LBJ Calls Crisis Talks On Buddhist Crackdown

US Caught By Surprise

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson called top military and diplomatic advisers to an afternoon session today to go over Vietnamese crisis developing over Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's crackdown on Buddhist dissidents.

Ky's action took Washington by surprise. The State Department said there was no advance notification to the United States.

The administration ordered American officials to use all possible efforts to bring together the rival South Vietnamese factions.

White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers said Johnson would be seeing his ambassador to Viet Nam, Henry Cabot Lodge, and Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara during the afternoon.

Moyers said the session has been on the books since last Thurday, one of a series involving these key men.

Asked what the posture of the U.S. government is in the light of what is happening in Viet Nam now, Moyers told reporters, "I wouldn't want to characterize it."

Officials said Sunday they did not have advance knowledge of the crackdown and no American units were involved. "There was no prior consultation with American authorities," State Department press officer Marshall Wright reported.

Ky's sudden move against 1st Corps dissidents at Da Nang prompted a near-crisis atmosphere in Washington Sunday as worried administration officials met early in the morning and again a few hours later.

President Johnson called in three of his top advisers, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Saigon Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, for a midafternoon meeting. The President then flew to his retreat at Camp David, Md., for an overnight stay.

The United States apparently is adopting a hands-off attitude in the new outbreak. From all indications, military leaders are attempting to keep their troops out of the Da Nang troubles.

The State Department quickly announced Sunday that "no American units are involved and there are no American advisers with the battalions of the South Vietnamese government (troops) that were sent to Da Nang."

Wright, in response to a question, also said U. S. advisers with the South Vietnamese 1st Corps troops generally remained with their units, "most of which are facing the Viet Cong."

But he added that "It is possible that the American advisers have been withdrawn from some 1st Corp units in the vicinity of Da Nang." Wright did not estimate the number of advisers pulled out.

Military sources said all U. S. installations in the Da Nang area had gone on full alert and had reinforced their perimeters.

The sources said the new political outbreak in South Viet Nam could have serious military consequences because it comes in the face of a Communist buildup aimed at a new monsoon offensive.

The sources indicated the gravest possibility is that South Viet Nam's military forces might become tangled in a civil war, opening the door for the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese to launch wide-ranging attacks and make extensive gains.

Sources here acknowledged that current internal troubles are bound to hurt operations against Communist troops in the 1st Corps area, and point out that the pace against the Viet Cong already has slowed down because of the troubles that spilled over into early April.

By RONALD THOMPSON

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Healthy and eager on the eve of a bold space adventure, Gemini 9's two astronauts boned up on intricate details of their complex assignment today as preparations for Tuesday's launch continued.

Air Force Lt. Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan have "the toughest job ever handed an astronaut crew," one official said.

A minor weather threat dissipated today and meteorologists forecast satisfactory conditions at Cape Kennedy and in recovery areas around the world for Tuesday.

Stafford and Cernan are to blast off at 12:39 p.m. EDT, an hour and 39 minutes after the scheduled liftoff of their Agena target rocket.

There had been some concern about a weak "east wave" that had been creeping toward an area 575 miles southeast of Bermuda where the recovery aircraft carrier Wasp will be stationed in the event of an abort.

The space agency said today the storm offered no threat.

Stafford and Cernan planned to discuss their flight plan for the final time with project officials. Sunday, they got their final day of rest before their voyage.

In three action-packed days, the Gemini 9 crew plans to catch and latch on to an Agena rocket in the quickest rendezvous ever in space, conduct man's longest orbital walk, and try tricky rendezvous exercises vital to efforts to send men to the moon.

To fly the 70-hour, 40-minute spectacular, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration drew on two well-trained six-footers.

Stafford, 35, a balding, slow-talking native of Oklahoma, is fresh from the pilot's seat of Gemini 6, the hunter craft that rendezvoused with Gemini 7 last December.

Cernan, 32, a Chicago native with rugged features and sandy crew-cut hair, has never taken a space flight. However, he has been handed the world's longest space walk — 2½ hours — during which he'll become a human satellite.

Ford Sees Dictatorship

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., says the Johnson administration is "leading the nation into a dictatorship."

The House minority leader, speaking at a campaign fund dinner Sunday night, said President Johnson never tells the beneficiaries of his domestic programs that a government big enough to give everybody everything also is big enough to take away everything they have.

Ford accused the President of using the "jawbone" method of combatting rising prices and inflation and criticized what he called excessive spending in nonmilitary fields.

Presidio Hot Spot Of Nation

By The Associated Press

Showers dotted Northeast Texas today and scattered rain was forecast for the western and southern sections of the state through Tuesday.

Summertime temperatures were recorded at a number of points Sunday with the mercury soaring to 105 degrees at Presidio, the warmest spot in the nation.

San Angelo and Childress had 99s, Wichita Falls 97, Wink and Abilene 96 and Amarillo and Lubbock. Most of the readings elsewhere were in the 80s and lower 90s.

A flow of warm, moist air from the gulf covered most of the state. West Texas was clear to partly cloudy today and partly cloudy to heavily overcast elsewhere.

The Weather Bureau said another round of temperatures in the 90s and possibly past the 100 mark could be expected today in most sections.

A cold front edging into the Panhandle dropped the temperature to 48 degrees at Dalhart before dawn today. Lubbock and El Paso had 58 and Amarillo 59. Mostly they were in the 60s and 70s, ranging up to 76 at Corpus Christi and Dallas.

Texarkana, which had rain before dawn, had .04 of an inch for the only measurable amount of moisture of reporting stations during the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m.

Congress Opens Battle Of Budget

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration opens today what could be one of the grimmest fights of the Congress — to enact a $4.2-billion financing program that could make the difference between a nearly balanced budget next year and one $6 billion in the red.

