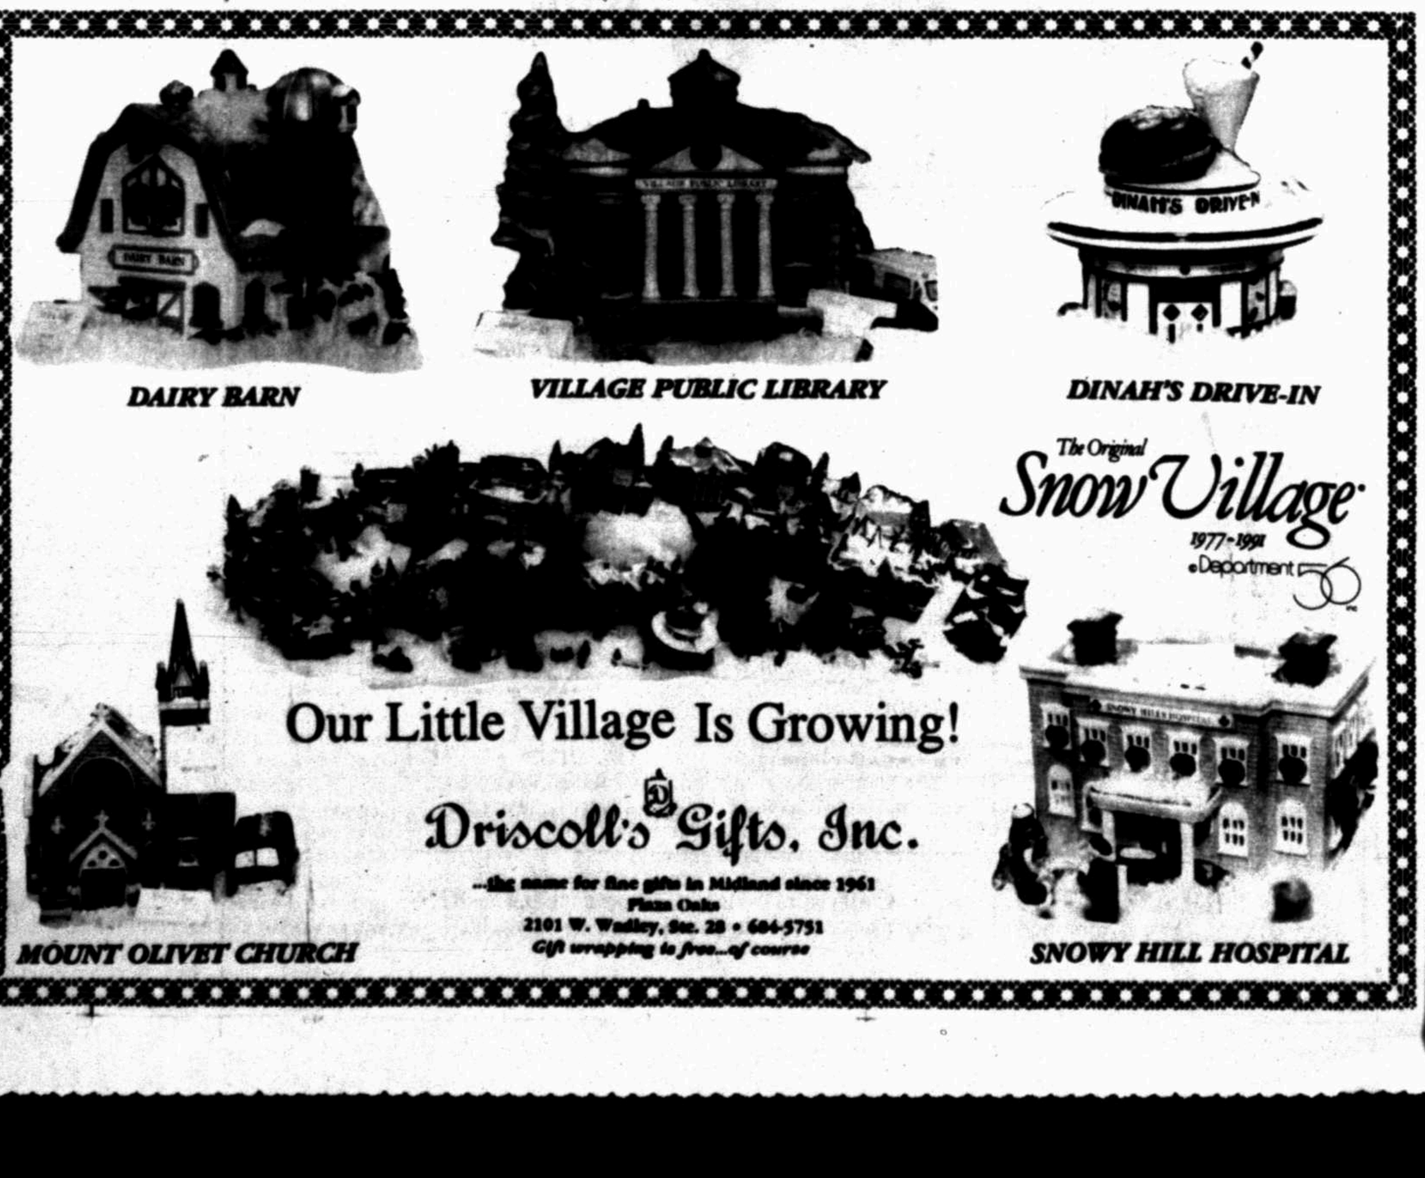

Each year, 2.5 million illegal aliens immigrate to the United States, he said. Many erroneously claim they are refugees.

And each year, American taxpayers pay $14 billion in federal benefits to illegal aliens. Those benefits include welfare and housing. And due to Supreme Court rulings, illegal aliens will continue to receive emergency medical care and secondary-education benefits.

"We ought to put American interests first and American taxpayers first," Smith said.

"The problem in America is that we do not protect our borders — north, south, east or west (and) we do nothing to diminish the attraction of the twin magnets of the easy availability of American jobs and the easy access to federal benefits," he said. "And until we reduce the attraction of those twin magnets, we are really never going to eliminate illegal immigration in America."

Abilene hires two consulting firms in effort to protect base

ABILENE (AP) — Following a trend that other cities have taken to help protect military bases from possible closure, Abilene has hired two consulting firms to assist with Dyess Air Force Base.

The Development Corporation of Abilene approved spending up to $500,000 with two consulting firms "to ensure we have a daily presence in Washington and with the Base Realignment and Closure Commission."

"This is purely an economic survival matter," said Bill Ehrie, former commander at the base and now president of the Abilene Industrial Foundation. "The loss of Dyess would be catastrophic, compared to the oil bust in the 1980s. We cannot afford to lose Dyess."

Ehrie warned Friday that the commission has only tough choices to make and that Dyess would be reviewed. He said officials in the Defense Department favor Dyess, but that they only make recommendations to the commission.

The half-million-dollar figure is a maximum amount that will be spent, according to contracts with — Reid & Priest of Washington, D.C., and Survivors Group Inc. of Chantilly, Va., which will represent Abilene exclusively, said Ehrie.

"It is roughly the equivalent of one day's payroll at Abilene's largest employer (Dyess)," said Frank Puckett, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee of the Abilene Chamber of Commerce.

Other cities that have taken similar actions include San Antonio, which recently signed a $466,000 contract for representation, and Corpus Christi.

Reid & Priest has close ties to the congressional leadership and has represented Philadelphia in a recent round of base closure hearings.

Officials search, fail to find missing Texas teen

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Authorities searched a southeast Arkansas wildlife area in vain Saturday for a missing 16-year-old girl taken from her Arlington, Texas, apartment during a frantic 911 call.

Searchers were to resume their search today.

"We are still in pursuit of . . . evidence and we'll continue to do that until we are satisfied that no evidence exists," said Robert Satkowski, special agent in charge of the FBI in Little Rock.

"Obviously, we wouldn't be here if we didn't think there was" evidence to be found, Satkowski said as agents wound up their search Saturday.

The search was concentrated in the Byrd Lake Natural Area near Pine Bluff, a city of 57,000 about 40 miles south of Little Rock. Satkowski said dense vegetation has slowed the work.

In El Dorado, about 90 miles south of Pine Bluff, three men accused of kidnapping Lisa Rene waived extradition from Arkansas on Friday before Union County Municipal Judge George Van Hook. They were expected to be returned to Arlington as early as this weekend, Arlington police spokesman Dee Anderson said.

Jefferson County coroner Havis Hester said late Friday that federal investigators told him Miss Rene had been spotted in the vicinity of Pine Bluff, in central Arkansas.

Hester said he had been asked to contact the FBI immediately if anybody fitting Miss Rene's description was found. FBI agents in Little Rock had no immediate comment Saturday.

The Pine Bluff link apparently is connected to 23-year-old Orlando Hall, who turned himself in Friday morning to police in El Dorado. State officials said Hall had been living and working as a church janitor in Pine Bluff since his release from prison in August.

Also in custody were his brother, 19-year-old Demetrius Hall of El Dorado, and Steven Beckley, 22, of Irving, Texas.

All three were charged in warrants with aggravated kidnapping in the abduction of Miss Rene and ordered held in lieu of $100,000 bond. They remained in Union County Jail in El Dorado Saturday, a police spokesman said.

Miss Rene was abducted Sept. 24 from her bedroom as she frantically called for help. She is the teenage sister of two men who allegedly bilked one of the suspects in a drug deal.

One local prosecutor described Orlando Hall as one of El Dorado's biggest drug dealers. "Since he was 18 or 19, he's been right in the middle of crack cocaine and guns," said David Butler, who heads a six-county anti-drug task force.

Hall has a long record of criminal arrests and convictions and recently was paroled from a 17-year prison term for cocaine trafficking, records show.

Demetrius Hall was convicted of possessing cocaine with intent to deliver in 1992. He was sentenced to five years' probation, according to Arkansas records.

Court records show no criminal charges against Beckley in Dallas or Tarrant counties.

Jury sentences man to life for slaying of Gulf War veteran

HOUSTON (AP) — A jury has sentenced a white man to life in prison for killing a Persian Gulf War veteran because he was black.

Donald Worth Riley, 22, smiled and shook his head after the jury sentenced him Friday for the murder of Marine Lance Cpl. Tarron Dixon.

The 25-year-old soldier had been home only two days after five years of dangerous tours in Panama and the Persian Gulf when he was shot to death near his Houston home.

"I think you agree with the court that it is a sad commentary on our society today that Lance Corporal Tarron Dixon was much safer fighting a war on foreign soil than he was walking the street of his own hometown, victimized by an unconscionable, cowardly and racist act and we'll all feel shame this day," state District Judge Michael McSpadden said.

"Mr. Riley, you are a disgrace to us all."

Case of retired minister's romping chickens causes town feathers to fly

ABILENE (AP) — Feathers are flying after a retired Abilene minister was convicted of letting his chickens run free.

Assistant City Attorney Sara Fauls has asked that Grant Oliver's conviction be set aside "in the interest of justice."

Ms. Fauls obtained the guilty verdict Wednesday from a municipal court jury whose foreman was her boss, City Attorney Harvey Cargill.

"It gives the impression it was not a fair trial," Ms. Fauls said. "And my job is to see that justice is done. That's the oath I took."

Oliver, 74, who acted as his own attorney, appeared to be confused by court proceedings. He did not read the juror questionnaires that would have told him who Cargili was because, as he said, "I can't hardly read without my glasses."

Municipal Court Judge Keith Barton said at trial that he had no legal responsibility to block Cargill from serving on the jury or to point out possible juror conflicts of interest. And Cargill said he did nothing wrong.

"I knew nothing about the case other than what was heard from the witness stand," he said. "Citizens are obligated to do their civic duty, and I'm a citizen."

Lawyer Randy Wilson disagreed. In a letter to the editor of the Abilene Reporter-News, Wilson called the actions of the city attorney's office and the municipal judge "a direct affront to our system of justice."

Several prominent Abilene attorneys had offered to represent Oliver on appeal, free of charge.

Instead of pursuing an appeal, Oliver will be getting some chicken coops with the help of a civic organization headed by Ms. Fauls.

She's the incoming president of the Kiwanis, and said as her first duty she'll ask that the club provide Oliver with some new coops so he doesn't have the same problem again.

Town searches for answers after its fifth homicide in 11 weeks

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The shotgun slaying of a 20-year-old Texas A&M University coed by a fellow student has become a brutal benchmark for residents in this small-town university setting.

The early Friday murder of Lori Ann Baker, a junior accounting major, is the third slaying of a Texas A&M student this year and the fifth homicide in 11 weeks for College Station, population 52,456.

Before July 15, no murders had occurred in the town since 1989.

"It's gut-wrenching, I can tell you that," said Edgar Feldman, College Station police chief. "Anytime you have a rash of incidents happen, you've got to be uneasy. I'm uneasy because I can't explain it."

A senior biomedical sciences major, Ron Scott Shamburger, 22, confessed to Ms. Baker's slaying later on Friday. He also told police he placed her roommate in the trunk of a car and set the women's home on fire to hide Ms. Baker's body. The roommate, 20-year-old Victoria Kohler, later freed herself.

Shamburger, who is from Longview in East Texas, has been charged with capital murder and aggravated kidnapping. He remained jailed in Brazos County Saturday in lieu of $250,000 bond.

Baker apparently was shot after she awoke to find Shamburger burglarizing her home, which is not far from the Pi Beta Phi sorority house where she was an inactive member.

Tiffany Ward, an A&M student who lives near Baker's house, awakened about the time police said the murder occurred but said she didn't hear anything.

"We're upset because we didn't think something like this could happen here," Ms. Ward said.

"For the first time, it's hit close to home," said a next door neighbor.

How To End Drain And Septic Problems

When your pipes were new, they were clean inside like the pipes in Fig. 1. In time, gook can accumulate to make your pipes look like the ones in Fig. 2. This build up is the cause of slow running and clogging drains.

Well, now there is a product that is guaranteed to completely clean your pipes, and eliminate this build up, when used as directed. This product, call Bio-Clean, actually digests grease, hair, soap film, and food particles. It cleans your entire pipe - even the top and sides! And Bio-Clean will keep pipes open when used regularly.

SEPTIC SYSTEMS

The major cause of septic problems, in properly designed systems, is a lack of bacteria to break down the incoming waste. When undigested waste fills up your tank, it can flow into the drain field pipes; causing back ups, odors and standing water.

Bio-Clean puts an end to these problems once and for all. It contains a specially selected strain of bacteria. They break down waste much faster than the organisms found at random in septic systems. These bacteria will digest approximately 60 times their weight of waste each hour! As this waste is destroyed, so are the problems it causes - we guarantee it. But you don't have to have problems to use Bio-Clean. It works great as a septic starter, too.

SAFETY

Bio-Clean is 100% safe for people, pets and all types of plumbing - even garbage disposals and plastic pipes! It contains no acid, lye or solvents. It generates no heat or poisonous fumes.

100% GUARANTEED

Just read and follow directions. If you aren't completely satisified with the results, return the unused portion for a full refund.

Author, his cowdog to give two performances

Staff Report

'We are excited to host John Erickson and Hank for a second time. He entertains audiences of all ages, and you leave the show in a great mood.'

— Sandy Davis, director, Recording Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, Inc.

A Midland native's canine has made it big across the country, and he'll soon be coming home. John Erickson, author of the famous Hank the Cowdog series, will appear at Midland Community Theatre Saturday for two performances.

Erickson

His appearance at 2:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. will benefit the Recording Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped.

The life of Hank the Cowdog began as a dream for 50-year-old Erickson. He attended Harvard Divinity School and spent years as a ranch cowboy, farm hand, bartender and handyman in the Texas Panhandle. In 1982, he started his own publishing and marketing business, Maverick Books. Maverick released 20 books and 13 cassette tapes, all written by Erickson, and sold them on a regional basis.

By spring of 1988, more than 100,000 books and cassette tapes had been sold, and Erickson realized the series had the potential of reaching a much wider audience. He then signed over the publishing and distribution rights of the series to Gulf Publishing Co. of Houston. Today, that same company is shipping books and audio cassettes to bookstores all over the country. By the end of 1993, Erickson's sales had passed the million mark.

Soon after the success of the first book, it was suggested to Erickson that he record the books on cassette. The popularity of the audiotapes quickly took off with teachers and librarians. Now, Erickson is on the speaking circuit and has spoken to more than half a million children throughout the country.

"We are excited to host John Erickson and Hank for a second time," said Sandy Davis, director of the Recording Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, Inc. Erickson last appeared on stage at the Midland Community Theatre in 1992 for a library fund-raiser. "He entertains audiences of all ages, and you leave the show in a great mood."

What started out as a hobby has now landed Erickson numerous awards such as the Oppenheimer Award for "The Case of the Halloween Ghost" as the best humor book in 1988. "The Wounded Buzzard on Christmas Eve" was named the best children's audio book in 1989 by Audio World Magazine.

Earlier this year, the Audio Publishers Association, a trade organization of publishers who specialize in books on tape, presented the Audie Award for outstanding children's audio to Hank the Cowdog.

Born in Midland, Erickson now lives in Perryton with his wife and their three children. He has published 31 books, 23 books-on-tape and some 500 articles.

Tickets for Hank the Cowdog's appearance at Midland Community Theatre are $8 for adults and $5 for students. They are on sale at Pages & Prints or the Recording Library for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, Inc., at 202 North C St. For additional information, contact 682-2731.

"As far as I'm concerned, Planned Parenthood is for life."

It began when I was young and needed advice about birth control. You know, I can still remember my first visit. They sensed I was nervous, but their kindness made me feel comfortable and secure. And they offered a wide range of affordable services that covered all my special health care needs.

When I could afford to go somewhere else, I stayed. Planned Parenthood people are sensitive, courteous and as professional as can be. And everything is confidential.

Now that I'm older, I still go to Planned Parenthood for their midlife services, as they're as caring as ever.

I'm glad I've stayed with Planned Parenthood all these years. They're committed to the special health care needs of women of all ages. They really are for life!

Students to share volunteer experience

Essay contest gives Abell-Hanger recipients chance to earn scholarships

By Elise Coombes

An essay contest for Abell-Hanger Special Scholarship recipients has been added this fall as a way for students to document their volunteer experience and be eligible to earn additional scholarship funds, according to Bob Haines, financial aid director.

Five, $500 awards will be made each semester to students who write winning essays about their volunteer experience. The more than 300 Midland College students who are volunteering at more than 40 Midland organizations as part of their scholarship requirement are eligible for the essay contest.

The essay should reflect the student's personal experience with community service, be limited to 500 words or less, be double-spaced, typewritten, and be submitted to the college's Financial Aid office as soon as the community service work for fall has been completed, but no later than Nov. 30, 1994.

Students must have completed their 20 hours of community service before the essay is written.

Essays will be judged on the basis of content, clarity, and the positive impact of performing community service. Selection of the winning essays will be at the discretion of the president of Midland College and the financial aid office.

Essays may be published in any and all Midland College community publications, Haines said.

Abell-Hanger provides circle of support

The Abell-Hanger Foundation provides a circle of support for area students who attend Midland College.

In return for the foundation's commitment to education, Midland College has established a way for students to return something to the community through volunteer work.

Student Sheri Couser, who will begin her volunteer work at a nursing home next week, summed up the feeling of many students about the chance to serve the community in return for a college scholarship.

Coombes

"The program gives a young person opportunity to be active and give back to their community," she said.

Since 1986, the Abell-Hanger Foundation has been providing scholarships to Midland County high school graduates who attend Midland College. In 1993 the foundation made a four-year, $1 million commitment to continue the scholarship.

The Abell-Hanger Foundation has provided scholarships to more than 4,000 area high school graduates through the Special Scholarship.

The scholarship pays qualified applicants $375 per semester. Applicants must have graduated from Midland County high schools with a 2.75 GPA. A condition of the scholarship is that students must serve 20 hours a semester of volunteer work.

To honor students for academic and volunteer achievement, and to honor the Abell-Hanger Foundation, Midland College established the Abell-Hanger Society. Students were inducted into the society last spring.

The Abell-Hanger Foundation also funds other scholarships to Midland College students. Some 50 students who attend Midland College Adult Basic Education (ABE) classes and pass their G.E.D. test receive $400 scholarships each semester. Learning Skills Center Director Cindy Turland awards these scholarships.

Abell-Hanger endowment funds of about $2,000 each year are available to pay some or all tuition, books and fees to four nursing students. Vocational Nursing Director Pat Myers awards these scholarships.

The foundation also established an endowment fund that supplies $2,000 each year in academic scholarships. These scholarships are available through the Financial Aid Office.

Richards, Bush remain locked in close race

By Michael Holmes
Associated Press

AUSTIN — Ann Richards was at her best.

The governor sat patiently for nearly 15 minutes as a long-winded U.S. Department of Agriculture administrator wrapped up a speech. Then Richards stood, smiled and shot one of her famed one-liners to the convention of soil and water conservation officials.

"After the USDA's been up here talking to you," she grinned, "I hesitate to say that I'm from the government and I'm here to help."

The laughter brought down the house.

But the anti-government sentiment behind the punch line may be no laughing matter.

In an election year when nearly two-thirds of Texans voice a favorable opinion of their Democratic governor, fewer than half tell pollsters they are ready to vote for her again.

Nearly as many, according to recent surveys, say they plan to vote for Republican challenger George W. Bush.

"The biggest factor that's hurting Ann Richards is the political environment. People are past angry with politicians. The electorate is out hunting for incumbents right now," said Mark Sanders, an Austin consultant who works for Republicans.

Neither Richards nor Bush has had any trouble getting their messages out.

Richards, 61, has been governor since 1991, is a major national Democratic star, raises money in all 50 states and had more than $5 million in the bank the last time candidates reported their finances to the Texas Ethics Commission.

Bush, 48, is managing partner of the Texas Rangers baseball team, eldest son of former President George Bush, raises money in all 50 states and had more than $5 million in the bank, too.

Bush hit the road after his November 1993 announcement and stayed there. His schedule has taken him to hundreds of appearances statewide. Richards stayed busy with the business of being governor and responding to Bush criticism until recently. Both began running massive television ad campaigns in August and have stayed on TV since.

The most recent Texas Poll, published Aug. 30, showed Richards with 47 percent support and Bush with 43 percent among 757 likely voters. Poll director Candace Windel said the results were within the four percentage point margin of error.

A poll of 1,204 registered voters by The Eppstein Group, released Sept. 8, found Bush at 43 percent and Richards at 42.7 percent.

The Texas Poll also found Richards with a 62 percent favorable rating and Bush 58 percent.

The governor says none of it comes as a surprise.

"I've always thought from the outset this was going to be a very, very tough and very close and very tight race. And I think it is," she said.

Richards says she has worked hard to fulfill her campaign promises of a "New Texas," one where women and minorities held top positions and the bureaucracy got a kick in the pants.

Cooks fire up barbecue pits to help Feed for Need

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Outdoor cooks with a passion for helping others fired up their heavy-duty iron barbecue pits Friday and Saturday for the benefit of Permian Basin Feed for Need.

Dan Saunders, former Martin County sheriff, didn't fire up any pits. But he filled his plate with victuals to help judge the fare at the 10th annual cook-off at the Midland County Exhibit Building.

"Very seldom (do you) get a chance to have fun and contribute so much to the community and the people who are less fortunate than we are," Saunders said Saturday afternoon.

"And I think it's wonderful that Midland turns out to do this, and they do turn out. I had to walk a mile to get in here" from his car.

Sue Polson, a Feed for Need director, said the 70 cooking teams that participated in the charity event, their sponsors, and a hungry crowd will help raise $30,000 to $40,000 for the project's charities.

This year, Feed for Need is to donate most of the funds to two major charities: The Look-Good, Feel-Good Shop at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center's Allison Cancer Center and the Make-A-Wish Foundation to benefit children who are coping with life-threatening illnesses.

'We can be out here and fill our bellies and think about filling other people's bellies that are empty.'

— Jack-Man Kadaver, Midland radio annoncer

"I think it's great," said Faye Hammer, an advocate of the Feed for Need program. "We feel we are doing good for people."

Midland radio announcer Jack-Man Kadaver, who seemed to be enjoying his plate of barbecued meat and the trimmings, said the weekend event was worthwhile.

"We can be out here and fill our bellies and think about filling other people's bellies that are empty," he said. "We can do it both at the same time. I think it's a beautiful world when you can do that. Stuff your own face and help somebody else stuff their faces."

Barbecue-pit cook Bill Carrell of Reynolds' Last Chance Hiney's pit said the weekend outing was for a good cause.

"It just supports a lot of good charities," Carrell said. "We enjoy cooking."

Bill Schammel, who's accustomed to cooking beef and pork on the Cool Arrows' pit, said "I do brisket. And I do ribs every year. It's a great way to support the community.

"They have a good program," Schammel said. "And they are a great people, and we just have a good time."

FOUR: Series to cover mental health issues

p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 11, 18 and 25, will be conducted at Friendship House, 211 E. Texas.

The workshops are being offered free of charge, but enrollment is limited.

Workshop topics will include mental illness — bi-polar disorder and major depression — symptoms and causes of mental illness, treatment, problem solving, handling violent and psychotic behavior, accessing resources, setting priorities and limits, and what to look for and do during a relapse.

"There just is not much understanding about people who are mentally ill," Ms. Williamson said. She said television and movies perpetuate the perception that mentally ill people act bizarre or violent.

"Education could reduce that automatic assumption," she said.

Ms. Williamson said she became interested in learning more about mental illness when she was "faced with dealing with childhood memories."

"I learned I couldn't continue with the same coping skills I had learned as a child," she said. "I found out one out of six people usually have some type of mental illness. And once I get out in the community and start talking about it, people usually will bring up that there is a person with mental illness in their family."

She said in the past she left workshops "walking away feeling I didn't get what I came for, but not able to put my finger on what that was.

"I realized I needed to know how to cope," she said. "This (upcoming) workshop will tell family members what they can do to help themselves."

Ms. Williamson said she was concerned that she, too, could become schizophrenic. Then there are additional concerns of caring for a family member with mental illness, getting the services, health care and insurance they need.

"My mother does well on medication, but it won't make all of the symptoms go away," Ms. Williamson said. "But there is more information about mental illness now than there has been in the past."

Ms. Pheil said the workshops are structured and participants would benefit most by attending all four. They will include such topics as legal and judicial issues, the historical perspective of mental illness, how to help someone when they are hallucinating, theories of causation, types of medication and the dilemma of relapse.

She said the series of workshops will be offered again later in the year. For more information, or to register, call 570-3300.

MAKING THE GRADE

Local high school principals have announced their 1995 National Merit Scholarship Commended Students.

The students are not semifinalists in the competition, but they will receive a letter of commendation for their efforts.

Lee High School's commended students are: Amy Brewer, Marc Chastain, Sara Drescher, Christian Lance, Katherine Martin, Raymond Martinez, Caroline Nguyen, Alsion Owens, Jessica Sherman and Marcie Watson. Midland High School's commended students are: Tamarie Hawkins, Blake Johnson, Michael Kohl, Joshua Naumann, Christopher O'Connor, Regine Rusk, Matthew Stahlbaum and Collin Upham.

About 35,000 Commended Students throughout the nation are being honored for their exceptional academic promise. They placed among the top five percent of more than one million students who entered the 1995 Merit Program by taking the 1993 Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test. Although the qualifying test scores of Commended Students are outstanding, they are slightly below the level required to continue in the competition for Merit Scholarships to be awarded in 1995.

Greenwood High School announced that its Commmended students are Allen Mays and Chandra Gray.

Raiders fade in second half

■ Texas A&M comes back from a 17-7 halftime deficit to fight off another Texas Tech upset bid at Kyle Field.

By Michael A. Lutz
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE STATION — Texas Tech threw another scare into No. 10 Texas A&M, but the Aggies still got the victory.

Rodney Thomas scored two touchdowns and Corey Pullig found his passing touch just in time for the Aggies to put down the Red Raiders' latest upset bid for a 23-17 victory on Saturday.

It extended the nation's longest home winning streak to 23 games at Kyle Field for the Aggies, who trailed 17-7 at the half and didn't get the lead until 6:11 remained in the game on Thomas' 1-yard dive.

"They give you 60 minutes to play the game, not a half or three quarters," A&M coach R.C. Slocum said. "But we got the job done, and that's what we set out to do."

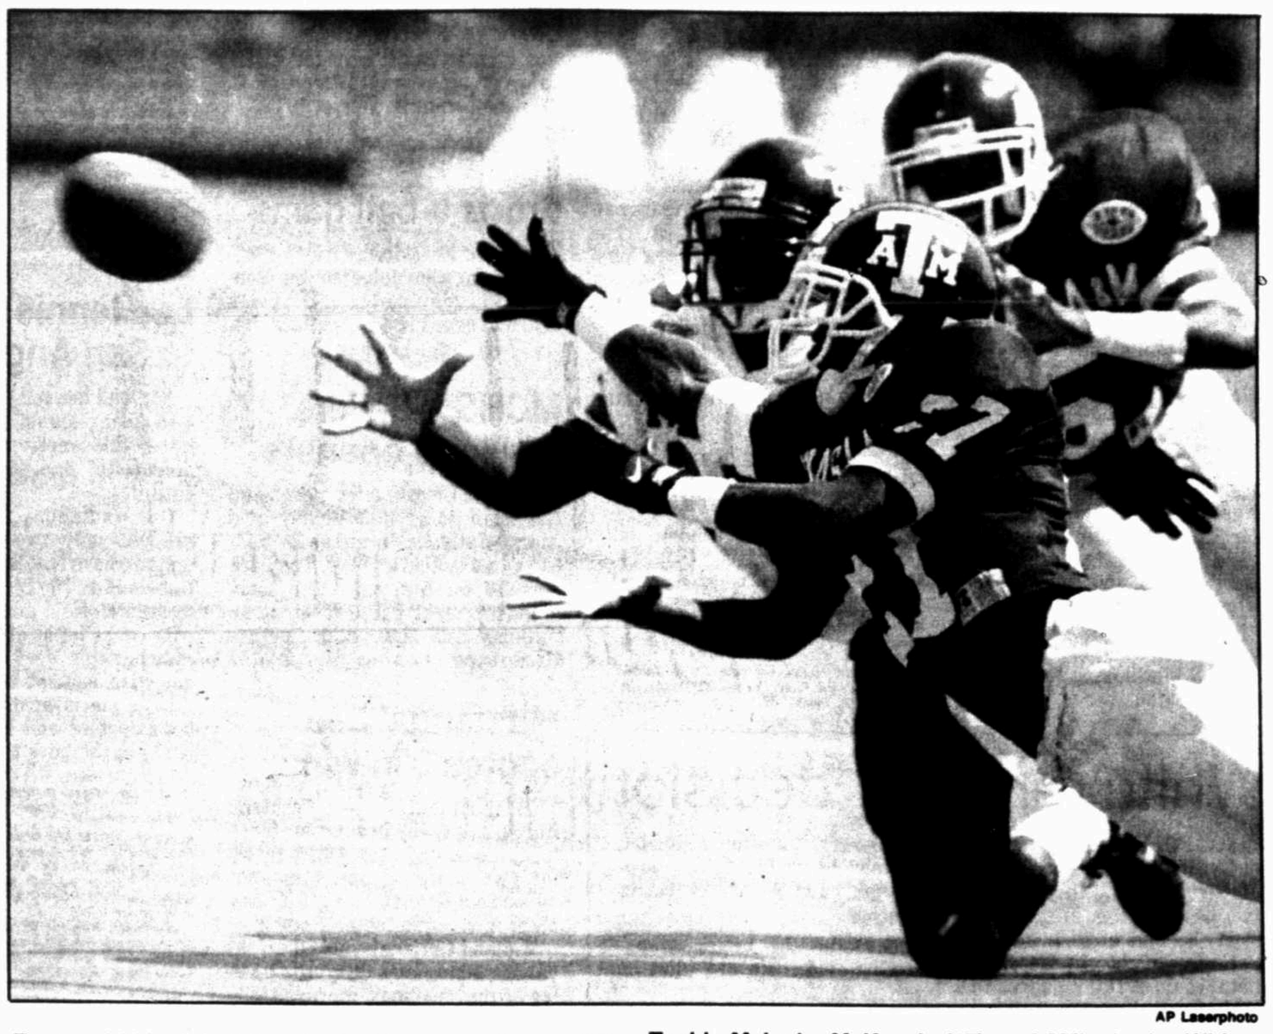

Tech almost ended the Aggies' home winning streak in 1992, forcing the Aggies to kick a field goal on the final play of the game for a 19-17 victory. The Raiders lost 28-24 in 1990.

But the Aggies didn't cut it that close this time.

"I don't know how you can feel you are jinxed," Tech coach Spike Dykes said. "We just haven't been able to win. But nobody has gotten it done here."

The Raiders did throw one final scare into the Aggies as time ran out in the game when Zebbie Lethridge threw a pass into the Aggie end zone similar to

Texas comes up short

■ For the second week in a row, Colorado beats a ranked opponent in the final seconds of a game.

By Rick Warner

AUSTIN — Colorado didn't need a miracle this time — just Rashaan Salaam, Herchell Troutman and Neil Voskeritchian.

One week after beating Michigan on a last-second, 64-yard pass, the fifth-ranked Buffaloes downed No. 16 Texas 34-31 Saturday behind Salaam's 317-yard rushing effort, Troutman's three TD runs and Voskeritchian's 24-yard field goal with one second left.

"A lot of people think Colorado is lucky because they keep winning at the buzzer. They are not," Texas coach John Mackovic said. "They are a very good football team."

"I hope the guys don't think they need to make it exciting just for me," Colorado coach Bill McCartney said. "I'll take a boring win any time. I feel like I've

Mojo falls to 2-3 with loss

■ Dallas Carter's defense stuffs Odessa Permian in the second half to win 25-7.

Staff Report

IRVING — Dallas Carter scored three touchdowns in the second half and its defense shut out Odessa Permian in the same span as the Cowboys defeated the Panthers 25-7 in a Class 5A non-district football game Saturday at Texas Stadium.

With the loss, the Panthers fall to 2-3 for the season after winning their District 4-5A opener last week against Odessa High.

Carter, which improved to 3-2, opened up scoring with a 20-yard interception return by Donald McCowan. The Cowboys missed the extra point kick for a 6-0 lead.

Permian bounced right back with a touchdown in the second quarter that was set up by Jeremy Marin's 36-yard reception from quarterback Jeff Dinger, putting the Panthers on the Carter 4-yard line. L.C. Ward plunged in from there and Jeremy White's PAT

Dallas game full of Turner connections

By Jonathan Moore
Associated Press Writer

■ Dallas at Washington 12 noon, FOX

ASHBURN, Va. — All the circles seem to close for Norv Turner as he takes the Washington Redskins against the Dallas team he helped coach to two Super Bowl titles as offensive coordinator.

On Sunday at RFK Stadium, the rookie coach will look across the field for the first time at his friend and former protege, Dallas quarterback Troy Aikman. He also goes against his former mentor, Ernie Zampese, who taught him offense while with the Los Angeles Rams and who now has Turner's former job as offensive coordinator.

And into that mix throw rookie Heath Shuler, Turner's current quarterback project and hope of the future, whose untested talents are on display in his first professional start.

Turner plays down the connections.

"I think of it in terms of doing this all your life," he said. "There are times when I go out and play one-on-one basketball with my brother and you're elbowing each other in the face when you're growing up. So when you're competing, you're competing, and once the game starts, I don't know if anybody thinks about who's on the other side."

Salary caps at heart of stoppage issues

By Ronald Blum
AP Sports Writer

■ Sports Analysis

NEW YORK — For the first time ever, two of America's major sports have shut down. A basketball lockout next month would make it three of four.

"It appears there is a fundamental issue that is central to all of these questions," Oakland Athletics president Sandy Alderson said Friday. "That is whether clubs and players can come to some agreement on a partnership and share revenues."

The NBA has had a salary cap since the 1984-85 season and the NFL has a salary cap for the first time this year. The owners in baseball and hockey, the sports currently quiet because of labor problems, claim a cap is needed for small-market clubs to survive.

