CHARGES OF 'JURY TAMPERING' BRING HALT TO SINCLAIR TRIAL

NEW EVIDENCE BRINGS CLAMOR FOR MISTRIAL

SEARCH OF DETECTIVES' QUARTERS UNEARHS FRESH SENSATION

JURORS SHADOWED

DEFENDANT KEPT CLOSE WATCH ON 11 OF THE JURORS IS CHARGE

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial came to a dramatic halt today while a grand jury began investigating charges of jury tampering, which furnished sensations rivaling those when the oil scandal first broke in the senate.

This inquiry was predicated largely upon information obtained by government agents in a night raid on an apartment in the fashionable Wardman Park Hotel, occupied by operatives of the Burns Detective Agency of New York City.

In bringing the trial to a halt, it is not alleged that any new evidence was discovered, but that the search of the quarters of the defendants in which were found affidavits to which were named Harry F. Sinclair, owner of Teapot Dome, and one of the defendants in the trial, A. M. Dawson, vice president of the Sinclair Refining Company, and Woodward, president of the Standard Oil Company, and other defendants.

Affidavits claimed that the defendants were in chambers in the Burns Agency and that the defendants were in the hands of the legal staff last night, and that the defendants were in the hands of the legal staff last night, and that the defendants were in the hands of the legal staff last night.

NEW MOVE TO OUST MILLIKIN "SANE" TALLEY REPORTED

(By Associated Press) DALLAS, Nov. 1.—A new move to oust L. P. Talley as governor of the Eleventh Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas was announced here today by Myron A. Pease, of Corpus Christi, appointed spokesman for the West Texas bankers dissatisfied with the bank's policy regarding loans to member banks. They would elect new directors to the board the latter part of November, Pease said.

"It is our purpose," he stated, "to elect Morgan Graves, Clarksville, vice director and A. Baker Dunlap, of Waco, as class B director. If elected they will succeed Joe Frost of San Antonio and Frank Kell, of Wichita Falls."

Pease said he believed that the two mentioned, if elected, might with the aid of the other directors effect a change in the office of governor by January.

None of the bankers in the fight doubts the integrity of Governor Talley, Pease said. "They believe that his ideas of the duties of the governor of the federal reserve bank are at variance with the ideas of the vast majority of bankers in the district, and that he does not understand the problems of the country," he said.

Governor Talley could not be reached, having left Sunday for Washington to attend a meeting of reserve bank governors.

The Woman's Day

By Allena Sumner

The big black trunkful of letters left by the late colorful dancer, Isadora Duncan, furnished a text for many self-contained souls who warn one to be careful about writing letters and "never say on paper anything you wouldn't be willing to have anyone read anywhere at any time." The big black trunk is worrying many in Europe's high perches because many sitters in said perches fear their letters may be among those present.

THE DAILY LINE

We have all, "us woman," attempted to keep diaries at some time or other in our careers. But after the first week or so we forget the little book. Even if we keep it up pretty faithfully for a while we suddenly get panicky for fear we might suddenly be struck by lightning or something and somebody see our naked soul, so we burn them.

Which is why the achievement of Mrs. J. T. Johnson of Texas who hasn't missed a day in her diary for 41 years seems especially noteworthy. One wonders, though, just how interesting a life can be in itself if one has time to transcribe the life to a diary so conscientiously. Maybe the diary is the life.

RAGING HUSBANDS

Once upon a time husbands flew into terrible rages if "other men" gazed upon their wives. Nowadays it seems to make them mad if they don't. Mr. Keller of Washington D. C. is one of the latter. Mr. Keller, you may recall, is the husband of Mrs. Ida Keller whose several inches above her knees skirt made a passing policeman suggest that if she'd pull it down she wouldn't be so annoyed by passing stares of strange males. Both the Mr. and Mrs. got mad, asked if any law was being broken, told the policeman to mind his business, and Mr. Keller said he was glad his wife was so attractive men enjoyed looking at her.

DIVORCE COST

The cost of divorces cannot be deducted as necessary business expenses from an income tax. That's what Uncle Sam told a certain New York man who tried to deduct his income tax return. The man's argument was that his marriage was endangering his business success and that the divorce, therefore, was a "necessary" business expenditure. Well, furnish given to justify other income tax deductions.