The bill comes before the House today with a vote expected Tuesday. It would permit the government to shift government loans to private investors by putting them in a pool and selling shares in this. Thus the government could convert such assets into cash for use by its agencies, avoiding the need for appropriations.

The measure has encountered wide opposition.

Republicans have called it a budget gimmick to conceal the amount of government spending. Other opponents — including the Farmers Union and the Americans for Democratic Action — say it would cost the taxpayers more in interest than straight Treasury borrowing.

As soon as the financing measure is disposed of, the House is scheduled to start debating another highly controversial piece of legislation to increase minimum wages.

The measure would increase the minimum wage from the present $1.25 an hour to $1.40 next Feb. 1 and $1.60 an hour a year later.

The measure also would extend coverage of the act to 7.2 million additional workers. A major fight is expected on proposed inclusion of farm workers.

The bill's sponsors say they have enough votes for House passage. The Johnson administration has called for improvements in the minimum wage, without spelling out details.

The Senate, with a relatively quiet week in view, is expected to take up a $5-billion National Aeronautics and Space Administration authorization bill.

Its Foreign Relations Committee may begin voting on details of a $3.4-billion foreign aid bill which has provided a platform for debate on foreign policy in general. It also is scheduled to consider further proposals for tighter congressional supervision of the Central Intelligence Agency and other intelligence agencies.

Workers Strike Due In France

Item Gets Special Care

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Postal clerk Mark Timmerman couldn't believe it!

"I was a little scared," said Timmerman Sunday night, "but I didn't want to say anything. I figured it was a fake and all the guys were looking at me."

Then he looked again — and he still couldn't believe it; neither could his fellow workers at the main post office in Philadelphia.

But there it was — six feet long and writhing — a boa constrictor curled inside a mail bag, and trying to hide behind some parcels.

Forman John Dickson decided the snake "was something we couldn't handle and it certainly couldn't be mailed."

S. Viets Assault Viet Cong Base

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Two regiments of South Vietnamese launched a drive today against a Viet Cong base camp 72 miles southwest of Saigon, a Vietnamese army spokesman announced.

Elsewhere, the war slowed to a near halt while South Viet Nam was rocked by dissident army elements and Buddhists in the northern provinces.

It appeared too early however, to tell how much the internal political turmoil would cut into American and allied action against the Viet Cong.

The Vietnamese army spokesman said two regiments of the 9th Vietnamese Division — about 3,000 men — began a drive at dawn aimed at destroying a Viet Cong base camp.

The spokesman said the regiments were bolstered by units of armored carrier personnel and rangers but gave no indication of their size.

He said that toward noon the government forces met light Viet Cong resistance, possibly at the outposts of the target base camp. They killed 32 guerrillas and seized 25 weapons while suffering light casualties of their own, the spokesman said.

The Vietnamese forces reported taking a 20-bed hospital and a Viet Cong arms-making ordnance shop. The spokesman said the operation was continuing.

U. S. Air Force B 52 bombers again struck at a Viet Cong base camp and storage area today, 70 miles north of Saigon. This was the second time in as many days the eight-engine bombers hit the same target area near the Cambodian border in Binh Long Province.

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a high school sophomore and my problem is what is happening to "truth" and "honor" today. Yesterday I found a note near my locker. It said:

"Hi, Kathy,

"Carol and I skipped school Friday. We had a ball. We went to her house and made fudge and watched TV. Her mom works, which makes it nice. When I got home at 4:30 my mother told me the school had called to see why I was absent. My mom is a real doll. She said I was home 'sick.' Want to join us next time?

"BONNIE"

Abby, as you can see, a student skipped school and her mother lied to cover up for her. This kind of thing makes me sick. If the kids lie and their parents cover up for them, is it any wonder we have so much juvenile delinquency?

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: There have always been "moms" who have lied to cover up for their children, and there always will be. But take my word for it, they are the exceptions. Most mothers would have said, "She went to school today, at least that's where she SAID she was going." And after the school-skipper had faced the music at school, she'd have had an encore to contend with at home.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I have been happily married for over 30 years to a man who was a widower. After all this time, his sister casually mentioned to me when we were alone, that his first wife "left him a couple of times for a couple of days." I was stunned, but showed no concern.

However, since then I have wondered "why," and have been tempted to ask him. I know if I do it will cause trouble between his sister and him. What was her point in telling me this after 30 years, Abby?

UPSET

DEAR UPSET: Her point in telling you was to cause trouble between you and your husband. You were extremely wise to have ignored it. If she brings it up again say, "I have no curiosity whatsoever about events that took place 30 years ago. Especially those which didn't concern me."

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I divorced my husband when my only child was a mere babe in arms. Actually he deserted me when I was pregnant. I married a wonderful man, who adopted my daughter when she was two. He raised her as his own. She is getting married soon and wants a large church wedding. She has decided she wants her REAL father to give her away.

This girl hasn't seen her REAL father for 10 years; and maybe three times in her entire life. He has done nothing for her. I can't understand this girl. Do I go along with her wishes or tell her it's impossible? Her stepfather would be hurt beyond words; besides he is paying for the wedding. Answer soon as I am a wreck.

NO CITY, NO NAME

DEAR NO: Your daughter appears to feel that the tradition and protocol of a marriage ceremony are more important than her debt to a devoted stepfather. Tell her that while her intentions are probably sincere, the hurt to her stepfather would be unforgivable. And if she doesn't yield then, bow out of the wedding.

US Readies Electronic Info Center

By GEOFFREY GOULD
AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is cranking up a new kind of clearinghouse for educational research information, using the most advanced electronics to make the data available to all.

The system, called ERIC, for Educational Research Information Center, will rely on 12 specialized clearinghouses around the country to judge the material in each of a dozen fields. Information from the clearinghouses will be fed into the U. S. Office of Education in Washington for centralized indexing.

