(Q) What are the reasons for the mail delivery change in Colorado City? We did get our mail at 11 a.m., now it is 3:30 p.m.

(A) Colorado City postmaster Charles Greer explained that mail routes for the whole town have been restructured which resulted in some residents getting their mail earlier, some later and some at their regular time.

Greer said that the changes were necessary because of increased mail volume combined with the fact that the local post office is operating with one less vehicle than it used to and that part of an additional walking route was added.

He added that the changes will be permanent.

New pay levels approved

By Ray Mayo
Editor

The Mitchell County Commissioners' Court Monday approved two new pay levels for road and bridge employees.

Commissioner Paul Hunter recommended the change, explaining that under the two pay-level system, a new full-time employee might make as much as a regular employee with several years experience.

Hunter said that the two pay-level system had only two classifications of employees--foreman and regular.

The new system calls for four classifications with level four being regular employees with less than six months experience; level three employees with more than six months experience; level two employees with more than a year's experience; and level one being the foreman.

Pay increases will still be at the discretion of each commissioner, Hunter explained. He said that the pay-level four employees will be making $50 less a month than pay-level two employees and pay-level three employees will be making $25 a month less than pay-level two.

In other business, the commissioners set the holidays for the remainder of the year with most county employees to get 11 holidays. The holidays include Good Friday, April 5; Memorial Day, May 27; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, Sept. 2; Veterans Day, Nov. 11; Thanksgiving, Nov. 28-29; Christmas, Dec. 23-25; and New Year's Day, Jan. 1.

The court also established new record keeping requirement as mandated by the IRS Tax Reform Act. The policy reads that if a county owned licensed vehicle is used for commuting (either one-way or round trip), the employee is liable, for Internal Revenue Service purposes, for payment of income tax at the rate of $4 per day. Each employee charged with the responsibility of a county owned vehicle will be required to keep a daily log indicating the daily record of use with the log to be turned into the county treasurer no later than 20th of the month. The order is effective Jan. 1.

Commissioners also approved the sale of a small parcel of land located next to the Mitchell County Cemetery. The bid was awarded to the only bidder, Calvary Baptist Church, for $500 plus legal fees and legal advertising. The property will be used by the Baptist Mission located at 17th and Oak streets.

Commissioners approved a bid to Barnhill Office Supply of Abilene for $5,029.95 for a new filing system for the sheriff's department. The only other bidder was a Midland office supply for $6,838.20.

Commissioners also approved a request from Sheriff Wendell Bryant for Bryant and one deputy to attend at a Civil Paper Process School at Texas A&M University in College Station this Saturday. Tuition is $50 each for the 10-hour school, said Bryant.

County auditor Georgie Griffith was authorized to gather information about a possible insurance consultant for the county. She told the court that there are multiple policies on county-owned buildings and it's difficult to tell whether or not the county is adequately insured. She said some counties have hired insurance consultants for the purpose of examining policies and recommending the best way to proceed with insuring with county property.

In other business, the commissioners:

--agreed to advertise for bids for repairing and repainting the interior of the county library;

--appointed Jim Baum to chair the Mitchell County Historical Commission to replace Ann Lindsey whose term expired Dec. 31;

--agreed to advertise for the acceptance of applications for county depository;

--approved the rural fire contracts with Colorado City, Westbrook and Loraine;

--approved the bond of County Treasurer Ann Hallmark;

--selected Royce Beights, Artie Lee Griffin and Leola Anderson to the Grievance Committee with Delia Zermeno and Woody Anderson as alternates;

--set Jan. 29 at 9 a.m. as the date for the Revenue Sharing budget workshop;

