Robertson, Shaw elected to at-large council chairs

Snyder has two new councilmen and a new mayor today, an expected outcome of Saturday's elections.

Paul Zeck, running unopposed, will take over for former mayor Troy Williamson, who resigned last month to accept a position in San Angelo.

Zeck, president of Y-Z Industries, had previously served on the city council for four years, the final in 1991 as mayor pro tem.

At-large council members elected Saturday were Dayton Robertson and Ron Shaw. In a three-man race for two seats, Robertson polled 468 votes. Shaw, a U.S. postal employee, garnered 212 for the second seat, narrowly edging Brady Bynum, who received 203 votes.

Robertson, an engineer with Y-Z Industries, had been serving as District 4 councilman. In running for an at-large post, Robertson gave up the District 4 seat. That place will now be occupied by Martin's Quick Service owner I.E. Martin, who was running unopposed.

Voters reject Proposition 1

From local, wire reports

Scurry County school administrators have adopted a "wait-and-see" attitude now that voters have rejected the so-called Robin Hood amendment.

"I'd say we're in a mess, but I don't know which way yet," said Hermleigh Superintendent Jerry Church.

Lawmakers are faced with the task of trying to come up with another plan for equitable funding of public schools since Proposition 1 was rejected 63 percent to 37 percent last Saturday.

Locally, voters overwhelmingly turned down Proposition 1, 1,783 votes to 357. They also followed the rest of the state in rejecting Proposition 2, which would have required the state to fund future mandates, and Proposition 3, which called for the sale of $750 million in bonds for school construction.

Proposition 2 failed 1,111 votes to 990 locally, and Proposition 3 was defeated 1,673 votes to 445.

Texas faces a court-ordered cutoff of state aid to schools if lawmakers don't devise a constitutional plan to equalize school funding by June 1.

Administrators from all three public school systems in Scurry Country — Snyder, Ira and Hermleigh — said they have enough reserves to complete the 1992-93 school year if state funding is cut off.

Snyder ISD Business Manager Lee McNair said the local school system will be able to fund all of its summer programs, as well as salary obligations through August. Ira and Hermleigh schools do not have summer programs.

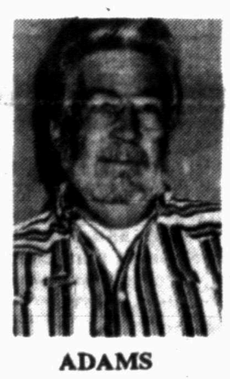

"We just hope that they have something in place by the time school starts," said McNair. "Right now it's just wait and see. There is the possibility the judge could extend the deadline."

ISD boards to see new faces

Some incumbents fared well but others could not hold off challenges at the polls Saturday as Scurry County's three public school boards will all have at least one new trustee.

Fluvanna resident Janet Stribling defeated Place 5 trustee Ann Walton on the Snyder public schools board while Milton Adams and James Rinehart won seats on the Hermleigh board at the expense of incumbents.

Stribling, who had said she wanted to represent rural parents, received 235 votes to Walton's 157. A special meeting of the Snyder board is set for 12:30 p.m. Wednesday to canvass votes and certify the election.

Two other incumbents running for re-election to the SISD board were successful Saturday — but by only a handful of votes. Place 1 trustee Glenn Clarady kept his seat with 36 votes to challenger Joe G. Hernandez' 26.

And in Place 4, school board president Billy Bob McMullan edged challenger Mark McCormick by just four votes, 166 to 162.

Eight men were running for two places on the Hermleigh school board, including incumbents Brian Blair and "Chip" Roemisch Jr. When the final votes came in, however, it was James Rinehart and Milton Adams who won seats on the board.

Rinehart received 110 votes and Adams polled 85. Blair fell short with 80 votes. Others were Randy Bates with 47, Andres Rodriguez Jr. with 45, Chip Roemisch with 32, Nelson Eckert with 31 and Joe Roemisch with 26.

Votes are expected to be canvassed at 7:15 this evening in Hermleigh.

County oks amendment to the budget

Scurry County commissioners approved a budget amendment and accepted a bid when they met this morning.

Almost $30,000 will come out of the general fund for a personnel management study and 911 maintenance. County Judge Bob Doolittle said that both items were approved before the first of the year but after the 1993 budget was approved, necessitating a budget amendment.

Some $25,000 will go for a personnel management study done by Ray Associates of Austin. The study includes a personnel policy manual, job descriptions, salary reviews, an American Disabilities Act study and more. Approximately $4,800 will go toward 911 maintenace, which includes the cost of addressing homes, to assist emergency personnel.

The court approved the lone bid received from Fina Oil and Chemical Company for asphalt. The bid was 50 cents a gallon. According to Commissioner Jerry Gannaway, approximatly 225,000 gallons will be used.

A county resident, Shari Cotton, asked commissioners to lower the speed limit on County Road 3105 to 45 miles per hour from the

Employers keep foreign workers

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. workers often the losers in a bureaucracy built to keep foreign workers — often at less pay, the Houston Chronicle has reported.

Employers contend there are simply fewer U.S. workers with the same qualifications as their foreign counterparts.

But American job applicants and other critics say companies are hiding behind a federal bureaucracy that allows American companies to exclude U.S. workers because they cost more.

Those same critics claim the good-faith search is nothing more than a sham used to fulfill the federal requirement needed before a permanent visa can be obtained for the foreign worker the company had in mind all along.

"Look at the advertisements across the country" that offer $16,000 a year for engineers and $18,000 for engineers with a Ph.D., said Charles Lessard, an associate professor of biomedical engineering at Texas A&M University. "When you see that, you know there's wage-busting going on."

But Charles Foster, an immigration lawyer with Tindall & Foster in Houston, disagreed.

"It's not a cheap way for employers to fill a position," Foster said. "They do it because they can't find someone in this particular job market."

Several examples from U.S. workers who applied for jobs across the country tell a different story.

Employers who want a foreigner are not interested in attracting U.S. applicants, said Charlean M. Jackson, deputy administrator for field operations and programs for the Texas Employment Commission in Austin. And when they get interested job-seekers, employers often brush them off, Jackson said.

"It's a runaround for many applicants," said Jackson, who oversees the commission's efforts

Just ask Robert Applegate, who answered an advertisement for a Chinese law specialist in Dallas. Applegate, who has a law degree and speaks Chinese, was invited by the office of Dallas lawyer William Chu to interview for the job but had to pay his own way from San Diego.

Applegate said he informed the law firm he didn't have the immigration law experience the firm sought, but the firm assured him he was still qualified for the job. So he flew to Dallas.

Once he arrived, an interviewer spent less than five minutes reading his resume aloud and then announced he was unqualified for the position.

