Inouye: Reagan knew about funds for arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate committee investigating the Iran-Contra affair says President Reagan knew money was being raised to provide arms to Nicaraguan rebels.

Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, said Sunday, "I think the president knew much more than what the White House has intimated."

Inouye was interviewed on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press" as a committee he chairs, along with a companion panel in the House, begins joint hearings Tuesday into the secret sales of U.S. arms to Iran and the diversion of payments to the Contras fighting the Nicaraguan government.

A major question of the long hearings, Inouye said, will be who knew what about the private fund-raising effort to get money and arms to the Contras after Congress cut off aid to the rebels.

Inouye said Reagan "was aware that monies were being raised to provide arms for the Contras."

That was done, Inouye noted, "at a time when the Congress of the United States had expressed its intention that funds should not be spent to purchase arms for the Contras."

Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., vice chairman of the Inouye panel, said on the NBC program, "There's a difference between public and private funds...and that's, of course, the one issue that we have yet to hone in on."

Another question is whether Reagan knew about the diversion of money from the Iran arms sales to the Contra cause.

Inouye said he has found no evidence "whatsoever" that the president knew about the diversion of that money, considered to be public funds.

In other developments:

— Lewis Tambs, former U.S. ambassador to Costa Rica, was quoted Sunday in The New York Times as saying that during the time U.S. aid to the Contras was legally banned, Tambs was ordered by senior U.S. officials to help the rebels. He identified those officials as Lt. Col. Oliver North, who had since been fired from the president's National Security Council, Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams and Alan Fiers, who was head of the CIA's Central American Task Force.

Reagan says he will not withdraw Contra support

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan, undaunted by the opening of new congressional hearings on the Iran-Contra affair, insists America must not blink in a U.S.-Soviet "test of wills" over the future of the Western Hemisphere.

Reagan, using the Statue of Liberty as a backdrop and the opening of the American Newspaper Publisher's Association convention as his forum, declared he will not withdraw his support for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels "for as long as I am president."

Reagan defiantly renewed his pitch for support of the Contras without making any reference to the commencement Tuesday of a new series of hearings into whether the administration violated the law in connection with its efforts to support the Contras.

Reagan traveled to nearby Newark International Airport at midafternoon Sunday, accompanied by his wife, Nancy. Once there, they took separate motorcades, with the first lady coming into New York to prepare for an address today to the annual luncheon of The Associated Press, held in conjunction with the ANPA convention.

Reagan, who returned to the White House Sunday night, was dogged by questions of what he knew about the private network of Contra support operations that has become public in the continuing uproar over the secret U.S. sales of arms to Iran and the diversion of payments to the rebels.

Questioned by reporters as he visited the Great Hall on Ellis Island before the speech, Reagan said he was aware that private individuals were raising money to help the Contras, "but there was nothing in the nature of a solicitation by the administration, to my knowledge, of anyone, to do that."

"I did know the people I met with, to thank, because they had raised money to put commercials on television to urge the Congress to support the Contras," he said.

Aides who accompanied Reagan on the New York trip told reporters his speech was aimed at showing the president does not view the use of military force as the only solution in Nicaragua.

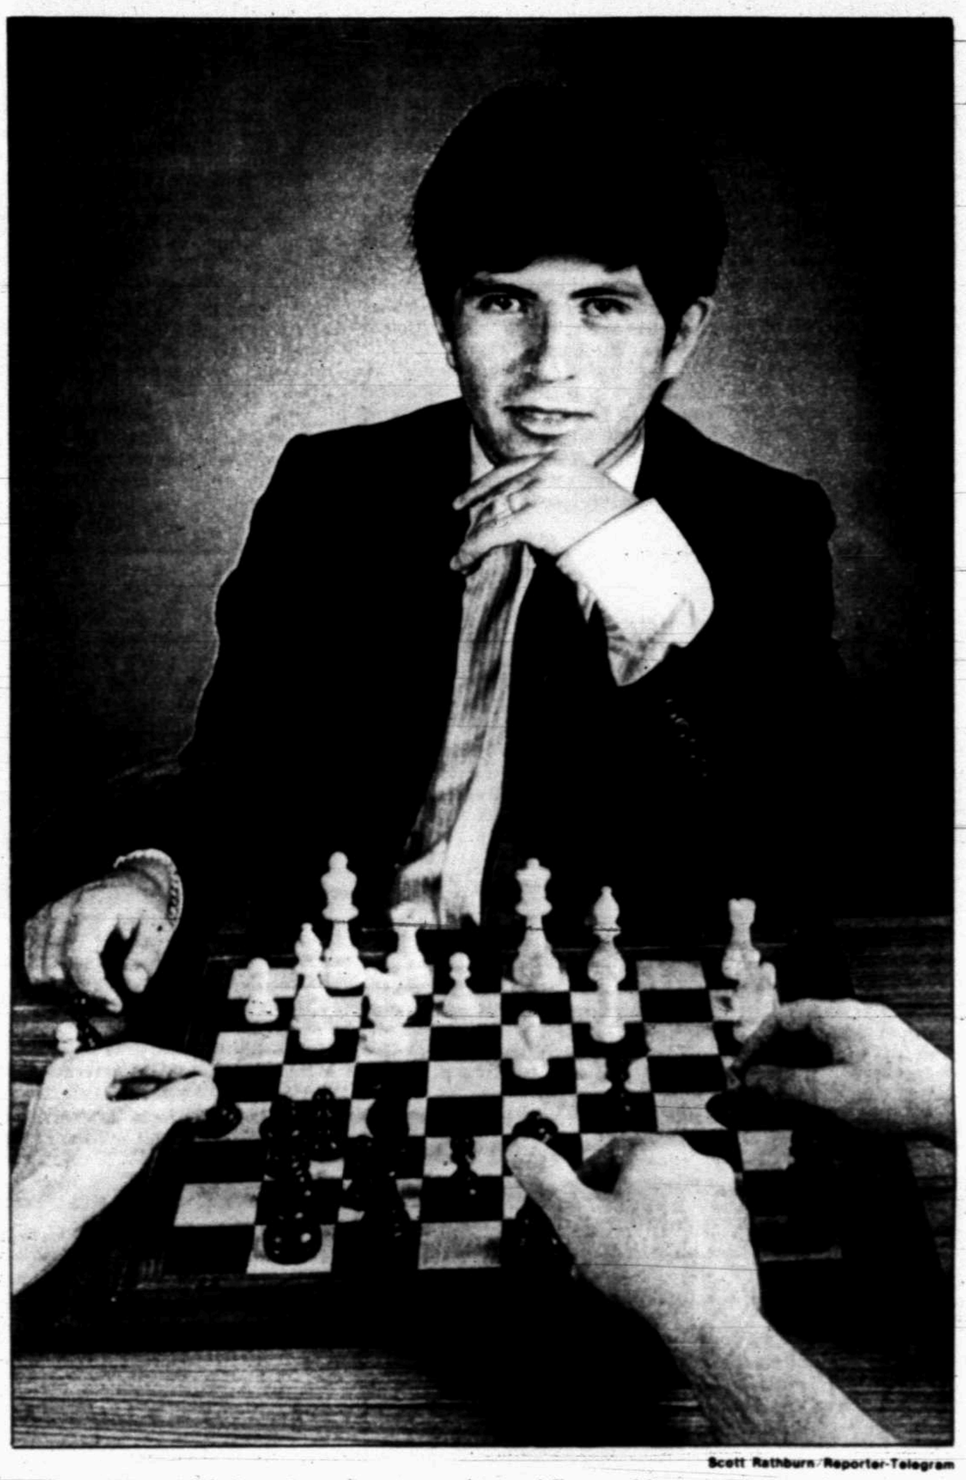

Reagan said, "I have come here to say that the United States government pledges to the American people what the freedom fighters have pledged to their own people — that our objective in Nicaragua is clear: free elections."

Asked by reporters if he still wanted to make the Sandinistas say "uncle", as Reagan once asserted, he replied, "I want them to try free elections."

Reagan got a polite, but quiet, reception from his audience of hundreds of newspaper executives, with no ovations interrupting his speech.

The weather was windy and chilly, with skies threatening, and Reagan gave his speech in a raincoat. A downpour broke loose just after he finished.

Peru's grandmaster bests Midland chess players

For some, chess is just an intellectual pastime played at leisure.

But for 20-year-old Peruvian Julio Granda — the world's youngest chess grandmaster — the board game has served as a check on the poverty he experienced growing up in a small southern Peruvian farming community.

Granda was in Midland this weekend testing his skills against some of the best chess players in West Texas, before he returned to his hometown of Camana, Peru.

Shaw urges selection of two SSC sites

AUSTIN (AP) — West Texas lawmakers are urging their colleagues to support a bill requiring that at least two Texas sites be submitted as possible homes for the multibillion-dollar superconducting supercollider.

A proposal already passed by the Senate, they complain, appears prejudiced toward a single site south of Dallas, near Waxahachie. The House was faced with a final vote today on its bill aimed at luring the scientific project to Texas.

The House version directs the Texas National Laboratory Commission to suggest two or more sites to the Department of Energy, but a Senate-approved bill would allow for submission of "one or more sites."

After today's vote, a Senate-House conference committee will have to thrash out a compromise.

West Texas legislators, along with several committee chairmen and other representatives from around the state, met Thursday with House Speaker Gib Lewis to ask that his appointments to the Senate-House conference committee represent the two-or-more faction.

The meeting was spearheaded by Rep. Dick Burnett, D-San Angelo, and Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring.

"The speaker assured us he doesn't care how many sites are forwarded to Washington," Shaw said.

The "one or more" language could eliminate sites all across Texas in which communities have spent private and public funds for site proposals, legislators said.

Judge says funding limits equal educational opportunities

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The two extremes lie close together, separated by only 70 miles of oil-rich South Texas plain.

Two Texas school districts: the rich one has more than $13 million in property value for every one of its 78 students; the poor one has $22,000 for each of its 3,400 pupils. The poor one imposes property taxes 11.4 times greater than the rich one, yet brings in 64 times less in hard cash for its school. The rich one spends $11,000 per student every year, almost all of it raised locally. The poor one spends $3,300 per student, most of which comes from sales taxes paid in other parts of the state.

The rich school — Santa Gertrudis Independent School District on the King Ranch in Kleberg County — and the poor one — Edcouch-Elsa ISD in a Hidalgo County "pocket of poverty" 20 miles from the Mexican border — represent the furthest extremes of wealth and want among Texas' 1,063 school districts.

Those extremes, and the even less-extreme differences between the moderately rich and moderately poor districts, led a district judge here last week to throw out the state's system of financing its free public schools.

The Texas Constitution, Judge Harley Clark ruled, guarantees that "education is a fundamental right for each of our citizens." The current system, he said, does not meet that standard.

"The state is required to devise and continually sponsor a system of finance for our public schools that will give each school district the same ability as every other district to obtain, by state legislative appropriation or by local taxation or both, funds for education expenditures including facilities and equipment," Clark said. "As a consequence, each student by and through his or her school district would have the same opportunity to education funds as every other student in the state, limited only by discretion given local districts to set local tax rates."

State leaders, maintaining that they have continually improved the equity within the system, warned of devastation should Clark's decision stand up after appeal. Lawyers representing the 66 poor districts that brought the suit three years ago said the ruling finally will force the Legislature to abide by its Constitution.

The current system of distributing state aid to the schools, most recently and thoroughly revised during the public school reforms of 1984, is a complicated one. Based on a shared responsibility between the state and the districts, it's major planks include:

— The Available School Fund, which each year collects the income from the Permanent School Fund lands and investments lawmakers set aside 130 years ago to finance public education. This money — currently $240 per student — is distributed to each district based solely on its head count without regard to the districts' relative wealth. This is the only state money that rich districts such as Santa Gertrudis receive.

— The "basic allotment" of $1,350 per student. This figure is adjusted to account for such variances as high-cost students and courses, excessive transportation and administrative expenses in small districts and the prevailing area wage for teachers and staff. The average allotment per student last year was $1,554, said Texas Education Agency spokeswoman Terri Anderson.

Carter discusses Constitution's flaws on series

EDITOR'S NOTE: John Wallach, who wrote the following story on the Hearst Corporation's series of Public Broadcasting System programs on "The Constitution and the Presidency," was a participant on the programs with former presidents Jimmy Carter and Gerald Ford and Bob Thompson of Hearst Washington Bureau.

By JOHN P. WALLACH
Foreign Affairs Editor, The Hearst Newspapers

WASHINGTON — If Jimmy Carter had it to do over again, he says he would, after signing the SALT II treaty with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev, "announce to the world that the treaty will be implemented unilaterally by both sides — even prior to ratification."

By taking such bold action, the former president would have avoided the need to win approval of two-thirds of the Senate. He also would have skirted the debilitating political struggle that helped prevent SALT II from being ratified.

"This is the most serious defect in the U.S. Constitution — that 34 members of the Senate can block the implementation of an agreement that has been carefully negotiated by the president, is in the best interests of our country...and which is supported by 65 percent of the Senate," Carter said.

The revealing comment came during the taping of a new Public Broadcasting System series, "The Presidency and the Constitution," that premieres Tuesday. The series commemorates the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution. The Hearst Corporation, celebrating its own 100th anniversary this year, is sponsoring the seven-part series of weekly, one-hour television programs.

"We cannot think of a more appropriate or important way to celebrate the 100th anniversary of our company than through this penetrating look at many of the most pressing constitutional issues facing the country," said Frank A. Bennack, Jr., president of the Hearst Corporation.

Fire starts in electronics company

CARROLLTON, Texas (AP) — Fire broke out at an electronics company today, sending more than 50 people to local hospitals to be checked after they were exposed to burning chemicals, authorities said.

The employees of Thompson Components-Mostek Corp. were believed to have been exposed to cyanide after hydrochloric acid burned in the fire, said Lt. Randy Posey of the Carrollton Police Department.

"We believe it's cyanide poisoning at this time," he said.

He said officials will not know until later today the exact nature of the chemicals burned in the fire.

About 17 people were hospitalized after the 8 a.m. fire, which was quickly extinguished, and at least two busloads of employees were sent to area hospitals for tests, officials said.

Posey said fire officials have taken equipment to the scene to check for any escaping fumes, but there is no indication the chemicals have spread outside the building.

CONSTITUTION

Noted Fred Friendly, who conceived the series for Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism: "Our system has been called 'an invitation to struggle,' and that struggle continues to this day."

While Carter appears on two shows dealing with nuclear policy, former President Gerald Ford appears on segments focusing on covert activities and "The Budget Crunch."

Appearing with Ford are Attorney Genral Edwin Meese III, former CIA director Stansfield Turner, former Secretary of State Alexander Haig, CBS anchorman Dan Rather and Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

A segment depicting a fictitious arms treaty between the two superpower leaders allows Carter, former secretaries of state Dean Rusk and Cyrus Vance, former secretaries of defense Robert McNamara and Harold Brown, and current Reagan policymakers to vent their true emotions. Harvard Law School's Arthur Miller, creator of the mythical scenario, also serves as moderator.

Complaining that the Senate Foreign Relations committee is a "graveyard for many treaties" that are supported by a majority of the American people, Carter gives this advice to successors: "If you see a worthy goal in sight, you should not be timid."

"If a president is willing to exercise his veto power and as commander-in-chief gives the orders that would comply with the treaty," Carter said, "it's almost impossible for the Congress to take action that would directly violate a treaty of this kind."

"The president," he noted, "has that great presumption of authority."

That provoked Richard Perle, President Reagan's former assistant secretary of defense and an opponent of SALT II, to attack the former president's belief that he or any president has such presumed authority.

"What this whole discussion is missing," charged Perle, "is an appreciation of the constitutional deterioration taking place in recent years where treaties not ratified by the Senate...nevertheless have been adhered to in contravention of what is a clear constitutional requirement."

"It's gotten worse than that," Perle said of the recent moves in the Senate to ban the Reagan administration from spending the money required to add more mobile ICBM missiles to B-52 bombers, a move that would violate the numerical limits of the unratified SALT II treaty.

Introducing legislation that "precludes the expenditure of funds for the purpose of departing from an unratified treaty," the former official concluded, "is a rather serious matter" that only underscores the "deterioration of the Senate's treaty-making powers."

If there's been any deterioration in the Senate's powers, that's the fault of the executive branch — not Congress, according to Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska.

When moderator Miller turned to Stevens and suggested that since the fictional arms control treaty was now signed by the two leaders, it was now time for the Senate to enter the scene, he shot right back:

"Mr. President, if you are just now seeking the advice and consent of the Senate on this negotiation, you'd be in real trouble in the Senate. We should have known a long time ago what was in your mind, Mr. President," Stevens said.

Well then, what's your concept of "advice ?", asked Miller.

"We ought to know the same facts you know," Stevens replied.

Asked how he interprets the Constitution on this issue, Stevens said bluntly: "We should have been with your negotiators as they negotiated."

Sen. Albert Gore, Jr., D-Tenn., provided a surprising historical perspective.

He noted that the meaning of the phrase "advice and consent" has changed during the 200-year lifetime of the Constitution because the first Senate only had 26 senators and there were very few treaties negotiated each year.

"Our founders," Gore noted, "clearly intended senators be involved in the negotiating process, that they be intimately involved in all aspects...but now there are 100 senators and lots and lots of treaties...so as a practical matter it's difficult for senators to be involved."

"That doesn't mean, Mr. President, that phrase in the Constitution is not alive and well," Gore said. But it does mean, he added, that "we have to be informed, we have to have the opportunity to give input so you, in negotiating the treaty, will realize what your chances are of getting it approved."

Paul Nitze, the Reagan administration's senior arms control aide who took a controversial "walk in the woods" with his Soviet counterpart in 1983 and virtually improvised an agreement without approval by his superiors, obviously has had second thoughts about the wisdom of such personal diplomacy.

Asked by Miller what would go through his head if the fictional president, frustrated by the lack of progress during the first three days of a summit, tells him he wants to take a "walk in the garden" with his Soviet counterpart, Nitze replied:

"What's going on in my head is danger signals. This is the most dangerous thing he could possibly do."

Asked how important face-to-face encounters are at a summit or elsewhere, former Secretary of State Dean Rusk said they can be dangerous.

"A chill still goes up my spine when I think of what might have happened if President Kennedy and Mr. Khrushchev had met face-to-face during the Cuban missile crisis," Rusk said.

Asked whether his long experience has led him, like Carter, to believe the Constitution may be flawed or should be changed, Rusk turned philosophical.

"The United States has the most complicated constitutional and political system of any country in the world — deliberately made complicated by our founding fathers who wanted to put restraints on the raw power of the states. That complexity requires cooperation between the branches of government."

"But it also performs another function: our Constitution forces us continually to seek a consensus between the parties, between the two Houses of Congress, between the Congress and the president. I think that pressure toward consensus is a very wholesome thing in our system."

"So I wouldn't change the Constitution on that account."

An incredulous Miller asked: "You still find the Constitution workable?"

"Oh, yes," Rusk replied. "It does take a good deal of time, an awful lot of time, a good deal of discussion behind-the-scenes, sometimes a little wheeling and dealing that people like to make fun of.

"But it would be difficult at the end of the day," Rusk said, "to make the case that somebody else's constitutional system works better than our own."

FUNDING

— Equalization aid. Tying into the basic allotment, this is the state's attempt to send more money to the poor districts than the rich. A formula based on the districts' taxable wealth distributed $474 million in equalization aid last year to all but the richest districts.

— Local funds, property tax revenues, which districts use to meet their average 33-percent share of the cost of the Foundation School Program and to finance extra programs known as "enrichment." Across the state last year, districts raised an average of $681 for their share of the basic program and $699 for enrichment.

Poor districts argued, and Clark agreed, that the Foundation School Program is inadequate to meet the real costs of minimum education and that the wealthy districts' ability to raise massive amounts for enrichment with relatively low tax rates discriminates against the students who live in the poor districts.

"The court does not detect in the evidence or the law a compelling reason or objective that would justify continuation of this discrimination," Clark said.

Education Commissioner William Kirby acknowledged the large differences among the very rich and very poor districts but said the state should be able to win on appeal by demonstrating that those differences represent the exception and not the rule.

"There are disparities, but those are at the extremes of wealth and at the extremes of poorness," Kirby said. "For the vast majority of the school districts, there certainly is a reasonable amount of equity."

Such arguments offer little comfort to the poor districts. Edcouch-Elsa Superintendent Daniel Hernandez pointed out that the district had to impose a 75-cent property tax to support a $4 million bond it needed to build a "minimum" high school. He called that "a very heavy burden" for his "pocket of poverty" that relies almost exclusively on property tax receipts from poor homeowners.

Wealthy districts, like the King Ranch's Santa Gertrudis ISD, levy no taxes to cover debt and imposed only minimal property taxes to cover their entire school program.

House Speaker Gib Lewis argued that such bricks-and-mortar differences have little impact on the students' education. "Equal education is not necessarily physical plant," Lewis said.

"The state furnishes money for educators. Hopefully they're all talented, equally talented. And that's equal education. Not because someone happens to have a carpet on the classroom floor rather than someone with linoleum."

Edcouch-Elsa Superintendent Hernandez said the differences go far beyond carpet and linoleum. "We're talking about not having enough classrooms," he said.

