Possible mail fraud under investigation

Several Colorado City residents may be the unsuspecting victims of mail fraud.

According to Colorado City Police Chief David Montgomery, someone may be sending away for catalogue merchandise with someone else unknowingly receiving the bill.

"What appears to be happening is someone locally is going into the post office and obtaining mail order catalogues from the trash," he said.

He explained that these catalogues are sent to individuals who, deciding they do not want the catalogues, throw them away.

"These individuals may already have an account with the company because they may have ordered merchandise from them before," Montgomery said.

He added that what appears to be happening is merchandise is being sent to a particular post office box under the name of an individual who has a different box number.

"There appears to be as many as three victims right now, but there could possibly be more," Montgomery said.

Anyone who has received a bill for merchandise they did not order is asked to contact the Colorado City Police Department or Postmaster George Jones.

"Right now I can't say that any crime has been committed," Montgomery said. "What I can say is that catalogues are being delivered and people need to be very careful about the way they dispose of them."

U.S. Postal Inspectors are currently looking into the matter, he said.

Mail fraud is a federal offense and anyone convicted of such crimes can serve time in a federal prison.

THIS WEEKEND IS THE BIGGEST SHOPPING WEEKEND OF THE YEAR and Colorado City merchants saw many shoppers walk through their doors. Kathy Slafka of Bryan, Texas was in town this week visiting relatives when she decided to take in some of the seasonal sales downtown.

Future Improvements

$7.1 million loan to meet City's needs

The recently approved $7.1 million loan that Colorado City will utilize is expected to meet the city's long term needs.

The loan is designed to put in new water and sewage treatment facilities and accommodate the present prison and the new state jail that is currently under construction.

According to City Manager Steve Shutt, future growth and expansion of the city have been accounted for within the project.

"The city's growth capacity is in the neighborhood of up to 6,000," he said. "This is a future growth figure and won't happen immediately."

He added that there are no definite answers in terms of how much growth the city will experience and how fast it will happen.

"It really doesn't matter what the growth is or is not," he said. "The city has never been in a better position to cope with the expected expansions."

Shutt explained that the kinds of facilities the city plans on utilizing will be more cost effective because there will not be a need to rebuild the systems when expansion becomes necessary. Instead, additions will be made to them.

"The kind of treatment systems we will be putting in are modular enough in nature that any expansion for additional capacity will be fairly inexpensive," he said.

The loan is expected to help the city provide a higher quality source of water to residents.

The city's water source will be moved from Lake Colorado City to Lake Champion.

"The move alone will have a drastic effect on the taste of the water," Shutt said.

He added that the water's rusty color and bad odor will also be eliminated with the completion of the project.

"We will be replacing practically all of the water distribution lines," he said. "People will notice a big difference in the color and taste of the water and the odor problem should go away."

New sewage treatment plant is 'state of the art'

The new sewage treatment plant to be constructed with part of the $7.1 million loan the city received last week will be a state of the art facility.

The new sewer treatment plant is expected to be less expensive, provide for irrigation of land and implement methods of treatment that are more natural.

City Manager Steve Shutt said, "There is no discharge anywhere. All [water that has gone through the treatment process] is consumed in farm irrigation and micro-organism treatment of waste."

The treatment of the wastewater will go through three levels: primary, secondary and tertiary.

The new sewage treatment facility will utilize a pond system of treatment.

"The primary and secondary levels are handled through a series of ponds that allow for billions of microorganisms to consume the sludge and waste," he said.

The primary level of treatment removes solid waste and the secondary level takes the treated wastewater and brings it to a level that would be acceptable for discharge into streams and rivers.

However, this water is not discharged but instead used to irrigate lands, he said.

This irrigation leads to the tertiary level of naturally recycling the water in a relatively unpolluted state.

Shutt said this new facility is more environmentally friendly, more cost effective and will prove more beneficial in the long run.

City prepares for Bluegrass Festival

The City of Colorado City has already begun preparations at Ruddick Park for the planned First Annual Spring Fever Bluegrass Festival to take place during the upcoming Memorial holiday weekend.

City workers have already begun steaking out the areas that will provide 100 trailer and RV hookups.

Workers will have hookups for electrical, water and sewer lines completed in time for the May 26-28 festival.

The cost to install the hookups has been estimated to be between $2,000 and $3,000. The rent collected on these sites is expected to generate enough money in the first year to pay back the expenditures and produce revenue for the city.

Texas PTA opposed to legislation to legalize concealed weapons

"The legislative positions recently adopted by the 85th Annual Texas PTA Convention delegates provide evidence that youth crime and violence are weighing heavily on the minds and lives of parents and teachers," said newly-elected Texas PTA President Charlotte Travis of San Antonio.

