DA's race needs runoff

One of three possible runoffs materialized here Saturday for elected offices involving either Scurry County or the 132nd Judicial District.

Snyder lawyers Ernie Armstrong and Mike Line will now face each other June 2 in a runoff for the Democratic nomination for district attorney. Voters from both Scurry and Borden Counties will again go to the polls.

Armstrong led a field of three candidates, but failed to gain sufficient votes to outpoll the combined tallies for both Line and candidate James Clark.

Returns as of Monday had Armstrong with 1,541 votes; Line with 1,146; and Clark with 550.

The Democratic primary here prompted 3,340 votes — approximately the same number which voted four years ago. In 1980, some 3,450 Democratic votes were counted.

Only the Democratic primary featured a ballot with contested races. Come November, however, Democratics and Republicans will face off for two positions, district judge and county commissioner, Pct. 3.

Saturday, some 179 Republican votes were counted here, compared to 183 four years ago.

In all other races, Democrats emerging as winners Saturday will be unopposed in November barring the possibility of a runoff. Regardless, in the races for district attorney, county attorney, sheriff, county tax assessor-collector, county commissioner, Pct. 1, and constable, only the names of Democrats will appear on the November ballot.

Two other Democratic races Saturday featured three candidates, but both Eldon Perry, incumbent commissioner for Pct. 1; and Rona Sikes, a candidate for tax assessor-collector, managed outright wins.

Perry's race was the closest. He gained 337 votes Saturday compared to opponents Milton Stephens, with 182; and Fred Cross, with 131.

For the tax assessor-collector's position, Sikes' total of 1,725 was the winner over June Bellamy with 993 and Ed Thrift with 446.

ERNIE ARMSTRONG
...1,541 votes...

MIKE LINE
...1,146 votes...

Both Perry and Sikes will be unopposed on the November ballot.

Recount likely in U.S. Senate ballot

AUSTIN (AP) — Kent Hance has been the underdog in other elections and says it never worried him.

"In 1974, nobody thought I could win (a state Senate race) except me, my wife and one of my two children," Hance said Sunday after winning the most votes in the Democratic Senate primary and a spot in the June 2 runoff for the nomination.

Former U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels had been considered the front-runner in the primary campaign.

"We felt like the strongest thing all along was that we'd be in the runoff," Hance said. "But we felt like that (finishing first) was an outside possibility."

The conservative Lubbock congressman said it was his opposition to granting amnesty to illegal aliens that put him in front. He said amnesty is an issue important to the average Texan.

The results were so close that it still wasn't certain Sunday who Hance would face in the June 2 runoff election — either state Sen. Lloyd Doggett of Austin or Krueger. Hance said he didn't care.

Final returns compiled by the Secretary of State's office gave Hance first place by fewer than 1,000 votes. Those returns showed Hance at 455,768, or 31.23 percent; Doggett was at 454,807, or 31.16 percent, and Krueger was at 454,497, or 31.14 percent.

The News Election Service showed Hance with 456,417, Doggett with 453,548 and Krueger with 453,375.

Krueger indicated he would seek a recount.

"I've never gotten into a race preferring one person over another. We'll just have to wait and see what happens," Hance said.

Hance said he spent between $1.2 million and $1.4 million on his primary campaign, including a $300,000 television advertising blitz in the final week to get his illegal alien message across.

Some Democrats labeled his an anti-Hispanic campaign, but Hance denied the charge and said his record on civil rights is strong.

"We were just talking about the issues. I think maybe their failure to address the issues was the reason they were trying to explain it that way," he said.

"The issue we really stressed was jobs. That was stressed as the amnesty issue. If you look at the studies that show 65 Americans lose their jobs out of every 100 undocumented workers that come in, this is a concern.

City-county contract due council time

The May meeting of Snyder city council members Monday will include a discussion of a proposed inter-governmental contract between the city and Scurry County officials.

No action regarding the contract is listed Monday. City Attorney Ernie Armstrong is expected to discuss the agreement with the council.

The May session will begin at 6:30 p.m. at city hall.

The council is to discuss also relocating the main line feeding water to the city from the Colorado River Municipal Water District. The line now connects into the city system at an area near Deep Creek just north of 37th St.

Under "old business," the council will consider:

—Seeking bids to construct a fence along the Houston Avenue extension right-of-way. The wire fence is to be erected during the construction phase of the roadwork.

—Appointing two members to the board of directors for the Colorado River Municipal Water District. Directors with expiring terms include James Rosser and H.W. Cargile.

—A second reading of an ordinance which will deannex a strip of property bordering the Western Texas College campus.

Council votes will be required for several items of "new business" also. These include:

—An appointment to the zoning board of adjustment to complete the unexired term of Robert Pinkston.

—Voluntary annexation requests from individuals residing in an area which the city has proposed annexing into the city limits to allow for the extension of Houston Avenue.

—A request from Morningside Baptist Church to conduct a vacation bible school parade June 2.

—A discussion regarding the purchase of an animal transportation module for the animal control department.

—A request from Tom Wadleigh to close an alley north of Ave. V and 35th St.

—A request from the chamber of commerce to conduct a July 4th parade.

—A request from David Noble to move a water meter at his own expense

RESCUE DEMONSTRATIONS — Saturday morning, members of the Snyder Fire Department put on demonstrations of the Hurst rescue tool "Jaws of Life" on the Kmart parking lot. The effort was part of the fire department's campaign to raise funds for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. According to Fire Chief Terry McDowell, the department raised approximately $1,300 Saturday. (SDN Staff Photo)

Judging team is fifth

The Snyder High School FFA range and pasture judging team placed fifth in the National Range and Pasture Judging contest held Friday in Oklahoma City.

Adam Brewster was fifth high individual for the contest. Other team members were Pat Kohl and Guy Garrett.

SHS ag instructor and FFA sponsor Billy Bob McMullan also participated in the contest, finishing as third high individual in the adult division.

Hance, Gramm favored locally

In the hotly contested U.S. Senator's seat from Texas, Scurry County Democrats showed a preference for Kent Hance while Republicans preferred Phil Gramm.

On the Democratic ballot, Hance, who was the only candidate on the ballot who made local appearances, gained 2,172 votes. Other Democratic votes went to Bob Krueger, 393; Lloyd Doggett, 350; and Harley Schlanger, 27.

On the Republican ticket, Gramm received 141 votes; Ron Paul, 26; Rob Mosbacher, 4; and Henry C. (Hank) Grover, 3.

Statewide, Hance was holding the lead as of Monday morning and appeared headed for a runoff race with Doggett. The News Election Service had Hance with 456,417 votes; Doggett with 453,548; and Krueger with 453,375.

Gramm won his party's nomination outright.

Borden County incumbent loses

GAIL — Borden County voters Saturday returned one incumbent county commissioner to office and turned another one out in Democratic primary voting here.

In the race for Pct. 1, challenger Frank Currey received 53 votes to defeat incumbent Herman Ledbetter, who received 47.

For Pct. 3, incumbent Vernon Wolf kept his seat with 76 votes. Challenger Robert Garner received 16.

Norman (Slick) Sneed was unopposed in his bid for another term as sheriff-tax assessor/-collector. He received 244 votes.

In the 132nd District Court races, Pete Greene received 234 votes in his bid for the district judge post. He was unopposed on the Democratic ballot.

In the district attorney race, Borden County voters favored Ernie Armstrong with 123 votes; James Clark, 86 votes; and Mike Line, 51.

Total votes cast were 323.

Salvadorans flocks to polls 'in the thousands'

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of Salvadorans streamed to the polls for a runoff presidential election largely free of rebel disruption and of the bureaucratic bungling that marred the first round.

Sunday's runoff matched Jose Napoleon Duarte, a moderate Christian Democrat, against Roberto d'Aubuisson, candidate of the ultra-right Republican Nationalist Alliance.

The Central Election Council said unofficial results might be available sometime today, but that it would be about a week before the final tally is released.

Representatives of both parties said returns they had compiled showed their candidate leading with 55 percent of the vote.

A survey of voters leaving the polls gave Duarte 54 percent of the vote against 46 percent for d'Aubuisson. The poll had a 4 percent margin of error, said a spokesman for the Miami-based Spanish International Network, which released the survey based on interviews with 2,800 voters.