Applegate said the interviewer told him the firm had a Chinese national they were favoring who had all the job experience they wanted that wasn't in the job advertisement.

While Applegate said he has no proof Chu was using the interview to evade Labor Department regulations to seek qualified U.S. workers, he said he never felt like a legitimate job applicant.

"I felt really cheated," he said.

When contacted, Chu said he believed that Applegate was interviewing at other companies in Dallas and was unaware that he traveled there only to interview with his law firm. "He was not qualified," Chu said, refusing to elaborate. "All applications were considered."

The Labor Department doesn't have the personnel to check the accuracy of employers' statements, said Charlene Giles, alien certification officer for the regional Labor Department in Dallas.

Special activities set at Hermleigh

Grieving Families Dispute Smokers' Clouded Judgment

DEAR ABBY: I can't get your column about "proud smokers" off my mind. My father-in-law also used to say, "I know that smoking isn't good for me, but I'd rather enjoy my time on earth and die a little earlier than deprive myself of the things I enjoy."

I was in medical school at the time. Unfortunately, Dad didn't get very much more enjoyment because he had to have bypass surgery. Then he needed his arteries stripped so his brain could get proper blood supply. Then they stripped his femoral arteries, not once, but twice — all the while he continued to "enjoy himself" as he smoked one cigarette after another.

Soon his leg became gangrenous because there wasn't enough artery to save, so they amputated his leg almost to his hip. By that time, I was a resident in pathology, and Dad's other leg began to lose circulation, and his coronary bypasses were clogging.

Had enough? Well, so did he. Fortunately, he died before they did any further amputations.

Through all of this, Dad never deprived himself of the pleasure of smoking, but he deprived his family of having him around to celebrate his 60th birthday. You may use my name.

LISA K. HELFEND, M.D.,
SAN RAFAEL, CALIF.

DEAR LISA: Thank you for a powerful letter and giving me permission to use your name. Perhaps this will send a message to those who need it.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "Al" — the smoker who says, "Everybody has to die of something," so he's going to keep right on smoking. Al sounds just like my husband, Joe — with one big difference — Al is alive, and Joe is dead. Lung cancer killed Joe three weeks ago. (I'm enclosing a copy of Joe's death certificate to confirm that I am for real — and not some kind of nut.)

Al, if you are like my Joe, you probably believe that if you do get lung cancer, modern science will come to your rescue and save you. Wrong! Only 8 percent of people diagnosed with lung cancer live for a year afterward.

Why? Because by the time you can see it on your chest X-ray, it's already too late. My Joe was 56 — four years younger than Al. He had no unusual symptoms. We thought he had a cold, maybe pneumonia. Joe's parents both lived to their late 70s, so rule out heredity.

I am not one of the "never-smoked" crowd who doesn't understand how difficult it is to quit. (I smoked for 20 years before I quit, and now I'm scared spitless that I didn't quit soon enough.)

One more time, Al. Smoking kills ... and it will make you wish you were dead long before it finishes the job. (I know; my Joe did.) Sign me ...

LINDA, JOE'S WIDOW
IN DALLAS

P.S. I will probably be known as "that widow down the street who's planning to buy a red Ferrari with the money the family is no longer spending on cigarettes."

DEAR LINDA: Just remember to drive it carefully. Speed also kills.

Cities need help with gang problem

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The cure for urban violence and despair can't be found without the help of suburban and rural Americans, gang members said as they wrapped up a summit on bringing peace to cities.

"White suburbia has no reason to be afraid of us," said Wallace 'Gator' Bradley, a former gang member from Chicago. "Since we've been here, not a single brother has slung any crack or carried any Uzis. There's been nothing but love and harmony since we've been here."

Kansas City police concurred that there had been no problems during the three-day National Urban Peace and Justice Summit, which ended Sunday.

The summit was held behind the closed doors of an inner-city Baptist church for current and former gang members from 26 cities. About half the participants were black and half were Hispanic.

Summit participants said a truce called by street gangs after the Los Angeles riots last year was expanding across the country. They pledged to help push it along.

"We're the ones who have been there," said Alberto Burgos, 20, a former leader of the Gangster Disciples in Chicago. "We can do it."

The participants offered a set of recommendations Sunday, including "the immediate establishment of 500,000 jobs for at-risk youth" by public and private employers.

Others called for the government to make public the status of 15,000 police brutality cases, and for President Clinton to appoint an independent commission "comprised of people of color to oversee and monitor police brutality."

The statement did not provide detailed suggestions about implementing the recommendations. Organizers, who had a testy relationship with reporters throughout the summit, declined to provide more details.

Carl Upchurch, the summit coordinator, said the group planned to hold another meeting in Washington, D.C., on an as-yet undetermined date.

After Saturday's gathering, participants said they had accomplished something important just by meeting and working with each other. Many snapped souvenir pictures as they packed to leave Sunday, pledging to stay in touch.

"We'll share our resources, both Hispanics and African-Americans," said Gilberto Leal, 37, a former gang member and prison inmate from Toledo, Ohio.

Leal also asked that people in the nation's suburbs get involved in helping the cities.

"It's incumbent on each and every one of us as Americans to address these issues," he said. "There are no longer any innocent bystanders."

How to treat Sjogren's syndrome

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss Sjogren's syndrome.

DEAR READER: Marked by dryness of the mouth and eyes, arthritis, enlarged salivary glands and inflammation of other body organs (such as the sac around the heart), Sjogren's syndrome is considered to be an autoimmune disease in which the body, for no known reason, attacks its own healthy tissue. The syndrome shares many characteristics with rheumatoid arthritis, lupus and scleroderma.

The condition is diagnosed with blood tests and special eye examinations. Sjogren's syndrome is treated with artificial tears and frequent moistening of the mouth. Cortisone is not particularly effective, except when severe inflammation is present in internal organs.

Patients with the syndrome should, in my opinion, be under the care of rheumatologists. Death may result from pulmonary infection, to which Sjogren's patients are particularly susceptible. By and large, however, the prognosis is favorable.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had my bladder removed three years ago because of cancer. My regular doctor wants me to have an IVP every six months, yet another physician indicates every 18 months is adequate. I'm frightened by the long time span and would like your thoughts.

DEAR READER: This is a difficult question that I cannot answer because I don't have enough information. What kind of cancer? Had it spread? Has there been any sign of recurrence? The answers to these and other questions can best be formulated by doctors familiar with your care. In general, I'd side with your urologist, the surgeon who operated on you.