State leaders offered a variety of options — some as imposing a statewide property tax — for dealing with Clark's ruling should it withstand appeal. "He seems to have a real concern if you could ever have a system if you're going to rely heavily on the property tax at the local level," Kirby said.

Some House members believe the judge will accept a solution only if it takes care of the discrepancies of wealth within the various school district boundaries. Some even suggested such extremes as consolidating the 1,083 districts into 10 huge ones.

"It is said that the districts are unconstitutional because of their relationship to funding, not because of any other educational aspect," said House Public Education Committee Chairman Bill Haley, D-Center. "If we lose on this definitively,...we have to straighten out the funding by straightening out the school districts' boundaries."

The poor districts' lawyers point out that Clark didn't tell the Legislature specifically what it must do to satisfy his ruling. "All we want is an equal footing," said Austin attorney Rick Gray.

with Bobby Fischer's ability to wrest the World Champion position from the Russians in 1972 — begin to acquaint his toddling son with the small figures and their various, complicated moves.

Most 5 year olds don't have the attention span to learn and stick with the complex game, explained Dr. Guillermo Callo of Midland, a member of the Midland Chess Club.

But isolated in the Peruvian rice growing town of Camana, Granda honed his skill, achieving expert status at 13 and the title of World Champion for the under-14 age group.

Callo, also originally from Peru, said he knew of the young grandmaster and invited him to play in Midland.

Now the small stone men dominate the life of the young Peruvian, whose sole profession is playing chess.

Granda jumps around the world playing tournaments year-round, spending sometimes only two months out of the year at home.

In Midland Friday night at the Holiday Inn T-Dome, Granda simultaneously played chess against 18 players. It took him only three hours to beat all 18.

Stepping into the hushed hotel conference room Friday night the only sign of the intense competition in progress could be heard in the sighs and expelled breath from the chess players as Granda prowled easily from board to board, taking only a few seconds to assess each game's situation and make a move.

Charlie Vetter, who teaches history at Midland Freshman High School, said he was at the Friday night game to match his skills against someone who may someday become World Champion — the highest level any chess player can reach.

"There's a chance...I might be able to say I played the World Champion," Vetter said.

Another Midland chess player, Nestor Cadena, who lasted about an hour in the simultaneous chess competition against Granda, said he was awed by the ease in which the young Peruvian played.

"We are the ones that complicate the game. He does it so simple. All his moves are natural. When I play it's complicated," Cadena said.

Bob Montgomery of Midland said playing Granda was like going against John McEnroe in tennis.

"There's no one in the state in his class. There's no one with his ability around here. You expect to get beat, but you just want to see how good you are," Montgomery said.

While Granda plays numerous chess players at the same time with ease, he has yet to attain his dream of being invited to a chess tournament in the Soviet Union and becoming among the top 10 chess players in the world.

Being ranked now among the world's top 30 chess players, Granda does not have far to go to reach his goal.

And until he does, he vows to continue playing the game he says never bores him.

"Chess is so rich and so wide. It has no limit. Every game is a new game. You can play for years and years and never play the same game," said Granda through a translator.

ARMS

— Newsweek magazine reported this week that friends of retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord will testify that less than $1 million from the arms sales was diverted to the Contras.

— The Chicago Tribune reported Sunday that according to former National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane, within 30 days of Reagan's May 1984 decision to sell 400 Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to Saudi Arabia, $1 million a month began flowing from the Saudis into a secret bank account set up for the benefit of the Contras.

Congressional investigators believe the Saudis contibuted $30 million to $40 million to the Contra cause before the arms sales were disclosed last November.

— Former National Security Adviser John M. Poindexter began meeting over the weekend with congressional investigators, but Rudman and Inouye said they hadn't yet been told what he had said.

Last week, Carl R. "Spitz" Channell, head of a conservative fundraising foundation set up to raise money for the Contras, pleaded guilty to tax fraud conspiracy.

Reagan has said he met with donors to Channell's group, but said he believed the organization only wanted the money for pro-Contra television ads.

Inouye, asked if he thinks Reagan knew the Channell money was going to buy more than ads, said: "Well, I think the hearings will have to decide that. I think the president knew much more than what the White House has intimated."

The president on Sunday repeated to reporters that he was aware of the private aid network, "but there was nothing in the nature of a solicitation by the administration, to my knowledge, of anyone, to do that."

REAGAN

In his speech, Reagan acknowledged that debate over U.S. government support for the Contras, who are trying to overthrow the leftist Sandinista government in Managua, has been "heated at times."

"While such debate is healthy," he said, "we all know that a divided America cannot offer the leadership necessary to provide support and confidence to the emerging democracies in Central America."

Reagan repeated his view that the choice for American policymakers is clear: communism or freedom in Nicaragua.

"Make no mistake: the Soviets are challenging the United States to a test of wills over the future of this hemisphere," he said. "The future they offer is one of ever-growing communist expansion and control."

If the United States fails to answer the challenge, Reagan maintained, it risks giving the Soviets "one of their greatest foreign policy victories since World War II."

Reagan said he will push hard to win congressional approval of $105 million for the rebels in the new budget year beginning Oct. 1.

Among those interested in landing the project — an underground, race-track-shaped tunnel 28 miles in circumference — are West Texas locations near Garden City, which is south of Big Spring, and near Smyer, west of Lubbock.

Shaw distributed a "Dear Colleague" letter to all 180 House members asking them to support the "two or more" version.

"I said in the letter that two of our competing states — California and Arizona — already have announced they are submitting two sites. We submitted three for the homeport. And DOE has said they expect more than one site from many states," Shaw said.

"I reminded them that Illinois submitted two sites (25 years ago) for the Fermilab, and the site selected was that state's second choice," Shaw said.

"I reminded them that (U.S. Sen. Lloyd) Bentsen said Texas is too big to offer just one site, and that it is imperative we offer the federal government the broadest examples of what the state has to offer," Shaw added.

Burnett said the Senate wording could clear the way for a single site proposal.

The word around the House, Burnett said, is that a decision already has been made that the Texas National Laboratory Commission will recommend a site near Dallas.

Jim Kaster, legislative liaison from the governor's office, said last week that research has shown the Dallas site best met DOE criteria.

The bill itself, relatively routine on the surface, gives the TNLC permission to hire an outside consultant without going through the normal, time-consuming state bidding procedures.

Pope urges people not to be led astray by 'false freedom'

AUGSBURG, West Germany (AP) — Pope John Paul II today denounced popular ideas of women's liberation and urged women and youths not to be "led astray by false or short-sighted freedom."

On the last day of his five-day West German tour, which has been marked by strong statements and sermons against the Nazis, the pontiff also called for unity among Christian denominations.

"Today, a great deal is being said about liberation and emancipation," John Paul, speaking at the cathedral in Augsburg, 55 miles north of Munich, told nuns and young women involved in church-related work.

"But is the person who does nothing but shake off commandments and obligations really free?" he said. "Is such a person able to find his or her way out of the captivity of egoism and hate if he or she views every sort of authority with suspicion?

"Let me ask you dear young people: don't let yourselves be led astray by false or short-sighted freedom. You are not yet free if you are merely able to do what you feel like doing or what your wallet allows you to do."

The pope said many people in West Germany appear to "believe everything can be bought," including happiness.

In remarks prepared for delivery at an ecumenical service later in the morning, the pope delivered a strong call for Christian unity and alluded to Augsburg's role as a stronghold of the Protestant Reformation.

"If we want to obey the Lord's command and be his witness, we will have to do everything we can to increase our oneness," the pope said.

Speaking of the 16th century Protestant Reformation and the religious wars that wracked Europe for decades, the pope added:

"What direction would history have taken, what missionary opportunities would have presented themselves for the New World, if it had been possible to bridge the differences that existed then and clarify the points of contention?"

During an ecumenical service Sunday evening in the Augsburg cathedral, the pope urged Christians to draw lessons from the Reformation, saying: "Wasn't it perhaps even necessary, we might ask here in Augsburg, in accordance with God's unfathomable wisdom, for religious schisms and religious wars to occur in order to lead the Church to reflect on and renew its original values?"

In remarks prepared for delivery later today during the consecration of a seminary, the pontiff said seminaries must teach not only traditional church values but also ways to promote dialogue with the rest of the world.

"So many people are without direction, objectives or hope — like sheep without a shepherd," he said in a prepared text.

The pope planned to travel later today to the Rhine River city of Spreyer to meet with Chancellor Helmut Kohl before leaving for Vatican City tonight.

In Munich on Sunday, John Paul beatified the Rev. Rupert Mayer, a German Jesuit who was jailed three times for his sermons against Nazism and eventually was sent to a concentration camp.

Mayer died in 1945, after World War II ended. Beatification is a step toward possible sainthood.

"Equipped with the shield of a deep, unwavering faith, he brandished in his famous sermons the sword of the spirit, the word of God," the pope told 86,000 people in Munich's Olympic Stadium.

Mass said for American killed in Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Supporters of the leftist Sandinista government celebrated Mass for an American slain by U.S.-supported Contra rebels, and fellow volunteers said they would ignore a rebel warning to leave Nicaragua.

Benjamin Linder's family is Jewish, but his parents, brother and sister participated Sunday in the Roman Catholic Mass, holding hands with a group of Nicaraguan mothers whose sons were killed by the Contras.

The Rev. Uriel Molina, leader of the dissident "Popular Church" that supports the Sandinista regime, led the service to the accompaniment of guitar music. The Linders and a group of Jewish foreign volunteers then intoned the "Kaddish," the Hebrew prayer for the dead.

Linder, 27, of Portland, Ore., was one of about 200 American volunteers doing social and development work for the Sandinista government. Witnesses said Contras killed him and two Sandinista militiamen last Tuesday near a small northern town where he was working on a rural electrification project.

The Nicaraguan Democratic Force, the largest Contra group, said Linder was killed in a firefight between rebels and militia.

But Sandinista officials contend the rebels singled Linder out and killed him to warn other foreign volunteers to leave. The officials blamed his death on the U.S. government's support for the Contras.

"He came to Nicaragua because it is a free country and because the people here are very good, and he wanted to make his home here," Linder's mother, Elizabeth, told the congregation. "He wanted to stay with you here, but it is unfortunate that it was under these circumstances."

Linder's father, David, brother, John, and sister, Miriam, also attended the Mass.

The Nicaraguan Democratic Force warned that other foreigners should leave the country as soon as possible because the rebels will be attacking more frequently.

But a spokesman for Witness for Peace, a group of about 50 Americans, said they would not leave.

"We will stay in the war zones until the counterrevolution, backed by the North American government, stops attacking the civilian population," said Edward Griffin, 30, of New York City.

He said the group "has people who have pledged their services for eight months more and we are expecting more workers."

Linder was the first American vounteer killed since the Contras began fighting to overthrow the Sandinista government five years ago. Seven other volunteers, mostly Western Europeans, have been killed.

The U.S. Embassy said it had canceled its plans to send a field team to investigate Linder's death. Officials said Sandinista authorities were not cooperating and the area was too dangerous.

The Sandinistas took power in a July 1979 coup that overthrew a rightist pro-American dictatorship.

The United States gave $100 million in aid to the Contras last year and the Reagan administration is seeking congressional approval for $105 million in aid this year.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Church can't confirm plan to swap official for Waite

LONDON (AP) — The archbishop of Canterbury's office said Sunday it cannot substantiate reports that Lebanese militiamen kidnapped an Iranian Embassy official in west Beirut to exchange him for missing church envoy Terry Waite.

Without citing its sources, the Beirut magazine Ash-Shiraa reported Thursday that "armed elements have kidnapped Mohammed Khatami, an employee of the Iranian Embassy in Beirut, offering to swap him for Waite."

Ash-Shiraa did not name the organization responsible, but strongly hinted at Druse leader Walid Jumblatt's Progressive Socialist Party, which was in charge of Waite's security before he disappeared Jan. 20 while on a mission to free foreign hostages held in Beirut.

Waite is the personal envoy of the Most Rev. Robert Runcie, archbishop of Canterbury and spiritual head of the Church of England.

Church spokeswoman Eve Keatley said the archbishop's office was investigating the magazine's claim, but added, "We have not found anything to substantiate the report."

Cat steps on embassy mine

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A mine apparently detonated by a cat exploded in the yard of the French Embassy in Moslem west Beirut today, and police said no people were injured but the cat was killed.

The mine, planted by French marine guards as a security measure, went off about noon at the walled compound in Clemenceau Street when the cat apparently stepped on it, a police spokesman said.

Two French soldiers were wounded when a similar mine went off at the embassy gardens Oct. 21.

The French and other Western diplomatic missions have fled west Beirut in the past two years following a spate of attacks by Moslem extremists against foreigners and diplomats.

Lebanese staffers still provide consular services at France's west Beirut embassy, which is protected by a platoon of French marines. French diplomats, however, are based at a new embassy in Christian east Beirut.

Six Western diplomatic missions have resumed limited services in west Beirut since Syria moved 7,500 troops into the Lebanese capital's Moslem sector Feb. 22.

Duchess dies in wreck

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The dowager Duchess of Westminster, the mother of one of Britain's richest men, and two other people were killed Sunday in a car accident west of Belfast.

Police said the 74-year-old duchess, Viola Maud Grosvenor, perished when her Jaguar collided with another car and burst into flames outside Dungannon, 40 miles west of Belfast.

A third person in the other car was injured and cut free by firefighters, according to police.

The duchess, who lived 70 miles west of Belfast, is survived by her son and two daughters. Her husband, Robert George Grosvenor, the fifth Duke of Westminster, died in 1979.

Her son, the sixth duke, Gerald Cavendish Grosvenor, 35, inherited the huge family fortune based on real estate in London. His wealth is believed to exceed the equivalent of $3.32 billion.

Venice tourists to be limited

VENICE, Italy (AP) — City officials in this tourist mecca, who last year began fining people for eating bag lunches in St. Mark's Square, now want to limit the number of visitors to 90,000 per day.

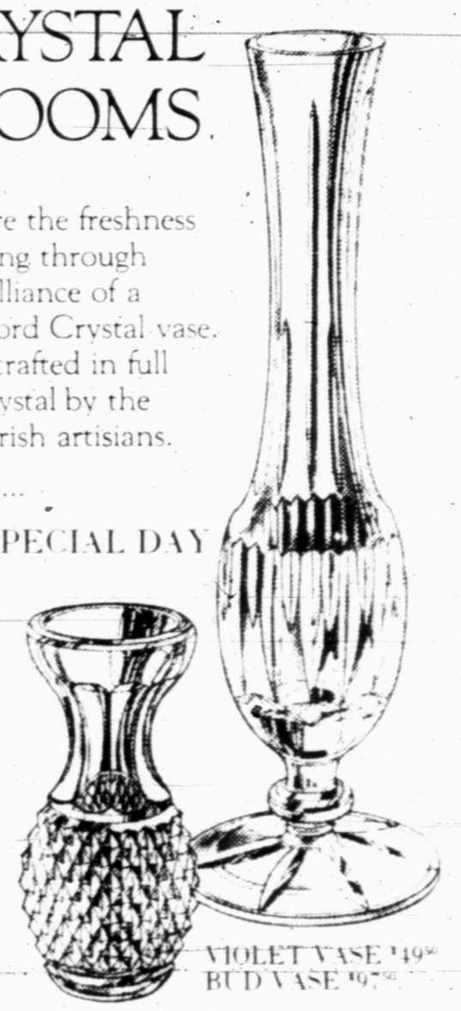

Tourism is Venice's principal source of income. But the annual tourist invasion also creates a shortage of hotel rooms and mile-long lines for parking spots on the edge of the central city, where cars are banned.

Police have begun asking tourists to show proof of a reservation before allowing them to enter, and Tourist Commissioner Augusto Salvadori is considering a limit of 90,000 tourists a day.

Story 'harassment,' Hart's manager says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gary Hart says a Miami Herald story claiming he spent Friday night with a young woman isn't true. His campaign manager calls the story character assassination, based on "hiding in bushes, peeking in windows and personal harassment."

A Herald executive said the newspaper stands behind its Sunday story, which told how its reporters followed a woman from Miami to Washington and saw her at Hart's townhouse. The newspaper said she "spent Friday night and most of Saturday" with Hart.

But today the newspaper conceded the woman could have left Hart's townhouse without being seen by the paper's reporters, since there was a five-hour gap in their surveillance.

The paper said that "there were opportunities between approximately midnight and 5 a.m. for her to depart undetected via the unwatched rear entrance" of Hart's house. And no one from the paper watched the house at all from 3 a.m. to 5 a.m.

Sunday, Executive Editor Heath Meriwether said that "the womanizing issue has become a major one in Hart's campaign because it raises questions concerning the candidate's judgment and integrity. That's why we are reporting on this story."

Hart, the front-runner for the 1988 Democratic presidential nomination, denied any impropriety.

"No one was staying in my apartment," Hart told the Herald. "I have no personal relationship with the individual you are following."

Hart said he had met the woman — since identified as Donna Rice of Miami, an actress — several months ago at a party and had talked to her on the telephone several times.

There are two listings for a Donna Rice in Miami directory assistance. The first number is unpublished, and there was no answer Sunday night at the second number.

William Dixon, Hart's campaign manager, said the allegations were "preposterous and inaccurate in their entirety. They have taken a casual acquaintance and a simple dinner with three friends and political supporters and attempted to make a story where there is none."

Hart spokesman Kevin Sweeney said Hart attended a dinner Friday night at the nearby home of friend William Broadhurst with Rice and her friend Lynn Armandt. Broadhurst said Rice and Armandt spent the night at his Capitol Hill house.

After the dinner, Dixon told The New York Times that the four walked to Hart's nearby townhouse to see renovation work there and that Broadhurst, Rice and Armandt left shortly afterward.

Hart said his wife, Lee, was in Denver for the weekend, the Herald said.

Hart has been dogged by rumors about his personal life since the 1984 presidential campaign, rumors he has denied.

Hart, in an article in Sunday's editions of The New York Times Magazine, was quoted as saying, "Follow me around. I don't care. I'm serious. If anybody wants to put a tail on me, go ahead. They'd be very bored."

And Dixon condemned the methods used by the paper.

"The system, when reduced to hiding in bushes, peeking in windows and personal harassment, has clearly run amok," he said. "Those who cover politics have some duty of self-restraint. Here the boundaries of journalistic ethics have clearly been crossed."

"Senator Hart accepts the scrutiny that comes with his leadership role in the Democratic Party and the country. But scrutiny and questions of character are one thing: character assassinations are entirely another," Dixon added.

Meriwether rejected Dixon's attacks, saying "That's not what we are engaged in."

"Acting on a tip and because the 'womanizing' issue has been raised in Hart's campaign, a Herald reporter flew to Washington on the same plane with a young woman who was later observed with Hart entering and leaving his townhouse," Meriwether said. "We reported those observations this morning responsibly and accurately along with Mr. Hart's comments.

"We observed Hart's townhouse for more than 24 hours, from a respectful distance, and we conducted ourselves in a professional manner throughout. We never engaged in the tactics suggested by Mr. Dixon," Meriwether added.

Archives releases Nixon's Watergate papers

Nixon

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Nearly 13 years after Richard Nixon resigned the presidency, the first of his Watergate papers were readied for public view today, purged of documents he thinks involve personal privacy.

The first release includes the White House files of John Ehrlichman, who spent 18 months in prison as a Watergate cover-up conspirator, and of John Dean, who gave the first detailed information about the affair to federal prosecutors and served 127 days.

The documents chosen for today's release at a National Archives warehouse total 252,000 pages, one sixth of the 1.5 million-page cache the Nixon administration itself set aside as "special files." The special files contain the most sensitive documents, those involving Watergate.

There are 58,000 pages compiled by Ehrlichman, Nixon's chief domestic adviser; 97,000 of Dean's, Nixon's White House counsel. The others opened today are 70,000 pages amassed by Egil Krogh, Ehrlichman's assistant, who served 137 days for civil rights violations in the White House "plumbers" case; 17,000 pages of the files of Gordon Strachan, who won dismissal of cover-up charges; and 10,000 pages of the files of Harry Dent, a special counsel, who was sentenced to a month of unsupervised probation after pleading guilty to a campaign contribution violation.

After the archives gave a required 90-day notice that the files would be made public, Nixon's lawyers filed 3,100 pages of objections to the release of 15,000 documents. Archivists have removed specified documents from the papers opened today and will release others as they are cleared.

"There is no objection to any item that has remotely to do with Watergate," said R. Stan Mortenson, one of the Nixon lawyers. "We have informed the archives that if we have, by oversight, listed a document they believe has the remotest relevance to Watergate, that they inform us immediately and we will come in and withdraw our objection."

The challenged documents will be put before an archives review board for a decision. Six percent of the documents have been withdrawn for reasons of national security, personal privacy, federal statute or other reasons, said Jill Brett of the archives. Nixon objected to 5 percent.

Southern Baptists will meet to debate biblical inerrancy

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — For the first time in seven years of sometimes rancorous disagreement, the Southern Baptist Convention plans to debate the divisive issue of biblical inerrancy in a week-long convention.

Conservative and liberal members of the organization have been feuding over whether the Bible should be interpreted literally, and the inerrancy doctrine has threatened to split the 14.6 million-member denomination.

