Shultz calls Iran arms deal 'illegal'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said today the diversion of Iranian arms sale profits to Nicaraguan rebels was an "illegal" activity that he knew "zero" about.

At an extraordinary, nationally televised congressional hearing that delved into the Reagan administration's worst crisis, Shultz also said he was "opposed and very skeptical" about President Reagan's decision to sell arms to Iran. He added that there is evidence that Iranians were involved "at least in some fashion in the most recent hostage-taking" of Americans in Lebanon, well after they received American military arms.

Shultz told the House Foreign Affairs Committee in two hours at the witness table that he had fragmentary knowledge of the president's decision to approve the arms sale. But when it came to transferring sales profits to the Contra rebels resisting the leftist Sandinista government in Managua, Shultz said, his knowledge was "non-existent."

"My role in that was zero," Shultz said at the hearing at which he pledged complete cooperation with congressional investigators looking into the affairs, as well as with Justice Department investigators.

Shultz was the leadoff witness at the House panel's hearing while the Senate Intelligence Committee called Elliott Abrams, assistant secretary of state for Latin American Affairs, to a closed-door session.

Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., the committee's chairman, said the panel has now received most of the documents it sought in its probe. "There was some creative subpoena -serving" over the weekend, he said, declining to provide details.

In the meantime, in an indication that the president is determined to pursue his policy of aid to the Contras despite the furor, U.S. helicopters ferried Honduran troops over the weekend to battle an incursion by Nicaraugan forces. White House spokesman Larry Speakes said today the airlift has been completed and the fighting has subsided.

Asked about Reagan's weekend statement that mistakes were made in the affair, Shultz said, "It was a mistake to get involved in the illegal ... funds transfer." He said he didn't want to appear to be speaking as a judge, but added, "From what I have seen and what the attorney general said, some things took place that were illegal."

Shultz said that not only was the diversion illegal, but that it served to confuse American foreign policy toward Nicaragua.

In other disclosures in testimony given under oath — the first time in 10 years as a Cabinet official Shultz has been asked to formally swear to tell the truth, the secretary:

—Denied that he had personally appealed to the sultan of Brunei for money to help the Contras. But he did not deny that other State Department officials did so, and said a law against U.S. military aid to the Contra rebels "did not preclude activities of the Department of State to solicit humanitarian assistance."

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Two people were killed and three others wounded when two men with high-powered guns burst into a game room and sprayed bullets into the crowded building.

Four of the victims were shot inside Tam Game Room, located in a mostly Asian neighborhood in this coastal city, and another was shot outside the building Sunday.

A crowd of about 200 mostly Vietnamese people were inside the game room when the gunmen opened fire with what police believe were a shotgun and an M-16 machine gun, said Sgt. Mark Blanton.

Nang Pham, 30, is being treated for shoulder injuries and a concussion, while 20-year-old Dinh Nguyn had surgery on his left forearm at St. Mary Hospital.

The breakdown provided by the commissioner of police, Gen. J.P. Coetzee, showed that the youngest detainee was 11.

County renews coverage

County commissioners Monday renewed fire and liability insurance on existing county-owned buildings and contents.

Clyde Hall with Snyder Insurance Agency presented figures on each building to total some $77,411. The county will bear the burden for $59,605 with the hospital responsible for the remaining $17,806. The policy provides a $5,000 deductible for each claim.

The county's current policy expires Dec. 28. Liability insurance covering officials is due to terminate in February.

Since coverage on county property has not been increased the past two years, Hall suggested commissioners consider authorizing an appraisal. "We may be under-insured on some buildings," he said.

In other action, court members approved the purchase of an IBM PC computer and printer for the county clerk's office. Sufficient monies remain in the clerk's 1986 budget to purchase the equipment, listed at $4,642 under IBM's contract with state government.

In addition, commissioners authorized purchase of two com-

Electricity 'out' briefly last night

Downed electrical wires south of the city caused a brief blackout here Sunday night for approximately one-third of Snyder.

The lights went out around 11:03 p.m., and service was restored to most customers by 11:42 p.m, according to TESCO Manager Jack Smartt.

He estimated some 1,500 TESCO customers were affected.

Cogdell Memorial Hospital was among these, but Smartt noted service was restored there almost immediately since the facility is served by two electric service lines.

Power was restored, he said, by hospitals staffers, who were able to switch to the alternate line.

Other areas of the city temporarly losing electricity included the downtown area, from 37th St. south to 24th St., east to approximately Ave. D and the Cedar Creek addition of Snyder.

Smartt said the downed lines caused a portion of the system to short out. The lines were located just south of the city sewer treatment plant.

'Terra Nova' earns chance at five-state competition

Western Texas College officials learned during the weekend the production of "Terra Nova" has been chosen to compete in a five-state play competition scheduled in Fort Worth Jan. 20-27.

With eight plays chosen for the contest, WTC is the only junior college selected. Other schools include Texas Tech University, North Texas State University, Texas Wesleyan College, the University of Arkansas, the University of Louisianna, Southeast Oklahoma State University and Tulane University.

As a warmup for this contest, a final hometown performance is now scheduled Jan. 16. Ticket sales for this performance are due to begin after the Christmas holidays.

"Terra Nova" won the right to advance after it competed Nov. 22 in the "Texas West" play festival in El Paso sponsored by the American College Theatre Festival.

The right to perform at Fort Worth was not finalized until this past weekend and the conclusion of another regional play competiton in Louisianna.

At the El Paso contest, three individual actors in the production were singled out for awards, Jim Rainbolt of Post, Jeff Milburn of Brownfield and Bobby Mendez of Lubbock.

In addition, "Theatre Excellence" awards went to Jim Rambo, as the play's director, and to his wife, Teresa, for costuming. Other honors went to the play's makeup, special effects and the play program.

These awards have made "Terra Nova" the greatest success of a WTC production to date.

The drama deals with the doomed 1912 English expedition to the South Pole.

New WTC trustee will be sworn-in Monday night

A new trustee for the Western Texas College board--John Gayle, city manager for Snyder the past seven years--will be officially sworn-in Monday.

The action is set during the regular December meeting of the board, which will begin at 5:45 p.m. at the campus administration building.

Gayle's appointment was approved last Tuesday. He will fill the Place 7 seat vacated by the resignation of W.A. (Bill) Jones.

In addition Monday, the board will consider selling equipment at the WTC planetarium. The planetarium has been used sparingly the past several years, college officials note, and there are currently no plans to offer any college courses related to it.

The college has a bid offer of $35,000 for this equipment--a sale which is contingent upon an inspection by officials with Westminister College in Pennsylvania.

Trustees will consider also authorizing expenses related to travel for cast and crew members of the WTC production of "Terra Nova."

DAYS 'TIL CHRISTMAS

The play has been selected to compete in Fort Worth for regional competition sponsored by the American College Theatre Festival (see related story).

Of eight plays chosen to compete, WTC is the only junior college production selected.

