Israel wants U.S. to talk

By The Associated Press

With tanks and house-to-house searches, Israel smashed the last major leftist militia stronghold in west Beirut Friday and tried to ease a confrontation with the United States by calling for talks with Lebanon's army on taking over the Moslem half of the city.

The U.S. Embassy in Tel Aviv called Israel's plan "a positive step."

France denounced Israel's foray and called for an immediate pullout. Another conflict swirled at the Soviet Embassy in west Beirut, with Russian diplomats claiming the Israelis had occupied parts of the mission for nearly two days. Israel denied it was occupying the embassy.

In another development, the Reagan administration filed a vigorous protest over an Israeli officer firing a shot Thursday at an unarmed Marine guard atop the U.S. Embassy in west Beirut. It said the shot missed the Marine and Israel apologized, claiming the officer mistook the Marine for a leftist militiaman.

The U.S. government demanded Thursday that Israel withdraw immediately from west Beirut. It said the incursion, which followed the assassination Tuesday of President-elect Bashir Gemayel, violated assurances not to enter the Moslem sector following the departure of most PLO guerrillas last month under the protection of U.S., French and Italian peacekeeping forces.

The Israelis said Thursday night they would not pull out until Lebanon's army was ready to mop up remaining guerrillas and leftists. On Friday they said negotiations should begin "as soon as possible" on evacuation of Israeli positions and "when the Lebanese army will be ready to assume control over them."

The Foreign Ministry in Jerusalem said U.S. presidential envoy Morris Draper was informed of the proposal.

Reagan, Fenwick join to an extent

WHITEHOUSE, N.J. (AP) — President Reagan and Rep. Millicent Fenwick, two Republican politicans with their own distinct popular appeals, linked up Friday for what party strategists viewed as a "mutually advantageous" afternoon of campaigning in New Jersey.

Mrs. Fenwick, who defeated a longtime Reagan supporter to capture the GOP senatorial nomination last June, has been trying to put some distance between herself and Reagan's economic policies lately, although she supported him on four key economic votes in the House.

"She's more than an odds-on favorite to win," insisted a Republican strategist who has seen several polls on the race. "She's just a larger-than-life figure up there."

The strategist, who asked that his name not be used, acknowledged it couldn't do any harm for Reagan to be seen with such a popular politician in her home state. "I think it's mutually advantageous," he said.

White House political strategists have said that, in general, Reagan will concentrate his activities in senatorial races where he can be most effective — those where the Republican has a good chance of winning but is not necessarily considered a shoo-in. Aides have said he may spend two or three days a week on the campaign trail in some weeks between now and November.

Mrs. Fenwick's Democratic opponent, fellow millionaire Frank Lautenberg, has been trying to tie her to the president and his economic program in a state where unemployment is 8.4 percent.

During the five-hour visit, Reagan attended a fund-raiser for Mrs. Fenwick, a naturalization ceremony for 75 new citizens, a local Italian festival and a closed meeting with state Republican chairmen from 11 Northeastern states.

Postmaster's tenure has been first-class

By VINCE GIORGI
Staff Writer

If achievement and longevity are any measures, David E. Holster's 41-year career with the Midland Postal Service could appropriately be stamped "first class."

Twenty-year-old Holster began service as a temporary substitute clerk in the Midland Post Office Oct. 31, 1941. Friday, with feet propped on an open desk drawer and "Old Glory" peeking over his shoulder, Postmaster Holster, 61, announced his retirement effective Dec. 31.

Holster said he had been planning to retire at age 62, which he will reach next March. But since the year's end seemed an appropriate time, he will bid the Midland postal employees adieu after the Christmas rush.

"The economy wasn't that great" in 1941, explained Holster, who took a Post Office employment exam "because I thought the Postal Service was paying a pretty good wage at that time."

By working "a lot of hours" at 65 cents an hour, his first two-week paycheck topped $120, "so I thought I was doing quite well."

Holster said he has "seen a lot of changes" through the years, perhaps the most striking of which is the physical growth of Midland's mail service.

IN 1941, WHEN a postage stamp cost three cents, Midland's 19 postal workers serviced three city routes and one rural route from a single post office.

Today, Midland supports 349 postal employees who handle 67 city, eight rural and two highway routes from the main office, three classified stations and two contract stations.

While Midland's mail service generated about $88,000 in postal receipts during 1941, this year's receipts could top $9 million.

As Midland's postal system grew, so did Holster's responsiblities. He became assistant postmaster May 30, 1959, before assuming duty as acting postmaster July 31, 1961. On July 26, 1963, at age 42, Holster became one of perhaps a handful of postmasters appointed to their positions by President John F. Kennedy.

WITH HOLSTER as postmaster, Midland's postal service continued to grow. In 1972, Midland became a management sectional center, leaving Holster to supervise 63 area post offices.

In February 1978, 104 post offices were lumped into the sectional center and Holster added the responsiblities of sectional center manager to his postmaster duties. Until 1982, Holster supervised about 1,766 postal employees who in turn serviced about 684,762 people in the 54,000 square mile management sectional center.

On Feb. 20, 1982, the El Paso and Waco sectional centers assumed some of the work performed by the Midland center. Still, Midland remains a 24-hour area mail processing center for a large portion of West Texas.

Holster said that except for a few occasions — a flood in 1968 and a couple of heavy snows — Midland postal workers have faithfully completed their rounds.

In the face of nature's worst, Holster said he encouraged the employees to "make a concerted effort to get the mail delivered. If it's impossible, then

Chagra plea bargain agreement details secret

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Attorney Joseph Chagra pleaded guilty Friday to helping plot the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., but details of the plea bargain were kept secret to protect Chagra.

Chagra, 35, of El Paso was the only one of five people indicted for the murder of the judge, plotting the assassination or obstruction of justice to enter into a plea bargain.

The other defendants, imprisoned drug trafficker Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra, his wife Elizabeth, convicted hired killer Charles V. Harrelson and his wife, Jo Ann, are scheduled for trial Sept. 28.

U.S. District Judge William Sessions immediately sealed details of the four-page plea bargain at the joint request of prosecutor Ray Jahn and defense attorney Billy Ravkind.

Jahn told Sessions that Joseph Chagra has "agreed to perform certain services" for the government, and could be in danger if the details of the pact were made public.

The San Antonio Light and the San Antonio Express, quoting unidentified sources, reported last week that Chagra had agreed to plead guilty to murder conspiracy and testify against Harrelson, who is accused of shooting Wood on May 29, 1979.

The newspapers quoted unidentified sources saying the government agreed to drop four other charges against Joseph Chagra.

Schmidt says elections 'best way out' of crisis

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, bowing to a year of unrelenting pressure, called for new elections Friday after Cabinet resignations shattered the 13-year-old governing coalition.

But it appeared the conservative opposition would move quickly to attempt to oust the 63-year-old socialist chancellor and deny his request to lead a minority government until elections this fall.

Schmidt issued the call for new elections in a speech to the Bundestag, or Parliament, at midday, just after word leaked out that four Cabinet ministers from the Free Democratic Party were quitting. The resignations capped a long-running dispute over welfare spending, which Schmidt's trade union-based Social Democratic party refused to cut.

"I regret this exceptionally," Schmidt said. "For I am still of the opinion that even today a solid basis exists of substantial political common ground between Social Democrats and liberals (the Free Democrats)."

However, Schmidt said he believed new elections were "the best way to lead out of the inner political crisis" that has been choking his government for months.

He said he and the 11 other Social Democrats in the Cabinet intended to continue governing, with four of the ministers taking on the portfolios of the resigned Free Democrats.

Warmth, sunshine ahead for area

The National Weather Service has served up a warm, sunny forecast that may be perfect for those Midlanders hungry for a weekend full of pleasant weather.

Today and Sunday should be sunny with the high both days in the upper 80s. The winds today should be at 5 to 15 mph. Tonight's low in the mid-60s should provide perfect sleeping temperatures.

Friday's high of 93 fell five degrees short of the record 98 set in 1977. No precipitation for the last 24 hours leaves monthly and yearly rainfall totals at a trace and 10.19 inches.

Sunset tonight comes at 7:51; sunrise Sunday will be at 7:35.

Israeli official's car bombed; Over 40 injured in explosion

PARIS (AP) — A bomb ripped through an Israeli diplomat's car in the center of Paris on Friday, seriously wounding four people and slightly injuring about 40 — most of them high school students in a classroom near the explosion site, French officials said.

The bombing occurred on the eve of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year.

French television said an anonymous caller told a news agency the "Lebanese Revolutionary Armed Faction" was responsibile for the blast. That group has claimed it carried out other terrorist actions in Paris during the past year.

Israeli Ambassador Meir Rosenne blamed the Palestine Liberation Organization and told a radio interviewer the attack was "new proof of what can happen when the presence of terrorists is tolerated."

It was the 10th attack on Jewish or Israeli targets in the French capital since the beginning of the year, and the 20th in a series of terrorist actions since July 20th. Ten people have been killed in this year's violence.

The Israeli Embassy identified the wounded diplomat as 61-year-old Amos Man-El, a member of the embassy's purchasing mission.

A police spokesman said two other people in the car, Zoltan Mandel-Schmidt and his wife, Veronica Rolh Mandel-Schmidt, were seriously injured along with a 17-year-old boy who was passing by. He said he believed the Mandel-Schmidts and Man-El were related.

Hostage holder taken to police station

FORT WORTH (AP) — A mental patient, self-acknowledged arsonist and burglar asked police to take him to jail "like a man" Friday after officers safely rescued the last of four hostages the man had taken at John Peter Smith Hospital, police said.

Fort Worth police officers stormed an 11th-floor room at the hospital shortly after noon Friday, overpowered the man and freed his remaining hostage, ending an ordeal that began about 8 p.m. Thursday, authorities said.

Police spokesman B.J. Kirkpatrick said officers fired shots when they stormed the room, but no one was hurt.

Kirkpatrick identified the patient as Jimmy Franklin Brown, 24.

He said Brown held a .38-caliber pistol when he was apprehended.

Brown is a voluntary outpatient at the hospital who was known by his hostages and regularly allowed admittance to the secured 11th-floor psychiatric ward, said Police Lt. C.C. Holland.

BROWN WAS in custody Friday in the Fort Worth jail, according to Holland, who said Brown told authorities he didn't want to go to mental hospital, but wished to be taken to jail "like a man."

In rambling conversations with police negotiators earlier Friday, Kirkpatrick said Brown demanded his last hostage, a nurse, be traded for a former girlfriend and argued about deliveries of ice.

Police said the only known motive for Brown's action was that he wanted to see the former girlfriend, who told police she had not seen Brown for five years and had been married for four years. Brown contended he and his girlfriend had broken up only last week, according to police.

Tactical officers noticed several times during the morning Friday that Brown would send his last hostage to a nearby ice machine, said Kirkpatrick. He said the tactical officers decided they could rush the room while the woman was at the machine.

"We felt this was the opportunity we had been looking for," said Holland.

"She moved away (to an ice machine) and they just banged in and got him," said Kirkpatrick.

He said when officers stormed the room they fired their weapons to make the man get down.

FOUR PEOPLE, all hospital employees, were taken hostage in the hospital's psychiatric ward Thursday night, but two managed to escape and one was released in exchange for food and cigarettes.

Hostages Celia Garza, a nursing assistant, and Scott Jackson, a nurse's aide, escaped about midnight when Brown allowed them to go to the restroom, according to Holland. About 1 a.m., Brown swapped a third hostage, licensed vocational nurse Dorothy Anderson, for some hamburgers and cigarettes, Holland said.

The identity of the last hostage was not released.

Sgt. Greg Givens said Brown had been "handled by the police quite a few times for taking hostages."

Tactical officers and psychiatrists negotiated by telephone with Brown during the ordeal and met his demands, including allowing him to speak with members of his family, according to Holland.

Hospital administrators and police tactical units attempted to evacuate other people on the ward, but some still were stranded by the Friday standoff.

DR. AHMED Dascher, former head of psychiatry at John Peter Smith, said the 11th floor — the hospital's top floor — is a locked, secured floor for people who are considered dangerous.

Police said Brown threatened to kill a police officer with a butcher knife just over a month ago, but officers took the knife away.

In January 1978, according to police, Brown walked into the Fort Worth police station and told officers he had pulled a series of burglaries and robberies and wanted to turn himself in. The next day he admitted setting a series of fires, including one in his parents' garage, according to police.

"I burglarize houses, businesses and steal for a living," Brown said in a notorized statement given to Fort Worth Fire Department arson investigators.

"When I was about 17 years old I began setting fires to buildings and houses that I had broken into to steal," he told investigators.

Brown also admitted to an arson investigator that he once chained his pet dog inside a building then set the building on fire.

"I ENJOY it because it gives me a thrill to see it burn," Brown told investigators.

"I want to be a success at doing stuff but at something good — like being a hardened criminal," he told arson investigators.

"I've beat girls up before because I like to do that," he said.

Dorothy Anderson is escorted into a waiting police car after her hostage ordeal inside Fort Worth's John Peter Smith Hospital ended about 1 a.m. Friday. The patient who held four people hostage on the hospital's top-floor pyschiatric ward was taken to police headquarters after the last hostage, whose name was not released, was rescued. The man admitted past crimes to police after his capture.

Crowned heads converge on Monaco

MONTE CARLO (AP) — European royalty and kings and queens of Hollywood gathered Friday for the funeral of the woman whose life bridged both worlds, Princess Grace of Monaco.

The crowned heads, long-dethroned blooded aristocracy, film celebrities and millionaire power-brokers jetting in will assemble in Monaco's cathedral for Saturday's funeral of former movie star Grace Kelly.

Twenty-six years ago in that spot, a similar glittering crowd witnessed her fairy-tale wedding to Prince Rainier III. Tragedy intervened in the classic romance Monday morning, when the automobile Princess Grace was driving hurtled down a 120-foot ravine and burst into flames.

GRACE, 52, DIED Tuesday night after her family decided to take her off artificial life-sustaining equipment — she had been clinically dead for four hours, doctors said. Her 17-year-old daughter, Stephanie, suffered a spinal injury in the accident but was reported in good condition Friday night.

The shock of Grace's death was magnified because spokesmen for Monaco's royal palace played down the seriousness of her injuries until the very end.

On Friday, the physicians who tried to save the princess lashed out at the palace communiques. Dr. Charles Chatelin, chief surgeon at Princess Grace Hospital, said palace reports "contained real stupidities" and were "the source of all the confusion about the accident."

Chatelin said Grace, having suffered two strokes, was in a coma when she was brought to the hospital and never regained consciousness.

He said the accident apparently was caused when she suffered the first stroke while driving. The second stroke, of equal intensity, followed a short time later, and ultimately led to her death, he said.

THE PALACE, WHICH refused to comment on Chatelin's assertions, initially said only that Grace had suffered broken bones, and did not report that she was in a coma.

Roman Catholic Church policy does not require continuation of life-support procedures in cases such as Princess Grace's. The Grimaldis are Catholics.

News of the death sent shock waves around the world, and expressions of condolence flooded into this tiny principality, long known as a gambling oasis, a tax haven and the home of a storybook prince and princess.

By Friday morning some of those who knew Grace as monarch and movie star began arriving for the funeral at the 19th-century Cathedral where she and Rainier were wed April 18, 1956.

A palace spokeswoman said Princess Grace would be buried in the crypt of the cathedral next to Rainier's three immediate predecessors: Prince Charles III, who ruled from 1856 to 1889, Prince Albert I, who ruled from 1889 to 1922, and Rainier's grandfather, Prince Louis II, who ruled from 1922 to 1949.

FIRST LADY NANCY Reagan, heading the U.S. delegation to the funeral, arrived at 10 p.m. at the airport in nearby Nice, France, aboard a U.S. presidential jet that flew non-stop from Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, airport authorities reported.

Mrs. Reagan, who knew Princess Grace when they both were Hollywood actresses, was then taken by motorcade to Monaco's royal palace.

The American group also includes Gov. Richard L. Thornburgh of Pennsylvania, Princess Grace's home state, Evan K. Galbraith, U.S. ambassador to France, U.S. Navy Secretary John Lehman, who is a second cousin of Grace, and Rep. Thomas M. Foglietta of Pennsylvania.

Diana, Princess of Wales, representing the only royal family that has captured more public attention than Monaco's, was scheduled to arrive Saturday morning from Britain.

Prince Bertil of Sweden, Princess Benedikte of Denmark, Princess Paola of Belgium, Grand Duchess Josephine of Luxembourg, the former king of Romania, the former queen of Greece and the pretender to the French throne are among the royalty attending.

'First-class' postmaster involved in many changes fine. If it's possible, well, then we want to go through."

Holster himself has apparently never been one to shirk duty. He retires with more than 3,300 hours of sick leave accumulated and estimates that he has probably missed 25 work days, including two hospital stays, during his 41-year career.

ALTHOUGH THE POST office is traditionally fodder for most any comedian's cannon, Holster said "I see nothing but progress for the Postal Service in the coming years."

Holster explained that more than the letterhead changed when the old U.S. Post Office was revamped and became the U.S. Postal Service on July 1, 1971.

He said the Postal Service is now 98 percent self-sustaining with Congress subsidizing about 2 percent of Postal Service expenses. In return, the Postal Service handles a variety of "specialty mail," including that of some non-profit organizations.

The Postal Service also is replacing antiquated buildings and streamlining its operations through automation, he said.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger has indicated that the price of stamps could be held at 20 cents through 1984, said Holster, who praised Bolger's management skills.

Relations between management and postal workers are also a reason for optimism, he said. "I think the climate between labor and management is improving steadily for the better."

The list of applicants for Postal Service jobs, both men and women, is habitually long, according to Holster. "Our recruiting has done quite well for the last few years," Holster said.

While government and private industry were somewhat slow to welcome female workers, Holster said "women have more or less been a part of the Postal Service for many, many years." In 1941, Midland's assistant postmaster was a woman. Today, women comprise 35 percent of Midland's postal force.

Despite his predictions of a promising future for the Postal Service, Holster is ready for retirement.

"A PERSON SHOULD try to retire, if possible, while they're still in reasonably good health, to have some time to do some things they might want to do." Along with hunting and fishing, Holster said, "I'll find other things that interest me."

He and his wife, Beverly, may do some traveling — round trips only. "Midland is my home and has been for many years and I'll continue to stay here," he said. Holster was born in Yoakum in 1921, moved to Lamesa, and has lived in Midland since 1926. The Holsters have two children, a son, David R. Holster, and a daughter, Debbie Ward.

Holster explained that the regional postmaster in Memphis, Tenn., will appoint a three-person board to screen applicants for his post. The board will recommend several applicants to the Dallas district manager, who will then recommend one to the Postmaster General.

This process could take several months, he said, and Midland may have an acting postmaster for a short time before the new postmaster is selected.

Honduran officials become captives

SAN PEDRO SULA, Honduras (AP) — About 10 left-wing guerrillas invaded a meeting at the Chamber of Commerce building Friday night and held two Cabinet officials, the Central Bank president and about 200 other government and business leaders hostage, police said.

The masked intruders, armed with machine guns and M-16 rifles, ordered their captives to lie on the floor of the conference hall, a police official said. The government and civic officials had gathered there to discuss Honduras' political and economic problems.

About 100 soldiers rushed to the scene and surrounded the chamber's headquarters in this industrial city 90 miles northwest of Tegucigalpa, the capital. Policed blocked off all roads leading to the building.

Police officials said the hostages included Economy Minister Gustavo Adolfo Alfary, Treasury Minister Arturo Corleto Moreira and Central Bank President Gonzalo Carias Pineda.

Honduras, the poorest country in Central America, has been plagued by increasing guerrilla attacks since January, when an elected civilian government replaced a 10-year-old military regime.

Four leftist guerrilla groups are active in Honduras, but they do not appear to have gained much popular support.

Police blamed the most active group, the Lorenzo Zelaya Front, for three Aug. 4 bombings that injured 10 people at the Tegucigalpa offices of several U.S. and Salvadoran companies.

The group claimed responsibility for two airline hijackings in the past year and the July 4 bombing of two power plants that killed six workers and blacked out the capital for five days. It said leftist guerrillas from neighboring El Salvador aided in the attacks.

Britain's Queen Elizabeth II joins Prince Andrew, third in line for the British crown, following the return of he and his shipmates aboard the Invincible from their days in the Falklands. Prince Andrew got the only special treatment he's received since serving for the islands when the royal family was allowed aboard the ship before it docked.