Officials said they had eliminated many of the snags which prevented some 200,000 of the eligible 1.8 million voters from casting ballots in the initial round March 25. Initial reports indicated about 1.6 million people voted Sunday, compared with 1.2 million in March, officials said.

Leftist rebels staged scattered raids but stopped few people from voting, authorities said.

"The voting went well," said Eliseo Rovira of the Central Election Council. "It was not nearly so bad as in March."

In March, ballot boxes arrived late at many polling stations, voters were confused over where they were supposed to cast ballots and the electoral registry had numerous errors.

Eight candidates from moderate to far-right parties competed in the first round. Duarte took 43.4 percent of the votes in that election, with d'Aubuisson winning 29.7 percent. Since neither won 50 percent, a runoff was required.

Officially, the U.S. government has taken a neutral stance in the election.

County worker injured

Scurry County Pct. 2 staffer Hoyt Pylant reportedly suffered leg injuries following a 10 a.m. mishap Monday.

According to other county employees at the scene, precinct crews were working at a caliche pit about five miles north of Dermott when Pylant was pinned between a truck and a trailer he was attempting to hook up.

He was taken to the Cogdell Memorial Hospital emergency room for treatment. Around noon, it appeared no bones were broken.

Four treated after wreck

Four Snyder residents were taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital Sunday afternoon for treatment of mostly minor injuries following a 5:18 p.m. traffic accident.

According to personnel with Aid Ambulance who transported them from the scene, Lydia R. Castillo of 3009 Ave. E was the most seriously injured of the four, suffering from a possible broken ankle.

Castillo was driving a 1979 Chevrolet which was in collision with a 1977 Mercury driven by Guadalupe Borrego Duran of 703 Ave. Q in the 3200 Block of Ave E.

Also taken to the local hospital for treatment of minor injuries were Duran, and two children, 5-year-old Patricia Duran and 5-year-old Amos Castillo.

Lockney woman injured

An 87-year-old Lockney woman was transferred to Lubbock's Methodist Hospital Monday morning for treatment of injuries sustained in a Sunday night automobile accident.

Eighty-seven year-old Betty Counts of Lockney was admitted to Cogdell Memorial Hospital following the 9:15 p.m. mishap and transferred to the Lubbock hospital for further treatment Monday morning.

Counts was a passenger in a car driven by 70-year-old Garland Sams, also of Lockney. It was in collision with a car driven by Jeff McDowell of Big Spring at the intersection of U.S. Highways 84 and 180 east of Snyder.

Listed as less seriously injured in the accident were Sams, 67-year-old Faye Sams as well as Jeff and Sue McDowell.

All five were taken from the scene to the local hospital by Aid Ambulance-Snyder.

County oks park easement

An easement request submitted by Lone Star Gas officials was granted Monday morning by the Scurry County commissioner's court.

Meeting with court members was Tom Morgan. He said Lone Star needed the easement across a portion of Towle Park to construct a "cathodic installation," a device he said would control corrosion of an in-place gas pipeline.

A 30 ft. pole and a "rectifier" will be above ground and Morgan said the installation will present no danger to persons at the park.

The installation will be east of the Towle Park lake.

Pops concert due Tuesday

The Snyder High School Pops Concert is set for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Worsham Auditorium. Admission is $2.

Fair Association to meet

The Scurry County Fair Association will meet at 7 p.m. Monday at the community room of the Snyder National Bank.

Items on the agenda include: election of officers, approval of fair dates, approval of requests for concession stands, discussion of education and commercial booth reservations; setting rates for booths and ads in the catalog; committee assignments and a general discussion of events already planned for the fair.

NAACP meeting tonight

The Snyder Chapter of the NAACP will conduct a meeting Monday beginning at 7:30 p.m.

All visitors are welcome at the session, which will be conducted in the community room of the West Texas State Bank.

Weather

SNYDER AREA FORECAST: Fair and a little cooler tonight with low in upper 40s. Wind east to northeast 5 to 15 mph. Sunny and a little cooler Tuesday with high in mid 80s. Wind east 10 to 20 mph.

SNYDER TEMPERATURES: High Saturday, 94 degrees; low, 55 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Sunday, 60 degrees; high Sunday, 97 degrees; low, 59 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Monday, 60 degrees; no precipitation; total precipitation for 1984 to date, .84 of an inch.

Israeli life one of daily controversy

Paul Harvey

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — In this small country where every public disgrace or tragedy generates shock waves, two recent accusations of Israeli violence against Palestinians have posed uncomfortable moral questions.

The first was a disclosure that two Palestinians who hijacked a bus last month may have been captured alive by Israeli soldiers, as unpublished photographs suggest, and killed later by security agents. Defense Minister Moshe Arens has appointed a commission to find out how they died.

Israelis barely had time to digest this possibility when the government revealed that a Jewish underground dedicated to anti-Arab terror was operating in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and the Golan Heights, the former Syrian territory.

As Israel observed its Independence Day on Sunday, marking 36 years of statehood, these two controversies clouded the celebrations.

They have exposed a nagging question about the essence of Israel: Is it the Biblical "light unto nations" that gave the world the Ten Commandments? Or is it a modern country like any other modern country?

The combination of the daily controversies, the small-town nature of the country and the dilemma about Israel's ethical character have whittled away at the very qualities once synonymous with the Jewish state: high moral standards, public caring and involvement in national affairs.

"We are so politically aware, like an exposed nerve, that it has dulled our senses," Moshe Silak, professor of sociology at Hebrew University, said in an interview.

News travels fast in this country of 4 million people. A grenade attack in Jerusalem sets telephone lines buzzing across the country as wives, mothers, cousins and old classmates call to find out if anyone they know was hurt. A politician caught with his hand in the till is likely to be the relative, neighbor or army buddy of someone you know.

But Israelis seem to be wearying of the constant conflicts. With national elections three months away, they face a long list of questions to which there seem few easy answers.

Should Israel withdraw from Lebanon and risk renewed shelling of its northern border? What can be done about inflation? Should Israel be guided by Jewish or secular law? Should Israel trade territory for peace with the Arabs?

Rather than confront this cauldron of question marks, many Israelis simply wince and concentrate on solving more immediate issues of day-to-day life.

These include preserving their earnings in the face of 300 percent annual inflation, which requires hours of standing in line at banks moving money from one account to another.

One example of the indifference is the absence of public outcry for an inquiry into how the bus terrorists were killed. It was mainly the leftist press that urged a probe.

"Why do we have to be better than them?" asked satirist B. Michael in a tongue-in-cheek piece in the newspaper Haaretz which changed the setting of the alleged Israeli shooting of the two bus hijackers to a raid on the Viet Cong during the Vietnam war.

"Why do we have to put those Viet Cong into jails and feed them the rest of their lives at our expense?"

On one hand Israelis want to be like others, with their computers, credit cards, punk-rock clubs and even a nude beach or two. On the other hand they harbor the conviction that they are special because of the persecution which wiped out more than a third of the Jewish people in the past 200 years.

Spokesmen for the 30,000 Jews who have settled in the West Bank since Israel captured it from Jordan in 1967 expressed disbelief when told some of their colleagues had participated in an underground that booby-trapped Palestinian buses and may have killed three Palestinian college students.

Politicians, intellectuals and newspaper editorials spoke out against Jews taking the law into their hands. But the public as a whole remained mostly silent.

Area farmers, ranchers predict severe damage

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — West Texas farmers and ranchers say that a two-year drought has cost them nearly $1 billion and the problem could get worse if the region's rich topsoil continues to erode.

"Out here, we're just sitting on our tractors gripping the steering wheel," Lubbock County Extension Agent Randy Upshaw told the Dallas Times Herald. "And waiting for rain."

Half of Texas' 186,000 farm and ranch families are already in financial trouble after five years of the worst agricultural recession since the 1930s. And more than half of Farmers Home Administration loans in state are considered delinquent.

Agricultural officials said a third dry and barren year lies ahead in western sections of the state and much of South and Central Texas. Another summer of drought could force significant numbers of farmers over the financial edge into bankruptcy, economists said.

Rainfall in April, customarily the state's third wettest month, fell behind normal.