"SHE'LL GET MARRIED!"

The average business girl works three years before she marries. This statement was made at a recent business convention. This is the argument which employers all-ways give when fixing low salaries for girl employes. "She'll be married in a few months," they say, "and we'll have to break in a new one."

Cups To Be Awarded In City Schools On Display

Scholarship and English cups that are to be placed in the city schools by the Junior high school P-T-A. went on display at City Drug store No. 2 last evening. It has been announced by Mrs. Chas. F. O'Neill, a member of the committee which has secured the cups.

Seven scholarship and two English cups have been donated and will become permanent properties of the city schools this year, Mrs. O'Neill said. The names of boys and girls, the numbers to be awarded upon, will be engraved on the sides of the prizes each year as long as there is room, she explained. It is thought probable that the names of three boys and three girls from each school, who have made the highest general averages, will be engraved there each year.

The English cups go to boys and girls who read a prescribed list of books and submit written reports, the list to be available by the end of this month, Mrs. O'Neill said. These cups were placed in the Senior and Junior high schools by W. L. Ellwood.

Here Are Yokes No Feminist Should Object To Wearing Hip-lines Are Chic—They Flatter, Real Or Simulated

BY HENRI BENDEL For NEA Service. NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Now that the flowing silhouette has established its supremacy over the flat, uninteresting straight and slim, the style emphasis shifts. Three points of chic determine just how superior a gown is, now, today—the belt-line, the neckline and the manner of achieving fullness.

Whether Milady shops, tea, dinner or dances—she is apt to wear a gown with a smart hip-yoke. Suits are introducing them, daytime dresses elaborate them, and evening gowns glorify them. Two Yokes Instead of One! I show today a little suit that makes doubly sure of its yoke. The material is one of the soft novelty homespun, in browns that express nature itself, with one dash of deep woodland green. The blouse, with its unusual neckline that forms a flat jabot, is of silk in the wood and green. The skirt has a fitted yoke that fits to points on each hip. To further emphasize the yoke, the deep box pleats in front are attached down for four inches in line with the yoke. The back is plain from the yoke down. The jacket of this suit is bold, with its edges dipping to points, and it is fastened in front with a rickety little buckle. The tendency to use boleros with hip yokes is very new and is important because they bring the hip yokes into prominence as hip length coats never do. The evening gown of shell pink, with which I show today achieves its hip yoke effect by a broad, shaped grille which snugly outlines the figure and, lying in a chic knot in the front, contributes its circular ends for the front flare. The front fullness is gathered up under the hem; in the "baram style" that corresponds to the swathed hip-line. This gown slenderizes the figure with its swift lines and its semi-circular front width which allows freedom of movement but retains the somewhat straight silhouette. The décolletage is just nicely rounded in front and dips to a deep U in the rear. Georgeously rich and graceful is the third gown today which merely simulates the hip-yoke as a gesture to fashion. Nile green and silver brocade fashions this gown royally, with rippling strands of brilliant flowing from the center big buckles of brilliants. Five such strands of brilliant outline a tight hip-line while as many more fall from the center front to simulate drapes. The uneven, flared hem-line furthers the illusion of much fullness in this charming gown. This once by hip-lines it is true, but they must be complimentary lines or they fail to achieve their purpose.

AERIAL DEFENSE PERFECTED BY FREELAND

"It looks like a hard battle with a short hand," Coach Edwin Y. Freeland said yesterday afternoon at the Matador field during the regular daily routine of workouts.

Several of the Matador aces, Percy Walker, flashy halfback, "Red" Hamilton, halfback, "Dubble" White, wingman, have done very little work this week; however, Coach Freeland expects to use them against the Billies Saturday.

Perfect Pass Defense It is quite apparent that after seeing a whizzing aerial attack from Dana X. Bille's crew of Farmers that a stubborn pass defense is being worked with by the Matador handlers.

Although the Aggie-Matador contest was the apex of the Texas Tech 1927 football season, it is by no means an easy victory for the rest of the season.

TITULAR HOPES AT STAKE IN GRID TILTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Championship hopes will be at stake in at least a half dozen college football battles next Saturday, east, south and west, but none hold forth prospects any more thrilling than those between Washington and Stanford on the Pacific coast.