Prince Andrew, Invincible receive joyous, tearful welcome home

PORTSMOUTH, England (AP) — Prince Andrew, Britain's warrior prince, was welcomed home from the Falkland Islands war with his 1,000 shipmates Friday by a tearful Queen Elizabeth II and a red, white and blue reception at Portsmouth navy base.

Tens of thousands of cheering, flag-waving Britons lined the harbor as a flotilla of hundreds of horn-tooting small boats escorted the 19,500-ton carrier Invincible into its berth.

The party-loving Andrew, a 22-year-old Sea King helicopter co-pilot who is third in line to the British throne, said that flying combat missions had matured him.

The 74-day conflict in the South Atlantic, he said, "was an experience I wouldn't have missed for the world."

The queen, Andrew's father Prince Philip, and only sister Princess Anne, went out to the carrier by royal barge for a 10-minute private reunion in the Admiral's cabin before the Invincible docked.

The royal reunion came an hour before other crewmen got to embrace their loved ones, including 28 sailors whose wives gave birth to babies while they were at war.

It was the only royal perk Andrew has been allowed since the Invincible sailed April 5. The rest of the time he was given no special privileges, officials said.

Later, the royal party was the first to walk down the gangplank while a Royal Marine band played "God Save The Queen."

Many well-wishers yelled "well done Andy" as the smiling handsome prince chatted with his comrades' families and shook hands with young women amid the carnival-like atmosphere. One placard seen in the crowd read "Today you're all princes."

As the Invincible inched through the misty haze, sailors set off red smoke flares on the dockside and loosed hundreds of yellow balloons. Fireboats sprayed rainbows of red, white and blue dye from water cannons. The U.S. Destroyer [illegible], the [illegible] visiting Portsmouth, joined in the welcome.

The Queen, visibly moved, stood on the carrier's bridge, dabbing tears from her eyes. Earlier, before the carrier docked, she was smiling and filming the welcome with a movie camera.

Before his mother went aboard the carrier, Andrew told reporters mobbing him on the flight deck he had experienced [illegible] for the [illegible].

As he posed for pictures with his buddies of 820 Helicopter Squadron, some yelled [illegible] "won't he be a prince," "isn't he ugly" and [illegible] a reference to Andrew's reputation as a [illegible].

Andrew, who is now expected to be promoted to full lieutenant and command his own helicopter, said: "I told myself I was going to survive. I could [illegible] come hell or high water,' but I also [illegible]."

Andrew's helicopter acted as a decoy target to draw deadly Argentine-fired Exocet missiles away from British ships. His squadron flew 1,050 combat missions during the battle to recapture the Falklands, seized by Argentina April 2. The Argentines surrendered June 14.

Cocaine seized

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — A national coast guard patrol has seized 10 Colombians and 3,135 pounds of cocaine from a motorboat off Panama's Caribbean coast in what one official called the biggest drug bust in Latin American history.

Marcos defends his country's human rights

WASHINGTON (AP) — Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos, reacting sharply to charges his government engages in political repression, said Friday, "It is not fair to accuse the Philippines of violations of human rights when there has been no violation."

In an hour-long appearance at the National Press Club, Marcos offered an emotional defense of his 17-year rule, picturing himself as an honest, progressive, devoted democrat with no interest in perpetuating dynastic rule in his homeland.

With a mixture of wit, indignation and political savvy developed during his long tenure, Marcos turned aside a series of hostile questions on his human rights record, his economic policies, his health and the role of his controversial wife, Imelda.

Asked about rumors his health is failing, Marcos quipped: "Does anybody want to try me in the ring?"

At another point, Marcos was asked about allegations by Amnesty International of widespread repression in the Philippines following the lifting of martial law 20 months ago.

He said the human rights group has relied on hearsay evidence because it never sent investigators to the Philippines.

He said Amnesty International once held the Philippines government responsible for the disappearance of a priest. As it turned out, Marcos said, the priest had disappeared of his own free will after "running off with somebody who claimed to be a nun."

Marcos, who is here on a state visit, addressed the press club luncheon after meeting with the House and Senate Foreign Relations committees.

Addressing the House committee, Marcos insisted human rights in the Philippines have been enhanced because his government had eliminated "leftist anarchy."

More than 200 uniformed police officers were deployed around the Capitol and the Rayburn House Office Building to provide security for Marcos' visit. Security was equally tight at the press club.

A small group of chanting, placard-carrying demonstrators protested [illegible] against Marcos' rule. Police kept the demonstrators two blocks away from the press club.

The luncheon audience applauded frequently and Marcos kept his poise as he responded to many of the allegations that have made him one of the most controversial allies of the United States.

To charges that some of his top aides have enriched themselves in government service, Marcos said, "If any public official engages in corruption, he will land in jail." He said the same fate awaits any security officer who commits human rights violations.

Marcos maintained that he and his family have tried to shield themselves from charges of corruption by placing their holdings in a blind trust.

He also disputed allegations he is laying the groundwork for Mrs. Marcos to succeed him once he dies or steps down. He said he has resisted pressures from his followers to have her appointed prime minister.

Mrs. Marcos, 53, was elected to her current role of governor of Metropolitan Manila, Marcos pointed out. He said her political success is attributable to a popular following and not presidential manipulation.

Asked about reports that the Philippines government has spent between $5 million and $20 million to finance the cost of transporting and housing his large entourage here, Marcos said the actual cost is a very [illegible] part of that.

Thailand gives U.S. scriptures

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand has presented the United States with a collection of Buddhist scriptures, which will be housed in the U.S. Library of Congress in Washington D.C., the U.S. Embassy announced Friday.

Officials said the scriptures, written in the Thai alphabet, were given to U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean by Thailand's supreme patriarch

State and local police join truck drivers in an impromtu cattle roundup after the truck transporting the cattle overturned on a Chicago expressway earlier this month. People involved in the incident used their vehicles to fashion a corral to aid the operations, although some of the 15 cows that escaped the truck wandered into a nearby residential neighborhood.

U.S. may be facing water crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation may be facing a water crisis more devastating than the energy crisis of the '70s, says H.C. Heldenfels, president of the Associated General Contractors of America (AGC).

The leader of the group that represents some 30,000 construction industry firms warns that the current water supply must be properly managed and distributed to avoid disruption of an adequate supply of water.

He estimates that between $75 billion and $110 billion will be needed to maintain urban water systems in U.S. cities over the next 20 years. New water projects will require more local, state and private financing in fight of the federal government's emphasis on reducing its spending on these projects, Heldenfels adds.

"Water is our most precious natural resource in this country and it is being squandered every day due to decaying pipes, sewage pollution and mismangement," Heldenfels says. "The irony of the situation is that right now there is enough water for everyone. But there will not be for long unless current water policy is changed."

Population shifts to the West, increased agricultural demand and new energy sources have caused great competition for existing water, thus creating a potential crisis, according to the U.S. General Accounting Office. In addition, many reservoirs, dams and water tunnels in the East are more than 50 years old and are in need of renovation and replacement, says Heldenfels.

"The recent breakdown of the water supply system in New Jersey highlights the need for more investment in these aging facilities," Heldenfels says. "Failure to invest in these facilities now could spell disaster for millions of our urban population."

Seventy-five percent of the nation's population lives in metropolitan areas, he points out.

In many older cities, Heldenfels says, the supply of good water is being contaminated by sewage overflows into rivers, streams and reservoirs.

KGB's pitiless crackdown threatens dissident groups

MOSCOW (AP) — An uncompromising campaign to wipe out organized opposition to the Soviet regime has left the survival of the dissident movement in doubt.

The systematic crackdown, spearheaded by the KGB secret police, has led to the imprisonment or banishment of most of the leading members of groups that offered the only internal public challenge to Kremlin policy.

The victims include Nobel laureate Andrei Sakharov, exiled without trial and held for nearly three years under tight police surveillance in Gorky, an industrial city closed to foreigners; Jewish activist Anatoly Shcharansky, ill in a Siberian labor camp with nine years left to serve on an espionage conviction, and scores of lesser-known figures.

This week, the organization monitoring Soviet compliance with the 1975 Helsinki Human Rights Accord said it had suspended all its activities, "under pressure of the authorities."

BY THE TIME THE WATCHDOG group made its announcement Wednesday, only three of its members were still free — and one, a 74-year-old woman lawyer, was facing indictment on charges of slandering the Soviet Union. The Helsinki group was founded in 1976 to monitor Soviet compliance and at its peak had more than two dozen members.

The Helsinki accords, signed by the United States, the Soviet Union and most European nations, agreed to respect human rights and national sovereignty.

The strength of the group, as with the dissident movement as a whole, was never in numbers — even in the movement's heyday, no more than a few hundred people acknowledged membership in unofficial organizations that openly challenged the government. Rather, dissidents always relied on pressure from the West as a safeguard against retribution by their government.

Since the crackdown has robbed the movement of its most widely known leaders, Western interest has waned and the safeguards have disappeared.

ONE DIPLOMAT, WHO CLOSELY follows dissident activity, said: "At a time of fairly bad relations, the West has very little leverage on the actions of the Soviet government. We protest both publicly and privately, but there's not too much we can do."

The official campaign against dissidents was hailed in the Soviet theoretical journal "Kommunist" last year.

The late deputy head of the KGB, Semyon Tsvigun, wrote then that "anti-socialist elements" who had posed as "defenders of human rights" and "champions of democracy" had been thwarted and that "the most active of them have been brought to criminal responsibility."

Official efforts to crush the movement have not relented.

In the past few months:

—A woman in Leningrad was sentenced to four years imprisonment and two years in exile for spreading copies of a "slanderous" undergound feminist magazine to foreigners.

—DOZENS OF RELIGIOUS FAITHFUL reportedly have been arrested and some beaten in a new crackdown against fundamentalist Christian groups that refuse to register their congregations with the state, as the law requires.

—The leader of a dissident religious organization urging free emigration for believers was reportedly beaten and dragged off by plainclothes KGB police as he waited at an airport in the Ukraine.

—The co-founder of an unofficial peace group that urged greater contacts between East and West was forcibly kept in a Moscow psychiatric hospital for a month and reportedly compelled to take depressant drugs.

One view of the latest developments is that former KGB chief Yuri V. Andropov ordered his successor, Vitaly Fedorchuk, to move swiftly against the few remaining activists so the country would be purged of dissent when, and if, Andropov succeeds the ailing, 75-year-old Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev. Andropov is widely regarded as the leading contender for the top job.

Dave Dubinsky's life labors over

NEW YORK (AP) — David Dubinsky, liberator of the sweatshops and master builder of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, died Friday of complications from hip surgery. He was 90.

Dubinsky died in St. Vincent's Hospital, where he had been admitted in early July, the hospital said.

David Dubinsky

A private funeral was planned. A memorial service was scheduled for Sept. 26 at the David Dubinsky Auditorium of Manhattan's Fashion Institute of Technology.

"David Dubinsky was a man of genius, imagination, daring and creativity," said Sol C. Chaikin, president of the ILGWU, contacted by telephone while on an AFL-CIO mission in Johannesburg.

"He was a great leader of the garment workers and a great leader of the American labor movement who pioneered in extending labor's vision beyond bread-and-butter issues to include civil rights, community needs and international affairs."

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland said Dubinsky, "as much as any man, helped to write a vital chapter in the history of the modern American labor movement. We have lost a leader of national stature in all of the social and economic struggles of his time."

Those struggles began 75 years ago in Lodz, in Russian-controlled Poland, where he joined in a strike at a bakery owned by his father.

They ended in 1966 when, having built the ILGWU from a bankrupt union with 45,000 members to a multimillion-dollar enterprise with almost 450,000 members, he announced his retirement.

"I didn't have a life," he said. "I had a union life."

During his career, he expanded labor's interest from the meat-and-potatoes issues of wages and hours to health and welfare, low-cost housing and the cultural life of the worker.

He consorted with every president from Roosevelt to Johnson, was one of the first labor leaders to drive communists from his union and became a political force in New York state.

His cherubic face, conservative suits and flashy ties, 5-foot-5 frame, Cuban cigars and accented speech all were trademarks.

The accent was a reminder of his birth in 1892 in Brest-Litovsk. He moved to Lodz at age 7, took part in the bakery strike at 15 and was arrested by the Russian police. He was sentenced to an indefinite term in Siberia, but escaped and fled to America.

He arrived in New York City on Jan. 2, 1911. Here, he pursued a new occupation — cloak cutter — and an old passion — unionism.

Three months after his arrival, 145 workers, most of them women, died in the Triangle factory fire, an inferno that became a powerful symbol for those trying to organize garment workers.

Dubinsky joined Local 10 of the ILGWU, and soon headed it. He became a vice president of the local in 1922 and general secretary-treasurer in 1929, helping to lead a strike that year.

His negotiating tactics? "First you get a whip and then when everyone knows you have it, you put it in the refrigerator," he said.

In 1932, he became president of a union that was $1 million in debt. In two years he announced that the debt had been retired, the union was in the black by $850,000 and membership had swelled to 200,000.

The union invested $20 million in low-cost housing on the Lower East Side, joined the Rockefellers in building low-cost housing in Puerto Rico and established an 850-acre resort, Unity House, in the Pocono Mountains for workers on vacation.

Dubinsky negotiated contracts with one first after another. He obtained a 35-hour work week in 1935; the first employer-financed pooled funds for workers' vacations in 1937, a health and welfare fund in 1938, a retirement fund in 1943 and severance pay in 1950.

Through it all, the garment industry had few strikes. The first major strike of Dubinsky's reign was in 1958 and lasted a week.

At first a Socialist, he switched to the Democratic Party in 1936 and usually worked for Democratic candidates. He shut the garment industry at noon on presidential election days so all could vote.

He established the first union political committee in 1947.

He was vice chairman and a founder of the labor-oriented Liberal Party, which still plays a role in New York politics.

He played a leading role in the marriage of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. He helped found the Jewish Labor Committee in 1934 to rescue unionists from the Nazis.

The ILGWU even produced a hit musical, "Pins and Needles."

Dubinsky repeatedly refused pay raises; when he finally accepted a summer house from the union, he later reneged and insisted on paying the $25,000 cost over five years.

Because he did not want "to die in my boots," he retired in 1966 at age 74, later serving as honorary president of the ILGWU.

Dubinsky outlived his wife, Emma. He is survived by a daughter, Jeannette, and a granddaughter.

Los Angeles fire blamed on arson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arson caused a Labor Day weekend fire that killed 24 people, about half of them children, when the blaze swept through the halls of a crowded apartment building, fire officials said Friday.

The finding reversed an earlier assessment that the blaze at the Dorothy Mae apartment house had not been set.

Officials also said Friday many of the victims had acted rationally by running down a hallway to escape the blaze. Panic originally had been blamed for causing the death of some residents.

The blaze erupted early Sept. 4, just inside a fire door on the second floor of the apartment, city Fire Chief Allen Evansen told a City Hall news conference.

"We've determined that an accelerant was used in starting that fire. The fire is an incendiary fire. The fire was not accidental," Evansen said.

He refused to specify the material used to start the blaze.

Government denies mock nuke plant raid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Energy on Friday denounced as "untrue" a published report that mock terrorists seized a reactor control room at a government nuclear weapons plant during a drill two years ago.

Herman E. Roser, assistant energy secretary for defense programs, called the report published Friday by The Washington Post "completely inaccurate and false."

The Atlanta Constitution had reported on Wednesday that former Army Green Berets, retired CIA officers and veterans of tactical police teams hired to test the security at the nation's nuclear weapons facilities breeched barriers and walked into the heart of the Savannah River plant in South Carolina in 1980.

The Post quoted unidentified sources as saying that seven counter-terrorist experts after using forged credentials to gain entry to the plant, seized hostages and then succeeded in taking over a reactor control room.

"The allegations are completely inaccurate and false," Roser said in a statement. "The alleged incident apparently refers to an inspection conducted over two years ago at the Savannah River plant. There was no mock penetration as part of that review."

While denouncing the Post story, Roser's statement made no mention of the Atlanta Constitution story two days earlier.

Howard Simons, the Post's managing editor, said Friday that the newspaper stands by its story.

Edward W. Sears, managing editor of the Constitution, said, "We absolutely, totally, 100 percent stand behind our story."

Both newspapers said the mock raids were outlined on Sept. 10 at a closed-door hearing by the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations.

The hearing was called to review a classified General Accounting Office report that was highly critical of the security and safeguard procedures at Savannah River and other nuclear weapons plants.

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., the subcommittee's chairman, issued a statement Friday saying the GAO review "found no evidence that physical security had been breached for the purpose of theft, sabotage or diversion."

A source, who asked not to be identified, said Friday that scenarios of what could happen if terrorists succeeded in breaching security at Savannah River or other weapons plants were discussed at the hearing.

The Aug. 30 GAO report concluded that "safeguards and security at the Department of Energy's weapons facilities are still not adequate" and noted that funds to correct some of the deficiencies were cut from the 1983 budget. It estimated that correcting the bulk of the problems would cost about $126 million.

UAW officials narrowly OK Chrysler contract

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — United Auto Workers officials from Chrysler Corp. plants nationwide narrowly voted Friday to recommend to workers a tentative contract which ties pay increases to company profits and the cost of living.

"It was a hell of a fight today and a long one," UAW President Douglas A. Fraser said at a news conference after the vote. "I was happy to get by today."

Fraser did not release total vote tallies but said representatives of production and maintenance Chrysler workers voted [illegible] in favor of the tentative pact. Representatives of workers in parts facilities voted 8-6 for the pact, while representatives of workers in engineering, technical, office and clerical jobs voted in favor of the pact by a 2-1 margin, Fraser added.

Fraser would not predict whether the agreement would be ratified by workers.

"I can't promise you victory, but I can promise the effort," he said.

Most of the discussion at the council meeting focused on the absenteeism program in the new accord, Fraser said.

Brownwood arts festival set to start

BROWNWOOD — Brownwood's third annual Pecan Valley Arts Festival will be held today and Sunday at the Festival Park in south Brownwood next to Gordon Wood Park.

This year some 60 artists will have booths. Art work displayed is original work which has been judged by a special festival committee. Tickets are priced at $2 for adults and $1 for children.

The show this year will open with a 7:30 p.m. preview dinner and auction today at the National Guard Armory at Brownwood. Tickets are $20 per individual or $35 per couple. Each artist represented in the show will have three works on sale. Auction begins at 8:30 p.m.

Proceeds from the two day event and related activities go to the Community Cultural Affairs Commission so the commission can fund a variety of events during the year, including ballet performances, symphony concerts and children's activities, at no cost to the public.

Rusk favors temporary nuke freeze

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk says he favors a temporary freeze on nuclear weapons production while the United States and the Soviet Union seek reduction of their nuclear arsenals.

He also cautioned on Thursday that unilaternal disarmament would be "tempting thieves." He said the Soviet Union was most aggressive when Western allies let their defenses down, just before and just after World War II.

Rusk, 73, spoke at the Westminister Presbyterian Church's Town Hall in a broadcast on Minnesota Public Radio.

No certificate needed for acquisition

AUSTIN — The Texas Health Facilities Commission here ruled Friday that a certificate of need application would not be necessary for a Florida corporation to purchase Midland Care Center.

Carol Daniels, director of the THFC, said the commission does not require a certificate of need application for "acquisition as long as there are no immediate changes in the services provided or patient charges."

Bloom Corporation of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., sought the ruling after it decided to purchase Midland Care Center from JJF Enterprises Inc., of Tennessee. The center is a 118-bed nursing facility.

Scientists split molecules of water, create hydrogen

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Members of a University of California research team say they have found a cheap, plentiful way to create hydrogen — a long-sought dream of scientists seeking to solve the world's energy problems.

Chemistry professor Gabor A. Somorjai, who headed the three-member team at the university's Berkeley campus, said Thursday that use of the new method could revolutionize the manufacture of synthetic petroleum, fertilizers and plastics.

The team developed a technique to split water molecules to produce a steady flow of hydrogen gas by using some of the earth's most abundant resources — sunlight and iron oxide, or rust.

Somorjai said the university has applied for a patent.

"I think probably within the next six months companies all over will have engineers who can put dollar figures" on how much money the new method could save, he said.

A tiny model developed in the laboratory can produce a steady flow of hydrogen for eight hours, and can continue indefinitely if fresh air is bubbled through it, Somorjai said.

The model, about half the size of a dime, produces billions of hydrogen molecules every minute, he said.

"We have proved the principle is correct and shown that it works in practice," Somorjai said.

