Marathon runner

Midlander Jeffrey Kidder is one of five Midlanders and Odessans who will be competing in the San Diego Rock and Roll Marathon today. They are racing to raise awareness and funds for a local chapter of the Leukemia Society of America. During the race Kidder will be wearing a shirt signed by supporters and those who have blood cancer diseases. He will be carrying in his pocket a small "Winnie the Pooh" T-shirt that belongs to Logan Lewis Brooks, an 18-month-old leukemia patient from White Oaks.

School shooting

CONYERS, Ga. — The arrest of a quiet, churchgoing Boy Scout accused of shooting up his high school with weapons stolen from his stepfather's locked gun cabinet was a sharp reminder that it's not always the surly, trenchcoat-wearing outcasts who commit violence. Thomas Solomon Jr., 15, is charged with aggravated assault for wounding six fellow Heritage High School students. As more details about the sophomore emerged, it became clear that he has little in common with the killers in last month's school shooting.

Medical marijuana

WASHINGTON — Responding to pressure from scientists and voters, the Clinton administration loosened restraints Friday on medical marijuana research. The move is expected to prompt more studies to see if the drug helps people with AIDS, cancer or eye disease. Scientists with private grants will now be able to get legal marijuana from the government's supply — grown on a small plot of land in Mississippi to make sure it's all the same strength. Previously, only scientists who had won federal grants had access to that marijuana. And only a few such federal studies have been approved.

Bonilla to visit Kermit oil workers

By John Paul Pitts
Oil Editor

U.S. Rep. Henry Bonilla will be in Kermit today to give oil patch workers a briefing on pending oil and gas legislation.

Bonilla

"We're going to talk about the effects of the oil crunch and some of the proposed legislation that could alleviate it," said Bonilla, a Republican congressmen who represents a portion of Midland County. He said he had been planning to visit Kermit since he met with John Bell — a leading voice on current oil-field woes — earlier this year in Washington.

"We are very happy that Congressman Bonilla would take the time to come to Kermit," Bell said. "He has been very receptive to the problems of the oil patch."

Bell said Bonilla was the co-sponsor of five bills to provide some relief to the oil and gas industry.

Bonilla said he and others in Congress are working on a set of bills to assist the oil industry, but as yet there is no definitive plan. "There are a lot of ideas being tossed around. We could combine some bills or present them one at a time."

Among the House bills being considered are H.R. 53 and H.R. 497.

H.R. 53 would provide tax credits to marginal wells. Introduced by congressmen from Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma, the bill would amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide relief. H.R 497, another amendment to the tax code, would exclude from gross income gain from oil and gas produced from certain recovered inactive wells.

Texas Reps. Lamar Smith and Larry Combest, along with Bonilla, introduced H.R. 490, a bill that would require the secretary of Energy to purchase additional petroleum products for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. Another bill, H.R. 498, would require Minerals Management Services to accept royalty-in-kind oil from the Gulf of Mexico to fill the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Bell said New Mexico Sens. Pete Domenici and Jeff Bingaman and Texas Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison had incentive bills with many similarities and could be combined by taking the best of each bill.

"Oil prices are going up now, but that doesn't provide any permanent solution to the energy problems facing the oil industry and the nation," Bonilla said. "The real problem is that we rely too much on foreign oil."

Bonilla said the problem in Congress was keeping oil and gas issues on the front burner because of a lack of interest outside the oil patch. "Sen. Domenici last week, during the debate for military funding, made very elegant and concise comments about foreign markets dumping cheap crude oil in the U.S., how it impacted national security and resulted in lost jobs at home," Bonilla said, adding that Bell had been effective in telling Congress how low oil prices had devastated the industry.

Still, he added, it was hard to get much interest outside the oil patch. He said the oil patch movement to petition the Department of Commerce against the dumping of cheap foreign crude in the United States was getting little response in Congress.

Documents shed light on officer's retirement

■ Freedom of Information request filed to obtain documents.

By Rick López
Staff Writer

Recently released records from the Midland Police Department are shedding new light on the way in which city officials elected to handle sexual harassment complaints against a D.A.R.E. officer.

On Feb. 12, the Reporter-Telegram filed a Freedom of Information request with the Texas Attorney General's Office in regard to the investigation of Lt. Johnny Thompson, 59. The newspaper requested copies of memos officials had filed in regard to the officer's case and other related documents.

At that point, city officials were reluctant to release the information, and said they would not provide the copies until a decision was rendered by Attorney General John Cornyn.

On Thursday, Cornyn notified the city's legal staff that the information requested by the Reporter-Telegram was "of legitimate concern" and should be released for review. Copies of the reports were provided to the newspaper Friday morning.

The documents show that:

■ On Jan. 6, Thompson was the subject of a sexual harassment complaint filed by a co-worker;

■ On Jan. 7, Thompson was placed on administrative suspension with pay. Internal Affairs Sgt. Jeff Darr began an investigation into the allegations. For 14 working days, Darr took statements from several female employees and the complainant.

The complainant alleged that Thompson made her feel "uncomfortable" for about a year, by making kissing gestures at her and making one attempt to kiss her. She claimed that when Thompson would shake her hand, he would scratch the palm of her hand with his finger,

Andrews 'wins' in rewritten nuke bill

■ Nine amendments added to radioactive bill before Senate casts a favorable vote.

By Richard Acosta
Staff Writer

Andrews County will be the sole site considered for the low-level radioactive waste facility in Texas, if the House approves a rewritten bill from the Senate this legislative session.

The Texas Senate approved the new bill Friday, written by Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, entitled House Bill 1171. The bill maps out the state's plan to store radioactive waste in Texas according to the compact between Texas, Maine and Vermont.

The new amendment has raised concerns in Monahans (Ward County), which was one of the counties in contention to host the site. In addition to the amendment cutting Ward County out of the race, it was presented to the Senate by Ward County's senator, Robert Duncan, R-Lubbock.

Monahans Mayor David Cutbirth said that he talked to Duncan before and after the amendment passed, while Duncan was on the House floor. Cutbirth expressed his deep disappointment about Duncan's amendment.

"We would just like the opportunity to be the host city," Cutbirth said. "If this is safe, then it is about economical development. We do not dig oil and gas wells for the good of the environment; we do it for the economy. If this is proven to be safe then it is about jobs and I cannot understand why he would put this in Andrews County only, when he represents us."

Duncan said that although he respects Cutbirth's opinion, he sees this issue as

Graham, Warren are Greenwood's top students for 1999

Editor's Note: This is the third part of a six-part series on the valedictorians and salutatorians for schools in Midland and Big Spring. Part 3 is on Greenwood High School.

From Staff Reports

With the passing of another school year, so passes another group of students through the school system — certainly none more impressive than this year's top two students at each of the high schools.

This time next year, these students will be in various colleges across the state and the country, cramming for or just finishing finals in subjects from English to engineering, from business to physical therapy.

But before they pack up for their respective dormitories, the Reporter-Telegram has asked them to do one last homework assignment before graduation and tell us a little bit about themselves.

Today, a look at Greenwood's valedictorian and salutatorian, Reagan Graham and Myra Warren.

Susan Lucci finally breaks Emmy jinx

NEW YORK (AP) — After 19 nominations and 18 losses, hard-luck soap star Susan Lucci finally came up a winner.

Lucci, whose status as a longtime loser often overshadowed her work, won the Daytime Emmy award for best actress Friday for portraying the villainous Erica Kane on "All My Children."

She sobbed as she received a standing ovation.

Lucci's long-sought victory overshadowed a record-setting performance by "General Hospital," which won eight awards. Rosie O'Donnell swept the major talk show awards.

Lucci was clearly the sentimental favorite, and was thought to have her best chance this year for her performances in a hospital vigil over her TV daughter, Bianca. When music played to get her to stop talking as she accepted the award, she plowed right through to thank her fans.

"I'm going to go back to that studio Monday and I'm going to play Erica Kane for all it is worth," she said.

The awards for "General Hospital" included its sixth for best soap opera. Anthony Geary, who won best actor in 1982 when his character Luke Spencer was a national sensation, won the award again. Jonathan Jackson, who plays his son Lucky, won his third award as best younger actor. Stuart Damon won best supporting actor.

A tearful O'Donnell won her third straight honor as best talk show host and also for best talk show. It was a boost for O'Donnell, who had a tense fight with actor Tom Selleck over gun control on her show this week.

Job fair provides opportunities for those seeking work

By Jeff Stevens
Staff Writer

Declining oil prices over the past year have left several area residents jobless and have even had an unexpected result, according to Catarina Medrano of Casa de Amigos.

With some Midlanders leaving the area in search of work, their spouses leave also, resulting in several area employers having positions to fill, Ms. Medrano said. Enter Casa De Amigos' first Community Job Fair.

The local agency brought together 46 employers and approximately 200 job seekers Friday at its building on Garden Lane and Lamesa Road.

"We have a lot of the community that is unemployed because of oil," said Ms. Medrano. "And we have a lot of employers who are needing employees."

The Texas Department of Transportation was one such employer.

"We have trouble recruiting for smaller areas like Monahans, Kermit and Crane," said Naomi Ramirez, with TxDOT's human resources office. Ms. Ramirez was at the job fair trying to fill four positions.

"There are a lot of people out of work right now and our goal was to let them know about our job openings."

Ms. Ramirez said the job fair had been very successful, garnering several applications.

Schwan's Enterprises also reported a successful day.

"We've gotten about 15 to 20 applications," said Ricky Hickey, Schwan's Midland sales manager.

His company, which is trying to fill three to four positions, drew quite a crowd. The popularity was less due to the jobs available than the fact that the company's booth was giving away free Schwan's ice cream.

While munching on some ice cream, Jose Losoya said he'd been out of work for the past eight months. His unemployment wasn't a result of a depressed oil economy but an injury.

Losoya's last job was with Midland Precast, working concrete. He had his toe amputated in 1998 and hasn't worked since.

"It's really hard when your daughter asks for something and you can't give it to her," he said.

The good news is that Losoya thinks he may have found a job at Friday's fair.

"I filled out an application to be a truck driver. Maybe it will be a way to find a better life for my family."

Myrna Hernandez was also looking for a better life. The single mother of two was laid off from her job at Lear Corp. six months ago. She currently attends classes at Midland College.

"I'm trying to find any kind of work, but it's been kind of hard for me because I don't speak English very well," she said.

Ms. Hernandez applied for several jobs.

Ms. Medrano said that the job fair was very successful and that Casa de Amigos will consider hosting it in the future.

"As long as there is a need in the community we will."

Local runners to compete in San Diego marathon

By Jennifer Cherry

Several West Texans will be competing in the San Diego Rock and Roll Marathon today and will be racing for more than just their health.

They are running to create awareness and raise money in the effort to fight blood cancer diseases. Jeffrey Kidder and Rebecca Fontenot of Midland and Terah Gisolo, Judy English and Helen Tinker of Odessa, will take part in the 26.2 mile race.

Kidder, Ms. Gisolo and Ms. Fontenot will be running in the event, while Ms. English and Ms. Tinker will be walking. Last year was the first San Diego Rock and Roll Marathon fund-raiser and according to reports, it raised $15.6 million. Runners set record times at the event and it was so well-received that it will become an annual event.

The West Texans will be competing as part of their efforts to organize a Leukemia Society of America chapter in the area.

"Until recently there has not been a Leukemia Society of America in the Permian Basin," Kidder said. "When a good friend came down with leukemia, I asked him what resources he had access to in the area."

Kidder's friend told him that there were no resources for support or information. Soon after, Kidder contacted the closest LSA chapter, which is in San Antonio. He and a LSA management team devised a plan to establish an office in the area.

Currently help is available by calling 1-800-683-2488.

"Much of our time recently has been spent on organizing and coordinating with the regional office in San Antonio, ensuring that those who need help from LSA get it," Kidder said.

Although their efforts to provide patient services and organize the program have proven successful, funds have fallen short.

"We hope that some community and corporate leadership will rally for us and help us get the LSA drive kicked off with raising awareness and money through the marathon," Kidder said.

Kidder, Ms. Fontenot and Ms. Gisolo are part of a nation-wide program, Team in Training, sponsored by LSA and Runners World Magazine, said Ellen Pate, newly named executive chair of the local LSA.

"We have approximately 16,500 marathoners and century finishers," Mrs. Pate said.

The program offers individuals the chance to receive professional endurance training leading up to the time of any accredited race of their choice, as well as transportation and accommodations for the race. All of the trainers donate their time, Mrs. Pate said.

"Each participant runs for a patient," she said.

Typically, individuals pick one marathon to train for. Marathon destinations included on the list are the Lake Tahoe "America's Most Beautiful" bike ride, the "El de Tour Tucson" in Arizona and the San Diego Rock and Roll Marathon in California.

In order to receive benefits, participants must raise a minimum amount of money for LSA. For example, Kidder raised approximately $2,000.

"Runners are free to go to corporate sponsors or any source. Some have friends or do it themselves," Mrs. Pate said. "Most go way over the minimum."

The program is open to anyone who wishes to participate. Individuals may contact the LSA at 1-800-683-2488.

Shirts and jerseys are also provided to those on Team in Training. The shirts that Kidder and Ms. Gisolo will wear display the signatures of supporters across the Permian Basin. The shirts, signed by supporters and those affected by blood cancer diseases, were displayed at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center, Allison Cancer Center, Medical Center Hospital in Odessa and West Texas Cancer Center in Odessa.

"This will provide us with inspiration during the marathon, reminding us that this is so very important to so very many people," said Ms. Gisolo, who is running for her father, who has leukemia.

Kidder will also carry a small "Winnie the Pooh" T-shirt in his pocket. It is the shirt of Logan Lewis Brooks, an 18-month-old leukemia patient from White Oaks.

"The future is not bright for him," Kidder said.

The small shirt will serve as a reminder to Kidder exactly who's health he and the other local participants are running for in the marathon.