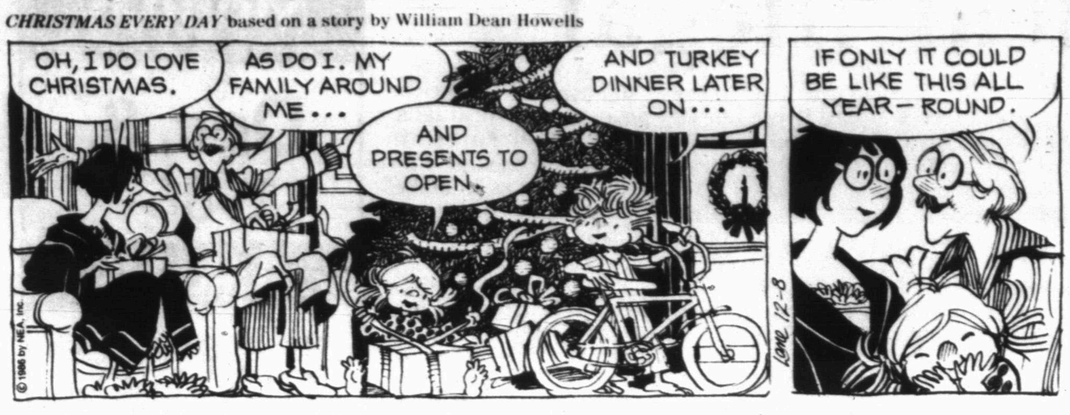

Other agenda items listed include:

—Consider bids to purchase six IBM personal computers and six monochrome monitors with parallel printer adapters.

—Consider bids for janitorial supplies.

—Consider adopting a resolution authorizing a contract with the Austin firm of Gates Steen for the collection of delinquent college district taxes.

Political fallout concerning some Republican governors

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (AP) — Republican governors, concerned about the political fallout from the Iran-Contra controversy, are counting on President Reagan's promise of full disclosure to minimize damage to the GOP.

As the chief executives gathered Sunday for their annual three-day meeting, host Gov. Thomas H. Kean told a news conference that "something like this obviously isn't helpful to the party in power."

Kean said the Republican Party "is going to be judged by how it now handles it. ... We'll find out as time goes on exactly what has been going on, who's been doing what and we'll put it all on the table."

After a day devoted primarily to social activities, the governors were getting down to business today with formal sessions with Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, a former White House chief of staff, as the keynote speaker.

Politics dominated the agenda with a discussion of the impact of the 1986 elections and one on the future of the GOP.

That future was abruptly clouded by the recent disclosures of secret arms sales to Iran and channeling of money to the Contra forces fighting to overthrow the leftist government of Nicaragua.

The disclosures were followed by a sharp drop in President Reagan's standing in the polls.

The GOP governors, who increased their numbers by eight in the elections last month, had anticipated a political celebration at their meeting. Instead, they were bombarded with questions about the potential impact of the Iran-Contra disclosures.

"Any one want to talk about education?" asked Gov. John Sununu of New Hampshire, chairman of the GOP governors, at a news conference.

No one did.

Instead, Sununu was asked about the scheduled appearance Tuesday by former President Nixon who lives in nearby Saddle River.

Sununu said Nixon's appearance was "a good opportunity to hear from someone who was there and probably wishes he had a chance to do it over again and I can't think of anybody who would have a stronger understanding of how it ought to be done right."

Most governors were reluctant to assess the impact of the disclosures troubling the Reagan administration.

"It's far too early to express any judgment on what the effect will be," said Gov. Richard Thornburgh of Pennsylvania.

Children are expert smugglers

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — More and more, Mexico-based organized crime rings are using children to smuggle drugs and aliens across the Rio Grande and to steal cars from border cities, authorities say.

The "Pachucitos" are used because Texas law does not allow criminal prosecution of juveniles younger than 17, the San Antonio Express-News reported Sunday.

Usually, the only recourse available to law enforcement officials is placing the youths in the custody of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, which then deports them to Mexico.

Police and border officials from Laredo to Brownsville regularly capture Mexican youths — some as young as 11 years — who are expert drug and alien smugglers and professional thieves, the Express-News reported.

The youthful bandits have frustrated U.S. officials and sent auto thefts skyrocketing in border cities, officials said.

Officials could place the children in the state juvenile justice system, but juvenile centers already are overburdened, said Richard Casillas, San Antonio INS director.

Headless Rooster Story Has A Host of Legs to Stand On

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: A Michigan reader asked me to prove that he was neither nuts nor the world's biggest storyteller when he recounted the story about a decapitated rooster that lived several days with his head chopped off. (He had read about it in Life magazine in the early '50s.)

"Please help. My reputation is riding on this," he pleaded. "Maybe one of your readers remembers it and can back me up."

I replied: "Life magazine ceased publication in 1972, but if anyone out there can provide me with any information on the decapitated rooster, it will be something to crow about."

Well, came the dawn, and with it a letter, Federal Express, from Life magazine's top brass informing me that Life had, indeed, died as a weekly in 1972, but continued to publish special reports twice a year. Then, in 1978, Life resumed publication as a monthly magazine, and celebrated its 50th anniversary on Nov. 15.

Readers informed me that the rooster story had appeared in the Oct. 22, 1945, issue of Life. I received over 100 photocopies of the article and six originals. There were pictures showing "Mike," the headless rooster, strutting around, hale and hearty.

According to Life: "Ever since Sept. 10 (1945), a Wyandotte rooster named Mike has been living a normal chicken's life though he has no head. He walks, flaps his wings, preens his feathers and when he hears other roosters crow, even answers with a few croaky gurgles.

"Mike lost his head in the usual rooster way: Mrs. L.A. Olsen, wife of a farmer in Fruita, Colo., 200 miles west of Denver, decided to have a chicken dinner. Mr. Olsen took Mike to the chopping block and axed off his head. Thereupon Mike got up and soon began to strut about. After decapitation, many chickens run around frantically before dying. Mike, however, kept going as if nothing had happened.

"What Mr. Olsen's ax had done was to clip off most of the skull but leave intact one ear, the jugular vein and the base of the brain, which controls motor functions. Still thriving and gaining weight, Mike has been on exhibition in Salt Lake City at 25 cents admission. His owners have put a $10,000 price tag on him."

Other photographs showed Mike being fed with milk and water from an eyedropper through his esophagus, which had not closed over. Mike was also fed a few small grains of corn, which he had no trouble digesting.

Now, lest you think that Mike was the only bird who lost his head and refused to die, readers sent me photocopies of several pages of a book titled "Believe It or Not," by Robert W. Ripley (published by Simon and Schuster in 1931). It seems that as far back as 1904, a black Minorca chicken in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., was beheaded, but walked around headless for 17 days. Other chickens made headlines when they lived headless for days, weeks and months in Coal City, Ill., Fresno, Calif., Middleport, Ohio, Mobile, Ala., and Walnut Grove, Mo.