The hydrogen could be used to create synthetic fuels to burn in existing facilities, which would avoid building expensive new plants and furnaces, he said.

"My feeling is the best way to use the hydrogen that is obtained by this method is to convert the hydrogen into organic fuels — gasoline, oil and natural gas ... which is a known technology," he said.

A report on the achievement was presented Thursday at a meeting of the American Chemical Society in Kansas City, by a member of Somorjai's team, Cristofer Leygraf, a Swedish postdoctoral student at Berkeley.

Somorjai, 47, is a member of the National Academy of Sciences and is a senior scientist at the university's Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory.

The team's model functions by shining sunlight on two tiny disks of iron oxide submerged in water doctored with a salt-like solution of inexpensive sodium sulfate, he said.

One disk is treated with a small amount of silicon and the other is treated with magnesium. When the sun shines on them, it creates a steady flow of energy along a wire between the disks like a simple battery. The electrons cause the hydrogen gas to bubble out of the water at the disk containing magnesium. Oxygen forms at the disk containing silicon.

The cheaply produced oxygen is a bonus because it is widely in demand by industry, he said.

A 3-foot disk of iron oxide as thin as a human hair would produce about a gallon of hydrogen gas, Somorjai said.

"It is my hope that within a reasonably short time, we can increase this efficiency by 10 times," he said.

Somorjai declined to estimate the cost of large-scale hydrogen with the method because "that's not for me as a scientist to say."

"It appears that all the materials that go into it are abundant and inexpensive," he said.

Hydrogen can be burned as a substitute for many fuels, including petroleum-based gasoline, and can react with carbon dioxide or carbon monoxide to create many kinds of organic molecules, such as methanol and substances used in plastics made from petroleum.

A method of creating a cheap, plentiful source of hydrogen has long eluded the world's scientists. Experiments consumed more energy than they produced and used costly, exotic materials, such as platinum.

Somorjai and his colleagues began working on the idea of splitting water molecules six years ago, but at first experimented with other ingredients until they hit on the right combination.

He said the team actually made the discovery March 17.

"And it took me a few months to believe in it by constantly reproducing it and understanding the important parameters," said Somorjai, who has worked at Berkeley for 18 years.

West Bank colleges may not open

The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

JERUSALEM — The main West Bank universities, long centers of Palestinian nationalism, are headed into a new confrontation with Israeli authorities that has already delayed the opening of one school and threatens to disrupt — if not cancel — the academic year at all the institutions.

The dispute centers on a new regulation promulgated by the Israeli civil administration that requires foreign teachers at the three universities, as well as students who do not live in the West Bank, to sign a pledge not to provide any assistance to the Palestine Liberation Organization before they are given permits to teach or enroll in classes.

Last week students from outside the West Bank, mainly from Arab East Jerusalem, were stopped at military roadblocks and prevented from attending a two-day orientation session at Bethlehem University because they had not signed the anti-PLO pledge, according to university officials. Monday Bethlehem University postponed the formal opening of classes until next week, but with little hope the situation will have changed by then.

"WE'LL BE OPEN MONDAY, BUT I expect the roadblocks will be back," said Brother Thomas Scanlan, the vice chancellor of the Roman Catholic institution.

Bethlehem, the first of the universities to open, has already been affected, but the new order also applies to Bir Zeit university near Ramallah and Al Najah university in Nablus, which are scheduled to open next month. Bir Zeit, in particular, has been the scene of clashes between students and the Israeli military and has been frequently closed by the occupation authorities.

Scanlan and other university officials say they suspect the Israeli authorities hope to close the universities permanently through the new regulation, which affects a substantial number of faculty members and students. Israeli officials deny the allegation and say what they are doing is no different from similar antisubversive measures affecting foreigners who work in a number of Western countries, including the United States.

"The civil administration wants the universities to open and will do everything it can to help them open," said Achiya Yitzhaki, the spokesman for the civil administration of the West Bank.

YITZHAKI SAID THE ORDER APPLIES to all foreign workers in the West Bank, not just university teachers.

"This document has nothing to do with academic freedom or political thought," he said. The purpose, he added, is to make "absolutely clear" to foreign workers in the West Bank that any link to the PLO is unlawful.

According to Yitzhaki, the pledge that foreign workers and students from outside the West Bank are required to sign reads:

"I hereby take upon myself to desist from any action and from rendering any services which are likely to help or support the organization known as the PLO or any other terrorist organization."

University officials contend that the pledge is vague, an infringement on academic freedom and an unnecessary intrusion of politics into the university communities.

"Our main objection is that this is a political statement and people are being forced to sign it," Scanlan said. "I know Israel considers the PLO a terrorist organization, and to be sure, they have engaged in terrorist activities. But it's not that simple.

"WORKING TO HELP THE PALESTINIANS IS, I suppose, a certain kind of political statement. But this is a political thing that is now being forced on us."

Scanlan said foreign faculty members at the university already sign general statements that they will obey and respect the law while they are in the territory. As for the students from outside the West Bank, he said, "I see no reason for this. The control of the military on our students is already absolute."

The order regarding foreign teachers affects 20 teachers on Bethlehem University's faculty of 120, as well as 65 teachers at Bir Zeit and 25 at Al Najah. Most of the teachers have refused to sign the statement and have been warned that their classes will be boycotted by students if they cooperate with the occupation authorities, according to university officials.

The order will also affect about 30 percent of Bethlehem University's 1,100 students, the bulk of them from East Jerusalem, which Israel considers a part of the unified capital of Israel and not part of the occupied West Bank. The order in effect puts Palestinian students from Jerusalem and the Gaza Strip in the same category as foreigners, something a teacher at Bethlehem said today "is unbelievable to us."

The fact that the dispute has already affected Bethlehem University is likely to exacerbate the current strain between Israeli officials and the Roman Catholic Church. The school is owned and operated by the Vatican, which is at odds with Israel over its bitter criticism of Pope John Paul II's decision to meet with PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat.

Democrats organize 'unity' for candidate

Hearst Feature Service

WASHINGTON — Michael Dukakis continued his efforts at conciliation and unity in the sharply divided Democratic ranks Thursday, meeting privately for an hour with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and talking publicly with the entire Democratic congressional delegation.

The unity luncheon was organized on short notice by Rep. Edward Boland who noted he had supported Gov. Ed King "but that's beside the point now."

In keeping with the spirit represented at a breakfast in Boston the morning after the election, Dukakis and his colleagues wasted no time on rejoicing.

Their goal was to woo President Reagan's "favorite governor," King, who made a remarkable comeback that fell just short of victory and to persuade him and his considerable number of conservative Democratic supporters to stay hitched in November.

There were no barbs, therefore, about the adverse impact of Reaganomics or King's support of it.

The closest to it came from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who said he hoped the wounds opened in the bitterly fought Democratic primary would be "like Ronald Reagan's supply side economics — here today, gone tomorrow."

Kennedy, who had taken the unusual step of campaigning vigorously for Dukakis in the final weeks of the Democratic primary, said King and his wife Jody had expressed their views strongly, had "battled with dignity" and were "gracious" in defeat.

He added "I hope we will all be together, we all will be working together in the interest of Massachusetts."

School helps foreign students learn English

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — When Bruno Baumann of Switzerland decided last year he wanted to study at an American university, he found himself facing a major problem — he didn't speak English.

But Baumann didn't have to give up his dream of continuing his education in the United States. He enrolled in a Charlotte language school that specializes in helping foreign students get into American colleges.

This fall, after six months of English classes at ELS Language Center, Baumann, 22, is starting work toward a chemistry degree at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

"The school has given me the ability to speak English, and when I came here I couldn't speak it at all," Baumann said. "I wanted the experience of going to an American school. It was a dream of mine."

The language center, one of 24 located across the country, is operated by English Language Services, a division of Washington Education Research Associates Inc., based in Culver City, Calif. It is the only school of its kind in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Every year, about 1,500 students enroll at the Charlotte center, most aged 18 to 22, and use the classes as a steppingstone to American colleges.

Director David Shope says the Charlotte school has attracted students from 30 countries since its beginning six years ago.

"We have a very diverse student population here," Shope said. "We get students from all over the world — the Latin American countries, the Mideast, Europe. Most are referred here by their teachers or counselors."

Shope says many of the students, like Baumann, speak little or no English when they arrive at the school. Depending on the amount of English they speak and understand, students are placed in one of nine levels of the program. Each level takes about four weeks to complete.

Students enrolled in the program attend classes six hours a day, five days a week. A typical day includes three hours of English structure and one hour each of conversation, reading skills and language lab.

"Once they get to the school, only English is spoken," Shope said. "We don't speak to them in their language in the classroom."

The average class size is small — about 12 students — so teachers can work more closely with the students.

Most of the students say although they want the experience of an American education, they plan to return to their countries to work after college.

Vintage argument renewed with fight for Shenandoah

Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has triggered a new war between the states, pitting California against Virginia in a struggle over the Shenandoah Valley.

It is a battle fought not with 19th century muskets, but with 20th century words and red tape.

The fight, which has attracted a Washington Post plea for letters supporting Virginia against its West Coast rival, is over wine.

At stake is whether California or Virginia vintners should have federal approval to use the Shenandoah Valley name on wine labels.

Virginia claims its Shenandoah is world-famous and the name rightfully should be used to designate its new wine producing area. While Californians agree their Shenandoah Valley may not be world famous, they say their wines are famous — arguing some vines have been producing there for over 100 years.

One influential leader of the fight for Virginia's "grapes of Robb" — so named for that state's Gov. Charles Robb — is the Washington Post, which recently editorialized a California victory "would ignore history, confuse the public and deprive the growing Virginia wine industry of an important commercial asset."

Recalling that Thomas Jefferson tried and failed to cultivate wine grapes in Virginia 200 years ago, the Post said, "In the name of old Jimmy Stewart movies, heart-tugging lonesome cowboy songs and the memory of Mr. Jefferson...the name Shenandoah clearly belongs this side of 'the wide Missouri.'"

The Post appeal for letters has thus far elicited only a trickle of mail to the government which has imposed an Oct. 4 deadline for public reaction.

But those that have arrived here have, predictably, supported Virginia's right to the name.

"Frankly, I greatly prefer California wines," said one letterwriter to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (BATF) last month. "I've never had a Virginia wine that I enjoyed at all. I thought they were wretched, actually.

"But I know that I will never be moved to purchase a California wine called Shenandoah — it would always strike me as a cheap imitation trying to make it on someone else's name," the letter said.

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., in testimony before government representatives trying to resolve the dispute, was even stronger.

"Allowing California to use the Shenandoah name would be utterly confusing, totally misleading and tantamount to a legalized fraud on the American wine-buying public," he said.

He called California's Shenandoah Valley "a few rolling hills and not even a real valley compared to our beautiful area in northwest Virginia that is 150 miles long, drained by the Shenandoah River."

Californians argue there never was a problem before Virginia started its fledgling wine industry several years ago. Before that, there was no challenge to wines produced in the area near Sacramento being labeled Shenandoah Valley products.

Leon Sobon, owner and wine maker at Shenandoah Vineyards in Plymouth, Calif., said the wine industry is the major income producer in Amador County where his winery is located. By contrast, Virginia has only three relatively new commercial wineries in its Shenandoah Valley.

"When we asked to be designated as the official Shenandoah Valley viticultural area, we had reason to do so," Sobon said. "We are an established grape-growing area and Virginia is not."

Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., defended his state's vintners in testimony earlier this year when he stressed the cash value of the wine industry to California's Shenandoah Valley.

He said the wine grapes produced there since 1853 now sell for $1.9 million a year and are used by at least 50 California wineries. The wine produced from those grapes accounts for $19 million in annual retail sales, and a viticultural payroll in the valley of about $5 million annually.

"These growers have worked long and hard to earn their valley's fine viticultural reputation," Hayakawa said. "It would truly be an injustice to impose this practical and financial burden on them."

The BATF is trying to resolve the dispute by asking for public comments, conducting hearings and reviewing testimony presented by both sides. Officials at the agency would not comment on how they expect the dispute to be resolved since it is still being studied.

One official acknowledged, however, one solution being considered came in a letter suggesting BATF designate a Shenandoah East and a Shenandoah West to satisfy both parties. Virginia will have nothing to do with that, however, refusing to share the name.

The controversy began when the federal government decided in the late 1970s that U.S. wine should have the same geographic designations as French wines. A wine produced in the Burgundy area of France, for example, is known to have a different character than one from the Bordeaux region, and since labels reflect where the grape was grown, consumers have some clues about the wine's taste before they open the bottle.

There was no competition for most "viticultural" designations, such as Napa Valley, but confusion arose when two petitions arrived asking official status as the Shenandoah Valley. In fact, there are two wineries called Shenandoah Vineyards, one in California and one in Virginia. Each wrote the other when they discovered the duplication asking the other to change its name. Both refused. As a temporary measure, both had new labels printed with their state names shown prominently.

Most of the comments received by BATF discuss the promience of Virginia's Shenandoah Valley name and not the state's history as a wine region. One attempted to put the Californians in their place with this observation: "Frankly, I never heard of there being a Shenandoah Valley in California until this wine designation controversy came up," Shirley Marshall wrote. "It is my understanding that the Shenandoah Valley in California was named by homesick settlers from Virginia."

Vintners size up damage to grapes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Growers are sizing up the damage to their prized wine grapes, hit by hail, cold temperatures and up to 6 inches of rain in an unusual wintry storm.

Low gray clouds hovered above the nation's premier wine-producing hills in Napa, Sonoma and Mendocino counties Thursday, a day after the storm that pelted some fields with hail for 30 minutes.

Vintners hoped for sunshine to dry out the flooded fields.

Growers and agricultural officials said it would be at least five days before they know whether the dampness had rotted the grapes.

Early surveys indicated the hail had spared most Napa and Sonoma Valley grapes, but continued dampness and abnormal cold threatened the harvest, which began a week or two ago for most vintners.

In Mendocino County, about 70 miles north of the Napa Valley, grape growers near Ukiah reported heavy damage from the shower of marble-sized hail.

"Maybe 400 acres" were badly hit by hail in Redwood Valley near Ukiah, said Morgan Ruddick of Mendocino Vineyard Co. That included 200 acres of his own vineyard, planted with French colombard and zinfandel for Italian Swiss Colony wines.

The hail was "something new to me. It never had happened before here that I can remember," Ruddick said. "I'd be surprised if we can pick any" of the hail-struck grapes. "I can't believe that they all won't start to rot."

Primitive Amazon Indians threatened by oil exploration

EDITOR'S NOTE — As Caruae gets up before dawn to go hunting with a blowgun, poisoned darts and a 10-foot lance, petroleum crews only a few hundred miles north warm up bulldozers and dump trucks to push the road farther south. Caruae's lands are shrinking fast as the men who search for oil are threatening nothing less than the fate of thousands of primitive people living beneath the jungle canopy in the steaming Amazon basin.

By KERNAN TURNER

CONONACO RIVER, Ecuador (AP) — Caruae doesn't know it, but he's living inside a time machine about to whisk him from the Stone Age to the 20th Century. It's a move that he and his people may or may not survive.

Caruae is an Auca Indian, a member of one of the least known or understood tribes in the Amazon Forest. What happens to him and his kinfolk may happen to thousands of primitive people hidden beneath the jungle canopy in the steaming Amazon basin from Venezuela to Brazil.

Missionaries who have lived for years among the Auca call them "the most charming murderers in the world." Anthropologists say their reputation as killers is exaggerated and results from their fierce resistance to territorial threats.

The name "Auca" is Quechua Indian language for "savage" or "barbarian." The Auca call themselves Waorani, which in their language means "the people."

Caruae's time machine is the Amazon jungle, which preserved the Waorani and other Indian tribes in a natural state during the thousands of years it took agricultural development to erase the Stone Age and the Industrial Revolution to sweep across much of the world. As oil roads push south from the Coca River into Auca territory, nothing less than their existence is threatened.

AS CARUAE GETS UP BEFORE DAWN to go hunting with a blowgun, poisoned darts and a 10-foot lance, petroleum crews only a few hundred miles to the north warm up their bulldozers and dump trucks to push the road farther south. Thousands of colonizers follow the road, cutting down the forests and killing the game which supports the Waorani.

James A. Yost, an anthropologist, says that if the Waorani lose their traditional lands, "the techniques for survival in the forest that the Waorani have developed over the centuries will not be sufficient to assure their survival."

Yost and groups like Survival International and the National Institute for the Colonization of the Ecuadorean Amazon Region, advocate granting the Waorani title to a large slice of their homeland, which covered 20,000 square kilometers (7,720 square miles) of tropical rain forest south from the Napo River to the Curaray River and east from the Andean foothills to the Peruvian border.

When American missionaries successfully established peaceful contact with the Waorani in 1958, there were an estimated 500. Today, the population is 700, a growth attributed in part to the campaign of missionaries against tribal wars and against such practices as the killing of unwanted babies and old people.

ABOUT 5[illegible] OF THEM ARE CROWDED into a government protectorate only [illegible] percent [illegible] of the original territory in constant contact with missionaries, tourists and other outsiders. The rest live primitively on the traditional territory in [illegible] principal groups.

The Auca first came to the outside world's attention in 1956 when five American missionaries were killed on a river bank where they had attempted to establish peaceful contact with the Indians. Although it has been five years since an Auca lance has killed an outsider — three oil company road crewmen in 1977 — only a year ago Aucas placed crossed lances on a survey crew's trail as a warning to stay out.

The only way into the Cononaco River, other than canoe, is by charter airplane from Shell-Mera, also known as Pastaza, a village 100 miles southeast of the Ecuadorean capital of Quito.

One of the world's busiest helicopter airports when international petroleum companies were searching for oil, Shell-Mera is road's-end now, a jumping off point at the edge of the jungle.

THE PLANE FLIES DUE EAST for an hour over an ocean of trees, with only a compass and the pilot's knowledge of meandering rivers to guide it. There is no sign of life below until a small airstrip — abandoned by the oil companies and reopened by missionaries — appears alongside the brown, sluggish river.

On the ground, one steps back in time to when man's survival depended on small garden plots of yucca and bananas, jungle nuts and fruits and animals to be killed with blowgun and spear.

Caruae and his two wives, Nawanae and Cacadi, live here with their children and two other families — a total of 27 Waorani.

The visitors are five outsiders — two filmmakers, a young traveler, a photographer and an Associated Press correspondent. They are greeted warmly and spend a peaceful week with the Indians.

Caruae, short but taut-muscled, seems a man caught between two worlds, wearing swimming trunks during the day and a G-string after dark.

U.S. agencies analyze leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Fidel Castro accused the United States of waging biological warfare against Cuba, then-U.S. ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick shot back that the Cuban leader "requires a psychiatric examination of considerable duration."

The United Nations envoy's remark in that August 1981 episode was nothing more than a classic rejoinder. Clearly, Castro wasn't about to have his head examined, especially at the suggestion of an ideological foe.

Yet 1,200 miles from Havana, at CIA headquarters and elsewhere around Washington, U.S. specialists are trying to analyze what makes Castro tick. A host of other foreign leaders, many of them in the volatile Third World or revolutionary types, also are undergoing a similar psychiatric diagnosis at a distance.

Not only that, experts in the government and on American university campuses are trying to apply psychological concepts — in some cases aided by advanced electronic technology — to help them reach a better understanding of global conflicts and crises.

THE QUESTION OF STRIVING to divine the motivations, attitudes and negotiating strategies of other governments through psychology was raised briefly during Senate confirmation hearings for Secretary of State George P. Shultz in mid-July.

Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, ranking Democrat on the Foreign Relations Committee, invoked an observation by Charles Maurice Talleyrand, the Napoleonic-era French statesman, that "for every hour you spend negotiating, you should spend a few minutes in the skin of your adversary."

Asked Pell: "Would it not be a good idea if in any major negotiations such as START (the U.S.-Soviet strategic arms talks in Geneva) we had on our negotiating team a psychiatrist, a man who studied the people with whom we were dealing and could imagine what the responses would be from a psychiatric viewpoint as well as from a political viewpoint?"

SCHULTZ, WITH characteristic caution, replied that "certainly an essential part of skillful negotiating is to do everything you can to understand the other party and how they are thinking, distinguishing the things that are truly important to them and not so important."

Shultz went no further in responding to Pell's suggestion that a psychiatrist be assigned to assist U.S. negotiators.

But among the small circle of professionals who work in this new specialty, the application of political psychology to foreign policy issues is serious business.

