Grand jury hands down 18 indictments

Indictments for burglary, forgery, auto theft, interference with child custody and driving while intoxicated were among 18 handed down Monday by a Scurry County grand jury.

Belinda Ellen Weir, 21, was indicted for interference with child custody. Weir, of 500 County Road 137, is charged with violating terms of custody by taking her two children and leaving the area on May 20. She is currently being held in the Charleston, La. County Jail, awaiting extradition. Bond has been set at $5,000.

Hubert Lafayette Newby, 27, of general delivery in Snyder was indicted for burglarizing a residence owned by Henry Nuncio on June 5. Bond was set at $5,000.

Thirty-five-year-old Johnny Morena Velasquez was indicted for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Velasquez, of 2808 Ave. X, is accused of stealing a BMW from Snyder Chrysler on May 27. Bond was set at $5,000.

Luther J.D. Smith, 24, of Rt. 3 Box 26 was indicted for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Smith is charged with stealing a 1973 Ford pickup from a lot owned by H.E. Lewis. Bond was set at $5,000.

Venancio Cerda Torres Jr., 31, of Rt. 3 Box 315 was indicted for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle and felony driving while intoxicated, offenses which allegedly occured on May 17. Bond for Torres was set at $5,000 on the auto theft charge and $2,000 on the DWI charge.

Ronald Wayle Cahoon, 25, of 3800 Noble Drive was indicted for an April 29 offense of burglary of a building. Cahoon is charged with breaking into Howard Gray Motors. Bond is set at $5,000.

Merle Ann Roberts was indicted for an April 24 offense of felony theft. She is charged with

Polls open 'til 7 in water election

Polls are open until 7 this evening for Scurry, Mitchell and Borden County residents wishing to vote in the underground water district election.

Voting is being held on the first floor of the Scurry County Courthouse and the Mitchell County and Borden County clerk's offices.

Two issues are on the ballot. One is to form the water district and establish a taxing authority for it; the other is to select a six-member board of directors.

If voters approve the water district, one director in each county will serve a two-year term and the others will serve four-year terms.

Seven men have filed for six places on the board. They are Tommy Marricle and Bill Eiland of Snyder, representing Scurry County; E.L. Farmer of O'Donnell and Ralph Miller of Fluvanna, representing Borden County; and Ray Ritchey, Robert David Stubblefield and Bruce Earl Rich, all of Colorado City, representing Mitchell County.

More than 600 people, including 511 Scurry County residents, cast ballots during the early voting period, which ended Friday.

White promoted; PDU to have new warden on Monday

Bob White, senior warden at the Price Daniel unit since last August, announced Monday afternoon that he will be moving to Beaumont to become warden of a new 2,000-bed state jail facility.

The promotion is effective immediately. On Monday, T.J. Medart of Tuila will assume duties as the third warden of the Daniel unit here.

For the past two years, Medart has been warden of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice 500-bed detention center in Tulia.

White, 47, learned of the promotion Monday. He became warden of the Daniel unit after Les Woods was promoted to senior warden of the 2,250-bed McConnell maximum security unit in Beeville.

BOB WHITE

The new state jail facility in Beaumont will be located adjacent to the 2,250-bed maximum security Stiles unit.

White, 47, is a 12-year veteran of the TDCJ. White moved to Snyder from Diboll where he was warden of the 500-bed detention center.

Before joining the state prison system, White was a special field investigator for the Veteran's Administration and worked out of Waco.

A graduate of Richfield High School in Waco, White served four years in the military and is a Vietnam veteran. He is a 1989 graduate of Sam Houston State University with a degree in criminology and corrections.

Warden White began working with the TDCJ as a correctional officer in June, 1982. He spent his first year at the Pack II unit in Navasota.

In June of 1984, White transferred to the training academy at Gatesville as a sergeant. At the training academy, White rose to the rank of captain and was then assigned to a woman's unit in Gatesville. In October of 1990, he was assigned as a private prison monitor in Cleveland.

White became warden of the Diboll Detention Center in June of 1992. White and his wife, Kathy, have three children — Lana, Jennifer and Stepehen.

Medart, 48, has been with the TDCJ for 11 years. A graduate of Howard Payne University, Medart first served as a chaplain for two years, starting at the Ramsey III unit in Rosharon.

He then worked in the classification department for two years before moving into health services for five years.

Medart was named facilities administrator at Tulia in June, 1992. He and his wife, Sandra, have two children. Candace, 22, is a recent graduate of West Texas A&M, and son Tommy, 26, works for the TDCJ at Ramsey III.

A native of Lometa in Lampasas County, Medart earned his degree from Howard Payne in 1978. He graduated from Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth in 1981. Medart pastored churches in Moran, Mineral Wells and First Baptist in Albany before becoming a TDCJ chaplain.

WTC trustees consider energy efficiency plan

Western Texas College trustees are considering a $676,000 package designed to replace or update key capital equipment while making the campus more energy efficient.

The plan, unveiled during a special board meeting Monday evening, is estimated to save the college $127,000 a year in energy and operational costs.

Representatives of Johnson Controls, Inc. outlined the proposal for trustees, who placed consideration of the plan on their June 13 agenda.

Basically, the major changes would include:

—Replacing one chiller and retrofitting the newer, primary chiller, including providing a direct digital control system;

—Replacing the existing campus-wide energy management system with a new computerized system;

—Updating lighting fixtures throughout the campus, where applicable, with more energy efficient lighting;

—Reducing exhaust flows throughout the campus, providing programmable thermostats in various areas and updating and replacing the fan system;

—Converting the kitchen appliances from electric to natural gas.

Johnson Controls will guarantee the college $61,000 annual savings in utility costs if the plan is instituted. Representatives of the firm called that figure "conservative" and said a savings of $76,000 is more realistic. Other savings can be realized in service contracts, operational and maintenance costs, they noted.

City signs off on TU request

Snyder City Council, on first reading Monday night, approved TU Electric's request for new strategic pricing in order to become more competitive in the marketplace.

The discussion of a new rate proposal filed Monday morning with the Public Utility Commission dominated the meeting which lasted just under two hours.

Approval came on a 5-1 vote with Ron Shaw casting the dissenting vote. Shaw had earlier made a motion to table the request for 30 days, but the motion failed to receive a second.

Shaw also chastised TU Manager Daryl Thomas by calling the request a "shell game." Shaw said the company "wants its cake and eat it too."

Shaw suggested that the company's loss of wholesale power customers is due to cost overruns related to the nuclear power plant at Commanche Peak, overruns which should not result in big bonuses for company executives, Shaw added.

Thomas said TU "has made every attempt and showed good faith in cutting costs. Just let us compete." Thomas added that "hindsight is always 20-20, but said that nuclear power will behent customers ultimately."

Mayor Paul Zeck said the proposal could have a positive impact on the company's efforts to maintain market share while having a

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Hard work may put you on easy street, but you'll soon learn there is no place to park"

This is the big month for brides. People who keep up with such things say more weddings occur in June than at any other time.