"This is the first time in the seven years of our debate that Southern Baptists will have an opportunity for a balanced, objective discussion of inerrancy apart from emotion," said Russell Dilday, president of Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas.

About 1,500 people are expected to attend the conference in Ridgecrest, N.C. It is the first conference ever on the doctrine for the Nashville-based SBC.

Conservative and liberal members have been fighting for leadership of the SBC over the issue. SBC President Adrian Rogers, a Memphis minister, supports the inerrancy doctrine.

Conservative members assert the Bible should be interpreted literally, and that it makes no errors regarding history or science. The liberal members have charged conservatives with using the doctrine to purge the SBC of liberal leaders.

At the conference, non-Baptist evangelical theologians will challenge the doctrine of inerrancy and conservative SBC leaders will respond.

An author of a book on SBC's debate over inerrancy said the conference should enable both sides to give better explanations of their positions.

Joe Barnhart, a Knoxville native and author of "The Southern Baptist Holy War," said neither side has explained itself well.

"The inerrantist people pay one heck of a price for their views," he said. "They strip God of any moral standard except power."

For example, inerrantists who take literally the story in Joshua about Joshua's divinely ordained slaughter of the Canaanite children must believe that God is cold-hearted and capricious enough to command his people to commit such atrocities, said Barnhart, a philosophy professor at North Texas State University in Denton.

But the moderates lack the conservatives' "absolute certainty," he said.

"Moderates have to live on conjecture. They don't have absolute certainty. If you question one thing, what's to stop you from questioning all of it?" he said.

1787 Constitution Daybook

Friday, May 4, 1787
PHILADELPHIA TODAY

Work proceeded on the Arch Street sewer. The Street Commissioners ordered 16 pounds, 16 shillings paid today for labor and materials.

Pennsylvania Assemblyman Jacob Hiltzheimer moved two of Dr. Adam Kuhn's horses. Kuhn studied medicine at the University of Uppsala in Sweden. While there he was tutored in botany by Linnaeus. Kuhn was presently professor of Botany at the College of Philadelphia as well as a physician at Pennsylvania Hospital and the Philadelphia Dispensary. Kuhn was the first professor of botany in the United States.

John Adams' new book, "A Defence of The Constitutions of Government of the United States of America," was not available in Philadelphia. Adams was ambassador in London where the book was lately published.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

Congress assembled and heard a second reading of settling of accounts between the United States and the individual states. It was expected that several states would continue to be in arrears.

DELEGATES TODAY

George Washington reported plowing was mostly complete in his corn fields at Mount Vernon. Kidney beans and black eyed peas were now being planted.

Gov. Edmund Randolph of Virginia informed Ambassador Thomas Jefferson in Paris of his departure for Philadelphia.

Benjamin Franklin attended today's meeting of the Society for Political Inquiry and the Supreme Executive Council of Pennsylvania.

LOOKING BACK
John Adams
and the Constitution

The delegates were guided more in their day-to-day deliberations by experience than by theory. They were realists who knew the dismal record of human liberty in the past and who understood that while free government was possible, it was hardly inevitable.

Some of their experience stemmed from previous work with state constitutions. Since 1776, many states had framed their own constitutions, and many delegates had taken part in this work. One absent fellow-revolutionary helped the deliberations along by summarizing his thoughts on government in "A Defence of the Constitution of Government of the United States of America."

John Adams, ambassador to Great Britain, published this important work in London in early 1787. It was circulating in Philadelphia in the weeks before the Convention. Ranging across the history of government in the modern world, Adams argued for a system of checks and balances as the best guarantee of free government.

"We shall learn to prize the checks and balances of free government," he wrote, "and even those of the modern aristocracies, if we recollect the miseries of Greece, which arose from its ignorance of them. The only balance attempted against the ancient kings was a body of nobles; and the consequences were perpetual alternations of rebellion and tyranny, and the butchery of thousands upon every revolution from one to the other. When kings were abolished, aristocracies tyrannized; and then no balance was attempted but between aristocracy. This, in the nature of things, could be no balance at all, and therefore the pendulum was forever on the swing. Without three orders, and an effectual balance between them, in every American constitution, it must be destined to frequent unavoidable revolutions; though they are delayed a few years, they must come in time."

For Adams, the best government was the one that combined the three perennial tendencies in any society into a stable equilibrium: monarchy, aristocracy, and democracy. These "three branches of power have an unalterable foundation in nature...If all of them are not acknowledged in any constitution of government, it will be found to be imperfect, unstable, and soon enslaved."

Adams' analysis was fairly influential. He posed a solution to an old dilemma — how to establish a government strong enough to act but not strong enough to turn into a tyranny. And he reminded delegates that their own collective experience in constitution-making was a valid guide into a future no one could confidently foretell.

Physicist ends 218-day hunger strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former NASA physicist has ended the 218-day hunger strike he had begun in protest against nuclear weapons and U.S. foreign policy.

Charles Hyder said Friday he wants to devote his energies instead to running for president.

NATION IN BRIEF

Mormons blast PBS film

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A documentary film exploring the pressures placed on Mormon missionaries has been called biased by a church official and prompted a protest to the Mormon director of the Public Broadcasting System.

The film, which will debut on PBS stations nationwide May 13, follows several young missionaries from the classroom at the church's Mission Training Center near church-owned Brigham Young University to their initial missionary experiences in Guatemala.

It also includes interviews with a former missionary who said the requirement of unconditional obedience and conformity destroyed his faith, and another who overdosed on prescription drugs to avoid a mission in Japan.

Two years in the making, the film was directed by Emmy award winner Bobbie Birleffi, who was reared among Mormons in rural Wyoming. The script was co-written by Birleffi, newspaper columnist Peter Wiley and Richard Voorhees.

Donations save family farm

NORLINA, N.C. (AP) — People from across the world helped Ernie and Margie Brauer save their farm, but an anonymous Dutchman was particularly responsible for pulling them from bankruptcy.

"I have not had any correspondence with them at all — and I guess I'll never know his name," Mrs. Brauer said. "But he sent us 100,000 Swiss francs (about $60,000) to be used toward the purchase of our home and whatever else we could get. We were able to purchase the home and about 37½ acres."

"He said that during World War II, this man's family somehow or another was saved by American soldiers," she said. "It seems like he took this way to show his gratitude."

The businessman and the more than 250 others who donated money found out about the Brauers' plight through a letter she wrote to bankruptcy trustee William Yeager of Durham.

25,000 walk to end hunger

BOSTON (AP) — A gunshot victim and a 9-year-old cerebral palsy victim, both in wheelchairs, joined about 25,000 other people who turned out Sunday for a 20-mile walk to raise money for the hungry.

The walkers swarmed over the Boston Common in the wee hours of the morning, then started their stroll at 8 a.m. under sunny skies after hearing welcoming speeches from city and state officials.

Waldheim decision upheld justice

The decision by the Justice Department to bar Austrian President Kurt Waldheim from entering the United States is entirely appropriate action for a nation that stands for justice and human dignity. Evidence implicating Waldheim as a Nazi war criminal should be enough to justify barring him from entering the U.S. — regardless of his achievements since that time.

Allegations of his sinister past surfaced last spring when he sought the Austrian presidency. At first, he flatly denied the charges of complicity in the murder of Allied prisoners, Jews and other civilians while serving as a Nazi officer in World War II. Waldheim has insisted that he was discharged from the German army in late 1941, after being wounded on the Russian front. Soon thereafter, he cautiously conceded that he was attached to the Nazi unit that waged brutal campaigns in the Balkans and Greece from 1942 to 1945. But he hastened to add that his participation was limited to preparing harmless intelligence reports.

Documents indicate otherwise, though, showing that Lt. Waldheim pinpointed a cluster of Yugoslav villages as a hotbed of partisan activity. These communities were later destroyed and all of the inhabitants murdered. In fact, the young lieutenant was one of 34 Nazis awarded a special medal for "heroic bravery" in the infamous Kozara campaign that slaughtered 13,000 Yugoslavs and deported another 68,000, including 23,000 children, to labor camps. He also passed on an order to military commanders to round up 1,200 Jews on the Greek island of Rhodes, many of whom were placed on a barge for a short voyage from which they never returned. Further, he turned over to the SS Allied prisoners who were routinely shot on the spot.

Waldheim's role in these heinous crimes was concealed for decades, permitting him to serve as Austria's ambassador to the United Nations and worst of all as the organization's secretary general from 1972 to 1982.

Now, President Waldheim would have us believe that the overwhelming evidence of his past is little more than a vicious conspiracy by communists and Jews to discredit him. That's hard to swallow, but what if that were the case?

Waldheim is now attempting to get his name cleared and there's little doubt that the investigations now under way will shed more light on the allegations and their truth. The truth needs to be known, but until it is — and, particularly until Waldheim is exonerated of the charges leveled against him — the Justice Department decision is in the best interests of the people of this nation who abhor such criminality.

Another View:
Humanitarian search

The Agency for International Development is the United States' foreign aid dispenser, and its administrator thus serves as the country's chief humanitarian. The AID administrator also must be an economist, arm-bender and diplomat who can balance American interests with respect for the sovereignty of countries that receive U.S. aid.

The Reagan administration should keep those qualities in mind as it chooses a replacement for M. Peter McPherson, who is stepping down. Secretary of State George Shultz, who oversees AID, commendably is seeking someone with those capabilities. But he is opposed by groups who inappropriately view the AID administrator's job from an anti-abortion perspective.

Shultz's excellent first choice, former Iowa Gov. Robert Ray, failed to meet the criteria of the National Right to Life Committee. "As governor, Ray believed abortion decisions should be left to a woman and her physician," the group's spokesman said. "He does not share the president's views on abortion, and that makes nim entirely unacceptable for this position."

Although Ray has declined the nomination, opposition to him reveals a dangerously narrow special-interest agenda for the agency. Indeed, McPherson's chief failure at AID was his effort to appease such groups as the Right to Life Committee.

The concessions proved costly. During McPherson's tenure, U.S. support of the two largest international family-planning organizations, the International Planned Parenthood Federation and the U.N. Fund for Population Activities, was terminated. Millions of dollars were channeled instead into natural family-planning programs that promote abstinence during the fertile days in a woman's cycle and refuse to offer more effective birth-control options. As a result, millions of poor couples in Third World countries have been denied the help they need to control the size of their families.

There is no need to make abortion the litmus test for an AID administrator. A 1974 federal law prohibits the use of U.S. funds for abortions overseas. The AID administrator is required to uphold the law no matter what his or her personal opinion about abortion may be. And AID is far more than a conduit for family-planning money: The agency dispenses hundreds of millions of dollars in U.S. money, material and advice each year to promote economic development in poor countries.

Shultz commendably refused to adopt the anti-abortion group's guideline and proposed another moderate, U.S. trade official M. Alan Woods, for the AID post. President Reagan should support Shultz by forwarding Woods' name to the Senate for confirmation. The president should refuse to bow to the demands of those who would remake AID into an outpost for ideological and moral imperialism.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, May 4, the 124th day of 1987. There are 241 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On May 4, 1970, Ohio National Guardsmen opened fire on a crowd of anti-war demonstrators at Kent State University, killing four students.

On this date:

In 1626, Dutch explorer Peter Minuit landed on Manhattan Island, later buying it from Indians for $24 worth of trinkets.

In 1776, Rhode Island declared its freedom from England — two months before the Declaration of Independence was adopted by the Continental Congress.

In 1886, at Haymarket Square in Chicago, a labor demonstration for an eight-hour work day turned into a riot when a bomb exploded.

In 1927, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences was founded.

In 1932, mobster Al Capone, convicted of income-tax evasion, entered the federal penitentiary in Atlanta.

In 1961, the first group of "Freedom Riders" left Washington for New Orleans to challenge racial segregation in interstate buses and bus terminals.

Ten years ago: The United States and Vietnam agreed the U.S. would not veto Vietnam's admission into the United Nations and would lift a trade embargo after diplomatic relations were established.

Five years ago: The Polish military renewed a curfew, cut telephone services and slapped other restrictions on selected regions following riots in Warsaw and nine other cities.

CIA counterfeiting to help Afghans

WASHINGTON — Occasionally, the Central Intelligence Agency does something right. At least that's our edict on their ultra-secret program to counterfeit millions of dollars in Afghan money.

Jack Anderson

The CIA has been churning out the counterfeit "afghanis" — as the denomination is known in Soviet-occupied Afghanistan — for several years. It began with the acquisition of an excellent set of plates that produces bills without blemish.

Why money? To provide the determined Afghan rebels and their friends in Afghan villages with the wherewithal to buy food, clothing and other basic necessities. It's the CIA's way of combating the Soviet's "depopulation strategy," which seeks to murder or drive out any Afghan who doesn't support Russia's puppet regime.

The estimated population of Afghanistan when the Soviets invaded at Christmastime 1979 was 15 million. Fully a third of that number no longer live in the country. One million have been killed in the fighting; most of the rest are in burgeoning refugee camps along the Afghan border in western Pakistan.

The Russian strategy has been obvious to the Afghan mujaheddin. Villages they cannot control and those whose residents are suspected of aiding the rebels are brutalized. Crops are destroyed, suspected mujaheddin informants are tortured and executed. Sometimes, the Soviets resort to indiscriminately strafing such villages from helicopter gunships. And, too often, Soviet troops have marched in and massacred every man, woman and child in the village.

Meanwhile, areas the Soviets control are made livable. Markets for food and other goods thrive there. Russians even help cultivate the crops. It is in these areas that the CIA's counterfeit money has been put to good use.

"We're using the Russians' own supply system against them," gloated one CIA source. "We don't just provide this money to buy food for the rebels and 'friendlies' from these approved markets — we also encourage the mujaheddin to use the afghani money to corrupt the Soviet soldiers. Buy ammunition from them. Buy clothing and food from Soviet quartermasters. Get that money circulating."

The mujaheddin have been delighted with the program. As usual, though, a fair amount of graft goes on when the CIA's bogus bills arrive in Pakistan. Since not even the Afghans themselves can tell the difference, these bills are sold for their full value in Peshawar and Quetta, the two gateway cities used by the mujaheddin as headquarters for strikes inside nearby Afghanistan.

Another source familiar with the program said that CIA analysts realized that if the Soviets succeeded in making areas friendly to the mujaheddin inhospitable, the rebels would eventually lay down their arms. "If a teenage guerrilla has no cousin left in Afghanistan, no home where he used to live, nothing to fight for — he might not fight," this source observed.

That's why, he added, the Soviets have been "strafing fields at planting time, planting a few mines in other fields and leaving toys for children that blow up when they're picked up."

And so the caravans of cash continue to make the long journey through forbidding mountain passes into the villages, as much a weapon in this war as those loaded up with arms and ammunition.

FIREPLACE UPDATE: We've finally seen House Speaker Jim Wright's new $10,000-plus fireplace and can report that it's one you can be proud of.

We disclosed a couple of weeks ago that the Texas Democrat was having the fireplace installed in his office while he was in Moscow. A representative of the architect of the Capitol told us the materials cost about $4,500; other experts estimated the labor costs at $6,000.

A Wright aide told us a "tour" of the construction site could be arranged, but the speaker had to give his permission first. Wright granted our request via overseas telephone, and our reporter Karen Talley was finally ushered in to view the project. It is a black marble marvel that sits in a corner just to the right of the speaker's desk.

The fireplace will be hooked up this summer, when a chimney is run through two upper offices and out the Capitol roof. We asked the architect's representative who would surrender space to the speaker's stack, but were told this information had to be withheld for "security reasons."

Speaker 'lectured' group after Aspin query

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Jim Wright stunned the congressional delegation that he led to Moscow by implicitly rebuking Rep. Les Aspin, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, for tough questioning of a member of the ruling Politburo.

Aspin wanted to know how much opposition Mikhail Gorbachev's glasnost reforms are encountering, who leads that opposition and how Gorbachev is handling it. While hardly remarkable in the U.S. or any democratic country, the questions startled and embarrassed the Politburo member. He mumbled an incoherent answer and quickly moved to something else.

That evening, Wright called the entire U.S. delegation together and gave it a lecture. In the future, he said, the congressmen should take a "positive approach" to Soviet leaders. He did not name Aspin, but every one there felt the speaker was criticizing him for daring to mention Gorbachev's opposition.

KURT WALDHEIM'S FRIEND

A photograph showing Austrian President Kurt Waldheim chummy with Ronald Lauder, U.S. ambassador in Vienna, is ready for use in Democratic Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan's campaign for re-election in New York next year.

Lauder, son of perfume magnate Estee Lauder, is Moynihan's probable Republican foe next year in his first bid for public office. Waldheim last week was barred from traveling to the U.S. because of concealed Nazi service during World War II. Any link with him would not help Lauder, who is Jewish, cut into New York's heavily Democratic Jewish vote.

Lauder told us from Vienna there are plenty of pictures showing him with Waldheim, both since his arrival in Austria as ambassador a year ago and during Waldheim's tenure in New York as United Nations secretary general. They were photographed smiling at each other at a New Year's celebration in Vienna. Moynihan's office denied possession of any such photo, but a well-placed political source assured us a good picture is in hand.

NIXON ADVISES DOLE

As part of his campaign against a U.S.-Soviet agreement on Euromissiles, Richard M. Nixon has advised Sen. Robert J. Dole to come out against the deal as part of his presidential strategy.

Nixon has sent similar word to Rep. Jack Kemp and also has lobbied President Reagan's chief of staff, Howard Baker. But the former president has made no secret that Dole is his favorite for the Republican nomination.

If Dole takes Nixon's advice, that could put him to Kemp's right on U.S.-Soviet relations in the battle for conservative Republican voters. Kemp's political strategists are telling him that the probability of a Reagan-Gorbachev summit takes foreign policy off the '88 political agenda and he should lay off heavy criticism of the administration's arms-control policy.

BASHING BENNETT

Secretary of Education William J. Bennett, emerging as the idea man of the administration's final two years, is coming under backstage fire as a political opportunist from longtime supporters of President Reagan.

When conservative activists cite Bennett as a shining light on today's dull right-wing scene, key Reaganites in Washington disagree. They claim everything the education chief does or says passes through the filter of whether or not it promotes him as vice president on the 1988 ticket.

Bennett's Education Department and Attorney General Edwin Meese's Justice Department compete for leading what remains of the Reagan Revolution. Conservative T. Kenneth Cribb, Meese's right-hand man and currently presidential assistant for domestic affairs, never has led the Bennett fan club.

THE VP'S ADVISER

Although the official word from the vice president's office is that Donald Gregg has weathered the storm as Bush's national security adviser, insiders report he has been given until Aug. 1 to find a new job.

Bush's key political lieutenants agreed several weeks ago that publicity connecting ex-CIA professional Gregg with support for the contras and impolitic statements on Israel had made him undesirable for the coming presidential campaign. Former senator Nicholas Brady, a Bush intimate, said as much to Gregg.

But Gregg conferred with the vice president, who told him his fate was in his own hands. Since then, according to insiders, Gregg has agreed to look for new work with Bush's spokesmen giving no hint he is being thrown overboard.

CHARLEY REESE

Even when bears smile, they're still bears

When you ponder Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's disarmament offers, you'd be wise to remember what Dogen said about weeds and flowers.

Charley Reese

Eihei Dogen, a Japanese Zen master in the 13th century, wrote a little essay which contains these lines: "Nevertheless, flowers fall with our attachment, and weeds spring up with our aversion."

My dad, who never heard of Zen or Dogen, used to say something similar. More than once, he would say, "Son, you're old enough for your wants not to hurt you."

What all this has to do with Gorbachev is that Americans must be mature enough not to let their wishes and desires override their judgment so that they fall, as we have done with monotonous regularity, into a Soviet trap. What is, is and wishing won't change it.

I don't know which is funnier — Gorbachev's I'm-A-Good-Guy Act or the gullible Americans who respond as if he were a Marxist-Leninist version of the Easter Bunny.

As you watch Gorbachev smile for the cameras just remember that he is smiling from a fortress nation, ringed with barbed wire and mine fields, bristling with missiles, humming with armaments production, and just as insanely secretive and oppressive as it was in the days of Joe Stalin.

Apparently many baby boomers are born without any memory function. To mistake what Gorbachev is doing for something new requires a high level of ignorance. He is not reforming the nation's economy. He's simply killing off and discrediting his political enemies, the old Leonid Brezhnev faction. What a coincidence that all the mistakes and crimes he's outraged about were made and committed by his political opponents. Every Soviet leader has done this or else didn't stay a Soviet leader very long. Communist parties are similar to Mafia families. They're all criminals but they do compete among themselves for the top dog slot.

Before you decide that Gorbachev wants to dismantle Soviet armaments so that he can make more baby carriages and refrigerators, you'd better take a hard look at reality. Other than Gorbachev's public relations campaign, absolutely nothing has changed.

The Soviets continue to spy on and lie about the United States. The Red Army continues to kill and maim thousands of Afghans in a diligent manner. They continue to ship arms to their proxies in Angola and Nicaragua. They continue to train and support terrorists. Their agents and soldiers remain in place. Their previous agreements remain violated.

A sensible president would tell Gorbachev that 42 years was enough. That unless the Soviets would belatedly honor the Yalta Agreement, which means allowing free elections in Eastern Europe, that as sane individuals we cannot trust them. Never mind Helsinki, the ABM and SALT I and II which they have not honored or the Four Power Agreement on Berlin which they violated with the Berlin Wall.