At the CIA, about 10 experts in behavioral science headed by a Yale-educated psychiatrist are at work preparing psychological profiles of world leaders. These profiles become part of the agency's "finished intelligence," which is forwarded to U.S. decision-makers.

THE CIA TEAM IS REPORTED to have used its psychological portrait of Castro in a film that has been shown to senior officials at the White House. The film traces Castro's rise from a 1940s law student to Cuban revolutionary, ally of the Kremlin and energetic backer of anti-U.S. insurgencies.

The surge of concern in Washington last December over alleged Libyan plots to assassinate President Reagan or other high U.S. officials spurred an intensified effort to assess the character and intentions of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy.

The CIA specialists are said to have concluded that Khadafy has "a messianic personality with a hero-martyr complex," and that the worldwide attention generated by the assassination plot scare served to feed his "megalomaniacal sense."

A source familiar with the CIA team's work said it "tends to be somewhat impressionistic" and "not really done as thoroughly as it could be."

AN ATTEMPT TO overcome this deficiency is the experimental effort by the Defense Department's Advanced Research Projects Agency to develop an "automated behavioral intelligence system," using sophisticated, high-technology methods.

The agency says the aim is to "describe, explain and predict probable courses of action and perceptions of foreign policy decisionmakers," as well as to "link these probable courses of action and perceptions to behavior."

Part of the program has involved research by Thomas C. Wiegele, a political scientist at Northern Illinois University in Dekalb, Ill., on the use of an electronic "psychological stress evaluator."

The evaluator was used to analyze voice tapes of statements made by Presidents John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon in times of crisis.

THE APPARATUS automatically processes voice modulations and draws onto a moving strip chart an electronic graph of each word — roughly similar to how an electrocardiogram records a person's heartbeat. Then the chart is analyzed to spot stress patterns that cannot be detected by the unaided ear.

Vilas leaves tourney to be with Caroline

HOUSTON (AP) — Argentine tennis star Guillermo Vilas has pulled out of a $150,000 tournament "to be supportive and near someone he cares very much about" — Princess Caroline, daughter of the late Princess Grace of Monaco.

Vilas, ranked as one of the world's best players, was to play Peter Fleming here Thursday in the first round of the Interfirst-Fannin Bank Texas Challenge but decided "he could not maintain his normal level of professional play," said his manager, Steve Cory.

"More important, he felt an obligation and a responsiblity to be supportive and near someone he cares very much about," Cory said.

Vilas' decision was prompted by "his close friendship with Princess Caroline," Cory said. The 26-year-old princess had planned to attend the three-day tournament with Vilas, Cory said.

Princess Grace died Tuesday. She never regained consciousness after a car crash Monday that injured her other daughter, Princess Stephanie, and doctors now say Princess Grace may have suffered an attack similar to a stroke just before the crash.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Hayden, a Democratic candidate for the state Assembly and husband of actress Jane Fonda, has won the backing of the Assembly majority leader and two teacher's unions.

The California Teachers Association and the California Federation of Teachers endorsed Hayden on Thursday, as did Assembly leader Mike Roos, Democrat of Los Angeles.

Hayden is running against Republican Bill Hawkins, a Santa Monica businessman.

LONDON (AP) — American conductor Andre Previn will return to London part-time in 1985 as musical director of the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, it was announced Friday.

Previn, 53, will retain the musical directorship of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, which he took over in 1976.

"We're all delighted," said Royal Philharmonic spokesman Archie Newman. The appointment is for three years.

Previn was born in Berlin. He rose to fame in the 1950s as a jazz pianist and composer of Hollywood film scores and was in charge of the London Symphony Orchestra from 1968 to 1979.

Recent box office sales by the Royal Philharmonic are down 10 percent due to the recession, but Previn's arrival is expected to boost its popularity. He succeeds principal conductor Walter Weller.

WAYCROSS, Ga. (AP) — Billy Carter, brother of former President Carter, on Friday became the director of marketing for Scott Housing Systems Inc., a mobile home manufacturer.

The new job means the 45-year-old Carter will be moving back to Georgia, said Sam Scott, the president of the company based in Waycross, about 120 miles from the Carter family home in Plains.

Billy Carter, since June 1981, had been a public relations spokesman for Tidwell Industries of Haleyville, Ala., which also is in the home manufacturing business.

Trenton James, treasurer of Tidwell, said Carter "submitted his resignation with regrets, stating that he had been offered a business opportunity closer to his home in Georgia."

"Billy has been interested in moving back to Georgia for some time," said Scott.

Billy Carter moved his family to Alabama from Buena Vista, Ga., last year after leaving Plains in 1977.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Leon Fleisher, considered one of the best pianists in the world two decades ago, got a standing ovation after playing in concert with both hands for the first in 17 years.

In 1964, Fleisher was stricken with a mysterious ailment that crippled his right hand. He last played publicly with both hands in 1965 and had played several concerts for the left hand since.

But Thursday night, he was in full form at the inaugural concert of the Joseph Meyerhoff Symphony Hall. He played Franck's Symphonic Variations and was assisted by the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra conducted by Sergiu Comissiona.

Fleisher, 54, is a member of the piano faculty at Baltimore's Peabody Conservatory.

He has spent about a decade studying with Beethoven specialist Artur Schnabel and is to play a Mozart piano concert at the Kennedy Center in Washington next March. After that, he said in a recent interview, he will decide whether to resume a full-time performing career.

More than 2,300 people paid up to $1,000 for a seat in the new 2,467-seat home of the symphony, which cost $23 million, and is named for businsessman Joseph Meyerhoff, 83, who contributed $10 million.

Businessman accused of false label use

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The manufacturer of the Lindsay line of water softeners, related equipment and products has filed a federal lawsuit in federal court in Midland against Tom Davis, a former dealer-distributer of the "Lindsay" line, for infringing on the Lindsay trademark.

The suit's plaintiff, The Lindsay Division of Ecodyne Corp. in St. Paul, Minn., is alleging that Davis is doing business in Odessa as "Lindsay of West Texas" although he had been an authorized Lindsay distributer for a 13-county area from February 1972 until his contract was cancelled in September 1980.

Lindsay is seeking a court order to prohibit Davis from using the "Lindsay" trademark and name in his business.

The lawsuit's petition alleges that Davis in April 1982 began "representing to the public that he was once again an authorized dealer" of the Lindsay line.

"Such representations are totally erroneous," says the petition, "and the defendant has not the slightest whisper of plaintiff's consent nor authorization to be a 'Lindsay' dealer nor to use the 'Lindsay' trademarks."

The petition claims that Davis is selling and servicing water softeners not manufactured or authorized by Lindsay but is using the Lindsay name and thereby is "inducing purchasers and others to believe, contrary to fact," that the services and products sold by Davis are manufactured and sponsored by Ecodyne's Lindsay Division.

Lindsay is petitioning the court to levy an injunction to enjoin Davis from "selling and palming off" the water softeners and products as made and certified by Lindsay and to order Davis to "deliver up and destroy all labels, signs, documents and advertisments bearing the 'Lindsay' marks and all plates, molds and other means of making same."

Davis's action in using the Lindsay name is unfair competition, alleges the petition, infringes on Lindsay's rights and "impairs and dilutes that part of plaintiff's goodwill symbolized by its 'Lindsay' trademarks, all to plaintiff's immediate and irreparable damage."

Lindsay's parent company, Ecodyne, is affiliated with Union Tank Car Co., which in 1970 assigned the "Lindsay" trademark to Ecodyne. Union Tank Car Co. first registered the "Lindsay" trademark in 1962.

Davis has yet to repond to the accusations. During his 8½-year affiliation with Lindsay, Davis was authorized to sell and service the Lindsay line in Andrews, Midland, Ector, Crane, Ward, Pecos, Upton, Crockett, Reagan, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard and Martin counties.

Detroit teachers strike may last quite awhile

By The Associated Press

A strike by Detroit's 11,000 school teachers could be lengthy, the district superintendent warned Friday after talks fell apart and a mediator recommended factfinding on differences.

"Sure, I'm worried," Arthur Jefferson said at a news conference. "I'm very concerned that five days have been missed and that more days will be missed unless we reach a resolution."

The Detroit teacher strike, which has idled 200,000 students, was in its fifth day Friday.

Nationwide, approximately 16,500 teachers were on strike, idling 287,000 students.

Also in Michigan, teachers in East Grand Rapids voted to strike Friday, but teachers in the Detroit suburbs of Troy and Novi ended their walkouts despite no new contracts. Teachers in Wyoming, near Grand Rapids, did reach a settlement and returned to their clasrooms.

In New Jersey, teachers in the Teaneck school district voted to strike Friday. On Thursday, teachers in Uppper Saddle River walked off the job.

Teacher strikes continued in 21 districts across Pennsylvania. Two districts were on strike in Illinois, with a third job action threatened for Monday in a Chicago suburb.

In Detroit, Jefferson said factfinding could take as long as three weeks.

Officials for both the district and the striking Detroit Federation of Teachers said negotiations could continue while the factfinding is under way, but no talks were scheduled. A four-hour bargaining session broke down Thursday.

The union has been unwilling to take an 8 percent pay cut demanded by the school district, which anticipates a 1982-83 deficit of $60 million.

A judge Friday ordered the two sides in the Upper Saddle River strike to reach an agreement by Monday.

Friendships grow from animosity thanks to class

HOUSTON (AP) — Police officers say they are building friendships and easing tensions by taking part in a Spanish-language training class started five years ago amid distrust and resentment.

"For maybe the first time, we were all seeing each other as human beings, instead of just during a confrontation when we were at our worst," said Sgt. Paul Ogden.

Dr. Guadalupe Quintanilla, one of the program's co-founders, says the police officers have learned more than a new language and the police are not the only ones learning.

"It's really incredible how the program has evolved, going from a basic language course to a sort of sensitivity training for both the police and the community people who come to practice with them," she said.

"Even as the officers learn first-hand the culture, customs and feelings of the people, the people begin to understand the officers' challenges and frustrations in their jobs," added Mrs. Quintanilla, a University of Houston assistant provost who recently was nominated by President Reagan to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

The 25th class of the voluntary course graduated Friday and, following a tradition begun with the first graduation, the ceremonies included a fiesta complete with dancing and music.

The class began in 1977 at a time of demonstrations stemming from the death of Joe Campos Torres, a 23-year-old Hispanic man who drowned in Buffalo Bayou after being arrested by Houston police.

Two former Houston police officers charged with murder in Torres' death were convicted of negligent homicide and a third officer was convicted of assault. All three were convicted on charges they violated Torres' civil rights.

To try to ease the Hispanic community's resentment against the police, Mrs. Quintanilla and businessman Wesley Nielsen proposed a program to teach police officers Spanish.

Only 15 officers showed up for the first class.

"For the most part, police were skeptical, and many viewed it as simply an appeasement program for the Mexican-American community," says Mrs. Quintanilla. "As for Hispanics themselves, they were equally mistrustful."

Today, the course has a waiting list. So far, 750 officers, or one-fourth of the force, have taken part in the class.

Similar programs have been started by police departments in Riverside, Calif., and Albuquerque, N.M., and the book Quintanilla wrote for the course, "Conversational Spanish for Police Officers," has been used by federal authorities, including some at Cuban refugee camps.

In Houston, firefighters and airport police are now signing up for the course.

"When we began, people were marching in the streets as the Torres trial was going on and we didn't know what to expect," Sgt. Ogden said.

"Everyone was a little standoffish but, gradually, as we learned more and more Spanish from the community folks, and they learned more and more English from us, everyone really warmed up.

"For instance, we would tell a girl she had pretty hair and she'd giggle and everyone would laugh. There was more and more joking and, pretty soon, more and more friendships."

The officers take 48 hours of classes, aimed at helping them communicate with Spanish-speaking people they meet in their jobs.

"We emphasize the basics," says co-founder Nielsen, who also is a teacher for the classes. "We work on phonics, key verbs and a really job-oriented vocabulary."

Lt. Allen Tharling says, though, that the "big benefit is we get to see each other in a relaxed setting."

"When just about the only time you interact is in the middle of some sort of disturbance, you don't know what to expect, everyone is real tense and all kinds of misunderstandings can happen," he said.

Dean asks for resign-to-run opinion

AUSTIN (AP) — Secretary of State David Dean said Friday that Attorney General Mark White has tipped his hand on the "resign to run" question and should issue a formal opinion.

Dean has been trying for weeks to get White to give a formal legal opinion on the question of whether a political candidate automatically vacates a local office when he announces for a second office.

White has said that he cannot hand down an opinion because the issue is being appealed.

But at a news conference Friday, Dean said White indicated how he will rule in the matter when a defendant's brief was filed in a Dallas federal district court on Wednesday.

The brief contained the statement, by the state's attorneys, including White, that "An office holder such as Plaintiff...automatically vacated his office when he announced his candidacy for a second office."

"If that is what he has decided," Dean said, "Why doesn't he put it in a formal opinion? "We have to have a formal opinion. If he never rules I can't declare there are any vacancies and put them on the ballot," Dean said.

Mary Hardesty, White's press secretary, said the attorney general's stand had not changed. "It has been a long-standing policy of this department not to issue opinions on matters in litigation when the matters are still before the courts," she said.

The attorney general had no other comment.

In a letter to White, the Democratic nominee for governor, Dean, a Republican, wrote, "To fail to exercise your responsibility in this matter disenfranchises hundreds of thousands of voters throughout Texas."

White accuses VA of cover-up

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Mark White filed suit in federal court here Friday accusing the Veterans Administration of covering up plans for a study of possible health hazards associated with the herbicide Agent Orange.

It was the first suit filed on the basis of a 1981 state law authorizing Texas to represent its veterans in suits for release of such information from the federal agency.

Agent Orange was used as a defoliant during the Vietnam war, and some veterans have complained they are suffering health problems because of exposure to the chemical.

"Veterans are justifiably concerned about a cover-up or whitewash," said White, a candidate for governor. "I think the VA should put their cards on the table, which is what the Freedom of Information Act requires."

The class action suit accused Robert Nimmo, administrator of Veterans' Affairs in Washington, D.C., of not responding to a request for information made by veteran Dan Jordan of Austin, and later by White's office.

A spokesman for Nimmo said officials in Washington were unaware of White's suit and would therefore not comment. However, the VA spokesman, who asked that his name not be used, said there could be a scientific reason for withholding some details about the study plan.

"It may be information they are going to seek from patients — for instance if you knew every symptom you were expected to exhibit, you might subconsciously develop those symptoms," the VA spokesman said.

Mary Hardesty of White's office said that was "farfetched."

"The clear light of day should shine in on this matter. There should be no exemptions," she said. "The Freedom of Information Act means that government records are open. Why should this be kept secret?"

White's suit was based on Jordan's request for information, but White said it was filed in behalf of all Texas Vietnam-era veterans who were exposed to Agent Orange or other herbicides.

Jordan, 35, commander of a veterans' organization who lives on military disability payments, said since returning from Vietnam he has suffered fatigue, blood and immunological disorders, rectal bleeding, neurological and genetic defects.

Committee to kill ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee has decided to do away with a proposed ceiling on legal immigration to the United States, one of the major elements of a sweeping immigration bill that Congress is considering.

The surprising development has added uncertainty to the fate of the measure, which would be the first thorough overhaul of the nation's immigration law in 30 years.

The future of the bill is further clouded by the committee's slow pace in completing its work. It seems unlikely now the bill can be voted on by the full House next week, and Congress is tentatively planning to adjourn by Oct. 8.

The amendment eliminating the proposed cap on legal immigration was sponsored by the committee chairman, Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J.

Rodino successfully argued that Congress should not tamper with the current law, which grants virtually unlimited immigration rights to immediate family members of U.S. citizens.

His amendment passed, 15-12.

"Tampering with the existing structure will skew the principles of family reunification and destroy the refined mechanism which this committee has sought to establish over a long period of time," Rodino said.

Rep. Romano Mazzoli, D-Ky., the chief sponsor of the bill, opposed the Rodino amendment.

Author of 'Semi-Tough' deadline, travel 'junkie'

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Jenkins' wish came true — four times.

As Jenkins recalls, all he needed to make him happy after he finished his first novel, "Semi-Tough," was to see a book published in hard covers with his name on it.

He got that wish. He also got a bonus. The book became a best seller.

"I had no idea it was going to be so successful," says Jenkins, "although I was pleased that it did. But I was more pleased by those hard covers with my name on them."

Since then, the 51-year-old Jenkins has had another three novels published — "Dead Solid Perfect," "Limo," and his latest, "Baja Oklahoma" — all in hard cover and all with his name on them, although "Limo" also carries the name of Jenkins' friend Bud Shrake.

"WE THINK ALIKE," SAYS Jenkins, explaining the collaboration. "I couldn't have written it with anyone but Bud. I'd write a chapter, then he'd write a chapter, and then we'd rewrite each other."

Jenkins, who speaks with a drawl that still carries echoes of his native Texas, describes all of the novels as romantic farces with a Texas flavor.

And, he says, "They all are humorous, because that's my temperament. That's the way I think. They move quickly to give the reader a lot of laughs.

"I try to get a laugh in on every page because I like to read books that give me a laugh a page. Maybe that's why some people say I'm too funny. How can you be too funny?"

Jenkins came late to writing his laugh-studded fictions. A native of Fort Worth, he spent his early years working on newspapers in Texas, mostly writing about sports, especially football. About 20 years ago, he moved out and up to New York City and a job on the writing staff of Sports Illustrated magazine.

"I'M STILL THERE, AND I don't intend to leave," Jenkins says with a smile. "I cover golf all the year round and that sport takes me all over the globe. When they play golf in Russia, I'll be there.

"I like golf. It takes you to good places. If I couldn't go somewhere every two weeks I'd feel lost. So I have no intention of giving up journalism for fulltime fiction. It's fun and it suits my temperament. I guess I'm just a deadline junkie with travel in my blood."

Jenkins says he wrote three non-fiction books about sports before he decided to try his hand at fiction.

"I guess I was about 40 when I had an idea that I thought would make a good novel and which I was pretty sure would get published," he recalls. The result was "Semi-Tough."

JENKINS WROTE IT, AS WELL as his succeeding novels, in his spare time. "I get an idea and I outline the novel in my head. Then I take a month or six weeks off work and do the writing.

"I like writing fiction, it's fun, but I can't do it eight hours a day. I write when I feel the urge to write. This way it takes me a year and a half to do a book, but I have a good time all the way with new characters jumping in all the time to surprise and please me.

"The best part is when I've finished a manuscript. Then I go back and rewrite it and polish it totally. Then it's me and coffee and cigarettes and 18 hours a day. It's the home stretch and I can't wait to get there."

Jenkins says he's got a new novel in mind. It will be a sequel to "Semi-Tough," but it won't get started until later this year because "first I've got to go to Australia and New Zealand and cover some golf."

World discovers 'paso,' horse with bizarre gait, arrogance

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Jose Antonio Otero, a 39-year-old horse trader, has the satisfaction of a man seeing the world discover something he has known for a long time: the Peruvian "paso" horse.

This horse, descended from livestock brought to Peru by the Spanish, has over the centuries been bred to have a bizarre-looking gait that gives the rider an incredibly smooth, but rapid, walking pace.

The gait, which involves lateral movement of the legs with a sideways flick of the front hooves, comes naturally to foals, breeders like Otero stress, although show horses are trained to add some flair.

The second characteristic of the horses, nobility — or as the showmen say, "arrogance," — also comes naturally.

Slowly, over the past two decades, the Peruvian horses have been gaining popularity in the United States, as well as Canada, Central America, Australia and Europe. And this year, the Peruvian government has taken steps to cut red tape and ease export procedures. That, Otero says, will strengthen the breed both here and abroad.

Otero, who is one of Peru's largest breeders, estimates that in recent years an average of 60 horses a year were exported, although last year only 29 were shipped abroad. But breeders say that the export process that used to take three to six months, and discouraged foreign buyers, will now take 10 days.

Rodolfo Matellini, one of Peru's leading authorities on Peruvian horses, predicts that 80 will be exported during 1982, at an average price of $30,000. Advertisements in a U.S. magazine, "Peruvian Horse World," show prices in the $100,000 to $200,000 range for top show horses.

The business potential is significant, Otero says, and is being realized just in time.

"There used to be a taboo on selling. There was no exporting because the government said the horses were part of the national heritage and shouldn't leave the country. But they eat 15 kilos of alfalfa a day — you can't survive if you don't sell."

Besides, he says, "If you export them, and people see this unusual and noble animal, they ask where it's from...Peru! It's like a living advertisement for the country. At last, something besides Machu Picchu!"