Two of these clearinghouses already are in operation. One covers vocational and technical education at Ohio State University and another deals with preparation of school personnel, located at City University of New York. All 12 are expected to be operating by September and in full swing by 1967 — at a cost of about $2 million.

Lee G. Burchinal, in charge of ERIC, said each of the clearing houses will be manned by two kinds of experts — experts in the subject matter involved and experts in the modern techniques of information retrieval.

They will identify the worthwhile research papers in their fields and submit resumes to ERIC in Washington. There they will be catalogued and publicized throughout the education community in periodic bulletins and indexes.

Thus a valuable collection of documents on teaching the children of migrant farm workers at remote Adams State College of Colorado will become available to everyone in the country dealing with the problem.

The documents themselves will be stored on "microfiche," a French technique that literally means microcard. A hundred pages of reading matter can be condensed to two small "microfiche" films about the size of a postcard.

When a request for a research paper comes in it will be referred to the Educational Document Reproduction Service, run on contract by a private company in Cleveland, Ohio and furnished for nominal cost.

Cutter Seeks Missing Boat

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Coast Guard cutter hunted near San Simeon, Calif., today for an overturned boat that may have had 12 persons aboard.

A Coast Guard pilot, before darkness, sighted such a boat 12 miles off Point Piedras Blancas in the Pacific Ocean and the cutter Lamar raced southward from Monterey.

The Coronado, a 46-foot boat, reported by radio Saturday that it was having engine trouble about 10 to 15 miles southwest of Monterey. That would put it some 55 miles from the pilot's sighting.

Coast Guard search and rescue headquarters in San Francisco did not know the owner or the home port of the Coronado.

Market's Mild Rally Fizzles Again

NEW YORK (AP) — A mild stock market rally fizzled out today and prices declined once again as trading quickened.

The early advance was on moderate activity and, as the advance faltered, the pace slowed considerably below Friday's. Then stocks began to weaken as selling pressure built up.

Most of the initial gains — which ran to a point or two for some pivotal blue chips—melted away as the new selling drive got under way.

Typhoon Puts Filipino Ship Aground

MANILA (AP) — Typhoon Irma drove a small Filipino interisland ship aground off Cebu Island today and the situation of about 155 persons aboard was described as critical.

Giant seas lashed the 740-ton interisland steamer Pioneer Cebu and kept rescue ships from going to her assistance. Reports from the area said the center of Typhoon Irma, with 80-mile an hour winds, was almost directly over the ship.

A spokesman for the ship's owners said the exact number of passengers aboard was unknown, but he thought there were about 100 with a crew of 55.

A radio operator at Philippine President Lines in Manila said the ship was aground on a reef off the northern tip of Cebu and in a "critical condition."

"We picked up the SOS this morning. The radio operator on the ship said the seas were huge and threatening to capsize the ship," he said.

"The last contact we had with him said the ship was aground. He did not say anything about abandoning it."

Earlier reports said the ship had sunk but they were denied by an official of Filipinas Pioneer Shipping Lines, owners of the vessel.

Two Escapes Too Tiring

TUCUMCARI, N.M. (AP)—Officers had to capture a convict twice before he could be returned to the New Mexico State Penitentiary at Santa Fe.

James H. Elledge, 23, serving 10-50 years for robbery, escaped from prison Saturday by prying off a vent, climbing to the roof, sliding down a drain pipe and leaping a fence.

He was arrested in a stolen car Sunday at Tucumcari 170 miles east of Santa Fe. A short time later he jumped from the second floor of the Tucumcari City Hall.

He was recaptured a few hours later walking along a street.

"I'm just too tired to run," officers quoted Elledge as saying.

Adults Get Blame For Delinquency

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers said today that adults must blame themselves for giving adolescents too much power and not enough responsibility.

"It is we who have led many of them to believe — or pretend — that everything in life is or should be fun," Jennelle Moorhead said in her prepared keynote address to the P-T A's 70th annual convention.

"It is we who have invited our young people to dwell for seven years or so in an unreal and hence unwholesome world of their own, a world that too often has little relation to the adult world.

"Parents and teachers, in our effort to be permissive, have too often been submissive."

Mrs. Moorhead, of Eugene, Ore., told the convention that there is another end of the spectrum.

"We have thousands of able, responsible youngsters being pressured to make high grades so that they can qualify for college, and to maintain those grades in order to stay there," she said.

"I would be the last person to decry superior academic achievement, but I would be remiss not to cry out against the exaggerated importance today attached to grades as grades, as distinguished from the true purpose of education."

About 2,000 delegates representing 6,000 P-T As throughout the country and in American schools overseas are attending the four-day meeting which began Sunday with a vesper service.

Mrs. Moorhead said the association has "reached a turning point in its history. There are critical internal issues to be resolved, and we are called upon to make crucial decisions. Upon this convention rests the responsibility to assure the P-T A a confident, splendid future."

EUROPEAN FRONT

Mansfield Would Call Troops In

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield proposed today that the United States withdraw all but a token force of U. S. troops from Europe as part of the realignment of North Atlantic Treaty Organization defenses.

Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, said in an interview he hopes the Johnson administration will recognize the change in status in Europe and seek some compromise with President Charles de Gaulle in France's scheduled exit July 1 from NATO.

Out of such negotiations, the Montana senator said, could come a sizable reduction in the six American divisions and supporting forces now in Europe.

"In view of the economic rehabilitation of Western Europe and the reduced threat of Russian aggression, I believe it is time for us to insist that the European nations themselves take on the primary military and financial responsibilities for their defense," he said.

In another development, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said he expects the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to hold public hearings soon on U. S. policies in Europe.

Church, who recently completed a two-week tour of Europe, said Sunday on the NBC television-radio program "Meet the Press," these policies need updating. He also suggested that a meeting between President Johnson and De Gaulle would be "very useful."