Of this sort, only Stanford has met defeat, but "Pop" Warner's Cardinal rank among the most powerful divisions on the Pacific coast, nevertheless, and may put and end to Washington's unbroken march of victory.

The "rolling" seems to be that if any outfit is going to stop Notre Dame this season, it will be Minnesota, led by the All-American fullback, Harry J. Wainwright. The Hoosiers have West Point, and Southern California in their sights, but if they beat the Gophers' Rockne's Ramblers will be on the way toward their goal of a national championship.

Walter Hagen Makes Typical Rally To Win His Match From Jack Farrell

(By Associated Press) CEDAR CREST COUNTRY CLUB, DALLAS, Nov. 1.—Walter Hagen, the invincible, pulled a typical comeback today and defeated Jack Farrell of Glenhead, N. Y., 3 and 2 after he had trailed the New York youngster almost all the way.

Hagen came through with a victory in spite of the fact he was missing many of the long puts that he ordinarily makes and was flooding the rough and the woods now and again. He was four behind when he started the afternoon round and did not come to the front until the 27th hole.

DAILY MARKETS

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—The cotton market was quiet today with the price movement rather irregular. After selling off from 29.74 to 29.22, however, January rallied, closing at 29.42, compared with 29.26, at the close yesterday.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Nov. 1 (AP)—The hog trade here today was fairly active and generally steady.

COTTONSEED OIL

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 (AP)—The cottonseed oil market was quiet today and without fresh features.

Early gains were lost, December selling off to 29.15 and March to 28.40, net declines of about 4 to 6 points, but the market firmed up again in late trading on reports that freezing temperatures were in prospect for some part of the southwest by tomorrow and publication of a report from Washington that the carryover estimate of 7,800,000 bales published by the department of agriculture last September was not official.

Prices rallied almost to the highest point of the morning and showed recoveries of 15 to 20 points from the lowest at the close. A private crop estimate of 12,629,999 bales evidently was without much effect on the market, which some took as indicating that November 1 indications were expected to show very little change compared with the October 1 figures.

The holiday in New Orleans and in some of the markets abroad was considered partly responsible for the small volume of business, which much of the trading was attributed to further evening up of commitments in preparation for next week's government report.

Private cables reported Bombay buying in the Liverpool market Exports today 123,780, making 2,24,656 so far this season. Port receipts, 199,769. U. S. port stocks, 28,253,378.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Wheat world stocks of wheat showing 18,150,000 bushels increase, the wheat market underwent a sag at the last today. Reports of fine weather in Argentina and of excellent crop prospects throughout that country acted also as a bearish influence.

WHAT HAS BEEN TOLD

Frank Norfleet, a Texas rancher, swindled out of $45,000 by a band of swindlers, resolves to destroy the confidence ring. He lands two of his men in California and follows a tip that leads him to Florida, where he is arrested at the duplicity of some of the police force that seem to be aiding the swindlers. Posing as a sucker, he is taken to the club house near Daytona Beach, where the old wire tapping game is played and he has a narrow escape when the crooks learn that he is Norfleet. He goes to Palm Beach and Miami where he learns that an Illinois farmer has been swindled at Key West. He rushes to that city, arriving barely in time to see the farmer before he left for home. The farmer had tried to get Federal troops to arrest his swindlers and when the swindlers heard of it they had captured the farmer and had given him a severe beating. Norfleet watches the building where the fake exchange is located. He sees Joe Carey, head of the gang that had swindled him, enter the building. He watches all night for the man to come out and then he goes to the sheriff for aid. He is sent back to the building alone and is promised two officers will be sent to help him. After two hours the men came in ill-fitting uniforms, and while Norfleet watches they enter the building to search for Carey. After a few minutes Norfleet hears the exhaust of a motor boat racing away from the back of the building and he rushes around in time to see Carey and the two pseudo-officers spending away over the water. He charts a hydroplane and attempts to locate them, but fails. He goes back to Miami, a newspaper announces that the estate of William J. Bryan will be open to the public for one day and Norfleet resolves to watch around hoping to get a trace of one of his men. He stations himself as self-appointed gate keeper at the bronze gates to the estate.