According to Matellini, the Peruvian horse was developed as a smooth-gaited walker because Peru was not cattle country but agricultural. Farmers did not need to chase wily steers around the countryside, but rather needed to walk for hours at a time inspecting their cotton or citrus crops.

Is 'clinical ecology' the answer?

By STEVE LaRUE
Copley News Service

As an otherwise vigorous young woman in her 20s, Laura Nowak of Chicago was stalked by depression, weakness and confusion and "could hardly write a letter." Nothing that could be done for her at prestigious Eastern clinics seemed to help.

After a two-month retreat to Arizona also failed, her doctor suggested a hobby — an activity to take her mind off things, she remembers. She decided to redecorate her home.

One morning after the home had been freshly painted, she awoke feeling as though she had been poisoned. This was in the 1930s, and her new doctor, Theron G. Randolph, a founder of clinical ecology, agreed.

She was diagnosed as having bad reactions to almost the bulk of the man-made environment — grain products, milk, chocolate, some meats, pesticides in foods and a wide variety of petrochemicals — from natural gas and paint fumes.

But by avoiding these foods and substances since then, Laura, now Mrs. Wiliam D. Kerr of La Jolla, Calif., said she has lived normally, written several children's books and raised a family.

Randolph and other clinical ecologists insist that modern chemicals, as well as many foods, have sickened thousands of us in ways most doctors do not understand and cannot treat.

"See, our bodies were not designed to adapt to the chemicals that now surround us," said Dr. Charles Gabelman, a clinical ecologist of Laguna Hills, Calif. "The fabric of our society now is chemical. Our adaptation is breaking down because this is not a natural situation.

"These people that have this syndrome are the ones who are most susceptible and they are breaking down early. Eventually we feel that all mankind may be in trouble from this unless we can adapt some way."

Among Randolph's conclusions, after 30 years and about 10,000 patients, is that many are sensitive to "most of the products of modern chemical technology," including petrochemicals from smog and exhaust from natural gas wall heaters, to pesticides, plastic lamps and an array of other substances.

"There are a lot of people who dispute it," said Mrs. Kerr, now 77. "A lot of psychiatrists think it is nuts. But I get really depressed if I get into fresh paint or gas or eat supermarket produce that has been sprayed with pesticides.

"It saved my life; that I know."

But Mrs. Kerr's opinion does not amount to scientific proof, at least not according to classical allergists and their professional societies, for whom the tenents of clinical ecology have yet to be proven.

"Personally, no amount of testimonials will convince me — they make me interested in understanding the problem, but they don't convince me," said Dr. Stephen I. Wasserman, chief of the division of adult allergy at the University of California at San Diego's School of Medicine.

"How many testimonials did we have about Laetrile? And Laetrile has now been shown to be not only ineffective, but dangerous. So, before we have another Laetrile, I would like to see scientific proof that the tenets of clinical ecology are so."

Joan Westcott, a former anthropologist, describes a recent experience similar to Miss Nowak's travail of 50 years ago.

The last time she saw her London flat and its library, the center of her urban life, she said the pesticides that had been sprayed there drove her out.

After the pesticide insult, she became reactive to all solvents, minute quantities of gases emitted from plastic carpets, inks, synthetic fabrics, deodorants, tobacco, lubricants, chlorine and other chemicals in addition to wheat products, cheese and a long list of foods.

"I was extremely active," she said. "All my capacities went. I forgot how to use my camera. I could no longer hold syntax. I lost my spelling. I lost the capacity to write. And the pesticides did it."

She could not afford the $10,000 it now costs for a special clinical ecological diagnosis in a clinic like Randolph's. Examinations by Patrick Kingsley, a clinical ecologist of Leicester, England, indicated that she is severely sensitive to certain substances, he said, but didn't necessarily prove she suffers from what he termed a "total allergy syndrome."

'Paint down' continues, testimony indicates

Hearst Feature Service

HOLLYWOOD — It's called a "paint-down," and it's been around since the first white actor smeared war paint on his face and wrapped a headband around his brow.

Blatant examples of the practice have all but disappeared in recent years, but — as the Los Angeles Human Relations Commission found out Thursday — subtler uses linger on.

Vice presidents from Columbia Pictures and MGM/United Artists admitted two such incidents, one in a new fall television series, the other in a major motion picture.

Harvey J. Lehman Jr., vice president in charge of personnel and administration for Columbia Pictures-West Coast, described what happened during the taping of "Bring 'Em Back Alive," a new CBS adventure series that makes its debut next Friday.

Lehman said the script called for one of the lead actors — a black playing a Malaysian — to have a double for a scene in which he's driving "a very expensive vehicle," reportedly a Dusenberg. But instead of using a black double, the program's stunt coordinator painted down a white stuntman.

The Making of a Miss America?

Is the making of Miss America as straightforward as it looks? Artist Nathan Diggs, in the chart above, documents some of the "tricks of the trade" admitted by or alluded to by winners and competitors in the Miss America pageant.

Miss America: Is national beauty born or made?

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer

There she is, Miss America — always dressed and coiffed in super-high fashion, usually slimmed down, often padded high and low, sometimes fibbing about this or that, possibly from somewhere else and, could it be, surgically altered?

Some pageant officials this week charged the new Miss America, Debra Sue Maffett, got her winning "California good looks" through cosmetic surgery after losing the Miss Texas title three times.

"Debbie has had extensive cosmetic surgery since she last tried our pageant," said Gary Jordan, executive director of the Miss Texas Pageant. "She had her nose done, her chin and I'm not sure what else."

But Miss America Pageant officials, Miss Maffett and even her mother, Nonnie Maffett, flatly deny she had a "nose job" to improve her looks or that she moved from Cut and Shoot, Texas, to Anaheim, Calif., to better her chances at a state title.

Miss Maffett, 25, simply underwent routine surgery for a deviated septum, a condition common to her family, they said.

"She has a lump on her nose as it is," said Albert A. Marks Jr., chairman of the Miss America Pageant.

"It's not against the rules, but I've never heard of anyone cosmetically changing themselves — and winning," said Frank Deford, pageant historian, three-time judge and Sports Illustrated senior writer.

"It used to be just a question of whether you still had your maidenhood," Deford said. "No one has checked that for a while."

Only one Miss America has claimed that major cosmetic surgery improved her looks. Miss America 1980, Cheryl Prewitt of Mississippi, was seriously injured in a car accident and later claimed she saw God lengthen her damaged leg two inches during a prayer meeting.

"I didn't have God on my side," said one disgruntled competitor who asked not to be identified.

Still, in big-league pageantry, there are everyday tricks to improve one's chances at Miss America's $20,000 scholarship, about $80,000 in appearance bookings, and fleeting fame.

Most big-state contestants from the South and West arrive at the pageant with an entourage that includes talent, makeup and personality coaches, personal hairdressers, loaned jewelry worth thousands of dollars and donated wardrobes often worth more than $20,000.

Contestants routinely tape their breasts closer together and use dark makeup on their chests to enhance their cleavage. Others use makeup to simulate suntans.

One of the most famous Miss Americas, Bess Myerson of New York, was said to be an expert on such deception when she won in 1945.

She confessed that her slightly larger sister, Sylvia, slept in Miss Myerson's too-small swimsuit to stretch it, according to Deford. The extra-tight swimsuit accented Miss Myerson's figure in competition, Deford says.

But Miss Myerson's straps still didn't fit over her shoulders and so they were sewed shut, forcing her to wear her swimsuit all evening, Deford says.

Many contestants fear idle talk among pageant judges that their breasts are too large, legs are too chunky, hair is too long or that they exhibit, in pageant parlance, the dreaded "fanny overhang."

Regardless of their measurements, which pageant officials never check, all but the tiniest or largest contestants usually report their figures close to Deford's "12-inch hourglass" — 35-23-35 or 36-24-36.

And contestants must smile for hours, often no small feat. Many rub petroleum jelly on their teeth to prevent their lips from sticking to them.

"You're so nervous and your mouth dries up on you," said Miss California 1979, Deanna Fogarty. "It can be embarrassing if your lips get stuck."

It is also not uncommon for hopefuls to size up the competition in their state and then move to another.

Miss Maffett and one of her competitors, Bobbie Lynn Candler, 25, lost the same Texas pageants three times. Miss Candler moved to Louisiana.

The primping, preening, padding and moving around is all legal, according to Marks.

"I have not made it a matter of research, but if women use falsies or false derrieres or other feminine engineering, so what?" Marks said. "We believe a young woman should present herself in the best possible light. If temporary or permanent assistance is necessary, there is no harm."

The pageant only requires a woman live in her state for six months before representing it, Marks said. Contestants can only compete once in Atlantic City. But the rules allow many hopefuls to simply switch colleges for new state affiliations.

A pageant official, who asked not to be named, likened Miss Maffett's move "to someone trying out for the Dallas Cowboys, not making it, and then going out for the Los Angeles Rams."

But others, like Miss America 1981, Susan Powell of Oklahoma, say they win on hard work alone.

"I wish I knew all the tricks," Miss Powell said. "I jogged four miles a day. I didn't eat. I paid for my manicures. I keep my soul clean so I have a good-looking face. I did it because it was good for me. There is no short-cut."

California radio station 'makes waves'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Turn on the radio and take your ears on an ocean cruise. Students do it, and studying is almost a breeze. Insomniacs do it, and they sleep like babies on a gently rocking boat.

They're all tuned in to 89.1 on the FM dial — KMAH, a 100-watt community radio station in Menlo Park that treats listeners to the squawk of seagulls, the bleat of foghorns and the crashing of the waves against the shore, every night from 10 p.m. to 7:30 a.m.

It was an idea born of economic necessity, said Frank Spinetta, general manager of the 4-year-old station, which is owned by Menlo-Atherton High School, where Spinetta teaches communications.

Four months ago, Spinetta recalled in a recent interview, "it reached a point where things were really bad, and everyone was really discouraged."

Then he saw a Colorado newspaper with a spoof ad touting the virtues of a non-existent radio station that didn't broadcast anything.

"It said, 'Tired of talk and noise? Listen to the sound of nothing,'" said Spinetta. "We said, 'Hey, that's a wonderful idea. If we didn't play anything, there'd be nothing to worry about, no hassles with money and programming.'"

The idea of recording and airing the ocean "came out of the clear blue sky," Spinetta said. "One night we put it on and we left it on for two or three days. And we started getting phone calls, then letters. We said, 'Hey, maybe there's something to this.'"

When the station discovered people liked the idea, KMAH made six different recordings of the sea's song.

"In one recording, we had seagulls, sea lions and foghorns. But we took out the sea lions because they sounded like pigs, and we didn't need sea pigs floating in our ocean," Spinetta said. "We took out the seagulls and got a call the next day from a listener who demanded we put them back in."

The station, manned by volunteers, received funding from a variety of sources. Its other programming includes big band music, broadcasts of City Council meetings and other public services for an audience stretching to San Ramon, across San Francisco Bay to the east, and San Jose to the south.

It can't crack San Francisco, though, a problem Spinetta hopes to rectify by raising the station's antenna, which now sits just 28 feet off the ground.

Since the station began broadcasting the gentle song of the ocean, it has received about 20 letters and an average of two or three phone calls a day from appreciative listeners.

"They say it's really great because it's an alternative to everything else," Spinetta said. "They put it on in the background, and they can relax and have this sound that cuts out all the noise and sound of cars on the street. We've had letters saying, 'Don't you dare take it off.'"

"We're the only station I know of that programs for people to sleep," he said with a laugh. "The only problem is keeping the person awake who has to sit here all night."

Let Your Light Shine

Jesus put magnificent truths in simple terms we'll never forget. None among us wants to hide his light under a bushel!

But are we as quick to realize that Christ is really talking about setting the right example?

Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

Those whose light brightens life all week set an especially significant example in their place of worship. Apparently in the worship and work of God they recharge spiritual batteries.

Staffers at the Metropolitan Museum of Art gaze on the newly uncrated 14½ feet high and 13½ feet wide Cimabue crucifix of Santa Croce as it is being prepared for an exhibition opening in New York earlier this week. It was created around 1270 by Cimabue, the most famous Italian artist of his day for the new church of Santa Croce in Florence and survived in virtually perfect condition for nearly seven centuries until the 1966 Florence flood. After restoration, the crucifix was reinstalled in the church in 1976, a symbol of the city's recovery from the flood.

Indian leader proposed for Episcopal sainthood

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An Indian leader who led battles against white settlers before converting to Christianity has been proposed for sainthood in the Episcopalian Church.

The church's governing convention on Tuesday asked its liturgical commission to include the onetime Cheyenne warrior "Oakerhater" on the church's calender of saints, with Sept. 1 to be designated as the day for services honoring him.

The Indian was converted in 1879 and baptized David Pendleton Oakerhater. Afterward, he led most of his tribe to Christianity.

Delegates to the 11-day convention, which ends today, also called for special efforts to "alleviate the pain, suffering, disease and malnutrition which Indians are suffering" on reservations, where the unemployment rate is 89.9 percent, the resoltion said.

The resolution directed the church to press the government to initiate programs to provide Indians with jobs.

"They are proud people and want to work," said delegate William Harris of Pierre, S.D.

In other action Tuesday, representatives of the 3 million-memer denomination:

—Declared they "strongly condemn" abortion when the only purpose is to select the sex of a child or because "trivial abnormalities" are found in the fetus before birth.

—Promised church support to medical personnel who suffer discrimination because they refuse to participate in abortions, or because they do participate.

—Disavowed the "rigid dogmatism of the creationist movement," but affirmed "belief in the glorious ability of God to create in any manner."

—Urged the United States to end military aid to "any of the factions" involved in the conflict in El Salvador.

—Approved medical uses of marijuana, but warned that it can be permanently damaging to smokers.

Jewish New Year observed at Temple Beth El in Odessa

ODESSA — The Jewish New Year is currently being observed by the Jewish community of the Permian Basin at Temple Beth El in Odessa.

Services began Friday and continue this morning and Sunday at 9:30 a.m. A special children's service will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday. All services are being conducted by Rabbi Moshe Cahana of Houston.

One of the main observances of the Jewish New Year is the expression of the wish that one's fate be inscribed and sealed in Heaven for a successful and happy year. The text of the Jewish greeting for the New Year, "La Shonah Tovah Tikasevu (May you be inscribed for a good year)," comes from the belief that God judges the entire world on Rosh Hashanah and decrees the fate of all.

Characteristic of the festival is the blowing of the Shofar, or ram's horn. This tradition dates back to Yom Truah, the day of the blowing of the shofar, which is now called Rosh Hashanah. The Shofar was a musical instrument blown years ago at various religious ceremonies as a call to worship. The oldest reason for blowing the shofar is presented in the Pentateuch where it is mentioned as a means of asking God to remember man.

Jews throughout the world will observe the High Holy Days beginning with Rosh Hashanah and ending with Yom Kippur, the day of atonement. This year marks the beginning of the Jewish year 5743.

The president of Temple Beth El is Paul Deutsch of Midland.

Cynthia Clawson to perform today at First Baptist Church

Cynthia Clawson will perform today at 7 p.m. at First Baptist Church. The concert is free and open to the public.

Miss Clawson is the winner of, among others, the Dove Award for Gospel Music's Top Female Vocalist in 1980 and 1981. She is currently touring the United States.

Miss Clawson has been working to develop her singing voice, which has an almost four octave vocal range, since she was three. She has produced a number of solo albums on the Triangle label, with her single "Words and Music" from her album, "It Was His Love," being named one of the top 10 gospel songs for 1979-80.

Other albums by Miss Clawson include "In the Garden," "The Way I Feel," "You're Welcome Here" (winner of a Dove Award) and "Finest Hour."

The daughter of a Southern Baptist preacher, Miss Clawson has been the featured soloist at many Southern Baptist Convention meetings and with the Billy Graham crusades. She has also made guest appearances on The 700 Club, The PTL Club, and The Bobby Jones Show as well as the Carol Burnett Summer Replacement.

She tours with a 10-piece orchestra.

Rev. F.W. Rogers to be special guest at First Church of the Nazarene Sunday

The Rev. F.W. Rogers will be the special guest speaker at the First Church of the Nazarene, Wall Avenue and F Street, at 10:45 a.m. Sunday when the congregation celebrates its first Sunday in its newly remodeled sanctuary.

Retired now, Rogers was the minister at First Church of the Nazarene for 10 years, during which time the present building was constructed. He now lives at Post.

The church's Sunday School hour begins at 9:45 a.m. with the evening service being held at 6 p.m. The Rev. Harold Quarles will speak at the 6 p.m. service.

The public is invited to attend the services.

Also featured in the evening service will be a picture presentation of the remodeling process.

The church is also adding another annex to the east of the present structure, for educational and administrative purposes. This addition will be ready in approximately two months.

WHERE ARE YOU GOING?

The Series, Family Focus, zeroes in on marriages and home relationships.

Speakers include Dr. Carl Brecheen Sept. 26 at 8:30 and 10:40 a.m. on "Strong Families for Times Like These" and during Bible class at 9:45 a.m. he will speak on "Love...Family Style"; Gary Beauchamp, Sept. 26 at 7:30 p.m. on "Father Power"; Ken Dye, Sept. 27 at 7:30 p.m. on "You Can Have a Good Marriage"; Dr. James Cail Sept. 28 at 7:30 p.m. on "Remodeling a House into a Home"; and Dr. Lynn McMillion Sept. 29 at 7:30 p.m. on "Communication: Key to a Happy Marriage."

The public is invited to attend.

Texas Tech center holds lecture series

LUBBOCK — The Texas Tech Wesley Foundation's Center for Advanced Learning Lecture Series begins Sept. 27 with Dr. Ken Kinghorn.

A historian and theologian, Kinghorn is presently on the faculty at Asbury Theological Seminary. He is also a frequent visitor on "Good Morning America" and "The Mike Douglas Show."

Other speakers in the series include Dr. Anthony Campolo Jan. 22 and Wes and Rebecca Pippert on Feb. 21.

For more information on the series, which is open to the public, contact Steve Moore, director of the Wesley Foundation, at 1-806-762-8749 or by writing 2420 15th St., Lubbock, Texas 79401.

First Christian presents Thai Folk Drama

The Thai Folk Drama will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave. The 18-plus member troupe is from Payap College at Chiang Mai, Thailand.

The program combines Thai history and Thai adaptations of Biblical stories presented by high school and college age students.

One of the Biblical stories portrayed centers around the prodigal daughter, while the other is a dance about Lazareth who is depicted as a rich, drug dealer.

The public is invited to attend this performance. A free-will offering will be taken.

Golf Course Road church adds minister

Due to its increase in membership, the Golf Course Road Church of Christ has added a new minister to its staff.

Tim R. Walker, formerly of the Highland Heights Church of Christ at Lebanon, Tenn., will be the church's minister of involvement. He also will direct the song service on Sundays.

A graduate of David Lipscomb College at Nashville, Tenn., Walker has worked with youths in seminars, forums and meetings.

Walker and his wife, Glenda, with their two children, Marnie, 13, and Tim Jr., 10, come to Midland after serving churches in Tennessee and Alabama for the past 20 years.

RELIGION

Greenwood Baptist holds fellowship

"Time Out Ladies," a fellowship sponsored by Ladies I Sunday School Class of Greenwood Baptist Church, is holding a salad supper at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the church's fellowship hall.

Dr. Toni Craven to lecture at Memorial Christian

Dr. Toni Craven

Dr. Toni Craven will be the guest lecturer at Memorial Christian Church, Andrews Highway and Cuthbert Street, during its fifth annual visiting scholar series.

The three-part lecture series, "The Book of Psalms and the Song of Songs: Ecstacy in the Old Testament," will deal with prayer and human sexuality in the Scriptures. The first two sessions will be on Sunday with the third one set for Monday. Times are 9:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and 5:45 p.m. Monday.

Craven, assistant professor of Old Testament at Brite Divinity School at Texas Christian University, has a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Maryland, a master of art from Andover Newton Theological School, where she graduated magna cum laude, and a doctorate from Vanderbilt University, at Nashville, Tenn.

Her professional experience includes instructor in Old Testament at Marquette University, Milwaukee, Wis.; teaching assistant at Vanderbilt University; lecturer at the Catholic Center at Nashville; director of religious education at St. Philip Church at Franklin, Tenn.; teacher at Bromley Cross-Adult Education Center at Boston, Mass.; and at Country Day School of the Sacred Heart at Newton, Mass. and at Washington, D.C.