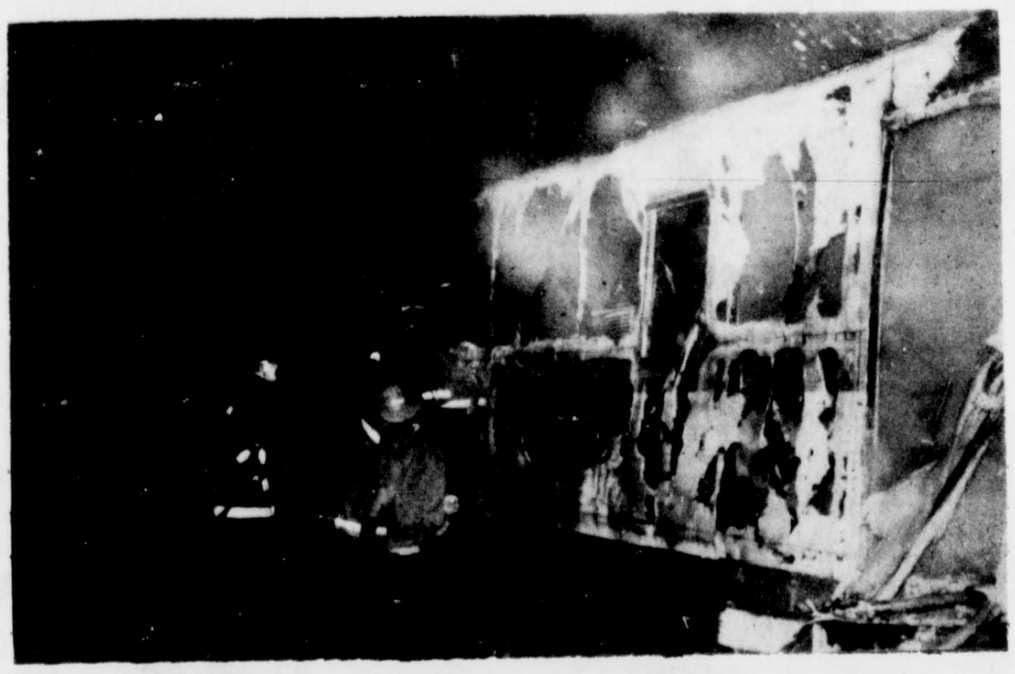

--agreed to seek bids on a service contract for county-owned typewriters;

--authorized Judge Bill Carter to replace some of the shrubs around the courthouse;

--agreed to advertise for sale various surplus county equipment, and;

--reappointed Dr. Joe Terry as county health authority officer;

--agreed to advertise for bids for a dump truck and bed for precinct one.

Uselton contract renewal approved

By Ray Mayo
Editor

The Colorado Independent School District board of trustees Monday night extended Supt. Charlie Uselton's contract for a year and boosted his salary by $2,400 a year.

The board voted to raise the local increment from $16,060 to $18,460, giving him an annual salary of $54,137.36. In addition, the board agreed to raise his local expense account from $125 to $150 a month.

The board's action followed an executive session during which members discussed the contract renewal. At its December meeting, the board met in executive session to evaluate the superintendent.

The one-year extension on Uselton's contract gives him a three-year contract, explained board president S. L. (Mac) Morris.

In other business, the board raised the fee for the driver education program from $75 to $85.

Uselton explained that there will be no state funds for the program this year.

Last year 63 students participated in driver education. Uselton said that the program cost $6,317.42 with local receipts totaling $4,665, and state funds totaling $600 which left the cost to the CISD at $1,052.42.

In other action, the board approved a number of school board policies which included the change in the cost of the driver education program and the superintendent's salary. Other changes in policy included adding five more bank accounts and changes made to comply with recent legislative changes regarding the teacher appraisal process.

Board members also approved an over-night trip request from band director Bill Shipp for two students involved in all-region band. The students will spend Friday, Jan. 18 in Wichita Falls.

The financial report and tax roll change as presented by business manager Geneva Findley was approved. Mrs. Findley reported that total tax revenue collected for December totaled $305,711.80.

Uselton informed the board that the school district received a total of $5,450.02 from the football playoff games. Colorado City's share of the gate with Gatesville brought in $939.10 while the Abilene Wylie playoff game brought in $1,579.57. The Littlefield game brought in $2,931.35.

Banquet tickets on sale

Colorado City Chamber of Commerce directors will be selling tickets to the annual chamber banquet starting Friday.

Tickets for the Friday, Feb. 8 event may be bought with $12.50 donations. Tickets also will be available at the chamber office.

This year, chamber officials are hoping to make the banquet a money-making affair and chamber members will be preparing Mexican food for the all-you-can-eat banquet.

This year's banquet speaker will be Midland businessman Clayton W. Williams Jr.