ALLEGATIONS: Thompson opted for early retirement

(From 1A)

which Thompson would later describe to Darr as the "palm scratcher thing."

Other women complained that Thompson touched their hair, made sexist remarks about female employees and snapped one woman's bra strap.

Thompson denied the allegations to Darr and said "he knew better than to do anything like that." He claimed the woman who made the harassment complaint was upset because she was not given a raise.

■ On Jan. 25, Darr submitted his investigation report to Police Chief John Urby. Darr recommended that the allegation be considered sustained.

■ On Jan. 26, Urby met with Thompson to "get his side of the story." During the discussion, Thompson interrupted Urby and told him he wanted to take one of 15 early retirement packages the city was offering to its employees.

"Because Lt. Thompson has elected to retire, this investigation will be suspended. No further action is warranted," Urby said in an internal memo.

Urby said Friday he believed there wasn't a need to uphold Darr's recommendation, though on Nov. 3, 1995, Thompson had been cited for cornering a female employee in an elevator. No action was taken in that complaint, reports indicate.

■ On Feb. 15, Thompson officially retired from the police force. Between Feb. 15 and May 15, Thompson received a monthly base bay of $4,177, which included a monthly base pay of $3,592, a monthly longevity pay of $180 and a monthly special pay of $405.

■ On May 20, Thompson received his final check for $16,675, which included his last paycheck of $2,088 and $10,410 of vacation pay and $4,177 of sick pay accrued throughout his 30-year career.

Thompson began working for the Midland Police Department in October 1968. His last assignment was supervising the Community Services Division, which overlooks the Drug Awareness and Resistance Education program.

Thompson said Friday that in his 37 1/2 years of law enforcement, he's had a spotless record, with the exception of the 1995 incident that he said was a misunderstanding that was eventually settled in a calm manner. His comment to the woman, "Do you feel cornered in the elevator," was meant in jest because he, the complainant and a telephone worker were cramped in a small area.

The 1999 accusation, he said, caught him by surprise.

"It was all peaches and cream one day, and the next day, the complaint was filed," Thompson said. "I don't have anything bad to say about that woman. I'm just surprised this happened, and so are the people that know me.

"I feel I could have fought this case and won, but I had already been thinking about retirement since November, and I didn't see any reason why this should go to the City Council. I was going to retire anyway.

"I don't have any problems with the Police Department, Chief Urby or Jeff Darr. They did what they needed to do."

Thompson said he was unfamiliar with the allegations until his report was released to the media Friday. He said that during his suspension, he had brief conversations about the allegations only once — when Darr questioned him.

"I had absolutely no knowledge of these complaints, other than by word of mouth," he said.

He questioned the motives of the other women interviewed. One of the women Darr interviewed hadn't worked in Thompson's department in 12 years. None of them were eyewitnesses to the alleged harassment, he said. If their allegations were true, a complaint would have been made a lot earlier, Thompson said.

In fact, the city has a policy that allows employees to make sexual harassment complaints against other employees anonymously, he said.

"She (the complainant) does not have any witnesses. How could I do anything when there were several officers working with her at all times," Thompson said.

"I reiterate: I never did anything that would embarrass my family, the chief and the rest of the department," Thompson said. "I don't regret anything today. I spared the city the problem of looking into this. I told them I didn't want to discuss this and didn't want to hear any more of it, because I didn't do anything wrong."

The local media began asking city officials — including the mayor, police chief and city attorney — about the Thompson matter as early as Jan. 15, the same time when the new Midland International Airport was celebrating its grand opening.

At that time, city officials denied that the D.A.R.E. officer was being investigated. City officials continued to refuse to discuss the matter in subsequent interviews.

As a retired officer, Thompson is eligible to participate in the police officers' retirement program.

ANDREWS: Atomic weapon waste cannot be stored in facility environmental, not economical.

"Many communities in hard times could be attracted to these types of proposals," Duncan said. "We don't want West Texas to be known for radioactive waste. Andrews is a safe site, they have community support. We don't want there to be prospecting for sites around Texas. We want it to be in one place only, not all over Texas."

Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, voted for the bill and each of the nine amendments attached to it.

"I think Sen. Brown did a good job balancing and providing protection for the state," Bivins said. "I want to work with (Warren) Chisum (writer of the first bill that was killed in Brown's committee) to work out any problems and get this bill signed into law."

The bill will go back to the House for a concurrence vote. If the House votes favorably, then the bill will go to the governor's office. If it is voted down, it will go into committee until the differences can be worked out.

Chisum said that he is confident that the House will vote no on the bill and he will have a chance to go to work on it.

"Right now we are looking over the amendments to see what they do," Chisum said. "The Senate did exactly what Waste Control Specialists wanted them to do. I know some other counties are upset about what happened today, but they shouldn't lose any sleep over it. I have the bill now."

Amendments to the new radioactive waste bill are as follows:

'I think Sen. Brown did a good job balancing and providing protection for the state. I want to work with Chisum to work out any problems and get this bill signed into law.'

— Sen. Teel Bivins

■ A private entity will be chosen to run the radioactive waste facility only after competitive bidding.

■ A section was removed from the new house bill that would do away with the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Authority.

■ A public company shall contract with a private entity to perform the overall operation of the facility.

■ The facility cannot be built in a county that is 62 miles or less from Mexico, in a county where the annual rainfall is greater than 26 inches or in a county in which the commissioners court has not passed a resolution in support of the facilities.

■ The radioactivity of the Department of Energy waste taken into the facility has to be 20 percent less then the total radioactivity of the Texas-Maine-Vermont compact waste and can be lowered if necessary to meet safety specifications.

■ Items that can't be stored in the facility: discarded radioactive atomic weapon components, radioactive waste resulting from the testing of any atomic weapons or waste from the production of atomic weapons.

■ State would not be liable for the facility. The company that gets the license has to show that it can take care of the financial obligations of the facility if the company shuts down.

Tony Proffitt with WCS, which is located in Andrews County, released a statement expressing WCS' pleasure with the passing of the new bill.

"Senate passage of the bill is a big step forward for Texas in solving the growing low-level radioactive waste problem," Proffitt said. "We are hopeful the House and Senate can agree on a final version so it can be signed into law."

Lawrence R. Jacobi, vice president Envirocare of Texas — which also owns land in Andrews County, but was exploring other sites in West Texas, including Ward County — said they are not out of the hunt.

"We have 888 acres in Andrews County," Jacobi said. "I don't think the amendment was intended to give the site to WCS."

This legislative session ends on May 31. If the bill is not decided by then, it will have to wait until the next session. The state has already spent 18 years and more than $50 million on low-level radioactive waste.

The bill will be making its way back to the House floor after being approved by the Texas Senate Friday by a margin of 23 to 6 with one abstention.

BONILLA: Bell says losses could hit $1 billion

(From 1A)

Kansas Gov. Bill Graves, 1999 chairman of the Interstate Oil and Gas Compact Commission, has noted that low oil prices could result in the loss of 60,000 American jobs and the plugging of 48,000 U.S. wells. Graves said that at least five states have enacted incentive laws to help the oil and gas industry and incentives were needed at the national level.

"If we were in a tornado of the same magnitude as the economic storm that has hit our area, we would now be receiving state and federal disaster aid," Bell said. He said the economic damage caused by low oil prices in the Permian Basin could hit $1 billion.

Bonilla said the oil and gas infrastructure had been badly damaged by low oil prices, and there was now so much pent-up demand for remedial work in the oil patch that if oil prices were to elevate suddenly there would not be enough crews.

"One of the reasons we will be in Kermit, is just to let the oil patch know someone cares. We want to hear all their concerns and give them a chance to ask questions," Bonilla said.

He will be at Kermit Junior High School at 4 p.m. today.

NATO bombs jail, reportedly killing 19

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — NATO bombed a Kosovo jail Friday, killing at least 19 people and injuring scores, state media reported. A new tide of Kosovo refugees riding tractors poured across Yugoslavia's southern borders into Albania — breaking a weeklong lull.

Many in the wave of 2,500 spoke of Serb security forces banging on their doors and ordering them to immediately leave their homeland. President Slobodan Milosevic blamed the "NATO aggressor" for the mass exodus of hundreds of thousands of ethnic Albanians.

After days of reports of mass desertions by Yugoslav army reservists, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said troops who showed up in two central Serbian towns this week were just "regular soldiers returning home" as part of a reduction of Serb forces in Kosovo.

"There are no desertions," Nebojsa Vujovic said.

Some 400 army reservists returned this week to Aleksandrovac and Krusevac, saying they would not go back to the front-line, said news reports in Montenegro, the small republic that along with Serbia forms Yugoslavia.

Montenegro's government opposes Milosevic and his confrontation with NATO over Kosovo, a secessionist-minded province in southern Serbia.

The United States says it has reports of large-scale desertions by Yugoslav army reservists. There have also been accounts of anti-war demonstrations by soldiers.

In the Montenegrin town of Cetinje, some 5,000 people — almost one-third of the population — on Friday protested the recent Yugoslav army reinforcements around their city and demanded the military withdraw.

"We are here to ask loudly what these people in fatigues are doing in our city," Mirko Dapcevic declared to huge applause. The demonstration was one of the first and certainly the biggest protest against the Yugoslav army in Montenegro.

In Serbia, NATO airstrikes repeatedly blasted the Dubrava jail at Istok, northwestern Kosovo.

Western reporters accompanying the first U.N. mission to Kosovo since the start of the 8-week-old air campaign saw seven bloodied corpses covered by blankets in the jail's grassy courtyard, shrapnel-pocked buildings, and nervous-looking guards with automatic weapons keeping prisoners at bay.

One prisoner called out, "Help us, there are a lot of wounded back there!" and a guard replied, "OK, bring them all into the hall. We've called an ambulance but the road is bad."

Serb officials said the 1,000-inmate prison held mainly supporters of the rebel Kosovo Liberation Army. In Brussels, Belgium, NATO officials said bombers targeted a "security complex" in Istok but had no word on casualties or other details.

Milosevic, in a statement after meeting a Greek parliamentary delegation, reiterated demands for an end to NATO bombings.

NATO's other "big crime," he added, "is the mean accusation against our country for the exodus of Albanians from Kosovo, although it is well known that the movement of Albanians and other residents in Kosovo from their homes was caused by the bombing."

NATO's peace demands include a total withdrawal of Milosevic's 40,000 troops and special police from Kosovo and the deployment of an international peacekeeping force with NATO at its core. Milosevic opposes both conditions.

Following nighttime raids into the early hours, NATO bombers rained missiles in the daylight on targets across Serbia.

Seven people, including four children, were injured when bombs slammed into fuel storage tanks — for the seventh time in the campaign — and a TV and radio transmitter in Smederevo, 30 miles southeast of Belgrade, Tanjug, the state-controlled agency, reported.

Yugoslav media reported attacks later Friday on bridges, and on several Serbian towns, including Uzice, central Serbia, Pozega in the southeast, and Bor, in the east, where bombs hit factories and fuel depots, sending smoke billowing across the town.

In attacks Thursday night on military targets in Belgrade, the Swiss, Swedish, Spanish, Indian, Norwegian and Hungarian ambassadors' nearby residences were damaged, and the Libyan and Israeli diplomatic missions were also rocked by blasts.

Switzerland, whose ambassador was hosting a diplomatic dinner when the windows blew in, received an apology delivered to the government in Bern by U.S. authorities.

"At a quarter past eight, we had just come to dessert, when a crash came," Swedish Ambassador Mats Staffansson was quoted as telling Sweden's Aftonbladet newspaper. He added that he, the Slovak and Vatican ambassadors then hurled themselves under the dining-room table.

In Bonn, Germany, envoys from seven Western nations and Russia failed to reach agreement on a draft resolution backing NATO's five main terms for ending the conflict.

"We had our first two kids at Memorial. Why would we go anywhere else to have our third?"

Yes, Amy was our third baby. And, yes we'd been through it twice before. But, that didn't make us any less concerned about her birth. You need to be prepared for everything.

We went through the Lamaze refresher classes at Memorial Hospital, met the staff and toured the labor and delivery floor. We expected everything to go smoothly as it had our two previous times, and it did. But, it was reassuring to know that the experienced doctors and nurses – and their life-saving technologies – were there for us, whether we needed them or not.

Memorial Hospital has been delivering babies for over 40 years. With that much experience, you can expect the best. Whether it's your first, or your third, it's good to know you and your family can count on Memorial Hospital in every situation.

Killing of labor official raises specter of return to political violence in Italy

ROME (AP) — A briefcase lying on a bloodied sidewalk. A grieving widow. A commando communique.

The killing of a labor official, claimed by the militant Red Brigades, terrifies Italians, who worried Friday about a possible return to the political violence that marked the 1970s.

The question is, why now?

Italy's economy and government are remarkably stable after years of turmoil. But government attempts to bolster the economy by winning concessions from labor and its backing of NATO's air campaign in Yugoslavia have been denounced by the far left.

Both issues figured in the 28-page manifesto left by the Red Brigades in a trash bin in Rome claiming Thursday's slaying of Massimo D'Antona, who was shot repeatedly in the heart as he walked to work.

At D'Antona's funeral Friday, Italian leaders vowed there would be no replay of the "years of lead," when assassinations and bombings by terrorists from the far left and right terrified the country in the 1970s and early '80s.

"Whoever did the shooting shouldn't fool themselves," D'Antona's boss, Labor Minister Antonio Bassolino, told the funeral congregation. "We haven't gone back 20 years. Italy wants to go ahead with new social and labor rules."

D'Antona, he said, was a man "ready for dialogue, a leftist and a reformist. That's why he was struck down."

On Friday, Italy's Cabinet approved an employment package that D'Antona had finished just hours before his death.

A university professor in labor law, D'Antona was a chief architect of labor reforms that included an agreement by industry and unions to create more jobs by encouraging part-time work.

Italy has also been enjoying a rare show of cooperation between the center-left government and the center-right opposition, including on electoral reforms aimed at bringing Rome more in line with the rest of Western Europe.