Many readers wrote to say they had paid to see a headless chicken (or maybe it was a rooster) on exhibition in Long Beach, Calif., San Diego and Florida.

Another reader sent an undated column titled "The Ginger Jar," by Mrs. R.V. Jared from the Double-R Hatcheries, Olney, Ill. The entire column was devoted to yet another tale of a headless rooster in Woodstock, Conn. This one lived for only 3 1/2 days because no one could figure out a way to feed it.

Mrs. Jared wrote: "But even immortal roosters have their weaknesses — at least this one did. He thumbed his nose (or rather his beak) at the ax; a little thing like being minus a head didn't disturb him; but when it came to eating — that was something else. It was like the poet put it:

'Men (and roosters) may live without poetry, music or art,

'They can live without conscience and live without heart,

'They can live without love, what is passion but pining?

'But where is the one who can live without dining?'"

Death row inmates draw Christmas greeting cards

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Christmas cards are not unlike many others that speak of good will toward men and put forth the holiday ideals of hope and love.

But the six artists who drew frisky stallions, snowy scenes, lute-playing angels and fat Santas are atypical. They're death row inmates.

"They were drawn by guys who were condemned to die and are considered worthless and the scum of earth by society," said Lisa Haberman of Houston, a volunteer organizer of the "Holiday Notes" project. "But they are beautiful works of art and show that they have something to offer."

The cards are being sold by Lois and Ken Robison of Burleson whose son, Larry, 29, is one of the death row artists. The couple organized the shoestring project and had the cards printed.

Ken Robison said almost all of the 1,200 cards that were produced in an initial printing have been sold and another batch will be printed if the orders keep coming in.

Proceeds from the cards sales go to fund HOPE, an anti-death penalty group started by the Robisons. Some of the money is sent back to the artists.

"The margin of profit on the cards is not much," Robison said. "One of the main things is that it gives the guys an outlet for their creativity, something they can be proud of and see in print."

The cards, printed on standard heavy card paper in black-and-white, carry a picture and message on the front with the artist's name and prison number on the back.

One best-seller is the card, "Notes of Hope," by Joseph Starvaggi, featuring a Christmas angel playing a lute. Starvaggi, 34, was convicted of killing a Montgomery County deputy sheriff in his home during a 1976 robbery.

Another is Larry Robison's drawing of two white doves.

White-collar boxers study in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The urban professionals give it their best shot in the "white-collar boxing" course at the Chicago Fitness Center, but it's probably a good thing they're doctors, lawyers and brokers.

"If these gentlemen went into a regular boxing gym, they'd either be laughed out of the gym or they'd be used as human heavy bags," said center director Eddie Yoshimura. "Here, the other people are just as inexperienced, scared and out of shape."

The fear, at least, they quickly overcome.

"Three-quarters of the way through class, they're smiling. They're jammin'," Yoshimura said.

The club, in a ragtag neighborhood on Chicago's North Side, began offering the course on Saturdays three years ago. The upper-middle-class fighters don't sneak in the back door.

"They pull into the parking lot with their Porsches or their Mercedes," Yoshimura said.

Tax lawyer Ralph Epsteen, 33, took the course regularly for about a year and now comes to box occasionally.

"There's really a lot of similarities between being a lawyer and (boxing) — the whole concept of having an adversary," he said.

"Even when you just hit a punching bag, it feels good. It's a release of energy. You're getting out built-up tension," Epsteen said Sunday. "Maybe my nose used to be a little bit straighter than it is now, but there's nothing that bothers me."

Yoshimura, 29, who has black belts in five martial arts, said the class began after men of various shapes and sizes who worked out in the club's weight room became intrigued by classes for competitive boxers.

"They all would observe the various boxing classes we had, but they were very intimidated," he recalled. "So, what we did was run a class for boxing novices."

The course costs $50 for five weekly lessons lasting two to three hours, with an option to sign up for a year. The center provides gloves, headgear, rib-and-chest protectors, 150-pound heavy bags, speed bags and medicine balls.

Texans remember Pearl Harbor Day

By The Associated Press

JoAnn Nelson remembers the shaky voice of a radio announcer, John Grady recalls taking cover in a drainage ditch and Dallas city councilman John Evans remembers losing 1,777 shipmates.

These are the memories of Texans who recalled the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

Eighteen ships were sunk or damaged, 188 U.S. aircraft were destroyed and 159 others were damaged in the 7:55 a.m. attack. The United States lost 2,403 servicemen, while 1,178 others were wounded.

Some of those killed were shipmates of Evans, who was a 19-year-old gunner aboard the USS Arizona. A 1,760-pound bomb dropped by a Japanese aircraft penetrated the decks of the Arizona and exploded, lifting the entire bow of the vessel from the water, Evans said.

Nineteen of the dead were Evans' friends. Evans, 64, said he has avoided returning to Pearl Harbor since then.

"I couldn't go back," Evans said. "You can be a hard, tough guy all your life, but 45 years later you still feel it. I still dream about it. I keep thinking about all those boys I went through boot camp with. I wonder why I didn't die there, too."

But after 45 years, he decided to make peace with the tragic memories. He planned to join 300 other survivors of the Arizona and their families Sunday for a private memorial to commemorate the 45th anniversary of the Pearl Harbor attack.

John Grady of Austin said he also is grateful to be alive.

Grady was an airplane mechanic stationed at Hickam Field when the Japanese attacked. He was ordered to move three planes during the attack. He moved two safely, but had to jump out of the third when the plane's hydraulics were shot out.

The 69-year-old retired painter said he jumped in a drainage ditch where he and several other soldiers stayed until the attack was over.

"To put it mildly it was mass confusion," said Grady. "It sounded like everything in the world was exploding. It was unreal."

JoAnn Nelson of Wichita Falls, the wife of a state district judge, also remembers thinking the attack was not real. She lived in a Honolulu suburb at the base of Diamond Head on Oahu.

"It was like being in a movie. It isn't really real. It never entered my mind I could be killed," said Mrs. Nelson who was 13 years old at the time.

Ultra-friendly distribution

By James Jacoby

Here is a deal that illustrates many interesting aspects of the game. First there is the bidding. The only justification East had for opening such a strong hand with a pre-emptive bid was the unfavorable vulnerability. West was right in deciding there was no future in bidding after partner's pre-empt. North had a problem that could be solved only by taking a chance with a takeout double. It was risky since he lacked support for diamonds, a suit South might have had to bid. But all was OK when South was able to bid hearts, although declarer would normally be off the first five tricks. But these were not normal circumstances.

After the opening lead, West could have ended the contest quickly by underleading his diamonds to partner's jack, but he needed to see through the backs of the cards. Anyway, he had control of clubs, and declarer would eventually have to lose some spade tricks. That's what defender West thought, but look what happened.

After cashing the second diamond, West led his heart. Declarer won, played A-K of clubs, pitching a spade, and ruffed a club. He then played another heart to dummy and played the last club. When East showed out, South threw a spade and West won the fourth club. West had to lead a minor suit, allowing declarer to ruff in the dummy while getting rid of his last losing spade. There was no way for West to escape giving this "sluff and ruff," and friendly distribution had made it possible for declarer South to bring home a thin game contract.