An auto repair shop in the metroplex has undertaken an innovative marketing approach. Swedish Auto Inc. of Farmers Branch has a suggestion of something to do while you wait for your car to be repaired.

The auto clinic's owner is offering a free marriage ceremony with any 30,000 mile inspection on Hondas, Volvos and BMWs.

The inspection costs $290, but he is throwing in a wedding ceremony in the front of the local justice of the peace. Estimated value is $25.

The car inspection does come with a warranty, but there is no guarantee on the life of the marriage. The cooperating justice of the peace is more optimistic that the car will break down but that the marriage will keep on humming.

The car shop owner stole the idea when he visited Las Vegas. Somebody there was offering a free wedding ceremony with the purchase of a deluxe helicopter ride.

If successful, the shop owner is thinking about providing one-size-fits-all tuxedoes and wedding dresses normally available for use at high-volume wedding chapels in Las Vegas.

But just in case, the owner is considering another promotional possibility. After four 30,000-mile inspections, the firm may offer a free uncontested divorce. Value is $100.

Stranger things have happened. We remember one Snyder wedding when the bride and groom said "I do" on an elevated car lift in a service bay over on West 25th St.

Sheriff Koog won't appeal

DEL RIO (AP) — A South Texas sheriff who challenged the federal Brady law has decided that he will not appeal a federal judge's ruling upholding the constitutionality of the legislation.

Val Verde County Sheriff J.R. Koog was among six law enforcement officers from around the country whose lawsuits sought to void the new federal law that requires local law enforcement to make background checks of prospective handgun buyers.

Koog's attorney, William Stroman, said Monday that opponents of the bill believe it will reach the U.S. Supreme Court on appeal from other jurisdictions.

The sheriff complained he was being made to enforce a federal law and was not being given the funds to do it. He said his staff was too small to handle the background checks.

U.S. District Judge Ed Prado of San Antonio last Wednesday ruled that the law does not require a background check "if circumstances dictate."

Mom's Bank Account Is Loser In Quest for Contest Winnings

DEAR ABBY: I just returned from visiting my mother in a small Midwestern town where the whole family gathered to celebrate her 85th birthday.

Mom is a lovely person, independent and full of fun, but she has one flaw — she's hooked on those mail sweepstakes. She's convinced that one day she is going to win big. Meanwhile, all she "wins" is a lot of cheap jewelry and coupon books, which she gives to her grandkids. Recently, for the money she spent trying to win a cheap TV, she could have bought a good one.

I keep telling her she is throwing her money away, but she still believes she'll win the sweepstakes.

One day she got a telephone call saying that her chances for winning a car were excellent if she put up $2,000. I called the local police, and they said they could do nothing unless my mother filed a complaint which, of course, she refused to do.

Meanwhile, Mom keeps writing checks for these contests she enters. She lives in an independent retirement home and has her own locked mailbox. The junk mail she gets is unbelievable! Mom has enough money to live comfortably but, at this rate, she'll end up in the poorhouse. How can I help her?

HER DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: If you really think your mother is out of control, you can help her by taking over her checkbook and putting her on an allowance. (Do it now while there's still something left to handle.) Ask your lawyer how to accomplish this without upsetting your mother.

However, if this is simply a harmless pleasure, leave your mother alone, no matter how much her behavior irritates you. Perhaps you can persuade her to budget a modest amount every month to play the contests.

DEAR ABBY: Please respond to the following: Recently we had a death in the family. Our relatives let it be known that money would be acceptable in lieu of flowers, contributions, Mass cards, etc.

I am appalled. Is money really appropriate?

FLORIDIAN

DEAR FLORIDIAN: Money is always appropriate and very much appreciated if the family is destitute and needs help to pay for the funeral.

DEAR READERS: Although Mother's Day has come and gone, may I share this letter with you:

MY DEAR ABBY: With Mother's Day approaching, I was reminded of that old ballad that recites a mother's many virtues, creating the acronym of "Mother." A few years ago, I rewrote the lyrics to describe the vision my stepdaughters apparently have of their mother:

M is for the many things she gave us,

O is for the other things we took.

N is for the nothing that we gave her,

E's 'cause she's an easygoing schnook.

Y is for the questions that she asked us,

Like: "Why won't you get up and look for work?"

Put them all together, they spell MOTHER:

A child-indulgent, masochistic jerk.

Abby, if you print this, please omit my name so as to avoid adding embarrassment at my hand to the anguish my wife has already suffered at theirs.

Fashion designer gets boost from Hillary

By DIANE SUSTENDAL
For The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Randy Kemper is an up-and-coming fashion designer whose journey toward stardom got a boost from First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton.

In business for only six years, Kemper showed his latest collection this spring in the tents at New York City's Bryant Park, the setting for the city's semi-annual fashion fair. His show, saluting women such as Amelia Earhart, Greta Garbo and Carole Lombard, marked Kemper's arrival as a serious player in big-time fashion.

The 33-year-old Kemper's style and technique are rooted in haute couture. His prices are not. He began his career in Paris assisting the legendary designer Givenchy for two years. Returning to the United States, he worked for a number of designers, including Bill Blass, before starting his own company in 1987.

He also has a realistic view of women's needs and budgets.

"I don't believe clothes have to cost a fortune to look great," says Kemper, whose suits, jackets and sportswear sell for $125-$450. "I think women want clothes that are tailored, elegant and sporty. They want things that are versatile, feminine, travel well, look professional and have longevity."

It was these qualities that originally led Mrs. Clinton to select some of Kemper's clothing to wear on the campaign trail. On Inauguration Day, she chose a Kemper suit for the swearing-in ceremony and continues to be a fan.

For his 1994-95 fall-winter collection, Kemper went fabric shopping in Europe last October. Working with swatches, he began sketching hundreds of ideas which he would edit down to 110 drawings to be put into production.

As the show grew closer, the pace accelerated. House models were used for the initial fittings. Accessories had to be commissioned. Hair and makeup artists were brought in. Invitations went out.

Final fittings were held just days before the show on the world-famous models who would appear on the runways. The line was edited down to 69 outfits. With the line-up set, the programs were printed overnight.

The morning of the show, nervous and sleep-deprived, Kemper watched as his collection was loaded into trucks, then unloaded backstage and placed on racks named for each model. Using Polaroids as a guide, dressers checked off accessories in bags attached to each outfit. Pressers steamed out wrinkles or steamed in creases. Hair and makeup artists were at the ready.

The models were the last to arrive.

"They only have about 15 minutes to get their hair and makeup done and get into their first outfit," Kemper said. "It's a miracle it gets done. Clothes are flying, stockings are going on and off. It's unbelievable, but it worked."

With arms wide open

By Phillip Alder

In his final broadcast from the Winter Olympics last February, Charles Kuralt asked, "How could a place so unfamiliar feel so much like home?" It is because the Norwegians are so friendly.

Bridge generates the same feelings. Almost wherever you go on the globe, you will find a bridge club. If you go in, you will be greeted warmly and made to feel welcome. It is perhaps the best aspect of the game.