Both sides were also cooperating in Italy's participation in the NATO air campaign in Yugoslavia, which has made extensive use of Italian air bases.

The Red Brigades' most notorious attack, in 1978, struck at another figure of cooperation — former Premier Aldo Moro, who, just before his kidnapping and killing, brokered the "historic compromise" in which Communists pledged to work together in Parliament with the Christian Democrat-dominated coalition.

Two decades later, that accord helped pave the way for the appointment of the country's first former Communist premier, Massimo D'Alema.

The militants' goal during their bloody campaign in the 1970s was nothing short of destruction of the Italian state and anarchy.

Of the latest attack, D'Alema said: "We don't want to underestimate their message and intent to destabilize our country in this delicate moment. But this is a country that will not let itself be sent backward."

D'Antona's killing came 11 years after the Red Brigades' last claimed assassination, that of a senator, and six years after its last claimed act of violence, a bombing at the U.S. air base at Aviano, Italy.

In Parliament on Wednesday, the opposition helped D'Alema beat back an attempt by some in his government to urge a unilateral cease-fire in Kosovo.

And last week, the center-left and the opposition pulled together to elect the nation's president in a first-round vote — only the third time in Italy's postwar history that has happened. The new head of state, Carlo Azeglio Ciampi, a political independent, is a staunch backer of political reform.

In its manifesto claiming D'Antona's killing, the Red Brigades vowed to "attack and dismantle ... the imperialist state" and target NATO for its "imperialist war."

D'Antona had been targeted as a shaper of "neo-corporate politics," the manifesto said, using the Marxist language of decades ago.

A crackdown after Moro's death and the end of the Cold War helped cool the guns and passions of the old Red Brigades. The last imprisoned major leader, Renato Curcio, a Brigades founder, won release last October after 24 years behind bars.

However, many Red Brigades members were never captured, with many believed to be living abroad.

Experts: Big city schools escaping random shootings with tight security

CHICAGO (AP) — Every morning, Maria Marino passes gang turf on her way to Clemente High School. There she walks through a metal detector. There she passes five security guards. There she feels safe.

A shooting in her school? The 17-year-old senior thinks not.

"It could happen anywhere," she conceded Friday, "but I just don't imagine it happening here. I feel comfortable here. I think there's more possibilities for it to happen in the neighborhood."

In the mass school shootings that have horrified the nation since 1997, a striking similarity has emerged: The tragedies have occurred in quiet suburban or rural communities — Littleton, Colo., Jonesboro, Ark., Conyers, Ga. — not big cities typically associated with teen violence.

Some experts say urban schools, while struggling with gangs and drugs, have so far escaped random shooting sprees for some basic reasons:

— In the city, a teen-ager with a gun is automatically thought to be up to no good. That's not always the case in rural or suburban areas where people go hunting or take target practice.

— Violence in the city tends to be aimed at individuals more often than it is unleashed indiscriminately.

— And, perhaps most important, security is tighter.

"Urban schools have had to deal with the issue of violence for a longer period of time," said Joanne McDaniel, research director of the Center for the Prevention of School Violence in Raleigh, N.C. "They may not be able to make a safe neighborhood, but at least they can make school a safe haven."

Many city schools have conflict and anger management programs, mentoring and metal detectors.

At Clemente, on Chicago's near West Side, security officials say they have not found a gun since metal detectors were installed two years ago. "Mostly it's knives and pagers and lighters," said Steve Garcia, the school's security supervisor.

Only about a quarter of the nation's largest 55 to 60 districts used metal detectors in the early 1990s; more than 95 percent do now, according to Ronald Stephens, director of the National School Safety Center in Westlake Village, Calif.

However, Stephens cited a recent government study showing that only 4 percent of all school districts nationwide had metal detectors.

The cramped urban setting may itself serve as a deterrent. The Jonesboro school, for example, had a wooded area from which the attack was launched. Columbine High School in Littleton had a large parking lot.

"Imagine trying to bring in 30 bombs and all that weaponry in a Chicago high school," as was done in Columbine, said Laurence Steinberg, a psychology professor at Temple University and director of the MacArthur Foundation Research Network on Adolescent Development and Juvenile Justice.

School safety experts note that while big-city schools still are more violent than rural or suburban ones, urban gangs tend to target rivals or other specific victims, rather than launching random assaults.

Also, "gangs in urban areas typically do not see the schoolhouse as the place to carry out their turf war," Mrs. McDaniel said. "They're going to do that in the streets."

Some experts also say city kids obtain guns usually to commit crimes, while suburban and rural teens frequently own weapons for hunting and recreation.

"The gun culture is different" outside the cities, said Paul Gray, a professor of sociology at Boston College. "It normalizes the possession and use of a gun." He added: "My kids never see me doing target practice. I don't belong to a gun club. I don't identify weapons with self-protection or leisure activity."

Though urban schools have been spared mass shootings, many experts caution against assuming that such tragedies can't — or won't — happen there. And some also say inner-city violence is often overlooked.

If the Columbine High massacre happened in the inner city, "I'm not sure it would have gotten the same media attention," said Ron Astor, professor of social work and education at the University of Michigan.

And, he added, "If it happens at 3:30, after the bell rings, then it's called community violence."

At Chicago's Clemente High, 16-year-old Darnell Ivy shook his head Friday when he heard the recent reports about the Georgia shooting.

"I thought, 'Just more crazy kids.' There's some of those here," he said. Then he paused and added: "They're not so different from us."

Allies struggle to maintain unity

WASHINGTON (AP) — With no breakthrough in sight on the diplomatic or bombing fronts, the Clinton administration and its NATO partners struggled Friday to patch up differences over Kosovo while portraying Belgrade and its military as cracking after 59 days of airstrikes.

In appearances with Secretary of State Madeleine Albright, British Foreign Secretary Robin Cook said London and Washington are in harmony on Kosovo strategy. And he asserted that NATO bombs are hitting so hard that "I don't see any sign that the Yugoslav army at the present rate of attrition is going to hold out until August or September."

Even that time frame is remarkable, considering that many in NATO originally believed the air campaign would be over in weeks, not months.

The calendar is influencing NATO leaders' thinking because of the lead time required to reach either of two outcomes in Kosovo before the typically harsh Balkan winter sets in — the resettlement of ethnic Albanian refugees in Kosovo under a peace agreement, or entering Kosovo forcibly to end the conflict.

Army Gen. Wesley Clark, the top NATO commander, told Defense Secretary William Cohen and the military service chiefs in private meetings at the Pentagon on Thursday that the time is approaching when NATO decisions on ground troops must be made if a resolution is to be achieved before winter.

Kenneth Bacon, Cohen's spokesman, said Clark did not recommend a ground invasion or a change in NATO's strategy. He told Cohen, however, that because there is no guarantee that the air campaign will achieve all of NATO goals by autumn, "you have to be open to the possibility of looking at other options."

Bacon also said the Clinton administration wants an enlarged NATO peacekeeping force to assemble in Macedonia, on the border with Kosovo, "as quickly as possible." He said NATO's political body, the North Atlantic Council, is likely to discuss a plan early next week for a peackeeping force of about 50,000 troops. The United States is likely to contribute 7,000 to 8,000 troops, officials say.

Bacon said the U.S. part of the peacekeeping force could include the 26th Marine Expeditionary Unit that is now afloat in the Adriatic with about 2,000 troops equipped with a variety of arms and aircraft.

NATO has all but ruled out a ground invasion, but it is moving ahead with a revised plan for a peacekeeping force that would secure the return of the ethnic Albanians and implement a peace agreement. The question bedeviling NATO now is, what if there is no peace deal. Can the alliance sustain an air campaign indefinitely? Should it plan on sending a ground force into Kosovo in late summer or early fall on the assumption that by then the Serb troops would be so battered they could not resist?

To that last question, Britain says yes. The Clinton administration says no.

And German Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder this week restated his strong opposition to sending any NATO ground troops into Kosovo until a peace agreement is reached.

At NATO headquarters in Brussels, Belgium, and in Washington on Friday, officials sought to portray Belgrade as on the verge of defeat, even though President Slobodan Milosevic has shown few signs of giving up.

Cook, speaking to reporters at the British ambassador's residence in Washington, described Milosevic as stubborn but surprised that NATO has managed to keep up the airstrikes without unraveling.

In a briefing for reporters at the Pentagon, Bacon said the Kosovo Liberation Army is gaining strength even as the Serb forces are weakening. He said the KLA now has between 17,000 and 20,000 troops, including about 15,000 in Kosovo — more than twice as many as when the NATO bombing began March 24.

Bacon said the KLA is now better trained, better equipped and better led than when the war began.

In other developments:

— President Clinton signed an emergency spending measure that includes $12 billion for Kosovo-related operations, including humanitarian relief for refugees, aid to Macedonia and the other "front line" states that are accepting hundreds of thousands of refugees, as well as funds for other U.S. military forces.

— The Pentagon announced that 1,022 members of the Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve are being ordered to active duty for the Kosovo conflict. They, plus 26 KC-135 air refueling planes, are from units in Illinois, Kansas, Maine and New Jersey. It brings to about 5,000 the number of reservists activated so far.

— State Department spokesman James Rubin said Milosevic is trying to manipulate a United Nations mission that is in Kosovo to assess humanitarian needs. "It is essential that the United Nations not allow itself to be forced into cooperating with his agenda to use the U.N. humanitarian mission to generate favorable propaganda while denying it access to some of the most needy in the region," Rubin said.

Georgia shootings show average students can snap violently

CONYERS, Ga. (AP) — The arrest of a quiet, churchgoing Boy Scout accused of shooting up his high school with weapons stolen from his stepfather's locked gun cabinet was a sharp reminder that it's not always the surly, trench-coat-wearing outcasts who commit violence.

Thomas Solomon Jr., 15, is charged with aggravated assault for wounding six fellow Heritage High School students. As more details about the sophomore emerged Friday, it became clear that he has little in common with the killers in last month's Colorado school shooting.

Writings by Dylan Klebold and Eric Harris — outsiders ostracized at Columbine High School — indicated that they wanted to kill as many people as possible and go down in a blaze of gore.

Solomon was a marksman with two deadly weapons — a .357 Magnum revolver and a sawed-off rifle hidden in the legs of his baggy jeans — and could have easily killed many students. But he apparently aimed at them below the waist so as only to wound them.

"He was just trying to be heard and not trying to kill anybody," said Kent Cason, 19. "Two of my friends saw him walking into the cafeteria and he was loading a gun. He told them to stay there so they wouldn't get hurt, and then walked into the building."

And if Solomon really wanted to leave a trail of bodies behind, he could have stolen several more powerful weapons from his stepfather, according to Sheriff Jeff Wigington.

"There was a lot more firepower available to him," he said.

Experts said Solomon — described as a typical teen who grew sullen after his girlfriend dumped him this week — was making a desperate cry for attention.

"Certainly he had the option and the weapon to do more damage, and in not doing that, what he was doing was a way of getting attention," said Richard Gelles, professor of child welfare and family violence at the University of Pennsylvania. "He knew he would get it."

Unlike Klebold and Harris, who killed 12 students and a teacher before taking their own lives, Solomon wasn't ostracized by the more popular students and didn't dress differently from his peers.

"He was just an average kid," said Joe Watts, a student.

"This case is a reminder that just because a particular child isn't in some group of alienated teens or doesn't have two nose rings or 15 tattoos doesn't mean that there's not a possibility that something tragic could happen," said Dr. Tom Cummins, a child and adolescent psychiatrist at Emory University Hospital.

The attack was the sixth mass shooting at an American high school or middle school since October 1997.

Few, if any, of the other school killers wore their outcast status as clearly and boldly as the trench-coat-clad Klebold and Harris did.

Luke Woodham, convicted of killing his mother and then two classmates in Pearl, Miss., in 1997, was in a cult-like group, but it held secretive meetings.

Although he didn't stand out for the way he dressed, Kip Kinkel, who allegedly killed his parents and two fellow high school students last year in Springfield, Ore., had tortured animals, was fascinated with guns and had a quick temper. In middle school he was voted "Most Likely to Start World War III."

Solomon, called T.J., is described as a clean-cut student with average grades that had slipped recently. He went to church with his family every week, and the night before the shooting he attended a Catholic youth group meeting.

Friends said he became angry after the breakup and talked of ending his life or bringing a gun to school. But no one took him seriously.

With about 300 students crowded into the school's common area Thursday morning, Solomon fired 14 times — 11 shots with the rifle and three times with the revolver.

Jason Cheek, a junior who was shot once in the buttocks and once in the leg, said students began chasing Solomon — who was running and smiling as he fired from the hip — after the rifle ran out of bullets. Solomon then fired with the revolver and fled outside.

There, he fell to his knees and put the gun in his mouth.

When Assistant Principal Cecil Brinkley followed him outside, Solomon raised the gun toward Brinkley.

"I stepped back a couple of steps and I turned to him again and I said, 'Give me the gun,' and I said again, 'Give me the gun,'" Brinkley said Friday. "I saw him lower the barrel of the gun and I kept getting closer and closer to him. Then I held out my hands and he laid the gun in my hands.

"Then he gave me a real big bear hug and he said, 'I'm scared, I'm scared,'" he said.

Solomon must appear in juvenile court before he can be charged as an adult, something not expected before Monday.

Students were expected to return to Heritage High on Monday, and graduation is to go on as scheduled May 28.

Government makes it easier to get marijuana for research

WASHINGTON (AP) — Responding to pressure from scientists and voters, the Clinton administration loosened restraints Friday on medical marijuana research. The move is expected to prompt more studies to see if the drug helps people with AIDS, cancer or eye disease.

Scientists with private grants will now be able to get legal marijuana from the government's supply — grown on a small plot of land in Mississippi to make sure it's all the same strength.

Previously, only scientists who had won federal grants had access to that marijuana. And only a few such federal studies have been approved.