While I respect your physicians' divergent opinions, the urologist is your best resource. You'll be exposed to a lot of radiation during an intravenous pyelogram (IVP), an X-ray of the urinary system, so you obviously aren't eager to have the test performed more often than necessary. Perhaps there is another way to monitor your condition, such as through a cystoscope. Ask the urologist.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Bladder and Urinary Tract Infections." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Five years ago I underwent open heart surgery for subacute bacterial endocarditis. For the past four or five months, I've suffered from dry mouth, which has become very bothersome. Sucking sugar-free candy is only a palliative measure, and I wonder if there is a connection to the surgery and if there is a better suggestion for relief?

DEAR READER: I do not believe that your present symptoms, which by my calculation appeared more than four years after surgery, bear any relation to the operation. You should address this issue with your doctor or dentist because you may have a mouth problem, such as blocked salivary ducts, that is causing the dryness.

Your Birthday

May 4, 1993

In the year ahead, you might make a major change in the type of friends you find appealing. Present pals who don't fit into this stereotype could be left standing at the station.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you are negotiating a critical matter today, each and every step must be clearly defined. Assumptions could prove to be both unwise and counterproductive. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Taurus' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone might tell you something confidential today that he or she learned about another person. There is a lesson here: Don't tell this person things you want to keep secret.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It might be wise to find other things to do today, instead of attending a social event which might make you uncomfortable. If you don't think you'll have a good time, you probably won't.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Think twice before talking about anybody today, even people who might deserve a tongue-lashing. You are the one who could get pricked trying to make your points.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you make a mistake today, it's best to admit it and try to rectify it as early as possible. The worst thing you can do is attempt to hide your errors or blame others for them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not throw good money after bad today. If someone is already indebted to you, don't broaden the liability. If you are in something that isn't panning out, cut your losses and run.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is not a good day to get into a finger-pointing contest with your mate regarding who is right or wrong. Each will resent being the scapegoat.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might spend more time talking about your intentions today than doing them. If you want to be productive, it is best that you reverse the procedure.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone you are anxious to appease today might not be responsive to your generous gestures, regardless of how far you bend over backward to placate him or her.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Broadcasting your intentions prematurely could give a competitor the edge that he or she has been looking for. Don't be a participant in your own defeat.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You might not be in the mood today to have your opinions challenged by others. Unfortunately, you could cross paths with a person who feels the same way that you do.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be on guard in your commercial dealings today, because you might be inclined to give up a number of small advantages and wind up giving yourself a bum deal.

Monument's guard paid by taxpayers

HOUSTON (AP) — Each day, motorists traveling along Houston's Memorial Drive northwest of downtown are struck by the ironic picture of police officers guarding a police memorial.

"It's not a waste of money as much as a misuse of manpower," said Maryann Young, spokeswoman for city controller George Greanias.

Despite promises for a volunteer watch, city taxpayers have forked over $30,000 so far this year for a 24-hour guard of the Houston Police Officer Memorial.

With an average base salary of at least $30,000, the equivalent of three officers have kept watch over the ziggurat-shaped memorial at a cost of nearly a third of their full-time salaries, totaling about $30,000, Houston police spokesman Rick Hartley said.

Latest dictionary is 'politically correct'

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — What do "safe sex," "politically correct" and "karaoke" have in common?

They've all been used enough in American language to make it into the 10th edition of Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary.

The book, being released today, [illegible] Noah Webster's death, is to some the ultimate arbiter of correct spelling and usage. To its editor-in-chief, Frederick Mish, it also represents a reflection of society itself.

"Our language is constantly changing and evolving," he said.

At times those changes have brought howls of protest from language purists.

"I cringe at some of the things we have in the book myself," Mish said. "But my advice is to relax. There is no way in the world you are going to stop 350 million people from using words the way they want to."

[illegible] saying 'pain' [illegible] the Collegiate. So are all of the most notorious four-letter words and racial slurs.

And so is the expression "politically correct" (the belief that language that offends should be eliminated).

The new Collegiate, retitled Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary to reflect the company's deeply felt ties to Noah Webster, contains 160,000 entries and 211,000 definitions in all.

The editors who assembled it reviewed and updated every entry in the 10-year-old ninth edition and made more than a million changes.

More than 10,000 of t[illegible] are new words or meanings, gleaned by editors who spend their days reading and making notes on word usage.

Their jottings are stored in a computer, as well as added to the company's stock of more than 141/2 million 3-by-5 cards listing all the words that stirred America since 1790.

The file was started by Webster, a vigorous supporter of colonial independence, who wrote the first truly American dictionary in 1806.

The book, although praised, was not a best seller until after [illegible] died in 1843.

The brothers, who ran a Springfield print shop, cut the price and hired a group of scholars to update the work.

Success was assured in 1850 when the states of Massachusetts and New York ordered copies for every schoolhouse. More than 45 million copies have been sold since 1898.

As the dictionary has been updated over the years, it has normally taken a new word or meaning three to five years to make it into an edition, said senior editor James Lowe.

Some have taken longer. "Karaoke," the device that allows popstar wannabes to sing to a tape of full musical accompaniment, was first noted by the editors in 1982.