Country shootings recalled

LONE TREE, Iowa (AP) — Emotional scars in this rural area remain tender a year after a financially troubled farmer shot and killed his wife, a banker and another farmer before turning his gun on himself.

Most of the 900 residents of Lone Tree, where Dale N. Burr visited with neighbors and sent his children to school, are reluctant to discuss what led him to his violent spree on Dec. 9, 1985.

"I never hear anybody talk about it really," said Bill Crawford, editor of the Lone Tree Reporter weekly newspaper, which has no plans to mention the anniversary of the deaths. "People don't like to be thought of as a town where something that violent happened."

Hills Bank and Trust officials would provide only a carefully worded statement when asked to comment on the slaying of John Hughes, 46, the bank's president.

"The tragedy of Dec. 9, 1985, continues to be profoundly felt in the Hills area and at Hills Bank and Trust Company," bank President Dwight O. Seegmiller said. "While we all look back upon the past year with great sadness, we face the future with the same spirit of confidence and optimism as was exemplified by John Hughes."

Smart cooking cuts cholesterol

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Which has a higher cholesterol count: hash browns and fried potatoes or french fries and potato chips?

DEAR READER — That depends on how the potatoes are cooked. Saturated fat is high in cholesterol. Unfortunately, it is also cheap, and is therefore a popular way to fry commercial foods. As a general rule, the greasier the product, the more cholesterol it contains. However, potatoes fried at home, using a minimum of polyunsaturated fat, can be quite low in cholesterol. Better yet, use a nonstick pan that is coated with something like Teflon. That way, you can fry food with practically no fat.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, UNDERSTANDING CHOLESTEROL. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I know someone who is a good worker, but odd. We have a hand lift; he wipes the handle off about 20 times. He's always wiping his hands, his head, his glasses. When he takes a drink of water, he bobs his head up and down, up and down, like a duck. He also talks to himself all the time. It seems as if he's getting worse. Could he be dangerous? What do you call this kind of behavior?

DEAR READER — I call this kind of behavior unusual. Perhaps there is a perfectly valid reason your coworker acts this way. Maybe he perspires a lot, has trouble swallowing and finds his own conversation to be an amusing way to fend off boredom. Ask him why he does the things he does.

If his behavior is becoming more bizarre and disruptive, mention your concerns to your supervisor.

DEAR DR. GOTT — In the last two days, I've had two attacks of chest pains, difficulty breathing, sweating and nausea. One doctor said it was like having a heart attack. Another said the muscles around my heart are enlarged and inflamed. I'm taking Indocin, Elavil and Tanxene. No one has told me what can be done.

DEAR READER — If you are having repeated attacks of chest pain, sweating, nausea and difficulty breathing, you need to be in the hospital — now — for heart testing. You could actually be having heart attacks, warnings of a major cardiac disaster or pericarditis (inflammation of the heart's covering). Go to your nearest hospital emergency room and ask to be examined by the cardiologist on call. Chest pain and related symptoms must never be ignored.

Houston may be eliminated for possible convention site

HOUSTON (AP) — National Republican officials are on the verge of eliminating Houston as the site for the party's 1988 national convention because Democrats probably will have their national convention there, the Houston Post reported.

Houston has everything the GOP wants in a convention site, but committee members do not want to pick the same city where the Democrats will convene, The Post reported.

"We are 99 percent certain that Houston is where the Democrats are going," said committee member Eileen Schouweiler of Nevada.

The GOP site selection committee will meet in Washington Thursday and Friday to come up with a short list of cities.

Despite an earlier announcement, several committee members said there is a possibility the list, to be released on Friday, could contain only two cities instead of three, according to The Post.

If Houston survives the cut, it will be because its other competitors have major problems satisfying the party's technical requirements, the newspaper said.

The Post quoted unnamed committee members as saying Houston still has a good chance of being among the finalists.

Other candidates for the convention site include New Orleans, Atlanta, Seattle and Kansas City, The Post reported. All but eliminated are St. Louis, Philadelphia, Las Vegas, Detroit and Los Angeles, the newspaper said.

Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire and state GOP chairman George Strake are popular with the selection committee, the Post said.

Gov.-elect Bill Clements' defeat of Democratic Gov. Mark White was mentioned by most committee members as one reason why Houston is still high on the list.

"The elections are bound to have some bearings," Ms. Schouweiler said. "We have political experts telling us that we don't want to go to a place where we did very badly."

Ladies win tourney crown; open district play Tuesday

CRANE -- Teri Sue Henry bagged a pair of free throws with two seconds left here Saturday to push Snyder's Lady Tigers past previously unbeaten Fort Stockton, 48-47.

The victory was the Lady Tigers' third straight and earned them the championship trophy at the Crane Basketball Tournament.

Snyder, now 4-4, must get ready for its District 2-4A opener, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in San Angelo.

"The kids did a real fine job. It was a total team effort and they all contributed well," said Coach Ken Housden. "Our press probably helped us as much as anything. We were able to get more kids scoring which we're going to have to have."

Henry had missed eight straight free throws when she went to the line Saturday evening, but cooly dropped both in.

"She was real cool under pressure," said Housden. "The lead changed hands several times in the game. They were ahead by three at halftime but we scored six points in the first 15 seconds of the second half to go ahead. But with 20 seconds left we were behind by one point. We stole the ball but they stole it back. We were able to steal it back again though and get under the basket. Rhonda Echols took one shot and Teri Sue took four, I guess. We couldn't get the ball to go in, but they fouled Teri Sue on her fourth try and she made the free throws."

Snyder had defeated Van Horn 78-23 in the first round and reached the finals with a 63-49 victory over Odessa High.

WTC squads host Plainsmen tonight

Home may not seem like it, but at least that's where the Western Texas College basketball teams are playing tonight.

Western hosts Frank Phillips this evening in a Western Junior College Athletic Conference double header at 6 and 8 p.m. at Scurry County Coliseum.

It will be only the third home game of the season for Coach Phil Spradling's Westerners, who last played in the coliseum on Nov. 15. For the Dusters, under the direction of Coach Kelly Chadwick, it will be their fourth home contest in 14 outings.

Most teams in the WJCAC have played a conference game but for Chadwick's fifth-ranked Dusters, tonight's encounter will be the first. The Dusters take on a Frank Phillips squad that is 1-0 in conference play, having defeated New Mexico Junior College 69-65 a week ago.

Western's Westerners and Frank Phillips men are both 0-1 in league play. FPC fell 135-109 to NMJC while Western lost to South Plains, 107-83.

In the only other conference double header tonight, Howard is at Hobbs, N.M. to play New Mexico Junior College. In men's play, New Mexico Military Institute plays at Clarendon and Midland is at Odessa.