Today's deal occurred in a country that competes with Norway in the friendliness stakes: New Zealand.

South opened with the so-called Multi, which usually hides a weak two-bid in hearts or spades, but the hand may be much stronger. The Multi enjoys considerable popularity in the tournament world outside North America. (Here its use is severely restricted.) North asked for extra information with two no-trump, and South showed a maximum weak two-bid in spades.

Declarer won West's heart lead with dummy's ace and cashed the two top trumps, finding out that East had a trick there. It seemed that South stood no chance now. But keeping an even demeanor, declarer played a heart to his king and led the spade jack. West wasn't going to break the second-hand-low rule of a lifetime. So dummy's club 10 disappeared. Then the club king went away on the spade ace: six diamonds bid and made.

After congratulating his partner, North observed: "I don't know what to say, partner. You opened and rebid the suit, I gave you nine-card support and still you had a trump loser."

A 10-minute microwave, 4 ingredient dish

By NANCY BYAL, Food Editor
For AP Special Features

Add cheese and peppers to microwave-cooked corn for a special side dish that tastes like oven-baked.

NACHO-CHEESE CORN

10-ounce package frozen whole kernel corn
1/2 of an 8-ounce container Cheddar-flavored cold-pack cheese food
2 tablespoons canned diced green chili peppers
Dash bottled hot pepper sauce

Place corn in a 11/2-quart microwave-safe casserole; add 2 tablespoons water. Cover and cook on 100 percent power (high) for 6 to 9 minutes or until nearly tender, stirring once.

Drain corn; stir in cheese, chili peppers and hot pepper sauce. Cook, covered, on high for 30 to 60 seconds more or until cheese is melted, stirring once. If desired, garnish with additional canned green chili peppers. Makes 4 side-dish servings.

Teams begin arriving for basketball tourney

Teams are expected to start arriving in Snyder today for tomorrow's opening round of the Girls Little Dribblers National Basketball Tournament.

Approximately 850 players from 8-16 years of age, representing 70 teams, including six from Snyder, will begin play Wednesday.

The tournament, which is expected to attract over 4,000 visitors, gets under way Wednesday with a slate of 34 games being played at four sites in town, Scurry County Coliseum, Snyder High School, Travis Gym and Western Texas College.

Players, coaches, sponsors and fans have jammed local motel rooms to capacity. Some teams have reserved rooms in Colorado City and Sweetwater.

Teams from as far away as Louisiana, Bryan, Kountze, near Houston, Georgetown and Pflugerville are expected for the tournament.

Other cities to be represented include Hobbs, N.M., Wilmer-Huthchins, Weatherford, Athens, Mesquite, Lamesa, Levelland, Plainview and Duncanville.

Also, teams from Hamshire-Fannett, Olton, Madisonville, Seminole, Mexia, Shallowater, Denver City, Littlefield, Teague, Muleshoe, Quitman, Brownsboro, Groesbeck and the Texas Gulf Coast are scheduled to play.

Opening ceremonies are scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday at the coliseum and will feature guest speaker Krista Kirkland Gerlich, former cage standout for the Texas Tech Lady Raiders, and currently the head girls' basketball coach at Lockney High School. A performance by the Snyder CUBS, a youth basketball drill team, is also slated for opening ceremonies.

Qualifying teams will play in two conferences, National and American, and three divisions, junior, major and senior.

Snyder has two teams in each division in the National Conference.

Local junior teams will begin play Wednesday. Snyder No. 1 will take on Lamesa No. 2 at 2:15 p.m. and Snyder No. 2 is slated to open against Athens at 4:45 p.m. Both games will be played at Travis Gym.

Snyder No. 1 will square off with Plainview at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in Major Division play, while Snyder No. 2 takes on Hobbs, N.M. in an 11:45 a.m. contest at the coliseum.

Senior action on opening day finds Snyder No. 1 battling Hobbs at 11:45 a.m. at WTC and Lamesa No. 2 facing Snyder's No. 2 team in a 3:30 p.m. game at the county coliseum.

The 128-game, four-day, double-elimination tourney will conclude Saturday with championship games in each division.

Admission for the national tourney is $2 for adults and $1 for kindergarten-age through children 12 years old on a per-game basis. Day passes, good for any game at any gym for one day, are available for $8 per person, and tournament passes cost $15 each.

LITTLE LEAGUE
White Sox 11, Cubs 0

Josh Ward fanned 10 in a no-hit shutout of the Cubs on Monday.

Ward, who drilled a single, was backed up by Martin Villareal's two doubles, a pair of hits from David Sutton, and a single apiece by Sterling Doty and Zack Rollins.

Cardinals 18, Astros 1

Winning pitcher Jerek Brown slapped a double and a single, and Johnny Alaniz doubled to lead the Cardinals past the Astros on Monday.

Duane Allred belted three hits, and Chris McLeod and Eric Perez each singled.

The Astros were limited to one hit, a Jason Williams two-sacker.

FARM LEAGUE
White Sox 15, Cubs 12

Jeremy Bradley ripped a triple and a single and Lyndell Lee hammered a base hit and a double to pace the White Sox in their Monday victory over the Cubs.

Zack Burns added an extra-base hit, and winning pitcher Bradley Bynum singled twice.

The Cubs' top hitters were Brandon Bolding, who tripled and singled, and Josh Hall, who rapped twin doubles. Patrick Vincent and losing pitcher Shawn Roemisch each banged two singles.

Cardinals 13, Astros 6

Jase Olvera tripled, Josh Mendoza doubled, and winning pitcher Michael Pendleton and Angel Vasquez each lifted a single and a double as the Cardinals beat the Astros Monday.

Rudy Martinez added two hits and Shay Franks and Jeremy Autry nailed a single apiece.

The Astros' seven-hit attack was paced by Michael Myrick's triple, two doubles from Ryan McKamie, a pair of Josh Gutierrez singles, and a hit each by Larry DeLaPaz and Patrick McKamie. Adam Lucero was tagged with the loss.

Yankees pound Rangers, 17-7

ARLINGTON (AP) — Seven RBIs. Two homers. A grand slam.

That should end Bernie Williams' slump.

Williams did all that and made a rally-ending catch in the fifth to help the New York Yankees beat the Texas Rangers 17-7 Monday night in a matchup of division leaders.

The big night by Williams allowed Jimmy Key (8-1) to win his seventh straight and move into a tie for the American League lead for victories despite two rocky innings.

More importantly for Williams, it may finally kick him into gear after struggling to a .220 start entering Monday's game.

"It's a great foundation. I've got something going now," Williams said. "But it's a struggle every day. This game can humiliate you in a second and then make you feel like a king."

Williams began his spree silently, walking during the three-run first and striking out to end the second as the Yankees built a 7-0 lead behind a three-run homer by Wade Boggs.

Then in the fourth, after Mike Stanley had driven in his third run of the game with a double, Williams hit an opposite field homer over the 14-foot fence in left to put New York ahead 10-0.

All Key had to do was throw strikes, which he had done in limiting the Rangers to two walks over the first three innings.