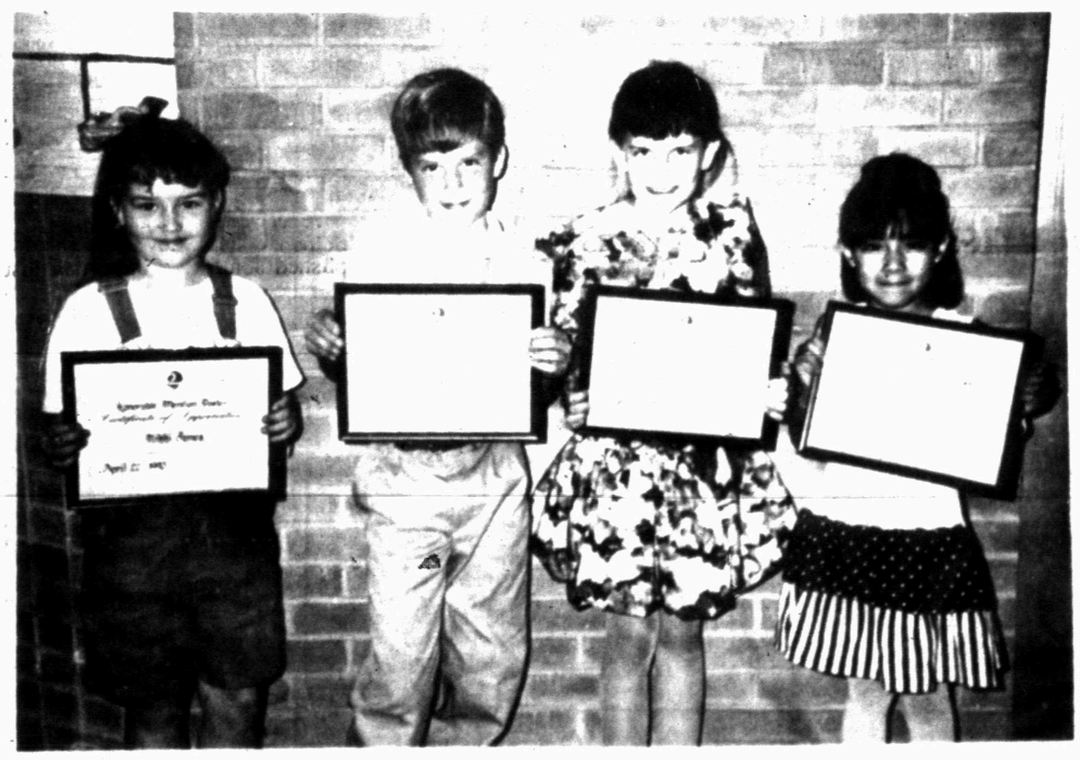

"Mayo," another new entry in the 10th edition, "has probably been heard at lunch counters for 40 years or more, but it was only in the early 1960s that we began to see it in print," Lowe said.

Other words have had an instant impact.

Editors replated 1983's ninth Collegiate to get in "AIDS," first cited in 1982.

Bob Hope birthday special is May 14

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope's 90th birthday tribute truly will be a once-in-a-lifetime affa[illegible], but one celebrity is passing up the party — Jerry Seinfeld is finally taking a holiday.

"Jerry hasn't taken a vacation in 14 years," his manager, George Shapiro, says in the May 10 issue of People magazine.

The television special honoring Hope was taped Saturday and is to air May 14. Guests include Johnny Carson, Jay Leno, Whoopi Goldberg and George Burns.

But Seinfeld was in Europe and doesn't plan to return until this week, in time for a show Friday in Atlantic City, Shapiro said.

Lampasas cager inks with Western Texas

Western Texas College women's basketball coach Ron Jones announced the signing of Lampasas High School standout Tammy Wilson.

Wilson brings averages of 14 points, 11 rebounds, five assists and four steals to the Lady Dusters following a four-year varsity career for coach David Tandy's Lady Badgers.

TAMMY WILSON

"I'm very happy she's going to continue playing," Tandy said of Wilson's decision to ink with WTC. "I really feel like she'll be a great addition to their program.

"She's a good kid, she's talented, she works hard and she likes to win. She's a well rounded person, too. She's good in the classroom as well as in the gym."

"I'm looking forward to playing there," said Wilson. "I like the area and coach Jones. It just seems like a real nice place."

Wilson was voted the co-MVP of District 25-3A in her senior season, leading Lampasas to a 20-9 third-place finish.

She was Most Valuable Player at the Goldthwaite Tournament, was named all-tourney at the Coleman and Marble Falls events, earned an honorable mention in the Austin American-Statesman's All-Cen-Tex team and will participate in the Blue-Chip Shootout in Houston this summer.

Wilson, a 5-9 guard-forward combination, carries a grade point average of 90. She plans to study business at Western Texas.

WTC rodeo team claims title

Westerners tie for first at TSU; win NIRA regional crown

STEPHENVILLE — After the [illegible] way Western Texas College [illegible] dominated bareback riding this season, it was no surprise the bronc busters accumulated 190 of the Westerners' 310 points at the Tarleton State University NIRA Rodeo over the weekend. The tally enabled the Westerners to tie for first place honors at the rodeo and claim a berth in the College National Finals Rodeo.

The Westerners earned the NIRA's Southwest Region title and Vernon Regional Junior College took second, giving both squads a slot in the CNFR in Bozeman, Mont. in June.

Coach Bob Doty of WTC will be taking his team to Montana for the 12th time in the last 13 seasons.

Official standings and season-ending point totals will be released later this week, but the WTC win was assured with a huge lead going into the final week.

Western Texas and Vernon Regional Junior College were knotted for first place when the dust settled on the regular-season fi[illegible] around winner David Howard, who won the saddle bronc event, was a distant third here with 130 points.

Regional bareback champion Eric Mouton paced the Western Texas charge here with a first-place finish. Mouton scored a 77 for first in the long go-round, then added a 74 in the finals.

Teammate Travis Whiteside, who was event runner-up for the season, took third at TSU with his 141 on two head. Troy Thomson scored fifth-place points for Doty's WTC squad with his 138 in the average.

Western Texas saddle bronc riders Trey Griffin and Jason Runfola claimed third and fourth, respectively, scoring 135 and 125 on two rides each.

[illegible] seconds off the pace set by Texas Tech's Clay Nohavitza in the event.

Host Tarleton rolled for 265 points and first place at the rodeo and in the region in women's events.

All around cowgirl was ENMU's Amy Best.

Western Texas' women's team scored five points and wound up in seventh place, in spite of filling five spots in the short-go.

Brandye Bitters took fourth in the first go-round with her 17.37 in the barrel race. She wound up third in the average after flashing a 17.00 in Saturday's finals.

SAN ANGELO — A photo finish that left Trina Thompson in third place in the 100 meter dash highlighted Snyder's appearance at the Region 1-4A track meet Friday and Saturday at Angelo State University.

Thompson's official time was a 12.27, .02 off the second- place 12.25 of La Tosha Record of Fort Worth Carter Riverside.

"Trina ran a good race," said Snyder girls' track coach Patty Grimmett. "She had a good start and was strong all the way. The girl that beat her for second did it right at the end.

"It was a photo finish," Grimmett reported. "We didn't know what to tell her until after the officials had looked at the picture and then announced it.

"It was disappointing for Trina, I know, getting to state as a junior, then not making it the next year."

Three other SHS tracksters competed at the regional meet, including Kristi McClure in the shot put and the 100 meter hurdles, Vicky Green in the discus throw and Todd Iglehart, the boys' team's only qualifier, who threw the shot.

"Every one of them competed well," Grimmett said. "Sometimes you see kids get to regionals and choke under the pressure, but everyone competed well."

McClure finished third in the shot put with a 38-8 effort, then posted a personal-best 17.1 in the hurdles in the preliminaries. Green's personal-best 114-9 was good for sixth and Iglehart took fifth with his 49-10 heave.

The top two qualifiers in each event advance to the state Class 4A meet May 15 in Austin.

Thompson and McClure are regional alternates after their third-place finishes here.

Matt Garrett coached McClure and Green in their field events and Iglehart was coached by Jack Dorsett.

Other District 2-4A boys' qualifiers here included Corey Kelly of Lamesa, who took first in the triple jump with a 46-7 effort, then came in second in the long jump with a 24-51/4 leap; and Juan Gomez of Plainview, who turned in a second-place 1:57.59 in the 800 meters.

San Angelo Lake View and Mineral Wells each accumulated 60 points to tie for team honors.