Both WTC coaches eye tonight's games with Frank Phillips - and Thursday's outings against Howard at Big Spring - as jumping boards for the WJCAC season.

"If we could win these two conference games, we'd be at least tied for second place heading into the holiday break," noted Coach Spradling. "We'd be in great shape."

Ditto for the Dusters, who could go into the holiday break tied for first place, or owning it outright, with a pair of victories.

"It's really important to get on right foot tonight. We're playing for keeps now," said Coach Chadwick. "I've seen them (Frank Phillips) play and they may have one of their better teams. They not big but they are pretty quick and they shoot the ball well."

The Dusters could have the services of freshman guard-wing Bonnie Detrixhe, who has been out of the lineup most of the young season with a severly sprained ankle.

"She's supposed to get the cast off this afternoon. We'll just play it from there and see what happens," said Chadwick.

Tigers run past Sweetwater to place 3rd in tournament

LEVELLAND -- Snyder's Tigers rebounded from Friday's loss to Big Spring and nailed Sweetwater 61-50 to grab third place in the Levelland Basketball Tournament.

The Tigers had lost 83-54 on Friday, but kept their composure and found their fourth win of the season. Now 4-4, Snyder will take on Canyon at Lubbock Christian College in Lubbock, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

"I thought it was real important after we got blown out the night before that we stayed with the things we wanted to do," said Coach Larry Scott of Saturday's ballgame. "We played pretty well. We did what we had to do to win. We controlled the boards inside and we didn't let their guards to too much, either."

Chris Garrett ripped down 19 rebounds as the Tigers outboarded the Mustangs 46 to 30. Trey Tippens and Terry Garza came away with 9 boards each.

Garza's 16 points led the Tiger scoring effort. Garrett snaked in 15 points and Tippens added 13. Six other players scored for Snyder which handed Sweetwater only its second loss in eight outings.

Following Tuesday's game with Canyon, Snyder will enter the three-day Denver City Tournament. It will be the final tuneup for district play for the Tigers, who bus to Fort Stockton on Dec. 16.

SWC holding own against top teams

by The Associated Press

Last year, the Southwest Conference went the entire season without defeating a Top Ten team in basketball.

There's already been a drastic turnaround in that department during this young season. They've accomplished the trick three times.

Arkansas and Houston are still unbeaten, and the Razorbacks pulled off a big upset over the weekend while the Cougars won the Kactus Klassic against a tough home team.

The unranked Razorbacks stunned the sixth-ranked Kansas Jayhawks 103-86 in Fayetteville.

Houston's Greg Anderson scored 41 points to tie a tournament record as the Cougars bounced host Arizona State 83-66 Saturday night in the championship game of the Kactus Klassic at Tempe, Ariz. It was the first loss of the year for the Sun Devils of the Pac 10 Conference.

In other games, Texas Christian nipped Colorado State 80-77 behind Carven Holcombe's 16 points and 14 rebounds, Southern Methodist nipped South Florida 79-65, Tulsa beat Baylor 74-64, Rice downed Northwest Louisiana 48-45 to win the Rice Invitational, Clemson clipped Texas Tech 86-72, and New Mexico throttled Texas 82-72.

There's a busy slate of games this week, starting tonight.

Houston is at Long Beach State, Baylor is at Colorado State, Tulsa is at TCU, Oral Roberts is at Texas A&M, Texas Tech is at Southwestern Louisiana and Northwest Louisiana State is at Texas.

Arkansas' victory over Kansas joined TCU's defeat of LSU and Texas' upset of defending national champion Louisville as SWC victories over Top 10 teams.

Kansas' All-American Danny Manning had trouble with Arkansas' Andrew Lang.

"He's a great shot blocker," Manning said. "I was always thinking 'Where's Andrew?'"

Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson said he will know more about his team after Wednesday night's meeting with Alabama in Birmingham.

"We aren't a great team yet," he said.

Tech names Dykes to replace 'McDavid'

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - The anti-David McWilliams fever cooled off Sunday with the Texas Tech Red Raiders welcoming a new head football coach as their Independence Bowl workouts began.

"McDavid Who?" signs were prevalent throughout Lubbock, including those scrolled on cotton bales near the airport.

But new coach Spike Dykes is trying to make the Red Raider faithful quickly forget McWilliams, who left last Friday after just a year to become the new head coach at the University of Texas.

Former defensive coordinator Spike Dykes will be heading the Red Raiders when they meet Mississippi Dec. 20 in Shreveport.

Until Saturday, preparations had proceeded under McWilliams.

However, McWilliams' quick defection to Texas stirred deap-seated resentment among Red Raider backers and players.

Center and co-captain Chris Tanner said the "Hook 'Em Horns" signs flashed by McWilliams and his wife at a televised press conference made the players decide they didn't want him around for the Independence Bowl.

"That really hurt," Tanner said.

McWilliams came to Texas Tech last year after leaving his job as the Longhorns' defensive coordinator. He led Tech to a 7-4 season and its first bowl bid since 1978.

Athletic Director T. Jones announced Saturday, without informing McWilliams, that Dykes would take charge of Independence Bowl preparations.

Dykes will receive a five-year contract at about $75,000 per year.

He was euphoric about taking the Tech job which has seen four new coaches in six years.

"I was born in Lubbock, Texas," Dykes said. "I was born in the kitchen of the University City Club in Lubbock. That was St. Mary's of the Plains Hopsital then. I have deep feelings for Lubbock and for Texas Tech University."

Dykes said he wanted to quickly put aside all the tension of McWilliams' abrupt departure.

"We've got a bowl kicking off two weeks from right now and it doesn't do any good to worry about what happened yesterday," Dykes said. "That's over with.

"We need to build on the positive and keep going from this day forward - looking for the good things and not trying to dig up bad ones."

Dykes was asked if he would use Tech as a stepping stone to another job as some coaches have done.

"Can we wait until tomorrow on that one?" Dykes laughed. "This is one of the great moments of my life."

Jones said Dykes would be a stable influence on Texas Tech.

"When you place people with character and integrity at the head position, everything will fall into place and take care of itself," Jones said.

Cowboys no threat to hot Rams team

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - The Los Angeles Rams continued to roll with their new quarterback, while things just got gloomier - and even a little scary - for the Dallas Cowboys.

The Rams, led by rookie quarterback Jim Everett, moved to within one victory of clinching the NFC West title by defeating the Cowboys 29-10 Sunday.

The loss was the third straight for the Cowboys, who have also dropped five of their last six and are virtually eliminated from playoff contention with a 7-7 record.

The game was marred by phoned death threats against Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

Anaheim police said a man made two anonymous phone calls to the Anaheim Stadium security offices during the game, warning that his mentally troubled brother, who he said was at the game, might try to shoot Landry.

Although the calls were probably a hoax, Landry left the field briefly under heavy security escort during the fourth quarter, but returned to the sidelines after donning a bullet-proof vest.

"When the security people are concerned, I'm concerned," Landry said. "I had to make a choice whether or not to go back out. I just felt like that's where I wanted to be at that time. Those things happen."