Publications by Craven include "Artistry and Faith in the Book of Judith," Semeia in 1977; review of John H. Otwell's "And Sarah Laughed" in Journal of the American Academy of Religion in 1978; response to John F. X. Sheehan's "Canonical Criticism: A Place on Which to Stand in Doing Biblical Theology" in Theology and Discovery: Essays in honor of Karl Rahner; and a review of David Winston's "The Wisdom of Solomon" in Journal of Biblical Literature.

The public is invited to attend.

Hope Lutheran to celebrate 20th year as synod member

Hope Lutheran Church, 2003 N. A St., will celebrate its 20th anniversary as a congregation of the Texas-Louisiana Synod, the Lutheran Church in America, Sunday. Hope Lutheran was first organized on Sept. 16, 1962, with 60 charter members.

Plans to observe the special day include a service of celebration at 10:30 a.m., a reception for friends of the congregation at 2:30 p.m. and an anniversary program at 4 p.m.

Dr. Philip L. Wahlberg, bishop of the Texas-Louisiana Synod, will speak at the 10:30 a.m. service. The Covenant Players, an interdenominational drama group, also will perform several short skits.

The formal reception at 2:30 p.m. will be served by the young women of the church, including Melissa Kibler, Tamara Parker, Lisa Clements, Darcy Anderson, Jody Anderson, Anne Geddes and Ria Rohner. Former and present congregation members, area Lutheran churches and congregations of the Midland Association of Churches have been invited to attend.

The Covenant Players will perform again at 4 p.m. with the slide show, "Twenty Years — A Congregation in the Making," also being shown. Greetings will be conveyed by the Rev. Donald Hafemann, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, the Rev. Gary Haaland, pastor of Midland Lutheran Church, Wahlberg, and the Rev. Joseph Schley Jr., president of the Midland Association of Churches and rector at St. Nicholas Episcopal Church.

At the afternoon program, Dave Kibler, president of Hope Lutheran, will present to Wahlberg a love offering designated for a new mission congregation in the Texas-Louisiana Synod. Wahlberg will confer the gift to the "Chinese Lutheran Church," a new congregation in Houston which is formally organizing Sept. 26.

Members of the planning committee for the day's events include Beverly Stichtenoth, Dave Kibler, Wanda Gray, Lael Cordes, chairman, and the Rev. David Baker, pastor of Hope Lutheran.

Many more Americans 'unchurched'

GLORIETTA, N.M. (AP) — Research indicates that the number of "unchurched" Americans — those not affiliated with any church — increased by 5 million, or 23 percent, from 1970 to 1980.

Orrin H. Morris, director of research for the Southern Baptist Home Missions Board, told a missions conference that the "unchurched" now totals more than 84 million. He said their rate of increase was much faster than Southern Baptist growth in that period, about 15 percent, up to 13.6 million.

WEEKLY COMMODITY MARKET REVIEW

The major news items had little effect in the futures market this week as most markets digested their recent gains and losses. Trading was within previously established price ranges.

Precious metal prices were mixed with gold and platinum prices declining while silver gained slightly in the week. The gold-silver ratio has now come back down to below 50.

The corn and soybean market rose early in the week on threat of frost in the western cornbelt. When this did not develop, the market came under late week selling pressure. Wheat fell on long liquidation as elevator movement increased to make room for the new corn and soybean harvest.

Flooding in parts of the Delta and Southeastern cotton belt during the weekend boosted cotton futures prices early in the week, but the overall bearish fundamentals as indicated in the USDA supply/demand report again took hold and prices ended lower for the week.

Money supply grows more

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's money supply surged $4.3 billion in early September, its seventh straight weekly jump, the Federal Reserve Board reported Friday. Analysts said they expected no further relief from high interest rates until the bulge is reduced.

In the interest-rate dominated world of the bond market, there was little reaction to the late afternoon report and many traders expressed relief that M1, a measure of funds readily available for spending, did not grow even more. Interest rates for all maturities of investments rose only a few hundredths of a percentage point from levels they held before the Fed's weekly announcement.

"It's still a big number, but not quite as bad as some feared," said Maury Harris, an economist at the investment firm of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis Inc.

But Harris said he did not believe the outlook for interest rates had improved as a result of the report. "It suggests to me that rates will remain on a plateau for a few weeks," he said.

Rates plunged in July and fell to two-year lows by late August, before leveling off with the resurgence in the money supply.

Cigarette smoking rises in Third World

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — World Health Organization officials, elated over the eradication of smallpox and encouraged by progress in controlling other diseases, say they are concerned about the increase in cigarette smoking and lung cancer in the Third World.

The organization, a specialized agency of the United Nations based in Geneva, calls it a "smoking epidemic."

The WHO officials point to what they say is statistical evidence that a steady increase in cigarette smoking in developing countries is accompanied by soaring rates of lung cancer and cardiovascular diseases.

The organization also accuses the tobacco industry of using higher tar and nicotine contents in cigarettes marketed in the Third World.

WHO offficials say the organization's still-incomplete statistics suggest that smoking has been increasing by an overall 5 percent annually in the Third World in recent years while it slowed in the West.

SOME EXPERTS SAY they trace the trend at least partly to what they claim is aggressive sales promotion by the top Western cigarette manufacturers looking for new markets.

The International Union against Cancer, also headquartered in Geneva, says that tobacco firms subject "developing countries to many of the most cynical and discredited forms of advertising that are no longer acceptable in most Western countries."

Industry leaders, according to a World Health Organization survey, include British American Tobacco, marketing 300 brands in 180 countries; Philip Morris, with 160 brands in 170 countries, and R.J. Reynolds, 65 brands in 140 countries.

In Washington, William Kloepfer Jr., senior vice president of the Tobacco Institute, a lobby and political affairs organization for the American tobocco industry, disputed the claims, saying they "appear to be familiar themes propounded by anti-smoking advocates, including WHO for many years."

"THERE HAS BEEN NO demonstration of the truth of such charges as abusive advertising techniques or the marketing of cigarettes yielding higher tar and nicotine in Third World countries," he said in a statement to The Associated Press. "If there is a measured increase in cigarette smoking it is probably because greater affluence permits more widespread purchasing of manufactured cigarettes and less use of homemade smoking materials."

Third World governments are urged to take measures "to avoid relearning the lessons of the industrial world," according to a paper presented to a recent regional WHO-sponsored meeting in Swaziland in Africa.

"An added assault by the tobacco industry on people in developing countries is the high tar and nicotine contents of cigarettes marketed there," says another World Health Organization publication. Except for Egypt, no developing country requires package information on these levels.

"THE INDUSTRY EXPLANATION that it merely responds to consumer demand for stronger cigarettes in these countries is just a lame excuse," Dr. Roberto Masironi, coordinator of the organization's Smoking and Health Program, charged in an interview.

He said tests are under way in organization laboratories in the United States and Canada to determine whether cigarettes sold in developing countries have higher nicotine and tar contents than the same brands sold in the West.

An independent report, cited by the organization, claims that tar yields of cigarettes sold in the Philippines are twice those of the same four brands marketed in the United States, Britain, and Australia.

In some countries, growth of cigarette consumption has been spectacular. Sales in Thailand, for example, increased by 50 percent between 1970 and 1977. People there spend one-fifth of an average income on cigarettes. In India, consumption of cigarettes has gone up 90 percent in 20 years, in Pakistan 60 percent in 10 years and in Sri Lanka it is increasing by an annual 8 percent, according to WHO surveys.

Malaria on rise

Malaria is once again on the rise around the world. In the past 10 years the number of cases doubled worldwide. In some places, it increased 30 to 40 times. The latest World Health Organization figures report 150 million new cases of malaria in 1981, with an estimated 215 million people chronically afflicted with the disease.

Reagan campaign focuses on 'average' Americans

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gone are the black-tie fund-raising parties. Now, it's good ol' Ron Reagan, out on the range or visiting an Italian-American festival.

This is President Reagan in Campaign '82, taking the advice of his aides who say it is time to stay away from the events that associate him with rich Republicans.

He is traveling approximately one day a week this month, and will step up his schedule to about four days a week next month, leading up to the Nov. 2 election.

While Republican advertising stresses the idea that he hasn't had enough time to set the economy straight and he deserves more of a chance, Reagan himself is focusing on the issues that worked for him two years ago, in relaxed settings that provide perfect backdrops for his familiar message.

An Analysis

THAT IS WHY REPUBLICANS in Utah got a chance to see him on a hay wagon, and why some New Jerseyans will see him Friday at a San Genaro festival and a Polish-American Club, where he will swear-in new citizens.

"The issues are with us this year," he told House and Senate Republicans at a fund-raising dinner last spring. "If we do our job between now and November, voters will reconfirm the mandate they gave us in 1980."

He advised them to run on the same issues that worked in 1980 and "stand on the record" of his administration.

The campaign idea is to portray Reagan with Mr. and Mrs. Average America, to show him back with the people whose help was crucial in 1980.

So it was last Friday, when the president campaigned for Sen. Orrin Hatch's re-election effort in Utah. With shiny machines whirring and clanking, he inspected a cannery run by the Mormon Church. Then, it was on to a picnic where he perched on the hay wagon, with the Wasatch Mountains looming in the distance, and cheered up a soggy, rain-soaked crowd.

A ceremonial posse from the Weber County Sheriff's Office presented the president with a sheriff's badge, and he turned the event into a political wisecrack:

"WITH THIS BADGE THAT they gave me, maybe I can stop some of the highway robbery that's going on in Washington."

At each public event of the two-day trip, which began in Kansas, the president focused on themes that were staples of his 1980 standard campaign speech: volunteerism, reduced federal spending, government red tape, prayer in schools, and opposition to abortion.

And throughout, there was the idea that things have gotten better since inauguration day, 1981, and that they will continue to improve if Republicans are elected to the Senate and House.

The president even managed to mention unemployment, which has risen to 9.8 percent, a record level — a fact he did not raise. But, said Reagan, "unemployment didn't just come upon us in this recession. Unemployment has actually been building in America for 15 years. It's averaged 7 percent or better ... since 1976."

HE SAID THAT WHEN HE campaigned in 1980, unemployment in Detroit was 18 percent. He did not mention that as recently as July, the jobless rate there was 18.1 percent.

MIDLAND CHAMBER OF COMMERCE 1982 FARM & RANCH TOUR

The Midland Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a Farm & Ranch Tour of Midland County on Wednesday, September 22, leaving from the parking lot at Cubs Stadium at 7:30 a.m. on that day. The tour will make a number of stops at Midland agriculture projects, include a barbecue lunch, and return to Cubs Stadium by 1:00 p.m.

There is no charge for going on this tour of Midland's third-largest industry. Seats on the tour are limited and persons interested in participating should call the Chamber of Commerce office at 683-3381 no later than Monday, September 20, for reservations.

What about my telephone service?

What will happen to my local rates? Is it true they're going to skyrocket?

I've heard the telephone company's splitting up. What's happening?

LET'S TALK

Let's Talk. You've probably heard about changes coming to Southwestern Bell. You may have questions about those changes. If so, we want to make sure you get answers.

Q. I've heard stories about "divestiture" and the telephone company splitting up. What's happening?

A. AT&T has agreed with the Department of Justice to separate itself from the local operations of 22 Bell telephone companies. So within 18 months of when the agreement goes into effect, Southwestern Bell will become an independent company.

Q. If Southwestern Bell is "on its own"—without AT&T behind it—won't the quality of my telephone service be affected?

A. No. You can expect the same dependable service you have now. And you'll have the same dedicated people standing behind it.

Q. What will happen to my local rates? Is it true they're going to skyrocket?

A. Rates are not going to skyrocket, but they will go up. Local rates will rise because of many factors, among them inflation and changes in accounting and financial procedures. In addition, Southwestern Bell has been subsidizing local telephone service with profits from long distance and other services. In the future, local service will have to pay more of its own cost.

If you've got other questions, let's talk. Just call 1-800-555-5000 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday-Friday.

There'll be someone to talk to. Somebody to get you information.

Bobcats, Mojo stay undefeated

District 4-5A favorites, San Angelo and Odessa Permian, continued to roll out impressive victories Friday night as the non-district football slate came to a close.

San Angelo dropped No. 1 ranked Class 4A Brownwood by a 21-7 margin as sophomore Bevins Hoffman carried for 156 yards and three touchdowns on 32 carries. Brownwood held a 7-0 lead in that game, but the Bobcats scored once each in the last three quarters with Hoffman scoring on runs of 55 and one yard twice.

Odessa Permian walloped Forth Worth O.D. Wyatt by a 51-7 margin, despite Wyatt scoring first on an interception in the first quarter.

Britt Hager and Mike Troglin each scored two touchdowns and quarterback Rex Lamberti tossed two touchdown passes to pace the Mojo attack.

Abilene High climbed to 2-1 for the year with close 20-15 win over powerful Longview. AHS scored late in the fourth quarter on a six-yard pass from Stacy to Christian to win the game.

Abilene Cooper fell to 1-2 with a 28-14 loss to Temple and Odessa High fell to 2-1 with a 6-0 loss to Hobbs, N.M. Big Spring is also 2-1 on the year after a 10-0 win over Levelland.

Lake View tops Tornadoes, 40-0

LAMESA — The San Angelo Lake View Chiefs, the pre-season favorites to win the District 2-4A title this year, handed the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes a 40-0 shutout here Friday night in what is the first of two meetings between the two teams this year. This was a non-conference outing for both teams and the next matchup will be a district game.

The loss dropped Lamesa to 1-2 while Lake View is 3-0.

Lake View got 197 yards rushing from Dwight Edmund, including TD runs of 14, 67 and two yards. Troy Butts also kicked field goals of 25, 32 and 26 yards in the game to pace the Chief attack.

Both teams are open next week as they gear for district play.

Matadors spear Dawgs

Harris rushes 268 yards in 23-6 win

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Lubbock Estacado fullback Billy Harris leaped into the pages of Memorial Stadium history Friday night by rushing for 268 yards in 23 carries to help his Ms football career, riddled the Bulldogs' eight-man front wall with lightning speed and no runner in the past decade has ever had that kis football career, riddled the Bulldogs' eight-man front wall with lightning speed and no runner in the past decade has ever had that kind of night at Memorial Stadium.

In addition to his 71-yard touchdown run in the third quarter, the one that broke the Purple Pack's back, Harris turned in runs of 24, 32, 33 and 36 yards during the night.

"IT'S A wonder he didn't have 368 yards," responded MHS coach Pat Culpepper. "It was one of those games where all you can do is walk across the field and stick out your hand — and don't carry any guns home."

"We are a tailback oriented ball team, but they were giving us the trap play and they couldn't stop it. So we just kept going to Harris," said Estacado coach Lewis Kelley. "We had no idea our line could dominate the line of scrimmage like we did. We thought Midland might out-quick us, but the trap worked."

"I've never had a night like this before," noted Harris, "but the line really opened up the trap play. It just worked all night."

Culpepper said his team just couldn't stop the trap. "They were getting the angle block on us all night and we just weren't quick enough to fill the hole. I thought our kids tried to make a game of it in the second half, but Raymond Chambers was out with a neck injury, Alex Mata got tired, Ricky Madrid goes down again in the first quarter and Kyle Kitto came up from the JV to have a good night, but he lost a contact lense in the fourth period. We were just back there with nothing left. We just can't get down on our team at this point."

DESPITE THE 427 yards rushing rolled out by Estacado, Midland High stayed in the game until the midway mark of the third period. The final score could have been much worse. The Matadors had a 66-yard touchdown by Percy Hines called back in the first half and a 77-yard punt return by Kelvin Johnson called back in the second half.

Still, MHS trailed by a mere 10-0 count at the half. Estacado's Johnson broke for a 42-yard TD with 5:02 still left in the first period and quarterback Wayne Dotson booted a 22-yard field goal with 4:28 left before the half.

The Bulldogs never threatened in the first half and had a mere 52 yards of total offense at the halfway mark.

But the Bulldogs got a break in the third period when John Hibbitts recovered a Harris fumble at the Estacado 48. Two 15 yard penalties helped the 'Dogs and Hibbitts was rewarded for his work with a three-yard TD run with 6:10 left in the period.

That cut the margin to 10-7, but Harris buried the Bulldogs on the next play from scrimmage as he used the trap play again for a 71-yard TD romp and a 16-6 lead.

Estacado added an eight-yard TD run by Dotson with 48 seconds left in the game for the final 23-6 margin.

Fullback Kyle Kitto, up from the MHS junior varsity, led the Bulldogs with 60 yards in 14 carries while Hibbitts had eight on 34 carries.

HIBBITTS AND Bobby Hillin were standouts for Midland High on defense, coming up with several big plays. But Estacado was ripping off yardage almost at will against the Bulldog defense, which had been the bright spot for Midland High up to this game. No one expected any team to roll out over 400 yards in offense against the Bulldogs this year.

The Bulldog offense continues to suffer, managing only 131 yards rushing and 23 passing. MHS is now 1-2 heading into District 4-5A play next week at Odessa Permian, one of the teams favored to gain a district playoff berth.

Estacado, now 2-1 on the year, can now look to an open date while shouting praises to Harris, who had himself one fine night.

Monahans surprises Andrews Mustangs, 30-20

MONAHANS — Highly touted Monahans tailback Ricky Boysaw rushed for 246 yards on 25 carries here Friday night to lead his Loboes to a 30-20 fourth quarter come-from-behind victory over the Andrews Mustangs in a non-conference football game. Due to the dropping of Odessa Ector from the District 2-4A schedule, Andrews and Monahans will have to play each other twice this year, and if the second outing is like the first, it should be a good one.

Monahans had to score 14 points in the fourth period to earn the victory with Boysaw guiding drives of 68 and 34 yards in the last 3:05 of the game.

Andrews held a 20-16 lead heading into the fourth period after a Brent Petross four-yard TD completed a 57-yard drive for the Mustangs, but Monahans pulled out the rally for their first victory of the year. Andrews is also 1-2 for the season.

Monahans held a 16-13 lead at the half on another Boysaw TD and a 26-yard pass from quarterback Jeff Stevenson to Alan Henry.

Andrews struck first in the game when Tudy Gonzales scored from two yards out on a 72-yard Andrews drive. Andrews also went 50 yards in the second period when quarterback Bill Morrison scored from two yards out.

Lee registers third straight at Eastwood

Rebels ramble again, 42-13

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

EL PASO—Midland Lee played as close to a perfect ball game as a team could possibly play Friday night in routing El Paso Eastwood, 42-13, here. And that one sided score could be attributed to a questionable play near the end of the first half.

The gilt-edged performance kept the Rebels unblemished at 3-0 heading into District 4-5A play against Odesssa next week.

With only 20 seconds left on the clock before halftime, the Troopers faced a fourth and 14 on their own 41. Quarterback Eddie Burgoyne was sacked for a six-yard loss. Burgoyne set up a quick snap to get off a final play, a pass that fell incomplete.

Eastwood should have punted.

AFTER THE exchange and with an 18-7 lead, Lee quarterback Eddie Joe Strambler threw a 41-yard strike to Damon Polk for a 24-7 lead. Starting quarterback Paul Cox then hit right end Mike Barton on a two-point conversion for s 26-7 halftime lead.

That score took nine seconds. Four seconds into the third quarter, Lee's defense tackled Brad Kitchen in the end zone on the kickoff to up the count to 28-7.

The ensuing free kick yielded nothing for the Rebels, so punter Mike Mecourio, who fired two touchdown passes in the Lee scoring spree, jacked one into the end zone giving the Troopers the ball on the 20. That was the beginning of the Troopers final score of the night.

The drive covered 80 yards in 14 plays and was capped when Burgoyne hit James Given from 11 yards out with 3:59 left in the third quarter. Givens' kick was wide.

THE REBELS drew first blood when Darrell Fennell capped a 76-yard drive on the 12th play of the opening series with a one-yard run to give Lee a 6-0 lead. Robertson's kicked failed, but Lee never looked back.

Lee Coach Spike Dykes played nearly everybody on the Lee roster and never seemed to lose anything by the tactic. In all, five quarterbacks and 19 different players carried the ball. Overall, Spike was happy with the result.

"I thought we had good blocking on the line, better than we've had so far," he said. "I thought our pass defense did well. We bent, but we never broke. And they have such a big play capability. I was glad we held them down."

Looking at the stats, Lee's defense did do a good job, even though they gave up 229 yards passing and 72 rushing. But that wasn't bad when you consider that from their first two games the Troopers passed for 674 yards, making 229 seem an inconsequential total.