But one out into the fourth, Jose Canseco singled up the middle. Will Clark followed with a hit and both of them scored before Key could get out of the inning.

Canseco and Clark, who went a combined 19-for-28 over the weekend against Boston, each got hits and scored runs during the four-run fourth.

An error by Boggs helped Texas keep its rally going — until Williams again came to his team's rescue, running and stretching to grab a sinking looper by Rusty Greer for the final out of the inning.

The score remained 10-6 until the eighth when Williams struck again. His single to center drove in Paul O'Neill and began a three-run rally that gave the Yankees another huge lead.

Williams never should have batted in the ninth, but got the chance when reliever Darren Oliver couldn't get the last out of the inning. He walked two batters and hit another to load the bases, bringing up Williams.

He responded by sending on an 0-1 pitch over Greer's reach and into the right-field seats for was his eighth homer of the year, his second grand slam and the first grand slam at The Ballpark in Arlington.

Texas' hole was dug by starter Roger Pavlik (1-3), who gave up seven runs and got only three outs.

Despite watching his ERA balloon to 11.32, Pavlik insists he's not having any problems with the right shoulder that forced him to miss the first part of this season because of a partially torn rotator cuff.

Henry, Montreal hammer Houston

MONTREAL (AP) — Butch Henry has been getting a lot of support from the Montreal Expos this season. Against Houston, he got more than usual.

Henry, making a strong bid to become Montreal's fifth starter, improved to 3-0 on Monday night as the Expos pounded out 18 hits — including three home runs — and beat the Astros 10-5.

Moises Alou hit two homers and drove in a career-high five runs and Wil Cordero added a two-run homer for the Expos, who won their fifth straight and moved 11 games over .500 for the first time this season.

"Anytime you get a team that gets 18 hits, and plays defense behind you like the Expos have been playing you've got to be happy," said Henry, who the Expos had supported with 5.3 runs in his previous four starts since entering the rotation May 10.

"I enjoy playing for them," Henry said. "If it means starting, I'll take the ball every five days. If means going out of the bullpen, I'll do that."

Four others have auditioned for the fifth spot in the Expos' rotation, but Henry seems to be making the job his own.

The left-hander, who has made 11 relief appearances this season, allowed three runs and seven hits in six-plus innings — marking the fourth straight time Henry has gone at least five innings in a starting role.

"Ever since spring training he's been a good pitcher for us," Expos manager Felipe Alou said.

While Henry has been showing the stuff of a starter, the Expos have been showing some muscle.

The three home runs Monday night gave Montreal, which entered the game 13th in the NL with 37 homers, 10 in its last four games.

Moises Alou hit a two-run homer in the third inning off Greg Swindell (5-2), and added a three-run shot, his seventh, in the sixth off Tom Edens.

John Wetteland, who closed out a bases-loaded threat in the eighth, pitched the ninth for his eighth save.

"We had our chances to break it open," Astros manager Terry Collins said, "but we didn't get it done. I thought we had a couple of chances to knock him (Henry) out, but to his credit he made the pitches when he had to."

Larry Walker went 3-for-5 and hit his NL-leading 27th double for Montreal. Mike Lansing also went 3-for-5 for the Expos and scored twice.

Tony Eusebeo and Ken Caminiti each had three hits and two RBIs for Houston.

Swindell was pounded for five runs and 11 hits in 2 2-3 innings, his shortest outing this season. He had worked at least six innings in each of his previous 11 starts.

Silent crosses 'speak' loudly

By Walter R. Mears
AP Special Correspondent

COLLEVILLE-SUR-MER, France (AP) — On the burial ground above Omaha Beach, the rhetoric seemed redundant, no words so eloquent as the silent formation of soldiers, dead these 50 years.

AP analysis

But words there were, on the long anniversary of the longest day, D-Day, the Sixth of June. Words of mourning and rejoicing, remembrance of the dead and celebration of their victory.

Words about words.

"Now we come to this hallowed place that speaks, more than anything else, in silence," President Clinton said Monday at the American Cemetery at Colleville, where, this day only, the living outnumbered the dead.

There are 9,386 American servicemen buried on the Normandy bluff; 14,000 more were here when World War II ended, but they were exhumed and reburied at home as their families wished. The white crosses and Stars of David are spread across a 172-acre memorial, hard by the beach won in the fiercest, costliest fighting the day Americans came ashore in 1944.

"Here on this quiet plateau, on this small piece of American soil, we honor those who gave their lives for us 50 crowded years ago," Clinton said.

Another summer's day, he said, the beaches of Normandy would echo the sounds of laughing children, of a distant church bell, "peaceful silence, ordinary silence."

But not on D-Day, and not on the anniversary. The ceremonies came one upon another — Clinton, the French, the British, and a dozen more allies marking the day, all along the invasion coast.

The memorial speeches, parades, reviews, roaring jet formations, the helicopters coming and going with the mighty, are ended now. Colleville belongs to the truly silent, the white ranks of the grave markers.

D-Day plus 50, and the American observance at Colleville, were the third and climactic commemoration in Clinton's week-long journey of remembrance. At three American military cemeteries in Europe, this least military of presidents offered tributes and salutes, braced at attention as honors were rendered.

Clinton is the first president to be born after World War II, the first to have gained the White House since that war with no military service. It was a question he faced as a candidate, but he won anyhow. It still is, and he faced it again as he sailed across the English Channel on the way to Normandy.

The first of the three memorials was in Italy, and it was at least a bit awkward, in a nation that was a foe for two of the World War II years. Italy surrendered in 1943, as the Allies invaded.

Italian President Oscar Luigi Scalfaro referred obliquely to the early years of the war, "the tragic division of my own country ...."

At the American cemetery at Nettuno, close by the Anzio beachhead, jet formations roared past, the Italian planes trailing exhaust in the national colors of red, white and green.

Clinton said the ceremonies had drawn attention to an Italian campaign too long forgotten, although George Bush went to Nettuno five years ago for a Memorial Day observance, American only.

At Cambridge, near London, the D-Day memorial was a time of nostalgia. An Air Force dance band played Glenn Miller arrangements, especially fitting by the American memorial where the bandleader's name is inscribed among the missing, lost on a holiday season flight to France late in 1944.

For a while before Clinton got there, it became a sing-along, aging comrades in arms joining voices in the favorites. "I'll be seeing you in all the old familiar places, that this heart of mine em-

Clinton urges Europeans to pull together

PARIS (AP) — In a rare address to the French National Assembly, President Clinton today urged Europeans to pull together against anti-democratic trends, saying the post-Cold-War challenge is "to unite our people when they do not feel themselves in imminent peril."

Once such place is Bosnia, Clinton noted in the first address by a U.S. president to French lawmakers in 75 years.

"All of us want to bring an end to the fighting," Clinton said. "It is a mighty challenge...It will require resources. It will take years, even decades."

But, Clinton cautioned, "We must be patient, we must understand that we do not have control over events in every nation. But we have made progress in Bosnia...We can do this if we stay together and work together."

Clinton was greeted with warm applause when he stepped to the lectern. He was the first president since Woodrow Wilson to address the Assembly.