Said Dallas running back Tony Dorsett: "It was a very eerie feeling being on the sideline after hearing what we heard.

"Wait a minute, man, this is only a game. My life is more important than anything.

"As far as concentration, you know you are going to keep your head in the game, as well as wondering, 'Well, is something going to happen? Is there a sniper in here? Is he going for one individual or is he going to spray the whole sideline?'

"It made for a very uncomfortable situation."

Still, Dorsett, who was held to 36 yards rushing on 11 carries, said the threats weren't the reason the Cowboys lost.

"They just out-hit us, outhustled us and won the football game," he said. "No one likes to lose, especially a Dallas Cowboy. And now we are the laughingstock of the NFL and everybody's loving it.

"And we haven't done anything to prevent that. It's very disappointing for us right now."

Over in the Rams' locker room, the feeling was markedly different, as Los Angeles built its NFC West lead to 1½ games over San Francisco with just two games remaining. The Rams can wrap up their second consecutive West title by beating Miami next Sunday.

"Jim Everett played great football," Rams Coach John Robinson said after the rookie quarterback completed 14 of 25 passes for 212 yards, including a 22-yard touchdown pass to Henry Ellard.

Everett, in just his fourth pro game, threw for 182 yards and a touchdown in the first half as the Rams built a 20-10 lead.

Dickerson gained 106 yards on 28 carries.

Herschel Walker carried just seven times, picking up 33 yards. He also caught only one pass, for 4 yards.

The Rams' other scoring came on a 50-yard pass interception return by LeRoy Irvin in the first quarter, field goals of 37 and 27 yards by Mike Lansford, and a 41-yard TD run by Barry Redden in the final period.

Timmy Newsome's 5-yard TD run in the first quarter and Rafael Septien's 48-yard field goal in the second provided the Cowboys' only points.

Teen DJ spins tunes at high school dance

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — When Pace McDonald IV goes cruising on Friday nights, his 1982 Ford van rolls off the strip, out of town and down the highway to towns all over East and Central Texas.

For this Palestine High School junior, there is a definite purpose.

When McDonald reaches his destination, it is not unusual for him to be greeted by 400 screaming and yelling high school students, and he says he soon begins screaming and yelling right along with them.

McDonald is a disc jockey whose services are scouted by dance organizers for miles around.

He said he enjoys the work, especially when the crowd is responsive.

"Some nights it just clicks and you know it's right," McDonald said. "The people hit the dance floor and you play a song and then another one that is a little faster. You peak the dance by getting it to its highest level and then you play a slow song, and they just say, 'Whew.'"

"You build the excitement level," McDonald said. "That's the real trick to deejaying dances. People say it's simple and basically it is, but you have to know your music and your crowd.

"You play the best, the most popular, the hottest song right before a slow song," he said.

McDonald said he carries more than 200 records to a dance. His inventory consists of Top 40 hits off the pop and soul charts. He said he also buys country music "because there's always times when you need it."

It all began the summer between the eighth and ninth grades for McDonald, when he met a teacher in Chandler named Dick Stafford. At that time Stafford was deejaying dances under the business title of STARZ, but this January McDonald bought the equipment from Stafford and kept the name STARZ.

"He asked me to go with him to a dance to help unload equipment and from then on I was his assistant and helped him with every dance," McDonald said. "I owe it all to him."

Stafford is now a drama teacher at Palestine High.

"I had enough money to buy the equipment, but I had to get a loan from First National Bank for the van," he said. "I paid the van off last week."

McDonald's sound system includes an array of speakers, turntables, strobes and spotlights. Combined with his music, special effects and talents at the microphone, he puts on a show that has earned him a busy schedule from the first football dance in September to the last prom in May.

Besides high school dances, McDonald has deejayed for junior highs, business parties, Christmas dances and reunions.

McDonald keeps up with his busines by sending mailouts to prospective clients at key points of the year. As he receives calls back, he arranges his schedule.

Sometimes a job is set up no more than a week ahead, but often a dance is set up months ahead of time.

"Most times it's a verbal agreement," McDonald said. "If a client wants a contract, I'll send him one."

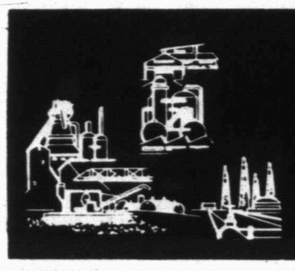

"A client will usually call several DJs and get bids from them," he said. "I set my price lower than the Dallas DJs to be more competitive." McDonald said his charge is flexible according to the resources of the client.

Part of being a DJ is entertaining the crowd. You get excited and the adrenalin gets pumping, he said.

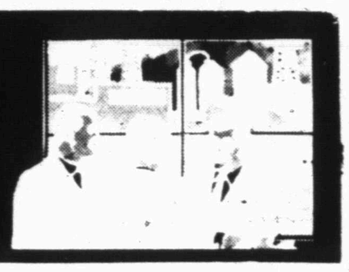

"You can't be a dull person and stand up there and entertain 400 screaming and yelling high school students," he said. "You have to scream and yell right along with them."

McDonald said the most extravagant dance he does each year is at Nacogdoches High School, where he hires someone to display music videos on a 10-by-10 foot screen while the people dance.

Government party declares victory

REYNOSA, Mexico (AP) — The government's Institutional Revolutionary Party has claimed a gubernatorial victory in northern Tamaulipas state elections.

Carlos Brito Gomez, spokesman for the ruling party, known as PRI, made the unofficial announcement in the state capital of Victoria.

The announcement came as no surprise. The PRI has never lost a gubernatorial or presidential election in its 57-year history. Official results from Sunday's voting are not expected for at least a week.

The gubernatorial race pitted PRI's Americo Villarreal Guerra against Jorge Camargo of the conservative National Action Party, or PAN, and four other weaker opposition candidates.

USDA economist says cattle herds may start to stabalize

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department livestock economist says the nation's cattle inventory continues to decline but that herds may begin to stabilize over the next couple of years.

Ronald A. Gustafson of the department's Economic Research Service warned, however, that the cattle industry may not return to its traditional cyclical movement until the 1990s. Historically, cattle inventories build up gradually over a period of years in response to demand and rising prices — followed by declining number of animals as prices weaken because of large beef supplies.

In recent times, Gustafson told last week's USDA outlook conference, the cycles have been shortened as the industry reacted to harsh economic changes, drought and other factors.

For example, the cattle inventory peaked at a record 132 million head in 1975, followed by an unprecedented liquidation that trimmed the U.S. herd to 110.9 million head in 1975. Inventories rose to 115.4 million in 1982, then began its current decline.

Last Jan. 1, the cattle inventory was at a 23-year low of 105.5 million head, and Gustafson says an additional 4 percent cutback is likely this year. That would put the national cattle inventory at 101.3 million head on Jan. 1, 1987. The USDA inventory report is scheduled for release Jan. 23.