Regardless, Church said, the United States must cement the allegiance of the 14 NATO members besides France.

Washington discussions on NATO step up this week with Britain's minister of European and NATO affairs, George Thomson, due to see Secretary of State Dean Rusk and other high officials today and Tuesday. Belgium's Foreign Minister Pierre Harmel is due here at midweek.

U.S. strategists were reported seeking stronger ties and unity among the 14 NATO members who will remain if France withdraws in advance of the NATO ministerial meeting to be held in Brussels June 6-8.

OKAY, MISTER--MOUNT UP!

Crafty Ky's Move Takes Washington By Surprise

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Premier Nguyen Cao Ky is a flashy, ambitious man, and as governments had come and gone since President Ngo Dinh Diem was thrown out and killed in 1963.

But Ky, as Sunday's events showed, wasn't the type to give up easily even though at time he seemed to accept advice from doing a few weeks ago. He sent his troops into South Viet Nam's northern city of Da Nang to take over. The reason seems clear: the chances for success looks better now than then.

Early in 1965 Ky gagged when offered the job of youth and sports minister in Viet Nam's government. He was commander of the air force and he didn't want to give up that job for the other. He was assured he could have both.

So he accepted the ministerial job, too, and about six months later hit the jackpot when the generals took over the government and he was made premier.

This might have seemed — and may turn out that way — like just one more governmental coup in a long line. Nine parently crafty. It's the crafty but which seems to have taken President Johnson's administration by surprise over the weekend.

Ky just did what he backed away from doing a few weeks ago. He sent his troops into Da Nang to take over. The when he forced a showdown with a rival, Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi, who was thrown out of the military junta and out of command of the northern provinces where he had close ties with the Buddhists.

Monks and students in Da Nang in the north, and elsewhere, demanded the reinstatement of Thi. They demonstrated against Ky's government.

Under this pressure Ky promised a constitutional convention and elections to create a civilian government. But he finally got fed up with the rumpus and flew 4,000 troops to Da Nang's air base April 4.

Then he decided not to use them against the city. The rumpus gradually quieted down, at least it lost its intensity. In view of what happened Sunday Ky must have figured April 4 was not a good time to use troops.

But it was only a temporary yielding.

Drawing up a constitution with a constitutional assembly and preparing for the elections will take time. And recently Ky announced he would stay in office another year.

Further, he said, if the people elected a neutralist or Communist government the army would fight. The Buddhists muttered but this time there was no vast outpouring in protest.

And Sunday Ky went through with what he had stopped short of doing before. He airlifted military forces to Da Nang. After a fight they took the city.

It was all done so quickly the Johnson administration disavowed any advance knowledge of what Ky had in mind. He acted while Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to Viet Nam was here conferring with Johnson.

Although the administration in Washington ordered U. S. officials in Saigon to press for a peaceful solution, this may be wishful thinking in a disorderly country like Viet Nam.

These past few weeks gave Ky time to rally his forces, figure the strength and weakness of his opponents, and take care of any fences which needed mending before he acted, as he did Sunday.

Vintage Plane Makes Emergency Landing

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A 1929 biplane lost its engine in flight Sunday but glided to a smooth landing on Tampa Bay. The pilot escaped with a back injury.

Authorities said the pilot, Henry Palmer, St. Petersburg, was able to control the vintage plane and execute a smooth landing at an ideal spot — on the shallow part of the bay.

The emergency landing inflicted no serious damage on the plane. The engine was found in the bay.

A Junior Editors Quiz About TREE BARK

QUESTION: Why does a tree have bark?

• • •

ANSWER: Looking at the cross section of a tree trunk as at upper left, we can get a clear idea of the reasons for its special structure. The tiny spot in the center shows the tree in its first year. Each ring after that shows one year's growth. The darker group of rings in the center show the part of the tree trunk which is no longer engaged in the business of carrying water and sap up and down, which it did when the tree was young. But it acts as a strong central structure holding the tree up in the air. The outer rings show the active part of the trunk. Through this, sap goes up toward the leaves. In the outside part, just under the bark, food comes down which has been made by the leaves and is distributed. The bark is a strong outside layer which has the special job of protecting the easily damaged inner sapwood. Sometimes it splits into rough plates, but sometimes it is smooth, like the white birch bark the Indians in the picture are getting to build the beautiful canoes once made by them. Sections of bark were sewed together, waterproofed on the edges with pitch, and attached to a light wooden framework. The young warrior is imitating a moose's call on his bark horn. He's hoping to serve moose steak for supper.

• • •

FOR YOU TO DO: Look for a broken limb or tree branch on [illegible] a living tree in order to do this. Trees can be very easily killed if their protective bark layer is removed. 5-16

Tigers Trip Lamesa, 3-1; Share Title

FAST ACTION — Spur's Cowboys did some good riding and shooting Sunday afternoon to defeat Ralls, 6-3, and Snyder, 17-3, and 13-5, to win the championship of the annual Polo Tournament here. (Staff Photo).

Playoff Winner To Represent 3-AAA In Bi-District Baseball Battle

They came to play.

And when the dust had settled, the fighting Snyder Tigers had forced the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes to share the throne room with them by virtue of their 3-1 verdict here Saturday in the final game of the District 3-AAA baseball race.

Each team finished the district campaign with identical 10-2 records. Their two losses were to each other. Coach Keith Miles and Speedy Moffett were to meet with Lamesa officials at Gail this morning to decide when and where to have the playoff.

The clash here Saturday was a classic battle between two evenly matched teams. Both pitchers, Roy Hunter for Snyder and Terry Davis for Lamesa, were highly effective. Hunter, in allowing five hits, claimed his second straight victory over the Tornadoes. Davis, although he was the loser, gave up only three hits and was in firm control except for a touch of wildness during the first couple of innings.