Chapter Twenty-one

I searched the faces of the passing thousands and all were strange. Finally, I sighted a familiar face and recognized the wife of Whitey Alford. She had distinguished herself sometime before by leaping from a window of the courthouse in Fort Worth, Texas. At the time she did her brother she had $20,000 swindle money on her person. Her husband was then in jail on a middle charge. She said she almost as fairly chose my course. The folks at home were making great sacrifices, working hard—much harder than they had ever done before—and now they were finding it necessary to start selling off choice through-bred animals and other property in which we had taken a great deal of pride. My foolish (?) determination to accomplish my view that I would run the swindlers to earth and put them in prison was costing us a dear gun.

The home they pulled at my heart. I started in that direction, stopping at at Dayton Beach. Almost every move I made was prompted by hunches, since my inexperience in such matters rendered me incapable of proceeding as a trained officer would have done. In a hurry to say that there were several occasions when the proper operation by trained officers would have greatly benefited my hunt and lessened my sacrifices of time and money.

I had no desire to see Dayton Beach again, but I was curious to know if anything new had developed since I had left. Steel and Johnson on their side mentioned perhaps, since Carey must have been there and seen me on my other visit he had decided that it was now safe to come back. Perhaps I could catch him off his guard. Anything was worth trying when nothing better suggested itself.

I knew only the little old lady at the buncheon where I had stopped and Harbes, the county surveyor. I doubted if either could help me, so I strolled down the main street and racked my brain for inspiration.

A portable sign on the sidewalk attracted my attention. "Triple City Land Company" I read. I remembered that Spencer posed as a great deal as a hard man and I wondered if it could be possible that he had ever tried to do business with the Triple City Land company. I stopped as to how I should find out—was another of those fool hunches. It would seem ridiculous to walk up to the information desk and ask if the company had ever been swindled by Spencer and Carey, but I decided to take a flyer to see what would happen.

The office of the Triple City Land Company was on the second floor and I went up. There was an information desk in the hall and a pretty little blonde presided there. I asked her up and hesitated before I spoke. I was sure that the child would not understand the meaning of the term "confidence man."

"Is the manager in?"
"No!" and she waved a hand toward his empty chair.
"Will he be back soon?"
"Perhaps!" She looked me over suspiciously.

"I'll wait." And I showed myself to a chair. After a moment, I unfolded my own special edition and pretended to read. An in a ME, I rose and went over near her, pointing to an article in the paper.
"What's the meaning of this 'confidence business'?" I asked, innocently.
The girl colored and I could see a tinge of suppressed anger in her face—not anger toward me, for she thawed considerably.

"If you knew as much about them as we do you wouldn't have to ask such questions!"
Apparently, the child had a grudge against the confidence men.

After further quizzing, I learned that she and her father, who was manager of the Triple City Company, had lost a fortune to the swindling ring, through their operations on the "stock exchange"—located on the high hill, overlooking the sea.
I asked her to describe the leading members of the organization and, when she gave me a word picture of the man who had engineered their swindling, I caught an accurate glimpse of Spencer.

"Did this man ever give you anything with his name on it?" I asked.
"Yes! A check—a hot one!" she replied, drawing a package from her desk drawer.
It happened that I had a little package of papers in my pocket, among which was a slip bearing the signature of Spencer's writing and his signature. My paper was signed "W. B. Spencer" and hers "W. B. Spier."

"Look at them!" I said, holding them before her, side by side.
They were identical in their peculiar flourishes.
"They swindled two other parties in this town and before the police could get them, they escaped in an automobile," the girl related.
Evidently after I had removed Steel and Johnson, Spencer and others had remained to complete unfinished business. It seemed, now, that the town was cleaned of the whole gang—and the people themselves were pretty well cleaned of their surplus cash. I felt rather satisfied to return to the ranch for a brief time.

I traveled impatiently on my homeward journey—eager to be home and anxious to be out on the trail again—torn, twisted between conflicting desires and duties.
When I arrived at home, I found a wire from Sheriff Clark of Fort Worth stating that the Hamilton had been arrested and was in jail in that city. Hamilton was the first of the swindlers I had met—the man who had picked me for a prospect and led me to the master-slaughterers. I was elated to learn that the third of my men was now eliminated from my search and that I might concentrate on the two principals.