Clinton said the United States and Europe failed after World War I to build a secure trans-Atlantic partnership on the strength of victory, allowing conditions to ripen for Nazi domination of Europe.

He said Western allies did a better job in rallying together against the Cold War threat after the end of World War II. Clinton addressed the lawmakers a day after he celebrated D-Day on the beaches of Normandy.

"Now, we have arrived in this century's third moment of decision," Clinton said.

While the Cold War has evaporated, there is a "cancerous presence eating away at states" in the form of "purposeless slaughter in Bosnia," the rise of skin-heads, anti-Semitism and other hatreds, he said.

This has left people across Europe "addicted to the political painkillers," Clinton said. He said the nations of Europe have chosen democracy and must stay on that path.

Rostenkowski's replacement moves swiftly on health care

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cigarette smokers and big corporations would feel less of a bite under a health reform proposal stitched together by the House Ways and Means Committee's new leader.

But the government would force every employer to buy health insurance and take a cut of the premiums for workers already covered under a spouse's health plan.

The blueprint, unveiled Monday by committee staff while Acting Chairman Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., was in France marking the 50th anniversary of D-Day, builds on an earlier subcommittee plan to open Medicare up to the poor and others without private insurance.

But the subcommittee's cigarette tax increase was radically scaled back and its 1 percent payroll tax on big corporations discarded.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., had been saying before a criminal indictment forced him to step down as chairman last week that there was no "health fairy" and an across-the-board tax increase would be needed to bankroll universal coverage.

But Gibbons apparently found a genie in the form of rosier estimates from the Congressional Budget Office about what benefits would cost and how much restraints on spending could save. No official figures were released.

First arrests made under tougher law

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Five anti-abortion demonstrators who shackled themselves to cars and a concrete-filled drum were charged with blocking access to a clinic in the first use of a tough new federal law.

"This isn't just a legal issue," U.S. Attorney Thomas P. Schneider said. "There were real patients who were prevented from getting reproductive health care. There were real doctors who were prevented from treating patients."

The protesters used handcuffs and chains to link themselves to two autos and a 55-gallon steel drum outside the Affiliated Medical Services clinic on Saturday. The clinic was closed for 90 minutes while police and firefighters pried them loose.

The charges filed Monday were the first under the law signed May 26 by President Clinton, Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern said in Washington.

The law prohibits protesters from blocking access to abortion clinics or intimidating patients and employees.

A first offense carries up to six months in prison and a $10,000 fine. Repeated violations can bring life sentences and fines of up to $250,000.

Anti-abortion activists say the law interferes with free speech, and some have gone to court to block it. Those arrested outside the Milwaukee clinic said they wanted to be the first to break it.

Charged were Michael Charles Suhy, 20, of Canton, Mich.; Marilyn Ruth Hatch, 43, of Seattle; and Dale Robin Pultz, 32, James Daniel Soderna, 31, and Colin Lester Hudson, 55, all of Milwaukee. A juvenile also was arrested but won't be charged, authorities said.

Trustees were told that some of the equipment, such as the chiller and kitchen appliances, are in excess of 20 years old and will need replacing soon. Leeon Pettitt, director of the physical plant, also advised trustees that the college is facing major costs associated with its chillers due to EPA regulations which go into effect in 1995 involving freon.

After discussion, the board voted 6-1 to consider a contract with Johnson Controls in the June 13 meeting. Voting against consideration of a contract was Bill Wilson Jr.

If the board approves a contract next Monday, it will also consider how to pay for the improvements. One option would be a 10-year payout plan through Johnson Controls. However, trustees noted the college could save $26,000 annually in interest by other methods. Although no consensus was reached Monday, most trustees seemed to favor a method of using existing funds and paying back those funds over a period of five to 10 years.

Existing funds are available in the college fund balance which contains $1.9 million. More probable, trustees reasoned, would be to take half of the funds from the fund balance and half from the scholarship fund. The funds would be reimbursed, with interest, by allocating a pay-out amount in each annual budget.

minimum affect on local customers.

Jerry Webb made the motion to approve the ordinance on first reading, citing "no harm" done to residential customers. The benefit, Thomas said, would be to allow the company to negotiate with commercial customers to either retain business or to attract new business. Thomas described the proposal as a tool for economic development. He also emphasized that it was not a rate increase.

Shaw argued that reducing rates for a new business would be unfair to an existing business, possibly driving them out of business. Thomas countered that such a business could too qualify for the lower rates if they were being forced to cease operations.

Thomas noted that nine other electric utilities in the state have similar rate structures. "This puts a town like Snyder on more even footing," Thomas said.

In other business, the council heard a protest of a high water bill, approved the purchase of water meters and gave city staff authority to seek bids for a compaction tractor to be used at the city landfill.

The council also had a 24-minute executive session to consider possible litigation against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. The council then recovened in open session and took no action.

The council was presented a letter from resident Mike D. Williamson who complained that his April water bill jumped from the average of $9.85 to $250.75.

Carolyn House, director of customer services, said Williamson initially acknowledged a leak. After the bill complaint was received, the meter was pulled and tested at the city's expense and the test revealed that the meter was working properly.

The council agreed that water passing through the meter is its only basis for billing, but that Williamson should be offered the opportunity to pay the bill over a 12-month period.

Mayor Zeck called the situation "unfortunate" but noted that 115,000 gallons could easly run into the sewer system without being detected.

The city accepted the low bid of $9,934 from Western Industrial for the purcase of water meters. Other bids were received from Western Industrial of Odessa and from O'Tool Plastic Pipe of Lubbock.

Joe Fogle, new sanitary landfill superintendent, recommended that the city seek bids for a compaction tractor. Estimated cost is $200,000.

Fogle said the cost of developing and operating a landfill according to state and federal mandates would make the purchase cost-effective.

Fogle cited decreased maintenance compared to the dozer currently being used. Also, Fogle said, a predicted 30 percent increase in compaction would extend the life of a cell costing $600,000 each by a minimum of 3.5 months.

Prior to the start of the meeting, retiring mayor pro-tem Mike Post was presented a plaque of appreciation for his service to the city.

Zeck presided at the meeting and council members present were Shaw, Webb, Kenny Gambrell, I.E. Martin, Vernest Tippens and Dayton Robertson.

Police worked a two-vehicle accident at noon Monday in the 1800 block of 25th Street. Involved were a 1983 Oldsmobile driven by Pauline Trejo Lung of 810 17th St. and a 1983 Oldsmobile driven by Brenda Wilson Gentry of 2904 E. Highway 180.

Officers investigated another two-vehicle accident at 1:50 p.m. Monday in the 2000 block of U.S. Highway 180. Involved were a 1981 Chevrolet pickup driven by Nelson Byars Carthel of Odessa and a 1992 Buick driven by Ann Nelson Peace of Austin.