"We are a small-market team," Quebec Nordiques owner Marcel Aubut said Friday. "I don't know how much longer we can proceed. If a system is not in place, we do not have a future."

Baseball union head Donald Fehr said it appeared to him that hockey owners and baseball owners where pursuing the same goals.

"What they're saying is not dissimilar," Fehr said.

Baseball owners and hockey owners complain about spiraling salaries. The

MHS drops SA in 4-5A v-ball

SAN ANGELO — Midland High walked into the San Angelo Central gym and stole second place in the District 4-5A volleyball standings away from the Lady Bobcats here Saturday.

MHS, behind what coach Terri McColloch called tremendous team effort, held on in the crucial third game to defeat San Angelo 15-10, 10-15, 15-11. With the win, the Lady Dawgs take over second place and stand there alone with a 4-2 league mark and a 13-8 overall record.

Before the match, MHS was locked in a three-way tie for second with San Angelo and Abilene Cooper. League-leading Odessa Permian (6-0) did away with Cooper in three games Saturday.

"We would not have won if not for an all-around tremendous effort by the entire team," McColloch said. "Jennifer Allen came in in the third game and played setter for me and just did a wonderful job."

Deshawn Berry led the Lady Dawgs at the net with nine kills while Elisabeth Mathiassen had six and Elaine Salgado got four. Elesceeya King and Toya Zachery led the MHS defense with five stuff blocks each. Jamee Stennett and Salgado each had four. Heather Klein and Mathiassen led MHS at the service line.

"Toya did a super job in game three to keep us in the ball game," McColloch said. "Sara Pritchett ended up playing on the front line and she made some smart off-speed hits to keep the momentum going in the third."

Midland travels to Midland Lee, which was idle Saturday, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday to begin the second half of the loop schedule.

Branum team takes MCC lead

Kirk Branum, Cole Mitchell, Jerry Todd and Mike Hochman pulled into the lead after the second round of the Midland Country Club Fall Classic men's four-man scramble golf tournament. The foursome have a 193 for a one-stroke lead.

The tournament's four flights of the tournament will finish up play today with a two-man low ball format. The scores will be added to the results from Friday and Saturday.

Results Saturday from the Midland Country Club Fall Classic men's golf tournament:

Championship flight: Branum, Mitchell, Todd, Hochman, 193; Ellis Jr., Rasmussen, Hodge, Boudreaux, 194; Jones, Frazier, Whiteside, Thomason, 195; Swevll, Ray, Sledge, Satterwhite, 196.

First flight: Gotovack, Johnson, Wisdom, Hooker, 193; Murray, Bippen, Kohn, Gasser, 194; Porter, Levin, Schmidt, Dillard, 194; McGee, Lovett, Engelstad, Essex, 194.

Second flight: Hill, Sipes, Bledsoe, Koch, 196; ROye, Newman, Robinson, Harrison, 198; Beach, Beach, Karper, Hinson, 199; Hill, Austin, Baker, Baker, 199.

Third flight: Moran, Harrington, Hunt, Dippel, 200; Hutto, Reese, Ross, Cantrell, 201; Lucas, Ohlenburg, Irons, Davis, 203.

MHS x-country at Big Spring meet

BIG SPRING — Midland High's Mike Johnson finished 19th in the boys division of the Big Spring Invitational cross country meet Saturday. Johnson ran a time of 17 minutes, 43 seconds over the three-mile course.

Also for MHS, Victor Leggett was 22nd in 18:13, Jeff Lea was 29th in 18:45 while Wayne Cagle was 43rd in 20:25. For the girls, Laura Thomas was 35th in 15:47 over the two-mile course.

Lee Gray drops v-ball game

The Lee Freshman Gray volleyball team was defeated by Bonham Saturday 15-11, 15-5. Lee's district record is 3-1. Lee has won six of its last eight games.

MCHS v-ballers win loop openers

Midland Christian beat Amarillo Christian 15-2, 15-2 Friday and Alamo Cathlolic Saturday 15-7, 15-0 to go 2-0 in district play. They are now 2-8 for the year. The Lady Mustangs next game is at home Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. versus Greenwood.

Mustangs' Lee scores 3 in win

GRANDFALLS — Midland Christian's Colby Lee ran for three touchdowns and Alex Awtry threw for two more as the Mustangs whiped out Grandfalls 42-16 Friday night in six-man football action.

Midland Christian racked up 298 yards rushing and 136 yards passing as the Mustangs improved to 3-2 for the season. John Koss, Allan Awtry and Michael Nash played well on the offensive line.

Defensively, the Mustangs shut out the Cowboys in the first half. Chris Patteson led the defense with 20 tackles while Jared Zahn had 11. Midland Christian hosts Amarillo Christian at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Lee tennis falls to San Angelo

Midland Lee fell to 0-4 in District 4-5A team tennis play with two losses this week, including a 16-2 defeat to San Angelo Central Saturday.

On Wednesday, Odessa High dropped only two girls matches and two boys matches to defeat the Rebels 14-4. The Lee girls were led by Rae McNeill and Erin Stanton, who won both of their singles matches this week. The Lee boys got wins against OHS by Conner Austin and David Evans in the boys doubles and by Glenn Abrahams in the boys singles.

Abell unbeaten in eighth grade

Abell remained undefeated at 4-0 in the eighth grade Midland-Odessa conference with a 13-2 win over Alamo as Matt Winston rushed for 85 yards and a touchdown. Eric Neatherlin also scored. Neatherlin and Winston both had interceptions.

San Jacinto scored a 27-20 win over Odessa Nimitz as Charles Tatum, Terry White , Rod Hickey and Jacinto Montelongo scored touchdowns for SJ.

In the eighth grade city conference, San Jacinto defeated Alamo 16-0 with Ruben Ramirez and Matt Strickler scoring touchdowns.

Abell nips Alamo in seventh grade

Abell White beat Alamo Gray 22-14 in seventh grade action. Abell had 435 yards of offense led by Isaac Washington, Autry Pryor and David Kniffen, who all had touchdowns.

San Jacinto Green rolled to a 40-0 win over Goddard White in the seventh grade American conference. Also Abell Blue defeated Alamo Maroon by a 34-6 margin as Matt Morgan, Jose Guzman and Jerad Calobreves all scored touchdowns.

In the national conference, San Jacinto got two touchdowns from Charlie Buys to beat Abell 14-0. Goddard defeated Alamo, 28-6.

Moore places 25th

BIG SPRING — Midland Lee's Shannon Moore placed 25th here in the Big Spring Cross Country Meet Saturday with a season best time of 14:27.

Lee's Marcie Watson placed 43rd with a 17:34.

Among the Lee boys, Steven Herrera was 27th with a 19:18 and Rudy Esquivel was 38th with a 19:31. Lee goes to Lubbock next weekend.

Lee Frosh win

Midland Lee Freshman climbed to 16-3 for the season and 3-1 in the Midland-Odessa volleyball conference Saturday with a 15-2, 5-15, 15-8 win over Odessa Ector.

Midland Freshman Purple improved to 4-1 with a 28-19 win over Nimitz. Purple got two touchdowns by Camar Jackson, one by Anthony Mantley on a 90-yard kickoff return and one by Andy Clinton, who recovered a Nimitz fumble in the end zone. Zach Inman kicked four extra points for Purple.

Lee Freshman White defeated Midland Gold 13-7. Justin Coleman had a touchdown and a point after touchdown and Jason Hernandez had one TD and 116 yards rushing for White. Michael Fisher had an interception for White, Joey Murphy had two fumble recoveries and Spencer Gilbert had one fumble recovery. Midland was led by Damien Johnson, who ran for 127 yards. Gold fell to 1-4 in league play and plays Midland Purple Thursday.

Compiled from Reporter-Telegram staff reports.

Whitaker wins decision

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Pernell Whitaker and Buddy McGirt both said they were the two best fighters in the world.

At the end of their rematch Saturday night at the Scope, both would certainly agree that Whitaker is No. 1.

The WBC welterweight champion, nicknamed "Sweet Pea," got up from a second-round knockdown to put on a beautiful display of boxing and power-punching and won a lopsided unanimous decision over McGirt before 9,150 hometown fans.

It's hard to imagine a boxer being any better than Whitaker was in the second half of the fight. He simply beat up McGirt.

A computer analysis of the fight showed that Whitaker landed 163 of 460 jabs and 167 of 348 power punches. McGirt, meanwhile, could land only 59 of 230 jabs and 95 of 274 power punches.

"He was the better man," McGirt said. "He did what he had to do."

Judge Chuck Giampa scored it 117-113, Rudy Ortega 118-112 and Steve Weisfeld had it 117-110, all for Whitaker.

Now that Whitaker has settled the issue with McGirt beyond doubt, he would like to take care of Julio Cesar Chavez, with whom he fought a majority 12-round draw Sept. 10, 1993 at San Antonio, Texas, although most ringsiders thought Whitaker had easliy handed the Mexican his first defeat.

"There's really nothing more I can do but get the Chavez fight," he said.

Dillon wins Lowe's 150 NASCAR

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. — Mike Dillon, son-in-law of Winston Cup car-owner Richard Childress, drove to an easy victory Saturday in the Lowe's 150 NASCAR late model stock race at North Wilkesboro Speedway.

It was his 11th victory of the season.

Dillon started from the pole but lost the lead to Barry Beggarly on the first lap around the five-eighths-mile oval. Beggarly, who led every lap of last week's Goody's 200 at Martinsville, Va., stayed in front until Dillon charged past on lap 35.

The Clemmons, S.C., driver led the rest of the way, beating runnerup Scott Kilby to the finish line by about four car-lengths in the battle of Pontiacs. Dennis Setzer was third, followed by Beggarly and Max Prestwood Jr.

Dillon averaged 83.955 mph in the race slowed by four caution flags for a total of 24 laps.

Dent shares lead with 66

Associated Press

■ Golf Roundup

CLEMMONS, N.C. — Jim Dent moved into contention at the Vantage Championship for the fourth consecutive year Saturday when his second straight 66 gave him a share of the second-round lead with Larry Gilbert.

Dent once again took advantage of Tanglewood's hard fairways and was deadly with his approach shots in his bogey-free round. But the Senior Tour's longest hitter has folded here in the past. Last year, he led by a shot heading to Sunday's final round before finishing third, six shots behind winner Lee Trevino.

"I've been waiting for three years here and I hope this is the time for Jim Dent to win," said Dent, who also finished second in the tour's richest event in 1991 and 1992. "(The course) has been good to me for rounds and rounds and rounds, maybe tomorrow I can put up a 64 or 62 and try to win."

Dent, who set the 36-hole tournament record in 1993 at 131, has won $326,800 in his last three Vantage events.

"They have been paying me a pretty good salary for being second and third so it's not bad to be that here," he said. "There's no frustration."

As good as Dent played, his round could have been much better. He missed four birdie putts from inside four feet.

Dent and Gilbert are at 12-under-par 132 after two rounds, but seven golfers are within two shots of the lead, including Isao Aoki, who has won the last two weeks, and Raymond Floyd, who had 10 birdies Saturday in a 64.

Gilbert, who was paired with Dent, also shot his second straight 66. The former three-time PGA club pro winner won on tour for the first time in April at the Dallas Reunion Pro-Am.

"It's a little harder to win the second one because you're trying to prove the first one wasn't a fluke," said Gilbert, who called his 6-under round boring. "But I think I can win again."

In addition to Floyd and Aoki, Mike Hill, Dave Eichelberger and Bob Charles are at 10-under 134. Jimmy Powell is another shot back after his 66.

Floyd birdied five of his final six holes en route to his 8-under 64. He recovered from a double-bogey 6 on the short 300-yard No. 6 to post 10 birdies and a backside 30 during a second straight day of low scores that have produced 25 eagles and 598 birdies.

"I'm happy to be in the same area code as the leaders," said Floyd, who was six shots behind first-day leader Dave Stockton after carding an opening-round 70.

Buick Southern Open

PINE MOUNTAIN, Ga. — Second-round leader Steve Elkington birdied the first three holes in a 4-under-par 68 that gave him a five-shot lead over fellow Australian Steve Rintoul after three rounds of the Buick Southern Open.

At the turn, Elkington appeared to be headed to a record-setting lead after 54 holes in a PGA Tour event. He had a nine-shot lead at the turn, in position to break the mark of eight set by Spain's Jose Maria Olazabal in the 1990 World Series of Golf. He had five birdies on the front side, but a rally by Rintoul and Elkington's first bogey of the tournament on his 52nd hole knocked four shots off the lead.

Elkington's 16-under 200 broke the three-round record on the 7,057-yard Callaway Gardens Mountain View course set by Gary Hallberg in 1992 and tied by Bob Estes last year.

Rintoul, who started the third round with a triple-bogey, recovered to post a 70 and was alone in second place at 11 under.

Brad Bryant was alone in third after posting a 69 for a 9-under 207. Three others were tied at 208 — Gene Sauers with a 67 and Buddy Gardner and Steve Pate each with 68s.

Heartland Classic

ST. LOUIS — Birdies on three straight holes on the back nine helped Liselotte Neumann take a one-stroke lead after three rounds of the $500,000 LPGA Greater Heartland Classic.

Neumann's 5-under-par 67 on Saturday gave her an 8-under 208 total, one shot better than Deb Richard and Pearl Sinn. Richard had a third-round 68, while Sinn, who had a four-stroke lead after two rounds, had a 72.

Elaine Crosby was another stroke back after a 69.

Neumann trailed Sinn, 92nd on the money list and without a victory in four years on the LPGA Tour, by two strokes entering the back nine but birdied 12, 13 and 14 to take the lead.

"I felt really good from the first hole on," Neumann said. "The first two days I had a hard time picking the right clubs. But today I was right on."

Things appeared to be falling apart at one point for Sinn. She bogeyed the par-4 12th as Neumann started her run and briefly fell two strokes behind.

German Masters

MOTZEN, Germany — Ernie Els used favorable afternoon conditions to his advantage Saturday, shooting an 8-under-par 64 to open a 7-stroke lead over a star-studded field in the Mercedes German Masters.

Els, the U.S. Open champion from South Africa, followed his opening 63 with another torrid trip over the 6,848-yard Berlin Golf and Country Club. He had seven birdies against one bogey on the front nine and finished at 17-under 127.

ISSUES: Cap key to success

average will be $560,000.

"All sports have let their player salaries get out of control," Philadelphia Phillies owner Bill Giles said. "I guess everybody wants some cost containment so all the industries can make a little money rather than in the case of baseball lose money."

Baseball players say there's nothing wrong with the current system and that owners should learn to live within budgets. Hockey players want expanded free agency, but owners claim they can't live within the current system.

"They're happy with the deal as it is," Philadelphia Flyers owner Ed Snider said. "They're happy with the deal that's destroying the game."

NBA commissioner David Stern says the salary cap has been a key to his league's success.

"All a cap is a vehicle to deliver money," he said.

But baseball players say a cap stifles free agency because clubs approach the ceiling and are unable to sign high-priced players. Fehr and NBA Players Association head Charles Grantham both says owners see a salary cap as "panaceas."

"It's contagious, with three or four sports going through it at the same time with the salary cap," Grantham said last week.

While baseball players saved $175 million-$200 million in licensing money as a strike fund, hockey players haven't prepared nearly as well financially, according to an agent who represents players in both sports.

Fehr said baseball players will fight off a salary cap "as long as it takes." Hockey players, too, say they are prepared for a long shutdown. But while baseball players have survived seven previous work stoppages, hockey players have gone through only an 11-day strike at the end of the 1992 season.

"I just don't see hockey being played this year," Los Angeles Kings center Wayne Gretzky said.

Basketball's collective bargaining agreement also has expired. The NFL may have the autumn all to itself.

"I would not be surprised if a lockout were to occur, based on their behavior at this point," Grantham said.

NBA officials have avoided talking about a possible lockout but they don't rule one out.

"Our plan is to open training camps," deputy commissioner Russ Granik said last month. "But if ultimately the union won't talk to you, it's tough to rule out any possibilities you might have to consider down the road."

TECH: Texas Tech had Ags thinking Michigan

(From 1C)

Michigan last week. But the pass bounced out of the end zone and the Aggie's streak survived.

"We all had Colorado in the backs of our minds," Pullig said. "But you can't do anything about luck, and that's what Colorado had."

The Red Raiders (2-3, 1-1 Southwest Conference) used a 73-yard pass on a fake punt to set up one touchdown and a 17-yard interception return for another touchdown to take a 17-7 halftime lead.

Tech was still ahead 17-14 in the fourth quarter when Corey Pullig, who passed for 15 yards in the first half, hit Chris Sanders with a 45-yard pass to set up the go-ahead touchdown. Pullig also had completions of 12 yards to Haywood Clay and 13 yards to Ryan Mathews in the drive.

The Aggies (4-0, 1-0) have a 55-3-1 record in Kyle Field since late in the 1984 season. They haven't failed to win at Kyle Field since Baylor held A&M to a 20-20 tie in 1990. The last loss was 23-22 to Arkansas in 1989.

Freshman kicker Kyle Bryant, who was 7-for-7 in his college career, missed two field goals and an extra point before kicking a 40-yarder with 1:15 left in the game.

The Aggies tripped over themselves in the first half, gaining only 77 yards and being penalized seven times for 70 yards. For the game, A&M was penalized 13 times for 107 yards, Tech 10 times for 99 yards.

The streak was in jeopardy after the tricky Red Raiders got their lead on a 45-yard field goal by Tony Rogers, Zebbie Lethridge's 4-yard touchdown pass to Jerod Fiebiger and Marcus Coleman's 17-yard interception return.

Texas Tech wide receiver Jayson Lavender (82) can't hang onto a pass after Texas A&M defensive back Michael Hendricks (40) leaps over him Saturday.

Coach Spike Dykes pulled off the gamble of the season with Tech facing fourth-and-9 from its 23 in the second quarter. Tech lined up to punt but the ball was centered to Bart Thomas, lined up as a blocking back. He lobbed a pass on the left side to Jody Brown, who raced past the startled Aggies defenders to the A&M 4 before being tackled by cornerback Ray Mickens.

Two plays later, Aggies linebacker Reggie Brown fell down at the goal line, opening a path for the ball to tight end Jerold Fiebiger, and the Raiders led 10-7.

"We had to have something to stiumlate us," Dykes said. "We were kind of listless. We wouldn't have called it if we didn't think it would work. We need to have a shot in the arm. They had an eight-man rush so the play was there."

With time running out in the first half, Pullig aimed a pass at Detron Smith, but Smith tipped the ball and Coleman grabbed it and ran 17 yards for a touchdown with 1:03 left before intermission.

"I read the tailback and saw the play the whole way," Coleman said. "I was just trying to concentrate on catching the ball, and the touchdown happened on its own."

The Aggies got a big play to start the game for the second straight week when Jason Andrus blocked a punt by Brad Cade. A&M took over at the Tech 1, setting up a touchdown dive by Rodney Thomas just 1:53 into the game.

Zach Thomas got his third interception of the season and returned it 4 yards to the Aggies 39.

Big-play defense keys Baylor win

FORT WORTH (AP) — The Baylor Bears got a big payback Saturday against the Texas Christian Horned Frogs thanks to an alert defense that produced three touchdowns.

Adrian Robinson returned an interception 89 yards for a touchdown, Tyrone Smith took a blocked punt 2-yards for a score and Glenn Coy carried a fumble 15 yards to a touchdown Saturday as Baylor's defense produced the big plays in a Southwest Conference 42-18 victory over TCU.

The Bears (4-1 1-0) avenged last year's 38-13 loss to TCU (2-3 0-2) in Waco with the victory in the 102nd meeting of the two schools.

"The biggest stat in the game is the four turnovers," Baylor coach Chuck Reedy said. "If you get that many, you're going to win 90 per cent of the time."

Reedy said Robinson's touchdown "was the big play of the game. The game was turning around and we needed somebody to step up. Adrian did, and that ended it. It was very tight up to that point."

Robinson's third quarter interception of TCU quarterback Max Knake deflated a Horned Frog rally. It was Robinson's seventh interception in his last nine games and the fourth longest in school history.

"The quarterback telegraphed the pass to the tight end. I read it all the way. It was sort of ill-advised," Robinson said.

"That was a crucial series and we needed to do something. If they had scored again it would have been a sure momentum builder," Robinson said.

BUFFS: Salaam gains most ever versus Texas

aged 10 years in seven days."

Salaam carried 35 times and gained the most yards ever against the Longhorns, topping the 251 by Pittsburgh's Curtis Martin in Texas' season opener and Southern Cal's C.J. Roberts in 1956.

It was the second-most rushing yards by a Colorado player, 25 yards less than Charlie Davis' record against Oklahoma State in 1971.

"He ran with resolve and toughness, and he just kept coming back," McCartney said.

Salaam, who scored on a 6-yard run and caught five passes for 45 yards, was modest about his spectacular performance.

"I don't see myself as the hero. I think the offensive line is the hero," said the junior tailback, whose previous high was 184 yards in Colorado's season opener against Northeast Louisiana.

After Texas (3-1) tied it on Phil Dawson's 47-yard field goal with 4:49 remaining, Colorado drove 73 yards in 13 plays for the winning field goal. Texas called a timeout with 4 seconds left to make Voskeritchian nervous, but he booted it straight through for Colorado's first last-minute, game-winning field goal since 1947.

"I felt sure he was going to make it," McCartney said. "I have a lot of confidence in him."

After the field goal, Colorado (4-0) kicked off and tackled Gerrod Coleman as time expired.

One of the key plays on the winning drive was a tipped, 11-yard pass from Kordell Stewart to Michael Westbrook, the same pair that connected on the tipped "Miracle at Michigan" pass last week.

"This week, we had a little more control over our fortunes," McCartney said. "Against Michigan, it was just a lucky play."

The game was played in sweltering heat before 77,809 fans at Memorial Stadium, the Longhorns' first sellout for a non-conference game since 1984.

"Obviously our team is down and disappointed," said Texas quarterback Shea Morenz, who strained his left knee in the fourth quarter but continued to play. "But we will use this loss positively and regroup for the Oklahoma game (next week in Dallas)."

It was Colorado's third straight victory over a ranked opponent. The Buffaloes beat No. 15 Wisconsin 55-17 and No. 7 Michigan 27-26.

"That's hard to do," McCartney said. "These guys have a lot of grit."

The loss snapped a remarkable streak for Texas, which lost for the first time in its 102-year history when scoring 25 points or more at home. The streak spanned 251 games.

It was a rough 51st birthday for Mackovic, who was flattened in a sideline collision in the third period. He got stitches in his chin and elbow after the game.

"We're very disappointed. We played well enough to win," Mackovic said.

UNC escapes SMU

DALLAS (AP) — In a game North Carolina almost fumbled away, the No. 18 Tar Heels found a way to recover.

North Carolina forced and recovered a Southern Methodist fumble as the Mustangs were driving midway through the fourth quarter and the Tar Heels held on for a 28-24 victory Saturday.

"Most teams would have lost under these conditions," said North Carolina coach Mack Brown, who saw his team lose four fumbles. "It's an ugly win, but our objective was to come in here and win."

The miscue by backup SMU quarterback Chris James came at the North Carolina 20 with 6:36 to play. It was only the second lost fumble of the year for the Mustangs (1-4).

"That's just a tough break," Mustangs coach Tom Rossley said. "You get things going your way — I mean, we're moving, we're making first downs — and the ball just didn't bounce our way."

The Tar Heels (3-1) had five turnovers, including four fumbles. They lost the ball three times in a row late in the second quarter, the most damaging one a fumble by quarterback Jason Stanicek at the SMU goal line.

Michigan St., Tennessee pull off upsets

■ The Spartans dump No. 15 Wisconsin while the Vols squeak by No. 17 Washington State.

Associated Press

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Turnovers did Wisconsin in again Saturday.

Duane Goulbourne scored two touchdowns and Michigan State's defense came up with four turnovers as the Spartans defeated the Badgers 29-10.

■ Top 25

Wisconsin (2-2, 1-1 Big Ten), which had four turnovers in a 55-17 loss at Colorado, lost two fumbles and two interceptions to the Spartans (2-2, 1-0).

The Badgers, who came in averaging 523.7 yards on offense, were held to 297 yards by the Spartans. Michigan State had 420 yards, 259 on the ground.

No. 11 Alabama 29, Georgia 28

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. — Jay Barker threw for a career-high 396 yards and Michael Proctor kicked a 32-yard field goal with 1:12 remaining to give Alabama a victory over Georgia, ruining a record-breaking night for Bulldogs quarterback Eric Zeier.

Zeier became the yardage leader in Southeastern Conference history, throwing for 263 yards and four touchdowns to give him 9,327 yards in his brilliant career. That eclipsed the career record of 9,287 set by Florida's Shane Matthews from 1989-92.

But, as happened so many times to Zeier, his individual achievements were overshadowed as Georgia (3-2, 2-2 SEC) lost an important game that would have kept the Bulldogs in contention for the conference title they haven't won since 1982.

Syracuse 28, No. 14 Va. Tech 20

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Kirby Dar Dar zig-zagged through the Big East's top defense on a 34-yard touchdown run with 5:42 to play, propelling Syracuse to a victory over Virginia Tech.

It was the fourth straight victory for Syracuse (4-1, 2-0 Big East), which overcame a 20-14 deficit in the fourth quarter.

Dar Dar's third touchdown of the day was just the second second-half touchdown the Hokies (4-1, 2-1 Big East) had allowed this season but it was enough to end their seven-game winning streak.

Dar Dar's backup, Malcolm Thomas, added a 42-yard scoring run with 2:33 to play for the final margin. Thomas finished with a career-high 145 yards on 15 carries and Dar Dar added 108 yards on 21 rushes.

Tennessee 10, No. 17 Wash. St. 9

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Nilo Silvan went untouched 62 yards on a reverse in sparking Tennessee to a upset of Washington State.

Silvan's sprint with 3:34 left in the third quarter gave Tennessee (2-3) a 7-6 lead. His run was the first TD Washington State (3-1) had given up in 16 quarters going back to the second quarter in last season's final game.

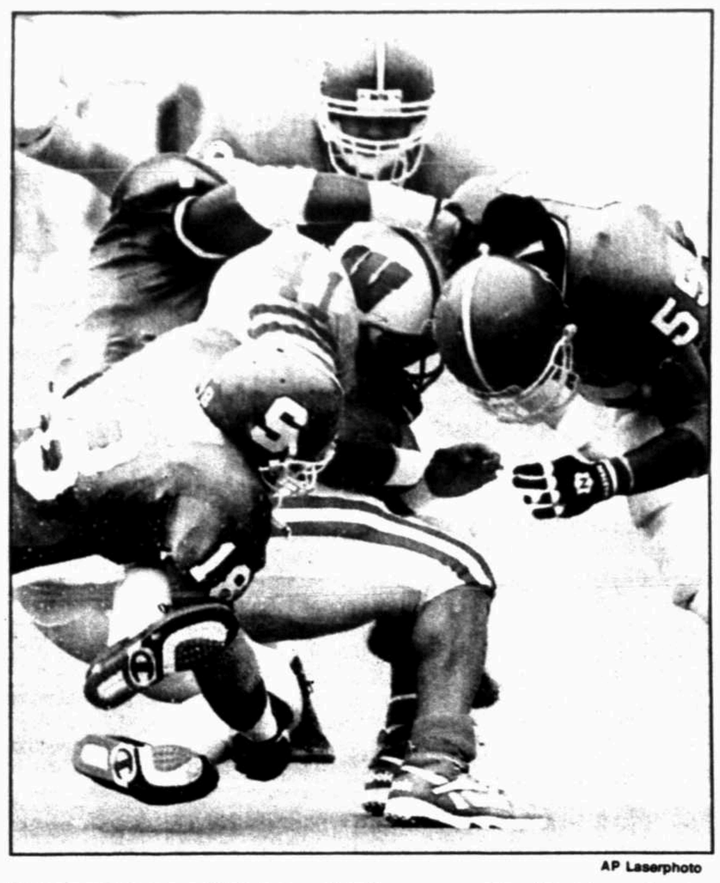

Washington State retook a 9-7 lead on the first play of the fourth quarter on Tony Truant's 32-yard field goal, his third of the game.

But the Vols responded with a drive to the Cougars 10, and John Becksvoort kicked a 27-yard field goal with 10:15 left for the winning points.

No. 1 Florida 38, Mississippi 14

OXFORD, Miss. — Terry Dean threw four touchdown passes, but Florida still played its closest game of the season, winning at Mississippi.

Dean threw two touchdown passes to Jack Jackson in the final 8:37 of the first half as the Gators (4-0, 3-0 Southeastern Conference), after blowing a quick two-touchdown lead, pulled in front 28-14 by halftime.

AP Laserphoto

Wisconsin's Terrell Fletcher (41) is swarmed by Michigan St. defenders Marvin Wright (18) and Carl Reaves (55). The Spartans defeated the defending Big Ten champion Badgers 29-10.

The Gators still haven't given up a point in the second half this season, allowing Ole Miss (2-3, 1-3) just 46 yards after the break.

In the first minute of the third quarter, Ole Miss quarterback Josh Nelson threw his first interception in 145 attempts this season while running away from pressure.

No. 2 Nebraska 42, Wyoming 32

LINCOLN, Neb. — Lawrence Phillips and backup quarterback Brook Berringer each scored three touchdowns to rally Nebraska past Wyoming.

Berringer made the first start of his career in place of Tommie Frazier, who is out at least two weeks because of a blood clot in his right leg.

Berringer scored on runs of 5, 24 and 10 yards and the Huskers (5-0) needed each one to get by Wyoming (2-3).

Redshirt freshman quarterback Jeremy Dombek, making his first start, threw a 39-yard touchdown pass to Marcus Harris on the Cowboys' second possession, then found Jeremy Gilstrap from 6 yards out with 25 seconds left in the first quarter.

Nebraska, using a conservative game plan without Frazier, managed only 58 yards in the first quarter and didn't get on the scoreboard until Phillips vaulted in from 1 yard out with 5:25 remaining in the half.

No. 4 Penn St. 48, Temple 21

PHILADELPHIA — Freddie Scott caught three touchdown passes and Jon Witman ran for two scores as Penn State overcame a terrible start and an injury to star runner Ki-Jana Carter to defeat Temple.

Carter dislocated his right thumb in the second quarter after accumulating 178 all-purpose yards. It wasn't known yet whether he'll be ready when Penn State visits Michigan in two weeks.

The game was played on the rainy turf of 99-year-old Franklin Field, and even though Penn State was the visiting team, Nittany Lions fans easily outnumbered Temple's crowd.

Temple (2-2), a 44½-point underdog, lead 6-0 at the end of the first quarter, the first time the Nittany Lions (5-0) had trailed this season.

No. 7 Michigan 29, Iowa 14

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Tyrone Wheatley ran for 182 yards and two touchdowns in his first start of the season and Michigan rebounded from its shocking loss to Colorado to beat Iowa.

Michigan (3-1) also got three field goals from Remy Hamilton and a touchdown run from Wheatley's backup, Tim Biakabutuka, in winning its 13th straight Big Ten opener.

Iowa (2-3, 0-2) led 7-3 after quarterback Ryan Driscoll's 1-yard touchdown run with 12:23 left in the second quarter. But the Hawkeyes didn't make another first down until the 2:23 mark in the third quarter and by then, Michigan was in control.

The Wolverines scored 10 points in the final 2 minutes of the first half to go up 13-7.

No. 12 Washington 37, UCLA 10

SEATTLE — Napoleon Kaufman ran for a career-high 227 yards, including a personal-best 79-yard sprint, and scored a touchdown as Washington defeated UCLA.

Washington picked up right where it left off last weekend when it ended Miami's NCAA-record 58-game home winning streak, a game which saw Kaufman become the school's career rushing leader.

Washington (3-1, 1-1 in the Pac-10) beat UCLA for the first time since 1989 and won its third straight game. The Bruins (2-3, 0-2) lost their third straight.

Kaufman carried the ball a career-high 34 times against UCLA, 23 in the second half when he gained 175 yards.

No. 13 Miami 24, Rutgers 3

PISCATAWAY, N.J. — Chris T. Jones scored on an 82-yard pass play and set up a touchdown with another reception as Miami used a couple of big second-quarter plays to defeat Rutgers.

The victory was the 67th straight for the Hurricanes against an unranked opponent and came just a week after Miami saw its NCAA-record 58-game home winning streak ended by No. 12 Washington.

Miami (3-1, 1-0 Big East) wasn't able to take all of its frustrations out on Rutgers (2-3, 1-2) because its offense was sporadic.

No. 20 Ohio St. 17, Northwestern 15

EVANSTON, Ill. — Eddie George rushed for 206 yards on 39 carries as Ohio State rallied and then held on for a victory over Northwestern, the Buckeyes' 19th in a row over the Wildcats.

George, who rushed for more than 100 yards for the fourth straight game, would have been the goat had teammate Matt Finkes not made a saving tackle on Northwestern's two-point conversion try with 5:01 to play in the Big Ten opener for both teams.

The Buckeyes (4-1) trailed 9-0 at halftime, when Northwestern had the edge in yardage (175-66), plays (47-16), first downs (13-2) and time of possession (23:22-6:38).

No. 21 Oklahoma 34, Iowa St. 6

NORMAN, Okla. — Oklahoma dusted off its wishbone playbook but did most of its scoring out of other formations, beating winless Iowa State in the Big Eight opener for both.

James Allen ran for 111 yards and scored twice for the Sooners (3-1). A three-touchdown second quarter was too much to overcome for Iowa State (0-5), which hurt itself with three turnovers in losing to Oklahoma for the 32nd time in the past 34 meetings.

Oklahoma had not run the ball consistently in its first three games, but rushed for a season-high 334 yards and wound up outgaining the Cyclones 460-231.

No. 22 N. Carolina St. 21 Georgia Tech 13

RALEIGH, N.C. — Geoff Bender rescued North Carolina State one more time, running for a score and directing two turnover-aided drives in a 21-13 victory over Georgia Tech.

When the Wolfpack offense failed to move behind injured quarterback Terry Harvey, N.C. State (4-0, 2-0 Atlantic Coast Conference) went to Bender again. He replaced Harvey in a game against Clemson earlier this year and threw a touchdown pass in a 29-12 victory.

When he took over for Harvey this time, he tossed a 22-yard pass to Eddie Goines late in the first half to set up his own 8-yard scoring dash with 1:03 left.

Purdue 22, No. 25 Illinois 16

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Corey Rogers ran for two touchdowns and Purdue stopped Illinois tight end Ken Dilger on the 1-yard line on the game's final play as the Boilermakers upset the Illini.

The Illini had an apparent touchdown pass from Johnny Johnson to Martin Jones called back by a holding penalty with 56 seconds left. But Johnson completed a 23-yard pass to Jasper Strong and carried for a first down to the Purdue 10 with 10 seconds left.

After downing the ball to stop the clock, Johnson flipped a short pass to Dilger, who turned, hesitated and tried to get in the end zone but was stopped short by cornerback John Jackson. Purdue players then swarmed the field in celebration.

No. 8 Notre Dame 34, Stanford 15

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Ron Powlus threw three touchdown passes and set up a TD with a 44-yard run as Notre Dame beat Stanford.

Powlus completed 10 of his first 11 passes for 168 yards, including TD tosses of 15, 10 and 47 yards for the Irish (4-1).

Steve Stenstrom, closing in on Pac-10 and Stanford passing records in his senior year, completed 37 of 59 passes for 360 yards with Mark Harris catching TD passes of 9 and 19 yards in the fourth quarter after the outcome was already determined.

The Cardinal (1-2-1) opened an early 3-0 advantage on a 34-yard field goal by Eric Abrams after a penalty nullified a Stanford touchdown on the game's opening drive.

Oregon 22, No. 19 USC 7

LOS ANGELES — Tony Graziani, living a second-string quarterback's dream, threw for 287 yards and a touchdown in his first college start, and Oregon had nine sacks in an upset of Southern Cal.