I had yet to learn that, due to our incongruous involved legal and judicial system, the mere arrest, conviction and sentencing of a criminal does not close the final chapter of the case. Truly, I had much to learn, but my education was progressing rapidly.

Things at home weren't going so well. Money was tight and I was sorely tempted to abandon my pursuit and settle down to my own affairs. Had I done this, my present fortunes would have been in much better condition but, when I thought of the Bookermans' of the Canadian move, the Illinois farmer, the Triple City Land company and his daughter and the probable hundreds of others who were paying toll to Carey, Spencer and their like, my blood boiled and I determined to sacrifice my last dollar if necessary to break up their game. At times I was discouraged over my lack of experience and ability in tracking such game, but my grim determination would carry me through such desperate spells and I did not weaken.

My wife had tried to readjust the affairs of the ranch in such a way that they could be more easily conducted by a woman. She was going into turkey and hog raising and small farming.
Two winters before I had bought between two and three hundred cattle at a straight price of fifty dollars a head. They were standard bred stock and the purchase was a part of my plan to improve my cattle strains. I had fed them through two years and now that I needed cash badly, I was forced to sell them on an off market at $25.75 a head. This is but an example of the many sacrifices I made in disposing of property to finance my five-year pursuit of the swindlers. Invariably, I was forced to sell my stocks and goods at great losses. My high-blooded ambition to accomplish what I had set out to do warped my judgment and made these sacrifices seem worth while. Often, since, when I have heard of the criticism of others who have called me foolish, I have wondered if I was right.

After a visit with the family and an adjustment of my affairs which gave me money to proceed with my mission, I grew restless to hit the trail again, but I was perplexed as to where to begin.
From the time I had started my man hunt, every clue connected with the affair had cleared except one—the episode of the San Antonio police station, where I had met the waiting young shopkeeper who had sold the stolen fur coat to the "big man" in room 113 at the St. Anthony.

The more I thought of the coat the stronger my hunch became to go to San Antonio and attempt to pick up the thread and follow its course. Here was another case where

I did one thing, without very good reasons, simply because I could think of nothing better. I thought the coat incident had seemed so insignificant in comparison with my discoveries at the hotel that, at the time I gave it little thought. Now its importance grew in my mind and I saw that it might lead to something of real note. In the case, I realized that the trail would be cold, after the year which had elapsed, but, for the time, I decided to abandon my search for men and to concentrate on the coat and what had become of it.

FLOYDADA, Nov. 1—By a vote of 265 for and 46 against citizens

Floydada voted to close Main street for the erection of the $1,000,000 Price railway station. Under the signed statement of Chas. L. Sommer, president of the Q. A. and P. railway system, the people of Floydada have given the assurance that the depot would be built providing a favorable vote was cast for the raising of East Mississippi street. The erection of the station will add much to the civic beauty of the eastern portion of the city, besides adding much to the convenience of patrons of the new road.

With the definite assurance of the new station and the possibility of a new post office and more than 600 front feet of brick buildings now being erected, Floydada continues to enjoy the rapid growth that began with the announcement from the Interstate Commerce Commission that the right to construct their extension from McCall to Floydada. More than $750,000 has been expended within the city during the past nine months, including the extension of the Texas Utilities company line and the piping of gas from Amarillo by the West Texas Gas company.

If you are sewing large buttons on fine material, for fastenings use a flat button on the inside of the material to prevent tearing a hole.

When making eyelets to slip lacings through, outline the hole before punching and you will find it easier to work and much firmer.

SINCLAIR CASE

government, Sinclair would need diplomatic protection in Russia and he might be expected to try to arrange it. The Soviet's hope of a $250,000,000 loan through Sinclair's auspices hardly could have been realized without it.

In London, Sinclair outlined to Kraasin, the Soviet ambassador, his plan to take over the whole of Russia's enormous oil industry. Kraasin was in no position to discuss matters on that basis, however, it would have been one of the most important industrial deals in world history-and the party went on to Moscow, where it was housed in a palace.

In Moscow the groundwork was laid for a concession, not as ambitious as Harry's original vision, but an important one such as no other interest had been able to obtain. Sinclair departed, leaving his European representative who, in November, signed an agreement by which a company in which the Soviet and Sinclair were to share equally was to exploit the Baku and Gromi fields. Sinclair had to invest more than $100,000,000 and, furthermore, was to float a Russian loan in New York.