In fact, the only agreement I can recall that the Soviet Union has honored is the Hitler-Stalin Pact. That was their eozy 1939 treaty which gave the Soviets, the Baltic States, eastern Poland and a hunk of Finland. The Soviets didn't break that agreement, the Nazis did. Still, the Soviets continue to honor it by holding on to the aforesaid stolen property.

We cannot make Gorbachev into a benign individual just because we wish he were. He is the KGB's man. There are more KGB generals on the politburo now than at any time in Soviet history. He's by far the most dangerous leader since Nikita Khrushchev.

Flowers fall with our attachment, weeds spring up with our aversion, and bears which smile are still bears.

CONGRATULATIONS OUTSTANDING LEE STUDENTS

Jeff Burchard, son of Bill and Kay Burchard, could be aptly described as a well-rounded student, excelling in academics, athletics and other extra-curricular activities.

He lettered in academics every year during high school and was named Outstanding Science Student his junior and senior years. He was also named Mr. Academic. In addition, he was a member of the National Honor Society two years and an honor graduate of 1987. Burchard also received the Rensselaer Math and Science Award and was listed in Who's Who.

This athletic student played basketball throughout his high school years and lettered as a member of the varsity team his junior and senior years.

He was Sophmore Class Vice-President (1984-1985), Junior Class President (1985-1986), and Lee High School Student Council President (1986-1987).

Burchard was a member of the Bio-Med Club, the Exchange Club and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes his junior and senior years. He was in Chi Alpha his junior year and was on the Lee Youth Center Board his senior year. He was also a member of Students Against Driving Drunk (S.A.D.D.).

This honor graduate has received the Lechner Scholarship for academic achievement. He will be studying Biochemistry at Texas A&M next year. Eventually, he hopes to go to medical school.

John Bradley, son of Margaret Ann Bradley, excelled in athletics, as well as academics at Lee High School.

Twice he lettered in football and track. As a defensive and offensive lineman, he was named All-District and All-South Plains and was selected for the All-West Texas Super Team.

Bradley has also paid attention to his academic development. He has taken honors government and honors chemistry and has been on the National Honor Roll.

Student Council Representative in his senior year and a member of the Texas Alliance of Minority Engineers, John is active in the youth organization at New Jerusalem Baptist Church.

Bradley was granted an athletic scholarship to Oklahoma University and will study Computer Engineering in the fall.

Lee High School's feature twirler, Gina Adams has excelled academically, musically and socially during her high school years.

Gina, daughter of Gene and Gail Adams, lettered in academics four years and received an academic jacket her sophomore year. This outstanding English student was inducted into the National Honor Society her junior year. She maintained membership in the Honor Society her senior year.

Throughour her high school career, Adams devoted a great deal of time to the band. She lettered in band all four years and was feature twirler each year. She has also served as band captain and was elected Band Sweetheart.

Adam's other high school accomplishments included being selected for Daughters of the American Revoulution, Student Council Class Representative (1984-1985, 1985-1986), and serving as Senior Class First Vice-President.

During her senior year, Adams was elected Bio-Med Sweetheart and Miss Lee High School. She was also nominated for Class Favorite. The Lions Club named her Student of the Week and the Rotary Club selected her as a queen finalist.

Next year she will be attending Baylor University, where she has been chosen to be the 1988 feature twirler.

David Michael Weis, son of Michael and Julie Weis has maintained a 4.0 grade point average and has lettered in academics for four consecutive years making him the highest ranking boy in the city. In his 1985-1986 school year he was named Outstanding Student in science and foreign language as well as serving as class treasurer and member of the Junior Classical League.

During his current year, he has taken honors as Outstanding Math Student and is serving as president of the National Honor Society in this his second year in the society.

Because he feels extra curricular activities play an important part in any students career, Weis was a member of the Lee Student Council and served as chairman of the Election Committee in 1986 and Program Chairman in 1987. Weis has also been named to Who's Who, Rotary Club Student of the Week and the Optimist Club's Outstanding Student.

A forward on the varsity basketball team, he participated in Young Life and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. He is a member of St. Ann's Catholic Church and has been awarded a scholarship from the Texas Society of Professional Engineers.

David has been accepted at the University of Notre Dame, where he plans to study engineering.

Jeanne Thurman, daughter of Gary and Myra Thurman, is the Valedictorian of the Class of 1987.

Thurman was named an Outstanding Student in English (three years), math, social studies and science. She won the National Council of Teachers of English Achievement Award for writing and lettered in academics four years. She was listed in Who's Who Among High School Students. Thurman received the Presidential Academic Fitness Award and the University Interscholastic League Scholar Award. She also placed first in literature in the district PTA Cultural Arts competition. She was Junior Lioness of the Week and the American Association of University Women's Student of the Month. In addition, she was named as a Congressional Scholar.

Jeanne is a member of the National Honor Society as well as a member of the Bio-Med Club and president of the Pan-American Student Forum.

Before attending the University of the South, Sewanne, where she has been awarded the Wilkins Scholarship, Thurman plans to spend next fall in Washington D.C. working on the George Bush presidential campaign.

"When I was a sophomore I failed a class. To bring my grade point average back up I had to go to summer school. I wanted this very much, and I went all the way for it."

This is how Hope Michele Soria, daughter of Checencio Chris and Hope Soria, began what has turned out to be an outstanding high school career.

Named Outstanding Junior and Senior, Hope is a member of the National Honor Society and has lettered in academics both of those years. She is now listed in Who's Who and received a Presidential Fitness Award for the 1986-1987 school year.

Although Soria, a member of the Spanish Club, has served as a tutor in reading and English, her greatest interest is in the field of health care. In her junior year she was president of the Lee High School chapter of Health Occupation Students of America and has participated with this organization in state and national competition.

Soria, recipient of a Baskin Foundation Scholarship and Pell Grant, will attend the University of Texas at Austin to study nursing and the attend medical school to become a general surgeon.

Hope is a member of Genesis Baptist Church, secretary treasurer of the youth group,choir member and Acteen.

Mark Van Cott, son of Mark and Mary Ann Van Cott, took a number of honors courses while at Lee and was named Outstanding Student in science, social studies, English and foreign language. Van Cott lettered in academics four years and was a member of the National Honor Society his junior and senior year. In addition, he was the recipient of the Presidential Academic Fitness Award and the University Interscholastic League Scholarship Award.

During the 1985-1986 school year, he received the Rotary Youth Leadership Award. In the 1986-1987 school year he was named Lion's Club Student of the Week. He was also included in Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Van Cott also found time to play varsity basketball. In fact, he lettered in basketball two years and was named All-District one year.

He participated in Eagle Scouts and started his own company, Grass Roots Landscaping, during his senior year.

Van Cott will be attending Yale University next year.

Vanessa Lynn Davis, daughter of Mac and Janette Davis, has been a member of the National Honor Society for the last two years and headed the organization's Special Projects this year.

In the last two years she has been honored as Outstanding Student and The National Council of English Teachers selected Davis as the winner of an achievement award in writing. She has been named to Who's Who and named Distinguished American High School Student, has received the University Interscholastic League Scholar Award and the Presidential Academic Fitness Award.

Davis, a member of the Pan American Student Forum, was last year's treasurer of the Lee High chapter of the National Forensics League.

Some of her other activities include membership in the Bio-Med Club where she serves as secretary-treasurer and Students Against Driving Drunk, where she serves as president.

As a member of First Baptist Church, Vanessa has been active in the youth group and Acteens.

Davis's academic accomplishments have won her a scholarship to Southwestern University where she plans to study English.

Darla Hatch, daughter of Eddie and Gerry Hatch, as Salutatorian of the Class of 1987, lettered in academics four years and was a member of the National Honor Society two years.

Her senior year she was vice president of the National Honor Society, was awarded the title 'Miss Academic' for Rebelee Court and was listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students. In her career in at Lee High she was Outstanding Student in Math for two years and one year in English. Hatch has been awarded the University Interscholastic League's Scholarship Award and the Presidential Academic Fitness Award.

This student played on the junior varsity and varsity volleyball team.

During the 1986-1987 school year she was a Student Council Representative.

She was also a member of a number of other organizations. For two years she was in the Pan-American Student Forum and was Second Vice-President of the of the Bio-Med Club during the 1986-1987 school year. That same year she served as Vice-President of the Junior Engineering Technical Society.

She is a member of Senior Girls and participated in Young Life.

Hatch plans to study at Texas A&M next year and major in Bio-Engineering. Her goal is to go to medical school and train to be a pediatrician.

Melanie Richardson, daughter of Jim and Marilyn Richardson, has lettered three years in academics. Her senior year she was given the University Interscholastic League Scholarship Award and the Presidential Academic Fitness Award. This honor graduate was also a member of the National Honor Society her junior and senior years and served as their treasurer her senior year. Richardson took a number of honors courses and was named Outstanding Science Student her sophomore year.

She was also recognized as Student of the Week by the West Rotary Club and January's Student of the Month for the American Association of University Women.

Richardson lettered in band and orchestra two years. Her junior year she was the Flag Captain in the band. That same year she was a Lee High School Student Council Representative. During her senior year she was on the Student Council President's Cabinet.

Melanie was in Medical Explorers (1984-1985), Junior Engineering and Technical Society (1985-1986) and the Bio-Med Club (1986-1987).

She has been an active member of Memorial Christian Church and was awarded a scholarship from the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). She hopes to attend Texas Christian University.

Weather to be slightly cooler

From Staff and Wire Reports

Slightly cooler temperatures and a chance of thunderstorms are in the National Weather Service forecast for Tuesday. Under partly cloudy skies, the high should be in the lower 70s. There is a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Tonight, skies will be fair and the possibility of thunderstorms is less than 20 percent. With a low near the 50-degree mark, winds will be out of the northeast at five to 15 mph. On Tuesday, winds will be out of the northeast-east at five to 15 mph.

Sunday's high of 80 was 18 degrees below the record high set for that date in 1947. Today's 47-degree low was nine degrees above the record low set for this date in 1978.

STATE

Thunderstorms rumbled across Central Texas today, spawning several funnel clouds, large hail and heavy rains that flooded roads and streets, with one woman reported missing after her car was swept from a low-water crossing, authorities said.

Fort Worth Fire Department officials were searching today for the woman, who was reported missing at about 8:30 p.m. Sunday. The 20-year-old woman and the driver, a 42-year-old man had climbed to the roof of their car after it was washed from the low-water crossing.

Rising waters swept the two from the car. The man was able to climb from the floodwaters but could not reach the woman, said fire department spokesman Butch Hall.

Northeast of Austin, houses and cars were damaged and power lines knocked down Sunday night when what the weather bureau described as a "massive hailstorm" moved through Pflugerville. There was extensive property damage but no injuries, officials said.

Elsewhere, Texas Department of Public Safety officers sighted twin tornadoes on the ground west of Luling just after midnight today.

Lightning hit a pickup truck and a tree as a strong thunderstorm moved through the area, a Caldwell County sheriff's dispatcher said.

NATION

A storm spread thunderstorms across the Plains today, while rain was widespread from the Northeast into the Midwest.

The storm over the southern Plains scattered thunderstorms from southern Texas into eastern Oklahoma. Showers and thunderstorms ranged from the Texas Panhandle into western and central Kansas, and rain was widespread from eastern Colorado into western Nebraska.

In-house history

ODESSA — Just south of downtown, perched on a small hill near a busy intersection, the only standing structure built in Odessa before 1900 looks toward the center of the city.

The White-Pool House, a two-story residence wrapped in stately red brick, was built in 1887 by a former grain merchant who moved his family from Indiana. It has been restored by the Ector County Historical Commission, according to Bobbie Klepper, who chairs the commission. But Ms. Klepper, the special services librarian at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, said the effort is one of historical interpretation, rather than restoration.

She explained that the exterior was restored to its 1887 appearance, but the rooms of the house are decorated in various periods.

The home was built by Charles White, who moved his family to Odessa from Indiana after the Civil War destroyed his grain business. He hoped to find new business opportunities here, as well as a dry climate for his ailing wife, Lucy.

Four years before the organization of Ector County, the home, which anchored a 640-acre "section" of land farmed by White, was finished. White owned a mercantile store on the courthouse square until 1905, when he died at age 81 after he was kicked by a horse.

The home had several owners until 1923, when it was sold to Oso Pool, who had come to Odessa in 1921.

During the oil boom of 1927, and the same year he married, Pool converted part of the home into a five-unit apartment house. Members of the Pool family owned the home until 1978, when it was donated to the county.

Ms. Klepper said the major restoration of the home was accomplished over a two-year period, from 1982-84.

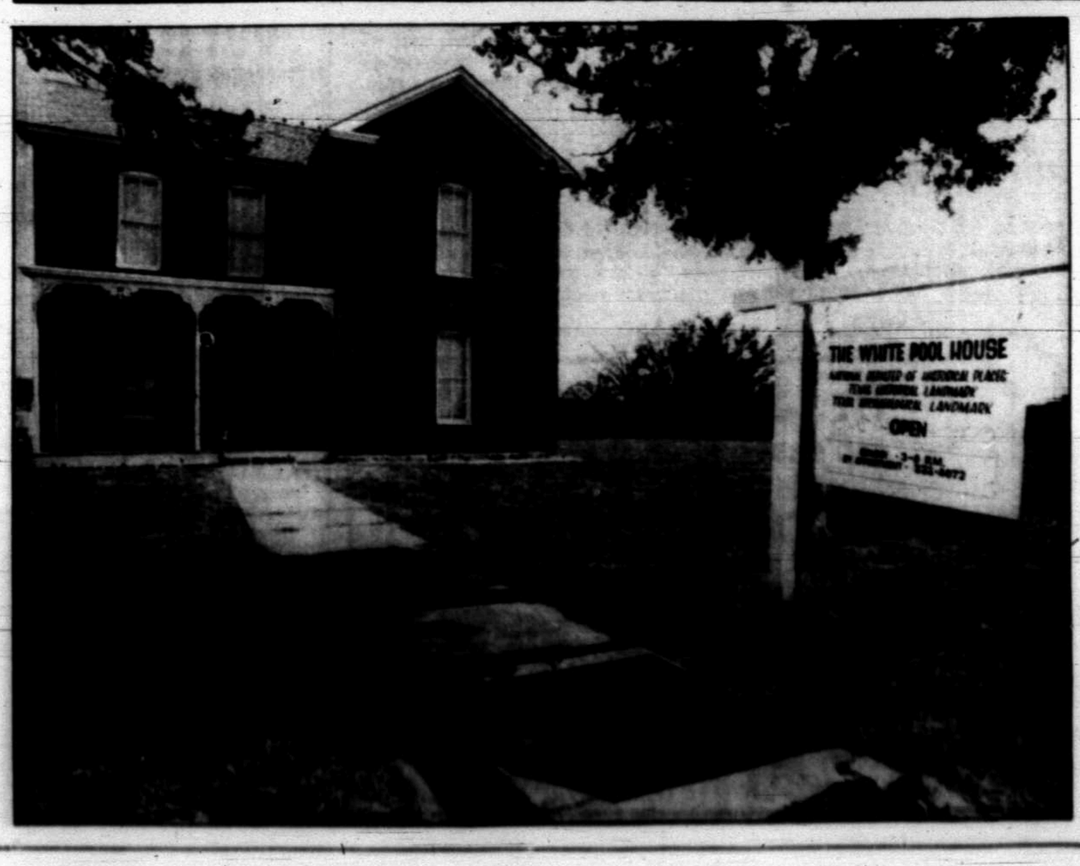

The front right of the home is the informal parlor. Representative of the room's furnishings is a radio used in the 1930s, donated by William Kelley of Odessa.

The front left room of the house, now known as the formal parlor, is the largest room. Its wood ceiling, known as a "beaded" ceiling, is found throughout the house. An 1852 Smith pump organ, also donated, sits against one wall.

Ms. Klepper said the wallpaper in the formal parlor is "documented" — that is, the actual pattern is reproduced after research proves it was actually used in the particular period.

It features a "beaded" ceiling, used throughout the house, and "documented" wallpaper, discovered while researching the restoration. The two-story house, left, sits on a small hill south of downtown Odessa, once the center of a 640-acre farm. The seven-room home, which is available for rental for special occasions, recently was the site of a wedding and a 15th wedding anniversary celebration.

Weather to be slightly cooler

From Staff and Wire Reports

Slightly cooler temperatures and a chance of thunderstorms are in the National Weather Service forecast for Tuesday. Under partly cloudy skies, the high should be in the lower 70s. There is a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Tonight, skies will be fair and the possibility of thunderstorms is less than 20 percent. With a low near the 50-degree mark, winds will be out of the northeast at five to 15 mph. On Tuesday, winds will be out of the northeast-east at five to 15 mph.

Sunday's high of 80 was 18 degrees below the record high set for that date in 1947. Today's 47-degree low was nine degrees above the record low set for this date in 1978.

STATE

Thunderstorms rumbled across Central Texas today, spawning several funnel clouds, large hail and heavy rains that flooded roads and streets, with one woman reported missing after her car was swept from a low-water crossing, authorities said.

Fort Worth Fire Department officials were searching today for the woman, who was reported missing at about 8:30 p.m. Sunday. The 20-year-old woman and the driver, a 42-year-old man had climbed to the roof of their car after it was washed from the low-water crossing.

Rising waters swept the two from the car. The man was able to climb from the floodwaters but could not reach the woman, said fire department spokesman Butch Hall.

Northeast of Austin, houses and cars were damaged and power lines knocked down Sunday night when what the weather bureau described as a "massive hailstorm" moved through Pflugerville. There was extensive property damage but no injuries, officials said.

Elsewhere, Texas Department of Public Safety officers sighted twin tornadoes on the ground west of Luling just after midnight today.

Lightning hit a pickup truck and a tree as a strong thunderstorm moved through the area, a Caldwell County sheriff's dispatcher said.

NATION

A storm spread thunderstorms across the Plains today, while rain was widespread from the Northeast into the Midwest.

The storm over the southern Plains scattered thunderstorms from southern Texas into eastern Oklahoma. Showers and thunderstorms ranged from the Texas Panhandle into western and central Kansas, and rain was widespread from eastern Colorado into western Nebraska.

In-house history

ODESSA — Just south of downtown, perched on a small hill near a busy intersection, the only standing structure built in Odessa before 1900 looks toward the center of the city.

The White-Pool House, a two-story residence wrapped in stately red brick, was built in 1887 by a former grain merchant who moved his family from Indiana. It has been restored by the Ector County Historical Commission, according to Bobbie Klepper, who chairs the commission. But Ms. Klepper, the special services librarian at the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, said the effort is one of historical interpretation, rather than restoration.

She explained that the exterior was restored to its 1887 appearance, but the rooms of the house are decorated in various periods.

The home was built by Charles White, who moved his family to Odessa from Indiana after the Civil War destroyed his grain business. He hoped to find new business opportunities here, as well as a dry climate for his ailing wife, Lucy.

Four years before the organization of Ector County, the home, which anchored a 640-acre "section" of land farmed by White, was finished. White owned a mercantile store on the courthouse square until 1905, when he died at age 81 after he was kicked by a horse.

The home had several owners until 1923, when it was sold to Oso Pool, who had come to Odessa in 1921.

During the oil boom of 1927, and the same year he married, Pool converted part of the home into a five-unit apartment house. Members of the Pool family owned the home until 1978, when it was donated to the county.

Ms. Klepper said the major restoration of the home was accomplished over a two-year period, from 1982-84.