Williams, who organized ClayDesta Bank in 1981, entered the oil and gas business as an independent in 1957 and since that time has been associated with all facets of the industry. His businesses include oil and gas exploration, production and transportation, real estate, commercial and Brangus cattle, banking and oil field services and supply, which combined have gross revenues in excess of $1 billion.

Extension Notes...

Be wary of fad diets

By Debbie Christian
County Extension Agent

The beginning of a new year brings with it new challenges, new resolutions, and a renewed spirit. Often included in these resolutions is the desire to shed a few pounds. If this is your case be cautious of fad diets and claims.

Fad diets are not only costly, but they create morale problems too. The repeated failure to lose pounds or maintain weight loss can decrease dieters' motivation, lower their self-esteem and lead to strong feelings of depression.

Each year over 10 million Americans spend more than $10 billion on weight loss schemes. In addition to diet books promising immediate and substantial weight loss, other common treatments marketed today include powdered diet formulas, premeasured packaged food, appetite suppressants and various drug injections. Other weight loss products include body wraps, spot reducing creams, rubber exercise suits, cellulite scrubbers and electrical stimulation.

Losing weight rapidly is like a public "show and tell." People can't help but notice a rapid 20, 30 or 40-pound drop in a friend's weight. But the sad fact is that 95 percent of the people who lose pounds this way gain them back within a year. And those same friends also notice when the dieter's weight goes back up.

People who have rapidly lost and regained weight many times can lose hope. After several failures on various fad diets, they may have little energy for programs that are well established, require more effort and are more supportive of long-term weight management.

Maintaining weight loss for life involves eating nutritionally balanced meals, exercise, behavioral change, stress management and psychological support. But fad diets don't confront the problem on weight maintenance. And when the fad diet fails, the dieter feels like a failure too.

Texas needs water management plan

By Governor Mark White

AUSTIN–More than 200 Texas counties suffered drought conditions in the past two years, dramatizing the urgency of our approving a comprehensive water management plan for Texas in the 69th Legislative Session.

It is increasingly obvious that water is our most precious natural resource, finite in quantity, essential to Texas' economic development and environmental quality.

Texas' population of 16 million is the third largest in the nation, and an average of 900 people move to Texas every day expecting sewer taps and drinking water. Our standard of living in a technological society uses vast quantities of water: 480,000 gallons to produce enough grain to raise one steer, 1,000 gallons to raise the wheat for one loaf of bread, another 1,000 gallons to manufacture a single automobile.

Demand is outpacing the natural replenishing of our water supply, yet Texans waste millions of gallons daily or enough water to sustain a small country.

Before we can adequately plan for the state's water needs, Texans in all parts of our state must realize that the ripple-effects of water shortages reach far beyond the drought-ridden farm in West Texas. If farmers and ranchers take less livestock and food to market, consumers will pay higher prices.

Texas' agricultural economy is tied to the rapidly diminishing underground lakes of the Ogallala Aquifer, but water shortages are no longer confined to the Texas High Plains. Corpus Christi, Austin, and dozens of other Texas cities were forced to enact either voluntary or mandatory watersaving measures in 1984

For years, comprehensive reform of Texas water policies has been stalled either through neglect, indifference, inability to achieve a broad compromise, or a failure to accept potential water shortages as everyone's problem.

In an effort to bridge this gap in 1985, a Joint Committee on Water Resources has worked in the past year to develop a legislative water package that has the backing of Lieutenant Governor Bill Hobby, House Speaker Gib Lewis and myself.

We proposed the addition of $600 million to the Water Development Fund to be allocated equally for waste water treatment projects, water supply projects, and water storage facilities. We would also authorize $250 million for a bond guarantee program to stand behind the bonds of cities and districts seeking funds for capital improvements to their water and sewer systems. While not costing the State of Texas a dime, this bond program would make up to $2.5 billion available for local water and sewer projects at low interest rates.

The proposed legislation outlines a strategy for increased conservation including alternate day watering of lawns, building code revisions, retrofit programs to install water-saving technology, education programs, mandatory metering to monitor water use, and revised rate structures for water services.

Twenty-five groundwater planning regions would be designated, and the Texas Department of Water Resources authorized to institute a ground water regional planning process in areas where problems exist. Adoption of a district water conservation strategy would be subject to local option.