"We all thought the time was right" for the new guidelines, said Steven W. Gust, a special assistant to the director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, part of the National Institutes of Health.

The new guidelines were created after Cabinet-level discussions among agencies involved in America's war on drugs, including the Department of Health and Human Services, NIH's parent agency, plus the Justice Department, the Drug Enforcement Administration and the White House Office of National Drug Control Policy, Gust said.

The drug control office, headed by Barry McCaffrey, favors marijuana studies "as long as they pass a peer review process to make sure the research is good science," said Charles Blanchard, the office's chief counsel.

McCaffrey has opposed actions by states to permit medical uses of marijuana, claiming that would prejudge serious scientific research. Two recent expert reports recommended more research on marijuana, citing evidence of its possible benefits to some patients.

The University of Mississippi grows the government-approved marijuana on 1.8 acres at a closely guarded site. A crop is harvested on alternate years. So far that has been more than enough to supply the few approved researchers, Gust said.

If the new guidelines do prompt more research, the agency is prepared to grow more marijuana, opening up additional fields if necessary and planting every year instead of alternate years, Gust said.

Heated exchanges liven up prison board vote on moving death row

AUSTIN (AP) — After tense exchanges between death penalty opponents and Texas Board of Criminal Justice members, the board gave final approval Friday to a plan to move death row.

The vote to move death row 25 miles from the Ellis Unit in Huntsville to the Terrell Unit near Livingston was unanimous, but it didn't come until members of the Houston chapter of the Texas Coalition to Abolish the Death Penalty had their say.

"The prison system is not authorized to torture, brutalize, dehumanize or otherwise mistreat prisoners in its custody as it routinely does," said Joanne Gavin, who questioned the board about the conditions in the new prison and visitation regulations.

"I will strongly refute your assertion that prisoners on death row are being terrorized, tortured ... brutalized," Board Chairman Allan Polunsky said. "That is totally untrue."

Polunsky told the death penalty opponents that Texas Department of Criminal Justice staff would respond to any questions they had within a few days, but Njeri Shakur was unconvinced.

"It's ludicrous to ask the fox to report what he's done in the chicken house," she said.

About 50 to 60 condemned inmates will be moved in the next few weeks from Ellis to Terrell, officials said.

That first phase is meant to "single-cell" the condemned inmates so that two inmates don't share a cell. The remaining 400 or so death row inmates would be transferred later this year.

'I will strongly refute your assertion that prisoners on death row are being terrorized, tortured ... brutalized. That is totally untrue.'

— Allan Polunsky, board chairman

Prison officials said death row is being moved because the Ellis Unit has run out of space. The Ellis Unit, built in 1963, holds about 2,000 inmates. The Terrell Unit, built in 1993, holds about 3,900 inmates and the building that will house death row has a capacity of 504.

Gary Johnson, director of the TDCJ institutional division, said he expected the new building would not run out of space for three years, at which time TDCJ might have to move death row prisoners to other Terrell Unit buildings or to other prisons.

The death row move was partly spurred by Martin Gurule's successful escape from death row last November.

Gurule, one of seven men to attempt escape on the same day, was found dead a week later and the incident prompted a prison review that led to a security upgrade at Ellis.

The death row building at the Terrell unit currently holds problem inmates who are under maximum security, one to a cell. Those inmates, who are there for offenses such as trying to escape, will be transferred to other prisons.

The death chamber won't be moved from the Huntsville Unit, commonly known as the Walls Unit, however. Its location in downtown Huntsville is stipulated by law.

State looks to land jobs for parents with back child support

SAN ANTONIO — Aiming to reduce the number of Texas children on welfare, two state agencies are teaming up to helping find jobs for unemployed parents who owe back child support.

Noncustodial parents of children on welfare are being targeted for assistance under the new program of the Texas Workforce Commission and Texas Attorney General's Office.

"The portion that we want to address are the folks who do want to live up to their obligation," workforce commission spokesman Larry Jones said Friday. "What we want to do is get them a job."

Texas Attorney General John Cornyn and Texas Workforce Commission Chair Diane Rath unveiled the plan with the kickoff of a pilot project this week in San Antonio.

Pilot programs also were launched in Houston and Fort Worth. The two agencies intend to eventually spread the project statewide.

"Supporting a child financially and emotionally is a solemn responsibility," Cornyn said. "Unfortunately, many parents do not meet their financial obligations."

About 400,000 children receive an estimated $215 million annually in state welfare instead of child support, said Cornyn, whose agency oversees child-support payments for 2 million children.

Under the new plan, Cornyn's office will identify cases in which children are receiving Temporary Assistance to Needy Families, or welfare, and in which the noncustodial parent is unemployed and behind in child support payments.

The court overseeing the child's case will be notified. The judge will have a choice of several actions, including having the noncustodial parent jailed for nonpayment or directing the parent to the Texas Workforce Commission for job help.

"The program centers on work first, then training," said Jones, explaining that once a parent has a job, he or she can seek extra training such as working toward a high school diploma or improving language skills.

RB Cook gets double duty in Midland High scrimmage

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

The Midland High Bulldogs ended their spring training grind at Memorial Stadium Friday night without publicly answering the one burning question on everyone's mind — who is going to fill the spikes of 1,800-yard rusher Shemond Davis?

The answer to that question is, of course, Jimmy Smith, last year's fullback, now turned tailback. But Smith broke his hand on the third play of the scrimmage after four yards on three carries and didn't return.

"Jimmy has been a workhorse for us this spring," noted MHS coach David Browning. "He has made improvements in all phases of the game, including his pass catching skills, but he broke his hand. It's nothing that will keep him down any length of time, but we expect him to be a big part of the game."

Browning expected to let Smith carry 25 to 30 times Friday. Instead, fans were treated to junior-to-be Courtland Cook, who had to turn in double duty for both the White and Purple teams, rushing for 153 yards and two touchdowns.

"I really didn't expect to get that many carries (22)," Cook said. "But this scrimmage really helped me get all the reps I needed. I got kind of tired at first, running for both teams, but I got my second breath and got going from there."

Cook scored touchdowns for both the White and Purple teams and had a 62-yard run to set up his White TD in the second quarter. And since Cook spread out his yardage for both teams, it follows that this scrimmage ended in a 20-20 tie — if you want to take away a Chris Hicks interception against the Purple late in the fourth on a questionable call that allowed kicker Justin Smith to tie the game up for the Purple on the last play of the scrimmage with a 26-yard field goal.

"I was really proud of Cook, who carried both teams for a time," Browning said. "He carried a load out there."

In addition to Cook, Justin Smith was probably the next best thing to come out of this scrimmage. Smith, a punter last season, will do the field goal kicking this season and he looks like he will be another in a long line of great MHS

When the state's No. 9 baseball team, El Paso Socorro, came to town Friday afternoon, it resulted in a predictably dominant performance which included a five-inning run rule decision, a sterling performance by the ace pitcher and an opponent shaking its head over what exactly happened.

This time, though, it was the underdog — at least on paper — Midland Lee Rebels who were playing the role of bullies, putting their foot on the chest of Socorro and not stepping off until they had broken the Bulldogs' spirit. Lee did what might have seemed unthinkable a week ago, jumping on Socorro early and dominating in every phase imaginable in a 12-0 win in the first game of the Region I-5A quarterfinal at Ernie Johnson Field.

A week earlier, it had been another Midland team which was on the wrong end of that score, as Midland High traveled to El Paso in the area round and was thumped 10-0 in a five-inning run-rule Socorro win. Socorro's Bernie

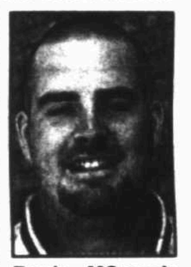
DOTHAN, Ala. — It wasn't quite a national championship, but the Midland College men's golf team scored some pride points Friday in the final day of the NJCAA National Tournament.



Ferrie...MC soph earns 2nd-team all-American honor

The Chaps shot their best round of the tournament with a 291 at the Highland Oaks Golf Course and actually moved up a place in the standings to fourth, overtaking Brevard Community College by one stroke with a total of 1,184. Midland College finished 28 strokes behind national champions Central Alabama Community College.

This marks the 13th straight year that the Chaps have finished no lower than sixth in the national tournament.

"This group of young men is one of the finest to ever represent Midland College golf," said Midland College Delnor Poss. "Everyone should be proud of their performance over the entire year, both as exceptional citizens and exceptional athletes."

Leading the way for Midland College was freshman Ernie Rose, who earned first team All-America honors with a sixth-place finish and a 291. Sophomore Kenneth Ferrie had his best round of the

Coahoma girls make state final

Staff and Wire Report

AUSTIN — The Coahoma softball team has advanced to its third Class 2A championship game in four years.

The Bulldogettes beat previously undefeated Como-Pickton 5-3 Friday in one semifinal of the UIL Softball Championships at the Pleasant Valley Softball Complex.

At 9 a.m. today, Coahoma will attempt to become the first team in any classification to win back-to-back state softball titles. To do so, the Bulldogettes have to go through a tough 37-2 Alto team.

■ UIL Softball

"That is going to be rougher," Coahoma coach Robert Royer said. "I really feel like the two toughest teams that had the roughest roads played after us — Shiner and Alto. We got a break playing Como-Pickton.

"I think the two best teams are matched up in the finals."

Alto beat Shriner 3-0 in the other semifinal behind a three-hitter from pitcher Alison Liles.

"Their pitcher throws a hard curve and hard drop," Royer said. "We haven't seem a curve all year long, and she has got a curve."

Coahoma pitcher Amber Bingham led the Bulldogettes to the win, tossing a six-hitter. Bingham (16-0) struck out eight.

Today, Kenni Kay Buchanan (13-3) will take the mound for Coahoma against Alto. Last year, Buchanan picked up the win in the title game after Bingham pitched in the semifinals. Still, Royer says that Bingham will be there if necessary, and the humid conditions could

Big 'Hound hitting display leads to 15-4 Midland mauling of Tulsa

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

For some reason Friday night, the Midland RockHounds saw the ball looking more like it belonged on a beach instead of a baseball diamond.

In front of 2,590 at Christensen Stadium, the RockHounds cured their recent road sick blues by pounding out 18 hits and drilling Tulsa 15-4 to end a recent two-game losing streak.

Friday's offensive explosion by the 'Hounds may have been the trick to forget about the 3-6 road trip to Tulsa and Arkansas. The homecooking the RockHounds received Friday cured a starving offensive tummy.

"We needed it," said Midland third baseman Adam Piatt, who was 3-for-4 with two home runs. "It was a tough road trip. We were really battling. The hitters were struggling but the pitchers kept it up for us, and they did another good job for us tonight again."

Every 'Hound in the lineup except for Josue Espada had at least one hit Friday night. They were led by the Nos. 2 through 6 hitters in Jeff DaVanon, Piatt, T.R. Marcinczyk and Justin Bowles, who combined for 10 hits.

"Hitting is contagious," Piatt said. "I haven't been in this game that long but I've been in it long enough to see that. We had some guys get some good strokes with the bat and I think that just carried over throughout the game."

Piatt had some of the best strokes of the night as he hit a two-run blast in the sixth, and then followed a Jeff DaVanon solo shot with a solo home run of his own in the five-run eighth inning.

Surging Spurs face big hurdle on playoff road

Associated Press

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Just when San Antonio has reached cruising speed with a 2-0 lead over the Los Angeles Lakers in their Western Conference semifinal series, the Spurs find themselves at the Forum.

It's a place Tim Duncan can't remember winning in, because the second-year forward never has.

The Spurs are 14-34 in regular-season games at the soon-to-be-retired building, and have lost their last four games there.

"It is a big hurdle for us," Duncan said Friday. "The Lakers are a very confident team. They're going to come in here with some great emotion."

Despite their success against the Spurs at home, history isn't on the Lakers' side. They haven't recovered from a 2-0 deficit to win a best-of-7 series since the trio of Elgin Baylor, Wilt Chamberlain and Jerry West helped them do so 30 years ago.

Since then, the Lakers are 0-9 in playoff series in which they lost the first two games, including losses to Utah each of the last two seasons.

"We aren't dejected, we aren't feeling like the series is over," Lakers guard Derek Fisher said. "We've been in both games."

Both teams insist they have yet to play their best basketball heading into Game 3 on Saturday.

"A bounce here or there" is how Spurs coach Gregg Popovich describes the difference in the first two games.

"I don't think anybody's outplayed the other team," he said. "I think we've been a little bit more fortunate down the stretch in a couple of games."

The Lakers would agree. They say they beat themselves in losing 87-81 and 79-76 in San Antonio.

"We've had shots we're very capable of hitting, they just haven't gone in for us," Lakers forward Glen Rice said.

"We realize if we go out and play the way we're capable of playing, things could easily turn around. We don't want to get back where we were about a month ago talking about it. We've just got to go out and do it," he said.

That means getting Shaquille O'Neal more than the 11 shots he took in Game 2. The Spurs don't expect so few from O'Neal on Saturday, but they want all his shots to be challenged.

"We've been very aggressive going down there," said Spurs center David Robinson, who along with fellow 7-footer Duncan has frustrated O'Neal. "If he wants to take tough shots with guys on him, then that's a good thing for us."

Just because O'Neal has averaged 18.5 points in the series — well below his season average — doesn't mean the Spurs are overconfident.

"One of the reasons why we've played him pretty good thus far is because we fear him so much," Spurs guard Avery Johnson said. "He can come in the next game, in our minds, playing like he's going to get 38.

"The minute you start to relax and don't fear him as much, then you're going to really be killed."

Fisher, whose job is to get everyone involved in the offense, said O'Neal shot the ball better in Game 2 despite taking only 11 shots.

Portland head coach Mike Dunleavy accepts his award as NBA Coach Of The Year Friday at The Rose Garden in Portland, Oregon. Dunleavy said that "it isn't done until we win the championship."

Portland coach says honor is for his team

Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — It was only natural that Mike Dunleavy accepted the NBA Coach of the Year award Friday with a little awkwardness.