Oregon's first victory at the Coliseum in 23 years bore a striking resemblance to a 28-23 win on Oct. 9, 1971, when Dan Fouts was injured and Harvey Winn started and threw for three touchdowns.

Present USC coach John Robinson was an Oregon assistant on that day.

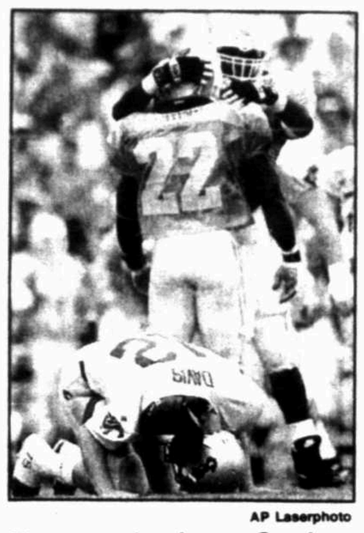

Graziani, a sophomore filling in for injured star Danny O'Neil, completed 16-of-31 and threw a 19-yard scoring pass to Cristin McLemore as Oregon (3-2) won its Pacific-10 opener against USC (2-2, 1-1).

No. 24 Colorado State 38, New Mexico 31

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Anthoney Hill threw for a career-best 364 yards and three touchdowns and Colorado State equaled its best start in 17 years with a victory over winless New Mexico.

Hill completed 25-of-35 passes as the Rams (5-0, 4-0 Western Athletic Conference) took advantage of everything one of the country's worst defenses gave up.

New Mexico (0-5, 0-2) as usual got a good effort from senior quarterback Stoney Case, but once more could not hide a defense that ranks 105th nationally and has given up an average of 41 points a game.

Shula women will root for Dave, not Don

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

There's no doubt whom the Shula women will be rooting for this week.

When Don's Miami Dolphins play Dave's Cincinnati Bengals in the first matchup in any sport between father and son coaches, the three Shula daughters will be rooting for the Bengals, of course.

David Shula, at 0-4, needs the win a lot more than his dad in Sunday night's game at Riverfront Stadium.

"All three have dropped subtle hints: 'Dad, I hope you understand, we're going to be pulling for Dave,'" said Don Shula. "And I understand."

"They're sitting in seats I'm giving them, so they'd better be pulling for us," added Dave Shula.

It's too bad in a way that the Bengals are what they are. It may be Dave Shula's fault, but it's as much the fault of the front office.

Minnesota (3-1) at Arizona (0-3)

This is just what Buddy Ryan needs — perhaps the NFL's hottest team coming into play Team Chaos. To put it another way, Jay Schroeder will be the quarterback in place of Phil Simms, (who figured ESPN was safer), Jim McMahon (whose never great arm has lost 20 yards), and Steve Beuerlein (who is deep in Ryan's doghouse).

Ryan could, of course, decide to go with Mike Buck, a former New Orleans third-stringer who was in for a tryout this week.

Warren Moon, meanwhile, has finally found himself in the Minnesota offense. The defense let down last week in the second half, but that was against Dan Marino.

Philadelphia (2-1) at San Francisco (3-1)

Steve Young is still standing — barely — after a week playing behind 36-year-old Bart Oates and the practice squad's Fab Four of Harry Boatswain, Derrick Deese, Chris Dalman and Frank Pollack. It's lucky he can depend on a cornerback named Deion to provide additional offense.

In fact, the 49ers' best bet is to run against a Philadelphia defense that's vulnerable there. But that still means that Harry, Derrick, Chris and Frank have to block.

SKINS: Dallas fifth in defense

(From 1C)

But there's little doubt that Turner has thought a lot about who's on the other side in preparing for this game.

Especially Pro Bowlers like Aikman, running back Emmitt Smith, tight end Jay Novacek and wide receiver Michael Irvin on offense and ends Jim Jeffcoat and Charles Haley on defense.

The Cowboys have a 37-29-2 lead in this long, fierce rivalry and will certainly have the edge on Sunday.

Dallas ranks fifth in the NFL in defense, allowing 281.3 yards, and Washington is only 10th in offense. Dallas' fourth-ranked offense has an even greater advantage statistically over Washington's 20th-ranked defense.

But Washington and Dallas have a history of defying expectations. The teams have split the season series in each of the last six years, with Dallas getting its lone victory of 1989 over the Redskins and Washington opening with a victory over the Cowboys last season before stumbling to a 4-12 finish.

The loser at Washington in each of the last three seasons has won the Super Bowl.

Even with an experienced group and facing a rookie quarterback, Dallas coach Barry Switzer says he's not taking the Redskins for granted, and there is some reason for concern. Dallas has rolled up yards but not points, averaging 21 a game, and got only 17 in a 3-point loss to Detroit two weeks ago.

"Our defense has got to go play consistent, play what we've seen on tape, regardless of what number is behind the center," Switzer said. "I always worry about a guy (Shuler) that has athletic talents that he possesses."

Turner says knowing something about Dallas' personnel from his days with the Cowboys possibly helps, "but it also might hurt because sometimes you might know too much about someone, too."

Asked if Dallas has an Achilles heel, Turner said: "I don't know that many people have been able to find it if there is one. They're awfully talented, on both sides of the ball. The athletic ability shows up in everything they do.

"The thing that always has stood out and still stands out is the great speed they have on defense, and they really enjoy playing the game. It's guys flying around — they're out there having fun, and it really shows up the way they play."

■ NFL This Week

This actually could be a defensive game, rare for San Francisco. The Eagles can stop people, but can't run much themselves.

Dallas (2-1) at Washington (1-3)

Remember this: The year the Cowboys were 1-15, their win was in Washington over a good Redskins' team. So anything goes in this series.

Also remember that Barry Switzer spent the week putting out the latest Charles Haley fire. His adversary this time was trainer Kevin O'Neill. Still, with a week off after an embarrassing nationally televised loss at home, Dallas should be ready.

What they get, of course, is a coach who knows them well: Norv Turner, their former offensive coordinator and now the Redskins' head man. He's decided that a team going nowhere might as well go with the future, with Heath Shuler replacing John Friesz at quarterback.

Green Bay (2-2) at New England (2-2)

"We're in the race a little bit," says Bill Parcells, a major admission for a coach who'd question if a sunny day with 60-degree temperatures was a good day to play football.

His players go further. "We look at each other and say, 'I'm ready to win,' " says nose tackle Tim Goad.

The Packers are an enigma, perhaps because Brett Favre remains a cross between a quality quarterback and a kid still learning the position. He looked like the former last week, but that was against Tampa Bay.

Detroit (2-2) at Tampa Bay (1-3)

"We have a lot of leaders, but we don't have that one guy that everybody will listen to," Wayne Fontes said after the Lions celebrated their win in Dallas by falling flat at home against New England. "I'm hoping somebody will step up. If not, I may have to suit up myself."

Fontes may not have to suit up, but it would provide a little inspiration.

If you can win in Dallas, you can win in Tampa, Sam Wyche's protestations about the Bucs' alleged ability notwithstanding. Wyche stays with Craig Erickson at quarterback this week, but is threatening to go with Trent Dilfer, who looked as good as a quarterback can look as mop-up man in a 30-3 loss.

New York Giants (3-0) at New Orleans (1-3)

The Saints could luck out here. The Giants really aren't good enough to be 4-0 and may be without Rodney Hampton for another week. Still, Dave Brown has yet to make any major mistakes at quarterback and, more importantly, Dan Reeves hasn't made any.

The Saints' problems are costing them on the field, too. The more they lose, the fewer tickets they sell and the less noise there is for the opposition to contend with in the Superdome. The fans want Jim Mora's head, but Mora can't play quarterback and he's never really had anyone who can.

Atlanta (2-2) at Los Angeles Rams (2-2)

Two teams that are difficult to figure.

The Falcons have an offense that's certainly playoff-caliber, particularly if Jeff George and Andre Rison spend as much time thinking about the team as they do about themselves. The Rams don't seem to be much of anything beyond Jerome Bettis and Sean Gilbert, yet they can go into Kansas City and shut out Joe Montana for the first time ever.

They're also up one week and down the next. This should be the down cycle for both. Maybe the Falcons will be inspired by all the empty seats that negate the Rams' home-field advantage.

New York Jets (2-2) at Cleveland (3-1)

Ask anyone in New York and they'll tell you the "same old Jets" will probably finish 2-14. Yet this is the kind of game the "same old Jets" can win because they're not supposed to. Jack Trudeau will be at quarterback for Boomer Esiason, who sprained an ankle in the dismal 19-7 loss to Chicago Sunday night.

The Browns are on a tight rope. Their defense can play, but the offense depends on Vinny Testaverde, who's good at providing points for both teams, depending on the week. His eight interceptions still lead the league, not unexpected considering he holds the modern record in that category.

Buffalo (3-1) at Chicago (2-2)

"Dave Wannstedt's doing a great job," says John Butler, the Buffalo general manager. That can be praise, or it can be shorthand for the fact that the Bears don't have a lot of talent. They beat the Jets last week with Steve Walsh at quarterback for Erik Kramer.

Kramer's probably back this week against the Bills, who after looking awful on opening day are slowly working their way back into form for yet another run at the Super Bowl. They're also getting lucky: Thurman Thomas is unlikely to play after injuring a knee Monday night but Kenneth Davis provides them with some depth at running back.

Houston (1-3) at Pittsburgh (2-2) Monday night

This isn't what ABC had in mind when it grabbed this game for Monday night.

To put it another way, the Oilers probably aren't as good as their record — their win over Cincinnati last week was hardly a model of winning football. Cody Carlson gets credit for playing with a separated shoulder; less credit for his quarterbacking.

Pittsburgh has a major problem. In each of the Steelers' four games, they have fallen behind by at least 10 points early on. That forces them to do what they do worst — pass — and Neil O'Donnell was intercepted four times trying to bring them from behind in Seattle last week.

Seattle (3-1) at Indianapolis (1-3)

The Seahawks are starting to look like a legitimate playoff contender, particularly if Rick Mirer and Chris Warren continue to balance out the offense so well. They need this win to position themselves for what could be three rough division games next month: home against Denver, then at San Diego and Kansas City.

The Colts haven't done anything since beating Houston on opening day because Marshall Faulk isn't getting his running room. That's not Faulk's fault — Jim Harbaugh's receivers are dropping the ball, and the lack of a passing threat allows defenses to cram the line of scrimmage.

STILLWATER, Okla. — Quarterback Tone' Jones made two crucial plays in the final minute and Lawson Vaughn kicked a 43-yard field goal with seven seconds left Saturday night to lead Oklahoma State to a 36-34 victory over North Texas.

Jones threw a 14-yard pass to Rafael Denson on fourth-and-10 that gave the Cowboys (3-1) the ball on the North Texas 49, and then scrambled 14 yards on third-and-10 to move the ball to the 35. Oklahoma State also got some help with a pass interference call.

The Eagles (2-2), a Division I-AA school, took a 34-31 lead on Jeff Graham's 37-yard field goal with 2:58 left, and then forced Oklahoma State to punt with 2:10 remaining.

Hardin-Simmons 34, Howard Payne 18

BROWNWOOD — Tommy Cupil scored three touchdowns and rushed for 124 yards on 23 carries as unbeaten Hardin-Simmons scored 20 fourth-quarter points to overpower Howard Payne.

Cupil keyed the late charge for the Cowboys (3-0, 1-0 Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association) with an 8-yard TD run. He added a 35-yard scoring reception later in the quarter.

Howard Payne (2-3, 0-1) took a 10-0 second-quarter lead on a 68-yard touchdown run by Jefferie Ellison, who finished with 196 yards on 16 carries.

Austin Coll. 27, Sul Ross St. 17

SHERMAN — Chris Sanders rushed 27 times for 176 yards, including touchdown runs of 48 and 33 yards, leading Austin College past Sul Ross State.

ENMU 20, Abilene Christian 9

PORTALES — Darrell Whitaker rushed for two touchdowns and Jason Crowson kicked two field goals, leading Eastern New Mexico to a win over Abilene Christian in the Lone Star Conference.

The Greyhounds (4-1, 1-0 LSC) built a 14-0 lead as Whitaker had a pair of 1-yard runs. Abilene Christian (2-3, 0-1) pulled within 14-6 late in the first half when Andy Newberry threw a 4-yard touchdown pass to Pat Nichols.

S'west Texas St. 57, Sonoma St. 7

SAN MARCOS — Donald Wilkerson scored three first-half touchdowns and ran for 224 yards on 19 carries, leading Southwest Texas State past Sonoma State.

Wilkerson, the No. 2 rusher in NCAA Division I-AA, improved his total to 851 yards in five games.

Quarterback David Williams completed 7 of 7 passes for 131 yards and three touchdowns.

Cent. Oklahoma 16, East Texas 7

EDMOND, Okla. — Joe Aska rushed a school-record 45 times for 241 yards and two touchdowns as Central Oklahoma defeated East Texas State in the Lone Star Conference opener for both teams.

Aska scored on a 4-yard run with 4:18 left in the first quarter to give the Bronchos, ranked No. 10 in the NCAA's Division II, a 6-0 lead. He scored again with 12:34 left in the second quarter as Central Oklahoma took a 13-0 lead into the half.

The Bronchos (5-0 overall, 1-0 Lone Star) closed their scoring with Chris Patterson's 22-yard field goal with 4:59 left in the third quarter.

Cent. St., Ohio 16, Texas A&M-Kingsville 7

KINGSVILLE — James Smith rushed for 99 yards and Greg Howell kicked three field goals to lift Central State of Ohio past Texas A&M-Kingsville in a battle of top-three teams.

Central St. (5-0), ranked No. 1 in the NAIA, scored on a 1-yard quarterback sneak by Joe Pica, who also completed seven of 19 passes for 156 yards. Howell kicked field goals of 24, 41 and 43 yards. A&M-Kingsville, No. 3 in NCAA Division II, scored on a 2-yard pass from Joe Menchaca to Dexter Deese.

W. Texas A&M 35, Midwestern 28

WICHITA FALLS — Norman White rushed for 170 yards and three touchdowns, including a 7-yarder in the third quarter that broke a 28-28 tie and lifted undefeated West Texas A&M past Midwestern 35-28.

White carried 23 times as the Buffaloes (5-0) rolled up 535 yards.

MOJO: Permian faces MHS next

(From 1C)

put the Panthers on top temporarily.

Carter opened up scoring in the second half with a 10-yard pass from Chris Lewis to John Henry with 8:40 to play in the third quarter to give the Cowboys a 13-7 lead.

With 8:44 left in the game, Carter's Eric Branch scored from 2 yards out for a 19-7 lead. With 1:34 left, Dante Porter secured the Cowboy win with a 1-yard TD.

The Carter defense held Permian to just 180 total yards and 126 rushing yards. Permian's top rusher, Ward, gained only 64 yards while Carter's Terrance Richardson ran for 82 and Branch ran for 73.

Permian travels to Midland High Friday night for a District 4-5A matchup at Memorial Stadium.

Homework Hotline Teacher Directory

The Midland Reporter-Telegram and Cityline, in cooperation with the Midland Independent School District, provides Homework Hotline, available to all parents, students and teachers in Midland's eight secondary schools.

Teachers phone in daily homework assignments, which students and parents can access by calling CITYLINE, at 560-2400. Those wishing to access information then enter the corresponding four-digit category code to the right of each teacher's name.

Teachers are encouraged to use Homework Hotline on a regular basis, however that is up to each individual teacher.

The following is a listing of each teacher who has received a Homework Hotline category number:

Death penalty fits Blair's crime

The death penalty handed down to Michael Blair by a Midland jury in the Sept. 4, 1993 abduction and murder of 7-year-old Ashley Nicole Estell seems just — not only in the fact that it fits the crime, but also in the swiftness with which it was returned.

Justice is the end of our judicial system and the swiftness with which a defendant can be brought to trial and a verdict returned, the more assured society can be that justice has been served. The swiftness of a verdict also indicates a jury's resolve in pronouncing the verdict and assessing punishment. In Blair's case, there was no hesitation. The jury found him guilty in less than half an hour of kidnapping the little girl from a Dallas park where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Estell of Plano, were watching her brother's soccer game, and murdering her. Ashley's strangled body was located after a massive search. The jury also did not hesitate in its decision to give him the death penalty, returning their decision in about an hour and a half.

Moved to Midland on a change of venue, this case touched perhaps more Americans than any other recent child abduction because of what it said about personal safety. When a little girl can be taken from a soccer field while her parents are only a few feet or yards away and brutally murdered, where can people truly believe that their children are safe? In the abduction and murder of Ashley Estell, the safety and sanctity of a neighborhood setting was violated.

Testimony about the defendant's earlier crimes — that he would sneak through a neighbor's bedroom window and fondle a 12-year-old girl, sometimes touching her with a knife instead of his hands, and that he raped his 5- or 6-year-old sister underscored how dangerous he really is.

Blair obviously deserved the penalty handed down for his brutal crime.

Hospital auxilians work for benefit of Midlanders

The value of volunteer service cannot be overstated, particularly where the work rendered benefits to the residents of a community such as Midland. That type of voluntarism translates into a better quality of life for all the residents.

While many people typically may think of a Little League baseball coach, a volunteer worker in public schools or a United Way worker when volunteers are mentioned, there are many other selfless individuals whose charitable work makes life better or more enjoyable in Midland.

One such organization — the Memorial Hospital & Medical Center Auxiliary — held its annual awards ceremony this week, and the statistics cited were astounding. The 301 volunteers at MHMC — which include men, women and youth workers — contributed 24,860 hours of time to various departments in the hospital this year. The auxiliary also operates the hospital gift shop and as a result of their efforts in that enterprise, presented a check for $101,000 to Hospital Administrator Dr. Harold Rubin. The money will be used to purchase two new ambulances, said outgoing auxiliary president Ann Kleine.

Without the generous efforts of these volunteers, thousands more dollars would have to be spent each year to keep the level of service now enjoyed by the people of Midland at MHMC.

Midland enjoys a great spirit of voluntarism from many of its residents. The work done by the MHMC auxiliary is one example of how that spirit serves Midlanders.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Oct. 2, the 275th day of 1994. There are 90 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

Fifty years ago, on Oct. 2, 1944, Nazi troops crushed the two-month-old Warsaw Uprising, during which 250,000 Poles were killed.

On this date:

In 1780, British spy John Andre was hanged in Tappan, N.Y.

In 1835, the first battle of the Texas Revolution took place as American settlers defeated a Mexican cavalry near the Guadalupe River.

In 1869, political and spiritual leader Mohandas K. Gandhi was born in Porbandar, India.

In 1890, comedian Groucho Marx was born in New York.

In 1939, the Benny Goodman Sextet recorded "Flying Home."

In 1941, German armies began Operation Typhoon — an all-out drive against Moscow.

In 1950, the comic strip "Peanuts," created by Charles M. Schulz, was first published in nine newspapers.

In 1958, the former French colony of Guinea in west Africa proclaimed its independence.

In 1959, "The Twilight Zone" made its debut on CBS television.

In 1967, Thurgood Marshall was sworn in as an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court; he was the first black appointed to the nation's highest court.

In 1975, President Ford welcomed Japan's Emperor Hirohito to the United States.

Term-limit doubts may end Foley's career

WASHINGTON — Early last year, House Speaker Tom Foley, D-Wash., rejected a private appeal from Rep. Jim McDermott, D-Wash., that may wind up costing Foley a 30-year career in the House of Representatives.

Anderson

As ardent foes of term limits, Foley and McDermott were meeting with attorneys in March 1993 to devise a legal strategy for challenging Washington state's newly passed term-limits law on constitutional grounds. Foley was about to climb into the foxhole by himself by becoming the only member of Congress to file suit against term limits. McDermott implored Foley not to put his name on the 18-page lawsuit as a plaintiff — and even volunteered to substitute his own name for Foley's.

McDermott feared Foley would be falling on his sword, that his rural and conservative constituents would never forgive him, and that right-wing activists from across the country would galvanize against him. McDermott figured his own district, which is less conservative than Foley's, would be more receptive.

But Foley felt impassioned enough to put conscience ahead of career, and refused to let McDermott take the fall. McDermott looks back on Foley's decision as a true profile in courage:

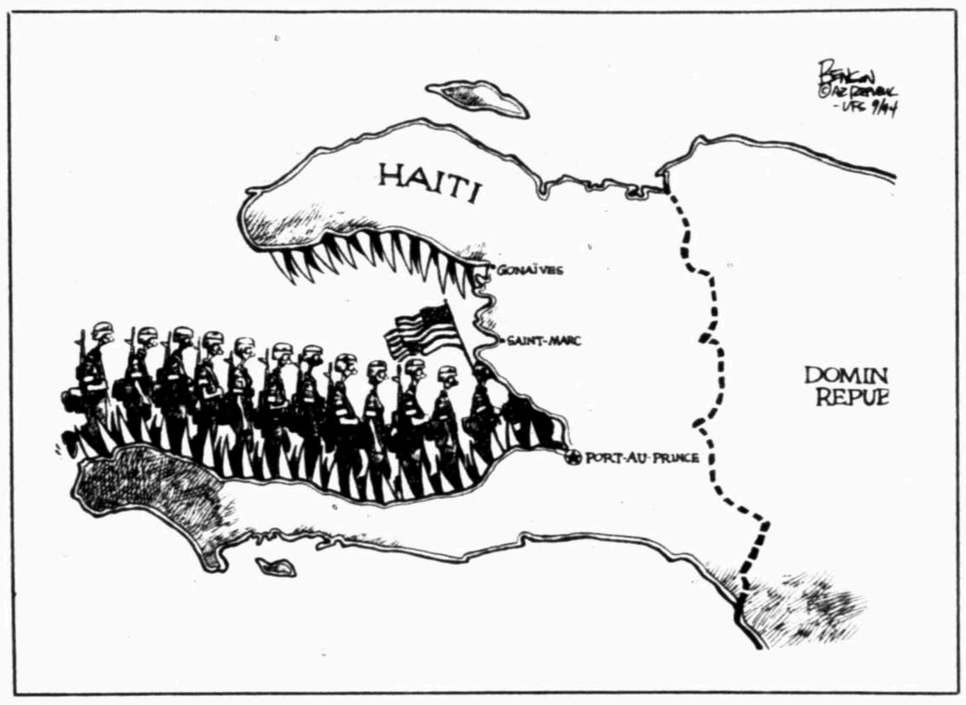

"I said, 'I'm in a position to take a hit like this and not be damaged,'" McDermott told us. "(Foley) said it was his responsibility as Speaker of the House and that he couldn't step aside and let some junior member take the hit for it. Politically, the easy thing was to let this thing go unchallenged and let some guy in Arkansas (which also passed term limits) bring it up. . . . Foley knew the risk better perhaps than anybody else."

Foley's risk is as real as the latest polls that show him trailing his Republican challenger, George Nethereutt, by double digits heading into the November election. Anti-incumbency and anti-Congress sentiment has created a lynch-mob mentality among voters. Nobody is more threatened by this mood than Foley, the incumbents' incumbent. So far, voters have been slow to forgive him for resisting their wishes on the term-limit referendum which passed two years ago.

During an interview with us last week, Foley said his aim is to force a court challenge which will benefit both proponents and opponents of term limits. He also lamented the increasing lack of civility in politics. "They intensely personalize their disagreement," Foley said of his detractors in the term-limit movement. "There is sort of an organized effort now to vilify and demonize. . . . There is the suggestion that people should express whatever upset they have by (voting out) the nearest member of Congress. I think that's my task to deal with and try to explain to my constituents. . . why being Speaker is extraordinarily unusual for a district west of the Mississippi."

The term-limit question will be definitively settled by the Supreme Court, some time after the November election and possibly before the end of the year. "If he's defeated in the fall and the Supreme Court rules in December and upholds him, it's going to be a terrible irony," said McDermott. "If you're going to go down, go down on the right kind of issue."

Maryland Republicans find their Thatcher

BALTIMORE — Maryland Republicans, a reviving but still minimal tribe, have found their Margaret Thatcher. Ellen Sauerbrey, 57, has an ideological clarity and pugnacity comparable to that of the prime minister who, it was said, could not see the status quo without hitting it with her handbag.

Will

In last month's gubernatorial primary Sauerbrey, minority leader of the state House of Delegates, scored a stunning 52 percent to 38 percent upset over the presumptive nominee, Congresswoman Helen Bentley, a Republican of the centrist sort that wins, on the relatively rare occasions that Republicans do win, in this, one of the most Democratic states. Sauerbrey, whose slogans are "This time, try something different" and "Vote yourself a 24 percent tax cut," preaches high octane conservatism, from more prisons to less welfare.

Experts say this is a recipe for rejection in a state whose last Republican governor, elected 28 years ago, was named Agnew, which has not had a Republican majority in either house of the state legislature since 1919, and currently has a legislature with 155 Democrats and 34 Republicans.

Fifty years ago half of Marylanders were Baltimoreans, and only 20 percent were suburban. Today 15 percent live in Baltimore, 65 percent in suburbs, most in Baltimore County and two Washington suburban counties — Montgomery, one of the nation's richest counties, and Prince George's, which is half African-American. The two core constituencies of the Democratic Party nationally are African-Americans and government employees. Maryland is a dormitory for much of the federal government and has the highest percentage of African-Americans (almost 25 percent) outside the Deep South.

So, why is Sauerbrey running competitively against Parris Glendening, an orthodox, presentable Democrat who is county executive in Prince George's? Perhaps many Democrats like the idea of a handbag applied firmly to Annapolis, where the state government has made Maryland, according to Money magazine, third only to New York and Oregon among high-tax states.

All such ratings are disputable, but Maryland's income tax is 44 percent more burdensome than the average state income tax. Sauerbrey lives north of Baltimore and says cars stream north into Pennsylvania at the end of the workday because Maryland's income tax is 52 percent higher than Pennsylvania's.

Her promise to cut Maryland's tax 24 percent in four years has revealed the intellectual exhaustion of Democrats who are reduced to recycling George Bush's rhetoric, accusing Sauerbrey of "voodoo economics" and saying she couldn't do it. Last week Sauerbrey campaigned with a governor who is doing it — New Jersey's Christine Todd Whitman, who in her first year is on schedule to fulfilling her promise of a 30 percent state income tax cut.

Whitman cited New Jersey's experience to refute the contention that state tax cuts necessarily cause increases in local property taxes. Sauerbrey hopes to get campaign appearances from other tax-cutting Republican governors — Massachusetts' Bill Weld, Michigan's John Engler, former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont. Sauerbrey would find budget cutting easier than they did because the budgeting powers of Maryland's governor are Caesaristic.

But will her message get a respectful hearing, or even be heard? Marylanders who do not read the Baltimore Sun are apt to read The Washington Post, and neither paper is sympathetic to tax cutting. Her opponent, having access to the money machinery perfected during decades of Democratic dominance, is forswearing public financing and hence can spend without limits.

RUSSELL BAKER

Angry GOP has congressional death wish

Republicans are ecstatic. They say all signs indicate the voters are sick and tired of President Clinton. They say this could mean a Republican takeover of the Congress this year.

Baker

And even sweeter than that — a Republican president elected in 1996.

It makes you wonder whether Republicans ought to have a head examination.

Have they thought this thing through, beyond the joy of election night, the flashing of teeth, the exultation of being televised crying, "We're Number One!"? Surely not.

Wanting to be responsible for the Congress is symptomatic of a death wish. The American people hate the Congress. That's what all the polls show, and what truth can we cling to if we don't believe polls?

It is astonishing that people who can now say, "Don't blame me, Ma'am, I'm not in charge here," should eagerly look forward to saying, "I'm the party in charge of this catastrophe, folks."

Republicans are just as good as everybody else at kidding themselves. They naturally believe everything will be different once Republicans are in charge at the Capitol.

A few things will be different, all right. Newt Gingrich, who has done more than any other politician to convince people that Congress is a rotten crowd, will be Speaker of the House.

Will Gingrich use his new power to make Americans stop hating the Congress? Are America and all the ships at sea just waiting for the "All's Well" cry from Newt so they can pitch in and help Congress do good Republican things?

Hey, there's a problem: If Republicans take charge they will have to come up with some good Republican things to do, yet their record suggests that all they want done is nothing. Plenty of nothing. Since Clinton became president the Republicans have stood foursquare behind nothing.

A few pure Republicans actually believe in doing nothing and denounce Ronald Reagan for doing something after he'd posed as one of them, as one of the pure who think everything government has done since Herbert Hoover did nothing about the Great Depression has been catastrophic and ought to be undone so modern government can shut down and go home for good.

There's a lot to be said for this, but not by people who expect their Social Security checks to keep coming, or by companies that expect their federal subsidies to keep flowing, or, for that matter, by every living citizen except those devoted to pure conservative principles.

Except for this noble minority, Republicans in power will feel obliged to do something: something Republican. What an agony for a party whose reflexes have been so long set in the do-nothing position.

Imagine Speaker Gingrich trying to lead a Republican Congress to passage of his party's great Do-Something Act: What can poor Newt expect but rebellion in his own party? The political organism's biology compels it always to do what it has always done before.

Democrats hate to see a Republican President do Something Republican. As the free-trade bill showed, the best way for Republicans to get Democrats to do Something Republican is to get themselves a Democratic President to push it.

This brings us to the alarming glee with which Republicans look forward to winning the next presidential election. They obviously expect beaten Democrats to submit sweetly to another Republican president, as they did to the charming Reagan.

They ought to think this over. The extraordinarily poisonous attacks on President Clinton, led or encouraged by Republicans, are leaving American politics thoroughly poisoned. After watching their own president torn to pieces by unrelenting partisanship, Democrats will surely be itching to return the favor, thank you.

LETTERS

All of us must keep Midland beautiful

Recently, the Reporter-Telegram ran letters to the editor concerning Bob Hind, the "mower man." Hind has voluntarily been maintaining vacant lots on Cuthbert and Louisiana avenues. Keep Midland Beautiful salutes Hind and his volunteer spirit.

To further his example, Keep Midland Beautiful invites Midlanders to participate in the fall clean-up campaign taking place on Oct. 22 and 23. To participate, individuals can do anything from cleaning their own alley to organizing a group and cleaning any area of Midland.

Research findings have identified three norms that predominate people's attitudes about handling trash: that people seem to feel it's alright to litter where (1) they feel no sense of ownership for the property, (2) where they know someone will clean up after them and (3) where litter has already accumulated. The goal of Keep Midland Beautiful is to encourage individuals to take an active role in litter reduction and beautification of Midland.

Midland belongs to all Midlanders. It is up to each one of us to make sure that Midland is the cleanest, most beautiful community it can be. Please be a part of this fall clean-up by calling the Keep Midland Beautiful offices at 688-4190 or 688-4195.

Holes in ground usually turn up water

I work in the oil business. We drill holes in the ground, pour millions of dollars down the holes and usually we find water.

Today I met a man who makes donuts. He makes holes in the donuts. He sells the donuts. He even sells the holes he makes in the donuts. And he makes millions. Is it time for a career move I ask myself.

We need legislator who has no strings

I marveled at our technological advances when Newt's boy, or (Henry) Bonilla as we all know him, came to our fair city with news of a landmark incident.

I make this remark due to the invisibility or lack of puppet strings. Maybe the use of a remote controlled device is utilized. Also it seems that he only comments on issues to which he comes to discuss and rarely invites questions. When a question with substance is posed, usually the operator or operators put the remote in reverse, and he suddenly has to leave.

The bottom line is that we need a representative with no strings attached or batteries included.

FDA should not drag its feet on OraSure

I am writing this letter on behalf of Shepherd Smith's organization, A.S.A.P., which is a conservative, pro-family group in favor of the Food and Drug Administration legalizing OraSure, which is a safe, accurate, inexpensive, noninvasive devise for detecting HIV infection. It is being held up by the FDA. I think it is ridiculous that, given these advantages of OraSure, they are simply dragging their feet.

OraSure will be helpful to people of low- and middle-income families.

The FDA certainly didn't drag its feet about OK'ing a female condom with extremely high failure rates. They also quickly OK'd AZT for affluent gay men, which also has questionable efficacy.

OraSure has had its application submitted to the FDA 37 months (May of 1991). Why is the FDA dragging its feet so badly since President Clinton stated that the application process for any product that effects HIV/AIDS shall not exceed 18 months? Thank you for your time. We certainly need a good product like this on the market because HIV/AIDS is being spread everywhere because of delays like this.

Invasion of Haiti was really act of war

Clinton justifies (?) the invasion of Haiti as the restoration of democracy, protection of human rights and the best way to stem the refugee tide. In my opinion, it is an ill-conceived second experiment in nation building in collaboration with the United Nations. Another Somalia disguised in typical liberal cliches. The obvious missing ingredient is our true national interest, which seems to be at the bottom of Clinton's list of important things to be considered when deploying American troops.

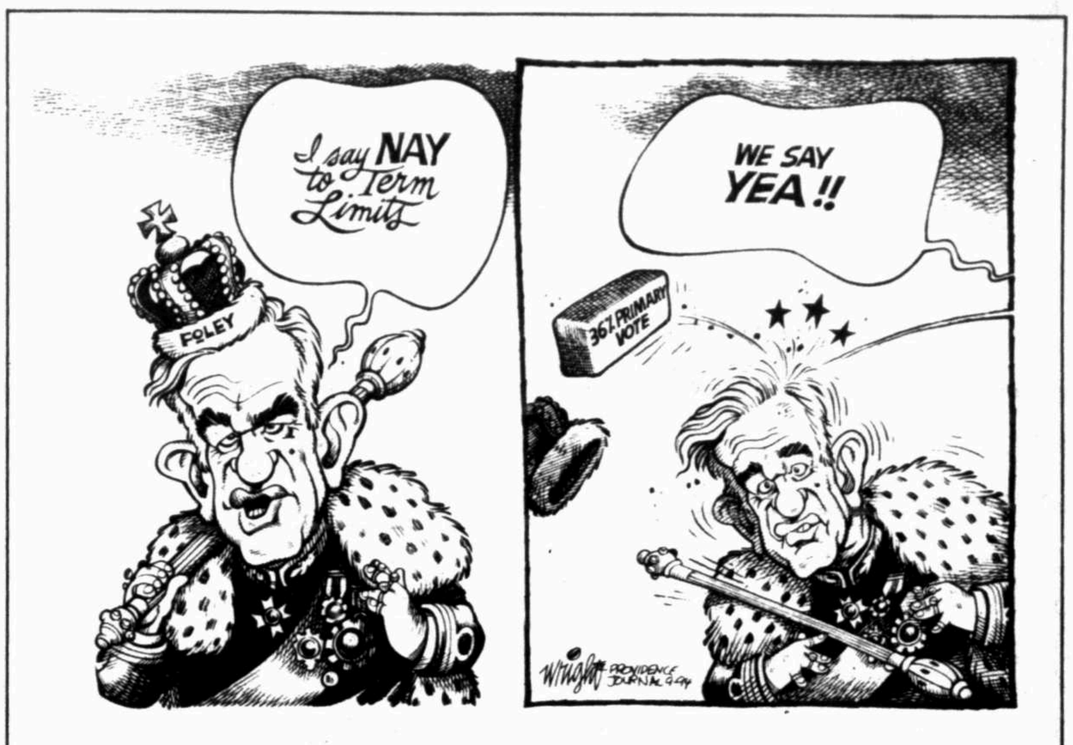

Nevertheless, any way you cut it, the invasion of Haiti was an act of war not authorized by Congress as is constitutionally required. When a country is invaded to change the government because we don't approve of it, that is the definition of making war. The fact that Haiti's military surrendered at the last minute doesn't alter the facts.

Clinton's self-serving attempt to justify his actions on national television makes it even more unacceptable, ludicrous and arrogant. He ignored Congress and the American people's will, yet he proudly says the United Nations had approved the invasion and that the United States (Clinton) had agreed to lead the "multinational" operation.

Since when has U.N. approval been more important than congressional approval when committing our country to war?