The girls' team title went to Frenship, which scored 80 points, led by Adrian Sawyer's first-place 38-81/4 in the triple jump, and an 18-51/4 for first in the long jump.

Estacado's 48.95 was first in the sprint relay; Frenship won the 800 meter relay with a 1:43.50 clocking; Kay Willis of Plainview advanced with her top time of 58.42 in the 400; and Dana Cunningham finished second in the 300 meter hurdles with a 44.06.

Plainview drops Tigers, 11-1

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

For five innings, Saturday's Snyder-Plainview District 2-4A baseball game was a close game, a classic pitcher's duel.

Then came the sixth inning in which the Bulldogs sent 11 hitters to the plate and scored seven runs on their way to an 11-1 rout of the Tigers.

Starter Reagan Key lasted five innings for SHS, striking out two, walking two and giving up three hits.

Key left the game trailing 2-0 in the top of the fifth after Ronnie Martinez knocked in Jamie Fitzgerald with Plainview's second run.

"He pitched a great game," said SHS coach Albert Lewis of Key's effort. "He lost a little zip on his pitch in the fifth inning and we got behind a little bit.

"We've had trouble all season scoring runs on good pitchers and with our defense.

"That's not to take anything at all away from Plainview," Lewis added. "They've got a good team.

"Our kids tried hard and gave a good effort."

Plainview's Richard Galvan handcuffed the Tigers, going six innings, walking none and allowing just two hits, an RBI single by John Clinkinbeard and a Brad Hart single, both in the sixth.

The Bulldogs got five hits, including back-to-back doubles by Adrian Gonzales and Cleat Bell, walks to Tony Enriquez, Aron Odom and Galvan, and an error that allowed Martinez aboard against relievers Curt Rinehart and Raymond House in the disastrous sixth frame.

Plainview took a 10-0 lead into the last of the sixth when Clinkinbeard drove in Jason McAden to extend the game to the seventh inning.

The Tigers slip to 8-17 on the season and 2-7 in loop games. Plainview clinched a playoff berth with Saturday's win. The Bulldogs sport a 19-7 overall record and a 7-2 slate in district encounters.

In other Saturday games, Frenship stayed alone in first place in District 2-4A with a 4-3 win over Estacado and Lamesa outlasted Levelland, 9-7.

The regular season ends for the Tigers on Tuesday when they host Estacado in a 7 p.m. meeting at Moffett Field.

L.A. within game of upsetting Suns

by The Associated Press

The Phoenix Suns, on the brink of one of the biggest upset losses in playoff history, must do something that's never been done before to avoid that embarrassment.

The Los Angeles Lakers, the only one of 16 NBA playoff teams with a losing record, shocked the Suns for the second time Sunday, holding them to 11 points on 19 percent shooting in the fourth quarter of an 86-81 victory.

In postseason history, only three teams have come back from a 2-0 deficit to win a best-of-5 series. In none of those cases did the team with the 2-0 deficit lose the first two games at home.

"I played as hard as I could," said Charles Barkley, who had 18 points and 21 rebounds, but missed all seven of his shots in the Suns' miserable fourth quarter. "I just didn't play well."

The Suns have history on their side in one respect: In the previous nine years of the current 16-team NBA playoff format, the top seeds in the two conferences are 18-0 in the first round.

The Lakers were the NBA's most successful team in the 1980s, with five championships, but they have been the Western Conference's eighth seed the last two seasons.

"James Worthy and A.C. Green and Byron Scott. You know, those guys have been in the playoffs almost 10 years," said Vlade Divac, who had 19 points and 13 rebounds, including two big baskets down the stretch. "They know how to play under pressure."

In other playoff games Sunday, New York defeated Indiana 101-91, Chicago routed Atlanta 117-102 and Utah downed Seattle 89-85. The Knicks and Bulls lead 2-0 and Seattle and Utah are 1-1.

Tonight's only games have Boston at Charlotte and Houston at the Los Angeles Clippers in series tied 1-1. The New Jersey-Cleveland and Portland-San Antonio series also are 1-1.

The Suns, who outscored the Lakers 27-20 in the third quarter, but made only 32.8 percent of their shots in the other three periods, led 78-72 with 5:56 remaining. But Phoenix didn't hit another basket.

Knicks 101, Pacers 91

New York salvaged its 22-game winning streak at home, rallying from a 16-point deficit to defeat Indiana.

The Pacers, whose 41-41 regular-season record was 19 games worse than New York's, led 48-32 in the second quarter and 59-44 early in the second half before the Knicks pulled within one at the end of the third quarter. Then John Starks scored 12 of his playoff career-high 29 points in the fourth period as New York outscored the Pacers 30-19 in the final 12 minutes.

Bulls 117, Hawks 102

Any chance the visiting Hawks may have seemed to have effectively was wiped out at the halftime buzzer when Michael Jordan hit a 45-footer for a 56-49 lead. Jordan finished with 29 points, none bigger than the 3 just before halftime.

The Hawks return home knowing they at least cut into Chicago's domination on the boards. The Bulls outrebounded the Hawks 50-41 Sunday, a lot closer than the 62-28 difference in the opener.

Dominique Wilkins led Atlanta with 37 points while Kevin Willis had 26 and 13 rebounds. Scottie Pippen added 25 for the two-time defending champion Bulls.

Jazz 89, SuperSonics 85

Karl Malone rebounded from what he called a bad opening game with 26 points, eight in the final six minutes when he was playing with five fouls, as the visiting Jazz evened the series and gained the homecourt advantage.

The Jazz got crucial final-minute baskets from Mark Eaton and Malone.

Gary Payton led the Sonics with 19 points. Shawn Kemp, who outscored Malone 29-24 in the opener, was held to 13.

John Stockton had 14 points and 12 assists for Utah.

Congress may approve lot of Clinton's tax package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thwarted in his efforts to pass a relatively insignificant spending bill, President Clinton now faces a major-league test of his clout: persuading Congress to approve the biggest tax increase in history.

This time, the Senate rules are in his favor. Republicans cannot block a vote on his top-priority $265 billion, five-year tax plan as they did on his mainly symbolic measure to spend $16 billion for emergency job creation.

On the other hand, Clinton's two most important allies on taxes — the chairmen of the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance committees — are committed to preserving a major legacy of the Reagan administration: the 1986 Tax Reform Act. Clinton wants to roll back several of its provisions.

The Ways and Means Committee, chaired by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and controlled 24-14 by Democrats, begins writing its version of Clinton's bill Tuesday. Those who watch the panel say major elements of the president's tax increase are likely to survive, with little or no GOP support, and pass the Democratic-controlled House as well.