Because 72 percent of all water used in Texas is used by agriculture, the proposed water bill calls for the creation of an Agricultural Soil and Conservation Fund. This fund might be used to provide bonds to farmers to purchase efficient high-tech irrigation equipment; to provide grants to water districts for technical assistance, planning or improvements; and to underwrite a broad spectrum of other conservation efforts.

No water plan would be complete without providing for sufficient water inflows to Texas bays and estuaries to sustain our fishing, shrimping and tourist industries and to protect marine life and water fowl. We propose careful evaluation of all water permits within 150 river miles of the Gulf Coast for their effect on bays and estuaries.

This water package represents a starting point for deliberation. We must avert a future water crisis by planning now for Texas' water needs.

Wolves ride Broncos

By Tony Franco
Sports Editor

The Colorado City Wolves, the defending district champions, opened district 7AAA play here last Friday night with a 49-37 victory over the Sonora Broncos.

The Wolves 12 point margin came after having led by as many as 16 early in the first half. Colorado City defeated the same Broncos by some 20 points the prior weekend at a Big Lake tourney.

"I was pleased through 3½ quarters," said head coach Mike Hart.

If the Wolves did have 3½ quarters of good play, they weren't consecutive.

Behind a hustling defense that made for 18 first period defensive marks, the Wolves raced to a 12-4 lead after one period.

Luke-warm shooting and some turnovers kept the Pack from enjoying an even bigger early lead.

All-District selection Don Randle, the game's leading scorer with 20, led the first period scoring with three goals. Armando Rivera added two goals and Terry Jackson dropped in two free throws.

They along with co-starters Doug Chitsey and Mike Ligon continued to control Sonora early in the second period with more defense and rebounding from Randle and Chitsey.

Sonora tried falling into a zone but that got them a technical foul for lack of sufficient action.

Still early in the second period, Randle scored a bucket, scored two more on assists from Albert Rivera and dished out an assist to Ruben Rivera to lead Colorado City to a 21-5 lead midway through the period.

For the rest of the half though, the Wolves either ran out of gas or Sonora found its range to outscore Colorado City 11-6 to pull back within nine for a 27-16 halftime lead.

In the third period, Sonora, which was led by Esau Ramirez's 13 points, outscored the Wolves 12-6 to cut Colorado City's lead to 33-26. The Wolves attempted only six goals in the period. Two were made by Jackson and one by Ken Woods. Sonora also controlled the boards during the third period.

Coach Hart, who was otherwise pleased with his team's hustle, said, "That happens sometimes when you come back for the second half with a lead, you play flat."

"We weren't moving well and they got some easy baskets because we didn't have anyone back."

"We never rebound as much as I'd like too," said Hart.

Hart said that the Wolves had worked hard on free throws and it showed.

Through the first three quarters, the Pack was a perfect five of five from the charity line.

The Wolves missed several power layups early in the fourth period and also ended the free throw streak by making only half of eight fourth period charity attempts.

Sonora scored the first goal of the final period on a shot by David Noreiga to pull within five at 33-28.

Randle and Chitsey then combined for 14 points to lead a Colorado City run that put the Wolves up by seventeen at 45-28 midway through the final period.

The Wolves, who shot 43 percent from the floor and 69 percent from the line with 20 turnovers, moved to 5-6 on the season. Sonora fell to 4-9.

Scoring totals were Randle 20, Armando Rivera seven, Chitsey and Jackson six, Wylie Dakan four and Ligon, Woods and Ruben Rivera two.

Cory Flanagan scored 11 points to finish as high point as Colorado City also took the junior varsity contest 51-37.

Also scoring were Larry Mayes and Scott Dennis nine, Michael Swann seven, Moises Molina and Danny Salazar four, Marty Cleckler three and Bruce Gonzalez two.

Freshman boys fall to Big Spring

Colorado High School freshmen boys basketball teams lost two games to Big Spring last Monday night.

In the first game loss, 55-37, defensive play by Greg Rodriquez, Cary Ritchey, David Garcia and Duane Jones helped the Wolves take an 11-10 lead after one period.

Ritchey scored the game's first goal on an assist from Guy Compton.

Compton then added a goal and a three point play for a 7-6 Colorado City lead. The Wolves then overtook Big Spring twice more on goals by Ismael Silva.