The National Cattlemen's Association earlier this fall predicted the Jan. 1 inventory may drop to 100 million head, a drop of more than 5 percent during the year.

Gustafson said the cutbacks of recent years, along with more normal weather conditions and recent government policy decisions, "are beginning to join in producing a more positive, but still cautious outlook for the beef sector."

Returns to cow-calf producers and cattle feeders have increased, and both are expected to cover cash costs this year, he said.

Gustafson added, "While these returns will not encourage many producers to re-enter the industry, they will likely support a tentative expansion on existing cow-calf operations."

The cattle industry has some other things going for it, too, he said. Forage conditions this fall are much improved and are well above the 10-year average. Supplies of hay are record large for this time a year, and recent rains have improved the outlook for wheat and other small-grain pasture in the Southeast, where summer drought took a toll.

"Given reduced cattle inventories, forage conditions throughout most of the country appear at least adequate to carry the herd through even a worse-than-average winter," Gustafson said. "In addition, the Food Security Act of 1985 has already sharply reduced grain prices, with more moderate reductions possible through the end of the decade."

Finally, he said, most of the uncertainties over the government's whole-herd buyout program aimed at reducing dairy animals have passed. Under the plan, also called the dairy herd termination program or DTP, more than 1.5 million dairy cows, heifers and calves are being sold for slaughter or export over an 18-month period that began last April 1.

"Government meat purchases have more than offset the additional DTP slaughter and helped support cattle prices," Gustafson said. "Although beef production this summer rose nearly 2 percent over a year ago, cattle prices moved well above year-earlier levels."

Soviet soldiers escape

HANOVER, West Germany (AP) — Two Soviet soldiers fled from East Germany to West Germany over the weekend, officials said today. It was the first Red Army defection across the German border since 1984.

While escapes of East German citizens have been increasing, it is very rare for Soviet soldiers to dash across the heavily guarded border and defect. There are an estimated 250,000 Soviet troops stationed in Communist East Germany.

A statement from the West German border patrol command in Hanover said the two fled together over the border near the northern city of Wolfenbuettel early Sunday. It added that the escape occurred so quickly that East German guards did not have time to shoot to stop them.

Both soldiers were unarmed and dressed in civilian clothes during their escape and neither was injured, the statement added.

In line with West German practice, officials withheld the men's names, rank and whereabouts.

The last time one of the Kremlin's soldiers fled over the border from East Germany to West Germany was in 1984, the statement said.

Lyng to travel to Brussels soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng will be in Brussels, Belgium, later this week as a member of the U.S. delegation attending a meeting with ministers of the European Community.

Agriculture Department officials said discussions at the Dec. 12 meeting probably will center on the new round of multilateral trade talks under GATT, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, and major agricutural trade issues.

Ranchers fighting temple

PARKER, Texas (AP) — Plans for a Hindu temple have residents of this North Texas town a little jittery.

Such a temple, adorned with Hindu deities, would be an eyesore and worshippers would intrude, residents said.

Parker residents say they are concerned about increased traffic on roads already overburdened by tourists to the Southfork ranch popularized by the television series, "Dallas." Opponents also fear the temple could be the site of violence between Hindus and area Sikhs.

About 200 Hindu families live in Dallas and Fort Worth and area suburbs, and organizers say the temple would serve as a religious and cultural hub.

"That's what our religion calls for. We want our children to be proud of their heritage. That is why we're building this temple," said Pradeep Pandya, vice president of the Dallas-Fort Worth Hindu Temple Society.

Parker residents took their complaints to a Nov. 12 public hearing and vowed to block the group's effort to receive zoning clearance for the temple.

The City Council must approve zoning for the construction of churches and schools and can impose restrictions for the "health, safety and welfare of the community," said City Secretary Betty McMenamy.

Council members made no decision at the Nov. 12 hearing and have not set a date for a second hearing.

Sherry Jones, whose two-story home is adjacent to the proposed temple site, said she's not concerned about possible violence. But she said Hindus don't belong in Parker.

"I don't have any objection to them practicing religion, but I don't see why they have to come out here," Ms. Jones said.

The Rev. Rick Fowlkes of North Ridge Baptist Church faced similar opposition several years ago when he tried to move his church to the area. He was given approval after he agreed to make the 3,200-square-foot church conform to the style of surrounding homes.

But Fowlkes is not interested in having the temple as a neighbor.

U.S. assisting Honduras in fighting

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Honduran troops, ferried by U.S. helicopters flying on President Reagan's orders, today were reported battling Nicaraguan soldiers said to have advanced three miles across the ill-defined, rugged border.

Honduras reported 18 soldiers killed in the fighting and said there were "many dead and wounded" Nicaraguan troops.

Nicaragua denied its troops were inside Honduras and said seven soldiers and two civilians were killed in warplane attacks on Nicaraguan villages.

There were no reports of casualties of the American forces, who were ordered to remain away from the fighting. U.S. officials said they would not release details on the airlift until it was deemed to be not militarily useful to Nicaragua, but they said the helicopters were unarmed and that the flights were expected to end today.

Honduran President Jose Azcona Hoyo said Sunday he had asked for U.S. aircraft to ferry reinforcements. The State Department in Washington said President Reagan, "after consulting with his senior advisers, agreed to provide the requested aircraft support ...."

In March, U.S. aircraft and crews ferried Honduran troops to the border when some 1,500 Nicaraguan soldiers penetrated Honduran territory in pursuit of Contras.

About 700 Nicaraguan troops reportedly crossed the border on Saturday and set fire to three deserted Honduran villages near the town of Cifuentes. The villages were abandoned more than six months ago because of tension along the mountainous, jungle border.

The incursion by the Sandinista troops was the fifth into Honduras reported in seven months.

U.S.-backed Contra rebels fighting to overthrow the Nicaraguan government operate from bases in southern Honduras.

Capt. Carlos Quezada Aguilar, spokesman for the Honduran armed forces, said Sunday that the fighting around Cifuentes was "of considerable proportions."

Honduran military intelligence sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said about 600 soldiers were being flown in UH-1H Huey and CH-47 Chinook helicopters to the border "to accelerate the removal of Nicaraguan forces from our territory."

The sources said the reinforcements were joining about 1,000 troops from Honduras' 6th and 9th Infantry Battalions, backed by helicopter gunships.

U.S. helicopters took off from the U.S.-operated air base at Palmerola, 35 miles northwest of Tegucigalpa, and landed the Honduran troops about 20 miles from the fighting, U.S. officials in the capital said.

Gen. John Galvin, commander of American forces in the Southern Hemisphere, was in Tegucigalpa to supervise the airlift, according to U.S. officials.

In Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto denied Nicaraguan troops were in Honduras and said "if the Honduran army is having a confrontation with some Nicaraguans it would have to be with the Contras." He claimed that U.S. warplanes bombed two Nicaraguan villages Sunday afternoon.

The Nicaraguan Defense Ministry said seven Nicaraguan troops were killed and nine wounded in warplane attacks near the headquarters of the First Brigade, four miles northeast of Murra and about 14 miles southwest of the Honduran border.