In some cases, only one-fourth of normal precipitation has fallen this year. Dry winds are carrying away millions of acres of topsoil.

"Once you begin forecasting beyond five to seven days, you don't do much better than you would flipping a coin," said George Bomar, a meteorologist with the Texas Department of Water Resources.

Last fall, the drought caused at least $500 million in damage to 30 counties in the Trans Pecos area, which runs south of a line from El Paso to Midland.

Officials said the losses contributed to the state's declining net farm income, which totaled about $800 million last year, compared with $42 billion in 1979.

Fred Lundgren, special assistant to Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, said the drought by now has probably cost West Texas twice its 1983 losses, or about $1 billion.

He said 82 West Texas counties are eligible for federal disaster loans, available in areas where at least one-third of agricultural production was wiped out. Federal officials said many counties suffered even greater losses.

"Farmers are deep into their second year of drought, (and) Texas has had some of the most severe wind damage of any of the Great Plains states," said Claiborn Crain, agriculture coordinator with the Texas Office of State-Federal Relations in Washington, D.C.

The USDA Soil Conservation Service reports that 1.3 million acres of Texas land was damaged by wind erosion in January and February, the most recent months for which figures were available. During 1983, 1.8 million acres were damaged during the entire year.

"We need a good 2- to 3-inch rain to straighten up this area a bit," said James Mitchell, a Lubbock area cotton farmer.

Dear Abby

Mother's Young Lover Is One Son Too Many

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 29-year-old divorced mother of two boys. I own my own home and am presently involved with a 20-year-old man. We've been living together for two years. It was my idea that he move in. He wanted to marry me, but I hesitated because of one failed marriage.

He's very intelligent, responsible for his age and is great with my kids, but he shows his immaturity by constantly flirting and collecting girls' phone numbers.

Last week I wasn't feeling very well so I came home early. I let myself in, and when I went into our bedroom I found him in bed with a young girl. (Both our pictures had been turned facedown on the dresser!) The girl said she was sorry —she didn't know he was "married" and she had just met him an hour ago! I told him to pack his clothes and get out.

He's been gone a week and wants to come back. This is not the first time something like this has happened. He lies and can't be trusted. Do you think the difference in our ages has anything to do with this? I miss him. Should I take him back? He's good in bed.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: He should be good in bed. He's probably had a lot of practice. I think the difference in your ages has a lot to do with it. He's still a little boy who needs mothering. You need a man, not another son. Don't let him come back. He's using you.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 33-year-old single woman who has chosen to remain childless even if I decide to marry.

Needless to say, many people (including my mom) make me feel guilty about my decision. They say that one day when I'm old and alone, I will regret not having children and grandchildren.

Sorry, I just can't buy that line of thinking. How can I shut people up when they start harping on this subject? It's beginning to get on my nerves.

NO KIDS, THANK YOU

DEAR NO KIDS: First, nobody can make you feel guilty. If you feel guilty, it's because you choose to. You can't shut people up, but you can abruptly change the subject, tune the bores out or absent yourself from their company.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: "Mrs. D., Libertyville, Ill.," wrote: "I've enjoyed your column for many years. It was so witty, with just the right answers to some very real problems. Will you please return to those days and skip all the lectures and sermons you've been running of late? Also, please let the Food and Drug Administration buy space in the newspapers and medical journals to warn people about combining drugs with certain foods."

Abby, I think Mrs. D. is out of line. Be that as it may, when Fiorello La Guardia was mayor of New York City, he hung above his desk at City Hall this pronouncement by Abraham Lincoln:

"If I were to try to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any other business. I do the very best I know how—the very best I can, and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, 10 angels swearing I was right would make no difference."

Simple breath test

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column regularly and feel strongly that you leave out a point when discussing bad breath.

After 31 years and many expensive visits to doctors and dentists I discovered that sometimes a little old-fashioned common sense will solve the problem.

Tell your readers to try the old mouth-to-nose test before going to see their dentist. Floss between the teeth then hold the dental floss under the nose after each pass. If there's a tiny crevice that the toothbrush misses, the smell will pinpoint the offensive site, which can be cleaned by flossing several times.

DEAR READER — Thanks for your effort to help. Flossing is quite important in keeping your teeth clean. And clean teeth are important in preventing bad breath.

Having said that, I wish all bad breath problems were that simple. Unfortunately, they aren't, as many victims will tell you. A dental checkup is a good place to start. If there's a problem with the teeth that a person can't correct, either in cleaning or with the gums, a dentist can be the solution.

Many mouth odors aren't from the mouth at all; they start in the lungs. The lungs eliminate gases from the body. We eliminate excess carbon dioxide that way. Alcohol in the blood escapes from the blood vessels into the air sacs and is exhaled. That's how a person's blood alcohol can be estimated by a breath test.

Alcohol isn't the only substance that provides bad breath via the lungs. Any volatile chemical in the body can be responsible. Therefore, a diabetic with ketones from lack of good control may have a ketone odor to his breath, which resembles alcohol breath. A person not consuming carbohydrates may also develop ketosis and have ketone breath.

I've discussed the problem of bad breath more fully in the Health Letter 9-4, Halitosis: The Breath Problem and What to Do About It, which I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Keeping the tongue and teeth clean — including the use of floss and clean, healthy nasal passages — are all important. But don't forget the lungs, the portal of odors from all of your inner body.

DEAR DR. LAMB — You've recommended using Vaseline on the face as a screen against sun and wind to keep the skin from drying out. Does this mean Vaseline could be used as a nightly facial moisturizer? Are there some possible bad side effects from using it nightly?

DEAR READER — Vaseline, the brand name for white petroleum jelly, is an excellent moisturizer. It's a physical blocker and prevents the loss of the natural moisture from the surface of the skin. The body normally loses about a liter of water through the skin each day in unnoticeable perspiration.

Vaseline can be used every day. Some dermatologists recommend a generous coating and covering the face one night a week for an overnight moisturizing effect. You can do the same with the hands to moisturize the hands and soften hard or brittle nails. Of course, you can use less on a daily basis.

There's no evidence that using it in small or large amounts on a daily basis is harmful.

Through the decades of the Sixties and Seventies, education in the United States was preoccupied with providing "equality" and did.

The decade of the Eighties is re-dedicated to excellence. This is apparent in a proliferation of competitions to recognize the best of the best in music, sciences, arts and physical fitness.

We're hearing talk of an academic olympics.

Tulsa, Oklahoma, has taken a first step toward establishment of such competition.

Initiated by the Tulsa World newspsper, that city is promoting excellence among faculty and students. The programs are a blend of private business and public schools.

Ten classroom teachers are honored each year in a joint effort of the World and Facet Enterprises, a Tulsa-based manufacturer, and one is chosen "Teacher of the Year;" with the latter honor goes a $5,000 cash award.

Among students, the academic achievers are issued "letters" in scholatics equivalent to those issued for athletic accomplishment.

Tulsa School Superintendent Dr. Larry Zenke notes that the traditional rewards for academic achievement have been scholarships, memberships in the National Honor Society, so forth. "None of these provides the kind of ongoing visible public recognition that athletic letters offer."

Dr. Zenke believes that academic letters "will provide visible recognition of academic achievement and offer the kind of status that inspires emulation."

Of the city's 13,000 public high school students it is projected that more than 1,000 will letter in scholastics.

The letters, by the way, are identical to those issued to athletes.

Eligibility for an academic letter requires a cumulative high school grade point average of 4.0 for a freshman, 3.75 for a sophomore, 3.5 for a junior ad 3.25 for a senior.

For 20 years Dr. Vearl McBride, the speed-reading pioneer, has demonstrated that public education in our nation has not begun to encourage academic achievers.

He has made "failures" into "heroes" in their schools. He has proved that "slow" children can be taught to read thousands of words a minute. He has demonstrated that elementary school-agers can handle up to 500 math problems and 600 spelling words a week — and beg for more!

The Tulsa World and Facet are underwriting this "something better than equality" for Tulsa schools.