"In the last legislative session, PTA did not have a position on concealed weapons, but this year the message is loud and clear from convention delegates that Texas PTA opposes legislation to legalize concealed weapons," Travis stated.

Due to the personal campaign of members in the Richardson ISD Council of PTAs who have been affected by juvenile crime, more than 800,000 PTA members now support their efforts to combat juvenile violence by calling for tougher sentences for young criminals, trigger locks on guns to prevent them from being fired accidentally, a ban on carrying concealed weapons and holding parents more accountable for their children's crimes.

Other Texas PTA positions dealing with violence prevention encourage manufacturers of toy guns to make toy guns of brightly colored materials and unrealistic design so that toy guns cannot be confused with real guns, and support the training of children, faculty and staff in nonviolent conflict resolution techniques.

To enhance the position on violence awareness and prevention, Texas PTA has written legislation to guarantee parents the right to have a safe school environment for their children, to opt their children out of corporal punishment, to disallow the videotaping or tape recording of their children and to have access to the school records of their children.

Newly-elected officers of the Texas PTA for a two-year term include President Charlotte Travis of San Antonio, First Vice President Gail McCada of Richardson, Second Vice President Sylvia Ostos of Corpus Christi, Recording Secretary Nelda Duke of Splendora and Treasurer May Schmidt of Austin.

With more than 800,000 members, Texas PTA is the largest child advocacy organization in the state. It is affiliated with National PTA.

For a complete list of legislative positions and resolutions or for more information on the "Parents Bill of Rights" legislation, call the Texas PTA office at (512) 476-6769.

TRC suggests safety check for propane use

With the advent of cold weather, the Texas Railroad Commission suggests that homeowners who fuel furnaces and appliances with propane contact their local dealer for a safety check of their propane tank and regulator.

Safety officials warn that if the regulator vent ices over or is clogged by insect nests or debris, high pressure gas can be released directly to home appliances.

Regulators on most home tanks are located under a protective metal dome on the top of the tank, shielding them from weather and insects. On some tanks, however, the circular regulator is installed outside the dome cover. Owners of these tanks should check to make sure the regulator vent is pointing down, away from the elements, and is free of debris.

If homeowners are concerned about whether their regulator is properly installed and operating correctly, they should contact the local dealer who fills and services their tank.

Some people buy propane in portable tanks for use in barbecues or as a supplemental heat source. Colder weather may prompt such users to bring the portable cylinders indoors. But Commission officials say all propane cylinders and containers must stay outside for safety, as required by the Commission's safety rules.

Alzheimers is fourth leading cause of death among elderly

As many as 200,000 Texans age 65 or older now have Alzheimer's disease, according to health officials. The disease is now the fourth leading cause of death among the elderly.

Veronica Durden, director of the Texas Department of Health's (TDH) Alzheimer's Program, said, "The challenge faced by medical specialists, researchers and health care providers is enormous. While we search for a cure for Alzheimer's, we also must improve treatments of Alzheimer's many symptoms. It is crucial that our society provide real support for families struggling with this tragedy."

Durden said the TDH Alzheimer's Program assists families and medical personnel throughout Texas with information and referral about available resources to combat the Alzheimer's epidemic in Texas.

The program operates a toll-free information line, 1-800-242-3399, from the program's office in Austin.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

As a cotton producer in Mitchell County, I urge my neighbors to vote to form a boll weevil eradication zone and approve the maximum assessment rate to pay for such a program between now and December 1.

The boll weevil is a major pest problem in our area which causes producers to spend huge amounts of money to control the pest or to simply give up the crop to the weevils. Either way, the continued presence of the weevil ultimately means fewer dollars that are circulating in our communities.

Because of the relatively mild winters we've experienced in the last decade, weevil numbers have been skyrocketing. Through an all-out comprehensive program and by joining together under this cooperative effort, we can eliminate the weevil.

Similar programs have eliminated the weevil from the Carolinas, Georgia, Arizona and California. Not only is there a successful history on this program, there is the fact that these producers are not having to spend money to fight the weevil, which gives them a comparative advantage over us.

Without boll weevil eradication,

I believe we will be put out of the cotton farming business in this part of Texas.

An added benefit of the program is that land values have stabilized or increased following eradication programs. Not only do cotton producers have a stake in this referendum, but absentee landowners do as well. Anyone who receives direct income from cotton production is eligible to vote in this referendum.

I urge everyone who receives a ballot to mail it back in with a yes vote on both propositions. It is going to mean whether or not we are going to stay in the cotton producing business in the future.

Sincerely,
Tommy Fuller

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank the warden and other officials of the Wallace Unit, our commissioner, Bill Preston and especially the inmates from the Wallace Unit for all the clean-up work they are doing in Loraine. They have made our little town so much neater and cleaner.