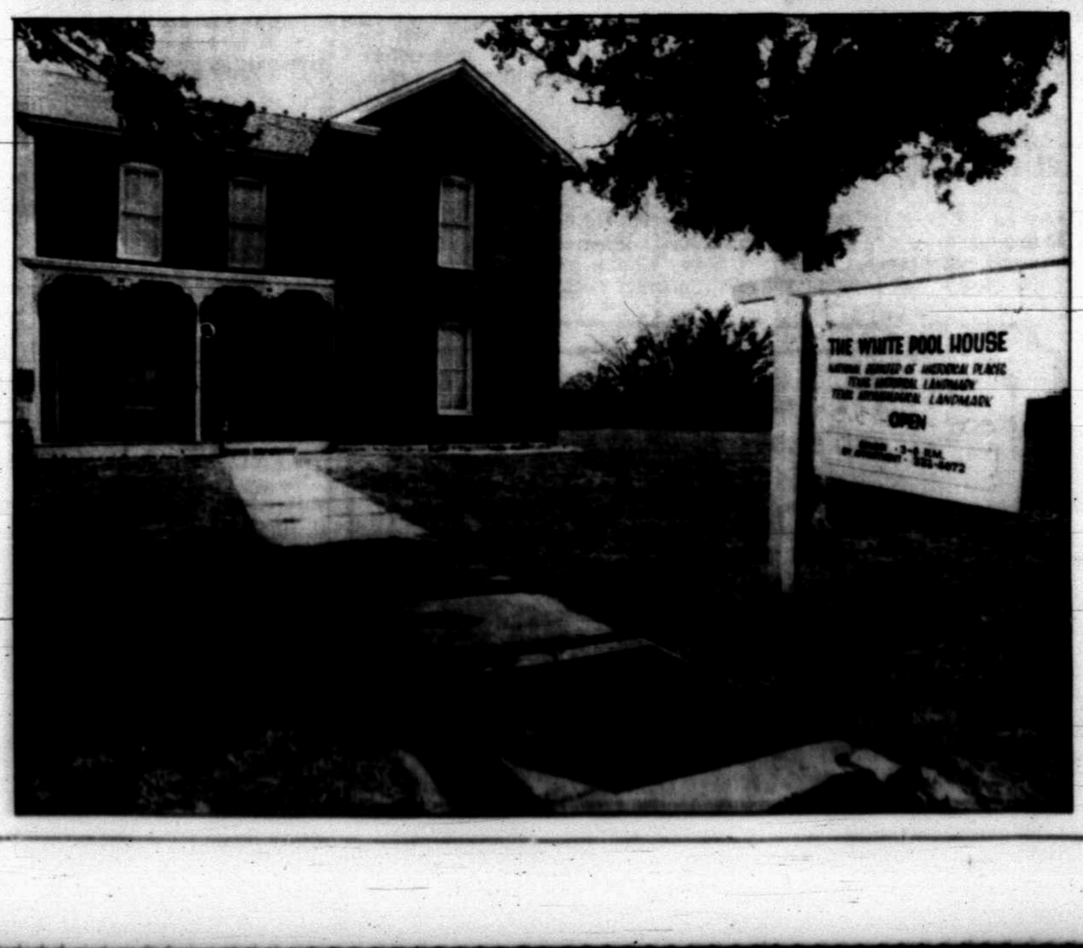

The front right of the home is the informal parlor. Representative of the room's furnishings is a radio used in the 1930s, donated by William Kelley of Odessa.

The front left room of the house, now known as the formal parlor, is the largest room. Its wood ceiling, known as a "beaded" ceiling, is found throughout the house. An 1852 Smith pump organ, also donated, sits against one wall.

Ms. Klepper said the wallpaper in the formal parlor is "documented" — that is, the actual pattern is reproduced after research proves it was actually used in the particular period.

CITY SIDEWALKS

Stuck in heavy traffic? Signal Public Works

By LYN MILLER

Ever wonder how the traffic signals are controlled in Midland? Or, who to call to report a traffic light out of commission? Or, why it is, when you're in a hurry, every traffic light turns red as soon as you get to it? Of course, the latter is simply a matter of circumstance, but the office to talk to regarding the operation of traffic signals is the Traffic Engineering Division of the Public Works Department of the city of Midland.

Traffic signals in the downtown area operate on a fixed-time 70-second cycle and are coordinated to provide a smooth flow of traffic during three different traffic flow patterns in operation at various times of the day. One pattern provides inbound progression on Wall Avenue eastbound; Texas Avenue and A street southbound; and Big Spring Street southbound during the peak morning hours and after lunch. An outbound pattern is provided on Illinois Avenue and the three two-way streets mentioned above during the beginning of the lunch hour and the late afternoon peak hour. An average pattern is provided for the remaining parts of the day and night time.

On Andrews Highway, a progression system is utilized during these time periods between Wall Avenue and Midkiff Road to provide progression in the peak traffic direction.

The remaining traffic signals, which operate independently, are mostly traffic actuated signals, responding to the demand of traffic. At most of these signals, a wire which is buried in the pavement, senses when a vehicle is present. Based on traffic volume, this system can shorten or lengthen the green time. This explains, therefore, the reason for a different light sequence at various times.

Pedestrian "Don't Walk" and "Walk" signs are used on some traffic signals to aid in pedestrian control. When the "Walk" sign is visible, the pedestrian may start to cross the street. When the "Don't Walk" signal starts flashing, the pedestrian should not start across the street, but if he is in the process of crossing, he should proceed to cross the street since the light will provide enough time during this phase to finish the crossing.

Other traffic control devices are stop and yield signs, installed at intersections where traffic demand is not great enough for a traffic signal; speed limit signs which, following City Council approval, are placed on major streets to indicate a speed limit different from the state wide urban speed limit of 30 mph; and traffic control signs which are used to warn motorists of unusual traffic conditions.

The Traffic Engineering Division maintains all yellow and white paint on major streets which indicate traffic lanes, crosswalks, parking and no parking areas, loading zones, school zones and other markings as necessary.

Fred McGary, City Traffic Engineer, has been given authority by the city code to have parking meters installed and parking meter spaces designated on any public street in the city. The 915 parking meters in the downtown area of the city are maintained and monies collected from them by the Traffic Engineering Division. Only United States coins are supposed to be placed in a parking meter, but many times other types of coins are found in them.

Although the Texas Electric Service Co. installs and maintains approximately 4,230 street lights in the city, these lights are under the jurisdiction of the Traffic Engineering Division.

The primary responsibility of this division, under the direction of City Council, is the installation and maintenance of traffic control devices. This includes traffic signals at 97 intersections, signs, and street painting.

While traffic control is a complicated matter, the Traffic Engineering Office handles it with efficiency and expertise.

Any question concerning traffic control should be directed to this office by calling 683-4281, ext. 282, or to report a malfunctioning traffic signal or other problems, call ext. 283. These people will be happy to assist you.

Lyn Miller is secretary to Midland's city secretary.

Virus group to meet

The Epstein-Barr Virus Group will meet in the Pastoral Care Social Work conference room at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Midland Memorial Hospital.

According to a number of U.S. researchers, many of those plagued by continuing or recurring bouts of a number of the following symptoms — low-grade fever, aching joints and or muscles, sore throats, headaches, exhaustion and undue fatigue, short-term memory loss, depression, irritability and sleep disturbances — may be afflicted by a relentless and chronic manifestation of a common organism: the Epstein-Barr virus. The most common symptom is undue fatigue.

The virus was first discovered in 1964 by British researcher Dr. M.A. Epstein, who identified a herpes-like virus in some malignant tumor cells from a patient with Burkitt's lymphoma. This type of lymphoma is common among children in hot, humid regions of Central Africa, where rainfall and mosquitoes are numerous.

The following year, Drs. Gertrude and Werner Henle, researchers connected with Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, Pa., discovered that EBV was linked with infectious mononucleosis.

The local Epstein-Barr virus group will meet at 7:30 p.m. the first Tuesday of each month. For more information call the Rev. Alan Williams, chaplain at Midland Memorial Hospital, 685-1566.

Optimists honor officers

From Staff Reports

Midland's Optimist Club is observing "Respect for Law Week" with a noon Tuesday luncheon honoring the city's outstanding peace and fire department officers. Observance of the week continues through Thursday.

Optimist International's Respect for Law program was initiated in reaction to public apathy toward the increasing problem of crime.

Optimist clubs and other civic groups throughout the United States and Canada have become actively involved in programs and projects to combat disrespect for law and public apathy toward crime, a press release said.

Trade forum to hear banker

ODESSA — Permian Basin International Trade Forum members Thursday will hear about merchant banking services from a Houston-based international specialist.

According to Mike Tolleson, assistant director of economic development for the Greater Odessa Chamber of Commerce, Iskander Bawkher, manager of the Houston branch of the Bank of Credit & Commerce International, will explain how his company "is able to promote all types of counter trade in response to the needs of governments, state trading organizations and corporations."

BCCI provides merchant banking services in all parts of the world through representation in 72 countries.

The monthly noon luncheon meeting will be held at the Holiday Inn Centre.

Cost of the luncheon for members will be $8 and for non-members, $10. Those interested in attending may contact the Odessa chamber office, 332-9103, for reservations.

Local woman dies in mishap

From Staff Reports

A 26-year-old Midland woman was killed early Sunday after she lost control of the pickup truck she was driving and was thrown from the vehicle, according to Department of Public Safety reports.

Connie Hargraves, 26, of Midland was pronounced dead at 4:05 a.m. by Justice of the Peace Robert Pine.

Ms. Hargraves was fatally injured about 3:25 a.m. Sunday. According to DPS reports, she was eastbound on U.S. Highway 80 about three miles east of Midland when she drove off the right side of the road, then jerked the truck to the left. The truck slid into a median and overturned several times.

According to the DPS, Ms. Hargraves was not wearing a seat belt.

Midland police investigate weekend burglaries

From Staff Reports

Midland police are investigating a spate of burglaries that occurred over the weekend, including the second burglary of a local church in as many weeks.

According to police reports, the Parklea Baptist Church, 2906 Franklin Ave., was burglarized late Saturday or early Sunday. A 16-channel sound mixer valued at $1,800, an equalizer valued at $800, and sound monitors valued at $570 were taken.

Police also are investigating the burglary of a residence in the 4600 block of Crockett Avenue. Reports said a gold bracelet valued at $3,000, a gold ring with three small diamonds valued at $500, and video tapes valued at $72 were stolen. The burglary occurred between 1:50 p.m. and 5:15 p.m. Saturday, police said.

A videocassette recorder valued at $1,000, a 35 millimeter camera valued at $600, coins valued at $200, and a Midland High School class ring valued at $150 were reported stolen from a residence in the 3300 block of Camarie Avenue. Reports said the burglary occurred Sunday between 12:30 a.m. and 7 a.m.

A 19-inch color television set valued at $100, and $40 in coin were reported stolen from a residence in the 1700 block of South LaMesa Road. Police said the burglary occurred between 4 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

Two other residential burglaries were reported to police Sunday. According to reports, a hand-held computer valued at $550, computer chips valued at $150, a briefcase valued at $55 and a hand-held calculator valued at $25 were stolen from a residence in the 3200 block of Elma Drive. Police said the burglary occurred between 6:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

An electric circular saw and a variable speed drill were among items stolen from a residence in the 1900 block of Pecos Street, police said. An AM-FM cassette stereo valued at $30 also was reported stolen in the burglary, which police said occurred about 7 a.m. Sunday.

In other reports, two dollies valued at more than $300 were reported stolen from a storage unit at U-Store-It, 3013 W. Industrial. Police said the items, belonging to Lance Inc., were stolen between 6:30 p.m. Friday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

SIFE chapter from MC wins area contest

From Staff Reports

Midland College's chapter of Students In Free Enterprise won its regional contest last weekend in Dallas and will compete in the international competition May 16-20 in Memphis, Tenn.

Competing against both community colleges and universities, the Midland College SIFE group took "Rookie of the Year" honors, plus the first award for the region.

"Our chapter made a 24-minute visual presentation of the various SIFE activities at Midland College and in the community to win the regional contest and the right to advance," said Dr. Jerry Jones, chairman of the business studies division and chapter advisor.

Students representing Midland College at the Dallas contest were Gilley Estes, chapter president; Alisa Johnson, George Galindo and William F. Blake.

HOUSE

In the kitchen stands a marvel, a still-working General Electric "refrigerating machine," circa 1929 — in white, of course. The gas stove is a 1930s model, complete with an "In-A-Drawer" broiler. The floor is 1920s era, a black and white checkerboard, and under one table is a 1906 pressure cooker.

In the 1930s-era dining room, what appears to be a dumbwaiter is a built-in china cabinet, masked by a sliding, stained glass door. Its presence does not surprise Ms. Klepper.

"Charles White was the kind of man that, if it was new and innovative, he had it in the house," she said.

Just off the front door, and up a narrow staircase, are three bedrooms. The first contains the home's only "real" closet. Another is used mainly for storage.

The large upstairs bedroom is dominated by the Whites' bedroom suite, given to the couple as a wedding present in 1852. On one wall hangs the Quaker marriage certificate of Herbert Haughton White, and a 1902 Sears catalog is visible nearby.

The Whites probably were the only Quaker family in the area, and Lucy White was known in Odessa as the "gentle little quakeress," Ms. Klepper said.

The home has become very popular in the area, Ms. Klepper said; it's open from 3-6 p.m. on Sundays, and by appointment. The home is also available for special events, such as weddings, receptions, and meetings.

On Oct. 3, the White-Pool House will be 100 years old, and Ms. Klepper said a "special" event will be planned.

"It is the only thing left, that we know of in the county, built before the turn of the century," she said. "This is the only one left."

INS can't handle alien applications, Bentsen says

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Federal immigration officials may be unable to handle the number of illegal aliens expected to apply for amnesty beginning Tuesday because of poor preparation, said U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

He praised the spirit of the Immigration and Reform Control Act of 1986 in a press conference. But Bentsen criticized the Immigration and Naturalization Service's preparation for the legislation.

"I don't think they (INS) will have enough employees, and I don't think they're trained properly," he said Sunday.

"I think it finally puts integrity back on our borders," Bentsen said, adding that the act "puts a premium on (U.S.) citizenship."

The senator was at Municipal Auditorium to deliver the commencement address for St. Mary's University, where he was awarded an honorary doctorate degree.

Security guard taken off duty after suspicious incident

GRAPEVINE (AP) — A security guard has been taken off duty and sent for retraining after a woman's claim that she got through an airport security barrier with a pistol in her purse, a Delta Air Lines executive says.

Freda Freeman of Terrell said she deliberately left a derringer pistol inside her purse as it went through an airport X-ray machine at Delta's Terminal 4-E at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport to see what would happen.

Mrs. Freeman said she remembered she was carrying the gun as she escorted her mother to the security gate Saturday morning while her husband parked their car.

She said she didn't want to leave her mother, who has Alzheimer's disease, so she decided to keep the gun in her purse. After she walked through the gate, Mrs. Freeman told her husband about the incident.

Frank Freeman told The Dallas Morning News that the incident made him "pretty damn nervous" and he notified a Delta supervisor, who assured him he would notify the proper people.

Wrinkle Cream Great Success

"YOUR SKIN CAN LOOK YOUNGER," says Pharmacist Robert Heldfond about his wrinkle cream, EB5, to an interested onlooker. They are shown above in a JCPenney Cosmetic Department.

It's an exciting story of a pharmacist who developed a wrinkle cream which women are requesting throughout the country.

Robert Heldfond is making cosmetic headlines with his EB5 Cream. His dream since pharmacy school has resulted in a wrinkle cream which is enjoying tremendous sales in department stores and is praised very highly by customers.

Research lab tests show that by daily use of EB5 Cream, morning and night, facial lines around the eyes, on the forehead, and around the mouth are smoothed. And you'll be so pleased to find that EB5 is 5 creams in one jar...EB5 is a wrinkle cream, a day and night cream, a moisturizer, an eye cream, and a make-up base...all in one.

Pharmacist Heldfond's EB5 Cream leaves the skin soft, velvety and younger-looking. It contains Liprogen and other effective ingredients.

If you are concerned about your skin appearing to be aging too quickly, try some EB5 Cream. One jar lasts for months. Sold with a money-back guarantee (complete details available in-store).

Note: EB5 Cream is available at most large JCPenney stores.

Jury selection begins in felony trial of judge

FORT WORTH (AP) — Jury selection gets under way today as Tarrant County's senior felony judge faces trial on charges he coerced women probationers into having sex with him in exchange for leniency in court.

Attorneys say it could take weeks to hear the complex trial of State District Judge Tom Cave, who was indicted in November along with attorney Ronald W. Aultman and bail bondsman Joe Dorsey Adams.

Aultman and Adams are accused of helping arrange sexual liaisons for Cave, 57, who is on a leave of absence with pay from his judicial post. All three men are charged with one federal felony count of conspiracy to violate the women's civil rights, as well as mail fraud and misdemeanor civil rights charges.

Cave, a judge since 1975, and defense lawyers say police and federal authorities coerced prostitutes and drug dealers into lying about Cave, and they accuse police of using unscrupulous tactics — including electronic listening devices — to secure information about the judge.

U.S. Attorney Marvin Collins declined to discuss Cave's charges or particulars of the case.

The judge has acknowledged that he was romantically involved with a former prostitute, 33-year-old Rachel Tallent, one of the six women he is accused of coercing into having sex with him.

Ms. Tallent was convicted twice of prostitution in 1981 and was on probation for cocaine possession when Cave met her.

The indictment charges she had sex with Cave in a hotel room in March 1984 and 90 minutes later appeared before him in court, where he rejected a motion to revoke her probation.

Cave has said that although he was once engaged to the woman, their relationship was misunderstood. He refused to comment on the particular prosecution charges.

Police officials have refused comment on the judge's charges that the investigation was mishandled. Police Capt. Jerry Blaisdell, who headed the initial investigation, said he and others were under strict orders by the Justice Department and the grand jury not to discuss the case.

Despite tragedy, Dallas church maintains hope

DALLAS (AP) — Their minister apparently tried to kill himself and his wife was nearly choked to death by an intruder, but members of the First United Methodist Church say they won't knuckle under to despair.

As police prepared plans to question the recovering minister later this week, church members offered tearful prayers Sunday for the Rev. Walker Railey and his wife, Peggy Railey.

Police guards Friday discovered Railey in his hospital suite where he had been living since his wife was hospitalized last month. Railey found his wife lying unconscious on the floor of their garage early April 22.

Authorities said Railey apparently took an overdose of pills before they could question him about his account of the attempted strangling of his wife.

Before worship services Sunday, a minister read a typed, one-page statement to the congregation and his television audience.

"In the midst of all the police and media reports that attempt to discern fact from fiction, and truth from sensation, we must strive to maintain the quality of mercy that befits the followers of Jesus," said the Rev. Gordon Casad.

The Rev. John Gondol, minister of evangelism, said church officials wanted to send a message Sunday.

"What we were trying to do this morning is to say to our congregation that we may be bowed, but we're not broken," Gondol said. "The church will go forward."

Casad told the congregration that Railey's condition has improved to satisfactory, but the pastor's wife remains in critical condition.

"We must remember our pastor is troubled in mind and spirit, the depth of which only the future will tell," Casad said.

The Dallas Times Herald and Dallas Morning News quoted unidentified sources Saturday as saying a letter in Railey's suite said he was tired of pretending to be good, that he had fought demons for years and that suicide was the best way out.

The five-page handwritten letter also contained instructions for burial, the newspapers said. Police have declined to comment on the contents of the note.

But deputy police chief John Driscoll noted that "we will talk to Mr. Railey whenever his doctor says it's OK. His condition has been upgraded, so we anticipate sometime this week."

Authorities also say threatening letters sent to Railey, known for his strong stands on civil rights, appeared to have been typed on a church typewriter.

"If there is any basic flaw revealed, it will surely be that he (Railey) tried to do in his own strength what can only be done in God's grace."

Man kills woman with DPS gun, dies in shootout

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A man who walked into a Texas Department of Public Safety office killed his female companion with a state trooper's gun, then died following a shootout with officers.

Authorities are awaiting autopsy results that should tell who killed the man in the DPS district office after he seized the gun and began firing Sunday, the DPS said.

"We have to check the slug that is in him and see what gun it came from," said Sgt. Ernest Riojas of the San Antonio Police homicide unit.

The couple, believed to be a husband and wife from the Brownsville area, came into the DPS district office at about 2:45 p.m., and the man asked to speak to a Texas ranger, DPS spokesman David Wells said.

While waiting in an office area, the man reached over a desk and picked up a .357-caliber Magnum revolver belonging to trooper Earl Conaway, who was filling out reports and had left his gunbelt on his desk, Wells said.

The man "started backing out of the section...talking very rapidly in Spanish so it was difficult to understand what he way saying," Wells said. "He got up to the door frame and then fired a shot into this woman's body. She became limp from the shot and he tried to hold her up."

The man fired two more shots, and a constable's office employee fired two shots at the man, who retreated into another office area, Wells said. Officers heard another pair of shots.

Authorities at first thought the man had shot himself but said later that they were not sure who had fired the fatal shot.

The man was found dead of a head wound and the woman was pronounced dead at 3:36 p.m. at Brooke Army Medical Center, Wells said.

Their names were withheld Sunday night pending confirmation of their identities and notification of next of kin.

The couple had come to the DPS office after asking a San Antonio police officer how to contact a certain Texas ranger, Wells said.

3rd Battalion unit honors real WWII 'Tiger in a tank'

FORT HOOD (AP) — The man whose Sherman tank, nicknamed "In The Mood," killed more than 1,000 enemy soldiers during World War II got to try out a slightly newer tank model after becoming a rediscovered hero.

Staff Sgt. Lafayette G. Pool, who is credited with destroying 258 enemy vehicles and capturing more than 250 German prisoners, test drove a M-1 Abrams tank at Fort Hood over the weekend and was impressed.

"That's the most fascinating thing I believe I've ever seen," Pool said. "That's a great machine."

Soldiers in Fort Hood's 3rd "Tiger" Battalion, 32nd Armor, 1st Cavalry Division, were researching their unit's past when they discovered the 3rd Battalion had its own World War II hero.

Pool, a native of Sinton, was with the 3rd Battalion, 32nd Armor, 3rd Armored Division, in World War II's European theater, where he led 21 full-scale attacks during the First Army's drive across Europe in the summer of 1944.

After launching a search for Pool, they found the 67-year-old soldier living quietly in Taft with his wife, Evelyn.

Mrs. Pool said her husband is one old soldier who didn't want to fade away and is glad the Army rediscovered him.

"This is the greatest thrill for him," she said. "When they (the 3/32nd Armor soldiers) first called, he just looked at me and said, 'You mean they really remember me?' "

Pool, who lost two tanks to enemy fire during the war, participated in the action that resulted in the capture of the first German town to fall to U.S. forces. At Namur, Belgium, his tank crew destroyed 15 enemy vehicles; at Dison, Belgium, they knocked out six armored infantry vehicles.