The feelings of Standard Oil upon receiving this news can only be imagined. Standard had certain claims on the Baku fields which Sinclair got in. Sinclair had been challenging that great corporation both at home and in the foreign field. Such challenges were most unusual insofar as American oil men were concerned.

But when the lid blew off Teapot Dome, Sinclair became no longer a serious rival of Standard Oil in the great Russian oil fields. There was no longer any possibility that Sinclair could obtain American recognition and there was even less chance that he could raise a $250,000,000 Russian loan. There were other promises, tacit or otherwise, that Sinclair no longer could fulfill.

Soon afterward Sinclair lost out in the northern half of Sakhalin island, where he also had a concession from the Soviets the carrying out of which was contingent on American recognition.

In 1928, Sinclair also signed a preliminary agreement with the Persian government to exploit the oil fields of north Persia. This was conditional on a $100,000,000 loan. Here again the Teapot Dome story appeared on the scene and was used by Sinclair's enemies to turn the Persians against him. Subsequently it began to be reported that Sinclair, beaten or forced with defeat on all fronts, had aligned himself with the Standard interests.

If Sinclair is acquitted in the present trial, it will be interesting to see whether he ever again starts out on his own to recover his lost ground and attain the gigantic ambition which once were his.

COTTON ESTIMATE SOUGHT IN SURVEY

EXPERTS CHECK BOLLS ON FIELDS IN VARIOUS PARTS OF THE COUNTY

For the purpose of estimating the probable yield of cotton in Lubbock county and other sections of the South Plains, N. H. Payne, chief of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, and Frank C. McClendon, his assistant, Monday made a survey of various fields in the county. Yesterday they were in Hockley county for a similar check on the probable yield. The test consisted in the tabulation of the number of bolls in 10 feet of 36 inch rows, and the number of bolls per one-half pound. The average number of bolls per 10 feet was 79.3, and the number of bolls to the half pound was 34.8. The heaviest average encountered was on the farm of W. C. Grimes, of the Acuff community. The average number of bolls per ten feet was 85.5, and the average for one-half pound was 38.3. A crop estimate of the county is to be announced in the report of Messrs. Payne and McClendon here in a few days. The survey was aimed to supply a definite estimate on the year's probable yield.

DERELICT

Papers found aboard the derelict were brought to the consulate here where they were found to be letters and receipts all bearing the name of Takizo Miki, believed to be captain or owner of the boat but no explanation of the disaster which overtook the vessel and its crew was contained in the documents.

Dead For Month. Captain H. T. Payne, master of the Margaret Dollar, expressed the opinion that the men had been dead for a month or more and that the vessel probably had been drifting for at least one hundred days. The bodies of the two Japanese were found in bunks in the tiny cabin aft of the engine room. They were in natural postures as if the men had failed to awaken from a deep sleep. The boat was 55 feet long, of 15 foot beam and 12 foot depth. It was equipped with a gasoline engine in addition to the hemp, canvas and bamboo sails. The sails were torn to shreds by gales and standing gear on the deck was twisted and bent. The hull was barnacle encrusted and dragging was a week's job. The vessel was wrecked in a northwest gale, the ship dragged anchor when first brought in, but was pulled off the beach and towed to a safe anchorage near Glen Cove.

SINCLAIR TRIAL

debits refer to the activities of the Illinois Agents and the other two to conversations affiants swore they had last Friday and Saturday with Juror Kidwell.

J. Ray Akers, a street car conductor, and Donald T. King, a Washington newspaper man, detailed conversations they said they had with Kidwell in which the juror was quoted as having expressed "great admiration" for Sinclair because of his "democratic manner," and as having said that, "if I don't have one (an automobile) as long as this block, I will be much disappointed."

Kidwell also was quoted as saying he had been picked up as a juror because he was "a pretty good yes and no man" and that "the smart lawyers could not make his say what he had not wanted to say."

The affidavits said these conversations took place in a "soft drink establishment" in a back street of southwest Washington.

Tells of Raid Evidence. The affidavits dealing with activities of the Burns agents were made by Neal Burkishaw and Walter M. Shea, assistant United States district attorneys, the former of whom made the investigation leading to the Wardman Park hotel raid carried out under Shea's personal direction.