Roy Kizer walked for Snyder to open the bottom of the 1st. Ray Kizer then drew a free pass and David Cadena grounded to the shortstop. Roy was forced at third, but Cadena was safe at first on the fielder's choice.

With one away and runners on first and second, David Holt picked on a 2-3 pitch and doubled in two runs.

Lamesa narrowed the gap to 2-1 in the 2nd on a walk to John Gibson and singles by Gene Everheart, Terry Davis and Amador Tijerina. Davis, the pitcher, received credit for batting in Gibson.

Snyder scored the final run of the game in the bottom of the 2nd. Terry Holt took an Annie Oakley and moved to second on a wild pitch. After Hunter fanned and Roy Kizer flied out deep to centerfield, Ray Kizer cracked a single and Holt scored on the play.

That was it as far as scoring was concerned, but both teams kept the fans interested with their brilliant defensive play. Neither team made an error during the game. Lamesa was unable to get a runner past first base after the 2nd frame.

Davis retired the first three men to face him in the 3rd, 4th and 5th innings. David Holt smashed a hot liner inside third base for a single in the 6th. Then Dink Foree sacrificed pinch runner Tommy Bullard to second. However, the next two batters made outs as the Tiger threat ended.

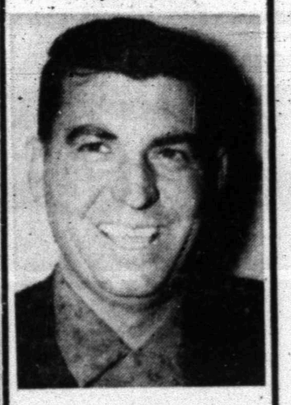

David Holt, in addition to batting in two of the three Snyder runs, also was outstanding on defense. Several times he scooped up hot grounders at first to make the put outs unassisted.

Hunter struck out three and walked two. Davis struck out five. After issuing three walks in the 1st and one in the 2nd, he didn't walk any other batters during the remainder of the tilt.

If the playoff is as exciting as the last tussle, then both teams probably will have solid backing.

Mets Surprise San Francisco, Reds Win

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Milt Pappas spotted Frank Robinson 400 points, but he's not worried. He figures he has until 1968 to catch up.

Actually, at his present pace, Pappas won't need that much time to pull even with Robinson. The Cincinnati pitcher sliced another chunk off the Baltimore slugger's lead Sunday, gaining his third straight complete-game victory as the Reds whipped Chicago 9-2.

Pappas and Robinson were the primary players in the winter deal between the Reds and the Orioles, and everyone conceded the better of the trade to Baltimore when Robinson was hitting .400 before Pappas even had won a game for Cincinnati.

But now the 27-year-old right-hander has won three games in 10 days, and he's helped pull the Reds to within three games of .500 after they had been eight games under.

Pappas, however, isn't interested in discussing the merits of the trade.

"It'll take three years before anyone can decide what's what in a deal like this," he said Sunday. But he added:

"The Reds got me to pitch, and I can do that. What happens with Robinson and the Orioles, I have no concern."

Elsewhere in the National League, New York whipped San Francisco 6-1, Los Angeles trimmed Pittsburgh 3-1, Philadelphia stopped Houston 5-2, and St. Louis downed Atlanta 5-3.

In the American, Cleveland nipped Baltimore 2-1 after losing 1-0 in 13 innings, New York swept Kansas City 5-2 and 3-1, Minnesota beat Washington 6-2, Detroit defeated Chicago 8-6 and California edged Boston 5-4 before losing 6-3.

Pappas received solid support from Pete Rose, who rapped three hits, including a three-run double in the fourth inning. Deron Johnson, Don Pavletich and Art Shamsky contributed homers to the Reds' attack while Ron Santo connected for the Cubs.

Rod Gardner stopped San Francisco on four hits, one of them Jim Hart's homer. Ron Hunt triggered two New York rallies, singling and scoring in the first and singling at the start of a four-run outburst in the third.

Don Sutton and Phil Regan combined for a six-hitter over Pittsburgh. John Roseboro and Maury Wills each tripled in a run, and Wills scored on Willie Davis' single.

Jr. Netters Show Well

An 8th grade doubles team won the championship and two seventh grade singles entrants from Snyder went to the semi finals in the Sweetwater Junior Tennis Tournament over the weekend.

The doubles team of Ronnie Maddux and John Phillips downed an Abilene duo, 6-4, 6-4, in the finals. This is the third tournament Maddux and Phillips have won this year.

In 7th grade singles, Max Falls defeated an Abilene entrant, 6-0, 6-0; and Gary Gallman defeated a Wichita Falls entrant, 3-6, 6-2, 9-7, before bowing in the semifinals to a San Angelo entrant, 6-4, 6-2.

The tournament was not a school-sponsored activity for the local youngsters. They entered and made the trip on their own.

Braves, Phils Triumph Easily

There were two lop-sided games in the Pony and Colt baseball leagues Saturday night. The Braves shellacked the Sports, 8-0, in the Pony contest, and the Phillies bombarded the Yankees, 16-1, in the Colt clash.

The Braves rapped out 11 hits led by D. McGinnis, who hit safely each time up in four appearances, including a triple. R. Small socked two for four, including a double. Hitting singles were W. Harrison and B. Branson.

Brave pitcher McGinnis gave up only two hits—singles to R. Harris and Voss. Bell appeared on the hill for the Sports.

The Phillies pounded the Yanks for 15 hits. Frankie Grimmett and Robert Hobbs each collected three hits, and Terry Holt and Lynn Wilson each rapped two hits. Holt, Hobbs and Rinehart knocked one double each, and Grimmett smashed two of them. Wilson was credited with a 3-bagger.

Hitting singles for the Yanks were George McKnight, Gary Bailey, Pat Smith and Jerry Northcott. The winning pitcher was Herman Malone, and Tony Suttle was tagged with the loss.