The 1945 spring issue of "Yank," the Army magazine, described Pool as "the ace of American tankers."

Pool, who quit college to join the Army in 1941, was injured near the Siegfried Line on Sept. 19, 1944. As a result of his injuries, he lost a leg. In 1946, he was medically discharged, but was called back to active duty in 1948 to serve as an instructor. In 1952, he was promoted to warrant officer and retired in 1960.

"I've always hated civilian life with a purple passion," said Pool, who has been a cotton farmer, minister, bookkeeper and school teacher since then. "The military has been my life since I quit college to join the Army."

Soldiers with the 3/32nd Armor surrounded him at the unit's motor pool Friday afternoon after Pool finished his M-1 ride.

"The 32nd in combat proved themselves to be the greatest group over there," Pool told them. "We believed in...hitting them fast."

Bachelor auction raises funds for Big Brothers/Big Sisters

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

Watch out "Dating Game." Move over, "Love Connection." Midland's newest fund-raising event just might be a better way to meet eligible bachelors.

The Big Brother/Big Sister Benefit Bachelor Auction, which is scheduled to become an annual event, was presented Saturday night at the Midland Hilton.

The mostly female and mostly single crowd of about 400 had the chance to bid on "31 of the most eligible bachelors in Midland," said master of ceremonies Skip Baldwin of KMID-TV. Actually, it turned out to be 32 bachelors, because after the original 31 were bid on, auctioneer Dennis Black landed on the other side of the auction block and became Bachelor No. 32. Successful bidders "won" a previously-planned date with the bachelors.

At the pre-auction party, many of the bachelors admitted to a certain amount of nervousness, but were pleased to be part of a worthy cause.

Jerry Stone, Bachelor No. 6 and former basketball coach at Midland College, took time out from recruiting for the University of Texas at Arlington to return to Midland and be auctioned off. "It's for a good cause," he said. "It's going to be fun, no doubt about it."

John Beane, Bachelor No. 19, said he had "been a Big Brother in the past." His sisters organized his date package before he agreed to be auctioned, he added. "My sisters know the cause is good!"

Pap Roark, Bachelor No. 9, agreed with the other auctionees. "The main reason (to be auctioned off) is because I do think it is for a very, very good cause." A stockbroker for E.F. Hutton, Roark said he would like to be a Big Brother but so far has not found the time available — he wanted to devote as much time to the cause as needed. As far as being bid on, "I just hope somebody bids."

Larry Bruns, Bachelor No. 20, said he agreed to be auctioned off because his date package included "two tickets to Las Vegas." Although he would like to be a Big Brother, he, too, has not yet found the available time.

Mike Bates, Bachelor No. 17, has found the time. "I've been a Big Brother for about six months," he said, "but I haven't been assigned a kid yet." He took part in the auction "because I was asked and I thought it was a good cause."

Mary Ann Rangel, day care owner and single mother of two, was a prospective bidder at the party. "About three of my mothers (of her day-care children) got together ... and donated some money for me to bid," she said. Big Brothers/Big Sisters is important to Ms. Rangel and her family. "I've lived in Midland for six years and they (her children) have been in Big Brothers/Big Sisters for six years," she said. Ms. Rangel herself recently signed up to be a Big Sister.

Diane Makkonen, who had been a Big Sister for a year and a half, was a potential bidder at the auction. She was enjoying the pre-party and auction, she said. "It's great just to watch the people and see how everybody showed up."

After a hour of drinks, snacks and mingling, the bachelors were whisked backstage and the audience prepared for what Baldwin called "the sale."

"We're going to bring each guy out like a slave," he said. "We're gonna make him stand out here and tell you who he is, how old he is, what he does for a living and where he's going to take his date." Baldwin's co-master of ceremonies was Janet Storie of KTPX-TV.

All the bachelors' fears of not being bid on vanished as the auction progressed. In fact, some were more than pleasantly surprised. As soon as William C. Howard, Bachelor No. 12, walked on stage, an enthusiastic audience member opened the bidding at $300 before his name was even announced — minimum bid was set at $50. The bid quickly rose to a winning bid of $900 made by Shelia Magic Bryson.

"I saw his picture in the newspaper, so I decided, 'What a man!' " Ms. Bryson said.

"I'm astounded, that's what I am!" Howard grinned.

Ms. Bryson added that she was prepared to bid as high as "about $1500, maybe $2000" on Howard. "I've never had to buy anybody, but I know it will be worth it."

"Who knows, maybe I'll just marry her," Howard said as he hugged his new date.

Ms. Rangel's successful $300 bid on Bruns got her the other ticket to Las Vegas. "He was worth bidding on because he's a nice guy," she said.

"I feel happy," Bruns said. When they go to Las Vegas, "I'd like to make a lot of shows. Vegas is one of those places where you can see a lot of entertainment at one time — and we can't spend all our time gambling."

Linda Macias, executive director of Big Brothers/Big Sisters, said the fund-raiser was even more successful than planned. "We had originally projected between $5000 and $10,000," she said, "but I feel we're going to raise in the neighborhood of $12,000 to $15,000."

Macias' final count this morning proved even better than that — "The auction raised $19,180," she said.

Funds raised will be used to recruit more Big Brothers and Big Sisters, she said. "We have 109 kids on the waiting list now ... Some kids have been waiting over 2½ years. Eighty percent are little boys."

The agency also has a new program "called 'Couple Match' where married couple together can chose a little boy or little girl" and give children from single-parent families a chance to see the good side of marriage.

The event was such a success, she said, that the agency will "definitely" plan one for next year. "We felt it would be successful ... We didn't know how successful it would be."

'Fitness rating scale' developed

Copley News Service

Playing golf this weekend? Well, don't expect a cardiovascular or stress-free workout. It rates a minus-2 on the fitness rating scale.

That's because there's too much "tension to win," according to sports physician Ronald Lawrence, author of "Going the Distance."

He has developed a fitness rating scale so people can vary their exercise routines and reduce the emotional tensions of fitness.

For instance, rowing rates a 9 out of 10 because it provides an aerobic workout for the entire body and it's relaxing; but, baseball rates a minus-1 because of the "tension to win" and the lack of aerobic exercise.

Meanwhile, Lawrence says playing "unilateral sports" such as handball, racquetball and tennis don't rate so high because they stimulate one side of the body while neglecting the other side.

DEAR ABBY

Phobics, fans discuss snake problem

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I can sympathize with "Snake-a-phobic" because we have had a similar situation in our home with black snakes in the basement instead of the attic. We had found several skins and were told by our local exterminator they are a "protected species" in our state, but were advised to try the following method to get rid of them: Sprinkle moth crystals all around the perimeter of the area and stuff all the entry holes with mothballs. Believe it or not, this seems to be working!

Maybe it will work for her as well, and give her a stress-free summer. — JUNE MARTZ, DELAWARE

DEAR JUNE: Many other readers suggested the mothballs (or moth crystals), which is fine — providing children and/or pets aren't "done in" in the bargain.

My desk is crawling with snake mail. Many suggested that if snakes had been hanging around an attic for three years, it might be wise to find out what they're living on up there. Mice and rats, no doubt. And since most snakes are harmless, but rodents carry disease, it might be wiser to let the snakes remain.

DEAR ABBY: About snakes: They make wonderful pets. You don't have to bathe them, you don't have to walk them, and they don't need a license. — NORMAN

DEAR NORMAN: And you don't have to worry about anyone stealing them.

Reed, Dacus trip Dodgers in 6-4 win

From Staff Reports

SAN ANTONIO — Marty Reed and Barry Dacus combined to hold the San Antonio Dodgers to nine hits for a 6-4 Angels victory Sunday night, giving Midland a 2-0 edge in the five-game series.

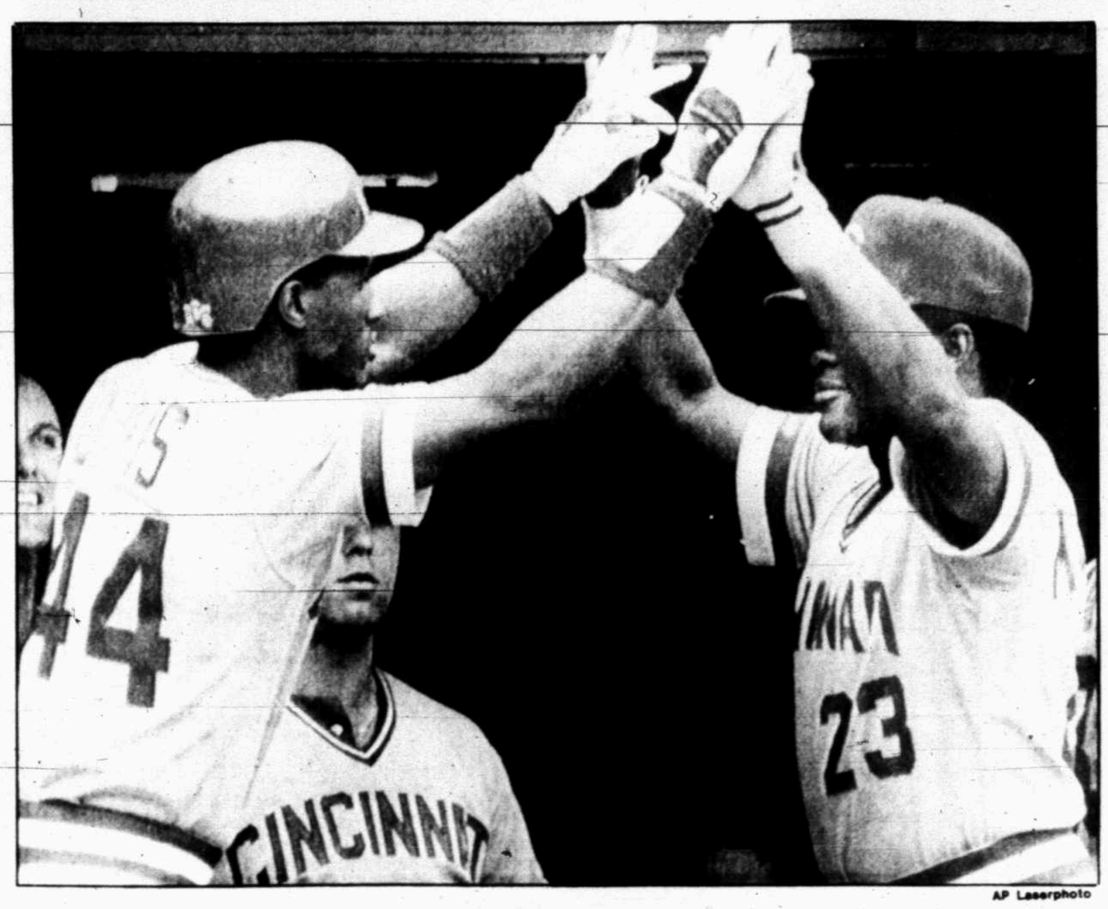

Reed, 3-0, went seven innings before giving way to Dacus in the eighth. Dacus finished up by allowing just one hit and walking none to earn his first save.

It was Midland's second win in a row and pulled the Angels within one game of first place El Paso.

The Angels rallied from a 3-0 deficit to score four runs in the top of the fifth. After a Ty VanBurkleo solo homered, Damon Farmar's single got past Dodger left fielder Domingo Michel, scoring two runners and bringing Farmar home as well. San Antonio tied in their half, but shortstop Ricky Adams banged an RBI single in the seventh to put Midland on top for good, 5-4.

First baseman Stan Holmes homered in the eighth, his ninth of the year, to add some cushion. VanBurkleo's homer in the fifth was his seventh of the season.

A healthy Alysheba ready for Preakness

By DICK JOYCE

AP Laserphoto

Chris McCarron coaxes Alysheba to the tape Saturday in the 113th Kentucky Derby.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Alysheba came out of the Kentucky Derby with only one scratch despite his rough-and-almost-tumble trip to victory in the 113th running of the classic race.

Alysheba, an 8-1 shot, was bumped just after the start and was bothered twice in the stretch run by Bet Twice, nearly going down on one occasion. But the colt, under Chris McCarron, recovered to score his first win of the year Saturday by 1¾ lengths over Bet Twice.

McCarron said he would have filed a foul claim had his horse not won. No winner has ever been disqualified for a Derby run. Dancer's Image was disqualified after winning in 1968 when a post-race examination revealed the colt had run with illegal medication in his system.

"If that horse (Bet Twice) hadn't come over, he would have won by four or five lengths," trainer Jack Van Berg said on Sunday as he basked in the glory of his first Derby win.

Alysheba, Van Berg said, "came out of the race fine and if everything is OK, he'll go to the Preakness (May 16) and then on to the Belmont (June 6)."

Bet Twice was leading in the upper stretch when he veered in front of Alysheba, who clipped the leader's heels.

Alysheba pitched forward but recovered with almost an eighth of a mile to go. He had to avoid Bet Twice again deeper in the stretch before McCarron moved his mount to the outside for the drive to the wire.

Alysheba, who paid $18.80, $8 and $6.20, earned $618,600 from the record purse of $793,600 for owners, Dorothy Scharbauer and her daughter, Pamela, of Midland.

THE RACE was a disappointment for Demons Begone, the 2-1 favorite who bled profusely from the nostrils and failed to finish, and another tarnish on the 1987 record of Capote, the 2-year-old champion who wound up 16th in the field of 17 3-year-olds.

In succeeding where his sire, 1978 Derby runner-up Alydar, had failed, Alysheba had to overcome a breathing problem that required surgery on March 24 and forced Van Berg to change the colt's route to the Derby.

Instead of running Alysheba in the Santa Anita Derby on April 4, Van Berg put his horse into the April 23 Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland. Alysheba was first across the finish line, but was disqualified for bumping in the stretch and placed third.

Van Berg, a Hall of Fame trainer like his late father, Marion, dismissed any outside beliefs that Alysheba was following the erratic footsteps of Van Berg's previous Derby runner, Gate Dancer. Gate Dancer was a multiple stakes winner who was disqualified from fourth to fifth in the 1984 Derby.

GATE DANCER needed a hood and other kinds of equipment to help keep him on a straight course.

All Alysheba needed was an operation to correct an ulcerated epiglottis. The swelling in the throat had impaired the colt's ability to breath.

Alysheba, a winner once in seven starts last uear, finished fourth and second in races before the Blue Grass. Figuring the problem might be physical, Van Berg had the colt examined.

"He need help getting air," the 50-year-old trainer said. "He'd make a big run but then hang. It had to be a mental thing with him before, not getting air."

Alysheba was timed in 2:03 2-5, the slowest time for the 1¼-mile Derby since Cannonade's 2:04 in 1974. The final quarter was timed in 26 3-5.

Come-from-behind horses had not been winning the earlier races on the Derby card, but Van Berg wasn't concerned.

"I know this track like the back of my hand," said Van Berg, whose farm is in neighboring Oldham County. "I told Chris not to worry about the pace. I told him they (the leaders) would come back to you. There was a warm wind and I knew it was drying out the track."

Davis awes Phillies; Astros stumble

Associated Press

Scouts always said Eric Davis could become the best player in baseball. A month into the 1987 season, he is.

"You can't anticipate anything like this," Davis said after his best game yet, hitting three home runs, including a grand slam, as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Philadelphia Phillies 9-6 Sunday.

Davis, 24, leads the major leagues with 12 home runs and a .411 average, and is tied with Baltimore's Cal Ripken for the major-league runs batted in lead with 27. He has also stolen 10 bases and keeps drawing raves for his defense in center field and his throwing arm.

"He can be as good as he wants to be," Reds Manager Pete Rose said, "and make as much money as he wants."

NL Roundup

Davis destroyed host Philadelphia during the weekend, going 9-for-13 with five homers — including a grand slam Friday night — 11 RBI and seven runs scored as Cincinnati won twice in the three-game series.

On Sunday, Davis went 4-for-5. He singled, stole second and scored in the second inning.

Davis hit a solo home run to right field in the third, a grand slam to left in the fourth and another solo homer to center in the sixth.

Said Phillies Manager John Felske: "That's about a good a series as you'll ever see a ballplayer have. We tried to get the ball in on him, but he's just hot, and we couldn't do anything with him."

Davis was not the only Cincinnati player hitting well Sunday. Winning pitcher Bill Gullickson, Kal Daniels and Davis each homered in the third inning off Kevin Gross, 0-4.

Braves 5, Astros 3

Ken Oberkfell and Ken Griffey drove in two runs apiece and Dale Murphy homered as Atlanta beat Houston and Mike Scott.

Griffey hit a two-run double in the first inning, Murphy hit his fourth homer in the third and Oberkfell added an RBI double in the fifth and a run-scoring single in the sixth, the 1,000th hit of his career.

Glenn Davis drove in all three runs for the visiting Astros. He hit a two-run homer, his fourth, and an RBI double.

Zane Smith, 3-1, went 7⅓ innings for the victory and Jeff Dedmon got his first save.

Expos 2, Mets 0

Tim Raines capped an amazing weekend in New York with another home run as Montreal beat the Mets.

Raines, who went 4-for-5 with a winning grand slam Saturday in his first game for the Expos since resigning as a free agent, hit a solo homer in the first inning. He was hitless in his other three at-bats.

Raines homered off Bob Ojeda, 2-3, who was making his first start since April 21 because of tenderness in his left elbow.

Three Montreal pitchers combined to shut out the Mets for the first time this season on nine hits. Starter Floyd Youmans left the game in the fifth inning with a strained lower back, and Bob McClure, 1-1, got the victory. Tim Burke wokred the final 2⅓ innings for his first save.

Midlanders hold off Lubbock's challenge

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Even though Midlanders Randy Geiselman and Steve Whiteside won their third Midland Country Club Invitational Partnership title Sunday, they weren't able to do it easily.

On the first hole of the final round, co-leaders Steve Earsley and Charley Snuggs took control of the race when they scored a birdie against a Geiselman-Whiteside bogie. However, the Lubbock duo couldn't hold their advantage.

Geiselman and Whiteside fought back to tie the match after six and took the lead for good on the seventh hole.

"We went one-up on seven and they bogied eight to put us two-up," said Whiteside. "We finally pulled out to four-up after 15."

After the two teams parred the 16th hole, Earsley and Snuggs put on a little pressure on the last two holes with birdies. But, with a four-stroke lead, Geiselman and Whiteside had only to par out for a 67 on the final round for a three-day score of 205. Earsley and Snuggs shot 69 for 207.

Marshall Morgan and Ronnie Jumper finished shot a 70 to finish in third at 210, three strokes better than two teams tied for fourth.

AFTER SHOOTING a first-round 66 for a three-stroke lead, Geiselman and Whiteside struggled the second day with an even-par 72 to allow Earsley and Snuggs to gain a tie.

"We three-putted everything," said Geiselman of the second day-disaster. "We didn't putt well and that's the simplest way to put it."

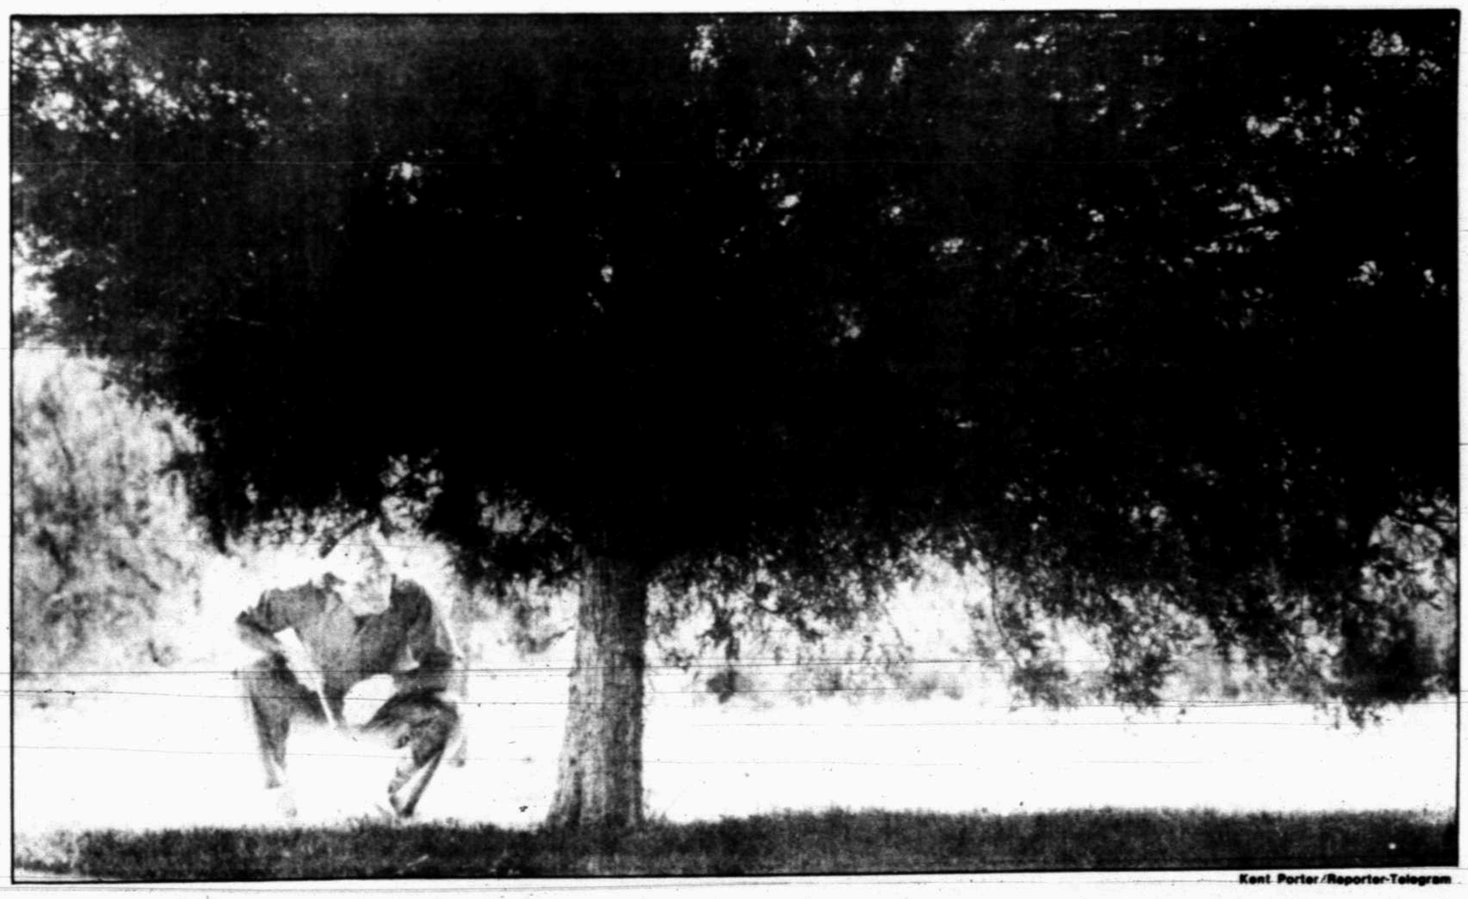

"Actually, we made five birdies and five bogies," added Whiteside. "We just weren't together and seemed to bogie the same holes. The funny thing is, on the first day and today, we bogied the first hole and played well after that."