However, the greater inherent danger in condoning Clinton's current actions lies in increased military involvement in places like Bosnia, Rwanda and many other countries not yet publicized on the television newscasts. Should he be able to cloak the Haiti fiasco in an aura of success, he will undoubtedly be encouraged to further commit our country to the U.N. agenda of one world government. If you have been wondering what "the new world order" means, you are now seeing it in operation, Clinton-liberal style. I, for one, don't think we should allow him to get away with it.

All citizens should learn our Constitution

For all those fine citizens who are of the opinion that government is their only salvation, please permit me to reiterate in a different manner.

1. Where do your rights come from? God or government?*

2. In the absence of any form of government:

a. Would you not have the right to keep and bear arms? Yes No.

b. Would your neighbors have the right to force you to give up that right to keep and bear arms? Yes No.

c. Would your neighbors have the right to force you to pay for their doctor, hospital and prescription bills? Yes No.

d. Would your neighbors have the right to force you to keep your children at home for a predetermined number of hours during the nighttime? Yes No.

e. Would your neighbors have the right to force you to halt the caring for injured birds and animals in your home or else move? Yes No.

Correct answers: 1. God; 2a. Yes; 2b. No; 2c. No; 2d. No; 2e. No. (*God or government are the only possible sources for rights. Rights come from God, and he will not take them away from you. If, on the other hand, you should believe that rights come from government, you should know by now that they have and will continue to take away your rights, yes, even those given by God.)

The only authority that government has is that which the people have a right to do for themselves. It's called delegated authority. Remember, your neighbor's authority ends at your property line and yours at theirs.

Every citizen should learn the Constitution, then use that knowledge to get government off our backs and out of our pockets.

Prurient people can peddle wares on TV

A recent article in your paper made a welcomed contribution to my cat box. The so-called author carefully selected a list of the more popular programs of a few years ago and proceeded to point out all their redeeming features. To him, however, these redeeming features were all flaws, matters about which he had some rather serious objections.

Fatherhood, motherhood, old-time family values, small-town life, happy innocence ... nothing really decent escaped his pen. It's true that the current offerings on TV are more inclined to give prurient people opportunities to peddle their wares, and that's what this writer evidently likes. If it's not raw, loud, vulgar, vicious or salacious, it's not good TV. Somehow I don't believe that. There really were small towns with good people; there really were families with respectful kids and kind, loving parents; it really was possible to go on hayrides (or even spend time on a deserted island) without misbehaving.

Please forgive me for not remembering the name of the man who wrote the piece. I am blessed with selective recall: I don't remember car honks, dog barks or the names of simpletons.

SPEAKING OUT

United Way serves many in our community

By Charles A. Spence

Charles A. Spence, publisher of the Reporter-Telegram, is 1994-95 United Way campaign chairman.

A few days ago Exxon President Harry Longwell, speaking at the annual Midland Chamber of Commerce meeting, said "Midland has more than its share of quality of life ... it's easy to get people to move here and hard to get them to leave."

That is so true. This city is indeed a special place in which to live, and too often we probably take for granted both that fact and the people who make it so.

It is my honor and privilege to once again serve as United Way campaign chairman for 1994-95, having first had that opportunity during the 1990-91 campaign, and I am as enthused about the exciting work of the Midland United Way today as I was then, only more so.

Being involved with hundreds of spirited volunteers, generous foundations, outstanding corporate leaders and dedicated citizens in every walk of life is exciting. All of them give their time, talent and resources to improve the quality of life for more than 40,000 Midlanders who call on one of our 16 United Way agencies for help each year.

Beneficiaries of that dedication are the American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boy Scouts of America Buffalo Trail Council, Boys and Girls Club of Midland, Camp Fire Boys and Girls Petro-Plains Council, Casa de Amigos, Centers for Children and Families, Community and Senior Services, Freewill Foster Home, Midland Need to Read, Midland Rape Crisis Center, Palmer Drug Abuse Program, Permian Basin Center for Battered Women & Their Children, Permian Basin Girl Scouts, Salvation Army and YMCA.

But the REAL beneficiaries, of course, are those who go to them and who are never turned away.

Our campaign goal this year is $2,731,000, and the remarkable fact is that of every dollar contributed, 99 cents — yes, almost all of it — stays right here in Midland.

And what do those dollars do?

Well, $1 will provide two hot meals to a homeless person at the Salvation Army ... or $2 a month will support the services of a tutor helping an adult learn to read through Midland Need to Read ... while $5 a month will provide supplies for a Homework Help program ... or an hour of child care for parents who are seeking to improve their lives by attending GED classes at Casa de Amigos.

The list goes on and on.

Decisions on how your dollars will be allocated are made by people you know and respect right here at home, and I guarantee you they will make the best possible decision in each case.

I and all those associated with the campaign hope you will want to be a part of it this year.

On behalf of all of our many volunteers, our 16 agencies and those they serve, thanks for your help!

WILLIAM SAFIRE

U.S. bids farewell to it s leadership in NATO

LONDON — Taking advantage of a weak U.S. president, Britain and France — partners in appeasement in Bosnia — have seized leadership of the Atlantic alliance.

Safire

The American idea was to enforce a cease-fire with NATO air power, while lifting the one-sided arms embargo to allow Bosnians to defend themselves against insatiable Serbs. In that way, a balance of power could be achieved on a territorial division recommended by the United Nations and accepted by the Muslims and Croats.

But the British-French notion was to put peacekeeping troops in Bosnia that confirmed the Serbian gains and restrained further killing until the victims of aggression gave up.

Prodded by Congress, Clinton prepared to go to the U.N. Security Council to lift the embargo.

To prevent this, the Brits and French then twisted the arm of Bosnia until it broke. They warned Sarajevo that unless Bosnia told Clinton to stop, they would pull out their peacekeepers before arms could be supplied and let Serbian carnage begin just in time for winter.

Not since World War II has the world seen such callous betrayal. Bosnia, fearful of total desertion, was forced to cave in, and asked Clinton to accede to British-French policy. This he did with alacrity.

Thus, instead of leading NATO into enforcement of the U.N.-recommended division of Bosnia, the United States is meekly following our allies down the path of dishonor.

Okay, let's face it: in this test of the will to abandon collective security, the Europeans prevailed. American diplomacy failed.

'Tis a famous victory for John Major and Edouard Balladur, and another ignominious defeat for Bill Clinton. Now let's see what Europeans won.

They won the right to defend Europe much more by themselves. With local leadership goes increased local responsibility for its doctrine of assertive appeasement.

NATO exists (a) to stop the threat to its members from Russia, which is temporarily much reduced, and (b) to act as a unified military command to meet threats of aggression elsewhere, which it has just demonstrated it has not the will to do.

Because the United States has a national interest in the defense of Europe, we must not let the trans-Atlantic change in leadership thrust us into isolation. Accordingly, a fair adjustment should be along these lines:

1. Troop strength: Of 161,000 now in the region, half are in Germany; the total is presently planned to come down to 100,000. That's high for a non-leadership role. We should limit our commitment to 50,000, mainly air and sea forces, most in the Mediterranean; our drawdown should encourage other members of NATO to welcome Poland, which can provide ground troops on its soil and replace our forces in Germany.

2. Command: The supreme allied commander in Europe has always been an American because (a) U.S. troops were a vital component of NATO forces and (b) the United States wanted an American in charge of our theater nuclear weapons. In the near future, those reasons will no longer apply.

Time for Saceur to be a European. A likely candidate would be the United Nation's British Gen. Sir Michael Rose, whose permission to NATO aircraft to take out one empty Serbian tank does not quite recall the exploits of Montgomery at El Alamein.

3. Political scope: A Euro-Saceur would open the possibility of an American becoming secretary general of NATO. If the Europeans desired an American political presence, they might someday draft a Dick Cheney to be a one-man tripwire rather than Willy Claes, the experience-free Belgian socialist bureaucrat just chosen.

Besides strategic superstars Kissinger and Brzezinski, who are the Big Ten thinkers to cope with Europe's era of assertive appeasement?

In the United States, Robert Blackwill and Sam Huntington of Harvard; Eliot Cohen of Johns Hopkins; Edward Luttwak and Robert Kagan. In Britain, John Chipman of the Institute of Strategic Studies; in France, Francois Heisbourg and Pierre Lellouche; in Germany, Die Ziet's Christoph Bertram; in Russia, Sergei Karaganov.

Over to you, fellows; what happens when a determinedly impotent consensus wrests leadership from a supine superpower?

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification. Letters not including this information will not be considered for publication.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations. The shorter the letter, the better its chance of publication.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.
- Letters will be edited for length, taste and legal reasons and are accepted only on that basis.
- We do not publish 'open' letters or copies of letters sent to others.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland 79702.

"It's 4 U" Game

Winners:

Frances Gronow - Midland
Jeanette McElyea - Midland
Cory Edmonson - Midland
Wayne Foster - Midland
Margaret Ortiz - Odessa
Cindy Carnes - Odessa
Trey Grey - Midland
Judie Bridges - Midland
Dawn Harrow - Midland
Jacqueline Manning - Midland
Ida Alferez - Midland

Rules:

Anyone 18 years or older can enter except employees (and family members of employees) of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, Brite systems Inc., Associated Publishing Co., and their advertising and promotion agencies.

The "It's 4 U" Game is designed for people who live in the Midland and Odessa calling areas and no purchase is required to play or win prizes, although long distance toll charges may apply if you call from outside the Midland-Odessa calling area.

Look for the "It's 4 U" Game ad here and in the advertisers' service directory in the Midland Reporter-Telegram every day until November 5, 1994. Call 560-2400 and enter any four-digit advertiser's code listed in the directory. You will hear a brief advertiser's message and, if you are one of five instant winners chosen at random each week, you will win one of that week's prizes. If you are an instant winner, listen for details about claiming your prize. In order to claim your prize, you will be required to give your name, age, address and telephone number. The more often you call, the better your chance of winning a prize.

You can also enter a second chance drawing for unclaimed prizes by hand printing your complete name and address and daytime phone number on a 3"x5" piece of paper and mailing it in an envelope to "It's 4 U" Second Chance Game, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, Texas 79702, so that it is received before the deadline, October 30, 1994. Enter as often as you wish, but submit only one entry in each envelope. Entries become the property of the sponsors. None will be returned.

Each game begins at 12:01 a.m. Monday and ends at 11:59 p.m. Sunday. Each week for eight weeks ending November 5, 1994, five entries will be selected at random and will win one of that week's prize. The total value of all prizes to be awarded in the "It's 4 U" game will equal $4,000 or more. The names and cities of winners will be published in the Midland Reporter-Telegram Classified Ads page. No substitution of prizes is permitted. Only one prize will be awarded to each winner.

By entering, winners authorize the use of their names, cities or photos for publicity purposes. Winners may be required to sign an affidavit of eligibility and release. Taxes are the responsibility of winners. Void where prohibited.

A Place of Promise

Photos By Joe D. Williams

Flanked by pampas grass at the front, and mature trees at the side, this is a very private, and quiet three bedroom family home on a corner lot that is perfectly suited for those who want to 'get away from it all'.

Located in a nice, quiet part of Midland but still conveniently close to schools and shopping, this is a house with a great amount of potential.

$76,500 buys a tremendous amount of space both in terms of living space as well as storage and parking space, not to mention the heated swimming pool (complete with cabana and bathroom).

The peaceful yard has a deep, covered patio overlooking the pool, with a picnic area at the rear, near the diving board. As with the rest of the house, there is a tremendous amount of potential for creating additional landscaping in the pool area.

All the amenities that one would expect are featured in the home: for example, a fireplace, ceiling fans and air conditioning. In addition, the kitchen is fully equipped with all of the built-ins that one would expect from a house of this level with plenty of space for cooking and entertaining.

The two living and two dining rooms are boosted by all of the extra space in the shape of the large utility room, two-car garage and a carport. Extra storage and a workshop complete the floor-plan.

The overall level of furnishing is good, with a brick and wood mantlepiece over the fireplace in the den, and wood paneling. Details such as the iron scroll-work at the front of the house complete the picture.

There will be an open house this afternoon hosted by the listing agent, Betty Ford of The Carriage Company Realtors between 2 and 4 o'clock. For more details about the property call Betty Ford at her office at 684-5881.

Real Estate Facts . . .

Marketing plays key role in home sales

Vicky Garrett
Chaparral Realtors

Planning to sell your home? You'll need to spread the word far and wide to find the right buyer. That's where your real estate representative can help.

You'd probably expect your agent to begin contacting buyers immediately when you list your home. In fact, there's another group of people your agent is likely to contact first - other real estate agents.

Why is contact with other agents so important? They have buyers too! Perhaps the most effective action your agent can take is to expose your property to the widest possible number of potential buyers. Since other agents are also working with buyers, it is critical that they know your home is for sale.

How are these other agents notified? Your representative is likely to make an initial "postcard" mailing to each of them, stating briefly the features and benefits offered by your home, along with its price.

An agent "Open House" may be the next step. Other agents are invited to drop by for refreshments, or even a buffet lunch. Those attending are shown through your home, and provided with printed information including features, amenities, financing, etc. With the inviting atmosphere of your home fresh on their minds, those agents are more likely to show your home to their buyers in the days that follow.

When listing your home, choose a representative who will cause your home to sell by implementing an effective marketing strategy. Ask how the agent plans to attract the attention of other real estate associates to your home. Watch for signs of creativity, and a history of marketing activity.

To sell your home quickly, and at the best possible price, you'll need serious buyers with the financial ability to complete their purchase. Those buyers usually work only with real estate companies - rarely with "by owners".

First time mortgage shoppers face variety of important choices

Pat Orseth
President/Midland
Association of Realtors

"Shopping around for a mortgage is crucial to making a sound decision," according to Pat Orseth, president of the Midland Association of REALTORS. "Mortgage packages vary, and it is important to investigate several options to find the one that is best for you." The real estate section of the newspaper and the Yellow Pages can provide mortgage information and names of area lenders.

Call several lenders for rates and terms on the type of mortgage you want. "If you are unsure of the best type for you, consult a lender," says Orseth. Basically, there are two major types of mortgage loans -- those with fixed interest rates and monthly payments and those with changing rates and payments. Common fixed-rate mortgages include 30 and 15 year mortgages.

The 30 year mortgage usually offers the lowest monthly payment of fixed-rate/fixed-payment schedule loans. The 15 year fixed-rate mortgage enables you to own your home in half the time and for far less than half the total interest cost of a 30 year loan, but will likely require higher monthly payments.

Mortgages with changing interest rates and/or monthly payments are available in many forms. The adjustable-rate mortgage (ARM) is probably the most common. The ARM usually offers interest rates and monthly payments that are initially lower than fixed-rate mortgages. But these rates and payments can fluctuate, often annually, according to changes in a pre-determined index -- commonly the rate of return on U.S. Government Treasury bills.

Some adjustable loans, for a fee, contain a provision permitting you to convert later to a fixed-rate loan. Another type of mortgage loan carries a fixed-interest rate for a number of years, often seven, before adjusting to a new market interest rate for the remainder of the loan.

When mortgage shopping, the single most important factor to look for is probably the annual percentage rate 9APR). The APR includes all the costs of credit, including such items as interest and "points" (fees charge when the mortgage is closed). Lenders must disclose the APR. In general, the lower the APR, the lower the cost of your loan.

If you consider an adjustable-rate mortgage, be sure to compare the initial interest rates, the frequency with which the interest rate can change, the index used to determine the change, the "cap" -- or how much the interest rate can increase over the life of the loan, and what "margin" (the amount a lender can add to the adjusted interest rate) is used.

Other questions to ask a lender include whether private mortgage insurance is required, how long a rate can be locked in, the length of time before an oral or written approval can be given, and the application fee and what it covers.

"Buyers should not be intimidated by the financing process," says Orseth. "If you are unclear on any point, ask a real estate agent to assist you. As professionals, they are trained to provide you with the service necessary to guide you through the financing process."

The Midland Association is one of more than 1,800 boards nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association and the voice for real estate.

Selling a home is made easier with smart tips

Anita Noles
Broker, Co-Owner
Re/Max of Midland

The first 10 steps were published Sunday, September 18, 1994. These ten steps will conclude our article in trying to help you sell your home.

11. Lighten Up A Night . . . Turn on the excitement by turning on all your lights - both inside and out - when showing your home in the evening. Lights add color and warmth, and make prospects feel welcome.

12. Avoid Crowd Scenes . . . Potential buyers often feel like intruders when they enter a home filled with people. Rather than giving your house the attention it deserves, they're likely to hurry through. Keep the company present to a minimum.

13. Watch Your Pets . . . Dogs and cats are great companions, but not when you're showing your home. Pets have a talent for getting underfoot. So do everybody a favor: Keep Kittyu and Spot outside, or at least out of the way.

14. Think Volume . . . Rock-and-Roll will never die. But it might kill a real estate transaction. When it's time to show your home, it's time to turn down the stereo or TV.

15. Relax . . . Be friendly, but don't try to force conversation. Prospects want to view your home with a minimum of distraction.

16. Don't Apologize . . . No matter how humble your abode, never apologize for its shortcomings. If a prospect volunteers a derogatory comment abouit you79r home's appearance, let your experienced Real Estate Agent handle the situation.

17. Keep a Low Profile . . . Nobody knows your home as well as you do. But Real Estate Agents know buyers - what they need and what they want. Your Real Estate Agent will have an easier time articulating the virtues of your home if you stay in the background.

18. Don't Turn Your Home Into A Second-Hand Store . . . When prospects come to view your home, don't distract them with offers to sell those furnishings you no longer need. You may lose the biggest sale of all.

19. Defer to Experience . . . When prospects want to talk price, terms or other real estate matters, let them speak to an expert - your Real Estate Agent.

Marilyn Jo Smith
Relocation Director
Co-Owner
Re/Max of Midland

20. Help Your Agent . . . Your Real Estate Agent will have an easier time selling your home if showings are scheduled through this office. You'll appreciate the results!

Contractual changes may initiate legal traps

Peggy Strong, CRS, GRI
Chaparral Realtors

Dancing once the music is over is considered unethical, if not just down-right stupid, right? This is true in real-estate transactions as well. There is indeed a proper time to dance (or negotiate) and a time to decline, stay put and be quiet!

The time and only time to negotiate is during the offer and counteroffer period. The time to be quiet is when an executed contract is in effect, especially if all contingencies have been removed. There is no need to open any other cans when yours is sealed!

Quiet often, either Buyer or Seller would like to fine tune their position and re-enter into negotiations. Perhaps it is something as simple as altering the possession date to allow Seller a couple of days after closing to vacate or a common scenario is when the Buyer needs additional time to complete inspections stipulated in the contract. Realtors desiring to only be helpful should relay any requests or contractual proposal changes, but advise of the legal traps that can consequently follow.

Whatever or however simple the situation may seem, beware and adopt the "wooden-Indian" approach with folded arms, eyes, ears, and mouth shut. It only makes since that the party desiring to make any changes has some benefit to reap, rarely offering a benefit to the other party in return. Perhaps the responding party to any proposed changes should consider in writing something along these lines,

"We appreciate your proposal, but are quite happy with the existing and binding contract that we have and desire to perform as stipulated. If you wish to modify our contract, it will have to be better than the one we already have, because we do not wish to counteroffer. Thank you."

If modification to the original contract is mutually beneficial, the modification should be presented in writing and swiftly executed by all parties without placing a cloud of risk (novation) on the original contract.

Is this really so important to abide strictly to the first contract? Most definitely! Any new proposals will only gain strength that the first contract is void if counteroffers are submitted. No one wishes to place doubt upon the validity of the first contract by entering into any sort of negotiations again. When the dance is over, freeze!

OIL REPORT

SUNDAY, October 2, 1994 — SERVING 54 COUNTIES IN WEST TEXAS AND NEW MEXICO

BRIEFING

Drill pipe racked and ready to run

Prices climb

Prices closed just below $18 a barrel late this past week, boosted by a surge in gasoline futures and reports of an oil workers strike in Brazil that threatens to tighten supplies.

Contracts for November delivery of West Texas Intermediate climbed to $17.98 a barrel late in the week on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The contract largely rode the coattailes of futures prices for unleaded gasoline, which began climbing after Brazil's state oil monopoly suspended exports of refined products to the United States. The situation could worsen, as workers at Brazil's two largest refineries walked off the job late in the week.

November prices for natural gas held at $1.70 per thousand cubic feet late in the week. on the Merc.

Activity highlights

Baytech Inc. of Midland has completed a Canyon Lime discovery in Howard County. The No. 1 Miller tested to flow 327 barrels of crude and 1,127 Mcfd from Canyon lime perforations 8,644 to 8,722 ft.

In other activity highlights, Coffla Petroleum Corp. has opened an unidentified gas pool in the Luther Southeast field of Howard County. The company tested its No. 1 Talbot-Fuller Canyon Unit for a calculated absolute open flow of 78,000 Mcf per day.

Rig count rises

Rig activity was higher in late September, according to Baker Hughes Inc.

For the week ended September 23, Baker Hughes reported the Permian Basin had 109 rigs at work, up one from the previous week. A year ago there were 124 rigs working in the Basin.

Eddy and Lea counties, N.M. were the most active in the Basin with 15 rigs each. Terrell County was second with nine rigs, followed by Midland County with seven rigs.

The national rig count climbed by 32 rigs during the week, to 836. The national count a year ago was 868.

Oklahoma posted the sharpest increase among major producing states, 12 rigs. None of the major producing states lost rigs during the week.

Russian laws

Russia, desparately needing investment and greatly improved technology from Western oil companies, is struggling to rewrite laws and regulations to help bring in investment.

Among the problems Russian legislators are addressing are high and frequently changing tax rates faced by Western companies as well as contradictory laws and regulations.

Part of the problem is that, though Russia needs the investment, it wants to hold onto its rights to its oil and gas resources.

Russia has oil reserves of 48.4 billion barrels and natural gas reserves of 47.8 trillion cubic meters, the largest in the world.

Producers cut gas production

■ The list of producers reducing natural gas production continues to grow.

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Two more companies have joined the move to curtail natural gas production in October because of an anemic gas price outlook.

Cabot Oil and Gas Corp. and Devon Energy Corp. said they'll cut natural gas production starting next month. They join a lineup of independent gas producers who have shut down as much as 600 million cubic feet of daily gas output rather than sell at weak market prices.

Houston-based Cabot said it will shut in 40 million cubic feet of gas a day, or about 20 percent of its production capacity.

A number of factors besides mild weather, including narrowing storage capacity and increased imports from Canada and Mexico, are depressing gas demand. The slide in demand has helped push down gas prices and producer stocks.

Enron Oil & Gas Co., which along with Seagull Energy Corp. announced curtailments in August, further reduced output in September to an average of 150 million cubic feet per day, or 23 percent of its domestic production.

Gas for November delivery closed Tuesday at $1.715 per 1,000 cubic feet, down 1 cent on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Other companies that curtailed production in September include Anadarko Petroleum Corp., Coastal Corp., CNG Producing Co., Mitchell Energy & Development Corp, Noble Affiliates and Vastar Resources.

In announcing its cutbacks, Noble Affiliates, which is shutting in approximately 80 million cubic feet of gas per day, said it expects its voluntary curtailment to continue until domestic natural gas prices improve from current levels.

A combination of factors besides mild weather, including narrowing storage capacity and increased imports from Canada and Mexico, are depressing gas demand. The slide in demand has helped push down gas prices and gas company stocks.

Since July 1, stock in independent gas producers has declined 8 percent, based on Kidder Peabody & Co.'s index of independent producers, while stocks in general have increased by about 3.3 percent.

Since Kidder cut its 1994 average spot price forecast to $1.85 from $2.00 per 1,000 cubic feet two weeks ago, it has reduced 1994 earnings estimates for nine out of the 10 gas producers it follows.

PBPA ANNUAL MEETING SET

Meeting to renew industry

■ Annual meeting will be event for change and rekindling spirit of energy industry.

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

The coming year is expected to bring changes to the U.S. oil and gas industry, and to the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

At the association's upcoming annual meeting, scheduled for October 28, the biggest change will be in the group's leadership.

Harry Spannaus, the PBPA's executive vice president for over eight years, will officially end his tenure with the association and will be succeeded by Robert Kiker. Buddy Sipes of Chisos Operating will succeed Scott Sheffield of Parker & Parsley Petroleum as PBPA President.

The gavel will be passed from Spannaus to Kiker and from Sheffield to Sipes at the General Membership luncheon, to be held at the Petroleum Club.

White

Keynote speaker at the luncheon will be William White, deputy secretary with the U.S. Department of Energy.

"I hope White will review what the DOE has done and plans to do in support of the domestic oil and gas industry," said Spannaus, "and perhaps update us on the meeting two months ago between the Congressmen concerned about the industry and President Clinton on trying to get some initiatives going on marginal production."

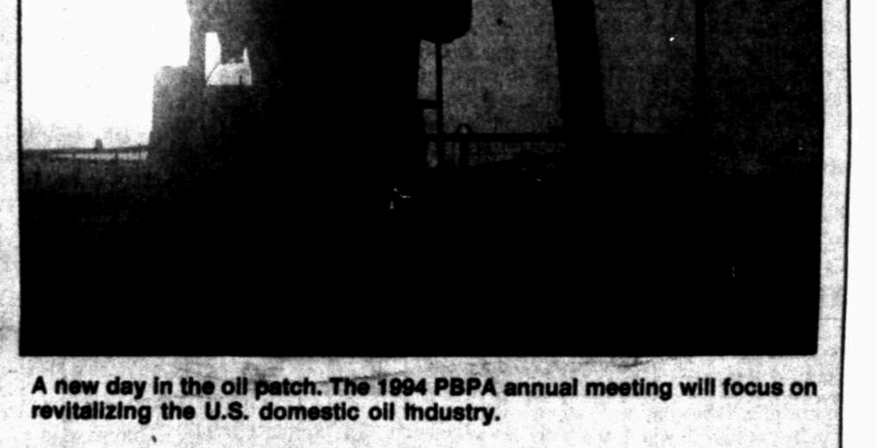

The theme of the annual meeting is "Redeem the Spirit of Oil & Gas." As Spannaus explains it, 1995 can be an encouraging year for Basin producers, with state and federal legislation expected to enhance marginal production and an improvement anticipated in oil prices. Too, he points out, independent producers are acquiring properties at the same time new technologies are spurring interest in exploration and business expansion.

The annual meeting will kick off the morning of the 28th with the "Kick-Off and Awards Breakfast," set for the Petroleum Club.

Don Lyle, editor of Hart's Oil and Gas World magazine, will present awards for "Best of the Southwest" ranging from best producer to best new technology.

Speakers include U.S. Representative Larry Combest, Railroad Commissioner Barry Williamson

PBPA seminar seeks environmental solutions

■ Annual environmental seminar will examine rules, regulations and initiatives

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

In conjunction with the Permian Basin Petroleum Association's annual meeting, the PBPA and the University of Texas Lands System will present an environmental seminar, to be held October 27 at the Holiday Inn Country Villa Convention Center.

The theme of this year's seminar is "Solutions to Regulations."

Said Harry Spannaus, executive vice president of the PBPA, "We need to start talking about solving some of these things instead of complaining about them, and that's what this day is geared toward."

Papa

The keynote speaker at the seminar will be Mark Papa, president, Enron Oil & Gas' North American Operations. Spannaus said he is expected to speak on and offer a slide presentation on Enron's initiatives on environmental issues and compliance with regulations.

"We're looking forward to him coming and I think he will be a real plus to the seminar," Spannaus said.

Following Papa's address, Christine Hansen, executive director of the Interstate Oil & Gas

JOHN PAUL PITTS

Is it time for crude prices to go higher?

Pitts

According to recent news reports, the Saudis may be putting pressure on the U.S. to go along with higher oil prices.

I had originally planned a dissertation on national security and energy policy for this week, but I received a fax of a news clipping of a story in the Washington Post that told of an upcoming trip by Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen to Saudi Arabia. I thought it deserved immediate analysis. I faxed a copy of the letter to several of my closest sources and the read was the same from all: Oil prices may be moving higher.

In the article, writer Clay Chandler, points out that Bentsen, following his meetings with the World Bank and International Monetary Fund, will fly to Saudi Arabia for meetings on October 4-6 with King Fahd, Oil Minister Hisham Naser and Finance Minister Mohammed Ali Aba Khail.

The main topics on the meeting agenda, according to Chandler, will be Saudi Arabia's cash flow problems and the outlook for world oil prices. Other topics include the Saudis problems with financing U.S. aircraft.

It could be that the trip will result only in an agreement to help the Saudis finance 72 F-15s; maybe the Saudis are only using talk about higher oil prices to get Treasury help with its airplane order. But then again, it may mean the Saudis really do want to crank oil prices up to a higher level.

Despite the fact that the Saudis have expanded production capacity to 10 million barrels per day, and are producing 8.1 million barrels a day, it is no secret that the kingdom is having cash flow problems caused in large part by lower oil prices, but also by a weak U.S. dollar, Desert Storm debts and spending excesses within the Saudi royal family.

Many in the industry, who believe oil prices are being held under $20 by an informal understanding between Fahd and the past three administrations — Reagan, Bush and Clinton — feel the Saudis have grown weary of the $20 cap and want to move it up two or three dollars.

"I think the Saudis are going to tell Bentsen that it is time to raise oil prices," said Larry Strahan, president of People for an Energy Policy. "They are going to tell him that the U.S. economy is doing fine, that the U.S. inflation rate has cooled, and that the Saudi economy is suffering. They are going to tell him that oil prices should go to $20 or above, because they need the cash."

The possibility that this conversation will take place becomes even more likely, considering that Thomas F. "Mack" McLarty, Clinton's former chief of staff and Martin Indyk, National Security Council advisor for Middle Eastern Affairs, have just returned from a trip to Saudi Arabia — supposedly to reassure the Saudis that the U.S.-Saudi agreement was still in affect. A top Clinton official said the trip was made to assure King Fahd that "any direct threat to to Saudi Arabia is a threat to the U.S. national interests."

Prince Bandar bin Sultan, Saudi ambassador to the U.S., had sought the MEETING: Hopes to revive industry

and Bill LeMay, director of the New Mexico Oil Conservation Division.

Following the breakfast, Christine Hansen, executive director of the Interstate Oil & Gas Compact Commission, will discuss initiatives taken and supported by the organization.

Zeke Zeringue, executive vice president, global operations for Halliburton Energy Services, will present "Oil & Gas Development: Where We've Been and Where We're Going."

Spannaus said Zeringue is expected to put on a good presentation, including a slide show, discussing where the industry has been, where it is at the present time, and where the nation is headed in terms of the domestic oil and gas industry and its relationship to the world market.

Following the general membership luncheon, Ron Merrett with the director's office, New Mexico Natural Gas Markets, New Mexico Oil Conservation Division, will speak on "The Pros and Cons of Gathering and Processing."

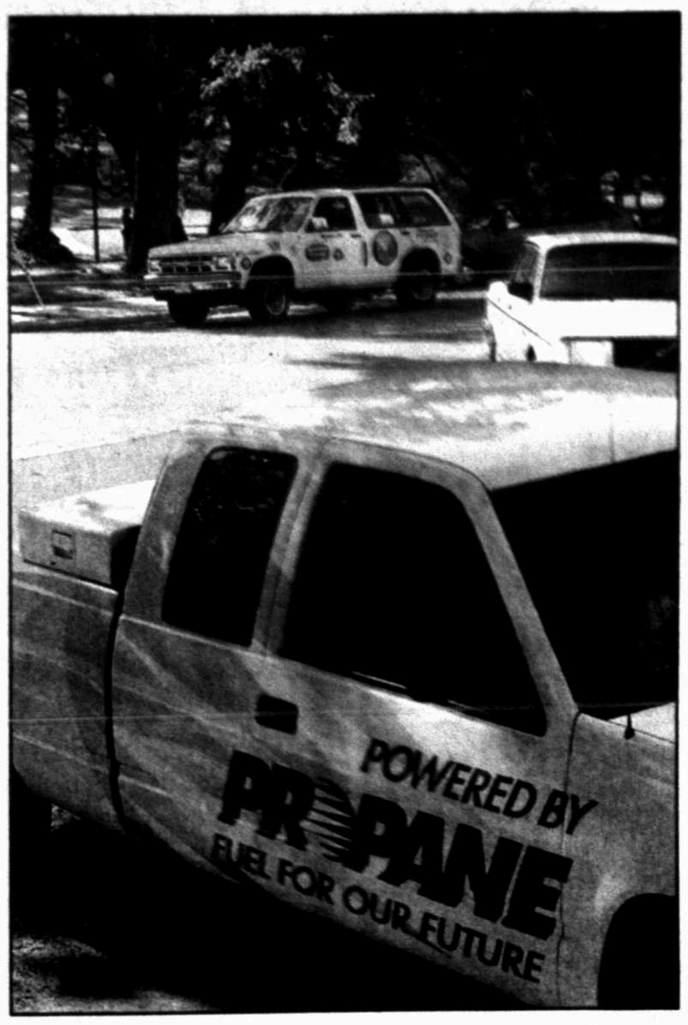

Explained Spannaus, "Gathering and processing have been bothersome in New Mexico for some time, what with FERC initiatives and new pipelines coming under both federal and state regulatory authority. Ron will try to simplify some of those issues for producers and then talk about other issues related to the state's new reporting system, Engard."

The meeting will conclude with the President's Banquet, honoring 1994 Top Hand recipient Robert M. Leibrock.

The keynote speaker at the banquet will be Dr. Lee Sherman Dreyfus, former governor of Wisconsin.

Spannaus said Dreyfus is known as an outstanding, inspirational speaker.

"We have a tremendous lineup, not only for the breakfast but throughout the day," Spannaus said, predicting that a full house is expected for the annual meeting.

Center finds solutions in technology

■ New Mexico's Petroleum Recovery Research Center uses techology to solve oil field problems.

Associated Press

HOBBS, N.M. — The oil industry is focusing on technology to find solutions to problems in the oil field.

The Petroleum Recovery Research Center, financed by New Mexico Tech in Socorro, is New Mexico's arm of the Petroleum Technology Transfer Council. It helps find technological solutions for the oil industry by researching problems at facilities throughout the state, including Sandia and Los Alamos national laboratories.

The center led problem-solving sessions in early September during a forum that brought in industry executives from as far away as Louisiana.

"They just wanted to see what was going on so far as the exchanging of ideas," said David Ricks of Amerada-Hess in Seminole, Texas.

"And they wanted to find out what technology we might have missed out on," said Jim Tupman of Chevron in Hobbs.

The program included a demonstration of an oil-related, on-line computer system, the Gas and Oil Exchange and Communication Highway. The service, available through Internet, allows access to everything from databases to daily news to events in Congress.

The workshop was part of the center's efforts to hear from the people and the businesses on the front lines of the oil industry, said Bob Blaylock, technology transfer engineer. Blaylock said some subjects come up repeatedly, such as 3-D seismic and horizontal drilling, and the center is now in the process of setting up a series of seminars on both topics.

"The whole principle for the programs is to be driven from the bottom up," he said.

"We don't want to sit in a lab and come up with a solution and say, 'Here's the answer to your problems,'" Blaylock said.

Compact Commission, will speak on the IOGCC's environmental initiatives.

Bill LeMay, director, New Mexico Oil & Gas Conservation Division, will then speak on "Better, Not More Regulations."

He will be followed by Dr. Solveig Turpin of the Texas Archaeological Research Laboratory, who will speak on "Antiquities: Archaeological Awareness and Common Sense."

Following a lunch break, the seminar will resume with Bart Sims, manager, source reduction and recycling program, Oil & Gas Division, Texas Railroad Commission, discussing "Waste Minimization: Keep On Painting!"

Next will be Ron Baker, senior environmental coordinator with Mobil Exploration & Producing U.S.A. Inc., whose topic will be "NORM (Naturally Occurring Radioactive Materials) Disposal Options."

Next, David Jelmini, senior environmental coordinator with GPM Gas Corp., will speak on "How to Avoid Title V, Clean Air Act (Air Emissions)."

Salt water will be the focus of the final two speakers. Mark Kratzer, environmental coordinator with the Midland division of Conoco Inc., will discuss "Salt Water & Emulsion Remediation."