All season long, his job was to persuade the talented Portland Trail Blazers that they had to put aside their own goals and egos to win.

"It's a little embarrassing to me," Dunleavy said as he accepted the Red Auerbach Trophy at the Rose Garden.

"I just hope our players understand that this is really a team award, and that I'm really proud of them," Dunleavy said, his voice wavering slightly and his eyes getting misty. "I look at it as an award for being the most improved team."

Dunleavy received 48 of a possible 118 votes from a panel of NBA sports writers and broadcasters.

Philadelphia's Larry Brown was second with 23 votes, followed by Utah's Jerry Sloan (15).

In his second season with the Blazers, Dunleavy faced a challenge that most coaches envied: how to integrate the deepest, most athletic roster in the league. Emerging stars like Damon Stoudamire, Brian Grant and Rasheed Wallace were coaxed into making room for role players like Stacey Augmon and Walt Williams. The free agent signings of veterans Jim Jackson and Greg Anthony made the Blazers even stronger, but opened the door for unrest over playing time.

Smith kicked four field goals, the longest of which was 40 yards into a steady wind. He was also perfect on four extra points. However, he was kicking without a rush.

"Coach (Browning) told me before the game that I would probably get a chance to kick a lot of field goals and that's the way it turned out," Smith said. "I've been kicking good all spring, so that was OK with me. I just did the punting last season, but I'm going to get a chance to do all the kicking this year, so that's exciting."

Returning starting quarterback Laynce Nix, who had only one week of work in spring training, completed four of 10 passes for 73 yards, completing three of those passes to tight end Randy Gardner.

"Randy is a big target out there," Browning said. "It's nice to see the ball go his way."

White quarterback Chris Howard, who had most of the snaps this spring since Nix was tied up with baseball, completed two of 11 passes and had two intercepted, but he has a gutsy style that seems to move the team.

Newcomer Merardo Avila looked impressive at cornerback. He returned an interception 48 yards for a Purple TD and almost came up with another interception just a few plays later.

The linebackers may be the most active group at MHS in a long time. Chris Hicks recovered a fumble to set up the White's first scoring drive and he had an Nix interception taken away from him in the fourth, a call that produced a 20-20 tie, but didn't set too well with the fans.

Still, Browning came away with what he wanted from the brief scrimmage that lasted less than 1 1/2 hours.

"This is the very best spring we've had since I've been here," Browning said. "There were no disappointments in the scrimmage and I thought they were very physical and that's what I really wanted to see. There was some poppin' going on out there.

"We practiced better this spring than we ever have. We had one bad practice in 18. I think we have the best linebackers we've had in a long time and our front defensive seven are better than we've ever had."

tournament with a 1-under 71, which gave him a total of 293 for a ninth-place finish.

That gave Ferrie second team All-America honors. It was the second year in a row Ferrie earned All-America, as he joined Dean Robertson, Derrick Pursley and Shawn Savage as other Midland College two-time All-Americas.

Graham Gordon had the best final round score for the Chaps with a 69, giving him a total of 299 and a tie for 20th. Rounding out the field for the Chaps were Kevin Hoffer with a 301 and Ben Clark with a 317.

Ferrie is the only golfer for Midland College who won't return next season, giving Poss reason for high hopes, and perhaps explaining why the Chaps fell just short.

"It comes down to who plays good this week and some other teams just played better," said Poss. "We have four freshmen in our lineup and I think we'll do at least as well next year."

be factor.

"It was way hot and humid," Royer said. "My girls were not ready for it. I have never seen sweat coming through their uniform before, but it was coming all the way through.

"If I get in trouble (in the final), I will pull Kenni Kay and put Amber in there. She can go three innings hard."

Coahoma (29-3) got clutch hitting from catcher Kourtney Kemper, who went 3-for-4 with two RBIs, including an RBI-double in the top of the first inning that gave the Bulldogettes an early 2-0 lead.

Brandi Hart, who had two hits including a triple, added two RBIs and Cassie Tindol one. Coahoma had 12 hits off Como-Pickton's Shanna Smith (21-1).

LEE: Rebels get one-hit pitching gem from Gilliam

(From 1B)

Minjares allowed only four ground ball singles against MHS and naturally got the call again when Socorro had to make the trip east to play Lee.

Maybe it was the disadvantage of an opponent having a scouting report, but Minjares didn't look like the same pitcher against Lee. In the first inning, the Rebels (26-6) got six hits off Minjares, matching the total he gave up in six innings against MHS.

"We didn't know what to expect," said Lee coach Jesse Benavidez, whose team can wrap up the best-of-three series today at 11 a.m. "We'd been hearing a lot about (Minjares) and when you've got good hitters like we do and they hear about a pitcher like that it's a challenge."

The pitcher who was the most dominant wasn't Minjares, but Lee's junior right-hander Collin Gilliam, who bettered what Minjares did against MHS a week earlier. Gilliam was only one out away from a no-hitter in the fifth when Javy Lopez lined a single to left. That was one of only three balls Socorro hit out of the infield off Gilliam, who improved his mark to 8-1.

Gilliam also got the start in last week's area round opener against El Paso Coronado, but struggled in his five-inning stint, giving up nine hits. It's safe to say that all negative Midland history was erased Friday afternoon.

"I thought it would be a lot closer game and go down to the wire," said Gilliam, echoing what most of the packed house probably was expecting. "I was real confident because I prepared all week for it. I knew all I had to do was go out and throw ground balls and the defense would make the plays and I knew we would get the runs."

Game 1: Newman Smith 2, Martin 1.
Game 2: 9 a.m., Saturday, at Carrollton Kelly.
Game 3: 30 minutes after conclusion of Game 2, if necessary.

While Eric Neatherlin led off the game with a single to right field and Nate Brignon followed with a walk and both scored, it was the bottom half of Lee's lineup which most damaged Minjares, who suffered his first loss of the season to fall to 10-1. Matt Winston drove in the first run with a single to right and Brignon scored on a double steal for a 2-0 lead. Then Michael Burlison, Josh Haney and George Figueroa, Lee's 7-9 hitters, all delivered run-scoring singles to make it 5-0 after one inning.

In the second inning, Lee did its damage with two outs. Eric Clodfelter hit a run-scoring double to left and Burlison's two-run single gave the Rebels an 8-0 lead and earned Minjares a surprisingly early exit.

Haney then greeted reliever Lopez with a two-run home run to left which made it 10-0, and pretty much put the game away. It was the third homer of the playoffs for Haney, who hit only .200 during district play and drove in only two runs.

"I've changed my stance at the plate and the ball just looks huge right now," said Haney.

Burlison, who had five RBIs, merely added icing to the cake with a two-run homer in the fourth. In fact, Socorro couldn't retire Clodfelter, Burlison or Haney, Lee's 6-8 hitters who combined to go 8-for-8, score six runs and drive in nine with two homers and a double.

The only real question was if Gilliam would get his no-hitter. He retired Steve Anson and Joey Ramos on weak grounders to start the fifth, but Lopez singled solidly to right to end the gem. Fabian Martinez then popped up to first to end the game after only 71 minutes.

"I knew I had the no-hitter the whole way," said Gilliam. "Nate Brignon mentioned it with two outs and that kind of jinxed me. The no-hitter would have been nice, but the win's more important in the playoffs."

Senior Josh Ramos will start this morning's game, and if it goes to a third game, Benavidez said Neatherlin would likely start. Benavidez doesn't want his players to celebrate this win too much with business to still be taken care of.

"I think (Socorro) is going to be focused," said Benavidez. "We've got to show up with the same mental attitude we had today. I told (the players) they could go home and play Nintendo for awhile or whatever, but they should get to bed early and get ready to come out here at 9 a.m. and warm up."

Champ De La Hoya plans return to old school fighting style

By Tim Dahlberg
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS — Oscar De La Hoya could probably take it easy Saturday night, box Oba Carr for 12 rounds and add another $5 million to his already fat bank account.

With a megafight set with fellow welterweight champion Felix Trinidad and other big bouts ahead, it would seem the prudent thing to do.

De La Hoya, however, is in no mood to be prudent.

"I'm not boxing anymore. I'm going back to fighting, to the old school way," De La Hoya said. "I'm going to walk through guys and destroy them."

That could be bad news for Carr, a decent enough fighter but a 10-1 underdog when he challenges De La Hoya for the WBC 147-pound title in the scheduled 12-round bout at the Mandalay Bay resort.

But it would please De La Hoya's fans, who may have been disappointed in the cautious way he fought Ike Quartey his last time out and the fact that four of his last eight fights have gone the 12-round distance.

"I guarantee you there is no fighter in the world who can take my punch and last 12 rounds," De La Hoya said. "So what am I doing boxing people? I should be going out there and destroying them."

De La Hoya doesn't need to knock Carr out to guarantee a Sept. 18 fight with Trinidad that will pay him $15 million. He simply needs to beat Carr for the fight, which was finalized Friday.

But De La Hoya says he has a reborn desire to punch people out. It came to him just during training camp when he woke up one morning about five weeks ago and decided that he should return to the form in which he knocked out 20 of his first 22 opponents.

A parade of different trainers, he said, had changed his style by convincing him that he was getting hit too much and should try to box more in the ring.

"I decided to listen to myself and do what I want in the ring," De La Hoya said. "My passion is fighting and I wasn't happy doing the things I was doing against (Pernell) Whitaker, Quartey and the others. I'm not a boxer, I'm a fighter. I'm a slugger."

De La Hoya said his transformation from boxer back to puncher began the same day of his revelation in his training camp in the mountains of Big Bear, Calif. He went into the ring and began backing his sparring partners up and punishing them instead of looking for angles and trying to block punches.

The results, says trainer Roberto Alcazar, have been nothing short of spectacular.

"It's 100 percent different," Alcazar said. "He's happy and he's hurting people in the ring. He's the old Oscar like he was when he first started out."

De La Hoya may be fortunate he's got a chance to test out his new theory of fighting against Carr instead of a ferocious puncher the likes of Trinidad.

Both fighters weighed in Friday at the class limit of 147 pounds.

Carr is capable enough and certainly no pushover. He's 48-2-1 with 28 knockouts and his only two losses were to Trinidad and Quartey, both of whom he knocked down before being beaten.

But Carr has had both sides of his jaw broken in his last two fights, and the Detroit fighter will be getting a bigger and stronger opponent. Carr had his jaw wired for weeks and was on a liquid diet after winning a Feb. 22 elimination fight against Frankie Randall to qualify for the De La Hoya fight.

"Oba Carr is a dangerous opponent and he'll be ready to fight," said De La Hoya, 30-0 with 24 knockouts. "When I fight an opponent, they lift themselves up to the sky. They all want to be the first to beat Oscar."

The fight with Carr, which will be televised by HBO beginning around 11:30 p.m. EDT, has been largely overshadowed by negotiations between rival promoters Bob Arum and Don King over a Sept. 18 fight between De La Hoya and Trinidad, who holds the IBF version of the welterweight title.

Trinidad has been offered $11 million for the fight, and Arum said the two sides were close to an agreement.

"The Trinidad fight will happen because I've been pushing it to happen," said De La Hoya, criticized in the past for the quality of some of his opponents. "They were making it look like I was scared of that fight. I'm not scared, it's Trinidad who is scared. Let's make the fight right now."

De La Hoya vs. Trinidad is set

LAS VEGAS — Oscar De La Hoya and Felix Trinidad have agreed on terms for their Sept. 18 welterweight unification fight. First, though, they must take care of some business in the ring.

Promoter Bob Arum said Friday that a deal for the fight has been made, with De La Hoya to receive $15 million and Trinidad's camp to get $10.5 million.

De La Hoya, though, must beat Oba Carr on Saturday night and IBF champion Trinidad has to beat Hugo Pineda on May 29 in Puerto Rico for the fight to occur.

"The two fighters have to win, that's the main thing," Arum said. "Other than that, it's a done deal."

Arum had given Trinidad and his promoter, Don King, until Friday to agree to terms on the fight, which will be televised on pay-per-view. He said King, who did not return a phone call for comment, agreed to the fight and attorneys for both sides were drawing up an agreement.

If no deal had been made, Arum had planned to bring Ike Quartey to Las Vegas for a news conference after De La Hoya's WBC 147-pound title defense against Carr to announce a rematch of the Feb. 22 fight in which De La Hoya won a decision over Quartey.

The fight would be the richest non-heavyweight bout in years, matching two unbeaten champions in their prime against each other. It will be held at the new Mandalay Bay resort on the Las Vegas Strip.

Pavin takes second round Colonial lead

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Corey Pavin's confidence has been quietly building the past six months. Put him on a course where he feels like a champion, and even he wasn't surprised to see his name atop the leaderboard after two rounds of the Colonial.

Carving his shots through tree-lined fairways, Pavin took another step toward resembling a former U.S. Open champion with a 6-under 64 Friday to take a one-stroke lead over John Cook, who had a 66.

"It's only a matter of time before I win again," said Pavin, a two-time Colonial winner who was at 7-under 133 and in good position to end the worst slump of his career.

With tamer winds and some cloud cover to keep the course from getting crusty in the late afternoon, Colonial Country Club played nearly 2 1/2 strokes easier than the first round and allowed 51 players to break par. Only 15 players were in the 60s on Thursday.

Perhaps the most surprising round came from Phil Mickelson, who finished with three straight birdies for a 63 that left him two strokes back along with Scott Hoch (66), Billy Mayfair (67) and Joe Durant (66).

Nicklaus' hip is OK, even if game has a way to go

AVONDALE, Pa. — A few months shy of 60, Jack Nicklaus is more Silver Bear than Golden Bear. His once-blond hair is flecked with gray, his left hip is artificial and his best days on the golf course are only a memory.

That doesn't mean he doesn't have some game, a lot of game, in fact, for someone who hadn't played a competitive round in nearly a year.

Mike Tyson gets parole

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Mike Tyson, in jail since February for assaulting two motorists, was granted parole Friday and is scheduled for release June 4.