This was the eighth time the two golfers have played together in the tournament and the third time they've won. The first title came in 1979 and the second in 1985. They will likely defend their title next year.

"The word camaraderie comes in to play here," said Geiselman. "People from all over the state come to play and that's the fun part about this tournament. You get a chance to see people for all over, Lubbock, East Texas, Hobbs, N.M., San Antonio..."

Lakers next for Warriors

NBA

Associated Press

The Golden State Warriors, the second NBA team to win a five-game playoff series after trailing 2-0, now face another tough assignment in the Los Angeles Lakers.

"We've had our backs against the wall, every game has been a pressure game, and we've answered the call," said Purvis Short, making the first NBA playoff appearance of his nine-year career. "The layoff will hurt the Lakers more than us. We're ready to play."

Golden State, making its first playoff appearance since 1977, defeated Utah 118-113 at Salt Lake City Sunday to advance to the second round against the Lakers, who swept Denver in three games and haven't played since Wednesday. The Lakers, 65-17 in the regular season, play host to the Warriors on Tuesday.

The only other time an NBA team has won a best-of-five series after trailing 2-0 was in 1956 when Fort Wayne defeated St. Louis. The best-of-five format was not used for 16 seasons between 1968 and 1983.

Joe Barry Carroll scored 24 points and Larry Smith tipped in a rebound with 17 seconds left for Golden State, which led 87-65 in the third quarter, but had to hold off a Utah rally.

"All year we've felt like we could play better and now we're playing like we're capable," Carroll said. "You can't imagine what it feels like until you get here."

Bucks 102, 76ers 89

Milwaukee eliminated Philadelphia for the second straight season and ended Julius Erving's basketball career.

Craig Hodges keyed a 17-2 run with two 3-point baskets and a 2-pointer as the Bucks turned a 69-67 lead late in the third quarter into an 86-69 rout with 8:53 left. Hodges scored all of his 14 points in the fourth period.

"When you hit the 3-pointers, it makes them think like, 'Uh-oh, we got to come down and do something,' " Hodges said. "We were able to move the ball. The fourth quarter was the type quarter you can only dream about."

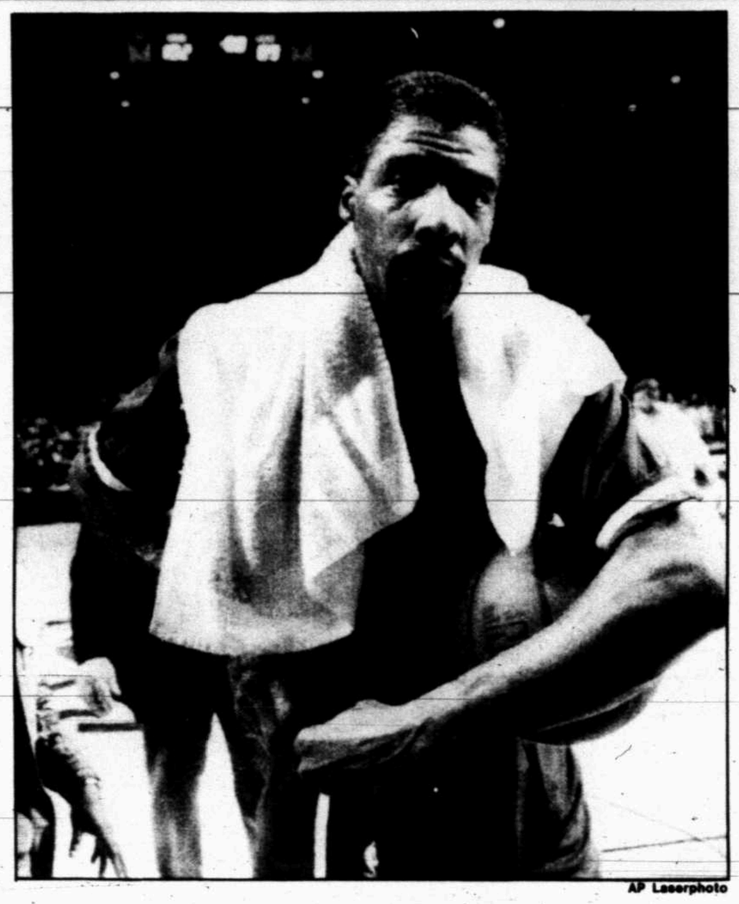

Much of the decisive spurt came with a lineup that included reserves Hodges, Paul Mokeski and Dudley Bradley. Assistant coach Del Harris was in charge of the team after Coach Don Nelson was ejected with two technicals in the second quarter.

Pistons 112, Hawks 111

Detroit won its second-round opener against Atlanta as the Hawks missed two shots in the final seconds after Isiah Thomas broke a 111-111 tie by hitting one of two free throws with 16 seconds left.

Thomas, who scored 30 points, gave the Pistons a 111-108 lead with a long jumper with 1:02 left, barely beating the 24-second clock. A short jumper by Antoine Carr got the Hawks within a point, and a turnover by Thomas led to a foul on Glenn Rivers, who hit one free throw to tie the score.

When Thomas was fouled on Detroit's next possession, he broke a string of 17 consecutive Pistons free throws without a miss, but made the second for the final point of the game. After a timeout, Dominique Wilkins missed a 15-footer and Randy Wittman missed a rebound attempt before time expired.

Philadelphia's Julius Erving, a.k.a., Dr. J, walks off the court for the last time as the 76ers fell to Milwaukee in the final game of their playoff series.

Dr. J bows out in style

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Julius Erving left professional basketball with the same grace he displayed in 16 years on the court.

"It's time to look at the big picture. Basketball is behind me," Dr. J said Sunday after the Philadelphia 76ers were eliminated from the NBA playoffs by a 102-89 loss to the Milwaukee Bucks.

"Even though it was a disappointing finish, we're still leaving with a oneness. It's not that men can't cry, but this was not a tear-jerker situation," he said.

In his final game after 16 pro seasons, Erving played 40 minutes and led the 76ers with 24 points. He left the game with 40 seconds remaining and a soldout Milwaukee Arena audience stood to cheer one of the game's greats.

Erving raised a ball over his head to acknowledge the cheers as he walked off the court for a final time.

Bucks Coach Don Nelson stuck his head into Erving's farewell meeting with news media long enough to shout: "You're the greatest, Doc."

"I'm just proud to be in the same generation with Doc. We go back to the ABA together," said Bucks assistant Del Harris, who guided the Bucks after Nelson was ejected from the game.

Milwaukee guard John Lucas went to the 76ers bench and embraced Erving in the closing seconds.

"Doc helped me a lot," Lucas said. "I just wanted to let him know that, whether he knows it or not, he's helped a lot of people. He's been an ambassador for his sport."

Erving was only the third player in NBA history to score more than 30,000 points. He was selected for All-Star games in all of his 11 seasons in the NBA and was an American Basketball Association All-Star five times.

His final game was destined to be a loss unless the 76ers could duplicate their world championship season of 1983.

"I feel relieved," Erving said. "It was a great career, a very productive career. People were wonderful to me. I have nothing to be sad about."

Wings advance on shutout

NHL

DETROIT (AP) — Jacques Demers called it a great day for Detroit hockey. What it really was, however, was another great day for Jacques Demers hockey.

When the Red Wings, behind the continued brilliance of goaltender Glen Hanlon, put away Toronto 3-0 Sunday night, it marked the second successive year Demers had defeated the Maple Leafs for the Norris Division title and a trip to the Stanley Cup semifinals.

"Two years in a row in the Final Four. That's great," Demers said. "You're going to get a lot of respect. It's great to be there."

Last year, Demers coached St. Louis as the Blues beat Toronto in seven games in the Norris Division finals. This season, Demers guided the Red Wings to second place in the Norris Division after they had the NHL's worst record in 1985-86.

Hanlon turned in his second shutout in three games as the Detroit Red Wings completed a three-game comeback to win the division final in seven games. Only three other teams in NHL history came back from a 3-1 deficit to win a playoff series.

Adam Oates, Steve Yzerman and Darren Veitch scored for the Red Wings, who open the best-of-seven Campbell Conference finals against the Oilers in Edmonton on Tuesday night. Detroit has lost 13 straight games to Edmonton, including all three of its regular-season games this season.

It was the goal by Yzerman, who was easily the best player in the series, that seemed to swing the game to Detroit's favor and stir the crowd of 19,729 in Joe Louis Arena.

Hanlon, who played the last five games after Toronto routed Greg Stefan in the first two, handled 30 shots. Toronto goalie Ken Wregget turned away 30 of 33 shots.

Azinger wins Las Vegas Invite with eagle putt

By BOB GREEN

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Hal Sutton watched from the fairway as Paul Azinger went airborne under his own power after a 30-foot eagle putt rattled against the back of the cup on the 18th hole.

"I guess it's like blackjack — you win some and you lose some," Sutton said after becoming a disappointed runner-up for the second time this season, each at the hands of Azinger.

Azinger, the skinny guy called "Zinger" by his fellow touring golf pros, could say very little. A half-hour after scoring his second victory of the season, this time in the rich Las Vegas Invitational, he was still so excited that he was literally gasping for breath.

"I never thought that putt would go in. I never made a putt like that to make the cut, let alone win a golf tournament," Azinger said.

He went to the 18th tee at the Las Vegas Country Club in a tie for the lead in the richest tournament on the PGA Tour. He needed only an 8-iron second shot to reach the green on the water-guarded, par-5 18th, and got the shot about 30 feet below the cup. A hump in the green separated the ball from the hole.

Cubs 4, Padres 2

Andre Dawson continued his hot hitting with a home run, double and single that led Chicago past visiting San Diego.

Dawson, signed as a free agent, is batting .312 with nine homers and 24 RBI. His RBI double in the fifth made it 3-0 and he hit a solo home run in the seventh.

The Padres lost their fifth straight game and fell to 6-20, the worst record in the majors.

Rick Sutcliffe, 4-2, retired the first 12 batters. He gave up seven hits in 8⅓ innings and Lee Smith finished for his eighth save. Andy Hawkins, 0-3, took the loss.

Blue Jays sweep Rangers

Associated Press

TORONTO — It hasn't been easy to lay claim to the label of "hottest team in the American League" this season.

The Milwaukee Brewers have garnered that distinction almost since Day One of the month-old campaign. A few other teams have enjoyed their streaks, but now it's the Toronto Blue Jays' turn to wear the monicker.

The Blue Jays are riding a six-game win streak, currently tops in the majors, and are coming off a three-game weekend sweep of the Texas Rangers, including a 3-1 victory Sunday.

The Rangers had won six straight before their trip to Exhibition Stadium. In the last five seasons and one visit in 1987, the Rangers are 8-25 in Toronto.

Jim Clancy pitched a two-hitter for 8⅓ innings on Sunday.

"The best-pitched game we've seen all year so far," Texas Manager Bobby Valentine said of Clancy's performance.

Valentine had to watch Clancy from the clubhouse TV after being thrown out of the game in the second inning by home plate umpire Rocky Roe. Valentine was also ejected Saturday, along with Texas starter Charlie Hough, for questioning ball-strike calls.

Texas starter Edwin Correa, 2-1, was tagged with the loss despite allowing only four hits over seven innings.

Tony Fernandez provided the offensive spark for Toronto, collecting two hits, scoring once and stealing a pair of bases. The loss was the ninth straight on the road for Texas, which has also lost seven straight to Toronto, dating back to last August.

Boston intentionally walked Wally Joyner to load the bases and Doug DeCinces responded with a grand slam to lead California.

"I take it as a personal challenge when they walk the guy in front of me to pitch to me," DeCinces said.

For the defending AL champion Red Sox, it was the eighth loss in their last 10 games.

California left-hander John Candelaria improved his record to 4-0 with the victory, while Boston's Al Nipper, 1-3, took the loss.

Royals 2, Indians 1

Danny Jackson pitched a four-hitter to outduel Ken Schrom and lead Kansas City over Cleveland. Jackson, 1-4, held the Indians hitless until Carmen Castillo doubled leading off the fifth. He struck out seven and walked four.

Each team got a run before it got a hit. The Royals scored with the help of a two-base error and a balk. The Indians' run was the result of a passed ball.

Athletics 2, Tigers 0

Eric Plunk held Detroit to six hits for 8⅓ innings and Mike Gallego got his second game-winning RBI in two days as Oakland stretched its winning streak to four games.

Gallego broke up the scoreless duel between Plunk, 1-1, and the Tigers' Eric King, 2-2, on an RBI grounder in the seventh inning. Jose Canseco hit his second homer of the season in the eighth off reliever Mark Thurmond.

White Sox 4, Orioles 3

Donnie Hill's eighth-inning RBI single scored the tie-breaking run lifted Chicago over Baltimore. It was the fourth straight loss for the Orioles, who have now lost 14 of their last 18 games.

Daryl Boston, Greg Walker and Ron Hassey hit solo home runs for Chicago, and Walker scored the winning run when he doubled to lead off the eighth against Mike Boddicker, 2-1, and eventually scored on Hill's single.

Mariners 7, Brewers 3

Mike Morgan, 2-3, won his second consecutive start since returning from the bullpen as Seattle downed Milwaukee. Morgan went the distance, allowing eight hits, striking out three and walking two.

The Mariners scored in the first against Teddy Higuera, 4-1, on RBI singles by John Christensen and Alvin Davis and added three runs in the third on RBI doubles by Davis and Rey Quinones, and a sacrifice fly by Dave Valle.

Twins 4, Yankees 3

Gary Gaetti, Dan Gladden, Tom Brunansky and Kirby Puckett hit solo home runs for Minnesota.

Puckett connected on the first pitch from Tim Stoddard and sent it over the left-field fence for his seventh homer of the season, snapping a 3-3 tie. The Twins had eight homers while winning two of three games against the Yankees.

George Frazier, 3-2, the third Minnesota pitcher, got the victory and Stoddard, 0-1, took the loss in relief.

New York's Rickey Henderson stole four bases, tying the Yankees' single-game record accomplished nine other times. He is perfect in 12 steal attempts this season and has at least one stolen base in five straight games.

Sports in Brief

PRO BASKETBALL

HOUSTON — Two Seattle SuperSonics players were arrested and jailed early Sunday after a scuffle involving an assistant manager at a night club, police said.

Guard Kevin Williams and Dale Ellis were at the Ocean Club shortly after midnight when Williams began arguing with an assistant manager and slugged him, a police spokesman said.

Two off-duty Houston police officers working as security guards at the club rushed over, saw Williams strike Shelton and then pulled the two men apart, according to Turner.

GOLF

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Cindy Hill, who took sole possession of the lead when Jan Stephenson withdrew because of injuries suffered in an automobile accident, shot a 6-under-par 66 Sunday to win the LPGA's $225,000 S&H Classic by three strokes over Jane Crafter.

Hill, winning for only the second time in nine years on the tour, finished with a 72-hole score of 17-under-par 271 that shattered a tournament record of 16-under 272 set by Alice Miller in 1985 and equaled by Pat Bradley last year.

TENNIS

LARGO, Fla. — Top-seeded Chris Evert battled past No. 4 Kate Gompert 6-3, 6-2 Sunday to win the $150,000 Eckerd Open women's tennis tournament.

For Evert, who registered an unprecedented 151st career singles victory, it was her second consecutive tournament championship. Last week, she defeated Martina Navratilova at the Virginia Slims of Houston.

HAMBURG, West Germany — Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, the world's No. 1 player, captured his first title of the year with a 6-1, 6-3, 6-3 victory over countryman Miloslav Mecir in the final of the German Open tennis tournament Sunday.

AUTO RACING

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Davey Allison raced away to a dominating victory Sunday in the Winston 500, earning his first NASCAR stock car triumph in an event halted more than 2½ hours after Bobby Allison, his father, walked away from a frightening crash.

The younger Allison, 26, took control after the restart of the 500-mile race on the 2.66-mile oval at Alabama International Motor Speedway. Allison is a NASCAR rookie, but a veteran of other types of racing.

His victory ended Dale Earnhardt's string of four straight victories and six wins in the first eight races this season. Midland's Bobby Hillin, Jr., was fifth.

A RIDING MOWER THAT COULD BE THE CAR-OF-THE-YEAR.

Both our riding mowers and our automobiles feature advanced Honda Overhead Valve engine technology. Both are extremely maneuverable and easy to drive. Both share an impressive reputation for reliability. (Honda has been Car-of-the-Year twice in the past 6 years.)

See your local dealer. He'll be happy to demonstrate how, for the price of a riding mower, you can own a Honda.

TUESDAY, MAY 5, 1987

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Your unpredictable love life will soon take a turn for the better. To make friends that will help you expand your horizons, you will have to make the first move. Your relationships become more rewarding if you really work at them. Dedication to a special project could make a dream come true by this time next year. Do not give up on a cherished plan. Maintain your sense of humor.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Musical film star Alice Faye, country singer Tammy Wynette, food author James Beard, comedienne Pat Carroll, Cincinnati Reds infielder Ron Oester, Tina Yothers of "Family Ties," socialist writer Karl Marx, actor Tyrone Power.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You can tear down the barriers that separate you from success if you really believe in what you are doing. Make that telephone call you have been postponing. Good news relieves tension.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An emotional block disappears when you are honest with yourself. Know your own heart. Showing good judgment will lead to more income and a better job. A special day for vacationers.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Keep your ideas to yourself until you can explore the costs involved. By analyzing past mistakes, you improve your chances for developing a solid new relationship. Speak from the heart. Love grows.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Think about what is best for you right now. If it would also benefit someone you love, make your move. It is better to break negative ties now than later. Act with confidence.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A great day to start a new job, buy a house or launch a product. Playing it safe in love does not always work. Besides, caution is not your style. Business partnerships are favored.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You should be feeling great now. Your productivity at work rises. An enterprising "outdoors" type could enter your life. Keep both eyes open. Surface appearances can be deceiving. Take things nice and slow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Show more patience at work as well as at home. A secret agreement made in the past could boomerang unless you put all of your cards on the table. A good day for salespeople.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Romance becomes complicated, even for you. Turn a deaf ear to those who want to help you spend your cash. Debt could cause the demise of a relationship. Stand up for your principles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Sharpen your ability to say "no." A long journey could be just the ticket for you and your career. Something you took for granted could now become a problem. Mend any broken fences.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Trust the one person who has always been loyal and looked out for your interests. A speech could bring you new admirers as well as funds for a special charity. Relax and laugh more.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keep a tight rein on spending this week. Being overly optimistic could be your undoing. When two friends try to pull you in different directions, let go of both of them. Do things for yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Develop more self-confidence and your other worries will disappear. Stay out of the spotlight until you have a plan that you know will work. Romance could lead you closer to the altar.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK1076 ♡95 ◇AKQ7 ♣K6
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?
A.—Those who just count points would jump shift in spades. Here, however, you don't know whether you want to play in spades, hearts, diamonds or no trump, so the correct way to show your strength is to respond one spade and then jump shift in diamonds at your next turn. That gives you the maximum chance of finding your best strain and level.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK1076 ♡95 ◇AKQ7 ♣K6
This time partner opens the bidding with one diamond. What do you respond?
A.—Here, you know where you can play the hand—in diamonds. Therefore, you should make a jump shift, secure in the knowledge that if partner doesn't have a fit in your suit, you can retreat to his suit and still have room for further investigation.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AKQJ83 ♡95 ◇AQ6 ♣72
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?
A.—Again, you know where to play the hand: in spades, since your suit is self-sufficient. This is the time to tell partner about your good hand and strong suit by jump shifting to two spades. To clarify your holding, you intend to rebid your spades at your next turn.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q6 ♡A83 ◇J10762 ♣AQ6
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner either has a very good suit of his own or a fit in your suit. Either way, your queen of spades is a golden asset, and we lean toward a raise to three spades. With your three key cards, you are interested in slam regardless of which hand partner holds.