Phils Flail Astros, 5-2

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Harvey Kuenn was too much for the Houston Astros Sunday as he scored the tying run and drove in the winning run in a 5-2 victory by Philadelphia.

But the Astros stayed in second place in the National League, still 3½ games back of Pittsburgh.

Kuenn beat out an infield single in the sixth inning, raced to third on Bill White's single and scored as Jack Brandt singled. That tied the score at 2-2.

In the seventh Cookie Rojas reached first on an error, was sacrificed to second and came home with an unearned run on Kuenn's single to center.

Rojas doubled in two more runs for the Phillies in the eighth.

Ann Creed Wins Civitan Crown

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — It would seem axiomatic to say that a big girl could progress better against a 25-miles-per-hour wind than a little one.

But what do you say when the three smallest gals in the field finished 1-2-3 in a golf tournament.

That's what happened Sunday as Clifford Ann Creed, 100-pounder; Judy Torluemke, 115, and Sandra Haynie, 125, took away most of the money in the $15,000 Dallas Civitan Open.

Miss Creed didn't shoot too good golf in the closing round as she came in with a three-over-par 74 for 285 and first money of $2,250.

"The wind bothered me, sure," the four-year veteran of the women's golf tour said, "but didn't it bother everybody else, too?"

It must have because she won by seven strokes over Miss Torluemke, who had a closing 77 for second money of $1,750.

Miss Torluemke's total was 292, two strokes better than Miss Haynie, who soared to a 76 and wound up with 294. It earned her third money of $1,450 and shot her into the lead in money winning for the year.

She has won $6,708 to replace Mickey Wright, one of the big girls, as the leader.

Miss Wright slumped badly after an opening 70 and her final 73 left her at 295 and a tie for fourth place. She won only $832 and that dropped her to second among the money-winners with $6,677.

Miss Wright, defending champion of the Civitan, said she just played badly and reports that she had a wrist injury that slowed her down were "only a press room rumor."

Miss Creed said she would skip this week's Babe Zaharias Open at Beaumont, Tex., and also the tournament at Baton Rouge, La., the following week.

"I am just flat worn out," she said. "I played some exhibitions in Australia and have been in all the tournaments on the tour and I need a rest. So I'm going home to Alexandria, La."

Miss Creed has won seven tournaments in four years on the tour but the Dallas Civitan was her first of the year. She has won $4,383.50 and now ranks seventh among the money-winners.

Each Astronaut Is Eager To Be First On The Moon

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Puffing on a cigar, John W. Young sat at a cluttered desk in the Manned Spacecraft Center and seemed a bit stumped at first by the question: "Why do you want to go to the moon?"

"Frankly," the astronaut replied, "I've been too busy to think about it."

Then, after collecting his thoughts, the short, stocky Navy commander added in a serious tone:

"Going to the moon per se is just part of the job. I think it would be a real challenge to get up there and see it first hand. No doubt—it's going to be complex and daring."

To America's astronauts, soaring into space is a natural progression in a career that carried them from propeller-driver planes, to jets and now rocket ships.

Their goal was set by President John F. Kennedy, and has been reiterated by President Johnson. "We intend to land the first man on the surface of the moon, and we intend to do it in the decade of the 1960s," Johnson said.

There's not one who would pass up a chance to be one of the first two Americans to set foot on the moon.

"I'll take any flight I can get—the next one they'll give me," Young said. "I'm sure everybody here would like to be on the first lunar mission crew but everybody is not going to be on it. There's only three seats."

Young, who was pilot on the Gemini 3 mission, will take his second flight this summer as command pilot of Gemini 10.

Why do these men who travel, or will travel, in the hostile environment away from safety of earth's atmosphere, want a voyage to the moon? And, why do they think man should embark on such a daring journey?

Over a period of months, here is how a cross-section of the nation's astronauts answered the question—

Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., said. "I've always felt that if we can land on the moon and return to earth safely, then I think our horizons are unlimited. I think that's part of it—to develop this next stepping stone."

Air Force Maj. Michael Collins adds, "I think it's just a natural human desire to be able to go every place you know exists. I think man has always wanted to spread his domain—over the ocean, in the sky, and now to the moon. Just like a child will walk every place he can, man will go every place he can."

Navy Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr., says, "man should keep going as far as he can in any direction—in the water, in the sky. I don't think flying in space is any different than the guy down here inventing artificial hearts. It's the same desires that any persons has in any job, even if it is going to the moon."

Marine Maj. Clifton C. William Jr.: "The first trip to the moon will be the most demanding, challenging and rewarding flights you can make from the standpoint of personal satisfaction and accomplishment.

"I certainly don't think the moon will be the end of our space exploration, rather it's the beginning. It's the most attainable satellite."

Walter R. Cunningham, a civilian astronaut: "The moon just happens to be the immediate goal right now. Man is capable of doing these things, and I don't think we as human beings—human beings who are trying to progress in the world—can afford not to do it."

Navy Capt. Alan B. Shepard Jr.: "It just happens the moon, our own satellite, is a convenient target. Even if the moon were not there, I think we would be demonstrating the same kinds of things we're doing. We'd be going out that distance to demonstrate navigation capabilities, and the like."

Air Force Lt. Col. Edward H. White II: "I think that's the area in which man has to go—to explore everything he can in space. It's not just going to the moon, it's the exploration of space that I'm interested in. Our immediate goal is to go to the moon, and I think that is a wonderful thing, as a nation to have goals."

Two U.S. astronauts who died in a jet crash Feb. 28 before taking a space flight answered the question in one of their last interviews.

Civilian Elliot M. See: "I think my interest in going to the moon is in conducting the experimental test flying required for that. I don't feel that my personal desires really are of any consequence at all, though. The important thing is the development of the space program."