Attacks on Wiwili, about 16 miles south of the Honduras border, killed two girls, aged 4 and 11, and wounded three soldiers, the ministry said. The towns are roughly 115 miles north of Managua.

Sandinista military sources said the attacks were by Honduran air force planes flying U.S.-made A-37s and French-made Super Mysteres. The Honduran air force has about 12 Super Mysteres and about an equal number of A-37s.

D'Escoto, who held a news conference in Managua, was asked for proof that the attacking planes were U.S. aircraft.

"I said that everything indicates that the United States for many years has been carrying out a war against Nicaragua. It is not Honduras. It is a war that although it is not officially declared, it is a war that the United States is carrying out," he said.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Michael O'Brien in said D'Escoto's charge was "completely false," and "obviously another example of Sandinista disinformation."

Honduras is one of America's staunchest allies in Central America. The two nations frequently hold joint military maneuvers and the U.S. military routinely has personnel and equipment in Honduras. About 100 Florida National Guardsmen have been participating since Nov. 30 in joint exercises in Honduras at El Zamorano, about 20 miles southeast of Tegucigalpa.

Pentagon spokesman Col. Arnold Williams said he was unable to say immediately how many U.S. troop are in Honduras. Last March, 2,900 were there, and the number rose to 4,600 last May.

Gen. Gamel Abdul Nasser became premier and military governor of Egypt in 1954.

A delegation from Peking arrived in Washington in 1973 to prepare for the opening of Communist China's first official mission to the United States.

Truck driver injured, traffic stalled briefly

A 35-year-old Baird truck driver was hospitalized at Abilene's Hendrick Medical Center Monday recovering from injuries sustained in a two-truck collision in Scurry County Saturday which briefly stalled traffic on U.S. Hwy. 84.

Daniel Timothy Keen was initially hospitalized at Cogdell Memorial Hospital in Snyder around 4 p.m. Saturday. Reports indicate he was thrown from the cab of a 1985 International tractor-trailer rig.

Keen was taken from the scene of the mishap — about 4.5 miles southeast of Snyder — by units of Aid Ambulance-Snyder for treatment of possible neck, back and internal injuries.

The accident temporarily stalled traffic on 84 after it occurred around 3:30 p.m.

Keen was listed in stable condition just before noon Sunday when he was transferred to the Abilene Hospital.

A hospital spokesman here said he was primarily transferred to allow him to be closer to home.

According to Department of Public Safety accident reports, Keen was driving his tractor-trailer southbound on 84 when he apparently lost control of the rig on the rain-slick highway.

The rig jacknifed and was then struck from the rear and side by a 1987 International tractor-trailer driven by Angus Armstrong McLellan of Lutz, Florida.

McLellan was also driving south bound on 84 and was passing Keen when the mishap occurred.

Driver crushed in Borden County

Grady Lee Ayers, 55, of Big Spring was found dead in southwestern Borden County Saturday morning, an apparent accident victim killed when his own tractor-trailer rig crushed him.

Borden County Justice of the Peace Carolyn Stone pronounced Ayers dead at the scene at 9 a.m. Saturday. He was found on the James Gravel Pit Rd. about 2 miles north of Vealmoor.

According to Department of Public Safety accident reports, Ayers was apparently killed when his tractor-trailer rig rolled forward on him while he was attempting to open a gate in the roadway.

The mishap was thought to have occurred sometime Friday afternoon.

Rollover noted in Towle Park

Police investigated two minor traffic mishaps Saturday including a one-vehicle rollover in Towle Park late Saturday night.

According to police reports, a 1982 Chevrolet pickup driven by Earl Henry McCann of Rt. 3, Snyder overturned after striking a guard post in the 2800 Block of Towle Park Rd. at 11:47 p.m. Saturday.

McCann was not injured in the mishap.

Saturday's first minor mishap occurred at 4:56 p.m. in the 4100 Block of College Ave.

Involved in it were a 1968 Buick driven by Victor Raymond Wilson Jr. of Colorado City and a 1985 Chrysler driven by Brenda Joy Goldsmith of 2612 48th St.

No injuries were reported from that incident.

Marijuana arrests noted

Police logged seven misdemeanor arrests over the weekend including four juveniles detained for misdemeanor possession of marijuana.

Those suspects, all males age 13, 14, 15 and 16, were picked up at 4:58 p.m. Sunday in the 2300 Block of Ave. M and later released to the custody of their parents.

Other arrests included two suspects for driving while intoxicated and one for public intoxication.

Vehicle skids causing wreck

Department of Public Safety highway patrolmen investigated a minor one-vehicle traffic mishap 14 miles southeast of Snyder on U.S. Hwy. 84 around 11 p.m. Saturday.

According to reports, Joseph A. Flores of San Antonio was driving south on the highway when he apparently lost control of his 1966 Chevrolet on wet pavement.

The Flores vehicle skidded off and then back across the roadway before coming to rest in the ditch. It did not overturn.

No injuries were reported with the wreck.

Rebels call for removal of bases

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Communist negotiators said today that a lasting peace is impossible in the Philippines unless U.S. military bases are closed and warned that a dispute over military patrolling could prevent a cease-fire agreement from going into effect this week.

The nationwide, 60-day truce was signed Nov. 27 by the government of President Corazon Aquino and the Communist-dominated National Democratic Front and is to go into effect Wednesday.

Blast levels stores

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An explosion ripped through a building in the heart of downtown Fort Worth, leveling a row of specialty shops, blowing out windows in a four-block area and terrifying guests at a hotel, authorities said.

A natural gas leak in one of two cafes probably caused the Sunday explosion, which caused an estimated $2 million in damage, said fire department spokesman Butch Hall. In addition to the cafes, the explosion destroyed a print shop, an optometrist's office and a bookstore, Hall said.

A guest at the nearby Worthington Hotel was cut by glass, but no serious injuries were reported after the blast, which occurred about 3 a.m., Hall said.

City crews spent Sunday clearing the rubble off the streets and picked up several tons of glass, Hall said. Two streets remained closed today so damage could be assessed by insurance appraisers, he said.

The casualties might have been higher had the blast occurred at another time, authorities said.

"Two hours before, we had 500 people in the ballrooms," said Worthington Hotel spokesman Tom Weiskopf, pointing to a 30-foot-tall wall of plate glass windows that were blown in.

puter programs by Apollo Data Services Inc. for voter registration and jury selection. Cost for the programs is listed at $3,500.

The equipment will allow all information to be stored in a central location. Ainsworth noted that access to the hospital's computer, which currently holds the county clerk's information, is often delayed due to other users. She added that the new equipment will also eliminate sending some election materials out of the county for processing.

During Monday's session, court members also authorized two county employees working for the Senior Citizens Center to work the same hours as other center employees.

They also agreed to close county offices Dec. 24-26 for Christmas. The break was originally scheduled to begin at noon on Dec. 24.