Q.5—As South vulnerable, you hold:
♠83 ♡AQ3 ◇J10762 ♣AQ6
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—With no particular fit for partner's suit and double stoppers in the unbid suits, tell partner you have a balanced minimum with no liking for his suit. Bid two no trump.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q7 ♡AQ ◇J10762 ♣KJ63
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	2 ♠	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—With only one ace, we would tend to dampen partner's ardor a little. There is no point to showing your club suit, since you know partner can't have a two-suiter including clubs. The logical choice, therefore, is two no trump, which would protect your tenaces from a lead through should the hand eventually be played play in no trump.

Students protest against Wallace during his commencement address

Wallace

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A black student group branded TV journalist Mike Wallace a racist, and 15 to 20 students stood with their backs to him during a commencement address at the University of Michigan.

Wallace, a 1939 Michigan graduate, commented six years ago while filming an episode of the CBS program "60 Minutes" that a bank's contract would be difficult to read "if you're reading them over the watermelons or over tacos."

During the address Saturday to about 5,700 students, Wallace apologized for what he called "arguably racist" comments, and warned students about subtle prejudice.

"It's the mean stuff that worries me — the behind-the-hand stuff, the self-aggrandizing putdowns that begin to creep in and infect the dialogue," he said. "Little by little, the stereotypes harden. And they hurt."

Wallace, who has worked for CBS since 1951 and has won Emmy and Peabody awards, received an honorary doctor of laws degree.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The national debut of the Saturday night variety show that will replace Garrison Keillor's "A Prairie Home Companion" on American Public Radio has been delayed until January.

The new show, produced by Minnesota Public Radio, originally was scheduled to premiere in the fall, said MPR spokeswoman Chris Langer. "That hasn't worked out for a number of reasons, partly because we're wrapping up the old show, and the new production team needs time to develop."

Noah Adams, host of the new show, will begin developing the format this month, Ms. Langer said.

Keillor, 44, announced Feb. 14 that he was leaving his live radio program. His last show is scheduled for June 13, after which he plans to move to Denmark, the native country of his wife.

• • •

Bush

ANDOVER, Mass. (AP) — Vice President George Bush says he knew exactly what was important during his prep school days at elite Phillips Academy.

"On Pearl Harbor Day, 1941, I remember walking across campus with my roommate," Bush said during a visit to his alma mater over the weekend.

"We were kind of slouching across campus. We kept it on our minds as Germans were invading Europe. We knew exactly what we had to do. We had to beat (archrival) Exeter."

Bush, who graduated from Phillips in 1942, served as senior class president and was on the Student Council.

Headmaster Donald McNemar described him as the "classic overachieving kid" who played soccer, managed and played on the basketball team and helped organize the senior prom.

• • •

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Talk-show host Oprah Winfrey did more than give the commencement address on her return to her alma mater, Tennessee State University. She picked up her diploma.

Ms. Winfrey left the university 12 years ago with one senior-year project unfinished and only recently completed the course work.

In her commencement address Saturday, Ms. Winfrey, 33, told 625 seniors that she sidestepped politics while in school.

She said she was uncomfortable during her college years with protests and civil rights activities and concentrated instead on schoolwork and an anchoring job at a local TV station.

"I am grateful to those who marched, picketed and went to jail because they are all bridges that you and I have crossed over on to get to this side," she said. "But I also saw my goal as that of preparing myself to take advantage of the opportunities that the student protests were opening up."

• • •

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Wiley has won this year's PEN-Faulkner Award for Fiction for his first novel, "Soldiers In Hiding," about two Japanese-Americans stranded in Japan after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Wiley will receive $5,000 at a ceremony at the Folger Shakespeare Library on Saturday, officials said Sunday. The award pays tribute to author William Faulkner, who used his Nobel Prize money to support other writers.

Judges said the novel is "a work of the imagination that is as down to earth as it is brilliant."

The runners-up — Richard Ford, Maureen Howard, Charles Johnson and Janet Kauffman — will receive $1,000 apiece.

• • •

McCollough

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Colleen McCullough's 1977 novel "The Thorn Birds" was a bestseller and a TV miniseries, but the Australian author says she still needs publicity.

Ms. McCullough said her readers "are the people who don't read book reviews, they don't read the bestseller list in the paper, and they don't frequent bookshops."

"But if they know there's a new McCullough around, they are more likely to enter a bookshop," the 49-year-old author said in a recent interview to promote her short novel "The Ladies of Missalonghi."

LEEDS, England (AP) — Former opera impresario Sir Rudolf Bing, whose $900,000 in assets have been frozen in the United States, has moved with his wife to a luxury motel after being offered three months' free lodging and meals.

The 85-year-old former general manager of the New York Metropolitan Opera and his wife moved to the Cottage Motel in nearby Mirfield on Friday night from a boarding house in a run-down section of Leeds.

On April 27, when the couple's presence in Leeds became known, authorities said the Bings had left a hotel in nearby Otley without paying a $580 bill, and city Councilman Bernard Atha said they might be moved into public housing.

Peter Bunch, owner of the Cottage Motel and an opera lover, said Sunday he was delighted the Bings accepted his offer. "I am pleased to be of help," he said.

Lady Bing, 47, said they intended to stay at the motel until they organized their financial affairs.

"Everyone has been so kind and respectful to my husband here after he was on the verge of being completely humiliated in New York," she said.

The couple, who were married in Arlington, Va., on Jan. 9, came to Britain about 2½ weeks ago after a long honeymoon in the Caribbean. Bing was born in Vienna, came to Britain in the 1930s.

Dollar slips

LONDON (AP) — The dollar fell against most major currencies in quiet early trading in Europe today while two major markets, London and Tokyo, were closed for national holidays. Gold prices rose in Zurich.

Most markets were closed Friday on the continent of Europe for May Day holidays, but were open then in Britain and Japan.

The dollar was quoted in Europe today at 139.45 yen, down from 140.30 yen at the close in Tokyo on Friday.

Dollar rates at mid-morning in Europe, compared with late rates in London on Friday:

—1.7769 West German marks, down from 1.7815

—1.4555 Swiss francs, down from 1.4600

—5.9415 French francs, down from 5.9500

—2.0061 Dutch guilders, down from 2.0110

—1,271.75 Italian lire, down from 1,279.50

—1.3385 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3375.

The dollar lost more than a cent against the British pound as it was quoted in Europe at $1.6765, more expensive than $1.6680 on Friday.

GOLD

In Zurich, gold was quoted at bid price of $458.15 a troy ounce at noon today, compared with $454 late Thursday. On Friday, when the Zurich market was closed, gold was quoted in late London trading at $454.25 bid.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold closed at $456.43 bid, down one cent from Saturday.

The holiday closure of bullion markets in Britain meant there was no London quote for silver bullion, but in Zurich it was quoted at $8.22 a troy ounce. On Friday silver traded at $8.07 bid in London.

Survey: Real estate loans biggest bank problem

DALLAS (AP) — Problem loans jumped 46 percent to $6.5 billion in 1986, forcing Texas' 1,968 banks to pile up a combined loss of $883.2 million for the year, a recent analysis shows.

"The way we look at the data, it is more of a real estate problem than an energy problem," said Alex Sheshunoff, principal of Sheshunoff Rating Services Inc. in Austin.

Sheshunoff's figures show that loan problems spread from the largest holding-company banks to smaller independent firms. Those banks began feeling the ripple effects of the free fall in energy prices and resulting problems in Texas real estate.

"This will not be quickly resolved with the change in the price of oil," Sheshunoff said. "All those buildings will not be filled with geologists."

A larger percentage of non-performing loans are in real estate rather than energy, he said.

"And more banks have real estate loans than have rig loans," Sheshunoff said.

Texas had the sixth-largest amount of non-performing loans of any state when measured as a percent of gross loans. But Texas had the second fastest-growing level of troubled loans, even faster than Louisiana and Oklahoma, which also have been buffeted by energy and agriculture problems.

He said there were some positive signs that bank analysts see for Texas banks.

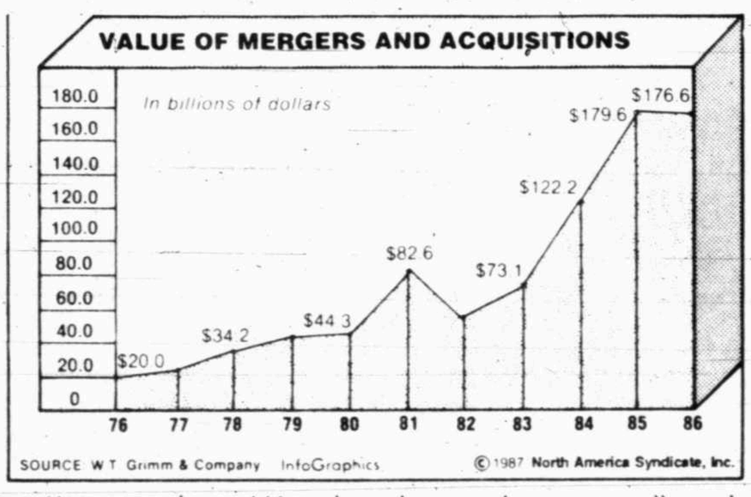

Oil prices have firmed at about $18 per barrel. Also, the state's population growth is above the national average, the unemployment rate has declined and new industry continues to come into the state, including J.C. Penney's announced move of its headquarters from New York City.

Upbeat economic signs normally translate into new loan demand, but the recovery for Texas banks will lag behind an upswing in the economy as banks wait for loan demand to improve and continue to grapple with troubled assets, the analysts believe.

"Fundamentally, there are some good things happening," Sheshunoff said. "But I do not feel there will be a quick bounce back. It will be longer-term before people start investing in real estate again and the local level activity picks back up."

States expand role in takeovers

By STEPHEN LABATON
New York Times News Service

Mergers and acquisitions have become the one true "growth industry" of the 1980s, more thasn quadrupling in total value since the beginning of the decade.

NEW YORK (NYT) — The ink had hardly dried on the Supreme Court's decision last month to uphold an Indiana law regulating mergers before state lawmakers throughout the country began grappling with ways to tighten their controls on takeovers.

Just last week, the North Carolina legislature passed an anti-takeover law modeled on the Indiana statute. It is expected to help Burlington Industries ward off a bid from Asher B. Edelman, the New York investor, and Dominion Textile Inc. of Canada. Burlington has 40 plants and 20,000 employees in the state.

The legislature in Delaware, perhaps the most important state voice in corporate law because so many big companies are incorporated there, is also considering anti-takeover proposals. It could adopt a new law before the end of the summer. And more than a dozen other states are studying new restrictions or proposals to strengthen existing ones.

While the takeover game is clearly in for a slew of new rules, lawyers and investment bankers who have played the game for years say they are not overly concerned. Takeovers may become far more complex undertakings as tougher laws proliferate. But, as takeover specialists note with some pride, they are a hardy and innovative breed — and they are sure to find new openings.

"In some ways we're looking forward to the new rules," said a prominent New York investment banker who asked not to be identified. "Our history is whenever things get complicated, that's when we become really useful."

Indeed, some experts are saying that instead of inhibiting takeovers, the new laws may actually provide corporate raiders with new opportunities.

"It's quite conceivable that you will have more corporations in play now," said Melvin A. Eisenberg, a professor of corporate law at the University of California at Berkeley.

The Indiana law, for example, makes a shareholder vote automatic once a bidder buys a certain amount of stock. That feature alone could encourage takeover attempts, even though the bidder himself may not be allowed to vote and the statute extends management's time to react, Eisenberg and others said.

Nonetheless, the Supreme Court ruling — which came five years after another court decision restricted state takeover laws — marks a new chapter in government control of corporations, experts agree.

Purchasers: Economy still expanding

NEW YORK (NYT) — The economy continued to expand in April, with industrial companies reporting advances in employment and production, the National Association of Purchasing Managers said in its monthly report to be released today.

The trade group's latest survey of purchasing managers at 250 industrial companies showed growth in all economic indicators, except for inventories, which declined slightly for the second month in a row.

New orders increased, but at a slower rate than in March, the report said, while vendor deliveries improved and prices rose for the eighth consecutive month.

"The economy entered the second quarter with a modest improvement over the healthy growth registered in the first quarter," said Robert J. Bretz, chairman of the association's business survey committee and director of materials management at Pitney Bowes Inc.

The association compiles the results of its monthly survey into a seasonally adjusted index. The index rose slightly, to 54.2 percent, from 53.9 percent in March. A reading above 50 percent indicates that the economy is expanding; below 50 percent signals a decline.

"Past experience indicates that, if this average were to continue for the remainder of 1987, it would be consistent with real gross national product growth of about 3 percent," Bretz said.

Forty percent of the purchasing managers reported an increase in new orders, while only 12 percent indicated declines. In March, 41 percent of the managers reported more new orders, while 9 percent said they experienced declines. Bretz said that the slower rate of increase in new orders still suggested continuing growth in the second quarter.

Production, the survey said, continued to grow in April, with 92 percent reporting output at an increased or steady level, while only 8 percent reported a decline in manufacturing.

Of the purchasing managers surveyed, 39 percent reported paying higher rather than lower prices in April, up from 32 percent in March.

Employment increased significantly in April, with 22 percent of the purchasing managers reporting higher employment, compared with 16 percent in March. Twelve percent said employment declined in April, compared with 14 percent in March.

AirCal merger moves ahead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — All but about 200 of AirCal's 3,700 employees are expected to accept jobs with American Airlines when American takes the West Coast carrier under its wing, American's top executive says.

Details of the merger were outlined during a news conference by American Chairman and President Robert L. Crandall, who said most AirCal workers will be wearing American uniforms by July 1.

Crandall said the proposed merger has not sparked labor protests, unlike union opposition that threatened the mergers of Delta Air Lines and Western Airlines, and of USAir Group and Pacific Southwest Airlines.

Customers will not see any significant changes in flight scheduling or service, Crandall said, but they will notice that "AirCal employees will don American Airlines uniforms, American signs will go up and the two airlines will begin using common ticket counters, gates and other airport facilities."

The merger will more than triple the number of daily flights that American offers in California, from 109 to 361, and will make the carrier one of the leaders in the lucrative and highly competitive Los Angeles-to-San Francisco corridor.

American received final approval in March for its $225 million acquisition of AirCal.

American, which employs 54,000 people nationwide, probably will absorb about 3,500 AirCal workers, although some may have to relocate, Crandall said.

S&L irregularities may have hidden bad loans

HOUSTON (AP) — Non-performing loans and foreclosed assets reportedly may have been traded among Texas savings and loan associations in an attempt to hide financial weaknesses from regulators.

Among the Texas thrifts believed to have been involved in the practice was the former Mainland Savings of Houston, which had $800 million in assets when it was closed in March 1986, the Houston Post reported Sunday.

Four other savings and loans were also named by industry sources as possibly having been involved in the purchase and sale of bad loans and assets, the newspaper said.

The U.S. Attorney's Office in Houston confirmed it was waiting for the results of an FBI review of the matter before considering any action.

While selling loans and other assets among savings and loans is not illegal, the trouble starts when loans or foreclosed assets are represented as being worth more than they actually are, officials said.

Tighter rules for appraising assets securing many thrift real estate loans have all but dried up the practice.

The practice of passing along non-performing loans or foreclosed assets from one thrift to another is known as a "daisy chain," the newspaper reported.

"The typical thrift is not a daisy chain operation," said Frank Anderson, banking consultant with Ferguson and Co. "I believe the really bad stuff involved no more than a dozen S&Ls."

Texas has 281 savings and loan associations.

Mainland appeared to have been active in moving non-performing loans around to escape detection by regulators, said W.W. McAllister III, chairman of San Antonio Savings Association.

The company was hired by regulators to manage Mainland's successor, AllenPark Federal Savings & Loan.

"There was a daisy chain. The feeling was that Mainland was one of them," McAllister said. "They traded bad assets from one to another."

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Post: Texas Air schedules Houston departure

HOUSTON (AP) — Four top officials of Texas Air Corp. are relocating from Houston to New York and have bought homes in the area, industry sources told the Houston Post.

Texas Air has denied it is moving its top level office to New York, but said officials who regularly carry on company business with New York's financial community will be moving there, said Rick Scott, spokesman for Texas Air in Houston.

"It makes sense to be there for what they do," Scott said.

Scott confirmed only that Robert D. Snedeker, senior vice president and treasurer, was among those moving to New York.

Chairman Frank Lorenzo placed a bid on a home in the New York area and has enrolled his children in Connecticut schools for the upcoming year, the Post said.

Texas Air maintains offices in New York and Washington for use by company officials when they are in town, company officials said.

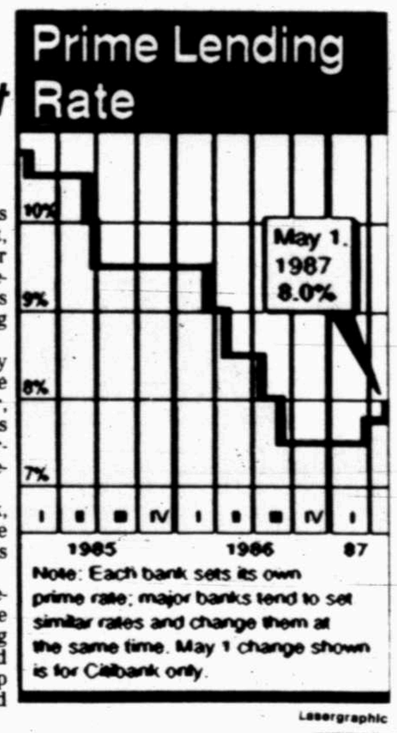

Falling dollar balloons Japanese trade deficit

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's trade surplus leaped 65 percent in dollar terms to a record $101.4 billion in the year ended March 31, but the volume of the surplus is actually beginning to shrink, the Finance Ministry reported.

The announcement came Friday to try to ease protectionist sentiment growing in Congress against Japan and other countries with trading surpluses with the United States.

Japanese exports are shrinking in terms of the home currency, although they are growing rapidly in dollar terms because of the dollar's plunging value against the Japanese yen, Finance Ministry officials said.

Banks boost prime ¼ point to 8 percent

NEW YORK (AP) — Major banks raised their prime rate to 8 percent, pushing it a quarter-point higher for the second time in a month in response to surging open market rates and the Federal Reserve's tightening of credit.

The increases announced Friday raised the benchmark lending rate to a level not seen since last summer, and economists say further increases could be in the offing, even if market rates stabilize slightly above present levels.

Citibank, the nation's largest bank, was the first to announce the rate increase, and other major banks quickly followed.

The White House gave varying reactions to the increase in the prime rate, with President Reagan saying he wished it hadn't happened and his chief spokesman calling it a step toward economic harmony and stability.

Here's today's best solution for leaky, corroded casing in injection wells.

An estimated 4 out of 5 injection and disposal wells in the Permian Basin will fail the present EPA-mandated casing integrity test. Current Texas Railroad Commission practice for this test requires that the annulus hold 500 psi pressure for 30 minutes without leakoff.

Until now the usual approach to restoring casing integrity has been squeeze cementing. Until, that is, the development of Halliburton Services' exclusive nontoxic chemical gel sealant called Angard. Angard is singularly cost-effective and more suitable than squeeze cementing for helping restore casing integrity in these wells.

Why is Angard better? Consider these benefits:

An Angard application means no unit over the hole, no drilling out; quicker return to injection.

Angard sealant penetrates pinpoint leaks, hairline fractures, loose pipe threads and formation faces usually not penetrated by cement slurry.

Angard is pumped as a low viscosity liquid; the setting time into the rigid gel phase can be adjusted to the well's specific conditions.

Angard leaves your options open; it is easily removed if desired; tubing and other downhole hardware can be readily pulled through set Angard.

Outstanding corrosion protection index: Angard sealant has already been used for five years against such notorious downhole environments as the Santa Rosa and Rustler formations in the Permian Basin, the Coleman Junction in Central Texas and the Arbuckle in Kansas and Oklahoma.

Angard sealant is another Halliburton Services research product designed to help the oil industry overcome today's difficult operating conditions. Take advantage of economical Angard sealant--call your Halliburton Services representative today.

Susan visits Saddle Club.

I was delighted with my visit to Saddle Club! In addition to the individualized attention I was given by the professional leasing agent, I found the quality of Saddle Club's apartments far superior than I had imagined - and well within my budget.

I was pleasantly suprised to find that washers and dryers are available if needed and that I would have access to 2 swimming pools, 2 raquetball courts, 2 tennis courts, a universal weight room, sauna, jacuzzi, and professional aerobic classes.