With public funds tight, similar efforts in other cities will equire private underwriting.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

May 8, 1984

Several interesting proposals for joint ventures may be brought to you this coming year. Their chances for success will depend upon the caliber of persons involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to be unbiased when dealing with persons of whom you're not too fond. Spiteful actions on your part will boomerang. The Matchmaker wheel reveals your compatibility to all signs, as well as showing you to which signs you are best suited romantically. Get yours by mailing $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Tasks you usually handle rather easily could prove difficult today, especially if you're working in conjunction with ineffective aides.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Spending to impress acquaintances is foolish today. Don't rush to pick up the check if everyone has already agreed to pay for his or her share.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Although your motives are laudable regarding your objectives for today, you must be careful that the tactics you use aren't self-defeating.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful today that you don't say things out of anger that you shouldn't. If you do, you could have great difficulty removing your foot from your mouth.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be both prudent and guarded in money matters today, especially if you're doing business with persons in whom you don't have complete faith.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your pride is your Achilles' heel today. Don't treat situations where others only mildly disagree with you as serious affronts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're the type who usually shows an eagerness to help others. Today, uncharacteristically, you could turn your back on those who need you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Beware of tendencies to split hairs today for others, as well as for yourself. This could cause serious complications if something of value is at stake.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) To be effective today, you must be single-minded. If you attempt one thing while your thoughts are on another, you're apt to fail.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're not likely to be an efficient worker today if you have persons peering over your shoulder. Try to do your job free from supervision.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be patient in your financial and commercial affairs today. If you take erratic action to spur things, it could be more detrimental than helpful.

Shortage causes burden

DALLAS (AP) — The number of Catholics has increased in recent years, but the number of priests has not and that is putting a burden on Texas priests, many of whom rely on volunteers and deacons to help them carry on their work.

"Usually I'm expected to be in three or four places at any time, and people don't realize the time constraints," said the Rev. Donald Zimmerman, pastor of St. Monica's Catholic Church in Dallas.

Zimmerman, 37, has discovered that fewer young men are joining the seminary, while the number of Catholics is increasing.

At state convention...

Garden Club receives awards

Snyder Garden Club members were recently informed that they had received an award for historic preservation at the 56th Annual Spring State Convention held at Nacogdoches April 12.

Accepting the award was Maggie Best, chairman for the landscaping of the Cornelius Dodson House, a two-year project. The club has just begun Phase II. The group met April 20 to discuss plans for the final stage.

Presenting the Texas Critics Award #2 was Dr. William C. Welch who teaches landscape design at Texas A&M University. He is A&M's extension horticulture consultant and landscape design chairman for Texas State Garden Clubs. Dr. Welch expressed his gratitude and appreciation of such a worthwhile project which enhances the quality of life in the city or community.

The local club also won the Winnette Jordon Historic Preservation Award #11-A from the South Central Region which includes four states, Arkansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas. A check from the South Central Region accompanied the award.

The local club is a member of District VIII of Texas Garden Clubs. Mrs. Tommy Davis serves as the district's second assistant director.

Mrs. Best and JoAnn Nunley, publicity chairman, each received a certificate of appreciation from Julia Fox, SGC president.

On importance of a will...

Amitie hears local attorney

Attorney Gary R. Terrell was the featured speaker at the April 10 meeting of Amitie Study Club, telling the women's group about the importance of a will.

Terrell described the contents of the formal or simple will and told of problems arising from incorrectly executed wills as well as problems caused by not leaving a will.

After Terrell's program, club members listened to guest Peggy Kennedy as she described the needs of the newly formed Scurry County Options and Opportunities for People (SCOOP).

Kennedy told of SCOOP's upcoming fundraiser and outlined plans for a home for abused and/or neglected teenage girls. Amitie members promised to consider the project as a possible outlet for club funds.

Becky Beaver was welcomed to her first club meeting as the guest of Lea Ann Shields and the group conducted business.

Plans were made for the annual installation of new officers May 19 at Snyder Country Club and all members were urged to participate and contribute to the Martha Ann Womack's Club barbecue May 11 to raise funds for the publication of the MAWC cookbook.

Amitie Study Club will meet next on May 8 at 7 p.m. at MAWC.

WELCOME—Hostesses Anne Genuchi, left, and Janet Spence welcome guest speaker Gary R. Terrell to the April meeting of Amitie Study Club.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Jim: "Lets talk about some obscure safety plays."

Oswald: "Here's one that comes close to being a perfect safety play. It comes close, but it is not guaranteed against four hearts to the queen in either defensive hand."

Jim: "You are in a mighty sound six-spade contract. Most players will say, 'I have two finesses to make my slam. I'll try both of them.'"

Oswald: "An expert will say to himself, 'If hearts break 3-2, I have a sure thing. If they break 4-1, I still have the diamond finesse to fall back on and the odds are that the opponent with one heart will hold the diamond queen.' So the expert wins the club lead, ruffs a club at trick two, draws trumps and plays out A-K-J of hearts. If hearts are 3-2, he surrenders a trick to the queen and lets the winner try to find a lead that gives the defense a chance. There just isn't any."

Jim: "The opponent on lead has only two suits left. A club lead allows South to get a diamond discard. A diamond lead takes South's finesse for him. Let's go back to the four-one heart break. If West has the four hearts, South is doomed to guess the diamond. If East [illegible] voyant South can take the successful heart finesse and work on making seven."

MOCK CHEESE CAKE

We get annual requests for this old-timer.

2 tablespoons butter
½ cup fine honey graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup finely chopped walnuts
4 large eggs, separated
14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon grated lime rind
1-3rd cup lime juice

Melt butter; off heat stir in crumbs and nuts. Pat half of mixture over bottom of an 8 by 8 by 2-inch baking dish. Beat together yolks, condensed milk, lime rind and lime juice until blended. With a clean beater, beat egg whites until stiff; fold into lime mixture. Pour over crumbs; sprinkle with remaining crumb mixture. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until crumbs are lightly browned — 30 to 35 minutes. (A cake tester inserted in center will not come out clean.) Cool (it will sink), then chill. Makes 8 servings.

CWC SPEAKER—Snyder Christian Women's Club will meet Wednesday, May 9, from 11:15 a.m.-1:15 p.m. at the Snyder Country Club. Reservations need to be made by calling Judy at 573-5785 or Anne at 573-7485. A free nursery is also available by contacting the above numbers.

Family reunion held by Kimmels

BROWNWOOD—The annual Kimmel family reunion was held April 27-29 at Brownwood State Park. Persons attending were descendants of William A. Kimmel and Estelle Heard Kimmel, longtime residents of Dickens County.

Their children attending were Thelma Scott of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kimmel of Carrollton, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Kimmel of Gustine, and Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Kimmel of Garland. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kimmel of Snyder were unable to attend.

Other family members present were Henry and Rena Causey of Temple; Lois and Leonard Baker of Plainview; Coye and Velma Snodgrass of Flint; Doris and Henry Harris of Quitman; Bill, Gay, Kris and Patti Kimmel of Dunn; Don, Susan, Jennifer and B. J. Harrison and Eddie, Kathy, Justin and Jody Kimmel of Gustine; Bob and Fran Kimmel of Tulsa, Okla; Ophelia Heard and Irma Hampton of Naples; Helen Tuck of New Boston; and J. D. and Mary Ann Chastain, Randall and Kimberly of Brownwood.

Also Jerry Dan and Cindy Kimmel, Kendra, Kameron and Karlye and Kenneth and Vicki McCrory and Jared of Garland; Rob and Karen Staacke of Austin; Tommy and Julie Kimmel, Suzanne and Shauna of Ira; Virgil and Clarice Phipps of Kingsland; Douglas Phipps of Houston; Mildred, Bevin and Amy Bridge of Weatherford; Patti Vickery of Granbury; Donavan and Sue Phipps of Welch; and Nelson and Druline Rape and Wilma Gene Vickery of Afton.

The oldest family members attending were Irma Hampton, sister of Estelle Heard Kimmel and Ophelia Heard, her sister-in-law. Shauna and Karlye Kimmel, great-granddaughters of William and Estelle Kimmel, were the youngest.

Insomnia

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — One-third of Americans suffer from some form of insomnia — half of them severely.

In addition, one-third to one-half of patients with long-term insomnia have an underlying psychiatric disturbance. However, contrary to popular assumptions, only about 10 percent of insomniacs receive prescription sleep medication, according to Dr. Louis Lasagna of the University of Rochester Medical Center.