ON THE other side of the coin, Lee's ground attack compiled a whooping 362 yards and added 113 more through the air. Individually, Scott Ackroyd led the rushers with 69 yards while quarterback Cox accounted for 61. Cox's yardage came basically on one play, a play similar to the one used last week against Monahans that took him for 95 yards and a touchdown. Like last week, it was Ackroyd on the fake and Cox running for the end zone, leaving the pursuit in his wake.

McBee wins NTPGA in sudden death

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Rives McBee was so busy dueling Benny Passons and fighting off the agony of a bad back in the final round of the North Texas PGA/Sahara Slacks Sectional that Dwight Nevil, the leader the first two rounds, almost made off with the title Friday at Green Tree Country Club.

McBee, who never saw the lead until the fourth hole of the final round in the 72-hole test of stamina, went into overtime to beat Nevil, who birdied three of the last four holes to gain a tie with a final round 68.

McBee, the former Midland CC pro, now club pro at Los Colinas in Irving, shot a final round 70 for a 278 in a sizzling three-man final day finish.

The win was McBee's third Sectional triumph, the others coming in 1977 and last year, tying Jack Cupit's record of three.

THE BACK trouble started for McBee when he hit his second shot on 18 Thursday so hard that "I felt a twinge." By the time he got back to the motel Rives was in pain. "I did exercises in a hot shower and took Anacin, but I still wasn't sure I'd be able to get out of bed today."

Rives got through the first nine okay, but "by 12 I was gobbling extra strength Bufferin to kill the pain."

"McBee dedicated the win to "all the people in Midland who were so good to me when I was assistant pro at MCC."

That was back in the mid-1960s when MCC members backed Rives on the PGA tour. McBee made national headlines when he shot a record 64 in the second round of the 1966 U.S. Open.

PASSONS TOOK a one-stroke lead into the final round and McBee battled the Fort Worth pro tooth and nail after pulling even on two. McBee went in front on four, when Passons bogeyed, and two up on six. Passons drew even again by birdying 9 and 10 and they were all even going into 14.

McBee birdied 15 to take the lead. From there, it looked like it was all down hill. "I was busy worrying about Benny, but here comes Dwight."

Nevil, who experienced a wild week in which he scored a course record 63, had his clubs stolen from his motel room that night and then got them back Wednesday after playing with borrowed clubs Tuesday, birdied 15-16-18. McBee had to birdie 18 to stay even.

On the sudden death hole, McBee hit an 8-iron to within three feet of the pin and dropped his birdie on the par four hole.

SWC favored in 5 of 8 intersectionals

By Associated Press

The Southwest Conference was favored in five of eight intersectional games this weekend by oddsmakers with the Houston-Arizona State matchup in the Astrodome considered even.

The Texas Longhorns, making their 1982 debut, were 10-point favorites over a Utah team that has already played twice.

Sixth-ranked Southern Methodist, which destroyed Tulane 51-7 last week, was such a prohibitive favorite over Texas-El Paso, a 55-0 loser to Washington, that the oddsmakers refused to quote a point spread.

IN OTHER games, Texas Tech was a seven-point favorite over Air Force in the Red Raiders' home opener; Texas A&M was a three-touchdown selection over Texas-Arlington; and Arkansas was a 17-point nod over Navy in Little Rock.

Kansas was rated a seven-point choice over Texas Christian at Lawrence, Kan., and Tulane was picked by the same margin over Rice in New Orleans.

Baylor, a narrow 21-14 loser to Ohio State last week, will be idle.

The SWC stands 3-4 against outside competition and needs a big weekend to get back to the record pace of 20-10-1 it posted last year.

SMU, TCU, Arkansas, and, of course, Texas are the only unbeaten teams going into the second full week of play.

TCU won its first home opener since 1974 last week in defeating Utah State and has the Jayhawks scared for their regionally televised (CBS) 12:35 p.m. game.

Kansas was stunned 13-10 last week by Wichita State.

Jayhawk Coach Don Fambrough said, "From what we've been told by coaches and other people in the Southwest Conference, this TCU team has a chance to be very good. They've had two straight excellent recruiting classes and now have a lot of offensive weapons.

"We do know they have an excellent defensive team. That Darrell Patterson (AP SWC Defensive Player of the Week) at linebacker is a heck of a football player."

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman isn't totally discouraged over the Cougars' 31-12 loss to Miami last week.

"I think we will iron out some of the things we need to iron out and avoid some of the things we shouldn't have done and play darn well," Yeoman said.

TEXAS TECH Coach Jerry Moore was hoping to please a home opening crowd of some 40,000 by grounding the Air Force which blasted San Diego State 44-32 last week.

"We didn't have the intensity I thought we should have had," said Moore.

SMU rushed for a school record 519 yards in defeating Tulane.

"We can't take them (the Miners) lightly," said running back Craig James. "You've got to play every game like you're in a street fight ... tough and hard every play."

NFLPA abandons '55%' demand for share of TV

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League Players Association abandoned its demand for a percentage of team gross revenues Friday, less than four days before the deadline they had threatened for the sport's first regular season strike.

Instead the union asked for a percentage of the league's $2.1 billion television contract.

There was no immediate response from the owners.

The union had been asking for 55 percent of the gross income of the league's 28 teams, estimated by the union at $3.5 billion over the next five years. The TV money amounts to 60 percent of that figure, $2.1 billion.

"We have taken a significant step by moving from percentage of gross to percentage of television revenue," said Ed Garvey, NFLPA executive director. "We do this to remove a major stumbling block in the negotiations."

The association made its counterproposal following management's Sept. 8 offer that included over $1.6 billion in bonuses and increased benefits over the next five years.

"Our counterproposal accepts the public assertions of (management chief negotiator) Jack Donlan that the clubs are willing to spend some $1.6 billion dollars," said Garvey.

"The negotiating committee has not backed off from its threat to strike, however," Garvey added, "if significant progress is not made in guaranteeing players a fair share of the revenues."

The proposal came as negotiations resumed in New York. Earlier this week, Garvey and other union leaders said a Tuesday strike deadline would probably be set if progress was not made Friday at the bargaining table.

The union proposal places a cap on pleyer costs each year. It also calls for creation of a compensation fund, to be controlled by management, that would be funded half from network TV revenues and the remainder each year by the clubs.

Midland College 2nd in WJCC golf opener

LEVELLAND—Midland College took second place in the first of three WJCC Fall golf tournaments Friday and former Midland High golfer Emil Hale shot a medal 35-33-68 to lead the Chaparrals to a 288.

Coach Delnor Poss said, "I was really proud of this bunch today, because they are all freshmen but played like veterans."

Host South Plains College led the field with a 286 at Levelland CC while NMJC was third at 292 with Odessa College and Western Texas tied a 293 while NMMID had a 310.

Other Midland scores: Mike Schwartz 73, Jeff Cranford 73, Robert Iovinelli 74, David Stillwell 81, Robert McFardin 81.

The next WJCC tournament will be at WTC Oct. 2.

Demolition Derby

A National Demolition Derby with a $3,000 prize purse will be held 8:30 p.m. today at at Twin Cities Speedway, five miles east of Odessa on Highway 80.

Over 100 cars are pre-entered for and the first place winner will win $1,000. The top seven places will receive cash prizes.

Admission charge for the derby is $5 for adults, $1 for children six through 11 and under six free.

Gates open at 5 p.m. at the Speedway. Sponsors of the show said junk buyers will be present to purchase all wrecked vehicles.

Bass tournament

SAN ANGELO — The KBIL-FM Bass Tournament, scheduled for three San Angelo lakes, will offer $5,000 to contestants Oct. 9-10.

The top 25 fishermen will be awarded cash prizes. Entry fee is $40 before Oct. 8 and $50 for late registration. To enter call Steve Everett or Chris Stone at KBIL-FM in San Angelo at 944-0502.

First place will bring $1,500 while second will net $800 and third $575. The prize money scales down to $50 for 16th through 25th place.

Adams fires 69 to keep share of 1st in Fame

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Jack Renner birdied five of his last seven holes to complete the best round of the tournament, a 7-under-par 64 that lifted him into a three-way tie for the lead Friday in the second round of the Hall of Fame Classic.

Renner, winner of two titles in his six years of PGA Tour activity, shared the top spot at 136, six-under par, with non-winners Lance Ten Broeck and John Adams, the first-round pacesetter. Adams, Midland, Texas, had a 69 in the mild, hazy weather, and Ten Broeck compiled another 68.

Judge refuses to postpone NCAA ruling

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — A federal judge on Friday refused to postpone a ruling he made earlier that would strip the NCAA of its control over college football's television contracts. The NCAA is appealing an injunction granted Wednesday by the judge, U.S. District Judge Juan Burciaga of Albuquerque, N.M., at the request of the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia.

The NCAA had asked for a stay of his order pending an appeal to the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver. The NCAA will now ask the appeals court on Monday to grant a stay of the original order.

Three share lead in PING Tournament

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Three teams managed 7-under-par 65s Friday to share the first-round lead in the wide-open $120,000 PING Team Golf Championship.

The co-leaders were the teams of Silvia Bertolaccini-Dot Germain, Robin Walton-Chris Johnson and Rosie Jones-Leann Cassaday.

Four other teams were one shot back at 6-under-par 66.

Donna Caponi and Kathy Whitworth, winners of three of the five PING titles, were among three pairs at 5-under 67.

No. 1 Pittsburgh already derailed

By Associated Press

The No.1 jinx that derailed six top-ranked college football teams a year ago, apparently has returned for 1982 and isn't limiting itself to losers.

Not even a 7-6 victory over North Carolina, the nation's fifth-ranked team at the time, was good enough to keep Pitt at the top of the ratings. Now, it is Washington's turn as No.1 in the Assosiated Press poll, the first time the Huskies have ever been at the top, and Coach Don James says, "It'll make the game much more difficult for us than it already is" when they begin defense of their Pacific-10 Conference championship Saturday night at Arizona.

"The ratings are nice before the season starts," James says. "But the season has started now. I think our concern should be our game each week. I know my concern is Arizona right now."

PITT, WHICH traded places with Washington this week, is now No.2 and the Panthers also will be on the road for a night game at Florida State. The only game pairing members of the Top Twenty finds 10th-ranked Michigan at No.20 Notre Dame, kicking off Gerry Faust's second campaign as coach of the Fighting Irish with the first night contest in the 53-year history of Notre Dame Stadium.

Elsewhere, third-ranked Nebraska entertains New Mexico State, fourth-rated Alabama plays Mississippi in Jackson, No.6 Southern Methodist visits Texas-El Paso for a night game, eighth-ranked Penn State hosts Rutgers and No.9 Arkansas meets Navy under the lights in Little Rock. Fifth-ranked Florida and No.7 Groegia are idle.

In the Second Ten, Vanderbilt is at No.11 North Carolina, No.12 Ohio State at Michigan State, No.13 Arizona State at Houston for a night game, No.14 UCLA at Wisconsin, No.15 Miami, Fla., at Virginia Tech, Boston College at No.16 Clemson, Maryland at No.17 West Virginia, Utah at No.18 Texas under the lights and Indiana at No.19 Southern California.

If a coach could write the script, his team would not become No.1 until the very end of the season when it's too late for anyone to knock them off. James says he hopes Washington's elite ranking "provides as much motivation for us as it will for Arizona."

EVEN BEFORE the latest rankings were announced, Arizona Coach Larry Smith said that "in my mind we are playing the No.1 team in the country. We won't make a lot of hoopla about this game. In a big game like this, my players know the importance. We were embarrassed two years ago by Washington (45-22) and my players know they were good then and are now. Washington is a super fine team. They are very good at what they do."

Notre Dame usually is very good at what it does, too, but last year was an exception when Faust found the going rough in jumping from the high school ranks to the most storied college football team. The Irish posted a 5-6 record, their first losing mark since 1963, and Faust says all concerned are "eager to start turning things around."

Notre Dame's 45th consecutive sellout crowd (and 93rd in its 94 home games), plus a national television audience (ABC-TV, 8 p.m.) will get a chance to see Faust's second edition.

"It has been an awfully long off-season after going through a year like we did last fall," Faust says. "We learned lots of lessons, but it's been tough for all of us. If anything, though, I think the adversity we all experienced a year ago has made us work that much harder to get ready this time around.

"We'll be playing a Michigan team that without question will be a great one, a Michigan team that beat us badly last year. That combined with the excitement of the first night game in our stadium, should make for a very emotional evening."

ALABAMA'S Bear Bryant hasn't lost to one of his pupils — i.e., former players and coaches — in over a decade and is 38-5 against them with a streak of 27 in a row. However, the Bear is only 3-3 at Jackson's Memorial Stadium where the Crimson Tide takes on Ole Miss and Steve Sloan.

"I knew they were going to be a lot stronger this year, but I didn't have any idea they could run away from Southern Mississippi like they did," Bryant says.

Sloan, who played quarterback on Alabama's national champions in 1964 and 1965 and later served three years under Bryant as an assistant coach, has contributaed four victories to the Bear's record 316-10-2 at Vanderbilt and 0-2 at Mississippi.

"Whenever you play Alabama, it always presents a teremendous challenge," he says. "This year is no exception. Alabama is a team of quality talent and great experience and depth.

McCamey snares Upton County title

By CHAD PUERLING
Sports Writer

RANKIN — After a year in limbo the Upton County championship goes to the McCamey Badgers, who beat Rankin 16-7 here Friday night. Last year the two Upton county high schools tied 7-7, leaving neither city the bragging rights to football supremecy.

McCamey head coach Larry Nabors was particularly proud of the defensive showing his Badgers made against the Red Devil offense which had averagd 27 points per game in their first two outings.

"We were concerned earlier about our defense but they're beginning to come around," he said. "Our goal was to contain Dennis Black while not giving up the big plays to their other running backs, and I think we were sucessful at that."

BLACK, AN all-district selection last year, managed 104 yards despite being the target of the Badger defense.

Rankin coach Dwayne Turner agreed the defense was stacked against his premier running back. "They had both their linebackers keying on Dennis. That's one reason we had him throw the option pass."

The first time Black threw the option he hit Frank Quiroz over the middle but wingback dropped the perfectly throw ball.

But following a Badger fumble on their own 25-yard line Black and Quiroz tried again this time for a 20 yard gain.

On the next play Black finished off the short two-play drive, tying the score at 7-7, with 44 seconds left in the half.

MCCAMEY WAS the beneficiary of a Rankin miscue when David Stephens intercepted a Quad Midkiff pass on the Devils' 33-yard line late in the first quarter.

Three plays later quarterback Ray Zarate handed off to Jodee Stephens on what appeared to be an inside hand off but Stephens pitched out to Kenny Terry who swept around left end for the 14-yard scoring play.

"We haven't seen that play from them," Turner said. "Not this year or last."

The Devils' coaching staff made adjustments at half time and the next time McCamey tried the play, Rankin forced a fumble.

After receiving the second half kickoff, McCamey marched 62 yards in 11 plays to go ahead 13-7. They extra point was missed due to a mishandled snap.

"THE FIRST score of the second half was the turning point of the game," Nabors said. The drive was highlighted by two third down pass plays.

Zarate connected with Clay Lindsey for 39 yards and David Stephens for 17 more to keep the drive going. Fullback Robert Day took the ball in from the three as the Badgers ate 5:32 off the clock.

Rankin drove back with a nifty 74-yard, 19-play drive that fell three yards short. It was a costly three yards as the Devils would never get that close again.

McCamey's final score was a 19-yard Zarate field goal with 4:11 left to play, putting the game out or reach.

Rankin outrushed the Badgers but four lost fumbles and two pass interceptions nullified the extra yardage.

Ozona smothers Reagan

BIG LAKE — Quarterback David Badillo and running back Willie Payne scored two touchdowns each as the Ozona Lions devoured the Reagan County Owls 45-7 here Friday night.

Reagan County averted a shutout with 4:19 to go when Tailback Gregg Fisher fired a 34-yard TD pass to Scott Britton.

Badillo broke loose for 21 yards for the game's first score as the Lions exploded for 24 first period points, and added another score 57 seconds before intermission on a four yard run by Payne.

Mason converted seven extra points and then kicked a 24-yard field goal with 14 seconds in the game for Ozona.

Favorites advance in Zone play

Play moved into the round of 16 in both men's and women's singles of the Major Zone Tennis Tournament under way at Midland College, with doubles also scheduled to start early Sunday afternoon.

No. 1 seeded Bill Freer of Lakeway struggled with Angelo State's Scott McKay but eventually won while No. 2 seeded Frank Guernick downed Russell Coffey, 6-1, 6-0. Hardin-Simmons University tennis coach Joe Williams, seeded No. 3, won two matches while David Webb won at the expense of Kris Cassells.

Jon Brotherton, Wichita Falls, beat Jeff Gerke, 6-1, 6-4 and Craig Anderson, Wichita Kansas, playing for Midland College, beat Tray Dyer 6-3, 6-3.

In girl's play, Susan Torrance, Sheesa Packard, Rene Garza, and Becky Roberts, the top four seeds in that order, advanced in singles.

Wilson Ranch, BTA ride to wins

Wilson Ranch and BTA took polo victories Friday afternoon at the Midland Polo Club.

BTA won an 8-5 decision over Pitchfork Ranch behind the play of Spencer Beal, Miguel Torres, Steve Flores and Kelly Beal. Pitchfork team members were Jim Hickey, Steve McCarrick, Ed Little and Ryan Reddell.

Wilson Ranch took a 9-6 win over Y Bar O with Byron Wilson, Tom Higgins, Carlos Gaimdo and Willie D. Wilson. The Y Bar O team was composed of Jimmy Yarborough, Hector Galindo, Marco Galindo and Judd Roe.

Wink Wildcats claw Jal, 13-7

JAL (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Travis Price ran for two touchdowns to propel the Wink, Texas, Wildcats to a 13-7 victory over the Jal Panthers Friday night in prep football action.

Price and tailback Tom Basco moved the visiting team up the field while the Wildcat defense stopped numerous scoring threats by the Panthers.

Price got his first TD in the first quarter with a 15-yard jaunt across the end zone. He added six more points for the Wildcats in the following period on a 16-yard carry.

Basco carried the ball 21 times for 98 yards and caught two passes for 48 yards. Price, who completed five of six passes for 79 yards, teamed with Basco on several key plays to keep control of the ball for most of the contest.

Jal scored its only TD on a 53-yard drive. Jose Ruiz ran back five in the end zone for the touchdown.

Kermit turns back Artesia

ARTESIA (AP) — Quarterback Aemed Rameriz completed only three passes, but two of them went for long distance touchdowns as Kermit, Texas edged Artesia 14-6 Friday night in prep football.

One of Rameriz' two TD passes went for 87 yards to Rex Kilgore and the second was for 61 yards to Joe Lujan in the fourth quarter.

Midlander makes most of chance with Pokes

STILLWATER, Okla. In an age when college athletes are finding it hard to come out of college with a degree, Midlander Paul Speight is making the most of his opportunity at Oklahoma State University.

After four years of juggling practices, meetings, weight room sessions and going to classes, Speight will accomplish not one goal, but two. He will graduate with a degree in marketing as well as management.

"I just stayed with my studies. I tried to go to class all the time and just listen to what the instructor is saying," Speight said. "I've really been fortunate."

It's often unusual for an athlete to graduate in four years. There's a tremendous amount of time alloted for workouts, but Speight will graduate on time. And that's just the half of it — he's also married.

It is difficult for Speight to spend a lot of time with his wife Janice because a typical day for a football player is much busier than that of a normal student. He attends classes each day until noon and has to be at the OSU training room at 2 p.m. to begin taping. At 3 p.m. he has team meetings for an hour before the main attraction — practice.

Following a team dinner, there are more meetings to attend before homework to fill out the day.

Speight will be the first to admit he lives a hectic life, but he's doing what he wants. Coming out of Midland Lee, the Speight household was in no danger of having to replace doors being knocked down by college recruiters.

"I was only recruited by OSU, New Mexico and a bunch of small schools," Speight said. "My dad went to Oklahoma and he thought the Big Eight would be a fine opportunity for me. But I was also very interested in business and we have a fine business school here.

"I'd like to work as a personnel manager or something like that where I can be in contact with people," said the 6-foot-5, 255-pound lineman.

Saints trade Archie Manning to Oilers

FOOTBALL—New Orleans traded quarterback Archie Manning to Houston for offensive lineman Lion Gray, a move that makes Ken Stabler the Saints' No. 1 quarterback. Gray, 30, is considered one of the NFL's best offensive blockers and a key to the success of Oiler running back Earl Campbell.