Thanks again for all the work.

TDCJ inmates do not pay sales tax on some items

Inmates in the Texas prison system do pay sales tax on most of the items they buy from prison commissaries, according to a statement issued last week by the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. Several recent published and broadcast reports had left an impression to the contrary.

The prison system has remitted $879,000 in sales taxes to the State Comptroller's Office on commissary sales in the past year.

Under provisions of state law, Comptroller's Rule 3.293 and Attorney General Opinion No. H639 (issued in 1975), sales tax is not charged on food, soft drinks and candy purchased by inmates. However, those items are taxed when purchased at the commissaries by prison employees.

He enjoys basketball, horses, chicken fried steak, chocolate ice cream, the color blue, Monopoly and country or soft music.

Jeremy's favorite saying is, "No guts, no glory."

He says that if he could change one thing about school, it would be that "all sports would be equal and that we would have a rodeo team."

If there were one thing Jeremy could change about the world "there would be no more drugs."

Sims to sponsor intern program

State Senator Bill Sims has announced that he is sponsoring an intern program for the 74th legislative session, which begins January 10 and runs through May.

"The session promises to be very interesting," Sims said. "We have had a good response in years past, and I am looking forward to having even more of my constituents involved in the legislative process through the 24th district."

Because of limited space in the senator's office, internships are restricted to residents of the 24th senatorial district, which includes Bell, Brown, Burnet, Callahan, Coke, Coleman, Concho, Coryell, Lampasas, Llano (partial), McCulloch, Menard, Mills, Mitchell, Nolan, Runnels, San Saba, Shackelford, Stephens, Taylor (partial) and Young counties.

Residents of the 24th senatorial district who are interested in being a part of this program for a few days during the legislative session may call Delta Haffelder at (512) 463-0125 or you may write to P.O. Box 12068, Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

Effective January 1, 1995 the telephone number will change to (512) 463-0124.

Scholarship applicants are sought

America's National Teenager Scholarship Program, celebrating its 24th year as a national scholarship competition, is seeking girls between 13 and 18 years old to enter the West Texas Scholarship Program and compete for college scholarships and thousands of dollars worth of cash prizes.

The finals will be held Saturday, May 27 at Wayland Baptist University, Plainview. Over $70,000 in scholarships will be awarded on stage during the final program.

The senior and junior division award winners will receive college scholarships and a trip to TCU to compete for the Texas State Title.

State winners will receive a trip to the famous Opryland theme park in Nashville, Tenn. in August, where they will compete for national prizes including $10,000 and $5,000 scholarships, trips to Hawaii and tours of the United States.

Teenagers wishing to enter the competition should write to Mrs. Terri Marcus-Lager, State Director, America's National Teenager, 2557 Meadowlake, Abilene, Texas 79606 or telephone (915) 692-4840.

TELCOT[®] Report

A WEEKLY SUMMARY OF COTTON MARKETING NEWS

Pent-up demand and crop shortfalls elsewhere, coupled with a myriad of delays in adding cotton to the pipeline, has resulted in an unprecedented market for U.S. cotton. Therefore, cotton prices are surprisingly high at a time when seasonal harvest pressure should be driving prices lower.

Crop shortfalls have caused traditional exporters to be reluctant to release cotton for international sales or shipment. This apparently has caught a number of international merchants and textile mills with near-term needs short of available supplies, forcing them to turn to the U.S. to fulfill these sales. Facilitating this scenario is an almost certain record U.S. cotton crop.

USDA estimates the 1994-95 U.S. cotton crop at 19.4 million bales, beating the record set in 1937 of 18.9 million bales, and America's considerable amount of available cotton is attracting a large share of export business.

Texas/Oklahoma cotton especially has been in demand due in part to its unusually high quality. But more importantly, exporters are drawn to the excellent handling and transportation infrastructure in the two states which allows them to move cotton more rapidly.

Thus, producers have the opportunity to sell their cotton at a higher price. This record year for U.S. cotton comes at a time when some competing world crops have been reduced after being battered by insects and adverse weather.

Pakistan's Cotton Export Corporation has stated production in that country is expected to drop to between 6.3 and 6.7 million bales due to insect damage. That compares to USDA's current estimate of 6.8 million. Under this scenario, Pakistan has virtually no prospects for exporting cotton. Regardless of the actual number, it is clear that the Pakistani crop is shrinking.

Meanwhile, a production decrease is expected for India as they are seen importing far more cotton than they are exporting this season. USDA pegged India's cotton production at 10.4 million bales; however, several traders see the production figure dropping to as low as 10.0 million bales. In addition, analysts report that Australia's crop has been reduced to a prolonged drought.