Nun to testify in trial of employee of church

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Federal prosecutors prepared to question a nun who has agreed to turn government witness against a church worker charged with smuggling Salvadoran aliens.

Sister Dianne Muhlenkamp, 36, of Fort Wayne, Ind., who is on probation for a year, was expected to take the witness stand today to testifty about circumstances surrounding her arrest with church worker Stacey Lynn Merkt, 29.

Ms. Merkt is charged with conspiring to illegally transport two Salvadorans.

Ms. Merkt, Sister Dianne and Dallas Times Herald reporter Jack Fischer were arrested Feb. 17 on a desolate South Texas highway near Hebbronville as they were taking Salvadorans Mauricio Valle, Brenda Sanchez-Galan and her baby to San Antonio.

The Salvadorans, who were held in contempt of court Friday and jailed for refusing to testify against Ms. Merkt, claim that they were going to San Antonio to apply for political asylum.

Defense attorney Daniel Sheehan said evidence will show that Salvadorans who go to immigration offices in the Rio Grande Valley to apply for asylum are immediately arrested and sent to a nearby federal detention camp.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Guerra said the government will rest after calling Sister Dianne, who was driving the Catholic Diocese-owned car at the time of the arrest, and one other witness.

"Then we'll see the circus begin," said Guerra referring to the unique defense that Sheehan plans to present.

Defense attorneys plan to use the Merkt case to call attention to American involvement in Central America and U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service policy regarding Salvadoran refugees.

Agent Orange case...

Tentative settlement reached

NEW YORK (AP) — A tentative settlement has been reached between seven chemical companies and 15,000 Vietnam veterans in a mammoth lawsuit in which the veterans sought to prove injuries from exposure to Agent Orange, lawyers for both sides said today.

The settlement was reached as jury selection was to begin in U.S. District Court. The lawyers said the chemical companies have agreed to pay $180 million into special bank accounts for the plaintiffs.

U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein has yet to approve the settlement, but the attorneys said that the judge is expected to appoint two officers to coordinate the payments, which are expected to amount to $250 million with interest.

David Dean, the chief attorney for the veterans, said that any of the veterans who had submitted claims will be eligible to receive payments based on the severity of the individual case. He said that unborn offspring of the veterans will also be covered.

No information was immediately available as to how the payments will be divided among the seven chemical companies.

R.W. Charlton, public affairs director for Dow Chemical Co., one of the defendants, would not comment on specifics of the settlement but confirmed that one had been reached.

Dean said the agreement came at 4 a.m. today, after lawyers for both sides worked through the weekend on Weinstein's orders.

According to terms of the agreement, the chemical companies do not acknowledge any liability for the injuries, which veterans said resulted from exposure to Agent Orange.

Before trial, the seven chemical companies who are the chief defendants disputed arguments that veterans' injuries resulted from exposure to Agent Orange. And they said that if there was any fault associated with the defoliant, it was with the U.S. military for misusing the product.

Despite its claims of immunity, the federal government is also a defendant in the claims, which involve wives and children of the servicemen — though not the veterans themselves.

An extensive preliminary screening was conducted last week to narrow the field of 400 prospective jurors. Lawyers were to begin interviewing the remainder today and U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein of Brooklyn hoped to seat a panel of 12 jurors within a couple of days.

The trial would then recess for the rest of the week, to resume May 14. It is expected to take anywhere from five months to more than a year.

Over the weekend, about 50 Vietnam veterans and supporters marched peacefully to the Harwichport, Mass., home of Charles E. Minarik, a plant physiologist the veterans say chose Agent Orange to be used in Vietnam.

The Army honored him with the Meritorious Civilian Service Award, but the veterans — who showered his lawn with orange carnations — have dubbed him the "godfather of Agent Orange."

The plaintiffs in the class-action suit, who have not specified how much they are seeking in damages, say they suffered cancer, liver and nerve damage, skin problems, sensitivity to light and mental disturbances because they were forced to handle Agent Orange, march through areas sprayed with it and drink from streams contaminated by it. The suit covers exposure in the 10 years before 1972.

Wives of some veterans say they suffered miscarriages because of their husbands' exposure, while children of the ex-soldiers say their fathers' exposure caused them to suffer birth defects.

The trial will center on the claims of nine individuals: five veterans, the wife and two children of one and the child of another. If they lose, particularly on the broad grounds that the chemical companies were "government contractors" and not responsible, the thousands of other plaintiffs are considered unlikely to collect.

However, even if these nine individuals win, the other class-action plaintiffs may each have to go to court and prove their individual damages. Such litigation could take years.

Help drunks to cars

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Lee Lerner and Mike Griffin found during a class project that strangers can be ever so helpful. The only problem is they might be helping someone to serious injury — or even to an early grave.

In a project for a journalism class, the two college students doused their faces and hands with gin and rinsed their mouths with the liquor. Then they told passersby they were too drunk to unlock their car doors, and asked for help.

The result: 44 out of 100 pedestrians on a busy street helped the University of Central Florida students into the driver's seat.

Most of the people who aided Lerner or Griffin accepted their claims that they were "OK to drive home," they said.

One man said he was willing to help because he had "been in the same position."

The results weren't what the two expected.

Prosecutor not sure if life is still in danger

DALLAS (AP) — Former federal prosecutor James Kerr, who was forced into secret exile after a 1978 assassination attempt, speculates that he is alive today because of "divine intervention" and says he doesn't know if his life is still in danger.

Kerr, who now works as a relatively low-profile administrative law judge for a federal agency, agreed to talk to The Dallas Morning News under the condition that his location not be revealed.

"It would have been easier to just put it all behind me," Kerr said in an interview published today. "But, of course, I'm happy that people are going to be held accountable for what happened."

The former assistant U.S. attorney remains under protection by federal marshals, pending his scheduled appearance next month at the San Antonio trial of convicted narcotics kingpin Jimmy Chagra, who is accused of masterminding a scheme to kill him.

Kerr narrowly escaped death on Nov. 21, 1978 when 21 bullets were fired at the windshield of his car during the daylight hours on a residential street in the San Antonio suburb of Alamo Heights. Just over six months later, an assassin's bullet killed U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. as he left his residence in San Antonio.

Kerr refused to comment on Chagra, whose connections with drug smuggling were under investigation at the time of the attempt on Kerr's life. Chagra has been convicted of obstructing justice in the investigation of Wood's slaying. Charles Harrelson was convicted in 1982 of killing Wood.

"I don't know him (Chagra)," Kerr said. "What I know of him I ought to reserve for the criminal trial."

Kerr said he's not sure if a threat to his life still exists.

"I suppose if there is any danger, it would be prior to the criminal trial," he said. "The exact nature of the prosecution is something I shouldn't go into. After all, protection is an awful lot of throwing the other side off guard as to what's being done."

Kerr said that although he doesn't spend time looking over his shoulder, he's aware of the danger — something that he wasn't in 1978.

"At the time, I recognized there is a higher degree of danger than just serving as the church organist," Kerr said of his job as federal prosecutor. "But because the consequences of assaulting a federal law enforcement official or a federal judicial official are just so serious, you'd think that would keep any rational person from ever thinking they cculd accomplish anything."

Kerr said a quirk of fate may be responsible for his escape.

"For one thing, I always wore a seat belt and I always kept the armrest of my car down," he said. "On that particular morning, I had to pick up something off the floor of the car so I'd raised the armrest and taken off the seat belt. They were not in the way when I needed to duck the bullets.

"That makes me think maybe there was a little divine protection that morning," Kerr said. "Actually, you'd have to say that was probably the case. How does one escape 21 bullets?"

Kerr and Wood were both placed under the protection of federal marshals, but Wood dropped the protection within a month because of restrictions on his movements, Kerr said.

Kerr had just returned from a trip to Washington on May 29, 1979, when a marshal at the El Paso airport told him that Wood had been killed.

"It absolutely stunned me," Kerr said. "It was just unbelievable."

Kerr said he got along well with Wood because they shared similar philosophies about law enforcement. However, some defense attorneys claimed the relationship was too close — and unethical. As a result of the criticism, Kerr said he now remains "rather aloof" from the people who appear before him in administrative court.