Keeping an eye on Texas

Texans served and died in World War II

June 6 marks the 50th anniversary of the landing of Allied forces on the beaches of Normandy, France, to drive the Nazi army back into Germany. U.S. General Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was born in the North Texas town of Denison, directed the Allied invasion. Of the 16.5 million U.S. troops who served in World War II, about 1.5 million men were trained for military service on Texas bases, while 21 prisoner-of-war camps were located in the state. Of the 830,000 men and 12,200 women from Texas who served in the war, more than 14,000 were killed in battle.

braces, all day through."

They sang in the cemetery, but somehow, it fit.

"For a while," said Prime Minister John Major, "every 30th person in Britain was an American serviceman."

"The British gave our troops the feeling that they were not so far from home, after all," Clinton said.

And then, finally, to Normandy, to places won with American blood — Utah Beach and Pointe du Hoc and Omaha, and the white rows of Colleville.

The tributes were apt. "We're not here to celebrate or to glorify battle," said Walter Cronkite, who was a war correspondent on a glider on D-Day and a featured speaker at the memorial. "Our purpose is to remember."

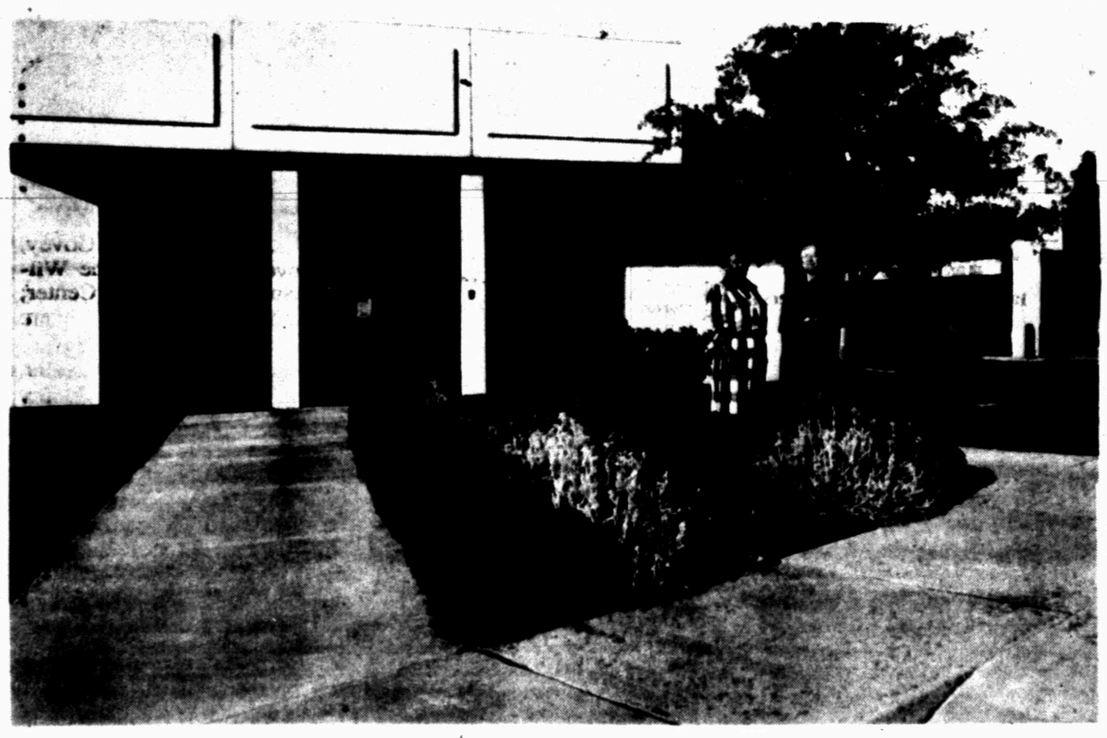

So it was on the 50th anniversary of history's greatest invasion:

Soon, again, the eloquent silence.

Supreme Court's decision could imperil drug tax law

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas law officials say is crucial to forcing drug dealers to forfeit their assets could be in jeopardy after the U.S. Supreme Court invalidated a similar law in Montana.

The Texas law requires citizens to buy drug stamps for any illegal narcotics they possess. Anyone caught with controlled substances without the government stamp affixed then could face criminal tax evasion charges and civil penalties.

In a 5-4 decision Monday, the court said the Montana law violated the right against double jeopardy, which protects citizens from being punished twice for the same offense.

The high court's ruling could mean parts or all of the Texas law, which went into effect Sept. 1, 1989, are unconstitutional. The decision also could invalidate similar laws in 26 other states.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales will research the ruling over the next few days to determine if it also applies to the state law, spokesman Ron Dusek said.

The author of the 1989 Texas law, state Rep. Billy Clemons, D-Pollok, criticized the decision: "It's just another example of the Supreme Court protecting the rights of the criminal at society's expense."

Texas' forfeiture law allows the state to seize assets obtained through proceeds from illegal activities, such as drug dealing. Eighty percent of those assets are given to local law enforcement agencies for use in drug interdiction, with the remaining 20 percent going to the state.

Under the forfeiture law, the state can immediately freeze only the assets seized at the time of an arrest. The drug tax law, however, allows the state to immediately freeze other personal holdings, such as bank accounts, Dusek said.

Andy Welch, spokesman for the state comptroller, said 5,889 civil tax lien cases have been referred to the state from Sept. 1, 1989, to the end of last month. The state has collected $1.3 million in cash and other assets as a result.

It was not known Monday how many criminal tax evasion cases have been filed under the law since 1989.

Brooks County in the Rio Grande Valley leads all counties by referring 1,073 of the tax lien cases, followed by Tarrant County at 722 and Travis County at 633.

Bell County District Attorney Cappy Eads, past president of the Texas District and County Attorneys Association, said the potential effect of losing the law would hurt urban law enforcement the hardest.

"I don't know if it will be a tremendous blow to us in the rural areas, although we hate to have any tool taken from us," he said. "I think the effects will be felt most in the metro areas because they have larger caches of drug seizures."

The state has sold 3,112 stamps at a total cost of $14,425 through May 31, Welch said. The fees for the stamps are: $3.50 per gram of marijuana; $200 per gram on a controlled substance sold by weight; or $2,000 for 50 units of a controlled substance sold by dosage.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, June 8, 1994

Your chart shows you could develop greater proficiency in the year ahead where your work or career is concerned. Situations might later develop offering rewards and advancement for competency.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you hope to accomplish today might be beyond your scope, because there's a probability you will compound problems by doing things the hard way. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Usually when things go awry, you're capable of mending what occurs. Today, however, negative developments might occur too fast for you to take them in stride.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will be judged today by the company you keep. If someone in your clique does something he or she shouldn't, everyone involved could look bad.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you might discover that you've made a decision that doesn't really serve your best interests. If this is true, don't be afraid to admit your mistake and start anew.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Deviating from your original blueprint could get you off course today, and you might have to go back and do over everything you did previously.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even you have your limitations, so don't try to do something for another today that you aren't able to handle. No one can be an expert in all areas.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It might prove wiser to make minor concessions today in order to appease your mate rather than take a rigid position that will intensify existing opposition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Unless you have something nice to say about others today, it's best to keep your thoughts to yourself. You will be identified as the author of any criticism you generate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be a prudent shopper today. Forgo making impulsive purchases, which could later lead to buyer's remorse when you discover you bought something you'll never use.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you spend too much time today dwelling on what might go wrong, you could lose your initiative and incentive, and accomplish nothing. Sometimes it's necessary to take a chance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to let an unpleasant past experience between you and an associate affect the way you treat this person today. You need this individual more than he or she needs you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be equally as generous with friends now who have treated you graciously in the past. They might not be there when you need them a second time, if you fail to be kind now.