Burkishaw declared that the papers obtained in that raid disclosed "the close, intimate, objectionable and improper surveillance" which the Burns detectives kept on the jurors as they moved about before and after court hours daily. He also averred that "the real employer of the said detective was Harry F. Sinclair, a defendant in this case."

Moreover, the young district attorney stated that the operatives living at the Wardman Park—C. G. Hudby and C. H. Robbins—reported to A. Mason Day, "who is registered at the Mayflower hotel in Washington, D. C., where also the defendant, Harry F. Sinclair, is registered."

Reported to Day. "I further aver," the affidavit continued, "that reports were at times rendered to the said Day at the home of Donald Woodward, 2118 Leroy Place, Washington, D. C."

"I aver Day was what is known as the 'contact man' between the 'active employer' of said Burns detective agency in this behalf, and said Sudday acting as manager of the operatives in Washington, D. C."

Statement Supplementary. The statement was issued as a supplement to the stenographic record of what took place in the private of the judge's chambers today when affidavits were read charging a group of detectives had shadowed members of the jury now trying Sinclair and Albert B. Fall for conspiracy in the case of the "rotten dog" naval aid reserve, Justice Sudday, in this behalf, tonight, agreed to allow defense counsel to give out for publication their side of the private proceedings today inasmuch as the text of the affidavits, submitted by Assistant United States District Attorney Sudday, has been made public.

In their joint statement, counsel for Sinclair declared that "none of the counsel for the defendants had any knowledge or information of the matter set forth in the affidavits submitted by counsel for the government until late last night."

"This morning," the counsel continued, "the Washington Herald published a sensational forecast of the fact that such affidavits would be submitted. Counsel for the defense learned, in addition to this, the earlier, attorney is now conducting a full investigation of the whole matter and that this fact is being daily published."

The position of counsel for the defense which was presented today to Judge Siddons, in chambers, in full, is that publication of affidavits and of all matters in connection therewith and the effect of such publications make the trial unnecessary.

TAX REDUCTION

posed by the administration. In addition he said that the tobacco growers were entitled to some reduction in the tax imposed upon their products.

The views of Mr. Simmons coincide largely with those recently expressed by Representative Garner, ranking democrat on the House ways and means committee, who said today that the corporation levy should be cut to 10 per cent.

While all witnesses appearing at the hearing today agreed with the treasury that a reduction in the corporation tax was advisable, some took the democratic position that a slice of more than 1 1/2 per cent should be made.

James A. Emery, representing the National Association of Manufacturers urged that the major part of the reduction be effected in the corporation tax while Felix McWhirter of Indianapolis, representing the chamber of commerce, came out for its reduction to 10 per cent.

Roy C. Osgood of Chicago, speaking for the chamber, urged repeal of the estate levy, holding it interfered with a field of taxation occupied by many states and that it also resulted in hastening the settlement of estates.

Chairman Green, of the committee who is opposed to the treasury suggestion to repeal the levy, said some committee members felt it was unfair for one state to bill against another for wealthy citizens and that he believed much opposition to the federal tax resulted from many persons failing to understand its provisions.

H. H. Rice, of Detroit, spokesman for the chamber on excise taxes advocated their repeal.

TICK IS CONQUERED

South Carolina and Virginia Are Added to List of States Winning Over Menace

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. (AP)—South Carolina and Virginia have been added to the states which have conquered the cattle tick menace, making the Atlantic coast states as far as Florida practically free of ticks. Secretary Jardine today ordered the tick quarantine removed December 1, from the parts of the two states remaining under control. Additional territory released from quarantine, December 1, includes: Texas—Bandera, Bexar, Comal, Coryell, Fayette, Kendall, Nueces and Titus counties, and a portion of Matagorda county. Morehouse parish, Louisiana, formerly quarantined, was reintegrated and the existing quarantines of areas in Mississippi and Oklahoma was maintained.

TEXAS BANK LOOTED

Scant Clues Left For Officers Who Are Probing Bold Heist Of Texas City Bank

GALVESTON, Nov. 1.—Peace officers of South Texas late Tuesday had little or no clue to follow in the search for two unknown men who held up the First National bank of Texas City at 1:45 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and escaped with loot totalling $6900 in loot. No one actually saw the men leave the bank after they looted the cash vaults has been found.