Wood's death was a personal shock that left him "disgusted and infuriated," Kerr said. He said the experience convinced him more than ever of the need for strict law enforcment, but he found that doing his job became increasingly difficult.

By August 1979, Kerr decided he couldn't continue as a federal prosecutor because of the need for tight security around him.

"While I didn't like it, I could certainly accept the feeling that the time had come maybe I should look for something where I wouldn't have to be under that much restriction, and where I could get a little more job satisfaction out of it," he said.

Kerr left Texas in the fall of 1979 and began lecturing, teaching and writing course work for federal agents. A little more than a year later, he accepted his current post.

Kerr said he hopes to move up in the judicial system and would like to return to Texas some day. His last trip to the state was earlier this year to appear as a witness in his libel suit against The El Paso Times.

Storms pound S. East

By the Associated Press

Violent thunderstorms marched eastward today from the Mississippi Valley to the Atlantic shore after producing tornadoes, high winds, hail and drenching rains that left two people dead, including a woman drowned when her car was swamped in downtown Nashville, Tenn.

The sweeping line of thundershowers spun off funnel clouds that prompted the National Weather Service to post tornado watches in Arkansas, Missouri, Louisiana, Tennessee and Kentucky.

"The storm has the strength to produce tornadoes ... the forecasters are watching those areas quite closely," weather service spokesman Harry Gordon said today.

Flash flood warnings were in effect today in parts of Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky, West Virginia, South Carolina and Tennessee.

Elsewhere, rain and wet snow blanketed the northern border of the Nebraska Panhandle into southwest South Dakota, with snow falling in the South Dakota Black Hills.

The National Guard was activated overnight in Tennessee in response to flash flooding that closed U.S. 231 and at least three other major roadways. Thunderstorms poured 2½ inches of water on Nashville in a three-hour period Sunday afternoon.

Storm-induced flooding Sunday killed 85-year-old Euyla M. Chrismon, who drowned when her car was swamped on U.S. 70 in Nashville. Police found her bdy in the back seat of her car after water 5 feet high swept over vehicles in Nashville.

About 120 miles to the west, a McKenzie, Tenn., city employee drowned when he fell in rushing water while trying to clear a culvert of debris.

Floyd Lee, 39, was sucked through the culvert. His brother-in-law, Gordon Beebe, jumped in to save Lee and was also swept away. Beebe was rescued and taken to McKenzie Hospital where he was listed in satisfactory condition with unspecified injuries.

The National Guard remained on watch in Lebanon, Tenn., preparing to sandbag the town square if flooding reached hazardous levels.

Tornadoes touched down Sunday in London and Glasgow, Ky., blowing the roofs off buildings and damaging at least 18 businesses and 25 homes, six extensively. Nine mobile homes were destroyed. At least eight people were hurt.

COMPLETES WORKSHOP--A recent Texas Parks and Wildlife Department workshop covering wildlife management and conservation was completed by Tommy Wright (photo one) and Billy Robbins (photo two), both of Snyder, at Keerville last month. The specialized workshop certificate was presented by J. D. Peer of Austin, assistant hunter education coordinator. The wildlife management training will enable each participating instructor to incorporate these techniques into hunter-education classes. Topics covered included deer and game food requirements, census techniquess, wildlife research program update and a tour of the Keer Wildlife Management Area Near Hunt. (Photos by P&WD)

13 run-offs slated June 2

AUSTIN (AP) — Primary campaigning isn't over for a number of Democrats and Republicans seeking seats in the 1985 Legislature.

There will be 13 runoff elections June 2 as a results of Saturday's primary voting.

Six of the runoffs are in contesting Rep. Lero House incumbents trying to hold on to the positions they have now.

Less lucky in Saturday's primaries were two present House members defeated in their re-election attempts.

Rep. Jimmie Mankins of Longview was defeated by Chapple Dowell of Longview, according to unofficial complete returns.

Rep. C.K. (Chock) Word, Meridian, narrowly lost to challenger Bob Melton of Gatesville, according to unofficial results.

One of the feature races of the legislative balloting, picking a successor to Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, a runoff candidate for U.S. Senate, ended in the only Senate runoff race.

Austin Rep. Gonzalo Barriéntos, D-Austin, got 46 percent of the vote in a scramble among five Democrats and will face Travis County Attorney Margaret Moore on June 2. The winner will oppose Republican Pat McNamara in November.

In the five other contested Senate races the veterans involved won re-election without problems. They were Sens. Ed Howard, Texarkana; Roy Blake, Nacogdoches; Carl Parker, Port Arthur; Ike Harris, Dallas; and Grant Jones, Abilene. None have November opponents.

Two of the House runoffs will be all-GOP contests — Sam Johnson, Plano versus Brian McCall, Plano; and Roger Ponce, Amarillo, versus John Smithee, Amarillo.

The Democratic nominee for a replacement Weiting, Portland, dean of the House, will be decided in a runoff between Robert Earley of Portland and Grady Hogue of Beeville.

In another runoff race, Democrats Emmett Whitehead, Rusk, a former House members, faces Cliff Johnson of Palestine.

Ron E. Lewis of Mauriceville is paired with W. T. Oliver, Bridge City, former House member, in a Democratic runoff.

Rep. Jim Crockett, D-Pearsall, had a runoff with Eldon Edge of Poth.

In the Austin race for the House seat vacated by Barrientos, there is a runoff between Lena Guerrero, prominent Democratic party worker, and Brad Weiwel, Austin attorney.

Rep. Nancy McDonald, D-El Paso, has a runoff race with Raul Muniz, El Paso school administrator.

Anorher incumbent with a runoff with Rep. Bob Valles, D-El Paso, who is challenged by Nick Perez, an El Paso attorney.

Rep. Reby Cary of Fort Worth, one of Jesse Jackson's statewide workers, has a runoff with Garfield Thompson, Fort Worth.

Rep. Joe Gamez, San Antonio, has a Democratic runoff race with Gregory Luna, San Antonio attorney.

Professor backs citizens' rights

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Alan Dershowitz's clients have included students charged with pornography, a Soviet dissident accused of espionage and a wealthy socialite convicted of attempted murder. But the outspoken Harvard law professor sees them all as the same case.

"The common thread is I try to put the government on trial for its conduct," says Dershowitz, who considers himself a "spokesperson for civil liberties and the rights of citizens."

He was in the news again late last month after winning a new trial for Claus von Bulow, the Danish-born socialite convicted in 1982 of twice trying to murder his heiress wife.

Von Bulow credited Dershowitz, who led a defense team of 15, for the Rhode Island Supreme Court ruling that the trial judge erred when he allowed the prosecution to present evidence secured without search warrants.

"Alan is extraordinarily quick and has a precise intellect at the highest level," von Bulow said of the slight, bespectacled attorney.

Limelight is nothing new to the 45-year-old professor, who appears regularly on television talk shows and in newspaper columns.

Dershowitz is not shy about referring to some brother attorneys as "sleazebags in three-piece suits," or calling for an extensive public review of judges' actions.

"I find it repugnant not to subject the judiciary to the same kind of questioning that we have for the executive and legislative branches," he says.

Such abrasive comments have made Dershowitz a celebrity in a profession that usually relishes the quiet anonymity of the law office or the ivy-covered classroom. It has also brought some quiet criticism from his peers.

"I think that some people view him as a self promoter," says a Harvard colleague who asked not to be identified.

But Dershowitz sees nothing wrong with his high-profile existence.

"A long time ago I made the decision to talk to people — to make the law accessible," he says. "At the time it was unusual for an academic to talk in common-sense terms."

Dershowitz started talking law while growing up in a religious Jewish household in the Borough Park section of Brooklyn. He remembers his father and uncles spending hours discussing the Talmud, the basic canon of Jewish law.

"The Jewish religion is a very argumentative religion," he says. "You argue with everyone. You essentially put God on trial."

"Teachers were always telling me, 'You're stupid, but you have a big mouth so you ought to be a lawyer.'"

A poor student at the Yeshiva religious school, he shone at Brooklyn College and Yale Law School, graduating first in his class. After serving as a law clerk with U.S. Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg he came to Harvard as its youngest law professor.