Michael "Doc" Weathers, chief geologist with the University Lands, will then address "Salt Water Disposal."

Cost of the seminar is $25 per person before October 21. The fee includes a morning break and lunch. There will also be a number of exhibits at the seminar.

Registration is available by writing the University Lands, P.O. Box 553, Midland Texas 79702.

TransTexas acquires leaseholds

■ TransTexas Gas acquires South Texas leaseholds, agrees to explore deeper Jurassic in Maverick Basin.

Staff Report

HOUSTON — TransTexas Gas Corp. has announced that it has acquired leaseholds and options on 312,000 acres in South Texas.

The company acquired oil and gas leases on 50,949 acres of the Kincaid and Paloma Ranches in Maverick County from The Exploration Co.

In addition, TransTexas purchased the option to lease all or a portion of 74,439 acres in Maverick and Zavala counties and 187,916 arces in Maverick, Dimmit and Zavala counties, known as the Chittim Ranch, from Peacock Oil & Gas Properties.

"We're very excited about these exploration opportunities," said Arnold H. Brackenridge, president of TransTexas. "This represents our second important exploration development this month and positions us well to significantly expand our natural gas reserves. If we exercise all lease options on these properties, our total acreage would nearly double to approximately 642,000 acres."

Earlier this month, the corporation acquired 100 percent working interest in Westar Royalty's leasehold interest in 33,945 acres in eastern Val Verde County.

The company plans to begin drilling a test well before October 31 on the Paloma Ranch to test the deeper Jurassic section of the Maverick basin. To date, only three deep wells have penetrated the deeper Jurassic, with the closest find being produced from the Sabinas basin in northern Mexico approximately 100 miles away.

The Sabinas basin is estimated to hold approximately 55 trillion cubic feet, according to the United States Geological Survey. The Maverick Basin, which is expected to be geologically similar to the Sabinas, is approximately one-third the size of the Sabinas.

The company has agreed by October 15 to begin drilling a test well in the Pearsall/Sligo formation also in the Maverick basin. The Pearsall is a well-known hydrocarbon bearing formation with a limited number of previously successful wells. However recent improvements in both seismic and horizontal drilling technology make it feasible and cost-effective to explore this play.

PITTS: Crude prices moving up?

reassurance, following a rebellion in South Yemen, in which the U.S. maintained a neutral stance.

The bottom line, said Strahan, is that the U.S. and the Saudis enjoy a special relationship that involves mutual protection, mutual economic benefits and world oil prices, and they are now going into a pow wow to review the relationship and oil prices will be very much a part of it.

"There is no doubt whatsoever that the U.S. and Saudi Arabia cooperate on all angles to stabilize and control world oil prices," said Mike Milbagheri, a former member of the National Iranian Oil Co., and now a consultant to a U.S. oil company. He said lower oil prices are routinely used to cool inflation rates in the U.S., and notes that the price drop last December was probably to cool inflation.

"That was obvious when Saudi Arabia and Kuwait refused to go to the emergency meetings to discuss production cuts," said the oil trader, who has extensive connections at OPEC and in the Middle East.

He said the U.S. and Saudis maintain a continuing dialogue about oil prices and where they should be in relation to what is best for both nations. "Bentsen and the Saudis will discuss oil prices, and they will do it very gently, because there must be a balance of what is best for both countries."

The fact that reports this week show the economy in better condition than expected could weigh heavily in favor of higher oil prices during the discussions.

Milbagheri says he doesn't think the Saudis will press for a price in the mid-twenties but will be satisfied with $20 a barrel. "A price of $23-$25 could cause an increase in exploration around the world and the Saudis don't want that."

But even with a price increase of $2.00, from $18 a barrel to $20.00 a barrel, Saudi Arabia, with daily oil production at 8.1 million barrels, would realize an extra $16.2 million in revenues, for a tradeout of only about $3 million per day in production cuts.

Milbagheri says it only takes a production cut of 200,000 barrels per day to cause oil prices to increase $1.50. Also, the Saudis receive about $2.70 less than the prevailing futures price for West Texas Intermediate, as the result of a $1.50 per barrel transportation charge and $1.20 per barrel sour crude penalty.

Could crude oil prices go higher than $20?

Milbaheri says he expects a $2 increase in oil prices between now and the next quarter simply because of winter. "Demand will be up, China is creating a lot of demand and Japan has not bought its winter oil yet."

He said if oil prices go to $20 and stay there for awhile and demand continues to grow and the U.S. inflation rate does not heat up, the price of crude oil could move up to $23 a barrel.

Alternate fuel use up sharply in Texas

Alternative fuel use for vehicles in Texas has increased dramatically in the past three years, according to Railroad Commissioner Mary Scott Nabers.

"We are reporting a dramatic 55 percent increase in the use of propane and natural gas in cars and trucks since 1991," she said.

Texas collects road taxes on propane and natural gas through the sale of tax decals. Decal revenues in FY 1994 was more than $3.1 million compared to $2 million in 1991, according to state revenue records. The tax is paid on a sliding scale based on mileage and vehicle weight.

"Alternative fuel use continues to escalate as consumers come to realize that these fuels are clean, safe and economical," Nabers said. "And since we produce, process and distribute these alternative fuels right here in Texas, that translates into jobs and economic wealth for all Texans."

The Railroad Commission's Alternative Fuels Research and Education division and its Liquid Petroleum-Gas division are responsible for provoding alternative fuels research and education statewide.

"We teach the conversion of vehicles to use alternative fuels, such as propane, compressed natural gas and liquified natural gas," Nabers explained. "We also promote their use."

The Alternative Fuels division is funded by a special fee authorized by the Texas Legislature that is paid by the industry itself.

"As thousands of Texans across the One Star State convert to alternative fuels, we are creating a brighter, healthier future for all."

Russia struggling to write laws helping oil, gas boom

■ Russia is struggling to write new laws more accommodating to oil and gas investment.

By Ed Blanche
Associated Press Writer

LIMASSOL, Cyprus (AP) — Russia, its oil and gas industry in serious decline, is struggling to untangle a knot of laws and regulations blocking urgently needed investment by Western oil companies.

Western companies that have gone into Russia since the collapse of the Soviet Union complain they are being hard hit by high and frequently changing tax rates and by a welter of contradictory laws and regulations.

An underlying problem is that while Russia badly needs foreign investment to rescue its oil and gas industry, it does not want to give up the rights to such valuable natural resources.

Russia has oil reserves of 48.4 billion barrels and natural gas reserves of 47.6 trillion cubic meters, the largest in the world.

"We're making a lot of progress in finding a balanced model that satisfies everyone: investors, parliament, various ministries and others," said Andrei Konoplyanik, who heads a committee in Moscow that is trying to produce a streamlined package of regulations.

"There are still a number of problems. ... But the mechanism for production-sharing agreements should be in place by early 1995," he told The Associated Press during a three-day Middle East energy conference that ended Wednesday.

Brian Lavers, chairman of Britain's Phibro Energy Production, noted the difficulty of trying to operate in Russia. "So it's encouraging to see the vast amount of work now being done to rectify that," he said.

He said all investment companies are taking "staggering losses" and taxes are close to 60 percent. Phibro has had a 45 percent stake in White Knights, a joint venture with a state-owned oil company.

A key to encouraging large-scale investment is an agreement on foreign companies' right to share future production from oilfields they help develop.

"Everyone's waiting anxiously for the production-sharing legislation," Lavers said. "But ... it has to be right. The problems are multiplying all the time."

Among the companies poised to invest are Texaco, Amoco, Exxon and Norway's Norsk Hydro.

The U.N. Economic Commission for Europe estimated recently that $85 billion in foreign capital is ready to flow into the oil and gas industry.

The U.S. government's Import-Export Bank said in March it was prepared to finance a $245 million loan to aid Russia's oil industry — the bank's first to Moscow under a $2 billion program to bolster oil and gas production.

Russia, once the world's foremost oil producer, had an output of 11 million barrels of oil a day in 1988. But mounting technical problems with the industry's aging infrastructure and obsolete production techniques have driven production down steadily.

Moscow's Fuel and Energy Ministry reported in August that crude oil and gas condensate production fell to 6 million barrels a day in the first seven months of this year, down 14 percent from the corresponding period in 1993.

This is expected to slide even further in the next few years. But once economic conditions improve and foreign investment and advanced technology come into play, Russian analysts anticipate production will rise steadily within a decade.

That prospect, with exports being pushed up as well to meet the West's growing energy demands, has caused concern in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The major Gulf producers led by Saudi Arabia are all suffering from low oil prices and fear that higher exports from Russia and Central Asia will keep prices low.

Cross Timbers reveals Plains stake

LAKEWOOD, Colo. — Plains Petroleum Co. has received a copy of a Schedule 13D filed by Cross Timbers Oil Co. with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The 13D states, among other things, that Cross Timbers owns 550,000 shares of Plains' common stock, or 5.6 percent of the outstanding shares. Plains is reviewing the Schedule 13D with its advisors and board of directors.

Houston firm's Siberian venture gets federal agency backing

HOUSTON (AP) — The federal Overseas Private Investment Corp. is agreeing to back Swift Energy Co.'s $325 million plan to develop an oil and gas field in Western Siberia.

It will be the first overseas venture for the Houston-based company, which has teamed up with a new Russian joint stock company formed by Siberian oil patch veterans.

Ruth Harkin, chairman of the federal agency, and A. Earl Swift, the Houston company's president, signed a protocol this past week for $160 million financing and political risk insurance covering. It will cover the company's initial $5 million investment.

The signing ceremony, held in conjunction with the summit conference between President Clinton and Russian President Boris Yeltsin, was used to emphasize the theme of the summit, the growing importance of private commercial links between the two nations.

In its project, Swift Energy is working with Senega, the Russian corporation, to develop the Samburg and Evo-Yakha fields, east of Russia's massive Urengoi natural gas field.

The two fields have about 750 million barrels of recoverable oil and gas reserves and about 4.5 trillion cubic feet of recoverable natural gas reserves, said Bruce Vincent, Swift's senior vice president.

Senega was formed from formerly state-owned Russian oil companies and other Russian industrial firms to acquire the licenses and develop the fields.

Swift and its partners will provide about $60 million in equity, including $15 million of its own money, and arrange for debt financing. Swift and its partners will receive 50 percent of the net profits.

A final loan agreement is subject to further negotiations.

The $325 million development includes the construction of a pipeline to connect the field to an existing regional field. However, Swift also is discussing the feasibility of building a new, $100 million pipeline to link the field directly to major pipelines.

Analysts divided over stock before Exxon fined $5 billion

■ While a jury deliberated before hitting Exxon with $5 billion in punitive damages in the Exxon Valdez spill, analysts were divided over Exxon's stock.

N.Y. Times News Service

As the jurors deliberated before deciding Exxon should pay $5 billion in punitive damages for the Exxon Valdez oil spill in 1989, the question was asked: Should investors worry? Responding to that question, Wall Street analysts were in conflict.

Some analysts said avoid the stock until damages were awarded. Others advised waiting even longer, because Exxon's bill could be reduced after appeals.

Others said that investors should hold on to their stock, and some even suggested buying it before the decision, since it is almost 13 percent below this year's high of about $67. These analysts had expected a moderate jury award, paving the way for a quick rise in the stock price.

In addition, they argued that Exxon's earnings outlook is improving because some of the company's businesses, including the huge European operations, are on the rebound.

Even following the $5 billion award — plaintiffs were seeking $15 billion — analysts say that Exxon, the world's second-largest publicly traded oil company, after Royal Dutch/Shell, has the financial strength and legal stamina to suffer only limited damage.

"Exxon has deep pockets," said Frank P. Knuettel of Prudential Securities, and it is sure to appeal, he added, which will buy time. There is also a good chance it could negotiate the amount down. Exxon has put together a legal team that was able to convince the jury on Aug. 12 to award commercial fishermen $286.8 million in damages for the 1989 spill, less than a third the $895 million that had been sought.

Frederick Leuffer, an oil analyst for Bear, Stearns, calculated that if Exxon borrowed to pay a $15 billion award, its interest cost would reduce earnings about 55 cents a share a year. He expects Exxon to earn about $3.35 a share this year and $4.50 next year, compared with $4.21 a share in 1993 on net income of $5.28 billion.

"It's certainly not life threatening, but the dividend growth rate could fall below that of its competitors," he added.

Leuffer, who advised investors to avoid the stock as the trial neared, predicts that Exxon could manage to pay an award on the high end without a major impact on its long-term earnings potential. He is sure, however, that there will be an impact on the stock.

"If the jury can come back with $5 billion," he added, "the stock will still get hit. Who needs the headache?"

He favored avoiding the stock until it becomes clear what Exxon will have to pay, which could mean waiting out a long appeal process. Only then, he said, will it be clear whether Exxon can keep paying its high dividend, which now equals about 5 percent of the stock price.

But Knuettel argued that if investors shun Exxon now, they could miss a nice rally.

Exxon stock dropped about $8 to $59 a share in the weeks before the jury found that Exxon's "recklessness" had caused the grounding of the Exxon Valdez.

"You are going to see some good increase in production and a rebound in the European economies," added Mary Quinn, an oil analyst for the S.G. Warburg Group.

Uncertainty about the trial has given investors an opportunity to buy Exxon "relatively cheap," she said.

Permian Basin Metallurgical Laboratories has announced two executive appointments.

F. GEORGE BROWN has been named vice president of operations. He will be responsible for all operations of the laboratory as well as all field operations. He has expertise in all areas of metal failures, corrosion monitoring, cathodic protection and destructive and non-destructive testing. He was with Arco for six years prior to joining the firm.

ROBERT K. SCRIBNER JR. has been named vice president of marketing. He will be responsible for all sales and technical marketing. He has 10 years experience in industrial chemical sales management as well as extensive experience in all types of industrial equipment inspections, engineering, quality control and safety management. He was formerly with Western Unichem.

Permian Basin Metallurgical is a fully independent laboratory offering multiple metallurgical services, including on-site inspection and investigative processes.

Two new executives have joined Compressor Systems Inc.

BOB ACKERSTROM has joined the company as purchasing manager. His responsibilities will include the coordination of purchasing, the development of strategic and single-source alliances with vendors, long-term purchasing strategies, and purchasing cost control.

Prior to joining CSI, he was purchasing manager/director of materials for Highland Pump Co. and its subsidiary Sargent Industries Inc.

RAY HEDMAN has joined the company as manager of marketing and public relations. His responsibilities include advertising development and placement, marketing and promotions, trade show and technical conference participation, and corporate technical communications with press and public agencies.

Prior to joining CSI, Hedman was Southwest/Midcontinent/Rocky Mountain manager for Hart Publications Inc, a magazine, newsletter and directory publisher in the oil and gas industry.

Plains buys Anadarko properties

LAKEWOOD, Colo. — Plains Petroleum Co. announced that its wholly-owned subsidiary, Plains Petroleum Operating Co., has agreed to purchase from Anadarko Petroleum Corp. oil and gas properties in 21 fields in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota and Utah for $26 million.

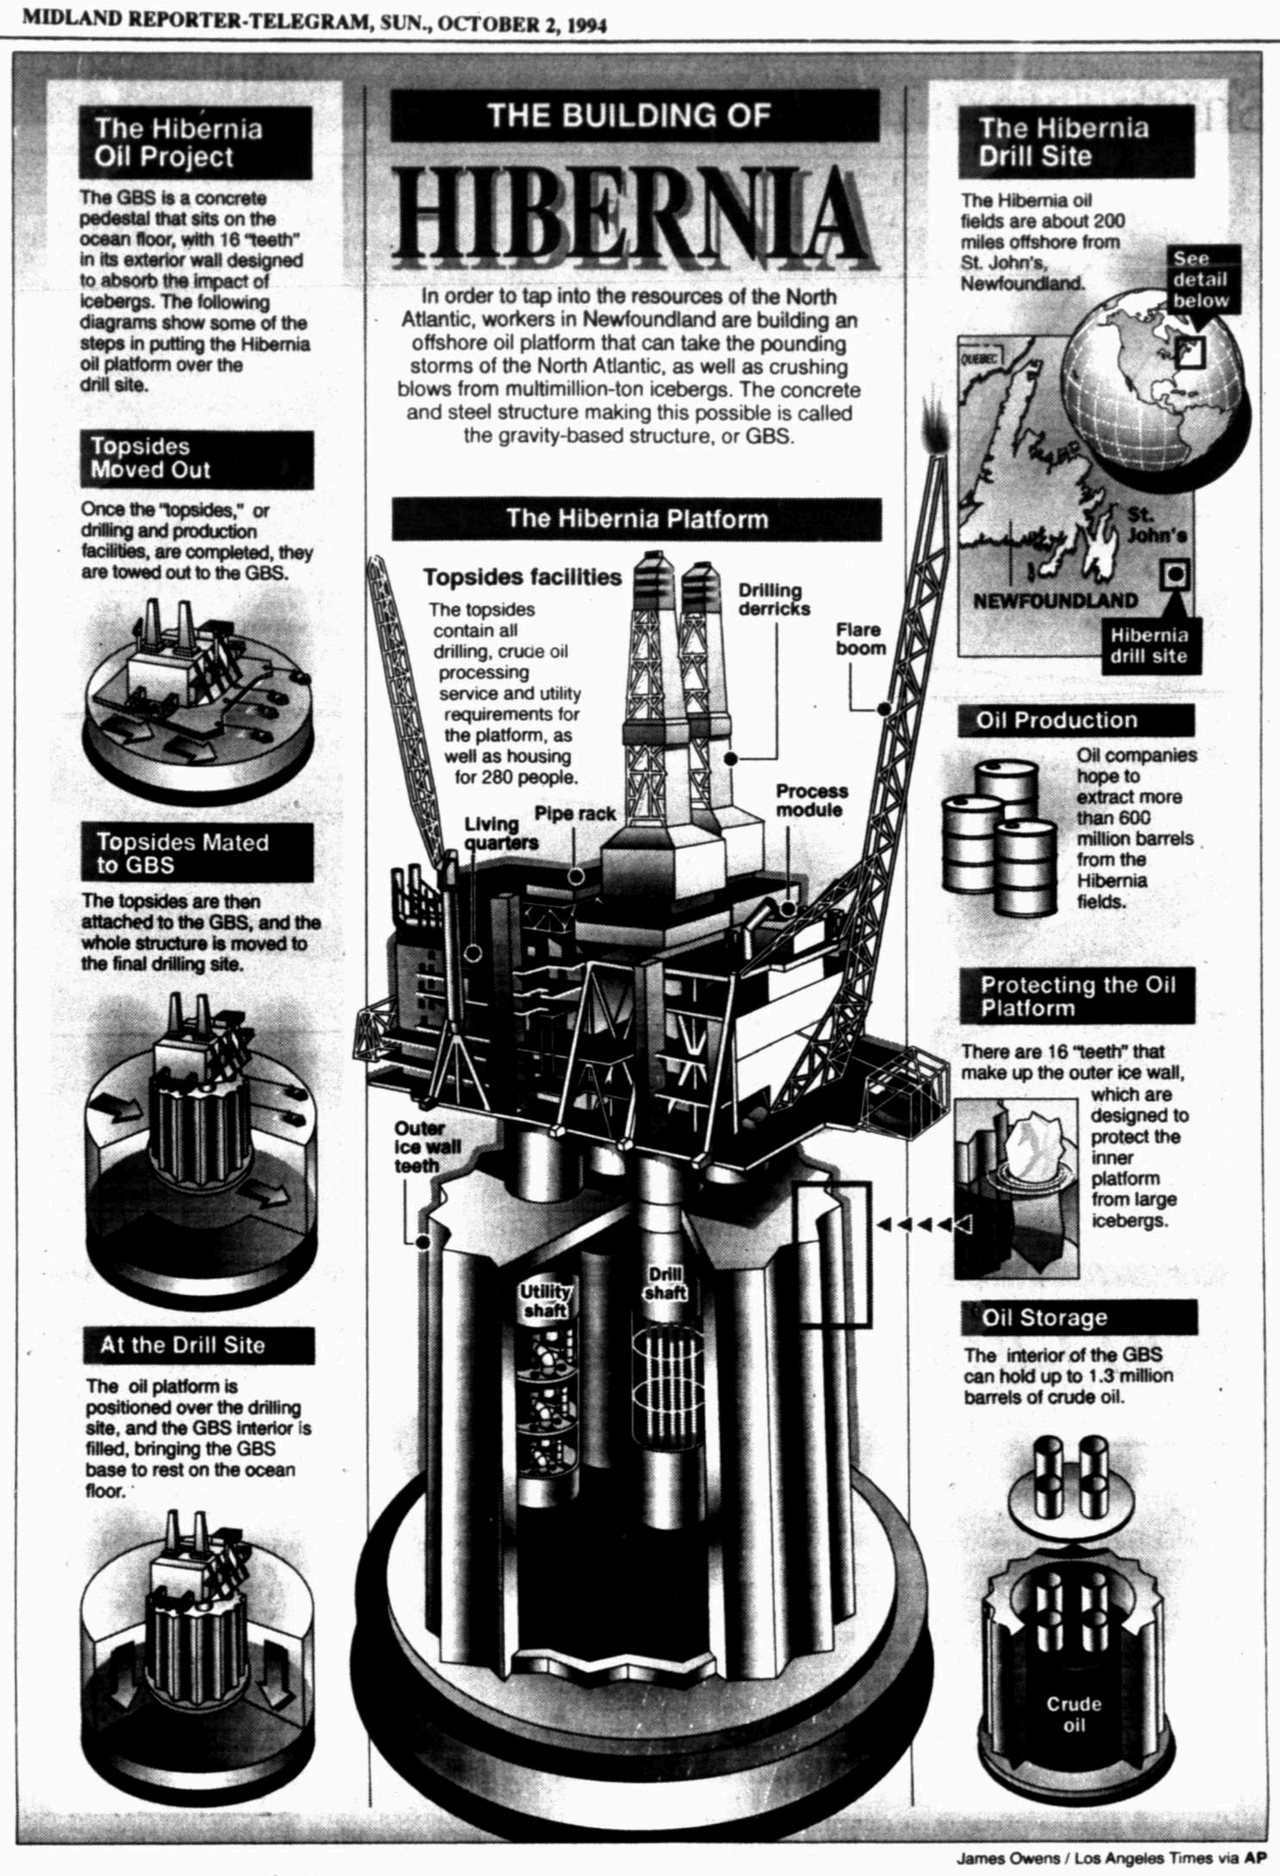

The properties, based on Plains' calculations, have approximate net proved natural gas reserves of 15 billion cubic feet and 2.3 million barrels of proved oil reserves as of July 1, 1994. In the first half of 1994, production net to the subject interests averaged approximately 4.5 million cubic feet of natural gas and 800 barrels of oil per day.

Also included in the transaction are leases covering in excess of 50,000 undeveloped acres and interests in associated plant and pipeline facilities.

Robert M. Dance, president of Plains Petroleum Operating Co. said, "This is a fine acquisition for us in an area we know well. We expect these assets to provide an opportunity for meaningful growth for us in the near term."

James A. Miller, Plains' president and chief executive officer, added, "This is an exciting time for Plains. Through drilling success, core acquisitions and the addition of a key officer, we are seeking to position Plains for above-average growth."

Closing of the transaction is expected to occur on or before November 1, 1994. The purchase price will be adjusted for net revenue arising from operations on the properties from July 1, 1994 to closing and credits, if any, from due diligence review.

NGSA supports rolled-in rates

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Natural Gas Supply Association is urging the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, in a filing, to return to its previous policy on handling the costs of new pipeline facilities built under traditional certificates.

That policy included new facility costs in overall pipeline rates (rolled-in rates). This is in contrast to the alternative in which each new facility would have separate stand-alone rates reflecting only the cost of that expansion, or incremental rates.

The association is advocating this traditional approach of rolled-in pricing for new facilities because:

- It promotes the development of an integrated national gas grid;
- It permits pipelines to respond more quickly to new market demand;
- It communicates more consistent and accurate price signals throughout the gas production and marketing chain;
- It provides more certainty regarding the cost recovery mechanism that will be employed; and
- It creates and maintains a competitively level playing field for providers of gas and gas services.

"Ever since the Kansas Pipe Line and Gas Co. case of 1939, rolled-in rate treatment has been a matter of course," said Phil Budzik, the association's director of federal regulatory affairs and technical analysis. But FERC deviated from that policy when it attempted to charge incremental rates for a Great Lakes Gas Transmission Co. expansion after existing customers protested rolled-in rates. The incremental approach was subsequently challenged i court.

"The Great Lakes case is an instance where tough cases create bad precedents," said Budzik. "Rates were stable for many years because no major expansions were undertaken. Customers became used to the low rates. Then suddenly, an expansion escalated rates in a way that seemed unfair to many."

"When you look at the situation as a whole," Budzik continued, "the long-standing rolled-in policy clearly continues to be appropriate. Pipelines are operated on an integrated basis to the equal benefit of all similarly situated customers. Charging them different rates cannot be justified either on the basis of fairness or economic theory."

The incremental pricing approach would increase the complexity and cost of pipeline operation and administration, thereby inhibiting market growth, according to the association's filing. Under an incremental pricing policy, the same customer could be subject to multiple rate structures for transporting gas between the same two points, and the rate structures applicable for any particular shipment of gas could become the subject of endless debate.

"The plethora of rate schedules could prove to be as much of an administrative and litigation nightmare as the vintaging of wellhead prices was for producers prior to wellhead price deregulation," said Budzik.

Nuevo completes Giddings well

HOUSTON — Nuevo Energy Co. announces the successful completion of its Que Pasa #1-H well located in the Giddings Field on Nuevo's 3,900 acre Turkey Creek Prospect, in Grimes County, Texas.

The well tested at an initial rate of 22.5 million cubic feet of gas per day and 394 barrels of oil per day from the Austin Chalk formation on a 44/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 3,425 pounds per square inch. This dual lateral horizontal well was drilled with an extension of 6,249 feet.

Nuevo will spud a second well immediately and intends to begin drilling two additional offset locations within 60 days. In addition, several other prospects have been identified for further drilling on acreage held by Nuevo in Grimes County.

Nuevo owns 50 percent working interest in the well.

ACTIVITY HIGHLIGHTS

Canyon Lime strike flows 327 barrels

Staff Report

A Canyon Lime discovery has been recorded in Howard County, two miles northast of Fairview.

BAYTECH INC. potentialed the No. 1 Miller to flow 327 barrels of 48 gravity crude and 1,127 Mcfd on a 12/64 inch choke with flowing tubing pressure of 1,510 psi. The well flowed from perforations 8,644 ft. to 8,722 ft. The interval was acidized with 500 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Permitted as a 10,600 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 10,060 ft. and plugged back to 9,800 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 9,016 ft.

The well topped the Upper Spraberry at 5,90 ft., Canyon Limestone at 8,612 and Fusselman at 9,986 ft. on kelly bushing elevation of 2,668 ft.

Location is 1,308 ft. from north and 2,050 ft. from east lines of Section 41, Block 32, T-2-N, T&P survey, Abst. 283.

Wolfcamp strike flows 61 barrels

MARATHON OIL CO. has completed a Wolfcamp discovery in Ector County, eight miles south of Odessa.

On potential test, the No. 1 Rigel flowed 61 barrels of crude, 610 Mcfd and 22 barrels of water from perforations 9,385 to 9,485 ft. The interval was acidized with 36,000 gallons of 15 percent HCL.

Scheduled as a 10,500 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 10,450 ft. and plugged back to 10,061 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 10,195 ft.

Formation tops, on kelly bushing elevation of 2,966 ft., include the Yates at 3,102 ft., San Andres at 4,700, Clearfork at 6,917, Dean at 8,322, Wolfcamp at 8,780 and Bend at 10,340 ft.

Location is 1,834 ft. from south and 797 ft. from east lines of Section 24, Block 43, E.A. Kelly survey, Abst. 755.

New pool opened in Howard field

An unidentified new gas pool has apparently been opened in the Luther Southeast field of Howard County, 10 miles northeast of Big Spring.

COSTILLA PETROLEUM CORP. tested the No. 1 Talbot-Fuller Canyon Unit for a calculated absolute open flow of 78,000 Mcfd from perforations 8,621 to 8,635 ft. The interval was acidized with 15 percent HCL acid.

Permitted as a 10,500 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 8,845 ft. and plugged back to 8,640 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 8,615 ft.

Location is 1,164 ft. from south and 200 ft. from east lines of Section 40, Block 32, A.C. Wristen survey, Abst. 1373.

Reentry recompleted as McKee producer

A former Ellenburger producer in the Andector field of Ector County has been recompleted as a McKee sand (Ordivician) producer in reserves located above the 50-year-old Ellenburger pool, eight miles northwest of Goldsmith.

PHILLIPS PETROLEUM CO. reentered the No. 2 Frank "B", testing it for a calculated absolute open flow of 2,400 Mcfd from perforations 7,779 to 7,840 ft. The interval was acidized with 3,000 gallons of 15 percent acid and fractured with 12,000 gallons of gel and 17,000 lbs. 20/40 sand.

Originally drilled to 8,573 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, the well was plugged back to 7,937 ft.

On kelly bushing elevation of 3,227 ft., formation tops include the Glorieta at 5,100 ft., Clearfork at 5,383, Tubb at 5,874, Detrital at 7,610, Waddell at 7,967 and Ellenburger at 8,163 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from north and 674 ft. from west lines of Section 6, Block 44, T-1-N, T&P survey.

Coke field gets 4-barrel confirmer

An Odom confirmer to the Fort Chadbourne field of Coke County has been completed, 14 miles northeast of Bronte.

PITTENCRIEFF AMERCA INC. finaled the No. 1085 Fort Chadbourne Odom Lime Unit to pump four barrels of crude, 9 Mcfd and 129 barrels of water from perforations 5,448 to 5,492 ft. The interval was acidized with 4,000 gallons of acid.

Total depth is 5,547 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set.

Location is 728 ft. from southeast and 937 ft. from northeast lines of J. Gross survey 301, Abst. 1241.

Excel sells two pipeline systems

HOUSTON — Excel Resources Inc. has announced the sale of two pipeline systems, Mestena Grande and Nacogdoches, to El Sordo Gathering Systems Inc. of Houston. The sale price was $3,050,000.

Mestena Grande system, located in Jim Hogg and Duval counties, consists of 52 miles of pipeline gathering systems and two compressor facilities. The Mestena system is connected to approximately 30 producing gas wells and provides natural gas to Valero Pipeline Co. in Jim Hogg County.

The Nacogdoches pipeline system, located in Nacogdoches County, consists of two pipeline gathering systems, the Bozell Lateral and Winston Lateral, comprising approximately nine miles of pipeline. The Bozzell Lateral connects four wells with Houston Pipeline Co. and Koch Gateway Pipeline. The Winston Lateral connects four wells with Natural Gas Pipeline Co. and Houston Pipeline Co.

Coastal shuts refinery for maintenance

HOUSTON (AP) — Coastal Corp. shut down its refinery in West Deptford, N.J., for routine maintenance beginning Friday.

The 125,000-barrel-a-day refinery is operated by Coastal subsidiary Coastal Eagle Point Oil Company. The refinery's crude unit will undergo a monthlong shutdown.

Its 50,000-barrel-a-day fluid catalytic cracking unit will be down for about six weeks.

All remaining units at the refinery will be shut down for about two weeks for maintenance.

Coastal will be making major capital modifications to the crude unit to improve efficiency and processing rates.

The catalytic unit will be converted to a new technology to improve the yield of lighter, higher-value products, the company said in a prepared release on Wednesday.

Coastal Corp. of Houston has consolidated assets of more than $10 billion.

Plains subsidiary buys gas wells

KEWOOD, Colo. — Plains Petroleum announced that its wholly-owned subsidiary, Plains Petroleum Operating Co., has purchased from a number of private parties interests in nine natural gas wells located in Texas County, Okla. for $1.825 million.

Plains calculates net proved producing natural gas reserves of 2.35 billion cubic feet attributable to the acquired interests as of Aug. 1, 1994, the effective date of the purchase. Plains will operate the wells.

Exxon Valdez oil spill leaves science in lurch

By Bryan Hodgson
National Geographic News Service

Alaska's 1989 Exxon Valdez oil spill left a little-noticed but costly residue: tarnished scientific reputations and a mass of uncoordinated data that will be of scant use in measuring the spill's long-term effects on the ecosystems of Prince William Sound.

Scores of science projects were launched to prove or disprove damage claims.

While lawyers battered each other with carefully selected facts, scientists watched in silence, forbidden to communicate their work to the public or even to each other.

The stakes — and the payoff — were astronomical.

On Sept. 16, an Anchorage, Alaska, jury levied a $5 billion punitive judgment against the Exxon Corp.

The company already had paid out $2.8 billion in cleanup costs, criminal penalties and civil damages to state and federal agencies, fishermen and Alaskan natives.

"Many well-known scientists who did outstanding work before the spill now find that their reputations have been tainted — that they were used as mouthpieces," says Gary Shigenaka, a marine biologist with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's biological assessment team in Seattle.

The team is now at the midpoint of a 10-year study of the sound.

"We can never go back to the days when scientists exchanged information," Shigenaka says.

"Exxon Valdez is the template for things to come. Now we will have science by press conference."

How selectively the facts were used was demonstrated in August, when a jury heard scientific testimony that disastrous pink salmon harvests in 1992 and 1993 were possibly due to the oil spill.

As jurors deliberated, they were not permitted to learn that a harvest of almost 37 million fish was in progress — the third largest in Prince William history.

"We have real misgivings about applying data on oil to salmon," Shigenaka says.

"I don't think there's a salmon scientist out there who'd rest his case on an oil injury to salmon."

NOAA is charged with providing unbiased scientific information to assist spill-response organizations in handling emergencies. Frequently, the agency winds up in the middle.

"We performed a study of subsistence seafood utilized by native populations — a major effort — and found that salmon and halibut were free of hydrocarbons," Shigenaka says.

"Most hydrocarbons were found in Kodiak Harbor, from diesel fuel.

"Nevertheless, a jury awarded $20 million to Alaska natives for damage to their food supply."

That was only slightly more than the $18.3 million Exxon spent to rehabilitate 222 oil-drenched sea otters — about $80,000 per animal.

A different set of facts applies to Prince William Sound herring, a commercial species whose population has plummeted for three straight years, from an estimated biomass of 270,000 metric tons to 15,300 tons.

Biologists believe the fish will remain at low levels for at least two more seasons.

"Herring populations are being depressed by a marine virus or bacterium — one they normally carry with no ill effect," says Ted Cooney, a University of Alaska marine biologist.

"But the organism is triggered by stress, such as temperature or lack of food — and the oil spill was certainly one of the biggest stress factors around."

This year, a trustee council established to administer Exxon's court-ordered $1 billion restitution fund began a five-year, $25 million ecosystem assessment of the sound, concentrating first on salmon and herring.

"Too bad it didn't start five years ago," says Cooney.

"Alaskan science has come away with a bad name because we spent huge amounts of dollars, but no results were made public.

"And if there were another spill tomorrow, I doubt if it would be any different."

Can science find a better way to clean up its environmental act?

Administrators at the U.S. Interior Department hope so. On Oct. 27, the department will reveal an elaborate computer model that will calculate damages from a given spill by analyzing a vast data base drawn from hundreds of thousands of existing research studies.

The model covers all U.S. and Puerto Rican coastal and navigable waters.

It includes season-by-season data on habitats and habits of 1,000 living species, locates commercial and recreational areas, indicates water depths, currents and shoreline types and spells out the known toxicity and degradation characteristics of some 460 substances.

Users will simply factor in the amount of the spill, wind speed, temperature, time of year and other variables to determine the environmental impact.

Then, like a giant cash register, the model will produce a dollar estimate of the damage.

"This is unique — trying to predict injury and damage. For the first time, we have tied biology and economics with the fate of chemicals in water," says Deborah French, a biological oceanographer who is part of a team at Applied Science Associates, of Narragansett, R.I., that has labored for five years to compile the ambitious program.

"This is a synthesis of science's best ideas and best guesses," she says.