That would toss the hot potato to the Finance Committee, chaired by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., where Democrats control by an 11-9 margin. Republicans are preparing several amendments, and a defection by only one Democrat could force major changes in Clinton's bill.

Nevertheless, if the measure clears Finance, it is likely to become law.

The tax increase would provide most of the deficit reduction that Congress agreed to in concept when it approved the outlines of Clinton's budget April 1. The same "reconciliation" bill will include numerous spending cuts and restraints.

Here is how other major parts of the president's tax plan are likely to fare:

—Raising taxes on the well-to-do, to bring in $180 billion through 1998. This is the most popular part of the program and will be a part of any bill that passes, although it marks another attack on the 1986 law.

The biggest share of this piece would come from raising to 36 percent the current 31 percent top income tax rate and imposing a surtax on most income — but not capital gains — over $250,000.

—Imposing a new tax on most energy, raising $72 billion. This would affect virtually every individual and business, although other federal programs would be fattened to offset effects on people with incomes under $30,000.

The tax would raise the price of gasoline, home heating oil, natural gas and electricity. On average, it would cost a person $104 to $124 a year, varying by region.

The biggest threat to this tax is farm-state lawmakers' insistence that agriculture be exempted. Backers fear such an exemption would open the floodgates.

—Increasing the share of Social Security benefits of higher-income retirees that is subject to income tax. Under current law, up to 50 percent of Social Security is taxed if total income plus half of Social Security benefits exceeds $25,000 for a single person or $32,000 for a couple. Clinton wants to tax up to 85 percent, affecting fewer than one-quarter of retirees and raising $23 billion.

Retirees' lobbyists have not been as vocal opposing this as might be expected.

—Increasing to 36 percent the 34 percent top tax rate on big corporations, raising more than $28 billion. Many businesses prefer to keep the lower rate and give up the investment credit Clinton wants. They are likely to lose on both counts.

New congressmen get only half a loaf

WASHINGTON (AP) — The line-item veto was campaign bread and butter for the House freshmen who came to Washington promising to change the system. Last week, they saw that sometimes the best you can hope for is half a loaf.

And they took it.

"Obviously, it's not exactly what I wanted," said Rep. Peter Deutsch, D-Fla. Yet, he said, "the vote ... proves to some extent the system does work."

What Deutsch and a majority of freshmen exactly wanted was to give the president full-fledged porkbuster power, to let him pluck piggly projects out of spending bills and make Congress muster a two-thirds majority to beat him back.

But there was strong opposition, especially from more senior Democrats, to ceding power from the legislature to another branch of government. Many of them didn't want any line-item veto legislation at all, but they wanted to help President Clinton fulfill one of his campaign promises and so they proposed a watered-down plan.

Which then got blocked, by a combination of conservative Republicans who called it too little and liberal Democrats who called it too much.

After several weeks of stalemate, the freshman helped break the logjam. They helped persuade the House Democratic leadership to allow a vote on their kind of plan, in the form of an amendment by Reps. Jerry Solomon, R-N.Y. and Michael Castle, R-Del., and then helped bust the procedural roadblocks.

Rep. Michael Collins, R-Ga., bucked the GOP leadership, which was fighting to stop consideration of the bill.

Collins recalled the common wisdom of his father, a sharecropper.

"When I said I can't, he replied, 'Can't never could.' If I said let's wait, he would reply, 'wait broke the wagon down.'

"Or I would say let's don't accept this, we might get more. He would reply, 'A bird in the hand is worth two in a bush,' " he said.

The bird they got was, not surprisingly, the Democratic leadership plan. The bill would let President Clinton suggest cutbacks, and then make Congress vote on them. Supporters said putting the spotlight on the fat would cause it to melt, while opponents called it all show and no savings.

"You can preserve pork with a refrigerator, or you can preserve pork by curing it with salt, or you can do it with smoke — smoke and mirrors," said Rep. Ernest Istook, R-Okla. "Let us not have it."

But Istook found himself in the hard-core minority among the freshmen Republicans when it came time to finally pass the bill. Democratic newcomers voted for the bill 41-21, and Republicans 34-12.

Maybe nobody was completely happy, but they had done something, taken a step.

Hutchison, Krueger posture for shootout

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It's a two-person race today, and both U.S. Senate candidates are on the attack.

State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison, a Republican, and appointed Democratic Sen. Bob Krueger wasted no time Sunday in launching their runoff campaigns.

At the Teamsters Hall in Dallas, Mrs. Hutchison blasted Krueger as a Washington insider. She said she expected him to wage a negative campaign, pointing to a heated exchange the two had on television Saturday night.

"I was positive, talking about the issues and my view for America, and he was down in the gutter. Krueger is an insider and I think he's going to be repudiated," she said.

At an Austin news conference, the interim senator scoffed at her "outsider" claims, noting that Mrs. Hutchison won a state House seat in 1972 and has held appointed positions. "She's only been in government for about 20 years ... She went to office before I did."

Krueger also referred to charges — strongly denied by Mrs. Hutchison — that she had used treasury employees for personal chores and struck one employee with a notebook.

"The people of Texas over these next five weeks will clearly want to assess questions of integrity," Krueger said.

Mrs. Hutchison was the surprise first-place finisher in Saturday's election, edging Krueger by 497 votes, 593,479 to 592,982. Each received about 29 percent of the total.

No other candidate in the 24-person field even came close in the race to determine who serves the final 11/2 years of the term originally won by U.S. Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen.

Although the runoff date hasn't been set, aides said Gov. Ann Richards is expected to call it for June 5.

Richards appointed Krueger to replace Bentsen and had campaigned for him.

With the state's other senator a Republican, Phil Gramm, Richards said Texans need to keep the second seat in Democratic hands since a Democrat has a president.

"This race is going to determine whether or not Texas has influence in Washington, whether we keep the space station and the (superconducting) super collider, and keep jobs," Richards said.

Mrs. Hutchison's showing was particularly impressive, since two Republican congressmen also ran. Combined, the three GOP contenders got about 57 percent of the vote. One candidate needed 50 percent or more to win outright.

Reps. Joe Barton and Jack Fields, received 14 percent apiece.

Democrat Richard Fisher, a former adviser to Ross Perot, was a distant fifth with 165,671 votes, or 8 percent. Dallas lawyer Jose Angel Gutierrez got 3 percent, and the 18 others split about 3 percent among them.

Krueger said he wasn't worried about his showing or the combined totals received by the top GOP candidates.

"I don't think those were Republican votes," Krueger said. "I think they were votes for a lot of different candidates who were out there."

Mrs. Hutchison said the margin surprised her and showed how weak the appointed senator is.

"I expected to trail Bob Krueger by six to seven points. When I came in first with two strong Republican challengers, I was surprised I admit," she said.