USDA seeks healthier school lunch program

WASHINGTON (AP) — School cafeterias would have four years to switch to leaner and healthier menus under rules about to be announced by the Agriculture Department.

A proposal to overhaul the school lunch program, requiring its meals to follow the government's own guidelines for proper nutrition, is to be announced Wednesday. But the deadline for compliance won't be until the 1998-1999 school year, a USDA official said Monday.

That means that a youngster entering the ninth grade next fall will graduate from high school with the current standard cafeteria fare, found to provide up to 38 percent of its calories from fat.

That's too long, said the consumer group Public Voice, which contended it shouldn't take more than a year for schools to begin serving meals that get no more than 30 percent of their calories from fat.

"If that's the case, then we think that that's unfortunate," said Tricia Obester, spokeswoman for the consumer group, which has long advocated an overhaul of the school lunch program.

Public Voice was headed until last year by Ellen Haas, the assistant secretary of agriculture who is to announce the changes.

Kevin Dando, a spokesman for the American School Food Service Association, said the lengthy deadline "will help those schools that aren't as far along as they should be to meet these regulations."

The government's nutritional guidelines say people should get no more than 30 percent of their total daily calories from fat, and no more than 10 percent from saturated fat, the bad kind that can clog arteries and cause heart attacks.

In order to serve leaner meals, schools would no longer be bound by the current system of "meal patterns," requiring that all school lunches offer students one serving of meat or a meat alternative, two of fruit or vegetables, one of bread or grain, and milk.

Sears to shut down Dallas-area centers

DALLAS (AP) — Sears, Roebuck & Co. will close its national parts distribution centers in the Dallas area and will instead receive parts directly from about 1,500 suppliers.

Chicago-based Sears is the nation's largest repair service provider, with 14,000 technicians. Most of those parts are dispatched from the company's national distribution and parts rebuilding centers in Garland.

Sears spokesman Bob McHenry said 96 full-time jobs and 130 part-time jobs will be eliminated when the Garland centers are closed.

Sears said it has no plans for its 142,000-square-foot warehouse in Garland. It's expected to be phased out by early next year as the inventory is used or sent back to suppliers, McHenry said.

The move is one of several announced in the past 18 months to cut costs and simplify Sears' structure, allowing it to concentrate on its department stores.

Sears also has sold its national personal computer service center in Dallas to Service Electronics Inc. of New Jersey. The center had been Sears' parts and customer service center for consumers who purchase computers from Sears. Service Electronics takes over Aug. 1, McHenry said.

He didn't know now many employees worked at the PC customer service center or whether the new owners planned to leave it in Dallas.

Bladder infection needs attention

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a great-grandma, 78 years young. I get periodic bladder infections with some bleeding treated with sulfa tablets. This helps for a month or two, but the condition returns. Should I pursue this further?

DEAR READER: Yes, you should.

Repeated bladder infections are dangerous in women of any age, because of the possibility that the bacteria could spread from the bladder into the kidneys, causing severe and permanent damage.

Also, these infections are annoying and expensive to treat. Further, I feel that you may be developing a chronic urinary infection that is never really eradicated; the bacteria may always be present but cause symptoms only in cycles, when the germs are present in large concentrations.

As you may know, the loss of female hormone (estrogen) during menopause leads to many anatomical changes in both the reproductive tract (dryness and shrinkage) and the urethra (the tube leading from the bladder).

The end result for many older women may be an increased susceptibility to urinary infections, which can be extremely difficult to treat without the use of prescription estrogen cream applied daily to the vaginal opening. Thus, if this is your problem, you will need guidance by a gynecologist or your family physician.

Also, you should have a urine culture performed at a time when you're free of symptoms, to rule out a chronic infection. Finally, you need a urine culture when you are having symptoms, to determine (through laboratory testing) which antibiotic is the most effective therapy.

In my view, your own doctor should address these issues, using gynecological or urological consultants, if necessary.

To give you more information, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Menopause" and "Bladder and Urinary Tract Infections." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 for each report plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please give me the name of a dependable laxative that contains a stool softener. Malnutrition left me with severe constipation and the straining has now caused hemorrhoids.

DEAR READER: There are many effective laxative/stool softener medications available. One of the most dependable is Peri-Colace (or its generic equivalent).