Air Force Maj. Charles A. Bassett II: "The moon, I think is essentially a real good first step toward Mars—it's a matter of walking before you can run. The moon, in many respects, can give us clues, if not the answer, to how our solar system was formed.

GOOD STOCK — J. L. Caylor (center) and his wife, Dottie, have opened a well-stocked auto supply firm at 603 E. Highway. Dub Buchanan (right) helps them run the store. J. L. says the firm also carries other useful or novelty items, such as a Permanent Match that is good for 10,000 lights.

Caylor Auto Supply Stocks Huge List Of Useful Items

Several years of industrious effort and careful planning have paid off for Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Caylor. They recently opened the Caylor Auto Supply firm at 603 E. Highway.

As a special sales offer this week, J. L. Caylor Auto Supply is offering Motorola auto stereos at the low rate of $69.95 each.

J. L. and his wife, Dottie, moved to Snyder a couple of years ago after operating an auto supply truck at Post for about two years. They still have the truck and use it in their business. They specialize in service—free delivery, and they are open for business on Saturdays and Sundays.

A graduate of Plainview High School, J. L. also attended college at West Texas State in Canyon. The family resides at 2705 Thirty-fourth Street. The Caylors have two children, Kyle, 4, and Kim, 21 months.

"We have a good stock and are getting more supplies all the time," said the owner.

He takes pride in having useful items in stock other than auto parts and accessories, such as spray paint and Permanent Match kits with key chains.

"We try to keep novelty or useful items on hand that we think our regular customers would like," explained Caylor. He pointed out that the Permanent Match kit can be used 10,000 times to light cigarettes or cigars.

Also employed by the firm is W. D. (Dub) Buchanan.

Caylor Auto Supply has a really tremendous stock for a business that has been in operation for only about three weeks. They have such things as brake shoes, water and fuel pumps, carburetor tuneup kits, voltage regulators, gaskets, bearings, oil filters and ignition parts for virtually all types and models of cars.

Located in the building that housed the former Grady Irwin furniture store, Caylor Auto Supply has plenty of room to store all of its many accessories and parts, such as steering wheels, mirrors, stick shifts, polished chrome knobs, customized gas pedals and chrome air breathers, hub caps, oil and ampere gauges, and tachometers.

J. L. Caylor Auto Supply also has a lot of repair and replacement equipment that service stations ordinarily carry. For instance, they have Ace, AC and Purolator oil and air filters, jacks and battery chargers.

Minister Quits Pastorate To Lend The Poor A Hand

Editor's Note: The Rev. Mr. Don Post felt that somehow the churches were not reaching the poor. So he joined the poverty enmeshed as one of them, quitting his pastorate and taking up a pick and shovel.

By PAUL RECER

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Don Post, a minister without a church and a preacher who frequents bars, believes that to know the poor one must taste poverty too.

To follow this belief, the 30-year-old father of two quit a $4,800 a year job and took up a pick and shovel for $190 a month.

Why did he feel this necessary?

"Basically the church is a middle and upper class institution," he said recently. "I realized my work was not a gut-level relationship with the poor. I didn't feel any of the terrors of their level of life."

The Rev. Mr. Post worked actively with the poor of San Antonio's inner city area for three years as a minister. He decided the charity work he was doing was helping no one.

"We were just helping perpetuate the cycle of poverty," he said.

At the time he lived in what he called a fairly "disadvantaged" neighborhood but he had job security, an assured income, and a free residence with utilities paid by the church.

"I felt I would have to get down on their level—where they sweat, where they work to really know them," he said.

San Antonio Methodist Bishop Eugene Slater agreed to free Post from his job as pastor of the Alamo Methodist Church. Although Post is still under the guidance of the denomination, benefits. He is even cut off he receives none of the financial from a pastor's pension.

The minister first went to work as a taxi driver. It was a revelation.

"Cab drivers represent a very broken kind of people," he said. "They're treated as real bums. I had a new name. I was 'hey, you.' Not reverend or mister or even Don. I was just a part of a car and not seen with any respect."

Cab drivers, he said, work seven days a week in San Antonio, 12 to 14 hours a day, and make $70 to $80 a week.

"If you cheat, you can make $90 to $100," he said, by withholding fares from the cab company.

"He then got a job as a day laborer at a federal housing project for the poor. He dug ditches, hauled garbage, cut down trees and poured concrete. And found a love for the poor.

"I feel closer to them than to any congregation I've had," he said.

He said he went through a period of trial when his new associates tried to shock him. But he refused to react the way they expected.

Soon, "guys would come and spill their guts out about their lives," he said. He listens and advises. He never makes them feel shame.

He soon learned that Saturday nights meant hours of beer drinking at a neighborhood bar for a group of his fellow laborers, mostly persons of Mexican descent. They formed a loose sort of club. And Methodism is a denomination that is strongly against the use of alcohol.

The minister went to the bar one night with his fellow workers. Before the night was over, he broke up two fights with courage, reason and quiet talk. The second night at the bar he was surrounded by men—hard, bitter, rough and uneducated—who needed to talk and needed someone to listen.

Post, a dark, handsome man with a brisk stride and an easy manner, plans to continue his present work for the rest of his ministry. He admits it will not be easy.

"I like the good things of life—cars, a nice home—just as much as anybody," he said. "but now, we just buy what we need."

His wife, Vickie, 29, supported her husband's choice.

"The future of the church lies in this area," she said, "especially in the really poor areas that can't afford a minister." She took a teaching job to help with the income.

Post sees his role as one not only of helping the poor spiritually, but helping to show them a way out of poverty.

"There are 10,000 to 20,000 outdoor privies in this town," he said to illustrate the depth of the poverty, "and people are working for 25 cents an hour."

Post never expects to head a large church for the poor. Instead, he hopes for a series of "house churches" where 10 to 20 meet in a living room.