"So far, laboratory and field tests have given us a very good match for marine environments."

AGA survey finds growth in fueling station infrastructure

ATLANTA — The fueling infrastructure for vehicles that run on natural gas is expanding at a rapid pace, according to a new report from the American Gas Association.

The report finds more than 900 stations currently operational and another 100 planning to open in the near future.

"Americans are getting serious about cleaner air," said AGA President Michael Baly. "And the natural gas industry is responding by making the most viable alternative fuel increasingly accessible."

The number of stations listed in the association's 1994 Directory of Natural Gas Vehicle Fueling Stations, Products and Services represents a 32 percent increase since the last directory was published in April 1993. The directory shows that natural gas fueling stations are being added at the rate of three to four per week.

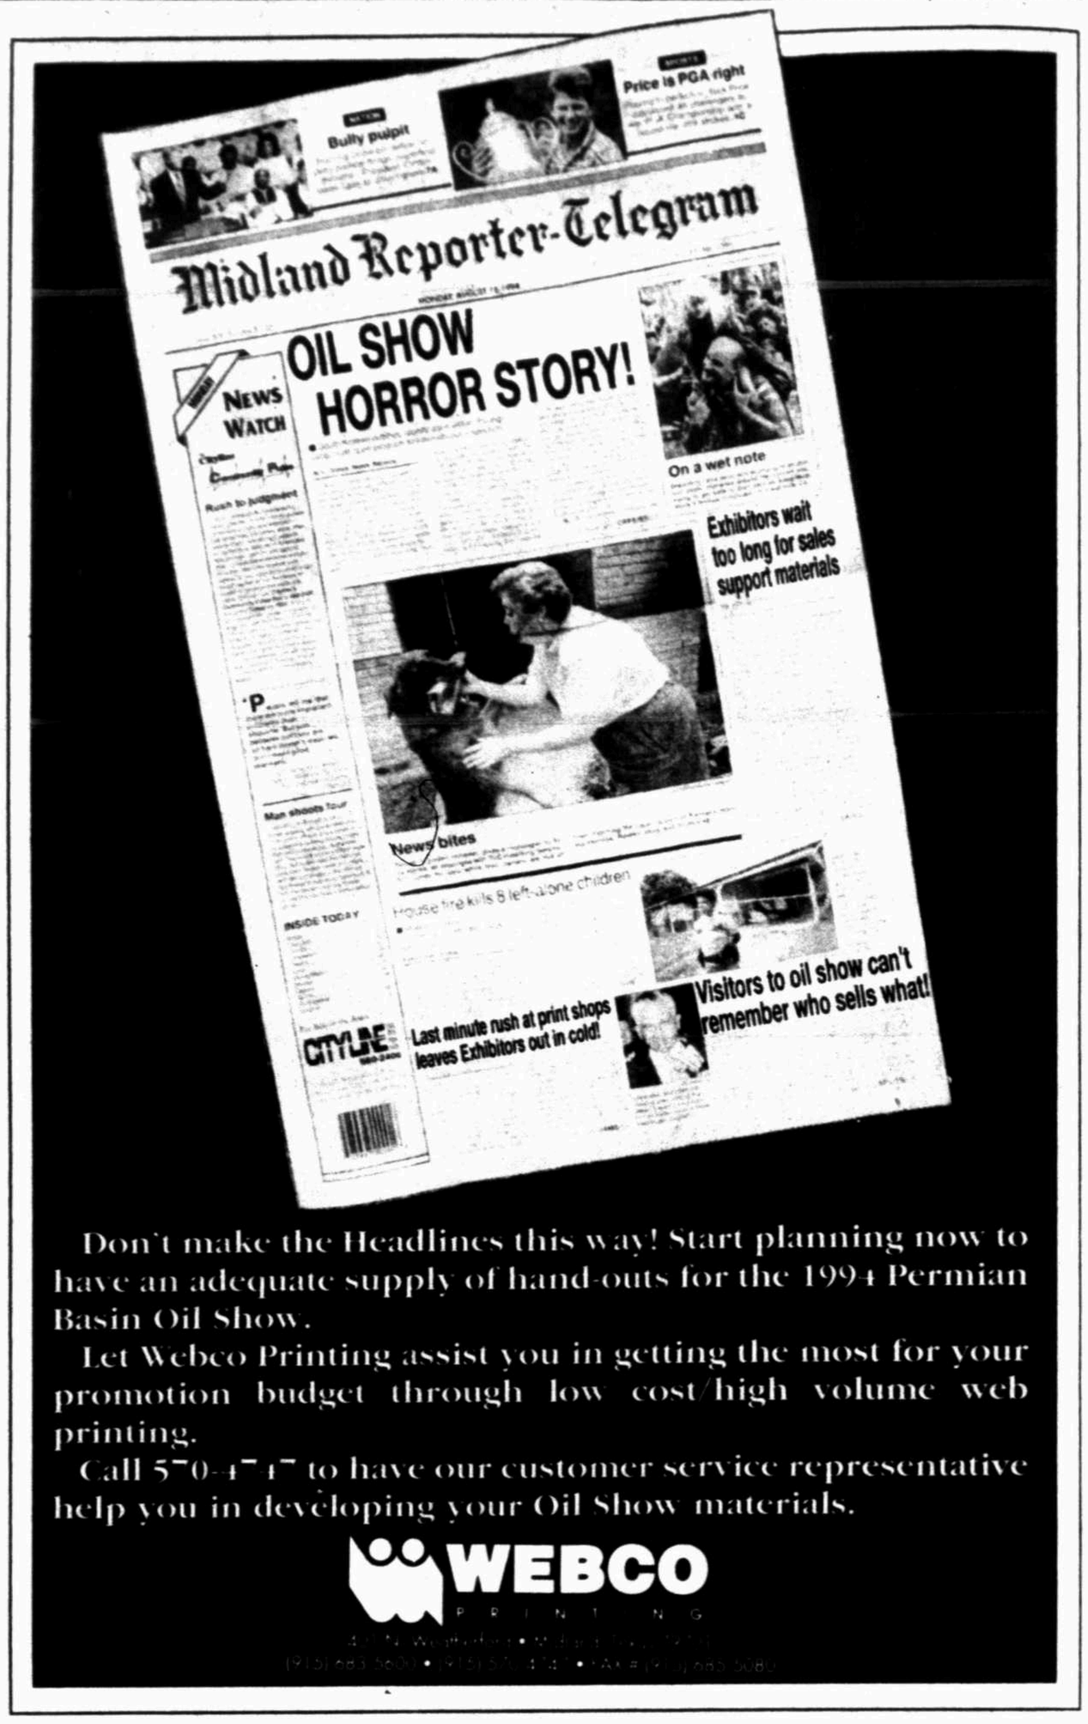

Forty-six of the lower 48 states and the District of Columbia have at least one NGV facility in operation, according to the directory. California leads the way with a total of 109 existing stations. Texas is second with 75 facilities, followed by Utah with 48, Oklahoma with 42 and Pennsylvania and Colorado each with 40 sites in operation.

"The favorable economics of NGVs, their excellent emissions performance and their outstanding safety record, combined with the steady growth of fueling facilities as evidenced by this directory, will make NGVs the logical choice for cities and states to meet their clean air goals," Baly said.

The directory lists fueling facilities by state, ownership and type of access. About 550 of the operational stations, almost 60 percent, are open to the public or available by arrangement with the operator. Utilities own 579 of the facilities, with governments owning about 100 and private companies another 179.

The directory also lists more than 200 vendors of NGV equipment and services, ranging from computer software and training programs to engine manufacturers and bus builders.

The price of the directory is $30 for AGA members. To order, call AGA Order Processing at 703/841-8559 and reference Catalog No. F60003.

PETROLEUM PERSPECTIVES

Offshore moratorium based on incorrect thinking

By Lester D. Mallory Jr.
Offshore Energy Center

Recently, the House of Representatives voted to continue an annual moratorium on offshore leasing and development.

Despite this country's ever-growing dependence on foreign oil (based on tonnage, Saudi Arabian oil now is the number one import into the Port of Houston), this year-long moratorium has been extended annually for more than a decade. It keeps off limits nearly the entire Outer Continental Shelf, allowing leasing and development only in the western and central Gulf of Mexico — areas, not coincidentally, adjacent to oil-friendly populations in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

Credit for keeping the moratorium alive belongs to groups like LegaSea, which has focused on keeping the promising Outer Banks region off the Atlantic Coast free of exploration. Here's how LegaSea's Mickey Baker of Ocracoke, North Carolina reacted to news of the House vote: "I've got chills. This is the best news we've had in a while. I'm absolutely thrilled," he said, adding that, "We won't rest until exploration is totally banned from the Outer Banks."

Groups similar to LegaSea also are active in Florida, California and Alaska. In Santa Barbara, for example, there is an activists' group called GOO, an acronym for Get Oil Out. Thanks partly to its efforts, Unocal, which was founded in California and has produced oil and gas there for 104 years, has just announced it will no longer explore for or produce oil and gas in California. Its 69 producing fields and 10 offshore platforms now are for sale.

Why in this country do otherwise intelligent people harbor such fear and loathing of an industry whose importance is cherished in the rest of the world? More importantly, why does the public so readily accept the notion that offshore development is bad? The answer must lie in a fear of the unknown. Which is something government leaders have been telling the industry for several years. The public must be familiarized with offshore operations. Otherwise, public opinion polls, and thus U.S. energy policy, will continue to disfavor offshore development.

Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary, who says the oil industry needs a spokesman not unlike the auto industry's Lee Iacocca, has been the most articulate to call for public education by the oil and gas industry. But she has not been the first. Similar advice came from members of both the Reagan and Bush administrations. Specifically, government leaders have pointed to the public's wrong-headed association of domestic offshore development with oil spills caused by tankers loaded with imported oil. Until this misperception is corrected, Washington will continue to heed the public's call for offshore moratoria no matter how ill-advised that may be.

Ask people on the street why they're opposed to offshore drilling and they'll probably mention oil spills. Indeed, access to promising offshore hydrocarbon prospects is denied in the name of environmental protection. Yet anyone familiar with statistics on the subject knows that this lack of access has actually increased the threat of environmental damage resulting from oil spills by tankers importing the oil that's not being produced offshore due to lack of access. It's a vicious circle.

The situation has been duly documented by the federal government. The U.S. Interior Department's July 1991 "Draft Environmental Impact Statement on OCS for the Period 1992-1997" notes that if OCS-produced oil and natural gas are replaced by importation of foreign oil by tanker, it will take about 7,000 tanker trips to provide the same amount of oil and gas. The report further states, "Based on the rate of spillage of imported oil from tankers, this-...translates into seven spills equal to or grater than 1,000 barrels occurring in the Gulf of Mexico region and one in the Pacific Region off California."

Obviously such facts are ignored by policy makers. Why? Because policy decisions now are based on public opinion polls. Public opinion is not easily swayed on issues for which there is a steady supply of misinformation. However, with an ongoing program of education and familiarization, the public and policy makers should be expected to seek cyange.

The Offshore Energy Center, a non-profit organization with headquarters in Houston, is devoted to providing information and education programs which will give both the public and government representatives a better understanding of the offshore petroleum industry. Through the Center's efforts, one will be able to fully realize that the industry goes beyond its charge and actually adds to the environment and may very well be creating the nation's next breadbasket.

Public opinion regarding offshore drilling in the U.S. has been shaped by environmental groups opposed to offshore drilling at all costs. These groups have used emotional pleas and scare tactics to mobilize citizens in opposition of offshore development.

How strong is public opposition to offshore drilling? The State of Florida, already protected by a drilling moratorium in effect until the year 2000, has repeatedly asked Washington to impose a permanent ban on offshore development within 100 miles of the coast of Florida. The lack of rational forethought given this request is reflected in the fact that Cuba lies just 70 miles away from Florida.

A lack of information compounded by misinformation means citizens in many coastal states actually fear offshore development in the same way they fear hurricanes or other natural disasters.

The public doesn't know that far from making our coastal waters safe from oil spills, Washington has heedlessly increased the risk. It's as simple as this: The less oil we produce domestically, the more oil we import from abroad. Imported oil has but one mode of transportation: Tankers. And, as the Exxon Valdez demonstrated in March 1989, tankers sometimes spill their cargo with devastating results. Yet, an apparent fear of oil spills has prompted policy makers to continue bans on offshore drilling, thus continuing the vicious circle effect.

Offshore drilling and tanker transportation are mutually exclusive segments of the same industry. To put this in perspective, consider the transportation industry. Just as buses and airplanes are mutually exclusive segments of the transportation industry, so, too, are offshore drilling and tanker transports. Banning offshore drilling to prevent oil tanker spills is like banning buses to prevent airplane accidents. Until the public is made aware of the distinction and domestic resources utilized, the threat of an ecologically disastrous spill increases along with rising levels of oil imports.

Lester D. Mallory Jr. is a member of the board of directors of the Offshore Energy Center where he serves as vice chairman. He is president of an environmental company, Serengeti International and is recognized for developing a line of totally environmentally friendly lubricants, based on hydrocarbons, for use offshore.

Pipeline to warn of deadly gas

Staff Report

Railroad Commissioner Mary Scott Nabers says an interstate pipeline company that recently released a poisonous gas has now reversed its policy and agreed to block public roads and post warning signs when testing.

"This is just the first step to protect Texans from such dangers," said Nabers. "The safety issue of unregulated releases of poisonous hydrogen sulfide gas on interstate pipelines must be resolved - and soon."

The Texas Attorney General and the Commission's legal staff are researching legal means to determine what the Commission and Attorney General can do to ensure the safe release of hydrogen sulfide from any pipeline, whether interstate or intrastate. Commissioner Nabers asked for such action to address the lack of federal regulations of hydrogen sulfide releases after a poisonous gas release in McMullen County occurred on Sept. 8.

Currently federal regulations overseeing interstate pipelines do not cover the release of hydrogen sulfide. The interstate pipeline facility, operated by the Transcontinental Gas Pipeline Corporation (Transco), is currently under U.S. Department of Transportation regulation, not Texas regulation. Transco assets it does not have to comply with Texas safety standards relating to hydrogen sulfide.

"We simply cannot have dangerous gases vented into the air without following safety standards," Nabers said. "While the federal government has no rules to regulate the release of this poisonous gas, the state of Texas does; we plan to pursue all means necessary to enforce our safety standards," she said.

"A motorist could drive down the road and pass through a potent cloud of poisonous gas," Nabers said. "Breathing the gas can cause death within minutes." Nabers' office recently received a report of a similar incident.

Texas' current standards for operating in hydrogen sulfide areas are for protection of the general public and include:

- Warning signs and markers to indicate presence of hydrogen sulfide
- Monitoring systems to prevent an undetected release
- Wind indicators
- Vented gas is to be burned in a flare on a riser
- Contingency plan - for emergency releases, public would be notified
- High levels of concentrated gases require that roads be blocked off (as part of contingency plan)

Texas is a world-recognized authority in hydrogen sulfide safety standards. About 34,000 oil and gas operators have certificates of compliance.

API finds imports slipped in August

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Though the level was slightly lower than July's all-time record of 10,059,000 barrels a day, total petroleum imports (crude oil plus petroleum products) into the United States continued to be strong in August, the American Petroleum Institute reported.

According to API's "Monthly Statistical Report," total imports in August averaged 9,881,000 barrels a day. This was 17.2 percent more than the 8,430,000 barrels a day imported during the same month of 1993.

The API also pointed out that the amount also exceeded underlying need for imports by roughly 1 million barrels a day, evidenced by the larger-than-normal build in domestic petroleum inventories in August.

Product imports rose over 455,000 barrels a day, or 25 percent, to 2.24 million barrels a day, the highest August level in six years.

Meanwhile, domestic crude oil production continued its year-to-year decline, "but relatively more slowly than in the first half of the year," API said. For the month, domestic crude oil production averaged 6,563,000 barrels a day, 2.9 percent less than the 6,758,000 barrels a day produced in August a year ago.

In August, Alaskan crude oil production was down by only 30,000 barrels a day or 2 percent from last August. In recent years, the share of crude oil production from offshore operations has been slowly growing. In 1992, offshore production was roughly 17 percent of total U.S. production; in the first quarter of 1994, offshore production accounted for over 19 percent of total production.

The API also reported that total domestic products supplied, a key measure of demand, rose in August compared to the same month of 1993. During the month an average of 17,648,000 barrels a day was supplied, 1.8 percent more than the 17,332,000 barrels a day supplied in August 1993.

Growth had fallen in July, suggesting that July's weakness was short-lived and the underlying growth in consumption has been continuing. Including July's slight decline, over the past five months growth in total deliveries has still averaged about 2.5 percent, more or less in line with estimated consumption.

Among the other highlights of the Report:

- Demand for gasoline in August averaged 7,905,000 barrels a day. This was a scant .5 percent higher than the 7,864,000 barrels a day demand during the same month a year ago.
- Year-to-year increases were also reported for the other major products, kerosine jet fuel, distillate fuel (home heating oil and diesel fuel) and residual (heavy) fuel oil. Demand for kerosine jet fuel rose 7.6 percent; demand for distillate was up 5.4 percent and residual demand increased 1.1 percent compared to August 1993.
- The nation's refineries operated at 95.3 percent of capacity in August. A year ago they operated at 92.7 percent.
- At the end of August total inventories (crude oil and petroleum products) stood at 1,080,100,000 barrels. This was 2.1 percent higher than the level at the end of July and 1.1 percent lower than the level at the end of August 1993.

Crude oil inventories fell 5 million barrels to 322 million barrels, 20 million barrels below the average for August and near the bottom of the range of the past several years. Gasoline inventories fell 5 million barrels to 206 million barrels and distillate stocks rose 6 million barrels to 136 million barrels, 10 million barrels above the recent-year average.

Pennzoil settles suit over Chevron stake

HOUSTON (AP) — Pennzoil has agreed to pay $2.6 million to settle charges it bought a stake in Chevron Corp. without notifying the federal government.

The Houston-based company conceded no wrongdoing, saying it felt paying the $2.6 million was "a lot cheaper" than continuing with litigation of a dispute with the Federal Trade Commission that had dragged on for five years.

If found guilty of violating antitrust rules, Pennzoil faced a possible maximum fine of about $4.3 million. The $2.6 million settlement represents the second-highest penalty ever paid in connection with an alleged violation of the Hart-Scott-Rodino Act.

The highest penalty ever levied in connection with Hart-Scott-Rodino was the $3 million fine paid by the A&P grocery chain following its purchase of Waldbaum in 1989.

The dispute began in 1989 when Pennzoil — flush with cash following its celebrated $3 billion legal victory over Texaco following Texaco's takeover of Getty Oil — began buying up stock in San Francisco-based Chevron.

Eventually, Pennzoil would spend $2.2 billion to purchase a 9.4 percent stake in Chevron.

Under most circumstances, federal law requires a company to notify the FTC and the U.S. Justice Department before buying $15 million worth of stock in another company.

The purpose of the law is to give regulators a chance to review a proposed deal, to ensure it will not create a monopoly or significantly reduce competition in an industry.

Pennzoil officials argued they were exempt from the notification rule on grounds their stock purchases were strictly for investment purposes.

Federal regulators alleged that Pennzoil's senior managers expected to have some kind of representation on Chevron's board of directors.

Mitchell Energy finals two natural gas wells

THE WOODLANDS — Mitchell Energy & Development Corp. reported the completion of two natural gas producers in Limestone County, East Central Texas.

The larger of the two wells was the No. 3 W.P. Little, which tested at an average daily rate of 2.1 million cubic feet of gas on a 12/64 inch choke with 2,900 pounds per square inch of flowing tubing pressure. Perforations were between 10,732 feet and 10,906 feet in the Cotton Valley Lime formation of the North Personville field.

The second well, also completed in the Cotton Valley Lime, was the No. 4 B.J. Raines, which tested at 1.7 million cubic feet of gas per day on an 11/64 inch choke with 1,650 psi of flowing tubing pressure from perforations between 10,950 and 11,148 feet.

The company owns a 76 percent working interest in the No. 3 W.P. Little and a 68 percent working interest in the No. 4 B.J. Raines.

Mitchell Energy & Develoment is among the nation's largest independent energy producers. The company also has sizable real estate interests, primarily in the Houston-Galveston area.

SEG announces new Executive Committee

TULSA — The Society of Exploration Geophysicists has announced members elected to serve on the 1994-95 Executive Committee.

James D. Robertson will lead the slate of officers as president. He currently serves as president-elect and is vice president, exploration operations and chief geophysicist, Arco International Oil and Gas Co. in Plano.

Gordon M. Grave, recently retired from Amoco Prodction Co. in Houston, where he was vice president, exploration technology and services, has been named president-elect.

First vice president is Lynn D. Trembly, chief geoscientist, Pennzoil Exploration and Production Co. in Houston.

Louis I. Schneider Jr., vice president, geophysical operations and governmental affairs, Edison Chouest Offshore, Houston, has been named second vice president.

Carlos Alberto da Costa, geophysical manager, land and marine operations division, exploration department, Petrobras, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, has been named vice president.

Secretary-treasurer will be Vicki Messer, general manager, U.S. operations, Veritas Geophysical in Dallas.

Bob A. Hardage, a research scientist with the Bureau of Economic Geology in Austin will continue in the second year of his two-year term as editor for the society.

The executive committee will take office at the close of the SEG International Exposition and 64th Annual Meeting, slated for the Los Angeles Convention Center October 23-28.

Louisiana oil companies look below border

By Alan Sayre

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The domestic oil boom is over. But there may be black gold awaiting Louisiana petroleum-related companies south of the border.

For now, most will settle for a lot less than the economic glory days of the early 1980s. Many say their future survival is at stake.

"We're interested in selling anywhere as long as it's honest and legal," said Ronald A. Daspit, president of Daspit Cos., which manufactures various devices for use in petroleum-related fields.

With skyrocketing demands for petroleum services, Latin America appears to fit the bill. A number of Louisiana companies put their wares and services on display this week at Encuentro, an annual conference that attempts to match up Latin American and U.S. companies.

Cliff Guston, a trade official with the U.S. Department of Commerce, said it makes sense for domestic oil service companies to look to foreign countries, since that's where most of the drilling activity is going.

"A lot of the better U.S. fields have been found," Guston said. "The rest will be expensive to develop. There are more opportunities to develop cheaper oil and gas overseas."

Latin America is particularly inviting because heavily bureaucratized government oil monopolies are either being cut into smaller pieces or privatized, Guston said.

For example, the Mexican oil monopoly PEMEX, once infamous in U.S. circles for being laden with bureaucrats, has been broken up into regions for management purposes.

"Before, a lot of companies would say they couldn't break through that good old boy network," Guston said. "But now they're giving it another shot because everyone is basically having to start over and make new contacts."

Rocky Burris, operations manager of Louisiana-based Gly-Tech Services Inc., said his petroleum service company just completed its first project with PEMEX. He hopes to work out other contracts soon.

"There's a lot of technology and training they need and they're coming to the states for it," he said.

Burris said the key to dealing with PEMEX was patience.

"I heard a lot of horror stories, such as having problems getting paid, but when we got into it, we were fine," he said.

Larry Heason of Southland Steel and Supply, a company hit by a reduction in military contracts, said he hopes Latin American deals will help the company complete a turnaround.

"Our domestic market has been limited, especially since the Navy cut back. We've gotten into petrochemicals. The exporting business will pick us up and put us back where we were," he said.

NGSA: Government-industry relations better

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Natural Gas Supply Association President Nicholas Bush issued this statement on the one-year anniversary of the Clinton Administration's National Performance Review:

"Natural gas producers have been positively impressed by the initiative and spirit of government/industry cooperation with which the Minerals Management Service has implemented the National Performance Review.

"Under this program, MMS staff identified a serious and complex issue: Emerging problems in determining royalties on natural gas produced on federal leases. The issue results primarily from regulatory changes to the industry that are occurring under Federal Energy Regulatory Commission Order 636, and the increasing reliance of our industry on market force.

"Not only did MMS staff identify and frame the issue, they also promptly opened a dialogue with industry. Throughout the ensuing discussions, MMS has demonstrated a commitment to reduce both corporate and government costs as part of the process.

"Today, we are well on the way to a new approach to federal natural gas royalties based on flexible methods that respond to diverse corporate marketing approaches. In addition, MMS staff has proposed a new 'payment in kind' approach to royalties, which is now in a pilot test with a number of natural gas producer-volunteers.

"The anniversary of the National Performance Review gives us the opportunity to reflect on the positive new relationship between MMS and the natural gas industry. We look forward to enhancing this relationship, building mutually beneficial approaches to the issues that will inevitably emerge as our industry increases its production and its share of the U.S. energy market."

The Minerals Management Service is part of the U.S. Department of the Interior; one of its responsibilities is to collect royalties on natural gas produced ion federal onshore and offshore lands.

The Natural Gas Supply Association represents companies that produce and market over 90 percent of the domestic natural gas consumed annually. Established in 1965, NGSA encourages expanded use of natural gas and a regulatory climate that fosters competitive markets.

Firm develops process for drilling through salt

LAFAYETTE, La. — Answering a need for faster, more efficient brine production wells, Corrosion Management International, Inc. (CMI) of Lafayette, has developed a whole new process for drilling through salt that may change forever the way salt bodies are approached, whatever the drilling purpose.

The process utilizes a new tool developed by CMI called the "Jet Leacher" (patent pending) that replaces the drill bit and forces water, in angled projections at varying speeds to wash the salt away. Computer analysis throughout the process allows the driller to monitor the progress and make adaptions where necessary.

CMI's most recent "jet leaching" effort was a brine production well for PPG Industries near Starks, Louisiana. Milton Grimes, Engineering Manager for CMI, described the project this way: "In all my 40 years in this industry, I've never seen anything save as much time or as much money. Just on this one well we saved 22 days and over a quarter of a million dollars for PPG."

"The conventional approach to drilling through salt has always been 'under-reaming' or simply grinding it away - time-consuming and expensive given the wear and tear on tools," Grimes adds.

Beyond the drilling of salt domes for brine production and natural gas storage wells, this new innovation holds much promise for opening doorways to lead oil companies through the large offshore salt domes that have prohibited drilling to the rich, untapped fields beneath them.

According to Don Harrington, President of CMI, "Salt creep has been a major draw-back to drilling these offshore wells. Our jet leaching processing can help eliminate this by creating a more economical and uniform sizing of the bore hole. The possibilities are phenomenal."

Russia softens objections to Azerbaijan oil deal

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia has toned down its objections to a $9 billion Caspian Sea oil deal between Azerbaijan and a Western consortium, but insisted on a role in future deals in the oil-rich region.

Hours after Azerbaijan announced its agreement with nine foreign companies, including Russia's Lukoil, Moscow said it would not officially recognize it.

But on later, Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev said Russia did not want "international score-settling" over the 30-year project.

"A solution should be found that would be mutually acceptable and reflect the interests of all sides," he said, referring to future development in the region.

The Caspian Sea is surrounded by four former Soviet republics, including Russia and Azerbaijan, and Iran. Russia has maintained that all four former Soviet republics should have a say in deals involving the Caspian's resources.

The foreign consortium is led by British Petroleum, Norway's Statoil and Amoco Corp. of the United States. Lukoil holds a 10 percent stake.

In remarks carried by ITAR-Tass and Interfax, Kozyrev said the Western consortium and Lukoil were after "short-term benefits," while Russia was concerned about the long-term effects of decisions affecting the Caspian.

"The Caspian interests do not begin or end with one contract," he said.

"I think we will secure an approach that would meet long-term interests of the Russian Federation and other states, including Azerbaijan and Iran, and that would facilitate the preservation of the Caspian Sea," Kozyrev said.

The consortium expects to produce 600,000 barrels of oil a day by the end of the decade, and a total of 3.5 billion barrels over the course of the project.

The deal still must be approved by Azerbaijan's parliament.

AMERICA'S 'POP'ULAR SNACK

Some things really are more American than mom and apple pie.

In fact, some things are original to this side of the world. According to the World Book Encyclopedia, "Popcorn is native to North and South America and is one of the oldest forms of corn.

American Indians grew popcorn for a few thousand years before the arrival of European explorers in the 1400s and 1500s. Indians used popcorn for food and decoration and in religious ceremonies. Today, the United States grows nearly all the world's popcorn, and Nebraska and Indiana lead the states in popcorn production."

Jolly Time Pop Corn has compiled a list of popcorn facts, including:

- The average yellow popcorn kernel expands about 40 times its original volume.
- Indiana is the state that grows the most popcorn.
- Butter flavored popcorn is America's favorite.
- The majority (70 percent) of popcorn in America is not consumed in movie theaters or sporting events, but in private homes.
- Archaeologist in New Mexico found evidence of popcorn that was about 5,600 years old.
- Native Americans also enjoyed popcorn. Chief Massasoit gave popcorn to the Pilgrims as a gift at the first Thanksgiving celebration.
- In colonial days, popcorn with milk and sugar was served for breakfast.

Today, popcorn has a reputation as being the country's favorite snack food, in spite of recent news reports of the health hazards of popcorn popped in certain oils.

Information from the Popcorn Institute claims that "Americans consume 18.5 billion quarts of popped popcorn annually (or 73 quarts per man, woman and child)."

Because popcorn is such a "pop"ular snack, and because fall is the best time for popcorn, the Popcorn Institute hosts each October as National Popcorn Poppin' Month.

"Popcorn's low-calorie and high-carbohydrate content, as well as its delicious aroma and flavor have made it one of America's most popular snacks," said William E. Smith, executive director of the Institute. "Savvy snackers know popcorn is one of the smartest snacks around."

Maybe. But what about all the flap concerning the fat content of popcorn popped in oil? The Popcorn

Couple attends son's wedding in Scotland

By Marilyn McKnight Harrison

A West Texas family had a unique experience last month while participating in a Scottish wedding in Aberdeen.

McKnight-Harrison

Sylvia and John Hampton met up with their daughter, Terry Chisholm, and their son, Tom Hampton, both of Houston, to fly to London. They saw performances of both "Sunset Boulevard," starring Texas native Betty Buckley and "Crazy for You" before going on to Aberdeen to meet their son, Whit, and future daughter-in-law, Yvonne Balfour of the Shetland Islands.

The Hamptons' other daughter, Kaye Moore of Fort Worth, joined them there, and they had a marvelous family reunion the night before Whit's wedding.

The family was introduced to the many customs of a Scottish formal wedding, beginning with the fitting of the kilts and the Prince Charles jackets for all the men. According to Sylvia, most of the gentlemen who attended the wedding chose the standard "party attire" of kilts.

The wedding was held in Aberdeen's Duthie Park Wintergardens. After the service, a bagpiper led the bride and groom, along with the wedding guests, to a lovely tea room in the other side of the wintergarden for a formal reception and seated dinner. The festivities ended with dancing into the wee hours of the morning.

Sylvia tells us the customary wedding cake of Scotland is fruitcake. The custom is to preserve the top layer and to re-ice it to be served at the christening of the first child. It is also customary to send a small boxed piece home with each lady for good luck.

After a trip to Majorca, Whit and his Scottish lassie will live in Aberdeen until transferred back to the States. Whit is with Pro-Technics International.

"ONE OF THE BEST years ever" were the words used to describe the 46th annual St. Ann's Family fair last weekend. It will definitely be a memorable one for David Frerich, winner of the fair's grand prize, a 1994 Ford Ranger Pickup.

John and Lynda Monroe chaired the event, which was blessed with beautiful weather, a huge crowd and a superb volunteer effort.

"Funds from the event offset the cost of tuition for St. Ann's students and help to provide quality education," said Barbara Ransbottom, school principal.

CONGRATULATIONS to Ann Semple, this year's winner of the distinguished Service Award, presented by the Summer Mummers of Midland Community Theatre.

The award is given annually to a person (or as in some cases in the past, a couple or family) who has made significant contributions to the Mummers by "going the extra mile" to help insure its success.

Ann received the award at the Mummers' annual meeting last weekend at the home of Diane and Sandy Faulkner.

NETTIE BETH and Larry Wood of Midland recently attended the dedication of one of the latest Texas State Historical Markers. The ceremony took place on FM Road 462 19 miles north of Hondo, where the "Cow Camp Massacre on Hondo Creek" occurred in 1866.

Larry's great-great-uncle, August Rothe, was the only one of three young men to escape an Indian attack. He and two young friends had left their homes to recover stray livestock. They set up camp on Hondo Creek and began their search, only to be pursued by Indians.

The ceremony was said to be the largest Texas Historical Marker dedication ever held, with close to 400 persons in attendance. The marker, draped in a Texas Lone Star quit, was unveiled by Mr. Rothe's 88-year-old daughter, Agnes Rothe Ney. Contemporary author A.J. Sowell wrote of these events in his book, "Early Settlers and Indian Fighters of Southwest Texas."

MORE SORORITY RUSH NEWS — We have learned that Midland has several additional pledges not mentioned previously. They include Cara Carney, daughter of Mary and Joe Carney, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Arizona State University; Julie Douglas, daughter of Barbara Bruner and Steve Douglas, Delta Gamma, University of Texas, and Shannon Wood, daughter of Debbie and Terry Wooten, Kappa Delta, Texas Tech University.

IN FRATERNITY RUSH, a number of Midland men have pledged at various universities. They include:

Texas Tech University — Delta Tau Delta: K.C. Windham, son of Janice Morin and Kennard Windham; Kappa Alpha: Cole Bloodworth, son of Carolyn and Bert Bloodworth; Sigma Alpha Epsilon: Richie Greth, son of Mary and Richard Greth, and Holt Johnson, son of Anne and Bert Johnson.

University of Texas — Delta Tau Delta: Reid Dunbar, son of Ann and Dick Dunbar.

Texas Christian University — Kappa Sigma: Blake Henry, son of Janice and Bobby Henry, Sigma Chi: Clay Brown, son of Laura and Jim Brown.

University of Mississippi — Kappa Alpha: Brennon Hensley, son of Cheri and Bud Hensley.

Louisiana State University — Acacia: Will Rucker, son of Melanie and David Hurta and Neil Rucker; Kappa Sigma: Charles Hill, son of Karen and Charles Hill of Houston and formerly of Midland.

Louisiana Tech — Pi Kappa Alpha: Ross Sport, son of Lynne and Charlie Ray.

Colorado School of Mines: Sigma Alpha Epsilon: Tom White, son of Flo and Sam White.

University of Tulsa — Kappa Sigma: Judd Garrett, son of Vicky and James Garrett; Sigma Nu: Kevin Lampert, son of Janice and Harry Lampert of Bartlesville, Okla., and formerly of Midland.

University of Oklahoma — Phi Gamma Delta: Ryan Cochran, son of Mary and Jerry Cochran.

Centenary College — Theta Chi: Trey Wetendorf, son of Cookie and Fred Wetendorf.

SNACK: Americans favor popcorn

(From 1F)

Institute has an answer for that too: "Health-conscious consumers can't go wrong with popcorn. With only 27 calories per cup of air-popped corn, it's a snack that's sure to please any palate."

Unfortunately, many palates aren't pleased with air-popped popcorn, no matter how healthy it is. But between the blandness of air-popped corn and the high-fat, dietary no-nos of popcorn prepared in the traditional heavy oil is a wide range of popcorn flavors and tastes that probably will please the most picky of eaters. Here are a few:

TEX MEX MIX
2 quarts popcorn popped in oil
2 teaspoons ground chili powder
2 teaspoons paprika
2 teaspoons ground cumin
1 cup cubed Monterey Jack cheese (about ½-inch cubes)

Keep popped corn warm. Mix seasonings together and toss with popcorn. Add cheese and mix thoroughly. Makes two quarts.

Nutritional information (based on three-cup serving): 402 calories, 29 g fat, 16 g carbohydrate, .9 g fiber, 22 g protein, 888 mg sodium; 66 mg cholesterol.

SPECIAL NOTE: For a lower-fat version of this recipe, use low-sodium, low-fat cheese for 22 g fat.

POPCORN TRAIL MIX
8 ounces raisins
6 ounces diced fruit (apricots, apples, etc.)
2 quarts popped popcorn

Combine diced fruit, raisins and popcorn. Toss until mixed. Makes two quarts.