The Maryland Parole Commission voted 5-1 to grant the former heavyweight champion his release, contingent upon approval by Indiana authorities.

The commission said it granted parole because it would guarantee that Tyson would be supervised upon his release. Had Tyson served out his term in Rockville, Md. — due to expire in September — he could not have been placed under the supervisory terms of parole.

"Our No. 1 reason for release is to assure that Mr. Tyson will reintegrate safely into society and follow the general rules of his parole," the commission said. "He needs to be supervised and held accountable to public standards of conduct."

Calls to Tyson probation officer George Walker and manager Shelley Finkel were not immediately returned.

Tyson pleaded no contest to misdemeanor assault charges following a minor traffic accident in suburban Gaithersburg, Md., in August. He was sentenced Feb. 5 on one year in the Montgomery County jail, and 60 days were later added as punishment for violating probation for a 1992 rape conviction in Indiana.

Dallas Stars goalie Ed Belfour, seen here blocking a shot by St. Louis Blues right wing Pavol Demitra in Game 5 of the Western Conference semifinals, is intent on shaking his reputation as a goaltender who can't win the big one. Belfour attempts to knock off Roy as Stars battle Avalanche

By Jaime Aron
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS — Ed Belfour of the Dallas Stars is intent on shaking his reputation as a goaltender who can't win the big one.

There would be no better way to do it than by outdueling Colorado's Patrick Roy in the Western Conference finals.

When the series begins Saturday, Belfour and Roy will be going head-to-head in the playoffs for the first time since a 1996 second-round series between Colorado and Chicago.

Belfour and the Blackhawks won the first game. Then he contracted food poisoning and missed Game 2. When he returned, Belfour played great, but Roy was even better as the Avalanche went on to win the Stanley Cup.

That title further cemented Roy's status as the gold standard of goalies. It was the third time his name went on the trophy and it came under the pressure of having been acquired at midseason specifically for that type of postseason leadership.

Roy did it again last round as Colorado went from being down 2-0 as the series shifted to Detroit, then winning four straight to eliminate the two-time defending champions.

"There is no better playoff performer than Patrick," Avalanche coach Bob Harley said. "He feels that pressure. He lives for that pressure. He can handle that pressure while raising his own game and force the guys around him to raise their own game.

"That is what a true leader will do for a hockey club."

Dallas gave Belfour a three-year, $10 million contract last season to be that kind of leader. He lived up to the challenge as the Stars rode their hot goalie to the conference finals.

Then, with the series 1-1, Belfour made mental blunders in consecutive games that led directly to Detroit goals. The Red Wings won the series in six games and back came the talk that the ultra-intense Belfour couldn't put a team over the top.

Belfour's pattern of grand success followed by failure began in 1992 when he helped Chicago win 11 straight playoff games, then was swept by Pittsburgh in the finals.

In 1993, Belfour became just the fifth goalie with multiple 40-win seasons, then lost four straight the playoffs. Another one-round exit followed in '94. Chicago reached the finals again in 1995, but Detroit won three overtime games to advance.

So far this postseason, Belfour has been superb. His 1.68 goals-against average is best among the four remaining playoff goalies and he and Roy are tied for the best save percentage at .929.

"Little things aren't bothering him," said Mike Keane, who was traded to Colorado with Roy in 1995 and joined Dallas last season. "Some teams have tried to get under Eddie's skin, but he's not really worried about stuff like he was last year. He won't take a whack at a guy or start chirping at them. He's just stopping pucks. That's what we need from Eddie Belfour."

Stars coach Ken Hitchcock said Belfour won't be spooked by having Roy in the opposite net, but also said he doesn't expect his goalie to be motivated by Roy's presence.

"I think Eddie's gone a long ways past that now," Hitchcock said. "Eddie's more into the light at the end of the tunnel. I think his own personal challenges are within, and they're all structured around our team.

"I just see him more focused on his job and not on the peripheral stuff that comes with this business. I watch his routine. He wastes no extra energy on any other area that is not relevant to winning hockey games. I think being able to do that is what makes special athletes special."

Driver trio battles for Indy pole

By Mike Harris
AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — Greg Ray wants to leave Indianapolis Motor Speedway on Saturday as the pole winner for the Indianapolis 500.

"That's what we've been here working on all week," said Ray, who has been the fastest driver on the 2 1/2-mile oval all but one day since practice opened last Saturday.

His fastest lap so far came Thursday during the final hour, often referred to as "Happy Hour" because weather conditions are generally conducive to speed with cooling temperatures and winds often dying down.

But Ray backed it up Friday with a lap of 227.192 mph shortly after the track opened for practice at 11 a.m. — the same time that the first of two days of time trials was scheduled to begin on Saturday.

The qualifying on Saturday and Sunday will determine the 33-car starting lineup for the 83rd Indy on May 30.

"It really hasn't mattered what time of day we go out," Ray said. "These guys at Team Menard have given me a fast car in just about any condition.

"There's no guarantees, but we're feeling pretty good right now," he said. "I'll be disappointed if we don't get the job done."

Of course, Ray can't take anything for granted — not with challengers like Tony Stewart, the driver he replaced at Team Menard, and Arie Luyendyk close enough to get his attention.

Artist seeks to combine faith, comics

By Lisa Singhania
Associated Press Writer

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — At first glance, the good vs. evil struggle depicted in Lifequest comics appears similar to the plot of any other fantasy tale.

But there's something different behind the story of 12-year-old Sarah and her quest to defeat the Scarlet Dragon. Creator Matt VanderPol says he's inspired by the parables of Jesus Christ.

"He was a great storyteller. He spoke truth, and his philosophy came through in his stories," says the 26-year-old artist. "I want to be a Christian artist, and I believe this can reach kids without being preachy."

In fact, he adds, "I didn't want to come across as too Christian because it might turn someone off."

Lifequest does not mention Christianity directly and is not being marketed as a religious comic book, but the story begins in "End Times," the chaotic period that some Christians believe will precede Jesus' return, and characters sometimes pray.

The story follows Sarah and Ridge, an apelike giant who is her friend and protector, in their quest to defeat the Scarlet Dragon, although the reasons for their efforts have yet to be fully explained.

Maurice O'Connor of Annapolis, Md., who regularly reads the comics to his 18-month-old daughter, says he didn't even realize the story was

Debate brews over what qualifies as contemporary Christian music

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

In the 1970s, James Taylor released a song called, "Shower the People," one of his many pop classics. It was perfectly at home on soft-rock radio of the era.

In 1991, the same song was re-recorded by Mylon and Broken Heart and found a home on Christian radio. Nowhere in the song does it mention God, Jesus, Christianity or the Bible.

But the song's sentiments — "Shower the People you love with love, show them the way you feel/Things are gonna be much better if you only will" — certainly serve to spread a message commonly found in Christianity and other religions.

The song seems a perfect fit for today's contemporary Christian music audience, which has come a long way since the genre consisted solely of praise and worship tunes about God, Jesus and Christianity.

Contemporary Christian fans can thank Amy Grant for the diversity in today's music. Her 1991 hit "Baby, Baby" — a song about a mother's love for her child — opened the doors for the variety that exists today.

Everywhere music fans turn, they hear and buy music that may or may not mention Christianity openly. Often, though, the lyrics deal with morality or lessons learned by Christian teachings, or is recorded by people who have built a reputation for being Christian singers. If it doesn't say "Praise and Worship" or "Gospel," odds are you take your chances with the music you buy. The music may or may not be an outward expression of the artist's Christianity. But that's not necessarily a bad thing.

"It doesn't have to expressly say 'God' or 'Jesus' in the song," said Todd Larsson, a local Christian music promoter and owner of the Christian music store, SoundSource. "The book of Esther from the Bible doesn't mention God. It's about a woman who does the right

Backers try to bring alternative radio to Midland teens

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff writer

Local Christian music supporters and youth ministers hope to raise enough money to supply a broadcast outlet in Midland-Odessa for teen-oriented Christian music.

Organizers say that such an effort would require a $16,000 one-time fee to place a satellite in Midland. The payoffs on such an investment, supporters say, would be incalculable.

In other cities, alternative Christian radio is the station of choice for younger listeners, including in Hobbs, N.M., where the station is the only one in that corner of the state that offers music that appeals to teens who like the harder edged sound. That the alternative sound happens to also be Christian in its lyrical content is a bonus, supporters say.

The satellite station, known nationally as KLYT, is a big success in Hobbs.

"In Hobbs, we have no real music station if you're into rock and roll or anything like that," said Jobe Seeberger, bassist for the Christian punk/ska band Ten Betty Zain. "KLYT, it's real eclectic. It will play anything. On Friday night, it's rap Christian; Saturday night, alternative and heavy metal. They play everything. It appeals to anybody that listens to it.

"It's real positive. Aside from the music, they have prayer times and talk shows."

Todd Larsson, who owns SoundSource, a Christian music store, is a principal player in efforts to bring the station to Midland.

Breaking the cycle of divorce

Can divorce not be used as an option in solving marital problems? Studies suggest that children whose parents divorce are likely to go through divorce, too. How can this circle be broken?

Kituku

There is a species of caterpillar that has a leader and travels by forming a line. One caterpillar places its head on the tail of the leader and a third caterpillar places its head on the tail of the second one. This goes on until each caterpillar, beside the leader, has its head on the tail of the caterpillar that is immediately ahead. Zig Ziglar, author of "See You at the Top," says that if the head of the lead caterpillar is moved in such a way that it's placed on the tail of the last caterpillar, thus forming a circle, the caterpillars will keep going round and round until they die of hunger, even if food is placed inside the circle.

Our generation has suffered from "caterpillar syndrome" in divorce. We have more marriage information and specialists than any other generation, yet the circle is somehow self perpetuating. The cycle of divorce can be broken by commitment to God and one's spouse.

Recent studies also indicate that there are social benefits enjoyed by those who stay married. Dr. Linda J. Waite, a professor of sociology, University of Chicago, reported that, "marriage brings considerable benefits to both women and men. It lengthens life, substantially boosts physical and emotional health and raises income over that of single or divorced people or those who live together" (The New York Times, August 4, 1998). The report also concluded that, "marriage appeared to reduce the degree of depression."

The Good Book: Malachi (Part 39 of 66)

Overview:

Malachi probably lived in the period following the return of the exiles, 500-450 B.C. His prophetic voice was devoted to the temple and held a high view of the priesthood and its responsibilities. Malachi rebuked the priests of Israel for their unwillingness to offer their finest sacrifices to God. He offers strong exhortation for husbands to maintain faithfulness to their wives and for all people to offer their full tithe to the Lord. Malachi also speaks of a messenger of the Lord who will "prepare the way" for God's coming.

Theme Passage:

3:1-3 "See, I am sending my messenger to prepare the way before me, and the Lord whom you seek will suddenly come to his temple. The messenger of the covenant in whom you delight — indeed, he is coming, says the Lord of hosts. But who can endure the day of his coming, and who can stand when he appears? For he is like a refiner's fire and like fuller's soap; he will sit as a refiner and purifier of silver, and he will purify the descendants of Levi and refine them like gold and silver, until they present offerings to the Lord in righteousness."

RADIO: Rock beat, Christian message can co-exist, say local youth ministers about more gun control and more metal detectors, blah blah blah," Larsson said. "The cause of all this (violence) is what they're filling their minds with. If you look at songs on secular radio, a lot of it is trash."

Many local church youth ministers are encouraged by the possibility of such a station coming to Midland for its youth.

"Kids get a lot of influence from secular stations," said Roger Willis, youth minister at Second Baptist Church. "It would really be neat if they had some Christian music and good influence. A lot of the lyrics the adults may not understand but the teens do. The messages conveyed in Christian music are always real positive, encouraging and hopeful, and in the current climate and culture with everything we've seen, everybody would have to agree it would be a good thing."

All involved agree that the local Christian station, K-LOVE, more than fills the need for the softer-rock/pop oriented Contemporary Christian market consisting mostly of adults, but a station devoted to the sound kids like is something needed to supplement the current Christian music available.

George Koehl, music minister at First Baptist Church, said such a radio station would provide another opportunity for kids to be exposed to positive messages.

"A kid could go to school and say, 'Hey, have you heard this band?' It opens up a new realm, and is a positive witness to kids."

Andy Spell, youth minister at Golf Course Road Church of Christ, said today's secular rock radio is much different than it was 10-20 years ago.

"We listened to Boston, Journey, Kansas," Spell said. "The language and the rape was not there. Today ... Marilyn Manson, that's a disturbing message. This (alternative Christian music) has a positive message for teenagers. The age old question is, 'Can you have a rock beat and proclaim the name of Jesus?' I believe you can. Jesus used things in his culture to reach people, and I think that's what this station might do: reach kids that might not otherwise be reached."

Members of the local Christian music community have, to this point, raised only $1,000 of the $16,000 needed. The money has been placed in an escrow account and will be returned to investors if the efforts fail.

According to Willis, the money represents more than just start-up costs by also conveying a community's commitment to its youth.

"It's a statement that the community is willing to invest in this venture," Wilis said. "That commitment makes them want to come in."

To help in the effort to bring the station in, donations should be made to KLYT Escrow Account, c/o Todd Larsson, SoundSource, P.O. Box 80757, Midland, TX,79708; questions can be directed to Larsson at SoundSource, 697-8100.

"The bottom line is we've got kids with violence in schools, drugs, alcohol," Larsson said. "I'm not saying music can change everything, but it can change a lot of hearts. How refreshing it would be to pull in to a Sonic and that's what they're listening to."

Christian-inspired until he read the author's note at the end of one of the books.

"Anybody from any particular faith can read these," says O'Connor, who wrote VanderPol to thank him for the way Lifequest avoids violence and portrays girls as capable and intelligent.

Lifequest has none of the scantily clad women that populate many comic books, and the series' tone diverges from that of many other comics. "So many are so dark and violent," VanderPol says.