Big Spring took the lead for good early in the second period but Colorado City hung close behind defense from Silva and Garcia, and rebounding from Eduardo Melendez and Ritchey.

The shots would just not fall in for the Wolves though as the Steers took a 23-21 halftime lead.

Big Spring used fast breaks for easy buckets early in the second half but again Colorado City hung tough behind Compton's six third period points.

The Steers began pulling away late in the third quarter and continued to do so in the final period.

Scoring totals were Compton 12, Ritchey 11, Silva six, Melendez three, Jones and Rodriquez two and Garcia one.

Big Spring also took a 52-26 victory in an earlier game.

Big Spring took command early as all Colorado City scored in the first period was a goal by Richard Reyna and a free throw by James Wood.

Wood finished with a team high nine points.

Also scoring were Brandon Fuller six, Reyna four, Derrick Ramsey three and Steve Smith and Saul Pineda two.

CHS girls fall to Sonora, 55-34

The Colorado High School girls basketball team lost 55-34 to Sonora here last Friday night.

The Wolves looked good early in the game and even led 13-9 after the first period but things immediately took a turn for the worse.

Sherri Morris scored the game's first goal to give the Wolves the early lead.

Denise Jackson, who scored 10 points to tie Priscilla Dawkins for high point honors, scored a goal and then dished off an assist to Dawkins for an 8-4 Colorado City lead.

Sherry Fite, who defended and rebounded well throughout the game, added a free throw and a goal to another Jackson goal to give Colorado City its biggest lead at 13-8.

The lead came despite nine turnovers in the first period.

The Wolves committed eight more turnovers in the second period and finished with 35 for the entire game.

That didn't hurt as much in the second quarter as did 0 of 11 shooting from the floor.

Following a Jackson free throw, the Wolves lost the lead for good early in the second period. Colorado City scored only two more points during the remainder of the first half.

They came on free throws by Fite. That made for a total of three second period points while Sonora scored 18 to take a 27-16 halftime lead.

Colorado City bounced back to score 10 and eight points in the third and final periods but cold shooting and turnovers continued to be a problem.

Scoring totals were Jackson and Dawkins 10, Fite seven, Morris and Margie Oliver two and Jody Mann one.

Mann played a good defensive game in limited fourth period play.

The loss dropped the Wolves to 3-11 and 0-3.

Coach Clyde Duke's Lady Broncos moved to 14-4 and 2-1.

Debbie Bible and Gina Heffernan led Sonora with 12 and 10 points.

Colorado City shot 24 percent from the floor and 52 percent from the line.

Sonora won the junior varsity contest 56-9.

Holly Tarter and Shana Biggs got all the scoring for the Wolves with five and four points respectively.

Project is 'making money exercise'

By Garry Mauro
Texas Land Commissioner

When I visited Israel last summer, I was struck with the similarity between the Israeli southern desert and the Trans-Pecos region of West Texas.

My first impression was confirmed recently by two Israeli engineers who traveled to Far West Texas with me. They agreed that the widely separated areas have similar ecologies, and these engineers pointed out that Texas farmers may be able to use Israeli farming techniques to improve our own farmland in the Trans-Pecos. This and their other conclusions are in a report that is the first phase of a project to make our public lands dedicated to education more valuable.

My first goal as Texas Land Commissioner is to find ways to make more money for the schoolchildren of Texas from our Permanent School Fund lands. Second, we hope to demonstrate better use of our state's precious water resources, and third, we want to produce more food and fiber for the state.

Tahal Consulting Engineers Ltd. of Tel Aviv have gone over data collected by the General Land Office staff, studying hydrology, soils, topography and other areas of engineering interest to put together this report which designates two state-owned tracts in West Texas as possible experimental farming areas.

The two tracts were chosen for their suitability to show irrigation and crop production through the use of brackish (salty) water. One tract is located near the city of El Paso, and the other is located 23 miles southwest of Pecos in Reeves County.

The General Land Office manages more than 800,000 acres in West Texas that produce less than $3 per acre per year. That's because nearly 200,000 acres have proven to be unleasable, with much of the remaining acreage suitable only for grazing.

It is the policy of the General Land Office to determine the highest and best use of all state lands to be sure that we earn as much money for the state as we can. The land in the Trans-Pecos can be productive if we apply the expertise that has been used in Israel to move their desert back 75 miles.