Nutritional information (three-cup serving): 651 calories, 5 g fat, 162 g carbohydrates, 15 g fiber, 7.9 g protein, 420 mg sodium, 0 mg cholesterol.

CARMEL-NUT POPCORN CRUNCH
2½ quarts popped corn
1 cup pecans
½ cup butter
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup brown sugar
¼ cup light corn syrup
½ teaspoon salt

Spread popped corn and nuts in large shallow pan and place in preheated 250 degree oven. Combine butter, brown sugar, syrup and salt in saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring until sugar dissolves. Wash sugar from sides of pan with wet brush. Boil until mixture reaches 248 degrees (firm ball stage on candy thermometer), about five minutes. Remove from heat and stir in soda. Pour mixure over corn and nuts, stirring gently to coat. Return glazed popcorn and nut mixture to oven and bake 45 minutes, stirring every 15 minutes. When cooled, pack in airtight tins. Makes slightly more than 2½ quarts crunch.

Nutritional information (three-cup serving): 777 calories, 45 g fat, 93 g carbohydrate, 33 g fiber, 66 g sugar, 6 g protein, 712 mg sodium, 69 mg cholesterol.

(The above three recipes are courtesy of the Popcorn Institute.)

POP CORN BALLS
2 quarts popped popcorn
1 cup sugar
½ cup light or dark corn syrup
½ cup water
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Keep popcorn warm in 200 degree oven while preparing coating. In two-quart saucepan stir together sugar, corn syrup, water, butter and salt. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to boil. Continue cooking without stirring until temperature reaches 270 degrees on candy thermometer or until small amount dropped into very cold water separates into threads which are hard but not brittle. Remove from heat. Add vanilla; stir just enough to mix through hot syrup. Slowly pour over popcorn, stirring to coat every kernel. Cool just enough to handle. With greased hands, shape into balls. Makes 12 medium-sized popcorn balls.

FLAVOR-FULL POPCORN BALLS: Stir vanilla, almond, peppermint or any other favorite flavor extract into syrup before adding to popped corn.

COLORFUL POPCORN BALLS: Stir food coloring into syrup before adding to popped corn.

PARTY MIX
2 quarts popped corn
2 cups slim pretzel sticks
2 cups cheese curls
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon garlic salt
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
1 cup dry roasted peanuts (optional)

In large shallow baking pan, mix popped corn, pretzel sticks and cheese curls. Melt butter in small saucepan and stir in seasonings. Pour over dry mixture and mix well. Bake at 250 degrees for about 45 minutes, stirring several times. Makes about 2½ quarts.

CRISPY SNACK
3 quarts unsalted, popped corn
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
½ can (3½ ounce) French fried onions
5 strips bacon, crisp-cooked and crumbled OR ¼ cup bacon bits
Salt to taste

Combine popped corn with butter. Stir in French fried onions and bacon. Sprinkle with salt. Place mixture on jelly roll pan or baking sheet. Heat in 250 degree oven for five minutes. Serve hot. Makes about three quarts.

Recipe lightens up chicken and biscuits

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

It's hard to believe you can dress up a country favorite like chicken and biscuits and lighten it up. Yet here's the tempting proof: Instead of making gravy with fat-filled drippings, you use reduced-fat sour cream, skim milk, chicken broth and wine. The result is a rich flavor that doesn't let on it's lightened. To lower the fat in the biscuits, use a low-fat biscuit mix.

CHICKEN MADEIRA ON HERBED BISCUITS
1½ pounds skinless, boneless chicken breasts, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 tablespoon cooking oil
12 ounces fresh mushrooms, quartered (4½ cups)
½ cup chopped onion
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 cup reduced-calorie dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup skim milk
½ cup chicken broth
2 tablespoons Madeira or dry sherry
1 recipe Herbed Biscuits
Thinly sliced green onion (optional)

In a 12-inch skillet cook chicken in hot oil over medium-high heat for 4 to 5 minutes or until no longer pink. Remove chicken; set aside. Add mushrooms, onion and garlic to skillet. Cook, uncovered, for 4 to 5 minutes or until liquid is evaporated.

In a medium mixing bowl stir together sour cream, flour, salt and pepper. Add sour cream mixture, milk and broth to skillet. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir for 1 minute more. Add chicken and Madeira or sherry; heat through. Serve over biscuits. Sprinkle with green onion, if desired. Makes 6 main-dish servings.

HERBED BISCUITS: In a medium mixing bowl stir together 1¾ cups packaged biscuit mix, 2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onion and ½ teaspoon crushed, dried oregano. Add ½ cup skim milk; stir just until dough clings together. On a lightly floured surface, knead dough 10 to 12 strokes. Roll to a ½-inch thickness. Using a 2-inch biscuit cutter, cut dough into 12 biscuits. Reroll and cut the trimmings as necessary. Arrange biscuits on an ungreased baking sheet. Bake in a 425-degree F oven about 12 minutes or until golden. Serve warm. Makes 12 biscuits.

SEEDS FOR THOUGHT

Autumn is perfect time for working in garden

By Deborah A. Benge

Fall temperatures are generally very pleasant. You can count on the weather being good for plant growth if that same weather feels good to you. Soil temperatures are warm, soils are generally moist, bugs and weeds less aggressive — all of which adds up to good plant growth. One garden activity that can be done this time of year is dividing and transplanting plants.

Benge

Have you ever grown irises or shasta daisies that did great the first two or three years and then seemed to run out of gas? This is a common occurrence with some flowering perennials that have become too crowded. Symptoms of crowding include reduced vigor, flower size and bloom count. To keep these plant on the vigorous side, they periodically need digging dividing and resetting. Daisies, iris, day lilies and some bulbs are just a few of the plants that need regular division. Generally the more vigorous and prolific the plant, the more frequent it will need dividing.

Before you get started you'll want to water a couple of days in advance to make digging chores a little easier. Use a spading fork, spade or shovel to lift the plant. A spading fork will probably do less damage to the plant.

Herbaceous perennials vary in their root formation. The majority spread by the development of growth buds, or eyes. Each bud, although attached to the parent plant, grows independently the following season. It is because of this habit that perennials are so easy to divide and transplant.

Lift the clumps as best you can and begin the division. Large clumps may need to be divided using two spading forks back to back. Day lilies, for instance, can be separated this way. Sever the roots of big, tough-rooted perennials with a sharp knife, sharp spade or even an axe.

Irises have a rhizome root system that has a bud at the base of each fan of leaves. When dividing be sure to leave a good healthy rhizome attached to each fan of leaves. With this perennial and other large fleshy root types, it might be advisable to dust the cuts with a fungicide to reduce the chances of rot.

Some plants like Physostegia and asters have many stems and can be dug up and pulled or cut apart.

For the best results, plant perennials the same day they are divided. If that's not possible, heel them in to moist soil in a shady protected location until planting is completed. It would be best if beds were ready for the newly lifted and divided plants. This is a good time to share with neighbors or gardening buddies. Make sure you don't have nematodes or soil-borne disease on any of your plants. Some gifts just aren't worth the risk.

When resetting your plants, be sure to plant at the same depth the plants grew. Many plants are lost due to planting too deep. Some plants will rot and die, while others will refuse to bloom. Peonies are the classic example of refusing to bloom if planted too deep.

I won't go into a great detail about soil preparation, but it is very important. Add no less than four inches of organic matter to the bed, composted organic matter being best. Deep till or spade to a one-foot depth with two feet being better. After planting is completed, finish off the bed with a three- to four-inch layer of mulch.

Increase perennials by propagating them by taking tip stem cuttings also. This is best done in early summer through the growth cycle. Select tip cuttings of healthy tender growth. Take cuttings that have at least three nodes. Remove the lower leaves, dip cuttings into a rooting hormone and stick into a rooting medium of vermiculite, perlite or very light potting mix. Keep rooting medium moist but not wet. Enhance rooting by covering cuttings with a clear plastic to act as a mini greenhouse. Make sure plastic does not rest on leaves. Keep the cuttings in bright, indirect light.

Increase some perennials by root cuttings as well. This is best done in fall. Use a sharp knife to cut the roots into one- or two-inch pieces. Place them in a flat of moist sand, vermiculite or perlite. Cuttings can be laid flat and covered or big healthy root cuttings can be placed upright in the rooting medium. Two examples of plant that can be increased by root cuttings are perennial poppies and phlox.

Don't let the fall get by without taking advantage of the great weather and the best planting conditions of the year. Have more plants, better color displays and larger blooms by dividing your flowering perennial plants.

DEAR ABBY

Light in his eyes means more than his crooked teeth

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Like the woman from Ontario, Canada, my boyfriend has awful teeth. They are the worst I've ever seen, but when I look at him, all I can see is the kindness shining in his eyes.

Van Buren

We are both aware of our own physical imperfections, and are rather sensitive about them, so we just keep quiet about the obvious.

Abby, your suggestion that the woman tell the man she recently met, "You really need to see a dentist," would be a crushing blow to him as he is probably already self-conscious about his teeth.

If the man, as she described him, is "every woman's dream," the condition of his teeth should not matter. She should concern herself with her own imperfections and ignore his.

After all, Abby, she was talking about a potential romantic relationship — not a horse auction. — CONTENT IN MARYLAND

DEAR CONTENT: Visibly decaying teeth are more than a "physical imperfection" — they can be a serious health hazard. Any physician will confirm that rotting teeth can eventually undermine one's general health.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my husband and I were guests in my in-laws' home, as were my husband's son and daughter-in-law. My father-in-law, my husband, the son and his wife became involved in a spirited game of spades, while I watched TV in the living room. When a program came on about sexual dysfunction, I, being of an inquisitve nature and possessing a thirst for knowledge, became interested.

After a few minutes came this voice from afar — it was my husband's son demanding that I change the channel! (Apparently, he was screening what I was watching on TV.) I told him I didn't want to change the channel and suggested that he concentrate on his card game. A minute or so later, he stood up and announced that he and his wife were going to bed because I refused to change the channel!

My husband was furious with me for refusing to give in — and I was angry at being ordered to change the TV channel while the card players entertained themselves as they pleased.

If I was in the wrong to have refused to change the channel, I will apologize.

What is the verdict, Abby? — HOT IN HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

DEAR HOT: An apology is in order — not from you, but to you from your husband's son.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Fighting in Connecticut," the couple who had a politically mixed marriage, so did we. I am a Republican and my husband is a Democrat. When we met, I was the director of special services for the John Connally for President campaign, and my husband was working for Ted Kennedy's bid for the presidency in 1980.

We owned one car, and the problem about which bumper sticker to display came up. We decided to put the Connally sticker on the right side of the bumper with "HERS" beside it, and the Kennedy sticker on the left side with "HIS" beside it.

We also agreed to respect each other's political preferences — we made love, not war. Fifteen years later, love is still winning. Sign us ... NOT FIGHTING IN CALIFORNIA

Baked potatoes can be dressed up in many ways

By Beverly Bundy
N.Y. Times News Service

Pity the lowly potato. Still America's favorite vegetable, the mainstay of the pantry bin does not always get the respect it deserves.

"I think it was Jonathan Swift who called potatoes 'fodder for pigs and Irishmen,'" said John Mariani, restaurant critic for "Esquire" magazine. "And that's how most people, including restaurants, treat them."

Last year, the average American ate 133 pounds of potatoes, most of those french fries. In 1993, fries accounted for 34 percent of restaurant potato sales, according to the National Potato Board. Baked potatoes figured in at a distant 8 percent.

So what has happened to the baked potato, once a star of the steakhouse scene? Just a few decades ago, restaurants bragged on their all-American potatoes, advertising "2-pound bakers" and "Idaho potatoes," the royalty of the American 'tater patch. If that Grade A New York strip was the king of the plate, the baked potato was certainly the queen, crowned with melting butter and oozing sour cream.

The inside of those potatoes was flaky, the skin crunchy with earthy flavor. Today, more often than not, that sort of potato is history. Too often the interior is slick instead of fluffy, and the skin is soft and flavorless.

"What happened to the quality of baked potatoes was probably due to the growth of the steak chains in the 1970s and '80s," said Don Odiorne, vice president of food service for the Idaho Potato Commission. "These lower-price chains were tied into offering a meal at a particular price point. Cost became a key factor in the type of potato they bought, and the size of the potato went down proportionately. Another thing was that these chains had extended hours, and baked potatoes don't hold well."

Another problem is the method many of the chains adopted to cook and hold their potatoes.

"Originally, restaurants used gold foil to dress up their potatoes for table presentation," Odiorne said.

Then aluminum foil was used to keep a potato warm, and finally foil was used to wrap the potato before it went into the oven.

"We don't recommend using foil at all," Odiorne said. "A potato is mostly water, and by wrapping it in foil to cook, you're trapping the water inside and steaming the inside. The result will be a moist interior and a wet, soggy skin."

Potatoes are grown in 44 states, but a third of the total production comes from Idaho. That state's climate is ideal; warm days and cool nights yield a russet potato high in solids that cook up to the fluffiness a baked potato lover wants.

Storage of the potato can also affect the results of a baker. Potatoes shouldn't be stored in the refrigerator, as the cold will turn the potato's starch to sugar. Under the sink or in a cool, dark pantry are the preferred storage methods. Nor should potatoes be stored next to onions, a seemingly natural bin mate. Onions emit an enzyme that speeds up a potato's ripening process, which will spoil the potato.

But back to the restaurant scene. Are glorious baked potatoes a part of our culinary past?

"The encouraging thing we're seeing is that high-end steakhouses are featuring baked potatoes on their menus and showcasing them," Odiorne said. "Places like Ruth's Chris Steakhouse and Morton's of Chicago and even the Outback are advertising their baked Idaho potatoes."

Bucking the national trends, the general manager of the Dallas store of Morton's of Chicago, Marti McRae, said its top potato seller is the baked Idaho.

"We bake them naked and we cook them continuously through the evening, and normally we have few left over," McRae said.

Another restaurant that does a booming business in potatoes is the regionally famous Ranchman's steakhouse in Ponder, 35 miles north of Fort Worth. Potato aficionados know to phone ahead to reserve a baked potato at the tiny-town steakhouse.

"We like to know ahead on the weekend because we cook them in the conventional oven," said Evelyn Stack, assistant manager at Ranchman's. "We use Idaho russet potatoes because they're the fluffiest inside. The leftovers get grated and we make them into hash browns."

Following are some recipes for home-baked potatoes. The first recipe, for a perfect baked potato, is from "A Passion for Potatoes" by Lydie Marshall (HarperPerennial, $13). The second, for a decked-out version, is from "The Silver Palate Cookbook" by Julee Rosso and Sheila Lukins (Workman, $9.95).

CLASSIC BAKED POTATOES
Serves 6

6 russet potatoes, weighing ½ pound each
1 teaspoon vegetable oil
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
Salt

Preheat oven to 425 degrees.

Scrub potatoes under cold running water. Pat dry and brush lightly with oil. Place on rack fitted in broiler pan.

Bake for 30 minutes on middle shelf of oven. Puncture skin of potatoes all over, letting steam escape. Bake for 30 minutes more.

Eat as soon as they are taken out of oven. Cut 2 short gashes, one crosswise and one lengthwise, and squeeze potato with both hands before adding butter or margarine and salt. Serve immediately.

TWICE-BAKED POTATOES WITH CHEESE AND CHILIES
Serves 4

4 large russet potatoes
Salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste
4 tablespoons chopped imported black olives
½ cup diced canned mild green chili peppers
4 to 6 tablespoons heavy cream
½ cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese, plus additional cheese for topping potatoes
½ cup sour cream, for garnish
Whole imported black olives, for optional garnish

Scrub and dry potatoes. Cut small, deep slit in top of each potato. Set potatoes on middle rack of preheated 375-degree oven and bake for about 1 hour, or until potatoes are tender when pierced with a fork.

Let potatoes cool slightly, cut off tops and scrape pulp into a bowl. Don't scrape so deeply that you tear the skin. Salt and pepper potato shells; reserve.

Mash potato pulp and stir in chopped olives, diced chilies and enough cream to give mixture the desired consistency. Season to taste with salt and pepper and stir in ½ cup grated cheese.

Divide potato mixture equally among shells, mounding filling slightly. Sprinkle with additional grated cheese and place on baking sheet.

Bake again, at 400 degrees, until potatoes are hot and cheese is bubbling.

Top each potato with a generous dollop of sour cream and add a black olive if you'd like. Serve immediately.

Twice-bake potatoes in microwave oven

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

Just about everybody knows how to bake potatoes in the microwave oven. Here's an easy way to take baked potatoes a step further. After baking the potatoes, hollow out the shell. Mix the pulp with cheese and seasonings, then restuff and reheat the potatoes in your microwave oven. It's almost as easy as plain baked potatoes, but a whole lot more delicious. Even better — you can stuff these ahead of time and reheat as needed.

CHEESY STUFFED POTATOES

4 medium baking potatoes (6 to 8 ounces each)
3-ounce package cream cheese with chives
¼ teaspoon onion salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Dash garlic powder
2 to 4 tablespoons milk
¼ cup shredded Cheddar cheese (1 ounce)

Scrub potatoes. Prick several times with a fork. Arrange potatoes on a microwave-safe plate. Cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) for 14 to 17 minutes or until tender, rearranging once. Let stand for 5 minutes.

Meanwhile, place cream cheese in a 1-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cook, uncovered, on high for 15 to 30 seconds or until softened. Stir in onion salt, pepper and garlic powder. Set aside.

Cut a lengthwise slice from the top of each baked potato. Remove the skin from the top slice and put the pulp into a medium mixing bowl. Scoop the pulp from each potato, leaving ¼-inch-thick shells. Add the pulp to the mixing bowl. Set the potato shells aside.

Add the cheese mixture to the potato pulp. Beat with an electric mixer on medium speed until smooth, adding enough milk for desired consistency.

Spoon one-fourth of the potato filling into each potato shell. Arrange stuffed potatoes on a microwave-safe plate. Cook, uncovered, on high for 3 to 5 minutes or until heated through, giving the dish a half-turn once. Sprinkle shredded cheese on top. Cook, uncovered, on high for 30 to 60 seconds more or until cheese is melted. Makes 4 servings.

Some things really miff Martha Stewart

By Lois K. Solomon
N.Y. Times News Service

Martha. You're brilliant, rich, beautiful. You're perfect.

You've created a one-woman industry dedicated to gracious living and forced us to groan at the ease with which you gild miniature biscuits, create your lampshades and make your own currant ice cream (with berries from your garden, of course).

You grow herbs, raise chickens and smoke your own meat. Smooth skin and girlish blond hair make you look decades younger than your 51 years. You've written 10 books, appear regularly on the Today show, host a syndicated weekly TV show, edit your own magazine (Martha Stewart Living), work for Kmart as national spokeswoman and help out charitable groups such as the Lupus Foundation.

Not bad for a former model and stockbroker who turned a fledgling catering business into an entertaining empire.

You renovated your 1805 farmhouse and designed and planted 8 acres of greenery on the estate. The trellises around your garden are covered with roses and sweet peas. You baked a cake for 80 guests at your Barnard College reunion, dipping apple-tree branches from your orchard in chocolate for garnish.

But, Martha, here's what we really want to know. Does anything annoy you? What grates your nerves?

"I don't have little pet peeves," she said. "But there are some things that bother me."

Tell us, Martha. Tell us what makes you nuts. And show us that you're just like us after all.

10 THINGS THAT DRIVE MARTHA STEWART CRAZY

1. Dirty windows. "Windows are there so you can see in or out of them. Just wipe them off whenever you see a spot on them."

2. Unsolicited junk mail. "A hideous waste of paper. I'll get three or four of the same catalogs on the same day. It's awful and environmentally hazardous."

3. Destruction of nature for the entertainment of man. "I despise overbuilding and overexpansion without concern for the environment."

4. Toll booths. "A waste of gasoline and time. Easily handled by taxes."

5. Parents who care inadequately for their children. "A hideous trend in the American household is children without useful learning toys. Some parents have no interest in their kids."

6. Mistreatment of pets. "It bothers me when people have an animal just for the sake of having it. People leave their animals home all day without fresh water, without medical care, without a nice window seat."

7. Wastefulness in the home. "People shouldn't use paper towels to clean everything. Use damp rags and rinse them out."

8. Products made for planned obsolescence. "Light bulbs blow out so soon. I believe in quality, longevity and usefulness. I don't mind spending extra money for good quality."

9. Kitchen sloppiness that leads to appliance breakdown. "It's a problem with people having basically good homemaking skills and not taking care of good equipment. Equipment will last 40 years if you take good care of it."

10. Cigarette butts anywhere on her property. "It is inconsiderate of anyone who smokes. Who do they think is going to pick up after them?"

LIFESTYLE POLICIES

Policies for publication of announcements in the Lifestyle section of the Reporter-Telegram are:

Information for Sunday pages must be in our office by 5 p.m. the preceding Monday. For publication in a weekday paper, we must receive the information by noon two days before the information is to be published. For example, an item for Wednesday's paper must be received by noon Monday.

Engagement announcements must appear at least two weeks before the wedding date. Wedding announcements must appear within one month of the event. Anniversary announcements — 25th or higher — must be published within one month of the anniversary date.

Announcements of pageant winners will only be published for teenage pageants and older. Photographs will be published for winners only, not runners-up. These annoucements are published Thursdays. Deadline is 5 p.m. Monday.

All articles must be submitted in writing. Forms for weddings, engagements and anniversaries, only published Sundays, are available in the Lifestyle office. All materials must include the signature and telephone number of the person submitting them.

We cannot mail forms to persons in Midland. Pictures must be picked up in the Lifestyle office within one month after publication. To have a photo returned by mail, include a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Unclaimed photos are discarded after one month.

Photographs may be submitted with wedding and engagement announcements, and anniversary announcements of 50 years or more, but are not required. A portrait of the bride-elect or of the future bride and bridegroom together may be submitted with engagement announcements. Portraits of the bride only or of the wedding couple may be submitted with wedding announcements. A different photo must be submitted for the engagement and wedding announcements.

Photos should be vertical, black and white, glossy finish, studio portraits. Studio color pictures may be submitted, but quality reproduction cannot be assured. Snapshots generally are not acceptable and Polaroid shots are not accepted. The MRT reserves the right to deny publication of any photo due to quality or content.

There is no charge for publication of photographs and stories.

To celebrate the arrival of fall, use leaf-shaped cookie cutters for traditional shortbread cookies. You can vary the recipe to bake ginger shortbread and orange-poppy seed shortbread

Cut cookies into shapes of fall leaves

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

Fall's gentle shower of leaves may just inspire you to make these rich shortbread cookies. Use leaf-shaped cookie cutters to shape the dough or bake traditional Scottish-style shortbread wedges. The buttery flavor makes this cookie melt in your mouth, so be sure to use the real thing. Start with the plain butter version, then branch out with the ginger or orange-poppy seed variations another time. Because these cookies are so rich, you'll want to use regular cookie sheets. Insulated cookie sheets may cause the butter to leak out during baking.

SHORTBREAD COOKIES

1¼ cups all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons sugar
½ cup butter
Milk (optional)
Coarse sugar (optional)

In a medium mixing bowl stir together flour and sugar. Using a pastry blender or fork, cut in butter until the mixture resembles fine crumbs and starts to cling. Form into a ball. Knead in the bowl about 1 minute or until smooth.

On a lightly floured surface, roll the dough to ¼-inch thickness. Using desired cutters or a knife, cut into shapes that are 2 to 2½ inches in diameter, rerolling and cutting trimmings as necessary. If desired, brush cutouts with milk and sprinkle with sugar. Arrange cutouts on an ungreased cookie sheet.

Bake in a 325-degree oven for 14 to 16 minutes or until bottoms just start to brown. Remove from cookie sheet. Cool on a wire rack. Makes 12 to 14 cookies.

Nutrition facts per cookie: 123 cal., 8 g fat, 21 mg chol., 1 g pro., 12 g carbo., 78 mg sodium, 0 g fiber.

SHORTBREAD WEDGES: Prepare dough as directed. On an ungreased cookie sheet pat or roll dough into an 8-inch circle. Using your fingers, press to make a rounded edge. Cut circle into 16 pie-shaped wedges, leaving wedges in the circle on the cookie sheet. If desired, brush dough with milk and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a 325-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until bottom just starts to brown and center is set. Cut circle into wedges again while warm. Cool on the cookie sheet for 5 minutes. Remove from cookie sheet. Cool on a wire rack. Makes 16 wedges.

GINGER SHORTBREAD: Prepare cookies as directed, except stir ¼ cup finely chopped crystallized ginger and ¼ teaspoon ground ginger into flour.

ORANGE-POPPY SEED SHORTBREAD: Prepare cookies as directed, except stir 2 teaspoons poppy seed and 1 teaspoon finely shredded orange peel into the flour mixture.

Beyond basic burgers, try chicken

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

Ground chicken has recently joined ground turkey as another option to ground beef. The fat content of ground chicken can vary, but don't let it fool you. If made with breast meat, it can be lower in fat. However, if ground chicken contains dark meat and skin, it can have more fat than lean ground beef. It's a good idea to compare the nutritional information on the packages.

Because ground chicken is milder in flavor than beef, it may be more versatile in cooking. For example, in the recipe below, crushed tortilla chips and a pinch of chili powder turn mild-mannered ground chicken into one bold Tex-Mex burger. Monterey Jack cheese studded with jalapeno peppers adds even more kick.

For a real taste of cactus country, serve the burgers with blanched cactus pads. You can find them in the produce section of some supermarkets, often alongside specialty produce. To blanch, cook the cactus pads in boiling salted water for 30 to 60 seconds.

SOUTHWESTERN-STYLE BURGERS

¼ cup crushed nacho-flavored or plain tortilla chips (1 ounce)
3 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
¼ teaspoon chili powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 pound ground raw chicken or turkey
1 avocado, halved, seeded, peeled and sliced
4 ounces sliced Monterey Jack cheese with jalapeno peppers
4 kaiser rolls or hamburger buns, split
Lettuce leaves
Salsa

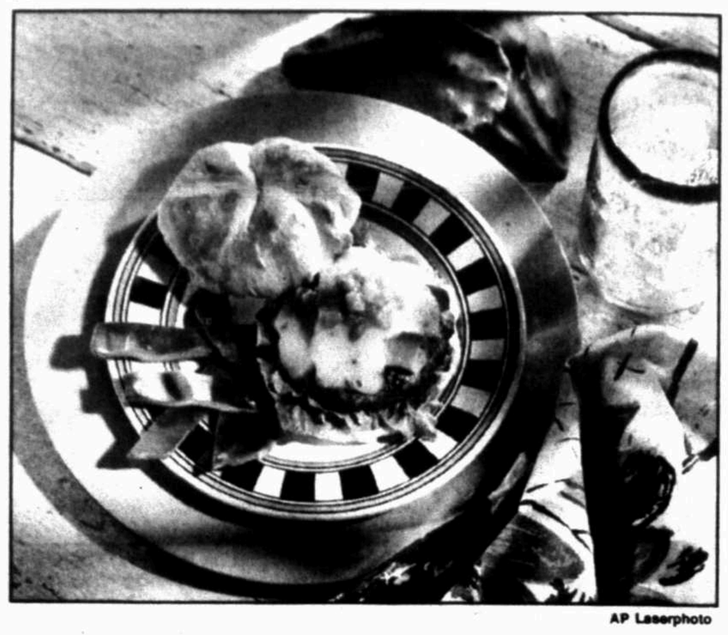

In a medium mixing bowl combine egg, tortilla chips, green pepper, chili powder, salt and pepper. Add chicken; mix well. Shape into four ¾-inch-thick patties.

To grill, on an uncovered grill place patties directly over medium-hot coals; cook for 15 to 18 minutes or until no longer pink, turning once. Top each patty with avocado slices and cheese. Grill for 1 to 2 minutes more or until cheese is melted. Toast rolls on grill, if desired.

(Or, to broil patties, preheat broiler. Place patties on the unheated rack of a broiler pan. Broil 3 to 4 inches from heat for 6 minutes. Turn patties and broil for 6 to 8 minutes more or until patties are no longer pink. Toast rolls under broiler, if desired. Top burgers with avocado and cheese. Broil for 1 to 2 minutes or until cheese is melted.)

To serve, place one lettuce leaf on bottom half of bun. Top with cooked burger and salsa. Makes 4 servings.

Nutritio facts for one serving: 424 cal., 23 g fat, 133 mg chol., 29 g pro., 26 g carbo., 674 mg sodium, 2 g fiber.

Make popcorn a lower-fat snack

By Marian Burros
N.Y. Times News Service

If you want fat-free popcorn at home, use a hot-air popper. But be prepared for a total lack of flavor.

America's arteries began clogging simply upon hearing the news last spring that movie popcorn is a nutritionist's horror show: a large tub (20 cups) with butter topping contains as much fat as eight Big Macs, and most of it is saturated fat, which damages the blood vessels and causes heart disease.

How wrenching to learn that something so airy and tasty, and required for movie watching, is unhealthful!

The shock still lingers, and some theater chains are trying to clean up their act.

Most of the fat comes from what the corn is popped with, so some theaters now serve air-popped popcorn, which contains no fat, or corn popped with canola oil instead of coconut oil.

Yet, this isn't the first time popcorn has been given a bad name.

A few years ago, nutritionists realized that the pop-it-yourself microwave varieties, which are surpassed only by potato chips and pretzels as the most popular American snack foods, were loaded with fat (although, as it turns out, not nearly as loaded as movie popcorn). And some brands, they found, were excessively high in sodium.

But improvements have been made. Today, many processors of the old microwave varieties have quietly cut back on fat and sodium, some by as much as 50 percent. And several new microwave varieties are low enough in fat that even the nutrition watchdogs do not object.

If you want fat-free popcorn at home, use a hot-air popper. But be prepared for a total lack of flavor.

Almost all microwave popcorns are now made with partly hydrogenated soybean oil rather than partly hydrogenated coconut oil. Hydrogenation is the process in which oils are hardened to prolong shelf life; partly hydrogenated soybean oil is lower in saturated fat.

But this solution may not last. New research has indicated that trans fats, which all hydrogenated oils contain, may clog arteries, too. Liquid canola oil, which like olive oil is rich in mono-unsaturated fats, is a healthier choice for both movie popcorn and the microwave varieties made at home.

Currently, none of the major manufacturers of microwave popcorn use canola oil. Some movie theaters are switching, though, and at least one brand of organic microwave popcorn found in health-food stores lists canola oil instead of hydrogenated fats as an ingredient.

Despite the popularity of the newer reduced-fat microwave popcorns (they make up almost 50 percent of microwave popcorn sales), choosing the lowest-fat varieties can be tricky. Be skeptical of healthy-sounding names. Even the Food and Drug Administration's new, tougher labeling laws leave some terms open to interpretation, and since names can be misleading, the numbers on the label are the only real clues to fat content.

For example, the terms "smart" and "natural" are not regulated by the new laws, and popcorns currently marketed as "smart" or "natural" may be among the lowest in fat or the highest in fat. Orville Redenbacher Smart Pop is one of the lowest-fat popcorns available, with only about 15 percent of its calories derived from fat. Newman's Own Oldstyle Picture Show Natural flavored popcorn sounds healthy, but 59 percent of its calories are from fat.

The terms "light" and "lite," on the other hand, are now defined and strictly regulated: the popcorn must contain at least 50 percent less fat (usually no more than 5 grams of fat per 3 cups popped corn) or one-third fewer calories than the regular version. They are far from fat-free but represent a respectable reduction in fat. Jiffy Pop Light Butter and Orville Redenbacher Natural Light microwave popcorns are two examples.

Cheese- and butter-flavored popcorns are often considerably higher in fat than their unflavored counterparts. But fat levels vary, depending on how much of the flavor comes from real butter or real cheese or from artificial flavors. Read the ingredient labels to know for sure.

Still, despite improvements in nutrition labeling, deciphering the popcorn code isn't easy. According to the Food and Drug Administration, a standard serving of popcorn is 30 grams, or about 1 ounce, which should equal about 3½ cups popped. But processors say that because of different hybrids of corn, some popped kernels are larger than others, providing as much as 6 cups for about the same 30 grams.

Flavored popcorn generally provides fewer cups for a standard 30-gram serving because the added flavoring weighs down the kernels.

To complicate matters further, some labels list nutrition numbers for tablespoons of unpopped corn.

Trying to compare fat grams for a cup of popped corn can be frustrating, at best. Aside from performing complex calculations, the best approach for comparing fat information is to focus on the number of fat grams per serving and assume that you will eat similar amounts of popcorn (by weight) regardless of how large or small the individual kernels are.

Here are a few suggestions to aid the search for a more healthful popcorn:

■ The brands at health-food stores are often the lowest in fat and sodium.

■ Bear in mind that the standard serving is not a lot of popcorn. By comparison, the smallest tub of popcorn sold in movie theaters contains five cups.

■ Prepackaged popcorns, especially the cheese and caramel varieties, are usually quite high in fat.

■ If all else fails, try the greasy fingers test. After eating, if your fingers have that telltale greasy look and feel, it's time to switch brands.

GOMEZ'S CELEBRATE SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Midlanders Roberto and Yolanda Gomez celebrate their 25th Anniversary on Tuesday, Oct. 4.

Roberto and the former Yolanda Hinojos were married on October 4, 1969 at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Odessa. They have two daughters, Deborah Gomez of Midland and Teresa Gomez of College Station.

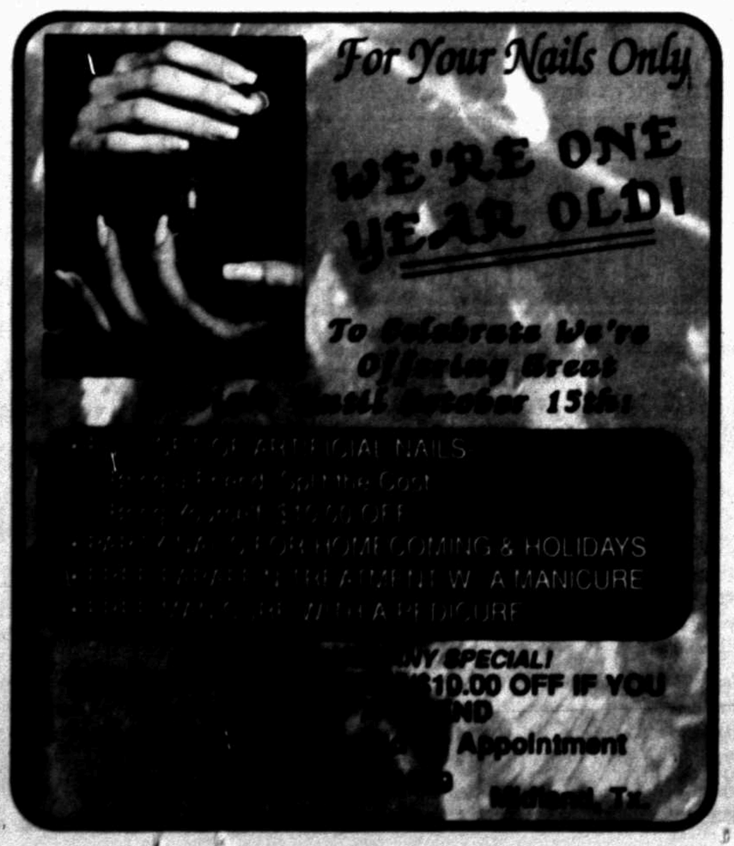

Roberto served four years in the U.S. Air Force. The couple has lived in Midland for 20 years. Roberto is employed by United Parcel Service and Yolanda is employed by Southwestern Bell. They are members of St. Ann's Catholic Church.

FREETAGE-STEVENS

Callie Doris Freetage and Larry Gene Stevens, both of Arlington, were wed Saturday October 1 at Woods Chapel Baptist Church in Arlington. The bride is the daughter of Janice Melton of Midland and the late Dr. George Freetage. The bridegroom is the son of Kenneth and Sue Stevens of Fort Worth.