Still, teen readers of Lifequest find much that's familiar, including suspenseful action and occasional bathroom humor.

Learning how to balance his ideology with mainstream tastes has been tricky, VanderPol says.

"I talked to folks at my church. They said, 'Hey don't be so uptight, don't worry about it,'" he says. "My pastor told me not to worry."

VanderPol says he turned to God after the painful breakup of a college romance. Around the same time, he began drawing Sarah and Ridge. Religion, he says, has helped him stay focused. He says he hopes his comics bring readers a little pleasure in a world he describes as "gritty."

"If my book helps someone, an abused kid, feel some hope, that would be wonderful," he says.

thing and does what God has placed her to do in standing up for her people."

Larsson said simply a Christian song should be defined as "one that comes from a Christian perspective about life. It may be very blunt in praising Jesus, or it may not be, but it still comes from a Christian perspective."

There are numerous examples right now:

■ DCTalk's "Consume Me" doesn't mention God or Jesus, and could easily be taken either as a song about a person's heavenly love or earthly love of a partner.

■ Jars of Clay's second album, "Much Afraid," contains, in almost 60 minutes of music, 10 mentions of love, four mentions of "Jesus," two mentions of "peace" and "prayer," and one mention each of "faith," being "blessed," the "Light of the World," "angels" and "God." But listening to it, there is no mistaking that it is a Christian album.

■ Caedmon's Call's "Somewhere North," a story about prayer and a man's journey to God, could just as easily be about a long drive to visit a partner, and "Daring Daylight Escape" is almost certainly a song about a relationship on earth as opposed to a relationship with Christ.

The controversy of what defines Christian music reached new heights when the Gospel Music Association, in 1997, defined its criteria for Dove Award consideration as follows: "Gospel music is music in any style whose lyric is substantially based upon historically orthodox Christian truth contained in or derived from the Holy Bible; and/or an expression of worship of God or praise for his works; and/or testimony of a relationship with God through Christ; and/or obviously prompted and informed by a Christian world view."

Michael W. Smith's "Love Me Good" was disqualified for Dove Award consideration because it failed the GMA's guidelines; Sixpence None The Richer's song, "Kiss Me," heard in the teen movie, "She's All That," is not played on contemporary Christian radio, but has met with resounding success on the Billboard, VH-1 and MTV charts, the first time a song from a Christian artist has met with such across-the-board acceptance.

"I believe any kind of music that has a positive effect on you can be classified as Christian," said Jobe Seeberger, bass player for the Hobbs, N.M.-based Christian punk/ska band Ten Betty Zain. "Being Christian is not just knowing God. Doing God's work is being Christian. If you learn about what God wants you to do through Christian music — whether it's being obedient, or about learning that Christians can have as much fun as regular people — I believe that classifies it as Christian."

George Koehl, minister of music at First Baptist Church, said he defines a Christian song as one that "specifically deals with speaking about God and Jesus; giving them praise for their attributes and character; a testimony about what God has done in their life, how Jesus lives through them and how they view the world because of what God has done in their life.

"In the song 'Butterfly Kisses,' Koehl said, "he's writing that from the perspective of a father's gift sent from his heavenly father. She's precious, even though it, quote, doesn't say anything about God or Jesus."

Koehl said when B.J. Thomas was a secular artist, Thomas said that he wasn't so much a Christian singer as he was a Christian who was a singer.

"Amy Grant, Michael W. Smith and other groups are doing that. They want to have a wider listenership. We have enough music that talks about death and killing and dying and depression."

Larsson said if you look at the parables Jesus told, "at face value those parables may not seem like Christian stories, but if you look at them deeper, they are.

"Songs written by Christians, whether they're about relationships or the work place or being at a grocery store, are songs written from a Christian perspective," Larsson said. "I can go to a 7-11 and have a totally different viewpoint about what I see there than a non-Christian will. If we look around, we see God's hand in everything. It takes the discernment of those who know Christ to know when you do see God working."

KITUKU: Never marry as a means of escaping dad and mom's rules

(From 1C)

The above benefits of marriage do not happen by chance. One has to marry the right person. We have to teach our children factors they need to know before getting married. Such as ...

1. To marry someone who has a firm relationship with God.
2. Waiting for the right person has lifetime payoff benefits.
3. The quality of a relationship with a spouse affects one's relationship with God and closeness to God affects the quality of relationship in a marriage.
4. Know that a spouse is the most important person on earth. Boss, children, parents and friends are secondary.
5. Marry someone who respects and honors his or her parents, because if they don't, chances are that he or she won't respect of honor his spouse.
6. Better not marry as a way of escaping from dad and mom's rules
7. Never marry for sex only.
8. Honesty to God and oneself is the foundation for faithfulness in marriage.
9. Never seek romantic satisfaction outside your marriage as a solace for your marital problems
10. Marriage is not a business contract. It is a lifetime commitment.
11. In marriage, there is no 50/50 rule. Each partner gives 100 percent of him or herself for the union to flourish.
12. In marriage "battles" there is no winner. The middle ground accommodates all.
13. Each marriage is unique and can never survive as a duplicate of another marriage
14. Conflicts can be solved if "I" is replaced with "We" so that the solution that each person can live with can be developed
15. Wrong is wrong even if everybody else is doing it and right is right even if no one is doing it.
16. Marriage is a bed of roses with thorns. It is up to couples to remove thorns as they develop so as to spend time on the roses.

We have addressed the spiritual and social aspects that lead to divorce. We have learned how a couple can solve their marriage problems in different areas through this, It's Marriage...Not Matatu Business series; Areas covered included: Introduction (It's Marriage...Not Matatu Business); Cultural Dynamics and Family Stability; Communicating Effectively to Save Marriage; Material Possessions: Blessings or Curse?; For the Sake of Children; Children: Additional Blessing; In-Laws and Your Marriage; Living Happily Ever After; A Husband's Responsibility; A Wife's Responsibility; and Breaking the Cycle of Divorce.

One area, Satisfying Sex Life and Healthy Marriage was not printed for logical reasons. All these articles are available in a booklet, including Satisfying Sex Life and Healthy Marriage article. Call (208) 939-7216 or 1-888-685 1621 to get a booklet. My prayer is for each couple to have a God blessed marriage and break the cycle of divorce.

First United Methodist, First Presbyterian team up for "Challenge '99 youth retreat

By [illegible] Patterson
Staff writer
First Presbyterian Church and First United Methodist Church will team up June 11-13 to present "Challenge '99," a weekend youth retreat featuring nationally-known singer-songwriter Gene Cotton, and other speakers, workshops and mission opportunities, all of which are geared to teenagers of Midland. Youths participating in the retreat will be housed in homes sponsored by the two churches.

Gene Cotton

The weekend's activities begin with a performance for the retreat's youth by Cotton, who had three hit singles in the 1970s and 1980s, including the duet "You're a Part of Me," which he recorded with Kim Carnes. His other songs include "Like a Sunday in Salem" and "Before My Heart Finds Out," made popular by Stephen Bishop.

Cotton is now known as a lay person in the United Methodist Church who has been serving the church through retreats and youth rallies across the nation.

Saturday, youths will meet in small groups at selected sites across Midland, rehearsing for the "Challenge '99 Choir" concert. There will be a performance open to the public by Cotton, 7 p.m., Saturday, at the First Presbyterian Family Life Center lawn, at the corner of C and Illinois.

Sunday morning worship will be at First United Methodist Church. The Challenge '99 choir will provide music during the service. Sunday night, a Challenge Afterglow concert featuring Gabe Cate will be held at the Ground Floor, on Wall St. in downtown Midland.

"Challenge '99" will allow youth to meet the challenges of realistic Christian faith," said Jennifer Sise, Director of Youth Ministry at First Presbyterian. "This is really an event for youth at all points in their spiritual journey, and it's even for kids who aren't sure that they believe in God."

Sise and Scott Miller, Youth Minister at First United Methodist, are working together to present the retreat.

"Most importantly," Miller said, "Challenge '99" will challenge kids to be who they are called to be as children of God, to take risks in building a personal relationship with Jesus Christ and to stand up for their faith in a world where Christianity isn't always cool."

Registration fee for "Challenge '99" is $20, which includes all meals, programs, the concerts and a Challenge '99 t-shirt. Scholarships are available. Registration deadline is May 30.

For additional information, call Lisa Ledyard, 682-3701; Sise, at 684-7821, or Miller, at 682-3701.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, May 22, 1999:
Others seek you out quite often this year. Be sure of yourself and your priorities. Your intuition guides you in a new direction or on a different path. Allow yourself and others greater freedom; make an effort to be less controlling. Pressure can be great, both within you and in external circumstances. If you are single, pick and choose from your many admirers. A friendship could develop into a lot more if you are open to the possibilities. One tie could be most special. If attached, work on the quality of your home life. Together, you can create greater happiness. VIRGO pushes your buttons.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Everyone needs some time off, including you. Use an unanticipated break for leisure. Sometimes you need to stabilize rather than continually doing and running. Clear out errands. Handle a matter personally. Ask another for additional support. Tonight: Keep it low-key.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★★ Sometimes another judges a situation differently than you do. Today provides an excellent example of that. Evaluate what you expect from a relationship, specifically and in general. Sometimes you can be overly exacting. Tonight: Let the "wild thing" in you out!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Others might be demanding without realizing that it only makes you withdraw. Allow greater self-expression, whether through a hobby or through something uniquely special that you do. Your intuition is right on with a family member. Tonight: Happy at home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ If you need to make a change in plans, do so. Remember, you are only human — your energy isn't limitless, nor should it be. Allow greater self-expression between you and others; talk and share more. Getting friends together proves to be particularly rewarding. Tonight: Where the action is.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Expenses may go overboard, causing you to lose control. Listen carefully to a child or loved one who throws tantrums when he doesn't get his way. Make decisions for you alone. A must appearance could weigh heavily on you. Everything works out, though. Tonight: Indulge yourself for a change.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ The moon beams you into the limelight. Though you may not always have all the right answers with a family member, you are heading in the right direction. Listen carefully to feedback, remain sure of yourself. Your personality melts barriers. Do what you have always wanted to do! Tonight: The center of it all!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ Sometimes saying little and avoiding conflict is the best course of action. You see this with a key partner who seems favorably disposed. Don't count on this being long-term, however. A conversation could become a power play — could there be a misunderstanding here? Tonight: Let others wonder — vanish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ Aim for what you want, but don't be surprised by the cost this could exact from you. Don't minimize another's importance to you. Friends join together, and you need to let off steam. Invite a key person in your life to come along. Tonight: Where the party is.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Others look to you for ideas and indirectly place demands on you. You might decide that enough is enough as you kick up your heels and go on your merry way. Still, there are things to do and key projects to complete. Popularity peaks. Tonight: Do what is relaxing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★★ Reach out for those at a distance. You might decide to pack your bags and take off ASAP. You could be misreading a situation. Seek to understand more of what is happening with a loved one. Creativity is enhanced because you are so open to others. Tonight: Let romance happen.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Relating to others is always a pleasure for you; however, a friend could disappoint you. Go with a change of plans; something better will happen. Invite a special person over for dinner. Allow more quiet talks and sharing into your life. A relationship gets a second wind. Tonight: Be a duo.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You are personality plus. Allow greater feedback from others; what they think is important to you. Be willing to cancel a must appearance. Communication between you and a new friend develops; let the connection grow naturally. Tonight: Go along with another's plans.

Rehab center isn't Joplin's old house

SAN FRANCISCO — A drug rehab center in the city's Haight-Ashbury district isn't in Janis Joplin's old house after all.

The Golden Gate Community rehab center, tapping local legend, said in a news release earlier this week that it is operating out of a Victorian home where the singer who died of a heroin overdose in 1970 once lived.

But her '60s cohorts soon turned up to set the record straight: She lived next door.

Indeed, Ms. Joplin's California driver's license listed her address as 122 Lyon. The center is at 124 Lyon.

LOS ANGELES — Sharon Stone, distressed by the Columbine High massacre, has given her guns to police and asked that they destroy them.

The actress, who played a gunslinger in the 1995 movie "The Quick and the Dead," called officers to her Beverly Hills home on May 14 to pick up her shotgun and three handguns.

"Our world has changed and our children are in danger," Ms. Stone said Thursday in a statement. "I choose to surrender my right to bear arms in exchange for the peace of mind of doing the right thing."

Ms. Stone urged others to surrender their guns, too, and relinquish their "fear and anger. We as a nation are in pain."

Ms. Stone said she kept the weapons for protection.

She was particularly "moved by the incident at Columbine High School," said Officer Mike Partain, a police spokesman.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Woody Harrelson and a federal judge clashed during a marijuana cultivation trial, and the "Cheers" actor nearly landed in jail.

Harrelson was appearing Thursday as a defense witness for a friend accused of growing marijuana. The actor is an outspoken advocate of hemp cultivation.

On the stand, he disobeyed U.S. District Judge Garland E. Burrell Jr.'s orders not to discuss certain matters that had been ruled inadmissible.

"I'm just wondering why you're keeping the truth from the jury," Harrelson said. As he stepped down from the stand, he snapped: "How do you sleep at night?"

———

EAST WINDSOR, Conn. — Rosalynn Carter is criticizing candy maker Nestle as insensitive toward the mentally ill for producing taffy bars with the names Psycho Sam and Loony Larry.

"Nestle says those names are just jokes, they don't hurt — but they do hurt," the former first lady said Thursday. "They hurt people who are mentally ill, and they hurt their families."

Carter, author of a new book on treatment of the mentally ill, made her remarks during a fund-raising luncheon for a Connecticut mental health counseling service.

Nestle spokeswoman Tricia Bowles said "there's no disrespect or ill intent" in the company's candy names, which are "created out of humor."

"Those names are characters on the packaging with funny faces," she said.

LOS ANGELES — Julia Louis-Dreyfus is now a song-and-dance woman.