Texas AD DeLoss Dodds says UT is ready to accept TV bids for home football games this year if a court decision against the NCAA stands. "All along the problem has been that you cannot negotiate for what your product is worth." If NCAA fails to get the order stayed, "I assume business would go on as usual — except for the fact that NBC might get involved in the act. They may call and ask us about the Texas-Arkansas game (Dec. 4) and then I would ask what kind of price they had in mind," DeLoss said.

Former Miami Dolphins football player Don Reese pleaded guilty Friday to a charge of probation violation in connection with his admitted use of cocaine. Sentencing was scheduled for Oct. 28.

BASKETBALL—Kentucky's 7-1 Sam Bowie may have to undergo surgery for a broken bone in his left leg, Wildcats Coach Joe B. Hall said.

TENNIS—Unranked Sandy Collins upset top-seeded Wendy Turnbull 6-1, 7-6, 6-2 Friday, advancing to the semifinals of the Tokyo World Ladies' tournament and will meet Barbara Potter, who beat Mima Jausovec 6-4, 6-0, in the semis. Hana Mandlikova of downed Bonnie Gadusek 7-5, 6-4, and Bettina Bunge ousted Pam Casale 6-4, 6-7, 6-4.

AUTO RACING—Mario Andretti took the pole position for Road America 200 at Elkhart Lake, Wis., with a 99.737 mph lap in his Cosworth-powered Wildcat 8b Indy racer.

Crane beats Buffs to stay unbeaten

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

STANTON—Crane's Golden Cranes used a 23-yard first period field goal by Junior Bishop and a seven-yard fourth period TD run by Eddie Jones to hand Stanton its first defeat of the season and spoil the Buffaloes' homecoming, 10-0, here Friday night.

The Cranes, who were 0-10 last season, not only are unbeaten and untied in three games this year, but are unscored upon as well.

End Cliff Barnett set up both Crane scores with passes from quarterback Eugene Morris.

The first was a spectacular 73-yard aerial that took the ball from the Crane 18 to the Stanton nine on the second play of the game. The drive bogged down, but Bishop, a 267-pound lineman, sliced a kick off the side of his foot which fluttered through the uprights.

Stanton, guilty of three interceptions and two lost fumbles, saw any lingering hope fade away when Jones recovered a fumble by quarterback Martin Arguello at the 38 with 6:35 to go. The Cranes struck 39 yards in seven plays with Jones-Barrett hooking up on an 18-yard pass that put the ball on the 13 and set up Jones' seven-yard TD jaunt over left guard.

Stanton's best opportunity came in the first period after the Crane field goal when the Buffs marched from their 13 to first down on the Crane 35, however, Tony Aguilar intercepted a pass by Robby Barnes.

After a 66-yard punt by Scott Church into the Crane end zone ended the first period, the Buffs weren't to see the ball again for eight minutes and 19 seconds as the Cranes marched to the Stanton 19 before surrendering the pigskin.

The big difference between the teams came on turnovers, 5-1, and Cranes 164-yard passing attack. Stanton failed to complete a pass. Barrett caught three for 109 yards.

Linebacker Tracy Spinks was the defensive standout for the Buffs, making four unassisted tackles for losses plus an assisted tackle for a loss and recovering a fumble.

The loss leaves Stanton 1-2 for the season.

Brewers slug hapless Yanks, 14-0

By The Associated Press

Gorman Thomas slammed a three-run homer to cap a five-run Milwaukee first inning, Robin Yount drove in four runs and Mike Caldwell pitched a three-hitter for his sixth straight victory, leading the Brewers to a 14-0 trouncing of the New York Yankees Friday night.

Caldwell, 16-11, walked one and struck out three for his third shutout of the year. He has won nine of his last 10 decisions this season and is 12-3 lifetime against the Yankees. The .800 winning percentage is the best by a pitcher against New York.

The first-place Brewers opened up a two-game lead in the American League East as Von Hayes drove in four runs with a homer and single to back Rick Sutcliffe and the Cleveland Indians to a 5-3 victory night over second-place Baltimore, snapping the Orioles' six-game winning streak.

Tom Brunansky and Gary Ward hit two-run homers after two were out in the third inning, leading the Minnesota Twins to a 5-4 victory over Kansas City. But the first-place Royals maintained their two-game edge in the AL West when Jesse Barfield and Buck Martinez hit solo home runs to lead Toronto to a 6-2 victory over second-place California.

Right-hander Dan Petry won his first game since Aug. 23, and Chet Lemon and rookie Mike Laga homered as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Boston Red Sox 5-1.

The Oakland A's-Chicago White Sox game at Comiskey Park was rained out.

In the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals opened up a three-game lead over second-place Philadelphia in the Eastern Division with a sweep of a twi-night doubleheader in New York.

Chung Choi owes bell for title opportunity

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Were it not for the early sounding of an errant bell, Chung-Il Choi might not be fighting Saturday for the World Boxing Council super featherweight title against champion Rafael Limon.

But Choi is facing Limon because the WBC ruled that the early bell in Choi's January fight against former champion Rolando Navarrete had robbed him of a possible title victory.

Limon, of Mexico City, is making his first defense since winning the 130-pound title for the second time. He beat Navarrete in May to regain the title that he first won in December 1980, then lost three months later to Cornelius Boza-Edwards.

Saturday's fight at the Olympic Auditorium is scheduled for 15 rounds, but appears unlikely to go the distance.

Choi, a 24-year-old from Seoul, Korea, was undefeated and the No. 1 challenger at the time he fought Navarrete in The Philippines.

Late in the fifth round, Choi knocked down Navarrete. Navarrete struggled to his feet at the count of nine, still dazed, and the bell rang three seconds later to end the round.

Videotapes revealed that the bell had sounded nine seconds early, preventing Choi from doing any more potential damage to the champ. Navarrete knocked out Choi in the 11th round.

10,000 anticipated at Tom Mix Festival

DUBOIS, Pa. (AP) — Thousands of hero worshipers from America and Europe, some strutting in spurs and 10-gallon hats, are paying homage this week to the late Tom Mix, original king of the matinee cowboys.

"He was 10 feet tall in the saddle to me," recalled Richard Seiverling, a long-time fan of the dashing silent film star.

By the time the six-day Tom Mix Festival ends Sunday, about 10,000 people are expected to have dropped by to take in 30 hours of cowboy movies, assorted Tom Mix memorabilia and a parade Saturday.

"When you saw Tom Mix on the screen, you knew good was going to triumph over evil. The bad guys didnt have a chance," said Robert Cotton, a historian from Bartlesville, Okla. "I like to call it Mix magic."

Tom Mix mania is flourishing 42 years after Mix died when his custom-made supercharged Cord car crashed on an Arizona highway.

Although Texas, Oklahoma and California have claimed Mix as a native son, the locals insist Mix was born in 1880 in Mix Run, Pa., about 40 miles northeast of here.

He made 370 films — most of them silent movies, although there were nine feature-length talkies and a 15-part serial, "The Miracle Rider."

At the height of his popularity in the 1920s, he earned $17,000 a week.

Long before Gene Autry, John Wayne and Clint Eastwood chased Indians and bad guys on the silver screen, Mix set the standard for movie cowboys. A dashing daredevil, he did all his own stunts with his wonder horse Tony. He didn't drink, smoke or swear on screen, and his fame spread across the sea.

"Tom Mix is the best-known American actor in Europe. For many people, he's the best-known American," said Peter Schauer of Vienna, Austria, attending his first Mix festival.

"I believe Tom Mix was the best ambassador the U.S. ever had," Schauer said.

"He was our idol. He was a hero of the German," said Kurt Klotzbach of Dortmund, West Germany. "He had 5 million fans in Germany and even Hitler could not ban his films."

As part of the festival, townspeople and visitors dress in authentic Western garb, right down to neckerchiefs, badges and real six-shooters. For breakfast, one can even order hot Ralston cereal, which sponsored the Tom Mix radio show from 1933 to 1950, and established the Tom Mix fan club called the Ralston Straight Shooters.

"In this day and age, everybody is running down heroes," said Serge Darrigrand, a Tom Mix look-alike and engineer for General Motors Corp. in Onsted, Mich.

'Star of Family' has its own brilliance, series star says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brian Dennehy says he sees his new series, ABC's "Star of the Family," as the show with something extra.

"I know the framework sounds like a hackneyed situation comedy," says Dennehy, "but what makes it different is the brilliance of the writing.

"My character's Buddy and — everything sounds like a rehash of some past show — Buddy's a fire captain whose 16-year-old daughter suddenly blossoms into a Western-pop success. Buddy's a single parent and he doesn't know how to deal with it too well."

Dennehy, who previously starred in "Big Shamus, Little Shamus," says he thinks the show is in a delicate balance between the carryover of young viewers from "Joanie Loves Chachi" and his own desire to appeal to a more sophisticated audience.

"So far we've been able to do that, but we've had some late evenings," he says.

He is one of Hollywood's busiest character actors and has three movies coming out. In fact, he was working on a film in Canada when he got the offer for "A Star in the Family."

He says he was first attracted by the fact that the offer came from Rollins and Joffe, who also manage Woody Allen, Robin Williams and others.

"After my bad experiences with 'Big Shamus,' I didn't want to do episodic television for a while," he says. "When I climbed aboard, I wanted to know that the people who did the pilot would remain with the show. I didn't want to get into a situation where you're suddenly dealing with a whole new set of people and they have different ideas about the show and you can't do anything about it.

"If this doesn't work it won't be because we shifted gears. We are making the show we set out to make."

In the movie "Captured," he stars with Elizabeth Ashley, James Woods and Peter Fonda. "It's about cults," Dennehy says. "We deal with real human beings under stress. We did it last year in Dallas with Ted Kotcheff directing."

He's also in the Disney film "Never Cry Wolf," which stars Charles Martin Smith. "That was like making 'Cleopatra' without the disasters," he says. "The shooting went on over two years, although I was only in it a few months. Carroll Ballard, who did 'The Black Stallion,' directed. He was a fascinating man, who seemed to have this vision of the movie in his head. I think the potential's there for a great movie."

Dennehy was directed by Kotcheff a second time in "First Blood," which stars Sylvester Stallone and Richard Crenna. He plays a police chief whose provocation sets a Vietnam veteran (Stallone) off on a rampage.

"I was doing mostly comedy when I came out here from New York," he says. "I wanted to get some film doing some serious stuff. Then that's all I did for four years. Now I'm back doing comedy again. People will soon be asking me if I can do serious drama."

Gary Gleason stands beside the fake police car he created to stand beside a road at the edge of town in Hedville, Kan. Gleason, a local sign builder, tired of speeders and decided to see if placing the wooden car near some bushes on the side of the road would deter them. He says it works well and is planning on another for the other side of town. Because of the town's lack of a local police force, Gleason and other community members are doing their best to police the town themselves.

Jury gives robbery defendant five-year probated sentence

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A 22-year-old Arizona man who was a codefendant in the aggravated robbery of a conveniencestore in which beer, cash and money from an Easter Seal jar was taken by a beer-bottle wielding robber and his companion, was placed on probation for five years Friday by a six-man, six-woman jury in Midland's 142nd State District Court.

The defendant, Frank Lawrence Michelbach II, of Tucson, Ariz., was assessed the punishment, which threw Presiding Judge Pat Baskin, prosecutor Jim Rex and defense attorney H. Thomas Hirsch into a dither for about 1½ hours — about the same time the jury took to affix punishment. The jury required only 32 minutes to reach a guilty verdict.

The rub came after the jury had delivered its punishment verdict — a 10-year sentence which it suspended to a five-year probated term — and after Rex had questioned whether or not the jury could mete out probation for an aggravated offense in which a deadly weapon — the beer bottle — was used. State law prohibits the judge from doing so.

But after the judge conferred with Rex, Hirsch, District Attorney Vern Martin and his chief prosecutor, David Joers, and checked into relevant statutes and case law, Baskin brought forth the jurors and announced he would accept their verdict. Earlier, the judge had been considering a mistrial.

"AN ATTORNEY in this courthouse has raised the question as to whether or not you could be empowered to grant probation in this kind of crime," Baskin told the jurors.

He noted that state law prohibits a judge from granting probation to a person convicted of aggravated robbery.

"The statutes, in our opinion, authorize the jury to do so," he said.

At the onset of the trial and beginning with the voir dire of the jury panel, the jury panel was told that Michelbach was eligible for probation, since he had never been convicted of a felony.

Range of punishment for aggravated robbery, a first-degree felony, is five years to 99 years or life in the state penitentiary.

Michelbach was indicted for using a deadly weapon, a quart bottle of beer, to rob 7-Eleven Food Store clerk Betty Mae Fisher Swigelson shortly after midnight on March 30.

Michelbach's co-defendant, 21-year-old James "Jim" Kuder, who pleaded guilty to the crime last June 30 and was sentenced by Baskin to 10 years in prison, testified that his companion was using the beer bottle as a weapon.

However, the 7-Eleven clerk testified that Kuder and not Michelbach was wielding the quart bottle and ordered her to hand over the money from the cash register. Michelbach, who elected not to testify in his own defense, was accused of stealing two 12-packs of canned beer from the store's cooler and taking bills from the Easter Seal benefit jar at the store's counter.

MICHELBACH AND Kuder were arrested later that night at a rental storage room, about a mile from the store and where they had been staying with three women.

After Baskin dismissed the jury, the jurors filed past the 22-year-old defendant and his Odessa attorney and cordially exchanged handshakes.

"Thank you," Hirsch said.

"Thank you very much," said an unsmiling Michelbach.

The judge, though cordial, was not so lenient. In levying judgment and in placing Michelbach on probation for five years, the judge imposed on the defendant a 30-day imprisonment in Midland County Jail. Michelbach had been incarcerated there since April 11, as he nor his father, Frank Michelbach, posted the $50,000 bail required for his release.

However, the judge initially set the 30-day term to begin at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, so that Hirsch could prepare an argument against it. The judge said that he would not allow any "good time" which could cut back on the month-long period. But the judge let the defendant pick the time that the imprisonment would begin.

Michelbach selected 1:30 p.m. today, rather than immediately, so he could visit with his father. Baskin said the Michelbach son would stay in jail until Oct. 17, when he would be released. But the judge said he had not decided if he would allow Michelbach to leave Midland County during those five years and return to Tucson.

WHILE THE DEFENDANT was standing before the judge and accepting the judgment, Baskin told him he was fortunate.

"I think you are just one of the luckiest young men to come down the pike," he said in an apparent reference to the probated term set by the jury. However, Baskin told the defendant that he found it "almost inconceivable" that punishment for his crime could be met with probation.

As Michelbach turned to leave, his father twice motioned and whispered for him to "thank" the judge. "Thank you," he said, and walked off.

Earlier, but after the jury had set punishment, the father and son briefly visited with Rex, the prosecutor, and essentially complimented him. The father said he would hire Rex if he ever got out to Arizona and into private practice and if Michelbach needed a lawyer for whatever reason.

"It's nothing personal," Rex, who had sought a prison sentence for the son, told the father and son. "I was just doing my job. I do not approve of what you did."

Soldier's 'defection' puzzling

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The American flag which used to cover the window of Joseph T. White's second-story bedroom is gone — packed away in a closet by his grieving parents. Gone, too, are the posters that adorned the walls and a picture of a girlfriend.

One floor below, Kathleen and Norval White spend anxious days by the telephone, waiting and praying for some word about their son, an Army private who disappeared Aug. 28 while standing guard duty in the Korean demilitarized zone.

"My husband can't swallow his food and I'm having trouble eating too," said Mrs. White, nervously lighting another in an endless chain of cigarettes.

"If it hadn't been for prayer, I think she'd be in the nuthouse," added the missing soldier's father. "And so would I."

NORTH KOREAN officials say White, 20, crossed the border into North Korea, denounced the foreign policy of the United States, and asked for political asylum.

Although the United States has requested a face-to-face meeting with the soldier and asked other foreign governments to intervene, the North Koreans won't allow White to meet with American officials or call his parents.

A spokesman for the United Nations Command in South Korea said the last time U.S. troops saw White, he had his arms pinned behind him and was being forced by North Korean troops into a bunker on the northern side of the demilitarized zone.

"We're just totally confused," said Mrs. White. "For three nights, we stayed up all night asking how this could happen. The kid I knew was a straight arrow, proud of being American and proud of being in the army.

"We've gone all over his entire life and we can't understand how this could happen."

AMONG THE mysteries — White had been sending home money from each month's paycheck and had built what his father, a spray-painter for General Motors, described as a "sizable account." It remains untouched, he said.

And White, who was due for release in October 1985, had also been sending home mementos of Korea. Last spring, he mailed home the U.S. Second Army Infantry emblem and told his folks he planned to hang it on the wall when he returned.

Those who knew the sandy-haired, slender soldier are also at a loss to explain his disappearance.

"Something must have happened to him," said Lois McDaniel, a family friend. "Something must have clicked. He wouldn't do anything like that unless they brainwashed him."

Leonard Brown, who lived next door to the Whites for more than 20 years, said he and his wife were amazed when they learned White had dropped out of the ROTC program at Kemper Military Academy at Boonville, Mo.

"We were sure he wanted to be a military officer," said Brown.

White was a B-plus student at Kemper before he dropped out last fall to join the Army.

BRIG. GEN. Lloyd P. Rhiddlehoover, president of Kemper, described White as an arch-conservative. "I'm having a hard time reconciling all this, knowing his leanings while he was here," he said.

The titles on the shelves of the private's bookcase reflect his fascination with history — much of it war-related. Included in the collection was a biography of Adolf Hitler, a copy of "Mein Kampf" and a volume on the philosopher Friedrich Nietzsche, whose theories were perverted and exploited by the Nazis.

"I got him a subscription to the Civil War Times for a present the Christmas before last," said Mrs. White, who is anxious to speak with soldiers who served with her son.

The vigil has taken its toll on the middle-class neighborhood of two-story, well-kept brick bungalows.

"We've been driven nuts by the telephone and our neighbors are all getting calls too," said Mrs. White. "We feel sorry for having brought all this down their throats."

But it's been hardest on the Whites and their other four children.

THEY HAVE written President Reagan and former President Nixon seeking help. They've spoken frequently with Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., and the Pentagon. They've launched a petition drive demanding an investigation of their son's disappearance.

End to military rule possible

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The armed forces announced Friday night they will restore Congress and order their troops back to the barracks, ending more than two years of military rule, but they set no date for the transfer of power.

This Andean nation has been virtually paralyzed by a general strike called Thursday by labor leaders demanding economic reforms and a return to democracy.

The general strike followed a series of regional strikes that started Monday and brought about the commanders' emergency meeting at the Miraflores army headquarters here.

Reports that the military chieftains would surrender power had swept La Paz earlier in the day as the generals completed three days of urgent talks with President Celso Guido Vildoso Calderon, also an army general.

Enjoy it for many moons.

The 1982 Honda Prelude Sport Coupe. Think of it as a civilized sports car, designed for uncomplicated sportive handling and fuel-efficient fun.

And a car to be enjoyed for many moons. Both because of the attention to quality engineering that goes into all our cars, and the Prelude's standard power-operated moonroof.

With front-wheel drive, 4 wheel independent suspension, steel-belted radial tires, 5-speed transmission and tachometer.

It's only once in a blue moon a car like this comes along.

Northgate

You can't afford NOT to buy any longer!

Total move in costs of $5250 is based on 5% down or $3800 plus $1450 limited closing costs based on 15 days prepaid interest. The first year's payment of $673.30 (principal and interest only) is based on a loan amount of $71,400. The first year's payment and buyer qualification will be calculated equivalent to a rate of 10 7/8% for 95% loan-to-value. Interest will be charged at a rate of 15 7/8% for the first 6 months of the loan. After the first 6 months interest will be charged at the most recent 6 months Treasury Bill plus 4.25%. Payments on these mortgages are graduated so as to increase the principal and interest payments 7.50% each year for the next 4 years. At the end of the first 5 year period, the graduation in payments will cease. A new payment schedule will be computed using a variable rate mortgage to amortize the remaining balance over the remaining 25 years of the mortgage bases upon the then current Treasury Bill rate plus 4.25%. The 7 1/2% maximuym increase can be more if the original loan principal exceeds 125%. At each 5 year anniversary date, the adjusted to allow the remaining payments to fully amortize the loan. Annual percentdge rate approximately 15.50%.