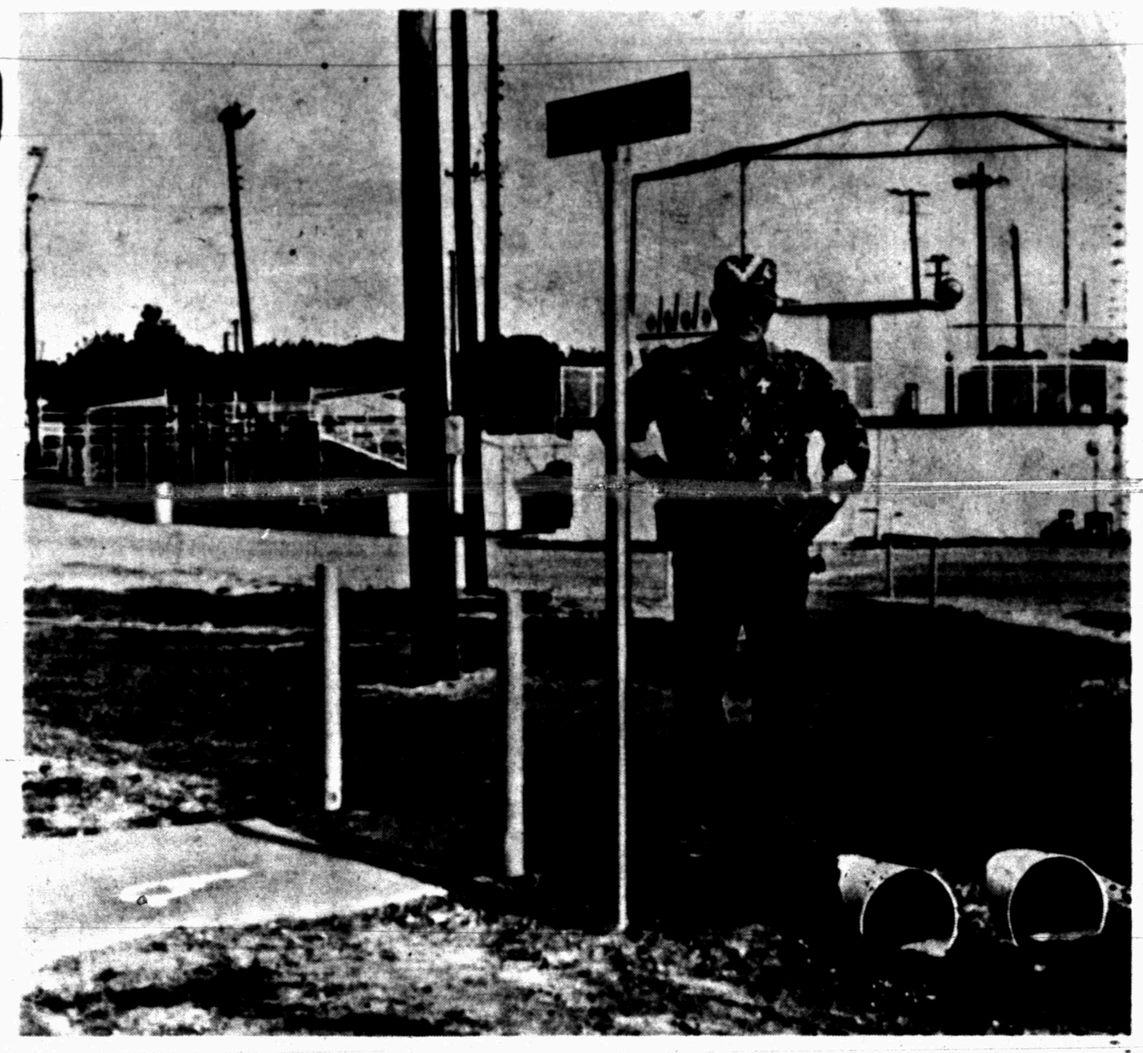

However, rather than relying on medicine, you might be helped by eating more bran, fiber, prunes, and apricots. Such a natural program often solves the constipation problem.

Binge drinking said rampant on college campuses in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's college campuses are inundated with an epidemic of binge drinking, fueled in part by growing numbers of women just as eager as men to get plastered, a private commission said today.

The panel urged colleges to stop accepting binge drinking as "a harmless rite of passage" and attack it as a problem causing most of the violent crime on campuses and many academic woes as well.

The problem is no longer restricted to Saturday nights, said the Rev. Edward A. Malloy, president of the University of Notre Dame and chairman of the Commission on Substance Abuse at Colleges and Universities.

Many students are "drinking every day or three or four times a week instead of just on the weekends," said Malloy.

He said the problem is acute in fraternities and sororities, where students down three times as much beer and booze as their peers.

The panel cited this "startling" statistic: the percentage of college women who drink to get drunk has more than tripled in the past 15 years, from 10 percent to 35 percent.

Sixty percent of college women who acquire sexually transmitted diseases, including herpes and AIDS, were drunk at the time of infection, said the panel, which completed a two-year study under the auspices of the Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University.

"Drinking alcohol has long been a part of the college experience," from tailgate parties outside football stadiums to BYOB mixers, the commission noted in its report. It is "too often accepted as a 'rite of passage,' thus nurturing a behavior that is destroying lives and endangering our country's future."

Malloy, Penn State football coach Joe Paterno, Sens. Nancy L. Kassebaum, R-Kan., and Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., and the other commissioners appealed to colleges to change the culture that encourages students to go on a bender.

Among its findings from surveys and other studies:

—Ninety percent of campus rapes occur when either the assailant, the victim or both used alcohol.

—At least one out of five college students abandons safe sex practices when drunk.

—The average college student imbibes 34 gallons of beer, wine or liquor a year.

—The $5.5 billion that students spend on alcohol each year exceeds what they spend on all other beverages and their books combined.

—Forty-two percent of students reported binge drinking (five or more drinks at a sitting) in the last two weeks.

—White men drink far more than any other group, averaging nine-plus drinks a week, twice the rate of white women. Black men consume 3.6 drinks per week and black women only one drink per week.

—Students living in fraternities and sororities consume 15 drinks a week, three times as much as other students.

—Students in private colleges and universities tended to binge drink more than those at public institutions. The survey did not identify any schools by name.

—Students at colleges in the Northeast average seven drinks per week, compared with fewer than three drinks for students in the West.

—One student in 12 has at least 16 drinks a week.

The 98-page report urged colleges to offer prevention and treatment programs, with special education efforts aimed at freshmen, and to ban alcohol advertising and promotion on campus and offer nonalcoholic beverages at all campus events.

Exhibit traces various changes in nation's favorite instrument

WASHINGTON (AP) — There would have been no Spanish flamencos, no cowboys strumming folk songs around a fire and no groovy '60s riffs — but for the guitar.

It's that hollow invention whose twang carried over prairie and mountains and whose signature sound accentuated the blues, changed jazz and shook out rock 'n' roll.

Popular music owes a debt to this most humble of stringed instruments and you need only head to the National Museum of American History to pay your respects.

A new exhibit, "Guitars in American Popular Music," opens today and showcases more than a dozen of the guitars in the collection. The exhibit illustrates the changes that saw the guitar to its present state and charts the past 100 years of America's love affair with the instrument.

There are folk, acoustic and electric guitars. There is a resonator guitar, a cigar box guitar, a plastic guitar and a double-necked harp-guitar.

Exhibit curator Bill Yardley called the guitar "one of those rare trends that caught on and stuck."

"The guitar was embraced by popular culture," he said. "It struck a common chord in this country. And in the end ... these things are still here in our culture."

Introduced to this continent by Spanish settlers in the 1600s, the guitar gradually became the mainstay of American grassroots music.

Guitars evolved greatly in the past 100 years, although the basic shape has changed surprisingly little. But as the need grew for louder sound, the size and other elements changed.

A turn-of-the-century Dobro resonator guitar had a patented silver loud speaker built into the face. Another guitar, the Stromberg, was the largest ever made, and was intended to match the loudness of the big band instruments it was played with.

For folk-lovers, there is a U.S.-made, double-necked Martin harp-guitar that belonged to musician Libba Cotten.

But it was the development of the electric guitar that revolutionized the instrument, and in turn, the sound of music.

And because of that Yardley says the exhibit's biggest draw may be Prince's "Yellow Cloud" solid body electric guitar.

Police call trio's death an apparent homicide-suicide

ARLINGTON (AP) — Police say they believe an Arlington man prepared for an apparent double homicide-suicide before killing himself, his wife and his 9-year-old daughter.

The victims were identified as Richard D. Moore, 54; Sherrye L. Moore, 43; and their daughter, Lisa L. Moore.

Authorities made the grim discovery about 8 a.m. Monday at the family's home in a well-established, close-knit north Arlington neighborhood.

"We've really just begun the investigation," said Arlington police spokesman Dee Anderson. "All of our speculation at this point is going to lead toward a double homicide and an apparent suicide."

Moore's son contacted police shortly before 8 a.m. after his father did not show up for work at a sheet metal factory in Dallas, authorities said.

The son became suspicious when he found some papers at work indicating the business was about to be turned over to him.

Police believe Richard Moore did the shooting, and apparently left some documents at the office and at home indicating his plans.