During his news conference, Krueger cited what he said are differences between himself and Mrs. Hutchison that he hopes to show voters. Krueger said he is pro-choice on abortion rights, while "Kay, as we know, is multiple choice."

He said he favors family leave, childhood immunization, Head Start and other programs important to average Texans.

Prop 1

The Supreme Court repeatedly has told lawmakers to come up with a constitutional way of making similar money available to school districts with differing property wealth.

Regional property tax revenue-sharing currently takes place under a 1991 effort by lawmakers to meet the court's order for equalized school funding. But the Supreme Court said last year that system violated the constitution because it created a state property tax and lacked voter approval. Proposition 1 was an attempt to address that.

Top leaders, including Gov. Ann Richards, had pushed Proposition 1.

State leaders had said one option could be local elections to authorize the continued regional redistribution of some property tax money.

But Richards said Saturday's lopsided vote showed Texans don't like that approach.

Richards also said voters told state officials that "They want excellence in their schools, and they don't want any taxes raised to pay for it."

Rick Howard, Ira school superintendent, said lawmakers need to restructure the funding method.

"I wish they'd just bite the bullet and restructure, get away from property tax funding education. Whether that means an income tax or taking funds from other sources, I'm not sure. But when you base the system on property tax, it's already inequitable."

current 55. She said that her home was near the road and she was concerned about safety. "My son is only three months old now, but I'm afraid when he is old enough to play in the front yard, a car or truck could skid and land in our front yard or living room." Cotton explained.

She said that trucks and speeders use the road as a short cut.

Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr. told Cotton that he has had one call asking that the speed limit not be changed. He said he would, however, put up "Slow — Children Playing" signs on each side of her home. "I've also talked with the highway patrol and they are aware of the situtation. If the signs do not work contact me again and we will go from there," Gray said.

The court also canvassed votes from Saturday's election, approved minutes of the April 26 meeting and approved payment of bills.

Commissioners present included Ralph Trevey, Roy Idom, Gray and Gannaway. Doolittle presided.

Police note five arrests, 2 burglaries

Snyder police made five arrests and filed two reports for burglary over the weekend.

Officers were notified of a burglary at Pal-O-Mar Motel on Saturday and at Tommy Davis' business at 3501 Ave. M on Sunday.

Assorted items were taken from a room at the motel, according to police. An undetermined amount of change was taken from the Ave. M business.

At 8:11 p.m. Saturday, police arrested a 28-year-old man for public intoxication at Pizza Inn.

At 9:39 the same evening, officers arrested a 32-year-old man at the Latin American Center for public intoxication.

Police stopped a vehicle at 25th Street and Avenue Y at 12:05 a.m. Sunday and arrested the 57-year-old male driver for misdemeanor driving while intoxicated and a 35-year-old female passenger for public intoxication.

Officers also arrested a 21-year-old man at 12:01 a.m. today in the 3400 block of College Avenue on outstanding DPS warrants for speeding, failure to appear and failure to display a driver's license.

At 3:10 p.m. Saturday, a man came to the department to complain that someone had damaged the windshield of his vehicle with a water balloon. A report for criminal mischief was filed.

Police were notified of a domestic dispute at 1:48 p.m. Sunday in the 2100 block of 27th Street. A report for family violence was filed.

Vick Chambers notified police at 7:17 p.m. Sunday that someone had damaged the back window of his vehicle. A report for Class B criminal mischief was filed.

PD works several accidents

Frequent traffic mishaps kept local police busy over the weekend.

Police worked a minor accident at 8:36 p.m. Saturday in the 3600 block of College Avenue. Involved were a 1993 Mercury driven by Lupe Salinas of 301 23rd. St. and a parked, 1993 GMC pickup owned by Jeffery Kellner of Ira.

At 2:43 p.m. Sunday, police worked a mishap in the 3300 block of College Avenue. Involved were a 1985 Oldsmobile driven by Silven Ennis Floyd of 2508 31st St. and a 1979 Chevrolet pickup driven by Jeffery David Henson of Ira.

At 3:17 p.m. Sunday, officers investigated another two-vehicle accident in the 3600 block of Avenue D. Involved were a 1978 Datsun driven by Keith Morris Orosco of 3903 Eastridge and a 1978 Chrysler driven by Edward Rios of 411 31st St.

And at 4:12 p.m. Sunday, officers worked an accident in the 4100 block of College Avenue. A 1990 Chevrolet pickup driven by Raymond Smith of Rt. 1 was in collision with a 1992 Chevrolet Suburban driven by Samantha Boyd of P.O. Box 65.

district to a multi-family district.

In action unrelated to the council but important to the proposed apartment complex, Farmers Home Administration is currently considering application for financial assistance, sponsored by Snyder Senior Citizens, Inc.

A separate re-zoning request has been submitted to the council by O'Neal and Virginia Bloom, who are asking to change the R-1 designation at 2018 37th St. to a C-1 commercial district. They want to establish a primary card shop and bed and breakfast at the location.

Council members will consider appointments for a couple of two-year terms to the Colorado River Municipal Water District board. The terms of Rod Waller and Russell Yorgesen will expire June 1.

In old business, the council will consider the appointment of someone to replace the late Eddie Johnson on the Planning and Zoning Commission Board.

The council will also consider transfering ownership of property across from Central Elementary to Snyder Independent School District for use as a parking area.

Also on the agenda are canvassing of votes from Saturday's city council and mayoral elections and the first reading of an ordinance revising the rates of TU Electric.

TU Electric is proposing a 15.3 percent rate increase.

Also on Sunday, the Texas Highway Patrol arrested a 17-year-old Snyder man for driving while intoxicated.

At 8:35 p.m. Saturday, the Department of Public Safety reported an accident on FM 1611. Reports said a car driven by Darold Byron Baldwin of Snyder hit a horse that walked into his lane. The horse was apparently knocked off the road and onto the shoulder. Baldwin and a passenger, Anita Baldwin, were taken to Cogdell Hospital where they were treated for minor injuries and released. Damage was estimated at $500.

Saturday at 3:43 p.m., Neil Park of Ennis Creek Road requested the fire department in reference to his pickup being on fire.

David Koresh identified

WACO (AP) — Authorities who found David Koresh's charred remains now face the task of determining who put the bullet through the forehead of the charismatic cult leader.

Those who knew Koresh insist he would not kill himself.

Justice of the Peace David Pareya confirmed Sunday that Koresh's remains had been found inside the burned prairie compound where scores of Branch Davidian followers died April 19. The preliminary finding in the cause of death was a gunshot wound to the head, he said.

No way did the 33-year-old Doomsday prophet commit suicide, Koresh's mother-in-law said.