Miss Freetage is a 1994 graduate of the University of Texas at Arlington with a Bachelors of Business degree. She is a self-employed real estate broker. The bridegroom is currently a business owner in the automotive industry.

Success in school is family endeavor

By Carin Rubenstein
N.Y. Times News Service

Recently, Nancy Romanchek had a bad dream: she was in the seventh grade, and on the first day of school, she forgot her locker combination and lost her class schedule.

But she's not among those going back to school; Mrs. Romanchek, 45, of Langhorne, Pa., is jittery about the new school year for her two sons, James, 11, and Todd, 7.

James, a new sixth grader, started middle school last month, and Mrs. Romanchek is so concerned about how he'll adjust to being in school with 14- and 15-year-olds and the influence the older children will have on him that she is having anxiety dreams, she said.

Mrs. Romanchek is also worried about Todd, who she feels has not yet been helped to achieve his potential, and whether this time he'll get a teacher who can help him blossom.

'Parents have to be alert about what's going on; they have to take charge of their children's education and participate in an authoritative way.'

— Dr. Chandra Muller
University of Texas

AS HAPPENS every year as schools around the country open, anxious parents nationwide are voicing their fears and concerns about the next school year and how well their children will do.

But now, the first wave of completed research based on a continuing, comprehensive national survey of students and their parents, teachers and school principals over a decade, reveals that parents are justified in being concerned, since a great deal of the responsibility for children's school achievement falls on them.

Parents can no longer depend on schools to look out for their child's interests, said Dr. Chandra Muller, an assistant professor of sociology at the University of Texas in Austin, who is one of more than 150 researchers now analyzing the data from the survey, the National Education Longitudinal Study.

"Parents have to be alert about what's going on; they have to take charge of their children's education and participate in an authoritative way," she said. That does not mean dictating to a child, she said, but talking with the child and reaching agreement on family rules.

THE STUDY, sponsored by the Education Department, includes information on 26,000 students who were eighth graders in 1988, who were randomly selected from 1,057 public and private schools. Beginning in 1988, the students in the survey took specially designed standardized tests in math, reading, science and social studies and answered a broad range of questions about their lives. One or two of each student's teachers, a school principal and a parent were also interviewed about the students. The testing and interviews were repeated when students were in the 10th and 12th grades, and the interviews continued after graduation.

"This is one of the first studies ever to include so much contextual data, with the point of view of children, teachers, principals and parents," said Dr. Jeff Owings, the chief of the Longitudinal and Household Studies Branch in the National Center for Education Statistics in Washington, who is monitoring the study's data. At least one more follow-up study is planned for 1998, he said.

Dr. Muller and other researchers have compiled some of the findings:

■ STUDENTS DO best in school when their parents "take a managerial role in relation to the school, viewing themselves as being in charge of their child's educational career," Dr. Muller said.

■ Children whose parents talk to them about school events or what they learned in class do better on achievement tests, said Dr. Muller, whose most recent paper on the work will appear as a chapter in "Transforming Schools," a book to be published this fall by Garland Press. Thirty-seven percent of the eighth graders said their parents spoke with them about school three or more times during the school year, Dr. Muller said. The other students said their parents discussed the issue only once or twice, or not at all, she said.

■ Children whose parents restrict television during the week, provide music classes outside school and offer some form of adult supervision after school also do better on achievement tests, Dr. Muller found. About 16 percent of the eighth graders said their parents "often" limit the time they spend watching television. In addition, children who spend less than three hours a day without adult supervision have higher test scores than those who are unsupervised more often, Dr. Muller said.

■ CHILDREN WHOSE teacher expects the class to achieve at a higher than average level do better on achievement tests in math and reading, said Dr. Shelley Drazen, another researcher.

■ The more homework that teachers assign, Dr. Drazen said, the higher the students' achievement level. When possible, parents should request a teacher for their child who will "expect that the child can succeed and learn more than a minimum, and one who also assigns a fair amount of homework," she said.

Because Allegra Kaiser's third-grade class had three different teachers last year at Public School 41 in Greenwich Village, Augusta Kaiser, 45, felt she had to select the best teacher for her daughter this year.

"The teacher shapes the year from Day One," said Mrs. Kaiser, who enlisted the principal's assistance in choosing a teacher she hoped will be "understanding and sensitive to my daughter's needs."

WHATEVER A child's age, parents should try to defuse natural anxiety about going back to school by projecting a sense of confidence about school. Convey that "learning is exciting and school is important," said Dr. Jane Healy, an educational psychologist in Vail, Colo., and the author of "Your Child's Growing Mind" (Doubleday, 1994; $12.50). Following are further suggestions.

■ Don't expect a painless transition. "Up to a point, a child needs to struggle a little bit to grow into the responsibilities of a new year of school," Dr. Healy said. Unless a child is having prolonged academic difficulties, she added, "it's the child's job to make school work."

■ Anticipate mistakes. Help children buy school supplies, but remember that "it's their job to remember to take the books and pencils to school every day," Dr. Healy said. If your daughter gets a bad mark for forgetting a notebook, that's a mistake she can learn from. It's not your job "to pick up the pieces and keep her from ever making a mistake," she added.

■ Impose structure. Arrange the household so that there is a regular time for homework, when the television is off, Dr. Healy said, and send your children this message: "School is so important that we are willing to bend our lives out of shape to help you do well there."

AT WIT'S END

Home is where the food is

By Erma Bombeck

For every parent who has nightmares about his grown kids returning home to live, there is a parent who is afraid they won't come home again.

Bombeck

Their offspring haven't divorced them — they've just misplaced them for a few years.

It's probably of little comfort, but for all your 72 hours of labor, 20-some years of sacrifice, devotion and love, you can be replaced by a girl with an I.Q. smaller than her waist, a car that doesn't run, or a social life of sitting around a table drinking beer and saying you should call home.

The first reaction is to play the part of the martyr. A few years ago, I had a son who accepted a teaching job in American Samoa. A couple of months went by without hearing from him, so I penned what I thought to be a letter he would need therapy to get through. I ended with a line I had always wanted to use: "What's the matter? Did you break your arm? P.S. I hardly hurt at all today."

By return mail, a stranger's handwriting informed me my son had had a motorcycle accident and had broken his arm. A picture was enclosed.

It's a no-win situation for parents. Kids always have an answer. "I wanted to call you after the Billy Graham rally, but the phones were all tied up." "I knew I'd see you in six months, so I thought I'd save all my news until then." "I lost your number and you're unlisted."

For a lot of years, all three of them were in and out of schools and jobs. However, I discovered something that would bring them running to my doorstep. Make a dinner and they will come.

Their field of dreams is really basic. It is a square field of white tablecloth, covered with food that is homemade and doesn't come in a Styrofoam box with a plastic fork.

Celebrate something. That usually gets the family together. The word around our house is, "If you don't show up — you get trashed."

Plan something for them to do. If you don't, you are treated to an entire evening of ear-splitting MTV. Run old home movies, choose up sides for games, cook out — anything.

When you get them all together around a table, resist the temptation to conduct the Trials at Nuremberg — resurrecting past sins and parading their failures before their eyes again. They can recite them by memory anyway.

For a brief moment, you all live in the past and you're a family again, and you get a warm feeling that maybe you can go home again. Then one of them will revisit his old bedroom, expecting it to be a shrine with a candle burning. It's now a sewing room. You all get over it.

Common food preservatives may help fight cancer

By Paul Raeburn

NEW YORK (AP) — Two widely used food preservatives boosted levels of a natural cancer fighter in laboratory animals and appear to do the same thing in humans, a researcher reported recently.

Advocates of natural foods have long decried the use of preservatives, but Dr. Andrew Dannenberg of Cornell Medical College found that the preservatives BHA and BHT "revved up" the gene for an enzyme that helps destroy carcinogens before they trigger tumors.

When the genes are cranked up, they produce more of the enzyme, providing better protection against cancer-causing substances in the environment, Dannenberg reported at the International Conference on Cancer Prevention at Rockefeller University in New York.

BHA and BHT are synthetic additives used as preservatives in cookies, crackers and a wide variety of other foods.

The results do not mean that foods should be pumped up with even more preservatives, he said. The findings are important because they uncover a cancer prevention mechanism that appears to be part of the explanation for the well-known anti-cancer properties of broccoli, cauliflower and brussels sprouts.

"They are amazing vegetables," Dannenberg said. "They have an amazing array of anti-cancer compounds."

His research shows that at least part of the effect of those compounds comes from revving up the same gene affected by BHA and BHT.

The gene produces an enzyme with the mile-long name UDP-glucuronosyltransferase, or UGT. The study found elevated levels of the enzyme in the liver, kidneys and small intestines of rats fed higher doses of BHA and BHT than are normally found in foods, Dannenberg said.

He then found preliminary evidence that the substances do the same thing in humans. Dannenberg said he has also found that sulforaphane, an anti-cancer agent recently isolated in broccoli, exerts its action partly in the same way, by revving up the gene for UGT.

In a separate animal study, Dannenberg found that a widely prescribed anti-ulcer drug called Prilosec also appears to protect against cancer by causing genes to turn up their production of enzymes.

The results appear at a time when researchers have become widely convinced of the value of fruits and vegetables in preventing cancer, but have made little headway at figuring out exactly why that's true.

"I think it's going to be decades before we sort this out," said Dr. Walter Willett of the Harvard School of Public Health, a leading authority on nutrition and cancer. "But this doesn't mean you can't do anything. You can eat more fruits and vegetables."

The National Cancer Institute is conducting more than 20 studies of diet and cancer, many focusing on chemical relatives of vitamin A called retinoids, said Dr. Lee Wattenberg of the University of Minnesota.

Fruit bars are 'heart-smart'

By Beverly Bundy
N.Y. Times News Service

It's easier to eat healthfully when heart-smart fare is close at hand. The recipe is from the Quaker Oats people.

SUNSHINE FRUIT BARS

1½ cups uncooked oats, quick or old-fashioned
1 cup all-purpose flour
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt, optional
1 cup orange juice
¼ cup vegetable oil
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
6-ounce package diced dried mixed fruit
2 additional tablespoons uncooked oats, quick or old-fashioned

Heat oven to 375 degrees. Lightly grease 13x9-inch baking pan or spray with non-stick cooking spray. Combine 1½ cups oats, flour, sugar, cinnamon, baking soda and salt. Add combined juice, oil, egg and vanilla; mix well. Stir in fruit. Spread into prepared pan. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons oats. Bake for 20 to 22 minutes or until lightly browned and edges pull away from sides of pan. Cool completely. Cut into 20 bars. Store tightly covered.

Butterflies Are Free

Story by Georgia Todd Temple

Design by Missy Hallmark

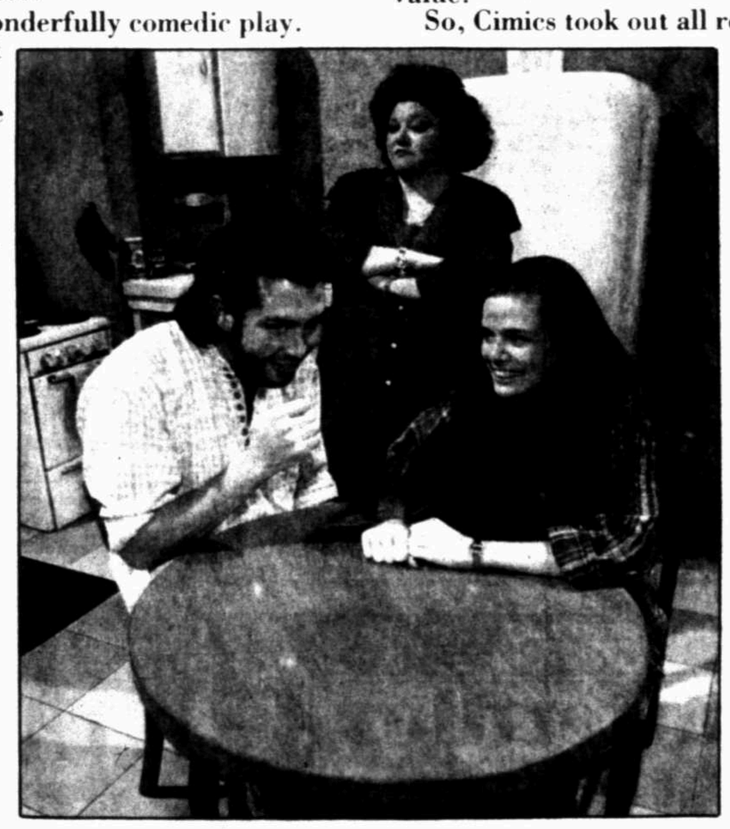

Don Baker (Coby Archa) gives his mind a picture of Jill Tanner (Chyree LeMaster), the young lady living next to him in the apartment house, in this scene from "Butterflies Are Free," opening Friday at Theatre Midland.

Revised 1969 romantic comedy to take stage

A sheltered young blind man meets a spirited free-thinking young woman and romance is the response in Leonard Gersche's "Butterflies Are Free," being staged by Midland Community Theatre and Midland College.

"It's got a lot of warmth to it, a lot of tenderness, a lot of love, and, also a lot of comedy," said director John Cimics, who is a Midland College theater instructor.

"It's a wonderfully comedic play. A lot of that is to the credit of the cast bringing a wonderful sense of humor to the lines."

Don Baker (Coby Archa) and Jill Tanner (Chyree LeMaster) laugh at the expense of Mrs. Baker (Darcy Georges) in this scene from "Butterflies Are Free," a Midland College-Midland Community Theatre production.

The cast includes Coby Archa as Don Baker, the young man who has been blind since birth; Chyree LeMaster as Jill Tanner, the young lady he meets; Darcy Georges as Mrs. Baker, Don's overprotective mother; and Bob Cowdery as Ralph Austin, a friend of Jill's.

In the beginning, Cimics had some reservations about material included in the play and its suitability for an MCMCT audience.

" 'Butterflies Are Free" was written in 1969, and in '69 the hippy movement was going on, and also part of the social revolution was finding its way into theater. It almost became commonplace for there to be nudity, or partial nudity, drugs or alcohol in plays. Many times they were not necessary. They were for shock value.

"In the original script for 'Butterflies Are Free' there are elements of that. When I looked at the script, to my mind, it simply wasn't necessary to have it. The whole thrust of the story can be told in very gentle and loving ways without having to rely on shock value."

So, Cimics took out all references to "drugs, alcohol and nudity" to present a play that is "suitable for the whole family. It carries a very lovely message I think people can appreciate from a lot of different points of view."

The script's revision was a major factor in Ms. LeMaster's auditioning.

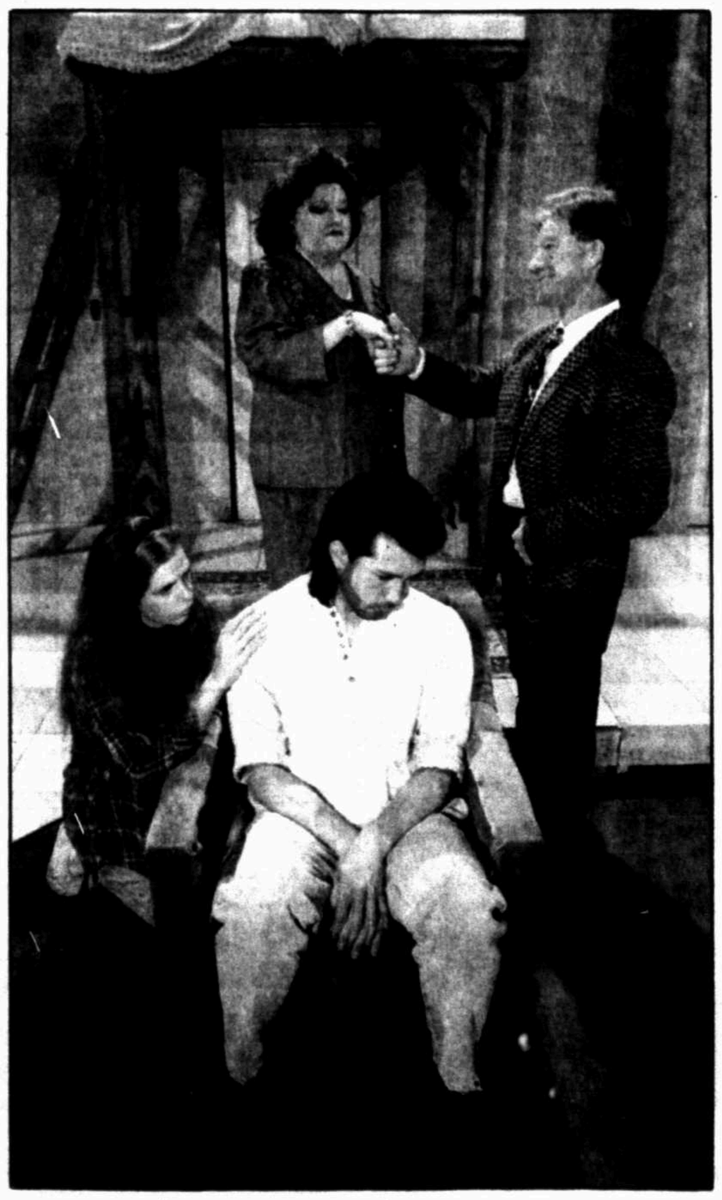

"I went down to the theater and basically wanted to see what the show was going to be like, and there was a little sheet on the table saying that the script would be revised and all references to drugs and any nudity would be cut out," Ms. LeMaster said. "That's the reason I went ahead and decided to try out for it.

"I really don't want to do a show that would compromise my ethics or morals, and this one would have in

Show time

"Butterflies Are Free" is to open Friday at Theatre Midland's Mabee Theatre II, 2000 W. Wadley Ave. The season membership production — a joint effort by Midland Community Theatre and Midland College — is to be staged through Oct. 22. Tickets, priced at $6 and $8, may be purchased through the theater's box office, 682-4111.

that I would have been asked to be on stage in a bra and panties as part of what was in the original script. And I would not do that, she said.

"Any show that I'm doing I like it to be something that I wouldn't mind my grandparents coming to or my parents coming to, something I can be proud of instead of embarrassed."

Ms. LeMaster is working on a degree in speech with a minor in drama at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin. Since UTPB does not offer a major in drama, she is taking drama classes at Midland College. She was drawn to the audition for "Butterflies Are Free" because she had worked with the director before both on stage and in class.

"I've worked with Mr. Cimics in three other shows," she said. "One being 'Glass Menagerie.' I played Laura, and I really liked his style of directing. The next show was 'Our Lady of the Tortilla,' and I just played a very small role in that. And, finally, 'Learned Ladies' was the third show.

"With each one I felt he was a wonderful director, very easy to get along with, and he works very well with the cast members."

For Cowdery, who works at Herb Hall Co., the audition represented an opportunity to participate in an activity he enjoys.

"It was a lot of fun," Cowdery said, referring to acting. "Getting in front of people is pretty wild. It's a whole other world. When you get the reaction from the crowd, it's like a natural high."

Plus, Cowdery said, "I missed it; I missed the group, just being together. The family that forms from acting."

Actually, almost all of the cast members of "Butterflies Are Free" have worked together before because they were in the MC-MCT production "The Learned Ladies." The only exception is Ms. Georges, who is new to the stage in Midland. Her last role was in California some years ago when she played Snow White at Disneyland.

"It paid the bills while I was an aspiring young actress," Ms. Georges said of the experience. "It was fun. Long hours. Hard work, but fun. The kids were just incredible. And everybody becomes a kid when they walk through the gates of Disneyland."

That was in 1979. Since then, Ms. Georges has been playing a different role.

"I took time off just to become a mother and housewife. You act every day when you are a mother. You just don't get paid for it."

Part of what drew Ms. Georges back into theater was a change in her martial status.

"I was divorced this summer, and decided to do something for me," she said. "I knew the play so that's when I decided I was going to try out. I really could picture myself as the overprotective mother."

But it had been so long since she had auditioned for any part, that Ms. Georges found herself nervous at the audition.

"I was scared to death. I auditioned and never dreamed I would get the part. The audition was scary enough. I'd been out of it for so long and been living in reality for too many years."

At the audition, she realized the idea of getting back into acting frightened her. She left the audition and was in the lobby on her way out the doors when Cimics — whom she did not know at the time was the director — changed her mind.

"He came out into the lobby and shook my hand," said Ms. Georges, who sells Mary Kay. "He introduced himself to me. He was friendly and warm. Suddenly, it was a warm experience, and I was back into the theater again, and I don't think I will ever leave.

"I hadn't acted in so long, I had convinced myself that was a past life. But, his warmth, saying 'come on in, we're a wonderful group of people,' rekindled the dream."

She's glad she auditioned and accepted the role.

Archa's reason for being at the audition was different than Ms. Georges'.

"I thought it would be a challange for me as an actor to play a blind person without looking dazed and confused," said Archa, who has been acting on stage since he was in junior high school. "I was right. It is a challenge."

And, unlike Ms. Georges, he knew the director well.

"I really enjoyed working with him as a director," said Archa, referring to "The Learned Ladies." "I thought he was really experienced and professional."

The North Carolina native finds the play has taken life since he first read it.

"It's a fun play," said Archa, who works at Regis in Midland Park Mall. "On paper, the play didn't interest me much. We as a cast have really bonded together and it has turned into something really different. The cast has really grown together, and it's a really good play."

Cimics agrees.

"I sit there watching the rehearsals laughing one moment and crying the next moment. I feel really confident that the people who see it will feel that way, too."

Discount theaters: You can't beat cheap seats, popcorn

By John Horn
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Would you pay more than $7 for "Terminal Velocity" to find out if Charlie Sheen finally has learned to act? Is it worth the price of a steak sandwich to witness yet another sequel of "The Karate Kid?"

More and more moviegoers are reaching the inevitable conclusion: No matter how you figure, some movies aren't worth more than the change underneath the sofa cushions.

The operators of discount theaters agree.

From Florida to New York to California, a new generation of low-cost movie houses are opening their doors, most charging $2 or less. Their featured attractions range from critical bombs to Academy Award-winning blockbusters, and sometimes the popcorn's on special, too.

The one drawback: a long wait. Most movies don't hit discount theaters until more than two months after their first-run debut.

Some of the new discount theaters are refurbished first-run houses, while a few leading exhibitors are building discount complexes from the ground up.

The hallmarks of the discount theater visit used to be dirty, tarpit like floors and seats so threadbare even the Salvation Army wouldn't touch them. These days, however, the accommodations are often first class — some discount theaters now have sound systems rivaling the fanciest showcase theaters.

"Discount theaters really have a different feel now — and the audience is beginning to rediscover them," says Jack Clark, president of the National Association of Discount Theaters. "Some of them are still dumps, but most of them are state of the art."

There are approximately 25,000 movie screens in North America. Although there are no official statistics, as many as 2,000 charge discounted admissions to all shows.

Film fans have three different reasons to like the cheap seats.

First, a night at the movies can be prohibitively expensive. A cash-strapped family of four that will have to pay $20 for "The Little Rascals" can postpone the trip a few weeks and see it in a discount house for as little as $6 total.

Second, some movies simply aren't worth full fare. "Forrest Gump" may be a value at $6 but "North" at the same price is a ripoff. Why pay for a diamond when you're getting cubic zirconium?

Third, it's often better to watch a movie in a theater than on home video. A discount theater isn't any more expensive than a rental at the local Blockbuster, and the big-screen experience can't be matched by a living-room Magnavox. That's probably why the visually stunning "Jurassic Park" claims the record for all-time discount theater gross with nearly $25 million.

Discount theaters can give fresh life to tired releases.

In the especially competitive and just-concluded summer season less-than-perfect films quickly were bumped from first-run screens. Those few who actually wanted to see "City Slickers 2" in June and missed it could catch it in September and save money in the process.

Like "Jurassic Park," there are some movies that play much better in a theater than on television, explaining the current success of "Speed" and "Maverick" at the so-called "dollar houses."

The romantic comedy "Four Weddings and a Funeral" also performed particularly well at discount chains, even though it already was available on home video.

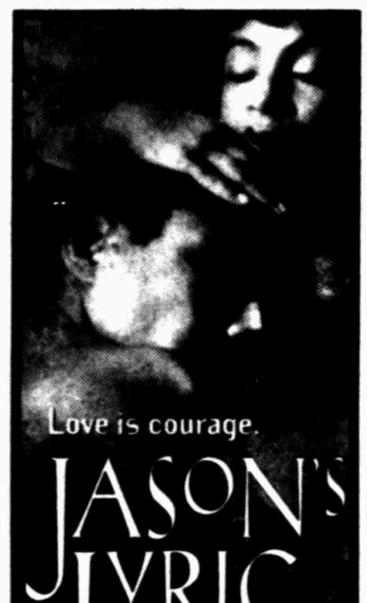

"That was a pleasant surprise for us," says Jim McKenna, whose SuperSaver Cinemas has nearly 200 discount screens nationwide. "I knew the film would do well in California, but it also did well in Texas and Colorado."

While SuperSaver and Cinemark Theatres are building new discount theaters, Cineplex Odeon successfully has converted some underperforming first-run venues to dollar houses.

Cineplex's relatively new Fairfax Cinemas triplex in Hollywood could not compete with a rash of new neighborhood theaters. So Cineplex in August slashed its admissions to $2 and introduced a

HOROSCOPE

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Success will come from specializing. Rein in your imagination and focus on one project at a time. Business will bring higher profits by the year's end. A raise, promotion or coveted transfer will come early in 1995. Those who start their own companies will enjoy wonderful luck.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian Groucho Marx, fashion designer Donna Karan, actress Lorraine Bracco.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Well-meaning friends offer you lots of advice. Although they have some good ideas, you would be wise to ignore their suggestions regarding financial matters. Spending too much money on fun could cause domestic tensions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A close relative or friend could put you in a difficult position. Take care of your family obligations even if they are time-consuming. Praise gets around. You reap new rewards for past efforts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Try not to let someone's mood swings get to you. You may be better off financially than you think. An informal get-together could be a lot of fun tonight. Put your best foot forward.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are someone to be reckoned with today. Do not try to ride roughshod over an individual who is important to your happiness. Show special kindness to the needy, sick and elderly. Offer encouragement!

LEO (July 28-Aug. 22): Your intuition is trying to tell you something. Listen to it! You could be worried about a pending decision for a very good reason. An emphasis on spiritual growth creates greater family unity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Social activities enjoy highly favorable influences today. You could run into a pal whom you have not seen in ages. Have fun reminiscing about the past. A childhood dream could still come true.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A spiritual experience gives you wonderful insights. There is new emphasis on letting go of the past. If meeting with a former romantic partner, remain calm and polite. An old grievance is not worth pursuing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Friends or relatives will share good news. Put more time and effort into a romantic relationship. A change of scenery could give you a clever career idea. Weigh the advantages and drawbacks of self-employment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A different approach may be needed if a delightful romantic interlude is to develop into a more permanent relationship. Promises made in haste are apt to be regretted. History or philosophy books hold strong appeal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The road to romance could be both happy and circuitous. Reach out to those who can aid your efforts. An afternoon of cycling, golf or tennis helps you and your loved ones stay fit.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Map out a plan for the coming week and you will feel much more optimistic about financial affairs. File away any creative ideas that strike now. An acquaintance may surprise you with a small gift.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spur-of-the-moment invitations and trips could bring greater pleasure than carefully-planned social events. A romantic relationship could have more downs than ups today. Guard against a tendency to be overly gullible.

Opening lead: Queen of ♠

Follow the play of this hand. Was the result normal, or could either declarer or the defenders have done better?

Note North's raise to four hearts. South's sequence of first doubling then cue-bidding created a game force, so North could only obey orders and hope for the best.

West led the queen of spades, taken by the ace. Declarer cashed the ace and king of clubs, then ruffed a club high. A spade ruff in the closed hand provided the entry for another club ruffed high, then came a trump to the ace followed by the queen of trumps to West's king.

West shifted to a diamond, taken by the king. East reverted to spades and, whether declarer ruffed high or low, West had to score another trump trick for down one.

Was South simply unlucky to encounter a 4-0 trump break? What's your verdict?

In effect, declarer set up the trump promotion for the enemy. Better timing could have avoided that trap.

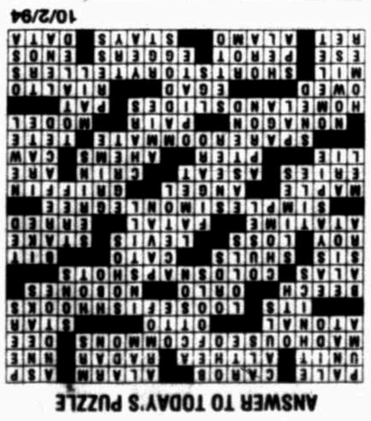

After ruffing the first club high, declarer should return to hand with the ace of trumps to ruff another club. Now declarer simply leads a diamond, and all is well.

East can do no better than return a spade. Declarer ruffs low and leads a high trump to force out the king. The diamond return is ruffed low, the last trumps are drawn and declarer's remaining club is the fulfilling trick.

Declarer's diamond play, a Scissors Coupe to the trade, cut the enemy communications at the key moment.

CHEAP: New generation of theaters opens doors

(From 2G)

$2.99 "bottomless" popcorn tub and soft drink with free refills.

Similarly, the company's Worldwide complex in Manhattan did not attract full houses at full-price admissions and was losing money. It, too, went discount.

Both the Hollywood and Manhattan theaters are now profitable, says Cineplex spokesman Howard Lichtman. "In Manhattan, there is no second-run house of that quality," he says. More than 1 million patrons annually pass through Worldwide's doors.

The operators of discount theaters complain that some studios — particularly Paramount Pictures and the Walt Disney Co. — make business difficult, convinced that discount houses hurt first-run grosses. Paramount has tried (and failed) to insist on a minimum admission price, and Disney usually "parks" its movies for a month in movie purgatory between the first-run and discount runs.

"I think we have re-expanded the audience and it's helped the first-run business," says McKenna, noting that people who used to wait for videocassettes are now coming back to theaters. Many other patrons, he says, see movies twice — once when the films first come out, then again at a discount.

As the discount theaters do better business, the studios demand a greater share of the ticket revenues: up to 50 percent today from 35 percent a few years ago, exhibitors say. Since per-capita concession stand revenues are not particularly high, discount theater operators have narrow profit margins.

That doesn't mean that they're going away, though.

"It's a great way of generating revenue," says Nikki Rocco, senior vice president of distribution and marketing at Universal Pictures.

The theaters "don't penalize people because they can't afford it in a first-run house and it doesn't do any harm to the first-run engagement."

Ballet company is on its toes

FORT WORTH (NYT) — When Paul Mejia arrived in Fort Worth to take over the post of artistic director of the Fort Worth Ballet in 1987, he saw more potential than actual quality.

"I told board members, 'You have a very nice group of student dancers,'" he said.

The organization had a history of squabbles and changes of direction, and was still shaking from what many considered to be the heavy-handed actions of ballet supporter Anne Hendricks Bass in the dismissal of Mejia's predecessors.

But Mejia, a George Balanchine protege, husband of famed Balanchine ballerina Suzanne Farrell and former co-artistic director, with Maria Tallchief, of the Chicago City Ballet, was optimistic about his new job.

"I had very good feelings," he said. "The board really wanted something of quality.... I told them I wasn't coming here to see what develops. I was coming to work for my whole life. And they let me do my work."

Seven years later, Mejia, now 46, is artistic director of the newly renamed, newly expanded Fort Worth Dallas Ballet. The ballet began its season this month in Dallas and will perform in October in Fort Worth.

When Mejia arrived, Fort Worth Ballet had an annual budget of $1.4 million; the projected budget for 1994-95 is $2.6 million, and that has been achieved with seven consecutive years of budgeting in the black.

ENTERTAINMENT IN BRIEF

■ Singer to perform

■ Poetry workshop set

A Poetry Workshop by Carol Reposa is set for 1 p.m. until 3 p.m. Oct. 15, at Midland College Roadrunner Room.

Participants may bring one or two of their own poems for discussion.

The World Day of Poetry activities are sponsored by the Permian Basin Chapter of the Poetry Society in conjunction with Midland College and Pages & Prints.

A $10 fee includes the workshop and a 1994 membership in the Poetry Society.

Registration needs to be made as soon as possible since space is limited for the workshop. Send reservations to: Permian Basin Poetry Workshop, 4022 Candy Lane, Odessa, 79762.

■ Events planned

MCCAMEY — The McCamey Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring its annual CASI Chili Cook Off and Arts and Crafts Fair Oct. 29 at the Santa Fe Park, East Highway 67.

The day begins at 9 a.m. and includes entertainment, antiques, collectibles, a pet show and Halloween carnival rides.

Those wanting to reserve a booth for the Arts and Crafts Fair need to call the chamber of commerce, 1-652-8202, for a booth reservation form. Booth fee is $10.

Chili is $15. Brisket is $15 and both are $25.

■ Training to begin

The American Airpower Heritage Museum at the Confederate Air Force is conducting docent training sessions 9 a.m. Saturdays beginning Oct. 22.

Five training sessions are planned to acquaint potential docents with the exhibits. Docent manuals will be provided. For more information call Dot Erwin, volunteer coordinator, 567-3010.

■ Art show set

HOBBS, N.M. — The Llano Estacado Art Association's annual Fall Open Art Show is set for Oct. 17-28 in Watson Hall on the campus of New Mexico Junior College.

Entry fees are $5 for LEAA members and $7 for non-members. Memberships are $10 a year.

Entries must be original works of art, completed within the last two years and not previously shown in a LEAA show.

Persons must be at least 16 to enter.

The show is free and open to the public from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. For more information call Carol Skinner, 1-505-392-3458.

■ Auditions set

SAN ANTONIO — Opryland Productions Group is conducting auditions in six Texas cities in October and November for Fiesta Texas theme park here and Opryland theme part in Nashville.

Auditions in Lubbock are set for 1 to 4 p.m. Oct. 10 in the ballroom of the University Center at Texas Tech University.

Auditions will be held in San Antonio in the Zaragoza Theater, Fiesta Texas, Oct. 24 through 26, with the first day designed for instrumentalists only.

Appointments are not necessary for interviews and auditions. Singers need to bring three vocal selections, as well as sheet music in the proper key or a cassette tape for accompaniment. Singers also need to bring appropriate clothing for a possible dance callback.

Dancers need to prepare a one-minute routine. Improvisational and character actors will need to be prepared with a one-minute comic monologue that shows strong character development.

For more information call 1-800-94-STAGE.

■ Pianist to perform

LUBBOCK — Pianist Doug Smith is to perform at 8 p.m. Friday at the University Center Allen Theatre, Texas Tech University.

Smith, a graduate of Texas Tech who began playing the piano before he was 2 years old, has more than 200 pieces of copyrighted material and three albums to his credit.

Tickets are $5 for Tech students and $8 for others. To purchase tickets call University Center Activities, 1-806-742-3621.

■ Revival scheduled

Midland Community Theatre is presenting a revival of "Gargoyles and Scarecrow Sins" through Oct. 15 at the Yucca Theatre.

Written by Big Spring playwright Rick Hamby, the play takes place at Tanner's Funeral Home in Big Spring.

Parental guidance is suggested. For reservations call 682-4111.

■ Concert planned

"Bells, Brass and Pipes," a free handbell concert, will be presented by three area churches at 3 p.m. today at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave.

This is the second joint concert for Celebration! of Grace Presbyterian Church, The Agape Ringers of First Presbyterian Church and the Jubilate Deo Ringers of First Presbyterian Church in Odessa.

Highlighting the concert will be the world premiere of guest conductor Kevin McChesney's arrangement of "For All the saints," commissioned by the directors for their choirs.

Also performing with the choirs will be the Lone Star Brass Quintet and organist Lester Ackerman.

A reception will follow.

■ Craft Show set

OZONA — The Crockett County Arts & Crafts Guild is holding its ninth annual Craft Show from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 5 at the 4-H barn.

Those interested in displaying their work may contact T.K. Bryant, Box 1797, Ozona, 76943, or call Bryant, 1-392-3557.