Even this is far away. Now there is the sweat, the grime and the quiet, intense talk in the neighborhood bar and on the job.

The minister doesn't feel he is bringing God to the poor. Nor does he believe he left God when he left his church building.

"The role of Christian man is to uncover the God in the world," he said, "and God's in the middle of the poverty group. All I do is join Him."

Oilmen Slate Study Of Incentives

By MAX B. SKELTON
Associated Press Oil Writer

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—A policy committee for Texas independent oil operators has voted to establish a special committee to study possible incentives that would strengthen the domestic search for new oil and gas reserves.

The study would include proposals that oil import quotas be granted oil explorers on the basis of footage drilled.

Action by the import policy committee was included in a recommendation to be placed this afternoon before the 20th anniversary meeting of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association.

The Sunday action resulted from a two-hour discussion of an eight-year decline in United States oil and gas drilling rates. Association officials said prospects are not bright for increased incentives in the form of a crude oil price hike or a rollback in the over-all level of imports.

They were told, however, that the Interior Department has received several suggestions that import quotas now held by the nation's petroleum refiners be shared with domestic oil drillers.

J. D. Tompkins, Abilene, said Interior Department officials have indicated they favor such a plan for successful wildcat wells that discover new reserves. Tompkins, president of the West Central Texas Oil and Gas Association, said one suggested plan would mean an imports quota of about five barrels for each foot drilled. He said this would amount to a bonus of about $25,000 for a successful wildcat that cost $78,000.

"This would be a handsome reward," Tompkins said. "The Interior Department is ready to reward success but not failure."

Some independents wanted to instruct the special study group to ask that import quotas be available for dry holes as well as successful wells and be limited to onshore explorations. Such instructions, however, were not included in the resolution.

Chiang Starts 4th Term As President

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Chiang Kai-shek begins his fourth six-year term Friday as Nationalist China's president. Taking office beside him will be an economics expert whom Chiang himself chose as his heir apparent.

The vice president-elect, C.K. Yen, will be the first nonmilitary man to hold the office.

Yen is now premier. The last vice president, Chen Cheng, died in March 1965, and since then there has been no constitutional successor to Chiang.

Chiang at 78 is in good health and leads an active life. His last serious illness was in 1962 when he underwent prostate surgery.

Chiang passed over a number of his contemporaries to select a younger man. Yen is 60. He was also chosen because of his proven ability as an administrator and economic expert. Before becoming premier in December 1963, he served a four-year term as governor of Formosa, sandwiched between two periods as minister of finance, 1950-54 and 1958-63.

Yen has a wife, five sons, four daughters and seven grandchildren.

Chiang regards Yen's excellent command of English as an asset that meets one of Chiang's own shortcomings.

Market Lag May Be Good News

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The sharp drop in stock prices in the first half of May has:

—Dismayed many speculators in glamor stocks.

—Disturbed some investors in blue chip issues.

—Left the official guardians of the economy outwardly unruffled.

—And consoled some taxpayers by making a tax rate hike seem less likely.

It's all in how you look at it. From where the government economists stand, today's apparent bad news could be tomorrow's good news.

On paper the stock market has lost many dollars, as measured by the quotations for leading securities, and even more if you look at the wing-clipping of the high-fliers.

The Dow-Jones index of 30 blue chip industrials stood at 933.68 at the close of trading in April. At the final bell Friday the 13th of May the average had slipped to 876.11.

The two-week's drop of 57.57 points, or 6.1 per cent, has been called everything from a technical reaction from some tentative gains made in April, to an emotional upset brought on about equally by cuts in auto sales and production and by talk of inflation sparking higher taxes. Traders feared heftier tax rates would mean lower profits, after the first quarter's spectacular climb.

Those who lost money, or saw their paper profits shriveling, won't be pleased. But in Wall Street many brokers call the cooling down of the speculative stock boom a blessing. This not only could give the general market a firmer base. It also could ward off criticism, and possible regulatory action by government agencies.

Washington economic planners are known to have been worried by the rise of speculation—apparent both in the price increases of the glamor stocks, and in the record volume of trading. These planners welcome the cooling down in the first half of May.

Many of the officials also are far from dismayed by the signs of a slowdown in the general economic pace. They dub as welcome such things as the current hesitation in the auto industry, leveling off of home building, trimming of plans for capital spending by industry, and the first signs that consumer spending itself may be calming down although holding to a high level.

The part that the stock market dip plays in this cooling down is largely psychological. Hopefully, it could keep the economy from getting frenzied.

Actually, the economic planners in Washington and most of their critics in banking circles are agreed on the desirability of further, but moderate, growth in the economy in general. They differ in that the critics think the pace already has become too rapid and the administration holds that so far this is far from a proven thing.

The slowdown in many sectors at the moment with the stock market acting as the symbol—helps the official economists to argue that all could be working out for the best. Some critics, especially among bankers, may still be unconvinced. And those who lost money in the stock market won't be happy.

But at mid-May there's a different look to many things than a month ago.

Greyhound Bus Strike Strands Many

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Many commuters were without bus service today in a strike which shut down Greyhound operations in 12 Western states. The El Paso area of Texas was affected.

Greyhound said 1,500 buses, including 365 on commuter runs, are out of service in the strike of 5,000 employes.

Drivers and clerks went out at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

Continental Trailways bus lines used extra buses and drivers.

R. E. Thomas, president of Western Greyhound, said a major issue was the union's demands for pensions. Other issues, including wages, also were unresolved. Al Baker, the union business agent, agreed.

The company offered a wage package totaling an increase of 4½ to 5 per cent each year of a two-year contract.

A union spokesman said that under the pact that expired, wages had averaged about $8,000 a year. Drivers earned $25 to $50 daily, he added.

Ted Abernathy, the underhand righthanded relief ace of the Chicago Cubs, set a major league record in 1965 by appearing in 84 games, all in relief.