"God the Father told him you can't do that. He says under no circumstances are you to kill yourself," said Mary Jones, whose son, David, and daughters, Rachel and Michelle, and several grandchildren died in the fire. "I don't know, but maybe some ammunition went off."

"He told me suicide was contrary to his beliefs," said Houston attorney Dick DeGuerin, who was hired to represent Koresh. "There was no organized plan to do this."

Koresh's body was found alone near the kitchen and communications center of the Mount Carmel compound, Pareya said.

Authorities would not say whether the wound was self-inflicted or when it occurred.

"The condition of the body was about the condition of the rest of the bodies that were there: extensive burning," Pareya said.

"The skull itself was absolutely broken up into multiple fragments and the anthropology team has been working for the last couple of days in order to try to reconstruct that."

The remains were identified by X-rays and dental molds.

"It was obviously a relief to everyone," said Byron Sage, the FBI's lead negotiator during the siege. "There was no doubt that he was there. It just helps put an end to the story."

War powers resolution gives Congress military input

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly five months after Marines landed on the beaches of Somalia, Congress is debating whether to authorize their deployment.

The issue of who sanctions military action, the executive or legislative branch, is of renewed concern as President Clinton considers using U.S. military force to end the fighting in Bosnia.

Since the Vietnam War, and the 1973 passing of the War Powers Resolution, Congress has insisted on having its say whenever U.S. troops are sent abroad. That determination has put Congress at odds with two decades of presidents, who have generally agreed with President Richard Nixon that the War Powers Resolution, limiting the president's authority to send troops into hostile situations abroad, is "unconstitutional and dangerous to the best interests of our nation."

The majority of lawmakers agree that the War Powers Resolution is an unconstitutional infringement on a president's authority, says Sen. John Warner, R-Va., a senior member on the Senate Armed Forces Committee. "But it's on the books and it gives Congress a foothold we're not likely to yield up."

The Constitution helped create the controversy by dividing war powers between the president, who is commander in chief, and Congress, which has the power to declare war and raise funds for the armed forces.

Congress approved the War Powers Resolution, over Nixon's veto, in anger over the undeclared and unpopular war in Indochina. It requires that the president notify Congress within 48 hours of sending troops into a foreign country. Troops entering an area of hostilities must be withdrawn after 60 days if Congress does not declare war or authorize them to remain. The president can seek a 30-day extension of that deadline.

Since the resolution's enactment, presidents on more than a dozen occasions have reported to Congress on such military actions as the 1983 invasion of Grenada and the 1986 air strike on Libya. But no president has acknowledged the congressional right to the 60- or 90-day "silent veto."

President Bush welcomed the congressional vote, coming just days before the start of Desert Storm, authorizing use of American forces against Iraq, but he was determined to go ahead even without such approval.

Saturday's elections tough for Gov. Richards

AUSTIN (AP) — Although she disputes the notion, it must have been a long election night for Ann Richards.

The popular Democratic governor, who [illegible] year, saw voters reject all three of the school funding proposals she had pushed.

Her hand-picked U.S. senator, Bob Krueger, finished second to a surprisingly strong Republican contender.

The three leading Republican Senate candidates, who spent much of the campaign criticizing one another, combined for about 57 percent of the vote. The top three Democrats received only 40 percent.

Republicans were quick to crow.

"It's a very, very bad night for Gov. Richards," said Texas GOP Chairman Fred Meyer. "The citizens of this state [illegible] down her candidate for senator and turned down her school tax [illegible]

"This was a referendum on Bob Krueger and 70 percent of the people of Texas said no," said the state's senior senator, Republican Phil Gramm.

Democrats saw the results differently, noting that Mrs. Hutchison's margin was a less-than-staggering 497 votes.

"This election was really about which Republican was going to end up in a runoff against Bob Krueger," said state Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle, whose party had endorsed the appointee.

"It wasn't a Richards referendum," said Ed Martin, the party's executive director. "Gov. Richards doesn't run until 1994, and [illegible] ter's going to run under the bridge between now and then."

The governor campaigned hard for the lead school measure, share-the-wealth Proposition 1, and loaned staff to the Save Our Schools campaign.

Proposition 1 failed 37 percent to 63 percent.

The governor spent weeks looking for a replacement for Bentsen, finally settling on Krueger, then a Railroad Commission member. A former congressman, he lost two previous Senate races — in 1978 and 1984 — and some Democrats wondered privately about her choice.

Returns Saturday night showed possible problems for Democrats.

In traditionally Democratic South Texas, Krueger led with 130,169 votes. But the three Republicans — Mrs. Hutchison and U.S. Reps. Joe Barton and Jack Fields — combined for 163,042. [illegible] dog Democrats, Mrs. Hutchison finished first, edging Krueger by about 4,000 votes.

[illegible] Republican [illegible], Richards was quick to dismiss any personal implications from the balloting.

"I never looked at this in political terms for me," she said. "But others are."

Mark Sanders, a GOP consultant, was bad news for a governor who has enjoyed almost unprecedented popularity ratings in opinion polls.

"Here you've got a governor with 65 percent approval ratings. [illegible] are the only things outside of the lottery that she's stood up and said, 'I'm for it,'" Sanders said. "The question is, can you equate it to a referendum on her? You can."

Finance solution in 30 days?

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers have less than a month to come up with a constitutional school funding plan, and Gov. Ann Richards says none of the options are good.

"I think (school district) consolidation is a very real possibility. That was one thing that we discussed," said Richards, who met behind closed doors Sunday with Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, House Speaker Pete Laney and leading lawmakers.

"We talked about caps on spending. That's one way in which you might approach satisfying the court," she said.

Texas faces a court-ordered cutoff of state aid to schools if lawmakers don't devise a constitutional plan to equalize school funding by June 1. Schools rely mainly on state aid and local property taxes.

Lawmakers said Sunday they didn't agree on a plan to pursue. And leaders said they wanted to hear suggestions from those who opposed Proposition 1, the ballot proposal that would have authorized the shifting of some property tax money from wealthier to poorer school districts.

Top leaders, including Richards, had pushed Proposition 1, which was rejected 63 percent to 37 percent. Voters also turned down related proposals that would have provided for bonds to help with school construction, and exempted school districts from future state mandates that aren't funded.

The Supreme Court repeatedly has told lawmakers to come up with a constitutional way of making similar money available to school districts with differing property wealth. That local wealth historically has created large disparities in how much money school districts can raise.

Regional property tax revenue-sharing currently takes place under a 1991 effort by lawmakers to meet the court's order for equalized school funding. But the Supreme Court said last year that system violated the constitution because it created a state property tax and lacked voter approval. Proposition 1 was an attempt to address that.

State leaders had said one option could be local elections to authorize the continued regional redistribution of some property tax money.