Continued demand is being noted from China's joint-venture mills. The reason for this is not a crop disaster in China, but their exclusion from the State allocation of domestic cotton supplies. An entirely new market has been created as the volume of cotton consumed by the joint-venture mills seems to have been largely underestimated.

Statistically, the world has ample stocks of cotton. However, in reality U.S. styles seem to be the principle growth that can be moved from point A to point B quickly. For mills needing cotton to fill short term obligations, timely shipment seems to be the focus rather than the current prices.

In fact, the Central Asian Republics of the former Soviet Union are America's only real challenger for exports at this time. Nevertheless, they are reluctant to sell aggressively on the world market and cannot deliver cotton in a timely manner, causing importers to look to the U.S. to fulfill their needs.

With a demand-driven market led by importers filling near-term needs, spot sales of Texas/Oklahoma cotton on TELCOT for the five trading days ending November 17 totaled 156,026. That was up from the previous week's 126,322 bales. Average daily prices received by producers selling on TEL-COT ranged from 66.82 to 57.36 cents per pound.

USDA announced export sales of 1994-95 U.S. cotton increased a net 112,200 bales in the week ended November 10, up considerably from the previous week's figure of 35,800 bales. Featured buyers were Japan, Indonesia, China and Turkey.

USDA also announced a marketing certificate valued at 247 points for the week ending November 24, down just one point from the previous week.

Santa Claus goes "high-tech" this year

Kids writing to Santa Claus with their Christmas wish list is an age-old tradition. But a personal telephone call from Santa? Welcome to the new high-tech world... with a twist.

This year, Santa Claus is going "high-tech" in his North Pole headquarters.

"I was just running out of time and just couldn't get all my letters written and all the toys ready for the sleigh, too," Santa said during an interview. "Mrs. Claus was always worried that with all those letters I'd get behind and forget someone. I needed some help."

So for Christmas 1994, Santa is working with a telephone management service bureau located in the center of North America to contact kids by phone, as well as mail, all in good time for Christmas.

Santa's helper, David Vanderwees, of North Pole Enterprises Inc., explains that parents, friends and relatives of children who have passed the "naughty or nice" test can call 1-800-99-SANTA toll-free from anywhere in North America and arrange to have Santa personally call a child of their choice at a prearranged time.

"We'll just ask for a few basic facts about the child's interests—names of pets, favorite toys, hobbies, favorite things to do, that sort of thing—to make sure Santa's file is up-to-date. Then we'll arrange a time and date in December when Santa can make the call," Vanderwees says. The average call will be three to four minutes.

North Pole Enterprises also offers personalized letters from Santa for kids too busy to get to the phone. The keepsake letter, signed and sealed by Santa himself on his personalized stationery, is also tailored to the recipient's special interests.

North Pole can take orders for Santa Calls or Letters anytime between 8:00 a.m. and midnight seven days a week. The Santa Call or Letter costs $11.95 on a valid Visa or MasterCard. The price does not include taxes or long distance charges where applicable.

"Santa is going to be very busy during the week before Christmas," says Vanderwees, "so we're offering a $2 discount if the call or letter is booked before December 12. Santa hopes to complete all his letter writing by December 12 so that children will receive their personalized letter in time for Christmas."

Santa Calls will be returned at prearranged times between 7 a.m. and 9 p.m. local time to fit in with children's bedtimes.

In the spirit of the season, Santa will donate 50¢ from every call or letter booked to the major pediatric research foundation in the caller's state or province to give sick kids a gift of health this Christmas.

Mitchell County Extension Service to sponsor training

By Joe Raff

Under the new law, all employers must provide education to their workers and handlers.

First, let's define workers and handlers. Agricultural workers are people that perform tasks related to the cultivation and harvesting of plants on farms or in greenhouses, nurseries or forests, and pesticide handlers are people assigned to mix, load or apply agricultural pesticides, clean or repair equipment, act as flaggers, etc.

It is the duty of an employer to provide many things to their handlers and workers. The three main ones are information at a central location, decontamination sites and pesticide safety training.

The Mitchell County Extension Service will sponsor ONE handler training (if a person is trained as a handler he is also trained as a worker).

The training will be at the C.C. Thompson Room starting at 10 a.m. on December 2. Randy Rivera, TDA representative and Billy Henderson, TDA representative, will conduct this training. There is no charge.

Anyone who holds a pesticide license can train handlers and workers; however, these licensees must have the educational material and cards to issue to these workers and handlers. I have an educational video and all forms to order the cards, etc. at the office if anyone needs them.

This is a one-time training. Please have your workers and/or handlers attend this training so that if you are checked by TDA you will be in compliance.

You as an employer can attend this training so you can learn how to train any other seasonal help you may employ during the next growing season.