During my visit to Israel last summer, I saw highly productive land where once there had only been desert. The technology used to do this was created here at our Texas universities--Texas A&M University, Sul Ross University, Texas Tech University and the University of Texas--and perfected by necessity by the Israelis. These Texas universities will be called on to help us perfect it here.

The project is the first to take place under the auspices of the Texas-Israeli Exchange, a program created to promote the exchange of ideas and technology between the state of Texas and the state of Israel.

We hope to begin the second phase of the West Texas project in 45 days, with a team of Tahal consultants coming to Texas to work with state agencies, our universities and the Governor's Office to help us decide whether there are sound economical and technical reasons to develop the two tracts using salty water.

The report says we can develop crops (like certain salt-tolerant vegetables) or perennials (such as pecans, almonds or pistachios). The question now is whether it can be done at a profit for the schoolchildren of Texas. The second phase of the project will cost an estimated $90,000, but it is very much in keeping with my intention to increase the productivity of the Permanent School Fund lands in the Trans-Pecos.

This plan is not an academic exercise but an exercise in making money. If successful, it will produce a fruitful project not only for Texas farmers but for the schoolchildren of Texas.

It is another step in our efforts to manage our state lands like a business--an income-producing business that does its best by aggressive management to serve as a partial solution to the state's current fiscal crisis.

Myers presents program

"January check list for Gardeners" was the topic presented by Frances Myers when the Colorado City Garden Club met Wednesday at the C. C. Thompson Room.

"Check junipers and other shrubs for bagworms now. Remove them and destroy by burning because overwintering insects will start the cycle all over again by emerging from the bags next year if they are not destroyed." Mrs. Myers asked for questions relative to this area.

"Check evergreens to see that they have moisture. Do not overlook ornamentals planted under roof overhangs where plants may not receive rainfall."

Mrs. Myers stressed feeding plants and shrubs now. She suggested a light application of fertilizer this month. One pound of fertilizer of 8-8-8, or a product similar, per 100 square feet of bed area. Repeat every four to six weeks, as needed.

The month of January provides an excellent opportunity to clean and oil garden tools in preparation for spring activity, Mrs. Myers reminded the gardeners. Pruning advice and care of rose bushes brought on group discussions.

In conclusion Mrs. Myers reminded that it will soon be time to plant beets, collards, mustard, radishes and turnips. "Those seem to be favorites around here," the speaker concluded.

In the business session, President Dovie Brownfield asked that the slate of officers recommended by the nominating committee in December be acted upon.

The following officers will be installed for a biennium in the spring: president, Margaret Trulock; vice president, Nadine Gordon; secretary, Dovie Brownfield and treasurer, Frances Myers.

Coffee and cake were served.

Make the right move

Advertising helps you sell more effectively. It works by introducing you to new customers and by informing them about your products so your sales job will be a little easier when you get to talk to the customer personally. And it helps people form opinions about the kind of business you run.

Even if a customer isn't ready to buy when he sees your ad, it still influences his opinion about your business. So, over time, good advertising can help convince people you may never have met that you run a professional operation. Then, when the time comes for the customer to buy, your chances of making the sale are improved.

Friendship class meets

Bettie Hackfeld and Susie Morris were hostesses for the Friendship Class of First Baptist Church, Loraine, when they met in the Hackfeld home Monday night.

After opening prayer, Joan Merket brought a very inspiring devotional on the subject "Turn your worries over to the Lord." She read the scripture Phil. 4:4-9 which told of Paul while in prison, and while there he did not worry, but prayed. We as humans have anxieties and do worry, but the Lord wants us to put our trust in Him, be calm and turn all our worries and troubles over to Him. Worry never solves any problem. She quoted a saying "Worry is something to do, but like sitting in a rocking chair does not get us anywhere."

During the business, the class voted to help with the activity expenses at the Loraine Nursing Home.

Delicious coconut cake was served with drinks.

Attending were Pat Huston, Dodie Beaty, Marilyn Tartt, Sally Compton, Billie Sheffield, Dorothy Finley, Shirley Clifton, Joan Merket, Nina Meadows, Lou Terry, Doris Graham, Doris Henderson, Christene Britton, Jeannine Rundell, and the two hostesses.