Two sedans had been noticed in Texas City before the robbery and their occupants had acted suspiciously, it was reported. The robbery consumed only about four minutes and attracted no attention. Chester M. Griffin, cashier, and Miss Elizabeth Legg, clerk, were alone in the bank when the bandits entered. The men covered Mr. Griffin with revolvers, ordered the cashier and the girl into the vault and locked the vault after taking all the currency in sight.

Griffin and Miss Legg were locked in the vault about ten minutes until other employees of the bank, returning from lunch, released them. In the meantime, the bandits apparently made good their escape without attracting any attention. One of the men was described as tall and slender and the other of medium height. The smaller man wore dark glasses.

LEGION FINISHES ARMISTICE PLANS

BRIEF CEREMONY WILL BE GIVEN UNDER POST AUSPICES HERE

A brief and simple, but appropriate ceremony will mark the observance here on November 11 of Armistice Day, it was decided at a meeting of the Allen Brothers post of the American legion last night.

The Legion ceremony will begin at 10:45 on the morning of November 11 at one of the churches here, as yet undecided, and will be followed by a fitting program from the daughters of Confederate Veterans.

One Legion speaker will make a short talk during the service, and the entire citizenship will be asked to pause for a moment at 11 o'clock in tribute to the men who gave their lives in the Great War. The program will be in general charge of the Confederate daughters.

The Legion, at the Monday night meeting, accepted an invitation to give a program at one of the weekly Kiwanis club luncheons. A November 12 to the date on which the Legion program will be given and Durwood H. Bradley is the man who has been placed in charge of this feature.

Many to Berger.

A good delegation from the Lubbock post is expected to make the trip to the Berger legion convening, Nov. 12 and 13. The Berger convening chairman of the post was instructed to pay the expenses of an automobile full of delegates, and others are expected to make the journey, a splendid program of entertainment and instruction having been arranged.

It was emphasized by Commander E. D. Repe, that the time for the annual election of officers was near and that a nominating committee should be appointed to draft tickets later in the date on which the election will be held. The election will be on November 23, at which time a membership drive will be conducted and a banquet will be held.

GAS RESOURCES PROBLEMATIC

REPRESENTS AN UNKNOWN QUANTITY, SPEAKER TELLS GAS-MEET

(By Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Nov. 1.—Natural gas resources in the southwest are an unknown quantity; the best we can get on is to take the geological indications as to the extent of gas fields, figure the pressure from the wells, estimate the depth of the sand and from this date approximate what the field will do, and this is nothing more than "fire-in-the-sky" gas, J. S. Jev, Palmer Corporation, Shreveport, La., told the Southwest Division of the American Gas association, Tuesday.

These estimates, naturally, do not take into consideration that increasing of new gas fields, he said, while natural gas fields, such as was being realized for both oil and gas, while most of the structures have been mapped, the fact remains and gas men have admitted it, he continued, that the wildcat at any moment may uncover another profitable natural gas field, such as was pointed out, that Bernard could resign as president of the Indians, be elected president of the American Gas association and as such proceed to handle friendly hands in adjusting the Cleveland situation.

Hearing to Be Held Wednesday On Identity of Man Found Afloat in Trinity River Sunday

DALLAS, Nov. 1. (AP)—A hearing will be held here at 1 p. m. Wednesday to decide upon the identity of a man whose body was found Sunday in the Trinity river. Although positively identified by Mrs. H. Bessett as the body of her husband, another woman, whose name was not made public said she believed the body to be that of her husband, but was not sure.

The man apparently had been dead for several weeks when the body was found and identification from physical appearance was practically out of the question. The second claimant said she recognized articles of clothing of the body, but wished a little more time for investigation before saying positively if it was that of her husband.

NO CHANGE IN POLICY

Our policy of doing the finest in tailor work, dry cleaning and dressing—doing it for an economical price and extending credit to those worthy of it, is still in effect. We realize that it is sometimes inconvenient for our customers to pay upon delivery of the garment, and not desiring to place upon them the burden and inconvenience that a policy of cash only would bring, our policy in the matter of extending credit will remain unchanged, and our workmanship and prices will still meet all competition.