He has been there for 20 years, teaching criminal law and ethics to fledgling attorneys. He has a strong following among the students.

"He is very interesting and entertaining as a teacher," says Scott Melson, president of the Harvard Law Review. "Sometimes one tends to think there is a little bit more show than substance. But I certainly looked forward to his classes."

Dershowitz still finds time to write and make numerous television appearances while handling a half dozen cases each year. Many are highly publicized.

"I take the ones I find the most interesting," he says. "I try to keep a balance between the poor people and the people who can pay a fee."

"He's a high risk lawyer," says Richard Hayes, the general counsel for the Massachusetts Defenders Committee. "When he wins, he wins big and when he loses, he loses big.

"He rubs people the wrong way because of the exposure."

While he will only say his fees are "on the low side," Dershowitz tells paying customers, "You're not only paying for yourself, you're paying for a Russian dissident or a black kid in trouble."

The dissident is Anatoly Shcharansky, accused by his country of espionage. Dershowitz has tried to represent him in the Soviet Union — a task that he says is hard, but not impossible.

"There has been a big fight since the death of Stalin to try to bring legality and put the Communist Party under the control of the legal system," he says.

Local balloting reported

Saturday was Gary Terrell in his bid for county attorney. He defeated Steve Payson for the Democratic nomination by 2,443 to 714. Terrell will also be unopposed in November.

For county commissioner, Pct. 3, C.D. Gray Jr. won the Democratic Party's nomination over Charlie Yoast. Gray polled 654 votes to Yoast's 490.

In November, Gray will face incumbent commissioner Bernhard Bartels, who was unopposed for the Republican nomination Saturday. On the Republican ballot Bartels received 78 votes.

Democratic nominee Pete Greene was unopposed for his party's nomination Saturday for district judge. Next November, he'll face Republican candidate Gene Dulaney. Democrats cast 2,323 votes for Greene and Republicans cast 161 for Dulaney.

Both Scurry County Sheriff Keith Collier and Constable Bill Love were unopposed on the Democratic ballot Saturday and will be unopposed next November. Collier received 2,806 votes and Love 2,297.

The county chairman for the Democratic Party, Gene Bowlin, drew an opposing candidate Saturday, but won re-election to the post. Bowlin gained 1,805 votes and Lacy R. Turner gained 1,093 votes.

Education board's chairman loses

HOUSTON (AP) — Joe Kelly Butler, who was advised by H. Ross Perot to step down from his post as chairman of the State Board of Education, was defeated in the Republican primary by a former schoolteacher and newcomer to public office.

Mary Bishop said her victory in Saturday's District 7 Republican primary was shows the public is tired of "very mediocre" education.

"People have said to me that he's (Butler's) been around for so long they feel he's had his chance," said Mrs. Bishop, 38, who captured more than 56 percent of the vote.

"They (the public) want to see stiffer standards," she said. "They perceive that the schools are not challenging the students as much as they could have."

No Democrats ran for the seat in District 7, one of the nation's most heavily Republican districts and an affluent area that includes Houston's posh River Oaks neighborhood and parts of north and southwest Houston.

Butler, a 72-year-old Houston oilman, has served on the 27-member board for 11 years and has been chairman for nine years. Chief among his critics is Perot, the Dallas computer magnate who headed the state's Select Committee on Public Education.

Perot has called for an appointed, rather than elected, board and urged Butler to step down from his post as chairman. Perot has faulted the board and its chairman for what he says is a poor school system in Texas.

Butler has said Perot is singlehandedly trying to bring changes to the system whether or not they are needed.

Butler said the school system has undergone numerous improvements under his leadership. He counts among the system's gains House Bill 246, a 1983 curriculum reform bill he calls a "massive reform" of the textbook selection process by the state board. The bill also includes the adoption of a single standard for teacher education, and improvements in school accreditation.

Butler served almost 10 years as a Houston school board member before he was elected to the state education board. He also served as chairman of the state board of Mental Health and Retardation from 1968 to 1973.

WTC rodeo teams qualify for national finals at Bozeman

HOBBS, N.M. -- Western Texas College has qualified both its men and women to the 1984 College National Finals Rodeo.

WTC teams did well enough over the weekend here to finish second in the region behind [illegible] State University and earn the trip to the June 18-23 event in Bozeman, Mont.

"New Mexico Junior College had a real good rodeo. As I expected, the men's (division) came right down to the last. But we did well. We didn't back into it," said Western Coach Bob Doty. "I was real excited, especially with the girls. We have three freshman on our team."

It will be the fourth straight time for Doty to take a WTC men's team to the CNFR. It is the school's fifth time to make the trip. This is the first time however, for the WTC girls to send a squad.

WTC's women scored 190.5 points here while Sul Ross had 257 and Eastern New Mexico had 129. That left Sul Ross as the Southwest Region champion with a total 1,290 points, Western had 1,027 while Howard managed just 830 and Eastern New Mexico only 740.

Western's men were third here with 210.5 points. Sul Ross won with 408, followed by NMJC with 255.5. As a result, Sul Ross won the men's division with 2,040 points, Western was second with 1,202 and NMJC was third with 1,096. Tarleton took fourth with 993.

In WTC results from the weekend, Canita Cass tied for third-fourth in breakaway with a time of 3.6; Kellie Kyle won third in barrels with a 17.79; and Judy Cox took second in the barrels with a 17.49 and was fifth in goat tying.

Kyle finished the regular season as second in the Southwest Region in the all-around and in barrels. Cox was third in all-around.

For the men here, Val Hale won the saddle bronc with a 72; Shane Smith tied for fourth in the bareback with a 67; Dale Gideon tied for third in bull riding with a 70; Todd Whatley took third in calf roping with a time of 9.6; Gary Rowe was fifth in steer wrestling with a 5.4; Greg Rhodes was sixth in bull riding with a 68; and Craig Murdock teamed with Texas Tech's Clinton Ware for sixth in team roping with a 9.3.

Randy Bomar was second in the region in calf roping this season. Smith was second in bareback and Rowe was fourth in calf roping.

Copeland and Anderson claim win at Pumpjack tournament

After being known as Snyder's perennial second place team for a few years now, Larry Anderson and Don Copeland have won the 1984 Pumpjack Invitational Partnership.

The two players fired a 128 to win the Championship Flight by three strokes over Odessa's Mickey Scott and Burl Fuller, who shot a 131. Dave Minnemier of Snyder and Charlie Hedrick of Fort Worth were third with a 132.

The annual two-day tournament was played under good conditions Saturday and Sunday at Snyder Country Club.

Prizes were $350 to the first place team, $250 to the second place team and $150 to the third place team.

Todd Line and Mark Duke were the First Flight winners. They shot a 135 to defeat Dan Gallagher and Dwayne Weaver, who had carded a 137.

Lanny Wadleigh and Hank Jordon took third place in the First Flight after edging Alton Patterson and Robert Sterling on the first hole of a playoff. Both teams had shot 140s.

Second Flight winners were Tommy Lay and Rod Bailey, who shot a 141. Lou Brice and Don Wolf used a 145 to grab second place while Phil Fortune and Joe V. Fowler were third with a 146.

John Lacik and Will Evans shot a 149 to win the Third Flight. A 150 took second place for Leroy Seabourn and Ray Littlefield, while Jim Burleson and Mike Jordan shot a 151 for third.

Jerry Vestal and Gary Terrell ran away with the Fourth Flight, winning with a 152. At 160 were David Sisson and Rickey Daniels, who placed second, followed by Eddie Epley and Bobby Franks with a 163 for third.

Don Dollins and Bobby Cumbie were forced to win a playoff over Ronnie Fowler and Joey Hardin for top honors in the Fifth Flight. Dollins and Cumbie won on the third playoff hole after the teams had tied with scores of 162. Terry Lewis and Darrell Lester were third with a 166.

Tigers host Canyon in first playoff game

Coach Albert Lewis' Tigers, heading into postseason playoff work for the eighth consecutive time, will begin their bi-district series with Canyon next week.

Snyder, the 2-4A champ, will open its best-of-three series with the Eagles here at 4 p.m. on May 15. The series will move to Canyon on May 18 at 2 p.m. A third game, if necessary, will follow the 2 p.m. game in Canyon.