The "Seinfeld" actress is heading back to TV, teaming up with Drew Carey for a "Wonderful World of Disney" musical retelling of the Pinocchio story that will be titled "Geppetto." Shooting begins next month, the show will be broadcast next May.

Ms. Louis-Dreyfus plays the Blue Fairy who grants Geppetto's wish for a son.

While one "Seinfeld" episode portrayed her character as dance-challenged, the actress said she's up to the dancing — and the singing. "I haven't cut any albums, but I'm pretty capable," she said Thursday.

———

LONDON — Princess Diana's brother, Earl Spencer, bought the original musical score to Sir Elton John's "Candle in the Wind '97" at auction Friday.

Spencer paid $40,500 for the score to the tribute song, which became the biggest-selling single of all time after John performed it at Westminster Abbey during Diana's September 1997 funeral.

A spokeswoman for Spencer said he planned to display it in a museum of his sister's life, which he created at the family's ancestral home, Althorp, 65 miles northwest of London.

The manuscript was signed by John and the legendary Beatles producer Sir George Martin, who hastily produced the single after Diana's death.

"It will be on display this year, and we are very happy to have it there," said Shelley-Anne Claircourt, Spencer's spokeswoman.

The song has sold 33 million copies and raised $96 million for the Diana, Princess of Wales Memorial Fund.

Money from Friday's sale, held at Sotheby's in London, will be donated to music-related charities, the auction house said.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF TERMINATION OF MEDICAID PROVIDER AGREEMENT
Terrace Gardens Nursing Center
2901 West Ohio
Midland, Texas 79701

On June 9, 1999 the Medicaid agreement between Terrace Gardens Nursing Center and the Texas Department of Human Services relating to the nursing facility's participation in the Title XIX Medicaid Program is to be terminated, unless the nursing home achieves compliance with the Medicaid requirements prior to that date. The cause for Medicaid termination is that Terrace Gardens Nursing Center does not meet the minimum health or safety standards required for Medicaid program participation. The Medicaid program will not make payments for nursing facility services furnished to residents of Terrace Gardens Nursing Center, on or after June 9, 1999.

It's true! It's true!
Now you're 40 too!
But don't forget,
We're still older
than you!
Happy Birthday, baby sister!
WE LOVE YOU
(Even though we fed you crackers on the air conditioner!)

GENERAL INFORMATION:

To ensure the integrity of our newspaper, for the benefit of our readers and advertisers, the Midland Reporter-Telegram reserves the right the revise, reclassify, edit or refuse any advertising. We also reserve the right to convert all advertising into digital and/or audiotext formats within our other products and services.

Please check your ad the first day it appears, and, if you find a mistake, please call our office at 682-6222 so we can correct the error immediately. This will ensure that your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. If an error does occur, you can choose to rerun your ad once for free, or we'll gladly refund the cost of the portion of the ad affected by the error. If an ad is inadvertently omitted, we will assume liability up to the cost of the ad itself – consequently, we will publish your ad in our next available edition or refund the price you have paid.

Rate charges are determined at the time of placement. All ads accepted are subject to credit approval. Some classifications require payment in advance. Credit applications are required for business accounts.

We welcome your suggestions or comments. Please call: Brandi Alexander, Telephone Sales Supervisor, 687-6613.

❸ Sell It In 10 - Advertise anything on wheels for 10 days. In the unlikely event that it doesn't sell, we'll run it for 10 more days FREE! If it still doesn't sell, we'll run it 10 more days FREE if you drop the price 10%. 4 LINES 10 DAYS FREE $20.50

You'll get 4 lines to describe your vehicle (that's about 18 words, including the price). If you would like more information in your ad, each additional line is only $5.

All of our specials are for private, non-commercial individuals only and some specials require pre-payment, some do not. One item per ad please. Call 682-6222 for complete details.

PLACING AN AD:

Call 682-6222, Monday through Friday, from 8a.m. – 6p.m.

A friendly Advertising Consultant will help you word and schedule your ad for best results.

HOW TO WRITE A CLASSIFIED AD THAT WORKS!

- Promote Your Merchandise - The more descriptive you are the more likely your merchandise will appeal to someone.
- Check The Market Value - The most common mistake that occurs is over or under pricing your goods.
- Always Include The Price - People are more likely to respond when they know the price range.
- Keyword Your Ad - Begin each ad with the name of the item, such as "Stove" or "Guitar" rather than "Kenmore" or "Gibson", "Ford 1997" instead of "1997 Ford", or by its key reference point, such as location or area in real estate ads..

The New Street Machines

As prices for good 1955-1957 Chevrolets and early muscle cars proceed towards the stratosphere, the search continues for solid, simple, inexpensive cars that make proper street machine material. A good project car should be able to accept a wide variety of drive trains, and parts must be readily available, cheap, and easy to find in a junkyard.

Here are two contenders for "King of the '90's Street Machines," and they fill all the above requirements.

In 1979 Ford Motor Company brought out a new Mustang (and Mercury Capri) based on the "Fox" (Ford's code name) platform. All Mustangs since have been built on the same basic chassis, with a variety of drive trains and body styles.

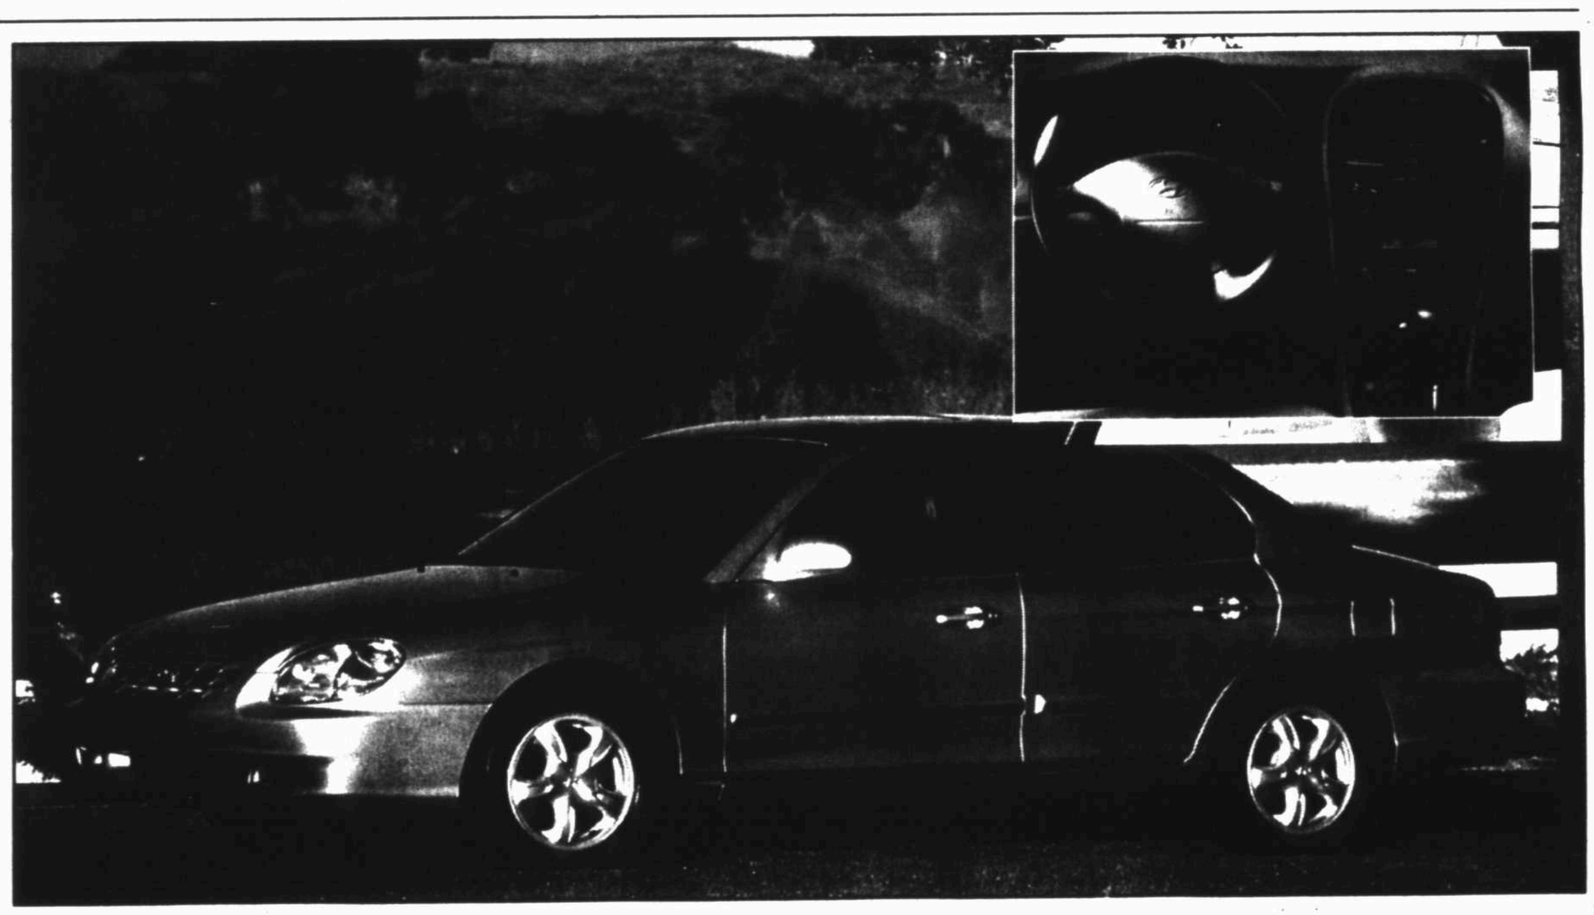
The engine bay is roomy, and with a big enough shoe horn to make nearly any Ford V8 fit under the hood. Tidy dimensions make for a relatively lightweight ride, and in addition to straight-line performance goodies, there are handling enhancements available to make these cars into real "canyon carvers."

Model year '87 and newer models are favored for their upgraded suspensions, interiors and styling, and the easy availability of performance parts for the 302 V8, which was also extensively updated that year. Choose a "notchback" coupe for the most rigid body structure, or a convertible for affordable, "wind in your hair" fun.

There is good news for those who genuflect to the General Motors altar, too. Way back in 1978, the General introduced a line of rationally-sized intermediate cars that were available in a myriad of variations for ten years. The Oldsmobile Cutlass, Chevrolet Monte Carlo, Malibu and El Camino, Buick Regal and Pontiac LeMans were available in coupe, sedan, station wagon and "partial pickup truck" models in countless trim levels.

Of these, coupes, the relatively rare El Camino, and station wagon models are the most likely platforms for hot rodding. Station wagons are a hot trend right now. Many came equipped with anemic V8 engines but a small-block Chevrolet V8 is a simple, bolt-in swap.

These vehicles offer decent interior room with tidy external dimensions and there seems to be no end to the after-market performance parts available. General Motors built about as many of these cars as McDonalds' has fried hamburgers. If a person spends a sunny Saturday stomping through several junk yards chasing parts, one soon discovers that about half the cars in the junkyard have some used bit piece, and there is no shortage of parts cars and no waiting about on sales.



RoadWorthy!

Taking Advantage: '99 Hyundai Sonata sedan

By Ken Chester, Jr.

Advantage:Hyundai would best describe the auto maker's current campaign in the American marketplace. After some 13 years in the United States, Hyundai is on a roll with new designs, higher quality and a "can't lose" warranty across the auto maker's entire product line.

After the launch of the Tiberon coupe and the redesigned Elantra sedan and wagon, Hyundai turned its full attention to its flagship, the mid-size Sonata sedan. Totally redesigned for the 1999 model year, the Hyundai Sonata is available as a four-door sedan in Base and GLS models.

Engine choices include the competent 2.4L four-cylinder engine and the all-new 2.5L Delta V-6 engine. Transmission selections are the standard five-speed manual or the $800 optional four-speed automatic.

On the road, the mid-size Sonata GLS delivers an impressive balance of response and control at speed. It is easy to drive — safety controllable on twists and turns. Michelin MXV4 Plus 205/60R15 tires work well with the chassis and suspension to permit sporty driving. Front and rear mud flaps add a nice touch.

Inside the cabin, well placed displays and controls greet the driver, with a front center armrest that opens to reveal storage space and two cup holders. Interior lighting is improved from prior years.

Rear seat occupants are treated to a roomy space that will accommodate two adults in long distance comfort. The 60/40 split fold down rear seat back found in the GLS increases the available cargo capacity of the wide but shallow trunk.

Hyundai calls its package of warranty coverage "The Hyundai Advantage." This actually is three warranties plus roadside assistance. The Bumper-to-Bumper warranty is five years/50,000 miles, corrosion, five years/100,000 miles, powertrain, ten years/100,000 miles and roadside assistance, five years/unlimited mileage.

By the numbers

Engine performance numbers are as follows: 2.4L DOHC 16-valve four-cylinder engine - 149 hp @ 5,500 rpm and 156 lb/ft of torque @ 3,000 rpm and the 2.5L DOHC 24-valve V-6 - 170 hp @ 6,000 rpm and 166 lb/ft of torque @ 4,000 rpm. EPA fuel economy figures range from 21 city/30 highway for the 2.4L/five-speed manual to 20 city/28 highway for the 2.5L/four-speed automatic using regular unleaded gasoline. Underhood fluids are easy to reach but not consistently marked.

Standard safety equipment includes: dual front airbags with front passenger presence detection system, front seat mounted side airbags and three-point seat belt for the middle rear seat. Four-wheel disc brakes with anti-lock and traction control are only available in the top of the line option package found on the GLS model for $3,225.

Retail prices for the Hyundai Sonata range from $14,999 for the Base four-cylinder/five-speed manual to $17,799 for the GLS six-cylinder/four-speed automatic. Destination charge adds $435. Dealers report good supplies of the Sonata sedan. Current Hyundai owners qualify for a $1,000 cash rebate on the 1999 Sonata that ends on June 30.