"They have a good ball team," said Coach Albert Lewis of the District 1-4A runnersup. "The team hits the ball well and they are fundamentally sound. It should be a very good series. I feel like we can play with them though."

Meanwhile, the District 2-4A runnerup is still undetermined. Pecos and Andrews, both 6-4 in loop action, are to play their single-game playoff Thursday (May 10) at 7:30 p.m. in Kermit.

Winner of the game will advance to the playoffs against 1-4A champion Lubbock Estacado.

Tigers don't send tracksters to state

BROWNWOOD -- The 1984 track season came to a close for Snyder High School here Saturday, as the Tigers failed to qualify anyone to the upcoming state meet.

Snyder had sent three boys to the Region I-AAAA relays in five events.

Chad Peterson placed fourth in the long jump with a leap of 22-8¼. Kevin Robinzine of Everman won the event with a 24-1 leap. Second was Carlton Wiggins of Cleburn with a 23-7¼.

Peterson also took sixth in the 100 meters with a time of 10.98 seconds. Wayne Walker of Waco Jeff-Moore ran a 10.76 to win. Bastrop's Bobby Scott was second with a 10.79.

Snyder only other place was another sixth as Kyle Freeman threw the shot put 49-2¼.

Dwayne Duncan of Westlake won with a 57-5¼. Second was Eugene Smith of Pampa with a 55-61.2 throw.

Ricky Vaughn, Snyder senior, did not place in the discus.

Snyder gained six points to tie with several other teams. Estacado won the regional meet with 75 points. Dunbar was second with 56.

Cards sweep two contests

Snyder Cardinals defeated the Big Spring Oilers 7-6 and 11-1 in doubleheader play Sunday.

The Cardinals, of the fast-pitch league, will entertain Ballinger at 2 p.m. next Sunday in a doubleheader at Moffett Field.

Snyder got good pitching from Sid Everton, Richard Creighton and Walter Banks in getting the two wins. Creighton lashed a homer in each game.

Rookie mistake helps Lakers past Mavericks

DALLAS (AP) - The Los Angeles Lakers got a break from a rookie mistake and left Reunion Arena with a huge edge in their National Basketball Association playoff series with the Dallas Mavericks.

"I'll tell you what, it's just good to get out of Dodge," said a relieved Earvin "Magic" Johnson after Los Angeles had pulled off a 122-115 overtime victory Sunday, giving the Lakers a 3-1 edge in the best-of-seven series.

"It's very tough down here (Reunion Arena) and we're happy to go home," Johnson said.

The Lakers got a split at Reunion after losing 125-115 Friday night.

The fifth game of the series is set for Los Angeles Tuesday night.

Los Angeles' Bob McAdoo came off the bench to contribute two steals and six points in overtime as the Lakers outscored Dallas 14-7.

However, it was a boner by Mav guard Derek Harper, who dribbled the final six seconds off the clock with the game tied 108-108, that drew most of the postgame attention.

Harper thought Dallas was ahead by a point.

"I didn't know what to think," said Johnson. "When he backed off toward midcourt I told myself I'll let him have that shot all week."

Laker Coach Pat Riley said, "It was a bizarre ending in regulation. I thought he (Harper) was going to run the clock down and I was waiting for him to try to take a shot or get a foul."

"I'm happy with the split," said Riley. Now we have the opportunity to take it home and win. The playoffs don't start until somebody loses at home so we have a good chance."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was high for the Lakers with 33 points as he became the second all-time NBA playoff scorer.

Mark Aguirre scored 34 for the Mavs before he left late in the fourth period with a badly bruised right hip. His availabilty for Tuesday night's game was in question.

Mav center Pat Cummings sent the game into overtime 108-all, hitting a left-handed hook with 31 seconds to play but missed a vital free throw.

Dallas had another chance to win but Harper forgot the score.

"I thought we were ahead 109-108," said a crestfallen Harper.

Giant oil field discovered off Alaskan coast

HOUSTON (AP) — Shell Oil Co. has found a giant oil field in the Beaufort Sea that company officials say is one of the country's most promising oil prospects.

The Seal Island prospect, located off the Alaskan coast contains at least enough oil for 100 million barrels a day, company officials said, qualifying it as what industry experts term a "giant" field.

The discovery well is located in the Beaufort Sea, 50 miles east of a dry hole drilled on the Mukluk prospect and five miles off the northern coast of Alaska, officials told the Houston Chronicle in an article published Sunday.

The prospect is the first Beaufort Sea discovery to be declared commercial, a term used in the industry to refer to a field that can be drilled profitably at current market prices.

Industry experts consider the Beaufort Sea one of the most promising oil and gas exploration frontiers in the country.

Only one-half of 1 percent of 40,000 wells drilled during the American oil industry's 125-year history are what experts call giants, fields that contain the equivalent of at least 100 million barrels of recoverable oil or natural gas.

The field is located about 12 miles northwest of the Prudhoe Bay oil field, the largest oil field in the nation and one of the world's 10 largest.

R.H. Howard, general manager of Shell's Rocky Mountain and Pacific divisions, said he doesn't expect the Seal Island prospect to match Prudhoe Bay's holdings.

The field also underlies leases owned by Amoco Production Co., Amerada Hess Corp. and Texas Eastern Exploration Co.

Howard said production may begin in eight to 10 years, but declined to estimate the cost of developing the find.

Expenses for the discovery well total $23 million so far, company officials said. Other exploratory costs, included $32 million to build a gravel island and $122.6 million to lease eight blocks.

Initial tests by Shell showed oil flowing at rates between 600 and 5,000 barrels a day.

M.C. Forrest, exploration manager for Shell's Pacific frontier division, said it's "very rare" to drill a well that flows 5,000 barrels of oil a day.

"We know we have a good well," Forrest said. "This is the best well I have ever drilled, a world-class well. We don't know yet if it's a world-class field."

Seal Island is 12 miles northwest of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline System's first pump station, but the pipeline needed to connect it to the system must be built in waters that are covered by ice much of the year.

The gravel island was built in late 1981 and early 1982 using 700,000 cubic yards of gravel transported over a nine-foot thick ice road. About one-fourth of the 12.4 mile road lay on ice floating over water.

Texas Oil & Gas . . .

Crisis Time Looms Without More Drilling

By J. C. Walter, Jr.,
Chairman,
Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association

I am no different than most oil men I know in that I am an optimist. I am optimistic about the future of this industry and about my company's endeavors.

The petroleum industry has experienced a bleak period during the past two years. Now, however, the resiliency of independent oil and gas producers has been proved. We are on our way back.

The number of working rigs is an important indicator of vitality in our industry. Evidence of the turnaround is approximately 100 more drilling rigs operating in Texas during 1984 than at a corresponding time last year. But, more needs to be done.

In 1983, drilling totalled 284-million feet. Yet this effort resulted in the discovery of only enough oil and gas to equal 78-percent of production. Last year we also had to import 1.34-billion barrels of oil, at a cost of approximately $40-billion.

Our industry should strive each year to discover oil and gas in amounts equivalent to that produced. Such a commitment in 1983 would have required a 25- to 30-percent larger outlay of exploratory expenditures.

Last year was a recovery year for the economy. As the economy grows, demand for oil and gas will rise along with a need to increase exploration expenditures. If we do not respond quickly, it is likely we will be facing another energy crisis situation similar to the one we endured during the 1970's.

There are numerous reasons why exploratory drilling, both in Texas and the rest of the country, is at a depressed level even with this looming crisis. They include the following:

(1) Independent producers, who historically have drilled 80-percent of this nations's wildcat wells, are debt-burdened after overextending themselves financially in the 1979-1981 period.

(2) These producers' cash flow has been reduced by stabilization of oil and gas prices and imposition of the so-called "Windfall Profits Tax."

(3) Demand for natural gas has decreased and with it the amount of money available for exploration.

Until one or more of these factors changes, doubt remains that we will have the significant increase in drilling activity necessary to continue the recovery. For that recovery to become a reality, the industry needs stability and consistency in the areas of regulation and taxes; we cannot accommodate additional regulatory burdens or increases in taxes, such as a "windfall profits tax" on decontrolled natural gas at the federal level or increases in severance tax rates here in Texas.
